Spraying takes off in Idaho

The Associated Press

BRUNEAU (AP) — A pair of DC-3 planes and two smaller aircraft showered insecticide on 32,800 acres of rangeland teeming with grasshoppers Sunday as the government's chemical warfare against the plant eaters moved forward.

"We accomplished quite a bit today," said Donald Dougherty, a government officer overseeing spray contracts. "We're very happy with it."

Faced with angry farmers reeling from 1984 crop losses suffered when grasshoppers swarmed off of federal land, government officials started the spray project last Wednesday and have been working to cover an initial 130,000 acres in the Bruneau area. The land sprayed in 3 1/2 hours on Sunday brings the total doused to about 60,000 acres.

"I'm sure we won't have any trouble finishing within the time frame of the contract," Dougherty said.

He said it's possible spraying of the initial block could be complete by the middle of this week if suitable weather prevails. In contrast to conditions earlier, weather was favorable for spraying on Sunday as the two twin-engine DC-3s brought in from Florida finally were sent aloft to disperse Sevin-4 oil over public lands in southwestern Idaho.

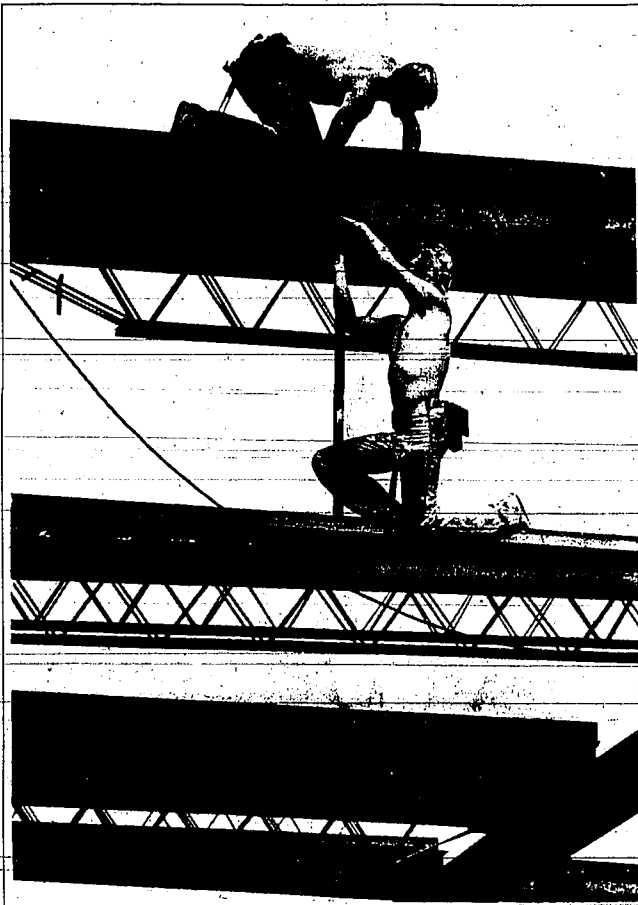

The 1940s-vintage "Rooney Birds" were to fly on Friday, but their departures were delayed by last-minute adjustments in wind speeds too strong to allow spraying on the desert plateaus. Earlier that day, a pair of single-engine crop-dusters left the Mountain Home airport and misted 2,200 acres before being grounded by 10 to 15 mph winds.

On Saturday, high winds kept all four planes on the ground.

Despite the setbacks, the spray project appears to be having an effect.

Dougherty said, "We are doing kill checks on the rangeland, and we are seeing results," he said.

The federal Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service has announced plans to let contracts for spraying of another 800,000 acres in Idaho with the work to begin this Friday.

Soviets hurry to field latest missile types

By WALTER PINCUS The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — U.S. intelligence agencies have concluded that the Soviet Union is moving faster than expected to develop and deploy new strategic missile systems, according to informed sources.

The conclusions of a "National Intelligence Estimate" which intimates that Moscow may be poised to begin an ambitious round of new missile deployments, will be included in President Reagan's report to Congress today on future U.S. adherence to the unratified SALT II treaty, the sources said.

As reported earlier, the president is expected to announce today that the United States will continue to adhere generally to the limitations of SALT II, but will make "proportional responses" to what it determines to be Soviet violations of the pact.

Given the new intelligence estimate, some sources say Reagan may link continued U.S. adherence to the SALT II limits after the treaty expires at year's end to some sign of Soviet restraint in these new missile programs and to steps ending what the United States considers as Soviet violations of SALT II.

The new intelligence estimate reportedly concludes that the growth in quality and quantity of Soviet intercontinental ballistic missiles appears to be faster than anticipated and that two additional large missiles may be flight tested within the next year. One of the larger ICBMs is looked upon as an updated version of the SS16, but the other may be a new type prohibited by SALT II.

The United States has observed only testing of solid-fuel engines for this second round, so little is known of the eventual configuration. A new solid-fuel Soviet ICBM would violate SALT II.

In any case, new ICBM production could put the Soviet Union over the SALT II limits relatively quickly unless it takes steps to eliminate large numbers of old silo-based ICBMs and scrap older submarines, as it has done in the past.

In a letter to Reagan last week, Republican Sens. James A. McClure, Idaho, Jesse Helms, N.C., and John F. East, N.C., identified the National Intelligence Estimate as NIE-11-3-85 and said it indicated "a dangerously worsening state of Soviet military supremacy." The three legislators called on the president to give it the widest possible distribution in Congress.

The Soviets increased the number of their ICBM warheads from approximately 5,500 in 1979 to about 9,200 as of last year, growth that was permitted by SALT II. They could add another 2,000 warheads and still remain within the SALT II limits.

Tough bargaining ahead over budget

By DAVID ESPO The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House and Senate begin compromise talks this week on a budget for the 1986 fiscal year, with the toughest bargaining expected over Social Security and President Reagan's defense buildup.

Both houses have approved budgets designed to trim the deficit by $56 billion next year but by dramatically different means.

The plan approved by the Republican-controlled Senate proposes a one-year freeze in Social Security benefits and other pension programs. It would permit the defense budget to rise with inflation.

The Democratic-controlled House countered with a plan that safeguards the Social Security increases for next year. It provides no inflationary increase in spending authority for the Pentagon, although actual outlays would still rise by $15 billion.

The budget aside, Congress continues its year-long struggle over the administration's Central American policy as the House votes on Tuesday or Wednesday on a plan to provide so-called non-lethal aid to the CIA-trained Contras battling the Nicaraguan government.

The House rejected one such plan earlier. Many Democrats, however, are expected to vote in favor of some type of aid, and approval of a revised proposal is given a good chance.

House GOP Leader Robert Michel will offer a $27 million plan to provide "non-lethal" aid. There will be several Democratic alternatives, including one to cut the amount to $14 million and direct much of the money to refugees.

By a 55-42 vote, the Senate approved a $38 million aid plan Friday, which calls for spending $14 million now and $24 million later to provide "non-lethal" assistance to the rebels.

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn. said Sunday on ABC television's "This Week With David Brinkley" that terms of the measure enable senators to tell pro-Contra constituents they voted for the money while telling opponents of deeper involvement they opposed military aid.

"It's a very nice policy for domestic political consumption here at home," said Dodd, an opponent of the measure. He said, however, that U.S. policy is "meeting" the measure, aimed to "provide political equivalent of rearranging the deck chairs on the Titanic."

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said on the same program that the measure was a very straightforward bipartisan resolution to assist the Contras.

Despite public stance on helping Contras

White House retains ties to private aid

By ROBERT PARRY The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The White House has kept close ties with private groups raising money for Nicaraguan rebels despite a public stance that it doesn't encourage or discourage those efforts, according to well-placed sources.

The White House — at least initially — offered advice to individuals involved in the fund raising and did not discourage offers from several allied governments to funnel aid to the Contra rebels, according to private and government sources speaking on condition they not be identified.

The sources said the Reagan administration has adopted an arms-length relationship with the fundraising since last fall when Congress passed a ban on U.S. aid that "would have the effect of supporting, directly or indirectly, military or paramilitary operations in Nicaragua."

That language, the most recent of a series of Nicaraguan restrictions sponsored by Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., is a principal target of current administration proposals in Congress to resume CIA aid to the Contras.

One source familiar with the administration's handling of private Contra aid, said White House efforts to encourage and coordinate that support began in early 1984 as Congress turned increasingly hostile to the CIA's backing of the rebels.

The source said that beginning last July, at least three countries approached the White House and volunteered to provide aid to the Contras. He said one was an Asian country, but he refused to identify any of them.

"They came to the U.S. to make sure we had no objection to it," the source said, adding that the White House welcomed the offers but provided no "quid pro quo" to reward the nations for giving the help. He also said the White House estimated that outside support would total about $11 million this year, and thus agreed to scale back its 1985 request to Congress to $14 million.

The source said President Reagan's National Security Council staff handled contacts with private groups, including the World Anti-Communist League, a staunchly conservative organization headed by retired Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub.

Singlaub, who resigned from active duty in 1978 after publicly criticizing then-President Carter's plan to withdraw forces from South Korea, said the league's international network and other fund sources raise about $300,000 a month for the Contras.

In recent interviews with The Associated Press, Singlaub said that amount was enough for the rebels to continue "surviving" but prevented them from becoming a greater threat to the leftist Nicaraguan government.

Singlaub said that a year ago, when he started his fund raising, he would receive advice on the Advertisement for 'Lawman' magazine featuring a 'Families With Tax Change By Income' chart. The chart shows the percentage of families in various income brackets that will experience tax reductions, no change, or tax increases under a proposed measure. The x-axis represents family economic income in thousands of dollars, and the y-axis represents the percent of families.

Many local banks illegally join chains

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scores of supposedly independent banks are actually part of chains that evade interstate banking rules by never formally joining together, according to a study released Monday by the House Banking Committee.

"What may appear as a small, hometown bank, may actually be a member of a large, interstate bank chain," the committee said.

The study of 800 bank ownership chains between 1967 and 1982 found 1,426 independent banks were actually part of 535 chains, 128 of which crossed state lines. The chains were made up of separate banks, often with different names, that had common owners and management.

The Federal Reserve, under the Bank Holding Company Act, regulates corporations that own multiple banks. However, independent banks can be part of informal chains, related through individuals and not corporate ties, and can avoid rules designed to keep the banking system secure, the study said.

"The effect of these interstate chains appears to be a clear circumvention... of state and federal laws governing interstate banking, market concentration, and participation in commercial activities unrelated to banking," the study said.

Rep. Fernand St Germain, D-R.I., chairman of the banking panel, said the recent collapse of the Butcher family banks in Tennessee and Kentucky pointed out a danger of chain banking.

When Knoxville's United American Bank failed in 1983, it touched off a chain reaction in the $1.5 billion Butcher financial empire. A total of 22 banks in the panel, said the recent collapse of the Butcher family banks in Tennessee and Kentucky pointed out a danger of chain banking.

The Butcher case "highlights the need for greater disclosure of the ownership linkages and operating relationships among so-called chain banks, and a resultant increase in federal regulations," St Germain said.

"Because the Butcher brothers chain of approximately 40 loosely-affiliated banks in Tennessee and Kentucky fell within the supervisory authority of seven different federal and state agencies, overall supervisory effectiveness was hampered" and suspect transactions within the chain went unnoticed, the committee said.

Jack Butcher pleaded guilty to bank fraud in April for diverting $30 million of depositors' money for his use. He was sentenced last week to 20 years in prison, the stiffest sentence ever for a person pleading guilty to a white-collar crime, according to the Justice Department.

Leahy sees spy case as major coup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Patrick Leahy said Sunday the spy ring allegedly operated by John Anthony Walker Jr. and two members of his family handed Soviet Intelligence one of the biggest coups of this decade.

Appearing on a television interview show, the Vermont Democrat said he thinks the betrayal of Navy secrets has made U.S. submarines more vulnerable. He also estimated that 1,000 of the 1,400 Soviets living in this country are intelligence agents.

One good move would be to reduce the number of Soviets living here, Leahy said.

Crime level down, but still enormous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Violent crime leveled off this year, but roughly one in four American households last year while the proportion of homes affected by crime reached its lowest level since 1975, the Justice Department said Sunday.

In a continuing series of studies examining crime in America, the Bureau of Justice Statistics found that some 22.8 million households — or 26 percent of the total — were "touched" by crime in 1984.

This was about 800,000 fewer households than in the previous year, and about 2 million fewer than in 1982, the report said.

It said the 1984 figures "continued a downward trend that has characterized the measure of crime's pervasiveness" since its introduction in 1975, when 32 percent of all households were victimized by crime.

Despite the overall improvement, "crime continues to be an enormous problem for American society," said Steven R. Schlesinger, the bureau's director.

People living in high-income households, blacks and those residing in central cities were victimized more often than those in middle-income households, whites and people living in the suburbs and rural areas, the report said.

Last year, for instance, one in 42 white households had a member who was raped, robbed or victimized by aggravated assault while one in every 26 black households was victimized by these crimes, the report said.

Moreover, one out of every 53 urban households was victimized, compared to one in 111 suburban households and one in 200 rural households.

Twenty-nine percent of all black households, blacks and those residing in central cities with incomes of $25,000 or more and 31 percent of all households in cities experienced crime, the report said.

A household is considered "touched" by crime if it experienced a burglary, auto theft or household larceny, or if a household member was raped, robbed, assaulted or a victim of personal larceny, the bureau said.

The proportion of victimized households fell to 26 percent of total households in 1984, compared to 27.4 percent the year before.

Except for the crime of rape, household victimization rates for a wide array of other crimes decreased or held steady last year, the report said.

30,000 meet at Dallas for Baptist showdown

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Baptists streamed into town Sunday primed for a showdown encounter between fundamentalists and moderates over control of the country's biggest Protestant body.

Their meeting, starting Tuesday after a year of caustic, political campaigning, is expected to be the largest in the denomination's history, drawing an expected 30,000 or more voting "messengers."

It also may be one of the most tempestuous, as the clashing factions battle for mastery of the national agencies and institutions of the loosely knit alliance of cooperating but autonomous congregations whose main concern in the past has been evangelism.

But also over views of the Bible, with fundamentalists demanding strict interpretation, has divided the 14.3 million-member denomination.

"The ship is on fire," says the Rev. Russell Dilday, president of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth.

It blazed mainly over the denomination's presidency, which has appointive authority that determines trustees of 20 key agencies, including six seminaries.

The Rev. Charles Stanley, the incumbent candidate of the fundamentalist wing, maintains that a liberal tilt about the Bible has crept into Southern Baptist Convention institutions.

"I don't say don't go to a Baptist school," he says, but adds that it is questionable to send students to seminaries where they "come out believing what those professors believe and teach."

Backed by moderates to oppose Stanley in Tuesday's election is a popular and staunchly conservative Texas pastor, the Rev. Winfred Moore of Amarillo, who also heads the Texas convention in this heavily Baptist state.

Although he says he's often kidded for being such an "arch, conservative," Moore has never given credence to charges of a "liberal drift" about the Bible among characteristically conservative Southern Baptists.

Salmonella hits again

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Health officials have tentatively linked a new salmonella outbreak to tainted corned beef from a delicatessen that serves 2,000 pounds of the meat a week to customers in the Chicago area.

As of Sunday, there were four confirmed cases and at least 13 people hospitalized with suspected salmonella, said Lowell Huckleberry, health director for the village of Skokie, a Chicago suburb.

He said about 150 other people who had eaten food from the delicatessen also were showing symptoms of the illness.

Kaufman's Deli was voluntarily closed Friday by the owner, he said.

The latest outbreak came just 10 weeks after the nation's worst salmonella epidemic struck the Midwest, sickening more than 18,000 people in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa and Minnesota.

The new outbreak involves the same strain of salmonella bacteria that caused the previous illnesses, Huckleberry said. It is resistant to antibiotics and has shown itself to be more resistant to drugs than previous known salmonella strains, he added.

Rent in Blaine County hazardous to billfold

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The average rent of a single-family house in Blaine County is $380 a month, heads over other counties in the Magic Valley and state, according to an annual survey conducted by the Idaho Housing Agency.

The rental survey was compiled with information from the 1980 U.S. Census and current population estimates, updated with information about 8,500 rentals that are not subsidized by any federal or state housing agency.

From a telephone survey completed in January 1985, the agency also gathered data on rents, vacancies, age and condition of rental units, amenities offered and lease arrangements.

Using 1983 population figures, the survey showed that 36 percent of the population in Blaine County rented houses or other units. This was the highest percentage in the Magic Valley.

Elsewhere, Twin Falls County had 30 percent of its population renting housing; Mindoka County, 21 percent; Lincoln and Jerome counties, 25 percent; Gooding County, 24 percent; Cassia County, 29 percent; and in Camas County, 24 percent of its population of 800 people rented.

The highest percentage in the state was in nearby Elmore County — the home of Mountain Home Air Force Base — where 45 percent of the population paid rent for housing. Oneida and Franklin counties had the lowest portion of their populations renting units at 17 percent.

For those apartment hunting in Magic Valley, Twin Falls County had the biggest selection at 2,259, while there were only seven apartment units in Camas County, according to the survey.

The classification of apartment units in the survey includes condominiums, duplexes and triplexes.

The survey also reported that the average price of apartments in the Magic Valley ranged from $248 a month in Twin Falls County to $180 a month in Gooding County. Lincoln and Camas counties were not surveyed for this information.

Bonneville County had the highest average rent for apartments at $273 a month.

The price of a single-family house in Blaine County was unrivaled in the state, according to the survey. Bonneville County came the closest with an average rent of $387 a month for a single-family house.

The lowest average rent in the Magic Valley and state was $141 a month in Gooding County for a single-family house.

Of the number of mobile home rentals available in the Magic Valley, the most units were found in Twin Falls County renting for an average of $230 a month.

Among the counties in the Magic Valley, Twin Falls had the largest number of units with subsidized rent. Of the 598 subsidized units, 321 were designated housing for families, the rest were for elderly people. The smallest number of subsidized units — a total of six — were found in Camas County. All six were designated for housing of families.

On a statewide basis, the survey showed that the average rents have risen from $219 a month five years ago to $242 month in 1984, which is an average jump of 2.6 percent each year. Apartment units averaged $153 a month for studio apartments, $220 for one bedroom, $260 for two bedrooms and $344 for three bedrooms.

For those units not rented, the survey reveals that the statewide vacancy rate for rentals dropped from 11.4 percent in 1980 to a current figure of 3.5 percent.

The vacancy rate is below five percent in the eight highly populated counties of Ada, Bannock, Twin Falls, Canyon, Kootenai, Nez Perce and Bonneville. In the smaller counties of Clearwater, Franklin, Fremont, Gem, Idaho and Teton, however, the vacancy rate is above 10 percent.

The Idaho Housing Agency was created by the Idaho State Legislature in 1972 to provide decent, affordable housing for Idahoans with limited income. The self-supporting agency also is authorized to sell bonds and administer federal housing funds.

Local airlines make profits

By DOUG WRIGHT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Both airlines providing passengers boarding flights at the Twin Falls/Sun Valley Regional Airport say they are making profits on the local flights, despite a large decrease in the total number of passengers flying out of Twin Falls.

Since Republic Airlines' quit service to Twin Falls in 1983, the total number of passengers boarding flights at the airport has dropped by between 12,000 and 15,000 passengers per year, says airport manager Harry Merrick.

However, the two smaller airlines serving the regional airport are content with their revenues and plan on continuing and possibly increasing service to the area.

Horizon Air, which carries more passengers out of Twin Falls than Sky West Aviation, Inc., receives a federal subsidy for running its two flights a day to Boise, but makes profits on its four flights to Salt Lake City, said Bill Ayer, director of systems scheduling for the airline.

Overall, the airline does well out of Twin Falls, he added.

Sky West Aviation, Inc., which runs two flights a day to Boise and one flight to Pocatello, carries enough passengers even in its slowest months to make profits on the routes, said Twin Falls manager Mike Turner.

Horizon is presently working toward eliminating the need for the federal subsidy by stimulating traffic on the Twin Falls to Boise run, said Ayer.

"Losses on the route have been decreasing, especially since we established a hub in Boise to try to get people to use Boise as a connection for destinations in the Northwest," he said.

"Building a hub means having lots of arrivals and departures in Boise and lots of planes on the ground at the same time, so people can transfer to another flight right away," Ayer explained.

"Our biggest competition in Twin Falls is the automobile, so to compete we're trying to increase the frequency of our flights and use smaller planes," he said.

Horizon flies an average of between 1,000 and 1,500 people per month out of the regional airport, although that varies by season. The number of passengers reaches peaks in summer and winter and slacks off in the fall and late spring months, said Ayer.

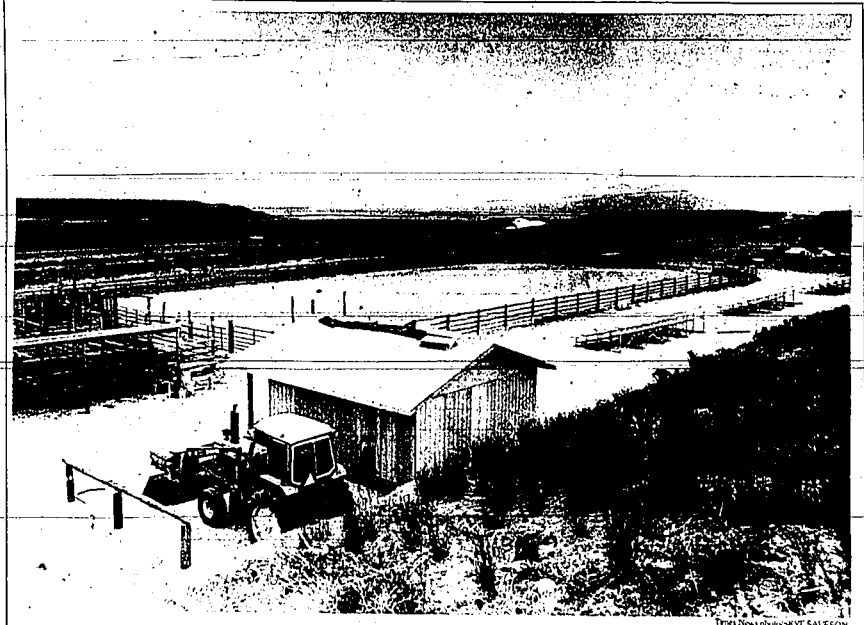

He presently had no figures on how much revenue the Twin Falls routes bring in, although he said the routes were making profits overall.

Turner from Sky West also did not have exact figures on how much revenue the three Sky West flights per day bring in, but he said that the Twin Falls routes have some of the highest load factors of any in the Sky West system.

The load factor on a route is the number of passengers served divided by the number of spots available on the route.

Skywest also sees peaks in the winter and summer seasons and lulls in fall and spring, he said. "We are routinely full for about six months of the year, but winter is our busiest season by far, because of the tourist industry," he said.

Sky West carries between a low of about 450 and a high of about 950 passengers per month out of Twin Falls, said Turner.

The new rodeo and horse show arena in Jackpot is about a half-mile south of Cactus Pete's Casino.

Horse arena Jackpot's newest feature

By BONNIE BAIRD-JONES
Times-News writer

JACKPOT, Nev. — This northern Nevada gambling resort has taken on a new aspect of outdoor family entertainment.

Owners say they are out to prove that Jackpot isn't just designed for brief visits by tourists and local residents who move on after a few games of chance, dinner and a show.

The new addition is a rodeo and horse show arena, called Cactus Pete's Desert Arena and Steel Dust Outfitters, just south of Cactus Pete's Casino.

Two life-long horsemen, Zeb Bell of Hansen and Bob Bricker, formerly of Montana, have joined in establishing the arena and a trail ride and pack trip program. Two-hour guided trail rides, week-long pack trips and big game hunting treks into nearby high mountain country are planned.

The new programs will be carried on from headquarters about one-half mile south of the casino, established by the two owners and Craig

Nielsen of Cactus Pete's Casino.

The 250 by 130-foot arena is completed, as is a barn, tack building and other facilities. Bell said from 30 to 35 horses are available. Finishing touches are being added this week to the bucking chutes, announcer stand and other final work phases.

Scheduled for this summer are several events, including a junior rodeo. The desert stampee junior rodeo will be in Jackpot July 19, 20 and 21 and is open to all Western States Junior Rodeo Association approved members.

An "Old Timers" rodeo is planned for later in the summer. Bell said this will be a chance for local fans to see some really fine rodeo work by the champions of a few years ago who may still be the best in the business.

An all- breeds horse show will be held June 30, with 22 classes of competition.

"We think the arena and rodeo facilities will bring a whole new aspect of wholesome family entertainment to the resort and combine well with the existing features," Bell said.

The two owners are continuing to maintain the Montana operations of the Steel Dust Outfitters. Some excellent deer and mountain lion trophies await the hunters who want to pack into surrounding desert and mountain regions, Bell said.

He added the Steel Dust Outfitters hold the only permit for fishing on Salmon Dam reservoir. The outfitters will also conduct guided tours to choice mountain streams for rainbow trout fishing.

Territory where the outfitters will be able to operate includes the spectacular Jarbridge Mountain Wilderness and other northern Nevada wilderness areas as well as the South Hills and scenic areas of the Sawtooth National Forest.

Both Bell and Bricker are licensed outfitters. Bricker, a former U.S. Marine and Los Angeles Police Department officer, was operating the Steel Dust Outfitters in Montana two years ago when Bell purchased a share of the firm.

Bell, an avid Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association team roper and rodeo announcer, lives on a small ranch south of Hansen. He has twice been runner-up for the world title of top rodeo announcer.

Cyclist treated after collision

TWIN FALLS — A motorcyclist was treated for minor injuries Saturday night after his vehicle collided with a car on Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

John Wiersma, 39, of Twin Falls, was injured when his northbound cycle and a southbound car driven by Kevin Leroy Emerson, 18, of Twin Falls, collided.

Police said the Emerson car was attempting to make a left turn and turned into the path of the cycle. Emerson was not injured, and Wiersma was released following treatment in the emergency room at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. The accident occurred at 10:21 p.m. in the 200 block of Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

Weekend burglaries reported

TWIN FALLS — Two house burglaries were reported during the weekend in Twin Falls with a total loss of $1,230.

Police received a report from Frances Elaine Herrick at 1401 Washington St. S., saying jewelry valued at $875 had been taken from her home. She said several rings were missing from the bedroom of her home although no forced entry had been made. The theft was reported Saturday, but the rings were taken sometime between April 28 and May 5, she told police.

Clark Stosich, 821 Mountain View Dr., said someone entered his home by forcing a window Friday night. He said the break-in occurred between 4 p.m. and 9:30 p.m., apparently while the family was in the house. Missing were several guns valued at $355.

Old motor cars will tour area

TWIN FALLS — One of the largest contingents of old cars ever gathered in the Magic Valley area will be on the local highways during a two-day regional tour of the Veteran-Motor-Car-Club of America.

Russell Howell, of Jerome, president of the host Magic Valley chapter, said a large number of Idaho cars will be participating, and some owners from Utah have also registered. The region includes Idaho, Utah, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and California.

Cars will begin arriving June 20 for registration. The first day's tour will begin early June 21 and include stops to Shoshone Falls and Twin Falls in the Snake River Canyon and a drive to the Magic Mountain Ski Resort south of Hagerman. A barbecue will be served in the afternoon, and drivers will have an opportunity to view the canyon scenery from the top of the chairlift on Magic Mountain.

A trip to Jackpot by bus will be offered June 21, followed on June 22 with a tour of Hagerman Valley. The tour leaves Twin Falls for the Bob Barton Highway in Jerome County, then to Niagara Springs for a coffee break. The caravan will go to the Wendell area to view the Moyles milk farm, and then into Bliss for lunch. The return trip through Hagerman Valley includes a stop at Banbury Hot Springs, making the second day's tour about 100 miles. There is also a dinner Saturday night and a departure breakfast Sunday morning.

Howell said the cars are here for touring rather than display, however old car fans are welcome to look at the vehicles at the various stops.

Blaine school board sets budget talks

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

HAILEY Blaine County residents will get a chance to tell the Blaine School Board what they think about the proposed $5.3 million budget for the 1985-86 school year Tuesday.

A public hearing is scheduled at 8 p.m. in the Wood River Junior High School Library before the Board of Trustees votes on the budget that is 11.7 percent above last year's.

The bulk of the revenues, 79 percent, will come from property taxes to fund the 2,909-student, six-school district. The budget includes $2,559 million from the general tax levy and $1.6 million from an override levy passed overwhelmingly by the county's voters in late March.

Last year, property taxes made up 71.5 percent of the budget. But, non-property tax revenues for next year are expected to drop from $1.35 million to $1.11 million, while the state's support to the district will rise only 1.1 percent to $827,974 in 1985-86.

Blaine County's schools receive the least support from the state of all Idaho districts.

The largest expense for the district is in teacher salaries. The $3.25 million that will pay the classroom instructors makes up 61.3 percent of the district's budget.

Acting Superintendent Philip Homer says the district will hire six new teachers for next year, primarily to fill new classrooms at Bellevue Elementary School and to add courses to meet new state graduation requirements.

Total teacher salaries will increase 12 percent. The district also will add one secretary and one janitor. The janitor is needed because of the addition in Bellevue, where 10 new classrooms will be built this summer.

Homer says the district is seeing high percentage increases in several areas that are not large in comparison to the entire budget, but together are having a sizeable impact on the district's costs.

He says he expects the utility costs to increase from 10 percent to 12 percent, based on Idaho Power Co. projections.

The district also will see a doubling in its liability insurance premium to about $46,000 because of a change in vendors, and it will have an increase in its employees' hospitalization policy premium.

Also, the city of Bellevue is increasing its monthly water bill to the district from $12.50 to $300, Homer says.

Author at odds with Wilderness Act

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Jack Wayne Chappell first got upset about wilderness when he attended hearings in southwestern Idaho on BLM's wilderness proposals.

"A lot of people weren't making any attempt to testify truthfully," said Chappell. "They just seemed to be mouthing words they had been given," he added, "and they were making allegations against Western land users that I knew weren't true."

Instead of keeping his troubles to himself, however, Chappell decided to write a book which would present his view — and what Chappell believes is the view of Western land users — towards wilderness.

The book "Outgrip" came up with a 270-page collection of short stories and thoughts. The fictional book is narrated by a young woman who is tape-recording her thoughts on wilderness and a series of stories about wilderness in a desert cabin during a rainstorm.

For the past several days, Chappell has been in Twin Falls to promote his book and speak to various local and civic groups. He has already given presentations to the Rotary Club, the Board of Realtors, and the Magic Valley Trail Bikers.

Chappell, an Idaho native, has worked as a cowboy throughout southern Idaho, northern Nevada, and eastern Oregon. Now living in Brunsau, Chappell makes his living as a horse trainer and farrier.

Lately, however, Chappell said he has been "winging it" traveling around the state speaking on wilderness and his book.

So far Chappell said he has sold enough books.

Woman shuns razor despite 'hairy' gibes

DEAR ABBY: I am a 25-year-old woman who prefers not to shave her legs or underarms. My hair is naturally quite dark and plentiful — too plentiful to maintain every two days. I find shaving a nuisance and uncomfortable.

My problem? Non-acceptance at public and private swim centers and exercise clubs. I was asked to (a) cover my legs with tights; (b) wear shorts with leg-warmers; (c) wear socks; (d) resign from a swim class. So far, I have done none of the above. Isn't this a form of sex discrimination? Or am I living in a geographical area that is out of step with the rest of the nation?

Would you like to hear how other women handle this sort of public insult.

RAPUNZEL LEGS IN EVERETT
DEAR RAPUNZEL LEGS: They're your legs, and if you want to braid the hair or stuff it into a snood, it's your choice.

Since no man would be asked to hide his hairy legs from public view, I agree, it is indeed a case of sex discrimination. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I read in the newspaper that someone died of lung cancer, I wonder if that person was a smoker.

I think that should be included in the report of the death, don't you?

DEAR I: Yes, I'm sure most people would like to know.

DEAR ABBY: I'm putting the thin world on notice. I am sick and tired of your belittling putdowns.

I'm not going to feel guilty any more because I don't exercise until I drop. I'm not going to feel guilty because when I buy three-dozen doughnuts for my family, the clerk looks at me like she thinks I'm going to eat them all myself, because I know skinny people with bulimia who do that.

I am not going to let thin people tell me that being overweight is bad for my health, when I know that constant dieting is worse.

I'm not going to any doctors and nurses who give me shots like they're harpooning a whale.

I'm not going to watch skinny people down three Big Macs and wonder why I gain weight eating one.

I'm not going to give up swimming because people stare at the sight of me in a swimsuit.

One thing I will do is be kinder to thin people than they are to me. Diet? Maybe. Self-respect, you bet.

Back pains typical

ATLANTA (AP) — Back pain is one of the most common health problems in the United States, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

It is a leading cause of lost work time in the economy, and costs the economy $16 billion a year in treatment expenses and lost wages.

Back pain can range from an uncomfortable ache to a severe pain. It can last for a day or two, or it can go on for weeks, months or years. Back problems, lack of exercise and being overweight. It often is a symptom of some form of arthritis.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

a most poignant one for me; it was my wife's birthday, my parents' anniversary, and the first anniversary of my mother's death.

As I lit the Yareztel candle and said Kaddish, I looked up at my mother's picture on the wall and recalled what you have said so many times: "Show love to your parents; it's later than you think."

I was good to my mother. I told her and showed her by my actions that I loved and appreciated her. But, Abby, I could have done even more.

When I see my young son, so cute and mischievous, I realize how my mother must have loved me as a toddler, even as I love my son. She once said, "You will never really appreciate your parents until you are one." Now I know she was right, but there is no way to let my mother know.

She died a slow, painful death caused by lung cancer. A heavy smoker all her adult life, she knew the risks, but was unable to break the habit. It broke her. And it broke my heart.

Please keep plugging away at the two points you mention periodically: Don't smoke — it'll kill you; and love thy mother and father. When they die, they're gone forever.

Right to die perplexes those involved

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — Elaine Pritchard lies in a nursing home with her eyes staring blankly, a permanently unconscious "vegetative" patient, while her husband seeks court approval to let her die by removing a feeding tube.

HAROLD PRITCHARD
Wants wife's feeding tube out

Her physician, Dr. George Waltuch, agrees that she should be allowed to die. But he refuses to starve her to death by taking away the nose-to-stomach feeding tube because he believes it's "not a medical decision."

Waltuch says he resents being asked to be her "executioner," and he likens the removal of the tube to "putting a plastic bag over the patient's head."

Mrs. Pritchard, 43, has been unconscious since a 1982 auto accident. Her hand and leg make occasional, reflexive movements, but neurosurgeons have diagnosed her as permanently brain-damaged on both sides and in a "persistent vegetative state."

less publicized cases among the growing number of permanently unconscious patients.

The questions asked in these cases go beyond the medical, ethical and legal issues that first triggered widespread public debate a decade ago: when Karen Ann Quinlan's parents sought to remove her from a respirator.

Miss Quinlan, whose breathing machine was removed after a 1976 decision by the New Jersey Supreme Court, is still in a coma. Her parents have not asked that feeding be stopped.

One of the key questions in the cases of Brophy and Mrs. Pritchard is whether feeding tubes should be considered "life support" systems similar to artificial breathing devices.

Other questions that have arisen are:

— Would removing the tubes and starving the patients to death over a period of perhaps two weeks be more or less humane than letting them continue indefinitely in their present conditions?

— Should relatives of unconscious patients be allowed to grant them their "right to die" if it is known the patients previously said they would not want to be kept alive if there were no hope of recovery?

Harold Pritchard said his wife told him and others during discussions of the Quinlan case years ago that she would not want to remain alive under such conditions.

"It's not a question of me saying this is what I want; it's a question of me allowing her to have what I sincerely believe she would want," he said.

He argues the feeding tube is equivalent to life-support breathing machines, a position held by an appeals court in Southern California in the 1983 acquittal of two doctors accused of "mercy killing" for removing a patient's feeding tubes.

Medical transcriptionists set meeting

BOISE — The Idaho Chapter of the American Association for Medical Transcription will be held from 9:30 a.m. to noon Saturday in the first floor classroom of St. Alphonsus Medical Center in Boise.

Medical transcriptionists are invited to attend the monthly meetings of the organization, which are held on the third Saturday of each month. For more information, call Carol Harper, 423-4916.

Soviets take valley in brutal offensive

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Soviet forces were reported to be in control of the strategic Kunar Valley in Afghanistan on Sunday, but a top rebel commander said more than 2,000 guerrillas were regrouping to counterattack.

Barhanuddin Rabbani said the anti-Soviet insurgents were reassembling in Kunar province to start hitting back at the Soviet force after being driven back in desperate fighting that got down, in the end, to hand-to-hand combat.

"Very soon we'll strike back at them and they won't be able to remain for long," Rabbani told The Associated Press.

He is the leader of Jamiat-Islami, a major Afghan resistance group. Soviet troops controlled the valley after breaking through late Friday to the besieged border town of Barikot, guerrilla and Western intelligence sources said.

Western sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Sunday that satellite reconnaissance confirmed guerrilla estimates that the Russians had deployed about 10,000 troops in the Kunar offensive. They said the attack was spearheaded by about 4,000 paratroopers and commandos.

Barikot, a major Afghan resistance group, was reassembling in Kunar province to start hitting back at the Soviet force after being driven back in desperate fighting that got down, in the end, to hand-to-hand combat.

mor broke through to Barikot and Soviet paratroopers and commandos held mountaintops around the town. The guerrillas were regrouping in adjacent valleys to mount attacks on the Soviets' line of communications and drive them back, he said.

The Moslem guerrillas are fighting the communist government in Kabul, the Afghan capital, and the estimated 15,000 troops who support it. The Russians entered Afghanistan at the end of 1979, as one Marxist government was ousted and another Marxist regime replaced it. Guerrillas operate from bases in Pakistan.

Rabbani, who visited the Kunar last week before the Russians had fully seized it, said fighting had been fierce, with Soviet aircraft laying down an intensive bombardment to clear aside guerrilla forces.

More than 100 jet fighter-bombers and about 100 armored helicopter gunships bombed guerrilla hideouts and lay down heavy support fire for advancing Soviet ground forces, he said, adding, "The attack was very severe."

Rabbani confrimted that Soviet troops made heavy use of incendiary bombs and flame throwers to set fire to forests in the valley used by the guerrillas for cover. He said the Soviets employed long-range artillery and rocket-launchers capable of hurling projectiles up to 30 miles, forcing the insurgents back repeatedly from fortified positions.

Up to 1,000 tanks, armored personnel carriers and other vehicles made up the Soviet armored columns that raced up the valley, Rabbani said. Time after time, Soviet paratroopers and helicopter-borne commandos were dropped ahead of ground forces or on mountaintops to secure terrain and encircle guerrilla forces, he said.

The guerrilla forces in the Kunar appeared to have been poorly prepared for the attack and had little chance with their light weapons and poor training in the face of the heavy Soviet armored and air attacks, one Western source said.

Kunar is reckoned to be the first stage of an anticipated Soviet offensive to try to cut routes used by guerrilla convoys to bring supplies across the border from Pakistan, guerrilla commanders and Western sources say.

A second, large Soviet force is reported building up in Pakhtia province to the south.

Venus probe drops from Soviet craft

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's Vega-1 spacecraft, bound for a rendezvous with Halley's Comet next year, on Sunday dropped off a descent module that will explore the planet Venus. Radio Moscow reported.

A balloon probe will separate from the landing craft, to float through the Venusian atmosphere and collect information on its chemical composition, according to the broadcast. The module is expected to land on Venus on Tuesday.

Vega-2, a companion craft in the project involving scientists from eight European nations besides the Soviet Union, also is expected to deliver a probe to Venus, but there was no word on this Sunday.

Vega-2 was launched Dec. 21, six days after Vega-1 was sent up.

The Soviet Union launched a manned spacecraft last Thursday, sending aloft veteran cosmonauts Vladimir Dabanbekov and Viktor Savinykh in the Soyuz T-13 capsule. The Soyuz T-13 docked Saturday with the space station Salyut-7 and the two Soviet spacemen have moved into the orbital complex, Radio Moscow said. The planned length of the mission has not been published.

Vyacheslav Lavrusevich, laboratory head of the Soviet Space Research Institute, told the official news agency Tass last week the balloon-borne probe will deliver information it collects around Venus to radiotelescopes based in the Soviet Union and other countries.

Radio Moscow said the Vega project involves the first use of balloon probes to study the Venusian atmosphere.

Both Vega spacecraft are continuing their flight to meet Halley's Comet next March.

Plastic surgeon disbelieves body that of 'Angel of Death'

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — A well-known plastic surgeon said Sunday that comparisons between photographs of Nazi war criminal Josef Mengele and photos of a man whose body was unearthed from a country grave "indicate that we are talking about two different men."

Examiners who flew to Sao Paulo last week assume the body exhumed in Brazil really is that of Mengele. It said in an article to be published Monday that the three investigators came to that conclusion after interrogating an Austrian couple and another woman who said they had helped shelter Mengele in Brazil.

Mengele, the most hunted Nazi war criminal, was called the "Angel of Death" because of his bizarre medical experiments on camp inmates and because of accounts of how he sent hundreds of thousands of Jews, Poles, Gypsies and other prisoners to their deaths during World War II.

Theories connect Brazil with Nazis

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Evidence that Nazi war criminal Dr. Josef Mengele may have lived in Brazil for 18 years until his death has revived theories linking Brazil with an international network to protect fugitives from the Third Reich.

The most sought-after Nazi fugitive was Mengele. Last week, Rome Tuma, federal police chief in Sao Paulo, said reliable testimony indicated Mengele had lived on a farm near here from 1961 to 1979, when he is believed to have drowned at a beach resort.

Tuma said police believe that "an international network to protect Nazis" may have aided Mengele, but declined to give details.

Warplanes pound on Iran

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraqi said its warplanes struck "destructive blows" Sunday against Tehran, six Iranian border towns and a military camp.

The raid on Tehran was the 46th reported by Iraq on the Iranian capital since March 14, when the two nations began attacking each other's cities. Since then, Iran says it has fired 10 long-range ground-to-ground missiles at Baghdad, the Iraqi capital, in retaliation.

PG-13 Rating Introduced

A new rating category is in place as of July 1. This new category is inserted between the current PG and R ratings. It is designed to help parents who are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for attendance of children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- G General Audiences, all ages admitted.
- PG Parental guidance suggested. Some material may be suitable for children.
- PG-13 Parents are strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
- R Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- NC-17 No one under 17 admitted. All films rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

Idaho's AFL-CIO meet opens

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's AFL-CIO opens its annual three-day meeting here today, and the usual high-ranking national union officials are on the agenda for speeches.

But there's an unusual event scheduled for delegates today, just before state President Jim Kerns presents his annual report to members.

The Idaho Freedom to Work Committee has asked for a chance to address delegates. Union members will vote just before Kerns' speech whether they will grant that request.

Most of today's sessions will be taken up in workshops and committee meetings. Paul Johnson, Portland, vice president of the Washington State Labor Council, are scheduled to address delegates.

Tuesday's keynote speech will be given by Frank Drozak, president of the Seafarers International Union of North America.

Mental health patient found

BOISE (AP) — A two-day search for a Boise man who became separated from a mental-health treatment group at Shafer Butte north of Boise ended when the man walked into Horseshoe Bend.

Two planes, a National Guard helicopter, 11 Mountain Search and Rescue personnel and four deputies searched for Farrell Coburn from Friday evening until early Saturday afternoon, the Boise County Sheriff's Department said.

Coburn, 50, was discovered about noon Saturday after he asked Wilber Stephenson of Horseshoe Bend for a ride to Boise.

Stephenson, who told Coburn he probably could find a ride along the highway, said he became curious when Coburn walked along Idaho 55 in the opposite direction, away from Boise.

Tribe wants store chief on job

FORT HALL (AP) — Trading Post Complex Manager Parry Merrill has 20 days to either resign as administrator of the tribal enterprises or return from New Mexico, where he has managed a similar operation for the past three weeks.

The Fort Hall Business Council gave Merrill that ultimatum at a meeting May 21 after learning that the complex manager was running a store near Albuquerque, N.M. for the Laguna Pueblo Tribe, Councilman Marvin Osborne said.

Osborne said the council, which also serves as Enterprise Board, had rejected a suggestion by Merrill to hire an assistant manager to run the operation in his absence because the Trading Post needs an on-site manager.

"We can't have him going here and there," Osborne said. "The Trading Post complex is fairly young and if a manager is going to manage he has to be directly responsible for it."

Ogden editor dies in rollover

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) — Louise Meade, news editor of The Ogden Standard-Examiner, died Saturday evening after the car in which she was riding rolled on Interstate 15. She was 45.

Meade's 16-year-old daughter, Tracey Leigh Meade, who was driving, was listed in satisfactory condition Saturday at Brigham City Community Hospital. Brigham City emergency medical technician Lavar Jensen said Miss Meade suffered a fractured rib and a broken arm.

Utah Highway Patrol Trooper Jed Gilmore said the crash occurred about half a mile south of the Corinne exit. The northbound car went into a rotating skid from the right shoulder, left the pavement on the left side of the road and rolled once as it went down a 13-foot embankment, Gilmore said.

Pocatello to fight jail fee case

POCATELLO (AP) — The City of Pocatello will ask the Idaho Supreme Court to re-open the files on the controversial jail fee case recently decided by the court, says Deputy City Attorney Ivan Legler.

The decision to petition the state court to rehear the case was made Thursday by the city council following a closed-door session to discuss the ruling, he said Friday.

A formal petition to the justices is to be sent today or Tuesday, Legler said.

Legler said the city will argue that Justice Robert E. Bakes, in his dissenting opinion, went beyond the "face value" of the law and looked into the real problems created by its passage.

Lumber imports draw flack

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Rep. Larry Craig will present President Reagan with petitions signed by more than 4,000 Idahoans asking the president to seek limits on Canadian lumber exports to the United States.

Craig, an Idaho Republican, received the petitions Friday from Jane Little of Cataldo. Ms. Little wrote the petitions and circulated them several weeks ago. She said her efforts attracted the attention of forest-industry groups, which offered her their assistance.

Craig is among a handful of congressmen attempting to negotiate with Canadian trade officials for voluntary restrictions on Canadian lumber exports.

Developers bend to pressure

MOSCOW (AP) — Developers of a proposed hydroelectric facility at Elk Creek Falls in Northern Idaho say they are willing to reduce summer operations to mute criticism the project will hamper efforts to attract tourists to the area.

That proposal is contained within a report submitted last month by the project's developing firm, Hy-Tech of Lewiston, to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

The commission last winter requested Hy-Tech's report to determine the proposed project's possible effects on the area's recreation, stream flows and wildlife.

L.A. Kareem Celtics, wins NBA crown

By ANTHONY DOTSON
The Washington Post

BOSTON — On the occasion of the 21st consecutive season at Boston Garden, with 15 championships here hanging from the ceiling, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 34 straight points late in the fourth quarter and the Los Angeles Lakers held off the Celtics, 111-100, to win the NBA championship Sunday.

With Abdul-Jabbar, 38, scoring a team-high 29 points, along with seven rebounds and four assists, the Lakers overcame the Celtics' 19-point lead in the second half to win their first title in 15 years to repeat as (title) and erased a lifetime of frustration in the process. During their 36-year history, the Lakers had lost eight straight championship series to Boston.

For that matter, it was only the second time in their illustrious history the Celtics have lost a championship series, the St. Louis Hawks having beaten them in the 1957-58 season, also four games to two. It also marks the first time the Celtics lost a deciding game at the Boston Garden.

"This removes one of the most odious statements in basketball," said Jerry Buss, the Lakers' owner. "It can no longer be said that the Lakers are a dynasty because the Celtics in a championship series." Coach Pat Riley, winner of his fourth championship ring in four seasons, agreed. "It's like writing an autobiography," he said. "I've been purged, as it should be. Winding one time against them may not make a lot of difference to some, but it does to this team. Now we're 1-1 against them."

James Worthy added 28 points on 11-of-18 shooting for the Lakers and Kawhi "Mad" Johnson, thought by some to be the best in the Lakers' seven-game defeat last year, had 14 points, 11 assists and 10 rebounds. He ended the series with 34 assists, breaking the record set by former teammate Norm Van Lier for a six-game championship series by 24.

The Celtics, who had won 11 of the last 12 seasons, were downed in the second half by the Lakers' defense. Abdul-Jabbar, who had 29 points, 7 rebounds, 4 assists and 2 blocks, was the key player for the Lakers. He had 11 points in the fourth quarter, including a clutch shot with 1:30 left to seal the victory. The Celtics' offense struggled in the second half, and they were unable to overcome the Lakers' lead.

The Celtics' defense was a major factor in their loss. They allowed the Lakers to score 34 points in the fourth quarter, which was a record for the Celtics. The Lakers' offense was also very effective, scoring 31 points in the fourth quarter. The game was a defensive battle, but the Lakers' defense was the key to their victory.

Los Angeles' Larry Bird

Larry Bird, the Celtics' star player, was also featured in the article. He had 20 points and 11 assists in the game. The article mentions that Bird was a key player for the Celtics, but he was unable to lead his team to a victory in this series.

There's no doubt now: As Jabbar goes, so go the Lakers

By HOWARD ULMAN
The Associated Press

BOSTON — For all the detractors who said Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was too old and too slow, the Los Angeles Lakers' brilliant center had a message: "I live with me all the time," he said. "I know what I can do."

Now, so do the Boston Celtics, who were on the receiving end of Abdul-Jabbar's Sunday punch.

The 38-year-old star climaxed a memorable National Basketball Association championship series with a team-high 29 points as the Lakers won a title series for the first time in nine attempts against the Celtics with a 111-100 victory Sunday.

"I'm so proud of Kareem, who's been written off so many times," Coach Pat Riley said. "He's the most unique and durable athlete around. It's very upsetting to me," Lendl said of his Grand Slam record. "There's no question about that."

There was no question who was the better player Sunday. Wilander's game has improved throughout the tournament, peaking in his straight set, semifinal victory over John McEnroe Friday and against Lendl. He is a different player than he was when he won here at 17, a player who attacks even on clay.

Sunday, his new style paid off. "Mats surprised me with how well he hit the volleys at the net," Lendl said. "He came in at the right times and hit good shots."

Wilander had planned to come in, knowing that to stand on the baseline and slug it out with Lendl would be death. "I felt like I would be in the match because I would control the points by coming in," he said. "I've been working very hard on my volleying and today it paid off." Early Sunday, it looked as if the two players might have to spend another night in Paris. It rained all morning, and as the 3:15 p.m. start approached, the sun and rain took turns keeping their way through the clouds.

It was still drizzling when the match began, but as time went on, the wetness burned off and the final two sets were played in bright sunshine.

Perhaps the weather change was an omen for Wilander. He played a dinky first set, breaking Lendl in the second game and then watching helplessly as Lendl picked up his game, winning six of the next seven games. Since Lendl had reached the final without losing a set, it seemed he might just run through the tournament without losing one.

This is history, Abdul-Jabbar said. "Los Angeles' title which broke Boston's dominance over the Lakers. This is the first time for the Lakers to win a title since 1957." The Lakers captured the series 4-3. Abdul-Jabbar averaged 22.7 points per game in the Los Angeles Lakers' seven-game series, but only 18.3 in the process.

He is still "driving" when the match began, but as time went on, the wetness burned off and the final two sets were played in bright sunshine.

Wilander had other ideas. "I felt like I had to keep attacking, especially on his serve. The first set, even when I broke him, I wasn't very comfortable. By the second, I felt better."

Wilander's play was up a notch at the start of the second set: He broke in the first game, but Lendl broke back. He had three chances to break in the third game and then broke at love in the fifth game with an overhead.

the defense and decides what to do, game and Bird sank just 12 of 29 shots Sunday to finish the series 41-4.

For the second game in a row, the Celtics walked away with a big lead. Bird and one with the jump ball, and closed it to four points in the second half, but for the second time, the determined Lakers held back but we held them off every time.

Wounded, Lendl slammed a ball against the fence in disgust. Wilander served out the set, surviving a break point at 3-4 when Lendl netted an easy backhand.

"That set really hurt me," Lendl said. "I had lots of chances to break him back. When you miss the kind of chances I had in that set and lose the set, you probably deserve to be pushed for it." His punishment came swiftly. Having seen that Lendl was vulnerable, Wilander began attacking more and more. And, as Lendl began to make mistakes, the normally stoic Wilander became more and more intense. Uncharacteristically, he was pumping his fists, shaking himself after good points, doing little hop-skip-jumps after hitting winners.

"I could feel he was nervous," Wilander said. "He seemed to be feeling pressure. I don't know if it was from me or from playing in a big final. He started to hit short and to miss. He just wasn't playing so well."

"When I saw that, I wanted to keep myself pumped up because I knew it was good for my game to feel that way, to feel strong and confident. I could see that he was fading away and I didn't want anything to change."

Wilander, 20, wins his second French Open title

PARIS — Mats Wilander and Ivan Lendl will both leave Paris Sunday night. Wilander will return home to Sweden to spend a week relaxing on the golf course. Lendl is going to England to practice.

That has been the pattern with their careers. Lendl practices a lot, Wilander doesn't. And Wilander raises his game in Grand Slam events, while Lendl does not. Practice, it seems, doesn't make perfect.

AL: Bosox blank Birds, win seventh straight

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dennis "Ole Cat" Boyd did another shutout job on the Baltimore Orioles, and this time it was a bit of overkill.

Backed by a 17-hit attack that included a home run by Jim Rice, Boyd pitched a three-hitter as the Boston Red Sox beat the Orioles 12-0 Sunday to move their seventh consecutive victory.

"I love facing the Orioles ... they put the fire in me," said Boyd, 74, after hurling his eighth complete game and third shutout of the season. "Some of their guys come to bat and get into a teach me attitude."

Baltimore, the last team in the major leagues to be shut out this season, had not been blanked since Boyd turned the trick last Sept. 21, and had scored in 62 consecutive games.

"When I went out there, Boyd said, 'I want it real, I'm thinking shutout, but let's win.' I wouldn't have cared if we won 11-0."

The Orioles batted only .172 while being swept in the three-game series, and went 3-for-31 with runners on base.

Mike Easter, taking 450 in his last 10 games, figured in three Boston rallies with a pair of doubles and a single. Marty Barrett also had three hits and drove in three runs.

The Red Sox scored twice in the bottom of the first inning. Steve Davis, 32, Easter doubled with two outs and, after Dwight Evans walked, Easter scored and Evans took third on Barrett's single. An error by third baseman Wayne Gross allowed the second run to score.

Barrett had a 449 average while hitting in seven straight games, hit his 11th homer with two outs in the fifth, Boston made it 4-0 in the fifth on conscuttle doubles by Bill Buckner and Seaver.

Baseball

Rice, poked in the left eye when he collided with center fielder Steve Lyons while chasing a fly ball in the fifth, left the game in the seventh. The injury was not believed to be serious.

Barrett singled home a run in the eighth and the Red Sox added seven runs in the ninth off reliever Don Aase. Barrett doubled home one run and Jackie Gutierrez had a two-run single.

Chicago 5
Minnesota 1
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tom Seaver pitched 7 1/3 innings for his 29th career victory and Daryl Boston snapped a 5-for-50 batting slump with a homer and single Sunday as the Chicago White Sox beat the struggling Minnesota Twins 5-1.

Seaver, 41, allowed five hits, including Tim Lincecum's fourth home run of the season in the fifth inning. The 40-year-old Seaver struck out three and walked one.

Bob Fallon got the final out of the eighth inning and Gene Nelson pitched the ninth to seal Minnesota's 14th loss in his last 16 games.

California 1
ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Ron Romankiewicz and Don Mattingly teamed to scatter eight hits and Bob Boone singled home the game's only run in the fourth inning Sunday as the California Angels edged the Kansas

City Royals 1-0.
The Angels snapped a three-game losing streak and moved back into first place in the American League West by a half-game over the Royals.

Romankiewicz, 7-3, gave up six hits in seven innings before giving way to Moore, who went the final two innings for his 12th save.

The Royals put runners on first and second with two outs in the ninth. George Brett, who is nursing a pulled hamstring and was expected to miss a few games, was sent up as a pinch hitter but grounded out to end the game.

Detroit 8
Toronto 3
TORONTO (AP) — Lou Whitaker and Nelson Simmons homered Sunday, powering Detroit to an 8-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays and giving the Tigers a split of the four-game series.

The Tigers, who dropped the first two games of the series, pulled within 6 1/2 games of the American League East-leading Blue Jays. A crowd of 40,273 watched the game, and four-game match-up drew a record total of 163,596 fans to Exhibition Stadium.

Detroit broke open the game by scoring four runs in the sixth inning to take an 8-2 lead. Loser Jim Clancy, 2-3, gave up a leadoff single to leadoff hitter Simmons and was replaced by Dennis Lamp. Chet Lemon doubled Simmons to third and, with two outs, Whitaker was intentionally walked to load the bases.

Texas 8
Oakland 4
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Gary

Gooden and Cliff Johnson rapped consecutive run-scoring singles during a five-run fifth inning and Dickie Noles struggled through seven innings for the victory Sunday as the Texas Rangers beat the Oakland A's 8-4 in the first game of a doubleheader.

The Rangers led 3-4 entering the fifth and Bill Krueger, 4-6, walked leadoff batter Toby Harrah and gave up a one-out single to Larry Parrish. Ward and Johnson followed with their singles off Krueger, and reliever Mike Warren then walked three batters.

Glenn Brummer drove in another run when his grounder slipped through the legs of shortstop Alfredo Griffin for an error. Harrah walked for the second time in the inning to force home the fifth run for an 8-2.

Seattle 10
Cleveland 6
CLEVELAND (AP) — Ken Phelps and Jim Presley each homered and drove in three runs Sunday to lead the Seattle Mariners past the Cleveland Indians 10-6.

Phelps also doubled and singled and scored three times. Presley added a two-run single while Phil Bradley also drove home three runs.

Frank Hills, 1-0, recalled from the minors last Wednesday, gave up five runs, four of them earned, on five hits in six innings for the victory. He was making his first start in his second appearance for Seattle since being acquired from the New York Mets in March.

Milwaukee 9
New York 4
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jim Gantner and Ben Oglive hit two-run homers and Brian Glavin also homered Sunday to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a 9-4 victory over the New York Yankees.

The Brewers got a strong pitching effort from Pete Vuckovich, who overcame a shaky start to give up only three hits and strike out six over 6 1/2 innings.

New York's Rickey Henderson led off the game with his sixth homer of the season and Don Mattingly followed with a double before Vuckovich settled down. The only other hit off Vuckovich, 3-5, was Henderson's third-inning single. Pete Ladd went the final 1 1/2 innings for his first save.

Oakland 6
Texas 5
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Dave Kingman broke an eight-inning tie with his 14th home run of the season Sunday, giving the Oakland A's a 6-5 second-game victory over the Texas Rangers for a split of their doubleheader.

Kingman led off the eighth by hitting a 3-1 pitch from reliever Chris Welsh, 0-1, into the left-field bleachers. Oakland reliever Jay Howell, 4-3, pitched three perfect innings for the victory.

Toby Harrah's two-run homer in the seventh of Oakland's left Kingman led the game 5-5. The Rangers trailed 4-1 entering the sixth before scoring twice on Pete O'Brien's RBI grounder and Don Slaught's run-scoring double.

CHICAGO (AP) — Leon Durham is rapidly proving the point that he can hit left-handed pitching, even if it happens to be Al Holland.

Durham, who at times has been benched because of left-handers, drilled a run-scoring double off Holland Sunday to key a four-run, six-inning lead over the Pirates.

Durham's double, between left fielder Steve Kemp and center fielder Joe Orsulik, who were bunched up, "I don't know how it got through," said Durham. "It had to have eyes."

Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner said he was glad those outfielders bunched any closer they could have shaken hands.

St. Louis 8
New York 2
NEW YORK (AP) — Terry Pendleton hit a freak inside-the-park grand slam and Joaquin Andujar scattered seven hits to beat the New York Mets 8-2 at the St. Louis Cardinals ballpark for a split of their Sunday doubleheader.

The Mets have lost four of their last five games.

Andujar, 11-1, ran his personal winning streak to seven, striking out three and walking none in his first complete game in his first year. He lost the shutout in the seventh inning when Keith Hernandez doubled and Clint Hurdle followed with his first homer.

Pendleton's second homer of the year was also his second grand slam. It came in the fifth off reliever Joe Sambito and resulted from a collision between center fielder Terry Blocker and right fielder Johnny Heep.

Philadelphia 4
Montreal 1
PHILADELPHIA (AP) Glenn Wilson hit a three-run homer in the first inning and Kevin Gross pitched seven strong innings before needing relief help Sunday as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Montreal Expos 4-1.

Gross, 5-6, struck out eight and did not walk a batter in helping the Phillies break a four-game losing streak. Gross took a three-hitter and 4-1 lead into the eighth, but left after the Expos loaded the bases with no outs on singles by Tim Wallach, Herm Wainwright and Sal Butera.

Atlanta 10
Los Angeles 3
ATLANTA (AP) — Dale Murphy homered and drove in three runs to help rookie right-hander Steve Shields win his first major league decision Sunday as the Atlanta Braves downed the Los Angeles Dodgers 10-3.

Murphy drilled his 14th homer of the year over the center-field fence in the first inning on an 8-0 pitch from Fernando Valenzuela, 7-6. The two-run homer followed a single by Brad Komminick.

New York 6
St. Louis 1
NEW YORK (AP) — Dwight Gooden scattered six hits over eight innings and George Foster and Rafael Santana had two-run singles as the New York Mets beat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-1 in the first game of a Sunday doubleheader.

Gooden, 9-3, struggled some in the early going, walking two batters in the first two innings. He retired 12 straight batters until he walked Terry Pendleton with one out in the seventh, and struck out four to raise his league-leading total to 105.

Gooden led the game for a pinch-hitter during New York's three-run eighth. Santana's bases-loaded single produced the first two runs and the other scored on a passed ball by Tom Nieto. Jesse Orosco pitched the final inning for the Mets, allowing one hit.

San Diego 5
Cincinnati 3
CINCINNATI (AP) — Andy Hawkins allowed one run in seven innings to raise his record to 11-0 and San Diego Padres scored four times in the eighth off Mario Soto to beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-3 Sunday.

Hawkins, the leading winner in the major leagues, set a team record by earning his 11th victory without a loss. He surpassed reliever Buich Metzger's 10-mark in 1976.

Hawkins gave up eight hits, walked six and struck out two in his 12th start of the season.

Houston 5
San Francisco 0
HOUSTON (AP) — Joe Niekro pitched a two-hitter and Mark Bailey hit a three-run homer Sunday to lead Houston to a 5-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants and give the Astros a sweep of their three-game series.

Niekro, 3-6, walked only one batter and retired 18 of the first 19 batters he faced. The Astros gained their ninth straight victory over the Giants going back to last season.

Hurricanes beat Texas, force second title game

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Don Rowland scored Miami's second unearned run in the bottom of the eighth and reliever Ric Raether snuffed a ninth-inning rally to end Texas' streak of come-from-behind wins in a 2-1 NCAA College World Series semifinal Sunday.

Texas, now 64-13 and unbeaten in four games heading into Sunday night's contest, now must face 63-16 Miami today at 6:10 p.m. MDT to decide the national collegiate championship, in the double-elimination tournament. Miami's lone loss was an 8-4 contest with Texas Wednesday.

Texas, which had been behind in every game of the series, took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when David Denny led off with a double down the left-field line.

Denny moved to third on a ground out and scored on an infield error.

Miami evened the score at 1-1 when Chris Magno tripled after Texas' Billy Bates dropped Magno's foul pop fly down the right-field line with nobody out. Chris Hart then bunted Magno in on a bunt.

Miami put two runners on in the seventh — with one out — but Texas starter Greg Swindell, 19-2, worked his way out of a jam with a pop up and a strike out.

losses.

Don Rowland walked to lead off the Hurricanes' eighth. He ate the second and took third when the catcher's throw went into center field.

Swindell then struck out the next two hitters and had two strikes on Rick Richardson, who hit a grounder down the left-base line. Texas third baseman Dodd Johnson bobbled the ball and Rowland scored the go-ahead run.

Texas challenged again in the top of the ninth when pinch-hitter Bobby Behnisch singled with two out. Kerlin walk to bring up Bates, who had two game-winning hits in Texas' first four CWS games. But Raether struck the Longhorn junior to preserve the win.
