Hospital renovation rejected

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Memorial Hospital's renovation plan received an unexpected setback Thursday night when the Idaho Health Systems Agency voted not to recommend approval of the project.

Saying MVMH's plan to add 45 new acute care beds created a costly surplus of unneeded hospital beds, the state HSA executive committee voted not to issue approval.

The opinion will now be sent to state Director of Health and Welfare Milton Klein who makes the final decision.

Earlier this month, the sub-area council of the HSA recommended approval, and the state HSA breaks tradition in recommending disapproval.

MVMH Administrator Bill Burns expressed dismay at the decision, and denied the hospital's renovation plan will result in an excess of unused beds. He also said if Klein disapproves the project and the hospital either wins an appeal or resubmits their plan all over again, more than $2 million will be added to the total project cost.

However, if Klein approves the project, the renovation program will proceed as planned, Burns said. The hospital, acting on the assumption state approval was forthcoming, has already proceeded with some aspects of the program, including hiring of an architect.

HSA spokesmen said the agency did not question the need for MVMH's renovation or scope of the construction plan. Their only concern, spokesmen said, was that it would create too many beds for the area's needs, in violation of the state's Health Systems Plan.

State health systems agencies were established by federal law about five years ago to allow citizens and health providers to review new health plans in an effort to hold down rising health costs. A recommendation from the Idaho HSA is part of the complex process of gaining state approval of new health care building programs.

Without state approval, the hospital would not be eligible for Medicare or Medicaid reimbursement — a large part of its budget — if it went ahead with the renovation.

Burns said MVMH's proposal to add a new wing and renovate the existing structure is based on long-term planning designed to meet community needs through the year 2000. He contends the plan is not identical to the state's overall Health Systems Plan, but claims their plan only projects needs through 1985 — about the time the hospital's renovation plan would be completed.

"There was no real argument over the renovation," said Mary Ann Saunders, HSA executive administrator. "Their concern is having beds not being used. . . . They're expensive sitting there."

Saunders indicated having excess beds could result in higher hospital rates and said "it's not cost efficient to construct something new that won't be needed for several years."

According to HHS projections, in 1985 MVMH will need 164 beds; in 1990, they will need 168; in 2000 they will need 194.

Homecoming

It was a fine day for a parade despite the chilly winds for Minico High School Sophomores Julie Gibson, 15, and Charlene Speer, 15, as they joined the homecoming parade Friday in downtown Rupert. The homecoming parade for Twin Falls High School is scheduled for October 3 beginning around 1:30 p.m.

The parade will be held on the main street of downtown Rupert. The homecoming parade for Twin Falls High School is scheduled for October 3 beginning around 1:30 p.m.

Nuke missile kills 1 in explosion in silo

DAMASCUS, Ark. (UPI) — Leaking fuel from a Titan II missile armed with a nuclear warhead exploded in its underground silo Friday, killing one Air Force crewman, injuring 21 others and spreading toxic fumes throughout the surrounding area.

About 1,000 residents within 10 miles of the missile site were evacuated from the area and were not allowed back until late afternoon.

There was no nuclear accident or radioactivity released, Defense Department officials said. The Air Force added there was no danger of more fires or explosions.

Defense officials said the missile's warhead does not become fully armed and ready to explode until it is in flight en route to the target.

The explosion jarred the area about 3 a.m. following a night of worry over a fuel leak that had caused an earlier evacuation of about 100 persons in a one-mile radius of the site.

The explosion occurred while the maintenance crew was trying to neutralize the fuel leak in the missile's first stage, the Air Force said.

The leaking fuel was Aerozine 50, which is used as a propellant for the missile and "it is explosive under the right circumstances," an Air Force officer said prior to the explosion.

Air Force Secretary Hans Mark said the fuel leak, which drew the maintenance crew to the site, was caused by a falling wrench socket.

"A three-pound wrench socket fell from about 70 feet, bounced off a thrust mount and struck the missile, puncturing the first stage fuel tank shortly after 6:30 p.m. Thursday," he said.

A technician noticed vapors and evacuated the silo because of indications of a fire, Mark said. He implemented emergency procedures that involved dousing the silo in water to extinguish the fire.

Rowell said debris was "flying from the cloud" and "several pieces of concrete" hit U.S. 65 about four miles away.

People were hurriedly ordered from their homes in a five-mile radius south of the missile site and in a 10-mile radius north of the silo; about 45 miles north of Little Rock.

Five communities were evacuated, including Damascus, about four miles from the site, as law enforcement officers fanned through the area pounding on doors in the middle of the night.

The Federal Aviation Administration placed air space around the silo off limits within a 15-mile radius and "from the ground to infinity."

Reporter jailed over sources

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Statesman reporter Ellen Marks was cited for contempt of court and jailed today for refusing to identify news sources in a story she wrote involving a religious cult and an alleged kidnapping.

Miss Marks, 24, emerged from hiding to undergo an hour of questioning. She declines to answer most of them on the basis of the First Amendment.

Rights before 4th-District Magistrate Judge Karen Yehou ordered law officers to take her to the Ada County jail until she decided to answer all questions.

Later that afternoon, Ellen Marks was released from the Ada County jail for a seven-day stay in the execution of her sentence for contempt of court.

Yehou granted the stay after attorney's for the Idaho Statesman appealed the contempt citation. The stay is automatic under Idaho law if a magistrate's contempt citation is appealed.

The Boise newspaper Thursday published a story written by Miss Marks which detailed the "bizarre" story of a Boise woman who went underground with her daughter to protect her daughter from her former husband's "cult" ties.

Miss Marks agreed not to reveal the identities and whereabouts of at least four persons she talked to in gathering information for the story.

The former husband, Michael Clary, Omaha, Neb., who had legal custody of his 8-year-old daughter Alycia, filed a second-degree kidnapping complaint in the afternoon after the story was published.

Miss Marks was subpoenaed to testify, but failed to appear in court later Thursday. She was a fugitive until her surrender at the Ada County courthouse at 9 a.m. today.

The judge, asked by Marks' attorneys to delay the reporter's incarceration until Monday "to give them time to appeal the contempt citation, said the safety of the missing child was an overriding concern. She said Miss Marks must be compelled to reveal her sources to ensure the return of the girl to the custody of her father.

Mrs. Gilmore's current husband, Randy Gilmore, remained in jail today on Yehou's order for his refusal to tell authorities the whereabouts of his wife and her daughter. He said he didn't know where they were.

Attorney Robert L. Blouw, representing Miss Marks, told the judge the order to jail the reporter "is a rather drastic remedy in this case."

Hike in prime may slow recovery

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most of the country's banks raised their prime rate a quarter-point to 12 1/2 percent in a move Friday that could hurt a hoped-for recovery in the automobile and housing industries.

The hike was a delayed response to increased bank borrowing costs due to lightning actions by the Federal Reserve in late August and early September, according to David M. Langston, economist for Aubrey, G. Langston & Co.

The Fed drained the reserves that banks have available for loans, pushing up the cost of their borrowing certificates of deposit are now in the 11 percent range — to counteract the unexpected bulge in the money supply in early August. That figure came to $10 billion for M-1, the primary money people have available to spend.

The prime had plummeted from a record 20 percent to 10 1/2 percent in a few months time before inching up to the current level.

Jones said, however, the higher prime could jeopardize the recovery this year and early next year, for the hard-hit the automobile industry.

The prime rate charged top creditworthy customers is the base from which other business loans are pegged. Companies already hit by sagging sales, could either be unable or reluctant to borrow.

"There is a very real concern that with the prime so high, car dealers will be unwilling to build up inventories of the new models that Detroit is placing its hopes on," Jones said.

"This will spill over into other sectors of the economy, such as housing and durable goods," he said.

Major budget problems face Idaho legislators

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho lawmakers will be faced with a magnitude of problems in determining the state budget next year if the declining economy continues.

Members of the Joint Legislative Finance Appropriations Committee heard that assessment Friday from Ray Stark, a legislative fiscal officer. He told committee members revenue to the state the first two months of fiscal year 1980 was down in every tax collection category.

If it continues at the same rate, Stark said, the state won't even match the actual fiscal year 1980 revenue figure of $366.3 million, let alone the fiscal management estimate of $380 million.

Stark said a 13.4 percent increase in revenue would be necessary over the next 10 months to reach the projection.

The fiscal officer said the biggest decline in the first two months of the current fiscal year was in the gross collection of motor fuels tax, which was off 15.5 percent. He said the gross collection from motor fuel taxes in July and August this year was $7.7 million, which compared with $9 million the same two months in the fiscal year 1980.

Stark said gross income tax withholdings were off 3.4 percent this fiscal year compared with the same period last year. Sales tax collectors were off 2 percent and money to the tax commission, which amounts to 90 percent of the general account, was down 3.6 percent from $44 million in July and August of fiscal year 1980 to $22.2 million the same two months of this fiscal year.

Stark said there would have to be a "dramatic increase" in the remainder of the fiscal period to reach the fiscal management estimate of $380 million.

He said the fiscal committee faces a "magnitude of problems" at the next legislative session in its deliberation of budgets for fiscal year 1982.

Legislative fiscal officers indicated that budget requests for fiscal year 1982 would amount to between $40 million and $60 million.

Fiscal officer Gordon Fisher said fiscal year 1982 estimates were conservative, but "even being conservative is going to be a tough job."

Fisher noted that the Department of Health and Welfare is facing a $10.3 million shortfall in its Aid to Dependent Children and the Aid caseload continues to rise.

"The department is not encouraged the caseload will drop," he said.

Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, said it would be "criminal" if the present economy continues to raise taxes just so state government can continue. He said raising taxes during a depressed economy was not a viable solution.

Hospital decides it will house mentally ill detained by police

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Memorial Hospital has reversed its decision not to house mentally ill persons detained by police.

After Judge Mike Redman clarified an interpretation of the Idaho statute concerning such detentions, the hospital agreed to continue to hold persons deemed dangerous to themselves or others.

Redman, MVMH administrator Bill Burns, county commissioners, Sheriff Jim Munz, doctors and Community

Mental Health representatives met Friday morning and "reached an interpretation everyone can work with," according to Tom Gray, assistant prosecuting attorney.

After studying the law, Redman concluded a judge may issue a written or verbal order allowing the hospital to house mental patients until a sanity hearing is held, which can be as long as a week, Gray said.

MVMH had said it could not legally accept mental patients after Sept. 15, as the hospital was not a psychiatric "treatment facility," something stipulated by the Idaho Code. Burns also called the hospital's three psychiatric rooms inadequate and unsafe.

However, Redman "concluded the hospital qualified as a 'holding facility,'" and Gray said the county agreed to help the hospital improve its rooms to minimize potential liability.

Mental Health representatives said they would increase in-service training on how to handle mental patients for MVMH nurses, and law enforcement officers said they would send persons "when needed" to control violent patients, Gray said.

Burns still expressed some reservations: "I think the thing that bothers me is we are not doing anything for the person in the room and locking it."

Gray said, "What we came up with is an awareness of the problem, (and) of operating under a code that's not specifically in place. The community needs something better to help out mentally-ill people."

Coin caper

There is a coin scam going on in San Francisco. The coins are marked USA Gold and are authentic looking coins, but when they are held in an envelope face-up, they have a bear on the back which makes them bogus. If authentic, they would be worth $600. They're being sold for $10.

MVMH now has 145 beds. After construction they will have 175 beds, which MVMH administrators say they will need in 2000. That figure is four less than HSA's projection.

However, Saunders said "Whether there is a need for them (the beds) by the year 2000, if they build them today they're going to sit there a long time." She contends that by the time the beds are needed, given technological innovations, they may be obsolete.

In contrast, not only does Burns contend 180 beds will be in use by 2000, but he said there will be a demand for these beds before then; with a recent influx of doctors to the area, he said at times this summer, 90 percent of the hospital's beds were used, when the national average runs about 75 percent.

He also denied beds could be the hospital by "letting there be, for example, the entire new fifth floor of the hospital, which would be entirely patient beds could be closed (eliminating utility costs) if additional services were needed."

Saunders said the HSA believes the hospital should add beds as needed, otherwise "health systems as a whole will increase costs because we're building services we're not using."

However Burns claims the hospital will save money by building facilities now, when money is available, rather than in the future when it may not be so.

He denies Saunders' contention that depreciation would offset any savings from building now. He noted 76 of the projected 190 beds would be renovated from beds now located in the present hospital building, which is already "rapidly depreciating"—114 of them would be located in a new wing.

Burns also termed the HSA's adherence to five-year projections "irrational" when most long-range plans call for 20-year projections.

The HSA can only issue approval or disapproval of a project and therefore could not approve the project on the condition the number of beds be reduced.

"It's not that we don't think renovation is important, it's just we must avoid excess capacity in our health care systems," Saunders said.

We're responsible under law for reviewing applications based on our planning documents. It's highly unfortunate the application included those extra beds."

If Klein disapproves the project, the hospital will appeal to the regional director of the federal Health and Human Service Department, Burns said.

If that fails, the hospital may re-submit the building proposal, but because of new legislation, it must be reworked to fit new "Certificate of Need" requirements effective Oct. 1. A newly appointed board has yet to draw-up regulations for applicants.

Saunders predicts it will be ready in January before the process could begin again.

Burns claims this delay could cost the hospital "millions of dollars" in financing costs incurred by entering the bond market at a less favorable time.

Burns also questions the HSA executive board's voting procedure. Thursday, initially, the executive committee board split 5-5 on a motion to approve the project, with committee chairman Eula Sims voting to create a tie, with the motion not to pass. In a second vote, members voted 5-4 against the project, with Eula Sims abstaining.

Burns said, "I've never seen a chairman vote to make a tie; only break them." However, John Collins, HSA director of Studies and Review, said the chairman could vote on all motions, and two committee members contacted by the Times-News said Sims has often exercised that option.

Burns said the building program preparations would proceed unless Klein votes against the project. But for the project's general contractor will be opened Friday.

Shogun enjoying high ratings

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Half the country was expected to watch the finale of the hit mini-series "Shogun" Friday night, but star Richard Chamberlain said the numbers of Americans watching were growing with each installment of the five-night series.

Chamberlain, now on location in Toronto, said Thursday that he has seen only two hours of the movie so far because of his busy filming schedule which involves shooting tonight and he didn't plan to watch Friday's episode.

"I still haven't seen the entire 12 hours," he said in a telephone interview, "but what I have seen is a very good one."

The week-long blockbuster, a story of feudal Japan told largely in Japanese without English subtitles, is enjoying ratings that may be second only to television's greatest dramatic success, "Roots."

The overnight ratings for Thursday night gave the two-hour series a 44 rating and a 66 percent audience share in San Francisco.

Dengue fever case reported

ATLANTA (UPI) — The first case of dengue, or "breakbone" fever, transmission in the continental United States in 39 years was reported Friday by federal health officials.

The dengue fever virus, type one, spread by the Aedes aegypti mosquito, was identified in a 5-year-old child in the Texas-Mexico border city of Brownsville.

The outbreak is being monitored by the Centers for Disease Control because of the proximity of the illness in northeastern Mexico, areas of the southeastern United States infested with the mosquito carrier were at risk of dengue introduction and transmission during the recent summer months.

There are four dengue viruses, each capable of producing a very similar disease. The ailment is characterized by intense joint and muscle aches, severe headache and a high fever, but it is not usually fatal.

Blood of saint liquefies

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — The blood of Naples patron saint, San Gennaro, liquefied Friday before 6,000 cheering Neapolitans and tourists, church officials said.

Almost simultaneously, in the Naples suburb of Pozzuoli, stones reddened in the Flaviio amphitheater where San Gennaro was beheaded by the Romans for his Christian activities in the year 305 A.D., the officials said.

For many Neapolitans, the liquefying of the blood and the reddening of stains on the amphitheater stones signified a miracle, portending peace and prosperity in the coming year.

Israel quiet on Yom Kippur

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel virtually shut down at sunset Friday for the 24-hour fast of Yom Kippur, Judaism's most solemn holy-day and the seventh anniversary of the surprise attack that launched the 1973 Middle East war.

The Day of Atonement, and the suspension of all but emergency services that it annually occasions, began with the traditional no-food, no-water fast at 5:04 p.m. (19:04 a.m. MDT) in Tel Aviv. The fast ends at sunset on Saturday.

Radio and television went off the air for the duration with emergency crews standing by to announce army mobilization codes in case of war.

It was Yom Kippur and a Saturday, Oct. 6, 1973, when soldiers and reservists in religious and secular alike — left their synagogues and homes to answer thundering guns on the Suez Canal and Golan Heights that heralded the surprise start of 18 days of fighting with Egypt and Syria.

Cambodia goes under wraps

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Phnom Penh ordered all foreign journalists to leave the country Friday in a move Western diplomats said could signal new fighting between the Vietnamese-backed government and rebels led by deposed Premier Pol Pot.

"It could be that they are expecting some activity by Pol Pot's rebel forces and they want to be sure no Western journalists are around to report it," one diplomat said.

Or "they may be planning something sinister (such as another invasion of Thailand) and they don't want any witnesses around," the diplomat speculated.

Most analysts, however, consider it unlikely the Vietnamese will initiate any military action against Thailand until the debate on Cambodia's seat is concluded at the United Nations. The Khmer Rouge rebels are still recognized as the legitimate government of Cambodia at the United Nations.

Somoza assassin killed

ASUNCION, Paraguay (UPI) — Police sources said Friday that an Argentine terrorist killed in a police raid was the leader of the hit team that assassinated former Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza.

As Somoza's body was flown to Miami, Fla., for burial, police mounted a nation-wide hunt for a suspected woman terrorist believed to have links with a member of the ruling Sandinista Junta in Nicaragua.

Police said Hugo Irurzun, an Argentine terrorist known by the codename of "Captain Sanluis," was shot and killed late Thursday in a raid on a house in Asuncion.

Police sources said Irurzun had now been identified as the leader of the hit squad believed to have numbered eight men and women.

The dead crewman was identified as Sgt. David Livingstone, age and home address unknown. Officials say he died in a Little Rock hospital.

After extensive tests that lasted most of the day, state health officials sent evacuated residents back to their homes about 4:30 p.m. Friday.

Dr. Robert Young, director of the state Department of Health, said officials from the NRC, nuclear specialists from the Air Force Base in New Mexico and Strategic Air Command authorities from Omaha, Neb., checked a five-mile radius area near the missile with sensitive electronic equipment. Young said.

A spokesman for the Strategic Air Command in Omaha, Neb., said that Air Force personnel were injured and it remained hospitalized.

President Carter ordered the Defense Department to investigate the cause of the explosion and to inspect the 53 other Titan installations in the nation.

Eighteen of the Titans are in Arkansas. They are intercontinental ballistic missiles 103 feet high and 10 feet in diameter that can deliver a nuclear warhead anywhere in the world.

The explosion pushed a fiery orange cloud into the early morning and forced about 1,400 people from their homes.

Two women at an eye-care center in Morrilton were treated after complaining of an "odd feeling" in their lips and throat," apparently from the fumes. They were released after treatment.

There have been several incidents of fuel leaks at missile sites. Officials of Martin-Marietta Corp., which built the Titan, refused any comment on the explosion. A spokesman referred questions about the missile's alleged problems to the Air Force.

A leak from an above ground fuel tank in 1978 at the Damascus site resulted in hospitalization of several persons who were exposed to fumes. Two men died in a leak in Kansas. Fifty-three members of a construction crew were killed in a Titan missile site near Searcy, Ark., in August 1965 as they were converting the site from Titan I to Titan II missiles. (See analysis of problems of aging missiles A7).

Brown asks nuke labs off campus

JERRY BROWN no war weapons

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — University of California regents, accused in a heated exchange by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of conducting a cover-up for arms makers, Friday voted over his protests for the university to continue managing two federal nuclear weapons laboratories.

University of California President David Saxon defended the decision as necessary "to the national interest."

Immediately after the 15-5 vote, a disappointed Brown proposed that an "oversight committee" be established to monitor the university-lab relations which began during World War II when the atomic bomb was developed. The regents decided to turn the motion over to a special committee for study.

In calling for an end to the university's management of the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory and Los Alamos National Laboratory, Brown said the "competency of this question is beyond the competency of this board."

In an unusually emotional speech that evoked a storm of protest from anti-nuclear groups in the audience, Brown charged that the labs are "basically a cover and an insulation mechanism so that the labs can do pretty much what they want."

"This is not a trivial issue. We're talking about survival of the human race," he said. "I don't think this board which is competent to handle campus parking tickets and housing questions has the wisdom, the time, the temperament or the inclination necessary to resolve this... most serious business."

Brown later told reporters he "intended to do everything I can in the next two years to separate the University of California from the nuclear weapons business."

When Brown had finished speaking, red-faced regents, one by one, stood up to denounce his charges.

Regent John Henning, his voice cracking with emotion, said "The governor's words are false and insulting and I resent them."

Rep. Jenrette on trial

Abscam prosecution rests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government rested its case Friday in Rep. John Jenrette's Abscam trial, two weeks after it told the jury it would show the South Carolina Democrat was willing to take a bribe.

Jenrette, who was indicted in the government's case against Jenrette and co-defendant John Slove on charges they conspired to receive $100,000 in advance of a private immigration bill for a certain number of persons.

The defense called one witness and was scheduled to resume its case on Monday.

The government introduced evidence showing Jenrette on videotapes discussing a bribe offer last Dec. 4 at a Washington townhouse where the FBI operated a fake business set up as part of its Abscam operation.

On that tape, Jenrette told undercover agent Anthony Amoroso, "I have larceny in my blood."

The jury watched a videotape two days later when Slove picked up $50,000 in cash and heard a taped telephone conversation of Jenrette telling an undercover FBI agent he "had received" the package.

Undercover informant Melvin Weinberg testified Friday he thought up the idea of the Abscam operation, but FBI agents carried it out.

When defense lawyer Kenneth Robinson suggested the operation was entrapment, Weinberg replied, "They can walk in or they can walk out. The door swings both ways."

"You were paid by the FBI to be deceptive," Robinson said. "Don't you have to be deceptive to catch crooks?"

"You can call it that way," Weinberg said.

Earlier, Robinson charged—that Weinberg pretended he was a mobster dealing with politicians. But Weinberg said he was only dressing the part — wearing flashy clothes and jewelry — but not acting "like a mobster."

He said the investigation began when the FBI decided to find out if the mob had penetrated Atlantic City's casino industry.

"We didn't play the part of the hoodlum or mobster," Weinberg said. "When you deal with wise guys, they won't open up to you if you're wearing a three-piece suit. You have to dress like a wise guy."

He said wise guy is a term for mobster or hoodlum.

Robinson has maintained that Jenrette thought he was dealing with an organized crime figure and feared for his life.

Newcastle outbreak reported

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Federal officials have destroyed more than 1,000 Kansas City, Mo., pet store birds infected with the deadly virus exotic Newcastle disease.

Birds suspected of exposure were recently shipped to 10 Kansas and 19 Missouri pet shops, said Wayne Baggett, a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The disease was brought into the country through parrots and other pet birds imported through a Miami company, said Baggett. The disease does not affect humans but is fatal to birds when they are young.

Baggett said lab results from the National Veterinary Services Laboratory in Ames, Iowa, confirmed that the birds at the Missouri store had the disease, he said. Birds from a Wichita shop were shipped to the Iowa lab Thursday to be checked for the disease, he said.

Whenever birds are confiscated for testing, the pet facility is quarantined, and no other birds can be sold, said Baggett. If test results confirm the birds have the disease, others from that shop will be destroyed.

Baggett said store owners are contacted to trace birds already sold, so they can be destroyed. Pet store owners are reimbursed by the USDA, he said.

Baggett said there is no vaccine against the disease, which has symptoms such as respiratory and coordination problems, swelling of the head and severe diarrhea.

"All birds are affected by the exotic Newcastle," Baggett said. "But the concern here is that the disease also affects the poultry."

Several USDA task forces have been established across the country, including one in Topeka, Kan., in an effort to keep the disease from spreading to poultry. Besides Kansas and Missouri, the Topeka office will be working in eight other states where pet stores may have received shipments from the Miami company.

The other states are Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, Wyoming, Utah, Montana, South Dakota and North Dakota.

Pet Parrot, Inc. of Miami Thursday halted importation of birds that may have been exposed to exotic Newcastle, but not before shipping as many as 20,000 infected birds to 33 states and Canada—the Bahamas and the Virgin Islands.

A 1972 outbreak of the disease decimated poultry flocks and caused officials to exterminate 12 million chickens.

Actors strike talks inch forward

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Discouraged producers, recessing talks with striking actors Friday for the high Jewish holiday, Yom Kippur, said they didn't foresee a settlement of the nine-week strike that has halted 67,000 actors and disrupted the fall television schedule.

"We are extremely discouraged," said chief industry negotiator Phil Myers. "The (union) is holding to positions on the important economic issues which present a barrier to settling the strike. As long as the union holds to these positions, we don't see how we can settle this strike and get our industry back into production."

But Dick Moore, spokesman for the striking Screen Actors Guild and American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, expressed some optimism, saying he "believed the current round of negotiations would lead to a settlement."

The actors rejected an industry offer of basic pay increases of 12, 8 and 8 percent for three years. The union said it would make a counter proposal when the talks resume Sunday after the recess.

Wage increases, reruns, syndication and foreign release were some of the issues still on the table, but earlier this week the crucial issue of residuals for the home video and pay television market was settled.

The residual agreement gave the actors 4.5 percent of the gross revenues from the home video cassette, disc and pay-TV markets after shows are exhibited for 10 playing days within a one-year period.

A total of 67,000 actors have been struck, along with thousands of craft workers not directly involved in negotiations, but affected by the industry shutdown.

Meanwhile, members of the musicians union intensified picketing plans and threatened to prolong the labor disputes in the entertainment industry even after actors and producers settle.

Several hundred musicians Thursday picketed Universal Studios, the largest of the Hollywood employers. Talks between the 6,500-member American Federation of Musicians and the Association of Motion Picture and Television Producers have stalled over the issue of residuals.

A spokesman for the Screen Actors Guild said actors would be reluctant to cross the musicians' picket lines and musicians have warned the lines actors' strike is resolved.

Judge halts exhumation of Oswald's body

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — A judge Friday rejected a plan to move the presumed grave of presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, saying rumors a Russian agent buried there were not enough to violate the grave.

A lawyer for Marina Oswald Porter, widow of the slain assassin, expressed some optimism, saying she "believed the porting the position of Robert Oswald, Lee Harvey's brother, who claimed he owned the cemetery plot and did not want it dug up because it would bring him unwanted publicity.

The judge ruled the theories of Englishman Richard Edgewood were insufficient reasons to have the grave opened, despite Mrs. Porter having given Edgewood permission. Courtroom sources said an appeal was a certainty.

Wright said his opinion was based on legal precedent dating to 1867 and the civil law of ancient Rome. Edgewood said he would "return to England and fairly shortly for a few weeks," but expected to be back in Dallas.

Mrs. Porter testified she thought it possible she married an impostor in Russia in 1961.

Edgewood, who wrote a book "The Oswald File," claims a Russian agent took Oswald's identity when Oswald defected to Russia in 1959. Edgewood said the agent returned to the United States with wife Marina and a child, in 1962 and killed Kennedy a year later.

Edgewood has never flatly stated that Oswald was replaced, only that there is a "50-50 chance," sufficient reason for the exhumation. The evidence involves physical discrepancies between the assassin's corpse and Oswald's previous medical records.

Tampon related disease kills woman from Idaho

SPOKANE (UPI) — A young Idaho woman has died of toxic shock syndrome and three others in the Spokane area have become ill recently after using the Rely tampon-an infectious disease specialist reports.

All four suffered from the disease, which is characterized by sudden high fever, rash, vomiting and diarrhea, according to Dr. Patrick Tennenan of the Sacred Heart Medical Center in Spokane.

Dr. Tennenan said the Idaho woman died after she had been transferred to Spokane, where rapidly progressing shock led to her death despite "massive supportive care."

The two Spokane women became ill in August and September. Both were expected to recover fully, while a fourth is recovering in an Idaho hospital, he said.

Dr. Tennenan said he could not disclose any other details about the women because of patient confidentiality laws.

Following a federal government report that the disease is linked to the use of tampons, especially the Rely brand, Procter & Gamble, makers of Rely, announced Thursday that production would be temporarily halted.

Dr. Tennenan is advising women to recognize Rely tampons as "the major risk factor" and if they develop toxic shock syndrome symptoms, they should consult a physician "as rapidly as possible, preferably a doctor knowledgeable in the area of infectious diseases."

Washscam trial goes to jury

SEATTLE (UPI) — This week-old influence-peddling trial of three state political figures who became involved in "a bogus attempt to bring slot machines and blackjack games into Washington state" went to the jury Friday.

The seven-man, five-woman jury began deliberations in the Washscam (for "Washington scam") trial after U.S. District Judge Walter McGovern gave brief instructions.

The jury must plow through 26 counts of conspiracy, racketeering and mail fraud lodged against Senate Majority Leader Gordon Walgren; former House Speaker and gubernatorial hopeful John Bagnariol; and long-time lobbyist Patrick Gallagher.

The defendants allegedly promised undercover FBI agents—posing as mobsters from the fictitious "So-Cal Enterprises"—they would help legalize gambling in Washington for a 6 percent cut of the profits.

The government charges that the three men agreed to a profit-sharing deal with the agents on Feb. 13, 1979. Under the alleged plan, the three would have used their "considerable influence to pass legislation favorable to legalization of gambling in return for a cut of the take, testimony disclosed.

Some 50 hours of tapes recorded by the agents were the backbone of the government's case in the trial.

The defendants said they considered the agents legitimate businessmen. Their attorneys told the jury the defendants were victims of a carefully orchestrated FBI sting characterized by innuendo, a sometimes malfunctioning tape recorder and undercover agents who did not play fair.

Bagnariol was arrested in April, a matter of days before he was to officially open his campaign to attempt to unseat Gov. Dixy Lee Ray in the primary election.

Walgren was running for state attorney general at the time of his arrest, dropped out of that race, then won re-election to the his state Senate seat in Tuesday's primary election.

Pennsylvania lottery said rigged

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — A grand jury Friday recommended charges against persons, including a TV personality, for allegedly cheating the state out of $1.2 million by rigging the "Number Game" lottery with loaded ping pong balls.

The winning number in the April 21 drawing was 666, and it paid a record $35 million to lottery players. Only those involved in the alleged scheme would have to pay back their winnings, officials said.

According to the grand jury, the six persons joined in a conspiracy to inject a liquid into all the ping pong balls used in the lottery drawing except the numbers four and six — so those would easily be propelled into three separate winning selection tubes.

Soviets mass on border . . .

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund Muskie said Friday "it would be wise not to overlook" the possibility an unusual buildup of Soviet troops on the eastern and western borders of Poland is connected with Polish political developments.

Muskie said the United States is "monitoring the Soviet troop buildup closely and we try to evaluate them as we go."

"Whenever there is a coincidence of a political development and these exercises in that area of the world one would be wise not to overlook the coincidence," he said.

A State Department official said the buildup, which was noticed about three days ago, may be connected with the normal fall maneuvers of the Warsaw Pact in Eastern Europe.

Under the Helsinki Agreement, signatory members, including the Soviet Union, are supposed to notify their neighbors of any military maneuvers involving large numbers of troops.

There has been no such notification from the Soviets.

One administration official noted Friday, "The agreement only says that they have to notify us in advance about military maneuvers. It doesn't say they have to notify us in advance about an invasion."

State Department officials said the Soviets have been repeatedly informed of the U.S. view the Polish internal crisis should be handled by the Polish authorities and the people, without interference from any outside power.

On Wednesday, officials said, increased Soviet military activity was detected, apparently by U.S. satellites and radio monitors, just to the east of Poland in the Soviet Union, and to the west, in East Germany.

On Wednesday, when asked by reporters if he would take the obvious next step and link the buildup to events in Poland, said, "I wouldn't draw that conclusion. We are watching it closely."

Persian Gulf war continues escalation

By United Press International

Iran said its army and air force battled Iraqi troops along the border in "intense" day-long fighting Friday and warned the conflict could escalate into naval battles for control of the vital Shatt-Al-Arab outlet to the Persian Gulf.

Tehran Radio monitored in London by the BBC, quoted a military communique as saying, "Intense ground and air fighting is still going on along most of the Iran-Iraq border."

"Naval clashes are likely today and in the next few days," the radio said.

It said Iranian troops launched a "number of successful" attacks against Iraqi border positions, but added that two Iranian F-5 fighter planes had crashed, one of them in Iraqi territory.

The escalated fighting, which appeared to push the two countries to the brink of all-out war, followed Iraq's abrogation Wednesday of a 1975 treaty giving Iran use of the Shatt-Al-Arab waterway as a Persian Gulf outlet for its large oil refinery at Abadan.

Tehran Radio played martial music throughout the day, interrupting the program with military bulletins on the fighting.

. . . As Poland faces more strikes

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — A new wave of strikes by transportation workers spread through the vital coal-mining region of Silesia Friday and the new, free-trade unions criticized the government's mounting campaign against Polish dissidents.

Dissident sources said that strikes by transit workers in the southern city of Katowice spread to "all of upper Silesia," Poland's vital industrial and coal-mining region, halting public transportation.

"The strikes involve bus- and tram drivers all over Upper Silesia," a spokesman for the dissident Committee for Social Self-Defense said.

"They want wage increases and Saturdays off," the spokesman said.

Scattered strikes by workers demanding wage increases or protesting alleged harassment of their new independent trade unions have persisted across Poland since the main nationwide walkouts ended two weeks ago.

The state-run television reported Thursday that at least 16 strikes were still going on at various enterprises.

The leaders of the independent unions that the workers won the right to form issued a statement criticizing the mounting press and Communist Party attacks on "anti-socialist forces" allegedly trying to infiltrate the workers' movement.

The statement, released in the Baltic port of Gdansk and distributed by the dissident group that has been the main target of the government's attack, rebuffed assertions that political dissidents were "anti-socialist" or were trying to "infiltrate" the unions.

"The inter-factory committee of independent self-government trade unions in Gdansk declares that it does not know anything about any anti-socialist forces which now or ever

U.S. compiles records of involvement in Iran

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Friday it has compiled classified documents and other materials detailing the troubled history of American relations with Iran — but that no judgments of credit or blame were made.

Secretary of State Edmund Muskie said it was wrong to place any label — such as an acceptance by the United States of fault in Iran — on what he called a miscellaneous collection of papers.

The materials were said to have been compiled on President Carter's orders in case Congress demanded them or the Tehran government insists on a full accounting of U.S. policy involving Iran and the late Shah as a condition for releasing the American hostages.

"I was aware that there were being assembled papers of one kind or another which might be useful at such time as an inquiry into Iran policy, government or otherwise, might be undertaken by the Congress or someone," Muskie told reporters.

"There is no quote document unquote. There is an inventory of papers, as I understand it."

The State Department said it would not hand over the collection to the Iranians, but did not flatly rule out using it as a basis for evidence before an international inquiry into U.S.-Iran relations.

The Washington Post reported that since last December, the State Department had collected about 60,000 pages of government documents pertaining to U.S. relations with Iran.

The Post said the collection apparently contains "no bombshells," and does not compare to the historic Pentagon Papers of the 1970s. Those sensitive documents detailed U.S. involvement in Vietnam and the decisions that led to American military intervention there.

"This is not the Pentagon papers," said State Department spokesman John Traftner. "It is not a history or analysis of U.S. relations with Iran. There is no study as such, only a collection of documents and factual summaries on past U.S. relations with Iran."

State Department spokesman John Traftner declined to say who ordered the documents collected or why. He insisted the information was not a report on U.S. involvement in Iranian policy.

Bombs mark 'celebration' of Marcos' power

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Terrorists exploded a bomb at Manila University Friday, injuring one student, and police went on a nationwide alert to brace for more bombings timed to coincide with the approaching eighth anniversary of martial law.

Mal. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, chief of the paramilitary Philippine Constabulary, said he expected more attacks before Sunday's anniversary.

Other terrorist campaigns to topple the regime of President Ferdinand B. Marcos already has killed one person — an American woman — and injured more than 30 others since the almost daily bombings began Aug. 22.

Police also were kept busy chasing down 31 bomb threats. Anonymous callers said bombs had been placed at the United Embassy, the Manila-based Asian Development Bank and the Philippine Daily Express newspaper, among other targets.

The calls proved false but bombs were discovered and dismantled at a suburban Manila bus station and the De La Salle College, authorities said.

For the first time since World War II, troops were manning street checkpoints and guards were frisking persons entering buildings.

Authorities have declared Sunday's martial law anniversary a national holiday and Marcos is to appear on television as part of his efforts to celebrate his own first-termed rule.

On Sept. 21, 1972, Marcos, 63, declared martial law to eradicate what he said were leftist and rightist conspiracies trying to topple him. Critics charge he has used martial law to

Bomb blasts open offensive of leftists in San Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Eight bombs ripped through banks, stores, and a discotheque Friday to mark what left-wing terrorists said was the start of a general offensive to topple the U.S.-backed civilian military junta.

Other terrorists holding 11 hostages in the office of the Organization of American States demanded and received their first food and medicine since they stormed into Wednesday in a blaze of gunfire, wounding five persons.

There were no casualties in the San Salvador bombings but clashes between troops and leftists throughout the country claimed at least 25 lives, authorities said.

The terrorists seized the local OAS office to demand the release of 200 political prisoners and an end to the state of siege declared by the embattled, U.S.-backed government.

Leftist groups, which have formed a joint front to topple the junta, said through a spokesman that the San Salvador bombings marked the start of a "general offensive" aimed to disrupt the economically important coffee harvest.

Leftists called on peasants who pick the coffee beans to "appropriate" the crop to prevent it from being exported.

The army responded by patrolling the plantations, highways and coffee collection centers.

The bombs damaged five banks, two stores and a discotheque. Authorities blamed the People's Revolutionary Army, one of the terrorist movements of the leftist coalition, for the attacks.

Other violence claimed another 25 lives around the Central American nation.

Authorities said five leftists and one soldier were killed while troops stormed the cathedral they had been occupying in San Miguel, 84 miles east of the capital.

Hua faces growing challenge

PEKING (UPI) — The Chinese Communist Party Friday indirectly challenged Chairman Hua Guofeng's claim to party leadership as Mao Tse-tung's handpicked heir, signaling an escalated struggle to oust him from the country's top power.

A lengthy article prominently displayed in the party newspaper, People's Daily, hit at the very root of Hua's claim to the chairmanship by digging Mao's right to personally pick his successor.

It also criticized Mao's one-man rule and called for a collective leadership.

Shortly before Mao died in September, 1976, he reportedly told Hua, "I have chosen you as my successor. That led to Hua's virtually unopposed assumption of the party chairmanship but Hua's opponents now are moving fast."

They recently eased him out of the government premiership and appear to be ready to stage a final assault on his party leadership, one foreign analyst said.

Hua's opponents — pragmatists headed by Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping — are eager to modernize China through drastic economic reform and see Hua as a rallying point for die-hard Maoists resisting change.

The People's Daily disputed Mao's right to personally appoint a successor, comparing the act to the practice of emperors in feudal times.

Under the present socialist system, the article said, the people are the masters of the nation.

"Since the authority of the leader himself came from the people, he naturally has no right to pick his successor because the post does not belong to him."

It said the question of succession should be decided by the people through normal democratic processes.

Starr attraction

Former Beatle Ringo Starr takes his fiancée Barbara Bach on a Fifth Avenue shopping spree. The two, who've announced intentions to wed early next year, are awaiting the release of their movie, "Caveman," filmed in Mexico this summer.

NO OFF SWITCH
You might call Diana Ross an overachiever. She had just finished her opening show Thursday — the first of six sold-out concerts she's staging in Providence, R.I. — when she wondered aloud what she could do with her free time. Promoter Frank Russo told her the Commodores were in town and suggested she catch the end of their concert at the nearby Civic Center. She did — and wound up on stage, singing the rest of the night away before 12,000 Commodores fans.

MUSICAL MENU

No one ever thinks to ask what sort of music the superstar listens to around the house. In Frank Sinatra's case, it isn't his own. "Ol' Blue Eyes says his own records are an embarrassment because... I always hear where I could have done better." On the other hand, he doesn't feel critical about melodies from Puccini, Verdi, Leoncillo and other practitioners of his favorite fare. Just as he likes Italian food on his table, he likes Italian opera on his stereo.

JOB FOR O'MALLEY

If Desmond O'Malley ever gets tired of being Ireland's minister for industry, commerce and tourism, he's got a job in New York. He met Mayor Ed Koch Thursday and they swapped gifts — silver candlesticks for Koch and ties bearing the Big Apple seal for O'Malley and Irish Consul General Sean O'Huigin. Then Koch made his pitch. Said he, "We have a vacancy. We are looking for a deputy mayor for economic development. So if I get you a green card..."

BEHIND THE NAME: Rocky Graziano was born Rocco Barbella.

Guns leave O'Brian deaf

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Actor Hugh O'Brian is now suffering the consequences of all those shoot-outs he won in television westerns back in the late 1950s and early 60s — a progressive loss of hearing.

"They used full loads, which I insisted on because I wanted reality," O'Brian, 50, who starred in the television series "The Life and Legend of Wyatt Earp" from 1955-61, recalled in an interview Friday.

"The crew all wore muffs and ear plugs. They begged me not to use full loads saying, 'You're stupid, you're going to hurt your ears,'" he said. "But I was a young buck who didn't want to listen."

O'Brian, who was in Jacksonville this week to make a half-hour film on hospital emergency rooms for the Florida Medical Association, said, "I'm now suffering from nerve damage due to that tremendous amount of noise."

But the worst part of his hearing problem, O'Brian said is its effect on others.

"It's bad enough on me, but it's very disconcerting to people to not be understood and have me continually going, 'Huh? Huh?'"

O'Brian has spent most of his time in recent years planning leadership seminars for high school sophomores around the country and organizing the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation.

Being Ronald Reagan is a drag

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Eyebrows rise and smirks appear when he's introduced.

"People are downright dubious when he says his pollies are akin to eastern liberals."

And the going really gets rough in the singles bars he frequents with his friend, a Hollywood press agent.

"The problem for 40-year-old sex therapist Ronald Reagan is his name. In the bars recently a pattern has emerged, Reagan said Friday.

"A woman asks me what I do, I say I do a lot of sex therapy. She's not going to say that at all," he says.

"Then she's going to ask my name and I introduce myself and my friend the Hollywood press agent says, 'You know I don't stand a chance.'"

Making things worse, Reagan said he's completely opposed to the presidential candidate whose name he shares.

"I don't like Ronald Reagan at all," Ronald Reagan laments.

When he was younger, in the days when the Republican politician played other roles, psychologists Reagan says people carried their impressions of him with their feelings toward the actor.

"Little old ladies would find out my name and start complimenting the actor thinking they were complimenting me," he said.

Once he received a letter from a Maryland family that had mistaken him for the actor, it requested he send a letter to their elderly mother, a long-time Ronald Reagan fan.

"I went out, bought her a card and sent it," he sighed.

Russia released this photo of its latest space launch

Cuban will dock with Salyut-6

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Cuban and a Soviet cosmonaut maneuvered their spacecraft toward a docking with the Salyut-6 space station Friday in a mission whose aims looked to be more political than scientific.

Like the flight of the first Vietnamese cosmonaut sent aloft during the Moscow Olympics, the choice of Lt. Col. Arnaldo Tamayo Mendez as the first Cuban spaceman was seen by observers as a gesture to emphasize Soviet good will toward the Third World and non-aligned nations.

Experts said their flight aboard the Soyuz-38 spacecraft was not expected to differ significantly from past Soviet space missions, and that the cosmonauts were not carrying any new equipment or planning to conduct new experiments.

Commanding Soyuz-38 was veteran Soviet cosmonaut Col. Yuro Romanenko. He and Tamayo, who has trained in the Soviet Union for the mission since 1978, blasted off at about midnight Thursday amid a flurry of tributes from Soviet officials. The docking with Salyut-6, where cosmonauts Valery Ryumin and Yuri Popov were waiting to greet them, is expected to occur at about 3 p.m. EDT.

The official Tass news agency reported the two spacemen were feeling well and operations were going according to schedule.

The state-run television devoted a 2 1/2 hour special to the taking from the Baikonur central Asian launching pad, including a shot of Cuban President Fidel Castro watching the liftoff back in Havana.

Interviews with the spacemen were aired throughout Friday, showing Romanenko with his arm around his Cuban colleague, or the two standing at salute in Red Square.

Western observers said the uncharacteristic pre-flight coverage in the Soviet press seemed intended to impress Third World countries, which pay close attention to Cuba as the current chairman of the so-called non-aligned movement.

Tamayo, 38, the seventh non-Soviet launched under the Intercosmos space program, was born in Guantanamo, Cuba, and was orphaned a year later, according to an official biography released by the Cuban Embassy in London.

A fighter pilot by 1961, he flew 20 search and pursuit missions during the Cuban missile crisis.

U.S. translator talks to defector

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A foreign service employee fluent in Russian has talked to the young Soviet soldier who went to the American Embassy in Afghanistan seeking political asylum, a State Department spokesman said Friday.

Despite the interview, the spokesman said, there has been no breakthrough in the stalemate with Afghan and Soviet officials over how to resolve the matter.

American officials in Kabul rejected a Soviet request to return the soldier, and Afghan police have attempted to search the cars of U.S. diplomatic personnel leaving the embassy.

The United States protested the search attempts.

State Department spokesman John Trafton said if the soldier wishes, he may speak to a representative of the Soviet.

A Titan II missile launches from its silo in a test firing

Danger: Age hits missiles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The explosion at a missile site near Damascus, Ark., underscores the hazards of liquid-fueled missiles armed with nuclear warheads, particularly the 54 aging Titan II missiles.

Administration spokesmen are likely to stress the explosion underscores the need to phase in a new — and safer — long-range missile like the MX.

The 15-ton Titans, developed by the Martin Co. in the late 1950s and early 1960s, are powered by rocket engines using liquid fuel.

The fuel consists of a propellant liquid and an oxidizer stored under pressure within the missile body. The propellant, a mixture of hydrazine and dimethylhydrazine, is highly volatile.

When mixed with the oxidizer — nitrogen tetroxide — it ignites instantaneously, sending the missile on its way at a top speed of about 15,000 miles an hour.

The fuel is also corrosive, tending over time to cause leaks in seals. The Air Force has been periodically inspecting and replacing worn seals.

The MX missiles, like the 1,000 Minuteman II and Minuteman III missiles, would use solid rather than liquid fuel.

A major advantage of solid fuels is that they are more stable and safer to store over long periods, yet they can be ignited with similar speed, making the Minuteman and MX as fast-reacting as the Titan.

Another leaking incident occurred at a Titan missile site last April 22 at Polvin, Kan.

A more serious leak occurred at another site at McConnell Air Force Base, Kan., two years ago, and two Air Force personnel were killed.

These recurrent problems have caused Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., to push for installation of an automatic warning system at Titan sites that could alert crews and local residents to danger.

Air Force missile crews continually monitor the "health" of the missiles they control.

Titans are controlled by a crew of two officers and four enlisted personnel who serve on 24-hour shifts — underground control centers nearby.

To fire the Titans, programmed to deliver nuclear warheads on Soviet targets, the president of the United States must first give the command, which would be passed to Strategic Air Command headquarters at Omaha, Neb., for verification, then passed on through a special communications network to the missile crews.

To launch, each crew must turn two "keys" located at least 12 feet apart — with near-simultaneous precision.

The 54 Titan silos are located at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base, Ariz.; McConnell Air Force Base, Kan.; and near Little Rock, Ark.

Catholic bishops to discuss controversies

By JACK R. PAYTON
United Press International

VATICAN CITY — More than 200 Roman Catholic bishops from around the world meet at the Vatican for a month beginning Sept. 20 to discuss some of their faith's most controversial issues — birth control, abortion and divorce.

The discussions will be part of the theme of the Sixth World Synod of Bishops — Roman Catholic family life in the modern world. Pope John Paul II already has made clear where he stands on the issues under examination.

John Paul chose the theme of the synod last December, leading away from the caution of the late Pope Paul VI who tried to avoid a full-scale debate of the controversial issues that have bitterly divided Roman Catholics for years.

But John Paul declared earlier this month that there will be no stopping back from the ban on artificial birth control, which he described as "an attack on fecundity itself with means that human and Christian ethics must consider illicit."

The argument rests on church doctrine that life begins at conception. Procured abortion is a deliberate taking of that life and therefore unacceptable.

The synod document's section on marriage also includes a section on the institution's relationship to the modern feminist movement.

Burley teen shot, killed in family fight

BURLEY — A 17-year-old boy was killed late Thursday night in a shooting spree between two Burley families.

Richard Garcia died from a small-caliber gunshot wound shortly after being taken to Cassia County Memorial Hospital about 10:45 p.m. Burley police said the boy died from a bullet wound in an undisclosed point in the lower side.

The man has been arrested in connection with the shooting and as many as three other arrests may follow, Burley Police Chief Larry Broadbent said.

"Apparently the incident stemmed from a long-standing family feud lasting several months," Broadbent said Friday. "We've been down there on other incidents involving disturbing the peace and the peace officer."

According to officer reports, Garcia and four relatives and friends arrived at the 300 W. 8th St. residence of Paul Curiel, who was at home with his family. They were reported by neighbors about 10:15 p.m. and four officers were dispatched to the scene where they found the wounded youth.

Broadbent said he would not specify where the bullet lodged in Garcia's body because that information could impede an investigation into the incident and possibly hinder prosecution of suspects.

Curiel has not been charged in the incident and allegedly acted in self-defense, according to Broadbent. But Broadbent said a final determination concerning Curiel's actions has not been made.

"It's not resolved. The charges are pending and the investigation is continuing," he said.

However, one of Garcia's cousins, Roy Garcia, 19, was arrested at the scene on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder against Curiel.

Broadbent said other suspects had not been located as of Friday. He said he anticipated further arrests to be made by the middle of next week.

"The investigation is still under way and there may be additional arrests by next week," Broadbent said. "We basically know what happened, but there are still a lot of questions to be answered."

Speaking in Twin Falls

Crane: 'Symms has integrity, guts'

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Former Republican presidential candidate Phil Crane Friday called for the election of Steve Symms to give Ronald Reagan "a back up in the Senate."

Predicting Reagan would defeat Democrat Jimmy Carter in November, Crane said the new president would need a Republican majority in the Senate to enact GOP legislation.

Crane, an Illinois Republican congressman, said Symms also had the "integrity and guts" to serve in the Senate.

Crane also predicted John Anderson, who is also an Illinois Congressman and until recently a Republican, would not carry a single state in his independent presidential bid.

"I was supported and campaigned for Anderson, Crane said. But Anderson had changed from conservative to liberal in an effort to gain more votes, he said.

"In Twin Falls to speak at a fundraising dinner for Symms, Crane said watching the Symms battle against Democratic incumbent Frank Church.

Because of Church's prominence as a Democrat and a liberal, the Symms candidacy was "one of the most important races we have this year," Crane said.

At an evening rally, Symms called

Crane one of the closer friends he had in Congress.

Symms also criticized Church for not representing the views of the average Idahoan.

"I first ran for Congress eight years ago, not to try and get into the mainstream of Congress, but to change that mainstream, to represent the better values and wisdom of the people of Idaho in that legislative body."

"I cannot stand before you today and say that I've succeeded," Symms said. "But I can say that for eight years I have voted and worked for controls on spending, a balanced budget, a stronger economy and national defense, a balanced approach to preserving our environment and other goals I believe the people of Idaho want our nation to achieve."

Church "likes to talk about being an independent voice for Idaho," Symms said. "I believe independence is important, but not when it is extended to voting in a way that is contrary to the views and desires of the people whom we serve."

Church, Symms added, votes for unbalanced deficit budgets, against tax cuts, for policies that have weakened our economy and eliminated jobs, and for a weakened defense.

Idahoans will vote for him, Symms said, because they want to reject the government-dominated policies that Senator Church has advocated for nearly a quarter of a century."

Obsidian residents plan public hearing

OBSIDIAN — Obsidian residents who have appealed Forest Service regulation of land in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area will hold a public hearing Sept. 23.

Last June, the 9th District Appellate Court in San Francisco ruled in favor of the Obsidian residents and the appeal must now be reheard in Idaho courts, according to SNRA Superintendent Al Astor.

The public hearing, scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Valley Hearth in Obsidian, is planned to discuss ramifications the court decision may have on past, present and future government actions in relation to property rights.

When the SNRA was established in August 1972, several Obsidian residents appealed the Forest Service's right to regulate property use by zoning for agricultural, residential and commercial use both inside and outside designated communities such as Obsidian.

Much of the resident's concern grew from Forest Service regulation of the Forest Service targeted it for agricultural use only.

The citizens group made two appeals: one on the constitutionality of the SNRA enactment, a law upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court, and a second appeal on the constitutionality of regulating property use.

"It was a decision supporting this second appeal that was reversed and remaining back to an Idaho court."

To date, no rehearing of the case has been scheduled, according to Astor.

Harvest continues

Rain finally gives farmers a break

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For two weeks, farmers have been biling their fingernails while waiting for enough dry days to harvest their beans.

Friday, some farmers finally got their chance, with more harvesting likely again today.

"The first beans were cut about three weeks ago, with about half the bean crop cut and left on the ground to dry.

Then, two weeks ago, the rains came. Instead of drying, the beans got wet enough to start molding, swelling and staling.

"When beans get wet, the harvest becomes a salvage operation," said Tom Olmstead, a farmer southeast of Twin Falls. Eventually, the crop gets harvested. The only question is how much of it can be saved, he said.

Farmers have to do whatever they can to help the beans dry and wait for good weather to finish the harvest, he said.

Farmers finally got a break in the weather Thursday night when a "dry storm" moved rapidly through the area, said William Galkin at the U.S. Weather Service agricultural station near Kimberly, dropping .1116 inches.

"There was a short hail storm; with the size of nickels and quarters, he said, but most of the hail fell on downtown TWIN FALLS.

Most of the beans of Twin Falls were struck by hail, but they reported no serious damage, said Dale Beck, Twin Falls County agricultural extension agent. "A lot of farmers I talked to don't even know there had been a storm," Beck said.

"For many farmers, the light storm didn't interrupt the drying of their beans as the three other storms in the last two weeks have. Late Thursday night, after the rain had stopped, Norman Schnitker, a farmer southwest of Twin Falls, said he would be out in his field threshing beans Friday afternoon.

"Some of his neighbors had been able to start threshing a few beans on Thursday, he said.

Beck said he saw a lot of farmers threshing beans Friday afternoon. He expects to see more today.

"The weather forecast is better than it's been in recent weeks, Galkin said, although another storm is expected to come through the area today or Thursday. Like Thursday's storm, this storm is moving fast, he said. "It shouldn't cause much damage."

"For the rest of the week, the forecast calls for dry but cool weather. The Magic Valley could see its first frost. Galkin said. There is about a 50 percent chance the low will hit the freezing mark sometime in the next week, he said.

Most of the beans will not be good, Galkin said. The days are getting too short and the nights aren't warm enough.

But as long as the rain stays away, beans will be harvested and sold, Lerman, director of the Jerome County office of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service.

"Most of the beans in Jerome County look pretty good, he said. However, there is one section in Jerome County where the beans don't look good. An area east of Jerome near Eden was hit hard by hail last Saturday. Sections of about 10 farms covering 2,000 acres were hit, Lerman said.

"On some of those fields, Lerman said, about 50 percent of the beans were destroyed. In addition, the remaining beans will be difficult to harvest, he said.

Twin Falls Construction will do airport improvement

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Construction Co. has been awarded the bid to a $24,000 Twin Falls City-County Airport improvement project, pending approval of federal funds.

The City Council this week accepted the firm's offer from a field of five applications.

The construction firm won out over a lower bid, submitted by Kloeffer Inc. of Paul, after Kloeffer withdrew its bid of $16,421. Project Supervisor Jim Leichter of T-F-B Engineers Inc. said the Paul firm had discovered an error in its estimate.

Other bids submitted included B and J Land Leveling and Earth Moving Inc. of Caldwell, $23,465; PMF

Inc. of Twin Falls, $26,716; and Astell Construction Co. of Twin Falls, $32,078. The award was made by the project calls for the construction of a sand storage site and an access road to a site where navigation equipment will be placed during the runway expansion.

The Federal Aviation Administration provide for 90 percent of the project costs; the Idaho Department of Transportation provides 5 percent and the city provides 5 percent.

Leichter said construction will begin after final acceptance of an FAA grant is received, a move expected by Sept. 30. The project is expected to be completed by the end of October.

FAA gives funds to local airports

WASHINGTON — Federal Aviation Administration officials have announced grants totaling $418,925 for Twin Falls and Jerome airports.

Twin Falls will receive $352,225 to finance construction and improvements at the city county airport including the extension of one runway.

The Jerome County Airport will receive $56,700 to purchase 20 acres of land needed to construct a new runway north of its present landing strip.

Both grants are from fees collected by the FAA. The awards were announced this week by Sen. Frank Church's office in Washington.

Before World War II, when the Defense Department was known as the War Department, every serviceman in the Armed Forces of the United States received notice each March that it was the desire of the Secretary of War that said serviceman write a letter to his own mother on Mother's Day. The desire of the Secretary of War was tantamount to an order.

Five hundred years ago the English used a word "heyda" as an exclamation. Like wow. Or gee whiz. "Heyda!" he yelled, happily, sort of like that. In reply to a client's query, our Language man reports that out of this word "heyda" evolved our word "heyday."

Prison guards get shoot-to-kill orders

BOISE (UPI) — State Corrections Director C.W. "Bill" Crowl warned potentially rebellious convicts Friday that shoot-to-kill orders had been issued to guards at the Idaho State Penitentiary.

Reacting to rumors that convicts sent outside the state after the prison was ravaged July 23-24 planned to kill selected prison staff members when the convicts returned, Crowl said his men would not hesitate to use deadly force.

"With some of these guys, the only thing that gets their attention is when you shoot a few of them," Crowl said at a meeting with the Legislature's Joint Finance Appropriations Committee at the state work-release center in Boise.

"We haven't shot anybody yet, but we're not afraid to shoot them. I want these inmates to understand, we're not going to put up with any foolery."

"If it means shooting an inmate to stop a riot, then he'll get shot."

In reassuring the budget-drafting legislators, Crowl said three times that prison guards had been told not to hesitate to use "deadly force."

He said certain inmates — those whom he said caused the riot and surely would start more trouble when they were reincarcerated in the repaired prison — could be kept in line only one way.

"It's based on the fear we'll shoot them," Crowl said. He said most other inmates "respected humanity" and could be kept in line with a normal amount of discipline.

Prison officials had taken action to prepare for the return of 163 inmates who were shipped to state and federal prisons in other states following the riot, Crowl said.

He said administrators and guards had been told to take prison-yard rumors seriously — just in case death threats circulating were serious.

Some three dozen Idaho convicts being held in the Montana State Prison at Deer Lodge are "true sociopaths" and inevitably will try to upset the balance of power once they are shipped back to Boise, Crowl said.

The Montana-held prisoners tried to take over the plane which carried them to Deer Lodge "in July and Montana prison guards had to gas them twice" as a result of attempted cellblock uprisings.

"I hope I'm making myself clear to those inmates in Montana and other prisons: we mean business. We're not afraid to shoot them. I want them to understand that."

Crowl said that because guards did not fire on prisoners during Idaho prison riots in recent years, didn't mean it couldn't happen.

Crowl told the lawmakers that eight of the 173 prisoners shipped out of state in July had been returned and that of the 309 inmates in the main yard Friday, all were in cells. He said the last 50 inmates who were housed in the prison gymnasium since the riot were locked in cells Thursday.

The said the cost of keeping roughly 175 prisoners in other states was costing Idaho $192,000 a month. He said the money would come out of the Corrections Department's current budget and the department would ask for replacement funds during the next legislative session.

He said all but one cellblock — the almost-ruined maximum security compound — would be back to normal within 90 days. The maximum security unit probably won't be ready until next spring, he said. One of the prison's two "close custody" cellblocks will be used as the maximum unit until then, the director said.

School director seeks Lewis-Clark demotion

BOISE (UPI) — State Public Instruction Superintendent Jerry Evans said Thursday he favors demotion of Lewis-Clark State College from four-year status and imposition of student-fee increases at Idaho's four higher-education institutions.

"I think we cannot continue Lewis-Clark State College as it is today," Evans said. He said the Lewiston school could be converted into a vocational-technical institution or a junior college.

Earlier this month, the state Education Board's staff said one alternative to help save some money for the state would be to merge Lewis-Clark with nearby University of Idaho.

Evans said he probably would vote later this year at a board meeting to increase student fees at Lewis-Clark and the state's three universities for the second semester of the current school year.

A $50 per semester increase is being sought by university and college administrators to help offset the effects of a 3.85 percent cut made in current budgets as a result of the state's general account revenue shortage.

Evans wants 'fair trial' for hospital legislation

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans recommended today Idaho's new hospital certificate of need legislation be "given a fair trial" before amendments are proposed.

But he said the 1980 law, which requires a state certificate of need before health care facilities can be constructed or expanded, "does not meet all federal requirements."

Evans said before proposing amendments to the law, however, "we must have an opportunity to assess its impact in reducing health care costs."

Speaking to members of the Statewide Health Coordinating Council in Boise, the governor said although regulations for administering the certificate of need law are being drafted by the Health Facilities Review Board, the council also has a role.

"I encourage you to provide comments to the Facilities Review Board on the regulations and to work with the board on any certificate of need amendments you think essential to our cost containment effort," Evans said.

He said one of his major concerns in the area of health care is the expansion of services for senior citizens.

"Idaho needs to enhance our home health programs and increase day care and shelter home opportunities," Evans said. "We must help the elderly to remain independent in their homes as long as they can."

Evans urged more attention to health education and prevention of illness and said efforts "must not be limited to young children." He noted that he and his wife, Lola, "have been most active in promoting" the state's childhood immunization program.

LED may investigate prison guard brutality

BOISE (UPI) — The Governor's Prison Review Committee might turn over the investigation of alleged brutality by guards at the Idaho State Penitentiary to the State Law Enforcement Department.

Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, co-chairman of the committee, said Friday a decision on the issue probably would be made by the committee within a week.

He said time and budget limitations had forced the committee to consider narrowing the scope of its activities.

Last week, the panel announced it would look into reports by inmates and their relatives that guards at the prison had brutalized inmates following the July 23-24 prison riot.

"We got into that thing by accident," Mitchell said during an interview Friday. "We've become a grievance committee for problems in the prison system and we felt we had an obligation to check them out."

He said the committee was formed to study the causes of the riot and make recommendations to the governor well before the 1981 Legislature, but he said public exposure brought a deluge of extra work to the committee.

Mitchell said committee members and their assistants would continue to collect information from everyone interested in the prison, but that the bulk of the reports eventually would be given to the Law Enforcement Department, which might choose to follow them up.

News briefs

Group accelerates wine drive
 IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — An Idaho Falls group said Friday it would accelerate its drive this weekend to allow the sale of wine in retail stores in Bonneville County.

Kent Just of the Wine at Retail Committee said the group had collected 4,000 signatures by Friday and needed about 6,000 more by the end of next week to qualify the petition for the Nov. 4 ballot.

Just called the drive to allow the sale of wine in grocery stores "strictly an economic issue." He said Idaho Falls-area merchants could reap millions of dollars by selling wine.

Idaho counties are given the option of allowing retail wine sales. In Bonneville County, wine is available only at state liquor stores.

A similar petition made it onto the county ballot in 1972, but the measure was put down 56 percent to 44 percent.

General Telephone ups rates
 BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission granted a 31 million rate increase Friday to General

Telephone in North Idaho.

An estimated $693,000 of the raise will be collected through a hike in some basic services, with the remainder collected through directory assistance charges.

The order allows General Telephone to collect 20 cents for directory assistance for names published in the directory and no charge for names not published.

In its order, the commission also directed the firm to extend until October, beginning in 1981, the deadline for accepting numbers for its Moscow directory to allow University of Idaho students to be listed in new directories.

The commission noted that "there is no community in General Telephone's Idaho service area with so significant a percentage of requests for new service occurring in the same month every year as Moscow in September."

Court rapped for buying cars
 BOISE (UPI) — A legislative audit report released Thursday was critical of the Idaho Supreme Court for buying cars for four justices without prior review by the Legislature.

Although Legislative Auditor Bruce Balderston said the court had complete freedom to spend its general account appropriation as it wished, he said capital-outlay items first should be run by the Legislature for approval.

The audit also questioned the car purchases on a cost-benefit basis, saying the justices only used the vehicles about 3,000 miles a year for business use — far short of the minimum standard of 19,476 miles the state uses to justify permanent assignment of a car to an individual. The audit said the purchases were "not economically justified."

Rep. Kitty Gurnsey, R-Boise, called the car buys "ridiculous" and suggested two of the cars be taken away from the court and put in the state motor pool.

Sunshine workers vote today
 KELLOGG (UPI) — Striking hard rock miners at the Sunshine Silver Mine will vote Saturday on a new offer from management calling for a starting wage of about $10.36 an hour.

The offer was the result of a 19 hour-session between Local 5889 negotiators and company officials which ended last Saturday.

Local president Mick McCoy said after the offer was worked out, the union members wanted further adjustments in the offer from Sunshine this week, before the vote.

However, there have been no further meetings and McCoy said because of that, the chances of ratification "are zero."

The company's position is that any further action will await the outcome of Saturday's vote.

Meanwhile, Sunshine management met Wednesday with members of Local 73 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The IBEW members have honored the miners' picket lines since the strike began March 14.

The electrical workers will also be looking at a new contract offer Saturday, according to Sunshine personnel manager Jack Cowley.

Adams brothers, defense lead Declo past Wood River

DECLO — Brothers Todd and Brett Adams had strong performances and the Declo defense rose to the need in a 10-9 whitewash over Wood River Friday.

Wood River twice zeroed in on the yard in the second period and twice Declo held them off.

Wood River moved into the 10 and Declo took over, downs only to fumble at its 14. Wood River then moved as close as the two before a sack and penalty stopped the potential threat.

Todd Adams finished with 96 yards on 18 carries while Brett had 15 rushes for 59 yards.

Declo had its record to 3-1 with the non-conference win and hosts Glenn Ferry next week.

Nampa 27, Minico 22

RUPERT — Nampa turned loose 200-foot punts, Bob Rames in the second half and pleasured to a 27-22 decision over the Minico Spartans Friday night.

The defeat probably ended any chance of a playoff into the state playoffs at year's end although the young Spartans went down hard.

Nampa took the lead in the opening series when the Bulldogs drove 70 yards to score. But Spartans seemed to dominate the rest of the half, having one apparent touchdown on a pass interception killed by a penalty and forcing another drive of about 60 yards stopped by the Nampa defense.

In between, Dartn-Moore caught a seven-yard scoring strike from Darel Tracy and the Spartans scored again to make it 14-7 at intermission.

Nampa led third-quarter drive that tied things and the Bulldogs then took the lead with a pair of touchdowns in the fourth quarter.

Minico tried to battle back, cutting the deficit to five points on a 27-yard screen pass from Tracy to Chugg. That came with about a minute left in the game and Minico's hopes of pulling out the victory died when the sideline intercept was recovered by the Bulldogs.

Castleford 60, Rockland 6

CASTLEFORD — Castleford Coach Randy Clark spent Friday morning in Magic Valley Memorial worrying about two things.

First was his wife in the maternity ward and second was his football team facing an afternoon game back in Castleford.

He doesn't have worried about either. Mrs. Clark came through with flying colors and a new son for the coach and the Castleford Wolves practiced the day with a 60-6 romp over Rockland. Clark got back to the field just in time for the kickoff, to give an indication of the timing for the day.

Clark started relaxing early when Dave Ennsua capped an early drive with a one-yard run. John Zamora ran for the first of three first-half touchdowns and Ennsua threw a halfback pass to Dwight Rarick for 30 yards and six more points before Rockland got on the scoreboard on a 30-yard pass to Matt Crossman.

In the second period, Castleford quarterback — David Howard scrambled out of the pocket and romped 40 yards and Rob Owen set up the first half with a 10-yard scamper.

In the second half, Reggie Finney scored on a pair of one-yard runs. Howard kept for 10 yards and another point and Troy Schindl hit paydirt from five yards away. Howard threw to Randy Brack for one conversion while Tracy Vulgamore and Schindl jumped out the other two.

Richfield 34, Clark County 14

DUBOIS — Fumble problems continued to bother Richfield High Friday but it did not cost the team a victory.

The Tigers, victims of slippery fingers last week in a loss to Castleford, defeated Clark County 34-14 Friday afternoon despite five fumbles.

Richfield trailed 14-8 in the second period but rallied to blank the host team in the second half while scoring 12 points in the victory.

We fumbled the football five times and we gave them one touchdown with a fumble but we were able to run well against them," Richfield's skipper John Erickson said.

Bill Naylor led the Tigers' nose 1-2 with two touchdowns. One came on a 30-yard pass interception return and the other was a 15-yard run.

Shane Gill took a 10-yard pass from

Chargers seek to end 12-year drought against Broncos

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Executive Sports Editor

Some people say it's the hostile atmosphere at Mile High Stadium. Others blame it on a change in altitude. Whatever the reason, the San Diego Chargers would like to end 12 years of frustration at Denver.

San Diego, which plays the Broncos twice each year, has not won a game in Denver since December, 1968. The frustration reached a peak last year when the Chargers, with probably the most explosive offense in the National Football League led by record-setting quarterback Dan Fouts, only didn't win at Denver but didn't even score.

The Broncos won 7-0 and San Diego had to pull out at 17-7 victory at home in the final game of the season to win the AFC Western Division title with a 12-4 record.

The Chargers, 2-0, try again Sunday against a Denver team which looked pitiful in its opening game loss to Philadelphia and unstopable last week in a 41-20 rout of Dallas.

"I really don't know what it is," Fouts said. "Maybe they were better than us for a long time but 12 years is a long time to go without winning. The crowd pumps them up pretty good there and they do have an excellent defensive team."

"They get pretty good pressure on me. I don't ever recall coming out of a game with Denver without feeling a little bit banged up."

Fouts last week set club records as he hit 29-of-43 passes for 389 yards and three touchdowns in a 30-24 overtime victory over Oakland. He has excellent receivers, including All-Pro John Jefferson, veteran Charlie Joiner and tight end Kellen Winslow. The Charger offense, unlike many in the NFL, uses the pass to set up the running game and it has Denver Coach Red Miller worried. Jefferson and Winslow each caught nine passes last week and running back Clarence Williams caught seven.

"What are you going to do — pull nine men off and rush two?" said Miller. "You can't overlook the possibility of defense not changing your defense."

"You can't double cover all of them. They find the single coverage and that's where they go. Jefferson is their flyer and he goes all over the field. Fouts is a very disciplined passer but he gets a lot of people in his face. That's the key. A lot of pressure and a solid effort."

Matt Robinson, Denver's new quarterback, bounced back from a dismal opening performance to hit 10-of-20 passes for 198 yards last week. Robinson ran for two scores but has yet to throw a TD pass in two games.

In other games Sunday, Tampa Bay is at Dallas, New England at Seattle, Minnesota at Chicago, Baltimore at Houston, Washington at Oakland, Miami at Atlanta, Buffalo at New Orleans, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, San Francisco at the New York Jets, Green Bay at Los Angeles, Kansas City at Cleveland and St. Louis at Detroit. The New York Giants are at Philadelphia Monday night.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry feels his team must execute better than it did in its 41-20 loss to Denver last week if the Cowboys are to have any hope of beating Tampa Bay.

"We must play solid defense and try to play a control type of game," Landry said.

Briefly in sports

Rotary, Elks, Lions post wins

TWIN FALLS — Rotary, Elks and Lions all posted victories in the first round of the seven-grade football league.

Rotary, behind the play of Mark Lee and Brian Howard, defeated Bush 6-0 despite the play of Gary Brown, Steve Wolford and James Hall.

Jeff Mahina and Jeff Proctor earned special praise from the coaching staff for their performance in the game. Jeff Mahina and Nick Baumert placed Exchange Club's efforts.

The Lions, behind the play of Robbie Dunn and Roger Nale, showed a lot of offense in blanking Kiwanis 34-0. Pat Coop and Jim Trinkas led Kiwanis.

Soccer clinic begins today

TWIN FALLS — A soccer clinic for Twin Falls boys and girls from third through six grades will be conducted from 10 a.m. until noon each day.

Berry Miller, recreation supervisor, said the clinic will continue each Saturday as long as weather permits. Ed Tyrrell will be the instructor.

Miller said teams will be formed and competition play provided if sufficient interest is shown.

Silas retires to bench

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI) — San Diego Clippers head coach Paul Silas announced his retirement as a player Friday after 16 seasons and slots on three championship teams in the NBA.

"I really don't know what it is," Silas said, "It would be impossible to devote my total energies to coaching if I were still an active player. When I first signed with the Clippers, I thought it would be possible to be both. After dealing with the coaching responsibilities, I know now it would not be fair to the team or myself to play and coach."

Silas was 17 games short of breaking John Havlicek's record of 1,200 games played. In 16 seasons, Silas scored 11,782 points and grabbed 12,357 rebounds. He, Bill Russell and Nate Thurmond are the only players in NBA history who have scored over 10,000 points with more rebounds than points.

Browns sign linebacker

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Linebacker John Mohring, cut by Detroit earlier in the season, was signed Friday by the injury-plagued Cleveland Browns to fill a roster vacancy left by Jerry Sherrill.

Mohring, 6-foot-3 and 230 pounds, was released by the Lions after their first regular season game. The 23-year-old Locust Valley, N.Y., resident was selected in the eighth round by Detroit last year.

Mohring spent last season on the injured reserve list, having injured a knee on the final play of training camp. The Browns described him as "a highly regarded training camp pick out of C.W. Post College."

Sherrill, a perennial All-Pro pick, at defensive tackle until he suffered a knee injury a few years ago, has been placed on the injured reserve list for a minimum of four weeks. The 11-year veteran had knee surgery last year and contracted a staph infection that nearly took his life.

Flyers hit with 1979 fine

MONTREAL (UPI) — National Hockey League President John Ziegler announced Friday the Philadelphia Flyers have been fined $5,000 for criticizing the officiating during the 1979 Stanley Cup playoffs against the New York Islanders.

Ziegler said the fine was levied after an investigation into comments made by Flyers owner Ed Snider about chief referee Scottie Morrison during the last game of the Stanley Cup finals May 25.

"He made some disparaging remarks about the officiating, supposedly that refereeing chief Scottie Morrison should be shot because they lost the game," NHL spokesman Ron Andrews said.

The Islanders won the North American hockey professional hockey cup with a 5-4 victory over the Flyers in overtime play of the deciding game.

Vandals host Simon Fraser

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — The Idaho Vandals meet Simon Fraser's Clansmen from Burnaby, British Columbia, Saturday in Moscow for a game Idaho head football coach Jerry Davilich says should be electric.

The reason for Davilich's prediction, he said, is the fact that Simon Fraser is coached by Rod Woodward, an Idaho alum who played football as a defensive back with the Vandals in 1968.

"I'm sure Rod, being a former Vandal player, will have his team come in here with fire in their eyes," Davilich said. "It should be a very emotional game and we will have to match that emotion."

It will be the first meeting of the two schools, with the Vandals 0-1 this year and Simon Fraser holding an 0-2 record. Simon Fraser last to the University of Calgary, 10-9, and Montana, 60-27, in the first game of its season, while Idaho last week lost its season opener to Pacific, 24-13.

Montana scores PSU blocking

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Montana football Coach Larry Donovan charged Thursday that Portland State uses an illegal type of blocking.

Donovan's team meets PSU Saturday night. Montana holds a 10-9 lead in the series but PSU won last year at Missoula 40-22.

Discussing the upcoming game, Donovan said, "The thing that concerns us most is the type of blocking executed by their offensive line. We think the NCAA outlawed the chop block two years ago. That's a high-injury technique and it's illegal."

PSU Coach Mose Davis denied the Vikings' "scramble block" is illegal.

PSU opened its season with a 28-14 win over North Dakota and was idle last week. Montana opened last Saturday with a 90-27 win over Simon Fraser.

Harris ends 1-day retirement

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Outside linebacker Bo Harris, who only Thursday announced his retirement from professional football, was back in the Cincinnati Bengals' line Friday.

"It was a personal matter, and let's just say I have found a way to solve it without retirement," Harris said. "I went in thinking I was going to retire, which I did indeed announce. But Forrest (Bengals head coach Gregg) was very understanding, as if he'd been in my position before."

Indications were that Harris had announced his retirement because of family considerations. His wife, Kaye, gave birth to a boy while Harris was in training camp.

"He told me he felt like he couldn't be the type of family man he wanted to be and play football anymore," Gregg said after Harris announced his retirement Thursday.

Harris, the Bengals' starting outside linebacker, is in his sixth season with Cincinnati, which picked him up as a third-round draft choice in 1975.

He is not expected to play Sunday when the Bengals host the Pittsburgh Steelers because of an ankle injury suffered in the Miami game last Sunday. Special teams captain Tom Dinkel will replace Harris.

Meanwhile, Bengals' assistant general manager Mike Brown announced that rookie kick return specialist Jo Jo Heath, who is suffering a bruised right thigh, was put on the injured reserve list Friday. He must remain on the list for four weeks.

To replace Heath, Cincinnati added Cleodius Montgomery to its roster.

BRIDGE

Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Artificial doubling bids

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

In 1912 players of the new game of auction bridge had great trouble trying to get a bid in the bidding when you had a hand like S A K x x A K x x D x C x x y in an opponent opened the bidding with one club and you had a hand like 4-3-2-1 in your own hand. You just didn't bid four-card suits, all doubles were for penalty and you just didn't bid nothing when you couldn't stop the opponent's bid suit.

About that time Major Charles P. Pennington and Bryant McCampbell (also inventor of the 4-3-2-1 point count) and others invented the "artificial" bid in such universal use that a player who doubled an adverse suit opening bid for penalty would be using an artificial convention.

Until 1957 a double by the partner of the opening bidder had not been embodied in Then Alvin Roth started using the double by this player as a "takeout double."

Thus, with S A J x x H K x x D x x C x x y you would have a perfect negative double of a two-club overcall by your partner's one diamond opening.

These negative doubles have not been embodied in standard American as yet, but have been almost universally adopted in expert tournament play. You and your partners may want to start using them in your own games.

We will discuss them in our next two Saturday articles. If you do not want to expect them they are now an integral part of expert bridge and they should prove of interest. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)
