'There was no deal,' Ford tells panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford testified before a committee of Congress today that "there was no deal" which led him to pardon Richard M. Nixon after assuming the presidency from him.

Ford became the first president in American history to undergo direct questioning from a congressional panel in a two-hour televised appearance before a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee — the panel which had examined his qualifications to become vice president a year ago and which had voted last summer to impeach Nixon.

Speaking forcefully and providing an explanation of the pardon which seemed to satisfy some of the subcommittee members, Ford said he acted as he did for the nation's sake — not for Nixon's.

He said he wanted to end a national division over whether to indict, bring to trial, and punish a former president who already is condemned to suffer long and deeply in the shame and disgrace brought upon the office he held.

Looking directly at Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., the subcommittee's most outspoken critic of the pardon, Ford said: "I want to assure you and members of this subcommittee, members of Congress, and the people that there was no deal, period, under no circumstances."

He disclosed he had discussed the possibility of pardoning Nixon in a meeting with Alexander M. Haig, Nixon's White House chief of staff, eight days before Aug. 9 when Nixon became the first chief executive to resign.

At that meeting, Ford said, Haig disclosed to him "the damaging nature" of a Watergate tape Nixon was under Supreme Court order to surrender. He said Haig raised "a pardon to the President, should he resign" as possible course of action.

But, Ford stressed, he entered into no such agreement. He said he talked it over with his wife, Betty, and with James D. St. Clair, Nixon's Watergate lawyer, and decided it would be imprudent for him even to advise Nixon what to do.

Again and again, Ford stressed the disgrace Nixon had brought upon himself by accepting a pardon. He defended his decision to pardon Nixon within a month of his own assumption of office, arguing it was better for the nation to put behind it the debate over Nixon's guilt or innocence in the Watergate scandal.

Rep. Lawrence J. Hogue, R-Md., whose decision to vote to impeach Nixon marked a turning point in last summer's events, asked Ford if he felt Nixon's acceptance of a pardon was "tantamount to an admission of guilt."

Replying to a question from Rep. Wiley Mayne, R-Iowa, about the timing of the pardon, he said he had given the matter deep thought, that he had considered waiting until after an indictment of Nixon.

today in brief

Happy undergoes breast surgery

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vice presidential designee Nelson A. Rockefeller's wife, Happy, underwent surgery today to have her left breast removed because of cancer discovered last Friday the same day First Lady Betty Ford left a hospital after also undergoing breast removal surgery.

Rockefeller, meeting with reporters as the surgery on his 44-year-old wife progressed, acknowledged the irony that the wives of both himself and the President who nominated him should suffer the same disease.

As the former New York governor spoke, the surgery on his wife progressed a few blocks away at the Memorial Sloan Kettering Institute, a hospital specializing in the treatment of cancer.

Issues denial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Columnist Victor Lasky, author of an unflattering biography of Arthur Goldberg now causing trouble for Nelson Rockefeller's vice presidential nomination, denied Wednesday he knew the book was financed by the Rockefeller family.

"The news came as a surprise to me," Lasky said. Rockefeller's brother Laurence provided $60,000 for the 1970 book during the New York gubernatorial campaign.

Nixon lawyers sue for papers

WASHINGTON (Star-News) — Attorneys for former president Richard M. Nixon today sought a court order requiring implementation of the agreement under which all of Nixon's tapes and documents will be shipped to him in California.

In papers filed in U.S. District Court, the suit seeks a stayed implementation and would not affect the Watergate special prosecutors' access to the Nixon materials for use in the current cover-up trial. In addition, it would not affect any tapes or documents which have been subpoenaed so far.

Ford veto upheld in House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House today upheld President Ford's second veto of a bill that would cut off military aid to Turkey, Dec. 10 and immediately halt shipment of U.S. Karmas to Turkish forces on Cyprus.

The 161-83 House vote to override the veto fell two votes short of the needed two-thirds majority of those voting.

The vote came shortly after Ford, suggesting Congress reconsider American foreign policy "in a constructive and responsible manner," vetoed the move for the second time in a week.

HEW 'hostage'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger today accused Congress of holding critical government funds "hostage" in its fight with President Ford over military aid to Turkey.

But Weinberger said the Department of Health, Education and Welfare will continue nationwide programs even though the agency "technically and actually" ran out of funds two weeks ago.

Boston teens frisked by cops

BOSTON (UPI) — All black and white teenagers entering Hyde Park High School were frisked by police today, officials said they were determined to keep weapons out of the racially troubled school.

TF plan council muzzles director

BY DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City-Country Joint Planning Council met Wednesday night to muzzle the often controversial public statements of its staff director.

The council also warned that unless public participation improves in a series of meetings on county land-use priorities the planning staff will be ordered to prepare a plan without further public input.

In its regular meeting Wednesday, the panel agreed to revitalize a previously ignored "personnel policy" calling for council approval of all press releases, according to Merl Leonard, planning chairman.

The action apparently was aimed at planning

Anti-woman bias remains

BY MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Although their rights under the law are rapidly changing, women still suffer "severe and serious" discrimination, three Idaho lawyers said here Wednesday night.

Speaking to about 35 women at an American Association of University Women sponsored "mini-course", the lawyers said recent laws have granted women equality with men in many areas, though in actuality the equality has not yet been achieved.

Edith Miller Klein, Boise attorney and member of the Idaho Legislature for 12 years, told all the female crowd that "The Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) is really the only way to lay a basic groundwork for eliminating these discriminations."

During her years in the legislature, Mrs. Klein said, she has seen many small laws enacted to improve women's rights, but the effect was only piecemeal.

"We've got to wipe off the laws that discriminate and go ahead from there," she said. "These laws hurt the nations as much as they hurt women."

paying a per-capita assessment. The vote also was to retain the present executive board of county and city officials.

Since the formation of MVAG, four months ago, funding of the association has come under fire from some city officials who felt the original proposal, providing for a 10-cent per capita assessment from both the city and county, was double taxation on the city.

John Van Orman, chairman, reported before the voice vote was taken, that of the 52 written requests sent municipalities which listed six possible alternatives for MVAG. In the eight counties only 18 responded. Of course, seven recommended the counties pay assessment on a per capita basis with city and special purpose districts paying a membership fee which ranged from $10 to $200, depending on population.

Senators said today the county pay the entire assessment and retention of the present board.

Secret reports passed by Dean

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean III testified today that within a month of the Watergate bugging arrests he obtained confidential FBI reports on the status of the investigation and shared them with all five men now on trial for covering up the scandal.

Dean also testified that he had fully briefed defendant John D. Ehrlichman in June of 1972 about who was responsible for the bugging but heard Ehrlichman tell FBI agents a month later that "the only thing he knew about the break in was what he read in the newspapers."

In his second day on the stand, the government's star witness continued to recite the story he first told the nationally televised Senate Watergate hearings 16 months ago.

The prosecution led him chronologically through the period following the June 17, 1972, during arrest and up to his Sept. 15, 1972 meeting with former President Richard Nixon.

Prosecutors were prepared to introduce the White House tape of that meeting — the first tape to be offered in evidence at the cover-up trial of five former Nixon aides. A press was called while ear phones were distributed to the jury and all persons in the courtroom could hear the tape directly.

the files were marked "Property of the FBI - For Internal Use Only."

Earlier, the team of prosecutors said that most prospective jurors thought it was unfair to prosecute Nixon's aides when the former president had been pardoned.

Confirming what had been suspected as the reason for the long delay in finding a jury, chief trial prosecutor James F. Neal indicated possible bias against the government had been a major problem.

"I think the jury is smart enough to know we're not here to try...Mr. Nixon," he said. "It's not unfair to say that we had more people say (during jury selection) that the government was proceeding unfairly because of the pardon than had an opinion on the guilt or innocence of the defendant."

When defense attorneys protested to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica that he had ordered them not to discuss what had gone on in the nearly two weeks of jury selection procedures, the judge agreed.

"I don't think we should say any more about that," said Sirica, cutting Neal off.

Dean testified that beginning in early July of 1972, he obtained reports on the status of the Watergate investigation directly from L. Patrick Gray III, then acting director of the FBI.

Dean said he showed an FBI memorandum to Ehrlichman and defendant John N. Mitchell and H. R. Haldeman and shared "raw FBI files" with defendants Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson.

Under close questioning, he testified that neither Mitchell, Mardian or Parkinson then held any position with the government and that the files were marked "Property of the FBI - For Internal Use Only."

Waste permit rule outlined

BY DAVID BOCKMAN
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Conditions for obtaining irrigation waste water discharge permits were explained at a district meeting of the Idaho Water Users Association here this morning.

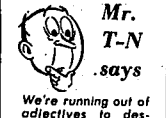

An official of the Environmental Protection Agency outlined provisions under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act to some 30 persons representing four area irrigation districts at the Ponderosa Inn.

In order to obtain the permits water users must determine the quality of the water before and after irrigation use, and by Dec. 31, 1975, irrigators must inventory all significant sources of non-irrigation sources of pollutants in the canals, including industrial, municipal and domestic water discharge.

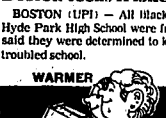

Sheri L. Chapman, Boise, executive director of the Water Users Association, said to comply with these conditions irrigators would have to spend money to monitor waste water discharge of non-irrigation sources, which may violate state laws under which the irrigation companies are authorized.

League discusses TF transportation

TWIN FALLS — The League of Women Voters discussed transportation in Twin Falls city and county at unit meetings Wednesday.

Ed Kihbe, assistant city engineer, and Ann Cover, city councilwoman, presented plans showing the proposed bike trails and the belt route around Twin Falls to league members.

Vote service chairman Sue Paak outlined services for the Nov. 5 general election, including the media coverage of constitutional amendments in conjunction with the league.

Plans were made to staff league offices in the Boy Scout office for two weeks before the election. The office, managed in conjunction with the county clerk's office, will provide registration and voter information for residents at 734-7517.

"I'm definitely in favor of bike trails and public transportation but with extensive and well-considered plans," Kihbe said. "The costs, feasibility and use must be justified."

Mrs. Cover cited an "apparent necessity" to "have to start a bicycle transportation system."

"An obvious place to start is to stripe existing roadways at well-considered locations," she said. There "needs to be students in conjunction with the school system."

The city officials answered questions regarding public education, local costs, policing of bicycles, necessary routes and pros and cons of any public system.

Mrs. Juan Bean, transportation chairman, introduced Terrill Castaneda, who outlined possibilities for public transportation and available funding methods.

The transportation study was recently adopted for local study.

President Ingrid Strupe announced a workshop in litigation for community organizations scheduled for Oct. 23 in Boise.

The workshop is sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Idaho and the League of Women Voters of the U. S., and will feature speakers from Idaho and Washington, D. C.

Center seeks license

TWIN FALLS — Richard Brown, owner and operator of the Mage Valley Living Center, said today he has corrected the alleged violations on which the center's license application was denied and a new application has been submitted.

Brown said he received word in the Wednesday mail of a special hearing officer's decision to uphold the Health and Welfare Department's denial of his license.

"The points on which they denied the license," Brown said, "are those the Health and Welfare Department complained about originally and all have now been corrected."

He said these included sanitation regulation violations such as too many flies and untidy bathrooms.

"We have taken care of the fly problem and we have cleaned all of the bathrooms and they look good," Brown said.

There are three buildings at the living center, he said, in which disturbed adults from 10 years up are given care in a home atmosphere.

Another complaint was lack of adult supervision. There are now three supervisors at the center full time, he said, although one of them is the cook because lack of funds requires multiple services at employees.

"We also have a lock on our pill box," Brown said, referring to the department's report that drugs were kept in an unlocked cabinet giving residents access to them in violation of regulations requiring medication to be secured in a locked cabinet at all times.

Brown said the Health Department has inspected the kitchen and given the center a "grade A" rating.

He said the reapplication route was taken rather than a more costly appeal to district court of the original decision of the Health and Welfare Department to deny the license.

"Now that we have corrected all of the things they found objectionable, I can't see why there may be any alternative but to approve the license," Brown said.

CSI building plans okayed

TWIN FALLS — Plans for the new two-level building at the College of Southern Idaho were recently final approval granted by the state.

"The Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council approved the plans for the $282.5 million project Oct. 9, and set the bid date for Nov. 19."

Bid documents for the project will be available Monday at GTA architects' offices in Billings, Mont., and at 156 Third Street North in Twin Falls, according to CSI president, Dr. James I. Taylor.

Max A. Boessiger, administrator of the Department of Public Works, will open the bids, and if they are within the funds available, the CSI trustees can take action to accept a contract and get construction underway.

Dr. Taylor informed trustees of the progress at their October meeting, held at noon Wednesday at the Holiday Inn.

"We are highly elated by the assurance of the public building council that we can go ahead with our plans," Dr. Taylor said.

In other business, Dr. Taylor announced the completion of the two-level parking lot. The cost originally estimated at $300,000, he said, but the total expense, not counting the CSI employee time invested, was $72,000.

Chairman named

TWIN FALLS — William L. Chumey, incumbent candidate for the second county commission district in Twin Falls county, has announced appointment of Leon Smith, attorney, as his campaign chairman.

Also appointed to the committee are Charles Lamie, Buhl, as west end coordinator, and Ron Taylor, Kimberly, as east end coordinator.

Chumey said he plans to conduct a clean but vigorous campaign emphasizing the accomplishments of the county government during his term of office, the experience he offers the public and the conservative county fiscal policies he has followed.

What happened to Wilbur? That's top question around Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "What happened to Wilbur" is one of Washington's latest gossip subjects.

"Wilbur" is the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., one of the most powerful men in Congress. Some colleagues agree that something did happen to Wilbur in the past two or three weeks, but the time he decided to run for President.

The change, if there was one, became headlines last week. There were jokes about Mills' relationship with a former nightclub dancer. For example: "She was only a stripper from the Silver Slipper, but she had her Ways and Means."

For most of his career in Congress, Mills was in intellectual, staid and mostly serious. He was said to refuse White House invitations so he could stay at home with his wife Polly. His bedside reading was articles on tax law.

Most people thought all Mills had to worry about was how big his re-election margin would be — but that was before a week ago today.

The events are by now well known. About 2 a.m., Oct. 14, police stopped a speeding car with no headlights.

A woman ran into a tidal basin of the Potomac River and was pulled out by police, screaming. One passenger was an intoxicated, scratched and bleeding man who identified himself as Wilbur Mills.

First, Mills' office denied he was present. Two days later, with the congressman still absent, his office issued a written statement saying that it was all a misunderstanding, simply a party of friends.

Polly was not there, it said, because she was home with a broken foot.

The woman, Annabel Battistella, 38, whom Mills called a neighbor in his apartment complex, once worked as a nightclub stripper, billed as "Fannie Foxe, the Argentine Fire Cracker."

Highland reports said Mills was a regular customer at one of the "public places" where he admitted going that night, once spending $1,700 in a single night.

Mills now has to face the voters back in Arkansas who have regularly returned him to Congress for the past 25 years. For the first time, a Republican, 29-year-old Judy Petty, is giving him a serious challenge.

He must campaign now, talk with the people and wonder whether they came to ask his opinion on tax matters or to see how deep the scratches are on his face.

When he will appear, where and how remains a mystery. But he has promised to go home to campaign, and the election is only 3 1/2 weeks away.

"I just can't understand what happened to Wilbur," said one bewildered senior member of his committee.

For most of his career, Mills ran his committee as a benevolent dictator, forcing both lobbyists and legislators to come to him. It was said he could have been Speaker for the asking.

Many of his colleagues say whatever happened to Wilbur happened in 1972. He decided to run for President, got roughly 1 percent of the vote in the primaries, and dropped out before the convention.

Mills had largely shunned publicity before that and was known as one of the most effective legislators — and sober, retiring personages — in several decades.

"Wilbur used to take delight in brushing past cameramen before that race, but when he got the presidential bug he'd say anything," said one committee member.

What's more, the Senate Watergate Committee uncovered charges that for his presidential campaign, Mills accepted $75,000 in illegal contributions and services from Associated Milk Producers, Inc., and Gulf Oil Corp. had illegally contributed $15,000.

After that, Mills was hit with back problems. He was laid up for eight months in Arkansas for treatment which included disc surgery and recuperation. When he returned, both Mills and his committee had changed.

The committee had begun holding open meetings, and its members — none of whom had even been appointed to the committee when Mills became chairman 16 years ago, found they could not act and think on their own.

Mills began to show different moods. On some days he was pensive and appeared not to hear reporters' questions. He would lapse into long diatribes about past occurrences, appearing to shut out those around him.

On other days, he would be decisive, with flashes of what some committee members call, "Wilbur at his best."

Once, the usually serious Mills kept his committee laughing for almost two hours with a series of wry comments about pending amendments.

Mills has been taking painkilling drugs for his back, and some committee members attributed his behavioral changes to that fact.

He stayed in his apartment this week while his soft spoken administrative assistant, Eugene Gross, and his staff of equally soft spoken Southern-bred assistants and secretaries handled the flood of phone calls.

The strain showed. The normally polite Mills staff tried to maintain their composure, and for the most part were successful, but there were the inevitable tears and the inevitable anger they have to go back home to campaign.

Mills still solid around home

KENNETT, Ark. (UPI) — There is a red, white and blue sign just off U.S. 67 on the way into town that proudly proclaims in five-foot letters: "Wilbur Mills Country." And it still is.

"This is where the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee came to manhood, where he played a pretty fair first base for the town baseball team, where at age seven he used to work in his father's general store, still one of the main businesses on First Street.

From here via Harvard law, county judge and election to the 70th and succeeding Congresses in 1938, sprang Wilbur Dalgh Mills, at one point the kindly director of the House generally acknowledged the most powerful man in Congress.

Whatever Wilbur Mills may have been to insiders, he has always been regarded here among the 14 townsmen as a solid citizen who, through the traditional virtues of hard work and clean living, climbed high and made them all proud.

Then last week came the incident in Washington, in the car late at night with the former strip tease dancer, drinking, scratches on the face, broken glasses, the shattering of an image at age 63.

Home folks don't really know what to make of all that. But for the moment, most of them anyway, seem like they'll stick with Wilbur. Blood is far thicker in this end of the world than scotch and water.

It is mid-morning Tuesday, a clear October day except for high, fair weather cirrus clouds scudding above John Howell's Conoco service

How have things been fairing since news of Wilbur came out?

"Everyone's in sort of a state of shock," said the burr-haired man, stocky, with weather-worked face and work-scarred hands. "I think half the people believe it and half of them don't."

What did he believe?

"I wouldn't want to say one way or the other."

Squatting, an older, leaner man, rimless glasses and billed, wool cap, the metal pliers of an artificial arm jutting from his left sleeve, turned slightly and shot a spit of tobacco juice parallel to his left shoulder into a pool of auto grease.

"Politics is nothing but hearsay anyway," he announced. He did not want to discuss the point. It was a statement. "I don't like politics too many lies." Each word pitched higher than the last. He was getting angry. Time for the stranger to leave. Mills gets at least a 1-1 break here, maybe 2-0.

The bank of Kennett is another Mills family business. After proper identification, a reporter is allowed to cash a traveler's check. The work is done by a pleasant woman in blue with neatly coiffured hair.

The stranger's question on Mills catches her off guard. What did she think? "Well, we think he's just a mighty fine person."

Do you believe it all happened, the drinking and so on?

"Nav, no," her voice trails off. She is embarrassed. Another for Mills.

At Don's Cafe out on U.S. 67, Betty the waitress is counting the money after the lunch crowd of truckers has thinned out. The stranger takes a cup of coffee at the empty counter and strikes up a conversation on the Mills incident.

"I've heard some talk," she says guardedly.

Still think you'll vote for him?

"Of course I'm going to vote for him," she said. "What a silly question." "Some people would like you to believe it's worse than it is. People are people."

She shrugged her wide shoulders, the subject dismissed.

Mills carries Don's cafe 1-0. It will take more than the Tidal Basin happening to derail Wilbur Mills in his home town.

The stranger's question on Mills catches her off guard. What did she think? "Well, we think he's just a mighty fine person."

Do you believe it all happened, the drinking and so on?

"Nav, no," her voice trails off. She is embarrassed. Another for Mills.

At Don's Cafe out on U.S. 67, Betty the waitress is counting the money after the lunch crowd of truckers has thinned out. The stranger takes a cup of coffee at the empty counter and strikes up a conversation word pitched higher than the last. He was getting angry. Time for the stranger to leave. Mills gets at least a 1-1 break here, maybe 2-0.

The bank of Kennett is another Mills family business. After proper identification, a reporter is allowed to cash a traveler's check. The work is done by a pleasant woman in blue with neatly coiffured hair.

MEET BOB SMITH

Bob Smith is not a politician. He is a concerned citizen, like you. He has watched our freedom erode with bureaucratic overkill. He has observed a majority of our elected representatives voting as an ultra-liberal urban bloc, and insisting that their power over every American be made complete through a veto-proof Congress. And, like you, he has seen the results of their policies:

- Policies of billions for foreign aid on giveaway terms ... policies of talking a balanced budget while voting billions in deficit spending ... policies of support for Marxist governments which confiscate American investments ... policies of enlisting our own intelligence organization while ignoring the vicious spying apparatus of the Russian K.G.B. ... policies of piling bureaucracy on bureaucracy and increasing government control over every facet of our lives.

- Bob Smith believes in:
- Less government spending to curb rampant inflation
  - Drastic reduction of all foreign aid
  - Less government interference in agriculture, business and labor
  - Multiple use of government lands and sensible use of resources
  - A 12 year limit for U.S. Senators, including Bob Smith

Perhaps one reason you haven't met Bob Smith until recently is that his campaign funds are less than 1/10th of those of the 18-year-incumbent. All but four of Bob's campaign workers are unpaid volunteers. Bob is not campaigning with taxpayer's funds ... directly or indirectly. His supporters know Bob Smith well, and they are paying for this ad so that you may know him better, too.

Bob Smith is running for the U.S. Senate. He was born in Rupert, Idaho; attended the College of Idaho, earned his Master's Degree in Theology from Northwestern and his law degree at the University of Idaho. He studied Chinese at Yale and spent four years as a missionary in Malaysia. Bob is 42, married to the former Lee Mathis of Caldwell, and lives in Nampa where he practices law. He has three children.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Gland problem worrisome

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I became aware of a swelling in the vaginal area about the size of a walnut but when I saw the doctor, within four days, the lump had gone down.

He called it a Bartholin cyst. He said such cysts come and go and it should be removed if it became infected.

Now, a month later, the cyst is back in the same location and again seems tied in with my menstrual period. I don't like to bother my family doctor, but I find this worrisome and a discomfort although not painful.

Should I see a gynecologist, or go back to my G.P., or forget it (or try to)?

Could this cyst be caused by a persistent itching which I have hesitated to get medication for? — M.B.

There is a Bartholin gland on each side of the vaginal opening. Like any gland, if the duct becomes obstructed, it becomes a cyst. In your case the duct evidently clogged itself so the first swelling went down. Then it clogged up again. In all likelihood it will continue this pattern because that's the way cysts often behave.

If the cyst becomes infected an abscess forms and can be painful so you've been fortunate. When such a cyst — which is not uncommon — continues to cause trouble, or if it becomes infected, the whole gland is removed. Otherwise swelling will keep recurring.

I would suggest seeing a gynecologist concerning it. There are various causes of trouble with a Bartholin gland.

Some vaginal infection is a likely cause, however. Or sensitivity to "feminine hygiene" products. Or to dyes in clothing or some such factor. Snuggly-fitting panty hose, blue jeans, slacks or pajamas can be a factor. And sometimes you can't put your finger on the cause of that or any other gland becoming encysted. Glands do it, that's all.

In your case the itching wouldn't be the cause — but whatever is causing the itching may also have affected the gland, so it is why I suggest that you see a gynecologist and see what needs to be done to correct both problems.

No hearings on Rocky until after elections

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Sen. Howard Cannon, chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, said Wednesday despite the president-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller's request for "immediate" hearings on his nomination, he did not plan to resume the hearings until after the November Congressional elections.

About an hour after Cannon

SEN. HOWARD CANNON ... won't call panel announced his decision at a news conference, Rockefeller issued a one-sentence statement from his New York City office: "I regret that I won't have a proper forum for at least another month."

Rockefeller announced Tuesday that he had asked both Cannon and Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, for "immediate" hearings. Because of the continuing leaks concerning his financial affairs, Rockefeller contended, he was "being tried in the press."

Cannon, saying he deeply regretted the leaks, added that he has been "unable" to find that they emanated from his committee. He also said that the committee's investigation "on certain aspects of a recent development" was not complete, and that the expected audit of Rockefeller's tax returns would not be completed until Oct. 22.

"I do not believe," Cannon said, "it would be advisable to convene the committee at the present time." He said that the consensus of the nine-member committee's five Democrats, but not of its four Republicans, was against an immediate resumption of the hearings.

"I intend to reconvene the first week after the election recess," Cannon said. He added that it was possible the committee might begin the hearings on Nov. 13, five days before the Senate is due to return from the election recess.

Similarly, Rodino said he has tentatively scheduled a closed session of the House committee's 20 members for Oct. 30, when the subcommittee charged with reading the Federal Bureau of Investigation files on Rockefeller is scheduled to report.

The House Judiciary Committee has not yet set a date to open its hearings on the nomination.

Cannon said he had spoken with Rockefeller by telephone twice Wednesday, and that the former New York governor was "very disappointed" by the decision. He said that Rockefeller had asked the committee to meet even briefly so that he could "just make a statement" on two issues.

One was his $550,000 gift to Dr. William J. Ruzum, chairman of the New York-New Jersey Port Authority and a Rockefeller family adviser; and the second, Cannon said, was the financing of a derogatory campaign biography of Arthur Goldberg in 1970, when Goldberg opposed Rockefeller in that year's gubernatorial race.

Cannon said he felt it was "not fair to have a statement without questions from committee members."

Under probe

LOAN OF $50,000 by Rockefeller family interests to former New York Republican chairman L. Judson Morhouse is being investigated by the Senate Rules Committee, chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., said today. He said the loan was in addition to an $86,000 gift to Morhouse earlier he had been granted clemency on a state conviction for bribery. (UPI)

CAB aides deny wire on airline

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Officials of the Civil Aeronautics Board, which maintains comprehensive public records of all its cases, said they had no record of a telegram sent by Laurence S. Rockefeller to President Nixon urging approval of Eastern Airline's acquisition of Caribair.

Holand Elliott, former deputy special assistant to President Nixon who handled White House correspondence on the case, said all letters and telegrams addressed to the president about the case were forwarded to the board.

"It was routine," Elliott said.

A major purpose of the public record is to enable all parties to know who is for and against a proposed C.A.B. action, the agency's aides said. The public record also is intended to bring to light any private communications that may bear on the case.

The agency maintains a public, 11-volume record of the acquisition, from proposal to approval, which includes an ostensibly complete record of correspondence addressed to the White House. Letters and telegrams forwarded by Elliott were sent by members of Congress, lawyers, businessmen, Caribbean residents and airline officials and employees.

Calves offered for Honduras aid

CUBA CITY, Wis. (UPI) — President Ford has until tonight to decide whether to accept a gift of 1,000 calves for donation to hurricane-stricken Honduras or see them slaughtered and left to rot this weekend by Wisconsin farmers.

The Wisconsin chapter of the militant National Farmers Organization, which Tuesday slaughtered some 650 calves in protest over low stock prices, offered the calves Wednesday to Ford to ship to Honduras.

The NFO gave Ford, who in a speech Tuesday called the protest slaughter "shocking and wasteful," until tonight to guarantee shipment of the calves.

"If not, the calves are to be shot and buried this weekend as was done with the 650 calves Tuesday," said James Hunte, NFO treasurer.

"NFO members say every day they keep the calves they increase their losses."

The NFO says a packing company will slaughter the 1,000 calves and deliver the 20,000 to 30,000 of meat to Moines, Ill., where Ford will have to take delivery of it.

The NFO was angered by criticism of the slaughter, which they felt was necessary to dramatize their financial condition. Hunte seemed especially nettled at Ford's remarks.

"If the Ford can fly all over the U.S. and campaign, I don't see why he can't fly the cargoes down in Honduras," he said.

Runde said the NFO has already talked to the Honduras embassy in Washington and they thought it was a great idea.

The NFO said that the calves slaughtered Tuesday had been offered to charity but that no group had asked for them before they were shot to death and buried.

Runde said the farmers felt they had no choice but to show the nation how upset they are about livestock prices, which he says are so low farmers are losing money "every time a calf is born."

country during the past 15 years means this is no longer possible.

"The percentage of them that over our capability is becoming alarming," Kelley said.

"There are a tremendous number of visitors, students," Kelley said. "Any one of them could be a spy and I feel many are."

He said they can be performing many functions other than ferreting out classified information, including the "psychological aspects" of the country concerning foreign policy issues.

Asked if he would urge that the number of visitors be decreased, Kelley declined comment.

At one time the housewife was the major buyer of sugar in the United States. Today, the prepared food and beverage industries account for nearly two-thirds of the sugar sold.

US revival necessity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, speaking at the annual Alfred E. Smith memorial dinner, said Wednesday America must revive itself from the after effects of Watergate and Vietnam.

"For more than a decade we have been torn by war and then by constitutional crisis," Kissinger told New York's Roman Catholic and political hierarchy. "But now the war is over and the crisis resolved. It is time we made peace with ourselves."

"The bitterness that characterizes the national debate for most of a decade no longer has reason or place," he said.

"Governments, by their very nature, must make difficult choices and judgments when facts are not clear, when trends are uncertain."

Cutoff deadline set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress has voted to give President Ford until Dec. 10 to seek a Cyprus settlement before cutting off U.S. military aid to Turkey.

But key legislators predicted the President would veto the measure, as he did another on the same subject earlier in the week.

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Wednesday night Ford "hasn't made a decision" to veto the new version, "but he's certainly leaning in that direction."

The new legislation would allow U.S. military assistance to Turkey to continue until Dec. 10, provided none of it goes to Turkey's 40,000 troops on the island of Cyprus.

Nessen said Ford believes that "creating an impossible political situation" and would "undermine" efforts to negotiate a Cyprus peace.

Ford earlier in the week vetoed a resolution passed by the House and Senate which would have immediately halted U.S. military aid to Turkey until Ford certified "substantial progress" had been made toward removal of the Turkish forces on Cyprus.

That provision and the milder version adopted by Congress Wednesday were part of a resolution providing stop-gap funds for several major government agencies, including the departments of Agriculture, Labor, and Health, Education and Welfare until their regular appropriations are passed.

Unless a compromise is reached fairly soon, the agencies will run out of funds and be unable even to meet their payrolls.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said Wednesday they understood Ford would veto the newly adopted measure.

O'Neill said he doubted there were enough votes in the House to override the veto.

Veto falls in Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has joined the House in overriding President Ford's veto of the $7 billion railroad retirement bill, making the bill law and handing the President his first major setback in Congress.

The Senate voted Wednesday 72-10 to kill the veto, a margin 24 more than the necessary two-thirds. Only Sen. William L. Scott, R-Va., voted to sustain the veto.

The House overrode the veto Tuesday on a 360-12 vote, the second highest margin in history. Franklin D. Roosevelt's veto of a GI insurance bill in 1937 was overridden in the House 372-13.

They will restructure the Railroad Retirement System and pump $285 million into it annually for the next 25 years.

Ford had strongly criticized the bill as too expensive in a time of high national inflation.

Area trustee meet tonight

FILER — Plans for the regional school trustee meeting to be held tonight at 8 p.m. in Twin Falls, were announced during the Filer school board meeting.

The trustees from throughout the region will meet at 8 p.m. at Robert Stuart Junior High School in Twin Falls. Lawrence Knigge, Filer school board president, urged members to attend.

In the board meeting Tuesday night, members began plans for including a special education program in the Filer system in the near future. Howard Moon, school counselor and Dr. Fred J. McCabe, Twin Falls psychologist, will meet with the board at the next meeting to discuss special education plans.

Filer superintendent, Ray Baker, announced a parent-teacher conference will be held Nov. 4 and 5 and said schools will be closed on the afternoons of both days. There will be no school Nov. 6 as the Metteli group, Wichita, Kan., will address teachers and school administrators at that time.

Baker said he has contacted the Shoshone Highway District about placing bus stop signs on Highway 93 near the school. He reported on a recent ecology trip taken to the Craters of the Moon and other spots by 21 students, Jerry Kaykendall, instructor, and 10 adults.

The board made the last payment on the five and a half acres which the school purchased from the Peace Lutheran Church. Trustees accepted the bid of Brackett Heating Co. for installing furnaces in the new elementary building.

Principal William Heaps announced the family fun nights, in connection with the community services project, will resume Nov. 5 and also will be held Nov. 12 and Nov. 19.

Smiling thieves get into vault

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — Police looked today for two men who smiled their way into a closely guarded bank vault and made off with $455,000.

"It was like using a fork to break into Fort Knox," an embarrassed Banco di Roma official told newsmen. "Unfortunately it worked."

Police said the two men, apparently experienced gangsters with excellent inside information, walked casually into the bank mingled briefly with the other customers and strolled down the stairs leading to the vault.

Faced with an armored door operated by remote control, the duo flashed dazzling smiles at a television screen. The clerk monitoring the screen, confused by their assurance, opened the door.

Next was another armored door, opened directly from inside.

The two smiled again.

The clerk in charge, only half convinced that they were okay, came out to see what they wanted. A gun jabbed into his ribs provided the answer.

The two men walked into the vault, held up two other clerks, bound and gagged them.

They filled a large leather bag with all the large bills they could, discarding smaller denominations, and pushed a supposedly secret button to open the vault's doors.

Then they walked calmly out of the bank and vanished into the crowd in the street.

Wendell school aides amend budget

WENDELL — School board members here have amended the current year's budget to allow for inclusion of $95,000 in building funds.

The action followed an awarding of bids on sale of the bonds Tuesday night. Supt. Lawrence LaFue said at the time the preliminary budget was prepared the bond issue had not been passed and it was not certain by final budget time if the bonds would sell.

The funds will be budgeted for new building construction including an elementary school addition, and new vocational and physical education buildings.

Board members also heard the annual audit report on the 1973-74 school year from Ronald Rogers, Jerome, CPA. The report was accepted and Rogers was retained for next year's audit.

Les Snyder, district music director, met with the board to discuss new band uniforms for the high school. Members of the band will earn part of the money for the uniform purchase and the district will finance part of the cost.

Board members voted to permit Arlin Dennis, elementary principal to attend the state elementary principals' meeting in Caldwell later this week, and to grant a request from head-teacher Ed Otton of the Junior high school for grading elective subjects on a satisfactory and unsatisfactory basis.

More campaigning needed to pass ERA

(c) Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON - The battle for constitutional recognition of women's rights has ground down to political trench warfare over the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).
 Passed by Congress on March 22, 1972, the ERA is only five states short of ratification by three quarters of the state legislatures. So near and yet so far, observers say.
 "This is because as a key national strategist for passage of the ERA says, women must now take their fight to the conservative, fundamentalist and rural-dominated state legislatures, where there is no substitute for political savvy and hard work."
 "It's a cultural war now, with women campaigning in places where social and religious beliefs often dictate separate rules for men and women," said Mary Brooks, ERA coordinator for the League of Women Voters.
 "In the states where the fight has to be made, the deal goes to the best horse trader," Ms. Brooks said in an interview. "It's no longer a matter of reasonableness, or legal arguments...but of political muscle."

 The ERA campaign has slowed since the first months of success, when the proposed 27th amendment of the constitution picked up endorsements in 21 states in six months.
 Although the ERA has until 1979 to win ratification by the required 38 states, no other constitutional amendment has ever taken so long - including the 19th amendment giving women the vote, ratified in 1920.
 But Ms. Brooks recalled: "The suffragettes had been fighting for 50 years for that amendment, and they had their ratification plan together. There hasn't been that same unity of women of different political persuasions, ages and lifestyles since."
 Women's groups, organized as the ERA Coalition are rallying for next year's campaign under the slogan, "Five in '75." Their arithmetic discounts the states that have voted to rescind ratification, because such an action has never been recognized by the courts.

"The coalition...which includes the LWV, the National Women's Political Caucus and the Federation of Business and Professional Women among many others - may fall short of their goal in 1975, Ms. Brooks said.
 But the long, uphill battle over the past two and a half years, even a setback in 1975, may be a blessing in disguise for the women's movement, said Ms. Brooks.
 "In working in these conservative, religiously fundamentalist states for passage of the ERA, women are building their political skills," she said.
 "Women are beginning to see that it takes a couple of years to get a bill through a state legislature, that it takes persistence," she said. "It's like losing at chess - it just makes you want to try again."
 There are seven states where chances for passage of the ERA appear favorable and where the coalition will concentrate its efforts, Ms. Brooks said.
 These states include Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and North Carolina - which were also singled out by a spokeswoman for the Women's Political Caucus as good prospects. In addition, Ms. Brook said chances are good for ratification in Florida, North Dakota and Oklahoma, Arkansas and Nevada are long shots, she said.

 In the states where the crucial battles will be waged, ERA groups have been working in primary elections to field women candidates and to defeat legislators who oppose the ERA.
SAVING GAS
CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) - The Boron Oil Co. says motorists who buy 1975 model cars may find they get more miles to the gallon of gasoline, but the increase will do little to ease the petroleum shortage.
 Beginning with 1975 models, cars will be equipped with catalytic mufflers rather than current pollution control equipment. The change is expected to increase mileage by as much as 13 per cent.
 However, the oil company said it takes about seven per cent more crude oil to produce the unleaded gasoline.

LEATHER BOOTS: A BRIEFING

By Mary Sue Miller

With stormy weather on the wing, a briefing on boots seems timely. Boots, always basic to winter footwear, are currently in close step with fashion. Boots coordinate smartly with clothes, day and evening. Crafted in leather, a boot is protective, hardy and handsome.

For day wear, styles cover a broad sweep from elegant riding boots to casual western types. Here there is less sole treatment this year, with slightly higher heels and suppler leathers. Special linings offer dry warmth and foot ease. Leather colors favor polished black and burnished browns. This brings us to the occasion-minded boot. You will want a pair in the softest suede or crinkle, rising to the knee and crushed around the ankle. This sort accompanies big skirts, coats and capes.

Boots with slim sleek lines offer distinction to slim-skirted costumes. Colors in both categories draw on shades of copper, wine and dark green. Luxe!

Hovering around the ankles, boots will be partnering pants—longer skirts, too. Makings focus on light-grained textures of the glove variety. Comfort Tips: Be sure boots fit both your feet and legs. When wearing boots all day, dust the feet with talcum in the morning, and give them a foot bath and massage at night.

Museum displays fossils

BY DAVID BOCKMAN
Times News Writer

BURLEY — A rare and valuable collection of fossils gathered on the south bank of the Snake River is now on display at the Cassia County Historical Society's museum.

The display was donated by Howard L. Schwab, Burley, who said the display is worth about $10,000.

The collection boasts a huge mastodon tooth, said by its donor to be the "only one known in existence of this specie."

Schwab said the fossilized tooth is from a species of mastodons "linking ancient mastodons to later one found in the old ice age glaciers found in Alaska."

Schwab says the huge hairy beasts with four tusks roamed this area some two million years ago. The mastodons were the ancestors to present day elephants he said.

While the huge tooth is the most striking feature of the fossil collection, the small delicate bones of rodents, birds, and frogs may be of the most value, according to Schwab, who has been collecting fossils for 30 years.

Schwab has donated much of his collections to universities the universities are mostly interested in the small bones because of their rarity, he said.

The Schwab collection also contains many fossilized bones and a complete skull of the plesiosaurus shoshoneensis girtyi—a small horse like animal, Schwab says is a "link in the evolution of the three toed the modern horse." Schwab is a retired mail carrier, born near Eden. He now lives in Burley.

Fossils displayed at Cassia museum

until two weeks before Halloween.

"I sold out all the Nixon masks I had last week and all the supply houses seem to be out of them, too," Mrs. Penster said.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a male, 29 years old. I served in the Air Force for three years. I worked with security police. I didn't like it, so I told my commander I wanted to change jobs, but he kept putting things off, so I went to the chaplain and told him I was gay and wanted out. I was sent to a psychiatrist. He believed me and got me a lawyer and I got out with an honorable discharge. I've been out for nearly four years. The Army recruiting office called me and asked me if I wanted to join the Army and get into nurse's training. (He said he knew by my record that I had worked in a hospital, which is true.) Naturally, I didn't give him any details about how I got discharged.

He claimed to be gay

I am bored and would like to get back into the Army, but I don't want to be embarrassed. What are my chances for getting in?

NO NAME OR LOCATION PLEASE

DEAR NO: Forget the Army. A caper like yours cost the Air Force time and money. And who knows, you might have another dodge up your sleeve.

DEAR ABBY: I recently hired a woman to work from 8 to 4 five days a week. I pay her a top salary by the hour to do the laundry and general housework.

Fanny (not her real name) arrives at 8:00 and immediately starts to prepare herself a four-course breakfast, which usually consists of fresh fruit, hot cereal, waffles or French toast, bacon and eggs, biscuits and three cups of coffee. I provide all the food, and have never noticed any restrictions on what she may have.

After breakfast, Fanny takes a bath and changes into her uniform. By then it's 9:00. She works until 12 noon, and then prepares herself an ample lunch which she eats while reading a foreign newspaper. This takes her one full hour.

At 1:00 Fanny resumes her work. Promptly at 3:00, she takes another bath and changes into her street clothes. She leaves at 4:00.

Fanny is a good worker. She's honest, clean and dependable. But since she is being paid to work by the hour, I think a lunch break is all she's entitled to, and that she should bathe and breakfast on her own time. She lives less than a 30-minute drive from here.

If you agree with me, please tell me how to tell her. FANNY'S MISSUS

DEAR MISSUS: Tell her in English, unless you can talk better in her language.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 12 years and have three children, 5, 9, and 10.

Pat makes a very good living sailing. He's been with the same company ever since we've been married and has turned down many promotions because he didn't want to travel out of this state.

Now he has been offered what his boss calls "the opportunity of a lifetime"—but it would mean being away from home for two weeks out of every month. He turned it down.

His boss is cool to him, and thinks he's crazy. His parents are barely speaking to us because they think he made a big mistake, but he and I still think he made the right choice.

ABBY, we like money as much as the next person, but we feel that during these years, when our children are growing up, they need a fulltime father, and to us that is more important than anything else.

Are we out of our minds? JANE AND PAT

DEAR JANE: Not in my book. I think you're beautiful.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 59700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

and one club whereupon the eight of spades was thrown from dummy to leave the king and jack of clubs. East, sitting in back of dummy, had to hold a high heart and hence had to unguard his queen of clubs. Unfortunately for poor South, West had discarded the four of spades on the second heart; played the 10 of spades when the suit was next led; discarded the jack of spades and hung on to the nine. South knew that one of East's last two cards was a heart. He finally decided that the other one was the nine of spades so South took the club finesse and went down two tricks.

Shoshone school to get back endowment funds

BY MELBA THORNE
SHOSHONE — Shoshone School district can expect to receive about $1 per student per weighted average daily attendance this year in the "pay back endowment" fund.
 A lawsuit won by the state PTA regarding the school endowment funds resulted in three bills passed to regulate the pay-back.

 Bill 175 ruled that about $15,000,000 would be paid back to schools during the next 40 years or less, and Bill 1234 regulated that one and one-half million would be paid back this year, on the estimated $4 per pupil per weighted average daily attendance basis.
 Shoshone School Board members voted to pay $43 toward the $11,000 attorney fees incurred by the PTA in the suit.

 In other business at the Monday night meeting, the board approved changes in the high school handbook rules, as presented by Principal James Clements and student body president Lee Williams.
 Changes include allowing an enrolled student membership in the Associated Student Body with all voting rights, whether or not they have paid for an activity ticket; prohibiting a student body officer from holding any major and limited to one minor class office; include girls' volleyball in the letters awards program; requiring seniors to take a minimum of four credits per semester whether or not they need that many to graduate; defining truancy and classroom discipline rules, enlarge the athletic code to cover girls and dress standards, library book overdue fees set, and permanent records will now be open to parents and students at all times.

 Graduation requirements to fit the seven-day period were changed, requiring still the 19 credits for the 1974-75 year; 20 credits for seniors graduating in 1976-77, and 21 credits for those graduating in 1978 and thereafter.

 In other business trustees approved five field trips, allowing teachers and students to attend sessions in connection with their work or units... reviewed the hot lunch finances.

Weight ruling ditched

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission has scrapped a proposal designed to stop the grocery industry from putting less food in packages and selling them for the same price.

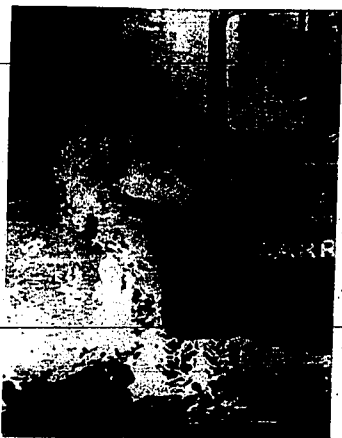

Such hidden price increases, typified by the shrinking candy bar or the ever-lighter loaf of bread, may be costing consumers millions of dollars a year.

But FTC Chairman Lewis A. Edson said Wednesday the agency has been unable to come up with a way to stop the practice of lightening in a manner that would be meaningful to the average shopper.

He said the commission considered but rejected a staff proposal to require food manufacturers to put a label on each package containing less food for the same price as a fuller version one day.

The label would have stated simply that the buyer is now getting less for the same price. The practical effect of that approach would be for the industry to change package sizes every time the content dropped rather than have to notify the buyer they were offering the same package with less in it.

Edson said in an interview the FTC is still worried about the problem but thinks the label approach would not be "all that productive in terms of consumer benefit."

Lorry burn in Belfast

Seoul fire kills 16

SEOUL (UPI) — Sixteen persons died today in an early morning fire that raged through four floors of a 103-room hotel, trapping some of the victims in their rooms and forcing others to plunge seven stories to their deaths.

Police said 30 others were injured in the fire in the New Namsan Hotel.

A police superintendent said the fire, one of the worst ever in South Korea, was sparked by a short circuit in electrical wiring on the fourth floor. The flames sliced through that floor and the three above.

Police said they asked for court warrants to arrest the hotel's owner, manager and chief electrician on charges of causing a serious fire through negligence.

Officials said some of the victims leaped to the concrete below to escape the flames and met instant death. Others died of burns and suffocation, officers said.

Window ledges were covered with broken glass and pools of blood.

Police said four Japanese and a Chinese were among the dead. A Japanese Embassy official said 12 Japanese were injured, four of them seriously.

Ulster-prison riots, violence persist

BELFAST (UPI) — The British Army rushed 800 more troops to Northern Ireland today to try to end an outbreak of prison rioting and violence in the streets in protest against the British policy of detaining suspected Irish Republican Army suspects without trial.

Army sources said an advanced contingent of 100 men arrived in the province during the night and another 500, including 100 demolitions experts, were flying in this afternoon to bring the level of British forces here to 5,000, a full combat division.

Demonstrators protesting the British detention policy took to the streets for the second consecutive day today in continued violence sparked by the burning of Northern Ireland's main Maze Internment camp. There were disturbances in Belfast, Londonderry, Dungannon, Newry and Lurgan.

Belfast echoed with the sound of firing during the night and police reported seven civilians were shot on the city's streets, one seriously. Roving gangs of youths in Londonderry used oil drums and hijacked buses to block traffic. One group barricaded the Craigavon Bridge, which spans the River Foyle and connects the city's two halves, causing rush hour chaos.

Security officials said the riot had been carefully planned and with disturbances at Armagh and in Magilligan prison plus street demonstrations in the cities and towns appeared to be a concerted drive against the internment policy.

Most schools remained closed and few shops were open because so few employees could make their way to work.

The night of rioting at the Maze internment camp led to an uprising by women prisoners in the maximum security Armagh prison but today the rebellious women released the prison warden and three women guards who had been held hostage for 14 hours in an attic.

Prison sources said the woman had received assurances from two priests acting as intermediaries that they would obtain the names of the men injured in rioting Tuesday night and Wednesday morning at Maze prison. Many of the women have relatives interested there.

Settlement or oil, Arabs tell West

By United Press International

Saudi Arabia has warned of a possible new Arab oil embargo against Western nations if the Middle East peace talks fail to reach an acceptable settlement.

Prince Fahd bin Abdel Aziz, Saudi Arabia's interior minister, told the Beirut weekly Al Hawadess Wednesday the Arabs might reinstitute the "oil weapon" used after last year's Middle East war.

"Nothing stands in the way of any Arab in his attempt to reach an acceptable and just solution to the Middle East question and the restoration of the Palestinian people's rights," he said.

The interior minister said the Arabs "will not spare any part of our strength, finances or resources in order to reach that solution."

"The oil card is a serious matter," he said. "It cannot be played unless there is a big reasonable and essential justification. If a solution to the Arabs' main problem is obstructed, the recent past is enough to remind the Arabs and the world of the clear role played by Saudi Arabia in this sphere."

Mexico's national resources minister, Horacio Flores de la Pena, said Wednesday his nation's new petroleum discoveries won't mean lower prices for U.S. buyers.

"Mexico will not sell a single barrel of oil below the price agreed to by Venezuela and other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries," Flores de la Pena said.

Antonio Duvali Jaime, director of the Petroleros Mexicanos state oil monopoly, said Tuesday night Pemex "will seek maximum diversity of buyers and will try to give special attention to the needs of developing countries, above all those in Latin America."

Mexican officials have not confirmed U.S. estimates of the wealth of the new oil fields in Tabasco and Chiapas states, but have confirmed that the deposits are "enormous."

No harm from drilling

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — A two year study of an oil rich area of the Louisiana coast indicates offshore drilling and production have neither harmful nor beneficial effects on the environment.

A group of university-related scientists, working in the so-called "oil patch" in the Gulf of Mexico where drilling began in 1937 said 79 per cent of their investigations demonstrated no dramatic change in the environment.

Arafat's security bolstered

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — U.N. officials are setting up strict superpower-style security for Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat's expected appearance before the General Assembly next month.

Arafat, whose garb for all occasions is brass-studded combat fatigues, Arab headgear, is regarded by diplomats as virtually certain to head the Palestine Liberation Organization delegation taking part in the assembly debate.

Officials said New York police, U.N. guards and federal agents will provide intense security reminiscent of the protection accorded last year to the 1960 appearance of the late Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev.

Security officials saw potential danger for the guerrilla leader in a city where almost 2 million Jews live. Israel has denounced the PLO as a group of "10,000 murderers."

The 45-year-old guerrilla leader, the second non-delegate to appear before the assembly, is posing a quandary for officials arranging protocol and procedures.

Senior aides said protocol was easier for Pope Paul VI's 1965 assembly address. The Vatican has observer status at the United Nations and the pontiff was treated as a head of state.

SALT talks suspended

(New York Times Service) GENEVA — The negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union on a 10-year pact to limit the number of nuclear warheads have been interrupted for one week to permit U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig, the leader of the U.S. delegation, to fly to Washington for consultations.

Johnson's departure today for Washington, with a possible stopover in Brussels to brief the North Atlantic Council, was announced by a U.S. spokesman after a two-hour-and-forty-minute meeting of the Soviet and American delegations Wednesday.

Johnson's return to Washington to report on developments in the arms talks since their resumption Sept. 17 is seen as part of the preparations for Secretary of State Alexander Haig's visit to Moscow next week.

There was no indication from the Soviet delegation that its leader, Vladimir S. Semakhan, would absent himself from Geneva during the short break.

Valley board joins Gem unit

VALLEY SCHOOLS The Valley School board has voted to join the Idaho School Board Association.

Allan Smith, executive secretary for the state association, met with trustees Monday night to outline benefits from membership in the organization.

Supt. Arlyn Boddy said all schools in the district will be dismissed Nov. 7 so the teachers can attend a state Department of Education workshop at Minico High School.

The workshop will be conducted by the Mid-Century Regional Education Laboratory "Humanizing Education" and several phases of education will be studied at the workshop, Boddy said.

Parents-teacher conferences will be scheduled the evening of Nov. 7 from 6-9 p.m., and on Nov. 8 from noon until 5 p.m. Parents are asked to call the superintendent's office at Valley High School to make arrangements for appointments.

The board set May 18 as the date for the 1975 graduation exercises and approved having the baccalaureate and commencement services combined for the first time.

College day will be conducted at Valley High School Oct. 22 for junior and senior students. School will be dismissed at noon for all other students in the district.

Representatives from all of the colleges in Idaho will be on hand to discuss educational opportunities and answer questions concerning their individual schools. Murtough and Hansen junior and senior students will be guests at the college day.

In other action, the board approved sponsoring a series of community education classes at the high school later this fall. Course topics will be selected on the basis of interest expressed.

The board also gave approval for elementary principal Bryce Sorenson to attend the elementary principal conference Oct. 17-18.

Andrus won't rule out possible gas tax hike

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus does not want increases in sales or income taxes but will not rule out the possibility of a hike in gasoline taxes.

"I will not rule it out," he told the Idaho Press Club Wednesday when asked if he would approve an increase in motor fuel taxes if it were determined necessary.

He said he would expect it to be difficult to get any gasoline tax increase through the Legislature next year.

The governor, at the Headliner Luncheon, made a point-by-point rebuttal of a full-page newspaper advertisement by Republican gubernatorial candidate Jack M. Murphy attacking the Andrus administration.

While the total number of employees at the state level has increased in his administration, Andrus said, he has fewer general fund employees than his predecessor in 1976. He said the additional employees were hired with special and federal funds.

He said he did not wish to debate Murphy during the campaign because he has made himself available to people for years, and they rather than his opponent, should be asking questions. He also said it was difficult for him to deviate from a schedule which has been set for many months.

Asked if he would return future general funds surplus to the taxpayers, Andrus said he would have to look at the situation as it arises.

Personally, he said, he would like to put something away during good times to help pay the bills during bad times but noted the State Constitution requires a balanced budget.

On other topics, the governor said:

—He has made no personal political plans beyond 1974.

—President Ford's surcharge on income is too low at the $15,000 level and is directed at the married woman who works to help support her family.

—If returned to office, he will seek conflict of interest legislation for members of the endowment fund investment board not because of their actions but because the present law itself creates the possibility of a conflict of interest.

Private well drilling eyed

BOISE (UPI) — Manpower to police the work is the main problem in allowing inexperienced private citizens to drill water wells on their own property.

In order to protect water resources, B. Keith Higginson says his Idaho water resources inspectors virtually would have to "sit" on each of the wells while the work was performed.

Many of these private drillers would operate as a Kuna man — David Wertz — told the Water Resource Board that he would do it: nights, weekends and holidays.

"We just simply don't have that kind of force," Department director Higginson said Wednesday.

Wertz said he felt that if he complied with state regulations he should be entitled to a permit to drill a well on his property. He said he did not want to spend 30 months working for a licensed well driller to get $1,000 to have a professional drill his well.

Higginson and his legal council told both Wertz and the board that state law requires all drillers to have a license.

He says two classes of licenses could be issued, one for private drillers and one for commercial drillers.

There's still one hitch, however. The 1967 law sets forth some stringent guidelines for the board and the department as to what background a well driller must have. And there's no way to waive the license requirement.

More than one board member suggested that the law was put on the books to help the professional well drillers get business.

Idaho politicians eye many topics

By United Press International — Amtrak, education, diversion of water and inflation, drew the attention of Idaho politicians in campaign comments around the state Wednesday.

Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy, campaigning in Boise, said he had been endorsing measures outlined by President Ford to end inflation both before inflation was recognized as a national problem.

The Republican candidate for governor, said a basic program of reducing spending on both federal and state levels is a logical first step.

In St. Anthony, Democratic congressional candidate Max Hanson said Idaho must be alert to counter plans to divert water to other states.

Democrat John Evans, Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, said the state's tourism and recreation economies would get a boost from restoration of Amtrak.

Evans said the energy conservation makes the need for public transportation greater than ever.

Roy Truitt, Democratic candidate for public instruction superintendent, said the state has one of the best state funding programs for special education. He said a law passed by the last Legislature provided teachers as well as 80 per cent of the other auxiliary personnel.

In Twin Falls, Republican Ezra Moore, campaigning for superintendent of public instruction, said the needs of gifted and handicapped children deserve the same attention as those of other children.

Lead study results reported

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Final results of the lead study on 1,047 residents of Shoshone County found that 41 per cent of the individuals tested had abnormal levels of lead in their bodies.

The results showed 40 persons had lead levels above 80 micrograms of lead per 100 milliliters of blood, indicating unequivocal lead poisoning.

The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., sent a report to the State Health and Welfare Department showing that the lead from Smelterville turned up only two persons of 175 tested who had normal lead levels in their blood.

In the third area tested, ranging up to six miles from the smelter, there were no reports of lead poisoning, but 24.7 per cent of the 190 individuals showed abnormal levels of lead.

Sugar boosts drink prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The USDA says prices for most soft drinks already up 25 per cent or more from last year, are likely to increase again this fall as a result of rising sugar prices.

The soft drink industry uses nearly one fourth of the annual sugar supply, second only to household purchases of packages of sugar at grocery stores.

Sugar prices have not climbed so fast since the 1920s, and soft drinks — which contain 10 to 15 percent sugar — are reflecting that gain.

World sugar production for 1974-75 is projected at 92 million short tons, up 3 per cent from last year, and if projections hold out, production will exceed use by about 2.5 million tons.

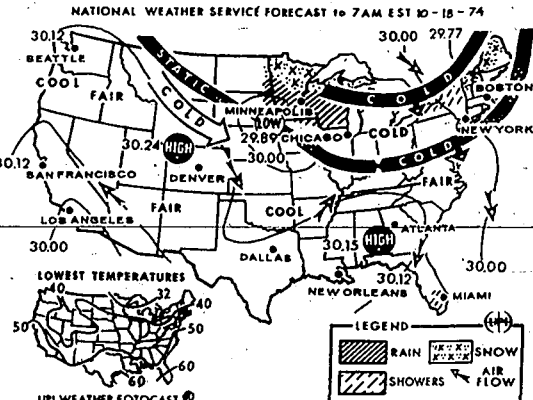

During the first half of 1974, the U. S. imported about 3 million tons of sugar, up 16 per cent from a year earlier.

Traditionally, sugar imports rank second only to green coffee in value, but the high sugar prices this year may reverse that situation.

Meat prices keep rising

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department's chief economist said today the effects of the current feed shortage will be felt in higher retail meat prices through 1976.

Don Paarberg, director of agriculture economics at the department, also said the government intends to focus attention on the failure of retailers to drop their prices in line with what the farmers are receiving.

"We think that the retail prices should reflect the prices the farmers are getting," he said. Paarberg said the current feed shortage will not cause an immediate increase in the price of beef. In the short run, he said, there will be an increased supply of beef and pork as farmers reduce their herds to fill the lower grain supply.

But he predicted that this will be followed in 1975 by a shorter supply of meat and "some price increases."

"We anticipate price increases late into 1975 and even into 1976 resulting from this crop," he said.

Paarberg was interviewed on the CBS Morning News. Asked about farmers who are killing their calves because of the shortage of feed, Paarberg described it only as "a way of getting their problem before the public in a very vivid manner."

Starvation threatens

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — High oil prices have caused a worldwide shortage of high-nitrogen fertilizer that could result in the starvation of one million persons this year, a noted biologist said.

FB launches search

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Farm Bureau is conducting a search for the 1975 Outstanding Young Farmer and Rancher.

The winner of the Twin Falls County contest will be announced Nov. 10, according to Dick Parrott, Twin Falls Farm Bureau president. Richard Kelly, Filer, is county chairman of the Twin Falls contest.

Currently serving as Idaho Outstanding Young Farmer is Bill Loughmiller, a member of the Salmon Tract Community Farm Bureau. He has been active in Farm Bureau and community activities. When selected, he was awarded a plaque and was given a new Chevrolet pickup to use during the year.

The contest is conducted each year among Farm Bureau members, age 30 or less, who are involved in farm operations. Contestants are scored largely on management goals and practices, leadership, and to a lesser extent on their financial statements and size of operation.

Food cost rise seen

SPOKANE, UPI — The cost of food will probably rise another 10 per cent before the year is over, the administrator of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service said.

Kenneth Frick said the cost of pork and chicken should rise because of the scarcity of feed grain, but he said there should be good harvest on wheat products and beef.

He said food costs have already risen 16 per cent during 1974, due largely to the expense of processing the products once they leave the farm. Increased labor costs, he said, was another reason for the rise.

Exploitation of oil 'nationalist'

(C) 1974 New York Times Service
MEXICO CITY — President Luis Echeverría Alvarez of Mexico has affirmed that his country's oil reserves, which are proving larger than previously estimated, would be exploited in a "profoundly nationalist and anti-imperialist" manner.

Reacting to United States press reports that Mexico has discovered oil fields comparable to those of the Persian Gulf, Echeverría said that "this must be confirmed by the technicians, but the prospects are truly favorable."

"The Gulf of Mexico has large oil fields and we hope that we have not found everything and that there is much more," he said. "Oil offers the country a great future."

Asked by a Mexican reporter whether the oil fields could awaken "old desires of conquest," the president said that, as with all the country's riches, "we must be profoundly nationalist and anti-imperialist; we must cultivate the patriotism lost by those with colonial mentalities."

Echeverría's statement has been interpreted by government sources as something of a rebuff to United States press reports suggesting that Mexico would be willing to export its surplus oil entirely to the United States, thus breaking with the Middle East oil cartel.

Although spokesmen for the state oil monopoly, Pemex, have insisted that it is too early to estimate the size of the newly-discovered oil fields in southeast Mexico, an authoritative official said that "the country's oil strategy is not based on massive exports."

"We are not going to follow Venezuela's example of unrestrained exports," the source said. "Venezuela makes us think that we should keep our oil for future generations."

Mexico now sells 60,000 barrels of oil, including 35,000 barrels of crude oil, to the United States every day.

New ordinance losing work for blind masseuse

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Marilyn Kelling has had to overcome many obstacles in her job as a professional masseuse, not the least of which is her blindness.

Miss Kelling, blind since birth 34 years ago, previously had trouble getting work. Prospective employers said she would be too great an insurance risk, or even that they had no room for her German shepherd guide dog.

But she finally found a job at the Downtown YWCA here and for about eight years hasn't had any problems, except a minor one when a customer was allergic to her dog.

Now, however, business is falling off for Miss Kelling because of a city ordinance that prohibits women from giving massages to men, or men giving them to women.

"There was nothing wrong with it," Miss Kelling said. "This was therapeutic massage, that was all I was doing."

Louisiana solon's plane object of longest search

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Two years ago twin jet airplanes fanned across Alaska's huge land mass and thousands of miles of coastline in what would become one of the longest and longest searches in the state's history.

The object of the search was a missing twin-engine plane carrying House majority leader Hale Boggs, St. D. La., and Rep. Nick Begich, 40, D-Alaska. Also on board were Mike Brown, an aide to Alaska's late congressman, and veteran Alaska pilot Don Jaz.

Boggs was in Alaska to campaign for Begich's reelection and they were flying from Anchorage to Juneau for an appearance at a fundraising event.

The search lasted 83 days, covered more than 25,000 square miles and involved more than 6,000 flight hours from military aircraft and civilian volunteer planes.

But it was all in vain. No trace of the orange and white Cessna 410 or its prominent passengers was ever found.

The Air Force pulled out all of the stops when it learned that the powerful Louisiana congressman was missing, although a spokesman at Eisenhower Air Force Base said it did not make any difference who was aboard the plane.

In the course of the search, the military even pulled in a then-secret, high altitude spy plane to photograph the rugged terrain in hopes of finding a clue.

That plane, the 2,000-mile-per-hour SH7, earlier this year made another public appearance in flying the London-to-New York and the London-to-Los Angeles speed record.

The enormous interest in the search even brought Air Force Brig. Gen. Frank Everest, commander of the Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Service, to Alaska to oversee the search mission.

Despite the intensive effort, the search for Boggs and Begich, was placed in the "suspended" classification Nov. 24 with the onset of severe Alaska winter.

Rescue coordination center officials predict that the plane will be found someday, unless it went down in the ocean.

"Every year we have over 400 searches for missing planes and there always are several that we can't find," said Maj. T.L. Spaulder.

Officials point out that the blowing of snow or the shifting of ground cover often will reveal a glint of metal to a plane overhead and a follow-up examination will reveal an old wreck.

During the search for Boggs and Begich the nearly intact wreckage of an old fighter plane that crashed in the early days of World War II was located in the Fairbanks area. The plane crashed while being ferried to Siberia as part of the lend lease program to help the Russians.

TF man given Liberty award

TWIN FALLS — Nolan Victor, Twin Falls, American Party candidate for governor of Idaho has received the Liberty Award presented by the Congress of Freedom, Inc.

Victor has received the award for the past several years in recognition of his efforts on behalf of "God and country."

Others who have received the award include U. S. Rep. Steve Symms and U. S. Rep. John Reardon.

Victor, speaking in a campaign address before the Moscow Chamber of Commerce this week, termed President Ford's proposed 5 per cent surtax "ridiculous" saying it will mean a hardship on the already overtaxed segment of population which carries the main economic burden of maintaining the nation.

Crossing work delayed

SHOSHONE — Although support for funding to improve the three railroad crossings in Shoshone has been re-affirmed, actual work is not expected to begin before next spring, Mayor E. R. Werry said today.

Reason for delay the mayor said, is that the railroad did not include this structure in the budget for 1974 and must wait until next year for the actual work.

Allocation of federal funds to the city for construction of the safety devices at the three railroad crossings is definite, the mayor said.

The federal monies were allocated in the state highway department.

Each city with a safety problem concerning the railroad made applications in that department and, according to Mayor Werry, Shoshone is at the top of the priority list.

The project will include bars and lights at the Highway 97, Apple Street and Grape Street crossings.

The direct administration of the federal funds will be through the highway department. It covers 90 per cent of the crossing devices at the Apple Street, while Union Pacific Railroad will pay the remaining ten per cent.

The railroad will pay total cost of the devices at the Grape Street crossing and the Union Pacific and highway department will jointly pay for the 93 crossing.

Cost to the city will be minimal, about $250 for a preliminary construction plan.

The city and highway department have signed an agreement for the project and will be ready to go when the railroad funds are available.

In the meantime, the mayor urges the public to be cautious at the three crossings, as lack of attention the past few years has caused the loss of several lives and property damage.

Cartoons identify bus

BEMENT, Ill. (UPI) — On the first day of school this year, a young boy rushed from his classroom and ran around looking for his bus, shouting "Where's Yogi Bear?"

"I'm not sure what he meant. I guess he called his bus driver that," said Bement School Superintendent Roy Belcher.

But it gave Belcher an idea. To help the younger children identify their school buses, he had cartoon characters drawn on the bus hoods.

Belcher said the children needed something besides numbers at the top of the bus to help them find their way.

"I got down on my knees and looked up, and from their vantage point, the numbers didn't do much good," he said.

So he enlisted the school's art students to paint Mickey Mouse, Yogi Bear, Big Bird, Dumbo and other cartoon characters on the hoods of Bement's buses.

"The kids love it. But it's against the law.

A few weeks ago, a man from the office of the state superintendent of public instruction came around, and since the cartoon characters and said the cartoons violated state regulations.

A spokesman for Superintendent Michael Bakalis confirmed that the cartoons on the buses were against regulations — but that they were a good idea.

"I'm sure we're not going to be scraping the paint off the buses," the spokesman said.

"We'll probably change the regulation to allow for some sort of standardized identification system, whether its cartoon characters or whatever.

"The purpose of the regulation is to see that nothing interferes with the identification of the school bus, and Lord knows, a little cartoon caricature is not going to interfere."

Everyone pursues thief

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — A 20-year-old purse snatcher got more than he bargained for at a San Jose shopping center.

Police said the man snatched a purse and ran through a vacant lot with a nearby truck in pursuit. The truck knocked him down but he managed to limp away.

A second citizen pulled a gun and tried to stop. Two shots were fired at the thief, but he escaped and hid in a garbage can.

A third passerby opened the garbage can and held a knife at the purse snatcher's throat until police arrived.

"I'm glad you're here," police quoted Jim Colburn, Jr., as saying. "Everybody's trying to kill me."

Police said they recovered $19 and jailed Colburn.

Commercial and recreational fishing contributes at least $600 million annually to the California economy.

Jerome, Buhl meet for SCIC title; Shoshone, Pilots eye playoff spot

Jerome travels to Buhl with a championship at stake while Shoshone invades Glens Ferry with a playoff spot on the line Friday as Magic Valley football winds into the closing scenes of title races.

It's win or tie for Jerome as far as championships go — but that would put the A-2 playoff berth up in the air. Buhl has to win if since a victory would given the Indians a share of the South Central Idaho Conference while a loss would do them to third place. Jerome is 3-0 and Buhl 2-1 going into it.

The prospects for the game are Buhl throwing and Jerome running. The Indians upset the Tigers last year with a strong passing game from all parts of the field.

The Indian running game with sophomore Keith Mwilner coming on strong in replacement of injured Rob Nejezcheta, will be facing the best defense in the league. Buhl speedy sophomore Chris Bell is "iffy" for the game due to an ankle injury that held him out of all but two plays against Wood River.

Jerome's offensive machinery perked up noticeably last week. The Tiger defense has not allowed more than one touchdown to any team except Twin Falls — and those two were scored by the Bruin defense.

At Glens Ferry the host Pilots are the key to the final Little Five Conference standings. Wendell currently leads with a 3-0 record while the Pilots and Shoshone have lost once each.

A Shoshone victory would establish the final playoff teams but not the final standings. Glens Ferry still faces Wendell in the season finale. So the Pilots have to rely only on themselves to get a share of the title and a playoff trip. They'd have to win the last two conference games to do it.

In other SCIC action, the Wood River Wolverines will be at Gooding, a study of opposites. Wood River started out with great hopes, depth and veterans and then ran into problems — like losing three-straight league games.

Gooding, with just about enough players out to conduct a scrimmage, blazed to a five-straight victory crescendo and then lost that string and a chance for a return to a playoff against Jerome last week.

Wendell will step out at league play to test the Wildcats at Filer at 1:30 p.m. Friday. Filer hopes to have big Bruce Lincoln back for this one, both offensively and defensively.

Barley moves from the EIC to the Cross State loop in hosting Mountain Home. The Bobcats will have to contend with the running of Charlie Briggs and the passing of Nick Schell as they try to break out something offensively. Barley has been shut out in its last two games.

Murtaugh can nail down a playoff berth in the middlezone by beating the Pirates at Hagerman. The young Pirates have been up and down more than noticeably this fall, meaning the Red Devils, favored on paper, can't rest that easy.

Haesen will be at Castleford in the other Magic Valley Conference game while Oakley steps out of the league to play at Valley where the Vikings have been snakebit with two last-second losses back-to-back.

In a non-conference eight-man game, The Camas County Mustangs will entertain the winless Bliss Bears.

Minico entertains Borah and Bruins invade Nampa Friday

Minico entertains the probably very unhappy Borah Lions while the Twin Falls Bruins take what they hope is their new act to Nampa Friday night.

Naderites want ban on hunting, fishing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Ralph Nader group Wednesday asked the states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho to ban hunting and fishing in forest lands which were sprayed last summer with DDT.

The health research group, in letters to the game commissioners of the three states, said recent samples of deer showed high concentrations of DDT in fat tissue. It said there is no way of knowing how many animals or fish in the 400,000 acres sprayed with DDT might have been contaminated.

The DDT spraying was permitted to control an outbreak of the tussock moth which had been ravaging most believe the Lions might be smarting a little.

SOPHOMORE BACKFIELD for the Buhl Indians includes quarterback Cary Schmeckpeper, fullback Keith Meltzer and halfback Chris Bell. The youngsters and their teammates will host the Jerome Tigers Friday night with the South Central Idaho Conference title and A-2 playoff berth riding on the outcome.

Therefore, the pressure again is on the Minico defense as Borah has some of the fastest backs in the country, namely senior Mike Chase who is averaging eight yards per carry.

Twin Falls went to its good speed and opened up its offense considerably last week in running Highland right down to the last minute. Even then, a couple of unlikely things prevented the Bruins from keeping a lidle 28-19 lead.

The Bruins will be trying to break a four-game losing streak while Nampa is 0-3 for the year. However, the Bulldogs have played all their games thus far against the teams that rank in the top half of the standings.

Nampa has been showing more proclivity for passing lately and defensively its statistics aren't bad. The Bulldogs had three men throw passes in their last outing and put the ball in the air 21 times against Boise.

Their top runner is Rocky Acree who now has 335 yards for the season and he is second on the team in pass receiving.

Brazil reneges on Pan-Am bid

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Brazil said Wednesday it is requesting the cancellation or a change of site for the 1975 Pan American games, which were scheduled to be held in Sao Paulo next May.

Secretary-General Antonio Reis Carneiro of the Brazilian Olympic Committee announced that "financial and health reasons have forced Brazilian sport authorities to request the International Olympic Committee that this country be allowed to break its commitment to host the Pan American games."

Reis Carneiro said that the president of the Brazilian Olympic Committee, Silvio Magalhães Padilha, was in Vienna to formally present Brazil's request to the IOC, which will in turn submit the request to the Pan American Sports Organization (ODEPA).

In Sao Paulo, the public relations chief of the Pan American Games Organizing Committee, Ubirajara Martins, confirmed for UPI that the games will not be held in Sao Paulo.

The health reasons referred to by Carneiro were in connection with a meningitis epidemic which continues to affect Sao Paulo, where at least 200 new cases are reported each day and where an average of 15 persons die daily of the disease.

As for the financial reasons, sources linked to the organizing committee have said that Brazil did not have the economical means to sponsor the games.

Carneiro said that the Education Minister, Ney Braga, had notified Padilha the government's approval of requesting the suspension of the games or a change in site.

Wood River retriever trial set

Those interested in entering dogs for the trials may call 748-4829. The trial is sponsored by the Wood River Retriever club.

Highway 66 will be posted by the committee to direct spectators and entrants to the trial grounds. Those attending are urged to bring their own lunch.

Judges will be Larry Bergmann of Boise and Walter Candy of Keokuk, Virginia Arnold will serve as marshal, assisted by Sally Horn. Ben Hurlig will be gun captain and Jim Arkell will be game steward.

Nance moves to sixth

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Jim Nance rushed for 104 yards and one touchdown, putting him in sixth place on the all-time pro football rushing list, as the Shreveport Steamer stopped the Philadelphia Bell, 30-25, Wednesday night in a World Football League game played before a crowd of 750.

Nance has now rushed for 6,313 yards in a nine-year pro career. He passed former Dallas Cowboy Don Perkins on his second carry of the game. Nance, who played for Boston and the New York Jets in the AFL and NFL, holds the career rushing record for the American Football League.

Hornets blank Fire

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Don Highsmith ran for two touchdowns Wednesday night to lead the Charlotte Hornets to a 24-0 victory over the Chicago Fire in a World Football League game.

Five plays into the second half, the 200-pound Highsmith thundered in from the 15-yard line, climaxing a 60-yard drive with his second touchdown.

The Hornets added insurance late in the third quarter on a 40-yard field goal by Pete Rajcecki and a fourth quarter touchdown on a two yard run by Ed White.

Memphis downs Blazers

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Tight end Gary Shirk caught one touchdown pass and ran half the length of the football field to set up another score Wednesday night to lead the Memphis Southmen to a 25-15 victory over the Florida Blazers.

With one minute and one second left in the first half, quarterback John Huarte, making his first start after missing three games with a leg injury, threw 11 yards to Shirk in the end zone.

Expos keep Mauch

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gene Mauch, who most recently had been rumored as Walter Alton's eventual successor with the Dodgers, Wednesday was extended as manager by the Montreal Expos through the 1976 season, despite a disappointing fourth place finish in 1974.

Mauch, the only manager the Expos have had since their inception in 1969, has always worked on a two-year contract and according to general manager Jim Fanning, who made the announcement along with club president John Mellore, "we wanted to continue that policy."

No salary terms were revealed.

Veteran retires

DETROIT (UPI) — Ten-year veteran guard Mahdi Abdul-Rahman was cut by the Detroit Pistons Wednesday and immediately announced his tentative retirement from professional basketball.

The 6-foot-3, 185-pound Abdul-Rahman said he was interested in being connected with the new pro basketball league being formed in Europe but had not received a firm offer.

Known as Wali Hazzard during his college days, Abdul-Rahman led UCLA to the first of his string of collegiate championships in the 1963-64 season and played on the Olympic basketball team that won a gold medal in 1964.

LA county snubs Olympics

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The County Board of Supervisors Thursday turned down a request to help pay the costs of sending a Los Angeles delegation to Vienna to bid for the 1980 Olympic Games.

The California Committee for the Olympic Games asked the supervisors for $10,000 to help finance the Oct. 22 trip. The City Council has already appropriated $25,000 for the delegation.

Board Chairman Kenneth Hahn said the money was not appropriated because the county decided not to send a representative along with the delegation.

Thinner, paler Dean recounts cover-up incidents

By JANE DENISON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean III is thinner and paler after his ordeal and his weeks in prison. His story, at the Watergate cover-up is the same, but this time it counts.

Avoiding the eyes of his five former colleagues on trial for conspiracy and looking squarely at the jury, Dean began telling his story Wednesday in a hushed federal court.

The burden of his opening-day testimony was that lead defendants John S. Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman — within days of the June 17, 1972, burgling arrests — were all involved in hushing up the incident.

Also on trial are Robert C. Madigan and Kenneth W. Parkinson, former aides to Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

Dean, now serving a one-to-four-year prison term for his role in the cover-up, testified in the same innumerable baritone that held a television audience of millions enthralled for days during the 1973 Senate Watergate hearings.

Dean testified that:

- He attended meetings in the late winter and early spring of 1972 in Mitchell's Justice Department office, while Mitchell was attorney general, at which a $1 million campaign plan for logging, ransacking, kidnapping and prostitution was discussed. But, Dean said, he didn't want to have "anything to do with it."

- When he returned to the White House from a trip abroad on June 19, 1972, two days after the burgling arrests, he immediately plunged into a series of meetings and phone calls with Haldeman, Ehrlichman and others to find out what had happened and why.
- Bugging mastermind G. Gordon Liddy, at the time counsel to the Nixon campaign, confessed his role as they strolled to the Washington monument on June 18. Liddy's deputy campaign director Job Stuart Magruder for "pushing" the burglary and offering himself as a target for assassination if necessary.
- Magruder complained the same day that Watergate happened because "that damn Liddy screwed everything up."
- Haldeman aide Gordon C. Strachan, who also has been indicted in the cover-up, told him on June 19 that he had "cleaned out" his files on Haldeman's orders to make sure "nothing embarrassing" was left. Dean said Strachan believed the documents destroyed included some fruits of the burgling at Democratic party headquarters.

- Ehrlichman directed him to find out from the Justice Department and the FBI how the investigation was progressing.
- Ehrlichman ordered him to get word to bugging conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr., a White House member of the "plumbers" unit, to "get out of the country" but later rescinded the order.
- He met with Mitchell, Madigan, Magruder and campaign aide Fred LaRue at Mitchell's Watergate apartment the night of June 7 to discuss how to handle the incident.
- He, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mitchell met with then-Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst next day to get a status report of the investigation, but never told Kleindienst what they knew of criminal involvement by the Nixon campaign.
- On Ehrlichman's orders, he had Hunt's safe drilled open but refused Ehrlichman's suggestion that he "deep six" it. Dumped into the Potomac River — a fireproof safe of electronic gear found inside.
- He gave most of the contents of the Hunt safe to the FBI except for some "politically dynamite" documents he gave to then-FBI director L. Patrick Gray III and three Hunt notebooks which he personally destroyed six months later.

- Ehrlichman told him to make sure Gray was "on top of the situation and had it under control" and ordered him to pressure a top CIA official to install the FBI investigation.
- Mitchell suggested June 23 it would be "worthwhile" to have the CIA provide lead money and living expenses for the arrested burglars — a ploy he said was endorsed by Ehrlichman but rejected by the CIA.
- Mitchell also suggested using Herbert W. Kalmbach, then Nixon's personal attorney who was in prison for a Watergate-related crime, to raise funds for the bugging team. He said Kalmbach agreed and went to work on June 29, quickly getting a fat package of cash from former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, then finance chief of the Nixon campaign.
- Magruder cooked up a phony story to explain $200,000 that had been disbursed to Liddy prior to the break-in, and Assistant Attorney General Harry T. Peterson relayed the word that Magruder just made it through the grand jury in August, 1972, "by the skin of his teeth."

Jaworski says evidence will 'convict' Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although he was not charged and has a pardon exempting him from prosecution, former President Nixon will be proved guilty in the Watergate cover-up, retiring Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski said.

Jaworski, who is leaving his post of special Watergate prosecutor next week, said in an interview in Wednesday's Wall Street Journal that in the cover-up trial, "evidence will show that he's guilty, just as much as a guilty plea."

While indicating he had no quarrel with Ford's decision to clear Nixon in advance of any Watergate-connected crimes, Jaworski said acceptance of the pardon was another indication of the former president's guilt.

"A pardon isn't just a beautiful document to frame and hang on the wall," he said.

"You are offered a pardon only because it is believed you can be charged and convicted. You accept it only if you want to be cleared.

Jaworski, who was special prosecutor for 11 months after Nixon had Archibald Cox fired from the job, said, "It's a mistake to believe there would be any more evidence for the public if he had been tried. If he had been pardoned after indictment, the public would have had no new information.

"If he had gone to trial, he could have invoked his Fifth Amendment guarantees against self-incrimination, pleaded guilty, and we wouldn't have learned any new details."

Jaworski's former top assistant, Phillip A. Lacerava, said Wednesday on the NBC Today program the pardon was "fundamentally erroneous and inconsistent with the values that at least, had been working to achieve in the American judicial system."

Few deserters, evaders accept Ford amnesty bid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One month after President Ford announced his amnesty program, only 8 per cent of the eligible deserters and 1 per cent of the draft evaders so far have shown up.

"There's an awful lot of skepticism," a Justice Department official said Wednesday. But he predicted more draft resisters will come in as men see that the offer doesn't have any secret trips.

"An army officer recently said five returning deserters had him they were 'undercover' sent out by groups of resisters in Sweden and Canada to test the fairness of the program, and that they liked it.

However, a group of deserter organizations met in Rome just after Ford announced the amnesty program Sept. 16 and said they would seek to mount a boycott of the offer until the President came up with an unconditional amnesty.

How many men the scouts and boycotters represented could not be determined.

According to the Justice Department, 6,000 draft evaders are eligible but only 66, or 1 per cent, had signed up for the amnesty offer as of Wednesday.

Most have been sent to perform two years of low paid public service, after which charges against them will be dropped.

A few who were described as financial hardship cases have been allowed to work shorter periods — down to 12 months — before their slates are wiped clean.

According to the Pentagon, 783 deserters have come in for the clemency program, or about 8 per cent of the estimated 10,000 Vietnam era deserters eligible.

However, the Pentagon said it has received telephone and written inquiries about the offer from 3,673 men, or more than one-third of the deserters.

How many of those may accept the amnesty offer is anyone's guess.

The third part of the Ford program is the clemency board, which is empowered to wipe clean the slates of the 4,700 civilians—already convicted of draft evasion and an estimated 40,000 veterans given less than honorable discharges during the war.

A spokesman for the board said that to date it has received a mere 350 applications.

He said he thought there were four reasons for the poor response to date:

- "We haven't got our own educational effort geared up yet."
- "Many men want to 'wait and see' if the offer is really what it is supposed to be."
- "A put-off-until-tomorrow attitude means many men won't get around to writing applications until they realize the offer is expiring."
- "Others have gotten satisfactory and well paying jobs since their records and don't see the need to bother with the bureaucracy and the paper work."

The spokesman said the board wanted them to understand that their records might come back to haunt them in future job-seeking if they aren't cleared up now.

Ehrlichman seeks Nixon testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman's lawyers contend that former President Nixon would prove his former No. 2 aide knew nothing of the plot if forced to testify at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Both the prosecution and defense have subpoenaed Nixon, and trial Judge John J. Sirica was to hear their arguments late this afternoon, after the regular court session.

Prosecutor James F. Neal said in a brief filed Wednesday that the government would not object to a court-appointed panel of doctors examining the former President to determine the validity of the claim that he is too ill with plebilitis to travel to Washington.

Ehrlichman's lawyers said in a brief Wednesday that "Mr. Nixon's testimony is absolutely indispensable in this case."

They said Nixon will testify that Ehrlichman had no knowledge of various aspects of the Watergate cover-up, including alleged efforts to use the CIA to block an FBI investigation of the Watergate bugging and discussion of offering executive clemency to the burglars.

Lawyers for Ehrlichman, one of five former Nixon aides on trial, argued Tuesday that Nixon repeatedly lied about Watergate to save himself.

The lawyers asked Sirica either to compel the ailing former president to testify or at least to require that he be questioned under oath at his home in San Clemente, Calif.

Sirica indicated Wednesday he is considering sending three doctors to California to examine Nixon and give their independent opinions on whether he is well enough to travel.

Neal said he would agree to an "independent examination" of Nixon.

"The unprecedented nature of the trial — its singular magnitude and seriousness — make it essential for the court to take every reasonable step to assure itself that Mr. Nixon in fact will be unable to testify..." Neal said.

Dean's Maureen there for testimony rehash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — His wife Maureen was nearby and John W. Dean III spoke in his usual resonant, bass voice. But at least one thing was different. Not once did he say "at that point in time."

Dean led off as the prosecution's first and star witness at the Watergate cover-up trial, now in its 12th day with, as presiding Judge John J. Sirica put it, "everybody getting a little tense."

Dean, now serving a prison term at a Ft. Holahard, Md., federal facility, wore a blue-grey suit, a light blue shirt and a dark blue tie. He slipped from a styrofoam cup.

He spoke with assurance, often looking at the jury of nine women and three men.

His wife, Maureen, was seated in the second row of the courtroom, next to Jill Haldeman, wife of the defendant.

He did not repeat once the "point in time" cliché that became notorious during the 1973 televised Senate Watergate hearings.

And he did not make the mistake he made during those hearings when asked where he had met with Herbert W. Kalmbach, former President Richard M. Nixon's one-time personal lawyer and fundraiser.

"The Stalter-Hilton Hotel," Dean said confidently. During the Senate hearings, he had said "the Mayflower Hotel." With a reputation for remembering the minutiae of detail, Dean had appeared flustered when Sen. Edward W. Gurney, R-Fla., challenged him as to the accuracy of that testimony.

Later during the hearings, however, he recalled triumphantly that the Stalter-Hilton had a enfeseshop named the Mayflower and it was there he met Kalmbach.

Lawyers for both sides tangled several times during the first long day of testimony.

"I'm just trying to get out of here by Christmas," William Hundley, Mitchell's attorney said during one legal discussion.

"I object to that," shot back chief trial prosecutor James F. Neal. "I am too."

Sirica told them to settle down, adding "I know you're under tension."

On camera again

Ford stumps to stop 'veto-proof Congress'

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — President Ford used his prestige Wednesday to raise money for Republican candidates in four Midwestern states, some of whom face tough races.

Aides said Ford saw 40,000 people in two days of campaigning and raised nearly half a million dollars for Republican candidates.

While he admitted the polls were against many GOP candidates in major races, Ford was optimistic, fighting against a "veto-proof Congress" filled with Democrats.

If that happens, he said, "in effect, you will have a legislative dictatorship."

Wednesday began with a reception in a Kansas City, Mo. hotel room. About 50 persons paid $100 to have a cup of coffee with Ford and shake his hand.

The money would go to former Rep. Thomas Curtis, a Republican seeking to unseat Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo.

Curtis lost in 1966 and is not given more chance this year. Ford said he "is the kind of senator I would want to vote for if I lived in Missouri."

Breakfast was with about 250 people who paid $100. The President conceded that Nov. 5 "will be tough election and some people say that the odds are against our candidates this year."

Urging GOP members to work, Ford said sizeable Democratic gains in Congress might bring "the possibility of one-party government in the United States."

Then, the President flew to Sioux Falls, S.D. He had his picture taken with about a dozen people who had each contributed at least $1,000.

Ford praised Sen. Thomas H. D'Amico's "tough fight," the President said of the former Vietnam POW running against Sen. George S. McGovern.

At Lincoln, Neb., Ford was greeted by protesters, many from the nearby University of Nebraska, who chanted to the beat of a tom-tom: "Vietnam, Wounded Knee, Nixon ends no amnesty."

They did not face Ford, who delivered his speech praising the GOP candidates. Little mention was made of Richard Marvel, who is trying to unseat Democratic Gov. J.J. Egan.

The crowds were huge and friendly in Indianapolis. Ford's next stop, where there was a $500-per-couple reception and a speech to over 5,000 persons who paid $100 per couple for dinner.

The President boosted Richard Lugar, regarded the underdog in his race against Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind.

"He acknowledged that the Indianapolis mayor "has a tough fight on his hands" against "a lot of political muscle and out-of-state money."

This gave Ford his starting point for the theme of his trip: a strong two-party to "preserve a nation's freedoms and deal with corruption. We need the built-in watchdog of a strong opposition party and an aware public."

An airport should be circular. With its never-ending runways banked like the turns of an auto racetrack. Take-off pilots could make as many loops as necessary to get into the air safely. Landing pilots would never overshoot. And during either the take-off or the landing, pilots could head their planes into any selected directions. Most crashes occur right after take-off and landings. Theory is the circular airport would cut such, dramatically. Or so says an aviation expert.

The 1974 Audi: the luxury car with the luxury of 24 m.p.g.

You can panic and put your luxury car out to pasture during the gasoline crisis. Or you can ride it out in luxury in an Audi. Really ride it out. The Audi 100LS gives you 24 miles of ride to the gallon. Twenty-four luxurious Audi miles. In an interior so lush you can hardly tell it from a Mercedes 260. With so much legroom and headroom you'd think you were in a Rolls-Royce Silver Shadow. And the kind of smooth, controlled ride only independent front suspension can give you (ask an Aston Martin driver about that). Combined with the traction and stability of front wheel drive. The kind you'd find in a Cadillac Eldorado. So, you see? You still have the luxury of choosing luxury.

Audi 100LS

A lot of cars for the money. A lot of miles to the gallon.
