Phone plan announced

Customers to choose long-distance phone service

By BILL McCLOSKEY
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Customers who do not pick a long-distance phone company will have one randomly selected for them under a process ordered Friday by the Federal Communications Commission.

By the end of 1986, about 80 percent of the phone lines in the country will have easy access to any of the companies offering long-distance service in their area without the inconvenience of dialing a long access code.

The commission ordered local telephone companies to send ballots to an estimated 75 million customers advising them of their options and explaining that they will be assigned to a long-distance company if they don't place an order.

The ballots go out three months before the switching system is wired to the new switching system.

About 20 percent of the nation's telephones are already converted to the program known as "equal access."

In most of the country, customers who did not pre-select a long-distance company continued to have their calls carried on AT&T lines. In FCC jargon they "defaulted" to AT&T.

Now, customers who default will be assigned in the same proportion as those who did make a choice.

For example, if 3 percent of those returning ballots selected the XYZ Company, XYZ would also get 3 percent of the customers who did not return a ballot.

Defaulting customers would be informed of their tentative assignment and offered another opportunity to select.

The local companies were also ordered to send ballots to customers who already have equal access, but never designated a long-distance company, giving them another opportunity to switch. These customers will not be subject to the allocation process if they do not select.

The decision came a day before another major change in the way Americans obtain and pay for phone service.

Starting today, residential phone customers will begin paying $1 a month for the line connecting an individual's phone to the telephone company's switching office. AT&T long-distance rates go down at the same time.

Phone charges to rise

The Associated Press

BOISE — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has endorsed the continued offering of "local measured service" to Mountain Bell telephone customers, calling it an important savings option for low-income households.

However, the commission also ordered a higher basic measured-service rate on Friday, instructing Mountain Bell to make it half the price of its current flat-rate for unlimited local calling.

The local measured service option offered by Mountain Bell since 1973 allows customers to pay a lower set monthly rate plus a small charge for each local call rather than a higher flat rate for unlimited local calling.

Friday's order would raise the basic measured-service rate for residential customers from $4.45 a month to an average of about $5.40, depending on the size of the local exchange. The commission made no change in current per-call LMS charges, which depend on factors such as the time of day, the duration of the call and its distance.

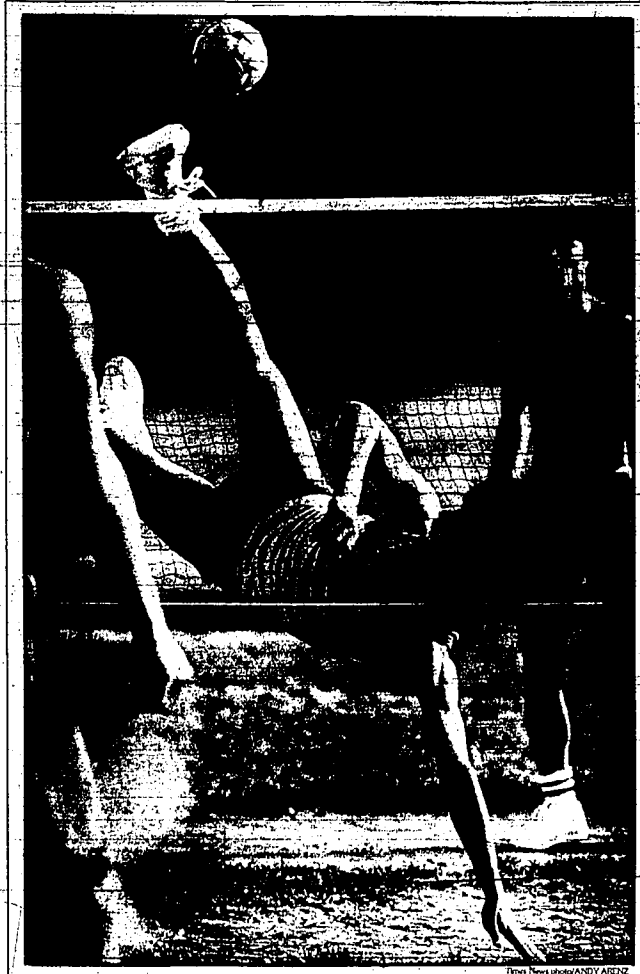

Consumer groups such as Idaho Fair Share testified during proceedings stretching through much of 1984 that the relatively low LMS rate charged by Mountain Bell was not enough to cover the cost of equipment needed to make detailed measurements of each local call. If LMS were expanded too far, rates eventually would skyrocket to meet those equipment needs, some groups claimed.

But the PUC found that Mountain Bell already had installed its measured-service capability throughout much of Idaho in conjunction a commission order to provide all its customers with one-party service by 1986.

Jeff Harry of Idaho Fair Share said the commission's order was a step in the right direction.

Also Friday, utility regulators reduced relatively high monthly "zone charges" for Mountain Bell customers in remote areas of some local exchanges; and

Factory orders fall

U.S. trade deficit increases in April

By JERRY ESTILL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. foreign trade deficit, symbol of a sputtering economy, surged by a near-record $11.9 billion in April as domestic manufacturers found it increasingly difficult to market their goods abroad.

A separate Commerce Department report also issued Friday showed that orders to U.S. factories fell for the third straight month, underscoring the manufacturing sector weakness that analysts say is hamstringing overall economic growth.

Where government and private economists alike started 1985 projecting a 4 percent rate of growth, the major forecasting firms have already scaled back and are now saying it is unlikely to reach 3 percent.

Moreover, forecasts for even that modest growth level are based on the assumption that recent interest rate declines eventually will perk up business activity enough to brighten an economic picture that seems to grow dimmer with each new government report.

There is a growing consensus that the trade deficit is cutting Gross National Product growth — 0.7 percent in the first quarter of this year — just about in half.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige in a statement accompanying the trade report, said a slippage of about 7 percent in the dollar from a February peak "so far is not enough to improve U.S. competitiveness and should have only a limited effect on our balance of trade."

Imports rose 0.5 percent in April, compared with a 0.7 percent rise in March, to stand at $29.8 billion. But exports fell 5.6 percent after rising 3.3 percent in March and stood at $17.8 billion for the month — lowest since last June.

The result was a 7.2 percent increase over the March deficit of $11 billion. That brought the imbalance for the first four months of the year to $44.8 billion, 5.5 percent ahead of the pace for the first four months of 1984.

The April figure, third largest on record, was exceeded only by last July's $13.7 billion and last May's $11.93 billion.

On the import side, most of the April increase was attributed — as expected — to both volume and price increases in oil imports and to an increase of about 25 percent in Japanese cars flowing into U.S. showrooms.

Petroleum imports were up $1.6 billion over March, in part because a number of March shipments were included in the April data because of the late receipt of import documents from some ports.

In a separate report, the department said orders to U.S. factories fell 0.5 percent in April, the third straight decline and ninth in the last 12 months.

Orders had originally been reported down 0.9 percent in March, but that was revised to a 0.7 percent drop in the new report. Orders were down 1.1 percent in February.

Municipal golf course open to women Sundays

TWIN FALLS — Effective this weekend, women will be allowed on the golf course Sunday mornings and men will be allowed on the course Thursday mornings, the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course Advisory Board decided Friday.

The board did not entirely do away with men's and women's days, however.

While no one will be barred from play on those days because of their sex, board members spoke in favor of continuing to encourage play by women on women's day, Thursday mornings, and play by men on men's day, Sunday mornings.

The board's decision came in response to a complaint made by Twin Falls attorney Susan Roy. She was refused a tee time on the first Sunday of this month, because women were not allowed on the course before 11 a.m. Sundays, she was told.

She threatened to sue the city for practicing discrimination. If the policy was not changed, she said.

Friday, Roy said she was satisfied with the decision. "Sure, if that means I can call and get a tee time, that's what the system should be," she said.

City attorney Shane Bengochea had advised the city to change the policy, saying that not allowing women to play on Sunday was discriminatory since Sunday appeared to be a more desirable day than Thursday.

At the Friday meeting, Municipal Golf Course pro Don Hamblin claimed he had been misquoted in a story last Sunday outlining Roy's charge and the controversy.

Times-News managing editor Stephen Hargen said Friday that he had reviewed the reporter's notes on the Hamblin interview and would stand by the story as originally published.

Reagan tax plan a boon

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A new study says that the Reagan tax plan would be a boon for many businesses, and for the tax law itself.

Malvern, Pa., President Ronald Reagan, signed the tax law in the middle of a crisis and special interest corridor of high technology industries are digging in against the sweeping tax changes.

But you want a tax break, and you want it now. Reagan asked the crowd: "The tax breaks will be yours. The tax breaks will be yours. The tax breaks will be yours."

Amber from the Reagan tax plan is a boon for many businesses, and for the tax law itself.

Farmers' raw product prices dropped 1.5 percent in May

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices farmers receive for raw products dropped 1.5 percent in May to their lowest average level in more than two years, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The preliminary reading also was 1.1 percent below a year-ago. According to department records, the May index was down for the third straight month — was the lowest since January 1983. The index had held steady in January and February before dropping in March and April.

A year ago, as grain prices were still buoyed by 1983's short harvests, the index rose to a record level in April and declined only slightly in May. By last August, however, the improved 1984 crop outlook was being felt heavily in the market, and the price index began a five-month slide, leveling off during the winter.

In May, the report said, lower prices for tomatoes, cattle, wheat, milk and soybeans were mostly responsible for the decline in the index. Higher prices for oranges, onions, hay, lettuce and potatoes helped offset the drop for other commodities, however.

Meanwhile, the prices farmers paid in April again held steady, averaging the same as a year ago, said the department's Crop Reporting Board.

Higher prices were paid for fuel and other forms of energy and for family-living. But those were offset by decreases in prices of feed and feeder livestock.

Crop prices generally were down 0.8 percent from April and averaged 14 percent less than a year ago. Livestock and livestock product prices were down 1.5 percent from April and 7.6 percent from a year earlier.

Department economists say net farm income in 1985 could drop to a range of $19 billion to $24 billion from last year's $29 billion to $33 billion. Food prices are expected to rise 2 percent to 4 percent this year, compared with 3.8 percent in 1984.

According to the preliminary May figures, based primarily on mid-month averages, the index for meat animals was down 0.7 percent from April and 0.5 percent from a year earlier.

Poultry and eggs were down 2.7 percent from April and 20 percent below the year-earlier average.

The dairy price index dropped 1.5 percent during the month and was 2.2 percent below May 1984.

Vegetable prices dropped 4.8 percent from April and also averaged 4.8 percent less than a year earlier. Lower prices for tomatoes caused most of the decline during the month, although higher prices were reported for onions, lettuce and celery.

Overall, May farm commodity prices averaged 129 percent of a 1977 base used for comparison to the preliminary figures, down two points from the revised April index. A year earlier the index was 145 percent.

The April parity ratio of 52 percent was down from 53 percent in April.

Nationwide abuse prompts DEA to ban 'Ecstasy' drug

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing evidence showing that abuse of a drug popularly known as Ecstasy has become a nationwide problem, the Drug Enforcement Administration announced Friday it has moved to outlaw the substance.

An emergency ban on use of the drug, known formally as MDMA, will take effect July 1, said acting DEA Administrator John C. Lawn.

Lawn said he signed an emergency measure earlier this week that will place MDMA into Schedule I of the Controlled Substances Act. This is the most restrictive of the five categories established by federal drug law.

A drug appearing on Schedule I has high abuse potential, no accepted medical use and no accepted safety for use, the DEA said. Other substances already on the list include heroin, cocaine and LSD.

"All of the evidence DEA has received shows that MDMA abuse has become a nationwide problem and that it poses a serious health threat," Lawn said in a statement. "This emergency action is a stopgap measure to curb MDMA abuse until the administrative process can be completed."

DEA officials said their intention is to replace the emergency ban on MDMA with a permanent ban within a year.

Possession of a "trace" of a Schedule I drug could net a first-time offender 15 years in prison and a $25,000 fine.

The DEA was granted the emergency power to ban drugs under the Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1984. It has been used once before, when the Justice Department agency banned so-called "synthetic heroin" — methylpentanyl — in March.

The DEA acted against Ecstasy after it received information about parties being held in Texas in order to organize "pyramid" sales of MDMA. Officials said Friday that participants paid $20 for a sample tablet and were recruited to find other sellers of the legal drug.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, wrote to Lawn earlier this month asking for the emergency ban on Ecstasy, whose scientific name is 3,4-methylenedioxymethamphetamine. The drug will continue to undergo tests while the emergency ban remains in effect for one year.

MDMA is chemically related to the hallucinogen, mescaline. Another related drug, MDA, has been shown to cause brain damage. Some psychotherapists maintain the drug creates a feeling of well-being in patients, making them more receptive to treatment.

W.A. TONY BOYLE
Serving 3 life sentences

Convicted mine union leader dies

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — W.A. "Tony" Boyle, who once ruled the United Mine Workers of America with an iron fist and a fresh rose in his lapel, died Friday in a hospital near the prison where he was serving three life terms for murdering a union rival and his family.

Boyle, who was 63, died of heart failure in the Wilkes-Barre General Hospital, coronary care unit at 10:20 a.m., according to the hospital.

His daughter, Antoinette, was with him at the time, said Tom Fignik, a state Bureau of Corrections spokesman.

"He has had a variety of ailments over a long period of time," Fignik said. Boyle has been in generally ill health for most of the past decade, suffering from a heart condition and stomach ailments.

Boyle's death drew a terse statement from the union he led for nine years.

"The death of former UMWA president Boyle marks the final passage in a tragic chapter in the union's history," said Joseph Corcoran, a union spokesman, at the headquarters in Washington.

"The union's recovery from the events of the late 60s and early 70s is complete."

During his tenure, Boyle spent $200,000 in union funds for portraits of union leaders, who drew huge salaries and rode in limousines. He was convicted of misusing union money for political donations.

Boyle was originally convicted of the three murders in 1974, but the state Supreme Court in 1977 ordered a new trial, concluding that the union leader had not been allowed to present an adequate defense.

He was convicted again in 1978 of three "first-degree murder counts and received three consecutive life terms.

Boyle was the son of an Irish immigrant who worked the coal fields of southeastern Montana.

Reagan delays report on SALT compliance

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Friday postponed a report to Congress on whether the United States will continue to comply with the unratified SALT II treaty limiting nuclear arms.

The president's national security adviser, Robert C. McFarlane, said Reagan intends to submit the report, which was due Saturday under terms of the current military spending authorization law, by June 10.

In a letter to congressional leaders, McFarlane said the importance of the issue "argues strongly against haste" in reporting on it.

McFarlane said the subject will be discussed at a National Security Council meeting next week and Secretary of State George Shultz will take it up at a NATO meeting in Lisbon later in the week.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes has said Reagan may not announce a decision in his report to Congress, but may merely make a progress report and delay a decision until fall.

when the United States is scheduled to begin sea trials of the nuclear submarine Alaska.

"I am sure you understand that our judgments on this matter must take into account a number of important factors, including the pattern of Soviet non-compliance with existing arms control agreements," McFarlane said.

The treaty expires at the end of this year, and there have been suggestions that Reagan was likely to continue to abide by its broad outlines with some qualifications.

GAO, Fascell say Bigeye bomb not safe or reliable

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bigeye bomb, which the Pentagon hopes will modernize its aging chemical warfare arsenal, is neither safe nor reliable despite seven years of testing, according to the General Accounting Office and the chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., the committee chairman, said the GAO has reported that in six out of seven of the last controlled tests the weapon, designed to deliver lethal nerve gas, "failed to produce the chemical reaction at the minimum purity standards for the binary bomb operational temperature requirements."

He said that during a 1982 test the bomb exploded on its own.

Pentagon spokesmen, indicating the Defense Department disagrees with the finding that the Bigeye system is flawed, said Friday they were preparing a response.

The House is set to vote at the end of June on President Reagan's proposal to end a 16-year moratorium on the production of chemical weapons. The Senate already has approved production of the Bigeye, which is called a binary weapon because it is does not become operational until its two separate components are joined and the chemicals in them mixed.

The proposal has been approved by the House Armed Services Committee but is expected to be strongly opposed on the House floor, where it was defeated last year.

Fascell said the results of the GAO's review to date include these preliminary findings:

- "There have been 37 tests of the Bigeye bomb through January 1985. There have been many failures including the surprise explosion of the Bigeye bomb during a controlled mixing test in 1982."
- "The failures of the Bigeye bomb have involved pressure, heat, purity, moisture, structural and fusing problems."
- "Testing failures persist even though the tests have been conducted in controlled environments."
- "Six out of seven of the last controlled tests failed to produce the chemical reaction at the minimum purity standards for the binary bomb operational temperature requirements."
- "The controlled conditions of the tests have not reflected the realistic conditions under which these weapons will be used."

Reagan campaign fund cut blasted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's proposal to eliminate the one-dollar checkoff on tax returns is really just a "backdoor way of gutting the system" of public funding for presidential campaigns, opponents charged Friday.

Reagan's bid to stop the flow of money to the campaign fund was found nestled within his massive tax reform plan.

Phil Stern, head of Citizens against PACs, said Reagan's proposal is "not tax reform, it is a retreat from campaign finance reform."

Stern said repeal would be "an open invitation to another Watergate, because it would open the floodgates of special interest money" which he described as the situation in presidential elections before the finance law was passed.

Terry Michael, a spokesman for the Democratic National Committee, said, "If the president wants to scuttle public financing, he ought to face the issue squarely instead of trying this backdoor approach."

And Fred Wetzelmer, president of Common Cause, added: "It's a backdoor way of gutting the system of regulating campaigns that's worked pretty well the last three presidential elections."

Opponents of the move noted the irony of Reagan's stand: he has received more than any other politician from the fund. According to Federal Election Commission figures, Reagan received $90,426,806 in federal funds for his bids for the presidency in 1976, 1980 and 1984.

"The president has received over $90 million of this and he didn't seem to scream too much about it at the time."

3 soldier smugglers get clemency grants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three of the soldiers who were court-martialed for smuggling Soviet rifles back from Grenada in 1983 have received grants of clemency over the past week, the Army disclosed Friday.

The clemency actions do not overturn the court-martial convictions of the three. Each still has a legal appeal pending. But the clemency decisions do "remove the blot from their record" and at least open the possibility of the men returning to active duty, said Lt. Col. Craig MacNab, an Army spokesman.

One of the three is Capt. John E. Dorsz, the only officer among the five men that the Army court-martialed because of the Grenada affair. Dorsz has maintained that his punishment was disproportionate to that meted out to Vice Adm. Joseph Metcalf III, the Navy officer who commanded the Grenadan invasion.

Metcalf was prevented by U.S. Customs agents from bringing back 24 Soviet AK-47 automatic rifles on his military airplane after the October 1983 invasion of the Caribbean island. He was subsequently given a letter of reprimand.

In the meantime, MacNab and other Army officials denied that the decision to grant clemency to Dorsz, Staff Sgt. Allan J. Cassatt and Sgt. Bruce Willard was in any way connected to the questions that have been raised about Metcalf's treatment.

Gay Mullins' group wants to get back the old Coke

Old Cola Drinkers fight flavor change

SEATTLE (AP) — Coca-Cola tinkered with part of America's heritage when it changed its 99-year-old formula for the popular soft drink, says a man who's launching a grass-roots campaign to get the old Coke back.

"This isn't a joke. We are very serious," Gay Mullins said Friday of his new organization, the Old Cola Drinkers of America. He said the group, which grew out of a bunch of people talking in a Pioneer Square restaurant a week ago, just doesn't think "Coke is it!" anymore.

"I'm not a pretender," he told a news conference. "But there are people who come to me and say they are Coke drinkers. They prefer it to milk. A hamburger with Coke is like apple pie with cheese. And it's just not the same."

Mullins, 57, a former medical engineer at the University of Washington, said he hopes to rally tens of thousands of disgruntled Coke drinkers across the country to pressure the Atlanta-based Coca-Cola Co. to bring back its old brew.

If that fails, he said he's thinking of filing a class-action lawsuit in Atlanta that would seek to make the traditional drink available.

"The grounds of this suit is that we feel Coke has been around 99 years and we feel it is public domain," Mullins said.

"We want Coca-Cola to put the old Coke back on the shelves or to give the formula to someone else so they can produce the old Coke," he said.

Another alternative, he said, would be to make a lifetime supply of the old Coke available to members of his organization. "We'd be willing to pay for it," he said.

In Atlanta, Coca-Cola spokesman Ron Coleman said Friday he had not heard of Mullins or his group. But he said the company has no plans to return to the old Coke.

Mullins, who's owned and managed real estate since his retirement from the university in 1968, said he's committed $30,000 to the old Coke movement and has set up a nationwide toll call phone number where people can call for more information. His group receives 25 cents for each 50-cent call. The number is 1-900-410-2000.

Archeologists uncover entire soldier skeleton

CROW AGENCY, Mont. (AP) — Archeologists have gingerly scraped 109 years worth of hard-packed soil from a jumbled group of bones that could represent the nearly complete skeleton of a 19th-century cavalry trooper.

Volunteer archeologist Colleen Winchell of Billings found the first traces of the remains Wednesday while digging near an isolated battle marker on Greasy Grass Ridge. More bones from the dead soldier were exposed in two days of digging until pieces from virtually every part of the body were uncovered.

"We've got pieces from the tip of the toe to the top of his head," said Melissa Connor, archeologist in charge of the excavation.

In the excavation pit, which was about a foot deep, pieces of pelvis, ribs, arms, jaw and leg bones were found mixed with fragments of skull and teeth.

"It's probably a secondary burial," Connor said, explaining the unnatural piling of the bones. She said that in 1877, a year after the Battle of the Little Bighorn, a reburial detail may have picked up what they could find of the soldier's remains and piled them into a pit.

A complete lower leg was missed during the reburial. Just inches from the pile of bones, an entire lower leg, with the foot bones still in a boot, was found in the position where the soldier fell.

The bones will be sent to a forensic pathologist in Oklahoma where they will be studied for clues to the cause of death, signs of mutilation and distinguishing characteristics that may help identify the soldier, Connor said that the more complete the remains, the better the odds for attaching a name.

Shippy girls sent home

NEW PLYMOUTH (AP) — Two New Plymouth girls separated from parents who refused to give them an approved education are back home, but their father says there is an hours-long delay in the reunion so so the oldest girl could attend a dance that violated her religious teachings.

"Our children have never been to a dance," Sam Shippy said after the two girls who had been in foster care since January arrived at the family's rural New Plymouth home at about 11:30 p.m. MDT on Thursday. They had been expected in the afternoon.

Shippy said the delay apparently occurred because the girls' foster parent wanted to give the oldest, an eighth-grader, a chance to attend an evening dance, even though dances are prohibited by the family's religion. Shippy said he and his family are "followers of Christ."

He said the girls, Samantha, 8, and Sheri, 14, appeared tired but happy when reunited with their parents and siblings late Thursday, which Shippy said customarily is "church night" for the family.

Youth center called 'cruel'

By MARK WARBIS
The Associated Press

BOISE — U.S. District Judge Ray McNichols has ruled that past disciplinary practices at the state Youth Services Center in St. Anthony constituted "cruel and unusual punishment and lack of due process."

But in issuing his declaratory judgment from the bench Friday morning after eight days of testimony in Boise, McNichols refused to include a court order effectively barring the state from re-instituting unconstitutional or abusive practices that officials at the juvenile detention facility admitted occurred in the past.

"I've had a natural resistance to interference through federal courts whenever it can be avoided," McNichols said. But he added that it was clear the allegations against the state by youth-advocacy groups of past abusive conduct were valid.

Elizabeth Johnson, attorney for the Youth Law Center of San Francisco which brought the original class-action suit, argued for a "limited injunction" on grounds that through months of negotiation and litigation with the state, officials had never conceded that juveniles were harmed by the abusive practices of the past. State officials have, however, conceded that past disciplinary procedures at the eastern Idaho facility were at least improper.

"If the constitution has any meaning for children, that arrogant attitude cannot be permitted," Jameson said during her closing statement. But while McNichols declined to issue the injunction, she called his condemnation of past actions "a major victory for children. This will be a strong precedent in other cases."

Despite McNichols' determination of past problems, state Health and Welfare Director Rose Bowman said she was "establis" with the decision not to grant an injunction or request for outside monitoring of the facility.

"I really feel good about it since it allows us to really move forward with the program," she said. "We want to continue to progress and make it better than it is right now."

McNichols said that Health and Welfare officials have proved that programs instituted over the past three years to end abuses would continue. The judge said he was "intrigued" with the idea of implementing a monitoring or reporting mechanism at the YSC. But he declined to order such a program, calling it potentially disruptive and costly.

During the two-week trial, there has been testimony that children were restrained in "straitjackets, handcuffed to stationary objects, placed in isolation cells for weeks and forced to sit or stand motionless. Both sides in the case agreed those practices no longer occur.

Joining the Youth Law Center in the class-action suit on behalf of students at the YSC were the National Center for Youth Law, also in San Francisco, and Idaho Legal Aid Services.

In closing arguments earlier in the morning, Ray Givens, the state's attorney, urged McNichols to dismiss the lawsuit entirely.

Givens contended the case should never have come to trial, arguing that federal courts normally declined to consider cases where questions of fact already have been decided and where there is no reason for swift judicial intervention.

He also said the state had proven its reliability in recent years in carrying out treatment and rehabilitation programs at the St. Anthony facility.

"They're standing up on their own two feet. They've changed the things that needed to be changed and they've said 'We can solve our own problems.'" Givens said. "Isn't that the way the system should work?"

But Ms. Jameson countered that court-imposed safeguards are needed to insure that past disciplinary practices, inadequate medical and psychiatric care and educational services, and health and safety violations do not recur.

Idaho high court orders new hearing

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Industrial Commission will have to reconsider its denial of unemployment benefits to a woman who says she quit her job with a Post Falls company because of sexual harassment, the Idaho Supreme Court says.

Patricia Small, now of Newman Lake, Wash., quit in August, 1982, after working about five months as a field hand for Jacklin Seed Co. She filed for unemployment benefits with the state Department of Employment, claiming she had good cause for leaving the job.

The claim was denied twice by the department and then turned over to an appeals examiner, who ruled after conducting a telephone conference hearing that Ms. Small did not have good cause for quitting.

On further appeal, the Industrial Commission reviewed a transcript of the examiner's telephone conference and agreed with his finding that the woman voluntarily quit without good cause.

However, the Supreme Court ruled 3-2 on Thursday that the Industrial Commission's decision should be overturned and 4-1 that the panel should conduct a new hearing on the case.

Justice Robert Bakes wrote for the majority that the commission, "apparently through inadvertence," did not consider all the evidence available to it, including a handbook for Jacklin's temporary employees and photographs of workers taken by

Ms. Small's supervisor illustrating his "alleged preoccupation with sexual matters."

Justice Stephen Blistine agreed with striking down the commission's ruling, but said he was "appalled" and "outraged" by the court's decision to order a rehearing without considering the merits of the sexual harassment claims itself.

He said a new hearing would only give Jacklin's lawyers and witnesses time to "create a conflict in the evidence."

Volcano visit thwarted by weather and fumes

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Scientists made a brief visit to the crater of Mount St. Helens but reported little cooperation from the weather or the volcano in trying to examine a new lava flow Friday.

Steve Brantley of the U.S. Geological Survey said clouds and volcanic fumes prevented scientists from getting a good look at the new lobe on the southeast face of the massive lava dome in the crater. The northern flank of the dome appeared to be stable, however, he said.

The new lobe, less than 300 feet in diameter, was first seen by helicopter Thursday, the first time in four days that scientists were able to see the inside of the crater.

The lava flow confirmed the start of an eruption that had been predicted May 20.

Brantley said earthquakes beneath the 8,944-foot peak had not changed in the last 24 hours and remained at extremely high levels.

Tremors within the lava dome increased in intensity Thursday but were occurring less frequently than 24 hours before, said Thom Corcoran of the U.S. Forest Service.

Seismic analysts at the University of Washington geophysics center in Seattle said earthquakes were occurring every few minutes and ranged in intensity from 2.5 to 3 on the open-ended Richter scale of ground motion.

Bean growers vote to dissolve association

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Bean Growers Warehouse Association voted to put the organization into voluntary receivership Wednesday night and dissolve the association.

The move affects Bean Growers warehouses all over the Magic Valley. Ellis Smith, general manager and treasurer of the Bean Growers Association in Twin Falls, stressed that the vote does not mean that the warehouses themselves are being dissolved.

While a large majority of members voted in favor of disbanding the present organization, he said there was "some enthusiasm among some of the growers for putting together a new association."

Nothing definite, however, was decided at the meeting and "the possibility that it will be ultimately dissolved is still questionable," according to Smith.

The group, however, has not yet officially filed for voluntary receivership. Right now the warehouses are still conducting "business as usual," according to Smith. If the warehouses' filing for receivership, they can operate without a bond because they are under the supervision of the court.

Problems for the association began in 1981 when the price of beans dropped to $10 per hundredweight causing them to operate at a loss. Bankruptcies by other bean growers also cost the local association money.

In 1982 the Magic Valley group lost $273,000 when Coast Trading Company went bankrupt. Last year, Outwest Bean Inc. went bankrupt costing the growers, $253,000.

Troubles have also plagued the group's wheat facilities which have not been competitive on the marketplace since freight rates were deregulated.

While the group has been able to turn the operation around and make a profit over the past year, they have been unable to undo the longterm financial damage done to the association, reporting to a recent president's report released at Wednesday's meeting.

While the association was showing a profit of $226,000 at the end of March, the Safeco Insurance Corporation of America refused to renew the Bean Growers bond. The cancellation becomes effective on July 15 of this year.

While filing for receivership would allow the warehouses to stay open, it is also possible that cash and crop assets could be tied up in court.

On May 10 the association sent letters to its members urging those with beans or wheat stored in their warehouses or money owed to them from previous sales to contact their lawyer immediately.

Western Days theme parade planned today

By DOUG WRIGHT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Western Days continues today with a full slate of activities scheduled throughout the city.

Highlighting the action is the "Anything Western" Parade, which winds its way through the city beginning at 11:30 a.m.

The parade will feature a wide variety of entrants including antique cars, horse-drawn carriages, drill teams, an antique paddy wagon, the Miss Twin Falls contestants, a group from the musical "Oklahoma," mini-motorcycles, the Western Days float, and a number of horse-and-rider groups.

Beginning at the College of Southern Idaho, the parade will run east on Falls Avenue and up Blue Lakes Boulevard and Shoshone Street. Then it will turn left on Second Avenue East and swing back to march down Main Avenue through the Downtown Mall.

Judging of the parade entrants will begin at 10:30 a.m. and groups may enter the parade up to that time. Only those entrants with a Western theme will be considered for awards.

Other Western Days events scheduled for today include:

- The final day of the professional rodeo at the College of Southern Idaho Expo Center. More than 200 cowboys are vying for $3,500 in prize money in seven different events.

The crowning of the Twin Falls Western Days Rodeo Queen, trick-riding by Dottie Taylor, comedy by 1979 Pro Rodeo Clown of the Year Tony Taylor, and a media calf-tying competition will round out the entertainment tonight.

The rodeo, which begins at 7 p.m., will cost $4 for adults, $3 for students, and children under 6 are admitted free.

- The second day of the Western Days American Legion Baseball Tournament at Frontier Field. Beginning at 9 a.m. and running all day, the round-robin tournament features teams from Buhl, Valley, Jerome and Twin Falls.
- The first annual Western Days Horseshoe Pitching Tournament at Drury Park on Washington Street. For a $5 entry fee, pitchers will be able to compete for prizes donated by the Sandpiper and Aroma restaurants, Independent Meat Co. and the Twin Falls Horseshoe Pitchers' Club. Registration for the tournament is from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. with the tournament slated to begin at 3 p.m.

Buhl couple files suit against county

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Buhl couple has filed claims against Twin Falls County and the city of Buhl alleging their civil rights were violated because Buhl police and Twin Falls County Sheriff deputies illegally seized weapons when their daughter allegedly attempted suicide Jan. 26.

George Dennis Jr. and his wife, Marge, filed a claim with the Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners and the city of Buhl May 21. The couple is seeking $50,000 in damages.

The attorneys for the county and city say they have turned over the claim to their individual insurance companies for action.

According to reports from the Twin Falls Sheriff office, deputies and a Buhl police officer responded to the Dennis residence during the early morning hours of Jan. 26 after a call from 19-year-old Edith Mildred Dennis, the daughter of George Dennis. The teenager had reported she had cut her wrist and wanted to commit suicide.

Upon arrival, officers found the lights on but the doors locked and blood drops on the ground outside the residence.

The officers entered through a coal chute door and found no one home, but more blood drops on a table, a sheriff's report states.

Buhl officer Kelly Wilson reported that this was the fourth time Edith Dennis had cut her wrists and then called for help.

With permission of Dennis' son George, who resided in Twin Falls, the officers removed three rifles and a pistol for "safekeeping" so the girl wouldn't harm herself if she returned to the residence, stated the reports.

The weapons, which were owned by George Dennis Jr., were placed in the evidence room at the sheriff's office. The elder Dennis had been in Canada at the time of the incident.

The teenager by that time had been located by her brother's house in Twin Falls.

On Jan. 27, the weapons were released to Dennis' son, the sheriff's report states.

The claim from the couple also included copies of reports from the Buhl police and Twin Falls sheriff's office of previous attempted suicides by Edith Dennis.

George and Marge Dennis claim their civil rights were violated because the officers illegally entered their home.

"I don't feel people should go into my house," Dennis said. He added that he had been available if they wanted to contact him.

Under Idaho law, the claimants may file suit in district or federal courts after the county and city have rejected their initial claim.

Boise police chase truck to Fairfield

By The Associated Press

FAIRFIELD — Two juveniles were taken into custody in Camas County early Friday after a chase that began in Boise when police observed them taking goods from the back of a delivery truck, authorities reported.

The pair, a boy and a girl who remained unidentified, sustained minor injuries when they finally wrecked the pickup truck they were in while unsuccessfully trying to avoid a roadblock just west of Fairfield on U.S. 20.

"The driver apparently waited a little bit too long before making up his mind what to do about the narrow pit in trying to get the roadblock, and that put him airborne," said Idaho State Police Lt. C.J. Peugh. "When he came down, he wrecked the truck."

The pursuit, which involved units from the Idaho State Police, Boise city police and the Elmore and Camas County sheriff's departments, began before dawn in Boise when police saw the pair taking milk, eggs and cheese from the back of the delivery truck, authorities said.

The pair fled east on Interstate 84, police said, and after eluding a roadblock at Mountain Home, headed east on U.S. 20 toward Fairfield where they encountered the final roadblock.

According to authorities, the pickup truck and license plates on it were stolen as was a motorcycle loaded in the truck's cargo bed.

Officials said the pair would be returned to Boise after treatment of the injuries at a Mountain Home hospital.

Financial advice for farmers planned

By KEN BROWN
Times-News writer

JEROME — A state-sponsored "family farm hot line" to help farmers facing financial difficulty or foreclosure was announced Thursday by Galen Guthrie, President of the Magic Valley Farm Borrowers Association.

Guthrie, Shoshone, also outlined the group's opposition to a new proposed merger between the Production Credit Association and the Federal Land Bank in southern Idaho.

The new farm hot line is intended to put farmers in financial trouble in touch with experienced professionals and organizations to get help on an emergency basis.

The in-state toll-free hotline number is 1-800-257-3276. The last four digits spell F-A-R-M on the telephone dial.

The number will put the caller in touch with volunteers at the state Department of Agriculture who will refer callers. The hot line will begin operating June 5.

One farmer in the audience said that he thought the referral service was a good idea and noted that there are about 50 similar "hot line" programs around the country.

Guthrie said farmers could often avoid a lot of trouble if they could get sound advice during these crisis times.

He added that farmers often don't know where to find the needed expertise on financial problems.

Guthrie, who also works as a consultant writing farm plans for financially troubled farmers, said he now receives as many as 18 phone calls a day for help.

Guthrie also discussed the potential impact of the proposed merger of southern Idaho's PCA and the Federal Land Bank.

Speaking before the meeting, Guthrie said, "It used to be that if you were turned down by the Federal Land Bank, you could go to the PCA. Now our chances are cut in half."

Motorcycle and truck collide

TWIN FALLS — Tearl Seebold, of 444 Locust St., was treated and released at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center Friday after he was thrown from his motorcycle in a collision.

Seebold was traveling west on Elizabeth Boulevard at 6:15 p.m. when James Higgenbotham, of 1833 Elizabeth Blvd., ran into his motorcycle. Higgenbotham was attempting to back his pickup and camper across the street into his driveway, according to Twin Falls Police reports.

Seebold was traveling about 50 miles per hour, according to the reports. No citations were issued.

'Hoppers hatching early, spray planners call for extra help

By The Associated Press

BOISE — Federal grasshopper spraying could occur in several parts of Idaho simultaneously because of an early hatch, and that prospect has planners calling in extra help to coordinate the spray project that farmers say is essential to protect their crops.

By the middle of June, spraying could be needed in nearly a dozen counties from the Oregon border to as far east as Malad, said Roger Pollard, who heads the federal spray program from a U.S. Department of Agriculture office in Twin Falls.

"This is unique in the 16 years I have been involved in grasshopper spraying in Idaho," Pollard told the state's grasshopper task force on Thursday.

"In a normal year, we've started spraying in Adams and Washington counties and moved up the (Snake River) plain as the hatch occurs," Pollard said. "This year, we received calls on the same day from Council to Malad. We don't usually get to Malad until the end of July."

The early hatch poses many problems, he said, among them how to kill the maximum number of insects when some grasshoppers are reaching the adult stage while others are just emerging from eggs laid in the soil.

Another difficulty will be finding experienced personnel and enough planes to attack hoppers in several areas at once, he said.

County agricultural extension agents will remain the primary contact for landowners and committees mapping the spray attack, Pollard said.

The federal government has agreed to hire 10 fruit and vegetable inspectors, who work seasonally for the state, to help county agents, said Dick Bush, director of the Idaho Department of Agriculture.

Several officials of the USDA's pest control agency also are coming to Idaho to help with the fight, Pollard said.

Idaho spraying under the federal program is scheduled to begin Wednesday on 130,000 acres south of the Snake River near Bruneau.

A decision to use a different insecticide in the Bruneau area has prompted demands by farmers elsewhere that the chemical, Sevin-A oil, also be used on public ranges adjoining their property. But Sevin is more expensive to apply, and the state would run out of money if it were used widely in the program, Rush said.

Brisk pace set at arms talks

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators quickly got down to business Friday in the second round of talks on nuclear and space arms, while Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Moscow recommended a deadline on arms control proposals.

No details were released on the substance of the meeting, in keeping with a U.S. Soviet confidentiality agreement. The negotiating teams, headed by John G. Tower and Victor P. Karpov, who also heads the overall Soviet delegation, met for two hours and 50 minutes, said a U.S. statement.

The statement did not give the date, place or subject of the next meeting and U.S. spokesmen Terry Shroeder refused to disclose the information. That advance information, provided routinely during the first round and in previous arms talks in Geneva, will be withheld from now on and disclosed only after meetings take place, said Shroeder, without explaining the reason for the new policy.

The new U.S. policy goes beyond the confidentiality agreement, which precludes details of the talks in public.

In Moscow, meanwhile, Gorbachev proposed a one- or two-month deadline for both sides to submit arms control suggestions in Geneva. But he made his recommendation conditional on a deployment moratorium that has already been rejected by the Reagan administration.

Speaking at a Kremlin banquet for visiting Czechoslovak leader Gustav Husak, Gorbachev renewed the proposal for an immediate moratorium on nuclear and space weapons as a confidence building measure between the two superpowers.

The Reagan administration has argued that such a move would freeze a Soviet advantage in nuclear and anti-satellite weapons. Gorbachev has contended the moratorium "would not give advantage to either side."

It was not clear how such a deadline would alter the substance of the talks, since the two sides agreed in January that they would search for ways to reduce nuclear and space weapons.

It was also not clear if Gorbachev's statement implied that negotiators at Geneva have not yet submitted their countries' full proposals for reducing arms in the three areas under discussion: strategic nuclear weapons, nuclear missiles in Europe and space weapons.

The talks here are expected to follow the pattern of the first six-week round. The group on space and defense met Tuesdays, the strategic nuclear arms group met Wednesdays and the medium-range weapons group on Thursdays. Three extra sessions were held near the end of the round.

A Bangladesh soldier carries rice to storm survivors

Bangladesh dead are mostly young

URIR CHAR, Bangladesh (AP) — The bodies, many of them small, still wash ashore a week after the fearsome storm, in the Bay of Bengal.

The government said Friday that most of the thousands swept into the sea were children.

Troops are helping survivors build tin huts to replace flimsier ones crushed by the huge waves that struck the flat islands and delta settlements a week ago.

Navy landing craft bring food, water and medicine to the 3,000 survivors on this island, one of the hardest hit by the storm last Saturday.

President Hussain Ershad said Thursday that more than 10,000 people were killed by the storm. He spent the night on Urir Char in one of two concrete structures left standing. It is now used as a food storehouse for survivors.

The Bangladesh Foreign Office said Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi of India and President Junius Jayewardene of Sri Lanka would tour the disaster area Sunday.

Col. Abu-Nayem Amin Ahmed, a government spokesman, said in the capital of Dhaka, 200 miles to the north, that 233 more bodies were recovered Thursday on the islands and in the vast flat delta formed by the Ganges and Brahmaputra rivers.

He said that brought the total of recovered bodies to 1,748. No new figures were available Friday.

Palestinians caught in last stronghold

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — With Syrian troops reported ready to move into Beirut, Shiite Moslem fighters overran the Sabra refugee camp Friday and captured its last band of Palestinian guerrilla defenders.

Revoking a cease-fire Moslem militias declared hours earlier, Amal militiamen and Lebanese army troops overwhelmed the last holdouts in Sabra and massed for an assault on the neighboring Chatilla refugee camp.

The Shiite Moslems have been battling Palestinians in the camps for 12 days in fighting that has claimed more than 420 lives.

"Sabra has fallen after heroic battles by our men," a Palestinian spokesman said. Other Palestinians said jubilant Shites started dynamiting Sabra's tin-roofed houses and "leveling the camp bit by bit."

Amal stopped reporters from entering Sabra and the Palestinian reports could not be confirmed.

Reporters saw the bloodstained bodies of 10 Palestinian fighters, still wearing ammunition belts and bayonets, lying in a soccer stadium outside Sabra.

Radio stations said up to 80 guerrillas were shot dead as they tried to escape from the camp at dawn. Amal said it captured the last 20 Palestinian guerrillas holding out.

But Palestinian sources said 30 guerrillas were captured by Amal and the 6th brigade. "They include senior officers," one Palestinian spokesman said.

There were widespread reports that Syria was prepared to send troops to the Lebanese capital to end the bloodshed. Reporters in the Bekan Valley 20 miles east of Beirut, said Syrian soldiers had been placed on alert and were moving into new positions.

The movements heightened speculation that President Hafez Assad of Syria had agreed to intervene. Newspaper reports said President Amin Gemayel requested Syrian military help during a meeting with Assad in Damascus. Gemayel flew back to Beirut on Friday, but said nothing about the outcome of the talks. The pro-Syrian daily al-Hakika said the Syrian government has decided to send troops to Beirut. Several sources said Syrian intervention was imminent.

Killer recants tale

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A convicted killer, who claimed he was offered money to assassinate Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said in a television interview Thursday night he fabricated the story to avoid returning to prison.

Jozef Szczepanski, who was arrested May 9 after warning Walesa about a plot on his life, said in an interview with a TV news reporter that he concocted the story.

Walesa, contacted by telephone Friday at his Gdansk apartment, said he was doubtful about Szczepanski's denial of the murder plot.

Afghan crisis talks set

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Afghanistan and Pakistan have agreed to return to Geneva in June for a fourth round of United Nations talks on a political solution to the Afghan crisis, a U.N. official said Friday.

U.N. Envoy Diego Cordovez, who has presided over the Geneva talks, said both nations wanted the sessions to continue and there was a chance of progress.

"The diplomatic process relating to Afghanistan is alive and well and it is going back to Geneva on the 19th or 20th of June," Cordovez told a news conference.

Following meetings in Islamabad and Kabul this week, Cordovez said both sides had indicated certain changes in their positions. He said he could not say what new initiatives may be discussed in Geneva or give details on what he had discussed with Pakistani and Afghan officials.

Cordovez has presided over three previous sessions of summit talks in Geneva on ways to end the Afghan problem. The last round was in August.

Marijuana carries less penalty than spice

Oregano cigarette may bring jail time

DALLAS (AP) — A 19-year-old woman accused of selling oregano cigarettes to undercover police officers faces a stiffer penalty than she would had the cigarettes contained marijuana.

In that case, a conviction would bring only a possible one-year sentence and a $2,000 fine.

Sherry Gann was arrested outside a Deep Purple concert at Reunion Arena on Jan. 25. Police said she offered undercover officers what she said were joints for $2 apiece.

Ms. Gann's attorney, Anne Adair, and Dallas County Assistant District Attorney Andy Beach have conferred on the case. Both say it is still uncertain whether it will go to trial or whether Ms. Gann will enter a plea. Beach expects it to be decided in a couple of weeks.

The law in question is alternatively called the "bunk drug" or "turkey drug" law. It is designed to deliver a stiff penalty to people who sell phony drugs as real ones.

Proponents say it wasn't really intended to apply to people selling phony marijuana, and Ms. Adair says it is stupid that her clients faces charges.

"I think it's a dumb law," she said this week. "It just wasn't designed for this kind of case. I don't think it was the intention of the lawmakers."

Ms. Gann says she never said the substance was marijuana and at the time of the arrest told the officers, "Hey, this is just tobacco."

"I've never done anything like this before in my life, and now look at how far it's gotten out of hand," she told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in an interview in March.

She told the newspaper she sold the oregano cigarettes because "I just really needed money because my husband had been laid off, and we needed to feed our baby."

Ms. Gann has an unlisted telephone number and her attorney declined to arrange an interview this week.

Prosecutor Beach meanwhile, refused to make many comments about the case. "Don't start asking me rationales or if it's a good law or not," he said.

Beach said he doesn't know why the bunk drug law treats all phony drugs alike. "On the face of it, it doesn't look as serious as selling heroin (lookalike drugs)," he said.

But Sgt. Tom Wafer of the police vice division said he believes the law is perfectly fair. He said officers have seen several examples of phony pot, mainly pepper or even Bermuda grass.

Wafer laughs about the time he saw some Johnson grass, a common southwestern weed, bundled in bricks to pass as marijuana.

Democratic State Sen. Bob Glasgow has no regrets about sponsoring the law.

Man plans to pilot 65 airplanes today

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A man who spent his working hours in the concrete business and his free time in the air plans to celebrate his 65th birthday trying to fly 65 of his best-loved planes in 10 hours.

Col. Tom A. Thomas Jr. says he'll be satisfied if he accomplishes his adventure Saturday in 12 hours. He plans to start as the sun comes up and finish before it sets.

Thomas owns 74 planes and says he will fly 65 of the "most famous ones and the ones I love most," and the ones that aren't broken.

He plans to spend about 10 minutes in the air in each of the antique and World War II planes, taking no more than two minutes to hop from one aircraft to another at the Mid-America Air Group's field in Frederick.

Guinness Book of World Records will mark his feat. "Now that I'm 65 I'll start drawing my profit-sharing money. . . I told my wife I thought I would be drinking whiskey and chasing women. But I found whiskey doesn't do too much for me and I'm a little too old to chase women," he said.

Instead, Thomas said, he will stick to flying and supporting the Mid-America Air Group, which he helped found.

Thomas, who earned his color in World War II and has a long list of decorations, citations and campaigns testifying to his flying experience, says he has spent $2 million on his aircraft collection. The planes are at least 25 years old, unless they are homebuilt or experimental craft. They are housed in trust at the Mid-America Air Group's flying museum in Frederick, a town in southwest Oklahoma.

Comic book may be worth $12,000

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — Holy Cow, Batman! A 10-cent comic book worth up to $12,000!

"It's one of the 10 most important comic books ever printed," comic dealer George Suarez, who expects to get $8,000 to $12,000 for a mint condition copy of Detective Comics No. 27.

of Batman on the cover. Suarez, co-owner of the New England Comics store, estimates that only 20 to 50 copies are still in existence.

He said 10 years ago he bought another copy for $250 and sold it for $500.

Suarez, 31, said he bought the comic for $5,000 from a Whitman man who asked that his identity not be revealed.

Boy gets donor's liver after Reagan's appeal

BOSTON (AP) — A 6-year-old boy whose need for a donor's liver touched the heart of the White House, was in critical but stable condition Friday after nine hours of transplant surgery, officials said.

Shaun Harrington "was so frail before the operation that we are just not in any position to give any indication how he is going to do," said Martin Bander, spokesman for Massachusetts General Hospital.

Newspaper articles last week about the Newport, N.H., boy caught the attention of President Reagan, who used the child's case to make a nationwide appeal for organ donors.

On Wednesday, Undersecretary of Health and Human Services Charles Baker traveled to Boston to make another public call for help. The same day, the youngster's father, Donald Harrington, went on national television for 17 minutes to plead for a donor.

Shaun's liver was donated by the family of a 4-year-old girl who died in a West Virginia hospital after an accident, Bander said.

The organ arrived in Boston early Friday with a team of Mass General surgeons who had flown down to retrieve it.

Bander said Shaun went through the surgery well, and the first three or four days will be the most critical. The child is being given drugs to prevent rejection of his new liver.

Shaun suffered from alpha-one antitrypsin deficiency, a rare enzyme disorder which leads to liver failure, Bander said. Some of the money to pay for the operation will come from the $85,000 Newport residents raised last spring and $25,000 from leftover money raised to pay for a liver transplant for Dorothy Goodwin of Lebanon, N.H., who received a transplant in Pittsburgh in February 1984.

McPeak adds extra zoom to being high

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — High wire artist Steve McPeak, who gained national attention when he was married on a cable high above the Hoover Dam

George, has been ordered to undergo an evaluation before being sentenced on drug charges.

District Judge John Mendoza ordered the evaluation Thursday after McPeak, 39, pleaded guilty to one count of possession of cocaine. McPeak was arrested March 1 at the Sahara Hotel after selling a gram of cocaine to an undercover police officer for $100.

McPeak told Mendoza he had no prior involvement in drugs and that the cocaine charge was an isolated incident.

McPeak, whose wire walking feats are listed in the Guinness Book of World Records, has been in trouble with federal officials before for walking on a cable 750 feet above the Hoover Dam gorge.

After being arrested for trespassing on the cable in 1982 and told never to return, he reappeared in March of 1983 and married Carly Bliss of Scottsdale, Ariz. on the perilous perch. They spent their wedding night 750 feet above the Colorado River.

What's what

The Swedes discovered orange juice in the late 1800s. Earlier, nobody there drank it. Then within months, everybody was onto it. Exceedingly health-conscious, the Swedes. They now drink more orange juice per capita than the Americans. Sellers of comestibles dream about finding an explosive new market such as that.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day and evening to attend to chores in a conscientious and pleasant fashion. Most everyone will be under tension and this could cause rifts in relationships.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) If you have any legal troubles, be sure to handle them wisely or you could lose a great deal. Avoid criticism.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Treat easily with a partner and be sure not to lose your temper, or there can be serious trouble. Retain the status quo.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try not to quarrel with co-workers and this becomes a good day. Make sure to take care of your health and not over-work.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Although you want to have a fine time, you may find it difficult to find right companions to go with you or it will be too costly. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Some error you may make in the outside world could be costly, so be on your guard. Don't ask favors of a bigwig.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) A good day to prepare for the new conditions you want to come to fruition in the near future. A stranger may make a tempting offer.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day for study and being more economical and avoiding snap judgment and quick investments. Be cautious.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you think you can have everything your way today, you are sadly mistaken and will lose out by being stubborn.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Keep your equilibrium if obstacles arise in the path of your plans, as they are apt to.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A bosom buddy may be too busy to go out with you to usual fun places of assistance to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use much care in handling civic or public duties now or wait a better day for such. Obey rules.

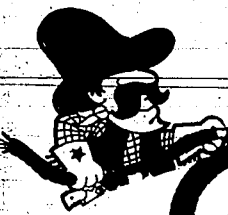

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) You have many fine ideas now but should follow those that are a challenge to your fine mentality. Show that you have wisdom.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be full of charm and magnetism, but will also have a mind of his or her own and will be positive in going after what is desired, so be sure to give fine moral and ethical training early. This will be a person who will do well where protecting the interests of others is concerned.

Stocks surge to record close

By CHET CURRIER The Associated Press NEW YORK — The stock market rallied with renewed force Friday, hitting record highs with a push from lower interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 9.63 to 1,315.41, topping the previous peak of 1,309.70 reached on May 21. For the week the average gained 18.84 points.

Volume on the New York Exchange stepped up to 134.14 million shares from 108.76 million Thursday.

Before the market opened the Commerce Department reported that new factory orders fell 0.5 percent in April. The drop came after revised declines of 0.7 percent in March and 1.1 percent in February.

However, fresh evidence of sluggishness in business activity led to a drop in interest rates, and a rise in bond prices. In the credit markets, prices of long-term government bonds moved up more than $10 for every $1,000 in face value.

Analysts also said traders were encouraged by the steady showing of international business. Machinery stock despite the company's projection of slightly lower earnings for the second quarter. IBM also said it is still looking for a strong showing in the second half of the year.

As a prominent blue-chip issue and the No. 1 holding of investing institutions, IBM can sometimes lead the tone for the market as a whole. After falling a fraction in early trading, it climbed to 128 1/2, up 7/8 from Thursday's close.

Among other actively traded blue chips, American Telephone & Telegraph rose 3/4 to 23 1/4, and Sears Roebuck 1/4 to 38 3/4.

Airline stocks were strong, and energy issues mixed. Amid talk of new downward pressure on oil prices, UAL, which also got a recommendation from a brokerage house, gained 3/4 to 53 1/4; AMR 2 1/4 to 47 3/4, and Delta 1/4 to 48.

The gains in the airline group helped drive the Dow Jones average of 20 transportation stocks up 15.11 points to a new high of 645.16.

Long Island Lighting jumped 1 1/4 to 9 1/4 in active trading. The county executive for eastern Long Island said he would stand in opposition to Lillo's Shoreham nuclear power plant.

On the downside, Black & Decker fell 2 1/4 to 20 1/4. The company said its sales and earnings for the current fiscal quarter will be lower than previously projected.

Burdny, which lowered its quarterly dividend from 21 to 11 cents a share, dropped 1 1/2 to 13 1/4. In the daily-tally to the Big Board, advancing issues outnumbered declines by nearly 2 to 1. The exchange's composite index rose 90 to 109.63, just short of its recent high.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 162.43 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials rose 1.85 to 209.85, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up 1.80 to 189.55.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market added 38 to 220.80. All the American Stock Exchange's market-value index closed at 231.97, up 1.39.

Young That's outlook for Twin Falls Cowboys . . .

Editor's note: The following is a look at the prospects for Magic Valley's Class A American Legion baseball teams this season. Previews for the Valley's B teams will appear in Tuesday's Times-News.

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Second-year Twin Falls Cowboys Coach Mike Tremayne allows that he has some ballplayers this year who can pitch and hit a baseball. It's just that they will have a tough act to follow.

More Legion — B2

"I was looking down the list of the kids we have out this year, and I kept seeing and '16' after their names," says Tremayne, whose team opens the season this weekend by hosting the Western Days tournament. "We have some holes to fill."

One area is two of best starting pitchers a Cowboys' team has had in a long time — southpaw Nathan Burke and right-hander Scott Mallock — who combined for a .31 record last season. There were largely responsible for Twin Falls' 28-18 finish last summer that culminated in a 10-inning 4-0 loss to Rexburg in last summer's Southern District tournament. Gone also is Shawn Humberger, the shortstop was the Cowboys' steadiest hitter in 1984 with a .345 average.

It's not that Twin Falls is exactly bereft of experience — second baseman Rob Ellis, last year's cleanup hitter — is back along with center-fielder Kirk Slater and shortstop Matt Harr and infielder Nick Baumer.

Rob Ellis, here sliding safely into second base against Buhl's Kebb Roberts in Friday night's season opener, may be the key offensively for the Cowboys.

both of whom were regulars by the end of last season. Third baseman Tim Crossman, who played junior varsity baseball at Brigham Young University last spring, will also return.

"If you go along with the philosophy that to build a strong baseball team you have to be strong up the middle, then we should be all right," says Tremayne. "Ellis is solid at second, Harr's a . . . good . . . shortstop, Baumer played second for us last season. And Slater was our starting center fielder."

In addition, Casey Bartholomew — a reserve from last year's Legion team (.362 in 17 at-bats) and Twin Falls High's starting catcher this spring — gives the Cowboys some experience behind the plate.

If the middle includes pitching, then Twin Falls should be even better. Harr was the Cowboys' No. 1 reliever last summer, and Slater performed well in that role for Twin Falls High this spring. But two other gifts from the Bruins' program — 16-year-old right-hander Kevin Ames and 17-year-old right-hander Tommy Prater — may be the key to the Cowboys' pitching.

"It's pretty early to tell about the younger kids, but I do know that Prater and Ames will help us a lot," says Tremayne. "They looked impressive during the high school season. But you don't take two aces like Burke and Mallock and replace them overnight—Those two guys you could put on the mound anytime. I had an awful lot of confidence in them."

The other positions, most of which will have to be filled by youngsters, worry Tremayne. Of the newcomers besides Prater and Ames, only Tim Shaw, a 16-year-old catcher from Kimberly, has stood out in the early practices.

"We've only got three or four 18-year-olds and a couple of three 17-year-olds," says Tremayne, who must trim his 23-man roster to 18 in the next two weeks. "It's a pretty young team. We're not going to be strong on fundamentals early in the season."

Ellis, who hit .337 for the Bruins this spring and five home runs for the Cowboys last summer, may be the key offensively.

"I cut an article out of the paper where (Twin Falls High Coach Bill) Ingram said that Ellis was just swinging the bat and making good contact this year," says Tremayne. "I told him, 'that's what I've been trying to tell you all along.' He's strong enough that if he makes good contact, he's going hit his share of home runs."

Tremayne also noted that Baumer, who pulled a hip muscle during the high school season and is just getting started with practice, hit .395 for the Cowboys' last year and that Slater, Harr and Bartholomew all hit for high averages during the high school season—.396, .303 and .323, respectively.

"We've got some potential, but it's going to take some time to sort out," he says. "That's why I'm glad we're involved in this Western Days tournament. It will give us a chance to look at a lot of kids."

The Bruins' schedule this year will include tournaments in Boise and in Price, Utah, as well as hosting the district tournament.

"I really think we may have a chance to get to state this year," says Tremayne, something no Cowboys' team has done for six years. "Hosting the district tournament will be an advantage and state will be in Pocatello this year. Because this district is hosting state, that third berth will go to our district and not to the Boise area."

. . . and for youth-dominated Minico Sage American Legion baseball team for this summer

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

RUPERT — First-year coach Cory Bridges sees a lot of similarities between Minico's American Legion team and the high school team he coached this year.

"They're both are young. TWC had a junior-oriented high school club and we'll also have a lot of younger kids that played JV ball helping us out," says Bridges, who will take over the Sage helm from Bill Malone this summer.

The Sage should find some hitting power from the nucleus of players from Burley, the team that finished sixth in the Idaho Class B high school invitational tournament.

Minico will see its first action today in Idaho Falls in the second round of the Russet Kickoff American Legion Tournament. The Sage will take on Rexburg this morning at 11:30, then will play Idaho Falls at 4 p.m.

Despite a turnout of only 15 players, the Sage should have no problem finding pitchers.

Tim Woods, Marty Carter, Tim Peltier, Mark Stimpson and

Doug Meyers, all right-handers, all saw action this year. Minico High and Bridges is looking for some strong performances from them. Burley's Scott Asson and Mark Sams, the two main pitchers for the Bobcats, will also see action on the mound this summer.

Behind the plate, Bridges plans to use a rotation of Asson, Sams and Jesse Branson this year.

In the infield, Bridges will look for Kevin Miller to start at the shortstop. Miller, a freshman, played well this spring. Assuming other roles in the infield will be Peltier, at third, Asson at second and Stimpson and Jay Fribble sharing the roles at first base.

In the outfield, Bridges hasn't decided who will play where as yet. But expects some good performances from Carter, Meyers, Tom Vaughn, Tony Martinez and Jesse Beltran.

Minico High's Cory Bridges will coach Sage

RUPERT — Minico High School baseball coach Cory Bridges has been named as the new Minico American Legion coach. He succeeds Bill Malone, who recently moved.

After completing his second year at the helm of the Minico High baseball team, Bridges is now ready for a new challenge.

He will have most of the kids he coached at the high school on his Legion team, along with players from Burley.

"I'd like to get back the winning ways of baseball here," said

Bridges. "This summer it'll also help the kids play better ball."

He will be joined this season by Russ Wright, a graduate from Minico High.

"The team will be what I had in high school," said Bridges. "All we need is to fill a few holes."

The Sage, which started practice on Tuesday and opens the season next Friday, had a small turnout of players which surprised Bridges. He expected more players, but most players in the area are working this summer.

"I wish I knew where the players are," said Bridges. "I guess there's more working."

Bridges added that the Legion program will inspire more players to turn out for baseball in the Spring.

"I wanted the job to keep the kids in the program," he said. Bridges, who grew up in Coeur d'Alene, played for several years in the San Francisco Giants minor league system. He also serves as an assistant football coach at Minico High.

Jerome's James takes barrel racing lead at Western Days

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — New leaders established themselves in the second go-round of the Twin Falls Days rodeo Friday.

The three-day event concludes tonight, beginning at 7:30.

Jerome's Joni James clipped Thursday night barrel racing leader Mary Zollinger by three one-hundredths of a second on Friday. Her steed took the College of Southern Idaho student on a 15.47-second ride.

It was James' first pro rodeo this season, and obviously she was happy. Add to that a measure of surprise.

"I hope I stand. There are some fine riders coming up (in Friday's final go-round)."

James had to deal with some pressure. The first rider in the event was Hometown's Lisa Davis, a qualifier in the National Finals Rodeo. Davis neatly cleared the trio of barrels to tie Zollinger's time.

James gave up her rodeo scholarship at the College of Southern Idaho in order to concentrate more fully on basketball. According to her mother, Karen, James might be entered in more professional rodeos this summer.

Tim Parker of Wendell assured himself that he'd be in the money after he rode his steer down in 5.2 seconds. Thursday's best was in the teens, and Blackfoot's Roland Ogden is second with a 12.3.

A new leader was also found Friday in calf roping. There Kyle Kosoff of Ogden-Utah, sporting a yellow hat, tied his calf in 9.9 seconds, a full four-tenths of a second over Thursday's leader, Benny Stevens of Gooding.

Team ropers from Wells, Nev., shaved a full two seconds off Thursday's best with a 7.4 second effort. Jon Gill of Pocatello and Gooding's Stevens would have posted the best time, but a barrier penalty resulted in a time of 11.9 seconds, for third place overall.

Disaster was narrowly averted in the bull riding event, when Terry Rivera was stepped on by Big Oak not far from the shoot. Rivera was treated at the scene and didn't require hospitalization, according to emergency medical technicians.

Second go-round
Barrel Racing — 1. Joni James, Jerome, 15.47; 2. Lisa Davis, Hometown, 15.50; 3. Terry McLeod, Star, 16.00.

Bull Riding — 1. Jeff McCarty, Rexburg, and Kenny Behring, Perron, Utah, 9.2; 2. Matt Labrucherie, Livermore, Calif., 9.3; 3. Jim Wright, Heber, Utah, 9.5.

Steele Wrestling — 1. Tim Parker, Wendell, 5.1; 2. Roland Ogden, Blackfoot, 12.3; 3. Clay Robinson, Pocatello, 17.

Team Roping — 1. Troy Eldridge and Evan Trapp, Wells, Nev., 24.2; 2. Jim Gill, Pocatello, and Benny Stevens, Gooding, 11.9; 3. Tim Munas, Rexburg, and Lynen Williams, Blackfoot, 13.50.

Saddle Bronc Riding — 1. Rick Austin, Weston, 7.3; 2. Ben Bailey, Burley, 6.7; 3. Bydatch, 8.0.

Calf Roping — 1. Kyle Kosoff, Ogden, Utah, 9.9; 2. Clay Robinson, Pocatello, 10.5; 3. Craig Knoff, Ogden, Utah, 13.5.

Barrel Racing — 1. Joni James, Jerome, 15.47; 2. Lisa Davis, Hometown, 15.50; 3. Terry McLeod, Star, 16.00.

Ballplayers threaten to boycott this year's All-Star Game

By JOHN NELSON
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The possibility of a player boycott of the 1985 All-Star Game was introduced Friday as management and labor continued what the union called an "arbitrary" line of negotiations toward a new baseball contract.

Management is negotiating a team, led by former American League President Lee MacPhail, supplied the union with further details of its earlier proposal to place a salary cap on all major league teams.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

Miller handled the players' side of negotiations Friday while Don Fehr, acting executive director of the union, was in St. Louis on a tour of major league cities to talk with players.

Fehr said a boycott of the All-Star Game, scheduled for July 16 in Minneapolis, was a possibility. "We've discussed all the options," Fehr said by telephone. "That's one of them. We haven't foreclosed any of the options."

In their last negotiating session, May 20, MacPhail's Player Relations Committee presented the union with an eight-point proposal that included the salary-cap plan. Under the plan, each team's maximum salary would be based on 1985 payrolls. Teams would be allowed to exceed the cap in signing players already under contract, but they would be restricted to the maximum figure in signing free agents.

"Why are they doing this?" Miller asked. "Well, you understand, the whole purpose of this is to reduce player salaries, to really gut the whole free agency market, and without laying a proper foundation for such a drastic step. That's what makes it absurd.

"It's as if we, the players union, were saying, 'Our demand is that you turn over all the 26 franchises to us,'" Miller said. "Nobody would take it seriously."

The union asked for the full payroll plan in writing, and management said they would have it within a week to 10 days.

"I think they understand that we are not offering this as a freeze on salaries," Bob Fishel, executive vice president of the American League, said.

Under the proposal, management offered to acquiesce to union demands that the free-agent re-entry draft be dropped and to eliminate professional player compensation for clubs losing high-ranking free agents.

MacPhail was asked if the two sides appeared to be coming any closer to agreeing a new contract. The old Basic Agreement expired on Dec. 31.

"We were just filling in the details in our previous proposal," MacPhail said. "I wouldn't say this session itself would have any great impact upon exactly where

NL: Cox comes 4 outs short of no-hitter

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An eighth-inning single by Dave Concepcion that spoiled Danny Cox's bid for his first no-hitter, abruptly ended the St. Louis Cardinals' right-hander's bid.

"It was a fastball," said Cox after finishing with a two-hitter in a 5-0 triumph Friday night over the Cincinnati Reds. "I tried to get it inside, but I left it out over the plate. I give him credit. He's a veteran ballplayer. I tip my cap to him."

Cox, after surrendering the two-out hit to Concepcion, also yielded a single immediately afterward to Ron Oester before retiring the final four Cincinnati batters.

"I said, 'Well, it's time to pitch off the stretch.' I hadn't done that all night," the St. Louis pitcher said of his reaction to Concepcion's hit. "I was kind of disappointed, but hopefully I'll get a lot more chances."

Reds Manager Pete Rose, after grounding out three times against Cox, 6-1, and lifting a fly to left field for the game's final out, called the Cards' final out "the pitched a good ball game. He changes speed and he throws a lot of strikes," said Rose. "That's two good ball games against us he's thrown in the last five days."

Cox, who delivered only 96 pitches, said he could not help but be aware of his impending pitching feat. "I came to bat in the seventh inning before a crowd of 38,910 at Busch Stadium.

"Everybody was clapping and yeeling. I knew it wasn't for my hitting," he said. "You're aware of it, but you don't want it to be the biggest thing on your mind. I was just concentrating on each batter, trying to get them out."

Concepcion concurred with Cox in his assessment of the hit. "I pitched he grounded into left field to break up the no-hit effort.

"He wanted it inside. He was pitching me up and in," said the Reds' shortstop. "He got it down in the zone. It was a lucky thing. I could have hit it hard at somebody."

As Cox was compiling his masterpiece, Jack Clark spearheaded the St. Louis with a two-run homer to cap a three-run uprising in the third inning.

Cox, a 25-year-old in his third season with the Cardinals, improved his record to 6-1 in pitching his third complete game of the year. He struck out three batters.

The 6-foot-4 right-hander got all the support he needed when the Cardinals scored three times in the third off John Stuper, 5-4, and Tommy Herr's sacrifice fly and Clark's homer, his 10th.

Vince Coleman, who singled to start the third-inning rally, singled again in the sixth. He took third on Willie McGee's single and after McGee stole second, both scored on Herr's single.

Garvey was sacrificed to second and moved to third on a groundout. With a 2-0 count, Martinez dropped a perfect bunt down the third base line to score Garvey and went to second on third baseman Howard Johnson's throwing error.

Chicago 6
Houston 2

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago's Keith Moreland hit a three-run homer to highlight a four-run 10th inning and rally the Cubs to 6-2 victory over the Houston Astros Friday night.

Bob Derner lead off the Chicago 10th with a single off loser Dave Smith, 4-2, and went to third on a single by Ryne Sandberg. Dave Lopes then singled to center field to score Derner with the tie-breaking run.

Coleman stole two bases in the game to give him 31 for the season, breaking Bake McBride's club record for a rookie set in 1974.

San Diego 4
New York 3

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Carmelo Martinez hit a solo homer and drove in the game-winning run with a surprise bunt single in the eighth inning to give the San Diego Padres a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets Friday night.

After Mookie Wilson tied the game 3-3 with his first homer in the top of the eighth, Steve Garvey led off the bottom of the inning with a single off reliever Doug Sisk, 1-2.

Garvey was sacrificed to second and moved to third on a groundout. With a 2-0 count, Martinez dropped a perfect bunt down the third base line to score Garvey and went to second on third baseman Howard Johnson's throwing error.

Chicago 6
Houston 2

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago's Keith Moreland hit a three-run homer to highlight a four-run 10th inning and rally the Cubs to 6-2 victory over the Houston Astros Friday night.

Bob Derner lead off the Chicago 10th with a single off loser Dave Smith, 4-2, and went to third on a single by Ryne Sandberg. Dave Lopes then singled to center field to score Derner with the tie-breaking run.

Moreland then clubbed his third homer of the season, over the left field fence, to make it a runaway.

Atlanta 8
Pittsburgh 2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Rafael Ramirez singled home two runs to cap a four-run fourth inning that lifted the Atlanta Braves to an 8-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night.

The Braves batted around in the fourth to break a 2-2 tie and win for only the third time in their last 10 games. Terry Harper added his fourth homer for two runs in the ninth.

Rick Camp, 1-3, pitched one hit ball for five innings in relief of Pascual Perez for the victory. Bruce Sutter pitched a perfect ninth inning, completing a combined three-hitter by Atlanta pitchers.

Los Angeles 4
Montreal 0

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mike Marshall knocked in three runs with a bases-loaded double in the first inning and Rick Honeycutt and Tom Niedener combined on a six-hitter as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Montreal Expos 4-0 Friday night.

Honeycutt, 3-5, snapped a personal three-game losing streak, giving up three hits in six innings. Niedener hurled the final three innings for his fourth save, completing the Dodgers' National League-leading ninth shutout.

Hogs battle to 1-0 win in 14 innings at CWS

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Keith Kerns went from goat to hero as he singled home the winning run to give Arkansas a 1-0 victory in 14 innings over South Carolina in College World Series baseball Friday.

The backup second baseman missed a squeeze bunt one pitch before his game-winning in the second longest game in the national college tournament's history. Only the 1-0, 15-inning victory for Ohio State over Washington State in 1965 was longer.

In a late game, it was Oklahoma State playing Mississippi State.

The victory moves the 50-13, fourth-ranked Razorbacks to Monday's winners' bracket game against the winner of the Oklahoma-State-Mississippi State game later Friday.

The 47-21 Gamecocks opened the eighth with a Riley-Polk single and Polk advanced to second on an error. Jeff Bams walked and Tim Deitz came on in relief to get a ground-ball double-play and a strikeout to keep the game scoreless.

Carolina All-American starter Mike Cook was forced to leave the game in the bottom of the ninth after pinch-hitting in the top of the inning. He had allowed three hits and struck out nine to that point. South Carolina plays the Oklahoma State-Mississippi State loser Sunday night in an elimination game.

Bo Taylor, 3-2, took the loss, while the victory went to Arkansas ace Fred Farwell, tagged out. KERNs then

AL: Angels top Tigers, regain lead in West

DETROIT (AP) — Willie who? Donnie Moore doesn't get half the publicity that Detroit reliever Willie Hernandez does, but he now has just as many saves after a brilliant relief effort Friday night in the California Angels' 6-3 victory over the Tigers.

"I've got a little experience now and that's made a lot of difference," the 31-year-old Moore said. "I finally realized that you've got to pitch to guys. You just can't blow it by them."

Willie could not have known what he would have done or 23. I might not have spent so much time in the minor leagues."

What Moore knows now is how to throw an off-speed pitch. It's so effective that Kirk Gibson had gone around on a third strike in the ninth inning while the ball was still in the pitcher's hand.

"I imagine that pitch he got Gibson on is the one that turned his career around," Angels Manager Gene Mauch said. "It's somewhere between a spitter-finger fastball and a forkball."

The win gave the Angels a one-game lead over the Kansas City Royals in the American League West.

Chicago 8
Kansas City 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Home runs by Ron Kittle, Luis Salazar, Tim Luetli and Carlton Fisk powered the Chicago White Sox to a 8-3 victory over Kansas City Friday night.

The White Sox have hit nine home runs in winning their last three games, powering out of a batting slump that had produced a seven-game losing streak. Fisk has homered four times in the three wins and has 12 this season.

Texas 3
Boston 1

BOSTON (AP) — Buddy Bell led off the eighth inning with a tie-breaking home run to lift the Texas Rangers to a 3-1 victory Friday night over the Boston Red Sox.

Left-hander Mike Mason, 4-4, allowed five hits over 7 1/3, before being replaced by Dave Stewart, who earned his third save.

New York 8
Seattle 3

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Baylor homered and doubled, drove in three runs, and Dave Winfield and Andre Robinson added solo homers as the New York Yankees beat the Seattle Mariners 8-3 Friday night.

Baltimore 9

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eddie Murray drove in two runs with a pair of doubles and Lenn Sakata hit a solo home run as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Oakland A's 9-2 Friday night.

TORONTO (AP) — Damaso Garcia hit a two-run double and Rance Mulliniks drove in two runs with a pinch-hit single to pace the Toronto Blue Jays to a 7-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians Friday night.

6 men, but no players, indicted by grand jury

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The federal grand jury investigating drug trafficking with possible ties to major league baseball players returned indictments against six men Friday.

None of the indicted individuals are current or former major league baseball players.

The indicted individuals were:

- Dale Martin Shiffman, 33, of Pittsburgh. Charged with 107 counts of distribution of cocaine; one count of conspiring to possess with the intent to distribute and distribute cocaine; three counts of using a communications facility, a telephone, in facilitating the knowing, intentional, and unlawful distribution of cocaine.
- Curtis Strong, 38, of Philadelphia. Charged with 16 counts of distribution and possession with intent to distribute cocaine.
- Robert William "Rav" McCue, 38, of Pittsburgh. Charged with 13 counts of possession with the intent to distribute and distribute cocaine.
- Jeffrey Lynn Mosco, 30, of Pittsburgh. Charged with 12 counts of possession with the intent to distribute and distribute cocaine.

- Shelby Stephen Greer, 29, of Pittsburgh. Charged with eight counts of distribution of cocaine; one count of conspiring to distribute cocaine; one count with intent to distribute cocaine.
- Thomas Patrick Balzer, 27, and Kevin Michael Connolly, 27, both of Pittsburgh. Charged jointly with one count of conspiring to possess cocaine with the intent to distribute. Balzer and Connolly also are charged with one count apiece of intent to distribute cocaine.
