Jobless rate up in August

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate remained relatively stable during August, creeping up only slightly to 5.4 per cent, the Labor Department said today.

The August rate was up from the July figure of 5.3 per cent, which has been the level for most of 1974. The Labor Department said 88.2 million persons were employed during August, virtually unchanged for the past two months.

The unemployment rate for August translates to about 4.9 million Americans out of work. Economists meeting at the White House Thursday predicted that next year the unemployment rate would reach 6 per cent.

During August, the unemployment rates for adult women, whites, blacks, household heads and married men showed little or no change. The Labor Department also reported that average weekly hours in the private non-farm sector of the economy turned down slightly to 36.7 in August, compared to 36.8 in July.

The unemployment rate has risen 0.8 per cent from last October's low-level of 4.6 per cent.

The brunt of the increased unemployment in August appeared to be carried by young men ages 20 to 24 years old and workers 55 years old and over.

Evel's guards expect trouble

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A few of Evel Knievel's guards expect trouble from large crowds coming to Knievel's jump.

One guard concerned even armor-plated his pickup truck with a piece of sheet steel.

Most however, were in a jovial mood, Thursday, saying they expect no trouble.

The guards, many of them out-of-state spectators hired after their arrival in Twin Falls, reported no serious confrontations.

Guards were most apprehensive at the post at the top of the Shoshone Falls grade, where an emergency road has been closed.

Security chief at the post, Don Butterfield, said he did not expect trouble. "If there is no piling class against class."

Butterfield said there have been numerous catcalls and derisive gestures from passing motorists camped at the Shoshone Falls Park below. Additionally, there have been threats by bikers to crash the gate and proceed to the jump site on Sunday, the day of Knievel's jump. Butterfield said:

"He said many people think the road is on city property and should be open to the public. But the road at the point of closure is on private land," he said. "A group of students from CSI had threatened to break the barrier to assert their supposed access rights," he said.

Adjacent city property running along the road and the canyon rim to the jump site was closed Wednesday by the Twin Falls City Council.

Despite the official closure, Butterfield said the Shoshone grade post was the most likely trouble spot. To protect himself, he has armored the back of his pickup truck with a sheet of quarter-inch-thick steel.

"I wish this week was over with," a second guard at the grade outpost, Pat Campbell, said Wednesday.

On the west end of the jump site, at a second emergency access along the end of Pole Line Road, the two private security guards were in a jovial mood Thursday.

Both Richard Morales and Juan Trevino said they had had no trouble. Residents living along Pole Line Road and passing through the gate have been giving them soft drinks every hour, they said.

"This is a peaceful place over here," said Trevino, a Laredo, Tex., resident who came to Twin Falls in April to work the gate. "It's a pretty good paying job to do nothing, to guard the gate."

"Security is well organized," Morales said. He complained that there were no showers or bathing facilities at the jump site.

Morales, a Whittier, Calif., student turning the country on a 19-speed bicycle, said he thought Evel Knievel was a hero.

"I think it would be near for him actually being in the cockpit," he said. "I hope they'll be cheering him on. He's choosing his way to die. He's a hero already."

TF woman critical

TWIN FALLS — Virginia Cuts, 59, Twin Falls, was reported in critical condition at Magie Valley Memorial Hospital today following a traffic accident near Kimberly.

Mrs. Cuts suffered severe head injuries and a fractured right arm and was scheduled to be transferred to a Boise hospital for special treatment later today. An Air Force helicopter from Mountain Home was expected to fly her to Boise.

A cook at the Horse Stu Club at Jackpot, the woman was reportedly crossing Highway 30 two miles east of Kimberly when her vehicle collided with a section of a mobile home being moved in that area.

The accident occurred about 5 p.m. Thursday.

Mid-east buying power eyed

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — A second California Army National Guard armory has been burglarized and another load of weapons hauled away, the FBI said Thursday.

The FBI agents said the break-in occurred Tuesday night or early Wednesday at the local armory and the burglars bypassed the facility's electronic surveillance system.

'Perfect day' greets fair crowds

By MARGE LIERMAN
Times-News writer

FILER — Another perfect fall day greeted west end fairgoers who began arriving Friday morning for their special day at the fair.

Thursday's attendance, which tallied 14,795, was down slightly from a year ago's second day which was slightly over 15,000. This year's first two days' attendance is still about 350 above previous records. Fair officials expected today's make up for that — and say they think Saturday will be the largest day.

A total paid attendance of 3271 at Thursday night's rodeo surpasses previous Twin Falls day attendance by at least 25. Fair officials said 52 more reserved seats were sold than before. General admissions were down about 30 and the 354 box seats were all sold. It is not known how many persons holding passes were in attendance.

Today the big Western Register of Merit Hereford show was conducted, with fine cattle with impressive bloodlines being shown in the cattle ring and competing in 22 classes for premiums — in 12 or more places.

This morning also saw home economics judging contests and style reviews, a 4-H and FFA dairy springer heller sale in the dairy barn and FFA livestock judging contests.

Frank and Bill Campbell, Wendell, received the grand champion trophy for Charolais bulls with reserve champion going to Ray Roberts, Wendell, in the Charolais show Thursday.

Clarence Miller, Jerome, received the female Charolais champion trophy and the Campbells received the reserve champion.

The Dairy-Deeds 4-H Club, Filer, has chucked up an enviable record with all blue ribbons. Diana Tucker received the grand champion in the green division, filling and showing, and John Holloway was reserve champion and also was grand champion in dairy quality.

Both members have been in 4-H work for six years.

Violent crimes rise in Idaho

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Crimes of violence and crimes against property rose sharply in Idaho last year, although the overall index of rise showed just a slight increase.

Statistics released today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation showed crime rising six per cent from 1973 totals. Two crime categories — forcible rape and murder and negligent manslaughter, — showed slight decreases in Idaho while all other crimes rose.

Idaho's population increased only 1.8 per cent during the time period, making little effect on the crime statistics.

Statewide during 1973 violent crimes rose 15 per cent, property crimes rose about 69 per cent, murder and non-negligent manslaughter declined about 11 per cent, forcible rape declined slightly, robbery rose 33 per cent, aggravated assault rose about 19 per cent, burglary increased about 15 per cent and auto theft rose about 15 per cent.

The larceny category was revised and enlarged last year invalidating comparisons between the two categories.

In 1973 reported crimes occurred 2,134.4 times for each 100,000 residents.

Because of the small numbers involved, statistics regarding rape and murder in Idaho are misleading. While 29 cases of murder and non-negligent manslaughter were reported, in 1973 a total of 20 were reported in 1973.

In 1973, 109 forcible rapes were reported compared to 118 the year before.

Jump ramp area crowded

Jump viewers crowd TF camps, motels

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News

TWIN FALLS — With fewer than 48 hours remaining until Evel Knievel's canyon stunt, thousands of visitors made a steady stream into Twin Falls campgrounds and motels.

With the out-of-town throng estimated at between 5,000 and 10,000 people, problems so far seem relatively minor. Sheriff's deputies and city police, many of whom are working 12-hour shifts, reported only the usual minor disturbances of last nights.

drunks, traffic accidents and occasional nudity.

We're tied up," one deputy said as he reported no major incidents.

Jump site campground entrepreneur Keith Kungs estimated about 5,000 people had used the camping facilities. With finals of the professional molo-cross race set for today, Kungs reported an early morning sale of 600 day parking tickets.

At Shoshone Falls, a crowd of campers dotted the hillside with tents, campers, vans and motorcycles. City manager Jean Millar estimated up to 1,000 people were camping in the park.

Millar reported no particular problems and said "no unusual or unprecedented things have happened." The area is being patrolled 12 hours a day by Twin Falls city police officers with the "main objective" to keep access to the area open.

In case of emergency or accident, Millar said.

Merchants in town reported heavy tourist use of motels, bars, restaurants and grocery stores. But other businesses are experiencing only slight Increases in customers, according to one local merchant. The man behind it all, Evel Knievel, was back and forth to his hometown of Butte, Mont.

In the commentator's dream, Lear jet. Up to 200 national and international press people had arrived to cover the Sunday jump.

Celebrities — names were whispered — but the only "stars" sighted so far were Dustin Hoffman, Steve McQueen and Al McGraw, all reported to be "camping somewhere else than the big motels.

Secret service agents were in the process of working out arrangements for the visit of President Gerald Ford's two sons.

The biggest influx of visitors is expected late Friday night, and Saturday, after the work week is finished. Promoters for the jump are still saying they estimate a paid crowd near 50,000.

At a Thursday press conference, promoter Bob Arum of Top Rank said Knievel was willing to bet anyone ticket sales would reach 45,000.

No sidearm policy adopted for most jumpsite security guards

BY GEORGE WILEY
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The main force of private security guards at the Evel Knievel jumpsite has given up its guns.

The no-sidearm policy, however, does not extend to authorized private security guards on the north side of the Snake River Canyon across from the jumpsite, nor does it apply to a smaller force of shot-gun toting private guards hired to protect television equipment, launch control equipment and celebrities at the jumpsite itself.

Intermountain Security, Boise, and Sentry Security, Twin Falls, which have combined operations to furnish about 150 crowd control guards during the jump, have adopted a no gun policy for their men at the jumpsite.

According to Intermountain operator Dick Stanley, the move follows a directive by the security companies' insurance agent. The directive also follows newspaper criticism Tuesday of threats to use firearms to prevent access to city property adjoining the jumpsite.

The disarm-policy effects about 60 to 65 men stationed at the jumpsite. Some guards at key points have said they have guns within reach.

On the northside, where about 45 men are working to prevent access to north rim lands and protect private property, men authorized by Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall have been encouraged to arm themselves, according to Sentry chief Dudley Dene. Several guards on the northside, however, said they would not wear guns even though they had been asked to do so.

Stanley said the no guns policy at the jumpsite will have little effect on security operations.

"There isn't a damn thing here shooting a man over his head," he said.

In the case of emergency, Intermountain will call in Sheriff's officers and assist only at the direction of the sheriff, Stanley said.

In the case of overt violence or destruction, Stanley said, his men would step in to control the situation, but only at the direction of the sheriff. He acknowledged, however, that there is a "grey area" between supervision of the jump site and the control of overt acts.

"If we see a man set a fire, we are going to stop him," he said.

Stanley noted that the function of security officers, however, was primarily to protect property, not to act as law enforcement officers.

"Security takes care of the properly up to the time an overt act happens," Stanley said. "In the case of an overt act, the security officer here has many other citizens he is normally available to aid the police."

The no-gun policy does not apply to all security forces at the jump-site. A three man force hired to protect ABC television equipment, members of the press and celebrities are still carrying guns and will continue to do so. The force may be expanded to 12 men later in the week as jump activity increases, according to security contractor Tom Majors.

All of his men were already police officers from Magic Valley who have been trained in the use of firearms. He said they are not directly involved in crowd control, although available to aid the sheriff in an emergency.

"None of my people have had any occasion to show force of any kind," Majors said. "We're not out there looking for trouble. We're out there to prevent it and to get our way out of it period. We have no intentions of using these weapons."

In addition to the officers at the jump site, Majors said he has about 60 men working as private security guards at businesses in Twin Falls and Kimberly.

So far, he said, he has had no trouble stemming from the jump activities.

Majors said he has had nothing to do with Evel Knievel directly and was hired by the daredevil.

Knievel's public relations representative Shelley Saltman said reports that Knievel had threatened to use a "goon squad" to prevent unauthorized sales of Evel Knievel merchandise had been "overemphasized."

Saltman said Knievel was merely displaying bravado Tuesday when he encountered a shirt salesman outside a local motel and threatened him with "goon squad" retaliation if the unauthorized sales were not halted.

One guard was fired for drinking, Stanley said, and a few guards had fallen asleep during the night. However, both Stanley and Dene said the guard posts were frequently checked by supervisors on a 24-hour basis.

Many of the guards have been hired among out-of-state spectators who arrived early for jump activities. The security agencies were able to hire only 25 per cent of their men from local groups approved by county sheriffs, Dene said. He admitted that with a quick Saturday hiring such as had occurred some problem individuals would be hired.

"I'm disappointed that more local people didn't come out," Dene said. The guards are paid $2.50 per hour.

"These guards have been picked up fast," said Del Hunterfield, a supervisory guard stationed at the top of the Sheshone Falls Grade.

"Local law enforcement was not acquainted with things like this. The key men at different points are well trained," Stanley said. He said there have been no major crowd control problems so far.

The biggest problem at the jumpsite has been the tearing down of about 40 feet of protective cyclone fencing which had to be re-erected, Vic Peterson, Intermountain security chief said.

"I don't care where it is, you'll have problems with people," he added.

Guard equipment

MOST, but not all, private security guards at the Evel Knievel jump site have given up wearing guns. Among those with weapons are specially deputized men hired to protect expensive equipment and celebrities at the jump site, according to security operator Tom Majors. Above, shot-gun toting men hired by Majors stand guard over Evel Knievel's equipment at the base of the launch pad.

Publisher praises Evel

BUTTE, Mont. (UPI) — The publisher of Evel Knievel's hometown newspaper has praised Knievel for his courage in a front-page "open letter" to the stuntman who is scheduled to jump the Snake River Canyon Sept. 8 on his now famous skycycle.

The letter, signed by Dr. "Scotty" Campbell, appeared in today's edition of the Butte Montana Standard.

"I admire raw courage — and I don't think it's foolhardy courage — but courage in the face of risks that are carefully calculated and then carried out," Campbell said. "I admire your cool confidence, without which success is seldom attained."

Campbell praised Knievel's "red-white-and-blue" Americanism, adding, "our country certainly needs a hefty shot of unabashed pride in its colors, however presented."

"The Butte newspaper publisher wrote that Knievel is a 'living, breathing answer for the man or woman who says, 'What can I do? I'm just one individual.'"

Campbell concluded:

"I admire Evel Knievel the super stuntman, promoter and showman, but I think I admire Bob Knievel the individual even more. So give 'er hell, Bob! There's a little bit of all of us riding that skycycle with you."

Naturally, Campbell signed it, "Happy Landings!"

YMCA program outlined for boys

TWIN FALLS — A variety of classes are being offered to boys under the YMCA program.

Classes being offered are tumbling, six-man flag football, model building and a class for beginning wrestling. An archery class for both boys and girls is also being offered.

Sign-up for the classes will be done during next week. The classes will start the following week.

The tumbling class, under the direction of Mrs. Sandra Haynes, is offered to boys in the first through sixth grades. Sign-up for the class will be Tuesday and regular classes will start on Sept. 17 at 6:30 p.m.

Six-man football for boys in the first through fourth grades sign-up will be Sept. 14 at Harmon Park from 10 a.m. to noon. A football clinic will also be held at that time. The regular season will get underway Oct. 5.

Boys in the first through sixth grades will have the opportunity to build, paint and decorate their own "model" automobiles, ships or airplanes in the model building class for beginners. Sign up will be Tuesday and regular classes will start Sept. 17 being held

Survey shows 'no vacancies'

TWIN FALLS — There is no room in the motel, hotel or hotel in the Twin Falls-Burley area.

In a Times-News Survey of small, medium and large motel complexes in Twin Falls and Burley, most all reported no room through the weekend.

Rooms at various motels are filled by Evel Knievel fans and motor-cycle racers, some are filled with pilgrims and a few have been filled for weeks prior to the week with construction and other contract workers.

Most complexes report little or no chance of getting a place

Riggs plans to win bet

CEDAR CITY, Utah (UPI) — A chattering but stiff Bobby Riggs straddled his tiny motorcycle early today on his ride to Twin Falls to collect a $25,000 bet from Evel Knievel.

Riggs, 57, said he still has two days to make the motorcycle trip to the site of Knievel's jumps and a few of the Snake River canyon. "I plan to win this bet. With $6 million he's getting for the jump. It won't hurt him a bit."

"The tennis 'hustler' said he made the bet with Knievel after he took $5,000 from the motorcycle daredevil in a golf bet. "When he heard I'd never ridden a motorcycle, he bet me I couldn't make the 696 mile ride on a Harley Davidson 175 in 72 hours."

Riggs left here wearing his yellow "sugar daddy" jacket and trousers, backed up by a receptionist, trailer carrying a fried chicken, ham and cheese sandwiches, and 24 cases of soda pop.

ESTATE BOND!

WHY DO YOU NEED THIS PROTECTION?

Because recent legislative changes in Idaho have almost abolished any safeguards for your inheritance and for creditors of decedents. The distribution of every estate was in the past handled by a trained attorney and supervised by a court, and the heirs, beneficiaries and creditors were in the past protected by surety bonds guaranteeing reimbursement for any negligent or wrongful loss of the assets of the estate. Under the probate system now adopted, all of these safeguards have been abandoned. The fate of your inheritance or the debt owed you now lies in the unrepresented and unopposed hands of the personal representative of the estate. Although the personal representative may be, and usually is, untrained in financial matters, he is free to manage and dispose of the estate as he sees fit.

Please don't yield to the misconception that because your interest in the estate, or the estate itself, is small, you don't need this protection. The protection afforded by this bond is especially valuable in a smaller estate because the personal representative in such a case is usually less experienced and his inheritance generally means more to those to whom it is due.

Western Surety Company, one of America's oldest bonding companies, will guarantee your interest in an estate whether as an heir or a creditor. Simply clip this notice out of your newspaper and take it to your local Insurance Agent. He will submit your application for this bond. All well established Insurance Agencies in Twin Falls and surrounding cities represent the Western Surety Company.

Good time to change second-hand diplomats

(C) New York Times Service
BRUSSELS — President Ford has not had time to look over the United States ambassadors he inherited from the Nixon administration in Europe...

The diplomatic problem in this part of the world is only one of the many hangovers of Watergate. Not in all cases, but in many, ambassadorships were bartered for campaign contributions and for months during the Watergate crisis decisions on appointing or replacing ambassadors were long delayed.

Of the 20 U.S. diplomatic missions in the West, including Canada, 15 are headed by Nixon political appointees and five are professional foreign service officers. All seven of the diplomatic posts in the Communist countries of the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe are filled by career officers.

The United States is well represented in some of these missions. It has effective political ambassadors at NATO, Donald Rumsfeld, a former Illinois Congressman, and in Dublin, John T. Moore of New Jersey. And it has strong professionals in West Germany, Martin Illerbrand; in Turkey, William Macomber; and in Moscow, Walter J. Stoessel.

Elsewhere on the continent the missions are not as influential as they might be and have not adapted to the new leaders governments in this part of the world.

Secretary of State Kissinger has been aware of this problem for some time, but under President Nixon he was not able to make all the changes he wanted, either in the State Department or in the embassies. Incidentally, the key economic post at the State Department has been vacant for months at a time when economic questions are vital to the conduct of American foreign policy.

Much will depend on the diplomatic field as in other fields, however, on whether President Ford decides that he wants to give the impression of continuity or change.

The men who planned the transition for Ford, including Ambassador Rumsfeld here, urged more and faster change, both in Washington and in the embassies.

Ford may of course make many changes before the election or the start of the new year. He wanted to avoid calling for everybody's resignation, as Nixon did at the end of his first term — a move much criticized at the time — but the new President's freedom of action will undoubtedly decline if he waits too long. He is in an ideal position to put his own teams in place both at home and abroad. Outstanding men and women who did not want to join the Nixon administration during the Watergate crisis are available to Ford now.

Chancellor Schmidt of West Germany was making a point in Bonn the other day that the industrial nations had to work out their inflation problems together and do so urgently, and he emphasized that this would require day-to-day consultation.

In recent years, the level of consultation with the ambassadors in Washington, London, Paris, Moscow and Tokyo had declined. Only the Soviet ambassador in Washington, Anatoly Dobrynin, has been in day-to-day contact with Kissinger. But he has in the process demonstrated how important embassies can be when the right men are appointed to the critical posts.

Time for hospitality

The true test of our community hospitality will come this weekend as tens of thousands of people gather to watch Evel Knievel's jump.

Hospitality is part of life here. There are few Magic Valley families who have not taken some out-of-state visitor out to watch Shoshone Falls during runoff and other local sights.

But hospitality is usually offered in small doses to small groups of friends or relatives. Hospitality is a much harder thing when the host city is facing perhaps 100,000 people, many of whom will look, act, talk and think differently from the modes of conduct familiar to valley people.

One response to droves of strange-looking visitors is to go into a kind of cultural shock, ending with fear and resistance to the guests. Visitors then become intruders, open doors become shut. An open, friendly community becomes something else.

There is no reason for this to happen here. To begin with there is little reason for anyone to be afraid of anyone. The people who already have arrived at our city have conducted themselves in a polite, reasonable manner. There has been no crime wave, or reason for citizens to entrench.

Should trouble develop, the well-managed sheriff's department has backup from other local police departments, the Idaho State Police and the National Guard.

There will be many inconveniences the community will face. Traffic congestion may become a nightmare on the northeastern side of town in the vicinity of the jump site.

There will be longer lines in the grocery stores and the drive-in restaurants. But these difficulties will soon pass and should not be cause for alarm.

Our hope is the community will recognize our visitors are human beings, not threats, and extend friendly, patient welcome to all.

Strong moves studied

(C) Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — To tame the inflation rate, President Ford may be forced to consider measures that could significantly alter current habits of American consumers, according to a White House economic adviser.

William Seligman, executive director of the firm of meetings preparatory to a summit conference on inflation later this month, says that "patterns of consumption" will be among the issues studied by invited participants.

The issue was a hot item during last winter's gasoline shortage when the then-Nixon administration never tired of reminding motorists that the U.S., with six per cent of the world's population, consumes about 35 per cent of its resources.

It was part of the campaign to exhort the public to favor car pools, drive slower and use public transportation whenever possible, in order to conserve fuel. But once the Arab oil embargo was lifted, and the lines at the gas pumps vanished, the Nixon spokesmen slackened their efforts.

Seligman, a former Grand Rapids, Mich., accountant and businessman now working for Ford, says that some stern decisions may have to be made to bring consumer demands in line with supply over a whole range of goods and services. He cites the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit as an example of how consumer habits can be changed to produce desired results, such as saving gasoline and reducing the casualty rates on the highways with an attendant impact on the use of hospitals.

Through tax policies and productivity incentives, Seligman says, consumer patterns could also be materially affected. He expressed the hope that questionnaires sent to those invited to the economic meetings will induce ideas on this issue, as well as on a variety of fiscal and monetary policies and government regulations, with their effect on wages and prices.

Seligman stressed that the meetings are not designed to make decisions for the Ford administration, but "to generate ideas" and suggestions and to educate the public to the economic problems of the nation.

Seligman concedes that public confidence is an important factor in combating inflationary trends, particularly in the decisions made by businessmen, investors and consumers. He emphasizes that a vital ingredient in confidence is the question of whether the government reveals itself able to control its own budget.

He indicates that Ford is likely to use the economic sessions as a base for actions to be taken in next year's budget and in preparation for the state of the union message in January.

The President and his advisers believe that "patience and consistency" were better prescriptions for dealing with the economy than hasty, erratic actions by the government, Seligman suggests.

Ford will not hesitate to take required steps to meet urgent problems before the summit, Seligman says. They will be watched and decided as necessary, he says. But in the main he appeared to be cautioning against early administration actions to cope in a major way with the inflation-plagued economy.

World population

Wall Street Journal

It isn't surprising that the First United Nations World Population Conference didn't achieve general agreement, since delegates were divided on whether there is really a "population problem" at all. The final communiqué of the Bucharest meeting walked around the problem, trying to avoid saying anything that would alarm anyone.

The nations are split between two broad points of view. By and large, developed nations believe it essential to curb population growth; the U.S. delegation, for example, proposed two-childer families in order to insure stability. But undeveloped nations argue that population must be viewed within the context of overall social, economic and cultural policy. India's chief delegate, for example, stressed that only eradication of poverty could stave off over-population, and he termed development "the best contraceptive."

India's point is broadly true, as the communiqué stressed. Even John D. Rockefeller 3rd came close to adopting the undeveloped world's viewpoint when he admitted that he no longer had faith in this 40-year advocacy of family planning. Rapid population growth multiplies and intensifies other problems, he said, but it does not cause those problems and it is only one of many. Motivation for family planning, he noted, is best stimulated by hope that living conditions and opportunities in general will improve. Also, some nations such as Argentina and Brazil, may have a point when they contend they need population growth for economic development.

Whether India's point is true for India is another matter. The developed nations, who have doubts about their obligation to support endless numbers of Indians, were disappointed that the conference did not lay greater stress on the dangers of population growth. After all, the world's population is growing at an "ever-faster" rate, "doubling" every 37 years. UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim noted that during the 12-day conference in Bucharest, world population would increase by an amount equal to about two cities the size of the Rumanian capital.

In all, most delegates are returning home with their beliefs and prejudices basically unchanged. The problem proved to be heavily intertwined with nationalism, which seems to be the dominant force in the world today. But the multinational meeting was of some unintended value in pointing up anew the difficulties in reaching common agreement on social problems that many consider indisputable and even uncontroversial.

New neighbors produce different reactions

WASHINGTON — Every time you come back from vacation you find some old neighbors have moved out and new people have moved in.

Take my neighborhood, for example. You can imagine my surprise when I saw some strange kids playing on the lawn at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

"Who are those kids?" I asked my friend Marty.

"Oh, didn't you know? The Nixons moved out in August."

"They did?" I said in surprise. "It's a funny they didn't mention anything about it when I left in July. It must have been awfully sudden. Did they give any reason why they were leaving?"

"No," Marty said, "one day they were there, and the next day a moving van pulled up, and they were gone. You know how old man Nixon used to keep his thoughts to himself, so we weren't too surprised when he upped and left."

"That's a shame," I said. "He was a nice fellow and never caused anyone any bother. I'm sorry I didn't have a chance to say goodbye. Any idea where they went?"

"I'm not too sure. I think maybe Peoria."

"Why Peoria?" I asked.

"Well, they kept talking about Peoria all the time. Every time they did something they wanted to know if it would play in Peoria. So we figured that's probably where they went. They could have gone anywhere."

"Does anyone know why they moved?"

"Something to do with trouble in the government. The gossip we heard is that if he resigned, he'd be assured of a pension. So I guess he took the money and ran."

"Who moved into the house?"

"Family called the Fords. They're really nice people. Everyone seems to like them."

ART BUCHWALD

"What's he do for a living?" I asked Marty.

"He used to be a congressman, but now I think he's got some high job in the government, though you wouldn't know it to talk to him. He makes his own breakfast and he leaves the door open so anyone can talk to him. Those are his kids on the lawn there. His wife's a charmer. Used to be in show biz, I hear, but fell down to earth. She cooks her own breakfast, too."

"It's good to have nice neighbors," I said.

"Nice isn't the word for it. Do you know the Fords hadn't moved in a week before they gave a dinner dance and invited everyone on the block to come?"

"No kidding?"

"Yep. And they say they're going to have black and women and poor people and everyone visit them."

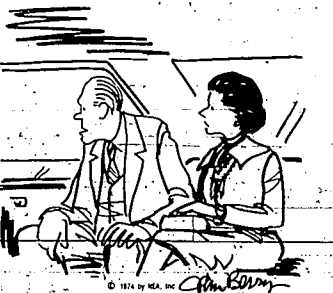

"It's going to be tough to get a parking spot," I said.

"Everyone in the neighborhood is pleased as all get out to have such fine people move in."

Demo solon may rebuild old FDR coalition

NEW YORK — Rep. Hugh Carey's success in closing the annual budget gap overruling Howard Samuels in Tuesday's Democratic primary for governor carries national visions of rebuilding the party's old FDR coalition.

Agreement among politicians here that Carey is surging ahead in the campaign's closing days, has led to eleventh-hour efforts by Samuels to portray him as the champion of Arab oil. That maneuver for critically important Jewish votes typifies the Democratic politics of suicide which have brought 16 years of Republican victories in New York.

Carey's style in rebuilding the Roosevelt coalition was demonstrated last week at an enthusiastic, beer-drinking meeting of the 37th Assembly District regular Democratic organization in Queens. In an oratorically tough, law-and-order stand, Carey pledged to restore safety to every neighborhood in this great state from end to end. Earlier that evening, Carey had endorsed President Ford's middle-road approach on Vietnam amnesty by declaring: "I see nothing wrong with alternative service."

Even if anything short of unconditional amnesty is anathema to the hardcore left, Carey is liberal enough — 72 per cent in Congress last year as measured by the Americans for week endorsed Carey over Samuels. Ideology aside, Abrams sees Carey bringing the ethnic vote and victory to the red-ticker.

The advantage of a witty, knowledgeable, politically shrewd Irishman heading the ticket has long been manifest here. But millionaire manufacturer Samuels, making his fourth attempt at Governor, seemed unbeatable after attaining total identity while running New York City's off-track betting Corp. Carey's polls last January showed Samuels ahead 42 per cent to 6 per cent. Well known in Washington as an influential member of the House Ways and Means Committee, Carey was a cipher in New York outside his Brooklyn district.

Recognition that Carey had caught up with Samuels came last week during a confrontation in suburban Westchester County. On the way to a debate there, campaign aide Jeff Greenfield gave a two-minute lecture to Carey: Don't bomb the slower-talking Samuels and make him an object of sympathy. Instead, it was Samuels who drew blood. By non-too-subtle implication, Samuels suggested that Carey, through his brother's contributions, would represent Arab oil power in Albany and that, in contrast, Howard Samuels was representing Jewish interests. An outraged Carey slashed back at Samuels with personal invective.

Instead of combativeness, Carey strategists want nostalgic identification with the glorious past — not the dreary present of the New York Democratic Party. One 60-second radio commercial includes taped endorsements of Carey by former Gov. Averell Harriman, former Mayor Herbert Wagner and the widow of former Gov. Herbert Lehman. Harriman himself, spy at night, was walking the streets of Yonkers last week in behalf of Carey.

Carey, in short, is waging an essentially non-ideological campaign aimed at rebuilding the old Democratic coalition. If it succeeds Tuesday despite the expected tiny turnout, he will become an instant national power in a party now devoid of dominant figures.

Gem GOP seeks candidate

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Republican officials were searching Thursday for a candidate to run for state treasurer.

National Committeeman David Little of Emmett said that Craig Sellers, 26, Caldwell, who had indicated that he would like to take a shot at the office, had reconsidered.

At the same time, Little said that the state central committee planned to certify Harmon Grosbeck, 56, Idaho Falls, Republican nominee for state auditor. Grosbeck was an unsuccessful candidate for public instruction superintendent.

Little said that the state executive committee had been polled and members approved of certifying Grosbeck.

He said since Sellers had decided to withdraw his name for consideration as nominee for treasurer, two or three people had indicated they might want to seek the post.

"But there's nobody definite yet," Little added.

Lead poisoning widespread in Gem mining district

KELLOGG, Idaho (UPI) — Lead poisoning has been detected in nearly all of about 175 children living in blood-lead tests in the Coeur d'Alene Mining District.

The discovery was made Thursday by Dr. James Bax, Idaho's state health director, who said he was awaiting results from the federal Center for Disease Control at Atlanta on tests taken on 925 other children in the heart of the nation's largest and richest mining district.

But, Bax told newsmen, the initial tests supported earlier suspicions that "the whole valley's full of lead."

The blood tests were taken as a segment of an environmental investigation of the region's air, water, dust and vegetation. The probe was launched after several cases of lead poisoning were detected in children.

The source of the lead poisoning was not pinpointed, but among the obvious sources of such pollution was a lead and zinc smelter owned by the Bunker Hill Co.

Idaho state officials said the smelter accounted for 99 per cent of all sulfur dioxide emission in a five-county area. They added other sources might be old and new piles of mine tailings and dust.

State and U.S. Public Health Service teams will test high school students and adults after the youngsters found to be suffering from lead poisoning are treated.

"It has said the worst incidence of lead poisoning was found in a 2-year-old boy. He was found to have 100 micrograms per milliliter of lead in his blood," the physician said.

He added, "By public standards, that is just about unheard of." He said a reading of 50.0 is considered lead poisoning and "anything over 60 is considered a medical emergency."

Of the 175 children, Bax said, 21 per cent exceeded 10, 42 per cent recorded between 60 and 100 and 62 per cent were in the 40 to 60 range.

Board to ask $25 million increase in school funding

BOISE (UPI) — The State Board of Education voted Thursday to ask the Governor and Legislature for a $25.5 million increase in state general fund support for public schools in fiscal 1976.

The board also approved a plan for programs for gifted and talented students in the state and a report recommending the Boise County

School District remain the same for now.

The proposed increase in the budget, if approved by the legislature and governor, would set up a budget of 181.6 million for public schools next year.

In taking that action, the board trimmed to 10.2 per cent from 18 per cent the proposed increase for administrative salaries — an action in line with proposals Wednesday for higher education.

That amounted to about $300,000.

But the board left at the 18 per cent level the proposal for instructional salaries for the public schools in an effort to make Idaho teachers pay more equitable with surrounding states.

responsibilities in the field of public education.

The board also voted in favor of resolutions to present to the legislature that would increase the limit on mill levies for local junior college districts and to put 10 per cent of the general fund annually into the public building fund in place of the 3.3 per cent head tax now established.

Gas pipeline plans abandoned

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Northwest Pipeline Corp. said Thursday it has abandoned plans to construct a $1.2-billion, 37-mile natural gas pipeline from Canada through the Pacific Northwest.

Northwest said the pipeline was "scrapped" because the supplier of the gas would have gotten carried to western U.S. markets terminated the gas purchase contract.

The pipeline would have run from Kingsgate, B.C., through Washington, Oregon and Idaho, and connected to existing transmission facilities near Rye Valley, Ore. From there most of the gas would have been sent to the West Coast.

Pan Alberta Gas Ltd., Calgary, Alta., was to have supplied the 400 million cubic feet of natural gas per day.

Northwest Pipeline through its subsidiary, Northwest Energy Co., and Pacific Lighting Corp. of Los Angeles, had established a partnership called Interstate Transmission Associates to build the 26-inch pipeline.

The pipeline would have gotten 80 million cubic feet of the piped gas per day for its customers.

"Pan Alberta informed us yesterday (Wednesday) that there was no prospect for an early and successful completion of this project due to currently increased Canadian requirements for natural gas, and that they were no longer necessary to cancel the contract in accordance with its termination provisions," said

Report shows no surplus

REXBURG (UPI) — Democratic lieutenant governor hopeful John Evans said Thursday the Idaho Resources Board has provided an inventory of water needs which proves there is no surplus of this valuable resource in Idaho.

Evans said here that Idaho water will be protected as well as it is the greatest natural asset we have available for the future agricultural and industrial growth.

With the exception of Washington and Oregon, he said, none of surrounding states have nearly enough water to satisfy their needs, which proves they are looking for water.

Earlier beef trade OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. cattle and beef producers will be allowed to export shipments to Canada beginning Sept. 9 instead of the previously scheduled starting date of Sept. 15, the Agriculture Department announced Thursday.

Officials said Thursday the starting date was moved up because they made faster-than-expected progress in finalizing the series of trade agreements which U.S. livestock producers were briefed on a new system for certifying that cattle and sheep products going to Canada are free of DES, a growth-promoting hormone which can cause cancer in laboratory animals.

Canada had banned imports last April because use of the hormone in cattle was currently legal in the U.S. The new certification procedure was developed in lengthy U.S.-Canadian negotiations and announced Aug. 14.

Officials said their decision to begin issuing the new certificates Sept. 9 instead of Sept. 15 will give U.S. producers an additional week in which to fill and market their import quota set by the Canadian government. The first quarterly portion of a new annual import quota system is due to expire on Sept. 30, spokesmen noted.

Under the annual quota system announced when Canada agreed to reopen its

E. Germans hail new ties with US

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The agreement for establishment of diplomatic relations with Communist East Germany signed in Washington Wednesday marks the first time that the United States has recognized two major divided states.

While the United States observed the historic occasion with total abstinence of fanfare, the East German delegation which negotiated the agreement hailed it as an important contribution to "decisive peace and peaceful cooperation between nations."

Ambassador Dr. Herbert Suss who led the East German team, was "greeting and cheering when he met with a small group of reporters in his hotel suite.

East Germany, he promised, would observe the same principles of peaceful cooperation with the United States which it applies to its relations with the Soviet Union.

"As far as the German Democratic Republic is concerned," he said, "it will do everything it can to develop this new relationship to each other's benefit."

A return and friendly manner, Suss said, a wide range of possibilities for the development of U.S.-East German cooperation.

East Germany, he maintained, had a great deal to contribute. In the 25 years since its foundation it had become a "prosperous and 'quite remarkable' economic power," developing in all spheres of life and activity.

"Ticking off areas of particular interest to East Germany," he noted, "as a planned socialist economy, it was interested in long-term economic arrangements, including trade. Others areas in which he saw prospects for fruitful cooperation were cultural exchanges, science, scientific research and technology."

sperm) be done, with or without the surgery?

Our insurance plan does not cover this surgery as it is considered "elective medical care," but I myself feel it is necessary to a young couple's emotions. — Mrs. J.B.

Your answers:

1 — It is delicate surgery. Your fallopian tubes aren't big, with an inside diameter about the size of a pencil lead. It doesn't take much inflammation to cause enough scar tissue to close them. So I think you can see why getting them open, the full length, surgically, and making them stay open is not an easy undertaking. Still, sometimes it succeeds.

2 — Why is a technique with small chances mentioned at all? Well, suppose your doctor didn't mention it to you at all, and sometime later you heard of someone who had the surgery, and it succeeded?

Analysis

American officials were notably more restrained in their assessment of the significance of the new agreement.

Heading their list of new problems still to be negotiated was that of financial compensation of the victims of Nazi oppression and persecution in the pre-World War II region that is East Germany today.

The East Germans maintain that they have been the victims of "Nazism and as an entirely new state, East Germany cannot be called to account for Nazi excesses."

However, members of the East German delegation conceded Wednesday night that they had agreed that the United States would be free to raise and press these human claims.

The question is unlikely to be tackled for a year or perhaps more. The U.S. Federal Claims Commission has yet to advertise for prospective claimants to file their claims. Processing of the claims for negotiation will involve many months. Thus no immediate crisis is foreseen.

Israelis seek US help

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin will try to convince Washington next week to increase U.S. aid to Israel by five times what it gave before last October's Middle East war.

Rabin told a meeting of parliament members Thursday that the money is needed to offset increased military spending, and the main purpose of his trip to Washington next week will be to see Israel continues to get the help it needs.

"Israel needs much more aid from the United States — far more than it is receiving before the Yom Kippur war," Rabin said. "Now, one is talking about assistance that is five times more than we received before the war."

"Continuing this aid will be one of the main objectives of my visit to Washington," he said.

The United States has pledged $2.2 billion in military and economic assistance to Israel since the October war. Israeli leaders have asked for an additional $1 billion since then.

Rabin said increased U.S. aid was essential because the proportion of defense spending in Israel's budget had doubled since the war.

—Despite its economic difficulties, Israel said Israel had to enlarge both its reserves and standing army to deal with the threat of Arab war.

In a report from Washington, the National Radio said economic talks were now under way between U.S. Treasury Department officials and representatives of Israel's commission for investment and trade.

Israel's economic minister in the Washington Embassy, Israel Sher, told a radio interviewer the talks were in their preliminary stages and guidelines were being set on what kind of aid Israel was seeking.

"I didn't hear a word from which we could understand or imply that the United States is not going to keep the promises that were given to us either in the principles which were in the joint declaration of the president of the United States and the Prime Minister of Israel, or in the other statement made jointly by (Treasury Secretary) William Simon and (Israeli Finance) Minister Yehoshua Flatowitz," Sher said.

Group flunks honesty test

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York cops fumed a few months back when the Police Department announced that nearly a third of a randomly selected group had flunked an honesty test.

In the test, 51 civilians turned "lost" wallets over to officers, and 15 cops — or 29 per cent — didn't bother to return them to their owners.

At first, Patrolmen's Benevolent Association president Ken McFeeley squawked that the test was a "Gestapo" like tactic; then he decided to conduct a similar test of his own — on the public.

The results, McFeeley said Thursday, showed that the man in the street is three times as greedy as the man in blue.

He said 42 out of 50 civilians failed to turn in wallets they found in the street. In addition, one of the wallets turned in was missing $9.

U.S., Soviet talks eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union are expected to make a first attempt to limit the deployment of nuclear warheads when they resume their strategic arms limitation talks later this month in Geneva.

Administration officials said an announcement on the resumption of the talks was expected shortly. The talks were expected to start again around Sept. 10. They have been suspended since March 19.

President Ford evidently is intent on implementing his promise of Aug. 28 at a White House news conference to push forward on strategic arms controls with the Russians.

Neither former President Richard Nixon, nor Secretary of State Henry Kissinger succeeded in talks with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev in making a significant breakthrough which could lead to a comprehensive strategic arms control agreement.

New car sales up for August

DETROIT (UPI) — New car sales heated up in August as buyers hunted for bargains. Sales topped $400-plus price hikes on 1975 models. It was the second best August ever for the four major companies, and American Motors hit an 11-year high.

Industry analysts, commenting on the Thursday reports that showed sales within 2.5 per cent of last year's record, said some buyers also may have tried to get '74 models without the catalytic antipollution devices being added to the '75s.

U.S. automakers came within 18,000 cars of matching last year's record August sales and were up almost 2 per cent over the previous August record set in 1972. Imports also shared in the sales surge with August sales of an estimated 14,000 cars topping July by 17.2 per cent but still trailing last August's 151,300, by 5.8 per cent.

Domestic car sales for August totaled 67,237 cars, off 2.6 per cent from 695,359 last year and the closest the four U.S. companies have come to matching year-ago sales since last September when the sales slump began.

General Motors was off 2.2 per cent in August. Ford was up 1 per cent and Chrysler dropped 12.4 per cent.

In the process, AMC was able to report a 27 per cent sales gain in August. Ford set a combined car and truck sales mark for the month. GM's Cadillac and Chevrolet divisions set new monthly sales marks and Chrysler established a truck sales mark for the final 10 days of August.

Chinese leader reported worse

By United Press International

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said in Peking today the condition of Chinese Premier Chou En-lai has worsened during three months of hospitalization for a heart ailment.

"But I don't think you ought to read into that report anything such as that his condition is critical," Humphrey said in a telephone interview with United Press International.

Humphrey, a member of a congressional delegation on the 10-day tour of China, said Vice Premier Teng Hsiao Ping told the group of the condition of Chou, 76, a prime architect of U.S.-China detente.

"If he were not ill, the premier would be happy to see you," Humphrey quoted Teng as saying. "But he is not well, and is more ill now than at the time of Sen. Henry Jackson's visit two months ago."

Humphrey said the Chinese official "mentioned that Jackson, D-Wash., visited Chou in the hospital but that it was not possible now because his (Chou's) condition has slightly worsened," Humphrey said.

In an earlier interview with the Mutual Broadcasting network, Humphrey said, "I am apparent candor with which"

Cypriot leaders open peace huddle

By United Press International

Warring Greek and Turkish Cypriot leaders, entrenched in Nicosia today for peace talks delayed by atrocity charges and true violations, rifle and mortar fire rocked the capital hours before the start of the session.

A U.S. spokesman said President Glafkos Clerides and Vice President Rafik Denktash would meet this afternoon to discuss a prisoner exchange and problems of an estimated 200,000 refugees on the island.

The spokesman reported two hours of heavy mortar and rifle fire Thursday night between Greek Cypriot and Turkish soldiers along the "green line" separating the two communities in the capital.

There were no reports of casualties and the spokesman reported both sides observing "a complete ceasefire" this morning.

The truce talks were scheduled to begin last Monday, but Denktash called off the session after the Turkish Greek Cypriot national guard of mass murder at the Turkish Cypriot village of Maratha on the island's east coast.

The Clerides government in turn accused the Turkish in vassal force Thursday of the "cold blood" murder of "at least 130" Greeks, including "children, women and men up to the age of 50."

On Wednesday, Turkish forces pushed their boundaries another four miles west past the town of Lefkara.

Minister elected

WELLINGTON (UPI) — Labor party leaders elected Wallace E. "Bill" Rowling today as New Zealand's youngest prime minister, succeeding a Norman Kirk, who died Saturday.

A party spokesman said Labor members of parliament selected the 46-year-old legislator and cabinet minister after a "war-time" between passing over Deputy Prime Minister Hugh Watt.

Rowling entered parliament in 1962 and served as minister of finance in Kirk's cabinet. He gained a reputation as a tough political bargainer capable of withstanding the attacks of opponents.

Kirk, 51, became prime minister in 1972 when the Labor party won a majority in parliament in the most stunning upset in New Zealand politics in 70 years. The party had been out of power since 1960.

Carmen moves north

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Carmen rebuilt its winds to 30 miles per hour in the Gulf of Mexico today and moved slowly toward the distant U.S. Gulf Coast where a hurricane watch was expected to be posted.

At 11 a.m. EDT Carmen was centered about 30 miles north-northwest of Merida, Mexico, at latitude 22.7 north, longitude 90.5 west. It was moving north at 5 miles an hour.

The once powerful hurricane that claimed four lives and wreaked $10 million damage before losing its punch on Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula Monday was some 500 miles from the United States.

"It will obviously go somewhere on the Gulf coast of the United States if it continues on its present course," said forecaster Paul Heber of the National Hurricane Center. "We can't say where yet because it is moving so slow it has plenty of time to change course."

Carmen, whose strength was 175 in P.H. units in the Yucatan, was expected to increase slightly in forward speed and strength today and Heber said a hurricane watch may be posted along portions of the Gulf coast today. Such a watch generally is issued 36 hours before a storm is expected to strike land. "I don't think Carmen will ever regain the strength it had before the Channel in the Yucatan Peninsula," Heber said. "You don't often get a storm that violent."

Carmen lost strength over land and was downgraded to a tropical storm but it began rebuilding over the Gulf and regained hurricane force Thursday afternoon.

The National Hurricane Center also kept watch for a tropical depression nearing the Leeward Islands. This squall could become Tropical Storm Elaine, fifth storm of the season.

Sanction lift eyed for Cuba

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three Western Hemisphere nations are initiating action before the Organization of American States today to lift diplomatic and economic sanctions against Cuba.

Western Hemisphere foreign ministers will be called to meet in Ecuador Nov. 11 to vote on lifting the sanctions imposed on Cuba 10 years ago, it was learned Thursday.

The request is included in a note expected to be presented to the OAS by the governments of Costa Rica, Colombia and Venezuela. A copy of the note was made available to UPI.

The drive to lift OAS sanctions is understood to have at least tacit approval of President Ford and is believed to have a good chance of success, according to diplomatic observers.

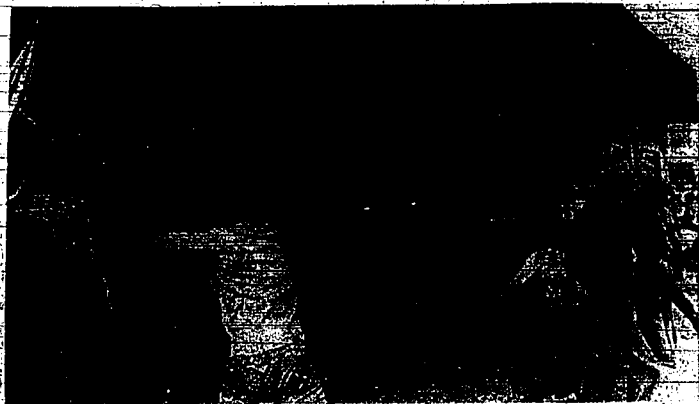

President Ford, in his Aug. 28 press conference, injected a softer tone to the oft-stated Cuban policy, emphasizing the United States would move toward "reconciliation" only through the OAS.

The note requests an OAS council session Sept. 19, at which the American states ministers will formally propose the foreign ministers' meeting.

Also Thursday, two U.S. senators, Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Clarence Pell, D-N.Y., received word from the State Department that their passports will be validated to go to Cuba, even though the department originally tried to discourage the trip.

Both Javits and Pell are members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Javits told a news conference developments in the relations with Cuba were still in a "delicate" stage. "I think we should review our policy with Cuba," he said, commenting on his proposed trip.

The sanctions were imposed against Cuba by the Ninth Meeting of Consultation of the OAS in Washington in July, 1964, at the request of Venezuela which is now helping sponsor their removal. Venezuela in 1962 charged the Castro regime with interference in its internal affairs.

Nixon expects 'Gate indictment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Nixon is "terribly depressed" and expects to be indicted for his role in Watergate, according to a newspaper account today quoting friends of Nixon.

The story, appearing in the Washington Post, was in sharp contrast to recent statements by Julie Nixon Eisenhower that her father was in "good spirits."

The Post reported that friends in California say Nixon hopes a pardon from President Ford will spare him a long ordeal in the courts.

The report from San Clemente, Calif., where Nixon has been in nearly total seclusion since his resignation Aug. 9, did not identify the friends.

They were quoted as saying Nixon's legal future was a "touchy subject" that is not easily broached to him, not even by the lawyers.

"He's terribly depressed, with much to be depressed about," one friend was quoted as saying. "Anyone would be depressed in his situation."

"I don't mean he's going off the deep end," the friend was quoted as saying. "It just means that everything happened to him, seemingly all at once, and he doesn't know what to do about it."

He awakens early in the morning when the high fog that will burn off later in the day still shades the bluff below Casa Pacifica," the paper reported. "He breakfasts on orange juice and a poached egg served him by the valet who still calls him 'Mr. President.'"

"He wanders alone or with his friend, Babe Rebozo, along Red Beach out of sight of the Secret Service men who out of his hearing refer to him as 'the old man' and try to stay out of his way. Sometimes he runs through the stacks of unanswered mail or disconsolately plays the piano."

The Post said the picture of the President painted by those who have seen and talked to him since his return to California is a gloomy one.

Koreans storm embassy

SEOUL (UPI) — Hundreds of angry South Koreans stormed the Japanese Embassy in Seoul today in a wild spree of violence, smashing windows and desks, hurling ink across the building and setting fire to a jeep.

At the height of the rampage, several youths tore off their shirts and plunged knives into their stomachs in suicide attempts, police said. Two were rushed to a hospital.

Police said 200 demonstrators tore through police lines and ransacked the embassy to protest the attempted assassination last month of President Park Chung-hee. Japanese Ambassador Torao Ushiroku was inside the building but was unharmed, police said.

Park expressed regret over the incident and instructed Home Minister Park Kyungwon to severely punish the ringleaders, government spokesmen said.

Park also ordered Foreign Minister Im Dong-jo to convey Korea's regret to the Japanese Embassy. He said all property damage would be compensated for.

The hour-long clash was the latest in a series of anti-Japanese outbursts following the assassination attempt against Park on Aug. 15.

The president was not injured, but his wife was killed in the attempt. A Korean living in Japan was arrested for the shooting. South Koreans charged Japanese officials have not investigated the plot thoroughly.

The protesters tore down an embassy signboard, pulled the Japanese flag from atop the four-story building and trampled the first floor, police said.

It began when about 700 persons gathered around the embassy carrying anti-Japanese placards and chanting slogans.

About 200 youths broke through police lines, smashed the embassy gate and stormed into the building. Some set fire to a blue bus in the embassy compound, police said.

Riot police fired tear gas into the crowd but failed to stop the protest. Police reinforcements were brought in and halted the demonstrators' entry from the building.

All the windows of the embassy were shattered and almost everything in the offices was destroyed. Embassy documents littered the compound.

The walls were spattered with red and blue ink thrown by the demonstrators.

Beer party heightened by give-away

Event, not Evel, draws crowds

TWIN FALLS — Why? Why is Evel Knievel jumping the Snake River Canyon? Why are all those people paying $25 a head to watch him do it? Knievel himself will have to explain the reasons for his jump — if he can.

Those hundreds of people who plunked down the $25 gate charge and up to $25 to park their campers for a week say almost unanimously they came not because of Evel but because they wanted to be part of the event that Evel created.

"I came 'cause when I'm 60 I want to say I was here."

"I came 'cause I want to see a guy make a million dollars."

The men stood in a group near the motocross track downing beer and throwing out jokes.

"Who else is stupid enough to do something like that," a woman from England sitting nearby asked.

Her husband, a Knievel follower, said that since this was Knievel's last jump he wanted to see it. "He's first in his class. He's pretty brave."

Evel, 'secondary'

Over in the concession area, one of the proprietors said "it's been a very poor crowd so far." He estimated that about 20 per cent of the people were "here for the party" and the rest were either racing or associated with the racers.

The mid-week crowd was composed by, and large of, motorcycle enthusiasts. The crowd could change this weekend when crowds of people interested in the jump itself are expected to arrive en masse.

"We didn't come disappointed to see him go from one side to another," Mrs. Joy Roberts, Kunit, Tex., said. "We came to associate with the type of people he attracts."

The Roberts, a middle-age couple, closed up their furniture business for a month and came to Twin Falls. "It's the first time we ever went out of state to follow a sports event."

"There is an excitement that's catching," Mrs. Roberts added.

"I admire what he is accomplishing in the sports and as a cartoonist."

Several people mentioned that Evel had performed in their home town; had appeared on TV in their home town or that they knew him when he was first racing motorcycles. They came to see "their" Evel.

Randy Burke said he took the trip from San Jose, Calif., mostly to come up and be with a bunch of good people.

"It was a place to go and something to do when you get there," Burke said, echoing the sentiments of most of the young men at the site. Burke came on a pass from a motorcycle company. Many others arrived broke and are now employed as security guards at the site.

"I was under the impression it was going to be like Woodstock," security guard A. McQueen said. "I'm not really into Evel at all. Evel held no basic interest for me."

"Evel Knievel has so many people coming," said a man from Massachusetts. "I wanted to see what type of people would get counted into coming here."

"I got double-conned — I conned myself," he said. In addition to the $25 ticket he expected, his pockets were emptied when he found he had to pay parking charges too.

"If I don't see him jump it doesn't make a bit of difference to me," he said. "The people here are really friendly."

"There aren't very many people who have generated excitement like this in the last few years," a concession stand operator said.

Evel and his press did create the event that these thousands of people came to see — made it an "historical" event that many wanted to witness.

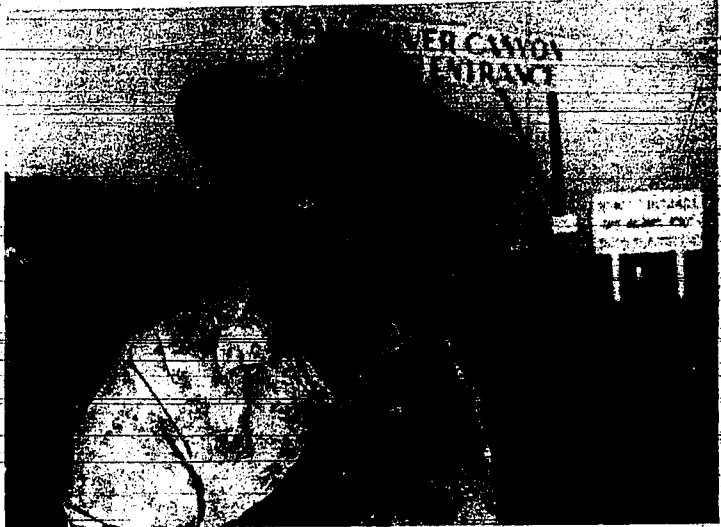

"I want to see the exact spot on the Snake River and to see the man — he impresses me," S. T. Knotttingham, Frederick County, Maryland, said.

"The first time theory has a lot to do" with the reason people came, he said. "If he was jumping for the second time I probably wouldn't cross the street to see it."

Motorcycle enthusiast Marianne Cowan, some 60 years old, was more interested in Knievel.

"Evel is a real nice guy," Mrs. Cowan said as she returned to her camper at the site with the Knottlinghams and her husband. "Since Lindbergh died he's the only daredevil here we have," she said.

"It's a special event because he's a brave guy — one of the bravest living. A lot of the people in the U.S. would be a lot happier if they'd do it too."

Disappointment leaves jump party undaunted

TWIN FALLS — Most of the people at the Knievel jump site Wednesday afternoon were disappointed.

"Just about none of them really cared."

"I heard Evel was going to give a million dollar party," said one Pennsylvania youth as he guzzled a beer. "Where is it going to be? Is he really going to have it?"

One young couple from England who had a couple of motorcycles in the races that afternoon, were irritated by the rates they had to pay. The couple had to pay the $25 gate charge for their three children — ages 3, 4 and 6, in addition to the $25 a person for themselves.

But after traveling anywhere from 200 to 2,000 miles to get to the site few, if any, turned around and left.

The crowd Wednesday was a conglom. traveling crowd. These are the people with the campers, the tents, the bikes and the lust for seeing the country.

The old and the young mixed well together. "We came to be with a bunch of good people," they all said.

The Wednesday crowd may be a different group than the one which will begin pouring in about Saturday. While Wednesday's crowd came for a week of fun, Saturday's crowd will come for the jump.

About 200 people and twice as many beer cans spread themselves around the motocross track under the dry afternoon sun Wednesday to watch the races. The "party," however, was at Shoshone Falls, where a large number of people had gathered to relax in the shade and the water.

Randy Burke, San Jose, Calif., came under the auspices of the Harley-Davidson Co., expecting to have free beer and food, he said as he held for his dinner and beer. Burke said he was disappointed in the "disorganization" at the site but admitted he had come for "the ride and the party."

Just then Knievel walked past trailed doggedly by reporters, photographers and fans hounded for motocross awards presentations.

"Evel we love you. We love you Evel," cried the shout from the concession booth. "Just give us some free beer."

Moments later Knievel, representative Mike Gray and concessionaire Tony Gaunch, called the operator of the concession stand into a corner and told him there would be a free beer give-away beginning at 8 p.m. He was promised he would receive the same profits that he would have made if he had sold the beer.

The crowd gathered beneath the huge truck trailer at the designated time and a cheer went up as cans of beer were passed into the waiting hands below. About 150 people — mostly young and mostly men — jammed toward the trailer and shouted for more as the give-away crowd became increasingly demanding.

The truck closed down to shouts of dismay after a few minutes with promises to open again shortly. "We want to hand this out gradually and orderly," came the shout from the truck.

The beer party helped to solve some disappointments and drew loud arguments from others.

Several young men had come to Twin Falls from the East Coast expecting a week of free food and free beer. One young man who floundered a job as a security guard expected "a small Woodstock."

A few motorcycle enthusiasts arrived last weekend expecting a week of motocross races. The races didn't start until Monday.

Some of the crowd still expected Knievel to jump the canyon on a motorcycle — "of course it would have to be a special cycle," but I didn't expect nothing like this," a middle-aged man from Kansas said.

The same man was upset about the trees blocking the view of the canyon. "I came all this way and now I can't see anything."

A young man who came all the way from Massachusetts "to see what type of people would get conned into coming here," said it was all the bigwigs who didn't pay who would have the best view of the event from the VIP stands.

Feeling and paying and paying was another complaint. "I expected $25 gate charges dwindled as campers found themselves paying fees to park, camp, eat and enter the races. One racer is reported to have spent $500 in fees before he got his bike on the track.

Nothing out there is quite what anybody expected but no one is really upset. "Here, have another beer and join the party."

DEAR ABBY: A reader signed "Ms W" requests a non-sexist salutation for business letters.

Why is a salutation necessary at all? It should have been discarded years ago with such useless phrases as "Be-leave to reply to your favor of the 15th instance," and "your most obedient servant."

"Dear Anybody" is both redundant and archaic, along with the traditional "Very truly yours," which, in a business letter, is the ultimate in hypocrisy. No!

MISS BRANIGAN

Non-sexist salutation

DEAR MISS B.: Yes. Many non-sexist salutations for business letters were submitted. For example: "Greetings" or "the pleasure," "Greetings," "Others suggested the bright and cheery, "Good morning!" (How about those who don't get around to reading their mail until 4 P.M.) "Try "Dear Person." (That's too impersonal, like "Dear Sir.")

"Also, "Hi there," or would you believe, "Howdy!" Come to think of it, "Dear Sir or Madam," or "To whom it may concern" are beginning to look better to me.

DEAR ABBY: After 15 years of marriage, my husband and I were divorced for the age-old reason. Another woman. We have two children, 10 and 12, which made it a very painful ordeal for me.

My husband married the "other woman." He has visitation rights, which are fair enough, but when he comes to pick up the children, he and his wife and her eight-year-old son come right to my door. I feel I have to invite them in, and then I have to ask them to sit down. When they are seated they stay and stay until I feel compelled to offer them some refreshments.

Meanwhile, making small talk with them is sheer torture because I feel so uncomfortable in this woman's presence. I often hardly look at her; at my husband's side without wanting to burst into tears.

It seems an eternity until they take my children and go. They sometimes come back "early," and again they knock at my door, expecting to be invited in. These visits are a terrible strain for me.

Can't help how I feel, Abby. Am I wrong? How should I handle this?

STILL HURTING

DEAR STILL: Ask your lawyer to write your husband a letter suggesting that he either pick up the children alone, remove his wife and stepchild in the car. You're not wrong. There's no reason why you should be cast in the role of an unwelcome housewife.

DEAR ABBY: I was pleased to see that you view reading a spouse's mail as a violation of privacy, and place it in the same class with reading a child's diary or listening in on the extension telephone. Those are exactly my sentiments.

I don't want to see my wife's mail, and that means even after it has been opened and is in plain view. When my wife has had a telephone conversation, I never ask: "Who was that, dear?" I figure if she wants to tell me, she will volunteer the information.

I offer you free of charge my father's philosophy: "Don't ever put another person in the position of having to lie to you."

VALUES PRIVACY

DEAR VALUES: We agree—to a point. But no one "has to" lie. Simply say: "I prefer not to answer that question."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69708, L.A., Calif. 90089. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Dummy's queen lost to East's king and a spade came back. The trick was won by the queen which South had been careful to keep in dummy. Now he ruffed a third club, entered dummy with the ace of diamonds and ruffed the fourth club to set up the last club as a winner. He discarded dummy's three of diamonds on the last spade; ruffed a diamond with dummy's last trump; discarded his last diamond on the last club and was home with the bacon.

Beer party heightened by give-away

Event, not Evel, draws crowds

TWIN FALLS — Why? Why is Evel Knievel jumping the Snake River Canyon? Why are all these people paying $25 a head to watch him do it? Knievel himself will have to explain the reasons for his jump — if he can.

These hundreds of people who plunked down the $25 gate charge and up to $52.50 to park their campers for a week say almost unanimously they came not because of Evel but because they wanted to be part of the event that Evel created.

"I came 'cause I want to see a guy make a million dollars," "I came 'cause I want to see a guy make a million dollars."

Disappointment leaves jump party undaunted

TWIN FALLS — Most of the people at the Knievel Jump site Wednesday afternoon were disappointed.

Just about none of them really cared.

"I heard Evel was going to give a million dollar party," said one Pennsylvania youth as he gazed at a beer. "Where is it going to be? Is he really going to have it?"

The young couple from England who had a couple of motorcycles in the races that afternoon, were irritated by the rates they had to pay. The couple had to pay the $25 gate charge for their three children — ages 3, 4 and 6 — in addition to the $25 a person for themselves.

But after traveling anywhere from 200 to 2,500 miles to get to the site few, if any, turned around and left.

The crowd Wednesday was a camping, traveling crowd. Those are the people with the campers, the tents, the bikes and the fast for seeing the country.

The old and the young mixed well together. "We came to be with a bunch of good people," they all said.

The Wednesday crowd may be a different group than the one which will begin pouring in about Saturday. While Wednesday's crowd came for a week of fun, Saturday's crowd will come for the jump.

About 200 people and twice as many beer cans spread themselves around the motorcycle track under the dry afternoon sun Wednesday to watch the races. The "saggy," however, was at Shoshone Falls, where a large number of people had gathered to relax in the shade and the water.

Just then Knievel walked past trailed doggedly by reporters, photographers and fans, hounded for motorcycle awards presentations.

"Evel we love you. We love you Evel," came the shout from the concession booth. "Just give us some free beer."

Momenta later Knievel representative Mike Gray and commissionaire Tony Gauch, called the operator of the concession stand into a corner and told him there would be a free beer give-away beginning at 8 p.m. He was promised he would receive the same profits that he would have made if he had sold the beer.

The crowd gathered beneath the huge truck trailer at the designated time and a cheer went-up-as-cans of beer were passed into the waiting hands below. The beer party helped to solve some disappointments and drew loud arguments from others.

Several young men had come to Twin Falls from the East Coast expecting a week of free food and free beer. One young man who landed a job as a security guard expected "a small Woodstock."

A few motorcycle enthusiasts arrived last weekend expecting a week of motorcycle races. The races didn't start until Monday.

Some of the crowd still expected Knievel to jump the canyon on a motorcycle. "Of course it would have to be a special cycle," but I didn't expect nothing like this," a middle-aged man from Kansas said.

The same man was upset about the trees blocking the view of the canyon. "I came all this way and now I can't see anything."

A young man who came all the way from Massachusetts "to see what type of people would get coniced into coming here" said it was all the bigwigs who didn't pay who would have the best view of the event from the VIP stands.

Paying and paying and paying was another complaint. The expected $25 gate charges dwindled as campers found themselves paying fees to park, camp, eat and enter the races. One racer is reported to have spent $500 in fees before he got his bike off the track.

Nothing out there is quite what anybody expected but no one is really upset. "Here, have another beer and join the party."

DEAR ABBY: A reader signed "Ms. W." requests a non-sexist salutation for business letters.

Why is a salutation necessary at all? It should have been discarded years ago with such useless phrases as: "Beg leave to reply to your favor of the 15th instance," and "your most obedient servant."

"Dear Anybody" is both redundant and archaic, along with the traditional "Very truly yours," which, in a business letter, is the ultimate in hypocrisy.

MISS BRANIGAN

Non-sexist salutation

DEAR MISS B.: Yes. Many non-sexist salutations for business letters were suggested. For example: "Gentleperson," or the plural, "Gentlepeople."

Others suggested the bright and cheery, "Good morning!" How about those who don't get around to writing their mail until 4 P.M.?

"Dear Person." (That's too impersonal, like "Occupant.")

Also, "Hi there," or would you believe, "Howdy!" Come to think of it, "Dear Sir or Madam," or "To whom it may concern" are beginning to look better to me.

DEAR ABBY: After 13 years of marriage, my husband and I were divorced for the age-old reason. Another woman. We have two children, 10 and 12, which made it a very painful ordeal for me.

My husband married the "other woman." He has visitation rights, which are fair enough, but when he comes to pick up the children and his wife and her eight-year-old son come right to my door. I feel I have to invite them in, and then I have to ask them to sit down. Once they are seated they stay and stay until I feel compelled to offer them some refreshments.

Meanwhile, making small talk with them is sheer torture because I feel so uncomfortable in this woman's presence. I hardly look at her at my husband's side without wanting to burst into tears.

It seems an eternity until they take my children and leave. They sometimes come back "early," and again they greet at my door, expecting to be invited in. These visits are a terrible strain for me.

I can't help how I feel, Abby. Am I wrong? How should I handle this?

DEAR STILL: Ask your lawyer to write your husband a letter suggesting that he either pick up the children alone, or leave his wife and stepchild in the car. You're not wrong. There's no reason why you should be cast in the role of an unwilling hostess.

DEAR ABBY: I was pleased to see that you view reading a spouse's mail as a violation of privacy, and place it in the same class with reading a child's diary or listening in on the extension telephone. Those are exactly my sentiments.

I don't want to see my wife's mail, and that means even after it has been opened and is in plain view. When my wife has had a telephone conversation, I never ask: "Who was that, dear?" I figure if she wants to tell me, she will volunteer the information.

I offer you free of charge my father's philosophy: "Don't ever put another person in the position of having to lie to you."

DEAR VALUES: We agree—to a point. But so one "has to" lie. Simply say: "I prefer not to answer that question."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 6708, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Dummy's queen lost to East's king and a spade came back. The trick was won by the queen which South had been careful to keep in dummy. Now he ruffed a third club, entered dummy with the ace of diamonds and ruffed the fourth club to set up the last club as a winner. He discarded dummy's three diamonds on the last spade; ruffed a diamond with dummy's last trump; discarded his last diamond on the last club and was home with the bacon.

South started to make the automatic play of dummy's queen of spades at trick one. Then he stopped, saw that he might need an extra entry to dummy and was in his own hand.
It was well that he did. As it was, dummy's queen lasted just long enough to bring the slam home.
South drew trumps with three leads and continued with the ace and five of clubs.

Police agencies sued by church

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The controversial Church of Scientology's recently formed Commission on Law Enforcement and Social Justice is taking the offensive against police agencies.

The church, founded by science fiction writer and psychologist L. Ron Hubbard, already has filed 19 law suits against law enforcement departments and organizations.

It is now seeking information from citizens who may have been "victimized by false police records or been the victims of vested interest groups using police records to discredit them."

Primary target of the church's concern is Interpol, the international police organization. The church has charged that Interpol fed false information about Scientology to German police because of the church's attacks on Germany's Max Planck Institute.

"We recently have formed an entire section of the commission to investigate—Interpol," Rev. Vaughn Young, national director of the commission, said in an interview.

Interpol is under no sovereign power and has complete freedom to circulate reports internationally on citizens and groups with no external supervision of its accuracy," he added.

Young said the U.S. office of Interpol is housed in the Treasury Department and staffed by the Immigration, Customs and Secret Service agencies of the Treasury.

In addition, he said, the Interpol office has access to the FBI's computer data banks, and regularly supplies foreign members of Interpol with information from those files.

Now Scientology's commission is concerned about the whole range of computer data banks and the collection and distribution of dossiers on individuals and organizations, according to Young.

He said the commission has been running ads in newspapers across the country, requesting information from people who feel they have been victimized by distributors of false police dossiers.

"Testimonies are coming in daily across the country from citizens who have not been able to correct their police records," Young said.

"We are now in the process of verifying each case, and soon will be releasing the data. This practice is more widespread than we realize."

The controversial church grew out of Hubbard's theory of "dianetics," which he describes as the science of mental health. It uses a system of "auditing," with a lie detector-like device known as the E-meter, to determine parishioners' spiritual states.

Adventist aid center reopens

TWIN FALLS—The community services center of the Twin Falls Seventh-Day Adventist Church has resumed the services this week at the Falls Avenue location after a brief vacation.

It is open to the public on Tuesday afternoons from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m., where the needs of those desiring clothing and assistance may be met.

It is operated by the women of the church and anyone wishing to participate in this type of community service help will be available to any who need it.

At a recent federation meeting in Walla-Walla, Wash., delegates met to discuss procedures and plans for providing better relief and disaster-aid services to those in need.

Pastor S.O. Francisco of the Twin Falls Seventh-Day Adventist Church in a recent discussion pointed out the need for such a facility in the Twin Falls area.

He emphasized that the church has a very definite responsibility "to feed the hungry and to clothe the naked." This will be a part of the services of the center.

"With tornadoes, floods and earthquakes seeming to multiply in unexpected places there is a need for preparedness," he continued.

Old folks belong in family homes, study reveals

(C) Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO—Christian tradition demands that "the home be the place where the most extraordinary circumstances" are met, rather than be sent to nursing homes, a father of eight writes in the current issue of U.S. Catholic, a Chicago based publication, of the Catholic readers questioned in a new publication, survey generally agree with Lyon "that the Christian thing to do is keep the old folks at home." Eight percent disagreed and 12 percent gave other answers. The value of family life, the elderly was affirmed by 70 percent of the best of medical care in a nursing home." Almost half of those who replied said grandparents who live with children and grandchildren should have a say in the decision-making of the household.

And 35 percent said grandparents should be ready to give up much of their former independence when they move in with children and grandchildren. In the thirty years that Smokey Bear has been telling us to be careful with fire, we've cut the number of forest fires we start in half.

But we still start over 100,000 careless fires every year.

Someday, one of two things will happen, and Smokey will stop reminding us to be careful: Either there won't be any more forest fires, or there won't be any more forests.

It's up to you.

Nation's health care costs soar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Health Secretary Casper W. Weinberger expressed renewed alarm Thursday over "skyrocketing inflation" in health care costs, and pledged more stringent controls.

He cited a hospital charge and doctor bills as the chief factors in the overall rise in costs.

"Since price controls were lifted a year ago, the cost of medical care has increased 34 per cent faster than the economy as a whole, and this we must and will moderate," Weinberger said in a speech to the American Association of Medical Clinicians.

"With such skyrocketing inflation, the costs for health care in this fiscal year will increase an additional $1 billion and in the next year an extra $9 billion, those sums coming on top of the normal growth in health care spending each year.

"Consumers will pay 20 per cent of the higher costs, he added. "But he gave no specifics on how the government might slow the cost rise.

Weinberger has repeatedly expressed concern on this score, notably on May 3 when he warned leaders of major health groups that unless they controlled their costs, government might be forced to do it for them.

Hospital charges, he said, are increasing at an annual rate of 17.2 per cent compared to 12.5 per cent for the overall economy, and physicians' fees rising "at an unprecedented rate" of 19.1 per cent a year.

"Even during the medical cost inflation of the 1960s, the introduction of Medicare and Medicaid, increases in doctor bills came nowhere near the record-breaking rises we are now experiencing," Weinberger said.

Weinberger said such increases would not only hurt all Americans — the poor and the aged most heavily — but would outrage the public and raise what he called a dangerous prospect.

"The danger is that substantial increases in the cost of health care, such as those we are now experiencing, could lead to public demand to limit the independence traditionally accorded to providers of health care, and to broaden the extent of federal intervention in the operation of America's health care system."

Bax dedicates child center at Salmon

SALMON — Dr. James Bax, participating in a dedication of the new $90,000 Salmon Satellite Child Development Center, called on the community to continue to develop programs for the handicapped.

Bax, director of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, said there had been tremendous local effort to make the center a reality. He pledged his agency's full support.

He urged an expansion of the center to include mental health services and rehabilitative programs since there are many other individuals in need of assistance.

Dr. Bax said it will take some $100,000 a year from the department to operate the center which will assist the mentally and physically retarded in pre-school and kindergarten classes.

The center is expected to handle some 40 individuals at the most in its present facility, constructed adjacent to the Salmon Elks Lodge.

A group of more than 100 persons, including department officials from Idaho Falls, attended the ceremony.

Wally DeBard, president of the Child Development Center's Board, was master of ceremonies. Steve Pierce is the center's teacher and director.

Easter Seal center sets classes

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Easter Seal Center has reopened this week and is conducting speech and hearing and motor coordination evaluations.

According to Merle Stoddard, director therapist for the center, classes for both children and adults are being offered this year.

"Children's classes being offered are language stimulation check for auditory discrimination, visual perception, gross motor and fine motor coordination, and speech and hearing.

WEIGHT PROBLEM

DETROIT (UPI) — The total weight of a car and its contents has a significant effect on the amount of gasoline it consumes. Reducing the weight yields more miles per gallon.

By not using the trunk and back seat as a permanent storeroom for heavy tools and sports equipment, a car can be operated more economically.

Business formula works for newspaperwoman, 83

HOWARD CITY, Mich. (UPI) — Miss Monnie Farmer, who has been in the business for more than 40 years, has a successful formula for running a weekly newspaper.

It includes dipping into her Social Security checks from time to time to keep the Howard City Record solvent.

Miss Farmer publishes the Howard City weekly, which is 102 years old this month.

She was 83 years old Sept. 2 and despite the ravages of time and a 14-hour-a-day schedule, will continue its operations "as long as I can keep breathing and despite rising costs."

"Besides dipping into her Social Security checks, Miss Farmer said she boosted advertising prices from 30 to 70 cents an inch in her eight-page issues.

Instead of sending out bills she asked subscribers, in the newspaper, to send in their annual payments of $2 a year to avoid duplication of stamp costs.

"I had to do something about those rising postal costs and it is working out. Furthermore, my advertisers are helping by bringing in their own ads," she said.

She sells her ads by phone, does her own page makeup, answers the phone and operates out of a weather-beaten old house that has white wagon wheels on the lawn and a modest sign proclaiming it is the home of the Howard City Record.

The newspaper has a circulation of more than 1,100 in a city the size of 1,000.

Miss Farmer went to work on the old Record in 1930. She took it over when it folded in 1932 and local residents urged her to keep the publication afloat. She has done so since.

Her paper is printed at the Cedar Springs Clipper Print Shop published by Mr. and Mrs. Niels Anderson.

"She is just as sharp as she ever was" and "missed no deadlines. The only time she didn't appear personally was when she broke an arm and hip in a fall and sent her copy in by messenger," Anderson said.

2 in custody

BURLEY — Two North Dakota men were in custody here today on felony charges in connection with possession of drugs. Police identified the two as Dennis Gene Engle, 24, and Robert Johnson, 23, both McCluskey-N/D. Police Chief Gary Booth said the pair was arrested about 11 p.m. Thursday when Burley officers saw them driving in an erratic manner. The vehicle in which they were traveling was stopped and when officers asked for the registration, Chief Booth said, one of the men reached into the glove compartment and a package of marijuana was recovered. Officers said a search of the vehicle revealed marijuana, LSD and speed along with a loaded .25 pistol.

Junior fiddlers to play

FILER — About a dozen of the Salmon River Junior Fiddlers will join the Old Time Fiddlers Saturday afternoon to play at the Twin Falls County Fair.

Paid in full

MALTA — The first Raft River Electric Co-op mortgage note issued Oct. 5, 1959, has been paid off.

The Rural Electrification Association (REA) note for $111,000 for a system serving Elba, Almo, Malta, Bridge and Idaho is paid in full.

The system is valued at $6,422,891 — on the books of the association and board members say the appraised value would be twice that. Members have a 30 per cent equity in the plant.

The company recently applied for a $2,240,000 loan to cover costs of rapidly expanding irrigation services. The loan has been 25,000 has been advanced because of a shortage of funds.

Bids asked

BOISE (UPI) — Bids were asked by the Idaho Department of Public Works Thursday for construction on the Army National Guard Armory at Jerome.

The work calls for re-roofing the existing national armory, tenance shop at the vehicular storage area. Bids will be accepted until 3 P.M. Sept. 18.

Brochures contain warning

TWIN FALLS (UPI) — Campaign brochures distributed by Attorney General Anthony Park at the Twin Falls County Fair contain a warning for consumers to guard against unscrupulous business practices.

Park, an incumbent, said the information deals with such consumer problems as automobile repair, home repair, interest rates, energy crisis, schemes and referral sales.

Rate increase eyed

SUN VALLEY (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said here Thursday he feared proposed freight rate increases would knock Idaho out of its competitive position in the nation's potato market.

Andrus told the annual Idaho Potato Grower-Shipper convention he would strenuously resist "unjustified and excessive freight rate increases being proposed for Idaho's perishable commodities."

"I am afraid that Idaho's ability to compete not only with other potato growing states, like Maine, but also with other products, such as rice, will be irreparably damaged," he said.

Fish hatchery eyed

HELLS CANYON (UPI) — The Rapid River Fish Hatchery in the Hells Canyon area was cited Thursday by GOP lieutenant governor candidate Vernon Rensvold as an example of what good wildland management can do for Idaho.

Rensvold said the hatchery has been "a tremendous success" — far exceeding its goal.

He made the remark during a tour of the Hells Canyon area sponsored by the Greater Snake River Land Use Council and the Idaho County Chapter of Outdoors, Unlimited.

Before 1964 a yearly average of 200 to 300 adult fish returned to the area to spawn, Rensvold said. He said the goal of the hatchery was a return of 2,700 fish each year which has been surpassed with a run of between 3,000 and 17,000.

New lady in blue

OGDEN (UPI) — The Ogden Police Force has a new lady in blue.

Ann Grotegut, a blonde, 22-year-old Brigham Young University police science graduate, was sworn in this week as the department's first full-fledged female officer in 25 years.

Police Chief Leroy A. Jacobsen said Miss Grotegut eventually will be trained in all divisions of the 108-man department, but will spend her first week assigned to traffic.

Hearings slated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Public Works Committee will hold hearings later this month to try to assess the economic factors responsible for a slump in the construction industry.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said the slump has brought a nearly 11 per cent increase in unemployment to the industry.

He said the hearings will attempt to assess the impact of inflation, material shortages and rising unemployment in the industry as it affects the total economy.

The committee also will look at problems in federally funded construction and consider ways federal action could help revive the industry.

Energy project eyed in Malta

MALTA — A pool of underground hot water south of Malta may have the potential to generate as much as 500 megawatts of electricity, the manager of the Raft River Electric Co-op says.

The co-op and the Atomic Energy Commission are developing a pilot geothermal energy project in the area and if the project proceeds according to schedule a pilot plant will be installed in 1976.

Edwin Schender, Malta, manager of the co-op, said the initial plant is expected to generate only 15 megawatts. But he said some of the scientists involved believe there may be enough water to generate 500 megawatts.

He said the scientists will get together Oct. 1 to decide when they will start drilling the first production hole.

4,000 watch top cowboys at TF rodeo

FILER — The nation's top cowboys are in Idaho this week competing in both Filer and Lewiston rodeos.

Thursday's performance was attended by more than 4,000 people.

The 1972 World Champion bull rider, John Quintana, Creswell, Ore., scored an outstanding 80 points Thursday night to take the lead in the bull riding event at the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo.

His ride was made on the national finals bull Whirligig of the Golden State Rodeo stock. If this score holds for the next few nights, Quintana will leave Filer with the $15,000 purse.

Another former world champion, Bill Nelson, San Francisco, had the evening's second highest score, 76 points.

In bareback bronc riding a former national collegiate champion, J. C. Trujillo, Santa Fe, N.M., won the first go-round in his event and $271 when he scored 15 points.

Identical times of 5.6 seconds in steer wrestling were turned in by Ross Dolven, Wickenburg, Ariz., and D. J. Smith, Melrose, Mont.

The lead in the second go-round is still held by Tom Puryear, Norman, Okla., who downed his steer Wednesday night in 4.6 seconds. He also leads for the average with 5.6 seconds on two head.

Chasing fans saw a speedy 137 seconds turned in by Jack Purchase of Pendleton, Ore. Kenny Call, Blanco, Tex., had 141 seconds to take the lead in the average. He has a total of 25 seconds on two calves.

In the classic rodeo event, saddle bronc riding, a Canadian cowboy, John Graham of Sweetheaven, scored 78 points to take the lead in the event. Another Canadian, Jim Kells of Consort, Alberta, was second with 76 points and former world champion, Mel Hyland, Surry, British Columbia, Canada, was third with 74 points.

Two Oregon cowboys, Becky Fullerton of Heppner and Julie Benson of Eugene, scored identical times of 17.7 seconds to take the lead in the second go-round in barrel racing.

Close behind them was Jerome's Lallo Brackebury, who was Miss Rodeo, America, in 1971. Miss Brackebury's time was 18 seconds.

The final night for the rodeo will be Saturday.

Cycle mishap injures two

TWIN FALLS — Two off-road motorcycles collided at the intersection of Shoshone Street and Main Avenue Thursday night, sending two persons to the hospital.

City police said driver of one of the machines, John M. Grimes, 20, Schenectady, N.Y., was taken to the hospital as was Cynthia Parker, 19, Severna Park, Md. She was a passenger on the second machine operated by Paul James Peter, 23, Philo, Cal.

Both were treated and released from Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. Hospital attendants say the large influx of cyclists in Twin Falls this week has resulted in several injuries but none serious as yet.

Also treated and released from cycle accidents Thursday night was Allen J. Innes, 18, Pleasantville, N. J. Barbara Ross, 31, Persimac, Fla., was hospitalized with a back injury and is listed in good condition.

Jerry Brooks, Redding, Mass., injured in a deep accident Tuesday night, remains in serious condition. He was injured when the vehicle in which he was riding overturned at the Shoshone Falls.

TWIN FALLS — One damage suit brought by Evel Knievel against two Twin Falls men and local business has been settled and another filed in Fifth Judicial District Court.

A suit by Knievel against Robert Crandall, Harold Frazier, Advertising Services and the Times-News Ace Printing Co. was settled between the plaintiff and defendants this week.

The suit had asked $100,000 damages charging the defendants used Knievel's picture, name and symbols without permission to publish, sell and promote a "four color map." Knievel originally asked the court for a restraining order against the defendants and asked $100,000 punitive and $10,000 general damages.

In the agreement and stipulation, the defendants stated 15,000 copies were published and

Knievel files 2nd suit

TWIN FALLS — One damage suit brought by Evel Knievel against two Twin Falls men and local business has been settled and another filed in Fifth Judicial District Court.

A suit by Knievel against Robert Crandall, Harold Frazier, Advertising Services and the Times-News Ace Printing Co. was settled between the plaintiff and defendants this week.

The suit had asked $100,000 damages charging the defendants used Knievel's picture, name and symbols on tee shirts which were sold for profit. Knievel asked a restraining order to stop the sales immediately and for $100,000 damages.

Bob Crandall, one of the originators of the publication, said the guides were sold to Knievel at 50 cents per copy as part of the case settlement. They are available to the public at $1.

The brochure-type publication depicts the jump site, information on the daredevil and shows photos of points of interest around Twin Falls.

Crandall, one of the defendants in the case, said if additional copies are printed by Knievel his group will receive 10 per cent of the receipts.

3,900 had been distributed or placed in the hands of dealers.

Knievel agreed to a 10 per cent cut on gross sale of additional printings of the brochures. He also agreed to receive all other copies for $400 and a fee of 50 cents per copy for those sold. A court order signed by Judge Theron W. Ward dismissed the suit.

In the suit, filed Thursday, Knievel named Superior Products Co., Perma Trans, Roach Studio and Richard Broughton as defendants. He charged them with using his picture, name and symbols on tee shirts which were sold for profit.

Knievel asked a restraining order to stop the sales immediately and for $100,000 damages.

Pleads guilty

BURLEY — Wesley John Roberts, 27, Burley, pleaded Thursday to one charge in connection with the July fire at an Ore-Ida potato cellar.

Roberts pleaded guilty to being an accessory to second degree arson. Three adults and one juvenile were arrested in connection with the fire at the cellar south of Burley. The juvenile was charged and released to military authorities.

Earl L. Wright, 29, also Burley, was sentenced to 10 years in the state penitentiary after pleading guilty to arson charges in the case.

James A. Reed, 19, Burley, has pleaded guilty to a charge of being an accessory to the arson. Both Reed and Roberts are awaiting sentencing. Other charges were dropped.

Rim guards voice concern on safety

Trevino said he thought the daredevil's jump was "going to be cute."

"I really thought it was going to be a motorcycle, but now it's a rocket, so I think he'll really make it," Trevino said.

Tom Nichols, a construction worker from Detroit who rode his motorcycle to Twin Falls and is working as a security guard to pay back the cost of his jump ticket, said he has had no trouble keeping a division road in the jump site area sealed.

"Everybody has been real, real extra nice," he said. "Townpeople and out-of-staters both. I think everybody's just here for a nice time."

Nichols said he was disappointed with the campground, which he thought lacked facilities. He also criticized Evel Knievel's launch pad.

"The ramp is nothing like I had pictured," he said. "I thought it would be half-mile or at least a quarter-mile long. It's a rocket, not a motorcycle."

He said his father-in-law, who had been planning to fly out for the jump, cancelled his plan, after reading of sparse reports and disorganization at the jump site in the Detroit papers.

Nichols said he had seen no drunkenness or other problems along the special security routes.

On the north side of the canyon, Earl Kiegler, a hang gliding instructor from York, Pa., said he went to work as a guard "to get involved."

Kiegler said he had been approached by superiors about arming himself but had refused to do so.

"If they're not smiling when they leave, then I didn't do my job right," he said of people trying to get onto the closed north side rimlands adjacent to the Idaho Power plant road.

Kiegler said Jerome county deputy sheriffs have been checking the guard site hourly.

Aaron Witherspoon, a member of the Magic Valley Trail Bike Association, which has been hired to help patrol the north rim, said he had experienced no trouble from spectators.

"Most of the people who stop and say anything are from Twin — and that's infrequent," he said.

Witherspoon, a Jerome electrician, said he thought "Knievel's jump" was "a carney sideshow."

"The motorcycle races are fine," he said. "If there was a 10 per cent chance he (Knievel) would get across there, he wouldn't do it. He's not crazy ... I just wish he'd go away. I really do."

Watch gate

Crime rises in Idaho

In 1972 crime in Idaho rose 3 per cent from the previous year, while nationwide crime statistics showed a 4 per cent drop for the first time in 17 years.

US Atty. Gen. William Saxbe called it "discouraging" but predicted the trend would again turn downward by next year.

"The report said a 4 per cent drop in 1972 was followed by a 1 per cent decrease in each of the first two quarters of 1973, leading to hopes that the upward trend had been reversed permanently.

But the rate of serious crimes rose 1 per cent in the third quarter and spiked upward by 18 per cent in the last three months to show an average annual increase of 6 per cent, it said.

The accelerated rate of climb continued into 1974, an FBI spokesman said. It was growing at a 15 per cent rate during the first quarter of this year, and while second quarter figures are not yet complete it may still be rising, he said.

Saxbe was more optimistic. Although he called the war on crime "a jumble of substantial dimension — harsh, bitter and dismaying" in a Chicago speech last week, he predicted Thursday that "the incidence of crime will decline maybe not in 1974 but in 1975."

"I think people are becoming more conscious of crime. That goes a long way," he said.

Nationwide, rape was up most sharply, at 10 per cent. It said, and robbery — the least, representing only a 2 per cent increase.

THESE FOUR visitors from Costa Rica and Colombia attended the Twin Falls County Fair Wednesday with Harold West, executive secretary of the Idaho Bean Commission, Boise, and several area men. They stated they were impressed with the county fair, with the country and its outstanding bean crop.

Fair guests

Latin visitors much impressed with TF Fair, area bean crops

By MARJORIE LIERMAN Times-News writer
FILER. — Visitors from Costa Rica and Colombia attended the Twin Falls County Fair and said they were "very much impressed with it."
The four men are guests this week of the Idaho Bean Commission and were shown through the fairgrounds by Harold West, executive secretary of the Idaho Bean Commission, Boise; Lawrence Knigge and Harold (Pete) Brown, Filer, and Bob Guiner, Twin Falls.
The men are Jose M. Vargas, Banco Nacional de Costa Rica; Ricardo Batailla

Equivel, San Jose, Costa Rica; Ing. Agr. Cullerme Munoz S., Consejo Nacional de Produccion, Costa Rica, and Julio Alfredo Reyes, La Cooperativa Ltda., Cali Valle, Colombia.
They are in the Magic Valley area looking over the bean industry and farms where beans are raised. They are interested in bean production, the handling of the crops, seed facilities, and methods of raising beans which is the main staple of their countries. They raise black and small red beans in their lands and purchase some Idaho beans.
They have been touring bean facilities in Nampa, Caldwell, Gooding, Jerome, Hazelton, Twin Falls and Filer, and will leave for their homes the end of this week.
It was the first trip to Idaho for all of them. They said they were "very impressed with the country and had enjoyed it." They would be back, they said. They had never seen so many beans and praised the yields which we have in this country, adding there were not as high as they had seen in their countries. They praised the county fair and said in their countries they have youth clubs known as 4-S clubs which raise animals and crops and put on their own show.

Gem record set

BOISE (UPI) — Commercial red meat production in Idaho in July was a record high for the month, the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today.
The July production, the service said, was 29.5 million pounds.
The service added that the total for the first six months of this year also was a record, exceeding the same period in 1973 by 31 per cent.

Australian farmers facing bright year

LONDON (CNS) — A generally buoyant year for Australian primary producers has been forecast by the federal minister for agriculture, Senator Kenneth Wilton.
Speaking in Melbourne, he said he thought the gross value of Australia's rural production last year would be only marginally below the record $1,574 million (US $536 million) earned in 1973-74.
The senator added that the market for wheat, coarse grains, oil seeds, and some dairy products has

Utah prices rise

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah farmers and ranchers generally received higher prices for farm products in mid-August than during the previous month.
The Utah Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said prices were higher for barley, dry beans, hogs, sheep, steers, cows, milk, turkeys and alfalfa hay.
But the prices for livestock other than milk cows averaged lower than for the same month last year.
The price of wheat in Utah in August averaged $1.83 per bushel, down 11 cents from July but up 16 cents from the same month in 1973. Alfalfa

W. German coolers hold beef surplus

(C) New York Times Service ALDENMITTLAU, West Germany — Fifty thousand tons of surplus beef is being held in refrigerated warehouses in West Germany.
"We don't have room for any more," an official said.
All over Europe, in fact, farmers are producing more beef and pork than the market will bear and they have been blocking highways and spilling milk in a demand for changes in the European common market's coordinated agricultural policies.
But the consumer is paying with few exceptions, the price-high prices as before, and many are disputing it. Last year in Germany, that something is wrong.
What is wrong? The case of Heinrich Bilz is typical.
Ten years ago Bilz, who was born in this unmanufactured village east of Frankfurt in 1923, read about farm specialization and decided as he puts it, "to go into pig raising."
He doesn't regret it. Prices rose to record levels last year but now he is worried. Since the market is glutted, Bilz gets only 75 per cent of what he was paid last year for a full-grown pig, but has to pay, he says, about 20 per cent more for fertilizer, diesel fuel for his tractor, and food.

"We've got to have some kind of help from the government," he says, "the same as labor union members get — a raise because of inflation."
In the supermarkets in Bonn, the government has been buying up beef from farmers who have not been able to sell it to the slaughterhouses since last September.
The principle is that when the free-market price falls below a certain level, the government will buy it.
The theory is relatively easy to understand in Europe, the resulting confusion of beef, stove for — and won't self-sufficiency. But now that it has more than enough beef for its own needs, it does not know what to do with it.
These are some examples of the resulting confusion:
A German freighter, the Peter Richmers, has been wandering from port to port in Europe port this summer with a cargo of 600 tons of Chinese pork. Angry French farmers prevented its being unloaded at Le Havre, and it sailed to Belgium, The Netherlands and then Hamburg. The cargo was finally sent to a buyer in Austria who will sell it to Chinese restaurants, according to agriculture officials in Frankfurt.
As with last summer's "butter mountain," 50,000 tons of surplus Common Market beef has been sold — for less than half the price the government paid for it — to the Soviet Union. German public opinion is likely to react strongly against this by the time of the next Common Market council meeting on agricultural policy.
Farmers are being according to the West-German Agricultural Ministry, which became excited recently about a threat by farmers to block the railroad line between East and West Germany.

US, sugar industry spokesmen hint decline in prices coming

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government and industry spokesmen said Thursday sugar prices may soon decline, but consumers can expect only modest relief and another increase in soft drink prices.
"U.S. raw sugar prices appear likely to remain high for some time, though they may decline some of over 30 cents a pound," said an Agriculture Department spokesman in a food situation report.
A sugar industry spokesman agreed in an interview that refiners are watching raw sugar prices to turn down soon.

But the report said that soft drink prices will use nearly a fourth of the nation's sugar supply, are likely to rise again in the third and fourth quarters of 1974 following sharp jumps during the past year.
"Both government and industry economists said prices have jumped from last summer's average of about 10 cents a pound for raw sugar to about 31 cents because of a short world supply."
The Agriculture Department report showed no drop in consumer demand despite record prices for sugar and sugar products ranging from baked goods to soft drinks.
The report noted that average retail prices for a six-pack of 12 ounce drinks jumped from 66 cents in the second quarter of 1973 to $1.02 in the second quarter of 1974. But, it said, per capita consumption of such beverages in the United States is down 102 percent from 1973.
Current prices, however, are more optimistic than those published by an internationally known private sugar reporting service, which says sugar production was below demand in the 1973 year ending Aug. 31, rather than increasing.

Farm

Commodity-feed ratios decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Department records show the agency's commodity-feed ratios in mid-August were down in many cases to levels indicating a severe pinch on livestock and poultry producers.
The department's egg-feed ratio, for example, fell 8 per cent between mid-July and mid-August to a level which economists said was the lowest they could find in their record books.
The commodity-feed ratios are published monthly as rough economic indicators of up and down trends for hog, egg, broiler, turkey and milk producers. The ratios measure the amount of feed which can be purchased with returns from 100 pounds of live hog, 1 pound of milk, chicken or turkey, or a dozen eggs.
If egg prices advance faster than feed prices, for example, the ratio rises to indicate an improved profit outlook for the egg farmer. When the ratio number goes down, however, it indicates the value of the product has declined in comparison with the cost of feed used to produce them, and the egg producer's pocketbook is pinched.
According to the latest available estimates, the egg-feed ratio (number of pounds of feed which can be purchased with the value of one dozen eggs slumped from 6.1 in mid-July to 5.6 in mid-August, breaking through the 5.8 floor reached in June. The ratio figure in August, 1973, was 6.3.
The broiler chicken-feed ratio fell from 2.6 in July to 2.3 in August compared with a 4.0 level in August, 1973. Officials said the August figure matched the ratio for last December, which was at or near a record low. Comparisons reaching beyond 1963 are difficult for broilers because estimating methods were changed in that year.
The milk-feed ratio slumped from 1.29 in July to 1.16 in August, which was at or near a record low. Comparisons reaching beyond 1963 are difficult for broilers because estimating methods were changed in that year.
The corn-hog ratio dropped, from 1.9 in July to 1.07 in August compared with 21.0 a year earlier. Last month's reading was above a 1963 level of last June, but ranked among the lowest in many years, experts said.

Most Idaho winter wheat harvest in

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho farmers have completed more than 90 per cent of the combining of winter wheat, a federal crop report said today.
Harvesting of spring wheat and barley has reached the 70 per cent level, the report said.
Digging of potatoes for early contracts continued in the southwest last week, and a few fields were harvested in the eastern end of the state. Some fields were showing signs of early drying.
Alfalfa hay harvesting in the higher elevation areas and third crop on the lower elevation fields.
Harvesting of sweet corn for processing plants was at peak activity, and the onion harvest became active. Hogs picking gained momentum, and swathing of dry beans began in Southeast Idaho.
Fruitgrowers in the Caldwell and Emmett areas have begun picking peaches, pines and pears.

Less US fertilizer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — According to Fertilizer Institute statistics, total US fertilizer inventories at producer levels in July improved a little from June but were still 18 per cent below last year's levels.
Nitrogen products were particularly in tight supply and were 10 per cent below July 1973 levels with tonnage equivalent to 14 days' production, the institute said.
Phosphate and potash inventories are in a similar position, going into fall planting, with tonnage equivalent to 15 days' production.
Overall, fertilizer production for July ran six per cent higher than July 1973, with domestic disappearance, sales and manufacturing use two per cent higher than a year ago, according to FI figures.

Uruguayan exports may be emphasized

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Uruguay may emphasize a lean on domestic beef consumption this year to increase exports, according to the foreign Agricultural Service's Agriculture Magazine.
Beef is Uruguay's major commodity for foreign exchange, which is most likely to purchase food. Uruguay is 100 per cent dependent on imports to meet domestic energy needs.
In 1973 beef accounted for 41 per cent of the value of all Uruguayan agricultural exports and 37 per cent of all exports. To increase exports of beef that year Uruguay banned domestic consumption for three months.
This year, Foreign Agriculture says, the ban may only be for two months if world demand is high enough. The magazine says 1974 forecasts of Uruguayan exports include 115,000 metric tons of beef valued at $135 million, 70,000 metric tons of wool (greasy basis) valued at $117 million, 13,000 metric tons of hides valued at $10 million, 50,000 metric tons of grain sorghum valued at $6 million, and 70,000 metric tons of rice value at $157 million.
The beef figure is a 17,000 increase over the preliminary totals for 1973, and the other figures also represent increases. The total dollar value of Uruguayan agricultural exports is expected to increase from $319.2 million to $571.2 million.
Uruguay is trying to become self-sufficient in wheat and edible oils. Foreign Agriculture says, "Historically, the country's major import items from the US were imported in 1973 although 3,000 tons of soybean oil were purchased from Argentina. In 1973 Uruguay received 43,000 tons of US wheat. This year the country is expected to need wheat imports of 85,000 tons."

Dodgers, Reds open crucial 10-day period

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The most important 10 days of the long season now are here for the Los Angeles Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds — baseball's two hottest teams with the momentum being jammed in the same division.

The Dodgers, leading Cincinnati by 2 1/2 games in the National League West, open a three-game series against the Reds here Friday night.

Next weekend the Reds travel to Los Angeles for the final three games between the clubs and by that time a clear favorite for the title could emerge.

The Reds spotted the Dodgers a hefty 10 game lead midway in the season, but have been chipping away at the margin since.

A three-game sweep here this weekend could give Cincinnati the division lead for the first time since way back on April 6.

when the season was just a couple of days old. But a Los Angeles sweep would leave the Reds 5 1/2 games back.

"We're going to know a lot about how this is shaping up by Sunday evening," says Reds manager Sparky Anderson, who has grown more confident as his team inched its way back the last two months.

"We're going to win this thing," he predicts. "We have courage. My guys are never going to stop."

Anderson also says that when his Reds take over first place, they will never relinquish the lead.

In his fifth season of heading Cincinnati, Anderson has not put his managerial reputation on the line. He's led the Reds to first place finishes three of the last four years, but flatly says the talent he has this season is better than ever.

Walter Alston, a craftsman in his 21st straight season of managing the Dodgers, believes he has a steeleer team than last year's version that gave way to the Reds in the final month.

Two off-season trades — picking up hard-working reliever Mike Marshall from Montreal and getting slugger Jimmy Wynn from Houston — already have paid huge dividends for Los Angeles.

The Dodgers, who have beaten the Reds nine of 12 times this year, bring an 85-51 record into the series — a sizzling 625 winning percentage.

The Reds are 83-54, a .606 mark that would easily put them in first place in any of the major leagues if there were other divisions.

Don "Dogger Killer" Gullett, who has 124 lifetime mark against Los Angeles, will start for the Reds Friday night. The 23-year-old lefthander, who splices his usual menu of fastballs with an occasional hard-to-hit forkball, will be opposed by Don Sutton.

For Saturday afternoon's nationally televised game — the fifth time in as many weeks the Reds have been featured on national TV — the Dodgers will send 10 game-winner Andy Messersmith against Clay Kirby.

In the Sunday afternoon windup, the Reds' Jack Billingham — winningest pitcher in the National League — will try for his 19th victory against Dave Rau.

The three game series is expected to draw a near capriciously crowd total of almost 600,000 fans to Riverfront Stadium. Sunday's game already is sold out and by Thursday afternoon only several hundred seats remained for Saturday's game and just a few thousand were left for Friday night's contest.

Some fans literally shed blood for tickets.

Tanner upsets Smith to gain tennis semi-finals

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Jimmy Connors and Roscoe Tanner, two young American tennis stars, joined Australian veterans John Newcombe and Ken Rosewall in the semifinals of the U.S. Open tennis championships.

The prize scalp went to the unexpected Tanner, who picked this day to register his first ever victory over Stan Smith, the third seed and 1971 champion, 7-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

Connors, 24, defeated Russia's Alex McNeil, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1; Newcombe, the defending champion came back from the brink to defeat Arthur Ashe, 4-6, 6-3, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4, while Rosewall gave India's Vijay-Amritraj a set start and 19 years in age before dumping him, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

In Saturday's semifinals, Connors meets Tanner and Newcombe faces Rosewall.

In the men's singles semifinals Friday, Chris Evert meets Evonne Goolagong and three-time champion Billie Jean King faces unseeded Julie Heldman, who knocked Billie out in the third round last year.

Tanner, only 11th on the 1974 money list with $60,125, jumped the net when he passed Smith on the match point and the 14:16 crowd rose to cheer his victory. The 23-year-old from Lookout Mountain, Tenn., said later, "This has to be my greatest ever win."

Smith nodded in agreement, saying, "I sure can endorse that."

In a match of big serving and cut-and-thrust at the net, Smith came up with eight aces against six for Tanner, while he served five doublefaults to Roscoe's three.

Both men held reasonably comfortably in the first set until "the tie-break," which Tanner won five points to two.

Roscoe broke for 2-1 in the second set and again in the second game, while a four-game break was sufficient to give Smith the third set.

But Tanner was not to be denied on this day and he raced to a 4-0 lead in the fourth set and Smith was unable to recover.

Connors, who lost to Metrevel in the Wimbledon semifinal in 1973 and was only 1-1 with him this year, spotted the Russian the first set, but then won the second set, mostly from the baseline and relying on Metrevel errors.

Jimmy trailed 3-0 in the first set, broke for 4-2 in the second when Metrevel doublefaulted and then went ahead 5-2. In the third when he broke at love, in the decisive fourth set, Connors broke for 2-1 when Metrevel netted an easy forward volley.

Newcombe, who had all manner of service problems until 4-4 in the fourth when he discovered his "throw up" was wrong, kept himself alive by sheer determination when Ashe was playing impeccable tennis.

"Arthur played as well as he knows how and made no unforced errors until the fifth set," said the 20-year-old Aussie, who has banked $191,000 in tournament winnings this year.

An overflow crowd — people were permitted only to sit on the grass on the edges of the grandstand court — saw a real thriller between Newcombe and Ashe. The match lasted two hours, 45 minutes, and was a hard-fought battle.

One break of service was sufficient to decide every set except the fourth, which went all the way to the tie-break, which Newcombe took, 5-8.

Ashe served a better throughout, but Newcombe's great determination kept him alive. He always was under pressure on service, several times coming from behind to hang on, but he had it in the clutch.

Arthur broke in the opening game of the match. Newk broke in the fourth game of the five. Arthur broke for 2-1 in the third, while Newk went ahead 2-1 in the fifth.

It was as close as that.

Steelers rip Dallas 41-15 to remain undefeated

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Joe Gilliam, trying to win the No. 1 Pittsburgh quarterbacking job, threw two touchdown passes in the first half Thursday night to start the Steelers on their way to a 41-15 romp over Dallas.

Pittsburgh finished their exhibition campaign with a 6-0 record, the first perfect preseason in its history.

Gilliam, battling Terry Bradshaw for the starting spot, hit 10 of 18 passes for 187 yards, while playing only the first half.

In six exhibition games the second-year pro from Tennessee State has thrown for 11 touchdowns and completed 1,175 yards worth of passes while playing only 15 quarters.

Gilliam hit Ron Shanklin with a 56-yard touchdown pass on the fifth play of the game, and late in the second quarter he connected with rookie John Stallworth on a 31-yard scoring toss.

In between, Preston Pearson scored on a one-yard plunge after Gilliam hit five straight passes on the drive. Bradshaw came on in the second half and threw a touchdown pass of 20 yards to tight end Larry Brown. Terry Hanratty got in the act with a 39-yard scoring throw to Dave Davis.

Ray Goren clipped in field goals of 25 and 38 yards in the second half for the Steelers.

Dallas' George Hunt produced a 31-yard field goal in the first period and rookie Clint Longley found Les Strayhorn with a 34-yard scoring pass and Jean Fuglet with another at 47 yards in the final quarter.

Dallas finished its exhibition schedule with a 3-3 record.

About the only thing Gilliam did wrong in his first quarters of play was to throw the ball right to Cowboy defensive back Mel Renfro on the first play of the game. But Renfro dropped the ball.

Dallas' offense, which showed signs of coming to life last week in a victory over Kansas City, faltered all night Thursday.

Craig Morton, starting in place of the injured Roger Staubach at quarterback, completed only seven of 15 passes for 75 yards in almost three full quarters of action. Morton was also intercepted once by Steelers linebacker Mel Blount, a pickoff which set up Pittsburgh's third touchdown.

Relocation of WFL Wheels to Charlotte nears completion

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Another step was taken toward relocation of the Detroit Wheels of the World Football League, probably by Thursday when an agreement was reached to lease Memorial Stadium here.

Upton Bell, former general manager of the New England Patriots of the National Football League, said he had reached agreement with the Charlotte Park and Recreation Commission to lease the 24,000-seat stadium.

He said the agreement was "very, very fair" but declined to comment on the specifics of the agreement.

"They treated me very, very well," said Bell from his motel room following a meeting with the commission.

Bell has franchise rights in North Carolina for a WFL team and said a decision will be made probably by the end of next week on purchase of the Detroit Wheels.

"I have to get back to the stadium people by Sept. 20 to let them know whether I will bring a team here this year or next year or whatever," said Bell.

The Wheels, now playing home games at Ypsilanti, Mich., are looking for their first victory and the team is reportedly having acute financial problems.

Bell is reportedly still trying to firm up financial investors for the team in the Charlotte area.

Bell had previously asked to rent Memorial Stadium for a flat rate per game instead of the standard 12 per cent of the gate. He had also asked for concession and parking rights and permission to sell beer at WFL games to provide additional income for the team.

Owners of the Wheels have said they would put the team up for sale if arrangements could not be worked out to lease Tiger Stadium in Detroit.

for home games next year.

The Toronto Northern of the WFL had considered moving to Charlotte prior to the season but it was decided to seek a larger stadium was available.

If the Wheels move to Charlotte, efforts are expected to be made to have a new stadium constructed in about four years either through private or public funds.

Bell said the Detroit team's name would be changed to something appropriate for Charlotte if the move is made.

Matuszak accuses NFL of coercion

HOUSTON (UPI) — John Matuszak, decorated with green leaves, gold crosses and a silver bangle hanging in the hair on his chest, testified Thursday the National Football League contract he signed with the Houston Oilers was "an obvious form of coercion."

The 6-8, 285-pound defensive lineman said he should be allowed to join the NFL and play with the Houston Texans of the World Football League.

Bill Pakalika, attorney for Matuszak and the Texans, told State District Judge Arthur Lescher that contracts handing players to the NFL through the option clause were "an obvious, one-way street" favoring owners.

Matuszak, testifying for an hour, said he had no choice but to sign if he wanted to play football at all, he said, "drowning down" from the witness stand. "They (Oilers) had sole right to me and if I did not agree to the terms, I would not be allowed to play in my country."

"I want to play in this country," said the giant lineman who wore a green and white checkered sports coat over an open-collared white shirt. "This is the land of the free and the home of the brave. That's what my country stands for."

He said his signing with the Oilers "is an obvious form of coercion. Either you sign the contract or not play."

The Oilers seek an extension of a temporary injunction to prevent Matuszak from playing with the WFL. Court was recessed for the day and the judge gave the lineman and the Texans until noon Saturday to reply to a legal brief filed earlier in the day by the Oilers.

Matuszak cannot play for the WFL, Texans until Lescher rules. The big lineman testified he had received no money from the Texans. He and his attorney strongly criticized the standard NFL contracts and the "Rozelle Rule" that allows Commissioner Pete Rozelle to decide compensation should a player jump from one NFL team to another.

After a heated exchange with Oilers coach Sid Gillman, Pakalika said:

"So what you're saying is 'Welcome to the wonderful world of NFL football. This is not a democracy. This is a dictatorship.' Isn't that right?"

Gillman did not answer and slumped in the witness chair with a disgusted look. Earlier, Gillman, swearing his usual bow tie, said to Matuszak's lawyer: "You're a smart aleck."

Matuszak was served with a temporary restraining order last week in the middle of the Texas-New York Stars game. The Oilers must show cause why the former Tampa University player, should be held to his contract.

Lescher must decide whether to continue the order as a temporary injunction, thus preventing Matuszak from playing for the Texans until the Oiler contract can be tried on its merits.

The Texans said they found a "loophole" in Matuszak's contract, but testimony indicated the WFL's new contract was questioning all NFL contracts.

Gillman, the first witness called, said in two hours of testimony that Matuszak was signed to four one-year contracts with an option each year by the Oilers.

"I was obligated by the NFL office that we sign a player to separate one-year contracts rather than one containing contract for, say, four years," Gillman said.

Pakalika tried to establish that with the strike by this year's NFL players still in effect, Matuszak had no appeal of more than $20,000 in fines levied by Gillman. The attorney said the player's contract calls for a salary of $25,000 this year.

"So if he shows up like a good boy tomorrow then he may get $10,000 for playing this year," Pakalika said.

Gillman has fined Matuszak $200 for each practice and team meeting he has missed. The coach said the big lineman would have to pay the entire amount before he could return to the Oilers.

The entire Oiler team, coaches and management, were subpoenaed for the hearing and many were sworn in as witnesses and asked by Judge Lescher to leave the courtroom during testimony. Oiler owner Bud Adams stayed in the back of the room.

When it was discovered during the proceeding that several coaches remained in the courtroom — by misunderstanding, Lescher gave the courtroom a football air.

"I can't tell 'em apart without a program," he said.

Blalock guns for second LPGA title

DALLAS (UPI) — Jane Blalock, who now feels like she is a "free spirit," goes after her second straight victory in the ladies pro golf tour beginning Friday in the Dallas Civitan Open.

Miss Blalock celebrated her favorable decision last week in her two-year court fight with the Ladies Professional Golf Association by sharing the championship — of the rain-shortened Southgate Open — in Prairie Village, Kan., with Sue Roberts.

And now she is ready to resume the pace she was setting two years ago when the LPGA tried to suspend her for what the organization felt was unethical play.

And a victory could vault her into first place on the money winning list for this season.

A court ruled last week the LPGA had wrongly tried to suspend Miss Blalock and awarded her court costs and attorney fees which amounted to $13,000.

"I didn't expect to feel any different," Miss Blalock said. "But I've been a free spirit all week. So it must have been in my subconscious."

Cancer evidence stalled

(c) Washington Star-News WASHINGTON - Although United States industry did not disclose until January of this year, it was aware as early as 1971 that the manufacture of polyvinyl chloride plastic was associated with an increased risk of cancer, according to an internal report by a unit of the World Health Organization in Geneva. Exposure to vinyl chloride gas, a toxic gas used in the manufacture of billions of tons of the plastic each year, has been linked to unexpectedly large numbers of a rare form of cancer called angiosarcoma of the liver among chemical workers. The WHO report, prepared by the organization's special cancer research branch, indicates that preliminary evidence which should have aroused suspicion was available years before. The report cites the work of an unnamed Italian scientist who is thought to be Dr. P.L. Vinha. Vinha began tests of vinyl chloride in laboratory animals in 1970 and reported in 1971 at an international cancer meeting in Houston, Tex. that it caused unusual tumors in the skin and eye glands of rats. That report attracted little attention in this country, however, because as Dr. David Rall, director of the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences explains: "Human beings lack these glands, and besides, the dose levels were far higher proportionately than those to which vinyl chloride workers were exposed. Rall's agency is a part of the National Institutes of Health. Meanwhile, however, according to both the WHO report and testimony given to the Senate Environment Sub-committee on Aug. 21, further work on animals by a second Italian scientist, Dr. Cesare Maltoni, indicated that far smaller exposures to vinyl chloride were probably capable of causing cancer. Although that information and further studies sponsored by the chemical industry in Europe were made available to U.S. manufacturers, industry officials, apparently chose not to share it with the U.S. government until earlier this year. At the Aug. 21 senate hearing, for example, Dr. Marcus Key, then the director of the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, reported that he had been visited in June, 1973 by a delegation from the manufacturing chemists association. The delegation, he said, had with it a representative of ICI - a British chemical company. Key told the subcommittee that he had learned months later that the ICI representative had been prepared to disclose the findings of European studies on vinyl chloride in detail, but that the subject had never come up because the industry had not informed him that the data existed and the ICI representative did not volunteer it. "No mention was made to us about 'ICI cancer,'" Key reported, and no mention was made to us about the name of the Italian scientist (Maltoni). It was not until Jan. 28, 1974, when the liver cancer deaths of three vinyl chloride workers at B.F. Goodrich's Louisville plant was disclosed by Dr. John Creech, a company physician, that the government agencies began a crash program to bring the environmental hazard under stricter control.

Sewer bills paid under protest

KETCHUM — A representative for motel owners told the city council Tuesday night owners would pay their 1975 sewer bills under protest.

Russ Fitzpatrick told the council owners would not accept any rate increase until after the 1975 sewer budget was completed. The bills, he said, would be paid under protest until officials could prove the increase was justified.

Originally, the council voted to raise sewer rates to motel owners. However, after protest the council decided only to double the rates the same as every other unit in town.

The first reading was given to the new ordinance to double instead of triple motel rates and to charge 60 and older citizens one half normal rate. In other action the council waived a building permit fee for construction of a fire escape at Hemingway Elementary School. They turned to other action the council. DeLong who requested his building permit money back for a structure never built in 1972.

DeLong wished to build a four-plex before the 1972 building moratorium. He never started the structure having two weeks before the moratorium went into effect. Instead he later built a duplex and wanted the permit money for the four-plex applied to that building.

Frankie Hjort was named to the Ketchum park board.

The council discussed getting Allied Paving to pave Saddle Road and the gravel road which connects Warm Springs Road with US Highway

33. Figures must be obtained and a bid let. The council decided before it could accept the offer.

The council approved alleyways between Washington Street and Main to run one way — south. Alleys between Leadville and Main will run north.

A variance request by Carl Mullins to build West Ketchum Condominiums under the old city ordinance was given approval by the council to appear as a public notice.

The notice must run three times and a public hearing will be scheduled.

Job stress

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patrolman Gene Smith weighs 230 pounds, and he says the reason for his obesity is job stress.

Police Personnel Director George Elmli said Smith, 48, weighed 190 pounds when he joined the force 22 years ago.

Now, Elmli said, he can no longer perform routine police work because he is too fat.

The Police Commission has asked for Smith's resignation.

Smith, whose last assignment was guarding the police stables in Golden Gate Park, said, "Whenever I was nervous or frustrated from my job, I'd eat — at home, I'd raid the refrigerator."

His lawyer is trying to prove that Smith's fatness and a heart condition were caused by his job.

Tapes for trial 'not available'

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — White House tapes, subpoenaed by U.S. District Judge Fred Nichol, will not be available to the participants in the Wounded Knee trial.

Nichol said he received a call in his chambers Wednesday from Herbert J. Miller Jr., an aide to former President Richard Nixon, saying the tapes would not be available.

The defense had wanted the tapes to find out if Nixon and his advisers had discussed the occupation of Wounded Knee, S. D., and what decisions had been made.

However, the defense said it would not pursue the matter further unless American Indian Movement leaders Dennis Banks and Russell Means are convicted. The two are charged each with five felonies in last year's 71-day takeover of the South Dakota hamlet.

In what may have been the final day of testimony of the trial, the wife of Louis Moves, Camp testified Wednesday that her husband told her he was only in Wounded Knee for one week during the occupation.

Rupert asked to aid funds

RUPERT — The City Council was asked Tuesday night to help pay for a rescue vehicle for the Mini-Cassia Search and Rescue unit.

Charles described the equipment as extrication tools used to quickly dismantle cars in the effort to remove persons in an automobile accident. The equipment is carried in two cases which weigh over 400 pounds together.

Charles said the equipment is stored at the Cassia County Courthouse where the sheriff's office is located. The sheriff, one of his deputies has to open the courthouse if it is closed when the equipment is needed.

The extrication tools have been used twice since they were bought in April, Charles said, and would have been used more often if the equipment had been available.

If funding can be obtained, the unit will buy a vehicle to haul the tools which will be capable of reaching the scene of an accident quickly. The unit has approached the county commissioners in Minidoka and Cassia counties and the city councils of Rupert and Harley. The Cassia County commissioners have allocated $1,000 for the project. Charles said. The rescue unit is seeking $4,000 to buy the vehicle.

Charles told the council that the search for 10-year-old Jeff Hodgson in the Minidoka desert earlier this summer "ate up the funds" which might have gone toward buying the van. He said the local search and rescue unit expended about $5,000 only $1,000 of which has been reimbursed by the state of Idaho.

The council expressed interest in the project but did not take action on the request, which is now under study by the council.

Councilman Clark Cameron suggested that a used vehicle with the necessary reliability and speed be located and a cost figure presented to the council.

Shoshone court improvement eyed

SHOSHONE — Improvement will be made at the city tennis court located near the recreation grounds, city councilmen decided Tuesday night meeting.

The court is on the east edge of the city and repair will be made within the next three weeks while the old mix plant is in the area.

Councilmen gave approval to transfer the beer and liquor licenses from Marvin and Hazel Cole, McFall Club, to SharVal Corp. the new owners.

Bar tender permits were issued to Danny R. Trammell, Judy Hill, Eunice Powers, Jewel Shropshire and Barbara Golman.

Building permits were issued to Edward D. Savaria to locate a mobile home on Lots 7-9-10 in block seven, Aln View addition; to Marvin Cole for a new carport on lots 7 and 8.

block, F. Richards addition; Donald Keffeler for carport on lots 11 and 12 in block 12, and three applications for underground gas storage tanks were approved for Burton Thorne CheVran; Garold's Conoco and Ed's Gateway Service.

The council will investigate the best methods, improving and insulating the pump house and converting to a different type of heat from the old oil furnace there now.

The possibility of replacing the present 10-inch column city pump to a larger pump to increase water supply to the city is being studied and the advisability of a dog leash law is being studied.

The council is considering dog license fees increase to offset the cost of maintaining care at a dog pound and salary for a dog catcher.

Church speaks at TF gathering

TWIN FALLS — U.S. Sen. Frank Church said in Twin Falls Wednesday he will give his support to President Gerald Ford in an effort to get the country "back to the high level of morality it enjoyed in the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations."

Church, addressing a gathering of Democratic party leaders and members during a reception Wednesday night, said the new president "deserves the support of both parties — an attempting to correct the many problems he inherited," and he will get that cooperation from "me."

President Ford has inherited a run away inflation, rising unemployment and record high interest rates from the Nixon administration, and he needs the cooperation of all of us as he charts his new course," the Democratic senator said.

Church said he feels inflation is the "number one" problem of the country today and said, "I have contended all along we would have a balanced budget when he got a president who would not balance the budget." Church said he had an unbalanced budget in Congress in the first place.

"I for one welcome an end to the forked tongue practice of contending Congress for deficit spending while pushing the presidential budget further and further into the red to the tune of about $15 to $20 billion," he said.

Church, accompanied by his wife, Bethane, arrived in Twin Falls Wednesday for the official opening of the Church and Andy headquarters, 134 Shoshone St.

Seal coating starts

RUPERT — Seal coating work started Wednesday on Fremont Street in Rupert.

The City Council approved Tuesday a proposal from Klopfer Concrete Co. Paul, to recast the street free of charge as a demonstration of a new type of seal coating.

The new process uses a slurry type coating instead of the usual oil and chip method.

The new coating costs $23 per ton, considerably less expensive than traditional methods.

The streets surrounding the town square will also be recast at a cost of about $1,600 if the process meets the approval of the city.

Other streets where the asphalt has cracked may be recast at a later date.
