

Mild winter in store, Old Farmer's Almanac predicts

DUBLIN, N.H. (UPI) — Abe Weatherwise, popular long-festive weather oracle for the Old Farmer's Almanac, predicted Monday the winter of 1980-81 will be mild for most of the United States.

Abe dug into a small, black metal box for the 198th year for the secret formula that enables him to forecast weather conditions for the months ahead.

"I predict a mild and dry winter in the West, the Rockies, mild and wet in the western third of the country and extremely wet in the South and sections of the Midwest and Ohio River Valley.

Abe's reply last year was the Almanac, and publisher Rob Trowbridge. "We rely on a secret formula devised by this almanac's founder, Robert B. Thomas in 1792, and stored away in a small black metal box" in the publisher's office, Hale said.

This year the Almanac includes a prediction that if the effect of the Mount St. Helens volcanic eruption is greater than calculated in June — when the OFA went to press — the entire winter could be considerably cooler than predicted.

Hale said the Almanac runs down winter of 1980-81 this way: "We feel that east of the Rocky Mountains will be milder and drier overall with less than normal snowfall but with considerable variability. Specifically, we see a cold spell during the latter part of November, including a bit of snow in higher elevations around Thanksgiving. Look for cold, snowy parts of December too, with what appears to be a White Christmas in northern sections.

Hale said in the "area west of the Rockies we feel also will be mild, but — in contrast to the East — it will be very wet with above average snowfall."

The South and sections of the Midwest and Ohio River Valley will be wet, he said.

Iraq offers terms to conclude war

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — Iraq, its forces reportedly 50 miles inside Iran, offered cease-fire today that would end Tehran's dominance of the Persian Gulf and weaken its grip on border areas.

Iraq invited to fight on "until the last aggressor" is driven out of Iran.

Iraq President Saddam Hussein coupled his offer of a truce to end the first war between two members of OPEC with a call to the Iranians to throw out the "corrupt clique" of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

"They had to know their role as the policeman of the Gulf is dead and gone," Hussein said in the truce offer on national TV as his army wiped out the last pockets of resistance in the port of Khurmashahr on the Shatt al-Arab river at the top of the Persian Gulf.

Hussein, who began the war with the abrogation of a 1975 treaty that gave Iran joint control of the waterway, spoke after the U.N. Security Council called on Iran and Iraq to "refrain from any further use of force."

As truce terms, the Iraqi strongman demanded Iraqi sovereignty over the Shatt al-Arab and surrender of three islands in the Strait of Hormuz gateway to the Persian Gulf.

Iranian surrender of the Shatt al-Arab and the return of the islands of Abu Musa and Greater Tumb and Lesser Tumb would wipe out the gains made by the late shah at both ends of the Persian Gulf and remove Iran as a dominant power in the waterway, the vital oil lifeline to the West.

In Washington, President Carter told Congressional leaders at a White House briefing that the war could have serious repercussions for the United States, Western Europe and Japan.

Carter told the lawmakers he is considering several options for U.S. action, but all in conjunction with America's allies.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., who attended the briefing, said, "The President commented on his options," but said no major decisions have been made.

Later, administration officials said Carter is considering sending highly sophisticated communications planes the Air Force Airborne Warning and Control System aircraft — and crews to Saudi Arabia in light of the Iran-Iraq war.

But a Pentagon official said "no final decision has been made" on whether to dispatch the planes, deployment of which would enable the United States to use fighter aircraft to protect the Strait of Hormuz, to Saudi Arabia.

Hospital board OK's budget of $16 million for fiscal '81

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Board approved a $16-million budget for fiscal year 1981 today night.

Rates for semi-private rooms will increase from $99 to $115 a day as of Dec. 1, hospital controller Scott Richardson told the board.

Charges for medical services, such as x-rays and lab tests, will go up an average of 12.9 percent in October, he said.

The 1981 fiscal budget projects total patient revenues to be $16,066,000; net revenues to be $11,000; operating expenses to be $12,772,000 and non-operating expenses to be $296,000.

Project revenues will run over expenses by $633,000. For the present year ending today, excess revenues came to $724,000.

The hospital's bad debts (unpaid accounts) are expected to increase from 4.2 percent to 4.7 of total revenues or about $97,000, Richardson told the board.

In other business, the hospital approved Oakland Construction Co. of Salt Lake City as the general contractor for the hospital's expansion project.

Submitted bids were based on a percentage of the total construction costs, projected to be $13.4 million. Oakland bid 5.98 percent, which includes profit overhead and expenses. Jacobson Construction Co. Inc. of Salt Lake City bid 6.94 percent and Rodgers Construction Co. of Nashville bid 7.95 percent.

The hospital still awaits final state approval of its expansion project, said administrator William Burns. But the board three alternatives for reducing the number of proposed beds the obstacle to approval — have been offered on request to Department of Health and Welfare Director Milton Klein:

- Redesign the project to eliminate 25 beds. Burns said this would add $108,000 to the $28-million total cost of the project.
- Build the expansion as designed but "shell in" or not completely finish 25 beds, saving $54,000 in construction costs.
- Build the expansion as planned without renovating the present fifth floor and removing five beds from the third floor. Burns said this would save $315,000 in construction costs and $75,000 in operating expenses.

Klein delays decision on hospital renovation program

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Department of Health and Welfare Director Milton Klein has delayed issuing a decision on whether to recommend approval of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital's renovation program.

Klein was expected to make a decision today on the $28-million expansion project, he is instead "seeking more information from the hospital," said Gary Richardson, department information specialist.

Klein has said he would make the decision before Wednesday, when new legislation goes into effect that changes architectural requirements. However, Richardson said Monday "there was a chance" Klein would not meet this deadline.

The Idaho Health Systems Agency recently voted not to approve the renovation plans, saying the expansion added unneeded hospital beds to the area. Klein will make the final state decision.

Both BVMH and HSA can appeal his decision to the regional director of the Health and Human Services Department.

Race in Idaho 'calls' group

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idahoans are being "called" to this week and informed Sen. Frank Church is "one of the most radical, liberal members of the U.S. Senate."

In a mass mailing going to every Idaho news organization and more than 4,000 other Idahoans, Conservatives Against Liberal Legislation (CALL), is also praising an "exceptional" and "distinguished" the voting record of Rep. Steve Symms. Church's election opponent this year.

But while spokesmen for the group, based in Arlington, Va., insist they are just a "non-profit, non-partisan organization" devoted to "the election or defeat of anyone," spokesmen for Church say the group is simply the latest in a string of questionable organizations backing Symms.

Andrew Shirmmeister, Press Secretary for the Symms-for-Senator Campaign, told the Times-News he had not heard of the group's existence or seen their congressional rating.

A CALL official said their national director also chairs another organization which has spent almost $200,000 to defeat Church. According to CALL, there are no financial or other connections between the two groups.

The mass mailing includes a rating, on what CALL says were important liberal votes, of all members of Congress. A two-page cover letter says Church received a zero CALL rating, because of his anti-taxpayer, anti-defense and anti-family votes.

Symms is praised for receiving a 100 percent voting record, which CALL says he received for having "done an exceptional job of representing Idaho citizens on how their elected officials are voting in Washington."

"That disclaimer means the organization doesn't have to file reports with the Federal Election Commission. By restricting its actions to what it says is an 'education' effort, rather than spending funds for or against a candidate," says CHURCH page A2.

Ray Shively, a freshman at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls, found riding a hard-bucking bronc is part of the classroom experience Monday evening. He is among more than 50 students enrolled in an advanced rodeo class who are learning basics of the sport including roping, riding and barrel racing. Instructor Shawn Davis said class members turned in a winning performance in recent competition.

Northwest power bill foes jeopardize quick passage

By THOMAS KORDESEK
States News Service

WASHINGTON — Opponents of the Northwest power bill stalled through a full day of House debate Monday, putting quick passage of the measure in jeopardy.

Through five hours of debate, Rep. James Weaver, D-Ore., a strong opponent of the bill, used a variety of tactics to prolong consideration. Despite his efforts, several potentially crippling amendments failed by wide margins.

Weaver's maneuvering held up the legislation until late in the afternoon, forcing supporters to withdraw it from the crowded House calendar.

Uncertain if the bill would get another chance on the House floor before it adjourns Thursday, Rep. Al Swift, D-Wash., said supporters would be causing through the night to reassess strategy.

Weaver may have scored a temporary victory by putting off a final vote until the planned lame-duck session in November.

Despite apparent widespread House support, supportive speeches from almost every member of the Northwest delegation and repeated calls for a final vote, Weaver successfully stalled the measure by a series of time-consuming roll-call votes and floor calls amounting to a one-man filibuster.

Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, joined the Washington delegation (save Rep. Mike Lowry) and several members of the Oregon delegation praising the measure as the only solution to an impending critical shortage of electric power in the region.

Weaver, Lowry and Rep. Les AuCoin, D-Ore., on the other hand, attacked it as a guarantee that nuclear power will be used to solve the area's growing electric power needs.

To this charge, supporters countered that the bill in the strongest electric power conservation measure in history. Nuclear plants, they argued, would be built only as a last resort, once attempts to save power and use renewable resources prove inadequate.

The House bill sets up an eight-member regional planning council and reorders the relationship between the Bonneville Power Administration, which generates about half the power in the region, and its customers — public and private utilities as well as direct industrial users.

Plea filed in rabbit theft

RUPERT — A Rupert man pleaded guilty Monday in five District Court for stealing four rare, fur-bearing rabbits worth $8,000.

According to Mindoko County Prosecutor John Brandle, Bryan Scott Sanford, 22, pleaded guilty to a grand larceny charge of stealing the rabbits and $150 in cash. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered, and sentencing was set for Oct. 2.

Sanford was arrested Sept. 22 after a complaint was filed by Paul Stroschein, owner of the rabbits. The charge involved three Rex rabbits and one New Zealand rabbit, one of which was not recovered.

Rex rabbits are a rare mutant breed that has evolved during the last 15 years and for their pelts, which are valued at $18 apiece.

The three Rex rabbits involved were ready to kindle — have babies — at the time of the theft, adding to their value, officials said.

Two of the Rex rabbits did have their babies. The other was eaten by a dog before it could be returned to its owners. The status of the New Zealand rabbit is not known.

Tuesday briefing

Police arrest Long Island nuclear plant foe

150 protesters arrested

SHOREHAM, N.Y. (UPI) — More than 150 blanket-draped anti-nuclear protesters were arrested Monday for blocking the main gate of the Shoreham nuclear plant in a short-lived attempt to stop construction.

"No nukes! Shut the plant down!" chanted the demonstrators, wearing blankets to ward off the pre-dawn cold.

Police officers moved in about 6:30 a.m. and carted away 150 protesters who refused to move from their positions at the main gate of the facility. They had been there since shortly after 4 a.m.

Charles Salit, spokesman for the Long Island Lighting Co., which owns the plant, said the demonstration had "no adverse effect" on plant construction.

Jenrette tells fears

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. John Jenrette, D-S.C., testified at his Abecorn trial Monday he thought he was dealing with mobsters when undercover agents offered him a $50,000 bribe, and feared he would end up "floating in the Potomac."

Taking the witness stand for the second day, Jenrette said he never got the $50,000, but kept talking with undercover agents "stalling" for time.

Jenrette — and co-defendant John Slowe, former Myrtle Beach and Richmond, Va. businessman, are on trial for conspiring to accept a $100,000 payoff to sponsor a private immigration bill for a fictitious Arab sheik, and for offering to arrange a similar deal for Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.

Dumps threaten water

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional report warned Monday that ground water supplies in many areas of the country may be in danger of contamination from nearby chemical dump sites.

The contamination threat is growing at a time when "America is becoming increasingly dependent on ground water," said the report by a House Government Operations subcommittee.

The panel released a list of 2,100 unlined chemical impoundment sites located above-usable ground water sources. Included in the list are 250 sites that contain potentially hazardous contaminants and lie within a mile of potential water supply wells.

There were more than 30 incidents of public or private water supplies being contaminated last year, and "the situation has become critical in several states, most notably those where industrialization has been the heaviest."

The subcommittee's listing was obtained from the Environmental Protection Agency, which said there are more than 170,000 waste impoundments located throughout the country, including industrial, municipal, agricultural, mining, oil and gas brine pits.

Met cancels season

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Metropolitan Opera canceled its 1980-81 season Monday because of a contract dispute with musicians.

The Met's decision, which will cost the company millions in lost revenue, was announced Monday afternoon after its self-imposed deadline for settling its differences with the musicians' union passed.

The Met originally said last week it would cancel its entire 210-performance season if a settlement was not reached by midnight Sunday. No settlement was reached and no talks had been scheduled since the last talks ended at 9 p.m. Sunday.

Talks between the Met and Local 68 of the American Federation of Musicians adjourned Sunday night and no further talks were scheduled.

The Met, which has already lost the first week of the season due to the bargaining impasse, would lose $18.9 million in box office revenues by canceling the season.

The opera's 1,900 employees have been locked out since the company's rehearsal period formally began Sept. 2.

Nitrate tests run

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — The Air Force said Monday no abnormal amounts of toxic nitrates have been found in air, soil and water tests taken near Guy, Ark. — a small town near the Titan II missile silo — where about 30 residents have complained of illness since a blast at the silo.

Mal Ed Neumeyer, an Air Force spokesman, said preliminary results of nitrate tests released Monday show "nothing unusual" to indicate that chemicals reportedly blown in Guy's direction after the Sept. 19 explosion might be causing residents to be sick.

He said only preliminary results were available. The tests, taken last week, have been sent to Brooks Air Force Base near San Antonio, Texas, for more sophisticated analysis, Neumeyer said.

About 30 Guy residents have complained of nausea, headaches and shortness of breath ever since an explosion ripped through the Titan II missile silo at Damascus, Ark. Mayor Bennie Mercer claims a sour-smelling cloud descended on Guy the morning of the blast and sickened everyone who was standing outside and watching it drop.

Bombing suspects free

MUNICH, West Germany (UPI) — Police Monday freed the last of six members of an outlawed neo-Nazi group arrested as suspects in the Munich Oktoberfest bombing that killed 12 people, including a member of the gang believed to have planted the device.

The surprise move came after close questioning failed to turn up links between those arrested and the Munich blast, West Germany's worst terrorist attack, authorities said.

Among those released was Karl-Heinz Hoffmann, the 41-year-old self-styled "fuhrer" of the group.

Amtrak sets fare hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Amtrak said Monday it would increase most passenger train fares Oct. 28 to help meet rising costs.

The corporation said it was forced to take the step by inflation and by guidelines laid down by Congress and the Transportation Department which require Amtrak to increase its ratio of revenues to expenses.

Most of the increases would be about 10 percent, but many routes would have a hedgeodge of increases designed to increase ridership along parts of the route and discourage short-distance travel on some long-distance trains.

A few routes would have no fare increases.

Spock, spouse fined

ROCKINGHAM, N.H. (UPI) — Rockingham County Superior Court Judge Louis Wyman Monday fined pediatrician Benjamin Spock and his wife $25 each on charges of trespassing at Seabrook nuclear power plant.

Spock, 77, and his wife, Mary Morgan, entered pleas of guilty to the charge. They were originally charged with criminal trespass, a misdemeanor, but the charge was reduced during plea bargaining.

The couple was among 11 protesters arrested Sept. 11, 1978 during a small demonstration at the entrance to the construction site of the $3.1 billion twin generating plant.

Bahamas seek help against 'invasion' of drug smugglers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bahamas Prime Minister Lynden O. Pindling called on the United States Monday to help his island nation combat "a planned invasion" of drug smugglers financed and controlled by "American criminals."

Pindling also told a news conference, "Illegal arms have been introduced into the country by the drug criminals at an alarming rate."

Saying the drug problem is an "American responsibility," Pindling called on the United States to assist his nation, which lies off the Florida coast, by providing some $25 million worth of boats, reconnaissance planes, helicopters and sophisticated communications systems.

"If the Bahamas had the planes and boats, we could cut the conduit and shut off the drug traffic through the Bahamas within six months," Pindling said.

Pinning said drug traffickers are using the Caribbean and the Bahamas as a conduit to the American market through south Florida.

"That is why our archipelago nation, lying just a few miles offshore Florida, has fallen prey to the drug smugglers," he said.

He said the drugs are "destined for the American market; the traffic is financed by American money; and the racket is controlled by American criminals."

LYNDEN O. PINDLING ...wants to plug pipeline

He said, "Many young people have been corrupted by the lure of easy money and Bahamian lives are being lost in the process. Further, illegal arms have been introduced into the country by the drug criminals at an alarming rate.

"Sophisticated automatic weapons have been used by the cultists, most of whom are Americans, but also include Cuban-Americans, Colombians and other Latin Americans."

He said the flow of weapons, the number of boats and planes involved and the advance communications system being used "lead us to conclude that we have become the victims of a planned invasion which, to be repelled successfully, will require more than our existing resources."

"In our view, this is an American responsibility," Pindling said. "The invasion comes from her shores and is conducted by her citizens. It is up to the United States to do something positive to control the invasion and stop it before it completely destroys our Bahamas."

He said so far his requests have been met by "a couple of Mickey Mouse offers" which he said he did not find useful and rejected.

dispute, the group falls under the election law provision that exempts from regulation "non-partisan activity designed to encourage individuals to vote or to register to vote."

But CALL spokesmen do acknowledge they are interested in the Symme-Church race.

CALL executive director Kris Kolesnik Monday told the Times News his organization's National Director is Terry Dolan, who chairs the National Conservative Political Action Committee. The NCPAC funds the Boise-based "Anybody But Church Political Action Committee," NCPAC, through ABC, has so far spent almost $20,000 in Idaho trying to defeat Church in his race with Symme.

Kolesnik also acknowledged that CALL is in the suite next door to NCPAC in the same Virginia building.

NCPAC doesn't fund CALL, Kolesnik said. "Since I've been here we have had no connection with them at all."

"We're so busy we don't have time to do any work with them," he said. Dolan is a "figurehead" who "doesn't set policy" for CALL, he added.

Kolesnik said he didn't have an exact count of how many letters had been sent to Idaho. At least 200 were sent just to members of the news-media, and probably more than 1,000 additional letters were sent to other Idahoans, he said.

Kolesnik said he also didn't know how much it cost to prepare and mail the letters to Idaho.

If CALL was funded by NCPAC, it would be required to register and file regular reports with the FEC.

Reached in Boise, Don Todd, executive director of ABC, said he was unaware of the CALL mailing. But Todd said he knew of the group's existence and knew that Stahlman "used to work for NCPAC."

There was no formal connection between NCPAC and CALL, Todd said. "They do it with mirrors," he joked.

A Church spokesman Monday criticized CALL and dismissed its ratings of Congress as "meaningless."

"I think this is comparable to what they have done with setting up that hollow senior citizens' group," said George Klein, campaign coordinator for the Idaho for Church Committee. "They just wear a hundred hats. It's something like the Wizard of Oz. When you get behind the screen and see what's making all the smoke and clamor and frightening all the people, it's actually Dolan and his bandits from Arlington, Va."

President Carter returned Monday to the city where he was nominated in 1976 and renominated last month. He proclaimed, "I love New York... I have always loved New York. And most important of all, I will continue to love New York."

New York has 41 electoral votes and is considered generally that he would have an almost impossible time winning Nov. 4 without carrying the state. He got a warm welcome on his one-day visit Monday, and promised that his commitment to the city "will never waver."

Republican nominee Ronald Reagan was in Los Angeles taping some new television ads before heading off for Iowa in the evening.

In Washington, independent candidate John Anderson chided politically active religious groups for failing to maintain strict separation of

LEON JAWORSKI
...in Reagan camp

church and state, and former Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski announced he will resign as Democratic for Reagan organization. Jaworski, who declined to say how he voted four years ago but who was once Lyndon B. Johnson's lawyer, supported George Bush for the 1980 nomination last spring. At that time, he called Reagan an "extremist" (with) over the counter simplistic remedies and shopworn platitudes.

But he said Monday: "I'd rather have a competent extremist than an incompetent moderate" — and was highly critical of Carter's handling of his brother Billy's dealings with Libya.

Reagan said later he was "very, very happy" at Jaworski's decision.

"His credentials are well established in the Democratic Party and among the citizenry as a whole and to have him offer to do this is very heart-warming to me," he told reporters in Hollywood.

Anderson, addressing a meeting of religious broadcasters, said the strong political effort of such groups as the Catholic church and the Moral Majority violates the principle of church-state separation and dilutes their own spiritual authority.

"The political marriage of the Moral Majority and the New Right is not one ordained in heaven," said Anderson, himself a member of the Evangelical Free Church. "It is a union which thunders with misguided motives... which seeks to inject unbending rigidity and intolerance into church pews and polling place alike."

Anderson scheduled an address to the National Association of Black Journalists Monday night, and was leaving Tuesday for North Carolina and later Florida on the first day of a new campaign trip.

Digging too deep?

Probe stalled inside agency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Labor Department official told Congress Monday he was ordered to halt investigation of possible criminal conduct by persons interfering with the department's investigation of a Teamsters pension fund.

The official, Richard Crino, was one of two department field managers who had been assigned the task of conducting an internal investigation of the department's probe.

He told a Senate subcommittee when he and a colleague finished their report in May, 1979, he expected to be called back to Washington some day to finish the work.

But Crino said he was told by Rocco "Rocky" DeMarco, then the deputy assistant secretary for Labor Management Services Administration, not to continue his investigation.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, in earlier testimony, staunchly defended destruction of government copies of the report that urged a reorganization of his department's effort to investigate operations of the scandal-ridden Teamsters Union Central States Pension Fund.

He also defended the decision not to continue the investigation.

Marshall said some Justice Department officials would have wanted the probe to continue, but said it was not the duty of his department to investigate violators of the criminal code.

"Once the review had served its purpose and its recommendations had been carried out," the official continuing the review discarded his copies," Marshall said. "There was, however, no highly dramatic or wild destruction of documents." Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee, said although the authors of the report retained a copy, "there was an official attempt to destroy it."

Both Marshall and department solicitor Carl Ann Clauss said there was nothing wrong in destroying the 23-page report, authored by Labor Department field officials John Kotch of Pittsburgh and Crino of Cleveland.

One longtime subcommittee investigator and lawyer, Lavern Duffy, went so far as to suggest obstruction of justice might have been committed.

Duffy and another staff counsel, Marty Steinberg, said department officials had criticized a Special Investigations Staff created in 1975 to investigate employee benefit plans, including the Teamsters fund, and recommended its termination.

After the subcommittee issued a subpoena for the document in August, a copy was obtained from Kotch.

At initial subcommittee hearings in August, the General Accounting Office charged, the department had wasted $5 million in an inadequate investigation of the Teamsters fund and its alleged ties with organized crime.

Marshall, irate over public airing of the matter, refused to order department officials to testify in closed-door sessions of the panel. The subcommittee, in turn, subpoenaed them.

Florida executions delayed

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The Florida Supreme Court, accused of unconstitutionally using secret reports in its decisions on 124 death sentences Monday, stayed the Oct. 3 executions of two convicted killers.

The justices stayed indefinitely the execution of Carl Ray Sogger, who killed a Florida Highway Patrol trooper at Crystal River in 1977, and Lonnie Hargrave, who murdered a convenience store clerk in Miami during a robbery attempt in 1974.

The justices acted after receiving a suit filed by a coalition of anti-death penalty groups accusing them of using confidential psychiatric reports and other material — never seen by the defense — during the automatic review given capital cases. The suit demanded the court vacate 124 death sentences, including those of Sogger and Hargrave.

The court scheduled arguments on the suit for Oct. 27. The court would presumably order new sentencing hearings if it agrees with the charges, since the convictions themselves are not under attack.

The practice of the court considering documents not seen by the defense has "tainted" Florida's capital punishment law to the point where it no longer would be acceptable to the U.S. Supreme Court, the coalition claimed in the suit.

The U.S. Supreme Court has found the failure of a court to turn over everything it sees to the defense to allow an opportunity for rebuttal to be a violation of an offender's constitutional rights to due process, equal protection, to confront his accusers and to adequate counsel, the suit claimed.

The seven justices were asked in the suit to assign an outsider as "special master" to determine the facts of the case.

Supreme Court justices have admitted seeing psychological reports on 20 Death Row inmates during the automatic review given all capital cases, but denied the reports influenced their decisions on whether the death penalty was appropriate.

There are 149 persons on Death Row at Florida State Prison, but the suit seeks the overturning of death sentences for 124, those whose cases have been heard or are in the process of being heard by the Supreme Court.

Since 1975, the court has "requested and received" information on capital cases which did not come up at the trial or during the appeal of the conviction, the main suit claims.

Landon set to go home

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Former Republican presidential nominee Alf Landon, 85, relayed a message Monday from his hospital room saying his test results so far have been satisfactory and that he looks forward to going home soon.

Landon's wife, Theo, visited the former Kansas governor and 1936 presidential candidate and told a hospital official that "he wanted everyone to know" he is feeling better.

Officials were unsure how long he would remain at Stormont-Vall Regional Medical Center, where he was admitted late Thursday complaining of weakness, a fever and slight chest pains.

Making of a 'slick' president

As the presidential race embarks upon its final month, it is clear voters will be subjected to a campaign of tilting mirrors.

That means less of the candidates themselves but more of the images projected by mass media techniques, particularly in the use of television. The dollar cost for waging such a battle will be enormous.

Already it has started. The Carter camp began its national television campaign by projecting the importance of the office of the presidency, but now has swung into jabs and rabbit punches at Ronald Reagan.

Reagan, too, has used the tube and plans to use it more extensively in the days ahead. His shapers and molders prefer the straight-on approach, portraying the Republican as a rational, calm and deliberate leader. Another general GOM TV campaign—portrays the Democrats as falling the country and just plain running out of gas.

John Anderson is so poor he can barely afford plane fare, let alone television's costly seconds and minutes.

If this media campaign shapes up as insiders predict, it will become one long step toward that day when everyone votes by electronic ballot from their living rooms.

It also means mass media hype has replaced mother and her apron strings when it comes to political campaigns.

Why should Reagan risk making gaffes on the campaign trail when he can control the type of image he wants to implant in voters' minds?

Why should Carter be called on the carpet to explain his record when ads can show him looking very presidential indeed?

This is not to say advertising does not have a place in a political campaign; but when it supplants access to the candidates and becomes a placebo for the issues, the race for the presidency becomes that much more removed from the man who pulls the lever on election day.

Maybe that's one reason voter turnout in this country has become so pathetic of late.

A lot of people bemoan the choices in this election. That's bad enough, but who wants to vote for a cardboard candidate?

The rush to get out

© The Boston Globe

BOSTON — This fellow citizen, in Congressional Rush Week. Any bill that isn't passed by the Congress by Oct. 2 will simply be left at the curb in the rush to adjournment, home and election.

At the moment, one of the bills in danger of being so stranded is something called the Act to Prevent Domestic Violence. This is a bill that passed the House in August, but has stalled in the Senate, passed through conference committee unscathed and, now, in a gathering controversy, may die of neglect.

When this bill first came up for hearings, at least one congressman thought that domestic violence had something to do with terrorism at airports. But a bill aimed at terrorism in the home has turned out to be more controversial.

H.R. 2977 would provide a federal support program to states and communities that are interested in starting programs to deal with family violence. The first priority would be for shelters so that someone who is bleeding or terrified in the middle of the night would have a place to go.

This seems like the most applicable and motherhood sort of idea — until you remember how long we have lived under the rule of thumb. In English common law, after all, it was perfectly okay for a husband to chastise his wife as long as he used a stick no thicker than his thumb.

There will be no attempt to pass such a law in the House this year because in the House there is dissatisfaction with Carter's goals; but reluctance to do anything that might embarrass the president prior to the election. The focal point of the attempt to revise Carter's planning goals is Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont.

Carter's forest planning goals received a polite, but heavy barrage of criticism from an array of witnesses before the Senate Forestry Subcommittee last week.

flicted nor malice, cruelty or dangerous violence shown by the husband, if it is better to draw the curtain, shut out the public gaze and leave the parties to forgive and forget."

This was the way we treated domestic violence for nearly a century. The public chose to forgive and forget, although the families couldn't. The real rule of thumb in families is that violence escalates.

In 1975, over 1.7 million Americans faced a husband or wife wielding a knife or gun. Over 2 million had been beaten by a spouse. Half of the murders in the country are by one spouse. Women are overwhelmingly the victims of violence.

Given these statistics, the opponents to this bill couldn't beat their breasts publicly in favor of wife-beating. What they have said instead is "This is a terrible problem, but... Then, clucking all the way, they have listed the evils of federal funding, federal control, federal interference with the family.

But it's hard to describe this legislation as a federal grab for power. It is carefully framed so that the programs are state and community designed and run. The states must put up matching funds, and the single project gets more than $50,000. Furthermore, the $15 million appropriation is not considered major money in the land of MX missiles.

The real opposition is coming from allegedly "pro-family" right-wing groups. In some bizarre testimony, Sen. Gordon Humphrey of New Hampshire warned that homes for battered women would be anti-family, "indoctrination centers." Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina suggested that they would encourage the "disintegration of the family." Apparently an intact family with a broken wife is better than a broken family with an intact ex-wife. You don't have to reach deep into these psyches to see a threatened "head of household."

According to these fantasies, the woman who heads for a shelter is the one responsible for breaking up the family, not the husband who beat her up. The shelters are dangerous precisely because they might suggest that her husband has no right to "enforce his authority" with a left hook to the jaw.

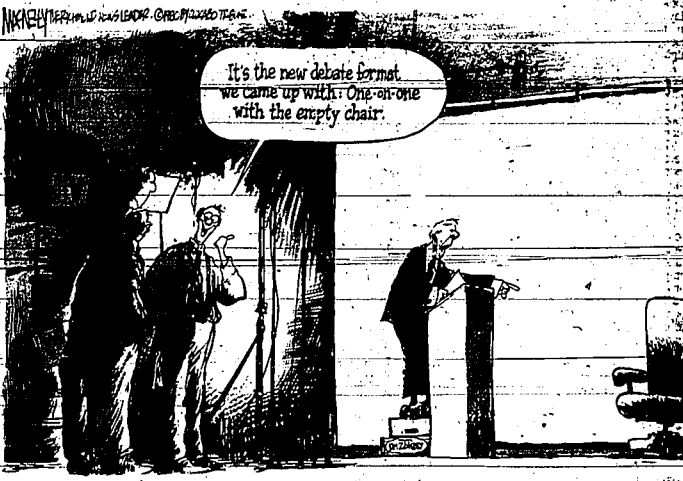

June Zellin, the head of the Office on Domestic Violence, says that she knew the right wing "would hit us. The 'pro-family' coalition is strong and they are focusing on this."

They came close to victory in the Senate on Sept. 4, when the bill passed by only five votes. Among the people conspicuously absent were Sens. George McGovern (D-S.D.), John Culver (D-Iowa), and Frank Church (D-Idaho) — all heroes up for reelection in contests with right-wing opponents.

Last week, The Moral Majority — which apparently finds wife-beating morally acceptable — was conspicuously present at the conference committee. The odds are only 50-50 that the bill will ever come up for a last-minute rollcall.

Zellin says: "Any family where the husband is beating his wife is in serious trouble. Our immediate focus is to help the women and children. Our long-term solution is to help the abusers. But where the stays or not, we think she should lead a life free of violence."

That really isn't a whole lot to ask.

Where are they now?

WASHINGTON — You don't hear much lately from the vice presidential candidates, George What's-his-name, and Fritz You-know-who-I-mean. The problem is that all the media are focusing in on Carter and Reagan, and not paying attention to the men who could be only a heart-beat away from vice presidency.

I was starting to worry about this so I decided to find out where they were.

My first call was to Reagan Headquarters. "Is George there?" I asked.

"George who?" "George Bush."

"Just a minute, I'll see if someone in the office knows him."

The voice came back on the phone a few minutes later. "Carter and Reagan, and not paying attention to the men who could be only a heart-beat away from vice presidency."

"He's the Reagan's running-mate. He was selected after Gerry Ford turned Reagan down."

"The name does ring a bell. Let me transfer you to somebody who might know where he is."

Another voice came on the phone. "Reagan headquarters, personnel department."

"Yes, I'm trying to locate a George Bush, who is Ronald Reagan's running-mate. Do you have a description or a Social Security number, or anything?"

"He's rather tall and thin and looks very much like an Ivy Leaguer. I don't have his Social Security number and the last time anyone saw him was on the platform with Ronald Reagan at the Republican National Convention in Detroit. He was holding up Ronald's hand."

"We've had dozens of politicians holding up Ronald's hand, and we have a lot of people working for Reagan who look like they're Ivy Leaguers. Does he have any scars?"

"Well, he ran against Reagan in the primaries so I imagine he does. But he's covered, them up since Reagan chose him as his running-mate."

"He doesn't show up in the computer. Have you called the Red Cross?"

"No, I thought I'd check with you people first on the off-chance you might know."

"We can't keep track of everyone working for Reagan. They come and they go. Why don't you put an ad in the paper?"

"I don't want to find him that badly. But if he turns up will you call me?"

"I don't want to find him that badly. But if he turns up will you call me?"

"You have to be kidding. We're running an election campaign, not a missing persons bureau."

I decided to see if I'd have any more luck with Fritz Mondale. I called the Carter Headquarters.

"Any news on Vice President Mondale?" I asked.

"No, should there be?" the voice said.

"You don't happen to know where he is right now?"

"If he isn't at a state funeral for some foreign leader, he's probably opening a post office somewhere. He only comes around the office to pick up his mail."

"But is he still Carter's running-mate?" I asked.

"As far as I know. But you had better check that one out with the White House. They never clue us in on what they're doing from one day to the next."

"I'd like to get in touch with him if possible can you?"

"Have you looked in the Yellow Pages under 'Vice President?' He might be listed there."

"I hadn't thought of that. You've been a big help."

"Don't mention it, and if you find him, would you tell me to call him?"

"Sure," she said. "I forgot to pay the electric bill this month."

No more grins; let my people go

Editor, Times-News:

Foreign relations is now principally the singular question of the hostages and the disgrace of the United States is enduring because of our government's callous neglect toward them. Fifty Americans without the dignity of freedom, a freedom fought for in a multitude of wars, and shunted to the ignominious status of political pawns.

Now must we classify and categorize the reasons for such a travesty of affairs. We donated millions to the Arab poor — when they were poor — and their thank you is to turn on America and degrade the human spirit of fifty of its inhabitants.

To fight and die is not a heroic solution, but it could be a viable alternative if the other side does the dying. It is an alternative to the moral prostitution now exercised to gain political favor, to the cowardice of leaders who turn their back on their stricken fellow-Americans, to the disgusting cow-towing to a backward heathen nation, and most of all an alternative to those semi-retired bathrobe bandits who wrap bath towels around their noggin, stuff our oil dollars in their whalers, and go out to bully the Earth, and purchase the cheaply-bought politicians to their own morally bankrupt ends.

It would be an alternative but for the fact that we're not armed to do it.

The theory of late that we can go a-grinning and glad-hand these pirates hasn't panned out. NO more grinning. I ache for a serious face. I tell those Iranian punks to, as the Bible aptly put it: "Let my people go."

I have seen such a face. I have seen a face that clouds up and goes dark at the mention of the hostages. No grin. Thank God, no grin. Symms is an easy mark, about the time a paper wants a bad picture of him they mention Iran, and though I'm sure he tries not to, he clouds-up and goes dark-and-forty flashes-up go off.

So it is with the press. So it is with foreign relations. NO more grin, please!

Will Congress move to take over forest planning?

Times-News Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — An attempt to revise President Carter's five-year planning goals for the nation's forests is brewing in the Senate.

The drive to amend those goals may include the more dramatic step of taking the forest planning responsibility away from the president and giving it to Congress.

There will be no attempt to pass such a law in the House this year because in the House there is dissatisfaction with Carter's goals; but reluctance to do anything that might embarrass the president prior to the election. The focal point of the attempt to revise Carter's planning goals is Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont.

Carter's forest planning goals received a polite, but heavy barrage of criticism from an array of witnesses before the Senate Forestry Subcommittee last week.

There will be no attempt to pass such a law in the House this year because in the House there is dissatisfaction with Carter's goals; but reluctance to do anything that might embarrass the president prior to the election. The focal point of the attempt to revise Carter's planning goals is Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont.

While there is sentiment in the Senate for a dramatic response to Carter's goals, influential congressmen such as Rep. Tom Foley, D-Wash., chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, appear reluctant to do something about the problem. There is no sense of urgency, and certainly no commitment to take action now.

But another, deeper suspicion among some witnesses was that if Carter's statement of forest policy planning remains unanswered by Congress, the RPA process will have been so degraded as to be rendered meaningless.

"If Congress accepts the (budget) bounds approach by failing to act, the RPA process will be seriously impaired," said Restler, who was associate chief of the Forest Service when the Resource Planning Act was written. "I strongly urge that both houses of Congress move as expeditiously as possible to amend and/or supplement the presidential statement of policy and recommended program. Failure to do so will seriously undermine the credibility of the RPA process and plunge us again into a competitive arena in which every person, every interest, must fight for survival. The real losers will be future generations."

The basic illogic of Carter's double set of forest planning goals was best described by John C. Barber of the Society of American Foresters. "How useful can the RPA program be with goals so broad as to encompass contradictory trends — reflecting uncertainty and disappeared not willing to harvest and grow enough trees.

Among that crowd was the National Forest Products Association, whose representative, Gene Bersoffen, said, "The program's a failure because it doesn't do anything about the problem. There is no sense of urgency, and certainly no commitment to take action now."

But another, deeper suspicion among some witnesses was that if Carter's statement of forest policy planning remains unanswered by Congress, the RPA process will have been so degraded as to be rendered meaningless.

agreement as to the recommended direction of program development?" asked Barber.

How likely is the Senate to respond to Carter's goals?

"I think it is. Sen. Melcher's intent to have us draft a resolution amending Carter's statement of policy and recommended program is a serious face," says an aide to Melcher. "It would set up some planning goals for the Forest Service, and it would amend the act, so that Congress would set the policy goals. Of course, there are risks when you set the legislative body tinkering in the area where we want the Forest Service's best professional judgment, which is what the original act sought. But Congress ought at least to be able to say what the Forest Service should do."

So the stage seems to be set for some tricky post-election legislative politicking over a natural resources planning process of vital concern to the West and to the Northwest in particular.

One key question will be how far out of the closet Foley and Weaver will venture after the election. Melcher's aide says that he and his staff have been contracting all of the various forestry-related interests around the country — timber, environmentalists, mining, petroleum, grazing — and feel they have the broad support of that group for some heavy action. Perhaps some encouragement from those groups will help open the mouths of Foley and Weaver in the somewhat freer air after the election.

Senate approves October spending

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate worked its way out of a time-consuming debate on abortion Monday and voted to keep the government in business by extending federal spending power beyond midnight tonight.

A joint House-Senate conference session to work out the differences between the Senate bill and widely divergent provisions of the House spending bill was postponed until this morning.

The Senate approved 58-27 its version of an emergency bill to extend federal funding until Dec. 15 or until the Congress can vote on permanent legislation when it returns in mid-November for a post-election session.

Failure of the House-Senate conferees to work out their differences would leave the government without funds after today to pay federal employees not involved in work that protects life or property.

Programs such as Social Security benefits, which are not funded through congressional appropriations, would be exempt, yet there is some question whether payments could be made since government employees are responsible for distributing the checks.

In the midst of considering the crucial funding legislation, the Senate got bogged down in an abortion debate.

Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash.,

chairman of the Appropriations Committee, urged the senators not to get waylaid in controversial issues when the fate of the government was at stake.

"If we don't get this bill out in 36 hours, all government is going to stop," he warned.

The Senate finally agreed 47-37 to continue the current abortion funding guidelines while allowing individual states that object to subsidized abortions to withhold state funds, and indirectly, federal funds.

Present law permits federally funded abortions when the mother's life is in danger and for incest and rape victims.

The House-passed version of the temporary funding bill would have restricted federal funds to instances when the mother's life was at stake.

Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., warned the Senate compromise would be the first step in undermining federal programs by allowing states "to decide for themselves in federal programs and to establish lesser standards for themselves."

Packwood said, "If that's going to be the policy... there shouldn't be any federal programs."

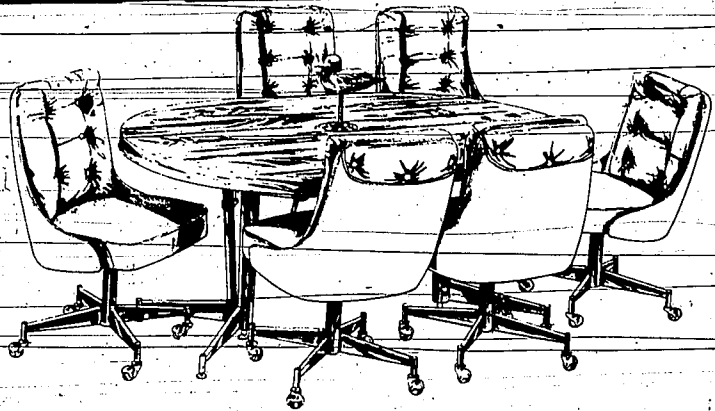

The Senate version would also keep government programs operating at current funding levels with some exceptions, while the House version proposes funding at the higher fiscal 1981 levels.

HEAVY SHADOW
It isn't easy walking in the footsteps of a famous father, and Patrick Wayne is more than a bit tired of it. He's just the new "Horse, Dog, Show," but he's also the son of the late John Wayne—a fact he'd just as soon people would forget. Says he, "I am not an unsophisticated person. I don't live on a ranch. I don't eat dust. I go to plays. I go to concerts." That's a far cry from the image of Rooster Cogburn, and that's just the way he wants it.

THE ALTERNATIVE
Robert Redford says the Hollywood movie industry is "narrow and corrupt," so he's setting up an independent film festival in Sundance, Utah, to help young filmmakers avoid it. Says Redford, "The studios want movies with big names, with sensation-oriented plots—even to the point of being prurient. People think purely of profit in Hollywood. There are few people who are willing to stand behind a project of quality just because it has quality."

DIRECTOR BARBRA
Barbra Streisand has been in Czechoslovakia, scouting Prague for film locations to use in her debut as a director. The Czech officials say she met last week with officials of the Czechoslovak Filmexport organiza-

WEDDING BELLS
Candice Bergen and French director Louis Malle were married last weekend in the French village of Legagnac where she's been working on her latest film, "Rich and Famous." It's a first trip to the altar for the 34-year-old daughter of the late Edgar Bergen and the second for the 43-year-old Malle whose latest contribution to cinema is "Atlantic City," costarring Burt Lancaster and Susan Sarandon.

CRITICS
The Jewish Defense League greeted this week's showing of CBS-TV's "Playing for Time" Sunday by burning the star in effigy in front of the network's Hollywood studio. The film is the story of Paula Frenkel, a Jewish musician imprisoned in a Nazi concentration camp during World War II, and the Jewish community is in arms because the lead was given to Vanessa Redgrave. Her acting isn't the issue. The issue is her outspoken support of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

TURNABOUT
The bride wore a brown pantsuit. The groom wore a dainty floral print gown—with white lace trim as a counterpoint to his tattooed arms—and a blue-velvet barett in his thick black beard. Thus were David Daughtry and Yvonne Sanders, married Saturday in Billings, Mont. Said biker Daughtry—"Bammer" to his friends—"They don't call me 'Alabama wild man' for nothing." Said Yvonne, "Everything he and I do is different. That's what makes it so fantastic."

Daredevil lands on his feet

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI)—Czech-born car dealer Jaromir Wagner landed on his feet Monday, waving to a crowd of Icelanders who had come to watch his attempt to fly across the Atlantic standing on top of a plane.
"I just love risks," said the 41-year-old daredevil as he landed in Reykjavik on the third stop of his flight.
Keeping his balance with the aid of straps and a handle bar, Wagner and his twin-engine De Havilland Islander plane landed in Reykjavik after a six-hour flight from the Faroe Islands.
A car dealer residing in Geissen, West Germany, Wagner was spending the night in the Icelandic capital before winging the chilliest part of his journey today over Greenland.

Styles suggestive, survey shows

NEW YORK (UPI)—Teen-age girls who wear high-hugging jeans and no-bra tops might think they are just being stylish, but the boys who look at them think the fashions suggest the girls want to have sex.
The conclusion was part of the results of a survey by four members of the Department of Psychology at U.C.L.A., published Monday in the October issue of "Psychology Today."
The study, part of a larger survey of adolescent behavior, involved 432 young people in the Los Angeles area, evenly split among blacks, whites and Hispanics.

The survey indicated that while both sexes agreed that a see-through blouse was a deliberate teaser, the males were more likely to be turned on by other female apparel such as "a low-cut top, shorts, tight jeans, or no bra."
None of those surveyed saw a young man's open shirt, tight pants, light swim trunks, or jewelry—as much of an indication that he was specifically on the prowl for sex.
The Psychology Today article, muses: "To her, tight jeans and no bra means she's in style. To him, they mean she wants to have sex."
Other survey findings included:

- Both sexes agreed that if a girl accepts a date with a boy who has a reputation for sexual activity she should expect him to "come on strong," but girls were less likely to believe that acceptance of the date was a come-on to sex.
- Those interviewed said a girl with a reputation for active sex should expect a boy to assume her willingness.
- Girls were much more likely than boys to agree with the statement, "Sometimes I wish that guys and girls could just be friends without worrying about sexual relationships."

Ever wondered about that word?

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI)—Wordsmith Richard Spears says he has found the answers for the people who use dirty words and are curious about the origins of their unpronounceable diction.
Spears, an associate professor of linguistics at Northwestern University, is putting the final touches on a five-year research project that will culminate in his dictionary of gutter language.
"I'm sure millions of people would love to know the origin of the word 'f---,' and there is no other place to find it out," he said.

Spears' book, "A Dictionary of Onions, Curses, Insults, Sexual Slang and Metaphor, Racial Slurs, Drug Talk, Homosexual-Lingo and Related Matters," already contains about 17,500 words and 40,000 definitions. Included in the dictionary are: "pleit"—often amusing—definitions of such unmentionables as back-door trumpet, coral dust, flirtytoodle, meadow mayonnaise and whensynym. Many of the words are synonyms for sex acts and bodily functions not commonly found in conventional dictionaries.
Spears cites a dual purpose for his scholarly work.

"The general purpose is to keep in touch with contemporary language," he said, adding that future generations can use the book as "an honest, scholarly record" of 20th century language.
Despite its thousands of entries, Spears said there is always room for expansion.
"People have been writing with suggested entries, and I'm very anxious to receive anything, anonymous or otherwise," he said.
For those who think they can contribute a little local color, Spears' mailing address is: Box 394, Glenview, Ill., 60025.

What's what

Russian pioneers new eye operation to fix cornea

A Moscow eye surgeon says he can cure nearsightedness. Tricky operation. He makes 16 pinlike cuts in the cornea, leaving the center intact. The cornea then relaxes in some manner so as to let the lens behind it reshape itself into focus. Claim is 95 percent of his patients thereafter lose out the glasses. Svyatoslav Fyodorov is the fellow's name. Click! - to him, however pronounced. A Nobel candidate, if ever there were one.

Historical footnotes reveal that Gen. U. S. Grant couldn't bear the sight of blood. So touchy was he about it that even a rare steak made him turn his eyes away and swallow hard.

Rachal fans will understand this sign in a Boston department store window: "Rose Rub pants - guaranteed not to run."

TOBACCO CALL
Q. Why is a "tobacco road" called that?
A. Such roads were made simply by the rolling of heavy hogsheads of tobacco.

Q. Why do doctors say no baby under age 1 should be fed honey?
A. Only some doctors say that, and those who do claim honey sometimes contains dormant botulism bacteria spores. Newborn babies do not have the bacterial defenses against it that they develop later, they contend.

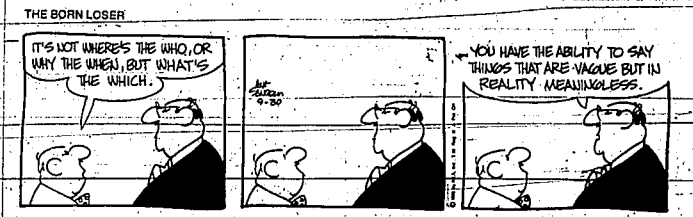

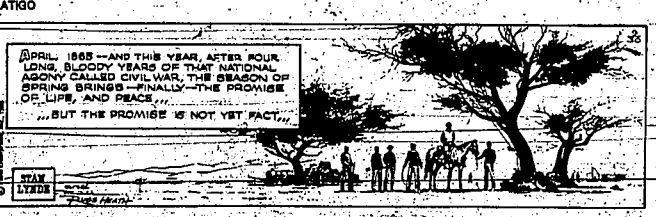

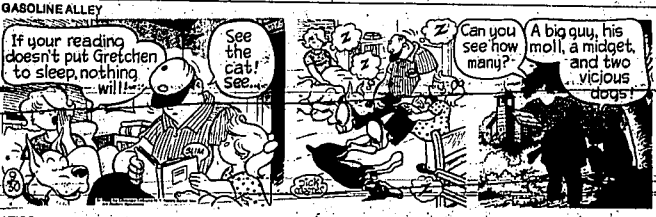

Q. What proportion of the dead in this country are cremated?
A. Overall, 8.5 percent. That's not true of certain trend-setting areas such as California's Marin County just north of San Francisco, however. There, it's 30 percent.

TROPICAL FLIGHT PATTERN
Many is the soul who dreams of retiring early to a tropical paradise. Like one of the Caribbean islands. Jamaica, for instance. But the Jamaicans don't feel that way, evidently. Studies show that more Jamaicans live outside Jamaica than inside it. And the big movement isn't into Caribbean countries but out of them. Emigration rates from there since World War II is higher than from anywhere else worldwide. No, Reagan Burcha is not a political ticket. It's the name of a 3-year-old girl in Wisconsin Dells, Wis.

Half the homecoming queens in the nation's colleges don't know anything at all about football, they readily tell the pollster.

medical facility, so if there are any "angels" out there, your tax-deductible contributions will be welcomed with open wings. And wouldn't it be wonderful if this idea caught on in other parts of the country?"

Today I received the following day-brightener from Tom Goodwin: "Dear Abby: Your kind column of July 17 brought 48 new pilot members to AirLifeLine and has given us contacts for the establishment of AirLifeLine chapters in Arizona, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Nevada, New Mexico, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia and Washington."

"The generosity of 'Dear Abby' readers was also overwhelming. In one month we've received $3,319.94 in donations from your readers in every part of America. This money will enable us to accept several additional missions that we would not have been able to fly without your help and your readers' kindness."

"To show our appreciation, the AirLifeLine board of directors has voted you an Honorary Life Membership in our organization (the first in our history!)."

"Thank you, Abby, from all of us at AirLifeLine and especially from the hundreds of people who will benefit because you care. Sincerely yours, TOM GOODWIN."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "RETIRED AND BORED": In these days of a lagging economy and a tight labor market, opportunities for voluntary service are golden for those in their golden years. Hospitals, nursing homes, programs for the handicapped, parks and recreation departments reach out for volunteers. The older citizen, possessing the wisdom and patience of age, can help smooth out the wrinkles of community endeavor by committing his or her time and experience in the time-honored American tradition of "volunteering." When life gets boring, the best come to life—voluntarily. (Straight talk to teens about sex, drugs and the pain of growing up. Don't telephone, write letter

By ERMA BOMBECK

We got our phone bill this month and if one more of our kids "reaches out and touches somebody" they're going to bring back a broken hand.

The phone company ads make phoning look like such a pleasurable experience. Grandma and Granddad are both poised over the receiver listening to their grandchild burp. An entire band is jammed in a phone booth calling the tuba player who had to stay at home with his lip in a cast, and college friends call coast to coast with tears in their eyes to describe a Western sunset.

Maybe it used to be that way. But that was before Grandma and Granddad realized the burp cost them $9.12. It was before the band cued in their airline tickets to make the call. Before the tri-band realized it was cheaper to take a bus out to see the sunset than to talk about it.

All I know is telephoning long distance at our house has become as much fun as an anxiety attack. I appear with subtle reminders: a watch, a timer and a calendar with the date circled. My husband grumbles, "Let's give him back to his nature mother... Ma Bell!" While a voice from the extension breathes heavily and keeps repeating, "Get off the phone. I'm expecting an important call."

Our phone bill has prompted me to put together a set of rules for placing long distance calls in the future.

Before placing the call, go to the bathroom.

Blow your nose and get a drink of water.

Read the weather report of the town you are calling, to eliminate "What's the weather there... Ma Bell!"

Figure out the time zone to conserve conversation on "What time is it there?"

Fight with brother before dialing.—Don't play games like "Guess who this is?"

Place pencil and paper next to phone and put dog outside.

Put note on door saying, "I am on phone. Come back later."

Place call.

Laughter costs dollars. Save it until you're off the phone.

Don't repeat. If someone says, "I love you" there is no need to say, "I love you too." A simple "Ditto" will do it.

Animals and babies are a waste of time on the phone. They never bark/laugh/talk anyway until they hear the dial tone.

I gave my son the rules and suggested he not call so much, but started writing letters.

Last night I heard him reading a letter over the phone.

It's my fault. I should have told him he had to mail it.

Bickel-seeks oldest student

It's a different building now, but the Bickel Elementary School in Twin Falls is celebrating its 75th anniversary with a school carnival Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Games, food and activities for the entire family. School officials are looking for the oldest living student who attended the school which dates back to the town's earliest days. Information should be called to the school, 733-4116.

Psychiatrist hits homosexuality

ATLANTA (UPI) — An Atlanta psychiatrist believes homosexuality deviant behavior and society should condone it as merely an alternate life style. Dr. Alfred Messer says social acceptance of homosexuality discourages homosexuals from seeking psychiatric help and compounds a growing problem.

"The more we, as society, view homosexuality as a normal form of sexual behavior, the more trouble we have in treating it," said Messer, chief of psychiatry at an Atlanta hospital.

Messer is the author of several books on psychiatric subjects. His latest publication, "When You Are Concerned With Homosexuality," details his treatment of homosexuality in a family setting in which all members of the family meet with the psychiatrist.

Messer's belief that homosexuality is deviant behavior and that it should be treated through psychiatric counseling rather than publicly accepted places him at odds with a growing body of public policy and even with the American Psychiatric Association.

The A.P.A. has removed homosexuality from its list of sexual disorders and reclassified it as a "sexual orientation difference."

In his writings and practice, however, Messer says a stand must be taken against public acceptance of homosexuality.

"As a therapist, I believe we must take issue with civil libertarians and elected officials who equate 'gay rights' with 'civil rights,' with psychological and psychiatric associations that insist that homosexuality represents an 'orientation difference' rather than a deviation which can be treated."

By calling homosexuality deviant behavior, Messer said he was neither "normalizing or moralizing. I believe we must say that any society must be governed by rules. Society will uphold heterosexuality, he says. "If we do not, we are leading ourselves down the path to oblivion."

Messer cited Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson's proclamation of "Gay Pride Week" and the recent

"International Gay Lesbian Week" as examples of acceptance of homosexuality by the public and by elected officials.

"Homosexuality today has become a social and political issue, and people with inner conflicts and tensions are encouraged to join with others similarly troubled in blaming society for their personal despair rather than being advised to look inward."

"Further, homosexuals are discouraged from assessing their inner conflicts by actions of psychological, psychiatric and legal organizations. They have removed homosexuality from the category of sexual deviations."

When homosexual behavior is labeled as an alternative life style it is less likely that homosexuals will seek treatment; treatment itself becomes difficult if society considers homosexuality acceptable behavior.

"Homosexuality is not an irreversible condition. It can be treated. When the homosexual is motivated to seek help, he or she can attain mature and congenial heterosexuality."

MARY CUNNINGHAM... 'Ineffective' now

'Gossip' sends executive on leave

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (UPI) — One of the top-ranking women in American business is taking a leave of absence from Bendix Corp. because of "malicious gossip" linking her romantically with company Chairman William Agee.

Mary Cunningham, 29, said she has been "rendered ineffective" as a Bendix vice president because of the rumors and has therefore requested an "immediate but temporary leave."

Ms. Cunningham would not say how long she intended to stay on temporary leave but insisted she had no intention to resign.

Her announcement Sunday came just four days after she was appointed vice president-staff planning for the giant auto industry supplier's latest promotion was based on anything other than professional ability.

Agee, 42, told about 600 Bendix employees in an otherwise routine speech last Wednesday that Ms. Cunningham was a good friend — but that had nothing to do with her rapid series of promotions.

But in a letter to Agee and the company's board of directors, Ms. Cunningham said the national rumors of a romance between her and Agee had affected her ability to do her job and could harm the company.

"As a result of media coverage I have received in recent days, I have been placed in an impossible position," her three-page letter said. "As a result of the false innuendoes and excessive attention given to this promotion, I have been rendered ineffective at this point in time."

Ms. Cunningham said her leave request "should not be construed in any sense as tantamount to resignation, for I have rejected outright that option as not being in the best interests of the company, other women or myself."

Resigning would create "a dangerous precedent... that rumors can dictate corporate policy and that female executives can be forced out of a company through malicious gossip," she said.

A. Wellesley College honors student and Harvard-Business School graduate, Ms. Cunningham came to Bendix 15 months ago as Agee's executive assistant.

Before being named to the strategic planning post, she was vice president for corporate and public relations.

Agee, a father of three, was divorced last summer. Ms. Cunningham is separated from her husband.

Steel aid plan unveiling due today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's plan to revive the nation's ailing steel industry will be unveiled today.

It is expected to offer more tax relief, more protection from imports and more time to meet environmental standards.

The administration has not disclosed what it will ask in return from the steelmakers.

The administration has been laboring for months to develop a relief plan for domestic steel producers who have been hard-pressed by competition from Japan and Europe and hard-hit by recent recession.

Details of the plan have been zealously guarded by administration higher-ups, but sources in various agencies have sketched a program that is similar to one recently proposed by Ronald Reagan.

Earlier this month, the Republican presidential nominee said if he were president, he would allow domestic steel producers bigger profits, afford them greater protection from foreign competition and stretch out their timetable for meeting federally mandated clean air and water standards.

Carter is likely to offer much the same.

The president is expected to emphasize his recent "economic recovery" program which millions of dollars in tax breaks for the industry, both through faster depreciation write-offs and targeted relief for industries devastated by the recent economic downturn.

At the same time, Carter is likely to announce re-instatement of the so-called trigger price mechanism, which was suspended last spring.

The mechanism, which is designed to lead to stiff fines for foreign steel manufacturers who flood this country with cheaply made products, could be raised by as much as 12 percent.

The president is expected to propose the mechanism be kept in place only a few years until the steel industry gets back on its feet.

On the environmental front, Carter is expected to propose giving U.S. steelmakers as much as three extra years to meet clean air and water standards.

Administration officials have been very careful not to tab the relief program a "bailout" and have made a point of saying they expect certain concessions from the industry.

Ror one, the White House is hoping for some sort of commitment from steelmakers to pump their extra earnings into updating plants and equipment to make them more competitive.

However, industry leaders have balked at this, saying business does best when it is not shackled by unnecessary government interference. The steel industry has shunned investment more and more in recent years, finding it achieves more profits by investing in non-steel ventures.

Merchants salute farming

TWIN FALLS — Downtown merchants will salute the agricultural backbone of the local economy and celebrate the 10th anniversary of the downtown mall this week.

They plan to sell Magic Valley-grown beans and locally produced sugar at wholesale prices Thursday, Friday and Saturday, from a warehouse parked outside the Twin Falls Bank and Trust. Beans from the South Side Bean Co. will be available in 1-, 2-, 3- and 10-pound sacks. Sugar from White Sulphur will be available in 5-, 10- and 25-pound packages.

Beans and sugar will be on sale each day from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The downtown merchants will also hold a farmers' market on the mall Saturday. People with produce to sell baked goods or art-work are all invited.

Mall Manager Monte Barney said anyone interested in participating should call her at 734-4286 to reserve a spot on the mall. If she is unavailable, people can also call the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, at 733-8974 and leave a message.

Resort operator lists record income

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Caesars World Inc., operator of Caesars Palace in Las Vegas and other entertainment and resort facilities, Monday reported record revenues and net income for its fiscal year ended July 31.

Its revenues jumped to $518.75 million from $233.61 million a year earlier. Net income came to $33.83 million or $1.29 a share against $8.44 million or 35 cents a share in the previous year.

For the fourth quarter, the firm announced net income of $61.9 million or 24 cents a share on revenues of $154.65 million. This compared with net income of $44,000 on revenues of $72,479,000 for the 1979 fourth quarter.

Help in weatherizing available

Although the overall outlook for energy costs this winter is not as grim as it appeared a few months ago, the expenses of heating homes in most parts of the U.S. still will take a ruthless bite out of the budgets of millions of Americans in income groups across the board.

But in the low-income level, there is some reassuring news. At this level, huge numbers of families may be eligible for financial assistance under the Department of Energy's Weatherization Assistance Program for Low-Income Persons.

The DOE program, administered in conjunction with local agencies, provides for the installation of insulation, storm windows and doors and other energy efficiency improvements to reduce heat loss and to conserve energy in low-income homes. This applies especially to the elderly and to the handicapped.

In addition, the DOE provides funds that can be spent for some repairs and in certain cases, even labor.

Procedures for determining the most cost-effective means for aid are applied to the given home also have been set up under the federally funded program. These procedures establish a rating for determining weatherization deficiencies in a home and outline the steps to be taken to correct those deficiencies.

The maximum allowable expenditure is $1,000. But in some areas under special conditions, the Department of Energy regional office may be able to authorize a higher allowance per dwelling unit.

Even multi-family dwellings can now be weatherized if two-thirds of the dwelling units in the building are eligible. This is vitally important news for low-income families who previously were limited to allowances for single family dwellings only.

If, for instance, there are 18 units in a building, and 12 meet the eligibility requirements, $12,000 can be obtained for the weatherization program on the building.

There even can be modest allowances for conservation measures as interim approaches to weatherize. These are available to cover such items as tubes of caulking, waterflow restrictors and plastic sheeting for temporary storm windows.

The states play a key role in the managing and monitoring of the DOE program. They apply for, receive and administer the funds. They also allocate the funds among local governments, especially among community action agencies. They also determine the most cost-effective weatherization measures, then rank them by types of dwelling units.

The program restricts the type of material that can be installed and stipulates that the products used meet federal standards. In addition to caulking, installation of storm windows and insulation, the program provides for:

- Furnace efficiency modifications;
- clock thermostats; vapor barriers; skirting; water flow controllers.

Bit excluded is aid for furnace replacement, pipe insulation and general housing rehabilitation.

Most of the labor for the weatherization work has been supplied by the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). Where CETA labor is not available, DOE funds now can be used to hire private contractors.

If you meet the government definition of a low-income household, you are able to participate in this assistance effort. Under the accepted definition, you are a low-income family if your combined income falls below 125 percent of the Office of Management and Budget income poverty guidelines or if your household receives certain federal, state and local assistance.

There are an estimated 14.6 million eligible households, estimates the DOE — with the program slated to save 14 percent of the energy expenditures by households who receive aid.

Immediately contact your local weatherization agency or your state weatherization program office or the DOE regional office. You will receive an application and a representative from your local agency even may be sent to help you with the form while an estimator will evaluate the condition of your residence to determine what work should be done. A priority system has been a "up-based-on" rating system — with the priorities rated on need and whether the applicant is handicapped or elderly.

File your application NOW! Because of the rating system and the essential paperwork, timing is extremely important to you.

McDonald's absolved of antitrust violations

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — McDonald's does not violate antitrust laws by requiring that its franchise owners lease their stores from the hamburger giant, a federal appeals court ruled Monday.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a lower court ruling in a Hopewell, Va., case that the fast-food empire's franchise requirement does not violate the Sherman Antitrust Act.

The appeals court said in a four-point opinion that McDonald's marketing and real estate experts can better determine the site of outlets than franchise owners and that the chain must be able to continue operating the restaurants when their owners die or retire.

The court also said the requirement allows McDonald's to select licensees according to management skill, rather than "real estate expertise and wealth."

Finally, the court said, McDonald's must be allowed to select licensees because of "substantial financial" risk. The court said the chain would be forced to head off any financial losses.

The ruling stemmed from a case brought by Frank and Ann Principe, who set up two McDonald's outlets in Hopewell and nearby Colonial Heights between 1970 and 1974.

The Principes sought to purchase a third franchise in 1976 in Petersburg, but a McDonald's regional executive killed the proposal on grounds it would "impair the quality of their existing operations."

Following the chain's 1978 decision to award the outlet to a new licensee, the Principes filed suit against McDonald's in U.S. District Court. They alleged the chain violated federal and Virginia antitrust laws and state securities laws.

The Principes charged McDonald's illegally tied leases to a $15,000 security deposit to franchise rights for their existing stores.

But Judge D. Dorch Warriner ruled that the Principes did not produce evidence that McDonald's was trying to control the hamburger market and that the chain's leases to the Principes offers franchise owners.

The Dow Jones industrial average which fell 15.77 points Friday, lost 15.17 points to 611.53. The closely followed Standard & Poor's 500-stock index in the past three sessions.

The New York Stock exchange index lost 1.73 to 71.26 and the price of an average share decreased 94 cents. Values were traded in 49,450,000 shares in the past three sessions.

The New York Stock exchange index lost 1.73 to 71.26 and the price of an average share decreased 94 cents. Values were traded in 49,450,000 shares in the past three sessions.

However, analysts still expected the central bank to take a firm credit stand.

Fears the Iran-Iraq war could cut off Middle East oil supplies to the West added to the market's pessimism.

Corporate volume of NYSE-listed issues on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 50,093,290 shares, compared with 54,950,400 traded Friday.

The American Stock Exchange index plunged 10.08 to 324.35 and the price of a share skidded 57 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ OTC index lost 4.38 to 185.75.

Union workers picketed a non-union Blaine Wadman Construction site Monday in Kimberly

Utah company target of pickets

Union workers 'strike' at non-union construction site

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Although the sign says "on strike," no one is walking off the job. That's because few, if any, members of the Five Basic Crafts of Idaho, which are picketing Blaine Wadman Construction Co. of Ogden, Utah, are employed by Wadman, general contractor for an addition being built on Kimberly Elementary School.

The two-week-old picketing of a number of construction sites in southern Idaho is to protest what the union charges are Wadman's substandard wages and extensive use of out-of-state workers.

The Five Crafts are the Carpenters, Teamsters, Cement Finishers, Operating Engineers and Laborers unions.

"We feel Wadman is bringing in out-of-state workers and is not being competitive in bidding. His undercutting wage standards and working conditions," Mark Boyd of Boise, member of the Five Crafts committee, charged.

Picketing began Monday at the Kimberly school site and will probably last a week, Boyd said. Picketing began two weeks ago on Boise sites, and other sites are at Idaho Falls, Pocatello and a new LDS Church at Hagerman.

Wadman could not be reached for comment, but Craig Henderson, a vice president, said the company hires subcontractors to do 90 percent of the work. "We just put a man on the job who acts as manager," he said. Most subcontractors are "probably" Idaho firms, he said.

He said he could not respond to the charge of substandard wages.

"The only thing I'm aware of is they want us to sign," he said, referring to a contract with the Five Basic Crafts.

Boyd said, "Sure, we'd like to get a contract with him. But in the meantime we're trying to advertise to the public. That's our intent."

He said Wadman is paying $3 to $7-an-hour-for-carpenters compared to an $11 to $13-per-hour standard "for this type of work." The difference was comparable for the other crafts, he said.

Also, Boyd charged the greatest number of employees of Wadman are from out of state.

"These people are taking the money back to Utah," he said. "It's not helping the Idaho economy and it's not giving our people here jobs that would lower the number on unemployment."

Henderson said the picket would not affect construction work.

Del Whitney of Hollister, business agent of the local Bricklayers Union, said it is up to union members employed at the Kimberly site how to respond to the picket.

He said they are remaining on the job, although they took Friday off because of the opening of hunting season.

Kimberly's sack lunches becoming more appealing

KIMBERLY — After their first two weeks of cold lunches, more and more Kimberly students are taking to them.

Lunch supervisor Edna Jacobs said Monday the student crowd of last winter and averaged 522 last school year, she said.

The cafeteria at Kimberly Elementary School, which feeds all ages of students, was remodeled this summer as part of an expansion project at the school.

"It's coming up every day," Mrs. Jacobs said. The school lunch program served 600 student lunches last winter and averaged 522 last school year, she said.

date for completion of the cafeteria is Dec. 1.

A store room and a hallway were converted to a temporary kitchen earlier this month, and Mrs. Jacobs and her crew began serving cold lunches, including sandwiches, salads and milk.

Last week, they tried cooking hot dogs and hamburgers using two convection ovens "just to see if we could," the supervisor said. They have found they can make one hot dish or bake cookies or cakes each day.

She said planning menus for cold lunches is easier than it was at the beginning.

"You plan a pattern like everything else. We have the protein and vegetable contents, bread and milk, and make a balanced meal."

TWIN FALLS — Howard Buhler knows he's fighting an uphill battle, since say is hopeless.

But he also knows he wouldn't feel right about criticizing current government policy unless he tried to change that policy.

Buhler, a Twin Falls real estate agent and cattle feeder, is one of four American Party candidates running for state office this year. Come November, he'll be on the ballot for the District 25 State Senate seat, the east Twin Falls County post opened up by the retirement of incumbent Sen. Dick High.

The other three American Party nominees are also seeking Idaho legislative slots, although not in the Magic Valley.

There are two other candidates for that seat. Laird Noh of Twin Falls is running on the Republican ticket. Lloyd Shewmaker of Kimberly is

Gooding Hospital Board

Two members return, three are appointed

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

GOODING — Three new members were appointed Monday to the Gooding County Memorial Hospital Board, replacing members who resigned last week in a dispute with county commissioners.

All five hospital board members resigned Sept. 25 in a disagreement over emergency room operation and fiscal management.

Following talks with county commissioners late last week, however, hospital board chairman John Varin and member Darwin Yoder tentatively agreed to remain on the board to provide continuity for the new members.

Appointed to the hospital board are Marion Klingler, retired Gooding physician; John LeMoine, past chairman of the Gooding County Commission, and Rod Spackman, a Gooding accountant.

Commissioner Fredrick Brailford said the appointments were based on Klingler and LeMoine's past experience with the hospital board and Spackman's financial expertise.

The Gooding County Commissioners accepted the resignations of James McChen, Merle Owsley and Juan Menchaca.

Problems plaguing Gooding County Memorial for over a year include lack of income caused by recent low occupancy and public criticism of weekend emergency room staffing.

Hospital occupancy reached a record low of 23.2 percent in June, resulting in the hospital board requesting a $20,000 subsidy from the county. Gooding Memorial had operated on its own income since a county levy was dropped in 1977.

County commissioners approved the subsidy but the board responded to six stipulations for investigating cost cutting practices and new management systems. The hospital board members claimed these considerations had already been pursued and filed their resignations.

"The commissioners asked me if I would stay on the board and act as chairman until it gets reorganized," said Varin, who didn't attend the meeting. "I'd rather not stay chairman, but I'll do anything to see the hospital gets straightened around."

Varin has agreed to remain on the hospital board until his term ends in March 1981. He said he will try to schedule a meeting of the new board by Thursday.

Yoder, who also didn't attend the commissioners' meeting, declined to comment until he has a chance to speak with commissioners.

"I think with this new board we'll be able to have a better understanding with everyone," Commissioner Will Thomas said Monday. "This isn't a problem — we're going to solve overnight — it didn't get that way overnight — but we will solve it."

About $40,000 has been budgeted for hospital support during the 1980-81 fiscal year. Most of this will come from revenue sharing money with approximately $10,000 being provided from the local tax levy, according to Brailford.

"While the six requests we originally asked of the board weren't discussed today, I don't think there is any way we can demand the new board to stick to these," Brailford said. "We saw, as a point, however, a clear indication that a change of (management) direction is coming."

Brailford, Thomas and Varin all agreed that the new hospital board must seriously consider hiring an outside management firm. Cost for this service has been estimated at about $48,000 per year, but it is hoped such a firm could increase revenues plus provide a broader base for attracting new physicians, nurses and medical specialists needed at Gooding Memorial.

However, all the county commissioners stressed that management of Gooding Memorial remain in the hands of the local government, and commissioners won't take an active role in decision-making other than through approving additional financial aid. Commission Chairman George Emmert will continue as an ex officio member of the hospital board.

New malls still far away

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Last spring, two developers came to town with plans of building shopping malls near the Snake River Canyon.

Both admitted Twin Falls could only support one new mall and expressed confidence their project was the one that would be built.

In fact, representatives from each company said they were on the verge of getting firm commitments from "anchor stores." Anchor stores are the large department stores—mass developers must have committed to their projects before they can risk the money needed to build a mall.

Then nothing happened. Today, despite the confidence they showed last spring, neither company is ready to go ahead with its plans.

The Des Moines, Iowa-based General Growth Corporation's proposed mall would be on the former Orr-Booce property on the east side of Blue Lakes Boulevard North between Pole Line Road and the Snake River Canyon.

The Salt Lake City-based Woodbury Corporation's proposed mall would be on the John Breckenridge property on the west side of Blue Lakes Boulevard North between North College and Pole Line roads.

Bill McCollum, vice president of real estate research for General Growth, said his company has quietly been making progress through the summer. He said the company has received a commitment from one store and is talking seriously with two others.

Richard Woodbury, vice president of the Woodbury Corp., said he's been talking to the same people General Growth has. "I've met with three department stores in the last three weeks," he said. As a result of those meetings, he said, "I'm more confident than I was last May."

McCollum said the decision process is taking longer than he expected, but the delay is not unusual. For a large chain of department stores, which plans five years ahead and more, six months may not seem like a long time, he said, although it can seem like a lifetime to a developer.

Woodbury said the recession has slowed things down. Department stores look at their tight budgets and worry about how they will open the stores they are committed to open next year, he said. They will not be so quick to make commitments for the future until they get a better idea of what lies ahead.

Originally, both Woodbury and General Growth planned to open their malls in 1983. Now, Woodbury said, 1984 or 1985 is more likely. Opening in 1983 was always an optimistic projection, he said.

He expects the "battle between the developers" to go on a little longer because of the hospital board, aren't ready to make a decision. The stores are playing the developers off against each other to see how good a deal they can get, Woodbury said. "They still have to get the last bite out of us yet," he said.

Twin Falls Canal wants rehearing

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Canal Co. will ask the Idaho Supreme Court to reconsider its decision saying the canal company must share 1/2 the cost of a new irrigation system.

Canal company attorney Thomas Nelson said the documents asking for a rehearing would be filed sometime this week.

In a decision earlier this month, the Idaho Supreme Court ruled the Canyon View Irrigation Co. has the right to use a portion of the canal company's system, if it pays the costs of the system. The decision also said the system and increased operating costs that result.

With this decision, Canyon View could in effect become a co-owner of the canal company's Highline canal, according to John Hepworth, Canyon View's attorney.

In asking for a rehearing, Nelson said, he'll try to point out things he thinks the court may have overlooked. He declined to comment on what will be included in the appeal until it is filed.

Council accepts money for runway project

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls City Council members Monday accepted more than $40,000 in funds for the airport runway extension project.

The funds will be used to relocate navigation equipment required by the addition of 1,500 feet of runway, said an access road to the new site of the navigation equipment, construct a sand storage site and continue work on the embankment for the added runway. The extension would enclose runways presently placed on jets using the airport by the present length of the runway.

Most of the funds come in the form of a $30,000 grant from the Federal Aviation Administration. Since those funds were from federal fiscal year 1980 funds, council approval was required before the end of the fiscal year, or Oct. 1. As such, the council met in a special meeting Monday.

Normally, council meetings are held on the first and third Mondays. Another $40,000, representing 5 percent of the project costs, was accepted in the form of a grant from the Idaho Division of Aeronautics.

Candidate trying to make changes the Democratic nomination. Buhler could have challenged either of them in their party's primary elections.

But Buhler said he decided to run on the American Party ticket because it and he — were more conservative than either of the other parties or candidates.

"It's fiscal policy I'm most concerned about," he says. "Why's real concern is cutting taxes and reducing spending. I'm just more conservative than either of those other two on this."

Buhler, who at 50 likes to mention he is the same age as Ronald Reagan, does talk to voters about other subjects. One on other raises involves an explanation of just what his party is and what it stands for.

"Oh, there are some who don't remember the American Party. But most of them will connect with Wallace when I remind them. Traditionally, my thinking has been kind of close to George Wallace's, to get away from government control, against school busing, against abortion and so on."

Buhler's need to remind voters of his party's existence underscores much of the problem the American Party faces in Idaho.

"You see, it's a real Constitution party," Buhler says, explaining why he has remained with the organization. "They really believe in the Constitution."

Buhler says his campaign will involve door-to-door canvassing and advertising in the local media. But even then, he acknowledges he has a tough fight against two better-known and better-funded opponents.

"But you know, I sometimes complain about things," Buhler explained. "I think if I complain about things maybe I should also try and change them."

Running for office is one way to do that, he added.

Republic begins take-over on Wednesday

By MARTY TRILLHAESE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There will be a Republic banana in Twin Falls beginning Wednesday.
Republic Airlines will officially take over Hughes Airwest service at the airport. The operation of purchase finalized by the Civil Aeronautics Board earlier this month.
But Twin Falls passengers initially will notice little change from the service they received from Hughes Airwest, Republic officials say.
The bulk of the preliminary changes will include the Republic name at the Hughes ticket counter at the airport and on Hughes jets. However, it will be several months before the new Hughes jets are repainted and Hughes routes and flight schedules changed, Republic officials say.

"I don't see any significant changes happening there or anywhere else on the Airwest system for at least six to nine months," Republic spokesman Walter Hellman said.
"All I can say at this point is Republic has no plans to discontinue service at any of the points serviced by Hughes Airwest, and as long as the airline is able to operate profitably at the point it services, there's certainly no reason to," he said.
Hughes Airwest is the only major carrier serving Twin Falls, providing four flights daily, with stops at Salt Lake City and Boise.

Providing passenger service from small and mid-sized cities to major airports, or hubs, is the bulk of Republic's market. The airline plans to continue providing that service, he said. That strategy stands out most among major airlines which have reduced service to smaller cities to concentrate on the larger, more lucrative routes.
"There's no doubt that the long runs are the lucrative markets, but a sizable amount of traffic for those markets come from small markets," he said. "I think it's safe to say that the long run routes on our routes are really the strength of the airline."
The acquisition of Hughes Airlines will make Republic a national carrier, the nation's fifth largest domestic carrier in terms of passengers carried. That could enable Republic to provide Twin Falls passengers with direct flights as well, although no decisions to upgrade local service have been made, he said.

"The combination certainly gives us the potential for giving substantially improved service, not only to Idaho, but throughout the entire Airwest system," he said.
Before changes can be made, the airline must integrate employee seniority lists, link two dissimilar computer systems and check aircraft, Hellman said.
"These aren't difficult problems, but they are involved ones, so it will take some time to do," he said.
Republic officials are not unfamiliar with such problems. Republic itself is the result of a recent merger between Northwest and Southern Airlines.
"We learned a lot from that experience and I think our experience will enable us to make the changes quicker and much easier," he said.

Members to prioritize goals

Safety board seeks input

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls highway and traffic safety board members are being asked to prioritize a number of street improvement projects.
The board met last week without a quorum and no official decisions were made.
"Basically, what we're trying to do is get some input on areas that need to be done from citizen advisory groups," City Engineer Gary Young said. "We're obviously not going to be able to do all the traffic safety projects simultaneously, so we need to prioritize."

The proposed projects include establishing a pedestrian area along Eastland Drive, from Elizabeth Boulevard to the Kingsgate subdivision, and along Elizabeth Boulevard from Eastland Drive to Morningside Elementary School; truck turning points at the intersections of Blue Lakes Boulevard North and Pole Line Road, and Washington Street North and Pole Line Road; and installing a traffic signal at the intersection of Flier Avenue and Washington Street North.

Young said he did not include widening of Blue Lakes Boulevard North among the proposals because such a project is being planned by the city engineering department. Commission members may also make suggestions of projects not included on the list, Young said.
Young said the commission's recommendations will be forwarded to the City Council.

Jerome man sues Donehue

$450,000 suit first case stemming from misconduct charges

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

JEROME — Attorneys for an 18-year-old Jerome man have filed lawsuits totaling $450,000 against the Idaho State Board of Medicine and a former Jerome doctor.
The suits are the first to arise out of misconduct charges pending against Dr. William C. Donehue, alleging he took senior liberties with male patients ages 14 and 18.
— In a two-count complaint filed Sept. 3, Richard Agood said Donehue committed "improper, unauthorized and illegal" acts on his body April 7 during treatment for injuries suffered in a Feb. 23 automobile accident, and that Donehue later gave him drugs to forget the incident.
Agood is seeking $150,000 for each of the two counts, claiming that the visit to Donehue's office caused him mental anguish, suffering, pain and personal injury.
In a separate suit, Agood charges the State Board of Medicine was negligent in issuing Donehue a license Nov. 14, 1979, without thoroughly checking his background, and the board learned prior to April 7 Donehue had pleaded guilty to a sexual assault charge in Ohio.

The two complaints also seek court costs from both defendants and any additional amounts deemed appropriate by the court.
Attached to the suit against Donehue was a copy of a July 29 report by the Idaho Pre-litigation Screening Panel. The three-member panel — composed of a doctor, a lawyer and a layman — screens all malpractice suits filed against Idaho physicians.
The panel said the two claims against Donehue "may have merit" and the facts, as presented, are substantiated in court.
Panel members said the 15 capsules of Valium allegedly administered to Agood after the office examination were "clearly without (medical) justification" and apparently meant for "covering up" some activity.
Twin Falls attorney Monte Carson, a member of the law firm representing Agood, said the report was included because its findings appear to support the plaintiff's contentions.

Carson and Jerome attorney Greg Fuller, who represents Donehue, said the two cases may not go to trial for at least six months.
Carson also declined to rule out suits against other defendants.
Guilt or innocence in the criminal charges facing Donehue has little bearing on the civil suits, Carson said, since a different standard of proof applies in assessing damages for misconduct and negligence.
A sanity hearing on the criminal charges concluded Sept. 18 in Jerome. Fifth District Judge Theron Ward gave attorneys an additional 20 days to file briefs prior to rendering his decision.
Donehue also faces sentencing in Toledo, Ohio, once charges here are resolved. The 30-year-old physician pleaded guilty April 3 to third-degree sexual assault involving a 12-year-old male patient at the Riverside Practice Clinic in Lucas County, Ohio.

Judge temporarily bars ADC cuts

BOISE (UPI) — Fourth District Judge Ray Durtchli Monday issued a restraining order temporarily barring the Idaho Health and Welfare Department from enforcing a 14 percent cut in Aid to Families with Dependent Children benefits.
Durtchli allowed benefit checks to about 8,000 Idaho families for the month of October to go out with the cut intact.
Durtchli said his order, which is effective only until Oct. 24, requires the Health and Welfare Department to begin processing November's benefit checks at the former, higher amount.

He said if he does not rule on the case by 5 p.m. on Oct. 24, however, the department will be allowed to put the 14 percent cut back into effect for the November checks.
Idaho Health and Welfare Director Mill Klein adopted the 14 percent ADC benefit reduction in August on an emergency basis, saying predicted budget shortfalls would require the program into the red if the cuts were not enforced. In a class action lawsuit, ADC recipients challenged the cut, however, saying it was not necessary because a genuine fiscal emergency did not exist when Klein ordered the reduction.

Arguing before Durtchli Monday, both Health and Welfare attorney Robert L. Lincoln and the attorney for the ADC recipients, Raymond C. Givens of Coeur d'Alene, said there was no dispute that the reduction required those receiving benefits to live on about 50 percent of the subsistence level.

The suit contends Terrell Ray Huddleston was driving too fast for conditions and did not maintain proper vigilance for children when his late-model car struck Miss Meunier at approximately 6:30 p.m.
Sheriff's deputies investigating the crash estimated from skid marks the car was traveling about 38 mph in a 55 mph zone. Sheriff Eliza Hall said the setting sun posed visibility problems and the child darted into the car's path.

UI gets green light for funding request

BOISE (UPI) — Despite student objections, the state Board of Education Monday approved resolutions authorizing the University of Idaho to issue $5.7 million of Student Fee Improvement and Refunding Revenue Bonds.

The issue will refinance the original 1971 school stadium issue and provide $3 million in construction funds toward remodeling Memorial Gymnasium and completion of the ASU-Kibbie Activity Center. Gifts, donations, and institutional monies will provide the remaining funds.

Scott Fehrenbacher, student body president, said since last Thursday morning more than 1,200 students have signed a petition urging the board not to approve the resolutions.

He said students were concerned about the timing of the project and about the remodeling project itself. Board member Cheryl Hymas of Jerome asked Fehrenbacher why students objected at this time. "When it's too late to do anything, then they get concerned," she said.

But Fehrenbacher said since the board actually authorized the university to proceed with bond sale last August, most students "felt this was cut and dried and over."

University president Richard Gibb said originally the school intended to ask for board approval at the regularly scheduled September meeting, but "the market did not develop as we hoped it would." Instead, he said, the school had to postpone a final decision until a special board meeting today.

Gibb warned there would be some opposition, noting that "anything that smacks of athletics" would be controversial.

The student petition noted the project was first proposed when the state of Idaho was in the current financial crisis. It is not in the interest of Idaho higher education or the university of Idaho to construct an athletic locker room-office facility at a time when academic programs may suffer from the 3.85 percent holdback in funds to the university.

Twin Falls man escapes prison release program

BOISE (UPI) — An Idaho convict stole a state vehicle, left it at the Boise Air Terminal and might have caught a flight out of the state, prison officials said today.

The worker was dropped off, but Parrott did not pick up a second convict-worker to return to the center, Evans said. Evans said officials realized Parrott might have fled when the worker waiting for a ride to the center called to say the driver was late. Parrott, described as "very frail" — 6-3, 145 pounds — with blue eyes and short brown hair and a medium complexion, was not considered dangerous.

Department of Lands requests contingency

BOISE (UPI) — An Idaho Department of Lands spokesman asked the state Land Board today to give its blessing to a $1.8 million contingency fund to offset costs for a bad fire year or timber infestation.

In presenting the department's request for $1.8 million for the next fiscal year, Jack Gillette said that amount could easily be "wiped out" if there had a bad fire year or a serious timber infestation problem, both of which would result in costly reforestation.

Gillette explained the contingency fund was financed by a portion of the revenue from timber sales. He noted, however, that timber sales in the past fiscal year were down and revenue was about $400,000 short of the amount being requested for the contingency fund.

The land spokesman said that if the state was faced with a serious fire season or infestation, thousands of acres would need to be replanted, which would "easily deplete $1.8 million."

Gillette said the department would like to keep at least one year's operational funds in the contingency fund.

He noted that timber sales have been down because of market conditions and such firms as Boise Cascade Corp. and Potlatch have avoided public sales involving state land.

But he added the timber sales market was improving.

Illness forces Dermitt from position as prison warden

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho State Penitentiary Warden Ed Dermitt resigned Monday because of illness that has kept him off the job since April.

Dermitt's resignation was announced at a news conference by Idaho Corrections Director C.W. "Bill" Crow, who said a new warden probably would be appointed in late December.

"This was Ed's decision," Crow said.

Dermitt and his wife informed Crow of the resignation Friday night, the director said.

Dermitt was disabled by gall bladder problem in April and has been off work for all but a few days since then.

The warden, appointed in 1978 after a prison administration shake-up, had planned to return to work part-time Monday, but a multi-million-dollar prison fire erupted that day, forcing his comeback.

Crow said he would not comment on the nature of Dermitt's medical problems, but did say the warden faced a long-term illness which prevented his return to work.

"I wanted him back, that's why we waited this long," Crow said, adding that Dermitt was recovering steadily until he "suffered a setback" in late summer.

The department has been criticized for not acting earlier in the matter. Dermitt, now five months off the job.

Deputy Warden L.D. Smith, who has been acting warden since April, will continue in that position until a successor for Dermitt is hired. Crow said Smith has expressed interest in the warden's post.

Crow said the department would advertise nationally for a new warden. He said the search would take two months and interviews another month.

He said he expected to receive many applications, but most of the applicants would not be worthy of the job, he said.

An ideal replacement for Dermitt would be well-trained in prison security and rehabilitation, Crow said.

Hospital association honors energy and cost reductions

SUN VALLEY (UPI) — The Idaho Hospital Association passed out awards Monday to St. Luke's Regional Medical Center and Madison Memorial Hospital for energy-saving and cost-cutting programs.

Charles E. Rees, finance administrator for St. Luke's, was honored for a paperwork procedure through which the Boise hospital speeded up its cash flow to save $145,000 in Medicaid money. Rees received a $400 award for finishing first in the large hospital category.

A $400 first prize in the small hospital category was given to Rick Clements, a clinical electrician at Madison Memorial, Rexburg. He installed an electric valve and strainer in the hospital's steam system to improve the system's efficiency and eliminate the need for daily maintenance.

Earlier, the association's Star Garnet Award was presented to Kimberly rancher Joe Savage.

Savage was honored for his 12 years service to Magie Valley Memorial Hospital in Twin Falls and for his active involvement in the state hospital association.

He has been a member of the association's board of trustees for two years. He currently serves on the steering committee of the Idaho Voluntary Effort, a state version of national Voluntary Effort to obtain hospital costs created by the American Hospital Association, the Federation of American Hospitals and the American Medical Association.

Two die on Idaho highways

By United Press International
 A hit-and-run near Idaho Falls and a one-car accident just north of Rogerson on U.S. 93 took the lives of an Idaho Falls man and a California resident Monday.

The victims were identified as C. Murray Jenkins, 26, Idaho Falls, and Richard D. Schroeder, 35, Madera, Calif.

Jenkins' body was found by a logger along north Yellowstone Highway about three miles north of Idaho Falls.

Officers said it appeared Jenkins apparently was walking north on the highway shortly after 1 a.m. when pickup or truck hit him from behind.

Schroeder was killed in a single-car accident about a half mile north of Rogerson. He was a passenger in a car driven by his stepson, Leonard J. Bell, 17.

Police said the Bell car was south-bound when the driver apparently fell asleep, left the road and became airborne. The vehicle landed on its left front side, ejecting Schroeder through the windshield and crushed him as it rolled.

Jody Schroeder, 13, the victim's daughter, received neck injuries. Bell suffered minor injuries.

Craig, Nichols will debate on TV

BOISE (UPI) — First District congressional nominees Larry Craig and Glenn Nichols have agreed to debate on television Oct. 24. It was announced today by KTVB, Boise.

The plan was for Nichols, a Democrat, and Craig, the Republican candidate, agreed to a format which will allow them to contrast their views directly rather than through questioning by panel reporters.

Prior to the debate, the participants will suggest topics and questions they feel to be worthy of debate. The suggestions will be revealed to either candidate, but will be used by a moderator to create questions used during the debate. Both candidates will respond to each question and will have an opportunity to comment on each other's answers, KTVB said.

Station officials said the debate will be available for transmission to commercial radio and television stations.

Sagebrush Rebellion plans conference

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., travels to Salt Lake City Nov. 25 to participate in a "Sagebrush Rebellion" conference called to develop policies and programs for administering public lands during the 1980s, organizers said.

John L. Harmer, executive vice president of the League for the Advancement of States' Equal Rights, said the conference would be attended by "the finest and most knowledgeable experts in the country on every facet of the management and utilization of the resources of the public domain."

The honorary chairman of the organization is Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., Harmer said in a recent statement.

State Rep. Marlene Simons, a Crook County Republican, will attend the conference to speak on the implications of federal land policy for the American consumer, he said.

Harmer said Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., and Rep. Ray Kogovsek, D-Colo., also will participate in the conference.

More than 40 panelists will be involved in the conference, he said. Among them is Idaho Attorney General David LeRoy, who will address the conference on the legal implications of the Sagebrush Rebellion.

Harmer called the gathering "one of the most historically significant events in the history of the Western states."

"I have no doubt that the significance of this conference will have an impact upon the management, control and utilization of the public domain for many years to come," he said.

ACLU supporting Iranian student in Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The American Civil Liberties Union has filed suit to stop the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service from holding deportation hearings on an Iranian student who violated the terms of his visa.

ACLU lawyers Monday filed the action in U.S. District Court for Utah. The suit was filed after the student denied equal protection of the law because immigration officials did not inform him of standards for deportation and have, in the past, dropped proceedings against other aliens who committed similar infractions.

Attorneys said the student committed only minor violations of INS standards and those violations have since been corrected. The suit seeks an injunction barring the INS from holding deportation hearings on the student until the service publishes standards for deportation for minor infractions.

It lists Gerald D. Fasbender, officer in charge of Salt Lake City's INS office, as defendant.

"We are maintaining that rights guaranteed to our client by federal law and the U.S. Constitution have been violated by the manner in which defendant Fasbender exercised deportation proceedings against him," said Utah ACLU executive director Shirley Pedlar.

Housewife hits jackpot

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — A southern California housewife traveled in Las Vegas for her birthday. She left the world's largest jackpot winner.

Myria Gallelli of Glendale, Calif., came to this gambling resort with her husband, Wilcox, on a 12-hour bus tour to celebrate her 44th birthday. Gallelli is a machinist.

A hotel spokesman said the woman had played about a half hour and had $30 left when she dropped her three $1 tokens, said "please give me something for my birthday," and saw five servers line up on the machine for the grand jackpot.

Ms. Gallelli won $320,000 at the Flamingo Hilton hotel casino shortly before midnight Sunday. She said part of the winnings would be used to reduce her taxes.

The hotel has paid out almost $4.5 million in jackpots since instituting its "pot of gold" slot machine play, a hotel spokesman said.

Judge considers lighter sentence

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Federal Judge David K. Winder has taken under advisement a defense motion to reduce the prison sentence for former Salt Lake City police officer Paul Brooks, who pleaded guilty earlier this year to participating in a bank robbery ring.

Winder Monday said he needed to gather more information before deciding if Brooks' 25-year prison term should be cut back. Brooks, former City Police Cpl. Craig Rockelman and another former lawman were accused of pulling off two bank robberies in 1979 and early 1980.

Rockelman, 32, was originally sentenced to 20 years in prison for helping Brooks, also 32, hold up the banks. But last June Winder reduced that sentence to eight years.

Brooks' 30-year-old wife Sheila also pleaded guilty to aiding in one robbery.

Winder placed her on probation. Police said about $83,000 was taken in the armed robberies of a Utah Bank and Trust branch in June 1979 and a Continental Bank branch in February 1980. About half that money has been recovered as a result of breaking up the robbery ring.

Both Brooks and Rockelman were fired from the police force after an internal investigation revealed their involvement in the felonies.

Man gets psychiatric evaluation

DOUGLAS, Wyo. (UPI) — A 19-year-old Utah man accused in the Aug. 10 slaying death of a 4-year-old local girl in a murder case, was returned to the Converse County Jail from the State Hospital at Evanston and received a psychiatric evaluation.

The county attorney's office said Monday no information was released on the results of the evaluation of Donald LeMay.

A spokesman said LeMay, of Navajo, Utah, was returned to Converse County Jail. He had been sent to the State Hospital Aug. 29 on a motion by defense attorneys, who claimed the man was mentally unfit to stand trial.

National League roundup

No breathers for NL eastern contenders

By United Press International

After winning up a tense three-game series against each other, the National League leaders might have liked a breather, facing two non-contenders. No chance.

Montreal needed a two-out, pinch-hit three-run homer from John Tamarag in the bottom of the ninth inning to top the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2 Monday night, while the Philadelphia Phillies, trailing the Expos by a half-game, topped the Chicago Cubs 6-5 in a 15-inning marathon.

For the Expos, catcher Gary Carter reached on a throwing error by Ken Reitz leading off the ninth inning and went to second on a sacrifice by Warren Cromartie. After Larry Parrish was walked intentionally, Willie Montanez hit into a fielder's choice, moving Carter to third and into scoring position.

Tony Bernazard went in to run for Montanez, and Tamarag slammed his first home run over the right-field fence on George Frazier, 4-4, to make a winner of Woodie Fryman, 7-4.

The Expos tied the score 2-2 in the eighth inning when, after leading the bases with the help of two walks and a double-steal, Rowland Office hit a sacrifice fly deep into right center field to score the tying run.

The Cardinals took a 2-1 lead in the seventh inning, when St. Louis starter Pete Vuckovich singled through the legs of Montreal's first baseman Cromartie. Montreal's Andre Dawson, on a 12-game hitting streak, hit his 18th home run in the fourth inning and Garry Templeton slammed his fourth homer of the almost extinct season in the sixth.

Garry Maddox singled home the tying run and scored on Manny Trillo's two-out, bases-loaded single in the 15th inning to lift the Phillies and keep them close to the Expos in the eastern division.

Reliever Doug Capilla walked Lonnie Smith and Pete Rose to open the 15th and final and both runners advanced on a wild pitch that rolled top the bleacher wall. Bake McBride followed with a groundout, scoring Smith and moving Rose to third.

Dennis Lamp relieved Capilla and after getting Mike Schmidt to pop out to short right field, allowed Maddox's game-tying single. Keith Moreland followed with a single and Larry Bowa walked to load the bases.

Trillo then lined a 1-1 pitch up the middle to drive home the winning run.

The victory went to Kevin Saucier, 7-3, while Lamp, 10-13, suffered the loss.

In the only other game played, New York edged Pittsburgh 4-1 in 10 innings before 1,787 fans, the smallest baseball crowd ever to play baseball in the history of Shea Stadium.

San Francisco was rained out at Atlanta, allowing the Braves to clinch fourth place in the West division of the National League behind Cincinnati, Los Angeles and Houston who were all idle Monday night.

Grogan, Pats stop rallying Broncos

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Steve Grogan passed for 209 yards, including a 45-yard scoring strike to Stanley Morgan in the third quarter, and John Smith connected on three field goals Monday night to lead the New England Patriots to a 23-14 victory over the Denver Broncos.

The Patriots' second in nine Monday night appearances, topped the Patriots' record to 3-1 to keep them one game behind undefeated Buffalo in the AFC East. Denver slipped to 1-3, its worst start since 1973.

Grogan, who entered the game as the top-rated passer in the AFC, connected on 17 of 24 attempts. His scoring strike to Morgan, which erased a 14-10 Denver lead, was his ninth touchdown pass of the year. Smith added two fourth-period field goals of 19 and 36 yards to seal the victory.

New England's other touchdown came on a 2-yard run by rookie Vasek Ferguson in the second quarter. The Broncos scored on a 17-yard pass from Matt Robinson to Haven Moses and an 8-yard run by Otis Armstrong, substituting for the injured Dave Preston. Denver trailed 10-7 at halftime, but grabbed the lead at 3:36 of the third quarter on Armstrong's run, which capped a 37-yard scoring drive by five plays. The drive was set up on a Patriots fumble which was recovered by Rubin Carter. A pass to Moses gained 23 yards to the New England 8 and two plays later, Armstrong swept in for the touchdown.

New England took the ensuing kickoff and marched 78 yards in just seven plays to take the lead for good on Grogan's pass to Morgan. On a key 3rd-and-13 on the New England 31, Grogan hit Morgan for 17 yards and two plays later, the pair teamed up again for the game-winner with Morgan beating Steve Foley for the score at 6:54.

Smith's two field goals in the fourth period, to go along with a 26-yarder in the first period, gave him eight in nine tries this season. Denver took a 7-0 lead midway through the first period on Robinson's scoring pass to Moses, his first touchdown loss this year on the field.

New England cut the deficit to 7-5 on Smith's first field goal at 13:33 of the first period. Ferguson, who carried 22 times for 60 yards on the night, had four runs during the 10-play march. One was a 14-yard burst immediately following a 21-yard completion from Grogan to Morgan, who finished with 83 yards on three carries.

Grogan, 9-for-11 in the first half, hit out of five passes in the march, which featured a pass-interference call on the Broncos against Russ Francis, the first of two against New England's tight end in the game.

Patriot receiver Russ Francis eyes the ball twirling on his fingertips just before it falls.

Alabama widens rankings

NEW YORK (UPI) — Top-ranked Alabama opened some daylight over second-ranked Ohio State following Monday's balloting by UPI's Board of Coaches but with a flurry of upsets last week, the Top 20 underwent a major shakeup.

The Crimson Tide, who extended the nation's longest winning streak to 26, gained and gave Coach Bear Bryant his 100th career victory in a 41-0 thrashing of Vanderbilt, received 28 first-place votes and totaled 604 points.

Ohio State, a 39-21 winner over Arizona State, garnered eight first-place votes and 573 points. Nebraska, which knocked off Penn State 21-7, remained at No. 3, receiving the remaining eight first-place votes for 523 points in balloting conducted by 43 coaches — six from each geographical section of the country — who comprise the UPI Board of Coaches.

But the rest of the Top 10 changed dramatically following losses by Oklahoma and Florida State.

Southern California moved up a notch to No. 4, replacing Oklahoma, which lost 31-14 to Stanford, while Texas moved up to No. 5.

Rounding out the Top 10 are No. 6 Pittsburgh, up two positions after a 36-2 victory over Temple, No. 7 Notre Dame, No. 8 Georgia, also up two spots, No. 9 Iowa, down one spot from three positions, and No. 10 UCLA, up four spots.

Britz wins LPGA in extra holes

DALLAS (UPI) — Jerilyn Britz boled a 5-foot birdie putt on the second hole of sudden death Monday to defeat Nancy Lopez Melton and finally bring an end to the rain-plagued $150,000 Dallas Classic.

Lopez had bogeyed the final hole of regulation play to bring about the playoff and then ended her last hopes of earning Player of the Year honors on the 18th hole.

The tournament was reduced to two rounds by rains which began falling late Friday and continued almost without abatement through Monday afternoon. The tournament leaders had finished 13 holes on Sunday before dark closed in and they went out again Monday, in the rain, to finish off the event.

Despite the fact that the tournament was shortened, the sponsoring Salesmanship Club agreed to pay the entire prize list.

Britz, therefore, won $22,500 for her first major title of the year. Lopez won $14,700. The two had tied at 1-under-par 130.

JoAnne Carner, who bogeyed three holes in a row Monday, and Beth Daniel, who shot a 68 for her final round, finished tied for third even-par 140 while Patty Sheehan wound up fifth at 141.

"My caddy told me Nancy was going to bogey her last hole," said Britz. "I didn't think she was because she hit her tee shot into the middle of the fairway."

Holmes injures eye, skips Sunday's final work session

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — World Heavyweight Champion Larry Holmes, who was thumbed in the left eye during a sparring session Sunday, cancelled a Monday workout but his manager-trainer said the fighter didn't appear to be affected by the minor injury.

Holmes will defend his crown Thursday night against three-time champion Muhammad Ali at Caesar's Palace.

In the fourth round of the sparring session against Wendell Bailey of New York, Holmes was thumbed in the eye, and it caused him some amount of pain.

Throughout the rest of the session, his nose had dripped small amounts of blood.

When the accidental thumbing occurred, it was initially thought the blood was coming from the eye, which would have meant an almost certain postponement of the scheduled 15-round with Ali this Thursday in Las Vegas at Caesar's Palace.

After a medical examination by the camp doctor, it was determined the eye injury was minor and it wouldn't affect the fight.

"He had a slight cold and he was blowing his nose for two rounds during Sunday's session," said Richie Glacchell, Holmes' manager-trainer. "A little bit of blood came out of his nose, that's all. Nothing serious. Nothing that's going to bother him in any way Thursday night. We are 100 percent ready to go."

More fight stories inside

At a news conference Sunday, Holmes shocked reporters by announcing, "The fight is off. I've been seriously injured in the eye."

He then quickly broke into a wide grin as the press ridiculed him for the "rude joke."

Holmes, 30, from Easton, Pa., was to shadow box and jump rope Monday before ending his training sessions Tuesday. The rest of the week will be spent resting up for the fight.

All 33, who hasn't fought since regaining the title for the third time with a victory over Leon Spinks in September of 1976, will fight on Monday, shadow boxing and jumping rope before, grabbing a microphone and addressing about 3,000 fans who paid $3 each to watch the training session and listen to him preach how he was going to knock out the champion.

After appearing trim at 218 pounds, reiterated his belief that the fight won't ever be close.

"Under normal conditions, there's no way I can lose to Holmes Thursday night. All I said is 'If he brings a knife into the ring, then maybe he can beat me, but I would doubt it.'"

"I had to sucker him into this fight. That day of the press conference (announcing the fight) I drank a quart of milk, half of a cherry pie and then stuck my stomach way out," Holmes said, "I'll take him," because he never thought I could get in shape."

Other fights on the program: held in a temporary facility in Caesar's Palace parking lot include a 12-round WBC heavyweight elimination bout between Spinks, of St. Louis, Mo., and No. 3 contender Bernardo Mercado of Bogota, Colombia.

There is also a super lightweight title fight between champion Souol Mamby of New York and Terrence Watkins of Houston, and a 10-round heavyweight bout between the WBC's No. 3 contender, Michael Doaks of Akron, Ohio, and Tom Fisher of Dayton, Ohio.

Bart Starr's future lies in Thursday's meeting

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Coach Bart Starr said Monday he was proud of the way his team played Sunday despite a 28-7 loss to the Dallas Cowboys.

"We thought there was a lot of merit to a lot of things we did," Starr said. "If we had in some fashion been able to eliminate the two long drives the Cowboys had — just before the half and just after the half — outside of those two happenings we were right there toe-to-toe with them."

Starr said the Packers' offense, which had been under fire for not scoring — touchdowns — should exceed normally good at times in the game.

"We're aware we lost by 21 points," Starr said. "If we hadn't been mentally prepared, Dallas would have had an easy time of it. They were very anxious and concerned about getting up there on the scoreboard early. We think our people can play with anybody."

Starr's status as coach of the Packers will be discussed at the Packers' executive committee meeting on Thursday.

Committee members contacted by the Milwaukee Sentinel refused to comment directly on Starr's future.

"I am not going to comment on whether his job is unsafe or safe," Judge Robert J. Parizek, vice president and committee member, said.

"I will not comment on what the executive committee will or will not discuss," said member John Shiles. "No way will I ever say it will be or won't be his last game as coach, because that would be foolish."

"I don't think we'll really know until the dust settles from last Sunday. I don't know what the attitude of the fans and the media is going to be."

Last week, a committee member was anonymously quoted in the Milwaukee Journal as saying Starr should resign immediately or be fired. He said the committee was close to a decision that Starr should leave the club.

MSU led 10-0 at halftime on Terry Alberta's 27-yard field goal and a 6-yard touchdown run by Steve Roderick.

But Boise State grabbed a 17-0 lead in the second half when running backs Cedrick Minter and Terry Zahner both scored touchdowns runs and Ken Camerling kicked a 41-yard field goal, only to watch Sullivan kill the comeback.

MSU and BSU are now both 1-1 in Big Sky play, along with Nevada-Reno. While the Bobcats are 1-2 on the season and the Broncos drop to 0-2 overall.

Idaho went 3-0 in Montana behind the play of sophomore quarterback Ken Hobart. Hobart passed for three Vandal touchdowns and ran for a fourth score in Idaho's Big Sky opener of the season, upping the Vandals' record to 2-1.

But, if Hobart had a good game, Idaho State's Mike Machurek was even better against Portland State. Machurek passed for four touchdowns and ran for a fifth

TD. And Machurek also passed for a pair of two-point conversions.

The win ended the nation's longest current Division I-AA losing streak at 18 games for the Bengals. And the team set Division I-AA records for most passing attempts with 104. BSU also recovered five FSI fumbles and intercepted three passes, including one by Bill Strapp that returned 47 yards for another Bengal touchdown.

Northern Arizona failed to mount a scoring drive into the fourth quarter at Fullerton State, falling behind 14-0, but coming back to within one point of the Titans. But that was all for NAU.

Backup quarterback Scott Lindquist, in his first game for NAU, threw a pair of touchdown passes — 40 yards to Joe Taylor and 18 to Pete Madonia. But that was all the Lumberjacks could manage in dropping to 1-3 overall.

Next weekend, Weber State hosts Montana State. Montana is at Boise State, and Idaho State travels to Northern Arizona in Big Sky games. While Idaho hosts Portland State in a non-league contest. Nevada-Reno, now 2-1, is idle.

Strange things are happening in the Big Sky this year

By United Press International

The 1980 Big Sky Conference rate took a topsy-turvy turning in its fourth weekend, with Montana State and Weber State prevailing major upsets, and Idaho winning a yard game with surprising ease.

Weber State's offense wasn't much Saturday night, but the Wildcat defense scored the only touchdown in the game and blanketed Nevada-Reno in a 10-man shutout win, putting WSC in first place in the Big Sky standings.

Montana State stunned Boise State in Reno, Mont., coming away with an 18-17 victory. While Idaho, in another Saturday afternoon game, crushed Montana 42-0 at Missoula, Mont.

In non-league games, Idaho State got its opening win of the season with a runaway 58-33 victory at home over Portland State, while Northern Arizona lost 21-13 at Fullerton State.

The Wildcats had only 12 yards rushing and 153 passing, but they also held the powerful Wolf Pack to a meager 274 yards in total offense. Weber State also intercepted three UNR passes and recovered one fumble.

"We were very pleased with our defensive effort," said Weber State coach Pete Riehlman. "Our goal was to keep 11 players between Frank Hawkins and the goal line, and we did it most of the game."

Hawkins ran for 20 yards and two touchdowns last year in Nevada-Reno's 22-3 win over Weber State. But Sunday night in Ogden Hawkins gained only 107 yards and twice was prevented from scoring from the one-yard line in the game's closing minutes.

But Riehlman said, "We're still have a long way to go with our offense. We've got to move the ball better. We can't count on our defense winning for us every game."

And Nevada-Reno coach Chris Ault added, "That was a great defensive effort by Weber State. I thought we were ready for the game, but we just didn't play as if we were. And our passing performance, in a word, was poor."

Montana State outgained Boise State 383 yards to 313 yards in total offense, and forced four Bronco turnovers in putting off the one-point win on Barry Sullivan's 5-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter and his run for a two-point conversion for the margin of victory.

MSU led 10-0 at halftime on Terry Alberta's 27-yard field goal and a 6-yard touchdown run by Steve Roderick.

But Boise State grabbed a 17-0 lead in the second half when running backs Cedrick Minter and Terry Zahner both scored touchdowns runs and Ken Camerling kicked a 41-yard field goal, only to watch Sullivan kill the comeback.

MSU and BSU are now both 1-1 in Big Sky play, along with Nevada-Reno. While the Bobcats are 1-2 on the season and the Broncos drop to 0-2 overall.

Stapleton, Charboneau top rookies?

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox and the Cleveland Indians are no longer contenders for the American League East title, but at least one player on each team still has some incentive for the last week of the baseball season.

Dave Stapleton, the lone second baseman of the Red Sox, and Joe Charboneau, the Indians' slugger outfielder, are the top two candidates for the American League Rookie of the Year award in a year which has some several other surprising first-year players.

While Charboneau looked like the runaway winner early in the summer, Stapleton has come on to add some impressive credentials to the race.

In May, Stapleton stepped in for injured Red Sox second baseman Jerry Keny, and Keny may not find his job waiting for him next spring. Stapleton was hitting .326 through 62 games, with 32 doubles second on the team — and 40 RBI's. He had committed just 10 errors.

But his coach Bumgarner doesn't come as a shock to the Boston organization.

In 1979, Stapleton was the co-MVP of the International League, hitting .306 at Pawtucket and playing all infield positions. He says it took some time to get adjusted to being a major-league regular.

"In the beginning of the year I didn't have my confidence built up yet," said the 26-year old Stapleton, who at 6-foot-1 and 175 pounds doesn't fit the mold of the classic second baseman. "I never played enough second base in the minors to really be comfortable at it. But now that I've been playing every day at one position I feel better. I feel very comfortable now."

As good as he feels at second base, Stapleton is also used as a lead-off batter's box-plutching a big piece of wood for a bat.

The Fairhope, Ala., native oozes confidence at the plate.

"I always felt I could hit the ball hard and well," Stapleton says. "It helps when you're batting second and you've got the third and fourth hitters coming up after you. The pitchers come right at me a little bit more and I'm getting good pitches to hit at."

"I'm a spray hitter; I can hit to all fields, so they can't pitch me in one place all the time. I'm still learning a few things off and on. They don't have to be big things, but I'm still learning. You go through the league and you learn different things."

Meanwhile, Stapleton's chances for the award may have been helped when Charboneau was sidelined with a pulled groin muscle three weeks ago.

Not only does Stapleton now have enough plate appearances to qualify for the AL top 10 — he recently was eighth — but Charboneau's supporters will mainly have his early-season exploits to cite.

Before he was relegated to a pinch-hitting role for the last month of the season, the Indians' 25-year old outfielder was hitting .283 with 22 homers and 84 RBI, and he had made just five errors.

Other players who have been mentioned as possible candidates for the rookie award are relief pitcher Doug Corbett of Minnesota — with 21 saves and a 2.06 ERA — and second baseman Damaso Garcia of Toronto, with a .290 average through 133 games.

And how much do the players want the award?

Stapleton says, "I haven't thought about it too much. If the players want to vote for me, I'd love to have it. Sure I'd like to be Rookie of the Year. I'm just going to play hard each day and see what happens."

"It's a first year dream come true, and it only happens to one player every year, so if I get it, I'll be tickled to death," said Charboneau. "But if I don't get it, I'm not going to worry about it. I have many years of good baseball ahead of me and a lot more important things to worry about."

Tampa Bay co-owner dies

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Husley Loken, chairman of the board of Host International and a co-owner of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, died Monday of a heart attack.

He joined Host as president in 1961 and became chairman of the board and chief executive officer in 1966. At the time of his death, Host was the world's largest operator of airport terminal food and beverage service and operated airport hotels, shops and restaurants.

Women given interview opportunities

HOUSTON (UPI) — Women sports reporters will now be allowed in the Houston Oilers post-game dressing room for the first time, Head Coach Bumgarner said Monday.

The change in policy does not represent a change in Phillips' attitude but an adjustment to allow women, who were previously barred by wishes of the players, an equal opportunity to compete for post-game information.

Women reporters had complained their wait outside the locker rooms for players who were showered and dressed allowed male reporters an unfair advantage, and Phillips agreed.

"We're opening our dressing room to everybody, women, men, everybody, for 20 minutes after the game. Then everybody has to get out," he said.

Publicist Bob Hyde said the players have been given the option to "go ahead and get showers or wait until the ladies leave."

As he announced the policy change at the start of his Monday news conference, Phillips said, "It's gonna hurt the men a little bit more than the women. But I'm partial to women. It's the only fair thing to do. I've put it off for a long time."

Cecil Cooper top AL player

NEW YORK (UPI) — First baseman Cecil Cooper of the Milwaukee Brewers, the American League leader in total bases and runs batted in, has been named the league's player of the week for Sept. 22-28. It was announced Monday.

Cooper batted .478, scored seven runs, drove in seven and had a slugging percentage of .913 during the week.

Rimnerup in the voting was Oakland's Rickey Henderson, who hit .478 and stole eight bases to equal Ty Cobb's AL record of 96 in a season.

Other players receiving votes were Eric Soderholm and Bob Watson of the New York Yankees, Dennis Eckersley of Boston and Tim Lincecum of Baltimore.

Mercado, Spinks to collide Thursday

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Bernardo Mercado, the World Boxing Council's top-ranked heavyweight contender, sparred three rounds Monday in his final contract workout before Thursday's scheduled 12-round bout against former champion Leon Spinks.

The fight is a preliminary to the WBC heavyweight title bout between champion Larry Holmes and Muhammad Ali at Caesars Palace. Mercado has been tentatively offered a bout against the winner of the Holmes-Ali match.

Mercado, 27, of Cartagena, Colombia, is 25-2 with 22 knockouts. Spinks, who defeated Ali to capture the World Boxing Association crown in 1978 and subsequently lost the title in a rematch, is 9-2-2 with seven knockouts.

Rick Camp top NL player

NEW YORK (UPI) — Relief pitcher Rick Camp of the Atlanta Braves, who established a club record for most appearances in a season (76), has been named National League player of the week. It was announced Monday by NL president Club Feeney.

Camp appeared in three games during the week and posted three saves while allowing no runs and no hits in seven innings. Camp lowered his season's earned run average to 1.66 and has a total of 21 saves, 16 of them coming since Aug. 7.

Rimnerup also received a vote in the balloting was Montreal's Gary Carter, who hit three home runs, five doubles, a triple and drove in nine runs.

Ballesteros faces possible operation

LONDON (UPI) — Golfer Severiano Ballesteros faces the prospect of an operation to cure troublesome throat and chest problems he blames on the efforts of a Spanish Air Force sergeant to make a man of him.

The 23-year-old Spaniard, who tops the European Order of Merit after his tie for second place in the Bob Hope Classic Sunday, said, "I am seeing a doctor in Madrid on Wednesday about my problems. It could mean an operation on my throat because I cannot get rid of infections that have been with me for a long time."

"I think it goes back to my time in the Air Force. For three months I did training in Madrid where it is very cold, especially at 6.30 in the morning when they made us get up and do exercises."

Borg 'Athlete of the Decade'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tennis star Bjorn Borg, who has captured five Wimbledon titles while dominating his sport during that period, was selected as the American Cancer Society's third Athlete of the Decade Monday.

Past winners include Muhammad Ali for the decade spanning 1968-1978 and golfing great Jack Nicklaus for 1969-79.

Ten of the world's top athletes were selected as the leading performers in their respective sports over the past decade by a nationwide panel of sportswriters and editors.

Baseball's Pete Rose finished a close second to Borg for the honor, which will be presented to the tennis great Nov. 20 in a $175-per-plate dinner in a New York hotel.

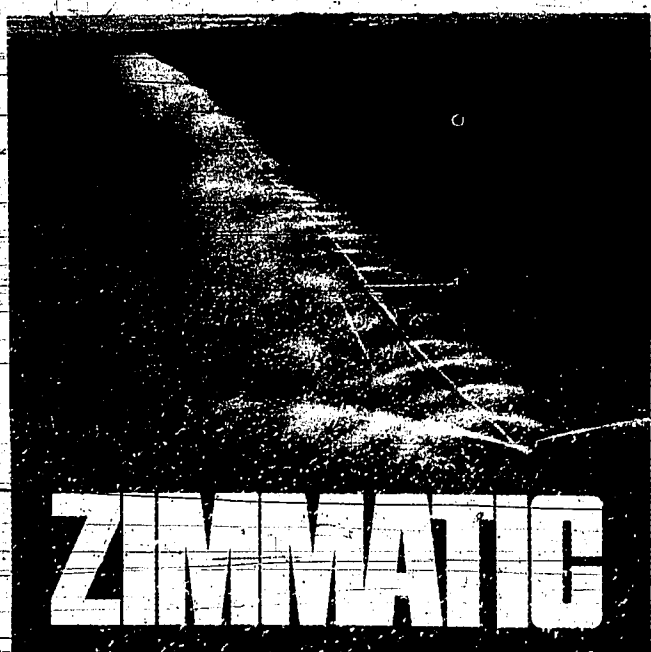

Football's O.J. Simpson finished third in the balloting, golfer Tom Watson was fourth and soccer great Pele was fifth. Rounding out the balloting were Chris Evert Lloyd, Roberto Duran, Guy Lafleur and Nancy Lopez-Melton.

Rams have unbeatable secondary

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — To expect the Rams' secondary is like trying to avoid rock in downtown Los Angeles. Good luck!

"I think we can become one of the best secondaries in Rams history and maybe even the best in the NFL," says safety Johnnie Johnson, who teams with Rod Perry, Pat Thomas and Mike Cromwell to form Los Angeles' toughest - defensive backfield - that averages just three years of NFL experience. "We have four great athletes with a lot of speed and we have great linebackers and a tremendous front line that is constantly putting pressure on the quarterback."

These are heady words coming from the Rams' first-round draft choice but his assessment may not be too far off in the aftermath of Sunday's 26-7 shattering of the New York Giants.

In the first period Sunday, Cromwell forced a fumble and Thomas returned it 6 yards to the Giants' 34 yard line - the Rams' first touchdown. Later in the quarter, Cromwell intercepted a pass at the Los Angeles 17 and returned it 17 yards to start the Rams off on a 66-yard drive that made it 14-0. At that point, Los Angeles was in control and went on to capture its second-straight victory after two losses.

"We're all united back there," says Perry, the right cornerback and senior member of the secondary with five years of experience. "We get along real well on and off the field. We know each other's capabilities and we depend on each other."

The coaches have the confidence to let us go one-on-one with receivers and we're always talking out there to know what the other guy is doing."

All four players also are united in their praise of defensive coordinator Bud Carson, who was the defensive backfield coach for the Pittsburgh Steelers for five years before moving to Los Angeles midway through the 1977 season.

"As far as Bud's coaching goes, he tells you what to do and you do it," said Johnson, an All-American at Texas last year. "His record certainly speaks for itself."

"We all get along fine with Carson," said Thomas, who has 17 career interceptions after 3 1/2 seasons. "When we are on the field and feel things happening, we can change a call and he respects our decision."

The on-field director of the secondary is Cromwell, the fourth-year safety out of Kansas.

"I think having a rookie like me in the line-up puts more pressure on Johnnie," said Johnson. "He's running the show out there, making the necessary calls and I'm just learning our system. But I'm coming along fine because it helps to play with the people I'm playing with."

When told of Johnson's remarks, Cromwell, who was a quarterback in college, said, "I can remember when I first came up and played with guys like (Dave) Edmunds and (Bill) Sullivan. I didn't know the system and they were great teachers. Now I know the system and although it is complicated, Johnnie has picked it up real well."

Due to injuries, the Rams used 11 players in the defensive backfield last year but still made it to the Super Bowl. And with the retirement of Edmunds, a 10-year veteran, a gap in the hole was left as a safety. But Johnson is quickly proving his worth.

"He doesn't play like a rookie," said Thomas. "I thought I was good when I came up but he's the hardest hitter and it almost seems like he's been here for a few years."

McNamara betting on Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (UPI) — John McNamara may be a rotten gambler, but he's still putting all his chips on the Cincinnati Reds.

With five games left and Cincinnati 3 1/2 games out of first place, the odds are against the Reds to repeat as the National League West champions.

The Cincinnati manager has a "never say die" attitude about his club. Even after the Reds lost their second consecutive game to division-leading Houston Saturday to fall out of first place, McNamara would not admit Cincinnati was out of contention.

"We've already been buried more than a few times this season and we've come back. What do you expect us to do now, pack up our bags and quit?"

True to his prediction, nothing was the furthest thing from his mind as the Reds Sunday when they rallied from a three-run deficit to defeat the Astros, 5-4.

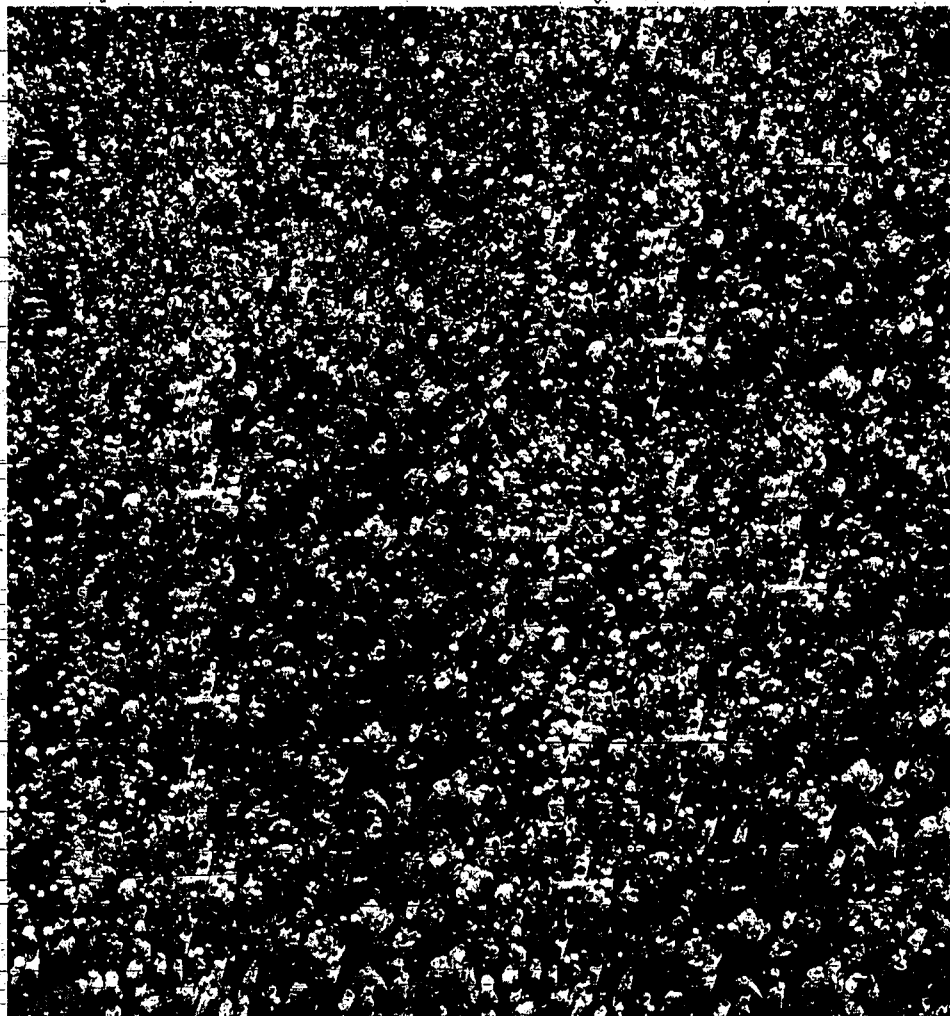

Cincinnati will wind up its schedule here in Riverfront Stadium Saturday with two games against San Diego and three against Atlanta.

Although the Reds' chances for a pennant this year may be slim, McNamara has at least one card to play in his side going into the final home stand.

The Reds have a combined record of 2-3 against San Diego and Atlanta this year.

"I wouldn't be a three-way tie at the finish be something," McNamara said.

HIRING MILLIONS OF PEOPLE TO WORK ON UNITED WAY WOULD NOT BE EFFICIENT.

GETTING THEM TO WORK FOR NOTHING IS.

The big reason why United Way can do so much for so many is that a lot of big-hearted Americans contribute countless millions of hours every year. Free of charge. Volunteers do everything from collecting money to deciding how it will be used in their local communities. So administrative costs are low, and more can be spent on needed services.

And that's how United Way works. And why.

Lettuce workers get contract

SALINAS, Calif. (UPI) — Teamsters union cutters and packers at Bud Antle, Inc., the nation's largest lettuce supplier, ratified a new contract and returned to work Monday, ending their nine-day strike.

The three-year contract immediately boosts hourly pay 60 cents an hour to $5.85 — 20 cents higher than the salary won by the United Farm Workers Union after a nine-month strike against 12 other growers last year.

"Up front and without a doubt this contract is the highest paying in the entire industry," Ed Gay, president of Teamsters Union Local 890, said Sunday after members voted 1,000 to 45 to accept the proposal.

The contract also improves piece-work rates and guarantees earnings of $6.85 an hour for cutters.

Bud Antle, a subsidiary of the San Francisco-based Castle & Cooke agricultural conglomerate, signed with the Teamsters 20 years ago, and its members have been the highest paid in the Salinas Valley since then.

The union represents 2,600 cutters, packers, truck drivers and shop mechanics.

Last week's hot temperatures caused some lettuce to rot, but a company spokesman said he could not estimate the losses from the strike. Usually 88,000 carts of lettuce were harvested a day during the period.

The wholesale prices of lettuce rose slightly right after the start of the walkout.

Bud Antle made no effort to bring in workers to take the place of the Teamster Union members, and there were no incidents of violence as marked the bitter UFW strike of 1979.

A contract settlement put California lettuce harvesters back to work.

Los Angeles completes busing plan

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The last 28 schools in Los Angeles's massive incremental-mandatory busing plan were quietly integrated Monday morning despite expectations of violent demonstrations, a school official said.

"Everything was pretty quiet," said district information officer Pat Spencer.

There was some picketing at schools in the San Fernando Valley but no problems, Spencer said.

"Maybe the protesters are losing some steam but a few of them are still out symbolically protesting," he said.

About 12,000 students in grades one through nine were involved in busing for the first time Monday, bringing the student total involved in the mandatory part of the desegregation program to about 60,000 of the district's more than 500,000 students.

About half of the 60,000 are being bused on any given day, as many students are opting for private transportation, he said. Only 153 of the district's more than 700 schools — the second largest district in the nation — are involved in the mandatory program.

About 65 schools are in a voluntary magnet schools program and there are 99 sending schools in the voluntary Permits With Transportation program along with 77 receiving schools.

The high school grades will be in the programs next year beginning with the 10th grade, followed by the 11th and 12th grades in 1982 and 1983, respectively.

Sioux consider compensation

PIERRE, S.D. (UPI) — A Sioux Nation fact-finding committee met Monday to consider the pros and cons of accepting a $105 million compensation the federal government has offered for sacred Black Hills land.

Clarence Skye, executive director of the United Sioux Tribes, said leaders from eight tribes in South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana and Nebraska appointed the committee to study the issue.

Tim Glago of Rapid City, an Ogala tribal member, said the committee would consider arguments about the settlement and distribute the information to individual tribes, which then would vote to accept or reject.

"They don't have the authority to accept or reject the settlement," Glago said, "so a vote by the United Sioux Tribes would be meaningless."

Skye said 208 Indian leaders registered at a meeting Sunday in which the settlement issue was discussed. Most of the arguments aired were against acceptance, he said.

"The committee also wants to get some opinions on what would happen if we accepted the award," he said.

The Black Hills award was not the only issue on the agenda. Indian leaders also planned to discuss education and have devoted Tuesday to meetings with representatives from Canadian Indian tribes.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in June Congress illegally seized 7.3 million acres of land in the Black Hills from the Sioux without compensation in 1877. The land seizure came after an expedition, led by Lt. Col. George Armstrong Custer, discovered gold in the area.

Homestate Gold Mine, the largest gold producer in North America, still operates at Lead, S.D.

White flight remained a problem despite the apparent acceptance of the busing program designed by Superior Court Judge Paul Egly.

Only a few student climbed aboard buses at several San Fernando Valley locations Monday, a school district official said, and Spencer added that many students were driven to their schools by parents.

"Maybe they're boycotting the busing, but they're going to school anyway," he said.

Twenty-five white youngsters were on a bus taking them from Hale Junior High School to Paoloma Junior High, and only 10 were on a bus between two other schools. About 100 tickets showed up at Hughes Junior High Monday and a similar number at Hale. But there were no incidents.

Study shows California unprepared for quake

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government Monday said the nation is not prepared for a catastrophic earthquake and, as a result, as many as 25,000 people could be killed if one hits the Los Angeles area.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency released the results of a study that said there is a 2 percent to 5 percent chance of a major earthquake hitting southern California each year and a 50 percent chance of one occurring within the next 30 years.

The aggregate probability for a major earthquake in California as a whole in the next three decades is well in excess of 50 percent," the study said.

The nation "is not sufficiently prepared for a catastrophic earthquake in California, should such a disaster occur," the agency said.

The agency studied San Francisco, Oakland, San Diego and the Los Angeles area from San Bernardino to Santa Monica.

A major earthquake is one with a magnitude of 7 or more on the Richter scale and capable of causing widespread extensive damage in a developed region.

The agency said at least eight major earthquakes have occurred in the past 1,200 years along the San Andreas fault, 50 miles north of Los Angeles.

The agency said estimates of fatalities in an area 50 miles north of Los Angeles as the result of a catastrophic earthquake range from about 3,000 if the earthquake were to occur in the early morning hours, to more than 13,000 if it were to occur on a weekday afternoon when much of the population is either in office buildings or on the streets.

Estimates of fatalities for an earthquake registering 7.5 on the Newcomb-Wood fault in the immediate Los Angeles area range from 4,000 to 25,000, the agency said. It added that four times that many people could be injured seriously enough to require hospitalization.

Easy does it

San Joaquin railroad workers struggled over the weekend to raise the fragile embankment, holding the railroad tracks threatened by the flooding. The Stockton, Calif. flood was caused by a levee that broke in the San Joaquin Delta. If the San Joaquin right-of-way doesn't hold, an additional 45,000 acres of farmland could be flooded.
