

Moslems riot against U.S. in Bangkok, Manila, Kuwait

By United Press International

In Thailand, bombs rocked the U.S. Embassy Friday and mobs of angry Moslems were beaten back from the embassies in Kuwait and the Philippines in another wave of anti-American violence sparked by the worsening crisis in Iran.

In Moscow, a group of Iranian students also planned to march on the U.S. Embassy but Soviet authorities doubled security around the yellow-stucco compound and "neutralized" the protest, a diplomatic source said.

Three Moslem demonstrators were reportedly injured in the Philippines but there were no American casualties in any of the protests, staged on the 10th day of Moharram, one of the holiest days of the Moslem Shiite calendar.

As the siege at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran dragged into its 37th day, the anti-American sentiment stirred by Iran's Islamic leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini spread to three countries largely untouched by the crisis until now—Thailand, Kuwait and the Philippines.

In India, the scene of violent anti-American rioting two weeks ago, some 50 Iranian students burned an effigy of President Carter in front of the U.S. Consulate in Calcutta. The students were dispersed by police.

In Bangkok, between two and four bombs exploded inside the compound of the American Embassy at dusk, breaking the retaining wall of a fish pond but causing no injuries, officials said.

Three Americans to be freed

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Foreign Minister Sadeq Qotbzadeh declared there is no hope for negotiation at this stage, as announced Friday, Iran would boycott the U.N. Security Council session on the U.S.-Iran crisis.

Qotbzadeh also announced U.S. Chief of Mission and Charge d'Affaires Bruce Laingen, and two other Americans held in the Foreign Ministry were now "free to leave" because they were less "important" than the 50 American hostages seized by Moslem militants occupying the U.S. Embassy.

However, it was uncertain whether the three would leave soon because Qotbzadeh said he could not guarantee their safe conduct to the airport.

A spokesman for the militants said he would "neither confirm nor deny" rumors that some or all of the 50 American hostages, in their 37th day of captivity, had been transferred from the body-trapped Embassy compound to a secret detention site.

The spokesman flatly rejected suggestions that the hostages had been "mistreated or anything has been done to them."

The U.N. Security Council Friday decided to cogere a formal debate on the Iranian crisis this evening despite Iran's announcement that it will boycott the session.

The American officials held at the Foreign Ministry in Tehran are expected to leave Iran soon, the Scripps League Newspapers reported Friday.

A story by Lee Roderick, Washington bureau chief of the service said the officials are apparently scheduled to be released.

Roderick accompanied Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, to Tehran to visit the three officials on Thanksgiving.

In Washington, the State Department said Friday it still expects Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi to leave America when he is well enough, despite Mexico's sudden decision to bar him from returning to his exile home there.

Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Mexico gave the United States very little warning before announcing Thursday night that it would no longer welcome the deposed Iranian monarch.

"We had very little lead time," Carter said.

He did not criticize the Mexican government's decision, either outright or subtly, but said Mexican officials had given the United States "very recent confidence" that the shah would be allowed to return to Mexico when his medical treatment in New York ended.

As for the shah's future, Carter said the administration's policy is unchanged — he is expected to leave the United States when able to travel.

The shah's doctors have said he can go any time now and he had planned to return to Mexico by the weekend. Despite the fact he cannot go to Mexico, Carter said, "The shah has said that he wishes to leave the country and so we have no reason to doubt that."

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska, the assistant Republican leader, said the Mexican decision was "an astounding reaction to fear."

Stevens said the quick reversal of plans in Mexico City demonstrates the consequences of the world community tolerating Iran while it holds American diplomats hostage.

Stevens said the Mexican government's opposition by some other means than every mother having to send her sons off to a foreign land.

In an interview with the Times News, Hansen said an investigation would not be held with the purpose of freeing the hostages, but he would not rule out holding the hearings before the hostages are released.

"It should have nothing to do with the hostages. We should be pursuing truth and justice in this country for the sake of truth and justice," Hansen said. "It has a political effect to help the hostages, that's fine. But I don't think we should be holding hearings in Congress if all we're doing is making a deal with some other country."

That, Hansen added, is what the Iranians are looking for — an opportunity to rationalize some concession on the part of the U.S., he said.

"Sometimes people need to save a little face and say, well, we're getting what we want in some other way," Hansen said.

"The trip 'brought criticism' from House Speaker Carl Albert, the White House and others that Iran might mistake Hansen for an official U.S. spokesman," he said.

Hansen says he tried to avoid Mideast war

By MARY FRILL HAASE

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Rep. George Hansen Friday defended his trip to Iran, saying he attempted to avoid war.

Hansen, speaking to the Idaho House Council, also charged U.S. foreign policy has been insensitive to the realities in Iran and the Moslem world.

"I went to Iran to do what I could to keep from getting into a military action in that area over something so trivial in a way as whether we treat a former ruler of that country in the United States or not," he said.

"And that's what it boils down to. It wasn't a Pearl Harbor. It wasn't an invasion. It wasn't anything else. It was the fact that these people had resented so deeply for 27 years the fact that the United States put the shah in and for our own convenience, I suppose, to help us deal for our oil, for whatever else, helped prop him up."

Hansen said the invasion takeover was a reflection of an Iranian fear that the U.S. might help reelect the shah.

"Now maybe it isn't realistic, but there's that fear. That's why they reacted so violently," he said.

Hansen added the U.S. was aware of the Iranian position three months ago. But the government was insensitive to the Iranian situation, he said. According to secret documents the U.S. in early August determined allowing the shah to enter the country would trigger an embassy takeover, he said.

"I'm not sure why they're bringing me into the United States when we knew we were going to subject ourselves to that kind of threat in that area," he said.

Hansen charged the shah could have received adequate medical care in Mexico or Canada, adding one of the former ruler's doctors resides in Canada.

"That's why I think it's time we took a good look at what our foreign policy is doing," he said. Hansen has called for congressional investigations of the shah.

"Now maybe we can't satisfy them. But maybe we better take one good look at ourselves before we start marching off to war and see if we can save this situation by some other means than every mother having to send her sons off to a foreign land."

In an interview with the Times News, Hansen said an investigation would not be held with the purpose of freeing the hostages, but he would not rule out holding the hearings before the hostages are released.

"It should have nothing to do with the hostages. We should be pursuing truth and justice in this country for the sake of truth and justice," Hansen said. "It has a political effect to help the hostages, that's fine. But I don't think we should be holding hearings in Congress if all we're doing is making a deal with some other country."

"The trip 'brought criticism' from House Speaker Carl Albert, the White House and others that Iran might mistake Hansen for an official U.S. spokesman," he said.

Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, Friday in Twin Falls made his first speech in Idaho since returning from his controversial trip to Iran.

Judges back canceling of U.S.-Taiwan treaty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal appeals court Friday ruled that President Carter had authority under the Constitution to end America's defense treaty with Taiwan on his own — without congressional approval.

The 6-1 decision reversed a ruling issued Oct. 17 by U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch, who said the president needed support of two-thirds of the Senate to terminate the 1954 mutual defense pact with Taiwan as scheduled on Jan. 1, 1980. That ruling threatened to disrupt newly opened negotiations between the United States and China, because the Peking government insisted the United States drop recognition of Taiwan.

The Constitution requires a president to enter into a treaty with a foreign country "in first advice and consent of the Senate — but it does not address the issue of treaty termination."

Gasch's ruling had barred Secretary of State Cyrus Vance from ending the 1954 mutual defense pact with Taiwan as scheduled on Jan. 1, 1980. That ruling threatened to disrupt newly opened negotiations between the United States and China, because the Peking government insisted the United States drop recognition of Taiwan.

The court's decision was a "major victory" for the administration, said a State Department spokesman. It means the president can now terminate the treaty in accordance with his terms.

"It is our view that he is, and that the limitations which the district court purported to place on his action in this regard have no foundation in the Constitution."

Jones to begin campaign for Hansen's seat

TWIN FALLS — Jerome attorney Jim Jones will announce his candidacy for the 2nd District Congress seat now held by Rep. George Hansen on Tuesday, Dec. 4.

Jones will make his announcement at 11:30 p.m. at the Twin Falls airport as part of a four-city flying tour. Jones will make similar announcements at airports in Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls.

The Jerome Republican, who had planned an announcement for January, said he moved up his formal candidacy for two reasons: The first is the date of the Republican primary. Last year's Idaho Legislature moved the state primary election from August to May. Jones will challenge Hansen on May 27, an election less than six months away.

Jones also advanced his formal candidacy because of Hansen's recent trip to Iran. Jones has called that trip "irresponsible" and said it was "appeasement" to the terrorists now holding Americans hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

"In 1976, Jones unsuccessfully challenged Hansen for the congressional seat. That year he received slightly less than 45 percent of the votes cast in the Republican primary. The public is invited to attend his campaign announcement, Jones said.

Thursday, Jones said Hansen's trip had undermined the nation's efforts. "Before he went over there, Americans were united in the determination that we demanded the safe release of the hostages, that we intended to show national resolve and backbone, and that we would not deal with criminals and extortionists. His trip changed that," Jones said.

"When George arrived on the scene, he made statements to the effect that some of the demands of the Iranians were reasonable and justified. This concession lent legitimacy to their demands and a certain amount of dignity to their cause."

Idaho officials each have ideas for new laws

BY DAVID MORRISSEY Times-News writer

BOISE — The Idaho Legislature convenes on Jan. 7.

By Jan. 8, most of Idaho's elected officials will have already contacted lawmakers about proposed legislation.

Every elected official will propose at least one addition or subtraction from Idaho's code books. Some will recommend amendments to the state constitution.

In addition to legislation suggested by Gov. John Evans, measures will be drafted by Lt. Gov. Phil Batt, attorney General David Leroy, State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon, Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa, State Auditor Joe Williams and Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans.

The governor, Moon and Williams are Democrats. Batt, Leroy, Cenarrusa and Jerry Evans are Republicans.

Batt will propose the Legislature endorse a constitutional amendment requiring the governor and lieutenant governor be elected from the same party. The procedure would be the same as that now used for election of president and vice president, Batt said.

Proposed constitutional amendments must be approved by a two-thirds vote of each house of the Legislature. They are then placed on the next general election ballot, where voters receive the support of a simple majority of voters.

Batt argues that having a lieutenant governor of the same party as the governor would help the two officeholders to work more closely together.

Batt will also propose a constitutional amendment limiting both the governor and the lieutenant governor to two four-year terms.

Idaho's Attorney General will suggest a bill affecting his office, in addition to researching legislation at the request of the Legislature.

Among the major bills in that packet are:

- A legal services consolidation bill. This measure would give the attorney general authority to hire and fire state attorneys working for the state. A similar measure sparked a sharp partisan battle last year.
- A comprehensive theft statute. This measure provides for a substantial redefinition of theft, better clarifying and simplifying existing statutes.
- An administrative subpoena bill. This would increase the subpoena powers of the attorney general.
- A revision in Idaho's insanity defense law. This bill clarifies and updates state statutes covering the insanity defense.

Secretary of State Cenarrusa will suggest only minor modifications in election laws and corporation laws, said Chief Deputy Secretary of State Ben Davis. He will watch closely a proposal to allow amendments to the constitution through the initiative process. In the past, initiatives have been used only to enact legislation.

Some of the other procedure, Ysursa said, but they require more signatures on the initiative petition when a constitutional amendment is proposed. The constitution is a higher document than merely a law, Ysursa said, and should be "more difficult to amend."

Superintendent of Public Instruction Evans will suggest an increase in driver education reimbursement to local school districts, as well as other technical changes in Idaho's education laws, said Deputy State Superintendent Helen Werner.

Minor "housekeeping" bills will also be the sole legislative suggestions from Attorney General David Leroy, State Auditor Chester Graham, Williams will suggest changes in the method some records are maintained and changes to simplify accounting practices, Graham said.

State Treasurer Moon will suggest legislation in two major areas. The first provides for state replacement of certain municipal tax levies. The second creates additional protection for public funds.

Hecklers shout at parading Moslem students who chanted 'long live Khomeini'

Iranian demonstration accompanied by hecklers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 350 Moslem-marched chanting "Long live Khomeini" through Washington Friday, accompanied by almost as many young Americans heckling them.

Two black students demonstrating with the Moslems were arrested and thrown into a cage to protect the protesters at the end of the march, there were no reports of injuries.

The students marched the mile from Dupont Circle to the State Department and back again, while a lunchtime crowd of onlookers shouted "Deport," waved American flags and held signs which said "Nuke Iran" and "Free Our People."

There were about 50 hecklers when the march began, but the counter-demonstration swelled to about the same size as the original one by the end.

Plane crashed head-on

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (UPI) — The pilot of an Air New Zealand DC-10 that slammed into the side of an Antarctic volcano apparently took no evasive action to avoid the crash that killed 257 people, a New Zealand Air Force crew said Friday.

The crew members of a Royal New Zealand Air Force Hercules transport that surveyed the crash site on Mount Erebus said the pilot of the DC-10 probably did not see the mountain before it crashed on Wednesday in the fourth worst crash in aviation history.

All aboard — crew members and tourists on a 5,000-mile sightseeing trip of the Antarctic — were killed.

Sugar agreement ratified

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate overwhelmingly ratified the International Sugar Agreement Friday, ending a two-year stalemate triggered by demands for higher domestic prices.

The vote was 80-11. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, voted for ratification, while Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, voted against.

The new five-year agreement is designed to avoid the problems created by excess supplies of sugar and to provide adequate supplies in the future.

It does so by stabilizing world prices between 11 and 21 cents a pound — defending the minimum through a worldwide system of export quotas and freeing sugar from a reserve when prices approach the 21-cent level.

Steel workers protest

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Angry steelworkers, chanting "People first, profits later," picketed U.S. Steel Corp. headquarters Friday to protest plant closings and stormed into the lobby of the skyscraper.

About 350 workers, their wives and children, marched in freezing wind and snow on the sidewalk outside the building in downtown Pittsburgh. Some of the demonstrators invaded the lower levels of the building.

All elevators and escalators were shut down in the 64-story building and the protesters did not get up to the executive offices upstairs.

Cantrell found innocent

PINEDALE, Wyo. (UPI) — A six-man, six-woman jury Friday declared Ed Cantrell, former head of the Rock Springs Wyo., police department, innocent of first-degree murder in the July 15, 1978, shooting death of undercover agent Michael Rosa.

Cantrell smiled as the verdict was read and gave the jury a short military salute, which was returned by one member of the panel.

Last Marx brother dies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Zippo Marx, the last surviving member of the famous Marx Brothers comedy team, died early today at Eisenhower Medical Center. He was 78.

A hospital spokeswoman said Marx died of lung cancer shortly after midnight. He was admitted to the hospital Nov. 25.

Memorial services were scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at Temple Israhel in Palm Springs. His body was interred cremated and the family has requested no flowers, a spokesman said.

Slain Marine buried

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — America's buried Marine Cpl. Steven Crowley with full military honors Friday under an oak tree on a sun-drenched hillside in Arlington National Cemetery. President Carter led the mourners.

Crowley died in the line of duty Nov. 21 when a mob of angry Moslems stormed the U.S. Embassy in Islamabad, Pakistan.

Mass murderer sentenced

WATERBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Lorne Acquin, an unemployed roofer who still claims to be innocent, was sentenced Friday to 105 years in life in prison for slaying his foster brother's wife and eight children in Connecticut's largest mass murder.

Chief Assistant State's Attorney Walter Scanlon had sought a 225-year life sentence, which would have meant Acquin would not have been eligible for parole during his lifetime.

Airmen given up for lost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. carrier Kitty Hawk Friday abandoned its search for an electronic aircraft and four-man crew and continued westward across the Indian Ocean toward the Arabian Sea.

Fantom officials declined to say exactly where the Kitty Hawk was or where it was headed. But the 80,000-ton carrier last week hurriedly left the Philippines with a cruiser-destroyer-frigate escort in clear connection with the Iranian crisis and entered the Indian Ocean over the weekend.

Banks drop prime rates

NEW YORK (UPI) — Major banks led by No. 2 Citibank Friday cut their prime lending rates a quarter point to 12 1/2 percent, the first industry-wide reduction in the key lending rate from the historic high of 13 3/4 percent.

The retreat broke this year's continuous escalation in bank lending rates since the summer when the prime rate stood at 11 1/2 percent.

Hansen denies hurting policy

representative. Also, critics charged Hansen was meddling in sensitive foreign policy.

"That's absurd," Hansen said. "I think we should present a unified front. But congressmen always have something to say about foreign policy. If you don't think so, that blow-up about Russian troops in Cuba not long ago was certainly an illustration of that."

Hansen said the trip was a success and said he would not rule out a second trip to Iran if the rest of the give the hostages more relief.

Hansen said his trip accomplished what no other American was able to do—get into the country, meet with Iranian officials, and see the hostages.

Those were "major accomplishments," Hansen said. "I think we were able to bring attention to the issue there on such a world-wide basis. I think it gave the United States a tremendous amount of sympathy among all the nations of the world."

But Hansen has been charged with undermining State Department and Administration efforts—by possibly giving the Iranians an impression of divided American policy.

Hansen denied that, adding that he did not clear his trip with the State Department was essential to ongoing Iran.

But without checking with the State Department, he has been charged

Hansen could not have been aware of the impact his trip may have had on its efforts.

"Oh, I'm not that naïve. I've been around," Hansen said. "They had the State Department up on Capitol Hill giving us all kinds of briefings. I knew what they were doing and basically, I knew what they weren't doing."

Hansen ended his contacts with the Iranian embassy in Washington, D.C., confirmed that.

"There was actually a vacuum over there that someone had to fill," he said.

The possibility of instituting a deadline after which, if the hostages are not released, military action is used should not be ruled out, Hansen said. Such a proposal has been recommended by some congressmen.

"I think it has some merit. I haven't read it close," Hansen said.

Today's weather

Arctic air still dominates southern Idaho

Magie Valley, Burley-Rupert, and Gooding-Jerome areas: Mostly fair today. Patches of late night and morning fog or low clouds. Increasing clouds Sunday. Lows 5 to 15 tonight. Highs mostly in the 20s today and 20s to 30s Sunday.

Halle, Camas Prairie, and Wood River Valley: Mostly fair through today. Patches of night and morning valley fog. Increasing clouds Sunday. Lows 5 to 10 to 15 below tonight. Highs 15 to 20 today and in the 20s Sunday.

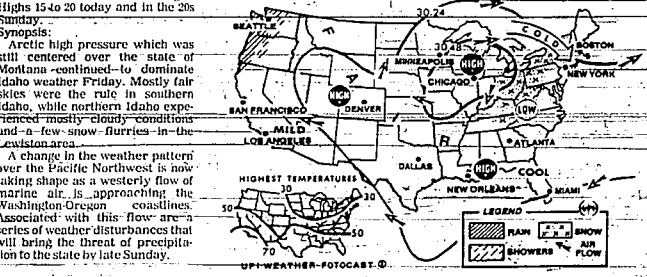

Arctic high pressure which was still centered over the state of Montana continued to dominate Idaho weather Friday. Mostly fair skies were the rule in southern Idaho, while northern Idaho experienced mostly cloudy conditions and a few snow flurries in the Lewiston area.

A change in the weather pattern over the Pacific Northwest is now taking shape as a westerly flow of marine air is approaching the Washington-Oregon coastlines. Associated with this flow are a series of weather disturbances that will bring the threat of precipitation to the state by late Sunday.

Overnight low temperatures were again extremely cold, as many stations reported sub-zero readings. Dixie reported the coldest in the state with a bone-chilling 22 degrees below zero, while the farthest came in at 20 below zero. Pocatello had 8 below and Idaho Falls 5 below. Lewiston had the warmest overnight low with 23 above, and Boise broke the daily record for the third consecutive day with a low of 5 degrees Friday morning. The old record for a November 30th was an 11 degree reading set back in 1931.

Utah calls for mostly fair through the weekend, with cold temperatures and some night and morning fog.

Nevada shows fair through today, but increasing clouds and winds in the northwest section Sunday.

L.A. businessman picked to head refugee program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Victor Palmieri, a Los Angeles businessman, was nominated Friday by President Carter to handle refugee problems, particularly the feeding and care of nearly 1 million displaced Cambodians.

As U.S. coordinator of refugee affairs, Palmieri will succeed former Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, who resigned to join the presidential campaign of Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Rosalynn Carter, recent visitor to the refugee camps near Cambodia, personally announced Palmieri's appointment to White House reporters.

She told of the suffering she had seen among the Cambodians and of hearing about the suffering among the Haitians in this hemisphere.

"It is a problem of enormous proportions," said Mrs. Carter. "We need a coordinator and good manager so we can be sure the food and supplies get to the people who need them."

Palmieri's first order of business will be to handle the "enormous problem" of providing food and medicine to 750,000 Cambodian refugees on the Thailand border, Matthew Nimetz, State Department counselor, told reporters.

"There are various serious logistical problems, but the major problems are political," said Nimetz.

Pope's grueling trip ends

ROME (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, exhausted from three days of tense, tight security in Turkey, returned Friday carrying a historic agreement with Greek Orthodox Patriarch Dimitrios I to try to bridge the 92-year-old schism between their churches.

"This voyage was a witness to my firm desire to go forward on the road leading to the full unity of all Christians," John Paul said when his papal 727 jet touched down at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci airport Friday night.

"This voyage, at the same time, contributes to the coming together of men in respect to their deep and essential humanity," the pontiff said.

Before his plane departed Izmir airport, the pope thanked Turkish officials for helping him "to carry out my stay under good conditions."

The day's activities included an unscheduled scare when a jittery soldier accidentally fired his rifle during an outdoor mass at the sanctuary of the Virgin Mary in Ephesus.

Seeing John Paul off at Izmir military airport were 300 honor guard soldiers with fixed bayonets at the ready and 15 Turkish government and religious leaders. No other civilians were permitted on the airfield.

The journey and long meetings with Greek Orthodox Patriarch Dimitrios I took a heavy toll on the 59-year-old pontiff as well as on his retinue.

In an unprecedented move, the pontiff attended a eucharistic mass celebrated by Dimitrios I. But he could hardly keep his eyes open during the two-and-a-half hour ceremony.

U.S. severs ties with Chile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States cut nearly all diplomatic, economic and military ties with Chile Friday and accused the military rulers of condoning "international terrorism" in the Orlando Letelier murder.

However, Sen. Edward Kennedy said the administration had taken only minimum actions against Chile, Kennedy, challenging President Carter for the Democratic nomination, said the U.S. ambassador to Chile should be recalled and all U.S. military assistance to Chile terminated.

The State Department said the administration's actions "reflected Washington's serious displeasure at Chile's failure to fully investigate the Letelier case on its own territory."

Chile has declined to proceed against the three former intelligence agents indicted in the United States for the murder of Letelier, a Marxist who was an opponent of that nation's military government.

"The government of Chile has thus, in effect, condoned this act of international terrorism," said spokesman Hodding Carter, referring to the 1976 Letelier murder ordered by Chile's now-dismissed DINA secret police.

Letelier, a former Chilean diplomat, was killed in Washington Sept. 21, 1976, and three Chilean officers were indicted for his murder.

"Chile's deplorable conduct in this affair, and in particular its refusal to conduct a full and fair investigation of this crime, demand the actions we are taking today," Carter said.

Salvador wants former leaders extradited

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — A commission investigating years of bloody repression under former regimes has demanded the extradition of two former Salvadoran presidents from the United States and Panama, officials said Friday.

The announcement coincided with the discovery of a hidden grave that brought to 21 the number of horribly mutilated bodies, presumed to be victims of the repression, found in the past week alone.

Officials said the three-man commission established by the ruling military-civilian junta to investigate human rights repression had demanded the junta seek the extradition of former rights Presidents Oscar Romero and Arturo Molina.

"They are responsible for the crimes committed against the Salvadoran people," said the panel, which also demanded indemnity payments for the relatives of the victims of repression in the past seven years.

Common Market threatened by British claims impasse

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Summit leaders of the nine European Common Market nations Friday rejected a demand by British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher for a $2.2 billion cut in Britain's payments to the Community budget.

But in a bid to save the community from a major crisis and possible total collapse, she agreed, at the last moment to make one last try at another summit meeting in February or March.

Mrs. Thatcher was in a tough, uncompromising mood as she prepared to fly back to London at the end of a two-day summit session in Dublin.

"We could have settled at this meeting if we had been prepared to settle for 350 million pounds ($770 million) in a final settlement of Britain's claims," she said. "But anyone who knows me would never have expected me to settle for one third of a cent. So, of course, I was not prepared to settle."

Mrs. Thatcher said she agreed to postpone a decision on what retaliatory action during the very last half hour of the deadlocked conference.

"We are giving them just one last chance here and I am confident they will take it," she said. "They have left me very little room for maneuver."

She won't comment on reports Gudunov plans to go home again. But his U.S. career is rocky. He resigned from the strike-bound American Ballet Theater, and Friday, feeling "insulted" by an American ballerina, left New York in what his manager calls a "funk."

Neilman-Marcus was in an embarrassing position. Here they had Andy Warhol scheduled for promotion for his book, "Exposures." They had recreated the basement of Studio 54 as an appropriate setting. And, alas, they had sold out the lobby 48 hours to go. So staff officials located copies in Dallas, reserved two tickets on the Dallas-Houston shuttle - presumably in the non-smoking section - and stacked 200 books on the seats.

From Rocky to rock: closed-circuit telecasts of a major event, living a staple of rock & roll for the music industry. When The Who plays the International Amphitheatre in Chicago Dec. 3, the concert also will be seen in at least nine area movie theaters. Sponsors say the national broadcast will cost about $200,000, and it's a "break-even" situation.

WHAT MR. WORRY?
The symptoms: sweaty palms, increased heart rate and agitated breathing. It could be worry, but then again, it could be sexual excitement. In fact, a Brown University psychiatrist says in Family Health magazine, anxiety may help put a person in the mood for love. Experimenting with double-feature movies, Dr. John Wines found that people who first saw a violent or thriller flick were more apt to be turned on by the erotic movie that came next. Pass the popcorn.

PDR PUZZLE

A Dartmouth Medical School professor suspects that history is wrong on the cause of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's death in 1945 - and he died of skin cancer, not a brain hemorrhage. Dr. Harry S. Goldsmith would like to review the case, but he says the hospital's x-rays and health records are unavailable. Goldsmith says he talked to a doctor who treated Roosevelt for a tumor - but Franklin Roosevelt Jr. says the doctor's view is totally wrong.

I think that's the way the face looks, marble expression. I'm not animated." Such problems.

Coed seduced by shrink wins $200,000 settlement

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A 25-year-old student whose psychiatrist persuaded her to have sex with him was awarded $200,000 this week in the biggest psychiatric malpractice settlement in history, her attorney said.

The psychiatrist, Dr. Jack D. Shonkwiler, 43, Campbell, has admitted having sex with his female patients and colleagues during a six-month jail term for fraudulently billing Medi-Cal for the therapy sessions.

The $200,000 settlement was announced Thursday in the case of a woman who was being treated for "mild depression" by Shonkwiler in 1977.

"The patient was subject to sexual harassment, including threats to be put in a locked psychiatric facility. If she didn't comply," said the woman's attorney, Ray Bourhis, Bourhis said the settlement "was several times

Battle for bicycle expense money won

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) - Palo Alto Councilwoman Ellen Fletcher has won a long battle to get four cents-a-mile expense money for city employees who ride their bicycles to city business.

Group gives Trek data

HATFIELD, Mass. (UPI) - Shirley Maisevski heads an exclusive informational committee of 150 people that does nothing but answer questions about Star Trek.

So far, she says, the "Trekheads" have answered about 50,000 queries from fans around the world since the famous science fiction TV series first appeared in 1967.

"Everything from the name of an episode to what rare the actors did when running a bicycle stand and out-of-town travel would be discouraged."

City Manager Bill Zaner said Friday that city employees, as well as council members, may charge four cents a mile for bike travel, but he doubted there would be many takers. The employees, he said, would be required to wear safety helmets. Zaner also said employees would need permission from their superiors when running a bicycle stand and out-of-town travel would be discouraged.

Palo Alto, full of bike-riding students from Stanford University, has many bike paths and the community has promoted bicycling as energy conserving. Mrs. Fletcher, who campaigned for office by bike and rides her two-wheeler almost everywhere, pronounced herself pleased with the change.

Libras' thoughtfulness for mate may pay off; but impulses will not

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Practical ideas are offered you by which you can have more success in life. Don't become so engrossed in your own personal desires but think in terms of what others can gain by knowing you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan how to add to your abundance appreciably, but not to the point of complete selfishness. Get assistance from key persons.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Look to a creative individual for the assistance you need to gain personal aims. Try to help others. Dress in fine style.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Listen to what a trusted adviser has to suggest and follow through on the best of ideas. Go after a personal wish and gain it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Look to a trusted friend to help you advance in your career and personal aims. Don't let others lead you astray.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't permit others to color your thinking, acting. Get your credit status improved. Take time for visiting with good friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have good ideas, but a newcomer comes along with others that are also good, so combine both for best results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Carry through with promises and it will be to your advantage. Do nothing impulsive. Be particularly thoughtful of mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contact partners as quickly as possible and come to a better understanding. Make a fine impression on a public official.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you get a early start on your work. It will go smoothly and you complete it in record time. Try to understand coworkers better.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make appointments for pleasure early. Use a new system and get monetary affairs working well. Show others you are a good friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to help kin who are under pressure. Study a new interest that appeals to you, but don't commit yourself to it as yet.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be appreciative of those with whom you are allied and gain more good will. Handle correspondence so that you gain much from it.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a practical nature, so be sure to be business-like for best results and (and) enjoy how to handle money correctly. Teach not to be too demanding and unware of the feelings of others, otherwise the success will be lessened.

What's what

Vibrations of clocks synchronize movements

Put six grandfather-clocks, all with the same length pendulums, against one wall. Set the pendulums swinging, but not in coordination with one another. In about two days, the pendulums of all the clocks will be swinging simultaneously. Vibrations from the wings penetrate the clocks' exterior. They synchronize themselves. It's a phenomenon that occurs throughout nature. Fireflies in a swarm start to flash independently, but wind up flashing in unison. Fish in schools all turn at the same time. A scientist says much of what you and I do may be the result of such vibrations.

A bellman of many years experience says the poorest tippers are politicians and dentists. Maybe so. But when I was a bellboy some decades ago, it was generally agreed the "poorest tippers" were professional baseball players.

The Latin name for the linen on which Roman cartographers drew was "stippa," hence our word "map."

ACTRESS

Question arises as to why that professional woman known as the actress has only come to the fore in the last century. Was it because of the generally acknowledged prejudice against women? Maybe. But scholars who've studied the theater say there's another reason. Actors' plays during Shakespeare's time and earlier were staged in places where only the most resounding voices could be heard. They say most women couldn't deliver the necessary volume without almost screaming. That's speaking, not singing, please note.

ARTHRITIS

Among those who suffer from arthritis, two out of three are women.

Q. How thick is the hull of a typical oil tanker?
A. Three-fourths of an inch.

Three out of four inmates in jails at any given time have been there before.

Q. If you cut off the arm of a starfish, won't the starfish grow another arm?
A. Quite so. And the arm will grow another starfish, too.

Carter to open campaign quietly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter probably will drop plans to attend gala parties around America next week and will make only a low-key announcement of his plans to seek re-election, White House aides said Friday.

“He’s not going barnstorming while Iran holds 50 American hostages,” one aide said, adding that even the Tuesday re-election announcement itself will be made without any cheering crowds.

“It’s not going to be a ‘ballyhoo situation,’” he said.

Since the hostage crisis began Nov. 4, Carter has not left Washington, except for a trip to the presidential retreat at Camp David, where he can easily keep in close touch with events.

The president indicated during his news conference Wednesday night he is likely to stay close to Washington until the crisis ends and said he thinks about the hostages constantly.

Following his re-election announcement, Carter had been set to travel to Maine, New Hampshire, New York, Chicago, Springfield, Ill., Atlanta, Huntsville, Ala., and Austin, Texas and attend a series of fundraising dinners along the way.

Now, there probably will be substitute speakers at the dinners, including Rosalynn Carter, Vice President Walter Mondale and campaign chairman Robert Strauss.

Carter was expected to polish a draft of his re-election announcement speech this weekend at Camp David, but his focus will remain on Iran.

U.S. economy slumps but forecast uncertain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government’s barometer of economic boom and recession plunged in October to its lowest level in two years, the Commerce Department said Friday.

The index of leading indicators fell 0.9 percent to an October level of 138.8, its lowest point since September 1977, when it was an even 138.

“It does not yet tell us whether we are in a recession,” cautioned Folks Tamm, the Commerce Department economist in charge of the index. He said one month’s figures show little about economy trends.

Tamm said the “underlying trend” of the index in recent months indicates the economy is either standing still or entering a decline, but does not show how deep any recession might be.

Michael Evans, president of Evans

Economics, a Washington forecasting firm, said the index shows the results of the Federal Reserve’s Oct. 6 tightening of money and credit and the effect this had had on housing.

A 13 percent decline in the index for building permits contributed most to the October decline in the index.

Evans noted that other big contributors were a drop in the money supply and in liquid assets, both of which also reflect tight money.

Seven of ten indicators normally measured by the index decline in October. Others which contributed to the overall decline were deliveries by vendors, equipment orders, stock prices and factory orders. Two indicators — layoffs and sensitive prices — rose.

The report came at a time when most government and private economists believe the economy is entering a recession.

White House controls curb on paper work pushed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, seeking to stem the flow of federal paperwork at its source, Friday brought the entire budget for federal forms under White House control.

Carter issued an executive order setting up a separate government-wide paperwork budget which he hopes to use to force the federal bureaucracy to cut down on a proliferation of federal forms.

The administration also plans to support legislation being offered in Congress next week which would give the budget office veto power over the forms of all federal agencies. Forms not carrying the budget office stamp of approval could be ignored by the public.

Budget official Wayne Granquist said Carter’s anti-paperwork campaign aims to reduce the total time the public spends filling out federal forms from 913 million hours per year when Carter took office in January 1977 to 760 million hours per year this year.

He said that reduction is equal to eliminating the burden required by “all the people of Dubuque, Iowa, working 40 hours a week, 52 weeks per year doing nothing but filling out forms.”

At a ceremony in the Cabinet Room, Carter signed the order and told a gathering of members of Congress and White House officials that “government and red tape are synonymous in the minds of the American people.”

He said 15 percent of the total hours spent on paperwork has been eliminated under his drive to cut down red tape in the last three years. He also said he supports the legislation before Congress to cut down government paperwork.

Then with a quip, he lifted his pen and said “this executive order was originally five pages but we cut it down to 2.”

Administration officials said the best hope for Carter’s new initiatives would be to keep the paperwork mountain at present levels.

Granquist, an associate budget director heading the anti-paperwork campaign, said Congress is passing new laws with requirements for federal forms faster than the administration can cut back.

Oil tax filibuster threatened

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republicans threatened an all-out filibuster on the windfall profits tax bill Friday as attempts to reach a compromise with Democrats failed to bring the parties closer together on major issues.

Assistant Senate Republican leader Ted Stevens of Alaska told reporters no agreement had been worked out yet on the windfall bill, which has been tumbled in the Senate for two days, and that a filibuster was possible.

Republicans and Democrats from oil producing states adamantly opposed to an amendment to the bill Friday, Nov. 27, that would add $2.5 billion to the windfall tax by boosting the tax rate from 60 percent to 75 percent.

“I think if that amendment does not prevail, there will be a filibuster,” said Stevens, a top House Democrat of the windfall tax.

Winning rebellion would cost state $55 million — Hamre

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If Idaho wins the battle of the Sagebrush Rebellion, it may end up losing the war.

According to statistics released Friday by Regional Forester Yarn Hamre, successful completion of the Sagebrush Rebellion, which would transfer federal land from Idaho to state control, could cost Idaho nearly $55 million.

Hamre made his comments before the fourth annual convention of the Idaho Home Council meeting in Twin Falls.

Hamre said his assessment of the costs Idaho would assume is based on a study of Forest Service lands in Idaho. Idaho might also lose money, he assumed, "due to Bureau of Land Management Lands within the state."

"When we look at both sides of the ledger, the added financial burden to a state such as Idaho resulting from acquisition of national forest lands is substantial," Hamre said.

The monies spent in Idaho by the federal government on Forest Service lands exceed those generated in revenues from the same lands, Hamre said. If the Forest Service lands were to be managed at the same standards as they have in the past, Idaho would have to find a new source of revenue.

It presently costs approximately $60 million to administer Forest Service lands in Idaho, Hamre said. Not only would Idaho have to assume that cost, it would also likely lose $19 million in other federal revenues connected with the Forest Service lands, in addition to losing $3.4 million in forest highway funds.

Against those losses, Idaho's Forest Service lands now generate approximately $48.7 million in revenues, leaving a deficit of approximately $55 million, Hamre said.

The added cost "raises the question that some states may find it more expensive to administer the federal lands than anticipated. This could result in overwhelming pressures to sell off the public lands," he added.

This has raised the question of "the possible loss of public recreation opportunities, including hunting and fishing. If the lands were to go into private ownership," Hamre said, "there is also concern for the small rancher who could not compete on the open market for grazing lands should they be offered by the state on a competitive basis. The small timber purchaser probably could not compete," he added.

Hamre said it was unlikely the Sagebrush Rebellion would succeed in the courts. But the movement could have some significant and positive benefits, he said.

"I predict there will be greater emphasis on local interests and concerns on the part of the federal land managers," he said. "Improved communications and a more responsive bureaucracy will almost certainly take place regardless of any eventual outcome."

Police

Valuable bottles reported stolen

TWIN FALLS — Burglars wiped out a local collection of Avon bottles, Robert Anderson told Twin Falls police Thursday.

He said someone broke into a garage behind 460 2nd Ave. N., which he uses for storage. About $500 in items were taken including 25 to 30 Avon bottles. Some China was also taken as was an antique four-drawer dresser and mirror.

He said a lock on the building was broken. The burglary was discovered Wednesday.

Larry Bentley of 190 Blue Lakes Blvd. S. told police he was also visited by burglars this week. He said someone broke into his home and removed three rifles and "one pistol." He estimated loss at $400, including $10 damage.

Drug case pleas

RUPERT — Two Rupert men have appeared before Judge Sherman Bellwood on charges of delivery of a controlled substance.

David Allen Dwight, 34, pleaded not guilty by reason of mental defect, a plea he is also making in Twin Falls County. Judge Bellwood requested the psychiatric evaluation being conducted for Dwight. Bellwood forwarded to him as well David Dwight was kept in custody.

Clyde Harvey Dwight, 30, pleaded not guilty and posted $2,500 bond. Jury trial was set for Dec. 18.

Those men allegedly sold heroin for a significant in separate incidents last spring.

Idaho losing fish, game director

Nevada lures Greenley with top wildlife post

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Fish and Game Director Joseph C. Greenley said today he hates to give up his Idaho position but his new job as director of the Nevada Department of Wildlife presents a "real challenge."

Greenley, 56, has been head of the Idaho agency for eight years, to replace Glen Griffith, of Lewiston.

Griffith said he was "sort of" being forced out of the job. The commission did not reappoint him at its November meeting. "It was sort of a mutual decision," said Griffith, 59, who has been director for the past six years and with the agency for 26½ years. He said his plans for the future are uncertain.

The governor praised Griffith as he did a "commendable job" as head of the agency which was reorganized by the 1979 Legislature.

The department has been under constant criticism from sportsmen, conservationists and others over hunting policies, grazing and license fees.

Greenley said he had been considering a change but didn't expect it to come "this soon." He said he was looking down the road a year or two but the change came quicker than he expected and "it's a real opportunity I couldn't afford not to take advantage of."

He said the Nevada job "provides a real challenge and interesting years ahead as well as financial security."

Greenley said he was leaving his Idaho position with "mixed emotion. I love the job. I've got and hate to leave the programs that are going on at this time, but the time has come to do something."

He said looked back on eight "good years" of accomplishment and decided to step aside before "I screw it up."

Greenley said other than making a change there was nothing else that influenced his decision. "He said things are 'better now' than when he took the job eight years ago."

Idaho has a good Fish and Game

Commission, the governor's office is cooperative in the attorney general has been doing an outstanding job in trying to preserve Idaho's share of anadromous fisheries," Greenley said.

"Things just aren't as controversial as they were eight years ago," Greenley said. "It has been a real pleasure to serve in this position."

Gov. John V. Evans was out of the country and not available on Greenley's decision or a possible successor.

Panel won't support district prosecutors

BOISE (UPI) — A special task force studying improvement of Idaho's prosecuting attorney system was told Friday the state was not ready to maintain the integrity of each of the counties' purposes of jurisdiction in criminal prosecution.

Harris informed the Idaho Law Enforcement "Planning Commission's" Prosecutor's Task Force.

"I would not favor any proposal that would not protect the traditional concept of a 44-county jurisdiction for prosecution purposes."

"I would not favor any proposal that would not maintain the integrity of each of the counties' purposes of jurisdiction in criminal prosecution," Harris informed the Idaho Law Enforcement "Planning Commission's" Prosecutor's Task Force.

"We can't accept it yet, but maybe somewhere down the line," Myers said, adding the people want the prosecutor's job to stay within county boundaries.

He said Idahoans also don't want the prosecutor to be state funded or appointed. He said any change would have to take into consideration political and economic aspects before the legislature would adopt it.

Idaho County Prosecutor Jim C. Harris said it would be "fruitful" to consider in legislative form any concept that would not protect the traditional concept of a 44-county jurisdiction for prosecution purposes.

Chariot racing today

JEROME — The Snake River Chariot Racing Association races will be held at noon today at the Jerome County Fairgrounds.

The weekly races normally are run on Sunday, but the meet will be on Saturday this week because the Boise Valley-Burley and Elmer Creek racing clubs are participating.

Forty-one races are scheduled, and the Jerome Lions Club will serve chili.

Keep old Owsley Bridge, highway districts told

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Motorists who use the old Owsley Bridge over the Snake River fear Hagerman has urged the Twin Falls and Hagerman Highway districts not to abandon and remove the structure.

Floyd Dayley, manager of the Twin Falls Highway District, said a public meeting this week in Hagerman to discuss the future of the bridge brought out a number of interested persons, some saying they use the bridge several times a day.

"We didn't have a single person in favor of abandoning the bridge or tearing it out," Dayley said. "The thing that surprised us the most was the result of a five-day traffic count on the bridge. It showed an average of 365 vehicles on the bridge every day."

Dayley said that with much use of the bridge, both highway boards talked along the lines of making some "repairs and keeping the bridge open to traffic with the exception of heavy trucks."

He said another meeting will be held in the near future by the two highway districts to make a final decision.

The bridge, built in 1921, is in need of repairs if it is to be restored to 15-ton capacity loads. Engineers estimate this would cost $124,000.

The highway district board members in both Hagerman and Twin Falls feel this is a high price to pay to open the bridge to trucks and generally feel it could continue to serve as it trucks, school buses and automobiles under the 10-ton limit with some minor repairs.

Better signing was recommended to eliminate the violations of the 10-ton load limit.

Vehicles in excess of 10 tons must drive an additional two miles to cross on the Grider bridge, Dayley said. If all 365 vehicles using the bridge had to drive the additional two miles it would represent quite a cost to the motoring public.

NOW supports rejection of Idaho's ERA recission vote

BOISE (UPI) — Congress' authority to oversee the constitutional revision process and deny Idaho's Equal Rights Amendment recission vote is "exclusive and unreviewable," says a brief filed by the National Organization for Women in Boise federal court.

The group's Idaho, Arizona and Washington state chapters and affiliates in the three states support the Idaho Legislature's recission vote. They ask U.S. District Judge Marion Callister to dismiss Idaho's recission.

The group's Idaho, Arizona and Washington state chapters and affiliates in the three states support the Idaho Legislature's recission vote. They ask U.S. District Judge Marion Callister to dismiss Idaho's recission.

organizations claim Article 4 of the Constitution, which sets up the constitutional revision process, repeatedly has been interpreted by the U.S. Supreme Court, and the brief says high court justices, when considering a case concerning prohibition, said the Constitution leaves "Congress to deal with subsidiary matters of detail (in amending the document), the public interests, and changing conditions may require" and prohibits courts from interfering.

In considering previous attempts by states to rescind ratification of constitutional amendments, the Supreme Court has said the final decision is a "political question with the ultimate authority in Congress in the exercise of its control over the promulgation of the adoption of the amendment," the groups' brief states.

Idaho has sought a judgment in its favor, claiming Congress' extension of the ratification deadline is unconstitutional. Briefs filed by Idaho urge Callister to rule that Congress' extension vote violated the Constitution because it was adopted by a simple majority, rather than a two-thirds vote.

Interpreting the Constitution as requiring a two-thirds vote "is tantamount to requiring that an amendment be promulgated," the groups' brief states. "The Constitution surely does not contemplate such an absurd result."

The brief refers to Thomas Jefferson's Manual of Parliamentary Practice, saying the Constitution's author interpreted the document to allow simple majority rule in Congress "where not otherwise expressly provided."

The organization also claims the writers of the Constitution did not intend for states to be allowed to rescind their amendment ratification votes. They claim the Constitution allows states only one chance to ratify or reject the amendment and "once the affirmative act of ratification has been carried out, the authority and power granted to the state, is exhausted."

The brief also cites a 1901 letter from James Madison to Alexander Hamilton in which Madison, one of the framers of the Constitution, says "the Constitution requires an adoption (of amendments by the states) in toto (completely) and forever."

Waste study on hold

By MARY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls city and county officials Friday put a proposed feasibility study of a garbage-fueled steam-producing plant on the back burner.

Instead, the officials opted for an onsite inspection of an existing Oregon plant. Following the tour, a final decision on a feasibility study is expected.

The move came within two days of the tentative naming of a Boise contractor to perform the feasibility study.

Officials have been pondering since summer incinerating the county's estimated 100 tons per day of solid waste. The plant in turn would produce steam which could be sold to local industry.

About $15,000 has been appropriated for an economic feasibility study, and officials are close to selecting a firm to perform that study. CH2M Hill had been favored for the contract.

But the track record of some existing plants in the northwest led officials to opt for a more personal approach.

While one plant contacted indicated it had a good working relationship with CH2M Hill, another had recently experienced technical problems. A third had rejected its feasibility study.

City Councilman Chris Talkington told officials one plant operator in Coquille, Ore. for a feasibility study by CH2M Hill had recommended a prohibitively expensive plant proposal.

Officials in that city opted for a modular incinerator-silo approach. Those modules, produced by Consunat of Richmond, Virginia, are marketed by WIDAC, of Kirkland, Wash. WIDAC was one of the first firms to contact local officials on the possibility of such a plant.

Talkington said the solid waste out put in Coquille is similar to that of Twin Falls.

"We were most interested in this operation because this one would have the closest characteristic to ours here," about 100 tons a day," he said.

County Commission Chairman Merl Zeimaru recommended an onsite inspection of the Coquille plant.

That inspection, which will include two city council members and one member from the county commission, is expected to take place within the next two weeks.

Officials said their approach was not necessarily a rejection of the CH2M Hill proposal. But the onsite inspection will yield problems from the operators, not the salesman's point of view. Talkington said.

"We will be in a stronger position to determine whether a feasibility study is necessary or desirable," he said.

After 346 years, Pope asks Vatican to clear Galileo

BY ROBIN STAFFORD
ROME (UPI) — The Grand Inquisitors of the Roman Catholic Church's Holy Office threatened the ailing, 69-year-old saint with torture as he stood before 346 years ago.

After two days of interrogation, astronomer Galileo Galilei could take no more and, on a hunch, he fled before the inquisitors to the Netherlands. He returned to Rome on Jan. 22, 1642, publicly recanted the astronomical theory he had expounded for 17 years.

The inquisition sometimes ordered heretics burned at the stake but was relatively lenient with the scientist in view of his abject public renunciation. It sentenced him to the limited imprisonment, immediately committed to house arrest.

The theory that Galileo renounced was that the Earth and planets of the solar system revolved around the sun, and that the sun, not the Earth, was the center of the universe.

The trial's finding that Galileo was "vehemently suspect of heresy" has never been reversed.

It took the first non-Italian pope in 453 years to offer a handsome apology to the man he recanted to as the founder of modern physics.

On Nov. 10, Polish Pope John Paul II told scientists of the pontifical Christian Academy in the Vatican that "the practice of Galileo, like that of Michelangelo, is known to all." But the former had to suffer greatly, we cannot hide it, from church tradition and man's sin.

With his telescope, Galileo developed the sun-centered universe theory from calculations made 50 years earlier by another great astronomer, Nicolaus Copernicus, the Polish scientist who studied at the University of Krakow.

Pope John Paul II was archbishop of Krakow before his election as pope in Oct. 16, 1978.

The pope told the pontifical academics, who include St. Nobel laureate physicist Pope Pius XII, scientists and historians, moved by a spirit of sincere collaboration, to get to the bottom of the Galileo case and, if frank recognition of errors concerning Copernicus is necessary, to instruct that this affair still arouses in many minds, preventing fruitful

Sugar Ray scores knockout over Benitez

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Sugar Ray Leonard claimed his amazing three-year, rocket-like rise from Olympic to world champion Friday night by stopping undefeated champion Wilfredo Benitez with six seconds left in the 15th and final round to win the WBA world welterweight title.

The sudden end came amid a chorus of boos from the capacity crowd at Caesars Palace. Benitez went down for an eight-count in the final minute of the 15th round and did not appear to be coming back. Leonard went after Benitez and landed two hard punches before referee Carlo Padilla of the Philippines stepped in and stopped the fight as Benitez looked at him with a startled expression of disbelief.

Leonard knocked Benitez down in the third round with a left jab that caught the Puerto Rican champion off-balance but Benitez was up after just one second and didn't appear to be hurt. He smiled at Leonard following a mandatory eight count.

Leonard continued to be the sharper puncher and in the 15th round, caught Benitez with a whistling left hook, knocking the 21-year-old Puerto Rican down.

Padilla, who worked the Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier title fight in Manila, looked into Benitez' eyes and stopped him.

The fight, the richest ever between two fighters beneath the heavyweight classification, marked the 26th consecutive victory for Leonard, an Olympic gold medalist in 1976 at Montreal. It was the first defeat for Benitez against 37 victories and one draw.

Benitez earned $1.2 million and Leonard received $1 million for the fight. Earlier on the same card, Vito Antuofermo of Brooklyn, N.Y., retained his world middleweight title by rallying for a draw against Marilyn Hagler of Brockton, Mass. (See story this page).

In the sixth round of the fast-paced fight, the fighters' heads collided and a large gash was opened on Benitez' forehead. A quick combination of punches from Leonard opened the gash, even more as blood streamed down Benitez' face. Just seconds into the seventh round, an overhand right by Leonard reopened the cut and blood spurled and trickled into both of Benitez' eyes. And the former champion began backing up for the first time in the fight.

Leonard, 146, from Palmer Park, Md., was a 31 favorite over Benitez, who weighed 144.

"He's a great champion," said Leonard. "He fought with a lot of spirit. This is the greatest moment of my life. It's even greater than Montreal. I would just like to do my best to console the family of Willie Clissen."

Leonard referred to the middleweight fighter who died Wednesday night in New York after being knocked out by Wilfredo Scypion on Nov. 23.

"I know I had the edge," Leonard added. "A couple of rounds I gave to him and he showed me he has the strength of a great champion."

Benitez captured the WBC title Jan. 19, 1979 with a unanimous 15-round decision over Carlos Palomino and defended it successfully March 2 against Harold Weston in New York's Madison Square Garden. He has not fought since the Weston fight.

Benitez was the youngest fighter ever to hold a world title when he won the World Boxing Association junior welterweight crown at the age of 17.

Leonard had built up a sizeable lead and Benitez needed a final round knockout to keep his crown. At the start of the final round, Benitez charged from his corner and landed several solid lefts and rights before Leonard backed him up with three consecutive left jabs.

The two fighters exchanged dozens of punches in the middle of the ring before Benitez voluntarily fell into the ropes. Leonard then landed the first left hook and kicked the knees of the former champion. Leonard's left hook sent Benitez to the canvas and he was up almost immediately. He looked dazed as he tried desperately to clear the cobwebs but Padilla decided the halt the bout.

Leonard, calling it the toughest fight of his career, said he went into the fight cautiously, not believing his favorite would win.

"I felt I had the edge going into the final round," he said. "But you can never really be sure how a fight is being scored."

Asked if he felt the Padilla was correct in stopping the fight with just six seconds left, Leonard smiled and replied, "I thought it was pretty good of him."

Judge Art Lurie had Leonard ahead 137-130, Judge Harry Gibbs of England had it 136-134 for Leonard and Mexican Judge Rey Solls had Leonard leading 137-133 after 14 rounds. UPI had Leonard ahead 139-129.

"I said long ago I'd be the champion of the world even when people were saying I was just a Hollywood actor," said Leonard. "But now I've taken the title back to Washington, D.C."

Leonard said he would fight WBA welterweight champion Elipio Cuevas and former lightweight champion Roberto Duran of Panama or any other top contender. He also said a rematch with Benitez is possible.

Warriors edge Bruins 47-40

Meridian holds off tough Twin Falls

By MIKE PRATER
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — The Meridian Warriors utilized a third quarter lead and Tammy Anderson's 16 points to defeat the Twin Falls Bruins 47-40 in girls' basketball action Friday night.

Twin Falls' Suzie Shelby handed out her best offensive performance of the young season with 17 points. Both teams were undefeated going into the game, with Twin Falls having two victories to Meridian's three.

"They just simply out played us," said Twin Falls coach Kathy Anderson. "It was just one of those nights where we couldn't get the ball rolling. We had too many turnovers and a lot of traveling calls under the basket."

Both teams scrambled for the lead early in the game with no team taking command.

The Bruins got their biggest lead of the night on a driving layup by Cass Herbst to put the girls ahead 19-13 with 3:34 left in the first quarter.

Meridian's Jackson tied the game at 18 on a follow in jump shot and later sank two free throws to put the Warriors ahead to stay. They led 25-20 at intermission.

The Warriors came out with a tough full court press in the third quarter that limited the Bruin girls to seven points in the third quarter. The Warriors scurried out to a 38-27 lead.

"Tonight we were just all thumbs and fumble fingers. Maybe it was just our mental game. We will work on our ball handling and passing next week and hope to come out with a better performance than tonight," said Anderson.

Twin Falls got their fundamental play together late in the fourth quarter and applied a press on Meridian to give them a slight scare.

CSI Eagles edge Oregon

ONTARIO — College of Southern Idaho frittered away a 17-point lead but burst back with some fast breaking Friday night to defeat the shabby but scrappy Central Oregon Bobcats 69-57.

It was a change of pace for the Eagles who were in their four games — by slowing things down. The sudden success of the break came after they had watched a 52-35 lead melt to four points at 25:59.

Then in quick succession Antoine Williams scored on a break, Derrick Thomas picked up two more on a Curtis Rayford feed and Eric Dye added two more — close — points. Thomas then led the break-away with five points to make it 66-51 and the Eagles coasted in.

CSI had a problem with shooting in the early going. The Eagles couldn't buy one from more than a few feet away while sophomore Guard Steve Gridley was blurring in jumpers from medium range.

So although the Eagles dominated the inside and boards, they didn't take the lead for good until Fred Talley and Rayford had banked buckets that made it 64-51. Gridley had nine of Central Oregon's first 11 points but he was cooled perceptibly after that when the Eagles went into a half-court pressure defense.

Central's biggest lead, however, was only 13-10 with 12:16 left in the half. But after assuming the lead, the Eagles got points from Talley, who had seven in a four-minute span, and Rayford to push ahead 27-19. Rick Cope, Talley and Rayford showed that to sophomore Steve Brady finally hit one for the Bobcats.

Carl Emerson hit four points and Cope two in the final minute to make it look like a lark for CSI at haltime 66-62.

The first few minutes of the second half were uneventful, the lead sticking around 15 points.

Then when Eric and Brady had excellent free throw shooting — the Bobcats hit their first 18 straight — started bringing Central back. The two who started the comeback ended up leading 66-63 before getting the field goals that reduced the Eagle lead to four.

After the three quick fast break buckets, Thomas, who sat out most of the first half with three fouls, came up with five more. After that Central was never closer than nine points.

CSI will go against Lane Community College to wrap up its two-day stay in Ontario tonight but will return to that area Tuesday night to play the Northwest Nazarene Jayves in Nampa.

Local resorts set for skiing today

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — All ski resorts in the area will be open today, with Soldier Mountain, Magic Mountain and Surf Valley initiating their ski seasons.

Forrele, operating the past two weeks is in full-swing with three feet of snow at the lodge.

Magic Mountain also has about three feet of snow and will be opening today with the Poma lift running in the morning and the chair opening in the afternoon as soon as crews complete placing signs on the slopes and at the lift.

Soldier Mountain will open today with the lower chairlift, the J-bar and rope tow operation.

Claude Hinkle, manager of Soldier, said the man-made snow is the best the resort has ever made because of ideal weather conditions during the past few weeks which it has been blown on the runs. Only one major run served by the chair will be open along with the J-bar runs and rope tow lift.

Sun Valley is opening the No. 1 chair lift on the Warm Springs peak of Baldy Mountain. Lift tickets will be offered at reduced prices until the full mountain is open, resort officials advise.

Johnson upends Galindez in light heavyweight fight

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Challenger Marvin Johnson, throwing a 24-year-old native of Indianapolis who entered the ring as a heavy underdog, finally drew the champion for the light heavyweight title.

"I was worried," said Johnson, a 24-year-old native of Indianapolis who entered the ring as a heavy underdog, "but I was confident about getting him with his powerful left hook."

In the end, it was Johnson's left hook that ended the fight, 20 seconds into the 11th round. It was Galindez' second loss of a title defense in his last three tries.

Johnson, a southpaw, appeared to be dodging Galindez in the fight and finally drew the champion for the center of the ring, out his normal posture of leaning against the ropes.

The 1972 Olympic Games champion said he would fight Galindez to regain his WBA title at a later date.

"He's a great champ," Johnson said. "I'm sure he would want a shot at me as he landed on his back. His never been afraid of anybody and I'm not afraid of me, he wouldn't have sign on to fight me."

Galindez was whisked away by his handlers immediately after the fight and had no comment for the media.

Johnson appeared extremely relaxed in the locker room as he held hands with his new wife, Debra. He mentioned a possible bout against World Boxing Council champion Matthew Sand Muhammad.

"He's (Muhammad) been coming up to my room telling me what to do," Johnson said. "I know what I'm going to do. We are going to unify that title and I'm going to be the world's champion."

Johnson earned his biggest payday of $50,000 and he said he would demand more to fight Muhammad.

Johnson staggered Galindez in a furious 10th round with left hooks in the face and body.

Early in the 11th round, the two fighters traded punches in the middle of the ring, and then Johnson punished the retreating left hook that sent Galindez staggering backwards to the light blue canvas.

Galindez' feet flew three feet into the air as he landed on his back. His handlers jumped into the ring and Galindez shook his head as if he were dazed. The knockout came 20 seconds into the 11th round.

Johnson, who is now 24-3 with 19 knockouts, was the aggressor throughout the fight as Galindez was content to lean against the ropes and protect his face. Johnson opened a small cut over Galindez' left eye but the wound did not seem to bother the Argentinian.

Johnson, who weighed in at 173 1/2 pounds, controlled the fight from the ninth round on as he drew Galindez out from his corner, where he spent most of the fight. Galindez, who barely made the 175-pound light heavyweight limit at 174 3/4, taunted Johnson several times for throwing light blows.

The loss, the second for the 31-year-old Galindez in his last three title fights, dropped his record to 52-7-4 and may have ended his career.

He lost his title to Mike Rossmann last September by a technical knockout before regaining it with a victory over Rossmann last April.

Johnson, who had owned the World Boxing Council light heavyweight crown when he defeated Matty Paro in Italy last December, entered the fight a decided underdog because of his eighth-round knockout loss

Middleweight showdown Antuofermo beats Hagler

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A bloody and battered Vito Antuofermo walked slowly to his corner at the end of the seventh round. Marvin Hagler was giving him a boxing lesson.

But the brawling Antuofermo charged Hagler in the eighth round, appeared to take control of the fight and went on to earn a draw and retain his undisputed middleweight crown in a bloody 15-round title fight at Caesars Palace.

Hagler, using his six-inch reach, advanced peppered the champion's face in the early rounds with whistling right jabs from his natural southpaw stance. When Antuofermo began picking off Hagler's jabs and getting inside, the challenger switched to a right-handed stance and again peppered Antuofermo's face with left jabs.

"My corner told me at the end of the seventh round that I was behind on points," said Antuofermo. "I knew I had to pick up the pace and I carried the fight 12 rounds. I felt I began to control the contest in the 10th round. I felt I deserved the decision, but I'm satisfied with the draw because I am still the champion."

Hagler is a very good fighter and I want to give him a rematch in the near future. He was more effective when he fought from a southpaw stance but he definitely tired in the late rounds.

Hagler was disappointed with the decision.

"In my heart, I still believe I'm the middleweight champion of the world," he said. "All this is going to do is make me meaner and keep me working hard."

"I punished Vito's body. I did everything the right way," Marvin Hagler in a bloody 15-round title fight at Caesars Palace.

Lucy Deary Shirley scored the fight 144-142 for Antuofermo — Judge Duane Ford had it 143-141 for Hagler and Judge Bill Miller scored the fight 143-143.

Hagler and Antuofermo battled toe-to-toe in the final two rounds, racking each other with many solid right hands. Antuofermo appeared to come on strong in the 12th round as he charged at Hagler, backing the challenger into the ropes and landing four solid rights.

Antuofermo, who was born in Italy and now lives in Las Vegas, came back to the center of the ring in the 13th and 14th rounds as Hagler appeared to tire and lost much of his earlier speed. An overhand right in 14th round opened a one-inch gash over Hagler's right eye which appeared to hamper the vision of the Brockton, Mass. fighter.

In the final round, Hagler landed five consecutive crushing right hands, staggering Antuofermo, but the champion came back with three overhand rights to Hagler's head, back the challenger off and momentarily staggering him.

Antuofermo, 158 1/2, saw his record go to 45-3-2 while Hagler, 158 1/2, fell to 42-2.

"I felt I had almost did not make it to the 11th fight."

"A week ago, I was gonna pull out because I have a bad cold," he explained. "You could see me coughing in the ring. But thank God I had the wind and was able to pull it out. In the future, I hope to give him a match. He's a good fighter."

Scandal threatens New Mexico basketball

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — An FBI transcript released today of a taped conversation between University of New Mexico basketball coach Norm Ellenberger and an assistant concerns what a college transcript allegedly was illegally obtained for a UNM player.

The conversation between Ellenberger and assistant coach Manny Goldstein, concerns player Craig Gilbert, who came to UNM from Oxnard Junior College in California.

An affidavit signed by FBI agent Jack D. Blair alleges Goldstein paid $400 for a transcript to transfer Gilbert to UNM basketball at the college's offices Wednesday.

Ellenberger could not be reached for comment.

A spokesman for UNM President William E. Davis said Davis was in the process of reviewing the affidavits and transcripts and was seeking to talk to Ellenberger. The spokesman said Davis would not have any comment until he talks to Ellenberger and completes his review of the matter.

It was the latest development in a federal bribery and mail fraud investigation of UNM basketball coaches that also has extended to junior colleges on opposite sides of the United States, the FBI said.

UNM officials announced Thursday that Gilbert, a 6-foot-2 junior guard, was not expected to play in the team's season opener at Colorado Saturday because his transcript for a summer course at Oxnard had not arrived.

More officials also said the FBI asked if the official college seal had ever been stolen and inspected the records of another UNM player, co-captain Andre Logan, who had been recruited at the community college by UNM assistant coach Manny Goldstein.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Here is a portion of a taped conversation between UNM basketball coach Norm Ellenberger and assistant coach Manny Goldstein concerning the acquisition of an allegedly illegal transcript for player Craig Gilbert.

Ellenberger: Hello.

Ellenberger: Nothin.

Goldstein: I got him a degree, an A.A. (associate of arts) degree.

Ellenberger: You got him a degree?

Goldstein: Yeah, they're gonna put 16 more hours on the transcript, this is the way they want it.

Ellenberger: Which means he graduated.

Goldstein: Yeah, he graduated.

Ellenberger: So after he graduates then he needs. That does that change his, ah, how many grade points does he need?

Goldstein: Well I don't know how many grade points he needs, but I got him 16 more credits. This is the way they want it.

Ellenberger: Where are you now?

Goldstein: I'm home in Albuquerque. This is what they said they wanted. Manny this is to protect everyone and do it. So just don't worry about it. Soon as they get something, are you there?

Ellenberger: Yeah.

Goldstein: Or Ellenberger: AS soon as they what now?

Goldstein: Soon as they get something. I'm a little bit if they showed me, I spoke to the guy, soon as they get this they're giving the kid a degree, an A.A. You know.

Ellenberger: Yeah, well I don't understand it, the degree thing, well.

Ellenberger: So after he graduates then he needs. That does that change his, ah, how many grade points does he need?

Goldstein: Well I don't know how many grade points he needs, but I got him 16 more credits. This is the way they want it.

Bowls await three Saturday winners

By United Press International
Three post-season bowls await the winners of the final two games of the Southwest Conference season and when they are over, the Arkansas Razorbacks and the Texas Longhorns are going to spend the holidays.

is the expected outcome of Saturday's action in the Sugar Bowl in Houston, Texas, and the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, Texas.

put the Longhorns up against the Razorbacks in the Sugar Bowl in what should be the most attractive matchup of the bowl season.

I think Auburn has more material down there than they've had in the last four or five years. They're the most explosive since I've been here.

Auburn, on probation, is ineligible for a post-season bowl but can wind up sending 65 Georgia to New Orleans, where Alabama beat Penn State 17-7 in the Sugar Bowl last year.

Both Houston and Texas win or if they both lose, or if Texas wins and Houston loses, Arkansas will be in the Cotton Bowl, Texas in the Sugar Bowl and Houston in the Sun Bowl.

But I reconcile myself to the fact that there are a lot of good football teams. There are a lot of 7-4 teams like Texas that can really play.

There were reports that Classen, 29, had not prepared adequately to meet Scypton, who had once managed Classen, was quoted as saying the boxer did not "look well" moments before the fight and said if he had been in charge he would not have let him go into the ring.

Classen, who was born in Puerto Rico, lived in New York, had fought Briton Tony Silson in London on Oct. 9 and told NYSAC Deputy Commissioner Marvin Kohn that he had lost the bout when it was stopped because of a facial cut.

It was reported that Classen accepted the fight with Silson on a 4-hour notice, and Minuto, even told reporters Classen was not in top physical condition. In spite of the beating, when he returned to New York, Classen passed an electroencephalogram ordered by NYSAC on Nov. 13 "with flying colors," according to Kohn.

State Senator Roy Goodman, who formed the Senate committee, said the inquiry would concentrate on whether Dr. Richard Izquierdo was qualified to be an attending doctor at ringside, and whether the 30 days boxers are required to wait between fights is sufficient to assure their safety.
