Reagan hits the road to pitch tax crusade

By TERENCE HUNT
The Associated Press

OSHKOSH, Wis. — President Reagan, carrying his crusade for sweeping tax changes from Virginia's colonial capital to this mid-American manufacturing community, complained Thursday the current system is so unfair it encourages honest taxpayers to cheat. "It's time we rebelled," he declared.

In an apparent criticism of government tax audits, Reagan said that under the present law,

"decent citizens (are) called before the Internal Revenue Service to answer for their income and expenditures and show their papers and their proof in a drama that is as common as it is demeaning."

Reagan embarked on the first of a series of out-of-town appearances to marshal public support among working-class Americans for his package of lower tax rates for individuals and businesses and elimination of many deductions.

He traveled first to Williamsburg, Va., and then to Oshkosh. On Friday, the president will make an address in Malvern, Pa.

As Reagan climbed onto a stage constructed on the steps of the Winnebago County Courthouse here, three young women stripped off their T-shirts and sat bare-breasted on the shoulders of comrades in a group of about 50 demonstrators, waving signs in an apparent attempt to distract the audience of several thousand people.

"Naked Not Nuked," read a sign carried by one. Others said, "Quit Staring — Join Us" and "Our Emperor Has No Clothes." Signs carried by others protested U.S. policies in Central America, and one said, "Impeach the Bum."

The women put their shirts on after a few minutes, but the demonstrators chanted and heckled Reagan throughout this speech.

The president made no mention of the women's disrobing but, midway through his speech, made a crack about the noisy protesters. "I'm going to raise their taxes," Reagan joked, triggering a burst of applause from the largely friendly crowd.

Even as Reagan launched his sales campaign, the administration acknowledged it was prepared to accept compromises in the package as it moves through Congress.

"Obviously he prefers not to compromise very much at all; otherwise we would not have prepared such a detailed plan," said White House deputy press secretary Albert R. Brashear. He acknowledged, however, "there has to be some room for compromise."

Reagan, standing before Virginia's historic House of Burgesses, denounced the current tax code as "so rigged, so unfair, that it corrupts otherwise honest people by encouraging them to cheat."

"Thirty and 40 years ago, you didn't hear people brag at social get-togethers about how they got their tax bill down by exploiting this loophole and engineering that credit," Reagan said.

Delay called in vote review by task force

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A special House task force has delayed until at least early June consideration of the election contest lodged by defeated Idaho Republican Congressman George Hansen against Democrat Richard Stallings.

A spokesman for the House Administration Committee task force, headed by Congressman Jim Bates, D-Calif., said the meeting scheduled for Thursday was postponed because of scheduling conflicts involving task force members.

The spokesman said a new meeting date is being set up, possibly for June 7. Task force work on the Hansen-Stallings contest has been delayed for months because the committee was involved in resolving a disputed Indiana congressional race.

Hansen, who campaigned for an eighth term last summer under the cloud of a four-count felony conviction for falsifying financial disclosure statements, lost to Stallings by 170 votes out of more than 200,000 cast in the conservative southern Idaho district.

But the flamboyant conservative has claimed a number of irregularities, including possibly hundreds of invalid ballots, have so clouded the outcome of the race that a new election between the two should be held to determine a clear-cut winner.

State and local investigations of those claims have failed to turn up any evidence to substantiate the allegations. The Democratically controlled House also rejected Hansen's contentions in January when it agreed to seat Stallings, a Ricks College professor, subject to the findings of the special task force.

Measles fight on, strike back hard

By ROBERT BYRD
The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Three years after the predicted eradication date for measles, the once-common childhood disease is up 69 percent in this country compared with a year ago.

The national Centers for Disease Control said Thursday that 2,534 cases of measles were reported in the United States last year, compared with 1,497 in 1983.

News of measles resurgence comes less than seven years after then-Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph Califano announced an initiative designed to wipe out the disease in this country by 1982. No new target date has been announced.

"Although the number of reported measles cases in 1984 has increased from 1983, it is still far lower than the number in the prevaccine era," the CDC said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report.

Between 1950 and 1962, before widespread use of measles vaccine, an average of more than 525,000 cases were reported each year.

But efforts to wipe out the disease have been slowed by a significant number of preventable cases in people who should have been vaccinated against measles.

A CDC researcher said Thursday's report doesn't mean that the nation's goal of eliminating measles by vaccinating young people is unrealistic.

"Not necessarily," said Don Stenhouse, a CDC measles

Soviets mount biggest offensive of war

By BARRY RENFREW
The Associated Press

PESHAWAR, Pakistan — Soviet armored forces backed by scores of jets and helicopter gunships are smashing their way through sparsely armed Afghan resistance fighters and a larger force is readying a huge offensive to seal the Pakistani border, sources said Thursday.

A Soviet action that began in Kunar Province last week is the first stage of an offensive to close the frontier and block guerrilla convoys bringing in arms and weapons supplies, guerrilla officials and other sources told The Associated Press.

"It's a huge Soviet force, unusually large. It's turning into the biggest offensive of the war," said Professor Sayed Majrooh, head of the authoritative and politically independent Afghan Information Center, which monitors events inside the country.

More than 10,000 Soviet troops supported by hundreds of tanks and armored personnel carriers and backed by jet fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships have been thrown into the Kunar attack, according to Western diplomatic sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified further.

Western reporters are barred from Afghanistan and there is no way to confirm the reports independently.

The diplomatic sources said a second, larger, Soviet force is being concentrated in the Gardez area of Pakhtia Province and is expected to start a second offensive soon. Pakhtia, to the south of Kunar, is another main route for guerrilla convoys bringing in weapons, ammunition and supplies.

It appears that more than 25,000 Soviet troops may be committed to the battle, which would make it the biggest offensive of the war, Majrooh said. In past major offensives the Soviets have never used more than 12,000 troops, Majrooh said.

Large columns of Soviet tanks and troops have been moving out of the Afghan capital of Kabul in recent weeks, heading south and east towards the Pakistani border, the diplomatic sources said. The Soviet forces have also been concentrating large numbers of aircraft at Kabul airport and new encampments of troops and vehicles have appeared around the city, they said.

Soviet forces have been in Afghanistan since 1980, supporting the country's communist government. Western intelligence estimates there are 115,000 Soviet troops in Afghanistan fighting anti-communist Islamic guerrillas.

Guerrilla officials said Thursday their forces are taking heavy losses in the Kunar valley as Soviet aircraft bomb and rocket areas in front of their advancing armored forces.

British soccer teams unwelcome in Belgium after carnage

By RAF CASERT
The Associated Press

BRUSSELS, Belgium — British soccer teams will be barred from Belgium, a government spokesman said Thursday, and may be banished from all of Europe because of the bloody riot blamed on Liverpool fans at a championship game.

The official casualty toll in the Wednesday night melee before the European Cup final between Liverpool and an Italian team was 38 dead and 375 injured.

Most of the dead were Italians. Many were crushed to death by a brick retaining wall that collapsed when British fans broke down a barrier and charged into an Italian section of the stands.

Britain announced it would establish a fund for the victims of the riot.

A Belgian Interior Ministry spokesman, Andre Collard, said the government would call Friday to ban British teams.

Macho character of soccer brings history of violence

By ROBERT GLASS
The Associated Press

LONDON — Bloody rioting between British and Italian soccer fans that left 38 people dead writes a tragic new chapter in a long history of violence associated with soccer matches from China to South America.

Experts say the repeated outbursts of hooliganism are rooted in the tensions of modern society and the fierce nationalism and macho character of the world's most popular sport.

"It is hard to resist the conclusion that the game of soccer is now as good as dead," The Times of London said in an editorial Thursday. "It has been swamped, as though by a foul poison, by a persistent strain of criminal violence."

Both the Belgian government and the European Soccer Association have launched inquiries into Wednesday night's disaster at a European Cup of Champions match between Liverpool of England and Juventus of Turin, Italy at Heysel stadium in Brussels.

Clashes between Liverpool and Juventus supporters an hour before the cup final triggered a stampede. Most of the dead and 275 injured were trampled or crushed under a wall that collapsed under the weight of panicked fans.

• See VIOLENCE on Page A2

Britain's Independent Television broadcast film Thursday night of an Italian fan firing a gun at police during the rioting.

The film, played in slow motion, showed a man in a green jacket draw a pistol, point or fire it at police; apparently reload, take aim and fire again. A muzzle flash was clearly visible the second time. He faded into the crowd, then came out and appeared to fire again.

ITV said Belgian police confirmed that cartridge cases were found at the stadium after the game. It said the man with the gun was with Juventus supporters who attacked police from the perimeter of the playing field after the riot began.

A ban on British teams would eliminate some of the great powers of soccer from top international competition and add new embarrassment and shame to that already being expressed in Britain.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain expressed "horror and revulsion" at the behavior of Liverpool fans and said "the thugs who destroy football (soccer)" should be given stiff prison sentences. She said the British government would provide at least $300,000 to the victims.

Airlines add Boise flights

BOISE (AP) — The walkout by United Airlines pilots two weeks ago has prompted two airlines to add three flights to their Boise schedules.

Seattle-based Horizon Air has added two non-stop flights to San Francisco, and Frontier Airlines has scheduled a third flight to Denver.

Horizon's flights are temporary and will be discontinued when the United strike is settled. Horizon spokesman Jim Wright said, United is the major carrier serving the Boise-San Francisco route.

Frontier said its additional flight to Denver originally was planned to begin June 15, but the starting date was moved up because of the strike.

John Anderson, operations official for the Boise airport, said airlines have reported excessive overbooking by passengers since the strike began.

Shippys await reunion

NEW PLYMOUTH (AP) — A New Plymouth couple jailed for three weeks after refusing to give their children an approved education waited on Thursday for the return of two daughters placed in foster care, but as the night wore on, the children and their parents still had not been reunited.

"I can't figure it out," Sam Shippy said of the whereabouts of Samantha, 8, and Sheri, 14. "It seems awful odd that they'd be this late."

Shippy said a law official was to transport the girls from New Plymouth to the Shippys rural home nine miles away.

On Wednesday, Sam and Marquita Shippy's four sons taken away in a court-ordered, 4½-month separation were returned to the family residence. The girls were to be returned a day later because a day remained in their school calendar.

'Ecstasy' drug to be banned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Drug Enforcement Administration will make "Ecstasy" — the drug MDMA — illegal under an emergency ban effective July 1, a DEA source said Thursday.

MDMA has been used by some psychotherapists who maintain it creates a feeling of well-being in patients, making them more receptive to treatment.

The DEA source, speaking only if not identified by name, said the agency will announce the ban at a news conference Friday.

DEA Acting Administrator John C. Lawn on Tuesday signed an order placing the drug under what is known as Schedule I of the Controlled Substances Act, said another source, also insisting on anonymity.

Schedule I contains the most dangerous drugs, such as heroin.

Man, 85, fights extradition

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Attorneys for a man accused of thousands of Nazi war murders filed an appeal Thursday citing 27 reasons to reverse a magistrate's order to extradite him to Yugoslavia, where he would face 7,000 murder charges.

Among their key points was that Arndtja Artukovic, 85, is senile, half-blind and incompetent to understand and participate in the proceedings against him.

Lawyers Gary Fleischman and Michael Dacquist, in the papers in U.S. District Court, said numerous facts surrounding Artukovic's alleged role in executions during World War II remain in dispute. The only person who could clarify the matters, they argued, was Artukovic.

Protestors heckle chief

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Demonstrators screamed "Nazi" and "fascist" at West Germany's president Thursday as he arrived on a goodwill visit, and police said 42 people were arrested for disturbing the peace.

President Richard von Weizsaecker, the first West German head of state to the Netherlands since 1989, was heckled as he rode in a ceremonial coach from Amsterdam's central train station. He had been greeted there by Queen Beatrix and her husband, German-born Prince Claus.

Scattered clashes broke out in the city's Dam Square after the president and queen arrived in their gilded coach, followed by a mounted guard of honor.

Police spokesman Leo Detering said some of those arrested along the half-mile route of the procession were carrying stones and containers of paint.

specialist. "We just need to concentrate on the individuals who have not received the vaccine."

If preschool and school-age Americans get their vaccinations as they should, "we feel we certainly can eliminate indigenous measles within the next year or so," he said.

A total of 874 cases, or 34 percent, last year were classified as preventable — occurring in someone between 16 months and 29 years old and without measles immunity or a valid reason not to be immunized.

CDC researchers say children under 16 months are too young to be vaccinated effectively, people born before 1956 are assumed to have natural immunity and are not targeted for vaccination, and some people have religious or health reasons why they should not be vaccinated.

Of the cases reported last year, 679, or 27 percent, occurred in children 10-14 years old. Another 650 cases, or 26 percent, were in Americans 15-19.

School-aged children still comprise the majority of preventable cases," the CDC said. "Further efforts need to be directed at ensuring that all children covered by state, school immunization laws are adequately immunized."

A total of 622 measles cases, or 25 percent, occurred in children under 5, and 309, or 12 percent, were in people over 19. "Persons who are younger or older represent a more complex problem," the CDC said.

The CDC said 992 cases occurred in people who were believed to be adequately vaccinated. That, Stenhouse said, is to be expected; the vaccine is about 90 percent effective.

But if the measles-age population is fully vaccinated, those people whose vaccines did not take effect will not be exposed to the disease, he said.

"We have run into more problems now because of group exposures in school settings," particularly in colleges, Stenhouse said.

"I feel it was not quite enough just to send a message of sympathy," Mrs. Thatcher said in an interview Thursday night on Italian television. "I felt that everyone in Britain would like the government to make a contribution on their behalf, as an initial contribution, as a way of saying that we feel strongly about it."

The Rome prosecutor's office said Italian officials had begun an investigation that could lead to criminal charges against the rioting British fans.

In Turin, home of the Italian team, Juventus, young demonstrators burned British flags Thursday and marched on the British trade center. Dozens of riot policemen kept them away.

The Turin newspaper Stampa Sera devoted six pages to the riot.

"Killers at the Stadium" its headline proclaimed, and an editorial said, "British hooligans are killing soccer and the fans."

About 100 people still were hospitalized Thursday, with 10 reported in critical condition.

King Baudouin and Queen Fabiola visited the injured in hospitals. Queen Elizabeth II of Britain sent them a message expressing grief over "the shocking events in Brussels yesterday evening."

An official list of the 38 dead contained names of 28 Italians, four Belgians, a Frenchman and a Briton. Four victims had not been identified. Early Thursday, a Belgian soccer official had said 41 people were killed and police reported 40 deaths.

Georges, head of the soccer union, contended that Belgian police were too thinly spread among the stadium crowd of 55,000. "In an access tunnel where we asked for 50 or 60 police there were only four or five," he said.

Interior Minister Charles-Ferdinand Nohomb, who is in charge of police, said full precautions had been taken, but the timing and scale of the disaster were unprecedented.

stricken spectators.

Official inquiries will attempt to determine who started the mayhem, whether policing was adequate and what can be done to prevent future occurrences of violence.

Jacques Van Rillaer, a specialist in sports psychology at Belgium's Catholic University of Louvain, told the Belgian newspaper La Libre Belgique that soccer plays the role of the pre-World War II carnival in the modern world, during which all behavior is tolerated and strong tensions develop.

He said spectators can get caught up in the emotion of a crowd and act as though they were different people. In addition, he said, studies have shown that noise in sports stadiums heightens emotions.

Dr. George Gaskell, a social psychologist at London's School of Economics, noted in an interview that soccer is popular in urban areas, which are most affected by unemployment, crime and lack of opportunity.

He said soccer provides "a sort of identity, a source of group pride for these largely deprived people."

"It reflects the tradition of the working class — the virtues of manliness, standing up for your rights, not turning away like a coward."

TWIN FALLS — The Times-News incorrectly reported Thursday that $300 in cash was stolen from the Taco Time Restaurant at 639 Blue Lake Blvd. N. in a burglary last weekend.

According to restaurant manager Randy Hall, no cash was taken. A briefcase and its contents valued at $300 were stolen.

IRS ahead of '84 but delays costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time this year, the Internal Revenue Service is ahead of its 1984 pace in processing tax returns, but it will have to pay interest to hundreds of thousands of taxpayers whose refund checks have been delayed.

Through May 23, the latest figures available, the IRS had received 95.9 million individual returns and processed 76.5 million. At the same time a year ago, 76.1 million of 92.6 million returns received had been processed. The number of returns received is up 3.5 percent this year and processing is up 0.5 percent.

Because of computer problems that plagued the IRS service centers in the first four months of the year, the number of refunds processed still lags behind the 1984 pace. More than 64.1 million refunds have been certified this year, down 1.4 percent from a year ago. Those refunds total $22.3 billion, compared with $23.3 billion last year. The average refund this year is $325, up almost $21.

Interest must be paid on any refund not dated by Thursday if the tax return was filed by the April 15 deadline. Interest is now at 13 percent a year from April 15, compounded daily.

No one at the agency will venture a guess as to how many refunds will earn interest this year and what that will cost the government.

'Consistent' with Soviet attempts

Weinberger flays 'Star Wars' enemies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger on Thursday denounced a proposed $1.3 billion cut by the House in the Pentagon's "Star Wars" research project, saying the action was "rather consistent" with Soviet attempts to kill the program.

Speaking at a news conference, he called the House cuts "very, very deep," and said they would reduce the Defense Department's ability to determine quickly whether President Reagan's call for revolutionary defenses against missiles is feasible.

"One of the things that most disturbs me is it would have the effect of slowing, in a very marked way, research into this program, and would be rather consistent with some of the things the Soviet negotiators have insisted upon," Weinberger said of the House reduction.

In talks on strategic, medium-range and space weapons that began in Geneva earlier this year, the Soviets have demanded that the United States halt the $26 billion, five-year Star Wars research effort before they will agree to the Reagan administration's requested reduction in offensive weapons.

At a Moscow dinner on Wednesday, Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev said developing a defensive system through research such as the Star Wars program would lead to "the scrapping of every prospect for an end to the arms race."

Weinberger said the administration would forge ahead with the program and suggested that a slowing of Star Wars research by Congress would in effect give the Soviets what they want.

"What they (the Soviets) would like would be to stop research completely or slow it down, so we wouldn't work on anything effective," Weinberger said.

Reagan's request for $3.7 billion in Strategic Defense Initiative funds for the coming fiscal year was cut to $2.4 billion in the House version of the Pentagon spending bill and would be set at $2.7 billion in the Senate's bill.

CASPAR WEINBERGER Denounces funding plan

NRC approves full operation of Palo Verde's first reactor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission on Thursday unanimously approved full-power operation of the first reactor in what will be the nation's largest nuclear power plant.

The five commissioners and executives of Arizona Public Service Co. traded compliments before the vote on their handling of the Palo Verde plant 50 miles west of Phoenix.

The facility has been relatively free of major trouble in an industry beset on some projects by well-publicized, interminable construction delays, huge cost overruns, shaky quality control and several cancellations.

The vote came one day after the commission approved restraining the undamaged reactor at the Three Mile Island plant in Pennsylvania, the site in 1979 of the nation's worst commercial nuclear plant accident.

The first unit of Palo Verde, built and operated by Arizona Public Service Co. for a consortium of utilities in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California, is coming in two years behind schedule from the 1976 ground-breaking and, at $5.9 billion, a little over double the cost projected in 1974. This is about 15 percent below the average of plants completed in the 1980s.

The 1,270-megawatt pressurized water reactor supplied by Combustion Engineering Corp. is the first of what the commission hopes will be a standard design from the company that utilities can order, in effect, out of supplier catalogs.

All the other 92 reactors — four still undergoing low-power tests — have been custom built, which drives up construction costs and requires detailed and time-consuming examination by federal regulators.

Palo Verde was issued a testing license Dec. 31 allowing operation at 5 percent of full power. The reactor achieved its first chain reaction last Saturday.

After the full-power license approved Thursday is issued, expected in the next day or two, power output will rise in steps to 80 percent of capacity in October and full power by the end of the year, said Keith Turley,

3 Frustaci babies getting stronger

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — Three of the five surviving Frustaci septuplets improved and the others' conditions remained unchanged Thursday, as their mother spent her first full day out of the hospital in two months, a hospital official said.

All five babies, born prematurely May 21, remained on respirators and in critical condition due to hyaline membrane disease, an inability to produce a substance that keeps the lungs from collapsing, said

Laura Johnson, a spokeswoman for Children's Hospital of Orange County.

Infants Patricia Ann, Stephen Earl and Richard Charles were steadily improving, and the two more seriously ill babies, Bonnie Marie and James Martin, were holding their own, she said.

Their mother, Patricia Frustaci, was discharged from St. Joseph Hospital Wednesday, and is staying at her parents' house in nearby Tustin so she can visit the babies.

One of the septuplets was stillborn; the other six weighed from 1 pound, 1 ounce to 1 pound, 13 ounces at birth. The smallest, nicknamed "Peanut," died Friday.

Doctors have said the infants probably will be released in mid-August.

Reagan tax proposal is not simplification

It's very interesting that tax plan of President Reagan's — but it's not simplification. Paying taxes under the president's plan would be simpler for some people, particularly those at the low end of the income scale who would not be required to file returns. But the tax code itself would emerge hardly less complex than ever.

The president has proposed many important improvements that would end shelters and the artificially rapid depreciation that underlies many of them. But closing the shelters and imposing minimum taxes, as the president's plan intends, would not raise much money.

In contrast, the personal-income-tax-rate reductions and expanded personal exemptions in Reagan's plan would be enormously expensive.

To keep this legislation from turning into a gigantic tax cut, the president has asked Congress to end the deduction for state and local taxes.

The effect would be to shift the burden of taxation in this country, by a significant degree, away from the federal government and more heavily onto state and local governments.

Most people do not think of the deduction for the real-estate taxes on their homes, for example, as a tax shelter. This change will be more hotly contested than any other in this legislation.

But it raises a lot of money — and without it, there is no way to finance the lower tax rates that Reagan is promising.

Perhaps Reagan is trying to harness some of those emotions, evoking public resentment against the present tax system — "unwise, unwarranted and unfair," as he called it Tuesday night.

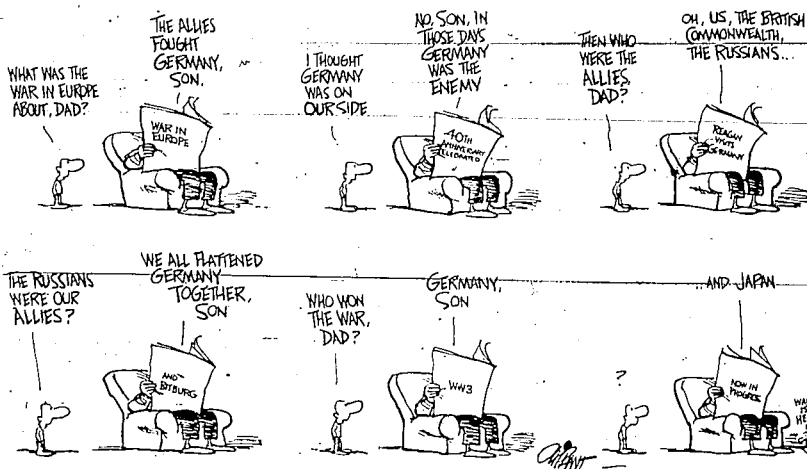

He proposes a modest shift of taxation from individuals to corporations, and any good populist would applaud that. But among individual taxpayers, the fewest benefits would go to the people in the middle of the income ladder. The most substantial advantages would go to the people with the most substantial incomes, as the top rate came down from the present 50 percent to 35 percent.

Reagan enthusiastically offers an appealing vision of a country prospering under low taxes, in which everyone has an open invitation to grow wealthy.

But there's not much relationship between high economic growth and the tax rates. The most recent example of a sustained boom, in the early and middle 1960s, began at a time when the maximum effective rate was 87 percent.

Later in that period it was cut to 70 percent, which did not prevent the boom from ending — as all booms must.

The case for dropping the top rate below 50 percent now is anything but clear. But cutting the tax rates, not simplification, seems to be the central purpose of this enterprise as it is developing. —The Washington Post

Hatch amendment helps child privacy

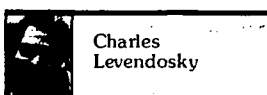

There are two Hatch amendments. Both are causing a great deal of confusion and anxiety among teachers, parents of school-age children, and defenders of the First Amendment. The first Hatch Amendment became both a symbolic and actual battleground between public school educators and the radical religious right.

In 1978, Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) added an amendment to the Federal General Education Provisions Act to protect the privacy of students in public schools. The amendment is sometimes referred to as the Protection of Pupil Rights Act.

The Hatch Amendment itself seems straight forward. It protects students from unwarranted psychological testing, or psychiatric examination while in classroom setting, where the primary purpose of such an examination is to reveal political affiliations, psychological problems, sexual attitudes, and social behavior, criticism of family or friends of family, and family income.

Further, the amendment gives parents the right to examine material used in any federally funded research or experimentation "program designed to explore or develop new or unproven teaching methods or techniques."

Most educators have no difficulty with the amendment. Teachers and principals welcome parents into the schools for visits, encourage them to read the materials their children are assigned. Public education is meant to be just that, public. And most educators are just as committed to the rights and privacy of their students. The Hatch Amendment didn't cause a stir, but the regulations have caused a small tempest.

Critics of the regulations contend that they are broader in application than a strict reading of the Hatch Amendment would allow. Whatever the reality of these criticisms, the regulations quickly became a polarizing lens for the views of the radical religious right and the National Education Association.

One of the regulations which troubles both the NEA and the National School Boards Association is the process which was set up for filing complaints of alleged violations of provisions of the Hatch Amendment. A parent or legal guardian may complain to a school principal, or school board, once, then send a written complaint directly to the federal government.

The Department of Education regulations for the Hatch Amendment does not require that parents exhaust all means of redress from the alleged violations at a local level. A complaint has only to show that an attempt was made to solve the problem locally. The federal government can be called into the community school setting almost immediately, with the implied threat of losing federal funds.

This threat can have a chilling effect on local schools and school boards. Although to date only five complaints have been filed, the Privacy Act Office has received volumes of mail requesting information about how to file a complaint.

The chilling effect also worries First Amendment rights advocates. Cautious school boards have difficulty meeting the challenges of a changing society, and further, cautious school boards may begin to limit teachers' rights to teach, children's rights to know, and the public's right to have schools which are arenas for the exchange of ideas.

The immediate effect of the Department of Education's Hatch Amendment regulations was a nationwide mailing from Phyllis Schlafly's Eagle Forum and from the Maryland Coalition of Concerned Parents. The mailing is identical.

The form letter claims the Hatch Amendment regulations mandate by law that parents must give written consent before their children can be taught anything about organic evolution, nuclear war or nuclear policy, one-world government, imagery, feeling, roles of males and females in society, suicide and violence in our society, drug and alcohol dependence.

The list is really the radical religious right's agenda. It is a list of their prohibitions. They do not want Darwin's theory of evolution taught, so they see the Hatch Amendment as a way to stop such teaching. They have no legal ground for their case, none whatsoever.

In fact, Eagle Forum recently sent out a memo requesting that the form letter be dropped from use. Obviously, some local groups have not received the memo, for the battle rages on at local school board level.

While there may be problems with the regulations implementing the first Hatch Amendment, the intent of the act was to protect the privacy of children. Any use of the act to hammer ideology into a weapon against public education must be blamed on those who do the hammering. The first Hatch Amendment is ideologically neutral.

Letters Anderson has new "Mr. Clean" image

Disagrees with Goodman

I often read Ellen Goodman's writings on our Times-News opinion page. I rarely agree with her well written liberal viewpoint and I strongly disagree with her pro-choice philosophy conveyed in Friday's paper.

Ms. Goodman is correct in her assumption that the personal stories of those women who have chosen abortion and feel justified in doing so "will not change the hearts and minds of anti-abortion people." She asks the question "Why should a fetus be given a voice, even a scream, while the woman in whose body it resides has no voice at all?"

The question before us is not which voice we will hear. The question we must answer is do we have the right to take another human beings life?

Do we make exceptions to our belief in the value of human life because "a woman is a recent college graduate" and an unwanted pregnancy will dim her "rosy future"? Let us suppose our graduate has an aging mother she is suddenly called upon to care for.

If she is not willing to find care for her, even parttime, because of the financial burden and does not want to relinquish her to another's care because of the painful emotions involved then may she exercise her "choice" and simply have her eliminated? Not the same thing? I believe it is. What about Ms. Goodman's example of the married mother of a four month old baby with a surprise pregnancy to deal with? Is it okay for the mother to have her new baby killed because of the possible stress, inconvenience, financial reason, or what ever? If you believe she has the right to make this choice then which one should she get rid of? Maybe the new life will be a more desirable sex or have a better temperament. "Pro-choice" is what we are talking about folks. We either value human life or we do not. If you still have Friday's paper please read Ms. Goodman's editorial for yourself and fill in the mis-ing blanks of the other examples she offers of justifying the taking of a life. "I would have been a young welfare mother." "I was 14." "I was 44." "My boyfriend wouldn't marry me." Abortion is not the simple solution to any of these situations. It is not even the easy way out as many women who have had abortions and live with the regrets are testifying.

A "right to life" attitude is growing and our strength of conviction, our teachings of the facts and our desire to help women find an alternative to abortion is threatening the disrespect for life pro-choice offers. We do not condone terrorist-like individuals who destroy, or hateful individuals who point fingers and condemn. We seek protection for our unborn and peace for those mothers, daughters, sisters, friends who still struggle with the burden of grief for a choice they made against life.

He's scarier than Stallings

I have been reading Sen. Larry Anderson's letters berating Representative Stallings voting record. There is still a two-party system in this country and Richard Stallings, a sincere, honest man is voting with his party and with his conscience. He was not elected to go to Washington, D.C. to be a rubber stamp to Senators McClure, Symms and Representative Craig.

Mr. Anderson, now the ultra-conservative, has traded his rock band image, head band, leather jacket and pants, plus the suggestive, vulgar songs in for a Mr. Clean image.

I ask you which man is the most scary, a former professor with a highly respectable background or a chameleon, from a loose life style, who changes into a state senator with a three piece suit. Also who uses his political clout for his personal use.

I ask you again, which man is the most scary?

United States a bully

Once upon a time there was a little girl who had everything a child could want. She would take her toys to a friend, neighbor and insist on sharing it with her. If the child refused, wanting to play with her own toy, the little girl would offer the child a cookie. You see, she thought that a cookie would sell everyone her point of view. If the friend still resisted her generous and peaceful offer, she bashed the child over the head with the toy.

I fear that my/or generous, peace-loving wealthy youngster-country is at the same level of development. I know that we have a toy-factory, second to none, which you and I are stockholders in (called research and development) that develops only one kind of toy with many new and exciting variations. Also, I know that we are insisting on sharing these toys with our friends-neighbors-client states (new label) who are increasingly indicating that they don't want to play with us, or they accept our cookies so as not to be bashed over the head.

Support for local teachers

I have recently heard some disparaging remarks about our school teachers in Twin Falls. One claim has been made that teachers spend too much time contending for salary increases, rather than devoting that time to teaching. It is understandable that the public would get such an impression, considering what we read and hear from the news media. However, as a former teacher in the Twin Falls school system, I know many of the teachers quite well and the claim against them is unfair. Of those I know, all are hard-working teachers who are dedicated to the task of providing excellence in education for our children. They do not use class time for inappropriate activities.

Another claim has been made that the teachers' morale is very low. I contest that claim. A breakdown of morale indicates a loss of sense of purpose and usefulness, with an attendant deterioration in work performance. Again, of those I know, all have a solid sense of purpose, usefulness and work performance? It is strong. Not only do they conduct their day-to-day classes with high professional ethics, but they spend countless hours in the evenings and on weekends preparing lessons to be presented and evaluating individual student performances. Low-morale? Hardly.

I do have a word for the school board. I have heard that the board is giving consideration to resuming the system of payroll deductions as a means of collecting dues for the teachers union. At a time when we are trying to pare tax costs wherever possible, we should not be providing tax-supported clerical support for such a purpose. Additionally, such action by the board has, in the past, been construed as tacit coercion to join the union. And some of the teachers I have talked to do not want to join the union.

Thanks from Elks Hospital

This letter has a two-fold purpose. First is to thank the generous businesses of the Magic Valley for their contributions to the Annual Food Caravan to the Idaho Elks Rehabilitation Hospital in Boise on May 18, 1985. The following businesses contributed either food items or materials to the 1985 food caravan: Idaho Food Products; Henningson Cold Storage; South Side Bean Company; Green Giant, Buhl; Independent Meat; Twin Falls Truck and Equipment; Campbell Company of Idaho, Kimberly; Hance Seed; Triangel-Young's Dairy; Coca Cola; Keegan, Incorporated; Swensons; West Addison; Safeway; Nings; Albertsons; Huggins; Burrey's Food Store; Smith's Food King; Payless Drug; Pet Milk, Jerome.

These charitable-minded businesses helped the Twin Falls Elks Lodge raise in excess of $9,000 for the food caravan.

The second reason for this letter is to remind the public of the services offered by the Idaho Elks Rehabilitation Hospital. The patient care offered includes a comprehensive stroke "rehab" program and spinal cord injury with emphasis on mobility, self-care, activities of daily life and social/vocational function. Other services include emphasis on sports or work injuries, speech and hearing difficulties, and a special program geared to work with the physical, emotional and social adjustment of children. The hospital logged 15,549 patient days with an average length of stay of 26 days. Admission to the hospital generally requires only a doctors referral. For further information please contact either of the following: Idaho Elks Rehabilitation Hospital, P.O. Box 1100, Boise, Idaho 83701 or Twin Falls Elks Lodge #1183, P.O. Box 226, Twin Falls, Idaho 83403.

In conclusion, thanks again to the above businesses. The Twin Falls Elks Lodge looks forward to continuing our charitable and youth activities and to serving the community in whatever capacity we are called upon to do.

Bob Hope kisses his likeness at the dedication of a new USO center

Bob Hope dedicates USO center

WASHINGTON (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope, hailed for entertaining U.S. troops overseas for 42 years, dedicated the new headquarters of the United Service Organizations here Thursday with a string of quips and a salute to the USO as "a symbol of those who care about those who guard our freedom."

As the U.S. Army Band played Hope's theme song,

"Thanks for the Memories," Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger relayed President Reagan's thanks to Hope for recognizing that "it's the morale and spirit of our fighting men that helps us keep the peace through strength."

During a ceremony outside the new "Bob Hope USO Building," Hope drew laughs from his audience — which also included Attorney General Edwin Meese III and former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird — with a series of his trademark one-liners.

He said that during his travels for the USO, beginning at March Field, Calif., in March 1941 and ending with a Christmas show for the U.S. 6th Fleet off the Lebanese coast in 1983, he ate box lunches, endured malaria shots and "learned how to say Kaopeetate in seven languages."

Soul singer James Brown's country estate sells for a song

AIKEN, S.C. (AP) — Soul singer James Brown's country estate at Beech Island was sold at a public auction Thursday for $9,500 to pay back taxes, Internal Revenue Service officials said.

Georgia attorney Albert Dallas bought the 40-acre ranch, including a 3,500-square-foot house, swimming pool and bathhouse, two-car garage, kennel and outbuilding, said Mike Quinn, a spokesman with the IRS office in Columbia.

Dallas was one of two bidders who showed up for the auction at the Aiken County Courthouse, Quinn said. A handful of people watched, he said.

Brown did not attend. Dallas assumed any liens on the house and property with the purchase, Quinn said.

Garlic, sun made 'werewolves' illness worse

LOS ANGELES (AP) — People who once were shunned as vampires or werewolves may actually have been afflicted by a rare disease that is aggravated by sunlight and garlic, and leaves its victims with prominent teeth, hairy faces and pain, a chemist reported Thursday.

"When you suffer from this disease (porphyria) and you go out in the sunshine, you get badly disfigured. Just awful loss of skin, and your nose can fall off," said David Dolphin, a chemistry professor at the University of British Columbia.

"All sorts of nasty damage occurs," he added. "Fingers can fall off. It looks like you have paws instead of hands. Although your teeth get no larger, your lips and gums get very taut so your teeth are more prominent. To cap all of this, the people who suffer from this form of the disease become hairy."

St. Helen's dome shows molten rock

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Scientists flew into Mount St. Helens' gaping crater Thursday and spotted fresh molten rock on the volcano's towering lava dome, indicating an eruption predicted for nearly a week has begun.

There was no sign of any explosive activity, but Steve Brantley of the U.S. Geological Survey said the apparent start of a quiet, "dome-building" eruption does not preclude explosions.

The new lava flow was the first at the southwest Washington volcano in eight months, since a quiet oozing of lava on Sept. 10, 1984. That quiet spell had been the longest since the mountain stirred to life in March 1980.

Brantley cautioned that the pattern of the mountain's current activity is different from previous dome-building eruptions, and scientists were making no predictions about what would happen next.

"About 8:45 a.m., a crew did a fly through the crater around the lava dome, and reported a small lava flow, or lobe, on the southeast portion of the dome," Brantley said.

The flow apparently was relatively small compared with previous dome-building incidents at the 9,364-foot mountain. Observers estimated the new flow at fewer than 300 feet in diameter, compared with lobes of up to 1,000 feet in diameter in previous eruptions, he said.

The lava dome is about 2,700 feet in diameter. The crater walls tower some 1,200 feet higher than the 6,000-foot-high pile of rock.

Thursday's sighting was the first time scientists had observed a new flow on the dome since an eruption alert was issued Saturday. Monday was the last time officials were able to observe the dome inside the typically cloud-shrouded crater.

Seismic activity, meanwhile, continued at "extremely high levels" with numerous earthquakes, about a half-mile deep, registering as high as 2.5 on the Richter scale of ground motion, Brantley said — "so the possibility of small-to-moderate-sized explosions has not been reduced."

Special minority job register suggested

BOISE (AP) — Former Transportation Department Director Darrell Manning today urged a joint legislative committee to consider special steps that would facilitate minority hiring for state government jobs.

"It's virtually impossible to hire minorities under the present system," Manning told the House-Senate committee reviewing state personnel policies.

He specifically cited testing procedures which often place minority applicants like Hispanics at a disadvantage in trying to score high enough on job registers to gain final consideration for employment.

"They have a language problem," he said, "in many cases, English is their second language, and the tests are written in western American vernacular," which is often difficult for them to fully comprehend.

"Manning, who became Idaho's adjutant general earlier this year, suggested that to solve the problem, the state may have to create a special job register for minorities that would insure their consideration when employment opportunities open up.

State Tax Commission Chairman Larry Loney also suggested that the panel consider expanding the current requirement that only the top five applicants based on test scores be considered for a job. Increasing that number would give agency managers a greater chance of having minority applications before them.

Wilberg Mine crews stalled again

ORANGEVILLE, Utah (AP) — Seeds around suspected hot spots inside the Wilberg Mine will have to be fortified before crews dare to advance again toward the bodies of 27 coal miners killed in a December fire, an Emery Mining Corp. spokesman said Thursday.

"It looks as though it will be next week before the crews are able to advance deeper into the mine and determine the extent of fire damage," said Bob Henrie, whose company manages the mine for Utah Power & Light Co.

Increased levels of carbon monoxide were discovered in the central Utah mine's 1st North tunnel Wednesday, forcing a halt to progress toward recovering the bodies of 26 men and one woman, who were trapped when the fire broke out Dec. 19.

Henrie said two or three areas where coals still may be hot are thought to be causing the concentrations of deadly gas. Those spots must be isolated by building new seals around them and tightening existing seals to cut off as much oxygen as possible, he said.

The smoldering is believed to be occurring in two of 1st North's six passages, the fire's route through the mine.

Defense rests in abuse case

BOISE (AP) — The defense rested its case Thursday afternoon in the U.S. District Court trial on allegations of unconstitutional conditions and abuse of students at the Idaho Youth Services Center in St. Anthony.

Kase Bowman, director of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, wrapped up the eighth day of testimony in Boise by bolstering the state's position that no federal court order is needed to ensure future compliance with constitutional standards at the facility.

Judge Ray McNichols set closing arguments for Friday morning at 10 a.m.

U.S.- Soviet arms parleys resume

MAX KEMPELMAN
Chief U.S. Negotiator

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms talks resumed Thursday, after a five-week recess, with a meeting that lasted nearly two hours. The U.S. delegation said the next session would not be announced in advance.

No details of Thursday's negotiations were released, in keeping with the confidentiality rule to which both sides have agreed.

All 42 members of the two delegations attended the meeting. The three principal negotiators on each side are led by Max M. Kampelman of the United States and Victor P. Karpov.

The American statement after the talks said only that the meeting lasted one hour and 30 minutes. Unlike U.S. statements in the first round, it did not provide information on the next session.

"We've decided to announce that after they've taken place," American spokesman Terry J. Shroeder told The Associated Press by telephone. He would not give a reason.

A woman answering the phone at the Soviet mission said the spokesman was unavailable until Friday.

This round is expected to involve meetings of three negotiating subgroups, as did the first. Sources close to the negotiations said it, too, would last six weeks, but no official announcement was made.

In the pattern of the first round the space and defense subgroup, led by Kampelman and Yuri A. Kvitsinsky, met on Tuesdays; the strategic nuclear weapons group, headed by John G. Tower and Karpov, met on Wednesdays.

Killer storm warnings were ignored

URIR CHAR, Bangladesh (AP) — The president of Bangladesh said Thursday that probably more than 10,000 people died May 24-25 in a huge storm in the Bay of Bengal despite warnings that the cyclone was coming.

President Hussain M. Ershad said the government gave adequate warnings, but the people ignored the warnings and clung to their land.

The warning was there. But they didn't want to leave. They had their chickens, their homes," said Ershad, the martial-law ruler since 1982.

Ershad spoke with reporters on a tour of this island, which was most severely hit by the cyclone.

Winds and tidal waves raked Urir Char and other islands in the bay and a 60-mile stretch of Bangladesh's southern coastline.

The government and the Red Cross said it warned islanders of the coming storm through radio broadcasts and through volunteers on the islands. The islanders were advised to seek higher ground and shelter.

The first government warning came over Radio Bangladesh Thursday afternoon. It was repeated every half an hour over radio and television. The cyclone — as hurricanes in the Indian Ocean are called — first hit the coastal district and offshore islands around midnight Friday.

Some survivors said they decided to stay put because many previous warnings turned out to be false alarms. Many others said they heard no warnings at all.

An official in Dhaka, the capital, said Ershad planned to spend the night among the survivors and would sleep in a common army tent.

Game promoter draws 8 grand theft counts

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

HAILEY — A Twin Falls man who sold board-space for "The Game of Sun Valley" earlier this year has been charged with eight counts of grand theft in Blaine County.

An arrest warrant for Curtis Elwood Johnson was issued May 20 by Fifth District Judge Douglas D. Kramer after Johnson failed to issue the game or refund the money he took from eight businesses in the county.

Authorities have not arrested Johnson yet, but are making efforts to do so, says Prosecutor Keith Roark, who investigated the complaints from the businesses.

Roark says his office has been in touch with Johnson, but he does not know what Johnson will do about the charges.

"I really can't say right now where he is or what he intends to do," Roark says.

Asked if Johnson was cooperating with his office, Roark replied, "That depends entirely on your definition of cooperation." He would not elaborate.

Johnson is charged with selling advertising space on a game board similar to that of "Monopoly" to the Blaine County businesses for $350 to $450 each in cash or services in January and February.

At the time, he told the businesses the game would come out in March 1985, or he would refund their money. The game was not issued and the businesses did not receive a refund from Johnson.

When he sold the spaces, Johnson told the businesses some of the profits would go to charities, including the Vietnam Veterans Association. He said he was president of the Twin Falls chapter of the VVA.

However, it was found that there is not a VVA chapter in Twin Falls, and Johnson was not authorized to use the organization's name.

Johnson raised nearly $3,000 in cash in Blaine County and accepted some services for advertisements, a motel room and car rental. He admitted to a Blaine County investigator that he does not know how the money he collected in Blaine County was spent, according to court documents.

In Twin Falls, Johnson collected about $20,000 from businesses to have their names placed on the game board.

He spent about half the money to have the game printed and distributed. Johnson had promised to give donations to many Twin Falls charities from the money he raised. But, he has not made good on those promises.

The Blaine County businesses listed in the criminal complaint are: White Cloud Properties Inc., Sun Valley; Peterson's Jewelry Store, Ketchum; Wood River Steam Cleaners, Hailey; Ketchum Wine Market, Ketchum; Lynndee's Bakery, Ketchum; KSKI Radio, Hailey; Chapter One Book Store, Ketchum; and Rent-A-Dent, a Bellevue car rental.

A Ketchum motel, the Ketchum Korral, traded space on the board and 10 games toward Johnson's bill of $1,300.00 for nearly one-month's room rent while Johnson was in Blaine County, says the motel's manager, Joanna McPherson.

McPherson says she complained to Roark's office about the money Johnson owed, but the prosecutor declined to press charges because McPherson had accepted an unsigned check as credit from Johnson for the amount owed.

Johnson gave the motel a $100 deposit when he first rented his room and sent McPherson another $200 after she filed her complaint with the prosecutor, she says.

McPherson says she has since filed a claim in small claims court for the remaining $1,000.00 that she says Johnson owes her.

After the Blaine County businesses began making complaints to Roark's office, Johnson wrote each a letter saying he would make good on his debts and blaming the publicity about his venture for not being able to issue the game.

CSI bond proposal in making

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho president Gerald Meyerhoeffer says he is planning to form an advisory group to help him decide whether or how to seek a bond for part of the cost of a joint CSI-University of Idaho agriculture.

"The building is an important thing," he said. The advisory group will help him to touch the pulse of the valley, he said.

The bond issue would probably be timed to coincide with the retirement of the college's original construction debt two years from now, he said. The original bond was a 20-year note.

Meyerhoeffer met with UI officials in Moscow last week to discuss the proposed building and to discuss sharing teachers between the two schools.

He says the agriculture teaching position vacated when Herschel Boydston resigned six months ago will likely be filled with a person with animal science expertise.

"We were looking at what we might do in a programmatic area, we have some areas of expertise in that area," Meyerhoeffer said.

He said the two schools will get together after the advisory group is formed and will discuss legislative strategy to help sell the building plan to the Legislature.

Meyerhoeffer says agriculture-related businesses will be asked for contributions to the building project as well.

'Davy Crockett'

"Davy Crockett" by the Poppewell Elementary fifth grade in Buhl. Fink is a riverboatman who likes to boast about his abilities. The musical, which opened Thursday night, will also be performed at the school tonight at 7:30.

Lawsuit is filed over fire

BUHL — The daughters of a man who died in an Aug. 22, 1984, fire in Buhl has sued the owners of the building in which he lived, claiming it was substandard.

Faye Stevens and Ruth and Veda Bradetich, no addresses available, filed suit Tuesday in Fifth District Court in Twin Falls. Named as defendants are Tom and Gloria Fleming of Buhl.

The plaintiffs are the daughters of 78-year-old Walter L. Roberts, who had resided in an apartment above the Sport Shop Cafe in a two-story building on the corner of Main Street and Broadway Avenue in Buhl.

The plaintiffs claim that a fire during the early morning hours of Aug. 22 caused the death of Roberts whose body was found in the doorway of his apartment.

"Their father must have experienced pain and 'sufficient horror of knowing there was no escape and that death by fire was imminent,' the women allege."

Buhl fire officials had stated the second floor had only one exit, but there were windows. They also said the Flemings had done some upgrading of the building, but didn't have funds to do the job adequately.

The Flemings were negligent because the building was substandard for a tenant, the suit claims.

The plaintiffs have requested $10,000 for the pain and suffering of their father, $10,000 damages for themselves.

PCA merger vote expected despite lack of local support

By DOUG WRIGHT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Local stockholders are expected to vote on the proposed merger of local Production Credit Associations into one district PCA sometime in early July, although no specific date has yet been confirmed, says Eastern Idaho PCA President J. Eldon Hill.

The proposed PCA merger is part of a larger reorganization plan established by the Farm Credit Banks of Spokane, the local credit associations' parent organization, to aid the financially-troubled Spokane district PCA system.

The general reorganization plan also calls for a merger of the 40 local Federal Land Bank Associations (FLBAs) into one district FLBA, and consolidation of the management, staff and facilities of the local PCAs and FLBAs into local finanacial centers, said Kenneth Krueger, president of the Farm Credit Banks of Spokane.

Combined local PCA and FLBA offices will remain open and provide a one-stop credit service to farmers and ranchers, said Krueger, with associate directors elected by the local members.

However, the assets of the local PCAs and FLBAs would be combined into a district PCA and a district FLBA, with top management selected by elected district boards of directors.

The reorganization is intended to reduce costs and increase efficiency by cutting out duplication of resources and services, said Krueger.

Although the board of directors from most other PCAs and FLBAs in the five-state district have endorsed the project, the Eastern Idaho PCA has not, he said.

"The majority of the board are of the opinion that we're a viable PCA and that we have sufficient reserves. In light of this, they don't think it's a good idea to turn that over to one PCA and lose local control," said Hill, in explaining why the eastern Idaho PCA does not endorse the reorganization.

However, stockholders from Alaska, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana will have the final say when they vote on the reorganization plan at stockholders' meetings in June and July, said Krueger.

Former Twin Falls mayor faces second theft charge

By Times-News staff

TWIN FALLS — Former Twin Falls mayor and University of Idaho athletic director Paul E. Ostyn will be sentenced July 1 in Fifth District Magistrate Court on a misdemeanor charge of willful concealment.

It is the second time Ostyn has been arrested for misdemeanor theft in Twin Falls, records show.

Ostyn, who is now director of high school relations at the College of Southern Idaho, said Thursday that he knows he has a problem.

"I have been trying to do something about it for the past few years," he told The Times-News.

On the same day that he is sentenced, the 56-year-old Ostyn will retire from CSI where he has worked for 14 years.

According to a complaint filed with the court, Ostyn allegedly concealed unspecified drug items from the Safeway grocery store at 1147 Filer Ave. E. in Twin Falls on Feb. 3.

Ostyn initially pleaded innocent and a trial was scheduled for April 10. Two days before the trial, however, his lawyer, Leon Smith, notified the court that Ostyn would change his plea to guilty.

Twin Falls City Attorney Shane Bengoechea already has filed sentencing recommendations with the court.

He will not request jail time, but will ask that Ostyn be placed on probation for one year and continue counseling with psychiatrist, Dr. Richard Worst of Twin Falls. Bengoechea also will recommend a fine.

The maximum sentence for willful concealment is six months in jail, $300 fine or both.

Court records show that on

Dykas takes law practice to Boise

BOISE — After practicing law in Buhl for 10 years, former Twin Falls County Prosecutor Frank Dykas will move to Boise next month to open a new office.

Dykas said his family is moving to Boise because his wife, Wendy, has been hired by the Ada County tax collection department.

Mrs. Dykas recently graduated from Boise State University with a degree in financing. For more than a year, she had commuted to Boise to attend college, Dykas said.

Dykas, who is a partner of lawyer Bob Weaver in Buhl, said he will take most of his caseload with him to Boise. He is one of the few lawyers in the state that specializes in patent law.

Dykas served as prosecutor from 1977 to 1978 and also spent more than a year as a deputy prosecutor.

Last year Dykas again sought the prosecutor's job, but was defeated in the May primary by K. Ellen Baxter.

Dykas said he was sorry to leave Buhl, but the opportunities in Boise were hard to resist.

By DOUG WRIGHT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Western Days shoots its way into the weekend with a rush of activities scheduled for today.

Headlining today's action is the second day of the professional rodeo, in which more than 200 cowboys will ride, rope and wrestle for $3,500 in prize money. Since the rodeo is one chance per contestant, some cowboys will make championship rides tonight.

Besides the cowboy competition, entertainment at the rodeo will also be provided by a calf-tying competition between representatives of the Twin Falls media, triek-rider Dottie Taylor and her trained horse, Danny, and the comedic antics of 1979 Pro Rodeo Clown of the Year Jim Taylor.

As part of the rodeo, three young cowgirls are vying for the title of Twin Falls Western Days-Rodeo Queen. They will demonstrate their horsemanship abilities tonight at the rodeo.

Colleen Stoller of Rupert, Heidi Peterson of Jerome and Rikki Jarrell of Boise will also appear at noon today in the Queens' Luncheon at Canyon Springs Inn. The noon luncheon is open to the public, but people are encouraged to make advance reservations.

Pre-rodeo entertainment begins at 7 p.m. with the rodeo slated to start at 7:30 p.m. The cost for the night's action is $4 for adults and $3 for students, with children under 6 admitted free.

After the rodeo, the Turf Club is holding a Round-up Dance with music by the All String Arm Band. Cost for the dance, which runs from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., is $3 per person.

The Western Days American Legion Baseball tournament also kicks off today. The round-robin tournament features clubs from Twin Falls, Jerome, Buhl and Valley and runs throughout the weekend. Jerome plays Valley to start the tournament at 5 p.m. today with Twin Falls vs. Buhl to follow at 7:30 p.m.

Today is the last day for people to vote on the best poster in the American Cancer Society/4-H Club poster contest. The posters were designed by 4-Hers to tell other kids how to prevent cancer and are displayed in the Lynwood Shopping Center.

Each vote costs 50 cents and individuals may vote more than once. The artist of the overall winning poster will receive Fancy—a pure-bred Arabian filly, but prizes will also be given to division winners. All proceeds from the contest go to the American Cancer Society.

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course Advisory Board was to meet at 7:30 a.m. today to discuss men's and women's play at the course.

The city has received a complaint that excluding women from the course on Sunday mornings is discriminatory.

City attorney Shane Bengoechea says the city should either eliminate both men's and women's days or hold both on the weekends.

The board is also scheduled to discuss a problem with dying trees.

The meeting will be held at the golf course clubhouse.

The Times-News has taken on a different look as of late because of problems encountered in our news copy typesetting machines. Because of the rapid changes in the electronic typesetting systems, we are in the process of changing to a more up-to-date system.

High schoolers compete in rodeo

Buhl — The Sixth District High School Rodeo Association will hold its rodeo competition Saturday at the Buhl Rodeo Arena at 2 p.m.

Cow cutting is scheduled at 9:30 a.m. the same day.

This is the final qualifying rodeo before the district finals rodeo at Rupert on June 7.

said Marcella Heil, rodeo coordinator.

The cowboys and cowgirls compete at different district high school rodeos throughout the season to earn enough points to compete at the state high school rodeo in Pater the last week of June. From there the top qualifiers go to the National High School Finals Rodeo in Rapid City, S.D., in July.

There are 10 rodeo clubs in the Sixth District Association, said Heil. They are located from Castelford to Declo.

"The Sixth District is one of the toughest districts in the Idaho high school rodeo competition," she said. At the 1984 national high school rodeo finals in Rapid City, two of the three competitors from Idaho who made it into the top 15 finalists nationwide were from the Sixth District, she adds.

Stock contractors for the rodeo are Bud Prescott and Sons of Twin Falls and the announcer is Tim Lauda of Buhl. There will be a concession stand on the grounds during the rodeo.

The Buhl Rodeo Club plans to keep the admission prices low to encourage spectator attendance. Adult admission is $2.50; students, $1.50; family, $6; and children 12 and under, free.

Advance tickets are available at Quigley's Heating and Sheet Metal in Buhl or call 537-6531 or 537-6642.

Farmer's group uses old law in attempt to import workers

By LINDA LARSON
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — A Norland farmer is taking advantage of an existing immigration law to form an association that will apply to the U.S. Labor Department for permission to bring Mexican Nationals across the border as irrigators.

George Grant has signed up 31 area farmers in the newly-formed Snake River Farmers' Association. The group will work through the Department of Labor to secure workers under a 1952 immigration act commonly called "H-2."

H-2 laborers are not always from Mexico, agricultural economist Dr. Jim Holt told about 80 farmers who attended a meeting Wednesday sponsored by the Food Producers of Idaho.

"You have to be willing to take U.S. workers if they can be found," Holt said.

Holt was brought to Idaho from Washington, D.C., by the producers group to explain the H-2 program to local farmers.

Mini-Cassia

Holt also met with farmers in Placerville Tuesday and in Nampa on Thursday.

Under the H-2 program, farmers must apply 90 days in advance of need for certification with the Labor Department. The applicant must attempt to fill the jobs with U.S. citizens before receiving certification, Holt said.

If no workers are found in the states, and a farmer receives certification, he may then request that the State Department grant visas and the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) admit the workers.

It is the responsibility of the employer to recruit workers from across the border once the necessary paperwork is completed, Holt said.

The expense of this program makes it necessary that farmers band together in groups to share the cost, Holt said that an estimated $150,000 to $200,000 would be needed to get H-2 workers to jobs in Idaho.

However, Grant said those figures could be misleading. He said that $50,000 to $60,000 is needed for the initial paperwork, plus the additional expense of $100 per worker brought into the country.

Grant said 31 members have paid a $250 membership fee that will go towards meeting the first $50,000. He hopes to see at least 60 more farmers join.

Farmers could hire the same crew of illegal aliens they have had in the past, but with government authorization, Holt said. "Some farmers are tired of playing 'trench warfare' with the Immigration (and Naturalization) Service," he said, adding that there are 1,000 more immigration agents in the field this year.

Holt explained there are pros and cons of the H-2 program. "You would have a reliable supply of legal workers," he said. "There would be freedom from having the INS wipe out your work force." On the negative side, Holt said that the program is a tightly regulated bureaucratic process with high administrative costs.

Ostyn

Feb. 23, 1983, Ostyn was charged with petit theft for allegedly stealing a bottle of lotion, a pair of panty hose and a hair care product from Payless Drug Store in Twin Falls.

Ostyn pleaded guilty. He was fined $75 and was given a six-month withheld judgment.

Ostyn successfully completed the terms of the withheld judgment, which included consultation with Worst, and was allowed to withdraw his guilty plea to the petit theft charge.

In a report to the court Aug. 1, 1983, Worst stated that Ostyn had described his problem as "I started shoplifting and I can't stop." Worst also stated at that time that he anticipated no further problems with Ostyn's shoplifting impulses.

Ostyn is a former Twin Falls city councilman and served as the mayor of Twin Falls in the 1970s.

He was athletic director of the University of Idaho from 1965 to 1968 and has coached at Twin Falls, Filer and Richfield High Schools.

Ostyn said his arrest only gained notoriety because he had been a public official.

"I guess that's the price I have to pay," he added.

Environmental artist Pienne's 'Sun Valley Neon Rainbow' will be a more ambitious project than 'Neon Rainbow' above, created in 1976

Neon rainbow to brighten fundraiser

By DAVID LEWIS
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — Art and technology will combine this summer in Sun Valley to produce what is being called one of the most spectacular and noteworthy environmental art pieces in the United States in 1985.

One of America's leading environmental artists, Otto Pienne, will combine two of his artistic passions when he produces the "Sun Valley Neon Rainbow" on July 26 as part of a three-day, fund-raising event for the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities.

The neon rainbow is the highlight of the event that includes a wine auction, a performance by the Utah Symphony and other functions. The event also is a part of the 50th anniversary celebration of Sun Valley.

Although Greer Markle, director of the Sun Valley Center, says the idea of the neon rainbow may seem odd at first, he says it is not.

The German-born Pienne is director of the Center for Advanced Visual Studies at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and has a long list of accomplishments in environmental art.

The MIT center has combined high technology and art to spearhead what it calls "sky art," a form that invites public participation in art on a monumental scale, Markle says.

Pienne's work reflects the art of public pageantry where art and environment combine to produce a sense of intellectual and emotional well-being in the viewer, Markle says.

Pienne, in Sun Valley last week to plan the occasion, says the rainbow is a logical and symbolic extension of the ideas advanced by the MIT group.

He has produced five single-color rainbows. His first was displayed at the opening ceremonies of the 1972 Summer Olympic Games at Munich, West Germany.

Pienne's work also includes a "sky opera" titled "Leonus," that was done in collaboration with composer Paul Earls.

The Sun Valley Neon Rainbow is

Pienne's most ambitious rainbow project and will have three colors in five bands of light.

"It's a very enterprising work of art — an event," says Pienne.

It is a combination of five helium-filled, polyurethane tubes that will have its ends anchored to form a rainbow shape on Dollar Mountain, which lies between Sun Valley and Ketchum.

The 600-foot, lighter-than-air tubes will be filled with neon light bars to create the blue, yellow and red colors of the rainbow.

At dusk on July 26, as the Utah Symphony ends its performance with Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture," Pienne will light the rainbow above Dollar Mountain.

But, it is more. "In the rainbow, the two strands of my work come together," says Pienne, who has built his career around light art and sky art.

The theme of sky, the medium of sky, is beautiful," he says.

For Pienne, the rainbow both natural and man-made — is symbolic. It represents peace and reconciliation after the upheaval and chaos of a thunderstorm. Yet, while rainbows have a strong visual impact while they exist, they slowly fade away leaving no trace.

The rainbow also allows Pienne to use the environment for his art without disturbing or polluting it.

The Sun Valley Neon Rainbow will be up probably three nights. It will come down during the day because of the heat of the daytime heat on the polyurethane tubes. Pienne wants to prevent damage to his work, if possible.

While up, the event will be covered by writers from major art magazines. Markle says. Also, a video team will produce a broadcast-quality videotape of the project from start to finish that will appear on Public Broadcasting System television stations.

Grants from several organizations allowed the center to bring the rainbow to Sun Valley and to put on the associated events, Markle says. The sponsors are: the National Endowment for the Arts; the Western States Arts Foundation; the Idaho Commission on the Arts; Mountain Bell and an anonymous private foundation.

The Utah Symphony performance brings one of the West's most famous and one of the world's most widely-traveled orchestras to Sun Valley.

The group will perform selections from Wagner, Beethoven, Copland and Tchaikovsky. Its performance begins at 7:30 p.m. July 26 on the Ice Rink patio at the Sun Valley Lodge and will follow a buffet dinner.

The main fundraising event is the center's fourth annual wine auction on Saturday afternoon. Markle says it will be the West's largest wine auction outside California's Napa Valley.

Other events include a wine tasting, a panel discussion of wines, discussions on wine making and wine collecting by experts and several recreational activities.

Ticket prices for the events are not yet set. For more information, call the Sun Valley Center at 726-0720.

Three horsewomen compete for Western Days Queen title

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — This week continues to provide an interesting schedule for three Idaho horsewomen vying for the title of Western Days Queen. Heidi Peterson, Colleen Stoller and Wendy White have already survived Horsemanship — Round One and Thursday's rodeo exhibition.

Yet much more lies ahead before one of them will be crowned

Saturday night's rodeo at the College of Southern Idaho Expo Center.

Personal interviews with the judges are slated for 10 a.m. today, followed by a luncheon at the Canyon Springs Inn where contestants will model western attire, answer questions and deliver a prepared two-minute speech. The luncheon is open to the public.

At 7 p.m., competition resumes at the CSI Expo Center with Horsemanship — Round Two and continues at 7:30 p.m. when the contestants will ride in grand entry and push cattle from the arena during timed events.

Saturday, 9 a.m., the women will appear at the Camp Fire Girls Community Breakfast at the Blue Lakes Mall, then ride in the Western Days Parade at 11 a.m. Along with clowns, the Queen contestants will judge the Lal' Buckaroo Costume Contest at the fountain, downtown, then compete again at the CSI Expo Center at 7 p.m.

Coronation of the new queen is scheduled midway through Saturday night's rodeo performance. Awards include a tiara, trophy belt buckle, silver-mounted spurs, toolled saddle pad and many other prizes donated by Magic Valley merchants.

After appearing at the Western Days Jamboree in City Park Sunday at 2 p.m., the new queen will begin her reign as traveling ambassador and rodeo representative. Her reign will include speaking engagements and appearances at parades, rodeos, fairs, conventions and other events throughout the state. She will also advance to the Miss Rodeo Idaho Pageant during the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo in September.

The three contestants share a wide range of experience in horsemanship.

Peterson, the 20-year-old daughter of Ted and Lois Peterson, Jerome, was a four-event qualifier to the Idaho High School Rodeo Finals and currently is active in the Magic Valley Appaloosa Horse Club and the Idaho-Oregon-Nevada Appaloosa Association.

Sage Street's Robin Harding, David Young and Sylvia Walters will cover swing turf

In six-group jamboree

Folk, country music will sing from park bandshell Sunday

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Folk and country music lovers should be in a state of nirvana when six musical groups appear in the shell at City Park for the Western Days country music jamboree to be held from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

One well-known Magic Valley band, The Boulder Brothers, has entertained audiences for five years with Irish folk, folk, contemporary and semi-classical music. They specialize in vocal arrangements with instrumentation made up of various combinations of accordion, penny whistle, mandolin, guitar, banjo and bass guitar.

Members of the group, Dee Street, Michael McGinnis, Ken Britton, and Paul and Bill Smith all share in songwriting chores from individual composition to their sharing of experiences that appear in their songs.

Sage Street is a local group from Twin Falls made up of David Young, Robin Harding, Rick Kuhn and Sylvia Walters. Their combination of musical talents and vocal abilities lends to a variety of musical styles that range from country and country swing to jazz swing and bluegrass, as well as folk and easy listening.

Also appearing will be the country rock band, Firewater, made up of Lee Ingram, Jim Moore, Gary Baez and Steve Wall, then Sweet Country Air, a western swing band featuring Keith Carroll, Wayne Hafner, Brian Bradshaw and Rick Holman.

Marsh has played for audiences from Los Angeles to Austin, Texas, displaying a social style that gives a southern country spice to his tunes. Terry runs a music school in Hailey and Strickland is director of the Renaissance Academy of the Arts in Twin Falls.

A return to the '60s will be in the offing when Eddie and the Edsels take to the stage. From Sacramento, Calif., the Edsels have performed for several years on the Rodeo Fair Circuit and recently appeared at the MGM Grand hotel in Reno.

Also appearing will be the country rock band, Firewater, made up of Lee Ingram, Jim Moore, Gary Baez and Steve Wall, then Sweet Country Air, a western swing band featuring Keith Carroll, Wayne Hafner, Brian Bradshaw and Rick Holman.

Time offers cash for Warner Amex

NEW YORK (AP) — Time Inc.'s cable television unit and a cable company based in Denver confirmed Wednesday that they have offered $750 million in cash for Warner Amex Cable Communications Inc.

American Television & Communications Inc., the Time subsidiary, and Tele-Communications Inc. said they also offered to assume Warner Amex's debt, which was about $550 million at the end of 1984.

The two partners are among the nation's largest cable television operators.

They are bidding for a company that since December 1979 has been operated as a joint venture of American Express Co. and Warner Communications Inc. It has 1.2 million subscribers and also owns interests in MTV Networks Inc. and Showtime The Movie Channel, which provide cable television programming.

American Express executives have responded favorably to the offer, but Warner has not yet replied, said Tele-Communications vice president Stewart Blair. The buyers have requested a decision on the offer within days, Blair said.

Under Warner Amex's joint venture agreement, a partner who wants to sell out must offer the other partner its shares in Warner Amex before disposing of them.

"American Express" is favorably disposed toward the offer made by ATV and TCI and is working to resolve any open issues surrounding the proposal, said Gayla Sangallo, a spokeswoman for the company. She would not elaborate on what the open issues were.

Warner is studying the offer, said Jeffrey Holmes, a spokesman for the company.

If the deal goes through, the companies said they would operate Warner Amex as a separate joint venture company.

Time and Tele-Communications are the first bidders to publicly acknowledge that they have made an offer for Warner Amex.

Warner Amex announced two weeks ago that it had received "several expressions of interest" in buying all or part of the company, but declined to identify the bidders, except to say they included management of Warner Amex and MTV.

The Wall Street Journal reported Tuesday that Viacom

International Inc., another leading cable television company based in Denver, had made a bid for Warner Amex, although it did not know what the price was. A Viacom spokesman said the company had no comment on the report.

American Television has about 2.5 million subscribers in cable operations that it either manages or has invested in, while Tele-Communications has 3.7 million such subscribers.

Blair, at Tele-Communications, said Warner Amex has "good properties which would make an excellent geographic fit" with those already operated by his company and the Time subsidiary.

He said the buyers would liquidate Warner Amex's holdings in Showtime to resolve a potential antitrust objection to the acquisition.

Time already owns Home Box Office Inc., which competes with Showtime as a pay-cable television network offering movies and other programming.

Blair said the buyers would review Warner Amex's holdings in MTV, which furnishes MTV and VH1 music television.

TWIN FALLS — The Junior Musical Playhouse Co. has selected the cast for the musical "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" scheduled to be performed July 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13. Maureen Evans will play the role of Snow White, and Roseanna Boyle and Jenny Tucker will play the queen. Angela Hutchings will portray the witch.

John Mauldin has been cast as the prince, Jason Houser, the mirror, and Steve Maricle, the woodsmen. Kirk Black, Krista Black, Nicole Brunyer, Travis Gilbert, Joshua Houser, Lorelei Junntunen, Wendy Lowe and Nathan Robinson will be dwarfs. The play is the third production presented by the Junior Musical Playhouse Co.

Phone workers set

BOISE — Seven of the 14 Miss Idaho contestants are scheduled to work on the telephone bank for the Children's Miracle Network Television being broadcast live by KIVI-TV, Channel 6, from the Reg. Lion Riverside in Boise on Saturday from 10 to 11 p.m.

Those participating are Debbie Richter, Miss Northside Magic Valley, from Wendell; Lori Nelson, Miss Mini-Cassia, from Burley; Jennifer Hovey, Miss Twin Falls; Mary Arakellan, Miss Idaho National Guard, from Nampa; Larinda Welch, Miss Gem County, from Emmet; Donelle Ruwe, Miss Meridian, and Kiley Ruwe, Miss Boise.

Zipped-up 'Cinderella' spoof scheduled in Buhl

BUHL — The Buhl High School drama department has slated the spoof, "Cinderella Wore Combat Boots," for Saturday at 11 a.m. in the Buhl Eastman Park. Then, at 7:30 p.m., that performance will be held again along with three other plays, "The Monkey's Paw," "Meet Mr. Shakespeare," and "Carol Burnett Comedies" in the Buhl Middle School Auditorium.

"Cinderella Wore Combat Boots" is a humorous, updated version of the classic in which modern slang, terms and humor are inserted to lighten the basic story without changing the plot or message.

According to director Aurora Martin, the play, "The Monkey's Paw," is theater of the macabre. "When you try to alter fate, things turn out differently than you think," she says of the theme.

"Meet Mr. Shakespeare" is a play with excerpts from some of the bard's plays along with a touch of history about that time period, while the "Carol Burnett Comedies" are excerpts from Burnett skits as seen on her past TV show.

Suggested donations at the park are $2 adults, $1 children.

CNN, Soviets form exchange

ATLANTA (AP) — Cable News Network will exchange news and journalists with the Soviet Union under an agreement announced Wednesday by Atlanta-based Turner Broadcasting System, which owns the 24-hour news network.

"CNN becomes the first American news organization to be affiliated directly with the Soviet Union," the Eastern bloc consortium of television systems, the network said.

"CBS Chairman" Ted Turner was in Moscow this week to sign the one-year agreement, with Sergei Lapin, chairman of the USSR State Committee for Television and Radio. The agreement calls for the two parties to act "in the spirit of friendship and goodwill to further international television cooperation."

In addition to news and entertainment programs, and will cooperate on a six-hour documentary, "Portrait of the Soviet Union."

Stallone's gung-ho 'Rambo' third largest opening ever

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sylvester Stallone's gung-ho American guerrilla thrashed James Bond and Richard Pryor at the box office over the Memorial Day holiday, the first big movie weekend of the summer.

Stallone's "Rambo," a sequel to "First Blood," grossed $32.5 million at a record 2,064 theaters. The Tri-Star film overcame competition from two new summer releases — the 14th Bond flick "A View to a Kill" and Pryor's "Brewster's Millions." It was the third largest opening gross ever, behind 1984's "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" and 1983's "Return of the Jedi."

But "Rambo's" per-screen take was significantly lower than that of the earlier films, which opened in fewer theaters.

"The large number of theaters demonstrates our tremendous confidence in the appeal of the film, the appeal of Stallone, the appeal of the subject matter (the rescue of POW's in Vietnam)," Tri-Star marketing vice president Stephen F. Randall said.

"We expected it to play equally as well in small towns as big cities," he said Wednesday.

MGM-UA's "A View to a Kill" had the second-highest gross, taking in $13.3 million at 1,583 theaters in its weekend opening.

"Brewster's Millions" was third, earning Universal $9.9 million.

"Beverly Hills Cop" remained in fourth while the Chuck Norris cop thriller, "Code of Silence," fell to sixth place.

"Rambo's" appeal may be its unabashed patriotism.

"I think audiences are finding the character and what the movie's saying is the embodiment of what the American public is feeling, in almost the same way that John Wayne portrayed it 20 or 30 years ago," Randall said.

"We're getting reactions all across the country... people cheering and screaming and being thrilled in every region, with every kind of audience."

"Women are responding as favorably, if not more favorably, as men. People are coming back a second time already in less than a week to see the film."

"Rambo's" success coincides with Tri-Star going public. The firm, founded in November 1982, began offering 2.5 million "units" — one share with an option to buy another — on Friday at $8.30 per unit.

Songwriters recall band life with western-swing platter

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Ringing banjos and fiddles played in lively western-swing style make "Blame it on the Band" an excellent new album.

After playing in Idaho bands together for about eight years, songwriters Kenny Saunders of Twin Falls and Bruce Alkire of Boise released their first album this week.

The title song, Saunders says, was inspired by a disgruntled bar owner in Emmet who wanted only the commercial "top 40 tunes."

Since original songs were being played instead, the bar owner started to blame everything on the band, including rain and a piece of chicken dropped in the sand.

The band will be playing at the Turf Club in Twin Falls tonight and Saturday night from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Records and tapes are available at Twin Falls record stores and from the band.

"We wanted to be different and not play any music that's on the radio," Saunders explains. "So we got fired."

In his lively song about the incident, Saunders writes,

"Why I keep on doing this, I'll never understand.
You just can't make a living playing in a band."

Well if you've got a guitar, go ahead and try your hand.

And if you're still starving in 12 years,
Blame it on the band."

Another humorous song on this album is called "L.A. Deer Hunter Song." During his years as a hunting guide and a river guide on the Middle Fork of the Salmon River, Saunders catered to hunters from the city.

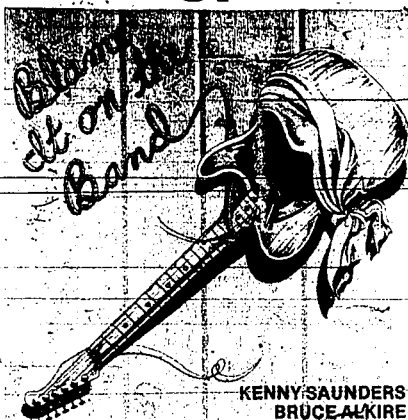

"I couldn't believe some of the things people did," he says. "They're supposed to be hunting, and they're out in the woods going crazy."

Saunders' favorite tune, "Small Towns," is a soft song about curious friends and neighbors who keep asking why his love has gone away.

"I know I'm not the best singer in the world, but I have a lot of feeling," Saunders says.

Alkire, an accomplished banjo and fiddle player, does a rich vocal on his song, "Get Back, Black Jack," singing,

"High as a kite, I don't take warning.
The string never breaks until

KENNY SAUNDERS
BRUCE ALKIRE

Kenny Saunders and Bruce Alkire cut first album morning."

Most of the songs on "Blame it on the Band" are upbeat and happy with two or three part vocal harmonies. All have quality instrumental work with contributions from Jim Barrott and Rob Matson of the Pinto Bennett Band, Johnny Shoes, Gary Reese and Mike Wendling.

When dobro, pedal steel guitar, fiddle, mandolin and banjo leads were added to "McCain's Cabin," the title was aptly changed to someone's comment, "It's Too Bad It's So Long."

"We were joking around about how long it was getting," laughs Saunders. "We couldn't cut it off, so we changed the name. That's the beauty of an instrumental."

In the lovely melody "Syringa," the fiddle becomes a violin and the six and 12 string guitars take on a classical style. Too bad it isn't longer.

"People like Ricky Scaggs are bringing our kind of music back," says Saunders, describing his album's blend of bluegrass and country-western styles.

"Blame it on the Band" was produced at Stolen Horse Productions in Eagle, a company started last year by Saunders and two other musicians.

Saunders says his goal is to give the public a break from commercial radio music and give Idaho musicians a chance to record quality, multi-track records at an affordable price.

Saunders and Alkire are currently playing in The All String Arm Band with Mike Wendling, Garin Yost and Steve Hall. Recently, in Bagerman and Halley, they have given the first of many planned concerts to promote old-fashioned community dances and family gatherings.

"Everybody was so excited up in Halley," Saunders says. "They really liked our music a lot. It turned out to be a real positive thing."

What's what

People who ordinarily tell the truth in plain language tend to fancy up their words when they tell lies. When speaking in a straightforward manner, they'll repeat simple words unconsciously. But when prevaricating, they'll carefully choose exact unprepetitious words. Such is the claim of a lifelong court reporter.

Consider word association tests: In this country, when the tester says "white," the testee usually responds with "black." In China, when the tester says "white," the testee says "death." White is worn at funerals there.

Snails can see around corners.
STRONG DRINK

Extraordinarily high levels of the female hormone estrogen have been found in the livers of cirrhosis patients. You've just got to know that, if you're going to buy this: Heavy drinking has been known to cause abnormal breast development in some men.

Mayonnaise makes a good hair conditioner. You rinse it out. Skim milk makes a good wave set. You don't rinse it out. So says a beautician of lengthy experience.

Those who care more than I about the sleeping habits of T.E. Lawrence - the renowned Lawrence of Arabia - say he gave up beds. Thought they were unnecessary. In his last years, he always slept in sleeping bags.

WIDOWS

Average American wife spends 18 years of her life as a widow. Citing this statistic, a recently widowed lady asks, "What proportion of the widows get married again?" Seven out of 100 do so, in fact. One out of every four widows is under age 45.

There weren't any dandelions around here before Columbus showed up. Not that he brought them. Colonists did, though. On purpose. Europeans used dandelions both as food and medicine. Watch this space for the crabgrass report.

Cable special lampoons 'White People'

Friday, May 31, 1985 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho B-5

By JERRY BUCK

The Associated Press
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Martin Mull, a white person and host of a comedy special called "Martin Mull Presents the History of White People in America," was sitting out back by his pool, dressed in a Hawaiian shirt, jeans and moccasins.

He also was drinking orange juice and eating Twinkies.

White folks are supposed to relax that way, said Mull, who will draw on his experiences and others for the two-part special on pay-cable's Cinemax. The first part will appear five times in June, starting June 4. The second part will be on in July.

Mull said the idea for the special came over lunch with producer Allen Rucker. "I come from northern Ohio, a very very small town, a very white town. Allen comes from a similar town in Oklahoma," Mull said.

"I ordered macaroni and cheese and he said, 'You're such a white guy.' It went back and forth. You know, mayonnaise, white bread, Velveeta, Ritz crackers, until we realized there is a white culture. But we figured no one would touch it."

"About a year later I was talking over ideas for pay television with Charles Engel at Universal. I mentioned it and he bought it on the basis of just the title."

The program explores the stereotypes, misconceptions, habits, behavior, likes, dislikes, diet and manners of the white culture. "It's sort of like David Attenborough meets the Beaver's family," Mull said.

Fred Willard, Mull's sidekick from "Fernwood 2-Night," plays a typical white person and Mary Kay Place is his wife. Mull's wife, Wendy, who's expecting their first child, wrote two songs, "The White Folks Barbecue Song" and "The White Folks Fight Song."

Harry Shearer, who was in "Spinal Tap" and "Saturday Night Live," directed. Mull and Rucker, who was co-producer and co-writer, are now at work on a book about white culture. "We were working on what an average white family would have for Thanksgiving dinner," Mull said. "We've already written six pages and we're still on the appetizers. ... I just hope the WASPs have a sense of humor, so all the other ethnic groups can finally have a laugh."

Mull's next project is to play

Colonel Mustard in the movie version of the popular board game "Clue." "We had to sign a paper agreeing not to talk about the movie," he said. "All I can say is that it's very different and very unique."

Mull was last seen on television in the comedy series "Domestic Life," which received mixed reviews.

"I think the only reason they canceled us, since television is a business, was because we weren't getting the numbers. Some perfectly dreadful things get big ratings, so go figure. CBS kept moving us around and people couldn't find us. I think people tend to plan their viewing. Time magazine called it one of the 10 best shows, but that doesn't pay for my house."

"The No. 1 show in the ratings today is 'The Cosby Show.' I think the similarities between that show and 'Domestic Life' are very striking. Someone said Cosby's show was a black 'Ozzie & Harriet.' If that's true, ours was a white 'Ozzie & Harriet,' which is redundant."

Mull spent some time after "Domestic Life" working on his paintings. He photographs ceramic dogs and then makes large, life-like airbrush copies. One painting hanging on his wall showed the dogs playing football and was called "Fourth and 39."

"I'd do another television series, but I'd miss the freedom

I've felt with cable," Mull said, "have an opportunity to be real. 'Not four-letter words and I'd love to do more things for topless ladies, but the freedom of HBO.' Home Box Office is the attitude is what I'd miss. You parent company of Cinemax."

Pen pal was deceptive

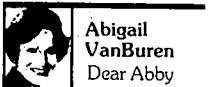

DEAR ABBY: I started to correspond with a gentleman whose name I found in a magazine. He had advertised for a mature woman to be a pen pal.

I will not go into detail because I feel foolish and I don't want to identify myself, but after sending this man "gifts," which he asked for in a roundabout way, and several hundred dollars as "loans," I learned that I was writing to a man in prison!

My question to you, Dear Abby, is this: Why does the law permit prisons to use names and addresses that intentionally conceal the fact that they are prisons?

I think that when a prisoner wants to correspond with a stranger, he or she should not have the protection of a phony address.

What is your opinion?

One-year-olds smarter than scientists thought

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A new study shows that 14-month-old babies can remember and imitate activities 24 hours after they have seen them, providing further evidence that babies have a much greater thinking ability than scientists once believed.

The researcher, Andrew Meltzoff, a developmental psychologist at the University of Washington, has previously shown that 3-day-old infants can imitate facial expressions — a finding that contradicted leading theories of child development.

Many of those theories were based on the work of Jean Piaget, a pioneering psychologist in the study of infant development. Meltzoff said Wednesday at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"Piaget and others have considered facial imitation to be a landmark in infant development," Meltzoff said, because it requires the infant to connect two senses. The infant sees a facial expression but cannot see its own face. Therefore, it uses its sense of touch to determine that its own face is imitating the thing it sees, Meltzoff explained.

Piaget had concluded that children could not imitate facial expressions until they were 12 months old.

Los Angeles squares NBA series with Celtics

BOSTON (AP) — Los Angeles reignited its flamed-out running game and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar rediscovered his patented sky hook Thursday night as the Lakers evened the National Basketball Association championship series at a game apiece with a 109-102 victory over the Boston Celtics.

The Lakers, pushed around inside and held to three fastbreak baskets in the first half of Game 1 Monday while falling behind, 79-49, continually outsprung Boston down court in Game 2, building an 18-point halftime lead.

Abdul-Jabbar, who made 10 sky hook shots in the game, then scored 12 of his 30 points in the third quarter to help Los Angeles hold off the Celtics' outside shooting game led by Larry Bird.

The 38-year-old Abdul-Jabbar, held to 12 points and three rebounds in Boston's 148-114 victory in the first game, also finished with 17 rebounds.

The best-of-seven series resumes Sunday in Inglewood, Calif. The fourth and fifth games also will be on the Lakers' home court at the Forum, on Wednesday and Friday.

The Celtics are trying to become the NBA's first repeat champs since 1969.

The Lakers led 79-62 with 4:50 left in the third quarter, but Bird, who scored 30 points, started hitting to spark a run of eight straight Boston points that cut the deficit to nine. Then a three-point play by Bob McAdoo rebuilt LA's lead to 87-73 with 35 seconds left in the quarter.

Again, Boston tried to get back in it, three times cutting the margin to four points — 100-96, 102-98 and 104-100, the last with 2:16 to go in the game.

Michael Cooper, who had nine of his 22 points in the fourth quarter, hit from outside and McAdoo made a free throw to make it 107-100 with 1:17 left.

James Worthy scored 16 points for Los Angeles, but all of them came in the first half. In foul trouble, he finally fouled out with 5:05 remaining.

Robert Parish, troubled with an injured hip in the first half, came back with 18 points for the Celtics, while Danny Ainge, Kevin McHale and Dennis Johnson each had 15.

The opening minutes of the game were the exact opposite of what occurred in Monday's opener, when the Celtics jumped ahead 26-12, went on to a 30-point halftime lead and a 34-point victory.

This time, it was the Lakers who quickly pulled ahead by 14 points, collecting three fastbreak baskets on a 35-second stretch en route to a 28-14 lead with 3:08 left in the first quarter. Worthy had nine points and the Lakers pulled down 12 of the game's first 16 rebounds, in sharp contrast to Monday when Boston dominated inside.

The similarities between Games 1 and 2 ended at that point, however. Los Angeles had wilted, but Boston came back.

First, Bird scored four straight points to make it 34-20, then Ray Williams hit one basket and Johnson two from outside to close the gap to 31-26 at the end of the quarter. When Scott Wedman scored the first basket of the second period, the margin was down to three points.

But the Lakers quickly regained control.

Cooper had a three-point goal and a fastbreak layup to spark a 46-33 at the 5:51 mark. Kuechak had five consecutive Los Angeles points during a 7-2 streak for a 55-40 advantage.

Idahoans lead rodeo

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Three Idaho cowboys and a cowgirl lead in their events after the first day in the Western Days Professional Rodeo.

Thursday's events are part of the three-day rodeo. Tonight's second go-round begins at 7:30 p.m.

Sam Poutouse of Indian Valley, Idaho is three points ahead of the field in bull riding. Poutous, whose home is a few miles south of McCall, is leading Cody, Wyoming's Scott Bredina.

Benny Stevens is another Idaho event leader. The Gooding cowboy leads all in the calf roping event with a 10.3 second finish. Stevens' horse cooperated beautifully, helping him work the chocolate-colored calf into submission.

Tying for first in professional saddle bronc riding is Nampa's Charley Stovner. Also taking down a 70-point ride was Marty Jandreau of Kennebake, South Dakota.

Mary Zollinger, Rexburg, has the fastest time in the women's professional barrel racing event. Her 15.50 second finish puts her just ahead of Caldwell's Didi Taylor, with 15.54. Letha Bilek of Twin Falls is currently third with a 15.76 second effort.

Jake Stephens of Nampa heeled his calf with Marlow Eldridge of Elko taking on the heading chores for a 9.4 second effort in team roping. The other team to finish was from Elko with a time of 14.8.

In steer wrestling, only two contestants rode qualifying mounts. Rande Munns, Garland, Utah, leads at 17.9 seconds, which includes a 10-second penalty. Wayne Elise, Dillon, Montana, is second at 19.4 seconds.

Tony Stevenson, Pendleton, Ore., is the leader in bareback riding with 73 points.

Paul Henrie, Joseph, Utah, rode to the whistle but didn't place in the top three

Edmonton repeats as NHL champion

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Record-setters Wayne Gretzky, Paul Coffey and Jari Kurri ignited Edmonton to an 8-3 rout of the Philadelphia Flyers Thursday night that brought the Oilers their second consecutive Stanley Cup.

The Oilers, who won the National Hockey League championship series in five games and established a playoff mark with 16 straight victories at home, dominated the undermanned Flyers from the outset.

It was the second consecutive year that the Oilers had rallied from a first-game loss to win four in a row and take the cup.

Led by the magic of Gretzky, the NHL's brightest star, and Coffey, the game's most prolific defenseman, the Oilers jumped to a 4-1 lead after one period and 7-1 after two en route to the most one-sided Cup-clinching victory in league history.

Gretzky, who was awarded the Conn Smythe Trophy as the most valuable player in the playoffs, had one goal and three assists and finished the playoffs with 17 goals, 30 assists and 47 points, all records for the 24-year-old center who makes a living rewriting the record book. Coffey contributed two goals and one assist for a total of 12 goals, 25 assists and 37 points, all marks for a defenseman.

Kurri, who got the Oilers started with a goal at 4:54 against a shaky Bob Froese — who replaced injured regular net-minder Pelle Lindbergh — finished the playoffs with 19 goals, tying the record set in 1976 by Philadelphia's Reggie Leach. Kurri had three assists Thursday night.

The frustrated Flyers' Dave Brown sparked a brawl with 4:38 remaining when he fought with Edmonton's Kevin McClelland. Brad Marsh also went in it with Edmonton's Don Jackson and referee Bryan Lewis handed out 79 minutes in penalties for the fistfuffs as the game was delayed 15 minutes.

Hobart joins Ti-Cats

KAMIAH (AP) — Former University of Idaho star quarterback Ken Hobart has agreed to terms of a two-year contract with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League, his agent said.

Hobart was to fly to Hamilton, Ontario, Thursday to finalize the deal.

"He will sign a very lucrative contract," said Frank Bauer of Sun West Sports, the Stockton, Calif.-based firm which represents Hobart.

The Tiger-Cats opened their training camp Tuesday.

Hobart told the Spokane Spokesman-Review Wednesday that he will earn a base salary of slightly more than $90,000. With incentives based on a "decent season," Hobart said he could earn as much as $150,000.

"I just want to play. I was getting tired of all the hassles," Hobart said by telephone from his Kamiah home. "It'll take me a while to get used to the Canadian game."

Hobart has not played in 11 months.

KEN HOBART
Has new contract

Since leaving Idaho, the 1983 first-team NCAA Division I-AA All-America has been bounced around.

He was drafted by Jacksonville in the second round of the United States Football League's 1984 draft, then was traded to the Denver Gold but was being returned to the Bulls after the season.

ISU report: football prospects good, athletic finances aren't

Running strength enhances passing attack

TWIN FALLS — Idaho State football Coach Jim Koetter expects his Bengals to be a strong aggregation this fall but reminds followers that there should be six contenders in the Big Sky Conference.

Speaking at a Twin Falls press conference Thursday, Koetter said "we will be in solid football team with better balance, a defense that should be very strong (because of) excellent size in our down linemen, good linebackers and a good secondary that should be improved because of better depth. Offensively, we have strong runners with most of our skill players returning. The offensive line is a question mark because we have back just one starter and one part time starter. We will have to move new people into those positions. But they will have size."

At that point, Koetter showed the other side of the coin. "But we expect a typical Big Sky Conference season with six teams in contention. Idaho must be a strong threat with so many offensive people back and if they become better defensively as Coach (Dennis) Erickson expects. Montana State is the defending national (Division I-AA) champion and returns its quarterback Kelly Bradley and most of that offensive team. They have some big defensive holes to fill. Reno and Boise State are always big and Weber has 47 lettermen back. Those teams plus ourselves should be strong. Northern Arizona has some good people and is very close to rebuilding a strong program."

"You have to remember," Koetter pointed out with a smile, "Montana State was picked to finish eighth by most people last year and they won the national crown."

One fact that might help the Bengals is "a schedule that lends itself to building. Realistically, we won't have to play our best until the fifth week of the season when the conference begins."

Koetter said, noting ISU opens with Northern Colorado, Portland State, Southwest Louisiana and then has an open date. "The key to winning the championship might be the timing of the schedule — who you play, where and when," he added.

The coach believes a strength of the team will be one of the better running attacks ISU has had in years. "It seems strange that a passing team would accumulate four great running backs. But I have to say, right now our running backs are a strength of the football team."

In the light, Koetter noted that walk-on Corky Federico of Twin Falls produced so well in spring drills that "he was probably the outstanding player in our spring game. His running, blocking and pass-catching ability let us be a much better running team. Right now he would have to be considered the fullback starter for this fall."

Koetter said that Valley High product Gary Taylor is vying for a starting linebacking position and is one of the reasons he believes that linebackers will be improved somewhat this year.

The anxious moments of the spring came when starting quarterback Vern Harris and tight end Jody Griswold were arrested on a disorderly-conduct charge by police. Koetter announced the two would be suspended pending court disposition of the case.

TV, basketball losses wipe out reserve fund

TWIN FALLS — The last of Idaho State University's athletic reserve fund probably will be used up this year and the $1.9 million dollar program will be hard pressed to rebuild it.

That's the assessment of longtime ISU coach and athletic director Habo "Babe" Caccia in looking toward the 1985-86 season.

Caccia, in Twin Falls for a press conference Thursday, said a combination of increased costs, a decrease in funding from the state, reduced gate revenues in basketball and increased financial demands in girls athletics has produced the dilemma.

But, the veteran administrator noted, the problem is not peculiar to ISU and many ISU friends and alumni are working to alleviate the situation.

He noted University of Idaho has announced a $250,000 budget reduction and most of the Big Sky Conference teams are feeling the pinch of TV revenues lost under the supreme court's ruling against the NCAA controlled-TV package and freed individual schools to make their own television deals.

Caccia noted that amounted to about $90,000 annually for each Big Sky team and also cost each member another $25,000 when Montana State won the national basketball pavilion (12,000) and they do a good job of filling them for games. No one knows what their (the Broncos') booster contributions are but being in a metropolitan area, they are able to raise more than anyone in the state."

Of the $1.9 million budget, Caccia said $667,000 was state money used solely for coaches' salaries, "no equipment or scholarship" underwriting. He noted ISU had to raise an additional $62,000 from other sources to cover coaches' pay.

Caccia said football probably comes closest to paying its way at Idaho State. He reported $50,000 reductions in basketball revenues the past two years from pre-season projections.

"At present we have a reserve but only because of our boosters. But next year we anticipate that will be gone and we'll have to find other ways to make the money cover, he said."

He noted the NCAA has allowed division I-AA schools to drop to six intercollegiate sports and remain in good standing if they play football. "He suggested indoor track may be the sport removed because with cross country, indoor track and outdoor track, some of our athletes are in rigorous training year-round and we don't feel that's good," Caccia said.

He noted which sports will be dropped largely will be a consensus of Big Sky schools "so the all-sports trophy covers the same sports."

Women's sports haven't been an attraction at the ISU campus. Caccia said "by law 27 percent of all the revenue generated by the athletic department has to go into women's programs. At the present, we don't charge for any women's events."

Fisk powers White Sox past Royals 4-3

By The Associated Press

Carlton Fisk finally found what he was seeking, something to help pull the trigger.

Fisk found it in the batting cage Thursday night as his two-run, roof-top homer powered Tim Lincecum and the Chicago White Sox to a 4-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

"I just spread it out a little and got the backside moving to the front side," said Fisk. "It was the key to the trigger."

Fisk's homer was his third in two nights for a total of seven runs batted in and the key to the White Sox' two straight triumphs after seven losses in a row.

Fisk said he hit his 11th homer well but didn't think it would be a roof shot.

Tigers 3, A's 2

Larry Herndon's tie-breaking home run in the sixth inning behind the combined seven-hit pitching of Walt Terrell and Willie Hernandez and gave the Detroit Tigers a 3-2 victory over the Oakland A's.

Herndon hit the first pitch in the bottom of the sixth into the lower right field seats for his fourth homer, chasing Tim Lincecum, 1-1, who was making his second major league start.

Orioles 8, Seattle 2

Eddie Murray's two-run double keyed a six-run Baltimore rally in the fifth inning as the Orioles downed the Seattle Mariners 8-2.

behind the seven-hit pitching of Storm Davis.

Murray's double, following a bases-loaded walk to Cal Ripken Jr., restored some normalcy to a rally which had a bizarre beginning.

Yanks 3, Angels 1

Joe Cawley and Dave Righetti combined on a three-hitter and Dan Pasqua homered in his major league debut to lead the New York Yankees to a 3-1 victory over the California Angels.

The 25-year-old Pasqua, called up earlier in the day to replace injured outfielder Henry Cotto, hit a fifth-inning leadoff homer in his second at-bat, giving the Yankees a 2-0 lead. The line shot to right field came on a 1-1 pitch from Ron Kormanik, 6-1, who had won four straight decisions.

Red Sox 8, Twins 7

Jim Rice lined a run-scoring single with one out after two hit batters in the 11th inning Thursday night, lifting the Boston Red Sox to an 8-7 victory over Minnesota, which lost its eighth straight game.

Glenn Hoffman started the 11th by being hit by a pitch thrown by Edgar Davis, 1-5, the third Minnesota pitcher.

Wade Boggs, who had a single, double and triple earlier, sacrificed Hoffman to second and, after Dwight Evans was hit by a pitch, Rice singled for his third game-winning RBI of the season.

Gooden fans 14 as Mets nip Giants 2-1

By The Associated Press

Dwight Gooden struck out 14 Thursday to take over the National League strikeout lead and the New York Mets beat the San Francisco Giants 2-1.

Gooden, 7-3, raised his strikeout total to 87 by pulling away from Houston's Nolan Ryan, with whom he was tied entering the game. Gooden, who snapped a personal two-game losing streak, allowed six hits and saw his bid for a shutout ruined when Alex Trevino lined his first home run of the year over the left field fence in the seventh inning. The 14 strikeouts was a season high for Gooden, who struck out the side in the ninth inning.

as the San Diego Padres downed the Montreal Expos 5-4.

The Padres scored in their half of the first inning when Kevin McReynolds and Terry Kennedy opened with singles against loser Dan Schatzeder, 2-1. Martinez followed with a drive just inside the left field foul pole. It was his fifth home run of the year.

Cards 6, Braves 0

Jack Clark belted his ninth home run and Joaquin Andujar claimed his ninth victory in a combined five-hit shutout with Bill Campbell as the St. Louis Cardinals, downed the Atlanta Braves 6-0.

It was Andujar's fifth victory in a row since losing to the San Francisco Giants on May 5 and his seventh in a row over the Braves. Campbell held the Braves hitless and allowed one walk over the final four innings for his second save.

Padres 5, Expos 4

Carmelo Martinez drove in four runs with a pair of home runs and unbent Andy Hawkins became the major leagues' first 10-game winner.

USC freshman sets triple jump record

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Wendy Brown, a 19-year-old freshman at the University of Southern California, broke the world best in the women's triple jump Thursday, clearing 44 feet, 6 3/4 inches on her first qualifying attempt in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

The multi-talented Brown, a high jumper, high hurdler and long jumper who also played basketball for Southern Cal last season, shattered the world outdoor best of 43-4 1/4 set last year by Terri Turner of the University of Texas.

The previous best ever was 44-4 by Brazil's Esmeralda Garela of Florida State University during the 1985 NCAA Indoor Championships in March.

Jacoby qualifies

AUSTIN, Tex. — Boise State's Jake Jacoby earned the right to defend his NCAA high jump championship in qualifying Thursday night.

Jacoby joined seven others in clearing 7-2 in the preliminaries. The efforts will not carry over to the finals which are scheduled for today.

The triple jump, a relatively new event for women is held only in the United States, and is not recognized by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the world governing body of track and field. Therefore, there are no world records in the event.

"I knew I'd do well, but nothing like this," said Brown. "I expected 43 (feet), not 44."

"I didn't really warm up for the triple jump. I definitely was not going for a record. I don't know, maybe I should try that approach every time..."

"I think I can do better than that in the final."

Brown, however was upset because she failed to qualify for the final in the high jump.

"Wendy is the most versatile young athlete in the United States today," said Fred LaPlante, Southern Cal's women's track coach. "She's a real determined competitor, just a very hard worker."

Earlier, Arkansas' Michael Conley took another big step toward an unprecedented second consecutive double in the horizontal jumps in the NCAA Championships by qualifying for the triple jump final.

Conley, winner of the long jump and the triple jump titles last year — and the winner of five NCAA indoor jump titles — leaped a conservative, wind-aided 52 feet, 10 1/4 inches in his only attempt in the triple jump qualifying toward Saturday's final.

Conley, with a career best of 57-5, was conserving his energy for Friday, when he will compete in the finals of the long jump, the 200-meter dash and the 400-meter relay.

"Today was my easy day," the Razorbacks' captain said.

USFL expands suit against NFL, drops persecuted Raiders

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Football League said Thursday it has a new lawyer to handle its $1.32 billion suit against the National Football League, and that it will exclude the Los Angeles Raiders from litigation because they, too, have been "victims" of the NFL.

The USFL also announced that it has amended its original complaint against the NFL to expand the suit, and said it expects the case to go to trial by next February.

"In it, we will detail the anti-competitive tactics of the NFL and its overt acts to subjugate the USFL, just as it has subjugated every other new league," USFL Commissioner Harry Usher said. "We are about to put down the slingshots, and pick up the bazookas," he said at a news conference.

The antitrust suit accuses NFL officials and clubs of conspiring to monopolize pro football; conspiring to restrain trade and eliminate fair competition; conspiring with the three major television networks to give the NFL unfair domination of the airwaves; and disparaging the USFL in the media through a planned campaign of negative publicity.

ABC orders green night games for series

CHICAGO (AP) — If the Chicago Cubs are lucky enough to get to the World Series this year, home may be away from home.

The Cubs' venerable Wrigley Field is the last major league ballpark without lights — and the ABC television network has decided that all World Series games this year will be played at night.

"Obviously it puts us in a little bit of a difficult situation if we get" to the series, Cubs General Manager Dallas Green said Thursday after the night-games-only decision was announced by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

"ABC has the right to do that under the contract," Ueberroth said in New York after an owners' meeting. He said the TV contract was signed during Bowie Kuhn's term as commissioner.

Green said playing home games away from Wrigley Field "is certainly one of the alternatives" if the Cubs reach the World Series, but he refused to speculate further on what the team would do.

"It'll cross that bridge if and when we get there. We've got a lot of work ahead of us," he said.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field.

On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of state and city laws that essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Cook County Circuit Judge Richard Curry upheld the laws in March, despite their being labeled a "constitutional nightmare" by Donald Reuben, an attorney for Tribune Co., which owns the Cubs.

SEC strips voted title from Florida

DESTIN Fla. (AP) — The University of Florida, which was told last month it could keep its Southeastern Conference football crown while on NCAA probation, was stripped of the title Thursday by the SEC presidents.

The action — taken during the closing session of the league's annual spring meeting — overturned an April 4 executive committee ruling that Florida had been punished enough for recruiting violations and should be allowed to keep the championship.

The presidents of the 10 member schools voted 6-1 to recall the title the Gators chased for more than 50 years.

Louisiana State University, which represented the SEC in the Sugar Bowl after the league barred Florida from post-season competition, finished second in the conference. The decision, however, was to not recognize a champion for 1985.

The NCAA placed Florida on three years probation in January with one year off for good behavior. Sanctions included television and bowl restrictions as well as a reduction of scholarships.

Pro golf Irwin continues hot streak in Kemper Open

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Two-time U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin maintained a hot hand and shot a 6-under-par 16 Thursday to take a two-stroke lead after the first round of the $500,000 Kemper Open at Congressional Country Club.

Irwin, winner of the Memorial at Muirfield, Ohio, on Sunday, shot a 35 on his first nine-but, using his words "turned it on" after making a bogey to fire a 31 on the back nine.

Irwin began the first round on the 10th hole of the 7,173-yard, par 72 Congressional course, considered one of the toughest on the tour. "The bogey on the 18th woke me up," he said, referring to the 463-yard, par 4 which was his ninth hole.

"It was like a slap in the face to me. I didn't make any bad strokes and, maddo five," said Irwin. "It got under my skin. I told my caddy on the first tee that I was going to hit it to the hole. You can't wait for luck, you have to play this course."

Irwin went into Friday's second round with a two-stroke lead over tour journeymen David Lundstrom, Peter Oosterhuis and Barry Jäckel and veteran George Archer, each of whom carded 68s.

Irwin, who has won 17 tournaments in his 17 years on the tour, said his round was a continuation of his good play at Memorial, where he defeated Lanny Wadkins by one stroke for the $100,000 first prize.

"It's not an obvious carryover, however," he said. "I went home after Muirfield to try to get away from it all together. I don't think I brought in the emotional high that I had after the Memorial victory. I'm trying to approach it fresh this week."

A stroke the group at 68 were 10 players, including former winners here John Mahaffey, 1980, and Craig Stadler, 1981 and 1982.

Stadler, playing with Irwin, had one of the most bizarre rounds either player had ever seen. He hit only four fairways and six greens but needed only 21 pulls, including one 3-putt green, for his 69.

"I played terrible, in fact, awful," Stadler said. "But I putted tremendously well. It wasn't very impressive golf."

Curtis Strange, the tour's leading money winner, led a group of eight at 70 while Lanny Wadkins, in second place in the money standings behind Strange, was among the 16 who shot 71.

Lopez goes three up in LPGA championship

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Despite a two-stroke slow play penalty, Nancy Lopez returned to her old neighborhood, fired a 7-under-par 65 and grabbed a three-shot first-round lead Thursday in the LPGA Championship.

Lopez was assessed her penalty on the eighth hole, which was her 17th of the day, by LPGA Tour officials. The other two players in her threesome, Chris Johnson and Janet Coles, were unaffected.

A sobbing Lopez said tournament official Kerry Haigh told her she had taken 83 seconds to select the club for her tee shot on the 100-yard, par-3 hole. The maximum amount of time permitted is 60 seconds.

"I couldn't believe I had taken 83 seconds," Lopez said. "I was upset. I was crying like a baby going to the ninth tee."

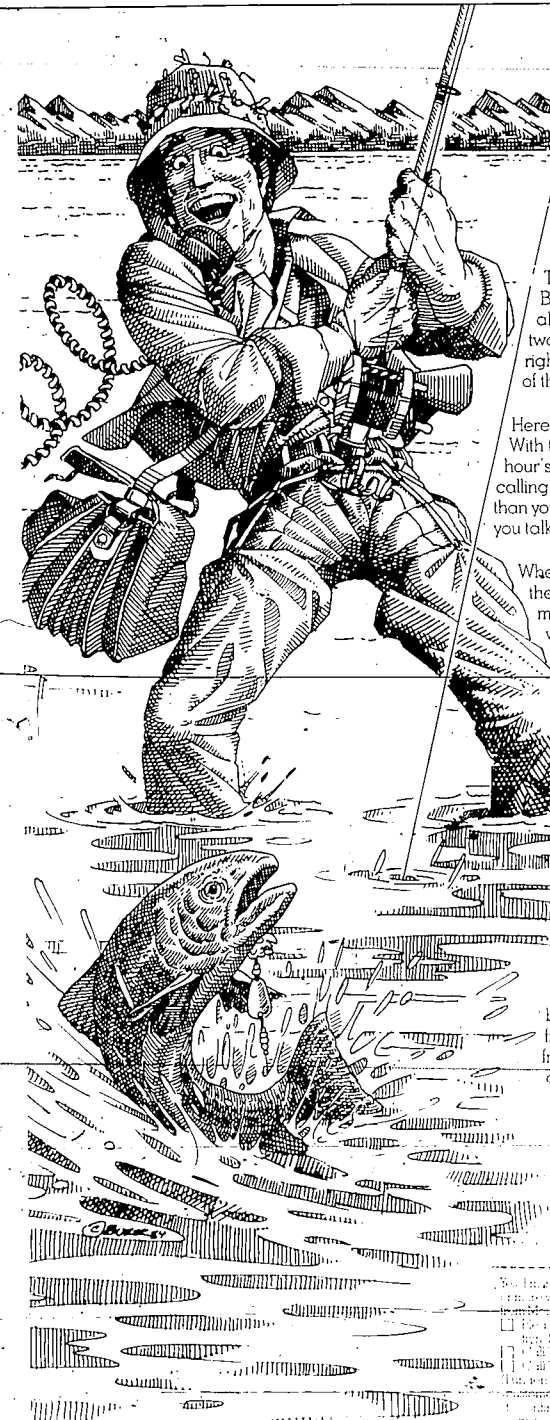

Lopez said it was the first time she had been assessed a two-stroke slow play penalty in her eight-year professional career. However, she said she had been fined $200 once for a similar infraction in a Hershey, Pa., tournament.

Suzanne Jackson, the first-year LPGA tournament director, said Lopez's group was running 25 seconds behind the previous threesome.

The 28-year-old leader, who once owned a condominium alongside the 18th tee, opened with three birdies and an eagle in her first five holes and matched the nine-hole record of 5-under 31 over the Nicklaus Sports Center's Grizzly course.

"I always feel confident here," Lopez said. "I know the course and I know the people."

Drug grand jury issues 7 sealed indictments

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sealed indictments with more than 100 narcotics counts were returned against seven people Thursday by a federal grand jury probing alleged drug sales to major league baseball players.

There was no word on whether any players had been named in the indictments. At least 11 major league players are known to have testified before the federal panel that since March 1984 has been investigating drug trafficking in baseball.

Two of those players said Thursday night they knew nothing about the indictments.

All the players had been granted immunity for their testimony, and the lawyer for several of them said earlier this week he did not expect any players to be named. Reports said the probe was aimed at drug suppliers.

The Justice Department announced the indictments but would not say they had come from the same grand jury that is probing the baseball-drug connection.

But other sources said the indictments had come in the baseball probe, and the lawyer for a caterer who at one time provided food in the Philadelphia

Phillies' clubhouse said his client had been charged and would surrender Friday.

J. Alan Johnson, U.S. attorney for the western Pennsylvania, said the indictments were returned to U.S. Magistrate Robert Mitchell late in the day. Mitchell was to issue bench warrants and Johnson indicated that arrests could be made Friday.

The grand jury that heard testimony from the baseball players was in session on Thursday, and a source who spoke on the condition he not be identified said that the panel had handed down the indictments. Johnson, who has steadfastly declined comment on the baseball drug probe, refused to say if the baseball panel had returned the sealed counts.

Mitchell was told in open court by federal prosecutors that one person was charged on 111 counts of federal narcotics violations. In all, the indictments charge 173 counts of federal violations, according to CBS.

In addition, Pittsburgh TV station KDKA said that six of those indicted lived in Pittsburgh and one lived in Philadelphia.

Details of the charges were not available, and there was no word on when the indictments might be unsealed.

NCAA outlines list of charges against SMU

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University, target of a two-year NCAA investigation into its football program, said Thursday it has received a letter detailing the findings and recommendations of the association.

In a statement, President L. Donald Shields said he received the letter Thursday, but declined to say what the letter contained. The school has 15 days to review the NCAA's findings and respond to its recommendations, either by accepting the findings and any punishment or appealing to the NCAA Committee on Infractions.

If SMU accepts the findings, public announcements would be made by both the university and the NCAA. An appeal would be considered, no sooner than mid-August, and no public comments would be made pending the results.

If the Mustangs are placed on probation, it would be their sixth probation period since 1958. That would put it one behind Wichita State, which has been penalized an NCAA record seven times.

Both Athletic Director Bob Hiltch and head football Coach Bobby Collins have clauses in their contracts saying they can be fired if they are found to have been involved in any major infractions.

Since March 1983, the NCAA has looked into SMU's recruitment of wide receivers Ronald Morris and Marquis Pleasant; defensive tackle Terence Mann; linebacker David Stanley, and several other players who attended other schools.

Those include running back Edwin Simmons and defensive back James Lott of Texas, and running back Robert Smith, who went to Iowa.

Payless Gunslingers practice

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Gunslingers practiced Thursday for their upcoming game against Arizona despite management's failure to meet the payroll for a month.

The San Antonio-based United States Football League franchise failed to meet the payroll May 14 and again this Tuesday.

The team delayed practice all day Wednesday in hopes of getting paychecks, but ended up on the practice field late in the day empty-handed.

They practiced again Thursday and Coach Gil Steinke said team members will board a plane Friday for Phoenix for the Saturday night game.

The Guns, 3-11, are on a seven game losing streak.

The USFL Players Association has filed a grievance because of the team's failure to meet the May 14 payroll.

Cowboys issue big bonuses

DALLAS (AP) — The management team of the Dallas Cowboys for the past 25 years received bonuses totaling $5 million when the team was sold by former owner Clinton Murchison Jr. last year. The Dallas Morning News reported Thursday. Quoting unnamed sources who negotiated the $60 million sale, the newspaper said Tex Schramm, the National Football League club's president and general manager, received $2.5 million.
