Dean says coverup plan drawn swiftly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean III testified today that within two days after the Watergate burglary, then White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman both took actions to cover up the involvement of Richard Nixon's re-election campaign committee.

Dean, a former White House counsel who first accused Nixon of complicity in the cover-up, said he was present when Ehrlichman ordered hugging conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. to get out of the country and he was told Haldeman had ordered White House files be "cleaned" of potentially incriminating documents.

During his first hour on the witness stand in the Watergate cover-up trial of Haldeman, Ehrlichman and three other Nixon associates, Dean recited the same story he first told 6 months ago at the nationally televised Senate Watergate hearings. Slipping water frequently from a sycamore cup, he told how the plan to gather political intelligence was hatched and eventually resulted in the bugging arrests of five Nixon campaign operatives at Democratic party headquarters at the Watergate on June 17, 1972.

Dean, looking thin and pale after six weeks in prison, described a series of meetings and telephone calls he had on June 19, 1972, when he returned to his White House office after a trip to the Philippines. The Watergate burglars were arrested two days earlier.

He said Gordon C. Strachan—who will have a separate trial later in the cover-up plot—told him that he had cleaned out White House files "on instructions from Mr. Haldeman" to make sure there was "nothing embarrassing" left in them.

Later that day, Dean testified, he had a meeting to assess the situation with Ehrlichman and then White House aide Charles W. Colson and Ehrlichman was worried about Hunt's whereabouts.

"Ehrlichman said 'I think someone ought to tell Mr. Hunt to get out of the country' and he asked me...to get that instruction to Mr. Hunt," Dean said.

Dean said he immediately telephoned that word to G. Gordon Liddy, the counsel for the Nixon campaign finance committee and the man who dreamed up the hugging scheme. A few minutes later, he said, Ehrlichman changed his mind at Colson's insistence and ordered the instruction to be retracted.

"I called Mr. Liddy back...but Mr. Liddy said the word had already been passed and it may be too late," Dean said. Neither Hunt nor Liddy were arrested at the Watergate. But they were subsequently indicted and convicted in the plot and both are now free on bond pending appeal.

Carey Act filings boom

BY DAVID HORSMAN

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A sudden resurgence of interest in the 89-year-old Carey Act has resulted in filings for reclamation and settlement of about 240,000 acres of federal land in Idaho.

The boom in Carey Act applications, all submitted since April of this year, includes about 12,000 acres in Gooding County, 33,000 acres in Elmore County and 102,000 acres in Owyhee County.

The largest single application was submitted by Gem State Irrigation for about 81,000 acres in Clark and Jefferson Counties. About 1,800 acres have been filed for in Butte County, the only other county affected.

According to an official of the Idaho Department of Water Resources, the unexpected "mushrooming" of filings probably was prompted by an amendment of the Idaho Code by the last legislature allowing a husband and wife to join their Carey Act entries and receive a total of 360 acres.

Under previous law, each entrant could receive only 160 acres. The publicity that the amendment received sparked new interest in the Carey Act, according to Norman Young, chief of the engineering bureau at state agency.

The amendment reportedly was passed specifically to allow the Idaho Water Resource Board to develop about 6,000 acres for entry at the Indian Hills project near Glenns Ferry.

The increase to 360-acre entries allowed "feasible" farming parcels to be granted, according to Young.

"I think how this thing has mushroomed has surprised everyone," Young told the Times-News today.

Under the Carey Act, entrants pay $10 per acre for land and must irrigate and cultivate at least one-eighth of the land filed on.

All applications in Gooding County call for irrigation with ground water. The largest filing in that county was submitted by Hanchers Irrigation, Inc., for about 10,000 acres.

The Elmore County filings all cite the Snake River as the proposed source of their water. The largest application was submitted by Max L. Christensen for about 9,000 acres. Another filing in Elmore, by Bennett Mountain Irrigation for 6,600 acres, was being granted "temporary withdrawal" according to Young, requiring the entrant to draw up plans and a feasibility study within one year. The entrant must apply for a title to the land by next spring, he said.

Most applications in Owyhee County call for irrigation with Snake River water.

The largest was submitted by B and H Canal Co. for about 22,000 acres. Two others, submitted by New Acres Water Co. and Sierra Development Co., ask for about 12,000 acres each.

Second try sells bonds at Wendell

WENDELL — Trustees of the Wendell School District finally managed to sell a $305,000 bond issue following a third Tuesday night.

Two combined bids were received in the second attempt to borrow the money. An earlier attempt Sept. 16 failed to attract any bidders. Buyers of the bonds are the Idaho First National Bank, The Seattle First National Bank, and Gallagher and Jensen, Portland.

Superintendent Lawrence said the low bid of 6.68 per cent interest is one of the lowest interest rates charged for bonds in the area recently. The other bidding combination was First Security Bank of Idaho, Blyth, Eastman, Dillon and Co., Inc., and Dain Kalman and Quill Inc., E. F. Hutton and Co., Inc. The bid was 7.08 per cent.

The bond issue was approved several months ago to construct a four-classroom addition to the Wendell Elementary School, a vocational building to include a vocational agricultural and industrial arts facility at the new building site east of town and a physical education building at the new site.

Construction bids will be opened Tuesday, to be followed Oct. 23 with a bid opening on sewer and water installations for the new building.

Jump brakes set

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County commissioners don't think the bumper gift from New Jersey is going to have it easy competing here plans to jump the Snake River Canyon.

Heldi Scherzinger, 18, Cinnaminson, N. J., had said she has been offered the chance to jump the canyon.

Commissioner William Wiseman groaned when asked how the commissioners would react. He asked, plaintively, "Why don't you let a sleeping dog lie?" He added he had no further comment.

Commissioner Merl Leonard said the commissioners had no plans to let the former go go dancer jump.

"I'm quite positive there will be some stumbling blocks put in the lady's pathway. I don't believe we'll have to hold our breath for this lady," Leonard said.

No changes have been made in county ordinances covering mass gatherings yet. A recently appointed committee is working on possible alternatives, Leonard said, and should have some recommendations within six weeks.

Amtrak bill OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bill authorizing $200 million for the Amtrak passenger train system this fiscal year is awaiting President Ford's signature.

The House Tuesday passed the authorization measure, a bill making few changes in the current Amtrak law but requiring that large cities now without passenger train service be given priority in the assigning of new experimental routes.

Next year's experimental service must go to Boise, Idaho, according to an order in the report which accompanies the bill. Under current law, one new experimental route must be initiated each year.

The route which would serve Boise would connect with other Amtrak routes serving Salt Lake City and Portland, Ore., crossing southern Idaho via Pocatello, Shoshone and Glenns Ferry.

The latter towns have been without passenger service since 1971, when the Union Pacific discontinued it. A state committee is presently developing plans for promotion of rail passenger service in Idaho.

A fee system has been proposed for cities, requiring them to pay between $10 and $200 for membership depending on population.

But many cities have rejected the fee system, claiming that it represents a "double taxation" of city residents. The eight counties currently pay a 10 cents-per-capita assessment, to MVAG, which includes city residents.

The financing dispute has severely hampered a drive for membership in MVAG. Thirty-three cities are eligible for membership but only 14 have joined, according to executive director Dell Taylor.

Earlier that day, Dean recounted, he talked with Liddy as they strolled toward the Washington Monument. He said Liddy "apologized for what happened" and promised never to talk — even volunteering to stand on a street corner as a target for assassination if anyone doubted his pledge of silence.

"I said 'Gordon, that won't be necessary,'" Dean said as spectators in the courtroom laughed. This part of his story prompted the same reaction at the Watergate hearings.

Dean also recalled how the "Liddy plan," a blueprint for campaign sabotage including mugging, kidnaping and prostitution, was first presented in the office of then Attorney General John N. Mitchell five months before the burglary.

"I looked over at Mitchell and he winked at me," Dean said, beginning what was expected to be lengthy testimony against Mitchell and four other former aides of Richard M. Nixon.

"Mitchell sat silent for a moment, puffed on his pipe and said: 'This wasn't exactly what I had in mind,' and suggested the plan be somewhat tailored down."

Dean said the $1 million plan was presented at a meeting Jan. 27, 1972, by G. Gordon Liddy; then general counsel for Nixon's re-election finance committee and later convicted of conspiracy in the original Watergate trial.

today in brief

Sirica ponders Nixon medical exam

WASHINGTON, Washington Star News — United States District Judge John J. Sirica indicated today he may appoint three doctors to determine whether former president Richard M. Nixon is physically fit to testify at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Sirica indicated he is giving serious consideration to such appointments as the trial opens its 12th day in federal court here.

Nixon's attorneys have asked Sirica to exclude the former president from testifying because that would require air travel from California to Washington.

Bids farewell

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Donald H. Rumsfeld, the new White House chief of staff, said goodbye today to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization after 20 months as U.S. ambassador to the defense agency.

In a farewell ceremony, NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns praised Rumsfeld's "formidable progress in the diplomatic spirit of thrust and parry," and said he "fully earned his spurs" during his tenure.

Mansfield wants new Rocky hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said today hearings should be resumed as soon as possible on the nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president.

But his Republican counterpart, Sen. Hugh Scott, Pa., chided the House for not yet holding any hearings at all and called for some quick action.

Assails UN

TAIPEI (UPI) — Madame Chiang Kai-Shek Tuesday criticized the United Nations for removing a marble plaque, a gift from the Republic of China, bearing a quotation from the sage, Confucius. She assailed the UN's "callousness and deviousness" and quoted a magazine report that the plaque was removed in September "on virtual orders" of Huang Hua, chief delegate of the People's Republic of China to the UN.

Ford continues party speeches

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — President Ford warned today of a "regional dictatorship" if Democrats score big gains in November's congressional elections. Admitting polls show GOP candidates far behind in key races, Ford urged party workers at a fund raising breakfast to make a "massive effort" to elect Republicans and shove off a "veto-proof Congress."

Valley-wide planning group may vote to disband

By DAVID HORSMAN

Times-News writer

JEROME — The four-month-old Magic Valley Association of Governments (MVAG) may be disbanded tonight.

The planning group's executive board may take a secret vote on whether to disband the eight-county organization and return to two previous four-county units, maintain the current set-up, or adopt another method of calming the troubled waters which have nearly swamped the fledgling association.

The crucial vote is listed on the MVAG agenda for a regular meeting here tonight. But Jerome County Commissioner John Van Orman, acting chairman of the organization, told the Times-News Tuesday the secret ballot may be postponed until MVAG's problems are thoroughly reshaped among board members.

"I think that we'll talk to some of the people before we get into this voting procedure," Van Orman said. "I would prefer to find out the feelings of the members of the association — what they feel about this vote."

The issue that threatens to divide the planning organization involves local financing. Currently, the eight member counties, Twin Falls, Jerome, Blaine, Cassia, a Lincoln, Blaine, Gooding and Camas — pick up the entire tab for local dollars in the MVAG budget. For fiscal 1975, that amounts to $10,000. The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development will provide another $26,000.

But, according to Van Orman, some of the counties believe the member cities should contribute financially to MVAG because they "receive the greatest benefit from this group." A regional planning organization, in this case MVAG, "must exist before municipalities can receive federal and state grants for sewer and water facilities.

A fee system has been proposed for cities, requiring them to pay between $10 and $200 for membership depending on population.

But many cities have rejected the fee system, claiming that it represents a "double taxation" of city residents. The eight counties currently pay a 10 cents-per-capita assessment, to MVAG, which includes city residents.

The financing dispute has severely hampered a drive for membership in MVAG. Thirty-three cities are eligible for membership but only 14 have joined, according to executive director Dell Taylor.

Idaho candidates focus on board papers, manual

By United Press International

Records of the Idaho Investment Fund Investment Board, a prosecutor's manual and choice for state employees on the Social Security system were major topics on the Idaho political scene Tuesday.

Republican Wayne Kidwell, campaigning in Boise, said the investment fund board records are open to public inspection.

The candidate for attorney general said openness in government is a goal that all Idahoans want, so it is essential that legal machinery of the state not be used by the attorney general to become part of the problem.

L. Fayette, Ed. Ed. Time Park said a comprehensive manual will be distributed Saturday to provide Idaho prosecutors with a practical tool and desk book.

Park said the manual was prepared by a team of consultants after prosecutors said there was no factual reference work geared to Idaho criminal procedures available.

Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy said in Nampa if elected governor, he would seek a referendum to allow state employees to choose whether they wished to stay on the Social Security system.

The Republican gubernatorial candidate said the state had an excellent retirement plan, and it made little sense for state employees to contribute to a fiscally sound program such as Social Security, with better benefits are provided by the state plan.

Democrat Ray Cox said in Caldwell he would make it his business to aid the farmer in his efforts to receive a more equitable share of the total food dollar.

Cox, campaigning for First District congressman, said he would take vigorous action to assure the farmer that fertilizers and other items of necessity for improved production would be made available to him at reasonable rates.

Democrat John Evans, campaigning for lieutenant governor, said Idaho should enlarge its tax relief program that was initiated last year.

"Our general fund surplus should be distributed back to the people in the form of property tax relief," Evans said. "The circuit breaker tax relief for the elderly should be increased 100 per cent by the state."

Republican Ezra Moore, a candidate for superintendent of public instruction, said Idaho has a chance to be a national leader in the move to assure uniform quality education through adequate state funding and less reliance on local property tax bases.

Moore, said in Nampa, the courts were starting to recognize that reliance on the old method of funding schools through a local property tax makes an inequity not only on the student but also on the taxpayer.

Democratic superintendent of public instruction candidate Roy Truby said he favors migrants to imaginative teachers for trying novel approaches in the classroom.

Truby spoke to the Boise Hillcrest Parent-Teachers Association.

Guffy project advances

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Water Resources Board has agreed to proceed in planning with Idaho Power Co. for the Swan Falls — Guffy Project despite the lack of tax exempt status for bonds to finance construction.

The board anticipates a return in construction costs of $24.5 million if the bonds are taxable.

Philip E. Peterson, counsel for the board, said 50 per cent of the financial benefits to the board would be lost without the tax exempt status for the bonds.

An agreement between the board and power company was to expire Jan. 1, 1975. The agreement gave the board the option of withdrawing from the contract if the Internal Revenue Service ruled against tax exempt status for the bonds.

Under the agreement, the board is to issue revenue bonds to pay its share of the cost of the project.

Board member Scott W. Reed argued against exercising the option to continue.

He said the board, in declining the project to the Legislature, had been heavily received in large part because of the proposal for the tax exempt status.

"Without that, we have an entirely different matter," Reed said.

Reed voted against the resolution to go ahead with the planning and was joined by Franklin Jones and Donald R. Kramer, board secretary.

Board Chairman John F. Streiff voted in favor of the resolution along with George L. Vost, vice chairman, Edwin C. Schlander and Joseph Nettleton.

The board also voted Tuesday to make R. Keith Higginson, director of the Department of Water Administration, the administrative secretary of the board.

Higginson was given authority to attest to the authenticity of board records, to retain custody of the records and to use them in judicial proceedings.

The board took that action because Kramer has refused to sign an application to the Federal Power Commission for a license for a power project at Swan Falls.

The board is asking Kramer to compel him to sign the application. In the interim Higginson will have the authority to take care of the records.

Nixon links public soon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dugling Special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski and his former top assistant, Philip A. Lacovara, agreed today that "substantial evidence" will soon be made public showing that Richard M. Nixon played a major role in the Watergate cover-up.

Jaworski, who is leaving his post next week to resume his Houston law practice, also indicated that he has no quarrel with President Ford's decision to grant Nixon a full pardon.

But Lacovara, who resigned five weeks ago reportedly because of the pardon, said the decision was "fundamentally erroneous and inconsistent with the values that I, at least, had been working to achieve in the American judicial system."

Jaworski gave his views in an interview published today in the Wall Street Journal. Lacovara was interviewed on the NBC Today Show.

Jaworski, who held the top prosecutor's job for 11 months, said he had waited to offer his views on the pardon and Nixon's role in the cover-up until a jury in the federal trial of five former Nixon aides and campaign officials had been sequestered and until after he had announced his resignation.

The special prosecutor said that evidence to be presented at the trial will further involve Nixon in the cover-up.

"The evidence will show he's guilty, just as much as a guilty plea," he said.

Jaworski said acceptance of the pardon by Nixon clearly shows the former president's guilt.

TWIN FALLS — Today is the special voter registration day sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

Most registrars will be in their homes all day today, to assist all those unregistered voters.

League officials, with the assistance of the county clerk's office are promoting today as a special registration day to get as many non-registered voters on the books as possible in 11 days before the last minute registration rush.

Registration books stay with registrars until Oct. 25, 11 days before the Nov. 5 general election. After that day, voters can register until Oct. 30 at the county clerk's office.

Persons must register if they have not registered or voted since 1971, or if they have moved or changed their name since previous registration.

Persons 18 years of age or older who are residents of the county and state are eligible to vote.

The League of Women Voters is urging residents who believe they are not registered to check their status with their registrars.

Registrars for the county precincts include Twin Falls 1, Mrs. Frieda McBeth, 345 5th Ave. E.; Twin Falls 2, Mrs. H. W. Hearing set

TWIN FALLS — A zoning hearing before the Twin Falls county commissioners will be held Thursday at 11 a.m. on a zone change request by Regal Homes.

County commissioners postponed the hearing from Tuesday to Thursday. The Regal Homes firm has planned the land in question requesting a change from agriculture to commercial zone. The land is located west of Kimberly.

Kimberly couple requests hearings

TWIN FALLS — John and Elsie McCallister, Kimberly, appeared in magistrate court Tuesday on multiple charges including burglary and grand larceny. They requested preliminary hearings and the services of the public defender.

Judge Daniel Mehl set bond at $5,000 each on charges of first degree burglary filed by the city of Twin Falls. Both are also charged with grand larceny and first degree burglary by the city of Buhl and bond was set at $2,500 on each count for each defendant.

Bond of $500 was set on a charge of aiding and abetting a juvenile as filed against them by the city of Kimberly. Malicious destruction of property, also a misdemeanor, brought bond of $50 each.

Elsie McCallister, 46, was arrested by city police early Monday morning in the downtown area for suspicion of first degree burglary. Her husband was arrested at 3 p.m. Monday in Twin Falls, following a three hour pursuit by city and county officers.

Jump week time means no pay

TWIN FALLS — Deputies of the Twin Falls County sheriff's office who worked around the clock during the week of the Evel Knievel canyon jump attempt and county fair will not receive any pay for their long extra hours.

Sheriff Paul Corder said there is no money in his budget for such undertakings. "Even when the budget was planned the canyon jump was not definite. County commissioners say there is no money in any other part of the county budget for the same reason."

Sheriff Corder said today, however, he has worked out an arrangement that appears to be satisfactory to everyone. He said the addition of a new officer will enable him to give each of his men some compensatory time off which he said most of the men have agreed is as satisfactory as pay for the time.

Most of the men, Corder said, worked from 60 to 80 extra hours during the 10 days to two weeks involved. He said he will give each of the men a week or so of time off as they can be spared from the department with the new officer to fill in during their absence. The sheriff's badge provided for an extra man during the latter part of the year.

Sugar stolen in TF

TWIN FALLS — The theft of 1,000 pounds of sugar, from the new building being constructed adjacent to George K's restaurant on Kimberly Road was reported to police this morning.

The sugar, valued at $450 was in 100 pound sacks.

Bus firm named in damage suit

TWIN FALLS — Charles Givens, a Twin Falls county resident, has filed a suit in Fifth Judicial District Court against Greyhound Lines Inc., asking nearly $200,000 damages.

The plaintiff charges he was injured May 22, 1973, in an accident resulting from the negligence of the driver of a Greyhound bus. He said his vehicle collided with another automobile driven by Pamela Jean Luper at the intersection of Washington Street and Addison Avenue in Twin Falls.

Givens charges a Greyhound bus was obstructing his view and the driver motioned him to move forward and caused him to collide with the Luper vehicle. The suit asks $17,000 loss of income, $1,500 medical expenses, $800 automobile damage, $10,000 loss of earning capability and $75,000 general damages.

Airman dead, suspect held

MOUNTAIN HOME — One airman is dead and another being held as a murder suspect at the Mountain Home Airbase today following a parking lot shooting about midnight Tuesday.

Base officials said Air Force Staff Sgt. Jose L. Cortez, 25, Philadelphia, Pa., was shot and killed following an argument which began in the base airman's club and ended in the parking lot outside.

Cortez was pronounced dead at the base hospital. A suspect, whose base officials said could not be identified until formal charges are filed later today, was taken into custody by base security officers shortly after the shooting. He is being held in custody at the base pending further investigation and filing of charges.

Since the shooting occurred on the federal property, officials say the military will probably handle the case. The victim is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Narcisco Cortez, Philadelphia.

New bridegroom 105

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Frank Pruitt, the 105-year-old son of a slave, kissed his bride and murmured, "Praise the Lord."

"A man needs a wife," Pruitt said when asked Tuesday why he was marrying again.

Pruitt, who has outlived five wives, married the former Mrs. Hattie Burt, 76.

"She said she was a widow, and I said I was a widower. I told her I needed a wife and she said she needed a husband."

Deputy hired

TWIN FALLS — Tom Majors, a former Twin Falls county deputy sheriff, has returned to that department effective this week.

Sheriff Paul Corder said Majors was hired as a deputy to fill a need in the department which has been evident for some time. He said he felt fortunate in obtaining an experienced and well qualified man to fill the post.

He had worked for an armored car service in Twin Falls. Majors joined the sheriff's department the first time in 1965, and remained there until 1969, when he left to start his own armored car business. At that time his was the only armored car service in Twin Falls.

He sold the business this spring to the Wells Fargo Armored Car Service and remained with the firm until accepting the position.

Sheriff Corder said Majors will work as a regular deputy.

Film shown

Bethel conducts meeting

TWIN FALLS — Georgianna Massey, honored queen conducted a meeting of Bethel No. 19, International Order of Job's Daughters, Monday evening.

Introduced were Nancy Graybill, Bethel No. 43, grand fifth messenger; Diana Berkeley, grand secretary; and Martin Langdon, guardian of Bethel No. 19 and Wayne Ford, associate guardian of Bethel No. 19. Miss Graybill served as pro tem junior princess.

Vickie Bradley gave the librarian's report. Terry Barron, Nancy Barron and Rhett Massey were birthday honorees. Debbie Pipett was "Jobbie of the Evening."

Members will attend services at the First Baptist Church, Twin Falls, on Sunday. There will be a breakfast before the services for mothers and daughters at the Masonic Temple.

There will be a breakfast for Initiates Nov. 9 at the Massey home. Initiation will be Nov. 25.

Violets viewed

TWIN FALLS — Miniature violet arrangements were made Monday by members of Magic Valley Saintpaulia Club during a meeting at the home of Mrs. Alice Trout.

Members viewed her collection of violets, terrariums and miniature dish gardens.

Mrs. William Baugh, president, conducted the meeting. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Elvies Utley, assisted by Mrs. Carrol Utley.

Fight inflation, not Democrats, Ford advised

Calf slaughter will backfire

The one way not to make the American people sympathetic to the plight of cattlemen is to slaughter animals, leaving their carcasses to rot. Stockmen have a great deal to be angry about. Feed prices have risen out of sight while prices have fallen. The animals now being fattened were purchased near the top of the market. Losses of hundreds of dollars per animal are bringing stockmen near bankruptcy.

Under the circumstances the producers probably will be forced to reduce the size of their herds. Providing there is no waste, this is a step Americans can accept.

But American consumers cannot accept wasteful slaughter. Consumers have seen their real living standard eroded by inflation. Many have cut back on purchases of such "luxury" items as meat — partly responsible for the declining beef prices. Everywhere they hear dire warnings of potential worldwide food shortages and widespread hunger. Acting in this context angry Wisconsin farmers dug a huge trench and filled it with more than 600 calves and pigs Tuesday. The picture on today's page one will be repeated across the country. On the television news; the sounds of dying animals will be added to the animals' hapless struggles.

Rural America has real problems. But the slaughter of animals for publicity purposes, their meat wasted, only adds another problem.

Morality and politics

Personal and moral problems seem to be striking down our political leaders without respect to party, ideology or social class. Spiro Agnew cops a plea, and Richard Nixon gets a pardon. Chappinidick and family problems do in Teddy Kennedy's presidential prospects.

Wilbur Mills is caught looking like a silly old man, and even a Mr. Clean like Nelson Rockefeller may be blocked from the office presidency over suspicious-looking loans and equivocal denials.

That all men are sinners, of course, is one of the oldest precepts of morality. That politicians are no exception should come as no surprise. Still, the recent catch is a rather spectacular bag, to say the least. It may be worth pausing for a moment to reflect, not on the personal failings of our leaders, but on what the rest of us have demanded from them, on the milieu in which we force them to live.

The dirty little secret of democratic politics is that it runs on sheer ego. The first task of any politician is to go out into a shopping center and stop people so that he can brag about himself. Anyone attracted to this line of work must be slightly checked in the first place.

The political gaffe is avoided, there is a plethora of fine lines that can be overstepped. In this regard, the thrust of Governor Rockefeller's problems is instructive. If the details are unique, clearly his great wealth was a huge power lever during his governorship; gifts to personal aides came naturally to one whose family long associated with charity but they were more than that in cementing needed loyalties.

Still, we should think no one ought to object even to extravagant gifts to William Ronan, personal secretary. But it seems that entirely another matter comes up with extravagant gifts to William Ronan, head of the Metropolitan Transit Agency, a nominally independent agency whose head is appointed to an eight-year term and confirmed by the state senate.

It seems to us Mr. Rockefeller overstepped the line here, and also in his initial description as a business venture of his brother financing a look attacking a political opponent.

Richard Nixon and his aides fell victim to precisely this confusion on large matters. It does give pause that Mr. Rockefeller also seems to have fallen victim to it, albeit on trifling matters that did not affect anything substantive. It is the reason for both the Senate committee and Mr. Rockefeller to have another look at the record.

As for the larger problem of morality and politics, we are not entirely hopeful. Indeed, the post-Watergate advertising of morality rubs us the wrong way. What game of character and integrity would go around making up posters bragging about their character and integrity? The structure of rewards and incentives for politicians remains essentially unchanged, only the words that sell have changed.

Calling for greater moral purity in our politicians is not a very promising course, given the flaws of human nature. What needs to be done is to discuss the temptations, to curb the demands of ego, schedule and power.

This too may be visionary, for what it implies is that as a people and a nation must relegate politics to a less prominent place in our lives.

WASHINGTON — In the last few days, President Ford has been campaigning in Vermont, Maine and New Hampshire, to which legal notices will be published. Published daily and Sunday, except Saturday, at 157 Third Street West, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301. By Western Publishing, Inc. Entered as second class mail on April 8, 1918, at the post office in Twin Falls, Idaho 83301, under the act of March 3, 1879.
Phone 733-0931

His party is obviously in trouble. The Democrats now hold 42 of the 50 governorships and may come out of the Nov. 5 election with three-fourths of the total, including both New York and California and nine out of the 10 with the biggest electoral votes. This would greatly enhance their chances of organizing the big states for victory in the presidential election of 1976.

Also, the outlook now is for the Democrats to add to their present 58-42 margin in the Senate, and a minimum of 20 seats to add to their present 248-107 margin in the House of Representatives. So he has plenty to worry about. His major theme is "no more Republican and save the two-party system."

Maybe this argument will work, but many of the leaders in the Republican party have been telling him that he can do more by concentrating on mastering his job and fighting inflation than by fighting Democrats. Ford's strength is that nobody's mad at him. For the first time since General Eisenhower left town, there are no bitter personal feelings about the man in the White House.

This mood is not likely to last long with the President flying around the country addressing partisan audiences that love the old party rows. As a matter of fact, many Republicans who believe in him are fearful that "vigorous campaigning may emphasize national issues most Republican candidates would like to forget. Besides, bleak as the outlook is for the Republicans in November, it is a typical party rally exaggeration to imply that the Republicans are in danger of extinction or the two-party system is in jeopardy if the votes don't follow Ford's advice in November.

In fact, while the Democrats are back on their old themes, running against Nixon and the recession, they are a deeply divided party with no outstanding leader to carry them back to the White House. Ford's great opportunity, was not to lead the party charge, but to preside over a nation that was longing for peace and hard work on the long-neglected domestic issues of the nation.

He was not elected by his party but confirmed by a Democratic majority in the Congress. He had a chance to put together a nonpartisan government of the best men and women available, none of whom could have refused his command of service. This would have served the nation better than sticking to the old party routines, and in the end it would probably have been better politics for the Republicans as well.

Plan to aid private education should be drawn

WASHINGTON — The United States Supreme Court settles down to work this month on a long docket of pending cases. Among the more significant actions are two more cases testing the tough question of public aid to parents who want private schooling for their children.

One case comes from California, the other from Pennsylvania. Actually, there is a third case from Missouri, not directly related, involving a parent who wants bus transportation for a child attending a Catholic school.

Each of the cases raises difficult issues under the First and Fourteenth Amendments. In almost every other test case in recent years, the high court has rejected public aid programs that might benefit church sponsored schools. In the court's opinion, such programs violate the constitutional prohibition against laws respecting an establishment or religion. But Justice Lewis Powell, speaking for the court, has said that the narrow channel may still exist through which a valid law might be passed.

Each of the cases raises difficult issues under the First and Fourteenth Amendments. In almost every other test case in recent years, the high court has rejected public aid programs that might benefit church sponsored schools. In the court's opinion, such programs violate the constitutional prohibition against laws respecting an establishment or religion. But Justice Lewis Powell, speaking for the court, has said that the narrow channel may still exist through which a valid law might be passed.

enforcement. A three-judge federal court agreed with the plaintiffs and held the act invalid. The test case from Pennsylvania went the other way. There the state legislature approved an act providing for reimbursement by the state of certain costs for auxiliary services in non-public schools.

These include such services as guidance counseling, testing, remedial speech and reading, and teaching English to Spanish-speaking children. The Pennsylvania plan also permits the state to loan textbooks in non-religious fields. A three-judge federal court found the program a constitutional exercise of state powers.

These latest efforts by California and Pennsylvania have a sound basis in political philosophy. As the California law says, "If public interest is best served through competition and diversity in educational opportunities offered by public and non-public schools," ideally, every child of school age should be entitled to an equal slice of a state's appropriation for education. The equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment would appear to require this. It ought to make no difference to the state how that slice is expended, so long as minimum public requirements are met.

The two acts reflect a practical interest also. Private schools are in money trouble throughout the nation. If they can be kept afloat through subsidies, tax credits, or tuition grants, the states can be saved substantial sums.

The Supreme Court, as I say, has not been impressed by these arguments. In earlier cases from Pennsylvania, New York and Rhode Island, the court has seen nothing but the "entanglement" of church and state. The most ingenious state programs have been viewed as mere conduits for giving public money to parochial schools. This seems to me a pity.

If private education serves a useful public purpose — and it clearly does — it ought to be possible to devise some valid plan for assisting parents who prefer private schools.

JAMES KILPATRICK

credits are provided for those with incomes up to $19,000, but no credits are offered beyond that point. Before the act could go into effect, an organization known as United Americans for Public Schools sued for a summary judgment and a permanent injunction against the law's

Sniping at Rockefeller interesting, bracing

I don't think Rockefeller is in trouble, but the attacks on him are interesting and, up to a point, even a little bracing.

The principal line of attack is on the matter of his philanthropy. It should be said about Rockefeller that he has done a superb job in persuading the public that it is better off letting them alone. In the first place, to remove the Rockefeller fortune would be like removing all the warp from the American financial structure, leaving only woad.

The Rockefellers early in their training associated themselves in the public mind with philanthropy. Their use of the Rockefeller name in connection with that philanthropy was only a little less lavish than the use of the funds themselves. But it is hard to find a record of any notable institutional Rockefeller benefactions.

Thus the public became used to the idea that the Rockefellers pour a great deal of their money into philanthropy; and, accordingly, they haven't been much resentful of Rockefeller money.

That is one reason why, when now it transpires that there is a considerable degree of anonymous Rockefeller philanthropy, after all, there isn't much public shock. This has caused great indignation, though mostly in people who reach for indignation like plants for chlorophyll.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

I should think that the principal reason is that no explanation is really necessary. Now it is true that there is a hypothetical conflict of interest. That is to say, William Ronan was nominated by Rockefeller to a position on the New York Port Authority; whence Ronan might have voted in such a way as to frustrate Governor Rockefeller.

The assumption of the critics of the gift is that that gift makes the giftee eternally dependent. In fact, gifts neither make people eternally dependent nor, for that matter, eternally grateful.

Almost every politician got his start as the result of the benefaction of a senior politician. This took the form sometimes of cash, other times of preferential treatment. True, there has been loyalty, and sometimes it has been expressed against the public interest. But more often than not, there is a residual independence, and I choose to think that under certain circumstances, Ronan would vote against Rockefeller in the port authority.

What Rockefeller does accomplish with his money is a huge extension of his personality. He is a most domineering man, and at times a highly petulant man. When he lost the nomination to Goldwater in 1964, he closed down New York for Republican presidential activity. When he lost the nomination to Nixon in 1968, he refused to let the Conservative Party put Nixon's name on their line. By refusing, he literally risked the election. I.e., the Conservative vote might have provided the marginal figure in the marginal state.

Rockefeller was born to be the boss. His money makes it easier to have his way. One election back, over $6 million had been spent on the race for Republican governor of New York. This year, less than $1 million has been spent. The difference is that last time, Rockefeller was running; this time, Rockefeller's successor is running.

First conclusion wrong

WASHINGTON — The trouble with Washington is that it is a suspicious town which keeps jumping to the wrong conclusions.

The other morning Arkansas' Rep. Wilbur Mills was involved in an altercation at the Tidal Basin with three women and another man. It was reported by police that Mills' nose was bleeding and he had scratches on his face. One of the women threw herself into the Tidal Basin and had to be rescued by the park police. She was identified as an Argentine-born go-go dancer.

The next morning everyone assumed that the powerful member of the House Ways and Means Committee was involved in some sort of hanky-panky. This couldn't be further from the truth. No matter how I looked in the newspapers and on television, Mills was doing the people's business.

This is what happened: Sunday night Mills decided to go to the Jarkano nightclub to hold hearings on a tax-reform bill he was preparing to submit to the House.

It was a lively hearing with people getting a lot of things off their chests. About 1 o'clock in the morning, Mills decided to adjourn. He offered to take home four of the waitresses, three ladies and a gentleman. Although they had been friendly witnesses in the bar, a few became hostile in Mills' automobile when he raised the question of the two-per-cent income tax surcharge.

One dancer said she was violently opposed to surcharge on income taxes. Another woman said it was imperative that everyone in America hit the bullet.

When he said this, the lady who was for biting the bullet punched him in the nose. Trying to recoup some of his dignity, the congressman added that, although he was opposed to a surcharge on income taxes, he could see the reason for having one if it would stop inflation.

This angered the other woman who started scratching his face. Mills ordered the man driving the car to stop by the Tidal Basin. He tried to mediate the dispute, but to no avail. One of the women said Mills had no interest in tax reform and hadn't done anything about it for years.

ART BUCHWALD

The other woman said Mills was really a patsy for his business. Mills, who up until this moment had behaved like a perfect Southern gentleman, said, "I hold you both in contempt of Congress."

"You're going to have to catch me first," one of the dancers said. And with that she threw herself into the waters of the Tidal Basin where she was rescued by the police. Rep. Mills was moved by all this and went into seclusion to redraft his tax-reform legislation. And that's what really happened last week. But no one in Washington wants to give anyone in politics the benefit of the doubt.

"WE MUST ALL MAKE SACRIFICES..."

Alcohol danger cited

Editor, Times-News: Recently we learned that Turkey has decided to return to its production of drugs, in spite of pressure from the United States to desist. There's too much money in it for Turkey. But there's more money for the smugglers and drug pushers here in the United States. And there's more grief than money or pleasure for those who fall prey to the seductive spell of narcotics. We outlaw these harmful drugs and we fight the peddlers. We wail as we watch lives blighted by this evil and pray that it will never darken our doors. But many Americans invite the shadow of an equally vicious drug into their homes—and think nothing of it. I'm talking about alcohol. It's a drug too. Americans are hitting the bottle harder than ever before, even while they from those who turn to the drugs of heroin, marijuana, the pick-me-ups and put-me-downs. It's the thing to have a drink when you come home from work or when there's any kind of social gathering, or when you need a lift to get the day started. Teach our children to drink in the home, so they and we won't have any problems. Don't kid yourself! The problem is in the bottle, not in the place where one drinks it. And it is rapidly becoming America's number one problem. Thousands of innocent, sober people die annually because of alcohol. They die because someone else thought he could handle his drink, that he was the only one taking the chance. The man or woman who kills with his automobile is as gully as the drug addict who kills in order to feed his habit. Neither one really knows what he is doing. And both are drug addicts. That's something to think about. I've done a lot of thinking about it since the Seventh-day Adventist Church here made me temperance secretary. And it's because I've been thinking about the well-being of our people here in Twin Falls that I am writing this. If I can help just one young person understand that drink is—no substitute—for manhood, but a ball and chain that can mutilate, murder, and drive men insane, if I can lead just one person to freedom from alcohol, I'll be well repaid for any effort.

If there is anyone who would like to talk to me privately about alcohol and other narcotics, my phone number is 733-8952.

GOP vote suggested

Editor, Times-News: If you people can't see straight through Frank Church and his hypocritical transparency—then go ahead and vote for this phony plous-talking senator. Just before election time he always comes on strong with some deal that he can take credit for, like lobbying for train service through Idaho, which I and a lot of others are doing although not in the same way of this characterization deleted. He is a liberal. Check his voting record and then vote Republican all the way. JANCOCKRELL

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Pills won't prevent polyp formation

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M. D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Three years ago I had polyps removed from my nose. For a week before and after the surgery I took anti-allergy tablets. I was given to understand that the polyps were likely to return and they have. If the anti-allergy tablets were so effective, what would be the chances of getting rid of the polyps now by taking the tablets regularly for some time? Would they tend to go away?—W.A.W.

No. The medication will relieve the symptoms of allergy but will not prevent formation of polyps or get rid of them.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know something about double vision. This happened to my brother about a year ago. At first we thought it was fatigue from too much reading—he was studying a lot at the time. However now it continues to bother him. Can you suggest where he might obtain help or advice?—R.R.

I certainly can. He should go at once to an ophthalmologist, eye specialist, especially since the condition has continued so long. Diplopia (double vision) can result from a wide variety of causes. The problem could be in the eye itself, such as being a symptom of an imbalance in the muscles of the eyes. But it could also result from a neurological disorder of one kind or another, such as multiple sclerosis. I don't mean to worry you, but I do want to impress upon you and him the necessity of being examined right away.

ERA vote queried

Editor, Times-News: Propponents of the Equal Rights Amendment even admit that this Constitutional amendment, if adopted, would contradict nearly all of our existing domestic laws. They scoff away the "inlet argument" and the "combat duty argument" etc., by saying that the courts could eliminate these conflicts by "interpretive extensions" of the laws. Legally, the courts can only adjudicate the law as it exists; they cannot change our domestic laws to make them "constitutional" under ERA. The only other alternative would be equally chaotic; that is, rewriting our vast body of existing domestic law. Recognizing that the ERA would invalidate many of our laws which specifically protect the rights of women, Senator Ervin of North Carolina proposed amendments to the ERA which would prevent the destruction of women's rights. Senator Frank Church not only voted for the ERA (H.R. Res. 208) but voted against each of the amendments proposed by Sen. Ervin which are as follows: — That the ERA would not invalidate laws protecting women from compulsory military service and compulsory combat duty. — That the ERA would not invalidate laws extending protections or exemptions to wives, mothers, or widows. — That the ERA would not invalidate laws giving child support responsibilities to fathers.

— That the ERA would not invalidate any laws securing privacy. — That the ERA would not invalidate any laws making sexual offenses punishable as crimes. — That the ERA would not invalidate laws which allow for separate laws for men and women in: 1) basic and physiological or functional differences. The ERA is extremely dangerous and has very little to do with equal pay for equal work which is already law. It's a shame that some of our state legislators ratified such a significant constitutional amendment before the citizens of Idaho even heard of it. Have these men, especially our senior U.S. Senator, really acted in accordance with the consent of the people of Idaho in this matter? JOHN R. COX

Appreciates station

Editor, Times-News: I think we should all compliment the new F.M. radio station, Rock 92, on its great success. This station plays a very good selection of songs and lots of them. While tuned in to other stations all one hears are the most popular songs repeated over and over; that is, when they're not playing commercials.

I would like to encourage the public to listen to Rock 92 from now on. Not only because it comes in loud and clear, also because it's good entertainment. We thank you for your music, Rock 92, and wish you the best of luck! GWEN ORR

Cold-look at Congress due

Editor, Times-News: There is no intent here to belabor the obvious or add to the already sorry spectacle of our Congress. Only the action of police averted what might have been another Chap-pouidick in the nation's capital. I refer to the already well publicized antics of that guardian of our tax wares, that barmecide on the Ship of State, that "veteran of 25 years" of defending the interests of millionaires and foreign investors in oil. The Honorable Wilbur Mills. As one of Mr. Mills' Office staff so aptly stated, Mr. Mills did not hold office by virtue of singing in the choir. What the outcome of this latest hanky-panky will be will be told at the Arkansas polls in November. But it seems obvious that, for the good of our country, retirement of many of the old and financially well padded bell-ethers of Congress—should be—first priority. Many have served so long that the well being of the great unwashed has been supplanted with commitments to those who keep them in office. The old Huberts, Edpunds, Sams, Wilburs, Georges, Eastlands are as steeped in partisan sluttigery and the higher echelons of political finance, so committed to individuals and multi-million dollar chains and cartels and moneyed interests unknown to the public, as to no longer be free agents. Of immediate concern is notice that Congress has approved the continuance of foreign aid to Saudi Arabia, a skeleton that wrings a million dollars a day out of Suckerland, holds us up for oil at $12.64 a barrel when that total cost is 25 cents and that furnished by US capital. This handout is expected by saying we must aid that country in achieving their "agricultural and industrial potential." There is something unbalby and dangerous in letting those wily and shrewd allies of Soviet Russia gain a strangle hold on our national safety. Iran owns a 25 per cent interest in the Krupp Munitions of Germany and the extent of Arab-bidings in US defense industry is a well kept $1.3 secret. Iran has loaned Britain $15 billion and offered to loan the "rich" nations another $30 billion. The extent of known investment in the US is so great it cannot be catalogued here. It's time for a cold look at the actions of our Congress.

US wins wiretap nod

(c) Washington Star-News: WASHINGTON — The federal government Tuesday won the Supreme Court's permission to use wiretaps to obtain foreign intelligence data about foreign governments. Without explanation, the court chose not to review the constitutionality of electronic eavesdropping in foreign intelligence cases. This left intact a lower court decision that permits that kind of wiretapping without prior approval by a federal judge. Complete discretion thus is left to the president and the attorney general in cases involving "foreign powers." The justices wanted to rule on the issue.

FFA hears Ford lecture US on fight against inflation

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — President Ford delayed the start of a World Series game to give Americans a fatherly lecture on how to fight inflation — save money, limit bargains, drive more slowly, turn off lights, clean your plates, and get enough sleep.

It was a homespun speech to a homespun audience Tuesday at a convention of the Future Farmers of America and included the kind of advice he heard from his parents: "Take all you want, but eat all you take," he said. "The first words I can remember were: 'clean up your plate.' When you aren't using them, turn off the lights, turn off the television, turn off the radio, turn off the heater. "Use less hot water, insulate attics and windows. Shut doors. Keep rooms at 68 degrees in the winter-time when you're awake and at lower temperatures when you sleep."

Other major points: "Balance your family budget"

"Use credit wisely" "Save as much as you can" "Conserve energy" "Keep wages and prices low" "Increase productivity" "Shop wisely, look for bargains" "Do it yourself" "Help with recycling programs" "Guard your health."

The television networks had decided it didn't have enough "news value" to be carried live, so Ford personally requested the time and it was given.

NBC had to ask Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to delay the start of the World Series game 15 minutes to get all of Ford's speech on before the opening pitch. That meant Ford had the large baseball audience to hear his suggestions.

Many of his ideas came from the Citizens' Action Committee to Fight Inflation, chaired by economist Sylvia Porter, which met last Saturday to draw up recommendations.

Ford illustrated the recommendations with comments from some of the letters he received with proposals from citizens to fight inflation.

—Mr. and Mrs. Roland Spook of Holland Mich., are cutting their household budget, Ford said, and they urged that "our federal budget be pared to the bone."

Robert Stewart of Waverly, Penn., has a heart condition, so he draws a pension of $251.28 a month, which means he can only eat two meals a day. But, according to Ford, he wrote "thank God we aren't on welfare," and urged that government spending be cut "except for national defense."

—Mrs. Frank Tennant of Clinton, Miss., wrote that she and her husband, a self-taught machinist who lost his leg in Korea, do not use credit cards and save enough to buy a government bond every month.

—Bob Cantrell of Pasadena, Calif., gave up his stereo to save energy and said "If a kid nags his parents to conserve energy long enough, it will help." "Believe me," the President said, "it will."

—Kathy Daly of Weymouth, Mass., suggests buying warmer clothing this winter.

—Rick Jacobson of South St. Marle, Mich., wrote, "We planted our own garden so we could save on vegetables."

—Margaret and William Dalton of High Falls, N.Y., wrote that a lot of recycled fibers saves 17 live trees and a ton of waste.

—And Luette Drumheller, 8, of Bristol, Va., wrote "turn off lights when not needed, and if you are scared when you go to bed without the light on, tell your mother or father and they will do something about it."

"Luette," said the President of the United States, "we are not going to be scared of the dark — any of us."

These were the kind of recommendations Ford wanted to present to the country — simple ones, but he hoped they would help.

Some of them have wider effects. For example, Ford said, "If you can save more, the hard-pressed home building mortgage market needs your dollars."

Government was going to take action as well: the Treasury said Ford is considering issuing "WIN" bonds with competitive interest rates; state and local officials are being asked to strictly enforce the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit; and WIN flags will be awarded to business stores or other enterprises which fight inflation.

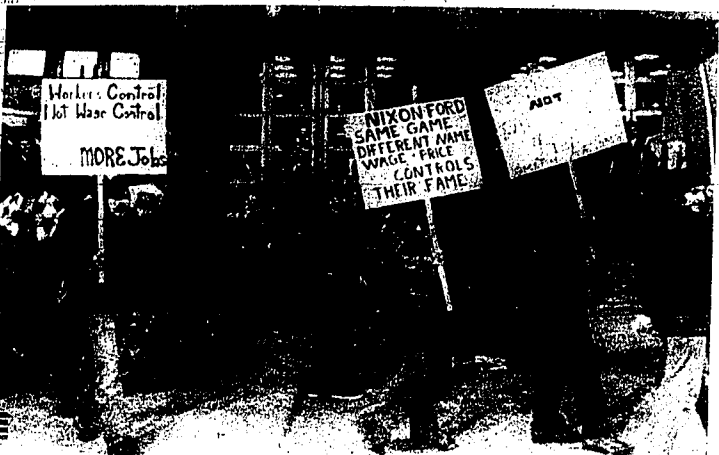

One large and perhaps complicated government proposal involves the creation of WIN committees in states and localities to set specific goals and monitor ways of fighting inflation.

Ford's administration was doing.

He recommended more widespread actions to fight inflation, which included standby controls on wages, prices profits and rents, rationing of energy supplies, cutting taxes for low and moderate income wage earners and the retired, restricting consumer credit, taxing excess profits, and creating a program of jobs for people out of work.

"The nation is in an economic emergency," said Mansfield.

"I think you, the people, expect government to confront that emergency decisively and to act on it in the general interests of the people. We have not done so and even now seem to lack the capacity to do so."

Workers Action Movement pickets Ford speech

Pickers rap economic policies

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A small group of sign-toting picketers outside Municipal Auditorium chanted protests against President Ford's economic policies Tuesday night as he addressed the Future Farmers of America convention.

The picketers were unafraid by Ford, who entered the auditorium through a rear door. Hundreds of young FFA delegates entering the auditorium stopped occasionally to watch them.

The young, denim-clad protesters carried signs reading "End Federal Layoffs," "WIN — Workers in Need," and "Let the bosses pay for inflation."

A hulking, equipped woman, identified by police as Miriam Morales, 21, of Kansas City, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct for leading what was said to be a "vulgar chant."

Other marchers boomed and argued with police officers as she was dragged away, but there were no further disturbances.

A spokesman for the loosely organized group, Bruce Clark, 23, of Kansas City, said the protesters were unhappy with Ford's priorities in his fight against inflation.

"Ford's plan is to make the working people pay for the federal government's economic problems," he said. "Inflation is not a fact of life. It is caused by big corporations making tax pay to maintain their profits."

As he explained their position, the marchers chanted "Ford says cutback, we say fight back," and "Make the bosses take the losses, we demand jobs."

Ford also ducked the marchers when he left the auditorium, but after the short ride back to the hotel, he walked over to about 75 spectators quietly standing behind a cordon across the narrow downtown street.

Most just smiled and shook the President's hand as he walked up and then down the street. One person said with a smile, "Don't work too hard," and then on Ford's second pass added, "But you gotta beat this inflation."

Washington — After 26 years of marriage there are few surprises, but President Ford managed to spring one Tuesday as he and his wife, Betty, celebrated their 26th anniversary at the White House.

After a quiet lunch in their living quarters, the President led the First Lady to the second floor balcony, where the couple stood arm in arm listening to a serenade from the White House lawn by Tennessee Ernie Ford and a group of young singers who had just completed a concert tour of the Soviet Union.

Earlier, the couple had exchanged gifts: a diamond encrusted pin of the presidential seal for her and a silver-plated football from the 1974 College All Star game in which he played center for him.

WASHINGTON — After 26 years of marriage there are few surprises, but President Ford managed to spring one Tuesday as he and his wife, Betty, celebrated their 26th anniversary at the White House.

After a quiet lunch in their living quarters, the President led the First Lady to the second floor balcony, where the couple stood arm in arm listening to a serenade from the White House lawn by Tennessee Ernie Ford and a group of young singers who had just completed a concert tour of the Soviet Union.

Earlier, the couple had exchanged gifts: a diamond encrusted pin of the presidential seal for her and a silver-plated football from the 1974 College All Star game in which he played center for him.

US subsidies equal third of budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional study shows that federal subsidies of all sorts cost $95 billion a year, the equivalent of a third of the federal budget.

They range from depletion allowances for oilmen to food stamps for the poor.

The study by Congress' Joint Economic Committee says most subsidies are a bad bargain. The cost to the taxpayers "far exceed their benefits to society as a whole," it says.

By "subsidies" the committee means not only direct payments, but tax incentives such as the depletion allowances for oil companies or the interest writeoff for home owners. Such benefits at reduced cost such as Medicare or food stamps.

In fiscal 1970, these programs in all cost $63 billion. But the current fiscal year, the cost had reached $85 billion.

Fastest growing are the subsidy programs Congress does not watch, like tax incentives. Once in law, these tend to stay in place.

Agriculture subsidies, the study shows, are declining — from $3.7 billion in fiscal 1970 to $2.5 billion this year. But food subsidies are up four-fold, to nearly $6 billion, and health subsidies have almost doubled, to $16 billion.

The biggest single category are commerce and economic development subsidies, totaling $21.5 billion, up $3 billion in five years.

These include $1.5 billion for the postal service and $6.5 billion lost to the government in tax collections because of favorable tax treatment of capital gains, the profits from the sale of stocks and other property.

"We try to use the tax system to encourage oil exploration, tree raising, exporting of U.S. goods, gift giving, home buying and many other things," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

"But it does not always work," he said. "Our knee-jerk tax breaks have eroded the tax base and riddled it with inequities. Tax benefits accrue to the wealthy and in many cases they do not produce the market response that is intended."

Mansfield raps US decision-lack

Seabed review set

(c) Washington Star News

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Responding for the Democrats, Sen. Mike Mansfield says the government under President Ford seems "to lack the capacity" to act decisively against inflation and recession. The Senate Democratic leader, in a television speech Monday Tuesday, a week after Ford laid his economic program before Congress, said Ford's policies remind him too much of those of former President Nixon.

Mansfield repeated his call for steady controls on wages, prices, profits and rents and for rationing of energy supplies — proposals opposed by many Democrats as well as by the White House.

"The nation is in an economic emergency," said Mansfield.

"I think you, the people, expect government to confront this emergency decisively and to act on it in the general interests of the people. We have not done so and even now seem to lack the capacity to do so."

He said Ford's proposal to decontrol the price of natural gas and of some petroleum can mean only more inflation.

In criticism of Ford's 10-point program, Mansfield said: "To 'Whip Inflation Now' — WIN, as the slogan goes — will require action, action that encompasses something more

Rail retirement bill highballed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The railroad retirement bill — passed over a presidential veto Tuesday by the second greatest margin in history, 360-12.

Only President Franklin D. Roosevelt's veto of a GI insurance bill in 1937 was voted by a greater margin, 372 to 13, according to the Library of Congress.

Earlier Tuesday, the House sustained Ford's veto of a funding resolution which would cut of military aid to Turkey.

The Senate in its turn was expected to vote overwhelmingly to override the railroad veto today over Ford's objections that it would be too expensive.

The legislation would restructure the Railroad Retirement System, a program similar to Social Security which has fallen into financial hard times as the number of retired railroaders increased and the number of working railroads men paying into the system dropped.

The measure would pump $7 billion — $285 million a year for seven years — into the railroad retirement system from general Treasury funds.

An intensive lobbying campaign was launched by both management and labor in the railroad industry. This powerful lobby, which contacted each individual member of Congress, apparently turned the tide overwhelmingly against Ford.

Railroad labor agreed to take somewhat lessened benefits in the future by abandoning the "dual" system of payments which had allowed retired railroaders also to collect Social Security payments.

Those who receive these dual payments now and those already vested in both systems would be allowed to continue receiving these payments.

Other benefits also would be revised, including more generous surviving spouse payments.

Japan is the single largest national market for U.S. farm products — $2.9 billion in 1973.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court will review a decision that the U.S. government is the owner of the oil-rich seabed lying more than three miles off the Atlantic coast, the justices said Tuesday.

In a brief order, the court gave the 13 states that would lose the five-year dispute over offshore bottomland until Nov. 29 to file papers defending their claims to the seabed.

After that, the justices probably will hold a hearing on the dispute that affects millions of acres of seabed believed to contain rich deposits of oil and gas.

The federal government indicated recently it is eager to start drilling for oil in the Atlantic. An Interior Department memorandum dated Sept. 18 suggested that officials open up offshore lands for oil and gas leasing next year.

Mansfield was particularly critical of Republican policies on oil.

"We have let prices find their own level," he said. "In a society grown universally dependent on petroleum, that is the cruelest form of raising the burden falls heaviest on those on the least income. To compound the problem, Congress has been asked for more decontrol on energy which can mean only higher and higher prices and more and more inflation."

Production up SAO PAULO (UPI) — Brazil's automobile production during the first six months of 1974 shot up 23 per cent compared with the number of cars manufactured during the same period last year.

Hearings delayed on HK's role

(c) Chicago Sun-Times WASHINGTON — Senate hearings on Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's controversial role in the secret U.S. intervention in Chile have been postponed indefinitely and probably will be canceled.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the foreign relations committee, has postponed the hearings until he receives a copy of the testimony Central Intelligence Agency Director William E. Colby gave to the House CIA subcommittee last April.

And Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., the subcommittee chairman, said he will not consider Fulbright's request until after the congressional elections next month.

Sources close to the subcommittee said they did not detect any urgency in the request by Fulbright, who has become one of Kissinger's principal defenders in Congress. They expressed doubt that the subcommittee would risk further embarrassing disclosures about the CIA by passing the Colby testimony to the Senate.

Ford signs campaign reform bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says that he put aside reservations about public financing of presidential campaigns and political conventions.

He also cited "the First Amendment implications inherent in the limits on individual contributions and candidate expenditures" without being specific. "I am sure that such issues can be resolved in the courts," he said.

"I maintain my strong hope that the voluntary contribution will not become mandatory and that it will not in the future be extended to congressional races," said Ford.

Major provisions of the bill: General election financing: Beginning in 1976, the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates can get $20 million each from the Treasury for the general election. They can choose either federal funds — from the $1 checkoff on income taxes — or private contributions, but cannot mix the two. Other party candidates can receive a share of the $20 million based on election results.

"Primary financing — If a primary candidate is able to raise $100,000 — $5,000 from each of 20 states — the government will then match the first $100,000 and every private contribution of $250 up to a ceiling of $5 million.

Convention financing — The Republican and Democratic parties can receive $2 million each from public funds for their conventions.

Contributions — Individuals are limited to overall contributions of $25,000 in a single year and no more than $1,000 to an individual candidate — $1,000 in the primaries, $1,000 in a runoff, and $1,000 in the general election. Candidates can contribute $5,000 to a candidate in the primary, in a runoff, and in the general election. Presidential candidates can contribute $50,000 to their own campaigns. Senate candidates $35,000 and House candidates $25,000.

Spending — Presidential candidates are limited to $20 million in the federal election and $10 million in the primaries. Senate candidates can spend 8 cents times the voting-age population — $100,000 in the primaries and 2 cents or $15,000 in the general election. House candidates are limited to $70,000 in the primaries and $70,000 in the general election.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks opened lower in moderate trading Wednesday on the New York Stock Exchange in a continuation of the profit-taking which interrupted a few-day advance.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which lost more than 15 points, was off 1.17 points, 67.23 shy after the opening. The widely watched average had risen nearly 90 points prior to Tuesday's session.

Most analysts said the decline Tuesday was normal in light of the recent gains. A number said they would not be surprised to see the trend to continue at least through the early part of this session.

Declines led advances, 240 to 123, among the 527 issues crossing the tape. Investors got little encouragement from President Ford's speech Tuesday night concerning the individual citizen's part in the fight against inflation.

One of the sharpest declines was for the Dow Jones Industrial Average, which was down 1.17 points. The speech included such suggestions as balancing the federal budget and staying healthy.

And that's what he did, the speaker said. "He talked about Turkey, but what he gave them was warmed over patulum."

Supreme Court faces wide-range docket

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Can a drunk man be sent to prison for five years for threatening to beat up the President? Can federal courts block Senate subpoenas on grounds they threaten the constitutional rights of political organizations? Those are two of 25 questions the Supreme Court agreed to decide in a flood of orders handed down Tuesday, the first full day of the 1974-75 term. These plus about 90 other cases which the court had agreed to review this term before its recent recess, were only a few of those the Justices were asked to consider. Another 816 requests for oral arguments and opinions were rejected. In a typically wide-ranging docket, the court also agreed to hear cases involving sex discrimination, aid to parochial schools and rights of criminal defendants before trial. The court left for later — probably in the next several weeks — a decision whether to hear appeals by seven North Carolina men asking that capital punishment be abolished once and for all as cruel and unusual punishment. The threat to the President was made by a Shreveport, La., man who didn't like the idea of President Nixon's going to China. He told some restaurant customers he wanted to go to Washington to beat up the President. The man was arrested and sentenced to five years in prison. His attorneys contend the man was only exercising his right to free speech in a crude but nevertheless harmless manner. Only three months after ruling that Nixon had to turn over Watergate tapes to the criminal court system, the nine Justices decided to confront constitutional questions raised by congressional subpoenas. They agreed to decide whether the rights of several anti-war groups were violated by Senate subpoenas of their bank accounts. The case opens the way for a ground-breaking decision on how far courts can go in limiting the investigatory powers of the legislative branch. Pennsylvania is again trying to get a parochial school bill past the Supreme Court. Two earlier efforts were struck down. The present law allows state money to be used in areas which are unlikely to involve religious training. These include testing services, purchase-of-state-approved-textbooks and audio-visual equipment.

Shellfish quarantine lift eyed

CONCORD, Calif. (UPI) — The native shellfish in San Francisco Bay may be safe for eating again within a decade. The once-flourishing clams, oysters and cockles in the bay were nearly wiped out by pollution, but have made a strong comeback in the last 20 years as sewage treatment has improved. However, the State Health Department still has the harvesting of shellfish under quarantine because there is still some pollution. To help out, the Regional Water Quality Control Board voted Tuesday to sweep municipal and industrial sewage from dozens of shellfish beds around the edge of the bay. The board's executive officer, Fred H. Dierker, said he hoped it would be possible to lift the quarantine on at least some of the shellfish beds by 1983. The State Fish and Game Department has spotted 22 shellfish beds at the edges of the bay ranging from near Redwood City to Carpinteria Strait. Disease-causing bacteria in sewage are picked up by the shellfish as well as pesticides and heavy metals.

Rocky's donation, action-probed

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — Laurence S. Rockefeller said Tuesday he sent a telegram to President Nixon in August 1972, urging Nixon to allow Eastern Airlines, in which the Rockefeller family has an interest, to acquire Caribair, an airline based in Puerto Rico. Seven months later, Nixon reversed a decision by the Civil Aeronautics Board and approved the acquisition. In a statement issued through a spokesman in response to a question, Rockefeller dismissed the possibility of any relationship between his appeal on the airline matter and a Rockefeller family donation of $200,000 to the Nixon re-election campaign, made four months before Rockefeller sent the telegram.

The House Judiciary Committee plans to investigate whether there was any connection between the campaign contribution and President Nixon's action. The committee investigation is in connection with President Ford's nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller, Laurence Rockefeller's brother, to be vice president.

Fed troop aid denied; governor calls guard

BOSTON (UPI) — Gov. Francis Sargent has mobilized three National Guard military police companies in case of more fighting today over court-order busing, but an aide to Mayor Kevin White said the call-up "has all the earmarks of disaster." Sargent placed the guardsmen on alert Tuesday and called on President Ford to send federal troops to insure public safety after classroom violence at Hyde Park High School, where eight whites were injured — including one student stabbed in the stomach and a teacher attacked.

Ford, however, denied the request, saying federal troops "should only be used as a last resort."

Sargent, in announcing Ford's denial late Tuesday, said "It is now quite clear that the enforcement of the law and the protection of the public rests solely on the city of Boston and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

The governor said he called up the riot-trained Guard units based on FBI reports "that we have an extremely volatile situation that could blow up at any moment."

The move, however, left Mayor White and Police Commissioner Robert J. diGrazia surprised and angered.

"The mayor did not request the governor's aid," said Frank Tynnan, White's press secretary. "The action was unnecessary and an overreaction."

"To put on the streets 11,500 white, untrained soldiers would give us another Kent State," Tynnan added, diGrazia, who has been in personal command of police detachments throughout the city since classes began Sept. 12, said he could not confirm the FBI reports Sargent said he received from Public Safety Commissioner John F. Kehoe that prompted the governor to call out the guard.

"While there was one serious incident at Hyde Park High School, the rest of the city was calm," diGrazia said.

"If there really is information of this magnitude, it is unfortunate that it isn't being transmitted to the Boston police."

At Hyde Park High School, a 15-year-old white student was stabbed in the stomach as sporadic fighting broke out in classrooms and corridors. He was reported in stable condition at Carney Hospital.

Six other white students and a white teacher suffered minor injuries in fights at the school, which was closed early.

A white girl was arrested for throwing rocks at a school bus being boarded by black students. Small bands of whites roaming the neighborhood also stoned the buses, and a few cars. No other major incidents were reported in the city as attendance hit 74.3 percent.

Sargent said the guardsmen would remain in the armories and would be deployed only after consultation with White and diGrazia.

When racial violence escalated last week with the beating of a black motorist by whites in South Boston, the mayor rejected asking for the guard, U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity, who ordered busing to implement integration, denied the request and tossed responsibility back to the mayor and governor.

No drop seen

(c) New York Times Service TEHRAN, Iran — A ranking Iranian official said Tuesday Iran has no intention of reducing basic oil prices.

The official, who asked not to be identified, was referring to reports that Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlavi has been recently discussing an oil price reduction with officials of Saudi Arabia.

In Cairo on Monday, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi oil minister, was quoted as saying his country would lead a campaign to reduce petroleum prices. King Faisal was also reported to have assured Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Saudi Arabia would seek a reduction of the prices.

Strike funding reported

(c) New York Times Service SANTIAGO, Chile — The military coup that overthrew the late President Salvador Allende were partly financed by funds provided by companies based in Mexico, Venezuela and Peru, according to leading Chilean businessmen. The business men, ranking members of the most important industrial association in Chile, said they had personally channeled these funds — amounting to $200,000 — to striking truck owners, shopkeepers and professional groups in the weeks preceding the fall of the Allende government.

The said a company called Prolexa, based in Monterrey, Mexico, contributed $100,000 to the anti-Allende campaign and tips Mendoza of Caracas, Venezuela, gave $50,000. The business men said a Peruvian concern, which they declined to identify, gave close to $50,000 to help finance the Chilean strikes. Last month it was disclosed that the United States Central Intelligence Agency had secretly financed unions and trade groups for more than 18 months before President Allende was overthrown. More than half of the $8-million authorized for clandestine C.I.A. activities in Chile was used to provide benefits for anti-Allende strikers in 1972 and 1973.

Food contract granted to Saga by MV hospital

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Memorial Hospital board has voted to grant a contract for food service to the low-bidder — Saga, a California-based firm.

The contract was awarded to Saga Monday night over the present food service contractors, ARA, who have provided the service at the hospital for three years.

Hospital administrators cited cost and management expertise as reasons for backing approval of Saga's bid.

ARA's bid was $3.87 per patient per day, based on a midnight occupancy census, and Saga's bid was $3.62, 25 cents lower. At the present occupancy rate, the difference would represent a yearly saving of at least $1,000 for the hospital.

The food service contractors provide three meals per day per adult and pediatric patient, plus operate the cafeteria and snack bar for outpatients.

The approximately 30-35 food service employees, paid by the hospital, will retain their positions under the new contractors. Food service director Owen Black and ARA's therapeutic dietitian will not be employed by Saga, which will bring on its own manager and dietitian.

Hospital controller John Hayden said some management difficulties as well as cost had affected the administration's decision. He cited a large employee turnover as one problem encountered.

Hayden told hospital trustees ARA's food could be rated as "fair," and added hospitals served by Saga had indicated their food quality level was "pretty good."

Saga will have a menu offering several meal choices, as did ARA. Saga, based in Menlo-Park, Calif., has the food contract at five other hospitals in Idaho, including St. Benedict's in Jerome. Leon Felder, St. Benedict's administrator, said today he was "very impressed with Saga. They've done an excellent job for us." The company has had the contract there for six years.

Black, who said he couldn't comment on the matter, added, "We feel we've done an excellent job for them. . . . We feel that after a year with the other food service, we'll be back to bid again."

Hayden, in citing reasons for the recommendation to go with Saga, mentioned a request made by ARA last year for the hospital to offer some meals daily because of the high costs ARA was incurring.

The request was denied, Hayden said and added he felt when a contract was made, it should be firm.

Hayden also said he felt Saga's plan for their dietitian to work with patients was superior to the system now in effect under ARA.

Murtaugh sets fall vacation

MURTAUGH — Murtaugh schools will close Monday for a one-week fall vacation.

School also will be dismissed Nov. 7 while the faculty members attend an all-day reading workshop at Minico High School in Rupert, it was decided at the trustees meeting Monday night.

The Murtaugh board members are planning on attending the state trustees convention Nov. 13-15 in Boise.

In other business Monday night, dates for baccalaureate and graduation were set. Baccalaureate will be held May 18 with graduation the following day.

The board also decided to continue its insurance coverage with Dadds Insurance Agency, Kimberly.

Jerome trustees study request for auditorium

JEROME — The Jerome School Board Monday took under consideration a request from Jeff Marble, supervisor of social services for Jerome, to use the junior high auditorium twice a month for showing movies.

Marble said at the Monday night meeting he was representing the Jerome Senior Citizens who want to show the movies, geared to the young people of the community, as a fund raising project.

The school board pointed out that the district is losing money on the amount of rent it charges and that it would mean overtime for some district personnel.

Approval was given for report card changes from the present form to a new one for Lincoln and Jefferson elementary schools. The new cards will give a more detailed report on the students. Washington elementary received approval for request to discontinue giving quarterly report cards.

Donald Daw, school principal said teachers feel it would be better to have parent-teacher conferences with either of the students parents at the end of the grading period to report to them how the student is doing, rather than just sending home another grade. He said a complete record of the students grades would be kept during the year and a final letter grade will be issued at the end of the year for each student.

IF doctor appointed

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Thomas W. Higgins, an Idaho Falls doctor, has been appointed to the regional advisory council of the Mountain States Regional Medical Program (MSRMP).

Higgins said the MSRMP will invest $2.3 million during the coming fiscal year in health care projects in its service area, with about $10,400 going to projects in Idaho.

The 32-member council oversees the operations of the MSRMP in Idaho, Montana, Nevada and Wyoming. It assists state and local agencies and professional and volunteer groups conduct projects that improve the delivery and accessibility of health care.

Gooding okays medical benefits

GOODING — The Gooding School board authorized a tenfold increase in maximum major medical benefits for teachers Monday night.

The board's decision, which is now before the teachers for approval or disapproval, would increase major medical benefits under the Idaho Teacher's Mutual Insurance Co. from $25,000 to $250,000 at nominal costs, according to school Supt. James Muscat. "For insurance purposes," Muscat said, the board has hired Ed Peterson of CTA Architects-engineers and planners, Twin Falls, to reevaluate and update the values of the school buildings in the district.

Cottonseed meal new food source

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cottonseed meal, fish protein concentrate and soy milk may not be gourmet's delights, but with a little more work they could help solve the world's food problems.

Food scientists have long searched for new sources of high cost protein, lacking in much of the world's diet. A new publication of the Department of Agriculture, the Farm Index, describes some of the possibilities.

"The bulk of the world's population, cereal grains are the major source of both food energy and protein, but the protein they provide is incomplete.

The article suggests that fortifying cereals with protein sources containing the missing amino acids or adding the amino acids themselves could be a feasible method of improving a large number of protein deficient diets.

Junk ship rescued

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — The skipper of a Chinese junk trying to prove ancient Chinese mariners may have sailed to North America says he knew the voyage was over when heavy seas tore a hole below the waterline in the craft's worm-riddled hull.

"I knew it was all over," Capt. Carl Grace, a mechanical engineer from Copenhagen, Denmark, said Monday. "We radioed an SOS."

Grace, 44, and his six crewmen were rescued in the stormy Pacific Oct. 9 by the oil tanker ship Washington Hall, which was bound from Japan to Seattle.

They docked here Monday and told how 30-foot waves and 50-knot winds with higher gusts defeated their effort to sail from Hong Kong to Central America, retracing the great circle route they believed Chinese mariners sailed as early as the time of Christ.

Ruling upheld

By DAVID BOCKMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A special hearing officer has upheld a decision by the state Health and Welfare Department to deny the application for a license by the Magic Valley Living Center, Twin Falls.

The decision was made by Kenneth L. Pedersen, a Burley attorney who was specially appointed to hear the case.

Pedersen's decision was based upon three shortcomings of the center. First, according to Pedersen, the center failed to abide by state sanitation regulations.

Second, with 25 residents, the center was required to have at least two staff members on the premises at all times. However, according to Pedersen's findings, at times there was only a cook on duty. Other times, there were no staff members present, according to Pedersen.

Finally, the decision found repeated violations of regulations governing the storage of drugs. The regulations require drugs to be secured in a locked cabinet. However, the evidence presented at the hearing indicated that the lock had been broken off by a resident and never replaced.

The center was formerly licensed as a shelter care home. According to the records of the case, at the time of the appeal, 15 of the 26 residents were considered retarded.

Pedersen said the center would appeal his decision with 60 days to district court.

According to the record of the decision, allegations that a center resident was responsible for the death of a Twin Falls woman in August did not play a part in the decision. The matter was not introduced into the hearing.

Richard Brown, director of the center, said this morning he has not received any word to the decision.

"It is typical of the way the state operates. I am always the last to find out about these things," he said.

Brown said he naturally on such short notice has made no decisions as to possible appeal of the special hearing officer's decision.

Rate hike studied

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has taken under advisement a request from Utah Power and Light to increase annual rates by 5.1 per cent.

The firm's rate increase application was filed in December, and since then the PUC has conducted hearings in both eastern Idaho and Boise.

The main issues in the hearing were the impact of inflation on the company's operations and construction costs and the need for adequate earnings to meet requirements for sale of company stock issues.

Locking device faulty

BOISE (UPI) — A locking device on cells at the new Idaho State Prison is causing problems for corrections officials because it breaks down, freezing doors open or closed.

A Boise television station, KBOI, said the locking device on Cell Block Eight, which houses almost 80 inmates, when working correctly can open and close cell doors from an electronic central control panel.

The most recent breakdown of the device occurred Tuesday.

Darroll Guthrie, house relief officer, said most of the problems with the locking device appear to have been caused by faulty installation. But he said each breakdown seems to result from a different cause and can take up to 14 hours to repair.

No bias found

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Human Rights Commission Tuesday ruled there was no evidence of discrimination by Hughes Aircraft in the company's failing to recall a female employe from furlough.

Elizabeth Cass, now of Phoenix, Ariz., filed a complaint with the commission contending that the airline violated the Idaho antidiscrimination act by hiring men instead of recalling her to work in the Boise Air Terminal.

Mrs. Cass had been a ticket agent in the Boise terminal but was not recalled to work when the strike ended March 13, 1972. Instead, she was placed on furlough to return to work in the Boise terminal when a ticket agent position opened.

Collision claims woman

BOISE (UPI) — Horseshoe Bend Woman died Tuesday in a collision between her car and a fork lift in West Boise.

Carol A. Clarkson, 40, was driving a car when the brakes on the fork lift being hauled by a truck failed to operate, causing the fork lift to send the truck into a broad slide.

The truck and lift crossed the center divide and collided with the Clarkson vehicle.

Free film Thursday

TWIN FALLS — "Black History, Lost, Stolen or Strayed" is the third in a series of four films being shown in Twin Falls. The film is open to the public and will be shown Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Idaho Power Auditorium through the cooperation of the National Project Center for Film and the Humanities and the Twin Falls Public Library.

Narrated by Bill Cosby, the film deals with the American black as the country's forgotten or invisible man. Why the American black has been left out of history books and how this fact affects both black and white Americans is the film subject.

Bid opening under way

BOISE (UPI) — Employees of the State Land Department began the arduous task Tuesday of opening some 800 bids for geothermal energy leases.

Ralph Samson, administrator for lands, minerals and grazing, estimated it will take the department about two days to open all the bids.

After all the bids are opened decisions will be made as to which of them will be accepted, he said.

Rumors denied

IDAHO CITY, Idaho (UPI) — Boise County Clerk Robert J. Tuffield says there is no truth to rumors of land purchase for a new county courthouse in Idaho City.

Tuffield said rumors the existing county building is about ready to fall down also are untrue.

On Nov. 5 voters of Boise County will decide whether the county seat—located in Idaho City since 1863—should be moved to Horseshoe Bend where the population has shifted.

Energy problems eyed

BOISE (UPI) — The United States is going to need a lot of energy from whatever means are available and the public should take advantage of what it has, according to a federal administrator.

David A. Hamill, administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration (REA), told townsmen that modern coal-fired electric generating plants are a lot different from those of the past.

He said more and more power will be required by Idaho farmers who use electric motors for lifting water for irrigation purposes.

Pocantello rezoning approved

PQCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Patrons of Pocantello School District 25 voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to rezone the trustee districts to provide a more equal population balance.

They approved the rezoning proposal 63-44. The rezoning will go into effect as soon as the vote inhibition is validated.

Rezoning will put two incumbents—Dr. Arthur West and Merrill Gee—into the same district and the board will have to choose one of the two to complete the term.

Board members also will have to choose somebody to fill a vacancy in the newly created zone three until the trustee election next May.

Application granted

BOISE (UPI) — The Public Utilities Commission has granted the application of Rodney J. Bacon, Coeur d'Alene, for a certificate of convenience and necessity to operate a radio telephone answering service.

Speaker set for TF meet

TWIN FALLS — A vice president of the National Association for Mental Health will be the keynote speaker for the 1974 annual meeting of the Idaho Mental Health Association.

The state convalee is scheduled for Friday evening and Saturday at the Blue Lakes Inn here. It will open with a no-host social hour at 5:30 p.m. with dinner at 6:30 p.m.

William D. Rice, vice president for communications, will address the dinner meeting and the award winning National Association film "Journey" will also be shown.

Saturday morning's agenda will include a discussion on mental health services now available in Idaho and ideas for working with local mental health authorities from Diana Fell, mental health director, Salt Lake County, Utah.

Mary Jo Statten, Twin Falls, president of the League of Women Voters of Idaho, will give tips for working with legislators and a panel composed of patients from State Hospital South and members of the state mental health association, is scheduled.

Luncheon speaker Saturday will be Dr. Len Pechlunas, Dekalb, Ga., who will elaborate on the role of a voluntary association as it relates to mental health services and advocacy.

During the business session Saturday afternoon officers will be elected and direction will be given to the board for the coming year's program.

Nominees for the board include Sharon Hubler, Caldwell, for re-election as president; Marilyn Loening, Halley, current vice president; Wilma Armstrong, Boise, secretary; Shirley Hansen, Bayview, Region I; LaDonna Webb, Nampa, region II; and Lorraine Smith, Twin Falls, region III, and Joan Paradis, Pocatello, region IV.

Indian Hills project eyed

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Water Resource Board is going ahead with plans to develop the Indian Hills Project in 320-acre family farm units and will ask the Legislature for authorization and financing.

The board Tuesday agreed to go to the governor and Legislature for help with the project during the next calendar year. It also voted to ask the congressional delegation to get special legislation through Congress.

Recently it appeared the project was shelved because an Interior Department solicitor held that under the Carey Act, a family could develop the land only in 160 acre parcels.

Staff studies by the Department of Water Resources indicate 160 acres is an unrealistic unit to farm in that area of Southern Idaho along the Snake River and could jeopardize the entire project. The staff recommended 320 acres as a more viable number—both economically and socially.

The board voted to seek special legislation so that this particular project could be developed in 320-acre, husband-and-wife units under the Carey Act.

Members felt special legislation would be faster than seeking general legislation to amend the Carey Act or litigation to challenge the solicitor's ruling.

Filer school enrollment up

FILER — Filer Elementary school has the highest enrollment it has ever had at this time of the year.

Principal Bill Heaps told school trustees Monday night there are now 313 students attending the school, more than any previous October. Today, he reported the number has climbed to 316.

Last spring there were 250 students because "we got hit in the spring when the seasonal laborers get her," he said. The past two years' attendance at this date was 309.

Edwin Marshall, principal at the Filer Primary School, told trustees the Filer school now offers 62 different courses while the Northwest Accreditation requests 34.

Jerome City Council proposes annex

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer

JEROME — The City Council has decided to annex property south and west of Jerome, even though annexation has not been requested by property owners in the area.

The Jerome City Council Tuesday night agreed to send a recommendation for annexation of several parcels of land to the Jerome Zoning Commission. The council has decided to annex the property in an effort to square up the city limits.

The only section of land that has had an annexation requested is the Ed Heltzman property southwest of Jerome, which includes the Mo-Bel-Aire Trailer Park. Other property to be annexed includes the Jerome Implement Co. on South Lincoln, adjacent to the Heltzman property; a section of land south of town along South Lincoln, east two blocks to Buchanan along J Street, then south two blocks and west two blocks back to South Lincoln. The other property is west of the railroad tracks, west of town and encompasses the area beginning on West Main, running south on South Boulevard and east on West Avenue B to the present city limits, then north to Main Street.

The Zoning Commission will schedule a public hearing on the annexation to give Jerome residents an opportunity to protest the action if they want to. It was brought out at the council meeting that the city plans to continue to annex other properties in a continuing effort to square up the city limits.

In other business, the council approved a building permit for First Federal Savings and Loan to locate a trailer on East Main Street as temporary bank headquarters. Ron Hall, supervisor of First Federal Savings and Loan branch banks, said the office should be open for business by Nov. 15 in the temporary quarters and will start construction on a permanent building in early spring. He said the new bank will be located on East Main in the vacant lot adjacent to Penney's.

Hunters reminded of DDT spraying

FAIRFIELD — Idaho Fish and Game Department officials issued a reminder today to hunters in the Deer and Elk creek areas near here concerning the long lasting effects of DDT spraying.

These areas were sprayed earlier this year in a Tussock moth eradication project. Residue from DDT was found in deer and elk in the Salmon area as much as four years after a similar project officials said.

The Health Department is still compiling data from the Salmon spray project. Bill Webb, regional director of the Idaho Fish and Game, said.

He said the Idaho Fish and Game Department is opposed to the DDT spraying of Tussock moth partly because of investigation results. "We haven't been too happy with the Fairfield spraying operation," he said. "Nobody knows how long it stays in the body."

Lab samples of rodent insects and fish taken from Elk Creek, Powell Creek, Salmon Creek and Deer Creek were sent to the Department of Health in Boise in June, Webb said. No results have been released to the Fish and Game people, probably because of a backlog of lab work, he said.

After the 1964 spraying in Salmon, Webb said, "we found some DDT in everything. We did find heavy residues in deer and elk."

Grouse had large percentages initially, Webb said. "The residue makes no attempt to place any restriction whatever on the type of commodities that can be sold or any type of business that can be operated under the name of a drug store."

Beverly, the manager of the Quik-Pik, said he was pleased with the court's decision. He said he felt "the law was unconstitutional" and he was surprised when he was arrested for violating the city ordinance.

Jerome City Council proposes annex

A building permit was also approved for Triple C Concrete for construction of a batch concrete plant on West Main with an estimated cost of $40,000.

The rules were suspended and an ordinance was passed by the council rezoning property on Elm Street from residential to business. The property is owned by S.A. Kolman, who plans to build a two-story office building.

Councilmen are considering the purchase of a site near the engine at a cost of $10,000, not including extras. Marshall, Everhart, councilmen reported that Skyline Equipment has offered to sell the city a new truck at the present cost with delivery a year and a half away.

"The price they quote is now would be the price the would sell the engine to us in a year and a half, regardless if the costs go up or down," Everhart said. He said the city would not be obligated if it did not have the funds a year and a half from now.

Burley ordinance violates Idaho law

BURLEY — A Burley city ordinance requiring some stores to close on Sundays, while allowing others to remain open has been found unconstitutional.

In a decision made Oct. 3, but just made public by city officials, Magistrate Charles C. Shaw, Gooding, found the city's Sunday-closing ordinance to be in violation of Idaho law, and state and federal constitutions.

Judge Shaw said he didn't question the right of the city to enact a Sunday-closing ordinance, but he stated, he felt the law to be invalid as written.

The ordinance as written says, "no place of business... shall be open for business on any Sunday between 9 a.m. and 12 o'clock midnight, excepting only: Drugstores; service stations; and places of business selling food or drink for consumption on the premises..."

Shaw's objection to the law pertained to the exceptions, two of which drug stores and "consumption on the premises" stores he said were "vague and ambiguous."

Specifically, Shaw found that the law could be interpreted to read that "if any retail store sells food or drink for consumption on the premises, then... there are no restrictions... from engaging in the retail sale of any type of commodity."

The judge's ruling was the result of a case brought against John C. Bevers, manager of the Quik-Pik Market by the city of Burley. The decision, in effect, finds Bevers "not guilty" since the ordinance is unconstitutional.

Shaw said that the ordinance was "arbitrary and discriminatory" against not only Quik-Pik but other retail stores, since they could be closed simply because they didn't have merchandise for consumption on the premises."

Likewise, Shaw questioned that portion of the ordinance allowing drugstores to remain open on Sunday, even though in one case the store sold, in addition to drugs, sundries, books, candy, dry goods, hardware, sporting goods, cookware, glassware, clothing and 90 etc.

Shaw said "the ordinance makes no attempt to place any restriction whatever on the type of commodities that can be sold or any type of business that can be operated under the name of a drug store."

Beverly, the manager of the Quik-Pik, said he was pleased with the court's decision. He said he felt "the law was unconstitutional" and he was surprised when he was arrested for violating the city ordinance.

Bevers said he thought his store would re-open on Sundays but probably not immediately.

The decision of other store personnel was mixed. Employees of some supermarkets and variety stores, liked closing on Sundays since they got a day off. The assistant manager of a large chain store, asked that he not be identified, said the law was a "good thing—it's one day we can be with family."

An assistant store manager of a supermarket, said he would like to see the stores remain closed on Sundays. He felt if the stores opened on extra day costs would also go up, resulting in higher food costs.

Others were, however, plan to open on Sundays. John Weir, manager of Gibson's, Burley, said "As soon as we can serve the customers and be legal we'll open on Sunday."

Error helps A's take lead in world series

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland A's defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 in the third game of the World Series Tuesday night because Joe Ferguson, who doesn't care where he plays "as long as I get my four straight games," was in the wrong place.

Ferguson, who had played right field for Los Angeles in the first two Series games, was switched back to catcher so the Dodgers could get another left-handed batter, Willie Crawford, into the lineup in flight.

The move was a fluke, even though Crawford hit a ninth inning homer for the Dodgers' final run.

The difference in the game was an error by Ferguson—one of two he made, tying a Series record for catchers—that led to two unearned runs by the A's in the third inning and put them ahead to stay.

This was the third straight game—in this first-ever California World Series—in which the A's won the first and the Dodgers the second—and put Oakland on top in games 2-4. The fourth and fifth games will be played here Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Ferguson had shared the catching job with Steve Yeager this season but Yeager, who is a better catcher, played there the first two Series games while Ferguson was in right.

Ironically, Ferguson had spectacular moments in each of the first two games. He prevented an Oakland run in the first game with one of the best throws from the outfield in Series history, and hit a towering home run in the second game.

But Tuesday night he was not spectacular.

With the game scoreless and two out in the third inning, Ferguson couldn't handle a little chop in front of the plate by Reggie Jackson.

He bobbed the ball for an error and Oakland's first run scored on the play. Joe Rudi followed with a single to make it 2-0.

Oakland got its third run in the fourth, Dick Green coming home on a single by Bert Campaneris, and Ferguson let the throw from center get by him for his second error.

That made Ferguson the first catcher in more than 40 years to make two errors in a World Series game.

Before the game started, Ferguson was asked about the move from right back to catcher, and he said "I don't care where I play as long as I get my four swings a game," but his four swings didn't accomplish much either—two strikeouts, a walk, and he reached on an error.

Yeager is expected to be the catcher with Ferguson in right again when the Dodgers send first game loser Andy Messersmith against Ken Holtzman on Wednesday night.

Twenty-five game winner Jim "Catfish" Hunter, who saved the Series opener for Oakland with an unusual—for him—relief job, got the victory to raise his three-year World Series record to 4-0.

Hunter had a four-hit shutout and 3-0 lead through seven innings, but was lifted in the eighth after Dave Lopes sent Bill North almost to the wall in center to handle his long drive and Bill Buckner followed two pitches later with a line drive home to right.

Rollie Fingers, the first game winner, came on and Jim Wynn greeted him with a single but Steve Garvey then lined into the second of three A's double plays.

Crawford led off the ninth by slamming a 1-1 pitch from Fingers into the seats in right-center to make the score 3-2.

Ferguson then reached safely when shortstop Campaneris booted his roller for an error. But Ron Cey failed to hustle and struck out and Fingers got Bill Russell to ground into a game ending double play.

The Dodgers' defense after the third double play had extra chances in the A's two-run third.

Ferguson dons horns for LA's loss to Oakland

OAKLAND (UPI) — Joe Ferguson learned Tuesday that in baseball you take the lead with the good.

The Los Angeles Dodgers slugger, who made a spectacular throw in the first inning of the World Series and then won the second with a homer, became the "goat" of the third when he committed a pair of errors.

Los Angeles' 3-2 victory Tuesday and a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven series.

Moments after third baseman Ron Cey made a spectacular, backhanded stop of Bert Campaneris' shot down the line in the third inning, Ferguson bobbed a chopper in front of the plate by Reggie Jackson, and it led to two unearned runs.

"There were two outs at the time and the A's had runners at first and third. One run scored on the error and Joe Rudi made it 2-0 with a single."

"I think I knocked it out myself when I tried to close the glove," Ferguson said of the ball which fell to the ground. "I tried to pick it up between hops and while the pitcher was winding."

"I think it would have been a close play, but I don't know if I could have thrown him (Jackson)."

There goes ballgame

by a catcher in a game when he let a throw from the outfield get away from him in the fourth. That, however, came after Oakland's winning run had scored.

Jimmy Wilson of the St. Louis Cardinals was the last catcher to commit two errors in a series contest — 46 years ago.

In addition to his fielding problems, Ferguson also didn't have much luck against Jim Hunter of the A's.

Hunter, in a rare relief appearance in the first game in Los Angeles, struck out Ferguson to preserve the A's victory in the first game and Ferguson struck out the first two times Tuesday.

"They got away with murder," Ferguson said of the A's. "They didn't earn any runs (one was earned). We gave them the game. We hit shorts."

"They definitely are a team of opportunity. But we're the same kind of team. Strange, isn't it? All three games have been by 3-2 scores."

Despite his problems, Manager Walter Alston cautioned listeners not to downgrade Ferguson.

"Don't sell him short," Alston said. "He's a good catcher."

In Wednesday's game, however, Steve Yeager, the move was not made Tuesday, but because the A's will be starting a left-handed pitcher.

"Elsewhere in the state, some 20 counties in southwestern Idaho and the Panhandle, the daily bag of five ducks may be parlayed to seven — provided that at least two are pintails.

"A possession limit of 14 ducks is legal after the first day provided at least four ducks are pintails.

"In the state, some 20 counties in southwestern Idaho and the Panhandle, the daily bag is six ducks, with a possession limit of 12 ducks. Regulations listing the counties are available at any license vendor.

Statewide, the daily bag and possession limits on ducks may include no more than one canvasback and two redheads, or more than four redheads in possession. In Idaho restrictions on these two species do not mean much, except in a few areas where these two duck species concentrate. For example, at the end of September, the statewide count of redheads and ducks totaled 200 and only about 500 can be hunted. Ducks are highly aware of waterfowl regulations, the dealing with duck stamps, shooting hours and bag limits. They even have a casual acquaintance with "flyway management" by which varying harvests of ducks are permitted over broad areas, where duck numbers and hunting pressure vary.

For some obscure reason, however, many hunters believe that "species management" of waterfowl is something new. It's really as old as the federal regulations.

When the United States began managing ducks back in 1918, the first regulations prohibited shooting elders and wood ducks. Since then, species management has been applied to all ducks, with special attention reserved for water ducks, redheads and canvasbacks.

The mallard is the No. 1 duck in three flyways — Pacific, Central and Mississippi — with the pintail ranked second. In

Species identification helps hunters

Idaho there are some pintails throughout the fall migration period, with numbers peaking in September and early October. States to the south of Idaho will benefit most from the pintail "bonus" regulations.

Mid-September counts this year reported mallards out-numbering pintails about 1 1/2 times. The estimates on waterfowl concentration areas were 52,000 mallards and 37,000 pintails. By opening weekend for ducks, October 5-6, mallard concentrations exceeded pintails by a margin of almost five to one.

Peak migration figures in mid-November last year showed 588,000 mallards and 31,000 pintails on Idaho duck concentration areas, according to Dick Norell, game bird supervisor.

During the early days of waterfowl management, stringent species managements was extended to mallards and other common ducks — hitting the hunter where it hurts. Only two mallards per day were allowed in the Atlantic and Pacific flyways, and only one mallard per day was allowed in the Mississippi flyway.

Some hunters hung up their guns in disgust. Many were wise in doing so because their ability to identify waterfowl stopped beyond Canada geese and drake mallards. They bagged their mallards and quit for the day because they could not identify other available duck species in the area.

But hunters with duck savvy added other legal species, including teal, pintail and gadwall. Generally the guys who knew ducks best had the most shooting — lawful shooting, that is.

But such things are mighty risky for hunters who do not know their ducks. Many waterfowlers don't. In this day of species management they are hamstringing their sports.

Fear of violating state and federal regulations, they wisely balk at shooting ducks they cannot identify.

In Idaho, the species to know, in order of their importance statewide, are mallards about 70 percent of the total harvest; green-winged teal, 11 1/2 percent; pintail, 6.7 percent; gadwall, 4.4 percent; widgeon or baldpate, 3.2; shoveler, 1.5; and all other species less than one percent each.

Species management should be of intense personal interest to hunters, both from the standpoint of conservation, and also personal sport involved. Hunters who can't identify ducks on the wing obviously are badly limiting their sport.

The best way to know ducks is to observe them in the field under all conditions. In Idaho this is possible in early summer around city reservoirs, parks and wildlife refuges. It may be easier during the summer months to find ducks in books. And make no mistake — book learning is a big help in identifying ducks.

Such books are available at public libraries — and from any outdoor book dealer. Some of the best waterfowl identification guides are free. Write the U.S. Department of Interior, Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife, the current title for this handsomely illustrated pocket-sized folder is, "Know Your Ducks." A good book is, "Ducks, Geese and Swans of North America," by Frank C. Korschelt, American Wildlife Institute, Washington, D. C. Another is, "A Field Guide to Birds," by Roger Tory Peterson.

Jackson reprimanded

OAKLAND (UPI) — Reggie Jackson, Oakland's slugger, was reprimanded and threatened with suspension by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Tuesday as a result of his run-in with a sports writer.

Kuhn's action came moments before the start of the game of the World Series between the Oakland A's and Los Angeles Dodgers and was an outgrowth of a stinging denunciation by Jackson's manager, Murray Olderman, 52, a sports columnist for a feature syndicate, during the A's off-day workout at Oakland Coliseum Monday.

The reprimand and suspension threat was conveyed to Jackson by one of Kuhn's aides, Joseph Reichler, baseball's Director of Public Relations.

Reichler approached Jackson as the A's cleanup hitter was warming up with fellow outfielder Jesus Alou near the Oakland dugout and told him Kuhn was "very disturbed" over published reports of his threat to keep Jackson before the A's clubhouse.

"The commissioner doesn't want anything like this ever to happen again," Reichler told Jackson. "If it does, there's a possibility of a problem, and I think you know what I mean by that."

Jackson nodded because shortly after Monday's episode, Reichler told him he would risk suspension if he ever did the same thing again. Reichler made it clear to Jackson on Monday he was speaking for Kuhn.

After he had conveyed the commissioner's message Tuesday, Reichler also was given a message back to Kuhn by Jackson.

"He'll tell him not to worry. It won't happen again," said the A's outfielder. "Tell him, too, as far as I'm concerned, everything is over."

Jerome to expand girls athletics

BY CHARLOTTE BILL, Times-News writer

JEROME — Girls' athletics will receive more emphasis in the Jerome School District from now on.

Tom Oyer, athletic coordinator, told the Jerome School Board Monday night he was going to expand the present program to include more advanced training and girls' team competition. He said the Jerome Booster Club has raised $700 which was donated to the athletic program.

"I have used the money to purchase additional equipment needed for the gymnastics program," Oyer said. He said that in the future the district will have to purchase a set of rings and a regulation parallel bar for advanced training and team competition.

"This year we will continue to teach the basics in the regular PE program as we do not have the experience yet for the more advanced program," Oyer said. He added that the new PE teacher, Mrs. Elaine Hughes, is hired to instruct the program be instituted which was sanctioned by the state.

Athletics take time to blast groundskeeper

OAKLAND (UPI) — Dick Green, Oakland's fine second baseman, tied a World Series record by participating in three double plays Tuesday night, and under the circumstances he thinks it's quite an accomplishment.

"No, I didn't know I tied a record," Green said minutes after the third double play he took part in wound up a 3-2 victory for the A's over the Los Angeles Dodgers for a 2-1 lead in the Series.

When you take into account how hard the infield is in the Oakland Coliseum, making three double plays in any game, let alone a World Series, is something. We've complained about our infield for years and sometimes I wonder why we keep bemoaning. No one is going to do anything about it."

The three double plays started out budding in Los Angeles rallies and enabled Jim "Catfish" Hunter and Rollie Fingers to hold off the Dodgers in the third game of the Series that wound up with a 3-2 score.

Someone suggested that perhaps the fact the NFL Oakland Raiders also use the Coliseum has something to do with its poor condition.

"No, that's not the reason why," said Green, who announces his retirement each year and then comes back for just one more.

"It's the time of the year for me to start thinking about quitting again," smiled the 33-year-old native of Sioux City, Iowa who now makes his home in South Dakota.

Manager Alvin Dark said while he was happy with the victory Tuesday night, in his mind the big game is No. 4.

"That's always the key one in a seven-game series," said Dark. "Of course, by winning the third for a 2-1 lead you always have a chance to end it in five, but that's something I'm not thinking about right now."

Hunter came out after one out in the eighth following a bases-empty homer by Bill Buckner for Los Angeles' first run.

"You never want to come out of any game," said Oakland's 25-game winner and a leading candidate for American League Cy Young Award honors, "but that's the way it goes sometimes."

Hunter, who had treated some friends from North Carolina, to World Series tickets, laughed at Buckner's homer.

Catching up on some of the locals.

Mike Falsh, the two-sport star of Highland current trying to make the big time with Notre Dame. Is starting to make good headway in his bid to become a starting quarterback for a national power.

It hasn't been roses for Falsh who spent his first five weeks of the season playing javave ball. In fact, he didn't start for the frosh or jayvees, whatever they call them now.

But as of this week he's moved up to third team varsity, which actually is fourth quarterback under the Irish way of doing things. The one-two quarterbacking or the "first team," the third quarterback on the second.

Mike, according to father Bob Falsh, got the job a week ago Monday during the weekly scrimmage for all players not having seen action Saturday.

The third team quarterback was having trouble getting points and Falsh got his turn, leading the team to a touchdown. When his club got the ball back, the third team quarterback goes about to go back in when head coach Ara Parseghian told the assistant to put Falsh back on the field.

He took them to another touchdown — and when Wednesday's list came out he was eligible to suit down for Saturday's game.

Another fresh doing well is Brent Watson, the tackle from Buhl and Twin Falls now at Tennessee. He's running second team offense and seeing action on the specialty teams.

In writing to a former teammate Watson said he'd found no big deal, outbatter was eating him alive at yet. He added that while playing in school, when "you step out on a field and there are 80,000 people cheering, it's worth it."

Closer to home, Jim Lash, who made all-state basketball for Twin Falls last year, has dropped off the CSI basketball team. One of his knees gave way during a practice session and no contact was involved.

Word returns here that Lew Schaffel, the New York lawyer who has sent some great ones to CSI and represents many ABA and NBA stars now, is more than a little miffed that Tom Barker turned away from North Carolina State and opted for University of Iowa.

Schaffel believes seven-foot-cest himself considerable money in the shift, pitting the publicity Hawaii gets from that of N.C. State. It is all negotiable.

Around here CSI boosters are calling University of Hawaii CSI west. This year's Rainbow outfit will include four ex Golden Eagles — Vic Kelly, Tom Fryson, Barker and Keith Bowman, the 6'7" tall who served time for disciplinary reasons before the season started a couple of years ago.

Reports also say that Schaffel set three outstanding players to Bob Bantfield at Arizona Western this fall. Two reputedly tall and of professional potential, the third being a guard.

In the potential "haunting" scene, Ross Goddard, ex-Skyline stickout quarterback, will doubtless be at the helm when Weber State goes to University of Idaho this fall.

"God bless 'em," said Schaffel, "started a couple of games and then went to the sidelines without much explanation. He went home for a half year, sat out last season at Ogden and is eligible now. He passed for two touchdowns and scored another when Weber upset Montana State last week."

Also would have to say that Greg Smith of Highland, the lad who caught three TD passes and returned a kickoff for a fourth against Twin Falls last week, is perhaps the most impressive individual we've seen at Buhl stadium since we watched Ray McDonald as a linebacker.

Also have to say that game was a real pleaser in this department. Coach Denny Alquist put out some new wrinkles that got points and were fun to watch. Although each member of the coaching staff had at least glistening eyes at the end of it, it was the type of game that was disappointing perhaps but one certainly couldn't feel bad about it.

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — How can two small college teams from the western mountains and deserts hope to compete for attention with the Big Eight, Big Ten and Southeast Conferences?

It's not that hard when the teams are undefeated and nationally ranked Boise State and Nevada-Las Vegas.

The two — both 5-0 this year — meet in Las Vegas, Nev., Saturday night in a showdown that will almost certainly send at least one of them into the NCAA Division II western regional finals.

Boise State has the nation's most powerful total offense and passing offense in the college division, behind the arm of senior quarterback Jim McMillan. And the Nevada-Las Vegas Rebels have running back Mike Thomas, who has rushed for 800 yards and 66 points on 14 touchdowns and two conversion runs.

"Last year we lost three games in going all the way to the NCAA Division II semifinals," said Boise State coach Tony Knap. "This year we'd like to take care of those losses."

Knap's Broncos, ranked in the top five of UPI's small college poll since their first win of the year, lost to the Rebels, Nevada-Reno and Louisiana Tech in the semifinals last year in going 10-3 and winning the Big Sky Conference crown.

The losses were by five points or less — 24-19 to Las Vegas, 2-21 to Reno and 28-24 to Louisiana Tech.

"As cliché as it sounds, we'd like to just win the next game before we plan on the one after that," says Knap. "And now the next game is Las Vegas."

Knap has won "the next game" five times this year, the first time Boise State has taken five straight since it became a four-year school in the 1960s.

One of the victories was a 36-16 dumping of Reno, taking care of the first of last year's losses. Now come the Rebels and Thomas.

"Last year he scored three times against us, and that was the difference," says Knap. "We can't really stop him. But we've got to at least slow him down."

Boise State's best chance of winning is simply to outscore Las Vegas, and for that Knap will go to McMillan.

Louisiana Tech remains atop division II poll; BSU fourth

NEW YORK (UPI) — The top five teams in the United States football ratings remained undefeated last week, but newcomers look over the next five positions in the top 10 as upsets belted the incumbents.

Louisiana Tech collected 18 of the 32 first place votes cast and again was a solid No. 1 choice, garnering 290 points to runner-up Western Kentucky's 249.

And Delaware, Boise State and Nevada-Las Vegas again followed in that order.

But Grambling defeated Tennessee State 21-7 Saturday and replaced the Tigers as the No. 6 team.

Texas A&M climbed from 15th to seventh with its fifth straight win of the season and South Dakota jumped from 12th to eighth.

Elon, which has only given up seven points in its five victories this season.

The 21-year-old son of a Caldwell, Idaho, minister has bobbed through four of Boise State's five games, missing the 41-7 Chico State win with a hamstring pull.

He's passed for 1,627 yards and nine touchdowns and run for another 137 yards and a 10th touchdown. McMillan's backups — Lee Huey and Greg Stern — are just about as good.

Platt, who appeared Oct. 8 before Magistrate Judge William Puette, told the court he mistook the animal for an elk.

Raft River finds Declo major obstacle to conference crown

DECLO — The Raft River Trojans meet the Declo Hornets at 7 p.m. Thursday night with a chance to clinch at least a tie for the Magic Valley Conference grid title and a trip to the playoffs in the Minidome.

For Declo it is only a matter of pride as Raft River's victory over Murtough wiped out the slim chance the Hornets had of coming back to salvage the runner-up spot in the playoff.

Generally there's a lot of pride working for both sides when these two teams meet.

Coach Mike Matthews of Declo — disclaims this is a "hate" series among the two Cassia County schools.

"That year when Raft River ruined our perfect season, (Coach Kay) Harper of Raft River) and I went deer hunting together the next morning," Coach Matthews recalls. "The only thing I said to him was 'don't give me an open back shot.'" he added with a laugh.

The two teams are fairly similar in makeup, both relying heavily on sophomores and juniors to keep things coming back to salvage the runner-up spot in the playoff.

Dallas shuns playoff talk, just wants to win next game

DALLAS (UPI) — For the Dallas Cowboys, who have been in the NFL playoffs for a record eight straight years, priorities have been changed.

"We are not concerned with the playoffs or anything else," coach Tom Landry said Tuesday. "We are only concerned about winning a football game."

"We've had these guys for a long time. They have won a lot of great football games."

I'm not leaving them. I'm supporting them 100 per cent."

Dallas has lost four games in a row, three of them in last minute field goals by Philadelphia, Minnesota and St. Louis. And now the question is:

Are Dallas' years as an NFL power over?

"The cycle turns," Landry said. "We have whether the cycle is ended I don't know. We're further down than we have ever been."

"Our players are frustrated because they have had a chance to pull out some of the games. But they are determined to play well and as long as they have the feeling there is hope for them."

Dallas first became a winning team in 1966. Since then the cowboys have challenged for the super bowl every year — winning it once. And there was a hint from Landry Tuesday that motivation, as usual, is a problem for the Cowboys this year.

"Once you reach the top and win a lot you have a continual motivational problem. You wonder how long it can last. We have struggled with this every year. It is a big fight you have every year and we find it with us again this year."

"Success does it to you."

Landry feels Dallas' failure this season is a combination of his own team's inability and the improvement from other clubs inside the NFC's Eastern division.

Player tax breaks studied by court

ATLANTA (UPI) — From the point of view of both the Internal Revenue Service and owners of professional sports franchises, there should be no losers in a complicated tax suit now being argued in federal court.

A minority stockholder in the Atlanta Falcons franchise has filed the suit challenging the refusal of the IRS to allow a $48,000 deduction for depreciation of the players the club obtained to field their first team in 1960.

The owners are trying to establish that pro football players are like machinery a businessman buys when he opens a shop. The owners say they should get a bigger tax break for depreciation of the players. The outcome of the suit could have far-reaching effects on financing of all professional sports franchises.

The IRS has opposed the happy with almost any definitive ruling on the issue. One government source said the subject of depreciation of professional athletes for tax purposes is now completely "in limbo."

Testimony in the case has been monotonous and the only levity the occasional lapses of U.S. District Judge Frank A. Hooper from legal questions into discussion of football.

The white-haired senior judge for the Northern District of Georgia Tuesday engaged Dallas Cowboys President and General Manager Tex Schramm, the plaintiff's first expert witness, in several minutes of serious discussion about the value of an Atlanta punter Billy Leibrigh hadn't been used as a running back by the Falcons as he had by Dallas.

Schramm testified for more than six hours Tuesday on his opinion of the monetary value of the NFL veterans and college draft choices the Falcons used to stock their first team.

Schramm estimated the total dollar value of Atlanta's first team, with individual players worth $50,000 to $250,000, to be $7.5 million. He valued the Falcon stockholder, E. Cody Laird Jr., claims in the suit. Five Smiths Inc., the corporate owner of the Falcons, said in the suit that it had allocated $7.7 million of the $9.5 million purchase price of the franchise for depreciating contracts of its first 42 players for five years.

Oakland says A's can't move

OAKLAND (UPI) — R. T. Nakas, president of the Oakland Coliseum Commission, insisted Tuesday Charlie Finley and his A's can't break a 20-year lease to play major league baseball in Oakland.

The group said it wanted to get the lease show otherwise.

Nakas issued a statement Tuesday hours after a local group filed a suit aimed at keeping the A's in Oakland. The group said it wanted to get Finley and the American League on record saying no move of the club was being contemplated.

Live gate tickets moving slowly for title match

NEW YORK (UPI)—There may be, if you believe the television people, 300-million persons watching Muhammad Ali fight George Foreman, but the "live" audience in Kinshasa at 3 a.m., Zaire time, Oct. 30 may be all but lost in the 100,000 seat stadium where the ring is set up.

Njoli, Balanga of the Zaire government admitted Tuesday that, up to a week ago, only 1,500 seats had been sold for the heavyweight title match, but at fancy prices.

There are 6,000 "ringside" seats on sale for $250 each, with 1,000 seats immediately behind them at $100, followed by 2,500 at $100. All others are bargain priced at $10. Of tickets sold, 1,000 were of the $250 variety, with the other 500 going at $100.

Balanga, Zaire's commissioner general of tourism, a member of President Mobutu's staff and a member of Parliament, seemed confident that "a great many more tickets have been sold and will be sold."

It is Balanga's mission to undo the harm of had publicity which plagued Zaire after the chaos caused by the post-component of the fight from the original date of Sept. 25 after Foreman's right eye was cut. There were subsequent charges that tourists had been "ripped off" by exorbitant travel and accommodation costs.

The government is now actively involved in establishing tours, and has authorized three travel agencies to handle details. There are three separate offerings, ranging in price from $1,850 to $1,255. Costs are dependent upon how long the tourist wishes to stay, what he wishes to see in Zaire, and what type of accommodations he desires.

Balanga also attempted to offset rumors that the rainy season had set in in his country and that the fight could rain into another delay. "While the rainy season begins Oct. 1, the full effect does not make itself felt until Nov. 15 and even then rain occurs only two to three times a week for a maximum of two hours a day," he claimed.

And if it does rain? Balanga was ready for that. "A structure has been constructed to cover the ring."

Hockey makes appearance in Sun Valley

SUPERVISOR Herman Marachech overlooks construction on the new hockey ice rink which will be ready for play at Sun Valley this winter.

SUN VALLEY — Body smashing, stick breaking, player grunting hockey is coming to Sun Valley this winter.

A new 85 by 200-foot regulation size ice hockey rink will be ready for play this winter, according to Sun Valley's director of skating.

Herman Marachech, director of skating said at least two of three teams will be fielded from the Sun Valley area. The program hopes to attract teams from Salt Lake City, Idaho Falls, Boise and Aspen for some spirited competition.

The new $300,000 rink will be completely enclosed affording fans the opportunity of fall, winter and spring hockey. Inside seating will accommodate 800 fans. The new rink is being constructed behind the present outdoor rink south of Sun Valley Lodge.

Marachech said the steel frame building will have a considerable amount of glass throughout and cedar siding which will be applied so the architecture appears in context with the lodge.

Eventually, the program may expand to include a professional or semi-professional league arrangement, Marachech said, but that possibility is not realistic yet.

Daily hockey clinics will be set up beginning this winter for boys and men, Marachech said. At least one exhibition match a week will be arranged.

Marachech said this will be the first year-round sports activity in Sun Valley. Summer, winter and slack period tourists will be able to enjoy skating, he said.

The Sun Valley skating team will use the rink during July and August, Marachech said. In addition the new rink will allow guests more of an opportunity to get on the ice whenever they choose.

The summer ice program was completely sold out, ac-ording to Marachech. Some guests had to wait to get on the outdoor rink, he said.

Sun Valley is limited with only one rink, Marachech said, but the new addition will greatly extend general recreation skating.

The new rink is a private investment by several individuals and Sun Valley Co. is not building or financing it, Marachech said.

With the significant growth in the interest of the game over the last few years, Marachech said he expects the skating revenue to more than double.

Marachech promises ice hockey by Christmas. More important however, he said, is the development of several boys who can effectively play the game. It takes about three years for a boy to mature into a reasonable stick handler, he said.

Rams bench Hadl in favor of Jim Harris

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—John Hadl, last year's NFC Player of the Year, is being benched as the Los Angeles Rams' quarterback in favor of Jim Harris.

"This is the toughest decision I have had to make since becoming the Rams' head coach," Chuck Knox said Tuesday after disclosing the change.

"John has sold himself that he's in a bit of a slump right now. All of it has not been his fault. There have been some dropped passes and other breakdowns."

But, he added, "When things are not going well, you must make changes to set them right... I talked to John about it yesterday. I would never make a change like this without discussing it with the player first."

The Rams, last season's NFC West champions and the preseason favorite to win their conference this year, are only 3-2 after the first five weeks of the NFL campaign.

"It's a shock to me," said Hadl of the move by Knox. "This team is in first place. We can go two games up Sunday over the team (San Francisco) we have to beat for the division. I don't understand this at all unless it's part of some long-range plan."

"I know I have played like I did the early part of last year but physically there's nothing wrong with me or my arm. If anything, I'm better."

Harris, Hadl's roommate on road trips, Hadl said, "He's a good athlete, he has a good arm, and he's a good friend. He has the ability to do it."

Harris said he plans to concentrate on getting ready for Sunday's game with San Francisco.

"I feel it's best for me to keep quiet and keep a low profile," said Harris. "I'm going to try to play good football before I start talking."

Los Angeles lost 17-0 to the Green Bay Packers at Milwaukee Sunday. The Rams' other loss was 20-13 to New England Sept. 29.

With 43 seasons left in the NFL, Hadl was replaced by Harris Sunday.

The Rams have managed only 77 points this year compared to 162 at this time a season ago.

A 13-year NFL veteran who led the Rams to a 12-2 regular season record after being acquired from the San Diego Chargers before 1973, Hadl hasn't been anywhere near the same quarterback who threw 22 touchdown passes last year.

Hadl, 34, has hit 51 of 114 passes—a .465 percentage—for 680 yards and five TDs in five games this year.

Harris, 27, a six-year pro from Grambling, threw two interceptions against Green Bay but did drive the Rams 75 yards in 11 plays to set up David Ray's second field goal in the final quarter.

The 64, 210-pound Harris is three for 13 for 50 yards this year.

Signed as a free agent by the Rams in 1972 after being cut by the Buffalo Bills early that season, Harris was Hadl's backup quarterback last year. Used sparingly, he hit seven of 11 passes for 68 yards in '73.

Walton meets old nemesis

NEW YORK (UPI)—Three-time All-America Bill Walton gets a chance to face old nemesis Tom Burleson when the Portland trail blazer hosts the Seattle SuperSonics Sun, Oct. 27 in the first of at least 38 national basketball association games to be nationally televised by CBS.

Walton met Burleson last in an NCAA semifinal game last season, when Walton's UCLA team lost to Burleson's North Carolina State squad in overtime. This time Walton will have to contend with Jim Fox, who has been seeing a good deal of action for Seattle at center, as well as Sonic forward Spencer Haywood, likely to be helping out on Walton.

The network, in releasing its videotape schedule Tuesday, said the game will be seen at 4:30 p.m. est after a regionally televised national football league contest, the first of four such NFL-NBA twin bills.

ONLY 19 LEASE CARS LEFT

BUY ONE OF THESE 1974's AT 1964 PRICES

SOUND RIDICULOUS? Maybe, but we can do it. Bob Reese Motor Company recently purchased a train load of 1973 & 1974 Dodge, Chrysler and Plymouth lease cars. All the 1973's have been sold, but we have 19-1974 lease cars left. Most of these have only 2,900 to 8,000 miles on them. Do you remember when you could buy a full size Dodge, completely equipped including factory air conditioning for under $4,000? That's right — 1964.

Do you also remember when you could buy a Chrysler, completely loaded, including factory air conditioning for under $4,800? That's right — 1964.

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, whom I'll call Betty, is 26, a college graduate and has never given us a moment's worry—until now. Betty wants to marry Ron, a 34-year-old college professor who has used LSD off and on for three years. She said Ron promised to give up drugs three months ago and she is sure he will keep his promise. (Betty has never used drugs.)

Betty's doctor advised her not to risk having children because of her fiancé's history with LSD, so she intends to remain childless or adopt. Naturally, this hurts us deeply.

We think Betty should wait and make Ron prove himself before marrying him. So far we have avoided meeting him, which has made Betty very cool and distant to us.

Think positive

We don't want to attend her wedding. Let alone foot the bill for it. Are we wrong?
BETTY'S PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Yes, I can understand your concern and heartache over the fact that your daughter has chosen to marry a man who has been into drugs, but at 26, she's an adult and is entitled to make her own decisions—right or wrong.

Meet Ron. It will improve your relationship with Betty immediately. Don't foot the bill for a wedding if you don't want to, but do attend. It's entirely possible that Ron will stay clean. I hope so. Think positive.

DEAR ABBY: Every time I buy my husband a gift, his mother says to me in front of company, "You didn't buy him anything. It was bought and paid for with HIS MONEY."

You see, I have never worked outside the house, but I am raising four children, and I keep a clean house and cook good meals and I've made the children's clothes and my own since they were tots.

What do you say? Do I earn any of the money I save from the household allowance he gives me, or not?
WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: You probably "earn" a lot more than you get.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't throw this away without answering because it's no joke. I'm a guy whose nipples protrude very, very conspicuously. They show through my shirts, and people are always making remarks like, "Hey, you need a bra." However, the fact is, my chest is not unusually large—just my nipples.

Several years ago I read that mothers who wanted to breast-feed their babies were advised to pull on their nipp, so they would protrude, and their infants could nurse more easily. I remember now that when I was a kid (in about the sixth grade) I had a habit of doing that unconsciously while I studied.

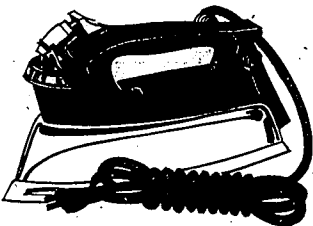

I would appreciate it if you would consult some authority on how to get my nipples back to normal, if it's possible.
SELF-CONSCIOUS

DEAR SELF: Two suggestions: Cover them with tape to

Women's rights discussion set

TWIN FALLS — A mini-course discussing women's legal rights will be held at 7 p.m. today in room 117 of the Shields Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

Two local attorneys will discuss legal rights and responsibilities of women who find themselves at the head of their household, and a state senator will interpret and explain the Equal Rights Amendment.

This in a series, the forum is sponsored by the American Association of University Women.

Lloyd Walker and William Hollifield will discuss existing Idaho laws which need interpreting for the individual who finds herself alone at the head of a family. The attorneys plan to discuss special legal problems encountered by widows and divorcees.

State Sen. Edith Miller Klein, R-Boise, will discuss the Equal Rights Amendment, explaining what the ERA does that existing laws don't.

Both men and women are invited to attend the mini-courses, offered for no charge. There will be time available for questions.

Couple exchanges promises

HAMMETT — Terri Smith and John Morris Reeves were united in marriage Oct. 5 at the future home of the young couple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Smith, San Francisco and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Reeves, Hammett.

Pastor Leland Stetler of Indian Cove Community Church performed the single ring ceremony in the garden.

The bride chose an antique, old fashioned two piece white cotton floor length dress, with a high crocheted collar with slays—and full-flowing long sleeves. The dress had blue sash. Her bridal carriage was of blue daisies, and she wore matching flowers in her hair. Mrs. William Loomis, Eugene, Ore., was matron of honor. Randy Krupke, Mandovio, Wash., was best man. Mrs. James Pearson, Union, Calif., sister of the bride, was

In charge of the reception dinner. Mrs. Wilbur Wilson and other friends assisted.

The newlyweds are living in a house belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Dick Walker, Hammett. The bridegroom is employed at the sugar beet yard and the bride at Gjording's Cafe in Hammett.

Guests attended from Issaquah and Mandovio, Wash., Arlington, Wash., Eugene, Ore., Union and San Francisco, Calif.

MISS SYLWESTER engaged

December date set

EDEEN — Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Sylwester, Eden, announce the engagement of their daughter, Susan, to Gary Lontjeer.

Lontjeer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lontjeer, Oak, Nebr.

Miss Sylwester is a 1971 graduate of Lakefield High School, Lakefield, Minn. Lontjeer is a 1971 graduate of Deshler High School, Deshler, Nebr. Both will graduate from Concordia Teachers College, Seward, Nebr., in May, 1975.

A December 27 wedding in St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Deshler, Nebr., is planned.

319 MAIN AVE. W. — TWIN FALLS

Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Bethine Clark Church loves a good hard political campaign.

While the political life and campaign battles may send some political wives to psychiatrists, the wife of Idaho's senior senator, Frank Church, Democrat, thrives on it.

As far back as she can remember, she has been in politics.

When a grade schooler her father, the late Chase Clark, was mayor of her home town, Idaho Falls. While she was in high school, he became governor of Idaho and in later years was a federal judge in Idaho.

"I remember asking people to vote for my daddy before I even knew what voting really meant," she recalls.

A recent article in Time magazine made no mention of Mrs. Church although the reporter spent considerable time interviewing her.

"I thought they probably didn't have room for my interview and that maybe I wasn't all that interesting anyway," Bethine Church said of the article.

"Then the reporter who did the interview and story called me to say she was sorry but my life was just too good. I had never had a nervous breakdown, had never been divorced, Frank had never had a love affair and our children are perfectly normal," she said.

Keeping up a pace that might drive many women to a rest home, Mrs. Church has been shoring her husband's political life the past 18 years. And she says she "loves it."

"I haven't had time to develop any psychiatric problems or work up a nervous breakdown," she said.

Both she and her husband say they have a lot of fun together in campaign circles, meeting people and giving addresses. Sometimes both are speaking before different gatherings on the same day and in the same general area. Sometimes they are in different parts of the country.

This year she started a program she hopes to expand in the next few years. She presented a slide show and narrative about interesting and historical spots in Washington, D. C. to Idaho grade school children. She concentrated on children of the first through sixth grade, showing them what they would visit if accompanying her on a tour of the nation's capital.

"They were most impressed with some of the historical buildings and monuments and asked questions that kept me on my toes. I had to be able to give dates, building heights and other facts about Washington scenes. They were most interested in size of tall buildings and number of rooms in the White House and Pentagon," she said.

VETERAN campaigner, Mrs. Frank (Bethine) Church right, says handshaking is not old hat because you are always shaking new hands. Here she chats with Mildred Halvey, Twin Falls

There are two good reasons for opening the South hand one club rather than one notrump. One is that with 18 high-card points and a five-card suit headed by A-10-9 and five quick tricks, this 18-point hand is too strong. The other is that you should try to avoid notrump openings with a worthless doubleton.

The reason to open it one notrump is that if you do open one club and partner responds one heart or one spade you won't know what to rebid. In any event it doesn't matter this time what you open. You should wind up playing three notrump and get a jack of spades lead.

It doesn't make much difference whether you grab the first spade or duck it. You are

Campaigns in TF

The 1974 campaign is probably just as demanding as was the couple's first campaign 18 years ago. In 1956 Bethine drove a greatly used Kaiser automobile around Idaho while Frank, with a typewriter on his lap, typed out his speech for the next town.

That year Church, at the age of 32, became the youngest U.S. senator in Washington. This year he is the only senator from Idaho in 40 years to head a full Senate Committee. In that 18 years, his wife says, he has built up some important seniority for Idaho. He is in an enviable position when it comes to protecting Idaho water resources and other state benefits.

While her husband was busy in Washington this summer, she got the 1974 campaign started with a number of appearances standing in for the senator. She appeared in Lewiston for the opening of the United Way campaign, received an award for the Parks and Recreation Department and visited a school for the physically handicapped. She attended a rally where she shared the spotlight with Gov. Cecil Andrus.

As a young girl, she was torn between hopes of becoming an attorney or an actress and had she not married an ambitious young politician might have entered the political field herself.

In order to promote their first campaign, they sold their home in Boise.

"We spent half a house on that campaign and I guess if we had lost we would have had to buy a half a house. We have both always felt political candidates should declare their contributions and we have been doing it for 18 years," she said.

Probably the secret of her success in weathering political life is something she gained from her parents' experience.

"Although our elder son, Forrest, was still small, my parents told me to go with Frank and to work with him in the campaign or I would be left out and stand the threat of no longer being an important part of his life. I have always been grateful for that advice," she says.

Forrest Church and his bride, Amy, also joined the campaign this year, visiting 33 of the 44 Idaho counties this summer before returning to college. The younger son, Chase, is attending high school in Boise this year where he is a senior.

"He is the outdoor type and likes living in Idaho much better than Washington so we let him make his own decision," she says.

Bethine's mother still resides in Boise and does some campaigning with other octogenarians.

"I guess you might say Frank has one love affair," his wife says. "He is in love with the senior citizens. Their financial well being and needs are probably closer to him than those of any other group."

Mrs. Church keeps well informed on national issues and matters before the U.S. House and Senate which enables her to answer questions from constituents and to speak with authority when addressing gatherings.

Bad roads up food prices

HOUSE (UPI) — Idaho consumers may have to pay higher food prices because of the state's bad country roads and inadequate bridges, a study by the Road Information Program (TRIP) said today.

The organization said the road situation slowed the flow of farm goods to market in the Gem State.

Frank Gale, Jr., Boise, TRIP spokesman, said an estimated 23 per cent of the state's country roads are considered "intolerable" by federal standards.

This, he said, means 15,500 miles of road needs to be improved because of ruts, extensive patching, lack of paving, narrowness or dangerous curves.

He said the Idaho Department of Highways and local road agencies are making a major effort to upgrade rural roads, but are hampered by a lack of funds.

"We need to fix the roads and bridges, not the blame," Gale said. "Bad budgets are not keeping pace with the combined problems of inflation and rural growth."

The TRIP study covers arterial, collector and local roads, but does not include interstates, park, private or primitive roads.

The study noted that not all the unpaved roads need to be surfaced, but they should be well-maintained to allow free-flowing, safe travel.

TRIP also estimated that 350 bridges on Idaho's federal-aid system should be repaired or replaced because they are deficient.

Gale said, "everytime shoppers pass a supermarket checkout stand, they pay in part for slow, costly farm-to-market trucking."

Hazelton event set Thursday

HAZELTON — A coffee hour will be held from 10 to 11 a.m. Thursday at Valley Cafe for senatorial and legislative candidates. Sen. James Yost will be host.

The Wendell Republican is seeking re-election in the Nov. 5, general election. Gordon Hollifield, R-Jerome, and John Brooks, R-Gooding, seeking the legislative district 21 seat, will also attend.

Sen. Yost said the coffee hour is being held in order to meet and talk with residents of the Eden-Hazelton area.

"We are also going to be available to answer questions that any residents of the area may want to ask," Yost said. He said a coffee hour between 7 and 8 a.m. the same day will also be held at the Manhattan Cafe, Shoshone.

Driver hired at Camas

FAIRFIELD — Camas school trustees have hired a new bus driver for the Manard route.

Mrs. Dixie Choate was approved at the Monday night monthly board meeting to replace Larry Abbott, who has moved away.

It was reported new desks have been purchased for the elementary school and new curtains have been installed in the high school auditorium stage. Trustees inspected the curtains.

Supr. Harold Stroud said several donations were received for the curtains but the special fund did not "anywhere near" cover the amount for the project. The balance was paid for with local school funds.

New source of energy urged

DENVER (UPI) — Edward Teller, father of the hydrogen bomb, says despite the danger of nuclear projects, the nation must continue its efforts to develop alternative energy supplies.

"We can't have delays when we are fighting for our collective lives," Teller said Monday in a speech at the University of Colorado Medical Center. "We are all scared—overly scared—of radiation. If a little is detected, we get nervous."

Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., who joined Teller on the speaker's platform, spoke against future nuclear projects without the consent of voters, an issue that will be listed on the Colorado November election ballot.

Haskell said he was pleased that the issue was being put before the people and felt it was the right of Coloradans to make the decision whether to go ahead with such projects.

"A human being can err, and when a human being errs in a thing like this, it's serious," Haskell said.

News Of Servicemen

JEROME — Navy Aviation Electrician's Mate First Class Rodney K. Pauls Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Pauls, Jerome, has left Alameda, Calif., aboard the nuclear-powered attack aircraft carrier USS Enterprise on a deployment to the Western Pacific.

As a member of Tactical Electronic Warfare Squadron 137, he will participate in training exercises while the Enterprise is operating as a component of the U.S. Seventh Fleet. Pauls is also scheduled to visit several countries in the Far East during the cruise.

A former student of Idaho State University, Pocatello, he joined the Navy in July, 1963.

TWIN FALLS — The U.S. Army is seeking men to serve as telephone installers and linemen with the 58th Signal Battalion, Ft. Lewis, Wash.

Anyone interested in such Army duty should contact the Army recruiters, 112 Second St. E., Twin Falls.

Horoscope

Carroll Righter

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, OCT. 17, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to keep cheerful and not allow yourself the feeling that those you like are not interested in your welfare. They have preoccupation of their own. Investigate whatever you do not understand. Put your talents to use.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle obligations that will require time and attention early in the day. Loved one may be at odds with your wishes, but don't argue.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be clear of a person who is very annoying and could bring you trouble. Do nothing that could ruin your good reputation. Be alert.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle troublesome personal affairs early and they are soon behind you. Take sensible kind of treatments that improve your health.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You will feel much better if you try to please others. A hobby may not go well at first but you can make progress later.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have an opportunity to improve a situation at home and should do that first of all. Put your financial house in order today.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have duties to perform that should be completed now. Don't give in to a temptation to go off on a tangent. Use care in motion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Don't let a financial worry upset you, but do something constructive about it. Study every angle of a new project you have in mind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may think a friend has been taking advantage of you but this is not the case, so show more loyalty. Take health treatments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have assumed some responsibilities that you want to get rid of, but it would be best to carry through with them. Be logical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try not to criticize friends so much. Compliment them for their good points and you get better results. Relax at home tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle a credit matter with dispatch and get right results. Attend the social tonight and show others you are a fine citizen.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study further into a new venture before you attempt to make a go of it, or you could have dire results. Be happy with mate tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have the willpower to achieve success early in life. Be sure to have the finest individuals around to show that progeny will benefit in a constructive way. A true investor for here. This should be encouraged, since it will bring about great success during lifetime. Don't neglect religious training.

MAJOR HOOPLE

Stronger grain prices weaken

DENVER — Reports from the U.S. Department of Agriculture marketing service show grain prices strong during the early part of the current reporting period but dropping off after the announcement of suspension of sales to Russia.

Prices ranged 2 to 7 cents higher on most grains over the previous week with prices fluctuating greatly.

Last Monday futures markets registered limit losses and cash markets at terminal points dropped 50 to 70 cents per bushel as traders took protection. In most areas farm bids were withdrawn. During the remainder of the week prices strengthened. Export demand continued active and growers continued holding the remaining farm inventories in firm hands.

Corn markets registered limit losses Monday and Tuesday and farm bids failed to fully recover to previous week's close.

Slaughter suspended

WILSON, Okla. (UPI)—A group of southern Oklahoma cattlemen called a temporary halt to a planned cattle slaughter Monday night and decided to take their case to Washington instead.

"We've called off everything until we see what develops," Rancher Tommy Ray Jones said. But "if action isn't taken in Washington to help us, then things will get drastic."

Jones said an Oklahoma delegation would join a Texas group in a visit Wednesday with Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., and possibly Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla.

Record spud crop

BOISE (UPI) — A record potato crop of 80,435,000 hundredweight is forecast for Idaho this year by the Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

At last size the crop would be two per cent above 1973, which totaled 78,965,000 hundredweight.

DDT monitors set

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Agriculture Department said today it has launched a monitoring program in three Northwestern states after high DDT levels were detected in some sheep that grazed on sprayed rangeland.

The spraying was conducted last June and July on 42,619 acres of federal, state and private land in Idaho, Oregon and Washington to kill the tussock moth, a tiny pest which can defoliate and destroy entire forests. The use of DDT is prohibited by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in all but a few exceptional situations.

In the case of the rangeland, the Forest Service received special permission from the EPA to spray the lands with DDT to protect valuable timber.

Northwest exports up

PORTLAND (UPI) — Wheat exports from the Northwest for the first three months of the 1974-75 crop year July, August and September were almost 15 million bushels below the export level last year, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reports.

Exports for the three months from the Northwest totaled 63.7 million bushels.

September exports were up slightly from a year ago to 32.4 million bushels, from 29.3 million last year.

USDA officials said Monday the major factor in the three-month decline was the purchase last year by China of 19.4 million bushels of wheat during the quarter. This year China bought no wheat.

Japan traditionally the biggest customer for Northwest wheat, took only 21.3 million bushels during the three-month period this year compared to 25.4 million a year ago.

Windmill silent reminder

SHOSHONE — An old windmill irrigation system northwest of Shoshone is a silent reminder of a bygone farming era.

Earl Vinsant, a former owner of the property on which the windmill and storage tanks stand, said the mill hasn't been used for irrigation purposes for more than 25 years.

Vinsant used the tower to string power lines when electricity was installed to drive the pump. It was used directly beneath the mill. Water from the well is used for irrigation.

Three water tanks were originally installed with the system — one beneath the dairy barn, one in an adjoining rock house and the third beneath the house.

Before electricity came to the Shoshone area during the 1940's, there were many wind-driven irrigation and water systems in use.

Even now, the old windmill — it is minus blades — and the lava rock structure of the water storage shed catch the attention of persons passing along the road.

The windmill blades were removed by a tenant to cut down on noise.

The property on which the windmill and irrigation structures stand is now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Norman.

Charolais event planned

FILER — Plans for an "Awareness Day" and sale Oct. 31 and Nov. 1, at the Filer fairgrounds by the South Central Idaho Charolais Breeders were announced today by John Woody, association president.

Woody, a Filer area breeder, said the program is planned to make the public aware of the Charolais breed of cattle and their advantages, disadvantages and breed potential.

On the first day's program, a representative of the American International Charolais Association will present information on the Herd Improvement Program, breed excellence, hull evaluation, size and carcass data and promotional aids.

Woody said the information should be of benefit to present breeders as well as potential breeders.

A social event will be at the Holiday Inn, Twin Falls, following cattle offered in the sale and the animals will be graded and placed in sale order.

The Nov. 1 "Awareness Sale" will feature 50 head of select female Charolais animals consigned from throughout South Central Idaho. All consignments are screened by a special committee prior to the sale. All cattle sold will be 4 years old or under and offerings include some polled cattle and some bred and some open heifers. There will be an offering of 12 to 15 year of select calves for 4-H and FFA members.

All interested persons are invited to attend, Woody said.
