American hostages plead not to be rescued

By ED BLANCHE
The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Five American hijack hostages, brought to a news conference Thursday, said they feared any military rescue attempt and beseeched the United States not to attempt such an action. They said they were well and did not believe their Shiite Moslem captors would kill them. Allyn Conwell of Houston, Texas, who acted as spokesman for the group, said he had seen all 37 Americans held at secret locations in Beirut and "can verify they are all in good health."

Reading from a handwritten statement, he said: "We as a group, most importantly, beseech President Reagan and our fellow Americans to refrain from any form of military or violent means as an attempt, no matter how noble or heroic, to secure our freedom." Thomas Cullins, 42, of Burlington, Vt., told reporters the hostages "definitely fear" a rescue attempt. Three other Americans also are in captivity — three crewmen still aboard the TWA jet, which was hijacked on an Athens-Rome flight last Friday and has been on the ground here for four days.

The hijackers, and the Amal militiamen now holding most of them, demand that Israel free 766 Lebanese prisoners, most of them Shiite, held in Attit prison near Haifa, Nabih Berri, who is leader of the Amal militia, Lebanon's justice minister, has taken personal responsibility for the hostages. The captives, most of them unshaven, sat at a long table covered with a white cloth. Plates of cake and bottles of water gave it the look of a party, but the table was ringed by Shiite militiamen in camouflage fatigues, some armed with automatic weapons. Conwell, 39, said they were "disappointed" that the Reagan administration had not done more to secure their freedom. His voice was drowned out several times by shouting, and the news conference was interrupted at one point. There were scuffles between the Amal militiamen and some of the journalists. Militiamen beat some of the journalists and smashed cameras. Also brought to the news conference were Peter Hill, 57, of Hoffman Estates, Ill.; Arthur Toga, 35, of St. Louis, Mo., and Vicente Garza, 53, of Laredo, Texas. The hostages appeared ill at ease among their captors and evaded sensitive questions about the hijacking of Flight 847, which had 153 people aboard when it was seized. The other hostages were released at stops in Beirut and Algiers, and the hijackers killed a U.S. Navy man. Conwell read from the statement that a rescue mission "will only cause in our estimation additional unintended and unwanted deaths among innocent people." "It is also our hope, now that we are pawns in this tense game of nerves, that the government and people involved in these negotiations will allow justice and compassion to guide their way." The United States has asked the International Red Cross to help negotiate the release of the hostages. See HOSTAGES on Page A2

Gunmen leave 13 dead 6 Americans slain in Salvadoran cafe

By ANNIE CABRERA
The Associated Press

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — A squad of cold-blooded gunmen, bringing El Salvador's war home to Americans, killed six U.S. Marines and businessmen and seven other people in a cafe massacre on this city's trendiest boulevard. The U.S. Embassy said leftist guerrillas clad in Salvadoran army uniforms were believed responsible for the attack Wednesday night. None of El Salvador's insurgent groups, locked in a five-year-old conflict with the U.S.-supported government, immediately claimed responsibility. At least 15 other people were wounded when the six-to-10 assassins, armed with automatic rifles, leaped out of vehicles at two cafes here and sprayed gunfire at two cafes where off-duty U.S. Embassy Marine guards and other patrons were seated at outdoor tables. Killed were four Marines, two American representatives of the U.S. computer company Wang Laboratories, and seven Latin Americans — two Guatemalans, a Chilean and four Salvadorans. Two other Marines at the scene escaped injury. The attack, spreading panic along the Boulevard del Hipodromo's strip of popular bars and restaurants, was the bloodiest sign yet that the Salvadoran civil war is moving back into the capital after years of fighting in the countryside. Authorities say at least 30 people now have been killed in attacks in San Salvador since January, as the guerrillas have been increasingly stymied in their campaign in rural El Salvador. At the White House, President Reagan condemned the slayings and said, "Our limits have been reached." He directed the Pentagon, State Department and U.S. intelligence community to provide El Salvador "whatever assistance is necessary" to "find and punish the terrorists who perpetrated this act." But White House spokesman Larry Speakes said such assistance would not include use of U.S. troops.

Range, forest fires sweep S. Idaho

Timber fire, drought — A7

TWIN FALLS — Hot, dry winds and a lightning storm combined to create an outbreak of range and forest fires across southern Idaho and northern Nevada Wednesday night that was taxing the available manpower and equipment of federal agencies. A fire south of Castelford that broke out Wednesday evening burned over 1,500 to 2,000 acres and took out power installations that left Castelford, Jackpot, Nev., and a number of rural homes without power for about nine hours. Dale Monson of Idaho Power Co., in Twin Falls, said the fire burned three poles and damaged a fourth. This caused power lines to drop and cut service to the Castelford and Salmon Falls Creek areas.

One of the lines serves the Jackpot substation. Monson said, and power to the gambling community was lost throughout the night. However, Carl Hayden, spokesman for Cactus Pete's Casino, said the community of Jackpot has an auxiliary generator and was able to continue partial operation. There was not enough power for neon lights and such things as toast for breakfast, he said, but relatively few other hardships were experienced. Most of the restaurants use natural gas for cooking, he said. Monson said the outage began at 11:31 p.m. Wednesday and power was restored on either a permanent or temporary basis to all customers by 8:35 a.m. Thursday. However, he said the fire was burning back to the same area late Thursday afternoon, threatening additional power structures. Bureau of Land Management officials said the fire, in the Lilly Grade area south of Castelford, was still out of control but appeared to be running out of fuel late Thursday. BLM dispatcher Pat Shanafelt in the Boise district office said 10 firefighters and two engines were working on that blaze, which continued to burn out of control Thursday night. He said there were a total of 17 fires in the district in the past 24 hours. Both of those in Magic Valley were man caused and under investigation with arson considered as the cause. Two other fires remained out of control near the Magic Water Road, west of Hagerman. Two large fires had burned together to create one fire over about 2,000 acres, nine miles up Magic Water Road from the Hagerman Highway. Shanafelt said the fire bore reported about seven to 10 miles of active firelines on that particular fire. Eight men and two engines were on the fire with another eight-man crew being dispatched to assist late in the evening. The other fire, six miles up the same road, had consumed 3,000 acres of sagebrush range by 10 p.m. Thursday. Shanafelt said the fires were burning on public land and were not threatening any buildings or livestock. There were 39 men, along with seven engines, three pickup tanks, one bulldozer and a refill tanker, continuing to battle the larger fire. Although both fires continued out of control, the larger one was being contained Thursday night and expected to be under control today. Honduran guns down American TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — An American citizen was shot and killed by a Honduran army patrol near the Salvadoran border, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said Thursday. A Honduran military spokesman said the American was shot Wednesday when he tried to flee from a border patrol that had asked him for identification. The U.S. Embassy spokesman, Art Skop, skip the name of the slain man was being withheld pending notification of relatives. By Thursday evening, Skop said, the State Department had been unable to locate the man's next of kin. The body of the man, who appeared to be in his 30s, was brought to a morgue in Tegucigalpa on Thursday, Skop said. He said the American, who was not a government employee, was fired on by members of the Honduran armed forces' 12th battalion near the town of Cayaguana.

Union elections proposal erupts school meeting

By PAULA EUBANKS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The continued collection of union dues by the Twin Falls School District and a proposal to include a contract provision for union-certification elections emerged as the main issues discussed by representatives of the school district and the local teachers union before a fact-finder Thursday at the school administration offices. Both might threaten the ability of the union to remain as a representative of the teachers. The dispute over who should collect dues for the union has been on the negotiating table since December, but the school board's proposal for an election clause in the 1984-85 contract is new and came as a surprise to the union, said Jana Roy, a French teacher and Twin Falls Education Association negotiator. No election was ever held to establish the union. The fact-finder, Eaton H. Conant, is scheduled to return a report on his recommendations to the school board and union by July 10. The report will remain secret until July 24, when it will be made public if no settlement has been reached between the board and union. Conant, of Eugene, Ore., heard both sides offer informal statements and rebuttals on many unresolved topics. The dispute over contract wording included the question of whether the contract should contain a clause promising teachers that the board

Attorney for state nominated

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has formally submitted the name of Maurice Elsworth to the Senate for confirmation as the new United States attorney for Idaho, Senator James McClure said.

The Idaho Republican said he recommended Elsworth, a Carey native, to the president last December. Now that he has been nominated, "I hope the Senate will act quickly to confirm him," McClure said. "He has a strong record of public service in Idaho and in Washington."

Elsworth has served since 1981 as associate solicitor in the Interior Department's Division of Solicitor and Investigations.

Airport bomber still sought

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Police said Thursday they doubted a leftist terrorist group was responsible for the bomb explosion at Frankfurt airport, and they continued searching for a young man who sped off in a blue Mercedes.

Wednesday's blast in a busy airport departure hall killed two children and an adult and injured 42 other people, including one American.

Police are looking for a handful of claimers claiming responsibility for the bombing identified themselves as members of the Red Army Faction members, an ultra-leftist group.

TWA to continue Athens flight

NEW YORK (AP) — Trans World Airlines said Thursday that it will continue to fly to Athens International Airport in Greece, despite President Reagan's warning that travelers avoid the airport.

The president said earlier this week that U.S. citizens should avoid Athens because security is considered lax at the airport, where hijackers boarded TWA Flight 947 a week ago.

Clover Crossing, was reported late Thursday afternoon, but at press deadline no one was working on that blaze.

All of the fires resulted from a lightning storm that swept through southern Idaho Wednesday night and into the high winds, swept quickly through dry brush, Shanafelt said. He added that firefighters hoped to get a better handle on the blazes as winds died down during the night.

Bob Powers, dispatcher for the Sawtooth National Forest, said two fire reports were received Wednesday night in the South Hills area.

One was already out when crews arrived and the other was confined to two-tenths of an acre of timber in the Yellow Jacket area.

He said a Sawtooth crew headed by Dale Jarrell left Twin Falls early Thursday for Winnemucca, Nev., to assist in a serious nature fire problem. Lightning caused numerous fires there, he said, and Jarrell will assume management of control efforts out of Winnemucca. Jarrell took a 10-man crew that had been on the fire north of the Sawtooth National Recreation area earlier in the week.

Two fires in northern Nevada had burned together to cover 20,000 acres while several others of around 1,000 acres in size were also out of control, Powers said.

In the Shoshone BLM District a small fire of about 400 acres was reported about 3:30 p.m. Thursday and was in the mop-up stage about 8 p.m. It was expected to keep crews at work until after 10:30 p.m. Cause of the fire was not known, officials said, but it was spread rapidly by high winds. About 25 men along with several tankers and other equipment were sent from the Shoshone Office. Dispatchers reported it was the only fire in the district Thursday.

national Committee of the Red Cross to approach Israel about freeing the Shiite prisoners, but has not made a direct request to Israel. Both nations have stuck to their positions that they will negotiate in terror-free zones.

The White House said Thursday that Reagan is asking Middle East governments to use their influence.

Conwell, speaking in a strong, clear voice, said: "We understand that there is a large number of Lebanese people who undoubtedly have as equal and as strong a desire to go home as we do."

"The Israeli government reportedly has a plan for releasing these people in conjunction with the military withdrawal of Israel from Lebanon."

"We sincerely ask and pray that this task be expeditiously completed, especially now that the Israeli forces are south of Lebanon, or almost out of this country."

In his mind and to a man we condemn hijacking or terrorism of any sort or nature, regardless of the perpetrators or the circumstances. But we do sincerely pray that the governments involved in this problem can put aside fear, anger and insult in the name of specifying the wrongs committed to date.

The 37 passengers were taken off the plane under cover of darkness early Monday — to make sure they would not be killed in a rescue attempt, as Berri explained. U.S. officials said the plane was shot by Delta Force commandos had been reported heading toward the area.

Berri said earlier that he had accepted a Swiss offer to host an exchange of the American hostages for Lebanese prisoners held by Israel.

He made the disclosure after the Hostages' relatives rejoice

By The Associated Press

Relatives of the hostages who appeared on television at a Beirut news conference shouted with joy Thursday at proof the captives were still alive, and even some who did not get to see their loved ones said they felt reassured.

"It was wonderful to see him looking as good as he did," said Kelly Cullins, wife of hostage Thomas Cullins of Burlington, Vt. "But he is still in a horrible and frightening situation."

Cullins was one of five hostages who spoke at the heavily guarded news conference in Beirut and appealed to President Reagan to avoid direct military intervention "at all costs."

The five are among 40 Americans who have been held since Shiite Muslim gunmen hijacked a TWA jet Friday. The other passengers and crew have been freed, except for one Navy man who was killed.

Hostage Allyn Conwell, 39, of Houston, said the hostages, being held in secret locations in and around Beirut, were "disappointed" that the Reagan administration had not done more to secure their release.

Swiss ambassador, Jean-Paul Raminier, delivered a letter from Foreign Minister Pierre Aubert urging that the Americans be freed for "humanitarian reasons."

"Geneva airport was used last month for the exchange of most of the 1,500 Palestinian prisoners Israel exchanged for three Israeli soldiers captured by Palestinians during Israel's 1982 invasion of Lebanon."

Israel's Defense Minister, Yitzhak Rabin said the United States must ask Israel directly to free the Lebanese held in Aitil prison near Haifa.

He said Israel would free them sooner or later, but, "if you want to link to the release of the hostages, it's the responsibility of the United States to come up... and tell us."

will maintain teachers' broad professional advantages beyond those rights defined by their contract.

The school board wants to eliminate this contract clause because it negates the purpose of the contract to specifically define the relationship of the board to the union, said Jerry Gates, chief negotiator for the school board.

The school board also wants to limit the items teachers can grieve about to an alleged violation, misinterpretation or misapplication of a specific section of the contract, Gates said.

The union negotiator, Rob Nicholson of the Idaho Education Association, said that the union will not give up the current, more broadly worded clause unless the board agrees to binding arbitration for grievance cases.

Binding arbitration allows a neutral third party to decide the facts and resolution of a grievance case.

The union proposed that in the contract it needed extra protection against the union board reprisals against teachers who participated in the strike last year. Gates said the union did not need the protection.

The board's position included changes in all the contract clauses except that concerning strike reprisals. The union wants no change in the contract wording except for the strike reprisals clause, which they want to broaden.

The board's position generally called for limiting the scope of the union's involvement with teacher and management relations in the school district.

The union's position generally called for keeping the current broad wording of the contract that allows it to represent teachers on many matters to the school board.

Gates of the Idaho School Boards Association, said that the union might be willing to agree to wording changes in all areas being discussed except dues collection and certification elections.

The union feels that its membership numbers might decrease if the union must collect dues independently, Gates said. He added that Twin Falls teachers might not vote to retain the union as its representative to the board if a certification election were held.

Gates of the Idaho School Boards Association President Ray Grubbs said the TFEA would "definitely" win an election. He said six of every 10 teachers in the district are members of the union and that he does not expect the membership to decline in September when memberships are up for renewal.

"This (dues collection clause) is going to be the sticking point with the union," said Randy Bohannon, Gates' negotiations partner. He said that if collection of union dues through automatic withholdings from member teachers' paychecks were stopped, loyalty to the union would be tested.

"The union has the administrative capacity to collect its own dues," he said.

"I think that there is discussion among the association members," Bohannon said.

Grubbs, on the other hand, said that teachers showed much support for the union's performance at the negotiating table when they answered a TFEA survey four weeks ago.

"There are 310 teachers in the district. Seventy-percent of those said they were pleased and supported the TFEA negotiations," Grubbs said. "We had 240 teachers respond to the survey; of those, 219 said they were pleased."

Ocean air cooling off temperatures

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding:

Today: Fair. Highs 80 to 85. Lows tonight near 50. Westerly to 10 to 20 mph winds this afternoon. Saturday, partly sunny. Highs in the low to mid-80s.

Camas Prairie, Hatley, Lower Wood River, Hillyer:

Today: Fair. Local gusty afternoon winds. Highs 75 to 80. Lows tonight in the lower 40s. Saturday, partly sunny. Highs near 80.

Northern Utah and Nevada:

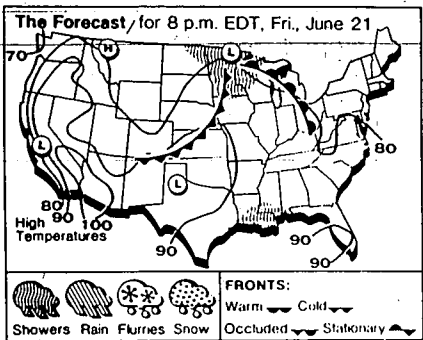

Utah: Sunny and not quite as hot today and Saturday. Lows 50 to 60. Highs in the upper 80s to low 90s.

Nevada: Mostly sunny Saturday. Highs in the upper 80s. Lows tonight 40s.

Synopsis:

The National Weather Service says cool air from the Pacific Ocean is spreading into Idaho, providing a break from the hot temperatures of the past few days. The air flow aloft over Idaho will be from the northwest, out of the Gulf of Alaska for the next several days. This air flow will keep conditions mild and breezy over the Gem State into the weekend.

Scattered thundershowers developed in the panhandle and in the southwest, while sunny skies dominated the southwest. Locally heavy rain and small hail were noted in the Sandpoint area with one of these thundershowers. The thundershower actively dissipated later. Gusty west winds developed over the entire state. Wind speeds in the 15 to 25 mph are common in the panhandle and reporting gusts to over 35 mph. Lewiston was the windiest spot in the state with a gust to 49 mph.

National Weather Service, NOAA U.S. Dept. of Commerce

The agricultural forecast for Southern Idaho — Conditions for field work and hay cutting will be good through the weekend. A few showers Monday and Tuesday may cause a few delays but no large amounts of precipitation are expected. Evaporation rates will be decreasing by between 10 and 15 of an inch today then show little change. Winds for spraying will be southwest to northwest 5 to 15 mph early today, increasing to 10 to 20 mph this afternoon.

Afternoon temperatures were some 10 degrees cooler than on Wednesday. Highest in the state Thursday was 92 degrees in Caldwell, while Dixie registered the low of 55 degrees in Dixie.

The extended outlook for Southern Idaho: Sunday through Tuesday near seasonal temperatures. Dry Sunday, then chance of showers or thundershowers Monday and Tuesday. Highs mid-70s to mid-80s through the period. Lows in the 50s.

Kenneth and Patrick Stethem follow brother's casket

Hijackers' Navy victim buried among U.S. heroes at Arlington

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Robert Dean Stethem, the young Navy diver slain by the hijackers of TWA Flight 847, was buried among America's heroes Thursday, saluted by family and comrades alike for an "unbroken spirit that will remain with us for years to come."

In a breaking voice, Stethem's commanding officer, Lt. Cmdr. George "Buz" Seltzer, told the victim's parents that he was killed because he "refused to yield" the pride in his uniform.

Stethem was buried with full military honors at Arlington National Cemetery following a funeral attended by more than 600 mourners at the Word of Life Assembly of God Church in nearby Annandale, Va.

Stethem, 23, of Waldorf, Md., was bound, gagged, severely beaten and finally shot in the head last Friday by the Shiite Moslem hijackers of a Boeing 727 flight originating in Athens, Greece. The body of the steelworker 2nd class was dumped on the tarmac of the Beirut, Lebanon, airport.

Stethem, assigned to the Navy's Underwater Construction Team in Norfolk, Va., was on route home after a routine assignment repairing a sewer system at an Air Force base in Greece.

Though details of why he was singled out for slaying by the hijackers remain unclear, Vice President George Bush said Tuesday that Stethem died "because he carried with pride ... the information that he was a member of the armed forces of the United States."

Stethem's brother Kenneth, 24, also a Navy diver, said, "Bobby had a strong will and a confidence in God that was unshakable. On June 14, he showed us that."

Platform seeks black hole eating stars in Milky Way

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery's crew launched a science platform to search our Milky Way for a black hole with an insatiable appetite for stars Thursday, as an embarrassed space agency rescheduled the "Star Wars" shuttle experiment to be launched one day earlier.

"You folks down there can be proud, it worked just like advertised," X-rays and the hot gas in a large cluster of galaxies in the constellation Perseus and in the center of the Milky Way.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the Air Force will make another attempt Friday morning to measure the reflection from a laser beam that will be aimed at the shuttle from the Hubble Mission Control called a "piourette."

"This indicates to us that Spartan is alive and well," said flight director Milton Hofflin. By design, the platform neither sends nor receives radio ed toward space instead of toward the signals, and it maneuvers itself.

For nearly two days, until it retrieved on Saturday, Spartan will trail the shuttle and its crew of seven as it studies a point 180 trillion miles into space. The scientific information is stored aboard, awaiting analysis on Earth.

The platform's instruments will be scanning the heavens for sources of X-rays and the hot gas in a large cluster of galaxies in the constellation Perseus and in the center of the Milky Way.

Democrats reject GOP budget try

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic House negotiators on Thursday rejected as "a nice try" a proposed Republican budget compromise that would split the difference in 1986 defense spending while retaining a Senate-passed freeze on Social Security benefits.

"I don't think it represents realism," Rep. William H. Gray III, D-Pa., the House Budget Committee chairman, said in formally rejecting the offer made on behalf of the GOP-run Senate by Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M.

With the House rejection, Domenici, the Senate Budget Committee chairman, recessed the talks until an unspecified later time so House conferees could develop a counter-offer.

House negotiators met in a closed-door caucus for several hours later in the day but were unable to reach agreement on a proposal.

Schools singled out for excellence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Education Secretary William J. Bennett singled out 277 public and private secondary schools Thursday as models for the nation.

Bennett said each of the schools surmounted difficulties in sustaining high levels of achievement. They represent the strength and vitality of America's pluralistic system of education," he said.

The 212 public schools range from Las Vegas High School to Grosse Pointe North High School in Michigan to Cincinnati's School for Creative & Performing Arts to Gruening Junior High in Eagle River, Alaska.

Idaho schools included on the list are Jefferson Junior High School in Caldwell and Silver Hills Junior High School in Osburn.

There also are 65 private schools being honored.

Bennett said, "Their diversity provides clear evidence that all types of schools — public, private, urban, suburban, rural, large and small — are able to provide highly effective programs and rich educational experiences that foster excellence and transmit a love of learning to students."

Suicide kills 3 every hour

ATLANTA (AP) — Suicide is responsible for one American death every 20 minutes and has become "a serious public health problem in the United States," especially among young men, federal health officials said Thursday.

The national Centers for Disease Control said Thursday that suicides were responsible for at least 287,232 deaths in this country between 1970 and 1980. Nearly three-fourths of those deaths — 72.3 percent — occurred among males.

"Suicide accounted for 23,480 U.S. deaths in 1970, and for 26,869 in 1980," he said.

"The most striking aspect" of the study, the Atlanta-based agency said in its report, was the dramatic rise in the suicide rate for young men, in the 15-24 and 25-34 age groups. The suicide rate for young men 15-24 increased by 50 percent between 1970 and 1980, while the rate for women that age increased by less than 5 percent.

Among people 25-34, the suicide rate for males increased nearly 30 percent; the rate for females dropped almost 20 percent.

"The real importance of this is that it shows a real, fundamental change in the phenomenon of suicide in this country," said Dr. Mark Rosenberg, a leading CDC researcher on suicide and violence.

We're now picking some of the best berries we've ever raised. These berries have an unusually good flavor which is due partly to the variety, but research has shown that flavor and also high vitamin C content are due to the warm days and cool nights. One of the questions most often asked is "Do you use manure on your strawberries?" to which we usually answer, "No, just a little sugar!" Young GOPs claim losing 'nerd' image

CHICAGO (AP) — Young Republicans gathering for their national convention say membership is at an all-time high, but they still have an image problem: Many people think of them as "nerds."

"Whenever there's a joke about young Republicans, it's usually about nerds," said Jan Scott of suburban Mount Prospect, who is co-chairing the five-day biennial convention expected to draw 1,000 members through Sunday.

"Saturday Night Live" has not helped us. We're pretty normal, everyday American people, not a bunch of geeks," Mrs. Scott said.

"For a long time the problem we had was not in who we were, but how we presented it," said Bill Kerr, of suburban Schaumburg, the convention's other co-chairman.

"Being conservative doesn't mean being an elitist country club member. It just means being middle class," Kerr said. "The typical Young Republican is in his mid to late 20s, professional, college-educated and hoping to fulfill the stereotyped image of the American Dream."

"Despite image problems, President Reagan's 1984 election victory helped restore the credibility of the 22-year-old group, whose members are 18 to 40 years old."

"It surprised everyone ... that Reagan's strongest voting group was the 18-to-24 age group. We're now looking at changing the whole majority well into the next century," Mrs. Scott said.

Young Republican leaders' loyalty to Reagan and enthusiasm for the New Conservatism were plain as they gathered at a downtown hotel for the convention's Wednesday night opening.

"We believe in the Reagan revolution," said Bill Scott, Mrs. Scott's husband and chairman of the Illinois Young Republicans.

Keep U.S. interests in sight during crisis

The hostages who apparently have been removed from TWA Flight 847 at Beirut airport to other places of captivity are probably somewhat safer now than when they were at the mercy of their original captors aboard the hijacked plane.

But they are still hostages, they are still pawns in a brutal game of terrorism and coercion, and in the unpredictable political and emotional climate of Lebanon their lives must still be considered in jeopardy. Matters could remain at this point for some time.

The humane impulse is, of course, to try to end this ordeal as quickly as possible. That presumably could be done by giving in to the main demand of the terrorists for the release of the 760 Lebanese Shias being held in an Israeli prison. For the hostages, for their families and friends, this seems a simple enough price to pay. But, when measured against larger considerations of American national interests and the inherent perils of rewarding terrorists for their crimes, it is not simple at all.

Israel, in any event had planned to free its Shia captives in stages, indicates that it will let them all go at once if the United States asks it to do so. The word from Washington is that the United States expects and even wants the Shias released, but only after the American hostages are set free. What the Reagan administration wants to avoid, and for good reason, is the appearance of a quid pro quo deal.

For what President Reagan was emphasizing Tuesday night when he said that the United States would "never make concessions" to terrorists was that to capitulate, as other countries have done before, inevitably encourages new acts of terrorism.

If the demand of those who last week seized a U.S. airliner is met, then next week other American air travelers could be seized, and a still higher price demanded for their release.

Blackmail is not a one-time thing — least of all, as the world should by now have learned, with terrorists. Pay it once, and it is certain that blackmailers will be back, again and again and again.

A month ago Israel, to the anger and dismay of most of its citizens, exchanged 1,150 Palestinian prisoners — among them more than 70 convicted murderers — for three Israeli soldiers captured in Lebanon.

A similar release now, even at American request, could set up shock waves that would threaten Prime Minister Shimon Peres' government.

That is one of the larger issues involved in the hostage drama.

The fate of the hostages remains a matter of urgent concern. But for now it is best seen as a problem, not a crisis, and it is a problem most wisely addressed by patience, by continued quiet efforts to win freedom for the hostages, by restraining justifiable outrage. Above all, it is a problem to be faced while keeping American principles and interests always in sight.

Childless may not support the schools

Emily Feistritz

A new baby boom is threatening to disrupt American education. More worrisome than the actual classroom crunch is that the majority of the people who pay most of our public school costs have no children of their own attending them, and those who will be in the classrooms often will be so poor that they pay virtually no taxes that support the schools.

The first increment of a growing wave of 6-year olds will be marching next fall — scrubbed faces, sharpened pencils, new book bags and all — and their tramping feet will rock our society a little.

The 1985 crop — and those who follow for the next several years — will be more poor and non-white than the nation as a whole. In an overwhelming number of cases, they will go home to mothers only, with little education themselves, subsisting below the poverty line, either in low-paying, menial jobs or on welfare.

Thus, the childless "haves" will be called upon to pay for educating the offspring of the fertile "have-nots."

That sounds democratic enough, a share-the-wealth plan that Huey Long or Robin Hood would be proud of. But, in the realities of today's tough world, it isn't hard to imagine the objections and the lobbying on Capitol Hill and in state legislatures that will follow.

If we are to avoid a political confrontation, public education will have to do a better job of making sure that its graduates can read, write and think.

Private-school enrollments are outstripping public-school enrollments. The number of highly educated, high-income parents is growing, and they are sending their children to private schools. Unless the trend stops, children from well-to-do, better-educated homes will polarize in private schools, the rest in public schools. And those in public schools, by and large, will be the offspring of single, uneducated, low-income, minority parents who are producing the most children today, proportionately.

"A Nation at Risk," the report commissioned by the Department of Education in 1983, pinpointed the weaknesses and failures in our educational system. We have heard and ever since then of how we need 1.2 million new teachers by 1992 and nobody is sure where they are coming from.

But no one has faced who will pay for the teachers, and for the school buildings, textbooks, computers, buses and all the other things that go into providing a free public education. Education from kindergarten through college is a $240-billion business in our country.

Circumstances in recent years have hidden the cost problem in our public schools. During the past decade of decline in the population of school-age children, enrollments in private nursery, elementary and secondary schools rose 3.9 percent, but public-school enrollments from nursery through high school dropped 11.4 percent. At just the elementary and secondary levels, private schools held steady whereas public-school enrollments dropped 15 percent. Clearly, the private schools drained off some students from public schools.

Given these reductions, one might expect that total spending for education declined. Yet, total spending for public elementary and secondary schools remained steady in terms of real dollars. With fewer pupils, the spending-per-pupil actually increased by a staggering 22.5 percent in real dollars. While this increase was occurring, per capita income in real dollars went up only 6.5 percent in the 1973-83 decade.

The decline in school enrollments, reflecting fewer school-age children, will begin to reverse this year, as the population pendulum swings back. What will our schools do then, faced with greater numbers? They will ask taxpayers to dig down for more funds, of course.

What we may be witnessing is the birth of a tradition. We have more families in which both parents work. They are becoming accustomed early to paying tuition to send their children to private schools. The tuition becomes part of their household budget. Are they likely to take their children out of private schools when they reach the first grade? From the little data we have, the answer appears to be probably not.

What will be said by the rapidly growing numbers of single householders, childless couples, couples sending their children to private schools, and people who've already raised their families? How pleased will such people be with having to pay taxes to support schools for other people's children? Some frictions are bound to be broad and deep.

This last decade of skyrocketing per-pupil costs for education was also the decade of plummeting achievement test scores, increased dropout rates and teen pregnancies.

The demographic trend also raises the prospect of heightened racial tension as the issue of who will pay for education develops. The new baby boomlet has a greater proportion of non-white children than the rest of society. There were 400,000 fewer white children under five in 1984 than in 1970 — which had the highest number in a decade — but there were 280,000 more black children under 5.

Yet, it is not racial discrimination, but the sharp divisiveness of lake-home pay that threatens to dichotomize our schools. Available figures show a direct correlation between family income and whether a child goes to public or private school. Only 5 percent of children from families with incomes under $25,000 go to private schools, but 20 percent of those from families earning more than $50,000 are privately enrolled.

There are other major factors that bear on whether a child does well in school or founders in a morass of ignorance and confusion, drifting perhaps into serious troubles like teen-age pregnancies and drug abuse. Two big ones are the education level of the child's parents or parent and the home environment — is it a peaceful, supportive place or does it tear at the child's soul?

Amid the welter of statistics, there is a clear warning. Poverty begets poverty, and ignorance breeds ignorance. The opposite is equally true: The more money one has, the more money one is likely to get, and the more education, and so on and so on as the generations follow.

American teachers are under heavy pressure these days. Rarely have we directed so much critical attention to education, asking why we do not have better teachers everywhere and why so many of our supposedly educated young people can neither read nor write adequately. We may very well need to spend many more billions to ensure that every American gets the best education possible. But whoever leads the crusade had better have some good answers and strong guarantees ready when the childless are asked to foot much of the bill.

In the selling of modern life, a generic season fits everyone

BOSTON — I have just been invited to an end-of-season sale. That, in itself, is not surprising. After all, spring ended on Thursday.

But the season that has gone on sale in my local department store is not spring. It is summer. I have been invited to an end-of-summer sale. Now here I am, a woman who has not yet burned a strap mark on her shoulder, and they are selling out the last sundresses.

A woman who has not been in the water, but is warned to get my red-hot bathing suit before they're all gone. A woman who has barely turned on an air conditioner and is told that "summer must go" to make room for the fall. The fall, mind you.

My personal dismay at this invitation (it does not require an R.S.V.P.) is not the result of some profound desire to rush out to the nearest dressing room, stand in front of a three-way mirror basking in blue fluorescent light, and buy a bikini. Frankly, I prefer candlelight and hand mirrors and hand-mirrors.

Ellen Goodman

But it seemed to me that this end-of-season sale was the ultimate markdown of the entire concept of seasons. Today, seasons have themselves gone entirely out of season.

It's bad enough that we uprooted assorted holidays from their rightful place on the calendar and dropped them onto Monday. Imagine what Mother Washington would say if she knew she had given birth to George on a third Monday. But we now manipulate whole seasons out of their sequence without even a thought of Mother Nature.

The most blatant example of this is in sports, where the schedules are about as natural as Astroturf. The Boys of Summer start playing with the snow and end in the frost. Hockey teams were still skating after the ice had melted in northern Manitoba.

As for football, I suppose it's become the ton of sports. You can get it all year round now, but it's lost its flavor.

In fact, it is food that has been altered the most by our unreasonable way of life. When I was a kid, we used to wait for the strawberries to ripen. Now we wait for the plane to arrive. It's possible to get almost anything at any time of year. But it's impossible to get it to taste like anything.

I have a Vermont friend who flunked a blind tasting of berries one January. They were not blue or black, she maintained; they were a species known as "Made in California."

Not only do we alter seasons, we invent some. Tell me, for example, what our ancestors would make of the "cruise season"? Or the holiday season as we have come to know and love it. The Plastic Man of the modern commercial world can stretch its arms into the most distant calendars and pocketbooks.

Once I read that Eleanor Roosevelt had all her Christmas shopping done by Thanksgiving. Today she'd be running late. The department catalogs have all arrived by Columbus Day. They are decking the commercial halls with imported holly before Halloween. The 12 days of Christmas have extended to 120.

Where did all the seasons go? What happened to the dictionary definition of season as "one of the four natural divisions of the year"? It seems that the more we are divided from nature, the less the seasons are divided from each other.

Nature plays a much smaller role in the life of the average urban American than it once did. Fewer and fewer of us actually work outdoors. From Monday to Friday we may only encounter the outdoors between the car and the door. Weather has become a weekend event.

Increasingly, the air we breathe and the water we use is heated and cooled to a monolithic comfort zone. If you don't love winter, you can leave it on the next sweater. If you can't stand the heat, you can get out of the kitchen and into an air-conditioned movie theater.

It's hard to know whether the ability to protect ourselves from nature is worth the price of alienation. But it's part of the Western desire to master nature instead of living with it. We consider it progress that when we get up in the morning we have to turn on the radio to know what the temperature is.

Indeed, if the Bible were being written today, it wouldn't say, "To everything there is a season." The psalm of modern life reads: "One season fits all."

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Letters / Both communism and Moon would destroy Constitution

'Godism' excludes Christ

It is disturbing to see Christian people, ministers of churches and people in government going to "Causa" meetings, which are given and supported by Sun Myung Moon and while he is in prison, are directed by Bo Hui Pak, a Korean intelligence officer who is reported to have a close link to the Mossad (an Israel terrorist group).

Pak, now 51, first came here from South Korea in early 1971, a representative of the CIA, his nation's equivalent of the CIA, but soon after the Korean officer discarded his official status and joined Moon to become second in command of his growing army of brainwashed young American jeolists. The Moon cult operates what amounts to an international kidnapping ring coercing young Americans away from their families to serve the new master. Moon's brainwashed slaves consider themselves the arms and legs of the new messiah.

Their "Godism" excludes Jesus Christ. Day after day followers discuss and repeat the utterances of Moon, who is seen as the godhead of the Unification sect and as the new "messiah of mankind." They plan to rule the world.

"The father of one young man" brainwashed "said it's the worst example of personality manipulations and coercive indoctrination I've ever seen. They impose a religion designed to purge his old personality, even the diet is controlled." Moon (Messiah) officiated at a mass wedding ceremony in Madison Square Garden in 1982. Several thousands of mixed marriages at one time.

A mother of a 26-year-old young woman wrote a letter telling about her daughter being married in the ceremony to an Asian man which she had not seen before. He was immediately taken from her and sent to another state. She is now in a town in Colorado and is completely guarded at all times. It is said it compares to the "Jim Jones" type disaster.

From street hustling Moon makes $100 to $200 million a year. 4 to 12 youngsters in a snuck, peddle flowers, candles, souvenirs and snacks. They work a 12-hour day and every penny is turned over to the squad leader. I've talked to different people who are getting involved and they say they are joining franks with this sect to preserve the freedom of the First Amendment. We, either hang together, or all hang separately is their philosophy.

The sect says they are fighting communism. We ask: what is the essential difference between communism and Moonism? Both are international and have nothing but contempt for national boundaries and patriotism. Thus, both seek to totally destroy our Constitution, Bill of Rights, and national sovereignty.

Religion, politics spawn hatred of U.S.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — When a car bomb killed 80 people in Beirut's Shiite-Muslim neighborhood of Bir-Abied in March, a huge banner declaring "Made in U.S.A." was draped from the shell of a building shattered in the blast.

Months later it turned out the bombers had loose links with the American Central Intelligence Agency though the CIA denied direct involvement. But Shiite radicals needed no such evidence to immediately blame the United States.

Animosity toward the United States was sufficient reason. This dislike by Shiite fundamentalists — some of whom are now holding American hostages from the TWA jetliner hijacked last Friday — is rooted in religious fervor. But it has roots, too, in U.S. foreign policy.

The United States has been the chief supporter of Israel, which has occupied southern Lebanon for the Beri says hijackers might release 1 American soon

NEW YORK (AP) — Lebanese Justice Minister Nabih Beri said Thursday that one of the 40 American hostages held in Lebanon is ill and would be released if a doctor called in to examine him feels it is necessary.

"If the man is not so well, I will send him to the United States," Beri told CBS News in an interview via satellite.

Beri did not identify the ill hostage, but CBS quoted sources in Lebanon as indicating that he was Simon Grossmayer, 37, of Algona, Ill., who reportedly suffers from a lung condition.

In the same interview, Beri said he did not have direct control over six American hostages who remain in the hands of the hijackers who commandeered a TWA plane to Beirut. However, he said he believed he could deliver them if the Israelis accede to the hijackers' demand to release 700 prisoners.

He also backed the Christian-dominated Lebanese government last year when Shittes were recently been the most disadvantaged of the Lebanese religious sects.

In 1943, when Lebanon gained independence from France, an unwritten "national pact" placed the Shittes third in political power behind Christians and Sunni Muslims.

The wealth that Christians and Sunnis gained as Beirut became a trading center for Arab oil and Western goods, did not spread to southern Lebanon, where most Shittes live.

In the 1970s, Israeli retaliation against Palestinians in the south drove many Shittes from their homes and into shantytowns around Beirut, where they could see — but not possess — the wealth of the capital. Israel's 1982 invasion was initially welcomed by the Shittes because it drove out the despised Palestinians, but as the Israeli army stayed on it was viewed as being more oppressive than the Palestinians had been.

Workers at a large Mexican honey plant check a hive.

'Killer bees' might sting Mexico soon

CUERNAVACA, Mexico (AP) — They have mean genes. They're ill-tempered. And millions of them are coming soon to Mexico.

The so-called African "killer bees" are expected to arrive at Mexico's southern border as early as next year, a prospect that has government officials and beekeepers alarmed.

The African bees, a far more aggressive breed than the European bees used for honey cultivation in Mexico and the rest of the Western Hemisphere, pose a serious threat to Mexico's $50-million-a-year honey industry, officials say.

"There's definitely going to be a big drop in honey production," said Peter Rabbow, managing director of the Miel Carlota apiculture plant on the outskirts of this resort town 50 miles southwest of Mexico City.

Mexico is among the world's three largest honey exporters, along with China and the Soviet Union. But only Mexico faces a threat to their honey industries from African bees.

Since 26 African queen bees escaped from a research laboratory in Sao Paulo, Brazil, in 1957, and began mating with local bees descended from European stock, they have devastated honey industries on their northward journey through South and Central America.

During their advance north from Brazil, African bees have been blamed for the deaths of more than 150 people and countless animals. Rabbow noted that honey production in Venezuela virtually collapsed after the arrival of the bees. Output fell from 6,380 tons in 1975 to 970 tons in 1981; Venezuela went from exporting honey to importing it.

Miel Carlota is Mexico's largest commercial honey operation. But it produces only 500 to 900 tons of the more than 50,000 tons harvested nationwide each year.

The country has 2.5 million commercial hives and some 47,000 beekeepers, 90 percent of them small farmers who don't have the resources to combat the bees, Rabbow said.

"Many will simply find it's not worth their time to stay in beekeeping," he said.

Khomeini emerges from seclusion

TEHRAN, Iran (DPA) — Iran's spiritual leader, the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, emerged from a month-long seclusion Thursday to deny that Iran was getting weary of its 57-month-old war with Iraq and to launch a new round of criticism against the United States.

Radio Tehran quoted Khomeini as telling ambassadors of Moslem countries in Iran that massive pro-war demonstrations staged last Friday "despite threats from Iraq and even the White House" have shown that Iranians are still dedicated to the war.

Khomeini's representative at the Supreme Defense Council, Parliamentary speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani, told a number of world leaders Thursday Iran would consider the formation of an "international tribunal" on the war as a first step to a peace solution.

Iranian President Ali Khamenei echoed Khomeini's line in a prayer sermon on the occasion of the Moslem fasting month of Ramadan.

"American officials, by their threats against Iran, have encouraged Iraq's attacks on civilian areas, and the American people should know that their present administration is a shame to America," he said.

In a related development, the Saudi Arabian state radio said Rafsanjani's statements indicate the Iranians may be willing to give up some of their preconditions for starting peace talks and that "a breakthrough" may be possible.

Kuwait press reports said that the renewed, week-old Iranian invasion of Iraq's southern Huwazha marshlands makes Arab aid to Baghdad "a sacred duty."

Nepal attacks leave 6 dead, several hurt

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Five bombs exploded at government buildings, the royal palace and a hotel Thursday, killing at least six people in what is believed to be the first major terrorist attack in this Himalayan kingdom.

The government said 16 people were wounded, but witnesses and hospital sources said there were at least 23 injuries.

Hospital sources, who asked not to be identified, said among those injured at the hotel were some foreign tourists. Names and nationalities were not available.

—No one claimed responsibility, but police suspected the involvement of King Birenda's political opponents.

TWIN FALLS — Help is on the way for Idaho's grasshopper emergency. Two U.S. Air Force planes promised for the federal spraying program are scheduled to arrive in Pocatello today, according to Mike Field, with Sen. James McClure's office in Pocatello.

Under ideal conditions, the planes can spray up to 10,000 acres per hour, Field said.

Adjustments have to be made on the huge C-123s, however, before they begin spraying and Field said the planes should be in the air by Sunday or Monday at the latest. He said McClure's office has been told the first area to be sprayed will be a 350,000-acre block in the Cassia County area.

Thursday, two small planes were sent to Cassia County to create a "buffer zone" for trouble spots until large-scale spraying can begin, said Don Nielson with the Animal Plant and Health Inspection Service.

Nielson, a public-affairs officer with APHIS based in Fort Worth, is one of several APHIS personnel who has been temporarily moved to Twin Falls to help coordinate the spraying program.

As of Wednesday, Nielson said 759,906 acres had been sprayed in Idaho. The largest share of that was a 317,888-acre block in Mindokta. That block is still not completed. Spraying has also begun in Twin Falls, and Elmore counties. The only region where spraying has been completed is a 146,710-acre block in Owyhee County, according to Nielson.

Nationally, Nielson said a total of 1,130,935 acres have been sprayed in an effort to control grasshoppers. Other states where federally sponsored spraying is being done include Arizona, Oregon, Utah, and Wyoming.

With the help of cool weather and cloud cover Thursday, planes were able to cover 137,000 acres in the Magic Valley, according to Nielson. Spraying was cut short Thursday as temperatures soared to near 100 degrees in many areas. Spraying in the Magic Valley area is being done by six small planes and four larger DC-4s.

The arrival of the additional large planes is welcome news for agricultural extension agents and local APHIS officials like Roger Pollard, who have been taking heat from area farmers and ranchers — many of whom have been waiting two weeks or more for planes to spray their land.

Some have paid upwards of $1,000 to be included in the federal program and have had to sit and wait as equipment shortages and an exploding grasshopper population have pushed spray dates further and further back.

In many areas "farmers are getting eaten out of house and home," according to Gooding County Agricultural Extension Agent Gene Gibson.

"If I don't get some planes up in the air pretty soon," said Gibson, "I might as well go find another state to live in."

"We need help as fast as we can get it," said Gibson. "On the western border of our county we're falling behind the biological cycle of the grasshoppers."

"We should have been spraying in the middle of this week," Gibson said. "There are simply not enough planes."

"It's kind of odd," Gibson commented, "we can send a man to the moon yet we can't get enough planes in the U.S. to take care of a grasshopper problem."

"If they don't get here in three weeks, there won't be anything left."

Richard Garrard, extension agent in Cassia County, said he has been getting similar pressures.

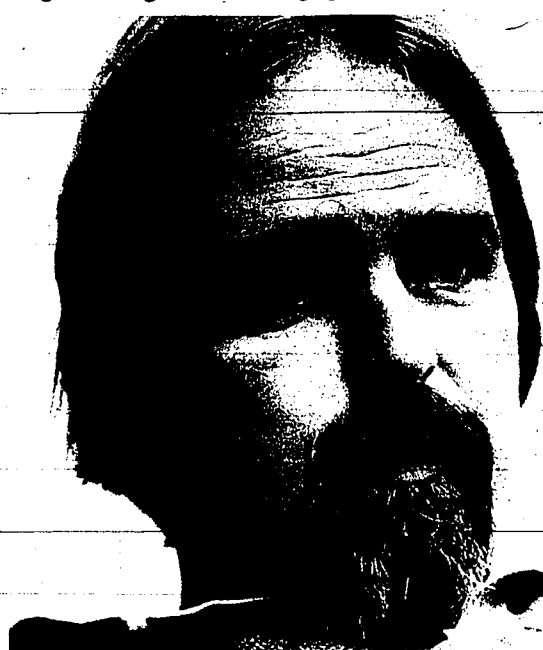

"I get calls every day," Garrard said. They start at 5 a.m. and end at about 12:30 at night. Everybody wants to know when the planes are going to come.

"Farmers have done a tremendous job of getting together on this," said Gibson. "A lot of them have put their last dime into this spraying program," he added, "and many are saying if this doesn't work they've had it."

After years of few rewards, public defender goes private

Mike Powers will soon enter private practice after seven years in the Twin Falls County public defender's office

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The phone rings with questions.

Mike Powers, sitting in a sports shirt, has answers about one client or another.

Between the phone calls, another client arrives wearing a baseball hat and healthy growth of beard and leaves some information with Powers, who only has a few weeks left before he resigns as Twin Falls County public defender.

"Make sure when you leave that I get the old guy instead of the new one," the man says.

Powers smiles. His kind of law practice is not known for its well-furnished offices or well-funded clients.

His office is in a 75-year-old courthouse with a nice view of City Park. Many of his clients are sitting upstairs in jail, with no view at all.

The public defender's job is one of few rewards and lots of frustrations, characterized by the 36-year-old Powers perennially representing the underdog.

About 90 percent of his clients, however, admit their guilt to the kind of crimes nice people don't talk about.

Appreciation from clients to their court-appointed counsel is sparse.

"We can do a hell of a job without so much as a thank you," he says.

To protect the county against claims of malpractice, public defenders pursue appeals or file motions — even where there are no sufficient grounds — at the request of their indigent clients.

Even if a client files his own litigation, as is the case more often, he and Assistant Public Defender Tim Wilson usually end up doing the rest of the work.

In some cases, he can't blame his clients for appealing long jail sentences.

Despite the hassle, he kept at it on and off for seven years.

He first took the job because he wanted to go before juries.

"I guess the epitome of being an attorney was a trial, that's where everything comes together."

Besides that, he likes criminal defense work.

"I thought that was where the law was happening; now I'm not so sure."

Every now and then a case came along that restored his faith in the jury system, where the jury applied the concept of reasonable doubt.

Other sources of pride have been to "steer clients in the right direction."

Still, he wants to "learn new tricks" in civil law in a return to private practice. He's had one before his work in the courthouse and even tried his hand as a deputy in the prosecutor's office.

"My dream is to argue a personal injury case. I really believe in it."

As public defender, he didn't know or care about the guilt of his clients. His role was to be their advocate in court. If a client wanted to go to trial in spite of overwhelming evidence, he went to court.

In these cases, he adds, "I should have won an Academy Award."

Powers says he enjoyed his co-workers. The county "has been good to me." Financing for the public defender's office is another thing.

Victim's lack of cooperation ends manhunt

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

BUHL — The search for a man who allegedly abducted a 17-year-old Buhl girl Monday at gunpoint has been called off and Buhl Police Chief Les Cochran said civil action may be taken against the victim.

Cochran said Joyce Hesselholt has been inconsistent in carrying out agreements she has made in connection with the investigation. He said she has agreed to a polygraph test and has repeatedly backed out as little as a few minutes ahead of the scheduled test and after staff and equipment had been readied.

The girl, he said, is continuing to stand by her original story but has not co-operated with officers in the attempt to verify her statements.

Hesselholt told officers at about 6 p.m. Monday that a man knocked at the door of her Buhl home several hours earlier and ordered her to drive him in her car into the forest south of Hansen. She said he left her car without harming her and walked south into the hills after asking to be let out at a campground. Twin Falls County Deputy Sheriff Gary Kaufman said it was apparently the Big Bluff campground where she said she last saw him.

Members of the Twin Falls County-Idaho State Police tactical team and numerous volunteers searched the South Hills area throughout Monday night, Tuesday and returned to the area Wednesday morning after taking one night off. U. S.

Forest Service patrols continued to watch for a suspect Tuesday night. When called off Wednesday afternoon, the search had produced no traces of the alleged abductor and officers said no further evidence had turned up by Thursday.

Deputy Kaufman said the Tuesday search effort involved both Twin Falls and Cassia County officers as well as state police and members of the county search and rescue unit.

They had people on horseback, on trail bikes, in four-wheel-drive vehicles, on foot and in the air," Kaufman said.

Peter Link of Hansen, a search unit member, flew his helicopter over the forest area, and the Cassia County Search and Rescue unit sent a plane into the area Tuesday morning. Kaufman said the general South Hills area was divided into search districts and men assigned to each. Headquarters were set up at the Diamondfield Jack parking lot.

Cochran, of Buhl, said investigation of the case was continuing but, shortly after the girl's grandmother called officers to report the incident. The woman said her granddaughter had driven back to Twin Falls to tell her about the abduction before reporting it.

Insurance rate hikes claim Eden as victim

By ANNETTE GARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The city of Eden may have no liability insurance after July 1, as a result of the same tight liability insurance market that has dramatically increasing costs for other Magic Valley cities.

Even though Eden has had no claims in the past year, Hoby Stanger, a vice president with Hamilton Insurance in Twin Falls, says he does not think Eden will be able to find a company willing to cover the city by the end of the month.

"It's just a market situation," he says.

The state of Idaho is also facing a withdrawal of coverage at the end of the month.

Until now, most units of government have been able to find liability insurance — but at a price.

This year the city of Twin Falls' liability insurance premiums jumped from $45,000 to more than $110,000.

says City Finance Director Bryce King. The increase came after Home Insurance refused to cover the city any longer and a new firm had to be found.

Other Magic Valley cities, such as Hansen, are still waiting for their liability bills.

"We've been told it may double and even triple," says Darlene Miller, city clerk for Hansen.

The city of Jerome has yet to get even an estimate of its Oct. 1 liability insurance payment. Underwriters say it is too early to even predict how the market will stand by fall.

"I wouldn't be surprised if toward the end of the year, public entities found themselves without (liability insurance) availability," says Dana Kopper, state manager for Public Entities National Co., an insurance company.

Farmers have another enemy: drought

KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

Grasshoppers are not the only thing hurting local crop and rangeland, according to agricultural extension agents in the Magic Valley. Low rainfall — which some local farmers are beginning to refer to as a drought — is causing severe problems for dryland farmers and on range areas.

"Rain is needed, no doubt," said Bill Hazen, extension agent for Twin Falls County. "It's very dry and there's not much feed out there on range areas," he added.

The usual May and June rains never materialized, Hazen said. On top of that, he added, the ground was frozen over much of last year's cold winter and the precipitation which fell didn't soak into the soil.

Bill Galkin, with the National Weather Service office in Kimberly, called this year's weather "dry" and added that the outlook for the rest of the year is also dry.

"As of May we were 1.39 inches below normal," Galkin said.

"That may not sound like much," he said, "but when you only get nine-and-a-quarter inches of rain a year, one-and-four is a big number."

Agency issues fire appeal

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A South Hills timber fire that was controlled before it spread to serious proportions Thursday brought an appeal from the U. S. Forest Service for special precautions from wood cutters and other forest users.

Ed Waldappel of the Sawtooth National Forest office in Twin Falls said conditions in the forest are extremely dry this season and, combined with hot weather and winds, makes for an unusually serious situation.

"We have found areas where persons have ground their clea-rettes out in the duff (soil cover of pine needles and loose dirt). They can smolder there after the individual leaves and break into a serious fire," Waldappel said.

He said that if smokers make sure they smoke in open areas, dig down through the top cover to mineral soil, and then grind out cigarettes and matches, they would probably not be leaving any potential fire hazards.

The wood cutter population in the forest south of Twin Falls is now high, he said. About 745 permits have been issued in the past month, which amounts to about one-fourth of the total of 1,900 permits issued last year.

Farmers, who depend on spring rains for their crops, according to Galkin.

About the only thing the current dry spell has been good for, according to Galkin, is grasshoppers.

Cassia County Extension Agent Richard Garrard said dryland farmers in his area are having "a real tough time." The recent spell of hot weather has put wheat crops under a lot of stress — even in irrigated fields — and farmers in Cassia County are beginning to lose the top kernels of their wheat heads.

For most farmers the top kernels are the profit, he explained.

"On dryland fields, the grain is also starting to dry up and the kernels are starting to shrivel," Garrard said.

The situation is no better on rangeland in Cassia County. Garrard said he has been in touch with one rancher who said that grasshoppers and the drought have already taken all of his winter feed.

In Gooding County, Extension Agent Gene Gibson said conditions are very dry out on range areas. There has been little growth of native forage and crested wheat grass, he said, and forage is "tremendously reduced" at lower elevations.

Between the lack of rain and the grasshoppers, Gibson predicted that there won't be any forage left on range areas after August.

Dry weather has also cleared the way for wildfires in the state. A range fire near Hagerman, which started Thursday, has already burned 3,800 acres.

Benefit planned for injured boy

By CLAUDINE CHAMBERLAIN

RUPERT — When 14-year-old John Nash from Rupert was seriously injured in a car accident, neighbors, relatives and friends decided to help out.

The Elks Lodge of Burley has donated the use of a hall on Friday July 25 to raise money for John's medical expenses. The only charge is $50 for the janitors who clean up afterward. The cost of a bartender, waitresses, and lighting will be paid by the Elks. The benefit is being organized by Doug Griffiths, a friend of the family, and John's grandmother, Norma Davis.

The accident occurred on a trip to Boise on Saturday, June 15. Two adopted boys from Colombia and their grandmother had planned a trip to Boise to pick up their mother, who had been on maneuvers with the National Guard. John was invited to go with them because he spoke Spanish and knew Boise well.

The two boys, Ovidio and Onesimo, had been counting the railroad cars along the highway and talking in Spanish. When Mrs. O'Connor, their grandmother, turned to see if they were doing the lost count correctly, the car went off the right side of the road and rolled three times.

John crashed into a beam of the car when it hit the ground, partially severing his spinal cord. His doctors think it will probably be paralyzed permanently from the waist down.

Many of the family's neighbors and friends are willing to help out in any way they can, according to Griffiths. The customers on John's paper route have even threatened to stop taking the newspaper if John can't deliver it any more.

broker. "I think it's very possible a large number won't be able to find insurance at any price."

He is not aware of any companies making a profit insuring public entities in the last five years, he says. As a result there are fewer companies willing to do it.

In the years just before 1983, a soft market encouraged cash flow underwriting. Rates were artificially low because a high interest rate allowed insurers to make up for claims that exceeded premiums.

It was "institutional stupidity," Kopper says. In 1983 and 1984 the "contractual insurance industry" had losses that exceeded those in the preceding 25 years, he says.

Insurance companies no longer have a high interest rate to help make up for losses. They also do not have the surplus money provided by industry regulations to underwrite coverage, insurance specialists say.

The problem has been compounded by a nation-wide escalation in the size of judgments being awarded and by an increase in claims throughout the industry of 400 percent, particularly in such areas as police-professional insurance, says John Blaine of Blaine and Co. Insurance Brokers in Boise.

Idaho ranks second nationally in the number of law-enforcement claims per capita, Kopper says.

"Another factor is that public entities have become the proverbial deep pocket," Kopper says. When King added up the asked-for

Lawsuits may pose threat

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's risk manager says civil rights lawsuits pose a threat to the state's budget if liability and property damage insurance for the state is not found to replace canceled policies.

Ed Fridensline, head of the Bureau of Risk Management, said Thursday he fears a "multi-million-dollar settlement" beyond "our ability to self-insure."

"For that sort of catastrophic event, the problem would come back on the taxpayer; then the connection between what we (the state) pay out and the tax dollar becomes more direct," he said.

Fridensline told The Times-News Wednesday that the state's liability and property insurance coverages are scheduled for cancellation this summer and that the state has not been able to line up new policies.

He said civil rights suits or pay discrimination suits such as those faced by the state of Washington could pose a "severe problem" if the state is not insured against them. If the governor declares a state of fiscal emergency in fiscal year 1985, the resulting firings or layoffs of tenured professors at state schools would pose a significant threat, Fridensline said. If they (the firings) are not handled properly, "we'll see a number of lawsuits alleging civil rights violations," Fridensline said.

While the Tort Claims Act limits most claims against the state government to $500,000, civil rights claims are not limited under the act.

"We do have the ability to self-insure more," Fridensline said. "We can take care of more liability than we used to because of the cap (imposed by the Tort Claims Act)."

Fridensline says there is an adage in risk management circles that says, "In the long run, you pay for your losses."

"The last few years have been an exception, in that insurance was somewhat of a bargain; so we bought a lot of insurance where we might otherwise have been self-insured," Fridensline said.

assault and battery by the police. People are becoming more aware of their civil rights, Kopper says.

The largest claim filed against Twin Falls in 1985 so far was for a drowning at Dierkes Lake.

Other claims against the city in recent months have involved alleged claims of sewers backing up and storm drains backing up or icing over. Mountain Breeze filed a claim over a cut in a sewer line that allegedly cost a seal coat project that allegedly contributed to an auto accident.

And a resident who tripped over debris in an alley filed a claim against the city.

"People see us as responsible for everything," King says. He believes the courts are placing too much responsibility on cities.

"The pendulum of justice has swung too far," he says. "They say 10 percent of the people have 90 percent of the accidents. The court system has swung too far in making people less responsible."

Mayor Emery Peterson says the city will vigorously fight all claims. The city has actually paid out $52,000 in settled claims in the last year and a half.

Part of the solution for cities which are unable to find insurance or find it at a reasonable price may be forming insurance pools, such as some counties are now starting to do with his company, Kopper says. The cities would then be partially self-insured and have more clout in bargaining.

Work-release escapee lands back in custody

TWIN FALLS — A work-release inmate who failed to report back to the Twin Falls County jail after work on June 14, was back in custody Thursday, facing a felony charge of escape.

Dennis Lee Major, 24, of Twin Falls, was spotted by a county deputy and a police cadet about 9:30 a.m. Tuesday as he entered the law office of Randy Stoker and Dennis Voorhees. The law firm is located at 217 Sixth Ave. N., only two blocks from the sheriff's office and jail.

Lt. Jim Hopkins of the Twin Falls County sheriff's office, said the attorneys reported Major was talking with them about turning himself over to county authorities when arrested. Hopkins said since Major was origiinally sentenced on a felony charge of robbery, the escape charge will also be a felony. He had been sentenced to the state penitentiary and then granted probation that included a 60-day county jail sentence. Because he was employed, he was given an opportunity to serve the time before and after his working hours.

Hopkins, who is jail administrator, said Major had served more than half of the sentence and would have been out of the jail sentence in another 30 days if he had continued to work and serve the sentence in his free time.

Hopkins said Deputy Larry Stuck who had assisted with jail duty as well as being dispatcher, recognized Major when he and deputy Jeff Watson drove by the law firm and saw him entering.

IFF again challenges state health board ruling

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Frozen Foods is again challenging the authority of the State Board of Health and Welfare.

This week, the company petitioned the Fifth District Court for a review of the board's May 23 decision that essentially established a new compliance order for the plant's wastewater treatment operation.

The company has already gone to court three times to challenge the order under the original order entered involuntarily by the company. The case is pending.

Lee Odenwald, president of Idaho Frozen Foods, said after the May decision that the compliance order appeared to be "somewhat reasonable," technically. But, he said, the board did not have the legal authority to change the compliance order unilaterally three years after it was established.

The compliance order approved May 23 set civil penalties, unlike the original. Fines are up to $1,000 per violation.

The board also established an intensified testing and reporting schedule, with members saying the company's rapid infiltration and treatment system is regularly insubstantial violation of one or more terms of the board's compliance schedule.

The action, based on months of hearings and review, came despite persistent claims by officials of Idaho

Frozen Foods that there is no evidence showing that seepage from the company's wastewater treatment facilities contains chemical levels in excess of those mandated by the original compliance order.

Suspect sought in window shootings

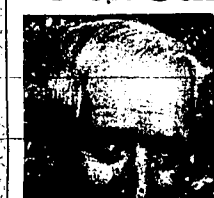

BURLEY — Police in Burley said Thursday they were looking for a suspect in connection with a series of window shooting incidents that caused a total of $4,200 damage.

Officers said the Burley Junior High School, at 700 West 16th St., sustained about $2,600 in damage when someone shot out 12 windows in the structure. Across the street, in the LDS Church seminary, another $100 damage was reported in window breakage, and a pickup truck owned by Blaine Hamilton and parked at the Junior high school had another $200 damage in broken windows.

Windows were also blown out of several cars parked at the Cassia County School District central office, at 237 East 19th St., where damage was estimated at $1,300.

He was a member of Jehovah's Witnesses.

Surviving are eight children: Berzell (Sally) Dirk and Darrell Smith, both of Jerome, Loy Smith and Orel Smith, both of Twin Falls, Ludeck Gulick and Lamar Smith, both of Heyburn, Mrs. Harold (Glenda) Peterson of Shoshone and Ardell Smith of Fremont, Calif.; 20 grandchildren; and 23 great-grandchildren. A son, Paul, preceded him in death.

A graveside service will be held today at 4:30 p.m. in Jerome Cemetery. A memorial service will be given at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses at Twin Falls, 440 Madison Street, Saturday at 2 p.m., with Victor Eckles officiating.

Marjorie Jean Sullivan

HAGERMAN — Marjorie Jean Sullivan, 65, of Hagerman, died Thursday in Pleasant View Cemetery. She was born Dec. 24, 1919, in Omaha, Neb., she grew up and attended schools in Omaha. She worked for the Omaha South High School for seven years, for the federal government in the defense war plant and in the Department of Commerce for seven years. She worked as corporate secretary for the Midwest Equipment and was private secretary to the mayor of Omaha for nine years.

She married Ralph W. Sullivan on Oct. 3, 1960, in Omaha and they operated the Sullivan Improvement Co. in Omaha until 1965, when they moved to Hagerman. They had two children and four grandchildren.

Surviving are: two sons, Alan A. Metz and Emma Mohr, both of Omaha, and an uncle, Albert P. Lutz Sr. of Los Angeles. Her husband died in 1960.

The service will be held Monday at 10:30 a.m. at Demaray's Gooding Chapel, with the Rev. Harold Hake officiating. Burial will be in Hagerman Cemetery.

Friends may call at the chapel Sunday from 10 to 7 p.m.

Michael Paul Ross

TWIN FALLS — Michael Paul Ross, day-old son of Jeff and Janelle Ross, died Thursday in Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

He was born Wednesday in Twin Falls. In addition to his parents, he is survived by his grandparents, Luis and Essie Alstara of Hazelton, Vicki Ross of Murtaugh, and Milo Paul Ross of Paul; and his great-grandparents, Miral and Gladys Ross of Ogden, Orval and Helen Fontaine of Weiser, and Bud and Bernice Young of Sandpoint.

A graveside funeral will be held Saturday at 11 a.m. at Twin Falls Cemetery. Burial will be in charge of arrangements.

Powers

"We're understaffed and underfunded," he says.

The county prosecutor's office has four attorneys and an investigator. The public defender's has two attorneys and a secretary. He has 100 to 125 on-going cases, with Wilson's running about the same.

"We have to rely on police for our investigations and that is not helpful sometimes. We fly by the seat of our pants and get by on a shoestring."

Plea bargaining is an important tool to manage the caseload. Without it, the office would need six more lawyers, Powers says.

Fear of the problem is that the police file some felony complaints with the court, which is unheard of elsewhere, he adds. Filing should be left strictly to the prosecutors because they have the training to determine what cases would stand in court or be able to apply the most accurate charge.

More and more of those charges involve child sexual abuse. He remembers only a few when he first started the job.

Sexual abuse cases are the most difficult to handle if a defendant pleads innocent, he says. A defense lawyer must "walk a fine line in front of a jury" when examining a youngster.

Powers says he has also seen an increase in the number of alternative programs to help sexual offenders, as well as those convicted of other crimes. Previously, the offender simply went to prison. Now the court has the alternative of sending the offender to different programs, all to the benefit of the client and society.

Powers often sees the dark side of humanity through the often disturbing details of crimes. The saddest of all is a person who was abused or beaten as a child grew up to do the same to others, he says.

"I don't think anything would bother me anymore."

He tries to leave the "madness" at the office.

"You get hard to it. You try to close your mind. In the last few years, it's been harder, which led me to the conclusion that it was time to leave. You start to believe that that portion of the world is all there is. You lose perspective that there are good things happening out there."

His wife Patricia, who works with abused children with the state Department of Health and Welfare, says both of them came home while working on frustrating and draining cases.

"It made light talk around the dinner table," Powers says.

Powers is an original in the courthouse. Straightforward and unique, he talks of Karma, participates in pool and softball tournaments and believes in reincarnation.

Although appointed, not elected, to the job, he is a Democrat among Republicans. His grandfather, he says, was one of the last Democrats to be sent to the state Legislature from Twin Falls County.

In years past, he was active in the party and on the ballot. More recently, he left politics to raise a family.

"It seems like I was spinning my wheels just to make a living. Being a Democrat was more wheel spinning."

Powers even rejects the usual lawyer dress prevalent in the courthouse — the three-piece suits of various stripes and colors.

His court attire is a tie and corduroy jacket.

Though non-traditional, Powers' role is anything but. It is solid part of a judicial system which affords representation to those who can't otherwise afford it.

Those who work with the courts appreciate the public defender, Powers says. The job, however, probably is considered low on the totem pole of the legal establishment, while the community may see him as representing the "dregs" of the law.

Even the people to whom he provides his many years of legal experience often say they want a "real lawyer" instead of public defender.

He adds, "What I'm going to be is a real lawyer for a while."

And, will he buy a three-piece suit then? Patricia looks at her husband and laughs. "Noooh."

Bodies lifted from crash site

SALMON (AP) — The bodies of a pilot and two passengers were finally retrieved from a light plane Thursday as investigators for the National Transportation Safety Board arrived at the crash site in the rugged Lost Trail Pass area of eastern Idaho.

Lemhi County Sheriff's Deputy Harvey Pler said a helicopter was brought in to remove the bodies of pilot Denis Morgan of the Salmon Alpine Air Service and two other men he said were brothers and believed to be representatives of a Montana mining firm.

The identities of the passengers were being withheld pending notification of their families, Pler said.

Discrimination charge settled

BLACKFOOT (AP) — The city and a former waste water treatment plant employee who contended he was harassed for not taking part in beer parties have settled a religious discrimination dispute.

Mayor Delwin C. Daniels signed Tuesday a Human Rights Commission settlement to the plaintiff filed last April by Gary Walker.

Walker, who quit the treatment plant three weeks ago to work in a new photo processing shop, said he will sign the document once he receives it.

Walker contended in the complaint that because he is a Mormon he was discriminated against by Bill Bottles, superintendent of the treatment plant.

He said Bottles harassed him for refusing to engage in Friday afternoon beer parties at the treatment plant.

Mayor sees water emergency

CALDWELL (AP) — A water shortage and heavy June consumption in Caldwell has forced Mayor Al McCluskey to ask the city council to declare an emergency.

The city's water supply dropped to 30,000 gallons on Tuesday, and McCluskey said he would ask the council for help by adopting an ordinance to manage the problem at next Monday's regular meeting.

"If we would have had a fire, we would have been in trouble," he said.

In the meantime, McCluskey asked Caldwell residents to voluntarily begin an alternate-day sprinkling program. The ordinance the mayor said he would introduce on Monday would make the program mandatory and penalize those who do not comply.

Inmate claims rape in lawsuit

BOISE (AP) — An Idaho State Prison inmate, described in his lawsuit as "young, vulnerable and suicidal," is asking $750,000 damages in a lawsuit against the state, claiming he was raped twice by other inmates.

A lawsuit from inmate Larry Dean Sauer was filed in U.S. District Court here on Thursday. It names as defendants top officials of the state's correctional system. The officials could not be reached for response Thursday afternoon.

Because of "gross mismanagement" at the state prison, Sauer alleged he was raped by male inmates twice. Both times, he alleged, because the institution has no program to help victims of rapes, he tried to commit suicide — and wound up with a disciplinary violation because of it.

Symms takes NEA to task

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, thinks the National Education Association should keep out of social causes not directly related to education.

Symms met in Washington Thursday, along with 11 other Republican senators, with NEA President Mary Hatwood Futrell. A news release from Symms' office said "with understatement that the NEA and the conservative wing of the Republican Party have not agreed on numerous issues in recent years.

Symms said he expressed concern over NEA involvement in social issues, listing gun control and the nuclear freeze as examples. He says those issues "have little support among Idaho residents, including teachers, and have nothing to do with the quality of education."

"There is no question that our teachers deserve better pay considering the very important role they play in our children's lives," said Symms.

Obscenity is the enemy, chief declares

MOSCOW (AP) — Police Chief David Cameron has reminded anti-pornography protesters that obscenity, not the city of Moscow, is their adversary.

Cameron said his investigators have neither the time, training nor financing to review every suspect magazine sold in Moscow.

But they could be forced to do just that, and once a month.

Moscow's City Council decided Monday not to seek prosecution of local convenience stores for selling Playboy, Penthouse and Qui magazines, the targets of earlier complaints.

Instead, council members told Cameron to investigate complaints on a case-by-case basis, judging each publication for its literary, artistic, scientific and political value.

Legislators favor revision of 'good time'

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — State legislators aren't certain how they want to go about changing it — but they say they don't like the current system of awarding state prison inmates automatic "good time" off their prison sentences.

"We definitely need to change the system to define good time, and make it earned rather than automatic," said Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Declo.

Darrington and other members of an interim legislative study committee spent much of Thursday afternoon on "good time."

Inmates at the state prison get "good time" reductions from their sentences if they do not violate prison rules.

District judges testifying at a morning session said the system, "Judges now agonize over their sentences," said Judge Dean Sorenson, R-Boise, "yet they don't know how long inmates will serve."

State officials noted that "good time" is built into state law.

Oliver Craven, executive secretary of the Board of Pardons and Parole, said that's become a problem, because inmates now feel they are entitled to good time sentence reductions, and it takes legal proceedings before they can be deprived of it.

Darrington said he did not believe good time reductions are necessary. But Sen. Gall Bray, D-Boise, said it's an effective management tool for prison officials.

"There's not much else you can give them or take away from them," she said.

Both Darrington and Sen. Roger Fairchild, R-Fruittland, committee cochairman, said they would support funds to build a new maximum security cellblock at the prison.

Idaho lab eyes other programs

POCATELLO (AP) — With the highly-touted New Production Reactor on the back burner for budget reasons, officials at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory are looking for other major government programs to bring to eastern Idaho.

One of the targets, according to Troy Wade, manager of the Energy Department's Idaho Operations Office, is President Reagan's "Star Wars" defense system.

"We do have a couple of initiatives under way in the 'Star Wars' programs — the president's strategic defense initiatives," said Wade. "If they pan out, it could mean a great deal for the state as well."

Among the "Star Wars" initiatives being eyed by the Idaho facility are the SP-100, a project concentrating on space shuttle use of small nuclear reactors, and several others involving power sources that are classified and cannot be discussed in detail.

"Suffice it to say that we've been looking at them pretty diligently," said Pete Dirksen, senior staff engineer in the Office of Special Programs.

In explaining the search for new projects, Wade pointed out that development of the controversial New Production Reactor to make weapons-grade material has been dropped for the foreseeable future and that INEL will be shutting two reactors as the original use for them comes to an end.

With the facility employing some 10,000 workers, Wade suggested that with even some of the new projects coming through, "it appears we are going to be able to maintain very close to that (employment) level next year."

Sister, 91, taken to political cleaners

DEAR ABBY: My sister is 91 years old and no longer sufficiently mentally competent to handle her financial affairs.

She had some money in her checking and savings account, but during the last presidential campaign she wrote checks for close to $4,000 for various candidates. She received glowing letters thanking her for her last contribution and asking for more money.

Abby, she thought these candidates were writing personal letters to her, so she sent them whatever they asked for. She was handing out checks left and right. Last January she became very ill, both mentally and physically. She had to give up her apartment and come and live with me and my husband. We are elderly ourselves and not in very good health. (We were recently appointed her legal guardians, but she has very little money left to "guard.")

I have all her canceled checks and the names and addresses of all candidates she gave money to. I wrote them, explaining the situation and demanding that they return her money. Not one of them has returned a dime!

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Not only that, but she is being solicited by other politicians. I have written to them and asked them to take her off their lists, but they haven't. Instead the list is growing!

Do you have any suggestions on how we can get some of that money back?

— FRUSTRATED IN PALM SPRINGS

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Your letters are probably being fed into a computer and answered by a processing machine. Save your postage. You stand about as much chance for a refund as a snowball in Palm Springs. Sorry.

DEAR ABBY: A while back you wrote that "bedroom eyes are in the eye of the beholder." I'm afraid that's not true.

Scientific American magazine even had a cover article in the early '70s documenting research that people with larger pupils are more "alluring (or men)" are constantly told they have "bedroom eyes." While the rest of us can get a lifeline without ever hearing that comment:

As close as I can figure it, bedroom eyes have droopy lids, large pupils, bright whites, are generally blue and accompanied by darkness under the eyes.

— EYE ADMIRER

DEAR EYE ADMIRER: Sorry, I don't buy the "scientific" research you cite. Most people see what they want to see and interpret it in their own way.

Actually, it's the expression in the eye — real or imagined — that makes for "bedroom eyes."

Summation: Nobody ever made a pass at a statue.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question I hope you can answer. My dad was married three times.

With wife No. 1, he had a son.

With wife No. 2, he had two daughters.

With wife No. 3, he had me.

What relation are his son and daughters to me — stepbrother and stepsisters? Or half-brother and half-sisters?

Would wife No. 2 and wife No. 3 be his son's stepmothers? Would wives No. 1 and No. 2 be any relation to me?

— ALLSCREWED UP IN OHIO

DEAR ALLSCREWED UP: The son and two daughters of your father are your half-brother and half-sisters. Wives No. 1 and No. 2 would be no relation to you. But wife No. 3 would be the former stepmother of your half-brother, and your real mother would be his stepmother.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 3822, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Club elects new president

TWIN FALLS — Betty Ainsworth, Twin Falls, was elected state president of the Idaho Federation of Business and Professional-Women's Club at the 64th annual convention recently in Boise.

The incoming state officers were installed by Ollie Hull, Terry, Miss., national representative. Theme of the convention was "Member Participation — The Key to the Rainbow's Connection."

Other state officers are Maxine Hulse, Mountain Home, president-elect; Mary Ann Evans, Montpelier, first vice president; Jean Martin, Courville, second vice president; Ron Stephens, Mountain Home, recording secretary; Dora Harris, Jerome, corresponding secretary, and Carol Hansen, Boise, treasurer.

Ainsworth has held many offices in the organization, on local, district and state levels. She has worked most of her adult life and currently is manager of the Weston Inn in Twin Falls.

Her theme for the coming year is "A Team-Scroll of Achievement — focus on action-aspire to enrich membership."

Hot-weather athletes can overheat

By SCIENCE DIGEST

Summer exercise can be dangerous to your health and scientists are experimenting with artificial blood to help those who literally run into trouble.

The milky fluid can carry oxygen as well as red blood cells, according to an article in the July issue of Science Digest, and researchers say it might be used in cases where summer athletes dangerously deplete their blood volume.

Hot-weather runners can lose two to three quarts of sweat an hour. That causes blood volume to dip, and if it drops low enough blood pressure falls, circulation is impaired and the brain and other organs don't get enough oxygen. Dizziness, disorientation and heat exhaustion are the result.

Heat also is a major threat to the hot-weather athlete.

"Running can increase internal heat production 10 to 15 times," said Roger Hubbard of the U.S. Army Research Institute of Environmental Medicine. "This can raise core body temperature as much as five degrees in an hour."

Heat stroke occurs when the body's temperature reaches 105 to 107 degrees. Neurologic and cardiovascular systems collapse, threatening damage to the brain. The risk of death ranges from 50 to 80 percent.

Many summer athletes think they are safe as long as they perspire, according to a report by the American College of Sports Medicine.

"Contrary to popular belief," the report says, "a fatal heatstroke can occur in the presence of sweating."

The symptoms of heatstroke, the ACSM warned, include clumsiness, stumbling, either lack of sweating or excessive sweating, nausea, dizziness or any impairment of consciousness.

Robert Leach, head physician for the 1984 U.S. Olympic team, warned that "heat injury can come on so insidiously that people may not realize they're getting into trouble."

The summer athlete can avoid the problems of escalating body heat and water loss by taking a few simple precautions.

Robert Voy, chief medical officer at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado, advises summer exercisers to drink six ounces of water every 15 to 20 minutes.

"Water is the ideal substance," he said, "because it passes quickly from the stomach to the blood."

Soft drinks that contain sugar or caffeine are less effective because sugar slows the passage of water from stomach to blood and caffeine promotes water loss.

Other preventive measures include avoiding exercise between noon and 2 p.m., slowly acclimating to the heat, wearing a hat, and dressing in lightweight, light-colored clothes that permit evaporation and reflect the sun's rays.

In the future, those who don't take sufficient precautions may get help from the artificial blood experiments being conducted at the VA Medical Center in Birmingham, Ala.

Artificial blood typically would be used for patients with rare blood types, or those whose religion bars them from receiving human blood via transfusion.

The process has worked well in laboratory rats and Dr. Huey McDaniel, who is in charge of the research, told Sports Digest's Aubin Tyler he projects clinical trials with humans.

Booksellers focus on U.S. illiteracy crisis

Convention addresses 'decent, moral issue'

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — "Sixty million adult Americans — one third of our adult population — cannot read the daily newspaper."

Those were the sobering words spoken by Jonathan Kozol, author of "Illiterate America," to some of Magic Valley's bookstore owners and managers who, along with some 10,000 others who make their living from the written word, attended a booksellers convention in San Francisco in early June.

A Rhode's, Rockefeller and Guggenheim scholar and a Harvard graduate, Kozol has become an activist concerning American illiteracy, a problem, he points out, that strikes at the very heart of democracy because, "They (illiterates) vote for a face, a smile or a style; not for a mind, a character or a body of belief."

"Illiterate America," Kozol points out that 25 million American adults cannot read the poison warnings on a can of pesticide, a letter from their child's teacher or the front page of a daily paper. An additional 33 million read only at a level which is less than equal to the full survival needs of our society.

Other chilling figures he cites are: 15 percent of recent graduates of urban high schools read at less than sixth grade level. One million children between 12 and 17 cannot read above the third grade level. Eighty-five percent of juveniles who come before the courts are functionally illiterate. Over a third of the mothers who receive support from welfare are functionally illiterate.

"The Jumping America" prize Kozol writes that the U.S. ranks 49th among 158 member nations of the U.N. in its literacy levels. Even in the state of Utah, he notes, which ranks number one in the U.S. in the percent of total budget allocated to the education sector, 200,000 adults lack the basic skills for employment.

Yet, Kozol is not alone in pointing to the vast national weakness. In the book, "Adult Illiteracy in the United States," authors Carman St. John Hunter and David Harman point out the difficulty in actually counting the number of adult illiterates in the U.S., but cite as one of many examples a report of the University of Texas at Austin setting forth the findings of its Adult Performance Level study.

In that study it was found that, when given a notice posted on a cashier's desk in a store describing the check cashing policy for that store, more than one out of five respondents didn't draw the correct conclusion from the notice.

Fourteen percent of the sample, when asked to fill out a check in a simulated business transaction, made an error so serious that it was unlikely that the check would have cleared the bank.

Thirteen percent of the sample didn't address an envelope well enough to ensure that it would reach the desired destination, and 24 percent didn't place a return address on the same envelope.

The authors say that an official of the U.S. Office of Education, using the competency criteria of the APL study, infers that 57 million Americans do not have skills adequate to perform basic tasks. Almost 23 million Americans lacked the competencies necessary to function in society. An additional 34 million Americans are able to function, but not proficiently.

In "Illiterate America," Kozol estimates a figure of $237 billion in unrealized lifetime earnings forfeited by men 25 to 34 years old who have less than high school level skills. $20 billion as a direct cost to business and taxpayers. Six billion dollars yearly go to child welfare costs and unemployment compensation caused directly by the numbers of illiterate adults unable to perform at standards necessary for available employment.

He notes that the prison population represents the single highest concentration of adult illiterates with a direct cost of $6.6 billion.

Perhaps that's why, in his speech, the author said, "This may be the one decent, moral issue of our times upon which liberals and conservatives, Democrats and Republicans, poor and rich, black and white, can totally agree."

Andrew Zimmerman browses through the shelves of the Twin Falls Public Library's children's section for good reading

PBS 'Reading Rainbow' show for kids inspires local 'storytime' promotion

By CLAUDIA CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News intern

TWIN FALLS — This summer, the choices in children's television will include more than reruns of Gilligan's Island and Star Trek.

The Public Broadcasting System will air the "Reading Rainbow" program, a series of shows encouraging children to read. Starting June 24, the show will run every weekday until July 26. In Twin Falls, the shows can be seen on Channel 4.

The episodes will feature actor LeVar Burton reading a book from a list of recommended literature for children, compiled by the American Library Association. After the program, a group of children will review the book. The show will also include feature-type segments on subjects of interest to children.

In conjunction with these shows, the Twin Falls Public Library and B. Dalton Bookseller will be promoting the program in Twin Falls. The library will carry a list of recommended books and the bookstore will hold "reading circles" every Saturday from June 29 to July 27.

From 11 to 11:30 a.m., Pat Chupa, a B. Dalton employee, and librarian Annie-Laurel Burton will read one of the recommended books outside the store. Children are invited to listen and participate in a short activity afterward.

The "Reading Rainbow" program is designed to encourage literacy in Twin Falls as well as other cities in America by teaching children to enjoy reading. The program is in its third season nationally, but this is only the second season that Twin Falls has been involved with the Twin Falls Public Library and B. Dalton Bookseller co-sponsoring the program.

The library is also organizing a contest for the children who participate in the program. The theme is "My Favorite Reading Rainbow Character."

Contestants are to illustrate their favorite character from any of the books they read and include a small explanation of why that character was the best for them. Entry forms can be picked up and dropped off at both the library and B. Dalton Bookseller.

Winners will receive Reading Rainbow books and posters. Everyone who enters will get a Reading Rainbow bookmark. Prizes will be donated by B. Dalton Bookseller.

"I think that any time you expose children to books, you increase their chances for improving literacy. Children are very TV-oriented and the Reading Rainbow program is taking advantage of that fact to bring books alive for children," Burton said.

The program's target age group of children is 5 through 8. Good books for kids in that category have bright illustrations, keep a child's attention and convey an important message, Burton said.

Suggestions for children's reading

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Judi Baxter, owner of Judi's Books in Twin Falls, recently attended a booksellers convention in San Francisco. The theme of the convention, "Toward Reading," explored "illiteracy in America, a national shame that guest speaker Jonathan Kozol described as "this pestilence within our midst."

With a desire to attack the problem at its roots, Baxter has since compiled a list of children's books designed to ignite youthful imaginations; to start and keep them on the road to reading that is so essential in our modern society. Her list is separated by school grades but she cautions that parents should look at that as only a loose guideline. "Some third graders," she says, "can read eighth-grade level books." Likewise, some older children may need to read books suggested below their actual grade level.

Pre-school — K, "Run Away Duck," "Brown Bear, Brown Bear, What Do You See," "How Much is a Million," "Moses the Kitten," "A Is for Angry,"

"Velveteen Rabbit," "An Evening at Alhambra" and "Where the Wild Things Are."

K — 1: "Now One Foot, Now the Other," "Oliver Button is a Sissy," "Chickens Aren't the Only Ones," "Tenth Good Thing About Barney," "Alexander and the Terrible Horrible Day," "Chicken Soup With Rice," "A Child's Garden of Verses" and "The Rose in My Garden."

2 — 3: "The Pain and the Great One," "How to Eat Fried Worms," "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory," "Circlet in Times Square," "Just So Stories," "Goodbye My Island," "Tales of Paul Bunyon" and "Wind in the Willows."

4 — 6: "The Sign of the Beaver," "The Silver Crown," "Bride to Bereitha," "Chronicles of Rydala," "Where the Red Fern Grows," "The Indian in the Cupboard," "The Westing Game" and "Tales From the Jungle Book."

7 — 8: "Tales of King Arthur," "Favorite Tales From Shakespeare," "Merlyn and the Dragons of Atlantis," "My Brother Sam is Dead" and "Chronicles of Rydala."

And, for parents of young children: "The Read Aloud Handbook."

CSI teacher deals with adult illiteracy

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Jan Lanker, a College of Southern Idaho instructor who works with adult students seeking a GED (high school equivalency diploma), has little trouble believing the "damning figures" concerning American's illiteracy rate.

According to Lanker, a major problem discovered through testing of GED students is their inability to read. "We generally do a battery of preliminary testing to find out what they can and can't do," she says, adding that most of the adults have some reading skills they haven't used and, therefore, need to enhance those skills.

Others, she says, need the very basics, including one student who had to be taught to write her name. Lanker says CSI offers three basic reading level classes to prepare adults for the GED.

She says that most come into the program with the ability to add, multiply or subtract, but are poor in reading which is essential for anything requiring coping skills. "Some have to shop by recognizing labels," she says.

Illiterates also have a problem with self-esteem, Lanker points out. "They don't want anybody to know they can't read," she says, adding that an illiterate will use his or her spouse or children to cover up the fact.

"The other person in the family won't admit it either because it's a source of embarrassment for them," Lanker says.

On attacking illiteracy, the educator says, "You've got to go wherever you need to start. The school system needs proficiency tests to show if students are reading up to their grade level. Very few come out of high school reading at a 12th grade level."

But, Lanker, a former second-grade teacher, thinks the education system falls far below the high school level. "After the third grade, it is assumed a child can read," she says, "but, many still need a lot of work. Too much is assumed. In the fourth, fifth and sixth grade they don't do word attack anymore."

"Though the educator wants to see more reading taught in the school system, she feels it is never too late to learn. "Adults learn at a much more rapid pace. We're working with the total person. With some, we need to lay down a foundation while some others are just ready."

Perhaps the biggest problem in teaching adults to read comes from Lanker's last statement. "It takes a lot of courage to come in that first time," she says.

Magic Valley illiteracy statistics

TWIN FALLS — According to the authors of the book, "Adult Illiteracy in the United States," when we use the criterion of high school completion to help delineate the population that has not achieved functional literacy, we arrive at essentially the same figure as that arrived at by those who used competency levels.

In the Magic Valley, the level of illiteracy is that of a high school diploma is high, according to Brent Johanson of the College of Southern Idaho Study Statistics Department. According to the 1980 census figures used by CSI in developing their tutorial services, the following numbers represent adults county by county lacking the equivalent of a high school diploma:

Twin Falls — 13,464

Library activities to spur kids' reading

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Public Library children's librarian Annie-Laurel Burton thinks that one way to combat illiteracy is to teach children before they become school age. "If we don't start them very young and establish good reading habits, and if reading isn't part of their pattern by the time they're in school, then we have a problem," she says.

Burton explains that reading should be fun for the young ones and if a child's first experience with reading is in school, then it becomes "homework" instead of a pleasurable experience.

Burton thinks it is important that parents read-aloud to their children starting at a very early age and continuing later to read just above the child's own level of reading to stimulate his interest.

For the library's part, a pre-school story hour for two- to five-year-olds is a regular Friday mainstay. Burton says the program, held at 10:30 a.m. with a repeat session at 1:30 p.m., is quite popular and that there's a lot of interaction when the kids get involved.

Also, a bilingual reading program is in progress for grades one through six in which each participant keeps a record of the amount of time spent reading each week. Through graded increments, prizes are awarded to winners from each grade.

For fifth and sixth graders, a small newspaper called "Lost and Found Books" has been established. The purpose of LAF, she explains, is for the young staff members of the paper to search shelves for books that are normally overlooked, and write reviews of them.

In the future, she hopes to re-establish the library's "Read to Me" program in which one staff member communicates with small children while another discusses book talk with the parents. Also, she says the library has begun amassing lists of information so that they can direct programs toward youth groups in order to pull more kids into the library.

But, she notes, pulling the kids in is not enough. To keep them coming back, Burton says it is extremely important for parents to also use the library, both to express an interest in literature and to provide transportation for their children.

CSI schedules Music Fest '85

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho campus will be a sharing center of musical knowledge during Music Fest '85, which will feature separate public performances, one by the festival faculty, the other by students of the program. According to program developer Ruby Peterson, about 80 students have signed up for this year's program, an upturn from last year's 55 participants. Offered during the workshop are classes in music history, piano accompaniment and ensembles, music theory, music theatre, conducting skills, introduction to organ, piano and string master classes and brass, string and woodwind ensembles, among others.

Peterson credits locals Margaret Vineau, Marty Mead, Rick Strickland, Carson Wong, Janie Griffin, Larry Curtis, Camille Cox, James Keizer and Helen Connolly for working with the junior and senior high students. Two special guest instructors are Daniel Stern, music director of the Boise Philharmonic who will be on hand again to teach orchestra, and Laura Vincent, a Filer native now living in California, to teach piano. Peterson says the faculty performance of Music Fest '85 will be held at 7:30 p.m. June 26 and will feature Stern on the violin, Connolly, cello, and Laura Vincent playing the piano. They will play "D Minor String Trio" by Mendelssohn.

Curtis and Vincent will play Debussy's "Premier Rhapsody for Clarinet and Piano," and Mead, soprano, and Cox, contralto, will be featured vocalists. Keizer will present classical guitar work. Admission will be $2.50 with funds going toward Music Fest '86. The student performance is scheduled for June 28 and is free to the public. Both performances will be held in the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium. For more information on the performances or classes call 733-9554.

Concert picnic set

By BRAD BOWLIN
Times-News Intern

JEROME — Music fans from around the Magic Valley will be treated to seven hours of live music at the Jerome County Fairgrounds this Sunday afternoon. Six or seven local club bands will provide the entertainment at the Cobalt Blue Summer Picnic starting at 1 p.m. Cobalt Blue, featuring Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, on lead vocals, will headline the show. They will be joined by Maxus, Idaho 'Deluxe, Fast Forward and two or three "mystery bands," according to Cobalt Blue guitarist John Reynolds.

The concert is being sponsored by Magic Valley Charities Inc., a Jerome-based organization which raises money to aid area youth and school-related activities, according to Judge William Hart of Shoshone, who helped establish the corporation. Admission will be $4 per ticket, $6 a couple and $10 per family. Proceeds from the rock-a-thon will be used for work on the Jerome High School athletic field, according to Hart. Any additional funds will go to a wrestling camp at the College of Southern Idaho later in the summer.

This is not the first such event that has been held here in the Magic Valley, according to Hart and Reynolds. Last year's show was also held at the fairgrounds, with proceeds going to the Jerome athletic field, according to Hart.

"We (Cobalt Blue) try to do something like this every year. We've done it for about the last five years," said Reynolds. The band, which plays everything from country to rock, according to Reynolds, plays regularly around the Magic Valley at such places as The Smoke Shop in Jerome and The Windbreak and The Alley in Twin Falls.

Concessions will be sold at the fairgrounds, and people are invited to bring their own food and beverages, according to Reynolds. "We call it a picnic because people can bring what they want and just sit in the sun and have some fun," he said. "It's basically just a bring-your-blanket and sit-on-the-ground and have-a-picnic type deal," said Hart.

Renaissance Academy slates full summer of arts activities

TWIN FALLS — The Renaissance Academy of the Arts is offering a summer program burgeoning with activity, variety and opportunity for people of all ages. From July 2 to 18, Willetta Warberg will present a piano workshop taught in the Warberg Method which teaches one to learn to read and play piano music instantly by simultaneously using both sides of the brain. Different courses are offered for groups from pre-school through adults. Fee is $40 for school age students and $60 for adults. A course on calligraphy by Gayle Bariger is slated for July 10-11 and 17-18. Geared toward children from eight to 12 years old, the course is designed to teach children the skills to learn how to see what they are drawing. Class fee is $50. From July 22-26, Marty Mead will present a musical theater workshop of Broadway plays for groups and individuals. It will include choreographics, singing and dancing and, on July 26, there will be a performance held for the P. O. of kindergarten through 12-year-olds and has a fee of $10. Introduction to Dance workshop will be held August 5-9 with Beverly Hackney teaching ballet. Shelley Watson teaching pat. Maria Glenn instructing Modern and Amy Green teaching Jazz. The classes are for kindergartners through 12-year-olds with a fee of $15. A flower show for students is scheduled for August 12-13 with Lucille Hankins as the judge. Winners will receive ribbons. On August 29, Herrett Museum director Jim Wood will present the program, "Indians of the Snake River Area," for the people of all ages. Fee for the program is $1. The August 15-17 agenda has academy director Rick Strickland and Linda Terry offering a chamber music workshop that will consist of string instruction. Then, August 26-28 a workshop for the basic introduction to the guitar will be held by George Marsh. The chamber workshop costs $30, while $20 is asked for the guitar workshop. Both programs are open to people of all ages. For more information and reservations, call the academy at 734-0719.

Kentucky Fried Chicken contest invites amateur songwriter entries

TWIN FALLS — If you're an amateur songwriter craving to have your words resonate from the mouth of recording star Charly McClain, the ninth annual Kentucky Fried Chicken Amateur Songwriting Contest could be your opportunity to bring it to reality. Each year the top two entries have been recorded by the contest guest artist. Moreover, in 1984 McClain not only recorded the winning entries but chose to put one on the flip side of her hit, "Radio Heart." The other has recently been released on the flip side of McClain's "Wayne Massey's new duet, "Just One Look in Your Eyes." Though winning entries can't be guaranteed such exposure, the contest does assure the top two winning entrants a trip to Nashville to witness the recording of their compositions by McClain, or by McClain and Massey if a duet is chosen. Later, it will be distributed as a 45" to over 2000 radio stations nationwide. Past winners have also been guests on the Today Show, Merv Griffin Show and other national and local media outlets. Entries making the national finals will be judged by McClain's producer. Songs will be evaluated on originality, quality and uniqueness of expression. Composers of the top 10 winning songs, who will be notified by November 15, will also be eligible to win stereos, televisions, radios and tape recorders. To enter, amateur songwriters must compose and record an original tune no more than three-and-a-half minutes long on a cassette tape, then mail it to the sponsor by September 3. Individuals may enter as many different songs as they wish, but each must be submitted on a separate cassette. Entries must include written lyrics and a statement of originality for each attesting that each song is original and composed by the entrant who is an amateur songwriter. The writer's printed name, address, phone number, signature, date and song title must also be included. Tapes are to be sent to Songwriting Contest 1985, P.O. Box 1014, Tinsley Park, IL 60477. Tapes will not be returned.

Lightfoot brings mixed bag of music to Boise for one show only June 26

BOISE — Gordon Lightfoot will appear in the Morrison Center in Boise for one show only June 26 at 8 p.m.

Difficult to label—Lightfoot is a regular in popular music today as a writer and performer of songs about real people, events, places and emotions.

Currently working on his 17th album in 20 years, the Canadian singer has won 16 Juno awards — the Canadian equivalent of the Grammy Award — and has been nominated for a Grammy four times. He also has several gold and platinum records to his credit.

Tickets for the concert are available at the Boise State University box offices and all Select-A-Seat outlets. To order tickets by phone, call 385-1110.

Judge won't halt Dallas production in 'Miss Ellie' flap

By JUDY SMAGULA FARAH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — In a courtroom drama worthy of the denizens of "Dallas," actress Donna Reed lost a bid Tuesday to regain her role as Miss Ellie on the hit prime-time soap when a judge refused to halt production of the series.

Superior Court Judge John L. Cole denied Miss Reed's request to issue a preliminary injunction, which could have halted production on scenes involving the Miss Ellie character indefinitely, possibly up to a year. Cole denied a similar motion last month that asked for production to be stopped immediately, but for a short period of time.

Despite the two setbacks, attorney Michael Donaldson said he will proceed with Miss Reed's $7.5 million breach of contract lawsuit that was filed last month.

No new hearing dates have been set on the suit, which contends that CBS-TV, which broadcasts the show on Friday nights, induced Lorimar Productions to replace Miss Reed with Barbara Bel Geddes, the original Miss Ellie on "Dallas."

"She's a 64-year-old Iowa farm girl who has certain principles and class... She intends to stand on them," Donaldson said of Miss Reed.

Miss Reed signed a three-year contract in October 1984 to play Miss Ellie, the matriarch of Southfork, but Lorimar informed her in April that the company had decided to reinstate Miss Bel Geddes in the role.

Miss Bel Geddes, who won an Emmy in 1960 for her portrayal of Miss Ellie, had retired after undergoing heart surgery.

Miss Reed, who won an Academy

Award as Best Supporting Actress in the 1955 film, "From Here to Eternity," said Lorimar's action reduced her "to a mere stand-by." She did not attend the court-hearing.

Lorimar is paying what it owes according to Miss Reed's contract, which is $17,250 a week for the next two years, Donaldson acknowledged. He contended the contract permitted Lorimar to suspend Miss Reed if she defaulted in her duties by injury or illness, but not because they wanted to replace her.

He said Miss Reed believed when she signed the contract that she would be appearing as Miss Ellie, and not sitting back and collecting her salary. Miss Reed said in the lawsuit her exposure on "Dallas" was worth far more than the wages. He said the notion of "pay-or-play" is not mentioned in Miss Reed's contract.

Lorimar attorney Robert Dudenik acknowledged the contract did not specify a "pay-or-play" option, but said it was a typical entertainment contract that implied such an arrangement.

"It doesn't use the words (pay or play) but ... (they are) included by reference," he said.

E.T.'s friends reunite for re-release promotion

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — They are a trio of disparate ages and backgrounds, but they share a common bond: They were friends and companions of the screen's most popular space alien, E.T.

The other day Drew Barrymore, Henry Thomas — and Robert McNaughton — were reunited for a media whirl to signal the re-release of "E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial," which returns to theaters July 12 after a two-year absence. During its year in release, the film collected $359 million in the United States and Canada alone, making it movie history's biggest moneymaker.

The three young actors gathered at the Sheraton Premiere Hotel for a round of interviews. They are four years older than when they acted under Steven Spielberg's direction. They are also taller, undoubtedly wiser, with the air of the prospect that afflicts some young performers.

Drew Barrymore played, the youngest member of the family, Gertrude. While not exactly precocious, she can be surprisingly adult in her comments. She is 10 now, attending — apparently with no relish — the fourth grade. "I don't like school; I don't think anybody does," she said with finality.

She attends a private school, where she takes a "lot of teasing" about E.T. "I try to ignore it."

What she likes most is working in movies, and she has done more of that than her two co-stars. "Let's see, I've done an ABC special, "Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn," she recounted. "I made "Irreconcilable Differences," "Cat's Eye" and "Firestarter."

She said Spielberg was "the best director in the whole world I can't say anything bad about him." As for E.T., she remarked: "Yes, I thought about him as a person. He was a lot like an actor. But I'm not supposed to tell how he really works."

Henry Thomas, who played Elliott, has a different view of working with E.T. "It's pretty hard to relate to a machine with 12 guys operating it." Henry, who is 13 and will enter the 8th grade in his native San Antonio, Texas, next fall, had a more mature view of director Spielberg: "It was a basically a business-type relationship: He was the director; my role was to listen to him.

But he will listen to your idea of what you would do in a real situation, and let you try it. That's why he's good director — he let's you express your own opinion. Some directors don't listen, and you end up not doing your best work."

Since "E.T.," Henry has appeared in "Mistakenly" with Gene Hackman, and the thriller, "Cloak and Dagger." He recently made "Frog Dreaming" in Australia.

However, he can't escape E.T. He, too, has faced kidding from his contemporaries. He agreed with Drew: "You can't do much except ignore it."

Robert McNaughton, the older brother of the movie family, has turned 18 and is finishing high school this month — an important milestone for young people, but more so for actors. "It's hard to work in California if you're under 18," he said. "The studios would rather hire someone who is 18 or 19 and make them look 16, so they won't be tied down to short (state regulated) working hours. I missed out on "The Breakfast Club" and other pictures I wanted. I even became a resident of New York so I wouldn't have such rigid restrictions."

After "E.T.," McNaughton filmed "I Am the Cheese" with Robert Wagner, Hope Lange and Don Murray and made an "After School" special, "Hear Me Cry." Most of his work has been in the theater. He appeared with "The New York Shakespeare Festival and also played in "Master Harold...and the Boys."

"It was difficult to be in high school when something like "E.T." happens to you. You find people wanting to be friends, and you're not sure what their intentions are. I kept the friends I had before the picture and became kind of cautious about making new friends," he said.

"After a while, my life returned to normal, and it's not as bad now. But I suppose it will start all over again now that the picture is coming out again."

R. Crumb lives still, as musical

By DAN HULBERT
Dallas Times Herald

FORT WORTH, Texas — R. Crumb lives.

This is hard to believe for many people, minds were pleasantly occupied by Crumb's Zap Comix in the 1960s. For these people — former hippies, intelligentsia, slumming college students — Crumb was the graphic guru, and his creation, Mr. Natural, the Grand Poobah of a vast drug subculture.

Looking like a combination of a defrocked Old Testament prophet and a lecherous wino, Mr. Natural kept on truckin' on the cartoon landscape in those colonial clown-shoes, spreading the earthy gospel of marijuana and bottom-heavy women.

In fact, Crumb's feverishly stoned images were so perfectly emblematic of the late '60s, that many Baby Boomers now find it hard to believe that there ever was a real R. Crumb, let alone that he might have continued to exist after Watergate.

When Johnny Simons, director of Fort Worth's Hip Pocket Theatre, announced that Robert Crumb would fly from California to attend his new musical based on Crumb's drawings (it opened at the Hip's outdoor theater June 14), it was as though he'd announced that America's Earl, Jimmy Hoffa and the Easter Bunny had all resurfaced simultaneously. Many Hip Pocket fans were thunderstruck — then exhilarated.

Crumb, now 41 and living on a remote northern California hillside, sounds pretty excited himself for this chance to reaffirm his own reality while seeing his characters on the stage.

"There seems to be this notion that I died around 1974," said the mild-mannered artist in a recent phone conversation. "Well, I quit drugs about that time and went back to being my old alienated self. I dropped a lot of those LSD-inspired characters, and my drawing changed, evolved. Maybe I'm not as interesting to some people as I used to be, but I'm definitely still here."

Although Crumb is feeling much more in control of his life, the government reportedly slapped him with a $400,000 fine for failure to pay back taxes, and he lost a painful court battle to claim the financial rights to his image of the high-stepping man and the dog named "Kean." "Kean," which was a sort of coat-of-arms for '60s dropouts.

Only a public campaign saved his famous collection of vintage '78 records (which will provide Simons' sound track) from being questioned to the hills above Sacramento, Calif., to live quietly and modestly with his wife Aline — whose illustrating work helps support the family — his baby daughter, dogs and goat.

'Gotcha' misses with crass humor

Ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America and the Los Angeles Times. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times reviewers.

GOTCHA! (PG-13). Mistired romantic comedy-thriller about a rich, spoiled college youth (Anthony Edwards) losing his virginity to a glamorous spy (Linda Fiorentino) in Paris and winding up in high adventure. Edwards and Fiorentino are fine, but they are shined out by crass humor.

WHINNY CART BREWSTER'S MILLIONS (PG). Not as bad as it is flat. Richard Pryor is a minor-league baseball player who must spend $30 million in order to inherit 10 times that amount. This money fantasy may have flourished better in a slightly less global-conscious era, or perhaps the specter of our national debt hangs a little too heavily today. You sense Pryor trying to build the dignity of Brewster, yet his character becomes neither poignant nor comic. Walter Hill directs with constant motion. With John Candy.

PERFECT (R). All the film's "serious" mood comes from a subject as big as grandly hilarious portrait of a working journalist (John Travolta) and his world. The film becomes more voyeuristic and manipulative than the profession it depicts. With Jamie Lee Curtis.

RAMBO: FIRST BLOOD PART II (R). Sylvester Stallone's John Rambo, a disillusioned Vietnam vet and walking hunk of vengeance and slaughter, returns. Only this time he is battling not merely a small Northwestern city police force, but the combined armies of the Soviet Union and Vietnam, as well as his own craven Washington superiors. Highly professional, but inane.

What's what

What's the worst thing that could happen to you? A psychology measure called the Holmes and Rahe Social Readjustment Scale lists "death of a spouse" as the worst, typically, rating it at 100 points. Divorce is rated 73, and separation, 65. Getting fired only gets a 47.

BIGGEST FROGS

Q. How big are the biggest frogs?
A. Three feet. Is a normal, longish, seven pounds a normal weight. Such frogs live near the cascading rivers of the old African Cameroon. In the spume from the waterfalls, they're pretty active. Elsewhere, three jumps and they're all tired out. Some frogs.

If you hear something you like about somebody you don't, that's gossip, I'm told.

Q. The three largest islands in the world are Greenland, New Guinea and Borneo. What's the fourth?
A. Madagascar.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you are eager and anxious to show off your capabilities and special talents; but don't be surprised if obstacles arise that cause you to put off until a better time.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Get right at those interesting outside affairs and complete them before you have some problem to resolve.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You can easily become more successful with the assistance of one who dwells with you, so follow advice given to you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Financial affairs are very important to you so study periodicals that can help you to become more efficient in your work.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find better ways of getting your plans working more efficiently and easily, and don't let stumbling blocks throw you for a loop. Make appointments for the evening.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 31) You are very charming today and can get just about anything you wish, if you smile more. Later conditions are not favorable.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Go after more of the personal things you want out of life and gain them, then be of assistance to a good friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning deviate in handling worldly affairs. Get out there to invite friends for a soiree, since later you and they will have much to do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't get routine work done precisely. Morning is best time to ask for a favor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Listen to the suggestions of one whose experience has been quite different in yours, and then you can handle some proposition from a different angle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Study practical issues and make them work so that you benefit more. Handle details well. Take time for shopping.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more willing to go along with ideas of a bigwig and put yours aside for the time being.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Find better ways to add beauty and comfort to your surroundings in the morning, then get at other work you have to do.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will need much encouragement and affection, in order to do his, or her best work, so give a pat on the back, when something exceptional is accomplished. One who can do well in executive positions. There is much generosity in this nature as well as logic.

Shankar's returned to classical sitar music form — raga

PBS salutes birthdays of Handel and Bach

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — The 18th century knew something about slick and expensive packaging for its rulers, and no one did it better than George Frederick Handel.

When George II was crowned in 1727, Handel provided a little mood music including "Zadok the Priest" — a "musical blizzard of halloo-lahs" — as Tony Randall puts it on a Public Broadcasting salute to Handel and his contemporary, Johann Sebastian Bach.

So if you thought the last GOP convention was spiffy, tune in to "A Celebration of Handel and Bach" which debuted on PBS Wednesday night and hear a bit of media mastery on behalf of the King of England. There's more to majesty than bunting, balloons and giant television screens.

The telecast, produced by the Basically Bach Festival of Philadelphia, is scheduled for 8 p.m. EDT on the east coast. Check local listings for the time in your area.

"Zadok the Priest" — one of four anthems which Handel wrote for the coronation, is presented as a brief but brilliant bridge between Handel's "Royal Fireworks Music" and Bach's "Magnificat." However, says conductor Michael Korn, "Zadok" was not chosen just to fill five minutes.

"Each piece was picked as a strong case for what makes Bach and Handel different," said Korn, who founded the Philadelphia Singers in 1972 and appears with them on the telecast. "We wanted things of Handel that immediately sounded the most Handelian of all, which would mean the grandest kind of Handel."

"Zadok," says Korn, demonstrates the truth of Beethoven's tribute that Handel achieved "the grandest results with the least of means." A professional chorus only needs one rehearsal on "Zadok," Korn said, and there's nothing taxing about the instrumental parts. Yet the results are splendid, fit to reverberate in the vast reaches of Westminster Abbey and the ear of a monarch.

The text is brief: "Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, anointed Solomon king. And all the people rejoiced and said: God save the King, long live the King, may the King live for ever! Amen. Halloo-lah."

Handel zips through the first sentence, then his hard on "re-joice'd," which is repeated a dozen times by the chorus.

NEW YORK — In the late '60s, flowers bloomed, psychedelics soaked it to 'em and the sitar, a 700-year-old instrument, soothed a youthful generation.

It was a time when George Harrison and the Beatles turned the spotlight on Ravi Shankar, the Pablo Casals of the ancient stringed instrument.

"In the beginning it was mostly jazz buffs and people who liked India and Indian religion," Shankar said. "Then came the big sitar explosion with George Harrison starting to learn from me. . . . I became a cult guru and superstar, which was very interesting. I would be a hypocrite if I say I didn't like it. At the same time, it was in the wrong manner."

"I became 'Hey, Ravi,' and they were smoking dope and coming to concerts-stoned. That was the part of it I did not like, the drug part and the superficiality. They took for granted Indian music is like pop or rock and their attitude when they came to my music was the same typical thing that goes with rock music."

Shankar could not perform his music in that setting and started protesting to the audience. "Our music needs hearing in silence," he said. "We are improvising all the time. If there is a good vibration, we can give better music. It is based on a very spiritual feeling. Most of them did not like the criticism."

Today, the flower-children are gone, his audiences are more respectful and he's returned to the classical form known as raga sangret. A raga is a precise melodic form. There are 72 melas, or parent scales, on which the 15,000 ragas are based.

"The sitar, the most popular stringed instrument in India, has six or seven strings. Below them are 13 sympathetic resonating strings."

"It takes years to achieve the spirit of a raga. We improvise on complex rhythmic cycles. . . . It is very intellectual and at the same time we keep up the emotional aspect," he said in an interview.

"Each time we play a raga it can not be 100 percent the same as the time before. . . . We may play in slow, medium or fast tempo. We may treat it in a very serious manner or a devotional spirit or an erotic way. All that depends on the situation and the time. We may want to play it for 15 minutes or one or two hours."

Ragas, which became the music of India and Pakistan, developed from chanted Hindu hymns. "It took centuries to develop, first three notes, then four, then seven," Shankar said. Like Western classical music, Indian classical music is still being created. "You think all the combinations possible to the human mind have been exploited, but we still create new ones," Shankar said. "It is not like taking something from the outside. It is within the framework, based on a foundation of what the musicians have learned."

Shankar has two separate identities: He is a musician and a composer. "People haven't understood that when I experiment with orchestras or play with violinist Yehudi Menuhin or do something with jazz musicians, that has nothing to do with my performances of ragas as a sitar player. Then I'm very orthodox," he said.

"I took my sitar and played Bach, that would be disturbing, just a gimmick. I have never done that."

Shankar was soloist at the opening celebration of an 18-month American celebration of Indian culture at the Kennedy Center in Washington on June 13. He also will play on opening night of the New York Philharmonic next September, when New York's Lincoln Center begins its series of Festival of India events.

Shankar composed the score for Satyajit Ray's "Guru trilogy" movies in the 1950s, and for "Gandhi" in 1982.

That included classical ragas, folk music and Mohan Kauns, a raga Shankar composed in 1948. He has composed two concertos for sitar and orchestra for the London Symphony and New York Philharmonic.

The 65-year-old musician went to Paris when he was 10 as a dancer in his brother's troupe. When he was 15, the man who would become Shankar's guru, Ustad Allaudin Khan, joined as a soloist. "After a couple of years, I decided I would take music seriously. I went to India to him. I stayed 7½ years," Shankar said.

"He couldn't stand nonsense. All he wanted from his disciples was work, work and no fooling around. . . ."

"He was against drugs, drinks, womanizing. He believed in celibacy and maintaining a strong character. He practiced what he preached. He could get angry and beat people up."

PG-13 Rating Introduced

A new rating category is in place as of July 1. This new category is inserted between the current PG and R ratings. It is designated as "PG-13: Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for attendance of children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children."

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- G General Audiences—all ages admitted.
- PG Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- PG-13 Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for attendance of children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
- R Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- X No one under 17 admitted.

Films starting after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

IDFG limits fishing

By tribes

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Fish and Game Director Jerry Conley, citing a significant threat to efforts to rebuild the state's wild chinook salmon runs, closed stretches of the Main Salmon and Clearwater River drainages Thursday to treaty Indian fishing for spring chinook.

But SI Whitman, secretary to the Nez Perce Tribe Executive Council, said that the tribe will ignore Conley's order, which was effective at noon, and continue fishing under its treaty rights. Conley and several officials from the anadromous fishery divisions were in eastern Idaho discussing the closure with the Shoshone-Bannock tribes Thursday.

Violations of Conley's order are misdemeanors.

Fish and Game officials stressed the closure is a conservation measure to protect wild fish and that tribal and sport fishing will continue to be available on streams that are dominated by hatchery-return adults.

Conley said he was forced to invoke his power to impose an emergency conservation closure on the rivers because "the Nez Perce Tribal Council has not promulgated tribal regulations to prevent the take of wild and naturally spawning spring chinook salmon."

But Whitman claimed Conley has provided no evidence to support his contention that the closure is motivated by conservation concerns. "They want to manage Indians, not fish," Whitman charged. "At this point, this is a political issue, not a conservation issue."

Darrington tops valley am by two strokes

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

GOODING — It wasn't the happiest round Karen Darrington has played this year, but when the smoke-literally-had-cleared, she stood in a familiar spot Thursday — atop the standings in the Times-News Magic Valley Women's Amateur Golf Tournament.

Darrington carded a six-over-par 80 on the Gooding Country Club course for a two-stroke advantage over Jerome's Julie Rediker and Twin Falls' Shauna Robinson. Gooding's Louise Smith carded an 84 to keep alive hopes for a hometown champion.

"I played Monday and Tuesday and played about as well as I can," Darrington said. "I don't know what happened to my Tuesday. I ratted three woods and made a lot of bogeys. I didn't have a disastrous hole with a big number, just too many bogeys."

Darrington, like other members of the championship flight, said a brisk wind that sprang up rather early in the round didn't hurt their games much. In fact, some said it was a benefit. Up to the time the wind freshened, a pall of smoke from a desert fire to the southwest hung over the course, stinging eyes and lungs. The wind blew the smoke trail back to the southside of Snake River.

The problem now for the championship flight is to overcome Darrington, who doesn't often shoot in the 80s.

One aware of that is defending champion Doris Eillingham, who settled the strokes off the pace at 85. "I just slept through the first four holes. I don't know what was wrong with me but I was six over after four," she said. "After that I played pretty well until I three-putted the last green."

Also staying in the 80s were Serene Sorenson of Burley at 86; JoAnne Sanderson of Twin Falls 87 and Lenora Kasworm of Rupert and Kathy Hanchett of Twin Falls at 88.

The first flight lead went to Mildred Lynch of Burley, who noted with a laugh "It was fun today. I'm not coming back tomorrow. What ruin a good score?"

Still she was far from a comfortable lead as Kathy Borchard of Wendell and Jeanne Alban of Twin Falls were just two shots away. Lois Robertson of Jerome, were knotted at 89 with Ruth Crawford of Buhl at 92 and Irene DalSoglio of Burley and Peggy LeMayne of Gooding, at 94. Bernice Howa, Twin Falls, had a 95.

In the second flight, Edna Pierson of Gooding, led Murlaug's Laurena Marshall 93-91 with Marilyn Flynn of Gooding, another shot back. Emma Barry of Jerome had a 97 while Jerry Hutchinson of Burley and Joe Levin of Twin Falls had 98 and Chelotte Brunell of Twin Falls with a 99.

The third flight was dominated by Gooding players, Blanche Reay and Chris Derbridge sharing the lead at 98. Kay Hughes had a 101, followed by Adlene Stewart, 104; Babe Hawks, 107, and Violet Becker 108.

Massimino shuns Nets' lucrative offer

By TOM CANAVAN
The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Rolie Massimino on Thursday rejected an offer by the New Jersey Nets that would have made him one of the highest-paid coaches in the National Basketball Association and decided to stay with his family and friends at Villanova University.

The fiery and emotional Massimino turned down the deal, reportedly at least $2.1 million over 10 years, after eight long negotiations, Nets President Bernie Mann said.

"The decision was made about 5 a.m. MDT, less than seven hours before the Nets were to hold a press conference to announce a new coach, Mann said.

"I felt it was in the best interests of my family, Villanova, our players and Jake Nevins to stay at Villanova," the 51-year-old Massimino said in a changing the deal on things like fringe benefits and a life insurance program and certain other items.

"Mr. Massimino felt he was being put in a position of renegotiation, Leven said. "That, coupled with his deep feelings for Villanova, made the difference."

Nets spokesman Jim Lamparillo refused comment on Leven's statement. "We're not going to get into a situation where we'll argue about anything that happened during the negotiations. I'm not going to comment on it."

That decision left the Nets without a successor to Stan Albeck, who on Monday signed a three-year contract with the Chicago Bulls after the Nets released him from the final year of his contract.

"We're back to square one again," said Mann. "He was our No. 1 choice. It's certainly disappointing. We put a lot of effort into it."

The Nets also put a lot of money into the effort to lure Massimino into the professional coaching ranks.

"His reported salary of $25,000 annually in his first four years with New Jersey would have made him one of the five highest-paid coaches in the league."

Pat Riley, coach of the Los Angeles Lakers, makes a reported $500,000. "The market was said to have signed a deal worth around $300,000 with the Bulls."

Mann said Nets officials met Thursday and decided to wait until the NBA league meeting in San Francisco ended next Tuesday before tackling the job of finding a new coach. Mann has favored hiring a college coach, but he would not say if he still favored that path in the wake of Massimino's decision.

"We're big boys," said Mann. "The market had feelings. Rolie is still a fine coach."

Massimino has compiled a 228-137 record in 12 seasons at Villanova, winning three national crowns. Last season with a thrilling upset victory over defending champion Georgetown.

When the team was told of Massimino's decision to stay, his reaction was one of "unexpected elation," he said. "Nine percent of them felt he was leaving."

So did the Nets.

Mann said Tuesday that he expected to have Massimino signed within 24 to 36 hours, adding that the coach had expressed a desire to come back to New Jersey, where he grew up. Mann remained confident Wednesday when attorneys for both sides went about hammering out a contract, and the team called a press conference.

However, the hammering stopped Thursday, when the deal fell through.

Grandfather clause imperils tough NCAA reform proposals

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — The first rift in the NCAA's fight to clean up college athletics developed Thursday when it was disclosed that schools currently on probation would have one black mark already on their record in the drive to crack down on repeat violators.

William B. Hunt, the NCAA's assistant executive director for enforcement, said that as many as 25 schools — including Florida, Illinois, Southern Cal and Clemson — could be affected if Proposition No. 3 regarding the discipline of members passes at Friday's business session of the fifth special convention in NCAA history.

Under the proposed legislation, a school could be barred from competing in a particular sport for up to two years. It says that "an institution shall be considered a 'repeat' violator if any 'major' violation is found within the five-year period following the starting date of a 'major' penalty."

NCAA President John R. Davis of Oregon State University said in the interpretation of the policy-making NCAA Council was that any school given at least a one-year probation with sanctions (i.e., no bowl or TV privileges) in the last five years would have one major violation on its record when the legislation takes effect Sept. 1. Such a group would include Florida, Illinois, Southern Cal and Clemson, among others.

However, the Pacific-10 Conference said it would introduce an amendment to the legislation on Friday prohibiting any retroactivity.

"Our amendment would not take into account (punitive) actions taken in the past when this action (Proposition 3) was not in existence," said UCLA Chancellor Charles E. Young. The Pac-10's amendment would prohibit any punitive action before Sept. 1 from counting.

"Our feeling is there should be no retroactivity at all. It's more a matter of the traditional NCAA policy of not being retroactive," said Thomas C. Hansen, executive director of the Pac-10 and a former assistant executive director of the NCAA.

The Council's Interpretation drew immediate criticism from Marshall M. Criser, president of the University of Florida, who said he would vote for the Pac-10 amendment.

"I don't believe this organization, or any other, should pass ex post facto legislation which, in effect, increases the severity of penalties imposed on programs within the last five years," Criser said.

Proposition 3, which was slugged with a three-year probation last year for 59 violations of NCAA regulations, won its first Southeastern Conference football championship in 1984 but was stripped of the title last month by a 6-4 vote of the SEC presidents.

Both Criser and Florida Gov. Bob Graham have refused to accept that decision.

Proposition 3 was called "perhaps the most important of the (12) for secondary violations subject to an appeal to the Committee on Infractions, which heretofore has been the sole judge."

Heyman conceded that "a number of concerns have emerged" concerning Proposition 3. He listed them as follows:

• The NCAA staff would have too much authority in processing secondary violations and would, in effect, be both judge and jury. The Council has proposed an amendment requiring the chairman of the Committee on Infractions or a committee member designated by the chairman to approve any action by Hunt.

"The 'heaviness' of the proposed penalties, especially for repeat violators. They are 'heavy,'" Heyman said, "but Proposition 3 doesn't go as far as a number of presidents wished in regard to penalties."

Proposition 3 establishes distinctions between "major" and "secondary" violations of NCAA rules and regulations, establishes "specific" penalties for certain categories of violations (including repeated violations), authorizes "specific disciplinary or corrective actions against institutional staff members who violate NCAA regulations and authorizes Hunt to impose penalties

A conundrum for handicap golfers: To have or to have net

Rambling around: Gordon Brown, who ended 35 years of coaching at Glens Ferry High School this year, gave Fourth District coaches his last as he lashed that long.

Brown made the comments when the district coaches honored him with a plaque commemorating his career — 811 of it with the Pilots.

First, Brown said, he felt it was a distinct advantage for himself and his family to have been able to spend his professional lifetime in one place and, second, he noted that having a co-coach like Bob Bellison with him 33 of those 35 years was another major blessing.

"Bellison and I had a pact," Brown said. "If I heard someone say something bad about him I didn't tell him and if he heard someone say something bad about me, he didn't tell me. That way we never heard anything and we thought everyone liked us all the time."

Those of you who frequent Big Sky Conference football games will see a new alignment by the umpire this fall. Paul Ostyn, a Big Sky official, gave those seeing the Magic Valley East-West Shrine Game a preview of it.

The Big Sky umpire this year will stand in the offensive backfield, which does away with possible interference of plays downfield and, Ostyn reports, "gives you a lot better view of holding."

He notes it is much easier to see an offensive lineman grabbing jersey from the offensive side than the defensive.

"I don't think there's any real advantage in moving the umpire in high school because you just don't see offensive holding as much," Ostyn said. "But in college, you see a lot of it. After trying it from behind the offensive line, my opinion is that's where he should stand for college games."

There are two types of golfers who play in the myriad tournaments around Magic Valley: Those who play for gross and those who play for net (handicap deducted). There are, believe us, considerably more of the latter than former.

One of the former, however, is Glenn Blakeley of Burley, who has been winning things like the state amateur for the past several years with one- and two-stroke handicaps. But he's run into a few problems with his game this year and his handicap "soared" to four.

In last week's pro-am at Burley, then, conditions were set for Blakeley, for the first time in his life, to win the net division. His usual best-ball teammate Terry Spackman beat him out 67-68 for gross honors.

Blakeley wasn't certain he liked the idea of being paid in net, then, he asked what the difference was between first and second gross. "I'd be $32 in merchandise," he decided to "suffer" in net.

Two weeks ago at Blackfoot, parred the last seven holes on what is considered the toughest course in southern Idaho and won first net.

Waxing more and more eloquent as he regaled his playing mates with the story over the ensuing week, Latham was asked if he would compete in the Burley pro-am.

"Of course," he retorted brusquely. "I'm in demand now."

John Lewis of Idaho Falls equalled the Burley Muni course record during that pro-am, but had a reason for it. Usually, the Pinescrest Municipal Golf Course assistant asks the scorer what he thinks it will take to win the pro sweepstakes. Monday he forgot.

When he turned in the scorecard at the end of the record-equalling round, he shrugged off the 62: "I figured I'd better shoot as low as I could." See HOVEY ON Page C1

State cancels Caldwell card; Ali's visit to Idaho in jeopardy

BOISE (AP) — The fight that reportedly was going to lure three-time heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali to Idaho for a visit has been canceled by state officials who said the boxing promoter has failed to pay required bonds for the bouts.

Dale Trumbo, state athletic director, said late Thursday night that Potlatch, Ore., fight promoter Paul Brown had not presented him with the $1,000 bond necessary to put on the June 27 fight.

Brown also was required to give Trumbo signed contracts and the purse for the main event. Trumbo said the total would have amounted to around $4,000.

"We have to do it to protect the fighters," he said. "I'm not doing it for spite. I want Muhammad Ali to come here. I'm looking out for the fighters; they have to be paid."

Brown said he could not understand why Trumbo was calling off the fight. "The bond was going to be paid tomorrow (Friday)," Brown said. "I've been trying to call Dale all day. I talked to him Monday and told him what he had to have," Trumbo said. "He said he'd have it by Thursday."

Trumbo said there has been a problem with fighters and state taxes not being paid in the past.

"There was a problem with Jimmy Lee Bilis' check," said Trumbo, referring to the California fighter who declined Salt Lake City's Chris Schwenke in a March fight at Caldwell.

Bilis' manager, Bob Waddell, confirmed by telephone from Vallejo, Calif., Thursday night that two checks Brown gave him were returned for insufficient funds. Bilis was scheduled to fight in next week's main event and Waddell said he told Brown he would not sign for the fight unless he was paid for the Schwenke fight.

Waddell said Brown has been sending him money for several weeks and made the final payment of $390 on Wednesday.

In addition, two checks totalling $500 that Brown has written to the state of Idaho for taxes were returned to the state auditor's office because of insufficient funds. Trumbo said he still has the checks and they have not been made good.

However, Brown said he had the money for the main event purses for next week's fights.

"I have the money. I got the bond to put up," Brown said. "I've been trying to get hold of Dale all day. I don't understand this stuff."

If the fights are canceled, one casualty would be Ali's visit.

"Ali called me today," Brown said. "Ali's supposed to speak at the Rotary Club on Wednesday, he's supposed to meet the mayor at 3 p.m. on Wednesday. He wanted to go to the Idaho State Penitentiary."

Trumbo said normally the bond is higher for fight promoters.

"Normally I ask for a $10,000 property bond," Trumbo said. "He (Brown) didn't have that so he said he would come up with a $1,000 bond. He couldn't come up with anything he said he would."

Trumbo said the only way the fight could be put back on was if Brown paid the money Friday, and even then it would be two weeks before it could go on.

Pro basketball

"This was the only job I wanted," the former Washington Bullets' assistant coach said at a news conference originally called to introduce the Sonics' No. 1 draft choice, Xavier McDaniel.

Bickerstaff, who signed a multiyear contract at undisclosed terms, replaces Lenny Wilkens, who was made general manager post after the Sonics missed the playoffs last season with a dismal 31-51 record.

"I like the organization and I'm fond of Mr. (Barry) Ackerman," said Bickerstaff. "Right now, this becomes a new era in SuperSonics basketball."

Ackerman, the Sonics' owner, had met with Bickerstaff last week.

Bickerstaff, 41, has been an assistant coach with the Bullets — under K.C. Jones, Dick Motta and present Washington Coach Gene Shue — for 12 years. He has been a vital part of the Bullets' organization and has a reputation as a patient, a strong communicator and a developer of young talent.

Bickerstaff stressed he had no illusions about bringing the Sonics to the top right away. But, he said, "I think the Sonics have a nice nucleus and a nice group of young players that can be developed. The only way we can go is up."

As for the future style of the Sonics, Bickerstaff said he wants to change it from defense-minded to offense-oriented.

"We want to be exciting, but we want to be intelligent," he said. "The most important thing for me is to analyze the film. The system must fit the player."

"We'll be tough but we won't be inhibiting," he said. "We'll have fun, but we'll have fun."

Bickerstaff's boss for the past five years, Shue, has said, "Bernie's experienced in every aspect of the game. He's been a working assistant coach; he's had an opportunity to be involved in everything we do. I think he has described Bickerstaff as 'very dedicated, hard-working, well-organized, knowledgeable, experienced.'"

Bickerstaff was credited with reconstructing the Bullets in recent years after the team's decline was largely due to injuries. He organized and ran the team's summer development program, and for four consecutive years Washington entry won the four-team summer tournament at Princeton, N.J., which included the New York Knicks, the Philadelphia 76ers and the New Jersey Nets.

conservation issue.

The fish and game chief, who has been battling Indian tribes in the Northwest over the harvest of native salmon and steelhead for months, said his department had repeatedly asked the Nez Perce Tribe to ban treaty fishing for chinook, citing the need to protect the state's severely depressed populations of the wild fish.

But after giving the tribal executive council until next Tuesday to take action, Conley said his officers found that Nez Perce members had been harvesting wild and naturally spawned chinook fish on the Selway River since June 9.

"Harvest of even a few wild and naturally spawning fish will have an significant adverse impact on the restoration of the resource," Conley said, in imposing the closure.

Whitman said the decision to issue the closure order Thursday violated the state's agreement to hold off until next week, and he said the tribe would sue Conley to abide by the June 23 date when the executive council meets on the issue again.

Claiming that the tribe has wanted nothing more than co-management of the resource with the state, Whitman said tribal biologists and technical analysts have been unable to find any evidence backing up claims the closure is necessary for conservation purposes.

Northcott moves into second at CFR

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — College of Southern Idaho, freshman Wayne Northcott moved into second place in saddle bronc riding after the first night of the second go-round at the College National Finals Rodeo here Thursday.

Northcott, who finished third in the Intermountain region this spring behind teammates Glynis Montero and George Schmidt, had a ride of 74 on Thursday to move into second place behind Mike Merchant of the University of Tennessee at Martin. Northcott, Montero and Schmidt will all have another chance tonight, when the second go-round takes place.

Northcott was bucked off his horse Tuesday in the first-go and did not score any points.

His teammate Kindel Mason and Mason's partner, Tim Black of Boise State, finished in a tie for fourth place in team roping with a time of 7:3 seconds, equalling the performance of Jeff Medlin of Eastern New Mexico University and Tam' Noble of Sul Ross State College of Texas.

Those standings, scores and times are applicable only to the second go-round. Scores and times from the first and second go-rounds are combined to determine which competitors make Saturday night's finals.

In the first go, which concluded Wednesday night, Schmidt finished fifth in barrel racing and sixth in saddle bronc riding, Mason was fifth in calf roping and second in team roping and CSI's Bill Head was 10th in barrel racing. Montero was bucked off in the first go, and barrel rider Gary Brogan was charged with a miss.

The go-round leaders in the rodeo's other eight events stayed the same Thursday night, with just a few changes in the top five.

Current men's leaders are: Michael Barker, Sam Houston, in bull riding with an 82 score; Eddie Jarnagin of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, in barrel racing with a 74 score; Mike Merchant of Tennessee-Martin, in saddle bronc riding with a 79 score; Tony Curran of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, in calf roping with a time of 9:0 seconds; and Chip Gatlin of San Houston State, in steer wrestling with an effort of 3:8 seconds.

Nolan Twisselman of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo and Clay Hurst of West Hills continue to lead team roping

College rodeo

With a 6.9 time.

Jinita Williams of Sul Ross leads the breakaway roping with a time of 2:3 seconds; Tara Olsen of the University of Wyoming is ahead in goat tying with an 8:0-second clocking, and Maryann Brill of Wyoming's Casper-Casper leads the barrel racing with a 14.4 time.

could because you didn't give me a target score today."

One personal remembrance in this battle concerning the "puny" USFL vs. the mighty NFL. This remembrance was by complaints that Herschel Walker, the world-class sprinter, set his season's rushing record in "the minors" by former record-holder Eric Dickerson, who has the advantage of a diluted league, four extra games, etc., over the good boys of the NFL.

Fact: In their third year of existence, the former Baltimore Colts of the fresh-from-disbanded All-American Conference and under the direction of Otto Graham, won the NFL championship in their first year of membership.

Fact: In its third Super Bowl try against the NFL, the defunct AFL won after Joe Namath predicted it.

Fact: The USFL is three years old. Is there anyone out there who honestly believes that the Saints, Bengals, and that ilk, could go out and successfully trounce the best in the NFL? History indicates that five years is the swiftest period between a poor team and a great one if competently handled. Not all the USFL owners, general managers and coaches can be bozos.

NL: Cubs lose ninth in a row

NEW YORK (AP) — Is mid-June (so early to start calling baseball games crucial? New York Mets Manager Dave Johnson doesn't think so — for now.

"In the way we were, this is probably the biggest snafu we'll have all year," Johnson said Thursday after the Mets completed a four-game sweep of Chicago, beating the Cubs 5-3 to send them to their ninth loss in a row, their longest losing streak since a 14-game skid in June 1967.

George Foster hit a third-inning grand slam and John Christensen followed with a solo home run to propel the Mets to victory over the team to whom they lost the National League East title last season.

"The Cubs did us just what the Cubs did to us last year," Johnson said. "This takes away the psychological edge they had."

"I don't sympathize with the Cubs at all," said Johnson, whose team has been without outfielder Darryl Strawberry and pitchers Sid Fernandez, Bob McDowell, Doug Sisk, Bruce Berenyi and Calvin Schiraldi at various times this season.

Cubs Manager Jim Frey tried to find something positive despite the mounting losses. "All I ask is for our guys to go out and play hard, and they did that today," Frey said. "We played well. Unfortunately, they had one big swing."

Foster, a $2-million-a-year outfielder who had managed just one hit in his previous 18 at-bats and entered the game hitting .211, said he did exactly what he wanted to do when he lined the ball over the right-center field fence. "I've been trying to pull everything," Foster said. "Now I won't. It's too bad one hit can't boost your average 30 or 40 points."

The grand slam was the 12th of Foster's career and his ninth home run of the season. "He's making a whole lot of money. He ought to hit a few," Frey said.

Fernandez, 2-4, gave up two runs in five hits over six innings, striking out 10 as he broke his personal four-game losing streak.

McDowell, in his first appearance since suffering an ankle injury June 7, pitched the last three innings for his fourth save. It also was the first appearance of Steve Lincecum, who pitched complete-game victories over the Cubs by Ron Darling, Ed Lynch and Dwight Gooden.

A two-out error by shortstop Chris

Speler led to New York's outburst in the third. After Ray Fonteneau, 1-3, retired the first two batters, Kevin Chapman singled and Ray Knight followed with a grounder that Speler bobbled.

Gary Carter then walked on four pitches, loading the bases for Foster. Christensen's homer, over the fence in left, was his third of the season.

Chicago, which had scored just three runs in its previous 46 innings, took a 1-0 lead in the top of the third when Dave Lopes walked, stole his second base of the game and came home on a two-run single by Keith Moreland.

The Cubs added a run in the fourth on singles by Ron Cey and Leon Durham and a sacrifice fly by Speler and made it 5-3 in the eighth off McDowell on Ryan Sandberg's second double of the day and another RBI single by Moreland.

St. Louis 5 Philadelphia 0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Willie McGee singled home Vince Coleman in the first inning and scored on Andy Van Slyke's double, sending the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-0 triumph Thursday night over the Philadelphia Phillies behind Danny Cox's second consecutive shutout.

Cox, 9-2, yielded nine hits, while walking two and striking out seven. Cox blanked the Cubs 2-0 last Saturday in Chicago. He has not allowed a run in 23 straight innings.

Tom Lawless and Tom Nieto singled home additional runs for St. Louis in the third and fifth innings, helping the Cards win for the 10th time in 13 games, shutout.

Coleman, after walking to start the game for St. Louis, raced to third when Philadelphia starter Kevin Gross, 5-7, threw wildly on an attempted pickoff at first base.

McGee followed with a single to left field, reaching second with his 27th stolen base. After Tommy Herr struck out, McGee stopped at third on Jack Clark's single and jogged home when Van Slyke rapped his double in the gap in left-center field.

Pittsburgh 2 Montreal 1

MONTREAL (AP) — Rick Rhoden pitched a three-hitter over seven innings and drove in the winning run with a double as the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Montreal Expos 2-1 Thursday night.

Rhoden, 5-7, went seven innings, striking out five and walking two and snapped a personal three-game losing streak. Al Holland allowed two hits over the final two innings to record his fifth save.

Rhoden, who had two hits, drove in the winning run as Pittsburgh rallied to score a pair of runs against Expos

Rangers swap Tanana for Detroit prospect

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers traded pitcher Frank Tanana to the Detroit Tigers for minor-league pitcher Duane James, the club announced Thursday.

James, a 23-year-old right-hander, was assigned from Detroit's Class AA club in Birmingham to the Rangers' Class AA Tulsa affiliate in the Texas League.

Tanana, a 31-year-old southpaw, is 2-7 with a 5.91 ERA in 13 starts with the Rangers this season. Detroit will be the fourth major league club for Tanana, who has a career record of 137-137 in 1 1/2 major league seasons.

James was in his third season with the Detroit organization after being signed in October 1982. At Birmingham this season, he is 4-7 with a 5.38 ERA in 18 games.

Texas also announced Thursday that designated hitter Cliff Johnson has been placed on the 15-day disabled list, retroactive to June 15. Johnson underwent arthroscopic surgery on Monday to remove torn cartilage from his right knee.

31-year-old veteran

To fill the roster openings created by Johnson's injury and Tanana's departure, the Rangers recalled righthanded pitcher Glen Cook from their Class AAA farm club in Oklahoma City and purchased the contract of outfielder Nick Capra from Oklahoma City.

AL: Jays finally manage to stop Bosox

TORONTO (AP) — With the nightmare of a four-game sweep at the hands of the Red Sox last week still fresh in their minds, the Toronto Blue Jays were out for revenge Thursday night in the first game of their return series against Boston.

The Blue Jays lost two of three games against the Milwaukee Brewers after being swept by the Red Sox, but second baseman Damaso Garcia said a club never forgets a sweep.

"You don't forget a sweep, no matter how long it is before you play that team again," said Garcia, whose two-run triple in the seventh inning helped propel Toronto to a 6-5 come-from-behind victory against Boston.

"We needed this one tonight. This is the kind of win that can do a lot for a club."

Toronto Manager Bobby Cox, whose club had lost seven of its previous 10 games and suffered through a six-game losing streak, was confident the club would bounce back.

"Streaks always end sometime and it's just nice to get this first win," Cox said. "We got three excellent relief jobs tonight and it's always nice when you can come from behind. We've shown over the last few years that we can do that."

Buck Martinez led off the seventh against left-hander Bob Ojeda with a single and Garth Iorg then reached on an infield single, his third hit of the game. Pinch-runner Lou Thornton and Iorg advanced on Tony Fernandez' sacrifice bunt and Garcia greeted reliever Bob Stanley, 3-3, with his game-tying triple to right center.

Lloyd Moseby then delivered a sacrifice fly to shallow center field and Garcia, who went 3-for-3 with four RBIs, beat Steve Lyon's throw home with the winning run.

Detroit 10 New York 9

DETROIT (AP) — Mike Armstrong uncorred a wild pitch facing Lance Parrish in the 10th inning, allowing Lou Whitaker to trot home from third with the winning run for Detroit as the Tigers beat the New York Yankees 10-9 Thursday night.

Dave Righetti, 4-6, took the loss as the Yankees had a four-game winning streak snapped. He was the fifth of six Yankee pitchers. Doug Bair, 2-0, worked the last inning for Detroit for the win.

With the score tied 9-9, Whitaker worked Righetti for a walk on five pitches and Alan Trammell walked on four. Kirk Gibson hit a fielder's-choice grounder to force Trammell and send Whitaker to third.

Then Armstrong, who had pitched only 2 1/2 innings this season, came on and uncorred a wild pitch on a one-ball count to Parrish that allowed Whitaker to score the winning run.

The Yankees held a 9-6 lead going into the bottom of the ninth, but the Tigers tied it off Righetti on RBI singles by Gibson and Parrish and a run-scoring fielder's-choice grounder by Barbaro Garbey.

Earlier, Rike's Henderson had snapped a 6-0 tie with a two-out homer in the New York eighth and the Yankees made it 9-6 in the ninth on Bobby Meacham's two-run single.

Oakland 12 Chicago 1

CHICAGO (AP) — Rookie left-hander Tim Lincecum, backed by home runs from Bruce Bochte, Alfredo Griffin and Carney Lansford, Thursday night hurled the Oakland A's to a 12-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox in a shutout.

Birlas, 4-1, allowed just four hits in eight innings, striking out four and walking six before Steve Ontiveros came on to pitch the ninth.

Bochte belted his second homer with a man on in the seventh and Griffin hit his second with two on in the eighth and Lansford followed with his ninth. All three of the homers came off reliever Bob Fallon and were part of a 16-hit Chicago attack as all White Sox starters hit safely.

Chicago starter Tom Seaver, 7-5, was touched for 12 hits before leaving in the seventh inning.

California 4 Cleveland 0

CLEVELAND (AP) — Reggie Jackson slugged his 513th career home run, moving him alone into 10th place on the all-time major league list, and Ron Romanick pitched a four-hitter as the California Angels beat the Cleveland Indians 4-0 Thursday night.

Jackson's home run sparked a second inning during which the Angels scored all four runs, giving Romanick his eighth victory against three defeats.

Romanick, a right-hander, struck out two and walked two while pitching his fourth complete game and first shutout of the season. He retired 20 of the last 22 batters.

Seattle 11 Texas 3

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Al Cowens hit a three-run homer and run-scoring single. Jim Presley homered and Phil Bradley doubled twice to lead Seattle's club recording 20-hit attack as the Mariners whipped the Texas Rangers 11-3 Thursday night.

The Mariners' hit total matched the 20-hits made against the Cleveland Indians on Aug. 30, 1981.

Winner Matt Young, 68, pitched five innings, giving up three runs and five hits. Young walked only one batter and struck out four. Curt Beal pitched the final three innings for his fourth save.

Losier Burt Hooton, 3-2, gave up seven runs on 11 hits in 4 1/2 innings.

The Mariners sent 10 batters to the plate in a six-run third inning. Spike Owen and Jack Perconte singled and scored on Bradley's two-run double. One out later, Hooton intentionally walked Gorman Thomas before Cowens hit his sixth homer of the year. Presley capped the uprising with his 15th homer.

Minnesota 11 Kansas City 8

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kirby Puckett belted a bases-loaded triple in the seventh inning to rally the Minnesota Twins to an 11-8 triumph over the Kansas City Royals Thursday night, ending the Twins' three-game losing streak.

Puckett, who had ended an 8-for-15 slump with a third-inning single, tripled to cap a four-run seventh that brought the Twins back from an 8-5 deficit. He had four hits and four RBI in the game.

Kansas City reliever Mike LaCoss opened the Minnesota seventh by walking the bases full. Joe Beckwith, 1-4, came in and allowed a run-scoring single to Tim Teufel before striking out pinch-hitters Randy Bush and Mike Salas. Puckett then tripled into the gap in right center to clear the bases.

LOS ANGELES — A prosecutor dropped rape and assault charges against athlete-actor Jim Brown in a surprise move Thursday, saying evidence disclosed at his preliminary hearing tends to contradict the allegations in this case.

"I would not want anyone to be forced to stand trial with the contradictory nature of the proof that's come forward here," said Deputy District Attorney Dino Fulgoni.

Municipal Court Judge Candace Cooper granted the motion by Fulgoni to dismiss all charges against Brown.

Fulgoni noted that "something happened at that house that night," but he added, "I don't think we've heard the absolute truth anywhere." Fulgoni had met briefly with the judge in chambers before he stood up in a packed courtroom and made the announcement.

"A great deal of evidence had come forward that tends to contradict the allegations in this case," he said.

Moments after the decision was announced, Brown emerged from the courtroom smiling.

"First of all," he told reporters, "I'm glad to be an American because we have a chance in our system if we're innocent for the facts to come out."

JIM BROWN
'Contradictory' testimony

He thanked his lawyer and the friends who had supported him and said he would have no more to say about the case.

Fulgoni had told the judge that the only piece of physical evidence in the case — a semen-stained towel — "has proved to be meaningless" because it could not be proved the semen was placed there that night.

He credited Brown attorney's Johnie Cochran, with uncovering additional evidence.

Cochran told reporters: "Justice was served. Our system does work. We had a very complete preliminary hearing and a lot of praise goes to the prosecution in this case. They kept an open mind and when the charges could not be proved to a moral certainty, they were dismissed."

Cochran said he hoped news of the outcome of the case would be disseminated as widely as word of Brown's arrest, since "many people had him already convicted."

It was the testimony of a police detective that ultimately pointed up the most glaring inconsistencies in the testimony of the woman who alleged that Brown had beaten and raped her at his Hollywood Hills home.

Police detective Tom Maloii testified earlier Thursday that portions of the story told on the witness stand by the alleged victim were "diametrically opposed to what she told me."

Maloii made that statement as he was recalled to the witness stand by Cochran and questioned again about details in a report he filed.

Brown was charged with rape and assault in a Feb. 19 attack on a 33-year-old schoolteacher. He had repeatedly said he was innocent.

Maloii, a specialist in dealing with rapes, was sent to interview the woman on the night of the attack.

He said the alleged rape victim was accompanied by a woman previously identified as her lesbian lover, Ethelda Worthy. Maloii said the two appeared to disagree whether the complaint should be filed.

"Ethelda spoke loudly to her, saying she should go through with it. She said, 'Girl, you are crazy. You got him where you want him now. You should go for it,'" Maloii testified.

He said the two asked to confer privately, then called him back and Ethelda said, "OK. We've decided we want to go for it. We're going to get him."

Maloii said the other woman appeared to be dominant. The officer also said the alleged victim described Brown as having penetrated her during a forced sex act. On the witness stand, the woman said there was only partial penetration.

"It would be diametrically opposed to what she told me," the officer said of the woman's testimony.

After Maloii's testimony, the alleged victim was recalled to the witness stand and denied that the conversation between her and Worthy ever occurred.

starter Dan Schatzeder, 2-3, in the fifth inning.

Marvell Wynne lined a one-out single in the fifth, stole second, went to third on catcher Mike Fitzgerald's fielding error. He scored on Sixto Lezcano's sacrifice fly. Lezcano was safe when left fielder Tim Raines dropped the ball on the play for an error. Rhoden then knocked in Lezcano with a double.

San Diego 6 San Francisco 5

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Terry Kennedy homered and drove in four runs, two with a double during a three-run rally in the eighth inning Thursday that carried the San Diego Padres past the San Francisco Giants 6-5.

LaMarr Hoyt, 9-4, won his seventh straight game despite allowing two home runs to Jeff Leonard. Hoyt allowed nine hits in eight innings, walked one and struck out six. Rich Cossage pitched the ninth for his 16th save.

The Padres entered the eighth trailing 5-3 but scored three times. Pinch-hitter Al Bumbry drew a leadoff walk from Giants starter Mike Krukow. Reliever Mark Davis, 3-4, and walked pinch-hitter Jerry Royster. Tony Gwynn then lined a single to center to score Bumbry and after Steve Garvey struck out, Kennedy drilled his two-run double.

Houston 2 Atlanta 0

ATLANTA (AP) — Phil Garner's two-run homer in the eighth inning snapped a scoreless pitching duel between Houston's Bob Knepper and Atlanta's Rick Mahler Thursday, giving the Astros a 2-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Alan Ashby led off the eighth with a walk, becoming only the fourth Astro base runner allowed by Mahler, 10-6. Garner then hit a drive over the center-field fence for his fourth home run of the season.

Knepper, 7-3, scattered six hits over 8 1/2 innings. He struck out two and walked four.

Knepper got the first two outs in the ninth, when Bruce Benedict singled and pinch-hitter Paul Runge walked. Dave Smith then came on to retire Claudell Washington on a grounder for his 12th save.

Sills leads Atlanta Open by stroke

ATLANTA (AP) — Tony Sills, who has undergone surgery five times in the last 11 years, birdied the first three holes Thursday en route to a 7-under-par 65 that gave him the first-round lead in the $500,000 Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I got off to a good start and that was the key," said Sills, who held a one-shot lead over former Masters and U.S. Open champion Fuzzy Zoeller.

Sills has never won a tour event, although earlier this year he led at New Orleans after three rounds before falling to a fourth-place finish.

It took him six attempts before he qualified to play on tour. The 29-year-old Californian had his colon removed nine years ago and since has had additional surgery. "I'm in really good health right now," he said. "I had a lot of serious medical problems in the past."

Playing in the afternoon half of the 156-man field, Sills scored birdies from 7, 11 1/2 and 10 feet on the first three holes of the 7,008-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

He had it within two feet of the cup for four of his remaining six birdies, knocked it in from eight feet for another and escaped a poor drive on the par-5 15th when he sank a birdie putt from 20 feet.

Sills three-putted from 25 feet for a bogey on No. 6 and also bogeyed the 10th when he had a poor drive, then caught a bunker with his second shot and failed to save par from 10 feet.

"I've never won on the tour and it's very important to me," Sills said. "It's just so early in the tournament to be thinking about winning and I'm going to try not to."

Zoeller also has had to battle physical problems, undergoing back surgery nine months ago.

Zoeller, who started on the 10th tee, had a bogey-free round, scoring four of his six birdies from five feet or less.

Zoeller said a nerve in his right hip bothered him on Wednesday, "but I took medication last night and it felt fine today."

Tim Simpson, third in this event last year, shot a 67 and was deadlocked with Mac O'Grady, Larry Rinker, Bill Bergin, Steve Pate and David Lundstrom.

Undhjem fails to make cut

FLANDERS, N.J. — Virginia Undhjem of Twin Falls, Idaho's representative in the U.S. Women's Public Links tournament, carded an 88 Thursday and failed to make the final match-play round of the meet.

Young, Cooper slip again

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Maltia's Kent Cooper and Jerome's Mickey Young have slipped another notch in the latest standings released by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys' Association.

Cooper, who was ranked third last week in saddle bronc riding standings, by the P.R.C.A., has slipped to fourth-place in the rankings based upon money earned this season.

Golf marathons continue

Five more groups of Magic Valley golfers will tee off at sunrise this morning, one at the Canyon Springs Golf Course in Twin Falls and four others at Wood River Valley courses.

The event, which is being held at various golf courses throughout Idaho this week, is a fundraiser for the American Cancer Society. Participants collect pledges from sponsors for each hole completed.

Today's Canyon Springs foursome will include Jerry VanVoort, Eric Mahaupt, Susan Roy and Bernie Royce, all of Twin Falls. Those golfing at the Sun Valley, Elkhorn, Bigwood and Warm Springs will include Tim Gilmore of Ketchum.

Golfers will be on the links from sunrise to sunset. On Wednesday, the foursome of Ralph Carpenter, Lee Wagner, Darlene McKim and Bill Koch Jr., played for more than 16 hours at the Blue Lakes Country Club.

Illinois Senate backs Cubs

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Flashing more signs than a third-base coach, the Illinois Senate gave tentative approval Thursday to a plan allowing the Chicago Cubs to light up Wrigley Field for post-season play and as many as regular season games.

The 46-to-0 endorsement of the plan was the Senate's fifth vote within one-half hour on the issue of lights at Wrigley Field, the only major league ballpark where night games aren't played.

The vote came a few minutes after the House rejected a bid to overturn a state law and Chicago city ordinance that prohibit night ball at the 71-year-old North Side stadium.

Miller leads Mayflower LPGA

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Alice Miller, closing in on the Ladies Professional Golf Association record for earnings in a year, shot a 5-under-par 67 Thursday to take the lead after one round of the $250,000 Mayflower Classic.

Miller, who had three of her live birds on the back nine, held a one-stroke advantage over veteran Beth Solomon and Laurie Rinker. Rinker, a two-time All-American at the University of Florida, credited a week off the tour and a lesson from pro Peter Kostis for her low score.

Cowboys sign Mel Lattany

DALLAS (AP) — The wide receiver-starved Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League announced Thursday they have signed sprinter Mel Lattany to a contract at undisclosed terms.

Lattany, 25, who graduated from Georgia in 1981 and holds the world's third-fastest time in the 100-meter dash, hasn't played football since high school. Cowboys spokesman David Pelletier said, "We worked him out. The quarterbacks (both Danny White and Gary Hogeboom) said he's a pretty good receiver and he's been working on it." Pelletier said.

Dallas has been searching for help at wide receiver since the trade of Bruce Johnson and the career-ending injuries to Drew Pearson.

Europe bars Liverpool side

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — The Union of European Football Associations on Thursday barred Liverpool for three seasons of European club soccer competition following the expiration of a ban on all English clubs which was imposed after the Brussels soccer riot.

After seven hours of deliberation, UEFA's Commission on Control and Discipline also announced that Juventus Turin, which faced Liverpool in the Brussels final, will play its next two European Cup home matches without fans.

In addition, it said that Belgian stadiums must not host any European Champions Cup and Cupwinners finals for the next 10 years.

By DOUG TUCKER The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — College presidents who allow wrongdoing in their athletic departments should be punished along with the coaches, the head of the NCAA Presidents Commission said Thursday.

Meanwhile, support seemed to be growing stronger for a series of get-tough rules to be voted upon Friday at the conclusion of the NCAA's special "integrity convention." Every delegate interviewed Thursday felt the measures would all gain approval.

Included among the eight proposals drawn up by the Presidents Commission were several aimed at penalizing cheating coaches, including outright dismissal and prohibitions on recruiting. But John Ryan, chairman of the Commission, said there could be a move to allow conventions to set out penalties for presidents who comply with or give tacit approval to cheating.

"I would support a position calling for sanctions against a college president if that president were found to be part of the problem," Ryan said at a news conference. "I'm for punishing the guilty. If the president is part of the problem, he should be penalized."

About 250 college presidents and chancellors are attending a Friday convention, signaling what many believe is a deepened involvement by presidents in athletic affairs. Ryan indicated that the Commission might submit legislation in next January's regular NCAA convention to include presidents in the penalty structure.
