Panel votes CIA probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee decided unanimously today to investigate secret disruptive activities by the Central Intelligence Agency in Chile.
Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, announced the committee decision, saying the study would help determine what course of action to take toward officials who may have perjured themselves in 1973 when they testified that the United States had not intervened in Chile against Marxist President Salvador Allende.
Church, chairman of the subcommittee on multinational corporations, said the Foreign Relations Committee decided to put outside a report prepared by his staff counsel, Jerome

Levinson, recommending perjury action against former CIA director Richard Helms and other high officials.
He said the committee will decide whether to reopen the question of whether Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger deceived the Foreign Relations Committee when he minimized the U.S. role in Chile during testimony at his confirmation hearings.
President Ford acknowledged during his news conference Monday night that the United States intervened in Chilean politics between 1964 and 1973, but he denied any U.S. role in the overthrow of Allende.
Church said the object of the inquiry by the Foreign Relations Committee would be:

—To examine the wisdom of CIA intervention in Chile.
—To judge whether perjury was committed by high officials in testimony in 1973 before the subcommittee on multinational corporations.
—To examine the news leaks which led to the disclosure of CIA intervention between 1970-1973.
"I personally believe that the policy we followed in Chile was wrong and was an unprincipled one," Church told newsmen as he left a two-hour committee session.
He said that the policy "cannot be squared with the historic role of the United States. I regret very much that it happened."

Buhl boy, 2, dies in home accident

BUHL — A 2-year-old Buhl child was killed Monday night when he was accidentally run over in the farmyard of his rural home.
The victim is David Lamare Robbins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin L. Robbins, Buhl.
Sheriff Paul Corder said the little boy apparently died instantly when he was run over by a pickup truck which an older brother, Lewis, 11, was driving around the yard and barnlot.

Inflation question sparks House blast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Budget Committee's first meeting opened today with an angry political exchange following the chairman's query on why the administration has devised "no meaningful policy" to deal with inflation.
House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes objected when Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., accused the administration of "old, frute, out-moded economic concepts that have clearly failed us."
Speaking to Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, the committee's first witness, Ullman asked: "Mr. Secretary, tell us why we are spinning helplessly in this whirlpool of inflation, with no meaningful and workable policy for a solution."
Rhodes, visibly angry, interrupted Ullman. "I thought I was in the budget committee 'til I heard the chairman's politically inspired statement," he said. "If this committee is to be dominated by politics, it won't do its job. I promise you that."
Ullman said he was sorry that Rhodes had interpreted his statement as politically motivated. He said both Democratic and Republican administrations had contributed to inflation.

The committee, which will go into full operation next year, was established to give Congress greater control over the federal budget and to streamline the budget-making process.
Simon told the committee that inflation is becoming so deeply imbedded in the American economy that "squeezing it out of the system will be a long, tough process."
"Let me emphasize that the fight against inflation will take years," Simon said. "There are no shortcuts, no acceptable quick solutions. The balanced application of fiscal and monetary restraint is the answer."
Ullman said the administration has permitted "jet propelled inflation."
"Instead of an overall plan to deal with the manifold complexities of our situation and to take into account the many facets of our economic distress, this administration still relies on that tired simplistic panacea, a tight money supply," Ullman said.

No building loan at Wendell

WENDELL — Nobody wants to loan the Wendell schools $303,000 needed for school construction.
The Wendell school trustees met Monday night to open bids on the loan, but found nobody had offered to loan the district the money.
The borrowing had been approved by voters in a bond election last spring.
"The money would have been used to build a four-room addition to the Wendell Elementary School, a new vocational education building and a physical education facilities.

The trustees decided to try again, calling for bids on Oct. 15.
The original plan had called for letting construction bids in mid-October after getting the bonds Monday.
"A Wendell bank who asked not to be identified said long-term investments are not considered economically desirable now because of fluctuating interest rates.
He said he thought the district would be able to borrow the money eventually. "Sometimes these things take a while," he said.

'No deal' before pardon, Ford says

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — President Ford said today Monday night that he had made "no deal" with former President Nixon and insisted that the major reason for his decision to grant an unconditional pardon to Nixon was "to heal the nation."
At a news conference in the White House, his second since taking office, Ford conceded that he had been surprised by the "antagonism" that his decision to grant a full, unconditional pardon to Nixon had created.
But under a barrage of questions, the President strongly defended his act.
"I'm still convinced despite the public reaction so far that the decision I made was the right one," he said.
He said a number of factors entered into the decision, including accounts he had received about Nixon's health.
"But the major reason for the action I took related to the effort to reconcile divisions in our country and to heal the wounds that had festered far too long," he said.

When asked whether he or his staff had made an agreement with Nixon whereby Nixon resigned his office in return for the promise of a full pardon, Ford made an unequivocal reply: "There was no understanding, no deal between me and the former President — none whatsoever."
However, a number of the reporters participating in the news conference commented afterward that they felt that Ford had left unanswered, or only partly answered, a number of questions about his decision to pardon Nixon.
One was the reasons for the reversal of his previous statements about pardoning Nixon. He insisted that his decision was not "abruptly" taken but explained only that he had assembled new information a few days after saying he would not act until the Watergate special prosecutor reached a decision about President Nixon.

Dutch police clear escape route
THE HAGUE (UPI) — Police cleared an escape route today for three Japanese terrorists who have held nine hostages at the French Embassy since Friday, and the grim drama appeared near a climax. The safety of the hostages remained in doubt.
Police ordered all motorists off the road leading to Schiphol airport where an Air France Boeing 707 awaited with a volunteer Dutch crew to fly the hostages out of the country with another Japanese terrorist released earlier by France as part of the deal.

Seoul-Tokyo accord delayed day
SEOUL (UPI) — South Korea has postponed until Wednesday the announcement of its full accord with Japan on a dispute stemming from last month's assassination attempt on President Park Chung-hee, diplomatic sources said today.
No official news was given for the South Korean action, but it was believed the two countries are still discussing procedural matters.

Gate defendants ask trial delay
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lawyers for three defendants in the Watergate cover-up case have asked the U.S. Court of Appeals to reverse Judge John Sirica's decision not to further delay their trial, news sheets said today.
They contended Monday that publicity surrounding President Ford's pardon of Nixon has created an "inflammatory atmosphere." The defendants — former White House aides John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell — asked the appeals court to order Judge Sirica to postpone the trial, now scheduled Oct. 1.

Israelis watchful on holiday
TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israelis marked the beginning of the Jewish New Year today with quiet celebrations, increased border and frontier patrols and fears that Arab guerrillas would disrupt the Rosh Hashanah holiday.
On the eve of the Jewish year 5735, police arrested two Arabs carrying a suitcase with a bomb in a Tel Aviv supermarket and dismantled their explosive charge minutes before it was to go off.
Civil defense guards joined with soldiers and police proving the alleys of Jerusalem's ancient walled city, where thousands of Jews congregated at the walling wall for prayers at the start of the two-day holiday at sundown Monday.

Survey opens hospital campaign

TWIN FALLS — The members of the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital board want to know how residents of Twin Falls County feel about proposed plans for hospital expansion.
Board members Monday voted unanimously to kick off the campaign for the bond election with a public opinion survey. Voters will go to the polls during the Nov. 5 general election to cast their ballot on proposed hospital expansion.
Tentative plans call for the surveys to be published in local newspapers to attempt to gain an idea of the public's opinion on priorities for a hospital building program.
Board members discussed the idea of a questionnaire at length before voting to undertake the project.
Dr. Roy Shaub, representing the medical staff, questioned whether the survey would be used in formulating plans. "I don't think it should be a futile thing," he said.
Architect Ed Peterson there was time to incorporate public input into the plans. A dollar figure for the bond election must be set by Oct. 1, but detailed plans can and will be worked out later, he said.
One question proposed for the survey would ask respondents to list proposed construction in order of priority, for instance, is expanding waiting room space more important than adding additional laboratory facilities, and so forth.

County Commissioner William Wiseman was pessimistic about the use of questionnaires. "I'm pretty much against questionnaires," he said, "I don't like them." He later referred to idea of using a survey as "playing a game" with the public.
But board members felt they needed the response of the public. In the previous bond election, which failed by a narrow margin last February, one of the problems the board identified was too little feedback from the public, especially persons who didn't favor the issue.
The board again discussed the problem of cost of the building program. Inflation has jacked the $4.6 million figure of February's bond issue to $5.3 million if the same building program is followed, according to hospital officials.
Even changing the plans, by cutting down on administrative office expansion and lobby and waiting room construction, the figure is only reduced by several hundred thousand dollars, hospital officials said.

Toronto resisters oppose Ford's re-entry proposal

By United Press International
President Ford's "earned reentry" offer to Americans who chose exile over service in the Vietnam war stirred further anger and dismay today as a leading Toronto resisters' group decided against advising Americans to accept the Ford terms.
Members of Amex Canada, a draft centers' and draftees' group, met late Monday and reaffirmed their call for an international boycott of Ford's plan, which they described as a "gross miscarriage of justice."
Charles Silmac, a 25-year-old draft evader from Detroit, said the group also firmed up plans for an international meeting this weekend in Toronto on the amnesty issue, with attendance from U.S. war cable groups in Sweden, England, France and Canada.

(Related stories, p. 8)
"We decided that counselors in Toronto cannot tell people to go back under the conditions that Ford has announced," Silmac said, adding that Ford's plan amounted to "baste suicide" for resisters.

TF inmate flees

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls County jail prisoner escaped Monday by locking his jailer inside a cell.
According to Sheriff Paul Corder, the escape occurred about 5:30 p.m. Monday when Joshua Jeffrey Sun, 25, a Granada, Calif., man being held on first degree burglary charges, overpowered a deputy and took the elevator down from the fourth floor jail.
After leaving the courthouse, Sun apparently escaped in a waiting vehicle driven by a woman who had described herself as Sun's wife, Corder said. The alarm to surrounding police agencies did not go over the police radio until about 6 p.m., Corder said. Sun's alleged wife "sat around" the courthouse lobby most of the afternoon Monday, apparently waiting for most of the deputies on the day shift to go home. Corder said he did not know who the woman was at the time.
After he himself had gone home, Corder said, he received a call from the woman requesting that she be granted special visiting privileges to see her husband.

'No deal' in Nixon pardon, Ford declares

When asked why he said, "I was a soul decision, and believe me it wasn't easy and since I am the only one who could make that decision I thought I had to search my soul after consulting with a limited number of people and I did it and I think in the long run it was the right decision."

Ford made no assurance that the White House tapes, which he had agreed belonged to Nixon, would be available for pending criminal cases. Ford conceded that the special prosecutor's office had expressed "some concern" and said that the White House staff was working to alleviate such concerns. He did not say how long he had granted a full pardon to Nixon and then a conditional amnesty to Vietnam draft evaders and deserters but suggested that there was no time gap between the two decisions.

Questions about his pardon of Nixon dominated last night's news conference, but the president did make these comments on other issues.

He acknowledged that the United States had engaged in covert activities to destabilize the regime of the late Marxist President of Chile, Salvador Allende Gossens. Ford said that the action was taken "in the interest of the people of Chile and, certainly, in our best interests."

He asserted "very strongly" that "the United States is not going to have a depression." The country has problems, he said, "and we're going to work on them. Answers I hope will solve those problems."

"A very major decision" will be made within the next few days about "the future of our humanitarian purposes." Ford may announce such a decision by his address to the United Nations on Wednesday.

Ford went the farthest he has to date toward saying outright that Nixon had committed impeachable offenses and was guilty of other crimes charged in the indictment against him.

He said that Nixon had been "shamed and disgraced" by his resignation.

He also said that the fact that

38 members of the House Judiciary Committee considered Nixon guilty of an impeachable offense was "I think, very persuasive evidence."

He added that the acceptance of the pardon by President Nixon "can be construed by many if not all as an admission of guilt."

"In an opening statement," he said, "the news conference was being held on the eve of Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish new year, Ford appeared to be making an indirect appeal for both his questioners and his nationwide audience to lay to rest the subject of Watergate and Nixon's pardon.

The Jewish holy day, he noted, "begins the period of self-examination and reconciliation" in opening his press conference in a mindful that "the spirit of this holy day has a meaning for all Americans."

"The record of the past years does not have to be endlessly relived but can be transformed by commitment to new insights and new actions in the year to come."

Ford indicated that he has no intention of appointing any kind of commission to prepare a full report on the whole Watergate chapter. The records of the House Judiciary Committee, the special prosecutor and all pending criminal trials, he suggested, would make the "full story" available to the American people.

Prior to issuing the pardon, Ford said, he had no prior information about the health of Nixon from his family or anyone else except the news media. There was one exception, he added, for the day before he announced his decision a member of his staff who had been negotiating with Nixon and his staff came to his office. Ford said he asked "How did the president look?" and the staff member gave his observations.

The White House later identified the staff member as Bentley I. Becker, the Washington lawyer who had acted as a go-between on the pardon and tapes negotiations with Nixon and his staff.

AT THE CLOSE of the third day of integrated schools in Boston, black students return to their homes in Roxbury aboard buses escorted by police. Raging gangs continued to disrupt the court-ordered integration Monday. (UPI)

Boston school situation quiet

BOSTON (UPI) — Attendance increased today and unruly crowds of demonstrators were absent on the fourth day of a court-ordered busing plan to integrate Boston's public schools.

Black students arrived for classes in South Boston without the usual jeers and taunts. About 80 police lined routes and rooftops along the routes of buses, which were given motorcade police and helicopter escort into the racially tense area.

Four buses—with every seat filled—arrived at South Boston High School without incident. They carried about 140 black children and six whites from Roxbury and Columbia Point housing project. Officials said "It also appeared more neighborhood white children were going into the school."

As has been the practice in the past, a clergyman rode on each of the buses.

Revelers burn landmark cross

By GEORGE WILEY

TWIN FALLS — The landmark cross at Shoshone Falls was burned to the ground by revelers preparing for Evel Knievel's leaping jump today. Witnesses said a bonfire was built around the base of the large cross which finally toppled the day before Knievel's jump.

Church pastor Les Brown, president of the Twin Falls Ministerial Association, said today that he hoped the cross would be replaced. However, Brown said the fact that the cross, once used for Easter sunrise services, at Shoshone Falls Park, was allowed to fall into a state of disrepair in recent years is "perhaps the central tragedy" in abuse of the church symbol.

According to Leonard Titmus, manager of the Idaho Power plant at the falls, the cross burning took place Sept. 6 and 7. Titmus, who witnessed the burning from his house at the power plant across the river from the park, said drunken spectators camped in the park for Knievel's jump started partying about 10 p.m. Friday and continued until 4 a.m. Saturday.

"A maximum of some sort," Titmus said, was tied to the cross before it was set afire. "It seemed like they had a hard time burning it," Titmus said of the cross, "and never burned completely down. About noon on Saturday a bunch of them went over and pushed it down because it had not been burned through completely."

Titmus said the mannikin strapped to the cross burned rapidly, however. "We could hear very plainly when something excited them over there," Titmus said. "We heard a big cheer over there like something exciting was happening, and that's when the cross burst into flames."

Rev. Brown said he hoped the cross burning "was done out of senseless pranksterism rather than as some anti-religious act."

Speaking for the ministerial association, Rev. Brown said, "We see this as a deplorable act, whenever there is an insult against the symbols of the church. We do see there is an insult against what the church stands for and against Jesus Christ himself."

"However, we do not feel that either the Christian cause or the church has been injured by this act. The church has been defamed throughout history in various ways. The real injury is done to those who have committed the acts of defilement."

Rev. Brown, who said he was unaware of the cross burning when contacted Monday, said today that he was personally "very sorry that persons have lacked some basic sensitivities to things sacred that they would do things such as this."

"In reality," Rev. Brown said, "they have injured their own humanity much more than the sacred values represented here."

Rev. Brown said he hoped the cross is replaced. However, he expressed dismay that the cross had not been kept up in recent years.

"I personally hope that the churches of the area restore the cross at the falls," Rev. Brown said, "and do so with the understanding that it never expresses a particular purpose by being there."

"The fact that the cross has not been kept in best repair, and also to have ignored its present state, is really more damaging to what it stands for than the act of vandalism that has occurred," Rev. Brown concluded.

Rev. Brown said he did not know the history of the cross. His wife said she thought it had been put up in the 1950s and used for sunrise services.

Cross burned

OLD cross lies on its face at the edge of a cliff at Shoshone Falls after it was burned nearly through at its base and then pushed over by drunken crowds gathered at the park to witness Evel Knievel's Snake River Canyon jump attempt. The cross, reportedly erected on the cliffs at the falls in the 1950s, was once used for Easter sunrise services but had fallen into disrepair.

Windshield target for angry driver

TWIN FALLS — Late motorists are not unusual, but Twin Falls police Monday were investigating an incident of assault and battery which verged on the ridiculous.

Dave Cobb, a cement truck driver for Triple-C Concrete, told police an angry driver had thrown two wrenches at him along Blue Lakes Boulevard, the scene going through the cement truck's windshield.

The incident began, Cobb said, when he pulled out of the weigh station on the north side of the Perrine Bridge about 7 p.m. Monday.

According to Cobb, he had pulled into traffic from the weigh station when an unidentified man in a van pulled into the traffic lane beside him, shouting, "That Cobb had cut him off when he pulled from the weigh station."

The angry driver tried to force Cobb's truck off the road, Cobb reported, and then threw two wrenches at the cement truck. The second wrench shattered the truck's windshield.

Cobb followed the van into the parking lot of the Blue Lakes Shopping Center, he told police, at the same time radioing for help from other Triple C drivers. As Cobb and the angry driver in the van pulled into the parking lot, the man got out of his van and broke off a pop bottle to defend himself against Cobb and two other Triple C drivers who had arrived at the scene.

Cobb tried to convince the man to calm down and wait for police to arrive, he said, but the man leaped back into his van and a woman also in the van drove off. Cobb told police he slammed a door on the man's arm before he departed.

Damage to the Triple C truck was estimated at about $120.

meeting will deal with the decision of the solicitor of the Bureau of Land Management to limit family farm units under the Carey Act to 160 acres rather than the 320-acre basis the committee has used.

Murphy said the land committee must act quickly to appeal the decision through all the channels open to it.

On Sept. 4, Lonnie R. Johnson, age 33, Jerome, forfeited a $50 fine to United States Magistrate Harry B. Turner, Twin Falls.

Johnson was cited by US Forest Service officers on July 11 near Stanley after he was observed driving a four-wheel drive vehicle across newly reseeded range land.

Vehicle information notices and maps are posted in public places throughout the SNRA and at the junctions of most access roads. During the summer of 1974 the general public and ORV's have cooperated with the regulations and very few violations have been observed.

Reynolds advised that the SNRA management will continue to discuss vehicle use and regulations with ORV groups and clubs.

SCSA meeting set Thursday

KETCHUM — The future of Silver Creek and the Sawtooth National Recreation Area will be discussed here Thursday and Friday.

The Soil Conservation Society of America (SCSA) will meet at the Holiday Inn beginning at 9 a.m. here Thursday.

Representatives from the US Forest Service, National Park Service, Idaho Department of Water Resources, Idaho Fish and Game Department and Idaho Parks and Recreation Department will attend the two-day meet.

The SCSA is a national organization dedicated to promoting and advancing the conservation of renewable natural resources.

Bethune Church and Sen. Frank Church's tied representative George Klein will give prepared talks.

In addition, Blaine County extension agent Jim Eakin; Blaine County ranchers Nick Purdy and Harry Bickett; Jack Hemingway, Idaho Fish and Game Commissioner, and Robert Bell, fish and game representative, will participate in discussions.

Water resources board member Steve Allred; Norm Adams, forest service planner; Ken Ellis, State parks and recreation member, and a member from the National Park Service will participate.

According to an information officer for the Soil Conservation Service (SCS), a policy statement may be forthcoming from the society following the meet.

Much of the discussion according to information officer Sharon Norris, will center on the effect of increased sprinkler systems in the Silver Creek area. Preservation of the fishery in Silver Creek will be discussed.

A guided bus tour of Silver Creek will leave the Holiday Inn at 1:30 p.m. Thursday. The public is invited to attend the tour and discussions.

Position accepted

SHOSHONE — Frank Dallas, supervisor at the Shoshone office, Farm Service Home Administration, has accepted a position as farmer program specialist for the state.

Dallas will be working out of the Shoshone office, but will do field work a good share of the time. He has been supervisor at the Shoshone office for the past 11 years, coming to Shoshone in 1963.

Replacing Dallas in Shoshone is Wilbert Caddy, formerly at the Paul PMA office.

Phil H. Mitchell, who has been in training in Shoshone since June, is the newly appointed assistant supervisor.

Maps available

KETCHUM — Large detailed maps of the Sawtooth National Forest's north division are available.

Interested persons may buy the maps for $2 at the Sawtooth National Recreation Area office south of Ketchum. The large colored maps show all lakes and trails through the northern division of the Sawtooth forest.

Pencil awarded

TWIN FALLS — Flo Harper won the red pencil at the first full season meeting of the Town Trustees Tuesday.

Thirteen members were present, with president Annette Jenkins presiding. Marguerite Hartley gave the invocation and Ollime Armstrong gave the theme.

Table topics were led by Shirley Murrell, and reports were given by Virginia Bitzenburg and Frances Hesselholt. Educational topics were conducted by Marge Kromer, Elizabethenburg, Charlotte Jones and Virginia Eldredge.

The following appointments were announced by the president: Harper, publicity; Hesselholt, parliamentarian; Shirley Murrell, grammarian; Doris Jensen, community service; Nils Nelson, hostess; and Shirley DeLuca, historian.

"The next meeting will be Sept. 27.

Campaign topics vary

By United Press International
Economy in school districts, support for a new north Idaho bridge and televised debates were among topics espoused by political candidates Monday.

Ezra Moore, Republican candidate for state superintendent of public instruction, told the Idaho School District Cooperative Service Council meeting cooperative measures, such as purchasing large quantities of items by several districts would cut the expense of individual districts and Foster an attitude of cooperation in the state education system.

John Evans, a Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, urged Lewiston area residents to support a proposed bridge to relieve traffic congestion on the connector between Lewiston and Clarkston.

Bob Smith Republican candidate for attorney general, said state's rights is the big issue of this decade, and the best defense against further encroachment by federal government is a strong state's rights posture at home.

Pessimistic view of world 50 years hence

WASHINGTON — What does the future hold in store in 2024 for America and for the world?
The editors of Saturday Review/World tackled the question last month in a special issue marking the fiftieth anniversary of the Review. For the most part, contributors found the prospect pretty good.
Microbiologist Rene Dubos, for example, expects a far better environmental quality 50 years hence, as science solves most of the problems of pollution that plague us now. The Russian physicist, Andrei D. Sakharov, foresees a world divided into "work territories" and "preserve territories" in which man may re-establish a natural balance.
Nathanial Neil Armstrong looks toward industrial development of the moon. Werner von Braun, the rocket pioneer, sees a time when "a life without spacecraft may be as hard to imagine as one without planes or phones."
Oceanographer Jacques Cousteau believes the seas, if they are managed wisely, could produce a new golden age half a century hence. Moshe Safdie, the brilliant Israeli-born architect, contributes dream cities that he himself expects to see when he is 86.
Such ventures into prophecy are as old as recorded literature. There is always a temptation to look beyond the veil, and there always have been astrologers, diviners, prophets and mystics whose present stock in trade is the prediction of things to come.
Most of their predictions turn out poorly. As editor Norman Cousins observes, "the biggest changes of the twentieth century were not foreseen by the experts." Cousins is talking chiefly of the "intangibles" that shape the history of mankind. "The most important factor in the complex equation of the future," Cousins says, "is the way the human mind responds to crisis. Human experience is not a closed circuit. It is full of magnificent detours and sudden departures from predicted destinations.

If I had been contributing to Cousins' symposium, I probably would have been more pessimistic about the world of 2024. But for all of Norman Cousins' unquenchable optimism, I wonder about the willingness of men and nations to abandon characteristics that have seemed immutable thus far.
Is man essentially good? Kindly? Neighborly? Self-sacrificial? Are nations wedded to the Golden Rule? I deny it absolutely. On the contrary, the record is one long record of selfishness, exploitation, and conquest.
What is the greatest danger, and the greatest madness, affecting the world of 1974? It is the proliferation of atomic weapons. In his contribution to the symposium, McGeorge Bundy foresees a series of atomic exchanges devastating cities in China, Russia, and the United States, but thereafter, world authority over weapons, food and population. Is there any indication that men and nations are disposed to avert the danger and to cool the madness? Nothing in the arms limitation talks provides the slightest encouragement.

Is the affluent United States morally and spiritually available to reducing our own standard of living? It is idle to ask. Are nations that depend upon the sea prepared to accept the radical controls that Cousteau perceives as indispensable for the survival of species? The policy is rather to catch and get out.
I am not by nature a pessimist. The "intangibles" that Cousins rightly remembers may well appear, perhaps in the form of a worldwide religious movement of compelling effect. But will 2024 bring peace, prosperity, and loving kindness to the planet Earth?
It is more likely to bring a massive compounding of the perils and deprivations that afflict us now.

New credits help broaden CSI service

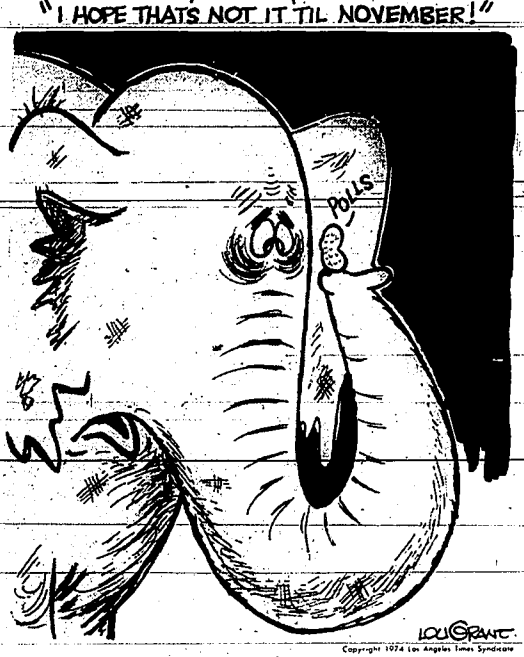

The College of Southern Idaho has taken a step forward by adopting a new kind of flexible course credit.
CSI is the first college in Idaho to grant "continuing education units" or CEUs. The credits are awarded for the college's many short courses, often given on an informal basis, on subjects outside the usual academic offerings. Courses such as reading improvement, fly tying or law for the layman would now offer continuing education credits, one for every 10 hours of instruction.
Five continuing education units would equal three regular degree credits and could be substituted for electives in a standard academic program.
Additionally, the college would permit a person to receive a new degree, an associate of arts in continuing education, if he had accumulated 107 CEUs.
The new credit program is a good example of CSI's desire to broaden its service to include the largest possible cross section of the community.
The traditional notion of "credits" has come under fire from many directions, often because of its inflexibility and arbitrariness. The CEU should help bridge the gap between the "academic" and the "simply educational."
In the process, it should make the college more attractive to many people whose needs don't fit into the traditional academic mold but who have a zest for learning. And by bringing more people into contact with the college and its resources, the CEUs may stimulate some of these people to plunge into a full academic program.

Nuke security

Concern that American atomic arms stored at overseas bases in friendly countries might be seized by guerrilla groups has been voiced by retired Admiral Gene R. LaRoque. LaRoque, a former fleet commander and strategic planner, now heads the Center for Defense Information.
Our atomic weapons in such countries as Greece, Turkey and South Korea are stored in concrete buildings with relatively few guards, according to the admiral.
He also pointed to the possibility of a friendly nation which had our atomic arms in store, becoming an unfriendly one and seizing the weaponry we had there.
While he did not say so, perhaps the admiral was alluding to Greece, which has seen anti-American demonstrations as the result of their feeling that we did not come to their aid in the Cyprus attack by Turkey.
In the event such a happening should occur, the admiral says that there is nothing we could do short of going in to the country to regain possession of the atomic arms.
In the past several months the United States has been thefts of conventional weapons from several armories with all of the disquieting implications which that has.
It has become so worrisome that many states have instituted a new policy of removing firing pins from stored arms such as semi-automatic rifles and sub-machine guns, and storing the pins in another location.
The thought of atomic weapons falling into the hands of such fanatical groups as the Palestine guerrillas is a dreaded one.
Certainly a review should be made of security at our depots abroad to prevent such a possibility.

Berry's World

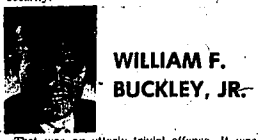

Why is a diary stereotyped today as the gushing of a school girl or the muttering of a discontented politician, unworthy of the efforts of a busy person? Perhaps because we are out of the habit of writing, or have fallen into the habit of considering our lives humdrum, or have become fearful of committing our thoughts to paper. When I urged a White House friend to keep a diary through the fall of a president as a service to history, he sadly replied that he had better not — notes and diaries could be subpoenaed.
But the fear of Nosy Parkers and Pepsis, Sams, quail not to deprive us of the satisfaction of the Benefit, of keeping a fairly regular account of our personal observations.
Consider what diaries do:
Diaries remind us of details that would otherwise fade from our memory and make less vivid our recollections.
Diaries relieve us of our frustration. Diaries reveal us to ourselves as well as to posterity.
But what of people who are neither on trial nor facing-to-death, neither witnesses to great events nor participants in momentous undertakings? To most of us, a diary presents a terrible challenge: "Write down in me something worth remembering," the neatly dated page says; "prove that this day was not a waste of time."
For people intimidated by their own diaries, here are a handful of rules:
1. You own the diary, the diary doesn't own

Observations on pardon

Concerning the Presidential pardon, a few observations:
1) It is objected that Richard Nixon has not shown a proper contrition that he did not "apologize." I do not think this is the fact. "No words can describe the depths of my regret and pain at the anguish my mistakes over Watergate have caused the nation and the presidency, a nation I so deeply love and an institution I so greatly respect." What do they want from him? He even went so far as to revise his earlier animadversions on his critics. "I know that many fair-minded people believe that my motivation and actions in the Watergate affair were intentionally self-serving and illegal. I now understand how my own mistakes and misjudgments have contributed to that belief and seem to support it. This burden is the heaviest one of all to bear."
2) It is objected that as things now stand, the record doesn't establish whether Richard Nixon was actually guilty. Stuff and nonsense. There isn't anyone around who believes that Richard Nixon wasn't in fact guilty of complicity in the cover-up. To demonstrate it before a jury would be a venture in redundancy. These juridical passions President Ford has declined to engage, and he is right in declining to do so.
3) The argument that it is now established that all men are not equal under the law is superfluous. We are governed under a constitution that gives the President the "Power to grant Reprieves and Pardons for Offenses against the United States." Perhaps executive clemency should be done away with altogether. But no one is saying that. So long as the prerogative survives, it is precisely a call to discrimination. President Lincoln, commencing the sentence of death for a lonely private on one occasion in the Civil War, would not have denied that he had discriminated in favor of the object of his compassion. If it is required to be proved, before an executive can extend clemency, that everyone else in identical circumstances also receive clemency, the instrument could never be used, because research into the question would be endless, and conclusions ambiguous.

4) It is not correct to say that Nixon's confederates are to be punished even as Nixon gets off scot-free. Nixon's principal offense was a political crime. He lied, systematically, to the American people. The June tape that was the proximate cause of his resignation revealed only that he maneuvered while in the White House to discourage an investigation, pleading national security.
That was an utterly trivial offense. It was magnified by Nixon's public posture. For this he has been brutally — though fairly — punished. Ejected from the White House, exiled from the esteem of the countrymen who had given him the greatest vote in presidential history — that was his punishment. His confederates were not publicly elected personnel, and their punishment can only come from a court of law. If the jurists decide that the official pardon granted to Nixon is itself grounds for declining to convict the confederates, let them go ahead and make that decision.
If there is to be discord, it will only be because it has been stimulated. The Constitution does most specify that the President shall have the power to grant reprieves and pardons only when there is a clear popular sanction for the granting of said pardons.
It authorizes the President to make up his mind respecting clemency, and his own feeling is that President Ford has acted honorably, prudently, and charitably.

There are some who didn't get jobs ...

WASHINGTON — President Ford has been putting his new White House staff together.
We have heard about the people who have been hired for his administration, but we haven't heard anything about those who, for one reason or another, didn't get jobs.
Here are some of the people and what they said to President Ford which gave him pause about hiring them:
Now, Mr. President, I think the first thing you should do is to install a recording system in the Oval Office. In that way you can tape the conversations of everyone who comes in your office.

Now if I were on the payroll, I would see that you got every last possible deduction you were entitled to. First, we'd work out something for your papers from the time you were House minority leader. Diarists have 4 rules

(C) New York Times Service
Diaries are no longer Dear: as the invention of the telephone began the decline of letter-writing, the invention of the tape recorder has led to the atrophy of the personal diary.
Many of us record our words but few of us record our thoughts.
Why is a diary stereotyped today as the gushing of a school girl or the muttering of a discontented politician, unworthy of the efforts of a busy person? Perhaps because we are out of the habit of writing, or have fallen into the habit of considering our lives humdrum, or have become fearful of committing our thoughts to paper. When I urged a White House friend to keep a diary through the fall of a president as a service to history, he sadly replied that he had better not — notes and diaries could be subpoenaed.
But the fear of Nosy Parkers and Pepsis, Sams, quail not to deprive us of the satisfaction of the Benefit, of keeping a fairly regular account of our personal observations.
Consider what diaries do:
Diaries remind us of details that would otherwise fade from our memory and make less vivid our recollections.
Diaries relieve us of our frustration. Diaries reveal us to ourselves as well as to posterity.
But what of people who are neither on trial nor facing-to-death, neither witnesses to great events nor participants in momentous undertakings? To most of us, a diary presents a terrible challenge: "Write down in me something worth remembering," the neatly dated page says; "prove that this day was not a waste of time."
For people intimidated by their own diaries, here are a handful of rules:
1. You own the diary, the diary doesn't own

you. There are many days in all our lives about which the less written the better. If you are the sort of person who can only keep a diary on a regular schedule, filling up two pages just before you go to bed, become another sort of person.
2. Write for yourself. The central idea of a diary is that you are not writing for critics or for posterity but are writing a private letter to your future self. If you are petty, or wrongheaded, or hopelessly emotional, relax — if there is anybody who will understand and forgive, it is your future self.
3. Put down what cannot be reconstructed. You are not a newspaper of record, obligated to record every first time that man walks on the moon. Instead, remind yourself of the poignant personal moment, the remark you wish you had made, your predictions about the outcome of your own tribulations.
4. Write legibly. This sounds obvious, but I have pages of scribbles by a younger me who was infuriatingly illiterate. Worse, to protect the innocent, I had encoded certain names and then misplaced my Rosetta stone; now I will never know who "JW" was in my freshman year at College, and she is a memory it might be nice to have.
Four rules are enough rules. Above all, write about what got to you that day.
That is the art of the diarist in its pure form, unafraid, intimate, important in its insignificance, ringingly free.

Bills edge Oakland 2-20 with 12-yd. touchdown win pass

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — Joe Ferguson quarterbacked the Buffalo Bills to a 20-12 victory over the Oakland Raiders in their nationally televised NFL opener Monday night.

With six seconds left, Oakland veteran George

Blanda attempted a 50-yard field goal but the kick was short and wide to the right.

The Bills appeared to have won the game with 1:56 to go when Ferguson threw a 41-yard pass to Rashad for a touchdown in a wild final two minutes — gave the Buffalo Bills a 21-20 victory over the Oakland Raiders in their nationally televised NFL opener Monday night.

But Buffalo drove right back — aided by two pass interference calls — against Oakland — to score the winning TD.

The Bills' final scoring drive covered 73 yards in eight plays. They moved to the Oakland 47 when Ferguson hit Braxton with a 10-yard pass and Oakland was forced to punt.

Two plays later, Ferguson hit Rashad at the Oakland 27, and five plays later, following an interference penalty, he hit him again for the TD.

Oakland's last touchdown came with 1:14 to go, after Ferguson hit Rashad in the end zone to put the Bills ahead 14-13.

Ohio St. tops weekly ratings

NEW YORK (UPI) — Woody Hayes was unimpressed with his "Buckeyes" fourth-quarter performance in their 34-19 victory over Minnesota Saturday, but Ohio State retained its top ranking in the United Press poll.

Board of Coaches major college football ratings.

In fact, although Minnesota stayed closer to the Buckeyes than anticipated — Ohio State solidified its hold on the No. 1 spot.

While Michigan, which received the other first-place vote, remained fifth in the ratings.

Louisiana State, which opened auspiciously under the direction of its first black quarterback, Carl Oatis, stumbled, jumped from ninth to sixth on the strength of its 42-14 pounding of Colorado.

Penn State and Texas retained their respective second and eighth positions, while Arkansas bolted into the ninth position with a 22-7 upset of Southern California after the Orangebacks had been unrivaled in the preseason ratings. USC was ranked fourth in the preseason poll.

Fight postponed due to injury

NEW YORK (UPI) — The projected $30 million "fight of the century" between George Foreman and Muhammad Ali in Kinshasa, Zaire was knocked out Monday when Foreman received a one-inch cut over his right eye in training making a postponement of between six to 15 days necessary.

Hank Schwartz, vice president of Video Techniques, Inc., joint promoters of the fight with the Government of Zaire, said the postponement was necessary but no new date could be fixed until the exact extent of Foreman's injury was determined.

The Buckeyes received 24 of the 35 first-place ballots as opposed to only 10 for Ohio State in the preseason voting. Ohio State was named no lower than third on any of the ballots in accumulating 345 points.

Notre Dame edged past Alabama for the No. 2 spot, receiving 11 first-place ballots for 304 points.

The Crimson Tide, which squeezed by Maryland 21-10 Saturday, accumulated 268 points.

Nebraska advanced from sixth to fourth position by annihilating Oregon State, 61-7.

Foster is retiring from ring

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI) — World Heavyweight champion Bob Foster, embroiled in a controversy with the World Boxing Council, Monday announced his retirement from the ring.

Foster, 35, retires as the only fighter ever to go unbeaten in the light-heavyweight ranks, including 13 successful defenses of the title he won from Dick Tiger in 1962.

"I am tired of having the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association tell me who I can fight and when I can fight," Foster said. "I still think I can lick any light-heavyweight in the world, but it's too much of a mental thing to fight the WBA and the WBC too."

The WBC just most stepped Foster of his title although he is still recognized as the world champion by the WBA.

The WBC vacated the title after ordering Foster to defend it against England's John Conteh. However, the champion refused to fight Conteh, contending the fee was not being offered.

There is no money in the fights they want me to take," Foster said. "I could go on fighting for another three years, but I am just tired of having them on my back."

Courageous tries for fourth win against Australia's challenger

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — With three decisive victories stacked away, the U.S. defender Courageous heads out into Rhode Island Sound today to try to make it four straight over the Australian challenger Southern Cross and end millionairess Bond's $8-million dream of capturing the America's Cup.

Southern Cross' second loss to the "oobermaring" will come back," Amid laughter, he replied that as for the boomerang there had not been "enough air to hold it up."

The gun, Courageous starting helmsman Dennis Connor denied that he deliberately lured Southern Cross into that position.

"We knocked out with about 15 seconds to go and I had the advice from Halsey (Hereschoff, navigator) and Fred (Hess, skipper) that we were still a little early, but looking back at Southern Cross I noticed that she was still going for it and the man at the bow indicated that we could still go for it and not be over so. Not being shy, I just put it right up on the line and sure enough we were over."

Phoenix trades Walk for trio

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — The Phoenix Suns Monday traded Neal Walk, their starting center the past two years, to the New Orleans Jazz for Curtis Perry, Dennis Awrey and Nate Hawthorne.

"This is without question the biggest trade the Suns ever have consummated and one that has taken a great deal of thought and consideration regarding positive results and the present status of our club," said Phoenix General Manager Jerry Colangelo.

Awrey, a 6-10 center with the Chicago Bulls last year, Perry, a 6-7 forward with the Milwaukee Bucks, and Hawthorne, a 6-4 forward with the Los Angeles Lakers, were acquired by the New Orleans franchise in the expansion draft.

Clubhouse talk is centering on Allen

NEW YORK (UPI) — Topic A in all the major league dugouts now is Richie Allen.

Most of his fellow ballplayers openly salute him and shake their heads in sheer admiration for the way he was able to say goodbye and walk away from a cool quarter million.

Nobody's guaranteeing the 32-year-old White Sox first baseman might not change his mind and come back next spring "although the feeling among those who have gotten a little closer to him than others is that he won't."

"The more you make, the more people demand. They're never satisfied. They want more, more, more, and after all, we're human. We make mistakes. God is the only perfect ballplayer in the world."

In their quarters, the mets were talking about Allen's Retirement, too.

Chicago coach hospitalized

CHICAGO (UPI) — Abe Gibrón, the hefty coach of the Chicago Bears, lay in Illinois Masonic Hospital Monday suffering from "thrombophlebitis," the same leg ailment that has stricken former President Richard Nixon and "cellulitis" a skin infection.

"The man has more pride than any human being I have ever seen, and if he says he has had enough, then I don't think he'd come back for five million," says Joe Cardenal, the Cubs' outfielder who played with Allen with the Cardinals.

"Richie's pride means more to him than the $225,000 he would get for playing next year. I know it does because I found out what kind of person he was when we were with the same club. He played harder than anybody; he helped more players than anybody and never complained."

Haig named NATO chief

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig Jr. was named supreme commander of NATO and commander of American forces in Europe Monday.

The announcement was made by President Ford. Haig, 48, retired from active duty as a four-star army general in August, 1973, four months after he became former President Nixon's chief of staff. Haig replaced Watergate defendant Lt. Haldeeman, who resigned April 30, 1973.

Haig will succeed Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, 59, who retires as commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization defense group Dec. 15. Haig will probably leave his White House job Friday and take command of U.S. forces in Europe Nov. 1, after a vacation.

Haig's nomination by Ford was unanimously approved by NATO's defense planning committee in Brussels, despite threats by the Dutch government to oppose the request because of Haig's close association with former President Nixon.

In a joint statement, the 14 NATO governments on the planning committee "expressed their lasting gratitude for Gen. Goodpaster's distinguished service." The White House statement said: "On behalf of the American people, President Ford joins in extending his appreciation to Gen. Goodpaster for a job well done." President Ford said in a news conference Monday night that he has not decided who will replace Haig.

Ford now has three top advisers — Robert Hartmann, former Virginia Democrat congressman John O. Nash, and counsel Philip W. Bucher — handling his White House policy planning.

Ford asked Haig to remain in his administrative job during the transition period after Nixon resigned Aug. 9. But, Haig's presence in the White House caused considerable friction as Ford's team took control.

Haig has denied clashes between the Nixon holdovers and senior advisers of the Ford administration, but other Nixon holdovers are expected to resign soon.

Haig served in the White House from 1970 to 1973 as deputy national security affairs adviser under Henry A. Kissinger. He was appointed Army vice-chief of staff in January, 1973, three months before he joined Nixon's White House staff.

Haig responsible for Ford decision

(c) New York Times Service
SANTA CLLEMENTE, Calif. — The White House Chief of Staff, Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., after having been advised of the "alarming state" of Richard M. Nixon's health, was reliably reported Monday to have persuaded President Ford to reverse his publicly stated position and grant an immediate pardon to the former president.

A longtime friend of Nixon identified General Haig as the person "primarily responsible" for the surprise pardon announced on Sept. 8 by President Ford. This friend, who is a former member of the presidential staff, is in daily touch with affairs inside the Text book dispute slows, schools reopen

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Schools reopen today in the Charleston-area after a bitter two-week dispute over textbooks that "led" Schools Superintendent Kenneth Underwood to compare the situation to living in Nazi Germany.

The protest began when schools opened Sept. 3 and Underwood said it had been "like a nightmare." He said his life had been threatened. Underwood, 46, said he does not plan to resign despite the turmoil the protest has caused to his life.

Victory gesture
AMERICAN Indian Movement (AIM) leaders Russell Means, left, and Dennis Banks raise their arms in a victory gesture after a federal judge dismissed all charges against them in St. Paul, Minn., Monday. Banks and Means were charged with five felonies each in last year's 71-day armed occupation of Wounded Knee. (UPI)

Judge releases Indian leaders

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — U.S. District Court Judge Fred Nichol — citing government misconduct — Monday dismissed all charges against Dennis Banks and Russell Means, leaders in the 71-day occupation of Wounded Knee.

"Thank God," said Means, a leader of the American Indian Movement, as he left the courtroom after more than eight months of trial. "Members of AIM believe more in the American judicial system than the government. Our treaty rights stand as we stand here."

But Nichol, who presided over the marathon trial, was hardly elated.

"This has been a bad year for justice," he said. "We thought the new President would bring about changes but this has been pretty badly blotted."

He added that he referred not only to the pardon of former President Richard Nixon but to activities of the Department of Justice.

Nichol criticized the prosecution in the long Wounded Knee trial.

He said Chief Prosecutor R.D. Hurd was guilty of errors of judgment and negligence which, he said, would not have happened had the government checked its facts half as thoroughly as the defense attorneys.

"I was ashamed the government was not represented better," he said.

Nichol said Hurd deceived the court regarding a key prosecution witness — Louis Moves Camp — when he said he knew of no more serious charge against Camp than public intoxication.

The defense claimed Moves Camp also had been charged with rape but that the FBI had persuaded local authorities not to prosecute him on that charge.

Nichol criticized the FBI in this and several other matters, saying at one point "I didn't realize the FBI was stooping so low."

Banks, 41, a Chippewa from Leech Lake, Minn., and Means, 34, an Ojibwa Sioux from Porcupine, S.D., both leaders in the American Indian Movement, were the first among more than 130 Indians to be tried in connection with last year's 71-day takeover of Wounded Knee, S.D. on the Pine Ridge Reservation.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently married. At the reception, my uncle handed me an envelope. I had no idea it was a check, but I put it in my pocket without looking at it. (There were over 300 people at the reception, and I was busy negotiating contracts.)

Before we started, for our honeymoon I opened the envelope and found a handsome check with a four-page letter of advice on how to stay happily married (This uncle and his wife had been married for 34 years.)

On our honeymoon, my wife and I composed what we thought was a very nice letter of thanks, and mailed it to my uncle and aunt.

When we returned home, we found a very angry letter from my uncle ripping me up one side and down the other for not having the "good manners" to have opened the envelope at the reception, announcing his gift and reading his letter. I was shocked!

Abby, had I opened the envelope at the reception, I wouldn't have made such an announcement.

Was I in error? If so, I will apologize.
BEWILDERED NEPHEW

Uncle wants applause

DEAR NEPHEW: It would have been improper for you to have announced your uncle's gift at the reception and an imposition on your guests. Your "apology" is quite unnecessary; but your publicity-seeking uncle owes you one.

DEAR ABBY: Ours was an office romance. Mert was in accounting and I was a secretary to the president. Maybe opposites do attract, because I'm the vivacious, outgoing, gobby type, and Mert is quiet and more introverted. I had never met a kinder, more thoughtful man.

After three years of marriage, we're having a planned baby in five months. I'm 28 and Mert is 30. Now the problem:

I plan to take a six-month leave from work to have the baby and to return to work when the baby is three months old. Mert is going to quit his office job and stay home to keep house and care for our child. He has a fantastic way with children. I don't. Mert loves cooking and housekeeping. I hate it. Mert finds office work dull and boring. I love it. I've always earned much more than Mert. Do you think this could work out? Or do you think we're crazy?
REVERSED ROLES

DEAR REVERSED: Why not? If it doesn't, you aren't married to the plan. And no, I don't think you're crazy. I think you are to be envied. Few people have the courage to thumb their noses at the rule of thumb.

DEAR ABBY: I read a claim of psychologists that the average person tells about 1,000 lies per year. Is that true?
DESIRES PROOF

DEAR DESIRES: What "psychologists"? Reliable statistics for such a study could be acquired only by taping every word uttered in one year by an "average" person (and there's another trap for you—what's to define who is average?) and then separating the truth from the lies. I doubt that such was ever made. Moral: Don't believe everything you read.

CONFIDENTIAL TO KEEPING MUM IN CONNECTICUT: You may mean well, but you're making no progress toward a better relationship. "Speech is civilization itself. The word—even the most contradictory word—preserves contact. It is silence which isolates." (Thomas Mann)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

The other declarer studied that queen play for a long time. He had heard about safety plays and maybe that queen was a genuine singleton. He led a low trump toward dummy. East took his jack of trumps and led back a diamond. A third diamond was ruffed and thus South had lost his contract, his temper and his partner's confidence.

A three n trump contract is preferable to four hearts, but little old ladies like to take one another. So do some other players. So when today's hand was played in a Swiss team, both the LOLs and their opponents reached four hearts.

The three of diamonds was led at both tables and East's king fell to South's ace. The ace of hearts was led and both East players dropped the queen. This didn't disturb the LOL declarer. The little old lady technique pays no attention to possible bad trump

Shoshone ceremony unites area couple

DIETRICH — Carimen Stoker, and Gary McCowan were married in an evening ceremony Aug. 24 at the Shoshone LDS Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stoker, and the parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McCowan-All-Dietrich.

Bishop Roy Hubert conducted the double ring ceremony.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a floor-length gown of silk organza with front and back inserts of Chantilly lace. The gown had a chapel-length train. The dress featured full sleeves of Chantilly lace with cuffs to the elbow and a sashina neckline of lace.

The bride's waist-length mantilla of Chantilly lace was a gift from a cousin in Spain. She carried a cascade bouquet of Waburn Abney roses with stephanotis and baby's breath with mint green streamers. She wore a single strand of pearls.

Patricia Wells Roberts, sister of the bride, maid of honor, Mild of Hogan Jones Debra Astle, bridesmaids were Cindy Jones and Rawna Berrett, both Roberts, and Rose Ann McCowan, sister of the bridegroom. Kim McCowan, cousin of the bridegroom, was flower girl.

Kenneth Meservy was best man. Ushers were William Bingham, Craig Sorenson.

Randy McCowan and Steve Davis, flowerboys were Wade Wells, nephew of the bride, and Craig Stubbs, cousin of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Jeff Stoker was acoustical artist, and Mrs. Barry Bines, cousin of the bride, was soloist.

The bridal party received guests before a mini green backdrop flanked by wagon wheels decorated with daisies and baskets of orange gladioli and Spider chrysanthemums. That color scheme was maintained throughout the reception.

Ruth Stoker, sister-in-law of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

The four-tiered wedding cake was decorated with miniature horse shoes and yellow and orange daisies. A miniature bride couple with a spray of daisies was placed on top of the cake. The cake was made and decorated by Mary Hurrell.

Mrs. Carl Barr, aunt of the bride, cut and served the cake. Mrs. Creighton Kelly, aunt of the bride, assisted by Vickie Dixon, Regina Sorenson and Julie Jensen, served punch. Teresa Sorenson, Cindy Dixon and Janet Lee assisted in the kitchen.

Galen Wells, nephew of the bride, Guy Stubbs and Kristy McCowan, consins of the bridegroom, were gift bearers. Christy Arrington, Brenda Astle and Sherrie Aspbaker arranged the gifts.

Special guests were Maria Gorostiza, Shoshone, grandmother of the bride, and Eunice Harrison, grandmother of the bridegroom. Guests attended from Salt Lake City and Provo, Utah, Roberts, Idaho Falls, Nampa, Boise, Homedale, Rupert, Buhl, Sun Valley, Pocatello and Lewisville.

After a honeymoon trip to Yellowstone National Park, the couple resides in Dietrich where the bridegroom is engaged in farming.

No ordinary animal

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — It was no ordinary animal sitting on Mrs. Peter Taylor's front porch Sunday. It was a 700-pound tiger.

A spokesman for the Department of Animal Regulation said the tiger, which had been defanged and de-clawed and used in several television commercials, was apparently let loose by some children.

The owner, who lives in Bel Air, had brought the animal to a friend's house near the Taylor residence, when it wandered away.

The owner was cited for not keeping the tiger out of the city limits.

A Lovelier You WHAT BOYS NOTICE ABOUT GIRLS

By Mary Sue Miller

Are you aware that boys rate a pleasant personality as a first asset wanted of a date? Numerous polls show that boys give top place to the quality of the personality.

And the boys you would like to know have a clear idea about what they consider a pleasant personality to be. Heading the list is attractiveness as expressed in terms of neat, natural good looks. Not beauty per se, much less way-out getups.

Next on the list come attractive manners—the kind of politeness and thoughtfulness that, for example, results in a girl's temper and his partner's confidence.

making a spectacle of herself or from a raid on his purse. Furthermore, the male has a high regard for the female's intelligence, for she understands his interests and opinions. Of course she is able to throw some ideas of her own into a conversation.

She's about perfect when, with everything else, she's fun to be with and when she has a sense of humor. Obviously, from the male viewpoint, a pleasing personality is made up of many qualities other than mere prettiness. There's many a rather plain girl who is so nice to be with that everyone thinks she's beautiful. On this point even women's lib agrees.

Winning characteristics are a matter of cultivation. No one is born with them. You never heard of a baby born neat or polite. Assets are developed step by step. Practice makes perfect.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day and evening to spend as much time as possible obtaining tests and figures pertaining to personal responsibilities. Launch a campaign of action to achieve your cherished aims. Handle wisely all debts to others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make better arrangements so that association affairs will work out more smoothly. Try to please your mate and get better results.

TAURUS (Apr. 16 to May 20) A good day to arrange meeting with associates and come to the right decisions. Study your problems well and handle them intelligently.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Duties ahead of you require that you schedule your hours well. Take treatments that will make you a more dynamic person. Be poised.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) While improving daily duties, think of the amusement you want in the evening. A gift to loved one will bring great rapport.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Give your home the full attention it needs at this time. Understand better what family members desire of you. Try to please them more.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can improve daily routines by getting down to facts and figures. Give good suggestions to associates so they can make gains.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can now make better plans regarding your personal finances. Talk with an expert about ways to increase your present income.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Health and health treatments now will make you more dynamic and charming. Avoid one who is in variance with the truth. Be honest.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study those secret affairs and know the best way to handle them. Become more interested in your mate's views. Be cheerful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Much can be learned from friends if you arrange to get together with them. Attend group meeting and get fine results. Be wise.

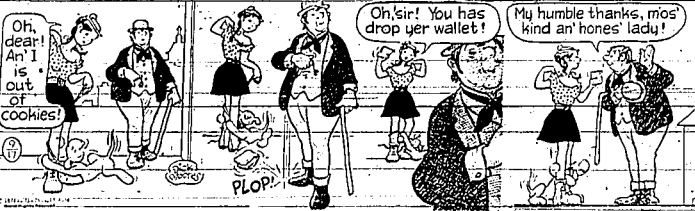

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have many obligations to attend, be sure to doublecheck with higher-ups so you don't make mistakes. Don't lose your poise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have a new outlet that needs further study before you can make a success of it. Follow intuitive promptings which are accurate now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to know what is going on and you would be wise to explain moral matters early and how to avoid getting into trouble. Otherwise, your progeny could be easily influenced by the wrong persons and spend the fine promise here. Ideal chart for the investigator and laboratory technician.

Question arises repeatedly as to which is the more intelligent, men or women? Works like this: More women than men reach the average IQ level and a little above. But far more men than women rise to the supernormal levels, bright, brilliant and genius. And far more men than women remain stuck in the subnormal levels, which carry numerous derogatory labels. Because of the foregoing, women as a group are described by the psychologists as more intelligent than men as a group.

EEL Customary Christmas Eve dish in Italy is roast eel. Matter of fact, eel is pretty popular worldwide. The Japanese like it broiled on rice. Germans eat it smoked. Some Englishers fry it. And there is a tradition among French gourmets that an eel must not be killed in any usual manner, but must be drowned in wine before it's cooked. That's humane, even so, after giving it some thought, I've decided not to order eel, not soon anyway.

MAJOR HOOPLE

Lemhi eyes bids

SALMON—The Lemhi County Commission has given the go-ahead for construction of an addition to the Lemhi County Courthouse. Bids are to be asked shortly.

Charles Kane Sr., commission chairman, advised that Jack White, architect from Idaho Falls, had presented a modified plan to the commissioners at their meeting Monday.

Rising construction costs have caused a modification of the original plans for the structure.

The commission plans to go ahead and advertise for bids but actual construction is not expected to begin until next spring, Kane said.

Planned is a one-story concrete block structure addition to the courthouse. The structure will house a new jail and offices for the sheriff, chief of police and police dispatcher to serve both agencies.

Kane said that plans call for having a dispatcher on duty 24 hours-a-day-to-serve-both-the-county-and-city-and-will-include fire and ambulance service.

The old jail, which has been closed for some time, will be renovated for use as a women's facility.

The addition is estimated to cost $333,000.

In other action, the commission set the 1974 tax levies. Kane said the total tax levies will be down somewhat while the assessed value will be up.

Max Voss, manager of the Association Taxpayers of Idaho, assisted the commissioners in drafting the levies.

Sheriff William Braker appeared before the commission concerning rent and wages.

A request for $200 per month house rent, retroactive for six months, was turned down. The salary of the deputy sheriff was set at $650 a month, comparable to the city police wage.

The commissioners also requested the sheriff to keep the sheriff's office open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Lemhi tax levy reduced

SALMON—Lemhi County's 1974 tax levy has been reduced by the County Commission, setting it at $2.25 per hundred dollars of assessed valuation, compared with $2.61 per hundred in 1973.

The reduction results from funds appropriated by the legislature to enable reduction of the county school levy better than that.

The City of Salmon tax levy remains the same at $4.45 per hundred as does "leader's" $1.40 per hundred.

The commissioners also established to provide for solid waste disposal. That was set at 20 cents per hundred dollars, the maximum permitted.

The commissioners increased the current expense levy of the county five cents per hundred, the weed control levy by one cent per hundred, and the fire levy by one cent and Steele Memorial Hospital by five cents.

The various levies for school districts include:

Salmon: $1.16 per hundred compared with $1.25 last year; Leader: $1.47 compared with $1.49 last year; Challis: $1.74 compared with $1.83 last year.

These reductions result from the equalization levy.

Park notes first snow

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK (UPI)—Yellowstone Park has its first snow of the year over the weekend and park officials said preparations for winter closing were being made.

Roads will be kept open until Oct. 31, except for possibly temporary closures forced by bad weather.

Visitors were warned to take cold weather gear when traveling through the park, that the chain saws were needed and tourists should call the park for travel information as winter approaches.

US grain export reports due daily now

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To prevent depletion of U.S. agricultural supplies, large exports of wheat and certain other products must be reported daily to the U.S. Government, beginning this week. But officials concede the program contains some loopholes.

Exporters must give daily notification on contracts for 100,000 tons or more of wheat, corn, grain sorghum, soybeans or soybean meal. Penalties include fines up to $25,000 or up to one year in jail for "knowing" violations.

But there is nothing in the regulations, officials said in weekend interviews, to prevent a foreign buyer or an exporter desiring a few extra days of secrecy from signing two 50,000-ton contracts on successive days.

Neither is the re anything to prevent a buyer from splitting a big order into several under 100,000 ton deals and dividing them among several export traders.

According to the regulations, transactions under 100,000 tons made with any trader on any one business day need not be included in the daily reports. They may be held for inclusion in an annual existing program of weekly reports which will be continued as usual.

The new daily reporting system was announced Friday after weeks of confusion and conflicting reports over the Agriculture Department's plans, to satisfy heavy pressure from lawmakers, including Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

With grain supplies cut by drought this year, Talmadge and others demanded closer government monitoring of the export flow to make sure the regulations were drawn as tightly as possible. They require, for example, reporting of any "sale or sales" to any single destination on any day adding up to 100,000 tons. This, a foreign country placing two 50,000-ton orders with one firm on the same day would find its deal reported. All sales to unspecified destinations will be lumped into single units for reporting purposes.

Cheaper meat due in marts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Retailers are watching to see how the public accepts baby beef that goes on sale this week. The meat is cheaper, but the taste is different.

Baby beef is expected to retail for eight to 10 cents a pound less than mature beef because the animals are not given expensive feed grains.

Baby beef animals are reared on a diet of milk and grass until they reach about 100 pounds, while mature beef animals are fed grain in feedlots until they weigh 1,000 pounds or more.

But the lack of grains in the diet reduces fat and may affect the flavor and juiciness of the meat, said Leon Dillenbery of the Bay Area Grocers' Association.

"I'm sure there's nothing at all wrong with it," he said. "The taste is somewhere in its own niche. I think we've got to let people come by themselves to the taste of it."

New crop level bean mart goal

TWIN FALLS — Dry edible bean markets continued to seek new crop price levels, reports the Bean Market News Sept. 11.

Available supplies increased as the harvest progressed, but buyers were cautious. Farmers were reluctant sellers in most areas as current farm bids were under their expectations, the report states.

In pinto trading, prices decreased slightly with supplies more readily available and catching up with trade requirements.

Markets for great norths were firm, but demand for pinks and small reds was nearly non-existent.

Grower prices for pinto were as follows for this week and last week: Northern Colorado, $24-$25, $25; Southern Colorado, $25, no quote; Western Slope Colorado, $25, no quote; southwest corner Colorado, $25-$26, no quote; Nebraska, $25, no quote; east Wyoming, $24, $25; north Wyoming — South, Montana, $24, $25; Washington, $25-$26, no quote; south Idaho, $24-$25, $25-$26, Kansas $25.

Grower prices for great norths were as follows for this week and last week: Nebraska, $21-$22, $21-$22; Wyoming, $21, $21; Idaho, $20, $21, $20, north Wyoming, no quote, $20, $20; south Montana, no quote either week.

Reds, dull trading reported from lack of interest: Idaho no quote; Washington, no quote. There was light cash selling in pinks, Idaho quoted at $20 and Washington no quote.

Dealer selling prices were as follows for pinks, last week and this week: Northern Colorado, $20-$23, $21-$25; southern Colorado, $20, no quote; western slope Colorado, $20-$20, no quote; southwest corner Colorado, $20-$20, no quote; southern Idaho, $20-$20, $20-$25, western Nebraska, $27.50-$29, no quote; eastern and northern Wyoming, southern Montana and North Dakota, no quote either week; Washington, $20-$20, no quote.

Great Northern dealer selling prices were: western Nebraska, $25-$26, no quote; eastern Wyoming, no quote either week; southern Idaho, $25-$26, $26-$28; northern Wyoming and southern Montana, no quote either week.

Dealer selling prices for small reds and pinks were as follows for this week and last: Idaho reds, $26-$28, no quote; Washington reds, $25-$30, no quote; Idaho pinks, $25-$26, $24.50-$25; Washington pinks $23.50-$25, no quote.

Dealer selling prices for other classes were as follows this week and last: California baby limas, $21.50-$22, $23.50-$25; large limas, $17-$18, $18; black, $15.50-$16, $15.50-$16; pinks, $29-$30, $29-$31; small whites, no supplies; light-red kidneys, $30-$32, $31-$32.

Soviet sugar output rises

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet refineries are expected to produce 10 million tons of sugar from beets in the new season, according to the weekly publication, Agra Europe.

This is 1.5 million tons more than in the previous year, the publication claims.

Production will already total some 6.72 million tons in the second half of this year, against 4.43 million in the first six months of the previous year.

Agra Europe states that the current five year plan, puts sugar production from domestic and imported raw materials at 12 million tons in 1974. This would mean that imports of raw sugar from Cuba, which had fallen from 3 million tons in 1970 to 1.1 million in 1972, would increase again to some 2 million tons.

The beet factories in the USSR have to deliver at least 80 million tons this year, 10.5 million more than last year. The quota will be met chiefly by means of 30 million tons from the Russian federation and 49 million from the Ukraine.

This year, the beet area of 3.50 million hectares (8.65 million acres) was extended only slightly by 20,000 hectares (49,130 acres).

Few horses rounded up in Oregon

BIENS, Ore. (UPI) — The Big Bureau of Land Management wild horse roundup on Steens Mountain near here Sunday netted only 10 per cent of the hoped for goal of 70 horses.

The BLM hopes to thin the 100-horse Kiger Gorge wild horse herd by rounding up 70 of the horses to private citizens who would like to care for a wild horse. Only 200 applications for the 70 horses were received.

BLM personnel will remain on the range throughout the week to attempt and roundup the remaining horses. Sunday's catch amounted to seven horses.

The BLM said part of the range is privately owned and in the process of being fenced. BLM officials said the remaining range cannot support the herd and wildlife.

Apple suit looms

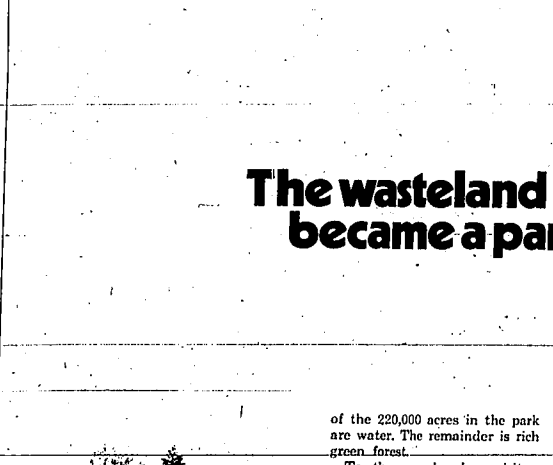

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI) — State Atty. Gen. Slade Gorton may file a federal suit against North Carolina because of restrictions preventing the sale of Washington apples in that state.

Gorton said Washington changed its apple grading system to conform to federal standards but that was not enough to ease North Carolina to change a state law preventing the importation of apples not graded under the federal system.

"If North Carolina does not withdraw this interference with the right of the state of Washington to market apples in North Carolina of Washington state grades, we plan to bring a federal court action... alleging that their restrictions are a violation of the commerce clause of the United States constitution," the attorney general said.

Gorton asserted the North Carolina law violates provisions for free trade between the states.

The wasteland that became a park.

of the 220,000 acres in the park are water. The remainder is rich green forest.

To the casual urban visitor, Voyageurs National Park seems an untouched, virgin land, far removed from the influences of man.

And that's dead wrong.

Over two-thirds of the Kabetogama Peninsula, the heartland of the park, was an industrial tree farm until a couple of years ago — owned and managed for timber production and public recreation by Boise Cascade Corporation. There's little, if any, virgin forest. Virtually all of the land has been harvested once. Most of it twice. Some of it is third-growth, large enough now for commercial use.

Twenty-five years ago the company saw the scenic and historical value of the property and offered to trade it for state-owned land elsewhere. But public opinion killed the offer, labeling the peninsula a "worthless rockpile."

Boise Cascade's foresters thought otherwise, and by patient application of forest programs, brought the land back to useful life, all the while keeping it open for camping, winter sports, hunting and fishing by the public.

The forest cycle is regular and predictable — one generation of trees follows the next in orderly succession.

Sometimes even barren wasteland can be coaxed into bloom — simply by knowing when and where to give Mother Nature a helping hand.

Take the Voyageurs National Park, being formed in Minnesota, for example.

Today, it's a surpassingly beautiful region. Ancient rock outcroppings, exposed to the bright Minnesota sun, dozens of clear, blue lakes — something like 8,000

Wheat mart posts gain

DENVER (UPI) — Trading on the wheat market closed mostly four to five cents higher per bushel for the first week of September, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reports.

Cash bids closed mixed, ranging from five cents lower to 10 cents higher, but mostly four to five cents higher per bushel.

In Denver a bushel of ordinary wheel sold for $3.75 to $3.80, up from $3.70 the previous week. Last year ordinary wheel sold at $4.25 to $4.35 in Denver.

Fund demand great

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The World Bank says it may not be able to accommodate the needs of developing countries during the remainder of the decade.

A Bank report, released Sunday, noted that "without a major effort by the international community, 800 million people around the world can expect almost no improvement in their conditions of life for the rest of the decade."

The World Bank group, which includes the bank and two sister organizations, the International Development Association (IDA) and the International Finance Corporation (IFC), approved lending and investment totaling $1.57 billion, up $82 million from the year earlier.

The Bank report said the fiscal year was "marked by a major setback in global economic relationships."
