Air India jet plunge takes 329 lives

Jumbo Jet Crashes

By ROBERT GLASS
The Associated Press

SHANNON, Ireland — An Air-India jetliner with 329 people aboard plummeted into the Atlantic off Ireland on Sunday, scattering debris and bodies over five miles of ocean. Indian officials said an explosion possibly caused history's third worst air disaster. Irish officials said the Boeing 747, flying from Montreal, Canada, to India, vanished from their radar screens without sending a distress call. Search aircraft and boats rushed to the crash site and recovered 123 bodies before the search was halted for the night. It was to resume again in the morning. "Explosion is considered a possibility in view of the fact that the wreckage is spread over a wide area," India's minister of state for civil aviation, Ashok Gehlot, said in New Delhi. "Sabotage is a distinct possibility."

Flight 182 was the first commercial jet to crash on the trans-Atlantic route, according to the International Air Transport Association in Geneva, Switzerland. Air-India in New York and London said there were 307 passengers and 22 crewmembers aboard.

Air-India's Montreal manager, Derek Menezes, said 278 passengers were Canadians. In New Delhi, Air-India officials said many of the Canadian citizens were of Indian origin, and that there were 77 children and six infants on the flight.

Family members said 12 American residents, including seven U.S. citizens, were aboard the flight.

They were identified as Alleekutty Job, 42, and her daughter Teena, 14, from Tonawanda, N.Y.; Pulivelli K. Jacob, 43, his wife Alleekutty, 42, and three children from Canton Township, Mich.; Rajeshwar Gupta, his wife Swatantra, and two children, from Anderson Township, Ohio; and Prabha Reddy, 35, of North Tonawanda, N.Y.

Flight 182 originated in Toronto, flew to Montreal and was headed for London en route to New Delhi and Bombay.

In Montreal, police removed three "suspicious" pieces of luggage before the flight took off. Ministry of Transport spokeswoman Jacqueline Richard said after the crash. She said bomb-sniffing dogs had barked at the

Bags from Canadian airliner explode at Tokyo's airport

By SHIGEYOSHI KIMURA
The Associated Press

TOKYO — Baggage from a Canadian airliner exploded at Tokyo's international airport Sunday, killing two luggage handlers, police said. Canadian authorities called the blast a "terrorist bombing."

Police said a blast ripped through a Narita baggage-handling room about 40 minutes after Canadian Pacific Flight 003 arrived with 350 people at the airport 40 miles northeast of Tokyo.

There were no injuries among the passengers on the Boeing 747 jumbo jet, but two baggage handlers were killed and four were injured. An estimated 7,000 people were believed to be in the terminal at the time of the blast, police said.

A police official said Japan would ask Canadian authorities to investigate in Toronto, where the Canadian Pacific flight originated.

In Ottawa, Joe Clark, the foreign minister, condemned what he called the "terrorist bombing," and issued a statement that said: "An explosive appears to have been included in baggage coming off CP flight 003 originating in Vancouver."

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police and other authorities were in contact with officials from India, Britain, Ireland and Japan concerning the explosion in Japan and the crash of Ireland, Canadian officials said.

Peter Golding, a spokesman for Canadian Pacific airlines, declined comment on security-related matters. The Japanese police official, who asked not to be identified, said Japan wanted to know how the baggage was loaded, and would also seek help from Interpol, the international clearinghouse for law enforcement information.

Asked about reports that the explosion at Narita was triggered by a time bomb, Masafumi Eble, spokesman for the airport police, said: "So far we have not found any time-bomb equipment among the debris."

Eble said the six workers apparently were unloading luggage from four containers that were beside a conveyor that carries baggage to arriving passengers.

He said one of the destroyed containers had no luggage left in it, the second was partly empty, and the remaining two were full. The walls, ceiling and sprinkler system of the room were damaged by the explosion.

The Canadian Pacific flight touched down at 2:40 p.m. (11:40 p.m. MDT) with 274 passengers and a crew of 16, the official said, and the explosion ripped through the baggage room at 3:20 p.m. (12:20 a.m. MDT).

The plane had landed at Narita five minutes early and the bomb could easily have caused the plane to blow up en route if it had been held back by

Israel plans to release 31 Lebanese but Shiites vow to hold Americans

By JOHN EDLIN
The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Israel said Sunday it plans to release 31 Lebanese prisoners, but Shiite Moslems said they would not budge from their vow to hold 40 American hijack hostages until Israel frees all the Lebanese it now holds.

Israeli officials said the liberation of the 31, to take place Monday, was not intended as part of a deal with the sky pirates, who commandeered a TWA flight from Athens, Greece with 153 people aboard June 14 and killed one passenger.

But Israeli sources said it was intended to provide an opening to end the impasse in the 10-day-old hostage crisis.

The head of the leading Shiite militia, however, spurned the Israeli

"I want the 700 plus," Nabih Berri, leader of the Shiite Moslem Amal militia and negotiator for the hijackers, said in a CBS News interview from Beirut.

Israel holds 766 Lebanese prisoners, the majority of them Shiite Moslems captured in south Lebanon during its three-year occupation.

A Swiss Foreign Ministry official said Sunday that Berri informed the Swiss foreign minister, Pierre Aubert, last Thursday that he had agreed "in principle" to a Swiss plea to free the 40 Americans, but asked for "the freeing of a certain number of Lebanese Shiite prisoners" by Israel. There was no word on whether the moves by Israel and the Swiss were linked.

A spokesman for Berri told The Associated Press, "There is no guarantee what Israel says, it will do. . . . We have to continue our pressure to get our men freed." He spoke on condition he was not identified.

Israeli Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin announced the release of the Lebanese on the CBS "Face the Nation" program broadcast Sunday from Washington.

Rabin, speaking from Tel Aviv, said the government had worked out an agreement with the International Red Cross, and that the Israeli Cabinet approved it on Sunday.

The Israeli defense minister said the release was not in reaction to the Senate considers loosening limits on firearms, dealers

By EVANS WITT
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Legislation to slash federal limits on firearms and gun dealers faces the Senate this week, with supporters saying the move would remedy "the more egregious abuses" of current law but opponents calling it a nightmare and a killer.

The measure sponsored by Sen. Jim McClure, R-Idaho, and Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., would make sweeping changes in the 1968 Gun Control Act, which put strict limits on interstate sales of guns and required extensive record-keeping by gun dealers.

The gun control measure is due on the Senate floor Monday, unless supporters and opponents can reach an agreement limiting debate and putting the bill off until next month.

The measure could hold the Senate's attention for the week, since gun control is always a hotly argued issue.

"The ones who bear the brunt of this law are not necessarily the most dangerous criminals," McClure said when his bill was introduced earlier this year to "correct some of the more egregious abuses" in the law.

"The ones who have been harassed by the enforcement of this act are often innocent men and women who have bought their paperwork," he said. "While genuine criminals are still too often let loose on the streets, these law-abiding gun owners and dealers have had their property unconstitutionally seized and held and their lives and businesses ruined."

But opponents say the bill is dangerous. "It just wipes out the kind of federal control we need," said Barbara Laitman, communications director of Handgun Control, a pro-control lobby. The group says the bill is the first step toward total repeal of the 1968 law, passed in the wake of the assassinations of Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr. The Washington Post, in an editorial headlined "Warning: S.49 is a killer," called the bill "a nightmare for law enforcement authorities" and a truly dangerous piece of legislation.

The bill would allow gun dealers to sell firearms to out-of-state residents as long as the sale complies with the laws of the distant state. Currently, interstate sales of handguns with barrels less than three inches long are banned while sales of rifles and shotguns to an out-of-state resident are cumbersome but possible.

It would also allow people to transport firearms — unloaded and out of reach — through any state, for example on a hunting trip. In at least 20 states, there are legal restrictions on transportation of firearms that would be wiped out by the bill.

The measure would require criminal intent on the part of a gun dealer before a person could be convicted of violating the statute. And a gun dealer could plead "simple carelessness" for failing to meet the law's requirements and escape conviction. The National Troopers Coalition, an organization of state police officers, called the bill "a danger to the law enforcement community." And the International Association of Police Chiefs and the Police Executive Research Forum have called for changes.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has been the main roadblock to similar legislation in years past, stalling the measures in the Senate Judiciary Committee. The bills proposed in previous years "opened gaping holes in the laws of the states," said Jerry Tinker, a Republican lawmaker. This time, the bill was put directly on the Senate calendar without going to the Judiciary Committee.

Tinker said negotiations have made progress toward dealing with some of opponents' problems, particularly in focusing the relaxation of regulations on firearms used for sport, like rifles and shotguns, and keeping limits on handguns.

Officials checking into links between Sunday crash, blast

By CHARLES CAMPBELL
The Associated Press

TORONTO — Officials said Sunday they were investigating possible links between the crash of an Air-India jet in the North Atlantic and an explosion at Tokyo airport, both involving flights that originated in Canada.

Foreign Minister Joe Clark issued a statement Sunday afternoon about the events and called the Tokyo explosion a "terrorist bombing." He offered sympathy to the families of the victims and said government agencies were "actively" investigating.

A Foreign Office spokeswoman, Delys Hilly-Jones, asked "If authorities were checking possible connections, said, 'That's obviously something they're looking at,' but declined further comment.

Sean Brady, a spokesman for Clark, said Indian officials asked for additional security for Indian diplomats and Air-India flights about a month ago, without explaining why.

"The Indian government did request increased protection and did receive it," Brady said. He said investigators were not "at this moment" treating the events as linked because the flights originated in different Canadian cities — Toronto and Vancouver — and because no group had claimed responsibility.

"The police said a blast ripped through Narita International Airport Sunday, killing two luggage-handlers and injuring four others as they checked baggage originating from Vancouver. They said the explosion at the luggage-handling room occurred about 15 minutes after a Canadian Pacific flight arrived with 390 people aboard.

The explosion occurred about a half-hour before the Air-India plane plummeted from about 31,000 feet into the water.

Asked about reports the explosion was triggered by a bomb, Masafumi

Ebibe, spokesman for the Tokyo airport said: "So far we have not found any time-bomb among the debris."

Clark said in a statement: "An explosive appears to have been included in baggage coming off CP Flight 003 originating in Vancouver."

Most of the Air-India passenger were thought to be Canadians of Indian origin.

"We are absolutely shocked and dazed," said Sunder Kumar, a spokesman for the Indian High Commission in Ottawa. "So many innocent lives lost."

A memorial service for victims of the crash was set for Saturday at Toronto City Hall.

David Austin, a spokesman for the government agency Transport Canada in Ottawa, said security would be increased on all international flights leaving Canadian airports, including a check of all luggage by X-ray and dogs trained to sniff out explosives.

Incidents jolt airlines around world

NEW YORK (AP) — The crash of an Air India jumbo jet, the hijacking of TWA Flight 847, an explosion at Tokyo's airport, a bombing at the Frankfurt airport, and the hijacking of a Norwegian airliner on a domestic flight have given the airline industry a shock, officials said Sunday.

"I don't recall a period of time of 6 to 9 days when we've had this number of diverse... events occur," said Jerry Cosley, a spokesman for TWA in New York. "It's extraordinary," he said.

"I have many friends in the airlines, and they're all kind of rocked by this," said Dr. Hans Krakauer, senior vice president of the 105,000-member International Airline Passenger Association based in Rotterdam, Holland.

"The world has had a pretty bad week," summed up Daniel Henken, a spokesman for the Air Transport Association in Washington that represents scheduled airlines in the United States.

Cosley said if the airline industry could find a common denominator among the incidents, it might be able to develop a code of conduct. Unfortunately, he said, it can find no connection.

head winds, a common circumstance on westbound trans-Pacific air routes, airport officials said.

Japan's Kyodo News Service said police were investigating whether the explosives were planted by terrorists or by someone trying to collect inurance money.

Officials detained all passengers and crew from Flight 003 for questioning at the airport and delayed the takeoff of Canadian Pacific Air's return flight to Vancouver for more than two hours while extensive security checks were made out on the plane and baggage.

Stanley Walczak of Springfield, Mass., who arrived on a different flight, said he was passing through customs at Narita when he heard the explosion and police rushed in. He said police checked the passports of passengers leaving the airport by luggage and it had triggered metal detectors. But Mirabel Airport officials said later that the dogs had not reacted, so the bags weren't opened immediately.

They were checked several hours after the crash, said Rubin Ginzburg, general manager of Canadian airports. But no explosives or weapons were found in them, only an iron and a radio, he said. "It in fact it was a bomb" (that caused the plane to crash), it could have come from Toronto," he said.

About 40 minutes after the Air-India plane crashed, a bomb exploded at Tokyo's international airport in baggage from a Canadian Pacific Air flight from Vancouver. Two baggage handlers were killed and four others injured. "There may be linkage between the two," said Gehlot.

More than 12 hours after the crash, a young male with a foreign accent called The New York Times, and said he was a member of the Sikh Student Federation and on behalf of his group, he was claiming responsibility for the bomb that went off, according to news assistant Patricia Ocker.

She said the man, told her: "The group did it to protest Hindu imperialism." Hindus are the majority in India and Sikhs a minority.

But Canadian Press quoted a young male with a foreign accent called The New York Times, and said he was a member of the Sikh Student Federation in Vancouver as saying the organization no longer existed. "It's all baloney," said Monmohan Singh. "Anyone can call and say something like that."

Meanwhile, the United States, Br-tain, Ireland and Iceland sent scores of ships, planes and helicopters to the crash site, 120 miles southwest of the Irish coast.

Bodies were recovered from the chilly sea, helicopters lifted some to Cork Airport, 170 miles away. Others picked up by passing ships were being taken to Plymouth and other ports in southern England.

"At Cork, an Irish army honor guard assembled as 12 bodies, wrapped in blankets, were carried from a Royal Air Force rescue helicopter.

"Every one of them I have seen is shattered or burned," said one British official who declined to be identified. "I have never seen anything like it. Some of the lads are near to tears."

Joe Kerin, chief controller of Ireland's Marine Rescue Coordination Center, initially said the airplane's "black box" flight recorder containing cockpit conversations and information on the last moments of the flight had been found, emitting a beeping radio transmission. But he said Sunday night: "It has not been positively identified."

Kerin said the plane crashed in water 5,418 feet deep. Asked if it was possible to recover the box at that depth he replied: "I understand it can be done. The British Transport Department said a locator ship had been chartered to look for the recorder, and after being outfitted, would leave Plymouth on Tuesday.

A British Nimrod surveillance plane first spotted the wreckage. A Defense Ministry spokesman in London said the pilot saw "life rafts, but they were not inflated."

Debris in chunks no bigger than the square feet was strewn in an oval five miles wide, according to a British rescue helicopter pilot. A mile-long oil slick snaked through the wreckage.

The flight was cruising at 31,000 feet and was one hour, 40 minutes away from London's Heathrow Airport when air controllers in Shannon lost sight of it on radar. The time was 8:13 a.m. (11:13 a.m. MDT).

Minutes later, two jets nearby picked up an electronic distress signal of the type that triggers automatically when a plane hits water.

Hugh J. Connor, spokesman for the Shannon regional traffic control center, said Flight 182 checked in at 8:07 a.m. (1:07 a.m. MDT) and was given clearance to proceed to London. Winds were moderate, visibility was four miles and there was a light drizzle, he said.

Six minutes later, O'Connor said, "He just vanished off the scope."

"Immediately he was called and there was no reply. There was no indication from the aircraft, no indication from his equipment, anything was wrong. At this point in time, it is a complete mystery."

One puzzle is that Hans E. Narendra, 57, described by Air-India as one of its best pilots with 25 years of experience, did not radio a distress signal. On a Boeing 747, the pilot can do that by voice or with a button under his thumb on the control column, even if all generator power is out, said British aviation expert David Learmonth.

Sunday's crash was the fourth for Air-India, the worst for the national carrier.

Today's weather Thundershowers possible over area

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding.

Thundershowers at times today, decreasing tonight. Highs 70 to 75. Lows near 40. Tuesday mostly sunny. Highs 70.

Idaho Falls, Pocatello, Lewiston, Wood River Valley.

Cooler today and partly cloudy, with a slight chance of showers in the north and west. Highs 65 to 70. Lows near 30. Tuesday sunny and with a little warm weather. Highs 70 to 75. Lows near 40.

Northern Utah and Nevada:

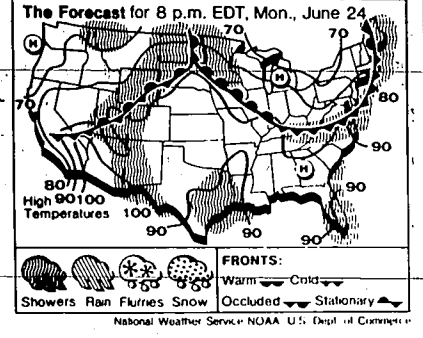

Utah: Widely scattered thundershowers and windy today. Thundershowers decreasing later tonight and cooler. Much cool Tuesday with partly cloudy skies and a few lingering showers. Lows Monday night in the upper 40s and 50s. Highs in the mid 60s to near 100 today and 75 to 90 Tuesday.

Nevada: Partly cloudy and cooler today with scattered thundershowers east. A slight chance of showers near the north border. Much cooler Tuesday. Mostly sunny west and partly cloudy east Tuesday. Highs Monday mid 60s and Tuesday 70 to 80. Lows tonight mid 40s to mid 40s.

Synopsis:

Moisture was forecast to enter Idaho with a chance of showers in the north to the south as expected to have a slight chance of showers or thundershowers over the mountains, the National Weather Service said.

Overnight low temperatures were again mostly in the 40s and 50s with the higher elevations dipping into the 30s Sunday. The warmest temperature in the state Sunday was 91 at Hagerman and the lowest reported was 29 degrees at Stanley.

The extended forecast through Friday is for dry weather Wednesday and Thursday with a slight chance of showers on Friday. Highs from the upper 70s to low 80s Wednesday, warming to 80s and low 90s Thursday and Friday. Lows in the 40s Wednesday and 50s through the rest of the period.

The agricultural weather forecast today through Friday indicates low pressure system moving across British Columbia has brought cooler and windy weather to northern Idaho. By today, variable clouds, gusty winds and a slight chance of showers will spread southward over the remainder of the state. High pressure will bring dry and warmer weather Wednesday and Thursday. A slight chance of showers will return Friday. Temperatures will average below normal for the period.

Conditions for field work and hay cutting in Southern Idaho will be only fair through Tuesday, but should improve once again Wednesday and Thursday. Total rainfall over the next five days will be less than 1/2 inch from showers mainly today. Daily pan evaporation rates will drop about 10 inch today, and then show a slow rise Tuesday through Friday. Winds for spraying will be mostly westerly from between 15 and 25 mph today.

hijackers' demands, but only in accordance with the "security situation in southern Lebanon."

Israel's Aviv, the Israeli Army spokesman's office said that some of the 31 prisoners to be released were Shillites, but it did not know how many. Among the 766 captives are Palestinians, Christians, Druse and Sunni Muslims.

Conditions in Jerusalem who spoke on condition they not be identified said Israel decided on the gesture to provide "a test case" for Berri, who agreed a week ago to negotiate on behalf of Shiite hijackers who seized the TWA Boeing 727 on an Athens-Rome flight.

The Israelis want to see if Berri is in control of the situation and provide the United States with room to maneuver, said the sources.

Israel officials have said the release of the 766, arrested for allegedly planning or carrying out attacks on Israeli soldiers in southern Lebanon, was planned as part of the Israeli disengagement from Lebanon. But they have resisted releasing them in a deal that could be viewed as caving in to terrorism.

The 40 hostages are the remaining crew and passengers from the flight. One American was shot dead by the hijackers and the others released.

Berri's Amal militia holds some of the 40 Americans, but others are believed held by more extreme Shiite factions.

Edouard Brunner, state secretary in the Swiss Foreign Ministry, said Berri had concurred with a Swiss plea to free the 40 hostages for humanitarian reasons.

He said Berri told the Swiss foreign minister by telephone Thursday that "he agreed in principle to (release the hostages) but he requested the freeing of a certain number of Lebanese Shiite prisoners" by Israel.

Brunner said the Swiss foreign minister, Aubert, relayed the message to Israel and the United States.

Berri's independent an-Nahar newspaper said a four-point plan that emerged from diplomatic activity in Austria, Lebanon, Switzerland, Syria and the United States during the last four days might provide a solution to the crisis.

Storms, hail hit Midwest

Hail the size of golf balls pelted parts of Iowa and Illinois on Sunday as thundershowers carrying gusty winds and heavy rain developed across the Midwest.

A cold front ahead of the storms extended from northern Lower Michigan to central Nebraska.

Hail and strong winds were reported over portions of eastern Iowa, with golf ball-sized hail hitting Clinton and Lowden, Iowa, and Tremont, Ill. Smaller hail fell on other communities in Iowa and Illinois.

Wind gusts to 75 mph were recorded at Ottumwa, Iowa.

Large hail also fell across parts of northern and central Illinois, including western portions of the Chicago metropolitan area, the National Weather Service said.

Thunderstorm winds reached 58 mph at Geneva, Ill., and around 50 mph at Rockford, Ill., Iowa City, Iowa, and Gary, Ind., the weather service said. Some trees were damaged.

Thousands flee toxic fumes

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — A fire at a pesticide plant burned out of control Sunday, spewing toxic fumes, injuring nine people and forcing 1,000 others to evacuate homes and businesses, authorities said. The blaze was "potentially critical, potentially dangerous," said Art York, an Orange County fire department spokesman.

Among chemicals stored at the burning plant were organophosphates, carbamates and methyl bromide, said Mike Doly, an Anaheim fire department spokesman. The fire caused pressurized tanks of methyl bromide to swell.

"They're trying to decide what we can do to put it out without killing our people," Doly said.

Firefighters mounted three assaults on the blaze that broke out at the Larry-Fricker Co. late Saturday, said Doly. After twice spraying the burning chemicals with water, firefighters attempted to fill the "boiling with foam," but the fire continued to burn, he said.

Slayer leaves prison today

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Abdul Aziz, one of three men convicted of the 1965 assassination of Malcolm X, becomes a free man Monday after serving a few months more than the minimum 20-year sentence imposed for the murder.

Aziz was scheduled to be paroled from the Arthur Kill Correctional Facility on Staten Island. The state Parole Board reversed an earlier decision not to set him free after a dispute over how the parole hearing was decided.

Aziz, 46, has maintained his innocence throughout his imprisonment.

At age 39, Malcolm X was shot to death in Manhattan in a February 1965 during a meeting with his supporters. One of ten leading spokesmen for the Black Muslims, Malcolm X broke with the group and formed a rival organization in 1964.

Neither the prison nor state corrections officials would reveal the time that Aziz was to be released.

Funeral for Radelat today

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A funeral service was set Monday for Alberto Radelat, one of two Americans police believe were killed after they walked into a restaurant in Mexico where a reputed drug lord was giving a party.

Radelat, 32, was reported missing Jan. 31 after he failed to make a flight from Guadalajara, Mexico to Dallas-Fort Worth, Texas. His parents began a search that ended last week in a morgue in Guadalajara.

There, the bodies of Radelat and his 36-year-old companion, John Walker, of Minneapolis, were identified. Authorities said they had been tortured before they were killed.

Fugitive sought in lake area

ELY, Minn. (AP) — Federal investigators say the fugitive convicted of killing Dr. Michael Halberstam may be in northern Minnesota and planning to escape into Canada.

The U.S. Forest Service put up wanted posters for Bernard C. Welch, 46, in visitors' centers in the 1 million acres of forest, lakes and rivers that make up the Boundary Waters Canoe Area. The area is used by 30,000 to 100,000 campers a year. Wanted posters for fugitive Hugh Colomb, 31, were also put up.

Welch and Colomb escaped from a federal prison in Chicago last month. Welch was serving 144 years for burglary and the slaying of Halberstam in Washington, D.C. Colomb was serving a 48-year sentence for murder and armed robbery.

Gasoline prices rise slightly

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The average price of a gallon of gasoline rose a quarter of a cent during the past two weeks, continuing a climb that started in February, oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg said Sunday.

Motorsists are paying almost $1.24 for an average gallon of gas, nearly 10 cents more than they were paying in February when the average price was about $1.14 a gallon, said Lundberg, who surveys 17,900 service stations in 50 states every two weeks.

During Lundberg's latest survey, the average price of a gallon of regular leaded gasoline at self-service pumps was nearly $1.12, regular unleaded was almost $1.20 a gallon and premium unleaded was almost $1.32 a gallon. About 75 percent of all gasoline sales are at self-serve pumps.

"This latest two-week increase has occurred in spite of widely reported declines in the international and domestic price postings for crude oil," he said.

Navy knaps of Walker's record

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — The Navy knew when it granted a security clearance to John A. Walker Jr., a former Navy communications specialist who is accused of leading a Soviet spy ring, that he had a criminal record, a newspaper reports.

Walker, then 17, and another 17-year-old were convicted of four burglaries in 1955 and were placed on probation, the Scranton Times reported Sunday.

Juvenile court records show that a Navy intelligence officer, Milo A. Bauerly, checked Walker's file on April 6, 1964, the newspaper said.

That was around the time Walker was cleared by the Navy to handle military secrets and about two years before the FBI now says he began passing those secrets to the Soviet Union.

Olympia's drinking water best

WASHINGTON (AP) — For an hour the judges sniffed and sipped from crystal goblets before declaring Olympia, Wash., the winner Sunday in a taste-testing of drinking water from eight U.S. and Canadian cities.

Boston emerged second while Honolulu took third place in the competition sponsored by the American Water Works Association.

Also-rans in the competition — not assigned rank order after the top three winners — were Atlanta; New Orleans; St. Paul, Minn.; Washington and Ottawa, Canada.

Saudi suggests far-out look at world

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL, The Associated Press

PRINCE SULTAN SALMAN sees borders disappear

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — As the crew of Discovery packed up Sunday to return from "an extremely successful flight," the shuttle's Saudi-Arabian passenger suggested Earth's problems could be solved if troublemakers saw the world from space without its national boundaries.

"Looking at it from here," said Prince Sultan Salman Al-Saud, "the troubles all over the world and not just the Middle East look very strange as you see the boundaries and border lines disappearing."

The shuttle was to end its seven-day mission with a 6:12 a.m. PDT landing Monday on the desert runway at Edwards Air Force Base in California. It will have circled the Earth 111 times, a trip of 2.9 million miles.

On hand to meet the shuttle will be 10 Saudi Arabian princes, including four brothers of Sultan.

The astronauts were so far ahead of schedule for tidying up the cabin that Mission Control granted their request for an extra hour's sleep in the morning.

"They certainly deserve the rest after such an extremely successful flight," said flight director Milton Heflin.

Moments before the ship ended the trouble-free of the 18 to date, with only a few secondary problems on the spacecraft.

On their last day aloft, the astronauts held a news conference with reporters in Houston. It was dominated by questions directed at Sultan and French test pilot Patrick Baudry; astronauts John Fabian, Nagel and John Creighton did not speak at all, and Mrs. Lucid very little.

The crew had been told by NASA teleprinter message to expect only questions about the flight, but a reporter brought up the troubles in the Middle East, "since 40 Americans are still being held hostage by Shiite (Muslim) radicals."

"If I knew the answer to that, I think I'd probably stay in space and solve more problems," said the 28-year-old prince, a nephew of Saudi Arabia's King Fahd.

"Lots of people who are involved in causing the problems ought to come up here and take a look," he said.

Before the news conference, Sultan spoke with the king, who sent best wishes to the crew and to President Reagan.

"Thank you, sir, for your call," said Sultan. "I hope that this may be a good deed for Islam, Muslims and the Arab nation."

A telephone hookup between Baudry and an official of the French government did not work.

Baudry, a French test pilot doing medical experiments on Discovery, told reporters that he had taken wine aboard — but not to drink; only to test for any changes caused by space flight.

"It's a very good wine and I test it again when we come back and we see if there is some change in the taste of the wine," Baudry said. "I hope in the future the American crews and the other crews will be able to bring wine and cognac and things that are very good, not only for the Earth, but also for the good humor and the good quality of the work."

Commander Dan Brandenstein was asked to sum up the accomplishments of the mission. "In English, French and Arabic."

"The answer to the last one is no," said Brandenstein.

Reagan says military action in Beirut is out

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Sunday he has ruled out a military response to gain release of the U.S. hostages in Beirut and declined to draw any connection between Israel's promise to free 31 Shiite Muslim prisoners and the release of the American hostages.

Reagan, in his first public response to the announcement by Israeli Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin that 31 prisoners would be released on Monday, also refused to characterize the Israeli action as a positive sign.

99th orbit, Mission Control announced that the 100th was named the "Nagel Orbital," in honor of Discovery astronaut Steve Nagel, who is the 100th American in space. Nagel's seat during the shuttle's climb to space was three inches behind Shannon Lucid's.

The flight was one of the most at home, on June 14.

Reagan stressed the Israeli decision was "a matter of Israeli law ... It has nothing to do with our hostages." Rabin said the 31 are being released because they have appeared their detention and under Israeli law, must be let go.

Reagan refused to answer any questions on whether progress had been made in obtaining the release of the 40 Americans, saying: "I'm not going to speculate, I'm just going to say we're just doing everything that can be done."

Reagan added that "a number of countries" have volunteered to be of help if they can, but he refused to elaborate, saying only that he was appreciative of the gesture.

Asked what the next step would be, Reagan refused to comment, saying, "You know we don't make those things public."

In a news conference Tuesday night, Reagan said any U.S. attempt to retaliate probably would result in the deaths of Americans.

Earlier Sunday, Secretary of State George P. Shultz warned that no one should underestimate Reagan's ability to handle the Beirut hostage crisis, calling him "very tough and determined, especially where he sees the lives and interests of America at stake."

"I'm not going to comment one way or another on that, because we have avoided the idea of linkage there," Reagan told reporters after returning from the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md. "There is none."

But asked whether he had ruled out a military response to gain the hostages' release, Reagan answered: "Yes."

The president said Nabih Bertt, the head-of-the-Shiite militia that has taken responsibility for the American captives, "seems to be the only one" that is linking the release of the U.S. hostages and the release of the more than 75 Arab prisoners, most of them Shiites, that are being held by Israel.

Their release is a key demand of the hijackers who took the U.S. hostages after commandeering a TWA jet enroute from Athens, Greece, to

Power primary objective

BEAVER CREEK, Colo. (AP) — America will be left helpless unless it begins to understand that groups like the Shiite Muslims holding 40 Americans hostage are more interested in power than in wealth, said former U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick.

Although many leaders measure success through growth and production, "the Ayatollah Khomeini and Col. Khadafi have very different goals. So do the Soviets," Ms. Kirkpatrick said in an interview Saturday with the Coloradoan during the fourth annual World Forum here.

"In almost any situation, they prefer power to wealth. And expanding their power is usually their goal. I think that's clearly the goal of the perpetrators of this hijacking (in Lebanon). . . . If we don't understand their goals and their methods, then we're going to be quite helpless," said Ms. Kirkpatrick, a senior fellow at the American Enterprise Institute, one of the World Forum's sponsors.

Also at the forum were former President Gerald Ford and past leaders of Great Britain, West Germany, France and Australia. They issued a statement Saturday supporting President Reagan's rejection to make concessions to the hijackers.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, also at the World Forum, said the United States should not "give in to the hijackers' demand for the release of more than 700 prisoners held by Israel."

"You cannot grab 50 Americans, kill one of them, beat up others, humiliate them, put their families through all this anguish, and then ask an American ally to have their demands met," he said Saturday.

Drug enforcement bill needs scrutiny

The rule in our society — a fundamental and distinctive feature of our system — is that the military should not be used to enforce the law. That limiting tradition is as important to the military as to citizens concerned with civil liberties. The few familiar exceptions come in times of great duress: to patrol after natural disasters, to put down riots, the occasional use of troops in the 1950s and 1960s to enforce civil rights.

Now there is talk of a new exception: expanded use of the military to block drug traffic into the country, particularly from Latin America. Adm. James D. Watkins, chief of naval operations, reports that the Joint Chiefs of Staff have unanimously recommended it. If the producing countries were willing, the services would help them train teams and lend or sell them equipment to suppress production. U.S. planes and ships would also step up surveillance — the services already do some, as adjuncts to the Coast Guard — to block the shipment of drugs. "It could be a rallying point for this hemisphere," the admiral said.

It is a tempting idea. Drugs are a curse, and our law-enforcement agencies lack the resources to do much more than nick the trade. It would help enormously to have the military — and foreign governments — actively on their side. The dollar cost to the military would be relatively low. The surveillance would be good exercise; presumably it would not be allowed to detract from other military missions.

The problem would be to keep it that simple. Drug interdiction should not be intertwined with other issues. Adm. Watkins suggested the drug trade was helping to finance leftist insurgencies in the hemisphere, making the trade "a national security problem" and so a legitimate target for the military. There is no need for that kind of coloring; the drug trade is bad enough on its own. Whatever the military is asked to do about drugs ought to be kept separate from what is asked to do in other areas.

A second complication involves what the military would do. The chiefs would have the military act only as a kind of spotter for law-enforcement agencies. Others think the Navy should actually stop, search and seize; a pending amendment to the defense bill in the House would empower it to do so. That, too, is tempting, but the proposal has not been thought through. Against whom would the military use force, under what rules, in what places, on what legal grounds? Good answers are needed before Congress votes. The reason the amendment is attractive is that the military is so powerful. That is also precisely the reason why the military is so sparingly used in this country.

Tax plan may 'strike out' at sports fans

Stephen B. Hitchner Jr.

Holy Toledo! Could tax reform destroy professional sports? That specter is being raised by sports officials and team owners who are alarmed by President Reagan's tax-reform plan, which would abolish the deduction for business entertainment. Such entertainment includes attending sports events — long a favored way to entertain clients and other business associates. In fact, sports officials estimate that roughly half of all tickets to professional football, baseball, basketball and hockey games are bought by corporations or individuals for business-related entertainment.

And tickets are only part of the story. Much business entertaining at sports events is far more lavish than anything that the average fan ever experiences. Consider these examples reported recently in Common Cause magazine:

- Air-conditioned "crown suites" at Texas Stadium are leased to businesses and individuals who use them to entertain clients and associates at Dallas Cowboys games. The cost of each suite: $30,000 to $125,000 annually.
- Rooney Arledge, president of ABC News, reportedly chartered a jet for $250,000 to fly corporate executives and friends to the Super Bowl in San Francisco last January.
- Businesses buy 95 percent of the box-seat tickets for the tennis Tournament of Champions at Forest Hills. Each four-seat box costs $1,000 for the tournament, and many of the businesses also host catered parties in tents adjacent to the tennis stadium.

All of these expenses are legally deductible under the present tax code, as long as the entertainment is business-related. That deduction saves a corporation or top-bracket individual taxpayer roughly 50 cents for each $1 that is spent on entertainment — in effect, a subsidy that other taxpayers have to make up by paying more.

Treasury Department officials say that the entertainment deduction encourages excessive spending and unfairly allows a limited number of taxpayers "to indulge personal entertainment desires while at work or in the company of business associates." As they point out, "The cost of tickets to a sporting event for friends of a business person is deductible if they are business associates, but the cost of tickets for friends of a secretary, sales clerk or nurse must be paid for with after-tax dollars."

Not surprisingly, many sports officials see things much differently. They claim that eliminating the entertainment deduction would threaten the finances of professional sports and hurt the average fan.

"It'll be a disaster," says Lee MacPhail, director of the major-league baseball Players Relations Committee. "We've already got big financial problems here. We can't afford to lose any business."

According to Lawrence Lucchino, vice president of the Baltimore Orioles, "The facts are obvious: that the administration's proposal is potentially devastating to a number of clubs." Peter V. Ueberwirth, the commissioner of major-league baseball, warns that ticket prices are likely to rise if businesses cut back on their purchases of season tickets. And Eugene D. Orza, counselor to the Major League Baseball Players Association, says that "people who now pay $8 for a ticket could well end up paying $10, or even more."

Good try, fellows, but the public is increasingly skeptical, as it should be, that generous tax breaks for the well-to-do are necessary to help people at the low end of the income scale. The "trickle-down" rationale is about worn out.

In the first place it's not clear that ticket prices will go up if fewer tickets are bought for business-entertainment purposes. After all, sports teams can't raise their ticket prices with impunity or they will begin losing their customers to other forms of entertainment. If the teams' ticket revenues begin to fall, they may instead have to cut back on their costs — like some of those astronomical salaries, for example.

But even if ticket prices end up being higher for the average fan, that wouldn't be all bad. With fewer business customers taking up the prime seats, maybe the average fan could get a bit closer to the action and not be excluded to the end zone or the outfield bleachers. And in cities such as Washington, where every Redskins game is sold out to season-ticket holders, more fans might finally be able to see a live game if the lobbyists and the law firms gave up some of their seats.

Moreover, it's hard to argue that federal taxpayers should continue to subsidize ticket prices, even for low-income fans, at a time when Food Stamps, Medicaid, student loans and other programs for the poor are being drastically cut. Spectator sports may be important, but they don't outrank food, medical care or education as a worthy object for public support.

There's nothing like a tax-reform proposal to uncover who's really being subsidized by the government. Professional sports are a fine American institution, but they don't warrant a handout at the taxpayer's expense. Let's get them off the federal dole.

Berri, as chief hostage negotiator, thrown into no-win spot

G.H. Jansen

NICOSIA, Cyprus — It was understandable that the hijackers of the TWA plane turned to Nabh Berri, a political leader and a lawyer, to do the talking for them.

Berri, Lebanon's minister of justice and leader of the Shia Amal militia, could not but agree with the hijackers' objective: the liberation of the 766 Shia prisoners in Israel.

While Berri has received a great deal of publicity, especially in the West, the hijackers did not give him the task in order to build him up but rather to bring him down: He has been handed the proverbial poisoned chalice.

Because of universal disapproval of his role in Amal's attack on the Palestinian camps in Beirut, Berri stands alone and friendless, even in his own community. The attack on the camps, starting May 19, has brought about a startling change in the Shias' position within the power structure of the Muslim communities in Lebanon. Until then the Shias were consolidating their undoubted supremacy over the two other Muslim communities, the Druse and the Sunnis. The Druse were the Shia's firm military and political allies; on April 16 the Druse and the signals. The Sunni Moslems of West Beirut were increasingly irritated by the bullying behavior of the various Shia militias and still smarting after Marbutoun's defeat; Amal, as the largest group, was held responsible for all Shia excesses.

In the days following May 19, the Islamic roof fell on Berri's head. Perhaps because of the ill will already caused by the Shia domination of West Beirut, the attack on the camps was seen as a Sunni-Shia confrontation: All the attackers were Shia; the Palestinian defenders were 90 percent Sunnis. Every Arab League country — and they are all Sunni regimes — condemned the attack. So did the Iranian government, which has never had much regard for Berri, whose primary loyalty is to Lebanon rather than Shism.

What was left of the Maraboutism promptly began fighting alongside the Palestinians. The Druse broke away from the Amal alliance to give the Palestinians all the help they could, short of fighting, and some Druse did that, too: There was a short, fierce Amal-Druse clash in Beirut June 11.

Having antagonized the Lebanese Sunnis and Druse, Berri and Amal were then banished from within their own community by the clerics and the young armed militants. On May 19, Hezbollah condemned the camp attack because "we have turned our arms against our brothers." The three leading Shia clerics said, "No one has the legal authority to prevent anyone fighting Israel." Four weeks after the camp attacks began, with the unified Palestinian groups still fighting, Berri and Amal were baffled, humiliated and thoroughly isolated. Little wonder that in mid-June they had to accept a cease-fire and a 12-point peace plan imposed by Syria.

Just as the criticism of Berri and Amal was rising to a crescendo, Berri was asked by the militant young hijackers to mediate in the hijacking crisis, which began June 14. It was an offer Berri should have refused. If he accepted in the belief that it would distract attention from and somehow compensate for his mistaken decision to attack the camps, then he was even more mistaken. If he gets the Shia prisoners out of Israel, the main credit will go to the hijackers who captured the plane, and Berri will have put himself in the wrong with the United States and Israel. If he fails and the Shias are not released, his position as a Lebanese Shia leader will be weakened and perhaps destroyed. If he gives up the task and hands the Americans back to the hijackers, Berri will still be held responsible for the consequences, as President Reagan said, and will be a target for American "retribution." Berri may be trapped in a no-win situation.

If Berri's gamble fails and he is brought down — by his mistake in attacking the camps, by the insoluble contradictions of the hijacking crisis — that will, in the long run, be a bad thing for Lebanon. The Shias have at last established themselves as the largest and the leading Lebanese community — nothing can change that now. So the recognized Shia leader will affect the future of the whole of Lebanon: And despite his recent serious blunders, Berri remains the best Shia Lebanese has.

Republicans, Democrats gearing up for 1986 Senate battle

Quane Kenyon

BOISE — The expected battle between Republican Gov. John Evans and incumbent Democratic Sen. Max Baucus for the U.S. Senate makes Idaho a state of importance in the 1986 elections.

That's why both political parties are starting major training sessions now, months before their campaigns gear up in earnest.

A major Republican campaign management school was held in Boise last week. Evans will face the election 16 months away. It was filled to capacity with 140 persons paying $85 a head. Others were turned away.

The Democrats aren't idle. On Oct. 10, they will hold a similar session at Sun Valley, under sponsorship of the Western Caucus of the Democratic National Committee and an associate of state chairman.

honed tactics or the modern technology available to them.

"A candidate needs to build a program that encompasses both volunteers and the emerging technology," Leroy said. That means both door-to-door volunteerism and the use of computers to target specific groups.

Republicans had scheduled three Campaign Management Schools this fall, but the one planned for New York City was scratched. That left the Idaho session as one of only two major training sessions planned nationwide for GOP workers and candidates in 1985. The other will be in Phoenix in September.

Leroy said the training session was unusual in that it was held in the evening and also because volunteers and prospective candidates showed up in such great and enthusiastic numbers.

back to the counties, well-diffused over the state, to help the technical basis of group efforts in Idaho," Leroy said.

Summaries of topics discussed at some of the workshops give an idea of current GOP thinking:

Research — "Research is the base of information from which a campaign develops a winning strategy and plan."

Public relations — "If a campaign can be compared to a war, then campaign communications is the artillery."

Volunteers — "The volunteer activities outweigh any amount of fund raising, advertising and research."

Polling — "In politics, the best predictor of the future is the past."

Scheduling — "Never ignore the importance of scheduling — it is the only thing more important than money."

Getting out the vote — "The support accumulated throughout the campaign is worthless until that vote is cast."

Morgan said Democrats plan at least one more major training session this year, and at least two early in 1986.

"Workshops are nothing new to us," he said. The state organization spent $3,000 for that purpose last year.

Morgan described new Democratic national chairman Paul Kirk as "a fireball" who will help all Democratic state campaigns. Morgan left Idaho for a Democratic National Committee planning session this weekend, the first to be conducted by Kirk.

The state Democratic Party chief says it didn't surprise him the opposition was gearing up so early for the 1986 election.

Teachers bid for flight aboard shuttle

WASHINGTON (AP) — One hundred fourteen teachers went back to school Sunday for a crash course in a goal only one will achieve: a trip into space aboard the shuttle Challenger.

"We're putting you through a little pressure this week," Alan Ladwig, manager of NASA's space flight participation program, told the teachers. "But we hope it's going to be a fun experience for you."

Their schedule includes daily workshops and lectures, interspersed with fetes at the National Air and Space Museum on Monday, a reception with members of Congress on Tuesday and a White House ceremony Wednesday.

But the pressure will also come on Wednesday when an eclectic group of 20 judges — including actress Pam Dawber, who lived with a visitor from outer space on the television show "Mork and Mindy" and former basketball star Wes Unseld — choose 10 finalists for the shuttle flight scheduled to lift off next Jan. 22.

Among the other judges are three university presidents, three former astronauts and artificial heart inventor Dr. Robert Jarvik.

Each teacher will face two separate judges for 15 minutes each.

"I did have trouble going to sleep last night," confessed Ellen M. Baerman, a fourth grade teacher from Wisconsin Hills Elementary School in Brookfield, Wis.

Teachers clustered outside a hotel ballroom before a collage of cartoons inspired by President Reagan's announcement last Aug. 27 that a classroom teacher would be chosen as the first civilian passenger. One cartoonist showed a prim astronaut lamenting that her companions had not mastered "gravity-free finger-painting." Another admonished the regular space shuttle crew to "sit up straight."

There were also the "Donesbury" strips in which cartoonist Gary Trudeau poked fun at "Barlin' Jake" Garn, the Utah senator who got to ride the shuttle this spring. He served as a guinea pig for space-sickness experiments.

Edward F. Duncanson, 42, a 9th grade earth science teacher, from Crispell Middle School in Pine Bush, N.Y., said he will undoubtedly be cannon fodder for more cartoons if he wins the competition.

But that was a prospect none seemed to mind.

IRS refunds create puzzle

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Taxpayers across the mid-Atlantic region are receiving mysterious refund checks from the Internal Revenue Service — many for amounts not even close to what they were supposed to get, according to a published report.

"Some of these cases are ridiculous," James Forquer, a Lanham, Md., accountant, said in a story published in the Philadelphia Inquirer Sunday.

"I have one client who was owed $65 from the IRS. Instead, he received seven checks totaling $612. None of them were remotely related to the amount he is owed."

Others are getting grossly inflated refunds. Quentin Packard, a 3-year-old Lancaster boy, was owed an $11 refund. Instead, he found a check for $16,072.40 in his mailbox.

Joseph Pozzuolo, a Philadelphia lawyer, said he was owed nothing by the government. Nevertheless, a few weeks ago he was sent $32,426.

"I was about to go to Acapulco on vacation the next day," he said. "Believe me, I looked at that check for a long time."

The erroneous checks are coming from IRS service centers across the country, according to dozens of accountants, lawyers and other tax experts, the newspaper said.

NEA head pushes teacher certification

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the National Education Association will press the 7,000 delegates to her union's annual convention this week for a clear endorsement of requiring all new teachers to pass a certification test.

"We have to face reality. You can't run away from or ignore the fact that the tests are being used and will continue to be used as part of the pre-certification requirement," Mary Hatwood Futrell said in an interview.

In the 1970s, her 1.7 million-member union warred against standardized tests for students and teachers alike on the grounds that they were biased and obstructed equal opportunity. It gradually backed off that hard-line stance.

The smaller rival union, the American Federation of Teachers, has been a stalwart defender of standardized tests. Its president, Albert Shanker, drew headlines in January when he called for a national certification test for new teachers akin to a bar exam for lawyers.

Ms. Futrell and other NEA leaders subsequently signaled their willingness to endorse make-or-break tests for new teachers as part of a series of mandatory steps, including successful completion of student teaching and internships. Ms. Futrell said no one should be allowed to teach without a B-average — 2.5 on the traditional 4-point scale — in college.

For several years, the NEA has maintained that it supported testing new teachers but opposed barring anyone from the profession solely because he or she failed such a test.

Now, the NEA president said she will press for an unequivocal endorsement of testing as part of the certification process. The annual convention opens here Friday and runs through July 3.

Shanker favors a uniform, nationwide cutoff score on a teacher licensing exam, which is still to be created. But Ms. Futrell said that even if the exam is uniform, states should retain the right to decide "whether to use it and what the cutoff score would be."

(There were no key Senate votes this past week.)

HOUSE AGREES TO PRODUCTION OF NERVE GAS.

Breaking a 16-year moratorium, the House voted 229-196 June 19 to resume production of poisons gas to be placed in storage and used only in case of war.

The amendment to the annual Defense Department authorization bill provides $124 million for production of "binary chemical weapons," which are munitions containing two chemicals that are mixed together when the weapon is fired to create a poisonous gas. The amendment delays production until 1987 and places several restrictions on production, including a requirement that the two chemicals be stored in separate states.

The House defeated similar legislation three times in the last three years, while the Senate approved it each time. The Senate has passed a similar version of this amendment, and representatives from each chamber will meet in conference to compromise differences once the defense authorization bill is passed in the House, which is expected before the July 4 recess.

Voting to produce chemical weapons: Rep. Larry Craig (R).

Voting against: Rep. Richard Stallings (D).

HOUSE VOTES GAP ON MX MISSILE DEPLOYMENT.

The House June 19 voted 233-184 to cap the number of MX missiles to be deployed at 40 and to authorize no additional funds for the missile in fiscal 1986. The measure provides $321 million for equipment to base MX missiles that have already been approved.

The Senate placed a deployment limit of 50 on the weapon last month, but that action can be more accurately described as a pause in deployment; the measure is not binding and additional missiles could still be deployed at a later date.

The House action sets a permanent limitation on the missile, and, if it becomes law, Congress would have to repeat it in order to deploy more than 40 missiles in underground silos.

Voting for cap of 40 MX missiles: Stallings (D). Voting against: Craig (R).

HOUSE REFUSES TO CUT STAR WARS RESEARCH.

Opponents of President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) failed in their bid to make substantial cuts in research and development of the project when the House June 20 rejected 195-221 a proposal to cut funding to $2.1 billion from $2.5 billion.

The attack on the president's program, widely known as "star wars," came in the form of an amendment to the fiscal 1986 defense authorization bill. The amendment limited the money available for four sections of SDI research that critics charge violate the 1972 U.S.-U.S.S.R. anti-ballistic missile treaty. The SDI plan involves placing satellites and other devices in space to shoot down missiles launched at the United States.

Voting to cut Strategic Defense Initiative research: Stallings (D). Voting against: Craig (R).

HOUSE ACCEPTS $2.5 BILLION FOR SDI RESEARCH.

The House agreed to provide $2.5 billion for research and development of the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) by a vote of 256-150 June 20 after turning aside five other funding level proposals.

The Senate approved $2.97 billion for SDI research June 4 while considering the Defense Department authorization bill for fiscal 1986. Differences between the House and Senate on SDI will have to be ironed out in conference once the House passes the defense bill, expected by the July 4 recess.

Voting for $2.5 billion for Strategic Defense Initiative research: Craig (R), Stallings (D). Voting against: None.

Floods maroon thousands

DHAKA, Bangladesh (DPA) — Eleven persons have died and more than 60,000 are reported to be marooned in remote villages by flooding in northeastern Bangladesh, officials said Sunday. Army and navy units had been called out to help military authorities in rescue operations, a senior Flood Control Ministry official said. The official said that at least 2 million people were affected by the floods, which hit the districts of Sylhet, Habiganj and Moulvi Bazar Thursday, breaching embankments, washing away homesteads and destroying crops.

He said rail links with Sylhet and the rest of the country had been suspended over the past week after flood waters from the river Manu damaged the vital Sylhet-Akhaura railway bridge.

Religion triggers arguments

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Hundreds of black-coated Orthodox Jews faced a handful of secular Israelis in a noisy demonstration over religious freedom. The Orthodox Jews gathered in central Tel Aviv Saturday to protest a weekly panel discussion and on the Jewish Sabbath in the only Israel in a noisy demonstration over religious freedom. Another group of demonstrators, objecting to what they claim is religious coercion, held up such signs such as "Humanism And Not Khomeinism," referring to Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Plane supplies Antarctic base

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — A U.S. Air Force supply aircraft on Sunday delivered milk, fruit, vegetables and mail to scientific bases in the Antarctic, a U.S. Navy spokesman said.

The 14-hour journey from Christchurch, New Zealand, to the South Pole and back broke six months of isolation for about 100 Americans and New Zealanders spending the Southern Hemisphere's winter at McMurdo Sound.

TV dispute ends in strangling

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Barica Saraga wanted to watch "Love Story" on television. Her husband, Franjo, wanted to watch a panel discussion about a bloody soccer riot in Belgrade.

When his wife switched the channel to see the American movie last Wednesday evening, Saraga grabbed her by the neck and choked her to death, according to police quoted Sunday in the Belgrade daily newspaper, Politika.

Scatter bones of Mengele, death camp survivor advises

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A twin who survived cruel genetic experiments by Nazi death camp doctor Josef Mengele said Sunday that the Nazi's bones should be scattered over the ocean so that like his victims, he has no grave.

Miriam Tzeiger said an organization of twins who survived Mengele's fiendish experiments do not believe Mengele is dead, despite conclusions of investigators that a skeleton exhumed two weeks ago in Brazil is Mengele's.

"But if it becomes clear beyond a doubt that this is in fact Mengele's body, my personal request is not to bring him to burial but to scatter his bones in the ocean so that his family does not have a grave, just like my family doesn't and those whose families died in the concentration camps in Europe," Mrs. Tzeiger said on Israel Radio.

Police in Sao Paulo, Brazil, have said the bones will be put at the disposal of the Mengele family, and if the family does not want them; they will be returned in the grave from which they were exhumed.

Mrs. Tzeiger joined other Israelis who have voiced skepticism over an international conclusion of an international forensic team which ruled last Friday that the body of a man who drowned six years ago in Brazil was Mengele, the Auschwitz concentration camp doctor known as the "Angel of Death."

The Israeli Justice Ministry said it would not accept the forensic findings until it can examine them. Former Israeli spy chief Isser Harel, whose Mossad intelligence agency tracked Mengele in South America, contends that if Mengele had drowned in 1979, his family in West Germany would have tried to prove it then.

"If he died six years ago why did his family and people who protected him conceal this fact?" Mrs. Tzeiger asked. "I think it's a story invented to stop the hunt after Mengele."

But Israeli police officer Menachem Russek, one of the experts aiding the Brazilian investigation, said Friday he now accepted the results of the inquiry. "I believe that with experts of the caliber we have here, you have to accept the conclusion," he said in Sao Paulo.

The policeman, himself a survivor of Auschwitz, conceded: "Maybe I'm a little disappointed that he was not brought to trial."

DR. JOSEF MENGELE Should have no grave

Mrs. Tzeiger also said she would have liked Mengele apprehended and brought to trial in Israel, which put out a $1 million reward and an international warrant for Mengele's arrest.

"I and many of the twins want very much to look into Mengele's eyes again, yes, so he can tell us and the whole world what he did," she said.

40 years after Hiroshima blast

Some nuclear bomb effects not known

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Four decades after Hiroshima and Nagasaki became the only cities ever destroyed by atomic blast, about 370,000 people in Japan carry certificates designating them as "hibakusha," or bomb victims, eligible for free medical treatment.

In turn, 40 years of the hibakushas' lives — and deaths — have provided doctors and scientists with the only information available on what happens to the human body when it is exposed to nuclear weapons.

An estimated 118,000 died in the explosions and subsequent radiation of the Hiroshima bomb, and thousands more died in the following months. Of the hibakusha who died in 1945 and since, 113,271 have been identified. Their names are listed each year in a memorial cenotaph in the city. In Nagasaki, where an estimated 74,000 people initially died, 64,186 victims have been identified.

Files overflow at the Radiations Effects Research Foundation, where the case studies of tens of thousands of Hiroshima hibakusha have been kept since 1945 and at the Hiroshima Hibakusha Health Clinic, where about 100,000 survivors go for checkups twice a year. But the documents only begin to explain the correlation between radiation and disease.

"Maybe half is known against the total knowledge" of the effects of radiation, Dr. Ituzo Shigematsu, Japanese director of the U.S.-Japan RERF, said in an interview.

The RERF, spread across the top of a mountain in the eastern part of the city, until 10 years ago was the U.S.-Japan Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission, the first institution to begin a systematic study of the hibakusha population.

Among his early findings were that hibakusha show an increase in thyroid cancer, cataracts and other malignant tumors, depending on their proximity to the blast epicenter and their age at the time. Many babies were born with small heads and were mentally retarded.

Chikako Ito, a director at the Hiroshima clinic, explained, "We can't distinguish the cause — whether it's natural or an effect of the bomb — but we know that compared with the non-exposed, the rates of some diseases are high."

Over the years, the number of diseases attributed to radiation exposure has increased and the definition of hibakusha has expanded. Today a hibakusha may be someone who was exposed directly to the Aug. 6 blast in Hiroshima or the Aug. 9 blast in Nagasaki, someone who entered one of the cities up to two weeks later, or someone affected by radioactive fallout, the "black rain" that fell over the area.

Hibakusha say they have suffered effects that can't be explained within the limits of current medical technology.

"The doctor may say my body is in normal condition, but the hibakusha's body doesn't believe it. Where it may take most people four to five days to shake a cold, it takes some hibakusha two weeks," said Satoru Konishi, a professor of German at Tokyo Toritsu University, who was in Junior high when he wandered into Hiroshima on Aug. 7, 1945, the day after the bomb.

"I know it well," said Konishi, who carries acupuncture needles to relieve chronic pains in his body. "Current medicine is too weak to prove (anything concerning) subjective systems," Shigematsu conceded. He said many problems hibakusha cite can only be listed as "due to neurosis or sensitivity."

As for the effect on the next generation, the doctor said, "As of now, we haven't found any significant effects. But that doesn't mean we can say there are none."

Apart from the limits of medicine and the fact that the hibakusha population is still in mid-life, the study was impeded by the United States' refusal, until a few years ago, to release full information on the make-up of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki A-bombs.

The new data sent scientists from Japan and the United States scrambling to revise conclusions drawn from the empirical information gathered from the hibakusha, whose exposure to neutron rays were estimated to be about 10 times too high, Shigematsu said.

"Frankly, we're embarrassed," he said, adding that the diseases "were caused by one-tenth the exposure, so the present (nuclear safety) standards have been too easy and they should be made more strict."

The standards were based on data gathered from the survivors and what scientists believed were the gamma and neutron rays emitted by the bomb.

An RERF newsletter says that by Dec. 1, each of eight bi-national working groups reviewing this question will submit final reports to be compiled in a single summary next spring.

Shigematsu said the 1979 leak of a radioactive cloud at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant in Pennsylvania was the "best example" of how the danger of radiation may have been underestimated.

"The air there was contaminated, but according to the present standard it was OK," he said. "According to the new standards, it was very dangerous."

Prospective Stallings challengers plentiful

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

With George Hansen's political future resting in the hands of the U.S. Court of appeals, it appears Republican challengers for Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, will be plentiful.

Former congressman Hansen, now a lobbyist in Washington for the New Continental Congress, is awaiting the result of his appeal of felony convictions for federal election law violations.

Four contenders have made announcements of possible candidacy and as many as three-possible-eastern-Idaho-Republicans are rumored to be considering a run.

formed a campaign advisory committee and is sending out press releases as a "possible 2nd Congressional District candidate."

His colleague, Sen. Ann Rydchel, R-Idaho Falls, has also formed a committee to test the waters.

State Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, says he has been approached by behind-the-scenes political operators who would like him to put his experience in the Hansen campaign to work on taking back the seat from the Democrats.

Anderson said Saturday morning he is undecided and is waiting to see if Hansen or Conlee — Mrs. George Hansen — will run.

Dan Adamson, a Jerome attorney who took on Hansen in the 1984 election, says he is "very, very interested" in running.

Adamson said the flock of eastern Idaho Republicans will fall by the wayside if Hansen or his wife Conlee enters the race, leaving him to challenge the Hansen hardcores once more.

"There's a 75 percent chance George or Conlee will run and then we'll just watch them cower away," Adamson said Friday. "Those people are all trying to save our district from the mad moderates and liberals, because of that, they're all trying to be like Hansen," he said.

the race, Adamson said. "I spent a great deal of my own money (in 1984) which is just not available this time... having eight or nine or ten people jumping into it doesn't help," he said. Adamson says he has a moral obligation not to say "die" because he also spent other people's money in the last race.

Adamson said a full slate of Republicans in the primary will only add strength to Stallings' bid for re-election, as Republicans will be too busy fighting each other to fight Stallings.

"I think they're going to fool around until Mr. Stallings walks away with it," Adamson said. Rydchel said she has formed an investigative committee to search for funding. "This country can not and should not be run by the wealthy and the retired," Rydchel said. She said she works and must find funding to pay for her race if she is going to run. Rydchel said the race will cost about $150,000 for the primary and at least as much for the general election.

Richardson says a heavy emphasis on the 1986 gubernatorial race and the fight over Steve Symms' U.S. Senate seat could make fund-raising difficult for Republican Congressional candidates.

Those rumored to be eying Stallings' seat in the U.S. House of Representatives include Rep. J.F. Chaboud, R-Idaho Falls; Rep. Robert Geddes, R-Preston; and Sen. Michael Crapo, R-Idaho Falls. None of them could be reached for comment Friday.

Rep. Ed Brown, R-Pocatello, says that despite persistent rumors to the contrary, he has no intention of running.

Heavy rockin' senator

Anderson struts, leaps for his fans

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

JEROME — Standing on stage in a blue canvas pork pie hat and a short-sleeved loud print shirt, Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, did not look like a rock 'n' roll star Sunday.

Before his band started to play, Anderson looked like a misplaced barbecue chef who had wandered into the crowd of sun-baked rockers to ask if his son or daughter wanted a hot dog.

All resemblance to a befuddled burger chef or a conservative freshman senator from Southern Idaho disappeared when Anderson's band kicked off its set and ripped into his first number. Strutting and leaping across the stage, he sang, "I've got the six, give me your nine," an ambiguous reference to a sexual act colloquially called "69."

Anderson's band, Cobalt Blue, was the headline act in the six-band Rock 'n' Roll picnic at the Jerome County Fairground. The rock show was organized by Anderson as a fundraiser for Jerome High School. Cobalt Blue plays a loud brand of rock and roll commonly called heavy metal or "headbanger" rock. Anderson's voice is well cut out for the howls, screams, and growls that are the staple vocal style of bands like Billy Idol, Quiet Riot and Van Halen, whose hit music Cobalt Blue plays. The band also plays songs by ZZ Top and Power Station, whose music would be described as southern rock and urban funk, respectively.

"In the midnight hour, she cried more, more, more. With a rebel yell, she wanted more, more, more," Anderson sang, imitating the gravelly voice of Billy Idol, who originally recorded the song, "Rebel Yell."

As a singer, Anderson's stage presence shows traces of the Rolling Stones' Mick Jagger. Like Jagger, Anderson's body is in near-perpetual motion as he prowls the stage, alternately mugging to the front row of dancers, jumping down to dance with the crowd, and then climbing back up to dance and sing beside his band.

Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, belts out a song while the audience dances

Anderson also plays the keyboards and synthesizer, sending forth pulses of Martian organ music and robot love songs while continuing to dance and grin from behind a modest bank of keyboards, a pair of dark glasses, and a day's growth of beard.

Cobalt Blue played to a crowd that hovered around 200 people, most of whom appeared to be in their teens and mid-twenties.

As Cobalt Blue's set wound to a close about an hour later, Anderson thanked the crowd for coming to the picnic, asked them to pick up their garbage, and thanked Fifth District Magistrate Judge Bill Hart for helping to set up the show.

Amnesty offer for TV pirates

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The King Videocable Co. will declare July a month of amnesty for those now pirating its cable service, said manager Chris Talkington.

In August, the company will begin using new enforcement tools provided by an amended state law to punish cable thieves now costing the company more than $10,000 a month.

Idaho does have a law pertaining to the theft of telecommunications services. The law, however, excluded cable television.

As of July 1, the picture will change when an amendment that includes cable television in the law becomes effective, said Jean Weston, executive director of the Idaho Cable Television Association.

The association, which is composed of cable company representatives from throughout the state, lobbied for the amendment because it's members annually lose a total of more than $2 million to cable pirates, Talkington said.

The amendment makes the theft of cable and other telecommunications services added to the law a misdemeanor punishable by up to six months in jail and/or a $200 fine for those convicted of illegal use or possession on first offense. Subsequent convictions carry a penalty of up to one year in jail and/or $1,000 fine.

A one-year jail term and $1,000 fine is the maximum sentence for those convicted of making, selling, furnishing or advertising the sale of illegal telecommunications equipment.

Private dish owners are excluded from the state law, Weston said. The amendment provides uniformity in the state, she added. Since judges didn't consider cable television thefts under the present telecommunications code, cable operators brought charges under what laws they could. The result was chaos and different punishments.

King Videocable, which has more than 14,000 subscribers in Twin Falls and surrounding cities, previously took a low profile when dealing with people who steal the service, Talkington said.

The methods of theft varied. People would not pay subscription payments or return the "black box," a name for the receivers for services such as Home Box Office, Showtime or the Disney Channel.

People also connect themselves to the cable lines, Talkington said. If a pirate is successful, the company can lose $25 a month, which is the total value of the different services it provides. That total includes the cost of personnel for enforcement or possible damage to the boxes or cable equipment.

Worker pay, waste squeezing cities

By INA HADAM
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — The Fair Standards Labor Act, hazardous waste regulation and liability insurance are sure to problems for cities, counties and school districts caught in the budget squeeze, Mayor Ralph Peters told the Jerome City Council Tuesday.

Peters says the Fair Standards Labor Act limits the number of hours an employee can work to 172 hours in a 28-day period. After that, they must be paid overtime wages.

He says the city has always been able to allow employees "comp time," which is time off equal to the number of extra hours worked. This practice enabled the city to compensate its employees and still keep the yearly budget in line, he said.

Police and fire departments will be particularly hard hit because the nature of their work involves long hours part of the time, resulting in what amounts to, overtime, Peters said.

These departments cannot accurately predict what the overtime needs will be for an entire year, he said. City governments are faced with the choice of asking employees to occasionally work without pay or leaving residents without police or fire protection part of the time.

Another concern of city governments, Peters said, is the handling of hazardous waste materials. He says the Environmental Protection Agency is going to require cities to monitor hazardous wastes within city limits, but reverse sharing, which would provide funds for this purpose, will be withdrawn after October, 1986.

Councilwoman Jeanne Vandiver says Jerome is one of the few cities that is working on a program for handling of hazardous waste. She says the city will be entering the plan and should have it into final operation in the near future.

Peters says the EPA will give the city about a year to get the plan operational.

Another concern for the city is the increase in liability insurance premiums. Peters says the premiums have been raised as much as 600 percent in many instances, and when cities do not have the money to pay the premiums, their liability insurance is dropped.

Peters says civil rights issues have prompted many people to bring a lawsuits against cities. He cited one example of a town in Arizona that lost a suit larger than its yearly budget of nearly $3 million.

Peters says the premium for last year's liability insurance was about $24,000. When Peters asked for next year's premium for budget planning, he said he did not receive an answer.

Remains of missing San Diego hiker recovered

CHALLIS — The fate of a San Diego, Calif., hiker who disappeared last October was learned late this past week.

His remains were found in the Grand Mokol Peak area of the Sawtooth Recreation Area southwest of Redfish Lake.

Custer County Sheriff Doug Leaton said two hikers discovered some clothing about two miles from Redfish Lake Thursday afternoon. The Custer County Search and Rescue Unit, under the direction of the sheriff, went into the area Friday and recovered the remains, the sheriff's office reported.

Robert Rehfeld Jr., 38, of San Diego, hiked into the area last Oct. 23 for a one-day trip and failed to return. When he was not back on Oct. 24, a search was begun. However, a heavy snowstorm, which officials said Blaine County said probably contributed to his death, forced officers to abandon search efforts last fall.

Officials said it appeared Rehfeld was attempting to get across a 200-foot wide rock slab on a mountain side when he lost his footing, sliding about 30 feet down the rock ledge. It was believed he died in the fall or was badly injured and died of exposure.

Custer County officers said they were notified Thursday evening that hikers had found personal effects and some clothing. A search and rescue team consisting of six Ketchum and Challis members and commanded by Robert Tincher of Custer County went into the area Friday morning.

They reported they located the remains of the missing hiker near a waterfall.

The Challis sheriff's report indicated the evidence consisted of clothing and a climbing boot and partial remains of the victim, but time and the natural elements prevented recovery of the entire body. Members of the victim's family have made identification of the articles recovered, officers said.

Wood River Chapel in Hailey reported the remains were cremated and ashes will be taken to Phoenix, Ariz., for services.

Rehfeld was born Aug. 9, 1946, in San Diego. His survivors include his parents, Robert and Jean Rehfeld of Phoenix, Ariz., and one brother.

Interim legislative committees debate services handling

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

Debate over the state government's handling of services which could be offered by the private sector has spilled over from the 1985 legislative session into the meetings of interim legislative committees.

Committees are looking for ways to get the state out of school-bus education, private education, driver education program to take their children out of public schools and education at home.

Sen. Atwell Parry, R-Melba, says his committee on alcoholic beverages, set up last year, has two charges. First, to examine whether the state should stay in the liquor business, and second, to re-codify the state's alcoholic beverage laws.

Parry says the state could change its involvement in liquor sales by selling its liquor outlets and operating liquor warehouses only. The committee will look at potential revenues from a reorganized liquor dispensary, he said.

Parry said the committee's first formal meeting is scheduled for Monday.

House Concurrent Resolution No. 26 set up a committee to undertake a reorganization of the state's motor vehicle laws. Co-chairman, Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs, says his committee is considering a privately-operated driver education program in the state. "Some feel it should be private," he said Friday. Legislative counsel is drawing up legislation to deal specifically with the driver education question, Sessions said.

The committee meets next on July 19. Rep. Robert Forrey, R-Nampa, who introduced a bill in the last session to relax the state's compulsory education law, is pursuing the matter as co-chairman of an interim committee set up under Senate Concurrent Resolution 105.

He says his committee is looking at ways to make it easier for parents to teach their children at home if they want. "I'm hoping to change the Idaho code," he said Friday.

"I just feel that anything that the people can do for themselves, the government shouldn't do," says Forrey.

Forrey said the committee will meet August 13 to review a draft version of the bill.

Sen. Walter Yarbrough, R-Grand View, is co-chairman of a committee that will be meeting this summer to negotiate with Idaho Indians tribes on fishing rights and on their water rights under the Swan Falls agreement. Yarbrough says the committee has not yet met because the Indians have just recently elected new leaders.

Negotiating with the Indians will be easier than working with the Indians water rights claims through the courts, he says.

Water rights will also be discussed in the interim committee of Sen. Gary Chapman, R-Boise. He said Friday his interim committee on the marketing of water rights will hold an informational meeting for members this summer but will not hold public hearings until the beginning of September, when farmers are not so busy as they now are.

House-Continuing Resolution 33, charged the committee to "complete a study of the feasibility of establishing a comprehensive system for the marketing of water rights in Idaho."

Co-chairman Vard Chabura said Friday recent court cases make "imperative" that the state develop a water marketing plan.

The chairman of an interim committee on the revision of Idaho's criminal sentencing law was unavailable for comment Friday.

Idaho prepares to observe centennial of poet Ezra Pound

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
The Associated Press

HAILEY — Idaho is preparing to observe the centennial of Ezra Pound, the "potemkin" name son who ushered 20th century poetry but achieved only patchy recognition in the state of his birth.

Born to the manager of the federal land office in Hailey when the area was booming with its first silver strike, Pound would have been 100 this Oct. 30. He died in Italy in 1972 after a life that saw him charged with treason for his pro-Fascist broadcasts during World War II, declared insane and committed to a mental institution.

The simple house where Pound spent the first two years of his life still stands not far from the center of Hailey and bears a plaque marking its distinction. The town's museum includes a Pound display, the University of Idaho maintains a Pound collection and there have been a few literary articles about the poet whose literary achievement was darkened by a partisan cloud.

But some students of Pound's Idaho connection say the state knowing for its patriotism and conservative bent has a hard time accepting the man hailed as the father of modernism. Although he influenced a generation of poets with his dictum, "Make it new," Pound also was assailed as a traitor for the broadcasts aired from Italy.

"Some of the oldtimers around here — you mention Pound and they kind of growl at you," said Bob Waite, director of the Ezra Pound Centennial Project.

Waite, who lived in Hailey until recently, said he hopes the observance will help Idaho come to terms with "the totality of Pound as a writer, as an alienated intellectual."

The centennial project funded by the Association for the Humanities in Idaho and by donations will stretch from late summer into fall.

It will include Pound classes in several Idaho towns, poetry readings on the lawn of the former Pound residence, papers about him and a performance of his opera, "La Marmalite."

Events will culminate on Oct. 4 with a Pound symposium attended by scholars and the poet's daughter, Mary de Rachewiltz, who is expected to travel from Italy.

Pound's anti-Semitic statements and war-era broadcasts espousing the philosophy of Italian dictator Benito Mussolini will be discussed at some of the events.

"We've got to confront it head-on," Waite said. "Organizing a program like this and ignoring that part of his life would be a real disservice."

Plaque marks Ezra Pound's childhood home in Hailey

Idaho for the East when he was about 2, people who have studied him say his perception of the state was an enduring metaphor in his life, and that he wished to return before he died.

He wanted to be buried in Hailey, his daughter said in coldfront, the Boise State University literary publication.

"Venice finally claimed him, and perhaps it is good so, for Venice welcomed him upon his first exile and in Venice he published his first book," Mrs. de Rachewiltz wrote from Brunenburg, Italy, last summer. "But Hailey, Idaho, has a shrine: his birthplace."

The Idaho influence is evident in this century's most renowned writers, and there are writings that include references to the state where a Pound contemporary, Ernest Hemingway, committed suicide in 1961 at Ketchum, just north of Hailey.

"Idaho remained much on Ezra's mind," said Waller Wigginton, an Idaho State University professor of English. "Not so much the real Idaho as the Idaho of legend."

Pound had "a creative, productive illusion" of the state as a rebellious place, said Wigginton, who has written about Pound in ISU's Rendezvous.

"From reading a lot about him, you gather that Idaho was important to him," Waite agreed. "But he didn't really have a vision of what Idaho was like."

Waite's research has instilled a fondness for Pound.

"He was kind of an oddball, but that was part of his appeal," Waite said. The thing he admires most is Pound's effort on behalf of other writers, among them Robert Frost and T.S. Eliot.

"Pound was there making sure other poets got published," Waite said.

And when the time came, some of this century's most renowned writers, including novelist Hemingway, worked with Pound on his 13 years in a mental institution.

A free man, Pound returned to Europe. The sum of his time there over the decades diluted the Impression of Pound as an American writer, Wigginton said.

But despite the way Pound was treated in this country, he "loved the United States, especially in terms of its vitality and energy, and he associated that with Idaho," Wigginton said.

People are startled to learn Pound was born in the state, said Cort Conley, who writes about the poet and his Hailey roots in an Idaho guidebook.

But there also are Pound followers from all over the world who find their way to Hailey.

"Sometimes people come and sit under the tree and say they can feel his aura," said Roberta McKechercher, who has lived in the house for two decades. She is puzzled by the reaction, given the brevity of Pound's stay.

Ms. McKechercher said she knows of two Hailey visits by Pound's daughter, one of them when she was in Idaho to receive a university honor and the other when the plaque was mounted on the house in 1975.

"I had a little tea for her, and a lot of people didn't want to come because of the political stigma," Ms. McKechercher said.

Pound enthusiasts also stop by the Blaine County Historical Museum to look at pictures of the man. "There are writers, young writers, who come in," said Julie Heagle, the museum chairman. "They pay their money, look at that one display and leave."

Waite intends for the centennial project to broaden interest in Pound by touching more than writers and scholars who probe "The Cantos," the poet's life work.

"We want to acknowledge Pound in a way that will appeal to the layman," Waite said. "We want to warm people up to Pound."

Air spray fleet covers broad acreage

By The Associated Press

The addition of four airplanes Sunday to the fleet of assorted aircraft involved in the aerial war against weeds and crop-munching grasshoppers in southern Idaho enabled pilots to spray about 124,000 more acres than were covered the previous day.

"Things seem so positive now," said Dan Kall, spokesman for the Animal Plant Health Inspection Service.

Planes poured insecticide Sunday on about 291,000 acres in the Ft. Hall Indian Reservation and Minidoka, Elmore, Cassia and Ada counties, said Andy Adams, assistant regional director for the APHIS plant protection division.

Kall said two DC-4s and two C-123s were added to the fleet Sunday, accounting for the increase in acreage.

Adams said planes covered nearly 166,000 acres in Minidoka, Elmore and part of Twin Falls counties.

Also included in the aerial armada are two other DC-4s, two DC-3s and a host of smaller aircraft, Kall said.

An additional C-123 is expected to arrive in Idaho Monday and be put into use Tuesday. The C-123s are part of the Spray Branch of the 507th Tactical Airlift Group stationed in Columbus, Ohio.

Early reports indicated hoppers were dying in large numbers, Adams said.

"We've had reports from some ranchers," Adams said Sunday. "The results are very good, from all indications."

Sunday's continuation of the two-week old offensive against grasshoppers brought the total number of acres sprayed to 1.4 million acres, Adams said.

The hopper war could be wrapped up by mid-July after another 3.5 million acres are sprayed, he said.

Spraying began June 8 to eradicate the insect menace from more than five million acres of federal, state and private farm and range land threatened by the worst outbreak of grasshoppers in 30 years. At the request of Idaho's congressional delegation, military aircraft are being pressed into the effort because officials say there aren't enough private contractors to cover the property.

APHIS, a branch of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, is coordinating the spraying efforts.

Sunday saw insecticide-laden planes flying shortly over 190,000 acres on the Fort Hall reservation and some of the 300,000 acres targeted in Cassia County.

Kall said spraying Monday would continue in the same areas.

Twin Falls police investigate thefts

TWIN FALLS — One Twin Falls resident reported the loss of $250 in cash and another said he lost $300 worth of fishing equipment in weekend thefts.

Dee Ann Henstock told police someone took $250 from the home of her mother at 851 Second Ave. W. She said someone went into the house sometime between June 13 and Sunday, when the money was missed.

Steve Demott, of 165 Taylor St., reported the fishing tackle and other items were taken from his carport 7 p.m. Friday and 1:30 a.m. Saturday.

Range fires continue across West

By The Associated Press

Firefighters Sunday battled a range fire that blackened more than 12,000 acres in southeast Oregon, as firefighters in Nevada declared under-control of a fire that burned 78,000 acres.

A 10,050-acre fire southeast of Boise also was declared out Sunday, and more than 200 acres burned in Utah, and another fire continued to burn in Nevada, scorching about 12,000 acres.

The Oregon fire, about four miles from the Hart Mountain National Antelope Refuge, remained out of control Sunday, said Bureau of Land Management spokesman Rick Preckel. He said the refuge was protected by a group of small lakes between it and the fire.

The 78,000-acre fire eight miles west of Winnemucca, in north-central Nevada, was declared controlled

Sunday morning, said Nick Zuffelt, regional spokesman for the U.S. Forest Service.

The blaze was ignited by lightning from several dry thunderstorms that rumbled through the area Wednesday.

Meanwhile, about 200 firefighters battled a range fire estimated to have consumed about 12,000 acres of brush on Bureau of Indian Affairs land 60 miles north of Reno. The blaze was 70 percent contained Sunday afternoon, said a Bureau of Land Management spokesman.

There were no reports of major injuries or damage in either fire in Nevada.

In Oregon, firefighters contained a 300-acre fire in the steep Fourth of July Canyon near Brookings on Sunday. The canyon fire in the Steklyou National Forest caused an estimated $1 million in damage, burning two fire trucks and $45,000 worth of timber, said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Margaret Petersen.

A stubborn forest fire in northeastern Utah's Ashley National Forest, across from the town of Jala, Sunday, topping more than 200 acres as 170 firefighters retreated before the flames, authorities said.

"We've been experiencing a lot of erratic winds today," said spokeswoman Liz Montefi. "We had to evacuate our fire camp to another area."

State "Prison" fire team of firefighters, the Flame 'N' Goes, were summoned to help fight the fire Saturday, authorities said.

The 10,050-acre fire about 70 miles southeast of Boise was declared out Sunday 7 p.m., said Bureau of Land Management dispatcher Kim Christensen.

He also worked with Boy Scout programs. Surviving are his wife of 14 years; two sons, Michael Allen, 14, and James Hagerman, 10; and his mother, Mrs. Mary Hagerman, 72. He was in the Hagerman Cemetery. Friends may call at DeMary's Gooding Chapel Tuesday from 10 to 7 p.m.

Obituaries

Orla R. Hicks

KETCHUM — Orla R. Hicks, 92, longtime Ketchum resident and former state senator, died Thursday at Blaine County Medical Center following an illness of several weeks.

Born Aug. 27, 1892, at Corral, he married Lily Heller June 16, 1913, at Kaniha. She died May 9, 1985. They farmed in the King Hill and Gooding areas and worked in Shoshone eight years for the State of Idaho as a shop foreman and purchasing agent.

He also worked for Union Pacific Railroad at Sun Valley from 1939, when they moved to the Ketchum area, until he retired in 1962. He was transportation supervisor at the time of his retirement. He served one term as a state senator from Blaine County.

He is survived by one son, Hillard Hicks of Miami, Fla., and Sun Valley; five grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

A graveside funeral will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Ketchum Cemetery. Father Kevin Lahey of St. Charles Catholic Church will officiate. Wood River Chapel is in charge of arrangements.

Cable

Cable employees keep an eye out for people who have illegally connected themselves to the cable lines located over their property.

"They feel what's in their yard belongs to them," Talkington said. Yet, they have no right to the cable service because the company pays the city a franchise fee for using the city's right of way for cable wires.

Talkington said the company has other means to find the suspected pirates but would not disclose them. Neither would he release the number of people suspected of pirating the company's services. He did say that the company about $10,000 to $11,000 a month.

Talkington added that the percentage of suspected thieves is small compared to the number of paid subscribers.

When the new law takes effect, the company will provide amnesty during the month of July. During that time anyone now receiving cable service illegally may come into the office and become an official subscriber without "no questions asked."

After July, the company will begin using the tool provided by the amended law — especially on those selling or giving the boxes to others.

"I have no sympathy and will take these people to court," Talkington said.

Cable companies always have had the option of civil court action against cable pirates, but they would sooner connect the former pirates to customers, Weston said.

Court action is a last resort, but companies will prosecute if necessary, she said. She and other cable operators already have contacted prosecutors about that possibility.

A contributing factor to the theft of cable service, Talkington added, rests with its ubiquitous and invisible nature. Cable television is not something that can be placed in a pocket like a shoplifted item.

"The feeling has been it's okay to steal because no one would miss it," Talkington said.

While satellite dish owners who receive HBO through the airwaves free of cost are exempted by state law, the free ride may cease in a few months, Weston said.

HBO and its sister movie service, Cinemax, will scramble the satellite signal to prevent pirating by satellite dish owners, Talkington said.

The cable company has nothing to do with the scrambling of HBO and the other "premium" television services a royalty to broadcast its satellite signals to cable subscribers.

Before the signals are scrambled, HBO will offer — probably through cable companies — devices that allow satellite owners to receive the scrambled signal at a fee.

Weddings

Barnes-Kreft

TWIN FALLS — Lisa Barnes became the bride of Timothy L. Kreft April 5 in the Logan, Utah, LDS Temple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vern E. Barnes, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom's parents are Gary Kreft, Twin Falls, and Betty Schimpf, Beaverton, Ore.

Following the ceremony, a luncheon was hosted by the bride's parents and Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Gomm, uncle and aunt of the bride, at their home in Logan. A reception also was held April 7 at the 12-14th LDS ward in Twin Falls.

The bride's attendants were Colleen Martin, Kimberly, and Barbara Seitz, Arco, both sisters of the bride, Stephanie Martin, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Roger Christensen, Boise, was best man. Ryan and Brandon Seitz, nephews of the bride, carried gifts and Chris Griffin attended the guest book. Pinky Kreft, Marva Barnes and Terry Whitehead were in charge of serving.

The bride, a graduate of Twin Falls High School, is employed as a dental assistant.

The bridegroom, who also graduated from Twin Falls High School,

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy L. Kreft served a church mission in Mexico and now works for Associates Finance Co. The couple resides in Boise.

Measuring success by different degree

DEAR ABBY: My son, who has a wife and two children, just received his law degree at the age of 31. Our whole family is tremendously proud of him, and we have you to thank for it.

He said a letter he read in your column inspired him to return to college and become a lawyer. He shared that letter with us, and I had it framed and presented it to him at his graduation.

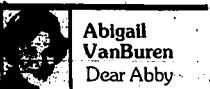

Please run it again, Abby. It may inspire others who think it's too late to realize that it's not too late at all.

With love...

— A FRIEND IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR FRIEND: What an upper your letter was! Here is the piece, with special congratulations to your son, the lawyer:

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old college dropout whose lifelong ambition was to be a physician. I have a very good job selling pharmaceutical supplies, but my heart is still in the practice of medicine. I do volunteer work at the local hospital on my time off, and people tell me I would have made a wonderful doctor.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

If I go back to college and get my degree, then go to medical school, do my internship and finally get into the actual practice of medicine. It will take me seven years! But, Abby, in seven years I will be 43 years old. What do you think?

— UNFULFILLED IN PHILLY

DEAR UNFULFILLED: And how old will you be in seven years if you DON'T do it?

DEAR ABBY: We have an only child — a grown daughter we dearly love — and when we pass on, we want to leave her our entire estate, which is considerable.

The thing that troubles us is this: Our daughter is married to a very unworthy character. For years he has taken advantage of her sweet, forgiving, generous nature because he knows she worships him. We are sure that whatever we leave our daughter will be spent on this dirty dog.

How can we prevent this from happening?

— BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: There is no way you can control the way your daughter spends her inheritance. But feeling as you do about her husband, please consider leaving a nice sum to your local animal shelter. That way you can be sure that some four-legged dogs will also benefit.

DEAR ABBY: Both of our sons have been married for about 15 years. Their wives were of normal weight when they married our sons, but one daughter-in-law weighs about 300 pounds and the other weighs about 225. Their ages are 35 and 37. Both our sons are good-looking, and neither is fat.

Our daughters-in-law seem to have no pride in their appearance, which upsets everyone in the family, except themselves. They are fat, they know it and they don't care! When they first began to put on weight, they tried various diets, pills, doctors, etc., but they both gave up and decided to "accept" themselves as they are.

They wear the wrong kind of clothes (shorts and blue jeans) without any apologies.

Our problem — my husband's. I don't know how do we cope with this? We are ashamed to be around them. Our sons have accepted the situation, but we seem unable to.

Perhaps we need more help, than the girls. Any suggestions?

— UPSET IN FLORIDA

DEAR UPSET: I am glad you suggested that perhaps the problem is yours, because it is. It's your privilege to avoid uncomfortable situations, but it's their right to dress and look as they please.

I urge you to look into counseling in order to help you accept that which you cannot change. You seem to be an intelligent woman. I hope for the sake of your sons' happiness and your own peace of mind that you learn to live and let live without being judgmental.

Anniversaries

The Tomlinsons

POCATELLO — Mr. and Mrs. Vern W. Tomlinson, former Magic Valley residents, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary at an open house June 29 in Pocatello.

Friends and relatives are invited to call from 3 until 6 p.m. at the LDS 15th ward, 1440 Lakeview Drive, Pocatello.

Tomlinson and Verona Perrins were married Dec. 21, 1934, in the Logan LDS Temple. They both attended Albion Normal, graduating in 1933. The couple lived in Almo and Jerome before moving to Pocatello where he retired in 1976 after spending 43 years in education.

They have three children, Lt. Col. (Retired) Gary Tomlinson, Seattle; Renee Petersen, Richland, Wash.; Ted P. Tomlinson, Ogdan; nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The Wisemans

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Wiseman will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary June 25 in Lihl Kai, Kihel, Maui, Hawaii.

They were married in Spokane in 1935 by the bride's father, Rev. Leo Totten, who founded Lidgerwood E. Presbyterian Church and was minister there at the time. The couple moved immediately to Twin Falls where they have lived since except during World War II. Two years ago they purchased property in Yuma, Ariz., where they now spend the winters.

The Wisemans have three children, Lynette Hall, Coeur d'Alene; Leonora Kireher, Portland, and Howard D. Wiseman, Vernal, Utah.

The Wisemans will return from Hawaii July 2.

The Whites

JEROME — Roger and Lois White will be honored at an open house June 30 in observance of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Friends and relatives are invited to call from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Jerome United Methodist Church.

White and Lois Simmons were married Sept. 3, 1960, in the Hansen Methodist Church. They have lived in the Twin Falls and Jerome communities.

The event is being hosted by their three children, Robyn White, Boise; Tracee White, Phoenix, Ariz.; and Jeff White, Jerome.

Auxiliary sponsoring wool fashions contest

BUHL — The Women's Auxiliary of the Idaho Woolgrowers Association is again sponsoring its annual "Make-It Yourself With Wool" contest, according to Jerri Cox, Buhl, state director.

All non-professional seamstresses over age 10 who sew, knit or crochet are invited to enter. The district contest is scheduled in October with junior and senior district winners entitled to enter the state competition in Burley Nov. 10-11.

Prizes will be awarded to all contestants, including fashion trips, sewing machines, wool fabrics, lamb pelts, steam irons and other sewing aids, the director says.

All entries must be at least 60 percent wool, and there will be special bonuses for winners using 100 percent wool. Judging is based on sewing, knitting or crocheting ability, fashion and the presentation of the contestant in modeling the garment.

There are juniors, junior, senior and adult divisions in each of the five districts in Idaho.

Entry blanks and more information about the contest may be obtained by writing or calling Mrs. Marvin Cox, Route 1, Box 124, Buhl, telephone 543-0031.

What's what

That simple utterance most commonly delivered aboard motor boats is "What did you say?"

You're typical, if you write 24 personal checks a month.

Get the fellow on the next stool that his toothbrush -- if any -- is blue. Odds are with you on that one. Blue is the American preference for toothbrushes generally, and the great preference of American men.

In Victoria, B.C., you can buy a tarantula the size of a pie plate for $185.

What the big cats do that little cats don't is roar.

TATTOOS

Q. Why are tattoos so much identified with sailors?
A. Because the first tattoos seen on western workers were picked up by Captain Cook's crewmen on Tahiti in 1769. The word "tattoo," in fact, comes from the Polynesian "tattoo."

Sixty-six nations make an international holiday of Labor Day. Or International Workers' Day, whichever. But none observe a Capitalists' Day, unless you ever to count Christmas.

Q. Was there ever a United States of South America?
A. Sort of. Simon Bolivar's "Gran Colombia" lasted eight years, but was dismembered finally into Venezuela, Colombia and Ecuador.

NOT TONIGHT

A headache remedy company in Great Britain conducted a survey to determine what excuse the typical ma's offered those rare occasions when he didn't want to engage in that thing called physical romance. Only one in 50 blamed the momentary disinclination on a headache. One in 11 said "too tired," or words to that effect. And one in 16 said "too drunk."

First, name the most famous battle between American Indians and whites. Second, name the state in which it occurred. Curious, but far more people can come up with the first answer -- the Battle of the Little Big Horn -- than the second -- Montana.

When you trace the origin of the word "Caribbean," you get to the origin of the word "cannibal."

Average hip measurement among the current New York models is still 33 inches.

Daily Horoscope

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If attended properly you should arise in a most happy frame of mind and can make a fine impression on those who count.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Go to see friends you admire and show that you want to see more of them in the future. You can enjoy some social pleasure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get deeply involved in your finest activities and you can improve your status easily.

Victoria Principal weds doctor in Dallas rite

DALLAS (AP) — Victoria Principal was married to Beverly Hills plastic surgeon Harry Glassman in the city she knows well as Pamela Ewing of television's "Dallas."

Only family members and close friends were allowed at the wedding Saturday evening at the Mansion hotel. But about 50 photographers and almost as many onlookers waited outside. After the ceremony, the newlyweds appeared briefly on a hotel balcony and waved.

Vows were exchanged under a bower of ivy and gardenias. A flutist played during the ceremony, performed by James K. Allen, associate justice of the Dallas County Court of Appeals.

The reception also was at the Mansion, a hotel that is the summer home for the actress while she films episodes of "Dallas."

The couple has no plans for a honeymoon, said hotel spokeswoman Julia Sweeney, who added she believed the couple took a trip before the wedding.

Ms. Principal's gown was made of silk chiffon and matte jersey, embroidered with 2,500 seed pearls, Ms. Sweeney said.

Dr. Harry Glassman, bride Victoria Principal all smiles married actress Deborah Rush in a ceremony attended by performers Meryl Streep and Dom DeLuise and advice columnist Ann Landers.

Saturday's wedding at the Christ the King Church was followed by a reception for 175 people at a country club in Morrilstown, said Frank McCormick, manager of the facility.

Ms. Streep, a bridesmaid, also celebrated her birthday Saturday and was given a cake during the reception, McCormick said.

Rush was nominated for a 1984 Tony Award for her role in the Broadway farce "Noises-Off" and also appeared in Woody Allen's "The Purple Rose of Cairo," said her father, Joseph Rush.

Cronkite, a film editor, and Ms. Rush will live in New York City, he said.

It is her second marriage and his first.

Princess may have new female bodyguard

LONDON (AP) — Princess Diana could become the first member of Britain's royal family to be protected by a woman bodyguard because she apparently found her last four male minders unsuitable, news reports said Sunday.

Several British newspapers predicted that one of Scotland Yard's 2,508 policewomen would be chosen as the new personal, armed guard for the 23-year-old princess.

Scotland Yard, London's police force, said in a statement Saturday that candidates should be intelligent, fluent in several languages, top-class marksmen, under 30 years old and single — because of the amount of traveling involved. It said male officers would be considered.

Cilento believes no mistake this time

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — Australian actress Diane Cilento, former wife of actor Sean Connery, married British playwright Anthony Shaffer, it was announced Sunday.

The ceremony was held Saturday at the bride's ranch in a northern Queensland rainforest.

"This time it feels right. I have made mistakes but I don't think this is one of them," said Mrs. Shaffer. It was her third marriage.

She wore a white chiffon ankle-length dress. News reports described the ceremony as "traditional" but offered no details.

Liddy son learned to deal with pressure

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — G. Gordon Liddy says the time he spent in jail for his part in the Watergate scandal taught his son to perform under pressure.

"When you're just a little kid standing on the front lawn being interviewed by Mike Wallace, Barbara Walters or CBS News, you've got to grow up a lot quicker than your peers," he said.

James Gordon Liddy, 24, graduated Friday from the Aviation Officer Candidate School at the Pensacola Naval Air Station and was commissioned an ensign. He now begins Naval pilot training.

Governor welcomes Cosby show member

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George Wallace says he doesn't get to meet many celebrities, but welcomed Keenan Keshia to the "Bill Cosby Show" into his Capitol office.

Keshia, who plays Rudy on the hit television series, spent a few minutes with Wallace on Friday. She was in Montgomery to launch an African-famine relief drive sponsored by a local radio station.

"I watch you on television," Wallace told the 6-year-old Keshia. "I don't get to see many television stars. I sure am glad to see you."

JOHN Z. DE LOREAN Divorce battle next

SOMERVILLE, N.J. (AP) — Former automaker John Z. DeLoorean and model Cristina Ferrare, who seemed inseparable throughout his drug trial last year, will meet in court again, but this time as opponents in a $10-million divorce case.

Both are expected to testify at a pretrial hearing here Wednesday before a judge who must decide whether to be settled in California where the husband, the host of a morning television talk show in Los Angeles. The court in California should continue its jurisdiction.

But DeLoorean wants the case settled in New Jersey, where the couple has an estate and where there is an equitable distribution law under which a spouse can get from all nothing, said his attorney, John J. Trombadoro.

At stake in the dispute are a 430-acre estate in the New Jersey community of Bedminster, a Fifth Avenue co-op apartment in New York City and property in California, with a total value estimated at more than $10 million.

Trombadoro said DeLoorean considered the $6 million Bedminster estate as the couple's primary residence during the last years of their marriage.

"New Jersey is the most logical place to litigate the property issue," he said. "It is the state with which both people have the greatest contact."

He said DeLoorean bought the Bedminster property four years ago and moved in permanently 2½ years later. Trombadoro said his client was forced to move his family to California temporarily last year for the trial.

DeLoorean, 60, was acquitted on Aug. 16 of charges he conspired to sell $2 million worth of cocaine to save his falling DeLoorean Motor Co. The failure of that sports car company is the subject of legal battles in Detroit and England.

Wildstein said DeLoorean's motion to have the case heard in New Jersey "is no more than harassment." He said it would disrupt his client's work schedule on the television show "A.M. Los Angeles."

"She never really resided in New Jersey," said Wildstein. He said she spent some time there to escape "the tremendous amount of press coverage" following DeLoorean's indictment.

The property dispute is complicated by a prenuptial agreement. Ms. Ferrare allegedly signed just before she married DeLoorean on May 2, 1973. In it, she reportedly agreed to keep all of her earnings as a fashion model and maintain separate bank accounts.

"She takes the position that the agreement is null and void," said Wildstein. "If she did sign it, she certainly did sign it knowingly."

"It was signed by her and John," countered Trombadoro. "It was a valid contract."

A hearing on the validity of that agreement is scheduled for July in Los Angeles.

The DeLooreans separated three weeks after his acquittal and Ms. Ferrare filed for divorce in Los Angeles on Oct. 5, citing irreconcilable differences.

Former Marine POW will appear before House

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Former Vietnam prisoner of war Robert Garwood says he's been subpoenaed to appear before a closed session of the House Task Force on MIAs and POWs, and says the government knows there are still Americans in Vietnam.

"I wrote them a letter offering to testify under oath at a public hearing," Garwood said. "And what I got in response was a subpoena to appear at a closed hearing."

"If they think I'm lying or not credible, why have a closed hearing?" he said late Friday. "If they have nothing to worry about, why not let people hear my testimony?"

On the question of whether Americans are still being held in Vietnam, he said, "They believe it and they know it's true."

The former Marine was court-martialed for collaborating with the Vietnamese while he was a prisoner. He was found guilty of collaborating with the enemy and assault on a fellow POW, while three former charges, including desertion, were dropped. He was captured in 1965 and freed in 1979.

Garwood, 39, said he received the subpoena for Thursday's hearing on Friday.

"I understand that the Asian-Pacific Affairs Subcommittee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee will have a meeting on this shortly, and I understand that Private Garwood will be one of the witnesses," Rep. Bill Hendon, R-N.C., said Saturday night.

But Hendon, a member of the POW-MIA task force, said he didn't know if the meeting would be open or closed. He said the meeting had not been announced officially but probably would be in the next few days.

Ted Sampley, deputy coordinator of the National Vietnam Veterans Coalition, criticized the subpoena.

"It's an ambush set up to discredit Bobby Garwood and again hide information from the American people," Sampley said Saturday at his home in Knston. "The majority of the members of the task force have adopted an attitude of when the news is bad — in this case that POWs are alive — kill the messenger."

Garwood said he believes more Americans will return from Vietnam. "I don't want them to come home and point their fingers at me for not doing all I could do to tell people about them," he said.

"No one can take away my feelings for those men. It's stronger than blood. The communists tried and they failed. The U.S. government tried and it failed."

He said the government doesn't want to admit it left soldiers in Vietnam.

"With the patriotism that has turned around in this country, what would people do if they learned Americans had been left there?"

Garwood said he saw as many as 70 Americans still held by the Vietnamese in the late 1970s, years after the communists said they had freed all prisoners. He said they were sent at two prisoner of war camps in Hanoi.

Sellers of tainted blood anger mother of youth

FONTANA, Calif. (AP) — The mother of a 12-year-old hemophiliac who died of AIDS complications says she is outraged at people who sell blood products her son needed kidney dialysis.

"I just can't see how a person can go in (to donate), knowing... there's a chance they have this disease — just to sell the blood for the money, not thinking of the poor little kid out there that needs the blood," said Guadalupe Andrade-Mendez.

"I do feel there should have been something done (to restrict such blood donations), or my baby would be alive today. And they had all the chance in the world to do it, and I don't see that the blood banks or anybody else did anything," she said

Saturday in a telephone interview.

Her son, Benjamin Andrade of San Bernardino, died Thursday in Kaiser Foundation Hospital at Fontana. The cause of death was officially listed as cardiac arrest with AIDS complications.

Doctors said they believe he contracted acquired immune deficiency syndrome through blood products he was given regularly to combat hemophilia, a disease in which natural blood-clotting protein is absent.

"He said, 'I love you' and not to cry," said Mrs. Mendez, 33.

Benjamin's hemophilia was diagnosed at birth, but for years he lived a nearly normal life and attended regular schools.

The AIDS was diagnosed in January 1984, and he had been hospitalized for the past three months.

AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, is an affliction in which the body's immune system becomes unable to resist disease. It is most likely to strike homosexuals, abusers of injectable drugs and hemophiliacs. It is apparently spread by sexual contact, contaminated needles and blood transfusions, but not by casual contact.

PG-13 Rating introduced

A new rating category in the place of PG is being introduced by the Motion Picture Association of America. It is designated PG-13. It is designed to give parents and guardians guidance for attendance of children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating system is now as follows:

- G: General Audiences, all ages admitted.
- PG: Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- PG-13: Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
- R: Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- X: No one under 17 admitted.

All those rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new, five-category system.

Larracochea, Osborne rule Open

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Boise's Nacho Larracochea repeated as the men's open singles champion and Carrie Osborne, also of Boise, won the women's open title during the final of the Times-News Twin Falls Open Tennis Championships Sunday.

Larracochea had a tough time in the finals, but finally polished off Rick Schultsmier of Boise, 4-6, 6-3, 6-0.

Osborne had an easier time beating Carolyn Matsuka of Twin Falls, 6-2, 6-2.

In the men's 35 singles competition, Boise's Dar Walters took a 6-2, 6-2 win over Cisco Limbago, also of Boise, for the title in that event.

Walters then teamed with Osborne in the open mixed doubles topping the team of Langdon and Griggs, 6-2, 7-6.

Walters and Osborne weren't the only double winners in the tournament.

Terry Newlan of Twin Falls placed first in the men's A singles competition with a 6-0, 6-2 victory over Joe Grimm. Earlier, Newlan ousted second-seeded Cory Alger 7-5, 6-7, 7-5.

Newlan then teamed with Mary

Ann Robbins of Twin Falls to win the mixed A doubles title defeating the Trevis Parks team 6-3, 6-4.

Although Lambago was ousted in the men's 35 singles event, he came back and won two doubles titles.

He teamed with Williamson in the men's 35 doubles event and the second seeded team went on to beat the pair of Ron Dibellus and Ray Skillings, 6-2, 6-2 Sunday in perfect tennis weather.

Earlier in the day, Skillings and Dibellus battled for the men's 45 singles title. Dibellus topped Skillings 6-3, 7-6.

After the victory in the men's 35 doubles, Lambago teamed with Klein to win the mixed 35 doubles title over the team of Skillings and Follett 6-2, 6-2.

In the men's B singles championship Rob Welch came away with a 6-4, 6-3 victory over Bill Hill.

In the women's B singles event, Julia Rankin had to go three sets with Chris Halcom before winning the B singles event 6-2, 6-7, 7-5.

Art Erickson won the men's 55 singles championship with a 7-6, 6-4 win over Bus Connor. Erickson reached the finals when Bob Boone defaulted.

In the women's A doubles event, one of the top seeded teams took the title.

The team of Olding and Rich managed to beat Rankin and Follett 6-4, 4-6, 6-7 for the victory.

The team of Whitney and Espinosa had a tough time on the way to their title in the women's B doubles event.

They played six games on Sunday including a 6-2, 1-6, 6-4 championship victory over the team of Crane and Baird.

Earlier Whitney and Espinosa eliminated the combo of Seabright and Stepp, 2-6, 6-3, 7-6.

It was the second disappointment for Seabright, who earlier was beaten by Carrie Barrett in the women's A singles event 6-7, 6-3, 6-2.

It was a family affair in the 45 mixed-doubles event as the Newcombs beat the Dibellus 6-4, 6-2.

Despite his winning the open singles title, Larracochea couldn't win both the singles and doubles title.

Larracochea teamed with Walters but were eliminated by the eventual champions, Swope and Langdon 7-6, 6-3.

In the championship match of the men's open doubles, Swope and Langdon downed the team of Crist and Hines by the same scores that they beat Larracochea and Walters 6-3, 7-6.

No. 14 settles Rupert

For Blakeley

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

Twin Falls' Jason Meyerhoeffer sinks a putt on No. 18

BLAKELEY — Burley's Glenn Blakeley got it up and down from behind the green on No. 14 to take the lead, and then protected it the rest of the way to win the Rupert Amateur Golf Championship Sunday.

Blakeley, who entered the day two strokes behind co-leaders Jason Meyerhoeffer of Twin Falls and former champion Dan Toolson of Rupert, caught up with those two six holes into Sunday's round and appeared headed away a couple of holes later.

But Meyerhoeffer bounced back into a tie with a 95-foot eagle putt on No. 13 to set the stage for the decisive 14th hole at the par-71 Rupert Country Club.

Meyerhoeffer knocked his tee shot on the par three hole perhaps 20 short of the cup while Blakeley's iron shot leaked over the back edge. Blakeley chipped back to within three feet and made the putt while Meyerhoeffer three putted.

From that point on it was largely a matter of shot matching as the final foursome put on a good driving demonstration.

Blakeley got it up and down for par when his second shot on 17 stopped a few feet short of the green and that was enough to assure him a two-stroke lead going into the final hole.

"I went to sleep a couple of times but I didn't do it because I was able to recover each time. The only time I didn't was No. 10," Blakeley said.

He also gave some credit to his driver, noting "that's the best round I've had driving for quite a while. The only one I didn't hit well was No. 18."

Blakeley, who picked up 10 points in the Idaho Cup Match chase with the victory, said Meyerhoeffer's eagle putt on 13 didn't rattle him because "I never knew how I was standing all day."

Blakeley won it with a 139 total — three under par — while Twin Falls' Perry Hanchey claimed second at 141. Hanchey threatened throughout the final five holes and just missed birdie putts on three of them.

"When I hit them I thought I'd made those putts on 15, 16 and 17," he said, "especially 15 and 16. But they stayed an inch outside."

Meyerhoeffer and Chick Cutler of Twin Falls tied at 142 but were paired

McEnroe eyes Wimbledon hat trick

By BOB GREENE
The Associated Press

WIMBLEDON, England — American John McEnroe begins the drive toward his third consecutive Wimbledon title Monday when he steps onto Centre Court at the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club to face Peter McNamara of Australia.

The defending women's champion Martina Navratilova, is scheduled to play her first-round match on Tuesday.

McEnroe, a tempestuous left-hander from New York who streaked to stardom on the famed grass courts here in 1977 when he blazed out of the qualifying to reach the semifinals, is heavily favored to reach the Wimbledon men's singles final for the sixth consecutive year and win his fourth crown.

Fourth-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden, who has won the last two Grand Slam tournaments, including the French Open earlier this month, will follow McEnroe onto Centre Court Monday, taking on hard-serving Slobodan Zivonjic of Yugoslavia.

Among other first-day matches will be No. 2 seed Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia against American Mel Purcell, No. 5 Anders Jarryd of Sweden against Italy's Claudio Panatta, No. 7 of Sweden against Hungary's Balazs Taroczy, No. 9 Johan Kriek of the United States against Paraguay's Victor Pecci, No. 13 Elliot Teltscher of the United States against Italy's Gianni Ocleppo and No. 16 Tim Mayotte of the United States against Trevor Allan of Australia.

American Zina Garrison, seeded eighth in the women's singles, will open up this two-week tournament by facing Elina Reinbach of South Africa, a qualifier.

Ever since his debut here in 1977, McEnroe has carried on a love-hate relationship with the tournament, media and British fans. In 1981, when he stopped Sweden's Bjorn Borg in the final, the All-England Club refused to give the brash American the honorary membership offered every champion.

But peace, albeit a tenuous one, has been made and last year a calm McEnroe, for several years now an honorary member of the club, played perhaps his finest tennis as he completely dominated the field, winding up the fortnight with a crushing defeat of Jimmy Connors in one of the most one-sided finals ever played here.

McEnroe once was ranked as high as seventh in the world on the Association of Tennis Professionals computer. But, just as he reached the zenith of his career two years ago, he tore knee ligaments and didn't return to the tour until this past December.

McEnroe and Lendl both bypassed grass court warmups here in England and returned to the United States after the French Open to practice there. McEnroe arrived here last Thursday, while Lendl flew to London on Saturday.

The 25-year-old New Yorker lost only three times all last year. His record so far this season still is impressive, 40-4, and bookies believe McEnroe will easily win on the famed grass courts of the world's most coveted Grand Slam tournament and claim the $165,000 first prize.

No. 2 Lendl, yet to show a champion's touch on grass, is next in the betting at 5-to-1, followed by Wilander, who earlier this month beat Lendl on slow clay in the finals of the French.

West German Boris Becker, 17, already being hailed as the best prospect since McEnroe himself, is fourth in the betting at 12-to-1, even though he does not figure among the 16 seeds.

Last week, Becker won his first Grand Prix title at the pre-Wimbledon Queens Club event in West London, picked up $32,000 and moved up to No. 20 in world rankings.

Finn captures Detroit GP

DETROIT (AP) — Keke Rosberg of Finland, overcoming an unscheduled stop for fresh tires 14 laps from the end, drove a Honda-powered Williams through the downtown streets Sunday to a solid victory in the Detroit Grand Prix.

Rosberg, 36, winning his fourth Formula One race, outran the rest of the 26-car field for his first triumph since the Dallas Grand Prix, last July.

The 1982 world champion took the lead on the eighth of 63 laps around the 2.5-mile, 20-turn circuit snaking around the high-rise Renaissance Center. And he stayed there the rest of the way, moving away to leads of more than 30 seconds by the halfway point in the 160-mile event.

Levi wins Atlanta in playoff

ATLANTA (AP) — Wayne Levi sank an 11-foot putt on the second hole of a sudden death playoff Sunday to defeat rookie Steve Pale for the championship of the $500,000 Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Golf Classic.

By Levi, claiming his eighth tour victory, and Pale, who had never finished better than 37d, parred the first extra hole after finishing in a 72-hole deadlock at 213, 15 under par on, the rolling hills of the 7,008-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

Levi, who earned $90,000 for the triumph, had a closing 67 and Pale shot a 69.

Miller sets money record

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Alice Miller shot a 2-under-par 70 Sunday, claiming her fourth victory of the year by six strokes and establishing a Ladies Professional Golf Association record for earnings in a season.

Miller, who only had three victories and $374,992 in her first seven years on the tour, finished the 72-hole Mayflower Classic with an 8-under 280.

Record victory for Palmer

BEACHWOOD, Ohio (AP) — Defending champion Arnold Palmer gained a record-setting 11-stroke victory in the Senior Tournament Players Championship Sunday.

The 11-stroke margin equaled the previous Senior record set by Rod Funchess in the 1983 Hall of Fame Classic, when he won by nine shots. Palmer's biggest victory margin ever was by 12 shots in the 1962 Phoenix Open.

Mason third, but Eagles settle for 11th

By The Times-News
and The Associated Press

BOZEMAN, Mont. — College of Southern Idaho sophomore Kindel Mason and his partner, Tim Black of Boise State, finished third in the team roping finals at the College National Finals Rodeo here Saturday, but the Eagles had to settle for 11th place.

Mason's teammate, George Schmidt, finished in a tie for fourth place in saddle bronc riding and failed to place in bareback riding.

CSI completed the rodeo with 154 points for 11th place, only the third time in a decade the school hasn't finished in the top 10.

Mason and Black, who finished fourth in their event in the second round, ended Saturday night's short-go finals with 30 points, for a fourth-place finish in Saturday night's short go. That total was 17 points behind Jimmy Stanzel and Frank Cranek of Sam Houston State, who took second place.

Scores in all events were based on average times and scores for the week-long rodeo.

Schmidt, who moved into the finals with a saddle bronc ride of 71 on Friday night tied for fourth place with Earl Hammond of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo with 141 points, 73 points out of third place. The CSI freshmen failed to record a score in Saturday's short go.

None of the other four CSI cowboys who qualified for nationals made it to the finals.

Sam Willis of Southwestern Oklahoma State and Tami Nobel of Sul Ross State were the stars as their schools captured the men's and women's team titles.

The Southwestern Oklahoma State men finished with 684 points of the week-long rodeo, followed by Sam

Wills finished third in steer wrestling average at 14.5 seconds after winding up fourth in Saturday's go in the event with a time of 4.8.

Teammate Bryan Wright helped secure the men's title for Southwestern Oklahoma by winning the saddle bronc average with 224 points and finishing second in the short-go with a ride worth 75 points.

However, Willis fell just short in his effort to win the national all-around title. He finished the season with 1,134.5 points, while Kent Richard of McNeese State was the winner with 1,181.5 points.

Richard finished fourth in bareback bronc average at the CNFR with 216 points after winding up third in the short-go with a score of 76.

The national titles are based on points earned by cowboys and girls during regular-season rodeos and then those picked up at the CNFR.

While the national and CNFR all-around cowgirl titles eluded Nobel — both went to Lisa Schetter of the University of Montana — Nobel and Jeff Schetter of Eastern New Mexico did accomplish a unique goal.

They became the first cowboy and cowgirl ever to combine for a CNFR team roping title by totaling 24.9 seconds in the average.

Nobel and teammate Jacquelyn Jenkins tied for third in average at the CNFR in goat lying at 26.7 seconds, while Nobel was 10th in barrel racing at 45.2 seconds. Also scoring points for Sul Ross was Jinita Williams, who was third in average in breakaway roping at 12.3 seconds.

Shaffer won the CNFR barrel racing average in 44.02 seconds and also

Stallions win USFL East crown in New Jersey

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Cliff Slouff threw a third-quarter touchdown pass and Ted Walton scored on a 46-yard interception return less than two minutes later as the Birmingham Stallions defeated the New Jersey Generals 14-6 to capture the United States Football League Eastern Conference title Sunday.

The Birmingham victory broke the Generals' 13-game winning streak at home and the Stallions defense ended Herschel Walker's string of rushing for at least 100 yards at 11 straight games by limiting the star running back to 73 yards.

Birmingham finished the regular season at 13-5, while New Jersey ended it 11-7.

The Stallions' first-round playoff game will be Saturday at home, while New Jersey also will be at home on Monday night. Their first-round opponents will be named by the league on Monday.

Slouff wiped out a 6-0 New Jersey halftime lead by driving Birmingham 58 yards in nine plays on its first possession in the second half. Slouff capped the drive by hitting Jim Smith on a 3-yard touchdown pass, the 20th TD reception for Smith this season.

Walton increased the margin to 14-6 just 1:53 later, picking off an errant Ron Reeves pass over the middle and then taking off down the right sideline untouched for the score. It was his first interception of the season.

New Jersey threatened twice in the final quarter, but Reeves fumbled at the Birmingham 16 to kill the first drive and light end Sam Bowers dropped a tipped pass in the end zone in the closing minute to spoil the season.

Roger Ruzek booted a 20-field goal for New Jersey with 7:52 left in the first quarter and added a 48-yard field goal with 1:57 left in the second quarter.

Walker finished the game with 73 yards on 25 carries and gained 2,411 on 438 carries during the season, the best single-season by a running back in professional football.

'Pokes, Meridian split

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—After a rough road trip, the Twin Falls Cowboys returned home Sunday and split a non-conference twinnill with the Meridian Rangers in American Legion baseball action.

The Cowboys, who dropped to 1-5 for the season with the split, came from behind to win the opener 8-7 in eight innings, but things were different in the second game. Twin Falls committed eight errors in losing to the Rangers 17-10.

In the first game, Meridian scored two runs in the first, but in the bottom of the first inning, the Cowboys notched a run.

Tim Crossman singled, stole second and Nick Baument slapped a single down the left field line scoring Crossman.

Meridian boosted its lead to 3-1 and in the bottom of the third inning, Twin Falls tied the score.

With one out, Matt Harr walked and Crossman doubled, putting runners at second and third. Kirk Slater singled scored the fourth.

In the fourth, the Rangers knocked in four runs against Cowboys starter Tommy Prater. Brad Brooks had the key hit in the fourth for Meridian.

Brooks, a 6-5 shortstop, went three for four in the game including a two run double in the fourth.

The Cowboys cut the deficit to a single run in the sixth when they pushed three runs across the plate.

Slater led off with a single, Baument walked and both runners scored on a double by Roy Ellis. After a pair of strikeouts and a pair of walks, Harr reached safely on an error on the first baseman.

In the bottom of the seventh, Twin Falls rallied to tie the score. Baument walked and advanced to second on a wild pitch. He went to third base on a single by Ellis and Baument later scored on a wild pitch.

In the bottom of the eighth, Geoff Cooper reached base on an error and David Cook came in as a pinch runner. After Harr sacrificed Cook to cond. Crossman drilled a double between the left and center fielder scoring Cook.

After Meridian scored three runs in the first inning of the nightcap, Twin Falls never caught up.

Rangers' starting pitcher Mike Reynolds had a no-hitter through three innings, but the Cowboys still managed to score three runs as Reynolds walked eight Cowboys.

After three innings Meridian led 8-3 with Don Brown, Dave Hanson and Jim Sraw knocking in two runs apiece.

Twin Falls knocked Reynolds out of the game in the fourth when the Cowboys scored five runs on four hits.

Crossy Bartholomew walked and scored on a single by Hart. Tim Crossman reached base on an error and both Crossman and Hart scored on a single by Baument. Ellis followed.

Baument by blasting a ball over the fence and the Cowboys were behind 9-4.

In the fifth inning, the roof came in on the Cowboys. Meridian took advantage of five Cowboy errors scoring eight runs in the inning. Billy Scott scored two runs and knocked in two more with a single.

Twin Falls scored a run in the fifth and sixth inning, but it was too late.

The Cowboys hit the road once again on Tuesday with a doubleheader in Rexburg, then will head to Montana for games in Bozeman and Billings.

Idaho Falls 16-9 Minico 4-5

RUPERT—Idaho Falls batters swept 23 hits and took advantage of eight Minico errors here Sunday on Southern Region "A" American Legion double-header from the Sage, 16-4 and 9-5.

The Russes did most of their hitting in the first game, picking up 15 hits off three different Minico pitchers and scoring nine runs in the second inning to put the game away early.

It took Idaho Falls until the top of the seventh inning to win the nightcap, however. The Russes' Doug Walker opened with a triple, and with one out, Steve Blvens singled him home to give Idaho Falls a 6-4 lead. After Mark Herrera walked, Mike Charlton doubled, scoring Blvens and Herrera. Brett Hansen scored the final run on a fielder's choice after being hit by a pitch to get aboard.

Minico had trailed until the fifth inning of the nightcap, scoring three runs to tie the game. After Scott Asson's leadoff walk, Marty Carter singled and Tim Palko got aboard on an error as Asson scored. Mark Simpson drove in two runs with a single.

Steve Busch, Tim Woods and Asson allowed Idaho Falls just four hits in the second game.

The lone dropped Minico's season record to 5-3 and its conference mark to 2-4. The Sage will play a doubleheader in Boise against the Gems on Friday and two in Meridian next Saturday.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Mike Roter scored four touchdowns and Ed Luther passed for 370 yards to lead the Jacksonville Bulls to a 42-6 triumph over the Denver Gold Sunday.

Roter led Jacksonville's scoring parade with touchdown runs of 1, 34 and 8 yards and a 9-yard TD pass from Luther. Roter, whose 34-yard scamper was his longest of the season, finished the day with 98 yards rushing on 21 carries.

Roter had his best day hitting 18 of 23 passes for two touchdowns and only one interception before leaving the game with seven minutes left.

The Gunglins led the game with less than a minute to play when linebacker Reggie Oliver intercepted a tipped pass from reserve quarterback Kevin Starkey, who replaced Robinson. The passkey was intended for wide receiver Tom Johnson.

Cubs limited to two hits in 12th consecutive loss

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinal pitcher John Tudor is in a groove and is looking to stay there.

Tudor, 6-7, needed only 82 pitches to record a two-hit shutout Sunday for his fifth consecutive victory as the streaking Cardinals beat the Chicago Cubs 7-0.

Tudor went to great length to point out that it was not as easy as it looked.

"I don't care what their record is," said Tudor of the Cubs, who lost their 12th straight game. "That's a good baseball team. We know that when it gets to be August or September, they'll be here."

If Tudor keeps pitching like he did Sunday, the Cardinals might be there as well. The left-hander lost seven of his first eight outings this year, but has been unbeatable in 11.

In his last five starts, he has allowed just 21 hits and six runs, five earned, in 39 1/3 innings.

The Cardinals have won four straight, nine of their last 10 and 13 of 14, taking over first place in the National League East.

Sunday's victory completed their second three-game sweep of Chicago in 10 days.

Montreal 5 New York 1

NEW YORK (AP) — Vance Law hit a two-run homer, Tim Lincecum drove in a pair of runs with a triple and Bren Smith pitched a seven-hitter as the Montreal Expos defeated the New York Mets 5-1 Sunday.

Law's homer, his fourth of the season and third against the Mets, came on a 1-2 pitch in the fifth inning after Raines drilled a one-out single to give the Expos a 5-1 lead.

Philadelphia 3 Pittsburgh 2

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Juan Samuel scored on a throwing error in the ninth inning to boost the Philadelphia Phillies to a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Sunday.

Samuel was hit by a pitch from Pirate reliever Jim Winn, 2-3, leading off the ninth and moved to second when Winn balked. Rick Schu then bunted past Winn and Jim Morrison banded—the ball—and threw wildly to first, allowing Samuel to score.

Angels sweep Chisox, lead West by 2 1/2 games

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Witt has figured this way:

"If they get me four runs, I should win. If not, then I'm not doing it."

The California Angels got Witt four runs in the first inning Sunday on their way to an 11-1 triumph and a three-game sweep of the Chicago White Sox.

"The way I saw it, it was over in the first inning," said Witt, 6-6, who allowed but six hits and struck out eight in the seven innings he worked as the Angels made it four straight and opened a 2 1/2-game lead over the second-place White Sox in the American League West.

Toronto 8 Boston 1

TORONTO (AP) — Ernie Whitt hit the first grand-slam home run of his career and Rance Mulliniks crashed a two-run homer Sunday to span the Toronto Blue Jays over the Boston Red Sox 8-1.

The game was interrupted by a bench-clearing brawl in the fourth inning that began when George Bell charged the mound after a pitch in the helmet by a pitch from Boston's Bruce Kison. Bell kicked Kison in the groin area as both teams swarmed onto the field.

When order was restored nine minutes later, home plate umpire Derry Cousins ejected Bell, while Kison remained in the game.

Winner Dave Stieb, 7-5, allowed five hits over eight innings. The Red Sox scored their run in the eighth on a throwing error by second baseman Manny Lee. Kison, 3-2, took the loss.

Detroit 3 New York 1

DETROIT (AP) — Frank Tanana, making his first start in a Detroit uniform, pitched seven shutout innings Sunday and Chet Lemon hit a two-run homer as the Tigers beat the New York Yankees 3-0.

Tanana, 31, acquired in a trade Thursday with Texas for a minor-league pitcher, scattered eight hits as he improved to 3-7. Tanana, who was a former star at Detroit Catholic Central High School, struck out two and walked one.

Atlanta 2 Cincinnati 0

CINCINNATI (AP) — Steve Bronstein and relievers teamed up in a four-hitter Sunday to pitch the Atlanta Braves to a 2-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Bronstein, 4-6, blanked the Reds on one hit over six innings, yielding to Rick Camp in the seventh after giving up a pair of one-out singles. Camp pitched out of that trouble, and Bruce Sutter came in in the eighth to earn his 11th save.

San Diego 6 San Francisco 1

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Kurt Bevacqua belted his second grand slam of the year in the fifth inning and Dave Dravecky scattered nine hits as the San Diego Padres won their fourth consecutive game Sunday with a 6-1 decision over the San Francisco Giants.

Dravecky, 7-4, struck out a career-high nine batters while only walking one, giving up the Giants' only run on a two-out, ninth-inning homer by Rick Adams.

The Padres were leading 1-0 against Allee Hamaker, 3-7, when Mario Ramirez, starting at shortstop in place of Garry Templeton, led off the fifth with a single under the glove of third baseman Adams. Dravecky walked and Jerry Royster beat out a hunt to load the bases.

But Tony Gwynn hit into a first-to-catcher-to-first double play. Steve Garvey was intentionally walked for the second time in the game, bringing up Bevacqua, who had struck out on a 2-2 pitch in a similar situation the third time.

This time, however, Bevacqua picked on Hammaker's first pitch and drove it into the left field stands for his second homer of the year and a 5-0 Padres' lead.

Los Angeles 6 Houston 2

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hot-hitting Jose Guerrero led a Los Angeles club record with his 12th home run of the month and Rick Honeycutt and Tom Niedenfuer combined on a five-hitter as the Dodgers downed the Houston Astros 6-2 Sunday.

Guerrero, 10-1, blasted the Dodgers' fourth straight and their seventh in a row over Houston. The Dodgers have won 10 of 12 games with the Astros this season.

Baltimore 6 Milwaukee 3

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Larry Sheets' three-run homer—in the eighth inning Sunday powered the Baltimore Orioles to a 6-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Sunday.

Jim Dwyer opened the eighth by drawing a walk from Rollie Fingers, 0-3. One out later, Eddie Murray lined a double into the right-field corner, and when Ben Oglive misplayed the ball for an error, Dwyer scored and Murray went to third.

Texas 3 Minnesota 1

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Glen Cook, making his major league debut, pitched six shutout innings Sunday as the Texas Rangers defeated the Minnesota Twins 3-1.

Cook, who was recalled from Class AAA Oklahoma City on Thursday after Frank Tanana was traded to Detroit, gave up five hits, walked none and struck out two.

He retired 15 of 16 batters before giving up a one-out double to Mike Stenhouse in the seventh.

Seattle 8 Kansas City 2

SEATTLE (AP) — Spike Owen and Bob Kearney hit home runs while Mike Moore combined with Ed Vande Berg on a four-hitter Sunday to lead the Seattle Mariners to an 8-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Moore, 2-1, struck out his 11th home run since going down with a pulled muscle June 4, gave up three hits over 6 1/3 innings and raised his record to 4-5. Vande Berg retired the first seven Kansas City batters he faced before Steve Balboni hit his 11th homer with two outs in the ninth.

Oakland 9 Cleveland 3

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Garney Lansford hit his 11th home run of the season as Mike Heath had a triple, double and single and drove in two runs Sunday to lead the Oakland A's over the Cleveland Indians 9-3.

Heath drove in the game's first run in the fourth inning with a single off Neal Heath, 4-8.

NOTICE OF INTENDED RULE-MAKING

In compliance with Section 67-203(a)(1), Idaho Code, notice is hereby given that the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Community Rehabilitation, has initiated rule-making under Docket Number 0405-8501. Involves the amendment of the rules governing Respite Care, Title 4, Chapter 5, Rules and Regulations of the Department of Health and Welfare. The action is proposed under the authority granted in Section 35-4703, Idaho Code, for the purpose of implementing the provisions of Section 4703, Idaho Code, effective as soon as possible.

The following is a descriptive summary of the substance of the intended action and the principal issues involved:

Amend current regulations to omit Standard Agreement, and permit direct vendor authorization and payment process.

The time limits specified below, anyone can review the proposed rules in the Administrative Procedure Section or in any of the regional administrative offices of the Department. Copies of the proposed rules will be made available by the undersigned and upon request specifying the docket number cited above.

Anyone can submit written comment regarding the proposed rules, and any individual or industry who may be affected by the proposed rules is encouraged to submit information concerning the anticipated economic impact of the proposed action. For questions concerning the proposed rules, contact Paul Swaisberg, Director, Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Community Rehabilitation, (208) 334-4181, Boise. All written comments and data concerning the proposed rules must be directed to the undersigned and delivered on or before July 15, 1985, from twenty-five (25) or more interested persons or from an association presenting a petition with signatures of not less than twenty-five (25) members of the organization, or from a governmental subdivision or agency. Hearing requests should include a statement of the direct interests of the petitioner(s) in the proposed rules. Any hearing site(s) will be accessible to the physically disabled. Interpreters for persons with hearing impairments and brailled or taped documents for persons with visual impairments can be provided upon five days notice. For arrangements, contact the undersigned at (208) 334-4181.

DATED this 13th day of June, 1985.

Andrew W. Cover, Supervisor, Administrative Procedure Section, Division of Management Services, Department of Health and Welfare, 450 West State Street, 9th Floor, Boise, Idaho 83720-9990.

PUBLISH: Mondays, June 24, July 1, and 8, 1985.

NOTICE OF INTENDED RULE-MAKING AND NOTICE OF REGULAR RULE-MAKING

In compliance with Sections 67-5203(a)(1), Idaho Code, notice is hereby given that the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Community Rehabilitation, has initiated rule-making under Docket No. 0304-8505E. Involves the amendment and renumbering of rules governing Food Stamps, Title 3, Chapter 4, Rules and Regulations of the Department of Health and Welfare. The action has been taken under the authority granted in Section 56-202(b) and Section 39-106(1), Idaho Code, for the purpose of implementing the provisions of 7 CFR 273.2, and 7 CFR 273.7(n), effective May 1, 1985.

Emergency rule-making is necessary because the failure to implement these provisions would result in a compliance issue which would require the agency with which to administer the Food Stamp program and could result in over-issuances recipients would have to repay. Also federal regulations require immediate implementation of these changes.

The rules which were adopted by emergency procedures on the 22nd day of April, 1985, and proposed rules in the filed by the undersigned on the 28th day of April, 1985, became effective on the 1st day of May, 1985, and will expire at the end of one hundred twenty (120) days on the 30th day of August, 1985.

The following is a descriptive summary of the substance of the emergency action in Docket No. 0304-8505E:

1-3-4000 - The Quality Control Section will be amended, to streamline the text and to require that households who refuse to cooperate in the review be determined ineligible until they agree to cooperate within 95 days following the end of the review period if the household provides all verification prior to certification.

2-3-4231 - The primary wage earner is amended to require that household members excluded from the program for non-compliance with the Social Security Number requirements for the household are subject to the primary wage earner determination.

In addition, notice is also given, in compliance with Section 67-5203 (a)(1), Idaho Code, that the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Community Rehabilitation, has initiated regular rule-making under Docket No. 0304-8505.

The material in 1-3-4000 and 2-3-4231 described under 1 and 2 above will be finalized.

2-3-4000.04 - Allotment levels for recipients amended to require that deductions of new household members be counted prospectively the month they are added, and the month thereafter, and to require that corrective PIA supplemental payments be counted retroactively for the month of application.

3-3-4310-33 - Certification period amended to allow one month for households eligible only the month of application.

3-4-403.01 - Monthly reporting amended, to require that monthly reports be filed by the 15th of the month following the month of application or within five (5) days following approval if approved in a month following application.

Within the time limits specified below, anyone can review the DHW Bureau of Administrative Services or in any of regional administrative offices of the Department. Copies of the proposed rules will be made available upon written request specifying the docket number cited above.

Anyone can submit written comment regarding the proposed rules, and any individual or industry who may be affected by the proposed rules is encouraged to submit information concerning the anticipated economic impact of the proposed action. For assistance on technical questions concerning the proposed rules, contact Linda L. Caballero, Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Community Rehabilitation, (208) 334-4007, Boise, Idaho. All written comments and data concerning the proposed rules must be directed to the undersigned and delivered on or before July 15, 1985, from twenty-five (25) or more interested persons or from an association presenting a petition with signatures of not less than twenty-five (25) members of the organization, or from a governmental subdivision or agency. Hearing requests should include a statement of the direct interests of the petitioner(s) in the subject matter of the proposed rules. Any hearing site(s) will be accessible to the physically disabled. Interpreters for persons with hearing impairments and brailled or taped documents for persons with visual impairments can be provided upon five days notice. For arrangements, contact the undersigned at (208) 334-4181.

DATED this 30th day of May, 1985.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"When I want your opinion I'll give it to you." - Laurence J. Peter.

If East tries to beat today's game without input from West, it is likely to be wrong. To defend accurately, East must know how many hearts South has. And only West can be counted on for reliable information.

Dummy's diamond jack is covered by East's king and South wins the ace. The heart jack is overtaken in dummy and East ducks. A club is finessed to South's jack and West's queen, and West exits with second diamond to South's 10. South leads the heart five to dummy's 10, and it's decision time for East. Should he take his ace or wait one more round to keep South from heart setting?

You readers can see South's doubtless heart, so you know that East should take the second heart, holding South to only eight tricks. How can East know at the table?

In the heart jack, West should play his heart second. The second heart is led, West follows with the deuce. The high-low signal promises an even number of hearts and East will know that South has only two. (With four, South certainly would have raised hearts.)

In a hand where one defender needs information regarding distribution, low-high shows an odd number and high-low shows an even number.

NORTH ♠ 7 6 5 4 ♥ K Q 10 8 ♦ J 6 ♣ 5 4 2

WEST ♠ 4 3 ♥ 7 6 4 2 ♦ A 9 8 3 ♣ K Q 10 8

EAST ♠ 10 9 8 2 ♥ A J 9 3 ♦ K 7 3 2 ♣ A 9 7 6

Vulnerable: East-West. Dealer: South. The bidding: South West North East 1♣ Pass 1♥ Pass 3NT Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Diamond four

LEAD WITH THE ACES

South holds: ♠ A 3 2 ♥ J 7 3 2 ♦ J 4 ♣ 10 8 2

West North East South 1♣ Pass 1♥ Pass 3NT Pass Pass Pass

ANSWER: Diamond jack. Possession of first-round control in trumps makes the doubling lead a good choice.
