

today in brief

Henry, Spanish minister confer

MADRID (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger held an unannounced 45-minute meeting today with Spanish Foreign Minister Pedro Cortina at heavily guarded Torrejon airbase where he stopped briefly en route to the Middle East in search of peace and lower oil prices.

Kissinger's stopover was surrounded by strict security and was not announced in advance. The Torrejon airbase outside Madrid was closed to civilian visitors, and no advance information was released to the Spanish public.

Hoffman dies

NEW YORK (UPI) — Paul G. Hoffman, an auto executive who served as first administrator of the Marshall Plan, died today at 83. Hoffman rose to be president of the Studebaker Corp., then served in various government economic "posts" during and after World War II. He also served as first president of the Ford Foundation from 1950-53. He had been in failing health for two years.

Senate challenges Ford on Turk aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today approved legislation banning military aid to Turkey and sent it to the White House, directly challenging President Ford's threat to veto the bill.

The legislation provides that Turkey cannot receive any military assistance from the United States until Ford informs Congress that "substantial progress" has been made toward a Cyprus settlement with Greece.

The House approved identical language Monday, 291-69, and the White House said Tuesday the President would veto it.

Hostage release appears nearer

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) — Seven hostages took their first baths in 13 days today, and their pro-Castro guerrilla kidnappers, after passport photos in preparation for imminent departure from the Venezuelan consulate to asylum abroad.

Families and friends of the captives gathered around the consulate building, still surrounded by a police cordon, as Foreign Ministry officials and diplomats worked behind the scenes to find the six terrorists a nation of exile. The release had been expected this morning but a diplomatic snag developed.

Brennan outlines unemployment plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan told Congress today the administration is prepared to spend $5.25 billion on unemployment insurance and a jobs program in the "unlikeliest event" that unemployment reaches 7 per cent this year.

Brennan testified at a hastily called meeting of Senate and House labor subcommittees on President Ford's job related economic proposals, including tax reform, additional unemployment benefits, public service jobs and a community improvement corps.

Cabinet sworn

ATHENS (UPI) — A 19-member caretaker cabinet under Premier Constantine Karamanlis took the oath of office today and pledged to bring democracy back to the land where it was born.

The new nonpolitical interim government will run the country until the Nov. 17 elections, the country's first parliamentary race in more than a decade.

AEC aide says no decision on dump site

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission's Idaho operations office says no decision has been made even tentatively on where to locate a proposed nuclear waste depository.

In a dispatch from Pocatello Monday UPI reported that Dr. Frank Pittman, director of waste management and transportation, indicated the AEC felt Aro was the most advantageous of three sites under consideration.

But Dick Blackledge, information officer for the AEC in Idaho said, "No tentative decisions have been made."

TF United Way report meeting Friday

TWIN FALLS — The first report meeting of Twin Falls United Way campaign personnel will be at 1 p.m. Friday at the Holiday Inn.

Tom Stivers, general chairman, reports that pledges and contributions as of Oct. 8 total $21,850, $1,787.50 more than at the same stage of the campaign a year ago.

Stivers said Cheryl Lejaage, Shirley Harris, Dee Roberts, Jean Leone, Nettie Magel, Arden Duffel, Olive Hally, Jean Clek, Billye Brown, Bob Wright, Gary Majors and Lili Simmons have contacted all of their prospects and urged other workers to complete their assigned contacts.

Ford tax surcharge under fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's long-awaited solution to inflation turns out to be heavier taxes on the middle class and the wealthy, tax incentives to revive business and exhortations to Americans to pinch pennies and drive less.

Ford told Congress he wants higher tax revenues so he can cut federal deficits. Both would light inflation by reducing the amount of money spent in the economy.

To business he offered tax incentives to encourage growth.

He offered to help the economy's worst-off victims — the poor and those thrown out of work. The President avoided predicting what his program would achieve, but he said failure to slow down the rate of inflation would "destroy our country."

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon vaguely predicted only that Ford's program, if enacted would bring the current double-digit inflation — now ranging about 11 per cent — down to single-digit rate a year from now.

That could be as high as 9 per cent. Not unexpectedly, congressmen, facing a bewildered and often frightened electorate in less than a month, were less than wildly enthusiastic about voting to increase voters' taxes.

But many in positions of power promised to give Ford's program consideration when Congress returns after the elections for a lame-duck session. Congress recesses Friday for a month's campaigning.

The House Ways and Means Committee invited Simon to attend a hearing on Ford's program today or to send a representative. The President decided to meet the press today at his third formal news conference, to be held at 2:30 p.m. EDT in the Rose Garden, weather permitting.

Appearing before a televised joint session of Congress Tuesday to lay out his program, Ford wore a "WIN" button in his lapel.

He urged Americans to drive at least 5 per cent fewer miles by car pooling, riding buses or bikes "or just plain walking," and he asked housewives — if they could not spare a penny from the food budget — at least to cut down food waste by 5 per cent.

PRESIDENT GERALD FORD gives Congress economic war plan

Testimony delayed

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — President Ford's appearance before Congress to explain his pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon was rescheduled for next week so a jury can be picked and sequestered in the Watergate cover-up trial before Ford testifies.

William L. Hungate, the chairman of the House subcommittee before which Ford was to have testified Thursday, said the subcommittee had decided "with the concurrence of the White House," to put off the President's testimony until 10 a.m. Oct. 17.

Hungate's announcement followed a report from the United States Court House where Judge John J. Sirica was trying for the sixth day to impanel a jury.

Violence marks book protests

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Ban-the-textbooks protesters, whose leaders have vowed to "fight until death," today touched off an explosion at a coal mine when a shop firebombed another and closed nearby every coal mine in Kanawha County.

State Police said the blast at the Wet Branch Elementary School in the Cabin Creek area blew out the front doorway and left a gaping hole in the floor of the one-story brick building. Ceiling plaster and lights were knocked loose by force of the blast.

Police at first believed dynamite had been used, but said an investigation showed blasting powder of a type used in coal mines caused the explosion.

The firebombing occurred at the Midway Elementary School on Campbell's Creek across the Kanawha River from Cabin Creek, both located in the heart of the southern West Virginia soft coal fields.

Both incidents occurred before 4 a.m. police said. About 2,100 miners were idled when they refused to cross picket lines set up by the protesters who have labeled some of the textbooks obscene, un-American and anti-Christian. The parents have demanded permanent removal of the textbooks from the school.

The books have been removed for a 30-day review period by a citizens committee.

Quinn Morton, president of the Kanawha County Coal Operators Association, said only one mine was working in the county. He said "some mines in neighboring Boone and Fayette counties also were closed."

Morton said 30 cartloads of pickets appeared at one mine and blocked the work force from entering.

The violence flared during the third day of the renewed protest against the textbooks after a two-week calm.

The protest started originally shortly after classes began early last month for the fall term.

The Rev. Charles C. Quigley, one of the leaders of the protest, had vowed to "continue picketing even if they throw everyone into the county jail."

"These are parents who love their children and will fight until death, if necessary," he said.

Grain mart shows gain

TWIN FALLS — Alex Sinclair, president of Sinclair and Co., Twin Falls, said today wheat futures are back near their levels before the President's order to Cook Industries to cancel grain contracts with the Soviet Union.

Sinclair said basically some increased inquiry in the export market has firming wheat in particular and corn and soybeans have gradually worked to the plus side for the day.

He said there was some concern in Europe about the influence on markets there of possible reductions in shipments out of the United States.

Paul hotel fire report vanishes

By DAVID BOCKMAN

PAUL — A fire inspection report on the old Paul Hotel which burned Sunday killing one person has vanished.

City officials said on Tuesday a fire safety inspection had been conducted at the hotel earlier in the year, but had declined to make the report public. But today the officials said the report did not exist.

According to Paul City Fire Inspector Bill McClung, the hotel was inspected in January 1974 for compliance with the city fire codes.

Tuesday, McClung told the Times-News the inspection report was "in my files." Later, Tuesday, acting upon the advice of city attorney Larry Duff, McClung refused to make the report public. Attorney Duff told the Times-News that "if the report had any conclusions or opinions as to what would happen if there was a fire, I won't release it."

Duff said the City might be held liable if the fire inspection report went beyond factual information and dealt with the inspector's conclusions about the hotel's safety.

On Tuesday, Duff said he could remember the report, but said he wanted to see it again before releasing it. Duff said he recalled that the report mentioned a problem with fire extinguishers being stolen from the hotel.

But, today, Duff told the Times-News "there is no written report." Duff said a verbal report of the inspection was given to the Paul City Council in January or early February.

Duff said that the inspection showed there were no fire extinguishers in the stairways. The owner of the Hotel, Howland Croft, complained at the time of the inspection that the extinguishers were stolen two days before the inspection.

Hotel residents had complained after the fire that there were no extinguishers on the hotel's second floor where the blaze broke out.

According to McClung, extinguishers are required by the fire code. McClung said extinguishers were in place during the January inspection. However, McClung added that Howland Croft, owner of the hotel had complained then that someone had been stealing the extinguishers.

McClung said today, "When you say report, there was no report, there wasn't a notice and order." We never sent a report to Croft.

McClung said the report on the fire inspection was made verbally to Croft who accompanied him on the inspection tour of the building. McClung stated that "there were no violations of any consequence."

TF men ponder odd object

SHOSHONE — Three Twin Falls men returning from a fishing trip north of Shoshone Monday night spotted a strange celestial object which they have been at a loss to explain.

Robert Fulton said he and two companions, Carl Berg and Dudley Driscoll, were returning from an evening of fishing on the Big Wood River below "Magic" Reservoir Monday when they spotted the strange flying object in the night sky.

Fulton said he saw the object out the car window.

"I saw it first. I happened to look up, and I said to the guys, 'Look, lord, that light up there,'" Fulton said.

He said the light, more brilliant than those of ordinary aircraft, was moving north to northeast in a clear sky. The white light was followed by a wedge-shaped vapor trail, he added.

"At first, the men thought the strange object might be a jet, Fulton said, but the vapor trail was much bigger than that of jet aircraft. "It was huge," he said.

Rocky faces new queries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee today asked Nelson A. Rockefeller to provide a "full explanation" of some $200,000 in gifts he gave to former aides, including Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The vice presidential nominee assured chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., he would provide the explanation "as soon as possible."

"I don't know whether there's a good explanation for the gifts or not," Cannon told newsman after a brief committee meeting. "I must say I have some question in my mind or I wouldn't have asked for a full explanation."

Cannon said he didn't think the gifts constituted a conflict of interest "but they do raise the question of influence of wealth in a political system on government."

Cannon said he talked with Rockefeller on the phone "and he assured me he would respond fully as soon as possible."

The chairman said the committee would meet in executive session after the congressional recess to discuss the former governor's reply on the gift issue. "At the same time, he said, they would take up the audit of Rockefeller's income tax now under way by the Joint Tax Committee and the Internal Revenue Service.

"We won't be able to make a decision until we get back from recess" on whether Rockefeller will be recalled to answer questions on the gifts at a public hearing, Cannon said.

Other committee members who meet Friday to study Rockefeller's financial reports said they were not pleased at the gifts — including $550,000 to one former chief aide and $50,000 to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger five years ago.

Additionally, the multi-millionaire former New York governor has made nominal campaign contributions to a number of congressmen who will vote on his confirmation.

"I didn't see anything which disturbed me," said Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia. "But one never knows what may develop tomorrow or the next day."

Summit meet due?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and Soviet Communist Party Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev are actively considering plans to hold a summit meeting next month, administration officials said today.

Emphasizing that "nothing is firm yet," the officials said the Ford-Brezhnev conference could be backed on to Ford's scheduled visits to Japan Nov. 19-21, and a subsequent two-day stop in South Korea.

The two leaders were said to be considering a summit session in a third country or on a Pacific island, probably at the end of Ford's Far East swing.

The administration officials said discussion of such a meeting came up in regular U.S.-Soviet diplomatic consultations recently and both sides were considering it.

"This would have to be more than a get-acquainted session — a chance for them to talk about substantive issues," one official added.

BOSTON policeman Roger Delmastro holds rock in his injured hand after it smashed through window of police riot van Tuesday during racial disorder at one of the city's high schools. Mayor Kevin White's request for federal marshals to help calm violence was heard by a U. S. Judge today. (UPI)

Unrest persists

TF school schedule skips all Sundays

by CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls schools won't sponsor "any activities on Sundays" according to a newly adopted official policy.

The school board trustees Tuesday voted to make the long-standing administrative policy a matter of board policy. The rules read now that "no school activities should be scheduled on Sunday without board and administration approval."

Supt. George Staudaher said the policy had a long history but recently there had been conflicts, notably the high school backpacking trips.

The policy was made, Staudaher said, because "I don't want to schedule any school activities that are in conflict with God."

The backpacking trips were three-day trips; the students left Friday, camping out Friday and Saturday night.

and returned Sunday. Participation was voluntary, according to high school principal Frank Charlton.

The backpacking trips were part of the life span program — physical education curriculum — offered by the high school, Charlton said. The schedule called for one yearly trip from the high school and the junior high schools.

With the newly-written policy, future trips will either be cancelled or will start on Thursday, Charlton said. But taking another school day is "hard to justify," he added.

Charlton said the school had tried not to schedule activities on Sunday, and said he couldn't think of other possible conflicts.

The ski club, which does sponsor activities on Sundays, is not officially sponsored by the high school. The club has members from outside the school and no school sponsor, Charlton said, however, the school "will help them all we can," by permitting use of school facilities for meetings — never on Sunday, of course.

An exception can be made by the board for extraordinary circumstances — for instance, baccalaureate or a trip, out of state.

Several high school students at the meeting spoke up in favor of the policy. "I think you're right," a high school boy said. "We should keep Sunday completely apart."

Trustee Frank Delano said, "There are enough people who do and would object strenuously" to Sunday events.

"We have to go along with this group whether they have a majority or minority."

In other action, the board approved the hiring of a girls' basketball coach from within the present physical education staff if there is sufficient interest in the sport.

The trustees also moved to accept the annual audit prepared by a local accounting firm, Tom Condie, representing the firm, said "We found everything to be in order, everything to be accurate and well kept."

Trustees also approved a request by the school administration and junior high principals that the junior high join, the Northwest Accreditation Association. The high school has long been a member, but now junior highs are moving towards accreditation procedures, also.

Test series dates listed
TWIN FALLS — The bi-annual test series of the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence will be given in Twin Falls Nov. 9 and Nov. 16.

The deadline for registration is Oct. 8. The organization sponsors voluntary written tests for automotive mechanics and awards certificates to those who pass.

TF students attend meet

LISTENING INTENTLY at the Twin Falls school board meeting Tuesday are high school students Jan Casperson, senior, and Susy Moore, behind her, sophomore.

TF mayor appoints panel

TWIN FALLS — One more

overture will be made by city officials toward a city-county law enforcement complex.

Mayor Winston Jones appointed a three member committee Monday night to meet with county commissioners to discuss a proposal for city and county participation in a police building.

Jones said if the county is no longer interested the city will go ahead with plans for a city police building adjacent to city hall and the new fire station.

Named to the committee were Paul Ostyn, Dr. Stephen Lincoln and Mrs. Ann Cover, all members of the city council.

Mayor Jones suggested county officials be asked once again to join in a city-county complex as both agencies are in need of expanded and improved facilities. County officials have discussed the matter in the past but have taken no action on a new joint facility.

City Manager Jean Millar was asked several weeks ago to contact architects regarding such a building. He told the council Monday night all architects he has contacted have expressed interest. In designing a police building and as soon as the decision is made on building size and needs an architect can be selected.

Council members authorized the mayor and city clerk to enter an agreement for federal funding of striping of cross walks and traffic lanes on several major streets in the city. The estimated cost of traffic-lane markings is $880 and of cross walks is $1,805.

In other action the council approved a call for bids Oct. 25 for five new vehicles to replace units in the police and parks department; tabled a request for alley encroachment by the Main Avenue Safeway store and presented certificates of achievement to city employees.

The dance workshop Saturday will be held at 1 p.m. with the musical comedy workshop at 7 p.m. On Sunday the dance workshop will be held at 1 p.m. and the musical comedy at 3 p.m.

Workshops on the musical comedy are open to everyone interested in the upcoming tryouts.

This year's production is "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." Carson Wood Jerome, will be choral director for the show.

There will be 18 singing parts in the show for men and eight singing and dancing parts for women. Tryout dates have been set for Dec. 7 and 8 for the musical comedy in the Washington School. Both urged everyone interested to attend the workshop sessions, and to keep tryout dates in mind for the 1975 production.

Ketchum slates census

KETCHUM — Ketchum City Councilmen decided Monday to take a special census of the city's population.

The 1970 census theoretically shows Ketchum with a 1,454 permanent resident population. Based on figures taken during the completion of the Ketchum Community Project report showing 2,500 permanent residents during the spring and summer and up to 3,000 during rush seasons.

Mayor Bill Brand told the council that cities received revenue sharing funds. Liquor funds and highway tax rebates based on population.

Mayor Bill Brand said "we may be getting half the money we're entitled to."

The council voted unanimously to approve the procedure needed to set up the new census. It takes from 60 to 90 days, according to Brand, after notification to the census bureau for the program to begin.

In other action the council gave city attorney Jim Phillips the authority to research alternative methods of financing street paving projects.

Phil Ritzau told the council residents along Broadway in west Ketchum wanted to know how they could get the street paved. He said citizens were willing to pay a special assessment to get the job done.

The council told him Local Improvement District assessments were complicated but may be the only alternative available. Phillips is to research alternate methods, and meet with Ritzau.

The council voted to favor upcoming legislation by the Idaho Association of Cities to allow cities to contract for their own work on city projects when bids by private contractors are exorbitant.

Hunters find skull

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — The skull of a 20-year-old woman, who disappeared along with her husband nearly a year ago, was found in an area north of here during the weekend, Kootenai County Sheriff Thor Fladwed has confirmed.

Fladwed said the skull of Rita Marcussen was found about a quarter-mile from where bone fragments, pieces of hair and clothing belonging to her were found last May.

Mrs. Marcussen and her husband, Ron 22, disappeared last Nov. 19 after Marcussen picked his wife up from work early that evening at nearby Hayden Lake.

Their small foreign car was found a few days later high centered in the snow along a back road, but there was no trace of the couple.

Fladwed said the skull was found Saturday by two hunters near the small community of Althol about 15 miles north of here.

He said identification was made through dental records and "totally established the factual death of Rita Marcussen."

While articles of clothing belonging to Mrs. Marcussen were found last May and the skull discovered during the weekend, there has been no trace whatsoever found of Marcussen's auto.

Kootenai County Prosecutor Gary Hansen said he does not intend to be rushed into any criminal action in connection with the case, and said there may still be evidence that could be discovered in much the same manner as the skull.

No reference was made by authorities to George E. Stroisch, 34, Post Falls, Idaho, who had been charged at one time with grand larceny, in connection with the Marcussen's auto.

However, that charge was dropped late last May following the discovery of clothing belonging to Mrs. Marcussen.

Stroisch is currently serving a three-year prison term for federal firearms law violations.

Robbery reported

SALMON — Two Colorado motorists advised the Lemhi County Sheriff's Office Saturday afternoon that two young men they had given rides to here had robbed them of $160 at the Idaho Highway 28 rest stop near Tenody.

Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, in their 20's, of Denver, telephoned Deputy Sheriff Brett Barsalou about 5:45 p.m. Saturday from Leadore that they had picked up the two on the outskirts of Salmon.

They stopped at the rest area and it was there that one of them pulled a pistol and demanded their money. Deputy Barsalou was advised. The two disappeared on foot.

The Johnsons drove on out Highway 28 and after finding the Lemhi Store closed went on to Leadore.

Water

quality said good

SALMON — Water quality of the Middle Fork of the Salmon River in the Idaho Primitive Area is described as generally "pretty good" by a Forest Service hydrologist.

Terry Andreessen, Salmon National Forest, said the situation has remained constant the past three years.

He said the only contamination that has been picked up is at a couple of places where improper sewer facilities have put drainage into Middle Fork tributaries.

Boating parties and camps don't seem to be affecting the river, he said.

The river has been sampled above and below the camps and tests also run for phosphates but nothing has been detected.

Andreessen said the Forest Service's limitations of boating party size, cleanup of garbage and relocating of latrines have helped keep the Middle Fork "clean."

Amtrak funds sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration asked Congress Tuesday to approve an additional $4.9 million in federal funds for Amtrak, saying the national railroad passenger corporation would have to shut down in February without the extra money.

In a letter to Congress, President Ford said that he was requesting the supplemental appropriation beyond what had previously been budgeted in order to help cover a $72 million deficit in the current 1975 fiscal year.

"Without the requested supplemental appropriation, Amtrak will not be able to continue train operation after February, 1975," Budget Director Roy Ash said in an accompanying letter.

Ash told Ford that the passenger railroad service has encountered rising operating costs for fuel and materials coupled with the desire of Congress to expand Amtrak service and "management's inability to decrease failures and improve utilization of equipment."

None of these factors are controllable in the short run, Ash said, but added the administration was preparing legislation to remedy these problems in the years ahead.

A House-Senate conference committee voted Monday to bar Amtrak from increasing its $50,000 limit on executive salaries, complicating efforts to replace Roger Lewis as president.

Motion rejected

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A federal judge rejected a motion today to dismiss a $25 million damage suit against former President Richard M. Nixon filed by a group seeking to void results of the 1972 Presidential election on grounds of "fraud and corruption."

The dismissal motion was presented to U.S. District Judge Daniel H. Hayslett 3rd by Asst. U.S. Attorney William McGittigan who said he was appearing only as an officer of the court and not on behalf of Nixon.

McGittigan claimed that the plaintiff, the American Constitutional Rights Committee here, failed to comply with federal rules and procedures in bringing the suit last August, two hours after Nixon left office as president.

Hayslett dismissed McGittigan's motion "without prejudice," meaning it could be resubmitted at a later date. The court then continued the case for 30 days to allow Kent Saldan, 35, chairman of the rights committee, to engage counsel.

The suit also named the Committee to Re-elect the President and its finance committee as defendants.

Honest shopper

DETROIT (UPI) — Johnny Strasser just couldn't live with something he got for nothing. Strasser was shopping at a K-mart store in suburban Troy recently. When he returned home, he discovered he hadn't been charged for one item, a $1.28 baby shirt.

He kept the shirt, but said his guilt increased when he saw his two-year-old son wearing it. Instead of living with the guilt, he wrote a check for $1.28 and sent it to the store.

"I always try to be honest," he said. "I enjoy it."

"I knew I had to pay for the shirt."

K-Mart Merchandising Manager Jim Bruzer said he was amazed when he discovered the check.

"This was such a refreshing change," Bruzer said. "Here we have an absolutely honest man and in this business that's refreshing."

Farmers must increasingly depend on research for technical information and guidance on environmental practices. The extension service at state and federal level helps farmers adapt practices to the new requirements.

Americans develop aversion to ripoff hint

(c) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — The ripoff has fallen on evil days.
A once-honored feature of entrepreneurial bustle...
Put it down to inflation. Or the post-Nixon morally. Or a creeping cynicism. Whatever the cause, people are questioning their utility bills, demanding to see the replaced parts of their repaired autos, and scrutinizing each item on their grocery bill at the checkout counter...

In the spirit of the times, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn. found an issue to sink his teeth into the other day when he discovered that the Senate restaurant had raised the price of a hamburger from 60 to 75 cents. It was, the volatile Humphrey told the senate, an inflationary weapon of the 5.5 per cent pay raise for federal workers.

A six-bills hamburger is hardly a ripoff; in classier joints, the ground beef sandwich goes for a couple of bucks. But Humphrey was reflecting a widespread revulsion to the ripoff, real or imagined.
For reasons slightly more complicated than the anti-ripping fever that permeates this village, the House chipped 75 per cent off Richard Nixon's budget request for $100,000 to tide him through passage from glory to ignominy. Some members wanted to eliminate the ex-president's $60,000 annual pension, but were voted down. They finally granted him 300 grand, a sum many felt was ample for a comfortable transition.

In another area, foreign aid, the Senate displayed a rare burst of outrage over what they construed to be largesse of dubious morality. They whacked the measure with a clean-cut, lopping off military aid to Turkey and Chile, which they considered to be a ripoff of sorts. Even habitual supporters of the assistance program went along with the cuts, and the staggered administration finally moved to have the bill recommitted or shelved until the fever subsided.
The ripoffs in question add up to pennies a course. Whether they add up to a significant trend is doubtful. Congress manages to restrain its outrage when the ax strikes too close to constituent home. The legislators are playing with anticipated outlays above $30 billion, and no computer devised by the human brain can possibly isolate the ripoffs for surgical attention.
Still, the public rebellion against the blatant ripoff is real and growing. It runs not only to money but to certain abstractions, such as the truth and honesty in government.
This atmosphere imposes a special burden on President Ford, groping to come up with an anti-inflation program which must make sense even if it doesn't make friends. If he tries to satisfy the public, he will satisfy almost no one. He can't balance the budget and cushion the impact of unemployment without finding new ways to raise additional revenues. The skepticism that grips large segments of the public reduces his capacity to balance off a basketful of distasteful options.
But above all he has to overcome a massive aversion to any hint of ripoff.

Alternative to starvation

In the year 1798 English economist Thomas Malthus published his work in which he presented the grim idea that while population increased geometrically food production increased only arithmetically.
The world would reach a point, through increasing population, when it would be unable to feed itself. Perhaps that day is at hand.
It is true that other causes than those foreseen by Malthus are affecting food production today. First, and probably most serious, has been an apparent climatic change which has created droughts and famine in a large portion of the world.
A sustained drought in Africa is pushing the Sahara desert south and its sand is overflowing previously arable land. Lower temperatures in some regions, Iceland for example, have shortened growing seasons.
When Malthus promulgated his theory he could not have anticipated the rise of colonialism and a vast increase in the areas under cultivation, which swelled world food supplies. His theory was discounted as the food population of new countries came into being.
Canada, the United States, African colonies and South America produced a cornucopia of food. There seemed to be no fear of not enough food.
But he could not have foreseen the great advances in medicine which have raised average life expectancy far beyond what it was in his century.
Population growth is now rapidly overtaking food production.
American people have been feeling the impact of food scarcity for the past several years. Not that anyone was starving, but prices have risen as food supplies were less abundant.
Our sale of great quantities of wheat to Russia was a factor in the rise of food prices in the United States.
As the result of the food-population crisis a world conference has been held in Bucharest. It has been used as a protest forum by the Third World nations against the West and particularly the United States.
Troubled with drought and fertilizer shortage and high prices caused by the Arab oil price increase many of these nations face a very bleak immediate future.
They resent the comparative affluence of the meat-eating nations, compared with that of the poorer grain eating people.
But they particularly resent the drive to lower the birth rate in their countries, calling it an attempt at genocide.
Dr. Obi Chizwa, Nigerian member of a Third World radical group answered pleas of population control with, "you cannot scare us by saying we will die of hunger, we die of hunger every day.
Perhaps the forces which Malthus feared are now in play with increase in food production offset by a lower death rate, famine and pestilence and the ignominy of misery and vice to check population control. A less harsh alternative is to move quickly to limit population growth.
Men can't limit their growth finite food supplies will do the job for them.

'NOW, BITE ON THE BULLET—THAT'LL STOP YOU WASTING ALL YOUR MONEY ON FOOD!'

There's a purpose still for The Establishment

There was a time when The Establishment referred to a New York-based congeries of businessmen, politicians and academicians who had a tight hold on the policies of America, and were satisfied to run things their way.
The term, used in England for generations, was introduced into America (as it happens) by National Review Magazine, to refer to the crowd that put Eisenhower in office and deprived the Republican Party (and the nation) of the services of Sen. Robert Taft.
The ideology of The Establishment was what one nowadays calls Eastern seaboard liberalism. In domestic policy, it was all adutter over the discoveries of Lord Keynes. As regards welfare, The Establishment was eager to get on with America's trials. It was internationalist and, for a while, taken with the doctrine of containment.
Then, during the 60's, The Establishment became, suddenly, not the enemy of the American conservatives, who distrusted Keynesian economics, shrunk from the centralization of power in the bureaucracy and in the presidency, and thought that the doctrine of containment didn't answer the strategic threat posed by a Soviet Russia busy developing hydrogen bombs and intercontinental missiles.

The American Establishment became the enemy of the kids who smoked pot and read the exciting

Lyndon B. Johnson. I. e., he was defending the due process and constitutional order against the street people who were burning up buildings, and the Kuntsters who were deaunting the law.
The title passed from Johnson to Nixon, but The Establishment was beginning to show signs of strain. The old institutional loyalties were wearing thin. Probably history will agree the Ellsberg case showed how thin it was.
I mean, almost, everybody defected Ellsberg. Every now and then, in the late period of the thirties and into the early years of the war, a newspaperman or a Republican politician would come up a document unfattering to the secret diplomacy of the president of the United States. Most often, in deference to the national security, these documents were suppressed from public view.
In other words, the quarrels in America were over the public policies of The Establishment. But there was hardly a quarrel over the necessity that an Establishment should survive. Decisions about public policy, even wrong decisions, needed to be made, competent administrators needed to administer them. Some of what had to be done had to be done confidentially. And since government cannot easily defend itself against a total disorganization or revolt, what happens is that it resorts to unpleasant ways and means of doing business. One hardly needs to illustrate; at this point.

So now Congress, while expecting the President and the secretary of state to help keep equilibrium in the world, is doing things which decide how much wheat should be sent to Chile, or arms to Turkey, or credit to South Vietnam. A general assertiveness by Congress is overdue. But to assert control in such a way as to destabilize and paralyze the government of the United States is to invite chaos.

Shriver push growing

WASHINGTON — Some Democratic nuts-and-bolts people call him "the smartest of the Kennedys."
The appraisal probably is open to challenge, but it helps to explain why certain of Sargent Shriver's political pals are quietly talking him up as a potential candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976.
Shriver is a "Kennedy" only because he married one of Papa Joe's daughters, Eunice. But that made him an adopted member of the tribe, and for the most part he has followed the family's political line. As his friends see it, Shriver thus is the potential candidate most likely to inherit the constituency left without a leader by the withdrawal of Sen. Teddy Kennedy.
It is a big and pretty solid constituency — blacks, Catholics, Jews, Chicanos, blue-collar workers, students, the poor. None of the other Democrats moved as possible nominees at this time can be sure of winning the support of more than a portion of this big voting bloc. As a Kennedy by both marriage and ideology, Shriver has the charisma, the politics and the public service record to qualify as substitute for the senator from Massachusetts.
Shriver, too, is a Catholic. The Shriverts are one of Maquand's oldest and most distinguished families. Indeed, it is no secret that Sarge Shriver's mother left her son was stepping down when she married a Kennedy. Shriver is a Yale man, which never hurt anybody — in politics or business.
But Shriver has assets that recommend him to the citizen who votes with his head rather than his emotions. He was the first, and most competent, director of the Peace Corps, an outfit which lost much of its popularity when he departed. He was director of the Office of Economic Opportunity during the glory days of that agency. He served with competence and frequently with distinction as ambassador to France.

Perhaps most important with those who broker presidential nominations, Shriver is a loyal party regular. He could not have danced with Jay when Sen. George McGovern chose him as his vice presidential candidate to replace Sen. Tom Eagleton. But Shriver took the job.
This kind of thing scores points with the chieftains of a political party. They appreciate party loyalty no matter what the circumstances because "it is a sign of a party member's dependability. Shriver collected a bundle of IOU's with those 18-hour days he spent on the campaign trail.
Shriver is a practicing lawyer, and he has also been a practicing businessman. Old Joe Kennedy handed him to be assistant general manager of Chicago's mammoth Merchandise Mart and Joe did not risk dough on incompetents, even if they were married to his daughter.

An alimentary solution to inflated food bills

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Mecklin has sent me his suggestion for fighting inflation.
Is it as insane as it seems? Perhaps not. "In obedience to President Ford's suggestion that we consumers think up ways to fight inflation, and in writing to suggest that you join me in cutting our way to lower prices."
Yes, it is quite insane.
But then — What is not insane these days? Mecklin would start by eating the Congressional Record. — If we can persuade large numbers of people to eat the Congressional Record each day," he writes, "we may begin to terrorize Congress."
Mecklin reasons as follows: Because of the limited number of Congressional Records, large numbers of people to eat the Congressional Record each day, a huge demand for this relatively cheap food would quickly produce big, hungry, nasty crowds at the government printing office fighting to get Congressional Records for their supporters.

Soon Congressmen, realizing that their words were being eaten as fast as they were printed, would begin to feel that some part of them was being consumed," writes Mecklin. "It is a small about inflation and start doing something about it.

Fears would be reinforced. In Mecklin's plan, when Internal Revenue sends out its tax forms next spring.
"I have tried Form 10-40 deep-fried in grease at very high temperature," Mecklin reports, "and it is on a par with the frozen French fried potatoes served in most restaurants. Folded and grilled over an open fire of unpayable electricity bills, it is superior to the average burger being sold at $2.25.
Mass national consumption of Form 10-40 would raise the government to get supermarket prices down, he believes, since government men would be threatened with payless paydays so long as people were eating Form 10-40 instead of mailing it back with money.
"At this stage," Mecklin writes, "it will still be necessary to prod all those do-nothing people who say the problem is so complex it will take years to solve.

"We must remind them forcefully that they are not. We must remind them that although they cannot do anything about inflation, they can still be eaten."
Mecklin reasons that since we pay them a great deal to keep us from being priced out of the supermarket, we must insist that they return value for money paid, one way or the other.
"Considering the money we pay for these birds," he says, "it is only sensible to eat them — one the food bill goes higher than their salaries; economically, they will have become the better buy at that time."
Mecklin believes the force of this logic, if presented to the men in charge, will do wonders against inflation.
One object to this sort of thing, but then, considering the price of veal. And after all, would it not be gratifying to deal with an economist who had served a purpose?

Another view on grain deals

Christian Science Monitor
President Ford and two American grain companies are to be commended for the voluntary suspension of a $500 million shipment of grain to the Soviet Union. Concern about the American consumer's grocery bill sparked the action.
The deal, and in fact the whole matter of food exports, needs to be carefully sorted out. Long-range planning is becoming imperative as the United States tries to balance a number of requirements:
One is the desire to export American foodstuffs to improve the U.S. trade balance. For years Washington has been promoting food exports. The concern now is that if the U.S. will lose dependable markets.
There is also a need to protect the domestic market at a time of galloping inflation. The sale of grain to the Russians in 1972 sent up a howl from the consumers when domestic shortages developed and food prices shot up as a result.
Trade with the Soviet Union is important to Washington's policy of détente. There must be evidence of a willingness to cooperate with the Russians in areas that are mutually beneficial.
Last, but not least, is the need to provide massive food aid for the poorer nations of the world. As population grows, food supply becomes a problem of mounting urgency.
Behind the dilemma of how to balance these various priorities lies the basic change in the world economy. The two North American producers that once carried the grain stocks for the world — the U.S. and Canada — no longer can do so. A disastrous crop in 1972 ate into reserves and the Soviet sale was a contributing factor.
Then Treasury Secretary Shultz admitted the U.S. had been "burned" in the Soviet deal and should not get burned twice. That presumably is what the Ford administration now wants to avoid.
Especially disquieting is Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz's complaint that the Russians gave no advance warning they planned such a massive purchase of corn and wheat. If this is so, it means the joint reporting system set up when Leonid Brezhnev visited Washington is not functioning properly.
American grain exporters now are to meet with the administration to work out a system of voluntary cooperation and reporting in order to assure supplies at home and abroad. This is a good step. It is to be hoped the Russians, too, will see their own interests served in cooperation with the U.S. Government.

Chile, Peru on US arms spree

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chile and Peru have both gone on an arms buying spree in the United States, according to Pentagon statistics.

The order for F5 jet fighters, revealed in Santiago during the weekend, is only the latest in a series of weapons purchases by the two countries.

Chile is run by a right-wing military junta. Peru by a left-wing military government. But they also have an historic

Spy count

BONN (UPI) — Nearly 40 per cent of the personnel of East German embassies in West Germany are members of intelligence organizations, according to a report published by the Federal Office for the Protection of the Constitution.

The report on Communist espionage activities came out shortly after Chancellor Willy Brandt stepped down following the discovery of an East German spy among his personal staff.

border rivalry dating back to the last century which has fueled the latest arms race.

The 18 F5Fs and 32 A37H attack planes which the Chilean junta has now ordered were actually offered while the Marxist government of President Salvador Allende was still in office.

In June, 1973 — three months before Allende's overthrow — then Secretary of State William P. Rogers announced that President Nixon had authorized F5 sales to Chile, Brazil, Colombia, Argentina and Venezuela. Negotiations for the A37 sale began even a year earlier, Washington sources said. They said so far only Chile and Brazil of the five have ordered the F5.

Pentagon statistics showed that through the late 1960s, Peru ordered $1 million in arms each year from the United States. Suddenly in fiscal year 1973 Peru ordered $24 million worth and in fiscal year 1974, which ended June 30, it ordered $44 million more.

Chile had been buying $1 million to $7 million in U.S. arms a year until fiscal 1973 — the last year of Allende — when that country ordered $1 million worth. In fiscal 1974 — the first year of the junta — arms orders soared to $68 million and Chile ranked as the No. 1 Latin American buyer of U.S. arms.

The Peruvians have been buying everywhere. State Department officials said — tanks from Russia, armored cars from Argentina, and ships from Italy, Holland and Britain. One official estimated the Peruvian military has from $200 million to $300 million to spend on arms each year.

During the 1960s the United States sought to prevent a new arms race in Latin America. Most air forces there were equipped with aging Korean War vintage F60s, and before any country could begin looking for a modern replacement, Congress placed a $75 million annual ceiling on arms sales to Latin America.

In 1967 Peru came shopping for modern jets and Washington said no. Peru then went to France and bought Mirage fighter fighters. That set off a new arms race and five major Latin nations have since bought 308 Mirages — an investment of more than half a billion dollars.

The Mirage orders prompted the United States to make the F5 offer. The dollar ceiling on arms sales to the continent has since been doubled.

Chile was behind even before the arms race began. Chile doesn't even have F5s but instead only F1 older F4s and 18 British Hawker Hunters. Altogether Chile has only 41 combat planes compared to 90 for Peru, 130 for Argentina, 130 for Venezuela and 229 for Brazil.

Inflation drying up moonshine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation is helping to make the small-time moonshiner a member of a dying breed, according to an expert "revenue."

"As the costs of yeast, sugar and copper increase, the making of illicit spirits will become less profitable and decline further," Robert C. Watson, chief of the chemical branch of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms told a seminar on alcoholism Monday.

He said effective law enforcement also is a key factor in the decline of illegal alcohol production, and that the trend now is toward larger distilling operations.

"He said if people cannot or will not buy legal liquor, and if moonshine can't be found, some will turn to rather exotic substances containing alcohol, Lemoon extract containing 80 per cent alcohol is very popular when mixed with soft drinks, as well as alcoholic cough syrups containing ethyl morphine and codeine, Watson said.

"Passing to another level of our society, we find a group that will drink almost anything containing alcohol," he said.

Such distended alcohol products include shellac thinners, antifreeze solutions, duplicating fluids, inks, toilet waters, after shave lotions, liniments, antiseptic solutions and semi-solid alcohol fuels.

Many of these products contain poisonous methyl alcohol.

Moratorium may not be bad idea

By DAN JEDLIKA (c) Chicago Sun-Times
With messianic zealotisms, some people are looking at higher 1975 car prices and accusing auto makers of practicing "the shamless" profiteering on rogerev for railroad tycoons like Jay Gould and Commodore Vanderbilt.

These people may be right. A laococca, Ford Motor Co. president, speak recently at a United Press International editors conference, they might have been jolted into reality.

Unfortunately, it's de rigueur for many people to automatically cover their ears when an auto maker's executive speaks, even if he is armed with hard facts and Laococca, who is the most outspoken top auto executive in the business, had plenty of hard facts. His speech's bottom line was a call for a five-year moratorium on new auto safety, damageability and emissions standards starting next Jan. 1. Why should this be done?

"This would help us get inflation in check more quickly by slowing price increases, reducing excessive demand for materials and energy, and releasing some of the capital needed to expand capacity and improve productivity," Laococca asserted.

Ford could put several thousand of its engineers to work figuring out ways to improve fuel economy and to reduce the materials content of its vehicles, he said.

The auto maker could afford, to schedule production of its PROCO engine, which is "cleaner" than the current internal combustion engine and which promises to deliver 25 per cent more fuel economy than conventional 1975 engines.

The PROCO engine, similar in concept to Honda's CVCC engine, wouldn't require costly catalytic converters, but it can't meet the 1977 nitrogen oxides standard — which even the Environmental Protection Agency has said is too stringent.

Ford already is doing the "near impossible," Laococca stated. He said it is trying to finance the research and development of new emissions and safety equipment, invest heavily in new capital equipment to increase productivity and pay for higher wages and fringe benefits — all from profits "at a time when our profit margins have been under severe pressure."

"Frankly," said Laococca, "we've just about run out of mirrors. It's time — past time — to set some priorities. We can't hold the line on prices in the face of rising costs, and at materials used to build cars. What's frightening is that the current and proposed new safety, emissions and damageability standards for 1976, 1977 and 1978 model cars would add about $750 more per car, or $8 billion a year to consumer expenditures — if the industry could meet all the standards.

"These standards also add about two million tons a year to the materials requirements of the auto industry, and they could increase gas consumption the average new car by about 25 per cent," Laococca said. "Is this kind of spending in the national interest, especially when we can continue to make environmental gains by maintaining the standards we already have?"

Some people have predicted the "death of the automobile." It is making a lousy corpse. Some 82 per cent of American

Question receives reply

Editor, Times-News:
I would like to answer David P. Hoppe's letter regarding the cross at Shoshone Falls, and his question asking how an object used to put a person to death should become such a religious object.

In the beginning of God's creation, after He had made man and woman, Satan came along and deceived them into disobeying God and came to them to eat of the fruit of the forbidden "tree," so plunging the whole human race into sin. So Satan overcame them and all men were born sinners after that, and were under the rule.

By the time of Jesus the Roman Empire ruled that part of the world, and their way of putting people to death was by crucifying them to a cross; which all fit into God's preordained plan that He was going to give his son, Jesus to die on a cross for the sins of the world, that is, all men, all people, and so overcome Satan by a "tree," (cross); and that whosoever now trusted in Him (Jesus Christ) as their only Savior from sin and hell, would now receive eternal life and be under God's loving rule and care.

Letters

So that is why a cross is such a precious thing to a Christian. It's a reminder that "God so loved the world, (all people), that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him shall not perish but have everlasting life." John 3:16. My hope is that David and any others that haven't heard "the good news of God's Love" will read all about it in Holy Scripture and find this true in their lives.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Heart murmur usually OK

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain the seriousness of a heart murmur along with high blood pressure and overweight.
My husband is 29 and about 20 pounds overweight. When he was discharged from the service the doctors told him he had a heart murmur.

Although he has high blood pressure he insists on eating his steak rare. He frequently has headaches and the best thing to do is forget about a murmur. Murmurs are, after all, not the least bit uncommon, and often are never mentioned.

But — and this is an important but — when there are signs of illness, or potential health troubles, then a murmur begins to be significant. Doctors frequently hear murmurs and don't even mention them. But I suspect that perhaps the reason the service doctors told your husband about his murmur was because they wanted him to become at least sensibly concerned about his health.

After all, he has at least two, and perhaps more, indications of future trouble unless he does something about them. He is overweight. He has high blood pressure. Both of these are things that can and should be corrected early, to forestall serious troubles later on.

At 29 he's young enough to start doing something about them. Those headaches may (or may not) be related to his high blood pressure. The chest pains may (or may not) be indication of some developing heart trouble.

I can say almost as certainly that if he doesn't, he's on the road to the kind of troubles that can't be solved easily — if at all — 10, 20 or 30 years from now.

People keep asking, "Why don't doctors do more preventive medicine?"

Your husband is one of the answers. He's having some warnings, early in life, but he refuses to see a doctor. Even though he is blessed with a large family and doesn't recognize it as a blessing with some early warning signs.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If a person with a bad case of diabetes, taking insulin every day, goes into a diabetic coma, would that person die right away if he got no help? Or would he stay in a coma for awhile? — W.S.W.

He would not die suddenly. Without treatment he could be in a coma for three or four days before the acidosis and related consequences proved fatal.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told that quinine was the usual medication injected for hemorrhoids but that during pregnancy, some other medication is used. Why? Could a quinine injection endanger the embryo? — M.T.B.

When hemorrhoids are small they can be treated that way, but the amount of quinine is small. Still, it is avoided in pregnancy because it can be a factor in abortion or miscarriage, following the rule that it is better to be safe than occasionally sorry.

Large amounts of quinine are ordinarily necessary to have any apparent effect in causing miscarriage, and even then it is not always effective. And it can have other deleterious effects in any such quantities.

So if your question is prompted by your having had a quinine injection early in pregnancy, I would say that you shouldn't worry. (C) Field Enterprises

More taxes, spending cut, business incentives make up Ford's plan

Ford's tone ranged from somber to cheerful, and his warning on inflation's potential threat was stark.

"I say to you with all sincerity that inflation, our present public enemy, will — unless it is whipped — destroy our country, our homes, our liberties, our property and finally our national pride as well as any well-earned wartime enemy," Ford said.

The one-shot tax boost Ford proposed for 1975 would amount to an extra $128 in taxes, atop the $2,500 one-year, for an average family of four with $20,000 in income.

A single person earning $10,000 would pay $54.78 more than his present $1,095.50.

But there would be no extra taxes for couples with adjusted gross incomes under $15,000 or single people under $7,500.

For most taxpayers, adjusted gross income is the same as income. Families with extra large deductions or more numerous exemptions would have to earn over $15,000 to be hit by the tax.

The surcharge would expire after one year. President Lyndon B. Johnson imposed a 10 per cent surcharge which was in effect from April 1, 1968, until it was phased out at the end of 1970 at a 5 per cent rate.

Although many in Congress said they were dubious or wanted the tax applied only to the wealthy, Democratic leaders were reluctant generally to rule it out altogether.

As Ford proposed the tax increase, individuals would pay $2.6 billion more in taxes on 1975 earnings and corporations would pay $2.1 billion.

But Ford also proposed $2.4 billion in tax incentives to businesses which expand, giving the corporate world a net tax saving of $700 million.

This is his program:

—To help the unemployed: extend unemployment compensation benefits for 13 weeks and create a community jobs program, both to go in effect if the jobs rate rises. These programs could pump $2.25 billion into the economy if unemployment hit 7 per cent.

—To spur the economy: increase the existing 7 per cent investment tax credit to 10 per cent for businesses, farmers and utilities. The tax credit allows them to subtract some of the cost of new equipment of expansion from taxes.

—To revive the housing industry: Extend government guarantees to $3 billion worth of additional mortgages, enough to cover 100,000 houses. A small subsidy for conventional mortgages was also proposed.

—To help corporations generate capital:

Permit a new tax writoff, starting in 1975, allowing corporations to deduct from taxable income the dividends they pay on preferred stock issues. This would save corporations $100 million.

—To stimulate competition: Toughen law enforcement against price-fixing and bid-rigging, with corporations subject to fines up to $1 million. The maximum penalty today is $50,000.

—To stimulate the search for natural gas supplies: Deregulate gas prices, a step economists say would send them zooming. To spur utilities to switch from oil to coal or nuclear fuel: Provide a tax credit for the pollution standards. To save gasoline he said he would meet with auto industry leaders to work out a program aimed at increasing gasoline mileage within four years.

—To stimulate food production: Give the administration power to ration fertilizer. Remove restrictions on the size of peanut crops and extra long staple cotton and rice.

—Ford opposed, however, an action backed by the savings and loan and banking industries and approved earlier in the day by a 156 vote of the House Ways and Means Committee.

It would have exempted from taxes the first $500 in interest earned in savings accounts — at a cost to the Treasury of $1.8 billion.

In all, Ford proposed action on some 20 bills, most of which had previously been proposed. The loudest clapping came when he ruled out a gasoline tax increase.

The applause was slight when he called for an income tax surcharge.

Tax surcharge reaction sour

By United Press International

President Ford drew praise from many economists, labor leaders and everyday citizens on most of his proposals to wage war on inflation. But many reacted sourly to his suggestion for a 5 per cent income tax surcharge.

"Speaking for the man on the street, Ford's message was not for the man on the street," said Ray Kamm, a Salt Lake City data technician.

"I'm just about ready to trade my take-home pay for what the government withhold," said A.F.I.C.O. President George Meany, speaking in Miami.

But Ford's proposal to apply the surcharge to families earning $15,000 annually and single persons with $7,500 salaries was unacceptable.

"At today's prices, he said, those salaries are not high. However, he praised Ford for keeping "the economic mess out from under the average American."

One economist said if the surcharge helps stop inflation, the cost to the American wage earner will be worth it.

"If E.W. Wood of the University of Mississippi estimated that a family of four making $20,000 a year would pay about $2.50 a week more in income taxes under the surcharge proposal.

"Inflation is going to raise tax rates anyway, because it pushes us into higher income tax brackets," Wood said.

"So if an increase in the personal tax rate proves anti-inflationary, we will see a worse off and perhaps better off because the tax burden may be more equitably distributed than the inflation burden."

In New York, Tifford Gaines, chief economist for Manufacturers Hanover Trust, said the 5 per cent surtax "is inequitable for people who in today's world are essentially in a lower income bracket."

But Gaines also said the president had no other choice, since "the bulk of all potential tax revenue is between $15,000 and $25,000 in income."

Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken said he favored most proposals made by Ford as a means to stem inflation, but as to the special surtax, "I would prefer that it start at a higher income than $15,000."

Wall Street economist Pierre Rinfret said labor would seek higher wage increases to make up for losses under the proposed 5 per cent tax surcharge.

"In essence, the cost burden will fall on private industry, which will be subject to still higher corporate taxes," he said.

The idea of a surcharge did not bother Karl J. Bray, author of a book on how to avoid paying income taxes. "I'm not worried about it. I won't pay it."

He currently faces jail on a variety of tax evasion charges.

President Ford's tax plan is expected to be unveiled today.

Solons' reception restrained

(C) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Congress gave a restrained reception today to President Ford's "grand design" to cure the nation's economic ills.

Key members of the Senate and House hailed the spirit of the economic programs the President outlined to a joint session of Congress.

But many Republicans and Democrats voiced sharp disagreement with the substance of some of Ford's proposals, particularly his request for a 5 per cent income tax surcharge on middle-income families.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania called Ford's program "courageous" and said that, with some changes, he could support the income tax surcharge proposal.

But Scott noted that among his colleagues "there was a reluctance to share the President's enthusiasm for sacrifice."

The polite, but essentially tepid, reaction to Ford's appearance underscored the private complaint of several Republicans that the call for new taxes — on the eve of an election campaign recess — was, as a senior house official put it, "poor timing."

Rep. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., facing re-election next month, called it "a travesty" to impose the 5 per cent tax surcharge on families earning $15,000 a year.

A Republican conservative on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, Rep.

Joel T. Brothill of Virginia, said that Ford's anti-inflation program had "merit" but that he would not vote for it until no longer for efforts to get more tax blood out of the so-called middle earners."

Some Democrats and Republicans, focusing for the moment on the most controversial element of Ford's plan, the tax surcharge, said that it might survive Congressional scrutiny if applied to families with incomes above $25,000, rather than the $15,000 floor the president proposed.

Among them were Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex.

Other elements of Ford's economic program were more generally endorsed by members of both parties. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., pledged to try to cut the 1975 fiscal year budget below the $300 billion figure Ford suggested.

Rep. Al Ullman of Oregon, the second-ranking Democrat on ways and means, said the President's support for a tax revision bill pending before the committee increased the chances that Congress would enact some version of the measure before adjourning at the end of the year.

And House Democratic Leader Frank Rostenkowski, D-Ill., facing re-election next month, called it "a travesty" to impose the 5 per cent tax surcharge on families earning $15,000 a year.

A Republican conservative on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, Rep.

There was no response at all when Ford came to an evident punch line of his address, calling the tax increase "the acid test of our joint determination to whip inflation."

Both before and after Ford's appearance on Capitol Hill, senior Republicans and party campaign strategists said that it would be an added burden on them politically to try to sell the sacrificial elements of the President's program to the voters.

A Midwestern Republican in the House, facing an uphill struggle for re-election, said that he would not advocate Ford's tax proposals.

"Who is going to do it?" The Congressman said. "That's the President's program. It's not mine."

One Congressional campaign strategist for the Republicans said Ford had been warned last week that it would take "good news" to prevent the loss of at least 20 of the House seats now held by the Republican minority.

An associate of House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona said even

Questions, answers about Ford's plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's economic plan could have far-reaching effects on the average American, ranging from tax increases to more miles per gallon from the family car.

Here are a series of questions and answers prepared by UPI about how Ford's plan would affect the everyday tax payer:

Q. Which of the President's proposals would hit me the hardest?

A. If you earn more than $7,500 per year or your family income is more than $15,000 a year, you probably would be most affected by the new 5 per cent income tax surcharge, which would be effective only for 1975, in other words for the returns you figure out early in 1976.

Q. Does this mean I pay a flat 5 per cent extra tax if I make more than that amount of money?

A. No, it gets a little more complicated than that. The Ford proposal first figured the "taxable income" (for most persons this is your wages minus deductions and personal exemptions) of four making $15,000 and for a single individual making $7,500, each taking the standard deduction. This worked out to $10,000 for the family of four and $5,450 for the individual. These arbitrary figures are used as the base figures from which the surtax is calculated.

Q. How then do I figure how much I pay?

A. First, you figure your own "taxable income," and calculate your tax as you normally do every year. Then you figure how much of that tax liability is caused by the first $10,000 or $5,450 of taxable income and subtract that from your overall tax bill. The resulting figure, by 5 per cent, is added that to the bill. This is your tax.

Q. Give me an example.

A. Let's say your taxable income was $20,000. You figure your regular tax to be $2,000. Subtract from that $1,820 the tax on the first $10,000, and you come up with $2,560 that is subject to the surtax. Multiply 5 per cent times $2,560, giving you $128, which is added to your normal $4,380 tax bill, giving you a total tax of $4,508.

Q. Will this definitely go into effect next year?

A. No. Only Congress has the power to enact tax legislation.

Q. Is Congress likely to approve?

A. That is hard to say so far, but one thing seems certain: If Congress enacts a surtax, it will be for higher income levels, probably $20,000 per year or greater, instead of the $15,000 Ford proposed.

Q. Would my taxes be changed in any other way?

A. Not specifically in the President's program, but Ford is calling for pending Ways and Means Committee tax revision bill which contains a labyrinth of tax law changes. Most of these affect the wealthy and corporations, but it also contains a series of complicated individual tax changes that actually would "cut taxes somewhat" for those making $20,000 a year or less, with the "greatest" tax cuts coming down at the poverty level. Also, there would be greater tax breaks for the sale of your home and greater incentives for child care necessary to allow both husband and wife to work.

Q. What about the gas tax increase I have been hearing so much about?

A. Forget it. Ford said definitely there would be no gas tax increase and in fact he has programs in mind to give you greater mileage from the gas you do burn.

Q. What would he do to give me greater mileage?

A. Ford said he would meet with top officials of the auto industry and "either by agreement or by law" would achieve a program to increase auto gas mileage by 40 per cent within four years.

Q. Is the government going to require me to cut back on my use of energy and resources?

A. No, there is no mandatory requirement that you aid in fighting inflation, but Ford asks your voluntary help.

Q. What does he want me to do?

A. Ford wants you to cut down your driving by 5 per cent in the next year and to cut down on the food you waste by 5 per cent. He plans to set up a national program of conservation, symbolized by new "WIN" buttons such as the one Ford wore before Congress, symbolizing the determination to win against inflation.

Q. This is what Ford wants from me, but what is he going to give me?

A. Very little except for the promise of ending inflation. This is mainly an austerity program. Some parts of the program would help some people directly, however. For instance if you plan to buy a house the Ford program may make more mortgage money available.

Q. Where would this mortgage money come from?

A. Ford wants Congress to make most home mortgages eligible for purchase by a federal agency, rather than just FHA and VA loans as at present. Ford says he will immediately pump $3 billion into mortgages, enough to finance about 100,000 homes, he says.

Q. Are there any hidden "sleepers" in the Ford program which could cost me more money?

Ford's address lists priorities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In his anti-inflation address, President Ford said the first priority was "helping the essential" — the jobless, those with low or even middle incomes.

The help he proposed included tax reform, additional unemployment benefits, public service jobs paid out of federal funds, and a Community Improvement Corps to provide additional employment.

"I know that low and middle income Americans have been hardest hit by inflation," Ford told the Congress.

"Their budgets are most vulnerable because a larger part of their income goes for the highly inflated costs of food, fuel and medical care."

The first problem, Ford acknowledged, was providing jobs. In September the unemployment rate was 5.8 per cent and is expected to go higher.

Ford asked Congress for a National Employment Assistance Act for when unemployment reaches 6 per cent and when it gets to 6.5 per cent.

The first short-term solution is money. As soon as the 6 per cent threshold is reached, $2.1 billion would be available for additional unemployment benefits to the 1.9 million men and women previously ineligible and the $30,000 whose unemployment payments expired.

Another $750 million would be paid when unemployment reaches 6.5 per cent and another $1 billion if it reaches 7 per cent.

There are currently 7.9 million people receiving unemployment payments.

totaling $7.8 billion a year, according to White House figures.

Ford's advisers envision the public service employment programs to have two benefits: to provide jobs which could pay an individual up to $7,000 a year and to provide it in communities where unemployment is greatest — so the money can be spent and, hopefully, increase borderline incomes or create new jobs.

"The initiation of temporary projects by state and local governments — is perhaps the least inflationary way of providing jobs for unemployed workers," the White House said in a statement backing up Ford's speech.

"Jobs provided due to these projects help to cushion the loss of income due to unemployment, while enabling state and local governments to provide their citizens with a socially useful project."

"Because projects under this program will be generated in and geared to areas with high unemployment in which there exists a substantial amount of available manpower, there should be little or no adverse effect on the local labor market."

These public service jobs will include such projects as conservation, anti-pollution, economic development, or expansion of health, education or recreation services.

Ford said the unemployed and those with low incomes would get more help from proposed tax breaks. "The tax reform bill, which I have already provided $1.6 billion of tax relief to these groups," Ford said.

EARL BUTZ ... testifies

BARNARD STEINWEG ... Continental Grain

Butz eyes ground rules for wheat, grain sales

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz has revealed that the Soviets had been negotiating for as much as 6 million tons of wheat and grain before last weekend's sale of 3.4 million tons was postponed under White House pressure.

He also said one of Treasury Secretary William Simon's assignments when he goes to Moscow later this week will be to establish some ground rules on how much grain the Soviet Union can buy from exporters in the United States.

Assistant Secretary of State Thomas Enders, appearing Tuesday before the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, said Simon will "define the amount of grain that can be lifted from the United States this year."

Enders said the State Department was reluctant to make such definitions earlier this year although it probably would have headed off the sale by two giant grain exporters that was thwarted Saturday.

Appearing before the same committee, Butz said a problem arose when the "price-oriented economy" of the U.S. clashed with the "state trading company" of the Soviet Union, "and the two don't mesh."

Butz said when a White House meeting was hurriedly called to stop the contracts from going through, the Agriculture Department had evidence the Soviets were negotiating for as much as 6 million tons of wheat and corn.

He said the White House was called in because the deal had "diplomatic overtones."

export reporting policy instituted Monday will guarantee no repeats. It requires large export contracts to receive prior U.S. government approval.

Butz also said the United States has imposed no ban on exports to any country — something he strongly opposes — except where trade is prohibited by law.

Edward Cook, president of Cook Industries of Memphis, told the committee that he had backed out on a sale of wheat and soybean oil to Iran because he was advised, in effect, "that export controls are in place" regarding Russia, China, and oil exporting nations.

"A White House spokesman, John W. Rushen, said Cook's company was asked 'to hold the contract in abeyance' but not ordered to cancel it as was the case of the Russian grain sale."

Butz said Cook had misunderstood. "There is no ban on exports to the Soviet Union, the People's Republic of China or to OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries)," he said.

He said he could not explain the communications mixup that led Cook Industries to abandon the deal.

Bank fails

NEW YORK (UPI) — Franklin National Bank has been declared bankrupt by the government Tuesday, but six European banks stepped in to bail it out of receivership and promised to honor all deposits. It was the largest bank failure in U.S. history.

The new owners said the more than 100 branches of the bank in the New York area would be open for regular banking business today.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which placed the bank in receivership, said the money of the bank's 620,000 depositors, including 6,000 persons with more than the insured limit of $20,000, would be protected.

And, said Frank Wille, chairman of the FDIC, "all checks written on the Franklin ... will be honored. The clearance process goes forward as if there was no failure."

An officer for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which had loaned Franklin National $1.7 billion to keep its doors open through the summer, said it was the biggest U.S. bank ever to fail.

The biggest previous collapse was the failure last October of the $12 billion U.S. National Bank, a cornerstone in the financial empire of San Diego financier C. Arnholt Smith.

Anti-inflation proposals listed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here are President Ford's major anti-inflation proposals presented to Congress Tuesday.

Taxes: A one-year, 5 per cent income tax surcharge on corporations and individuals beginning Jan. 1, 1975. It would affect families with annual incomes over $15,000 and individuals over $7,500.

An increase in the investment tax credit, a device that makes it profitable for companies to spend up major equipment purchases, from 7 to 10 per cent for most corporations and 4 to 10 per cent for utilities.

Allow corporations tax deductions for dividends they pay on a qualified preferred stock.

Food: Remove production restrictions on peanuts and extra-long staple cotton.

Request authority to allocate fertilizer in order to insure that farmers get the amounts they need.

Energy: Require rapid conversion of oil and natural gas-burning electric power plants to coal or nuclear fuel as long as public health is not endangered.

Request auto manufacturers to submit to the government a five-year schedule of plans to produce more efficient cars.

Enforce more rigidly the 55 mph an hour speed limit.

Develop production from naval petroleum reserves at Elk Hills, Calif., and Alaska's North Slope.

Increase oil leasing areas off the coasts of Alaska, California, and the Eastern Seaboard plus added leasing of geothermal and oil shale areas.

Budget: Ask Congress to set a $300 billion spending ceiling for the federal budget in the current 1975 fiscal year.

Jobs: The following two programs would take effect if the nationwide unemployment rate, now 5.8 per cent, averages 6 per cent for three months or more:

1. Increase the number of special unemployment benefits for those whose benefits are used up and 26 weeks of benefits for those not covered by unemployment insurance.

2. A Community Improvement Corps to create jobs for short-term beautification and environmental projects in high unemployment areas.

Housing: An additional $3 billion to purchase non-government subsidized mortgages. The extra funds should support an estimated 100,000 new housing starts.

Antitrust: Increase maximum penalties for antitrust violations from $2,000 to $1 million for corporations and from $50,000 to $100,000 for individuals.

Ford waves giant club

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The time-honored formula of an earlier Republican President was "talk softly and carry a big stick."

Somewhat, Gerald Ford got Teddy Roosevelt's axiom backwords.

In his long-awaited anti-inflation speech Tuesday, Ford addressed Congress with some of the most depressing doomsday rhetoric uttered by a president in years.

"But I say to you with all sincerity," Ford told the lawmakers and a nationwide television audience, "that inflation will ... unless it is whipped, destroy our country, our homes, our liberties, our property and finally our national pride as surely as any well-armed wartime enemy."

With that sort of crisis on the horizon, Ford could have been excused for waving a giant club.

Deliberately, however, he shunned the big ammunition in favor of largely modest measures designed to keep government interference in the economy at a minimum.

His biggest weapon, a 5 per cent personal and corporate income tax surcharge in 1975 that will raise $4.7 billion and thus offset the spending required for other programs, faces a politically dubious future.

Ford admitted that his tax measure will be a dangerous liability for any office-seeker to support in the forthcoming congressional campaign.

Virtually all of the major actions require congressional approval. The inflationary payoff for some will be years in coming.

Ford's advisers have said repeatedly they see no instant cure for double-digit inflation. There was nothing in the speech to prove them wrong.

The few proposals with a quick effect rely on voluntary action — like cutting speed limits and energy use in business and homes.

White House economists like Chairman Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisers and Treasury Secretary William E. Simon also have stressed their ultimate faith in the ability of the free enterprise system, to carry the day.

"We have in the United States more government than we need," Simon told reporters prior to the speech to emphasize this theme. "More government than most people want and certainly more government than we are willing to pay for."

Euro-Arab talks bring contract

(c) New York Times Service BRUSSELS — The European Common Market and the organization of Arab Industries Exporting Countries (OAPEC) agreed Tuesday to maintain regular contacts thus opening up a new line of communication between Europe and its chief oil supplier.

The agreement came at the end of two days of meetings between OAPEC Secretary General Dr. Ali Attila of Kuwait, and Henri Simonet, European commissioner for energy at the community's executive headquarters here.

An informed source said that the main subject of the talks was potential industrial cooperation in oil production between Europe and the Arab countries. Also the two sides explained the workings of their respective organizations.

The source said the next meeting is planned for early next year.

Diplomatic sources in Brussels say the nine common market governments are pleased with the new contacts. The Europeans have started a series of general economic talks with the Arabs, both oil producers and non-producers but under heavy pressure from the United States they have so far steered clear of oil policy.

The last meeting in this so-called "Euro-Arab Dialogue" was a luncheon held in New York for 34 foreign ministers from the two groups during the mid-September United Nations General Assembly.

The Europeans say that the newly established contacts between the community and OAPEC unlike the Euro-Arab Dialogue are a good means to sound out the Arabs on oil policy — without — arousing American fears of political blackmail on the part of the Arabs.

Simonet is expected to report to the community immediately on the results of his discussions over possible oil cooperation.

Marijuana affects heart patients

IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — A few puffs on a marijuana cigarette will cut in half the length of time a heart patient can exercise without feeling sharp chest pains, a cardiologist researcher says.

This is about twice as great as the harmful effect of tobacco cigarettes, said Dr. Wilbert S. Aronow.

Aronow is associate professor of medicine and chief of cardiovascular research at the University of California at Irvine, and chief of cardiology attending Beach Veterans Administration Hospital.

His previous studies, published in medical journals, dealt with the effect of smoking on men with heart trouble who performed exercise.

Smoking a filtered, low nicotine cigarette decreased by 43 per cent the time the test subject could exercise without feeling angina pectoris, the sharp chest pain common to patients with heart strain.

The average cigarette decreased the exercise time by about 24 per cent, Aronow said, but 10 puffs on a marijuana cigarette reduced the amount of exercise before pain set in by 48 per cent.

The main villain in both cases is carbon monoxide, present in both tobacco and marijuana cigarettes, Aronow said.

It is known that nicotine is also harmful, causing an increase in pulse and blood pressure.

But his latest experiments show that the main active ingredient in marijuana, THC, has an effect on the cardiovascular system like that of nicotine, but the THC produces a stronger effect.

It is not accurate to equate one tobacco cigarette with one marijuana cigarette, Aronow said, because of the great disparity in the amount smoked by heavy users. Where

Jobless rate climbs again

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada's unemployment rate climbed another 0.5 per cent in September bringing the seasonally adjusted rate to 5.8 per cent, Statistics Canada reported today.

In its regular monthly report the government agency said 41,000 more persons joined the ranks of the jobless bringing the total to 560,000. The statistics bureau's adjusted figures reflect seasonal patterns in the nation's unemployment levels to eliminate the extreme highs and lows of winter and summer.

Buhl corn pack season ends

BY LORAYNE O. SMITH Times-News writer
BUHL — The 1974 corn pack operation at the Buhl Green Giant plant ended this week. Company officials termed it a good year.

Jerry Mock, personnel supervisor, said the run ended with the afternoon shift Monday and about 230 Texas residents who lived in the company dormitory here during the seasonal run are being taken home today. The plant hires up to 1,000 workers at the seasonal peak.

Despite poor yields in the early variety of corn. Improved weather conditions helped the late corn so that this year's pack was "90 per cent plus" compared to the budget, or standard pack determined before the season began, Mock said.

The official said payments to farmers were "up substantially" over 1973.

He said acreage also was up about 20 per cent over the previous year. Corn for the Buhl plant was grown in Burley, Jerome, Wendell, Castletford, Paul, Kimberly and Twin Falls areas as well as Mountain Home, according to Mock.

He said William Dietrich, vice president of Green Giant, Lewiston, Minn., has estimated consumers can expect "an excess of 5 per cent" rise in the cost of a case of canned corn in the near future.

With the pack operation over the labor force at the Buhl plant will drop back to the much smaller year-round maintenance and warehouse employees, Mock said. Shipping and labeling are done by the regular warehouse personnel and factory maintenance crews currently are setting in place automatic huskers.

These 22 automatic machines will replace the 33 manual huskers which have been used and will have a greater capacity than the manual models, Mock said.

BY BART QUENNELL Times-News writer
HAILEY — Four separate Gimlet subdivisions located in the Big Wood River flood plain were disapproved Tuesday night by the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission.

Teren Corporation had sought preliminary approval on Subdivisions 8, 9, 10 and 11, consisting of about 80 acres on both sides of the river from the north end to the south end of Gimlet.

The commission voted unanimously against all four subdivisions. The commissioners voted after hearing testimony from Doug Bishop, conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, that the bulk of the lots in all four subdivisions are in the flood plain.

Dave Dingman, district health department, testified that a new policy by the health district would disallow septic tanks and wells in a flood plain.

In addition, the commission was read a letter from Health and Welfare district engineer George Wagner, Twin Falls, addressed to Dr.

Wayne Carter, medical director of the South Central District Health Department.

Wagner wrote "as much of the sub-division is located in a flood plain and individual water systems would be easily contaminated during high water, they would not be approved."

Wagner continued that a central water and sewer system which would collect and pump waste away from the river was necessary for the area.

More damaging evidence was presented in a Soil Conservation District report which recommended disapproval of subdivision 8, most of 11 and approval of only a few lots in subdivisions 9 and 10.

According to the report, "all soil types in the area impose severe limitations for use as urban or subdivision type development. In proposed subdivision areas 8 and 11, water covered virtually all of the flood plain during the high runoff period and revealed extensive changes in the river channel after the water receded."

Proposed subdivision 10 is presently protected somewhat from flooding by existing dikes immediately north of the Gimlet River. Should those dikes fail in future high runoff periods, more extensive damage could occur in the area of proposed subdivision 10 than in the dikes did not exist.

"Subdivision 9 is located within the flood plain and past aerial photography reveals various channel changes in the area proposed for subdivision."

Commission chairman Nick Puring read the purpose of the Blaine County zoning ordinance to the commissioners of promoting "public health, safety, morals comfort and general welfare to conserve and protect property and property values."

Puring questioned the approval of the subdivisions under the ordinance. The unanimous agreement by the commission was based on consideration of expert tests by the Soil Conservation District on site investigation and the fact that approval of 13 presupposed its suitability for use according to commissioner

Martha Polvina.

James Kennedy, Twin Falls lawyer representing Teren, said the decision by the commission was "superfluous" since the subdivisions were automatically approved due to the length of time taken in considering the development.

"Any action prohibiting the building of structures on the private land is outside the scope of the planning and zoning commission," Kennedy said.

Kennedy criticized testimony before the commission, that water had inundated many of the lots during the high spring runoff. Every lot, he stated, was in an area with a high place on which a house could be safely built.

Kennedy said the Soil Conservation District "admittedly has its report on everything but the law applicable."

He said the commissioners it was beyond their power to prohibit building. Condemnation is the only way a body can take away the right of a man to do with his land as he wishes, Kennedy said.

Buhl boys contemplate the big money

Buhl 'rip off' part of fete

BUHL — Euel Kilewell has nothing over Buhl High School students who got to see their own "canyon jump" this morning, and it only cost 10 cents.

As part of the Homecoming festivities this week and to raise money for the Clark Stokes Memorial Fund, "Rip Off Promotions" came into being. Jim Hawkins, son of City Councilman and Mrs. Jerry Hawkins, using a "hobby horse" he had all my life" volunteered for the feat hurtling over 60 cans of chewing tobacco.

Instead of a canyon site, the ramp was hastily constructed atop a pickup and the ramp utilized gravelly to give the horse its speed. A cushioned landing pad, of the type used in pole vaulting, was placed beyond the tobacco cans.

Jeff Lehrman served as engineer for the fund raising project. Sara Ferlante, promotion manager, said school was to be dismissed for the jump.

The Homecoming parade is scheduled for 1 p.m. Friday in Buhl.

The memorial fund has been established in honor of the former school counselor who died last week of a heart attack while hunting.

Flood bar case drawn

BY BART QUENNELL Times-News writer
HAILEY — A complaint was filed Tuesday against Dr. Robert E. Smith, Ketchum orthonodont, charging him with violating a state permit to build a flood barrier around his house.

Mike Steels, deputy engineer for the Idaho Department of Water Resources who signed the complaint said it will be filed today.

The complaint alleges Smith, unlawfully violated the terms of a permit to alter the stream channel of the Big Wood River by placing or causing to be placed heavy equipment in the river which "will alter diminish, destroy, relocate and change the natural existing shape and direction of the flow of water of the Big Wood River."

According to the original permit granted to Smith the language read "with regard to opening of the channel, removal of logs and stumps is permissible, however no excavation of gravel will be permitted."

Smith had submitted to the department his plans, which were to replace and reinforce the existing bank; rip-rap, raise and reinforce the existing bank; and open the channel by removal of logs, stumps and gravel.

Smith's foundation, located in Gimlet about 10 yards from the river, was flooded by about six inches of water this spring.

Water resources department officials inspected the site Tuesday. They said they would place rock along the bank and the water surface.

A question on the permit application asked Smith if he intended to work below the water surface.

Smith, in answering the query, wrote that he would not work below the water's surface, that he would confine the flood barrier placement to dry ground.

According to the complaint, Smith violated his agreement not to work below the water's surface by bulk-doing gravel from the stream bed.

Work at the site of Smith's operation was stopped after district flood-control director James Hogg informed Smith Monday that he was in violation of the permit.

Water resources department officials inspected the site Tuesday.

In the future, Haynes said Thursday, he will inform all persons applying for state water resource permits that they will also have to get the approval of the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission.

Kick-off meet

BUHL — Thirteen persons attended a kick-off meeting here Monday for area residents who want to help write a Twin Falls County land use plan.

City-county planner David Richey said, "We can definitely work with that number" in the public participation program. He said he had hoped for a "Committee of 100" comprised of east side, west side and Twin Falls area groups, but "with the numbers we have right now, combined with the specific type of format that we're following, we have a far better (public participation) system than any that has preceded us."

A similar meeting in Twin Falls Monday drew 14 persons. The third and final kick-off session will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Kimberly City Hall, for east side residents.

The Buhl group agreed to meet each Tuesday at 6 p.m. in the R and R Cafe. The Twin Falls group will meet every Monday at 8 p.m. in Room 121 of the Voc-Tech building at the College of Southern Idaho.

Population and economics will be discussed in this month's meetings, according to Richey. Population projections for the next five years will be compiled, he said.

Housing problems and needs will be discussed in November.

Magistrate sets filing

GOODING — Gooding County Magistrate Charles C. Shaw has announced that he will file for election to retain his judgeship within the Fifth Judicial District.

Under Idaho law, magistrate judges must share their candidacy and place their name before the electorate every four years after their initial appointed term of office has expired.

Judge Shaw was appointed Gooding magistrate four years ago. To retain his post he must receive an affirmative vote from a majority of those voting on the judgeship. Shaw has no opposition.

Dedication scheduled

TWIN FALLS — Dedication of the new Salmon Dam Recreation Area tentatively set for Oct. 22, County commissioners announced today.

Commissioners William Chaney and William Wiseman, accompanied by Ed Woods, county zoning administrator, and Clark Kleinkopf, executive secretary of the Water Ways Committee, inspected the two new boat ramps being installed at the park Tuesday afternoon.

Wills Inc., began work on the two 570-foot long by 14-foot ramps just a week ago and will complete concrete pouring Wednesday. The firm hid a lot of just over $13,000 for the two ramps which are designed to serve boaters during low or high water periods.

In addition, Robert Wills, head of the firm, said some connecting road work and the removal of rocks to allow for a parking area near the ramps will be done at the same time.

Kleinkopf said the State Parks and Recreation Department has assisted the Twin Falls County Water Ways Committee in providing the many improvements at the popular fishing and boating area. Noah Oliver, committee chairman, and Fritz Bybee, a member, have worked with Kleinkopf and the county in planning the improvement.

Bureau of Land Management participation has also been provided with the BLM furnishing some dozen picnic tables, with shelters, and planting numerous trees.

Kleinkopf said the State Parks and Recreation Department has agreed to assist the Twin Falls area groups in financing the project.

Waterways Committee funds have been used to construct a new floating boat dock which has just been added. Two other smaller ones are being relocated to coincide with the location of the new boat ramps.

Commission Chairman Chaney said officials from all participating agencies will be invited to attend the dedication ceremony. Elko County, Nev., county commissioners will also be invited because of the interest from Jackpot area residents in the recreation site.

Survey breakdown sets filing

SHAW will be retained. The vote is non-partisan, and Shaw needs only to collect a majority of "yes" votes to keep his post. If retained, he will serve an additional four years.

Prior to his appointment as Gooding magistrate in 1970, Judge Shaw practiced civil, criminal and probate law. He also served formerly as prosecuting attorney for both Gooding and Lincoln Counties.

In addition to serving as Gooding Magistrate, Judge Shaw has been appointed by the Idaho Supreme Court to act as trial court administrator for the Fifth Judicial District. As trial court administrator, he coordinates trial activities of all magistrates in the eight-county district.

Plant siting law planned

BOISE — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus and Atty. Gen. Tony Park jointly announced plans to draft power plant siting legislation here Tuesday.

"Our state must have a policy and procedure to evaluate and approve sites for new electrical power generating facilities. The need for power cannot be considered outside of the context of a procedure that also considers the needs of the economy and the needs of the environment," Andrus said.

The governor said the proposal follows months of speculation "about an Idaho Power Co. plan to build a coal-fired steam power plant south of Boise."

"One of three questions which was to be answered about the present proposal is whether or not the electricity generated would be used in Idaho or shipped to downstream states."

"Such questions have brought to light the fact that Idaho has no solid legal procedure to follow in determining where new power plants will be located in drawing up that criteria will be considered in their location," Andrus said.

He said concern also has been generated by a recent study which indicated the need for 20 additional electrical power plant plants by the end of the century.

Andrus said he expects to have power plant siting legislation ready for the next legislature. While the state's energy demands are increasing, there are "no state procedures to judge the advisability" of new plants, he said.

The attorney general said he would be contacting state power plant siting commissions established in Wyoming, Oregon and Montana, and contacting other agencies and companies in drawing up a "reasonable and fair" proposal. He also said he would be seeking public input on the matter.

Assistant attorney general Terry Coffin said recently in a Times-News interview that a power plant siting commission would take all state agency and public comment and criticism into account in "one fell swoop." He said the commission would probably not be a new entity but "a new duty thrust on an already existing agency."

Bacteria found

PAUL — Disposal wells for irrigation runoff in southeast Idaho may be contaminating underground water supplies, according to the Idaho Department of Water Resources.

The Boise State manager reported today that the state agency has discovered bacteria in underground water at an experimental disposal well west of Paul.

Some of the underground water is used for domestic purposes.

Stephen Allred, a Department of Water Resources spokesman, said the experimental well has been tested for one year of a three-year program, and cannot be used in determining damage.

About 5,000 irrigation disposal wells have been counted in the state, according to the reports. The wells drain the waste irrigation water 100 to several hundred feet into the ground.

If a positive amount of bacteria or other contaminants are found in underground water, control measures will be instituted, according to Allred. The wells may have to be abandoned, he said.

Suit filed

BOISE — A damage suit seeking $5 million, from Schell and Goodlight Farms, Minidoka, and Idaho Power Co. has been filed in U.S. District Court in Boise.

The suit, filed Tuesday, seeks damages as a result of an accident in the Flatfoot, 22, case. It accuses Idaho Power of negligence on the part of the defendants in an accident which he says cost him the loss of both arms and one leg.

He says as a result of the accident he has lost his ability to make a living and will require costly and continued medical care.

Survey breakdown eyed

TWIN FALLS — A specific breakdown of survey replies on priorities for expansion of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital were released Wednesday by hospital officials.

The new breakdown showed survey respondents favored improvements directly involved with patient care instead of those affecting business functions or visitor comfort.

Emergency room expansion and improvement topped the priority list for hospital needs, according to official figures released today by Magic Valley Memorial Hospital officials.

Of the 158 individuals surveyed returned to the hospital, 158 people marked the emergency room improvements among their top three priorities.

The surveys were completed as part of public opinion poll on the hospital's proposed $47 million construction program, which will be up for a vote Nov. 5.

Other top priorities were adding 90 more beds in three stages of 30 beds each; expanding outpatient services and providing additional surgical facilities as well as improving existing ones. Among the other possible improvements in terms of how many people marked them as among the top three priorities, improvements in fire and safety features were voted the next important need.

The number of respondents who placed the suggested improvements among their top three priority items was as follows: Emergency room improvement, 148; more beds, 110; outpatient services, 90; surgical facilities, 65; fire and safety features, 60; better heating and cooling, 55; more elevators, 15; administrative offices, 10; better heating and cooling, 8; more restrooms, 4; more waiting rooms, 2; more parking, 1; and improved visitor eating facilities, 0.

Alston didn't expect to keep Pirate bats muffled

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — To veteran Manager Walt Alston, it was just a matter of time before the Pittsburgh Pirates began hitting.

"We contained their hitters so well in Pittsburgh," the Dodger manager said following his team's 7-0 loss to the Pirates in the third game of the National League playoff series Tuesday. "You expect this kind of hitting to break loose once in a while no matter who pitches."

The Dodgers committed a playoff record five errors and only managed four hits off Bruce Kison and Ramon Hernandez.

"I hope all the bad things happened in one game," said Alston. "I'd rather we got it all out of us in one game. Maybe we can play better tomorrow."

Asked what he felt starter Doug Rau's biggest problem was, Alston replied, "The Pittsburgh bats, mainly."

"I thought he had pretty good stuff," Alston said, "although he wasn't putting the ball where he wanted to."

"Somebody asked me if errors were contagious," Alston said as he embraced Pirate Manager Danny Murtaugh in a post-game news conference. "I said I doubted it but I'm hoping Pittsburgh catches it."

Other Dodgers tried to shake off the defeat. In what Alston called "probably our worst-looking game of the year."

"We played bad," said shortstop Bill Russell, the only bright spot mentioned by Alston. "There's no question about it."

"Maybe the law of pitchers just caught up with us," said the red-haired shortstop. "We knew Kison was a good sidearm pitcher."

Steve Garvey, a 100-RBI man during the season and possible National League MVP candidate, also was impressed by Kison's performance.

"That was a rough one today," said the easy-going Garvey. "Kison had good off-speed pitches. It was the best I've seen him pitch. That was a really clutch job."

"But I like our position right now."

The Dodgers, leading 2-1 in the series, are hoping Don Sutton can repeat his opening game performance when he opposes the Pirates on Wednesday.

"We've been relying on Sutton and Andy Messersmith all year," Alston said. "And we're going to have to do it again."

"We still have a one-game lead and the Pirates know that," Russell said. "We just have to go out there and win one more."

Sutton, who said the loss ruined his plans to play golf Wednesday morning, repeated his season-long belief in the team.

"I've been saying all along this is the best Dodger team I've played on and we're going to beat the two or three teams in the league," Sutton said.

"When the week is over, this team will be on top."

Alston, a veteran of 21 seasons, was also hopeful.

"In the past, we've been able to bounce back from games like this," Alston said. "These fellas want to hurry up and get this over as fast as I do."

A's call Blue's two-hit stint best of his career

BALTIMORE (UPI) — "You can't pitch better than that," Manager Alvin Dark said of Vida Blue's overpowering two-hitter Tuesday that gave Oakland a 3-0 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles and moved the A's into command in the American League championship playoffs.

"Blue was the best game in his career," chimed in Sal Bando, whose fourth inning homer gave Blue the tie he needed to better Jim Palmer's four-hit performance.

Blue told newsmen after the game, "I gave the defending world champions a two-one advantage in the live game series, that he thought he had pitched better games in his checkered career."

But he pointed with pride to his control during the duel that he walked none and struck out seven.

"I threw 99 per cent fast balls and only six curves," he recounted in a post-game interview. "I'm a fast ball pitcher and I couldn't see letting two-hitters Tuesday take over Oakland's line-up change my tactics."

He added that Bobby Grich hit his second career ball of the game for Baltimore's first hit in a shut-out rally.

Blue shrugged off Dick Green's second error of the game which allowed Paul Blair to reach first with two out in the ninth and give the Orioles a last shot for a rally.

"I didn't want to face Tommy Davis again, especially in the ninth," he commented. "He's the toughest clutch hitter in the league."

The 25-year-old Oakland southpaw quickly snuffed out the Baltimore hopes by inducing Bobby Grich to force Blair's error and Davis never got to the plate.

Bando reported he drilled his homer into the left field stands off Palmer "fastball, down."

"I thought it was a pretty good pitch," he said and told newsmen he thought Palmer threw as good as I've ever seen him. We beat a really fine pitcher out there today."

The A's team captain noted that he thought he hit a second Palmer pitch harder in the ninth but Baylor backed against the left field fence to rob him of a possible second homer.

Bando said of Blue's performance, "He threw as hard for nine innings as anyone can for nine innings. A lot of pitchers can do it for five or six innings but Vida did it all the way today."

Oakland catcher Ray Fosse was impressed by Blue's "velocity."

"Vida threw as hard in the ninth as in the first inning," he observed and said of Blue's long-range future: "As soon as he gets consistent control, he'll win to every year."

Bando predicted the victory will enable the A's to loosen up a bit from the pressure in Wednesday's game.

"I like our chances," he summed up.

Dark wasn't claiming victory quite yet but he declared: "I think the best ballclub I've ever been associated with. It's saturated with stars."

Pirate manager satisfied with 7-0 win

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It was Danny Murtaugh's 57th, birthday Tuesday and the question was could he think of a better present than his Pirates' 7-0 victory over the Dodgers that kept his team's pennant hopes alive.

Murtaugh, the squat, likeable Pittsburgh skipper, hesitated for a moment, and then said with a glimmer in his eye, "When I was younger, yes!"

The Pirates Tuesday were a completely different club than in the first two National League playoff games at Pittsburgh where they fell behind in the series 2-0.

Pirates muscleman Willie Stargell got his club off to a 3-0 start in the first inning with a three-run homer, but he credited the pitching of young Bruce Kison for the Pittsburgh victory.

"Good pitching stops good hitting and Bruce Kison was superior," said Stargell, who went into the third game of the series with a .412 average.

"We knew we had a job to do. Otherwise it was back to Pittsburgh. Now we hope we can bring it down to the wire."

"I try to pitch as if it was still a close game, but you can afford to take more chances."

"I'd be lying to say I wasn't nervous before the game," he said. "I've definitely thought about the game in the past 24 hours."

It was Kison's first assignment as a starting pitcher in a playoff game and he said he liked the turf of Dodger Stadium opposed to artificial grass.

"I enjoy pitching in the stadium that has real turf," he said. "I feel any sinking ball pitcher has more success on real turf because the ball doesn't skip, as much in the infield."

"We don't want to leave this lovely city just yet," he said.

Mtn. Home calls champs

MOUNTAIN HOME — Mountain Home's answer to the "tournament of champions" will run Oct. 12 and 13, hoping to bring together all the amateur champions from across Southern Idaho.

Host professional Mike Sessions said all champions for the past two years in stroke play tournaments are eligible. He said the $20 entry fee would cover a buffet and social hour Saturday night and that all payout would be in gross only.

Those interested should contact Sessions at 837-8151.

Kison, a reg-d-thin righthander, allowed the Dodgers only two hits, walked six and struck out five before being lifted in the seventh inning.

"Having a 7-0 lead in the third inning makes it a little easier," Kison said.

Kison, 25, who had pitched 13 innings of post-season competition previously and given up only four hits, is now 4-0 in playoff and World Series play.

"I don't know why I do so well," said Kison. "You might say the guy up above."

Kison said he was working mostly with fast balls, keeping them low and tight to

Palmer's frustration summed up in loss

BALTIMORE (UPI) — It was the kind of game they usually call a heartbreaker, but Jim Palmer settled for calling his 1-0 loss Tuesday to the Oakland A's "frustrating" and admitting, "I wish I'd walked."

Palmer, who pitched in the fourth inning.

Sitting with his right arm in an icebath, Palmer reflected on the loss that put the A's in command in the American League pennant.

"I like to think the pitching was good," said Palmer, who finished 54 days in mid-season with arm troubles. "I had a good week, but it wasn't good today. It was just one of those days, kind of frustrating like my whole season."

When he made it "just one of those days" for the Orioles and Palmer was a low inside fastball that Bando hit out of the park for a solo homer in the fourth inning.

Bando connected for the homer on a 3-2 pitch. "I wish I'd walked him now, but I didn't think one run would beat us," said Palmer. "I gave him a 3-1 fastball for ball three and then I came in with one down and in and he hit it out."

Catcher Andy Etchebarren had nothing but praise for his battery mate. "He pitched great," Etchebarren said. "He couldn't have done better. If you don't score any runs, you can't win."

Etchebarren said he and Palmer decided on giving "Bando" fastballs after he fouled off two sliders and a curve.

"We got to 3-2 and then we tried to powder him and he hit it out of there."

Palmer's performance had Bando only one other batter got as far as second base.

Brooks Robinson echoed Etchebarren's belief that the Orioles lost because they couldn't hit Vida Blue, who faced only 30 batters, struck out seven and allowed only four men to reach base, two of them on errors.

"He just had good control," Robinson said of the A's pitcher, who picked up his first win in playoff competition.

"He didn't walk anybody and he was throwing hard. He never got in trouble and he got ahead of everyone."

Robinson broke off to tell a clubhouse attendant to turn on the TV so the Orioles could watch the end of the National League playoff game between the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"We've got to watch it to see what the shadows are like out there so we'll be ready for next week and the series," Robinson joked, but then he turned serious again.

"We've got our backs against the wall," said Robinson, whose team now trails 1-2 in the best of five playoffs. "That's all. It's just like the whole past month, when we came back from eight games out. There's only one difference now. If you don't win, there's no tomorrow."

Louisiana Tech maintains top spot in ratings; BSU fourth

NEW YORK (UPI) — Texas A&I, which has ended winning streaks of 13 and 11 games in successive weeks, finally climbed into the United Press International Board of Coaches' small college football ratings.

Louisiana Tech continued as the top-ranked team, while the Javelinas captured the No. 15 position after handing previously-ranked Stephen F. Austin its first loss of the season last week in 11 games Saturday.

The previous week the Javelinas had snapped 10th ranked Abilene Christian's 13 game winning streak. Texas A&I is now 3-9 after a 2-8 season last year.

Louisiana Tech captured 19 of 35 first-place votes for a total of 314 points. Second-place Western Kentucky totaled 279.

Delaware climbed past Boise State into third position with its 29-24 victory over McNeese State Saturday, with Boise State fourth this week.

Nevada-Las Vegas climbed from seventh to fifth with its fourth straight victory of the year for 14th.

Tennessee State, idle last week, fell one spot to sixth and North Dakota was seventh.

Undefeated Indiana State was eighth, followed by Troy State and Abilene Christian.

McNeese State dropped to 11th. South Dakota was 12th and Elon and Grambling tied for 14th.

Tenace rips manager

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Gene Tenace took a verbal shot at his manager, Alvin Dark, Tuesday, but the one he really was aiming at was the big boss, Oakland owner Charlie Finley, who he's not that enchanted with as a manager.

"I thought he (Dark) did the wrong thing," Tenace said, referring to his removal from the game for designated runner Herb Washington after Baltimore's Jim Palmer walked him with one out in the top of the seventh.

"You don't take out your best offensive player in a given position," continued Tenace. "I was very disturbed over the whole thing."

That was obvious to the 30,000 who turned out to watch the A's beat the Orioles 1-0 in the American League's third playoff contest at Memorial Stadium here because after Dark removed Tenace for Washington, who was thrown out stealing moments later, a helmet came flying out of the Oakland dugout.

It belonged to Tenace.

"He (Dark) knew I was kissed off," said Tenace. "I took my helmet off, hit the floor with it and it bounced right in front of him. I wasn't trying to hit him. I was just frustrated."

ISU prepares defense for Boise State's top offense

POCATELLO— Anyone who thinks the words "going from the frying pan into the fire" is a cliché has never played Boise State a football game before a sellout Bronco stadium.

The Idaho State Big Orange meets BSU Saturday with a 7:30 p.m. kickoff.

Boise won their fourth "I" in a row by routing Nevada, Reno 36-16, while ISU lost a homecoming decision to Idaho 28-9.

In Boise quarterback Jim McMillan ISU will undoubtedly face the top college division QB in the country. McMillan, a super passer, is averaging 323 yards a game total offense. He has completed 43 of 81 passes for 813 yards and 8 touchdowns.

Idaho, but all may answer the call by Saturday. On the other hand Boise lost two key offensive skill people. Split end Terry Hatt, who had caught 13 passes, was reportedly injured while standing well out of bounds after the whistle had blown. He has a knee injury.

Wide receiver Chester Grey, who boasted 222 yards and a 5.2 average per carry, tore up ankle ligaments. Both will miss the remainder of Boise's games.

Boise will go with two wide receivers to catch McMillan's passes, 5-7, 152-lb. Mike Holton and 5-6, 155-lb. John Crabtree. That doesn't give ISU a false sense of security. ISU set national passing records with Ed "The Flea" Bell and Carlis Harris catching passes and both were similarly tiny.

ISU Coach Bob Griffin says, "Boise presents us quite a challenge. They are the best college division offensive team in the country, and they have a fantastic passing game. McMillan will hit his receiver whether he's open or not."

Griffin also likes Boise's defense. "It's big and strong and Boise has great team speed."

Boise Coach Tony Kaap thinks his halfback John Smith is as good a runner as there is in college football. "And he's probably right. Smith has run for 259 yards, a 7.3 average, and four TD's. He's caught nine passes for a 20.6 average and three more scores. Guard Glenn Sparks is one of the Big Sky's better offensive linemen.

The injury factor could be significant in Saturday's game. Several ISU players were bumped and bruised by both were similarly tiny. Replacing Grey is veteran Ken Johnson.

"Our score against Idaho is deceiving," says Griffin. "The outcome was in doubt until Comstock scored their third TD with nine minutes left." ISU had driven 97 yards to score on Steve Wolpin's run and the score was 14-9. However Idaho came back on an 80-yard drive of its own, and Comstock—sneaked—the ball over on fourth down. "After they scored their third TD our tackling fell apart and they marched for a fourth touchdown."

Nominated for awards for performances against Idaho were defensive back Steve Kapaun (seven unassisted tackles), fullback Ken Monroe,

Sportsmen seek stiffer poaching fines

A call for increased action against poachers and a look at some minor change suggestions for next year's fishing season were undertaken by Twin Falls sportsmen Tuesday night.

The Twin Falls County Fish and Wildlife Conservation Inc., voted to send a letter to all magistrates in the Magic Valley area asking for a stiffer punishment against game poachers.

The action was taken after Idaho Fish and Game Department personnel attending the meeting reporting "eight or nine" elk were taken illegally last week by deer hunters in Units 48 and 49.

The department used more men and more check stations open nearly around the clock in "making the cases" against the poachers. All were from the Magic Valley area.

One case was a $300 fine, with half of it suspended, and revocation of a year's hunting privilege. The sportsman, noting a $150 wouldn't be in line with retail prices of buying the same amount of meat at a store suggested magistrates use that when establish their final judgements.

In other action, Bob Bell, regional fish biologist, said very few changes would be recommended for next year's fishing regulations. These will be established by the fish and game commission at their quarterly meeting in Boise in two weeks.

Bell said his department was recommending allowance of fishing from boats on Silver Creek below Kirkpatrick Dam. Motors would not be allowed. He noted fishing from boats would not be allowed in the fly-fishing-only waters.

He also will recommend a consistent 10 fish per day limit throughout the Silver Creek drainage as some anglers have been confused by five and 10 fish limits in effect. However, the one fish over 14 inches restriction still would apply in

16 steelhead caught

SALMON— Steelhead success was better than expected the past weekend with 16 fish caught on the Salmon River below North Fork.

The Idaho Fish and Game Department checked for 12 anglers with the 16 fish Saturday and Sunday. Fishermen had spent 35 hours per fish.

Kent Ball, fisheries biologist, said only four of the fish were of hatchery origin.

As of Oct. 1, 5,566 steelhead had been counted at Little Goose Dam on the Snake River.

Shrinking WFL cuts schedule to five

By United Press International

And then there were 10...with nine a distinct possibility by season's end.

The World Football League is making rapid progress—backwards—and that means there will be only five games played this week instead of the customary six. We have paid our last respects to the Detroit Wheels and the Jacksonville Sharks and with that done away with, can the Florida Blazers be far behind?

The "Waffle" or "wiffle" if you prefer, resumes play Wednesday night with what remains of its schedule — Portland at Birmingham, the Hawaiians — at Philadelphia, Memphis at Charlotte, N. C., and Florida, the latest franchise to be taken over by the league office, at Chicago.

Two other survivors—Shreveport, La., and Southern California—play Thursday night on the west coast.

The league mounted a surprise challenge to the National Football League before play began in the older, established league by signing some top NFL stars for play in 1975. But since then, the latest brain-

District of the Bureau of Land Management, said Congress has voted $340,000 per year for the next five years for range and watershed improvement in the Platte hills.

Don Zuck announced the annual Magic Valley Ducks Unlimited banquet will be held Nov. 14 at the Holiday Inn. He said a special shotgun and painting reproduction auction plus the usual auction and door-prize activities would be offered.

Zuck noted the local banquet has outdrawn the state for the past two years, last fall's bash earning $7,000 for Ducks Unlimited.

Bill Malberg said another appeal to the Idaho supreme court will be heard in Twin Falls later this month over the continuing Silver Creek problem. Landowners will try to have it appear, some part of the navigability judgement set aside.

The original suit handed down a judgement opening the stream to be open for public use.

Shrine eyes 2 Bengals

POCATELLO— Two members of the 1974 Idaho State University football team are under consideration for selection to the Shrine East-West Game. The game is in its 50th year and will be played at Stanford Stadium December 28th.

According to Bob Murphy, the game's Executive Director, Tom Hofmann and John Roman are strong candidates for selection. In part Murphy says, "We are pleased to advise you that the following players from your school, Tom Hofmann, WR, and John Roman, OG, have been nominated for the game, and you can be sure that we will be watching them closely throughout the... 1974 football season."

Hialeah sells dates

MIAMI (UPI)— If the Florida Board of Business Regulation approves, the financially-troubled Hialeah race track will sell its racing dates to Jimmy Donat's Gulfstream Park for $7 million.

Stockholders of the historic race track voted Tuesday to sell its racing dates from Jan. 17 through March 4, 1975 to the park. The Hialeah track suffered a $3 million operating loss last spring.

Donn, emphasizing that Gulfstream is interested in Hialeah's racing dates only, said he anticipated no problems getting the sale approved by the Board of Business Regulation.

"We don't want the property; we don't want the buildings; and we don't want the equipment. It's up to the Hialeah owners to sell such assets," Donn said.

Utah signs Jones

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)— The Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association signed veteran guard Walt Jones Tuesday, hoping he'll fill the playmaker role of holdout Jimmy Jones.

"We lack a team quarterback with Jimmy Jones holding out," a team spokesman said. "We're hoping Walt Jones will fill that spot."

Walt Jones, 32, a 6-2, 185-pounder out of Villanova, played nine seasons in the National Basketball Association and sat out last year after being dropped by the Milwaukee Bucks.

Jones and center Jim Eakins, obtained in an off-season trade with Virginia, had not reported to the Stars. Jones, who is in his option year, has threatened to jump to the NBA.

Czechs drop Canada

PRAGUE (UPI)— A rejuvenated Czechoslovak hockey team jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first 10 minutes Tuesday and went on to hand Team Canada a 3-1 defeat in the final game of its European visit.

The Canadians were fresh from a visit to Moscow, where they completed an eight games series against the Soviet Union in which they won one, lost four and drew three games.

Bubla and Hlinka scored for Czechoslovakia in the first 10 minutes of play against Canadian goalie Don McLeod before a capacity crowd of 18,000 spectators at the Prater ice stadium.

The Canadians got their only goal at 16:40 of the second period, when Tom Webster put in a rebound of a Bobby Hull blueline drive.

Albarado holds title

TOKYO (UPI)— World junior middleweight champion Oscar Albarado of Los Angeles Tuesday night stopped challenger Ryo Sorimachi of Japan at 2:17 of the seventh round of their 15-round title match.

Referee Dick Young of Los Angeles stopped the bout on the advice of Dr. Yukio Yoshida, physician for the Japan Boxing Commission.

Albarado, 26, had scored three mandatory eight-round knockdowns against Sorimachi, once each in the second, fifth and seventh rounds. He was much the heavier puncher in the toe-to-toe exchanges which sent a 9,000 crowd into a frenzy.

Sorimachi, who was observing his 27th birthday, faltered in his second crack at the title, but he started the crowd when he made a brilliant effort in the first round, reddening the champion's face with fast left jabs.

Albarado, however, began using his stronger left jab in the second round and he scored his first knockdown with a short left to Sorimachi's jaw.

Worry expressed on ozone shield

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Responding to concerns raised by several researchers, the National Academy of Sciences has named a committee to look into the possibility that gases from aerosol cans and leaking refrigeration units might damage the earth's ozone radiation shield.

Some scientists fear these aerosol propellants and other gases called fluorocarbons will break down the ozone layer in the upper atmosphere so much that increased ultraviolet radiation from the sun will cause widespread skin cancer.

An academy spokesman said Monday the five-member panel will meet Oct. 30 to determine if the matter is serious enough to warrant a full-scale investigation by the National Research Council. A decision is expected several weeks later.

"The nature of the problem is such that if action is to be taken it needs to be taken as rapidly as possible," the spokesman said.

Rowland, the University of California chemist who raised the issue last month, said millions of pounds of these gases are escaping into the atmosphere annually from aerosol products such as deodorants.

$2 million bill on ex-president

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government is now spending almost $2 million annually on personnel services for former President Richard M. Nixon, according to Sen. Joseph M. Biden, D-N.J.

The new figures released Tuesday were provided by the White House at his request. They do not include a special "retention" allowance for Nixon pending before the Senate.

Congress is expected to set the allowance at $200,000 — less than one quarter of the $500,000 which President Ford had requested on behalf of his predecessor.

Nixon, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee which has been reviewing federal outlays for the former president, said information supplied by the White House shows:

- There are 64 government employees, both military and civilian, now detailed to Nixon's San Clemente, Calif., complex at salaries totaling about $841,000 an annual total.
- Secret service protection for Nixon is costing $820,000 a year.
- Secret Service and other government personnel at the White House are costing $500,000 annually.
- Whether the new figures constitute a complete current tally has not been determined by Biden, who said he would like to see the figures audited and reported. "We hope so. But we keep finding more and more bodies popping up on the payroll."

Montoya said the general services administration has emphasized that many personnel stations at San Clemente are there primarily to serve government interests, rather than to assist the former president.

The senator said 18 individuals are in San Clemente working directly on Nixon's transition to private life. Their salaries total some $175,000 a year, he said. Included in this group are such former White House aides as Ronald L. Ziegler and Rose Mary Woods.

Also assigned to San Clemente are:

- A former defense department personnel attached to the defense-White House communications network, at salaries totaling $130,800 a year.
- Two Navy mess stewards, duties unspecified, at salaries totaling $22,500 a year.
- Twelve Coast Guard personnel paid a total of $96,600 annually.
- Seven G.S.A. employees assigned to maintenance and custodial work at salaries totaling $76,300 a year.
- Nixon said that 10 G.S.A. employees from the National Archives and Records Service are working on Nixon's presidential papers in Washington at salaries totaling $12,745 a year.
- And G.S.A. employees are assigned to Key Biscayne at salaries totaling about $50,000 annually.

Montoya noted that federal government notices at Key Biscayne are supposed to be phased out within 90 days. The navy, he said, has already reassigned one mess steward who had been stationed there.

Bunker Hill mine gets new air plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency is proposing new air pollution control regulations that would require the Bunker Hill Co. Smelter to achieve 85 per cent control of sulfur oxide emissions by July 31, 1975.

The regulations, published Monday in the Federal Register, also would have the Bunker Hill Lead and Zinc Smelter meet all health-related ambient air quality standards for sulfur oxide by July 1977.

The two dates are key milestones in a phased control schedule proposed by EPA. The schedule and install control systems in time for air quality standards to be met by statutory deadlines.

Under the proposed regulations, Bunker Hill has the option to choose between two control strategies.

The first would require Bunker Hill to use permanent control systems to limit sulfur oxide emissions to 1900 pounds per hour by 1977. That is equivalent to a 96 per cent overall control of sulfur oxide emissions from the complex.

In addition, the company would be required as an interim control measure to an 870 ton sulfur dioxide emissions to 37 tons per seven consecutive days by July 1975 — the equivalent of 85 per cent overall control — and to continue using temporary control system to minimize the impact of emissions on ambient air quality.

The second option would allow Bunker Hill to apply to the EPA for a permit to use a supplementary control system in addition to its existing equipment.

Swallows get free rides

GENEVA (UPI) — Thousands of tiny swallows, trapped in a sudden early Swiss winter, are being hunted up in old shoe boxes and taken to train stations for free rides south.

Schools, police and factories throughout Switzerland are collecting tons of thousands of the tiny birds trapped by bitterly cold weather and unable to fly south for the winter.

All over the country people are collecting the swallows, placing them carefully in warm boxes and taking them either to the railroad or local offices of the Swiss airline, Swissair.

Airline and railroad officials are taking the birds to summer climates in Italy, France and Spain. The birds are released in the warm winds to continue their winter migration.

Winter weather arrived in Switzerland two weeks ago, two months early. The cold killed all the insects normally eaten by the swallows, and violent snowstorms prevented them flying over the Alps to the south.

Swissair said it has so far flown, free of charge, more than 10,000 swallows to Nice, Marseille and Barcelona.

The railroads transport them through the St. Gallen hard tunnel daily.

People found up to 20 swallows huddling in one nest to keep warm. But overcrowded nests cause suffocation. Dead swallows lie all over parks and tree-lined avenues.

Status

By United Press International
SEATTLE (UPI) — Jay Wagner, who is both a politician and out of a job, reported Monday on a recent informal survey of the relative social status of each. The survey was conducted on a round-trip hitchhike to California.

"Every person who picked me up asked what I did for a living," he said. "When I said I was unemployed, I got a long ride. When I said I'd just lost a congressional primary race, the driver would suddenly remember that he had to stop nearby and I lost my ride."

The Washington primary was conducted last month.

Mexican coast contains bonanza of fossil finds

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — A 350-mile stretch of Mexican coast contains a bonanza of fossil finds up to 60 million years old, including indications primitive men may have reached North America as long ago as 100,000 years, according to a scientific report released today.

Some of the fossil beds indicate there was once a seaway across what is now Mexico, connecting the Caribbean to the Pacific Ocean.

A team of American and Mexican researchers has found at least 18 sites along the 350 miles from Santa Rosalia to Cabo San Lucas on the Mexican peninsula of Baja California, according to Dr. Shelton P. Applegate.

Applegate, associate curator of vertebrate paleontology at the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History, made a preliminary report on the sites today to the annual meeting here of the Vertebrate Paleontological Society of America.

Although researchers have found no human fossils, Applegate said, they have discovered what appear to be stone tools in layers of sand 50,000 years old or more.

"There are flakes and chips of flint and obsidian all over the place," he said. "There's a reason to believe that some of these beds will eventually turn up solid evidence of man."

Most anthropologists today believe man entered the Western Hemisphere from Asia.

Food shortage solution, maybe

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A partial solution to the world food shortage may be a still untapped source of protein insects.

A Mexican biologist Monday said insects could be "cultivated" in massive quantities, and their proteins, fats and carbohydrates isolated industrially and used for human consumption.

described as a kind of "herbivorous bedbug," is a folk remedy for rheumatism and toothache — if eaten alive.

Certain species of locust ants served up in tamales for stew, french-fried, or just spread on bread, are believed to have aphrodisiac properties, MacGregor said.

Raul MacGregor-Lopez of the Biology Institute of the National University of Mexico said Mexicans still eat several varieties of insects just as their ancestors did before the Spaniards arrived.

He said one favorite is the fat white worm that lives in the maguay cactus. The worms contain 16 per cent protein as well as large amounts of calcium, the biologist said.

Even higher in protein content — 63.8 per cent — is the "ahuate," a water bug that produces over 300 calories.

Another variety, the "jumi," which MacGregor

Chinese vessel said OK

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Coast Guard says that a 50-foot replica of an ancient Chinese junk sailing across the Pacific is apparently in no difficulty.

"The junk was last heard from Oct. 4 and it reported all was well," Mill Duhay, Coast Guard public affairs officer, said Monday. "We don't consider them to be in any trouble."

A New York film maker who is sponsoring the voyage said Sunday the vessel, Tai Ki, had lost radio contact and officials expressed fear for its eight-member crew.

But the Coast Guard said the radio message Friday reported the Tai Ki was about 300 miles northwest of Hawaii and its crew expected to reach the west coast of Central American on schedule.

The junk left Hong Kong June 18 with a multinational crew, hoping to prove by a six-month voyage that Orientals could have sailed to the Americas many centuries ago.

The Coast Guard said that in the Friday radio message the Tai Ki reported the power source for its transmitter was weak, but still functioning.

Film maker Philip Hobe had said in New York that a faint radio message on Sept. 13 was "the last word we've had."

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: If someone tries to pick a fight with you at school and you have done everything you can to avoid a fight, but that person starts pushing you around, and you have to use force to defend yourself, do you think it's fair that the person who was trying to defend himself should get punished just the same as the troublemaker?

What is a person supposed to do when he is picked on by someone who is trying to get him into a fight? I am not going to just stand there and let him push me around. Fighting is against the rules on our school grounds. UNFAIRLY PUNISHED

Surprise lesson

DEAR UN: When someone tries to provoke a fight by pushing you around, instead of pushing HIM around, report him to the authorities.

This may sound like the chicken's way out, but it's the only way to protect yourself from the punishment of breaking the "no fighting" rules at your school. P.S. You might consider taking some lessons in self defense, and give that bully a surprise lesson in case he ever tries to push you around OFF the school grounds.

DEAR ABBY: I read about that mother who never wanted children but she accidentally had two anyway. She said not all women were cut out to be mothers, and she was one of them.

She may be interested in my story: My husband and I always wanted a large family. Ten months after we were married I gave birth to a healthy baby boy. We couldn't wait to have more.

Twelve months later, I had another son. He was born dead.

A year later, I gave birth to another son.

Eighteen months later, a third son was born, but we soon discovered that our second and third sons were both severely deaf.

They needed special education. After thousands of dollars worth of tutoring and much hard work, our two deaf sons are now able to talk nearly as well as our normal son. I wanted children desperately, and their being handicapped doesn't make us love them any less. Some handicaps can be overcome.

I hope that mother realizes that in her refusal to love her children she is handicapped. And I hope she overcomes her handicap before it handicaps her unloved children.

LUCKY IN ILLINOIS

DEAR LUCKY: Your children are lucky, too. God bless you.

DEAR ABBY: Three cheers for the young mother who had the courage to admit that she felt "stuck" with her two kids who were both accidentals.

I have one child, but she wasn't an accident. I really wanted a child, but I soon realized that I wasn't cut out to be a mother. I have never abused my child, but I am positive that I do not want another one.

Now if my in-laws and friends would just leave me alone, and quit telling me how "wrong" it is to raise only one child, I would appreciate it.

And if this letter is printed, I hope my husband's family in New Jersey reads it, and sees the light. Thank you.

ONE IS BEAUTIFUL IN N.Y.

DEAR ONE: Leave nothing so important to chance. Clip this column and mail it to J.

CONFIDENTIAL TO T. IN MINNEAPOLIS: Tell your husband that you'll lose ten pounds if he'll lose 20. I can't think of a better way to have a closer relationship.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

How to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lesky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

By Oswald & James Jacoby

You can have a lot of fun with today's hand if you cover up the East and West cards. Now try to make your spade slam after East wins the first trick with the king of hearts and returns the five of clubs.

You win in dummy and can afford to play one round of trumps. Both opponents follow. Now, there is a very simple way to proceed. Play second trump and go after diamonds. If the suit breaks 3-2 you will have a million tricks. A second line will be to try to ruff both your losing hearts. That will win if West started with just two hearts and the jack of spades. Is there a third way? There sure is! You can draw the defense's last trump; ruff a heart; ruff a club back to your hand and run off all your trumps.

If West has a diamond stopper he will be squeezed out of it since he will have to hang on to the queen of clubs. If East has the diamond stopper he will also be squeezed since he must hang on to the ace of hearts.

This play is known as an automatic double squeeze. Only West can guard against the jack of clubs; only East can guard against the queen of hearts. Therefore, neither can protect diamonds.

Carroll Righter

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You may misunderstand a communication received early, so be objective and do not let emotions interfere with reasoning for good results.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Divide your time carefully between home matters and business to make the most of this day. Avoid arguments. Keep busy and all is okay.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Careful planning will see both home and business affairs working out nicely, otherwise there is much conflict. Utilize cooperation from fellow worker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use intelligence to correlate finances with business or pleasure aims. Be sensible in every area of your existence.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You accepted responsibilities which seem too heavy for you, but this is due to the poor influences around you. Carry through wisely and all is okay.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Forget that private worry and get out into the world of activity and take advantage of the fine opportunities open to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle business matters of importance early, then you have time to do some favor a friend desires of you. Watch one who eyes your assets.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A higher-up could put a dent into your personal aims, but if you study the matter well, you know how to solve things.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You want to jump into some new outlet now without first studying your present position well, and this would not be wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be with congenials who will make you feel happier. Keep alert to getting ahead socially. Avoid one with an eye on your assets.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Keep neutral when a bigwig and a partner argue, or you become the whipping boy. Await a better time to get needed business assistance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Do current work, but make time to study some new venture. Don't interfere with a co worker's job, or you get into trouble.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan time for entertainment as well as dates. If you are having your pockets picked, do something about it. Let this bad habit stop.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to make his or her mark in life early, but you have to teach to finish whatever is first begun, or you could have a jack-of-all-trades and master of none, which would make for a most miserable life. Teach to be more objective, or your progeny could get hurt by others or shunned by them. Reluctant training early can be of great help to your fascinating youngster.
"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

BLONDIE

WHY DIDN'T YOU WANT TO PLAY BRIDGE WITH SUZANNE AND FRANK TONIGHT?

BECAUSE THEY CHEAT BY KICKING EACH OTHER UNDER THE TABLE

DAGWOOD THEY DON'T DO THAT!

WELL, HOW COME THEY BOTH WEAR SHIN GUARDS WHEN THEY PLAY?

PARSON PARSONS.

HOW IS IT THAT YOU, A MAN OF THE CLOTH, GO AROUND WITH TWO SIX-SHOOTERS...

AND A SAVED-OFF SHOTGUN?

MY MOTTO IS NEVER GIVE THE DEVIL AN EVEN CHANCE.

THE DOCTOR CAME YESTERDAY AND HAD ME TO STAY IN BED 4 OR 5 DAYS... SO I'VE BEEN IN BED SOME EXTRA CURRICULAR READING. THANKS FOR DRIPPING OFF MY HOMEWORK!

A PERFECT SPOT FOR A TWO-DAY VACATION FROM SCHOOL WORK AND HE BLOWS IT.

I FEAR FOR HIM! HIS HEAD'S SO FULL OF BOG, THERE'S NO ROOM FOR COMMON SENSE! OPPORTUNITY KNOCKED BUT HE DIDN'T OPEN THE DOOR!

THE OOPBALL!

YOU KNOW, IF I COULD GET WITH YOU ALL THE TIME... I WOULD NEED TRANQUILIZERS.

I'M NOT AT ALL SURE I SHOULD CONSIDER THAT A COMPLIMENT!

IT WAS MEANT TO BE A COMPLIMENT. I FEEL PLEASSED AND HAPPY WHEN I'M WITH YOU. COME ON, I'M TAKING YOU TO DINNER THIS EVENING!

BRADY BRADY!

WHAT DID YOU MEAN WHEN YOU SAID THAT REX SEEMED FORMAL ON THE PHONE?

WHEN HE STARTS CALLING ME DOCKOR INSTEAD OF DOCKOR, I'M EITHER ANNOYED WITH HIM OR I'M TALKING IN THE PRESENCE OF SOMEONE.

GOLGOLINE ALLEY

Fitty-six years on this old alley, Aver!

Yeah!

Our whole lives, all that we've worked for, are right here in this soil!

And Part thinks he can buy it for a handful of silver!

It would be like selling our souls!

What's the going price on souls these days, Wait?

DOONESBURY

OR PRESIDENT? YES, WHAT IS IT?

IT'S ABOUT YOUR PARTY, YOUR PARTY, SIR.

SIR, DON'T YOU REMEMBER YOU ASKED ALL THE DRAFT DODGERS WHO ACCEPTED YOUR NASTY OFFER FOR DINNER, LIKE THE NIXON'S POW PARTY.

HE'S HI. HERE. HAH.

ANDY GAPP

'ANG ON A SEC, FLO - YOUR TOP BUTTON'S UNDONE.

THANKS, PET.

BLIMEY, YOU'RE GETTIN' A BIT PAST IT WHEN YOU START DOIN' BUTTONS UP.

ALLEY OOP

I SHOULD HAVE KNOWN RIGHT OFF THAT YOU TWO WEREN'T FROM THE ISLAND!

YES! YOU SEE, THE PTIEMES OR NEEB AND THE ISLANDERS HAVE A PHYSICAL TRAIT THEY DON'T POSSESS!

WHAT'S THAT?

WE ALL HAVE TAILS!

BEETLE BAILEY

IT JUST ISN'T RIGHT THAT SARGE'S DESK IS LONGER THAN MINE!

WELL, I'M GOING TO DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT.

OKAY, OKAY! JUST REMEMBER, THEY LAUGHED AT RUBE GOLDBERG, TOO.

THEY LAUGHED AT FULTON, TOO.

WIZARD OF ID

NUTS! I JUST SPILLED HALF OF MY PAPERS DOWN THAT MANHOLE!

WHAT YOU NEED IS A BREEZE!

WHAT COULD BE BRISER THAN PUMPING MY CLIENT'S ROCKET DOWN THE SEWER?

RICK O'SHAY

THREAT! NOW WHEN THE 4:15 COMES BARCLINING AROUND THE CORNER...

IT'LL HIT THAT SAFE HEAD ON ANY 9/16, IT OPEN!

UH...OR MAYBE IT WIGHT WICK-DE TRAIN.

YEAH...THAT IS A POSSIBILITY, PAVO.

...BUT IF IT DOES HAPPEN, WE'LL JUST FORGET ABOUT THE TRAIN!

THE BORN LOSER

I'M GETTING PRETTY SICK OF THAT SAME BORING SONG... WHAT'S THE NAME OF IT?

COMPAGH

REX MORGAN

YOU KNOW, IF I COULD GET WITH YOU ALL THE TIME... I WOULD NEED TRANQUILIZERS.

I'M NOT AT ALL SURE I SHOULD CONSIDER THAT A COMPLIMENT!

IT WAS MEANT TO BE A COMPLIMENT. I FEEL PLEASSED AND HAPPY WHEN I'M WITH YOU. COME ON, I'M TAKING YOU TO DINNER THIS EVENING!

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Odds are a widower of 40 is just as likely to marry again as is a bachelor of 30 to marry ever... "STRABISMUS" is the name of your affliction if you happen to be cross-eyed... BEAR IN MIND that it was James Monroe who was the last U. S. president to wear knee trousers... MEDICAL MEN say only about 5 per cent of the human body differs between the male and the female... ONE OUT OF EVERY 10 moonlighters also works for the Post Office.

Q. "LOUIE, old boy, have you ever fainted?"
A. "Could admit I've been walked out, locked out, and knocked out. But as for your personal query, certainly not. Men don't faint. Men black out. Women faint."

LIFE EXPECTANCY
Average life expectancy is known to be longest among whites in the West North Central States of Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas. That has been reported. Less widely known, however, is where the average life expectancy is longest among blacks. Washington, Oregon and California merit that distinction.

LOVE AND WAR
Our Love and War man is opposed to the romantic slang of late. When a cool conversationalist says he "digs" his girlfriend, or "gets into her head," or "talks heavy" with her, that's bad. O. L. and W. man prefers such elderly expressions as "like," "love," and "crazy about." He does not intend to change his mind in this matter. That's it.

WHEN A MAN has more than one wife at one time, he practices polygamy. When a man or a woman has more than one matrimonial mate at one time, he or she practices polygamy. When a woman has more than one husband at one time, she practices polyandry. Got that?

Food price rise seen continuing

MOSCOW — Dr. John O. Early, University of Idaho extension economist, predicts continuing increases in average retail food prices into early 1975 and a rate of inflation which may not ease until mid-1975.

Early spoke of higher retail prices for vegetable oil products, cereal and bakery items, beverages and sugar products through the remainder of 1974. Likely increases for canned and frozen fruits and vegetables, and advances in red meat, eggs, and fishery products which may be only partially offset by a modest decline in dairy products in the third quarter of the year.

Early said personal consumption expenditures — which represent two-thirds of the gross national product — are continuing to rise due to price increases, but said real expenditures remain near late 1972 levels.

"The outlook for the remainder of 1974 and 1975 is for little or no real growth and continued high rates of inflation," he said. "A gradual reduction of inflation rates from the current two-digit levels will likely occur, but inflation will remain at high levels compared to historical experience. Prospects point to a 10 per cent or more annual rate of inflation for the remainder of 1974 with possible easing to 8 to 9 per cent by mid-1975."

Early said inflation pressures have eroded a large amount of the consumer's real purchasing power. He said the savings rate declined from a peak of 9.5 per cent in the fourth quarter of 1973 to 7.4 per cent in the second quarter of 1974.

Further, he said, with high interest rates and limited loan funds, investment in residential structures continues at a low level. "It is unlikely that any impetus to growth can be expected from the housing market until 1975," he said. "This lack of stimulus in housing carries over into durable goods as well, since a substantial portion of the household appliance market hinges on new housing."

In specific food areas, Early said: — Red meat prices should decrease seasonally later this fall and generally offset increases for most other animal related products. He said fall and winter beef prices at retail should be "materially below" 1973-74 prices, but a different type of beef will be offered — grass-fed beef and baby beef rather than grain-fed beef. Retail pork prices should drop because of a 10 per cent increase in supplies this fall; retail fish prices should rise into 1975 due to increased production costs; and poultry prices will show some further seasonal rise and remain relatively strong, in part because broiler producers have sharply cut back hatchings as broiler prices dropped below production and processing costs in recent months.

— Milk prices will likely increase seasonally this fall, along with a 10 per cent price rise later in the year. In part because drought and early frosts reduced feed supplies, forcing dairy farmers to pay higher feed prices in coming months. — Prices for frozen and canned fruit will remain above last year's level as processors pass on to consumers their higher costs for raw materials, processing, and marketing. Early said banana prices from Central and South America will be affected by the loss of the Honduras crop in Hurricane Phil, saying "the demand-supply situation worldwide will be tight and the U.S. supply will be affected greatly as this is a substantial portion of our supply. Citrus fruit will remain above last year."

Corn loss checked

Vegetarian diet food need wider

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An increasing number of persons, particularly young people, have been turning to vegetarian diets in recent years, and rising food costs could provide additional incentives to cast off traditional diets and try something new.

But a recent article in the Agriculture Department's Family Economics Review warns that before launching into a vegetarian diet, the consumer should be aware of the variety of foods necessary to ensure that all the required nutrients are obtained.

"The volume of food required to meet energy and nutrient needs may be greater with a vegetarian diet than with a traditional diet. This is because many foods of animal origin are more concentrated sources of energy and certain nutrients than are foods of vegetable origin, so when they are omitted from a diet, it takes a larger quantity of food to replace them."

There are three general types of vegetarian diets — pure or strict which excludes all foods of animal origin such as meat, poultry, fish, eggs and dairy products; an ovo-lacto vegetarian diet which includes eggs and dairy products but excludes meat, poultry and fish; and a lacto-vegetarian diet which includes dairy products but excludes meat, poultry, fish and eggs.

Although vegetarian diets differ in the kinds of foods they contain, they usually include some or all of the following foods: vegetables, fruits, starched or whole grain breads and cereals, dry beans and peas, lentils, nuts and flukie seeds, peanuts and peanut butter.

"The family economics review article suggests that foods be selected daily from each of the following groups: — Dry beans, dry peas, lentils, nuts and flukie seeds. These foods are valued for their protein but also supply iron, thiamin, riboflavin, niacin and other nutrients. — Whole grain and enriched breads and cereals. These foods provide worthwhile amounts of protein, iron and several of the B-vitamins. — Vegetables and fruits. These foods are valuable because of the vitamins and minerals they contain. Citrus fruits and strawberries are excellent sources of vitamin C, while dark green and deep yellow vegetables and deep yellow fruits provide vitamin A.

— Milk and milk products (especially for children and pregnant or nursing women) and eggs. Milk provides calcium, protein, riboflavin, vitamin B-12 and vitamin A. If the milk is whole or fortified, eggs are a good source of many of the same nutrients, except calcium, as milk and also are a worthwhile source of iron.

Other foods may be used in meals — either in a recipe or added to other foods during preparation or at the table. These foods include sugar or other sweeteners, table fats, other fats and oils including salad dressings and margarine, unenriched refined breads, cereals, flours and meals. Although these foods may have some nutritional value, their main contribution is often food energy (calories).

The article warns that the vegetarian diets may fall short of certain nutrients — vitamin B-12, calcium, vitamin D and possibly riboflavin and iodine — unless special care is taken in selecting the daily food intake.

Exports sought

DENVER (UPI) — The Rocky Mountain Farmers Union RM-FU asked President Gerald Ford Monday to reconsider and allow the export of 3.4 million tons of corn and wheat to Russia.

Charles Hanavan Jr., RMFU vice president, said that Ford's blocking of the grain sale violated a standing obligation and had aggravated "the turmoil in our farm markets and in our economy, in general."

Hanavan, whose organization represents farmers in Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico, said that the interference by Ford also plunged prices quoted for wheat and corn in the three states.

"This wildly fluctuating market will do no good for our grain producers, livestock producers or the nation's economy," Hanavan told Ford in a telegram. "We urge you to reconsider your action," he said.

Corn, soybean crop drop seen

CHICAGO — Lower corn and soybean yields have been estimated by the Leslie Crop Report issued Monday. The report did not take into consideration damage from late September and early October frosts. Compilers of the report said a "fairly stable estimate of production may not be forthcoming until the U.S. Department of Agriculture report in January 1975, because of the abnormal 1974 growing conditions and wide variances in yields. As of the end of September, corn production was estimated at 4.287 billion bushels, compared with the Leslie estimate of 5.185 billion and the USDA estimate of 4.994 billion on Sept. 1. At the end of the month, Illinois corn was reported 70 per cent mature, Minnesota 60 per cent, and Iowa was 85 per cent in or past the dent stage. At the end of September, soybean production was estimated at 1,246 billion bushels, compared with a Sept. 1 estimate of 1,375 billion and a USDA estimate of 1,315 billion.

threatened to destroy their animals if prices are not increased. The cattlemen meeting here said they did not support the idea of slaughtering animals at this time, but said they would leave that option open if conditions do not change. They also agreed to call for an investigation into the price spread between what is paid the producer and what the consumer pays in the market. A spokesman said another meeting of area cattlemen is scheduled for Thursday in Whitlatch County.

Antibiotic ban hit on cost hike ground

CHICAGO (UPI) — An agricultural executive predicted today American meat buyers would be forced to pay $2.1 billion more annually if certain antibiotics are banned.

Philip G. Connell Jr., American Cynamid Co., agriculture division president, told the Environmental Management Association that proposed restrictions against low-level antibiotic use would require another 1.3 million acres of corn to maintain beef and pork production levels. Connell said the antibiotics normally are added to feed for purposes of prevention of disease and to promote faster growth.

World food output seen down in 1974

(C) New York Times Service GENEVA — Dr. Addeke H. Boerma, director general of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, said today it was "almost certain" that total world food production would again fall this year. Recalling that the drop would be the second in three years, Boerma said there was "simply no assurance that a major food emergency in the world can be met."

The setback will also mean that the "vital rebuilding of stocks, which are now at rock-bottom levels, must also be put off for another year," he said, when opening in nearby Lausanne a European regional conference of the food agency.

Canada farm aide asks new incentive

BOISE (UPI) — The Canadian minister of agriculture said today government needs to help farmers "hurry shot in the arm" to bring their incomes around to the incentive position and improve the economy.

Minister Eugene F. Whelan told the Western Agricultural Chemicals Association conference that even with assistance programs, farmers' aid agriculture slipped into a higher bid as costs increased and prices failed to keep pace.

Whelan told the Western Agricultural Chemicals Association conference that even with assistance programs, farmers' aid agriculture slipped into a higher bid as costs increased and prices failed to keep pace. In an economy where food prices have lagged far behind increases in wages and incomes that suddenly looks like a lot of money to consumers. Farmers need better

Import curb sought

DAVENPORT, Wash. (UPI) — Eastern Washington cattlemen meeting to protest low prices being paid cattle producers have agreed to push for a curb on imported beef and an easing of credit to cattle farmers.

The meeting Monday of about 37 cattlemen from Lincoln, Spokane, Whitman, Adams and Stevens Counties was said to be the state's first organized protest over cattle prices. A spokesman for the cattlemen said the meeting was prompted by recent protests in Texas, where cattlemen have
