Senate cuts Reagan's MX program

By TIM AHERN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate voted overwhelmingly Thursday to cut President Reagan's MX missile program in half unless the Pentagon finds a new home for the much-debated nuclear weapon.

The 78-20 vote ended three days of intense negotiations between the White House, Senate Republicans, and Senate Democrats over a Democratic-led plan to scale back the MX program in the latest Capitol Hill fight over the weapon.

The plan, accepted by Reagan earlier in the day, provides that only 50 MX weapons can be deployed in existing Minuteman silos in Wyoming and Nebraska, rather than the 100 missiles Reagan wanted in the long-running fight over the weapon.

The scaled-down MX program was thus made part of a bill authorizing Pentagon spending for next year. The House has yet to vote on its version, but is considering a limit of only 40 MX weapons.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., author of the Democratic plan to cut MX that would have originally limited deployment to only 40 MX weapons, said, "I don't think there is any question that the president is making a substantial change in his MX program."

Reagan, in a statement issued at the White House, called the compromise "a bipartisan expression of continuing support for our strategic modernization program."

Reagan says the weapon is needed to modernize America's aging land-based nuclear arsenal, but MX critics call the weapon vulnerable to a Soviet first strike when it is deployed in stationary silos.

Under the plan, only 12 MX weapons would be built next year instead of the 48 Reagan wanted, Nunn said, and any deployment of the MX beyond a total of 50 would be in a new basing plan other than the Minuteman silos.

White Nunn's proposal didn't specifically propose killing the missile, the Pentagon has been unable to come up with an acceptable basing plan other than Minuteman silos.

Nunn's amendment does not bind Congress beyond the next fiscal year, but he said that if no basing plan other than Minuteman silos is proposed, "I'd rather not have any more MX missiles."

The compromise was worked out during three days of negotiations among Nunn, Senate Republican leaders, and White House officials who included national security adviser Robert McFarlane.

All 47 Democrats planned to vote for Nunn's original plan to limit deployment to 40 missiles, along enough of the 53 Republicans to provide a majority, according to congressional sources who spoke on condition they not be identified.

IFF found in violation of wastewater treatment requirements

Health and Welfare Board sets new procedures

By The Associated Press
and The Times-News

BOISE — The state Board of Health and Welfare found Idaho Frozen Foods in violation of wastewater treatment requirements Thursday and mandated stiffer new testing and reporting procedures.

"I certainly have a feeling that what we're doing is going to be reviewed," Board Chairman Archie Service of Pocatello said after the new order for the Twin Falls food processor was approved without objection.

Board member David Mead of Twin Falls abstained on grounds of a possible conflict of interest.

Idaho Frozen Food President Lee Odenwald said Thursday he took exception to comments by board members that Idaho Frozen Foods was in chronic violation of a three-year-old voluntary compliance order.

The real issue is that the state has been trying to change the original compliance agreement, he said.

He declined further comment, saying he had only heard of the decision through news reports and had not yet talked to the company's attorney for the case.

He did not yet know what the new testing and reporting procedures were, he said.

"The board effectively adopted the findings of a hearing officer in determining that the company has been violating terms of a three-year-old compliance order for its wastewater treatment operation."

The action, based on months of hearings and review, came despite persistent claims by officials of Idaho Frozen Foods that there is no evidence showing seepage from the company's wastewater treatment facilities contains chemical levels in excess of those mandated by the original compliance order.

"I think there's consideration given here to Frozen Foods' position," said board member Russell Webb, noting the new order is more liberal than one proposed by the hearing officer. "If anything, it demonstrates good faith on the part of the state."

Webb argued that an engineering study conducted at the company's direction clearly shows that wastewater from the plant has

House passes budget

By TOM RAUM
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House of Representatives on Thursday approved a sweeping deficit-reduction plan that matches the $56 billion in savings of a rival 1986 Senate budget but accomplishes it through deeper slashes in President Reagan's military buildup and without restraining Social Security benefits.

The 238-170 vote, embracing the largest package of spending cuts and freezes ever adopted in the Democratic-controlled chamber, sets the stage for negotiations with the Republican-led Senate on a final compromise budget.

Both chambers now have passed budgets that meet Reagan's goal of trimming the government's $200 billion-plus deficit by at least $50 billion next year and roughly halving it by 1990 — without raising taxes.

Without treading domestic programs as deeply as the Senate would, the House budget calling for a total of $967 billion in 1986 spending would freeze Pentagon spending authority and scores of other federal programs at 1985 levels.

The House plan makes deep cuts in a variety of other programs, although leaves intact low-income programs such as Medicaid and food stamps. And it projects next year's cost-of-living increase for 36 million Social Security recipients that the Senate voted to cancel.

House leaders immediately served notice that their negotiators would stand firm against tampering with Social Security payments.

Jones wants right-to-work law ordered into effect

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones has asked the state Supreme Court to overrule a district judge and order the state's new right-to-work law into effect.

Jones told a news conference here Thursday he has asked the Supreme Court to reverse a decision by 4th District Judge Robert Newhouse continuing an injunction against the right-to-work law. The attorney general also is asking the court to reverse a ruling by Newhouse on Monday banning enforcement of the new law.

Unless overturned, that ruling would bar enforcement of a law barring compulsory union membership or payment of dues as a condition of employment until voters decide a referendum in November of 1986.

Based on two 1986 decisions and the Idaho Constitution, Jones said he's convinced that Newhouse was wrong when he questioned the Legislature's use of an emergency clause.

When the Legislature enacted right-to-work in January over the veto of Gov. John Evans, it included an emergency clause putting the new law into effect immediately.

Labor unions argued that in effect deprived the people of their right to put the law to a referendum election, although they quickly gathered more than 60,000 signatures to force a referendum in the next general election.

Newhouse said there was "a serious question" whether an emergency actually existed.

But Jones said two previous court rulings and the state constitution make it clear the decision whether to declare an emergency is left entirely up to the Legislature.

He said the 1985 Legislature enacted about 50 laws with an emergency clause, including 10 appropriation bills.

If Newhouse's ruling is allowed to stand, Jones said, all of the 50 other bills could be attacked on the same basis.

"It is for the Legislature to make the sole determination" if an emergency exists, he said, "and our laws do not let the judiciary second-guess the Legislature on those decisions."

The Newhouse ruling also violates the separation of powers, Jones said, by letting the judiciary overrule a decision by the Legislature.

The basic question, Jones said, is whether the Legislature has authority to declare an emergency, even if one does not exist.

"We're asking the court to overrule Judge Newhouse, dissolve the preliminary injunction and reinstate the right-to-work law," the attorney general said.

Jones said he has contended all along that right-to-work became an Idaho law on Jan. 31, as soon as the Legislature overrode the governor's veto. But he said a detailed ruling issued by Newhouse on Monday declared right-to-work "of no force or effect" and wiped it out entirely.

Jones said Newhouse's written decision in the right-to-work case appeared to be much broader than a preliminary decision issued earlier.

If the Supreme Court grants the state's request to review Newhouse's decision, Jones said he will present verbal arguments before the high court.

Koreans protesting

By EDWIN WHITE
The Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — Dozens of students invaded the U.S.-Information Service building in Seoul, barricaded themselves in the library, and today shouted accusations that the United States supports a "military dictatorship" in South Korea.

"They began their takeover on Thursday and vowed a hunger strike 'to the end' to achieve their demands."

Early in the invasion, the protesters put signs in windows threatening to leap out of the four-story building or take poison if South Korean authorities sought to remove them by force.

The students — estimated to number from 40 to 70 — seized the library and plastered second-story windows with placards and papers.

They scattered leaflets demanding that the U.S. government "apologize to the Korean people for approving the Kwangju massacre . . . and . . . withdraw support of the present military regime, which was the chief plottor."

The demands centered on the 10th anniversary of what now is known as the Kwangju incident, a bloody uprising that began in that southern provincial capital soon after the government declared martial law on May 18, 1980.

Nebraskan runs Farm Crisis Hotline

By STEVEN WINE
The Associated Press

WALTHILL, Neb. — Judy Dye, whose family was forced to sell its own farm, now tries to help others avoid the same fate by answering the Farm Crisis Hotline five days a week.

The telephone service provides financial, legal and emotional counseling and is the foundation of a statewide network developed to help farmers surmount the depressed agricultural economy.

"The hotline has been a healing process for me, to be able to talk to folks like you," Mrs. Dye told one caller. "It's kind of like a family."

Eight other states, mostly in the Midwest, have crisis hotlines. Nebraska's is unique because of the broad range of counseling it offers, Mrs. Dye said.

The Nebraska hotline was started eight months ago by the Farm Families Crisis Council, a group of 50 representatives of the state Department of Agriculture, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension Service, Nebraska Farm Organizations, Legal Aid Society of Omaha and farm lenders. The council is sponsored by the Interchurch Ministries of Nebraska, an ecumenical group.

"Farmers are becoming known as the new poor," said Kathleen Severens, the coordinator for the crisis council. "We're trying to keep as many viable farms as possible and save farmers as far as their emotional well-being."

Bill Kerrey, farm adviser to his brother, Democratic Gov. Bob Kerrey, called the hotline "both effective and important." Kerrey said he refers many people to the hotline because callers get "sound advice" and "somebody to talk to."

Kerrey added that he sees a need for the hotline "for months to come."

Mrs. Dye, 45, uses her ebullient manner and infectious laugh to console troubled callers. She said her sensitive to their concerns because she and her husband were forced, because of financial dificulties, to sell their 400-acre farm southeast of this small northeast Nebraska town in 1974.

"That feeling of being out of control was extremely difficult, and a lot of people are in that situation right now," she said. "It helps to have an affinity to their problems. I was talking to a woman this morning and saying, 'Do you feel such and such?,' and she'd say, 'How'd you know that?'"

Walthill is in Nebraska's buckskin hills, so named because of the color of the soil, which produces corn and soybeans only grudgingly. Partly because yields aren't prolific, the farm crisis is most deeply felt in this part of the state, Mrs. Dye said.

However, Mrs. Dye answers their questions from a desk in a small office in a two-story building that houses the Center for Rural Affairs, an advocacy group for the farm community. The building in the

Divers find last body off oil rig

MORGAN CITY, La. (AP) — Divers on Thursday found the body of the 11th and final victim of a capsized oil rig in a remote Louisiana bayou.

"Our divers found the final body under a pipe rack on the outside of the rig," said Aubrey Authement, a Terrebonne sheriff's spokesman.

Meanwhile, the first funeral for a victim of the oil rig wreck was held in New Iberia for Kent Romero.

Stormy weather had hampered the search Thursday as divers groped through the wreckage in the murky waters of the Bayou Chene, a major channel for offshore drillers and suppliers, while boats and aircraft joined in the search during breaks in thunderstorms.

Oil rig leak forces evacuation

TRADING BAY, Alaska (AP) — A methane gas leak at a Cook Inlet oil drilling platform Thursday sent a plume of mud, water, rock and sand shooting 600 feet into the air and forced the evacuation of about 40 workers, Union Oil Co. officials said.

No one was injured, and there were no reports of an oil spill or other damage, said Bob Anderson, lands manager for Union Oil in Anchorage.

A widening blackish plume was emanating from the company's Grayling platform, located about 60 miles southwest of Anchorage and four miles east of the Trading Bay State Game Refuge, a popular waterfowl hunting area.

Union Oil officials had not decided what action to take, Anderson indicated.

FBI: spies have more cohorts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI expects to arrest more Americans on charges of helping a retired Navy communications specialist and his son, a seaman aboard the nuclear aircraft carrier Nimitz, spy for the Soviet Union, a bureau official said Thursday.

"We think this ring is bigger than the two now charged," Assistant FBI Director Bill Baker told The Associated Press. "I would expect more charges against more people — associates of the father."

John Anthony Walker Jr., a retired 47-year-old Navy warrant officer, was arrested by the FBI before dawn Monday at a suburban motel after he apparently left 129 secret Navy documents at a secluded, rural domicile. Some of these documents came from the Nimitz, on which Walker's 22-year-old son is now serving.

Block denounces dairy plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block on Thursday denounced a dairy price support plan offered by the National Milk Producers Federation as "a major step backwards" in the drive to develop new dairy policy.

The Reagan administration wants more dependence on the markets for dairy farmers, and lower supports to discourage surplus milk production. The federation's plan calls for a formula in the law so that milk supports would be set high enough to cover costs — but not so high as to encourage surplus production.

Block, in a telephone interview with a group of farm writers and broadcasters, said he was "extremely disheartened" to learn that the federation's board "is considering the adoption of a program for the 1985 farm bill that once again fails to address the major problems" of dairy farmers.

Bob Hope gets Vietnam award

WASHINGTON (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope and 10 Vietnam veterans, including Virginia Gov. Charles Robb and Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., were named recipients Thursday of Distinguished Vietnam Veterans Awards.

They were receiving the awards at an evening dinner at a Washington hotel from the National Vietnam Veterans Network. The network is a non-profit-organization-established-to support and publicize the contributions of Vietnam veterans in business, government, the arts and other fields.

Reagan gives civilian awards

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, saying "sometimes it's fun to be president," gave the nation's highest civilian award Thursday to 12 prominent figures, including entertainers Frank Sinatra and Jimmy Stewart, test pilot Chuck Yeager and former U.N. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick.

"More than you'll ever know, this world would have been much poorer and a dimmer place without each of you," Reagan told recipients of the Presidential Medal of Freedom at a White House luncheon.

Other recipients were ocean explorer Jacques-Yves Cousteau, educator and philosopher Sidney Hook, former Smithsonian Institution Secretary S. Dillon Ripley and Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, who rose through the ranks to become commander of the China Theater in World War II.

Awards were presented posthumously to jazz pianist Count Basie; civil rights activist, educator and diplomat Jerome Holland; George M. Low, onetime administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration; and ABC News anchorman Frank Reynolds.

White House silent on report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration refused to comment Thursday on a report that it is prepared to bomb the Iranian holy city of Qum if there is "unambiguous" proof that Iran is involved directly in any action against four American hostages in Lebanon.

"We have no comment on any alleged contingency plan," State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said.

Apartheid protests held on both coasts

By The Associated Press

More than 160 people were arrested in two anti-apartheid demonstrations Thursday as students and faculty blockaded Princeton University's administration building at dawn, and labor leaders protested outside the South African Airways office in San Francisco.

Eighty-eight people were taken into custody in New Jersey after staging the dawn blockade to protest Princeton's investments in companies with ties to South Africa.

In San Francisco, about 300 officers from area AFL-CIO labor councils and members of various labor organizations took part in a noon rally at Union Square. Many of the demonstrators sat down and blocked the entrance of the airline's offices, and Capt. Charles Beane said 79 people were arrested for obstructing a sidewalk.

Richard Groulx, executive secretary of the Central Labor Council in Alameda County, said the purpose of the demonstration was to show that "we are concerned about the people in South Africa who have no rights."

Elsewhere, in Berkeley, Calif., with the spring semester over, University of California police Wednesday carried away the last sleeping bags and protest signs from the site of six weeks of demonstrations against South Africa's policy of racial segregation, or apartheid. But protesters later returned and about 14 were still there that dawn Thursday, campus police said.

And in Brockton, Mass., 17-year-old Stacy Ann Lampos, who has shown promise among young U.S. equestrians, says she has turned down an expensive-paid "invitation to ride" in South Africa because of that nation's apartheid rules.

"I was excited about being asked to go to an international event," the high school junior said. "But when I realized it was in South Africa, I felt I couldn't go."

In the Princeton demonstration, about 100 protesters blocked the five entrances to Nassau Hall at about 6 a.m. and had vowed to bar employees from entering all day, said Joseph Schwartz, a research assistant serving as spokesman for the Princeton Coalition for Divestment.

Schwartz said the coalition wants Princeton to sell the $350 million worth of stock, out of its $1.2 billion endowment, in companies doing business with South Africa. He said the blockade was planned after university President William G. Bowen rejected the coalition's request for an ending the divestment issue before Princeton's board of trustees.

The university trustees adopted a policy in 1978 declaring apartheid "morally repugnant" but saying Princeton stands by its investment policy against taking positions on "external issues." Princeton will bring disciplinary sanctions against those arrested, but university spokesman Justin Harmon said he did not expect severe penalties.

Shultz rebukes Democrat envoys

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz on Thursday rebuked congressional Democrats who write "Dear Commandante" letters to President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua or travel there as "self-appointed emissaries" to the communist regime.

Shultz said the lawmakers' actions were reprehensible. "It's presumably not lawful for citizens to appoint themselves as negotiators for the United States," he said.

Lawmakers responded angrily, with one accusing Shultz of "McCarthyism." And later, the secretary of state appeared to back off somewhat, telling three House members who signed a letter to Ortega he did not mean to be critical of them or their colleagues.

In his speech, Shultz did not identify his targets by name. But he apparent-ly referred to 10 House Democrats who wrote Ortega in March 1984 to praise some of his actions and call for "a fully open and democratic society," and also to Democratic Sens. Tom Harkin of Iowa and John Kerry of Massachusetts.

The two liberal senators, in a trip to Managua in April, received assurances from Ortega that he would agree to a cease-fire and undertake other liberalizing measures if Congress rejected the Reagan administration's proposal for $18 million in new assistance to anti-Sandinista rebels.

The letter, meanwhile, called for fair elections and expressed hopes Ortega would open the political process. Rep. Jim Wright of Texas, the House Democratic leader, was among the signers.

Shultz, in a speech to the American Bar Association, said that Democrats and others who condemned President Reagan's actions in Grenada in 1983 were engaged in a "cynical abstractionist branding of party politics."

He suggested they support the Republican White House in the spirit of bipartisanship set in World War II.

In response, Harkin accused Shultz of "international McCarthyism" for trying to label the Democrats as undermining American interests.

Kerry said, "I believe it in the interests of this country . . . that we should clearly debate these issues."

Wright's office said Shultz wrote House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., on April 16, saying "congressional travel to Nicaragua and Central America has contributed to a better understanding within the legislative branch of the complex sources of conflict in the region."

Rep. Bill Alexander of Arkansas, one of the Democrats who wrote Ortega in 1984, said, "I feel that the letter to Ortega helped persuade him to hold an election to loosen some of the authoritarian grip upon the people of Nicaragua."

Study... chance

BOISE (AP) — The state of Idaho is missing an opportunity for major economic growth through expanded international trade because little is being done privately or publicly to aggressively promote its industries, a new study concludes.

State government has not provided the manpower and financing needed to assist small and medium businesses in entering export markets, colleges and universities are not offering international trade education, private efforts are not being adequately nurtured, commercial financing for foreign business activity remains fragmented and Idaho's tax structure has left foreigners with the perception of unfairness, according to the study released Thursday by the Greater Boise Chamber of Commerce.

Rulemakers expect criticism

POCATELLO (AP) — No matter what rules the Idaho Department of Water Resources governs future water appropriations, people are going to oppose them, a department administrator says.

Norman Young, after a meeting at the Pocatello Municipal Airport to gather comments on how new rules should be written, said the department is in a no-win situation.

More than 30 people attended and most represented agricultural interests and several favored natural resource uses.

Charles Pace, an Idaho State University economics professor, said neither the Shoshone-Bannock Tribes nor out-of-state downriver tribes had been notified of the meeting, although they had interests in what occurred.

Youth center termed unsafe

BOISE (AP) — A 1984 inspection of the Youth Services Center at St. Anthony revealed unsanitary kitchen facilities, poor ventilation in the living areas and bare electrical wires, a health consultant said Thursday.

The pasteurization plant at the center — where milk is processed for use in the YSC kitchen — was so unsanitary during the inspection that conditions could have led to an outbreak of disease such as salmonella, said Sam Hoover, an environmental health consultant from Texas.

Hoover was hired by San Francisco Youth Law Center attorneys who filed a class-action lawsuit against the state Health and Welfare Department over alleged abuse and neglect at the St. Anthony facility.

Amputee is rescued from fire

CALDWELL (AP) — An amputee whose Caldwell apartment caught fire is hospitalized in serious condition after being rescued by an off-duty police officer.

Ronald Lightner, 54, was rescued late Tuesday after Lynn Case, a neighbor who also is a policeman, learned there was a fire in Lightner's apartment, Caldwell police said. The fire apparently began when a cigarette ignited a couch, police said.

Lightner, who has artificial legs, suffered burns to his face, hands, arms, back and torso.

Arsonist will be sent to prison

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Court of Appeals has rejected a Kootenai County woman's argument that she should not be sent to prison because of her poor health.

Sally Ann Stansbury was convicted of arson and presenting a false claim to an insurance company, and was sentenced to three years in prison. The woman pleaded guilty to charges that she hired her son and another person to set fire to an adjoining mobile home, so her home also would be destroyed and she could claim insurance proceeds.

Ada County agrees to rehabilitate jail

BOISE (AP) — Ada County officials signed an agreement Thursday to improve conditions at the county jail, apparently ending a two-year federal investigation triggered by the jailhouse slaying of Christopher Peterman in 1982.

Peterman, a 17-year-old Nampa youth jailed for minor offenses, was beaten to death in his cell by four cellmates.

They all went to prison for the torture-beating death, and the U.S. Justice Department launched an investigation into allegations that inmates were being held under unsanitary and health conditions.

In an agreement signed by federal officials all the way up U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III, the county agreed Thursday to make improvements in the jail operation. In return, the Justice Department will not file a civil rights complaint.

The improvements are to be complete by 1986.

"We did not have any real choice," said Ada County Commissioner Mike Johnson. "We have been working with them for the last two years, and we will be making the changes as fast and as thoroughly as possible."

Johnson said the improvements will be costly but he had no immediate estimate. The money will have to be put in the 1986 budget of Sheriff Vaughn Killen.

The agreement provides:

- That the county will protect all inmates from harm, will provide adequate guards and will make "reasonably frequent and thorough security checks."
- The county will provide adequate medical care, including an immediate health assessment when an inmate is admitted to the jail. The county will make an effort to identify inmates with "suicidal or self-mutilating" tendencies and will house them separately if necessary. Inmates with mental problems will be referred for proper treatment. And the county will keep adequate medical records.
- Ada County will replace all flammable mattresses with fire-proof material and will unblock and maintain clearance of fire exits.
- The county will guarantee sanitary conditions and proper food.

Two plead innocent to drug charges

BOISE (AP) — Two people indicted in a Boise drug case have pleaded innocent and arrangements of 17 others have been continued to June 5.

The Ada County public defender's office, which represents at least 13 of the defendants, said the delay is needed to allow time for review of information in the case.

Ada County residents Ted Robert Schroder and Sherrie Schroder, both 25, pleaded innocent on Wednesday with the counsel of a private attorney.

A grand jury on May 10 returned two related indictments charging 25 people in a Boise drug ring that Ada County Deputy Prosecutor Monte Stiles called one of the largest ever prosecuted in the county.

The indictment naming 19 defendants whose court appearances were scheduled on Wednesday alleges conspiracy to possess methamphetamine with intent to deliver, conspiracy to possess marijuana with intent to deliver, or both.

A week ago, four Ada County residents charged in the other indictment pleaded innocent.

Spray limit relaxed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service has agreed to spray strips of federal land in Idaho under 10,000 acres to prevent grasshopper infestation, according to members of Idaho's congressional delegation.

The agency previously said only blocks containing at least 10,000 acres would be considered for the federal spray program. The change, made after meetings with the Idaho delegation, was designed to help southern and eastern Idaho, where many federal tracts are smaller.

APHIS will spray on smaller strips "where it is economically feasible," according to a news release from Sens. James McClure and Steve Symms and Rep. Larry Craig, all Republicans.

APHIS' first spraying in Idaho will be in the Bruneau area of southwest Idaho on June 5. About $10 million has been set aside for grasshopper-spraying operations in the West this summer.

Egypt foils Libyan truck bomb

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egypt foiled a Libyan plot to blow up an embassy with a truck bomb, the government said Thursday. The target was not named by authorities, but a government-owned newspaper said it was the U.S. Embassy.

The operation had been planned for Wednesday, but was discovered months earlier, according to the Interior Ministry announcement. It said an official of Libyan intelligence promised an agent $500,000 to do the job.

Hundreds of policemen closed off several blocks around the American mission in the Garden City district Wednesday, causing rush-hour traffic jams through the heart of Cairo. Witnesses and police on the scene said the security operation focused on the U.S. Embassy.

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Thursday that American officials were working closely with Egyptian authorities. "We have taken appropriate security measures," he said.

Beirut street fight continues

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Muslim militiamen and Palestinian guerrillas struggled for control of Beirut's refugee camps Thursday, fighting from house to burning house. Dozens of bodies lay in the streets.

Police said at least 201 people had been killed and about 1,165 wounded since the battle began Sunday. The Red Cross and officials on both sides said dozens of the dead were uncounted and still had not been collected from the battle areas.

The guerrillas fought desperately, often hand-to-hand, but were encircled by the militiamen and Shiite soldiers of the Lebanese army, who are determined to keep the Palestinian fighters from re-establishing themselves in this war-ravaged country.

British police seize 'eccentric'

WOLVERHAMPTON, England (AP) — Police seized a man carrying a toy pistol and an "imitation hand grenade" Thursday as he stood in a crowd awaiting Princess Diana's visit to a central England community center.

Authorities said the man was a local eccentric and Diana, 23, the wife of heir-to-the throne Prince Charles, was never in any danger. West Midlands Police spokesman Ian Strachan said officers detained Ivan James, 41, after he acted "suspiciously" while standing in a crowd about a half hour before Diana arrived at the Crypt Community Center in Wolverhampton, an industrial city 120 miles west of London. James is from Wednesfield, a Wolverhampton suburb.

Angolans capture S. Africans

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The army acknowledged Thursday that it lost contact with a small unit inside Angola, but would not say whether it was the one Angola claims was preparing to blow up an American-owned oil refinery.

The official Angolan news agency Angop, monitored in Portugal, said Wednesday that Marxist-ruled nation's army caught three South African commando leaders with weapons and limpet mines in Cabinda province in the country's far north.

It said they were planning to blow up the refinery run by Gulf Oil Corp. Gulf has the largest operation of several foreign oil companies in Cabinda, which produces 90 percent of Angola's export earnings.

Angop said a fight broke out in which two of the South Africans were killed and one captured.

Gandhi sightseeing in Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi of India, his official business completed with the signing of a billion-dollar credit deal, flew to Minsk on Thursday for a day of sightseeing, wreath-laying and meetings.

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev presided over a farewell ceremony for Gandhi in the Kremlin's white-marble St. George's Hall. Premier Nikolai A. Tikhonov and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko also attended.

Today, he is to fly to Frunze, capital of the republic of Kirghizia about 120 miles from the Chinese-Soviet border. Gandhi is to spend two days in Kirghizia, taking a boat ride and visiting a horse show before returning to New Delhi on Sunday.

China wants to reclaim Macao

BEIJING (AP) — Four centuries after Portuguese traders occupied Macao, China moved Thursday to erase a vestige of colonialism by announcing it will negotiate with Portugal to reclaim the coastal settlement.

The historic declaration came a half-year after Britain agreed to surrender Hong Kong when its lease on the capitalist freeport expires in 1997.

China's Communist leaders have said they would model Macao's future on the same "one country, two systems" blueprint promised to Hong Kong, which lies just 40 miles east of the Portuguese enclave. Most of Macao's 450,000 people are ethnic Chinese.

The announcement coincided with a visit to China by Portuguese President Antonio Ramalho Eanes. An official statement said both sides held friendly discussions on Macao, a question "left over from the past."

Russia says NATO wants war

MOSCOW (AP) — The NATO defense ministers' pledge this week to boost spending on conventional weaponry provokes members of the Western alliance have plans for war "uppermost in their minds," the government news agency Novosti charged Thursday.

The 14 defense ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization agreed Wednesday to increase military spending 3 percent annually, citing a need for more tanks, combat planes, anti-tank weapons and surface ships.

The current session was devoted not to working out ways to promote success at the Vienna (Austria) talks on mutual arms and force reduction in central Europe, but to increasing spending on conventional arms," Novosti said.

The agency restated the Kremlin's view that British and French nuclear arsenals should be included in U.S. Soviet arms negotiations.

Canadian budget cuts deficit

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Brian Mulroney's government presented its first budget Thursday, announcing a package of tax increases and spending cuts to reduce Canada's swelling deficit.

Michael Wilson, finance minister of the Progressive Conservative government, told Parliament that the country was getting "a budget of opportunity. A budget to encourage private initiative. A budget to build growth and lasting jobs for Canadians."

But he predicted that the unemployment rate, currently 10.9 percent, would still be over 10 percent at the end of next year.

The budget calls for total spending of $76.7 billion ($105 billion Canadian), up slightly more than 3 percent from the past fiscal year.

Argentine unions stage strikes

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Labor unions staged a half-day general strike and a noisy demonstration in front of the presidential palace Thursday to protest government austerity measures demanded by foreign creditors.

"The people can't eat, the people can't live and the people can't get healthy on promises," Saulo Halidini, one of four leaders of the General Confederation of Labor, told the vast crowd in the city's Plaza de Mayo.

Crowd estimates ranged from the police report of 65,000 people to organizers' figure of 150,000. The local news agency Noticias Argentinas estimated that slightly more than 100,000 people took part.

Boise hospital fights indigent claim denial

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Boise hospital is disputing a decision by the Twin Falls County Commissioners, which rejected a medical indigent claim for injuries that resulted from an attempted suicide by the claimant's husband.

It was the second time in two weeks that actions were filed in Fifth District Court against the board because of its decision to deny medical indigent applications.

On Wednesday, St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center appealed the county's denial of an indigent claim from Margaret Ann Barth of Twin Falls. Barth applied April 5, 1984, for medical assistance to help pay the hospital bill of her husband, Russell.

Russell, no age available, suffered a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head and on March 12, 1984, was transferred from Magic Valley Regional Medical Center to St. Alphonsus. He remained in the Boise hospital until April 4, 1984. The hospital bill amounted to $12,639.

After an initial rejection by the county of the Barth claim, the Boise hospital requested an appeal hearing, which was held Oct. 16, 1984.

Testimony during the hearing described the shooting incident as an attempted suicide, said Lloyd Webb, who represented the county.

In a ruling issued May 6, 1985, the commissioners admitted Russell Barth was financially indigent and had met the residency and procedural requirements. The board also ruled that the hospital charges were reasonable and normal.

Yet, the commissioners denied the claim on the basis that the State Legislature — through the indigency law — had not intended to obligate counties to pay medical care for intentional self-inflicted injuries. Webb said.

In its appeal, St. Alphonsus lawyers requested the court decide the matter through briefs and oral arguments instead of a trial. No hearing date has been scheduled.

Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said the circumstances of the indigent application was a first for the county.

In another lawsuit filed last Tuesday against the commissioners, a 22-year-old Twin Falls man claims his rights were violated when he applied for indigent funds.

In a Feb. 25 application, Cary J. Tadlock sought $2,980 to pay medical expenses for injuries he sustained when a practice grenade exploded. Hempleman said. Tadlock's right hand was injured and eventually amputated.

His indigent claim was denied by the commissioners March 15. The county rejected the application on the basis that his past employment record was unclear, the county was not the last resort for funds because Tadlock also had applied for Supplemental Security Income benefits, the hospital bill from Twin Falls Clinic should have been more detailed and the operation charge of $925 seemed unreasonably high — according to the appeal filed by Tadlock with the court.

After the rejection, Tadlock requested an appeal hearing with the commissioners, which was held March 27. The county again rejected the indigent claim April 5.

Tadlock alleges that it was during the bearing his constitutional rights were violated. The commissioners failed to inform him he had the right to an attorney, the opportunity to present evidence or present or cross-examine witnesses.

Tadlock asked the court to review the record to determine if there were irregularities in the procedure and to allow him to present more evidence supporting his request. He also sought a reversal of the county's decision and demands attorney fees.

Tadlock named as defendants commissioners Judy Felton, Ann Coyle and Marvin Hempleman, individually and as the board of commissioners.

Venturesome fifth graders found after 4-hour search

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Five Kimberly fifth-grade boys who ventured off on their own from a school event in the south hills Thursday afternoon triggered a four-hour search.

It involved two aircraft, about 30 volunteers from the Twin Falls County Search and Rescue, mounted posse, forest service and law enforcement officers.

The five were found safe inside a cabin at the Western Livestock Association corrals about five miles from the Diamondfield Jack Snowmobile Area about 7 p.m. Thursday.

Sheriff James Munn said a group of 75 Kimberly fifth graders went on a forest tour Thursday morning and had lunch at the snowmobile area about 28 miles south of Hansen.

He said the five boys left the group about 12:30 p.m. without telling anyone they were going.

One of the youths, Slade Bailey, 11, had spent the summer in the stork growers' cabin as his father works as a tractor rider for the cattleman.

"We thought that was probably where they were headed," Munn said. "But there's a lot of country between there and the snowmobile area and we weren't sure what might have happened along the way."

Munn said he was called about 3:30 p.m. by school officials and with the help of Jim Prunty of the Sawtooth National Forest, searched church and organization camps in the surrounding area. Unable to find them, they called out the full scale search. The boys were dressed in levis and shirts with no coats. He said when found, they were in good condition except wet from a rainstorm.

He identified the other boys as Fritz Jeske, 11, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jeske; Sonny Dingus, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Dingus; Shawn Okarma, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Okarma and Ruelle Latin, 11, a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Sharp, all of Kimberly.

The boys were spotted by one of the Civil Air Patrol planes about the same time as a search and rescue helicopter reached the cabin where they had taken refuge. Munn said bloodhounds were on the way from Blaine County's search and rescue unit when the five were found.

"They said they were going to the cabin and were on a high point above the snowmobile area when they saw the school buses pull out. They had walked a good five miles," Munn said.

Policeman reinstated unanimously

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — City Police Officer Craig Carroll, 36, of Kimberly, was reinstated to his former position by a unanimous vote of the Kimberly City Council.

Carroll was fired Tuesday by Mayor Ron Jones and given a hearing on the matter during an executive council session Thursday afternoon.

Ted Wasko, council president, said all four of the council members voted to reinstate Carroll to full capacity and full salary. He holds a basic law enforcement certification and has worked for the department for two years as an officer and about five years in a reserve capacity.

"I'm glad to be back to work," Carroll said. "I had faith in the council and they have cleared me of all charges. I haven't done anything wrong and I have nothing to hide."

Mayor Jones said that Richard Greenwood, the city's attorney, agreed he was within his rights to fire the officer and did not act improperly. He said although the meeting was an executive session, he can now reveal the reasons he fired Carroll.

Jones said he fired Carroll for several reasons including the fact that he had used a "stun gun" against a group of juveniles a couple of weeks ago. Also, the mayor charged that Carroll was inefficient in keeping his log records and in traffic duty. Jones said records show while other officers had 330 to 256 traffic stops in 1983, Carroll had only about 91.

Carroll was represented at the appeals hearing by attorney William Hofffield.

Jones said since the hearing was conducted as though it were a court session, he was prevented from giving all of the information he had prepared and making some statements he would like to have made.

He also reported that although he didn't like to see it happen, recall petitions were taken out Wednesday and Thursday against the three council members who have opposed him in a full scale investigation of the police department that he launched two weeks ago.

On Wednesday Kimberly residents Kent McDowell and Robert Durham obtained a recall petition they say will be used to seek a recall election to remove the mayor from office.

Cogeneration rate drop may end once-booming industry

By KEN BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Power Company's drop in rates paid to cogenerators will end the expansion of the state's once-booming cogeneration industry, according to Ralph Hixson of the Bonneville Pacific Corporation, a Salt Lake City-based hydro development firm.

Two weeks ago, the Public Utilities Commission agreed to a power company request for lower rates which the utility pays cogenerators. The temporary order sets the new rate at 4.4 cents per kilowatt hour; down from 6.8 cents per kilowatt hour.

While Bonneville Pacific developed one cogeneration plant in eastern Idaho for about 5.4 cents per kilowatt hour, Hixson said a plant could not be built for 4.4 cents per hour.

With the new rates, "you're going to see this little section of your economy dry up," Hixson said.

Hixson's remarks came at a Twin Falls Leadership Conference session on energy and transportation in the Magic Valley area held Thursday at

CSI. The all-day meeting included discussion on water rights and geothermal energy, as well as a luncheon tour of CSI's geothermal heating facility.

Dile Monson, a spokesman for Idaho Power at the conference, stressed that Idaho Power was not against cogeneration, but merely felt that the old rate was too high.

While Idaho Power charges homeowners about 4.5 cents per kilowatt hour, federal law requires the utility to purchase power from cogenerators at about 6.7 cents per kilowatt hour.

The federal law requiring the purchase of cogenerated power was part of the Public Utilities Regulatory Policy Act, legislation passed in the late 1970s when the Arab oil embargo was wreaking havoc on U.S. energy supplies.

The original intent of PURPA was to encourage small scale, private production of energy through renewable resources.

Through tax incentives and favorable pricing, it was hoped that the U.S. would be able to develop diversified and renewable sources of energy. At the time of the act's passage, everyone, including the utilities, were predicting power shortages.

Now, however, most utilities, particularly those in the Pacific Northwest, are suffering from a power surplus.

In the present situation, "PURPA spells a large sea change," Monson said. The company's feeling, he added, was that the old rates provided "too strong of an incentive for business people in south Idaho to develop and sell power that wasn't needed."

Monson said the utility is predicting an energy surplus for the next 20 years. He attributed their complexity missing the mark in predictions a decade ago to the recession of the late 1970s and early '80s which drastically slowed growth.

Monson called the recession the "longest and deepest" since the depression, adding that things are unlikely to recover in the foreseeable future.

Hixson, however, disagreed with

Seminar looks at transportation

TWIN FALLS — Boardings at the Twin Falls/Sun-Valley Regional Airport have dropped from 55,000 in 1980 to 20,000 in 1984, airport manager Harry Merrick told people attending the Twin Falls Leadership Energy and Transportation seminar Thursday at the College of Southern Idaho.

Merrick attributed most of the decrease to the deregulation of the airline industry. "Deregulation has been a nightmare to small communities, because it has either made it uneconomical for major carriers to fly in, or it has increased prices so much it's priced them out of the market."

He cited the loss of the airport's last major carrier, Republic Airlines, in 1983 as an example.

The poor economy and large corporation cutbacks on travel time also have contributed to the decline, he said.

"People just aren't flying anymore, and even large corporations have cut back their travel time by about 50 percent, because they don't have the money, and they can do the same thing with conference calls."

But even with the decline, the federal government won't allow it to shut down, Merrick said, because of the flight service station and the federal grant which the airport received in 1984.

In other issues discussed, transportation officials from the city, county and state cited lack of money as the biggest problem presently facing Idaho roads.

Twin Falls city engineer Gary Young blamed the poor condition of the city's roads on the weather and

Recount sought for pool ballot

By KEN BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A search is on for disgruntled Twin Falls city residents who may have been turned away from the polls April 23.

The Twin Falls Citizens Pool Committee can find enough of them, it may help the committee's case for a recount of votes cast in the latest swimming pool bond election. The count was eight votes short of the two-thirds majority needed for passage.

The committee, led by co-chairman Lance Clow, plans to file a request for a recount in Fifth District Court by late May or during the first few days of June.

The committee can say that a recount is needed because votes were counted manually, Clow said. His case would be stronger, however, with some evidence of voter irregularity, he said.

Already the committee knows of several examples of people who said they voted in recent city elections and never had been on the voter rolls, but were turned away from the polls.

Anyone who has voted in city elections in the last four years should be registered.

In one case, it was found that a name was misspelled so workers at the polls could not find it in the rolls. In another, the resident had moved across town, but not changed his registration.

Clow is also looking for people who were unable to cut through the red tape of city voter registration. Some people had difficulty proving where they lived, he said.

Those who felt they were unfairly prohibited from voting and are willing to help the pool committee should call Clow at 733-5767 or leave their names with Bryce King at City Hall, 733-8660.

People who could not vote because they were only registered with the county and not with the city will not help the committee's case, however, Clow said.

Collision at Wendell injures 5

WENDELL — An intersection collision in Wendell Thursday afternoon injured five teenagers and left one of them facing a possible citation for failing to observe a stop sign.

Wendell Police Chief Jim Howe said the two carsloads of teenagers collided at the corner of Sixth Street East and Halley Street about 3:05 p.m.

He said one vehicle was headed east on Sixth while the other was traveling north on Halley. The drivers were identified as Jerrard Durfee and Mark Bitterli, both 16, and both of Wendell.

Both drivers suffered injuries as did passengers, Lisa Rest, 15, Slade Ruffing, 16, and Shane Gullford, 16. Two passengers escaped injury. Howe said all of the young people involved are Wendell high school students. He said the cause of the accident was failure by one of the drivers to stop at a stop sign. That vehicle collided broadside with the other, he said, but neither was overturned. Howe said he could not identify the driver at fault, pending issuing the citation.

Rest, who was thrown from the vehicle in which she was riding, and Ruffing were admitted to the hospital and listed in stable condition Thursday night. The others had been treated and released. Durfee was taken to a private physician for treatment.

BOISE — Idaho motorists traveling this weekend will find gasoline prices at a statewide average of $1.25 a gallon, which is about 1 cent above the average at Easter, but slightly below the national average, says the Idaho branch of the American Automobile Association.

Travelers shouldn't have any problems obtaining gasoline this weekend with 90 percent of the surveyed stations open this weekend and over 50 percent open 24 hours a day.

Dietrich OKs school salaries

DIETRICH — The Dietrich School Board approved a new salary schedule Tuesday, including a 10 percent pay hike to $33,846 per year for superintendent/principal Wayne Perron and at least a four percent salary increase for district teachers.

"No one received less than the state average (increase)," Perron told the board, "and some teachers are above that, especially at the top end of the pay scale."

Perron said Dietrich's pay scale is above state averages for beginning teachers, but that increases for experience and education aren't as high as in other districts. Dietrich's base salary is $14,879, he said.

The board also granted Perron the authority to hire teachers to fill district vacancies, including a vocational agriculture position in the high school and three elementary positions.

Clinic meets fed indicators

GLENN'S FERRY — The Glenn's Ferry Area Rural Health Clinic has been meeting its federal funding indicators for the last several months, said clinic Director Leslyn Phelps.

She said this means more patients are using the clinic, which assures its continuing existence and service to the area's health needs.

Phelps said the clinic is funded by and gets its federal directives from the Public Health Service in Seattle, an agency in the U.S. Department of Health and Welfare.

For the past year, Phelps said, staff members in the Seattle office have been talking with her about forming a consortium and sharing services with other medical facilities in the area. The purpose is to utilize the services offered at federally funded clinics more efficiently and reduce costs, but no decision about a consortium has yet been made, said Phelps.

In other clinic news, Phelps said Charles and Mary Rita Miller, a retired couple from Wendell who are both pharmacists, have contracted with West-Drug to run the on-site pharmacy at the clinic part-time. Phelps said the pharmacy will be open Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Stoker meets with commissioners to negotiate murder trial legal fees

By CAROLYN MILLER
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Randy Stoker, public defender in the recent Jamie Charboneau murder trial, met with the Jerome County Board of Commissioners this week to negotiate a bill for legal services he had earlier submitted for $20,858.

Following discussion with the commissioners, Stoker accepted the board's offer of $50 per hour, for a total payment of $15,132.80.

The trial of Charboneau, who was recently convicted of first degree murder in the shooting death of his ex-wife, was moved to Boise due to widespread newspaper and television coverage in the Magic Valley. Stoker said he spent 200 hours in preparation and trial time.

Stoker was appointed to the Charboneau case by Fifth District Judge Philip Becker, following the dismissal of Charboneau's attorney.

Stoker says being appointed to the case only a month before the trial caused him to work up to 15 hours per day on the case.

Stoker told the commissioners the salary negotiation was based on whether or not the murder trial was considered an extraordinary circumstance, whether or not they disputed the 282 hours and what they considered a fair rate of compensation.

Board chairman Carl Montgomery told Stoker the only area disputed by the commissioners was Stoker's request to be paid at the rate of $75 per hour.

"I have no doubt I am worth that kind of money, possibly more," Stoker said. "However, when I submitted the claim I had no idea what the commissioners might consider reasonable," Stoker said.

Stoker added that being out of town for one month cost him a lot of money, and he was unable to handle other cases in his private practice. "I do not consider the public defender's job full time," he said.

Montgomery said he understood $35 per hour was the standard rate paid for services of the public defender.

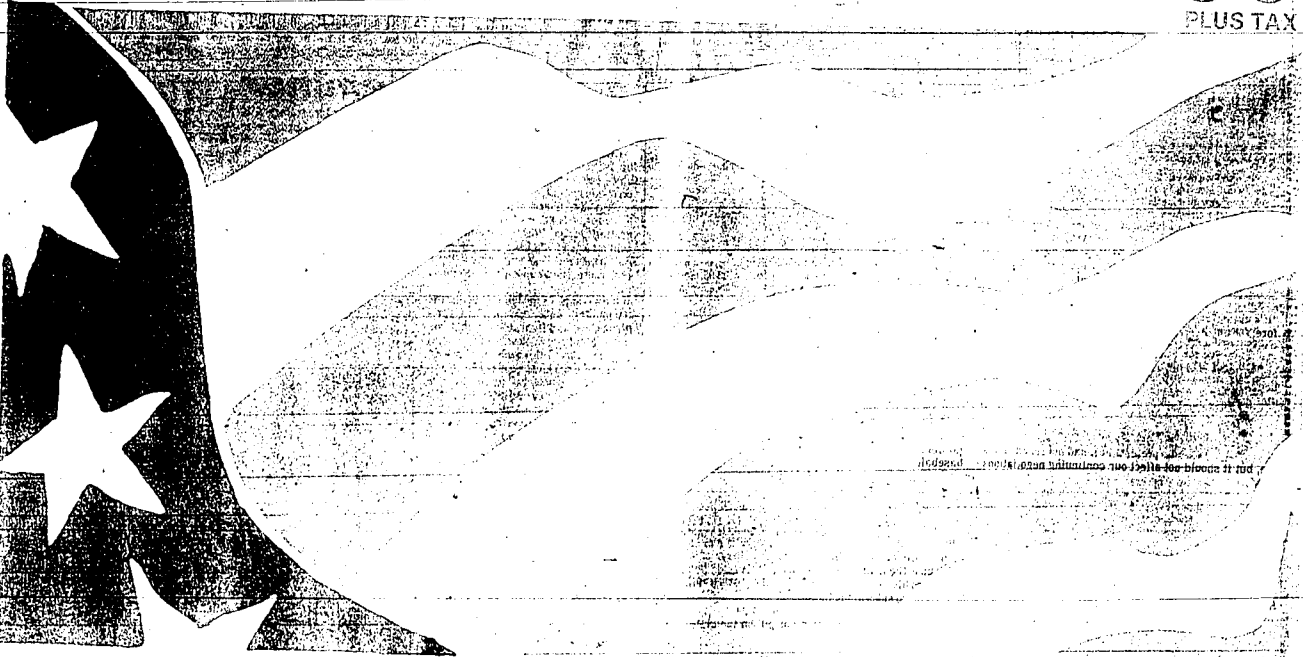

Stoker replied he had heard that figure bantered about, "but I consider it a rock bottom value. Had I been able to try the case here and could have dealt with other law problems, I could accept that amount, but I was gone for one month."

Stoker also said he didn't know of any private attorney who bills for less than $50 per hour.

"I understand the commissioners have hired outside counsel for $50 per hour, and I consider it reasonable that I should expect that, too," said Stoker. "I feel $50 an hour is the bottom line, considering what I had to go through."

Montgomery said he also considered $50 per hour reasonable. He said he appreciated the fine job Stoker had done documenting expenses and that Stoker had done an outstanding job as public defender.

TWIN FALLS — Canyon Springs exploded what was expected to be a tough match with Buhl to expand its lead in the Magic Valley Women's Inter-City Golf Series Thursday.

Canyon Springs outscored Buhl 44-4 to run its season total to 509 points while Bury, also having a 14-point day, runs to past several teams to move into second overall with 409.

Catholic U. under probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The NCAA and East Coast Athletic Conference are investigating Catholic University regarding the eligibility of defense back Chris McMahon, the nation's leader in interceptions last season, the Washington Times reported in Thursday's editions.

According to the paper, the probe centers on the status of McMahon, who led the nation with 13 interceptions as a senior and played three seasons with the Division III Cardinals after transferring from Holy Cross.

If McMahon is found to have been ineligible, Catholics would be forced to forfeit all its victories last season, according to ECAC rules. The Cardinals were 5-4 including a 72-0 victory over St. Peters.

According to Holy Cross records, McMahon played junior varsity football during his freshman year and played on the varsity squad during his sophomore year before contracting mono-nucleosis halfway through the season.

Varsity competition counts toward eligibility as much as varsity competition, making McMahon ineligible to play during his final year at Catholic, said Kathleen Hatke of the NCAA legislative services.

Sun Belt won't expand

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Representatives of Sun Belt Conference schools voted 5-3 to remain an eight-team league, turning down a bid by the University of New Orleans to rejoin the conference it helped to start.

The Sun Belt is a non-football conference. New Orleans was one of the original teams when the Sun Belt was formed in 1976, but the school withdrew in 1980, because it's gym was "too small to meet conference standards."

Now, with a new arena on the shore of Lake Pontchartrain, New Orleans wants to get back into a conference.

On Wednesday, faculty representatives of the Sun Belt schools voted against admitting another member, even though Commissioner Vic Bubas lobbied for UNO's admission.

Court sides with Dolphins

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Supreme Court sided Thursday with the Miami Dolphins in a dispute with the city of Miami over lost revenue from football games canceled in 1982 by a players' strike.

The ruling clears the way for enforcing an agreement under which the National Football League team will play an extra game in the Orange Bowl this year and next year.

The dispute focused on whether the Dolphins would be responsible for paying rent if an extra game was canceled by an "act of God." The feud irked justices, who said during oral arguments that the fight was silly and happened because both sides' noses are out of joint.

Robert Shevin, the Dolphins' attorney, was out of town on business but issued a statement through his office praising the high court's decision.

"The city of Miami was totally ill advised when they completely reversed their field and decided to file suit on technical grounds after a majority of the city commission had entered into a fair, just and comprehensive settlement with the Dolphins," said Shevin, former Florida attorney general.

The trouble began when the Dolphins were forced to cancel two of the nine games called for in their 1982 contract because of a players' strike. The city sued to collect rent for the games anyway and won a court ruling on the issue of liability.

Texas' 'no pass, no play' rule contested

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas high school baseball playoffs edged closer to a final showdown Thursday, but the top players were lawyers, the umpires were judges and the diamonds were courtrooms.

The state's "no pass, no play" rule, which bans students flunking one course from extracurricular activities for six weeks, has drawn at least 30 lawsuits from angry parents and their bronzed sons and daughters, resulting in injunctions, temporary restraining orders and an eventual skirmish before the Texas Supreme Court.

The Class 5A baseball playoffs, involving the state's largest high schools, have been on hold for more than a week since a judge in Houston declared the rule unconstitutional.

There's pressure to settle the contest quickly, because most schools close for the summer next week.

On Thursday, an assistant attorney general stood by in the court of state District Judge Marsha D. Anthony awaiting the signing of her written order on the rule's constitutionality. Once signed, it would be flown to Austin and appealed to the state's highest court, officials said.

The order, along with dozens of other court actions taken statewide in connection with the rule, should be in the hands of the Texas Supreme Court on Friday, officials said.

"The big question is how quickly can the state's appeal," said Jerry Pennington, an attorney for one plaintiff-parent.

"We're hopeful something will happen by Friday," said University Interscholastic League Director Bailey Marshall, who governs high school sports in Texas.

Gov. Mark White also entered the fray by directing Attorney General Jim Mattox to quickly appeal the rulings against the law. And the House of Representatives joined in Wednesday, urging everyone to "Play Ball!"

"It's a crying shame for our athletes to work hard and pay the price to achieve their success, then have it maybe go down the drain like this," said Lufkin coach Bill Marchant.

The courtroom wrangling over baseball started this spring when state District Judge Marsha D. Anthony ruled the "no play" provision was unconstitutional because it applied only to students who participated in extracurricular activities.

Ueberroth probes Wrigley Field future

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth met Thursday with top state officials to discuss the future of Chicago's Wrigley Field. He said he didn't lobby for changes in the state law that effectively bans night games at the 71-year-old stadium.

"I did discuss Wrigley Field, but not lights," Ueberroth said after meeting with Gov. James Thompson and legislative leaders. "I was trying to get an idea of whether the people and the neighborhood wanted Wrigley Field in the long term."

Wrigley, home of the Chicago Cubs, is the only major league ballpark without lights. The legislature in 1982 passed a law that effectively prohibits night baseball at Wrigley Field by imposing strict noise-pollution standards.

In a letter to the Cubs last December, Ueberroth said baseball would take "drastic action" unless the Cubs resolved the problem of night baseball.

But after Thursday's meeting, Ueberroth wouldn't say where he stood on the issue of lights at Wrigley Field, adding, "Post-season play is the only thing I'm concerned about."

Thompson had a slightly different version of his talk with Ueberroth, indicating the subject of lights at Wrigley was at least touched on.

"How could you meet with the commissioner of baseball and not talk about lights at Wrigley Field?" the Republican governor told reporters.

Asked what they said about lights, Thompson responded, "It was all in passing." The governor said Ueberroth did not ask him to try to change the 1982 law.

With the Cubs now a playoff contender in the National League, the prohibition is causing problems because owners make more money on night-time telecasts of playoff games.

Despite the night baseball question, Ueberroth said he's committed to Wrigley Field's survival as a major league park.

"I think it's the kind of intimate baseball stadium that has fallen in some eyes into disfavor, and that shouldn't be," he said. "In some years hence, it will be the perfect kind of stadium that people will look for."

Featherweight champ takes swipe at Holmes

NEW YORK (AP) — Eusebio Pedraza, en route to defend his World Boxing Association featherweight title against Barry McGuigan in London, has taken a couple of swipes at Larry Holmes, who outweighs him by nearly 100 pounds.

Asked if he was aware that the International Boxing Federation heavyweight champion had latched ahead of him in successful title defenses when he ran his string to 23 against Carl "The Truth" Williams, Pedraza said the records of the two could not be compared.

"I defend against the top contenders and not against kids," said the Panamanian, a reference to the 16-light record Williams took into his ring with Holmes Monday night, and the youth of such opponents as Marvin Frazer.

Pedraza, at a news conference Wednesday night, also noted that Holmes had used the laces and thumbs of his gloves against Williams.

"The press says I fight dirty," Holmes is "twice as dirty," he said through an interpreter. "But that's part of the game for a pro fighter. Those are the tricks and resources you depend on when you're in trouble."

Pedraza, who did not deny his reputation for using tricks and resources, said records such as strings of consecutive victories are of little interest to him. If he successfully defends against McGuigan on June 8, he will be one shy of the 20 featherweight title defenses strung together by Abe Attell between 1906 and 1912.

Pedraza, champion since April 15, 1978, shrugged at the information.

"I will be fighting McGuigan for the glory of all of Latin America and to gain recognition in the United States," he said. Lack of recognition, despite his record of 38-11, has been a sore point with him.

He will also be fighting McGuigan, who is from Northern Ireland, and to gain recognition in the United States," he said. Lack of recognition, despite his record of 38-11, has been a sore point with him.

Pedraza acknowledged that he had been spending a lot of time in his job as a member of Panama's Legislative Assembly — "More people call me senator than champion" — but he said that he is now back to the business of boxing and will be ready for the fight.

Catholic U. under probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The NCAA and East Coast Athletic Conference are investigating Catholic University regarding the eligibility of defense back Chris McMahon, the nation's leader in interceptions last season, the Washington Times reported in Thursday's editions.

According to the paper, the probe centers on the status of McMahon, who led the nation with 12 interceptions as a senior and played three seasons with the Division III Cardinals after transferring from Holy Cross.

If McMahon is found to have been ineligible, Catholic would be forced to forfeit all its victories last season, according to ECAC rules. The Cardinals were 5-4 including a 72-0 victory over St. Peter's.

According to Holy Cross records, McMahon played junior varsity football during his freshman year and played on the varsity squad during his sophomore year before contracting mononucleosis halfway through the season.

Subvarsity competition counts toward eligibility as well as varsity competition, making McMahon ineligible to play during his final year at Catholic, said Kathleen Hatke of the NCAA legislative services.

Sun Belt won't expand

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Representatives of Sun Belt Conference schools voted 5-3 to remain an eight-team league, turning down a bid by the University of New Orleans to rejoin the conference it helped to start.

The Sun Belt is a non-football conference.

New Orleans was one of the original teams when the Sun Belt was formed in 1976, but the school withdrew in 1980, because "it's gym wasn't big enough to meet conference standards."

Now, with a new arena on the shore of Lake Pontchartrain, New Orleans wants to get back into a conference.

On Wednesday, faculty representatives of the Sun Belt schools voted against admitting another member, even though Commissioner Vic Bubas lobbied for UNO's admission.

Court sides with Dolphins

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Supreme Court sided Thursday with the Miami Dolphins in a dispute with the city of Miami over lost revenue from football games canceled in 1982 by a players' strike.

The ruling clears the way for enforcing an agreement under which the National Football League team will play an extra game in the Orange Bowl this year and next year.

The dispute focused on whether the Dolphins would be responsible for paying rent if an extra game was canceled by an "act of God." The feud irked justices, who said during oral arguments that the fight was silly and happened because both sides' noses are out of joint.

Robert Shevin, the Dolphins' attorney, was out of town on business but issued a statement through his office praising the high court's decision.

"The city of Miami was totally ill advised when they completely reversed their field and decided to file suit on technical grounds after a majority of the city commission had entered into a fair, just and comprehensive settlement with the Dolphins," said Shevin, former Florida attorney general.

The trouble began when the Dolphins were forced to cancel two of the nine games called for in their 1982 contract because of a players' strike. The city sued to collect rent for the games anyway and won a court ruling on the issue of liability.

Texas' 'no pass, no play' rule contested

DALLAS (AP) — The state's largest high school baseball playoffs edged close to a final showdown Thursday, but the top players were lawyers' the umpires were judges and the diamonds were courthouses.

The state's "no pass, no play" rule, which bans students, flunking one course from extracurricular activities for six weeks, has drawn at least 30 lawsuits from angry parents and their benched sons.

On Thursday, an assistant attorney general stood by in the court of state District Judge Marsha D. Anthony awaiting the signing of her written order on the rule's constitutionality. Austin and appealed to the state's highest court, officials said.

The order, along with dozens of other court actions taken statewide in connecting with the rule, should be in the hands of the Texas Supreme Court on Friday, officials said.

"The big question is how quickly can the state's Supreme Court rule on the state's appeal," said Jerry Pennington, an attorney-for-one-plaintiff-parent.

"We're hopeful something will happen by Friday," said University Inland Empire League Director Barry Marshall, who governs high school sports in Texas.

Gov. Mark White also entered the fray by directing Attorney General Jim Mattox to quickly appeal the rulings against the law. And the House of Representatives joined in Wednesday, urging everyone to "Play Ball!"

"It's a crying shame for our athletes to work hard and pay the price to achieve their success, then have it maybe go down the drain like this," said Lutkin coach Bill Marchant.

The courtroom wrangling over baseball started this spring when state District Judge Marsha D. Anthony ruled the "no play" provision was unconstitutional because it applied only to students who participated in extracurricular activities.

With the Cubs now a playoff contender in the National League, the prohibition, is causing problems because owners make more money on night-time telecasts of playoff games.

Despite the night baseball question, Ueberroth said he's committed to Wrigley Field's survival as a major league park.

"I think it's the kind of intimate baseball stadium that has fallen in some eyes into disfavor, and that should be," he said. "In some years hence, it will be the perfect kind of stadium that people will look for."

Ueberroth probes Wrigley Field future

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth met Thursday with top state officials to discuss the future of Chicago's Wrigley Field. He said he didn't lobby for changes in the state law that effectively bars night games at the 71-year-old stadium.

"I did discuss Wrigley Field, but not lights," Ueberroth said after meeting with Gov. James Thompson and legislative leaders. "I was trying to get an idea of whether the people and the neighborhood wanted Wrigley Field in the long term."

Wrigley, home of the Chicago Cubs, is the only major league ballpark without lights. The legislature in 1982 passed a law that effectively prohibits night baseball at Wrigley Field by imposing strict noise pollution standards.

In a letter to the Cubs last December, Ueberroth said baseball would take "drastic action" unless the Cubs resolved the problem of night baseball.

But after Thursday's meeting, Ueberroth wouldn't say where he stood on the issue of lights at Wrigley Field.

addition, "Post-season play is the only thing I'm concerned about."

Thompson had a slightly different version of his talk with Ueberroth, indicating the subject of lights at Wrigley was at least touched on.

"How could you meet with the commissioner of baseball and not talk about lights at Wrigley Field?" the Republican governor told reporters.

Asked what they said about lights, Thompson responded, "It was all in passing." The governor said Ueberroth did not ask him to try to change the 1982 law.

Ueberroth wouldn't say where he stood on the issue of lights at Wrigley Field.

Featherweight champ takes swipe at Holmes

NEW YORK (AP) — Eusebio Pedroza, en route to defend his World Boxing Association featherweight title against Barry McGuigan in London, has taken a couple of swipes at Larry Holmes, who outweighs him by nearly 100 pounds.

"Asked if he was aware that the International Boxing Federation heavyweight champion had lined ahead of him in successful title defenses when he ran his string to 29 against Carl 'The Truth' Williams, Pedroza said the records of the two could not be compared.

"I depend on when you're in trouble," Pedroza, who did not deny his reputation for using tricks and resources, said records such as strings of consecutive victories are of little interest to him. If he successfully defends against McGuigan on June 8, he will be one step of the 28 featherweight title defenses strung together by Abe Attell between 1906 and 1912.

Pedroza, champion since April 15, 1978, shrugged at the information.

"I defend against the top contenders and not against kids," said the Panamanian, a reference to the 16-fight record Williams took into his meeting with Holmes Monday night, and the youth of such opponents as Marvis Presley.

Pedroza, at a news-conference Wednesday night, also noted that Holmes had used the laces and thumbs of his gloves against Williams.

"He will be fighting McGuigan, who is from Northern Ireland, for $500,000 — without taxes," said his manager, Santiago del Rio.

Pedroza acknowledged that he had been spending a lot of time in his job as a member of Panama's Legislative Assembly. "Many people call me senator — than champion" — but he said that he is now back to the business of boxing and will be ready for the fight.

"The press says I fight dirty. Holmes is twice as light," he said through an interpreter. "But that's part of the game for a pro fighter. Those are the tricks and resources you depend on when you're in trouble."

Fifth 'Friday the 13th' is a horror spoof

Friday, May 24, 1985 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho C-3

The Los Angeles Times

Ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America and the Los Angeles Times. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times reviewers.

DESPERATELY SEEKING SUSAN (PG-13). Endearing, imaginative comedy from "Smilgheerens." Susan is a girl about a bored young New Jersey housewife (Rosanna Arquette) who takes on the identity of a nervy, lush-looking street girl (Madonna). With Aidan Quinn.

FRIDAY THE 13TH PART V - A NEW BEGINNING (R). The fifth in the man in the ski mask's murderous rampages proves to be a horror spoof, which means its just one long, nauseating sick joke that serves only to inure us to its non-stop slaughter. With Melanie Lynskey, John Shepperd.

GOTCHA! (PG-13). Mistired romantic comedy-thriller about a rich, spoiled college youth (Anthony Edwards) losing his virginity to a glamorous spy (Linda Fiorentino) in Paris and winding up in high adventure. Edwards and Fiorentino are fine, but they are shot down by crass humor. With Nick Corri.

INTO THE NIGHT (R). John Langley's comic thriller takes us on a roller-coaster ride through contemporary Los Angeles. It zips along from place to place with a wild disregard for the restraints of logic, reality and good taste. Yet it has its moments. Jeff Goldblum as Ed Okin, an insouciant aerospace engineer, has shown before. In "The Master" of urban neurotics. He's an ace straight man to a castful of crazies. Michelle Pfeiffer, as a one-shot jewel smuggler, creates something just as gootily convincing; a good-hearted, loose, loose adventures always dancing on the edge. It is decently varied, decently amusing; a good minor comedy.

LADYHAWKE (PG-13). This film soars. Laced with medieval magic, it has stalwart knights, tremulously fine ladies, heavy-footed horses. Most of all, it is a bold, beautiful, marvelous vision. A medieval fantasy of two achingly destined lovers (Rutger Hauer and Michelle Pfeiffer), separated by the black arts of a jealous and decidedly unfructed) bishop. Matthew Broderick plays Phillippe Gaston, the Mouse, a scruffy and endearing pickpocket, a wonderfully realized character, quick and agile enough to deserve his nickname, who aids the lovers. Broderick gives him a genuine sweetness and ingenuousness. Director Richard Donner does not overemphasize the modern flavor (everything in the film moves fast and gracefully). Marvelous stuff.

LOST IN AMERICA (R). Director, writer and star Albert Brooks turns his comic energies on his favorite target - himself - painting an agonizingly accurate portrait of a man imprisoned in his own fantasies. Brooks' character David Howard is a stodgy advertising executive who gets beserk when someone else gets a promotion and in a fit of pique impetuously persuades his wife (Julie Hagerty) to quit her job and set off in a Winnebago in search of America. If the film has a weakness, it is Brooks' willingness to show off his character's every-flaw. David and Linda are perfect caricatures of those children of the '60s who never quite cut the umbilical cord from their youthful fantasies.

MASK (PG-13). Based on a true story of a boy suffering from a cruelly disfiguring bone disease. Peter Bogdanovich's approach to his singular young hero (beautifully played by Eric Stoltz) is one of his film's great strengths. "Mask" stirs our memories too; these moments, and Stoltz's tender yearnings for someone to care about, are what give the film its broad emotional appeal. Also starring Cher and Sam Elliott.

MOVING VIOLATIONS (PG-13). A woefully missettled spoof co-written and directed by Neil Israel (creator of "Police Academy" and "Bachelor Party"), this sour, cynical disaster is starred for a good joke. Let's just say this is the sort of movie that makes you yearn for something with a wee bit more subtlety and sophistication - like a Three Stooges routine.

MRS. SOFFEL (PG-13). Gillian Armstrong's unpredictable and captivating drama based on an actual turn-of-the-century incident involving the stifled wife (Diane Keaton) of a Pittsburgh jail warden and her increasing involvement with a condemned prisoner (Mel Gibson) she believes innocent of murder. A beautifully wrought and subtle film. With Matthew Modine, Edward Herrmann.

people as Howard Hesseman. Art Metrano and Colleen Camp are shot down.

THE PURPLE ROSE OF CAIRO (PG). A sweet film; funny smart, lovely, sad, human. Other American film makers accomplish this kind of miracle occasionally, but few with the regularity of Allen. He does this with his writing, with the matchlessly brisk, subtle flow of his dialogue, a cataract of wit where most movies have sporadic burps. Mia Farrow is Cecilia, a Depression-era waitress, caught in an narrow, unhappy life, who falls in love with the hero (Jeff Daniels) of a throw-away, romantic film, "The Purple Rose of Cairo." The theme: reality and illusion, the fragility of romance, the danger of the heart's desire. In its way, it's perfect. STICK (R). You can watch a good book go disastrously wrong in "Stick" as Elmore Leonard's hot, fast story becomes jokey, flaccid and deadly slow to suit what are presumed to be the requirements of its star and director Burt Reynolds. It is a pity, because the idea - an ex-con (Reynolds) finds himself completely out of step with today's world after seven years on the inside - has marvelous characters and great plot details. The cast includes Candice Bergen, George Segal, Charles Durning, Richard Lawson and Jose Perez; the locale is Miami and its environs, both rich and poor.

Hinckleys write book to help families with mental illness

WASHINGTON (AP)—For years, the parents of John W. Hinckley Jr. hated and avoided the attention that rallied up them because their mentally ill son tried to assassinate President Reagan.

They sneaked out back doors to duck reporters and cameras, registered in motels and took planes under assumed names, and refused interviews.

Yet now Jack and JoAnn Hinckley have written a book telling, in painful detail and from their unique viewpoint, the story of their son's tortured life before and after March 30, 1981, the day he shot the president and wounded three others.

What brought the change? It was the mail, they say, mail from relatives of the mentally ill who either passed on advice of the greater number — sought it.

"Silence and secrecy seemed to surround the whole world of the mentally disturbed," said Jack Hinckley. "Someone ought to be doing something to combat the stigma, to raise public awareness of the prevalence of this problem. To publicize warning signals and expand research."

"For 2½ years it never occurred to me that the 'someone' was me. Money was what was needed for education and research, lots and lots of money. But a successful writer had to be a public figure, make himself as conspicuous as possible — the very opposite of JoAnn and my desires.

Their book, called "Breaking Points," reveals little about young Hinckley that is not on the public record. His irrational love for movie star Jodie Foster, his agonized writings, his almost transcendent wanderings were told in great detail at his trial.

According to the Hinckleys, they learned much about their "silent, doleful JoAnn," along with the rest of the world. In the end, it turned them into crusaders for the mentally ill.

"We discovered similar problems wherever we went," writes Hinckley, who uses the name Jack, not John Sr. "These people felt painfully cut off from their communities — not so much by anything other people did as by their own secretiveness. Understandably they felt protective of the son, wife or parent who was suffering the illness.

"They needed society's help and support for their own burden, but had been unwilling or unable to reveal their problem to the world at large."

Hinckley writes that he does not understand the logic of those who want to abolish or weaken the insanity defense, which brought a verdict of "not guilty by reason of insanity" in all its counts of the case against John W. Hinckley Jr.

"Nobody benefits when a severely mentally ill felon is sent to prison rather than to a maximum-security mental hospital," the father writes. "If sent to prison he will likely receive no treatment for his sickness, yet be paroled in a few years in a worse condition than ever. Society and the ill felon are both losers."

Reagan was struck in the chest by one of Hinckley's ricocheted bullets, underwent an operation and recovered quickly.

'Mailer': People magazine journalism

"MAILER: His Life and Times," by Peter Manso, Simon and Schuster, 718 pp., ($19.95).

By DAN CRYER
Newspaper

NEW YORK — Since writing biographies is such hard work, some would be biographers have chosen not to write them at all. They assemble "oral biographies." And since reading is such hard work, too, a great many book-buyers make the best sellers of these imitation books. So much for contemporary literature and literacy.

Though not exactly an avalanche, the non-books in this genre have attracted attention out of proportion to their numbers. In 1977 Sluds Terkel, the master interviewer who prefers others' words to his own, set the pace with his autobiographical "Talking to Myself." In 1980 came "Lyndon," Merle Miller's life-in-interviews of President Johnson. Three years ago Jean Stein and George Plimpton presented us with "Eddie," the gaudy tale of a '60s girl who did herself in with drugs at an early age.

Because all these books were best sellers, they have set a tantalizing and lamentable collective precedent for the lazy man's biography.

Now Peter Manso, a journalist and Norman Mailer camp follower, weighs in with the hefty "Mailer: His Life and Times." Manso has not written a single word, you understand; he splices together paragraphs from his more than 200 interviews with Mailer himself, his family, ex-wives, Mailer groups (male and female), friends, enemies, college classmates, army buddies, authors, editors and critics.

Generally speaking, the result is a surprisingly smooth narrative, from the writer's birth in 1923 to the present. The book reads as though all the interviewees had gathered in a cavernous and hospitable tavern, downed a few drinks and took turns spinning yarns about that protean figure, Norman Mailer. They argue, they observe the man from different perspectives, they tell conflicting versions of the same events, but their subject is always unflinchingly fascinating.

"Mailer: His Life and Times" is

People magazine Journalism with a vengeance, much more so than Hillary Mills' biography (1982), which was excoriated for just that shortcoming. Manso's book is a book about celebrity, yet it does not analyze celebrity. It mentions books, but it does not respect them.

Worst of all, Manso abdicates the biographer's responsibility to evaluate what all this mountain of words means. There is a great deal of raw material here for future biographers, but a Mailer biography of importance remains unwritten.

In the age of publicity and public posturing, a writer such as Norman Mailer can make a fool of himself any number of times and still assert that he should be judged by his words, not his deeds. But he has become a prisoner of those deeds. So have his so-called biographers.

NPR financial crisis dominates conference

By DENNIS MCDUGAL
The Los Angeles Times

DENVER — Perhaps "Dynasty's" Carrington family could simply contribute a few of its millions to National Public Radio and the recurring financial crises would end. But that is no way to run a soap opera.

The public radio network that produces the award-winning daily news magazines "Morning Edition" and "All Things Considered" held its annual planning conference here this week and, inevitably, talk turned to NPR's annual budget crisis.

This year's crisis is not nearly so dire as that of two years ago, when years of mismanagement and dwindling government subsidy combined to plunge the 250-station radio network more than $7 million in debt.

This time, however, the continued health of NPR's two best-known programs might be at stake, about 700 conference delegates were told.

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting, which has been the chief NPR underwriter during the network's rocky 14-year history, has insisted that it does not plan to raise the network's annuity next year beyond what it gave last year. The barebones proposal that the corporation's 10-member board will vote on next month calls for a 1986 contribution to NPR of $11.3 million.

NPR's latest revised 1985 budget says it is actually getting more from the CPB this year: about $11.4 million.

NPR officials continue to hold out hope that the Corporation for Public Broadcasting will approve a $13.9 million grant; the amount that the network feels it must have to maintain current service and allow some expansion.

But if the agency follows through and approves only $11.3 million, NPR President Douglas J. Bennett told broadcasters the network will be able to do little more than produce its two best-known drive-time news shows; weekend drive-time news shows; weekend drive-time news shows; weekend drive-time news shows;

Programs about arts and musical performances, drama and special programming by, for and about women, minorities, the handicapped and other under-represented groups would probably have to be cut, he said.

"This company, in a news configuration, is two shows, and that's it," Bennett said. "The company will continue to erode on an $11.3 million budget."

He said that such a budget would offer no cost-of-living increase, would allow only limited training of new personnel and would close out NPR's engineering division altogether.

PG-13 Rating Introduced

A new rating category is in place as of July 1. This new category is inserted between the current PG and R ratings. It is designated as "PG-13: Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for attendance of children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children."

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- G: General Audiences, all ages admitted.
- PG: Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- PG-13: Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
- R: Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- X: No one under 17 admitted.

All films rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.
