Contra aid plan in deeper trouble

By MIKE SHANAHAN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Republican Senate Appropriations Committee voted 15-13 Thursday to approve President Reagan's plan to release $14 million in aid to Nicaraguan rebels.

But other developments showed the president's proposal was in deep trouble with votes scheduled on the House and Senate floor next Tuesday.

In the House, Democrats rejected a Republican compromise, which would have prohibited use of the $14 million for military assistance.

Instead, the House Rules Committee sent a broader humanitarian aid package for Central America to the floor, which would help refugees and provide money for a peace-keeping force once the Nicaraguan civil war was over.

The Senate committee vote was in part a holding pattern, intended to allow further negotiations with the White House.

Many members of the committee, including Republicans, said they would vote against Reagan's proposal on the floor, although they supported it Thursday for procedural reasons.

Republican leaders tried unsuccessfully to find ways to amend Reagan's plan, which as a special appropriations measure was difficult to change in committee. But the rules governing debate in the full Senate are expected to allow the possible compromise to replace the original Reagan proposal.

Under Reagan's plan approved by the committee, the $14 million would be provided as food, clothing and medical assistance for a 60-day cease-fire period.

After that, Reagan could divert the money to weapons and ammunition if the Nicaraguan government, in the president's judgment, had failed to negotiate seriously with the Contra rebels seeking to overthrow the leftist Sandinista regime.

The alternative agreed to by House and Senate Republican leaders reportedly had Reagan's agreement earlier Thursday. But by late afternoon when the appropriations panel voted, Chairman Mark Hatfield of Oregon said there was no compromise.

An administration official, speaking on condition he not be identified, confirmed that an agreement had been reached with senators of both parties on a measure appropriating the $14 million for the current fiscal year, but providing that all of the money would be for non-lethal assistance.

House GOP Whip Trent Lott of Mississippi had said the compromise would assure that "we don't let the Contras go down the drain."

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., had predicted

Hopper charges dropped

Provided Congress can locate money

By BOB FREUND

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service will back off its unpopular plan to charge farmers and state governments for part of the costs of fighting grasshoppers on public lands — if Congress can find $14.8 million to wage the battle.

APHIS administrator — Burt Hawkins has pledged to U.S. Sen. Jim McClure that his agency will pick up the entire cost of spraying insecticide on public land, providing Congress comes up with money for the campaign, said Jim Hansen, assistant administrator for legislative and public affairs on Thursday.

Hawkins also has agreed to share costs of spraying state and private lands, essentially repeating a program that won support from farmers and state officials during a 1979 grasshopper infestation, according to Hansen and Congressional aides.

"They haven't written it down, but there's an agreement between McClure and Hawkins that there will be a return to the old (1979) program when the money comes," said Jane Wittmeyer, McClure's legislative aide for agricultural affairs.

Grasshoppers last spring swarmed out of desert managed by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management and the U.S. Forest Service into farm fields, eating up crops. Under heavy political pressure, Secretary of Agriculture John Block declared emergencies and gave APHIS money to spray infested public lands.

But the counterattack was too little and it came too late, said Gov. John Evans.

The payments have been controversial since early this year, when Hawkins required Western states and their farmers to pay half the costs for the federal government to spray its own land in the event of a grasshopper invasion.

Evans and farm groups also were maddened when Hawkins said federal share of the costs could be taken from PILT funds — payments made to

Californians conduct practice for anticipated quake disaster

By LEE SIEGEL
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Californians staged a simulated earthquake catastrophe Thursday by evacuating schools and treating fake casualties to prepare for a disaster geologists say probably will happen within 50 years.

A half-hour before the exercise began, a mild earthquake struck 90 miles northeast of San Francisco. No damage or injuries were reported in the tremor, which measured 3.6 on the Richter scale.

Don Irwin, deputy director of California's Office of Emergency Services, said the simulation was necessary to see if the disaster plan worked.

"An 8.3 quake is probably the greatest disaster that could occur short of nuclear war," Irwin said. "It would result in thousands of dead and many thousands injured."

Officials in seven Southern California counties pretended the great quake struck at 10:03 a.m. MDT on the southern San Andreas Fault and caused massive damage throughout the region, said Vern Paine of the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

The exercise was conducted during Earthquake Preparedness Week proclaimed by Gov. George Deukmejian. Thursday also was the 70th anniversary of the 8.3-magnitude quake that devastated San Francisco, killing at least 700 people and leaving 300,000 homeless.

About 2,300 students, some screaming, were evacuated from Venice High School in Los Angeles as the mock quake caused up to 21 make-believe injuries.

"It's going terrible," Orange County spokesman John Bushman said of the imaginary damage in his area, including freeways closed by collapsed overpasses and water and sewer line ruptures.

Orange County officials pretended to broadcast emergency messages warning residents to stay home, keep off the phone and not drinking water. They also made a mock request for a state disaster declaration and dispatched helicopters to survey freeways and the Prado Dam for damage.

Court rejects appeal of competency ruling

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Supreme Court has let stand a lower court's ruling that self-proclaimed prophet Ronald Lafferty is competent to stand trial in the deaths of his sister-in-law and her infant daughter.

Supreme Court Clerk Geoffrey Butler said Thursday the appeal by Provo attorney Richard Johnson, who was appointed to assist Lafferty in his defense, was denied without comment.

Johnson had filed the appeal April 11, challenging 4th District Judge J. Robert Bullock's ruling. In his decision, Bullock also set an April 25 trial date for Lafferty.

A memorandum attached to the petition for appeal was sealed by Supreme Court Justice Gordon R. Hall at Bullock's request; Bullock has ordered lawyers in the case to refrain from discussing the case with reporters.

Meantime, Johnson said Lafferty continued to insist on defending himself on charges he killed Brenda Wright-Lafferty, 24, and her 13-month-old daughter Erica last July 24. Lafferty also is charged with conspiring to kill two other American Fork residents.

Lafferty's younger brother, Dan, 36, was convicted of two counts of first-degree murder in January for the same slayings. He was sentenced to life in prison when the jury could not reach a unanimous decision for the death penalty.

The brothers, excommunicated Mormons, belonged to a splinter sect known as the "School of the Prophets." The group believes it can receive and interpret divine revelations.

The Idaho money squeeze

Tax receipts lag behind projections for date

The Associated Press

BOISE — With a possible financial crisis looming as Idaho's economy continues to lag behind the nation, tax receipts through the first nine months of the current spending year have fallen nearly 7.5 percent short of projections, according to government financial analysts.

At the end of March, receipts from all state taxes totaled just under $398 million, $6 million below the level projected for that period. The downturn was pegged to the poor performance of sales and personal income taxes, which could be tied in part to the continuing deterioration of the timber industry.

"March was a disappointing month for general account revenues," the analysts said in their monthly update on the state's economic situation.

While receipts from miscellaneous and special taxes are running about as expected and corporate tax revenues have actually exceeded projections by $1.2 million, the analysts said sales tax revenues are off $2.2 million and personal income tax payments are down $3.8 million.

"March individual income tax collections fell $4.5 million from February levels, and sales tax revenues were stagnant," the analysts said. "The coming months are critical for revenues as we pass the April 15 filing deadline for income taxes."

Legislators and Gov. John Evans agreed in 1984 on a current state budget of about $549 million and their revenue estimates for the year that ends June 30 were pegged close to that figure with excess allocated for use in the spending year that begins July 1. The budget for that year, approved by lawmakers this winter, is already more than $2 million over the Legislature's own formal estimate of state income for the period.

Lawmakers backing the deficit budget plan have pegged their hopes for balancing spending with income on a major surge in economic activity in the state, which would bolster receipts in both the sales and income sectors.

While the analysts believe personal income tax receipts could rebound if the shortfall was due to taxpayers waiting until the mid-April deadline to file, the

Student athletic fee scrambling continues

By MARK WARREN
The Associated Press

BOISE — A probable cut in state funding for collegiate athletic programs has higher education officials scrambling for fee increases to salvage what they contend are already modest operations.

Financial officials from Idaho's four colleges and universities met with the finance committee of the state Board of Education in Boise on Thursday to explain their rationale for proposed per-student athletic fee increases of $10 to $16 a semester.

The board in 1983 ordered 10 percent annual cuts in athletic program funding for fiscal 1986, 1987 and 1988. Facing the first cut of $23,969 with the spending year that begins July 1, college administrators are looking for ways to cover their losses.

The first round of cuts would take $66,300 each from Boise State University, Idaho State University and the University of Idaho, and $24,589 from Lewis-Clark State College.

The staff of the state board has recommended fee increases of no more than $6 per semester at each school to cover the loss of general account funding, but university officials say they need more.

A board decision on all student fee increase proposals, as well as the division of state funding appropriations for fiscal 1986 is scheduled for today.

All four options being discussed for distribution of the approximately $109.9 million budget include funding about $1.9 million in salary equity for university faculty. That's down from the $2.5 million originally proposed for salary increases for all higher education employees.

Two of the four options also fully fund the proposed $3.5 million "critical program needs" package, which includes such things as ISU's pharmacy school, engineering schools at ISU and U of I, the BSU business school and the LCSC nursing program. Many such programs face possible loss of accreditation without increased funding.

One option includes $2.06 million for those programs, and a fourth offers just over $2.8 million.

The board's staff has recommended the $3.06 million option, saying that staff additions for which

President Reagan chats with the crew of the space shuttle Thursday from the Oval Office

Sen. Garn fulfills his mission by getting sick during flight

By LEE DYE
The Los Angeles Times

KENNEDY SPACE CENTER, Fla. — The first elected official to fly in space said Thursday he did what he was supposed to do aboard Discovery. He got sick.

But the fact that he spent his first two days of flight suffering from space sickness was a small price to pay for a "dream come true," Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, said Thursday during a press conference from Discovery. Asked if he would rather be an astronaut than a senator, he said:

"That is one of the easiest questions I've ever had to answer." If he were 10 years younger, he said, "I would choose to be a working astronaut over being a senator so fast it would make your head swim."

Referring to the futile, impromptu attempt to rescue a stranded satellite, Garn said "I've watched a fantastic crew do an incredible job. It was really a remarkable performance ... a masterful job."

Space flight, he added, was even better than he had dreamed.

"Every day I would pinch myself and think this can't be real ... I'm not here ... I'm not seeing this ..."

The seven-member crew also took time out from its last day in orbit to talk briefly with President Reagan. The president, in a phone patch from the Oval Office, told the astronauts that "we saw a lot of human ingenuity at work" in the unsuccessful effort to rescue a stranded satellite.

Reagan also implored Garn to return to Earth in time to support his budget in the Senate.

"You are doing a fine job up there, but I could use your help down here right now in getting the federal budget under control and arranging assistance for some people fighting for their freedom in Central America," Reagan told Garn.

"I've missed you, but I'll be back on Tuesday," Garn responded. "I'm well aware of the vote on Nicaraguan aid on Tuesday night and I'll be voting just the way you'd like me to when I get back."

The Discovery was to land at the Kennedy spaceport at 6:17 a.m. MST today, ending the 16th flight in the shuttle program.

Garn, who chairs the Senate subcommittee that oversees the budget of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, took part in experiments that are part of an ongoing effort to understand the effect of weightlessness on the human body. NASA officials had indicated that Garn's contribution could be enhanced if he succumbed to the ailment while conducting the experiments, and the senator said he did not let them down.

"I'll be very honest with you," he said in the press conference. "I didn't feel good for two days."

Discovery commander Karol J. Bobko, 47, reflected on the unrehearsed rendezvous with the disabled satellite, built and owned by Hughes Communications Inc.

"It's a great feeling to rendezvous with a speck in the sky," Bobko said. Dr. Rhea Seddon, who used the shuttle's mechanical arm-to-slap-a-lever on the satellite that was believed to have been stuck, said the astronauts turned the spacecraft into an arts and crafts center when they fabricated the tools to use in the effort.

"It reminded me of girl scout camp," said Seddon, 37, the only woman in the crew.

The other members of the crew are Donald E. Williams, 42, the pilot; David Griggs, 45, Jeffrey A. Hoffman, 40, and Charles Walker, 36.

Union Carbide pledges Bhopal aid

NEW YORK (AP) — Union Carbide agreed Thursday to finance a $5 million emergency aid program for victims of the Bhopal chemical disaster, but said a "fair global settlement" of the victims' lawsuits would do more good.

Carbide acted two days after U.S. District Judge John F. Keenan publicly urged the corporation to spend $5 million to $10 million as a show of "good will" without waiting for court action to be resolved. Such a donation, Keenan said, would not imply that the Danbury, Conn.-based corporation admits any liability for the

Dec. 3 accident.

According to Indian government figures, some 1,700 people were killed and up to 200,000 were injured when a cloud of methyl isocyanide gas escaped from a pesticide plant and drifted through a slum area of Bhopal.

The New Delhi government sued Union Carbide last week, adding to more than 600 suits against the company that were brought by private American attorneys on behalf of accident victims. All the cases have been placed before Keenan for at least preliminary action.

"Union Carbide Corp. shares the court's deep concern about the health and welfare of the surviving victims of the Bhopal gas leak tragedy and recognizes the importance of immediate interim relief," Towe wrote. "If a further payment of $5 million by Union Carbide Corp. ... is made and effectively made available to the victims of the disaster, we are prepared, as we have been all along, to make such a payment."

Trapped miner freed

PALISADE, Colo. (AP) — A miner buried for 37 hours under tons of rock says he thought of killing himself as breackish water rose almost to his face before he was dug free Thursday by his co-workers' persistent rescue efforts.

Curt Sanders, 32, a miner since he was 19, walked out almost unscathed, except for a few scrapes.

"When the water was rising I actually thought of suicide because I didn't want to drown," he told reporters from his hospital bed in Grand Junction, where he is under observation.

"I actually contemplated hanging myself with my belt to avoid drowning," he said.

Sanders was trapped two miles inside the Powderhorn Coal Co.'s Roadside mine in western Colorado on Tuesday by a rock fall that buried him and the continuous-mining machine he was operating. The machine's steel-barred cab covered him and saved his life.

But the tons of rock that smashed into the cab crumpled it, leaving Sanders hunched over, his head jammed between his knees until the rescuers freed him from his prison.

Cable car accident leaves 12 injured

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A dozen passengers clinging to a cable car as it tumbled down Nob Hill suffered minor injuries when it slammed on its emergency brake to avoid hitting a car.

The accident Wednesday afternoon briefly closed the California Street line and shuttle buses were used in the interim.

Six people "with very minor injuries" were taken to the Mission Emergency hospital, according to a hospital spokesman. The other six declined to be taken to the hospital.

Cable car gripman Tom O'Brien pulled the emergency brake that caused the car to stop abruptly, said Municipal Railway spokeswoman Anne Milner.

Schroeder has misgivings about new heart

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — If William Schroeder had known in advance the hardship his artificial heart implant would cause his family, he might have turned it down, his wife said.

"Bill thought he'd either die or be better," Margaret Schroeder said in a cover story in the May issue of Life magazine.

At first, she said, she hoped the implant would enable her 53-year-old husband, who had been near death from congestive heart failure, "to get better and come home" to Jasper, Ind.

But now, after a stroke, a series of seizures and a plaguing fever, she said, "I see it as more of a research experiment."

Schroeder, who received his Jarvik-7 heart on Nov. 25, was discharged from Humana Hospital Audubon on April 6 and moved into an apartment across the street.

Jack Burcham, who received his Jarvik-7 on Sunday and Murray Hayden, who received his implant in February, remained hospitalized at Audubon. A man has also received the device in Stockholm, Sweden, and remains hospitalized there.

Since the strokes, Schroeder has had difficulty speaking, remembering and walking, he continues to depend his wife and family to do many everyday tasks, and a team of nurses and technicians is on call to assist him.

"I suppose you have to measure the good days against the bad. I'm not ashamed of him — I'm proud of him — but it's so frustrating to see him as he is now," she said.

"If he had anticipated the hardship that this has been on the family, he might not have done it," Mrs. Schroeder said.

Reagan defends planned visit to gravesite of Nazi soldiers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan insisted Thursday there is nothing wrong with his plan to visit a German cemetery where Nazi SS soldiers are buried and said the young men interred there "were victims, just as surely as the victims in the concentration camps."

The statement touched off another outburst of criticism of Reagan and his German visit, with one Jewish leader calling the comments "morally unconscionable and politically outrageous."

During an interview with about 100 editors and broadcasters at the White House, Reagan said he could not do an about-face and strip the visit from his 10-day schedule in Europe, asserting that would "look as if I had caved in the face of unfavorable attention."

"I think that there's nothing wrong with visiting that cemetery where those young men are victims of Nazism—also, even though they were fighting in the German uniform, drafted into service to carry out the hateful wishes of the Nazis," Reagan told the group. "They were victims just as surely as the victims in the concentration camps."

The president had been asked to comment about the controversy over his plan to visit the Bitburg cemetery with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl following the economic summit in May.

Reagan announced earlier this week that he would add a visit to a concentration camp or a similar place as a means to quell the controversy and show his wish to honor the victims of the Nazi terror.

White House spokesman said Reagan aides Michael K. Deaver and William Henkel were returning from Germany and would meet with the president Friday to decide whether Reagan will visit Dachau or some other concentration camp site.

At first, Reagan had said he would bypass such a place, which led to expressions of outrage from Jewish leaders and veterans organizations. Many of the military men buried at Bitburg cemetery fought in the bloody Battle of the Bulge, in which thousands of Americans died.

Reagan attempted to point out that there were only about 30 members of Hitler's elite SS military corps buried at the grave site, calling them "the villains, as we know, that conducted the persecutions and all."

The president said Bitburg was picked because a U.S. base was located near there and he will attend a church service with U.S. military Reform Judaism, said: "For the president of the United States to equate the soldiers who died in an attempt to subjugate the world to an unconscionable ideology, with those who were the tragic victims of the implementation of that ideology, is morally unconscionable and politically outrageous.

"I have learned that he has learned nothing from the controversy of the past week," said Spierstein.

And House Democrats, led by party caucus leader Rep. Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., introduced a resolution calling on Reagan to cancel his trip to the German cemetery because "it is an affront to all Americans."

Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., one of the measure's co-sponsors, said a House vote was expected by the middle of next week. Meanwhile, Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., announced that he had proposed a concurrent resolution urging Reagan to drop his plans to visit the Bitburg cemetery.

The resolution, co-sponsored by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., noted that some of the Nazi soldiers buried at Bitburg were SS men who fought in the Battle of the Jewish leader pleads for cancellation

George Shultz and Elie Wiesel listen to ceremony

WASHINGTON (AP) — An American Jewish leader used a ceremony Thursday in the Capitol in remembrance of the Holocaust to plead with President Reagan not to visit a German cemetery where Nazi SS troops are buried, asking: "Did no one consider the pain and the shame?"

Elie Wiesel, chairman of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Council and a Reagan appointee, publicly asked Secretary of State George P. Shultz to carry the appeal to the president.

Both spoke at the ceremony honoring the 40th anniversary of the liberation of the Nazi concentration camps where millions of Jews died. And Wiesel said later that he may not go to the White House today as scheduled to receive the Congressional Gold Medal from Reagan because of his "heavy heart."

"Mr. Secretary, I plead to you, be our emissary," Wiesel said. "Tell those who need to know that our pain is genuine, our outrage is deep and our perplexity is infinite."

Shultz, following Wiesel, departed from his prepared text for a brief acknowledgement.

"I share with you also the deep conviction that... within the deep spirit we feel of reconciliation and compassion, there is no place for understanding of those who took part in the perpetration of the Nazi horror."

Shultz said.

Wiesel has been a sharp critic of Reagan's plans announced last week to lay a wreath at the German military cemetery in Bitburg when he visits that country early next month. Among those buried at the cemetery are Nazi SS troops, members of the elite military unit that ran the concentration camps.

Wiesel, a survivor of two concentration camps and the author of more than a dozen books on the Holocaust, told the 500 people gathered for the ceremony that he understood the administration's efforts to "deal delicately with German sensitivities."

"But what about American sensitivity?" he asked. "Why is that not a factor in the high-level decision process? Did no one consider the pain and the shame some, if not most Americans, would feel upon learning that the president of the United States, for whom we have genuine admiration and affection, plans to visit a cemetery in which there are a good number of SS graves?"

Responding to that remark, Wiesel, whose mother and father died in concentration camps, said: "I hope he doesn't believe that. Does he really know what it means to be a victim of a concentration camp... to see one's parents killed? How can he compare?"

U.S. officials see border moves

Soviets set up Nicaraguan systems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet military technicians are setting up a communications system in northern Nicaragua close to areas where intense fighting has taken place between the Sandinista army and anti-government rebel forces, U.S. officials said Thursday.

The officials said they believe the facility would enhance the Nicaragua government's intelligence-gathering capabilities when used, via satellite communication, with an existing installation in the capital of Managua.

The existence of the new installation, classified as "top secret," could not be independently confirmed. Its disclosure, from officials who spoke only on condition that they not be identified by name, came as the administration maintained its efforts to win congressional approval for $14 million in aid to the Contra anti-government forces.

State Department deputy spokesman Edward Djerejian said the administration does not comment on intelligence information, but that the report would "be a concern" if true. He noted that "one of the U.S. objectives toward Nicaragua is the severance of military and security ties with Cuba and the Soviet bloc."

At the Pentagon, spokesman Michael I. Burch refused to either confirm or deny the report.

"I'm just unable to answer that question," Burch said. "Because of sensitive sources and methods, I cannot supply you with any information."

The Soviet and Nicaraguan embassies here had no immediate comment on the alleged communications installation. CIA spokeswoman Kathy Pherson declined comment.

The presence of Soviet technicians close to combat areas was first disclosed in Wednesday's editions of The Washington Times.

The Managua facility, also built with Soviet assistance, gives the Soviets the ability to monitor telephone conversations well beyond Nicaragua's borders and to keep track of airplane traffic and ship-to-ship communications in the area, the officials said.

Djerejian estimated the Soviet presence in Nicaragua at 200, adding that the number of Cubans there believed to be about 7,500. Of that figure, at least 2,500 are reported to be engaged in military-related activities. Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega has said the Cuban presence in his country does not exceed 800.

Funeral for cop draws crowd; neo-Nazi search continuing BRANSON, Mo. (AP) — More than 1,200 people turned out Thursday to mourn a state trooper as authorities searched in the rugged southern Missouri site where Trooper Jimmie Linegar, 31, was shot to death during a traffic check Monday, said Lt. Ralph Biele of the highway patrol.

David Tate, 22, of Athol, Idaho, a survivor linked by the FBI to The Order, a militant white supremacist organization, has not been seen since the slaying of Linegar and wounding of Trooper Allen Hines, 35, with a silencer-equipped, automatic pistol.

Tate was charged Wednesday in Denver, Colo., with first-degree murder, which carries the death penalty or life in prison without parole.

within a few hours after the shooting," Biele said.

The area is dotted with caverns that could provide hiding places, and Biele said "Tate" likely "would have been sighted if he had left the heavily forested area."

About an hour into Arkansas from Branson, an elder at a survivalist camp that shares many beliefs with The Order said its members had heard rumors authorities would try to go there in search of Tate.

But State Police Director Tommy Goodwin said Thursday he knew of no warrant issued to search the 224-acre compound of the Covenant, the Sword and the Arm of the Lord. "We don't have any reason to believe he's in there."

Elder Kerry Noble said Tate is not at the compound, but the group would not resist if a few officers presented a warrant.

"If they come friendly, two or three of them want to search in a nice orderly fashion, no problem," he said.

Near Branson, a report of a man under a bridge Thursday morning brought four Missouri Army National Guard helicopters, bloodhounds and officers on foot. The man sighted there turned out to be a local resident, Biele said.

The Williams Memorial Chapel on the hilltop campus of the School of the Ozarks at nearby Point Lookout was filled to its 1,200-seat capacity for Linegar's funeral. Hines was a pallbearer.

The mourners appreciated the role of law enforcement in a "world of sin, hate and death," said the Rev. C. Ernest Schmelz, pastor of the Shepherd of the Hills Church in Kimberling City. "We thank God for Jim's service. He gave his all; did he not?"

Among those at the funeral were about 400 uniformed police officers from throughout the Midwest: Linegar's wife, Sandra; his 5-year-old daughter, Jennifer, and 3-year-old son, James; Missouri Gov. John Ashcroft; Attorney General William Webster; and Secretary of State Roy Blunt.

Tate, who abandoned an arsenal of weapons and ammunition in his van after Linegar was shot, was one of 23 people named in an indictment Monday in Seattle against members of The Order. He was charged in the indictment with dealing in stolen property and participating in the killing of Walter E. West, a reputed member of The Order who vanished this past May.

Members of The Order also are accused in the slaying of Denver radio talk show host Alan Berg and armored-car holdups that netted more than $4 million.

Dozens of tips have been checked out since the start of the search for Tate, but none was productive, Biele said.

"We feel that if he had left the area, the best opportunity he had was at a January detention hearing. FBI Agent Richard McDaniel alleged that Ms. Tornatzky and other members of The Order met in Boise to distribute proceeds from the California armored car robbery, and planned another armored car robbery for last December in Boise.

McDaniel also testified that when FBI agents raided the Tornatzky residence in Boise on Jan. 18, they found evidence the woman was conducting surveillance on federal agents and was trying to photograph them. Several weapons also were found in the home, he said.

Stolen money trial is dropped for new plea

BOISE (AP) — The trial scheduled to open here Monday for a member of The Order, a militant white supremacist organization, has been vacated and the woman is scheduled to appear before a federal judge on Wednesday.

Suzanne Tornatzky, also known as Suzanne Hamilton, is charged by the Justice Department with receiving $10,000 from the $3.6 million taken in an armored car robbery at Ukiah, Calif., last summer.

The woman pleaded innocent earlier, but is expected to change her plea when she appears Wednesday morning before U.S. District Judge Marlon Callister.

She's also charged with interfering with interstate commerce and making a false statement. Each charge carries a possible fine of $5,000 to $10,000 and two to 20 years in prison.

Ms. Tornatzky also faces a counterfeiting charge in Oregon in connection with a March, 1982, incident near Burns.

At a January detention hearing, FBI Agent Richard McDaniel alleged that Ms. Tornatzky and other members of The Order met in Boise to distribute proceeds from the California armored car robbery, and planned another armored car robbery for last December in Boise.

McDaniel also testified that when FBI agents raided the Tornatzky residence in Boise on Jan. 18, they found evidence the woman was conducting surveillance on federal agents and was trying to photograph them. Several weapons also were found in the home, he said.

Shiite, Druse militias flush out last of west Beirut rivals

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiites and Druse militias flushed out and captured the last of their rivals in west Beirut Thursday.

Prime Minister Rashid Karami went to Syria, which sponsored his national unity cabinet and was reported pressuring him to withdraw its resignation.

There were sporadic gunbattles as men of the Shiite Muslim militia Amal and their Druse allies seized dozens of fighters of the Mourabitoun, a Sunni Muslim militia with which they once were allied against Christian warlords.

Witnesses said the search was conducted from house to house in the capital's Moslem sector, and the captives were driven away in jeeps under armed guard.

Shiite militiamen patrol in West Beirut

The sweep ended a savage battle for control of west Beirut that began Tuesday and prompted Karami, a Sunni Moslem, to announce the resignation of his government.

Dozens of armed-robberies and store-lootings were reported in Beirut as thieves took advantage of the lawlessness.

Diplomats and political analysts speculated that the Syrians, determined to prevent Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat from regaining a power base in west Beirut, did not try to discourage the Amal and Druse militias from crushing the Mourabitoun.

The Shiites and Druse militias are Syria's strongest allies in Lebanon. The Mourabitoun were trained and armed by the PLO.

Karami resigned Wednesday because of what he called the "horrific nightmare" of the street battle, in which 33 people were killed and 135 wounded.

He formed the unity government a year ago as part of the effort by President Amin Gemayel, a Maronite Christian with close ties to Syria, to end nearly two decades of political chaos in Lebanon.

Local radio stations said President Hafez Assad of Syria feared the resignation of Karami's government would plunge Lebanon into all-out civil war and was pressuring the prime minister to withdraw it.

Syria has more than 30,000 troops in the Bekaa Valley of eastern Lebanon and is the nation's main power broker.

The American University of Beirut reported that its vice president for administration, George Sayegh, was kidnapped from his home early Thursday.

Sayegh is Lebanese and a Greek Orthodox Christian. A statement issued by university authorities did not say which militia stormed his home shortly after midnight.

The statement included an appeal for his release and noted that Sayegh, who is in his late 40s, suffers "heart trouble and needs to continuously take his medication."

Lebanon's senior-Sunni leaders discussed Karami's resignation in a one-hour meeting at the headquarters of Sheik Hassan Khaled, the Sunni grand mufti, or spiritual leader. The prime minister attended before leaving for Damascus.

In a statement, they "profusely denounced" the bloody street battles, the heaviest fighting in this war-battered city in more than a year.

Pakistanis riot again

KARACHI, Pakistan — Hundreds of military reinforcements poured into Karachi on Thursday to control a severe new outbreak of rioting and arson directed against the city's Pathan community.

At least 16 people have been killed and more than 100 wounded since the riots began Monday, according to reports from hospitals and witnesses. Local reporters said at least 30 buildings were burned Thursday.

A round-the-clock curfew imposed on this sprawling port city of 7 million people, Pakistan's largest, was lifted for two hours Thursday morning so people could buy food. But authorities said it would be maintained in riot-prone districts.

Arms negotiators add meetings to schedule

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Negotiators at the U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms talks are adding more meetings in the few days remaining before the end of the first session, the U.S. spokesman said Thursday.

The session on medium-range weapons Thursday was the second of the subgroup this week and lasted 2½ hours, U.S. spokesman Peter J. Antico said.

Negotiators on long-range weapons will meet Friday for the second time this week and the group on space and defense will hold an extra session Monday, he said.

All six principal U.S. and Soviet negotiators, led by Max M. Kampelman and Victor P. Karpov, will meet Tuesday, he said.

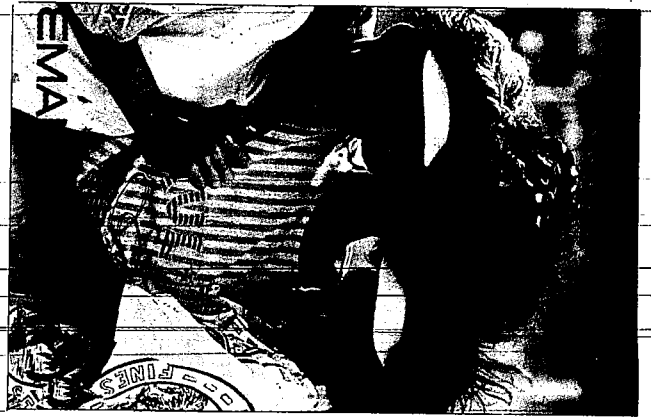

Details of the discussions remained confidential under an agreement between the sides.

Delegates will go home for consultations during the recess and reconvene May 30.

U.S. Air Force jet crashes at sea while on Honduras coast mission TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — A U.S. Air Force jet crashed at sea Thursday while on a routine training mission in northern Honduras, and a search was launched to determine the fate of the two crew members on board, the U.S. Embassy said.

An embassy spokesman, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the two crew members, both Americans, were believed to be dead, but the search by U.S. soldiers continued.

The wreckage of the 0A-37 training bomber was located 15 miles northeast of Punta Sal, a port 217 miles north of the capital, the spokesman said.

The crash site is located near Honduras' northeast coast, south of Belize, far from the Nicaragua border.

The identities of the crew members were not immediately released.

"According to the Pentagon, the plane — a light attack version of the F-37 trainer that is used by the Air of major military exercises conducted by the United States in Honduras. That exercise, which has included tank deployments for the first time, is scheduled to end on Sunday.

Arthur Lloyd Skop, a U.S. Embassy spokesman, said the plane had left San Pedro Sula, a city also in the northern part of the country, on a training flight and crashed late in the morning. The Pentagon said the plane went down around 10:15 a.m. EST.

In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Lt. Col Richard Lake said "the aircraft was participating in the Big Pine III exercises and was flying from La Mesa, Honduras on a training flight."

A Pentagon statement on the incident provided no details on the crash itself or whether it was observed by ground units. The condition of the two men "is unknown," the Pentagon said.

"A board of military officers will be convened to investigate the cause of the accident," the Pentagon added.

National Guard for observation work was assigned to the 11th Tactical Fighter Support Group. That unit of the Air National Guard is based at the Naval Air Station at Willow Grove, Pa.

The men were said to be flying a routine training mission in connection with Big Pine III, the third in a series

Top Mexican cop faces bribe trial

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A federal judge Thursday ordered the former commander of the federal judicial police in Guadalajara to stand trial on charges he accepted bribes from reputed drug kingpin Rafael Caro Quintero.

Judge Jesus Arzate Hidalgo of the Second Criminal Court said he had found "enough evidence to consider the probable responsibility of Armando Pavon Reyes," the former commander.

Caro Quintero, a prime suspect in the kidnap-murder of U.S. drug agent Enrique Camarena Salazar, purportedly told authorities during interrogations that he had given Pavon Reyes a check for about $300,000 to let him flee Guadalajara in a private plane.

Later he repudiated the statement, saying he had been tortured and forced to sign the statements and provide other evidence.

At a court hearing earlier this week, Pavon Reyes denied he had received a bribe. He said he was at the Guadalajara airport when Caro Quintero left on Feb. 9, but claimed he did not recognize the alleged drug trafficker.

U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents at the airport asked Mexican police to detain Caro Quintero, who was seen giving Pavon Reyes a farewell embrace before boarding the plane.

Caro Quintero was arrested April 4 in Costa Rica and deported to Mexico City the following day.

Black mob burns white man

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A black mob seized two white men on the fringe of white neighborhood in riot-torn Cape province Thursday night and set one of them on fire, police reported.

"They said the victim was critically burned, but the other man apparently escaped.

A police spokesman also said officers opened fire on a threatening crowd of blacks after nightfall near Fort Elizabeth on the Indian Ocean, killing three. No further details were available on the shooting.

Thursday was one of the bloodiest days in weeks in the persistent black agitation against the white-minority government's oppressive apartheid policy of race discrimination.

A spokesman at national police headquarters in Pretoria said the attack took place in Uitenhage, near the black townships that have been torn daily by riots since police killed 20 people on the way to a funeral March 21.

A government inquiry into that police shooting heard evidence earlier Thursday that 17 of the victims — mostly teenagers — were shot from behind. The evidence was seen as casting doubt on the government's version that the blacks were attacking when police fired.

BPA releases WPPSS settlement deal

SEATTLE (AP) — The Bonneville Power Administration Thursday released details of a proposed settlement in a $2 billion lawsuit that arose from the mothballing of a Washington Public Power Supply System nuclear project.

The settlement has already drawn the wrath of public utility groups who call it a "sweatheart" deal between the federal power marketing agency and the four private utilities in Washington and Oregon.

The judge overseeing the lawsuit, U.S. District Judge William Browning, has made it clear he will review any settlement before it takes effect.

The settlement has not been signed, but its release started a public comment period which is expected to run through the end of May.

Under the settlement, BPA would agree to supply the private utilities with about 160 megawatts of power for about 35 years, starting in 1987, the date the No. 3 WPPSS plant had been scheduled to start producing electricity.

That electricity is worth about as much as the private utilities have invested in the project to date.

In exchange, BPA would receive the option of picking up the private utilities' 30 percent share of the project and access to the private utilities' combustion generators if needed.

The settlement is not expected to increase BPA's wholesale electric rates now or in the future, officials said.

BPA said that even if the settlement would boost rates, "it would probably be prudent to pursue." Under the most "pessimistic assumptions," BPA said the increase in rates paid by electricity users would amount to one-tenth of a cent per kilowatt hour.

BPA Administrator Peter Johnson said it was cheaper to settle than to take a chance on losing a $2 billion lawsuit.

"The prudent thing to do is to settle the lawsuit out of court," Johnson said. "A settlement will avoid a costly rate increase, millions of dollars in court costs and years of litigation for all parties."

No. 3 was mothballed in early 1983 after WPPSS was unable to sell bonds to continue construction and questions were raised about when the power it would generate would be needed.

The Northwest presently has a surplus of electricity that some experts predict will last until the year 2000.

Shortly after No. 3 was mothballed, the four private utilities — Puget Sound Power & Light, Washington Water Power, Portland General Electric and Pacific Power & Light — filed a breach-of-contract suit against BPA and WPPSS.

Last November a federal judge ruled there had in fact been a breach of contract by WPPSS and BPA and scheduled a trial this year to set damages. That judge, Richard Bilby of Arizona, later disqualified himself from the case after he discovered members of his family owned $100,000 worth of No. 3 bonds.

The public utilities have asked Browning to reject Bilby's rulings, however, a move that could put the kibosh on the proposed settlement.

Pipeline gas leak kills one, hurts eight

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — One man was killed and eight others injured, two critically, when deadly hydrogen sulfide gas leaked from a pipeline on Baxter Pass, authorities said Thursday.

The crew of the medical rescue helicopter dispatched to the remote mountain pass near the Colorado-Utah border said they fought a thunderstorm and snow late Wednesday night to reach the site.

"There were four men down and looked real bad, and there were about 19 others who were sick, vomiting," when the Airfile crew from St. Mary's Hospital arrived, said Dr. Jim Crowell.

"One man was dead and another had to be revived," Crowell said.

The name of the dead man was being withheld pending notification of relatives.

Crowell said Scott Renck, 23, and David Anderson, 25, both of Rock Springs, Wyo., were in "extremely critical" condition at St. Mary's on Thursday.

The other six injured men were taken to hospitals in Rangely, Colo., and Vernal, Utah. Three men were kept for observation in Rangely while the three taken to Vernal were treated and released. Both hospitals refused to release the men's names.

Crowell said hydrogen sulfide was the apparent gas that killed the pipeline crew, who had been sent to the 8,422-foot-high Baxter Pass Wednesday evening to repair a leak.

"Some of the men were in a pit and went down, and the others went in after them," Crowell said. "They went down like dominoes."

Flight Nurse Teresa Bargsten said several men were able to bring a boom into position and pull the injured out by their belts.

"The dead man, she said, 'didn't have a belt on so it was a while before they could get down with a rope and get him out."

Ms. Bargsten said she and the pilot took one of the critically injured men into Grand Junction, then returned for more injured.

The injured men work for Mid-American Pipeline Co. out of Rock Springs.

BYU buys ranch land to preserve laboratory

ST. GEORGE, Utah (AP) — Brigham Young University appears to be on the verge of making the 462-acre Lytle Ranch the school's newest outdoor laboratory, but one naturalist says "we are not celebrating yet."

"The preservation of Lytle Ranch from being placed in jeopardy once again, sufficient money will have to be raised over the next 12 months," said Dave Livermore, Great Basin field representative for the Nature Conservancy.

His group helped BYU acquire the land because it feared a developer or rancher would buy it and prohibit scientists and students from visiting the unique natural setting at Beaver Dam Wash in Washington County.

The ranch, located 35 miles from St. George in Utah's southeastern corner near the Arizona and Nevada borders, contains dozens of species of plants and animals found nowhere else in Utah.

The nature conservancy put up $250,000 to buy the property and maintain it for a year while BYU initiates a fund-raising drive to replace the money.

Stanley Welsh, a BYU professor, said the university plans to dedicate the ranch to "education in its broadest sense."

People with legitimate scientific interests — from bird watchers to scientists conducting detailed experiments — will be given access to the property, he said.

"This is not a recreation facility," Livermore said. "It's a nature reserve."

BYU researchers plan to fence portions of the ranch to see how native plants and animals develop in a natural setting without interference from cattle.

Library food ban eyed

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — The Utah State University library is getting a species of bookworm Director Kenneth Marks can do without.

Marks wants to ban food from the library and remove vending machines from a first-floor room because sloppy eaters are damaging the books and food residue attracts silverfish, cockroaches and other pests.

Students don't like Marks' proposal to keep eating in the Student Center and out of the library. They voted eight-to-one recently to keep the library's vending machines, which Marks said have been a "source of headaches" since he assumed the post in October.

Steve Jones, student body academic vice president, has offered a compromise. He said the university should adopt a written policy banning food and drinks from the library and then make certain it is enforced.

The commons area with vending machines could remain intact as long as students keep books and food separate, Jones said.

"A committee studying the problem plans a campaign aimed at making people aware they are hurting themselves by bringing food and drink into the library," Jones said. "We ultimately pay for that cost through increased tuition when materials are damaged."

Students say the library is the only place on campus they can find a vending machine when they need a break from late-night studying.

Briefly

Whitlock retiring from BLM

BOISE (AP) — Clair Whitlock, director of the federal Bureau of Land Management in Idaho for three years, is retiring after 32 years with the federal agency.
Whitlock, 57, announced this week that he will leave his position May 10. Spokeswoman Trudie Olson said no timetable has been set for naming a new director.
Robert Lemmon said Whitlock is scheduled to receive the BLM's Distinguished Service Award from Interior Secretary Donald Hodel in a ceremony next week in Washington, D.C.
Whitlock took over as Idaho's BLM director in January 1982. He replaced Robert Buffington, who resigned in 1981. Lemmon and other ranchers with his proposed reorganization of BLM districts. Buffington resigned after refusing to accept a BLM position in Washington.

Fair cashier admits to thefts

BOISE (AP) — A former cashier at the Western Idaho Fair has been sentenced to three years in prison after admitting he stole $325 in ticket receipts.
Robert Lemmon, 26, of Boise, had two previous convictions for forgery before receiving the sentence from 4th District Judge Robert Newhouse, according to authorities.
Lemmon was accused of selling tickets from otherwise unused ticket rolls, keeping the money and then turning the rolls back into fair officials as unused.
His sentencing was delayed for four months so that he could obtain psychological counseling. He could be released after serving a year.

Kuna man faces murder trial

BOISE (AP) — A Kuna man faces a July 8 trial on first-degree murder and other charges in connection with the death of Donald Price, whose body was discovered last month in an isolated section of southern Ada County.
Robert Wayne Johns, 23, has pleaded innocent to the charges, and his attorney has filed motions to suppress some evidence in the case and has robbery charges against Johns dismissed.
In addition to the robbery and murder charges, Johns is also accused of using a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Inmates' terms likely to grow

BOISE (AP) — Two state penitentiary inmates face additional prison terms following their entry of guilty pleas in connection with the stabbing of a third inmate at the prison last fall.
Brent Barron, 22, and Gary Garzee, 31, entered the guilty pleas before 4th District Judge Alan Schwartzman, who set sentencing for May 8.
The pair was charged with stabbing Leonard Lloyd Reinke, 20, who suffered a dozen wounds in the head, neck and back from homemade metal weapons in the prison exercise yard on Nov. 14. Reinke, who was serving a 10-year term for attempted robbery, has been in the custody of federal officials since the incident.
Barron and Garzee claimed they attacked Reinke because he had threatened to hurt them.
Garzee, who faces up to 20 more years in prison for aggravated battery and possessing a weapon, was serving a 10-year term for robbery and had also been convicted of assaulting a prison guard.
Barron, who could be sentenced to another 15 years on the aggravated battery charge, was serving a five-year term for burglary.

FmHA paints a bright picture

REXBURG (AP) — Although farmers elsewhere in the state may be facing severe credit problems, the Farmers Home Administration manager for the Upper Snake River Valley says the picture in his region is much brighter.
Steve Malan credited the brighter financial picture for the area to its agricultural diversity and the relative strength shown in the potato market recently.
While he conceded there are still some producers in serious financial straits in the region, Malan said, "Most people are in fairly good posture here."
He said the situation in the Madison, Fremont and Teton County region is not as drastic as what Gov. John Evans and others fear is occurring in the rest of Idaho. Evans has said as many as a third of the state's farmers may be on the brink of financial disaster.
Bill York, the FmHA supervisor in Highby, said the delinquency rate on federal farm loans in that area has not changed dramatically in recent years, and it may actually be lower than in past years because of various programs recently imposed to ease the credit crunch.

Ricks graduates hear woman

REXBURG (AP) — The first woman to speak at a Ricks College graduation in the school's 97-year history told the class of 1985 to take advantage of its knowledge and of new opportunities to fulfill their visions.
"No one knows what you can do; and you don't know until you have tried," Ardeth Greene Kapp told the 1,294 graduates during commencement ceremonies Thursday. The class was 337 students smaller than last year's record of 1,621.
Mrs. Kapp, a trustee of the two-year school in Rexburg and international president of the Young Women of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, compared life to a sea voyage.

Court upholds drug conviction

BOISE (AP) — Once a criminal defendant is arrested, officers have the right to stick close to the suspect, the Idaho Court of Appeals says.
The court made that ruling on Thursday, upholding the seizure of a bag of cocaine in the bedroom of Alan Peterson.
Peterson was found guilty of possession of cocaine and placed on probation by 4th District Judge W.E. Smith.
But in his appeal, Peterson contended officers should not have been allowed to seize the cocaine, since they entered his residence illegally.

BOISE — An anti-terrorism training session, aiming mainly at potential problems at the August National Governors Association convention here, will go on as scheduled.
But in a quick turn of events, it will be sponsored by Ada County, not the state. County officials' all Republicans, say they feel the April 29-May 1 training sessions are needed to prepare for the governors' gathering.
And the officials indicated at a Thursday news conference that the state decided to drop sponsorship a day earlier after pressure from political groups that in the past have supported Gov. John Evans, a Democrat.

A top Evans aide denied it, saying he made the decision on his own, and the governor had nothing to do with it.
"The sheriff and I are not running for the national Senate in 1986," said Commissioner Mike Johnson, in apparent reference to the likelihood that Evans will run for the U.S. Senate next year.
When pressed to state specifically that he and the other Republicans were claiming that Evans cancelled the session for political reasons, Johnson said "People can read into it what they want."

He said the decision to reinstate the training sessions was "a law-enforcement decision."
John Rooney, director of the Department of Law Enforcement, said he and his staffers met a couple of times with the peace groups, trying to ease their concern.
After a Wednesday news conference, he said, he decided the groups had "legitimate concerns" and it would be best to drop state sponsorship.

Representatives of the Snake River Alliance, the American Civil Liberties Union and an Ada County peace group complained at a news conference they didn't appreciate being listed as subjects of discussion at an anti-terrorism conference.

Rooney said the anti-terrorism sessions also would have run into direct conflict with the long-planned "Peaceful Settlements Conference," at the same convention facility.
That could have meant peace groups would have been meeting in the same time as a police gathering to discuss the possibility that those sort of groups could be used as vehicles by terrorists, Rooney said.

"It was my decision. The governor had nothing to do with it," he said.
Sheriff Vaughn Killeen said the peace and anti-nuclear groups are not terrorists or associated with terrorism. But he says it's possible they can be infiltrated by terrorists.
The Republican officials said with Boise hosting hundreds of top officials in August for the National Governors Association convention, they feel the anti-terrorism training is a necessity.
Killeen said governors, congressmen, senators, foreign officials and perhaps even President Ronald Reagan will be coming to Boise for the governors' conference.

"It is extremely important that law enforcement be aware of—the philosophies and interworkings of terrorism," Killeen said.
He and Johnson said liming for the seminar was "very appropriate" because of the national convention.
Both mentioned activities of a militant white supremacy group, The Order, which used Boise as one of its headquarters, according to federal investigators.

They said it would take only a few members of such an organization to cause a major incident in Boise during the governors' conference.

With regard to the groups who protested about the conference a day earlier, Killeen said, "In no way do I say that these are terrorist groups. They are not."
But he said subversives could infiltrate the groups. "They themselves could be the victims of terrorists," he said.

The officials said incidents of terrorism are increasing rapidly.
"To say it won't happen here is very foolish," said Johnson.
Killeen said he wouldn't "second-guess" the state decision to drop the conference, but feels it is justified from strictly a law-enforcement basis.
The California firm preparing the training sessions has put on at least 10 police seminars in Idaho the last three years, they said.

Tax officials uncertain about lawyers' claim

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Tax Commission officials haven't decided yet how they're going to handle an attempt by two lawyers to collect $142,000 in fees owed them by the state.
Courts alone attorneys Ray Givens and W.W. Nixon are attempting to collect the debt by seizing the sales tax receipts of the Albertson's supermarket chain.
"As far as I know, it's never happened before," said Joe Randall, chief of the tax commission's sales tax audit bureau.
"Obviously it has some far-reaching ramifications," Randall said. "It's an interesting legal ploy."
Stephen Lord, a deputy state attorney general attached to the Tax Commission, said the move is "in limbo" while the legal staff researches the question.
"I think it's fair to say we would like to receive the income from Albertson's sales and use tax obligations," Lord said Wednesday.

A writ of execution issued by First District Court in Sandpoint was served on supermarket officials on Tuesday.

Givens and Nixon said they chose Albertson's because its monthly volume of collections would be large enough to satisfy the debt.
"We will comply with the law," said Gary Michael, vice chairman of the Albertson's board of directors.
Michael would not definitely say the monies would be diverted. He confirmed that state and company officials have been talking.
The court-approved fees of $113,000 plus interest accruing at the rate of about $50 daily, stem from the state's recent reapportionment battle. The 1984 and 1985 sessions of the Legislature refused to appropriate funds for the fees.
Told that the state's tax lawyers seemed perplexed by the unorthodox move, Givens replied Wednesday, "It's nice they have an opportunity to spend some time with the books."

Kellogg eyes ski hill work

KELLOGG (AP) — The Kellogg City Council has decided to study the feasibility of building a three-mile aerial gondola to improve the Silverhorn ski area.
A preliminary study estimates the cost of the tram at between $7 million and $12 million, according to Councilman Wayne Ross at Wednesday night's council session.
"There are so many possibilities," Ross said. "Hopefully, we can create another 250 to 300 new jobs, in addition to the 30-plus people employed in the 1984-85 ski season."
The council decided to ask the federal Economic Development Administration for $30,000 to conduct the feasibility study.

Pre-nuptial skirmish may become major battle

DEAR ABBY: I'm getting married next month to a man who's in the Navy. Three months ago "Charlie" sent me a letter he had received from his mother in which she bad-mouthed my mother something terrible. Our families are worlds apart, and I think Charlie's mother feels inferior and insecure, and has a chip on her shoulder.

I was so shaken when I read that awful letter downgrading my mother... that I'm not sure I can attend my wedding unless Charlie's mother apologizes to her. Charlie's mother says no apology is necessary because she didn't say anything to my mother's face.

IN THE MIDDLE
DEAR IN: If you're looking for someone else to blame, start with Charlie's mother who wrote the letter downgrading your mother. Then blame Charlie for his poor judgment in sending that letter to you.

Next blame yourself for reading it to your parents. What should you do? Try to get this family feud resolved so that at the sound of the (church) bell,

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

everybody doesn't come out swinging.

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a fine-looking woman with an outstanding figure. She has never owned a bra and probably never will. She says bras are uncomfortable, she's proud of her figure, and she has nothing to hide. In fact, she wears as little as possible. I am proud of the way she looks, but my family is not. They have called her a "loose" woman. Well, she is not loose. I like the way she dresses and have personally bought her blouses and sweaters that show off her full figure because I think a little jiggle and bounce under her clothes looks nice.

Tell me the truth, do you think a woman who wears no bra is loose — or is it just my family?

PROUD OF MY WIFE
DEAR PROUD: A "loose" woman is one who is lacking in moral restraint. One who flaunts her full figure is merely lacking in judgment. You obviously care what your family thinks or you wouldn't have written, so to minimize family criticism, minimize the "jiggle and bounce" in the presence of family.

DEAR ABBY: Some years ago I was very much in love with a man who didn't like my youngest son, so I stopped seeing him. Now I have met another man I like very much. He is good to my child, and we have a lot in common.

My problem now is that my older son joined the Navy and left me with Attila, his Great Dane. I live in a small apartment with no fenced yard. Since this Great Dane is little more than a puppy, he can be quite irritating. He's too strong and undisciplined for me to take for walks. My new friend dislikes dogs.

It's almost impossible to find a home for Attila — no one wants such a big animal. Having him put to sleep would make me feel guilty; he's a very sweet-tempered animal.

What on earth should I do? Shall I just wait until my son returns on leave, and let him remove the dog as he sees fit? If I keep him, it will be the end of my romance.

— WORRIED SICK IN SUBURBIA
DEAR WORRIED: Clock with your vet about obedience classes for Attila (he's old enough). And try to persuade your friend to go along. Observing how he handles frustration could give you valuable insight into what kind of husband he'll be.

DEAR ABBY: "Offended" says she goes to a high-class nightclub, talks to a stranger for five minutes, then he asks her to go to bed. And when she says no, she's told not to play "hard to get."

I believe I have a suggestion for such women, as there seems to be a lot of them with this problem. After the nervy proposition, ask the guy this question: "What is really in it for me? I don't even know you, so I can't have any feelings for you, so why should I risk getting some kind of disease or becoming pregnant, or both, just to provide you with some temporary physical relief?"

Abby, let him think up an answer to that one. It's a lot more effective than just saying "No, thank you."

— A MALE READER
DEAR READER: Yes!

Catalog of silk items a success

By SHERYL FITZGERALD
Newsday

NEW YORK — When Prakash Melwani — he likes to be called Pak — began selling silk blouses through the mail, his biggest problem was not convincing consumers that they could purchase a real silk garment for under $30. It was convincing them that silk was not a fabric to be worn only on special occasions.

"People are very into natural things," Melwani explained. "Natural foods, natural fabrics."

Well, there's nothing more natural than silk. It breathes, it's strong, it's long-lasting and very beautiful. But in the last few centuries it had become a luxury that only the rich could afford.

In the last seven years, however, Melwani, the founder and president of Royal Silk, has overcome that problem.

Now he is sending out more than 13 catalogs each each and selling silk shirts, sweaters, dresses and accessories at prices that put silk well within the budgets of most Americans — less than $40 for blouses; $40 to $70 for dresses, and, often, skirt and blouse sets for less than $50.

Fortunately, said Melwani, the times played right into his hands. With the present emphasis on things with all things natural, the time was ripe for the introduction of silk into the average person's everyday wardrobe.

"Most people are leery of silk," Melwani said in an interview in his new Fifth Avenue store.

"It needs special care, it has to be dry-cleaned, it's expensive. But the average polyester dress costs about $90. When it is compared with our prices, silk becomes a bargain."

Besides his explanations "With a little care almost any silk garment can be laundered at home. In fact, each catalog or garment that Royal Silk sends out comes with a brochure that explains the origins and characteristics of the silk fiber used and gives detailed instructions for its care, thus helping to eliminate some of the phobias about wearing silk."

Altruism may be inherited

By PAUL BERG
The Washington Post

"Everyone" knows "genes" determine your blood type. Now it appears genes may determine whether you're the type who gives blood.

Researchers in Canada and Great Britain have been comparing sets of twins — identical and fraternal — to determine whether altruism and other traits are inherited or learned.

They found that identical twins are similar to each other in tests of altruism, empathy and performance, and that fraternal twins are quite different. Psychology Today reports.

Identical twins — have identical genes; fraternal twins don't. So the finding indicates that genes play a larger role than the home environment in determining altruism and the other qualities.

The 574 pairs of twins in the study done at the University of Western Ontario, were aged 19 to 70.

Empathy was measured by whether the subjects answered "yes" or "no" to statements such as "I like to watch people open presents." Nurture was measured by responses to true-false statements such as "I often take young people under my wing."

Altruism was measured by various behaviors, including giving directions to strangers and donating blood.

BLM to close Hagerman fossil beds to bikes

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — To the chagrin of some recreationists, the Bureau of Land Management will close the Hagerman fossil beds to motorcycles April 30.

After studying the resources at the 4,187-acre area — also known as the Hagerman National Natural Landmark — and listening to public comment, it was decided the value of the fossils was "critical" while the motorcycle use was "incompatible," said Gary Carson, the manager of the Jarbidge Resource Management Area, of which the fossil beds are a part.

Carson made the decision last week to close the area to motorcycle and other uses. Before announcing the decision to the public, however, he discussed it with the motorcycle cyclists and the Idaho Congressional delegation. Ernie Gadsby of Twin Falls, the president of the Magic Valley Trail Machine Association, said, "We are taking the positive approach that we will work with the BLM. (But), the club doesn't agree with the closure."

Representatives from the motorcycle organization, which has more than 100 family and single memberships, will be asked to join an advisory committee the bureau will organize to discuss alternative sites for motorcycle riders, Carson said.

The committee will develop a broad-use plan for recreation use in the whole of the Jarbidge Resource Area, Carson said. Because of the different designated areas within the larger area, motorcycle groups have to make separate review and comment on land-use planning on each of the different areas.

From the committee, the bureau will determine what it can do to meet the off-road vehicle use, Carson said.

Larry Drexler, a member of the trail machine association, called the committee offer "management after the fact." Carson said that although the motorcycle cyclists may have lost the Hagerman area, there was a lot more land left to ride. The Jarbidge Resource area covers 1.7 million acres. Of the entire area, more than 1 million acres are open to motorcycle use.

There is no avenue to appeal his decision to close the fossil beds to motorcycles, Carson added. The bureau, by law, is given the authority to manage public lands to protect the resources they contained.

Groups, however, may protest the action with the state bureau director, he said. The popularity of the Hagerman fossil beds to the motorcycleists and paleontologists sparked the conflict. More than 300 sites of animal fossils about 3 million years old have been located at the internationally known area. At the same time, the spot is popular with motorcyclists.

The bureau became concerned about the motorcycle use when it unearthed evidence of damage to the fossils by motorcycleists who were riding off the designated trails.

Gadsby, however, said the motorcycle association never was convinced of the damage nor shown any evidence.

The bureau, meanwhile, received more than 150 letters of comment on the total land use plan. About 15 of those comments questioned the use of motorcycles at the fossil beds, Carson said. Three or four favored continued use of off-road vehicles, Carson said. Most of the letters were from groups.

After further study, Carson ruled, "The existing situation is just incompatible." While motorcycleists may have caused problems, the biggest threat to the fossil beds is from erosion, said a bureau geologist. Bell Rapids Irrigators, however, started work Thursday on repairing a canal above the area to prevent further damage by water, Carson said.

The bureau also will prohibit any livestock grazing in the area, Carson said. Limited grazing is allowed.

After discussing the problems with ranchers, cattle will be allowed only to cross the area on their way to another grazing area and only use a road in the area. Ranchers will have to obtain a permit to move cattle across the area.

Gadsby predicted the membership of the association will increase because of the closure with non-members who also enjoyed the fossil bed area.

The association, he added, will hold an informal "good-bye ride" April 28. "We'll take our 8- and 10-year-olds and show them what they never will be able to use," Gadsby said.

County's bills mount for jail crowding cost

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Over the past five months, Twin Falls County spent more than $2,000 on cell-and-board for its jail inmates because of overcrowding at the 74-year-old jail in the courthouse.

The bill doesn't include transportation costs or labor, jail administrator Jim Hopkins said.

Between Dec. 3, 1984, and April 15, the county paid $2,250 — mostly to Gooding County — to house Twin Falls County inmates, Hopkins said. A small part of the amount includes some payment to Cassia County.

Not included is a pending bill from Jerome County for the housing of some inmates earlier this month.

The payment to other counties for its overflow is an expense on top of the usual jail costs for its own full house on the fourth floor of the courthouse. Gooding County charges $10 a day per inmate. Other counties usually charge $20 to $25 a day compared to the average of $13 a day it costs to house an inmate at the Twin Falls County jail.

In one week during the last five months, Twin Falls County spent $80 a day housing inmates in other counties.

The $2,250 just accounts for bed and board, Hopkins said. Not included was the gas or time it takes deputies to transport inmates to other jails. It takes about two hours to transport people to Gooding.

Last week, five adult female inmates were taken to Gooding County. See JAIL on Page B2

Prison poll details topic of meeting

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners has scheduled a meeting April 30 to discuss details of a poll to gauge opinion about a new Twin Falls County jail.

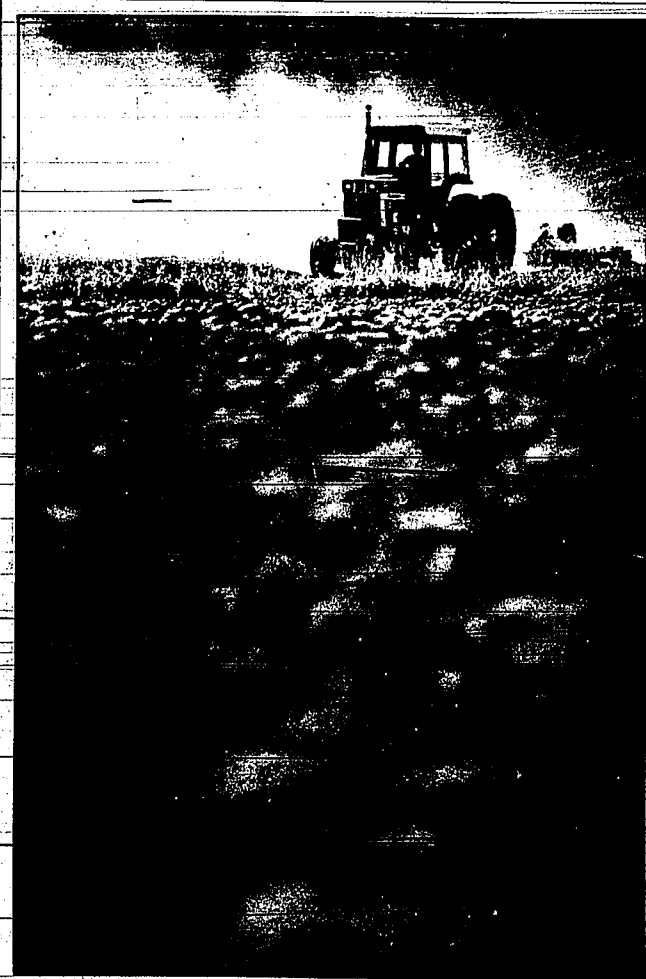

The commissioners and members of the steering committee that helped promote the unsuccessful bond issue last month will develop questions for the poll. Commissioner Judy Felton said. The purpose of the survey is to gauge public feeling about the construction of a new jail and law enforcement building.

A $2.2 million bond to finance a 59,000-square-foot building was decisively defeated March 19.

Those people who called the board with comments after the election and expressed a desire to help create another jail proposal have been invited to the meeting, which will be held at 2 p.m. at the courthouse, Felton said. Any other interested people also are welcome to attend.

The board adopted Friday a resolution demonstrating its

The long spell of warm weather has brought Magic Valley farmers out in force. Johnny Galford spent part of Thursday harrowing fields north of Kimber-

Charboneau's jury selection finished

BOISE (AP) — A jury of six men and six women has been selected to hear testimony in the first-degree murder trial of Jamie Charboneau, accused of shooting his ex-wife last summer at her rural Jerome County home.

Prosecution and defense attorneys spent four days interviewing 46 people before settling on the jury for the highly-publicized case, which was moved from the Magic Valley to Boise because of the coverage the murder had been given in south-central Idaho.

Fifth District Judge Phillip Becker also took under advisement defense requests that he exclude from presentation during the trial photographs of the condition of the victim's body and statements made by Charboneau during an interview with authorities in February and at a pre-trial hearing in Jerome County.

Public defender Randy Stoker contended Charboneau was improperly advised by his previous attorney to make those statements and therefore they should not be permitted to be introduced at the trial.

The state is being represented by special prosecutor Marc Haws, a deputy state attorney general.

Charboneau, 24, is accused of killing Marilyn Arbaugh, 36, whose bullet-riddled body was found in a barn behind her home. Charboneau was arrested in the field behind the barn, but his previous defense attorney, Golden Bennett, who is now assisting Stoker, has publicly said that the slugs which killed Ms. Arbaugh were not fired by Charboneau.

According to authorities, two weeks before the killing Charboneau allegedly kidnaped Ms. Arbaugh, stole her car and drove her to a location, where she claimed she was raped.

The two were divorced several months before the incidents. In addition to the murder charge, Charboneau is also facing kidnapping and grand larceny charges in connection with the incident prior to Ms. Arbaugh's death.

Cocaine-ring defendants enter innocent pleas

BOISE (AP) — Several Twin Falls residents, accused in federal indictments of taking part in a cocaine-selling ring, have pleaded innocent and will go on trial here June 10.

Seven of the defendants appeared here Thursday afternoon before U.S. Magistrate Mikil Williams, entered innocent pleas and were ordered to stand trial before U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan.

Williams allowed each to be released under unsecured bond. Another defendant, Charles Raney, pleaded innocent earlier. A grand jury returned a 38-count indictment in the case recently.

The complaint against Raney alleges several offenses constitute a continuing pattern of criminal activity that violates a federal anti-racketeering law, called RICO. As a result of that complaint, the federal government has moved to confiscate several parcels of Twin Falls real estate belonging to Raney.

Tourist attractions are focus of area publicity expenditures

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — Chambers of commerce and non-profit business associations will publicize the Magic Valley's tourist attractions with more than $157,000 in state money during the coming year.

The Idaho Travel Council is distributing close to $600,000 worth of grants among the state's six travel regions. The regions get 45 percent of the money raised by a 2 percent state tax on campground spaces, hotel and motel rooms.

Organizations in the Magic and Wood River valleys were handed $157,357 to publicize the Magieland region with signs at rest areas, magazine ads, special booklets and trips for travel writers. Special grants went to: • Magieland Regional Travel Committee — $43,469 for rest area signage, travel shows and advertisements. • Sun Valley-Ketchum Chamber of Commerce — $52,138 for advertising, public relations promotions, trips for travel writers. • Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce — $7,200 for copies of the state's Vacation Planner and Discover the Undiscovered Idaho booklets. • Burley-Rupert Chamber of Commerce — $17,500 for a map display at the Perry Visitor Center, the last rest station on I-84 in Utah, for a slide show and for brochures. • Wood River Lodging Association — $31,916 for advertising and public relations, some of it in cooperation with the Sun Valley-Ketchum chamber. • Idaho Outfitters and Guides Association — $4,714 for travel show attendance. The Stanley-Sawtooth Chamber of Commerce also was given $2,100 for advertising as part of the $80,369 awarded to the Mountain River Country region. The state's largest grant went to the Southwest Idaho Travel Association based in Boise. It will have $104,960 for activities such as providing information, business-attending travel shows, posting signs at rest areas and taking travel writers on trips to the area. The award was the main chunk of the "Treasuriland region's $157,212." The state council chipped in money for a wide variety of promotions in other areas. It gave $10,000 to the Sandpoint Chamber of Commerce to print brochures telling visitors about Lake Pend Oreille. It awarded $8,500 to Lava Hot Springs in southeastern Idaho to encourage snowmobiling. The Warrior Bester Club at Lewis and Clark State College received $8,750 to promote the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association's baseball championships with travel packets, video tapes and other publicity. Idaho Heartland Inc., a new organization representing the western Idaho area of McCall, New Meadows, Council and Cascade, came away from the council's meeting earlier this week with $29,933 for advertising and promotions. Chicago rookie Eddie Olczyk scored his fourth playoff goal at 3:07 from in front of the net on a pass from Curt Fraser. Chicago defenseman Doug Winthrop scored on a slapshot 49 seconds later, and Tom Lysiak slipped a wrist shot past Minnesota goalie Gilles Meloche to give the Hawks a 3-0 lead at 5:42.

Ernie Courty's shot bounced into the net off teammate Dave Semenko to give the Philadelphia Flyers a 3-2 victory over the New York Islanders in the first game of their Smythe Division final.

Wayne Gretzky scored his first playoff goal, stealing the puck from Randy Carlyle to score into an empty net in the closing minute of the game.

The teams went into the third period tied 2-2. Jari Kurri in the first period and Mark Napier in the second scored for Edmonton.

The goal came after two quick passes from a faceoff in Winnipeg territory and gave the Stanley Cup champions the edge in the best-of-seven series, which continues here Saturday.

Flyers 3, Islanders 0

The Flyers took a 1-0 lead at 4:10 of the second period. Brian Propp stole the puck from defenseman Paul Boulle in the left faceoff circle and sent a backhand pass to Toechel, who was standing between the faceoff circles. He shot from about 18 feet and the puck went between goalie Kelly Hrudey's legs for his first goal of the playoffs.

Expos overpower Cardinals 7-1

By The Associated Press

Mike Fitzgerald's two-run double keyed a four-run explosion in the fourth inning, helping the Montreal Expos roll to a 7-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, behind Steve Rogers' five-inning Thursday.

Winningham singled home a run in the first and Law had an RBI double in the second to give Montreal a 2-0 lead against St. Louis starter Kurt Knapke, 0-2.

Bob Wadkins seeks first U.S. win

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Bobby Wadkins, who has played his career in the shadow of older brother Lanny, reeled off three consecutive birdies on his way to a 6-under-par 65 and a one-shot first round lead Thursday in the $400,000 Sea Pines Heritage Classic.

"That word 'potential,' it's been the killer of a lot of players. I'm tired of hearing it," said Bobby, who has yet to take an American title in his 11-year PGA Tour career while his brother has won 14 times, including twice this year.

Although he has collected more than $500,000 in career earnings, Bobby's only two victories have come abroad, in the European Open in 1978 and in Japan the following year.

Wadkins, the first man off the tee in the morning calm, missed only two greens and did not make a bogey in his effort over the 6,808 yard Harbour Town Golf Links.

Paul Azinger was second alone with a 66.

Hale Irwin, twice a U.S. Open champion and a 2-time winner here, went out with a new driver, a new putter, a sand wedge with a new shaft and a different ball and shot a no-bogey 67.

"A moderately successful venture into the unknown: I'm trying to play my way out of 10-11 months of bad golf," Irwin said.

He was tied with Jim Thorpe, Bob Clapp, Mike Bright and Larry Nelson, a former U.S. Open and PGA champion who scattered eight birdies across his card.

West German Bernhard Langer, who won the Masters last Sunday in Augusta, Ga., played the front in 31 but bogeyed two of the last four holes and led a large group at 68.

Hal Sutton had even more difficulty coming home. The former PGA champion was 5 under par after 12 holes, then bogeyed in for a 72.

Calvin Peete, a two-time winner this season, played the front side in 41 and withdrew. U.S. Open titleholder Fuzzy Zoeller shot 73.

Birmingham shies away from Stallion bailout

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The city learned Thursday it legally can help the Birmingham Stallions avoid financial collapse.

But Mayor Richard Arrington, who proposed the bailout plan, said he is having second thoughts.

Attorney General Charles Grady, in an advisory opinion, said Thursday state law would permit the city to lend $1 million to the Alabama State Fair Authority, which would purchase an interest in the United States Football League team.

At the same news conference, team President Jerry Sklar said the team, which has an annual payroll of $3.5 million, could not finish the season without an investment from the city or private sources.

"We need money by next week," he said.

The city attorney, Jim North, said the Stallions "are in a critical situation" and that the City Council probably would decide next week whether to enter a bailout program.

"We would be doing it as a favor to the Stallions, but if a private investor comes forward, the city would back off," he said.

Arrington said that if he knew the USFL was going to survive and that the Stallions were going to continue operating, "I wouldn't hesitate to go all-out pushing for us to make that investment."

"But we don't know that. I don't think anybody knows really what's going to happen right now."

The mayor said he would have serious doubts about investing $1 million if the team cannot find private investors to put up another $2 million.

Arrington said the team needs at least $1 million to survive the season.

The team's majority owner, Marvin Warner, withdrew six weeks ago after the collapse of his Home State Savings Bank in Cincinnati, which made $150 million in unsecured loans.

The Stallions' minority owners put up $700,000 after Warner's withdrawal but the team has been unsuccessful in finding anyone willing to put up the kind of money needed.

Meanwhile, John Bassett, owner of the USFL's Tampa Bay franchise and former owner of a Birmingham hockey team, said he has found an owner for the Stallions who "is committed under certain circumstances."

Lopez '66 lead Las Vegas pro-am

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Nancy Lopez fired eight birdies en route to a 65 and the first-round lead Thursday in the $200,000 J&B Scotch Pro-Am, a tournament she has won three times in the past six years.

Lopez's round gave her a one-stroke lead over Patty Sheehan and Vicki Ferguson.

Maruko of Honolulu, who had her lowest LPGA round ever and Patty Hayes of Rockledge, Fla., each were in at 68, two shots off the lead.

The two golfers eligible for a $1 million bonus should they win — Alice Miller and Ayako Okamoto — posted scores that left them in markedly different moods. Miller was happy.

Winner of the Dinah Shore two weeks ago, Miller, of Marysville, Calif., shot 69 and said, "It was a good solid round, but not quite as good as I had hoped. But four-under doesn't hurt."

Miller shot her opening round over the Las Vegas Country Club course, a par-36-37—73 layout of 6,087 yards.

Consecutive victories in the Dinah Shore and J&B would win her the $1 million bonus. Japan's Okamoto would win it with a second straight J&B tournament championship. She won in 1984 with a record 275.

She had a 73 Thursday over the par 36-36—72—67—72—67—67—67 course and commented: "I putted very poorly. I had two three-putts and missed short ones on several other. It was a poor round."

Both Daniel, who won the Kyocera Innomer Classic last Sunday at Rancho Santa Fe, Calif., opened here with a 75.

Lopez, of Conroe, Tex., and winner here in 1979, '82 and '83, played the Las Vegas Country Club course in 33. She said she "played real well, didn't get in any trouble and didn't have to play in the rain."

Early morning showers had stopped before she teed off.

Sheehan, who won the $50,000 top purse in the J&B Gold Putter Award Playoff here last October, was happy with her 36-31 round.

McLain faces sentencing today

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Former major league baseball star Demie McLain, convicted of racketeering, conspiracy, extortion and drug charges, faces up to 75 years in prison when he appears before a federal judge Friday.

Sentencing is set before U.S. District Judge Elizabeth A. Kovachovich, who ordered him jailed without bond following his March 16 conviction. McLain, the last pitcher to win 30 games in a season, also could be fined a maximum of $50,000.

Co-defendants Seymour Sher and Frank Cocchiaro, who is already serving a prison term for mail fraud, are also scheduled to be sentenced for racketeering, conspiracy and extortion.

McLain, who turned 41 on March 28, posted a 31-6 record for the Detroit Tigers in 1968 and helped his team to a victory over St. Louis "in the World Series that season."

A two-time Cy Young Award winner and three-time American League all-star, McLain's baseball career nosedived after the right-hander won 24 games in 1969.

He was suspended twice during the 1970 season by the Commissioner Bowle-Kuhn — once for his involvement with gamblers three years before and the other for carrying a handgun on the team plane.

McLain, who retired in 1973 after compiling a 131-91 lifetime record, was also suspended for seven days in 1970 for pouring water on two Detroit sportswriters.

A jury found McLain guilty of loan sharking, bookmaking, extortion and cocaine dealing after hearing testimony from 67 government witnesses, and deliberating for more than three days.

He was acquitted of a fifth charge accusing him of trying to set up a 400-kilo cocaine deal in fall 1982.

McLain, whose wife Sharon is the daughter of baseball Hall of Famer Lou Boudreau, took the stand in his own defense during the 14-week trial.

He testified that at times he had been involved in bookmaking over the past 20 years. He denied he was guilty of charges listed in a March 1984 indictment that alleged, among other things, that as a financial officer he charged exorbitant interest rates and used threats to collect debts.

"I will say I have gambled all my life. I have booked from time to time, but extortion? No way," McLain told the Tampa Tribune during a fall interview last month. "Criminal enterprise? No way."

"I've been around a lot of elements — gamblers, the ex-pitcher — added, "but being around and participating are two different things."

Tearful Prince rejoins Pirates' radio team

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob Prince, one of baseball's most colorful announcers for three decades, returns to the Pittsburgh Pirates' broadcast booth next month, nearly 10 years after his controversial firing as the team's play-by-play voice.

Prince, at times choking back the tears, said at a Three Rivers Stadium news conference Thursday that he will rejoin the Pirates' announcing team May 3 and do three innings of play-by-play per game.

His rehiring does not affect the status of announcers Lanny Frattare and Jim Rooker.

"This is a very emotional thing for me," the 66-year-old Prince said. "I'm just delighted to return. Other than my family, you've given me back the only other thing I love in the world."

Pirates General Manager Harold "Pete" Peterson said May 3 will be designated as "Bob Prince Day" at Three Rivers as the Pirates play the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Bob is a fixture in this community and he belongs in our broadcast booth," Peterson said. "We welcome him back."

Prince was a Pirates' announcer for 20 years until his unexpected firing on Oct. 26, 1975, reportedly because he failed to heed the orders of radio executives to trim his frequent story-telling and anecdotal concentrate on the on-the-field action.

Prince's colorful sports jackets, player nicknames and anecdotal style of announcing were Pittsburgh trademarks. So were his calling-card expressions such as "chicken on the hill" to describe a Willie Stargell home run; "We had 'em all the way" after a Pirates' victory; and "You can kiss it goodbye," following a game run.

Rick Starr, general manager of KDKA-AM, the Pirates' network flagship station, said Prince's return is not an admission that the station erred a decade ago.

Johnson may sit out Outlaw season

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Wide receiver Trumaine Johnson, who walked out on the Arizona Outlaws after a contract dispute Jan. 23, says he's "basically not interested" in returning to the United States Football League club now and is "prepared to sit out the rest of the season."

Outlaws President Bill Tatham Jr. said Thursday, however, that his team has Johnson "under contract through 1996. If he sits out, we'll send him a letter telling him to prepare for training camp in 1986."

Johnson, one of the USFL's top receivers the past two seasons, left Arizona when the team failed to advance him $200,000 for a down-payment on a Louisiana ranch.

He said he offered to return his services to the Outlaws last month but then backed off because "their offer was not acceptable."

"I am sure that his club pro-rated Johnson's $300,000 contract over the rest of the season and would have paid him a $66,000 signing bonus plus incentives for the final 10 games."

Bradbury listens to characters' voices

By MARSHALL BERGES
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Listen to Ray Bradbury tell about a recurring daily experience: "Early in the morning, in a half-awake, half-asleep state before I get out of bed, it often seems like my birthday or the Fourth of July. I'll hear characters talking. They live in a toy box in my imagination. They're usually part of a novel I'm writing, or part of a short story, a play, a poem. They tell me what has happened, and what's going to happen next. Then I rush away as fast as I can."

Speaking in low-pitched, urgent tones projecting a manner of awe, wonder and boyish enthusiasm, he continues: "Sometimes like a foot I'll stay in bed too long, and by the time I get up, the voices are gone, the images have vanished. It's important to rush to the typewriter and get those words on paper quickly."

Pink-checked and husky, peering at the world through thick glasses, Bradbury is a fantastist and storyteller whose imagination runs amok like across the skies. Out of his early morning journeys has come an impressive body of work: more than 400 published short stories, plus novels, plays and scripts for motion pictures and television. He has thrilled the "Martian Chronicles," "Fahrenheit 451," "The Illustrated Man" and "Something Wicked This Way Comes."

Bradbury switches focus frequently from one work project to another, and an indication of the variety of his interests can be seen in his current agenda:

- Later this month (April 25) he is scheduled to address the Space Congress, an annual meeting of astronauts and scientists, at Cape Canaveral.
- While in Florida he plans to visit Disney World's Epcot; Bradbury was employed as a consultant on the overall plan for Epcot's SpaceShip Earth building.
- He is putting the finishing touches on a novel, his first in 22 years. A murder-mystery titled "Death is a Lonely Business," it is scheduled for publication later this year.
- He is writing an opera, "Leviathan 90," based on the novel "Moby Dick."
- He is also writing a screenplay to be produced in Japan.

Bradbury, 64, is widely recognized as a futurist, but he keeps in close contact with projects of the past. He throws nothing away. His notes — sentences, paragraphs, pages — are kept in file folders, and the files are massive. "If on 10 different mornings I hear 10 different voices, there might eventually come out of it five, short stories, four poems and a one-act play. "I never worry about finishing a piece in one morning. I know it isn't perfect then — at the moment of writing it, I'm not even sure how good it is. So I put it away, and a few days later I'll look at it again. Sometimes I wait 10 or 20 years to revise or expand a project."

"I'm very much at ease working this way, and it means I never have a dry spell. By working on a multiplicity of things over a period of time, I never run out of ideas. If one project begins to bore me, I just turn to another. There is always something fresh and exciting to turn to."

Bradbury had his first close encounter with science fiction at the age of 8 when he picked up a pulp magazine, Amazing Stories, and in terrified fascination read one titled "The World of Giant Ants." He also began collecting and pasting in scrapbooks the comic strip adventures of Tarzan, Buck Rogers, Flash Gordon, Prince Valiant, (Sentimental and relative by nature, he keeps those comic strip collections to this day.)

He soon grew enchanted with the science fiction of Jules Verne and H.G. Wells, the eerie fantasies of Edgar Allan Poe. After graduating from high school in Los Angeles, Bradbury hawked newspapers on a street corner four hours a day and divided his remaining time between writing stories and reading books.

"I spent almost every night at the main library or branch libraries around town," he said. "My favorite pastime was wandering around in those libraries, just taking books off the shelves and falling in love with them, and sitting around the library and writing stories on those little bits of blank paper — they have for reference notes. I was fairly poor, and all those nice little reference notes were there, so I'd write half a short story on those, and then take a stack of them home and type it all up. "There was something about the library that fascinated me constantly. I loved being there. I couldn't afford to buy books. For three years, starting at age 19, I made about $16 a week by selling newspapers. I had few clothes, no car and lived at home with my folks. I didn't see it as a terrible hardship because I knew where I wanted to go — I wanted to write. I kept writing, and I kept writing. My story. Gradually I began to sell more stories, though for years it all went to pulp magazines. Practically all the material in my later books, like 'The Martian Chronicles' and 'The Illustrated Man,' was first sold to the pulps for from $20 to $50 a story.

"When I was 27 I was still living at home with my folks, to save money, so I could write." That year, however, his life changed when he strolled into a bookstore near Los Angeles' Pershing Square. He immediately became the object of suspicion; someone wicked had been coming to the store to steal books. "I was first sold to the pulps for from $20 to $50 a story. "When I was 27 I was still living at home with my folks, to save money, so I could write." That year, however, his life changed when he strolled into a bookstore near Los Angeles' Pershing Square. He immediately became the object of suspicion; someone wicked had been coming to the store to steal books. "I was first sold to the pulps for from $20 to $50 a story.

"I was married the following year and Bradbury said "We moved into a $30-a-month apartment in Venice (a picturesque Los Angeles beach neighborhood). That was OK; Marguerite made about $40 a week at her job, and I made about $40 a week writing stories at 15¢ cents per word for Amazing Stories, Weird Tales and other pulp magazines. Ours was one of the first liberated marriages. I did my writing at home, cleaned the house and usually prepared dinner for both of us. "Lots of times we ate hot dogs and went to a penny arcade nights to have fun. We went to movies, tickets were 25 or 50 cents. And I was in love. Marguerite started having babies, which scared the hell out of me, because our income was cut in half. But luckily my new went up; I began selling more stories, a few to slick magazines but mostly to pulps. By 1953, when I was 33, I averaged $130 a week."

A turning point occurred that year when film director John Huston hired Bradbury to write the screenplay of "Moby Dick." Huston's imprimatur; Bradbury said, "amounted to a signal to other producers and directors that I could write scripts for motion pictures and television, and it meant a sudden increase in income." Bradbury wrote dozens of screenplays for Hitchcock Presents, and over the years he has occasionally written screenplays in addition to a steady output of books, short stories and poems.

Despite the long struggle to earn more than modest sums, Bradbury insisted in a recent interview that he never regarded the experience as painful or even as hardship. "Whenever I'm asked for career advice, I say: 'Find something you love to do, and do it. Whether it's being a writer, actor, painter, computerologist; as long you love it, do it, do it."

PG-13 Rating Introduced
A new rating category is in place as of July 1. This new category is inserted between the current PG and R ratings. It is designated as "PG-13: Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for attendance at young children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children."

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film rating program is now as follows:
G General Audiences, all ages admitted.
PG Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
PG-13 Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
R Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
X No one under 17 admitted.
 All films rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

Beatty ambassadors
TV editing of films

The Los Angeles Times HOLLYWOOD — Just two days after Warren Beatty won a decision that required ABC-TV to air 20 minutes of his film "Reds" on its network television, the director chastised the networks for "slaughtering films" when they air on TV.

ABC-TV continued to have no comment. Beatty's contract with Paramount Pictures specifically gave the director the coveted "final cut" and allowed for trims on television only for network continuity broadcast standards.

Beatty and the Directors Guild of America took the "Reds" case to arbitration when Beatty learned that the network intended to cut out 10 minutes from the original running time of the 1981 Oscar-winning film, "Reds" was scheduled to air in two parts on April 28 and 29.

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' "Space" new earthbound ratings its first two nights, while "The Cosby Show" continued to be a supernova, scoring big with a repeat episode and pacing NBC's victory.
