Dominican ransom talks deadlocked

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) — Leftist guerrillas and Dominican authorities agreed today to allow two shipments of food daily to the six hostages held by the guerrillas in the Venezuelan consulate under threat of death. Ransom negotiations remained deadlocked.

The guerrillas have threatened to kill the hostages including a U.S. woman diplomat unless the U.S. government pays $1 million for their release and the Dominican Republic frees 27 of their comrades from jail. Several deadlines passed and the negotiations continued.

At one point a guerrilla leader shouted from a window that he would not be responsible for the hostages' fate, and a psychiatrist warned that the man was in an "explosive" mental condition.

The guerrillas rejected a request by the U.S. ambassador that foam rubber mattresses be allowed into the building, negotiators said, but they accepted a new food ration of ham and cheese, soft drinks, cigarettes, and food delivered by Archbishop Hugo Eduardo Polanco Brilo.

The prelate said the guerrillas and the police have agreed on two shipments daily of food and drink, but other than that, he said, "there is no official solution in sight."

Before making the food delivery, the archbishop gathered up a bottle in a yard near the consulate with a new message from the guerrillas, but he declined to reveal its contents after giving it to police.

Miss Hutchison's brother-in-law, Roger Fulling, said in Tequesta, Fla. that he has been assured by the State Department that the captives are being delivered two loads daily of food, drink and cigarettes.

"I have nothing but the highest praise for the way the State Department and the American ambassador in Santo Domingo are handling the situation," he said.

Radamés Méndez Vargas, the convicted hijacker who leads the band, came close to a window in the consulate building at 3 a.m. (MDT) today and startled a group of newsmen doing in the vicinity of the building when he shouted:

"We have come to the limit of our patience and our force. I warn you that we will proceed against the hostages."

He said if his demands for $1 million ransom and safe passage out of the country for his men along with three dozen political prisoners were not met in two hours, he would not be responsible for the fate of his hostages.

The new ultimatum, the third issued by the guerrillas, expired without any apparent action by the guerrillas.

Portuguese Reds score triumph, oust Spinoza

LISBON (UPI) — President Antonio de Spinoza resigned today because of what he called a climate of anarchy threatening Portugal with political and economic chaos. The resignation was a clear victory for the Communist-led left.

The ruling military junta announced that Spinoza would be succeeded by Gen. Francisco Costa Gomes, 59, a political moderate who is chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

Spinoza announced his resignation in a nationwide television speech after losing a power struggle between him and his conservative supporters and the left-leaning young Turks of the army coup that brought him to power five months ago.

Costa Gomes asked Premier Vasco Dos Santos Goncalves to remain in his job, the Information Ministry said. The left-leaning Goncalves, a brigadier general, was considered Spinoza's main foe in the power struggle.

The minister also said the new president will address the nation later in the day.

The end of Spinoza's tenure as president began Saturday when Communist pressure forced him to cancel a scheduled rally for his right-wing supporters. Left-wing vigilantes threatened to break it up and Spinoza cancelled the rally to prevent bloodshed.

Leftists had seen the rally as an attempt by the right-wing factions to depose the military junta and restore the dictatorship that was ousted five months ago.

A statement from the Communist Party, a coalition partner in the Goncalves government, preceded Spinoza's resignation. It said the power struggle had resulted in a "definite victory of the democratic forces."

from politics in the turbulent past days. On Saturday the young officers moved troops and arrested 230 alleged "reactionaries" to forestall what left-wing groups called an attempted coup by right-wingers.

Crash kills Gooding man

GOODING — A 30-year-old Gooding man was killed Sunday morning when a train struck the pickup truck he was driving.

Carl S. Yakovac was travelling west about 8:55 a.m. when the accident occurred. The Union Pacific freight train dragged the truck about one-quarter mile, according to investigating officers for the Gooding County sheriff's department.

Witnesses said Yakovac made no attempt to stop at the crossing, near the west city limits of Gooding.

"I suspect preoccupation or day-dreaming," Deputy Sheriff Bill Bunn said today. Crossing lights were operating correctly before and after the accident and the weather was clear. Bunn reported.

Yakovac's body was taken to Thompson Chapel by ambulance.

Rupert holds heist suspect

RUPERT — Minidoka County officers are holding a suspect in connection with an armed robbery Saturday night at the Allresso Drive-In Theatre north of Burley.

The robbery occurred at 9:30 p.m. at the theatre's ticket office.

According to the Minidoka County sheriff's officers, a small, "dark-skinned man armed with a pistol and wearing a mask approached the ticket booth and ordered the female employee on duty to unlock the door.

When the employee hesitated in obeying the order, the man reportedly broke the booth window and unlocked the door. He demanded "all the money," officers said.

The man's pistol discharged when he knocked a telephone to the floor, officers reported.

The suspect was taken into custody about 1:30 a.m. Sunday according to sheriff's officers, but they would not release the suspect's name or the amount of money taken in the robbery.

Army wants Calley custody

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Army today asked the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to extend an order keeping former Army Lt. William L. Calley imprisoned in the Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., disciplinary barracks for his part in the My Lai massacre. A federal district judge in Georgia ruled last Wednesday that Calley, convicted of murdering at least 22 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai, should be released immediately pending his appeal of the case.

Henry sets October Mideast trip

CAIRO (UPI) — The Egyptian government announced today that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will visit the Middle East starting Oct. 9.

The announcement by the Middle East News Agency said that between Oct. 9-13, Kissinger will visit Egypt, Syria, Jordan and Israel. It made no mention of a visit to Saudi Arabia, which some earlier reports predicted.

Backs Franco

FIGUERAS, Spain (UPI) — Surrealist painter Salvador Dalí, 70, voiced support for Generalissimo Francisco Franco during weekend inauguration of theatre-museum bearing his name.

Dalí said he is prepared to dedicate the rest of his life to fulfilling Franco's wish that the museum become a "mecca" for contemporary art.

McNamara asks more lending money

WASHINGTON (UPI) — World Bank President Robert S. McNamara today proposed to world financial leaders an increase of 125 per cent in money lending over the next five years to help the millions living on the edge of poverty.

In his opening address to the governors of the world bank and the International Monetary Fund meeting in joint session, McNamara said "aid is not a luxury ... aid is a continuing social and moral responsibility, and its need now is greater than ever."

Sirica grants Strachan separate coverup trial

(C) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — Former White House aide Gordon C. Strachan, one of the six Watergate cover-up defendants, will be tried separately from his confederates.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica today "severed" Strachan's case from that of the five other defendants, who are to go on trial Tuesday. Sirica's decision means that prosecution of Strachan will be put off indefinitely.

Strachan's attorney, John M. Bray, has asserted ever since the cover-up indictment was returned that the charges against Strachan — conspiracy, obstruction of justice and lying to a grand jury — were "tainted" by the use of testimony Strachan had given "formal" and internal grants of immunity from prosecution.

Sirica held two days' of closed-door hearings on the issue last summer, and finally concluded that the Watergate special prosecutor's office had not made "impermissible use" of the immunized disclosures. "He refused to dismiss the charges."

Strachan appealed, and a judge in the U.S. Court of Appeals said he found the issues raised by Bray "very troublesome," a strong hint that the appellate court felt that the case against Strachan was legally defective.

The appellate judges said they did not act immediately only because they felt they had no right to interfere with Sirica's case at this stage.

In view of this, the prosecutors filed a motion last week to sever Strachan's case, while Bray renewed his motion for a complete dismissal of the charges.

This morning, shortly after a final closed-door hearing before Sirica, Bray left the court house with an order in hand granting the prosecutors' motion.

Gas tax proposal assailed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ranking members of the House Ways and Means Committee reacted strongly today against an administration proposal to increase gasoline taxes by a dime a gallon as a weapon against inflation.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the tax-writing panel's second ranking Democrat, said if the gas tax plan was included in an overall energy program that was "hard hitting and comprehensive and made sense," it might stand a chance.

"But just 10 cents to raise revenue doesn't make sense," he said.

Rep. Herman Scherebell, R-Pa., ranking GOP member on the committee, was even more skeptical. He said he was strongly opposed to the measure. "I don't think they're the administration too serious about this. It's just a trial balloon."

A White House source said Sunday that President Ford's economic advisers are discussing proposals to hike the gasoline tax and to place a heavy levy on the excessive use of other fuels such as natural gas and oil.

The source said that meetings to discuss these proposals will continue all week.

The tax plan increase was given little chance of survival in Congress by most observers because it would stand almost no chance of getting through the Ways and Means Committee, which must originate any tax legislation.

Buhl banker defends loan purchases by Gem panel

BY BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer
BUHL — The Idaho Endowment Fund Investment Board's purchase of a federally guaranteed loan from the Farmer's National Bank Buhl, was "based on its merits only," according to J. P. Hamilton, endowment board member and president of the Buhl bank.

Hamilton's claim came in response to a story in the Idaho Statesman showing that nearly half of the $3.4 million in endowment funds invested in U.S. Small Business Administration-guaranteed loans went to banks in which board members are officers and own substantial interests.

Citing board records, the Statesman showed that loans totalling $3.2 million were purchased from three banks in which board members own large interests.

But Hamilton denied that any conflict-of-interest situations have occurred with the loans. "To my knowledge there was no inside dealing," he said.

He said the endowment fund board has purchased SBA-backed loans from banks as a matter of course, with no special conditions for such loans turned down except for technical reasons.

Fourteen or 15 small banks operate in Idaho he said. Asked why about half of the SBA-backed loan purchases were made with just three banks associated with board members, Hamilton said that nine banks have had loan dealings with the board. The others, he said, must not have applied for loan purchases.

He said that the $35,000 loan Farmer's National made to Clear Springs Trout Co., Buhl, and then largely purchased by the endowment board has "been a good performer" for the community by spurring employment and aiding a tax-paying industry.

Further, he said the loan was well-secured and a good investment for the endowment fund, Hamilton said.

He said Farmers National applied to the endowment board for purchase of the loan with a pistol and wearing a mask approached the ticket booth and ordered the female employee on duty to unlock the door.

Hamilton said the board has not made all its transaction records public because "our board has been threatened with law suits if we reveal" individual guarantees that go with corporate loans.

"The Statesman has filed a lawsuit to make the board's loan purchase records public. The case was decided in the newspaper's favor in district court but is being appealed before the Idaho Supreme Court by the board.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus — who has full executive authority over the board — has refused a request by Rep. E. V. McEan, R-Ketchum, to order the board to comply with the district court ruling, according to the newspaper.

Chinese Reds observe 25th year

HONG KONG (UPI) — China, celebrating its 25th anniversary, declared today that power struggles "will continue for a long time to come."
The declaration came in an editorial published jointly by the three leading publications on the eve of the national day celebrations and was seen underway for almost a year.
The campaign, which bears some resemblance to the Cultural Revolution launched by Mao in the mid-1960s, centers around the criticism of the ancient sage Confucius and Lin Piao.
Lin, once the No. 2 man behind Mao in the party and concurrently Defense Minister, died in 1971 when his alleged plot to oust Mao was aborted.
"The aim of the movement to criticize Lin Piao and Confucius initiated and led by Chairman Mao is precisely to occupy all spheres of the superstructure with Marxism, to consolidate the dictatorship of the proletariat, to prevent the restoration of capitalism and thus to make certain that our Socialist state will never change its political color," the editorial said. "We must continue to broaden and deepen the movement to criticize Lin Piao and Confucius for a long time."
The editorial referred to

"major party struggles" which have marked the 25-year history of the republic, saying the key issues in each have been on whether the nation stays on the Communist road or reverts to capitalism.
The party's basic line tells us "such struggles will continue for a long time to come," the editorial said.
The editorial basically avoided controversial issues which have divided the party and the nation and called for unity among the various factions of the party and other organizations.

Art Bailey, Hansen, talking about trip to City of Rocks and the lack of signing and roads to the scenic attraction... and overheard, "I wonder when someone's going to drive up in a truck and haul the new bank away."
"I'm really," Lacaze said of the general election; in which he faces Republican Henson Moore. "This'll be our third time down the track and we're just ready to go. I think we'll run another clean, issue-oriented campaign."
Louisiana Supreme Court Justice Pascal O. Calogero held on to his position, fighting off a stiff threat from Jefferson Parish Sheriff Alwynn Cronvich. But the victory was an expensive one for the judge. Calogero, who edged Cronvich with 54 per cent of the vote, said he had to go into debt by more than $70,000 to wage his successful second primary campaign.
The demonstrators largely came from Charleston, South Boston and Hyde Park.
Two white mothers, standing in the shadow of Bunker Hill Monument, said they planned to keep their children out of school for the rest of the year.
"I know its going to hurt his chances for getting a scholarship to college, but he's not going to go to school this year," one mother said.
Sauls radioed he was checking a car Sunday morning, 15 miles west of Green River in Latah. While Sauls was questioning two men after he stopped them for speeding, they jumped him, handcuffed him to a fence, smashed his radio and rolled his car over a cliff.
Deputies said the suspects car roared through here about noon "at speeds estimated at 120 miles per hour." Their wrecked car — reportedly stolen in Denver — north of here.
More than 25 police, aided by 100 posse members and three planes plus a Utah National Guard helicopter combed the foothills for the pair until dark.
Deputies said a local motel owner tipped police two men matching the description had registered at his motel. The suspects were arrested without incident and later admitted stealing the sports car and overpowering Sauls.
Arraignment was pending.

Youth problems cited

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Cardinal John Krol of Philadelphia said today Roman Catholic youth was groping for religious meaning to their lives and the church should use the mass media and liturgy to bring them back to the fold.
Krol was among 10 speakers during the first full session of debate at the World Council of Bishops discussing how to spread the Gospel in the modern world. Pope Paul VI attended the session.
In another speech, Archbishop Samuel E. Carter of Kingston, Jamaica, said the Roman Catholic church may have to reconsider its ban on priests marrying in order to carry out its missionary work.

Vatican officials said the first speeches uniformly stressed the problems of youth and ecumenism facing mission work.
"Youth is experiencing a runaway from the church," Krol said. "But they are not turned off to Jesus Christ. They are not rebellious or irreligious. They are groping."
Carter said mission work was closely linked with the ecumenical movement and that Catholics should relax some prohibitions which had prevented them working with other Christian and non-Christian religions.
"The things we have in common (with other religions) are more important than those which divide us," he said.

Defeat relieves solon

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Rep. John R. Rarick, D-La., one of the staunchest conservative members of the House, will not be returning to Capitol Hill next year — but he's almost relieved that his controversial incumbency is over.
Rarick, who in 1968 was stripped of his seniority by the Democratic party because of his support for Alabama Gov. George Wallace for president, lost his seat Saturday to political novice Joff Lacaze.

"I almost feel like I have had a yoke lifted off my shoulders," Rarick said after the votes were counted in the runoff primary election. "We are all Americans. It's time to wait and sleep and pray over what school boycott for Friday."
The demonstrators largely came from Charleston, South Boston and Hyde Park.
Two white mothers, standing in the shadow of Bunker Hill Monument, said they planned to keep their children out of school for the rest of the year.
"I know its going to hurt his chances for getting a scholarship to college, but he's not going to go to school this year," one mother said.

Bus foes protest

BOSTON (UPI) — Anti-busing demonstrators, some dressed as colonial patriots and others wearing black or green armbands, gathered on historic Bunker Hill today as a court-ordered plan to integrate public school districts entered its third week.
A white boycott of classes remained in effect and thousands of children stayed away from school. Some anti-busing leaders also planned a stepped-up school boycott for Friday.
The demonstrators largely came from Charleston, South Boston and Hyde Park.
Two white mothers, standing in the shadow of Bunker Hill Monument, said they planned to keep their children out of school for the rest of the year.
"I know its going to hurt his chances for getting a scholarship to college, but he's not going to go to school this year," one mother said.

Question

I have no family to look after my funeral arrangements. Is it possible to have your mortuary made beneficiary of my life insurance?

Answer...

Most insurance companies require the beneficiary of an insurance contract to have an actual insurable interest in the life of the insured. This precaution is taken to protect the insured from people who might have no genuine interest in his welfare.
Even though we may have an insurable interest in your life because we are obligated to do certain things for you after death we feel there is a greater margin of safety for you if you have this paid to us through a bank trust. Bank trustees have a permanent existence, whether we or other individuals may pre-decease you; move away, become incompetent or otherwise fail to act in your behalf.

Candidate outlines program for Idaho

HAILEY — Republican gubernatorial candidate Jack Murphy Friday outlined a four-step program Idaho could follow to curb inflation.

Murphy and other GOP candidates, were in Hailey to dedicate a new Republican campaign office.

Addressing the Wood River High School student body, Murphy said limiting government in Idaho is the first step Idahoans could take to curb inflation.

Murphy said the state budget has increased to $197 million from $115 million in the last four years.

"We keep adding more and more state employees," Murphy said "and offer no new service or programs."

Secondly, Murphy said Idaho must develop a policy of self discipline and belt tightening.

In addition, he cautioned against more wilderness areas, referring to Idaho as "a resource state" which must be fully utilized so the economy will remain sound.

Finally, Murphy proposed a reduction in sales tax on food. He pointed to cattlemen going broke while food keeps rising. The tax on food, he said, is a detriment to everyone, especially the fixed income people and the elderly.

Murphy told the student "politics is a smutty word."

"If you don't like what's going on get involved and cast the vote," he said.

Murphy said he subscribes to President Ford's program of conditional amnesty for draft evaders.

"I think for too long we have worried about those men who would not serve and not enough about those who would die — the maimed and the crippled," Murphy said.

Commenting on the pardon by Ford of former president Nixon he said "It was a decision that had to be made."

The US Congress, Murphy said, was bogged down in Watergate and Ford had to make the decision to get the nation going.

"I cannot help think the acceptance of the pardon by Nixon was an admission or confession of guilt of a type," he said.

US Senate candidate Bob Smith, commenting on the US Senate passage Thursday of a national recreation area for the Hells Canyon region, said the forest service is becoming "a greedy land owner."

Smith said he would favor a moratorium at Hells Canyon until the United States can see where it is going to need more energy.

However, with the creation of another NRA, Smith said, easterners would not be sympathetic to Idaho's problem if the need for a dam on the Snake River was proven.

Smith said he was not advocating the construction of more dams on the Snake River. He said he wanted only to take a careful look before jumping into more NRAs.

Sen. John Peavey R-Rupert, disagreed with Smith's stand of NRA designation of Hells Canyon. Peavey said the NRA could not be viewed as a permanent lockup. Congress, he said, would probably be receptive if Idaho was in need of energy and listen to demands if the need was warranted.

Peavey also disagreed with Smith's claim that residents in the Sawtooth Valley should be free to decide their own land use for the valley and develop subdivisions up and down the valley if they choose.

Peavey said he had a cabin on Peit Lake which the forest service was going to buy from him although the forest service told him of their plans before creation of the SNRA.

Peavey said, "We need the NRA in there before we get more Obidians." Peavey and Smith said they were definitely against national park designation for the SNRA.

Smith said it was his understanding after talking to forest service officials in Washington, that the Senate was leaning more to a national park concept for the area.

Smith and Peavey again disagreed on the merits of the Sunshine Initiative which Peavey originated and was instrumental in getting on the November election ballot.

Smith said the initiative would not solve the problem of crooked campaign practices and actually would make financing a campaign more difficult.

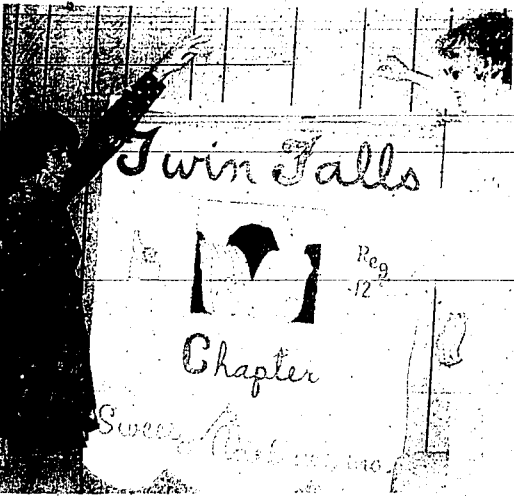

From the lobbying side of the initiative, which states all lobbyists must register, Smith said all legislators know who "the big boys are anyway" and what kind of legislation they're after.

Peavey said the intent of the bill was not for the legislators but for the public, providing an opportunity to see who lobbies for what bills and how much money is put into the effort.

Smith said people intent on protecting the public from political maneuvering should check into US Sen. Frank Church's campaign fund.

Smith he was running a $35,000 campaign and Church a $373,000 campaign.

Resource City: That's how the West was lost

By JAMES P. STERRA
(C) New York Times Service

EAST GLACIER, Mont.—Just sections of the Rocky Mountain West — this country's last relatively unspoiled natural region — are on their way to becoming cluttered and polluted industrial wastelands filled with raw boom towns and social misfits as a result of the drive to exploit the region's energy and mineral wealth.

Because of this — and the continued population influx and the carving up of agricultural and mountain land for housing subdivisions and businesses — the region faces a transformation as basic as when the white man first set foot in the mountain west. Long-time residents, fearing an end to a way of life, say often these days, "Now we know how the Indians must have felt."

Worry over the future of the region is increasing. The Federation of Rocky Mountain States, Inc., a collection of government and business leaders from Montana, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico, voted a unanimous decision during its 10th annual meeting here recently to a stark portrayal of what was under way and what was in store.

Using a hypothetical boom town called Resource City, Rocky Mountains, officials of the federation painted a picture of unsightly landscapes; intolerable living conditions; increasing crime and growing mental illness. "It is not exaggerated," the officials wrote in their report. "The conditions described in this paper do exist and will exist in many sections of our region."

"We now find ourselves facing perhaps the greatest challenge in history for our region's well-being — the loss of our way of life and the breathtaking beauty of our lands while at the same time sharing our rich energy resources with the rest of our nation," said Gov. Thomas L. Judge of Montana, chairman of the federation.

Booms are not new to the region. But the gold and silver booms of the past are being replaced by a new boom — the boom of the last century will seem innocuous in comparison to the massive assault by huge national energy, mineral and real estate corporations now starting.

People, fed up with the clutter and pollution they helped to create in sprawling urban belts on the east and west coasts, are moving into the mountain states by the tens of thousands every month. In the Denver area alone, 1,200 outsiders take up residence weekly, creating many of the same problems they tried to escape.

Dozens of gigantic power-generating plants — each one now called the world's largest — are under construction or being planned. They will gorge themselves with cheap strip mined western coal.

where Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico meet, produces clean electricity and dirty air. The electricity is exported to Los Angeles, Phoenix and other points west. The dirty air stays.

area" that is beyond reclamation. And they say they lack the power at the federal level to stop the creation of such an area because Washington is top-heavy with representatives from the energy-hungry East and West coasts.

most in barren muddy camps, or crammed into canyons and open fields. Trailer rentals cost up to $25 per week. Some motel rooms are rented in eleven-hour shifts.

have cut deeply into supplies for agriculture. Many livestock wells have dried up, dehydrating salt-tolerant solids and toxic levels of trace elements pumped by Resource City are affecting fish, wildlife and livestock, as well as small town supplies.

The need for sand and gravel for construction has caused creation of unsightly pits and further environmental damage around town. Effects on wildlife have nearly been disastrous. Once noted for big game hunting and fishing, the area around Resource City has been disturbed, animals destroyed, their habitats permanently disrupted, their food chains altered. Increased populations have over-used the damaged hunting, fishing and recreation grounds. Vandals have increased. Historical sites and monuments have been damaged.

Gaping open-pit mines, tall steel and aluminum powerplants, trailer camps and makeshift housing, and a maze of roads, railroads, pipelines and power lines have scarred a once esthetically beautiful area.

Land use on wildlife has increased. Irrigated cropland and grazing that attracted tourists, Resource City and its environs no longer attract tourists: Some 30,000 acres have been permanently removed from crop production. Ranchers have sold land for big profits. Others have sold because they can no longer get water. The county assessor says thousands of acres have passed from private to corporate ownership.

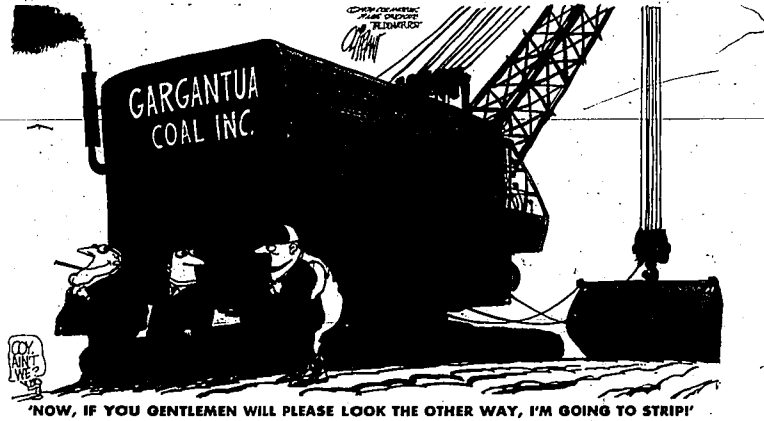

Health — The small local hospital is inundated with patients. Seriously ill patients must be taken 150 miles to the nearest adequate facilities. Overloaded family doctors, having stopped accepting new patients, there are long lines and three-hour waits at the hospital emergency room. The mental clinic's caseload has increased 1,000 per cent.

The local jail has become a holding area for psychiatric patients and alcoholics, and is often used by wives as protection from beatings by their drunken husbands.

Social problems — suicide attempts are way up. There is one divorce for every 1.8 marriages. Crime is up 400 per cent. Drunkenness arrests have tripled, police calls have quadrupled. Other than bars, there are few social activities. Older residents feud with newcomers, but mostly avoid them and exclude them from cultural and social groups.

To solve all these problems Resource City needs more than the big coal mines between the need for classrooms, roads, hospitals and other community facilities and the development of a tax base to pay for them.

The report concludes with a quote by the "mayor" of Resource City: "A core problem for us is that many of the decisions affecting us and our town are made elsewhere by the federal government or by corporations."

Enough pipelines, power lines and rail lines are on the drawing boards to make the region look like the home of some gargantuan spider, ever expanding its web.

Water, in this semi-arid region, is already in short supply. There is a saying here: water flows uphill toward money. The wealth and power of corporations, subdivisions and city governments dwarf the wealth and power of farmers and ranchers, many of whom believe their way of life is on the verge of becoming history as a result.

But not only ranchers and farmers are worried. Governors and other state officials fear that agriculture, the foundation of several state economies, could be irreparably damaged. They worry that hundreds of millions of dollars spent by people visiting the region to see and experience unspoiled natural beauty may eventually evaporate as the landscape becomes scarred and cluttered and the air and rivers change color.

Many officials have charged that decisions made by the federal government and private corporations to exploit the West's resources will lead to the creation of a "national sacrifice

Many people look to state and local governments to control the influx of outside corporations and people. Ironically, however, officials in local government, after decades of promoting growth, often find it difficult to reverse themselves in order to control it.

Concerned academic, business and government authorities say one key problem is that many people are not aware of adverse consequences of energy development already taking place in the region. The Federation of Rocky Mountain States, in its report on Resource City, drew together studies of boom areas like Colstrip, Mont., and Gillette and Rock Springs, Wyo., to portray conditions of a typical boom town four years after the boom begins. Following is a summary of their 21-page report:

Resource City's population has doubled. Teachers and classrooms are scarce. Despite many jobs and good wages, job turnover is high because living conditions are bad. Crime has increased 400 per cent. Welfare recipients have quadrupled.

Housing — It is almost impossible to find homes. Tents are common. More than 35 per cent of the population lives in house trailers, ago now costs $6,000 an acre. Land nearby, on which quick, cheap housing could be built, cannot be used because the federal government, a railroad and a grazing association will not sell it.

Labor — The yearly job turnover is 150 per cent. Local merchants cannot afford to pay the high wages the energy companies pay, so they are short-handed. The new companies have attracted unreliable transients. Absenteeism is high. High school students drop out to work for high wages. One company predicted it needed a maximum of 1,200 workers but ended up needing 3,000.

Transportation — Traffic has increased fivefold, jamming old streets and parking lots. The small airport nearby cannot handle air cargo requirements. Workers often commute 70 miles to the nearest good hospital.

The environment — Clean air and wide-open spaces are gone. Sulphur, nitrogens and carbon dioxide pollutants fill the air; along with tens of thousands of tons of particulates. On temperature-inversion days, Resource City looks like smoggy Los Angeles. Demands for water for the new industries

Senate measure puts tapes in protective custody

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Partly as a result of former President Nixon's illness, the Senate of the United States is now acting quickly to give the government control over his tape recordings and other official documents, which could be destroyed under the Nixon agreement in the event of Nixon's death.

This is a delicate and even painful subject, but it is important to the historical record and therefore the memory of the nation. Also, these tapes and papers are vital to the men on trial in the Watergate and related cases, and to the Congress which is studying legislation to prevent the abuses that led to the Watergate scandals.

Without reference to the Congress, the Ford administration on Sept. 8 agreed that all materials relating to Nixon's tenure as president should be regarded as his personal property, with certain qualifications accepted by Nixon.

Under the terms of the agreement, the former president stated that he would donate a substantial portion of these materials to the federal government at some point in the future. Other provisions of the Ford-Nixon agreement were:

1. Nixon would control access to the materials; any requests for access to them, whether by court subpoena or other legal process, must be referred to him.
2. Nixon has the right to withdraw any materials (except tape recordings) from deposit, after three years from the date of the agreement, for any purpose. As the report of the Senate subcommittee of the committee on government operations states, "Presumably this right to withdraw also encompasses the right to destroy any papers or materials he wishes."

3. In a separate provision, Nixon agreed to donate tape recordings, the federal government on Sept. 1, 1978. This agreement states, however, that this future gift is subject to the condition that all tapes in the government's custody "shall be destroyed at the time of Mr. Nixon's death or on Sept. 1, 1984, whichever event shall first occur."

JAMES RESTON

Finally the agreement provides that, in any event, Nixon can direct the administrator to destroy any tapes Nixon chooses after the gift becomes effective in 1979.

In order to change these terms, the government operations subcommittee has now voted 9-0 for a bill that would (1) "protect and preserve the tape recordings of conversations and other materials prepared... between Jan. 20, 1969 and Aug. 9, 1974... (2) make them available for use by the Watergate special prosecution force and for access by the public under regulations promulgated by the administrator of general services, who would retain custody and control of such tapes and other materials; and (3) make them available to Richard M. Nixon, or his designees, for copying or any other purpose consistent with the administrator's regulations.

It should be clear that this bill—(S-1018) does not attempt to do it. It does not pass judgment on the question of "ownership" of the tapes and documents. Nor does it try to define new regulations for handling presidential papers in the future. This is a special bill to deal with the special and unusual circumstances of the Nixon documents, to preserve the evidence therein for the courts and Congress, and to secure the record of this extraordinary series of events for future generations.

The indications are that Sen. Mike Mansfield, who introduced the original bill, will call it up for a vote within the next couple of weeks and that it will be passed. The question then will be whether President Ford will sign it, thereby wiping out his original deal with Nixon.

Even if he vetoed it, the chances are that Congress would pass it over the veto, for even many members who agreed with Ford's version of Nixon are outraged by the thought that the key records of these past five historic years could be mutilated or destroyed by Nixon or his heirs.

Because of the urgency of the question, the present Senate bill may have to be amended to protect genuine security interests and defend the reputations of officials or citizens from false charges that may appear in letters to or from the former president and his aides. In the last few days, the bill has been changed to assure that no documents should be released if (A) the Watergate prosecutor certifies that disclosure would impair an individual's right to a fair and impartial trial; or (B) if a court of competent jurisdiction finds that disclosure would be prejudicial.

What the Senate is doing here, in effect, is to insist on the government's right of eminent domain, and even if the courts were to hold that Nixon had property rights to the tapes and other documents, provision is made in the bill to pay fair value for the material and retain it in the government's possession.

Thus, the bill is not denying Nixon access to the tapes and documents, but merely taking them into "protective custody" and insisting that he should not deny access to others in the future, who will scarcely believe the contents of this strange epoch in our history, even if they have the documents before them.

Double standard bearers at hearings overlooking Rockefeller mistake

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Nelson Rockefeller told the Senate that he paid not one dime of federal income taxes for the year 1970.

How could a man who had an income of $2.5 million in 1970 find a way not to pay any federal income taxes for that year? Answer: He deducted a million and a quarter given to charity, deducted another half million paid in non-income taxes, and went on to deduct another three quarters of a million dollars in "office expenses."

What happens when a media favorite like Rockefeller reveals publicly that he signed his name to a return declaring he owed nothing on an income of $2,443,703?

The fraud comes into paragraph seven of a New York Times account of the confirmation hearings; the Washington Post buries it at the end of its 15th paragraph on Page 8, swaddled in a qualifying clause about how he paid lots of state and local taxes that year; the television news from studies in Rockefeller Center mentions it not at all; editorial writers shyly avert their gazes.

Of course, when it had been revealed some years ago that Gov. Ronald Reagan, acting within the tax laws, had paid no California taxes, there was a big story and much embarrassment; a similar story brought down Sen. Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio.

And when Richard Nixon's tax returns were first revealed, showing that he paid federal income taxes on a quarter-million income comparable to a man earning $15,000 a year, the furor shook the land at the inequity — even before the legality of Nixon's deductions came into serious question.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Remember how shameful and damaging it recently used to be for a public figure to use tax loopholes to avoid paying his "fair share" of income taxes? Where are the outraged editorialists now, or the caustic television reporters or "appearances-count" columnists, who so enjoyed whipping up populist resentment by shedding crooked taxes for the "little man" who didn't have those smart accountants?

Editorial checks are dry because, you see, Rockefeller gave half his income to charities of his choice rather than pay taxes that would have gone to programs of the people's choice. Because he is a Rockefeller, nobody who was innocent about tax avoidance in other politicians bats an eye at his three-quarter-of-a-million "office expense" deduction, or asks about which part of his earned income it was applied against.

When the double standard is called to their attention, the Rockefellerists will claim that Rocky was generous and Nixon a skinfint, Rocky's deductions proper and Nixon's shady, which may be true but has nothing to do with the point: public figures in these times must consider their public relations in figuring out their tax returns, and failing to pay any federal income taxes at all is hardly setting a good example.

The tax avoidance that was so hateful in the nouveau-riche Nixon is shown to be tolerable in the old-rich Rockefeller. Obviously, what is sauce to cook the goose of a Nixon is not sauce when taking a gander at a Rockefeller.

The Eastern establishment conspiracy theory leaves me cold: Journalism is not ordinarily afflicted with rampant hypocrisy. Perhaps, in the presence of the superwealthy, we make the same assumptions of wisdom and sensitivity we used to make in the presence of the superpowerful.

The political power of Rockefeller wealth is not, as the vice presidential nominee would have us believe a "myth": It is a hard fact, as in the spending of $10 million in a state campaign, as well as a subtle presence that makes us assume uprightness because there can be no motive for anything else!

When CBS broadcast a laudatory two-hour television special on the Rockefellers, the network did not feel the need to disclose that 12 per cent of the Rockefeller stock was in the partial control of the Chase Manhattan Bank, headed by Rockefeller. No hint of pressure was brought to bear. But our modern reverence for the probity of great wealth often causes otherwise alert guardians of public morality to fail to see even the potential of conflict of interest.

Equal treatment under press is as elusive a goal as equal justice under law, but it is usually worth a try. Richard Nixon's unsuccessful attempt at tax avoidance was stupid, selfish, arrogant and technically illegal. Nelson Rockefeller's 1970 federal income tax return was stupid, arrogant, probably technically legal, and — for a billionaire in politics — reprehensible.

Press favoritism that ignores this blunder will not help Rockefeller to be a better vice president. He should be confirmed; but what is being confirmed at his Senate hearings is the suspicion that double standard-bearers are all too ready to overlook in a man "too rich to steal" a mistake that drove them to frenzied fury against one who had been too powerful to care.

'Debauchery' decried

Editor, Times-News: I have been watching the Monday morning quarterbacking of King-Evil's debauchery of Twin Falls and find it as funny as the political games being played by our national leaders in Washington.

A small music festival of 1,500 people at Dierkes Lake in June put on by local people and

Cycle riders require paths

Editor, Times-News: There has been a new trend in Twin Falls cropping up and that is bicycling.

There are almost as many bicycles as cars on the road and that causes a problem. The roads that are in Twin Falls now are too narrow to let bicycles and cars ride together.

A solution is needed so that there are to be less accidents between cars and bicycles and this solution could be found in bike paths. These bike paths would insure that accidents would be cut down between cars and bicycles.

The only means of transportation I have is my ten-speed bike and many a time as I pedaled to and from town I have been almost run over, run into and luckily I haven't had any serious accidents.

I know bicyclists have as many faults as car drivers, like not watching out for each other, bicyclists not stopping and obeying simple traffic laws but even though bikes are classified as a vehicle we still need protection from our street cars and friends.

With the use of bike paths down the main streets of town and other busy roads there would be less chance of accidents between car and bicyclist.

I wish all the people who ride bikes and feel the way I do and are tired of fighting the traffic everywhere they venture out would get involved and contact others who feel bike paths are necessary so that safety can be established between car and bicyclist.

DEBBIE BROD

enjoyed by local people (which was free) angered the local sheriff and fired the minds of our illustrious county commissioners and fair board against any more "disasters."

If it disaster is no violence, compliance with the law, no cost to the city or county, for clean up or repairs to the park (there was no damage and the music loving "hippies" piled the garbage for the promoters to clean up), then I say, let's have more disasters but broaden them to include local people of all ages to enjoy but with more types of music.

But on July 22, the county commissioners granted Evil King-Evil the right, to hold his nice little affair of 10,000 very uncolored people. They helped him by "temporarily" reducing the restrictions of Ordinance 18 which concerns the health and safety of 500 or more people gathering for 18 hours or more.)

This helping hand by our county commissioners caused our county roads to be illegally closed, the lack of security, the thefts of beer from the Jaycees (you get what you deserve in the end.)

The faulty fencing which almost caused a girl to be carried over the canyon, the cost for repair and clean-up incurred by the county and city, the cost of National Guard and state police mobilization incurred by the state, the violence and arson at the jump site, the death of a Colored man at Sashone Park (which they took three weeks to discover even though it was reported soon after his fall), what else?

Was the fear that a Twin Falls grandmother felt that she would lose her car or her car sales? Oh Evil's thing looked so "nice" on TV as we suffer the after effects.

What else? That's enough isn't it? In short, it wasn't worth it, it did nothing for the majority of the residents of Twin Falls County and yet the county commissioners not only supported it they helped by letting Evil act illegally.

Actively helping someone act illegally is acting illegally. Is the sheriff subject to the will of the county commissioners or is he elected by the people to support the law? Does this also apply to the prosecuting attorney?

Also, Ordinance 18 states there must be free parking facilities. Mrs. Qualls charged a parking fee, as I understand it, and that is also a violation of Ordinance 18.

Thus, the county commissioners, sheriff and prosecuting attorney helped Mr. Qualls and Evil King-Evil act illegally. I told them in an editorial in August the same thing I'm stating here, that they would be acting illegally. They even had warrants!

Helping illegality and acting illegally are the same thing to me and is, by the law, called being an accomplice to the crime. Therefore, by the punishments spelled out in Ordinance 18 of a or six months in jail for each day of the offense, our illustrious county commissioners, sheriff, prosecuting attorney and Mr. Qualls should each be subject to a maximum fine of $2,392 or four years in jail.

Where is the honesty, the sincerity, the truth that our leaders are supposed to have? I say that there is none in our present leaders.

If you gentlemen are honest, sincere, and truthful, please reply to this letter, and tell me about your human virtues so I can believe in you again. (There were eight days of King-Evil's all-American fun, I believe.)

Of course, if you don't reply, maybe you can get a full pardon from Gov. Andrus and the lieutenant governor can say that your acceptance of this pardon is an admission of guilt and we'll have played the whole game of "let's play politics."

Cuba nod opposed

Editor, Times-News: I would appreciate it if you would print this open letter to Sen. Frank Church.

Dear Senator Church: I have just read in a reputable news magazine that you, along with Senators Edward Kennedy, Gale McGee, Jacob K. Javits and McGee, have spoken out in favor of releasing America's official anti-Castro policy and give diplomatic recognition to the Soviet-controlled detourship 90 miles off our coast.

I understand that when OAS set up sanctions against Castro's Cuba that they would be lifted only when Castro changed his ways. During the ten years since, Fidel Castro has not made even a token gesture toward change.

I would like to remind you that Castro and his Russian comrades butchered 33,000 people to secure their Communist tyranny in Cuba, that Fidel Castro still boasts openly of holding 20,000 political prisoners in concentration camps, and that Cuba is at this very moment the chief base for Russian arms and Communist subversion in the Western Hemisphere.

Even the leaders of big business seem to have forgotten the fact that Castro expropriated $1 billion of U.S. owned property, and are now ready to do business with him.

I hope everyone will write their congressmen and demand that they oppose diplomatic recognition of Castro's Cuba.

Reader disagrees

Editor, Times-News: In answer to Mr. Rudy Barchas' letter of Sept. 29 in Pastors 71 and 13, it reads, "May those who attack me be defeated and destroyed! May those who try to hurt me be shamed and disgraced."

This is just what Mr. Barchas is doing. Maybe indirectly but to destroy the cross is to attack our Lord. Religious symbols are all around us. I see them every day on car bumpers, in stores and lots of other places. It's Mr. Barchas' privilege to have his opinion of things but as a lawyer he should know he is supposed to have his facts straight before he presents his case.

Now, Mr. Barchas is off base about the star that was on top of city hall at Christmas time. That star only had five points on it. The Star of David has six points. You see I helped build and decorate that star.

The cross was the people's way in biblical days of putting Jesus to death just because he was betrayed. So, Mr. Barchas, I'm of the opinion you will just have to live in a world of Christians.

I know I'm a Christian. I am real happy just knowing Jesus Christ. I'll pray for our lawyer, Mr. Barchas, whether he wants me to or not.

He really needs our prayers if he has this kind of opinion. This is my opinion, nothing else.

Immaturity in politics

Editor, Times-News: As was expected, the honeymoon between Congress and the honorable President of the United States, Gerald Milhous (pardon me) Ford, has just ended the Edsel, is over.

Isn't this the Edsel the political hypocrites applauded 31 times in as many minutes? Repulsive!

My opinion is that the majority of the political "hacks" are emotionally immature. The fact that the politicians fell prostrate 31 times in 31 minutes gave the Edsel the idea that he can do anything wrong, so he started out by pardoning that expletive deleted from San Clemente, (don't tell me how to spell Clemente, because already I know) Calif.

Hypocrite, St. Democracy, No. Also, what a comfort to know that we will have a poor man for vice president for a change: Big Oil Playboys must be turning handsprings and cartwheels at the same time.

No wonder more and more people are turning as to whether it's safe to eat cat and dog food.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH Shot won't ease nerve pressure

BY GEORGE C. THORNTON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thornton: Is there a cure for pinched nerves? I have a lower back and left leg hurt all the time. Sometimes I can hardly walk.

My doctor says it's pinched nerves, and he gives me tablets to help ease the pain. He told me put a board under my mattress which helps some, but if there's a cure I am ready to try anything.

A friend told me there are shots that will cure it. Is that true? Please tell me what to do. — Mrs. M.S.C.

Begin by visualizing what your doctor means by a "pinched nerve." You have an intricate system of nerve trunks which lead to all parts of the body. They carry sensations of pain as well as of other things. Vision, hearing, movement, touch, etc. These represent impulses carried by various chains of nerves.

In your case evidently the sciatic nerve is involved — not too uncommon. It runs down the lower spine and runs down the backs of the legs.

If it is "pinched" — if there is pressure against the nerve, usually somewhere near the place it emerges from the spine — you get a pain sensation which seems to be coming from the lower back or hips or legs.

Where that pressure is being applied is not easy to tell exactly. It may be a protrusion of the spine (the vertebrae) out of position or distorted in shape at the appropriate spot. It is likely the bones are pressing against the nerve rather than protecting it from pressure as they should be doing.

I tried it and it's true!
You know, folks, people gave me a lot of straight. Ten High really is rich, smooth and flavorful... everything I'd expect a true bourbon to be. A great expensive.

Speeding actions protested

Editor, Times-News: Letter to Gov. Cecil Andrus. I feel justified in writing this open letter to you because you failed to acknowledge either of my prior letters to you asking for your help. I think the people you represent should be aware of the public service you provide.

As stated in my prior letters, Officer Blackburn, Badge No. 130 of the Idaho State Police, cited me for driving 80 MPH while I was driving 60 MPH. My 10 year old son, seated next to me watching the odometer (speedometer) in a distance guessing game, testified with me to the officer of the facts but our statements were rejected without consideration.

I also tried to explain that I was driving legally but the officer timed a near look-alike car that had just passed us and identified our car when he gave chase.

When posting bond at the Jerome police station, I asked if I could see a judge that day because of the time, distance, and cost-for-a-return-trip to appear in court. I was advised this was impossible.

For this reason I wrote to you, the commissioner of the department of law enforcement John Bender, and to the magistrate of the court, stating the facts and asking for any consideration or help you or they might give.

The magistrate gave a legal reply. Charges were filed by the state which he could not dismiss and a written statement could not be accepted as it could not be proved by the evidence.

Commissioner Bender referred my letter to Col. K.E. DeYoung, superintendent of the Idaho State Police, who wrote a rather patronizing letter implying that I was guilty until proven innocent and that your radar units are not constant. I quote from his letter of Aug.

23, 1974. "We realize that at this late date it would be very difficult to check the radar and certify it as exactly the same today as it was July 27." This statement indicates a variable. "He also states, "We would have to take the position that the officer was correct due to his length of service and experience in the operation of radar." My letter of help was about the timing of a different car than mine, not the qualifications of the officer.

However, if time in service is the criteria to determine justice, the hours I have spent driving a car over the past 32 years should far exceed the service hours of this officer on radar.

And again governor, you did not even see fit to reply to either of my letters mailed July 27, or September 14, 1974.

I could accept one of three things. First: the officer innocently erred in the reading of the radar. Second: the officer timed the car that passed me and identified me after securing for pursuit.

Third: the officer varied from standards to meet a real or psychological "quota" by citing an out-of-state car at a speed high enough not to be questioned by superiors and under such conditions that the leader of evildoers and practicability of the cited driver is to post bond and forfeit. (a guilty plea) rather than spend the time and much more money to return to court.

I could obtain no help from you so I returned to attempt to protect my rights. The court concurred with the rationale of Colonel DeYoung. I could not prove innocence against the authority of the officer but I

Congress may revoke agreement giving Nixon custody of tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress may revoke the agreement giving former President Nixon custody of his White House tapes and documents this week and slash even more from his transition funds.

The Senate is expected to kill the tapes agreement, announced by President Ford when Nixon was pardoned, and replace it with a bill giving the watchdog General Services Administration (GSA) full custody of all Nixon tapes, papers, documents, memos and transcripts.

The Ford-Nixon agreement gave Nixon joint custody of the materials with the government for five years, and included a provision for their destruction if Nixon should die.

Leaving church

PRESIDENT Gerald Ford and daughter Susan walk arm-in-arm leaving St. John's Church in Washington D.C. Sunday, where Rev. John W. Turnbull offered prayer for "speedy recovery" of President's wife Betty from cancer surgery. President later visited First Lady at Bethesda Medical Center. (UPI)

Cancer spread word expected

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — Betty Ford's doctors may learn today whether the cancer in her right breast has spread to other parts of her body.

Cancer Institute reported that their preliminary study showed cancer cells present. But White House press secretary Ron Nessen said doctors did not have the test results.

Navy Capt. William Fouty, chief of surgery at Bethesda Naval Medical Center, told reporters Sunday he may get the results today of pathology tests on lymph nodes removed along with her breast.

Spokesman Bill Roberts said Sunday that the White House has received about 30 telephone calls from women who have recovered from breast cancer. Most of them wanted to reassure Mrs. Ford that her chances for long life are good.

Gunmen fell girl

BELFAST (UPI) — A carload of gunmen pulled up beside a 16-year-old Roman Catholic girl kissing her boyfriend goodnight at a bus stop early today and shot her, police said.

Catholic violence blamed on campaigning for Northern Ireland's 12 seats in the British parliament. "There had been a sharp downturn in the level of violence but since the election campaign got under way, three persons have been assassinated and 10 others seriously hurt in assassination attempts," the spokesman said.

tapes and documents—but grant Nixon unrestricted access to them.

The House and Senate may also pass legislation requiring Ford to make public anything in the tapes and documents connected with Watergate.

Tough job

CHAIRMAN Alan Greenspan of Council of Economic Advisors said Sunday there appears to be no "quick fix" to U.S. economic ills.

Guideline plans appear unlikely oppose government jawboning on prices. Informed sources said the committee may be used to reach agreement on some form of wage-price restraint in its discussions with Ford.

(C) Chicago Daily News — WASHINGTON — President Ford apparently has discarded any plans to advocate wage-price guidelines as part of his anti-inflation campaign.

Ford's appointments to a new 16-member labor-management committee is a cue to his thinking in this era. AFL-CIO President George Meany, a strong opponent of wage guidelines and controls, leads the list of eight labor leaders on the panel.

The scope of their discussions will include collection of bargaining, promotion of "sound wage and price policies," increased productivity and better job-training programs.

Ford hints tax breaks for worst hit victims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford signaled Saturday that his tax program may include tax breaks for personal savings and for those hit hardest by inflation such as the jobless and the poor.

save their money rather than spend more and inflate the economy further, and it could aid the housing industry by increasing the amount of available mortgage money in savings and loan banks.

caused inequities." However, Ford also could have in mind tax relief for other hard-pressed groups such as the housing industry.

Gert stalls

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Gertrude stalled in the western Atlantic today and forecasters said the storm would probably remain stationary throughout the day, diminishing the immediate threat to the Windward Islands.

He told friends he felt Ford was serious and would not use the committee for political window-dressing as Meany contends was done by Presidents Johnson and Nixon.

Ford also indicated he may seek increased business tax breaks to stimulate the economy and may support a public jobs program to provide work for those put out of work by the current economic downturn.

spend more and inflate the economy further, and it could aid the housing industry by increasing the amount of available mortgage money in savings and loan banks.

Ford's statement that "we must provide productive work for those without jobs" appears to be a reference to numerous calls for a public jobs program to provide work for the unemployed.

Gertrude remains a minimal hurricane and reports brought during phase two of the storm's progress here may have been some weakening," a forecaster at the National Hurricane Center here said.

One surprise in the list of labor leaders was omission of any construction union president. A special panel for the building industry may be created later, however.

Although Ford mentioned no specifics in his closing address to the summit conference on inflation, one paragraph of his speech offered strong clues as to his thinking on possible moves to combat inflation.

The House Ways and Means Committee, now considering a tax revision bill, rejected a proposal by Rep. Donald G. Bratzman, R-Colo., to exempt the first $500 in interest on passbook savings accounts.

Prats slain

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A terrorist bombing attack today killed Gen. Carlos Prats, former commander-in-chief of the Chilean army and member of the cabinet of the late President Salvador Allende, police said.

Another possible—but unlikely—move would be to revise regulations requiring larger down payments and shorter payback periods for consumer loans. This is likely to be strongly opposed by industry, particularly the automobile industry which makes most of its sales on credit.

Man admits deaths

BOZEMAN, Mont. (UPI) — A 25-year-old man confessed to the wilderness slayings of three children and a young woman over a six year period Sunday before hanging himself in the Gallatin County Jail.

David Meirhofer was found dead in his cell four hours after confessing the killings, which occurred at separate times in rugged southwestern Montana.

Thomas Olson, the county sheriff, said Meirhofer admitted killing Susan Jaeger, 7, of Farmington, Mich., and Michael Ransy, 12, Bernard Poleman, 17, and Sandra Smallagun, 19, all of Manhattan, Mont., Meirhofer's hometown.

Meirhofer was arrested Friday and charged with murder and kidnaping in connection with the disappearance of the Jaeger girl and Mrs. Smallagun, who vanished last Feb. 9.

FIDEL CASTRO
... chats with newsmen

Castro dodges most questions

HAVANA (UPI) — An affable Fidel Castro admitted Sunday night that he no longer can make his curvball break but he sidestepped all questions from reporters on Cuban-American relations.

Castro chatted with 29 American newsmen at the Revolutionary Place before his dinner with Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Clairborne Pell, D-R.I.

He wore the fatigue uniform of the guerrilla fighter he has made world famous and posed for pictures seated between the two senators on a couch and smoking a long black Cuban cigar.

Javits tried to introduce him to all the newsmen present from New York. Pell introduced his brother-in-law from Rhode Island as a reporter for the Newport Daily News, identifying him as Columbus Christopher. The brother-in-law's name is really Christopher O'Donnell.

Castro refused to answer political questions on the grounds that he has just given a television interview that will soon appear. So the small talk got around to sports.

Someone suggested the newsmen form a basketball team to play Castro's team.

Someone else, recalling Castro's prowess as a baseball pitcher, asked if he could still make his curvball break.

Castro said something unintelligible about his screwball. But at 47, he quietly admitted that the break has gone out of his curve.

Defense unit eyes Reserve authority

(C) New York Times Service — WASHINGTON — The Defense Department plans to ask Congress for presidential authority to call 50,000 reservists to 90-day active duty without obtaining Congressional approval or declaring a national emergency.

The proposal is part of a new approach toward a long-term, unresolved problem of integrating active duty and reserve manpower into what the pentagon likes to call "a total force."

With the post-Vietnam wr- reduction of active duty forces and the end of the draft, the military has become increasingly dependent upon the reserves and National Guard for quick manpower augmentation. As Pentagon officials have come to realize, however, there are continuing legal, political and psychological obstacles in the way of emergency reliance upon the reserves.

Under existing law, the President must either declare

Committee releases data on meeting surveillance

(C) Washington Star-News — WASHINGTON — The F.B.I. placed the Georgetown home of W. Averell Harriman under surveillance on May 18, 1970, to spy on a meeting of State Department personnel opposed to the U.S. invasion of Cambodia, according to testimony released Saturday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The disclosure was made by former special agent Bernard Wells, a supervisor in the F.B.I.'s domestic intelligence division when it was headed by retired assistant director William C. Sullivan.

Wells testified in July at a closed session of the committee when it was investigating the role of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in the 17 national security wiretaps carried out by the F.B.I. on May, 1969 and February, 1971.

A committee staff chronology of the wiretap episode treats the physical surveillance cryptically in analyzing documents furnished the committee by the F.B.I. It states: "May 18, 1970, Sullivan sends (former assistant director) Delbach a memo reporting what appears to be a physical surveillance of a meeting at Averell Harriman's residence of State Department Personnel, who opposed the Cambodian operation. A handwritten note by Hoover says, "An excellent job. I talked to Haldeman at Key Biscayne."

The surveillance of the meeting at Harriman's home, took place less than five days after H.R. Haldeman, then President Nixon's chief of staff, met with the late F.B.I. director, J. Edgar Hoover, at the White House, and informed Hoover that all future wiretap reports were to be sent to Haldeman at the specific instructions of Nixon.

Documents furnished the committee show that Haldeman told Hoover on May 13 "that in view of the fact that Kissinger would no longer be receiving this material, he (Haldeman) would advise Kissinger of the President's instructions."

Harriman, a long-time diplomat, former ambassador to the Soviet Union and one-time governor of New York, told a Star-News reporter he had no recollection of the meeting. Reached in New York, Harriman said a lot of old friends visited him but that he had no idea that his home had been under surveillance. Harriman added that it was no secret that he was an opponent of the Vietnam war and had been denounced for his stand by former Vice President Spiro Agnew.

A Harriman aide commented, "they didn't have far to go to spy on the governor's house. He lives right across the street from Columist Joe Kraft." Kraft reportedly was a target of the White House "plumbers unit" in the Nixon years.

Committee chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., asked agent Wells if he had written the memo about the Harriman incident. Wells said yes. Asked that the instructions were about the Harriman surveillance, Wells replied, "They wanted to identify the people who came."

Kiwanis doesn't want women

CHICAGO (UPI) — Directors of Kiwanis International voted unanimously Sunday to revoke the charter of a Colorado Springs, Colo., chapter because it has two women members.

The board scheduled a hearing on the matter Feb. 1 in Chicago.

The board had ordered the Cheyenne Mountain Kiwanis Club to remove the women from its membership rolls, but it refused.

"It is against our constitution to have female members," a spokesman for the Kiwanis said. "Our board has to enforce the constitution."

Chapters in Chicago and Great Neck, N.Y., have admitted women members, the spokesman said, but both chapters later ruled the women's memberships invalid on the advice of the international headquarters.

Home gardeners often make the error of planting vegetables too thick. When this occurs the plants should be properly thinned for maximum production.

New ACB to augment navy fleet

(C) New York Times Service — NEW YORK — The Navy is accelerating development of a low cost, multi-mission fighter to reduce the number of aircraft types on carriers and to fill the alleged "fighter gap" caused by the cutbacks in the program.

The strategy, inflation and cutbacks in the midwests at the tail of the new plane designated as the ACB (air combat fighter.)

The Senate recently agreed $200 million to be used for an evaluation of either of two lightweight fighters now being considered by the air force — General Dynamics YF-16 and the Northrop YF-17.

Earlier, the Navy had asked for major aerospace companies for designs for a fighter with a unit "flyaway" cost of no more than $8 million — the projected value of 1975 dollars.

The F-14, newest and most sophisticated navy fighter, can be used for long-range weapons support but the ACB would augment the defense of the fleet. His view of separate missions for the two aircraft simplifies the manner in which strategic thinking changes.

The F-14 was originally planned as an advanced air support fighter. It is now assuming the role of a long range weapons delivery platform and the navy believes it needs another fighter to protect the carriers.

"WE'RE ON THE ENERGY TEAM!"

"In school I learned we need to save energy, so I keep reminding Mom and Dad to turn off the lights. Families throughout America can conserve energy by having oil burners adjusted...insulating their houses, thereby saving fuel...cutting down a bit on air conditioning and heating...repairing leaky hot-water faucets.

"I'm working on new ways to produce energy. And my company is drilling hundreds more oil wells this year than last."

America's oil companies are helping develop other energy sources too—like oil from shale gas from coal, and safe nuclear power. In a couple of years, oil companies will be refining a lot more products.

But there's still a big job to do—let's keep working together.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from "Scared," the 19-year-old girl who just found out that her steady boyfriend had been arrested several times for indecent exposure.

Thank you for your compassionate and understanding attitude. You said, "It's an illness. He needs therapy. Abby, you are so right."

I am a 28-year-old man who was cursed with that illness for about 15 years. It's called "exhibitionism." And it's as difficult to control as alcoholism. In plain language, it's an uncontrollable urge to expose oneself.

I was normal in all other respects and couldn't understand this fierce urge I seemed powerless to control. I won't go into the humiliation, problems with the law and the tremendous guilt feelings I suffered until I finally found a psychologist who knew how to treat this illness. He used the "conditioning" technique, and it cured me.

I have been married for five years to a woman who stood by me through the worst. She gave me the courage to seek professional help, and the strength to stick with my treatment. Had it not been for her, I could not be signing myself...

P.S. Abby, because I trust you, and know that you will not betray that trust, I am signing my real name and address. If you print my letter, please don't divulge my name or location. Although I am cured, and God willing, will never regress, I am still ashamed of my past.

Exhibitionist converted

DEAR EX: Because I feel that an unenlightened society has misunderstood this problem for years I shall print your letter.

Perhaps in an effort not to seem self-serving, you failed to mention an important fact: Exhibitionists are usually gentle, non-violent people, and the chances of their attacking anyone are very, very remote.

But, if fairness to exhibitionists cannot be allowed to go about traumatizing children and shocking adults.

Those who sincerely wish to overcome their problem have an excellent chance of being helped, either by psychotherapy or conditioned reflex therapy. I urge those who are still fighting this battle to seek out such help.

DEAR ABBY: "Stumped Divorcee" didn't know how to say "no" to a man. (She said, "If I had never been married, I could say I was saving myself for marriage, but a divorcee can't say that.") I have a solution for her: I was a divorcee for ten years. I never said "no" to a man because I didn't want him to think I was a prude. And I never said "yes" because I didn't want him to think I was a tramp. So I always said "maybe."

It worked like a charm. I had so many proposals I couldn't count them.

I am now married to the greatest guy in the world.

THE MAYBE GIRL

DEAR MAYBE: I can only assume that your "maybe" turned into a "yes." What was the time schedule on that?

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman who is very much in love with a man who says he loves me, but I can't seem to hang on to him. He disappears for weeks at a time and I don't know how to locate him. When he is gone I just about go crazy. He is gone now.

I went to a spiritual person who does healing, reads palms, and communicates with people who are far away. She says she can help me get my man back for good, but first I have to sign for a program which costs $50 for the first session, and $10 every two weeks after that.

I don't have a lot of money, but I would sure pay that much to get my man back. Should I sign up?

LOUISIANA

DEAR LA: Save your money and report that "spiritual person" to the Better Business Bureau and the Buaco Division of your local police department.

If your man loves you, you won't need a third party to get him back. He'll COME back.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 92700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

notrump is the proper contract to bid if it is another matter, and those pairs who reached six notrump undoubtedly had better than average scores.

Oswald: The bidding in the box shows how we would get there. The first key bid is South's response to the club clubs. The game is made at three points and he wants to make sure that when he does bid spades after North shows an ace and two kings, it is just a four-card suit.

Jim: "North's three-diamond, four-club and four-spades are also important. They make it possible for South to go into Blackwood and to bid seven notrump after North shows an ace and two kings. The earlier bids by North have shown the two kings he holds are the right kings."

Welfare fraud eyed

BOISE (UPI) — The state attorney general's office says Idaho's crackdown on welfare fraud has resulted in a savings of $1.2 million.

The savings have come mostly through collection of child-support from delinquent parents throughout the state. Money also has been recovered from welfare overpayments, primarily in the aid to dependent children category.

Very few welfare recipients make fraudulent claims, officials stressed. However, they also said the state is getting much more efficient in catching those who do and now is issuing more criminal convictions in such cases.

Consumer Co-op finds response slow

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Consumer Co-op, in operation just over a year, is finding the going rough due to a lack of community response.

Members of the non-profit food outlet gathered Saturday afternoon in Twin Falls City Park for a roast pork and pollack harvest picnic, and although there was no talk of disbanding the incorporated cooperative, board and staff members voiced dissatisfaction with the store's effectiveness.

According to board member Dennis Cahill, the lack of response to the co-op is the result of "30 years of supermarket advertising" which has conditioned the consumer to be unaware of alternative means of using his grocery dollar.

The co-op, located in the basement of the Community Action Agency building at 280

2nd St. E., charges a $10 membership fee which then allows members to purchase foodstuffs at a 5 per cent mark-up over the co-op's cost. On many items this represents a major savings over the prices charged by supermarkets. The co-op also grows many of its own vegetables and offers services such as the grinding of raw wheat. Members are asked to spend some time each month helping run the store.

But despite lower costs, the co-op is not attracting a broad-based membership. Cahill said he feels this is due not only to psychological conditioning to supermarkets but also because on certain commodities, such as some canned goods, the co-op is unable to offer significant savings to the consumer because buying in bulk does not equal the lower costs to chain stores for the same goods.

"Everybody is so absorbed in all this (chain-store) propaganda," said VISTA worker Michele Maklewicz, who spends most of her time running the co-op, "that it's going to be awhile before we realize that we're going to have to work together if we're going to survive."

While the thrust of the co-op is to develop a sense of community spirit, Ms. Maklewicz said, "this is very hard for people to understand. It is possible for (different types of) people to work together, to want to know each other." Progress is very slow, but it's real. It's going to be awhile before it's an obvious happy valley feeling in Twin Falls.

But even with the grim talk surrounding the outlook for the co-op, those 60 to 70 co-op members who attended the dinner at the park Saturday seemed to have a pleasant time.

Large portions of roast pork were served along with roast corn on the cob, potatoes, apples and watermelon.

Following the picnic, the remaining roast pork and baskets and bags of fresh produce donated by co-op members were sold at auction.

The event was held at the suggestion of co-op board members Cahill, Ken Thacker, Marge Chupa and Tom Costello as a way of signifying the coming close of the harvest season. A 175 pound hog was purchased at the Jerome auction Friday and spitted and cooked. About 120 invitations were sent to co-op members, inviting them to eat all they could for $1 per plate.

Kootenai leaders, Thompson confer

SPOKANE (UPI) — Kootenai Indian tribal leaders were to meet here today with Bureau of Indian Affairs Commissioner Morris Thompson to discuss the tribe's demands for a reservation and cash settlement for ancestral land.

The Kootenais, who declared "war" on the United States about a week and a half ago as a means of bringing attention to their demands, had earlier refused to meet with Thompson unless he came to their headquarters in Bonners Ferry.

But the Kootenais apparently changed their minds Sunday night when told that Thompson indicated he would support legislation in Congress to return some of the tribe's ancestral land lost 120 years ago.

Walter Moffitt, executive secretary of the Affiliated Tribes of Northwest Indians, attended the meeting scheduled for today at the Davenport Hotel.

The affiliated tribes began a three-day conference in Spokane today, with Thompson addressing the opening session.

Thompson had asked the Kootenais several days ago to meet with him while in Spokane, but they refused at the time saying Thompson would have to come to Bonners Ferry to meet with tribal leaders.

But Moffitt said Kootenai leaders, who had planned to attend the affiliated tribes convention here anyway, decided to meet with Thompson after hearing of his intent to support favorable legislation.

The Kootenais "war" against the U.S. turned out to be a nonviolent one as the only action tribal members took was to set up informational picketing and collect voluntary ten cent tolls on highways in-and out-of Bonners Ferry.

The tribe took the action to bring attention to its demands for a 128,000-acre reservation and up to $2.8 million for some 1.6 million acres of aboriginal land taken without compensation by the government 120 years ago.

While Moffitt said Thompson indicated he would support legislation to return some land to the Kootenais there was no indication how much land the commissioner was considering.

Representatives of about 50 tribes gathered in Spokane for the conference, and were expected to spend much of today's session discussing the Kootenai situation.

Another BIA official, area director Francis Bieseman, met with Kootenai leaders in Bonners Ferry Sunday, but tribal leaders said nothing was accomplished.

Health service aides convene for SV meeting

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI) — The convention of the Idaho Hospital Association continued today with 900 health service personnel attending.

At Sunday's joint session, Kenneth Knapp, associate commissioner of the Health-Services Corp. of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Salt Lake City, told the convention that hospital administrators should learn to use the strength of natural leaders in their work forces.

The "evaluation interview" method used by managers trying to bring about changes in employee behavior doesn't work very well in today's world of proud people.

The reason, he said, is because telling an employee his weaknesses and how he can improve is like telling him "there is only one way — my way."

One way a good manager can avoid antagonizing his employees is by doing his homework, he said.

The manager must get to know his employees so well that he knows who gets together for lunch, who walks together to the bus stop and who gets together socially outside the job. Then he can identify the natural leaders among his employee force, said Knapp.

"By singling out those leaders, praising them, and outlining the goals and objectives he would like to accomplish the manager can put the employees' leaders' strengths to work for him," he said.

The five-day convention ends Wednesday.

Ford pledges cooperation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Turning his attention from domestic to worldwide economic ills, President Ford said today inflation was past the point of toleration and pledged the United States would work for "cooperation, not more isolation," among nations in the monetary field.

Ford made the remarks in a prepared address to the opening meeting of the governors of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund (IMF). He said that Treasury Secretary William E. Simon would offer "greater detail" on the U.S. policies and proposed solutions.

Ford's speech came two days after completion of his economic summit conference at the White House which concentrated on the domestic problems.

"The problems that confront us today are serious and complex — a worldwide inflation at a rate far in excess of what we can tolerate; unparalleled disruption in the supply of the world's major commodities; and severe hindrances to the real growth and progress of many nations, including in particular, some of the poorest among us," Ford said in his IMF address.

Beet harvest nears

TWIN FALLS — The annual beet harvest is scheduled to begin Oct. 10, according to Amalgamated Sugar plant manager Robert Day.

The sugar plant will open Oct. 14, Day said. Beet acreage this year is down 10 per cent from last year, so the harvest should be short, according to Day.

If today's prices hold, growers will receive $50 per ton, up from $35 a ton for last year's harvest and around $19 a ton for 1972 beets, he said.

Because of the light crop not all receiving stations will start taking beets as soon as the harvest begins. Growers who have any questions should contact their field man, Day said.

Gem rate high

BOISE (UPI) — More than 20 per cent of the railroad crossing accidents in the 13 western states served by Union Pacific Railroad over the past five years occurred in Idaho.

Dick Lohrer, assistant public relations director for UPR, says, "at that time span 63 persons have died at Gem State railroad crossings."

Lohrer says he does not know why so many people drive into trouble in Idaho. "People stop at any other flashing red light in town. Why don't they stop for railroad lights? They'll stop for a traffic light even though there's no traffic, but they seem to think it's okay to run a rail crossing light as long as there's a chance of beating the train."

Plunkett leads surprising Patriots over Rams 20-14

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Jim Plunkett's second touchdown pass, a 21-yarder to former Stanford batterymate Randy Vataha, gave the surprising New England Patriots a 20-14 victory Sunday over the heavily favored Los Angeles Rams.

The victory New England's third without a loss, was preserved in the last two minutes of play by a Prentice McCray interception at the Rams' six.

Plunkett, 14 for 25 for 189 yards, won the game at 3:56 of the final period on a play that brought the Rams back into the bench. Vataha, who had dropped a long pass in the second period and had not played since, came into the game on a second period drive and cut across the middle, snaring the ball from defensive back Dave Elmendorf at the three and spun over the top.

The Patriots' other touchdown came on a second period pass of 20 yards from Plunkett to wide receiver Darryl Singley. New England also got third period field goals of 39 and 23 yards from rookie John Smith.

Packers defeat Detroit 21-19

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Chester Marcol kicked a 22-yard field goal, his fourth of the game, with 1:03 to play Sunday to lift the mistake-prone Green Bay Packers to a 21-19 victory over the Detroit Lions.

The Packers trailed their NFC Central Division rivals through most of the game, despite holding a slight statistical advantage. Green Bay's errors led to 13 Detroit points.

The final margin actually proved to be a safety scored in the second quarter, when Ted Hendricks blocked a punt by Herman Weaver and the ball bounced out of the end zone for two points.

Green Bay fumbles set up two Mann field goals and Charley Weaver intercepted a Tague pass to lead the way to the only Lions' touchdown.

New Orleans edges Atlanta Falcons

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The New Orleans Saints recovered a fumble on the Atlanta eighth-yard line with less than six minutes left and Jess Phillips scored on the next play Sunday to give the Saints a 14-13 victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

Miller posts 8th win for PGA season money record

NAPA, Calif. (UPI) — Johnny Miller, playing his home Silverado north course the way he said he would, closed out Billy Casper and Lee Trevino with a six-under-par 68 Sunday to win the $150,000 Kaiser International Open by eight strokes for his eighth victory of the year and a single season money winning record.

The 29-year-old Miller, who lives off the 12th fairway of the north course, said all he had to do to win the Kaiser was to shoot at least a 69 on each of the three rounds on that layout and he would take his chances on victory. It turned out as he planned with his final round 66 including seven birdies and one bogey on a card of 31-38.

Miller was one of the most lopsided victors of the year. Only Trevino, who won the New Orleans Open by eight shots, had had as big an edge in any event on the 1974 tour.

Trevino, the PGA champ, finished with a five-under-par 67 to tie the faltering Casper, who played even par in the final round, for second place.

Miller's 73-hole score was in the final-round 271 and it won him $300,000. Casper, the third winning money winner of all time, and Trevino finished at 279 and each won $10,650.

Miller's play this year has been phenomenal. His eighth victory—the first time anyone has won by more than eight strokes since Arnold Palmer in 1960—came in the U.S., and in those 20 starts he has finished in the top ten 11 times. Only Byron Nelson, who won 16 tournaments in 1945, had ever won more than eight in a single season.

The $300,000 Miller won Sunday boosted his 1974 earnings to $346,833, easily beating the old single-season money winning record of $230,542 set by Jack Nicklaus in 1972. It also gave him career earnings of $713,935 for five full years on the tour.

Miller won three tournament titles in four years before 1974, including the 1973 U.S. Open. He started this year with consecutive triumphs in the Crosby and Phoenix and Tucson Opens, then won the Heritage Classic, Tournament of Champions, Westchester Classic and World Open before taking the $250,000 title.

The final round here was a two-man affair between Miller and the 43-year-old Casper until Casper double bogeyed the 184th hole to drop back to 279 and seventh and a 13-footer on the ninth. He birdied the 11th from 15 feet and the 18th from four feet and his only bogey came on the par-5 545-yard final hole.

Colts dismiss Schnellberger

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Heidy Schnellberger was dismissed as head coach of the Baltimore Colts by owner Robert Irsay Sunday after the team's 30-10 loss to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Irsay announced to the team in the locker room after the game that he is turning over the coaching duties to General Manager Joe Thomas in an effort to turn around the Colts' fortunes after three straight losses.

Schnellberger, who was not told of the decision until after the team had learned of it, said he intended to fulfill his contract, which is in the second of three years.

"I was hired as head coach," said the man who came to the Colts after a stint as assistant coach with the Miami Dolphins. "I expect to fulfill my contract. It was my ambition to become a head coach. I worked too hard to get this far, and I don't expect to get this easy."

Schnellberger said he was surprised and shaken by the move. He said he will meet Monday with Thomas to discuss the decision.

Thomas, a former Colts' assistant coach, has been general manager of the club for two years.

His selection as head coach was not greeted with enthusiasm by the Colts' field general, quarterback Marty Dumres.

"There is no way that Joe Thomas can turn this team around," Dumres said.

"Dumres said Schnellberger was a 'good coach'."

"We're in a rebuilding stage and the players have to get to know each other before we can win," Dumres said.

After Thomas became general manager he traded away 23 players from the Colts' 1970 Super Bowl championship team.

Irsay bought the Colts in July, 1972, from Carroll Rosenbloom, who moved to the Los Angeles Rams. Irsay was an original partner in the Montreal Expos baseball team.

Betley captures Idaho golf open

POCATELLO (UPI) — Bob Betley rolled in a short putt on the final hole to edge Larry Winchester by a stroke Sunday and capture the 1974 Idaho Open Golf Tournament with a three-round total of 204, 15 under par.

Betley, a pro from Fish Haven, Idaho, had a one-shot lead over Winchester going into the final round on the par 73 Highland Golf Course. Both golfers fired seven-under-par 66s in Sunday's third and final round.

The win gave Betley $750. Winchester, who sank a birdie putt from 20 feet away on the 18th to put the pressure on Betley, took home $600.

The Salt Lake City golfer and Betley were paired for the final round on the 7,200-yard course. Winchester finished with a 205 three-round total.

A distant third were Tom Storey of Las Vegas, Nev., and Tommie Williams of Brigham City, Utah. Both finished at 211 and received $425.

Brigham Young University sophomore Jim Blair was the low amateur in the tournament with a three-under 216. Blair, Ogden, Utah, received $200 in merchandise.

Cards acknowledge lives were threatened in letter

CHICAGO (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals acknowledged Sunday that the lives of outfielders Lou Brock and Bake McBride had been threatened in a letter received at the club's ball park in St. Louis.

Cardinals' General Manager Bing Devine said the club chose to make the threat public Sunday "because we could no longer keep it a secret and feared that it could cause problems if we did not say something."

Brock, the National League's all-time single season stolen base leader, told a news conference at Wrigley Field prior to the Cardinals' game against the Chicago Cubs that it was no longer possible to remain silent.

"Bits and pieces of information have leaked out," Brock said, "so I thought that a press conference should be called so that we could tell what we know."

Brock told the news conference, "I have been asked a lot of questions about this and there has been no thought in my mind not to play. I cannot, however, take the threat lightly even if it is a crank, it isn't very funny."

Brock said he did not think the threat, in a letter received Sept. 19, had affected his play but "I wanted some of the pressure taken off of me." He said he could not say to what extent the pressure may have gotten to him.

The letter, dated Sept. 18 and postmarked the following day in St. Louis, described how the writer had $50,000 on the Pittsburgh Pirates, was suffering from a terminal brain tumor and wanted to leave the winnings from his bet for his wife and family.

"The writer threatened to be in the stands with a revolver; shoot Brock and McBride and then kill himself. It said the writer had only two months to live and would follow the Cardinals in St. Louis and in four other cities.

The letter, released by the Cardinals, said: "I am going to kill both you nigger bastards. By beating out the Pirates this year, you're costing me a $50,000 winnings I would have had as the result of a bet at large odds I placed on them to win back in April when they were already counted out even by the odds makers.

"This is no idle threat: If you think so, I can assure you that neither of you will live past the third, fourth or fifth playoff game whether it be in LA or Cincy."

JoAnne Carner cops Portland tourney

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — JoAnne Carner won the Portland golf classic Sunday and upped her season money winnings to a record $84,019 on the ladies professional golf association tour.

Mrs. Carner's victory, which brought her $5,000 in prize money, topped the previous all-time high of $52,864 by Kathy Whitworth last year. Mrs. Carner's goal is $100,000 this season. Coming up next is the $35,000 Sacramento Union Ladies Classic in California.

Mrs. Carner fired her third sub-par round, a 71, to go with 70's in the first two rounds, and finished the 54-hole championship over the 6,243-yard Columbia-Edgewater Country Club course in 211, eight under, for—the tournament, two-time former U.S. women's open champion, Donna Caponi Young, playing head-to-head in the same threesome with Mrs. Carner, finished second at 214, five under par and won $3,750. Delighted to accept the money record for a season," said Mrs. Carner. "And Donna really made me work for it out there."

The match virtually came to an end at the 18th hole when Mrs. Carner birdied and Mrs. Young bogeyed, leaving the champion nine under at that point and the challenger five under.

Goolagong wins

DENVER (UPI) — Australian Evonne Goolagong, who ended Chris Evert's 50-match win streak earlier this month in the U.S. open semifinals, repeated the victory with a 7-5, 3-6, 6-4 upset of the top-seeded Miss Evert Sunday in the finals of the $50,000 Virginia Slims of Denver.

Miss Goolagong, who won the Forest Hills match, 6-0, 6-7, 6-3, and now owns three wins in four matches with Miss Evert this year, took home the $10,000 first place money while Miss Evert won $5,000.

The match ended on a disputed line call with the linesman ruling that an Evert placement to the right corner was long.

Miss Evert, forced to three sets for the first time in the Denver tournament and visibly shaken by the final call, refused to talk to anyone after the match.

Baltimore, Sept. 30 (UPI)—The Orioles, setting a two-out bases loaded walk to force in Paul Blair with the winning run in the ninth inning as the Baltimore Orioles extended their winning streak to 14 games with a 4-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Sunday and remained in first place in the American League East.

After Jim Slaton walked the bases and Blair walked with one out in the ninth, reliever Tom Murphy came on to get Tommy Davis to bounce into a force play at the plate before walking power on a 3-2 count.

The Orioles rallied for three runs in the fifth inning. Elrod Hendricks walked, advanced to second on a single by Mark Belanger and scored when Rich Coggins singled. After Blair walked to load the bases, Belanger scored on Slaton's wild pitch. An error by Slaton allowed Bob Grich to reach

In other games New York topped Cleveland 10-0, Oakland edged Chicago 3-2, Detroit edged Boston 7-4, California blanked Minnesota 4-0, and Texas shutout Kansas City 5-0.

Rudy May struck out 13 batters in tossing a four-hitter and Craig Nettles smacked a three-run homer to pace a 5-1 hit attack that carried the Yankees to an easy victory over Cleveland.

The triumph left the Yankees still one-half game behind Baltimore in the AL East. The Yankees have only two games remaining while the Orioles have three.

May, now 34 since joining the Yankees from California on June 15, walked only two and allowed only one runner to reach third.

Nettles, who ended a New York bid in the first by hitting into a double play, hit solo homer over the rightfield fence in the fourth off reliever Milt Wilcox and propelled his 22nd homer in the sixth into the rightfield stands over the 435-foot mark off Jim Kern.

Manny Trillo drove in a pair of runs with two singles to give all west division champion Baltimore a 2-1 victory over the White Sox in the A's final home game.

Despite being defending world champions and winning their fourth straight division title, the A's season has dropped nearly 185,000 to 336,712. The A's will open defense of their American League Championship at home Saturday against either Baltimore or New York.

Defending two-time champion Kathy Whitworth finished far back at 234, 15 shots over par.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices plunged sharply and broadly Monday in a trading session on the New York Stock Exchange, with traders and investors showing overcautious interest rates and brokers' margin calls.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off more than 12 points in early trading, was off 10.41 at 611.54 shortly before noon EDT. Declines led by issues, 837 to 374, among the 1,526 issues crossing the tape.

The two-hour volume amounted to around 6,320,000 shares, compared with 5,210,000 traded during the same period Friday. The Dow's fall to a 12-year low Friday discouraged many traders. They also were concerned most major banks have not lowered their prime lending rate for corporate customers. First National Bank of Chicago, a trendsetter, left its rate unchanged at 12 per cent Monday.

Observers said some selling was touched off to meet margin calls. Margin is an investor's equity in stock. When it falls below a certain level, the investor must supply additional cash or sell the stock.

Southern Co. was the most active stock, off $1/4$ at 10 to 100,000 shares, including a block of 100,000 shares at 10.

US auto assembly squeezed

(C) New York Times Service
DETROIT — American auto production is off due to strikes at a number of factories and uncertainty about how the public will buy the new 1975 models. Production is hurt by a continuing strike at American Motors Corp., a strike by Arvin Industries in Franklin, Ind., and a strike by Delco-Remy division of General Motors. The strike by 14,000 Delco workers over plant conditions in Anderson, Ind., "could result in the layoff of thousands of other workers across the country," according to G.M. officials. The Delco plant makes generators, ignition switches, vacuum controls and other parts for cars and trucks. The shutdown could begin early this week at G.M.'s car and truck plants if the strike continues, a spokesman said.

Stockmen ask foreign beef embargo

DENVER (UPI) — The president of the American National Cattlemen's Association says the federal government should institute an immediate embargo on foreign beef imports to prevent the complete ruin of the nation's cattle industry. Gordon Van Vleck said U.S. cattlemen had no choice but to demand the embargo because foreign countries had closed their borders to outside beef, forcing the U.S. to absorb the world's beef surplus. "The hard facts show that if an embargo isn't applied in this coming year, the U.S. livestock industry is faced with economic disaster," Van Vleck said. "The net result could be longer term meat shortages unlike anything we have seen before." The cattlemen said only a fraction of one per cent of U.S. beef was exported through July of this year. At the same time, he said, over 550 million pounds of beef — equivalent to 7.2 per cent of U.S. production — was imported from foreign countries. "This tremendous imbalance reflects a self-destructive U.S. import policy," Van Vleck said. "We are making this nation a dumping ground for the world's surplus beef when our own market is already severely depressed." Van Vleck said there was an abundance of so-called food experts who would immediately point out the advantages to consumers when American borders are wide open to foreign beef. "But this is the kind of shortage and myopic thinking that bogged our nation down in the current inflation mess," he said.

Dividend declared

PORTLAND, Ore. — The board of directors of Equitable Savings declared a third quarterly cash dividend of 8 cents per share, according to William E. Love, chairman of the board and president. "This dividend will be paid on or about Oct. 22, 1974 to stockholders of record at the close of business on October 4, 1974. Equitable Savings has 37 offices serving the principal cities of Oregon, Washington and Idaho with assets of $675 million, mortgage loans and contracts of $565 million and savings of $345 million, as of June 30. For several years, UJ paid a 20 cents a quarter dividend, but it was cut to 5 cents in April, 1973, due to weather damage to stored sugar beets in Washington State. The dividend was increased to 10 cents during the next three quarters and to 15 cents in April and July of this year.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, OCT. 1, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You find it difficult to put in effect a new arrangement that means much to you, so accept the delays graciously. Try on a better day when conditions are more favorable for you. Show more consideration for others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Personal ideas you want to put in operation now require secrecy if they are to work out successfully. Improve your appearance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You need to work on those tiresome conditions a little longer before they are straightened out. Strive for more harmony at home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Not a good day to ask for favors from a good friend who's in a strange mood. Sidestep social invitations that could cause trouble.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle civic duties that will give you added prestige. Don't get panicky over an unexpected change of events. Keep calm.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make certain you study every phase of a new project before putting it into operation. Maintain your poise and good reputation.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Put aside thoughts of a good time and handle responsibilities that are awaiting your attention. Avoid argument with mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use tact in handling a civic matter that comes up. You may be disappointed in an associate, but don't get into an argument.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) There is much work awaiting your attention so don't go off on any tangents. Taking treatments will improve your health.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You want to enjoy yourself but be sure you don't overindulge. Showing more devotion to mate is wise now. Think logically.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Give more attention to your home and family than you have in the recent past. Show more understanding to a friend in trouble.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are highly active mentally and physically, but don't try to be a smart alec. Forget about making any sarcastic comments.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take more time for figuring out the financial affairs in your life. Discuss with family members ways to increase your income.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have all sorts of fascinating ideas, but you must curb your progeny from impulsiveness, which could ruin an otherwise promising career. Give the best education possible so that they can be real knowledge before ideas are expressed. A religious person in this chart.

Do you know what the primary ambition of a Zulu's wife is? To help her husband acquire sufficient means to buy another wife. So they can split the chores.

CURRENTLY in China, a man can divorce his wife if she talks too much, I'm told.

IF YOU DON'T we've changed a whole whale of a lot, consider this: Hunters today comprise only .001 per cent of the world's population, yet hunting was the foremost way of life throughout 99 per cent of man's history.

CENSUS CLOCK
Q. "How does the census clock in the lobby of the Department of Commerce reckon population growth in the U.S.?"

A. It averages these: Births, one every 8.5 seconds. Deaths, one every 17 seconds. Immigrants, one every minute. Emigrants, one every 23 minutes. To show a net increase of about four persons per minute. Hold on, these figures go back some months. They may not be quite accurate now, but they show the how of the thing, anyway.

OUR LOVE AND WAR MAN contends women with long legs make the best dancers. Further, he says brown-eyed women tend to be exceedingly flirtatious, but the games they play usually are harmless. And he claims, finally, that red-haired wives are not so likely as blondes and brunettes to suspect their husbands of fence-jumping.

Comics expert decries stories

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Here was the man who is the father of American comic books, the man who launched the "Shazam," a diminutive Colored Sanders in a bright red suit, shuffling through a pile of yellow comic books and muttering blasphemous.

"The only thing I know about comic books is what people tell me," said C.C. Beck. "I never read any at the time I was drawing them and I don't read them now. The stories are so childish."

Beck, now 64 with a white mane and goatee, created the caped hero in 1940 for Foster Publications and guided his fight against crime and the Nazis 13 years.

Living in Miami for the past 21 years, Beck now does mostly commercial art and leaves the pulp adventures to a dozen of Florida's 40 resident cartoonists who gathered at a hotel here Sunday for a sort of "meat market" for the "tattered treasures of the past."
