

Kraft leaves to fight cocaine charge

Carter loses campaign boss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's campaign manager Tim Kraft, saying he wanted to protect the campaign from political exploitation, took a leave of absence Sunday to fight "false charges" he used cocaine in New Orleans three years ago.

Kraft, 39, who moved from the White House to the Carter-Mondale campaign early this year, declared himself "completely innocent" in a statement sent to reporters.

"There was no immediate word on a resignation from Kraft, who I was understood took the leave rather than quit so he could stay on the payroll during what might be a lengthy and expensive process of defending himself."

His close friends said that "basically the president was not involved in the decision because Tim's aim was to try to keep this from being used against the president."

"He obviously feels for Tim," the friends said of Carter.

A three-judge federal panel named a special prosecutor to investigate the charges, sources said Sunday. Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti asked the panel to act as a result of evidence uncovered during a long investigation that eventually cleared former White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan of similar cocaine sniffing charges, said the sources.

The sources said a White House aide testified before a federal grand jury investigating Jordan in New York that he had witnessed Kraft using the drug in New Orleans.

Carter asked Jordan to stay on during the investigation into his case. Kraft, said the friends, moved on his own to step aside because just six weeks remain until the election and his defense could be a protracted affair.

"Although I am completely innocent of the charges, I find myself in a very difficult situation and facing a difficult decision," Kraft's statement said. "I must make every opportunity to clear myself. At the same time, the campaign, and my responsibilities there call for my full time and attention."

"Most importantly, I have not worked hard for President Carter for the past six years just to become a subject of political controversy in the final six weeks of his re-election campaign," the statement said.

"Therefore, I have concluded that I can best serve the President and avoid political exploitation of the false charges against me by taking a leave of absence from the campaign," Kraft said.

Carter-Mondale campaign chairman Robert Strauss said he was "completely shocked" by the charges. He said he has no doubt Kraft will be vindicated and noted the appointment of a special prosecutor "is in no way an indication of guilt or wrongdoing."

Kraft said he learned of an FBI investigation last month into whether or not he had used cocaine "on two occasions within the last few years."

He said he volunteered for an FBI interview and denied the allegations. Kraft said he learned last week from the Justice Department a special prosecutor would be sought

First word of the actual appointment appeared in press reports.

The sources said New Orleans attorney Gerald Gallinghouse was chosen to probe the charges. Gallinghouse, a Republican, was U.S. attorney in New Orleans from 1970-1974. He had no comment on the matter Sunday.

When Jordan was cleared last spring — an investigation that cost him about $100,000 in legal fees — Civiletti released a report of special prosecutor Arthur Christy Jr. He kept sealed a separate report from Christy on Carter's grand jury proceedings.

The 1974 Ethics in Government Act requires Civiletti to order a preliminary investigation into all allegations of federal criminal misconduct against more than 10 high executive branch or campaign officials.

TIM KRAFT claims innocence

Hostage debate to begin

By United Press International

The speaker of Iran's parliament received a letter from a group of U.S. congressmen Sunday and said the legislative body will start debate Tuesday and "make a decision" on the fate of the American hostages.

But the border-war with Iraq spread to a Persian Gulf port and Iran shot down two Iraqi MIG fighter planes, Tehran radio said.

"We have the 316th day of captivity," said the radio.

"A decision was made in the Majlis today regarding a reply to the letter by the U.S. Congress, and substantial discussion on the hostages will begin on Tuesday and the Majlis will make a decision," Ayatollah Hashemi-Rasafanjani said in a Tehran radio broadcast Monday.

Iranian-armed forces "shot down two Iraqi MIG fighters, killing the pilots and co-pilots, north of Qasr-e Shirin in the western Gerdan region" while President Abolghassan Bani-Sadr, Prime Minister Mohammed Ali Rajavi and acting chief of the joint staff, Gen. Farhad, were inspecting battle zones, the radio said.

The radio claimed Iran has downed nine Iraqi MIGs "in recent days."

In the first naval battle of the recent border conflicts, four Iranian vessels killed when two Iranian vessels returned fire on two Iraqi frigates in fighting near the port of Abadan in southern Iran, 30 miles from the Persian Gulf.

"It is now America's turn. If it has good will as regards the hostages, to prove its sincerity through action," Rasafanjani said after meeting the Swiss charge d'affaires in Tehran, who delivered the letter, a follow-up to an earlier one from the same U.S. congressman.

Willetta Warberg cooks up batch of Kandy Korn

Washington in primary spotlight

By United Press International

Washington Gov. Dixie Lee Ray seeks to fend off a legislator's challenge to her re-nomination Tuesday. There also will be congressional primary contests in Oklahoma and Massachusetts, where abortion is a big issue in two weeks.

In Louisiana late Saturday, Sen. Russell Long, chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, held off one of the strongest challenges ever to his 36-year career in Washington and defeated state legislator Louis "Woody" Jenkins.

With only 1 precinct still uncounted out of 2,418, Long had 57.9 percent of the vote to Jenkins' 38.1 percent — the most any opponent has attained since Long's first race for a partial term in 1948.

Six incumbent congressmen easily won and a seventh — Rep. Charles "Buddy" Leach, D-La., whose 1978 race was marred by accusations of vote-buying — faces a November runoff against a man he defeated two years ago.

Louisiana's primaries are open to both parties, and victories there by candidates who win by a majority of the vote are important to election.

About a million Washington state voters are expected to turn out for this Tuesday's primary — with most attention centered on sprinted contests for both major party nominations for governor and the GOP nomination to face 75-year-old Senate incumbent Warren Magnuson.

Late polls showed state Sen. Jim McDermott gaining on Democratic Governor Ray, but he is expected to withstand the challenge.

New breed of local corn ready for national debut

By BRUCE HAMMOND Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A national campaign to market a new breed of corn begins in Twin Falls today.

Kandy Korn, a long-lasting, table corn owned by Mueser Seed Co. of Twin Falls, will start appearing in markets from Bury to Coaling this week. By spring, the variety will be available for planting from seed companies in almost every state plus several Canadian provinces, according to promoter Willetta Warberg.

"Kandy Korn is the tenderest, sweetest corn you can imagine," Warberg claimed. "But perhaps its biggest advantage is that it stays fresh after picking so much longer than any other type of sweet corn."

"Where as the sugar converts into starch very rapidly in regular varieties, Kandy Korn has a stalk life of 10 days and a refrigerator life of 10 days," Warberg continued. "The best you can do with any other variety is eat it right away."

Despite its misleading name, Kandy Korn has been bred for table use, and is identifiable mainly by its purple-colored husks. The kernels vary in color from light yellow to gold.

The first pilot production of Kandy Korn seed was grown in the spring of 1974 near Caldwell by Charter Research and Mueser Seed Co. Finishing touches and evaluation of the sugary-sweet corn were conducted by Stuart Smith of Iowa State University and the late Jim Mueser, former president of the Twin Falls firm.

Far from being along with food editors of several national magazines, have compared Kandy Korn to last year's "horticultural sensation, sugar snap peas, which are already popular around the world."

Also originally marketed from Twin Falls, sugar snap peas combined edible pods with large sweet pods.

"I think Kandy Korn can be even bigger than sugar snaps," Warberg said. "Sugar snaps were something totally new, but Kandy Korn is a greatly improved variety that anyone will know how to prepare and use."

Even if Kandy Korn is accepted as a revolutionary improvement in a sweet corn, its success in the food market is hardly a sure bet, Warberg admitted.

"It's going to be tough on Mueser Seed because the other companies will fight so hard to keep their seed in the market," said Warberg. "It's going to be a very competitive battle and we're the new guy."

However, some national success has already been achieved for the new hybrid. Test markets for Kandy Korn were deemed successful last year in Denver, Miami and New York, but seed supplies have remained limited pending this fall's introduction.

Food editors for Parade Magazine, Family Weekly and the Denver Post have all praised Kandy Korn for its sweetness and long-lasting freshness. It has been termed an excellent freeze ingredient, far surpassing less developed varieties in freezing or canning.

If Kandy Korn has any negative attributes it may be in nutritional qualities. Recent analysis comparing Kandy Korn to conventional sweet corn indicates it contains fewer vitamins and minerals, such as potassium, phosphorus and vitamin A.

On the positive side, Kandy Korn offers fewer calories than regular varieties. It is free from cholesterol and each 100 grams of Kandy Korn holds only 3.3 percent total sugar content.

"We're also hoping to hold down the cost of Kandy Korn, something we couldn't do with sugar snaps," Warberg said.

Kandy Korn, offered locally this week at stores such as Albertson's, IGA, Safeway and Smith's, will cost about 50 cents per dozen, roughly the same as other sweet corn varieties, according to Warberg.

Iran seeks OPEC-wide oil cutback

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — Iran, troubled by a shortage of markets for its high-price petroleum, called Sunday for an OPEC-wide cutback in oil production to combat a worldwide glut. Arch-enemy Iraq refused to go along with a reduction.

But on the eve of a trilateral conference of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, Iraqi Oil Minister Tayeb Abdul Karim warned that border warfare along the Iraq-Iranian frontier "casts a shadow over this meeting."

Most early arrivals predicted the two-day session would see no change in OPEC's present price structure ranging from a floor price to a ceiling of $27 per barrel — but the power lay in the hands of Saudi Arabia.

Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer at 9.5 million barrels a day, is expected soon to announce a price increase of $2 to $4 a barrel and a production cutback that would run to 1 million barrels a day.

Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, flanked by policemen and security guards as he arrived at his hotel, made no comment on the price hike reports.

Instead, he said the Saudis hoped the conference would vote Tuesday morning for Riyadh's proposal for a four times a year revision of OPEC prices based on a number of measures, including performance of a basket of nine currencies.

But there seemed little likelihood of a unanimous voter. OPEC sources said at least three countries — Iran, Libya and Algeria — would object.

But production cuts, rather than price hikes, were clearly on the minds of most of the oil finance and foreign ministers attending the meeting, a stage-setter for OPEC's 30th anniversary party — a summit in Baghdad in late October or November.

"We hope the Saudis will agree to a production cut," Iranian Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moftakari told reporters.

He pleaded for a "cutback" across OPEC, which represents churns about $7.5 million a day in oil each day. For the good of the cartel, he said, "everyone will have to do it."

In an interview with an Abu Dhabi newspaper, United Arab Emirates Oil Minister Said Al-Harbi said his country will further cut its oil production by early next year. The Arab nation cut its production by 80,000 barrels from 1.8 million barrels per day in August.

Experts say oil stockpiles around the world are running at about 5 billion barrels, a glut that makes it difficult for nations such as Iran to sell. Iran charges $25 a barrel and has about priced itself out of the market, said one OPEC source.

2 hikers stumbled on crash survivors

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (UPI) — The sheriff calls it a "miracle" that two hikers with medical training stumbled onto the two injured survivors of a "military" helicopter crash in the wilder, remote mountains of northwest Washington.

Other helicopters were dispatched Sunday to recover the bodies of the five persons who died in the crash. The chopper went down Thursday night while on its way to rescue a hiker with a broken ankle and rescuers, hampered by bad weather, were unable to locate the site of the crash in the remote mountains.

The names of the victims were withheld until families could be notified. The Wildhorse Island Naval Air Station, where the craft had been based, would not confirm nor deny that all five dead were Navy personnel.

The two survivors were airlifted early Saturday to Bellingham's St. Joseph Hospital. They were Lt. J.G. Richard A. Wall, 28, Detroit, the co-pilot, and Whatcom County Sheriff's Deputy Dustin Hurlbut, 30.

Hospital spokesmen said both were in good condition. Wall was suffering from facial burns and fractures of both arms while Hurlbut underwent surgery for treatment of second and third degree burns and lacerations.

They spent 16 hours lying helpless near the wreckage until Friday noon, when the two hikers — Tom Townsend, 20, Mercer Island, and Doug Larsen, 21, Seattle — came walking down a little-used trail at the 6,700-foot level of Perfect Pass in North Cascades National Park.

"How these two young men happened on the wreckage and had the equipment to deal with it is, well, something out of science fiction," said Whatcom County Sheriff Larry Mount, adding he thought "it was a miracle."

Townsend and Larsen had received special wilderness survival training and were prepared to administer first aid. They adjusted the emergency radio beacon on the copter.

"It was real misty, gusty and wet, maybe 100 feet visibility," Townsend said. "If we had passed 200 feet to the left, we'd have missed the whole scene."

He said Hurlbut and Wall, who were lying 100 feet from each other and could not move, were "very happy to see someone there. They were surprised and they were thanking God."

Hurlbut had managed to inflate a nearby life raft and cover himself, but Townsend said the two had been exposed to the elements for some 16 hours and hypothermia was definitely the danger. Both seemed real cold and needed lots of water.

Passengers rejoice after hijacked Delta jet returned from Cuba Sunday

UPI

12th hijacked plane returns safely

ATLANTA (UPI) — A Delta Airlines plane hijacked to Cuba in the 12th such incident this year returned safely to Atlanta Sunday. Its 29 passengers loaded down with free rum, cigarettes and souvenirs. One wore a "Cuba 81" t-shirt.

Authorities said the plane was hijacked by two nervous, middle-aged Spanish speaking men armed with a cigarette lighter and bottles possibly filled with a flammable liquid. Both were arrested upon arrival in Havana at 12:12 a.m. EDT Sunday.

The plane, Delta flight 334 bound from San Francisco to Atlanta with a stop in New Orleans, returned to Atlanta at 4:11 a.m., a Delta spokesman said.

Cuban authorities gave the hijacked passengers free bottles of rum, a package of cigarettes and let them buy souvenirs. One passenger, David Wesner of Indianapolis, strode into the Atlanta terminal wearing a t-shirt with the words "Cuba 81" written on it.

John Glover, chief of the FBI's Atlanta office, said he did not know the names of the two hijackers, nor their nationality. He said agents were checking the plane's flight manifest to see who the men were and added that it would probably be "mid-morning" Monday before the men were identified.

The two men boarded the flight in New Orleans and demanded that it be flown to Cuba shortly after it departed for Atlanta. Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Jack Barker said.

Glover said the men pulled out bottles of liquid, described by passengers as looking like gasoline, alcohol and even water, and demanded to be taken to Cuba.

However, the FBI agent said later the flight crew believes it was gasoline. They (the hijackers) threatened to burn the plane up if they were not taken to Cuba, so we're assuming that the liquid was gasoline or alcohol or something flammable."

No support for Jacob Javits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After 24 years as one of the Senate's most respected Republicans, New York's Jacob Javits has been cut off without a nickel by the multimillion-dollar Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee.

As much as his party colleagues might want to see him return, the senators on the fund-dispensing committee are barred from making available to Javits the 770,000 they previously had targeted for his re-election campaign.

The reason is that Javits is no longer running on the Republican ticket. He was defeated in last week's GOP primary by incumbent conservative Alfonse D'Amato. As a result, Javits is now wearing the Liberal party label in order to get on the ballot and D'Amato, a Long Island unicorn, becomes eligible for committee funding.

Legally, we can't support the nominee of our party," said committee spokesman Larry McCarthy.

Nerve gas plant on agenda

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A debate over chemical warfare — and whether the government should produce nerve gas for the first time in over a decade — reaches the Senate floor this week when Congress returns from a long weekend.

The Senate is scheduled to act on a bill authorizing $5.4 billion for military construction in 1981. The Armed Services Committee plans to propose another $3.1 billion be authorized for a plant where the government could produce nerve gas for military use.

Committee staffers said Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., will offer the amendment, endorsed by the panel last week.

The production of chemical weapons was halted in the United States more than 10 years ago after the public expressed fears about possible accidents during storage or transportation of the dangerous chemicals. But scientists now can produce a binary weapon by mixing two independently harmless gases after they are launched.

Last week, the House approved a similar $3.1 million authorization to begin construction of a plant, probably in Pine Bluff, Ark. The House included the actual funding for the plant in a military construction appropriations bill.

NATO starts maneuvers

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — More than 170,000 American, British and other NATO troops lined up Sunday for the sixth annual fall maneuvers staged across the length and breadth of West Germany.

Across the Iron Curtain in the East, the Warsaw Pact ended five days of war games Friday involving 40,000 troops from six Soviet bloc countries and army officers from Romania.

Both defense pacts aimed to increase coordination between their varied national forces by throwing them together in some of the largest mock battles on German soil.

The massive movement of men and material often provokes criticism from West German civilians, who see tanks destroy their crops, flatten their gardens and clog their roads.

Douglas defends high court in new volume of memoirs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In memoirs scheduled for release next month, the late Justice William G. Douglas defends his 36 years on the Supreme Court and his controversial high public profile.

Douglas, who died last Jan. 19 at age 81, lobbied for conservation, took part in international projects, promoted peace in Vietnam and counseled presidents.

But controversy also surrounded many of his actions, and he faced two attempts to remove him from the nation's highest court.

Douglas wrote the autobiography published by Random House, in part after he was forced by illness to retire in 1975. The first volume of his memoirs, "Go East Young Man," described his life before his appointment to the court in 1939.

The new volume, "The Court Years, 1939-1975," covers the crucial years of his era. Although it discloses little new about behind-the-scenes decision-making, Douglas does explain his controversial decisions on nuclear energy, abortion and the Rosenberg spy case.

Douglas said he regretted his vote that allowed the government to round up Japanese on the West Coast.

He said he wrote a separate opinion opposing internment of the Japanese in concentration camps. "I have always regretted that I bowed to my elders and withdrew my opinion," he said.

Douglas is criticized for lynching and impeachment when he temporarily blocked the execution of convicted spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg in 1953. He said their lawyer presented a new issue which deserved consideration by the full court. In a special session, the court overruled him the next day.

A second impeachment resolution was introduced by Sen. Gerald Ford after two of Richard Nixon's appointees were rejected for posts on the Supreme Court, Douglas said.

"Ford and his associates were planning a Roman Holiday in the summer of 1970, with my impeachment as the main event," Douglas recalled.

Nixon and Vice President Spiro Agnew had decided it should be a year of endless press conferences and the spread of malicious lies. They were the masters in the art of the politics of destruction."

Of Chief Justice Warren Burger,

Douglas said that "while he would not throw out the Fifth Amendment (guaranteeing due process of the law), he certainly would dilute it."

Douglas accused Justice Thurgood Marshall of "insensitive to the implications of massive gifts to him from key men in the establishment," and John Kennedy "was indeed a playboy in public office up to 1968." Douglas observed.

Douglas said he originally planned to retire in 1969 — his 30th anniversary on the court, but delayed it because of Richard Nixon.

"I changed my mind about retiring and decided to stay on indefinitely until the last house dog had stopped snapping at my heels," he said, "and that promised to be a long time, as Nixon naturally wanted to have my seat on the court."

N. Korea says would scrap pacts if U.S. signs separate agreement

TOKYO (UPI) — North Korea Sunday promised to end its military talks with China and the Soviet Union if the United States agrees to sign a peace treaty with the Pyongyang government, withdraw its troops and formally end the Korean War.

Pontiff lashes out on abortion

SIENA, Italy (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, in a fervent speech against abortion, said Sunday the right to life "from the first moment of conception" is "the fundamental right of the human being."

"It is difficult to defend it later in the various fields, and circumstances of life and human coexistence," the pontiff said in a homily during an open air mass in the ancient Tuscan city's central piazza.

Thousand welcomed the 67-year-old pontiff, resplendent in scarlet robes and white mitre, for the first visit by a pope to Siena in 723 years.

John flew by helicopter from his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo to attend ceremonies marking the 60th anniversary of the death of St. Catherine of Siena, patron saint of the town, whom the pope credited with a major role in bringing the papacy back from the southern France city of Avignon to Rome in the troubled 14th Century.

The right to life is the fundamental right of the human being, a fundamental right which imposes obligations from its very start," the pope said, his voice rising close to a shout.

"The problem of the affirmation of human life from the first moment of conception and, where necessary, the problem of defending that life, is tied in the closest way to the most profound arrangement of the existence of man," he said.

"It is necessary to defend this life when it is threatened in any way, even socially threatened," the pope said. "It is necessary, and indispensable because, in the final analysis, it is a question of faith in humanity itself, of faith in the dignity of man."

Life is sacred. And sacred is the maternity of every mother," the pope said.

The pope's strong denunciation of abortion was seen as an encouragement to Roman Catholic organizations currently campaigning in Italy for a referendum on abortion, which was legalized in Italy two years ago.

His remarks also indicated his stand at the Vatican Synod, which on Sept. 26 begins discussing an emergency family life. The 200 bishops from all over the world are expected to renew the Catholic church's outright opposition to abortion, divorce and birth control except for the "rhythm" method.

North Korea President Kim Il-sung emphasized that scrapping his nation's military pacts with Peking and Moscow was conditional on a similar move by South Korea and the United States, including a withdrawal of the estimated 40,000 U.S. troops in a joint patrol force with South Korea.

But the pacts with Peking did not include making South Korea a full partner in talks on a peace treaty to formally end the 1950-53 conflict — a point demanded by Washington.

The North Koreans have repeatedly extended invitations to Washington to open direct bilateral talks to negotiate a formal end to the Korean War.

But the United States has insisted that South Korea should be a full party to the talks and the peace treaty point repeatedly rejected by North Korea.

The North Koreans could participate as "observers" at the talks.

"We will dissolve our military alliance with China and the Soviet Union at the very moment when we sign a peace treaty" with the United States, Kim told a visiting Japanese delegation. The Kyoto News Service reported in a dispatch from Pyongyang.

Kim told the Japanese that North Korea wants the peace treaty to replace the present armistice agreement, a cease-fire document that the North Koreans and their Chinese allies signed with the United Nations command 27 years ago.

There was no immediate response from Washington to Kim's proposal.

The North Korean leader also pledged that his nation had no intention of reunifying the divided country by force as it did 30 years ago when its troops poured into South Korea.

"Our country has no intention of advancing toward the South, so do we have the capabilities," Kim said. "The United States should also know about this."

Kyodo said Kim also told the Japanese delegation he was opposed to separate U.N. membership for the two Koreas, indicating that North Korea still hoped to unify the country, probably on Pyongyang's terms.

Israeli warplane crashes

UPPER YOKNE'AM, Israel (UPI) — An Israeli Air Force A-4 Skyhawk fighter-bomber crashed in flames Sunday into a shopping center and exploded, killing one woman and injuring five other people on the ground.

The pilot ejected safely before the burning U.S.-built, single-engine warplane hit the northern hillside town of Upper Yokne'Am. Some shops and 16 nearby apartment buildings sustained damage but none of their residents was injured.

The plane, armed for a training flight with nonexplosive shells for its 20mm cannon, narrowly missed a school crowded with 1,000 pupils.

The military command in Tel Aviv blamed a "technical malfunction" for the crash. An air force investigator retrieved the black box recorder from the tips of shattered wreckage — none of it larger than a can of beer — scattered over some 1,800 square feet in the town community.

Air Force chief David Ivri appointed a special commission to investigate the crash.

The casualties were walking along the street when the plane hit and blew up.

Klan-Nazi trial in seventh week

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — A spray-painted sign on a bridge spanning the interstate highway outside Greensboro urges: "Kill the CWF. Free the KKK."

It refers to a battle going on in the third-floor courtroom of the modern, sandstone-colored Guilford County Courthouse, where young state prosecutors are trying to convict six Ku Klux Klansmen and Nazis of the deaths last Nov. 3 of five Communist Workers Party members.

The shootings occurred when the Klansmen and Nazis turned up at a "Death to the Klan" march sponsored by the Maoist-oriented CWF.

In essence, the six man-six woman, all-white jury is being asked to decide which of the opposing factions opened fire first. The trial enters its seventh week Monday.

Exhibits at the trial are laid out on four folding tables that take up much of the room between the witness stand and the prosecution and defense tables. Among the evidence are firearms—clubs, clothing, and other items found on the field of battle or in cars belonging to the Klansmen and Nazis.

Also on the tables are videotapes that, along with the testimony of television cameramen who took them, are at the center of the prosecution's case.

the courtroom. Wood, bearded during the shooting but now clean-shaven, occasionally takes notes on a yellow legal pad.

Edward R. Boyd, a cameraman for WTVD in Durham, has offered some of the most damaging testimony, particularly "test Smith."

"I saw him running up to the demonstrators, to a man whom I knew as Cesar Cauce (one of the communists) and he fired at point-blank range," said Boyd, who also testified he saw other defendants firing weapons.

Prosecutors, using FBI facilities, have made slow-motion copies of the television videotapes. Surrealistic — without sound — the tapes show in an agonizingly slow progression some of the shooting. One tape, of a three-minute period, takes more than an hour to show.

The FBI, through a ultra-modern research unit that utilizes a nuclear reactor, also has conducted studies on metal fragments found in the bodies of the four men and one woman in an attempt to link them with ammunition found in the weapons, cars and vans of the Klansmen and Nazis.

The defense spent two days last week objecting to the testimony of an FBI identification expert. Earlier, the defense objected to use of the slow-motion tapes but suddenly dropped its opposition in a private session with Superior Court Judge James M. Long and prosecutors.

Housewife sells 'glass plate' for $40; worth $1,800

NILES, Ill.—The story of a small fortune, lost because a housewife had no idea her glass plate was a collector's item, recently came to light.

In a letter to J. R. MacArthur, chairman of the Bradford Exchange, world's largest trading center in collector's plates, a Madison, Wis. lady wrote: "I had a Lalgue 1965 plate, which I sold to a friend for $40. I had not heard of you at that time."

The plate she sold is actually valued at more than $1,800. Although MacArthur points out that this price is exceptionally high, he said, "I'm afraid others may be losing hundreds or thousands of dollars by not knowing what their plates are worth."

To aid in identifying valuable plates, the exchange issues a report that includes current prices on more than 900 plates, guidelines on what to look for and when to buy, and the plate evaluation checklist used by the exchange.

To obtain a copy without cost or obligation, just send your name, address, and zip code before Saturday of next week to: The Bradford Exchange, Dept. A27338-9301 Milwaukee Avenue, Niles, IL 60648. A postcard will do.

Imperial Wizard held on gun charge

SCOTLAND, Conn. (UPI) — Bill Wilkinson, Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, was arrested Sunday for allegedly carrying a loaded weapon.

State trooper Fred Volono said Wilkinson was stopped in Scotland, where he led a cross-burning ceremony Saturday night, shortly after 4 p.m. while on his way to a second rally planned for Sunday night.

"We stopped him at the checkpoint on Cemetery Road outside the rally site," Volono said. "We were stopping everybody. We found inside his suitcase, which was inside the trunk of the car, a loaded .45-caliber automatic pistol."

Police said the 33-year-old Wilkinson was first held at a local elementary school, then was transferred to Brooklyn Correctional Center, where he was being held on $1,000 bond.

Wilkinson at first was charged with disobeying a court order that prohibited carrying weapons in the town and of carrying a dangerous weapon in a motor vehicle. State police later dropped the first charge, saying the court order only gave them the right to search cars.

The charge of possession of a dangerous weapon in a motor vehicle is a felony.

Volono said neither Wilkinson nor the driver of the car, a Klansman, caused any problem.

"He (Wilkinson) has been cooperative," Volono said. "There was no incident."

Eight people were injured and nine arrested Saturday night when KKK protesters, sympathizers, and bystanders clashed on two roads less a mile from the rally in a cow pasture in the northeastern Connecticut village.

One person admitted to Willimantic Community Memorial Hospital had internal injuries and a second had a fractured wrist. The others suffered cuts and bruises and were treated and released.

The Klan rally was the first in Connecticut in more than 70 years. Wilkinson, Imperial Wizard of the Louisiana-based Invisible Empire of the Ku Klux Klan, had earlier praised 200 state troopers who patrolled the area to enforce the weapons ban.

A Superior Court judge had issued the no-weapon order after Wilkinson announced the grounds would be patrolled by armed men to keep out non-whites and protesters.

"The police did an outstanding job," Wilkinson said. "I hate to be in their shoes. They were very professional."

State police searched trunks and under-seats of cars and tripped some people entering the town. Klansmen carrying large tree limbs and aided by a guard dog patrolled the entrance to the field and turned back non-white reporters and demonstrators who attempted to enter the site.

The first fights broke out between persons attending an International Committee Against Racism rally who tried to march to the Klan site and tangled with about a dozen motorcycleists on the way. There were at least three other clashes involving Klansmen, the anti-Klan protesters, motorcycleists and area residents, police said.

State police confiscated dozens of knives, sticks, clubs, ax handles and some firearms. Combatants from both sides told police they were clubbed in the fighting.

Troopers said the charges against the nine men arrested included possession of dangerous weapons, breach of peace, failure to surrender a license, assault on a police officer, third degree assault, disorderly conduct and interfering with a police officer.

About 400 people attended the rally and another 400 spectators and reporters watched as three dozen robes Klansmen circled a 50-foot cross, wrapped in burlap and dripping with fuel oil, and bowed to it before setting it afire.

Ten people across from the rally held a banner saying "Racism Destroys Us All — People from New Haven."

Wilkinson said the Klan hoped to sign up several new members and collect $20 initiation fees during the weekend festivities. He said Connecticut was the best state in New England for recruiting new KKK members.

Abscam tapes bring courtroom laughter

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — FBI videotapes played in the nation's third Abscam trial showing the passing of cash-filled envelopes to two city councilmen, charged with accepting bribes of $30,000 and $10,000, respectively, in exchange for pledging their political influence to a phony Arab sheik involved in a phony hotel project.

In videotape of Schwartz's Jan. 23 meeting with the undercover agents in an elegant Philadelphia hotel suite, the former president of council tooted himself as the man who controlled all the other members.

"You tell me your birthdate," Schwartz told special agent Michael Wald. "I'll give them to you for your birthday."

The U.S. District courtroom erupted in laughter when Schwartz was heard to say: "I'm what you call in politics a survivor. I make friends. I don't make enemies ... because I politely, you never who you are going to sleep with tomorrow night."

Philadelphia lawyer Howard L. Criden accompanied Schwartz to the meeting. Criden and a third city councilman, Louis C. Johnson, convicted in the New York Abscam trial last month, also were named in the Philadelphia indictment, but were severed from the current trial.

Schwartz left with an envelope containing the alleged cash bribe, but Criden stayed behind to accept another allegedly containing $5,000.

Criden advised Wald it would be a mistake to try to bribe newly elected Mayor William J. Green.

Criden said Green was too wealthy to consider taking bribes, and Wald asked if someone close to him could be bribed.

"Everyone on his side is so fresh and new that it is unreal," Criden said. "I haven't been in office three weeks."

"I'm sure he didn't go out and pick native people," Wald said.

"He sure did," Criden said on the videotape.

Storm no threat in Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Frances blew across the open waters of the east-central Atlantic Ocean Sunday and forecasters said the storm posed no immediate threat to land.

At 7 a.m. EDT the center of Hurricane Frances was near latitude 20.4 north and longitude 64.4 west, or about 1,000 miles east-northeast of the northern Leeward Islands. Highest sustained winds were reported at 30 mph.

"Losing Hair? Try This At No Risk"

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss... and grow more hair.

For years, they said it couldn't be done. But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss... but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this service unless they were confident of the results. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are—the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in the family," it is certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by androgen can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you want to try to stop your hair loss, you are being helped. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc. will supply you with treatment for 32 days at their risk — if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially by mail.

Truckers bite the bullet on taxes

At least one Idaho trucker is willing to pay his fare share to maintain and improve the state roads.

After the failure of increased taxes for truckers earlier this year, the words last week of IML Freight Inc. Vice President Glenn Goodrich are indeed welcome news.

Goodrich told Idaho Motor Transport Association members at a convention at Sun Valley that Idaho truckers must help the state solve its highway financial problems.

During the last session of the Legislature, proposed increases in fuel taxes and "ton-mile" taxes went down to defeat largely because of opposition from the trucking industry.

Those revenues were desperately needed because of a twin dilemma. Drivers are conserving and using less fuel and therefore the state is collecting less tax revenues than before. Meanwhile the cost of repairing and building highways has roared ahead at full speed.

Goodrich urged truckers to support license and fuel taxes which he called fair, but oppose ton-mile or other taxes. The latter is difficult to audit and impossible to police.

"It invites evasion," Goodrich said, while also noting it is a burden on truckers to keep up with the detailed weight and distance records required.

The fuel tax, on the other hand, is "fair, because the more you travel and the more you haul, the more you pay."

He said Idaho's vehicle license fees of $55 to $100 a year each are low compared to other states.

Because of the failure of tax increases for truckers earlier this year, the state Department of Transportation was largely unable to perform $39 million worth of needed repairs to state roads.

Delay means even higher costs, because once those roads decay too far total replacement is required.

It is hoped next legislative session this problem can be dealt with squarely and Goodrich's speech indicate an agreement is now possible.

Truckers and legislators could have used Goodrich's advice before now. But it is not too late to pay heed to it.

China shifts, but women remain political outcasts

By CLAYTON FRITCHEY
© 1980, Newsday

WASHINGTON — Despite the momentous changes in Chinese leadership emerging from the historic Communist Party congress in Peking, one thing remains the same: the exclusion of women from the hierarchy of the ruling Politburo.

The Chinese leaders, with some justification, like to talk about the emancipation of women, but by and large it amounts to granting women the privilege of working as hard or harder than men, yet denying them significant political recognition or reward.

Since the Peoples Republic was established more than 30 years ago, only three women have attained Politburo status, and then only because they were married to the most powerful members of the Chinese revolution: Mao Tse-tung, Lin Biao and Chou En-lai. The widow of Chou, now 77, is currently the only woman in the Politburo, but hers is merely a minor role. Mao's widow, of course, is presently awaiting trial as one of the "Gang-of-Four."

In the Soviet Union, the record is even worse. Its 14-member Politburo is exclusively male, as it nearly always has been. And no women have figured in the new Polish shake-up, following labor strikes there, on the new Yugoslavian lineup following the death of Tito.

In both communist and non-communist countries, women have begun to make a dent at the lower and intermediate levels of government, but few are at the top except in Britain and India — where Margaret Thatcher and Indira Gandhi are the prime ministers. Even they, however, have not appointed other women to key posts in their administrations.

The United States is in no position to brag about its own record. Not only has no woman been president or vice president, but none has ever held any of the offices in the line of succession: Speaker of the House, president pro tem of the Senate, secretary of state, secretary of the treasury, secretary of defense, attorney general.

A decade ago, Richard Nixon predicted there would be a woman U.S. president in the next 30 years, and he added, "A woman can and should be able to do any political job that a man can do." Nevertheless, he never appointed a woman to the Cabinet or Supreme Court or to any other post that might lead to the White House.

Long before the 1980 primaries, Rosalynn Carter said she would "wait just a matter of time" before the United States had a woman president. Still, neither the Democrats nor the Republicans showed any serious interest this year in nominating a woman for even second place on the presidential tickets.

At the recent United Nations World Conference on Women at Copenhagen, Grethe Moller, a member of the Danish parliament, noted that a female politician cannot make a "mistake" without embarrassing all other women.

"Christcher," she said, "and other men can go into their shoes and things, but if women show any ambition in political life, they're having their period or they're having their menopause."

She was not exaggerating. Only a few years ago, Dr. Edgar Bernini, a close adviser to the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey and a member of the Democratic Party's Committee on National Priorities, clashed with Rep. Patsy Mink of Hawaii over her plea for the Democrats to give "the cause of women's rights" the highest priority (desires).

Dr. Bernini insisted that physical factors — particularly the menstrual cycle and menopause — disqualified women from key executive jobs. "If you had an investment in a bank," the god doctor said to Mrs. Mink, "you wouldn't want the president of your bank making a loan under these raging hormonal influences at that particular period." And he wasn't joking at the Copenhagen conference: the delegates were asked, "If you were the prime minister of your country, what would you do to change things?" The Third-World women replied with one voice: "Wipe out illiteracy among women."

Most developed countries, however, have already gone well beyond that. In the United States, the Census Bureau reports, more women than men are enrolled in American colleges. Perhaps even more important politically, women voters now outnumber men, and they also hold down almost as many jobs.

The conclusion of these vote factors suggests that American women are on the verge of an irresistible political breakthrough.

What other newspapers are saying

...The sudden surge in demand by Americans for fuel-efficient cars pushed Japan into the top position in the world as an automobile producer, but American manufacturers are getting into position to meet the competition.

General Motors Chairman Thomas A. Murphy predicts the U.S. auto industry will experience renewed growth, selling 10 million cars and 3 million trucks in the next model year and 11 million more cars will be sold in 1981 than were sold during the depressed 1980 model year.

Imports recently have been taking 29 percent of the U.S. car market but the GM chairman said the foreign auto share would drop to about 26 percent after 1980 and decline further in 1981.

Voluntary action by the Japanese in restricting their exports would help silence cries for protectionist curbs by the United States... free trade and unlettered but fair competition ought to be the goal, but some temporary and voluntary assistance by Japan's automakers would be welcome.

A choice of flavors

© 1980, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

WASHINGTON — If John Anderson does well in the November elections, he will be the first in the Carter-campaign organization. They have been building Anderson up as the one they really fear, and this year the party is his.

"Why is that?" I asked.

"It detracts from the issues. The choice between Reagan and Carter is very clear. Anderson muddles it, because the people don't know what he stands for."

"The people didn't know what Carter stood for when he was running for president in 1976."

"That was different. Carter was running on the Democratic ticket. Anderson is running as an Independent."

"So?"

"Look, if you go into an ice cream store and have the choice of only vanilla or strawberry flavors, it's not a problem. You can make up your mind in seconds. But if you have to choose between vanilla, strawberry and butter, then you really have to think about it. No one should have to choose between three flavors. Do you get what I'm driving at?"

"I'm not sure. But there are people in the country who are very unhappy with vanilla and strawberry, and would take butter almost just to protest the lack of choice."

"The majority of the people like vanilla and strawberry. Butter almost has nuts in it, which confuses the issues."

"You're not suggesting John Anderson is nuts?" I asked.

"No. All we're saying is that vanilla and strawberry are proven flavors. Butter almost has no real support in this country and should not be listed on the menu."

Idaho Power needs support

Editor, Times-News:

Well, here we go again. Idaho Power has applied for a permit to build a power plant in the Bliss area.

The first voice of protest has been sounded. It seems that the complaining party is a "white water fisherman" and is afraid his fishing would suffer.

What are the power companies going to do to supply the ever-increasing demand for power? When a coal fired power plant is suggested, the special interest groups come out and protest. The same thing happens when an atomic power plant is mentioned, even though the safety of atomic power plants has been proved through the whole world.

Are the protesters burning oil lamps for light, and washing their clothes in water heated by the power plant? Or are they scrubbing on a washboard? I doubt it. They probably have as many conveniences, using electricity, as any of us. When they flip the switch, it had better work.

Idaho Power has done a great job, supplying power at a good rate to Idaho residents in the past, but they have to be able to make that power, to continue to do so.

The power lines we see around the country are hot up there absorbing electricity out of the air. Somewhere on the other end of the line is a generator, making electricity out of water power, atomic fusion, or steam boilers.

Maybe a law should be passed, requiring the protesters to go off the line, and install batteries with a wind generator to charge them. I assume they have plenty of wind to do it. That would leave more for the people who appreciate the efforts made by our power companies.

This medical 'study' just needed common sense

© The Boston Globe

BOSTON — I do not usually read the New England Journal of Medicine for kicks. The graphics aren't sexy. The headlines aren't reader-grabbers. Frankly, I have trouble getting into places called: "Plasma-Cell Dyscrasias" and "Peripheral Arthropathy with a Monoclonal Antibody to Porphyrin Myelin."

Furthermore the closest you get to humor is an ad, like one for Colgate that features a locomotive steaming out of a tunnel under the heading, "The Great Laxative Escape."

Nevertheless the lead story in this biweekly issue could be straight out of Punch. In, in some ways, the perfect satire of scientific expertise, a case study of how to labor the obvious.

It seems that no less than five medical doctors, all specialists, working with grants from two foundations and the public health service have started the medical world with the following information: It's better for women not to go through labor alone.

Stop the presses.

To arrive at this blockbuster of a notion, the men traveled far, to a hospital in Guatemala. There they assigned an untrained lay woman, in stay with each new mother in the experimental group through labor, to hold her hand, rub her back and chat.

The women with a constant companion got through labor and delivery more easily than the women alone, who were only attended by medical women they met and asked them: "Would you feel better going through labor alone or with someone holding your hand? They could have published those answers and used the rest of the grant money to fund a study on How to Use Common Sense in Medical Practice.

Instead they have produced a piece that really should be reprinted, as classic in the Annals of American Expertise.

We seem to belong to a culture that trusts experts more than its instincts. Somewhere along the scientific way, we gave up childbirth to the doctors out of fear and trust. Doctors began "delivering" babies as if mothers were merely assembly-line workers strapped to tables in hospital factories until they produced.

Under "modern" hospital policies, very few women had a relative or friend around. Now we have more experts telling us what our grandmothers knew in the first place: babies "civilized" childbirth is an abomination.

The new research is like the recent studies "conclusively proving" that chicken soup is good for a cold.

In the medical establishment nothing is true unless it's "proven." It isn't enough that every woman "knows" it's less frightening and more comforting to be surrounded by people — especially people who care during labor. They need statistics and charts, and double-blind crossover studies, and chi-square analyses.

In the past ten years, pregnant women have formed one of the more effective "consumer movements" in the health field. They've helped create birth centers, and resurced midwifery; they've insisted on getting fathers into the delivery room and instituted anesthesia at the last minute. But in many ways, the scientists and not the mothers are still in charge of childbirth. We give them authority, like Elaine May because, "THAT man is a DOCTOR."

There is certainly a need for science and expertise in childbirth, to sort out the use from the abuse of fetal monitors, to curb the epidemic of cesareans, and all the rest.

But even in an overly "experted" society like ours, doctors don't need a report by their peers to believe that a lonely labor is a scary and unhealthy thing. All they have to do is listen.

Lucey says Carter will run third in November balloting

By United Press International

Former Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey, a one-time Carter appointee as ambassador to Mexico and now the independent vice-presidential candidate, predicted Sunday President Carter will run third in November.

He was asked in a television interview if he is comfortable with the idea that his ticket, headed by Rep. John Anderson, will have a "spoiler" role in the election — taking enough votes away from Carter to permit a Reagan victory.

"The real spoiler is President Carter," he replied, adding that Carter is bypassing the political process by his refusal to debate with both Reagan and Anderson.

Carter attended church Sunday and then went by helicopter to Annapolis, Md., where he visited a funeral home to pay last respects to a former Naval Academy classmate.

Reagan spent a quiet Sunday at his Middleburg, Va., estate, and invited some members of Congress over in the evening.

The big Republican rally at the Capitol Monday surely was a prime topic of their discussion. The GOP hopes to demonstrate a unified party with a rally on the Capitol steps.

Reagan and vice-presidential candidate George Bush will arrive by motorcade, to greet all Republican incumbents and most of the GOP candidates for House and Senate.

Both Reagan and Carter will stump electoral vote-rich Texas early in the week.

Carter plans campaign stops in Houston and Corpus Christi Monday. Then he will fly to Roswell, Ga., to spend the night before campaigning in Spartansburg, S.C., and Cleveland Tuesday.

Reagan will fly to San Antonio Monday night, and then follow Carter into Corpus Christi and Houston

Tuesday before returning to Washington.

Lucey, on NBC's "Meet the Press," was asked if he believes Anderson has a real chance to win the presidency. "Oh, I do," he replied, adding he would not be on the independent ticket if he did not think so.

Asked who he thinks will run second in November, Lucey replied: "My guess, frankly, is that — like 1912 — the incumbent will run third."

In 1912, Theodore Roosevelt bolted the Republicans to form the Bull Moose party, which finished second to Democrat Woodrow Wilson. President William Taft ran third with 23 percent of the vote.

The two top congressional GOP leaders also appeared on talk shows Sunday.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said on ABC's "Issues and Answers" he believes Anderson "is more of a factor now — based on electoral distribution." He said he now thinks it is possible Anderson could win enough states to throw the election into the House of Representatives.

Strikebound Tinseltown: TV wasteland

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter

LOS ANGELES — "Attention Studio Strikers — 1st, 2nd and 3rd — Needs Up to $100,000. Swing Loans — Interest Only."

That mortgage company ad in Daily Variety gives a clue as to some of the financial chaos created by the actors' strike that wiped out the 1980-81 TV season originally scheduled to begin Monday.

More than 100,000 workers, at a cost of scores of millions of dollars daily, have been off the job, studios, networks, independent production facilities and other movie-TV related industries because of the strike, now in its ninth week.

The Screen Actors Guild-American Federation of Television and Radio Artists shutdown has idled everyone from Burt Reynolds, who earns $3 million per film to temporary studio pool stenographers earning $5 per hour.

"It doesn't bode good," said SAG president. "It appears the actors weren't prepared for such a strong stand by the producers who give every-sign of being prepared to hold out for months."

Negotiations in the dispute were scheduled to resume Monday for the first time since Sept. 4.

At issue is future salaries from the sale of film and tape to pay TV and cable TV outfits in addition to sale of video cassettes and discs.

Actors are demanding a percentage of gross profits of sales by distributors. They seek pay in advance because they mistrust the "creative bookkeeping" of studios and producers.

Producers insist they cannot afford advance payment at the percentage demanded and still make a fair profit. They ask the actors, "What if we pay you in advance and then can't sell the product?"

At the start of negotiations, SAG-AFTRA demanded 15 percent of distributor's gross and pension and welfare benefits. The guilds have reduced their demands to 5.5 percent after nine days play.

Producers have upped their offer from 3.6 percent after 25 days play at the beginning of bargaining to 4.25 percent after 13 days play at last offer. The single percent point difference, a SAG spokesman said, could amount to millions and millions of dollars.

But a third force has entered the dispute — some 30,000 members of other unions who have been thrown out of work by the striking actors.

These workers, most of them members of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees and the Teamsters, have grown bitter toward the actors although their unions officially endorse the strike.

The disenfranchised craftsmen and laborers have nothing to gain by the SAG-AFTRA strike. Only actors, writers and directors would profit from the negotiations.

Many IATSE and Teamster members say the strike is being prolonged by a power struggle within the SAG negotiating committee involving a militant faction and a moderate group.

"The makeup men, set designers, carpenters, painters — lighting — technicians — grips — script supervisors, special effects men, press agents and members of the 24 other unions involved in the strike have had it," an IATSE spokesman said. "There are 22,000 IATSE members out of work right now, plus another 6,000 from the six basic craft unions."

"The Teamsters, as much as $1,000-a-year drivers are losing as much as $1,000-a-year counting overtime and golden time for location work because the actors are getting greedy.

"I wouldn't want to be an actor on the set the day this strike is settled."

Except for a handful of millionaire actors, almost all film workers are hurting financially.

Beside home mortgage problems; used car ads are proliferating in trade papers as studio workers find it difficult to meet loan payments.

"We are getting 40 calls a day from members for financial aid," a SAG spokesman said. "And we are running low on funds."

The Motion Picture Television Fund, which normally disburses $4,000 a week in interest-free loans to needy members, has been disbursing $20,000 a day since the strike began July 21.

For the first time in years, visitors had no difficulty finding parking spaces on studio lots. Commissaries were almost empty. Studios were dark and idled.

Ripple effect of the strike has been disastrous to companies serving the film industry — caterers, limousine rentals, portable dressing room rentals, restaurants and "chic men's shops" which provide wardrobes for TV and films.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Country singer Willie Nelson stuck a microphone in President Carter's face and the two of them belted out "Amazing Grace." Nelson and the president whooped it up before 5,000 screaming fans at the Merrifield Post Pavilion in Columbia, Md., Saturday night, in a campaign fund raiser. The audience paid $10 to sit inside, $10 to sit on the lawn.

When Carter entered the pavilion, Nelson, wearing a red headband, a sleeveless shirt and jeans, swung into "Georgia" as the crowd roared. ## Health officials burn cook-off

Chili not only thing that's hot

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The state Health Department has run into controversy as hot as a jalapeno pepper in challenging an event dear to the hearts of Southwesterners — the chili cook-off.

Entrants in the Green Country Regional Chili Cook-off set up their equipment on Tulsa's downtown mall Saturday, but city officials are trying to keep the public sample their original recipes.

However, Health Department representatives showed up, saying state health laws prohibited the distribution of chili to spectators.

Hercules unchained, but not long

NORTH UIST, Scotland (UPI) — The owner of Hercules the bear Sunday promised to pay two fishermen $2,400 to help him bring his runaway pet grizzly, who spent three weeks romping through the Scottish Highlands.

Alastair McLean and Ronald Macdonald spotted Hercules Friday in the tiny township of Balearnin more than 30 miles from where the 760-pound bear snarled his chain and swung in freedom last month.

"One of those guys told me he'd haul me away if I gave out any more chili," he said. "I've got to get out of Oklahoma City."

"Why, it's traditional for everyone to get a taste at these cook-offs," he said. "I cooked up 35 pounds of meat."

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
G/Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I enjoy your column thoroughly. It's one part of the newspaper I rarely skip. It's because of the influence you exercise that I'm moved to write.

Recently, the Richmond Times Dispatch ran in your column the letter from "M. in Passaic," the railroad worker's widow who wished to marry religiously but not legally. You replied that if there were a compassionate minister in Passaic willing to bless a union of that sort, you "hope HE contacts" you.

This is the second time within the past year that you've made the assumption that the minister would be a man.

Abby, there are several thousand dedicated WOMEN clergy among us, and we still face enormous discrimination in church employment. Fulfilling our calls to preach and administer the sacraments involves an often lonely and uphill battle against deep-rooted prejudices in favor of male clergy.

Please don't make our struggle for recognition any more difficult than it is by assuming that all pastors are men.

Thank you for your consideration.

—THE REV. ANITA J. BAILY (PASTOR), ST. MATTHEW LUTHERAN CHURCH, RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR MS. BAILY: Thanks for the reminder. From now on it will be "A-men and A-women."

DEAR ABBY: I have just learned a very important fact of life.

Marriage is not for every man. I was married for 12 years to one of the loveliest and prettiest women on earth, but that didn't stop me from being attracted to other women. We are no longer married for that reason, and I realize now I never should have been married in the first place. Some men are simply incapable of being faithful.

No conceit intended, but I am a very attractive man, and it is impossible for me to be around an attractive woman without coming to her. Now that I am a bachelor I can do as I please without worrying about hurting anyone, because I confine my attentions to unmarried women.

exclusively.

DEAR INCURABLE FLIRT: Mature men prefer more meaningful and lasting relationships. No one is incapable of being faithful. But many are UNWILLING.

DEAR ABBY: Seeing as how I was new in town, I stopped a nice-looking man on the street and asked him for directions. He said it wasn't far, and he was going that way he would walk me there. Before we parted he asked me if he could see me again and I said yes.

To make a long story short, Mike and I started going together, and now eight months later, we are very much in love and have even talked about marriage some time in the future.

Abby—Mike never talks about his parents, his life or anything to do with the past. He says he has no friends or living relatives, no parents, no sisters or brothers. He doesn't talk about his job, either. He just says he "seems" to be a living.

I am 30 and have never been married. Mike says he is 33 and has never been married either. He has been to my flat but I have never been to his. (I don't even know where he lives.)

Is it possible that he has no friends or living relatives?

—CHARLENE
DEAR CHARLENE: Possible, but not probable. Before you invest more time in this mysterious character, find out what it is he "seems" and for whom. It could be a line you don't need.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a traveling man, but I never worry about his going with other women when he's on the road. Know why? Just before he leaves I give him so much loving he's lucky if he has enough strength to carry his sample cases to the car. Pass this on.

—NO WORRIES IN WORCESTER

DEAR NO WORRIES: I don't want to say you're a lady, but a man can have the finest banquet in the world and six hours later he's hungry again. (Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple one—your own thing—ceremony, see Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope to: ABBY'S Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

Varicose veins prevent wearing shorts

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB: I'm a 25-year-old woman—and have a 4-year-old son—and I've been married for seven years.

I need some information about varicose veins. My legs looked really great until about three or four years ago. I could wear hot pants and not feel self-conscious like I do now. I've only two bad places on my legs where the veins show the most. I have noticed that there are many women older than I am who still have great looking legs. For example the woman who plays in Charlie's Angels. How come I'm having trouble so young in life?

DEAR READER: You may inherit a weakness for varicose veins. If a girl's mother had varicose veins, she is more likely to develop them as well.

They're also more apt to occur as a result of pregnancy. The pressure of the developing baby on the veins in the lower part of the abdomen and pelvis make it more difficult for the leg veins to drain upward toward the heart as they should.

So the veins may stretch with pregnancy and cause varicose veins. The problem of varicose veins as a complication of pregnancy is one reason that I recommend that most women should wear some form of support hose during pregnancy.

The additional pressure and support to the outside of the leg may help some to prevent their occurrence.

To give you more information on varicose veins, I'm sending you "The Health Letter No. 5-8, Varicose Veins. Only readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I'm a 52-year-old female and a virgin. I'm considering marrying a 56-year-old man. I was brought up strictly and had to take care of my aged parents so I'm not very knowledgeable about sex and marriage like I should be.

Would starting sex at my age injure me? My man friend tells me that my vagina will stretch a mile before it gets an inch. Is he correct? Could I become pregnant? I've not menstruated for three or four years. How often should a couple of our age have sex?

DEAR READER: Every woman should have a medical examination before marriage and that applies to you as well. Go see your doctor for an examination. He can help you prepare better for married life.

I gather from your letter that you've gone through the menopause. In that case, you shouldn't have any danger of becoming pregnant. If there's any question about this, you can discuss it with your doctor, but most women who have gone through the menopause and haven't menstruated for at least two years are relatively safe from having any unwanted pregnancies.

Yes, the vaginal vault will accommodate itself. But if you go through the menopause, you may have already had some changes associated with decreased hormone production.

Some women have that problem and others do not, but that's one of the reasons I would like for you to have an examination before your marriage. If you should have a problem, there are various preparations your doctor can and probably would prescribe for you.

Hazelton SOS group plans for carnival

HAZELTON—New officers of the Valley SOS held their first meeting of the school year recently at the Hazelton park.

Linda Montgomery is president, Alice Van Hook, vice president, and Sharon Stokes, secretary-treasurer.

Kathy Bruce is in charge of the carnival, with Lana Black and Irene Johnson handling calendar sales. Lynn Olsen is room mother chairman, Nancy Brune, membership, and Judy Holland, education and roller skating.

Anyone in the Eden-Hazelton area not contacted for the Community Birthday Calendar is asked to contact Black or Johnson. Help is needed for the carnival

Episcopalian membership rising

NEW YORK (UPI)—For the first time in years, membership in the Episcopal Church has risen, indicating the defections caused by ordination of women and revision of the Book of Common Prayer may be at an end.

Church officials said that reports from the denomination's 95 dioceses showed that total baptized membership rose to 2.8 million in 1979, an increase of half a percentage point.

"For the first time in a number of years the Episcopal Church has shown signs of a revival," said Rev. John A. Schmitz, statistical officer of the denomination.

First, get whale drunk, then jump on its skull

Harpoonists in the Arabian Sea feed pickled fish to carnivorous whales. This gets those whales drunk. At least, they act drunk. The harpoonists then jump onto the heads of the whales and thrust their spears down through the whales' skulls. Or so a correspondent tells me. A horror story.

CRAMPED QUARTERS

Q-Is it true there are young couples in China who live in such cramped quarters that they can't even be intimate in private?

A-That's true over there, the woods are full of them. Likewise, it's true in Vietnam. Last year, Hanoi police arrested 300 couples for lovenaking in public at the park around the Lake of the Sacred Sword in the middle of the city.

Q-What, when and where was the first feature-length motion picture produced?

A-"The Story of the Kelly Gang" was the title. In 1906. In Australia.

Q-Quilts? Levi Strauss made his first blue jeans for miners?

A-For miners. But more miners than miners bought them eventually.

GUM MACHINES

Somewhat earlier in this century, the manufacturers of gum machines boosted the vendor's profits by 40 percent with the simplest little trick you can imagine. They enlarged the money slot and changed the wording from "insert a penny" to "insert a coin." That did it.

Couples favor older houses in inner city

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Young couples today are looking backwards to fill their housing needs. Many are moving into low-rent Victorian and early 20th century houses of architectural value in inner city areas. The European trend back to inner city living began in the 1970s, says Jim Rankin, a housing products executive. Rankin expects the trend to continue through the 90s.

He says young people who move into such houses are looking for locations near the jobs and entertainment. In addition, "they can afford to buy an outdated home and take their time in remodeling to suit their own lifestyles." He also said older people are doing a lot of the rehabilitation of inner city houses. They find row houses and two-family structures excellent investments that can be bought comparatively cheap, he says, then restored and sold for a profit.

Paper bag syndrome attacked

By JENNIFER SEDER © The Los Angeles Times
Susan Pletsch, a traveling seamstress who gives sewing seminars, says there is one thing that most people who sew at home suffer from at least once in their lives. She calls it the paper-bag syndrome. You buy a pattern and some fabric, she explains, and you cut out the fabric and pin the pieces together. Then you take a break and fold up all the pieces and put them back in the bag, where they stay forever. "I tell my students always to sew together the major seams before taking that first break," says Pletsch. "That way, the whole thing is just too big to shove back in the bag." How to get women to keep their sewing out of the bag and on the machine is a subject that has long intrigued the nation's pattern companies. For years, their surveys showed that women sewed to save money, to fulfill an urge for creativity, to solve fit problems, even to kill time. In that order. But as more and more women went to work and there was less and less time for sewing, the changing living patterns changed the pattern business, almost overnight. Now, a whole new pattern of home sewing is beginning to emerge. For openness, people are sewing more complicated clothes. The jacket, for instance, was once considered anathema by women who sew. Now it's the best-selling pattern type at three of the country's largest pattern companies. "When tailored things started taking off," says Art Joimides of Vogue and Butterick patterns, "we were all pretty surprised. We always thought the average person who sewed at home was intimidated by tailoring. But the fact is that women found these patterns less intimidating than the prices of retail ready-to-wear garments of the same genre." At McCalls Patterns, where a tailored "blouse blazer" by Pletsch and her partner, Paul Palmer, is outselling all others, design director Richard Segrin says the pattern's success illustrates more than intimidation. "We're discovering that women sew today not only to save money but because they want a professional fit they are not getting in ready-to-wear. One reason the Palmer-Pletsch patterns are so popular is that they contain personalized instructions — chatty how-to advice that "talks" a woman through a whole project. They take the fear out of sewing constructed clothes. They give special fit tips right in the pattern envelope. They also advise sewing in blocks, and they instruct people in the logical stopping points in the construction of the garment. "The '8-hour blazer' is also successful, in Segrin's view, because it represents the classic look so popular in today's ready-to-wear. Segrin's boss, Earle K. Angstadt Jr., sees the key to today's best-selling pattern is fit and what he calls "fashion" fabrics (those that hide sewing flaws). He explains, "A few years ago, when the unconstructed look was in fashion, clothes were easy to fit because nothing had to fit that precisely. Now that the tailored look is back, fit is much more important. And it's easier to achieve now in patterns than it is in ready-to-wear."

Genital infection cause studied

BOSTON (UPI) — Researchers may have found the cause of a common genital infection contracted by thousands of women every year, which could lead to improved methods of treating the often painful affliction, it was reported Wednesday. The infection, called nonspecific vaginitis because of the long-held concept that it is without specific cause, has been traced to several bacteria, the New England Journal of Medicine reported. Nonspecific vaginitis is one of at least four common vaginal infections that cause heavier than normal vaginal discharge, itching, burning and other annoying symptoms. The other infections all have been traced to single classes of bacteria, but controversy has persisted about the cause of the nonspecific type, the Journal said in an editorial. Previous studies indicated bacteria known as Gardnerella vaginalis were major contributors to nonspecific vaginitis. But besides large amounts of Gardnerella vaginalis, the Journal said, University of Washington researchers have detected an assortment of anaerobic bacteria (varieties that exist without oxygen) in test subjects suffering from nonspecific vaginitis. The researchers, headed by Carol A. Spiegel, studied 97 patients at the university Women's Health Center and the Harborview Medical Center Vaginitis Clinic in Seattle for symptoms of nonspecific vaginitis.

Lincoln-Mercury looks to recoup with fuel mizers

By DAN JEDLIČKA
© 1980 Chicago Sun-Times

The troubled Lincoln-Mercury division of Ford Motor Co. whose gas-guzzler image led sales for the company during the last 18 months, is getting "European-style" surgery that may make its products winners again within the next 18 months. If this division's efforts are successful, they could help Ford Motor's U.S. profits, which have fallen sharply.

Ford vice president and Lincoln-Mercury general manager Gordon B. MacKenzie is leading the push. MacKenzie, who industry observers say is Detroit's top sales turnabout while serving as Ford of Europe's vice president for sales between 1973 and 1977.

He was named boss at Lincoln-Mercury (L-M) in June, after working as vice president sales operations for Ford's North American Automotive Operations.

"I've gone through this all before in Europe where Ford's cars are known as being too gas-thirsty," MacKenzie said during an interview last week at Ford's giant assembly plant in Chicago, where Lincoln-Mercury's smaller, more-efficient 1981 Cougar is being built.

"Car buyers in Europe are very pragmatic, as they are rapidly changing in this country," MacKenzie said. "Our strategy is to retain the L-M image of luxury and a good ride while strongly interjecting the all-important factor of outstanding fuel economy."

Minneapolis residents had to cross picket lines Sunday to buy the strike-bound Tribune.

Only small Sunday edition published

Minneapolis Tribune hit with walkout

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The Minneapolis Tribune, hit with a strike by two unions, was published Sunday but the scaled down edition was available only to readers who ventured across a picket line into the lobby of the newspaper building.

Ronald Dwight, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, said abbreviated versions of both papers will be published Monday. Decisions will be made on a daily basis on whether to publish the next day's newspapers, he said.

The strike was the third against the newspapers in recent years.

No negotiations were scheduled in the strike which began Saturday after members of the Twin Cities Newspaper Guild rejected a contract offer that would have made them the highest paid journalists in the nation.

The 24-page edition of the Sunday Tribune included news, sports and partial classified sections. About 1,000 copies were printed compared with the normal Sunday circulation of about 600,000.

Also striking against the newspaper were members of the Minneapolis-St. Paul Writers' Union No. 4, Members of other unions, including the Teamsters Union that delivers the papers, are honoring the picket line. Members of the guild rejected a contract offer early Saturday which the company said would have provided a 50 per cent wage raise effective Aug. 1, 1980, and another 50 per cent raise on Aug. 1, 1981.

The offer would have made guild members the third highest paid in the country, the company said, behind Washington and San Diego. Under terms of the offer, journalists with six years experience would have been making $39,524 next Aug. 1.

A spokesman for the guild said members wanted a $1,29 per hour raise, the same as that offered Teamsters members about two years ago, but the company's offer amounted to a hike of only $1.10 an hour.

Willard Haich, Guild international representative, said one major issue besides wages is the right of Guild employees to share in any profits that might arise from new technology.

Matters were offered rates of $1.10 per hour effective July 1, 1980 and a similar increase a year later. The contract would have made them the highest paid matters in the country, the company said, raising $2,559 per year for a 35-hour week at the start of the second year.

A Star and Tribune strike in 1962 lasted 115 days. A 60-day machinists strike at the papers in 1970 went on for four days.

House critic says reserve isn't filled

U.S. not taking advantage of oil glut?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America's military preparedness is imperiled due to the administration's failure to fill the strategic petroleum reserve while there is a global glut of oil, House energy and power subcommittee member Rep. James M. Wright (D-Texas) said Monday. Wright, chairman of the subcommittee, said he wants Energy Department officials to explain during public hearings Monday why they are not filling the reserve during the temporary glut.

Failure to fill the reserve "is imperiling national defense preparedness," said a statement made available over the weekend.

American foreign oil imports were slashed during the 1973-Arab-Israeli revolution. The current Iranian revolution, causing massive lines at gasoline stations and serious disruption of the economy.

Congress passed legislation in 1975 calling for a billion barrel strategic petroleum reserve to assure vital national services could function if oil imports were disrupted.

But no oil has been bought for the strategic petroleum reserve since November, 1978, President Carter halted purchases, then because there was a worldwide oil shortage and European allies felt the reserve deposits helped drive up oil prices. Saudi Arabia, which is exporting more oil than it wishes to meet America's needs, has opposed putting oil into the U.S. reserve.

But the report said, "Never has the situation been so ripe for oil purchases by the reserve." It said one company official estimated "10 million barrels are in oil tankers in the Caribbean which cannot be off-loaded because of the oil glut."

The glut is expected to last between four and 10 months, the report said, but the administration

"has not taken advantage of the opportunity to buy inexpensive oil."

Energy Secretary Charles Duncan told the subcommittee last May the reserve fill would be resumed in early June, but "as of this date oil has yet been put in the reserve," the report said.

Failure to fill the reserve "is in direct conflict with the announced policy of the president — one of the key points of his energy program — and is in marked contrast to what is being done in other industrialized nations," it said.

The report said refusal to fill the reserve is costing taxpayers $9 million a day in increased oil prices. It said because of the difference between old and new oil prices due to deregulation, the administration could save $2.50 on each of the reserve's normal 400 million barrels per day fill rate by resuming the plan now.

Grape harvest peaks but strike continues

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — With talks broken off in the 10-day-old California wine strike, the harvest of ripe grapes neared its peak Sunday and rain showers in the forecast threatened to rot fruit on the vines.

Dampened grapes must be picked and crushed at the winery quickly or they mold and rot.

House wine makers were limited in their ability to handle peak loads by a strike of 3,500 workers against the 23 major firms that produce 80 percent of California's wine.

The grape harvest takes about six weeks. With less than four weeks remaining, the wineries were still looking forward to crushing that at peak or double their current level.

For the first time since the strike began Sept. 5, negotiators were convened Saturday in Fresno. The two sides were not far apart, but talks broke off after five hours.

Management representatives made some concessions. Officials of the Winery, Distillery and Allied Workers Union walked out without bidding from their proposed three-year plan that, with a cost-of-living escalator, would provide a 37.3 percent boost.

The employers had previously offered an 8.7 percent raise by 1983, leaving the two sides about a percent apart.

The employers also gave up on the only other key issue, their demand for a lengthening of the probationary period of new employees.

The $1 billion industry has not previously experienced a strike in 35 years of collective bargaining, and the world's two largest and best wineries operated at reduced levels. The strike and the weather did not threaten to wipe out production, but it did threaten to reduce it.

About 350 small wineries, including some premium brands, were not involved. The large companies picketed included Gallo and United Vintners, the world's two largest, and brands such as Almaden, Christian Brothers, Franzia, Guild, Charles Krug, Sebastian and Paul Masson.

High Tar Smokers Convert To Merit.

"Best tasting low tar I've tried," report MERIT smokers in latest survey.

Taste Quest Ends

Latest research provides solid evidence that MERIT is a satisfying long-term taste alternative to high tar cigarettes.

Smoker Tests Offer More Proof

Long-Term Satisfaction: In the latest survey of former high tar smokers who have switched to MERIT, 9 out of 10 reported they continue to enjoy smoking, are glad they switched, and reported MERIT is the best tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Blind Taste Tests: In tests where brand identity was concealed, a significant majority of smokers rated the taste of low tar MERIT as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar.

Smoker Preference: Among the 95% of smokers stating a preference, the MERIT low tar/good taste combination was favored 3 to 1 over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed.

MERIT is the proven alternative to high tar smoking. And you can taste it.

Taking poll at Texas watering holes

Patrons tell reporter what they think of Carter's and Reagan's prospects

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Margaret Ann Morgan slapped a tomato red oil cloth tablecloth and said "Whew!"

The 50-year-old hostess of Another Raw Deal, one of the restaurant-bars that serve the Texas capital in the spirit that Madame de Stael's and other salons watered the wheeler-dealers of royalist France, spoke with an accent that only a professor at University of Texas, the world's richest university a few blocks away, might be able to decipher.

"I'll end up voting for President Jimmy Carter," she said. "I know Ronald Reagan will get elected but I won't do anything to make it happen."

Mrs. Morgan — "Make it Mrs. Miss or Ma. It makes no difference in these exciting and heavy days" — sat down at a table and looked at the crowd.

Another Raw Deal's patrons mostly are liberal Texans, which means they do not favor neckties or the Vietnam war but are willing to live on the same planet with New York and even Los Angeles and just possibly the Texas Aggies.

Even the men's room graffiti is not sexual but political. Vulgar, but political.

The atmosphere of Another Raw Deal and the politics of its liberal night be seen in the last two nights the customers stomped, hollered and whooped with joy.

"The night Abbie Hoffman reappeared. What grand entertainment," Mrs. Morgan said.

"And don't forget the night the Americans beat the Russians in hockey at Lake Placid," said customer Edwin A. (Bud) Shrike, novelist, movie writer and host of Austin's nightly moveable feast.

"Those are the only good things that happened in the whole world this year," Mrs. Morgan said.

Shrike, 49 and at 6-foot-5 as tall as Texans should be and in politics somewhere south of H. L. Mencken, looked at his beer.

"Carter is the anti-Christ. He poses as a saint. He's really a devil," said Shrike, who voted for Carter four years ago.

Is Shrike now for Reagan?

"No, I am not. I was until he actually got nominated."

Why?

"The press told me to be for him. Is that really why?"

"Well, no. He also was the handsomest and wisest."

Shrike stopped talking when a waiter served him a dish listed on the wall blackboard as "Fried Things."

The dish held chicken-fried chicken breasts, zucchini (Another Raw Deal has that kind of University of Texas smarts that says zucchini instead of squash, as the Aggies say), mushrooms — and onions (expletive)," said Kralj, who like some other Texas liberals drives a Cadillac limousine. The former regents chairman, once a chief lieutenant to President Lyndon B. Johnson and John Connally, made his first award faces.

What about Texan George Bush running as Reagan's vice presidential mate?

Kralj suddenly looked like a lion with a thorn in his paw. He ordered a waiter to fetch a drink named the Ankle Breaker as a forward to talking about Houston's George Bush. An Ankle Breaker consists of 150-proof rum and other things.

"George Bush. God love him, is the only Yankee who claims to be a Texan who wears penny loafers with his tuxedo," Kralj said. "I've seen George Bush do it."

The ex-regents chairman made a second awful face.

"Bush ain't no more a Texan than a Kennedy from Boston," Kralj said. "A movie star and a fake Texan ain't gonna get it down here in Texas. As many mistakes as he has made, Jimmy Carter will take Texas."

The Austin night lengthened. At Schultz Beer Garden, another political spa where Texas liberals drink and deal with an Adamo siege mentality, the pitchers were put on a table. There were no pitchers at the Quorum, the Austin political restaurant-bar where the customers are rather often more conservative; neckties are in at The Quorum.

Nick Kralj, owner, toastmaster and bouncer of the Quorum, sat at a downstairs table following at Shrike, a reporter and a former chairman of the University of Texas Board of Regents, a body as mighty in Texas as the College of Cardinals is in Rome.

"We don't think Reagan is worth a

Coalition asks facility to build recycling system

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

ARCO — The Idaho National Engineering Laboratory intends only to dilute its liquid radioactive wastes in response to the concerns of Idahoans, a leader of the Magic Valley Aquifer Coalition predicts.

George Anthony of Buhl, speaking this weekend at the Idaho Eclipse gathering at the INEL near Arco, called on the Department of Energy to construct a closed recycling system and end injection of the wastes into the Snake River aquifer.

"If they can drink it, then they can pond it," Anthony said. "If they can pond it, then they can recycle it."

The Eclipse gathering was sponsored by a number of Idaho groups concerned about nuclear safety. About 100 people attended to hear a state of speakers that included featured speaker Sam Day, a former Idahoan and managing editor of the Progressive magazine.

While wet weather discouraged attendance, the gathering also did not measure up to expectations, Anthony said.

He said no INEL employees or state or federal officials attended and not enough individuals bore witness to their concern about government practices.

"It's becoming increasing clear D.O.E. has effectively gotten the state in a position where they feel frustrated and unable to assert their position on the operation."

He said the only INEL presence was a team from EG&G, the contractor that operates the site, which filmed and taped speakers and members of the audience and a force of security men and police who left quickly after it was apparent there would be no problems.

Anthony said the over-reaction of the security force and the attempted intimidation by the filming, which was done at taxpayer expense, was "disheartening."

Referring to an un-released report on a study by a D.O.E. contractor of the practice of injection and the alternatives, Anthony said it has been given to Idaho officials for review but has not been made public.

The study was initiated after Idaho Gov. John Evans requested INEL to stop the injections and appointed his Radioactive Waste Task Force, which issued a report on Dec. 13, 1979.

Although he has not seen the report, Anthony said.

"I can read between the lines of the several newspaper reports available. INEL intentions have become increasingly clear well in advance of receipt of the report itself."

He said the INEL's decision apparently would be not to end the injections but to do the following:

- Increase filtration of radioactive materials.
- Enhance monitoring and control to prevent accidental diversion of high-level radioactive wastes into the aquifer.
- And dilute the waste stream before injection so as to provide "drinkable water" that is, water that meets Environmental Protection Agency standards for drinking water.

He said management of radioactive wastes should be based on three guiding principals:

- All radioactive materials are biologically injurious.
- No waste disposal practice should be initiated unless it would still be safe when and as the rate of waste production goes up.
- No compromise of safety in the interest of economy of waste disposal should be tolerated.

Anthony said the injection of wastes into southern Idaho's largest underground aquifer seems to violate all three principals simultaneously.

Plane falls on takeoff, pilot critical

JEROME — A Jerome pilot was critically injured when his small experimental airplane crashed shortly after take-off at the Jerome County Airport Sunday afternoon.

Bill Bradley, 40, of Jerome was listed in critical condition but conscious Sunday night in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital following surgery for multiple injuries.

Investigating officer Jerome Deputy Sheriff Steve Truxell said Bradley's plane "just got off the runway" shortly before 1:46 p.m. when the engine apparently lost power, according to witnesses.

Truxell said Sunday night he had not yet talked to Bradley, who was found conscious and lying beyond the wreckage in a field approximately a quarter-mile beyond the west end of the runway. A possible eyewitness to the crash had also not been questioned, yet.

The plane was completely demolished but did not catch fire. It lay upside down "all rolled up in a ball," Truxell said. "He hit pretty hard."

Bradley was flying a two-seat, prop-driven experimental plane called a Breeze, which has a rear-mounted engine, the officer said.

Association may move Blick to top

BOISE — A Castleford School Board member is slated to become president in 1981. School Boards Association either this year or next.

The association's president-elect for 1980-81 failed to gain re-election last year. The school board and the group could turn to its 1980-81 Vice President, Mary Anne Blick, to take his place.

Traditionally, Mrs. Blick would become president in 1981. A recommendation on how to handle this year's unique situation will not be made until Sept. 27 at a meeting of the group's executive board, which includes Mrs. Blick.

"We've never run into this situation before," Alan Smith, executive director of the association said. "The by-laws talk of a lot of contingencies but they skipped this one."

Mrs. Blick said last week her initial reaction was to let the 1979-80 president, Merritt Thornhill of American Falls, resign in 1981.

But she said she has since received calls saying the vice president should take over.

Now Mrs. Blick said she believes all board members' resignations and filings should be considered before a decision is made.

The committee will make a recommendation of the best way to proceed in the interests of the association," Smith said.

Finally, chance to paint

Sunday's warm afternoon, a welcome relief from the rainfall Saturday, allowed Magic Valley residents some time in the garden, at the park or spinning around on bicycles. Jose Rivas spent his afternoon painting the fence in front of his Twin Falls home.

Twin Falls school expansion around corner?

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Only minor adjustments were required this term in Twin Falls elementary schools after another slight rise in enrollment.

But Superintendent James Sawin advised the school board last week if the trend of bigger entering classes each year continues, the district may be taking a decision sooner that we thought.

"That decision especially involves what to do with Bickel Elementary School with its "limited educational capabilities," Sawin said.

"The numbers are not starting, but we're into a situation we have been watching and will continue to watch," he said. "The potential for a little larger school district is real. We have to look at the facilities and how to handle it in the best manner."

He said if the district needs to expand its elementary facilities it can, because it has set up a 10-year site acquisition and remodeling plan, which provides alternatives.

The plan identifies Lincoln as a "viable campus" for future additions or replacement of an older section. Also under the plan, the district purchased new ground south of town and decided it could not add on to Bickel because of its limited campus size.

Sawin noted Bickel can handle only three sections in each grade compared to four in the other elementary and that the 1939 school was plagued by street noise and cold rooms.

In 1976, the district "saw a larger kindergarten class come in," he said, "they are now fourth graders." The trend each year since has been for incoming kindergartners to number 500 or above.

That compares to 475 or less above the fourth grade and the extra students means addition of about another elementary in two more years, all elementary classes will have jumped in size.

This year, the district built new classrooms at each elementary school except Bickel and hired 10 additional teachers to ease class sizes.

Adjustments — This fall included creating a combination first-second grade class at Morningside Elementary School and hiring a teachers' aide at Bickel. Both moves were made according to the teachers' wishes, Sawin said.

The Morningside adjustment reduced first-grade class sizes from 30-31 to 27. O'Leary Junior High School received more seventh graders than expected and some classes are being juggled, Sawin said.

The day after Labor Day, the district's students numbered 6,468 compared to 6,443 on the same day last year.

By pointing out the enrollment trend and discussing facilities, Sawin said he was advising, "Let's be aware and not let something catch us by surprise."

Home birth

KIMBERLY — Sunday, neighbors of Monte and Julie Katzenberger visited the couple and their new son, who came into the world some hours earlier at 3:40 a.m.

The neighbors didn't have far to travel. The Kimberly couple had their second child at home.

Katzenberger said the home birth — done with the assistance of a doctor, midwife, nurse, and himself — was planned.

"It went really smoothly. Everything was very nice," he said. "It's not what you'd call back-country. It was a well planned out job."

The mother, who received no anesthesia, was reported in good health.

"My wife feels about where she was five days after the first son was born."

That was in a hospital.

"We had very little trouble with the first, so we thought the second would be of little risk, also," said Katzenberger, who is a special education teacher at Searsville Elementary School at Twin Falls.

"We alternate plans to go to the hospital if the situation arose."

Despite a lack of sleep, the father said he was glad he and his wife had the child at home.

"It's just the home atmosphere and the convenience of your own bed and not having to move back from the hospital or be restricted on visitors."

"I trust doctors and hospitals. It's not so much anti-hospital as the things you're getting with home birth."

Katzenberger mentioned a closer relationship with the doctor and nurses, avoidance of possible unnecessary procedures and greater feelings of self-control and participation.

Mrs. Katzenberger operates a business at home. Rainbow Blossom Alpha Sprouts, growing and selling sprouts to restaurants and groceries.

The couple presided by taking the child to birth classes. Katzenberger helped with the delivery by supporting the baby's head as it emerged "with lubrication and stuff." He said his wife needed just a couple of stitches afterward.

"I think most people would have reservations" the father said about home birth. "It just depends on your personality and what you want."

He noted they lived only a few miles from a hospital and had made arrangements there "in case."

Katzenberger said he had not expected the event to be a "community thing." But the neighbors "came in excited that they can see the baby right away."

It is the couple's third year in the area, having moved from Polatch.

"We're plain old Idaho folk," Katzenberger said.

Boise man critical after car rolls over

TWIN FALLS — One man was listed in critical condition and three Buhl residents were in fair-to-serious condition Sunday night following separate weekend accidents.

In an accident Sunday evening, Roland S. and Florence M. Tofflemier of Twin Falls received slight injuries.

A Boise man was in critical condition in a Boise hospital with head injuries suffered in a one-car roll-over north of Twin Falls.

Idaho State Police said Larry Gene Fife, 26, of Boise, was traveling west on former State Highway 79 about a mile west of U.S. Highway 93 about 10:30 p.m. Friday at the time of the accident.

Officers said Fife was completing a pass of another vehicle when he encountered a curve. Due to the 65 mph speed of his car, he was unable to make the turn, went off the road and struck a rock pile.

The car then traveled across the road, went off the other side and down an embankment.

The car overturned three times, and Fife was thrown out.

He was transported to St. Alphonsus Hospital where he was still in critical condition in the intensive care unit Sunday night.

Also at St. Alphonsus was Douglas C. Gletzen, 21, of Buhl, who was in serious condition following a two-vehicle accident south of Buhl early Sunday night.

In that accident a passenger, Paulie

Gletzen, 20, and Darl Sue Harley, 19, also of Buhl, were injured and were in fair condition in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Sunday night.

Idaho State Police said Harley was driving south about 50 mph on the Southland Highway two miles south of Buhl about 12:05 a.m. Gletzen was approaching from the east at about 35 mph, failed to see a stop-sign and struck Harley's vehicle.

Both veered off into a cornfield; the Harley vehicle rolling once and coming to rest on four-wheels. Both vehicles were damaged.

In Twin Falls, Roland S. and Florence M. Tofflemier were injured in a two-vehicle collision.

According to city police, Tofflemier, 81, had stopped his vehicle at the stop sign on Eastland Avenue. He then made a left turn and struck the side of a pickup being driven west on Falls Avenue by Michael Ray Kirkland, 21, of Twin Falls.

Kirkland and passenger Pam Prescott were not injured.

In the 7:15 p.m. accident, Mrs. Tofflemier, 70, was ejected from the vehicle and received bruises. Mr. Tofflemier received lacerations to the back of the head and multiple rib fractures.

The two were taken by ambulance to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, treated and released.

Officers said citations against Tofflemier for failure to yield are pending.

- The F. Dwin Pruitt Memorial Award.

Petersen wins state honor

BOISE — Kathryn J. Petersen of Idaho Falls was this week selected as the disabled Idahoan who in 1980 best overcame her disabilities.

Ms. Petersen is a 1965 graduate of the Idaho State "Rehabilitation of the Year" award after being chosen from among the more than 1,300 disabled Idahoans rehabilitated in fiscal year 1980. The person selected by the State Division of Vocational Rehabilitation is the person who best represents the Vocational Rehabilitation process — overcoming a physical or mental disability to achieve employment.

Ms. Petersen became a paraplegic as a result of a sledding accident in which she sustained complete motor and sensory loss. Following her accident, she began work with vocational rehabilitation. She has since been able to finish a college education at Boise State University, learn to drive a car with special hand controls, and find a job.

Ms. Petersen is now employed with the Idaho First National Bank at Boise as a management trainee.

Health board to meet

TWIN FALLS — The South Central District Health Board will hold its regular monthly meeting in Twin Falls Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the district office, 324 Second St.

On the agenda is discussion of the additional 0.85 percent cutback in state funds ordered following an earlier 3 percent cutback.

The board will hold committee meetings at 1 p.m. and during the regular meeting will hear reports on the three divisions of the district, health education, physical health and environmental health.

Life saving award to Becker

BOISE (UPI) — A Life-Saving Award will be made to Philip Becker Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. at the Idaho Department of Corrections Community Work Center by the Idaho State Council.

Becker saved the life of Steve Terteling, who was electrocuted while attempting to catch an eagle he was training.

Terteling, who was neither breathing nor had a heartbeat when Becker reached him, was revived through Becker's use of cardio pulmonary resuscitation.

Planners slate session

TWIN FALLS — The Area IV Manpower Planning Board will meet Thursday at 3 p.m. in rooms 119-120 of the College of Southern Idaho Voc-Tech Center.

The board will hear a report from the staff on the CEITA program in Area IV and Idaho for the new fiscal year which begins Oct. 1.

Another report on the activities of the State Employment and Training Advisory Council, will also be given.

The board is scheduled to take action on a proposal from the South Central community Action agency for a weatherization project and to determine the new standing pay raise for the area supervisor in the Summer Youth Employment Program.

Middleton man dies in crash

MIDDLETON, Idaho (UPI) — Wayne Bowman, 56, Middleton, was pronounced dead on arrival Saturday at Saint Alphonsus Hospital following a three-car crash on old U.S. Highway 30 near Idaho 40.

Police said Bowman was a passenger in a northbound car driven by Loreta Absher, 28, Nampa. She was listed in fair condition at St. Alphonsus. Bowman died of severe head and chest injuries at 1:10 a.m.

Agreement reached to curb pollution of Lake Tahoe

LAKE TAHOE, Nev. (UPI) — California and Nevada have reached agreement to curb the pollution of Lake Tahoe waters which once were sparkling enough for Mark Twain to describe as "not merely transparent, but dazlingly, brilliantly so."

But since Twain made that observation in 1872, Lake Tahoe — the huge, glacial body of water that straddles Nevada and California more than a mile high in the Sierra Nevada range — has lost its brilliance to pollution.

The pollution is caused by algae which has turned the water increasingly blue as more gambling casinos, fast food joints and houses are built in the lake basin.

If there is no stop to the building, the lake will eventually turn a swampy green, experts warn.

To slow the building and reverse the algae problem, Nevada Gov. Robert List signed an agreement Saturday that limaxed five years of attempts by the two states to form a joint planning commission.

The agreement was signed two weeks ago by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Gov. Don Edwards, conservationists who called it inadequate. The agreement has won the overwhelming approval of the legislatures of both states.

To take effect, the measure must now be ratified by Congress.

Under the agreement, no new casinos can be built except for those already approved.

There will also be a 2 1/2-year limited moratorium on development, and by then new environmental standards are to be developed. Any decisions under the agreement will be made by a joint board from California and Nevada.

The agreement also places a moratorium on a new loop road around Stateline favored by Nevada and a light rail system favored by California.

But conservationists have called the agreement inadequate.

There are already more cars, more smog, more water pollution than we ever should have had," said Dwight Steele, a San Francisco area lawyer who sits on the Save Lake Tahoe board of directors. "What is required is a real moratorium, a start on reducing the number of automobiles and no more disturbing of the soil."

Conservationists say displaced soil loaded with nutrients is getting into the lake because of construction, promoting the growth of algae.

Whatever improvement the new agreement may eventually provide, the lake still seems a far cry from the body of water described by Twain in his book "Roughing It."

"So singly clear was the water, deep, the bottom was so perfectly distinct that the boat seemed floating in the air; Yes, where it was 700 feet deep, the water was not merely transparent, but dazlingly, brilliantly so."

Utah range project underway

RANDOLPH, Utah (UPI) — A federal, state and local program to improve range conditions on 500,000 acres of land in Utah's Rich County — directed by the Bureau of Land Management — is just getting underway.

BLM state director Gary Wicks says the study area is in the northeastern portion of the county, within his agency's Randolph Planning Unit.

Wicks said some of the goals are: improve range conditions; improve range management; improve range erosion; and provide a field laboratory for Utah State University range management studies.

He said the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, Forest Service, Utah Extension Service, Utah State Lands Division, Utah Wildlife Resources Division, Rich County officials and local ranchers are cooperating in the project.

Mafia 'club' in Arizona

TUCSON (UPI) — Arizona is home to 300 to 400 known members of the Mafia, according to information presented to the Crime Awareness and Prevention Fair.

A panel of experts addressed some 200 persons at the gathering Saturday, telling the audience that Arizona is a prime area for the laundering and reinvestment of money from drug trafficking, gambling, prostitution and other criminal activities.

State Attorney General Jeff Bingaman urged the public to combat organized crime placed under a single agency.

"One of the major problems we've got in our criminal justice system is that it is not a system," Bingaman said.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., was among panel members urging a move to again allow law enforcement agencies access to Internal Revenue Service tax records, a right revoked after the misuse of such information in the past.

"We need those tools," said DeConcini, noting that it was income-tax evasion that "timmy" stopped at Capone.

Comedian Steve Allen, who moderated the panel discussion, asked if the names of businesses linked to organized crime could be published so they are not unknowingly supported by honest citizens.

Panelists said about 30 Tucson restaurants, as well as other businesses, are owned or controlled by organized crime. Nationwide, the panelists said, more than 10,000 legitimate businesses probably are controlled by the mob.

He is survived by 15 great-grandchildren and four grandchildren preceded him in death.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Joseph Payne Memorial Chapel with Bishop Neil Anderson officiating. Burial will be at 9:30 p.m. in the Payson, Utah, cemetery.

Funeral services will be at the chapel Tuesday afternoon and evening and prior to services on Wednesday.

Charged in shooting spree

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Police will seek to identify 17-year-old juveniles arrested in the random shooting spree last month that left four people dead on a quiet neighborhood street, officials said.

A team of 70 police officers Saturday arrested three unidentified 17-year-old juveniles and one adult, the father of one of the juveniles, at four separate locations for the shooting spree.

Two suspects, identified as a pair of 17-year-olds, were described by police as "the shooters" and booked on suspicion of murder.

Police said another 17-year-old and the 47-year-old father of one of the suspects were also arrested on suspicion of involvement in the shootings.

Dan Sullivan, deputy chief of the Police Department's West Bureau, said he will seek to have the two "shooter" suspects tried as adults because of the "brutal, vicious" nature of their crimes.

Police Detective Richard DeAnda said there were no indications that the killings were gang-related or linked to "any type of initiation ritual."

DeAnda, who has worked nearly 100 hours a week on the case since the Aug. 24 killings, said robbery was probably the motive in the shooting deaths of the randomly selected victims.

He said that more information about the investigation would be released after the case is presented to the district attorney Monday.

The "Sunday Night Killings," which occurred within a three-block area of West-Los Angeles, late Aug. 24, stunned the city, and terrified the residents of the normally quiet residential neighborhood.

DeAnda said the arrests were triggered by a "conglomeration" of evidence compiled from various sources, including some calls for convictions.

Snead wins pro-am
NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Sam Snead, the 68-year-old geriatric under his age Sunday to win $20,000 in a pro-am tournament for professionals age 50 and older.
Snead's two-day score of 69-67 tied nipped first-round leader Bob Goody by a stroke and earned him $20,000 out of the $100,000 purse.
The tournament, played at Newport Country Club, site of the first U.S. Open and the first U.S. amateur tournament in 1895, was limited to a field of 44 senior pros who played with 66 amateurs.

Waltrip wins at Doye
DOVER, Del. (UPI) — Duane Waltrip held off Larry Gant for a one-second victory Sunday to capture the $159,000 Dover 300 auto race.
Waltrip's victory was his first since June, and denied Gant the first triumph of his 2-year Grand National career. It was the fifth victory of the season for Waltrip and the 27th of his career.

After a 10-hour and 18-minute only Waltrip, Gant and third-place finisher Buddy Baker were left on the final lap.

Phillies acquire Lyle
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Attempting to beef up their bullpen for the National League East stretch drive, the Philadelphia Phillies have acquired veteran reliever Sparky Lyle from the Texas Rangers for a player to be named later.
The Phillies, who attempted to trade for Lyle, 36, in the off-season without success, announced Saturday the 1977 Cy Young Award winner was joining the team.
Lyle was 3-2 with a 4.69 earned run average and eight saves in 43 games for the Rangers this year. He has not finished with that high an ERA in 13 previous major league seasons.

Piquet takes grand prix
IMOLA, Italy (UPI) — Brazilian Nelson Piquet charged to the top of the World-Driving Championship Sunday with a convincing win in the Italian Formula One Grand Prix.
The 28-year-old Piquet shot his Brabham into the lead on the fourth lap of the 60-lap race on the Dino Ferrari circuit and held off Australian Williams driver Alan Jones.

Piquet now holds a razor-thin World Championship edge over Jones — 54 points to 53 — with only two races remaining on the Formula One calendar this year. Jones, a winner of three races this year, could not catch up with the Brabham on the demanding track, which is notoriously hard on brakes.
Piquet clocked one hour, 38 minutes and 7.52 seconds, at an average speed of 183.44 kph. In clinching his second straight Grand Prix victory, he won last year's Dutch race.

LeFlore to change jobs
MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Expos announced Sunday that left-fielder Ron LeFlore, who leads the major leagues with 91 stolen bases, will be out of the starting lineup for the balance of the season because of a fractured left wrist.
LeFlore, who will be used as a pinch runner for the remainder of the year, was injured Thursday night during a game between the Chicago Cubs and Expos in Montreal. LeFlore was chasing a foul ball and used his glove hand as a brace prior to running into the fence.
The ex-Tiger free agent was hitting .257 with four home runs and 38 RBI at the time. LeFlore played in 130 of the Expos' 142 games as a starter prior to the injury.

Area rifle team second
BOISE (UPI) — The National Rifle Association says the four-member team representing Idaho's Capital Post American Legion has placed second in competition with other American Legion teams from throughout the nation.
The NRA says Boisean Steve Nielsen obtained the individual high score in the nation, shooting 294 out of a possible 300. The team's total score was 1,103 out of 1,200.
Other team members are: Jim Bays, Pete Jacobsen, Robert "Mac" Hartley.

Arm sidelines Fldrych
DETROIT (UPI) — Hard-luck pitcher Rick Burdette Fldrych, sidelined again with a shoulder problem, has been pulled from the Detroit Tigers rotation and will rest his arm for several days, team officials say.
But Detroit's team physician said Fldrych's latest arm flareup, which took him out of Friday night's game against Cleveland after just six pitches, does not appear to be the same as his earlier, more serious problem.
Tendonitis and related problems kept Fldrych out of the Tigers' pitching rotation for more than two seasons. After a stint in the minors, he returned to the Tigers this season but was uneven.
Team officials said "The Bird," who described his latest problem as "stiffness," will undergo treatment by trainer Bill Behm for a few days.

'The Juice'

The one-time great running back was inducted as the first member of the 'Wall of Fame'

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — For O.J. Simpson, it was a triumphant return to the city where he earned his reputation as one of the National Football League's greatest runners.
The occasion was Simpson's induction Sunday as the first member of the Buffalo Bills' "Wall of Fame" during halftime of the Bills' 20-10 win over the New York Jets.
"The Juice" donned his old uniform and streaked through a maze of cheerleaders to midfield and chants of "O.J., O.J.," from more than 65,000 of his former fans.
"I didn't realize how I missed wearing this uniform," Simpson told the roaring crowd he dazzled during nine seasons. "I want to thank you, the people of Buffalo, for your appreciation, applause and cheers."
"When I came here in my rookie year, I was nervous, didn't have any friends and we weren't winning many games. But it let me understand that in Buffalo, appreciation comes with respect. It's something you earn."

"They were the most valuable years of my life. I'll remember those accomplishments as I live the rest of my life and raise my kids."
Simpson's name and No. 32 jersey were mounted on the concrete facade separating Rich Stadium's upper and lower decks and he received a special "Honor Roll" ring from the Bills.
Simpson's parents, Eunice and James, and his 10-year-old son, Jason, accompanied him, along with Bills owner Ralph C. Wilson Jr.
Simpson, 33, thanked several people for their support during his pro career, including former Buffalo Coach Lou Saban — who Simpson credited with "saving my career."
Simpson also acknowledged the city of San Francisco, where he finished his career with the 49ers, for giving him the opportunity to learn "fair play and good sportsmanship."
Simpson also praised the Bills' 1973 offensive line dubbed "The Electric Company" because it "turned on the Juice" which opened the holes Simpson darted through to an NFL single-season record.

Aerial show lifts Steelers past Colts

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Terry Bradshaw passed for 222 yards and two touchdowns; one a fourth period 52-yard scoring pass to Jim Smith, and Donnie Shell made a key interception late in the game Sunday to rally the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 20-17 victory over the Baltimore Colts.

Bradshaw's TD pass to Smith with 13:17 left to play erased Baltimore's 17-13 lead. Shell intercepted Bert Jones' pass deep in Steeler territory in the final 10 minutes to preserve the Steelers' victory.

Bradshaw also, threw a 10-yard TD pass to Franco Harris and Matt Bark kicked field goals of 25 and 29 yards.

Sanders Silver put the Colts ahead early in the second quarter when he intercepted a Colts pass and returned it 34 yards for a touchdown. Baltimore, 1-1, also scored on Jones' 16-yard pass Raymond Butler and a 33-yard field goal by Steve Mike-Mayer.

Bradshaw's touchdown pass to Smith capped a 49-yard drive, set up by Mike Bragg's 32-yard punt, near the end of the third quarter. Smith outraced cornerback Larry Brazil to the end zone and caught the ball with ease.

Bradshaw's 19-of-34 passes for 250 yards, drove the Colts to the Steelers' three late in the game. But Baltimore was penalized 10 yards for holding on first-and-goal and Shell intercepted Jones on the next play.

Redskins 23, Giants 21
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Mark Muesel kicked a 53-yard field goal with 1:55 left in the game Sunday to blunt the fourth-quarter comeback by New York and lift Washington to a 23-21 triumph over the Giants, ending the Redskins' jinx at Giants Stadium.

Washington kicked by Moseley, who earlier had his streak of 69 consecutive extra-points broken, climaxed a 51-yard drive and came 3:45 after the Giants had taken a 21-20 lead on Phil Simms' 35-yard pass to Tom Mulvey. The key plays were Muesel's 52 and 43 yards by Joe Theismann to John McDaniel and a 12-yard pass to rookie Art Monk as the Redskins won in Giants Stadium for the first time in five attempts.

The Giants, 1-1, had rallied to a 21-20 lead on Steve Grogan's 27-yard TD pass to Clarence Harmon in the opening period and a 37-yard field goal for a second-quarter victory. Washington's other TD came on Wilbur Jackson's 2-yard run in the second quarter.

Chargers 30, Raiders 24
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Dan Fouts passed 25 yards to the end zone in the corner of the end zone 6:50 into the second quarter to give the Chargers a 30-24 victory over the Oakland Raiders.

The Chargers took the ball on their 32 midway through the game. Fouts passed 12 yards to Clarence Williams and on the next play Williams took a 6-yard loss.

On second-down with 16 yards to go, Fouts passed 23 yards to Charlie Joiner and on the next play John Elway kicked a 42-yard field goal to give the Chargers 28-24 lead. Fouts finished the game with 254 yards and four touchdowns.

Bills 20, Jets 10
ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — Free safety Jeff Nixon returned an interception 50 yards for a touchdown and Joe Cribbs scored on a 1-yard plunge Sunday to help the Buffalo Bills to a 20-10 victory over the New York Jets.

Cribbs, a rookie from Auburn, gave Buffalo a 7-3 lead with four minutes gone in the second quarter when he went over from a yard out. The touchdown was set up by a screen pass from Joe Ferguson to tight end Reuben Gann, who rambed 49 yards to the end zone.

On their first possession of the game, the Jets, relying on their running game, went 60 yards on 18 plays but had to settle for a 47-yard field goal by Pat Leahy and a 50-yard field goal by Nick Mike-Mayer, his longest as a Bill, who also collected his first career run for five touchdowns and scored Jeff in the final, Mike-Mayer added a 38-yard field goal at 5:31 in the third quarter to tip the advantage to 13-3.

Eagles 42, Vikings 7
BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Wilbert Montgomery rushed for 169 yards and two touchdowns, including one on a 72-yard burst, and Philadelphia exploded for 28 second-half points Sunday to crush the Minnesota Vikings 42-7.

Montgomery's longest career run for five touchdowns and Leroy Harris ran for two more as the unbeaten Eagles handed the Vikings, now 1-1, their worst defeat since losing 33-0 to Los Angeles in 1967.

Montgomery insured his 15th 100-yard game and collected his longest career run in the first quarter. He sprinted around left-end and broke one tackle before reaching the end zone.

The Eagles led Minnesota to only 32 yards running and kept Tommy Kramer under constant pressure with a fierce pass rush. Minnesota trailed 14-7 at the half before collapsing after an interception by Javoriski, the NFC's top passer last weekend, fired a 45-yard pass to Scott Fitzkee to give the Eagles a 25-7 lead 24 seconds into the fourth quarter. Three minutes later, he hit Harold Carmichael with a 18-yard TD pass.

Harris, after being out three weeks with a knee injury, scored on runs of two and four yards. Montgomery, who gained 71 yards last week, scored his second touchdown from a yard out in the third quarter.

Kramer, No. 2 passer in NFC last week, teamed with Ahmad Rashad on a 16-yard TD pass in the second period to account for Minnesota's lone score.

Dolphins 17, Bengals 16
MIAMI (UPI) — Uwe-von Schamann kicked a 39-yard field goal with 1:55 left by a blocked punt Sunday to give the Miami Dolphins a freak 17-16 come-from-behind victory over the Cincinnati Bengals.

It was the second week in a row the Bengals had lost as a result of a muffed punt. Last week they lost to Tampa Bay 17-12 on a fumble by punter Pat McInally in the closing moments. Sunday it was Steve Largent's fumble that gave the Dolphins a lead. McInally's punt in the last three minutes of the game.

The Dolphins took over on the Cincinnati 30 and gained only eight yards in three carries before von Schamann kicked the winning field goal. Miami had gone into the final period, trailing 14-0.

The Dolphins scored on the first play of the quarter on a 15-yard pass from Don Stock to Nat Moore to make it 14-7 with 4:27 left in the game. The Dolphins' lead was extended to 16-7 when linebacker Reggie Williams tackled Miami fullback Steve Howell in the end zone for a safety.

on TD passes by Steve Grogan of nine yards to tight end Don Hasselbeck and 25 yards to Stanley Miller and a 14-yard run by Don Calhoun.

The victory was the first against New England after two previous losses, raised the Falcons record to 1-1. New England, which has won its first two games of a season only twice in the team's 21-year history, led 10-7.

Barkowski's two TD passes — Miller came in a 4:24 midway in the second period to snap a 14-1 tie. The first of 12 yards capped an 80-yard drive in 11 plays, including a 25-yarder to Miller to the Patriots.

Two plays later, Miller crossed up the New England secondary and was wide open for the TD pass.

New England rookie Preston Brown fumbled the ensuing kick-off and, uncertain whether he could run 111 in the end zone, returned the ball only to the one.

Seahawks 17, Chiefs 6
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Jim "Shred" Drew threw half touchdown passes of 12 yards to Sam McAllister and 14 yards to Sherman Smith Sunday to give the Seattle Seahawks a 17-6 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

Ehren-Herrera also kicked a 19-yard second quarter field goal to stake the Seahawks to a 17-0 lead. Drew's 12-yard pass to Smith set up a second-half Kansas City rally constructed on the kick by Nick Lowery. Lowery had field goals of 50, 23, and a club-record 57-yarder but it was not enough to prevent Kansas City from dropping to 0-2.

Kramer's lone run for two yards and a 1-yard touchdown pass from Steve Fuller. Fuller hit Marshall with 6 seconds left in the first half. Fuller hit 20-of-30 passes for 184 yards.

Zorn completed 17-of-27 for 194 yards. McCullum caught six for 98 yards as Seattle evened its record at 1-1.

Lowery, who beat out Kansas City's all-time leading scorer, Jan Stenerud, for the kicking chores this season, led for the third-longest field goal in NFL history with his 57-yarder. Only Tom Dempsey's 63-yarder for New Orleans and Tony Franklin's 59-yarder for Philadelphia have been longer.

Lions 29, Packers 7
MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Rookie Ed Murray, who has yet to miss in seven tries, kicked five field goals and hooked a 26-yard pass Sunday to spark the Detroit Lions to a 29-7 victory over the Green Bay Packers.

Murray, a seventh-round draft choice from Tulane, kicked field goals of 32, 39, 43, 42 and 23 yards as the Lions won their second game to tie their entire victory total of last year when they finished 2-4. Sims, who rushed for 134 yards in 20 carries, also scored on a 1-yard dive.

The Packers, who dropped to 1-1, scored their only touchdown on a 2-yard run by Eddie LeVey. LeVey, who has scored a total of 70 points in his first two games, pulled away to a 16-7 halftime lead and clinched their dominance in the second half.

DeWolf marched 60 yards on its first offensive series and took a 3-0 lead on Murray's 22-yard field goal. Later in the first period, the Lions put together a 52-yard drive and increased their lead to 6-0 on Murray's 39-yard field goal.

The Lions' lead was extended to 17-0 when LeVey's first two games, pulled away to a 16-7 halftime lead and clinched their dominance in the second half.

Big Sky suffers through disastrous second week

By United Press International
The second weekend of the 1980 collegiate football season — at least as far as the Big Sky Conference is concerned — was almost a complete disaster for six of the seven schools.

Big Sky teams opened the season Sept. 6 with three wins against non-conference teams — including Boise State's stunning 28-7 upset of Utah. But last Saturday six of the Big Sky teams lost to non-league foes, and a seventh team came away with a tie.
