Senate holds foreign aid bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has postponed action on the $2.3 billion foreign aid bill at the request of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

According to officials on Capitol Hill and in the administration, Kissinger made the request to avoid passage of an aid bill that would cut off military aid to Turkey and sharply cut it for South Korea. Kissinger reportedly feared the cutoff for Turkey would disrupt delicate Cyprus peace talks.

Eyes support

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Environmental Protection Agency administrator Russell E. Train says he finds President Ford "very open minded" concerning environmental issues and hopes for increased presidential support for the EPA's work.

Train said, however, it was "too early to see how the President will eventually balance out priorities," but said Ford's initial dealings with him have been good.

Leftists quit PLO leadership

BEIRUT (UPI) — The extreme left-wing Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine withdrew today from the leadership of the Palestine Liberation Organization, once again shattering the unity of the Palestinians.

The PFLP is the leftist group associated with most of the airplane hijackings carried out in recent years in the Middle East to focus attention on Palestinian efforts to regain their position in what is now Israel.

Fuel stamps for poor studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Energy Administrator John C. Sawhill says his office is considering the idea of issuing "fuel stamps" to poor people to help them pay the high cost of home heating.

The proposal, which would work the same way as food stamps, was made Wednesday by Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp in testimony before a Senate subcommittee studying effects of high energy costs on persons with fixed incomes.

US pays bill

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan says the federal government is attempting to spur increased productivity in the nation by picking up the tab for additional job training.

Brennan told Ohio State Building and Construction Trades Council Wednesday $2 billion has been earmarked for distribution under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Calley counsel raps release delay

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — An attorney for former Lt. William Calley today criticized the Army's decision delaying Calley's release from a military prison and said the Army had acted differently in the case of "draft dodgers and deserters."

An Army spokesman in Washington said, however, an appeal would be filed in the civilian court ruling overturning Calley's conviction for the murder of at least 22 civilians at My Lai. The spokesman said the Army would request a stay of execution on the order for Calley's release from the military prison at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

Apathy hit

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (UPI) — Former astronaut John Glenn, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, says the nation is heading toward a state of minority rule because of increased voter apathy.

Glenn said results of the recent primary election in New York State, in which less than 20 per cent of eligible voters cast ballots, were "appalling in their indictment of the current level of voter interest."

Court approves Nixon request

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Supreme Court has granted a request from former President Richard M. Nixon that he be allowed to give up his right to practice law in the state.

The court announced its decision Wednesday after the State Bar recommended approval of Nixon's petition.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After a month at the foothills; 700 of the nation's chief thinkers and doers gather at the summit this weekend, still searching for consensus on what is to be done about inflation.

At the dozen pre-summit conferences which preceded the big show, all the traditional solutions were offered up. But there was no breakthrough concept.

No agreed-upon policy emerged which would take the American economy out of an inflation so prolonged and accelerated it is scaring the professionals and amateurs alike.

Generally, participants agreed things would not soon get much better.

Generally, they agreed, too, that the government should provide more protection for the economy's victims, through public jobs and greater unemployment benefits.

Some advocated tax cuts for the poor, heavier taxes for the rich.

Reduced federal spending was applauded, at least as an abstract concept. Most prayed the Federal Reserve Board would ease monetary policy, allowing interest rates to decline and the housing industry to come back to life.

These ideas—and many others—will be laid before the weekend summit, attended by a cross-section of American leadership—from business, government, unions, campus, farms.

President Ford intends to be an active participant throughout the day and a host of discussions Friday and Saturday. This is almost unprecedented. Rarely is a chief executive or display for so long a period. Public television plans to broadcast the affair in its entirety.

In keeping with the somber topic, the planners had hoped to assemble in non-frivolous surroundings. But they couldn't find a suitable grand ballroom of the Washington Hilton.

Congress also brushed aside Ford's proposal for a three-month delay in a $700 million pay hike for government employes and military men.

Site condemnation legal route for Gem utility

By BILL LAZARUS
BOISE — Idaho Power Co. has the right to condemn state property for construction of its proposed coal-fired power plant under a new state law.

A large block of state land lies next to the Boise site which Idaho Power has announced as its preferred location for the plant.

Company president James Bruce told the Times-News Wednesday that the power company has not "even thought about" the possibility of condemning state land to obtain a site for its power plant.

But, according to state legislators who were instrumental in getting the bill passed, Idaho Power was a primary lobbyist for the new law which grants the right of eminent domain to utilities seeking to build coal-fired or nuclear plants.

This summer Idaho Power proposed a buy state property in the Boise foothills which it would then trade for U.S. Bureau of Land Management property where it is planning to build its plant.

But the power company's proposal has bogged down at the Idaho Land Board. A moratorium now exists on consideration of all new land purchase applications until the pending backlog of applications has been reviewed. Gordon Trombly, director of lands, said last month that consideration of these current applications may take up to a year.

Also, the land board, which is composed of the state's highest elected officials, has heard several objections to the coal-fired plant proposal. One board member, Idaho Atty. Gen. Anthony Park, sharply questioned the desirability of such a plant in southern Idaho at federal energy hearings last week. The board voted Tuesday to hold public hearings in Twin Falls and Boise to gain more public input on the matter.

Under the new law, the power company could gain a power plant site through condemnation of state property.

The law extends the right of eminent domain to "facilities and equipment for the production, generation, and manufacture of electric current."

Under previously existing state law the power of eminent domain includes the right to condemn federal and state property as well as private property.

According to Terry Coffin, assistant attorney general, Idaho Power would not be able to sue the federal government for land unless the government consented.

But, he said, the power company would be able to condemn public land for a power site if adequate compensation is given and if the condemnation is construed to be for a "public purpose." He agreed that the new law defines construction of power plants as a public purpose enabling condemnation.

Idaho Power has proposed locations near Boise, Bliss and Mountain Home as potential sites for its coal-fired plant and has expressed a preference for the Boise site about 12 miles south of Gowen Field. The company is currently sponsoring meteorological tests at this site to examine the likely environmental impact of the proposed plant.

According to Don Hobbs, assistant area supervisor for the State Department of Lands, about 8.5 square miles of state lands lie about three miles to the east of BLM property 12 miles south of Gowen Field. A Union Pacific Railroad line runs east-west through the middle of the state property, he said. Currently, the state land is only used for grazing, he added.

Trade deficit record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. trade deficit of $1.13 billion in August was the worst in any month in history.

The Commerce Department figures released Wednesday showed that as of Aug. 31, the United States was $2.1 billion into the red in trade with foreign nations. The worst previous deficit for one month was $800 million in October, 1971.

Exports for August were estimated at an adjusted $8.37 billion compared with imports of $9.50 billion, according to a monthly summary.

The August figures suggest that the United States will suffer a trade deficit for the third time in four years.

Document may be asked in AF dam negotiations

TWIN FALLS — A 50-page document outlining Idaho Power's reasons for offering $19.5 million to help build a new American Falls Dam may become important in future dam negotiations.

The Times-News has learned the document, which has not been made public, was commissioned by the power firm in order to help determine what amount of money it could offer the American Falls Reservoir District on the dam project.

Reservoir district officials, who had said they hope to obtain extra money from Idaho Power to compensate for increased dam costs, said they did not know the Idaho Power document existed.

Reservoir District President John Barker, Buhl, said he would bring the document's existence before the reservoir trustees to see whether the district will seek to obtain it.

The Times-News was refused a copy of the document by Idaho Power officials, who however said they would be willing to discuss its contents.

Cecil Hobbey, a Gooding attorney and member of the spacholders' negotiating team which has been formed to seek more money from Idaho Power, said today the document "might be helpful in making a determination as to whether the offer was realistic."

"But I don't suppose we're in any legal position to demand it. It's an internal document," Hobbey said.

He said the negotiating team has not considered requesting the document. "We haven't met together as a team yet," Hobbey said, adding "I have to admit, I wasn't aware of any specific document."

Barker said, "I intend to inquire to the (reservoir district) board as to whether they want to get it."

"If the board wants to see it, then we'll get off a formal request," Barker said.

"I'm really not that excited about it," he said.

"If I had any doubts about Idaho Power's figures I would be more adamant."

Economy index takes plunge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The composite index of leading economic indicators declined 1.2 per cent in August, the Commerce Department said today.

The index has traditionally been used to forecast the direction of the nation's economic activity but has been inconsistent in the past year because of inflation.

Five of the eight indicators now available for August declined in July while the other three showed increases, the Commerce said. Declines were reported for stock prices, building permits, industrial materials prices, unemployment and orders for plant and equipment.

Increases were reported in the categories of the average work week, new orders for durable goods and the price-labor cost ratio.

The composite index has been on a general decline since late 1970 with the exception of a few monthly dips last year and this year.

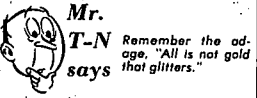

The August decline followed a revised increase of 1.9 per cent in July.

The only other decline this year was 0.5 per cent in June.

He's ready

SHAHR of Iran, addressing newsmen in Canberra, Australia, said the U.S. can not dictate the price of oil and he is ready to take on General Motors, General Electric and "all the other generals they have." His remark was in reply to a question about President Ford's call for a cut in oil prices. (UPI)

Evel tourist gold strike short

TWIN FALLS — The glimmering gold of tourist dollars anticipated before Evel Knievel's jump didn't abate as brightly as expected.

And although the count isn't all in, a conservative estimate shows the state, county and city were stuck with at least a $15,000 bill from Knievel's jump week.

Business was up, but apparently primarily for those tourist-oriented operations such as motels, restaurants, grocery stores and bars. Some regular retail businesses suffered a loss rather than a gain.

The state paid for state police coverage and the National Guard alert; the county paid for hiring extra men to supplement its security forces; the city paid for clean-up and damage in the parks.

And the federal government put aside dollars for border patrolmen who aided in the law enforcement activities.

Some of the money paid out by the city will be regained in claims against a clean-up and damage bond filed by Knievel. But some of the costs are additional ones which the various levels of government will have to pick up.

Business for motel owners was up significantly. The Blue Lakes Inn and Holiday Inn, centers for the Knievel operation, experienced the greatest increase in business.

Charles Sieber, Blue Lakes' manager, said it "was almost triple our regular business in the bar, the dining room and the rooms." Sieber noted the week before the Knievel week, business was also up significantly.

The overall picture for motel business in the town was, according to Sieber, "at least a 50 per cent increase in business for those two weeks."

The restaurant business also did better than usual during the Knievel week, Sept. 1-8. Ted Smith, manager of the Rogerson restaurants, said he estimated business was up about 35 per cent for the week, with the biggest increase seen on the weekend.

Leo Soran, owner of the Depot Grill and the Turf Club, said his restaurants had about 20-25 per cent more business during the weekend. He added restaurant business all over town "had to be way up."

Clemency board holds first meet

United Press International
"We cannot undo the past," said Charles Goodell, who is head of President Ford's clemency review board. "The board will deal with the legal and political problems of getting convicted draft evaders and military deserters to work their way back into American life."

"The board carries essentially the responsibility of trying to equalize relative justice," said Goodell, a former senator who opposed the Vietnam war. "The ideal goal with which we are charged is intrinsically impossible of attaining because we cannot undo the past. We cannot undo the past for those who went to Vietnam and suffered, perhaps could not come back; and we cannot undo the past for those who have been imprisoned."

The 130 draft evaders who were in jail at the time Ford announced the amnesty. A Justice Department spokesman, Bruce Fein, told the board that nine civilian draft evaders have so far signed amnesty agreements before the U.S. attorney with jurisdiction over their cases. An official at the Justice Department said there were 11.

Most of the 94 U.S. attorney's offices throughout the country have been moving cautiously on the inquiries from the men who said they had not yet decided whether to accept Ford's offer. One young man in Virginia contacted the U.S. attorney's office in Richmond and made an appointment to talk. "He said that he wanted to come in and talk about it, but he made no commitment that he would accept," said Assistant U.S. Attorney David G. Lowe. "There won't be anybody there to arrest him if he says no."

There have been a number of anonymous queries from draft evaders, their families and friends, a UPI survey indicates, but few of the young men who could take advantage of the clemency program have acted so far.

More have made the first tentative steps, said the U.S. attorney, but few of the young men who could take advantage of the clemency program have acted so far.

Most of the 94 U.S. attorney's offices throughout the country have been moving cautiously on the inquiries from the men who said they had not yet decided whether to accept Ford's offer.

The board held its first meeting Wednesday, a business meeting, at the Executive Office Building next to the White House. The nine members were briefed on the requirements: draft dodgers and deserters could return if they performed two years of alternative service and again pledged allegiance to the United States. The board will begin hearing individual cases at its next meeting, Oct. 7. It decides that almost all of its meetings will be open to the public.

Honduras seeking more choppers to expand storm relief efforts

TEGUICIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — The Honduran government pleaded today for more U.S. helicopters to reach peasants dying of hunger in isolated villages still under Hurricane Fifi's Flood waters. "People are starving to death because we don't have enough helicopters," Col. Carlos Rene Pineta, spokesman for the National Emergency Committee, said. "We need the small city of Tocoa, rescue officials reported peasants battled each other with machetes in a struggle for food dropped from the air. In La Ceiba, the banana-shipping center of Honduras, starving refugees looted 25 railroad cars carrying green bananas, officials said. Soldiers drove the refugees back, Pineta said. Trucks carrying chocolate from Costa Rica were placed under armed guard after reports of peasants looting a

Costa Rican service vehicle carrying anti-snake serum, Pineta said. "When people are hungry you get these kind of 'extreme situations,'" the relief official said. Fernando Lazarus, head of an amateur airplane club dropping ham and cheese sandwiches in the Sula Valley, said the "stinking" coffee he and his thousands of bodies still under the mud."

A spokesman for the alley said business had increased measurably, but declined to give any figures or estimates, and other bar managers also indicated business was generally up.

Service stations also experienced higher business levels that week. Estimates of the increase varied from "about double" near to the Holiday Inn - Blue Lakes hub of activity, to between 5 and 10 per cent in stations further out.

Grocery store managers near to the jump site noticed more business, but said most of the increase went for beer sales. Leroy Gelst, manager of Buttrey's, the closest store to the jump site, said his store had "in the neighborhood of" 30-40 per cent increase," but added, "The main thing was beer sales. If you took away beer sales it would take away half the percentage."

Albertson's manager Larry Fullmer was less enthusiastic. "We sold more beer but that's all," he said. "Beer sales were probably up 30 per cent, but business in general didn't increase much. It wasn't that great."

For at least some of the retail merchants in town, the influx of tourists brought in by Kneivel was not a boost.

Earl Faulkner of the Paris said bluntly, "It was probably one of the most disastrous things that ever happened to Paris." Faulkner estimated that business was down 15-20 per cent, perhaps because the anticipated tourist mobs kept the regulars away. And "tourists weren't buying from these stores."

"As far as I'm concerned, it was an absolute disaster," Faulkner said. "We need him (Kneivel) like we need a hole in the head."

Some retail businesses such as camping goods stores or specialty shops like the Leatherman did do more business because they carried what the tourists needed or wanted during their stay in Twin Falls.

On the other side, Kneivel's stunt and attendant crowds meant that money had to be spent.

A conservative estimate would set the additional expense incurred by the state, city and county as a result of Evel Kneivel's jump as more than $15,000.

The state was involved in a major way with added state police protection and the National Guard Alert.

According to Lt. Roy Thomas, regional chief for the Idaho State Police, 23 men were brought in from other districts. Eight of the men worked the eight days the tourists were in town and 15 came in the last day, Thomas said.

Figuring on 10 hours per day per man a total of 790 hours were logged by the extra men. With a cost per man hour estimated at $5.50 - pay plus mileage - the cost incurred by the state because of Kneivel would come to about $4,350.

In addition, Thomas said, at least 10 undercover agents were present, including men from the special services, division and narcotics agents. The men each worked four days at about the same rate as the state police. It would add at least $2,000 to the tab.

Not counted in the cost estimate is pay for the 28 men who normally work in the Magic Valley district. However, these also spent most of their time that week involved with the Kneivel event.

The state also picked up a small part of the cost of the National Guard alert. Because the guard normally holds a weekend exercise the first or second week of the month, the federal government picked up the cost as usual.

However, because of trouble Sunday evening, the Twin Falls troop was retained past the completion of weekend exercise until Monday morning. The state picks up the cost when men are put on state civil disturbance status.

According to Col. Sam Magaw, regimental commander, the cost for retaining the men would amount to about $4,000.

The county also incurred additional expenses because of Kneivel's crowds.

Sheriff Paul Corder estimated pay for specially-hired deputies would amount to about $1,600. Another $820 is needed to compensate operators of citizen band units for the aid and expenses during the week.

The sheriff is also asking for about $4,000 to pay his regular deputies for the approximately 1,000 hours overtime they put in during the jump week. It is not certain whether the county will pay the men for their extended hours of duty, however, compensatory time not over time pay is usually granted.

Also on the docket for county expenses is about $3000 needed by the Twin Falls Highway District to clean up roads and borrow pits littered by tourists.

The city of Twin Falls also had expenses, primarily from clean-up and repair work in the city's parks, especially the Shoshone Falls area. City Manager Jean Millar said the cost would come to $4,968 for cleaning up the parks and fixing up the damage caused by the week's visitors and campers. Some repair work on the lawntowers was necessary as well as partial re-sodding of grass and some repainting, Millar said.

The federal government was involved in the security force surrounding the weeklong event: the four local Border Patrol officers joined forces with the sheriff in working with traffic control. The officers worked the whole week on the Kneivel affair, and racked up about 51 overtime hours per man, according to the spokesman. No cost estimate was available for the Border Patrol time, however.

Some of the money may be regained, however. The city and county are filing their claims against the $10,000 clean-up bond posted by Evel Kneivel before their event. If the claims are honored, the city should be reimbursed for its $4,968 bill and the Highway District for its $300 bill.

Dire prophecy for federal election financing

WASHINGTON — Where are we headed with our two-party system? The question has been raising its puzzled head for some time, but the issue recurs with fresh perplexity in the pending bill for the financing and regulation of federal election campaigns.

party fell into shreds. The two-party system has survived Bull Moosers; Progressives; States Righters and George Wallace. It is a remarkably durable institution.

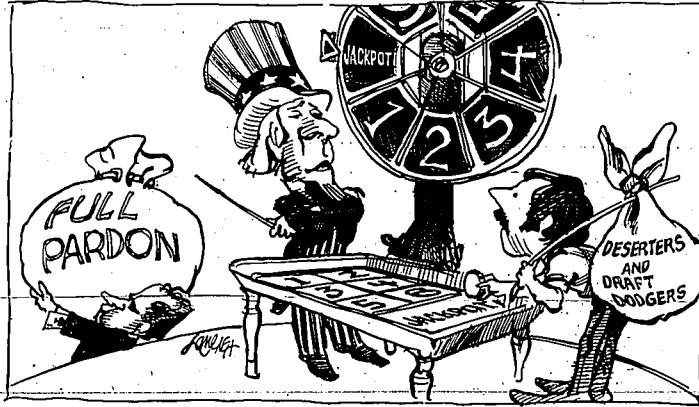

for deflection. Television provides a candidate with audiences far beyond the reach of a shab bako, clam bake, or party rally in the park.

refused to affiliate with either major party. Like organized religion, organized politics is raveling at the edges.

A season to remember

Autumn tipped onto the calendar early this week but the change in seasons was little noticed. Perhaps that was because the equinox arrived in the pre-dawn darkness. Perhaps it was because autumn didn't bring any marked change in the pleasant spell of weather which has smiled on Southern Idaho for — how many weeks now?

"Sorry, Fella. Only High Rollers Are Eligible for the Jackpot!"

Scandal, family demands behind Ted's decision

WASHINGTON — A nationally prominent Democratic Congressman was stunned last winter when his financial backers threatened to boycott his fund-raising dinner because Sen. Edward M. Kennedy was to be its star attraction.

impact of Robert Sherrill's Chappaquiddick fifth anniversary article July 18 in the New York Times Magazine.

Thus, the political signals were clear by the end of August. Although not knowing how to stop Kennedy for the 1976 nomination, few Democratic politicians wanted him nominated.

to his identification with the disastrous presidential campaign of Sen. George McGovern. But the larger part of it was Chappaquiddick.

U.N. scorecard

The United Nations has a lackluster quality for many people. It has the general reputation of an unwieldy collection of nations long on rhetoric and short on action, a body in constant financial crisis and unable to deal effectively with world problems because of super-power realities and rivalries.

The threat threw the Congressman into consternation. He had personally arranged for Kennedy to fly to the Midwest at considerable trouble to appear at the dinner.

But Sherrill's article was a product of Watergate. No matter how different in scope and significance, the inescapable analogy between Watergate coverage and Chappaquiddick coverage subjected Democratic politicians to ever-harsher questions: If the country forced Nixon's resignation, how could it turn to Kennedy as the cure for political immorality?

The absence of Democratic regret Monday over Kennedy's decision reveals the erosion of his political base — including his support in organized labor. High AFL-CIO brass always said labor would back Kennedy as the party nominee, but they hoped he would not run.

Thus, labor officials were stunned at what happened when Kennedy came to Chicago May 11 as the main speaker at a testimonial dinner for Joseph Keenan, longtime labor politician, operative. Kennedy's speech sparked a spontaneous, standing ovation even before he finished. But at one table, all 12 diners stayed in their seats, their hands in their laps.

Book protests proper

WASHINGTON — Concerning the violent protests against 330 new public school textbooks in Charleston, W. Va., I quote from one of those books, published by Harcourt Brace-Jovanovich:

Certain journalists reporting the protest have placed considerable emphasis on the circumstance that most of the demonstrators are members of the "working class" — meaning coal miners.

"Recount some incidents you or those you know have experienced which illustrate how parental interference in the personal lives of their sons and daughters can lead to misunderstandings, broken relationships or even family tragedies."

Well, that condescending label always makes me grind my teeth, but let it pass. The point is that even coal miners have a right to an opinion on how their children should be educated in public schools financed by their tax money.

One of those miners probably was on the button when he declared that "the politicians never pay any attention to us. We're all what the government calls the lower classes."

The emphasis is mine. The book in question is called "Write On!" an "issue-centered" text for the elective creative writing courses offered to junior high students. It is an appalling example of how some educators, in the name of "academic freedom and integrity," in effect encourage children not only to rebel against parental authority but to play judge and jury in the prosecution thereof.

Any parent who has ever sent a child to a public school will agree, at least in part, with that miner. For better or worse, it is the more affluent and so-called "better educated" parents who through their interest and influence have the say on teaching policies and textbooks.

And, whether the miners are right or wrong, their current involvement is good. The so-called "working class" members know something about the difficulties of bringing up kids.

"Parental interference in the personal lives" of children. What preposterous garbage! Even in this lunatic age, the parents' No. 1 job is still to interfere in their kids' personal lives. Unless the community is courting anarchy, a child's personal life is still subject to the approval of his parents.

Andrew Tully

Indeed, such "teaching" is also an invasion of the personal privacy way-out liberals are always hollering about. No teacher or textbook has a right to question a child about his home life any more than the Internal Revenue Service has a right to ask me how I get along with my wife. In short, "Write On!" is contradictory. It gives the child the right to rebel against his parents but breaches the confidentiality of his family relationships.

Greenspan's humor takes attention from economy

WASHINGTON — Alan Greenspan, chief presidential economic adviser, endeared himself last week to the country with a remark he made to a group of leaders representing the old, sick and handicapped.

I called the Council of Economic Advisers. "I'm trying to find out who Alan Greenspan's dog writer is."

didn't think you economists went in for that kind of humor," I said. "Gosh that's funny. Do you have any good ones?"

"I'm not sure you're taking me seriously," the man said.

When I saw Greenspan say this deadpan on television, I broke into laughter and thought to myself, "The Ford administration does have humor after all."

ART BUCHWALD

"Don't go too fast," I said. "I want to write this all down."

"You mean the line about the brokers was this?"

A few minutes later I received a call from a congressman friend asking me if I had written the line for Greenspan.

The man on the other line said frostily, "Prof. Greenspan meant every word he said. Brokers have suffered the most."

"I wish I had," I said. "It has to be one of the funniest things I've ever seen on television."

"I called back my friend in Congress. 'I know you're not going to believe this,' I said, 'but Greenspan writes his own jokes.'"

Cross site detracts

Editor, Times-News:
I believe it is wrong to erect a cross on city property at Shoshone Falls.
Aesthetically, the cross is inconsistent with the natural beauty of the park, and detracts from the grandeur of the falls.
Legally, the location on city property of the cross contravenes the First Amendment, which prohibits the recognition or establishment of any religion by any government in the United States.
Morally, the public erection of a cross is an affront to people who are not followers of Christianity (and to many who are), and it is no less an outrage than the prominent display of a Star of David on top of city hall.
Religious symbols may have a significant place within one's home or church, or upon one's person, or in one's heart, but they should not be displayed upon lands intended for all of the people.

Candidate debate sought

Editor, Times-News:
On Aug. 28, Nolan Victor, American Party candidate for governor, proposed to Gov. Cecil Andrus and Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy that the three gubernatorial candidates appear together in debate before radio and TV station audiences.
Just recently Mr. Murphy stated he would meet the gubernatorial candidates any time, any place.
On Sept. 17 Mr. Victor received word from Governor Andrus that his schedule has been established for many months making it impossible for him to accommodate such request.
Quite frankly, we find it very hard to believe that Governor Andrus could not, if he so wished, find time for at least several such meetings across the state. We also find it hard to believe the voters will accept such a reason for Governor Andrus not participating in such debates.
If it is true that Governor Andrus is too heavily scheduled to accommodate our request, this means, does it not, that he will be unable to accept any invitations in the future that have not been arranged prior to this time? This might prove to be quite awkward for the Governor.
Two TV stations have already offered us time for such confrontation — we expect other TV and radio stations to follow suit.
We do not intend to limit our proposal for debate only to radio and TV. Surely Governor Andrus is scheduled for some appearances where both Mr. Murphy and Mr. Victor could be included if the Governor so desired.

The conditions in Idaho and the United States are extremely critical. Never before has it been so imperative that the candidates be exposed to the electorate without camouflage.
Why will Governor Andrus not meet with the other candidates? What is he afraid of?

NATO aide set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will soon dispatch veteran diplomat David Bruce to Brussels as the permanent U.S. representative to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) succeeding Donald Rumsfeld, the newly-named White House chief of staff, it was learned Wednesday.
A White House official said that Bruce will shortly be winding up his duties as head of the U.S. liaison office in Peking.
Bruce will be replaced by George Bush, former chairman of the Republican National Committee, who also served as the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations during the Nixon administration.

Carolina Republican challenges Rocky's financial explanation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A conservative Republican senator has challenged Nelson Rockefeller's explanation of his financial assets and suggested the vice presidential nominee be required to sell some of his holdings if he is confirmed.

Although not saying he would oppose Rockefeller on the floor, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., today became the first member of the Senate to challenge the Rockefeller nomination.

Helms' lead-off witness at the fourth day of Rockefeller's confirmation hearings, posed 20 questions he felt were left unanswered in the former governor's testimony.

"Questions of the Rockefeller financial holdings and their relation to other holdings of the Rockefeller family and their foundations have not yet been satisfactorily answered," Helms said in a statement prepared for the hearing.

"A blind trust is an inadequate safeguard because of the high nature of the office involved," he said. He noted that past candidates for "lesser offices," such as former Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, had been required to divest themselves of holdings.

"This was in a pre-Watergate era, and these stringent requirements were imposed for lesser jobs," Helms said. "Congress should take no action to approve a nominee who does not meet the most stringent safeguards. The turmoil our nation has just gone through deserves no less."

The questions submitted by Helms also covered possible conflicts of interests, the abortion issue and Rockefeller's record as governor of New York.

Several other witnesses criticized Rockefeller were also scheduled to testify, including black activist Angela Davis, who wanted to ask him about the 1971 Alton prison riot.

During three days of hearings, Rockefeller was asked about several minor aspects of the Watergate scandal, and he apparently convinced the committee he was uninvolved in any of them, said Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev. "I'm satisfied."

On Watergate matters, Rockefeller's former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman each contacted him after they left office and asked for assistance, which in each case he refused, Agnew wanted him to sponsor or finance his book and Ehrlichman wrote twice asking for money for his defense fund. He did not answer Ehrlichman's letters.

His brothers and sisters donated $50,000 each — $250,000 total — to President Nixon's 1972 campaign. But the funds were used in the New York

State campaign which was run by his own GOP organization because he refused to let it be managed by the Committee to Re-elect the President.

Asked about reports that he had helped finance a disruption at the 1972 Democratic National Convention, Rockefeller said "that's not true at all, and I'm glad to have read that the Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski agrees that there is no basis to it."

After Rockefeller completed his testimony a dozen congressmen appeared to endorse his nomination. They included conservatives Sens. John Tower, R-Tex., and Clifford P. Hansen, R-Wyo., and Rep. Robert E. Jones, D-Ala.

Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., said she strongly supported Rockefeller's nomination and his record as governor, although she said there had been several issues in the past on which they had strongly disagreed.

NELSON ROCKEFELLER ... endorsed on third day

For the second day in a row, Rockefeller was questioned closely by Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia.

Despite Byrd's attempts to pin him down, Rockefeller refused to rule out the possibility he might invoke executive privilege at times if he became president.

Rockefeller said he agreed with Byrd that the policy had been abused under Nixon, but he said he wasn't going to throw it out the window just because of that experience.

Reports, staff provided Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Nixon is getting classified foreign policy summaries flown to him at government expense and has 22 persons drawing a total of more than $420,000 a year in government pay checks working for him, officials said Wednesday.

Included among the Nixon staff still on the public payroll are press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, at $42,500 a year, and a butler and maid paid $12,000 and $8,000.

The foreign policy reports are prepared weekly by the National Security Council and sent to Nixon on an Air Force jet. White House press secretary Ron Nessen defended the practice, saying it was done for previous presidents.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, asked about it at a White House state dinner Wednesday night, said Nixon is getting the reports because "the President wants him to." The disclosure about Nixon's government-paid staff came at a Senate Appropriations subcommittee hearing into President Ford's Nixon's post-presidential activities through June 30.

Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., said he knew of no instance in history when a private citizen employed a butler and a maid at government expense.

The "Columbus Oak" at Columbus, Tex., is 40 feet high, 28 feet in girth and has a spread of 120 feet. Its age is estimated at 2,000 years.

He also said members of Nixon's family have hitchhiked rides to California on the plane, which normally carries only the reports. Nessen defended the practice, saying it was done for previous presidents.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, asked about it at a White House state dinner Wednesday night, said Nixon is

FBI probes Watergate file leaks to newsmen

(c) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Federal Bureau of Investigation is probing the source of "leaks" of classified information from its Watergate files to newsmen, a bureau spokesman confirmed today.

He described the investigation, which reportedly has been under way for several months, as an internal inquiry initiated by FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley.

The spokesman also confirmed reports that the office of Leon Jaworski, the special Watergate prosecutor, is being kept advised of the progress of the investigation. But sources in Jaworski's office have given no indication of what action, if any, the prosecutor plans to take in the matter.

Other sources familiar with the investigation said that one of those questioned recently by FBI agents was W. Mark Felt, who retired as the bureau's associate director in June 1973, a year after the Watergate break-in that marked the FBI's entry into the bugging and burglary case and its subsequent cover-up.

Other former officials, including William D. Ruckelshaus, who served for two and a half months last year as the acting FBI director, have also been interviewed by agents working on the case, the sources said.

Neither Felt nor Ruckelshaus could be reached for comment on the investigation.

Felt has been mentioned in discussions about the identity of "Deep Throat," the mysterious government official who provided Washington Post reporters with background information on developments in the Watergate investigation.

But the FBI's former No. 2 official reportedly has assured Kelley that he was not "Deep Throat."

The FBI is understood to be particularly interested in determining the source of disclosures of confidential information about the exploits of Donald H. Segretti, the convicted campaign "spin doctor," and the wiretapping of government officials and newsmen by the Nixon administration.

Party split patch Wilson's first aim

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson tried today to patch up a split within the Labor party over Common Market membership before the dispute swallows his stunning 14 per cent lead in next month's national elections.

Wilson's associate minister, Lord Braxley, resigned under pressure Wednesday in the third day of Britain's election campaign, but political analysts said the move would have only indirect impact on the vote.

The Common Market problem flared Wednesday when Secretary Shirley Williams told a news conference she would quit politics if Braxley vote in a referendum to take the country out of the market.

Wilson, who was also at the conference, tried to head off her response to a reporter's question, but Mrs. Williams, a key member of his cabinet and one of its strongest pro-market advocates, insisted on answering.

Wilson promised recently to let the nation vote "within 12 months" on whether Britain should stay in the market and said the result would be "final and binding."

He sent out word, however, through Labor party officials today that his government has taken no final decision on holding a referendum.

Wilson ordered a general election Oct. 10 — the second time this year — in a bid to win a new five-year mandate and a strong parliamentary majority to deal with Britain's inflation-fueled economic crisis.

Prisoner exchange delayed

NICOSIA (UPI) — The exchange of Greek and Turkish Cypriot prisoners of war was halted today because Greek prisoners held in Turkey have not been transported back to the island, the International Red Cross said.

The Red Cross said Wednesday night the remaining Greek Cypriot prisoners expected from Turkey "have not yet been transferred to Nicosia and it is not foreseen that they will be transported before two or three days."

President Glafkos Clerides, leader of the Greek Cypriot community, and Vice President Rauf Denktash, the Turkish Cypriot leader, were expected to meet Friday to discuss the temporary prisoner exchange interruption.

There was no explanation from Turkish leaders in Cyprus on why the transfer was delayed.

But United Nations sources said earlier the Turks were reluctant to allow able bodied Greek Cypriot men to return to their homes in the northern part of the island, which Turkish forces overran in July and August.

A general prisoner exchange began Monday and about 1,600 captives out of a total of about 5,000 have been exchanged so far.

The Red Cross said it regretted that repatriation of prisoners had to be discontinued temporarily "for reasons beyond its powers."

France reduces imports to curb soaring oil costs

By United Press International

France took the lead in fighting soaring fuel prices today, cutting back oil imports in the strongest action so far by a Western industrial country to reduce soaring energy bills.

The French move marked the first significant step to counter rocketing oil costs since President Ford launched a campaign to pressure petroleum-exporting nations into rolling back prices.

In Washington, Ford said Wednesday high oil prices threatened the stability of the world's economy and called for the third time in a week for prompt international cooperation.

"The problems of inflation and of assuring equitable access to fairly priced resources, for example, threaten the stability of every economy and the welfare of people in developed as well as developing countries," he said.

In Canberra, Australia, the Shah of Iran said his country would lower oil prices if other countries drop commodity prices, but insisted "Nobody can dictate to us; nobody can wave a finger at us, because we can wave back."

The Shah paid tribute to Iran's relations with the U.S. and said friendship with America's arsenal of nuclear arms was "absolutely vital." But he said Ford's comments were "not at all acceptable to Iran."

"We will be ready to provide our energy resources against the Westinghouses and General Motors and General Electrics and all the other generals they have," the Shah said in a speech to the News Club.

Arab foreign ministers conferred in New York Wednesday to discuss mounting international pressure for a drop in petroleum prices, but broke up after 90 minutes without a firm agreement.

Saudi Arabia's U.N. ambassador, Jamil Baroudi, accused critics of the oil-producers of resorting to "passion" to divert attention from world deep-seated economic ills threatening the world.

He said war costs, government spending and excessive credit were major causes of inflation before oil costs quadrupled during the past year to become a significant factor.

In Paris, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing announced a fuel-saving program Wednesday for France, where gasoline already costs $11.78-a-gallon and stock market values have fallen one-third since the start of the year.

France relies on petroleum imports, mainly from Arab countries, for practically all its oil needs. France's foreign trade deficit is expected to be $6 billion this year and the franc is eroding at an annual rate of 17 per cent.

JAMES SCHLESINGER ... denies push

Firms pay no taxes, aide says

(C) Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — Federal Power Commission statistics show that in one year about one-fourth of the major electric utilities "did not pay a dime in federal income taxes," says Sen. Lee Metcalf (D-Mont.).

"If tax advantages were the route to reliable electric service, we would have it now," Metcalf added. He disagreed with those top federal officials who have argued that one way to help utilities solve their financial problems is to increase the current four per cent investment tax credit — which helps buy plants and equipment — to seven per cent.

But Metcalf, the Senate's utility watchdog, said that instead of paying income taxes, the electric companies have "accumulated tax credits which they are not using."

He added that "the electric utilities' utilization rate of investment tax credits generated has steadily decreased, from 91.7 per cent in 1971 to 39.6 per cent in 1973."

US seeks key to rising oil costs

(c) New York Times-News Service

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Wednesday that the United States was not contemplating military action against the oil-producing nations in the Middle East but rather was seeking a solution to rising oil prices through "amicable discussions."

At a Pentagon news conference, Schlesinger also warned that inflation, brought about in part by continuing increases in oil prices, could reduce the military power of the United States and the western alliance.

The effect of the Schlesinger comments was to soften somewhat the impact of the hard-line rhetoric used by President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in separate speeches Monday regarding the oil-producing states, while introducing a new argument about the danger of inflation upsetting the relative balance between the Western Alliance and the Soviet Union.

Ford had warned that continued high oil prices set by the producing nations brought "dangers of confrontation" and could "threaten the breakdown of world order and safety." A similar message was conveyed to the United Nations General Assembly by Kissinger.

The general thrust of the comments of both officials was that high oil prices could disrupt the world's economy and thus lead to international disorder. At no point did the President or Kissinger suggest that the United States might be driven toward military intervention.

In some Arab quarters, however, their statements were interpreted as implicit threats that the United States was contemplating economic war if not military action against the Middle East oil-producing countries.

One senior administration official had speculated privately with reporters earlier this week that some form of military action could not be ruled out, consulting to some conjecture in the press that military intervention was possible.

But both the State Department and Defense Department went to considerable lengths today to dispel any impression that military action was being considered.

Storage sites vulnerable

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "The bunker in which the missiles were stored had been tampered with and the missiles removed," reported the U.S. Army spokesman in Germany.

One senator is concerned they could have been nuclear warheads instead of conventional weapons.

The spokesman was reporting the theft of 90 antitank missiles last month from the Misear Army Base near Heidelberg. Could this happen as well in a terrorist attack on any of some 7,000 to 9,000 nuclear bombs and warheads stored in Europe?

Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., vice chairman of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, thinks so. He said in a Senate speech Wednesday some nuclear storage sites in Europe are vulnerable.

"If a terrorist — and it is not that difficult breaking into one of these depositories — takes one of these bombs and it is heralded all over the world, I am telling everyone that we are going to be in a bad way," said Pastore.

"We have all these readily fabricated bombs laying around, sometimes not only atomic weapons, but we have conventional weapons in the same storage place as well, and the situation is deplorable."

He said Pentagon officials, including Defense Secretary James F. Schlesinger, agreed that storage areas for nuclear weapons must be made invulnerable to terrorist attacks.

Pastore added: "Despite these assurances, it is my serious recommendation that if this situation persists, the only alternative we have is to remove a number of nuclear weapons from NATO or any other place where they may be vulnerable."

The Pentagon will not say where it keeps its nuclear stockpiles abroad. But it is generally known they are located in some, if not all, NATO allies and also Spain — a NATO ally and also Spain — and over Cyprus, the question arose what would happen to nuclear stockpiles.

Schlesinger was specifically asked by newsmen two weeks ago about the safety and status of nuclear weapons stored in Greece.

"Of course," he answered, "we never have stated publicly where our weapons are deployed. But I should provide assurance that whenever there is a risk that is perceived about nuclear weapons, that we take whatever steps are necessary to insure the nonuse of those weapons in unauthorized ways and to the greatest extent possible we provide for the physical security of those weapons."

Aerosol gas check reported

(c) New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Calculations of atmospheric reactions stimulated by the gas from aerosol dispensers have indicated that such substances may already be depleting the ozone that protects the earth from lethal ultraviolet radiation.

The calculations, by a group at Harvard University, follow the recent discovery that these gases, used as aerosol propellants for hair sprays, insecticides and the like, while inert chemically, are highly efficient in promoting ozone breakdown.

The finding has exposed a new and ominous threat to stability of the ozone layer that lies primarily between 10 and 30 miles aloft. There has also been concern that the layer would be depleted by exhaust gases from a large fleet of supersonic transport planes or by extensive explosions of nuclear weapons.

On Sept. 5 Dr. Fred C. Kille, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said that nitric oxides injected into the stratosphere by a nuclear war could wipe out the ozone layer entirely.

Wine and brandy for Soviet oil

MADRID (UPI) — Spain and the Soviet Union have concluded a trade deal exchanging Spanish wine and brandy for Soviet oil, the news agency Europa Press said today.

The report said that under an agreement recently concluded in Moscow, Spain will supply 25 million gallons of wine, more than a million gallons of brandy and 50,000 tons of oranges to the Soviet Union.

In exchange, Spain will receive one million tons of crude, the news agency said.

Solons plan ways to nip Ford plan

(C) Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — Senior members of both the House and Senate are working on ways to break the Ford administration's agreement that gives former President Richard M. Nixon control over his presidential papers and the power to destroy the tape recordings that led to his downfall.

In separate actions Tuesday, the Senate Government Operations Committee voted to order the government to seize the Nixon materials and the House Appropriations committee voted to delay forwarding anything to Nixon in California until after all Watergate trials are over.

The goal in both cases is to assure the special Watergate Prosecutor Leon A. Jaworski will have complete access to the Nixon White House materials.

Under terms of the Ford administration agreement, signed Sept. 6 by Nixon and General Services Administration Administrator Arthur F. Sampson, Nixon would hold the key — literally — to all the documents and tapes.

For three years, the government also would have a key.

Prime rate pared but bankers say action came too quickly

(c) New York Times Service
NEW YORK — The Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., the country's fifth largest bank, announced Wednesday it was lowering the interest rate it charges on loans to the most credit-worthy corporations.

The reduction, the first cut in the prime rate by a giant bank since March, was quickly followed by the Chase Manhattan bank, but it was uncertain how soon others would follow.

Morgan Guaranty lowered its prime rate to 11 3/4 per cent from the peak 12 per cent rate that has been in effect since early July, but it had no comment on the action.

Other interest rates in the money market, however, are coming down recently, and reduction in the prime rate by a major bank this week had been widely expected.

Yet demand for loans has remained strong. Total commercial and industrial loans from banks totaled more than $128.55 billion in the week ended Sept. 19, up $658 million from the preceding week, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported.

The reduction in the prime rate also came after the Federal Reserve relaxed its policy of monetary restraint, a shift reflected in the decline in the interest rate on federal funds — the uncommitted reserves that commercial banks trade back and forth among themselves.

This important interest rate has come down from 13 3/4 per cent in early July to 11 3/4 per cent or a little below, largely as the instigation of the Federal Reserve.

Besides Morgan and Chase, three other banks of widely differing size also announced prime rate cuts — all the reductions to take effect today. However, other bankers indicated that these rate reductions had been made too soon.

Walter B. Wriston, chairman of the First National City Bank, the country's second largest bank, said today that he expected "little will happen" Friday at the bank's regular weekly meeting to set the base rate on corporate loans.

Citibank utilizes a three-week moving average of interest rates on commercial paper, formula that last week called for a base rate of 12 1/2 per cent or perhaps 12 3/4 per cent.

"Our formula will likely still be in excess of 12 per cent this Friday so that if we follow it little will happen though judgment can enter in," Wriston said.

Judgment kept Citibank from sticking to its formula this summer when a strict adherence to mathematics would have pushed the base rate up to 13 per cent or perhaps more.

In Chicago, Richard Peterson, vice president and economist for the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co., also disagreed with Morgan and Chase on the timing of a prime-rate reduction.

"We have been expecting some move to start, but we don't quite see it yet ourselves," Peterson said. "An important factor is the demand for loans, which has slackened modestly but is still very strong," he explained.

In Houston, the $2.4 billion Texas Commerce Bank followed Morgan's lead and said the move was a response to the easing of interest rates influenced by the Federal Reserve.

In Los Angeles, the $28.3 million Manufacturers Bank also went to 11 3/4 per cent. The Western Bank of Commerce, a $10 million bank, went to 11 1/2 per cent.

Land bill scored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spokesmen for 20 conservation and environmental organizations with a combined membership of 4.5 million charged Wednesday a pending House bill would put 600 million acres of public lands "up for grabs" — by mining, logging and grazing interests.

Brandborg, executive director of the Wilderness Society, said the alliance would make an all-out effort to head off House passage of the bill unless it is amended.

The legislation, now pending in the House Interior Committee, would make sweeping revisions of the laws under which the Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service manage government-owned lands.

As approved by a subcommittee headed by Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., Brandborg said, the bill would grant unrestricted power for mining, grazing and logging, with barely an afterthought given to the public interest.

Park, Kidwell exchange views

By United Press International
 A dialogue on how to run the state attorney general's office is emerging from the two conflicting parties for that office.

Incumbent Tony Park, a Democrat, said Wednesday a suggestion of his Republican opponent would jeopardize consumer protection programs and police work.

Park said the consumer protection program is now handled in 42 of Idaho's 44 counties through an agreement between the University of Idaho Home Economics Extension Service and the attorney general's office.

A suggestion from Wayne Kidwell would have the programs in the hands of law enforcement personnel.

Park said while the extension agents enthusiastically accepted the consumer protection duties, he doubted if already overworked law enforcement officials would even consider taking on additional duties.

Meanwhile, Kidwell launched criticism at the attorney general's office for failing to stabilize policies.

Kidwell told the Nampa Lions the state's legal office must stabilize itself, eliminate the constant turnover of lawyer and no lawyer personnel and devote itself to meeting the legal problems of the state.

Democrats campaigning in Soda Springs talked about economics and education.

Democrat candidate for public instruction superintendent, said his visits around the state have helped him learn that people want enrichment programs in the arts and humanities and greater opportunities in career training but mastery of basic skills first.

John Evans, Democratic contender for lieutenant governor, said for the counties of Caribou, Bear Lake and Bannock are in an excellent economic position because of the increased demand for food and its effect on the phosphate industry.

He said the counties must make the product available to satisfy the needs of the state and county and predict an expansion of the industry.

Crop views differ but prospects bad

United Press International
 The beans are black, the corn is white and the prospects are bleak for both farmers and consumers.

An early frost is the latest jolt to the nation's agricultural economy, coming close on the heels of a summer drought and spring flooding, and, while experts differ on the extent of damages exacted by the latest round of malevolent weather, most agreed that it will take its toll on grocery prices.

Canning company officials in Minnesota said prices of sweet corn and green beans were likely to go up by about 5 per cent as a result of this growing season's combination of bad weather.

Indiana Gov. Otis Bowen Wednesday moved to have his state declared an agricultural disaster area because of the combined impact of the freeze, the drought, and the floods, which he estimated cost Indiana farmers $681 million in corn and soybeans.

"The beans are black and the corn is white," one Indiana farmer said.

However, government agricultural experts, while admitting that the nation's drought-depleted corn and soybean crops would be further cut

Mart farm meet asked

BRUSSELS (UPI) — France, acting as chairman of the European Common Market nations, has called the nine farm ministers into emergency session next week to deal with the crisis caused by West Germany's rejection of more money for European farmers, a Common market spokesman said today.

The spokesman said French Agricultural Minister Christian Bonnet, in a note to the other eight ministers, suggested they meet next Monday. Other nations suggested a possible weekend meeting, and the exact date was not fixed.

The West German cabinet, in a surprise move, rejected Wednesday the agreement reached last week by the nine ministers, including Germany's Josef Ertl, to give the farmers an interim raise of 5 per cent in guaranteed support prices, to help them cope with inflation and falling incomes.

Kootenai returns mullied

BOISE (UPI) — State and county election officials headed onto a collision course today over interpretation of election laws as the result of an opinion from the Kootenai County prosecutor.

In an opinion written Monday for Kootenai County Clerk Harold E. Peterson, prosecutor Gary Haman said certain vacancies on the Nov. 5 general election ballot no longer can be filled.

"Despite the opinion of the attorney general issued in 1972 it remains the opinion of this office that the only vacancies which can be filled after the primary election are those which develop by reason of the death, resignation or other disqualification of a person who was a successful candidate at the primary election," Haman wrote Peterson.

Haman based his opinion on the difference between the words "existing" and "occurring" as used in the laws.

At one time Idaho law permitted central committees to fill for the general election ballot vacancies "existing" on their party ballot. That law was changed to read vacancies "occurring" after the primary election.

After outlining his legal reasons, Haman said that "finally, common sense dictates that there must be some cut-off date for placing candidates on the ballot."

"After all, ballots must be printed, not only in the counties, but for the legislative and congressional districts as well as the statewide elections," Haman said.

He said if one followed the attorney general's opinion "it is necessary to conclude that the law permits parties to name candidates up to the day of the election."

"Such an interpretation is clearly absurd and would create an intolerable situation," Haman said.

Help for victims sought

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — A group of private citizens launched a desperate rescue effort today for the victims of Hurricane Fifi, trying to break through the hard hit San Pedro Sula sector in a caravan of private cars and trucks carrying food, medicine and water.

"Rescue workers appealed for increased food shipments in face of a warning by a Honduran relief official that thousands of victims faced starvation in 48 hours unless relief supplies got through. The water situation was even more critical and many of the cars carried water in their trunks."

"The government dispatched an ancient DC-3 transport plane to Tocoa in the northern coastal area where 5,000 persons were reported still isolated. They hoped to distribute the food by two U.S. Army River Command boats and six British river boats sent in from neighboring Belize, the former British Honduras."

"In the past food supplied by an international rescue effort has been air-dropped to survivors but this has led to fights among those scrambling for survival."

Charges on drug agency said false

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Alexander M. Schmidt, head of the Food and Drug Administration, today denied an "absolutely false and irresponsible" charges that the FDA is dominated by the drug industry.

Schmidt made the comment as congressional hearings resumed into allegations by some FDA employees that agency officials almost always question their recommendations to disallow some new drugs on the market and never question decisions to approve new drugs.

'Daredevil' plans balloon crossing

(C) New York Times Service
NEW YORK Times — It is daredevil time again, and Malcolm S. Forbes, president of Forbes magazine, said Monday that in a few months he would cross the Atlantic Ocean in a balloon.

He did not say exactly why he wanted to do this, and he even denied that he was a daredevil. In fact, he said, "the odds that we make it are better than the odds that you make it safely across Park Avenue."

Forbes was speaking at the Waldorf-Astoria, where he had rented the Hilton Room, and then filled it with reporters, people from the companies that had built his balloon, friends, friends of friends, and young men in yellow pants and red shirts with patches on them.

Some of the patches said, "Forbes Magazine Balloon Ascension Division," while others said, "Forbes Magazine Atlantic Project." The most elaborate ones, however, said, "Malcolm S. Forbes" across the top, "Forbes Magazine Atlantic Project" in the middle, and "T. Heinsheimer" on the bottom. Thomas F. Heinsheimer, a young aerospace scientist, is making the trip with Forbes.

"I want to be sure," Forbes said, "that the message gets across that neither Tom nor I have a death wish, nor do we want to out-Evel Evel Knievel."

Someone asked Forbes how much the flight, which will begin in California, would cost.

"I made a bet that that would be the first, middle and the last question asked," Forbes said. He said it would cost $700,000 in direct expenses.

"Direct expenses?" someone said.

Forbes, who not long ago crossed America in a balloon, explained that his magazine already owned some of the things he needed for the trip. He mentioned the magazine's airplane and its public relations men.

"Why are you doing this?" someone else asked.

Forbes, a friendly man, who looks as if he would enjoy organizing a college reunion, wrinkled his brow.

"That's a reasonable question," he said. "This is the ultimate trip — if you like ballooning."

Actually, Forbes and his colleague will cross the Atlantic in a Gondola suspended from 12 balloons, four clusters of three balloons each. Even if two balloons pop, Forbes said, the thing will still work.

Furthermore, he said, he will be in constant radio communication with the outside world so that if the balloon drops into the ocean, everyone will know where it is.

Then, pointing to the Gondola, which was stashed away in a corner of the Hilton Room, looking more or less like a big Ping-Pong Ball, Forbes said that it would float on the ocean indefinitely.

"I think," a rude man whispered, "it must be stuffed with money."

Now, despite Forbes's denial that neither he nor Heinsheimer is a daredevil, they probably are. There have been 12 previous attempts to cross the Atlantic by balloon, and none of them have worked.

Engineer meet slated Oct. 10

TWIN FALLS — J. Phil Campbell, under-secretary of agriculture, US Department of Agriculture, will present the keynote address at the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Pacific Northwest Region, American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

The conference theme and the topic of his address will be "Providing for Today and Tomorrow."

The meeting will at the Blue Lakes Inn, Twin Falls, beginning the morning of Oct. 10. Agricultural engineers from Washington, Oregon, Montana and Idaho, together with agricultural engineers from British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan, will be attending the meetings. ASAE Chairman Allan Humphreys invites interested people to attend the morning session of the meeting.

Other speakers at the opening session will include Dr. Raymond J. Miller, Director, Agricultural Experiment Station, University of Idaho; P. F. Sollars, manager, exploration department, western division, Exxon Co., USA, and Warren

D. Reynolds, chief, planning division, Idaho Department of Water Resources.

Prior to his appointment as under-secretary by President Richard M. Nixon, Campbell was for 14 years the elected commissioner of agriculture in the state of Georgia after serving six years in the Georgia Legislature. He has been a public official or farmer all his life, having become an active farmer with his own dairy operation at the age of 18.

A graduate of the University of Georgia, he built his dairy and cotton operation while a student. He is a member of the board of trustees of the University of Georgia Foundation, and was elected to Phi Kappa Phi scholastic honorary fraternity at the University of Georgia. Campbell and his wife, the former Nan McCreery of Savannah, Ga., live in Fairfax County, Virginia with their youngest daughter of six children. Until moving to Washington, D. C., area, the Campbells had always lived on the Campbell farm at Watkinsville, Ga., and they still consider it their permanent home.

Road closed

SALMON — The timber access roads in the Anderson-Three Mile timber sale area on the North Fork Ranger District north of Gibbonsville have been closed to protect the migratory elk herd.

The area will remain closed to hunting and timber harvest until five days after the hunting seasons ends.

The roads were constructed to provide for timber harvest and that activity will cease also under prior agreement. The legal closure was ordered to protect the elk which move into the area from Montana.

EPA says smokestack pollution removable

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency said today there is now more than enough evidence and actual experience to show that disease-causing pollutants can largely be removed from smokestacks of the nation's power plants.

EPA officials said the breakthrough will allow use of millions of tons of high sulfur coal still mined in the East — and make it unnecessary to strip mine public lands in the West for low sulfur coal that does not put dangerous sulfur oxides into the air when burned.

Philadelphia Electric Co. has signed an agreement to put $68 million worth of such devices into three of its plants. Deputy EPA Administrator

John R. Quarles Jr. called it a "giant step forward," adding that: "With the type of system Philadelphia Electric is installing, this nation can make full use of its abundant supplies of coal without compromising people's health or creating unwanted sludge disposal problems."

Tax cuts eyed to help low income families cope with inflation

(C) Washington Star-News
 WASHINGTON Tax cuts to help low-income individuals cope with inflation are under serious consideration by the Ford administration, informed sources report.
 No decisions have been made, but the sources indicated that chances are growing for such a proposal by President Ford. The idea of tax relief for the working poor has been popular at several preliminary meetings leading up to the general "summit" conference this Friday and Saturday.

Ford is expected to outline his economic program, and probably will announce several specific actions, in a televised speech to the nation within two weeks after the conference, administration officials said. The tentative date for the speech is Oct. 10, 11 or 12.
 The administration had intended to defer low-income relief until early next year, but pressure from Congress and the urgency of inflation and recession problems have persuaded the President to move faster. Democratic leaders have said Congress will hold a session after the November elections to deal with the economy.

 The main objective of tax cuts for low-income individuals would be to help offset their loss of purchasing power to inflation. Some participants in the pre-summit meetings also have proposed tax cuts as part of a "social compact" to induce moderation in wage demands, but the administration is skeptical about the effectiveness of that tactic. Probably the biggest obstacle to tax cuts is concern that the resulting loss of treasury revenue would widen the federal budget deficit and so aggravate inflation. There could be an attempt to offset the revenue loss through tax reform or selective excise taxes.

 The administration's study of tax relief is part of Ford's effort to protect the hardest-hit "casualties" of inflation and of the restrictive policies required to fight inflation.
 While Ford may decide against tax cuts, administration sources said he almost certainly will announce action to help such other "casualties" as the housing industry and electric utilities.

 They said he also will move to change federal laws and regulations that contribute to inflation by impeding competition and raising costs.
 Ford will emphasize in his speech to the nation that he considers a tight budget and moderate credit restraint fundamental to curbing inflation, the sources said.
 But they said he will go beyond the basic fiscal and monetary strategy with "supplemental" measures — possibly including tax cuts — to demonstrate that he understands the need for a well-rounded program.

Defense unit seeks authority

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department will ask Congress for authority to call up as many as 50,000 reservists without seeking congressional approval or declaring a national emergency, according to a top Pentagon official.
 The controversial request would give the president or secretary of defense blanket power to activate the reservists for periods of up to 90 days, according to Assistant Defense Secretary William K. Brehm. Such legislation is expected to draw opposition in Congress, where several recent efforts have been made to limit the president's ability to use troops.
 The proposal, outlined in a speech by Brehm to the National Guard Association in Puerto Rico Monday, is linked to a Pentagon effort to focus more attention on the need for American combat-ready troops. Active duty forces have been reduced to 2.1 million, far below pre-Vietnam war levels.

 It would also apparently speed call-up in such situations as last fall's shipment of military supplies to Israel during the Arab-Israeli war.
 Under current law, the president must first declare a national emergency to move reservists onto active duty or he must obtain explicit congressional approval in advance for a call-up. Other Pentagon officials said this week that the president risks political repercussions either way.

Mini Reviews

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Public Library officials have released mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the library.

"The Property of a Gentleman" by Catherine Gaskin. This is the story of the strange involvement in a great English home of an attractive young woman from a prestigious London auction house. Here is romance and suspense and an inside look at the evaluating, buying and selling of art and antiques.

"After the Planners" by Robert Goodman. Robert Goodman, one of the new group of radical American architects, explains why wave after wave of expensive urban programs are destined to fail — and lays the foundation for designing the liberated city.

"The Americans" by Daniel J. Borstein. In this, the second volume of Borstein's trilogy, the mounting tempo of American life, is pictured in detail, from the beginnings of "vigilante justice" in the burning camps to the making of such instant heroes as Davy Crockett and George Washington.

"I am thinking of Kelda" by Evelyn Wells. Hollywood in the early 1900s was a place where it seemed to Kelda Marstek that all the highest promises of the New World would be fulfilled.

"The Coming Age of Solar Energy" by D.S. Haley, Jr. Two crises face us today and they are more closely linked than we generally realize. On the one hand, we are beginning to choke on the wastes of our machine age and on the other, we are within sight of an end to the fuel for supplying these machines.

There is an H-bomb we might use to solve these pressing problems — our sun.

TICK-TOCK, a mechanical clock. Cost members are crawling in rehearsals for the opening of the CSI theater season tonight. "The End in Sight" is set for 8:15 p.m. tonight, Friday and Saturday in CSI Theater 119. Cost members shown are, from left, Dalain Horn, Luan Clawson, Joe Shultz, Joan Vaux, Jalna Jensen and Molly Curtis.

Play opens tonight

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday the man across the street came up to me while I was outside and said, "Where is your old man?"

I said, "If you mean my husband, he is at work. Why do you want to know?"

Then he said, "Because your husband has been calling up my old lady and trying to get her to go out with him."

I didn't know what to say next, so I said, "Well, he'll be home in about an hour. Why don't you come back and talk to him?" Then I went in the house and cried.

When my husband came home, I told him what happened. He said it was all a big lie, but he looked nervous and took off right away saying he'd be right back. He called me up later to say he wouldn't be home for supper.

Meanwhile, the man from across the street came over again, asking for my husband. He said my husband had called up his wife again and asked her to say she must have been mistaken—that the guy who was trying to get her to go out with him was somebody else.

Hubby needs to explain

I don't know who to believe, Abby. If my husband had stayed home and faced his neighbor like a man, I would have had more faith in him. What do you think?

HURT

DEAR HURT: I think your husband has a lot of explaining to do.

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a lovely woman. She has two daughters, 16 and 17. They are fine girls, but they go around the house half-nude. They stand around in the kitchen in their shorty nightgowns with nothing on underneath, and often run through the house with nothing on top and very little below.

I asked the girls to please keep themselves covered, for the sake of modesty, and they looked at me like I was out of my mind.

My wife says there is nothing shameful about the body. I am now wondering if maybe I am wrong.

I can't help thinking that those young ladies should change their ways instead of me changing my ideas.

OLD GOAT

DEAR GOAT: You're not wrong. They are.

DEAR ABBY: That letter signed "stuck with the kids" could have been written by me. Fresh out of college, I got a dream job. Then marriage, and boom! Two kids, one right after the other. (Both accidents.) I resented them terribly for robbing me of my freedom. Then I felt guilty because I couldn't love them like a mother should.

I never hurt my kids physically, but emotionally I was destroying them and myself.

I tried alcohol, drugs, even suicide. I wrote to you as a last resort, and your answer sunk in. I lucked out with a terrific psychiatrist.

I'm glad you told "stuck" that a seemingly overwhelming situation can be dealt with and to get professional help—but fast! I pray that she does. It was my salvation.

BLESSED

Thank you, Abby.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 332 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Easy target, huh?

UPPER WHARFDALE, England (UPI) — Three elderly women walking on a lonely lane looked — an — easy — target — to — the — masked gunman and he moved in for the attack.

One woman bit him with her umbrella. Another snatched his shotgun. The third ripped off his mask just before he managed to flee into the moors. Police arrested the man a short time later.

TWIN FALLS — The Pulitzer Prize-winning play of 1959, "J.B.," which will be sponsored by the CSI drama department, will have auditions open to any interested persons of "Magic Valley."

Written as recently as 1956 by Archibald MacLeish, and under the direction of Ed Collins, the auditions will be held today and Friday from 3 to 5 p.m., and Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Fine Arts Auditorium.

Anyone unable to attend during those hours is urged to contact the CSI drama department, 733-6554, extension 258 for a different time.

This will be the only show this CSI season with auditions open to the public.

"J.B." premiered in New York on Dec. 11, 1954, starring Christopher Plummer and Raymond-Massey — it takes place under the dark and billowing canvas of a circus tent where a balloon man and a popcorn peddler have decided to play God and the devil. It unfolds into a 20th century reenactment of the biblical story of Job.

A few of the numerous parts available include J.B., a man of worldly success; Sara, J.B.'s "lovely" wife; circus vendors; members of J.B.'s family. There are 12 male parts and nine female parts in all. It will be done with masks and off-stage effects as it is a play within a play.

Collins also indicated many backstage parts were available to run crews, make-up, costumes, props.

The play will run Oct. 24, 25, 26, 27.

Briefs

JEROME — Canyonside Community Club will meet at 2 p.m. Oct. 2 at the home of Mrs. Rufus Halstead.

These are not regular banana bananas but big beautiful BANANA SQUASH, grown especially for Swensen's Magic Markets to counteract the effects of high inflation. By eating squash at 6¢ per pound, three times per day, for six months non-stop, Swensen's calculate that the average family could save enough to get out of debt, or vacation in the South Pacific or save enough to eat steak and potatoes the next six months. The possibilities are fantastic!!

Panel formed to study paper

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus today announced formation of a "blue ribbon study commission" to review the Atomic Energy Commission's draft environmental impact statement on handling commercial radioactive wastes.

Idaho's National Engineering Laboratory is one of three sites being considered by the AEC for a massive project involving expansion of reprocessing facilities and the expanded storage of transuranic wastes.

"Should Idaho be selected, the AEC's plans contain a variety of implications for the state which should be carefully considered," the chief executive said. "There are obviously pros and cons to be weighed against each other as well as long-term and short-term impacts."

"There are many questions to be answered, but the most important is that of what is best for the state of Idaho," he said. "I am putting together a rate team of citizens from a variety of backgrounds under the chairmanship of Idaho State University President William E. Davis to look at this document and prepare comments."

"Dr. Davis said because comments are due by Oct. 28 for the hearing in Germantown, Md., on Nov. 12, the study commission itself will hold no public hearings.

"We do invite anyone wishing to comment to submit written testimony to my office and the committee will consider it along with all other comments," he said.

Both Andrus and Davis urged the AEC to conduct public hearings either in one of the three states or all three states being considered.

"When all three candidate sites are in the West, it makes little sense to hold only one public hearing in Germantown, Md.," the governor said.

He said he and Davis hope there will be at least one in Idaho—hopefully in Twin Falls.

Others on the commission are Al Eguren, Boise, a Boise-Cascade executive; Dr. Al Wilson, nuclear engineering professor at ISU and a member of the Idaho Nuclear Energy Commission; Kent Just, executive director of the Idaho Falls Chamber of Commerce; John Eberline, Burley, managing editor of the South Idaho Press; Charles Rice, Idaho Falls, president of the Eastern Idaho Nuclear Industrial Council, Idaho Falls; Thon Rangen, Buhl, president of Rangen-Feed Inc.; Oscar Field, Grand View, president of the Idaho Farm Bureau; and Cyril Slansky, Idaho Falls, an international authority on atomic wastes.

Braces now status symbol

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A dentist who straightens the teeth of movie stars' children said Tuesday that teeth braces, once the bane of adolescence, are now a status symbol.

"Kids from affluent neighborhoods are eager to get their braces," said Dr. Alfred T. Baum of Los Angeles. He said braces rank up with a youth's first driver license.

"It means they've reached a certain age, that they're now 'old enough,'" he said.

System does work, commander says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ernest Medina, who was William Calley's commanding officer in the case, said Wednesday federal Judge J. Robert Elliott's decision to overturn Calley's murder conviction "proves the judicial system does work."

"I don't think Calley is harmful to himself or society and I am glad to see that a federal judge overturned the verdict," Medina, now a vice president of Enstrom Helicopters Company, Menominee, Mich., said.

Medina, a former captain, also charged that former President Nixon, John Dean, Bob Haldeman, and John Ehrlichman withheld the publication of the Army's Peers' report on the My Lai investigation.

According to Medina, the report, which the Pentagon has never released, should be made public by President Ford.

"I feel the report will finally let the American people know what happened at My Lai," Medina said.

There is evidence in the report that top level officials in the Army and the White House used their "influence" to interfere with the judicial system, Medina said.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The professor won the diamond lead with dummy's king and promptly played the king of spades. East showed suit.

The student gasped. "Haven't you finally gone wrong?"

"Not at all," replied the Professor. "The odds are that the trumps break 3-0, East would hold them. I still have a very good chance to make my contract. If I had played trumps the other way and West showed out I would probably be set."

Then the Professor proceeded to make his contract. He led a diamond to his ace. If West had ruffed it would have been too bad but

West had to follow. Then the Professor led his jack of hearts. East could do nothing better than to rise with the ace and lead the suit back. The Professor won with dummy's king discarding a club from his hand; ruffed dummy's last heart; cashed his ace of trumps; and showed his hand.

He explained: "I am going to play my last high diamond. West's best play will be to discard. Then I will ruff my little diamond and lead a trump. West will have to lead a club or give me a ruff and discard. Either way I will only have to lose one club trick."

today in brief

Accident injures Burley woman
HEYBURN — A Burley woman was injured in a two-car accident early Wednesday morning.

Violante Goodluck, 20, a passenger in one of the vehicles, was treated and released at Cassia Memorial Hospital.

The accident occurred at 8 a.m. at the intersection of Highway 30 and Ninth Street when autos driven by Joseph Howard Jr., 30, and Herbert Johnson, 21, both Buick, collided.

Howard's automobile sustained $500 damage and Johnson's, $150. Minidoka County Sheriff's Department investigated, citing Johnson for failure to yield.

Truby speaks in Buhl
BUHL — Roy Truby, Democratic candidate for state superintendent of public instruction, said today "Too much emphasis has been given to leading Idaho's young people in the direction of college."

Speaking before a meeting of the Buhl Rotary Club, Truby said, "When less than 20 per cent of the students pursue college and fewer than that complete college, it stands a waste of effort, time and money not to more nearly meet student needs."

He said one solution is work-study programs offered now by some high schools in Idaho. "Through these programs, students are able to go to school part-time and work part-time in a business or industry in order to provide them with on-the-job experiences and developmental skill practices," Truby said.

3 inquire
BOISE (UPI) — Only one draft evader and two deserters have telephoned the U.S. attorney in Boise to inquire about conditional amnesty.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Dan E. Dennis said the calls came in within two days after President Ford's announcement that conditional amnesty would be extended in return for a stint of civilian public service.

Burley woman injured
BURLEY — A Burley woman was injured Wednesday morning in an accident at the intersection of 150 East and 200 South here.

Mrs. Cindy Hansen, 21, was taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital where she was treated and released. The accident occurred when auto driven by Roger Scott Hansen, 24, and William Aldrich, 17 collided at the intersection.

Cassia county sheriff's officials say Aldrich was cited for failure to yield.

Shoshone youths with father
SHOSHONI — Two Shoshone youths, missing since Aug. 24, are known to be with their father, Richard Jones.

Mrs. Dale Jones, Shoshone, mother of the boys, said she received a telephone call from Jones, notifying her the boys were with him.

Mrs. Jones said her ex-husband told her they were in California, but she has had no confirmation from other sources to this effect.

The boys were seen at 12:10 p.m. on Aug. 24 getting into a car with a man fitting the description of Jones. He had been under a restraining order from the California courts prohibiting him from harassing the family.

Autopsy set
IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — An autopsy was to be performed today on the body of Eric Sanders, 17, Idaho Falls, which was recovered from the Snake River Wednesday afternoon.

Youth arrested
TWIN FALLS — A Boise youth was arrested on an auto theft charge about noon Wednesday at Twin Falls police, following a chase through southwest Twin Falls.

Charles W. Brakefield, 18, was arrested on charges of grand larceny (auto theft), illicit display of license plates, reckless driving after officers spotted the allegedly stolen car which was driving near West Five Points and gate case.

The chase ended when Brakefield crashed the car, a red 1974 PLYMOUTH Jaguar, into a telephone pole at the corner of Sixth Avenue West and Second Street West. A Twin Falls juvenile riding with Brakefield was also arrested but was later released to his parents.

The car was first reported missing in Boise on Tuesday. Brakefield remained in the county jail today in lieu of a total $6,000 bond.

Basque fete set in Hailey

Chairmen are Myra Riggan, Rose Mallory and Sandra Ovard. The menu will feature roast lamb, chicken and rice, garbanzo beans, potatoes, salad, desert, wine and coffee.

Funding dependency aired at TF meet

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A warning to county officials not to become too dependent on revenue sharing funds was sounded here Wednesday afternoon by Max Yost, president of the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho.

Yost addressed a luncheon meeting of the Idaho Association of Commissioners and Clerks Wednesday in the Holiday Inn. He said in the first phases of the revenue sharing program most of the funds coming to Idaho counties went for capital improvements.

"More and more the funds have been channeled into ongoing county expenditures and revenue sharing has become part of the normal county spending."

"County officials must consider what will happen to their programs and budgeting if they become dependent upon this annual revenue if and when the government withdraws revenue sharing," Yost told the luncheon meeting of about 150 persons.

Hesaid in Idaho out of $27 million received in revenue sharing money $11 million has gone for programs and projects at the state level and the rest to cities and counties. Of the $11 million the state has used $3 million for education and matched this with $8.7 million in state revenue.

Over the state, Yost said, cities have used about 84 per cent of their capital improvement funds for sewer and water projects to benefit environmental and anti-pollution programs. Possibilities for future revenue sharing programs include a city and county participation only, and the extension of the present system for another three years.

Yost also told county officials to study carefully the propositions to be on the November ballot. HJR 114, he said, should be carefully reviewed as it could have a strong effect on counties.

This proposition, Yost said, would provide tax-free revenue bonds for the financing of pollution abatement projects where industrial development is involved and could be used for the repayment system.

Panel discussions Wednesday covered weed control programs with Merl E. Leonard, commissioner from Twin Falls county as moderator, and a discussion of parks and recreation with Ed Woods, Twin Falls County zoning administrator, as moderator.

Way Wilcox, Idaho State University, said counties should be encouraged to help develop leisure time skills and training to help the population know how to utilize leisure time.

Many persons who retire today find retirement is a curse rather than a pleasure because they have never learned skills and techniques for putting their free time to use.

Nursing homes, he said, find this is their major burden because the many residents of the home have no skills with which to fill their long days. He pointed to the increasing amount of leisure time in shorter work weeks, longer vacations and earlier retirements.

Art Rathburn, extension service recreation specialist, urged counties to re-evaluate their recreational resources and take early steps to protect and develop these. He pointed to the new Rock Creek Park in Twin Falls, a former sewer site as an example of such resources which can be utilized for the benefit of everyone in the county as well as many out-of-state visitors.

Sessions opened this morning with committee breakfast and discussions on sanitary landfills. A panel on land-use planning moderated by William Chaney, Twin Falls County Commission chairman, concluded the morning program.

Stanley Smoot, Davis County, Utah, who is president of the National Association of Counties, was scheduled to address Idaho delegates this afternoon.

FOOD EDITORS meet Idaho potato processor
Lyle Taylor in Twin Falls today as part of an Idaho Potato Commission tour of southern Idaho. Among the 13 food editors from throughout the country taking the three-day tour are Leigh Feely, left, of the Dallas Morning News, and Zoe-Connors, far right, of Good Housekeeping magazine. Taylor, Idaho Falls, is a member of the IPC.

Three-day tour

13 food editors learn about famous Gem spuds

TWIN FALLS — Food editors from 13 national publications reaching some 50 million readers are learning about Idaho potatoes this week.

The Idaho Potato Commission has brought the group, all women, to southern Idaho for a three-day tour of processing plants, potato fields and storage facilities.

The tour will be useful mostly as "background information," according to Zoe Connors, director of foods and cookery for Good Housekeeping. "We're interested in the cost of food, nutrition and packaging problems," she said.

The food editors on the tour come mainly from the Midwest and east representing such publications as Redbook, Farm Journal, Woman's Day and American Home magazine. Several large newspapers are also represented.

The editors had Idaho baked potatoes picked from the ground just hours before for their meal at the Blue Lakes Country Club last night. And Robert Reichert of the Idaho Potato Commission said he would furnish potatoes for them every meal if they wanted them.

Right after breakfast this morning, everyone boarded a bus for Kimberly and a tour of the J.H. Henry Produce Co. to see first hand the shipping methods used. An on-scene look at processing procedures was next on the agenda in Heyburn at the J.R. Simplot Co. plant.

After lunch in Burley, the group toured the L. Schritter farm near Aberdeen to learn about the growing, harvesting and storage of potatoes. Mr. and Mrs. Schritter were to host a dinner for the group following the tour.

After a night in Idaho Falls, the editors will tour fields and processing plants in eastern Idaho before heading for Salt Lake and a return to their desks.

Many of the editors were in Idaho for the first time.

"It's marvelous," Leigh Feely of the Dallas Morning News, said.

Agent named for Jerome

JEROME — Jesse Wilson, Marsing, has been appointed to serve as Jerome County agricultural extension agent.

He will replace Wilmer Priest, currently on sick leave, who has submitted his resignation. Priest has served as Jerome County agricultural extension agent since 1963.

Wilson served as Canyon County extension agent in charge of youth work until November, 1973, when he resigned to do agricultural chemicals research and development work for a private firm in Idaho and four other states plus Alberta, Canada.

He was extension agent in Owyhee County from November, 1962, until he transferred to Canyon County in July, 1971. He is a native of Grand View and has a bachelor of science degree in agricultural education from the University of Idaho and a diploma from the Army Language School, Monterey, Calif. He served three years in the Army and was assigned to Frankfurt, Germany, as language interpreter.

He and his wife have five children, including one daughter attending cosmetology school at Nampa; one son who is a junior in high school; a daughter who is a high school sophomore; and a daughter in the fifth grade and a 4-year-old.

Hagerman sets planning meet

HAGERMAN — The second of four public hearings on the recently completed Gooding County comprehensive land plan will be held at 8 p.m. today at the Hagerman American Legion Hall.

Wayne Matthews, chairman of the commission, urged residents to attend the hearing and give their opinions on the plan which will be presented to the Gooding County commissioners for final action after the hearings are completed.

Log cabin donated

OKLEY — A log cabin built here in 1882 has been donated to the Cassia County Historical Society.

The structure will be moved Saturday to the society's museum site in Burley where it will be restored. It was donated by Von Eklund and will be restored by descendants of Andrew Gustave Larson and Annie Sophia Smoquist Larson, the original owners.

According to Rath Larson Millard, chairman of the restoration project, the Larsons were selected by the LDS Church in 1881 to leave Grantville, Utah, and settle in Okley.

AF dam data withheld

Hogg told the Times-News Monday the document consists of about 50 typewritten pages, including supplemental material.

"It was the basis of my recommendation" that Idaho Power contribute $10.55 million to the replacement effort, Hogg said.

Asked if he would release it to the Times-News, Hogg said, "I don't think I'm going to let loose of it... It isn't the type of material that a lay person should try to interpret."

Hogg, however, said he would try to explain the "highly technical" material to a reporter in a telephone or office interview.

Bruce backed up Hogg's refusal to make the document public. "At the present time, we do not feel that we can release it," said today. Bruce, however, stressed negotiations with the spachelolders as the reason for the denial rather than the technicality of the document.

"We are in the process of negotiation," he said. "We will have a full-scale discussion" of the replacement effort during negotiations, Bruce said.

Asked if Idaho Power would turn the document over to the negotiating team if it is requested, he said, "We'll have to wait and see."

Hogg has said the power company's offer was computed by comparing the cost of coal-fired power plant construction with the cost of the firm's proposed hydroelectric plant at American Falls.

The $18.55 million offer represents Idaho Power's savings in opting for the hydroelectric plant, Hogg said.

Several American Falls spachelolders are dissatisfied with the Idaho Power offer. In fact, an environmental protection equipment have pushed the dam replacement costs to about $40 million, nearly doubling original cost estimates.

The environmental equipment is required because Idaho Power's power plant reportedly will endanger aquatic life below the new dam.

Utility can condemn

Idaho Power has contracted to buy coal for 25 years from Wyoming Coal Fields partly owned by Union Pacific, Wyoming BLM records show.

The coal would be transported to the power plant by rail.

Hobbs said the state also owns more than 20 square miles of property just west of Mountain Home, with the Union Pacific line running near or along its northeastern corner. But he said, the state owns no blocks of land near Bliss, but only a few scattered parts of sections.

Ecologically, Bliss probably would be the best site for the plant, according to Maurice Faulbon, head of the National Weather Service Bureau in Kimberly. He said "subjectively" he would expect air pollutants to disperse better due to the higher elevation and stronger winds.

two sites.

The proposed plant, if like its sister Jim Bridger plant in Wyoming, would more than double Idaho's output of noxious pollutants. It would discharge as much nitrogen oxides as given off by 884,000 cars and 11 times as much sulfur dioxides as discharged by the J.R. Simplot phosphate fertilizer plant in Pocatello, according to state, federal and power company figures.

Idaho Power president Bruce said the company has "specific alternatives" in mind if the land board does not agree to sell Boise front property for the company to exchange for BLM land.

"As far as condemnation or eminent domain is concerned, we haven't even thought about it," he said. He said he did not know if the power company had lobbied for the new law granting utilities the right of eminent domain for construction of coal-fired and nuclear plants.

Basque terrorists eyed Henry

(C) New York Times Service
PARIS — The Basque terrorists who killed Premier Luis Carrero Blanco of Spain last December say in a book just published they contemplated killing Secretary of State Kissinger at the same time.

The book, published here in Spanish with the title "Operation Ogra," gives the most detailed account of the planning and execution of the plot by the Basque group, known as ETA, against the man it calls "The Ogre."

In a conciliatory gesture to Spain, with which relations have been strained, France banned the book today.

Kissinger visited Madrid on Dec. 18 and 19, dates chosen as possible ones for assassinating the Spanish leader as he emerged from a Roman Catholic Church near the United States embassy.

Apparently unaware of Kissinger's Jewish background, one of the group said, "If we had been sure that Kissinger was going to mass with the Ogre the following day (Dec. 19), we would have run the risk because it was worth the trouble of only one out of solidarity with the Palestinians."

But not being sure, and seeing an unusual deployment of policemen in the area of the church and embassy, the Basques decided to put off the killing. Kissinger was in Paris when, at 9:30 a.m. on Dec. 20, a tremendous explosion sent the premier's car five stories high to land on a terrace of the church's inner courtyard.

Supported by diagrams and photographs of the explosion and such minute details as false identity cards and keys used for apartments in Madrid, the book is being generally accepted as accurate by the four men who carried out the slaying. Excerpts from the book, published here jointly by two Spanish opposition publishing houses, Maga and Rueda Iberica, have appeared in the Barcelona weekly Mundo, although without mentioning the title.

The book is in the form of a taped interview with the terrorists by an exiled Basque journalist, Jelen Agrite, who was taken blindfold to a hideaway presumed to be in the French Basque country. The killers were understood to have taken refuge in France along with many other Spanish Basques, whose presence has provoked the Spanish government and people in recent protests against French tolerance of terrorist activity in support of Basque demands for autonomy.

None of those responsible for the assassination have been caught. According to the book, the Basques planned at first to kidnap Adolfo Carrero Blanco as a way of forcing the government to release Basque prisoners. The idea came in December, 1972, after the organization learned that he went to mass in the same church, San Francisco de Borja, in Calle Serrano every morning at the same hour.

It was donated by Von Eklund and will be restored by descendants of Andrew Gustave Larson and Annie Sophia Smoquist Larson, the original owners. According to Rath Larson Millard, chairman of the restoration project, the Larsons were selected by the LDS Church in 1881 to leave Grantville, Utah, and settle in Okley.

The couple's first winter in Okley was spent in dugouts, according to Mrs. Millard. The following spring they built a log cabin 18 feet high and 18 feet wide. They lived in the cabin when construction of their log house. The cabin will contribute to the historical group's bicentennial effort. The Larson family plans to complete restoration by 1976.

Lecture tonight

TWIN FALLS — A world renowned poet, Jan VanLeeuwen of Holland, will give a public lecture tonight at the College of Southern Idaho.

The lecture, free to all interested persons, will begin at 8 p.m. in room 115 of the Shields Academic Building.

Gem moisture lack causes concern

BOISE (UPI) — Growing concern was voiced today by two federal agencies over the lack of moisture in Idaho's dryland areas.

The U.S. Agriculture Department and National Weather Service reported that seeding of fall grain crops was being delayed because of depleted soil moisture supplies.

Only North Idaho has received any rainfall so far this month.

The agencies said the rains were greatly needed also for development of forage on fall pastures.

Although the weather was adverse for dryland area, it provided near-ideal harvesting conditions for fall crops.

Here's a look at Idaho activities as reported by the two agencies:

—Harvest of potatoes was as much as one-third completed in southwestern Idaho and well started elsewhere.

—Bean harvest was somewhat ahead of normal and about one-half of the beans were threshed and 80 per cent of the fields were swathed by the end of last week.

—Cutting of third crop alfalfa hay made good progress under the dry weather with around 75 per cent of the harvest complete in the south west and in other areas of the state over one-third of the crop was out of the fields. About half of the alfalfa seed crops has been harvested.

—South western Idaho growers were nearing the finishing stages on the hop harvest. Onion harvest was at peak activity last week.

—Picking of late crop apples was starting in the southwest, but cooler weather is needed to bring deeper coloring to the crop. The prune harvest area generally completed and the plum harvest was in the closing stages.

—Livestock continued to move from the dry summer ranges and the fall rains may be completed earlier than usual unless ranges receive timely rains.

INSPECTING leaves of corn plants heavily damaged by frost is Mrs. Harold Feback, Deerfield, Wis. She said that of the 170 acres of corn on the family farm, there will be a 60 per cent loss. Wisconsin was among hardest hit areas of upper Midwest in early week frost. (UPI)

Farm

Sale limit rapped

BOISE (UPI) — The chairman of the Idaho Wheat Commission Tuesday criticized proposals for restricting wheat sales to foreign markets.

Sam Tyler, Tensed, said agricultural exports, particularly wheat shipments to other nations, have been vital to the United States by bringing about a much healthier trade balance for the nation.

"The recent announcement that U.S. trade deficits were heightened during the past few months due primarily to a slowdown in sales of wheat and other agricultural products is an indication of the importance of these farm sales," said Tyler.

He added that the increases in the price of petroleum being imported to the United States has stepped up the need for continuing wheat exports.

The commission cautioned against any policy which would require cash payments for U.S. wheat. Tyler said he did not oppose cash transactions, but "we must recognize the need for extending credit to purchasers just as in any other normal business operation."

He said that all sales of U.S. wheat and other farm products have been concluded by private export firms. He said that the United States has a big wheat crop this year and foreign markets are vital to the successful marketing of the crop.

SEE OLDSMOBILE '75

Introducing Starline—the little Olds you didn't expect. It's a sporty little four-seater that's smaller than a compact... easy on gas, but a bonafide Supercar in looks, features and spirit on the road!

Delta 88—our full-size family car never looked better—but it's more than just another pretty car. It's really built for the long haul, 7 models, including a convertible, with room and comfort for a growing family.

Meat Omega Sedan—our luxurious compact for driven who live the look and comfort of imported touring cars. It's got the touches you like—but at an Olds price. Choice of three models.

Toronado—America's first contemporary personal luxury car with front wheel drive. It puts you around turns and along straightaways with outstanding handling. Toronado and Toronado Brougham models.

Cutlass Supreme—now our "little limousine" is big on luxury, yet it offers improved operating economy. One of eleven mid-sized Cutlass models—including wagons—that are right for the times.

'88 Regency (below)—the most comfortable, most thoroughly luxurious Oldsmobile ever built. Magnificent "toe long" look, interior, and a distinctive new look in both side window sedan and coupe models.

IT'S A GOOD FEELING TO HAVE AN OLDS AROUND YOU.

We raised the gas mileage in every 1975 Olds model.

Every '75 Olds has a new Maximum Mileage System that helps make it a better car in several ways: Our best mileage in years. Smooth-running engines. Fewer tune-ups and less routine maintenance.

And—better exhaust emission control. The system represents the most advanced engineering and technology we can build into a '75 Olds. It includes a new catalytic converter (see below) and a lot more.

There's a new high-energy ignition, for a hotter spark, and improved ignition performance.

Olds Olds engineers adjusted shift points in transmissions. Installed low-ratio economy gears. And made GM-spec steel-belted radial tires standard.

As you can see, we've done a lot to improve the gas mileage capability of every 1975 Oldsmobile.

New Catalytic Converter—designed for long life.

This "hot" lot of platinum-palladium coated beads provides a new way to reduce most emissions—after combustion, in the exhaust. It does a more effective job—and it eliminates some of the gas-robbing, combustion-stage contaminants of the past. Best of all, it allowed Olds engineers to tune the engines to run smoother and give better MPG than last year.

Cards edge Bucs 13-12 with 4-run 11th

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Pinch-hitter Jim Dwyer drove in pinch-runner Larry Herndon with a sacrifice fly in the 11th inning to clinch a four-run rally Wednesday night and put the St. Louis Cardinals back into first place with a 13-12 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Cardinals trailed 12-8 as they came to bat in the 11th and they scored four runs off Pittsburgh relievers Juan Jimenez and Jim Minshel.

Ted Simmons led off the St. Louis 11th with a single, and Jimenez walked Reggie Smith on four pitches before Ted Simmons doubled home Simmons.

Marshall, making his 103rd appearance of the season before a crowd of 53,306, relieved starter Geoff Zahn with the Dodgers' leading 2-1 in the seventh.

Padres nip SF 3-2 in eighth — Pinch-hitter Johnny Grubb singled home Nate Colbert from second base in the eighth inning to snap a 2-2 tie and give the San Diego Padres a 3-2 win over the San Francisco Giants Wednesday night.

Larry Hardy, in relief of starter Joe McIntosh, got the win to raise his record to 8-4. Mike Caldwell, now 14-5, was the loser.

Beatty joins Lakers

IN GLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Zelmo Beatty has returned to the National Basketball Association as Elmore Smith's backup center with the Los Angeles Lakers.

"I've always considered Zelmo to be one of the smartest players in the game," said Lakers' coach Bill Sharman. "He's always been a starter throughout his career and, if something did happen to Elmore, he's good enough to be a starting center."

Record assault ends

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (UPI) — After battling a series of car and track problems, the North American Racing Team (NART) — including actor Paul Newman — gave up its attempt to break a pass of 34-year-old speed and endurance records Wednesday.

Milt Minter and Hill arrived Monday with a pair of Ferraris. Their ultimate goal was the 24-hour endurance record of more than 161 miles per hour.

Led by British champion Graham Hill, the team had to settle for less than a dozen minor records as a combination of blown engines, shredded tires and choppy sail frustrated the NART attempt to break Ab Jenkins' Mormon Meteor marks set in 1940.

But by 1:40 a.m. Wednesday NART was through, victimized by a blown engine in one car and a tangle of shredded rubber which so delayed the endurance run in the second Ferrari that team officials called it off because they were too far behind the pace to set a record.

Foreman says he's ready for fight after bandage removed

N'SELE, Zaire (UPI) — Heavyweight champion George Foreman pulled a "butterfly" bandage from his right eye and announced "I'm ready to fight today," thus ending speculation about his Oct. 29 meeting with Muhammad Ali in this Central African capital city.

Foreman later said he was "only kidding," but he looked angry during the verbal exchange.

A spokesman for the government of Zaire smiled and said, "Every day is okay, the fight will go on Oct. 29 (Oct. 29 in the United States)." Foreman looked slightly overweight but he appeared unconcerned. "I have five weeks in which to get off any excess weight," he said. Pressed about his fitness, he said, "I could meet him today."

MH-Jerome, Valley-Pilot games feature grid slate

Mountain Home Invades Jerome and Glens Ferry hasn't had a loop start yet. Wendell, which is out of conference in hosting Gooding, and Valley are tied at 1-2 marks. Valley has the better overall record, 3-1 against 2, but Glens Ferry has played two A-2 schools. Buhl Coach Jon Judd and Ray Berryhill of Buhl are pretty good off-the-field friends. For that reason they like to beat each other on the field and usually transmit this enthusiasm to their troops. Buhl brings a four-game mark married only by tie to Shelty last week while Burley is evened out at 2-2. Burley perhaps should expect a little more action in its secondary this time out since Buhl quarterback Cary Schmeckpeper had a fine throwing night against Shelty. Gooding, which has been the biggest surprise — at least from a points-score standpoint — this season, takes that machine to Wendell where it will be looking at one of the biggest defensive interior lines around. On the other side, Gooding will be larger than Wendell's offensive line. Wendell's offense could be about the best this year since its quarterback crew — decimated in an early injury blitz — has had another week to heal. Wendell also must be aware of two things: the passing of Kevin Duff and the proclivity Todd Mink has developed for getting off one good touchdown run each fourth quarter. Kimberly tries something new. For the first time the Bulldogs will get off a bus to play a game — traveling to Shoshone — and with an 0-4 record Coach Rick Erickson is hopeful of shaking the hometown jinx. It won't be easily done. Shoshone presents perhaps the largest backfield and line, average-wise, in the conference. And the Indians have become noted for their defense the past few seasons. In the Magic Valley Conference, pace-setting Murtaugh will travel to Hansen, which Coach Gordon Hogan says is only too little to be 2-2 but probably the best bunch of hitters he's ever coached. Raft River, the other co-leader, will be at Oakley for an afternoon game and this one could be the passing highlight of the season. Both Rick Harper of Raft River and Randy Sharp of Oakley like to throw — and throw the ball well. Declo, apparently seasoning a little more each outing, will be at Castelford. In a key eight-man game, the Richfield Tigers will be at Carey, which might be coming back a little from its injury plagues of two weeks ago. It should be a donnybrook as both those two and Camas County are undefeated in loop play. Bliss, which has lost four starters to injuries including lineman Sam Stroud and quarterback Jay Lender, will be at Rockland where the Bears would like to reverse an earlier two-point loss.

New York nips Boston 1-0 in 10 innings

NEW YORK (UPI) — Elliott Maddox delivered a one-out single that scored Sandy Alomar with the only run of the game in the bottom of the 10th inning Wednesday night to give the New York Yankees a 1-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox behind the seven-hit pitching of George "Doc" Medich. The victory enabled the Yankees to remain only one-half game behind division-leading Baltimore in the American League East while the Los Angeles Angels eliminated the Red Sox from contention. Boston now trails the Orioles by 4 1/2 games with only seven to play. Maddox, who had three of the Yankees' seven hits off loser Bill Lee, came through with his game-winning hit after Alomar had led off the inning with a walk, moved to second on Fred Stanley's sacrifice and advanced to third when Ray White beat out an infield hit.

Orioles rally past Detroit

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Tommy Davis' two-run single with two out in the ninth inning rallied the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-4 win over the Detroit Tigers Wednesday night and kept them in first place in the American League East. After the Orioles had rallied for one run going into the inning trailing 4-2, Davis lined a single into centerfield, scoring Al Bumby by the tying run and Paul Blair with the winning run. Rookie Dan Meyer's two-run triple sparked an early outburst that gave the Orioles their 4-2 lead. Meyer, a left-handed hitting outfielder, tripped after Bill Freshman walked and Leon Roberts singled in the second inning. Aurelio Roldrequez scored Meyer with a sacrifice fly.

Cal Blanks KC Indians win

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Morris Nettles and Bruce Boche engineered a double steal during a two-run third inning Wednesday night when the California Angels scored a 7-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals. "Andy Hassler, 6-11, with relief help from Orlando Pena, recorded the victory.

Indians Best Brewers 8-3

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Jack Brohmer's bases-loaded pinch double with two out in the fifth inning Wednesday night lifted the Cleveland Indians to an 8-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Blyleven, Twins shut out A's

OAKLAND (UPI) — Bert Blyleven threw a four-hitter to give the Minnesota Twins a 1-0 victory Wednesday night over the A's and stall Oakland's drive for its fourth consecutive American league west title. Oakland's lead over second place Texas, which was rained out of a doubleheader, was reduced to 4 1/2 games, and the A's "magic" division-clinching number remained at four. Oakland has six games left to play and the Rangers nine.

Minico tests Pocatello

The Twin Falls Bruins and Minico Spartans, a couple of tarnished entrants in the Southern Idaho Conference football race, will entertain league foes Friday night.

Twin Falls goes against perhaps the biggest team in the league, the Skyline Grizzlies, while Minico is home to the strong Pocatello Indians. Both are rated underdogs.

It will be Twin Falls' first look at a team given a chance to win the SIC title, although the Bruins were unceremoniously ripped by Caldwell last week.

And the test couldn't come at a poorer time. The Twin Falls defense, which has given up an average of 26 points per game, could be without its linchpin corps. Junior Cliff Gumbrel is out for the season with a knee injury. Gee has shoulder problems and Craig Day might be available but slowed by a deep thigh bruise.

Starting offensive guard Stan Williams will be out due to illness and several of the Bruins had the 24-hour flu that's been cursing the school the past week.

Coach Dennis Alquist is certain his charges will make a strong showing against Skyline. "I felt sorry for the kids... in the first half (against Caldwell) last week because I know they're better than that and they do, too."

Asked if he felt his charges were ready to play Caldwell, Coach Alquist said "Yes, I felt they were. I don't think they figured they'd have an easy game against Caldwell. They seemed confident, but not over confident. But they came back in the second half and played very well, I felt."

"It will take a great effort but I think we can beat Skyline," he continued. "They are very big and physical. The Pocatello coach told me Skyline really banged his boys up. I understand Skyline is thinking about an undefeated season and I'd put them up there with Highland, Borah and Capital for the best in the league."

leader, Junior Mike Allison of Twin Falls tops the conference in rushing with 299 yards in two outings and a 7.1 average. His average is third in the league. Bruin Jeff Osborne leads all punters.

Mickey Hanks is back atop the division he led last season — kickoff returns — with 171 yards in eight carries. Hanks also is third in receiving with nine, for 104 yards and a touchdown.

Allison ranks second in scoring with 24 points, two behind leader Jim Combo of Idaho Falls. Should Allison get that title, he'll duplicate a feat his father, Dr. Ed Allison, accomplished for the Bruins in 1951 — the last time Twin Falls won the SIC football crown.

Minico, which has faced two of the super SIC teams, Highland and Capital, showed some improvement against Capital, which might seem an incongruous statement when the final score of 49-23 is knotted.

But the Spartans scored more points on Capital than anyone other than Highland and Borah over the past three seasons.

Pocatello presents a rugged problem, the Indians coming up with a fine 28-25 win over highly-regarded Boise last week. Pocatello also brings two of the top 12 SIC rushers and quarterback Doug Collins has passed for 195 yards in two outings this far.

Offensively, Twin Falls and Minico each have an category

Memphis drops newly-created Steamers

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — J.J. Jennings, the WEI's leading rusher, ran for 77 yards and Arizona State rookie quarterback Danny White hit Roger Wallace with a 15-yard touchdown pass Wednesday night to lead the Memphis

Southern to a 17-3 victory over the Shreveport Steamers in the World Football League.

It was the Steamers' first game in their new home since moving from Houston but the change of scenery did little for them. The Steamers are now 3-9-1 and Memphis, winning its eighth straight, is 11-2.

White, substiting for the injured John Huarte, went all the way in his first professional start hitting 16 of 29 passes for 203 yards and the score. Mixing the running of Jennings and John Harvey with 58 yards, he set the Southern up for a 41-yard field goal by Bob Eiler and a two-yard scoring dive by Willie Spencer.

The Steamers scored on a 45-yard field goal by Charlie Durkee.

Portland surprises Birmingham 26-21

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Pete Beathard rifled a 16-yard touchdown pass to tight end to Christiansen with 35 seconds left Wednesday night to lead the upstart Portland Storm to a 26-21 upset victory over the Birmingham Americans, premier team of the World Football League.

Beathard's heroics overshadowed those of George Mira, who came off the bench in the second half to rally the Americans, only to see his desperation pass fall incomplete in the end zone as time ran out.

The loss left Birmingham tied with Memphis for the Central Division lead at 11-2. Portland is now 4-8-1.

The Storm, revamped with a number of NFL players, converted a pass interception and recovery of a kickoff fumble into two early touchdowns, along with a field goal, to build an 16-7 halftime lead.

Marv Kendrick carried three straight times for 33 yards and a touchdown from the nine after linebacker Rick Redman picked off Matthew Reed's pass at the 50. The score came with 2:14 left in the opening period.

On the ensuing kickoff, Jim Edwards fumbled at the Birmingham 11, Portland recovered and scored seven plays later on Beathard's one-yard plunge.

Birmingham finally scored on Reed's 24-yard touchdown pass to Dennis Homan but the Storm retaliated with Booth Lustig's 19-yard field goal for the halftime lead.

Gerard Williams picked off a Beathard pass with 2:50 left in the third period and ran for 21 yards for a touchdown that put Birmingham back in the game.

Sun batters Sharks

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Tony Adams threw touchdown passes to James McAllister and Be Harris and scored on a 26-yard run Wednesday night to lead the Southern California Sun to a 57-7 rout of the Jacksonville Sharks in a World Football League game.

Adams, a rookie from Utah State, completed 12-of-21 passes for 244 yards and leading the Western Division leaders to their seventh win in the last eight games. The Sun rolled up a total of 549 yards.

In contrast to the last meeting between the two teams when Southern California won 22-19 on the last play of the game, the Sun scored almost at will against the financially troubled Sharks, whose players have not been paid for the last month.

After taking an 8-0 lead on a six-yard run by Kermil

Johnson with 4:27 gone in the game, the Sun capitalized on two interceptions of Kay Stephenson passes by offensive back Jim Bowman for two more scores.

Fumble recoveries by Gene Howard and John Hoffman were also turned into TDs as the Sun rolled up a 46-0 lead at the half.

Adams' pass to Harris was good for 16 yards and a score in the first half. He threw a five-yarder to McAllister for another touchdown. Adams' 26-yard run came with six seconds left in the third quarter to run the margin to 57-0.

Second-string quarterback Gary Vahsen also threw two TD passes, hitting Harris on a 28-yarder and Dave Williams on a 14-yarder.

Jacksonville finally scored with 1:58 remaining when quarterback Reggie Oliver plunged over from the one.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

That it was the great British furniture designer Thomas Sheraton who originated the first twin beds has been widely reported. Not so widely known, however, is the fact that twin beds were originally created for use only in extremely hot summer weather. The record indicates Sheraton had no intention whatsoever at the outset of selling such furniture to people who didn't live in castles.

JAMES E. PEPPER and Oscar Crow want to distill some scotch whisky. But the first, second and third batches didn't taste like scotch. But the taste and aroma were vaguely reminiscent of a brandy made in Bourbon, France, they felt. So they called their whisky Bourbon, and it served their purpose exceedingly well.

BOWLING

Q. "How do you account for the fact that left-handed bowlers tend to win far more tournaments than right-handers in proportion to their numbers?"
A. The right sides of most lanes get a lot more wear than the left sides. Because there are so many more right-handers than left-handers. So said right sides are more apt to be pitted, grooved, bumpy or otherwise uneven. Thus the left-handers enjoy the privilege of rolling on smoother surfaces. That's one theory. Will you buy it?

THOSE OKLAHOMA legislators must have been feeling a bit whimsical the day they passed a law which prohibits the catching of whales in that state.

REMEMBER, chemical oxidation of your body actually manufactures about two cupfuls of water a day.

WOMEN

"Women, especially single girls, widows and divorcees shouldn't ever buy cars. They usually pay the sticker price." So says the nation's No. 1 car salesman, Joe Girard of Detroit. He ought to know. During the last eight years, he has sold more cars than any other salesman. Report is he made $189,000 last year with his personal turnover of 1,425 new machines. Women are too trusting, too gullible, he says.

DID I EVER get around to telling you that there is no known record of any missionary ever being cooked in any pot by any cannibals? A disappointing fact for cartoonists, no doubt. But researchers have tried most diligently to find an authenticated report of such. No luck.

Cities attract Southern blacks

ATLANTA (UPI) — Southern blacks are leaving rural areas for the cities in increasing numbers, according to a study recently released by the Southern Regional Council.

The study said despite the migration of blacks to Southern cities, "the Southern cities did not experience the full range of problems that are associated with Northern ghettos, and there is still a more even distribution of blacks and whites within the South."

However, the study said black population trends in the South "are disquieting," with Southern cities developing white rings around black cores and more blacks making their way into the more affluent suburbs.

The study, entitled "The Distribution of Southern Black Population," was compiled by C. Jack Tucker, assistant professor of sociology at Atlanta University, and Everett S. Lee, professor of sociology at the University of Georgia's Institute of Behavioral Research.

The study also said the South is becoming increasingly white, and growth of black population lags behind that of whites in the 11 states of the old Confederacy — Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas.

"It is likely, however, that the Southern cities are becoming more attractive to blacks and more of those who leave rural areas in the South will choose to remain in the region rather than go to New York, Detroit or Chicago," the study said.

The South, according to the study, now has almost exactly the same proportion of black population as did the newly independent United States in 1790, the year of the first census.

"And for the first time, more than half of the black population lives outside the Confederacy South," the study said.

The study, which was based on black population trends between 1960 and 1970, said Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama and South Carolina led the migration in that decade, while Texas, Florida, Tennessee, Georgia, Virginia, Louisiana and North Carolina gained black population.

Police smash Triad Society

MACAO (UPI) — Police said today they have smashed an organization that sold young women refugees from China into prostitution in Hong Kong.

The acting director of the Macao Marine Department, Capt. Talarrino Saigado, said the organization known as the Triad Society was smashed after five of its members tried to sell a 22-year-old woman escapee from China as a prostitute.

Police said Triad Society members had been active in recent years in controlling refugees from China.

Minister orders military alert

BANGKOK (UPI) — Prime Minister Sanya Dharmasakti said today he has ordered a military alert to ward off any trouble in the next few weeks over ratification of Thailand's new constitution.

At the same time, Sanya issued a nationwide appeal for cooperation from students and other activist groups in maintaining peace on Oct. 14, the first anniversary of the overthrow of the former military regime here.

"I have appealed to all the people, including the students, for peace in our country," Sanya told newsmen after lapsing his appeal to the country's radio last night.

"I asked for cooperation from all parties with different ideas that they should talk to each other peacefully. Don't create trouble," he said.

Sanya's television appeal and the military alert came in the wake of student criticism over the terms of the new Constitution, which will undergo its final and final reading by the National Assembly on Oct. 5.

The students want an 18-year-old voting age, a 23-year-old minimum age for public office and a stricter draft control on foreign troops stationed here.

Under the draft now being considered by the assembly, the minimum voting age will be 20 and a citizen will have to be 25 before he can seek public office.

New department support pledged

(C) Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — President Ford has pledged support to the creation of a new energy and minerals superagency — a department of energy and natural resources — one of his earliest and top legislative priorities for next year, Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton said.

The new department differs in several respects from the one proposed during the Nixon administration.

For one thing, the White House has decided to go to congress with legislation, rather than a reorganization plan, Morton said.

For another, the new agency will include the Federal Energy Administration, formed amid last year's energy crisis.

Further, the more controversial areas of the earlier plan — including the United States Army Corps of Engineers and some portions of the agriculture department — will be discarded in hopes of paving the way for easier passage.

"I don't think it will be catastrophic if the forest service is left out," Morton said. "The main thing is to get energy and minerals in the act."

Reportedly, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Interior Committee, has already been alerted about the thrust of the plan and has promised his support.

The legislation, now being drafted at Interior, is expected to propose bringing together the Energy Research and Administration, which is the heart of the new department. The Federal Energy Administration, and the Energy Research and Development Agency, which includes many of the functions of the Atomic Energy Commission and is now pending in Congress.

A bill creating the new agency was passed by both the Senate and the House and went into conference Wednesday to iron out differences. Chances of passage by the end of this session are estimated as being "50-50."

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, now in the Commerce Department, is expected to become part of the agency.

Morton, who has been one of Ford's close advisers during the transition period, says "the recommendation is not to include the tough issues."

By this, Morton explained, he means agencies such as the U.S. Forest Service, functions of the Soil Conservation Service, and watershed protection — all from agriculture — which has awesome Congressional support.

Elmore bridge completion near

SHOSHONE — The two steel and concrete bridges over the Snake River near King Hill will be completed this month, according to Howard Johnson, district highway engineer.

Gordon H. Ball Inc., Renton, Wash., holds the $2.65 million contract.

Hauling and placing borrow and constructing concrete footings for the 263 foot concrete underpass at the west Bliss to east Bliss projects is being done.

The concrete and pumice block maintenance building and metal shed building at Bliss are now complete.

Steel girders are not complete and preparations are underway for placing the concrete decks at the Malad River steel bridges project on I-80N.

About 75 per cent of the work is now complete on the 8.162 miles of State Highway 24 in east Lincoln County. Base aggregate is being placed at this time.

Also complete at this time is the construction of seal coat on 4.9 miles of US 93 (Russian John Ranger Station to North Galena) and furnishing aggregate in stockpiles at the Halley maintenance yard.

Holmes Construction Co., Heyburn, was the contractor for $12,657,800.

The remaining work of backfilling bridge abutments and installing of guardrail will be completed this month at the bridge approaches on US 93 in the Sawtooth Valley.

Controlled traffic can be anticipated on the 7.9-mile section from Shoshone to Richfield during paving operation.

Another project completed is the section from Jerome to Greenwood and furnishing cover coat material in stockpiles adjacent to State Highway 23 and 50.

Concrete stringers are to be placed this week on the detour prestressed concrete bridge and approaches over the Wood River on East Fork Road.

Controlled traffic can be expected on the Bellevue-Ketchum-Sun Valley section of highway as plantmix operations are underway. The work should be complete this week.

At the Perrine Bridge replacement site, excavation operations for the south abutment is expected to begin this week. Work has resumed.

on the "deadman anchors," located behind the bridge abutments to support the bridge arches during erection.

Miscellaneous finish and cleanup will be done on US Highway 30 at the intersections of Cedar Crossing and Clover Road.

Hauling and placing base aggregate is being done, with no traffic delays at the Idaho to Sweetzer and Cotterel to Idaho area.

At the port of entry I-70 N Junction I-15W to Cotterel, about 95 per cent of the project is complete. The work includes construction of roadway, drainage structures, plantmix pavement, signing and illumination of the area at the port of entry. There will be minor traffic interference.

A cantilever sign assembly at the Heyburn Interchange is being erected and cleanup work is being done there. The remaining work of seeding roadway slopes will not be accomplished until after Oct. 15. This is on the 25.9 mile section of road from Valley Road Interchange to Meridian Road.

The new project includes a contol fence for deer migration along 22.04 miles of Interstate I-80N between Sweetzer I.C. and the Utah line in Cassia and Oneida counties. The work will be done by Fordyce Fencers Inc., Twin Falls, for a contract price of $98,730.25.

Visitors use SNRA

STANLEY — Some 900,000 visitor days of use are expected in 1974 in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area.

Tom Kovalicky, assistant SNRA superintendent, said the total is expected to be 28,500 visitor days fewer than in 1972.

A late spring and heavy snow in the area was one factor in causing the drop.

Kovalicky noted that there had been a more even application of use this season than last with campgrounds filled every weekend during June, July and August.

Use in the Sawtooth Wilderness was fairly consistent with last year with some 12,000 visits.

Kovalicky noted the season is not yet over and final figures will not be compiled until after the hunting season. The SNRA also enjoys a winter snowmobiling recreation season as well.
