Terrorists surrender in Syria

By United Press International
The three Japanese gunmen who occupied the French Embassy in The Hague for five days surrendered today in Damascus with a $300,000 ransom and a Japanese Red Army companion their five-day siege rescued from a French jail.
Newsmen at the airport saw the four Japanese walk down the steps of the plane to be greeted by Palestinian guerrillas. The Syrian government had been reported willing to permit them to surrender to the Palestinians for transportation to a country of their choice.

Recovering

NEW YORK (UPI) — Band leader Lionel Hampton, 61, was listed in satisfactory condition at Mt. Sinai Hospital today after surgery.
Hampton was operated on for about two hours Tuesday to arrest massive internal bleeding which led to his hospitalization a week ago. His physician said tests had ruled out a malignancy.

Rupert bars farm animals in city

RUPERT — An ordinance prohibiting farm animals or small lots inside the Rupert city limits was introduced Tuesday at the City Council meeting.
An exception would be made for people who have at least a half-acre of pasture land. Two animals per half-acre would be permitted.
Violators could be fined $100 or jailed for five days. City attorney Bill Goodman said the city had been plagued with hordes of goats in several neighborhoods.

Parole due

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — L. Ewing Scott, 78, convicted in 1957 of murdering his socialite wife to gain control of her estate, will be released on parole Nov. 1 from San Quentin Prison.
A state official said Scott will work at a private residential facility after his release. There were also reports Scott has applied for residence at an exclusive club in Los Angeles but would not be accepted.

Space center chief Debus retires

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Space pioneer Dr. Kurt Debus made a surprise announcement today that he was resigning as director of the Kennedy Space Center to take an early retirement.
Debus, 65, made the surprise announcement over the public address system at the moon port shortly after he arrived at his office today.

Kay set free

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Relaxed and smiling, Emet Kay, last known American prisoner of War in Indochina, was reunited with his wife here today following his release by the Pathet Lao.
Kay, 47, a civilian pilot forced down in Communist territory 16 months ago, said there are no other Americans being held prisoner in Indochina to his knowledge.

British election called Oct. 10

LONDON (Chicago Daily News) — Britain will hold another general election on Oct. 10, its second this year.
Less than seven months after returning to power, Prime Minister Harold Wilson announced the new election date today as the country flourished through its deepest post-war economic crisis.
Wilson and the ruling Labor Party were pushed into going to the voters again because they failed to gain an over-all majority in Parliament at the last election on Feb. 28 and the shaky political grip has resulted in a paralyzed government.

Conferees cut US defense bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate-House conferees have agreed to slice $4.4 billion from the administration's proposed 1975 defense appropriations bill. The measure was sent back today to the full Senate and House for final approval.
The $2.6 billion bill includes some funds trimmed earlier from Pentagon projects including $220.5 million for 12 F111 fighters for the Air Force, Military assistance to South Vietnam was slashed in half.

Ford pledges US aid to hungry

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — In the first major foreign policy statement of his administration, President Ford today promised the United Nations General Assembly the United States "will substantially increase" its commitment to aid the world's hungry.
In an address prepared for delivery at noon, Ford proclaimed U.S. willingness to "respond to human emergencies" by spending more this year on food for peace relief programs, by expanding assistance to agricultural development programs in poor countries and by cooperation in an international food reserve system.
At the same time, in a reflection of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's known sentiments, Ford reminded newly rich oil nations of their own responsibilities in a world beset by economic perils.

"The United States recognizes the special responsibility we bear as the world's largest producer of food," Ford declared, adding pointedly, "It has not been our policy to use food as a political weapon despite the oil embargo and recent oil price and production decisions."
"Now is the time for oil producers to define their conception of a global policy on energy to meet the growing need," Ford said. He warned that U.S. largesse could not be taken for granted forever. "As new economic forces alter and reshape today's complex world, no single nation can be expected to feed all of the world's hungry people," he said.
Ford gave no details in dollars and cents of the expanded U.S. commitment to international food aid. But sources in the government indicated it would amount at the least, to a decision to add $100 to $500 million to the $900 million already requested, from Congress for food for peace programs.

The continuing U.S. leadership in the growing worldwide food shortage was proclaimed last year in Kissinger's own maiden speech to the U.N., Ford noted, when the newly-installed secretary of state proposed a world food conference "to define a global food policy."
That conference to be held under U.N.

auspices, now is scheduled to begin in November, in Rome where the full details of the administration's commitment are to be spelled out by Kissinger.
Ford's address contained repeated evidence of Kissinger's imprint on the foreign policy of the new administration.
Opening the speech with the traditional U.N. homily to universal "peace and cooperation," Ford pledged a continuity of such familiar Nixon administration themes as East-West détente, rapprochement with mainland China and redefined relations with existing western alliances.

Partial SV sale talks proceeding

By BART QUESNEEL
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — Johns Manville is trying to buy portions of the famed resort here from Sun Valley Co.
Ed Ettinger, chairman of the "board of recreation" for Johns Manville Co., said Tuesday negotiations are proceeding and talks "have worked out smoothly so far."
Ettinger said he would be in Sun Valley today meeting with Sun Valley Co. President Bill Janss. A brief statement will be issued today after talks confirming the negotiations and implications, according to Ettinger.

Janss said reports that the company is trying to buy all of Sun Valley are incorrect. He said negotiations are proceeding on the Challenger Inn and Sun Valley Lodge and land between the lodge and the stable.
"There has been absolutely no discussion on the ski lifts," Janss said.
Village Property Management, VPM owned by Sun Valley Co., will also be discussed, Janss said. He would not confirm the company intentions to buy the condominium units operated by VPA which are scattered throughout Sun Valley.
However, Janss said Johns Manville would probably want to use the reservations system located in the lodge to fill up as many units in Sun Valley as possible.

"According to Janss, 'a deal is not close.'"
"There is absolutely no deal made yet," Janss said.

He said he would consider the sale of portions of the resort only if the management of the resort was better. He said Sun Valley has had a conflict in some real estate sales and the new company may be good for the resort.
The Sun Valley resort opened in December, 1936, the brain child of Averill Harriman, then chairman of the board of Union Pacific Railroad.
The site was selected by Harriman's emissary, Count Felix Schafgotsch, who rejected many places now considered to be too windy, cold or remote.

During World War II the resort was a rehabilitation hospital for the Navy. The railroad sold the resort to the Janss Corp. in 1963. Five years later Bill Janss bought out his company's interest, becoming sole owner.
According to Janss Johns Manville is expected to move ahead with the "Bluffs Project" which had been on the Sun Valley drawing board for some time.
The project would build condominiums stretching from the rear of the Sun Valley Lodge to the Sun Valley Stables, about one fourth mile. Johns Manville has pretty well decided what it wants, according to Janss. Talks began as long as five years ago, he said, when the company told Janss it wanted to buy parts of the area.

Oil imports, takeovers deepen US trade deficit

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — The United States balance of payments were in a deficit of $2.74 billion in the second quarter, the Commerce Department said today.

This was in contrast to a surplus of $1.78 billion in the first quarter of the year. There was a deficit of $896 million for all of 1973.

The figures, which are adjusted to discount seasonal influences, are far the basic balance of payments — recording transactions in merchandise trade, services, remittances and flows of long-term capital for investment and other purposes.

This generally is considered the most significant measure of U.S. international transactions. Broader measures of the balance of payments also record flows of short-term capital which tend to be erratic.

Within the basic account, the United States had a deficit of $122 million on goods and services in the second quarter, compared with a surplus of $2.92 billion in the first quarter. The deterioration was caused mainly by a surge in oil import costs and a decline in investment income resulting from a take-over of U.S. oil properties in the Middle East.

The long-term capital account was in deficit by $1.15 billion in the second quarter, compared with a surplus of $466 million in the first quarter.

Jerome sells school bonds

TWIN FALLS — Despite a national money shortage the Jerome schools Monday received two loan offers to build a new high school.
The Jerome trustees accepted an offer to loan the district $3.1 million at a 6.99 per cent interest rate.

Just the day before the Wendell School district had tried to borrow $305,000 for school construction, but had received no offers.

The low interest rate offer to the Jerome schools was made in a joint bid by the Idaho First National Bank and the First Security Bank.
The only other bid, of 7.07 per cent interest, was received from the Bank of Idaho.

Dave Landers, fiscal agent for First Security Bank, said following the meetings he felt it was a good rate for the school, based on market conditions now, the rate is low compared to a national level.

Power firm disputes US agency's rate hike claim

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer
BOISE — Idaho Power Co. should receive almost none of its proposed rate increases for 1974, the U.S. General Services Administration, said in a brief this summer.
Idaho Power officials today disputed the federal claim.
Arguing on behalf of all federal agencies using Idaho Power electricity GSA attorney John Hewins stated in a brief filed this summer with the Idaho Public Utilities Commission that the power company should receive only $115,000 in additional gross revenues during 1974. That would give an across-the-board rate increase of only 0.15 per cent.

Citing increased costs and new plant investment, Idaho Power had requested the IPUC to grant a 1.8 per cent general rate increase last January. The increase would have brought an additional $9.7 in revenues to the company.
The commission still has not decided on the proposed rate increase.
The GSA's main argument was that the Jim Bridger coal-fired power plant production will not serve Idahoans in 1974 and should not be considered part of the company's total plant investment this year. Utilities are granted a return on total plant investment.
But James Bruce, Idaho Power president, said this morning that the Bridger plant is now supplying more than 25 per cent of Idaho's load

Idaho Power may refuse more money for AF Dam

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho Power Co. is apparently ready to reject proposals that it offer more money for construction of a new American Falls Dam.
"The firm's current offer of $19.55 million is the 'way best' possible, according to Robert Hogg, the Idaho Power consultant who masterminded the company's participation in the project."
"We have stood by that offer in spite of increases that have occurred in interest rates and construction costs," Hogg told the Times-News Tuesday.
Hogg was vice president of the power company before his recent retirement. The firm has retained him as a consultant.
"American Falls Reservoir spaceholders last week appointed a six-man negotiating committee to try to squeeze more money out of Idaho Power. Several spaceholders, most of them from the upper reaches of the Snake River in eastern Idaho, are dissatisfied with the power company's offer."

requirements have teamed up to double the costs — to about $40 million according to recent estimates.

The spaceholders' negotiating team reportedly will ask the power company to pay for all or part of water quality equipment at the new dam. The equipment is necessary because Idaho Power's proposed hydroelectric plant at the site will discharge water with low oxygen content, threatening fish life.

He said the firm had considered the cost of "gadgets to do the environmental thing" when it made the $19.55 million offer.

The firm's offer was calculated by comparing the cost of building a coal-fired plant with the cost of a hydroelectric plant at American Falls, according to Hogg. The $19.55 million figure represents the company's savings in opting for the hydroelectric facility, he said.

"The only reason that we thought we were able to make the offer to the irrigators is because the American Falls power plant will fit into power requirements for 1974 and 1977," Hogg said. The firm anticipated that the American Falls plant would be operable by late 1976 or early 1977, he said.

When replacement of the dam with private funds was conceived, Idaho Power's offer of $19.55 million would have covered nearly all construction costs.
But inflation and environmental protection and should be considered a plant investment.

Citing Idaho Supreme Court decision, Hewins maintained that a utility's property must be "used and useful" to its consumers to be considered plant investment in determining return.

Since it would not be in operation until September, Idaho Power's request to include $81.9 million in Bridger plant investment for the second half of 1974 means the power company would "receive a windfall of at least $50,000 for each month after June 30 during which the plant is not in operation," he said. If the proposed 8.06 per cent rate of return is applied, he said.
Even when in production, Hewins maintained the plant would not serve Idaho rate payers in 1974 and therefore should not be included in the rate base at all this year. "The power, he said, would be exported to other utilities."

The attorney also cited a $14 million power line which was not in operation at all in 1973 even though included in the rate base. Since the line comes from the Bridger plant, which will not serve Idaho in 1974, this line should be removed from figuring the rate base this year, he maintained.
At the power company's reported 7.24 per cent rate of return in 1973, the $14 million unused transmission line would have brought in more than $1 million in revenues, that year.

Ford pledges US aid to world's hungry

Ford also pledged renewed U.S. efforts to "heal old wounds we opened in recent conflicts in Cyprus, the Middle East and Indochina."

But the main message of the speech was plainly addressed to the third world — the poorer nations of the post-colonial era and the newly powerful oil producers.

Here again the speech was interlarded with some of Kissinger's favorite phrases and concepts: economic interdependence, cooperation instead of confrontation, an exhortation to abjure short-term selfish advantage in favor of the general economic well-being of the whole world.

In post-colonial Africa, Ford said, "behavior appropriate to an era of dependence must give way to the new responsibilities of interdependence."

In a time of worldwide economic stress, he went on, "We are all part of one economic system," in which "the food and oil crises demonstrate the extent of our interdependence."

"Many developing nations need the food surplus of a few developed nations. And many industrialized nations need the oil production of a few developing nations," he said.

Despite the rhetorical flourishes, the announcement of an expanded U.S. commitment to global food policy plainly was the focus of the speech. It contained three major points:

First, crisis management or emergency food aid to alleviate famine. Experts in Congress and in the administration calculate that the 900 million budget request for food for peace programs earlier this year will have to expand to $1.4 billion to supply the same amount of grain at today's skyrocketing prices — some 300 million bushels of wheat at the current market price.

A debate has raged among the State, Treasury and Commerce Departments and the budget-making establishment whether to expand the food aid allocation at a time of budgetary restraint. By late Tuesday, it appeared the expansionists had the upper hand.

Second, long-term planning programs to provide technical aid, machinery and fertilizer to developing countries in the hope they can someday grow enough to feed their people. Here again, expansionists have won at least a temporary victory, with a proposal now before Congress to increase from double an earlier budget request for aid in this category from $285 million to $675 million.

Third, intermediate planning, or cooperation in a worldwide food reserve program. The reserve strategy is still in dispute, with the foreign policy establishment.

Envoy, hostages starved

THE HAGUE (UPI)—Count Jacques Senechal, 51, the French ambassador, said today the three Japanese Red Army guerrillas who seized his office last Friday starved him and other hostages and kept them at gunpoint throughout the siege.

He said they used his office as a shooting range in an effort to intimidate him and eight other male hostages held for four days in the French Embassy here to gain the release of a comrade jailed in Paris.

"I counted 21 bullet holes in my office," he told newsmen today at a press conference in the living room of his residence. "There even was a bullet hole in a portrait of the late President Pompidou."

The ambassador looked spruce and fit although he said he had been held without food for 60 hours.

Hygienic conditions were detectable, he said.

The Japanese released two women hostages Monday but kept the ambassador and eight other men until they were exchanged late Tuesday for the jailed Japanese who had been brought from Paris, $300,000 ransom, and an Alip France Boeing 707 to fly the Red Army members to the Middle East.

As he spoke of the hygienic conditions a look of extreme distaste on his face said more than words about the experience of being cooped up in one room for four days with eight other persons.

He gave no details but Dutch authorities said the hostages had not even been allowed to leave the ambassador's office to go to the toilet.

The ambassador described the three gunmen as well trained guerrillas and tough negotiators.

Quiet period

"I was not in doubt for a moment that they would kill us if they did not achieve their aim," he said. "I am still a bit nervous."

"We were under both physical and moral stress," he said, "but I think that all of us came out of it comparatively well."

He smiled when he said that. "The conditions of detention were very hard," he said. "We spent five days under the constant menace of revolvers. We constantly had a gun leveled at us. We got used to it, but it wasn't a very pleasant situation."

HOLDING THE LINE AGAINST INFLATION

It isn't easy. As you know, the present inflationary spiral has swept up virtually every segment of the economy.

But ours is a very special business. We must be here to serve regardless of what happens in ordinary pursuits. That's why we're holding our price like as much as we possibly can — to think of service first, price second.

Food costs on upswing

By JOHN LESAR
United Press International
Food prices, prodded by spring floods and summer droughts in crop-producing areas, are on the upswing once again, and grocers warn that they may reach new heights within the next six months.

"Prices have been roller-coasting in the past few months, but the trend is definitely upward on almost everything," one Chicago area grocery chain spokesman said. "And the major shortages caused by the drought haven't hit yet. When they do, I think we'll be in for some really sharp increases."

Mack James, owner of Mack's Big Star supermarkets at Marion, Ill., and Carbondale, Ill., said beef and pork prices have been up and down during the past six months but generally have maintained the same price levels as six months ago. However, he predicted an increase.

"I think you will see meat go up this fall if we have these grain shortages," he said.

James said produce prices have decreased as local crops arrive at market, but other prices were up.

"Groceries are up — margarine, salad dressing, coffee, and so on — as a result of dealings in futures. I think groceries will go up for six months and then hold or maybe drop," James said.

In the Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn., area, a local grocer said men could see no major effect of the summer drought on meat prices, but said the biggest impact had been on corn and tomatoes.

"Corn has been bad all year," a Red Owl store spokesman said. "Prices never came down. We never got anything of decent quantity and the quantity was not there either. We never had a sale."

Another Minneapolis area produce man said stores could not have the usual summer sales on tomatoes because they were hard to get.

Pittsburgh area grocers surveyed said the largest price jumps in the past six months have been in food products containing oil, such as margarine, cooking and salad oils.

"Prices on these items have skyrocketed during the past few months and they may go higher before this ends," one Pittsburgh chain store spokesman said.

Bread prices generally were up over the past six months, though they remained stable in some areas.

In the Los Angeles area, bread was up an average of 5 cents a loaf over prices of six months ago. The same increases were evident in Chicago and Atlanta.

Meat prices varied.

In Chicago, beef prices were up with increases ranging from 9 to 20 cents a pound, though round steak remained stable at $1.39 a pound. Chicken was up 5 cents a pound over prices of six months ago.

In the San Francisco Bay area, whole frying chickens were up by 16 cents a pound, and roasters jumped from 9 cents a pound to two benches for 39 cents. Round steak in the Bay Area stores was up 19 cents a pound and the price of margarine nearly doubled, going from 39 cents a pound to 65 cents.

TWIN FALLS — Pert and pretty Miss Idaho Teen-Ager, Pam Nielsen, just returned from the national pageant in Atlanta, Ga., where she walked away with the Miss Citizenship Award, and several other distinguished prizes.

The citizenship award is given to the teen-ager judged the most active in school, church, club and community activities and still able to retain the highest grade point average.

Miss Nielsen, a senior at Twin Falls High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Nielsen.

She participated in the Miss Idaho Teen-Age Pageant March 31 at the Holiday Inn, Twin Falls, stepping out with top honors after competing with other candidates from throughout the state, judges based their selection on scholastic achievement, leadership, poise, personality and beauty.

In Atlanta, Miss Nielsen was in competition with girls from every state and the District of Columbia. For her participation, she won a $450 diamond pin and a $1,000 cash scholarship to the college of her choice. She plans to use her scholarship money toward a career in special education.

As Idaho's Miss Teen-Ager, Miss Nielsen will tour schools in Idaho telling the girls about the pageant. She was guest queen in Montana prior to the national pageant and was guest of honor at the 60th anniversary banquet of Immanuel Lutheran Church along with Gov. Cecil Andrus.

Miss Nielsen has served as a Girls State delegate, was sophomore homecoming princess, junior homecoming nominee and selected best junior member of Rikee Fine Arts Academy. She belongs to many school groups and has worked as a candystriper at Magie Valley Memorial Hospital and is a member of TORCH.

When not participating in one of the above activities, Miss Nielsen works part-time modeling at the Mayfair and also as a commercial for KEEP radio.

When asked if she would enter any other pageant after being top teen-ager in the state and making such a good showing in the national competition she said she really didn't think so.

"Perhaps I will enter the Junior Miss Pageant, but I have no plans to try for Miss Twin Falls," she said.

Error discovered in land lease

By United Press International
Pleas for Idahoans to participate in the November elections and the discovery of an error in leasing 34-acre flood-down lands topped Idaho political news Tuesday.

Vernon Ravenscroft, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, said the error in drawing up leases for the state-owned lands has the federal government receiving mineral royalties from state-owned land.

Ravenscroft, after talks with officials of the Monsanto Corp., of Southeastern Idaho, said the company estimates one mine alone has paid more than $1 million to the federal government and will pay more as production in phosphate mining increases.

Ravenscroft said the mining companies pay the state to lease the land and then the state leases the mines are located, but an oversight on the part of the committee which selected the land for the Endowment Fund did not successfully negotiate the mineral rights.

Ravenscroft said the next lieutenant governor will have to carry on the negotiations necessary to resolve the problem.

Li. Gov. Jack Murphy urged Borah High School students in Boise to take part in the political process as a way to insure against Watergate-style politics.

Murphy, a Republican candidate for governor, made the comment to political science classes at the Boise school.

Ray Cox, Democratic nominee for First District Congress, criticized the 6.5 per cent of Idahoans who failed to vote in the August primary election.

Cox said it is sad that successful candidates can no longer say they have received a majority of the vote because a majority of the qualified electors of the state did not even vote.

In other political news, the chairman of the Idaho for Church Committee proposed that Idaho's public broadcasting stations sponsor and distribute a joint discussion of issues by senatorial candidates.

Chairman Carl P. Burke of Boise said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, is willing to meet his opponent for a discussion of the issues just as he has done in the past.

John Evans, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, praised the efforts of Idahoans who worked to restore rail passenger service in Southern Idaho.

Evans said the absence of the trains has put a hardship on older citizens, handicapped persons and students who commute between Pocatello and Boise and those who want transcontinental travel.

Roy Truby, Democratic candidate for state superintendent of public instruction, said Idaho voters should know the source of a candidate's contributions. If they are large or if they come from special interest groups.

TF letter gains lots of mileage

TWIN FALLS — Eight months and 16,000 miles — and it never reached the person it was intended for.

That's the saga of a business letter mailed here Jan. 24 by insurance agent Robert Van Ausdell. It was sent to a man in Elko, Nev. From there, it was forwarded Jan. 29 to an address in the Philippines.

Another postmark was stamped on the envelope May 14, along with a handwritten notation the intended recipient wasn't known in that town. So the letter started back to the United States, arriving in Twin Falls Tuesday.

It made the entire trip on an eight cent stamp — which was first class postage when the letter was mailed.

"That's a lot of mileage for eight cents," VanAusdell said.

National Merit honorees listed

EVANSTON, Ill. — Officials of the National Merit Scholarship Commission have released a list of the names of high school students who are test semifinalists.

Magie Valley area students listed include Raymond W. Sargent, Burley; Linda P. Rupperecht, Filer; James E. McKim and Darcy W. Nelson, both Rupert; Lura J. Kidner, Shoshone; Ken S. Aamodt and Kurt A. Albers, both Twin Falls.

Their election for listing as semifinalists is based on their score on the 1973 preliminary scholastic aptitude test/national merit scholarship qualifying test administered to over one million students in about 17,000 schools nationwide.

The semifinalists will compete to become finalists in competition for 3,400 merit scholarships.

Opinions vary on amnesty plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A draft evader the government didn't even know about surrendered in San Francisco under terms of President Ford's conditional amnesty. But another one, given the chance to leave jail early, saying he would accept no conditions.

Military and Justice Department information carriers received a few phone calls from evaders Tuesday, inquiring about specifics of the amnesty plan. Otherwise, there was no rush by an estimated 4,000 fugitives to turn themselves in.

The President's plan was announced Monday and denounced Tuesday by many resisters who said it was too lenient.

It did, however, mean immediate freedom for up to 95 men serving prison terms for draft resistance.

Of the 141 men in federal prison, 46 were already out on appeal or various writs, when Attorney General William B. Saxbe furloughed them Tuesday for 30 days.

One government source said, "I doubt that any will ever go back to prison again."

Bureau of Prisons spokesman Michael Aunts said the final tally of those released from the minimum security prisons, was not complete and that "about one out of five are going to be kept" in jail because of other charges.

"Most of them are in our so-called country clubs like Allenwood (Pa.) or Lompoc (Calif.)," Aunts said.

Steve Beitch of Chicago, one of four resisters in El Reno (Okla.) Federal Reformatory, refused the furlough, saying: "It is a conditional release and I will accept no conditions. I would go out in a full and unconditional release."

The military services said Tuesday they got about 40 calls from deserters or friends and relatives asking for more information on amnesty.

Justice Department reported 61 calls from resisters and deserters.

For the Vietnam period covered by the conditional amnesty, Pentagon records list 8,500 Army deserters, 2,311 for the Marines, 727 for the Navy and 416 for the Air Force. The Coast Guard lists about 45.

Deserters wishing to surrender will be processed at Ft. Benjamin Harrison in Indiana, and those now in exile in Europe can report in bases of their services in Germany for a free flight to the center, a Pentagon spokesman said.

They will not be under military jurisdiction once at Ft. Harrison and will not have to wear uniforms or cut their hair. They will be paid for the four-day stay at the rate of their last rank.

But the spokesman said that once they report to a U.S. base in Germany or to the Indiana fort, there is no turning back.

They must either pledge allegiance to the United States and agree to perform alternate service or face court-martial as a deserter.

John Barry, 22, who failed to register for the draft at age 18 as the law requires, turned himself in in San Francisco Tuesday, becoming the first to take advantage of the conditional amnesty, according to local Justice Department officials.

Ironically, the U.S. attorney to whom he surrendered did not even have Barry on his list of evaders. "Each income tax time made me more nervous," Barry said. "I just didn't want this hanging over my head."

One of half a dozen resisters released from Lompoc, Christopher J. Mueser, returned to his Novato, Calif., home Tuesday. Mueser fought and lost his claim of conscientious objection before the Supreme Court.

"The family is proud that he chose to go this way," his mother said. "I'm pleased and proud that he decided to go through the system."

JOHN BARRY seeks amnesty

Amnesty terms eyed in Sweden

Dispatch of the Times, London

STOCKHOLM — Spokesmen for American deserters and draft evaders living in Sweden said Tuesday that some — and perhaps many — would probably accept the amnesty terms announced by President Ford and return to the United States.

Mark Katz of Detroit, who has been politically active in American exile circles, said he thought that many of the approximately 400 deserters and draft evaders here may return to the United States soon, where they would take an oath of allegiance and perform a period of national service as outlined by President Ford.

"Lots of the guys who used to come to an exile center we ran in Stockholm were completely unpolitical and wanted to get back in the states under reasonable terms. For them, the Vietnam war was never an issue," Katz said.

Katz, who owns a farm, said he would not return because he thought Ford's offer was "morally degrading." But he added that the "silent majority" of exiles scattered throughout Sweden and Norway probably "want to return, particularly those who have been shattered by the exile experience."

Furloughs ordered for 95 evaders

(C) New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The government ordered today the release from prison on 30-day furloughs of approximately 95 draft evaders while the President's new clemency board reviews their cases under the conditional amnesty program. An estimated 600 convicted military deserters remained in confinement.

An initially slight response was made to the conditional amnesty offer from the thousands of draft evaders and deserters who have not been contacted. Government officials said that since the President announced the establishment of the program Monday, fewer than 100 persons have telephoned the authorities concerned for information on it and only one draft evader, a 22-year-old man in San Francisco, was reported to have surrendered to a U.S. attorney.

Carmen claims total millions

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Louisiana Insurance Commissioner Sherman Bernard says property damage claims filed as a result of Hurricane Carmen total $14.6 million. Bernard said Tuesday insurance companies had received 20,000 claims for windstorm damage amounting to $10.4 million and 1,500 flood damage claims totaling $4.2 million. Most of the claims were from property owners in the parishes of St. Martin, Vermilion, St. Mary, Lafayette, Iberia and Acadia.

Driving cut asked

CHICAGO (UPI) — Americans must cut down on their driving or face increased pollution and another fuel shortage, two top government officials have warned.

Two highly placed federal officials went before the American Automobile Association's 72nd annual convention Tuesday to present the wisdom of less automobile driving.

The alternative, as indicated by John C. Sawhill, director of the Federal Energy Administration, and environmental protection chief, Russell E. Train, could be a combination of more air pollution and another fuel shortage.

Election bankroll terms set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate-House negotiators have agreed tentatively on legislation which would bankroll Republican and Democratic candidates with $20 million each in taxpayers' subsidies beginning in 1976.

But they remained at an impasse on whether public financing of political races should be extended to include House candidates.

Representatives from the Senate and House planned to meet again later today to continue working on a compromise campaign reform package which would revitalize the financing of American politics.

At an initial meeting Tuesday, the conferees also reached agreement on limiting campaign contributions and on candidate spending.

The key stumbling block to a final compromise appeared to be the question of financing congressional elections with public funds.

Senate negotiators, meeting separately Tuesday afternoon, agreed to fight for congressional financing. Rep. Wayne Hayes, D-Ohio, leading House negotiators, said it was his understanding the provision would be dropped.

The conferees must also decide whether enforcement powers will go to an independent agency or a congressionally-appointed board of supervisors.

President Ford's position on the bill remained unclear.

In addition to providing the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates with $20 million each for the general election, the tentative agreement would give each party $2 million to stage the national conventions.

In the presidential primaries, each challenger for the nominations would first have to raise $100,000, with at least $5,000 from each of 20 states. The government, hoping to encourage a trend toward small contributions rather than large ones, would then match every donation of $250 or less.

Funds would come from the $1 checkoff on income tax returns.

DAVID BOREN — Sooner choice

No Pan-Am subsidies

(C) New York Times Service
NEW YORK — President Ford has decided against providing federal subsidies to help Pan American World Airways meet a critical cash squeeze beginning next month, government sources said today.

The decision, made at a meeting with his advisers in Washington, is expected to be announced by the White House today and elaborated on by the secretary of transportation, Claude S. Brinegar, in a news conference.

Reliable sources said a major factor in Ford's decision not to support Pan Am's request for a $102 million emergency subsidy was that he saw little hope that such payments would be approved by Congress.

Ford aide asks Henry's ouster

(C) Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — President Ford's closest confidants in Congress has called for the replacement of Henry A. Kissinger as secretary of state.

Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., whose views generally coincide with Ford's, said Kissinger's credibility has been damaged particularly after his role in ordering the Central Intelligence Agency intervention in Chile.

Quie said the public would be prepared to support Kissinger's departure through a "mid-air" of someone to replace him. Ford's transition team is known to have recommended that Kissinger be stripped of his second job as the president's national security adviser, and it is possible that his successor there will be groomed to supplant him as secretary of state.

Elliot L. Richardson, former attorney general, secretary of defense and undersecretary of state, reportedly is under consideration for the National Security Council position.

Kissinger is understood to have warned, after he was named secretary of state last year, that he would quit if the government if deprived of his original White House job as national security adviser.

The reorganization, disclosed in the Chicago Sun-Times, is designed to strengthen the NSC as a counterbalance to the State Department.

With former president Nixon grievously wounded by Watergate, Kissinger exercised a virtual monopoly in foreign policy in the final year of the last administration, and he experienced unprecedented prestige at home and abroad.

But Quie said Kissinger's reputation was tarnished by his handling of the Cyprus crisis.

No CIA ouster tie, Chile says

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Chile's military junta has denied the Central Intelligence Agency aided the armed forces in the bloody ouster of Marxist President Salvador Allende last year.

The junta press officer Federico Willoughby said Tuesday reports of clandestine CIA activities in Chile, even if true, "will have no relation with officials in the current government."

President Ford has said the Nixon administration authorized the CIA to spend $5 million in Chile between 1970 and 1973 to preserve a press and political parties opposed to the Allende regime.

Ford stressed the U.S. was not involved in the coup in which Allende and thousands of Chileans died. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was chairman of the 40 Committee, which approved the CIA funds.

"If certain clandestine activities denounced recently are effective, they would be connected with political organizations, news media and individuals, which have no relation with the actual government," Willoughby said.

In other parts of Latin America, there was little comment on the U.S. admission of intervention in the internal affairs of Chile. But the few remarks made were bitterly critical of the United States.

Oklahoma scholar triumphs

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Youthful professor and Rhodes scholar David Boren unshored cowboy congressman Clem Rogers McSpadden in the greatest voter turnout for a Democratic governor's runoff in Oklahoma history Tuesday.

"I've been backed off a bull or two, and I guess we've been backed off tonight," said McSpadden, grandnephew of humorist Will Rogers, in conceding defeat.

McSpadden, 48, pledged to support Boren in his November battle with Republican State Sen. Jim Inhofe, 39, of Tulsa.

Boren, 33, a state representative and an Oklahoma Baptist University government professor, earned the runoff spot with McSpadden in the primary three weeks ago that squelched Gov. David Hall's dream of a second term.

Complete unofficial returns early today made it 285,750 votes, or 53.5 per cent, for Boren and 248,552, or 46.5 per cent, for McSpadden.

Prior to the primary, when many observers considered Inhofe a distant dark horse, Inhofe, termed Boren his "closest friend in the House" and said if Boren became the Democratic nominee there would be few issues between them in the general election.

Former congressman Ed Edmondson defeated state Corporation Commission Chairman Charles Nesbitt in the senatorial runoff and will meet Republican Henry Belmon in November.

Angry House panel halves Nixon fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An angry House appropriations subcommittee has slashed $200,000 from President Ford's request for $250,000 to finance a former President Richard Nixon's return to private life.

The 3-member panel voted 70-19 today to cut the total spending authority for the program to $358,000 after a series of attempts to reduce the sum to a flat $200,000.

Some subcommittee members, including Rep. Tom Bevill, D-Texas, wanted to deny all funds to Nixon except his $60,000 annual presidential pension.

Chairman Tom Steed, D-Calif., said opposition to the funds was so intense within the subcommittee, it has surprised I did, as much as the committee as I did.

He said the six members who voted against the final figure wanted to reduce it further.

Ford had sought $450,000 under a presidential transition law to provide Nixon with staff assistance to help in declassifying and sorting his presidential papers and answer a mountain of mail that has come in since his resignation.

An additional $400,000 was sought under the Former Presidents law to establish and staff a full time office and provide Nixon his pension.

The biggest single sum knocked out of the request was $110,000 the General Services Administration said it needed to build an elaborate vault and security system to protect Nixon's Watergate tapes and documents at a facility near his San Clemente home.

Magnuson wins nod for term

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Sen. Warren G. Magnuson and all congressmen seeking reelection easily won renomination in Washington state's primary election Tuesday.

Magnuson, 69, won a smashing victory over his only Democratic competitor, John Patrick, by racking up 91 per cent of the vote in his bid for a sixth consecutive term.

He will oppose the same man who ran against him in 1968, state Sen. Jack Metcalf, Republican, from Langley, Wash.

Metcalf picked up 61 per cent of the Republican vote compared with 39 per cent for his nearest rival, Dr. Jesse Chang, a Seattle Pacific political science professor.

In the only congressional district without an incumbent running in the primary, Clark County Auditor Don Banker and State Sen. Bob Bradley engaged in a seesaw battle for the nomination to succeed retiring Rep. Julia Butler Hansen who endorsed Bailey.

The winner will face Republican Secretary of State A. Ludlow Kramer in November.

Nixon tape talks at temporary halt

(C) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — The discussions between the White House and the Watergate special prosecutor's office over the Nixon tapes and documents have been temporarily halted while the opinions of the former president and his lawyer are sought, according to a White House spokesman.

The spokesman, Larry M. Speakes, told a reporter that the "consensus" of special prosecutor Leon Jaworski's staff has been expressed to Richard M. Nixon and his lawyer, Herbert J. Miller Jr.

Prosecution officials say privately that their concern is that the agreement between Nixon and the general services administration, giving Nixon effective control over the tapes and documents, unnecessarily complicates any effort by prosecutors, grand juries or defendants, to get at the material.

Speakes said that, in addition to expressing Jaworski's concerns, the White House also conveyed to Miller a suggestion which "could implement the (Nixon-G.S.A.) agreement, and still satisfy the special prosecutor."

However, Speakes was unable to provide any details of this suggestion, and other sources who might have been able to provide details refused to do so.

Speakes did indicate that White House counsel Philip W. Buchen would give Miller time to confer with his client and respond to the suggestion before continuing the discussions with Jaworski's aides.

Colons seek access to Nixon's papers

Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — Members of Congress, powerful to return President Ford's unconditional pardon of Richard M. Nixon, are focusing on efforts to provide public access to the former president's Watergate tapes and documents.

Moves are being made in both the House and Senate to try to undo the agreement that gives Nixon sole control over his White House materials and the right to destroy the tapes after five years.

Ford defended the agreement at his news conference as "prudent," preserving the Nixon papers for history. At the same time, however, he said he could see "a legitimate reason" for "a public hearing that presidential records should belong to the government and, in his own case, he said he has no "personal desire" to claim documents from his administration as his own.

Ford said the Nixon papers have not yet been delivered to San Clemente. In the meantime, he said, his own staff is working with special prosecutor Leon Jaworski to make sure that documents needed for the Watergate prosecutions will be available.

Ford offered no specifics on how this would be accomplished.

Under the agreement, signed by Nixon and general services administrator Arthur F. Sampson on Sept. 6, Nixon would take complete possession of his papers after three years and would donate the tapes to the government in five years, retaining the right to order individual tapes destroyed from time to time. All would be destroyed at Nixon's death or on Sept. 1, 1984, whichever comes first.

MR. AND MRS. IRVIN DRUSSEL

50th anniversary observance slated

BELLEVUE — Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Drussel will be guests of honor at a golden wedding anniversary celebration Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m. at their home with their children as hosts and hostesses for the event.

All friends are invited to attend. The couple requests no gifts.

Irvin and Margaret Drussel were married Nov. 29, 1924, at Burley and resided at Burley, Oakley and Paul where he was engaged in farming until April, 1940, when they moved to a ranch on Spring Creek, near Bellevue.

They were on that ranch until 1944 when they purchased a home in Bellevue and moved there. He was engaged in farming and mining and Mrs. Drussel is employed in the Blaine County hot lunch program.

They are members of the LDS Church and Mrs. Drussel is a member and longtime treasurer of Mayflower Rebekah Lodge No. 41.

Hosting the Saturday open house will be their daughters, Mrs. Donna Anderson, Boise; Mrs. Fern Sims, Battle Mountain, Nev.; and Mrs. Marie Sweet, Twin Falls, and sons Gene and Harold, Baseline; and Lee, Richland, Wash., and their families.

A Lovelier You TO FLATTEN THE ABDOMEN

By Mary Sue Miller

Many girls, and more women, are unable to pull in their abdomens; much less hold the position. Panniculus contours just naturally follow, particularly if pounds have accumulated in the area.

The obvious first step to a "cure" when you are as much as five, pounds overweight is a reducing diet. Whether or not you weigh in above normal, spot reducing exercises and improved posture are indicated. Well-tested routines follow:

1. Lie on back, with knees bent and soles of feet flat on floor; insert palms of hands under lower back. Very slowly lift buttocks, as high as possible off floor. At same moment pull in stomach, contracting muscles hard. Still pulling in gently, lower hips to floor. Relax and repeat 10 times.
2. On back, with arms out at shoulder level, fling both legs up and fully apart. With speed of slow-motion movies, criss-cross legs 10 times. Work for widest swing in both directions.

Besides trimming, the routine teaches you how to hold your stomach in. When you are able to sustain the action, your abdomen gets the message and stays flat. While awaiting results, try a giraffe with a firm front panel. It will remind you to pull in. And that action's the crux.

DEAR ABBY: I took my little girl to the doctor for her annual checkup. We were called into the examining room and as soon as she saw the doctor coming toward her in his white coat, she began to cry. When he touched her, she started to squirm on the table and cry even harder because she was frightened.

The doctor very gruffly said, "Who needs this," and stomped out of the room.

A few minutes later, he came back and in a very nasty tone, said to me, "Take her home, and don't bring her back unless she is really sick!"

I thought doctors were supposed to be patient. What can I do about him?

Bedside manner

DEAR MOTHER: Most doctors try their best to calm and reassure frightened children. Perhaps your doctor was having a bad day, but if that's his usual manner, he is guilty of unprofessional conduct and deserved a reprimand from his county medical society. Mail this column to him. I think it will help him.

DEAR ABBY: I am 19, going to college and work part-time in a department store. There is a guy who works here who is very good-looking. He's 31 and married. He has made advances to me in the stockroom in the back of the store. I really am attracted to him, but the fact that he is married stops me from going out with him. (He's asked me.) Please advise me. I'm weakening.

KNOWS THE SCORE

DEAR KNOWS: Tell good-looking to get lost. So far, the score is no hits, no runs, no errors. And if you're smart, you'll keep it that way.

DEAR ABBY: I have had a reasonably happy marriage to a man who has come up from the ranks to become an executive with a large company. Now, after 36 years, he told me recently that I have never learned how to be an executive's wife.

He is nearly 60 and has been an executive with this company for over 20 years.

My creed has always been to be myself, and as long as I acted like a lady, which I am, I thought that should be sufficient. According to my husband, it was not enough. Where have I failed?

WORSE HALF

DEAR HALF: In addition to being a lady, have you always reciprocated social invitations promptly? Have you graciously initiated a social contact at your husband's suggestion? After having been entertained, do you promptly send a written note of thanks? Do you refrain from gossiping about people whether they're associated with your husband in business or not? If you have had time to devote to your church and/or community activities, have you done so?

If you answer yes to all these questions, you qualify as an asset to your husband, whether he's an executive or not.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. K. IN OKLAHOMA CITY: I do not recommend washing out the mouths of youngsters as punishment for "talking dirty." Some youngsters grow to like soap.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby, No. 69709, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

New books added to library

FILER — A number of new books have been added to the Filer City Library this week, according to Mrs. F. F. Allin, librarian.

Non-fiction books include "An American Life, One Man's Road to Watergate," J. Magruder (best seller); "You and I Yesterday," Holmes; "Pearl's Kitchen: an Extraordinary Cookbook," Pearl Bailey; "Bird Ambulance," Thomas; "Reflections on a Gift of Watermelon Pickle," Dunning; "Successful Public Speaking," Hall; and "Felix Mendelssohn and His Times," Jacob.

Fiction includes "The Night of the Seventh Moon," Holt; "Don't Look Now," Duktauer; "The Devil's Laughier," Yerly; "The House on the Cliff," Stevenson; "The Secret of Water," Goudge; "Harvest Home," Tyson; and "Gunsmoke Mesa," James.

Children's books are "Where the Wild Things Are," Sendak; "Gus Was a Mexican Ghost," Taylor; "Jack and the Three Sillies," Chase; "Imagination Green," Ommondroyd; "Duck Duck, Miller," Train Ride; Steptoe, and "My Mother Is the Most Beautiful Woman in the World," Recker.

Junior books include "Chip, the Dam Builder," Kjelgaard; "Forest Patrol," Kjelgaard; "Red Rock Over the River," Beatty; "How Many Miles to Sandown," Beatty; "Fifteen," Cleary; "Jean and Jenny," Cleary; "Fullback Fever," Scholz; "The Football Rebels," Scholz; "Danger is the Password," Fenner; and "The Ghost of Bally-booly," Cavanna.

A cash gift was added to the library memorial fund by Mrs. J. M. Jamerson in honor of Mr. G. A. Ehrhardt. Anyone wishing to remember a friend or loved one may send their gift to Mrs. Mac Herrett or leave it with the library, Mrs. Allin said.

Library hours are from 8 to 6 p.m. Monday, Friday and Saturday.

Mini Reviews

MISS ELLSWORTH plans rites

September date set

GOODING — Mr. and Mrs. George Ellsworth, Salmon, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Becky, to Michael Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Anderson, Gooding.

Miss Ellsworth graduated from Leadore High School in 1972, attended Ricks College and was graduated from College of Southern Idaho in 1974 with a degree as a medical records secretary.

Anderson was graduated from Gooding High School in 1972, attended Brigham Young University and presently is a pre-med student at the University of Utah. He is employed at St. Mark's Hospital, Salt Lake City.

A home wedding is planned Friday evening at the Ellsworth Ranch at Lemhi with a reception to follow. An open house honoring the couple will be held at the Anderson home in Gooding Sept. 26 from 7 to 9 p.m. All friends of the couple are invited.

The couple will reside in Salt Lake City.

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Public Library officials have released mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the library.

"The Great Jackass Fallacy," by Harry Levinson. The assumption that people are motivated by reward and punishment was deeply imbedded in managerial practices and most behavioral science research. The author calls this, "the great jackass fallacy," the root of much managerial difficulty.

"Centennial," by James Michener. The novel is based solidly on the facts of history and is an illuminating account of the development of this country, and of the immigrants from many nations who came to the west and drove the Indians out. It is a story of people involved in dramatic events and conflicts.

"Widow," by Lynn Calne. A courageous story that can serve to enlighten us all about personal tragedy and a rude awakening that our society turns away from death and from those who have been left behind.

"Tinker, Taller, Soldier, Spy," by John LeCaire. The author tosses up a total vision of a secret world of lamp-lighters — and hoods — scalp-hunters and pavement artists, a world where men are turned, burned or bought for stock, a world of moles, legmen, listeners and watchers.

"Zen and the Art of Motorcycle Maintenance," by Robert M. Pirsig. An autobiography of the mind and body. It is on one level, the story of a summer, month's motorcycle trip.

Much to his surprise the declarer wasted no time at trick one. She called for dummy's king of hearts. After that brilliant start she had no trouble drawing trumps, discarding her jack of hearts on the queen of clubs; ruffing her two small diamonds and making seven for a real top score.

Ayres just couldn't help asking the declarer, "How did you work out that play of the king of hearts. It was sensational."

The crushing reply was, "Guess your cards, young man. Cheat your cards."

By Oswald & James Jacoby
The late Ayres Bombeck, one of the best players in the Middlewest, used to love to tell this story on himself. He got Ayres never made an effort to see his opponents' cards, but if they waved them in his face he would not shut his eyes.

Two of those little old ladies were playing against 50-year-old Ayres. They got so excited while bidding a slam that North managed to show the king and three small hearts while there was South flashing the jack-queen.

The bidding is typical for little old ladies. They got never to bid a slam without using Blackwood on the way. Ayres led a low heart.

Modern-day prospectors

Treasure hunters display their trophies and prizes following the second annual coin hunt sponsored Sunday in Burley by the Southern Idaho Treasure Club. Harold Conn, Boise, left, received a special hood prize for uncovering the most tinful while Fred Winder, center, was awarded first place prize and trophy for the most items, and Mike Feller received second and third places for most pennies and most wheat stalk pennies.

Father turns addicted son in to law officers

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Retired Air Force Lt. Col. Monard Weems suspected for a long time his 17-year-old son, Michael, was on drugs.

And the father was far apart by love and helplessness.

"It's a terrible thing to see this happening in your family and not being able to do anything about it," Weems said. "His mother and I saw some tell-tale signs."

"We kept talking to him, pleading with him, and it seemed the more we tried and the more we talked, the more he turned against us."

The father felt the same concern as other parents offering to stop drug trafficking on the city's fashionable northeast side since a 15-year-old junior high school student died recently of a suspected heroin overdose.

Weems finally did what he believed he had to do. He went to police and told them of his suspicions about his son.

"We had a problem and we had to do something about it," the father said. "It was getting out of hand."

Narcotics officers went to the Weems home Monday.

"The officers asked if they could search his room. I gave them the go-ahead," Weems said. "I took the me to his room. They searched and found the stuff."

Officers said they found marijuana cigarettes and pills.

"The main thing was we wanted to keep the kids in this neighborhood from getting involved with drugs," the father said, adding he suspected his son got drugs from "neighborhood pushers."

— Michael D. Weems, who attended a high school for problem students, was held in jail Tuesday under $15,000 bond on narcotics possession charges.

"It's been a trying situation for his mother and me," the father said.

Burley site of coin hunt

By MARJORIE LIERMAN Times-News writer

BURLEY — Metal detector enthusiasts gathered Sunday at the old Burley Junior High football field to search for treasures in the second annual coin hunt.

The event was sponsored by the Southern Idaho Treasure Club and was free to club members and those who joined the club and paid dues prior to or on the hunt day.

Fred Winder received the first place trophy and a metal detector for finding the most items during the hunt which began at 10 a.m. and ended at 3 p.m. with a one-hour lunch break.

Mike Feller received second and third place trophies and prizes for finding the most pennies and for the most wheat stalk pennies. Harold Conn, Boise, won the "Booby Prize" for finding the most tinful.

A number of special prizes were drawn for families of members and also for spectators at the hunt. The club furnished coffee, punch and table service for the non-pollack dinner.

Some of the treasures, such as pennies and washers, had been buried in ground several days previous to the hunt by the committee, however, several rings, old coins and a sizable amount of worthless trash also came to light while the participants covered the ground with their instruments.

Wildlife violators reported

SALMON — There is growing cooperation in reporting game violations, Gary Davidson, region 6 staff conservatorist for the Idaho Fish and Game Department from Idaho Falls, said in Salmon.

"We are pleased with the involvement sportsmen are taking in solving and preventing wildlife violations," the official said.

"Sportsmen are reporting information and assisting the officer in finalizing the case and helping process it through court. More and more we are seeing sportsmen becoming fed up with the poaching aspects and not tolerating it any more."

"They are realizing the game belongs to everyone and the poacher is stealing from them rather than the department."

Davidson also advised that Howard Carroll, formerly conservation officer at North Fork, now is serving as staff conservatorist in enforcement in Idaho Falls succeeding Dale Smith, former regional conservation officer at Salmon.

Fireproof cigarette rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Safety Council is refusing to back the development of a cigarette that burns itself out if accidentally dropped despite claims such a product could prevent thousands of fire deaths.

The council told the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers Inc. that the tobacco industry is too sensitive to the association's idea to publicly back the proposed.

The furniture group had previously asked the Consumer Product Safety Commission to force the tobacco industry to come up with a self-extinguishing cigarette as a means of helping it meet an anticipated commission ruling on fireproofing upholstered furniture fabrics to make them less susceptible to burns from dropped cigarettes.

But correspondence obtained and published Monday by the Washington-based Product Safety Letter the council told furniture makers it made a check of its industry backers and "we uncovered some serious sensitivities about doing anything that might upset a rather delicate balance that now seems to exist in the tobacco industry. It is our judgment that the potential adverse consequences on both sides of this issue favor slightly our remaining silent."

The furniture group contended that a cigarette which burns out if not puffed on could stop 97 per cent of the fires started by carelessly dropped cigarettes. It said such a product would "save thousands of lives and millions of dollars."

The research director for one big tobacco company told CPL he was "very skeptical" that such a cigarette would be practical because the tobacco would have to be packed much tighter — resulting in higher tar and nicotine intake per puff, something that goes against health concerns.

Shoshone meeting planned

SHOSHONE — A deaconry council meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Jennings House of the Episcopal Church.

Representatives will be present from churches throughout the Wood River and Magic Valley areas.

Business to be discussed will include "outreach and evangelism" in various communities.

Members of the Shoshone Episcopal Church will sponsor a parish potluck dinner the evening of Sept. 29 at the Jennings House.

Rev. Daniel McLaughy announced that church school has resumed at 3:30 p.m. each Wednesday at the Jennings house. All children of the community, ages nursery through high school, are encouraged to attend.

Mrs. Howard Hill is the superintendent. Other teachers of the various classes besides Mrs. Hill include Mrs. Jan Burkhardt, Mrs. Ivan Hopkins and Rev. McLaughy.

Salmon mail delivery sought

SALMON — The US Postal Service has been presented petitions with 1,665 signatures of Salmon residents asking city mail delivery.

Efforts to obtain such delivery have failed in the past because of lack of sufficient support.

Paul Howell, Salmon Chamber of Commerce president, advised that group that postal service officials at Pocatello have indicated that some action will be initiated shortly.

Howell said it was felt that city mail delivery now has a good chance of becoming a reality but that funds are not available in the fiscal 1975 budget but that some contingent funds might be obtained.

Senior winner

Spud-meet-in-TF

TWIN FALLS - Potato Growers of Idaho, District Six, will meet at 8:30 p.m. today in the Holiday Inn to review crop conditions. Charles Marshall, chairman, said in addition to quality and yield projections, reports will be made of production data in all areas of Idaho plus the latest information from competitive potato production areas in other states and Canada.

Weather harmful

BOISE (UPI) - While the weather was cooperating with Idaho's harvest, it was hurting another segment of the industry. The U.S. Agriculture Department and National Weather Service reported warm days and cool nights were allowing rapid progress of fall harvesting activities throughout the state.

They added, however, that soil moisture remained short with rains needed in dryland areas for fall seedings of small grains. It also reduced forage which has speeded the movement of cattle from ranges in many localities.

Seeding of fall grain fields is occurring on a limited basis because of the lack of moisture, the agencies said.

They reported that combining of spring grains was complete with the exception of some isolated fields at higher elevations in east Idaho while potato harvest was gaining momentum.

Harvesting of dry beans made rapid progress last week with two-thirds of the beans swathed at week's end and over one-fourth of the crop threshed. Hop harvest was near the halfway mark in the southwest and onion harvest continued strong with labor demands high.

HHH praises Chinese

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., has returned from a two-week trip to China with a new respect for Chinese agriculture techniques, even though most of the work is done entirely by hand.

"Chatting with reporters Monday, Humphrey said the top priorities of the Chinese are land reclamation and water conservation - both of which are vital to the country's food production capacity."

Although only per cent of the land is considered suitable for agriculture use, the Chinese are creating "new" farm lands through massive terracing efforts, he said.

Much of China looks like western Nebraska, southwestern Colorado and the South Dakota Badlands, he said. But the Chinese have found ways to turn even the driest and most barren land into productive farms.

Ideal prospects for MV weather

KIMBERLY - Mild and dry. That's the 30 day outlook for the Magic Valley and southern Idaho from mid-September to mid-October. Maurice Faubion of the National Weather Service office here said temperatures will be a little above seasonal normals with below normal precipitation.

"If we apply this outlook to agricultural activities for the period, it would mean that we should have weather for harvesting all fall crops during the next 30 days. Rangelands and forests will continue unusually dry. Fall seeded crops will need supplemental irrigation for germination," Faubion said.

The immediate outlook for the coming week is for a warming trend under sunny skies. Areas which have not yet received a frost should continue frost free at least through the coming weekend.

With no rain in sight, digging early potatoes, threshing beans, hay baling and other activities should continue to make excellent progress the rest of this week, Faubion said. The average time of the first killing frost in autumn is about the last week in September in southwestern Idaho valleys and the Malheur Valley of Oregon, about Sept. 25 in Magic Valley and around the middle of September in the upper Snake River valleys.

Growers watch prices

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) - Wheat growers have harvested their crop and are now waiting for prices to reach what they think will be the peak. Bill Hughes, market news reporter of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said today.

Hughes predicted disciplined selling in the Portland area market as well as throughout the rest of the United States. He said growers will sell what they must to meet current operating costs, but the volume growers have sufficient storage, and are under no pressure to sell out quickly.

"The farmers have smartened up out here," Hughes said. "They sell what they must to pay their bills but they have a target price they think they should have for the bulk of their grain."

Hughes said when the price reaches the desired price the farmer wants, he'll sell. Wheat was quoted Monday as $4.47 a bushel. Last year, farmers received in cases $6 a bushel.
