Andrus accepts fed energy post

Will step down at Interior at first of the year

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

WASHINGTON — President Carter will announce the appointment of Interior Secretary and former Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus to the Energy Security Corporation (ESC), the Times-News has learned.

Washington sources say Andrus will remain as head of the Department of Interior until the end of this year, when his four-year term is up, before assuming duties as one of the six board members with the ESC. Andrus could not be reached for comment.

The corporation, which was enacted into law this summer, has been appropriated a $20-billion budget to encourage development of the American synthetic fuels industry.

The goal of the corporation is to encourage private industry to create new synthetic fuels from coal, farm wastes, grain and oil shale. The ESC expects its efforts to result in the production of two million barrels of fuel a day by the mid-1980s.

new government role.

In encouraging Congress to approve his synthetic fuels legislation, the president called creation of the ESC a central part of achieving American energy independence. The legislation passed by Congress gives the corporation a five-year lifespan, after which additional funding would be available for synthetic fuel production.

Andrus' appointment will be announced by Carter this week, sources say.

His assumption of the new position will formally take place at the end of the year. Andrus has repeatedly said he wanted to serve a complete four-year term as Interior Secretary before assuming any new job.

In calling for creation of the ESC, President Carter pointed out that the technology for creating synthetic fuels has existed for years.

But the large costs involved in research, development and initial production of these fuels has prevented most businesses from producing synthetic fuels on a commercial scale. Should the 2 million barrels reached, it would amount to about one quarter of the fuel imported by the United States last year. In 1979, the United States imported about 8.8 billion barrels of oil.

Sterilize

OSHA fines Bunker Hill $82,765 for requiring women working at smelter to be sterilized first

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Occupational Safety and Health Administration Friday recommended fines against the Bunker Hill Co. of Kellogg for requiring women to be sterilized to work in lead-exposure areas.

The agency proposed penalties totaling $82,765 for 108 alleged violations of federal occupational safety and health regulations.

The firm has 15 days to contest the citations and fines to the independent Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission.

It was the second such citation OSHA has ever issued. The agency gave its first citation to American Cyanamid on Oct. 8, 1979. That citation is under appeal to the Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission.

The agency, part of the Labor Department, proposed a $10,000 fine against Bunker Hill — a subsidiary of Gulf Resources and Chemical Corp., which operates a primary lead smelter — for the sterilization policy.

Bunker Hill was cited for a "corporate policy which required women employees to be sterilized in order to be eligible to work in areas of the plant where they would be exposed to lead."

Occupational exposure to lead can cause damage to the nervous, urinary and reproductive systems, and studies have linked such exposure to defects in offspring of workers.

The agency said Bunker Hill could not seek to eliminate the hazard to women employees from excessive lead exposure by forcing them to choose between their jobs and sterilization.

Other alleged willful violations at Bunker Hill included one for excess lead exposure in eating areas, carrying another $10,000 proposed penalty, and two dealing with the company's failure to comply to biological monitoring of lead standards, with fines totaling $5,400.

The government also alleged four repeat violations carrying a total of $7,400 in fines. Those included alleged deficiencies in record-keeping and respiratory protection, and various violations of OSHA's arsenic standard.

The remaining 100 alleged violations carry a total $50,365 in fines. According to OSHA, a willful violation exists where evidence shows the employer committed an intentional and knowing violation, as contrasted with inadvertent violation or making no reasonable effort to eliminate a hazardous condition.

Hostage release criteria set

By United Press International

Avetollah Ruhollah Khomeini said Friday he will free the 52 American hostages if the United States returns the late shah's wealth, frees Iran's frozen assets and promises never to intervene in Iranian affairs again. To what appeared to be one of the most significant developments in the hostage crisis since it began 314 days ago, Khomeini broke his long silence on the issue with a list of demands he said the United States must meet to win the hostages' release.

Most significantly, there was no mention in his list of the public apology that Prime Minister Mohammad-Ali Rajai and other Iranian officials have demanded from the United States.

By saying the hostages could go free if his conditions were fulfilled,

Khomeini also appeared to be taking the crisis out of the hands of the Iranian parliament, which he had profusely charged with deciding the hostages' fate.

The parliament, in turn, had been favoring spy trials for the captives. In Washington, President Carter was cautious in assessing Khomeini's remarks, saying only that they were being examined "very carefully."

"We've learned to be very cautious about statements from Iran," the president told reporters. "We'll be monitoring what is going on and analyzing the statements further."

State Department spokesman John Trautner added that returning the shah's wealth was not as simple as the Iranians seemed to think. "We don't know where the wealth is, or even how much there is," he said.

Trautner added the United States would have to study Khomeini's remarks before drawing conclusions from them.

"It is not possible to draw definitive conclusions from this and other recent public statements without further exploration," he said.

Khomeini's demands, contained in a "message to Muslim pilgrims" and broadcast over Tehran Radio, said the hostages "will be freed as soon as the late shah's wealth is returned, all U.S. claims against Iran are canceled, there is a guarantee of no U.S. military or political intervention in Iran and all our funds are freed."

He said he had passed on those directives to his parliament "so they can decide on any course of action in the interest of the nation. He also praised the militants holding the hostages as "fighting, committed Muslim students" and called their seizure of the U.S. Embassy Nov. 4 "a natural reaction."

Khomeini's intervention came as moderate President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr was locked in a bitter feud with Rajai and other hardliners.

As recently as Monday, Bani-Sadr reiterated he wanted the hostages to be released. His remarks drew fire from fundamentalists and the militants who accused him of being afraid to stand up to the United States.

But Khomeini's intervention appeared to be a "boost" for the beleaguered president and a sign that he still has the ayatollah's support. It also looked to be a compromise between the two factions. Although Khomeini appeared to drop the militant insistence for an apology from the United States, he reiterated the demand for the return of the shah's unspecified wealth.

U.S. not worried about Turk coup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration Friday expressed mild concern at the military coup in Turkey, and said U.S. financial assistance amounting to $400 million annually will continue.

State Department officials said the coup was expected, but that the United States had only an hour and 15 minutes advance warning of the actual takeover early Friday, Turkish time.

The officials also noted that the initial announcement in Turkey indicated military authorities were taking over in order to head off attempts by Communist or Islamic right-wing radical groups to seize power.

"The United States must be concerned about the seizure of power from any democratically elected government," State Department spokesman John Trautner read from a statement.

"We note that in taking power the Turkish military have stated they do so to restore a functioning democratic government. We note that Turkey has been beset by increasing terrorism and economic difficulties.

"We look forward to the early restoration of democracy in Turkey and to the establishment of economic and political stability."

Current U.S. assistance to Turkey is $400 million a year — $200 million in military sales credits and $200 million in economic development assistance. The proposed figure for next year is $450 million.

State Department officials also noted that the first Turkish announcements of the takeover look pains to assure all of Turkey's treaty partners, including the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, that it will stand by all its international commitments.

The initial communiques also committed Turkish military authorities to set up a ruling executive committee and "a speedy restoration of the democratic process."

Trautner said the commander of the U.S. military assistance group in Turkey, Maj. Gen. D. Remick Jr., was assured no American citizens or property would be harmed.

Concerns by NATO, for which Turkey and its 400,000 strong armed forces on the Soviet border are the cornerstone of defense in the eastern Mediterranean, were answered almost immediately by word that the first Turkish announcement of the takeover would be under way in the country would not be affected.

"Turkey is the only country where one must redefine a coup d'etat to understand one," one NATO official said. "It's not what everyone may think."

It's over!

Administration says recession ended in July

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top administration economist said Friday it appears the recession is over and recovery has begun.

"It appears to us that the recession is over," the Commerce Department's chief economist, Courtney Conroy, said in a report in a substantial revision of earlier forecasts.

buoyed by a recent string of encouraging economic indicators, Mrs. Slater said she believes the recession, which began in February, ended in July.

The recovery got under way in August and will continue to be "moderately strong" if tax cuts are enacted next year, she said.

Mrs. Slater said her forecast was based on "her best judgment" and was not politically motivated by the upcoming presidential election.

If Mrs. Slater's forecast holds up, the 1980 recession will have lasted only six months — making it the shortest of seven economic downturns America has suffered since World War II.

The new forecast was based on Mrs. Slater's preliminary figures for what the "real" gross national product — the nation's output of goods and services stripped of inflation — will do in the third quarter.

"I have been saying, and not only people have been saying, third quarter GNP would go down," Mrs. Slater said at a news briefing.

But on the basis of recent data, particularly inventory and retail sales figures, she said, "the guess we would make at this moment is to be somewhat higher in the third quarter... modest growth."

Mrs. Slater became the first economist — in or out of government — to fully predict the recession is over, although others have hinted as much recently.

However, she warned, "It is quite likely we will see further rises in unemployment continue for several months," she said.

Art Linkletter's son dies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Robert Linkletter, the radio and television personality Art Linkletter, was killed in a head-on car crash Friday. He was 35. Linkletter died about an hour after he was rushed to Los Angeles New Hospital with chest injuries suffered in a smashup on Santa Monica Boulevard. The Linkletters previously lost a daughter, Diane, who leaped to her death at the age of 20 in 1969 while under the influence of LSD. The husband of another daughter had committed suicide three years ago.

Rather charged with murder

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Afghan government has demanded the United States try CBS-TV reporter Dan Rather on charges he directed the murder of three Afghan ditch-diggers for television footage, the State Department said Friday. Officials said there was no possibility of such a move and one official said, "You can say that Rather is safe." Rather repeated earlier denials of the charge and CBS said it would urge the government to make a formal protest. The State Department said, "The Afghan government delivered a note to the U.S. embassy in Kabul demanding that Dan Reaser (Rather) be tried and punished (in the United States) and that the U.S. government compensate the families of three ditch-diggers who were stoned to death several months ago." Afghanistan first made the murder charges after Rather signed into the country in postwar Cambodia earlier this year to cover fighting between Afghan guerrillas and Soviet army troops.

Nicaraguan aid is released

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Friday approved a controversial $75-million aid package for Nicaragua in order to help the democratic process in the Central American nation led by a Marxist-leaning government.

The White House said in a statement the government of Nicaragua has given repeated assurances that it is not involved with international terror or supporting violence or terrorism in other countries.

Carter's aid certification order was opposed by conservative members of Congress who say Nicaragua's Sandinista government has been aiding Cuban terrorist activities.

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., attacked Carter's action, saying, "I believe that (Nicaragua) is not only directly engaged in terrorism in Guatemala and El Salvador, but is also being used as a conduit for Cuban arms."

But the White House said, "The administration does not intend to abandon the vital Central American region to Cuba and its radical Marxist allies." "To the contrary, the assistance made available by the president's certification will enable us to give effective support to those moderate and democratic Nicaraguans who are struggling to preserve individual freedoms, political pluralism, the democratic process and a strong free enterprise participation in their economy."

The White House said 60 percent of the assistance would go to the private sector in Nicaragua.

County has no money for payroll

DETROIT (UPI) — About 2,400 employees of cash-starved Wayne County — the nation's third largest — went home without paychecks Friday and officials said prospects for next week's payroll appeared equally dim.

The payless payday — the third in about a year for county employees as a result of an ongoing cash crisis — affected workers at the sheriff's department and county hospital.

County auditors struggling to meet this week's approximately $2 million payroll said they came up with $1 million.

It was hoped the paychecks, which were printed but withheld, could be distributed sometime next week. But auditors were unable to say with any certainty when the checks would be issued.

"It could come any day next week. But we have no way of knowing. It depends on the funds as they come in," Proctor said.

Proctor was expected to meet next week's $2.6 million payroll, which covers another 3,700 county employees.

"It is dismal at this point. We just don't know how we're going to meet it," he said. "We are hopeful that our employees are going to be very considerate and understanding of the problem."

Busing tensions key boycott

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — About 200 students boycotted classes Friday to protest busing and recent incidents of alleged racial and sexual harassment at a high school integrated this year under federal court order.

The students, mostly white girls, charged they had been targets of racial and sexual harassment. They began their protest as classes started at 7:30 a.m.

Principal Albert Reinsch met with several group leaders and asked them to either attend classes or leave the area. The protesters left about 10 a.m.

The boycott is the first sign of unrest since the desegregation of St. Louis public schools began two weeks ago.

Reinsch said the protest was triggered by complaints from several white girls about offensive language from black students. He said there was "one report of a black youth striking a white girl on the back of the head during an argument."

The principal said of 15 reported incidents of harassment, seven students have been either suspended or transferred to other schools. The other cases remain under investigation, he said.

One of the protesters, Kim Diesel, 16, said, "I was bothered by a bunch of black guys who called me a honky and asked me how I danced. It's not the kind of thing a white guy would say."

Sophomore Rene Landi added: "I'm afraid to walk in the halls by myself. If they can't keep their hands to themselves, they don't belong in school. It doesn't matter what color they are."

Officials at Cleveland High School, which dropped from a 97 percent white enrollment last year to a 54.3 percent white enrollment this year, held a series of student assemblies Thursday in an attempt to avert the boycott.

Reinsch said he assured the girls' parents that "they need have no fear of sending their children to Cleveland; that they can walk the halls safely, use the restrooms safely, and, hopefully, get an education here."

Several black students said the girls were over reacting.

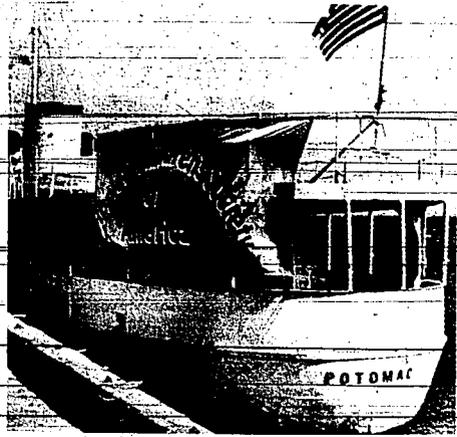

"If you touch these girls, they consider it an assault," said one black youth who asked not to be identified. "They're super-sensitive."

Murderess sentenced

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A woman convicted of the arsenic murder of her third husband and facing a murder trial in the poisoning of her second spouse Friday became the first woman sentenced to death in Kentucky.

LaVerne O'Bryan, 63, sobbed as Jefferson Circuit Judge S. Yush Nicholson handed down the sentence, which will be appealed "automatically" under state law to the Kentucky Supreme Court.

Because no woman has ever been sentenced to death in Kentucky, a special Death Row cell was prepared at the state's only women's prison in anticipation of her sentencing.

Huge pot seizure made in 'Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Law officials Friday said they expected more arrests in the seizure from a posh yacht of $40 million worth of marijuana — the most ever confiscated by authorities on the West Coast.

Meanwhile, a controversy brewed over whether federal agents botched a chance to confiscate nearly 100 pounds of cocaine from the yacht because they were worried over who would get "credit" for the seizure.

Federal agents Thursday seized 20 tons of Columbia marijuana and arrested 16 suspects aboard the 100-foot Valkyrie as it lay docked near the city's famed Fisherman's Wharf.

A sister ship used by the smugglers, the 165-foot Potomac, once used by President Franklin D. Roosevelt for fishing trips off Florida and later owned by Elvis Presley, was also seized although no marijuana was found onboard.

U.S. Marshal Richard Goldsmith Thursday said the haul totaling more than $4 million at arraignments for the suspects, most of them Southern Californians, those arrested also included six Colombians and the Valkyrie's owner, Sidney Earl Schwimmer.

U.S. Attorney William Hunter Friday said the designated marijuana amounted to "the largest one-time seizure in the western United States."

He said more arrests were expected in the case which has been under investigation for eight months.

The controversy brewed with a report Friday in the San Francisco Examiner that two smugglers left the boat carrying suitcases loaded with cocaine valued at $2 million, but were not arrested by Drug Enforcement Administration agents watching the vessel. The two men managed to elude a police tail.

The newspaper quoted an unnamed source as saying the DEA agents didn't stop the two men because they didn't "want to risk" that U.S. Customs agents might get "credit" for the seizure.

Thurmond reacts angrily to Jenrette's charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Strom Thurmond testified at Rep. John Jenrette's trial Friday that the South Carolina Democrat never asked him to introduce a private immigration bill in exchange for $125,000.

He later called Jenrette a "lying skunk."

Thurmond, R-S.C., testified that Jenrette never approached him about helping a fake Arab sheik get into this country and did not offer him a payoff to do it.

Outside the courtroom, Thurmond said when he heard Jenrette had been taped boasting to undercover agents he could arrange such a deal, "It just occurred to me that he was just a lying skunk."

Jenrette and co-defendant John Stowers, former Myrtle Beach businessman, are on trial for conspiring to receive $100,000 to sponsor a private immigration bill for a fictitious sheik. Jenrette also is accused of offering to get Thurmond to introduce a similar bill in the Senate for $125,000.

But Thurmond, called by the government to testify, vigorously denied he had been involved in a scheme with Jenrette.

"They had never asked me to introduce a bill for any amount of money and if they had, I think they know I would have resisted it, and of course, not done it," Thurmond said.

Tuesday, the jury saw a videotape of Jenrette talking with an undercover FBI agent about such a deal.

Jenrette nodded yes when undercover agent Anthony Amoroso asked Jenrette, "You think you can get him (Thurmond) for us?"

Later, Jenrette told the agent Thurmond would "probably want one arm's length transaction."

The jury Tuesday also heard Jenrette in a taped telephone conversation telling Thurmond to "talk to Thurmond. I talked with him in a very vague way... and he said, 'I'll do anything you want me to do.'"

Jenrette said the Arabs would have to pay Thurmond $125,000.

Thurmond testified Friday, "I have never accepted any money at any time for any service rendered for the public during my 52 years of service."

He said he once got a tablecloth and napkins for introducing a private immigration bill for a Filipino doctor and his wife. But he said he told a aide to send the doctor a check and tell him, "We don't accept anything for our services."

Thurmond said he first learned of the Abscam case from the news, and several days after the first stories he encountered Jenrette. Thurmond said Jenrette asked him if he knew the FBI tried to get Jenrette to bring him into the Washington townhouse used by agents.

Thurmond, talking outside the court, said he checked with the attorney general and FBI Director William Webster and, "They told me that I wasn't in any way involved."

Log homes found to contain PCP

ATLANTA (UPI) — Elevated levels of PCP, the chemical psychotachophenol suspected of being harmful to the reproductive systems of certain animals, have been found in residents of several log homes in Kentucky, federal health officials said Friday.

The national Center for Disease Control said the logs used in construction of the homes had been dipped in PCP prior to construction to control sap stains of the wood. PCP is a widely used wood preservative and pesticide.

Up to 30,000 log homes are sold each year, the CDC said.

The CDC said 34 log home residents were tested and found to have elevated PCP levels in their blood and urinary systems.

"These log home residents had geometric mean (blood) serum PCP concentrations seven times that of control (other) individuals living in conventional homes," the CDC said.

"None of the residents tested reported symptoms or health problems as a result of living in log homes."

The log homes were built between 1975 and 1978 and the logs were dipped in five percent PCP.

Two adults living in a log home that had not been treated with PCP had PCP levels comparable to persons residing in conventional homes.

The CDC said heavy exposure to PCP increases an individual's sensitivity to heat. It said persons chronically exposed to the chemical, such as wood treatment workers, have large concentrations in their bodies without acute symptoms.

"However, neither the long-term effects of PCP on these workers nor its potential effect on pregnant women have been adequately studied," the federal health agency said.

It said PCP has been reported to be embryo-lethal and embryo-toxic in rats and hamsters. Such has been shown to be cancer-causing in animals or humans. It said "vapors of this compound are lethal to plants, and owners of PCP-treated log homes may also have animals or children."

The CDC said vaporization of PCP, the likely cause of the elevated PCP levels among log home residents, can be substantially reduced by coating interior log walls with a home coating with a sealer such as polyurethane.

It said "residents of log homes should consult the manufacturer on whether the logs have been treated with PCP."

Welfare cheat gets lecture, jail sentence

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The 6000 life has ended for Robert Luke of Mayfield Heights, who traveled and gambled on the estimated $80,000 he and his wife pocketed through a welfare scheme from 1974 to 1979.

Luke, 61, was sentenced to 3-15 years in prison Thursday by an outraged Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court Judge Harry Hanna. The same penalty was handed down to Luke's wife, Storey, 39, earlier by Hanna.

Defense lawyer Harry Calto asked Hanna to be lenient with Luke, who pleaded guilty to 10 counts of grand larceny.

But the judge rejected the plea that Luke is not in good health and is worried about the well take care of his 11-year-old daughter. Instead, he gave Luke a verbal lashing.

He should have thought about his daughter five or six years ago when he started all this," the judge said. "Conduct such as this gives welfare a bad name."

"It's hard enough to get legislators to appropriate enough money for the needy, the hungry, fatherless children, homeless children, and the lame, disabled and blind."

"And then someone like you comes along and makes everyone say, 'Look at those welfare cheaters!'"

Luke and his wife were among six people accused of setting up 58 bogus family names to get benefits through the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. Each phony family was supposed to have five to seven children.

Investigators said the Lukes dressed fashionably, took exotic vacations and gambled. They said the man and woman acquired a home computer to help them handicap horses.

Luke was an investigator for the Ohio Bureau of Workers' Compensation until he resigned recently "for reasons of health."

Protest school parents say they'll defy court

FOREST HILL, La. (UPI) — Defiant parents holding classes in a school closed by a federal busing order said Friday they would resist, even if federal marshals tried to stop the "counter-classes" they have established.

Two black attorneys whose lawsuit brought about the controversial desegregation order, however, said another suit may be filed to remove parents and students from the school.

Local officials have made no moves to prevent the occupation of the school.

Most of the 170 children attending the school are white.

The designated "principal" of the school remained defiant. "I'll be the first to lie down in front of the door," said Clyde Holloway, who led the protest at Forest Hill Elementary School.

The school was one of three ordered closed by U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott to improve racial integration. In defiance of the desegregation order, parents and retired educators began holding classes there Tuesday after obtaining a key to the building.

"I don't think they know what to do in this case," Holloway said. "I don't think they know what the law is."

School Superintendent Allen Nichols said school officials did not plan to take action against the parents unless Judge Scott ordered intervention.

Sandra Windsor, a "counter-school" volunteer teacher with child in fourth grade, said parents were satisfied with the quality of education despite some teachers' lack of college training.

"I have enough common sense that can help a child with his reading, writing and arithmetic," she said. "Anyone can read out of a book and explain to a child."

President Carter hugs Anthony Casamento after presenting him with a Medal of Honor for his actions on Guadalcanal.

WWII medal awarded

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Thirty-eight years after the bloody battle of Guadalcanal, former Marine Cpl. Anthony Casamento was presented with the nation's highest military badge of courage—the Medal of Honor.

The medal, which Casamento publicly lobbied for and which was so long denied him, was placed around his neck by President Carter during a ceremony in the White House Rose Garden.

Casamento, 59, who spends most of his time in a wheelchair, has lobbied for the medal. Several years ago he even picketed the White House for 51 days.

"This has been a long time coming but herolism such as his is never diminished by the passage of time. He has the gratitude of the nation," Carter said during the ceremony under a cloudless sky.

Casamento's efforts to obtain the medal were hindered because he has said couldn't locate witnesses to his heroic feat.

He was subsequently offered the Navy Cross, the Navy's highest award, but he rejected it, feeling he was entitled to the Medal of Honor.

In recent years, several witnesses came forward to testify to his bravery, and Col. Masso Panara, commander of the Japanese forces that attacked Casamento's platoon, even offered to come to the United States and testify for Casamento, calling him a "hero of Guadalcanal."

Ladies club helps cops bag thieves

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Move over, Miss Marple, and make room for some sharp-eyed colleagues: Antiques that members of Kansas City's oldest women's club had been collecting for 65 years began disappearing in early August. Thieves stole colorful chairs, paintings, old bookshelves and brass candlesticks—anything that looked old and valuable.

The ladies of the Athenaeum Club—founded in 1814 as an educational and philanthropic organization—became angry and decided to take action.

Club members swarmed into antique stores looking for the stolen goods. "One police supervisor said he had 'never seen so many little old ladies.'"

Then a detective asked club member Christine DeHaven—to go with him to a midtown antique store where property from an earlier burglary had been recovered.

"I looked in the window and the first thing I saw was a black enamel table," she said. "I knew it was ours."

Other stolen property was pulled from the store and interviews with the owners of the shop led investigators to stolen goods at half a dozen other stores.

By Friday all but 20 percent of the club's stolen furniture had been recovered.

N.Y. police stop bridge jump stunt

NEW YORK (UPI)—A stuntman-magician wearing a loin cloth and a strait jacket, climbed the Brooklyn Bridge with the idea of making a leap Friday, but was stopped by a police helicopter and emergency services officers, police said.

After he was forced off the span, the man, identified as Tony Vera, said he would try to jump again.

"I want some excitement in my life. I'm going to do it again. I just want to jump," he said as police led him.

It was expected charges would be filed against him.

But, even has the medal was bestowed, there was controversy over whether Carter pressured the military to honor Casamento in order to appeal to Italian-American voters.

Casamento, still using crutches because of massive wounds received on Nov. 1, 1942, moved into tears as singer Anna Moffo sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

As a 21-year-old Marine corporal from the Brooklyn, Casamento was in command of 30 men who had crossed a makeshift bridge spanning Guadalcanal's Makoau Rito and became pinned down by a Japanese fire leaving only three alive.

One of the other survivors was injured by an exploding mortar shell, and despite a leg wound, Casamento sent the injured man to the rear for reinforcements.

Hercules the bear is sighted twice

LONDON (UPI)—Hercules—the six bear with a hole in its foot and bananas who disappeared in the Scottish Highlands three weeks ago, has turned up again—still a free bear despite a $2,400 price on his head.

The 500-pound grizzly made a dash for freedom three weeks ago while filming a television commercial for Joliet paper on a remote island off northern Scotland.

A widespread search by troops, police and gamekeepers hoping to entice him into the open with his favorite foods—yogurt and bananas—failed to find him and the world gave up the famous bear for dead.

Until Friday, that is—when road worker Donald Maclean encountered the animal, on the island of North Uist, only 15 miles from the spot where he disappeared.

"It was the biggest fright of my life, when suddenly this massive furry beast reared up in front of me. Maclean said it leaped at once. It was Hercules and that everything says he is harmless. But I wasn't taking any chances.

"I ran straight to the nearest phone and called in the law."

Another islander, Alistair Robertson, spotted Hercules bounding up a hillside soon afterwards and reported he "looked in peak condition and didn't seem to have suffered from his spell in the wild."

Naturalists speculated Hercules had turned vegetarian and had probably been living on roots and plants or hibernating in one of the caves that dot the rocky coastline.

Two girls, 9, 12, nabbed for string of 17 burglaries

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (UPI)—The suspects nabbed for a string of 17 residential thefts were far from the prototype burglars—they were two girls ages 9 and 12 arrested while eating ice cream in a drug store.

An unidentified female adult, who apparently told the girls she needed money, also will be charged in the cases, police said.

The adult "didn't actually tell them to go and steal. But she did take the money. She is a relative. She escaped once from a mental institution and we believe she has some mental problems," police said.

Police were tipped off when the girls paid for their ice cream with two rare coins previously reported stolen.

Idaho priest is new bishop in Salt Lake

THE REV. WEIGAND
Stunned by appointment

HOMEDALE (UPI) — Father William K. Weigand, pastor of St. Hubert's Catholic Church, said this week he was "stunned" Pope John Paul II had named him bishop of the Salt Lake City Diocese.

Weigand, 43, a native of Bend, Ore., succeeds retiring Bishop Joseph L. Federal. Weigand, who has been the diocese's seventh bishop.

Archbishop Jean Jadot, Washington, D.C., announced the appointment Tuesday morning.

Weigand is the second priest from the Boise diocese to be chosen to become a bishop. Bishop Nicolas Walsh was chosen in 1974 to head the Yakima, Wash., Diocese.

"My appointment leaves me stunned," Weigand said. "I am aware of the heavy responsibilities of the office of bishop. I know that I can count on the full cooperation of the people of Utah."

Weigand was ordained to the priesthood in May 1963 at St. Mary's Church, St. Maries, Idaho. He has been assigned to several churches in Idaho at various times since then, and was a missionary priest for 9 1/2 years at Call, Col., and for 3 1/2 years at Bishop Sylvester Trenen, who is head of the Boise diocese and who ordained Weigand 17 years ago, said he "has honor to the priests and the people of the Catholic Church in Idaho that one of our priests has again been chosen by God and by Pope John Paul II as the successor of the Apostles for the diocese of Salt Lake City."

Weigand also has acted as chaplain at the Idaho State Penitentiary and taught religion at Boise's Bishop Kelly High School.

"Under his leadership I can see nothing but progress for the church here," said Federal, "who will step down formally when Weigand's ordination takes place, probably in November."

Major banks boost prime rate past 12%

By MARY TORIN
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Several major banks notched their prime rate up quarter-point Friday to 12 3/4 percent.

The move reflected the higher cost of other short-term money that has made borrowing from banks relatively cheap.

Citic banked the way at its usual 10 1/2 percent "prime rate" and was immediately followed to the higher level by Chase Manhattan, Manufacturers Hanover, Irving Trust and Chemical Bank of New York. First National Bank and Harris Bank of Chicago, and Security Pacific, Crocker Bank and Union Bank of Los Angeles, among the largest.

The latest boost in the rate that credit-worthy businesses pay for borrowing reflected the higher cost of the federal funds rate that banks charge each other for loans. The prime rate has risen from 10 1/2 percent in the past two months after plummeting to that level from 20 percent in April.

The Fed has been permitting the funds rate to rise because of the money supply growth in August and that has turned up the cost of bank funds, said William V. Sullivan Jr., senior vice president at Bank of New York.

But perhaps a more significant factor is the fact that business loan demand has shifted back to banks from the commercial paper market. Sullivan said, as banks make a concerted effort to "recapture" the market share of loans they had lost during the previous months.

Banks indeed jugged other rates in the sharp plunge from 20 percent, and the Fed raised the rate on commercial paper market to borrow needed short-term cash.

But now commercial paper rates, short-term loans made by big companies directly from the market, have risen 300 basis points from 8 percent in mid-June to around 11 percent.

"When all the costs of issuing commercial paper are added in it has become relatively cheaper to borrow from banks," Sullivan said.

Sullivan noted that while overall business borrowing in August was tepid, there was "a strong surge in demand from banks, reflecting in part the trend in business activity, but also the flat spread between bank rates and market rates."

The Wharton School Economic Forecasting Associates at the University of Pennsylvania-Thursday predicted the prime rate would climb above 13 percent in the next six months.

The main driving force is the Federal Reserve, which is expected to remain stalwart in the face of rebounding economic activity and large federal government deficits, the Wharton survey said.

Americans among 5 held on gold sale charges

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI) — Five businessmen, including two from the United States and one from Britain, have been ordered held without bond until next week on charges of attempting to transact illegal gold sales.

The five were arrested Wednesday in back-to-back raids on two houses in Accra. They appeared in court for a preliminary hearing Thursday and were ordered held without bond until Sept. 18.

Prosecutors told a circuit court judge one of the Americans, Ronald Ferguson, approached Ghanaian businessman Yew Danso about the possibility of buying gold for illegal export to Liberia. Police, acting on a tip, said they found Danso, Ferguson and Edward Dale Cooksey, 44, completing a business deal. They said they escorted the three men to another house where they found another Ghanaian businessman, "Konka" Fara, and British national Sadala Atrih walling with a box of local currency. Cooksey was identified only as an American from Oklahoma. Ferguson was said to be a U.S. businessman based in Liberia and Atrih was identified as a resident of Birmingham, England.

Chinese seek stronger U.S. trade ties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of high-ranking Chinese officials and key administration representatives will meet for four days next week to try to strengthen economic ties between the two countries.

U.S.-Chinese trade has doubled for each of the past two years and is expected to surpass $4 billion this year.

The 21-member Chinese delegation, headed by Vice Premier Bo Yibo, is scheduled to arrive in Washington Sunday night and attend a dinner hosted by Treasury Secretary G. William Miller at the State Department.

The talks will begin Monday and extend through Thursday. Aside from Miller, the U.S. delegation will be represented by Special Trade Representative Reubin Askew, Export-Import Bank President John Moore and several members of Congress.

Assistant Treasury Secretary C. Fred Bergsten told reporters there are a number of topics on the agenda, adding that specific agreements governing textiles, shipping, civil aviation and expanded consular activity may be signed.

The possibility of Eximbank financing for China will also be an issue, Bergsten said.

During the past two years, the United States has held a big trade advantage — exporting almost twice as much as it has imported from China — and Bergsten said the Chinese are interested in seeing that the trade gap is narrowed.

Gold rises, falls on Khomeini word

By United Press International

Gold rose sharply to $696 in early trading Friday but had plummeted more than $10 by the close in New York after Iran's religious leader made what was considered an encouraging statement on the U.S. hostage situation.

The dollar was higher in Europe but remained under heavy pressure against the Japanese yen. In Zurich gold closed at $685.50, up from $678.00 Thursday. In London the close was $697.50, up from $691.50 the day before. However, in New York gold fell to $679.50, down from $686.25 Thursday. The Comex settlement price was $682.50, down from $693.90.

Gold was trading at around $228 an ounce in the early going on nervousness over the coup in Turkey, but it fell back to $224.50. "A credible" statement that level and after Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini made his first substantive comments in months on the U.S. hostage situation. At the same time gold was at $696 an ounce, silver was trading above $22 an ounce. But it also fell back to close at $20.90 an ounce, still up on the day from Thursday's $20.65. On the Comex silver settled at $20.75, up from $20.63.

The dollar chalked up some good gains in the past two months as currencies then fell back a bit in New York. However, it continued to weaken sharply against the Japanese yen and Tokyo banking sources said the dollar was under heavy pressure from nations buying through foreign banks.

The dollar closed in Tokyo at 214.70 yen, down from 215.70 Thursday and plunged to 212.85 yen in New York. European stock prices with late New York quotes in parentheses:

Frankfurt, 1,7810 marks, up from 1,7762 Thursday (1,7794); Paris, 4,1405 French francs, up from 4,1320 (4,1350); Zurich, 1,62945 Swiss francs, up from 1,62525 (1,6255); Brussels, 22.94 Belgian francs, up from 22.79 (22.55); Amsterdam, 1,5945 guilders against 1,5928 (1,9345); Milan, 847.05 lire, up from 845.80 (849). In London, the pound touched up to $2.4145 from $2.4125 ($2.41).

Wet Soviet harvest lowers crop quality

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An estimate of the Russian grain crop remained the same this month as last, but American analysts say the crop is in worse condition than last month.

The Agriculture Department Thursday said its estimate of a 210 million-ton Russian crop, larger than last year's crop of 175.5 million tons, but less than the record of 237.2 million tons of two years ago.

Recent rainfall hampering harvest "will likely result in some reduction in the quality of the 1980 Soviet grain crop," the department said.

At a news conference, Howard Hight, the Agriculture Department's chief economist, said "American analysts think the Russians will be able to grow and import enough grain to maintain livestock herds or even to rebuild them despite the embargo of American grain."

But the reduced quality of the crop cuts into "their margin for error," he said. The Soviet Union will "enter 1981 with grain reserves at a very low level," he added.

The Kremlin is buying heavily in American markets, the department announced the fourth major sale of American grain to Russia this week. It will buy 300,000 tons of grain, 260,000 tons of corn and 100,000 tons of wheat. Earlier this week, the department announced two sales for 300,000 tons and one for 500,000 tons.

The Soviet Union's current purchases now total 4.02 million tons, for shipment beginning Oct. 1. Despite the embargo of grain in retaliation for the Russian invasion of Afghanistan, President Carter "is honoring minimum terms of the U.S.-Russian grain agreement, which permits sale of 8 million tons of American grain."

Saudis still undecided on production cutback

By United Press International

Saudi Arabia, America's largest foreign oil supplier, has not yet decided whether to curtail oil production from the current level of 5.5 million barrels a day in the last quarter of 1980, the governor of the kingdom's oil commission told Platt's Oilgram News.

In a report from Munich, Platt's Friday edition quoted Petroleum Governor Abdul-Hadi Taher as saying that Saudi oil production cutback would depend on next week's OPEC meeting. Platt's Oilgram is a New York-based oil journal.

Taher, who is in Munich for the World Energy Congress, told reporters that consumers should not expect Saudi Arabia to lower its output by more than 1 million barrels a day if the kingdom should trim its production.

Asked if a Saudi production cut would be logical in light of the current world oil glut, Taher said: "It isn't a question of logic or even economics, but of what happens in OPEC," he reported.

Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer and most influential moderate, has been pressuring the cartel to return to a unified oil-price by vetoing a price reduction on rates. Its crude prices from the OPEC low of $23 a barrel.

Saudi Arabia rejected an OPEC pact that set a floor price of $32 a barrel and a ceiling of $37 a barrel, effective July 1.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is scheduled to open a new meeting in Vienna Sept. 15, with the Saudis expected to push for a plan that would increase the cartel's prices every three months.

There is widespread speculation that the Saudis will agree to raise their prices by $4 to the new OPEC floor of $32 a barrel in exchange for acceptance of the quarterly pricing plan. Such a move would cost the U.S. consumer less than a penny more a gallon for gasoline and heating oil.

Japanese exports up 22%

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's exports to the United States rose 22.1 percent in August from the 1979 period, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry said Friday.

Imports amounted to $12.1 billion, a 4.9 percent increase from 1979. The ministry said the small increase in imports was due mainly to reductions in raw material imports and the stabilization of oil prices.

August's exports to the United States were $15.5 billion, a 22.1 percent increase from the 1979 period and exports for Latin America were up 51.7 percent. Exports destined for communist bloc countries rose 27.1 percent, and those to the United States were up 8.9 percent.

U.S. automobile exports increased 15.5 percent from last year.

Attache's assassins plan more

NEW YORK (UPI) — The assassination of an attache to the Cuban mission to the United Nations signals a dangerous change in tactics on the part of the anti-Castro terrorist group Omega 7, the FBI said Friday.

"This was a serious departure and we're concerned that the Omega 7 activities may accelerate," said Kenneth Walton, regional FBI deputy assistant director. "An assassination of a diplomat is considerably more important than setting off some pipe bombs."

Walton said the slaying of the attache, Felix Garcia-Rodriguez, and that of Cuban leader Fulberto Jose Negrin in Union City, N.J., last November differed sharply from Omega 7's earlier terrorist efforts, which primarily involved the bombing of embassies.

"We had indications some months ago that the bombings may stop and other activities may accelerate," he said.

The FBI and New York City police announced a series of telephone hotline numbers in hopes of getting information from the public on the shooting of Garcia-Rodriguez.

Police officers conceded they had difficulty with Omega 7 because it is a small group of dedicated people who are very difficult to deal with. Victims frequently are very uncooperative.

On Wednesday, a chauffeur at the Cuban Mission was shot once in the head in his car in Queensborough about 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

Callers to news organizations identified themselves as representatives of Omega 7 and claimed responsibility for the shooting.

One caller said the group had vowed that Raul Roa, Cuba's ambassador to the United Nations, would be the next target of the group and promised an attempt before 6 p.m. Friday. Police and FBI agents said they were discussing improved security for Roa but that no decisions had been made.

The police donned the security detail assigned to the Cuban Mission in midtown Manhattan to six officers and Walton said 22 FBI agents had been assigned full time to the case.

Shooting "Anti-Castro" terrorists, end the blockade, about 250 people demonstrated across from the U.N. building over the Cuban attache's slaying.

The protesters, members of the Committee to End the U.S. Blockade Against Cuba, said they were "outraged" by the act.

"If they know the names and the faces of the assassins, why don't they just stop it?" said Sandy Pollock, one of the organizers of the protest.

Inside the U.N., Cuba's ambassador Raul Roa-Kouri said Omega 7 agents "acted with the cowardice typical of these despicable gangsters."

"They have widely murdered a diplomat, in broad daylight, barely 15 minutes away from the United Nations," he said.

Cuba denounced the killing Friday and called on the United States to protect its diplomats, the Cuban news agency Prensa Latina reported.

In Moscow, the official Tass news agency charged that the murder occurred with "the full connivance" of U.S. authorities.

At the United Nations, Secretary-General Kurt Waldheer expressed "deep shock" at the killing and U.S. Ambassador Donald McHenry promised Roa there would be a further tightening of security for Cuban diplomats.

Passengers overpower hijacker

MIAMI (UPI) — A young, newly arrived Cuban refugee attempted to hijack an Eastern Airlines jet to Cuba Friday by using two candles made to look like dynamite.

But two passengers and a flight attendant overpowered him and thwarted the attempt.

Guillermo Lima, 24, was taken into custody by FBI agents and charged with air piracy when the Eastern Boeing 727 landed in Miami at 2:19 p.m. None of the 79 passengers and six crewmembers aboard the plane were injured.

Arthur Nehrbaiss, special agent in charge of the Miami FBI office, said Lima, who arrived in the U.S. May 6 via the Mariel seailit, used two candles "colored to look like dynamite" to attempt to divert Eastern Flight 5, on a Newark, N.J., to Miami run, to Cuba. He held the candles in one hand and in the other a cigarette lighter.

He went to the lavatory and was standing opposite the lavatory door when he started yelling "Cuba, Cuba. Back, back," Nehrbaiss said.

A stewardess, holding a telephone receiver in her hand, told Lima he could talk to the captain.

"When she saw that he was distracted, looking at two male passengers, she locked his wrist and ran down with the phone, then physically pushed him back into the lavatory and the two men piled on him," Nehrbaiss said. "It was over in two or three minutes."

FAA spokesmen said there were no abnormalities around the aircraft, but that "the behavioral profile was in effect at the Newark airport." Last Monday, a diabetic Cuban refugee who said he wanted to die in his own country diverted another Eastern flight, en route from New York to Florida, to Havana.

Iran rushes its army to growing border war

By United Press International

Iran rushed more troops to its battle-torn border with Iraq Friday and called upon all its citizens to donate medical and other supplies to the army, which reportedly suffered heavy losses in the latest frontier fighting.

Iran radio reports, monitored in Kuwait, said army reinforcements were being sent to the southwestern frontier with Iraq, which claimed Thursday to have captured a 50-square-mile slice of territory whose ownership the two countries have disputed for years.

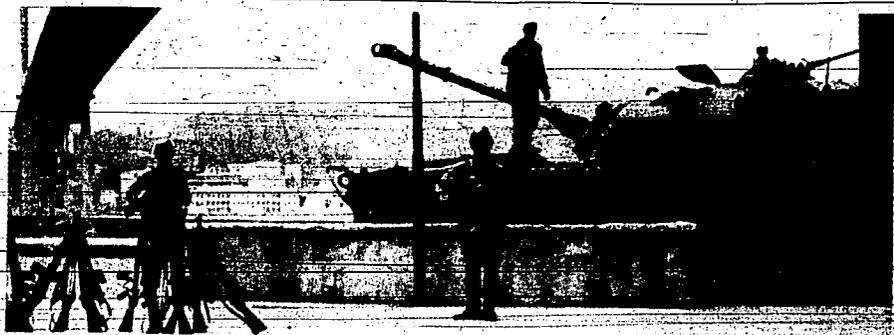

There was no independent confirmation of the scope or outcome of the recent battles.

But the radio appeals for help from the populace — as well as a warning from the Iranian commander of the border region that troops who surrender or desert will be "severely punished" — appeared to indicate that Iran's badly organized and poorly disciplined armed forces had taken the worst of it.

Reports of the fighting along the Iraq border were hard to verify. Each side claimed to have inflicted scores of casualties on the other. Iraq said it shot down two U.S. — made Iranian F4 Phantoms in fighting Thursday, and claimed to have "liberated" all Iraqi territories which Iran refused to hand over in implementation of international agreements — a reference to the 1975 Algiers Agreement in which the Shah's regime ceded the disputed Shat Al Arab Estuary to Iraq.

The instructions broadcast to Iraqis called on them to donate medicine, reportedly in short supply, and gunny sacks for sandbags.

Citizens of Turkey woke to the sight of tanks and troops in the street

Army hopes to end Turkish unrest

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — The Turkish armed forces staged a bloodless coup Friday, detaining the civilian leadership, in a bid to arrest an Islamic revival and curb the terrorism that had threatened to bring civil war to one of NATO's most important members.

Turkey's generals, led by Chief of Staff Kenan Evren, moved swiftly in the night. When Turkey awoke, it was to martial law and sight of tanks in the streets and helicopters in the skies.

Gen. Evren, 62, told his 43 million countrymen the army stepped in because the politicians had failed to cure the economy or stamp out the left-versus-right terrorism that has claimed more than 5,000 victims during the past two years.

He pledged the country would be returned to civilian rule as soon as the "peace and order of the state are restored." In the meantime, he said, Turkey would honor all of its commitments to NATO, the Western alliance of which Turkey, by virtue of its strategic position separating the Middle East from the Soviet Union, is a key member.

Evren, named president of the "National Security Council," said the country's civilian leadership — as well as Premier Suleiman Demirel, opposition leader Bulent Ecevit, and Necmettin Erbakan, head of the Muslim fundamentalist National Salvation Party — were in custody "to protect their lives."

"When the situation permits," he said, "the leaders of the parties will be freed."

Evren, who hinted at a possible military move last January when he warned the nation's feuding politicians to put the nation's problems ahead of their bickering,

Islamic revival keyed coup

By United Press International

In addition to ending a murderous wave of left- and right-wing terrorism, a key goal of Turkey's military coup Friday was to halt the growing influence of the Islamic fundamentalists led by Ayatollah Khomeini.

The Islamic revival movement, which has gained a following of about 10 million in Turkey, is seen as a major threat to the secular republic.

Kemal, an Ataturk, a military genius who was determined to end the power of the country's religious leaders.

Evren, who had been a member of the parliament, said that was challenged by the country's "Modern fundamentalist" movement.

The Islamic revival movement, which has gained a following of about 10 million in Turkey, is seen as a major threat to the secular republic.

believe Evren's promise to restore civilian rule, following the pattern of two previous coups since 1960.

In May of that year, the military overthrew Prime Minister Adnan Menderes to impose "corrective measures" on the country. Menderes and two aides were executed before the military went back to the barracks.

In 1971, the military forced Demirel to resign because of near-anarchy and economic problems. New elections were held within three months.

Neighboring Greece, Turkey's long-time rival, reacted by putting troops along its northern border on alert, a Greek army official said. But the alert appeared to be precautionary and Athens did not comment on the coup.

It was the third such military coup in 20 years and in Washington, where the news first broke, the State Department said was not a surprise. Officials said they expected a military move in view of Turkey's worsening economic and political problems but denied allegations that President Carter or anyone else had been tipped in advance.

Other NATO members seemed to take a similarly bleak view of the coup, which promised a crackdown on the destabilizing violence that has "threatened Turkey's role in the Western alliance."

With tanks in key intersections, troops on patrol and helicopters buzzing overhead, the streets of Ankara, Istanbul and other cities of the nation's 67 provinces were reported calm under martial law.

The curfew was temporarily lifted in Ankara in mid-afternoon.

Korean defendants recant

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Opposition leader Kim Dae-jung's 23 codefendants in the sedition trial where he faces the death penalty proclaimed their innocence Friday, saying they were tortured into making confessions.

Kim is to make his final statement to the military court Saturday.

Kim, 54, could be sentenced to death if convicted of violating national security and anti-communist laws. The prosecution has already demanded the death penalty, saying Kim "should be purged from this land for good."

Kim's codefendants told the court any statements they had made against the opposition leader, who was a leading presidential candidate until his arrest, were beaten out of them, and all recanted.

"I felt fear when the prosecutor demanded death for Kim Dae-jung because of my first false witness," Kim Chong-wan said. "In interrogation I was beaten without reason and the lawyers forced me to confess that I was trying to incite mass uprisings at the request of Kim Dae-jung."

"I simply wrote what they dictated."

All contended they merely wanted democracy for South Korea and were opposed to violence.

In what courtroom witnesses called an eloquent statement, 27-year-old Korea University student Suk Hoon said 1,000 people were killed in the nine-day uprising in the southern city of Kwangju after the May 17 imposition of nationwide martial law.

Poles say party-harassing unions

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — The new Polish government stepped up its criticism of dissidents Friday, and sources said more strikes have broken out at factories where workers charged they were being harassed for joining the new free trade unions.

At the same time, officials said Communist Party boss Stanislaw Kanon will meet soon with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev — another sign that Moscow has given its stamp of approval to the new Polish regime.

Word of the impending summit came a day after Moscow announced it was stepping up economic aid to Poland to help it pay for the crippling series of summer strikes and the unprecedented loss of jobs by the workers won to end them — including the right to form independent labor unions and to strike in the future.

Kanona has pledged to honor the agreement reached with the workers but he has also forcefully warned that their movement would not be allowed to spill over into politics or be influenced by Polish dissidents, whom he has called "anti-socialist enemies of the state."

In six sources said strikes continued in a number of towns and cities and they reported that workers at a ball bearing plant in Kielec, south of Warsaw, walked out over management threats against joining free trade unions.

The sources said management posted a notice on the plant bulletin board saying those workers who joined the new free trade unions would lose various allowances such as loans, partly financed vacations and extra financial aid.

Evren also made clear who his enemies were. He chided the left as those "who sing the International instead of the national anthem," and also the right — those who he said opposed the secular republic founded by Mustafa Kemal Ataturk in 1923.

This was an obvious reference to Erbakan, whose Moslem fundamentalist movement caused the military to become increasingly alarmed by his calls for an Islamic republic.

Everheart goes hunting; could delay recall

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

JEROME — Backers of a drive to recall Mayor Marshall Everheart filed petitions Friday which exactly the 263 valid signatures required to force an election.

Everheart was out of town, however, and his absence could delay scheduling of an election. The mayor's wife said he left Friday for an elk hunting trip near Stanley and may not return until Sept. 23.

Recall backers promised to gather more signatures in the interim.

Under Idaho code, a public official must be notified when a recall petition is filed. The official then has five days to resign from office. If he does not resign, a special election must be scheduled between 30 and 40 days later.

City Attorney Robert Williams said Friday he is checking another provision of the law that states elections shall not be held within 90 days of a general election.

The law seems to apply only to recall involving state officials, Williams said, since the city uses different polling places and precinct boundaries than those which apply to general elections.

Williams said he is asking for a written attorney general's opinion on the question.

Another provision of state law gives recall backers who fail to collect the required number of signatures up to 60 days to "prove up" their total by registering voters and collecting additional signatures. If notice to the mayor must be delayed.

Bartholomew said Friday she had no trouble getting 300 signatures on the petitions, although some signers apparently were unaware their city voter registration has lapsed.

She urged all city residents to register so "we can see the interests of the majority of Jerome's residents." The latter is a phrase that appears on petitions to recall her father and two other Jerome councilmen.

She accused former policeman Harvey Hines, who is circulating the petitions aimed at councilmen, of spying on her and others as they gathered at the Glen Cappe residence Thursday night to tally the petitions.

Councilmen Cappe, Ralph Peters and Henry Pharris are the subject of Hine's phreak drive. The three councilmen and Mayor Everheart have been at odds over the performance of City Police Chief James McGowan.

Responding to charges the three councilmen left the city defenseless by accepting the resignations of veteran officers, Bartholomew said:

"The truth is that officers on duty willingly accepted extra shifts to cover the city after three veterans quit in protest and went home. They received salaries authorized by the mayor while they valiantly honored their oath of office to protect the city while sitting at home."

"I feel the people of the city of Jerome are not ignorant and do have a feeling for what is right and wrong," she added.

Hines said late Friday that he expects to file petitions to recall the three councilmen sometime early next week, though he had no estimate on the number of signatures collected on each.

He would urge people as Kathy Bartholomew did to get out and register and vote their consciences," he said.

He reiterated his earlier statements that the recall process is not a good forum for effecting change in city government, adding that his three petitions are "merely an attempt to light fire with fire."

Board tables proposal

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Board has shelved a proposal for a land use subcommittee.

If the plan had been adopted, land use and land division permits would have been voted on by the proposed three- or five-member committee rather than by the entire board.

According to Zoning Administrator Ed Woods, who proposed the land use committee, the change would have reduced county residents' waiting time in the permit process while also freeing the planning and zoning board to discuss topics other than public hearings on permit applications.

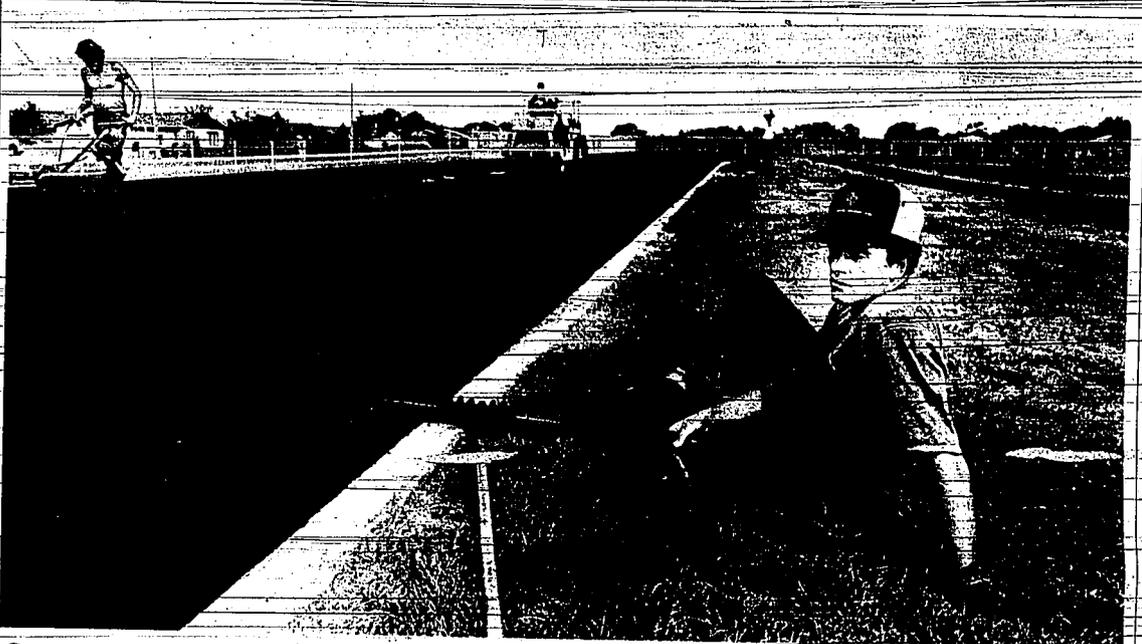

However, board members agreed late Thursday night that the proposal left too much room for laxity and error in handling land division requests.

"I admit the proposal would save time, but I question whether or not the language is precise enough so the committee could operate in all the various situations we have to deal with," said board member Mary Butler of Buhl.

Board members also agreed that dropping public hearings now required in all special use permits would create a secretive atmosphere for zoning decisions since public notice of pending action would never be required.

"It's not that action would be secret, but not advertised," Woods said. "So it could appear that the zoning board was doing things without the public's consideration."

Woods said another attempt at forming a land use committee would be tried.

Supervisor — Marty Gillette of Burley, a supervisor for Gordon Paving of Twin Falls, took a short rest after helping lay 4,400 square yards of rubberized asphalt Friday at Robert Stuart Junior High School in Twin Falls. The company began laying the track three weeks ago and finished Friday with the asphalt that is composed of 14 percent recycled tires for a soft surface.

Aeronautics board finalizes Hughes Airwest acquisition

WASHINGTON — The Civil Aeronautics Board Friday gave final approval to the acquisition of Hughes Airwest by Republic Airlines.

The action clears the way for Republic, a Minneapolis-based airline, to begin consolidation, beginning Oct. 1, as planned.

Republic executives last month met with the local Hughes Airwest employees, indicating they expected approval from the federal agency.

Hughes Airwest is the only major carrier serving Twin Falls with four flights daily with stops in Salt Lake City, Boise, Phoenix and Seattle.

Republic officials said they do not plan immediate route and flight scheduling changes. The new airline's entire schedule will undergo a six-month review, officials said.

The CAB had given a tentative go-ahead May 16, holding the merger of the two carriers would not lessen competition in any market. Republic is the nation's 12th-largest U.S. airline in terms of revenue passenger miles, while Airwest is 14th.

The consolidation makes Republic a national airline, serving nearly 200 cities.

Under the agreement, Republic will purchase Hughes Airwest for $45 million.

Republic is the result of a 1979 merger between North Central Airlines and Southern Airways. It has routes from Puerto Rico and Florida through Canada, and between Boston and San Diego. It had revenues of $609.2 million in 1979.

Airwest, based in San Francisco, primarily serves California airports plus several other Western U.S. cities. The 6-year-old airline had revenues of $312.6 million in 1979.

The two systems meet in only six cities: Milwaukee, Denver, Las Vegas, San Diego, Tucson and Houston.

The merger will allow the carriers to compete more effectively in many markets now dominated by trunk carriers, the board concluded.

Burley men appeal — Two Burley men have appealed their first-degree murder convictions to the Idaho Supreme Court.

Danny Jordan, 23, and David Hutcherson, 24, in June pleaded guilty in 6th District Court to the 1979 murders of two Pocatello men. The convicts were sentenced to life terms in the Idaho State Penitentiary.

The men's appeal said they were represented inadequately when they faced the murder charges.

The bodies of Paul Kennedy and Steve Taylor, both Pocatello, were dumped in the Snake River several weeks after they disappeared March 29, 1979. Police accused the Burley men of hiding the victims separately, shooting them and throwing their bodies into the river.

Keith Tolzin chosen — School superintendents this week chose Keith Tolzin, director of the Gooding State School for the Deaf and Blind at Gooding, as secretary-treasurer of their regional association.

He replaces Bill Peckham, former Cassia County School District superintendent, who resigned last month to accept a position in Oregon.

Tolzin was elected at the first meeting of the year of District 4 of the Idaho Association of School Superintendents in Jerome Wednesday.

Dick Jones, regional president and Blaine County superintendent, said the superintendents from south central Idaho were briefed by State Superintendent for Public Instruction Jerry Evans on new elementary school standards and the recent state funding cutback.

McDonald's awarded — William Kyle, owner of the Twin Falls McDonald's, recently received an "Outstanding Store Award" from the McDonald's Corp.

This is the second year in a row Kyle has received the award. The Twin Falls McDonald's is the only McDonald's in Idaho to have ever won the award, which is given to restaurants with consistent records of above average quality, service and cleanliness, Kyle said.

In addition, Kyle received a "Decor Award" for the McDonald's in Burley. The Burley restaurant was judged the best looking McDonald's of all the new McDonald's outlets opened during 1979.

Census survey to begin — Census Bureau representatives will survey this area Monday through Friday to determine the extent people have been immunized against selected diseases.

The survey is conducted throughout the U.S. every year to provide information on immunization against measles, influenza, polio, diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, rubella and mumps, needed for administration of disease prevention programs, according to John E. Theradion, bureau regional director, Seattle.

Questions on immunization will be asked in addition to the usual questions asked in a monthly survey of employment conducted nationwide by the bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Personal information supplied in the survey is kept confidential by law and results are used only to compile statistical totals.

Rangeland chief named — WASHINGTON — A Colorado native has been named national chief of rangeland management by Bureau of Land Management Director Frank Griggs.

Paul D. Leonard, formerly chief of the bureau's Division of Resources in Wyoming, fills the position vacated when Maxwell R. Leuzance was appointed Wyoming state director of the BLM.

Leonard, a native of Cortez, Colo., began his career in 1964 as a range conservationist in Farmington, N.M. He served several other field positions before he was brought to Washington as a budget analyst in 1970.

The new chief is a graduate of the University of Arizona with a master's degree in range management from Utah State University. The appointment is effective immediately.

Seminar on computers — BIRLEY — The University of Idaho Cooperative Extension Service will hold a seminar in computer technology for small irrigation districts this week in Burley.

The seminar will be held Wednesday at the Ponderosa Inn. It begins at 9 a.m. There will be a small charge to cover the cost of lunch and a coffee break.

Dorell Larsen, extension irrigation specialist, said many irrigation districts use outdated bookkeeping equipment. As a result, a number of computer salesmen have been contacting irrigation districts, pushing their particular brand.

"He said, 'Computers have tremendous potential for helping a district manage water, but the machine must be matched to the needs of the district,' Larsen said.

Guadalupe Center observes Mexico's Independence Day

TWIN FALLS — A fiesta commemorating Mexico's Independence Day will be held Saturday, Sept. 20, at the Guadalupe Center, 630 Falls Ave.

A holiday often celebrated by other Hispanic communities in this country, this is the first time it will have an organized celebration in Twin Falls, according to Santa Carmen Morales, president of the Catholic Church's Guadalupe Society.

Mexican Independence Day is actually Sept. 16, but the feast will be held on Saturday. The holiday commemorates the day in 1810 that Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla, a priest-rallied Indians and mestizos in the town of Dolores to fight for independence from Spain.

Every year, late in the day of Sept. 15, Mexico's president rings a bell and repeats the "Grito de Dolores" or Cry of Dolores.

Hidalgo was captured and executed in 1811, but his struggles were continued by other leaders. Mexico became independent in 1821.

In Twin Falls, Mexico's Independence Day will be celebrated with traditional Mexican food games for children and adults and music by La Familia Mexicana.

Flood sales will begin at 2 p.m. and activities will last until 10 p.m. There is no admission charge.

Four-car crash injures three persons slightly

TWIN FALLS — Three Twin Falls youths were slightly injured in a four-car collision Thursday, Twin Falls Police said.

All of the injured victims were treated and released at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Police said the accident occurred at 10:08 p.m. on Filer Avenue West when a westbound car, driven by Delino Martinez, 16, struck the rear end of a westbound pickup truck driven by Jerry Hoover, 24, of Twin Falls.

Police said the Martinez car was traveling at an estimated speed of 70 to 90 mph and the pickup truck was traveling the posted speed of 25 mph at the time of impact.

The force of the collision knocked the pickup truck a distance of 154 feet and into a car parked on the north side of Filer Avenue West, police said.

The pickup truck, a 1978 Chevrolet, was knocked 26 feet into the rear end of a second parked car, police added.

Police said Martinez, a passenger in the Martinez car, Glenn Robbette, 16, was not injured in the pickup truck. Jeremiah Hoover, 3, was taken by ambulance to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Jerry Hoover and a passenger in the Martinez car, Glenn Robbette, 16, were not injured, police said.

Police cited Martinez for reckless driving and driving while intoxicated.

Corrections department wants $2.4 million

BOISE (UPI) — Preliminary figures show the state Corrections Department will request funds for 85 new employees to upgrade security at the Idaho State Penitentiary next year.

The governor's prison review committee was told at its meeting Friday that initial recommendations by the department to the governor's staff listed requests for $2.4 million in new funds.

— Boost up the security staff by 26 positions, $459,100.

— Establish another guard tower with nine new guards, $257,300.

— Hire six new administrative staff employees and a chief of security, $146,800.

— Hire eight inmate work crew supervisors, $142,700.

— Create a five-man special "shake-down" crew for the prison, $82,000.

— Improve miscellaneous structural security features, $80,000.

— Employ 30 more people to staff additional community work-release centers around the state, $1.2 million.

The guard tower and boosted security staff proposals already had been recommended by the governor's review committee.

Committee co-Chairman Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Leviston, said the department's request to plan for the full fiscal year 1982 budget request as a result of the havoc caused by the July 23-24 prison riot.

For the current yearly budget (fiscal year 1981), the riot cost the state an estimated $1.3 million in overtime for prison staff, out-of-state housing for scores of inmates, transportation for convicts and assistance enlisted during the riot from other state agencies.

About $2.3 million damage to the prison will be paid for by insurance. The department has lost an additional $308,000 recently under the state's emergency 3.85 percent budget reduction. This is added to prevent a general account deficit.

Prior to the holdback, the department's current budget was slightly more than $2 million.

Also Friday, Deputy Attorney General Roy Elgren suggested that the committee recommend to the governor the adoption of a policy the department would follow during future riots to keep legal requirements from being violated.

Elgren submitted a list of rules drawn up by New Mexico officials following the bloody Santa Fe riot last year. He said New Mexico authorities encountered problems in preserving evidence and protecting official files from destruction during the uprising.

The rules should be subjected to legislative review, Elgren said.

In addition, a state-panels-and-parole-commissioner told the committee it is "pitiful" that prisoners receive only $15 each from the state when they are freed from prison.

"I think it's pitiful they get that little when they're released," Commissioner James Reid said in answer to a question by Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer, co-chairman of the committee.

Knigge had asked Reid to comment on one convict's complaint that "with 15 bucks you can't even buy a hot dog."

No one at the meeting knew how old the $15 payment law was, but everyone agreed it had not been adjusted upward for decades to account for inflation.

Reid said freed convicts without money sometimes have to resort to robbery and other crimes to survive until they get a job.

He said, however, that many inmates don't capitalize on money-making opportunities in prison. "I discount what they say a little bit with this."

"But we do need to help them live in society or we're increasing the chance he will be back in the institution."

The committee grilled the parole officials on their procedures as another step in formulation of recommendations to submit to Gov. John Evans, who then will propose changes in prison policy and procedure to the 1981 Idaho Legislature.

Elders say Symms is misleading

BOISE (UPI) — Elderly supporters of Democratic Sen. Frank Church fired a volley today in the escalating war for the votes of senior citizens, accusing Rep. Steve Symms of misleading Idaho's old people.

"The people of Idaho deserve to be presented with facts and issues in this war," said Ruth Paul, a leader of the Boise-based Senior Citizens for Church group.

Ms. Paul and other group members called for a state conference primarily to blast the National Alliance of Senior Citizens, a Washington-based lobbying organization which has endorsed Symms.

While lashing out at the alliance, the speakers accused Symms, a Republican, of twisting facts to gain votes from the state's senior citizens.

Ms. Paul said she thinks Symms cooked up a deal with Curt Glinkscale, the director of the alliance, to endorse Symms.

Critics of the alliance, which claims 30,000 members in the nation, say it is a front group to improve the image of conservative and impulsive candidates who don't really care about elderly people.

"It's almost a cover-up," said Ms. Paul, who said Symms has opposed senior citizens' legislation consistently during his eight years in Congress.

She said Symms, who advertised his endorsement from the alliance across the front page of his most recent congressional filer, "was trying to mislead" senior citizens about his voting record.

"Symms is concerned with older people who have money and not the poor people who are really struggling," she said. "He's not aware how important nutritious meals are to old, alone people who can't cook for themselves."

"He thinks only about senior citizens who have enough money for investment."

Glinkscale, who flew to Idaho earlier in the week to lambast the senior citizens' groups supporting Church and accuse the state Office on Aging of illegally helping Church, got most of the wrath from Ms. Paul and her colleagues.

"It is no secret that Glinkscale is associated with the Virginia-based National Conservative Political Action Committee," she told reporters.

"The same organization that funds the Anyone But Church committee."

She said she was troubled that Glinkscale, who enlisted the help of Dale Johnson, a lobbyist, Jake Hansen and Don Todd on his Idaho visit, had no local staff aides to employ.

Under same circumstances Caldero would do it again

MOSCOW (UPI) — Former state undercover narcotics agent Michael Caldero said Friday he would do it again if the circumstances as led to the 1972 shooting of Johnson during a drug arrest.

Caldero fired three shots through the windshield of Johnson's car as the vehicle approached him, wounding Johnson, who later pleaded guilty to being an accessory to drug possession.

Testifying in the fourth day of his libel trial against Lewiston Morning Tribune newsman Jay Shelley and the newspaper, Caldero said there was "no doubt" his life was in jeopardy the night he shot Johnson.

He had testified he thought Johnson was trying to run him down in the parking lot at Coeur d'Alene Park.

Under cross-examination, Caldero was asked by attorney Allen Derr of Boise, "Would you shoot Johnson again?"

"Under the existing circumstances and knowing what I know now, yes, sir," replied Caldero.

But later in the questioning by his attorney, Caldero contradicted himself, saying he doubted that he could do the shooting again.

He said he was not certain that he could draw his weapon because of the way he'd been portrayed in Shelley's story.

Caldero is suing Shelley and the Tribune for $100,000 in damages. The former agent contends he was libeled by a Shelley story which was critical of Caldero's conduct during the shooting incident.

Also during cross examination, Caldero admitted to the use of marijuana "on rare occasions."

But the defense called to the attention of the 2nd District Court jury the fact that Caldero had admitted in a June 1974 deposition that he used drugs daily for periods up to a month during times of intensive investigation.

In answers to questions from his own attorney, Caldero said he generally "simulated" smoking marijuana.

Heirs of disaster victims file lawsuit

WALLACE (UPI) — Fourteen heirs of miners killed in the 1972 Sunshine mine disaster have filed a class action suit in 1st District Court against the United Steelworkers of America.

Attorney Lloyd Webb, Twin Falls, said Friday the complaint would be amended later to include 38 other heirs of 38 men who died in the disaster.

The suit alleges the union misrepresented its concern for the safety of its rank-and-file members and failed to develop adequate protection for them.

The heirs also claimed the union failed to require:

- Evacuation of the mine at the first indication of smoke.
- Fire drills.
- Protective equipment for the miners.
- Adequately inspect against gas.
- Adequately inspect against mine timbers (both old and new cause of the disastrous fire).
- An adequate emergency exit route from the mine.

Webb said his firm took over representation of four groups of heirs in suits against the union five years ago because the heirs had been represented originally by persons with close union ties.

The suits have been tied up in the courts for the last five years because of controversy about whether the heirs could sue in a class action. But a U.S. Supreme Court ruling this spring made this possible, Webb said.

A hearing on whether the heirs are entitled to sue the union tentatively has been set for Oct. 14.

Twin Falls schools switch bid awards

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls School Board this week split over whether to re-award bids for cafeteria furniture at an additional cost of $3,400.

The vote was 3-2 in favor of re-awarding bids to the lowest bidder.

After the original bids were approved, the district discovered they failed to meet specifications for durability and color.

Superintendent James Sawin told the board.

Sawin said the total cost of $29,168 for 50 cafeteria tables and matching chairs for Twin Falls High School was still under the amount budgeted for the purchase.

Richard Ryall and Robert Knighton voted against re-awarding the bid; Gene Champlin and John McNeen voted in favor.

Board Chairman Byron Snyder got the tie.

American Paper will supply the tables, and Caxton Printers the chairs. The two companies also won the original bid-but-the-items-were-reversed.

About the original bids, high school Principal Frank Charlton said the walnut-topped tables lacked a protective finish and the chairs' legs and the chairs' wood "not be supplied in the color specified — chocolate brown."

Ryall stressed the bids should not be re-awarded "for considerations of color, finish and durability but color was the prime consideration but color was also a factor."

Charlton said he believed the present cafeteria furniture had been purchased at the opening of the high school in 1964.

The added cost was $1,400 for the chairs and $2,000 for the tables.

Mental defect is suspect's defense in shooting

GOODING — A defense of mental defect has been used for a Nebraska man charged with an Aug. 20 shooting near Bliss.

Wayne W. Hatch, 49, of Gordon, Neb., is being held in Gooding County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. He pleaded not guilty this week to allegedly shooting Cecil Nelson, 43, of Little Rock, Ark., five times while riding in a van along Interstate Highway 84 two miles east of Bliss.

Nelson was released from St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome Sept. 5. Fifth District Court Judge Douglas K. Kramer is expected to appoint a psychiatrist to examine Hatch within two weeks. This mental examination may take up to 60 days, according to a court official.

Fire day set

JEROME — A district fire day sponsored by the Lincoln County Extension Service will be held at the Jerome County Fairgrounds Saturday.

The use of fire extinguishers will be explained and demonstrated. Participants will get a chance to try using a fire extinguisher themselves. The event begins at 2 p.m.

Tina Parks, who organized the field day, said many people don't know how to use fire extinguishers as well as they think they do. This will give them a chance to find out how one works before they need to use it in an emergency.

Man released

TWIN FALLS — A Jerome man was released Thursday on $2,500 bond after he was arrested for allegedly obtaining a controlled substance by deception.

Twin Falls Police Wednesday arrested C. Timothy Thorsen, 29, on 16 counts of illegally obtaining a cough syrup containing codeine, a felony. Under Idaho law, the cough syrup cannot legally be purchased more than once in a 24-hour period.

Idaho law classifies codeine as a barbiturate.

QUESTION...

I am trying to understand how my terminal illness is affecting my family. My father feels so that I must make his last few weeks easier. Can you help me in any way?

ANSWER...

Psychiatrist Dr. Elizabeth Kubler-Ross author of "On Death and Dying" reports in the clinic "The Patient's Death and the Family" that there are five successive stages of patient grief.

1. Denial: No, not me, the patient rejects the fact that he has a fatal illness.

2. Anger: "Why me?" the patient becomes hard to handle; is overly critical and uncooperative.

3. Bargaining: "Yes me, but..." the patient may abruptly turn cooperative hoping this will change things.

4. Depression: "No communication," the patient psychologically separates himself from his family, preparing for the loss of everything and everybody he loves.

5. Acceptance: "My time is very close now and it's all right. This is not a happy stage, but it is the best. It is not death that is frightening but the process of dying."

86-yard kickoff return topples Twin Falls

POCATELLO — Ted Malson's 86-yard kickoff return in the fourth quarter broke open a grinding defensive duel and carried Highland past Twin Falls 14-6 Friday night.

It ended a long night in the Mindkore for Magic Valley teams as Pocatello whipped Malson 30-0 in the first game of the season.

Malson broke the big one just seconds after senior Greg Scherer kicked some life into the Bruins with a 52-yard scamper. Twin Falls extra-point kick was low to leave the Bruins behind by a point. But if there were hope for the visitors to gain momentum from Scherer's big run, it evaporated in Malson's romp.

He gathered the ball in at his own 14 and ran into little opposition until the 40. But he extricated himself from that knot and outsped Twin Falls' frantic chasers.

Penalties kept Twin Falls from sustaining anything in the first half when the Bruins seemed to have the upper hand. Highland posed one serious threat during that span.

But when the second half opened, Highland's offense took control with an 80-yard scoring march and except for Scherer's brief moment of glory, the Rams controlled the second half.

Twin Falls opened the game with a good series into Highland territory before penalties stopped that. Seconds later a fumbled recovery at the 36 gave the Bruins another big chance. But Highland held.

In the second period, Gary Wilson intercepted a Bruin pass and returned it to the Twin Falls 29. Gary Byington got a first down at the 13 and Highland drove to the four. But at that point, Highland fumbled and Jose Salinas recovered at the three.

Highland stayed basically on the ground in gaining a first down at the Bruin eight to open the second half. Twin Falls held for three downs before John Cooper threw to Bill Alston at the three. On second effort the receiver got into the end zone although Twin Falls vehemently protested Alston had been pushed out of bounds at the two. Alston then converted.

Seconds later Twin Falls' punter fumbled the center snap and Highland took over at the Bruin 37. After one first down, linebacker Troy Jacobson hit Highland for two losses to stop the drive.

At that point, Highland punted to the Bruins to the eight and Scherer broke a couple of tackles to get outside and outrun everyone into the end zone.

After Malson's run, Highland got another scoring chance on a pass interception. The Bruins moved to a fourth and five at the 10 before Russ Yergensen intercepted and ran the ball out to the 18.

But a couple of incomplete passes and a screen that Highland diagnosed at the 29 snuffed out the last Bruin hope.

Highland then contented itself to run five plays into that as to erase the clock, putting the last play in motion from the Bruin 13.

Crenshaw assumes golf lead

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — Ben Crenshaw moved to 7-under-par 135 and take a two-stroke lead over first-round leader Barry Jacecki midway through the Hall of Fame golf tournament.

Crenshaw was an early starter Friday but said after his round he thought he might be in the lead at the end of the day.

Jacecki, who opened with a sparkling 66 over the 7,020-yard Pinehurst Country Club's No. 2 course, moved to 6-under-with-six-holes-to-play-but suffered a late bogey to drop back to sole possession of second place at 5-under-par 137.

"I was very pleased today," said Crenshaw, who has eight top-10 finishes this year but no victories. "I didn't have a bogey. When you play Pinehurst with no bogeys you've got to be pleased."

Crenshaw started the day in a seven-way tie for fifth place after his opening round 69 and he said he was lucky to have that score with his four bogeys on the day.

But his iron shots were splendid Friday and he was within six feet of the pin on several shots in the green.

The key to playing this course is driving the ball well and positioning your ball on the greens," said Crenshaw, 10th on the money list this year — with more than $175,000 in earnings.

He was lavish in his praise of the course.

"It may be the strongest 18 full holes anywhere," said Crenshaw, winner of seven tournaments since joining the PGA Tour. "There's not a weak hole on this golf course."

Crenshaw had birdies on the 11th, 14th and 17th and added a birdie at the 10th and 14th on the backside of the sandy layout, which puts a premium on accuracy because of the thick rough.

Jacecki said he had just an "average" round Friday with three bogeys and three birdies.

"I hit the ball darn near as good as yesterday but I failed to score as well as yesterday," he said. "I don't feel like anything really happened today. I didn't slip, I didn't gain anything."

Howard Twitty, who started play in a three-way tie for second place after an opening round 68, fired a 70 Friday to join Lanny Wadkins and Phil Hancock in third place at 4-under-135.

"Wadkins shot a 68 Friday while Hancock fired a 67.

Wadkins could have been in second place but suffered a two-stroke penalty for playing the wrong ball on the 18th fairway, his ninth hole of the day. He said he and John Fought were playing the same type ball and he neglected to check the number on it because his caddy was in the fairway when the shot was made and walked up to the wrong ball.

"I assumed he went to the right ball," Wadkins said.

Fought also hit the wrong ball and after the two golfers reached the green, they had misplayed the balls, they returned to the fairway to play the shots over and each took a two-stroke penalty.

Castelford High quarterback Dave Howard shirugs off a Richfield tackler

Fumbles help Castelford edge Richfield

By MARV CLEMONS Times-News sports editor

RICHFIELD — Richfield provided three fumbles for Castelford Friday afternoon and the sluggish Wolves turned one into a game-deciding touchdown on route to a 14-12 victory.

The defending eight-man state champions — battling Richfield, the heat and a fair week that caused practice problems — edged the hometown Tigers in the Snake River Conference opener for both squads.

Richfield's downfall came on the kickoff to start the second half, when the Tigers were swept 8-6.

Bill Naylor felled the Wolves' kickoff and was needed for a sizeable gain when he was hit. The ball popped loose and Castelford's Ken Burgess recovered at the Richfield 35.

The Wolves moved in for what proved to be the game-winning TD as away. The PAT pass failed and Castelford had a 14-6 margin just two minutes into the half.

The rest of the half was a struggle for both teams except for when Richfield gambled — and won — on the 10th, unable to consistently run the football, gambled on the last play of the quarter by passing on a fourth-and-10. Stack King hit Greg Marcial for 11 yards to the Castelford 20.

Scott Exon swept left for 14 yards on the next play at the Richfield 6 and period up. Big Castelford defense stiffened and took over on downs after passing the Tigers back eight yards.

Castelford was forced to punt early in the fourth period and when Rick Vulk mishandled the snap, Richfield took over on downs just one yard from the end zone. Exon swept to the left corner for the TD to make it 14-12. On the conversion try Exon tried to go up the middle but Castelford's Rob Owen made the tackle to stop a run—that would have tied the game.

Castelford skipper Randy Clark didn't want to make excuses after the game.

"We saw Richfield last week against North Gem and today they hit much harder and came flat out after us," he said. "We did not play well today and I feel a lot has to do with fair week. Last week we had just one practice win out of the kids there and it was a lot like starting over this week."

Castelford took the lead at 8-0 when it moved 83 yards after a Richfield punt late in the first quarter. David Ensensua, playing on a 2-ore ankle, scored from the one to cap the drive. The big play was a 30-yard strike from David Howard to Dwight Rastick to the Richfield two.

Owen swept to the right for the critical two-point conversion that kept the Wolves ahead the entire game.

Richfield, now 0-2, went to the halfback pass midway in the second period to get on the board. Stacy King, who is a quarterback on the Tigers' roster, took the pitch and fired a 35-yard aerial to senior end Shane Gill. A pass attempt on the conversion was intercepted by Owen to allow the Wolves to lead 8-6 at the half.

Castelford, 2-0 this season with both games decided by two points, had a big edge in statistics. The Wolves had 175 yards on the ground and 90 in the air while Richfield had 16 rushing and 64 passing. Zamora led the Wolves with 85 yards in 23 carries while Ensensua had 55 in 18 rushes.

"The fumbles hurt us," Richfield mentor Joe Hendrickson, whose Tigers have faced what are supposed to be the two best teams in the conference, said. "The big top was the one to start the second half. But overall I'm proud of the kids. They showed they are as good as anybody else. We've still got some chances. Castelford will have a tough time against North Gem and we get to play North Gem at home for the conference game."

Yankees defeat Boston; stretch lead as Orioles fall

BOSTON (UPI) — Rudy May notched his seventh straight victory and Reggie Jackson cracked his 37th homer of the season Friday night, leading the New York Yankees to a 4-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The victory was New York's 11th in its last 12 games and 18th in the last 23 and enabled the Yankees to increase their lead to four games over Baltimore in the American League East. The Orioles lost 7-5 in Toronto.

May, who hasn't lost since July 27, tossed a six-hitter over 7.23 innings before giving way to Rich Gossage, who earned his 27th save. May struck out seven and walked three in raising his record to 14-3, including 3-0 against Boston.

Jackson led off the second with a lowering, opposite-field home run off loser Steve Renko, 9-7. The Yankees are 30-8 in games in which Jackson has homered.

Boston, which has now lost 14 of its last 16 at home to the Yankees, tied the score in the bottom of the third when Dave Stapleton drew a one-out walk, proved to second on an infield out and scored on Jim Rice's double to left-center.

Jays 7, Orioles 5

TORONTO (UPI) — Lloyd Moseby belted a solo homer and doubled in the go-ahead run in the fifth inning Friday night, lifting the Toronto Blue Jays to a 7-5 victory over Baltimore and snapping the Orioles' five-game winning streak.

The Blue Jays reached four pitchers for a season record-equalling 17 hits in notching a club record sixth triumph.

With the score tied 3-3 in the fifth, Roy Howell added a one-out single off starter Mike Flanagan, 14-12; and Barry Bonnell walked to bring on reliever Dennis Martinez. Pinch-hitter Steve Braun's infield grounder advanced both runners and after reliever Martinez intentionally walked John Mayberry to load the bases, Ballor singled to left to score Howell and give the Blue Jays a 4-3 lead.

Toronto tied the score in the third on Mayberry's RBI single and Moseby's run-scoring double.

Tigers 6, Indians 3

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Champ Summers, who singled home a runner in the first inning, capped a three-run eighth with his 14th homer Friday night, helping the Detroit Tigers snap a six-game losing streak with a 6-3 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

An error by second baseman Alan Bannister on Rick Peters' leadoff grounder opened the door to the big eighth inning. Peters stole second and took third on Alan Trammell's single to right. While Trammell was stealing second, Peters scored when catcher Bo Diaz threw wildly to third on a pickoff attempt. Trammell went to third on the error and scored on a wild pitch by starter Len Barker, 18-9.

Chi Sox 5, Twins 3

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former Minnesota catcher Glenn Borgmann drove in four runs with a pair of singles and a two-run homer Friday night to spark the Chicago White Sox to a 5-3 triumph over the Twins.

Borgmann, signed by Chicago as a free agent last winter, gave the White Sox a 1-0 lead in the fourth with an RBI single then snapped a 1-1 tie in the also with a two-run homer, his second, off loser Jerry Koosman 12-13. He also guided home the Twins' final run in the ninth.

Ogden golfer pockets $8,000 with ace

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News sports writer

JACKPOT — Burley's Bill Spencer took the tournament lead but the big news of Ogden's Mike Amatore Friday was an $8,000 swing by Ogden's Mike Stone.

Stone made that swing with a two-iron on the par-three, 210-yard seventh hole. It rolled nicely in the cup while Stone, momentarily stunned but then breaking through, rolled a 20-foot putt to win the $8,000 sponsored Cactus Pete's Casino had offered.

"He took a shot at you today," a by-stander smiled at tournament host Al Huber.

Huber merely laughed back "and I took a shot at the insurance company, No," he declined, "I don't want to mention what the premium was."

The shot couldn't ever be enjoyed by all Stone's playing foursome. They had elected to make a side wager and Stone and teammate Terry Bliton were up two bets. The other twosome had just pressed.

Stone later said he'd show some class, taking $7,990 in cash and $10 in chips.

Meanwhile, back at the tournament, Spencer threatened to break things wide open when he turned the front-side left-four-under-par and pushed that to six under at one point. But then a couple of three putts and two bogies brought him back to even.

"It was really pretty," the Burley youngster said of his late-round miscues.

His 70 left him with a one-stroke lead over defending champion Perry Hanchey of Twin Falls. Gary Miller of Wendell and Tracy Frank of Twin Falls.

Miller played a steady round to post his one-under while Frank had his chance to move past Spencer and into the lead.

Frank was three under at the turned, thanks to a brilliant downhill, curling putt on No. 9. But he also ran into a couple of three putts.

"I was putting good and I didn't think I was going to have any three-putt troubles," Frank said. "I almost died."

While almost everyone in the championship night was complaining of three putts, Hanchey, who won this title with his putter last year, was enjoying his usual success on the Jackpot greens.

"I dodged so many bullets on the front side there's no way this course can beat me today," he smiled at the turn. He nearly holed out from an impossible lie on No. 6 and midway through the first nine had four straight one putts.

Jack Kidd of Magna, Utah, and Doyle Dugger of Winnemucca stayed well within contention with 73 along with Stone and Ken Purves of Twin Falls, Don Stoker of Tulo, and Jim Hurling of Burley had 74.

Burton also was in with a 74 but with his 10 handicap closed a 6 to lead the next division. He was the stroke ahead of Doyle Dugger while Miller and Bob Wagner were locked at 87. Jed Benson of Salt Lake City and Glenn Sparks had 88 and a host of players were jammed at 89.

The tournament will resume at 8 a.m. today with the championship final leaving the morning tea. That means the champion should be crowned by 1:30 p.m. today. Another night will leave the tees at 1:30 p.m. the low qualifiers from the first two days of the tournament.

Prep football roundup

Late interception for TD lifts Jerome past Wood River

HAILLEY — Rusty Palmer returned a pass interception 55 yards with 22 seconds left to nail down a 14-0 victory for Jerome over Wood River Friday.

Palmer's effort ended a valiant second-half comeback effort by the Wolverines who were dominated in the first half but had Jerome in trouble throughout the second two quarters.

But like Wood River's early defense, Jerome's defensive unit came up with two stands and then won when Palmer made his play.

Jerome scored in the first quarter when Zane Oslter belted in from two yards away, the touchdown set up on a 35-yard pass from Tim Fowles to Steve Brannon.

But after Jerome drove to Wood River 15:30 before being stopped and then blocked a punt to take possession at the Wolverine 26.

Wood River made start taking command in the third quarter and Robyn Sliam started sparking the offense. He started a drive with three straight runs of six to nine yards and three Brownie Tracy Hughes with a pass for a first down at the 10.

Three plays later Sliam belted across from the three but Jerome stopped the two-point run.

In the second play of the fourth quarter, Wood River blocked a Jerome punt for possession at the Tiger 22. A back mask penalty and a Sliam run carried to the 10. But there Ken Brown made a key defensive stop for the Tigers and Wood River committed a costly penalty. Brown later was sacked and the fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

Jerome stopped Wood River's offense again at midfield with 3:00 left but couldn't get the first down to waste the clock. From his own 17, Wood River moved out to the 45 before Palmer decided it.

Trojans and fumbles into an 18-6 decision. The Bobcats, who whipped the Trojans 49-31 last year, appeared headed for another win when, on the first possession, Ross Crane broke two long runs to get the offense moving. But by the middle of the fourth quarter, the Bobcats had come up with 11 fumbles — including some errant option pitches. The game was plagued by fumbles, interceptions and penalties.

Crane, who might be the fastest back in Magic Valley, carried the ball to the Rigby 20 with his two long runs. After Jeff Barrett rolled out to the 10, Crane swept for the first touchdowns six minutes into play.

The Bobcat pumped the score to 12-0 on the first play of the second period when Barrett and John Willson hooked up on a nine-yard scoring play. But again the Burley-placed punt kick went wide.

But that two-touchdown margin lasted quickly as Bryan Call returned the kickoff 70 yards to the Burley 28. From there the Trojans bucked down to the Rigby 20 when they threw a six-point strike to Clint Landrum.

From then on the teams traded turnovers and punts before, two minutes into the final period, Crane belted a 35-yard pass for a two more long runs. The last one was punctuated by a 15-yard back-mask penalty that carried to the 11. Burley fumbled twice but recovered both and on his first drive, Crane belted a one for a first down. Jay Bench plunged across two plays later to ice the victory.

NEW PLYMOUTH — The Kimberly Bulldogs took advantage of their passing game and drove 60 yards to humiliate New Plymouth 50-0 Friday night.

The Bulldogs scored 20 points in the second quarter, eight in the third, and had the game out of reach by the fourth scoring 22 more for their 49-0 straight win.

The Rocky Eller-to-Kevin Askew passing combination worked for the first two bulldog scoring plays. Eller, a 15-yarder then a 41-yard strike — then Eller hit Dave Overacre on a two-yard pass to break things open after a scoreless first period. Overacre picked off a New Plymouth pass and returned it for 39 yards in the third period before Tim Prescott stole another one and returned it for a 30-yard touchdown.

Kimberly reached New Plymouth's 20 yardline seven times, but only capitalized for points on three occasions, scoring most of its points on eight New Plymouth turnovers.

OAKLEY — The Oakley Hornets chipped away at the Raft River defense and came away with their second win of the year, a 35-12 effort over the Trojans Friday night.

The Trojans could only manage six points in the second and third periods, while Oakley scored in all periods except the third for the win.

Rex Tolman hit Mark Cranney for an eight-yard strike early in the first to put Oakley on the board.

Raft River evened things up in the second with a three-yard run by Jeff Wallace.

Two more Oakley runs — one each by Stuart Johnson and Marty Adams put Oakley ahead 20-6 at the intermission.

The Hornets led the game when Cliff Adams stole a Raft River pass in the end zone and returned it 92 yards to the Trojans' eight.

From there Marty Adams put it away on an eight-yard scamper.

"Our line started to get tonight," Gooding Coach Paul Cox said. "It has taken some time but they are starting to click. We were able to play a lot of people tonight and the backfield looked strong."

Glens Ferry scored but once, but a 29-yard TD pass by the Pilots' fans something to yell about. The Pilots are 1-2 to date.

VALLEY — The Valley Vikings plunged four short runs over the goal line in the first three quarters to beat the Wendell Trojans 34-0 Friday night.

The Trojans haven't scored in their first three games and drop to 0-3. Valley stands at 4-1.

Following a 33-yard pass from Gary Taylor to Kent Metcalf, Darrel Baker, Rob Taylor, Kevin Stigel and Taylor each scored on runs within the 10-yard line.

Defensively, Brad Black and Scott Johnson led the Vikings and Taylor snapper on both sides of the ball, snapping 10 interceptions.

Carey 32, Clark Cty. 6

CAREY — Jamie Peterson scored on touchdowns runs of 10, 20 and 50 yards to pace Carey High to a 32-6 win over Clark County High Friday afternoon.

Clark County had several turnovers in the eight-man contest while Carey charged to its second win in as many games.

Peterson's 10-yard run came early in the first quarter and later in the period Mark Conrad took a five-yard scoring strike from Otmir Hofstetter. Hofstetter than ran for the points after and a 14-0 Carey lead.

Peterson's County right linebacker intercepted a Carey serial and went 15 yards to trim the Panthers' lead to 14-6 in the second quarter.

Dan Turner romped 10 yards for a TD and Peterson scored from 20 yards out later in the second period as Carey moved to a 28-6 edge at the half.

The only score in the second half came on Peterson's 50-yard scamper. We had some hard tackles and good blocking," Carey's Carey said. "The turnovers helped but the defense did a good job too."

Declo 16, Filer 12

FILER — Todd Adams scored on runs of seven and 68 yards Friday night to lift the Declo Hornets past the Filer Wildcats 16-12.

Adams' game clincher was the long run in the fourth quarter and it had a brief moment flung with disaster. Adams was hit, fumbled the ball and the Filer defenders dove for it. Too late. It bounced back up and Adams secured it and romped into the end zone.

Early in the game Filer had a chance to score when it blocked Declo's first punt but the Wildcats fumbled it back to the Hornets. Declo then used the rest of the first drive with an 80-yard, seven-play drive that culminated in Adams' seven-yard run. A pass got the conversion.

Filer replied with an 81-yard march on its first drive. The Wildcats tried an on-side kick with 33 seconds left but Declo secured possession and ran out the clock.

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Don Sutton allowed three hits in seven innings and Jay Johnston doubled in two runs Friday night to help the Los Angeles Dodgers defeat the Cincinnati Reds 5-2.

The loss dropped Cincinnati 3 1/2 games behind the division-leading Dodgers in the National League West. The victory may have been costly to the Dodgers, however, because shortstop Bill Russell suffered a broken right index finger while batting in the third inning. It wasn't known how long he would be out of action. The pitch hit Russell's bat and then his finger, causing a multiple fracture. He was flown back to Los Angeles for further medical treatment and the Dodgers immediately called up infielder Gary Weiss from their Albuquerque farm team.

Cubs 10, Mets 5

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mike O'Brien's two-run single in the 14th inning snuffed a 5-5 tie and highlighted a five-run uprising Friday night that carried the Chicago Cubs to a 10-5 victory over New York and handed the Mets their 13th straight loss.

Chicago loaded the bases in the 14th on a single by Bill Buckner, a fielder's choice and an intentional walk, setting the stage for O'Brien's drive to center field. Mets center fielder Mookie Wilson allowed the ball to get past him, allowing a third run to score. Mike Vall followed with his sixth home run of the season to bring in two more runs.

Braves 6, Padres 2

ATLANTA (UPI) — Phil Niekro and Rick Camp combined on a nine-hitter and Chris Chambliss drove in four runs with a homer and a single Friday night, enabling the Atlanta Braves to defeat the San Diego Padres seven-game winning streak with a 6-2 victory.

Niekro, 14-14, surrendered eight hits over 9 1/2 innings to notch his sixth straight triumph. Camp pitched a relief role to the way for his 15th save.

Expos 1, Pirates 0

MONTREAL (UPI) — Larry Parrish singled home a second inning run and Scott Sanderson tossed a five-hitter Friday night to give the Montreal Expos a 1-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. Parrish and Sanderson are the National League East title.

Astros 5, Giants 3

HOUSTON (UPI) — Alan Ashby triggered a three-run fifth inning with a triple and Joe Niekro won his 16th game to help the Houston Astros defeat the San Francisco Giants 5-3, ending the Giants' winning streak Friday night and remain in the fourth place tie with the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West.

In the fifth inning, Ashby tripled Kenny Ward seven, gave the Astros a lead and Craig Reynolds singled Ashby home. After Niekro's sacrifice, Joe Morgan singled in Reynolds.

In the seventh, Reynolds led off with a single, was sacrificed to second by Niekro and scored on a double by Bruce Cabell. Terry Puhl then singled home Cabell.

Darrell Evans sparked the Giants with two RBI on a fifth-inning groundout and an eighth-inning single. Terry Whitfield drove in the other San Francisco run in the eighth with a double to right.

Niekro raised his record to 16-11 and Dave Smith earned his seventh save with 1 2/3 innings of relief. Ed Whitson, 10-10, took the loss.

Cards sweep Phils

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Tony Scott singled home the go-ahead run in the 11th inning Friday and Keith Hernandez followed with a base-loaded triple to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 5-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies and a sweep of their double-header.

In the first game, rookie Leon Narm being his first career grand slam to help the Cardinals to a 7-4 victory. With the two losses, the Phillies fell two games behind the first place Montreal Expos, who defeated Pittsburgh 1-0 in the race for the National League East title.

Hagerman opened up late in the fourth quarter to score its only points on a 16-yard pass from DuRoi Turner.

Facts, figures, trivia on Brett's .400 quest:

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Notes, quotes and anecdotes about George Brett and baseball's 400-hitters:

One way to appreciate the Kansas City Royals' George Brett hopes to join is to note that the lowest lifetime batting average of any 400-hitter in this century was .333.

By comparison, consider these lifetime batting averages of Hall of Famers like Stan Musial—.331—Joe DiMaggio .325, Roberto Clemente .317, Willie Mays .304, Mickey Vernon .296 and Duke Snider .285.

The eight 400-hitters all are among the top 12 lifetime hitters. The eight, listed with their ranking in the top 12, their lifetime averages and, in parentheses, their 400-year mark are:

1. Ty Cobb, .367 (420 in 1911, 410 in 1912 and 401 in 1922); 2. Rogers Hornsby, .358 (401 in 1922, 424 in 1924 and 400 in 1925); 3. Joe Jackson, .356 (408 in 1911); 4. Ted Williams, .344 (400 in 1941); 5. Harry Heilmann, .342 (403 in 1923); 6. Bill Terry, .341 (401 in 1930); 7. Ute, George Sisler, .340 (407 in 1920 and 420 in 1922); 8. Nap Lajoie, .339 (400 in 1907).

Intruders—in the lifetime top 12, who never hit .400, were Lefty O'Doul at .349, Tris Speaker at .345, Babe Ruth at .342 and Lou Gehrig at .340.

Hornsby's .424 average in 1924 is the highest in this century. How did he do it? Simple, in Hornsby's big year, he was held hitless in 22 games, had one hit in 48 games, two hits in 47, three hits in 25 and four hits in three. His biggest slump of the year was a 9-for-8 streak.

Hornsby had a composite .413 average for his two consecutive 400 seasons and from 1921 through 1925 struck together averages of .397, .401, .394, .424 and .403 for a composite five-year mark of .402. "When I go up to hit," Hornsby often said, "I feel sorry for the pitcher."

No 400-hitter has ever played for a pennant winner — perhaps the most significant statistic in baseball.

Also, no 400-hitter has ever won a Most Valuable Player Award — but that's a trick statistic because Ted Williams in 1941 (.406) was the only 400-hitter eligible for an MVP Award.

Bill Terry, the last previous 400-hitter, achieved his 401 mark in 1930 — two years before the Baseball Writers Association of America Award was instituted. Both Hornsby and Williams received the supreme compliment from plate umpires — they got the edge on most close ball and strike decisions.

Once a rookie pitcher protested a ball and strike decision by Umpire Bill Klem when Hornsby was batting. He got nowhere. The next pitch was over the plate and Hornsby hit a double.

"You will see, young man," Klem told the pitcher, "that Mr. Hornsby will let you know when the pitch is over the plate."

Williams always denied it but the Boston Red Sox public relations department spread a story that he could read the writing on a RHP-45 record while it was being played. He once told Boston Manager Joe Cronin that home plate in Fenway Park was not perfectly lined up with the pitching mound. Cronin called in a surveyor and, sure enough, Williams was correct. It was off by a fraction. When Williams joined the Marine Air Corps during the Korean War, the Navy doctor said his vision occurred about once in 10,000 people.

Williams batted .406 in the same season (1941) in which Joe DiMaggio had his 56-game hitting streak. That streak is now considered DiMaggio's greatest accomplishment (by those who didn't see him play, anyway) as a few figures are interesting. DiMaggio hit .408 during the 56-game streak and .357 for the season. During the name stretch, Williams hit in 53 of 56 games and had a 404 mark.

To match Williams' .406 at the end of the season, DiMaggio would have had to make 47 consecutive hits without being retired. Many fans thought DiMaggio beat out Williams for the MVP Award because he was more popular with the sports writers who participated in the balloting — a charge which had a lot of truth to it.

Hornsby and Cobb, each of whom batted .400 three times, were confident to the point of arrogance and completely unable to teach other hitters anything. In the early 1950s, Hornsby was hired by the Chicago Cubs to try to help three young first basemen with their hitting. Hornsby was 55 years old at the time but still able to connect sharply with a pitcher could throw.

Stepping out of the batting cage after "showing" Chuck Connors, later TV's Rifleman, "how to do it," Hornsby threw the bat at the embarrassed young player and snarled, "Now, damnit, do it!"

Cobb was asked while attending an Old-Timers Celebration in the 1950s what he thought he would have hit in the modern era. "About .320," said Cobb. "That low?" he was asked. "You've got to remember," said Cobb, "that I'm 64 years old."

Only seven of the eight 400-hitters are in the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y.

Joe Jackson's .408 mark in 1911 was stricken from the official records by order of Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis when the Chicago White Sox outfielder was implicated in the 1919 "Black Sox" scandal in which it was alleged that he helped throw the World Series to the Cincinnati Reds.

Jackson also was one of two 400-hitters who didn't win the batting title, that being Ted Williams. He was beaten out by Cobb's .420 in 1911. Cobb, in turn, hit .401 (or so the record book says, but more about that later) in 1922 but Sisler won the title with .420.

Heilmann was an average hitter for five seasons before adjusting his stance. He then won batting titles with marks of .394 in 1921, .403 in 1923, .393 in 1925 and .398 in 1929.

If he had made four more hits in both 1921 and 1925 and one more in 1927 — he would have — become the only four-time 400-hitter.

A Detroit radio broadcaster after he retired, Heilmann was not a professional LOU Lajoie, who cracked the genealogy of baseball. "Modern players could hit .400 if they tried," he told his radio audiences. "But they aren't trying to hit .400. They're trying to hit home runs. That's where the money is and I don't blame them."

Sisler, the best all-around first baseman of his era, put together successive marks of .407 in 1920, .371 in 1921 and .420 in 1922. Imagine the surprise of the baseball world when St. Louis Browns announced that Sisler would have to sit out the 1923 season because he had double vision.

The old Boston Braves played in a home park situated on the Charles River and the wind almost always blew over the left field fence toward home plate.

Once a young player went to Manager Casey Stengel and complained that Braves Field was "unfair to hitters."

"Nobody can hit in this wind tunnel," the guy told Stengel. "I know what you mean," replied Stengel. "Mr. Hornsby played a full season here and the best he could hit against the wind was .387."

Cobb's .401 mark in 1922 was tainted by a controversy involving two famous baseball writers; one the official scorer of the game, and American League president Ban Johnson.

Cobb was playing in New York in early September when it began to drizzle. John Kieran, the official scorer, retreated under the stands to remain dry while Fred Lieb, another sports writer, remained in the press box.

Cobb hit a ball which New York shortstop Everett Scott had difficulty handling. Lieb, thinking Kieran might be the scorer, called it a hit. Kieran, from his position in the stands, called it an error. Thus, the box score which appeared in Lieb's paper and in the wire service records, gave Cobb a hit while the official scoring sheet which went to the AL office gave Scott an error.

At the end of the season, Cobb's official average, using Kieran's judgment of the play, was .399 but the one additional hit would make it .401. Since Johnson wanted the favorable publicity which a third season hit would have produced, he over-rode his own official scorer and gave Cobb a hit.

The American League record for highest average in one season was erroneously carried as the .420 by Cobb in 1911 and Sisler in 1922 because of a typographical error in an old issue of Sporting Life, the predecessor to The Sporting News. Nap Lajoie had 229 hits in 543 at bats in 1901 but was listed until the early 1960s as having 220 and having hit .405. Then, a statistical-minded young fan wrote to Seymour Siwoff, head of the Elias Sports Bureau, and Cliff Kuchling, the historian of the Hall of Fame, pointing out that Lajoie had once been credited with 229 hits.

They went back through the old newspapers and found that 229 hits was correct. Lajoie's average was restored to .422 in the official records and he became the league's record-holder — a few years before he died at the age of 84.

Deaf mute turns in 'admirable' season for Toronto minor league team

BATAVIA, N.Y. (UPI) — Al Montgomery doesn't hear the cheers of the boos when he approaches the plate for the Utica Blue Jays of the New York-Pennsylvania "A" baseball league. And it's not because he puts the noise out of his mind. It's because he can't hear.

The 21-year-old Houston, Texas, native has been battling more than 100 opposing managers' defenses. Born a deaf mute, the stocky Montgomery has overcome his handicap and played admirably during the just-concluded NYP season. His mother, Doris, says it was tough on him as he was growing up. His father and I have never held him back. He'd never want us to tell people he was deaf and we'd say, 'Yes you are,' and he'd answer 'No I'm not!'

"You know he wouldn't want me to say this, but I believe he's more well-adjusted than his two brothers," Mrs. Montgomery added. "He's very independent. Sometimes I can't believe how he gets things done." Montgomery wanders alone in the outfield during warm-ups, chewing a wad of tobacco while glancing occasionally toward his teammates. From time to time he'll drift over to catch a deep drive during batting practice, unaware of their chatter. Montgomery's roommate, first baseman Bob McNair, says Montgomery "isn't much different from anybody else."

"He doesn't hear the alarm clock, so we have to wake him up in the morning," he said with a smile. "You should see the expressions of people when they find out that Al's deaf," McNair said. "They can't believe it."

He started playing baseball in seventh grade along with football, in which he excelled.

"He was all-city as a defensive back for Reagan High School," his brother Larry, a pitcher for the Eastern League's Holyoke Millers, said. "He's never had any problems while playing sports. Playing sports is his own way of overcoming the handicap."

Montgomery is giving himself "four years" to make the parent-club Toronto Blue Jays. He cites two knee operations for damaged cartilage for holding him back.

Although under contract with the Jays since 1978, this was the first season of playing in the minors for Montgomery, due to past injuries. He reads lips, and answers questions by a combination of writing out his replies or using sign language. He is a reserved young man, shy in many ways.

While on the field, it's complete concentration for Montgomery. He constantly watches the batter and glances over to coaches for their hand signals.

Take CSI meet wins

Jerome boys, Bruin girls show strength

By MIKE PRATER
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — The Jerome boys and the Twin Falls girls, showing strong defense of their 1979 state cross country titles, captured wins at the College of Southern Idaho Invitational Friday.

After giving up the top three places, juniors Robin Mein and Jim McKean came in fourth and fifth to lead a pack of four Tigers placing in the top ten, enabling Jerome to beat the Pocatello Indians 46-51 for the second straight week.

Highland took third with 74 points, Twin Falls minus two of the top five runners who were sick, took fourth with 95 points and Skyline placed 56th with 185 points.

Jack Ost, who lost a close battle with Twin Falls' Eric McManaman last week in at the gate City Invitational in Pocatello, finished the 5,000-meter race ahead of Jim Foley and Jim Fene of Highland. McManaman, who was complaining of a pain in his head was third.

"We were happy with the win, but they (Pocatello) snuck up on us about 10 points from last weeks meet up there," said Jerome head Coach Tim Dunne. "I think they were shocked last week when we blew them away so bad. I'm sure that effected their performances this week."

"We still need to run a lot closer together. The top three runners are going okay, but runners four and five are still back in the pack. They need to move up for us to do any considerable damage."

The Twin Falls girls, primed for their eighth straight state cross country championship, utilized the most energetic of Julie Yergensen and Tammy Crow to completely blow away the Idaho Falls Tigers.

Placing all five girls in the top 10, Twin Falls put only 20 points on the board—42 ahead of second place

Pocatello was third with 74 and Jerome made it close, scoring 79 points to fourth. Blackfoot had 46.

Kerrie Lourder of Idaho Falls avenged an earlier loss to Yergensen to capture the individual girls crown. Pinder ran the 3,000 meter course in 11:34.

Behind the Twin Falls duo was Linda Corrigan of Pocatello and training showed up today, but I didn't hurt things that much." In the javave races, Sheri Clifton of Twin Falls paced a Twin Falls quartet that saw three Bruin runners place in the top five, giving them a 25-43 lead over the Highland Rams. Emily Bolton and Susan Shannon placed third and fourth respectively to help lift the Bruins to their second win of the season. Jerome picked up their second win of the day in the boys junior varsity run, scoring 28 points against Pocatello's 61. The Tigers' Karrell Craig won individual honors, running the course in 19:32.
