Soviets back Afghan coup

By United Press International
Afghan President Hafizullah Amin was overthrown Thursday in a coup apparently backed by the Soviet Union and then executed for crimes against the Afghan people, Afghanistan radio said.

lutionary Tribunal staged a quick trial and pronounced the death sentence.

The coup substituted one Communist leader for another. The State Department said Soviet troops poured into Kabul and some may have engaged in street fighting.

Radio Kabul, in announcing Amin's death, described Karmal, 50, as president of the Revolutionary Council — the first official acknowledgment he was the Moslem nation's new No. 1 man.

In Washington, the State Department acknowledged the Radio Kabul report of Amin's execution but said it could not confirm it outright.

The official Afghan radio also announced that the new Afghan government requested urgent "political, moral—and economic—assistance—including military aid" from the Soviet Union. It said Moscow agreed to the request.

In Washington, intelligence sources described Karmal as a Moscow-style Communist with a long and violent career as a revolutionary and said he was probably hand-picked by Moscow to take over from Amin.

They said Karmal, who has been out of sight for several months, may have arrived in the country during the Soviet's massive Christmas airlift of 4,000-5,000 combat troops.

Radio Kabul reported earlier that Karmal, former deputy prime minister, founder of the Parcham Communist Party and longtime ideological opponent of Amin, staged the coup. Amin also was a pro-Moscow communist.

"The tyrannical, murderous, treacherous, dictatorial and fascist regime of Hafizullah Amin has been overthrown," said the Kabul broadcast, first monitored by the Paris news agency in Tehran.

The new regime immediately imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew in Kabul and appealed to Moslem clergy leaders to end their year-long insurrection and join the new regime in rebuilding the war-torn country.

Western analysts in Moscow indicated the coup was a Soviet-backed effort to defuse the Islamic, nationalist rebellion.

"The Soviets can live with this guy (Karmal)," said a Western diplomat in Moscow whose specialty is Asian politics.

Both Amin and Karmal are good friends of the Soviets, but the new regime has broader-based connections with the Afghan populace, the Western source said.

In Washington, a State Department official said there was street fighting in Kabul and Soviet troops might be involved.

Thursday after a brief suspension and that as many as 200 Soviet flights had taken place since the massive airlift began Christmas Day.

While there was no official reaction from Moscow, which has poured thousands of troops into Kabul in a massive airlift, the Soviet news media reported the coup less than four hours after the initial Kabul radio report and a little before the Kremlin was pleased.

Last week, Amin was portrayed as a staunch friend and ally of the Soviet government. Thursday night Radio Moscow also told the world that the "dictatorial" regime had been overthrown by Karmal.

The official Tass news agency quoted the Kabul broadcast, which declared Afghanistan had overthrown "the bloody apparatus of Hafizullah Amin and his henchmen, these agents of U.S. imperialism."

Feds up A-waste to INEL

Being tested, Evans says

BOISE (UPI) — Newly announced increases in shipments of low-level nuclear waste to a federal site in Idaho indicate the government is testing Idaho's will to resist such shipments, Gov. John V. Evans said Thursday.

"It is a test of how far we will go," the governor said after announcing U.S. Department of Energy officials have authorized the total shipment of about 100 boxes of low-level nuclear garbage for open-air disposal at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

"They may be saying, 'Maybe Idaho can handle a little bit more,'" he said. "Obviously, we're going to call a halt (to further increased shipments), because we don't know what they're going to do next," Evans said.

He added that he would fly to Washington next month to protest the DOE's decision to step up shipments to INEL, a federal site west of Idaho Falls.

The new waste will come from the Argonne National Laboratory, a research facility in Chicago. Evans said he called a news conference to announce the shipments because it represents the first increase in low-level waste sent to INEL since the DOE warned it might happen five months ago.

"It's a symptom of the whole problem" that the nation faces because it does not have one central permanent dump for nuclear waste, Evans said. "Until we find and build a permanent site, we will continue to face this problem, and INEL is not an appropriate site."

"It is difficult to understand why Congress and the administration is sidestepping this problem," Evans said.

He said many states are feeling more pressure to accept nuclear waste.

He said there is no way the state can stop further shipments to the INEL except by pressuring the federal government and through public outcry against the storage of nuclear waste at INEL, which is considered to be in an unstable geological area.

The waste from Chicago has a half-life of one year and will not present a serious hazard to Idaho, but the precedent of increased shipments is important, said Evans, who questioned why such relatively harmless waste has to be shipped halfway across the country.

Evans said the DOE's plan, made known to Evans Wednesday, was a "high-level" decision that probably originated in Washington. He dismissed the idea that recent state attacks on INEL's licensing disposal practices led to the new shipment of solid waste.

Clergy insist they saw only 43 hostages

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three American clergymen who met with the American hostages held in Iran reported to New York Thursday night and again insisted they saw only 43 captives at the embassy — 41 men and two women.

Bishop Thomas Gumbleton, auxiliary bishop of Detroit, Rev. William Howard, president of the National Council of Churches, and Rev. William Sloane Coffin, senior minister of The Riverside Church, arrived at Kennedy Airport shortly after 9 p.m. They left for Iran, via London, Sunday night.

At a short news conference at the airport, Howard said before they left a Tehran newspaper reported there were 49 hostages, saying some had refused to attend religious services held by the clergymen.

"As we were preparing to leave this morning, the Tehran Times announced that there were 49," Howard said.

"We are prepared to justify the persons we saw," said Coffin. "We were told by the students that we saw them all."

The three religious leaders said their first duty was to meet with relatives of the hostages at the U.S. Catholic Center in Washington Friday morning. After that, they will meet with state department officials to compare figures on the number of hostages held at the Iranian Embassy.

They said they were also scheduled to meet with the Iranian Embassy. Howard said the clergymen would release the names of the captives they had "upon notifying relatives."

Fire, smoke kill 10 southern jail inmates

LANCASTER, S.C. (UPI) — Fire sent smoke billowing through the second-story cell area of the 176-year-old Lancaster County Jail Thursday night, killing 10 prisoners and injuring eight others.

Authorities would not discuss the cause of the fire, saying state arson investigators were en route to the scene.

Sheriff Nae E. Parks said all 13 inmates, four firemen and one policeman were taken to Elliott White Springs Hospital.

"All suffered smoke inhalation," Parks said.

Dace Jones, administrator at Elliott White Springs Memorial Hospital confirmed 10 men, all inmates, were dead on arrival at the hospital about 7 p.m.

Jones said two firemen, two policemen and an ambulance attendant were treated at the hospital and released.

A jail trusty, Buddy Cole, was admitted to a regular ward and a fireman and an inmate were put in the intensive care unit, he said.

Witnesses said gusts of black smoke were surging from the second-story windows 15 minutes after the fire was reported. Cole, the trusty, told UPI the fire was mostly smoke, but it killed the prisoners "mighty fast."

"I was downstairs," he said. "I heard everybody hitting the bars."

Cole said he went upstairs and found the prisoners "in rough shape."

"There was eight in one cell and two in another cell. I don't know for sure how many were up there, but I know there was seven or eight in one cell."

The white two-story stucco building, known as the Lancaster District Gaol when it was built in 1823, is scheduled to be abandoned in February when a new law enforcement center is finished.

Reporters were not allowed enter the cell area of the building. Parks said names of the victims would not be released until relatives had been notified.

Fire Chief Donald Adams said he was instructed not to talk to reporters until arson investigators from the State Law Enforcement Division arrived.

The jail takes up the second floor of the two-story stucco building built in 1823 and designed by well-known antebellum architect Robert Mills.

"The windows on the second floor are barred, but the glass appeared to be broken in all of them. Several windows had individual air conditioning units."

Two years ago, a southern jail fire killed 49 persons and raised a national outcry over foam padding widely used at that time in jail cells.

Lower court ruling overturned

Iranian visa checks continue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Citing the president's power to make foreign policy, a federal appeals court ruled Thursday the government has the right to check visas of Iranian students and deport those who are in America illegally.

"Certainly, in a case such as the one presented here, it is not the business of courts to pass judgment on the decision of the president in the field of foreign policy," a three-judge Circuit Court of Appeals panel declared in overturning a District Court ruling.

The lower court ruling said the administration acted unconstitutionally in ordering the nationwide check on Iranian student visas as a response to the takeover of the American embassy in Tehran.

The judges also cited the Dec. 15 World Court opinion that the embassy takeover was a violation of international law by the Iranian government.

David Carliner, a lawyer for the Confederation of Iranian Students, one of the groups that challenged the regulation, said the decision would be appealed. He said lawyers for a group of students have not decided whether to ask the full appeals court to rehear the case or to appeal directly to the Supreme Court.

A White House spokesman said President Carter was "gratified by the decision" and that the decision "confirms the view that the administration has held all along: That the action taken in surveying Iranian students was both constitutional and lawful."

Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti said he was "pleased with the decision" and it "confirms the administration's view that the actions were taken lawfully. The Immigration and Naturalization Service, of course, carefully observe all due process standards in completing the program."

He said Iranian students who have not yet reported have until Dec. 31 to do so.

A new flare-up of fighting was reported Thursday on Iran's tense border with Iraq.

Iran's official Pars news agency, quoting revolutionary guards, said Iraqi forces bombarded Iranian territory around Tang-e Hovan with mortar and heavy artillery fire for 30 minutes. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

It was the second border clash reported this month. Two weeks ago, Iraqi forces striking further south along the border drove three miles into Iranian territory before pulling back, Pars said.

Legislature to get another shot at health care cost bill

By BEN MCKELWAY
Times-News Staff Writer

BOISE — In 1980, the Idaho Legislature will again consider "Certificate of Need" legislation designed to slow down the rising cost of health care.

It may be the last chance to pass such a measure without suffering reprisals from the federal government that form the million, made known to Evans Wednesday, was a "high-level" decision that probably originated in Washington. He dismissed the idea that recent state attacks on INEL's licensing disposal practices led to the new shipment of solid waste.

Under the special's proposed CON program, single, expenditures by doctors or hospitals for new equipment totaling $150,000 or for new services totaling $75,000 would first have to be approved by state Department of Health and Welfare officials. Because both doctors and hospitals sometimes pay for such additional equipment or services by raising their fees, the National Health Planning and Resources Development Act of 1974 requires that each state government first determine if such expenditures are unnecessarily duplicative of existing machines or services in the region.

Last year's CON Legislation passed the Senate under the leadership of Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, but died in committee in the House. The Idaho Medical Association, the state chapter of the American Medical Association, opposed the bill because doctors interpreted the bill as requiring a review of any change in services offered, regardless of the amount of the expenditure, according to IMA executive director Don Sower.

Toledo said the $75,000 limit was added this year to help defuse that particular objection. The bill will also be more specific, he added.

Opponents of last year's version charged that it was vague enough to allow more regulation than the minimum required by federal law.

"Last year's bill might have been a little bit too inclusive," Toledo said. "It probably went too far. In no way is CON meant to check up on a doctor's every move."

Sower said the IMA Board of Trustees will meet this week to decide whether to endorse a preliminary draft of the bill. Although he declined to comment on other aspects of the proposed legislation, he said the IMA has opposed CON bills in the past because "there is no evidence that it does save money."

Barker said he was disturbed by the IMA and by the Idaho Hospital

Legislature to again eye health care costs

John Hutchinson, an executive director of the Idaho Hospital Association, said his group is also considering this year's version of the bill.

If no CON program is instituted by October 1, 1980, the state stands to lose $7 million in annual federal Department of Health and Welfare grants, Toledo said. Among the programs funded by this money are Idaho immunization programs, community health centers, rural health programs, crippled children's services, alcohol and drug rehabilitation programs, and a nurse training program at the College of Southern Idaho.

Hollis Putnam, section supervisor for DHW's Bureau of Health Planning and Resource Development, said the money at stake is closer to $8 million a year. If the bill Congress amended the federal act to phase out a non-complying state's money gradually instead of all at once. The first year, 25 percent of the money would be withheld, the second year 50 percent, and the third year 75 percent.

Toledo said Congress also softened the act's penalties by allowing reinstatement of non-complying states, who could prove they were making a "good faith effort" at planning for future health needs of the state, including the future implementation of a CON program.

Following the amendment, Idaho DHW leaders successfully negotiated with federal officials for the reinstatement of planning money, Toledo said. Because the state failed to pass a CON bill last year, its planning grant was cut off this summer and 10 employees in Putnam's office were laid off, Toledo said. For two months the state was left without the state money necessary to meet other federal requirements, he explained, but then Congress amended the law. Now DHW is recruiting planners again, he added.

But this second chance may be backfire. Barker, who has advocated CON legislation every year since 1974, says opponents of the measure will point to the recent amendments as evidence that the federal government backs down when a state calls its bluff.

"And you have to kind of admit that's what has happened," Barker said.

Barker said he doesn't think the federal government would hesitate to make an example of Idaho if it were the only state that hadn't met the requirements. But some other states are in the same boat, he said, and still others have passed inadequate or incomplete CON plans.

According to Gordon Fisher, senior analyst with the state Legislative Fiscal Office, the National Conference of State Legislators recently passed a resolution urging Congress to extend the overall CON deadline beyond 1980. Fisher's rationale, Fisher said, was that the federal government will not complete new CON regulations in time for state legislative sessions this winter. Without such regulations, states cannot be absolutely sure that the amendments passed by Congress this fall will actually meet the requirements of the act.

Fisher said that the amendments passed by Congress this fall will actually meet the requirements of the act. The fear is that states may pass new CON bills that later turn out to be inadequate, Fisher said.

Lawyers volunteer to defend hostages

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A volunteer team of high-powered New York and Washington lawyers Thursday was mapping defense arguments for use if Iranian militants go through with their threat to put American hostages on trial.

The defense effort is under the direction of the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, a group formed in 1963 to represent civil rights activists in the South.

John B. Jones Jr., co-chairman of the rights committee, said in an interview Thursday that lawyers from four law firms started work on a possible defense for the hostages earlier this month on a "pro bono" — free of charge — basis.

The Iranian militants holding the hostages in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran since Nov. 4 have vowed to try the hostages as spies.

White House counsel Lloyd Cutler said that members of the lawyers' committee, which he is former chairman, had decided to see "if they themselves could be of help."

"Some of us in government urged them to be in a standby position," Cutler said. "I have vowed not to appear to be legitimizing these trials or resigned to them. But we told them to ... make themselves known when and the families of the hostages seek their help."

Jones, partner in the Washington law firm Covington and Burling, said the lawyers "have been doing some background legal research and contingency planning in the event that the hostages go on trial."

"We agree with the State Department that there is no basis under any law for trial of the hostages," Jones said. "But as part of the contingency planning, we have made arrangements with four law firms to prepare for a trial in the event that it occurs."

In addition to Jones' firm, lawyers working on the project are from Cravath, Swaine and Moore, and Paul, Welas, Rifkind, Wharton and Garrison, both of New York; and Washington's Hogan and Hartson.

Norman Redlich, dean of the New York University Law School, is the other co-chairman of the rights committee, which has also worked on the cases of dissidents in South Africa.

"Jones and other lawyers on the case would offer little in the way of comment on the details of their work, not even saying how many lawyers are on the committee or the government initiated the project."

But Jones said the project was geared toward some sort of "trial" of individual Americans — not an "international tribunal," inquiry into United States ties to the deposed shah.

Jones would not say whether the project "purely private" or "classified information."

State Department spokesman Tom Reston and Justice Department spokesman Robert Havel both termed the project "purely private."

But Havel said, "We are not trying to discourage it."

Reston said the State Department continues to believe "hostage trials would be a mockery" and that the government would not foot the bill for the lawyers if they go to Tehran.

Friday briefing

Carter cuts vacation short

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter plans to interrupt his vacation at Camp David to return to the White House Friday for a National Security Council meeting on the crises in Iran and Afghanistan, the White House said Thursday.

Carter, meantime, has received word that there is "a good chance" the Soviets will not veto the U.S. proposal for economic sanctions against Iran in the United Nations, an official said.

The White House announcement said that Carter will return from the mountain hideaway where he has been in seclusion since last Friday to meet with foreign policy advisers on the situation in Iran and other developments in that region.

Sell airport, teachers ask

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Teachers Union filed suit Thursday seeking to force the Board of Education to sell enough of its property — including Midway Airport — to pay back wages to teachers and other employees.

About 48,000 school workers went without paychecks last Friday as they were unable to meet its $41.5 million payroll because of a continuing financial crisis. Another payroll is due Jan. 4 and the board currently does not have enough cash to meet that deadline, either.

Weizman asks for more aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman said Thursday he hopes to convince President Carter that Israel needs more American help and aid to overcome its economic problems, aggravated by high oil prices.

"We exchanged views and information about the process of the peace treaty between Egypt and us and emphasized our problems, especially in the economic field as a result of changes in world oil prices," Weizman told reporters after an hour-long meeting with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

Weizman was seeing Defense Secretary Harold Brown Thursday and was to "meeting" with Carter at the White House today.

Rhodesian peace is uneasy

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Patriotic Front guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe warned his troops of a possible "trickery" Thursday and said he might renegotiate on the British-sponsored Rhodesian cease-fire agreement if South African troops allegedly in Rhodesia were not sent home.

Mugabe sternly ordered his followers not to give up their arms.

The task of easing the mistrust of guerrillas who fought the bloody seven-year civil war against both white and black-led Salisbury regimes was further aggravated by the auto accident death in Mozambique of the Patriotic Front's most important guerrilla commander, Gen. Josiah Tongogara.

The British-led cease-fire peacekeeping force suffered its first casualties Thursday.

17 journalists killed in '79

LONDON (UPI) — Seventeen journalists lost their lives by violence and 69 newspapers were banned or suspended in 1979, the International Press Institute reported Friday in its annual World Press Freedom Review.

The report highlighted the murder of Abdol Ipekci, editor of the Istanbul daily, Milliyet, and a former vice chairman of IPI.

In addition to the deaths and newspaper closings, the report contained a catalogue of harassment against individuals — 13 cases of assault, 12 bombings, more than 30 arrests, 28 expulsions and 25 jailings.

It said that efforts to influence journalists included threats of death, detention of relatives, searches of homes, slander and a variety of subtler methods.

The IPI, an organization of some 2,000 leading editors and publishers in more than 60 countries, said the world had not become a safer place for journalists since the adoption of the UNESCO Declaration on the Mass Media in November 1978.

"It is difficult to regard the UNESCO Declaration as a useful document," the report said, adding: "It may be said the declaration has no force of law. At the same time, it ought to have a moral force for countries which, without dissent, adopted it."

Baker, Dole make ballot for primary

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Republican Sen. Howard Baker and Rep. Dole got under the qualifying deadline Thursday to complete a field of 12 for New Hampshire's Feb. 28 presidential primary.

Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, became the only candidate to qualify for the state's little known vice presidential primary.

Backers of Baker and Dole produced the required 1,000 signatures and $500 filing fee before the 5 p.m. deadline, supporters of other businessmen — Benjamin Fernandez could not.

On the Democratic side, Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch spent the day flying around the state picking up petitions, but his last minute effort also fell short. He said he still plans to run for president — and will announce his intentions in his hometown this week.

The last minute entries mean there will be seven Republicans and five Democrats in the primary.

Those who had qualified for the Democratic primary before Thursday included President Carter, Massachusetts Sen. Edward Kennedy, California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., Cleveland lawyer Richard Kay and New York economist Lyndon LaRouche.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, former Texas Gov. John Connally, former ambassador George Bush and Illinois Reps. Philip Crane and John Anderson had qualified for the Republican primary.

Consumer group hits oil overcharges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Oil firms break federal pricing rules because there is just one chance in 10 they will have to refund money to consumers if they get caught, a national consumer coalition charged Thursday.

The Consumer Energy Council, a Washington-based coalition of 50 groups for the poor, elderly, workers and minorities, filed a petition with the Energy Department, complaining that most overcharge settlements let companies keep the money.

Until some fair way is found to share the money among the individual victims who paid too much for their gasoline, the council demanded that the agency halt all case settlements.

"The whole basic issue is DOE can't play god with this money," said Jim Feldman, council attorney.

Ellen Berman, executive director of the council, said the first $630 million in overcharges the agency recovered were parcelled out in a form of restitution that offered little hope for individual consumers to see any of it.

"As usual, the oil industry has come out on top, showing it pays to violate the law," said Ms. Berman. "These settlements assure the industry of at least a 90 percent success rate in illegal overcharges."

So far, the agency has insisted companies make restitution through price rollbacks, elimination of deferred or "banked" charges, more corporate spending on exploration and direct refunds to overcharged middlemen. None of the remedies directly benefit individual consumers who were the ultimate overcharge victims.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., urged the Energy Department to develop a system for distribution of money recovered from oil companies in connection with the price overcharges.

"I believe the public deserves the assurances that those who violate the law by overcharging the public will be forced to relinquish their unearned profits and that recovered funds that are not claimed by those who were directly overcharged will be put to a public purpose," Kennedy said in a statement.

"The only way to provide that assurance is to place these funds in escrow and immediately initiate a generic rulemaking process," the Democratic presidential candidate said.

Ms. Berman agreed with the agency that individual reimbursement may not be practicable for a few hundred million dollars, but "at $10 billion, the number gets more intriguing."

The petition recommends no particular reform, but it suggests that the agency at least try to track down consumers through credit cards or possibly use recovered funds to launch a "consumer energy foundation."

The petition alleged that $475 million, or 75 percent, of recovered money would be retained by the offending company, and 2 percent would go to the Treasury. Another $14 million — 19 percent — would go to middlemen and jobbers.

Benefits to customers so far would come to less than 7 percent — $25 million in low-income fuel assistance and $17 million in reductions of pump prices.

Divers to search capsized freighter

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (UPI) — A team of U.S. Navy divers prepared Thursday to brave a fierce north Pacific storm to determine if any crewmen were trapped alive inside a Korean freighter that capsized Christmas Day.

Thirty crewmen were aboard the freighter Lee Wang Zin when it turned turtle in high seas and gale-force winds Tuesday. Rescuers held out faint hope that any might still be alive in an air pocket inside the crippled freighter.

One body was recovered from the frigid waters Wednesday and sent to Ketchikan for identification. Scattered debris and two empty life rafts were found near the battered vessel, but searchers spotted no sign of life.

The 15,000-ton freighter, which was carrying a load of iron ore and oil to Japan, ran hard aground Thursday on rocks off tiny Kendrick Island, about 40 miles southwest of Ketchikan.

Firehouses manned by guardsmen

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri's governor activated hundreds of National Guardsmen Thursday to help police man firehouses because of a labor dispute that threatened the city's ability to effectively protect citizens from fires.

As many as a third of the city's 900 firefighters stayed home Thursday, claiming illness in a contract dispute over wages. The unauthorized "sickout," in its second day, forced the shutdown of one fire station and a transfer of full firefighting duties to police at 15 others.

"I'm here only because they (city leaders) could not guarantee the safety of the people of Kansas City," Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale said during an often volatile meeting with firefighters union president John Germann and Mayor Richard Berkley.

The mayor had claimed fire protection was adequate until Thursday, when the number of firefighters calling in sick rose to as many as 300.

Another 90 firefighters called in sick on the afternoon shift Thursday and Berkley threatened to hire new men if the city's final contract offer was not accepted. Thirty firefighters have been fired since the slowdown began.

No major fires have occurred since the sickout began Wednesday.

Police also provided security at five stations staffed by battalion fire chiefs on 24-hour shifts, leaving regular fire fighters at only one-third of the city's 34 stations.

Teasdale ordered 350 guardsmen from Kansas City to assume engineering and security duties at fire stations — without fighting fires — beginning at 8 p.m.

Police trained in fire fighting would ride pumpers and ladder trucks.

"We believe we can get through 10 days just by calling the guard in the Kansas City area," said Gary Passmore, a Teasdale aide.

During the meeting Germann asked Berkley whether he would grant amnesty to roughly three dozen firefighters if the sickout ended and both sides resumed bargaining. Berkley said the decision was not his to make.

Germann told Teasdale Local 42 of the International Association of Firefighters would accept his offer to help mediate the 10-month contract dispute, and asked Berkley if the city would do the same. Berkley said he would accept the governor's advice but declined him as a mediator.

Germann said the prospect for a resolution was "pretty grim" because the union would not accept the city's offer of a $1.1 million wage and benefit package. Germann also claimed City Manager Robert Kipp was "going to fire us" for refusing mandatory overtime created by illnesses and vacations.

The refusal to work overtime began last Friday, the first stage of the slowdown. The city has suspended more than 200 firefighters for refusing overtime once and is firing those who refused a second time.

A Jackson County district judge Monday barred firefighters from further job actions, but the order has been ignored.

Magistrate asks jail for Jackpot

JACKPOT, Nev. (UPI) — Jackpot Magistrate Jay Snyder is trying to convince the Elko County Commission to build a jail in the small Nevada town.

Snyder said the jail is needed to cut down on transportation costs involved in moving suspects 118 miles to Elko to be jailed overnight and then returning them to Jackpot for court proceedings.

He said the jail, estimated to cost between $50,000 and $70,000, would be used to house most suspects overnight. He said the population of Jackpot has increased from about 200 residents 17 years ago to almost 1,000 today, with a corresponding increase in crime.

No quick end expected to oil cartel's pricing free-for-all

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The open oil market sidled OPEC and taken control of world petroleum prices, creating a no-floor, no-ceiling situation, industry sources said Thursday. They warned things could get worse in the new year.

Predictions of a modest oil glut in 1980 had bolstered hopes of a stabilization but Iranian Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinefar has warned, "In the name of God Almighty, there won't be an oil glut early next year" and sections of the industry agree with him.

One Middle-Eastern analyst explained, "When the oil market is slack, OPEC has to act with a degree of unanimity to set a benchmark price which all producers can agree to hold and none will undercut."

"But when the market is full of steam — as it is now — OPEC becomes a spectator. It doesn't have to worry about a floor price, because the floor is always rising. It can't set a fixed ceiling because someone is always desperate enough to pay that extra dollar to assure himself of a supply."

It was this economic rationale which made it impossible for the 13 OPEC producers to forge a unified market price at Caracas earlier this month for the 84 percent of the world's traded oil which they control. The failure earned them the nickname DOPEC — the Disorganization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

But despite the multiplicity of prices — being — charged — by — OPEC — members in their new every-man-for-himself phase, two basic trends are still apparent.

The dominant trend in OPEC is made up of a loose coalition of price "doves" who believe their rates must rise gradually to the cost of alternative resources. These producers realize that too sharp a price boost could send Western economies into a tailspin, which would not only harm their own investments abroad but would sap the strength of the countries upon which they are most dependent politically and militarily.

With Saudi Arabia trying to hold down the floor at $24 per barrel, the other "doves" have priced their grades at nearby levels depending on their quality and their proximity to the markets they serve.

The United Arab Emirates pegged its oil at $27.56 per barrel and its Gulf neighbor, Qatar, at $27.42. Oil industry sources said Kuwait and Iraq, who have not yet formally announced their new prices, will hold the line around $27 and $26 respectively.

There's all sorts of nudes from around the world today

NO NUDES...
Gurucharan Singh vows if he's elected to India's Parliament next month, he'll rid the nation of nudity — and he kicked off his campaign this week by draping a cloak around the statue of a nude woman in a New Delhi park. Singh calls naked statues "symbols of moral degradation" but if he wins, he may have his work cut out for him. Hindu temples throughout India are jammed with ancient statues of thousands of gods and goddesses — all unclothed — in acts of love.

SUZANNE SOMERS
...Improper image

...IS GOOD...
In 1970, Playboy photographer Stan Malinowski shot test pictures of a then-unknown blonde named Suzanne Somers, but the magazine's planned nude centerfold never was done — it's been done now — Playboy is out with the test photos — and they've cost Suzanne a job. It seems Ace Hardy, vice in Chicago, doesn't want a bunny in his hutch — calls pictures of Suzanne in the buff "potentially embarrassing" — so Suzanne won't be doing commercials for Ace after all.

...NUDES
A reader, comparing the nudes of the centerfolds, scarcely would notice it. The Penthouse and Playboy magazines are arch competitors. That's why "Bunnies" never become "Pels" and why "Pels" never evolve into "Bunnies." Well, almost never. Penthouse is making the exception for Debbie Harry — the raucous rock group Blondie. She'll be on the magazine's February cover — despite her debut 10 years ago with the opposition. But this time she won't wear her contentant.

ROLE MODELS
Rosalynn Carter and Betty Ford are first ladies this year of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association which says as they go, so go the majority of American women. They're among the organization's "Top Ten Stylemakers" for 1979. The other eight — Polly Bergen, Carol Burnett, Cheryl Ladd, Mary Tyler Moore, Diana Ross, Jaclyn Smith, Cheryl Tiegs and Barbara Walters. The only 1978 style-setter dropped this year is Marie Osmond.

PRICE OF FAME
Maurice Gibb of the Bee Gees is wealthy, famous — and worn out. That's the word from doctors at the London hospital where he's resting up. Gibb was "home for the holidays" with brothers Robin and Barry when he fell ill. Says a hospital spokesman, "Maurice's condition is not serious — he is simply coming out from a result of the group's extremely heavy concert and recording schedule." He should be back in musical harness early next week.

RABBIT TEST
Touted as the latest singing sex symbol, Eddie Rabbitt is known to transform an audience of normally reserved women into a throng of drooling adolescents — but Rabbitt has his doubts. Said he recently to a female interviewer who asked about his growing reputation, "You'd question the sex symbol thing if you saw me when I wake up in the morning." He quickly replies, "Well, I wouldn't mind being the judge of that."

Foul speech penchant nettles Soviet writer

MOSCOW (UPI) — Gennady Gerodnik is mad as heck about the Soviet penchant for using foul language.

Writing in Wednesday's edition of Literaturnaya Gazeta, Gerodnik complained that even a mouthful of soapuds would not cure what he believes is a national defect as serious as alcoholism.

"Even third- and fourth-graders have become professional foulmouths," he wrote. "It is an epidemic that is snowballing and assuming large proportions. It's like a drinking problem, which the public long ago realized took a large toll. But then people have not yet realized the damage done by obscenity."

Ironically, Gerodnik hails from the Estonian town of Valga, but his letter to the paper expressed no tolerance for vulgarity. Nor was he tolerated well.

"I tried very hard to influence foul-mouthed people, and told them it was wrong. I even said I would call the militia."

"But when I reported the cases of foul language to the authorities, they said that since I had not been injured there was nothing they could do."

He concluded, "The public is lenient and tolerant of foulmouths. For the overwhelming majority, filthy language has become everyday speech."

The syndrome is also spreading, the offended Gerodnik wrote.

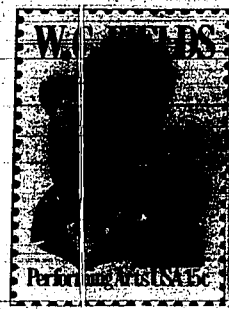

"Women are trying to emulate their male counterparts by smoking and using foul language. This is how they try to achieve equality with men."

Gerodnik has nothing against four-letter words — at least not in Russian, where the classic epithet contains five letters.

Stamp due in January

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Postal Service will issue a special stamp honoring W.C. Fields on Jan. 29, 1980, the 100th anniversary of the comedian's birth.

The commemorative stamp will be issued at Beverly Hills, Calif., in ceremonies sponsored by the American Academy of Motion Pictures, Arts and Sciences.

A spokesman for the Postal Service said Wednesday the commemorative stamp depicts two pictures of Fields by Jim Sharpe, a Westport, Conn., artist. Fields is depicted wearing his distinctive top hat and performing in a juggling routine.

The stamp is the fourth to be issued in a Postal Service series honoring the performing arts and artists. Others honored were Jimmy Rogers, George Cohan, and Will Rogers.

Dear Abby:

Needs housekeeping tips

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
 © The Chicago Tribune
 N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: We need advice desperately. We have a dear young relative (married a year) whose house looks like a disaster area.

Would it be wrong to ask if we could go in and clean it up for her?

You never saw such a mess in all your life?

ABSOLUTELY ANONYMOUS

DEAR ABSOLUTELY: There's a wise old saying, "Give a man a fish and he can eat for a day; teach him how to fish, and he can eat for a lifetime."

Subtly offer your young relative a few pointers on how to make housekeeping easier. If she reacts with appreciation, dig in and teach her. If she reacts with indignation—back off.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column a woman complained that her husband was not allowed to play tennis on a certain tennis court because he wasn't "properly attired." (He was wearing regular street trousers and shirt. He was told he had to wear white tennis shorts and white shirt.)

The wife asked if you knew the reason for this rule, and you said you didn't know for sure, but it was probably because white looks better and is cooler.

NO, I know the reason. White clothing does not show perspiration the way colored clothing does, and tennis players sweat a lot.

MARTHA POST, LAKELAND, FLA.

DEAR MARTHA: Your explanation sounds reasonable. But read on for a few others:

I believe I read somewhere that the reason all tennis players wear white is because it shows off their outfits.

TENNIS PRO, WORCESTER, MASS.

Tennis players are required to wear white on the courts because if the players were permitted to wear colored clothes, you'd have stripes, wild patterns in clashing colors, and a mess of distracting designs. It might distract other players, and would certainly look like the dickens to spectators.

REASONABLE IN YPSILANTI

Why do tennis players have to dress in white? Simple. Because white is cooler. Don't ask me why, but it is a known and proven fact. You'll notice that people who live in the desert are always dressed in white for that reason.

SENSIBLE IN ORANGE, TEX.

Tennis players must dress uniformly because it's the democratic way. When they all wear the same, nobody looks any richer or better dressed than his team players or opponents. And the color is white because most people look better in white.

PETERSBURG, VA.

The official tennis outfit originated in England over 150 years ago. It was all white. Since that time, all tennis clothes are uniformly white to carry on the tradition.

C. W., PALM BEACH, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a minister who stands outside a porno movie theater to see how many people he knows go in?

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: He's not very bright. Some of the people he knows might see him standing there and think he just came out.

Address comments and questions to Abby, care of Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply, please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

CSI center plans new 1980 direction

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho's Center for New Directions, formerly the Woman's Center, plans to step in a new "direction" next semester.

The center will concentrate on sponsoring longer, more in-depth workshops than the one-day events of last semester, according to Cheri Briggs, center coordinator.

Briggs said she hoped to make the program "a lot meatier" for displaced homemakers seeking jobs or ways to organize their lives without a departed spouse.

Planned programs include:

"You, the Emerging Woman," a workshop on Jan. 21, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Shields Room 117.

A five-week life-planning seminar, on Mondays and Wednesdays, 2 to 4 p.m., Jan. 28 through Feb. 27, Student Conference Room, Administration Building.

A three-week stress management seminar, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 2 to 4 p.m., Feb. 12 to Feb. 28, Shields Room 104.

"A More Beautiful You: Update Your Look Without Spending a Fortune," a workshop on Feb. 29, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Shields Room 117.

There will be a fee charged for some of these programs. For more information, call Cheri Briggs, 733-9554, ext. 231.

He got back his vision

NEW YORK (UPI) — In 1971 New York City took away Pedro Feliciano's son. This year, it gave him back his vision.

Feliciano, 74, had vowed never to set foot in the city again after his son, Pedro, was stabbed to death in a robbery. But on Thursday he sat, beaming at New York Eye and Ear Infirmary, saying this Christmas might just be the best one ever.

Feliciano and his wife, Anna, separate for a year by blindness and ill health. After three operations each, both can see their youngest grandchild, Eva, for the first time.

The couple left their children in New York and retired to their native Puerto Rico in 1964. Seven years later, they got word of Pedro's death.

"It was like mourning," the family believed, that ruined Anna Feliciano's eyes. "She cried every day," said grandson John, 20. "You'd go to her house two years later and she'd still be talking about it."

Actually, cataracts were growing on Mrs. Feliciano's eyes. Her husband, who had lost a leg to diabetes, had begun to lose his vision. "She would help him move around the house and he would guide her," said a hospital social worker. "I don't know how they managed as long as they did."

Doctors in Puerto Rico had pronounced Mrs. Feliciano, totally blind for five years, a hopeless case. But the couple's daughter, Maria Flores, believed American doctors could help her mother.

"It took a good two months to convince her to come," said their grandson. "She was willing, but he said he'd come back to New York. He said there was nothing for him there."

Finally, Feliciano bid his wife goodbye and Mrs. Feliciano flew to New York where she underwent initial surgery a year ago. The surgery was complicated by scarring and inflammation, and a second operation a month ago restored her sight.

Medicaid and Medicare paid for the surgery, hospital officials said.

"The day after the operation I took the bandages off her right eye and I put on her new glasses," said Mrs. Feliciano's surgeon, Dr. James Lombardo. "She broke out in a big smile and threw her arms around me."

The family persuaded Pedro Feliciano to join his wife of 51 years in the hated city last month. The couple were installed in a private hospital room while doctors prepared to remove cataracts on his eyes, too.

"It was like a festival every day," said Dr. Lombardo. "There were Spanish foods, and whenever you walked in, dozens of flowers."

On Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Feliciano tried to answer reporters' questions. His wife interpreted for him. With their grandchildren interpreting, the couple said they were happy, grateful and looking forward to going back to Puerto Rico together.

And is Feliciano glad that he broke his vow and returned to New York? In Spanish, Feliciano's grandson posed the question. The old man, his wife and children at his side, broke into a wide smile.

"Ah, si," he said.

Heat potential of hard wood

BRATTLEBORO, VT. (UPI) — One cord of hard wood burned in an "bright stove" has the same heat potential as 100-250 gallons of fuel oil, depending on the kind of wood used, according to a recent issue of Country Journal magazine.

The magazine also reports that a properly placed woodstove can heat an entire house but it advises asking a dealer specializing in woodstoves for advice in selecting the proper stove for a particular house. Reprints of a guide to kinds of wood recommended for burning as well as instructions for felling trees and stacking wood will be obtained for $1 each from Country Journal, 205 Main St., Brattleboro, Vt. 05301.

The West

Utah, Arizona, New Mexico hit

Winter storm buries parts of West

By United Press International.

A heavy winter storm buried parts of Utah, Arizona and New Mexico under foot-deep snows Thursday, closing airports and bogging down rush-hour traffic with a flurry of minor accidents.

The storm system lumbered eastward across the Rockies and storm warnings were posted for parts of Texas and Oklahoma.

Up to 10 inches of wet, sloppy snow clogged parts of northern New Mexico.

Police in Albuquerque, N.M., reported many minor traffic accidents during the storm. The water and the city's international airport was closed for several hours. Snow-laden power lines snapped and power failures left parts of eastern Albuquerque without electricity for 2 1/2 hours.

Ten or more inches of new snow fell in the northern mountains and up to a half foot of snow stacked up on northern New Mexico highways.

"There's been a lot of accidents but most of the vehicles are driveable," an Albuquerque police dispatcher said. "It wasn't as bad as we thought it would be."

Power failures contributed to Albuquerque's driving problems by knocking out traffic lights.

Highways across northern New Mexico were snow-packed and police discouraged travel. Authorities said only one lane was open northbound on highways leading from Santa Fe, N.M., to Espanola and Los Alamos, N.M., and visibility was poor.

Interstate 40 was reduced to one lane in Tijeras Canyon and near Clines Corners, N.M. A winter storm warning was in effect for the northern mountains of New Mexico.

The storm leaves the area. Winter storm watches were posted for the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles.

Fog rolled from the upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys to southern New England.

Light freezing drizzle made streets slippery in the upper Ohio Valley and southern New England and freezing drizzle prompted travel advisories for northwestern Pennsylvania. Light snow dusted parts of northern New England.

Dense fog spread from southwestern Wyoming across the valleys of Idaho to parts of Washington and Oregon.

Union rolls back gas, oil prices

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Union Oil Co. responding to a federal decision that will lower the company's costs of obtaining crude oil, will cut 1 cent per gallon in the price of gasoline, heating oil and diesel fuel.

The Los Angeles-based oil company also announced Wednesday it would roll back previously announced 1- to 2-cent per-gallon increases for at least 30 days.

The price drop took effect today, but company officials said the move might not be reflected in gas-pump prices.

The price reductions followed a Department of Energy ruling earlier this month in favor of Union's application for relief from two Department of Energy regulatory programs that the company claimed unfairly discriminated against its customers.

The DOE directed 14 major U.S. oil companies to sell Union an approximately 75,000 barrels per day of crude oil for December, 71,000 barrels per day for January and 59,000 barrels per day for February.

A spokesman said the sale price cannot exceed each company's weighted average F.O.B. of all foreign crude oil purchased by the seller for delivery in the United States during November and December, plus the actual costs of transportation and $1.50 profit per barrel.

In addition, Union agreed not to raise the price of gasoline or home heating oil for one month and to operate its refineries through February at a rate of production at least equal to the estimated national rate of approximately 80 percent of operable capacity.

A Union spokesman said the DOE Office of Hearings and Appeals issued the order after determining that "the combined regulatory impact of the Entitlements Program and the Buy-Sell Program adversely affects it to a substantially greater degree than other refiners participating in those programs."

"There is no question," the company quoted the DOE, "that the class of Union customers represented in this proceeding are experiencing serious financial difficulties."

The Union spokesman said the order will help the company's wholesale customers, primarily gas dealers and jobbers, improve their competitive positions.

He said it was not known whether the price hikes would be translated into lower fuel pump prices, since dealers are allowed to operate within a profit margin up to 18.2 cents per gallon.

"Some dealers may not have been selling at a full margin because of competitive reasons," he said.

Ananconda plans mine in Nevada

CARSON CITY (UPI) — Ananconda Copper Co. announced plans today for a $200 million molybdenum mine and milling operation about 25 miles north of Tonopah in Central Nevada.

When completed it will be the fourth or fifth largest molybdenum mine in the world. Molybdenum is used as an alloy in the steel industry for its anti-corrosive qualities.

Roy Wilkes, Ananconda's manager of the project, said an estimated 600 workers will be employed for the construction which will start immediately. When operational, there will be about 400 permanent employees with a yearly payroll of about $3 million.

Shortly before making the announcement company officials met with Gov. Robert List who called the project a "whopping bonus to Central Nevada."

Ananconda officials estimate a 150 million ton reserve with an annual production of 12-15 million pounds of molybdenum for the next 20 years.

The company will build housing for its employees on a site just north of Tonopah and will transport the workers in buses and vans to the mine. List said the housing was "not a trailer alum" but a "model type of community" and can serve as an example to other areas.

Paroled Utah killer gets death penalty

PRESCOTT (UPI) — A paroled Utah killer was sentenced to death in Arizona's gas chamber Thursday for killing a Blisbee man.

Yavapai County Superior Court Judge Paul Rosenblatt sentenced Edward Schad Jr., 37, Schad was convicted Oct. 5 of first-degree murder in the August 1978 strangulation death of Lorimer Grove, 74, Blisbee.

Grove's body was found near U.S. 89 south of Prescott several days after he disappeared while driving from Blisbee to Overlet, Wash., to visit relatives.

Schad was arrested in Salt Lake

City about a month later while driving Grove's car.

In ordering the death sentence, Rosenblatt noted that, at the time Grove was killed, Schad was on parole after serving a sentence for second-degree murder in Utah.

Rosenblatt noted authorities said Grove was strangled with a 10 1/2 inch cord and said the method of death was "as slow, tortuous, painful and terrifying for the victim as it was quick for the killer."

The judge said he found no mitigating circumstances to justify mercy.

Test cruise missile crashes near Lampoc

LAMPLOC, Calif. (UPI) — A cruise missile crashed near the California coast six miles south of Lampoc Thursday shortly after it was launched on a test flight, according to witnesses.

The missile, one of 20 the Air Force is testing in a competitive flyoff between Boeing Co. and General Dynamics Co., crashed in an area of trees and beaches about 10:30 a.m.

No details were immediately available from the Air Force.

Reports of the crash came from residents near Vandenberg Air Force Base. Cruise missile launches are under control of the Air Force at Edwards Air Force Base.

It was the second known cruise missile crash this month. Another missile crashed near Otis Calif. Dec. 6 shortly after it was launched from a B-52 flying off the Southern California Coast.

That crash touched off a two-acre brush fire.

Six earlier test flights also ended in failure.

The $2 billion cruise missile contract is scheduled to be awarded to General Dynamics or Boeing next spring following the flyoff. The missile is designed to allow a B-52 to hit targets 1,000 miles away.

Snowmobiles legal in Yellowstone

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — Officials at Yellowstone Park have announced that snowmobiling will be allowed beginning today.

Lack of snow had delayed the opening of the park to snowmobilers, but snow-grooming and packing operations began Wednesday after localized storms increased the snow depth in the region.

Snowmobilers may enter the park from the south, west and east entrances, and at Tower and Norris Junctions, a park spokesman said.

Firm to clean up asbestos waste

GLOBE, Ariz. (UPI) — Owners of three asbestos mines whose stockpiles of mineral waste endanger residents of a Globe mobile home community have agreed to clear the area of the suspected cancer-causing refuse.

After meeting Wednesday with state officials, owners of the mines agreed to imposed clean-up efforts and to submit proposals for such action "within a week," state sanitation chief John Beck said.

About 120 people living in the Mountain View Mobile Home Estates, built on the site of an asbestos mine ordered closed in 1973 by state health authorities, are threatened by dust and trailings from nearby mines.

Asbestos was discovered at the site in October after health officials checked complaints of sewage disposal in the subdivision.

The levels of asbestos dust in some of the homes exceed job-level exposure considered allowable by the federal government.

Jack Neal, developer of the subdivision and former mine owner, said he would comply with the clean-up order, despite reservations.

"We still don't feel it's a health hazard," he said, speaking for fellow mine owners. "Our children grow up with it."

Michigan doesn't view N. Carolina as unworthy foe

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Coach Schembechler disagrees with those critics back home who feel the Michigan Wolverines are degrading themselves by playing North Carolina in Friday night's Gator Bowl game.

"Of course, we would have preferred to have won the Big 10 championship and play in the Rose Bowl," the Michigan coach said Thursday. "But, we feel that it is important to our program that we play in some bowl every year. I really believe that our game with North Carolina may be the best bowl game played this year."

Schembechler said those critics are making a mistake in underrating North Carolina. "The team is a good team, sort of along the lines of Notre Dame (which beat Michigan, 12-10), said Schembechler. "I honestly believe this North Carolina team could compete, and successfully, in the Big 10."

The 14th-ranked Wolverines, who posted an 8-3 mark that included no loss by more than five points, are a slim 2 1/2-point favorite over the Tar Heels, who were 7-3-1.

"I think you'll find the two teams are very similar," North Carolina Coach Dick Crum said. "Michigan probably runs the option a bit more than we do, but generally, we look a lot alike on offense and defense."

Schembechler agreed. "I think you'll find this is a defense that can offense," said the Michigan coach. "Dick and I think a lot alike, especially on defense."

Schembechler still was unwilling to say Thursday whether he'd be starting Junior B.J. Dickey or senior John Wampler at quarterback Friday night. Wampler started only four games for the Wolverines, losing after Dickey suffered a shoulder separation, but he had far better passing statistics — completing 72 of 122 passes for 1,223 yards and seven touchdowns.

While Wampler is considered the better passer, Dickey is the better runner of the two. He rushed for 242 yards in 55 attempts (3.8 yards per carry).

Although the Gator Bowl is a notch lower than Michigan's six previous bowl appearances under Schembechler, the game is important to the Michigan coach because he has yet to win a post-season game.

"That's a record I'd like to change," said Schembechler. "I have not enjoyed going 0-6 in the bowls."

But, at the same time, Schembechler doesn't think being the favorite will have any bearing on Friday night's contest. "We come into games as a big favorite and lost," he said. "I don't look at the odds."

Michigan's three losses this season were 12-10 to Notre Dame, 24-21 to Purdue and 15 to Ohio State.

"In all three it was our kicking game that let us down," said Schembechler. "That's something we've concentrated on while getting ready for the Gator Bowl."

North Carolina's three losses were 24-19 to Wake Forest, 17-14 to Maryland and 19-10 to Clemson on Dec. 22 and 24 with the Carolina.

"North Carolina's record is misleading," said Schembechler. "The three losses and the tie all occurred during the middle of the season when the Tar Heels had a lot of injuries. Earlier, when they were healthy, they beat a good South Carolina team by 28 points — and that's some feat — and they beat a good Pitt team (17-7)."

"I understand they are healthy again now so we expect a tough fight."

Crum confirmed that North Carolina was back to full strength and said he planned to start the same lineup that closed out the regular season with a 37-16 rout at Duke.

That means the Carolina quarterback will be senior Matt Kupec, who holds most of his school's passing records after completing 123 of 227 for 1,587 yards and 18 touchdowns this fall and the running backs will be junior tailback Amos Lawrence, who has gained more than 1,000 yards three years in a row, and senior fullback Doug Paschal.

Sayer leads Bruins past Elko 78-40

TWIN FALLS — "Ron Sayer played a super game. He was under control and played with a lot of confidence."

Coach John Astorquia passed on that as a major reason that Twin Falls knocked off the smaller Elko Indians 78-40 Thursday night in the first of a three-night basketball stand at Bruin stadium. Elko remains in action Thursday night.

The coach said he didn't know if Krumm would be available for Saturday night. The junior guard, after a handful of assists in the first 12 minutes, sprained an ankle. "It didn't look very good to me," the coach continued, "but he wanted us to tape it up so he could come back out."

In the preliminary, Twin Falls' sophomores ran their record to 3-2 by tipping Elko 54-51.

Playoff loss to Miami rankles Steelers yet

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — When Pittsburghers reminisce about the Steelers' first appearance in the NFL playoffs under Coach Chuck Noll, way back in 1972, most recall the game won from Oakland 13-7 on a game play now called the "Immaculate Reception."

But the veterans of that Cinderella team do not recall the AFC title game they lost the following week, 24-23 to the Miami Dolphins, the team the Steelers met in the AFC playoffs for the first time since that game Sunday at River Stadium. And their memories of that '72 contest says nine-year defensive end Dwight White, still stir mixed emotions of brawn sentimentality and chagrin.

White says his and his teammates' memories of the game are not too fondly by the take punt, allowing Larry Seiple to run 37 yards, set up what was at the time a game-tying touchdown and a late game-winning contest in the Dolphins' favor.

Were it not for that play, White believes, the Steelers, not Miami, would have gone on to the Super Bowl. "But the good memories of that game are still at least as strong as the bad ones."

"We beat the heck out of them that game, on the field that is — we lost on the scoreboard," White said. "But that made us feel great. At that time they were working on and more than a young aspiring team. We really did beat them up, and that was the week we realized we were going to be a great team."

"We were trying to overcome that 'Same Old Steeler Syndrome.' White said, referring to the years of frustrating, losing seasons the team suffered before Noll came here in 1969 and began to rebuild the team through draft choices. "We were trying to give the people some confidence in us and trying to get some confidence in ourselves."

That loss to Miami, which went on to complete a 17-0 season, provided the Steelers with that self-confidence.

Now, seven years later, the tables are turned. The Steelers, who have since won "unprecedented" three Super Bowls, are being hailed as the team of the 70s, a claim that angers the Dolphins. Veteran Miami lineman Ed McCosh said he would like to see local writers this week. "I'd appreciate it if you'd point this out...the NFL (World Football League) did what the NFL wasn't able to do — stop the Dolphins."

Kuechenberg was referring to the fact that the now defunct WFL paid the Dolphins of three of their biggest stars, Jim Killek, Paul Warfield and Larry Csonka, who returned to the Dolphins this year.

"What would the Steelers have done if they'd lost Franco Harris, Lynn Swann and Rocky Bleier?" Kuechenberg asked. "I don't think they would have done anything without those three players. We lost Csonka, Warfield and Killek and we didn't get anything for them."

But White said, Kuechenberg does protest too much.

going against the Pocatello Indians at 8 p.m. Pocatello and Twin Falls will square off in the finale Saturday night.

Sayer, a senior, pumped through three straight field goals to break the Bruins away — in the final minutes of the second half and wound up with 14 points for the night.

"Of course, we were a little bigger than Elko and that helped. But we did the two things that we haven't been doing well to now. Coach Astorquia continued. "We rebounded and we played good team defense. I felt our defense was the best of the season."

Although the game ended up in a blowout, Elko opened with a hot shooting hand and for a while it appeared the Bruins were in for another close battle.

Twin Falls clicked on some good fast breaks in the early going while Elko hit on medium-range jumpers.

But after four lead changes, Twin Falls took the lead for keeps on a Jim Merkle follow shot and Sayer padded that to 11-8. After a field goal by Elko's Jeff Marlich, Sayer went on his three-field-goal spread that blew thing to seven points.

Twin Falls pumped that quickly to 12 as the second quarter opened when Gary Krumm hit a jumper, Norm Dowd added two free throws and Lars Hovey scored on a fast break.

Elko, steadied momentarily as Todd Griswold hit a pair of field goals but then Clay Meacham hit four points and Merkle and Hovey two each to explode the Bruins into an 18-point margin.

In the third quarter Dave Joerger picked up six points and Sayer and Jim Crandall added more as the Bruins blew things out of proportion.

"It will be different Saturday night," Coach Astorquia assessed the situation. "The (Pocatello)

San Diego playoff chances soar as Oilers' plunge

NEW YORK — The injuries suffered by the cream of the Houston offensive unit — Dan Pastorini, Earl Campbell and Ken Burroughs — have caused a swing in the odds on the NFL Super Bowl derby.

Just as it happens in racing, the NFL playoffs must be handicapped in terms of definite chances for each team as listed in a field of entry. Consequently, the San Diego Chargers, primarily because of the injuries to key Oiler players, have now moved to the position of 3-1 chances to win up to a point in Pasadena.

When on team within a race is moved down, such as the Oilers — who we now list as 25-1 outside shots at winning it all — another club must be moved upward. The principal changes, therefore, have been made in the price on the Chargers.

Philadelphia, by virtue of its win over the Bears plus the fact they will be playing Tampa Bay, is an 8-1 pick. The Rams are 15-1 while the Dolphins have dropped to 20-1 status because they must play the Steelers instead of the Chargers.

Even though Miami is the only team to defeat Pittsburgh at home in a playoff encounter during the 1970s, the Steelers have too much offense and more than enough defense to contain the Dolphins effectively to make them a strong 10-point choice in Sunday's contest. Franco Harris will key the Steeler ground game and will be more effective than Larry Csonka in the role of successful post-season backfield performer.

With all those injuries to the trinity of Oiler offensive superstars, more pressure is centered on Houston's defense. The Oiler pass defense was more than equal to the challenge posed by Craig Morton and the incessant Bronco attack. However, unless the Oilers pressure Dan Fouts into a "hit up" for grabs, the Houston Oilers are not going to be as effective in containing Johnny Jefferson and Charlie Joiner.

The key player for the Chargers on offense will be former Oiler Joiner. Jefferson, though somewhat recovered from his rib injuries, is not to be at his best because of the very nature of the injury. Bruised ribs are the worst thing that can happen to a receiver. Running sprints and deep patterns takes a great deal of stamina. And rib injuries bite into a player's endurance and help diminish the overall contribution of someone as gifted as Jefferson.

Houston's singular edge in this game is vested in the strength of the team's kicking unit featuring Tom Fritsch and Cliff Parsley. The Chargers have an edge in virtually

UNM athletic board backs president

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — The University of New Mexico athletic council Thursday defended the school president's handling of a sports scandal and said the administration was leading a clean up in college athletics.

An academic transcript-fixing scandal came to light last month with disclosure of evidence from an FBI investigation. The university subsequently declared six basketball players and three football players ineligible for intercollegiate sports and ousted head basketball coach Norm Ellenberger.

The situation first came to light last month as a result of an FBI investigation.

The council, an advisory body, announced its support of President William Davis a day after questioning him and other school officials in a public hearing.

Earlier this week, the school's regents gave Davis a vote of confidence after a closed-door meeting with him.

The promptness of Davis' actions had been questioned by a journalism professor, Charles Coates, in a memorandum sent to the council last week. Coates provided about 25 percent of the four hours of testimony in Wednesday's hearings.

The council's statement said, "It is fair to say that the University of New Mexico administration is leading the way in cleaning up questionable practices in intercollegiate athletics nationally."

Coates said he has "credits for cash" schemes corrupt the educational process, exploit the student athletes themselves, and threaten the integrity of universities in these times of intense competition. We appreciate the concern of Professor Coates, and we share that concern."

The council said it "concludes that the university president and administration have acted responsibly, decisively and expeditiously in regard to the questions considered by the council."

At the news conference, council president Al Utton and one of three student members of the body defended the independent status of the group.

"I think assumptions have been made by some members of the press that this council is just a tool of the administration," said student member Suzzano Cully.

"I represent a large part of the student body," she said. "After hearing the testimony Wednesday, I found myself in agreement with the other members of the council on our conclusions."

She said she didn't think the council "in any way" could be considered a tool of the administration.

Utton said the council is a committee of the faculty appointed by the faculty senate and is independent of the administration.

Eagles already can call season successful

By RICHARD ROSENBLATT
UPI Sports Writer

The NFL playoffs swi up into high gear this weekend and it is clear that the Philadelphia Eagles have improved on last season's performance. Coach Dick Vermeil already feels 1979 was a success.

The Eagles, who captured an AFC wildcard berth last year but lost to the Atlanta Falcons 14-13 in the first round, advanced a step further this season as they prepare to meet the NFC Central champion Buccaneers in Tampa Saturday. Philadelphia defeated the Chicago Bears 27-21 last Sunday for its first playoff victory in 10 years.

"Anything short of winning last Sunday would have been a total failure for the year because it meant we didn't get into the playoffs," said Vermeil. "We were in it all year long, so we had better win the second time around."

In Saturday's other game, AFC wildcard survivor Houston met the AFC West champion San Diego. In Sunday's games, AFC Central champion Pittsburgh hosts AFC East winner Miami and NFC East champion Dallas entertains NFC West winner Los Angeles.

Philadelphia, the winningest Eagles team in 30 years, will use up against the NFL's top defensive team in Tampa Bay, making its first playoff appearance in the club's four-year history.

"Tampa Bay looks like an outstanding defensive team," said Vermeil. "Their defense is ranked No. 1 against the run and pass. We're going to have to play our best game to beat them, but that's the way it has to be in the playoffs."

Eagles quarterback Ron Jaworski admitted he wasn't familiar with the Buccaneers.

"I don't know too much about Tampa Bay," said Jaworski, who tossed three TD passes while hitting 10-of-17 for 204 yards in a 24-17 victory over a first-rate defensive club. Doug Williams (Bucs quarterback) has thrown a lot of interceptions but he also has thrown a lot of touchdown passes."

Tampa Bay, which needed one victory over the last four games to clinch its first ever NFC Central crown, defeated Kansas City 3-0 in the regular season finale to earn the title.

Buccaners' defense, anchored by defensive end Lee Roy Selmon and linebacker David Lewis, has given up a league-low of 14.8 points a game while holding the opposition to 246.1 total yards a game.

"I think it is a matter of being Philadelphia," said McKay. "They are a fine football team. They beat Pittsburgh and Dallas. But I don't think there is any team that can blow us out."

San Diego, led by AFC player of the Year Dan Fouts, will be making its first appearance in the playoffs since 1965. Fouts, whose 4,082 yards passing surpassed Joe Namath's NFL single-season record of 4,077, will be throwing into a Houston secondary which intercepted a league-high 34 passes, including 12 by free safety Mike Rife.

The Oilers may have suffered a severe blow to their Super Bowl chances when Earl Campbell, the league's leading rusher for the second straight year, and quarterback Dan Pastorini both suffered groin injuries in last week's 157 victory over Denver. Campbell, Pastorini and wide receiver Ken Burrough, who injured his tailbone last week, were all listed as doubtful.

Pittsburgh, bidding for its fourth Super Bowl crown in the last six years, will be making its eighth consecutive playoff appearance. The Steelers, led by the passing of Terry Bradshaw and the running of Franco Harris, averaged 39.1 total yards per game to lead the league. Miami, however, was second in the AFC in points allowed (257) and the defense surrendered a league low of 26 TDs.

Los Angeles meets Dallas for the fourth time in the last five years, with the Cowboys winning three of the four games. The Rams, winners of their division a record seventh straight time, rely mainly on their defense, ranked third in the NFC. Los Angeles will go with quarterback Vince Ferragamo, who replaced the injured Pat Haden for the final five games.

The Cowboys played the NFC in scoring with 374 points and Roger Staubach completed his second straight league passing title, culminating 267-of-461 for 3,586 yards and 27 TDs, all club records.

Cotton Bowl

Houston has second chance

DALLAS (UPI) — For all practical purposes, the Houston Oilers' season appeared to have ended the evening of Nov. 10, at the conclusion of an especially physical game with the Texas Longhorns in the sold-out Cotton Bowl stadium.

Texas won on that occasion, 21-13, dealing Houston its only loss of the year. After that game Arkansas had taken over as the Cotton Bowl, Texas appeared to have won the Sugar Bowl and Houston was tentatively ticketed for the Sun Bowl.

The Sun Bowl provides a lot of entertainment for fans who have never, nevertheless, it was not the choice plan Houston had been hoping for.

But on Dec. 2, Texas A&M's upset of Texas restructured the bowl picture and according to Houston Coach Bill Yeoman, affected the mental outlook of quite a few football players.

"I think our attitude is real good," said Yeoman, whose Cougars are making their third Cotton Bowl trip in four years and will be meeting Nebraska Jan. 1. "I think our kids are really excited about being here and really anxious to play the game."

"That's probably the case because they had ruled a Cotton Bowl appearance out after the Texas game. Suddenly, the opportunity comes again. So they are excited about it and our workouts have shown it."

The Texas Longhorns, however, were on the verge of that excitement. Those close to the Texas team indicated there was little enthusiasm shown about being in El Paso to play in the Sun Bowl and that the Longhorns 147 loss to Washington.

"The circumstances there, were terrible, difficult for Texas," said Yeoman. "They were playing for so long to go to New Orleans and then they had that rug jerked out from under them. It makes it hard on people."

"It's like our situation after we played Texas. I know we were terribly down mentally after the Texas game. The next week I was in a very ordinary game against Tech."

"We were lucky enough to have (backup quarterback) Terry Elston salvage the game (with a long late drive), but it was really tough for me to feel. It's a terribly difficult situation for coaches."

"The kids are reading all the writeups about New Orleans and the other thing (the trip to El Paso) is like death warmed over."

Cleveland bombs New York

RICHFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — Mike Mitchell fired in 34 points and teamed with Camp Russell and Randy Smith Thursday night to spark the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 125-110 victory over the New York Knicks.

After spotting the Knicks a 59-56 halftime lead, the Cavaliers scored 39 third-period points with Mitchell, Russell and Smith getting 33. Cleveland took a 98-85 advantage into the final quarter and waited for their 13th victory in their last 14 home games.

The Knicks connected on 27-of-55 shots from the floor in the first half with rookie center Bill Cartwright scoring 26 points. Cleveland's defense held Cartwright scoreless in the third period. During that quarter the Knicks did not go to the foul line while the Cavaliers hit 13-of-14 foul shots.

Mitchell, who made 14-of-23 shots from the field, was backed by Russell with 24 points and Smith with 23. Toby Turner led the Knicks with 30 points and Cartwright added 26.

For the Bucks, Junior Bridgeman had 27 points, Sidney Moncrief a career-high 20 and Marques Johnson 19.

Washington jumped to a quick lead as Hayes scored the game's first seven points in just 47 seconds. The Bucks were up 25-23 before the Spurs cut the lead to 27-26 after one quarter.

Hawks 112, Rockets 110

ATLANTA (UPI) — Eddie Johnson hit a 15-footer with three seconds remaining to power the Central Division-leading Atlanta Hawks to a 112-110 victory over the Houston Rockets.

Johnson and teammate Tom McMillen each finished with 20 points as Atlanta raised its record to 24-15.

Kosmos Malone led Houston with 34 points.

Atlanta fought back from an eight-point deficit early in the third quarter to tie the 99-99 with 4:35 left on a layup by Johnson.

After John Drew hit a jumper with 40 seconds remaining to put Atlanta ahead 110-108, the Rockets' Major Taylor connected on a 14-footer to tie it 110-110. Johnson followed with his game-winning shot and Houston's Rudy Tomjanovich missed a three-pointer at the buzzer.

Bullets 117, Bucks 108

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Greg Ballard scored a career-high 27 points and grabbed 13 rebounds Thursday night to power the Washington Bullets to a 117-108 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

Washington took a 71-55 halftime lead — the most points the Bullets have scored in the first half this season — but the Bucks closed it to 93-89 with nine minutes left. Two baskets by Roger Phegley and one each by Kevin Grevey and Larry Wright lifted the Bucks to 110-101 with six minutes remaining and the Bucks came no closer.

For the Bullets, Phegley added 20 points, Elvin Hayes 19 and Grevey 17.

76ers 118, Spurs 114

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Darryl Dawkins followed up an offensive rebound with 28 seconds remaining Thursday night to spark the Philadelphia 76ers to a 118-114 victory over San Antonio Spurs.

Guard Joe Johnson hit a 14-foot jumper with 1:44 left. Dawkins sank his layup to tie Philadelphia ahead by two points. The Spurs lost their chance to tie it when George Gervin, who finished with 46 points,

Utah outlasts Santa Clara in 83-80 win

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Center Tom Chambers scored 14 of his 23 points in the second half in leading Utah to a 83-80 non-conference win over Santa Clara Thursday night.

Chambers tied the score for the final time, at 47-41, on a slam dunk. Then he followed that basket with a short jumper to put Utah ahead for good. Kurt Rambis added 17 points for the Utes, and Coby Leavitt and Leonard Johnson had 10 points each.

Behind by six points early in the second half, Utah outscored the Broncos 12-2 to lead for good. The Utes then hit nine straight points to pull away and slowed down the game enough to hold off Santa Clara's comeback effort.

Londale Theus led the Broncos with 23 points, including 19 in the second half, as he proved the final run at the Utes. Kurt Rambis added 14 points for Santa Clara and Gary Carpenter had 10.

Behind 64-54 with 10 minutes to go in the second half, Utah closed it within three of the Utes, 72-72, with two minutes left. But Leavitt then hit a pair of foul shots and Banksowski a layup to keep Utah, now 7-4, comfortably ahead. The Broncos drop to 3-6.

Vanderbilt 65, Ga. St. 53

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Mike Rhodes scored 23 points Thursday night to lead Vanderbilt to a 65-53 victory over winless Georgia State.

Rhodes hit 11-of-22 shots from the floor and the Commodores led all the way after the opening three minutes.

James Williams and Tommy Springer added 10 points each for Vanderbilt, 5-3.

Georgia State, 0-4, trailed 34-25 at intermission. Led by as many as 10 points, Williams and Springer took over with 11 minutes to play. Vanderbilt then scored 11 of the next 19 points — 6 by Springer and 5 by Williams — to take control over the final five minutes.

Don Ross had 17 points and Rony Tucker 16 for Georgia State.

Texas 65, USF 62

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Freshman George Turner scored 16 points and Ron Baxter added 13 to lead Texas to a 65-61 victory over previously unbeaten San Francisco Thursday night.

Baxter and Turner combined for 8 points early in the second half to bring Texas from a 36-30 halftime deficit. Turner then hit 10-of-12 free throws in the final two minutes to seal it for the Longhorns.

San Francisco, 9-0 coming into the game but unranked because it is on probation, led by as many as 10 points with 3:33 left in the first half. Texas, 7-1, took the lead on a layup by Baxter with 12:02 left. Turner then hit two jumpers to keep the Longhorns three points ahead.

Freshman center LaSalle Thompson put the Longhorns ahead 58-57 with 2:50 left. Baxter then stole the ball and dropped in two free throws and Turner added two layups to extend Texas' lead to 62-57 and put the game away. Quentin Dajilly led San Francisco with 16 points, including 12 in the first half.

Wyoming 59, St. Francis 52

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Wyoming freshman Mike Jackson scored 16 points to lead the Pokes to a 59-52 win Thursday over St. Francis College in the All-College Tournament, the nation's oldest holiday basketball tournament.

Wyoming's six-foot-5 guard, hit seven of 13 field goal attempts and two of three free throws to lead both teams in scoring. Veteran teammate Kenny Ojile scored 12 points and grabbed 12 rebounds, including both teams in backboard grabs.

Although they came within 3 points of the Pokes several times throughout the contest, St. Francis never took the lead. Wyoming led 31-28 at halftime.

Terrier forward Leonard Distant led St. Francis in scoring with 12 points, hitting six of 13 field goal attempts.

Oklahoma, 8-0, took a 25-10 lead in Oklahoma in Friday's second round of competition.

Oklahoma won the right to play Wyoming with the help of Sooner State coach Bill Owen, who came off the bench in Thursday's first game to score 16 points and lead Oklahoma to a 72-60 win over Western Michigan.

Owen, a 6-foot-5 guard, played just two minutes but hit 7-of-11 field goal attempts. Aaron Curry added 14 points for the Sooners. Western Michigan's Kenny Cunningham had a 20-point effort, including 10 free-throw attempts. Marvin Maxwell had 19.

Oklahoma set a school record by making 65 percent of its field goal attempts, hitting 17-of-26 for 64 percent set against Texas.

Charlotte 69, Oregon 64

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — North Carolina-Charlotte, backed by 19 points by Chad Kinch, survived 31 turnovers to post a 69-64 victory over Oregon Thursday night in an opening-round game of the Far West Classic.

The Ducks gave the winner of a later game between Texas Tech and Clemson in Friday night's semifinals. The Ducks will meet the loser in consolation play.

Oregon scored 55-30 at halftime after committing 22 turnovers and shooting only 35 percent. Donnie Koonce and Kinch sparked the second-half comeback in which UNCC took the lead 62-51 with 7:15 remaining on two free throws by Koonce. The teams exchanged leads twice before a three-point play by Koonce with 4:57 left put the Ducks ahead 68-59.

Phil Scott scored 14 points and Koonce for UNCC. Richard Wright led Oregon with 15 points.

West Texas 69, Pan American 84

AMARILLO, Texas (UPI) — Dan Elmer tossed in 21 points to lead six players scoring in double figure Thursday night when West Texas State offset a 50-point deficit to defeat Pan American's Kenneth Green en route to a 69-54 victory.

Elmer was supported by George Smith with 10 points and 12 rebounds and Eddie Harris with 13 points and 10 rebounds.

West Texas, 7-1, held the Broncos to only 28 percent field goal accuracy in the first half as it fashioned a 52-30

Colts' owner will rebuild team with new head coach

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Baltimore Colts owner Robert C. Ford said Thursday he wants a new man to rebuild his club, which recently concluded its second straight 5-11 season.

The Colts won the AFC East titles and compiled a 40-34 record during Marchbroda's five-year tenure. But 5-11 records in each of the last two seasons led to his resignation, ending his sometimes stormy relationship with Irsay.

"Starting quarterback Bert Jones' chronic arm injuries received much of the blame for the Colts' slide. Jones was the team leader on and off the field and spearheaded a player revolt against Irsay when the owner tried to fire Marchbroda before the 1976 season.

Marchbroda, 48, could not be reached for comment. There was no word on who his successor might be.

The team had the poorest attendance in the NFL during the 1979 season, averaging less than 40,000 fans per game. The Colts drew fewer than 25,000 for their final home game Dec. 9 against Kansas City — the worst home attendance in the club's 25 years in Baltimore.

Irsay announced the firing in a statement issued by the front office.

"I have directed General Manager Dick Szymanski to inform Ted Marchbroda that we are making a head coaching change," said Irsay. "This is one decision I had hoped I would never have to make and it's a decision I agonized over for the past two weeks."

"I have a deep personal affection for Ted and gratitude for three divisional championships he brought to Baltimore."

Marchbroda will be paid $100,000 in salary and $50,000 in deferred benefits for each of the three years remaining on his contract.

Colts' spokesman "Jim" Husbands said no one has been interviewed for the head coaching job.

"I don't know of any formal timetable. I'm speculating they would like to get a coach in here before the (May) draft or at least in time for him to look at what he's got," said Husbands.

Dallas assistant Dan Reeves and George Peles, assistant head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers, have been mentioned as possible successors to Marchbroda.

Reeves was a finalist last spring for the head coaching job of the New York Giants.

Johnny Unitas, former Colt quarterback and Hall of Famer who has been also mentioned for the job, was noncommittal. But Unitas, a millionaire Baltimore businessman who consults for the Colts, said he wouldn't refuse to talk to Irsay about the job.

"My contract calls for me to work in the front office and I would lean toward that area. But I wouldn't say no. Right now," Unitas said, "if he (Irsay) wants to talk, I'll sit down and talk."

Team spokeswoman Marge Blatt said Marchbroda's assistants have not been dismissed because their contracts do not expire until March. The new head coach will decide whether or not to renew their contracts, she said.

Marchbroda came to the Colts in 1975 after 14 years as an assistant coach at Washington and Los Angeles. The Colts won only two of 14 games during the 1974 season, but took the AFC East title in Marchbroda's first year with a 10-4 mark.

Marchbroda quit briefly during the 1976 exhibition season when Irsay complained about a loss and said he was hiring more assistants. But the players, led by Jones, threatened to walk out. Irsay backed down and Marchbroda returned.

The Colts went on to win the AFC East title in 1976 and 1977 before beginning their current slump.

The 1978 season was one of the Colts' most turbulent. Irsay traded running back Lydell Mitchell, the leading rusher in Baltimore history, to San Diego after Mitchell called the owner a racist for refusing to give him a raise.

Then, Jones separated a shoulder in an exhibition game and missed all but three regular-season games. The Colts dropped their last five games.

During the season, Irsay, in a post-game trade, ordered Marchbroda to fire assistant coach Whitley Dowell, among others. Marchbroda refused and the two temporarily patched up their differences.

Marchbroda played quarterback at St. Bonaventure and Detroit before he was drafted by the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1953.

He was kept as the Steelers' backup quarterback that season when Pittsburgh cut a free agent, Johnny Unitas, who played his way to Hall of Fame status.

In 1956, Marchbroda passed for 1,585 yards and 12 touchdowns, second best in the NFL.

Marchbroda and his wife have two daughters and two sons, one of whom, Ted Jr., was a starting wide receiver for the University of Virginia much of the past four seasons and played in the Blue-Gray All-Star game Christmas Day in Montgomery, Ala.

Gregg free to talk

TORONTO (UPI) — Forrest Gregg, unable to resist the pull of the National Football League, won his release as head coach of the Canadian Football League Toronto Argonauts Thursday.

Gregg, apparently headed for the vacant head coaching job with the Cincinnati Bengals, was released by the Argonauts from the remaining two years of his three-year contract, worth about $70,000 per year.

His appointment last February was to be the first step in a rebuilding program for the Argonauts; perennial last-place finishers in the CFL's four-team Eastern Conference.

But after winning four of their first six games, the Argos stumbled to a 5-11 record in 1979, finishing last again.

Gregg insisted Thursday that his request for his release "had nothing to do with me being unhappy here and with this organization."

But he added that he had spent 15 years as a player and coach in the NFL, most recently as head coach of the Cleveland Browns from 1975 to 1977. "I would want to coach there (in the NFL)," Gregg said.

"My whole career has been involved in the National Football League. I think I understand that league a little bit better."

"I had a good situation here, a good coaching situation," he added. "His predecessors as Argo coach frequently complained of interference from owner Bill Hodgson. But Hodgson sold the team at the end of the 1978 season to Carling O'Keefe Brewery, which left Gregg a free hand."

Fla. State undecided on starters

MIAMI (UPI) — Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden said Thursday he wouldn't decide which of his two quarterbacks — Wally Woodham or Jimmy Jordan — would start against Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl game Tuesday night until Monday.

"I want both boys to prepare like they're going to start," Bowden said. "We won't decide until the day before the game and we may not announce it until the day of the game."

The unusual quarterback tandem, dubbed by a national magazine as Wally-Jim, Jordan has had surprising success in the last three years.

And this season, the two Tallahassee seniors led the Seminoles to an undefeated 11-0 season and a No. 4 ranking by combining for an average 200.1 yards a game.

Jordan has completed 48.3 percent of his passes for 1,173 yards and 13 touchdowns. Woodham completed 32.8 percent for 940 yards and five touchdowns.

As the statistics indicate, Jordan has been called "Dr. Long Ball" and Woodham prefers a more conservative possession-type passing game. Their differing approaches to the fifth-ranked Sooners reflect their tendencies.

"We've seen receivers get behind him a couple times deep, but the quarterback didn't get the ball there," says Jordan, who obviously thinks he can.

NFL sets gate mark

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Football League paid attendance topped 13 million for the first time during the 1979 regular season and the per game average was the highest in league history, it was announced Thursday.

An NFL spokesman said the unaudited total for the 224 game regular season reported to the league office was 13,302,039, an all-time record total, and an increase of 3.2 percent over the previous high of 12,771,800 set last year when the league went to a 16-game regular season schedule.

Average attendance was 58,848, second only to the record of 58,961 set in 1973.

Guard leaves Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — University of Kentucky sophomore guard Dwight Anderson of Dayton, Ohio, has withdrawn from the university for undisclosed personal reasons.

University head basketball coach Joe B. Hall said Wednesday, "Dwight came to me and explained that for personal reasons, he was leaving the university at the end of the first semester. Dwight is an exceptional player and a fine person."

While UK athletic officials didn't specify Anderson's "personal reasons," Hall said at mid-semester that Anderson would be academically ineligible to play the second semester if he missed even one more class.

Lanier sidelined

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Detroit Pistons All-Star center Bob Lanier, who fractured his left hand Wednesday night's game against Indiana, was placed on the injured list Thursday.

A team spokesman said Lanier — the team's leading scorer and rebounder — tore a tendon and broke a bone in his little finger during a second-half collision with another player.

Despite the injury, Lanier finished the game and made Detroit's last basket with 33 seconds remaining. The Pistons lost 98-97.

Benjamin Paolucci, team doctor, said Lanier would be out for an indefinite period.

Replacing him will be rookie forward Gregory Kelsey, who has been out since Dec. 4 with a sprained right ankle.

Leafs make trade

TORONTO (UPI) — The Toronto Maple Leafs have sent left wing Pat Boutette to the Hartford Whalers in exchange for winger Bob Stephenson, the team announced Thursday.

Stephenson, 24, a right-handed shooter, played two seasons with the Birmingham Bulls of the defunct World Hockey Association — where he tallied 23 goals and 24 assists last season — before joining Hartford this year.

A Leafs spokesman said Stephenson may start against Winnipeg when they meet Toronto on home ice Saturday.

Woodson has surgery

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Mike Woodson, senior forward and leading scorer for Indiana University's basketball team, underwent surgery Thursday to repair a ruptured disc in his back.

Woodson, a 6-foot-5 All-Big Ten performer, will be out of action for at least four months, according to one doctor. That would mean he is lost to Coach Bobby Knight's eighth-ranked IU team for the remainder of the season.

Woodson, who averaged 20 points in Indiana's first six games, was operated on at Methodist Hospital where he was listed in fair condition.

Austria sweeps jumping

CORTINA, Italy (UPI) — Toni Innauer Thursday won the opening event in the new World Ski Jumping Cup by soaring for the two longest jumps of the day to lead Austria to a 1-2-3 sweep.

Innauer cleared 88.5 meters on his first jump and then 88 meters on his second to total 250 points from the 75 meter hill.

Hubert Neuper jumped 87.5 and 87 meters to total 243.3 while his teammate Alfred Greyer went further 88 meters each time — but dropped points on style to finish third in 240.7.

Arguello meets Castillo

NEW YORK (UPI) — World super featherweight champion Alexis Arguello of Nicaragua will defend his WBC crown against undefeated Ruben Castillo of Bakersfield, Calif., in a scheduled 15 round bout in the Tucson Community Center, Tucson, Ariz., Sunday afternoon, Jan. 20. It was announced Thursday by Don King.

The championship bout, which will be televised nationally by ABC, marks the seventh defense of the 130-pound title for Arguello, who won the crown with a 13th-round knockout of Alfredo Escalera in Bayamon, P.R., Jan. 28, 1978.

BSU visits Tacoma

BOISE (UPI) — Boise State's basketball team travels to Tacoma, Wash., Friday to participate in the Puget Sound Tournament in non-conference play.

Boise's Broncos play Portland State University in the opening round of the tournament and Puget Sound meets Eastern Illinois in the following match. The losers and winners of the first two games meet for playoffs Saturday night.

Boise State stands at a 5-4 record for the non-conference season, following a road loss to the University of Wyoming.

The Broncos are looking for their first on-the-road breakthrough for the season during the tournament.

Both Puget Sound and Eastern Illinois have posted winning records to date, while Portland State has lost more than it has won. Puget Sound, one of the top Division II teams in the nation, boasts a 6-2 tally for the year, while Eastern Illinois is 7-1.

Portland State had obtained a 2-7 record before playing two games recently during the school's Holiday Tournament.

Carpenter in key role for Oilers

BY JOB CARNICELLI
UPI Executive Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rob Carpenter has been a forgotten man for the past two years but he could be the key to the Houston Oilers' playoff chances this weekend.

Carpenter was the Oilers' starting running back until two years ago when Earl Campbell was made the No. 1 pick in the draft. Suddenly Carpenter may be a big factor again.

Provided the ankle injury he sustained in practice Thursday isn't too serious, Campbell, the NFL's leading rusher, suffered a groin pull scoring the winning touchdown in Sunday's 13-7 wild card playoff victory over Denver and Carpenter kept the Oilers offense rolling in the second half with 16 carries for 59 yards. Campbell says "I'll be back Saturday at San Diego when Houston takes on the Chargers in an AFC divisional playoff but if he can't go 100 per cent, Carpenter, a hard-running fireplug from Miami (Ohio), will replace him."

"We'll run the same plays if Rob can't replace Earl," says Houston Coach Bud Phillips. "But I'm not saying that Earl cannot play. I think that he will play. I think that Dan will play. And that's not just wishful thinking either."

Campbell isn't the only question mark for Phillips and the Oilers. Quarterback Dan Pastorini went down early in the second half with a muscle pull and wide receiver Ken Burdick returned his full body.

Second-year quarterback Gifford Nielsen, who played most of the second half, would replace Pastorini Saturday if he can't play. During the regular season Nielsen played the entire game — a 20-6 victory over Kansas City — and the second half of three other games.

In the other AFC playoff, the Central champion Pittsburgh Steelers play host to the Eastern champion Miami Dolphins on Sunday. In NFC games, Central champion Tampa Bay plays host to wild card survivor Philadelphia on Saturday and Eastern champion Dallas plays host to Western champion Los Angeles on Sunday.

Pittsburgh also has a key injury — All-Pro linebacker Jack Ham — and Dallas may be without running back Tony Stewart. Ham suffered an ankle injury and Stewart hurt his shoulder two weeks ago.

Here's the way the playoffs shape up this weekend:

Saturday
NFC
Philadelphia 23, Tampa Bay 17 — Duel between former college teammates from the University of Miami. Eagles have been playing well down the stretch and easily could have been NFC East champions. Buccaneers finished the final month and won division title with 3-0 victory over Kansas City. Tampa Bay defense is solid but offense is erratic. Eagles are more talented and kicker Tony Franklin could make a big difference.

AFC
Houston 27, San Diego 24 — Oilers have been among the league's most fortunate teams all season so why should the lucky streak end now? A healthy Pastorini and Campbell give Houston a chance. Younger and faster Chargers' Dan Fouts and Co., but Oilers have a big edge on defense.

Sunday
AFC
Pittsburgh 31, Miami 17 — Steelers can snap the Super Bowl again and home crowd will turn them on. Miami really wasn't impressive this year — the Dolphins have the worst record of the four AFC finalists and it was more a case of New England defeating the AFC East than Miami winning. Dolphins need a big game from QB Bob Griese since the running attack probably won't produce much.

NFC
Dallas 20, Los Angeles 10 — It's annual "el fido" time for Rams, who have had a record seven straight NFC West titles but still haven't even made it to a Super Bowl. Cowboys have too much balance for the Rams, who must rely on their defense. If Dallas can keep back Jack Youngblood (16 sacks) off QB Roger Staubach, it shouldn't even be that close.

Horoscope

Capricorns should get out of rut, be on way to needed recreation

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You need to have a whole new stance now where money, property and possessions are concerned. Consider your material position and think about just what you can do to have a more sensible and itemized course of action under which to operate.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You may think you do not have sufficient funds for your needs, but you are better off than you realize. Listen to what an expert suggests.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can go after your personal aims speedily and efficiently today. After regular work is done, contact good friends for entertainment.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Ideal day to plan future operations intelligently so that you can have greater success and happiness. Listen to ideas of a good friend.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Go ahead with ideas you have concerning good friends and have more rapport with them. Accept invitations that appeal to you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Endeavor to gain the backing of a bigwig for an important project you have started. Some civic matter may also be of interest to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) You have new goals to reach and can get started on them early in the day. Make plans now for a trip you want to take soon.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22) Good day to clarify business dealings with others and get your books balanced. Strive for more harmony at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can easily clear up any misunderstandings with a partner if you are cooperative. Handle a practical affair intelligently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into the work ahead of you early and do it intelligently. Improve your reputation. Try to be more cooperative with co-workers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get out of that rut and be off to recreation you need. Do only important work first. Special thoughts for mate, bring excellent response.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study your home well and make conditions there better with the aid of kin. If a new project interests you, study every phase of it.

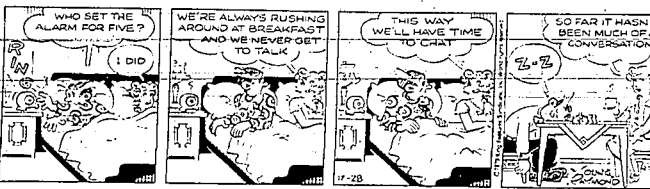

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study into every source you can so that you can further your aims. Sitting with partners and ironing out problems is wise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very good at practical matters, property, money, etc., so be sure to alert education along such lines. Teach early to reach decisions faster otherwise your progeny will lose out where it counts the most and others gain the benefits.

What's what

Marrriages of gardeners tend to be happiest

Note it claimed in print that garden hobbyists — those who grow flowers and vegetables for fun, not profit — tend to have the happiest marriages. Our Love and War man won't argue with this contention. To be a gardener, you have to expect to be in the same place from season to season. You have to be patient. You have to be imaginative enough to foresee the future. And you have to be willing to work steadily at the small details, like weeding and watering. Stability, patience, foresight and attention to detail. Pretty good characteristics — to make matrimony work, what?

SHARK

Q. Is there such a fish as a freshwater shark?
A. In one place only, Nicaragua. Volcanoes ago ago speared out lava that sealed Lake Nicaragua off from the Pacific Ocean. Saltwater sharks were trapped in there. Hains then slowly turned the lake to fresh water. And the sharks adapted.

Q. Those twins that supposedly represent the constellation Gemini, do they have names?
A. They're Castor and Pollux. They have occupations, too. Castor is a horseman, Pollux a boxer.

Q. Why are the Bahamas called that?
A. Comes from the Spanish word "Bahamar" meaning "shallow waters."

Q. In which sport do the men who officiate the games get paid the most?
A. Hockey.

FIRE

It's no easy trick to start a fire in Bolivia's capital city of La Paz. At 11,900 feet, the thin air doesn't contain enough oxygen to get the flames going. Must be tough to boil water there, too. I lived as a lookout on a mountaintop little more than half that high years ago, and it took all summer to cook a pot of beans.

Custer's Last Stand also cost a telegraph company about $100. He was being dunned in that amount for messages he'd charged but never paid on the day he left for the Little Big Horn.

The dentists in West Germany make more money in general than do the doctors in West Germany.

European gold follows New York through $500 barrier

LONDON (UPI) — Following New York's lead, gold broke through the "unbelievable" $500 an ounce mark in Zurich and London Thursday for the first time in history.

The U.S. dollar slid as the major money markets reopened after a Christmas holiday hiatus.

Gold closed in Zurich at $514 an ounce against $475 at the last pre-holiday session Friday. In London, gold closed at $511 against $486.75 at the market closing Monday.

A year ago Thursday, gold closed at $222 in Zurich and $221.65 in London.

Gold first went over the $500 mark in New York Wednesday. Dealers said the unprecedented gold prices reflected international concern over oil prices, the U.S.-Iran confrontation and the reported Soviet buildup and coup in Afghanistan.

The U.S. dollar rose, the U.S. dollar continued its steady decline for much the same reasons as gold took off.

It closed at 1.7150 deutschemarks in Frankfurt, down from 1.7365 Friday. In Zurich it dropped to 1.5765 Swiss francs against 1.6040 before Christmas, and eased to 4.0175 francs in Paris compared with 4.0475 Wednesday.

The pound sterling also gained against the weak dollar in London, closing at $2.24 to the pound against $2.2075 Monday.

The dollar also slipped in Belgium to 29.075 francs from 29.2150 Monday and eased to 1.8980 guilders in Amsterdam against 1.9183 Monday. In Milan it closed at 804.70 lire, down from Monday's 807.70.

The dollar edged up fractionally against the yen in Tokyo, closing at 239.70 against 239.60 Wednesday.

"While the price may rise some more, the gold game is becoming more and more dangerous with these unbelievable prices," a Zurich dealer said.

"Middle-East oil states are still buying heavily, but they're also selling for the profits. So while the small speculator may be right in buying now in the short term, he could well be hurt in the medium term," he said.

Another Zurich dealer said gold could hit $520 an ounce in the next few days and predicted heavy profit-taking at that level. But heavy buying would resume once the price dips, he said.

Swiss dealers said the "little people" have jumped on the gold bandwagon — usually a sign prices may go down.

"But the market now has become so big that this time the small investor and speculator may be right," one dealer said.

"In fact, we think the gold market now has become so big that it is impossible to kill it."

Business Stock market spins wheels

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK — The stock market, buffeted by the cross currents of year-end buying and selling, spun its wheels for the third consecutive session Thursday, with prices showing little change.

Trading was moderate.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 1.02-point loser Wednesday, ground out a 1.96-point gain to 840.10. The 30-stock average had fluctuated in a narrow range most of the day.

The New York Stock Exchange index gained 0.69 to 189.97 and the price of a share added 4 cents. Declines topped advances, 816 to 470, among the 1,973 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

"The market failed to move decisively because institutions were making selective purchases as they adjusted their portfolios while other shareholders were cashing in on short-term profits since the gains won't show up on tax forms until 1980."

Board volume totaled 31,413,000 shares, up from the 24,960,000 traded Wednesday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 34,464,240 shares, compared with 26,599,808 Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 1.73 to 244.88 and the price of a share gained 13 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ composite OTC index jumped 0.22 to 159.23.

At 4 p.m., gold mining stocks attracted attention as bullion climbed. Dome Mines rose 2 to 49 1/2, Campbell Lake 3/4 to 27 1/2, Homestake Mining 3/4 to 48 1/2, and ASA Ltd. 3/4 to 38 1/2. Handy & Harman, which sells gold, jumped 3/4 to 34 1/2.

Among the silver issues, Asarco gained 1 to 32 1/2, Calumet Mining 1/2 to 31 1/2, Sunshine Mining 1/2 to 25 1/2, Hecia Mining 1 1/2 to 35 1/2 and Rosario Resources 1/2 to 50 1/2.

Sterling Drug was the most active NYSE-listed issue, off 3/4 to 20 in trading that included blocks of 250,000 shares and 150,000 shares both at 20 on the NYSE and 140,000 shares and 70,000 shares at 20 each on the Midwest Stock Exchange.

Petrolane was the second most active NYSE-listed issue, unchanged at 29 1/2 following a block of 500,000 shares that crossed at 29 in the OTC market. Marley Co. was third, off 1 to 22 after a block of 307,500 shares at 21 1/2.

Fairmont Foods rose 1/4 to 14 1/2 after the company received a $72 million takeover bid from American Financial Corp.

Sone Container, a big winner in recent weeks, fell 1/4 to 24 1/2. The company said it could not account for the activity in its stock. Last week, the firm said the stock may have risen because of Sone Container's improved earnings picture.

On the Amex, advances edged declines, 314 to 299, among the 879 issues traded at 4 p.m. Volume at that time totaled 6,000 shares, compared with 4,050,000 Wednesday.

National-Kinney was the most active issue, off 1/2 to 9. Resorts International A followed, off 1/2 to 32 1/2. Dome Petroleum was third, up 1/4 to 44 1/2.

Electrographic Corp. climbed 6 to 25 1/2 in moderately active trading. The company said it has resumed merger talks with another unidentified company.

Kirby Exploration jumped 3/4 to 44 1/2 and Universal Resources 1/2 to 24. Kirby announced more results of a well it drilled in Comanche County, Okla. Universal has a large stake in the well.

Pac-Pay rose 3/4 to 15 and Emerson Radio advanced 1/2 to 14 1/2. The companies said they could not account for the activity in their stocks.

Semtech lost 3/4 to 8. The stock was delayed in opening because of an order imbalance. The company said it could not explain the imbalance.

Space lack costs state brain drain

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Education officials say Connecticut is suffering a "brain drain" due to a shortage of dormitory rooms at four state colleges.

James A. Frost, executive director of the state college system, said there was a greater demand for on-campus housing at the four-year schools this year because of the energy situation.

"The reasons are the climbing costs of fuel for commuting or private apartment heating, and the increased costs of rents," Frost said Wednesday.

"More Connecticut students leave this state than come into it to obtain a college education."

He said 7,500 students applied for 5,100 dormitory spaces available at the four schools this year. At Western Connecticut State College in Danbury, for example, he said 10 freshmen asked to delay their schooling until they get a dorm room.

Idaho airline 'alive, well' despite cuts

BOISE (UPI) — Mountain West Airlines is "alive, well and going forward" although more than three-dozen employees have been laid off and the number of flights to four Idaho cities has been cut, the carrier's chief executive said.

Mountain West, a Boise-based commuter airline, also has missed its regular payroll date twice in the past two months, but Pete McKenna, chief operating officer, blamed this Wednesday on administrative changes in how the airline's payroll checks are issued.

McKenna said 38 employees were laid off last Friday as a result of flight-schedule adjustments, which were put into effect earlier this month. Under the new schedule, the airline continues to serve Boise, Pocatello, Idaho Falls and Sun Valley, but less frequently.

He said the service cutbacks were made because too many flights were being offered for the amount of passengers in the market.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat and soybeans were moderately lower, corn lower and oats mixed at the close Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat futures fell 1/4 to 10 1/2, corn 1/4 to 10 1/2, soybeans off 1/4 to 10 1/2, and soybean meal off 1/4 to 10 1/2.

Grain and soybean futures prices moved both ways during the day in choppy trading. Light to moderate trading and a steady decline became active during the day and ended in a heavy closing.

"There was a mixed covered rally in the morning and a mixed covered rally in the afternoon and began a broad-based rally in the afternoon and ended in a heavy closing."

Market conditions included generally inspired trading in the wheat, corn and soybean markets and a steady decline in the soybean meal and soybean oil markets.

Concern over the energy situation and Iran led to some underlying support, initially, but the world's oil market had exerted some positive influences.

The outside markets were lower.

Impact ordinances may begat ordinances

TWIN FALLS — One of many public hearings the Twin Falls County Commissioners will be holding to establish areas of impact around cities and towns in the county will be held at 10:30 a.m. today.

The hearing is to consider an ordinance the county has proposed which would give the city of Twin Falls the right to administer zoning matters in its proposed area of impact.

"The city has not yet adopted either an area of impact ordinance or a comprehensive plan," said County Commission Chairman Merl E. Leonard. "I'm not sure, in the face of that, if our action is going to take on much meaning. But we have a verbal agreement with the city covering the geographic area and administration."

Leonard said the verbal agreement and the county's proposed ordinance allow the city to regulate zoning such as establishing residential, housing subdivisions, commercial and business changes. On any parcel of land 20 acres or more in size, which would constitute an agricultural zone, the county will have jurisdiction.

"This is the same type of impact area administrative ordinance the county has proposed for each of the cities within the county. Actually, Leonard says, there is little change involved since cities currently have jurisdiction within a one-mile radius of their boundaries.

County Prosecutor Jeff Stoker has advised the county commissioners they must hold public hearings on any ordinance involving land use. He said the state law calls for such hearings, and to make certain the county's action is fully legal, the hearings will be necessary.

Each area of impact that is established for a city requires an ordinance to create it and set geographical boundaries. Each then requires another ordinance setting forth administrative responsibilities in the area of impact.

This means a total of eight ordinances to establish areas of impact around Twin Falls, Buhl, Filer, Castletford, Hollister, Kimberly, Hansen and Murtaugh, plus eight more ordinances to establish administrative procedure in each of the towns.

That adds up to 16 public hearings the county commissioners must hold, although some have already been held. However, Leonard said, zoning administrator Ed Woods has met with some of the small communities like Hollister and Murtaugh and because of their small staff of city workers the county will probably administer the areas of impact for them; this may not require separate ordinances.

In a hearing last week on the Castletford area of impact, nobody showed up, not even Castletford city officials, Leonard said.

Once the city councils and county officials have reached the stage of finalizing the geographic areas and the administrative responsibilities are proposed, public hearings have been held and residents have shown little interest. Nevertheless, Leonard said, the law provides one final opportunity for public input and the county must go along with it.

He said Twin Falls County and most others in the state are well behind schedule in putting comprehensive land use plans into practice. The state law required the plans be adopted by 1976.

"Here it is 1979 and almost 1980, and we are still in the final stages of the planning process," he said.

Twin Falls County adopted a comprehensive plan earlier this year after about three years of public hearings, public meetings and revisions. As part of the plan, the county must create areas of impact for city expansion within a reasonable period of time.

He said the city of Twin Falls has adopted an "interim ordinance" for the impact area which appears to be compatible with the county's ordinances for administering and establishing the area of impact.

Only Buhl and Castletford have met all of the requirements of establishing areas of impact.

Leonard said Kimberly is currently wrestling with problems of area of impact boundaries. The city council there plans to extend the area to Snake River Canyon on the north and it may even meet the Twin Falls city area of impact boundaries on the west.

"Right after the first of the year we plan to meet with all of the other communities and cities to push for completion of these areas of impact so the comprehensive plan for the county will be complete and in full effect," Leonard said.

Most of the cities, Leonard said, are working on impact area ordinances and hearings will be scheduled as soon as these are ready.

Businessmen not happy over sign removal

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls businessmen say they aren't happy about losing their sandwich board signs next year.

But the businessmen say they will comply with a city ordinance requiring them to remove the A-frame signs.

Community Development Director LaMar Orton Wednesday said he would begin uniformly enforcing that ordinance early next month.

Under that ordinance, businesses are allowed one freestanding sign and gas stations are allowed two. The signs must be permanently planted in the ground. Otherwise, the signs can clutter streets and sidewalks when a wind blows them over, Orton said.

Despite the ordinance, some businessmen say they don't see the need for removing the signs.

"I can't see how it can be a menace flying off the street," Skipper's Seafood and Chowder House assistant manager Nell Newman said. "That's never happened here."

He added that a sign blown into the street is a poor advertisement and businesses would probably take steps to prevent that.

In the four months the restaurant has used its sign, it has not received any notice from the city that the sign was illegal, Newman said.

"I think it's going to be a hard law to enforce after they've let it go so long," he said.

But Otero's Husky assistant manager Steve Kermin said he feels the city is not out of line by removing the signs.

"It's no big deal to me. They used the signs simply as a convenience and if the city wants to enforce it (the ordinance), we wouldn't take it to the Supreme Court or anything like that or fight it," he said.

"I could see where it might cause some people some disturbance, but an established business doesn't rely on sandwich boards anyway."

Orton said he will begin asking owners to remove the signs early next month.

Enforcement has been difficult because so many businesses now use such signs, particularly gas stations, Orton said when he asks the signs be removed, businessmen point-out the use of the signs is widespread.

"What I intend to do is begin on one end of the street and go down the street and contact all the property owners and give them a reasonable amount of time and go from there," he said. If the businesses do not comply, the city could resort to legal action, he said.

"I think the ordinance is clear as to what is allowed and what isn't allowed and it's my responsibility to enforce that ordinance."

Firemen, cops honored

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls firefighters and police officers Thursday were formally recognized for "a job well done" in extinguishing a burning propane truck in October.

Cal-Gas, a Twin Falls propane firm, awarded the departments with plaques for their roles in preventing what could have been a major disaster.

Firefighters and policemen were called to the company, 438 Addison Ave. W., on Oct. 22 to monitor a leaking propane truck. At that location, the 2,100-2,400 gallon tank, which was 80 percent full, posed a hazard to the largely residential area nearby.

Authorities moved the truck to Cal-Gas facilities south of Twin Falls on Warren Avenue. There, the engine burned 15 minutes before the flames were put out.

"I want to say that the fire department and the police department did an excellent job," Cal-Gas Manager Dan Peak said. "They were on the ball and I want to commend both of them for the excellent job they did."

Fire Chief Bobby Bopp said any fire involving liquid gas poses a risk and the situation in October could have been serious if not handled correctly.

"The firefighters did handle this correctly and they did an outstanding job and Cal-Gas has chosen to send them this plaque for a job well done," Bopp said.

"Of course that's what we're paid for," he said. "But it is very nice to have people recognize them for the work that they do."

TWIN FALLS — The first-degree murder trial for a man expected to be continued in Twin Falls. A preliminary hearing for another Palestinian has been set for next week in Burley.

The murder trial of Yousef Rasheed, 38, charged with the July 14 shooting death of his nephew, Shawkat Shukri Al, 31, in Twin Falls, will probably not be held until late next month.

It was scheduled to begin Wednesday. However, 5th District Court Judge James Cunningham said Thursday he has been asked by Rasheed's attorney, Susan Swanberg of the public defender's office, for a continuance to complete the defendant's psychiatric evaluation.

Cunningham said the state's psychiatrist has already made an evaluation and determined Rasheed is capable of standing trial for the crime with which he is charged.

The defense is now obtaining an evaluation by its own psychiatrist.

Judge Cunningham said he is agreeable to the continuance and has informed the prosecutor and defense attorney of this, but he says he wants to make certain the defendant agrees since he will remain in the county jail through the continuance. Until this is determined, the judge said, the continuance is not official.

He said he expects to hear the formal motion for continuance within the next few days. County Prosecutor Jeff Stoker said he has no objection to the continuance.

Rasheed is accused of shooting his nephew in the head during an argument in a Twin Falls motel last July 14.

Judge Cunningham said the trial, when it is held, will be open to the public. He said the sheriff's office is charged with security responsibility and will take necessary precautions to guard the prisoner.

Since the Twin Falls murder, two other men, a 70-year-old Palestinian and his son, were gunned down in the clothing store they operated in Burley. They were Rasheed's son and his father. Police say they believe the Twin Falls and Burley shootings are related.

One man has been returned from New Mexico to face charges in the Burley shooting and two others are in custody in that state.

Hafiz Nassar was arraigned in Burley Monday on two counts of conspiracy to commit murder. Magistrate court officials announced Thursday his preliminary hearing has been set for Jan. 2, 3, 4 and 7 at Burley.

Assistant Prosecutor Steve Bywater said the prosecuting will have numerous witnesses for the preliminary hearing and lawyers for Nassar will probably have many more.

James May of Twin Falls will represent Nassar, who may also have a lawyer from New Mexico assisting at the hearing. The preliminary hearing will determine if there is sufficient evidence against Nassar to hold him for trial in 5th District Court.

Scabies being fought

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Cattle ranchers in Gooding County have launched an emergency program to rid their animals of highly contagious scabies.

Twin Falls County extension agent Bill Hazen Wednesday said he and cattle ranchers have undertaken the extensive program to prevent the disease caused by a parasitic mite from spreading to healthy cattle.

He said the Idaho Agriculture Department and University of Idaho officials are seeking all available information to dip dipping vials to use in Gooding County. He said the dipping program was begun as soon as the disease was discovered.

Jones on Hansen

JEROME — Republican congressional candidate Jim Jones of Jerome Thursday called Congressman George Hansen's second trip to Iran an exercise in political opportunism.

"I had sort of expected Hansen would go back to Iran as soon as it appeared that some of the hostages might be released," Jones said. "That way he could try to grab some of the credit."

Hansen's efforts could disrupt administration and state department efforts to have the hostages freed, Jones said, adding, while in Iran, Hansen has ignored Idaho interests.

Hospital appointments

TWIN FALLS — Five Magic Valley Memorial Hospital board members, one of them a new member, were appointed Wednesday by the Twin Falls county commissioners.

Dr. Miles Humphrey, president of the hospital medical staff, was appointed to the board to represent the hospital medical staff. He succeeds Dr. C.F. Wurster, who asked that he not be appointed to another term.

Commission Chairman Merl E. Leonard said those reappointed for three-year terms include Clarence Hallford of Kimberly, currently serving as board chairman, Everett Norstrom of Hansen, Ivan Skinner of Twin Falls, and Cal Butler of Buhl.

Sheepmen back concept

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — The Idaho Wool Growers Association has passed a resolution supporting the general concept of the Sagebrush Rebellion.

Association board of directors member Laird Noh of Twin Falls said the group supports the rebellion's concept of opposing federal employees' management of public lands in the West. He said the group does not support a massive takeover of federal lands in western states, as do some proponents of the so-called rebellion.

Rescuers get supplies

HAMMETT — The Hammett and Indian Cove Quick Response Units have obtained an oxygen set that will fit their kit.

The J.O.C. Club of Hammett and others debated today the project.

Other equipment the unit has includes inflatable splint sets, extrication collar sets, an obstetrical kit, a poison kit, a bag mask to help give oxygen, 1 lifesaver airway kit, a fold-in stretcher, a sphygmomanometer kit, a jet suction unit for an unconscious vomiting patient and equipment cases.

A van was acquired through the Elmore County Commission — an old transport vehicle from the Forest Service which runs but needs repairs; according to unit members. They still hope to get a scoop stretcher for picking up injured persons.

The county commissioners have the option of formulating their own interpretation, although the courts have final decision.

For the present, the commissioners won't make that decision until the BLM issue is resolved, chairman Merl Leonard said.

Just what the legal opinion and the BLM procedures mean to the city won't be known until the city really needs the ponds.

"The ground is still not frozen and there are few places where we can continue to inject, so we're not going to violate any law until we're absolutely forced to," Woodall said.

Of course, if it gets cold and the BLM procedures mean to the city won't be known until the city really needs the ponds.

Obstacles surface over sludge ponds site

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The city of Twin Falls has delayed in using its planned sewage sludge storage site.

City officials discovered Thursday that they face several obstacles before the start-up can begin.

About 25 of the protesting residents Thursday met with representatives of the county commission, City Council, and Bureau of Land Management. They voiced their concerns about possible sludge pond sites and pointed out two legal threats that could delay the project.

The first is a required approval by the BLM for the city to run a portion of its pipeline across BLM land, a process BLM officials say usually takes 30 days. The second is the county's zoning ordinance, which may prohibit the city project altogether.

Charles Howard said the primary frozen soil prohibits injection of sludge into agricultural land. A pipeline is now under construction linking the ponds to the sewage plant.

Concern of the residents is the odor. "That's one of the things that concerned us is that it had already been proved in court that there was an odor problem with the sludge," he said.

He added he wants some assurance from the city that it will eliminate any odor problem or discontinue storing it in the ponds.

The city says it can minimize the odors by adding lime to the frozen crust of the ponds or, if necessary, by installing plastic floating lids over the ponds at night, Assistant City Manager Tom Courtney said.

But the fact remains that the city's plant produces about 90,000 gallons of sludge daily and it has to go somewhere, he said.

Just how soon the sludge can be stored in the ponds depends upon the length of the BLM approval process. Before the BLM approves the rights-of-way, it must conduct an environmental assessment, which usually takes about 30 days.

Karl Simonson of the BLM said he had told city officials an application for such approval would be required. So far, the BLM has received no such application, he said.

"Should the city proceed without BLM approval, it would be deemed trespassing and the BLM could file for a court injunction to stop it," he said.

As of Thursday, the city had not submitted its application to the BLM. But city councilman Hank Woodall said the application has been prepared and will be sent to the BLM today.

The residents have also turned to the Twin Falls County commissioners, who were unaware of the city's action prior to hearing the residents' objections a week ago. In an interpretation of the county's zoning law, County Prosecutor Jeff Stoker has found that the city project is not appropriate under the county's zoning law.

Under the county zoning ordinance, the area is designated as outdoor recreational, which does allow certain projects such as pipelines and reservoirs. But the ordinance specifies a public utility only may make such use of the land.

Stoker said Wednesday the city is not a public utility.

Teton Dam builders want the blame shared

BOISE (UPI) — Morrison-Knudsen Co. and other builders of the Teton Dam filed a motion in U.S. District Court here Thursday, asking that they not be held "strictly liable" for the 1976 collapse of the earth-filled dam.

Morrison-Knudsen, Peter Kiewit Sons' Co., builders of the dam, and core drillers McCabe Brothers Inc. have been sued by various insurance companies that paid more than $2.4 million in claims after the dam broke.

The insurance companies claim the builders of the dam should pay the costs of those claims because of alleged "negligent, wrongful and careless acts or omissions" in designing and constructing the structure.

The builders, however, asked the Boise federal court to dismiss the insurance companies claims or issue a summary judgment on behalf of the builders, saying that those companies knew the dam cannot be held liable for the failure.

They claim the insurance companies have failed to state a claim for which relief can be granted, noting that the judicial rule of "strict liability"; does not apply to this dam-failure case.

Morrison-Knudsen and the other builders would have had to construct the structure with negligence or intentional misconduct if they were to be held "strictly liable," they say.

The builders say they were given orders on how to design the dam from the Bureau of Reclamation and had little power to change the structure.

Filed along with the builders' motion to dismiss the charges or for a favorable judgment are affidavits from various engineers who participated in construction of the dam.

Those engineers claim the dam was constructed to specifications provided by the Bureau of Reclamation, and they say, to the best of their knowledge at the time of construction, the dam was built in a professional, sturdy manner.

The builders of the dam Wednesday also filed an identical motion in another Teton Dam lawsuit, which has been merged with the $2.4 million in claims filed by the insurance companies.

The second suit filed by Aetna Insurance Co. charges the U.S. government with failing to properly design the dam and seeks about $86,856. Aetna paid in damage claims to Albertson's Inc., a supermarket chain whose facility was flooded in the dam break.

Smith arraigned for burning car of Libyan student

BOISE (UPI) — A Garden City man was arrested on an arson charge Wednesday in last month's burning of a car belonging to a Libyan student at Boise State University.

Jack Earl Smith, 29, was charged with one count of third-degree arson in the Nov. 28 burning of the 1976 Camaro of Said Suiablah, 25, who police said may have been mistaken for the arsonist as an Iranian.

Police Det. Skip Nakashima said gasoline was poured around the car and ignited.

2 accidents injure 3

TWIN FALLS — Three persons were injured in two accidents reported by Twin Falls city and county officers.

A 19-year-old Moscow woman was injured about 1 a.m. Thursday when her vehicle went out of control at the end of Washington Street North.

Twin Falls Sheriff's officers said Wendy Lynne Korff, 19, of Moscow, was traveling north when she came to the end of Washington Street. She realized she was traveling too fast to turn left and attempted to stop, officers said. Her vehicle skidded and swung to the right and stopped against the rock wall on the rim of the Snake River Canyon.

She was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and treated for minor injuries.

Earlier in the day a two-car accident at Madison Street and Shop Avenue sent two persons to the hospital.

City police said Triana Lara Guillermerna, 29, of Twin Falls was traveling west on Shop Avenue about 3 p.m. when it collided in the intersection of Madison Street with a car driven by Henry Allen Updike, 73, of Twin Falls. The impact flipped the Updike vehicle over on the driver's side.

The driver's wife, Frances Updike, 70, and a passenger in the Guillermerna sedan, Maria Hernandez, 24, Twin Falls, were injured.

Resistance charged

TWIN FALLS — Raul Armendaraz, 20, of Twin Falls, was arrested Wednesday night and charged with re-slisting arrest and aggravated battery following a disturbance at Maxie's

Pizza on Blue Lakes Boulevard, according to Twin Falls Police.

City police said Armendaraz and Sam Alaniz, were in the restaurant when police were called.

When officers of the business alleged the three men were causing a disturbance and destroying napkins and napkin holders on the tables.

When they were ordered to pick up the altered napkins and holders, the damage, they left, the building, pursued by two employees, police were told.

Windshields smashed

RUPERT — Three truck windshields were smashed at Larsen's Chevrolet here Christmas Day, according to Rupert Police.

The police said the vandalism occurred sometime during the afternoon. No arrests had been made by Thursday afternoon. Damage was estimated at $400.

Larsen's and two other Rupert car dealers were plagued this fall by vandals stealing hood ornaments of 30 to 40 vehicles. Four teenagers were arrested by police earlier this month in those cases.

Burley driver jailed

BURLEY — A Burley man was involved in two accidents five minutes apart early Monday morning, according to the Cassia County Sheriff's Department.

The sheriff's report said an east-bound vehicle on Highway 29 was struck by Patrick Rasmussen, 29, left the roadway near 250 East Road about 2:10 a.m., colliding with a utility pole.

Water bill changes panned

BOISE (UPI) — Revisions in proposed Idaho water quality regulations came under attack Thursday from conservationists and industry representatives.

The changes, which were drawn up following public testimony from hearings held across the state in September and October, are another installment in the process to alter state water quality regulations that have been in effect since 1973 and are considered outdated.

The state Environment Division has been formulating the new rules for more than a year, with several revisions along the way. Now, the rules are before the state Health and Welfare Board.

Several dozen persons testified at a board hearing Thursday following an outline of the latest revisions in the proposed regulations by Idaho Environment Division Director Lee Stokes.

One division proposal would loosen the in-stream limit of ammonia to .04 to .02 milligrams per liter. This recommendation was blasted by representatives of the Idaho Conservation League and Wildlife Federation, who said fish populations would be greatly endangered.

A concurrent resolution of the 1979 Idaho Legislature to lower the maximum required level of dissolved oxygen below hydroelectric dams to five from six parts per million was offered but not endorsed to the board by the division.

The conservationists also attacked this proposal, but it was supported by Idaho Power Co., which said it would continue to oppose attempts to restrict hydroelectric development on Idaho's rivers.

Marshals arrest laborers

BOISE (UPI) — Several Mexican citizens living in Idaho have been arrested and charged with unlawfully entering the United States by federal marshals.

Roman Garza-Ramirez, 26, living in Burley, pleaded not guilty to a charge of illegally entering the country for the second time in Idaho U.S. Magistrate Court Thursday. He is being held on $5,000 bond for the felony charge that carries a maximum penalty of $1,000 and two years in jail.

Several dozen persons testified at a board hearing Thursday following an outline of the latest revisions in the bond and is scheduled to appear before U.S. Magistrate Jim Christensen for arraignment Jan. 2.

Also arrested is David Zambrano-Yeppez, 35, living in Burley, on the felony re-entry charge. He also is being held on $2,500 bond in the Ada County jail, after pleading not guilty to the charge.

Retroactive payment fought by PUC in electricity talks

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission Thursday protested stipulations that would require retroactive rate increases on a new electric service rate schedule between Idaho Power Co. and FMC Corp. last Oct.

The issue is a "rather extreme emergency" brought about by failure of FMC and Idaho Power to agree on a new two-year contract for electricity service. The present contract runs out Monday.

When negotiations broke down this fall, Idaho Power asked the PUC to grant it an 85 percent, $11.3 million increase in the contract rate. It charges FMC, which consumes 14.5 percent of Idaho Power's electricity.

Now, as the PUC considers the request, FMC and Idaho Power have agreed on a list of stipulations under which they would be protected from any PUC decision in the form of over- or under-payment collections.

The PUC members balked at today's hearing, saying they would bind themselves into possible discrimination against Idaho Power's customers who pay tariff rates if they agreed to the stipulation and later decided to throw out the contract rates and put FMC on Idaho's Power general tariff rate schedule.

Larry Ripley, an attorney representing Idaho Power, said it is the PUC's responsibility to quickly resolve the "rather extreme emergency" looming if the contract runs out.

"We've thrown the ball into this court, this is where it belongs, and I think you have to do something," Ripley told the commissioners.

FMC attorney James Roubie said FMC and Idaho Power were not trying to force the PUC into a corner, but attempting to protect themselves under new rates which may be approved by the PUC.

"We're not trying to bind anyone to anything," he said, noting that the stipulations were filed to the PUC "to preserve the legal rights of FMC Corp. to challenge this issue."

He said allowing FMC the right to protest any new rate schedule to the PUC would head off a legal battle, which Ripley also warned would occur unless the stipulations are accepted by the commission.

Commissioner Perry Swisher said the stipulations would bind the commission to spread the increase to all Idaho Power customers, no matter what action it took.

In its rate increase petition to the PUC, Idaho Power said it wanted to collect the $11.3 million increase from all its customers if the commission decided not to hit FMC with the full 85 percent proposed hike.

A petition filed at the same time by FMC said that if the PUC did not decide on a new contract, the old contract rate would remain in effect for two years.

Ripley said this could not be done because the present contract expires Monday and therefore any further rate imposition would be regarded as a new two-year contract.

Pavilion will be built

BOISE (UPI) — Boise State University officials said Wednesday that the school's multi-purpose pavilion may be unfinished to offset higher-than-expected cost estimates.

It had been feared the project would have to be shelved because the bids came in higher than the estimated. The total of low bids submitted last week was about $2.5 million more than the previously estimated cost of the pavilion, $14 million.

University President John Keiser said—following a meeting with architects that Boise State either would find a source of additional funding or cut the project to keep the same amount of square footage and leave some of the interior unfinished.

Keiser said it is clear that "everybody is committed to seeing that we have a project." Boise State has nearly two months to make a decision.

Pacific Bell after two-bits for pay phones

BOISE (UPI) — Pacific Northwest Bell Thursday asked the Idaho Public Utilities Commission for authority to raise its pay-phone rate to 25 cents from 10 cents per local call.

Earlier this year, Mountain Bell requested it be allowed to charge 20 cents per call rather than 10 cents, and the PUC jumped past the request and allowed the telephone company to charge 25 cents.

A PUC spokesman today said written comments on Pacific Bell's request should be sent to the PUC by Jan. 18, and then the commission will decide whether to schedule a public hearing.

Steelworkers are suing Bunker Hill

BOISE (UPI) — The United Steelworkers of America is charging Bunker Hill Co. of Kellogg with violating a collective bargaining contract's insurance coverage agreement during a 1977 strike.

In a lawsuit filed in Idaho U.S. District Court in Boise, the national steelworkers union and its northern Idaho local claim Bunker Hill owes more than 400 employees at the Kellogg mine, smelter and fertilizer plants about $25,000.

The union claims a 1973 contract with Bunker Hill required the company to maintain insurance coverage for employees in the event of a strike. They claim the contract ordered employees to pay any portion they chose of insurance premiums for separate hospital-surgical, life or dental policies if a strike took place, and Bunker Hill would pick up the remainder of the costs for the type of insurance selected by the employee.

When the workers went out on strike in 1977, the union claims, Bunker Hill told employees they would have to pay insurance premiums for every type of policy or lose all rights to coverage. The union claims this violates the insurance portion of their collective bargaining contract with Bunker Hill because that contract does not give the company the right to make employees purchase "all or nothing" coverage during a strike.

The union asks federal judges to award six employees a total of $3,773 paid in medical costs during the strike and another $22,247.84 in premium payments employees made during the strike.

Lewiston paper loses motion in libel suit

MOSCOW (UPI) — Second District Judge James Towles Wednesday denied the Lewiston Morning Tribune's motion for a summary judgment in favor of the newspaper, clearing the way for a trial over the 1973 libel lawsuit.

The original lawsuit was filed by Michael Caldero, a former undercover narcotics agent for the state, over an article written by then-investigative reporter Jay Shelley.

Caldero claimed the article published in the Tribune in Nov. 1973 presented an "unfair, false and malicious account" of a Couderc-Alene shooting incident in which Caldero was involved.

Shelley quoted an unnamed "police expert" in the article, as being critical of Caldero's actions during the shooting. Shelley subsequently has refused to reveal the name of the unnamed source.

Judge Towles last month ruled that, by not revealing the name of the source, the so-called "police expert" did not exist for the purposes of the lawsuit. At the same time, Towles denied Caldero's motion to strike the newspaper's pleadings and issue a default judgment against the Tribune.

The Tribune then filed a motion, asking Towles for a summary judgment on behalf of the newspaper and its former reporter. In denying that motion for a summary judgment Wednesday, Towles clears the way for a full court trial over the libel lawsuit.

NOW we offer BIG SAVER RATES to SMALL SAVERS

Starting January 1, 1980, we offer a new 2½ year Savings Certificate with a

NEW MINIMUM of $500

at a new rate, substantially higher than available on the 4 year certificate which it replaces. The rate on the new savings certificate is .075% below the rate on U. S. Treasury securities maturing in 2½ years.

Recently, the yield on Treasury securities that mature in 2½ years has averaged approximately 11.2%. This means the rate on this new certificate, were it available in December would be 10.45%

Annual percentage rate

The actual rate for January will be announced December 27.

It's BIG news for small savers from

The kind of bank you want

Note: Federal law and regulations allow early withdrawal, however, they require substantial penalty if withdrawn prior to maturity.

The Lilies of the Valley give both young and old women a chance to mingle and they've surprised themselves with their success

See how the Lilies have grown

By LORAYNE O. SMITH

Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — The Lilies of the Valley homespun musical group is a "wild idea" which has taken root in the community.

After nearly four years of existence the women, ranging in age from grandmothers to young marrieds and a few high school girls, have surprised even themselves at their popularity and durability.

Their pre-Christmas performance recently at Sen. Frank Church's senior citizens holiday party in Twin Falls provided them an audience of some 500, but this was nothing new to the veteran performers who utilize everything from washbuds, washboards and old Maytag lids for cymbals to create a picturesque, yet surprisingly musical pleasing rest.

They received wide exposure two years ago when they performed as a special act at a regional musical event involving five LDS church stakes, held at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls. They also have entertained at a recreation vehicle show at CSI and at various civic or church events in Kimberly, Buhl, Jerome and throughout Gooding County communities.

Dressed in identical colorful gingham dresses topped with wide brimmed hats which lend a Gay Nineties effect, the ladies so obviously enjoy their musical efforts that their enthusiasm spills over to their audiences.

"We really formed just to have fun as part of the recreation program of the Hagerman Relief Society," according to Sydney Evans, who was talked into being director. After guiding the group the first few years she bowed out but recently has reassumed the position. While she disclaims being a professional musician, and has no degree, she teaches piano and her leadership obviously has been a prime factor in the group's success.

She said Druce Cluff, who was recreational leader and social chairman for the LDS church women's unit at Hagerman in 1976, brainstormed the idea for a "granny band" primarily to provide recreation for the older women. It was just a wild idea which caught on.

When Mrs. Evans was asked to lead the then non-existent "group" she realized "you have to have people excited before anything can happen." She first enlisted the aid of a few women she knew in the community who played piano, accordion and clarinet.

"But the idea wasn't to have a select musicians group. "We just wanted a gay old band," Mrs. Evans said. So began a treasure hunt of sorts for items which could be used for rhythm or percussion "instruments" to involve as many women as possible.

Jaunts to the various dumps in neighboring towns followed. The old Elms dump produced the best results — old tubs, bottles and jugs all hauled to the Evans home.

But sticks were needed to produce sounds on all these picturesque things so they rounded up anything handy. Joyce Menchaca, who now holds Mrs. Cluff's position, went out on a limb, literally, climbing up an apple tree to saw off a sturdy branch which could be turned into a tuneless but rhythmic "siring bass" attached to a washbub.

"She nearly scared me to death," Mrs. Evans laughed. The director made hats out of newspaper, rounded up every primitive type of rhythm producing object she could find, and at their first performance at a Relief Society meeting handed out the "instruments" including spoons of the table so that everyone could participate.

She chose a familiar easy piece, "Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet," which matched the group paper bonnets. No one really expected anything permanent from the project. But a week later when the Lilies were asked to perform at a church social event they got a standing ovation from the men attending, most of whom were their husbands.

"We've been playing ever since," Mrs. Menchaca said. There have been as many as 30 women of all ages, but currently the group numbers between 20 and 25 members. The oldest, Nora Baroggi, is 83 and several are in their 70s and 80s.

Besides the original purpose of recreation, the group helps to close the generation gap, the leaders feel, giving younger women a chance to mingle with the older ladies.

After their debut in March, 1976, and several successful performances, members decided they needed money to purchase material for costumes and get slightly more sophisticated equipment, such as bamboo sticks, tambourines, triangles and maracas.

During the summer of 1976 they organized a huge yard sale in the Hagerman City Park, clearing more than $300 for their efforts.

The original costumes, completed in time for the bicentennial parade in Gooding, were pink and white gingham dresses with orange and white checked cummerbunds and scarves. The women didn't like the scarves so a year later they each dug up $3 piece for green aprons.

The white wide-brimmed hats which promote the look of the "granny band," a less aesthetic sub title of the group, were purchased for $1 apiece on sale at a Twin Falls discount department store.

While the majority of the members shake, strum, pluck or rattle non-musical "instruments" which provide the homey appearance but no tonal quality, the harmony and melody of the group is provided largely by the pianist, Lu Ann Savage. Her talents are supported by a small nucleus of about seven musicians who play such "serious" instruments as clarinet, accordion and trombone. Sometimes they have had a tuba.

Not only is Mrs. Savage's piano playing the major musical binding, she holds the group intact. She also is adept at verbal ad libbing and tells jokes while members recuperate after a specially rousing polka.

Like all conscientious directors, Mrs. Evans has found it is efficient to have sectional practices. When introducing a new number she first works with the women who play regular instruments and read music.

When they get their parts smoothed out she then practices the sound effects with the majority of the so-called non-musical players. No music is needed for the group's larger "percussion" section because few if any of them can read a note.

"Most bands have only a few percussion instruments in contrast to the melodic instruments," Mrs. Evans said, "but ours is just the opposite."

"We're really noisy at times," she confided. But since the band is basically to provide fun, some of the members "don't see how we ever can do a performance," the director said. During rehearsals, the ladies usually fall to watch the director, a universal complaint among wielders of batons at all levels.

But like all performers, professional or volunteer, when limo comes for a performance, even the musically illiterate "shape-up" manage to keep one eye on the director and usually play on cue.

When they perform on floats, such as parades for the annual Gooding County Fair (where they have won trophies) and Mormon Pioneer Day the accordion replaces the piano as the main harmonizer.

The group's leaders now realize that "the band is getting bigger than any one person" and their goal is to get numerous members to double on several instruments so the group will not be dependent on any one member.

After the big events of the summer — Pioneer Day, the Hagerman Arts Festival and the Gooding County Fair — members rest for a few months.

They used to get together two or three times a month, but recently it has been only once a month. However, their schedule increased this fall with three performances which they pulled off with just three rehearsals.

But even traditionalists such as the Hagerman ladies, most of whom are active in the LDS Church, like some changes.

"They tired of the colorful gingham costumes so this year new polyester material not available in retail stores was ordered thanks to commercial connections of Leora Barrow of Hagerman, a former schoolmate. The Lilies now have a new look — soft feminine mus mus type dresses which fit everyone."

Only about a dozen of the original members are still in the group, but the LDS Relief Society leaders are pleased that membership has grown to include several women out of the church.

When CSI officials sent a van to bring the Lilies to perform at the recreational vehicle show last year, they apparently didn't realize how large the group was. "We were squeezed and we were nervous," Mrs. Menchaca said. But nothing daunted by their excessive togetherness, the Lilies just sang all the way, fulfilling their avowed purpose of having a wholesome good time.

Gossip

Q: I read that someone is being touted for both the best actor and best actress Oscars this year. How can this be? — K.A., of Burlington, Vt.

A: That's what Hollywood insiders with tongues in cheeks — no saying! United Artists should do for Michel Serrault, the star of their French farce, "La Cage aux Folles" (Birds of a Feather), Michel spends most of his time in a film dressed as a female impersonator and he's so good that if the Academy Award voters had a sense of humor, he'd win both Oscars in a walk — and you should just see Michel walk in high heels and a female boa!

Q: Bo Derek, that beautiful actress who's so sensational in the movie "10," must be the hottest new actress in Hollywood. What movies will she do next? — W.M., of Portland.

A: Bo is without doubt a sizzling property and is being flooded with big-money offers. She already has two films in the works — "A Change of Seasons," and "High Road to China."

Q: How does Woody Allen find all those off-beat actors for his movies? — L.H., of Dallas.

A: Woody's a firm believer in scouting local neighborhoods. For example, he's been spotted in the area of Manhattan's PS 40, on the lookout for youngsters with acting potential. My spies tell me Woody's seeking "interesting-looking types" for a new film and, when he has a chance, even peers through the school window in his search.

Q: One of my all-time movie favorites is Joel McCrea, who appeared in so many great Hollywood westerns and action pictures over three decades. Is he still alive? — Q.K. of Trenton, N.J.

A: And how. McCrea lives quietly these days with his attractive wife, Frances Dee, on a ranch between Los Angeles and Santa Barbara. McCrea still looks great and continues on Hollywood autograph rounds. They flocked around Joel and Frances at a recent film industry party to director George Stevens. McCrea may not be active but he hasn't lost that certain touch with movie fans.

JOEL MCCREA
fan favorite

Q: John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd, who used to be on "Saturday Night Live," are making the film "The Blues Brothers." But what about other cast members? Are they going to make any films? — J.W. of Seattle.

A: Laraine Newman, who's still on the show, is currently making "Wholly Moses" with Dudley Moore and James Coco. And look for Jane Curtin in "It's to Die for: The High Cost of Living" with Susan St. James. A couple of weeks ago the film "1941" opened with Belushi and Aykroyd. Another "Saturday Night Live" regular, Bill Murray, starred in "Meatballs," several months ago. A pretty busy group of actors.

MARGAUX HEMINGWAY
New Year's Eve wedding

Q: Since he looks terrific even though he's in his 70s, do you think someone will persuade Cary Grant to make just one more movie? — A.R. of Sarasota, Fla.

A: No. Cary, who is 75, simply has no desire to work again in front of the camera. He's even refused to get anywhere near the movie-making operations of... a big perfume company he helps run and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, where he sits on the board of directors. But Cary's still a big movie fan.

Q: I read that a Henry C. Rogers is coming out with a book that will "lift the lid off" some of the career secrets of superstars like Joan Crawford, Claudette Colbert, Rita Hayworth, Danny Kaye and Frank Sinatra. Is this true, and who is this Henry C. Rogers? — T.F. of St. Louis.

A: Henry C. Rogers is Hollywood's most famous public relations man, founder of the world-famous Rogers and Cowan company, publicists of countless motion picture superstars for the past 40 years. Henry has just finished a book called "Walking the Tightrope," a highly irreverent look behind the scenes with many stars he's handled. The stories he tells are fascinating, funny, unabashed and yes, very revealing. Not all the folk mentioned (those who are still around, that is) will embrace him for his candor — but it should sell a lot of books.

"DACK RAMBO
...Waikiki" is next

Q: I loved Dack Rambo in the short-lived TV series "Sword of Justice." When will we see him again? — S.J.C. of Washington, D.C.

A: Dack just completed a two-hour pilot for ABC, "Waikiki," which could turn out to be a series. He's also working on a lush hush recording date in which he'll sing country music. Dack, who's 32, got his start in show business some years back playing one of Leroy's young sons on her TV show. He's also been in the series, "The Guns of Will Sonnett" and "Dirty Sally." Dack, who's single, has a place in Los Angeles and owns a farm in a small central California town, Earlilart, where he raises horses.

Q: Actor Carl Weathers is so believable as Apollo Creed in the two "Rocky" movies that I can't believe he's never boxed before. Wasn't he a possible heavyweight contender before he turned to acting? — O.N. of Reading, Pa.

A: No, his roles opposite Sylvester Stallone were his first ring experiences. Weathers acquired his marvelous physique on the football field. He played ball in college followed by a stint with the Oakland Raiders and a Canadian team, the B.C. Lions, all while studying acting. Weathers is a pretty smart cookie and screen and has written a juicy role for himself in a movie he's planning, "Heart of the City," in which he plays a gangbusting cop.

A: DEAR United Artists, which stunned the movie industry in past weeks with two major book acquisitions — Gay Talese's "Thy Neighbor's Wife" and Tom Wolfe's "The Right Stuff" — has now snapped up Jack Higgins' "Solo." The story concerns a world-renowned concert pianist who is asked a spy for foreign governments. Higgins' book "The Eagle Has Landed," was also made into a film.

Q: Zany Steve Martin is so great in person that I was disappointed to hear that he's cutting way down on concert appearances in favor of making movies. How come? — H.V. of Morristown, N.J.

A: With his first big picture, "The Jerk," behind him, Steve's found that movies are very much to his liking. He wants to make more, which by necessity will cut way down on personal appearances. But you'll be seeing Steve a bit more frequently on TV since he's got a contract with NBC for some specials.

Q: Now that "Star Trek — The Motion Picture" is out are we going to see any interviews with my favorite, Leonard Nimoy? — P.D. of Newark, N.J.

A: Word is that Leonard who plays Mr. Spock simply doesn't want to talk to most reporters, and when he does, his priorities can be arbitrary and unpredictable. Thus far, Nimoy has repeatedly turned down interview requests from Cue New York, an entertainment magazine with a built-in, affluent movie-going audience anxious to see the film.

Q: Didn't Kris Kristofferson say a while back that he's fed up with movie acting, and wants to stick exclusively to the music side of his career? — I.B. of Troy, N.Y.

A: Kris was indeed fed up at one point and muttered something about promising to toss in the greensap, but he didn't mean it. He has since appeared in the TV movie, "Freedom Road," with Muhammad Ali, and is working on director Michael Cimino's $30 million epic, "Heaven's Gate."

Q: Bruce Jenner and his wife, Chrissy, seemed like the ideal American couple, a heaven-made match. Why did they break up? — H.N. of San Jose.

A: Getting a straight answer on marital trouble is always tricky and the Jenners are no exception. Bruce's associates say Chrissy became troublesome as his show biz fortunes climbed, especially since he completed his first movie, "Can't Stop the Music." Supposedly, she said he was just another jerk who got lucky. Haven't heard her side yet, but it looks like all those husband-and-wife deals the Jenners cooked up some years ago are definitely by the board.

Dancing taught as form of worship

Alice Welchert interprets the Lord's Prayer in a liturgical dance class

By DOUG SMITH

LOS ANGELES — John West touched the phonograph arm to the record and strode to the center of a long wall of mirrors.

West and the dozen students behind him spread their arms and began to move as jazz notes came through the loudspeakers. Then a strong soprano voice spoke slowly.

Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name.

Some of the students danced skillfully, leaning, spinning, gliding in unison with their teacher.

There also were neophytes who looked up frequently to keep pace, sometimes fell a step behind or turned the wrong way.

Yet their expressions were clear and strong as they clasped their arms across their hearts while the song continued.

Try kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven.

The Lord's Prayer is hardly standard material for a modern dance class.

West's class at Loyola Marymount University in the Westchester area of Los Angeles, although it concentrates on the standard movements and techniques of modern dance, teaches something quite different: liturgical dance. Its goals are as different as the students taking it.

Some of them hope to enhance their own sense of worship, to experiment with a new way to reach out to God.

"I would never be a professional dancer," said one of the most skilled students in the class. "I would never have stayed with dancing if it hadn't been a vehicle to express my love of God."

For others, the class gives an experience not found in most dance classes.

"Dance is something that is freeing," said one of the two Catholic nuns in the class. "You might feel inhibited about the way your body looks to other people. Dance frees you of that."

For West, the class offers the chance to help others examine a new form of personal worship and to develop new dancers.

West, a professional dancer, director of a sacred dance group and teacher of dance, said he enjoys dancing his way through social barriers, as he did when he tried to recruit students for a modern dance class at the boys' school where he teaches English.

"I did the impossible," he said. "They told me boys will not dance. I said boys will dance. They're dancing. And that's it."

But above all, West is a Catholic whose professional mission is to make his dancing an instrument of traditional worship.

In modern times, traditional Western churches have put up a barrier against public dancing, he said.

Dancing has become associated with the profane and commercial world and, to many, seems out of place in the church.

But he believed dance belongs in the church as much as singing.

In ancient times, Jewish men taught their sons dancing as they taught them the Bible, he said.

The ceremony of the Mass, too, he said, is a kind of elaborate dance that has become a ritual.

West's view of dance as worship falls closely in line with that of Loyola's dance director, Judy Scallin.

"Man experiences a sense of power when he moves his own body," Ms. Scallin said.

"If you move faster or in more control, you begin to feel in contact with a greater power."

"In prehistoric times, man saw himself as a spiritual being, a manifestation of a spirit. Dance was an expression of contacting that spirit. Dance became worship and worship became dance...."

However, Ms. Scallin said, "Dance degenerated with lewd, body-to-body stuff, sexual arousal. It lost its spiritual connection. The church didn't want to be associated with such profane expression."

In her dance classes, Ms. Scallin said she encourages students to experience what she calls "spirit" and "source."

"Unless you get in contact with 'spirit' and 'source,' as technically excellent as you get, you seem kind of boring," she said.

Although West's class is concerned with these two ideas, West looks at these intangibles from the opposite point of view, she said.

While she encourages her students to experience "spirit" in order to dance better, West is training his students to dance so they can experience "spirit."

'Justice' pounds; 'Electric' fluffs it

Times-News writer
I have no doubt that the legal profession has its share of "crazies" and that the judicial system is badly in need of reform. "And Justice For All" is a film which tries to expose both of these evils. While I can readily accept the basic premise, I find the plot far-fetched and overrated.

This provocative feature starring Al Pacino has great vitality and a powerful message. I kept waiting to jump on the bandwagon, to be swept up in the anger the film obviously elicits. Yet, something stopped me.

For one thing, I simply can't buy a story where the good guy is very, very good and the bad guys absolutely horrid. Pacino portrays Arthur Kirkland, a liberal young lawyer who really cares about his clients' welfare. The character is extremely likeable — he even has an elderly grandfather (Lee Strasberg) whom he visits weekly in an old-age home. You know from the very outset that this noble young fighter is going to be severely disillusioned. The screenplay lines up one blow after another, or more appropriately, one cliché after another.

From the teen-ager mistakenly arrested and held behind bars by ineptitude and legal claptrap to the black transvestite terrorized by prison brutality, Kirkland's clients experience every legal horror. Among his acquaintances are also a suicidal judge (Jack Warden) who sits in the men's room with a loaded shotgun in his mouth and his partner (Jeffrey Tambor), who shaves his head after successfully defending a man who then goes out and kills two children. The final absurdity occurs when Kirkland is asked to defend a judge whom he despises. Judge Flemming (John Forsythe) is a hard nose — a cold, heartless meanie who would evict his own mother if she were a day late with the rent. And guess what the old boy is accused of doing? Why mercilessly raping and beating a young woman of course!

Now, I'm not saying that all of these things don't happen. It's just that I doubt that any one lawyer experiences such intense excitement within a lifetime, much less within the space of a few months. But that's Hollywood for you! Despite my objection to the hyped-up melodrama, many aspects of the film are commendable. The mature relationship between Pacino and a woman lawyer, for instance, is refreshing. Christine Lahti effectively portrays a self-assured professional with strong drives and convictions. Although she and Pacino often disagree, a feeling of mutual respect and attraction keeps them together. Their shared scenes along with those in which Pacino visits his aging grandfather are among the best in the film. They may be peripheral to the main story, but at least they have the ring of truth sorely lacking in too much of the film.

"And Justice For All" is unfortunately not as strong as it intends to be, but most likely it will jar your sensibilities. I admire the writer and director for attempting to prick our consciousness. I only wish that they had used a pin rather than a needle hammer.

A movie of a different breed entirely is "The Electric Horseman," starring Robert Redford and Jane Fonda. This gentle, quiet saga about a has-been rodeo performer is as appealing as its two superstars.

In the first few minutes, a clever montage reveals the slow decline of Sonny Steele (Robert Redford). A one-time rodeo star, Sonny is now reduced to advertising breakfast cereal for a large corporation. He spends his days traveling from one promotional gig to another, drinking heavily and trying to forget who he was. Then, one day, something happens which stirs up his repressed emotions.

During a rehearsal for a Las Vegas show, Sonny discovers that the horse he rides, a former racing champion, has been doped up and pumped with steroids. The horse becomes a symbol of his own lost manhood. Suddenly, he formulates a wild idea. If he can free this animal, he too, may regain his sense of identity. Before the eyes of bewildered spectators, Sonny kidnaps the $12 million steed.

His action sets off a merry chase in which he is pursued by hoards of policemen, several enraged corporate heads, and one aggressive TV reporter (Jane Fonda), who thinks this kook will make an interesting story. Once she catches up with him, the story becomes a tender romance between complete opposites. They enrich each others' lives and manage to totally enchant the audience.

Actually, Redford and Fonda make the film better than it really is. The story is pleasant fluff, soothing and easily forgotten. Redford and Fonda, however, are like rare vintage wines — the older they get, the better they are. Sidney Pollack has directed the film with grace and polish. You may not find "The Electric Horseman" electrifying, but its stars certainly glitter.

Stapleton, Beatty, Keaton in Reds'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Maureen Stapleton will join Warren Beatty and Diane Keaton in the cast of "Reds," currently shooting on locations in London. Stapleton, a three-time Oscar nominee ("Interiors," "Report" and "Lonely Hearts") will portray Emma Goldman in the Paramount Picture which is being produced and directed by Beatty who also wrote the script with Trevor Griffiths.

The story deals with the relationship between John Reed, the radical American journalist and author of "Ten Days That Shook the World" and his journalist wife, Louise Bryant.

'Circle in the Round'

By GEORGE KANZLER JR.
Newhouse News Service

NEW YORK — Miles Davis has been delighting, surprising and infuriating jazz fans with his music for over 20 years. As a trumpeter, he has an instantly recognizable style, aching lyric and laconic yet edged with switchblade catchiness of thrust and parry, evocative at times of the most terrible loneliness, at others of a consummate hipness or hauteur.

While most jazz listeners readily acknowledge his artistry and appeal, they often part company on WHICH Miles Davis they admire. For Davis, more than any other musician to emerge from the bebop era, has moved with the times, often as a trendsetter. He has performed in a wider range of settings, with more varied groups of musicians and in more stylistic contexts, than anyone else.

Davis almost literally gave birth to Cool with an album of the same name at the end of the 1940s; in the 1950s he was at the vanguard of the hard-bop movement; his collaborations with arranger Gil Evans remain models of concerto jazz; he explored modal music with the John Coltrane sextet in his band; he was one of the first jazz musicians to embrace electric instruments — and — rock — time signatures; he favored fusion music, or jazz-rock fusion.

Miles Davis hasn't recorded since 1975, but Columbia Records has just released a new two-record set of unreleased recordings spanning the years 1955-1970 called "Circle in The Round." It traces the directions of Davis from hard bop to fusion.

The first side features two quintets and a sextet from the first six years covered by this album: "Two Bass Hit" is notable for the classic hard bop sound of the 1955 quintet, and the solo tenor sax of Coltrane. "Love For Sale" by the 1958 sextet with Coltrane, "Cannonball" Adderley and Bill Evans, suggests the modal approach to this genre, and is highlighted by the solos of Davis, alto saxophonist Adderley, and a crystalline Evans on piano. The concluding cut on this side, "Circle No. 2," is dominated by the stinging drums of Philly Joe Jones and the exuberant, darting trumpet of Davis.

The little selection takes up all of Side Two, almost a half hour. It's worth every minute of it establishing instant claim to classic Milesian status. Over a choked guitar drone and trill, oscillating, by Joe Beck, and churning, snatching 12-8 time by drummer Tony Williams, Davis and tenor sax Wayne Shorter state the ominous, angular theme. The two then alternate long solos with hypnotic intensity, while Ron Carter's bass and Herbie Hancock's celeste combine to form an eerie, fragile subtext to the febrile pace and solos. "Circle in the Round" is a haunting performance.

Most and least, best and worst of TV in '70s

By Frank Svertlow
©Chicago Sun-Times
Good, bad or ugly, television in the '70s had its moments. High ratings and low rollers—ruid—the same—their terrible shows became hits and the brilliant ones flops. And in the middle the public looked on. They may have been mad as hell, as the mad prophet of "Network!" screamed, but they didn't stop watching.

The following are this critic's choices for the best and worst of television in the last decade.

• Most Influential Movie: NBC's

"Born Innocent" This two-hour film starring Linda Blair featured a rape scene that stirred political pressure into forcing the networks to adopt "Family Viewing Time."

• Best Typed Series: "Beneath Hill." CBS' attempt to recreate the British soap opera "Upstairs, Downstairs" drew an avalanche of publicity. The only problem was scripted production proved that a black man's search for his past could capture the hearts of a nation. NBC's "Holocaust." A story about the Nazi atrocities didn't seem possible. But NBC grasped the best-elements of soap opera and created a searing reminder of Hitler and what his goons did to the Jews.

• Best TV Movie: CBS' "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," starring Cicely Tyson. This two-hour 1974 film elegantly and powerfully traced the rise of a black woman in the South from slavery to the civil rights movement of the 1960s. No other movie, not even "Roots," captured the racial issue in this country so succinctly. CBS' "The Marcus Nelson Murders." Before Telly Savalas became a lollipop-sucking brute, he provided a human but brutal look into the police life in this two-hour film that was the basis for the series, "Kojak."

• Best Trashy Series: CBS' "Dallas." It cleverly packages sex, corporate corruption and greed into a soap opera.

• Best Quality Series: CBS' "All in the Family." The show makes you laugh and provided the basis for such series as "The Jeffersons," "Maude" and "Good Times."

• Best Syndicated Series: "The Muppetts." It proved that syndicated shows don't have to be game shows or about animals. In fact, sometimes one wished the Muppetts were real.

• Best Programmer: Fred Silverman's No. 1 when he was there. ABC hit the top and NBC could produce the triple play for him. No other programmer has been responsible for so many hits.
