Hijacked jetliner sits in Beirut

By SCHEHERZADE FARAMARZI The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Arab hijackers who commandeered a TWA jetliner three days ago held at least 20 Americans hostage on the plane early today as negotiators considered the sky pirates' demands that Israel free more than 700 Shiite Muslim prisoners.

A key figure in the negotiations, Shiite militia leader Nabih Berri, put his forces at Beirut airport on "maximum alert" to guard against a "possible Israeli attack" aimed at freeing the hostages.

The hijackers, who identified themselves as Shites, had forced the Boeing 727 back to Beirut on Sunday, the latest stop on an 8,500-mile terror flight in which one American passenger was killed.

The hostages signed a letter asking President Reagan to negotiate their release and refrain from any military rescue effort. The hijackers freed one ailing passenger. He was Robert Peel Sr., 58, of Hutchinson, Kan.

Peel told reporters he had broken ribs on a sailing holiday in Greece. "I've been on that damned plane for three days," he said. Asked about the situation on board, he said: "It's hell."

U.S. and TWA officials said another six to 10 American passengers had been removed from the plane during one of its two previous stops in Beirut and were being held hostage at an undisclosed location. Neither the hijackers nor Lebanese officials provided any concrete information about those reports.

Berri, leader of the Amal militia, said he was negotiating a Red Cross airlift of Shiite guerrilla prisoners from northern Israel to Damascus, Syria.

An Israeli source was quoted in several U.S. news reports as saying Israel would not engage in any negotiations regarding Shiite prisoners but would consider releasing the prisoners if the United States asked it to do so. The source said no such request had yet been made.

However, Berri later ordered his militiamen at the airport on alert, and fire from guns and anti-aircraft cannons echoed around the field. Flares fired by militiamen lit up the sky over the airport and hundreds of tracer bullets streaked over the nearby Mediterranean sea.

Journalists were asked to leave the airport. "It is not safe here," said Amal's chief spokesman, Ali Hamdan. "There are reports of many helicopters over the seashore."

As correspondents left the control tower, one hijacker was overheard demanding all runway and tarmac lights be switched off. The landing field was soon plunged into darkness.

In Jerusalem, the Israeli Cabinet was reported discussing the release of Shiite prisoners who were captured in southern Lebanon during the Israeli occupation. Prime Minister Shimon Peres ordered a blackout on news reports of the Cabinet deliberations, and by shortly before dawn Monday there was no further word on Israel's position.

Israeli military sources said the 766 prisoners now being held at Atlit prison in northern Israel were scheduled to be released within a few weeks in line with an announced policy to gradually free the Shites as Israeli disengages from Lebanon, which it invaded three years ago.

Gush Emunim, a militant West Bank settlers' movement, called a rally in Tel Aviv late Sunday to head off any granting of the hijackers' demands. The demonstration originally had been planned to protest the prisoner swap last month in which Israel freed 1,150 convicted and alleged guerrillas for three Israeli soldiers.

The letter said to be signed by captive Americans about the plane appealed to Reagan to "negotiate quickly our immediate release" and to refrain from "any direct military action on our behalf."

The petition pleaded with Reagan to persuade "the Israelis to release the 800 Lebanese prisoners as requested."

The letter was brought from the plane by Bassam Tleis, an official of Berri's Amal militia, after the hijackers radioed the control tower that the hostages had written it.

Berri, who also is Lebanon's justice minister, said he had talked with the ambassadors of the United States, France, Spain and representatives of the United Nations and Red Cross.

Reagan issues veiled threat to gunmen

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan on Sunday warned Muslim gunmen "for their own safety" to free American hostages on a hijacked airliner in Beirut as the White House reaffirmed U.S. policy of not giving in to terrorist demands.

"The U.S. government policy as far as terrorist hijacking type of incidents remains the same," presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said following a hastily summoned meeting at the White House between Reagan and his top advisers.

"We do not make concessions. We do not give in to demands. We do not encourage other nations to do this." During the meeting with Vice President Bush, Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Secretary of

Crewman's father dies in prayer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The father of the flight engineer aboard a hijacked TWA jetliner died while praying for his son's safety during a hospital worship service, family members said.

The Rev. Elmer Zimmerman, the 88-year-old father of crewman Benjamin C. Zimmerman of Cascade, Idaho, died at 10:30 p.m. MDT Saturday at a St. Louis hospital, where he had been in poor health for about a week, said Mark Lochhaas, a grandson.

Defense Caspar W. Weinberger and others, the president said he "remains hopeful for an early peaceful resolution of this incident," Speakes said.

"I will not consider the matter resolved until all passengers and crew are safe," Speakes quoted

Reagan as saying. He said this included the six to 10 passengers that the White House said were removed from the hijacked TWA jetliner Saturday in Beirut and were being held at an undisclosed location.

Speakes said Reagan was aware of a letter said to be signed by 32 people held aboard the hijacked TWA jetliner appealing to him to convince Israel to free the Shiite prisoners whose release he sought by the hijackers. The letter also urged Reagan to refrain from direct military action to free the hostages.

"The spokesman would not say whether the letter was discussed during the 75-minute meeting. "We do not have any comment on it," he added.

ULI DERICKSON Pursuer talks of ordeal

Released flight attendant relates tale of horror

By RANDALL HACKLEY The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Americans aboard a hijacked TWA jetliner wanted to overpower their captors, according to a flight attendant who said Sunday that she urged them: "Please don't do anything in midair."

Uli Derickson, 41, the purser aboard flight 847, also said two Americans were brutally treated by the hijackers. She said the two were an American with "official papers," who she said apparently worked on a Navy construction project in Greece, and one of four Marines aboard. She said the Marines were not in uniform.

U.S. officials have not confirmed the presence of Marines on the jet.

Ms. Derickson said a male passenger gave her a note suggesting an attempt to retake the plane, and asked her to pass it to another passenger.

"I told him please don't do anything in midair," she said. "When the plane is on the ground we may want to do this."

"I tried to talk with the most able-looking man, and they would have been willing, but I told them not in midair. I told them if we do try anything to attempt to do it on the ground."

Speaking at a news conference at Kennedy Airport with three other flight attendants who were freed Saturday in Algiers, Algeria, Ms. Derickson said the terrorists sprayed Mace on passengers when they first took the plane over.

"The initial takeover was rather brutal," she said, adding that she herself received a karate chop, was pushed against a wall and had a gun held to her head.

Ms. Derickson said she spoke with one hijacker in German and acted as an intermediary with the cockpit crew.

At the hijackers' request, she collected passports from passengers. At one point, she said, the hijackers asked her to give them "every passport with Jewish sounding names." They picked six or seven of the passports, she said.

They looked at the passports," she said.

She said the hijacking began soon after two "neatly dressed, extremely polite" men were seated at the rear of the plane. Immediately after the seat belt sign went off after takeoff from

Athens, she said, one of the two "went into the lavatory first and armed himself."

When he came out of the lavatory, he began spraying Mace on passengers, she said. Then the two men blindfolded and bound two Americans and put them in front of the door to the cockpit, according to Ms. Derickson.

The two men had two hand grenades and a 9 mm revolver, she said, and they later joined by 10 more men in Beirut who had automatic weapons.

Ms. Derickson said the hijackers ranged in age from 18 to 38, all wore military fatigues and were armed with handguns, automatic weapons and knives.

They found "four Marines and one American traveling with official papers."

"I do not know which man was shot. He was a Marine. They singled out the four Marines... because they were American military," Ms. Derickson said.

The terrorists expressed hatred for the United States because of U.S. support for Israel and involvement in Lebanon, she said.

"America is the center of all evil in the world," is how she summarized the hijackers' statements.

Weeks of work could remain before budget compromise

By TOM RAUM The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — House-Senate negotiators intensify their efforts this week to produce a compromise 1986 budget, but some House leaders say action on a final spending plan still could be weeks away.

Although both House and Senate budgets appear to shave $56 billion from the nation's $200 billion-plus deficit next year, there are fundamental differences between the two versions.

The 25-member bargaining panel met for three days last week but made little progress toward a final spending bill, it deadlocked four times over relatively minor differences.

And still ahead are the big items of contention — the Senate-passed one-year freeze on security benefits and deep cuts in President Reagan's military buildup approved by the Democratic-led House.

"I haven't seen any real daylight yet," said Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the negotiating committee. "If we can't even reach agreement on these items that are not controversial, that don't involve defense or pensions or people programs... I don't know how we're going to get a real budget."

Rep. William H. Gray III, D-Pa., who leads the 17 House members on the conferees panel, is more optimistic than Domenici about getting results.

"Progress is a little slow. But there are a lot of new members. You've got to get to know one another better. I'm not discouraged yet," Gray said.

"We have to walk through this thing slowly. There are some major policy differences. But I think we'll get something by the Fourth of July," he added.

Today, the conferees committee will try to resolve differences in amounts set aside for the "Superfund" program for cleaning up the nation's abandoned toxic waste dumps. The House version spells out a more aggressive program, calling for $1.8 billion more in spending over the next three years than does the Senate bill.

Complicating efforts to reach agreement was the report last week by Budget Director David Stockman that deficit projections for 1985-88 are higher than the administration earlier calculated due to a sluggish economy.

Even the Senate panel, which the administration favors, would not reduce federal deficits much below $170 billion by 1988, Stockman said. Earlier, senators and administration officials had said the plan would halve the deficit, to roughly $100 billion, by 1988.

The new figures prompted Sen. Dawson Charles D-Fla., the top-ranking Democrat on the conferees committee, to say that figures being used by the conferees can no longer be relied upon — including the claim that the measure would cut $56 billion from the deficit in 1988.

Chiles said actual savings, using the new, less optimistic economic assumptions, come closer to $40 billion.

"We've got our heads in the sand," Chiles said. "We're all playing with numbers that aren't valid any more."

2,000-acre fire nearly contained

MOUNTAIN HOME — Fire crews from Mountain Home and the Boise Bureau of Land Management district Sunday night had nearly contained a 2,000-acre range fire south of Mountain Home.

The BLM fire control office in Boise said the fire began about 5 p.m. Saturday on private land when a tank and debris fire escaped control. Assistant fire dispatcher, Kim Christensen said at 10 p.m. Sunday some crews probably would be on the fire throughout the night.

The fire was reported burning on private, state and federal lands near State Highway 51 about four to five miles south of Mountain Home.

Christensen said in addition to BLM men and equipment, Mountain Home Air Force Base and the rural fire department from Mountain Home were assisting with men and equipment. She said it is the largest of seven fires reported in the Boise district this year.

"The fire has been burning in heavy sagebrush and thick stands of dry chest grass," Christensen said.

Hopper spraying continues

TWIN FALLS — The aerial war on grasshoppers in Magic Valley continued Sunday with an estimated 150,000 acres of public and private land now sprayed in a four-county area.

Roger Pollard of Twin Falls, who is directing the state's spray program for the federal Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said spray operations in Minidoka, Cassia, Jerome, Twin Falls and Owyhee counties are moving ahead but it is hard to calculate the progress being made in control at this point.

"In Minidoka County about 25 percent of the area involves private land, with about 60,000 acres of public land in the total treatment area," Pollard says. "Four planes flying out of the airport at Twin Falls, two each from Jerome and Burley and four from Mountain Home."

Pollard said there is no set schedule. "We are just going to keep spraying until we are through," he added.

Pollard said spraying has to be confined to morning hours because of wind and heat problems during the day.

Discovery poised for launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Technicians performed a final tuneup Sunday for the launch of space shuttle Discovery on a unique international mission to test the latest satellite technology.

The mission, which will propel 22 Arab countries and Mexico into the modern communications age.

Liftoff of the 18th space shuttle mission — the fourth of the year — was set for 5:33 a.m. MDT today.

The launch pad at the Kennedy Space Center was in the middle of a major series of thunderstorms that ended the start of the night, just after the final count-down had resumed from an 11-hour scheduled hold. NASA spokesman Jim Mizell said one lightning strike hit the pad but caused no damage.

"The talks focused on an airlift of prisoners from northern Israel to Damascus. Barri said they have agreed to mediate after the hijackers have given a guarantee that they will not hurt any of the hostages."

Two hours after releasing the petition to Reagan, one hijacker complained to the control tower about failure to send dinner rations to the aircraft.

"The hostages have gone to sleep hungry. Where is the food," screamed the hijacker. "Who is supposed to take care of the hostages. You or us?"

Two gunshots then rang out over the tarmac. Bonfire also was heard earlier in the day when Amal militant men manning watercraft positions fired anti-aircraft guns at an Israeli gunboat cruising along the coast near the airport. The boat did not return fire.

The U.S. Army's anti-terrorist Delta Force based at Fort Bragg, N.C., was sent to the region, according to an informed source in Washington who spoke Saturday on condition he not be identified.

Speaking on the plane's radio, one hijacker renewed a threat to blow up the airliner, and blamed American aid to Israel and the 1982 Israeli invasion of Lebanon for forcing the hijacking.

Sunday's landing was the third time the Boeing 727 and its weary crew had been forced to land at Beirut's battered airport since the aircraft was hijacked Friday after leaving Athens, Greece for Rome with 145 passengers.

Abortion protestors arrested

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Nineteen anti-abortion protestors were arrested after a four-hour sit-in at an abortion clinic here, authorities said.

The demonstrators entered the Delaware Women's Health Organization offices about 8 a.m. Saturday, dismantling some of the medical equipment and contaminating sterilized instruments, said Cathy K. Conner, clinic administrator.

About 65 anti-abortion protestors picketed outside. Ms. Conner said damage was minor and the clinic resumed operations shortly after the protestors were removed.

Mengele still alive?

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Two West German newspapers said Sunday that Nazi war criminal Josef Mengele is alive, despite reports he died six years ago in Brazil.

The Bild am Sonntag newspaper said Mengele is seriously ill with cancer and living in Paraguay, while the Welt am Sonntag newspaper quoted Israeli authorities as saying simply that Mengele is alive.

In Sao Paulo, Brazil, meanwhile, a Brazilian anthropologist, Sunday made a "very special appeal" to the Simon Wiesenthal Center in Los Angeles for more medical data to help identify remains believed to be those of Mengele, the Nazi "Angel of Death."

Pope rides gondola to square

VENICE, Italy (AP) — Surrounded by a rainbow of colored boats, four oarsmen stroked a red, blue and gold gondola across the murky waters of the Grand Canal on Sunday to deliver Pope John Paul II to St. Mark's Square.

Hundreds of boatmen raised their oars in salute when the pontiff's gondola entered the canal, Venice's main thoroughfare.

Better food delivery promised

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — United Nations officials have secured a pledge from Ethiopia's military leader to increase the number of trucks used to haul food to famine victims, a U.N. spokesman said.

Dennis Craig, spokesman for the United Nations World Food program, said Lt. Col. Mengistu Halle Mariam made the commitment in a meeting Saturday with top U.N. officials coordinating relief efforts.

The pledge to commit more trucks was considered significant because food has been piling up at the Red Sea port of Assab.

Battle of sexes is renewed in N.Y. for Father's Day

NEW YORK (AP) — Father's Day in Times Square saw an updated battle of the sexes in which rival demonstrators from the National Organization for Men and the National Organization for Women traded screeches about mom's inhumanity to dad, and vice versa.

Standing nose-to-nose, NOW and NOM pickets also exchanged insults and slogans before a passing audience — composed mostly of bemused or bewildered tourists, street people and winos.

"They just don't give up, these women," said Sidney Siller, a divorce lawyer and founder of NOM, which was demonstrating against alleged favored treatment of women in divorce laws and divorce courts.

It was Siller's 11th Father's Day demonstration in Times Square — known more as a center of drugs, prostitution and pornography than of American family values — but the first at which NOW staged a counter-protest.

About 50 NOW demonstrators, most of them men, marched in a circle on a traffic island in the middle of the square. They chanted slogans including "No More Wimps" and "Dewimply America" and carried signs with messages such as "Alimony Prevents Marriage" and "Dump Anti-Father Judges."

"We have a lot of wimps out there who are judges," said Marvin Feldman, who used a microphone to lead the NOW chants.

The four NOW demonstrators also carried signs, including "Today Is Father's Day. Have You Paid Your Child Support?" and "Make Him a Prince. End Up a Pauper."

NOW demonstrators said that NOM's demand for expanded child custody rights for divorced fathers ignored the problem.

"We get calls from women saying, 'How can I ENFORCE visitation?'" said Lillian Kozak, head of NOM's domestic law task force in New York state. "The fathers don't want to visit their children."

Less than 21 percent of divorced fathers fully pay court-ordered child support, said Noreen Connell, state NOM president.

"Their personal gripes may be valid," Ms. Kozak said, referring to the circling NOM protesters, "but they want to cast law on the basis of their own bad experiences."

"I haven't seen my kids in three years," yelled one NOW protester, who said his divorced wife had moved out of the state and taken the children with her.

NOM, which was founded in 1983, claims a national membership of about 3,000. The Father's Day demonstration was begun 21 years ago by an earlier group, the National Committee for Fair Divorce Laws, outside the city jail where men were incarcerated for non-support.

Multiple-murder suspect's ex-wife has received threats, lawyer says

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The ex-wife of a survivalist suspected in numerous murders at a remote mountain compound has received death threats and her lawyer said Sunday she would make no further comment on the case until authorities grant her immunity from prosecution.

Numerous death threats against Claralyn "Crickle" Balazs have been recorded since Friday, said Stan Rozanski, Ms. Balazs' attorney. He would not say how many threats were received.

Ms. Balazs and survivalist Leonard Lake, who committed suicide in jail, met and married in 1981 and separated the next year. She is a co-owner of the site in Calaveras County, some 150 miles east of San Francisco, where authorities say some 25 people may have been tortured and murdered.

Ms. Balazs has been most helpful with police investigations by what has been known as the Calaveras County murders, and at this point in time, she has been advised that she may be granted full state and federal immunity," Rozanski said of his client at a brief news conference Sunday afternoon.

"We will not interfere with the police investigation ... but we will not make any comment on the case until our demands are met," he said.

Ms. Balazs also appeared at the news conference and said: "I have cooperated with the police to the best of my ability. I will make no further statement at this time."

Rozanski denied his client had been at the murder site, in the Sierra

The woman spent about 25 minutes at the site where teams of officers have found 15 to 20 pounds of bone fragments since Lake swallowed a fatal cyanide pill on June 2 after his arrest for abducting.

Ms. Balazs has told police she used a credit card stolen from a missing San Francisco family linked to Lake. Police said they have talked about giving her immunity from prosecution on minor charges in exchange for her cooperation, but have offered no promises.

Rozanski, of San Jose, has said they are talking with police about immunity to cover "anything short of murder." He did not expand on the comment.

Meantime, investigators and others were still searching the ranch and grounds. They refused to disclose any details, but a news conference was scheduled for the scene for Monday.

Tests on deadly cheese continue

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pasteurization was performed correctly at a plant that made a Mexican-style cheese linked to 29 deaths of stillbirths from a bacterial infection, a state health official said Sunday.

Inspectors from the state and federal governments, the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta and the plant itself spent the weekend at Jasco Mexican Products Inc. in suburban Artesia, said Hans Van Nes, deputy director of the state Department of Food and Agriculture.

"From all records and everything they've seen, the pasteurization has been excellent," he said. "We are down to looking at how it was handled and packaged."

"We are nowhere near finished with that (part of the investigation). We need to know how long it will take, but we will stay there until we have turned over every rock," Van Nes said Sunday in an interview from Sacramento.

"I can't guarantee that it can ever be determined, but we don't want to start out that way. We are trying to find the answer," he added.

Inspectors planned to test the handling and packaging systems by putting dye into equipment to check for leaks, Van Nes said.

Health officials in Los Angeles and Orange counties blame 29 deaths and stillbirths and at least 58 illnesses since mid-March on a bacterial infection, Listeria monocytogenes, which has been found in both opened and unopened packages of two types of Jasco brand cheese, queso fresco and cotija.

State officials said Saturday the death toll was 28, but Dorothy McVann, associate deputy for public health programs for Los Angeles County, insisted the number of dead was 29.

Mayors prepare to vote on variety of issues

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Federal budget and tax proposals are the top issues at this year's U.S. Conference of Mayors, but participants also took up such issues as nuclear disarmament, freer international trade and federal highway maintenance.

The conference's resolutions committee took up about 50 resolutions, reviewing them before the entire gathering of about 165 mayors votes on them Wednesday. The resolutions will be used to guide the conference's lobbyists in Washington.

general revenue sharing to cities and states drew unanimous support. Revenue sharing, which would end in fiscal 1987 under proposals before Congress, now distributes about $4.6 billion a year in federal funds.

Another resolution calls for the president to meet regularly with Soviet leaders to work toward reversing the nuclear arms race. This resolution passed after two Republican mayors objected to references they said made President Reagan appear at fault for not organizing a summit meeting during the last four years.

The committee also approved a resolution urging the federal government to sell the Conrail truck system to private investors, "while maintaining the greatest possible service to the Northeast-Midwest region with fullest possible employment."

The committee also approved resolutions urging Congress to:

- Maintain funding for the nation's highways, sewer systems and other capital projects.
- Change tax laws to reduce economic barriers that discourage foreign businesses from locating and investing in the United States.

State delegation votes to aid rebels

WASHINGTON — Votes of Idaho members of Congress on key issues during the week ending June 14:

Key House votes

HOUSE FLIP-FLOPS ON AID TO REBELS IN NICARAGUA. In a significant victory for the Reagan administration, the Democratic-controlled House voted 249-184 June 12 to provide $27 million in non-military aid to rebels fighting to overthrow the government of Nicaragua. The House killed a similar proposal April 24.

Humanitarian aid includes food, clothing and medicine, but not weapons or ammunition. The amendment also prohibits the CIA and the Department of Defense from distributing the aid, but it allows the CIA to exchange information and intelligence with the rebels, who are called "contras." This is a major revision to the so-called "Boland amendment," which prohibits U.S. support of military activities against the government of Nicaragua.

The Senate passed a comparable amendment June 6. Both measures must now go to conference, where representatives from each chamber will attempt to hammer out a compromise.

Voting for aid to contras: Craig (R), Stallings (D). Voting against: None.

Key Senate votes

SENATE DROPS BAN ON AID TO ANGOLA. The Senate June 11 dropped a nine-year-old ban on U.S. aid to guerrillas fighting the Marxist-oriented government of Angola by a vote of 63-34.

The ban, known as the Clark amendment after former Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa (1973-79), was passed in 1976 in the aftermath of the Vietnam war and was to keep the United States from becoming involved in another, similar conflict in Africa.

An attempt to repeal the measure failed in 1981.

The United States has tried to act as a mediator between Angola and South Africa, which is currently the major source of funding for the guerrillas in Angola. U.S. negotiators are trying to work out an agreement that will provide for the removal of thousands of Cuban troops now in Angola in exchange for pledges from South Africa to respect Angolan sovereignty and to withdraw its troops from Namibia (also known as South-West Africa).

Voting to repeal the ban on aid to Angolan rebels: McClure (R), Symms (R). Voting against: None.

Regional banking laws discriminatory

Regional banking is the dubious practice in which a legislature allows banks from certain neighboring states, but not from others, to expand into its own state. The leaders here were Massachusetts and Connecticut, responding to banks located there that wanted it both ways. They wanted to grow by expanding across state lines, but they also wanted to be protected from competition by the big New York banks. The result has been that these two states have adopted interstate banking, but only within New England.

That raised two questions. First, is it constitutional? And second, is it good public policy? The Supreme Court has now answered the first question: yes, it's constitutional. The court acknowledged that these laws discriminate against some states' banks in favor of others'.

But, it concluded, Congress has authorized the states to set their own rules for interstate banking and they are entitled to protect the independence of their local banks.

But a law can be constitutional and yet be wrong-headed as well. The survival of small local banks is not at stake. It's the profitability of the bigger regional banks that is at the center of this quarrel.

Fortunately, increased competition is inevitably coming. Citicorp, based in Manhattan, is the biggest banking company in the country and one of the plaintiffs in this case; it now operates in three other states — California, Illinois and Florida — into which it was invited to rescue savings and loan associations in distress. Next year it will go into business in Maryland.

Other major banks throughout the country are following similar strategies. But the discriminatory character of these regional laws is not going to be cured by a proliferation of loopholes and special exceptions. They only erode the rationale for the discrimination.

Congress is now considering federal legislation to permit regional banking only as a temporary stage in a transition to unrestricted interstate competition. The Federal Reserve Board has recommended a short transition period of no more than three years. Otherwise the banking system will become a hodgepodge of anomalies and preferences, at the expense of the banks' customers. A lot of people in Congress were hoping that the Supreme Court would make their job easier by declaring all regional restrictions unconstitutional. The court has declined to oblige them, and has passed the responsibility back to Congress — where it belongs.

Assessing the damage in spy-ring case

WASHINGTON — Make no mistake, the Walker spy case is a serious matter.

Why they did it is perhaps the most important question of all, but the extent of business in any case of espionage is damage assessment. Government prosecutors aren't saying how many secret documents were delivered to the Soviets over the last 15 or 20 years by the four men arrested so far. Odds are they don't know. But the alleged leader of the ring, John A. Walker, Jr., 47, who retired from the Navy as a chief warrant officer in 1978, was arrested in a Maryland hotel May 20 after an attempt to deliver a trash bag containing documents to his Russian case officer. Prosecutors say Walker's son Michael, 22, was arrested on the aircraft carrier Winleit two days later with 15 pounds of similar documents. That represents a lot of secrets right there.

Worse news is bound to come. The other two men arrested in the case — Walker's brother Arthur J., 50, a retired lieutenant commander, and his California friend Jerry A. Whitworth, 45, a retired senior chief petty officer — both had access to secrets of real importance involving techniques of anti-submarine warfare (in Walker's case) and cryptographic material (in Whitworth's). These are things that can affect the outcome of wars.

You can be sure the government will do everything it can, within the limits, to make a new secret of the extent of the damage. But you can also be sure the government will never know the extent of that damage unless Walker and his son, who both pleaded innocent to espionage charges, change their minds and decide to cooperate. It's no hard to determine any of the alleged spies learned in the course of their Naval careers — job descriptions lay it all out neatly — but it's very difficult to know what they might have picked up with a little curiosity and sticky fingers.

Despite the best efforts of security officers, something like chaos reigns where secrets are concerned. Document sets get mysteriously laid out on desk tops. People talk. Safe doors are left open while secretaries go down the hall to the bathroom. Whole libraries of secrets routinely passed through radio communications centers, where Walker and his friend Whitworth both worked.

Not long ago I met a man who had been stationed at the Naval Weapons Laboratory in Dahlgren, Va., back in 1964. One day, while making an inventory of secret documents under the door to a walk-in safe had been left open, he noticed it a corner some big cardboard boxes filled with computer punch cards. He asked an officer about those were. He was told they were targeting computers for the entire SIOP, the Single Integrated Operational Plan that determines where U.S. nuclear warheads will go in the event of all-out war.

Targeting information for the missiles on Polaris submarines was routinely transmitted to the Naval Weapons Laboratory. I was a member of the Joint Strategic Target Planning Staff (JSTPS) at Offut Air Force Base near Omaha, Neb. Some months earlier the JSTPS computer had failed to shut down after sending the Polaris data, and spewed out cards for the whole SIOP — the design and targets for every last warhead and bomb in the American strategic inventory. The guardians of the safe didn't know what to do with them, so they simply piled them in a corner. This sort of thing makes security officers feel ill, and they are often ill. Walker and his alleged colleagues may have stumbled across almost anything in the course of rummaging about for years on end.

Transfer to Moscow was only a Xerox machine away.

How much does this matter? Not knowing what was compromised makes it hard to say. Detailed Soviet knowledge of the American approach to anti-submarine warfare over two decades would be no joke. If you want an idea of what's involved read Tom Clancy's novel "The Hunt for Red October," a kind of "military procedural" about a large-scale sub-hunting operation. But the potential cryptographic losses are the real wild card in the Walker case. These alone could make it the worst breach of military security in American history.

A document is only a document, whatever it may contain, but access to coded communications opens a door into continuing operations. In wartime nothing is more important than knowing where an enemy plans to go and when he plans to go there. The biggest single British contribution to Allied victory during World War II — second only to sticking it out when she faced Germany alone — was her reading of secret German radio traffic encrypted on Enigma machines. If the Soviets had similar access to U.S. Naval communications in wartime the consequences would be enormous. But this is not wartime, and the damage — whatever it is — will gradually be repaired.

It's what you don't know that hurts most where military secrets are concerned. Walker's arrest by itself solved a big part of the problem by alerting military officials to the breach of security. Repairing the damage is basically a question of housecleaning — changing procedures and equipment. The latter can take time, and in some cases could never be possible. There has been some speculation in the press that Walker may have compromised "compartmented" knowledge. This is a technical term meaning information protected by its own code-name. Frequently it refers to a source or method for the acquisition of intelligence — a way, let's say, for determining that a Soviet nuclear submarine is about to put to sea. This code is something simple and seemingly innocuous: a box-car full of potatoes might routinely appear at a certain siding two days before sailing, or some part of the ship's gear, warmed up for departure, might give off a tell-tale signal. Some years ago, for example, a Defense Intelligence Agency analyst discovered a way to determine what Soviet SS-9 missiles were pointed at. It was a simple thing: The Soviets could easily have hidden it. Since they didn't do anything they probably didn't know we knew, or know how we knew. Once a secret like this is gone, it's gone for good.

The job facing security officers now will be to figure out why it happened so they can prevent a repetition. This raises the question of a motive. Ideology apparently had nothing to do with it. In the 1930s and '40s Soviet intelligence depended heavily on sympathizers with the world's only socialist regime. The atom spies Klaus Fuchs, Bruno Pontecorvo, Allan Nunn May and Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, and the Cambridge circle (Guy F. Burgess, Donald D. Maclean, Anthony F. Blunt and Kim Philby) were all recruited on the basis of ideology. But this cannot explain many other Soviet successes. A retired CIA counterintelligence officer once told me he thought Soviet spy runners had an almost hypnotic ability to get people to say yes. They knocked on a lot of doors, often with amazing bluntness, and it seemed to work. The alleged pitch to John Walker may never be known, but nothing has turned up from his friends and family so far to suggest he ever thought working for the Soviets made any sense. The world revolution or serve world peace or anything of the like. Money and excitement seem to have been the key.

This has been the pattern with other recent spy cases. It is notoriously difficult to generalize about the motives of spies because there are, relatively speaking, so few of them. It's not like divorce or applications to law school. Something over 4 million people working for the Soviets have security clearances and we may assume all of them begin to feel the pinch again within a month or two of the last raise. Money explains why they're working, not why they're spying.

Perhaps the explanation is that they don't really care. It matters. It's one thing consciously to betray your country. It's quite another to let a man slip a sheet of technical data into a manila envelope from the carloads of the stuff at the office headed for the shredder.

USDA plans to relax meat standards while quality is poor

WASHINGTON — Seventy-nine years ago, Upton Sinclair shocked the public with "The Jungle" describing common practices at Chicago meat-packing plants: the slaughter of dead, diseased and crippled cattle often covered with foul-smelling bugs; processing of tubercular steers; mixture of spoiled meat with good; meat covered with rat excrement; water from leaky roofs dripping onto meat; bribery of government inspectors; and workers who let in lard rats, never to return.

Except for the problem of disappearing workers, meat inspectors in Los Angeles recently reported current packing-plant practices remarkably similar to those that Sinclair found.

Other whistle-blowers say Los Angeles is just a gross example of what is a national phenomenon.

In the face of such revelations, what is the federal government doing? The Department of Agriculture, it turns out, plans further relaxation of federal oversight for public health laws that were passed in reaction to Sinclair's galvanizing novel.

The government's retreat comes just as the public faces an increasing threat of food poisoning. The most well-known illness is salmonellosis, a byproduct of poor sanitation often spread through fecal contamination during slaughter. Salmonella contamination has reached alarming levels — last year U.S. Department of Agriculture and the meat industry admitted poultry contamination rates of 30 percent to 40 percent. Despite clear legal prohibitions in the 1906 Meat Inspection Act, requiring that any adulterated meat be rejected, USDA routinely passes its seal of approval on this contaminated product. Last year less than 1 percent of poultry and one-third of 1 percent of livestock were condemned by federal inspectors.

The Reagan administration has responded with legislative proposals for partial deregulation, which is already occurring on a de facto basis. The most obvious change was in political appointments, where industry lobbyists replaced consumer advocates. A 1983 Ralph Nader report concluded, "The industry is the Department of Agriculture to an extent unparalleled in many years."

The leadership change was soon reflected in USDA policy shifts. In 1981 the agency gutted its regulatory program, and in 1982 audits consistently attacked erratic enforcement of sanitation laws. Veterinary reviewers charged that they were ordered not to report sanitation violations and were censored when they did anyway. Dr. Carl Telleen, an original member of the review team, recalled, "The reviewer's new job was 'it looks clean, it is clean.' But when I caught dead flies on products, my report was censored."

The administration's changes magnify traditional agency weaknesses, according to Rodney Leonard, a former USDA meat inspection chief. Leonard said that inspectors have always been under a thumb at any agency like the USDA dominated by veterinarians. USDA inspectors are still undertrained, understaffed and drastically underpaid, compared with their counterparts at other agencies.

The "assess agency" environment is understandable. USDA has a long history of corruption. In the 1970s more than 100 graders and inspectors in Los Angeles, Houston and New York were convicted of bribery; a USDA assistant secretary estimated that in some areas 90 percent of inspectors were involved.

A 1979 agency report conceded that "known breakdowns (in agency integrity) have occurred with regularity on a small scale, and less frequently on a large scale." It concluded that the inspection program is "very vulnerable to corruption and little has been done about it," largely because of the "tendency to deny the problem" in order to avoid bad publicity. Whistle-blowers in Los Angeles claim that nothing has changed and that management has set the ethical pace. The recent review-team report didn't discuss the subject.

Bribery may become less necessary, because USDA is legalizing dangerous contamination levels. Telleen warned last year of how much the rules have been relaxed: "Problems has changed and food that was wasted or instead of trimmed off, for instance, Telleen argued that washing merely spreads contamination and is ineffective in killing food-poisoning germs like salmonella. Despite his considerable scientific backing, Telleen was reprimanded for violating the agency's ethics code, which forbids employees from taking "any action which adversely affects public confidence."

USDA has been unrepentant in the face of other disturbing revelations. In the 1970s there were exposures of criminal violations on Nebraska Beef, in Denver. A conviction resulted, but USDA promptly rewarded the plant owners with a fat school-leaving contract for their new firm, Cattle King.

What counts publicly is to maintain a "positive" image, rather than picking on "one damn little nit-picky thing that comes up," said USDA's Lou Gast, associate administrator for the Food Safety and Inspection Service, about reports of omissions from the Los Angeles review team report. The problem is that those "damn little nit-picky things" can poison us.

The solution is frustratingly simple: The meat industry will be cleaned up if consumers insist. Public activity may force the USDA to keep an active inspection program, and dissent for their new firm, Cattle King.

Many office-holders fear Evans' departure will mean no job

BOISE — Having a Democratic U.S. senator is fine — but having a Democratic governor means keeping a job to many high officials of the administration of Gov. John Evans.

That's why the governor's campaign workers reportedly are having a hard time getting the office-holders to contribute or pledge to the campaign. Evans is expected to make next year against Republican Sen. Steve Symms.

"I don't mind contributing $500 or $1,000 every four years," to the campaign of a governor who directly or indirectly controls hundreds of state jobs, says an office-holder, who doesn't want to be identified.

"What will he take with him to Washington, five or six jobs?" asks the office-holder.

Quane Kenyon

"What will that do for me?"

Beneficiary of this reluctance will be Cecil D. Andrus, the all-but-declared Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

And when Andrus becomes the Democratic nominee, that will present Evans with other problems. When Andrus became the first Democratic Idaho governor in a quarter-century when he took office early in 1971, he brought with him a new administration. Some of the department chiefs appointed then by Andrus are still serving. Even though many of them have been serving nine years under Evans, loyalty to Andrus apparently runs strong.

Labor unions may have the same divided loyalties. Unions would like to have another Democrat in the U.S. Senate — but it's more important to Idaho unions to have a Democrat in the Statehouse at Boise.

Idaho has a merit system designed to take the politics out of jobs and promotion in state government.

But Rep. Phil Childers, R-Boise, maintains there's no merit in hiring outside the present rules that put age and seniority as a strong possibility of in-lieu practice.

Childers and other legislators have been serving on an interim committee on Idaho's personnel system. The study was triggered by controversy in the Department of Agriculture, which culminated last winter with the retirement of Director Max Hanson.

In hearings since then, Childers said he's convinced the agriculture problems stemmed from conflicts between Hanson and some of his employees, and the uproar ended when Dick Rush was named new Agriculture director.

Idaho has a hiring "register" for state jobs. People who apply for positions are tested and given a score combining education, experience and test results. In theory, at least, those at the top of the register stand the best chance of getting a job.

But Childers said testimony indicates many positions are given to someone other than the person at the top of the register. It's perfectly legal, Childers says, but that weakens the ranking system.

State administrators contend the top five candidates for a job usually are roughly equal in qualifications.

Childers maintains if those at the top of the register aren't picked, it gives the administrator great latitude.

And that gives Idaho's governor, who appoints the administrators, much control over many state jobs — merit system or no merit system.

Fast elections indicate U.S. Senate elections aren't won in Idaho on the basis of in-state contributions. It's a matter of who can draw the national donations.

Symms says in the 1980 election against Democrat Frank Church, he collected $500,000 in Idaho contributions to $200,000 for Church. Both sides hotly disputed the other's reports of Idaho contributions in that election.

Symms spent $1.7 million, meaning he drew an average $1.2 million in out-of-state money, or nearly three times as much as he got in Idaho contributions.

That means that even if the people who work under Evans are not reluctant to contribute to his campaign, the governor still will have to look to national sources for the bulk of his campaign money.

Some prefer scenic valley life to CommTek

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

HAILEY — They hung the sign on the Hailey Hotel little more than a week ago. It read: "Only the good ones stay."

The sign was a play on what Dave Wolford, owner of CommTek Publishing Co., used to tell his employees at his Hailey office.

It was hung by those who stayed in Hailey when CommTek packed up and moved its operations to Boise, a move being completed today.

"I hope he thought it was humorous. I did," says Maryann Mix, one of the 20-out-of-little-more than 100 employees who decided to stay rather than move to Boise.

Last winter, when CommTek announced it was leaving Hailey for Boise to take advantage of more convenient and less expensive air travel, company officials said they hoped most of the company's employees would go with them.

They did. About 30 percent in all.

The company began in 1973 publishing one magazine in the new satellite television industry and having only a few employees. It grew rapidly, and six years later it was publishing five magazines with rapidly increasing circulations.

As the company grew, it began hiring publishing professionals from metropolitan areas. However, many of the company's employees were hired from Blaine County communities. Some left with the company; some stayed.

In general, those who left did so to take advantage of the opportunity the company offered them and their families. Those who stayed had a number of reasons for doing so.

"I decided to stay because my commitment to the city of Hailey was greater than my commitment to CommTek. This is my home. I own a home here. I have a child, and I didn't want to leave her," says Mix.

A part of Mix's commitment to Hailey is her position on the Hailey City Council. Having served 18 months of a four-year term, she says she has some goals she still wants to achieve on the council.

Mix left her job as editorial administrator at CommTek on May 6 to take a job as a resource librarian with Power Engineers, which takes over the distinction as Hailey's largest employer.

By leaving early, Mix gave up a $2,000 bonus given by CommTek to employees who stayed with the company until the move. She also took a $5,000 cut in her annual salary.

"Money isn't everything. Living in Boise isn't something I wanted to do," says the single mother of a 13-year-old daughter.

"She is a part of the reason I'm not moving. She grew up here. I don't have to worry about her here," Mix says.

"We all make our compromises to live here. Although I like my job at Power Engineers, it was really starting all over for me," says the 10-year resident of the Wood River Valley.

Some of the others who are staying are less committed to Blaine County than Mix.

Ron Rudolph, the 26-year-old former editor of one of CommTek's magazines, is staying to do some of the things around Sawtooth Mountains and Sun Valley that he hasn't been able to do since he came here four years ago.

After graduating in journalism from a New York college, the Brooklyn native worked with a local newspaper, the Idaho Mountain Express in Ketchum, before moving to CommmTek three years ago.

"The real reason I don't have to go is, unlike a lot of people, I don't have a family, and I have money in the bank," says Rudolph.

"But the real reason is I want to spend some time in the mountains out here. Since I've been here, I worked more on weekends than camping in the mountains," he says.

"I told myself I'd give myself a summer to figure what my next step will be. This is a crossroads, and I'm not in any hurry to make a decision," he says.

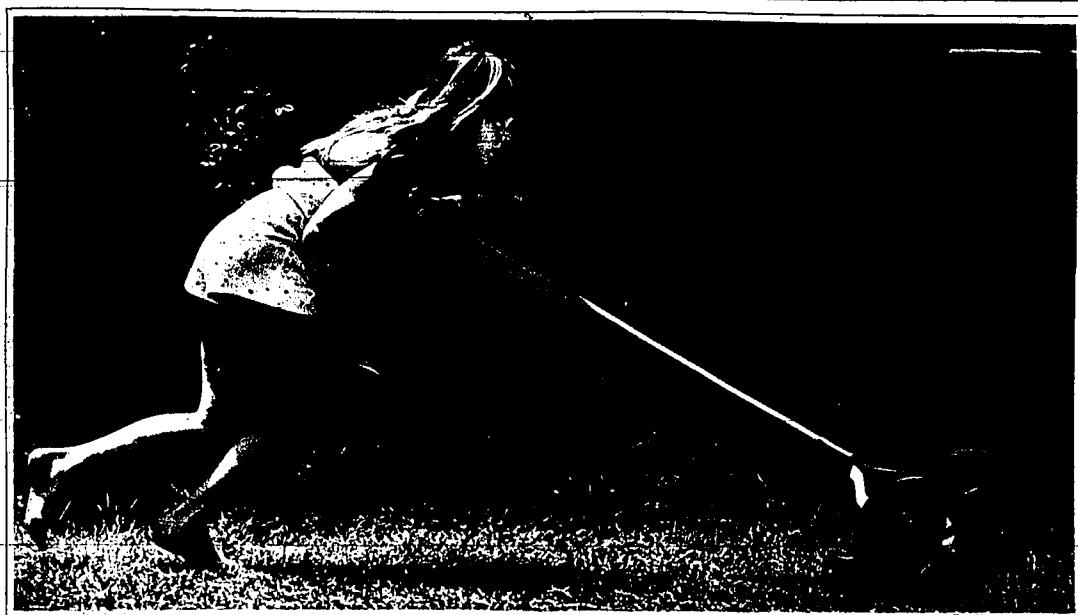

Rudolph says he would like to stay in the Wood River Valley, but he will have to pursue his opportunities as they come, even if it means leaving journalism.

Barry Girard also is leaving CommTek, but the 23-year-old advertising executive is also leaving Hailey at the end of the summer.

Council may clip city code

Liquor licensing rules may change

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — At today's 7 p.m. meeting, the Twin Falls City Council will consider dropping a city code section that requires building standards, including fire safety standards, be met before liquor licenses are issued.

The council will also discuss extending golf pro Don Hamblin's contract for three more years and will consider plats for Magic Valley Mall and Natasha Ann Subdivision.

Earlier this year, area bar owners objected to having to make fire-safety improvements to continue to hold their liquor licenses. December building inspections were unreasonably strict, they said.

In late May, Mayor Emery Petersen asked city attorney Shane Bengochea to investigate removing the building code requirements from liquor license applications.

Councilman Erik Andersen argued that inebriated patrons needed more protection that patrons in other businesses. But other council members have argued that linking fire safety to liquor licenses is an unfair and selective and unfair enforcement of the law.

A city staff report to the council says repeal of the section of the code, should not make public buildings less safe, since the code already specifies inspection procedures.

Public Safety Director Tim Qualls will schedule and complete periodic inspection of all commercial buildings, the report says. If violations are discovered, the staff will encourage businesses to voluntarily make improvements before the code inspections begin.

Fire inspections began to slip in the 1980's when the city transferred fire inspection duties to the fire fighters to save money, but failed to train them and start the program.

Bar owners said their establishments had not been inspected for several years. When they were inspected in December before liquor licenses were renewed only one in 21 met building codes as inspectors interpreted them.

Fire fighters are now being trained to inspect businesses for violations of the code.

Also Monday, the council will consider the Golf Advisory Board's recommendation that Hamblin's contract be extended for three years beginning in October 1986.

Hamblin is now employed for $8,900 a year in addition to keeping income from vending machines, the snack shop, the pro shop and driving range facilities.

Students learning pro skills

By DOUG WRIGHT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Nine gifted Twin Falls High School students are learning professional skills and what it takes to survive in the working world from local organizations involved in the Career Mentorship Program.

The program, sponsored by the gifted and talented segment of the Idaho State Special Education Department, places students just finishing their junior year in high school into local businesses for an intensive two-week internship.

"The purpose is to give students a first-hand visual experience in careers of their choice and help them decide what professions they want to pursue," says counselor Gene Harris, who is coordinating the program for the high school.

The nine students are involved in internships as diverse as pathology lab work at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, civil engineering with J.H.R. Englers, accounting with Cooper Norman Jirovek and journalism with The Times-News.

Members of the high school's National Honor Society are the only ones currently eligible for the program, although the high school may expand the program next year, says Harris.

Students who are eligible and want to participate in the program submit an application to Harris which expresses their career interests. Harris then tries to match these interests with a position in a local business.

The internship lasts approximately 70 hours of work in the business, keep a journal of their activities and do whatever their "mentors," or bosses, require of them.

Although the students don't get paid, the work-experience provides other valuable benefits to them, says Harris. "They begin to develop a sense of professionalism, get a feel for the general work environment, and begin to understand what is involved in the specific business."

Kathy Henschel, studying accounting with Cooper Norman and Jirovek, agrees with this assessment.

Wilson Butte Cave yields store of knowledge

Lava bubble known across land now

By CLAUDINE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News Intern

JEROME — When Wayne Perron and Elwin "Smoky" Webb found the Wilson Butte Cave, they were only looking for a few arrowheads.

Now the cave is known to every major archaeologist in the United States, according to Perron.

The cave is a hollow lava bubble, located 15 miles north of the Snake River. It holds five layers of civilization. The soil deposits found in the cave cover a time span of 12,000 years.

Indian artifacts in the cave hold evidence that dates the arrival of Shoshoni Indians into southern Idaho to be between 1300-1400 A.D.

The cave was probably not a constant home for the Indians, Perron said. He thought it was more likely to have been just a stopping place on hunting trips.

In 1958, Perron, then a Dietrich teacher, was told by some students that there was an interesting lava bubble out by Wilson Butte. He took Webb out to investigate the place, hoping to find a few arrowheads.

After digging successfully for most of the summer, Perron reported the cave to Alan Bryan, an archaeologist conducting a survey in south-central Idaho for the Idaho State College Museum. Bryan asked them to stop digging, and a professional crew came in and took over the job.

Currently, it is a federal felony to excavate on land that is not private property.

While the Idaho State crew was working on the cave, Ruth Gruhn of the Peabody Museum at Harvard University came to Idaho in search of an archaeological site on which to write her doctoral dissertation.

She chose the Wilson Butte cave and funds for excavation were raised by Dr. J.O. Brew, director of the Peabody Museum.

Gruhn wrote what is considered by archaeologists to be the most thorough and comprehensive report ever written on a single archaeological site in Idaho.

The cave's entrance is a long, narrow opening at ground level which opens up into a large, round room. An open tube in the lava leads off from the southwest corner of the room to another room. From this room, two other tunnels run in a northeasterly direction.

Several hundred artifacts were found in these rooms and tunnels. The greatest findings were in the southeastern part of the first room, Perron said. They include three moccasins, sagebrush rope, bone awl, game pieces, arrowheads, and trading pieces.

Perron, Webb, and The Idaho State College Museum currently have most of the artifacts.

"I thought about donating all of my pieces to a museum, but they just ask them for study, not for display. More people see them in my house than would in a museum," Perron said.

Some of the more interesting artifacts are weapons that were used to kill many species of animals that are now extinct, including ancient horses, camels, and sloths.

Perron and Webb were both amateur collectors when they found the cave. Once, in the space of four years, they traveled around the country and found over 6,000 artifacts, Perron said.

The cave lies just off the property of Tom Prescott, a Jerome rancher and businessman. According to Prescott, the desert country is filled with evidence of early man. While running cattle, the cowboys have sometimes found arrowheads lying on the ground.

Vandalism is a problem when places like the Wilson Butte Cave are found. The Bureau of Land Management has succeeded in keeping most of it under control but there are still traces of spray paint on the lava.

"If I could come across caves like this, I want to show them to everybody, but I don't want the public to ruin them," Perron said.

The cave is accessible by winding desert roads going through land on which local ranchers run their cattle and the way is marked only with a few small signs.

Inmate fails to return

TWIN FALLS — A 24-year-old Twin Falls County jail inmate who failed to return Saturday morning from work release duties may face an extended stay in the state prison, officials said Sunday.

Dennis Lee Major, of Twin Falls, had completed more than half of his 60-day county jail sentence when he failed to return to the jail. Major had been sentenced to state prison for robbery and was then placed on parole. However, he violated terms of the parole and was sentenced May 28 to 60 days in the county jail.

Hopkins said because the man had a steady job at the time the court granted him a work release as of May 11. Under the work release agreement, he was allowed to leave the jail to work each night and to serve his jail time in his off-duty hours and holidays.

Hopkins said Major was working a night shift and was released to go to work Friday as usual at about 6:30 p.m. When Major did not check in at the sheriff's office at Saturday morning, officers called his employer and found he was not there. The employer learned that Major had apparently walked out about midnight without notice.

Hopkins said a misdemeanor charge of escape will be filed against Major and authorities with the Bureau of Probation and Parole will be notified.

A broadcast for Major was issued by officers Saturday. He is 5 feet, 11 inches tall, Hopkins said, and has brown shoulder-length hair, blue eyes and a mustache. He has a dragon tattoo on his upper left arm.

Hopkins said Major is the third work release escapee in about a year. The program was adopted in Twin Falls County about three years ago.

Thieves hit Scout camp

TWIN FALLS — Burglars have no respect for youth programs in the community.

Police in Twin Falls reported Sunday that someone visited a Boy Scout jamboree camp in South Park and took $206.25 in equipment from Scout troops and leaders.

The theft occurred Saturday morning according to Rex Thomas of Jerome, one of the jamboree officials. He said two tents, valued at $34 each, were taken as were cooking uten-

Vandals shatter windows

TWIN FALLS — Reports of window damage at two Twin Falls businesses were received by Twin Falls police during the weekend.

Officials at the First Security Bank, 222 Main Ave. S., reported someone threw a bottle through a large plate glass window causing $700 damage. The incident occurred sometime between 6 p.m. Thursday and 7:45 a.m. Friday. No entry into the building was reported.

Sometime Friday night a window in The Desert Industries Store at 1117 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., was broken, possibly by a pellet gun. Officials estimated damage at $400.

Priison sentence imposed

PIOCHE, Nev. (AP) — A Burley, Idaho, man charged with possessing drugs for sale has been sentenced to five years in a Nevada prison, the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department said.

Ronald Lee Russell, 35, was sentenced on Friday in Lincoln County, where he was arrested in March on suspicion of trafficking in up to one pound of cocaine. Under a bargaining agreement, Russell pleaded to a reduced charge of possession, the sheriff's department said.

Lincoln County authorities arrested Russell after searching his vehicle about 10 miles north of Las Vegas. The search occurred after an all-points bulletin naming Russell was issued as part of a drug investigation involving suspects from Los Angeles and El Salvador.

Wendell residents request aid of council in cleaning up lot

By TERRY WILLIAMS
Times-News Staff Writer

WENDELL — The neighbors of a vacant house in Wendell want the property cleaned up.

At the Wendell City Council meeting Thursday, Frank Driesel, Marvin Stary, Mel Weinberg, Shorty Bay and Ernest Gault compared notes about a house on the corner of First Avenue East and Milner Street.

Driesel presented several pictures of the run-down house showing weeds and dirt piles surrounding it. Several months ago, he said, all the neighbors cleaned up the property voluntarily. Now it is a mess again, and the city should take action to have the owner, Dorothy Fleming Machacek, clean up the property, Driesel said.

"We have to keep our places up, so they should, too," he said, adding that the unkempt house is a fire hazard.

Wendell Mayor Otto Lemke described the property condition as "absolutely ridiculous" and said it is good for neighbors of such property to file official complaints so the city has authority to take action to clean it up.

The council decided to write a letter to Machacek saying the property must be maintained or the city will take care of it at the owner's expense. Lemke said there are many other unkempt houses and lots in Wendell that should be cleaned up, and this would be a good time for the city to take action on them, too.

The council voted to write the Federal Housing Administration in Boise to demand clean-up of about 12 vacant FHA homes in Wendell. Owners of several other homes also will receive letters from the city.

In other business:

- Dave Brown, of Edwards, Howard and Martens Engineers, Inc. in Twin Falls, reported the Wendell block grant application has been declared ineligible due to a technical error.
- The city had applied for about $341,000 to rebuild its water system. Brown said he did not allow enough time between notice of a hearing and the hearing on the grant. Although this was a new rule that made a dozen other grants across the state also eligible, Brown apologized sincerely.
- "I feel really bad about this," he said. "I was my mistake."
- Lemke accepted the apology and said the city did not have great hopes of receiving the grant anyway.
- "I wish money knew where it was going before I was put in," he added.
- Ron Fager of C and R Sanitation said some city residents are filling plastic trash bags too full. Warned by the sun, these bags tear easily when lifted and are often too heavy for one man to lift.
- The council said Fager must still pick up all bags, but he may ask residents to use smaller ones.

plait. If the council grants it, groundbreaking will start within the next few weeks, company officials say.

The council will also reconsider an appeal of the city's decision to deny an application for a Natsasha Ann Subdivision. On May 13, the council heard an appeal of the decision of the Planning and Zoning Commission to approve the preliminary plat for Natsasha Ann Subdivision.

However, the council should have denied the appeal since the code allows only decisions on final plats, not preliminary plats, to be appealed, city attorney Shane Bengoechea says.

Also Monday, the council will consider allowing the Mental Health Services Administration to hold huddles and luncheon in City Park during summer band concerts.

"Yes, the experience has been valuable, because I think I do want to be an accountant now, after working in that environment. I really like the environment."

"The businessmen also seem quite happy with the program," says Harris, "because it gives them a way to keep in touch with school students and learn something."

The program is paid for out of funds allocated to the Twin Falls School District by the state Division of Special Education, which are lost at the end of the year if they are not used, says Harris.

Students participating in the program this year are:

- Kelly Custer studying music at the College of Southern Idaho.
- Veronica Gregory, working in civil engineering with J-U-B Engineers.
- Claudine Chamberlain and Brad Bowlin, learning journalism and newspaper advertising at The Times-News.
- Kimberly Hitchcock, studying pathology with doctors Martin and Gray at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.
- Mike Reaves, learning electronics at Cain's Furniture & Appliances.
- Kathy Henschel, studying accounting at Cooper Norman Irovec.
- Nicki Brown, learning radio broadcasting at KLIX-AM radio station.
- Mary McLauthlin, studying veterinary medicine with Dr. John Lowry.

"It's been done very well. You have your normal when you first move, but the group that moved Monday was settled down by (Wednesday)," he says.

The move cost the company about $150,000. But, Keck says he expects to make up that expense in the first few months in Boise because of reduced travel cost and money saved in taxes.

The company hardly skipped a beat in replacing those who stayed behind in the Wood River Valley or elsewhere. "It's better than going to Boise."

For the others, they will have plenty of time to think about what they will do.

"I think most of us really liked being remote. We liked being close to the mountains and skiing. We're all skiers. Those are the things we will miss," says Artinger.

"It was really nice living in the Wood River Valley. I haven't had a worry about a stop sign in two years."

Chicken-egg squabble continues

DEAR ABBY: I don't have a problem, but you seem to have one. The answer you gave to "I Am Serious," was asked, "Which came first, the chicken or the egg?" was ridiculous. "Didn't you learn anything in school? I knew the answer to that 50 years ago while I was still in grade school."

The facts are: The chicken is a bird, and all birds evolved from the reptile family, approximately 100 million years ago. Reptiles had been laying eggs for millions of years before that time, and the chicken evolved from the reptiles.

Of course, the egg you laid in your column when you cited the Bible as your source of information is another matter. Next time you want an answer to a scientific question, consult The Book of Knowledge, Darwin was right. The book you referred to has no answers, only questions.

— C.G. McPHERSON, KAN.

DEAR C.G.: Read on for more letters on the chicken-and-the-egg subject.
DEAR ABBY: You cited Genesis 1:20 to support the theory that the chicken came before the egg. Wrong! Abby, birds did not show up until about 150 million years ago. Eggs have been used as a form of reproduction for a much longer period — even counting the eggs with shells hard enough to survive out of water. The first eggs were laid by reptiles more than 100 million years before the first bird existed.

I'm reminded of the "news" last year, when the Vatican finally decided that Galileo was right about the Earth revolving around the sun. It seems hard to believe that once upon a time people actually thought that the faith would be weakened if anyone thought the Earth was not the center of the universe.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

It may take another 300 years before we admit that the Earth is a billion years old — not 5,000 years.

— A SECULAR HUMANIST

DEAR ABBY: "I Am Serious" wanted an intelligent answer to which came first, the chicken or the egg. Of course the fundamentalists will not accept the facts, which are as follows:

The reptile evolved from the egg of a fish. The bird evolved from the egg of a reptile. And with man's help, the chicken evolved from the egg of a bird.

The correct answer is: The egg preceded the chicken by several hundred million years.

— B EGGZACT

DEAR ABBY: Reliance on Scriptures as authority for facts is not always valid. Since all forms of life begin as a seed or an egg (even us), it's obvious that the egg had to be the predecessor of what evolved into the chicken.

But you get a ton of vituperation on this one.

— D.B. LAHAINA, HAWAII

DEAR D.B.: I did. And most of it was foul. Read on:
DEAR ABBY: The theory of evolution is logical. Originally, all life came from the ocean. Millions of years later it made its way to the land, then some reptilian forms returned to the sea and became air-breathing mammals. Other reptiles evolved into birds and learned to fly. Most fish lay eggs. The dinosaurs, which were reptiles that lived millions of years ago, laid eggs. We even have fossil evidence (their bones and petrified eggs).

Abby, it's silly to say "the theory of evolution." Evolution is not a theory; it's a proven fact.

— J.M. SERIOUS II

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, who is getting married next summer, suffers from asthma and is allergic to cigarette smoke.

With the wedding invitations we plan to enclose a separate card noting that there will be a reception and dinner following the wedding. On that card, we shall (in polite words) ask the guests to please refrain from smoking.

Is it acceptable to do that?

— WONDERING IN COUNCIL

DEAR WONDERING: Absolutely! The well-mannered invitees who cannot make it through the festivities without a nicotine fix will know that they will be expected to step outside for a smoke. And those who object need not attend.

Blacks run past an army vehicle after being tear-gassed by police for throwing stones

Violence marks anniversary of 1976 anti-apartheid riots

By TOM BALDWIN
The Associated Press

SOWETO, South Africa — Police fired rubber bullets and barrages of tear gas Sunday to disperse about 1,000 black marchers, some throwing stones, after a service marking the ninth anniversary of anti-apartheid riots in 1976.

One policeman was slightly hurt by a rock and four police vehicles were damaged in a five-minute clash outside Regina Mundi Roman Catholic Church in the vast black township of Soweto, where—the nationwide 1976 riots began.

In Daveyton township east of Johannesburg, a crowd of blacks attacked the home of Mayor Tom Boya with rocks and gasoline bombs, and a guard posted outside shot dead one youth in the group, a police spokesman said.

Police also tear-gassed mourners leaving another commemoration service attended by several thousand blacks in New Brighton, a black township near Port Elizabeth in the riot-torn eastern Cape Province, witnesses said.

After years of relative calm, a new wave of anti-apartheid rioting has left more than 370 dead since August. The unrest heightened tensions during this year's anniversary services.

The clash in Soweto between police and mourners followed the pattern of confrontations on past June 16 anniversaries.

Most of the 5,000 to 6,000 mourners left peacefully after an afternoon memorial service for the nearly 600 victims of the 1976 riots. But about 1,000 blacks, mostly youths, formed an impromptu march from the church toward several armored vehicles.

Police ordered the crowd to disperse, then fired tear gas canisters toward the marchers as some in the crowd threw rocks.

Rights meeting hits impasse

OTTAWA (AP) — A conference of government human rights officials reviewing compliance with the 1975 Helsinki accords was deadlocked Sunday, with just one day left to reach agreement on a concluding statement.

Delegates from all sides said it would take a "miracle" to break the impasse between the Soviet bloc and Western nations in time for Monday's concluding session of representatives from 35 countries.

"I do happen to believe in miracles," Soviet delegate Vsevolod Solovnikov told the conference Saturday, a Western diplomat reported. All sessions have been closed to the public, but followed by detailed briefings for journalists.

Richard Schiller, U.S. ambassador, met with reporters to argue that it was "not terribly important" whether or not the meeting manages to produce a concluding report.

"I don't think there's much significance in it," he said. "The success of the meeting has been established by the debate we had."

The first three weeks of the assembly, which opened May 7, were devoted to a review of compliance with the human rights pledges set out in the pact agreed to at Helsinki, Helsinki in 1975.

Any decision or statement must be accepted by all 35 participating countries: the United States, Canada, and all nations of eastern and western Europe except Albania.

Kohl criticizes territorial ambitions

HANNOVER, West Germany (AP) — In a speaking engagement criticized by the Kremlin, Chancellor Helmut Kohl on Sunday addressed some of the 13 million Germans who fled westward as the Soviet army overran the eastern reaches of the Third Reich.

More than 12,000 Silesians — who demand the return of former German territory lost to Poland after World War II — crowded into a cavernous hall to hear Kohl denounce the territorial ambitions that plunged Europe repeatedly into war over the centuries.

Kohl said West Germany has no claims on Silesia, now part of Poland and Czechoslovakia, and wants reconciliation with its neighbors.

"In Silesia today live Polish families to whom the land has become a home. We will respect this and do not question it," he said.

New currency to fight woes

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Tinkering with the economy failed to cool runaway inflation of over 1,000 percent annually. President Raul Alfonsin abolished the peso, introduced a new currency and froze wages and prices during the weekend.

The economic medicine, which may be hard for some Argentines to swallow, takes effect this week.

The success of the ambitious overhaul of Argentina's inflation-riddled economy will hinge on two factors — official resolve and public confidence — say economists and community leaders.

The plan has provoked sharply contrasting reactions, with business leaders and economists cautiously optimistic but labor leaders and opposition politicians virulently condemning it as an attack on workers.

On Friday, Alfonsin announced a wage- and price-freeze and a new national currency, called the "austral" to replace the peso. Wages will be increased to adjust to inflation through June but would be frozen beginning July 1.

Socialist Party leader Luis Zamora condemned the government reforms as unworkable. "The only thing that will be frozen are salaries, because it is impossible to do it to the rest of the prices," he said.

Although the currency exchange became effective Saturday, a bank holiday has been declared through Monday to allow the government time to print and deliver australs to banks and exchange houses.

The austral initially will be worth 1,000 pesos, or $1.25. The peso's value is scheduled to decline daily until it disappears from circulation.

The name "austral" means southern, a dual reference to the nation's location and to the rugged Patagonian frontier in the south of Argentina.

Pokes, 11-1, sweep Beat Minico

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

RUPERT — A sweep by the Twin Falls Cowboys American Legion team left them with an 11-1 season record Sunday and left Minico Coach Cory Bridges asking a lot of questions.

The Cowboys slugged 25 hits in the twinning, rolling past the Sage 12-4 and 13-8. The victories boost the Cowboys' record to 4-0 in conference while Minico dropped to 2-2 and 5-7 for the season.

In the second game, Minico stranded 11 men on base and twice they left the inning with the bases loaded. "I think that was the key," said Bridges. "But they struck us out to end the innings so I guess that's the best defense. We just didn't do the job."

"We've won four but we're hurting," said Twin Falls Coach Mike Tremayne, noting that his catcher, Casey Bartholomew, is out with a hand injury and outfielder Kevin Sandau is nursing a hamstring injury.

In the opener, right-hander Kevin Ames hurled a three-hitter as the Cowboys came from behind to win.

After Twin Falls took a 2-0 lead, the Sage came back with four runs in the bottom of the third inning. After Minico's Tim Woods doubled and teammate Tom Vaughn walked, the Cowboys had trouble fielding the ball as Tony Martinez and Marty Carter both reached on errors eventually and came around to score.

Twin Falls scored 10 runs in the next two innings with RBI doubles from Kirk Slater and Rob Ellis in the fourth. Slater and Ellis knocked in all four runs in the inning.

Eric Ochsner added a double in the fifth, while Ellis had a three-run double in the same inning.

Slater led the Cowboys going 3-for-5 at the plate with a pair of singles along with his double and winning pitcher Ames added a double and a single for the winners.

Ellis continued to tear up the Minico pitching, as the Cowboys took an early 7-0 lead in the nightcap.

His triple down the right-field line in the second inning scored Matt Harr, Tim Crossman and Nick Baumer. Earlier in the inning Barry Williams knocked in Sandau with a single.

In the bottom of the second, Minico's Tim Petzel, Martinez and Doug Meyers all singled to lead the bases. Dave Cosgrove walked to give the Sage their first run. After all of the runners advanced on a balk, Scott Asson slapped a single scoring Meyers and Cosgrove cutting to cut the deficit to three.

The Sage added another run in the third when Jesse Branson singled, advanced on a fielder's choice and scored on a sacrifice fly by Meyers.

Chen chips on to green, hitting the ball twice on this shot to give him an 8 on the par-4 hole

Quadruple bogey sinks Chen at Open

North takes title by one stroke

By BOB GREEN
The Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. — The door to Andy North's struggling, scrambling victory in the United States Open Golf Championship was opened by a bizarre 8 scored by T.C. Chen of Taiwan.

"We've all done it, make some big, big number. It's the sickest feeling in the world," North said Sunday after he survived a mass collapse by contenders and acquired his second American national championship.

Chen's quadruple bogey on the fifth hole, when he held a 4-shot lead, was the critical factor, the one that turned the tournament around.

"It opened the door to the rest of us," North said. "I was just glad to have the opportunity to be in the hunt."

The 33-year-old veteran, a frustrated non-winner since taking this same title in 1978, made the most of it.

It wasn't easy. He took this one with a 4-over-par 74, a grinding, hard-won effort that saw him in almost constant difficulty. In the rough, in—greenside bunkers, facing 20-footers for bogey, in fairway traps. He finished with a 1-under-par total of 279, winning by one stroke.

"If I had to characterize my round, I'd say guts, determination, just finishing," North said.

For the cheerful, smiling Chen, Dave Barr of Canada and South African Dennis Watson, who tied for second at 280, it was a case of what might have been, of leads that vanished and opportunities lost.

Chen, of course, was the chief casualty, shooting a 77 that included the pivotal 8.

"It's tough, leading for three days. There's pressure, lots of pressure," North said.

"I really not complain," said Chen. "I just played bad. Terrible golf today. But I finished second. That's not too bad for my first U.S. Open. And I made a lot of friends here.

ANDY NORTH Survivor

Barr, once the leader alone, finished bogey-bogey for a 72. "I tried my best. I'm proud of myself. I did the best I could and came up one short," said Barr.

Watson, too, was one short after a round of par 70. And his 72-hole total included a 2-shot penalty that was assessed in Thursday's first round, a penalty that was the difference between winning and second.

"That was Thursday. I've forgotten it," Watson said.

The championship turned on Chen's disaster on the fifth. The slender, cheerful man from Taiwan who had led this event through the first three rounds, had a 4-stroke advantage on the field when he went to the tee on the fifth hole, a 457-yard par 4.

Chen, seeking one of the great upsets in the 85 years this championship has been held, drove the fairway.

And then it happened.

Says Chen: 'Bad head; I am angry with myself'

By HAL BOCK
The Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. — T.C. Chen, the tournament's leader for three rounds, tapped his temple and analyzed his failure in Sunday's final 18 holes of the U.S. Open.

"Bad head," he said. "I am angry with myself."

Chen carried a two-stroke lead over Andy North into the final round and had widened that margin to four strokes after four holes. The pro from Taiwan recalled thinking if he could make par every hole the rest of the way, the title would be his. "I told my caddie, on the front nine I will go for every shot," he said. "Then I will have no pressure on the back nine. We can just relax and take it off."

When Chen ran into trouble at No. 5, he forgot the formula for playing Oakland Hills — patience. He tried to recover then and there.

"Bad thinking," he said, shaking his head. "I was still thinking par. Now I know after the third shot I should just charge the green and make bogey."

Instead, Chen got hold, trying to make up for his mistake. "It was a pretty tough shot. I was still trying to get close to the pin, trying for a chance to make par. It was stupid thinking. I just tried too hard."

He pushed a four-iron and then used a sand wedge to battle back. But Chen double-hit his shot, an automatic one-stroke penalty that helped balloon his score on the hole into a quadruple bogey eight.

"I knew right away what I did and what the penalty was. It upset me a lot."

From four strokes in front, he slipped back into a tie with North on that single hole. Shaken by that, he bogeyed the next three holes and although he never regained a share of the lead, he later was in front of the tournament alone again.

"It was a long day," he said. "I am angry with myself. I just played bad, not concentrating."

"Number five... I never played golf like that," he said. "I got a little hurt."

He said the experience stayed with him for the rest of the round.

"Everything was gone," he sighed. Still, Chen made one more run and nearly held a bunker shot at 18 that would have tied him with North and forced a playoff. "It was tough," he said. "You start thinking, 'It's the last chance, you must get the ball in the hole.' It was a good shot. It just missed."

The result was a par hole, 77 for the round, and a three-way tie for second place with Denis Watson and Dave Barr at par 280, one shot behind North.

"I finished second," he said. "That's not too bad for the first time in the Open. I made a lot of friends here."

Banks snaps 10-year-old world triple jump mark

By BERT ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Remarkable Willie Banks, one of the most exuberant performers in track and field, shattered the world record in the men's triple jump Sunday night, leaping 58 feet, 11 1/2 inches in the USA-Mobil Outdoor Championships.

The 29-year-old Banks erased the record of 56-9 1/2 set by Brazil's Joao de Oliveira in the high altitude of Mexico City on Oct. 15, 1975 in the Pan American Games on his second attempt in winning the finest triple jump competition in history. Overall, four jumpers cleared 57 feet — the first time that ever has been done legally.

Banks, called "The Bouncing Bar-ister" — he has attended UCLA Law School — is the first American to own the world triple jump record in 74 years. The last was Dan Ahearn, who cleared a modest 50-11 on May 30, 1911.

Banks' performance came only a week after he had "broken" his American record, leaping 57-11 1/2 in the ARCO Coliseum Classic at Los Angeles.

After Banks' phenomenal jump, he leaped high and punched his fist into the air. Often he has psyched himself to jump by listening to rock music on a headset before each attempt during a meet, and he has exorted the crowds to help him jump by requesting the fans to applaud rhythmically. He is one of the most popular track and field athletes who competes annually in Europe because of his enthusiasm.

Banks' series was 57-0, 58-11 1/2, 57-10 1/2, 57-5 1/2, pass and foul.

Michael Conley, who earlier had won the long jump for the second year in a row, at a wind-aided 28-0, making him only the sixth to reach that distance in history, wound up second in the triple jump at 59 1/4, the third best performance in history — behind only Banks and de Oliveira. It was the first time a performer had soared 58 feet — and lost.

Charles Simpkins finished third at 57-5 1/2 and Olympic champion Al Joyner was fourth at 57-3 1/2. The first four finishers are the top four performers in American history.

Conley said jumping 28 feet and 58 feet were significant barriers, but added he now would like to clear 28 feet legally. He had leaped over 58 feet for the first time in the recent NCAA Championships, winning with wind-aided 58-1 1/2. This time, his 58-footer was legal.

In the long jump Sunday, the wind on Conley's winning attempt was 2.64 meters per second — just over the allowable 2 meters per second for record consideration.

Still, Conley joined world record holder Bob Beamon (29-2 1/2), meet record holder Carl Lewis (28-10 1/4), Jason Larry Myricks (28-2 1/4), Jason Grimes (28-1 1/4) and East Germany's Lutz Dombrowski (28-0 1/4) in the elite 28-foot class.

The triple jump began about only an hour after the completion of the long jump, making Conley's performances more amazing. By the start of the triple jump, the wind had died down considerably.

Conley had to come from behind twice to win the long jump and earn a spot on the United States team that will compete in the World Cup meet at Canberra, Australia in October.

Mike Powell took the early lead, with a wind-aided 27-2 in the first round. Conley then answered the challenge in round three, with a jump of 27-3 1/2, also wind-aided.

Grimes, ending his distinguished track career — he is scheduled to sign a contract with the Detroit Lions of the National Football League early next month — then leaped a wind-aided 27-3 1/2 in round four. On Grimes' attempt, Conley had gone in-

U.S. Olympic Committee proclaims 'blood doping' illegal

By STEVE HERMAN
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — The U.S. Olympic Committee passed unanimously on Sunday a resolution outlawing the practice of "blood doping" but heard disagreement on its proposal for random drug testing at Olympic Training Centers.

The USOC, which appointed a special committee last fall to look into a drug control program, had sent a memorandum to the national governing bodies of each Olympic sport, asking for voluntary compliance. George D. Miller, the USOC secretary general, reported Sunday that 20 NGBs had approved the memorandum.

There was no disagreement on conducting drug tests at the time of various competitions, but some USOC members — including athletes themselves — said the proposal was vague and protested plans to test at random at the training centers, where many athletes live for months at a time.

"Who's going to want to go to the training center?" said runner Henry Marsh, chairman of the USOC Athletes Advisory Council. "You're trying to get the most conducive environment possible (for training). They have enough to worry about without worrying about taking a cold medication."

Marsh and others contended the banned substances listed for testing by the International Olympic Committee, which would be followed by the USOC, would include many over-the-counter medications.

The athletes' council earlier approved a resolution supporting the concept of testing for drugs taken for the sole purpose of enhancing athletic performance, but opposed random testing because of the confusion surrounding "inadvertent use of banned substances such as cold medicines."

Miller said the testing would have to be approved by a sport's governing body and that when an athlete reported to a training center he would be asked to sign an agreement to the testing.

"This does not mean we will use drugs or come at midnight and drug you off to the bathroom (for a urine sample)," Miller said.

"There are reasonable levels of medication. It's also clear when excessive amounts are taken, and that can be detected," he said. "I consider the people implementing this program to be reasonable. We must rely on their reasonableness not to harass the athletes."

"Ninety-nine-point-nine percent of our athletes are clean," Miller said. "I really believe that. But if I were an athlete I would want to be proven clean."

USOC President Robert Helmetek, supporting the program, said nevertheless he felt "very troubled about giving up that right (of privacy) just by coming into the training center."

But he said the question also involved the "morality" of taking drugs.

"The reason for not taking drugs is more than just the fear of getting caught," he said.

There was no action taken on the drug control program at Sunday's meeting, the final session of three days of meetings by the USOC executive board. On Saturday, the USOC designated Anchorage, Alaska, as the American city that will bid for the 1992 Winter Olympic Games.

The IOC will receive bids from a half-dozen other countries and decide the site of the 1992 Games at its meeting in Switzerland next year.

The blood doping resolution approved Sunday, similar to one passed earlier by the IOC, stemmed from the disclosure that some American athletes had engaged in the practice before the Olympic Games at Los Angeles last year.

Blood doping refers to the intravenous injection of blood or red blood cells into an athlete's body, whether his own blood or that of another person, to increase oxygen in the bloodstream.

Cardinals complete sweep of Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — "It's execution," said Ozzie Smith of his squeeze bunt. "Baseball is execution. Nine out of 10 people knew it would be a squeeze bunt, but I had to get the ball down to make it work."

Smith, the $2 million shortstop, executed the squeeze for the second run of a two-run fourth inning rally Sunday and the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the Chicago Cubs 5-2 for a sweep of their three-game series.

They handed the Cubs their fifth straight loss and knocked them out of first place in the National League East. Montreal took the lead after a 7-2 victory over New York.

"Pretty nice," said Manager Whitey Herzog of the sweep. "We hadn't played very well here last year. We use the squeeze a lot. I think we've succeeded in nine of the 10 times we tried it."

Smith insisted that everybody has the Cardinals wrong. "Everybody thinks of us as strictly a running team but we lead the National League in hitting," said Smith. "They were expecting us to squeeze. I didn't pick the right pitch to pitch out."

Kurt Kepshire, 3-5, was the winner and had a three-hit shutout working before the Cubs scored in the sixth inning. In his only other appearance against the Cubs he pitched last season.

"I was thinking if I could pitch better, who was lifted for a pinch batter in the ninth, but after they scored all I was thinking about was to win. I'm pleased to have been a part of the sweep."

Ryne Sandberg hit his seventh homer to lead off the eighth and pull the Cubs within 3-2, but an RBI groundout by Vinson Coleman and a run-scoring double gave St. Louis two insurance runs in the ninth.

Bill Campbell pitched the final inning for his third save.

The victory was the fourth straight for the Cardinals and gave them an 8-2 record as they concluded a successful road swing.

Montreal 7 New York 2
MONTREAL (AP) — Andre Dawson hit a two-run homer and Hubie Brooks delivered a two-run single Sunday as the Montreal Expos completed a three-game sweep of the New York Mets with a 7-2 victory.

The Expos, in winning their fifth straight game, scored three runs in the first inning and three more in the fifth against Rick Aguilera, 1-1, who made his first major league start.

A one-out walk by Vance Law preceded Dawson's ninth homer in the first. One out later, Brooks, a former Met, singled and then scored on a double by Tim Wallach.

In the fifth, Miguel Dilone, pinch-hitting for starting pitcher Bill Cwiklinski, 7-5, walked and took home a walk by Aguilera before scoring on Tim Raines' single. With one out, Dawson's sharp groundout took the top past second baseman Wally Backman, who was charged with a two-base error. After Dan Drissen was intentionally walked, Brooks got his two-run single.

San Francisco 5 San Diego 4
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rookie Chris Brown, whose four RBI powered San Francisco to a victory in the opener, won the second game with a two-out single in the bottom of the 13th inning as the Giants won 5-4 and swept Sunday's doubleheader with the San Diego Padres.

Jeff Leonard blooped a triple down the right-field line with two outs in the 13th off reliever Mark Thurmond, 3-6, who also started and lost the first game. Luis DeLeon replaced Thurmond and Brown lined the first pitch to right for his sixth hit of the day.

Tim Flannery tripled in the top of the 12th, scoring Garry Templeton from second for a 4-3 lead, but the Giants came back in the bottom of the inning.

David Green led off with a single, took second on a sacrifice and scored on pinch-hitter Dan Gladden's double.

Frank Williams, 2-2, pitched an inning for the victory.

Trailing 3-1, the Padres rallied for two runs in the ninth inning off Craig Miller and Mark Davis.

Carmelo Martinez's grounder forced Kurt Bevacqua, who had

Bosox sweep series from Blue Jays

BOSTON (AP) — With a batting average of .200, veteran right fielder Dwight Evans isn't hitting his weight. But he's still a key player on the Boston Red Sox.

Evans threw out a runner at the plate in the 13th inning and capped a four-run rally with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly Sunday as the Red Sox rallied for a 7-6 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

"I've been struggling at the plate all year, but it's still fun to come to the park because of the way the club is going," Evans said. "It seems whatever we have to do to win, we're doing it."

With their first four-game series sweep since 1981 — and their first at home since August 1980 — the Red Sox moved to within 3½ games of Toronto's American League East leaders.

Boston trailed by 10 games on May 26, but has picked up ground with 13 victories in the last 14 games and 16 in the last 18 outings. "I felt like Oil Can (teammate Dennis Boyd) out there, jumping around," said Steve Crawford, 4-2, the third Boston pitcher who collected the victory by retiring the last seven Toronto batters in order. "The adrenalin just took over."

"The Red Sox are playing super, but you can't catch walks," Toronto manager Bobby Cox said after his pitchers walked three, one intentionally, in the decisive eighth.

"Nothing was hit hard except for (Glenn) Hoffman's 3-2 pitch. Everything else was ground balls and walks. We gave away three base hits and they got us out. We can't give them games. However, we're still in first place and I'm sure the other clubs would rather be where we are now."

Jim Acker, who relieved starter Jimmy Key after Toronto had rallied to take a 6-3 lead in the seventh, began the Boston eighth by walking Bill Buckner. Jim Rice followed with a single and Steve Lyons then delivered an RBI single.

Gary Lavelle, 2-2, relieved after a sacrifice bunt by pinch-hitter Reid Nichols moved the runners to second and third. Lavelle walked Marty Barrett on a 3-2 pitch to load the bases, and then Hoffman, who had an RBI single earlier in the game, lined a 3-2 pitch to right field for a two-run single.

Barrett took third and Hoffman went to second on the throw to the plate. Bill Caudill relieved Lavelle and walked pinch-hitter Rich Gedman intentionally to load the bases. Evans followed with his sacrifice fly.

Steve Crawford, the third Boston pitcher, improved his record to 4-2, by getting the last seven outs, with a trailing 3-2. The Blue Jays had scored three times in the sixth. Willie Ushaw led off with a single off Roger Clemens and George Bell greeted reliever Bruce Hurst with a double.

Pinch-hitter Jeff Burroughs tied the score with a sacrifice fly, with Bell taking third on the catch. Buck Martinez singled home Bell, and Tony Fernandez and walks. We gave away three base hits and they got us out. We can't give them games. However, we're still in first place and I'm sure the other clubs would rather be where we are now."

The Blue Jays added an unearned run in the seventh when Lloyd Moseby walked and stole second. With two outs, Bell was walked intentionally, and the two runners worked a double steal with Moseby scoring on catcher Dave Sax's wild throw to third.

Baltimore 9 Milwaukee 1
BALTIMORE (AP) — Wayne Gross hit two solo home runs to lead a five-homer attack and Mike Boddicker pitched a six-hitter as the Baltimore Orioles routed the Milwaukee Brewers 9-1 Sunday to complete a four-game sweep and remain unbeaten under Manager Earl Weaver.

Jim Dwyer hit a two-run homer during a three-run seventh, while Fred Lynn led off the eighth with a home run and John Shelby added a two-run blast later in the inning.

"The four-game winning streak ties the Orioles' longest of the season. The current streak began Thursday, when Weaver ended a 2½-year retirement to replace the fired Joe Altobelli. Coach Cal Ripken Sr. handed the club for one game before Weaver took over Friday night.

Boddicker, 7-6, took a three-hitter into the ninth, but lost his shutout bid on an RBI single by Jim Gardner. The victory broke Boddicker's career-high, five-game losing streak and also sent

THE ODD COUPLE WINS!

Judged the perfect pair for heating and cooling.

- You can't beat a high tech gas furnace.
- New high tech gas furnaces can save you 20% to 40% on heating costs compared to older furnaces. You'll get high efficiency heat that will pay you dividends every winter.
 - Gas heating delivers 120 to 130 degree heat almost instantly. On a cold day a combination system like a heat pump delivers only 90 to 95 degree heat. Response time is much faster with gas.
 - High tech gas furnaces have a life expectancy of 20 years or more and require very little maintenance.
- Maintenance costs are lower for an electric air conditioner because it works only 3 to 4 months a year instead of 9 or 10 months compared to a heat pump.
- An electric air conditioner has a longer life expectancy than a combination system because it works fewer hours per year.

Finance both for no money down.

Intermountain Gas has arranged long term, low interest financing so that you can own the most efficient heating and cooling system for no money down! (Certain conditions apply.)

Baseball

Cardinals complete sweep of Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — "It's execution," said Ozzie Smith of his team's win. "Baseball is execution. Nine out of 10 batters would be a squeeze bunt, but I had to get the ball down to make it work."

Smith, the $2 million shortstop, executed the squeeze for the second time in a two-run fourth-inning rally Sunday and the Cardinals whipped the Chicago Cubs 5-2 for a sweep of their three-game series.

They handed the Cubs their fifth straight loss and knocked them out of first place in the National League East. Montreal took the lead after a 7-2 victory over New York.

"Pretty nice," said Manager Whitey Herzog of the sweep. "We didn't play very well here last year. We use the squeeze a lot. I think we've succeeded in nine of the 10 times we've tried it."

Smith insisted that everybody has the Cardinals wrong. "Everybody thinks of us as strictly a running team but we lead the National League in hitting," said Smith. "They are expecting (the squeeze) but they didn't pick the right pitch to pitch out."

Kurt Kephre, 3-5, was the winner and had a three-hit shutout working before the Cubs scored in their final inning. In his only other appearance against the Cubs he shut them out last season.

"I was thinking of it," said Kephre, who was lifted for a pinch batter in the ninth, "but after they scored all I was thinking about was to win. I'm pleased to have been a part of the sweep."

Byrne Sandberg hit his seventh homer to lead off the eighth and pulled the Cubs within 3-2, but an RBI groundout by Vince Coleman and a run-scoring double gave St. Louis two insurance runs in the ninth.

Bill Campbell pitched the final inning for his third save. The victory was the fourth straight for the Cardinals and gave them an 8-2 record as they concluded a successful road swing.

Montreal 7 New York 2

MONTREAL (AP) — Andre Dawson hit a two-run homer and Hubie Brooks delivered a two-run single Sunday as the Montreal Expos completed a three-game sweep of the New York Mets with a 7-2 victory.

The Expos, in winning their fifth straight game, scored three runs in the first inning and three more in the fifth against Rick Aguilera, 1-1, who made his first major league start.

A leadoff walk by Vance Law preceded Dawson's ninth homer in the first. One out later, Brooks, a former Met, singled and then scored on a double by Tim Wallach.

In the fifth, Miguel Dilone, pinch-hitting for starting pitcher Bill Gullickson, 7-5, walked and took second on a balk by Aguilera before scoring on Tim Raines' single. With one out, Dawson's sharp grounder took a bad hop past second baseman Wally Backman, who was charged with a two-base error. After Dan Driscuss was intentionally walked, Brooks got his two-run single.

San Francisco 5 San Diego 4

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — ROOKIE CHRIS BROWN, whose four RBIs powered San Francisco to a victory in the opener, won the second game with a two-out single in the bottom of the 10th inning as the Giants won 5-4 and swept Sunday's doubleheader with the San Diego Padres.

Jeff Leonard bloomed a triple down the right-field line with two outs in the 13th off reliever Mark Thurmond, 3-6, who also started and lost the first game. Luis DeLeon replaced Thurmond and Brown lined the first pitch to right for his sixth hit of the day.

Tim Flannery tripled in the top of the 12th, scoring Garry Templeton from second for a 4-3 lead, but the Giants came back in the bottom of the inning.

David Green led off with a single, took second on a sacrifice and scored on pinch-hitter Dan Gladden's double.

Frank Williams, 2-2, pitched an inning for the victory.

Trailing 5-1, the Padres rallied for two runs in the ninth inning off Greg Minton and Mark Davis. Carmelo Martinez's grounder forced Kurt Bevacqua, who had

Bosox sweep series from Blue Jays

BOSTON (AP) — With a batting average of .200, veteran right fielder Dwight Evans isn't hitting his weight. But he's still a key player on the Boston Red Sox.

Evans threw out a runner at the plate in the third inning and capped a four-run rally with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly Sunday as the Red Sox rallied for a 7-5 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

"I've been struggling at the plate all year, but it's still fun to come to the park because of the way the club is going," Evans said. "It seems whatever we have to do to win, we're doing it."

With their first four-game series sweep since 1981 — and their first at home since August 1980 — the Red Sox moved to within 3½ games of Toronto's American League East leaders.

Boston trailed by 10 games on May 26, but has picked up ground with 13 victories in the last 14 games and is in the last 18 outings.

"I felt like Oil Can (teammate Dennis Boyd) out there, jumping around," said Steve Crawford, 4-2, the third Boston pitcher who collected the victory by retiring the last seven Toronto batters in order. "The adrenalin just took over."

"The Red Sox are playing super, but you can't catch walks," Toronto Manager Bobby Cox said after his pitchers walked three, one intentionally in the decisive eighth.

"Nothing was hit hard except for (Glenn) Hoffman's 3-2 pitch. Everything else was ground balls and walks. We gave away three ball games and they beat us once. You just can't give them games. However, we're still in first place and I'm sure the other clubs would rather be where we are now."

Jim Acker, who relieved starter Jimmy Key after Toronto had rallied to take a 6-3 lead in the seventh, began the Boston eighth by striking Bill Buckner. Jim Rice followed with a single and Steve Lyons then delivered an RBI single.

Gary Lavelle, 2-2, relieved after a sacrifice bunt by pinch-hitter Reid Nichols moved the runners to second and third. Lavelle walked Marty Barrett on a 3-2 pitch to load the bases, and then Hoffman, who had an RBI single earlier in the game, lined a 3-2 pitch to right field for a two-run single.

Barrett took third and Hoffman went to second on the throw to the plate. Bill Caudill relieved Lavelle and walked pinch-hitter Rich Gedman intentionally to load the bases. Evans followed with his sacrifice fly.

Steve Crawford, the third Boston pitcher, improved his record to 4-2, by getting the last seven outs.

Trailing 3-2, the Blue Jays had scored three times in the sixth. Willie Upshaw led off with a single off Roger Clemens and George Bell greeted reliever Bruce Hurst with a double. Pinch-hitter Jeff Burroughs tied the score with a sacrifice fly, with Bell taking third on the catch. Buck Martinez singled home Bell, and Tony Fernandez capped the inning with an RBI single.

The Blue Jays added an unearned run in the seventh when Lloyd Moseby walked and stole second. With two outs, Bell was walked intentionally, and the two runners worked a double steal with Moseby scoring on catcher Dave Sax's wild throw to third.

Forsmann, Porter win Ore-Ida honors

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News Staff Writer

Tennis

BURLEY — Burley's Randy Forsmann and Jane Ann Porter came away with the top two trophies at the Ore-Ida tennis tournament held here this weekend.

Forsmann came away with a 6-3, 6-0 win over Steve Studer of Rupert and Forsmann teamed with Joe Olavarris of Kimberly to win the doubles event in the A division.

In the women's competition, Porter topped Judy Usher from Auburn, Calif., in the A singles final, 6-4, 6-3. Steve Atkins of Boise won the men's B singles event, defeating Dave Hammerquist, also from Boise, in three sets 6-2, 2-6, 6-3. He then teamed with Hammerquist to win the B men's doubles in two sets 6-4, 6-2.

Forsmann's victory in the singles event had an unusual twist to it. "I played with a different racket. I broke the strings on mine," he said. "It was the same brand. It didn't have any adverse effects."

Forsmann's performance was one of the highlights as he breezed through the singles event playing only four matches on Sunday.

"I played well in the singles," he said. "Steve had just played a three-setter earlier so he might have been a little tired."

Jim and Denise Bohrn of Twin Falls teamed up to take the mixed doubles event 6-0, 6-3.

In the women's B singles, it was two Burley tennis players' battling for first prize. Jeanie Fink came out on top posting a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Leslie Morgan.

The event attracted more than 50 tennis players from all over Idaho and the West.

The Ore-Ida is the second of five tennis tournaments that will be played in Burley this summer. The next is the Mini-Casita Tennis Association tournament, scheduled for July 5-7.

All Business takes title

By FLYNN McROBERTS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Hot mitts, not bats, ruled the field Sunday, as All Business of Twin Falls came around the back way, defeated Sutton's of Rexburg and caught the championship in. The Pocket's first annual Women's B Tournament at Harmon Park.

Softball

"Defense," All Business Coach Dan Kay said to sum up the reason for his squad's two quick victories that topped a previously undefeated Sutton's crew.

After forcing an extra game with a 4-3 win, All Business silenced Sutton's hitting in the second title contest and held out for a 2-0 victory for the tournament crown.

Earlier in the day, All Business thumped Dick's Pharmacy of Twin Falls, 8-3, to avenge a Saturday afternoon loss and knock Dick's into a third-place finish. South Side Irrigation out of Jerome fell victim to All Business's rally, 12-3, the game before and wound up in fourth place.

In its bid for the championship, All Business was forced to play six games Sunday, after a close loss Saturday to Dick's threw the team into the loser's bracket.

"We had to come a long way," Kay said of his crew's drawn out battle Sunday, in which All Business racked up 56 total runs — few of those, however, came in the dry final games, where All Business had just 10 hits.

"We hit really well until those last two games... (then) our defense picked us up," Kay pointed out.

Sutton's, who had little trouble putting points on the board earlier in the weekend, was held to three runs on nine hits in the final two games.

"We just didn't hit the ball," said Rexburg Coach Jerry Wheeler. "They're a really good defensive team."

In the championship round's first contest, All Business rover Debbie Dixon broke the ice with a double in the top of the third inning to drive in Jocelyn Higginbotham for a 1-0 mark. A freak play tied it up in the bottom of that inning when Sutton's Paul Wilcox bounced a fly off Dixon's foot, allowing Jerri Weeks score from first base.

Two straight in-park homers — first from Susan Ramseyer, then by Carrie Hansen — kicked off a three-run All Business sixth inning; Heidi Hansen hammered one into left field to drive in Jeanine Knight for the third run.

That set the score at 4-1 and Sutton's couldn't recover despite a two-run seventh inning that closed it to 4-3.

California 3 Chicago 1

ANNHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Reggie Jackson hit a solo home run in the fourth inning and rookie Urbano Lugo allowed three hits over eight innings Sunday to lead the California Angels to a 3-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Jackson's homer was the fifth of his career, tying him with Mel Ott for 12th place on the all-time major-league list. The blast was his eighth of the season and first since May 11.

Lugo, 1-1, struck out nine and walked one. He left the game after giving up his fourth hit, a leadoff triple by Harold Baines in the ninth. Reliever Donnie Moore gave up an RBI groundout by Greg Walker and a single by Carlton Fisk before getting Tom Paciorek to ground into a game-ending double play for his 14th save.

The Angels added a run in the eighth on Dan Spillner. Bobby Grich and Downing led off with singles and Grich scored when he beat first baseman Willie Wilson on a grounder by Boone.

Seattle 2 Kansas City 1

SEATTLE (AP) — Barry Bonnell led off the bottom of the ninth inning with a double and Ken Schrom was hit by Jim Presley to give the Seattle Mariners a 2-1 victory Sunday over the Kansas City Royals.

Bonnell doubled down the left field line off reliever Joe Beckwith, 1-3. Presley singled to center to drive in the winning run.

Karl Best raised his record to 2-1 with 1 1/2 innings of one-hit relief.

The Royals scored in the fifth against Bill Swift to make it 1-1. Johnathan Vanthun led off with a double to right and scored on a single by Willie Wilson.

Minnesota 4 Texas 1

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Gary Gaetti hit a two-run homer, Greg Gagne hit a solo shot and Ken Schrom delivered seven singles to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 4-1 victory over the Texas Rangers Sunday.

Gaetti's ninth homer broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth inning. It came after Tom Brunansky had walked.

Two homers for Orioles

Sunday as the Oakland A's beat the Oakland Indians 11-6 for a sweep of the doubleheader.

Steve McCatty, 3-3, gave up 12 hits in winning, supported by Oakland's seven-run fifth inning.

Oakland 3 Cleveland 2

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dwayne Murphy cracked a two-run homer when he led off the ninth inning Sunday to give the Oakland A's a 3-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians in the first game of a doubleheader.

The A's trailed 2-1 entering the ninth, but Mike Davis singled to left off Cleveland reliever Tom Waddell, 2-4, before Murphy hit his 10th homer.

Don Sutton, 5-5, gave up two runs on pinch hits in eight innings for his 255th career victory. Jay Howell pitched a hitless ninth for his 14th save.

New York 2 Detroit 1

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Winfield singled home the winning run in the ninth inning as Bob Shirley outdunded Randy O'Neal, giving New York a 2-1 victory Sunday over the Detroit Tigers in a game the Yankees four-up on Sunday.

The Tigers had a six-game winning streak ended when O'Neal self-destructed in the ninth inning with an error and a wild pitch.

O'Neal walked Rickey Henderson to lead off the ninth, and Henderson took second on a wild pitch thrown by O'Neal. Ken Griffey was walked intentionally, and with a 1-2 count on Winfield, O'Neal threw a wild pitch that advanced the runners. Winfield then singled up the middle for his 12th hit off O'Neal, 1-1.

Shirley, 2-1, pitched a four-hit, walk-free and strike-out five to become the winner of his only two starts this season.

FERNANDO VALENZUELA
Six-hits Astros

Guerrero and Mike Marshall each led off the game with a single. Valenzuela, 6-7, snapped a personal three-game losing streak and gave the Dodgers a sweep of the three-game series. Valenzuela walked three and struck out five in picking up his third shutout of the season, tying him for the National League high.

The Astros have not scored in their last 25 innings.

Cincinnati 6 Atlanta 5

ATLANTA (AP) — Niek Esasky's solo homer in the 10th inning off Bruce Sutter Sunday lifted the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

It was the first home run since May 4 and fifth of the season for Esasky. Sutter, 2-2, Braves ace reliever, also gave up two runs in the ninth that sent the game into extra innings.

Ted Power, 1-2, the Reds' fourth pitcher, picked up the victory. He left the game with the bases loaded and one out in the bottom of the 10th, but John Franco got the last two outs for his third save.

The Reds trailed 5-3 in the ninth before Gary Redus doubled in one run — a jury return RBI of the game — and scored the tying run on a two-out single by Pete Rose.

Falls Brand-CMV wins qualifier

WENDOVER, Nev. — Falls Brand/Coors of Magle Valley became the first Idaho women's team to ever gain a berth in the Western Nationals by capturing the championship in a USSA qualifying tournament here today.

After crushing Dave's of Salt Lake City in the title game, 19-11, Falls Brand gained a right to play in the Western Nationals in Ogden, Utah, over Labor Day weekend.

In addition, Falls Brand pitcher Carol Coonts took most valuable player honors while Hank Bille was named the tournament's Golden Glove title as Falls Brand's rover.

The first annual, eight-team event, sponsored by Stateline and SilverSmith casinos, was one in a string of qualifying tournaments for teams in Utah, California, Nevada and Idaho; another is set for Boise later in the season.

Falls Brand took its first game, 16-15, over Coca-Cola in Ogden, before overcoming SOS/Tri-Ace of Salt Lake, 6-4. The Twin Falls crew then defeated Woodside/Mini Lube out of Logan, 13-9, to break into the finals, according to Falls Brand Coach Tom Coonts.

Bracey crushes Kriek

LONDON (AP) — Boris Becker of West Germany, seeded 11th, smashed 11 aces as he crushed American John Kriek, 6-2, 6-3 to win the $250,000 Queen's Club men's grasscourt tennis championship Sunday.

Becker, 17, clinched the first Grand Prix championship of his blossoming career in only 66 minutes as the 27-year-old South African-born Kriek crumbled under the weight of the West German's serve.

Kriek, seeded No. 4, was broken twice in the first set and in the second before Becker finished the match with an ace.

Italian, Germans rule Le Mans

LE MANS, France (AP) — A German dentist racing under an assumed name shared the driving and the glory Sunday as a private Porsche 956 won the 53rd Le Mans 24-hour auto classic by 25 miles.

"John Winter," often German Klaus Ludwig and Italian Paolo Barilla covered a record 3161.94 miles with a car that out-raced and out-engineered official Porsche, Lancia and Jaguar entrants.

It was the second straight and third overall victory for Ludwig, 35, and first for Barilla, 24, and Winter, 35, who races under a pseudonym for family reasons.

Pirates cut Tim Foli

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Infielder Tim Foli, a 15-year major league veteran who has been hit by leg injuries this season, was cut Sunday by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The National League team said Foli, 34, would be put on waivers Monday with the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

Foli, who drove in three runs and scored six while hitting .333 during the Pirates' 1979 World Series victory over Baltimore, was on the disabled list this season from April 23 until May 17 with hamstring and groin injuries. He was hitting only .189 with no home runs and two runs batted in.

Biyleven, Wiggins deals fail

MAJOR LEAGUE baseball's trading deadline passed with no last minute deals being made by any teams, not even for disillusioned Cleveland pitcher Bert Biyleven or San Diego second baseman Alan Wiggins.

The 34-year-old Biyleven, who earned his 200th major-league victory Friday night, has been asking the Indians to trade him for the past year.

Trade talks involving Wiggins, who last month returned from his second drug rehabilitation program, also collapsed Saturday and the midnight deadline passed with Wiggins still with San Diego, but not on the active roster.

Bradley captures LPGA event

PITTSFORD, N.Y. (AP) — Pat Bradley survived rain, two lightning delays and a late charge by Nancy Lopez Sunday to post a par 72 for her first victory since 1983 in the $25,000 LPGA Rochester Invitational golf tournament.

Playing cautiously, Bradley bogeyed the sixth hole but used strong wedge shots and putting to save par elsewhere as she carded an 8-under-par 288 and a 2-stroke victory over Lopez.

The 5-stroke lead with which she started Sunday's round gradually dwindled and after Lopez birdied the 18th hole in the threesome ahead, Bradley needed a par to win in regulation. She went one better, sinking a 10-foot putt for birdie, her only one of the day.

to the trainer's room to have his sore calves rubbed.

Grimsby won his fourth-round jump, wound up second, and took home the opening, finished third. Myrick's best jump was 28-9/4.

Meanwhile, sprinters Kirk Baptiste and Jamaica's Merlene Ottey-Page completed doubles by winning the men's and women's 200-meter dashes, respectively.

Baptiste winner of the men's 100 Saturday night, took the 300 in 30.11 but just ahead of high school sensation Roy Taylor, the runner-up in 20.13. Ottey-Page, winning both women's sprints for the second year in a row, followed her victory in the 100 Saturday night with a 21.93 triumph in the 200. Her time was the fastest in the world this year.

In addition to Banks and Ottey-Page, there were four fourth-round performances Sunday night — by Andre Phillips, Henry Marsh, Johnny Gray and Doug Padilla.

Phillips improved his hold as the No. 3 all-time performer in the men's 400-meter intermediate hurdles and handed NCAA champion Danny Harris of Iowa State his only fourth defeat in 30 — the previous three were world records held by Edrickson — winning in 47.67. Harris wound up second in 48.65.

Marsh, winning his sixth national title, took the men's 3,000-meter steeplechase, was clocked in 8:18.35. He won in typical fashion — coming from behind with a punishing finishing kick.

Gray gripped past effort pacemaker Earl Jones, the Olympic bronze medalist, with about 150 meters remaining in the men's 800 and won in 1:44.01, the fastest automatic clocking in the world in 1985.

And Padilla repeated as national champion in the men's 5,000, outkicking Sydney Maree and winning with a time of 17:11.02. Maree also produced the fastest time of his career, 13:17.13.

walked. Pincin-hitting, Terry Kennedy doubled, sending Martinez to third.

Davis, who had saved the first game, relieved and struck out Templeton, but Bobby Brown, also pinch-hitting, singled off shortstop Jose Uribe's glove. Both runners scored.

Mike Blue, starting for the Giants, yielded two hits in seven innings and struck out 10 batters for the first time since 1977.

San Francisco 7 San Diego 3

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rookie Chris Brown went 4-for-4, including a homer, and drove in four runs Sunday, powering the San Francisco Giants past the San Diego Padres 7-3 in the first game of a doubleheader.

Brown gave the Giants a 3-1 lead with his lone homer off Mark Thurmond, 3-5, in the second.

The Padres tied the game in third when Thurmond drew a walk from Mike Krukow, 5-4, and Tony Gwynn homered, but San Francisco took the lead for good in the bottom of the third.

Jeff Leonard led off with a single was forced at second. David Green then walked and Brown lined a two-run double.

The Giants added two runs off Luis Delmon in the seventh. Leonard led off with his fourth home run of the year, Green tripled with two out and Brown had an RBI single.

Mark Davis pitched the final 1 1/2 innings for his third save.

Philadelphia 3 Pittsburgh 2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mike Schmidt's RBI single capped a three-run eighth inning Sunday that carried the Philadelphia Phillies to a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Atlanta 5 Cincinnati 6

ATLANTA (AP) — Niek Esasky's solo homer in the 10th inning off Bruce Sutter Sunday lifted the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

It was the first home run since May 4 and fifth of the season for Esasky. Sutter, 2-2, Braves ace reliever, also gave up two runs in the ninth that sent the game into extra innings.

Ted Power, 1-2, the Reds' fourth pitcher, picked up the victory. He left the game with the bases loaded and one out in the bottom of the 10th, but John Franco got the last two outs for his third save.

The Reds trailed 5-3 in the ninth before Gary Redus doubled in one run — a jury return RBI of the game — and scored the tying run on a two-out single by Pete Rose.

Cincinnati led 3-1 on Redus' three-run homer in the second before Atlanta starter Rick Mahler led off the third with a walk and went to second on an error by shortstop Dave Concepcion on Brad Kominsky's grounder. After Glen Hubbard sacrificed to remove Dave Murphy from the field hit scored Mahler and Bob Hornier's double drove in Kominsky and Murphy.

When Reds starter Tom Browning followed with walks to Terry Harper and Ken Oberkell to lead the bases, he was relieved by Ron Robinson, who yielded a sacrifice fly to Rick Cerone, completing Atlanta's four-run inning.

In compliance with Sections 67-5203(b) and 67-5204(b)(2), Idaho Code, notice is hereby given that the Division of Health and Welfare, Department of Health and Welfare, is undertaking emergency procedures for rule-making. The action, under Docket No. 0304-8505E, involves the amendment and renumbering of rules governing Food Stamps, Title 3, Chapter 4, Rules and Regulations of the Department of Health and Welfare. The action has been taken under the authority granted in Section 58-2003 and Section 39-106(1), Idaho Code, for the purposes of implementing the provisions of 7 CFR 273.2 and 7 CFR 273.7, effective May 1, 1985.

Emergency rule-making is necessary because the failure to implement these provisions would result in a compliance issue which would result in a reduction of federal funds to the agency with which to administer the Food Stamp program and could result in the issuance of recipients who would have to repay. Also, federal regulations require immediate implementation of these changes.

The rules which were adopted by emergency procedures on the 22nd day of April, 1985, and filled by the undersigned on the 28th day of April, 1985, became effective on the 1st day of May, 1985, and will expire at the end of one hundred and twenty (120) days on the 28th day of August, 1985.

The following is a descriptive summary of the substance of the emergency contained in Docket No. 0304-8505E:

1. 3-408 - The Quality Control Section will be amended to streamline the text and to require that those individuals who refuse to cooperate with review be determined ineligible until they cooperate or until 95 days following the end of the review period if the household provides all verification prior to certification.

2. 3-421 - The section determining the primary wage earner is amended to require that household members be included for intentional program violation, failure to comply with the Social Security Number requirement, and ineligible persons be subject to the primary wage earner determination.

In addition, notice is also given, in compliance with Sections 67-5203(b)(2) and 67-5204(b)(2), Idaho Code, that the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Health and Welfare, has also initiated regular rule-making under Docket No. 0304-8505.

The following is a descriptive summary of the substance of the regular rule-making contained in Docket No. 0304-8505:

1. 2-4300.04 - Allotment levels for recipients amended to require that deductions of household hearing aid members be counted prospectively the month

they are added and the month thereafter, and to require that corrective MA supplemental payments be counted retrospectively if not received by the month of 3-3430.33 - Certification period amended to allow a month certification for households eligible only the month of application.

2. 3-403.01 - Monthly reporting amended to require that monthly reporting households file a report each month following the month of application or within five (5) days following approval if approved in month following application.

3. Within the time limits specified below, any person can review the proposed rules in the Division of Health and Welfare, Administrative Services or in any of the regional administrative offices of the Department of Health and Welfare. Copies of the proposed rules will be made available upon written request by specifying the docket number(s) cited above.

Anyone can submit written comment regarding the proposed rules, and any individual or industry who may be affected by the proposed action is encouraged to submit information concerning the anticipated economic impact of the proposed action. For assistance on technical questions concerning the proposed rules, contact Linda L. Caballero, Department of Health and Welfare, 450 West State Street, 9th Floor, Boise, Idaho 83720-9590.
