Ford proclaims conditional amnesty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, describing it as an act of "reconciliation," today offered conditional amnesty to thousands of Vietnam era draft evaders and military deserters...

one such group of resisters described it as "a cover-up and not amnesty" and predicted very few young exiles would accept Ford's offer. Under Ford's plan, deserters and evaders who surrender would first be required to take a oath...

shortened on a case-by-case basis. Deputy Attorney General Laurence Silberman said, however, that those eligible to participate in the amnesty program should expect to serve the entire 24-month period.

such as helping in hospitals or homes for the aged or children. Ford, who announced his offer in a brief, televised statement, said in a proclamation that amnesty was required for "reconciliation, an act of mercy to bind the nation's wounds."

and it is expected to complete his work no later than Dec. 31, 1975. The White House said about 15,500 draft evaders are potentially eligible...

CSI adopts plan for short, evening course credit

BY CRICKET BIRD Times-News writer. TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho has become the first institution of higher learning in Idaho to adopt a new type of course-credit continuing education unit.

Not directly governed by the board of higher education as a junior college, CSI adopted the new credit units for use this fall.

Classes with CEU credit vary from such personal interest courses as fly tying, guitar or reading-improvement to vocational or professional courses like shorthand refresher, diesel maintenance or basic electronics.

continuing education experience under responsible sponsorship, capable direction, and qualified instruction. The purpose of the CEU, according to the task force report, is "to provide a mechanism by which most continuing education activities can be recorded."

Pardon failed to lift Nixon's spirits: Tkach

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former White House physician Walter Tkach said President Ford's pardon was no lifeline in lifting Richard M. Nixon's spirits.

He described Nixon as a "man looking back and wondering what had happened to topple him from the presidency."

Tkach said he has given up, for the time being, trying to persuade the former President to enter a hospital for treatment of the thrombotic phlebitis in his left leg.

Nixon has been subpoenaed to testify in the Watergate cover-up trial of six former aides, which begins Oct. 1. White Tkach did not address himself directly to the question whether Nixon would be well enough to appear, he said that in general: "I am recommending to him that he not put under any more pressure."

Tkach, an Air Force major general, was relieved of his White House duty after Nixon resigned and is now command surgeon at nearby Andrews Air Force Base. He flew to San Clemente, Calif., Friday to examine Nixon at the urging of the Nixon family, and said he would go there again late next week.

Tkach said in an interview that he had detected "no depression," but found Nixon suffering from exhaustion and "anxiety concern," than Tkach observed him to be two weeks ago.

"It seems to be more tired," said Tkach. "He doesn't have that bounce to attack."

Had the pardon helped his spirits?

"The pardon didn't do him a damn bit of good," replied Tkach.

He said he feared a buildup of more tension or pressure could lead to a heart attack because Nixon is under "severe physical strain."

Tkach repeated the statement he made Saturday, that Nixon told him: "If I go into the hospital, I'll never come out alive." He said that when the former President spoke so fatalistically, "I stopped right there."

He said he believes Nixon fears he could develop more blood clots if he is bedridden in a hospital. "He probably thinks being in bed helps develop more clots."

Nixon remains at estate

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon remained at his San Clemente estate today despite a plea from his physician to enter the hospital for treatment of a blood clot in Nixon's leg.

Dr. Walter Tkach said he has given up at attempts to hospitalize Nixon after the former president's estate today despite a plea from his physician to enter the hospital for treatment of a blood clot in Nixon's leg.

Tkach was Nixon's personal physician during his years in the White House. Tkach flew to San Clemente Friday to examine Nixon at the urging of the Nixon family.

Tkach described Nixon as a "man looking back and wondering what had happened to topple him from the presidency."

Nixon has been battling thrombotic phlebitis in his right leg since June. A new blood clot has since developed in his left leg, although not as severe, Tkach said.

The second clot has swollen the former President's leg and is causing him some discomfort. Dr. John Lundgren, a Long Beach, Calif., physician said, he is taking medication, but refuses to enter a hospital for treatment with anti-coagulants.

ROCK CREEK, La. (L.P.) Larsen, 92, Rock Creek, died Sunday morning at Mountain View Nursing Home in Kimberly after a long illness.

Larsen was born in Rock Creek on April 1, 1882, in a log cabin built by his father. He was reared and educated there. A farmer and cattleman, he homesteaded 160 acres at Deep Creek east of the present location of Rogerson. He retained that property until 1948, when he sold it.

Mr. Larsen was appointed postmaster at Rock Creek in 1906, holding that office until 1907. Mr. Larsen was in the cattle business for 29 years, part of a selling and buying. He worked as foreman of the Norton Ranch from 1923 until 1932, and was one of the first 10 cattlemen to be honored by membership in the Southern Idaho Livestock Hall of Fame in 1961.

Mr. Larsen was a lifetime member of the Moose Lodge and also held memberships in the Pigeon Valley Grange, Twin Falls Co-op, which he served as a board member; Idaho Stockmen's Association; Western Stockgrowers Association; and Salmon River Cattlemen's Association.

On Aug. 30, 1910, Mr. Larsen was married to Ona Mildred Murray in Twin Falls. She preceded him in death on July 6, 1958.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. June McCarly, Kimberly; a sister, Mrs. Katherine Parks, Lynnwood, Calif.; four grandchildren and in great-grandchildren.

One son, one daughter, three brothers and two sisters also preceded Mr. Larsen in death.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Thursday at Reynolds-Funeral-Chapel with Rev. Howard Larsen officiating. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park. Friends may call at the chapel Tuesday and Wednesday.

TWIN FALLS — George G. McNew, 85, Twin Falls, died Sunday at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

Born Oct. 30, 1920, in Wall City, Tex., he moved with his family to Missouri in an early age. He was married to Ruby R. Frith on Sept. 9, 1944. They moved to Idaho from Missouri in 1939. Mr. McNew owned and operated skating rink in Paul and Twin Falls until retiring.

Mr. McNew was a member of the Valley Christian Church. Surviving are one sister, Mrs. Alice Stanberry, Wichita, Kan., and several nieces and nephews.

Mrs. McNew preceded him in death in August, 1970. Two sisters, six brothers and a nephew, all of whom Mr. McNew also preceded him in death.

Funeral services for Mr. McNew will be conducted at 11 a.m. Wednesday at the White Chapel with Rev. Myrtle Leach officiating. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park.

Friends may call at the chapel today, Tuesday and until 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Eva Mahnken

E. Maxwell

GOODING — Evelyn Josephine Maxwell, 76, Gooding, died Sunday at her home following a brief illness.

Born July 7, 1898 in Joplin, Mo., she was married to Ralph C. Maxwell on Dec. 22, 1915 in Billings, Mont. The couple moved to Star in 1936 and to Hagerman in 1937. In 1950 they moved to Gooding where she has since resided. Mr. Maxwell preceded her in death in 1963.

She was a member of the First Christian Church.

Survivors are four daughters, Roberta Hice, Concord, Calif.; Eunice Johnson, Sacramento, Calif.; Eta Hahn, Shoshone, and Eva Jo Stephens, La Grande, Ore.; six sons, Fred Maxwell, Jerome; Harvey Maxwell, Chubbuck; Maxwell and Ronald Maxwell, all Gooding; Ralph Maxwell and Curtis Maxwell, both Boise; 19 grandchildren, and 17 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services for Mrs. Maxwell will be conducted at 2 p.m. Thursday at Thompson Chapel in Gooding with Rev. Harold Hake officiating. Burial will be in Elmwood Cemetery. Friends may call at the chapel Wednesday afternoon and evening and until the day of services Thursday.

(C) New York Times Service (ALAMEDA), Calif. The 23 planes that make up the first two operational squadrons of the Grumman F-14 fighter were aboard the USS Enterprise this week.

The nuclear-powered carrier is expected to sail early in the week for the Western Pacific, where she will be Rear Admiral Owen's flagship for command of Carrier Group 7. The Enterprise will operate for at least six months out of Cebu Point in the Philippines.

The 1,600-mile-a-hour, $220-million jet-in-fuselage F-14 development. Banks cut off Grumman's contract when the Navy began to make advance payments against future deliveries, causing a Congressional uproar that culminated in August in the refusal of the Senate to approve a $100 million advance payment to Grumman.

About 16,000 people work at the F-14 contracts. The plane is nicknamed "Tomcat." At the time of the Senate debate, 73 planes — each costing $13.9 million — had been delivered. During debate it was disclosed that Grumman had reinvested some advance payments in short-term obligations, carrying about $2.8 million from these investments.

The Navy's order is for 134 F-14s — but Pentagon officials have said that defense planners hope to expand this to 334 craft.

Busing foes march

BOSTON (UPI) — Defying police, a noisy, unorganized crowd of 200 white youths and parents staged an anti-busing march through a section of South Boston today, the first day of a court-ordered plan to integrate Boston's public schools.

One arrest was reported. Three ages 16, 16 and 17, and a few youths threw a couple of ashtrays at police. Other children ran across the roads and some parked cars.

Some 30 police tried to contain the crowd with clubs, motorcycles and 1000 patrolmen, but they kept spilling out and tried to move up side streets towards South Boston High School — the most recently troubled of the city's schools attacked by the federal court order.

Police cordoned off East Broadway and Emerson Street thus preventing the group from marching on the school.

The march began shortly after classes started and it appeared that a black boycott of South Boston High School followed when two buses full of black children attended classes.

Mayor Kevin H. White called on all liquor stores and bars in South Boston to close until at least 4:30 p.m. — and possibly all day.

Early estimates were that about 200 students, including 10 to 115 black children were in "classes at South Boston High, some enrolling in 1964. Police Commissioner Robert J. McGraw and Mayor Kevin H. White ordered all bars and liquor stores in South Boston closed until at least 4 p.m. Later the last of the police commissioner and mayor can temporarily suspend all liquor licenses during emergency conditions. Refusal to obey can result in a fine of $200 and revocation of the liquor license.

Funeral Services — Mrs. Sussie C. Ribhus will be conducted at 11 a.m. Wednesday in the Albion LDS Ward Chapel with Bishop J. L. Nielsen officiating. Burial will be in the Yost, Utah, Cemetery. Friends may call at Payne Mortuary Tuesday afternoon and evening and at the church one hour prior to services Wednesday.

Question . . . The veteran's marker at my grandfather's grave is almost unrecognizable. Is it possible to have this either repaired or replaced?

Answer . . .

It is virtually impossible to have this marker repaired if it has become illegible from erosion, but under certain circumstances, it can be replaced. If you will come by our office, we will complete the forms necessary to request a replacement of this stone from the Office of Support Services.

It is the government's policy to replace all veteran's monuments that have become illegible due to weathering. It is also the policy of the armed services to mark permanently with a stone a brave plaque the grave of every deceased veteran of world war one whose last service period was terminated by death or an honorable discharge.

Gem politicians cover wide area

 Rail passenger service in Idaho expenditures for education and the need of a procedures manual for law officers were major topics over the weekend on the Idaho political scene.
 Max Hanson, Democratic candidate for Second District Congress, told a group of Soda Springs business and farm leaders Saturday that it's time to get trains back on the right track.
 Hanson said that population growth alone has increased the need for rail service in southern Idaho substantially in the past three years, since Amtrak began.

 "About the only good thing that has come out of this emergency is an opportunity for Idaho to increase its demand for the expansion of Amtrak passenger train service in the state," Hanson said.
 "We need to get trains back on the right track — particularly those in Idaho," he said.

Roy Truly, Democratic candidate for state superintendent of Public Instruction, says Idaho can and must pay her teachers higher salaries and spend more for educating her children.
 Truly said in Oroton, Sunday. "The average teacher's salary in Idaho last year was $8,714, and this average included school superintendents and principals."
 "Only five states ranked below Idaho — Arkansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, Oklahoma, and South Dakota," he said.

 "Our state's annual average expenditure per child is $269 below the national average," he said. "We can and must do better. The future strength of the state depends on good schools."
 Wayne Kidwell, Republican candidate for attorney general, said Saturday a non-legislative, readable, procedures manual is needed by the working law officer.

SECOND-PLACE winner Jim Pippitt, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Pippitt, Twin Falls, accepts a $5 prize for the YMCA-YWCA aluminum can drive from YWCA director Karen Prince. First place winner Steven Swafford, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lindon Swafford, Twin Falls, assisted with the awards presentation Saturday. Other prize winners await their turns.

August winners

'Y' can drive winners announced

TWIN FALLS — Steven Swafford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lindon Swafford, Twin Falls, gathered 56 pounds of aluminum cans to win the August YMCA can drive.

Steven 10, chose 56 aluminum cans for his prize in the drive for funds for the YMCA-YWCA pool which is under construction.

Over 6,500 aluminum beverage cans were gathered during the month.
 Second place went to Jim Pippitt, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Pippitt, Twin Falls. He gathered his 53 pounds of cans at the Norland junk yard near Rupert while visiting relatives. "It's a jackpot down there," he said.

Third place went to a team of sisters, Kathleen, 16, Nancy, 13 and Lisa 10, all daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Bondurant, Kimberly, picked out a supply of ice cream for their prize.

Other winners who chose prizes Saturday included Doug Anderson, Steve Upton, Jula Bement, Matt and Anna LaHoco, David Slotten, Kelly Fitzpatrick, David, Shotwell, Connie Egbert, Natalie Hazard, and Jody Sisk.

The final aluminum can drive is now in progress. Any boy or girl 16 years of age or under can enter by bringing aluminum beverage cans to the YMCA-UWCA.

As in the past, there will be

15 prizes offered by local merchants to those who bring in the most aluminum cans.

New credit units adopted by CSI

 The CEU credit has been adopted by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, which boasts 560 members in its college commission.

According to a report published by the commission, CEUs can be used within institutions in two ways: "First, the CEU will serve as a unit of measure to give recognition for an individual's participation in non-credit activities which meet the appropriate criteria. Second, the CEU will serve as the accounting unit of an institution's total non-credit courses, programs and activities."

The commission's report quotes a Carnegie Commission study as continuing programs will become a major component of American education during the seventies and eighties.

The huge growth of knowledge in the past few decades and the rapid rate at which learning is expanding makes continuing education a necessity these days, according to a keynote speaker at the southern association's conference on the CEU in Atlanta, Ga. in fall, 1973.

Marvin Glascock, the director of continuing education at CSI, predicts that by 1980 there will be more students in continuing education courses working for CEUs than in the academic division courses.

Glascock, who attended the southern conference in 1973, admits he's "pushed this thing up here... We would like to see the entire state be on CEUs," he said.

Credited by Kirk Sorenson, the research and information officer for the state board as being the "best man in the state" on the subject of CEUs, Glascock has been one of the planners in the Northwest working toward establishment of CEU credit.

"We need some means to measure people who took courses that weren't academic... some means to show they were doing something," Glascock said. He cited CEU units as being beneficial to employers and business men. "Employers many times would want to employ somebody who has been bettering himself than somebody who hadn't been doing anything," he said.

Institutions offering CEU credit will provide thorough records of the credits the continuing education students accumulate. If the new credit unit achieves wide approval, students may be able to transfer the credits from one institution to another in the future.

Glascock said after the new credit unit is recognized in Idaho by the board of higher education, the next step is to take it to the Northwest Association based in Seattle, Wash., which must approve the new unit.

Sorenson said the CEU credit "puts the mark of substance on these community programs. It's time we recognize these community service classes as reputable."

Glascock, who anticipates widespread approval and adoption of the CEU credit system said, "I think we're making a great, great step."

Ford vows consultation

(C) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON President Ford, in a move to repair the damage of his decision to pardon his predecessor, has assured Congressional Republican leaders that he will consult them henceforth prior to "important decisions."

The President also has acted to defuse public protest by recanting a statement issued in his name Tuesday that suggested a pardon of all Watergate defendants might be in the making.

However, in clarifying the statement, Ford may have opened himself in a wave of individual appeals for clemency from those already convicted in the scandals. But his main effort was to regain the shattered peace of the White House and abate a decline of confidence in his leadership.

The furker kicked up by the White House statement that sweeping pardons might be "under study," practically assured that Ford will now permit the conspiracy trial of top Nixon associates to go forward and a verdict rendered before clemency is considered, according to administration sources.

Meanwhile, Ford was being urged to accelerate changes in the White House which would, in the words of GOP Gov. Daniel Evans of Washington, enable him "to divorce himself from the past."

The President chose a curious, but significant way to retreat from his position—hinting at possible blanket pardons for all Watergate conspirators. He let Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and House GOP Leader John Rhodes of Arizona explain the snafu for him, while his deputy press secretary, John Huston, stood embarrassingly mute.

Both leaders approved the pardon for Nixon, Scott less eagerly than Rhodes, but both were glad to straighten out the business of whether a "study" was under way or not. It was not, they concurred.

But as Scott phrased it, "It, as and when" the President receives a petition for pardon, he will consider it "most carefully."

How Ford came to announce a non-existent "study" remained a subject of controversy and confusion here. He appeared to have discussed the matter only with Huston and counselor Robert Hartmann. His chief counsel, Philip Buchen, was also surprised as everybody else that such a "study" was under way.

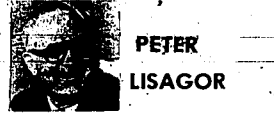

Since the snafu, Ford has asked his staff to look into his pardoning powers and to report the legal ramifications of them.

Scott, in an attempt to soften criticism of the President's action in the Nixon case, said the pardon was "uniquely personal," and therefore Ford felt he could not consult a wide array of advisers to reach that decision.

It remains the hope of the White House and Republican party officials that the feverish fall of the Nixon pardon, coupled with the clarifications of clemency for others, will blow away and have a minimum political impact in November.

There is considerable apprehension, though, that if the conspiracy trial before Judge John J. Sirica, scheduled to start Sept. 30, is not postponed again, Nixon's appearance as a witness is likely to keep the exp-dition in the limelight and the issue inflamed during the fall campaign. That obviously is not what Ford had in mind with his pardon.

A move to have the House debate and vote on the bill of impeachment, led by Rep. Dwight Metcalf, of Chicago, was not expected to attract substantial support. But congressional sources admitted that the tempo of the Congress is not easy to judge at this point.

Pros, cons on Soviet trade

WASHINGTON As part of a policy of pursuing détente with the Soviet Union, the United States, first under former President Nixon and now under President Ford, has sought to increase its economic links with Russia.

There have been proposals for joint development of Soviet resources, the sale of U.S. goods and technology, low-cost loans and credits, favorable status and new opportunities for American business men.

Now increased trade is being scrutinized as part of a larger examination of détente being conducted by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

PRO: Mutual Benefits

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger believes that contacts between the two nations in any area of mutual concern improve relations and make the atmosphere more conducive to significant advances in arms limitations.

"We have to get around the cold warriors' idea that it's not in the U.S. interest to make agreements," said Fred Warner Neal, a Soviet specialist and chairman of the international relations faculty at Claremont University in California. "We see a direct connection between trade legislation and nuclear arms agreements. It's hard to say one leads to the other, but they are connected. Only by developing a detente relationship will there be meaningful nuclear limitations."

Another scholar acknowledged the doubts about benefits to the United States, but told the Senate committee that trade could be mutually beneficial. Heriart S. Levine of the University of Pennsylvania forecast a favorable impact on the U.S. balance of payments, currency gains to U.S. business men, improved chances for peace and the possibility of additions to U.S. energy supplies from the joint development of Soviet resources.

Cons: Little to Gain
Any expansion in trade should be scrutinized to be sure it is mutually beneficial, argue those who are doubtful of advantages.

Deals such as the 1972 grain sales to the Soviet Union, and low-interest loans at a time when U.S. business men are paying high rates to borrow money, are not in the U.S. interest and have not contributed to peace, they argue.

The foreign policy task force of the Coalition for a Democratic Majority said in a report, "The Soviet Union has little to sell that we need. But the Soviet Union has a great deal to gain from trade with the United States."

Cooperative deals could affect the United States adversely, argues Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio. "The Soviet Union needs Western technology to develop industrially and militarily," he said.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a leading critic of U.S. initiatives toward détente, has indicated he will keep a continuing watch on U.S. exports of sophisticated technology that may help the Soviets militarily. And he believes that the United States should not make trade concessions, but use its economic superiority as leverage in promoting human rights in the Soviet Union.

WASHINGTON A Senate study charges that a three-year federal program to reduce job deaths and injuries has failed to concentrate on the most dangerous hazards, has resulted in ineffectual enforcement across the United States and has repeatedly ignored the mandates of Congress and the program's own rules.

The sweeping criticism was directed at the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, a Labor Department agency responsible for improving working conditions in an estimated 5 million plants.

According to government statistics, at least 8,000 workers die each year from occupationally caused diseases, 14,000 workers are killed in accidents and 2.2 million suffer disabling injuries.

The criticism was contained in a 136-page study by the staff of the labor subcommittee of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, with the assistance of the General Accounting Office.

In forwarding the study to Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan, Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., the subcommittee chairman, said it showed that the 1,350-man agency "has been shackled by administrative ineptness."

A spokesman for the agency said that it was "examining the report carefully" and would make "an appropriate response or recommendation as soon as we can."

Legislation providing operating funds for the current fiscal year for the agency was approved Sept. 11 by the Senate appropriations Committee. This bill was expected to reach the floor of the Senate on Friday where conservative Senators hope to add a weakening amendment that would exempt employers with 25 or fewer employees from coverage by the agency. Such an amendment already has been approved by the House of Representatives.

The subcommittee's criticism of the agency was detailed into 77 "abuse papers." Among the allegations were the following:

— O.S.H.A. records show that 36.6 per cent of the violations were classified by the agency's 734 inspectors as "nonserious." The staff said this finding meant that either there was a haphazard selection of establishments that were inspected, or that the inspectors were finding serious hazards and not citing them or that the agency was devoting "an inordinate amount of time to nonserious violations."

The agency's records indicate strong differences in the way the law is enforced in different parts of the country. Only 0.3 per cent of the violations cited in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin in fiscal year 1973, for example, were classified as serious.

The staff report said this was in "sharp contrast" to the over 3.5 per cent of the violations that were classified as serious during the same period in Alaska, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. A second example of unequal enforcement involved the time it takes to issue a citation, which ranged from 11 days in the Atlanta area to 37 days in Dallas.

According to the rules in effect until last May, agency inspectors were supposed to issue citations if, upon investigation, they believed an employer had violated the law regarding that workplace be free of recognized hazards likely to cause serious harm or death or that the employer had violated the agency's specific standards. But the report quoted interviews conducted by G.A.O. investigators in New York, Chicago and Florida in which agency inspectors recounted six instances where they found violations but failed to issue citations.

In one such case, the report said an inspector found at a Chicago construction site an improperly grounded wire, a gasoline can with an improper top, an unguarded chain drive on a bulldozer's machine and an improper anchoring of a hoisting machine with rolls of roofing paper.

"During a subsequent interview, the inspector said that each of these hazards were violations of OSHA standards but that he did not issue citations covering them because the responsible contractor was not working at the time the inspection was made," the report said.

The report outlining the alleged failures of the agency provided no analysis of why the staff felt they had occurred.

Ex-astronaut Glenn rockets into lead

COLUMBUS, Ohio When Sen. Edward M. Kennedy arrived in Columbus last Thursday to campaign for Democratic Rep. Thomas Luken, conspicuously absent from the platform was John Glenn, whose sweeping popularity in campaigning for the U.S. Senate is surprising hard-core political operatives here.

"The first American in space" was careful to be elsewhere, 300 miles "west" of the state at a Democratic Clubhouse in Toledo, Ind., the kind of "help" that Glenn might want from any Democratic party leader outside the Buckeye state and be found last in the person of Teddy Kennedy.

Now running a phenomenal 240-1 ahead of colorless Republican Mayor Ralph Perk of Cleveland, the high-flying Glenn may become the first statewide candidate since Lyndon Johnson in 1964 to amass a million-vote plurality. As one Republican statewide leader here told us, "Glenn is taking even the Republican vote away from Perk without half trying."

The Glenn phenomenon is unique in the post-Watergate politics of Ohio—another development: a national here unembarrassed with the ideological baggage that has fragmented the Democratic party, who seems eminently acceptable to blue-collar hardhats and left-of-center intellectuals. Glenn's personal consultancy today ranges from deep right-center to left-center, a broad spectrum the Democratic party badly needs in the embittered search for its soul.

It is only natural, then, that Glenn does not need or want the kind of political help which had made Perk an outcast for some other Democratic candidates this fall. Beyond that, Glenn will not soon forget that Kennedy cut him dead in his losing 1970 senatorial primary battle with Howard Metzenbaum and in his decisive victory over Sen. Metzenbaum in their return engagement last May.

What rankled Glenn partisans about that Kennedy snub was the memory of hawkish, ex-Marine Glenn's stalwart support for Robert Kennedy in his 1968 presidential campaign despite his obvious position on the Vietnam war. Help from the Kennedy family which Glenn got in last spring's primary battle with Metzenbaum came not from Ted Kennedy but from Jacqueline Onassis, who taped a television endorsement for Glenn in the campaign's closing days.

Now that Glenn looks like a glittering winner against Perk in November, Ted Kennedy is not above wanting a piece of the action. But a private offer from his senatorial office to Glenn's headquarters here suggesting that Kennedy would be more than glad to give Glenn a helping hand on his Ohio visit this week was politely rejected.

The Glenn is being courted by such national party leaders as Kennedy is not surprising. He is likely to emerge from the Senatorial campaign as the No. 1 Democrat in the fifth largest state. It his awesome lead over Perk holds, Glenn could become a major factor in the party's 1976 presidential battle—at least a strong possibility for second place on the ticket.

That prospect is viewed darkly by Gov. John J. Gilligan, running for reelection against Republican redneck James Rhodes. Afflicted with the usual malaise of an incumbent governor, Gilligan is only marginally ahead of former Gov. Rhodes. Democratic politicians agree that if Glenn emerges on Nov. 5 with a plurality which exceeds Gilligan's by anything like 500,000 votes—a distinct possibility—Gilligan's own presidential aspirations will shrivel. The result would be a strong indication that the national party should move to the center in 1976, and away from the left-liberal ideology of John Gilligan.

Glenn was treated by the Gilligan-controlled state party as a pariah until his primary win. He is now showing the same bleakness for Gilligan's own courtship as he is for Kennedy's.

When Gilligan arranged a private meeting with Glenn here 70 days ago, hoping to join Glenn in campaigning, Glenn asked as a "quid pro quo" the right to have equal voice with Gilligan in naming the state chairman and executive director of the party. He wanted a 50-50 voice in party control.

There was no deal and Glenn continued on his largely independent campaign. But Glenn will have heard into state party affairs after the election. For more party-line Democrat than a party-hated Maverick like former Democratic governor and senator Frank Lausche, Glenn will use his predictable victory in Ohio as a case study for his party, so harassed and weakened by ever-widening ideological splits.

Sharp scrutiny for detente with Russia

WASHINGTON The U.S. policy of seeking détente with the Soviet Union is undergoing its closest scrutiny on Capitol Hill since 1972, when the two nations signed an arms limitation agreement.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger first urged a national debate on détente nearly a year ago, and now the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is providing a forum for it in a series of hearings that began Aug. 15 and will continue at least through September.

Foreign policy experts, academicians, public officials, administration witnesses, members of Congress, and representatives of the labor movement and the business community will be testifying on the implications, benefits and risks of the U.S. course toward better relations with communist nations.

The issue being debated is not détente itself, but how to translate into specific actions the generalized concept of relaxed tensions between nations.

"I do not think it is a question of whether we should or should not have a detente," says Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a leading spokesman of those who have questioned U.S. proposals for amending détente. "Everyone wants peace. The question is what kind of detente. You can have a good detente; you can have a bad detente."

Détente has been and will continue to be an issue as Congress considers proposed cutbacks in military spending, new defense programs, reforms in U.S. trade policy, controls on exports and loans and credits to the Soviet Union.

Secretary Kissinger argued that by identifying areas of common interest the two nations recognize their interdependence and also recognize that prolonged isolation and confrontation are "injurious" to improved relations. Congress has a critical role, says Sen. President gets the word on US opinion from daily news report

By SAUL KOHLER, (c) Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON Every morning, along with his midday and evening English editions, President Ford is served a leather folder containing the bitter and the sweet from America's newspapers.
 By the time he finishes reading, he knows what the nation is thinking.
 "These days the nation is steering over the timing of the executive clemency extended to former president Richard Nixon, and with the White House's short-lived trial balloon of possible pardons for all Watergate defendants that the most exclusive 'newspaper' in the world, entitled 'The President's News Summary' and with a circulation of 40, is pulling no punches at all — and Ford knows what he's saying about him beyond the confines of 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.
 "The President is getting a good sampling from all over the country," said Philip Warden, the new editor of the news summary. Two weeks ago he was covering the U.S. Senate for the Chicago Tribune.

 "I don't know whether he likes it or not, but my mandate when I came aboard was to keep the President informed as to what the newspapers and television are saying, and that is exactly what I'm doing."
 "I'm not holding back a thing; he's getting it all."

and we are laying it all in. Some of it has been awfully rough."
 Warden even quoted NBC television newsman Ron Nessen — who was Ford's host at a party in the good old days less than a month ago — as saying on the air that the clemency episode was a "preposterous screw-up."
 Warden receives 40 newspapers a day, and expects the total to grow. He also watches all free network news shows each evening, and if

Ford requests expansion, Warden is prepared to monitor the early-morning news programs as well.
 He divides the newspapers into regions and submits capsule versions of editorials "and as many news stories as we can cram in."
 "We keep the entire editorial and news story on file here; and if the President or anyone else on the distribution list wants to see the whole piece, all he needs do is ask for it," Warden said.

"The President pledged openness and candor, and we are as open and candid with him as we can be."
 So far, there have been no complaints from Ford or anyone else, Warden said.
 "This is probably because the President had expected flak, or it could be that Ford chooses to spend many an early morning in the kitchen cooking his own breakfast, has skin thick enough to take the heat."

Commentary

Warden includes cartoons which he considers perhaps a little more biting than even the printed word.
 "Topic 'A' right now is the matter of pardons, as they relate to former President Nixon and the Watergate defendants," Warden said. "There have been some cartoons which favor the action, and some which oppose it — just as there have been editorials and television commentary —

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Patient wants the truth

BY GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.
 Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have read about cancer, lumps, etc., but I had a different problem. My breast had bleeding at the nipple. I had surgery and the test showed cancer, so my doctor had to remove my right breast.
 That was two years ago. I will go for another six-month examination soon, but I would like to know why he told me I had cancer and when I ask him if I would need treatment to help control it he said no.
 He tells me just as little as he can, but I ask to be told the truth. I've lived from day to day expecting something to happen. I know cancer can't be cured but why do they wait until you are dying before they give you all those treatments? I want to know. Should I go to a cancer doctor? — J.S.
 Bleeding (or other discharge) from a nipple may be an indication of cancer, or may not. The test showed that yours was, and in due time there would have been a lump, as the cancer grew.
 I do think you should have been told more. However, because of psychological differences in people, a doctor doesn't always know when a patient wants more information or prefers not to talk or hear about cancer.
 Reading between the lines, I would guess this is what happened in your case. It required minor surgery ("biopsy") and a test to tell whether you had cancer or whether something else caused the bleeding.
 When the test showed cancer, the breast was removed. I would judge that the surgeon had reason to believe that the entire cancer was removed. The cold fact is, though, that nobody can be immediately certain of this. That is why you go back at six-month intervals for examination. The rule of thumb is that if cancer has not started to grow again after five years, it can reasonably be assumed that the entire cancer was removed, and you no longer have cancer.

 In short, you are not correct in saying that "cancer can't be cured." It is being cured, in about one case in three, by removing it. The fact that the bleeding led to discovery of yours may be an indication that yours was found earlier than if you had waited for a lump to appear.
 If there is a suspicion that all of the cancer has not been removed, then such rigorous treatments as massive radiation and chemotherapy are used. But since I gather your doctors believe that all of yours was removed, there is no reason to resort to such treatment. Indeed, without some indication of where to apply the treatment, it would be pointless.
 Under the circumstances, I doubt that you should keep on "expecting something to happen." Perhaps nothing will. Perhaps you were successfully cured by the surgery. But your doctor knows that five years of periodic examinations must pass before he can tell you so with assurance.
 Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a diabetic. The other day I had to have a hearing on my unemployment, and I was so nervous I didn't know half the time what the man was saying. When I got home my sugar tested pretty high. Could that have caused it? I keep it normal by diet. — H.H.C.
 Yes, emotional upsets can raise your blood sugar.
 Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that women who breastfeed have more chance of getting cancer of the breast? — M.M.
 No, not true.
 Note to H.H.C. and others: I gather that the address of the Psoriasis Foundation was omitted in a number of newspapers, so here it is for those who did not see it but would like to get in touch: National Psoriasis Foundation, Suite 250, 615 S. W. Canyon Ct., Portland, Ore. 97221.

Solons propose release

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House Judiciary subcommittee looking into possible amnesty for Vietnam war evaders has asked President Ford to free all draft resisters now in prison.

The imprisonment of the resisters "no longer serves the public purpose," said Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., in a Washington Window interview.

Kastenmeier, chairman of the subcommittee, said the group sent President Ford its recommendations shortly after he ordered Attorney General William French Smith and the Secretary of Defense to study the amnesty issue.

Kastenmeier estimated that only about 120 men were currently serving jail sentences for draft evasion.

"These are only a few people but nonetheless they could be selected directly by the presidential power of pardon," he said.

Kastenmeier also said the subcommittee recommended that Ford order a Justice Department review of all indictments of draft resisters and consider dropping prosecution in many cases.

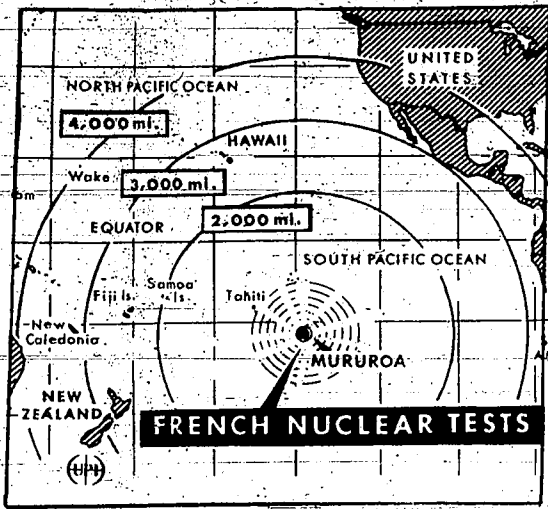

"Both of these initiatives could have been done in a down payment as far as his commitment to the principle of amnesty," he said.

Kastenmeier also indicated that Ford might consider pardoning former President Richard Nixon could conceivably set a precedent for granting amnesty to war resisters.

"We don't know precisely which is the tail and which is the dog in this case," he said, "but it now appears that the important action was the commutation and unconditional pardon of Richard Nixon."

He said that at least superficially, the Nixon pardon makes it politically easier to grant an amnesty for war resisters because the corollary is there.

Kastenmeier also said he thought Congress had the power to enact its own amnesty legislation and could broaden the scope of a presidentially declared amnesty though it was unlikely.

Site of 8th French nuclear test

French N-test scored

CANBERRA (UPI) — France exploded a nuclear bomb in the atmosphere over the South Pacific Sunday, triggering new protests from Australia and New Zealand, but indications were the blast was the last of the current test series.

Australian Foreign Minister Don Willesse said his government will lodge a protest expressing "strong concern."

Australia said the blast was "in direct conflict with world opinion and in breach of international law." A statement said the explosion caused "the pollution of the environment by radioactive fallout."

The Australian Broadcasting Commission reported from Paris that the danger zone around Mururoa would be lifted Tuesday and normal shipping would resume.

The test was likely to be the last France will conduct above ground, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing promised June 7 that France will switch the tests underground after this summer.

Paris (UPI) — Police vowed today to check out "all the angles" to get to the bottom of a grenade blast that wrecked a crowded Jewish-owned drugstore on the eve of the Jewish New Year.

Authorities said a well-dressed man lobbed a grenade Sunday afternoon into a crowd of shoppers at the Publiets drugstore, killing two persons and wounding at least 26.

Police said the man, wearing a gray vest, then ran from the Latin Quarter drugstore and disappeared into a bustling pressing "strong concern."

France has carried out the 43rd test, the 43rd Mururoa Atoll, 720 miles southeast of Tahiti.

Willesse and New Zealand Prime Minister Wallace Rowling disclosed the blast Sunday but France, in keeping with past policy, would not confirm or deny the latest test in a series that began June 17.

Boulevard St. Germain crowd. "The grenade was neither French nor English, but apparently American," a police spokesman said. "We are studying all the angles."

He said the bomber "a young man about 25 years old" acted "calmly," tossing the grenade from a balcony overlooking the drugstore.

Marcel Blustein-Blanchet, owner of the drugstore, is a French-Jewish businessman and vocal supporter of Israel.

He owned a Champagne Glyceres drug store that burned to the ground two years ago.

US, Soviets resume arms talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After a break of six months, the United States and Soviet Union are resuming their strategic arms talks this week in a new effort to stem the seemingly inexorable arms race.

The "trick," said one U.S. official, "is the American delegation headed back today to the Geneva negotiating table, is to close some more doors without opening any new ones."

Previous U.S.-Soviet arm control agreements left various doors open to both sides for developing new weapons and modernizing old ones — a fact which Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., has sharply criticized.

The limited nuclear underground test ban which former President Nixon concluded in June in Moscow, for example, still permits underground testing of nuclear weapons whose explosive force is less than 150 kilotons about 100 times the power of the Hiroshima bomb.

The 1972-1977 Interim Agreement concluded at the 1972 Summit conference freezes the number of missiles possessed by the United States and Soviet Union and puts a ceiling on the number of nuclear submarines they may maintain. But it does not prevent either side from improving its arsenal qualitatively.

Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson, a career foreign service officer, is leading his delegation back to the Palais des Nations for the resumption of the talks Wednesday at a time when both superpowers are calculated to have a staggering and burgeoning amount of "overkill."

The Center for Defense Information, directed by retired Admiral Gene La Rocque, estimates that the United States now has enough nuclear armaments to equal all the bombs it dropped on Japan and Germany during World War II 2,304 times over — the equivalent of 369,769 Hiroshima-type explosions, or 107 Second World Wars.

Woman heads GOP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite some grumbling about the way President Ford selected her, Mary Louise Smith becomes the first female chairman of the Republican National Committee today.

The 59-year-old Iowa woman, co-chairman of the committee since last winter, was nominated to succeed George Bush, whom Ford chose to head the U.S. mission to China. The President's choice of a chairman of his party always has been ratified by the national committee, which is meeting today to make the formal selection.

However, two New England GOP state chairmen broke the usual acquiescence in the presidential selection process after Ford revealed his choice of the veteran party worker, Thomas E. Wright, Rhode Island Republican Chairman, and Maine Chairman Harold Jones both expressed dissatisfaction, not with Mrs. Smith, but with the President's decision to nominate her without consulting with other party leaders.

"I presented it," Wright said. "It's unfortunate for her because indirectly there may be some resentment toward her." But he called Mrs. Smith, the wife of a Des Moines doctor, "a real go-getter."

Scoop raps Vesco arms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Future financier Robert Vesco may be in possession of "highly sophisticated" automatic weapons smuggled to him by associates in the United States, according to Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

Jackson, chairman of the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations, said in a statement Sunday that law enforcement authorities had located an airplane believed used to fly the weapons from Los Angeles to Costa Rica, where Vesco is now living.

He said investigators believed "highly sophisticated automatic or semiautomatic rifles and shotguns were smuggled out of Los Angeles on April 19, 1974, and flown to Robert Vesco" aboard a private Learjet owned by Los Angeles stockbroker and Vesco associate, Thomas P. Richardson.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: Is there something wrong with my sense of humor, or is my husband sick? He's a tease, a clown and an all around kiddier. The problem is that most of his kidding is downright cruel. He says things to the children and me that have hurt us deeply, and when we become upset, he laughs and says, "I was only kidding...can't you take a joke?" He's done this with others, but— heaven forgive me— sometimes I wish someone would punch him. Why does a person have to hurt and insult others and then try to pass it off as a joke? Don't tell me I'll get used to it. We've been married for 16 years, and I still hate it as much as I did 16 years ago. I honestly believe he's sick. Am I? If he is, can he be cured? TEASED ENOUGH

Hubby's jokes sick

DEAR TEASED: When aggression and hostility are built into a person's personality, he is indeed "sick." And he can be cured only when he is made to realize what he is doing, and the reason for it. That's hardly a job for a wife and children. It should be done by a very close friend, a therapist, or an empathetic clergyman.

DEAR ABBY: I have been in business long enough to know that in dealing with customers, patience and courtesy is always the best policy.

But what do you do when a customer calls you on the phone and accuses you out without giving you a chance to explain? To make matters worse, he refuses to give you his name, but keeps accusing you out in four-letter words. BAMBOOZLED IN BEND, OREGON

DEAR ABBY: Say, "Sir," if you can't give me your father's name, please give me your mother's. I'll bet he hangs up in a hurry.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for letting your readers know that although many unmarried mothers are keeping their babies, the Salvation Army's Booth Memorial Hospitals are still open and serving a good purpose.

My son was born at such a hospital. I was five months along when I entered Booth. Soon I realized that my impression of unwed mothers' homes was totally wrong. It was a place where "bad girls" go to have their babies. I met really nice girls who had gotten messed up one way or another. Many would-be fathers had just walked out, and these girls had no other place to turn. I received group counseling, individual counseling, room and board and the knowledge that I wasn't the only girl about to have a baby all alone.

I recall all the get-togethers we girls had and how we talked about our fears. That was the best therapy in the world, just being able to talk without shame to someone in the same boat.

I decided to keep my child, although I had no job and no bread in sight. For me, the decision was a good one. For others it would not have been. It was rough. The looks, the criticism, the tears...

My son has a happy ending. Seven years later, I married a wonderful man who adopted my son. I know this is too long for your column, but please, Abby, keep reminding girls that homes for unwed mothers offer more than beer and board. It's their counseling that saves so many lives. Every unwed mother needs counseling, no matter how much she feels she doesn't. BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN THERE: Orchids to you for a fine letter.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90089. Be sure to stamp, self-addressed envelope, please.

Miss Bolland weds Seese in Boise

HAMMETT — Susan Bolland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bolland, became the bride of Thomas Seesece at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Boise.

Seesece is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Seese, Hammett. The double ring ceremony was performed at 7 p.m. on Aug. 31 before an altar decorated with white calla lilies and masses of fall flowers.

The bride, given by her father, chose a floor-length white gown of organza over net. It had long sleeves, a high neckline and a large hoop skirt with a long train.

A short veil was attached to a head cap. Her bridal corsage was of white daisies, white carnations and white roses.

Kristen Bolland, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Kevin McNally, Coeur d'Alene, was the best man.

The reception following the ceremony was held on the lawn at the home of the bride's parents on Bogus Basin in Boise. The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with a three-tiered cake decorated with flowers of several colors and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Baskets of flowers were placed about the reception area.

The bride attended Lewiston schools, graduating from the L. Viston High School in 1962, attended Lewis and Clark College in Lewiston, Boise State University in Boise and is now a senior at the University of Idaho, Moscow.

The bridegroom graduated from the Glenns Ferry High School as valedictorian, attended the University of Idaho where he graduated in 1973 (summa cum laude) with a degree in chemical engineering. He is now attending the University of Idaho, graduate school and expects to receive his master's degree in late September.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by Gov. and Mrs. Cecil D. Andrus in the garden at their home. Bridal showers were held in Lewiston and Boise.

The couple now lives in Moscow, but will be moving to Los Angeles as soon as the groom receives his master's degree.

Dryness in August slows crops

Gigantic Illinois sunflower

SUNFLOWER 20 inches in diameter weighing 14 pounds is displayed by Tom Sauczewski, Belleville, Ill. Despite long hot, dry spell which hurt many gardens in that area of the U.S. this summer, Sauczewski's sunflower came from a stalk which grew 16 feet tall. (UPI)

BOISE (UPI) — Cooler temperatures slowed crop development in Idaho during August, according to the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. The agency also noted that there was still a need for rains in dryland farming areas in planting fall crops and growth of fall pastures. Forage supplies were very short on dryland pastures and ranges. Rainfall was generally scattered and below normal during the month, the service said. In addition, however, that major irrigation areas have adequate water supplies to complete the 1974 crop season. Dry weather and warm daytime temperatures in August did provide excellent conditions for harvesting small grains, hay and other crops. Here's a look at Idaho's crop picture as reported by the agency: Wheat Idaho's 1974 wheat production is estimated at 30,135,000 bushels, one per cent less than forecast in Aug. 1, but 20 per cent larger than the 1973 production of 36,395,000 bushels, down 21 per cent from the record 1972 production of 45,849,000. Sugar beets production dropped 39 per cent this year with the estimate at 1,240,000 tons, compared with 2,024,000 tons last year. Dry beans production is placed at 2,066,000 bu. (dried weight), or 23 per cent more than the year before.

Idaho hop production is estimated at 6,670,000 pounds, only slightly less than the 1973 crop of 7,000,000 pounds. Peas production of 10,000 tons and pines is estimated at 700 tons from the Aug. 1 forecast and 35 per cent less than the 1973 crop of 2,100 tons. The service said the first forecast of Idaho's 1974 fall potato crop will be issued Oct. 10.

US maintains stand on farm exporting

BOSSON — Top US Department of Agriculture officials said Thursday the US will continue to oppose restrictions on agricultural trade, despite opposition by its European partners. "We are vehemently opposed to export controls and we believe in free trade for agricultural commodities," Clayton M. Youtter, assistant Secretary of agriculture for international affairs told a news conference. Youtter and David L. Home, administrator of the USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service, spent two days in Bonn, part of their European tour which included France, Belgium, Britain and the Netherlands. West Germany imports large quantities of American feedgrains and soybeans overall. An extra agricultural commodity exports to West Germany surpassed the $1 billion figure last year. "And we hope you will continue to eat our tasty American corn and soybeans, and we will continue to buy your lovely new Volkswagen models," Youtter said. Youtter denied that an expected drop in American grain production would threaten US export commitments or drive the price to extreme high levels.

More peppermint

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho farmers are expected to produce 13 per cent more peppermint oil this year than in 1973 but spearmint output will be below expected. The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Saturday production is forecast at 285,000 pounds, compared with 252,000 last year. Extremely low yields were experienced on old weedy fields, resulting in the decline of spearmint oil, the service said. It said many of these fields will be taken out of production after this season. Spearmint oil production is forecast at 162,000, unchanged from last year but 20 per cent less than last month's forecast of 203,000.

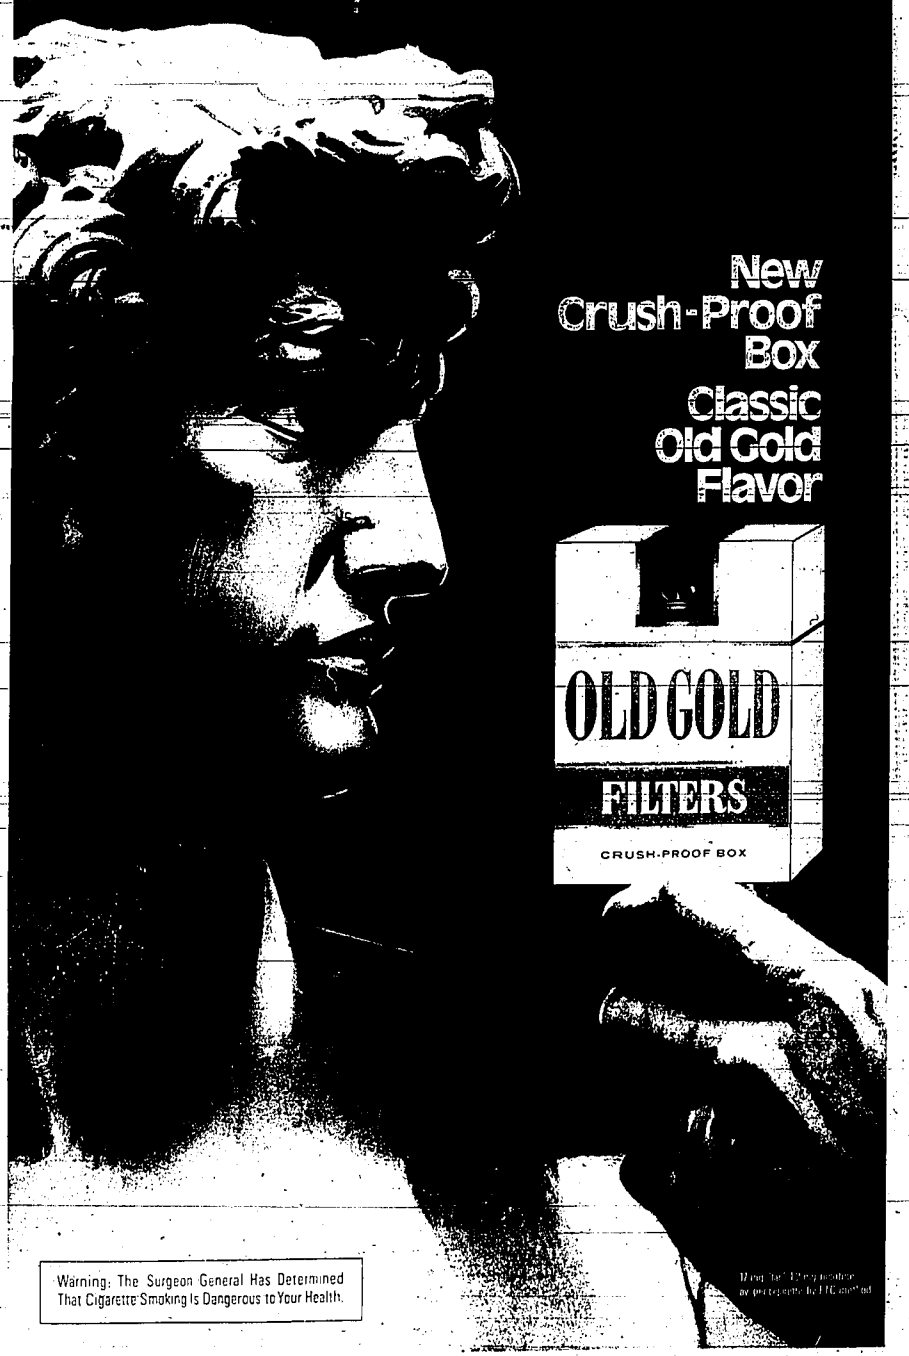

French exports double

LONDON (CNS) — French grain exports have doubled over the past four years, according to Agri Europe, due largely to better harvests as a result of higher yields and larger acreages. French exports in the 1973-74 season up to the end of June

Magic water level far over year ago

SHOSHONE — Magic Reservoir remains 100 feet higher than 100 feet of water, compared to 30,000 acre feet a year ago on this date. According to Leon Grieve, manager of the Big Wood Canal Co., there has been about 70,000 acre feet of water more at each reading this year over last year. He said directors of the company have voted to allow 12 days of extra water in each water-use to be used by the end of September when all Magic Reservoir water will be shut off. The American Falls Reservoir contains 221,000 acre feet of water, compared to 125,700 acre feet a year ago. The Big Wood and American Falls reservoir districts agreed that water should be run from American Falls until the 10th of October. Water will be cut to 10 per cent delivery from Sept. 15, however. This summer the Big Wood board decided to enforce a policy requiring an approved

Fifth bank opens doors today in TF

Park speaks in SV

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho's consumer protection and anti-trust laws work to the advantage of both the consumer and the business, says Gov. Terry Park today.

"While our primary mission is to protect the consumer," he said, "an almost equally important function is to protect the honest businessman against the unfair competition of swindlers and con artists." Park said.

"In this way we act as a stabilizing force for the state's whole economic community," Park told the annual convention of the Idaho Retailers and Food Dealers' Association meeting here Sunday.

Rupert man found dead

RUPERT — A 77-year-old Rupert man was discovered dead Sunday evening, apparently a victim of suicide.

Joseph Correll, retired farmer, was found by a friend in a barn near his residence, according to deputy coroner Kim Christensen. Correll had hanged himself with balling twine from a rafter in the barn. The body was hanging about 15 feet from the floor, Christensen said there was no apparent motive.

No autopsy or inquest is planned.

Correll lived alone at the farm.

Applications still available

GOODING — Applications are still available for the new magistrate judge position in Twin Falls, according to Judge Charles Scoggin.

Meeting last week, the magistrates' commission announced a salary increase for the position from $18,900 to $20,000 year.

Applicants must be attorneys and residents of Southern Idaho. Applications can be obtained from Judge Scoggin in Gooding.

Burglaries probed

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police today were investigating two car burglaries, both of which occurred in the 2000 block of Elizabeth Boulevard.

Dave Reynolds, 2007 Elizabeth Blvd., told police Sunday someone stole two suitcases, valued at about $300, from his vehicle between Saturday evening and Sunday morning.

In the second burglary, Dave Partridge, 2169 Elizabeth Blvd., reported tools, stolen and damage done to his car in the approximate amount of $142. Partridge told police the theft occurred Saturday night.

BLM solicits bids

SHOSHONE — The Bureau of Land Management is soliciting bids for a new office complex for their Shoshone District.

According to William L. Matthews, BLM Idaho State Director, the complex will include a new district office, parking and yard facilities, and will cost between $250,000 and $300,000. Warehousing and shop facilities will be added in the near future.

NFO members meet in midwest

BOISE (UPI) — About 90 Idaho members of the National Farmers Organization upset over court action threatened against their group by a federal agency, left Boise this morning for a meeting in the midwest.

Steve Goodwin, a Burley farmer and alternate director of the Idaho NFO, said the Secretary and Exchange Commission informed the NFO that the SEC would go to court Wednesday, seeking a receiver to take over the NFO.

Wendell bond sale today

WENDELL, The Wendell School District will try to sell $500,000 in bonds today.

The money is being borrowed to pay for a four-room addition at the elementary school, a vocational building to house vocational agriculture and industrial arts classes and a physical education building.

The two new buildings will be built at the new school site three blocks east of the present high school building.

Lawrence Lafferty, principal, said bonds have been selling for seven to seven and one-half per cent, but until tonight, he won't have any idea whether there are even any bids. He said he had no idea what rate might be offered.

Convention set in Burley

BURLEY — The Idaho Personnel and Guidance Association will hold its annual state convention in Burley Friday and Saturday.

Special speakers and workshops will be featured for the expected 400 counselors in attendance.

Participants may register from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. Sept. 20 at the Ponderosa Inn convention center in Burley.

Dr. Robert Carlsrud and Dr. Ted Eryel will conduct a creative decision-making workshop during the day.

The IPGA dinner will begin at 7 p.m. at the Ponderosa on Sept. 20.

On Sept. 21, the Idaho School Counselors Association will conduct a breakfast business meeting followed by an IPGA business meeting.

From 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. special interest sections, including career education, parent counseling and self-esteem, will be conducted.

Valley sets reception tonight

VALLEY SCHOOLS — Teachers of the Valley School District will be honored at 6:30 p.m. today with a teachers' reception and banquet at the Valley High School gymnasium.

The event is being sponsored by the Valley School Organization Supporters under the direction of Mrs. Rex Gardner, president. The Valley SOS is a newly organized group, planned to give support to the school and community. It will replace the PTA.

All parents and teachers of the district are invited to attend the reception. Those attending are asked to bring their own table services and two dishes of dessert, salad or vegetables. The Valley SOS will furnish meat, potatoes, rolls and beverage.

Rupert man found dead

VALE, Ore. (UPI) — Malheur County authorities are looking for Jesse Flores, 22, Rupert, Idaho wanted on a murder warrant in the death of Margarita Haro, 37, Ontario, whose partially clothed body was found Friday in a ditch between here and Ontario.

District Attorney Frank Yraguen said Flores was believed to be one of "possibly two individuals" with whom Miss Haro left her home on Tuesday. Her disappearance was reported to Ontario police by her mother the next day.

Dr. Larry Lewman, deputy state medical examiner, said the girl, who had been dead "possibly a couple of days," died of head injuries. Her body was found by a farmer who was driving a corn chopper about a quarter-mile off U.S. Highway 20.

"We don't feel the suspect is in this area," said criminal Oregon State Police. "We're not sure where he went."

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls gained a 10th bank when Idaho Bank and Trust opened its doors here this morning.

A crowd of about 125 gathered before the bank, which is temporarily housed in a trailer, to witness the ribbon cutting ceremony.

In announcing the opening, J. Grant Bickmore, IB & T President, praised Twin Falls and hoped IB & T will be able to help the community. "We feel that there is a great future in this area. We want to be a part of it and do our part," he said.

Mayor Winston Jones noted that banks often support community projects and said the addition of IB & T will be beneficial.

Founded in 1934 in Burley, Blackfoot and Pocatello, IB & T now has 17 offices with total assets approaching $210 million, the bank has more than 60,000 depositors.

Jerry McGrath, former manager of the Bank of Idaho in Twin Falls and manager of the Halley, B of I branch from fall 1972 until now, will manage the new office in Twin Falls.

Bruce Anderson, a Filer native and graduate of Idaho State University, will serve as assistant manager of the new bank.

IB & T will be located in its temporary headquarters near the corner of Second Avenue East and Shoshone Street East for about six months. Then, the bank will move to the former Idaho Savings and Loan building between Second and Third Avenues on Shoshone Street East.

Now, however, the bank will be in a trailer while the permanent headquarters is being remodelled.

Ed Scholtes, regional enforcement officer from Jerome, said a meeting of land owners and Fish and Game officials is vital to protect access for fishermen.

He said the meeting hopefully will be held in the next month to prevent "outright war" between ranchers and sportsmen along Silver Creek.

Several land owners will bring trespass suits, they have said, if fishermen continue to walk upon their land.

A new ruling by the Idaho Supreme Court, declaring Silver Creek navigable up to the high water mark for a two-mile stretch has hurt both fishermen and the ranchers, Scholtes said.

The highwater mark boundary will force fishermen to remain in the channel of Silver Creek in most cases to prevent the possibility of trespass, according to a county attorney's opinion.

"The landowner's have shown what their attitude is going to be," Scholtes said. "They'll be closing limited access, making the only access county holidays and boats."

The ranchers now can't obstruct the stream with wire and obstacles, Scholtes said. He said the department may allow fishermen to fish from boats which landowners object to.

The enforcement officer said fishing pressure from 25 years ago is down considerably. In addition, he said, parties with wine and beer will happen anywhere and reports of parties along Silver Creek are unwarranted in many cases.

Many California, Arizona and eastern states landowners have bought up Silver Creek land and consequently, access areas, according to Scholtes.

"These people haven't accepted the Idaho philosophy of openness, Scholtes said. "It used to be whenever someone got his toe stepped on, we'd arrange a meeting at Picaabo to work it out."

The last three or four years, according to Scholtes have been difficult ones for arranging such a meeting with the people along Silver Creek.

Scholtes said after many previous meetings landowners agreed to allow access if the Fish and Game Department built dikes to cross fences and provided garbage cans along the creek. The Fish and Game Department complied with those requests, Scholtes said and compromises were worked out.

Designating the entire Silver Creek as a fly fishing stream will not solve the problems, Scholtes said. "You have good fly fishermen and had ones. Groups of fly fishermen, however, are generally more self disciplined and more careful," Scholtes said.

"Our job is to see that those people buying fishing licenses have water to use," Scholtes said. "I am working out ways for people to get to it. In the western United States we have had an open free society which some of these people aren't accustomed to."

Fire damages home in TF

TWIN FALLS — Fire caused extensive damage to the home of a Twin Falls man Sunday afternoon.

According to Don King, commander of the Twin Falls Fire Department, Substation Two, firemen responded to the blaze at 571 Quincey Street about 2:40 p.m. Sunday.

According to reports, King said, the fire had burned through the roof of the house, which belonged to William J. Green, when firemen arrived.

Firemen removed as much furniture from the home as possible to avoid water damage and then took about an hour to extinguish the flames.

The upper story of the home, where the fire was believed to have started in a back bedroom, was destroyed and water damage to the ground floor was extensive, King said.

Two fire trucks, one from the substation and one from the main station, responded to the fire. There were no injuries.

Cause of the fire has not been determined.

Hearing set

BURLEY — A public hearing on the new Cassia County zoning ordinance will be held tonight at the county courthouse.

The proposed ordinance was completed last week. It will regulate land use in Cassia County.

The complete ordinance and a detailed map showing the various zones will be presented at the meeting which will start at 8 p.m. at the Fifth District Courtroom. When approved by Cassia County commissioners, the ordinance becomes law.

J. GRANT BICKMORE, Idaho Bank and Trust president, announced the opening of Twin Falls branch this morning. The new bank is Twin Falls' fifth.

'Openness' needed along Silver Creek

Several land owners will bring trespass suits, they have said, if fishermen continue to walk upon their land.

A new ruling by the Idaho Supreme Court, declaring Silver Creek navigable up to the high water mark for a two-mile stretch has hurt both fishermen and the ranchers, Scholtes said.

The highwater mark boundary will force fishermen to remain in the channel of Silver Creek in most cases to prevent the possibility of trespass, according to a county attorney's opinion.

Salmon aides check sites for new school

SALMON — The Salmon School Board is investigating possible sites for a new high school.

Jack Ellis, chairman of the Salmon School Board, met with the Lemhi County Commission to review the possibility of locating such a facility where the present fairgrounds is located off U.S. Highway 93.

The fairgrounds is across the highway from the present Salmon Pioneer School and high school football field.

The Idaho Board of Education has withheld accreditation from Salmon High School and the district is working toward the calling of a bond election to construct a new building.

Site investigation is underway and the board has interviewed some 20 architectural firms in respect to the facility.

Robert Banks, district superintendent, noted: "Our intention now is to analyze the interviews to determine the one best for Salmon. We will narrow that number down to about four firms and then down to one after more intensive interviews."

"We will get more detailed information as to what they have to offer before making a final selection."

Banks also noted that the board has met with officials of Idaho First National Bank and First Security Bank as possible representative as fiscal agent. None has been selected as yet.

"A fiscal agent would provide services in the preliminary stages of a bond issue to keep people informed as to the financial aspects, what the cost would be to each individual taxpayer taxed on the property they own, and give us advice," Banks said.

"The fiscal agent's prime purpose would be to market the bond after it is passed in order to get the best interest rate for the district. The fiscal agent plays an important part."

Banks said the matter is under advisement by the board but the district probably will obtain the services of a fiscal agent or the joint services of more than one agent.

During his meeting with the county commissioners, Ellis was advised the commission would cooperate if the school board could come up with alternative sites for relocation of the fairgrounds, and providing it would not take a lot of money on the part of the county to undertake such a change.

A site adjacent to the Elks Hall on the Bar has already been set aside by the City of Salmon as a possible location for a new high school. That property has been held by the city for the school district for the past several years.

Banks noted that soil analysis of the two sites indicate the one on the Bar will not present any drainage problems because it is rocky and will hold up a foundation.

"There is some question on the feasibility of building at the fairgrounds. That area has a water condition which might pose some building problems."

"Further investigation of both sites will take place, along with other sites, before any final determination is made."

Farmers ask higher ante on AF Dam

The "key issues" to be discussed with Idaho Power will be "whether or not it is possible for Idaho Power to contribute more than $19.5 million" and whether the power firm can "assume or share the cost" of water quality facilities at the new dam.

He said the "water quality equipment" which will boost the oxygen content of the water to protect fish life, might call for an initial investment of "as little as $100,000" and between $100,000 and $300,000 per year for operation and maintenance.

The equipment is necessary because Idaho Power's proposed generating plant at the dam will discharge water with low oxygen content. The water is mixed with oxygen at the current dam when it is discharged over the spillway.

Some spacersiders have objected to Idaho Power's refusal to pay taxable interest on bonds to finance the new dam.

The Internal Revenue Service is considering a tax-exempt status for the bonds.

But Ling today said the tax-exempt controversy is "immaterial" because "we've pretty well agreed that, if the bonds aren't tax exempt, then we'll have to drop the bonding proposal and look for other means of financing."

He said taxable bonds would be prohibitive.

The negotiating team hopes to set up sessions with Idaho Power officials by Oct. 1, according to Ling.

He said the committee will review Idaho Power's proposal and present the firm with "the best and ultimate when we talk with them."

The power firm has "never closed the door" on negotiation and "it's never been indicated that it will change its position," Ling said.

If negotiations are successful, "perhaps we can get everyone back on the bandwagon and begin construction," he added.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until early afternoon you could have problems with others that require astute handling and it is advisable that you approach them in a spirit of cooperation. Unexpected conditions arise and you can display your talents.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Allies could be uncooperative in the morning, but later will be most helpful and all works out fine. Use modern methods at work.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use an objective approach if you want to take on more obligations at this time. Being cooperative with co-workers brings fine results.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) It's important to postpone fun until the latter part of the day when you can have more rapport with congenials. Take it easy tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't do anything about tensions during daytime and all will be righted by evening. Don't forget to pay pressing bills.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A more modern system can help you make progress in your line of endeavor. Plan to spend more time at home, if you wish.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Money affairs could prove depressing early in day but clear up nicely later if you use good common sense. Be more confident.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try not to force anything with others in the morning. Be alert engage in social affair, but keep calm. Forget tempers in others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't make any drastic changes because you are feeling upset for some reason. Realize that discretion is the better part of valor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to listen carefully to the problems of a friend and be of real assistance at this time. Obtain the information you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't take any chances now if you want to add to present prestige. A credit matter should be handled without delay. Be wise.

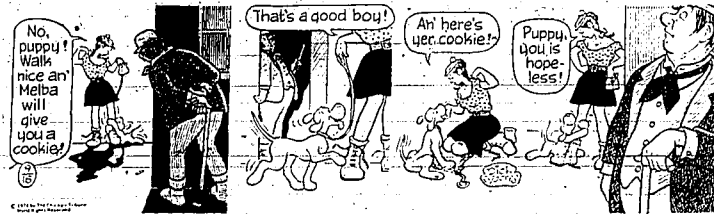

QUINTUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) This afternoon is more favorable to plan a trip than in the morning. Don't be too eager to make a friend of a new acquaintance.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study the best way to handle your financial obligations. Make allowances for mate who is in a mood. Sidelap a habitemake.

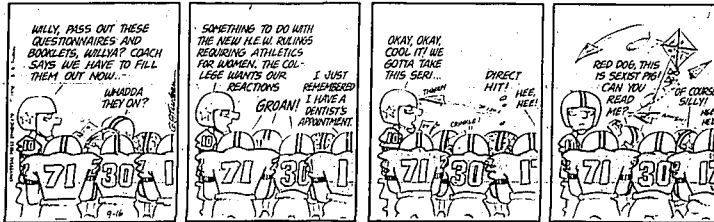

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have much ability but will require the finest education you can afford in order to bring out the talents in this chart. Situations will arise during lifetime when everything seems to be lost, and then something happens to change the whole picture to a happy one. Don't neglect physical training.

Maybe you, too, know something about anxiety—the unprecise tendency to worry overmuch, that ailment called fear. I have a friend who suffers same badly. Says he's constantly on the lookout for mental gimmicks to trick himself out of running scared. His latest, a fact from the insurance tables. Repeats he to himself: "I've already passed the most dangerous threat to my life—the day I was born." Quite right. Neither war nor traffic is as hazardous as that first birthday.

MIDDLE-AGE
Hardest decision a woman makes is when to decide she's middle-aged. Our Love and War man has investigated this matter and come up with three rhetorical queries to help with said decision. 1. Do you worry more lately about your husband's health? 2. Would your children laugh at you, if you put on a bikini? 3. Do you volunteer comments to new acquaintances about your grandchildren? If you answer yes to these, it's believed middle-age is upon you. And you might find it advantageous to admit it, he says.

DIVORCED WOMEN are considerably more masculine in their outlook than are never-divorced wives. Or such be the indication of studies by Stanford scholars. Spinsters are, too, they say.

BLM-employee honored for 10 years service

SHOSHONE Louis An Anderson, Shoshone, has received an award for ten years' actual service time with the Bureau of Land Management.

By years in actuality, however, the date goes beyond 10 years. Anderson started working for the BLM as a maintenance driver in the summer of 1964.

In 1962 he was appointed to the fire lookout station on Bell Mountain to serve monitoring ranger fires from that 1000 peak elevation from that time on.

For the past 12 summers, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson have driven on the winding dirt road to the top of Bell Mountain to set up a solitary home in the two-room "apartment" that sits under the BLM weather station used from June to October each summer.

Anderson can view the area about 75 miles in any direction from the east of Bellevue. About 100 persons visited the lookout each summer the Andersons were there. They occasionally have gone to nearby towns for supplies but for the most part have spent the 120 summer days atop the mountain.

Late there hasn't been exactly like-home as electricity for them was generated by gas, water stored in a 1,000 gallon tank on the side of the building and TV powered off a truck battery.

The Andersons may have spent the last supper on the mountain as he is considering retirement.

NG officers named

BOISE Col. Samuel K. Magaw, regimental commander of the 116th-Armored Cavalry in Twin Falls has been appointed director of plans for the Idaho Army National Guard in Boise. Maj. Gen. George B. Bennett, Idaho adjutant-general, announced today.

At the same time, Maj. Gen. Bennett announced that Col. Lawrence B. Campbell, 10719 Estate Dr. Boise, will assume command of the regiment.

regimental commander since 1971. Prior to being named commander, he served as executive officer and almost every other staff position in the regiment.

Commenting on his service in Twin Falls, Col. Magaw said, "I've seen many changes in the guard in the 20 years. I've lived here. The entire Army Guard, particularly this regiment has moved from a loosely organized unit to the number one armored cavalry regiment in the country."
