Cincinnati firemen work frantically over several youths believed trampled in rush by throngs to rockco

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Thousands of rock fans trying to fight their way through a crowd jammed the doors of Riverfront Coliseum Monday night, trampling and smothering at least 11 persons who were killed in the crush of bodies.

Numerous injuries were also reported.

The concert, by the British rock group The Who, continued inside with most of those already in the 8,000 seat coliseum seated with tickets for reserved seats and unaware of what had happened outside.

The stampede occurred about 46 minutes before the concert began.

Cincinnati Police Lt. Dale Menckhaus said about 6,000 to 7,000 people, who had purchased general admission tickets and were trying to get seats, had gathered outside the doors by 7:30 p.m., when several of the glass doors were broken open.

"Up until then the crowd had been basically a very orderly and good crowd," he said. "There was a rush when the doors finally opened. We were aware that people had reported that people were down in the crowd but there were so many people we couldn't get through to them."

One of those outside was Jim Holmstrom, 28, of Cincinnati, who was standing in the front of the crowd with his brother Dave, 22.

"I thought I was dead," he said. "I can't stop shaking. I think my brother is dead. He was next to me and went down in the rush. I don't know how far out. Somebody was on top of me. I couldn't breathe."

"But somehow the crowd moved back," he said. "If I had to estimate, there were thousands to wait outside for the doors to open. People were yelling for the door to open, and when they did everybody pushed together."

"You couldn't breathe. The crowd pushed forward and then back. The problem was started when people fell. My brother and I were at the front of the crowd. I got pushed down on top of somebody else. Then somebody fell on my legs and I got pinned. I thought I was dead. It was a real nightmarish scene. Cincinnati Mayor Jeremiah Blackwell, who was on the scene, said the major problem was the non-reserved seating arrangement and that a lot of those wanting to see the concert had been there for several hours.

"A lot of young people apparently had been out there a long time before the doors opened," he said. "They were cold. Some were drinking alcohol. Some were smoking marijuana and when the doors opened, a sense of rationality left the stadium."

One fan, Jeff Manchester, of Stoney, Ohio, said the crowd started gathering about 1:30 p.m. He said when the doors finally opened there was a mad rush.

"I was grabbing for hair. I was grabbing for bodies. I was praying for my life," he said. "I know some of the people under me were dying. But I couldn't get up."

City Safety Director Rich Cantelani said the dead had been taken to Cincinnati General Hospital. Officials estimated 20 injured people were being treated for cuts and lacerations at Good Samaritan, Christ and Jewish hospitals.

Rescue trucks were reloaded with fans in front of the Coliseum, which was strewn with broken bottles. Usher Ray Scherstrom said the trouble began 45 minutes before the 7 p.m. concert.

"It started happening when they first threw a bottle through the door. People kept on reaching through the hole in the door trying to come in," he said. "Several of us tried to hold them out, but after a while we gave up because there were too many of them."

"They came right on in through the door. We couldn't stop them. There were 70 at least. Then I stood back. I did not want to get trampled. Everybody was shouting, and beating. It was more an exuberance to get in," the usher said.

Americans reported still inside embassy

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Militant Muslims denied Monday that any of the 50 American hostages have been whisked secretly from the occupied U.S. Embassy to new hideouts, but diplomatic reports persisted that the captives were scattered throughout Tehran to thwart any rescue attempt.

While Iranians' attention was diverted from the 39-day hostage drama to their referendum on a new Islamic constitution, the U.N. Security Council gathered in New York for a third day of debate on the crisis.

The Council met for just 30 minutes with four more nations joining the international chorus asking for the release of the hostages. The council's non-aligned members circulated a draft resolution "urgently" calling for the immediate release of the captives. But the council took no action on the measure before adjourning until today at 2 p.m. MST.

Iran warned that any U.N. resolution condemning the seizure of the embassy would have an "undesirable effect" on the fate of the hostages.

The International Court of Justice in the Hague said its 15 judges would meet today to prepare for next Monday's hearings on the United States' case against Iran. A court spokesman said the hearings will be held "even if there is no Iranian representative present."

Outside the Tehran embassy, a virtual carnival atmosphere prevailed as hundreds of curious sightseers milled about the compound, munching on food and sipping soft drinks bought from vendors who set up makeshift stalls.

"The hostages are all still in the embassy," a militant spokesman at the embassy told UPI by telephone. "It is absolutely untrue that they have been moved. All are in good health. The militants again insisted that the hostages would not be released until deposed Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, now convalescing at a U.S. Air Force Base in Texas, is returned to Iran to face trial.

Despite the denials, there were increasing diplomatic reports that as many as half the 50 captives had been spirited from the 27-acre compound and taken to several private homes and the revolutionary guard headquarters in the city.

Reports of the dispersal began as rumors engulfed the capital that the United States was preparing a military strike against Iran.

Vote counting began Monday in a national referendum that will turn Iran into a strict Islamic state.

'Shunned' farmer goes on trial

Richard J. Bear, 50, was outpoliced by his wife seven years ago because he criticized the Reformed Mennonite Church, said Monday his refusal to give up hope of getting her back.

Bear went on trial for allegedly abducting his wife, Gale, 41, from a nearby farmers' market Aug. 31.

It was another chapter in a story that began in 1972 when "murder" charges against wife and six children to leave the 400-acre family farm and to shun him ever since.

Bear, 50, was permitted to act as his own attorney by Cumberland County Judge Harold Sheely, who dropped two of the four charges against him, including the most serious one of unlawful restraint that carried a five-year maximum sentence.

Although the state's charges against Bear relate directly to the legal question of whether he abducted another person, Bear indicated during jury selection he would treat the trial as one involving religious freedom.

"I believe my religious liberty has been infringed upon," Bear told the court.

Bear has likened the church to a cult like Jonestown in Guyana, describing its excommunication of him as inhuman and tantamount to what happened at the Salem witch trials.

"Somebody suggested that I plead insanity, given the circumstances — that I am obsessed with this. But they've taken everything else from me, so I don't think I'll give them my sanity," he said before the jury was sworn.

Bear still is legally married to his wife and said the would fight until he died to regain her.

Seventeen of 44 prospective jurors told the court they believed shunning was immoral or abhorrent but only one was dismissed as incompetent.

Bear, a strapping cabbage and pumpkin farmer with a sharp profile and deep-set eyes, appeared in court in a dark brown suit and a pressed white shirt buttoned at the collar.

Bear has said that his fight to reunite his family would result either in his defeat or breakup of the Reformed Mennonite Church, a sect founded by 18th century Swiss theologian Menno Simons.

Traces of plutonium found in southern Idaho aquifer

BOISE (UPI) — Minute amounts of radioactive plutonium from the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory in eastern Idaho have been detected in the Snake River Plain aquifer.

A Boise newspaper said small quantities of the metal have been discharged into the aquifer since 1953 and nuclear officials across the country call it a dangerous practice.

Many residents between Idaho Falls and Boise get their drinking water from the aquifer, which also supplies water to 3 million acres of farmland.

INEL officials said plutonium concentration in the aquifer today is 1 million to 2 million times below federal drinking water standards, but health experts say there is no "safe" dose of plutonium.

A professor of health physics at the Georgia Institute of Technology and former director of health physics at Oak Ridge, Tenn., said it's felt "there is no safe level of any radioactive material. "It's just a matter of whether you happen to get the speck in your body," Professor Karl Morgan said.

Morgan said the 1969 National Council on Radiation Protection standard of 1.7 picocuries per milliliter of plutonium for drinking water was "much too high."

The newspaper said the only other place in the country where plutonium is deliberately put in a public water supply is at the federal atomic site in Hanford, Wash., where water containing minute amounts of plutonium drips down from a soil bed into the Columbia River Aquifer.

Gover Smithwick, director of the environmental and safety program at the federal Savannah River nuclear facility in South Carolina, said discharging any amount of plutonium into fresh water supplies is unwise.

"I can't imagine anyone doing that intentionally," Smithwick said.

Other scientists and environmental experts agreed, saying the discharges are dangerous because not enough is known about plutonium or the Snake Plain Aquifer, one of the largest underground bodies of water in the world.

The plutonium 239 being discharged in the Idaho aquifer is a man-made metal that is like the state can do strength for 230,000 years.

Other radioactive material with shorter lives than plutonium, like strontium-90, cesium, cobalt-60 and iridium, also are discharged from the INEL into the aquifer.

Robert Funderburg, director of Idaho's radiation control program, said there is little the state can do about the discharges since INEL as a federal facility is exempt from state control.

Funderburg said he would bring the practice to the attention of a special governor's task force on nuclear waste disposal during a meeting Wednesday in Idaho Falls.

NOW wants Idaho judge barred from hearing case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Organization for Women Monday filed a court appeal to disqualify a federal judge who is a Mormon church leader from hearing a case involving the Equal Rights Amendment.

Church opposition to the ERA was cited in the appeal, which followed a church trial Saturday of Sterling Va., feminist Sonia Johnson. Mrs. Johnson could be excommunicated for her active support of ERA.

The church opposes the amendment on the grounds it would destroy the family and promote immorality.

The woman's group appealed to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco to intervene in a suit challenging the constitutionality of the congressional action extending for 30 months the original seven-year ratification period for ERA.

The case was filed by the states of Idaho and Arizona and by four state legislators from Washington state.

Earlier this year, the Justice Department asked Judge Martin Callister of the U.S. District court in Boise, to disqualify himself from hearing the suit because he is a regional representative in the hierarchy of the Mormon church.

Callister refused and the Justice Department did not appeal.

At a news conference, NOW president Eileen Smeal asked, "How can a trial by a high ranking official of the president of the Mormon church possibly have the appearance of impartiality when we know of the church's official position against the ERA and ERA extension?"

Mrs. Smeal was joined by Mrs. Johnson, who likened Callister's position in the church to a Roman Catholic bishop. "At his level," she said, "there is no latitude for personal opinion."

Mrs. Johnson said it is "highly unlikely" Callister would be able to render an impartial judgment, and said she believes he has been under "enormous pressure" from church leaders not to withdraw from the case.

The American Jewish Congress, although it supports the ERA, recently criticized the department for moving to "disqualify" Callister because of his religious faith.

The group's president, Nathan Leites, said, "We reject as a matter of principle any assumption that a judge's membership or even leadership in a particular religious group by itself renders him incapable of deciding any case in accordance with the law and facts."

U.S. Navy bus attack leaves 2 sailors dead, 10 wounded

Police guard van used in escape by terrorists who ambushed a Navy bus in Puerto Rico Monday.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Pro-independence terrorists armed with M-16 rifles ambushed a bus loaded with U.S. Navy personnel Monday, killing two sailors and wounding 10 others, including three women.

Three terrorist groups, who said they were at war with "Yankee imperialists," claimed joint responsibility for the commando-style attack at a bus stop in a San Juan suburb.

They said the attack on a lonely road on the outskirts of San Juan was in retaliation for the death of one of the Marxist followers in a federal prison last month.

The communique said the attack on the bus was the work of the "Joint Forces" of the Volunteers for the Puerto Rican Revolution, the Boricua Popular Army (also known as the Macheteros) and the Armed Forces of Popular Resistance.

"We warn the Yankee imperialists that they must respect the life and the security of our prisoners according to the Geneva convention on war," the communique said.

In Washington, President Carter condemned the attack as "a despicable act of murder" and said the FBI and Justice Department would work to find the gunmen.

A Navy spokesman said three women were wounded, one critically, in the ambush on a remote road a quarter-mile from the Sabana Seca communications facility on the outskirts of San Juan. He said one soldier was also critically wounded.

The Navy did not immediately release the names of the dead and injured.

The spokesman said a green pickup truck pulled in front of the yellow school bus with Navy markings carrying the servicemen to routine duty at 5:40 a.m. local time.

The gunmen, apparently using rifles and shotguns, waited in a white van on the road, then opened fire. The raiders fled in the van, leaving the pickup truck behind.

Police later found the van in Levittown, a suburb near San Juan, with a driver spent 24 M-16 shells inside it. Witnesses in Levittown said they saw four men jump out of the van and run across an empty field. Police with balloons later searched the field but found nothing.

Navy officials said the driver of the Navy bus was killed. One of the sailors who escaped injury drove the damaged bus from the site of the attack, a remote, twisting road that runs through grasslands marked by occasional houses into the Sabana Seca installation, the spokesman said.

A Navy spokesman said the wounded were at the hospital at the Roosevelt Roads Navy Base in Eastern Puerto Rico. The two persons seriously wounded were taken to Veterans Hospital, where a hospital spokesman said they were in "stable" condition and expected to recover. Another three persons were only slightly injured and were treated and released.

MENTIONS the attack, an anonymous phone caller gave UP-I the location of the terrorists' commune in a bus stop in Santurce, a residential and commercial neighborhood of San Juan.

The pro-independence groups have been campaigning for three years for removal of the Navy from Vieques.

Auto production slumps

DETROIT (UPI) — U.S. auto production in November fell 25.5 percent below last year's levels — a decline in output analysis expect will be equally severe this month.

Ford Motor Co., which has 11 of its 15 domestic assembly plants shut down this week, led the slump with a drop in November production of 49.1 percent from last November.

Only American Motors Corp. and Volkswagen of America Inc. built more cars last month than in the same period last year.

Reports Monday from the five domestic automakers showed November production of 631,886 cars, down 25.5 percent from 848,253 in November of 1978.

Output by Ford, General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. was off 27.4 percent.

AMC said it produced 17,032 cars in November, up 43.7 percent from 11,893 last year.

Volkswagen reported estimated production of 15,276 U.S.-built Rabbits in November, up 53.7 percent from last year's factory startup figures.

Domestic car production in the first 11 months of 1979 stood at 7,532,842, down 4.5 percent from the same period of 1978.

FTC charges deception

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission Monday accused the makers of the Water Pik of deceiving consumers by claiming the mouth-cleaning device will significantly reduce gum disease.

It also said Teledyne Inc., the manufacturer, and its advertising agency, J. Walter Thompson Co., falsely advertised that four of every five dentists recommended the Water Pik as a means of preventing gum disease.

Mosque cleared at last

LONDON (UPI) — Saudi forces flushed the last Muslim fanatics out of the Grand Mosque of Mecca Monday and the government announced that all "renegades" who seized the shrine have been arrested or killed.

But reports from travelers returning to London from Saudi Arabia indicated Shiite Muslim unrest spread last week beyond Mecca and to an area around the kingdom's vital oilfields — the first such disturbances since 1956.

Today's weather

Clouds, mild temperatures for next few days

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome, Gooding areas:
Variable cloudiness through Wednesday with areas of valley fog during the late night and early morning. Highs will be from 50 to 55 and lows 30 to 35.

Boise, Caldwell, Hillyer, lower Wood River valley:—lower Considerable cloudiness through Wednesday with a few light rain or snow showers. Patchy valley fog at night. Highs will be in the 40s with lows in the 20s.

Synopsis:
Milder temperatures and cloudy skies prevailed in Idaho Monday in the wake of a wet weekend which brought copious amounts of rain or snow to most of the state.

A deepening low pressure area off the coast of Oregon will continue to pump surges of moisture into the Northwest, brushing northern Idaho and moving into Canada.

Temperatures Monday afternoon climbed near the 50 degree mark; with the warmest 53 at Grangeville. Preston's 13 was the state's coldest. A few showers lingered over the panhandle on Monday, remnants of the system which crossed the state Sunday. Heaviest precipitation was reported at Headquarters, 1.32 inch, and at Bovill with almost an inch.

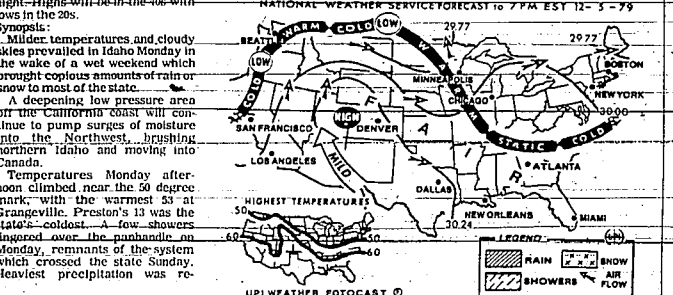

Elsewhere in the nation Monday, the warmest spot was Monrovia, Calif., with a temperature of 87 degrees. Gunnison, Colo., was the coldest at 4 below zero.

For the northern sections of Utah and Nevada, today's high cloudiness will increase on Wednesday with a chance of rain or snow showers then and on Thursday.

Temperatures will range from highs in the 50s to lows near or below freezing.

The extended forecast for southern Idaho from Thursday through Saturday calls for a few mountain snow showers on Thursday and showers, mostly dry.

Temperatures will be slightly above normal with highs 35 to 45 degrees and lows in the 20s to low 30s.

Chief slain in shootout

MEQUON, Wis. (UPI) — A police chief who substituted himself for two hostages was killed by the abductor in a flurry of gunfire apparently triggered by a sharpshooter's missed shot, officials indicated Monday.

Mequon Police Chief Thomas Buntrock, 42, and the abductor, Anthony "Tracy" Johnson, 19, son of Milwaukee policemen, were slain in the tense drama Sunday night in this northern Milwaukee suburb.

Johnson, a fugitive from a halfway house where he was awaiting sentencing on a sexual assault charge, apparently fired the fatal shots into Buntrock as the chief came at him after the sharpshooter's missed shot.

Johnson was slain by several shots from police.

Kennedy brings Iran out of campaign closet

By United Press International
Sen. Edward Kennedy's critical comments Monday on the shah and past U.S. policy toward Tehran appeared the final step in bringing the 17th issue out of the campaign closet. Kennedy, while not attacking President Carter's handling of the hostage situation, joined other candidates who have less directly criticized past U.S. support for Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Many who have expressed doubt about Carter's policy by implication also seemed more than happy to use Kennedy's comments to take the Massachusetts Democrats to task for possibly endangering the hostages.

Carter would not discuss Kennedy's statement. Robert Strauss, his campaign chairman, said he didn't think Kennedy had meant to be "divisive," but added that such statements could be dangerous.

Strauss said they run the risk of giving the Iranians and others "who don't understand this nation" a chance to "misinterpret" Kennedy's remarks to mean that the country is not united behind Carter.

Strauss said he thought Kennedy was "confused" when he made the statement, but declined to say if he agreed with the senator's assessment of the shah was not worth defending.

Since the embassy in Tehran was seized Nov. 4, Carter has asked — and candidates mostly have agreed — not to make the incident a campaign issue so a united front could be presented against Iran.

Kennedy did not tackle the hostage issue in his interview on KRON-TV in San Francisco, but strongly condemned the shah — whom the Iranians want exchanged — for the hostages — for executing opponents — and stealing billions of dollars from his people.

Kennedy said he did not think the United States should be forced to "defend the shah," adding he did not believe that raising the issue would endanger the hostages.

In recent days several candidates including Republicans Ronald Reagan and John Connally and California Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown — have implied criticism of Carter's approach, calling for a stronger foreign policy.

Connally has decerted what he calls appeasement around the world by the administration and Reagan has suggested the shah be offered permanent political asylum in this country.

But Connally said Monday he would not criticize Carter on Iran and added "I am sure the Ayatollah Khomeini is pleased to hear Senator Kennedy's remarks."

Brown said Kennedy had shown

"very poor judgment" in his remarks about the shah.

"This is a time to stand behind the president and to demonstrate support for the safety of American hostages in Iran," Brown said in a statement issued in Sacramento.

Other Republican aspirants — such as Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., Rep. Phillip Crane, R-Ill., and former CIA Director George Bush — have been more restrained.

U.S. turns down apology by Libya

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States rejected Monday as "inadequate" Libya's apology for the burning of the U.S. embassy by a mob in Tripoli, and pondered options that ranged to breaking diplomatic relations.

"So far, the government of Libya has not assumed its responsibility or the threat to the persons who resulted from the inadequate protection given the embassy," said State Department spokesman Hodding

Carter.

Carter said the Libyan government expressed its regret over the incident and offered an apology "but it did not indicate a wish to consider compensation... and refused to accept responsibility."

In a note delivered to the State Department Monday, the Libyan government said: "What happened (in Tripoli) was the result of a spontaneous demonstration that the students had and such an accident will not take place in the future."

The note said that the Libyan government already expressed its regrets about the incident. However, in the note and in a meeting in Tripoli with the U.S. charge d'affaires, William Bagaton, the Libyans did not accept responsibility for failing to protect the embassy.

On the situation in Iran, Carter said the administration is assisting deposed Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi in finding a permanent country of asylum but will not send him out of the United States until he has an assured haven.

"We are not going to put him in a rowboat and set him out beyond the continental shelf... we are not going to send him out without a place to go," Carter said.

Carter said the Libyan government also offered to provide extra security for the embassy.

Carter avoids hassle on announcement eve

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the eve of declaring his candidacy for reelection, President Carter declined Monday to argue with Sen. Edward Kennedy over how long the deposed shah of Iran should be allowed to stay in the United States.

But his administration did reply to Kennedy's highly critical comments about the shah's rule, which the presidential challenger called "one of the most violent regimes in history."

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said Kennedy's remarks were "unfortunate and not helpful."

Carter announces his candidacy for a second term today at 12:30 p.m. MST, then attends a $500-a-plate dinner. The crisis over the American diplomats held hostage in Tehran already has forced him to cancel his original plans for a cross-country political tour — following the announcement.

Carter's campaign chairman Robert Strauss, meanwhile, revealed the results of a new ABC-Louis Harris poll, showing a big jump in Carter's standing in recent days.

The poll showed Carter leading Kennedy 42 percent to 40 percent among people who consider themselves Democrats and independents, with California Gov. Edmund G. Brown getting 11 percent.

Among people who consider themselves Democrats — only registered Democrats can vote in party primaries — showed Kennedy leading 44-40 with Brown getting 10 percent.

At the White House Monday, press secretary Jody Powell said he could not breach the restraint which Carter has requested on political debate over Iran.

"You don't realize how bloody my tongue is from being bitten," Powell quipped.

"The president made clear he did not think it appropriate or helpful to be drawn into a political debate on this matter while our people are being held in Iran," he said. "We will have to leave any comment on Kennedy's analysis to others, at least for the time being."

Has postal service turned the corner?

The U.S. Postal Service in the black? You've got to be kidding!
 No, it's true. For the first time in 34 years the U.S. Postal Service just reported a budget surplus of $40 million for fiscal year 1979, an incredible turnaround for an institution which lost $3.5 billion in 1978.

For years the Postal Service has been the whipping boy when it came time to point fingers at the lethargic government bureaucracy. The mail service, or lack of it, has been the butt of every conceivable joke and complaint. The stories of lost mail, crushed packages, or letters showing up years after being mailed are numerous. Everyone, it seems, has a tale of woe about the U.S. Postal Service.

The record of service notwithstanding, Americans for years have gritted their teeth about the cost of using the mails. Service hasn't seemed to get any better, despite massive investments in new equipment which supposedly would make mail sorting and delivery more efficient. Angry congressmen assailed the huge federal subsidies needed to keep the service while the price of sending a letter kept going up.

All this may now have changed. Or, at least the U.S. Postal Service has finally turned the corner.
 What's responsible for the turnaround? Perhaps the question should be who. Postmaster General William Bolger may just be the most effective administrator the postal service has had in years. Known as an innovator, Bolger can claim a lot of credit for making the operation more efficient. He's said there yet, but the results are encouraging.
 In his latest move, Bolger, concerned with rising gasoline costs, will experiment with putting more postmen back on foot instead of delivering by vehicle. The service already has cut back on motorized delivery, saving about $300,000 in gasoline costs. (The postal service uses 350 billion gallons of gasoline a year.) At a time when the entire nation should conserve oil, particularly gasoline, that move should be lauded.

There are no quick-fixes for the postal system. But Bolger has at least proved that an administrator with know-how and backbone can take the worst bureaucracy has to offer and give it hope.

After all these years, it's nice to be able to say something good about the postal system.

The highest priority

Washington - President Carter struck his most recent note in his own conference discussion of the actions of Iran that he said "have shocked the civilized world." Firm in condemning these outrages, restrained but properly warning about their consequences, he also seized the opportunity to make the fundamental point - that "our overwhelming and excessive dependence on foreign oil makes the nation vulnerable to such tactics and endangers its security."

He made clear that his "constant concern is the well-being and safety" of these being held hostage, and avoided any suggestion that some dramatic rescue move was about to be made, or could have any chance of getting the hostages out alive. While expressing American determination to stand fast against terrorist tactics, he did not - as congressional sources said he had done the day before - declare "the honor of the country" as being primarily at stake.

The national honor is, of course, very much involved in the sense that, as Carter told congressional leaders, "there are conditions, prices for the release of the hostages; that this country will not pay."

Here in the United States, medical reports suggest the shah may be able to return to Iran within a few days, removing the immediate cause of the crisis. Some may hope that his departure will lead to the release of the hostages; but the possibility exists that it could have a sort of reverse effect.

Hostages are taken in order to achieve some purpose - ostensibly in this case, the return of the shah to Iran for trial. If the captives, while seeking such an objective, were to kill their hostages, they would be destroying their own weapon. But if the objective of the hostages is entirely impossible, then the hostages are no longer of use to their captors.

Thus, when the shah has returned to Iran, and is no longer within the power of the United States - to exchange him for the hostages, the captured Americans could be in great danger - at the hands of a frustrated mob, or through some deliberate policy of retaliation. What the latter might seem madness, the ayatollah in his wicked self-righteousness has shown himself capable of it.

The evacuation of most Americans from a number of Islamic countries, a sensible precaution in any event, also suggests the possibility that the administration fears some stronger action soon may be required. The mob attack on the United States Embassy at Islamabad arose, after all, from the mere rumor - dishonestly started by the ayatollah - of American complicity in the bizarre takeover of the religious shrine at Mecca. It is not hard to imagine what might happen there and in other Moslem countries if the United States, for any reason, felt compelled to launch a military attack on Iran.

The dismissal of Acting Foreign Minister Dan Sadr not only cuts off the incipient prospect of some negotiating forum that he had appeared to raise, but further testifies to the lack of any real order and stability, save the ayatollah's iron will, in Iran. So little is known here of what may be transpiring there that it is even considered possible that spy trials for the hostages might not be so bad; the Iranians might covet them as being spies and straggle them out of the country. In order to not to impasse with an appearance of victory.

No one knows, perhaps not even the ayatollah. In these circumstances, the best course is the present course - calm, caution and honorable concern for the lives of 50 Americans.

Further reflections on Mr. Reagan

Washington - It is not surprising that Mr. Reagan might not know whether a majority whip outranks a minority leader. After all, what did Dwight Eisenhower know about Washington before he became president? And didn't we all like Ike?
 OK, let me return to the theme I was leaving you a month ago, and let me repeat a disclaimer: it is entirely possible that I give too much importance to prior Washington experience.

As the campaign rolls along, Mr. Reagan's most formidable task will be to convince the voters that he has both the wisdom and the knowledge to deal effectively with the Washington machinery. The former California governor has the charm; he has the charisma; he has the serenity that comes with age; his conservative principles are my conservative principles. But the country has, indeed, had the experience of Mr. Carter's inexperience. The gentleman from Georgia arrived in our town in January of 1977, as innocent as a Clinton County route on a Cincinnati midway. In his naïveté, Mr. Carter assumed that being president of the U.S. was just like being governor of Georgia, only more so - it took him three painful years to learn the hard way that Washington isn't an overgrown Atlanta. The differences are not of degree, but of kind.

Mr. Carter had ever served in the House or the Senate, or in the Cabinet, he would not have approached Congress as he did in the spring of 1977. He would not have served up a five-course menu of energy bills and said, Eat this! He would not have insisted on certain rural votes for every single bill - and almost Consumer Protection Agency - against the advice of his House speaker. If Mr. Carter had known then what he knows now, he would not have launched his administration without first making peace with such baronial fellows as Russell Long of Louisiana and Frank Rosten of Kentucky.

History is made by human beings who react to other human beings. Knowing how to move men, to attract them to one's cause, to win and hold their support, is among the first arts of politics. Mr. Carter knew something of this in Georgia, as Mr. Reagan knows something of this in California, but Washington demands a different kind of knowing. In the jungle of federal politics, men do not communicate in ordinary ways; they communicate by cracking their knuckles. On Capitol Hill, you don't roll logs; they roll their eyes instead.

The other Republican candidates, Mr. Reagan excepted, know these things. Howard Baker, John Connally, George Bush, Bill Crane, John Anderson, Robert Dole, even the neophyte Larry Boye from South Dakota - all of them know something of the Byzantine ruses of committee staff, lobbyists, children, press people, movers and shakers through which power winds its way. They know where bodies are buried, in the legislative graveyard. It is wonderfully useful information.

Perhaps Governor Reagan can demonstrate his mastery of these matters as we go along. With a quick study, he may be able to grasp the essential details of health insurance, welfare reform, tax law and budgetary control, the kind of solid response knowledgeably to the fact questions that will be asked. The same possibilities obtain in the complex fields of foreign affairs. But I dunno, I dunno.

The example of Eisenhower will not hold water. By the time the general ran for president in 1952, he had established a personal relationship with every leader in the world. He had served in the Pentagon as chief of staff. He had treated with key committees of the House and Senate. He was deeply involved in the process of governing, in the pending campaign, the question will soon be asked. Who has Governor Reagan been governing lately?

Who's against conservation?

WILDER - My faithful critic, Harold Miles of Nampa, has struck again. In a recent letter to the editor, he wondered about why "I was opposed to conservation of energy."
 As usual, Harold is fogging up the story. None of us are against conservation in this day and age. That practice is an important contributor to our precarious energy situation.
 Where Mr. Miles and I differ is in our perception of what motivates a person to turn down the thermostat or sign for a car pool.
 I believe that the only dependable long-term force in promoting conservation is the marketplace. All the jaw-breaking which can be conjured up for the public will make only a tiny impression on the buying public.
 One prominent editorial writer in this state maintains that the market "heavy" has been approved because gasoline has doubled in price with little apparent decrease in consumption. This, says the world of this wrong with his thesis. One, non-essential travel has been reduced somewhat - the other and more cogent fact is that inflation has accounted for at least half the increase in gas prices in recent years.
 Gasoline costs $1.50 per gallon in France. That country has achieved remarkable success in promoting a reduction in oil consumption. I hope that we Americans are not subjected to such an unbearable price through taxation - but the example proves that market forces do work.
 Governmental officials and employees are not constrained by the same pocketbook incentive. They are riding at the expense of the taxpayer. It is here that the public servants should respond to their own preaching. I believe that governmental travel could be cut in half and that no reduction in essential services would occur.

Phil Batt, a Republican, is Idaho's conservation editor.

Don Quixote

Editor, Times-News:
 "Don Quixote" is not dead. He is alive and lives in Washington, courtesy of Idaho voters.
 At a time of crisis, a situation that requires delicacy and tact can be compromised by the bluntness of an ineffectual.
 I am referring to George Hansen's trip to Iran - of course, we may not see lucky and the Iranians may just keep old George. In not, the voters in Idaho should return him to the obscurity he so richly deserves.
 I believe, ED MUNDSON

Hostages first

Editor, Times-News:
 Lately we have all been hearing about and watching the situation in Iran. We have also been hearing about the release of the hostages. Many people are angry because of Hansen's diplomatic efforts. Many people demand strong military action against the Iranians. I am as angry as the next person about the embassy being taken over and the hostages prevailing. We must think of the safety of the hostages first. Then, after they have been released, then, I believe, we should seek just retaliation from Iran, whether it be by military action or otherwise. It will not help to put up an Iranian student. They are not responsible for the takeover. I believe we should stand strong against this oppression. We must

Uppy teachers

Editor, Times-News:
 The Times-News of Wednesday November 21, 1979, had an article written by Jan D. Knewock, Boise (UPI) headed, "Teachers ask Legislature to save schools."
 It evidently was an interview with Willie Sullivan, President of the Idaho Education Association. It raised my hackles to say the least. He starts out by asking for a 13.2% increase in salary - that is, a crisis in education. He says that the Legislature doesn't take appropriate action." Sullivan, however, said his organization's decision to close schools in the state is "not a threat." If these words aren't a threat then what in blazes are they? He also wants the legislature to repeal the 1% tax cut law, and increase the state tax.

 Evidently Sullivan isn't very well read. I would suggest to him that he start reading the daily paper as well as Reader's Digest, U.S. News and World Report, and other national news magazines and find out exactly how people feel about some of our teachers.
 We have some real good teachers, we have some who are (click watch) and the only reason they are teaching is because they have TENURE. They are the ones who are always crying for more pay, fewer students, less hours. In other words the people the average employer would fire the first day on the job. WHY TENURE they can't be. The school superintendents know who they are and can't do a thing about them. I suggest we, the Idaho taxpayers, ask the legislature to do away with tenure in this session.
 Perhaps then we can and will get teachers who will teach and not graduate functional illiterates and debate why they can't read above the 6th grade level.
 My personal opinion? I think it's about time the teachers and Sullivan start telling their employer's what they have done for their present salary, without asking or threatening to close our schools. Twin Falls taxpayers, I don't give a hoot how you vote on your city manager. I suggest we keep talking to Willie Sullivan. He is getting too big for his pants.

High court refuses appeals in paper, novel libel cases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday handed setbacks to both newspapers and novelists by refusing to hear appeals in two separate libel cases.

The justices declined to consider a challenge by two Albuquerque newspapers to a judge's requirement that they disclose confidential sources in articles linking a local lawyer to organized crime.

The papers say the order forced them to divulge sources who asked their names be kept secret, and whose information was not used in the stories.

In the other case, over three dissents, the justices refused to take up an author's challenge to a ruling that she could be sued for libel for a book she says is fictional.

In other actions Monday, the court: Let stand the conviction of an Oregon professor for an author-bombing conspiracy. He said the verdict was based mainly on evidence he had read a book about revolutionary activity.

Let stand an Illinois ruling that a man unable to do heavy lifting is not a handicapped person entitled to protection against job discrimination.

Refused to review a $1 million fee award to a lawyer by a computer-equipment company to appeal the loss of a $260 million judgment against IBM.

Denied a request by Burlington Northern railroad to review a federal government order that it refund $4 million to its shippers.

Court issues wide variety of rulings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court issued dozens of orders Monday including:

Agreed to hear a government appeal from a ruling blocking its product safety agency from releasing accident data on operating television sets.

Let stand a lower-court decision that Shell Oil Co. could be held liable for an explosion that occurred on an offshore oil drilling platform it owned but did not operate.

Turned down an appeal from a small order firm challenging a Federal Trade Commission order requiring it to have written proof before advertising the safety or characteristics of products.

Let stand a state court ruling that a federal law banning companies from drilling in the Pigeon River Country Forest.

Property: Let stand a lower-court ruling that property owners may not sue Sacramento for money damages following the rezoning of their land as open space.

Government benefits: Let stand a lower-court ruling that the government does not have to pay belated Social Security benefits to recipients after the death of a blind or disabled who died before receiving them.

Let stand a lower-court ruling that an "obscure" Mississippi man who has not worked for more than 25 years is barred from applying for disability benefits.

Let stand an Illinois ruling that a man unable to perform heavy lifting is not a handicapped person entitled to protection against job discrimination.

Criminal: Set aside a Kentucky court decision overturning the robbery conviction of Norwood Wells and sent the case back to the lower courts for further action.

Refused to order the release of a convicted bank robber from jail while full-scale appeal is pending before the high court.

Refused to disturb a Chicago tax protester's conviction for failing to supply the government with federal income tax information.

Let stand a lower-court ruling that an inmate may sue Nassau County, N.Y., for violating his civil rights when he allegedly was beaten by prison guards.

Let stand the conviction of a Florida man attempting to bribe the administrative judge of the Pinellas County Circuit Court.

Refused to review the narcotics conviction of a New York man who argued authorities improperly handled wiretap material in his case.

Turned down separate appeals from two inmates in Texas, including a man convicted of committing a murder when he was 17.

Over three dissents, refused to review the convictions of four men for conspiring to distribute obscene films in interstate commerce.

Secret tests run over city streets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A CIA Army team using truck suitcases and a car with a dual muffler sprayed an unknown substance in New York City streets and the Holland and Lincoln tunnels in 1966, UPI learned Monday.

The scope of Operation Big City, code name for the secret open air testing, was uncovered during a four-month investigation by researchers of the Church of Scientology. UPI obtained an advance summary of the full report, which will be released today to pertinent Congressional committees, the Army and CIA.

Agreed to review a 12-year-old dispute over water-irrigation rights of landowners with more than 160 acres in California's Imperial Valley.

The New Mexico newspaper case arose when criminal lawyer William Marchiondo filed suit in 1976 seeking $8 million in damages from the Albuquerque Journal and the Albuquerque Tribune for articles he claimed were defamatory.

During pretrial proceedings, Marchiondo's lawyers asked the newspapers to disclose all sources of information available to reporters in preparing the articles.

The newspapers refused, and in January state Judge Richard Traub ordered them to answer questions about confidential sources.

Eric Lanphere, lawyer for the Albuquerque papers, said the publications had not complied with Traub's orders at the time legal papers were filed with the Supreme Court, but now have done so.

One confidential source consented to become public "but we still have confidential source problems," he said.

Lanphere said the court probably refused the case because the judge had not taken final action in the case. "I suspect we'll be back up there," he said.

Another case raising the same issue may arrive at the high court shortly. The Idaho Supreme Court is reviewing a judgment of $1.9 million against the Twin Falls Times-News for refusing to reveal its confidential sources in a libel suit brought by the Sierra Life Insurance Co.

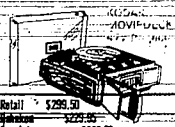

In the fiction case, the Supreme Court let stand a $75,000 award to Paul Blindrim, known as the "father of the nude marathon," who claimed he was libeled in the book "Touching," by Gwen Davis Mitchell.

Mrs. Mitchell and her publisher, Doubleday, had appealed on grounds the book was a fictional treatment of the nude therapy movement, in which people shed their clothes to overcome their inhibitions, and did not libel Blindrim.

Hearing of the court's action, Mrs. Mitchell said publishers "are going to be completely fearful of publishing anything that smacks of any kind of reality, which most good literature does."

The Writers Guild of America predicted the high court's failure to act in the case would "stifle creativity." Justices William Brennan, Potter Stewart and Thurgood Marshall wanted to hear the appeal, but were unable to muster the required fourth vote.

The Noteworthy Phone. The phone that puts your message in writing.

Just in time for Christmas comes the most practical phone in years... The Noteworthy Phone from Mountain Bell.

It's a novel Christmas idea that'll be appreciated from the moment it's plugged in. There's a magnetic blackboard panel, so phone messages or reminders can be written without fumbling for pen and paper. Or if you prefer, you can interchange a corkboard panel instead. There's even a special storage area to keep the phone book close at hand, yet out of the way.

The illuminated Touch-Tone® or rotary dial is built right into the handset. So calls can be made from just about anywhere in the room. And any decor is accentuated by the Noteworthy's color options of white, yellow, rust or dark brown. Plus, since Mountain Bell owns the internal parts, we'll fix them free if anything ever goes wrong.

The Noteworthy is just one of many different Design Line® phones available for Christmas. You can find out more and see them up close at any Mountain Bell Phone Center Store. But remember, quantities of some phones are limited, so you'll want to shop early.

*Trademark of AT&T Co. In some areas, slight additional charges may apply for extension and Touch-Tone® service (if available).

Be choosy. Choose genuine Bell.

It's not often that Merv Griffin needs armed guards to tape his talk show, but then it's not often he has such babbles on display as he did in preparation for his Christmas special in New York. The subject was unique yuletide gift ideas — $500,000 worth. Among them, a set of solid gold and ruby-worry beads price-tagged at $50,000. Quipped Griffin, "These are gift ideas for our Arab viewers — especially since they have to worry about..."

DEBBIE REYNOLDS
...no scripts for her

She's suing him — for $2.54 billion.

TAMMY GROWS UP

She's come a long way from her days as "Tammy" — but Debbie Reynolds says the film industry hasn't — and that's why she's through with movies. Said the 47-year-old Miss Reynolds Sunday in Singapore, after wrapping up a concert series in Australia, "They do not write scripts for women of my age any more." She says she roles now are strictly for youngsters — like daughter Carrie Fisher who recited her mother's star with "Star Wars."

JUST AN ACT

On television's "A-chieve-Bunker's Place," Ann Mearns plays the role of a cook, and she's the first to admit that it's just that — a role. She and husband Jerry Stiller had 35 guests at their home in New York for "Thanksgiving, but she didn't do a thing to the turkey. Says she, "I always have Jerry's family and my family, only in real life I don't cook. I have it catered. It's like Able's Irish Rose — we have a good time."

PIN MONEY

When a woman suddenly is out on her own, she needs a steady job to keep body and soul together. So it's only natural that Soraya Kashoggi will come to New York next week and ask for one. She says she wants work as a photojournalist for Bob Guccione of Penthouse magazine. Barring that, she'll just have to fall back on her lawyer, Marvin Michaelson, to secure a little support money from oil baron and ex-husband Adnan Khashoggi.

Conscience prods thief into action

N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — The thief who broke into Niden Hendry's house in Lodi, N.J., last week and took just about everything of value — cash, jewelry, her late husband's coin collection and service medals, even the money in his bank and envelopes intended for a church collection plate Sunday.
But later, as she pored over an estimated $7,000 in loot, some twinge of conscience must have thrust itself suddenly upon the thief, for on Friday a plain white envelope with a misspelled, hand-scrawled address arrived at the Church of St. John the Divine at 333 Franklin Avenue in Hasbrouck Heights, N.J.
It contained the sealed church-offering envelopes of 60-year-old Mrs. Hendry and her three children, Jane, Sue and John, about $100 total.
The Rev. Dallas Scott, rector of the Episcopal parish, saw a sign of hope in the thief's conduct.
"Whoever it was has some twinge of moral conscience," he said.

The Intrepid "human fly" says he'll lend his name only to a product or cause on which he's thoroughly sold, and while he does a lot of charity work, he isn't sold on much.

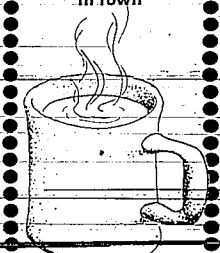

FINESWINE

Four years ago the Pittsburgh Steelers beat the Minnesota Vikings 16-6 in the Super Bowl — and put Philip McClure Jr. in the pig business. He bet a friend a pig on the Steelers — and won Margaret. At first the DeLand, Fla., businessman worked planned to turn his prize sow into pork chops — but she kept having little pigs. Says McClure, who now owns 80 of her offspring, "We'll keep her until she dies. Nobody will ever eat her in their sausage."

FINICKY FLY

George Willig says he didn't climb all the way to the top of New York's World Trade Center — on the outside of the building — just to make money. He's been around — touting his new book, "Going It Alone" — but says so far he's turned down $1 million in commercials and public appearances.

Medics say Flood can face trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A prosecutor said Monday government doctors have found Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., competent to face a bribery retrial — even though his physicians say Flood is addicted to drugs and in failing mental health.

Although the government's evaluation of Flood's mental state is incomplete, prosecutor Mark Tuohy told a federal judge that court-appointed psychiatrists have concluded Flood, 76, "is competent enough to stand trial."

U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch scheduled a hearing on Flood's mental competency for Jan. 14, after the congressman finishes a drug-withdrawal program.

Earlier this month Flood's lawyers filed reports from personal physicians saying he is addicted to barbiturates because of overuse of sedatives in recent years, and is mentally incapable of defending himself at a trial.

Gasch then delayed Flood's retrial until Feb. 25 — more than a year after the first trial ended in a hung jury while psychiatrists determine whether he is competent to stand trial.

Dr. Lamb

Boy, 14, can't get to sleep

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

may be awake a few minutes and it seems like hours.

Dear Dr. Lamb:
I have a healthy, active 14-year-old boy who has been complaining about not being able to sleep, especially on Sunday nights. He seems to get all tense and nervous the night before he starts the school week over again. During the weekdays he sleeps fine. Is there anything that can be done to help him relax and fall asleep?

Dear Reader:
Many people who think they don't sleep very much actually sleep a perfectly normal length of time. Nature plays a little trick on us. We

The only reliable way to measure sleep duration is to do sleep studies on individuals and record how many hours they're asleep as opposed to how many hours they're awake during a normal sleep period. I guess this is something like our reactions to dreams. We think our dreams last for minutes or hours and lots of times, a dream only occupies a few seconds. Our appreciation of time during the sleep phase doesn't seem to be very accurate.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 106, "Sleep and Insomnia." It will give you a lot more information on sleep and what can be done for people who have trouble with sleeping. Other readers who want this issue can send 25 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101.

One of the best aids to improve sleep is to develop regular sleeping habits. That means going to bed at the same time every night. It's a bit like being hungry. We get hungry at specific hours because we're used to eating at exactly that time. Once that time has passed, we may not be hungry. The same is true of going to bed. If you stay up past the time you've become habituated to going to sleep, you may not feel sleepy. To improve sleep, you need to try to eliminate all the stimuli that tends to keep you awake. This means that you need a dark room and should eliminate all the excess sound that's possible.

Exercise is helpful for some people but it must be done during the day or at least a matter of hours before the sleep hour. If you exercise too close to bedtime, your body will still be active and you'll have trouble sleeping.

Mental exercise works about the same way and it could be that your active boy is studying extra hard Sunday evenings and using his brain actively in preparation for the coming school week. Many college students have trouble because of this—it's a good idea to stop doing mental work or mentally absorbing activities for at least an hour before bedtime so the brain can slow down and relax.

In your son's case, it might be well to find out why he gets so excited about the next week of school. Is it because he dreads going to school or does he enjoy it that much? If he dreads it, you really ought to find out and see if you could solve that problem. Anxiety at any age can cause a person to have trouble falling to sleep. If he's having trouble with his school work or with the other children he must deal with at school, this could be a significant factor.

Dear Abby

Fed up with spoiled hams

© The Chicago Tribune-© N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.
DEAR ABBY: In response to ACTRESS, who criticized those in the audience for rushing out of the theater the minute the performance is over instead of sticking around for all the curtain calls:
 I go to the ticket window, lay down my hard-earned money, hoping to get my money's worth in entertainment. I sit through the performance, then down comes the curtain. End of show. Then I get up and leave.
 Why should I either remain in my seat or stand up and keep applauding those egomaniacs and shouting those "Bravo!"s? I should be paid THEM to perform for ME. I should be applauded for rushing out of the theater. Without me, and others like me, they would be in the unemployment line because those ego-loaded showoffs would rather starve to death than do menial work.

Why should entertainers be treated like gods? Have you ever heard of three curtain calls for a neurosurgeon?

JOE'S IN SALEM, N.Y.
DEAR JOE: No. But it could be "curtains" for the patient of a neurosurgeon who turns in a poor performance!

DEAR ABBY: About six months ago my husband started acting nervous and preoccupied. He also started working late at his office and on weekends — something he rarely did.

 We've been married 16 years, have a nice family, and have often said that ours was one of the few really "good" marriages we knew of.

A week ago, I received a phone call in the middle of the afternoon from a woman who refused to identify herself, but said she thought I should know that my husband was having an affair with a young woman who works in his office. Then she mentioned the woman's name. I recalled my husband telling me that he had employed a young, unmarried woman by that name about a year ago. I fell apart.

When my husband came home, I told him about the call and knew from his reaction that it was true. I cried. He cried, too, and then confessed that he had had an affair with her, but broke it off two weeks ago, telling her it was a regrettable mistake, and he would get her a job elsewhere. He said she seemed to accept his decision. Then he asked me to listen in on the telephone extension while he called someone. I did. I recognized the voice at once as the woman who had phoned me. She called, hoping I would throw my husband out and give her a clear field!

I've forgiven my husband, but I'm still hurting some. I'm glad I didn't act foolishly in haste. Perhaps some other wife will be wiser for my experience.

If you print this, please don't use my name.

GETTING OVER IT

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to WOMAN FOR MOTHERHOOD — the worst! She wanted a baby but had no husband or boyfriend, so she was considering asking a fellow to do her a favor and father her child. You told her "scrap the idea!" Why?
 If a woman wants a baby, why should she have to marry a man she may not love just to have one? If she's longing for motherhood, married or not, that's the time to do something about it.

Today a woman has the right to have an abortion if she wants one, so why shouldn't she have the right to have a baby if that's what she wants?

FREEDOM FOR ALL!
DEAR ABBY: I'm all for a woman's right to have a baby if she wants one. But I could not in good conscience go along with her idea of "asking a fellow to do her a favor" to achieve motherhood!

Do you hate to write letters of condolences, congratulations, and thanks? It's not difficult when you let Abby guide you in her booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (29 cent) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Pisceans should settle serious matters at home, be wise with finances

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning is good for making long-range plans to have increased security in the days ahead. Some obstacles will require patience and chance to work out to your satisfaction.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Put good ideas to work that will improve your relationships with associates. Handle outside affairs early in the day for best results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): You are able handle important financial matters very well but be careful of obstacles in the path of your progress.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Envision what you want to accomplish and then follow through with well-formulated plans. Be sure to safeguard your health.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Know what you want to do specially and then follow through. Listen to what one of much experience has to suggest.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Good day to see many of your closest friends and quietly plan for the future. Personal aims are best pursued later in the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Show your ability at handling public affairs and others will appreciate your talents. Later you can solve a personal problem.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You can delve right into new ideas and get excellent results. Handle some problems that may arise. Handle them quickly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Find a better way of handling agreements you have made and later get others to assist you. Come to a better understanding with mate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Plan how to have more accord with associates. Avoid one who is detrimental to your program. Don't neglect your health.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Study your work well and concentrate on that which will be most profitable to you. Come to a fine agreement with associates.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Plan amendments you like and have a delightful time with congenials. Handle any business matters most intelligently.

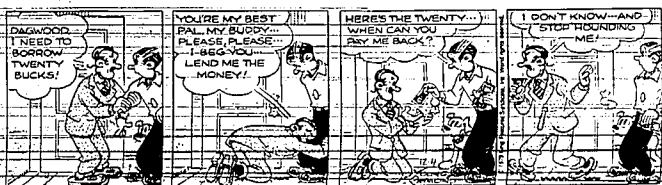

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Straighten out serious matters at home and have more happiness there. Be sure to handle financial matters wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one with a brilliant mind and therefore should have as fine an education as possible. There is much inventive ability here and the body must keep pace with the mind. Give good religious training to guide the life properly.

Store owner started Santa Claus tradition

What you can't identify the first department store Santa Claus? He was James Edgar of Brockton, Mass., in 1890, that was. He owned the Boston Store there. And he donned the costume himself to start the tradition.

Observed Baltimore Rugby Club Coach Harry Blah: "Golf is a beastly game played by gentlemen. Soccer is a gentlemanly game played by beasts. Football is a beastly game played by beasts."

Police researchers now say most highway deaths are caused either by drivers who go too fast for the road or too slow for the traffic.

PRICES

Q. How come most all the stores put prices like $4.98 instead of an even $5 or $4.95 instead of an even $10 on their goods? It's some sort of psychological gimmick to make the buyers think they're paying less?

A. That's not it. The custom got started years ago about the time those traveling tubes were first introduced to transfer cash from the counter on the sales floor to a central cashier's booth. Sales clerks were tending money right and left, pocketing the payments from customers who simply handed over the exact price. Management decided to reprise everything so that the buyers in most cases would have to be given change. This forced the clerks to get the change from the central cashier and turn it over to the buyers on the spot. It worked. In-house thefts dropped off remarkably.

Iranian crisis wilts stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market wilted under the tension of the Iranian crisis Monday, sending prices lower despite a decline in interest rates. Trading was moderate. The Dow Jones Industrial average, a 9.29-point loser Friday, fell another 2.73 points to 819.62. Despite Friday's loss, the Dow gained 10.58 points overall last week. The New York Stock Exchange index advanced 0.17 to 60.54 and the price of a share slipped 9 cents. Declines topped advances, 620 to 607, among the 1,902 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

With the Iranian crisis having repercussions in Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Bangkok, Calcutta, Manila and other countries, many investors remained on the sidelines to await further developments. Brokers said investors also are concerned over how much OPEC will raise its oil prices at its Dec. 17 meeting. Iran is trying to persuade the members to abandon the dollar as the main currency for payment. This is one reason the greenback headed lower in Europe and gold soared $15 an ounce in London. Investors are encouraged banks are lowering their prime rate. The prevailing rate is now 1/2 percent; down from 3/4 percent. Observers say the rate may drop even further soon. Big Board volume totaled 23,030,000 shares, down from the 30,480,000 traded Friday. Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 39,059,490 shares, down from the 32,433,360 Friday. The American Stock Exchange index rose 0.31 to 228.09 and the price of a share added 2 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ composite OTC index lost 0.40 to 143.88.

Under attack, dollar plunges

By United Press International
The dollar plummeted to a record low against the West German mark Monday and fell to its lowest level since Oct. 30, 1978 against other currencies in selling fueled by what one analyst called "a full-scale economic attack" on the United States by Iranian interests.
Gold soared $16.50 an ounce in London to close at $432.25 from $416.75 Friday. In Zurich gold closed at $429.00 from $416.75 Friday. In New York it closed at $432.25 an ounce.
Gold's price rise began at the opening in Europe and held throughout the day.
William E. Sibson, vice president of Smith Barney Hardware, called the incident an "economic attack on the Iranian crisis" — a full-scale attack on U.S. economic leadership throughout the world. Iran, and Iranian interests, are trying to reduce the dollar's preeminence as both a transaction and investment.
In Frankfurt, where a dealer said the attack on the U.S. embassy in Libya "gave a new twist to the affair," the dollar fell to 1.7088 at the close of Friday's 1.7305. The previous low was 1.7235, set at the close of Oct. 30, 1978.

The dollar was also at its lowest point in more than a year on other markets.
In Paris it fell to 4.02 French francs from 4.0875; in Zurich to 1.8530 Swiss francs from 1.9006; in Brussels to 28.476 Belgian francs from 29.715; in Milan to 346.55 lire from $15.10; and in Amsterdam to 1.8395 guilders from 1.875.
In London the pound rose to its best level against the dollar since September — $2.2130 from $2.195 Friday.
Tokyo's "dollar" fell modestly in reaction to what Tokyo banking sources would say was "a wave of yen buying by foreign banks."
The dollar closed at 248.90 yen, down from 249.50 at Friday's close.
The Canadian dollar benefited from the weakness of its U.S. counterpart, rising to 858.8 U.S. cents from 854.6 Friday.

Aid request required

Most parents are applying and find out how to apply for aid. You'll probably be told to file a Financial Aid Form (FAF) or the Family Financial Statement (FFS). Use the form to apply for all regular programs and have it sent to all schools where you think you need aid. Some financial aid directors may ask you to file a supplement with more facts.

- Obtain the FAF or FFS from your child's guidance counselor or financial aid officer at one of the schools you are considering.
- Follow instructions; report your income, debts, expenses, assets, number of children in family and college. Include heavy expenses, such as those related to family members handicaps. Note: You will not have to wipe out your assets to pay for college. Depending on age and other factors, $10,000 to $40,000 of your assets may be "protected." After that, only 12 percent of your remaining assets is considered in determining your financial strength.
- Use the form to apply for the Basic Grants Program by checking the appropriate box. You probably will not get all the aid you need from the Basic Grants Program, so it is wise to use the form to apply for as much as you can.
- On the form, list all schools and programs that should receive your financial information.
- As soon after Jan. 1 as possible, send the application to the appropriate national processing agency, as directed. Pay the processing fee. Keep a copy of your form for your records. The agency will calculate what portion of the total cost you can afford to pay, after taking various special circumstances into account.

Jerome man dies in fire

Heating pad malfunctions

JEROME — An 86-year-old Jerome man died in his apartment Monday after flames broke from a fire caused by a malfunctioning electric heating pad.

Police Chief Howard DuBois identified the dead man as Frank Anderson, a resident of LeRoy, one of a senior citizen housing development in northeastern Jerome.

Jerome County Coroner James Babcock said it appears the victim died of smoke inhalation, although the exact cause of death has not been determined.

DuBois said Anderson was found dead in his bathroom by police and firemen who arrived shortly after the fire. Police and fire departments were called at 11:30 a.m. The bathroom is located across the hall from the bedroom where the heating pad apparently started out and set the bed linen to smoldering, he added.

"It would appear from all that we could ascertain that he had been dead a short time when officers arrived, probably less than an hour," DuBois estimated. He said there appeared to be no possibility of foul play in the death.

The police chief said the fire apparently started about 7:30 a.m. There were no burn marks on the victim, DuBois said, indicating that he was in another room of the ground-level apartment when he discovered the fire.

DuBois speculated that Anderson may have gone to the bathroom when he smelled the smoke, didn't realize how bad the smoke was, and was overcome.

Fire Chief Lynn Brigham said he had no estimate of damage to the apartment, but he said there was just smoke damage. Apartments on either side of Anderson's were not damaged, he said.

VA okays renovation in Boise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. George Hansen said Monday he has received word from the Veterans Administration a $2 million project has been approved for the renovation of the VA Hospital in Boise.

Hansen said according to a tentative agreement the VA will award a construction contract in March 1980 for updating two wards of the 67 at the facility.

The wards are presently surgical wards and will be renovated into patient bedrooms to accommodate one, two and four beds. Also included in the renovation will be the installation of air conditioning and the upgrading of the nurse call systems and lavatory facilities.

Church slates holiday parties

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church is sponsoring five Christmas parties for Idaho senior citizens, beginning Friday in Idaho Falls.

Parties will be held in: Idaho Falls on Friday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Hotel Idaho; Coeur d'Alene on Saturday from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Student Union Building at North Idaho College.

Parties will also be held in: Pocatello on Dec. 10 from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Hilton Hotel; Twin Falls on Dec. 14 from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Holiday Inn; Boise on Dec. 15 from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center.

Hospital asks building comment Monday

BY BEN MCKELVEY
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Memorial Hospital's building committee will meet in open session at 8 p.m. Monday, inviting suggestions and criticisms from the general public on the proposed massive renovation of the hospital.

The committee, whose members include two doctors and seven hospital board members, will meet in the conference room on the second floor of the hospital.

The public comment session comes earlier than originally planned because Burns wants to speed up the adoption of the Magic Valley Building Plan. If the plan can be finalized at the Jan. 21 board meeting, construction could probably begin by late summer, he said.

Although the proposed renovation plan prepared by a subsidiary architect, William Burns as well as seven hospital management company, recommends extensive renovation rather than the abandonment of the current facility, Burns said abandonment is still a possibility if the cost estimates indicate building a whole new hospital would be less expensive. He hopes to have some cost estimates in time for Monday's meeting, he added.

Burns, who said there are still two schools of thought in the renovation vs. new facility controversy, said renovation could take three years but a new hospital could be built in 18 months. While renovation would keep the hospital close to existing doctors' offices, it would inconvenience staff and patients, Burns said. And moving it all at once into a new facility would be much easier than the gradual shifting of departments required by the renovation plan, he added.

The only practical way to fund the renovation is with bonds issued by the Idaho Health Facilities Authority, Burns said. During the renovation, the hospital would be temporarily leased to the state agency, which would later lease the improved building back to Twin Falls County until the bonds are paid off with hospital revenues, he said. The interest on these bonds would be relatively low because it is exempt from state and federal income taxes.

Another funding option would be a bond issue approved by a public referendum. Burns said he doubts such a referendum would pass, however. County voters have voted down two such proposals already, in February and November of 1974.

The renovation plan is the result of a three-month study that looks Magic Valley's population trends into account, projecting admission rates to the year 2000. The statistics show the hospital is becoming more regional, attracting more patients from outside of Twin Falls County. The study finds the building structurally sound but lists deficiencies of the 28-year-old hospital and recommends changes that would give every department more space and net the hospital an additional 45 beds.

In the basement, the kitchen and cafeteria would be renovated and enlarged. On the first floor, a new, larger emergency department would replace the current emergency room. This and the surgery and intensive care/coronary care units would be located in a new addition built onto the back of the hospital. All outpatient services would also be located on the first floor in order to reduce noise and hall traffic. The number of outpatients has been rising in recent years, the study shows. Also on the first floor, the radiology and physical therapy departments will be expanded.

On the second floor, the addition would house a new 31-bed surgical unit. A 51-bed unit for medical patients, those who are not in the hospital for an operation, would be directly above it on the third floor.

The third floor would also house the respiratory therapy and cardiology departments, according to the proposal, but Burns said the pharmacy would be more practical in that spot. The cardio-pulmonary unit will probably be on the first floor instead, he said, adding that all the proposed floor plans are still general concepts and allow changes.

The proposed addition would not rise as far as the fourth floor, which would be set aside for orthopedics after the renovation.

And the fifth floor, now a 35-bed surgical unit, would be converted to 18 private rooms.

A new, separate power plant building would house heating and cooling equipment. The current boilers located in the basement, are inefficient, inadequate to heat an expanded facility, and require 24-hour attendance due to the lack of modern automatic controls, the report says.

The hospital's standby generator is now loaded beyond its rated capacity and also has to be upgraded, according to the report.

Kentucky Fried Chicken representative Bernard Tanner pleads for Twin Falls City Council approval of a drive-through window for that restaurant

Now up to county to act

Council okays impact area

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council Monday approved the city's area of impact.

That settles the issue from the city's standpoint, although the County Commissioners, if the appeals board seek relief in the courts.

The appeal process is the approval of the county commission, Mayor Leon Smith said.

The council also approved a special use permit allowing a drive through window at a new Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant along Blue Lakes Boulevard-North and Blue Lakes Circle.

The Planning and Zoning Commission in October rejected the proposal. Residents along Blue Lake Circle objected to the project, citing an adverse increase in traffic.

KFC representative Bernard Tanner said the company had agreed to widen Blue Lakes Circle from 19 to 30 feet as well as provide sidewalks.

But Tanner repeated their objections to the increased traffic. John Carlson of Twin Falls said the increase would compound difficulty in entering Blue Lakes proper from Blue Lakes Circle.

The council did, however, attach six conditions to the permit including:

- KFC widens Blue Lakes Circle as proposed.
- Prohibit exiting traffic from turning left onto Blue Lakes Boulevard.
- The restaurant must close before midnight.
- The restaurant must provide landscaping and install screen fencing on the east side.

The council delayed action on two other items, the proposed comprehensive plan and a proposed 24-county migrant housing project in the South Park area.

The comprehensive plan was placed on the council's first reading calendar while a three-member subcommittee was appointed to study several problem areas with the plan.

Council members Talkington and Mary McClusky were appointed to the panel as was councilman-elect Paul Newton.

At an earlier work session, the council discussed at length how to address non-conforming uses in commercial areas that will be designated residential under the plan.

While the committee may propose changes within two weeks, major changes may require yet another public hearing, City Attorney Charles Brunbach said. The plan has already been the subject of two such hearings.

The proposed migrant housing project was placed on the second reading calendar, and a final vote could take place at the council's Dec. 17 meeting.

Candidate lists assets

Jones: $1 million plus

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Thanks to a law firm, a family cattle business, a feed lot operation and land investments, Jim Jones is entering the 2nd District Congress race with assets and investments totaling more than $1 million.

Against those assets are bank loans for business and land mortgages worth somewhere between a quarter and a half million dollars.

Candidates for congress and incumbent congressmen are required by the Ethics in Government Act to file yearly disclosures of their financial liabilities. Jones, who will challenge incumbent Congressman George Hansen in the Republican Primary, filed his financial disclosure statement with the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct this week.

Most items listed on official disclosure reports are reported by categories of value. This means the value of an asset or the amount of a debt is reported only as being more than one amount and less than a second.

Under these reporting standards, Jones' total income and investments over the past two years is listed as being at least $1,258,755.78, and possibly as much as $1,825,243.76.

The financial debts listed by Jones total at least $222,000 and may be as much as $30,000. Jones also publicly disclosed that last year he paid $7,442.23 in state income tax and $49,974.48 in federal income tax.

Jones also reported that his wife's photography business made $1,400 during the past two years. Jones listed nearly $69,000 in legal fees he had collected in his law practice. His remaining income came from his cattle business, a livestock feeding company, and land sales in the Magic Valley area.

Jones also lists an interest in Arkansas real estate property valued between $5,000 and $15,000.

Lewiston seaman victim of attack

LEWISTON (UPI) — A 1975 Lewiston High School graduate aboard a bus loaded with U.S. Navy personnel that was ambushed by terrorists near San Juan, Puerto Rico, Monday was listed in stable but guarded condition at a Veterans Administration hospital in that country.

Seaman Brad Clark, 21, was in surgery twice Monday at the hospital as doctors worked to repair a damaged vein near his heart and damage to his liver and lung, said Frank C. Clark, Lewiston, father of the Navy coding expert, who said he was shaken by the incident.

Hoppe opens trial with testimony

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls woman who says the Idaho Department of Employment discriminated against her took her case to trial Monday.

Betty Hoppe of Twin Falls, who resigned from the department last year, is charging the department with sex discrimination. Her testimony opened the trial before Fifth District Judge Theron Ward.

Prior to the opening of the trial, the court had difficulty finding 12 qualified jury members. The selection process had disqualified most prospective jurors, leaving 8 to Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn to locate more.

In arguing for his client, Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Walker contended Hoppe was continually discriminated against during her 1970-1973 tenure with the department's Twin Falls office.

She was passed over for promotion despite an excellent work evaluation rating, Walker said. Hoppe said she was passed over for promotion because she was "skirted."

Ward had previously ruled in Hoppe's favor, awarding her $200,000. That decision had followed criticism by the Idaho Human Rights Commission in Hoppe's favor.

In June, the case was remanded back to the Fifth District by an Idaho Supreme Court decision.

Bank robbed, suspect held

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI)—The First National Bank of North Idaho in Coeur d'Alene was robbed of an undetermined amount of cash at about noon Monday, but police had a suspect in custody about 20 minutes later.

Coeur d'Alene Police Chief Frank Primo said the man arrived at the bank in a cab and fled on foot. Primo would not confirm whether the man was carrying a gun, but other reports indicated he was carrying a long-barreled revolver. Those reports also said the robber was a white man between 25 and 35 years of age, about 5-foot-8 and wearing a black jacket and pants.

Police have not released the name of the suspect.

Gunman shoots ice skater

ROSELAKE (UPI)—A 19-year-old Rose Lake man was on crutches Monday with a lead slug lodged in his thigh following a shooting incident near Rose Lake Friday.

William Weberding and six friends were sitting on a dock near the Rose Lake sportsman's access putting on their skates when a man with a rifle stepped out of a nearby residence and shot at them. Weberding, who was sitting on the diving board of the dock, was hit in the thigh.

Kootenai County sheriff's deputies Friday went to the home on the lake and arrested two men—Carl B. Rogg, 41, and Alvin R. Forvinner, 67, both of Rose Lake. But Lt. Bob Steele said neither man has been formally charged with shooting Weberding.

"We have one suspect who says he did it and four witnesses who say the other suspect did it," Steele said.

Boise chamber transfers

BOISE (UPI)—The Greater Boise Chamber of Commerce will install its new officers at its 94th annual banquet Jan. 9 at the Red-Lion Riverside in Boise.

Chuck Newhouse, president of the Bazaar, has been elected president of the chamber; Brent Robinson, president of Citizens National Bank, is president-elect; and Lane Gleason, a partner in Tonkin, Johnson and Associates, has been appointed treasurer.

Newly elected members of the chamber's board of directors include Thomas Bourke, president of First Security Bank of Idaho; Eugene Dorsey, publisher of the Idaho Statesman; Dan Duncan, executive vice president of Blue Cross of Idaho; Jack Little, vice president of E.W. Little Co.; Nancy Mandi, co-owner of Four Seasons Travel, Inc.; George McDow, senior vice president of First City Corp.; and Alden Porter, general manager of Mutual of New York in Boise.

Mayor's son, kin charged in high school drug probe

LAKEWOOD, Colo. (UPI)—An eight-month investigation into the sale of drugs near two suburban public high schools ended Monday as police began rounding up 33 suspects, including the son and daughter-in-law of Lakewood Mayor Charles Whitlock.

Authorities said police officers posing as students at Bear Creek, Lakewood and Alameda High Schools.

Police Captain Jim O'Dell said officers began posing as students at Bear Creek and Lakewood High Schools in May after school officials parents and local businessmen complained of a growing problem of drug use at the schools.

O'Dell said detectives, who dubbed the project "Operation Lollipop," kept watch on school grounds, within school buildings and in places near the schools. Police said they were able to videotape drug transactions openly taking place during school hours in parking lots, at local amusement centers and in a nearby park.

During the investigation, police said they recovered LSD, marijuana, hashish, amphetamine and cocaine with a total value of about $20,000.

O'Dell said the investigation showed drug sales were being conducted openly in school areas and that many students were frequent users of dangerous drugs.

Police identified two of the suspects as Charles Whitlock Jr., 21, and his wife, Christine, 19. Whitlock is the son of the town's mayor.

O'Dell said officers posing as students reported narcofiles use and sales were openly discussed and the agencies found drugs and suppliers readily available. Officers also investigated Alameda High School, but did not investigate areas where those students congregated.

O'Dell said most of the adults sought in the arrest warrants were suspected dealers, who frequently appeared on school grounds and parking lots.

Acquittal may open Denver police files

DENVER (UPI)—Defense and prosecuting attorneys said the acquittal of a man accused of assaulting a police officer during a 1978 arrest may have a lasting impact on the operations of the Denver Police Department.

Michael Lee Cole, who claimed police were the aggressors in the incident, was found innocent Friday by a Denver District Court jury.

A number of jurors told defense attorney John Richlano it was information gained through files from the Staff Inspection Bureau that helped them reach their verdict. Others said they did not believe prosecutors proved their case on a machete on arresting Patrolman Paul Lopez.

Before the trial, Richlano sought and gained access to previously

Carter supporters to gather

TWIN FALLS—President Jimmy Carter will officially announce his candidacy for re-election today.

Idahoans supporting the president's re-election effort will be gathering in a series of informal fund-raisers around the state.

In Twin Falls, Carter supporters will meet tonight at the home of Marjorie Summerfield, 2088 Addison Ave. E., from 6 to 8 p.m.

Similar meetings will be held in other states tonight as Carter announces his candidacy. "We expect the official announcement on television during the party," Rippen said.

The public is invited.

Rexburg couple files suit over flood-related injury

BOISE (UPI) — Funds appropriated by Congress to help citizens recover from the Teton Dam failure have been spent in communities which were not even touched by the flood waters, claims a lawsuit filed by a Rexburg couple who have been denied reimbursement.

William and Fern Weimer seek $100,000 under the Teton Dam Recovery Act, claiming cities, businesses and other individuals have been awarded funds under the law, although their communities were not affected by the 1976 flood that followed the eastern Idaho dams failure.

The lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Boise claims four fingers on Weimer's right hand were cut off when he attempted to repair farm machinery that had been damaged by flooding.

The Weimers' lawsuit claims they sought immediate reimbursement for losses to their farm equipment after the flood, but were told by Bureau of Reclamation inspectors that machinery should be repaired, not replaced.

Weimer, however, says he had to repair the machinery himself because repair shops were leveled by the flood. While Weimer was following bureau orders to repair the equipment, the lawsuit states, a part broke off and severed his fingers.

Despite repeated attempts to gain reimbursement for medical costs and suffering under the recovery act, the Weimers say, the Bureau of Reclamation has continued to claim Weimer's accident was not a direct or proximate (approximate) cause of the dam failure.

Congress has already appropriated over $10 million of the Teton Dam funds for park-barrel projects which are totally unrelated to anything to do with losses sustained by those who were flooded, the lawsuit says in countering the bureau's denial of the Weimer claim. "These funds are being used to put in libraries, sewer systems, roads, fire stations and a host of other projects for communities which were not even touched by the flood waters of the Teton Dam."

The lawsuit claims the bureau awarded money to a rancher for loss of an unborn calf crop for two years following the flood. It also says a woman, who stepped in glass and cut herself while cleaning mud from her basement after the flood, also was awarded money under the law as were many residents who "deliberately chose to remain in their homes" rather than leave when flood waters approached.

The Weimers also say a young man who climbed up a tree rather than leaving the flooding area, received reimbursement for medical costs incurred after he was thrown from the tree during the flood.

Escapee held in Coeur d'Alene shooting

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — The 39-year-old manager of a Coeur d'Alene hotel was shot to death late Sunday and a 36-year-old Washington State Penitentiary escapee is being held as a suspect.

Coeur d'Alene police said the manager of the Sherman Arms Motor Hotel was shot once in the stomach and at least once in the head at about 11:30 P.M.

John D. Merrifield, who escaped from a Walla Walla, Wash. prison work release program on May 19, was found by police hiding under a trailer about an hour later and arrested in connection with the shooting.

Police will not release the name of the dead man until relatives have been notified.

Coeur d'Alene Police Lt. Steve Schauer said the victim was shot in his hotel apartment minutes after he was visited by a gunman, whom he apparently did not know.

Schauer said the gunman went to the victim's door, opened the door, asked him if he wanted a drink of whiskey. The victim said he was going to bed and the gunman shot him, Schauer said.

Police, who are holding a weapon as evidence, believed a 22-millimeter revolver was used to shoot the hotel manager.

Officers said they received a call about 11:40 p.m. from Charles W. Seltzer, a resident at the hotel. Seltzer said the gunman hit him in the head twice to keep him from calling police. He said the gunman fled on foot.

Grocery robbery suspect arrested

POST FALLS (UPI) — A 23-year-old Vancouver, Wash., man is being held at the Kootenai County jail as a suspect in the Sunday morning armed robbery of a Post Falls grocery store.

Police said a man wearing a stocking cap entered the Post Falls Circle K store at 1 a.m., threatened the clerk with a knife and demanded money from the till register in a bag. The man fled the store on foot with a small amount of cash.

Officers later arrested Richard Allen Hozer, 23, in connection with the kidnapping.

Trojans land three on All-America squad

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK—The University of Southern California, whose quality football players are as plentiful as the sunshine, Monday placed three members on the 1979 United Press International All-America team.

Leading the way for the Trojans on the 24-member team were running back Billy Sims, wide receiver Charles White, offensive guard Fred Taylor and linebacker Dennis Johnson. The Trojans were the only team in the nation with as many as three players named to the All-America first unit.

Nineteen teams in all named at least one player to the first squad with Texas, Oklahoma and Notre Dame each placing two. Defensive tackle Steve McMichael and defensive back Johnnie Johnson were named from Texas; running back Billy Sims and linebacker George Gubny were selected from Oklahoma and offensive tackle Tim Foley and running back Vaughn Ferguson were picked from Notre Dame.

It marked the 17th year in a row in which Notre Dame has placed a player on the UPI first team All-America squad.

Rounding out the offensive unit were split end Ken Margerum of Stanford, tight end Junior Miller of Nebraska, offensive tackle Greg Kolenda of Arkansas, offensive guard Ken Fritz of Ohio State, center Jim Heister of North Carolina State and quarterback Marc Wilson of Brigham Young and kicker Dale Castro of Maryland.

Others named to the defensive squad were ends Hugh Green of Pittsburgh and James Stuckey of Clemson; tackle Bruce Clark of Penn State; middle guard Ron Simmons of Florida State; linebacker Ron Simpkins of Michigan; defensive backs Ken Easley of UCLA and Roland James of Tennessee; and punter Jim Miller of Mississippi.

Margerum, Castro, Simmons and Green, all juniors, are the only underclassmen on the team. White, Sims, Clark, Johnson, Easley and Green were repeaters from last year's team.

The team was selected by a vote of college football writers, sports editors and sportscasters from across the nation.

Top-ranked Alabama did not have any players named to the first unit but the Crimson Tide placed two men on the second team as did Ohio State and Arkansas.

Alabama's selections to the second team were offensive tackle Jim Bunch and center Dwight Stephenson. Ohio State named quarterback Art Schlichter and defensive back Mike Guess to the second unit and Arkansas placed guard George Stewart and kicker Ish Odomen on the second team.

Also named to the second team offensive unit were wide receiver Jackie Flowers of Florida State, tackle Ray Snell of Wisconsin, guard Pete Inge of San Diego State and running back James Hurd of Texas Tech. Dennis Mosley of Iowa and George Rogers of South Carolina.

Others named to the second team defensive unit were ends John Adams of Louisiana State and Jacob Green of Texas A&M; tackle Greg Mathis of Washington State; Curtis Greer of Michigan; wide guard Kerry Weismaster of Nebraska; linebackers Lance Mel of Penn State, Mike Slingarsky of Baylor and Otis Wilson of Louisville; defensive backs Darrol Ray of Oklahoma and Mark Hayes of Colorado and punter Mike Smith of Wyoming.

The first team offensive backfield is one of the most explosive in the history of the UPI All-America voting. White led the nation in rushing with 180.3 yards per game and scored 18 touchdowns; Sims, the Heisman Trophy winner last year, rushed for 138.9 yards per game and scored 22 TDs and Ferguson rushed for 130.6 yards per game and scored 17 TDs.

Wilson, the nation's leader in total offense, passed for 379 yards and threw 29 touchdown passes.

Eagles survive by six

Thomas' shooting paces seventh win

NAMPA—Second and third shots proved the difference Monday night when the College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles outlasted the Northwest Nazarene College Jayvees 69-61 in their sixth straight decision.

Although they seldom trailed, the Eagles never were able to put the young Crusaders away until the closing three minutes.

The win ended the CSI streak to 7-1 and gave them Tuesday to prepare for a three-day invasion of Utah. The Eagles travel to Ephraim Wednesday night to participate in a two-day tournament at Snow College, then jump to Price Friday to meet the Eastern Utah Golden Eagles.

They will not return to Twin Falls until Dec. 7 when Dixie College comes to the CSI gymnasium.

CSI had a false start in the early going, pushing off to a couple of nine-point leads. But NNC caught up midway through the half and from then on it was a two and four-point game.

The key for the Eagles came in the second half with five follow shots, six of 7 points. NNC consistently hit much more from the outside.

To a large degree the game was a rematch of an earlier one in which the teams were even after 30 minutes with the Eagles pushing away from there to a 14-point decision.

Coach Tom Weirich said he expected it to be close. "This is our third game in four days," he pointed out, "and we knew it was going to be tough. But we got to dictate the tempo of the game once we got into the lead and we've been fortunate enough to do it in the last few games, and I think that was the difference."

The coach said his team still has a way to go to reach the polished finished product he is seeking. The problem now is the schedule.

"We have only tomorrow to work on some things, and then we head for Utah for three games. That's the way you get out of here. We just have to play ourselves out of mistakes, learn while we're playing and polish our game as we play."

CSI's big early lead created at nine points in the last five minutes. It was 19-9 before NNC's R. Harris caught a 30-yard streak and provided eight points, four of the Crusaders. CSI stayed just ahead until the waning minutes when NNC took a 23-20 lead. Coach Tom Weirich called time and Rayford hit one at the buzzer to give the Eagles a 29-27 halftime lead.

In the early second half the Jayvees opened a 33-28 lead. Hansen had a hot hand, hitting eleven points that kept NNC hot on CSI's heels. In fact, "We visger's shot gave NNC a momentarily lead at 36-35. But Antoine Williams, Larry Furlow and then Williams again replied for CSI and a brief four-point lead.

It stayed at two to four points from there until Hansen tipped in his ninth point to give the Jayvees a 44-42 lead.

Warren Bestick replied with a CSI follow shot and Rick Coppe, on a back door feed from Fred Talley, added another 12 points to give the Eagles a rebounded a missed CSI free throw and Rayford cashed that chance in with two free throws with 1:56 left to extend the lead to 44-42.

From there CSI went into a 10-point advantage at 64-54 at 38 seconds left and coasted in.

USC's Charles White, the nation's leading rusher who had a four-touchdown performance in last game, holds Heisman Trophy.

Trojans' Charles White leads Oklahoma's Sims in balloting

By RICHARD HOFFER
UPI Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES—USC tailback Charles White has come a long way since he first stepped on campus four years ago. He's come "and gone" 5,538 yards by one measure of reckoning, miles by others.

The same athlete who once pointed to the glassed-in Heisman Trophy in Heritage Hall on the USC campus and promised to win "two or three" of those, has matured into a team player, one who would rather credit the offensive linemen in postgame interviews than talk of his own achievements.

White, now a senior and finally the Heisman winner he dreamed he'd be, acknowledged feelings of both personal pride and team achievement Monday after it was announced that he had easily outdistanced last year's winner, Billy Sims of Oklahoma, in the Heisman voting.

"I'll always treasure this as a team accomplishment," White said. "But I'm getting it in my hands."

And that is where it belongs. Although White couldn't have done it without his line and couldn't have achieved such prominence outside of the "USC environment" (coach John Robinson's term for USC's tailback offense), it is also clear that White's individual achievements have been immense this season.

He gained a nation-high 1,003 yards in 293 carries for 18 touchdowns. He averages more than 180 yards rushing a game, almost 40 yards more than the No. 2 rusher. What's more, he's gathered those numbers despite missing a game and a half due to injury, and long periods of two other games because of rouls.

was fourth with 251 points. Notre Dame's Vaughn Ferguson was fifth with 182. Sims was USC quarterback Paul McDonald.

White, who becomes the third USC tailback to win a Heisman (Mike Garrett won it 1965, O.J. Simpson in 1968), said that his self-confidence waned as Sims began to recapture Heisman Trophy form in the final weeks of the season.

"I really felt Billy showed a strong comeback, especially in the Nebraska game," said White, who became the "Soylent" star in running back to receive the honor.

"I watched the Nebraska game (in which Sims gained 247 yards) on television before we played UCLA and all I thought was, 'Billy Sims.'"

Despite Sims' big finish he gained 212 yards against Missouri the week before, the Sooners fell to 1,506 yards rushing this season after leading the nation last year. But his career average of 779 yards per carry is a record for backs with at least 500 rushing attempts.

Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer said, "I am disappointed that Billy did not receive the Heisman Trophy. This does not change in any way my opinion that Billy Sims is the finest football player in America."

Switzer's contention pales in comparison to Robinson's. Robinson, who came to USC as head coach the same year White emerged as the football star, called his 165-pound workhorse, "the greatest football player in the world."

Robinson was no less effusive Monday. "You don't get involved with greatness that many times," Robinson said. "That's what this means to me. Just to be involved with greatness."

Robinson again praised White's competitiveness, noting that the former Los Angeles Tri-City Player of the Year played as hard in practice as in games, and as hard without the ball as with it. "It's phenomenal to me how hard he plays," Robinson said. "He's a maniac. To see how durable and competitive he is, just check his fourth-quarter stats."

Several times during the season, White exploded for more than 100 yards in the final quarter.

Another measure of White's competitiveness was his ability to have big days in important games. He rushed for 261, scoring four touchdowns against Notre Dame, he rushed for 198 yards in a close game at Cal, and for 243 against Washington, in what was originally the Rose Bowl showdown.

Of course, it's hard to define a big day for White. He averaged 196 yards his last nine games and an incredible 214 his last six.

Palmer may be traded

By FRED McMANE

TORONTO—The Baltimore Orioles have entered Jim Palmer's name into preliminary trade talks with the Kansas City Royals at the winter baseball meetings, it was learned Monday.

Palmer is forcing the Orioles' hand with his demand for more money and the Royals, who he says it takes to satisfy the American League champions for the services of the three-time Cy Young Award winner.

The talks are still in the early stages, but the Royals have offered outfielder Al Cowens and a pitcher, believed to be left-hander Paul Spittorf, for the Orioles' ace right hander.

Palmer's general manager, Hank Peters, said last week he was going to see what interest there was in Palmer at the meetings and he arrived with a list of teams that were acceptable to the 34-year-old veteran.

It is believed that several other clubs, including the Philadelphia Phillies, New York Yankees, will also make a pitch for Palmer once they are certain the Orioles are willing to part with him.

Palmer, who has spent 14 seasons with the Orioles, is entering the final year of a $265,000 a year contract and he has been in a cold war with the Baltimore front office for several seasons over the years.

A winner of 225 major league games, Palmer feels he is grossly underpaid considering the large salaries being earned by other pitchers of lesser stature.

"Jim is forcing the Orioles' hand," said a close friend of Palmer. "He sees them sign Steve Stone for $250,000 a year and he asks 'why not pay me for what I've done?'"

Palmer's asking price is estimated at $3.5 million for five years, and the Royals appear willing to meet that request. If the Orioles get Cowens, they will use him in center field.

A spokesman for the Phillies said Monday they would be interested in Palmer and they let it be known that they would be interested in Palmer, and possibly even Greg Luzinski, would be available.

While trade reports continued to circulate, six major league clubs were expected to make offers Monday to bolster their winter rosters. Nine players in all were selected at a cost of $25,000 apiece.

The Chicago Cubs led the way by choosing three players — shortstop Guy Sulzfar from Phoenix and pitchers David Moore and Douglas Corbett from Indianapolis.

Toronto took third baseman Mike Macha from Richmond, the Chicago White Sox selected catcher Bruce Kinn from Evansville, Cleveland chose outfielder Andres Mora from Rochester, Kansas City picked third baseman Estaban Castillo from Springfield, California took pitcher Alfredo Martinez of Tidewater and the Oakland Athletics selected Mark Brouhard of Salt Lake City.

Early Monday morning, baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn delivered his "state of the union" address to the convention and drew a rather grim picture of baseball's overall financial status.

The commissioner said he hoped the owners and players would rectify the problems through the current collective bargaining talks which will produce a new basic agreement by next season.

Soviets lead gymnast event

FORT WORTH, TEXAS (UPI)—The USSR's Alexandra Dilitina eclipsed brilliant performances by American Bart Conner and Karyn Thomas Monday on the first day of the World Gymnastics Championships and moved the Soviets into position to win the day as the world's powerhouse in the sport.

Conner and Thomas, sparking the underdog American team, surprised the world's gymnastics community with their routines in the men's compulsory exercises — totaling 58.75 and 58.70 respectively.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Quarterback Ken Stabler, rallying Oakland from a 21-point, second-quarter deficit, tossed two touchdown passes to lead the Raiders to a 42-35 victory over the New Orleans Saints in the NFL's Monday night game.

Stabler, who completed 26 of 43 passes for 285 yards and four touchdowns, hit Branch for a 66-yard score with 3:19 left in the game and then tossed a 55-yard pass to Branch after Oakland recovered a Saints' fumble to complete the comeback.

Declo, Hansen, Gooding, Wendell optimistic as 1979-80 season begins

Declo Hornets

Declo—The Canyon Conference coaches suspect that the Declo Hornets are going to make waves in A-3 circuits this year.

Coach Gary Swan doesn't do a lot to dispel that when he appraises the team.

"We have experience at all positions, our overall team speed is good and we have good depth at all positions," he said.

"So what could be wrong? Our overall shooting ability will be suspect plus the inside scoring ability of our centers," he replies.

A lot of the Declo hopes are on the improvement of 6-8 Junior Herman Morrison, who is tied for the tallest in the league. He played some as a sophomore and Coach Swan believes he can develop into good help for the Hornets.

Filer Morrison, the coach can call on five senior veterans; three of them returning starters. These include 6-3 forward Rhet Matsen, a two-year letterman; Todd Curtis, 5-10 guard; Bill Anderson, 5-10 guard; Calvin Fillmore, 5-10 guard, and Danny Turner, 6-0 forward.

The Hornets have another senior in 6-0 transfer Gary Parke and round out the rest of the roster with juniors. These include Dennis Lewis, 6-3 center; Brad Adams, 5-3 guard; Todd Adams, 5-10 forward, and Tucker Swan, 5-10 guard.

Coach Swan anticipates that Gooding and Filer will be the tough teams in the league with Glens Ferry and Kimberly as the dark horses.

The Hornets lost their season opener Friday night at Malad 54-43.

The rest of the schedule includes:

Dec. 7, Han River at Declo; Dec. 8, Malad at Declo; Dec. 14, Declo at Oakley; Dec. 15, Declo at Declo; Dec. 20, Oakley at Declo; Dec. 21, Declo at Glens Ferry; Jan. 5, Shoshone at Declo; Jan. 11, Declo at Wendon; Jan. 17, Gooding at Declo; Jan. 23, Declo at Declo; Dec. 16, Declo at Wendon; Jan. 23, Declo at Filer; and Jan. 29, Declo at Wendon.

Hansen Huskies

HANSEN—With four returning starters and one victory already under their belts, the Hansen Huskies are hoping to improve on last year's 5-17 record considerably.

"We don't have the dominating big man inside and there's some inexperience at the ball-handling positions," Coach Rod Fruitt says. "But I expect this year to be more successful than last year. We have a good nucleus of experienced players to build on plus some exceptional people coming up from last season's junior varsity team."

The coach is pleased with the team quickness, depth and attitude.

Two of the returning starters have won two letters. Virgil Adams, 6-1 forward, is in his third starting year, and 6-1 forward Dusty Fruitt handles the other side. Between them is physical Josh Hopart, a 6-1 senior who started last season.

Other lettermen are Chuck Vawter, 5-10 guard; Galen Stanger, 5-9 guard, and Richard Edman, 6-1 forward.

Juniors rounding out the roster are Brent Borah, 5-11 guard who had 13 points in his first varsity outing; Craig Daw, 5-11 guard; John Conner, 6-2 center; Jeff Conner, 5-9 guard; Shane Leirman, 5-10 guard; and Brent Gee, 6-1 forward.

Hansen opened with a decision over Richfield.

The rest of the schedule includes:

Dec. 6, holiday tournament at Hansen; Dec. 10, Hansen at Dietrich; Dec. 11, Dietrich at Hansen; Dec. 14, Carnes County at Hansen; Dec. 15, Dietrich at Hansen.

Jan. 11, Richfield at Murtaugh; Jan. 8, Han River at Hansen; Jan. 11, Hansen at Castleford; Jan. 16, Hagerman at Hansen; Jan. 19, Hansen at Carnes County; Jan. 23, Hansen at Oakley; and Jan. 25, Shoshone at Hansen.

Gooding Senators

GOODING—Gooding Coach Jay Durfee believes his Senators will be able to score with most of their opponents but wonders if they'll get the ball often enough to score more.

"Size is our problem," the coach says. "We have no height. We should have a good shooting ball club but I suspect we'll be only average on defense."

The Senators are not the shortest team in the Canyon Conference but for the most part they will be playing on height at the center spot.

On an average, the Senators will match up fairly well with a lot of teams. That's because they have two men at 6-2 and five at 6-1. Also, team quickness should be adequate.

In addition, Gooding returns two starters and four senior lettermen; all of whom will be in their third year of varsity ball — and most of that against A-2 competition.

The seniors include top scorer Mike Mann, 6-1 guard; Greg Graves, 6-1 center-forward; James Scanton, 6-2 center, and Tim Peterson, 5-9 guard.

Travis Rick is a 6-2 senior center trying for his first letter.

Up from last year's Jayvee club are Juniors Mark Crowe, 5-9 guard; Mike Hamilton, 6-1 forward; Bret Legarreta, 6-1 forward; Mike Legarreta, 5-10 guard; Alan Shaw, 6-1 center; Jeff Harding, 6-0 forward, and Ben Ryan, 5-9 guard.

For the first time in many years Gooding will play all its games in Magic Valley. The is accustomed by the Senators playing in the Canyon Conference requiring 14 games, and picking up traditional foes Wood River, Huhl and Jerome.

Gooding opened the season by beating Jerome 73-65 last Saturday. The remainder of the schedule includes:

Dec. 7, Gooding at Wood River; Dec. 8, Han at Gooding; Dec. 15, Gooding at Declo; Jan. 18, Wendell at Gooding; Jan. 19, Gooding at Kimberly; Jan. 25, Gooding at Glens Ferry; Jan. 26, Gooding at Shoshone; and Jan. 29, Wood River at Gooding.

Feb. 1, Gooding at Valley; Feb. 2, Declo at Gooding; Feb. 5, Gooding at Huhl; Feb. 8, Gooding at Filer; Feb. 27, Glens Ferry at Gooding; Feb. 15, Gooding at Wendell; and Feb. 16, Kimberly at Gooding.

Wendell Trojans

WENDELL—No coach gets much sympathy from Wendell's Vogt Behrens when he complains about a lack of height.

Behrens, returning to the Wendell helm after a several-year absence, has four men six feet or over with the tallest being Andy Hillis, a 6-5 center.

He is working with four lettermen, including one junior, plus seven other juniors and a sophomore.

The lettermen include Phil Bunn, 5-11 guard; Hillis, at 6-5, and Ted Mason, a 5-8 guard, plus junior Brad Christopherson, 6-1 forward.

Juniors on the roster include Durk McBride, 5-8 guard; Gary McCord, 6-1 center; Kim Hartley, 5-9 guard; Leland Miller, 5-8 guard; Kortney Bennett, 5-7 guard; Scott Jantner, 5-7 guard; and Mark Nief-feneger, 5-10 forward.

The sophomore is Gary Ferrenburg, a 6-1 forward prospect.

Coach Behrens anticipates Filer and Declo will be the strongest teams in the Canyon Conference.

The Wendell schedule includes:

Dec. 8, Wendell at Hagerman; Dec. 14, Jerome at Wendell; Dec. 21, Hagerman at Wendell; and Dec. 22, Wendell at Jerome.

Jan. 5, Wendell at Valley; Jan. 5, Glens Ferry at Wendell; Jan. 11, Declo at Wendell; Jan. 12, Wendell at Filer; Jan. 17, Shoshone at Wendell; Jan. 18, Wendell at Gooding; Jan. 25, Wendell at Kimberly; and Jan. 26, Valley at Wendell.

Feb. 1, Wendell at Wendell; Feb. 2, Filer at Wendell; Feb. 8, Wendell at Glens Ferry; Feb. 9, Kimberly at Wendell; Feb. 17, Wendell at Shoshone; and Feb. 18, Wendell at Wendell. Wendell will host district A tournament Feb. 23 and 24-25.

Sage gymnasts down Valley Suns

TWIN FALLS—Sage Gymnastics Class III team scored its highest total of the season Saturday when it downed Ketchikan.

Sage tallied 175.13 to the Valley Suns 143.15.

Three of Sage's remaining gymnasts qualified for the state championships, including Patricia Ward, 10-40; Jamie King 32.50; and Lorry Miller 32.05.

With those three, it means the entire 16-member Sage team will be going to Boise for state competition Dec. 15.

On the same day in Boise, Sage's Class II team of Wendon, Pilon, Buck, Kristina Swanson, Kelley King, and Lorry Miller will be competing. The next meet for these girls will be Saturday at Sage against Wings of Boise.

The Class I and II girls will be competing in optionals and compulsory, while the Class III team will be performing in an exhibition. The meet begins at 1 p.m.

Hispanic president blasts Kennedy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy was accused Sunday of benign neglect of the nation's Hispanics by the president of the Mexican-American Political Association.

Edúardo Sandoval, a San Francisco attorney and president of MAPA, said Kennedy "ides" (sic) him in the Massachusetts-Democrat—would have to forego a planned meeting with the non-partisan group Sunday because of a "congested schedule."

"MAPA will put Kennedy on notice that a congested schedule is tantamount to a policy of benign neglect towards the California Hispanic grass roots," Sandoval said. "MAPA represents—and that such a policy is obviously totally unacceptable," said Sandoval, whose organization has 5,000 members in California.

"MAPA has worked for the past 20 years on behalf of and in concert with California Hispanics, and we will not be seduced by the time-worn political rhetoric of certain liberal Democrats, even if the surname happens to be Kennedy."

If Kennedy wants the MAPA endorsement—for the June 1980 California presidential primary, he will have to work very hard and concertedly for that endorsement. However, Kennedy's refusal to meet with the MAPA leadership while in San Francisco today is a most inauspicious beginning towards winning the MAPA endorsement," Sandoval said.

He said that while he was in Washington Oct. 29 Kennedy staffers assured him the senator would meet with MAPA representatives while visiting San Francisco Sunday.

"But then, just last week word came he couldn't meet with us because of his congested schedule," said Sandoval.

He said aside from California, MAPA chapters also exist or are being organized in Utah, Texas and parts of the Northwest.

Sandoval said MAPA would give all candidates—for both the Democratic and Republican presidential nominations—an opportunity to speak to the group before the official endorsements are announced on May 3.

"The California primary will be the critical primary. We had presumed Kennedy would be interested in getting our endorsement," Sandoval said. "We will give all candidates a hearing in terms of their policies toward the Hispanic community, but this is not a good start for Kennedy."

Hart not ready to endorse

DENVER (UPI) — Sen. Gary Hart, paign, so I don't intend to endorse any candidate, says he doesn't know which candidate he will support in the 1980 presidential election, but he knows which candidates won't.

"I think I'll be busy with another nounced support for a 1980 presidential election next year," Hart said. "What I don't want to do is support any of the Republican candidates."

"I'm not planning to get deeply involved in the presidential campaign," he said. "The other members of the delegation say they are uncommitted."

Marshall Islands a disaster

HONOLULU (UPI) — The Marshall Islands of the Trust Territories, ravaged by heavy seas and flooding the last week, have been declared a major disaster area by President Carter.

Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus made the announcement in Honolulu Saturday shortly before departing for a previously scheduled tour of Guam and the Trust Territories.

He said he would personally inspect the damage to the Marshall Islands. The designation permits the use of federal funds for relief and recovery efforts at Majuro Atoll and other areas which have received extensive damage to public and private facilities.

Girl's body identified; name held

CASPER, Wyo. (UPI) — Natrona County Coroner Tom Bustard says he will not comment on whether the body of a young female found Sunday floating in the North Platte River is that of a 9-year-old Casper girl abducted Sept. 16.

County authorities say they have identified the body, but are withholding release of the name until relatives can be notified.

Deputy County Attorney Mike Huber said part of the victim's family could not be reached late Sunday, and they are contacted.

Jim Johnson, a Converse County undersheriff, said duck hunters discovered the partially clothed body snagged in branches along the banks of the river near the Dave Johnson power plant.

Authorities pulled the body from the river early Sunday afternoon after being notified by the hunters and took it to Natrona County Memorial Hospital for identification.

Economic future to improve in '80

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Labor Secretary Ray Marshall predicted the nation will see an improved economic picture in 1980, but warned there will be coupled with a rise in unemployment.

Speaking Saturday at an annual Democratic Party fundraiser with Vice President Walter Mondale and Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt, Marshall said he foresees a major dip in interest rates with a concurrent rise in the unemployment rate by next June.

"I think we will see an overall economic improvement by mid-1980," Marshall said. "But it is difficult to predict how extensive it will be because of the uncertainty over energy prices."

Second annual river dredging

WALLA WALLA Wash. (UPI) — For the second year in a row, the Army Corps of Engineers has begun dredging a 10-mile stretch of the Snake River near its confluence with the Columbia River.

The work is part of a three-year project to bring that stretch of the Snake to a fully navigable channel size of 240 feet in width and 14 feet in depth.

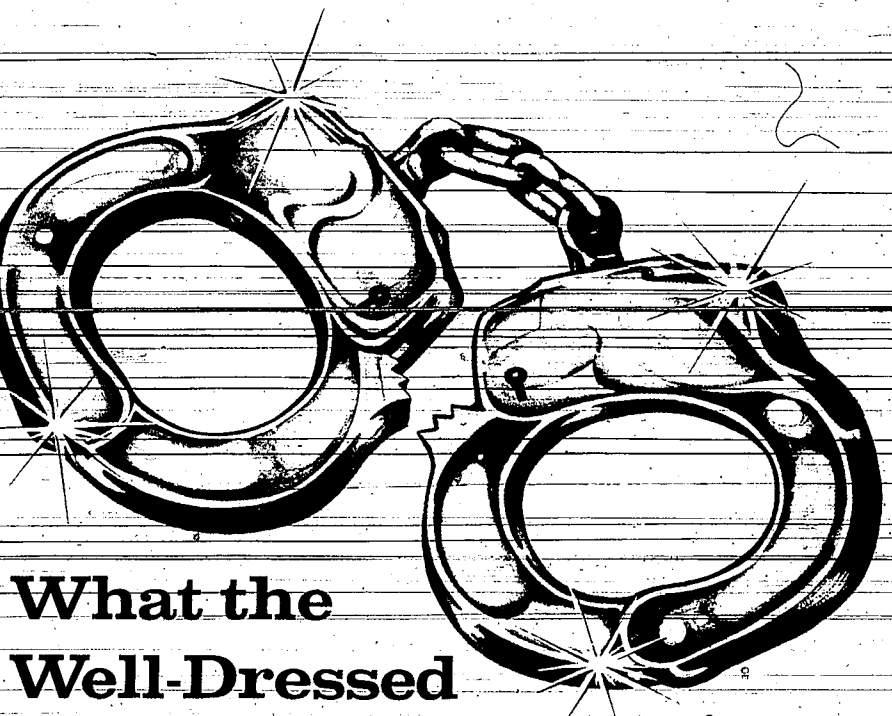

Channel dredging work is being performed only during the dry—December to April—period so as not to interfere with the upstream migration of adult Chinook salmon and steelhead trout.

The contractor for the $3.5 million dredging operation is Bohemia, Inc., Umpqua Division, Eugene, Ore.

Butz, Carr address January farm forum

SPOKANE (UPI) — Former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz and former astronaut Gerald Carr have agreed to address the 1980 Pacific Northwest Farm Forum January 16-17.

Also slated to address the two-day meeting is Orion Samuelson, vice president and agricultural services director of Chicago's WGN Continental Broadcasting Co.

What the Well-Dressed Shoplifter is Wearing...

Handcuffs — they may not look very costly, but they're more expensive than you'd imagine! And as any shoplifter knows, they're not returnable! Shoplifting is not a lark, not a prank and not taken lightly. It's a crime that will blot your record and may even put you behind bars. And at holiday time, shoplifting is even more of a temptation. Next time someone tries to sell you a bill of goods about shoplifting, don't buy it. All you may get is a new set of bracelets... and a lot of time on your hands.
