Governor, in Jerome, praises state's first alcohol fuel plant

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

WENDELL — Gov. John Evans helped dedicate the state's first alcohol fuel plant Friday near Wendell, and proclaimed it a model for Idaho's future.

Evans commended Janss Energy Corporation "for having foresight and confidence in what many consider to be an experimental market." He predicted the plant would be the first of many to take advantage of the state's proximity to natural resources.

The Janss plant uses a wood boiler for cooking and distillation, and is capable of converting a wide range of agricultural products and wastes into 500,000 gallons of ethanol alcohol a year.

Idaho has the opportunity to become the "OPEC of the United States," added state Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, who sponsored legislation earlier this year to give gasoline distributors a 4-cent-a-gallon rebate if they use alcohol produced in Idaho.

Evans also learned the plant's cattle feedlot operation "the cleanest I've seen anywhere."

Grain or beet mash from the plant is fed directly to 2,000 head of cattle on slatted floors. Wastes from the cattle are flushed into a holding tank and separated, with solids mixed back in the food ration and liquids used as fertilizer in the farm's irrigation pivots.

Corporation administrator Larry Janss said 1980 may prove one of the most possible years to begin operation of an alcohol distillery. Farm commodity prices are up, and a glut of oil reserves has temporarily depressed gasoline prices.

He said the plant will operate at or slightly below the break-even point this year, but will have liquid fuel on hand if another oil cutoff occurs.

Ken Johnson, vice president of Ford Johnson Oil Co. in Idaho Falls, praised the Jansses for researching every detail before they purchased equipment for their plant.

"There has been a tremendous amount of flim-flamming on alcohol production — some of it right here in Idaho," Johnson said. The Ford Johnson firm has contracted to distribute alcohol fuel produced by the plant.

The dedication was attended by farmers, engineers, politicians, the media and representatives of firms planning to produce or market alcohol fuels.

Price index rise keys hot debate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's last consumer inflation report before the election came out Friday — prompting hot new political debate on the economy by showing that prices climbed at an annual rate of 12.7 percent in September.

While price increases were recorded in every category last month, the heaviest contributors were food costs and a record jump in prices for services, the Labor Department reported.

The department said the Consumer Price Index rose 1 percent on a seasonally adjusted basis last month over August. That compared to the 0.7 percent rise recorded in August, and no change in July.

When computed at a compounded annual rate, the September increase amounted to 12.7 percent. That was significantly above the 8.6 percent posted in August, but far less than the nearly 20 percent rate recorded early in the year.

Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan seized the opportunity to criticize President Carter's economic policies in a scheduled paid broadcast Friday evening.

Friday's report was last major measure of inflation to America's consumers before Nov. 4 and Reagan said it is proof that Carter's fiscal policies have led to "a continuing tragedy of immense proportion." In addition, his advisers charged the figures were "jimmied" to make Carter look better.

Carter responded, saying while inflation remains the No. 1 economic problem, things would be worse if Reagan were president.

"On Nov. 4, the American people must choose between my policies which will build our country's economic strength and actually work to reduce inflation — that lay the foundation of a true economic renaissance in America — and, or those which will squander our hopes on economic voodoo," Carter said.

He said the latest index "tells us that inflation is still our No. 1 problem and confirms the wisdom of our policy of holding down government spending, totally opposing the election year tax cut proposed by the Republicans."

But Reagan told reporters, "Today's Consumer Price Index says one thing loud and clear — Carter's economic medicine not only isn't working, it is going to put the patient on the critical list if it isn't stopped."

Private and government economists said they expect the 1 percent monthly increase to continue for at least the rest of the year as higher mortgage rates are factored into the index and food prices continue rising.

The CPI now stands at 251.9, which means goods and services costing $100 in 1967 now cost $251.90.

Stated another way, the 1967 dollar is worth 39.7 cents, and consumer prices in September were 12.7 percent higher than a year earlier.

But the underlying rate of inflation is less than the 12.7 percent figure.

The underlying rate is the inflation the economy tends to move into when temporary shocks caused by mortgages, drought and OPEC prices subside.

The underlying rate was 1 percent in the early 1960s, 4 percent in the early 1970s and 7 percent after the 1974 recession. Government

Major earthquake rocks Mexico; at least 65 known dead

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A long and powerful earthquake rocked south-central Mexico Friday, shattering buildings as far away as Mexico City and killing at least 65 people.

The quake was felt as far south as the capital of Guatemala, but there were no injuries reported.

Most of the casualties, including at least 200 injured, were in the state of Oaxaca.

The hardest-hit town appeared to be Huajuap de Leon, near the quake's epicenter, 150 miles southwest of the capital.

Mayor Fidel Lopez Sanchez told officials that at least 30 people were killed and 200 injured in Huajuap de Leon, a town of 20,000.

A spokesman for the National Indian Institute in radio contact with Huajuap said the city's government hospital collapsed while patients were in the building, causing an undetermined number of casualties.

Since roads to the town were blocked by landslides, helicopters were used to ferry the gravely injured to Oaxaca.

Authorities in Oaxaca reported at least seven dead and an undetermined number of injured in at least three small towns surrounding Huajuap.

Local officials in the neighboring state of Puebla reported five people, including two children, were killed in the village of Tehuatzingo, where the quake flattened 40 percent of the houses, and another three died in a nearby hamlet.

Red Cross officials said the quake destroyed about 70 percent of the village of San Mateo Xolco, killing two people in the town 60 miles northwest of Huajuap.

"Two other people were crushed to death when buildings collapsed in Puebla, officials said."

The Tacubaya Earthquake Center said the quake measured 6.5 on the Richter scale.

The U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colorado, computed the quake's strength at 6.7 on the Richter scale while the Swedish Seismological Institute in Uppsala, Sweden, said its needles hit 7.1.

The quake struck at at 8:52 a.m. MDT. It lasted three minutes and 17 seconds, making it one of the longest quakes in recent history, the Tacubaya Center said.

In Mexico City, where six people were killed, buildings swayed, ceilings fell and gas lines ruptured, spreading fires.

At the fatalities in Mexico City, the Red Cross said two persons died of heart attacks and another was killed in a fire touched off by one of the gas line ruptures.

A professor at the Metropolitan University in the eastern part of the city was seriously injured by a collapsing wall and a student was trampled upon by stampeding students fleeing the building, school authorities said.

Window washers working on the 10th story of a skyscraper nervously spread-eagled themselves against the walls until the quake was over, witnesses said.

Future mortgage rule changes liven market

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A rule expected to hurt the local real estate business if it takes effect next month has temporarily enlivened the market.

After Nov. 1, First Federal Savings and Loan, the largest mortgage lender in Twin Falls, will change its rules to eliminate some of the financial arrangements real estate sales while interest rates are high.

Many people with First Federal mortgages whose homes are on the market are anxious to sell before the deadline, real estate agents said.

Their property will be less marketable after the new rule takes effect, said Ken Roy, a real estate salesman at Snake River Realty and Investment. Sellers are willing to make sacrifices to sell their house now, he said.

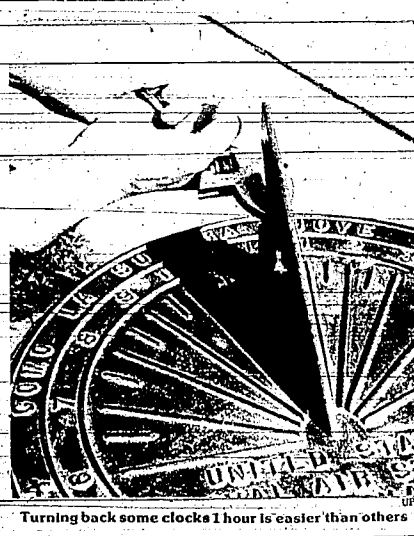

Roy is doing what he can to help people get in under the wire. He said he had a sale on Wednesday and closed the deal by Friday.

L. James Koutnik, the broker at Western Realty, said he doesn't think the number of sales is increasing because of First Federal's rule change. What is happening, he said, is that deals already in the pipeline or about to be made have been moved faster.

Tom Silvers, president of Title Fact, agrees deals are being moved quickly to take advantage of the time remaining before the First Federal rule change takes effect. A Title Insurance company is one of the last steps a real estate deal makes before it is completed. Silvers said the market is still plagued by all the problems that have hurt it all year, yet it has been a good month. The reason, he believes, is because of the number of people making deals they won't be able to make after Nov. 1.

Time is running out, however. "Our chances are practically nil" to make a sale and beat the Nov. 1 deadline, Koutnik said. The mechanics of putting together a deal would be almost sure to stretch the closing date past Nov. 1.

Robert Jones, broker for Robert Jones ERA Realty, said there is no reason for First Federal mortgage holders to panic. "We're just going to have to learn new ways to do business," he said. The houses will not be unmarketable once the new rule takes effect.

Turning back some clocks 1 hour is easier than others

Fall back Nation goes off Daylight Saving time this Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Daylight Saving Time, an idea late-sleeper Benjamin Franklin brought back from France, ends Sunday when most of the United States returns to Standard Time — and regains the hour lost last spring.

The official change occurs at 2 a.m. local time Oct. 26 when the time instantly becomes 1 a.m. Most people find it easier to set their clocks back one hour Saturday night.

"Spring forward, fall back" is a phrase many use to remember which way to set their clocks.

Under the 1966 Uniform Time Act administered by the Transportation Department, Standard Time is observed from the last Sunday in October until the last Sunday in April.

Benjamin Franklin is generally credited with bringing the idea of daylight time to the United States. As minister to France, he wrote an article extolling the benefits of correlating an extra hour of daylight with the time most people work.

"Franklin was a night person and used to sleep late," said Robert Ross, an attorney with the Transportation Department. "The way the story goes, he woke up one morning and saw sunlight streaming in through the window, and it struck him that he had wasted it."

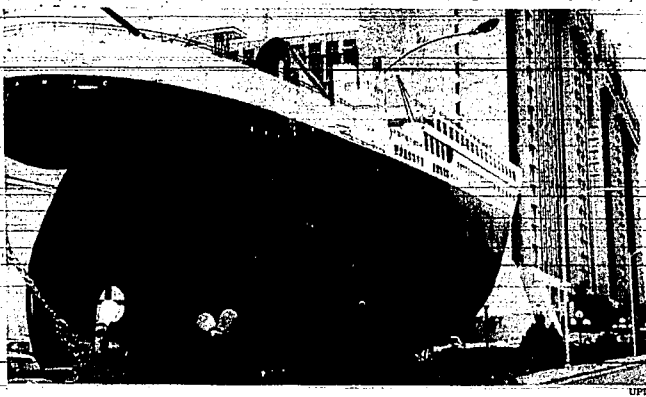

The 1966 law allows states and territories to exempt themselves from using daylight time if they wish. Areas that do not observe it are Arizona, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, American Samoa and the portion of Indiana in the Eastern Time Zone — 81 of the state's 92 counties.

Daylight Saving Time was first formally observed in this country in 1918 to conserve resources during World War I, and was used again during World War II.

In 1973, during the Arab oil embargo, the country went on year-round daylight time, but that was scrapped following protests that children were waking to school in the dark during the winter.

Congress put March and April on Daylight Saving Time in 1974 and 1975, but then rejected a department recommendation to give that an extended trial of two more years.

Fullmer cries foul on debate

BOISE (UPI) — Although Idaho's children are taught by some of the most poorly paid teachers in the country, they are receiving a quality education, Gov. John Evans told the Idaho Congress of Parents and Teachers Friday night.

But Evans said the children were receiving that quality education only thanks to the efforts and dedication of teachers and administrators.

"There has never been a time when school finances have undergone such tremendous changes as in the last few years," Evans said. "Much of this change has been generated as a result of the 1 percent initiative."

Evans said some good has resulted from the 1 percent because the measure has forced the state to assume more responsibility for funding public education.

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — The Libertarian Party candidate for Idaho's U.S. Senate seat, Larry Fullmer, Friday night said he had been discriminated against by not being invited to participate in the Church/Symms senate race debate.

Fullmer said the two groups had the right to exclude him from the candidate debate, but he said Idaho's voters were deprived of the "new answers and new solutions" offered by the Libertarians by not hearing Fullmer.

Quake rocks Connecticut

EAST HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Two minor earthquakes rumbled through part of southwestern Connecticut Friday, shaking buildings and rattling a few nerves but causing no damage.

The Weston Observatory in Boston said the second tremor, which occurred at 8:41 p.m., "appeared to be an aftershock" of a 1.27 p.m. quake. It said both seismic events were centered northeast of New Haven.

The Weston Observatory measured the first quake at 1.0 and the second quake at 2.9 on its modified Richter scale, a spokesman in Massachusetts said.

Drivers detour around body

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — A woman was shot to death Friday and her body was dumped on a street, but rush hour drivers detoured around her rather than take the time to call authorities, police said.

Eventually a man making deliveries for a bakery saw the woman's body and managed to get a passing motorist to call police. Investigators first believed the woman was a hit-and-run victim, but then discovered she had been shot twice in the side.

UN staff charges corruption

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United Nations Staff Union marked the 50th anniversary of the founding of the world body Friday with a searing attack on corruption, mismanagement and political interference in the peace organization.

But charges that could bring down a member country's government caused many a raised eyebrow in the corridors of power at the U.N. headquarters.

The union, which represents 7,000 employees worldwide, said "The U.N. has been seriously impaired... by political interference, arbitrary arrest and detention of staff members, mismanagement, and in some cases even outright corruption."

Union posters list names of U.N. employees who have "died in detention" in Afghanistan, Argentina, Chile and Ethiopia. They also carry the names of others still detained in Afghanistan, East Germany, Ethiopia and Poland.

U.S. tuna boat seized

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Ecuador has seized another U.S. tuna boat — the fourth this week — and a boat was detained by Venezuela, the American Tunaboat Association said Friday.

The United States does not respect the 200-mile territorial boundaries in tuna fishing, citing the highly migratory nature of the fish. The State Department has a policy of reimbursing tunaboat operators for fines.

The last time Ecuador detained U.S. seiners, in 1977, the catches were confiscated and stiff fines were levied as well.

U.S. State Department fisheries specialist Brian Hallman was quoted as saying that fines on the three seiners detained in Manla, Ecuador could range as high as $200,000 to $400,000 each.

U.S. waits on hostage sign

By United Press International

President Carter said Friday night that the United States has "no clear signal" from Iran that the American hostages will be released and cautioned against building up hopes of a release in the next few days.

Carter was asked about reports that the hostages will be freed as early as Sunday at a question-and-answer session at the Wyoming, Mich. Public Library.

"I wouldn't get our hopes up. I hate to be discouraging," he replied. "We had private messages and also some public statements time after time after time that the hostages were going to be released imminently."

soon. We've always been disappointed. "We don't have any clear signal from the Iranian leaders about when the hostages will or will not be released. We don't know their terms because the parliament committee still has not reported."

The Iranian Parliament, after numerous delays, is to receive the recommendations of a special commission on the question Sunday.

State Department spokesman John Trantner said the United States remains in indirect contact with the Iranian government over the fate of the hostages, as it has almost since they were seized. But it is not in direct negotiations with them over their freedom, he said.

State Department spokeswoman Anita Stockman denied reports that Secretary of State Edmund Muskie will soon fly to West Germany, where the Americans are expected to be taken after their release.

At the Vatican, Pope John Paul II conferred privately with the Iranian ambassador to Italy, Mohammed Bagher Nassiri Sadati, and church sources speculated that the pope discussed the release of the hostages.

An aide to Iranian Prime Minister Mohsen Rezaei, interviewed by telephone from London, said not even Rezaei could predict with authority the outcome of the Majlis' debate on the hostages.

Fed to cut money supply growth

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Board Friday disclosed new targets calling for substantial reduction in the growth of money during the rest of this year.

The new targets were designed to bring money growth for the year to a whole within target ranges set in February and reaffirmed in July, and which remain unchanged.

The committee is the body within the Federal Reserve System that conducts monetary policy.

growth in monetary aggregates over the August level to December in annual rates. They are:

"For M1, which includes currency and checking accounts: 4 percent, compared to the previous short-run target of 5 percent for June to September."

"For M2, which includes the above plus time deposits and other liquid assets like certificates of deposit, compared to 9 percent for June to September."

"For M2, which includes money market fund shares, overnight repurchase agreements and Eurodollars, and savings and small time deposits: 8.5 percent compared to 12 percent for June-September."

The committee said it would keep the new targets provided that, by its next regular meeting, the federal funds rate — the interest on reserves the banks borrow and lend among themselves — remained within the previously set target range of 8 to 14 percent.

Rogerson water system hearing held

ROGERSON — There were no negative comments Friday in a public hearing on the proposed funding application for a new Rogerson community water system.

John Yeates, planning officer for the Region 4 Development Association, said about 15 Rogerson residents attended.

"They asked questions about the price, but there was no opposition. The people in Rogerson are very much in favor of the improvement," Yeates said.

Another hearing will be held at 7 p.m. Monday at the Rogerson Service and Store.

a well and replacing and upgrading the distribution pipe. A well on the Ralph Schnell property is adequate to supply the community; but it must be hooked into the system.

Since Rogerson is not incorporated and is a community rather than a city, the Twin Falls County Commissioners are sponsoring the project. Yeates said application is being made for a 100 percent grant through the Housing and Urban Renewal Community Block Grant program.

An exact cost has not been determined, but Yeates said the application will be in the neighborhood of $215,000.

"Because this is a community and not a city application, we want to make certain everyone in the community knows about the project and has been given an opportunity for input," he said. "This is the reason for two hearings in so small a community."

County Commissioner Ann Cover of Twin Falls represented the commissioners at the hearing.

economists say it is now 9 percent to 9.5 percent. Many private economists estimate 10 percent.

One characteristic of the underlying rate is stubbornness. Most economists and out of government say it is likely to take several years to get that rate significantly down.

In an accompanying report, the Labor Department said the after-tax income of a typical urban family rose 20 percent in September after two months of moderate increases. Real spendable earnings are now 6.7 percent below last year's level.

The bulk of the monthly increase in consumer prices was due to a 1.6 percent increase in food prices in September. It follows a 1.7 percent increase in August, which was the largest jump recorded in five years.

The 1.6 percent increase in the housing category, while well above the 0.1 percent rise in August, was the smallest hike in the September report. Rising home prices and furniture costs accounted for most of the increase.

Since there is a lag in calculating mortgage interest rates into the index, the home financing part of the report continued to show a decline in September. Higher interest rates are expected to show up in the next report.

That led Reagan aide Ed Gray to tell reporters the 12 percent figure would have been 13.9 percent if the government had included everything it should have in the numbers.

Gray claimed a delay in the increase of the Housing Administration loan rates last month was deliberate so the rates would not get into the September report — the last before the election.

The unprecedented effort to alter the inflation figure for September is a clear abuse of government responsibility to manipulate official data in this manner for campaign purposes," said Gray.

He said the move had been "once again limited" in what he said was "a calculated decision to hold down the CPI figures."

Spokesman Andy Gasparich of the Department of Housing and Urban Development denied there was any manipulation of statistics or intentional delay in posting new interest rates. He said when the agency found an August rate change ineffective, the rate was raised again.

Gray said if the FHA rate had been raised a week earlier, it would have gone into the September housing component of the CPI.

On Sept. 19, Finance announced a raise in the rate from 12 percent to 13 percent, effective Sept. 22. Then HUD Secretary Moon Landrieu said, "The increases are necessary to reflect the realities of the money market."

Mortgage bankers earlier protested that the rates were below market levels, and urged the administration to raise them.

The CPI subsequently raised its rate Sept. 22. But home financing costs, as calculated in the consumer price index, are measured on the 15th of the month.

The consumer index has gyrated wildly in recent months, showing an overall annual rate of inflation of 18 percent early this year, zero inflation in July, 8.6 percent in August and, as reported Friday, 12.7 percent in September.

Analysts do not believe the nation's inflation problem actually has been on such a see-saw.

Much of this fluctuation has come from changes in mortgage interest rates. The CPI is set up in such a way that these have an exaggerated effect on the overall inflation number.

The reason is that when the Bureau of Labor Statistics samples the cost of buying a typical house during a given month, it dumps the entire cost — the full price plus all future interest payments — into the CPI for that month, even though the buyer usually pays it off over, say, 20 years.

The CPI does not count the mortgage payments people are making today on houses they bought 10 years ago.

Barnett indicted as 'mole'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal grand jury Friday indicted former CIA agent David Barnett for charges he spied for the Soviet Union by slipping the KGB information on a key U.S. intelligence operation.

The indictment charges that at clandestine exchanges in Vienna, Austria, and Jakarta, Indonesia, four years ago, Barnett passed the Soviet intelligence agency details of a CIA plan to obtain information on Russian military operations.

Sources said Barnett, 47, has agreed to plead guilty to the charges, which carries a maximum sentence of life in prison. Barnett is believed to be the highest-ranking CIA officer ever publicly accused of serving as a Soviet "mole."

One source said Barnett is alleged to have risked lives of CIA agents by revealing their names and ongoing operations.

The one-sentence grand jury indictment, handed up in U.S. District Court in Baltimore, was tailored to protect national security information.

It simply charged that from October 1976 to February 1977 Barnett gave the Soviets "information relating to the national defense, that is, the nature of and certain details of the HA BRINK operation."

John Russell, a Justice Department spokesman, said the HA BRINK operation "has to do with the covert collection by the CIA of intelligence on manuals, weaponry, instruments and parts."

The indictment did not mention money. But federal law enforcement sources said Barnett allegedly collected between $75,000 and $100,000 for selling secrets to the Kremlin after he ended a 12-year career with the CIA in 1970 and opened a business in Indonesia, the site of his first job for the CIA.

Sources close to the case said Barnett apparently has agreed to plead guilty because he is convinced the Justice Department has enough evidence to prove its case and hopes a federal judge will sentence him to fewer years in prison in light of his cooperation.

In an unusual twist for an espionage case, Barnett was not promptly arrested. He is expected to enter his plea at his arraignment next week.

Law enforcement sources said the FBI is keeping close tabs on Barnett while he remains free.

The Justice Department said Barnett was recruited as a contract part-time employee by the CIA in January 1970 and worked until last March. Sources said the action was part of the FBI's attempt to verify his Soviet contacts.

Barnett allegedly was assigned by the KGB to apply for jobs at both the Senate and House Intelligence committees and the White House's top secret Intelligence Oversight Board. He failed.

Sources said it took months for the CIA to "debrief" Barnett so the agency could learn exactly what he told the Soviets. "We have to know, 'What is our damage?'" one source said. "That is very important."

Sources said the CIA objected to taking the year-old Barnett investigation to trial because it thought he could be "turned around" — or converted into a triple agent to again operate against the Soviets.

However, the sources said the FBI considered evidence against Barnett too serious to forego prosecution.

"The Justice Department said Barnett served as a CIA contract employee from 1958 to 1960 and from 1961 to 1963. From 1963 until he resigned in 1970, he handled covert assignments, and was assigned from 1963 to 1967 to CIA headquarters helping oversee clandestine operations abroad.

The indictment of Barnett marked the Justice Department's 13th prosecution of an espionage case in the last five years — the most in U.S. history. Most of those prosecuted have been accused of giving classified information to the Soviets.

Hypnosis ID's killers

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Two witnesses under hypnosis Friday gave detailed descriptions of three men seen leaving the scene of a robbery and triple murder at a shopping mall cafeteria.

Lt. Col. Harry Slaten, head of the Major Case Squad, said the use of a hypnotist in the case was "extremely successful" and has provided the best leads in the robbery-killing Thursday at Pope's Cafeteria in the posh West County Shopping Center in suburban Des Peres.

Slaten said the witnesses were unable to recall the license number of the car.

"We're still trying to decipher a lot of the information they gave us," Slatensaid.

The men are believed to be the robbers who forced their way into the cafeteria as employees were reporting for work early Thursday. After taking the cash boxes from a vault, the robbers herded the manager and three other workers into a small office and shot each of them in the head, some more than once.

Another employee discovered the bodies when reporting to work.

Killed in the robbery were the cafeteria manager, James E. Wood, 51, and two cooks, Edna R. Ince, 66, and Carolyn Turner, 51. A fourth employee, Judy Cazaco, 37, suffered two gunshot wounds to the head and underwent five hours of surgery.

Mrs. Cazaco was unconscious Friday and under armed guard at St. John's Mercy Medical Center.

"She is not in a condition that we might interview her yet," said Des Peres Police Chief Ray Johnson. "We are very hopeful she will recover enough so that we can talk to her."

The investigators called a news conference Friday to ask the public to help in the search for three gray metal cash boxes missing from the cafeteria vault. The officers said the robbers might discard the boxes in a sewer or trash can.

Volunteers look for children's bodies

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hundreds of volunteer searchers strike out today to scour fields, abandoned houses and dark wells for the bodies of two of the 14 black children who have disappeared over the past 15 months.

Ten of the children have been found alive and four others are listed as missing but feared dead. The weekend search will zero in on the area where officials believe they have the best chance of finding the bodies of two of the four who are still missing.

The search was expected to draw up to 2,000 volunteers.

Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson said Friday a massive cleanup effort of abandoned buildings and empty lots would be launched in conjunction with the effort.

"We've come to plead with the owners to clean up immediately empty lots and buildings which could offer a haven for criminal activity and present a danger to our children," the mayor said, adding that volunteers would clean up public lands and buildings.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said Friday, despite numerous phone tips and the assistance of psychic Dorothy Allison, "nothing new" has been turned up by the 24-man task force investigating the slayings. But police said a curfew imposed earlier this week to keep children off the streets between the hours of 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. appears to be working.

Police spokeswoman Marian Lee said Friday, "When the police were out patrolling, they noticed in a lot of areas where young people usually hang around, the streets were clear."

She said there have been no arrests for violations of the curfew.

The search teams are looking specifically for Christopher Richardson, 11, who hasn't been seen since June 2 when he left his southeast Atlanta home for a neighborhood swimming pool, and Darvon Glass, 10, who disappeared about three miles away Sept. 14.

"We hope none of the missing children are dead and are safe somewhere," said City Councilman Arthur Langford, who is spearheading the volunteer search.

"But if they are dead, we hope to find them," he said.

Searchers last weekend found the skeleton of 7-year-old Latonya Wilson, a black girl taken from her home the night of June 22.

The 625-member search party had swept through tall weeds, ditches and culverts for less than two hours before a 13-year-old volunteer spotted the child's bones in an area already scoured by police.

Discovery of the Wilson child joited the city and fueled the black community's determination to find the other missing youngsters and solve the crimes.

Court OKs 'security' break-ins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A special court set-up to approve electronic bugs in national security cases has authorized physical searches to gather foreign intelligence, a Justice Department document disclosed Friday in the trial of two former top FBI officials.

The recent action of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court marked the first time the government has sought judicial approval to conduct a physical search in a foreign intelligence investigation, the document said.

It also said Attorney General Benjamin Rusk asked the court to approve physical searches, including break-ins, as a matter of policy in foreign intelligence cases, even though the president or attorney general may order them on their own.

Details of the intelligence court's actions were outlined by John Hollis, a top aide to FBI director William Webster, and the last defense witness at the trial of the two former officials.

W. Mark Fell, formerly the FBI's No. 2 official, and Edward S. Miller, former intelligence chief, are on trial for approving break-ins in 1972 and 1973 a hunt for fugitive members of the Weather Underground.

Fell and Miller contended they were acting on the authority of acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray, and that such actions were necessary to legitimate national security probe.

The prosecution says the searches were illegal.

Thomas Kennedy, Fell's lawyer, said his testimony was intended to show the jury the FBI has instituted safeguards for authorizing such break-ins.

The president may delegate authority to break-ins to the attorney general. Hollis said the FBI's legal counsel and the Justice Department review all applications for break-ins.

The special court, which meets secretly, was set up by statute to approve electronic surveillance requested by the government in its foreign intelligence investigations. In the first year of its existence, it approved every government request.

U.S. citizens held in Cuba to come home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirty American prisoners pardoned by Fidel Castro will be flown to the United States Monday aboard a chartered jet, but three others have decided to stay in Cuba, State Department officials said Friday.

The 33 Americans, some imprisoned for as much as 10 years, were unexpectedly pardoned them Oct. 13 by Fidel Castro.

State Department spokesman John Tranter said the U.S. interest section in Havana finished interviewing the Americans Thursday at Combarbo Del Este Prison, and all but three decided to return.

Two of the three are accused of hijacking and the other with parole violations.

Carter camp admits trailing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prospects for the Nov. 4 presidential election, as seen Friday by top aides to President Carter and Ronald Reagan —

Robert Strauss, Carter campaign manager, speaking in Texas — "We're polling pretty well right now. I suggest if the election were held today, we would win it, somewhere between losing by 40 (electoral) votes and going into a tie."

But Strauss said Carter has closed a 20-point gap in Texas and has enough momentum to win.

Ed Moore, Reagan strategist, speaking in Arlington, Va. — "We think the way in which our polls have gone very satisfactorily over the last week or 10 days, the steady increases that we're making, and the surprising increases that we've made in the South and the very strong showing that has persisted in some of the industrial states, and the overall strength of our lead which seems to be holding very well — we think all of these things bode well as far as the campaign is concerned."

Jody Powell, White House press secretary — "Anybody who doesn't run scared the last week of an election doesn't have enough sense to be president."

Carter, Reagan both gain in poll

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter and Ronald Reagan have both gained probable electoral votes in the past week, and Reagan now has 217 of the 270 needed to win, compared to Carter's 148, an ABC News survey concluded Friday.

The survey also showed Carter had cut into Reagan's support in the West, where the network's low rates Oregon and Washington losses.

Wisconsin, now rated even, and Delaware is now rated even after briefly showing Reagan ahead.

But Reagan took the lead in New Jersey in the latest survey and continued to gain strength in Carter's native South, moving ahead in Florida and throwing South Carolina into the toss-up category. Carter regained his lead in Tennessee.

The network said polls and political sources in all 50 states and the District of Columbia reported Anderson's support has declined from last week and that the independent candidate's slippage accounts in part for Carter's gains in Oregon, Washington and Wisconsin. He continues to hurt Carter in the Midwest and eastern industrial states, however.

According to the survey, Reagan leads in 24 states with 217 electoral votes, Carter is ahead in 13 states and the District of Columbia with 146 votes, 13 states with 173 electoral votes are toss-ups and John Anderson is ahead in no state.

Until the current survey, Reagan led in all the western states, with the exception of Hawaii, in the network's weekly electoral vote surveys. Reagan's lead also slipped in

Churches fight over morals

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — A leader of Moral Majority, one of several New Right political groups criticized by an organization of 17 churches, denounced the Oklahoma Conference of Churches Friday as a "bunch of gross hypocrites."

The Rev. Jim Vineyard, a Baptist minister and Oklahoma chairman of the Moral Majority, said the Oklahoma Conference of Churches is a leftist organization that has supplied arms to Rhodesian guerrillas and bail money to a convicted killer of a police officer.

money to Rita Silk Naul, who is appealing her conviction in the slaying of an Oklahoma City airport police officer.

The spokesman for the Oklahoma Conference on Churches was not immediately available for comment on the bail money and weapons accusations.

The Oklahoma Conference, which represents 17 mainline denominations, said Friday it has passed a resolution warning against "religious partisanship which... threatens American religious freedom."

Vineyard's accusations responded to a statement issued Friday by the Oklahoma Conference of Churches describing the Moral Majority, Religious Roundtable and other "New Right" political-religious groups as "unbalanced... simplistic... and self-righteous."

"We're only doing what they've been doing for 50 years," Vineyard said. "These conference members are just gross hypocrites."

Vineyard accused the conference of supplying money to purchase arms for Rhodesian guerrillas "who murdered gospel-preaching missionaries in Rhodesia."

And, he said, the conference gave $50,000 bail to Rita Silk Naul, who is appealing her conviction in the slaying of an Oklahoma City airport police officer.

The spokesman for the Oklahoma Conference on Churches was not immediately available for comment on the bail money and weapons accusations.

The Oklahoma Conference, which represents 17 mainline denominations, said Friday it has passed a resolution warning against "religious partisanship which... threatens American religious freedom."

"They've been in left field and we're in right field," Vineyard said. "They say SALT II is not a moral issue. We say SALT II is a moral issue."

Moral Majority is a Virginia-based group led by the Rev. Jerry Falwell.

Inflation hampers military

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Air Force chief of staff said Friday that the soaring costs of materials and poor production schedules are hampering the combat readiness of the American military.

Gen. Lew Allen Jr. painted a dismal picture of double-digit inflation's effect on the defense industry's ability to meet military demands, while saying the military needs to improve its long-range budgeting capabilities.

Shortages of material and inflation are creating major problems, the general said while addressing an audience of aerospace industry representatives at an Air Force Association symposium.

"In the past year alone, the costs of aircraft engines are up by an average of 28 percent and the cost of electrical connectors for aircraft has increased by a whopping 170 percent," Allen said.

Certain important raw materials needed to build military equipment are in short supply because the United States is forced to buy them from other countries, he said.

Shortages and delays combine to stretch production time of aircraft and spare parts, which is boosting the cost of building weapons systems by more than 20 percent a year, twice the inflation rate the defense department predicted, Allen said.

To cope with these handicaps, the Air Force intends to be more realistic about its inflation projections, the general said.

"I am disturbed by the growing impression in this country that we can't build things right anymore, whether it's automobiles or F-15s," he said. "The media is filled with stories of cost overruns, schedule slippages, computers that don't work and sophisticated weapons of questionable reliability and supportability."

"To the degree that we in the military and you in industry have had a hand in creating this impression of incompetence, it's up to us to change it. Let's do the job right the first time and on time."

Eagleton's niece guilty of extortion

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A federal court judge Friday found the niece of Sen. Thomas Eagleton and her former lawyer guilty of trying to extort $220,000 from the senator by threatening to start a rumor he is homosexual.

The guilty verdicts were rendered against Elizabeth "Libby" Weigand, 24, and Stephen Poludniak, 29. They were found guilty of one count each of extortion and conspiracy.

Maximum punishment on the two charges is seven years in prison and fines totaling $10,500.

In testimony this week, Mrs. Weigand admitted she wanted Eagleton's lawyers to think she would disseminate harmful information about the senator if Eagleton did not pay for $220,000 her stock in the Eagleton family's Missouri Pipe Fittings Co.

Mrs. Weigand's current attorney, Leonard Frankel, Friday insisted the case was merely a family dispute.

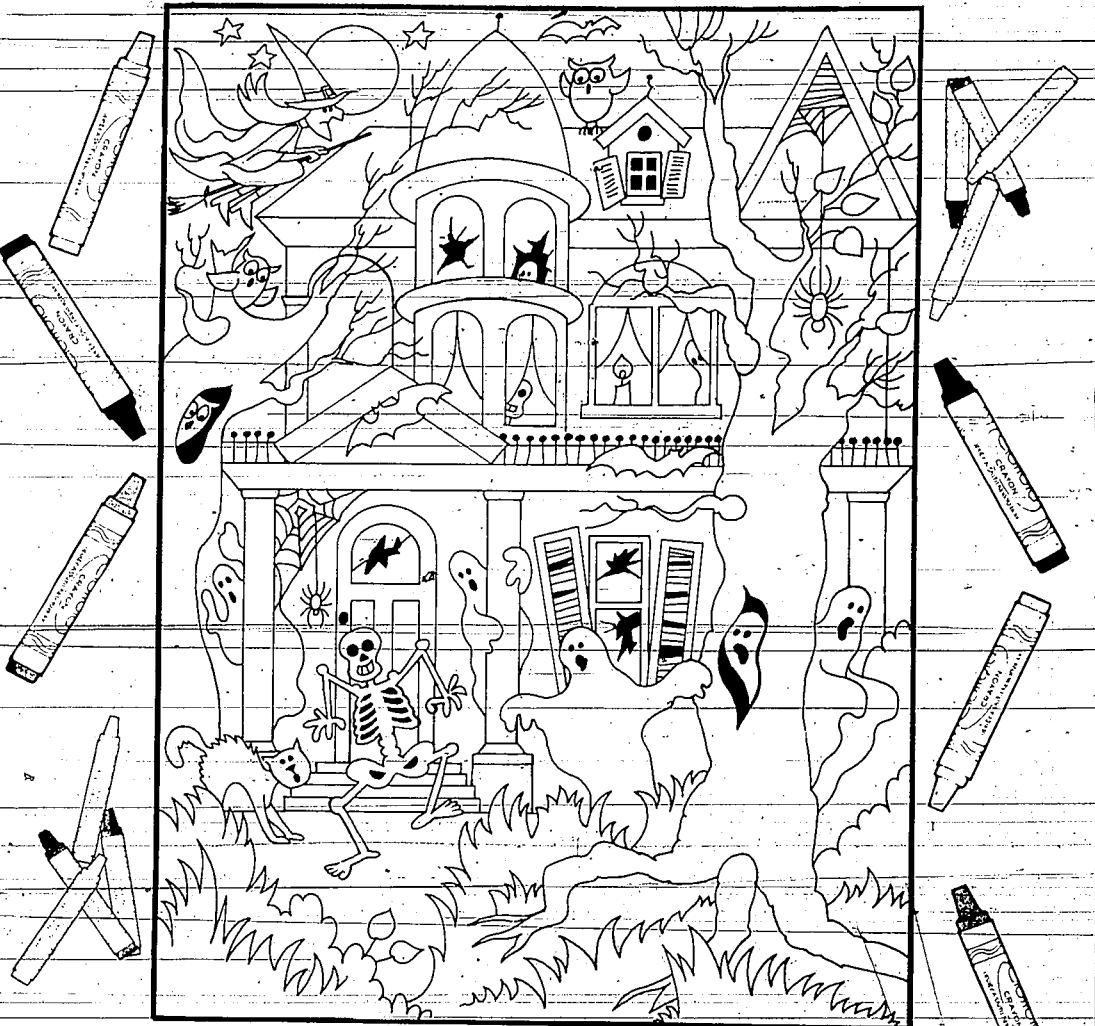

Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael Ross replied: "They say this case is a tragedy. The tragedy is that Senator Eagleton had to come into court, read what he read and deny it."

Eagleton Wednesday read a note written by Mrs. Weigand on yellow paper, and found in a briefcase seized from Poludniak and Mrs. Weigand when they were arrested by the FBI Aug. 3.

The note said: "The senator is bisexual, if not totally gay," a charge Eagleton emphatically denied.

Black judge warned about SLC sniper

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — The FBI warned black Mayor Richard Arrington that he could be the target of an at-large sniper, told the Alabama's first black federal judge Friday he too could be.

The warning prompted the city to assign three bodyguards to Arrington, but a spokesman for U.S. District Court Judge U.W. Clemon said the city had not taken similar precautions.

"Our routine hasn't changed and as far as I know it won't," said law clerk Herb Masie.

FBI special agent Joseph Ross said Arrington and Clemon were warned that Joseph Paul Franklin, a drifter suspected in the sniper slayings of two black joggers and the shooting of civil rights leader Vernon Jordan, could return to his home state of Alabama.

Ross said the two were warned because of their "high profile" as black public officials.

"It was just to let them know that he could come floating through here," Ross said. "He used to live here, but that is about the extent of it. The mere fact that this man had lived in Birmingham before prompted us to warn them."

Franklin has been charged with violating the civil rights of two black men who were shot and killed Aug. 20 as they jogged with two white women in Salt Lake City.

He also is wanted for questioning in sniper slayings in five other cities and the attempted assassination of Jordan, director of the National Urban League.

Franklin, a 30-year-old Mobile native who lived in a Birmingham boarding house in 1977, escaped Sept. 25 from police in Florence, Ky. At the time of his arrest, police found in his car a high-powered rifle of the same caliber used to gun down Jordan. Ballistics tests, however, revealed it was not the same weapon.

Franklin's sister, Marilyn Garzan of Montgomery, has said he had belonged to the Ku Klux Klan, the American Nazi Party and the white supremacist National State's Rights Party.

The FBI has said it believes Franklin is a loner and is not part of a conspiracy or organization.

Arrington, the city's first black mayor, has had threats made on his life before and until recently was under constant police guard. The FBI warning prompted Police Chief Bill Myers to reassign three bodyguards to the mayor.

Clemons a former state senator who was sworn in as Alabama's first black federal judge last month.

Nazis deny paramilitary allegations

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — American Nazi leader Harold A. Covington Friday denied allegations that racists are trained in warfare tactics in North Carolina — but he did say Nazis and other groups engage in target practice for defensive purposes.

"The rumors that we have some sort of panzer division socked in the woods are ridiculous," said Covington, leader of the National Socialist Party of America.

A report by the Jewish Anti-Defamation League, released in Dallas said paramilitary camps and weapons caches have been established by the Nazis and the Ku Klux Klan in six states. The organization said the camps pose a threat of armed uprisings against blacks, Jews and other minorities.

The League said racists are being trained on a farm near Benson, N.C., owned by Glenn Miller, head of the Nazi Party in Johnston County and a former Green Beret sergeant.

Covington said Nazis and other groups have used Miller's land 2 1/2 miles south of Raleigh for target practice, but the claim that military training is being conducted there is baseless.

"We have people who have land in rural areas," he said. "Periodically we go out to these people's farms, and there are others besides Mr. Miller's, and practice with our weapons because we believe in white people being armed and we believe in them knowing what to do with their arms so they don't shoot their feet off."

Covington said the Nazis do have an armed force called the Storm Troop, but members only provide protection for Nazi meetings and rallies.

"It is a purely defensive force," he said. "We are not planning on blowing up poor little (black) kids in Atlanta or whatever they are accusing us of now."

Johnston County authorities say routine surveillance of activities on the farm have turned up no evidence of a training camp.

Covington said the Anti-Defamation League's claim about military training is based more on its own financial situation than the truth.

"The Jews are running out of funds as they want to pull up the great big Nazi scare," he said.

The Anti-Defamation League said that in addition to the North Carolina farm, paramilitary training camps are located in Alabama, Connecticut, Illinois and Texas. The organization also said California has a Klan distribution center for instructional manuals and handbooks on terrorism and guerrilla warfare.

Billy faces new Libyan mess

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New Republic magazine said Friday Billy Carter received $50,000 from Libya that he has not made public, and also held a secret meeting with Yassar Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Carter denied both the allegations in a conversation with the New York Times.

He has told both the Justice Department and Congress in sworn statements that he received only $220,000 from the regime of Moammar Khadafy. He said he has met with a fiery Palestinian leader named George Habash, but never with Arafat himself.

The New Republic cited one of Khadafy's Italian agents, Michele Papa, as its main source, and quoted him as saying Carter demanded and received another $50,000 when he made his first trip to Libya in 1978.

Papa also confirmed to our investigator what we had been told by a top Western intelligence source: That Billy had several meetings with Palestinian leaders while in Libya, including Arafat and Habash, the magazine said.

The article was written for the New Republic by Arnald de Borchgrave, former Newsweek correspondent, and Michael Ledeen, executive editor of the Washington Quarterly.

If the allegation of the additional cash payment is proved accurate, it could mean Billy Carter submitted false statements to the Justice Department when he registered as a foreign agent for Libya July 14.

Sources told UPI last week that investigators who reviewed Billy's statements have found no evidence this far to warrant a criminal prosecution.

It appeared, from the New Republic story, it would be difficult for investigators to verify the new allegation of the $50,000 payment.

Billy and his friends made their first trip to Tripoli in 1973, and the New Republic quoted Mario Leanza telling the Libyan ambassador in Rome "that they would not continue their trip unless the Libyans came up with $50,000 above and beyond the money already provided to cover traveling expenses."

A Record Matching Munich

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

Sen. Henry Jackson, a pillar of sanity in matters that relate to the national defense, has been touring Idaho in support of the re-election campaign of Sen. Frank Church. Read that one and weep.

You can look at it statistically; if statistics are your paper doll. During Church's tenure there have been 60 important Senate votes on matters directly related to defense: procurement, research, development; programs involving the Trident, the long-range Tomahawk, cruise missiles, F-14s, marine carriers, XMI tanks — the paraphernalia of such strength as is needed to permit firmness in the development of our foreign policy. Frank Church voted against the military requests 49 times. On 45 of those votes, Senator Jackson voted against Church.

Now, senators belonging to the same party have often disagreed, but regular, systematic, obsessive neglect of the military is a serious delinquency in the eyes of Senator Jackson, or so he tells us. But there he is, in Idaho, arguing for the reelection of Frank Church when the alternative is Steven Symms, who has voted on Jackson's side on the question of the military on virtually every occasion.

What does Frank Church have that Symms doesn't? He is a Democrat, and the question arises: Is Scoop Jackson more concerned that the Democrats should amass a majority, than that the Soviets should amass a preponderant military machine? Somebody ought to ask him that. As a matter of fact, I will.

Glowing For Fidel

If statistics bore you, what about a politician's gullibility? In 1977 Frank Church went to Cuba, and Romeo never said to Juliet sweeter things than Frank Church had to say about Fidel Castro. Castro took three days off from torturing the Cuban people and rejecting appeals to free such as Huber Matos, in order to give Church a personally escorted tour of the Cuban fortress over which Castro presides. At the end he gave Church gifts, including special cigars, not otherwise available, and said handsome things about him. Frank Church glowed. "Castro has given me three days of his time and I leave Cuba in the belief that I have found a friend."

The senator, who is now the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, said about Castro: "I found his views to be reasonable; objective and surprisingly moderate. (He) is a man of dignity with a great sense of justice." To say this about a totalitarian 17 years after he came to power, about a communist of such studied cruelty as to manage to get himself denounced even by Jean Paul Sartre, reduces Frank Church to moral idiocy. Does Senator Jackson really want as head of the Foreign Relations Committee someone who has acted as altar boy for Fidel Castro?

Senator Jackson warned that the loss of Southeast Asia would have repercussions throughout the world. He was right. Why did we lose Southeast Asia? History will point to one piece of legislation as decisive. The Church-Case Amendment, which specified that the U.S. take "no military action over or on the ground, or in the air, or off the shores, of Laos, Cambodia or South Vietnam." The amendment in question might have specified merely that no U.S. ground troops would be used, but that was not enough for Frank Church. So, in 1975, the North Vietnamese rolled down.

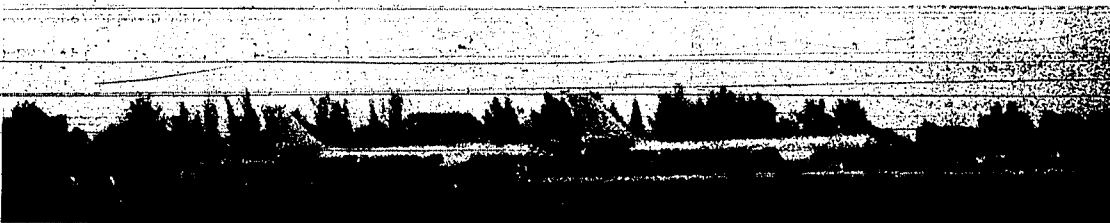

Frank Church is the godfather of the boat people, of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia, of the extinction of Laos. All that, and chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. It must not be supposed that Frank Church is lazy; he didn't satisfy himself to lay waste to Southeast Asia and do his best to gut the American military. He singlehandedly contributed — through his investigating subcommittee — more than any other man to the deterioration of the CIA and the collapse of American counterintelligence capabilities. Did Senator Jackson talk about that in Idaho?

Senator Church now is going about the state of Idaho like Paul Revere, warning about communism in the Caribbean, and all those other dreadful threats. "General" Church; they call the man who is running for reelection — so that, on returning to Washington, he can resume his career as Neville Chamberlain.

Those who know Senator Jackson will refuse to believe that, in his heart of hearts, he desires Frank Church, at this moment in history, to occupy so critical a seat in Congress.

of wielding an ax and giving her father 40 whacks—and her mother 41 in one of the country's best known unsolved murders. Notoriety never her drove her from her hometown of Fall River, Mass. Instead she bought Maplecraft, a 13-room Victorian house where she lived for 33 years. The house was just bought for $60,000 by a Massachusetts couple who promise to retain its historical integrity.

PHILASTORY

The next time a World Series is played in Philadelphia, the visiting team may have added expenses. So said Revenue Commissioner Eugene Clett, after the city was slapped with a lawsuit claiming Philadelphia did not apply enforcement of its wage tax equally "since visiting sports clubs and musicians did not pay the local wage tax." "I'm surprised they haven't brought this argument up before," Clett said. "Why did they wait until I became commissioner?"

Honeymoon will be delayed

THOMASTON, Maine (UPI) — It was a quiet wedding. A very quiet wedding. There was no organ, no strains of "Here Comes the Bride." There was no reception, no champagne, no rice-throwing. The names of the bride and her new husband are secret. The groom is going a stretch for armed robbery at the Maine State Prison. The bride, clad in a pretty street-length dress, was preceded down the aisle by her daughter from a previous marriage, who served as maid of honor. Her other two children were members of the wedding party. The Rev. Douglas C. Wright of Damariscotta, an Orthodox Catholic priest, presided over the ceremony in a spare parole board hearing room. He brought with him an altar cloth, candles and crucifix, insisting the ceremony would be celebrated as would any conventional joining of two people in marriage. Acting Warden Donald Allen said the groom, serving his second sentence at the state's only maximum-security facility, began a four-year term April 2. His projected release date is Sept. 24, 1984, assuming he accumulates "good time," Allen said. "No parole is allowed under Maine's new criminal code, and Allen said the inmate can't be considered for a furlough until he's served one-third of his sentence. As for the traditional wedding night and honeymoon — "Not in the immediate future," Allen said. "They were allowed a few minutes to talk among themselves after the ceremony," Allen said.

Giraffe breeding set

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Four African giraffes will be on their way to the Baltimore zoo, two of them females who have a date with the only "proven breeder" in the country. The zoo already has four females and one male giraffe. They will be joined by a male and two females from Los Angeles and a male from Philadelphia. All are of the rare Angolan variety. "The Los Angeles zoo was particularly interested in sending the females because we have the only bull giraffe in the country who is a proven breeder," zoo curator of mammals Sandy Kempske said Friday. The bull was the father of the last Angolan calf to be born in the U.S., a calf born in 1977 in Baltimore. The four new giraffes will be sent in a special climate-controlled tractor-trailer, built low to the ground to handle its lengthy passengers. The city has allocated $5,000 for transportation costs. When the animals arrive — within 10 days or two weeks — Baltimore will have all the Angolan giraffes in the country in its zoo. One of the males will become a permanent resident of the Baltimore African plains area, a newly renovated section of the zoo designed to replicate conditions in southern Africa.

Milk from 'contented' cows

BETHLEHEM, South Africa (UPI) — Farmers here are warned to watch what their animals eat, following a report that herds of dairy cows and horses have discovered marijuana. The Department of Agriculture said Friday. The department issued its warning after a farm was forced to shut down production for three days when a herd of dairy cows wandered into an illegal marijuana field and grazed on the plants. The cows walked around aimlessly for three days and several horses that joined in the pot party stood stiff-legged in their paddocks — "not to be moved by beating or an extended carrot," the department said.

What's what

Buttermilk least liked food, brains second

Q. What sort of commonly known food is least liked by the most people?
A. Buttermilk. The surveys repeatedly show that. Second on the least liked list is brains, it's said, possibly because of availability. You see a lot more buttermilk than brains—Other least-liked items—in descending order—are oysters, eggplant, turnips, clams and parsnips.

Q. If the buck deer lose their antlers every Spring, how come the forest floor isn't covered with them?
A. Porcupines eat them. So do rabbits. Nice, too.

Q. What was the first building owned by the U. S. Government?
A. The mint in Philadelphia. Built in 1782. Might have guessed that. A place to manufacture money. The priorities of government have always been predictable.

FDA notes concern over sponge use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration is concerned about the safety of sponges being promoted as a "natural" substitute for tampons in the wake of the toxic shock syndrome scare, a spokesman said Friday.

The agency has directed its enforcement officers to begin checking places selling sponges as tampon alternatives to make sure the products are in compliance with the law, officials said.

According to the FDA, some stores and small mail order houses have started selling sea sponges as a "natural" and reusable alternative to tampons.

The agency recently advised women wishing to avoid the risk of the newly discovered toxic shock syndrome to stop using conventional tampons altogether — or at least to use them only sparingly during menstruation.

The syndrome strikes women during their menstrual periods, but its exact mechanism, as well as the role tampons play, remains a mystery.

"The main safety concern (about sponges) is that they are reusable, and that raises some hygiene questions," the FDA spokesman said Friday.

He said if a sponge is labeled as being for tampon use, its seller must have filed for a permit with the FDA to market it as a new medical device. Such a permit system allows the FDA to check for safety.

No such permits have been filed, the spokesman said. He added, however, that it is possible the sponges currently being sold are simply labeled as sponges and thus remain outside the law's coverage.

He said there is no way of knowing whether sponges are any longer than conventional tampons, so long as the exact way toxic shock syndrome works remains unsolved.

Kosygin was 'stable' factor

young at heart

MOSCOW (UPI) — Alexei Kosygin's decision to retire from the Communist Party Politburo will remove a "stabilizing factor" from the Soviet Union's real ruling body, Kremlin watchers said Friday.

Kosygin, 76, and suffering from a severe heart ailment, stepped down as premier Thursday and handed control of the Soviet government to his longtime deputy, Nikolai Tikhonov.

Kremlin watchers agreed the appointment of Tikhonov, a 75-year-old disciple of President Leonid Brezhnev, will have little immediate effect on the day-to-day workings of Soviet government.

However, in his letter of resignation Kosygin also asked to leave the 15-member Politburo, the real power in the country.

"Kosygin was a tremendously important force on the Politburo as a stabilizing factor," said one Kremlin watcher. "His departure from the Politburo gives them a problem much more severe than his resignation as premier."

In the ultra-secret Politburo proceedings, observers speculated, Kosygin would have been a figure that those disagreeing with Brezhnev could gather around.

In China, the official news agency said the departure of Kosygin meant the country had officially returned to the one-man rule unseen since Nikita Khrushchev was ousted from power in 1964.

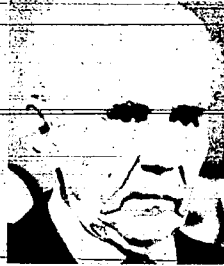

Sino-Soviet analysts said the resignation of Kosygin, who Peking considered "moderate" while Brezhnev was a hardliner, would make it even more difficult for the two Communist giants to heal their 20-year breach.

The official Xinhua news agency broadly hinted that Brezhnev had a role in his resignation, saying the premier "was reported frequently to have differed from Brezhnev on certain domestic and foreign policies since 1968."

The Supreme Soviet, which approved Kosygin's resignation and Tikhonov's elevation as premier, does not technically have the power to remove him from the Politburo.

That can be done only by a plenary session of the Communist Party, which is not expected to meet until February. A plenary session of the party's Central Committee had concluded Tuesday, two days before Kosygin's resignation was announced.

sense of stability

Rising to top power circle is a slow process for Russian rulers

MOSCOW (UPI) — The retirement of 76-year-old Alexei Kosygin and his replacement by a man only one year younger reveals a basic fact about the man who governs the Soviet Union — they are old.

And for an ambitious young or middle-age man, positions of power can come as slowly as molasses in a Moscow winter.

Even with the appointment this week of Mikhail S. Gorbachev, at 49 a relative youngster, the average age of the ruling Communist Party Politburo is 69.1 years.

The Politburo members with whom Kosygin served since 1956 are falling victim to the inevitable process of time. Gorbachev, 20 years younger than most of the men he will work with, represents the "new generation" of leadership that is likely to play a decisive role in the policies and politics of the Soviet Union after the Leonid Brezhnev era ends.

Nikolai Tikhonov, who was named to replace Kosygin as premier, is himself 75 and most analysts think his term in office will be relatively short certainly nowhere near the 16 years Kosygin headed the government.

Thus, the man named to Tikhonov's old job of first deputy premier has a good chance of moving up to the No. 2 job in the Soviet Union in less than a decade, possibly less.

Much attention is on Vladimir I. Dolgikh, 55, a member of the Party Central Committee and one of the unvarnished success stories of recent years.

Dolgikh built his career in Siberia and has been given much of the credit for the excellent oil production in that frozen, barren area of the Soviet Union. His reputation as a doer and a modernizer may raise eyebrows among older communist leaders, but those same qualities could make him a likely prospect for running the government in the post-Brezhnev year.

Another man drawing attention as a possible vice premier is Mikhail S. Solomentsev, premier of the Russian Federation. Russia is only one of 15 republics that make up the sprawling Soviet Union, but because it is the largest and includes Moscow and Leningrad, Solomentsev has been more in the public eye than any of the other republic party leaders.

The third possibility Western experts are closely studying is Veniamin Dymshits, 70. His age may work against him, but he possesses another asset — he is Jewish by birth.

That ethnic oddity may propel him past the other candidates in an attempt by Soviet leaders to discredit charges they are anti-Semitic. Dymshits is already one of 11 deputy prime ministers, and his elevation to first deputy would cause the least amount of political stir, analysts said.

But because he is a septuagenarian, his appointment would bring the Soviet government back in its traditional quandary — how to bring young talent to the top for needed leadership experience without threatening unduly the old men already at the pinnacle of power.

Court alters Polish union legal charter

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — A Warsaw court registered Poland's largest labor coalition as a legal union Friday but unilaterally changed its charter to delete its right to call a strike.

The court also amended the union's charter to affirm the guiding role of the Communist Party. Union officials angrily rejected both changes and it appeared that Poland was headed for another confrontation between the workers and the state.

But Poland's top labor leader, Lech Walesa, indicated he would appeal the court's decisions before considering further action such as another strike.

A statement read by Walesa called the court's amendment of the union charter a gross violation of the Gdansk agreement that gave the workers the right to strike and form unions independent of the Communist Party. It said the court's action was "without precedence" and "arouses indignation."

The court's decision, announced by Judge Zdzislaw Jankowski after a four-hour hearing, deleted that part of the charter affirming the right of Walesa's Solidarnosc labor coalition to call its 8 million members out on strike.

In its place, the court inserted the controversial clause affirming the Communist Party's leading role in Polish affairs.

Walesa appeared outside the gray sandstone courthouse in downtown Warsaw and told a crowd of 5,000 flag-waving supporters that Solidarnosc rejected the court's amendments and would ignore them.

"This is not what we want. We are not satisfied with this," Walesa said. "We shall be guided by the charter without the changes made by the court. The court has its charter and the union has its own."

The crowd responded with one voice. "Walesa, Walesa, Walesa," the workers chanted in unison.

At a later news conference at Warsaw radio plant, Walesa said the union will appeal the changes, which he called "unilateral and arbitrary."

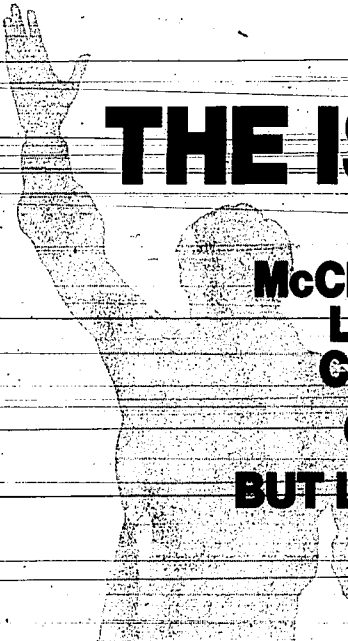

"An arbitrary change of the charter constitutes an undermining of the agreement (in Gdansk) and of the dialogue between the people and the authorities," he said, reading from a prepared statement.

The Gdansk agreement, signed Aug. 31 by Walesa and the government, legalized the right to strike and gave workers the right to establish independent trade unions.

In his ruling, Judge Koscielniak said the charter was not perfect but that "nonregistration of it would not have met the social expectations."

He apparently was referring to threats by some labor leaders to call a strike if the union was not registered.

THE ISSUE: C.I.A.

McCLURE: "C.I.A. DESTRUCTION LARGELY THE RESULT OF CHURCH INVESTIGATION." CHURCH CRIES, "FOUL!" BUT LET'S LOOK AT THE RECORD.

You should know the facts. It is generally accepted by those in the intelligence community as well as prominent members of his own party that Frank Church's Senate Investigation of 1975-76 severely hurt the Central Intelligence Agency.

THE CHURCH RECORD AGAINST THE C.I.A.:

IDAHO STATESMAN — Nov. 21, 1975: The chairman (Frank Church) of the Senate Intelligence Committee said Thursday that C.I.A. Director William E. Colby's contention that the panel was endangering the lives of agents named in its report was "absurd." . . . Church said . . . that Colby's appeal was just an attempt to block public release of the report, which Colby and President Ford have consistently opposed . . . Sen. Frank Church went on to read to reporters the 10 names Colby wanted deleted . . . He (Colby) said publication of the names would leave the individuals and their families open to retaliation by what he called "irrational groups."

CALDWELL NEWS-TRIBUNE — Nov. 8, 1975: The White House has accused Sen. Frank Church of headline hunting in disclosing a government operation that has involved reading international communications for a quarter of a century. . . . Nessen said the disclosure may have damaged foreign intelligence operations. He said "the President regrets that the Senate Select Committee has publicly discussed the activity known as 'OPERATION SHAMROCK.'"

WASHINGTON POST — April 19, 1979 — by Donald Morris: . . . Church's notion of a secret is a ticket to be traded for a headline — our secrets or those of our friends. The Golden Sheep Drop Award — for the most cynical and cheapest shot for personal political profit — goes this month to Sen. Frank Church. . . . Every country in the world has a few small items it would like to keep under lock and key in the family jewel chest . . . What Frank Church did, simply to get himself on the front page for a day, was to reach out and flip over the Saudi hole cards for all the world to see, while the hand was actually being played.

PRESIDENT CARTER: . . . has called for the removal of "unwarranted restraints on America's ability to collect intelligence." (U.S. News & World Report — 2/4/80, p. 75)

SENATE MAJORITY LEADER ROBERT BYRD: . . . believes "Congress went too far in condemning the actions of the C.I.A. The pendulum swung too far and demoralized the C.I.A. and restrained it from some of the necessary activities it must conduct in the interests of our national security." (Ibid. 2/11/80, p. 46)

MELVIN LAIRD (former Secretary of Defense): "We should maintain armed forces stronger than those of any potential enemy. But without an equally strong intelligence service, our nation can never be secure."

WILLIAM E. COLBY (then C.I.A. Director): Mr. Colby states in his book Honorable Men, "It was clear that the main cause of his (Mr. Welch's) death was the sensational and hysterical way the C.I.A. investigations had been handled and trumpeted around the world. . . ." (Pg. 451)

Now — after more than four years of rebuilding, experts content that the intelligence agency is still not operating effectively . . . witness Iran, Cuba and Afghanistan.

A 1974 VOTE: Even before what he called an "objective investigation," Frank Church supported and voted for an amendment in the Senate to "abolish all clandestine or covert operations by the C.I.A." His own party colleagues (in control) deserted him on this one when only 16 other senators supported the amendment.

THIS FLIES IN THE FACE of Frank Church's statement that he was only concerned about "abuses against American citizens."

Iraq raises its flag over 'City of Blood'

BASRA, Iraq (UPI) — Iraq claimed Friday to have finally captured the Iranian port city of Khurranshahr, raising its flag over the city center following a week of fighting in the streets that left hundreds of casualties.

But Iran denied the fall of Khurranshahr and said "hand-to-hand and house-to-house" fighting was still continuing in the city, a major objective of the Iraqi thrust since the war began 33 days ago.

It was not the first time Iraq claimed to have captured the city, although its latest communiques sounded more certain than previous claims.

The Iraqis also tightened their siege around Abadan, the oil refinery port just south of Khurranshahr, and battered the inland provincial capital of Ahwaz with artillery fire, military communiques said.

An Iraqi communique claimed its forces downed a total of 10 Iranian warplanes Friday during attacks on military bases near Fao, 50 miles south of Basra.

Iraqi warplanes bombed targets in Khuzestan province, destroying a railway line between Ahwaz and the Gulf port of Bandar-Isfahpur, and hitting oil depots in Ahwaz. They also strafed Iranian troops fleeing from Khurranshahr to Abadan, the communique said.

Tehran Radio claimed Iranian planes knocked out 15 Iraqi tanks. It said artillery and mortar bombardments of Abadan damaged several houses, and an electricity power station, but there was no word of casualties.

But it repeated Iran's claim it still held Khurranshahr.

"All forms of resistance have been liquidated," the Iraqi battlefield commander at Khurranshahr said.

"Yes, the enemy has been defeated and the Iraqi flag now flutters on the city's main squares and buildings, declaring this victory," an Iraqi communique said.

"Enemy casualties have been left on the battlefield. Enemy casualties are in the hundreds. Our forces have imposed a total and complete siege on the city of Muhammura (Khurranshahr) and defeated all the pockets of enemy resistance — and forever," the communique said.

The Iranian Pars news agency said Iraq artillery also shelled Ahwaz, 70 miles northeast of Abadan and the capital of Iran's oil-rich Khuzestan province. It said the city's defenders fired back and "silenced" the Iraqi guns.

Pars also quoted an official in Shush as saying the region near Naft-e Sa'id, 20 miles further north of Ahwaz, was attacked by Iraqi fighter planes.

In Baghdad, an Iraqi armed forces communique said Defense Minister Gen. Adnan Khairallah had telephoned President Saddam Hussein to tell him all "resistant pockets" had been mopped up in Khurranshahr, a key port with a pre-war population of 150,000 on the disputed Shatt-al-Arab waterway dividing Iran and Iraq.

The communique said control of Khurranshahr enabled Iraqi forces to tighten their stranglehold on Abadan, 10 miles to the south, "and thus Abadan is now under a complete siege from all sides."

But Tehran Radio quoted a Pars report from Abadan as saying in "the City of Blood (Khurranshahr) "hand-to-hand and house-to-house fighting is still continuing, and the enemy is trying to enter the city from its eastern side and approach the bridge."

"However, the brave fighters of Islam... have prevented the advance of Iraqi mercenaries to other parts of the city," the radio said.

The radio, monitored by the BBC in London, said "the Iraqis were also continuing to subject various parts of Abadan, especially Bazargan district, to artillery fire."

Gas leak destroys school

Thousands mourn death of children

ORTUELLA, Spain (UPI) — Mourners gathered by the tens of thousands in the cavernous workshop of an iron foundry Friday for the funeral of 48 children and three adults killed in a gas explosion that destroyed the mining town's primary school.

Psychiatrists met during the morning with the families of the children who died Thursday, offering them sedatives to help them prepare for "the emotional ordeal of the funeral."

But as young pallbearers carried in the first of the small white coffins of the 5 to 11-year-old victims, black-clad parents surged forward in a hysteria of grief that delayed the mass for almost an hour.

A steady rain beat on the metal roof and skylight of the 320-foot-long shed, drowning out the voice of the bishop of Bilbao and the psalms of the choir.

Virtually all 8,000 townspeople were there, along with thousands more from Bilbao and other industrial towns that surround the provincial capital. Special trains carried mourners to Ortuella and roads leading into the town were clogged with cars.

Town officials estimated that 80,000 to 80,000 mourners came, some abandoning their cars in the traffic jam that stretched the entire 9 miles from Bilbao.

Catholics reaffirm ban on pill

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Roman Catholic prelates completed the major work of their Fifth World Synod of Bishops Friday, approving a list of proposals that affirm church teaching against artificial birth control, abortion and divorce.

The proposals are being submitted to Pope John Paul II and the bishops said not to be made public whether they will ever be made public.

The 216 bishops and cardinals from around the world formally conclude their synod today with lavish mass ceremonies led by the pope in the Vatican's Sistine Chapel and St. Peter's Basilica.

Cardinal G. Emmett Carter of Toronto summed up the work of the month-long gathering by saying that church doctrine on the issues of birth control, abortion and divorce and remarriage were basic to its nature.

"We believe the church's teaching, substantially in its fundamental values, is not changeable," the cardinal told reporters.

The prime case in point, he said, is "Humanae Vitae" (Of Human Life), the 1968 encyclical in which the late Pope Paul VI banned all artificial forms of birth control.

Carter said that while the birth control ban cannot be softened in any form, it can be taught more effectively and better understood.

"We feel that where we failed is in not talking a language that people could understand," Carter said of the church's problem in winning compliance with the contraceptive ban.

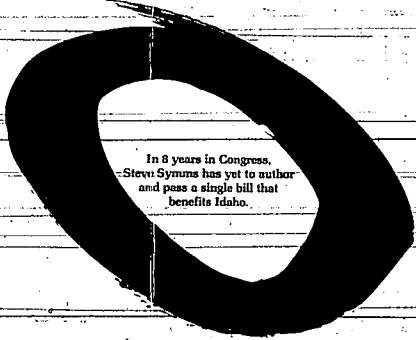

The bishops found out just how serious a problem the birth control ban is causing when Archbishop John Quinn of San Francisco told them at the opening of the synod that an estimated 80 percent of U.S. Roman Catholic women were practicing some kind of banned contraception.

The Canadian cardinal said that while all the bishops accepted the birth control ban, they soundly rejected the position of conservative prelates that the subject of how to teach it to a skeptical public was closed once and for all.

He said the bishop's call for what he described as a "more pastoral approach" to those who do not accept the ban was among the series of proposals the synod is presenting to the pope.

Other bishops confirmed that in addition to the birth control ban, their proposals affirm the church's unequivocal condemnation of abortion and uphold its stand that priestly performed marriages cannot be dissolved.

Kim appeals sentence to Korean court

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — With a death sentence hanging over his head, dissent leader Kim Dae-jung went before a military appeals court Friday to plead for a reversal of his conviction on sedition charges.

As he did at his first trial, Kim denied the government charges against him and said he did not fear death.

"I always tried to live faithfully," Kim told the five-man court. "Now I am under a death sentence. No one would want to die, but I don't fear death," he said.

The former presidential candidate, widely regarded as the most popular politician in South Korea, denied charges that he was a Communist or that he plotted to overthrow the government.

"I have had absolutely no plot or plan for rebellion," he said, denying charges he instigated violent anti-government street protests earlier this year. "All my life I firmly believe any violent methods would only bring misfortune."

He said his aim in leading the peaceful opposition against the regime of the late President Park Chung-hee was not to seize power himself but restore democracy to South Korea.

Kim was arrested May 17 during nationwide street demonstrations by students demanding an end to martial law and democratic reforms. His arrest led to ripe days of bloody riots and imprisonment in his home provincial capital of Kwangju.

Idaho

Board requests $310 million

Amendment may not protect land

BOISE (UPI) — An amendment to the Idaho Constitution that would direct the state to manage public lands for a variety of uses would protect Idahoans from the threat of a sale of public lands, the chairman of State Our Public Lands said Friday.

"The supporters of the Sagebrush Rebellion are trying to shore up their position," said Ted Trueblood, Nampa. "But their proposal does not say the lands should remain in public ownership with continued public access for hunting, fishing or other outdoor recreation.

"It would still require a majority on the state Land Board or the Legislature, only once, at any time in the future, to sell off our lands and roll us out one of our most valuable possessions. That is, the freedom to use these lands for all kinds of purposes."

Thursday, Sagebrush Rebellion Inc. President Vern Ravenscroft presented to the Land Board an amendment that would direct it to manage public lands acquired from the federal government for the "maximum possible public benefit."

Havenscroft said under the amendment, some public lands held or acquired by the state could be managed for "multiple use," including grazing, hunting, fishing and recreation.

Trueblood said Ravenscroft and "the clients who pay him to lobby for them" are not interested in protecting the public's uses of public lands.

"The primary effort of Ravenscroft's group so far has been to convert public lands in southern Idaho to private ownership for irrigation development," Trueblood said.

He said Ravenscroft was paid by one client to lobby the Legislature to allow Silver Creek in Blaine County to be used for a fish farm.

"The leader of this movement in Idaho willingly accepted money to lobby for the destruction of one of the finest trout fishing streams in the West," Trueblood said. "That tells us something about his real concern for the interests of fishermen, hunters and recreation users of the public land."

Trueblood also said that Sen. Art Manley, D-Coeur d'Alene, proposed a constitutional amendment for multiple use of state land in this year's legislative session.

"Four of the five members of the state Land Board opposed it and the majority on the Senate Resources Committee refused to put it out of committee," he said.

POCATELLO (UPI) — The State Board of Education will ask for $310 million to support Idaho's public schools next year with $194.7 million of the total coming from state government revenues.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans said most of the requested 10 percent increase over this year's spending for classroom programs will come primarily from state funds since local property tax certification will remain about the same under implementation of the 1 percent property tax initiative.

Another $23.9 million will be requested for the teacher's retirement program and $33,700 for unemployment insurance.

The total request for the school, retirement and unemployment programs was set at $334.4 million from all federal, state, county and local sources of revenue.

The request includes a $41 million increase from the state level.

Evans said he anticipated criticism from those who felt the request would be too little or too much and had tried "to find some way between the two criticisms, recognizing we will get some of both."

He said the budget would basically maintain the current level of operation in view of the stable elementary and secondary enrollment and con-ains no new programs. He described it as a "reasonable and responsible request."

The request will be submitted to Gov. John Evans and the Idaho Legislature.

The board, closing its two-day meeting in Pocatello, also received fall semester higher education enrollment reports showing 30,818 students enrolled at the state's higher education institutions and junior colleges. At this time last year, 29,797 students had enrolled.

Another 3,249 students are enrolled at the state's six area vocational-technical schools.

Phony auditors found in Idaho

BOISE (UPI) — Several eastern Idaho businesses have been approached by phony state tax auditors during the past few weeks, the Idaho Tax Commission reported today.

Attempts have been made by the fake auditors to obtain records, information and money, a commission spokesman said.

The commission, which did not name the businesses involved, said authorized state tax auditors, compliance officers and other officials are issued special identification cards.

The commission said individuals and businesses approached by anyone saying he represents the commission should demand to see the person's identification card.

Private hospital referendum not understood, poll shows

NAMPA (UPI) — Results of a statewide public opinion survey released Friday indicate that a referendum to allow non-profit, religious-sponsored health facilities to borrow money at lower interest rates is poorly understood by the voters but still should pass.

Released by Sen. Leon Swenson, R-Nampa, who chairs the Twelve for Twelve Committee, which supports the referendum, with Sen. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow, the poll was conducted Oct. 7-14 in 16 Idaho counties.

The poll showed that while 26.6 percent of those interviewed had heard that two referendums will be on the Nov. 4 ballot, only 1.2 percent could explain what they were. However, when the health facilities referendum was briefly explained, 25 percent indicated they had seen or heard something about it.

Asked how they would vote on the referendum, 39.7 percent said they would support the proposal, 10.9 percent said they would vote against it and 49.4 percent were undecided.

Based on the survey results, Swenson said the polling firm reported that the favorable vote should range from 52.2 percent to 76.4 percent with the median at 64.4 percent, based on projections of the undecided respondents.

The referendum will amend the Idaho Constitution and enable non-profit, religious-sponsored health facilities to borrow money for capital expansion at the same low interest rates as other hospitals.

Olmstead rebuts Evans on pay hike

BOISE (UPI) — House Speaker Ralph Olmstead retaliated Friday against Gov. John Evans, who in a speech Thursday blamed various state government woes on the Idaho Legislature.

"It is evident that the governor is again shooting from the hip," Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, said in Boise.

Evans told a gathering of the Idaho Public Employees Association that he would fight for a 9.5 percent pay boost for state workers, even though he feared the Legislature would oppose and likely defeat his efforts.

The governor, a Democrat, called the Republican-dominated Legislature the main stumbling block in front of smoothing state government.

"The Legislature has responsibly demonstrated its obligation" to pay state employees salaries comparable to those received by their private-sector counterparts, Olmstead said.

Utah will be warned of radiation leaks

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah Health Department Director James O. Benson said today that U.S. Energy officials have agreed to notify state authorities if radiation again leaks from the Nevada Nuclear Test Site north of Las Vegas.

Benson said the state's manager Mahlon Gates agreed to notify Utah, Arizona, California and Nevada authorities when radiation escapes.

Notification will be made even if none of the radioactivity may be expected to get out of the test site grounds, Benson said.

Gates made the promise in reply to a letter from Mason, who was concerned that Utah officials were not told of a recent radiation leak following an underground nuclear blast at the site.

Gates told Mason that his former policy regarding notification, which included only Nevada officials and the news media, will be changed to include authorities in surrounding states.

He also told the Utah health director that a detailed briefing on the monitoring and notification procedure will be conducted if Mason wants it.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A judge has denied a U.S. government claim for $1.9 million against the assets of the defunct Peoples Temple to offset part of the cost of returning more than 900 bodies of cult members who died in the jungles of Guyana almost two years ago.

San Francisco Superior Court Judge Ira Brown gave no reason for his ruling. The $1.9 million figure represented a compromise from the $4.5 million that the government originally demanded.

During a hearing Thursday, Brown instructed Robert Fabian, the attorney handling the assets, to vigorously fight the government's claim.

At a hearing last month, the judge told the government attorneys, "In the great scheme of things, this (the claim) looks like a small amount of money to the government, enough to keep it in paper goods for a day, if you're lucky."

"On the other hand, the money is of such importance to the survivors of the poor people who died in Guyana," said Brown, referring to the relatives who have filed almost 20 million claims against the Peoples Temple.

At the time of last month's hearing, Brown instructed the attorneys to return to Washington to seek approval to drop the claim entirely, but it still stood Thursday.

Lawyers for the relatives have opposed allowing the claim because they contend the government voluntarily went to Guyana to pick up the bodies of the men, women and children who died in the November-1978 murder-suicide ritual at Jonestown, the Rev. Jim Jones' jungle encampment.

By law, the government's claim has priority over all other claims on the Temple assets. Fabian said Thursday he could not distribute any of the money until the government claim has been settled.

Fabian said he now will have to go to federal court and fight the claim in a trial — and that he fears a large part of the assets will be consumed by attorney fees.

During the past two years, Fabian has gathered more than $7 million in assets from a number of countries where Jones instructed that the Peoples Temple money be deposited. Costs of administering the estate have run about $400,000 a year — all of it coming out of the assets.

Pumps try to save levees

HOLT, Calif. (UPI) — A score of huge pumps began clearing water eight feet deep Friday from 11,500 below-sea-level acres of rich farmland while farmers worried about further collapses of their rapidly weakening levees.

The work resulted in what was a new break would send water rushing into another 29,000 acres of the San Joaquin Delta, 50 miles east of San Francisco, force about 1,000 people from their homes and ruin more valuable farm crops grown on fertile peat.

A month ago, a levee break flooded 5,500 acres of Lower Jones Tract, its school and residences of 200 people, causing $14 million in damage. President Carter declared an emergency to authorize federal relief funds.

All that kept the water from pouring into 6,000 acres of Upper Jones Tract was an old Santa Fe Railroad embankment, 5.5 miles long, that never was intended to be a dike.

On Thursday, the embankment gave way under a 24-car freight train, spilling two 146-ton locomotives and a flat car into the breach and sending water rushing into Upper Jones.

The water eroded the base of 10-foot-high pilings that support a jet fuel line and an aqueduct system, both paralleling the embankment, but Friday they were surviving. The aqueduct delivers drinking water to 1.1 million people in the Oakland, Calif., area.

Dust, ash block view of volcano

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Winds ranging between 35 and 50 knots kicked up dust and ash from Mount St. Helens crater Friday, preventing a good view of the crater and hampering scientific work near the volcano.

Susan Russell-Robinson of the U.S. Geological Survey said aerial views Thursday indicated that the lava dome that squeezed through a hole in the floor of the crater remained unchanged in size.

She said the dome has started to sag and looks like an overbaked muffin.

The dome pushed up through the volcano's small "inner crater" following a three-day eruptive phase that started Oct. 16. It was the sixth major eruption since the volcano ended 127 years of dormancy last March and the fifth since the gigantic May 18 blast tore a cubic mile off the top of the mountain.

Ms. Russell-Robinson said the dome's sagging was first noticed Sunday evening, indicating the dome stopped growing that day.

Jury rejects suit concerning rape

HOUSTON (UPI) — A rape victim blamed a waterbed store for hiring a sex offender who lured her upstairs to show her some sheets and raped her on a waterbed. But a jury rejected her demand for $5 million damages.

A state district court jury Thursday decided Waterbeds by Aquarius was not liable to the victim for hiring the man convicted of attacking her on the store premises in July 1976.

The plaintiff said she came into the store in July 1976 looking for waterbed sheets and that Lawrence Daniel Calhoun, 47, lured her upstairs, threatened her with a shotgun, pushed her onto a waterbed and raped her.

The victim's lawyer argued Waterbeds by Aquarius was negligent in hiring Calhoun because he had a 1967 rape conviction on his record.

At his criminal trial, Calhoun said the woman, then a 20-year-old University of Houston student, agreed to sexual intercourse and became angry when he refused to steal a waterbed for her.

Payment made

MISSOULA, Mont. (UPI) — Idaho has received an interim payment of more than $5.6 million as its share of revenue from the sale and use of national forest products and services in the U.S. Forest Service's Northern Region during fiscal 1981.

By federal law, 25 percent of revenue the Forest Service collects from timber sales, grazing, recreation, mineral and land-use charges are returned to the states to use by the counties for schools and roads.

The interim payment is 75 percent of the projected payment based on estimated fiscal 1980 receipts. The states will receive the remainder of the funds in early December after actual receipts for fiscal 1980 have been computed. Idaho's estimated total payment is $7,413,396.

Republic cuts not felt here

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Republic Airlines' plans to cut some north-south flights to northwest cities beginning Dec. 1 will not affect service to Twin Falls, an airline spokesman said.

The bulk of the flight cuts planned by the Minneapolis-based airline involve flights in the Pacific Northwest, including one daily Eugene, Ore.-Boise-Denver flight and other north-south flights in 16 western cities.

The cutbacks had been planned by Hughes Airwest prior to the Oct. 1 acquisition of that airline by Republic. Republic is the only major carrier providing service to Twin Falls.

Republic spokesman Walter Hellman said the airline is eliminating its non-profitable routes while concentrating on increasing east-west flights.

"All we're really doing is just realigning service in a number of our markets and taking out excess service where there is no need for it," he said. "But we're not leaving any cities without more service than they can handle."

Presently, the airline consists of two separate north-south flight systems in the western and the north-central United States. By eliminating unprofitable north-south routes, the airline can free resources to develop more east-west flights, demonstrated by the airline's plan to inaugurate two transcontinental flights from New York to California on Dec. 1.

"That's the first real attempt at bridging the two systems and there will be more of that as we get further into the integration process," Hellman said.

Hellman said the airline welcomes plans to accelerate the Twin Falls airport runway extension project, saying it will give Republic more flexibility in the amount of service it can provide Twin Falls.

But he added the market demands will dictate the level of service for Twin Falls.

A proposal tentatively agreed to by Sun Valley city officials would pump an extra $60,000 into the project, allowing the extension to be completed in 14 months rather than three or four years as previously expected. The present runway length requires DC-9 jets, operated by Republic, to operate 80 percent full at certain times of year.

In other developments, the airline and the Air Line Employees Association have signed a contract agreement, thereby averting a strike by the union's 4,300 passenger service and clerical employees.

The ground employee group had voted to strike if no agreement was reached by next Thursday. Hellman said the union's rank-and-file membership is expected to ratify the contract before Nov. 14.

Employees involved in the negotiations did not include former employees of Hughes Airwest such as those working in Twin Falls.

ALEA President Victor J. Herbert said the agreement represents the highest salary level for ticketing, reservation and clerical employees in the airline's history. It provides for a 32-percent general wage increase over the 25-month life of the contract, as well as increased pension, vacation and other benefits.

Hospital narrows field

By BRUCE HAMMOND

GOODING — The Gooding County Memorial Hospital Board has narrowed the field of administrator candidates to six individuals and three management firms.

The action came Tuesday night as board members reviewed about a dozen applications for the top job at Gooding Memorial. At the same time, board members adopted four criteria for selecting a new administrator.

Last month, hospital administrator Francis Whorton and three members of the hospital board resigned in a dispute with Gooding County Commissioners over operation of the financially stressed hospital.

"We'll start interviewing people Thursday night and again Saturday afternoon for candidates that must come in on a weekend," hospital board chairman Roy Spackman said Friday.

Also during the next two weeks, the hospital board will meet with representatives from three hospital management firms: Brim and Associates Ltd., a Portland, Ore., hospital consulting firm; Trusean Corporation, a Boise-based firm that manages the Green Acres Care Center in Gooding; and Gerald Hart and Associates, a group managing four rural Idaho hospitals.

Spackman said the board will evaluate whether Gooding County would be better served by an individual administrator or a management firm after meeting with all the candidates.

The board has already hired a temporary, part-time administrator to manage Gooding Memorial. Francis McNamara, director of Blaine County Hospital.

The four criteria adopted by the hospital board for selecting a hospital administrator are:

- Background in hospital operation and business administration education.
- Experience as a hospital administrator or assistant administrator with financial expertise.
- The ability to develop a good public relations program for Gooding Memorial.
- "An energetic" personality with "lots of enthusiasm for hospital administration."

City to sign contract pending review

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — City officials may sign a contract with a Twin Falls firm to construct modifications to the city's sewage treatment plant early next month.

City officials two weeks ago had voted to accept the Neilsen and Co. bid of $5.4 million to make the modifications and had planned to sign a contract this week.

But the Environmental Protection Agency has not completed reviewing the Twin Falls firm's project plans. EPA officials said the delay won't push back the construction schedule since work isn't required to begin until Dec. 1.

Garry Wohlgenuth, project manager for the city's consultant, James M. Montgomery Consulting Engineers Inc. of Boise, said the EPA has accepted all but one provision of the Neilsen plans.

The provision in question requires that at least 10 percent of the subcontracting firms or material suppliers used in the project be owned by minorities. Wohlgenuth said the delay is due to the complicated nature of reviewing compliance with the minority business requirement which involves officials at the EPA Seattle office.

All other EPA requirements can be reviewed through EPA's office in Boise, he said.

EPA approval is one of two steps required before construction can begin. The other involves processing contract documents between Neilsen and the city.

Wohlgenuth said Neilsen officials are now preparing a $5.4 million faithful performance bond, comprehensive insurance coverage, and a breakdown of construction costs as required by the contract. The breakdown of costs is used as a reference for preparing progress payments during the course of the construction, he said.

Wohlgenuth said construction will begin within 10 days of EPA approval of the package and a signing of a contract by the city.

He said the council could sign the contract at its Nov. 3 meeting.

Filer schools seek bond election

By LARRY SWISHER

FILER — Filer school officials are going hunting today, the second time in three days.

Whereas today marks the opening of pheasant-hunting season, Thursday they were out to bag a new high school.

In a special meeting, the school board voted to "go for" a $2.5 million bond election in February 1981 and to hire the architectural firm of Kolbo, Bowman, Smallwood & Associates.

The project would improve inadequate facilities at every grade level in Filer and provide for future growth.

"There's no room for luxuries," architect Jim Smallwood said, referring to the district's $2.5 million bonding capacity. "But we can do it."

The tentative proposal calls for a new high school of approximately 55,000 square feet to be located on 10 acres of district land behind present buildings in Filer.

• Conversion of the present high school to a junior high school for seventh and eighth grades. The old section of the high school, which was occupied in 1918, would be demolished or partly walled off and used as storage.

• Freeing six new classrooms for Filer Elementary School, which now occupies the same building as the junior high school.

Superintendent Sheldon Kovarsky and high school Principal Larry Roberts said they liked a basic sketch of the new school prepared by Smallwood's firm.

The rough design incorporated 22 classrooms, including arts and crafts, home economics and woodworking. The latter would be shared by junior high school students.

Roberts said the high school lacks an art program, which is threatening full accreditation. The board

Rex Engekling, educational consultant for Kolbo, Bowman, Smallwood & Associates, advised the board to develop a set of educational specifications through its administrators and teachers.

Paul School's cost: $39.91 per square foot

RUPERT — Rupert School Superintendent Wayne Fagg told board members Wednesday night the new Paul Elementary School was built for $39.91 per square foot.

Twin Falls Architect Jim Smallwood presented a bill from Mitchell Construction Co., Pocatello contractors for the Paul school, for their 10 percent retainage fee, $195,000. Board members moved to make this final payment withholding $20,000 until a few minor mechanical problems are remedied. Smallwood also presented a bill for his own retainage fee of $6,000. The board moved to withhold one-third of this fee until the contract is fulfilled.

Policy change for transfer students was passed by the board members. The new policy will require students transferring from non-accredited schools to be tested and credited by district standards.

presented at the next board meeting, Nov. 10.

In 1977, Filer School District voters rejected a bond issue for an addition to the high school and a new gymnasium.

In the course of the meeting, the school officials brought out aspects they hope will improve chances of this bond election's passage, including:

- The project improves facilities for all grade levels.
- Administrators and principals will present preliminary plans to teachers to get their input and support.
- Board member John Draney said the last bond election was opposed by some teachers.

- The new high school physical education complex will be connected to the main building and not separate, to avoid emphasis on athletics.
- The schedule for development, promotion and voting will be short, to avoid "dragging it out," in Board Chairman Alvin Ochsner's words.

• The project will result in the separation of high school, junior high school and elementary school students. Under the 1977 proposal, senior and junior high students would have mixed.

In further action, the school board approved a fluoride mouth-rinsing program for the elementary schools. Parental permission will be required before students can participate in this program.

Fagg presented an estimate of $14,700 for blacktopping the front portion of the two junior high schools. This project will be bid with plans to begin at the end of the current school year.

TWIN FALLS — Judge Phillip Becker denied a motion in 5th District Court this week for the release of Lisa Guerra on her own recognizance and granted a pre-sentence investigation.

Her attorney, Public Defender Mike Walz, moved for her release pending sentence but the court ordered her returned to jail. Guerra will be sentenced following completion of a pre-sentence investigation, and is being held in Twin Falls city jail.

Man dies in tractor accident

DIETRICH — A Dietrich farmer was killed Tuesday evening when a tractor he was operating overturned, pinning him beneath the machine.

Mont Sorenson, 60, was pronounced dead at the scene about 6 p.m. by Lincoln County Coroner R.G. Neher.

"Mr. Sorenson was running a tractor in a silage pit near his home to pack down the silage," reported Lincoln County Sheriff Bill Anderson.

"Apparently, he got too close to the edge, one tire sank into the silage and the tractor overturned, trapping him under the seat," Anderson said.

According to the sheriff's report, no one was at the scene when the accident occurred. Sorenson was found about 5:30 p.m. by his son, Kay C. Sorenson of Dietrich, Anderson said.

Woman killed in rollover

HAILEY — A young Parma woman was killed and a companion injured in a one-car rollover southwest of Hailey early Friday morning.

Idaho State Police said Jodi Gayle Smith, 18, was dead at the scene. She was a passenger in the car driven by Nola Smith, also 18, and no relation to the victim.

Blaine County sheriff's officers said the driver apparently fell asleep at the wheel, causing the car to leave the highway and roll over several times, throwing the victim from the car. The driver was treated at the Blaine County Hospital but was not seriously injured.

Officers said the car was westbound on Highway 20 about 11 miles west of the junction with U.S. Highway 75 when the accident occurred.

New shopping center possible

TWIN FALLS — Negotiations are in progress to develop a nine-acre shopping center at West Five Points.

The development, across the street from the old Albertson's building, which now houses a Swensen's Market, could include a Safeway market.

A spokesman for Safeway Stores Inc. at the company's regional headquarters in Salt Lake City, confirmed that the company is negotiating with a Pocatello developer about the site. The developer, Scott Satterfield, could not be reached for comment.

The development would be on the northwest corner of the intersection where Century 21 Southern Idaho Realty now stands. The accident occurred on the real estate office; it is the broker working on the development.

Burley thumps Minico

By MIKE PRATER
Times-News sports writer

RUPERT — Burley football Coach John Billetz participated in his first annual Burley-Minico grid contest Friday night, and he liked what he saw.

The Bobcats, using momentum picked up early in the game and Ross Crane as their main source of power, rolled to an easy 27-6 smashing of the cross-town-rival Spartans.

It was the fifth straight win in the 26 year series for the Bobcats, a new record between the two schools. Over the years the Bobcats have won 15 times against 11 defeats.

"When these two teams collide on the field every year, it becomes a matter of pride. As of tonight, I have found out there's a lot of heat at stake each and every time they compete," said Billetz who previously coached at Gooding High School. "I'm just glad we came up on the good end this time."

Taking the ball downfield on the opening drive, Burley used a pass interference call and fumble recovery on a punt-three-plays-later-to regain the needed momentum to carry them through the rest of the game untouched.

Ross Crane, who's averaging 140 yards per game, picked up 157 more yards for the Bobcats' potent offense attack which mainly consists of running back Jay Bench making the holes and Crane maneuvering his way through them with his blinding speed.

"As far as I was concerned, the turning point of the game was on the second and fifth plays of the first half," said Billetz following the Bobcats third win of the season against six defeats. Minico falls to 1-5.

"That gave this team an extra punch early and I think that decided it for us even though it was early in the contest."

Bench set up the first Burley scoring opportunity with the fumble recovery on the Spartan 35 when Minico failed to hold on to a punt.

One play later, junior quarterback Kelly Kiecher scampered up the middle and into the end zone only to fluff a kickback for a minor penalty. But it didn't matter as sophomore Dennis Konrad squirmed in two plays later after grabbing a Kiecher pass with 78 left in the initial period.

"This team doesn't let little things like called-back touch-downs bother them," said Billetz. "It just makes them hungrier and nobody wanted that score more than Kiecher did. He just had to ball ball in there and Dennis did the rest by taking it in."

With the exception of one drive early in the second quarter, the Spartans failed to mount any kind of offensive attack, but also managed to hold Burley to their own.

Crane put an end to Burley's only second quarter drive with a fumble on the Spartan two.

Nevertheless, a 26-yard pass to tight end Jon Wilson set up a Crane scoring opportunity, who erased his earlier miscue in the third period with a 24-yard run with 6:57 remaining. The 24-yard pass to Kiecher led 12-0.

Minutes later, Bench scored on his first run of the night, a one-yard effort with 17 seconds remaining in the third. He then scored his fourth of the night on a two-yard run with 7:11 left in the ball game, for Burley's final score.

The Spartans finally got on the board to spoil a shutout when senior quarterback Terry Morrison hit Randy Homer on a five-yard scoring strike with a little over two minutes remaining.

"Our defense has been super in the last two games," said Billetz of the group that shutout the Buhl Indians last week 6-0. "We've made some adjustments in the way it operates and it's made a whole lot of difference. We are playing the kids only one way instead of putting them on both sides of the ball. This way they get more of a rest and we can get more output from them when they do go in."

Additionaly, the commission will seek consideration of plan whereby license and tag fees will be tied to the consumer price index.

Although all license and tag fees are "dedicated" funds, meaning they can be used only for wildlife resource purposes, the right to adjust fees remains in the hands of the legislature, not at the commission's discretion.

The legislature allowed some increase at its last session but only 40 per cent of the amount the commission said

Bruins surprise Bees

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For 45 minutes Twin Falls kicked the Bonneville Bees all over the field and out of championship contention in the Gem State Conference Friday night.

For the last three minutes, Bonneville was trying to pull off a miracle by overcoming a 28-6 deficit and Twin Falls was holding on and falling on the ball at the end of the game to preserve a 28-22 decision.

The Twin Falls victory knocked the Bees out of a three-way share of the league lead and moved the Bruins into a strong possibility of winding up sharing second place with their highest conference finish in 18 years.

Although they are now 6-2, the big game of the season comes up Saturday afternoon against Nampa, the winner of that match advancing to the state playoffs.

"Twin Falls' defense smothered a highly-touted Bonneville offense in the first half while the offense stormed for 21 points. Although Bonneville tried to get something started with a touchdown late in the third quarter, Twin Falls appeared to quickly regain control with a reply scoring march."

It similarly appeared the Bees were dead when they fumbled the ball away at the Bruins 19 with just over five minutes to go.

But after a punt, Jeff Widdison hit a couple of clutch passes and moved the Bees to a touchdown with 1:39 left. Tim Hadlerle then recovered the onside kick after two Bruins missed a dive at it and Widdison quickly hit two passes and Twin Falls contributed a 15-yard penalty to score again with 43 seconds left. Widdison threw for a two-point conversion that made it 28-22.

"It's a big win but it still doesn't change the fact that everything boils down to what happens out here next Saturday afternoon."

Twin Falls took the lead on the opening drive for 78 yards in 10 plays for the lead. Quarterback Gary-Kraum did most of the ground gaining on sneaks and keeps. On first and goal at the seven, he pitched to Larry Hill who was sprung on a Bob McMullen block and walked into the end zone. Steve Galley booted the first of four conversions.

On its second possession Twin Falls drove to a first down at the Bonneville 14 before the Bees stiffened. Galley tried a 29-yard field goal but it was knocked aside by Bonneville's Tony Walker.

"Twin Falls forced a punt four plays later and Rick Tegan elicited the crowd with a 91-yard return, only to have the apparent touchdown nullified by a penalty at midfield."

"I was very, very disappointed when I saw the flag," Tegan understated afterward.

But Hurt eased the sting a little when three plays later he cut off tackle, veered to the outside and went 62 yards before being caught at the one. McMullen plunged in on the next play.

"I trained real hard for this fight," said Cooney. "I knew it would be tough. I started with the jab to get him set up and then I went to the body. I knew that left hook hurt him. It was just a matter of time then. You know what a man's hurt and when you've got him in trouble."

The loss probably marks the end of Lyle's checkered career, which began in 1971 after his release from prison. Lyle's record of 12-10-1 includes 12 victories before a 12-round loss to Jerry Quarry in 1973. Among his victims were former contenders Oscar Bonavena, Jimmy Ellis, Joe Bugner and Scott Ledoux.

Lyle's brightest moment came in May of 1975, when he faced Muhammad Ali for the heavyweight title. Lyle led Ali on the judges' scorecards through 10 rounds before being knocked out in the 11th.

Lyle had more legal problems last year, needing an acquittal for murdering his manager in self-defense and losing one of the titles in the last three years. Earlier this summer, he stopped journeyman Al Neumann and George O'Meara, both in the 10th round.

In the featured preliminary, Wilfred Scypion, a native of Houston and named Ali for the heavyweight title. Lyle led Ali on the judges' scorecards through 10 rounds before being knocked out in the 11th.

Scypion opened a deep cut over Herron's right eye and the ring physician stopped the bout after the first round. It was the 16th knockout for Scypion, whose only loss was a 10th-round TKO by fourth-ranked Mustafa Hamsho of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Davey Lee Armstrong, a former Olympian from Tacoma, Wash., ran his record to 7-0 with an eighth-round junior welterweight decision over Norberto Figueroa of Puerto Rico.

Some of the rewards of the program uncovered some commercial exploitation of wildlife that wasn't even imagined.

By its nature, the program is hardy, universally accepted by the general public and is considered a "sensitive thing" that requires deep consideration before starting, the commission was told. It also demands a rather cloak-and-dagger atmosphere since anonymity for tipsters would have to be guaranteed.

New Mexico figures show the program has cost $44,000 thus far but has returned $90,000 in fines.

Pheasant start looking good

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

JEROME — Magic Valley's suburban population has prepared another good opening weekend of the hunting season starting today at noon.

Despite a "heavy and continual decline" in habitat, the pheasants and the weather have "combined" for another good production year.

Gary Will, regional biologist for the Idaho Fish and Game Department, says the partridge should reward area hunters with an opening weekend "at least as good and perhaps slightly better than last year."

Since Will hasn't missed many predictions the past few years, it would indicate the average hunter can expect to bring home 1.2 roasters. That was last year's mean and was the best since the 1972 season.

Will attributed the good production year to "good timing in weather, a good hatch, fairly good carry-over and good timing with the first haying. We had some wet weather that made the first haying cutting a little late and allowed more hatches to be brought off."

"Primarily (we attribute this) to timing in the spring weather," he said. "The birds can take some cold weather and some wet weather but they can't take them both together. We have a high chick mortality when the weather is both cold and wet. This spring we had a little of each but not too much in combination."

Will urges hunters to enjoy years and populations like this because "we're still facing heavy habitat decline region-wide. The pivot (irrigation systems), the cement ditches, urban sprawl, clean farming practices, everything like that hurts the pheasant population."

"We have been very fortunate the last two years that our birds have hung on as well as they have but overall we're looking at a downhill trend. The isolated tract program is slowing the slide a little. But it is a relatively small program comparing the acres reserved for pheasant habitat with all the land under cultivation."

The isolated tract program consists of withdrawal of federal lands in reclamation projects to provide cover for wildlife, particularly in the winter when cultivated fields have been harvested bare.

Will said the department again will be releasing about 500 birds from the Jerome Game Farm in poor production areas. That is part of a continuing program in which Magic Valley's native population is supplemented by four to five hundred birds.

However, the bulk of the birds raised at the Jerome facility are planted in eastern and western Idaho with heavy plantings in north Idaho, all areas that generally don't enjoy the natural reproduction of Magic Valley.

Will emphasized that the bulk of pheasant hunting is done on private property and he urged that all hunters ask for trespass permission and to respect that property.

He noted the daily bag and possession limit for the first five days will be two roasters. Starting Thursday the daily bag will increase to three birds with five in possession and as of next Friday the limits will be three and six.

The difference in possession limit for Thursday and Friday of next week is caused by the first five-day restrictions. A hunter may have two birds taken Wednesday and harvest another three Thursday for a five-day possession limit. This restriction would come off Friday, hence the three and six limits for the remainder of the season.

Will said the department would again set up pheasant check stations to gauge success and help in overall pheasant management.

KO in first round gets Cooney closer to possible title bout

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Unbeaten Gerry Cooney, the World Boxing Association's top-ranked contender, moved closer to a heavyweight title shot Friday night with a devastating first-round knockout of veteran Ron Lyle at the Nassau Coliseum.

Cooney rocked Lyle to a left hook to the midsection with 45 seconds to go in the opening round and belted him with combinations to the head and body before sending him through the ropes with a slipping left to the midsection. Lyle was crumpled out on the ring apron with his legs dangling through the ropes at 2:49 of the first round.

The victory was Cooney's 24th without a loss and his 21st knockout, including his seventh in a row. None has gone longer than six rounds.

The 23-year-old Cooney, a 6-foot-5, 225-pound native of Huntington, N.Y., took control at the start. With the partisan crowd chanting "Cooney, Cooney, Cooney," he landed several sharp jabs to Lyle's face before the savage hook that was the beginning of the end for the 38-year-old veteran.

Cooney, fighting for the first time since knocking out Jimmy Young in four rounds at Atlantic City in 1975, may be in line for a possible WBA title match against the winner of Saturday's fight in South Africa between champion Mike Weaver and Gerrie Coetzee.

Lyle, attempting to bounce back into the muddled heavyweight contender picture, saw his record drop to 40-71.

"I trained real hard for this fight," said Cooney. "I knew it would be tough. I started with the jab to get him set up and then I went to the body. I knew that left hook hurt him. It was just a matter of time then. You know what a man's hurt and when you've got him in trouble."

Lyle's record of 12-10-1 includes 12 victories before a 12-round loss to Jerry Quarry in 1973. Among his victims were former contenders Oscar Bonavena, Jimmy Ellis, Joe Bugner and Scott Ledoux.

Lyle's brightest moment came in May of 1975, when he faced Muhammad Ali for the heavyweight title. Lyle led Ali on the judges' scorecards through 10 rounds before being knocked out in the 11th.

Lyle had more legal problems last year, needing an acquittal for murdering his manager in self-defense and losing one of the titles in the last three years. Earlier this summer, he stopped journeyman Al Neumann and George O'Meara, both in the 10th round.

In the featured preliminary, Wilfred Scypion, a native of Houston and named Ali for the heavyweight title. Lyle led Ali on the judges' scorecards through 10 rounds before being knocked out in the 11th.

Scypion opened a deep cut over Herron's right eye and the ring physician stopped the bout after the first round. It was the 16th knockout for Scypion, whose only loss was a 10th-round TKO by fourth-ranked Mustafa Hamsho of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Davey Lee Armstrong, a former Olympian from Tacoma, Wash., ran his record to 7-0 with an eighth-round junior welterweight decision over Norberto Figueroa of Puerto Rico.

Some of the rewards of the program uncovered some commercial exploitation of wildlife that wasn't even imagined.

By its nature, the program is hardy, universally accepted by the general public and is considered a "sensitive thing" that requires deep consideration before starting, the commission was told. It also demands a rather cloak-and-dagger atmosphere since anonymity for tipsters would have to be guaranteed.

New Mexico figures show the program has cost $44,000 thus far but has returned $90,000 in fines.

TWIN FALLS — Face with prospects of bankruptcy by 1983, the Idaho Fish and Game Commission will ask the state legislature for license and tag fee increases in January.

Additionally, the commission will seek consideration of plan whereby license and tag fees will be tied to the consumer price index.

Although all license and tag fees are "dedicated" funds, meaning they can be used only for wildlife resource purposes, the right to adjust fees remains in the hands of the legislature, not at the commission's discretion.

The legislature allowed some increase at its last session but only 40 per cent of the amount the commission said was necessary. In addition, the commission heard from accountants Friday approval of the full increase sought would only have kept the department operating at status quo. At its present rate of funding, the actuaries said the department will become bankrupt in 1983.

In suggesting indexing fees to the consumer price index, it was noted the flexibility, which would have to be granted by the legislature, would guarantee the department of having sufficient to complete all routine operations and on-going projects.

Fee adjustment would be made on an annual basis, which spokesman said would result in gradual adjustments rather than big jumps on a four to five-year basis. Similarly, it would eliminate the nearly constant trimming of the department to the legislature in inflation-fueled years to see increases. The indexing also would allow long-range planning, especially in the area of securing land and water access and introduction of new species.

The department said it definitely would have to ask the legislature to at least replace all that was cut from last session's request. But since that would only cut inflation factors, a return to the legislature for another increase in the near future would be inevitable.

In other action, the commission heard reports that the number of game law violations has increased dramatically in the past few years. Enforcement officials noted that while the hunting population has increased, the number of conservation officers has remained the same since 1961 due to budgetary restrictions.

Conservation officers, although restricted by time and travel expense, have issued 14 per cent more citations this year than last but violations are projected to have increased by 20 per cent.

Ali planning comeback bid

NEW YORK (UPI) — Muhammad Ali, setting the groundwork for another crack at the heavyweight crown, has agreed with a Los Angeles-based promoter to fight a "top-ranked contender" in early January, UPI learned early Friday morning.

Alli, who has been urged by many members of the boxing community to retire following his 11th-round technical knockout by Larry Holmes, is working with promoter Harold Smith to line up a possible bout.

Smith, executive director of Muhammad Ali Sports, a Los Angeles enterprise which pays the three-time champion royalties on the use of his name, said the intended fight will serve as a tuneup for Ali.

"Ali has agreed to fight a top-10 rated opponent in early January," Smith said. "Five weeks later we plan to take on another opponent and from there we'll go for a title shot."

Smith said he and Ali have not settled on a particular opponent and no papers of any kind have been signed. He said such matters would be cleared in the near future.

The promoter said the bout would probably be held outside the United States, in either Kenya, Nigeria or Taiwan.

"Right now, we're leading towards Kenya," Smith said.

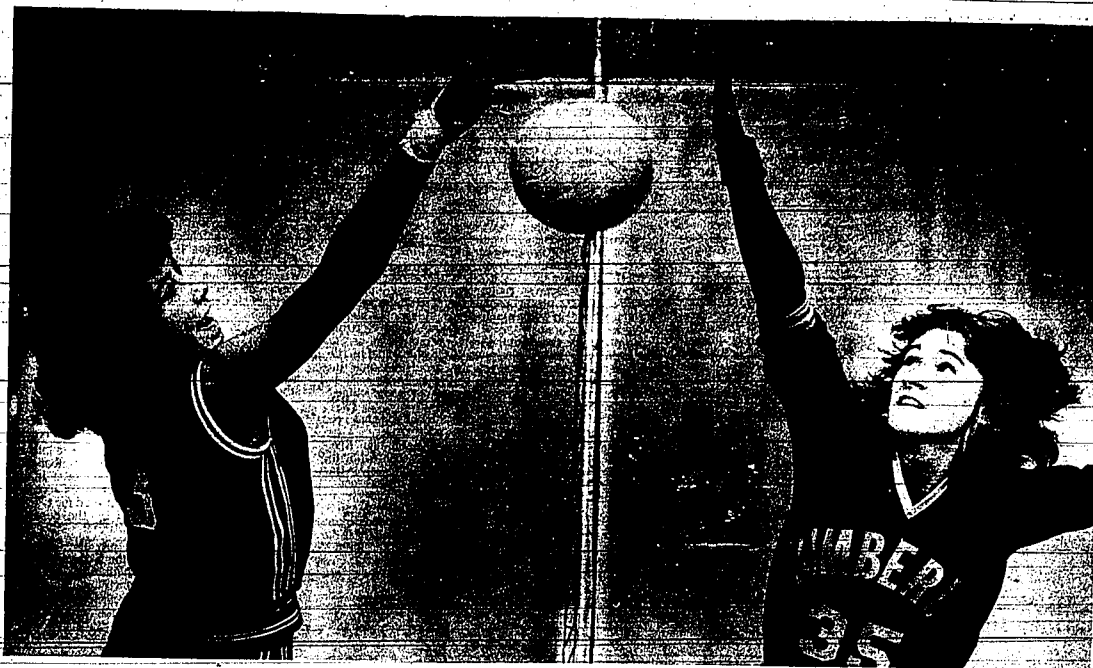

However, Smith added he wasn't ruling out a possible Ali fight in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Sonny Werblin, the president of the Garden, has said he would be interested in such a venture if Ali were physically cleared by the New York State Boxing Commission.

Alli, who was soundly beaten by Holmes, the World Boxing Council champion in Las Vegas, Nev., on Oct. 2, said he will be ready to fight after the New Year.

"I'll fight a contender in early January and another one after that for a tuneup to prove to everybody that that wasn't me in the ring against Holmes."

Alli refused to indicate who he would like to fight.

Senators rally past Homedale; join Kimberly in finals

TWIN FALLS — Homedale put defending state champion Gooding to the test and the Senators rallied from an impending disaster for a three-game win to highlight Friday's opening play in the Class B State Volleyball Tournament.

Homedale, undefeated in 18 matches, took the also unbeaten Senators 15-12 in the first game of Friday's last match. Homedale used the quick spiking of Cindy Breshaars to negate Gooding's usual advantage at the net. When Breshaars went to the back row to serve late in the game she brought her squad back from a 11-9 deficit to a 14-11 lead.

Gooding, looking flat from the start of the game, got the serve back but mustered only one point and Homedale's Susi Larrocca served for the final point.

Homedale, which had lost to Gooding in last year's final pool play game of the state meet, had one win on the Senators.

In the second game it was more of Breshaars and Gooding's un-inspired play that found Homedale holding leads of 10-2 and 11-4. Then the Senators woke up.

Jeanne Clemons went to the service line and with Lori Graves and reserve Gwen Reed getting strong spikes, the Senators were back in the match at 11-6. Clemons slipped in an ace for a 11-7 margin and over the next few minutes the Senators worked their way closer and closer.

With the score 13-12 for Homedale, Graves served and there was no return. That tied it 13-13. Breshaars spiked into the net to give GHS a 14-13 lead but she followed with a spike to gain the serve for herself. Her serve was not returned as Gooding had net troubles and it was 14-14.

Gooding's Stacy Reed got the serve back with a tip and after several side outs, Clemons came to the service for Gooding. Graves and Gwen Reed had back-to-back spikes for the winning points, 16-14.

With the momentum back on Gooding's side and the game scored tied at 1-1, the Senators had a much easier time in the third and deciding match. Bonnie Arkoosh served for four straight points and a 6-1 lead and Homedale never really made a charge, suffering its first loss in 18 matches.

Both teams — along with Kimberly and Midvale — advanced to today's double elimination tourney that will decide the 1980 state champion.

"I could have told you when we warmed up that we were not going to win that first game," Gooding Coach Jolene Toone said. "The girls weren't jacked up like they usually are. We were flat well into that second game."

Toone felt Homedale was a little too cautious when it had a big lead in the second game, but her team coming alive was also critical in getting the win.

"When we handled her (Breshaars) in the second game I think the girls picked up," Toone said. "I'm pretty sure we'll see Homedale again tomorrow (Saturday). They are very good and started well tonight."

Graves was key in saving several points during Gooding's comeback.

Kimberly, the other team from the Fourth District, made the second day of play the hard way.

The Bulldogs faced Midvale in their opener in Pool One. Kimberly had an easy time in the first game, winning 15-3. Midvale then found the momentum behind spikers Jeanne Morgan and Trish Widner to take a 15-9 win for a 1-1 tie.

Midvale continued its streak to take a 10-4 lead in the second game. The Bulldogs then made a stunning rally to take a 14-13 lead but Jean Emerson's squad couldn't get the final point and Midvale took a 16-14 win.

As Midvale went undefeated during the day, Kimberly defeated Kendrick and Malad to make its record 2-1 for pool play. That was good enough to make it into the final four.

"It's a tough way to go," Emerson said after the opening loss to Midvale. "I didn't want this setback."

Kimberly started slow in its second match against Kendrick but pulled away at 7-7 for wins of 15-7 and 15-2. In Friday night's action, Kimberly had serving troubles but took Malad by identical scores of 15-11.

Gooding's perfect ledger to win

Pool Two and Kimberly's second-place finish in Pool One set the stage for the two meeting each other at 2 p.m. today. Midvale will meet Homedale in the opening match at 1 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho gym.

The rivalry between the Senators and Bulldogs is likely to draw a sizeable crowd.

The finals of the tourney will start at 7 p.m. A team has to lose two games today to be eliminated. The pool play scores from Saturday were:

Herzog to handle double duties for St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Whitey Herzog, who took over as field manager of the St. Louis Cardinals in June, Friday assumed the dual role of manager and general manager and named Joe McDonald his executive assistant.

In announcing the changes at a news conference at Busch Stadium, August A. Busch Jr., 81-year-old president of the baseball club, said via a telephone hookup, "We realize that this is unique in baseball, but we strongly believe that Whitey is capable of handling both jobs."

Herzog, who replaced Ken Boyer as field manager of the Cardinals on June 8, worked for five years with McDonald when both were in the New York Mets' front office. McDonald is a former general manager of the Mets.

Herzog replaced John Ciabrone as general manager in August, after posting a 38-35 record as field manager. Former Cardinals Manager Red Schoendienst took over the on-field duties.

"But Herzog said sitting in the press box and watching games "wasn't my cup of tea. I had a splittoon in my office, but I never had one in the press box."

Asked what he thought would be the strength of the dual role, Herzog said, "I'll be managing."

Herzog managed the Kansas City Royals for 4 1/2 years, taking the team to either first or second place in the American League West each year. He was fired in 1979 after the Royals finished second in the division, three games out of first place.

Herzog explained that McDonald will be able to handle paperwork and watch the waiver list while the team is on the road, but Herzog added that he will make the final decision on contracts and large deals.

Herzog said he would name the rest of his coaching staff in early November, and revealed that he had tried to hire former Cardinals great Bob Gibson as pitching coach, but Gibson decided to take a similar position with his old teammate, Mets Manager Joe Torre.

Herzog said he is getting "cauliflower ear" from talking trades on the telephone in recent days.

"I think we had 90 calls yesterday, back and forth, back and forth," said Herzog.

"We all know what we need — three kinds of pitching, right-handed, left-handed and relief. The other clubs seem to be looking for catchers and infielders."

Herzog said only one member of the Cardinals, shortstop Garry Templeton, is not on the trading block. He cited depth at catcher (Ted Simmons and Terry Kennedy), first base (Keith Hernandez and Leon Durham), second base (Ken Oberkell and Tommy Herk) and third base (Ken Reitz and Oberkell).

Jim McMahon credits line for giving him time to throw

BYU 'quarterback factory' may have best product ever in Jim McMahon

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Brigham Young University's quarterback production line — running from Virgil Carter in the mid 1960s to TPI All America Marc Wilson last fall — may have the best in its latest, junior, Jim McMahon.

At the halfway mark in BYU's 12-game season, McMahon is leading the NCAA in passing and total offense and has thrown for more than 2,000 yards and 23 touchdowns.

"I'm in my fourth season at BYU," McMahon says, "and this year's team is as good as any of those other three. And it may turn out to be the best."

"We've had some great quarterbacks — Clifford Nielsen and Wilson — in those years, and some great receivers. But this year we have four receivers who are better as a group than any since I've been here. And our top three running backs can do it all — carry the ball, get in the pass pattern, block and protect me."

The "Roy" Utah native was used primarily as a punter in his freshman season, averaging 89 yards per kick in 1977. As BYU's No. 3 quarterback, he passed for only 165 yards and one touchdown.

But, as a sophomore he battled Wilson, then a junior, for the starting spot. And he finished the year with 1,307 yards passing and six touchdowns, plus 246 yards rushing and four more TDs, earning All-Western—Athletic Conference quarterback honors.

A knee injury sidelined McMahon at the end of the 1978 season, and he was redshirted last year following surgery on the knee.

He started this fall slowly, passing for only 147 yards and two touchdowns in BYU's 25-21 loss at New Mexico. But since that game, McMahon has passed for more than 300 yards in each of the Cougars' last five games, pushing BYU to a 5-1 record and 19th ranking in the TPI coaches' poll.

McMahon hit a high Oct. 18, throwing for 468 yards and six touchdowns at Utah State. And he rushed for another two scores in a 70-46 win. "I have a lot more confidence this fall than I did two years ago. I can read defenses better, and Coach Doug Scovill (BYU's offensive coordinator) has given me a free hand to change any play," McMahon said.

The 6-foot-4 quarterback is discouraged from running with the ball as much as he did in 1978, but McMahon estimates he calls audibles at the line "about 25 to 30 percent of the time."

"When it comes to a key play, such as third-down and long yardage, I always look for (tight end) Clay Brown," McMahon said. "Brown is usually the one with single coverage, and he's so big he's hard to miss."

The 6-foot-3 Brown has caught 23 passes this year for 510 yards and seven touchdowns — including an 80 yarder for a touchdown in a 35-11 win over San Diego State.

"Other than the pressure pass to Brown, I don't have a favorite pass. I like to throw whatever will work, whatever has a chance for a first down or a touchdown."

Besides Brown, McMahon has used nice other receivers this fall. And eight of the 10 have caught at least 10 passes and scored at least once.

McMahon has already set two NCAA records this year and tied two others, but he says he's not just "throwing for records. I'm doing what I have to do to help us win. We're a passing team. That's what works best for us. And our entire offense is geared to the pass."

With a 12-game schedule this year, McMahon could easily pass for more than 4,000 yards and 40 touchdowns in a season — both of which would be collegiate records.

McMahon may have a hard time reaching any records this week, however.

BYU coaches say McMahon is suffering from a strained ligament and possibly torn muscles in his right shoulder and may not start in the Cougar's night game against the University of Hawaii Rainbows.

Razorbacks face Houston in Astrodome

By TONY FAVIA
UPI Sports Writer

It might seem like 14th-ranked Arkansas has an easy task tonight, but as Razorbacks Coach Lou Holtz knows, one is never too sure when visiting Houston.

"Playing in the Astrodome is tough," Holtz said. "I've watched the Oilers lose there, so I know it's possible for the home team to lose. That means it's not the dressing rooms that make the difference. But I haven't seen Houston lose there often, though."

Arkansas, in fact, has played only two games indoors in its history, and lost both. The Razorbacks fell to Houston in their only appearance in the Astrodome, a two-year, one-loss, one-24-9 in the Sugar Bowl to Alabama last Jan. 1 at the Louisiana Superdome.

Arkansas has had some curious games this year, winning four out of five, even a ranking but still well short of the level which the Razorbacks had expected to reach this year. Meanwhile, Houston is trying to rally from a disastrous start and has won two games in a row.

"Houston is playing like it was supposed to when everyone picked them to win the league," said Holtz. "Their defense dominates the game and their offense is superb."

"They move the line of scrimmage to where ever they want it. If the ball is on the 50 and they want it on your 27, they just move it there. It reminds me of riot control where the police push back the crowd."

No team has ever won the Southwest Conference championship with two league losses. Five of the nine teams in the conference already have at least two setbacks, and the Razorbacks and Cougars each have one. So the loser in the Astrodome will most likely go down the drain.

The SW leader, No. 2-ranked Texas, faces SMU. The Longhorns come off a 20-13 victory over Oklahoma two weeks ago, but Texas Coach Fred Akers is concerned with the Mustangs.

"SMU is an extremely talented football team," Akers said. "And I mean extremely talented. People have been saying their offensive line could be the best in the conference."

"Their running backs are among the most skilled in the nation and their wide receivers have speed like we haven't seen."

Four-ranked Notre Dame will try to get past Arizona, 2-3, and it's questionable if Phil Carter, the country's No. 2 rusher earlier in the season, is sufficiently recovered from a knee injury to play Saturday night. The following two games — against Navy and Georgia Tech — should be easier for the Fighting Irish, especially with a recovered Carter.

Other games involving top-10 teams this week are: top-ranked Alabama vs. No. 20 Southern Mississippi; No. 3 UCLA vs. California, No. 5 Georgia vs. Kentucky, No. 6 Florida vs. Memphis State, No. 7 North Carolina vs. East Carolina, No. 8 Nebraska vs. Colorado, and No. 10 Ohio State vs. Wisconsin. Ninth-ranked Southern Cal is idle.

Rounding out the Top 20, it's No. 11 Pittsburgh vs. Tennessee, No. 12 Penn State vs. West Virginia, No. 13 Baylor vs. TCU, No. 14 Missouri vs. Kansas State, No. 15 Alabama vs. Iowa State, No. 16 Brigham Young vs. Hawaii and No. 19 Washington vs. Navy, No. 16 South Carolina is idle.

Navratilova gains tourney semis

BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — Defending champion Martina Navratilova defeated 19-year-old American Barbara Potter 7-6, 6-1 Friday to qualify for the semifinals of a $124,000 women's tennis tournament.

She meets South African Greer Stevens, who out-gunned Australia's Dianne Fromholtz 6-4, 7-6 in their quarterfinal.

Big Ten concerned about Illinois' intent

By RAYSONS
© 1980 Chicago Sun-Times

Commentary

CHICAGO — The Big Ten seems ready to kick the University of Illinois right in its seat of learning again.

Just as Dave Wilson's passing arm is being "checked" by the Big Ten football fortunes, the conference is questioning whether the university at Champaign-Urbana is more interested in David's arm than his brain.

The question now is not quite that badly, but that is what it comes down to. The faculty representatives, meeting in closed conference this week, drafted some sort of document that will be dropped on Champaign next week.

It may be nothing more than a public demand that Illinois put in writing guarantees that it will abide by conference rules on faculty control of athletics. But it has the potential to make Illinois the leper of the Big Ten until it shows itself to be cleansed.

When I asked Jack Wentworth, the Indiana University professor of business administration and chairman of the faculty representatives, whether the conference was considering any sanctions against the Illinois, he replied:

"Not at this point. That seems to imply that penalties could be forthcoming if Illinois doesn't promise to walk the straight line its sister institutions are charting. Perhaps the conference would suspend the Illinois until they took the line. The University of Wisconsin athletic board already has voted to withhold approval of competition against Illinois in spring sports in 1981 until it is satisfied the Illinois will live by the rules. Wisconsin is "deeply concerned," according to Frank Remington, its faculty representative, about upholding the Big Ten's rule requiring athletes to show progress toward a degree.

Wilson stirred up this fuss—but his name probably will not even be mentioned in whatever message the conference issues next week. He set his back to the wall when he was asked for finding him academically ineligible to play football. In a see-saw fight that went all the way to the Illinois Supreme Court, he was granted an injunction that forbids the league and the university from yanking that orange-and-blue uniform off him while he fills the air with footballs this season.

At the meeting this week, "the concept that we were going to pressure Illinois not to play Wilson never came up," says Indiana's Wentworth. "It (the decision to move on Illinois) had nothing to do with that at all, because we are under a court order not to interfere with him."

Neale Stoner, Illinois' athletic director, points out that the university is under the same court order, and couldn't sit Wilson down to please a conference, even if it so desired. "We don't have that option," he says. "That has been misunderstood."

Among the places where the Illinois position has been "misunderstood" is Ann Arbor, Mich., where Wilson and Illinois will play Michigan Saturday. Michigan's coach, Bo Schembechler, has suggested that Illinois ought to get out of the league if it doesn't intend to abide by the rules.

"The court is no place for eligibility rulings," Schembechler said the other day. "There are a helluva lot more important things for our courts to be doing. All of this should have been checked out long before the guy enrolled." Schembechler also seemed to be looking down his nose at Illinois' recruiting of Wilson out of a California junior college. He snuffed to Chicago football writers: "I don't deal in junior colleges."

Bo's attitude may be colored by what Illinois did to Gary Moeller. Illinois hired Moeller as Schembechler's staff to be head coach, then canned him after the dismal and dull 1979 season. "Mo" is back on Bo's staff as quarterback coach.

Moeller's successor, Mike White, has introduced a new pass-happy offense—and has already won three games—as many as Moeller's teams won in his last two seasons. In a dazzling losing effort against Purdue last Saturday, White set the Big Ten and NCAA passing records.

This show has aroused long-dormant emotions in Champaign. With one home game left, against Minnesota's Nov. 1, attendance in Memorial Stadium seems certain to surpass 300,000 for only the sixth season ever. Total attendance, home and away, would exceed the all-time Illinois record of 677,000.

This enthusiasm is wonderful—but at what price has Illinois bought it? The conference has a right, even a duty, to ask.

John E. Cribbet, chancellor of the university, has emphasized that Illinois checked Wilson and "found nothing but solid evidence that the student concerned had been treated like other students...and that the student was making satisfactory progress toward the degree he seeks."

For this reason, Cribbet said, Illinois initially supported Wilson's bid for the temporary injunction under which he has been permitted to play. The university eventually became a defendant in the suit filed against the Big Ten by Robert Auler, a Champaign attorney, in Wilson's behalf. Auler says he is working without a fee in the Wilson case, "because I believe in it...The Big Ten is leaning on the kid for no good reason...This has not a god darn thing to do with academic standards."

Cribbet steadfastly has maintained that the university is dedicated to upholding the Big Ten's academic standards. Stoner insists the athletic department has had no hand in Wilson's legal effort to defy the Big Ten. "We would never encourage a lawsuit against the Big Ten and the university."

But the Big Ten is entirely justified in making absolutely certain that Mike White's need for a passing quarterback and the athletic department's need to sell tickets is not causing Illinois to wink at the rules designed to protect athletes against exploitation.

Illinois may be entirely pure in this matter, and Wilson may be, as his lawyer contends, more interested in writing a "research paper" for his rhetoric class than in talking football these nights. The Big Ten must be sure Wilson is a bona fide student who is being steered toward graduation, not just learning to sweat and play racquetball.

Just last week, the University of Southern California disclosed that 330 "academically marginal" athletes had been admitted to USC "based chiefly on athletic prowess as judged by the athletic department and without normal admissions office review." Few of them graduated. That happens when you let the athletic department tail wag the university's dog.

Schecter spurns $2.45 million to end retirement

LONDON (UPI) — Former world motor racing champion Jody Schecter, 30, of South Africa, has reportedly turned down a $2.45 million offer to come out of retirement and drive for the British Lotus team in Formula one races next season.

Lotus' Evening Standard reported Friday that David Theme, the flamboyant boss of the Monaco-based Essex oil company who sponsors Lotus, wanted Schecter's experience and skill as a top 1 contender for another former World Champion, Mario Andretti, who has left Lotus for Alfa Romeo.

Rams may control NFC West

By IRA KAUFMAN
UPI Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Rams who appeared last week as the team most likely to blow away the division Sunday in Atlanta. The defending NFC champions have captured a record seven consecutive Western Division titles and this year, a relatively inexperienced starting line leading them.

Vince Ferragamo, 28, last year's post-season star who is in his first full season as the No. 1 quarterback, has been sensational since replacing injured Pat Haden early in the year. Ferragamo, the NFL's top-rated quarterback, has completed 68 percent of his passes for 1,348 yards and 13 touchdowns.

Atlanta Coach Lesman Bennett thinks the Falcons, who lead the NFC in rushing defense but rank 12th in passing defense, may be facing a juggernaut.

"Our biggest disappointment this season has been our inability to stop the pass," said Bennett. "Going against Ferragamo is going to make that tougher than ever. Look at his stats; he leads the entire league."

"The Rams have been the most consistent football team in the NFL since the first two weeks of the season. There will be no room for mistakes against Los Angeles. They haven't changed a lot over the years. They're still one of the best teams in the conference."

But Bennett isn't crying poverty when it comes to offense; the Falcons average 27 points per game behind a running attack and the strong right arm of Steve Bartkowski, who is hitting 57 percent of his passes for 1,384 yards and 13 TDs. Bartkowski's interception rate is 11 times in 192 attempts to six in 148 for Ferragamo is one of the best in the NFL, but he has been sacked 12 times and the Rams boast a fearsome pass rush.

"We've got to keep a lot of different situations," said Bennett. "That's when they really put pressure on your quarterback. Jack Youngblood and those other guys come at you when they know you have to throw the ball."

Elsewhere Sunday, San Diego is at Dallas, Seattle at Oakland, Pittsburgh at Cleveland, New England at Buffalo, Cincinnati at Houston, Chicago at Philadelphia, Minnesota at Green Bay, New Orleans at Washington, Tampa Bay at San Francisco, Denver at the New York Giants, Detroit at Kansas City and St. Louis at Baltimore. Miami is at the New York Jets Monday night.

San Diego, 5-2, needs a victory to remain atop the AFC West and the Chargers haven't met Dallas, 5-2, since 1972. The Chargers average a league-best 30 points per game, come off a 44-7 trouncing of the New York Giants in which Dan Fouts threw for a career-high 444 yards.

Cowboys, who have an early NFC East showdown 17-0 against Philadelphia last week, rushed for only 46 yards against the Eagles and Danny White, the NFC's third-rated quarterback, may be himself under immense pressure from an overlooked San Diego defense which has already notched 25 sacks.

Seattle and Oakland, both 4-3, share the second-place spot in the West and the Seahawks are riding a four-game winning streak over the Raiders. Running back Kenny King continues to sparkle for Oakland, ranking third in the conference with 484 yards and sporting an outstanding 5.5 yards-per-carry average.

Seattle quarterback Jim Zorn is hitting 59 percent of his passes and wide receivers Sam McCullum and Steve Watson have combined for 53 receptions and eight TDs.

Brett heads AL all-star honor squad

NEW YORK (UPI) — Third baseman George Brett, whose .390 batting average for the Kansas City Royals was the highest in the major leagues since 1941, was the only unanimous choice for UPI's 1980 American League All-Star team.

Other Kansas City stars selected for the team, picked Friday in a survey of 50 sports editors and writers around the country, were outfielder Willie Wilson and designated hitter Hal McRae.

The New York Yankees, who lost to the Royals in the American League Championship Series, placed four men on the team — catcher Rick Cerone, second baseman Willie Randolph, outfielder Reggie Jackson and reliever Rich Goossage.

Rounding out the squad were first baseman Cecil Cooper, shortstop Robin Yount and outfielder Ben Oglive of the Milwaukee Brewers and pitchers Steve Stone of the Baltimore Orioles and Mike Norris of the Oakland A's.

Brett received 49 of 50 votes for third base with one writer selecting Buddy Bell of the Texas Rangers for that position but picking Brett as the club's designated hitter.

Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The way-out two diamonds

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

In normal expert bidding, two clubs is an artificial forcing bid. It shows a strong notrump hand or the equivalent of a forcing two bid in an unbalanced suit.

Other opening two bids show from 6-11 high-card points and a good six-card suit. A 2♣ opening is a sample two-suit opening.

It also has been found that a weak two-diamond can't be worth much and really is discarded for it has been discovered.

The most popular is the Flannery convention. The Flannery two diamonds shows 11-15 HCP with five hearts and four spades. Something like: S-K Q x x H-A K x x x

D. x x C. x x. Hands like this one are hard to bid in standard methods. Flannery takes good care of them.

An even more complicated use is to show three four-card suits, a singleton and some point range, usually 11-16.

Both Flannery and the three-suit bid work out well a good part of the time; but unless the users have a very thorough knowledge of what they are doing, the bid can blow up in their own faces.

We are going to dispose of way-out bids now with this comment: Any expert pair should use whatever complicated bids they want. Other players had best stick close to standard methods. They work most of the time and they make the game much more fun.
