Record Gem vote seen Church-Symms race tops general election ballot

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

It began here one year, nine months, three weeks and four days ago.

It ends here today. On Jan. 10, 1979, the first shot was fired. A group called "Anybody-But-Church" was formed in Boise and the Frank Church-Syems race for Idaho's U.S. Senate seat began.

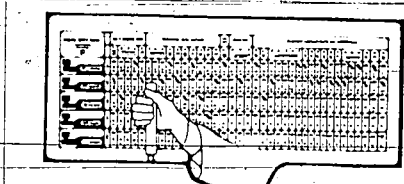

Today, or possibly early Wednesday, some $3 million in campaign funds later, either Church or Symms will accept their victory in Boise where it began.

Magic Valley residents can cast their ballots between 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. A forecast of mild weather also could enhance today's showing at the polls.

The Church-Symms race has been Idaho's longest, most expensive and, perhaps, most bitter election ever. In the final hours, both candidates are still saying the race is too close to call and polls by media throughout Idaho are inconclusive.

It is the major reason a record number of voters are expected at the polls today. Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa is predicting around 400,000 - of the 530,000 Idahoans voting.

The previous record vote was 554,556 in the 1976 Idaho general election.

A third candidate for the U.S. Senate, Libertarian Larry Fulmer, also will be on the ballot. In addition to Idaho's U.S. Senate race, the presidential contest has sparked interest, with Idahoans choosing from among five candidates.

Republican Ronald Reagan, generally acknowledged as the front-runner in Idaho, is being challenged by incumbent President and Democrat Jimmy Carter, Libertarian Ed Clark, Independent John Anderson, and American Party candidate John Harick. Magic Valley voters will also choose a 2nd District congressman. Republican incumbent George Hansen is being challenged by Democrat Wayne Bilyeu. Both are expected to be electing a new U.S. Representative, with 105 legislative seats up for grabs. Clashes also are expected in several areas, with Democrats vying for control of the state government.

In the more hotly contested races in the Magic Valley are the District-26 Senate race between Republican Dean VanEngelen and Democrat Marie Hunsel. District-26 contains most of Cassia County. In District 21, Democrat John Peavey is battling Republican Maurice Ellsworth, also for a Senate seat. District 21 contains Blaine County, most of Minidoka County and half of Lincoln County.

In District 23, Republican Laird Noh is opposed by Democrat Lloyd Shawmaker and American Party candidate Howard Buhler. In the race to capture the Senate seat previously held by Richard High, this district contains the northeast corner of Twin Falls County.

District 24 offers a House race between Republican Hoy Brackett and Democrat George Anthony. This district contains the rest of Twin Falls County.

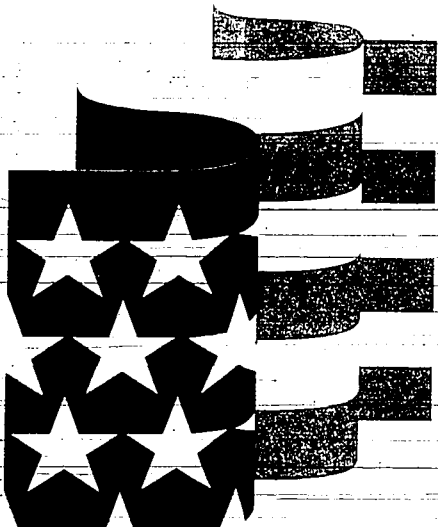

Elsewhere in the state, leaders in both parties predict several close races in Ada and Canyon Counties.

In the race to fill Symms' 1st Congressional District seat, the undecided vote is the key in Tuesday's showdown between Midvale Republican Larry Craig and Boise Democrat Glenn Nichols.

A recent statewide poll gave Craig the nod over Nichols, with 39 percent of those planning to vote still undecided.

Idahoans will also vote on two proposed constitutional amendments. One would make it less expensive for hospitals affiliated with religious orders to borrow money. The other would make it easier to pass initiatives.

Also on the ballot are numerous offices on the county level, including commissioners, sheriffs, prosecuting attorneys, assessors and coroners.

Presidential battle closes with appeals

President Carter appealed Monday for Democrats not to desert their party and for John Anderson supporters not to waste their votes.

Ronald Reagan asked Americans if they are happier today than when Carter took over the White House.

Reagan was leading Carter slightly in most final polls on election eve. But seldom has the climax of a national election been as volatile as this year. The long-awaited release of the 52 American hostages in Iran could make all the polls meaningless.

Carter predicted victory, and as he completed his final coast-to-coast, six-state campaign swing made it called a "special appeal" to potential Anderson voters.

"There is a lot in common between us and I am asking you in these last few hours not to waste your vote," he said at a huge rally in Detroit.

Reagan, meanwhile, concluded his 12-year quest for the presidency with a nationally-televised appeal for support. In it, Reagan urged his audience to ask themselves a number of questions about how they view themselves and the country.

"Most importantly," he said, "the basic question of our lives—Are you happier today than when Mr. Carter became president of the United States?"

Reagan, campaigning from Illinois to the West Coast, answered "No" when asked if he thought the change in the hostage situation hurt him politically and his staff believed the former California governor had the race won.

On election eve, UPI reporters surveyed 12 tossup states whose 137 votes will decide the election. The survey showed Carter had made no headway in swinging them to his column and in one—Florida—Reagan had pulled into a narrow lead.

Reagan does not have to win many of the tossup states to claim victory. UPI's survey, taken one week before the election, showed him leading in 24 states with 245 electoral votes or just 25 short of the 270 needed for election.

Also on the ballot Tuesday are all 435 House seats, 33 Senate races and 13 governorships. Republicans once hoped to make big gains in the Democrats' 273-139 edge in the House (there are three vacancies) and 59-41 margin in the Senate, but apparently will have to settle for small gains.

Voters will decide on hundreds of propositions on tax cuts, nuclear power and other controversial issues, as well as elect state legislators that

'Lucky Buck' Rogers, Utopian didn't make Idaho ballot

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idahoans have five presidential candidates to choose from today. But according to election clerks in Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa's office, 10 times that number of persons wanted a spot on the Gem state ballot.

"Lucky Buck" Rogers, the candidate of the American Mugwump Party wanted a ballot slot, said Penny Yursa, a Cenarrusa assistant. So did Ernest ("Utopia in '80") Whitford, Ray Rollinson ("The Great Poet from Yonkers"), "Good Time" Charlie Deshon and 50 other unsuccessful candidates.

None of them made it onto the state ballot. But Cenarrusa's staff insists it wasn't because of any opposition on their part to utopia, good times, poetry or lucky bucks.

Idaho law specifically sets requirements which must be met before a candidate seeking the presidency can appear on the ballot. Mrs. Yursa said, the only candidates who met those requirements were—Ronald Reagan, Jimmy Carter, John Anderson, Ed Clark and John

The inquiries about Idaho's election process began arriving last year, she said. Most were formal requests contained in standard business letters. Most, but not all, Robert B. Hulick of Waco, Texas, declared his candidacy for the presidency in a letter to Cenarrusa written on the back of a Mr. Donut napkin.

"We filed it, just like the other letters," said Mrs. Yursa.

Most of the 54 also-rans also have their own platforms. Rogers, for instance, preaches a strict fiscal conservatism, warning that "if communists gain control of the nation, our mon..."

equivalent to two whoops in hell. Your money and my money will be gone with the wind."

Rollinson says he ran for the presidency because "my destiny is manifest." Rollinson sent Cenarrusa several recent poems he has written. In one, he entitled "We'll Bring Show Not Fly At Night," he argues that admitting Israel to statehood "would solve the problems of the Mideast."

Then there's Dr. Joseph Jeffers of Jacksonville, Fla., who sought the Jeffers of the traditional campaign literature, in addition to a traditional campaign literature.

Algeria gives U.S. official terms to bring hostages home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Algeria's ambassador Monday gave the State Department the official version of Iran's conditions for freeing the American hostages, but the administration offered no immediate response.

Shortly before the text was delivered, Secretary of State Edmund Muskie told reporters it will take "time, patience and diplomacy" to free the 52 Americans.

Muskie said he welcomed the Algerian government as a channel of communications between the United States and Iran. Algerian Ambassador Redha Malek spent 45 minutes earlier Monday discussing the situation with Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher.

State Department spokesman Jack Cannon said Malek then presented the English and Farsi versions of the Iranian demands to Assistant Secretary of State Harold Saunders at 12:30 p.m. MST.

Cannon said Saunders gave no reply to the ambassador and the documents were being studied to see if they are the same as the broadcast version of the Iranian parliament's resolution. Algeria represents Iran's interest in the United States since the break in diplomatic relations.

Para news agency in Iran distributed what it said was the official version. Although the language seemed more carefully drawn, there appeared to be no additional demands added by the executive branch of the Iranian government to the four basic demands by the parliament.

In the parliament's resolution, the 52 Americans were referred to as "criminals" or "spies." In the official version handed to the State Department, the Americans are referred to as "hostages."

Muskie, in a statement on the eve of the first anniversary of the hostage seizure, said he considers the latest developments encouraging, but said they "should be viewed as initial steps in a process which will require, time, patience and diplomacy."

Muskie said "it is in our interest" for the Iranian government to assume responsibility for the hostages, who have been held until now by militants.

Muskie also welcomed the report the Iranian prime minister's office has established a "working group" to deal with hostage matters.

In Tehran Monday, a large delegation of the Moslem militants who have held 49 of the hostages since last Nov. 4—the other three were last reported held in the Foreign Ministry—called on Islamic leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, and volunteered to relinquish control of the Americans. Khomeini agreed.

He repeated President Carter's statement the administration cannot predict when the hostages will be home.

Stars' cancer may be linked to nuclear test

JOHN WAYNE
... among movie cast

NEW YORK (UPI) — The cancer deaths of actors John Wayne, Susan Hayward and Dick Powell may be linked to A-bomb tests conducted by the government in 1953 in Yucca Flat, Nev., People magazine reports.

In this week's issue, People said it interviewed 150 actors and crew members who filmed the movie "The Conqueror" near Yucca Flat a year after the tests and found that of the total movie company of 250 people, 91 of them developed cancer.

"Forty-six of the cancer victims died of the disease, including Wayne, Hayward and Powell," People said. "Another 'Conqueror' star, Pedro Armendariz, committed suicide in 1982 after learning he had terminal cancer of the lymphatic system."

In addition, Michael Wayne, 45, son of John Wayne who had accompanied his father to the film site, developed skin cancer in 1975.

The magazine said 11 A-bomb tests took place at Yucca Flats the year before a total of 250 people participated in the production of "The Conqueror" 137 miles away at St. George, Utah.

On April 25, 1953, a 51.5-kiloton bomb code-named

"Simon" was fired, the magazine said. By contrast, it said, the A-bomb dropped on Hiroshima, Japan, was only 13 kilotons.

The magazine quotes Dr. Robert C. Pendleton, director of Radiological Health at the University of Utah, as saying that the connection between fallout radiation and cancer in individual cases has been practically impossible to prove conclusively.

"But in a group this size," Pendleton said referring to the movie company, "you'd expect only 30-35 cancers to develop. With 91, I think the tie-in to their exposure on the set of 'The Conqueror' would hold up even in court of law."

"With these numbers, this case could qualify as an epidemic."

The magazine said several young children of the late stars are considering filing a lawsuit against the U.S. government charging negligence.

Sen. Edward Kennedy's subcommittee on health has scheduled hearings in January on the atomic tests and cancer rates in nearby areas.

Mob case in hands of jurors

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The prosecutor in the trial of five Southern California Mafia leaders told the jury Monday they had a "unique opportunity" to rid Los Angeles of the mob by convicting the defendants of murder and extortion charges.

"Are you going to find these defendants guilty so the Los Angeles La Cosa Nostra can be eliminated quickly and completely, or acquit them? so they will go back on the street?" asked prosecutor Jim Henderson. "I'm going to ask you to find them guilty."

The request brought to an end all the testimony and arguments against and on behalf of Dominick Phillip Brooklier, 66, identified as boss of the Los Angeles family; Samuel Orlando Sciorano, 61, the group's underboss; and Louis Tom Dragna, 68; Michael Rizzitello, 53, and Jack LoCicero, 68.

They are accused of conspiring to kill Frank "The Bomb" Bompensiero, the head of the mob's San Diego operation and an FBI informant who was gunned-down in 1977; and to make money from gamblers, book makers and pornographers in Nevada and Southern California.

The case was presented to the jury after a long instruction from U.S. District Court Judge Terry Hatter. The panelists planned to pick a foreman Monday night but delay the start of actual deliberations until this morning.

Hatter told the jury he scheduled the day's session for 11 a.m., an unusually late starting time, to make sure they had "time" to perform your duty and vote.

Decrees could meet Iran conditions

By JIM ANDERSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Legal sources close to the Iranian government said Monday President Carter can meet Iran's four conditions for release of the hostages by simply issuing decrees.

Administration officials said they will not comment on the matter until they see the text of demands laid out Sunday by Iran's parliament.

But sources who have worked closely with the government in Tehran said Carter need not wait for any court actions to solve even the two knottiest issues set out by the parliament.

Analysis

Under the procedure the sources outlined, Iran might save billions of dollars by releasing the 60 Americans before U.S. courts start handing down judgments on 270 claims filed against the Tehran government.

The two key issues are:

- A demand the United States return the late Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's wealth to Tehran. Sources said the Iran government probably would be satisfied if Carter ordered U.S. banks to identify any funds belonging to the Shah's estate.

That would open the way for Tehran to file suit in American courts to reclaim the money, the sources said. They said Iran would not ask the United States to hand over the money outright.

- Freeing Iran from legal claims against the $8-billion Iranian assets now frozen in the United States. Although there is legal controversy on the issue, sources said Iran's "foreign sovereign immunity" would be restored automatically if President Carter unfroze the assets.

Under a U.S.-Iran treaty, which is still in effect despite a break in diplomatic relations, immunity means Iran's assets in the United States cannot be seized by claimants until a judge hands down a court decision.

Without that sovereign immunity, Iran's assets in the United States could be attached when a claim is filed, and before a judgment is handed down.

No verdicts have been issued on the 270 claims filed so far — most of them by companies that lost goods and property when Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini took over Iran. But federal courts have begun hearing the cases.

The total claims pending in U.S. courts just about equal the initial value of the $8 billion in frozen Iranian assets.

The other two issues — unfreezing Iran's assets and a U.S. pledge to keep out of Iran's affairs — were described by the sources as "no problem."

Reagan favored but betting Election that way looks mighty risky

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Election Day consensus is that Ronald Reagan leads President Carter, but don't bet the rent that's the way it will come out when the votes are counted.

Even the pollsters have thrown up their hands this year.

"Never in the 45-year history of presidential election surveys has the Gallup Poll found such volatility and uncertainty," says the proprietor of one of the nation's most famous public opinion surveys.

Actually, the national poll figures, which relate to the popular vote, loses meaning in the 1980 election. What counts now are results from the big electoral vote states that will give one of the candidates the foundation of victory.

Pre-election weekend reports from those states indicate it is going to be easier for Reagan to put together the 270 electoral votes needed to win the presidency than for Carter.

The states that have more than a dozen electoral-votes are California; 40; New York, 41; Pennsylvania, 27; Illinois and Texas, 26 each; Ohio, 25; Michigan, 21; Florida and New Jersey, 17 each; Massachusetts, 14; and Indiana and North Carolina, 13 each.

A presidential candidate could win the election with 272 electoral votes by carrying the first 10 states in that list and either Indiana or North Carolina. But that is not likely to happen this year.

If the pre-election analyses are right, Reagan and Carter will split California and New York, which means there will be no big state sweep.

The final UPI survey of pre-election prospects rated Illinois, Ohio, Michigan and New Jersey as leaning to Reagan; Indiana as solid for the GOP candidate; with California, those five states would give Reagan 147 electoral votes.

The tossup states in the dozen-plus list were Pennsylvania and Texas. Even if Reagan wins only the smallest of those three, the UPI calculation would give him at least 164 electoral votes, 106 short of the required 270.

The remaining 15 "solid Reagan" states in the survey, mostly smaller states in the Midwest and West, would give him another 73 electoral votes, 33 shy of 270. He could reach victory by carrying the three biggest states left on the "tossup" list — Virginia, Wisconsin and Louisiana.

What stands out in this scenario of a Reagan victory is that he must carry a number of eastern industrial states where Democrats usually win local, state and congressional offices.

That has been done before by Republicans — Dwight Eisenhower and Richard Nixon — and the recent examples are a key to their success was projecting themselves as moderates and Reagan has sought to do the same.

Reagan and Carter would choose the president," Powell said.

Reagan would follow a similar schedule — campaigning in Illinois before flying to the West Coast for final appearances in Portland, Ore., and San Diego, then going home to Los Angeles to vote.

Seeming confident of victory, the Republican candidate said he believes millions of disaffected Democrats are going to put country above party in this election. And his aides reflected similar beliefs.

Both camps avoided any comment about the hostage situation.

"We're not going to comment on the hostage situation today, with the obvious exception if there are significant developments," Powell said. But Carter was prepared to cut short his campaign schedule if the developments warrant his presence at the White House.

Reagan said he hoped there would be a speedy solution to the hostage situation and beyond that would make no further comment on it, concentrating instead on his familiar attack on Carter's economic record.

Anderson began the final day of his independent effort in Minneapolis where he was greeted by four new polls showing him carrying 10 percent or less of the vote. For the first time he conceded the "slight possibility" he will not win the presidential election.

The polls show Anderson will carry no state.

On a down home note, John V. Sprague, the Boise-based coordinator for the National Statesman-Party, wanted his candidate on the ballot. Who was his candidate? According to Sprague, his first choice was Anita Bryant, "a queen for Mrs. Bryant, the party had tried to secure daredevil Evil Kneivel."

Then there's Ernest Willford campaigning on the "Utopia in '80" platform, who says his aims are simple. "My goal is to bring peace to the world, jobs for all, better health and more happiness to this troubled world."

Willford also sought the presidency four years ago, when his campaign slogan was "Utopia in '76."

This year Willford says the nation is in severe trouble.

"The State of the Union can be summed up in one word: Constipation," Willford says. "What this country needs is a little bran."

Among political button buyers, Miss Piggy's way out in front

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Carter and Ronald Reagan may be running neck and neck in the race for the White House, but they're both far behind Miss Piggy, "None of the Above" and even J.R. Ewing, one opinion poll shows.

The new poll was put together by Mark Jacobs, owner of the American Collectibles shop, where campaign buttons sell by the thousands.

"Political button collectors are the only people in the world who can name the losing vice presidential candidates," boasts Kefauver, John Sparkman, Earl Warren, Bill Miller," boasts Jacobs, who claims to have the largest collection of all.

To date, he estimates he has sold over 5,000 buttons. With 500 of these reading "Miss Piggy for President," Jacobs figures the Muppet lovely is the clear front runner.

Carter and Reagan are running together somewhere behind Pogo Possum.

Jacobs believes anti-buttons are outselling everything else this election because of a general apathy toward Carter and Reagan.

"But anti-buttons are nothing new. In 1952, Pennsylvania pig farmer Henry Kajewski ran as the

Mark Jacobs shows leader in his in-store poll of buyers

Poor People's Party candidate, with a button slogan taken off of the ever popular "I Like Ike" buttons. Kajewski's buttons read, "I don't like Ike, I don't like Adlai."

Then there's an "Embargo Carter, 1980" button printed by the American Agriculture Movement.

A "Hey Billy, $220,000 buys a lotta nuts" button offsets one that says "Keep Miss Lillian First Mother."

Jacobs says he'll stand by his poll.

Harris predicts Reagan win

DETROIT (UPI) — Pollster Louis Harris predicted Monday Ronald Reagan will win Tuesday and the margin of victory will come from members of Moral Majority, a conservative religious-political movement.

Calling himself the only national pollster who is not saying the election is too close to call, Harris told the Detroit Economic Club it is unlikely last-minute developments in the hostage crisis will affect the outcome.

Harris said voters who identify with Moral Majority "are proving to be decisive."

"If it weren't for the Moral Majority votes Reagan is getting, he wouldn't be ahead ... he'd be behind by 1 percent or so," Harris said.

The final Harris Poll, based on interviews Friday and Saturday, gave Reagan 45 percent, Carter 40 percent, Anderson 10 percent, others 1 percent and 4 percent undecided.

Harris said the only way President Carter could overcome Reagan's lead would be to win six of the seven major northern states and recoup losses in his native South.

"Ronald Reagan is giving Jimmy Carter the run for his life in the South," he said.

Harris said the president "will be lucky to break even in terms of electoral votes in the South" which means Carter "has got to win it in the North" for re-election.

He said it is not likely independent John Anderson will get enough votes to deny Reagan or Carter a majority of the electoral votes.

Harris said his polls indicate voters are not pleased with either major party candidate. Instead, he said, "People are making up their minds ... on the basis of which candidate they feel most negative about."

The turnout on Election Day is another factor that must be considered, Harris said. But he said "the burden is more on the Democrats."

A 58 percent turnout, for example, could cut Reagan's lead from 5 percent to 2 percent, he said.

Feminists in last minute pitch for Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several feminists, citing clashes last week between Equal Rights Amendment advocates and Ronald Reagan supporters, Monday urged voters to reject the GOP presidential candidate.

Eleanor Smeal, president of the National Organization for Women, cited six incidents last week at pro-ERA demonstrations organized by NOW during Reagan rallies in Houston, Dallas, New Orleans, Pittsburgh, Upper Darby, Pa., and Des Moines, Ill.

"That his supporters can get away with open hostility toward women in front of the candidate is further evidence that Reagan's statements of support for women's rights are only lip service," she told a news conference attended by three other feminists opposed to Reagan.

Also appearing at the news conference were feminist Gloria Steinem; Sonia Johnson, who was excommunicated from the Mormon Church because of her support for the ERA; and Anita DeFrantz, the Olympic rower who filed suit against Carter in an unsuccessful effort to overturn his decision to prohibit American athletes from participating in the Moscow Olympics.

Demonstrators turned away

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Radical socialist demonstrators attempted to invade Reagan-Bush headquarters in San Francisco Monday just as Mrs. Nancy Reagan was finishing a campaign appearance there.

Secret Service agents hustled Mrs. Reagan through the crowd of shouting demonstrators, who then tried to get into the headquarters, but were locked out. Police arrested eight of the screaming, kicking demonstrators.

The group of about 35 radicals said they were seeking independence for Puerto Rico.

A similar demonstration was staged by more than two dozen demonstrators in and outside the Democratic Party campaign headquarters near downtown Los Angeles, disrupting the office for more than three hours by shouting and chanting.

"Carter says statehood, we say no! Free Puerto Rico, right, right now!"

Campaign workers at first asked police to not make arrests, but five protesters who refused repeated requests to disperse were finally arrested.

Clark says he's only alternative

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ed Clark, the Libertarian Party presidential nominee, said Monday he — not John Anderson — is the only real alternative to voters tired of President Carter and worried about Ronald Reagan.

Clark told reporters that Anderson, who is running an independent campaign, "provided an alternative personality, but no alternative ideas" to the Democratic and Republican nominees.

"The Libertarian Party gives voters an affirmative choice for low taxes and peace," Clark said.

Sign encouraging

LIBERTY, Mo. (UPI) — Rosalynn Carter called "an encouraging sign" the release of American hostages by Iranian militants to government control.

"That's a very encouraging sign because now we have a government to deal with," she said at a news conference before a speech at a junior high school.

Asked by reporters if the president manipulated negotiations to release the hostages for political purposes, Mrs. Carter said, "I think if people knew he could have done this, he would have done it long before this."

Now it's your turn: Vote!

The hoopla is over. It is time for the voters of Idaho and America to make their decisions cause, the pollsters say, many voters to protest by staying home.

The polls are open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., which should give everyone plenty of time to get to their precincts. We suggest, however, that because of the expected heavy turnout in Idaho you try to cast your ballot as early in the day as possible.

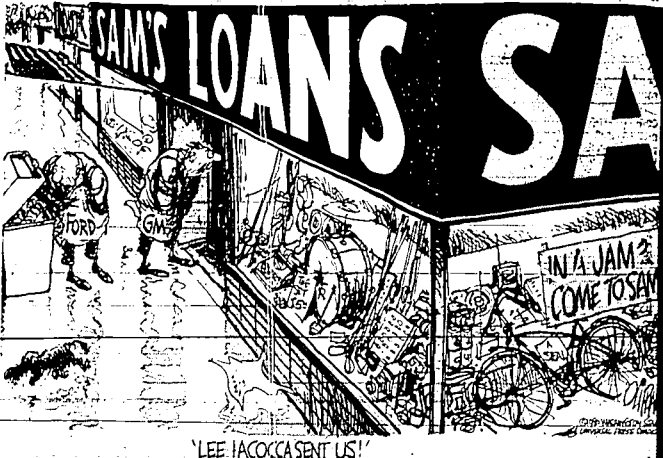

All indications are, however, that this will not be the case in Idaho — and that is encouraging. All eyes will be on the U.S. Senate race, but there are many other state and county level races that are just as important and deserve top consideration from the electorate.

Still undecided in some contested races? Consult the "Times-News voter's guide" published Monday, Oct. 27. If you can't find a copy, visit our offices and we'll be happy to give you another. The guide contains information from the presidential race right down to the local races in the Magic Valley.

Remember, today is your chance to have something to say about who leads this country for the next four years, who will represent Idaho in the U.S. Senate for a six-year term, who your state legislators will be for two years and who will fill local offices.

A great deal has been said during this campaign year about the quality of the candidates on the national level. That could

My Bendix problem

© Los Angeles Times Syndicate

WASHINGTON — The big story this month has not been the presidential campaign or the war in Iran, but the saga of Mary Cunningham, the brilliant 23-year-old Harvard Business School graduate who climbed her way up the corporate ladder of the Bendix Corporation in 15 months to become an executive vice president, only to be forced to resign because she was too beautiful, too young and too close to the chairman of the board.

on readership interest, we may soon be reading countless other Mary Cunningham sagas from "Fortune Magazine's 500-leading corporations list."

My worry is that most people will get a distorted view of the executive suite and how we operate. As most people know, this column is a conglomerate. We're into books, lecturing, recycling of old columns, and TV and theatrical enterprises — too numerous to mention.

As chairman of the board, I was on the lookout sometime ago for a smart, young, beautiful person who could be my secretary and handle my mail and checkbook calls. I found one at Georgetown University who fitted all the requirements and hired her.

There are only two of us. Jeannie Aylor became my confidante and closest adviser. Since she also corrected my grammar I realized she had great potential. But as soon as she started showing some talent, people in other offices on my floor started whispering that the only reason Jeannie had gotten where she was in my organization was because there was something going on between us.

Then she came in one day and asked for a raise. I told her I couldn't give her a raise but I would make her my executive assistant. All the other people on the floor were outraged, and said to each other that if it hadn't been for her looks she would never have been made an executive assistant in such a short time. But I ignored the whispering because Jeannie was too valuable to me to replace.

Six months later, she came to me again and said she was desperate for more money. I said she had hit me at a bad time, and instead of a raise, would make her Vice President of the Columbia.

Once again there was shock and outrage on the floor. Jeannie had been with me less than a year and yet she was in on all my important business decisions. Evans and Novak said that if Jeannie was a man she would never have been made Vice President of the Columbia in so short a time.

The final blow came a month ago when Jeannie again asked for a raise. This time I had no choice but to make her Executive Vice President of Mergers and Acquisitions, which meant ordering my lunch for me in the office when I didn't go out.

This was too much for everyone on the floor to swallow and the pressure is on now for me to ask for her resignation.

But I'm hanging tough. If she couldn't do the job she wouldn't be here and her beauty has nothing to do with her new title.

The lesson in all this is that some companies — such as Bendix — give women titles because they are better than men at what they're doing. Others such as mine hand them out in lieu of giving a person a raise.

Paying for harm we do

© Universal Press Syndicate

WASHINGTON — Courts, chemical companies, drug manufacturers and the Congress are grappling these days with a formidable problem in two broadly related areas.

One involves the Love Canal and the so-called "superfund." The other involves the drug DES and what may come to be known as the Sindell Remedy. In my own view both approaches are wrong, though for different reasons, but the problems merit your thought.

When Congress returns next week, the Senate will have high on its agenda at least two proposals to create a superfund to pay for damages resulting from chemical accidents. The bills are a direct outgrowth of the national concern that developed from the Love Canal problem in New York. There the leakage from a toxic chemical dump was blamed for chromosomal damage to humans. The alleged damage may have been exaggerated, but it was undeniably serious. Since Love Canal was declared a disaster area two years ago, attention has been drawn to an estimated 32,000 to 50,000 hazardous waste sites around the country. Those numbers also are quite probably exaggerated, but again, some degree of palpable hazard surely exists.

be applied in the courts. These elementary facts often are not known. Chemical wastes that cause alarm today may have been dumped 20, 30 or 40 years ago, under conditions thought to be quite safe at the time, by companies that no longer may be in business.

On Sept. 23, the House voted 351-23 to create a $1.2-billion superfund to clean up the 100 most dangerous sites. The chemical industry would be taxed for 75 percent of the fund; the balance would come from general funds. The Senate has its own bill, proposing a superfund of $4.1 billion financed 88 percent by industry taxes. The Senate bill covers every kind of chemical or petroleum damage.

The idea of such a superfund is sound, and it is almost immaterial whether industry is taxed for 50, or 75 or 88 percent of the cost. In the end, consumers and taxpayers — they are all the same people — will pay the cost. What is woefully wrong is the power the bills would delegate to the Environmental Protection Agency. The EPA would function as a czar, issuing authoritarian decrees from its paperwork palace. The costs to American industry, over and above the proposed taxes, would be monstrous. Unless the bills can be greatly simplified, the proposals ought to be carried over to next year.

The problem of the drug DES, Diethylstilbestrol, is quite similar, but the Sindell Remedy is quite different. Over a period of nearly 25 years, between 1947 and 1971, many physicians prescribed the drug for pregnant women in order to prevent miscarriages. An estimated 15 to 3 million women had been so treated before a disturbing and tragic correlation was discovered: Some of the daughters of these women began to develop cancer and other abnormalities of the vagina and cervix.

One such young woman, Judith Sindell, developed cancer of the bladder. She sued 11 drug firms known to be marketing DES at the time her mother was treated. She and her co-plaintiffs could not identify the individual manufacturer; the evidence no longer exists. Some unknowable A had harmed B. Who could be found liable?

The California Supreme Court cast old doctrines of tort liability to the wind, and fashioned a radical new remedy of "shared liability." The DES daughters, said the court in a 4-3 decision last March, could attempt to impose liability upon all DES manufacturers according to their share of the market 25 or 30 years ago. On Oct. 14 the U.S. Supreme Court, without comment, declined to review the case.

What is wrong here, in my view, is that the California court has usurped the responsibility of the California Legislature. So novel a doctrine as the Sindell Remedy ought not to be imposed without full legislative hearings and debate. Maybe the remedy would work, but it should not spring full-blown from the brow of four judges. In brief, we need to keep digging. The answers are as elusive as the facts.

On gleaning

Editor, Times-News: Farmers work hard to earn a living the same as other people so why do others feel like they can take advantage of us?

There was an ad placed in your paper, Oct. 24, by a farmer stating that his fields were closed until after harvest to gleaners. Why? I can't help but wonder if it's because people, wanting something for nothing, expected him to let them have potatoes, fresh, straight off the harvester. When told no, had to listen to a string of obscenities. By the way, she was driving a new Cadillac.

Or people driving into his fields, without permission, creating a hazard for his harvest work. Or maybe people who think they can dig where the farmer hasn't yet. Not gleaning the fields, but taking his income away from him.

It would be a shame for farmers to all close their fields off, allowing no gleaning, but when people take advantage of you, what would you do?

I don't like to see potatoes left in the ground to rot, and admire people who are willing to put in a little effort, and after obtaining permission, go out and glean the fields to supplement their grocery bill a little.

Just remember you are on someone else's land so use a little forethought and courtesy, stay out of the way, and a little "thank you" goes a long way. That goes for hunters, too!

TV license renewal focuses on Cowles empire

Times-News Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — For media watchers, the Cowles family of Spokane is one of the Northwest's most fascinating puzzles — the largest privately held cross ownership of television and newspapers in the region.

The Cowles' empire is the focus of a long-awaited ruling by the Federal Communications Commission, expected to be delivered at one of its November meetings. The FCC will rule on whether to renew the broadcast license for the Cowles' station, KHQ-TV in Spokane.

In a 272-page complaint before the FCC, hitherto unknown details of the Cowles family's vast holdings in media, real estate, timber and insurance are laid bare for public consumption. The product of over 200 interviews, the petition for denial of broadcast license renewal was originally a Harvard University thesis completed by a former Spokane resident, Terrence Fancher, in 1977.

Media is but one part of the Cowles' empire. Not only does the family own the city's morning and afternoon newspapers and one of its television and radio stations, it holds considerable prime downtown real estate, the area's only paper and newspaper manufacturing company, about 50,000 acres of timber land surrounding Spokane and throughout the Northwest and California, 4,000 acres of riverbank lands on both sides of the Spokane River, five agricultural magazines which circulate in the Northwest, Utah and Montana, the Northwest Farm Insurance Agency and 9 percent of the Tribune Company, a multi-hundred million dollar media conglomerate based in Chicago. The Cowles hold the second largest block of stock in the Tribune Company.

The petition for denial of license renewal describes business practices which have led to the Cowles' alleged domination of Spokane media and business. It quotes a Justice Department report done in the early 1970s which estimated that Cowles media firms controlled 79.7 percent of the total dollars spent on daily advertising dissemination in Spokane. In addition to the Cowles' NBC-affiliate station, KHQ, there are two other network affiliates in Spokane and 16 radio stations besides the one which the Cowles own.

But the irony of the Cowles' empire — and this is the undernote of Fancher's complaint — is that for all of their financial resources, the journalistic project they turn out is quite unremarkable. Among newspaper people of the Northwest, the Chronicle and the Spokesman-Review are not the highly regarded newspapers. Ralph Nader, in Spokane earlier this year, called the Spokesman-Review "the worst newspaper in America."

Since 1974, the license for the Cowles' KHQ-TV has been in deferred status because of a challenge based on anti-trust statutes, lodged by the Justice Department. The FCC was prepared to dismiss the Justice Department petition in 1977 when Fancher filed his petition.

One of Fancher's most fruitful sources was the transcript from a case in U.S. Tax Court here in 1968 over a disputed $7 million in inheritance taxes. From that transcript, Fancher learned that one of the Cowles' companies nor their affiliates had ever borrowed funds for any purpose during the past 50 years.

One of the most interesting findings which Fancher reports is results of a study completed by the Harvard Business School in 1969 for the National Association of Broadcasters. While the report was designed to be a defense of cross ownership of print and broadcast media, its results were not flattering or favorable to the Cowles' ownerships in Spokane. In its petition for denial of license renewal filed three years ago, the Justice Department cited the NAB study and said that the Spokane interviewees said:

"a. The broadcast stations and the newspapers do not compete for news. KHQ-TV uses the newspapers' stories practically verbatim.

b. The cross-owned media promote each other very heavily and the newspapers scarcely report the programming and activity of the competitors of the KHQ station.

c. The cross-owned media parallel each other in emphasizing reportage that enhances the holdings of their common owners."

Through interviews with Spokane city officials and residents, Fancher demonstrates how the Cowles influence the city's politics not so much through their newspapers and television as through their extensive ownership of downtown real estate and buildings.

One of Fancher's subjects, identified as "an appointed city official or former city official," said "As far as I have seen, all of the Cowles' media news is essentially the same opinion; there is simply no competition among them in terms of the viewpoint that they represent. I have never seen any reporting contrary to their own economic interest. This sets especially bad, I think, when you consider all the downtown property the Cowles own. They have pretty well controlled the development of downtown. If the Cowles' newspapers and broadcast stations were owned by someone absolutely free of downtown property, we would have a better city."

A Washington lawyer handling the KHQ-TV license renewal for the Cowles, says, "We don't think we (Fancher) has raised anything that is anything. It goes into a lot of ancient history, and he has no support for anything whatsoever. They are allegations not supported by any documentation. These allegations were investigated by the Justice Department before they withdrew their complaint, and we got a clean bill of health."

Whether the FCC will ever listen to Spokane residents' opinions on the Cowles' ownership of KHQ is doubtful, in part because Fancher's complaints are three years old and may be considered no longer germane. An FCC held hearing into a license renewal is a serious matter and not frequently called for. The more likely action by the FCC would be for it to renew KHQ-TV's license, with a wrist-slapping at worst.

Supreme Court to rule when campaign starts

Tuesday, November 4, 1980 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-5

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the eve of the 1980 election, the Supreme Court Monday agreed to consider whether the Federal Communications Commission or the Election Network may decide when the campaign season begins.

The justices took up a challenge by CBS, ABC and NBC to a ruling that they acted unconstitutionally by refusing to sell prime television time to President Carter's campaign committee more than a year ago.

In other election-related action, the court turned aside arguments by ousted Sen. Michael Myers, seeking re-election today, that his bribery indictment in the FBI's Abscam probe was illegal.

The Pennsylvania Democrat

challenged the indictment on grounds the Justice Department violated the constitutional separation of powers by setting up the undercover investigation.

The court also refused to review a challenge by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce to the federal election laws that limit solicitation by corporations for political contributions.

Also Monday, the high court:

- Cleared the way for the immediate transfer of up to 2,000 Cuban and Haitian refugees to Puerto Rico from makeshift camps near Miami, Fla.
- Let stand a ruling that the exclusive rights to market Elvis Presley's name and image did not survive his death.
- Agreed to decide whether confining two prisoners in a cell designed for one is cruel and unusual punishment barred by the Constitution.

- Announced it will hear arguments on whether colleges that take federal financial aid must pay for sign language interpreters for deaf students.
- In a new type of sex discrimination case, agreed to consider whether sex-based wage discrimination suits may be brought under Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

The case brought by the networks arose in October, 1979, when Gerald Ralshoon, Carter's media adviser, tried to buy 30 minutes of prime time for a program tied to Carter's re-election announcement.

Each network said it was too early in the campaign to start such ads. If they granted the request, they said, it could start a flood of requests from other presidential candidates demanding equal time, and disrupt regular programming.

Also, they argued, local affiliates would be swamped with similar demands from local, state and congressional candidates.

The Carter-Mondale committee complained to the FCC, which found the networks had violated the Communications Act providing licensing for "willful or repeated failure to allow reasonable access to or to permit purchase of reasonable amounts of time" by federal candidates.

The refusal by all the networks to sell the time indicated a blanket policy, and the networks failed to make an assessment of each candidate's needs, the FCC said.

Also, it noted, the sale of time was appropriate because the presidential campaign was already "in full swing."

An appeals court upheld the FCC, rejecting network arguments that letting the FCC decide when the campaign started violated First Amendment free press protections.

The appeals panel said, "Simply put, no all aspects of the broadcasting business enjoy constitutional protection. It is the editorial process that is protected."

Atlanta seeks help from FBI

ATLANTA (UPI) — Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown asked the FBI Monday to provide official aid in a 15-month string of abduction slayings in which 15 black children have disappeared or died.

Brown warned that "parents have to know where their children are," and promised "aggressive policing of this city" and said children found on the streets even before 11 p.m. curfew would be sent home.

FTC streamlines oil pricing case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission staff has streamlined its price conspiracy case against eight big oil firms in a move that may yield a court verdict in just three or four years, a government lawyer said Monday.

The agency issued a new 394-page case document during the week-end, deleting some issues initially raised in the case, but still accusing the companies of "a powerful inference of conspiracy" before 1973.

The attorney, who spoke not for attribution, said the FTC staff's decision to steadily narrow the issues draws on a procedure adopted by the judge in the celebrated AT&T antitrust case.

Two issues dropped from the case document dealt with anti-competitive effect of interlocking corporate directorates and alleged efforts to weaken independent rivals.

Respondents in the FTC complaint are Exxon, Texaco, Gulf, Mobil, Standard of California, Standard of Ohio, Atlantic Richfield and Shell.

Spokesmen for several of the firms said their lawyers were studying the new document, but that they were not ready to comment on its substance.

One official said it's clear company prices rose in lockstep, but the phenomenon would be normal under heavy federal regulation that began in 1972.

Exxon attorneys took the position that the document looked like "nothing more than a restatement of the broad range of still unsupported allegations" the FTC staff had made before.

Some industry officials had estimated the massive pre-1973 crude oil price conspiracy case could drag on until the early 1990s if normal pretrial procedures were followed.

The FTC attorney said the new case document still charges "a tacit conspiracy with regard to raising crude oil prices to artificially high levels."

It also says the firms cooperated to "maintain a non-competitive market" in such activities as marketing, refining and pipelines to keep independents "from undercutting crude prices."

Final touches put on Greyhound pact

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — Negotiators for Greyhound Lines and its 16,000 employees Monday put finishing touches on a new three-year accord in preparation for a ratification vote by rank-and-file workers.

Union officials said they were recommended approval of the proposal reached Sunday night less than three hours before a nationwide strike was set to begin against the nation's largest transportation company.

Details of the agreement were not released pending notification of the company's employees and the vote of union members.

Referendum ballots will be distributed to employees later this week and union officials planned to total the results Dec. 2.

Tape bid denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge Monday turned down a request by three networks for videotapes that led to the Abscam conviction of Rep. John Jenrette, D-S.C.

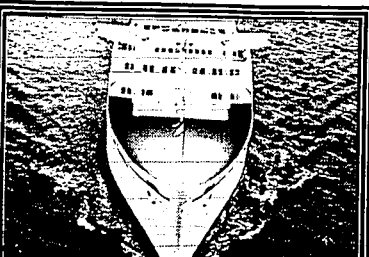

On the eve of Jenrette's race for a fourth House term, U.S. District Judge John Garrett Penn rejected arguments by NBC, CBS and ABC that they should be allowed to broadcast the tapes.

Sunrise ceremony honors hostages

HERMITAGE, Pa. (UPI) — Another American flag was raised at Hillcrest Memorial Park cemetery Monday.

It was raised in a sunrise candlelight service that paid tribute to the hostages in Iran on the first anniversary of their captivity.

A crowd of about 75 people braved the morning chill to join families of three of the hostages at the cemetery's pine-shrouded "Avenue of Flags," where one flag flies to commemorate each day of the hostages' confinement. Some of the flags have been tailored and shredded by the elements of four seasons' past.

As the morning sky broke into shades of blue, grey and gold over the Shenango Valley, Richard Hermening of Cudahy, Wis., father of hostage Kevin Hermening, hoisted the 366th flag.

A local high school concert choir intoned "The Star Spangled Banner" and his wife, Pauline, wept softly.

Nearly, a commemorative flame continued to burn. It will be extinguished only when the hostages return home.

Inside a circus-like tent, Hermening joined Gary and Cynthia Cooke of Pittsburgh, brother and sister-in-law of hostage Donald Cooke, former vice consul in Tehran, and Mrs. Eleanor Kunkle of Indiana, mother of hostage Frederick Kunkle, in lighting four rows of 13 white luminaries honoring the 52 hostages.

The hour-long ceremony, which also featured speeches by local officials and high school students, was the fourth of its kind held at Hillcrest about 75 miles north of Pittsburgh since January. The others marked the hostages' 100th, 200th and 300th days in captivity.

Following the proceedings, Hermening, Cooke and Mrs. Kunkle expressed guarded optimism that their loved ones would soon return home.

"I'm more optimistic than I have been in the past," said Hermening. "They've told us all along that Iranian parliament would decide the issue and now the ground rules are there. Now, hopefully, it's just a matter of working out the details."

Mrs. Kunkle said she was trying to avoid becoming over-optimistic.

"I'm not going to get too optimistic at this point," she said, her voice wavering. "You have to protect yourself from your emotions. There have been too many ups and downs all year. It's been a bad time for all of us."

Mrs. Kunkle said the Carter administration should give in to the four demands the Iranians have set as conditions for the hostages' release.

"The demand should be met," she said. "As family people we say yes. This has gone on long enough. They've led us around by the nose long enough."

BILOXI, Miss. (UPI) — After three days of tests at an Air Force hospital, doctors released Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., Monday, saying he suffered a severely upset stomach.

Rep. Buffington, the senator's press aide, said Stennis, 79, planned to spend the week at his home in Dekalb after his release from Keesler Air Force Base Medical Center and return to Washington Nov. 12 for the resumption of the current congressional session.

Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, entered the hospital early Friday with severe abdominal pains, but tests showed he suffered only a severely upset stomach, Buffington said.

Stennis was campaigning on President Carter's behalf in southern Mississippi when he became ill.

Another hint of possible wedding

Anita, friend 'discuss' plans

SELMA, Ala. (UPI) — A longtime friend of anti-gay rights crusader Anita Bryant said Monday the former orange juice queen and Alabama Industrialist Larry Striplin Jr. have discussed marriage, "but nothing is set in cement."

"They have discussed it, and they have discussed it with me," said Bobbie Ames, who was host to Miss Bryant after her divorce this summer, "but nothing is set in cement."

Anita has four children to consider and he has children too. "I want God's will for their life, but both of them have experienced a failure in marriage. So it is a momentous decision."

Mrs. Ames said Miss Bryant and Striplin are "near a decision" on marriage after dating steadily since last July.

Striplin, 50, head of Circle S Industries, is a former basketball coach at Belmont College in Nashville, Tenn. He returned Sunday from Saudi Arabia where he reportedly sold $70 million worth of windows to Saudi royalty.

ANITA BRYANT
...nothing set in cement"
He could not be reached for comment Monday.
Miss Bryant and three of her four children returned to Selma this summer after starting divorce proceedings against ex-husband Bob Green in Miami. Miss Bryant, 40, claimed Green and his associates were using Anita Bryant Ministries to their personal advantage.

While in Selma, Miss Bryant and her children stayed at Mrs. Ames' farm before moving to Tulsa, Okla., where Miss Bryant grew up.

Mrs. Ames described Striplin as a "wonderful person and a good Christian."

"There is nothing I could say about him that wouldn't be wonderful," she said. "He (Striplin) met her socially around our family's supper table in late July. They really did get along well at first, but whether it was love at first sight... I'd rather her say that herself."

No marriage announcement has been made. Mrs. Ames said, because the couple "has so much to think about."

Intruder slain

CLEVELAND (UPI) — A man and his common-law wife, both firing pistols, killed a naked intruder who came crashing through their living room window because they were "panicked out of their minds," police said Monday.

Curtis D. Pope, 24, was gunned down at the home of Elijah Callah, 67, and Lillian DeVese, 55, Callah's common-law wife. He once dated Ms. DeVese's daughter Jonita, 24.

Child stolen from mother

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — A white woman posing as a hospital employee took a black baby less than 24-hours old from the arms of its mother at a local hospital and has disappeared with the infant, police said Monday.

The woman went into the room of Katherine Kyle, 22, Toledo, at St. Vincent Hospital and Medical Center late Saturday night and said some laboratory tests had to be run on the child.

Mrs. Doris Firestone, director of public relations for the hospital, said the woman told the mother, "I'm going to take the baby to have some blood drawn and I will be back in five minutes," but never returned.

Mrs. Firestone said the hospital offered a $35,000 reward for any information leading to the safe return of the child.

"This child was less than 24 hours old and has special nutritional needs," said Mrs. Firestone.

Sgt. Tom Szyskanski of the Juvenile Division of the Toledo-Police Department said "if the child isn't fed properly it will be endangered."

"This is the first time I can remember that we've had anything like this. We've had babies stolen before but not taken from a mother's arms and the person walks right out."

Practice of cremation cuts skeleton supplies

Human skulls and skeletons in good condition are getting scarce. The dental schools that sent out scouts to find skulls with the original 32 teeth were paying about $250 apiece for same not too long ago. And the price is rising, too. Full skeletons recently cost $750. That price is causing the shortage.

Must be a lot of Model A Fords still on the road. At least one big chain of muffler shops sells about 7,000 mufflers a year for Model A's. Curious. If you're not at least 47 years old, you were born after the last Model A was manufactured.

PIPE COBS

Q. What sort of corn is Pipe Corn No. 147?
A. A hybrid grown especially for making comecob pipes. All it goes to manufacturers in Washington, Mo., only place in the world where comecob pipes are made. About 10 million of them a year, to be specific. Wasn't any of it back in 1872 when old Henry Tibbe of Washington first invented that sort of pipe.

Q. What makes you yawn?
A. Practically everything of late. Wall To Wall Flip. When you're breathing down your nose, your lungs don't fill up. Your brain wants more oxygen. It sends out trigger signals to your jaws and breathing mechanisms, forcing your lungs to take on a fresh oxygen supply, which loads up the blood with same and dispatches it straightaway to the brain.

Note in print that a New York outfit is working on a fancy machine to speed up the television announcer's voice without the chipmunk effect. Is that new? Thought some recordings for the blind already were made that way. Anyhow, people comprehend more quickly than announcers can deliver. So the fast talk is expected to be highly useful. ## Oils lead stocks in sharp advance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Oil issues led the way as stocks scored their sharpest gain in a month Monday. But pre-election trading was slow amid the uncertainty over the outcome of the contest between President Carter and Ronald Reagan.

The Dow Jones industrial average climbed from the outset to gain 17.71 points to 837.20, the best advance since it jumped 15.02 points on Oct. 6. The Dow, which closed 19.11 points last week, gained 6.74 points on Friday.

New York Stock Exchange volume reached 32,800,000 shares, down from the 40,110,000 traded Friday, but far below the year's average of more than 40 million.

The slow pace was attributed to investors staying on the sidelines waiting for the outcome of today's presidential election contest between Carter and Wall Street favorite Reagan. Polls show a close race.

Stock and commodities markets will be closed Tuesday for the election.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.83 to 74.36 and the price of an average share increased 39 cents. Advances topped declines 936-601 among the 1,924 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

Oil stocks were pacesetters, rebounding from last week's selloff following news that Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau agreed to submit tax program for a tough new energy program to the courts.

Analysts said some traders may have been encouraged by indications the 52 American hostages held in Tehran, Iran, for a year may be released soon.

Experts believe the prime lending rate banks charge top corporate customers will rise to 15 percent from 14 1/2 percent soon. Yields on bonds and money instruments remained high, luring many investors away from stocks.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 40,850,688 shares, compared with 46,141,620 Friday.

The American Stock Exchange index gained 2.76 to 338.75 and the price of a share added 15 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC issues gained 0.37 to 193.15.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat, corn and oats were higher and soybeans substantially higher at the close Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.
 Wheat was up 2 1/2 to 3 cents; corn up 1 to 4 1/2; oats up 1 to 3 1/2; and soybeans up 12 to 23 cents.
 Trading was quiet most of the session but became active before the close.
 Export inspection was disappointing, falling short of what traders had expected and below last year. However, sources pointed out that the Soviet Union was buying an abnormally large amount of soybeans last year, whereas the embargo remains in force at the present time.
 Gold and silver was very strong Monday, giving support to the soybean and grain markets. The outside markets were higher.

Dear Abby

Wives against female cops

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I almost always agree with you, but your reply to JEALOUS, who was upset because her policeman husband was working nights with a female officer, really lily my fuse!

My husband is a police officer (11 years), and I have lots of reasons for not wanting him to ride around with a "cute, single, bright and funny" woman all night.

In the police academy, they are taught that for every 1,000 hours of police work, there are 10 minutes of excitement. Just put a man and a "cute, single, bright, funny woman" in the same car for eight hours, and if there's no action on the street, you can guess where the action will be.

Men will be men. And they all have their weaknesses. You wouldn't put an alcoholic in a bartender's job any more than you'd put a diabetic in a candy store. Knowing my husband as I do, I certainly wouldn't feel comfortable having him work with a cute lady.

—SEATTLE

DEAR ABBY: I know you won't like this, but there are some jobs women are just not suited for, and being put on patrol as a police officer is one of them.

I'm a police officer, and I'm scared to death to have a female with me. I am given unofficial orders to "take care of her," and woe be it to me if she is hurt. When we go to a violent scene, I have to handle myself and her. I tell her, "Please sit in the car, and if I give you the signal call in for help." At least she is good for that.

There are other jobs they are good for, such as getting out on the street and pretending to be prostitutes and other such undercover work, but not police roadwork. They are apt to end up killing someone, and I don't want it to be me.

I am not a woman-hater, Abby, but I have a family, and I'd like to stay alive.

—POLICE OFFICER, MIAMI

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to JEALOUS. I don't blame her for being jealous. She has every right to be. I don't consider a woman in a police officer's uniform a cop. I see her as a woman wearing a man's uniform.

Why do you suppose there is no lone woman portraying Dirty Carrie or Hopalong Katherine? Women just don't fit into that role. Does Barney Miller have a woman working with him? When he needs a woman for police work, he gets a man to impersonate a female.

I don't mind if women are truckers, mechanics, astronauts, politicians or even garbage collectors, but it would be nice if they left just one profession strictly for the men.

—IRRITATED, AUBURN, MASS.

DEAR ABBY: You sure blew it with your answer to the jealous wife. There are many temptations thrown at police officers in the line of duty. No wonder the divorce rate among policemen is the highest of all professions.

Young women (and older ones, too) have been known to offer a policeman anything to avoid getting a ticket for speeding or running a red light.

Luckily, I've never had the worry of my man having a female companion officer, but I sure wouldn't want that as an added concern.

With all due respect to the facts you pointed out—that female officers are intelligent, courageous, hardworking and had to go through the same rigorous training as the men—family intimacy DOES invite intimacy.
—WISCONSIN COP'S WIFE

DEAR ABBY: It's obvious that you aren't married to a policeman. I was, but we're divorced now, and now I know why the divorce rate among policemen is the highest of any profession.

The temptations put in the average policeman's way are almost too much for any man to resist. And the way policemen cover up for each other is not to be believed! Because of the nature of their work, they can easily get "lost" for an hour or two, and they always have a buddy who will cover for them.

—Abby, policeman can find enough women to fool around with on their own without being assigned to one in the line of duty. Also, a policeman's chances for survival are a lot better if he has a 6-foot, 200-pound man as a back-up rather than a 5-2, 110-pound woman.
—EXPERIENCED

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90022. Please enclose stamped self-addressed envelope.)

Her mom is driving her crazy

By ERMA BOMBECK
© Field Enterprises, Inc.

—My mother is going to drive me crazy.
She has this habit of walking down memory lane and once she's there can't recall the names of the people or the places.
It's like living with Wink Martindale.

It's easy for her, she can just ask a question and then pick up her life and go on, but I'm stuck with the challenge of coming up with the answer or admitting that senility has set in.

She was watching an old movie on television while I was reading a magazine the other night when she said, "Isn't the Inspector's name . . . oh, you know?"
I looked up from the magazine just as the scene changed. "What did he look like?" I asked.

"You know who he is. He's in all the old movies. Never the lead but . . ."
"E. G. Marshall? Aldo Ray? Leon Ames? Sebastian Cabot? Sterling Hayden? Enderick Crawford? Dennis O'Keefe?"

"Younger," she sighed.
"Troy Donahue? George Hamilton? Dick Benjamin? William Shatner? Montgomery Clift?"
"No, he's funny."

"What about Bill Dana? Donald O'Connor? Mort Sahl? Billy De Wolfe?"

"No, no. He married that girl who always wore lights and danced and was a dead ringer for . . . what was her name?"

"Ann Miller? Judy Garland? Betty Grable?"
"No, her last name begins with a D."

"Sandra Dee? Yvonne DeCarlo? Rosemary DeCamp? Linda Darnell? I got it! Gloria DeHaven!"

"Wrong. It was Mitz Gaynor."
"That doesn't begin with a D." I said irritably.

"I lied. So, it's not important. Just forget it."

Around 11, the ringing of the phone jolted me out of a sound sleep. The voice at the other end of the line said, "It was Lydie Tabot. He's the one who played opposite the guy . . . you know . . . who was always the comical sidekick in Westerns with tobacco juice running down his chin. I'll think of it tomorrow. I'm sleepy. Good night."

All night I was to stare at the ceiling mumbling, "Edgar Buchanan, Gabby Hayes, Smiley Burnett, Percy Kilbride, Noah Beery, Alan Hale . . . She had done it again!"

7 area youths win trip

TWIN FALLS — Seven youths in Magic Valley are among the 22 Idaho 4-H ers earning top awards this year. They have won expense-paid trips to the 59th National 4-H Congress Nov. 30-Dec 4 in Chicago as part of their reward for their efforts.

Delegates include four Shoshone youths and one each from Twin Falls, Gooding and Wendell.
The Lincoln county winners include Helen Hopkins, 16, daughter of Ivan and Esther Hopkins, who won top honors in the consumer education program. Her main goal was to save money making things at home instead of buying them commercially. She learned to make many of her own clothes and to preserve and freeze vegetables and fruits. In the past year, she saved her family more than $80 by freezing meat and vegetables.

Pam Norman, 16, daughter of Calvin and Audrey Norman, excelled in the food conservation and safety program, creating recipes for and preparing numerous meals featuring lamb and veal. She does much of the cooking for her family and feels that her work on this project will benefit her when she becomes a homemaker herself.

Tina Parks, 16, daughter of Tony and Virginia Parks, won top honors in the safety program, coordinating a complete fire safety program for the Wood River Fire District, including writing news releases and distributing circulars about the program. She also has been involved in bicycle safety and first aid programs.
Twila Porter, 16, daughter of David and Velma Porter, excelled in the food preservation program. She often prepares more than enough for her family's use when cooking and baking, so decided she'd better learn the proper methods of freezing items for later use. She also learned how to freeze fruits, berries and uncooked jam.

Katherine Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Nelson of Gooding, won top honors in the home environment program. She has won many awards, including interior decorating, furniture refinishing and interior refurbishment.

Jerry R. Evers, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack F. Stalley of Twin Falls, won top honors in the swine program. In the last five years, Evers handled all aspects in the management, breeding, production and marketing of more than 500 pigs. His superior swing management on his parent's farm has led to numerous prizes at stock shows.

Janet L. Stalley, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack F. Stalley of Twin Falls, took top state honors in dog care and training program. A seven year 4-H'er, she has won many awards in dog showmanship and obedience.

Small sizes

DEERFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — A major manufacturer of frozen, prepared desserts is introducing some of its most popular varieties in two-serving sizes, now that more than half of all United States households contain only one or two members. The products include peach, butter streusel and apple all-butter coffee-cakes and original, strawberry and cherry cream cakes. Suggested retail price is $1.49 for each variety.

Iranian militants off to war

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — Iranian forces battling Iraq go to war Monday from the embassy militants who pledged to join the fighting.

Tehran said the 43-day-old war would go on until all Iranian territory is returned.

There were fresh reports of air strikes from both sides and Iraq said it destroyed a number of oil installations near Abadan, site of the largest oil refinery in the Middle East. Iran claimed heavy ground fighting persisted at the northern entrance to the city.

The militants told Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in Tehran that they agreed to transfer custody of the American hostages to the government and to their duty by going to battle Iraq, a "puppet" of the United States.

As the war entered its seventh week, Iranian Oil Minister Jawad Beigi Tanguyan, captured by commandos last week, near the besieged oil center of Abadan, was shown on Iraqi television, Iran, appealing through the Red Cross and the Algerian ambassador, demanded the return of the minister and the five officials that were with him.

Visa lack brings call for strike

MOSCOW (UPI) — Jewish activists Monday accused Soviet leaders of paying lip service to agreements on human rights and called a hunger strike to protest a virtual freeze on exit visas since the invasion of Afghanistan.

"The Soviet Union has failed to honor the commitments it assumed for free immigration," said an open letter addressed to President Leonid Brezhnev and reportedly signed by more than 300 people in Moscow alone.

Jewish sources said they would try to deliver the letter next Tuesday, the opening day of the Madrid conference on European Security and Cooperation.

"You are paying lip service to the human rights provisions of the Helsinki accords" which are due for review at Madrid, the letter said. "We are evidence that these provisions are being flouted."

The activists said some of them have been waiting for 10 years to emigrate to Israel despite guarantees in the Helsinki accords allowing reunion of families.

They said that since the invasion of Afghanistan last December there has been a marked slowdown in the rate of visas issued.

In the letter the Jews said delivery of the necessary letters of invitation from Israel has been blocked in some cases.

Other people who applied to leave have been waiting as long as 25 months for an answer; others have been repeatedly refused visas for as long as 10 years.

Authorities in some parts of the Soviet Union have told applicants who were refused that they cannot apply again, the letter said.

Workers ask protection from product

CUERNAVACA, Mexico (UPI) — Striking workers at a plant that manufactures female hormones are demanding a 35 percent wage hike and smaller breasts before they return to work.

Salvador Buenrostro, leader of the union at the Syntex chemical plant in the resort city of Cuernavaca, 50 miles south of Mexico City, said Sunday the 30-day strike will not end until the company meets their demands.

The demands include a 35 percent pay hike plus special protection for male workers in an area of the plant that manufactures female hormones used in birth control pills.

About three dozen male workers in the section have suffered from unnatural development of their breasts, Buenrostro said, and "have faced social problems to a considerable degree."

A spokeswoman for Syntex refused to comment on the reports of enlarged breasts among the workers, saying, "We don't want any information published until the labor situation is over."

Guerrillas train in U.S.

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — The government Monday released a captured terrorist's testimony that guerrillas fighting to topple President Ferdinand Marcos are being trained in the United States.

In the latest of an almost daily series of disclosures, the government said Victor Burns Lovely, a Philippine-born U.S. citizen captured after a bomb he was preparing exploded prematurely Sept. 6, said anti-Marcos forces had organized themselves into cells.

Lovely said his cell was trained by American businessman Steve Pinkins in a desert near Tucson, Ariz., but that other groups of guerrillas were being trained in the Midwest and some had arrived in the Philippines.

Kosygin dropped from Politburo

MOSCOW (UPI) — Workers preparing for this week's Revolution Day Parade set up only 14 stanchions Monday for pictures of Politburo members, a further indication that former Premier Alexei Kosygin has been dropped from that body.

The ailing Kosygin, 78, resigned last month as premier, head of Soviet government, and in a letter to the Supreme Soviet also asked to be relieved of his seat on the Politburo, the ruling circle of the Communist body.

Housing project backers state case

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Supporters and opponents of a proposed subsidized housing development packed City Hall Monday, seeking to influence city officials who may have no say on the project.

The session marked the first time supporters of the controversial project have publicly stated their case for a 60-unit development for low-income senior citizens. But most of the crowd, estimated at 50 persons, indicated they opposed the project.

The City Council took no action on the matter, indicating the final decision is up to federal authorities.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has tentatively approved a $1.7 million long-term, low-interest loan to build the apartments plus a $226,000 annual payment for rent subsidies. The project must meet HUD requirements before final approval is issued.

The complex, to be called Vista Vista Village, is to be built by Christian Church Homes of Idaho, Inc., through its sponsor — the National Benevolent Association of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). Construction on the project, located on Caswell Avenue West, is expected to begin in the spring or early summer.

Controversy surrounding the project stems from charges that it is unneeded and would erode the private rental market, now experiencing vacancy rates of about 20 to 25 percent.

Dr. Donald Jarman of Portland, executive director of NBA, said his organization usually takes a "quiet approach." In the early stages of a housing project, NBA operates 42 health care facilities in the U.S., he said.

But he acknowledged the organization's posture may have helped fuel the controversy.

Jarman said HUD approved financing the project on the basis of the city's housing assistance plan, which called for the addition of 60 low-cost units for seniors. He added NBA will remain with the project throughout the 40-year loan period.

"This is a 40-year program. We are not here to develop it, run it and sell it," he said. "We intend to have a program whereby these people can remain active and independent."

Les Peterson of Twin Falls, vice president of Christian Church Homes, said the project would not be limited to serving only seniors living in Twin Falls.

"It will draw senior citizens not only from Twin Falls, but people from all areas of the state," he said.

But several local apartment owners and real estate brokers questioned the need for the project, noting high vacancy rates and preliminary census figures which contradict the city's housing assistance plan.

Howard Buhler of Twin Falls said the loss of jobs in the area has cut demand for housing already existing. He said the project would be in direct competition with private apartment owners, threatening a major segment of the local economy.

Mayor Hank Woodall interrupted the discussion twice to remind the council the council has virtually no discretion on the project. He said the council can not reject the project if it meets zoning standards.

But Rep. T. W. Stivers, R-Twin Falls, proposed the city challenge the project by informing HUD that its housing assistance plan is not accurate. Stivers said HUD can not approve a project unless it has the approval of local officials and is based on current information.

$50,021 raised for United Way

TWIN FALLS — United Way of Twin Falls County reports it has reached 35 percent of its campaign goal.

A total of $50,021 has been pledged to date, officials report. The goal is $140,000.

The special gifts division has attained 72 percent of its individual goal. The medical division is at 62 percent; large commercial, 40 percent; small commercial, 39 percent; professional, 34 percent; rural, 31 percent; education, 23 percent; and government, 20 percent.

Contributions may be made at the United Way office, 800 Falls Ave., No. 4, Twin Falls.

Dinner time

Wildlife group might join fight over water standards

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

SEATTLE — The Idaho Wildlife Federation says it may join the legal battle over Idaho's recently adopted water quality standards.

Environmental Protection Agency officials in Seattle said Monday lawyers for the wildlife federation have filed notice they believe the EPA acted improperly in accepting portions of the state's revised water quality standards.

On the opposite side of the legal fence, state lawmakers vowed last month they will go to court if necessary to prevent EPA from imposing stricter standards on four portions of the plan the agency rejected.

objections to the proposed standards based on environmental concerns. They claimed each was "non-discretionary" under the federal Clean Water Act, and therefore must be rejected by the EPA.

Noting two of the concerns were addressed in the agency's rejection of four standards, Eugene attorney Terence Thatcher wrote "there remain three unsatisfied objections to the Idaho submission."

The federation objected to:

- A provision exempting holders of waste discharge permits from additional restrictions if other sources lead to increased stream pollution.
- Absence in the standards of any "anti-degradation policy" to prohibit deterioration of stream quality to the detriment of existing water uses.
- A proposed mechanism to allow "short-term activities" that violate water quality standards if the activities are in the public interest and are not likely to generate long-term pollution.

In the last objection, IWF attorneys contended the state offered no definition of short-term, long-term or public interest. The result, they said, provides "an open invitation for polluters to seek to avoid the obligations imposed by the rest of the state's regulations.

Thatcher said in an interview the Oct. 1 filing allows the wildlife federation to sue the EPA to assure compliance with federal law if the agency does not adequately explain or reverse its actions within 60 days.

Peter Haller, staff attorney in the EPA's Seattle office, said the agency is presently drafting a response to the federation's letter.

"Meanwhile, the office's water quality management section is drafting proposed regulations to replace the four provisions deleted from the Idaho standards, according to Michael Schultz, environmental engineer.

Announcement and public hearings on the proposed rules are at least two months off, Schultz said.

Two of the provisions — a lower dissolved oxygen requirement below American Falls Dam and a higher unincorporated ammonia limit on Indian Creek near Nampa — resulted from legislative amendments to standards proposed by the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

In a letter dated June 5, attorneys for the wildlife federation raised five objections to the proposed standards based on environmental concerns. They claimed each was "non-discretionary" under the federal Clean Water Act, and therefore must be rejected by the EPA.

Announcement and public hearings on the proposed rules are at least two months off, Schultz said.

Congressman George Hansen, R-Idaho, responded to the dispute last month by introducing a bill to require congressional review whenever the EPA overrides state laws or administrative procedures.

Hansen aide Tom Dayley said the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce is scheduled to hear the proposal when Congress reconvenes next January.

Meehl sworn in

TWIN FALLS — Applications for the magistrate position previously held by Daniel Meehl are now being accepted, 5th District Court Administrative Judge Douglas Kramer announced Monday.

Kramer made his announcement after swearing Meehl in as a 5th District Court judge. Meehl replaces James Cunningham, who retired earlier this year.

Meehl, 40, is a graduate of the Stanford University School of Law.

Applicants for the magistrate post must hold a law degree, Kramer said.

Applications can be obtained in the courthouse in Gooding from Magistrate Judge Phillip Becker and should be filed there once completed, Kramer said.

Applications should be filed no later than Nov. 26. On Dec. 9, applicants for the job will be interviewed by Kramer and the Magistrates Commission, which makes the appointment.

The Magistrates Commission is composed of the eight Magic Valley County Commission Chairmen, three mayors, two representatives from the governor and a non-voting lawyer.

Gallegos, who allegedly is in the U.S. illegally. "We were told that the guy was a dangerous man," McGowan said Monday.

McGowan said an officer from the U.S. Marshall's office in Boise is expected to take custody of Gallegos sometime this week.

Commuter schedule changed

TWIN FALLS — Trans IV has changed the schedule of the Buhl-Filer commuter.

College of Southern Idaho students and others commuting from Buhl to Twin Falls can leave Smith's Food King in Buhl at either 7 or 8 a.m. instead of 7 a.m. The ride takes half an hour.

The single departure from CSI is now at 3:10 p.m. instead of 3 p.m.

The weekday commuter stops in Filer at Cedar Lanes at 7:13 and 8:13 a.m. and at 3:23 p.m. and the Fairway Shopping Center at 7:15 and 8:15 a.m. and 3:25 p.m.

One-way cost to students is 75 cents.

Cow tramples woman

TWIN FALLS — A Hansen woman was listed in serious condition Monday at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital after she was reportedly trampled by a cow.

Authorities said Neva Moore was tending a calf at her ranch located south of Hansen when a mother cow trampled her early Monday.

Moore was reportedly taken to the hospital by a private vehicle.

A hospital spokesman said Moore's condition had stabilized. She remained in the hospital's intensive care unit.

Man held on felony charges

JEROME — A Mexican national is being held in Jerome County jail on felony charges filed by the U.S. Marshall's office.

Mantel Gallegos, 28, was apprehended by Jerome city police late Friday night at the Northern Bar in Jerome. Gallegos was sought on a federal warrant for failure to appear on a charge of harboring a fugitive.

According to Police Chief James McGowan, several unspecified felony charges are still pending against

New Skyview-Hazeldel union begins contract negotiations

By STEPHEN SCHURLOW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The long process of negotiating a union contract at the Skyview-Hazeldel Manor has begun.

Although the nursing home's union was approved by one vote in April, and the results certified by the National Labor Relations Board in June, a contract for employees has yet to be determined.

Of 65 Idaho nursing homes, Skyview-Hazeldel will be only the second to have a union contract.

The contract will determine wages and other benefits and whether the manor will be an open or closed shop and if, whether employees have to join the union to work there.

Three negotiating sessions have been held this fall between management and representatives of Landslide Chapter #1, of Local 687, which is affiliated with the Service Employees International Union (SEIU). A fourth and fifth session are scheduled for Nov. 12 and 13, according to Richard Drake, Skyview-Hazeldel administrator.

The union is represented by Warren Lundquist, president of Local 687, from Seattle; David Cervantes, SEIU spokesman, of Seattle, and three members of the local chapter.

The management is represented by Richard Drake, his father Harold Drake, and Marvin Montoya, of the Idaho Employers Council in Boise.

Difficulties in scheduling sessions to allow all representatives to attend has slowed the negotiation process, said Alice Lee, Landslide Chapter president.

Lee said sessions "have been cordial so far." Richard Drake also said "there has been progress."

"We've resolved most of issues we weren't terribly far apart on to begin with," he said.

Ruth Mitchell, who is a union negotiator although she is no longer employed at the manor, said talks have determined "the union is not in on running the establishment; that's the management's end of it. Our concern is having adequate help for the patient."

Issues being covered include vacation time and pay sick leave and an improved insurance program, according to Lee. Also, "we need to bring the (nursing home) profession above minimum wage to get better qualified people" and reduce employee turnover, she said.

Drake indicated that wages or "financial matters" would be discussed at the next sessions.

Drake expressed concern that union demands might increase costs to the home's patients. He noted he had wished to improve employees' insurance programs and wage structure when he took over the manor in February. But since receiving a notification of a union drive later that month, he has been forbidden by labor law to make major changes not already in progress.

Now, "we're willing to bargain in good faith. We're willing to negotiate," he said.

Lee said the union will ask for a closed shop; the union dues of those employees who would not join a union for religious reasons would be placed in an emergency fund for patients.

Neither side could predict how long negotiations would take, but both expressed hope it would not "drag on for months and months."

Lee said the final contract must be approved by the union's rank and file members and no union dues would be paid until the contract is settled.

The manor's registered nurses voted in April not to be a part of the union and will be excluded from the contract.

Only one other Idaho nursing home has a union: the Pineswood Care Center in Coeur d'Alene. According to Hartzell Cobbs, spokesman for Idaho Health Facilities Inc., a nursing home lobby group, Pineswood employees recently voted to change from a closed to an open shop.

Cobbs said employees at the Fayette Lake Care Center in McCall approved a union two years ago by one vote but a contract was never negotiated.

The Skyview-Hazeldel union was also approved by one vote, and Lee said the name "Landslide" was an "in-joke" that stuck after a NLRB official used it in jest.

Post office cans GOP brochures

NAMPA (UPI) — Canyon County elections officer Bill Staker Monday said Republican Party members found thousands of GOP brochures scheduled to be mailed in a large dumpster Saturday morning behind a Nampa post office.

deliverable because of wrong addresses and incorrect names. Staker said he took some of the mail back to the county courthouse, ran it through a computer to check registered voters and found a number of the names and addresses were correct. He said all of the mail had been stamped, and he said he could see no reason why it could not be delivered by the postal officials. County Republican officials, meanwhile, said they may seek an investigation from federal officials, Staker said. Staker said the dumpster was half full, entirely with the Republicans' mail.

State legislature makeup may change after election

BOISE (UPI) — The complexion of Idaho's Republican-dominated Legislature may change Tuesday as Idahoans cast ballots with an attitude one GOP official characterized as anti-incumbent.

Election/80

"There is a feeling of 'throw the rascals out' Idaho Lt. Gov. Phil Batt said. "But I hope that doesn't extend to the Legislature, which has operated well under Republican control."

But while Batt and other Republicans say they're "closer than ever before" to attaining a "veto-proof majority" in Idaho's Senate, the Democrats also contend victories in a few key races will give them a needed edge to dislodge the Republicans' 19-16 majority in that chamber. Similarly, Democrats also hope to increase their tally in the House, where Republicans outnumber the Democrats 50-20.

crat Conley E. Ward Sr. of Caldwell and Atwell J. Parry, Melba, who was defeated narrowly two years ago in a primary against Vermer, both hope to gain the District 13 seat. Vermer vacated at the close of his first term. The Senate race for District 21 — Blaine, Lincoln and Mindoka counties — also has been consistently heated as Republican Maurice Ellsworth, Halley, and Democrat John Peavey, Carey, vie for the position vacated by Democrat John Bell. Peavey, whose family has been active in politics for generations, is a former legislator and rancher. Ellsworth, a former Republican prosecutor, has built his campaign around his conservative leanings, which may not suit more liberal voters in the Blaine County portion of his district.

Other close races in the Magic Valley include the District 24 House campaign between Republican three-term incumbent Noy Grackel, a rancher, and Democrat challenger George Anthony. Anthony has waged a tough campaign but is hampered because no Democrat has been elected to the Idaho Legislature from Twin Falls County since the mid-1950s.

J. Wilson Steen, Glenn Ferry, who has served in the Senate for District 22 — Camas, Elmore, Gooding and Twin Falls counties — for six terms, is up against John D. Kieffer, Mountain Home in what promises to be a tight race. Steen, who has won his last few re-election bids by slight margins, has fought for his political career against a strong Kieffer campaign.

In the District 25 Senate race, an American Party candidate could pull votes away from Republican Laird Noh, Kimberly, Howard Bubler, Twin Falls, is the third-party challenger for the seat vacated by Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls. Also vying for that seat is Democrat Lloyd Shewmaker, Kimberly.

In District 26 — Cassia and Mindoka counties — Marie Hanzel has waged an aggressive door-belling campaign against two-term incumbent Republican Dean Van Engelen, Burley, by capitalizing on U.S. Sen. Frank Church's well-dreaded political machine in the two counties.

Senate President Pro-Term Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, also has fought to retain the District 32 seat he's held for seven terms against an aggressive campaign of John Thomas, Grace, Budge's biggest opposition. Frasure, came from former Frank County boosters, who lashed out against him for supporting Utah Power and Light Co.

In Oneida and Bannock counties: District 33 race, Democrat Bert Hartley, McCall, is vying for the Senate seat vacated by Lester Hartvigsen, D-Mald. Fighting for the seat Marley has vacated are Gene Edwards, R-Mald, a former Oneida County commissioner and Beverly Bissline, D-Pocatello, a former state legislator.

In District 2 — Kootenai County — Republican William Moore, Hayden Lake, hopes to unseat Democratic Sen. Art Manley, Coeur d'Alene. Moore, who publicly denied any involvement with right-wing organizations during the campaign, is a conservative and has charged Manley with supporting gun control. Manley, however, has denied the allegation.

A candidate who advocates states' rights, no taxation and elimination of public schools, Republican District 2 House nominee Cameron Pullmer, Post Falls, is up against Democrat James Fromm, a Coeur d'Alene city councilman and Kellogg high school teacher. Fromm, who advocates local option taxes for dealing with the 1 percent, and Pullmer are attempting to gain the House seat vacated by Gary Ingram, a Republican.

Abortion has been a campaign issue in the race for the District 5 House Position B, with Republican Joseph Walker, Moscow, and Democrat Betsy Enochs, fighting for the seat. Walker has held for one term. Enochs is former-Idaho coordinator for the National Organization for women. Walker, an insurance agent, has been accused of an anti-abortion stand during the campaign, but the incumbent has maintained, however, that he advocates "pro-choice" for women.

Students seek opinion on tuition

BOISE (UPI) — The newly-formed Associated Students of Idaho plans to seek a legal opinion on whether Idaho can charge students tuition at the state's higher-education institutions. The Board of Education at a recent session in Pocatello authorized the drafting of an amendment to the Idaho Constitution that would allow Idaho's college and universities to charge tuition.

Group chairman Jim Goes of Idaho State University said Sunday the student action is not to be construed as leading to any future legal action. "At this point in time, we are merely asking for clarification of the status which currently exists" and which may exist in the future," Goes said.

college and university students "has raised a lot of eyebrows" on the BSU campus. "The students who understand the difference between tuition and fees are understandably alarmed," she added. She said some students were upset that the measure went to the floor at the board meeting before they had an opportunity to discuss it with administrators. The board will hold a public hearing on the tuition proposal at its December meeting in Boise.

Poll gives Church lead in Kootenai

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church has a 23 percentage point lead over his challenger Rep. Steve Symms in North Idaho's Kootenai County, according to a poll conducted by the Coeur d'Alene Press.

The poll, which was conducted last Thursday, Friday and Sunday evenings, showed 58 percent of the respondents favored Church while 35 percent supported Symms. Last week, Church garnered 55 percent while Symms had 41 percent. Only about 6 percent of the registered voters surveyed remained undecided in the U.S. Senate contest.

Services

ALBION — Services for Daniel K. Powell, 24, of Albion, who died Friday, will be at 11 a.m. today in the Albion LDS Chapel. Burial will be in the Albion Cemetery. Friends may call today at the church one hour prior to the services.

Devine too busy to worry about No. 1

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine wasn't in a celebratory mood Monday as his Irish team anticipated its first regular-season climb to No. 1 in the college football rankings during his five-year stint at the school.

Devine, who announced his resignation before the start of the season, only had to look to the Notre Dame schedule which still showed previous leader Alabama and Southern Cal ahead for the Irish.

"Frankly, I'm thinking about now is Georgia Tech, not being number-one or having to face Alabama or Air Force or USC," he said. "Ask me about being No. 1 and the national championship after New Year's Day."

Notre Dame's success has not changed Devine's mind about leaving Notre Dame.

"All I can say about that is the next coach will have a great bunch of kids to work with," Devine emphasized. "This is a young team. They will do anything for me and they have."

Devine knew he had a young club at the start of the season and had to find replacements for quarterback Rusty Lisch and running back Vagas Ferguson. He eventually wound up using freshman Blair Kiel at quarterback and Phil Carter and then Jim Stone at running back.

Did Devine think his club had a crack at being No. 1?

"I don't care what any coach tells you, but all 200 or so of them aim for No. 1 at the start of the season. We do, too," Devine noted. "I couldn't predict we'd get there but that's something that you always shoot for."

The Irish have won seven straight games without a loss this season, including last Saturday's shutout win over Navy. It is the best start since Notre Dame won the national championship in 1973.

But that year, like Devine's national championship season in 1977, Notre Dame did not make it to the top until after the bowl games. It isn't the first time a Devine-coached team has reached No. 1 before the end of the season.

Devine's 1960 Missouri team was tops in the nation until it faced arch-rival Kansas in the final game of the season.

"We were No. 1 then and then lost that game, a game we eventually got awarded because Kansas had to forfeit," Devine recalled. "It was the kind of flinx we hope we don't face now."

Devine recalled Missouri did win its Orange Bowl game against Navy that season but in those days, the national champion was determined before the post-season contests.

Alabama's 6-3 loss to Mississippi State last Saturday that knocked the Crimson Tide from the top spot would help them in their game Nov. 15 against Notre Dame, Devine theorized.

"It's going to make them really hungry for us," Devine said. "But we can't afford to be worried about that now. We've got to play a good Georgia Tech team that will want to beat the No. 1 team in the country."

Defensive work

A stiff defense is needed by any good basketball team and the Twin Falls High girls' squad has been working on that item in preparation for the coming season. Cass Herbst practices her defensive moves against Marsha Dewey during practice Monday night. The Bruins, coached by Kathy Anderson, open the season Nov. 14 on the road against Boise High.

Several area teams will open their campaigns as early as a week from today. Teams have been holding workouts for two weeks.

Pruitt powers Browns

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Mike Pruitt ran for two touchdowns in the fourth quarter, including a 56-yarder in the final four minutes that broke open a close game, to lead the Cleveland Browns to a 27-14 victory Monday night over the Chicago Bears.

Pruitt, who ran for 129 yards on 27 carries, also scored in the fourth period on a 1-yard run that gave the Browns a 20-7 lead. After the Bears closed to 20-14 on a 17-yard pass from Vince Evans to Brian Baschnagel, Pruitt raced 56 yards on the Browns' next possession for the insurance score.

On a third-and-one at the Cleveland 41, Pruitt swirled around right end, broke several tackles and outran two Bears defenders for his second score.

The Bears got a final touchdown with 36 seconds left on a six-yard pass from Evans to tight end Robin Earl, but they failed to recover the ensuing onside kick and Cleveland ran out the clock.

Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe wasn't as sharp as in previous weeks, but he still finished with 23 completions in 39 attempts for 293 yards and one TD. He also threw two interceptions.

Chicago's scored its first touchdown late in the third quarter on a 7-yard run by Evans. Cleveland also scored on field goals of 23 and 42 yards by Dan Cockroft and Sipe's 4-yard TD toss to Reggie Rucker.

The Browns, who kept pace with Houston for the AFC Central lead with a 6-3 record, dominated the Bears in the first half. Chicago did not get a first down until 15:11 in the second quarter on a 14-yard run by Walter Payton.

The Bears ran only three plays following the opening kickoff and after the ensuing punt, Cleveland drove down the field like it would run the Bears out of the stadium.

Starting at its own 41, Cleveland had a first down at the Chicago 4 in eight plays. A running play which lost yardage and two incompletions by Sipe forced the Browns to settle for Cockroft's 29-yard field goal.

Cleveland started its 11th touchdown drive with 3:22 left in the second quarter, following a missed field goal by Chicago's Bob Thomas. Sipe completed four passes on the drive, including the scoring pass, which Rucker picked off his shoestrings.

The Browns rolled up 432 total offense to 275 for the Bears. Stymied on the ground, Evans went to the air completing 18-of-33 passes for 169 yards and the two touchdowns.

The Browns took the second-half kickoff and drove 56 yards in 14 plays. Cleveland had a 1st-and-goal at the 9, but Sipe was sacked for a 16-yard loss and the Browns were forced to settle for Cockroft's 42-yard field goal and a 14-lead.

The Bears finally broke through with 1:10 left in the third, with Evans' TD run capping a seven-play, 54-yard drive. Chicago took over again following Cleveland's punt, but on the second play, Evans was intercepted by Ron Bolton at the Cleveland 16.

Sipe then drove the Browns 84 yards in 13 plays, capped by Pruitt's 1-yard burst up the middle.

Brett, Schmidt named MVPs by vote of major league players

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — George Brett and Mike Schmidt, opposing third basemen in the 1980 World Series, have been named Most Valuable Player for their leagues by The Sporting News.

Steve Carlton and Steve Stone received top pitching honors from the publication, which determined the titles based on a poll of players in each league.

Brett, the Kansas City Royal who lead the American League in batting with a .350 average and accumulated 24 homers and 118 runs batted in this year, received 136 votes.

His nearest rival for American League MVP was Cecil Cooper of the Milwaukee Brewers, who earned 77 votes.

Schmidt, of the Philadelphia Phillies, led the National League with 48 home runs and 121 runs batted in. He received 81 votes for MVP, more than twice the number given to runner-up George Hendrick of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Sporting News editors said it was "no contest" for National League Pitcher-of-the-Year, Carlton, a left-hander with the Phillies, compiled 24 victories and 286 strikeouts while pitching 304 innings this season.

Carlton also won the top pitching title for his league in 1972 and 1977.

In the American League, Stone, a right-hander with the Baltimore Orioles, was judged the leading pitcher with his league-leading record of 25 victories. He posted a 3.23 earned-run average.

The four players head the All-Star teams chosen by the Sporting News for their respective leagues.

The American League team includes Brewers first baseman Cecil Cooper, New York Yankees second baseman Willie Randolph, Brewers shortstop Robin Yount, Brewers left fielder Ben Oglivie, Orioles center fielder Al Bumbry, Yankees right fielder Reggie Jackson, Yankees catcher Rick Cerone and Yankees left-handed pitcher Tommy John.

Jackson, who has received All-Star recognition three previous times, also was chosen top designated hitter for the American League.

Oakland's Keough wins 'comeback' honor, Gossage second

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pitcher Matt Keough, victim of a 14-game losing streak one season ago, has been named the UPI Comeback Player of the Year in the American League for 1980.

Keough, a 25-year-old right-hander for the Oakland A's, received 17 of 50 votes for rebounding from a disastrous 2-17 record to post a 16-13 season with a 2.92 ERA.

Reliever Rich Gossage, who bounced back from a thumb injury to help pitch the New York Yankees to the East Division title, finished a distant second with four votes.

Kansas City left-hander Larry Gura, Boston catcher Carlton Fisk, and right-handers Steve Stone of Baltimore and Mike Norris of Oakland received three votes apiece.

Keough, son of former major league infielder Marty Keough, saw the award as a reflection of what the A's under manager Billy Martin, accomplished in improving 29 games from 1979 to '80.

"I was the epitome of our ballclub the last two years," he said. "I was the prime example of the club being bad last year and tear this year."

Keough began his pro career as an infielder but made two pitching appearances with Chattanooga in 1976. He made it to the big leagues one year later and by 1978 he was named to the

All-Star team by Martin, then managing the Yankees and also manager of the AL squad.

The experience of playing that one game for Martin influenced Keough so much he rejoiced upon hearing Martin would manage the A's in 1980.

"He gave me confidence," Keough said. "I was never geared to complete baseball games. But he said, 'When you go out there, the ballgame's yours.' Billy and (pitching coach) Art Fowler helped me so much emotionally. They told me, 'We need you to win 15 or 20 ballgames and we think you can.' It gives you a challenge and every good athlete needs a challenge."

Keough responded by pitching 20 complete games and two shutouts in 32 starts. He also credited minor league manager Rene Lachemann, his teammates and the fans in Oakland for his performance.

Solution needs to be found for A-4 playoffs

The boys who play football for Class A-4 schools are frustrated and rightly so.

The Idaho High School Activities Association, headed by Dick Stickle, sanctions state football playoffs for A-1, A-2 and A-3 schools. The A-4 schools and eight-man schools are left to fend for themselves. Fortunately for the eight-man teams, there is a playoff to determine a state champion.

The A-4s are in the cold.

Hansen and Murtaugh tried — and nearly completed — a plan for an A-4 unofficial playoff system this fall. Murtaugh Supt. Floren Hulse and Hansen Coach Barry Espil wanted to have games played at Boise State. Mullian High, another of the top A-4 schools, quickly agreed to a plan to have the top four teams in the state battle. Troy High, ranked No. 1 in the Associated Press poll, declined the offer citing cost and distance of travel as drawbacks.

Those drawbacks are the reasons the A-4 schools suffer. The A-4 conferences are divided by the vast reaches of the state's geography. The Canyon Conference is isolated from the three A-4 Boise area schools and the other A-4 schools are up north in District One and District Two.

Travel means money — a resource that is not in great supply at Idaho high schools these days.

Yet all other schools in the state can qualify for the playoffs and enter in the logical pursuit of athletics — to see just who is No. 1. The A-4s can not.

Maybe there is hope.

Espil and Hulse are submitting a plan to the IHSAAA Board of Control for an A-4 playoff system.

"We're trying to devise a plan to have the Canyon Conference champion, the best school from the A-4s in Boise and two teams from the northern part of the state get together for the playoffs," Espil said. "We're looking at having the games up north one year and them down around Twin Falls the next or meeting at Boise to play."

The problem, according to Espil, seems to be up north. Troy said its cost to travel the 420 miles to Boise for three days and two nights would be about $4,500. Mullian jumped at the chance to enter a playoff. The people of Hansen were behind the idea. A chili supper raised about $1,100 in just two hours last week. Murtaugh was a backer as well.

The playoff plan fizzled this fall because of Troy High.

"I would naturally like to see a playoff, but that's difficult for the smaller schools," Troy Coach Lee Brocke said.

Espil wonders if, perhaps, Troy might be hiding behind the money-factor. He had doubts about the $4,500 figure and feels since Troy has the No. 1 ranking, the Trojan brass maybe figured why risk it. Take a paper championship and save the money might have been the philosophy.

"We'd meet 'em right now the middle of a spud field," Espil said.

Troy's veto squashed an A-4 playoff this year. Perhaps there is hope for 1981 and beyond.

It won't be easy because of the costs involved but if the northern schools go along with the idea, the IHSAAA should endorse the plan. It would only be fair. That organization is handling playoffs for most of the schools, so why not everybody?

"We don't want to push it too hard," Espil said. "We have a lot of friends in A-3 and A-2 and we don't want to ruin it for them. They have a playoff system now and that's good."

But the situation is unfair to all A-4 football teams. Other quality teams (and some with less than 500 records) have the opportunity of going on to see just how good they are while teams like Hansen (6-1) and Murtaugh (7-2) must arrange one-game playoffs against 80-50 teams that don't rate a "Cleveland post"; but on the second play, Evans was intercepted by Ron Bolton at the Cleveland 16.

Sipe then drove the Browns 84 yards in 13 plays, capped by Pruitt's 1-yard burst up the middle.

'Skins play plenty bad - Vikes take scalp

By MIKE DOWNEY
© 1980 Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON — High Redskins play plenty bad. Full many dumb stunts. Get beat by Vikings 39-14 in heap big upset.

How? Dills make first start at quarterback for Minnesota. Throw two touchdown passes in first half. Guide team to 10-0 lead.

Vikings get safety. Return kick on next play 70 yards for touchdown. Redskins get 12 penalties. Too many men on field. Too few men on field. Roughing kicker. Roughing passer. Ineligible man downfield. Illegal motion by quarterback.

Washington fans go on warpath. They not spend wampum Sunday at RFK Stadium to see Redskins fall off ponies. This most points team give up since 1970. Skins now 3-6 and losing shirts.

Redskins faces red. Their coach, Jack Pardee say him not coach. Jack Pardee say him not coach. Jack Pardee say him not coach.

Referees huddled as Redskins congratulated punt returner Roaches and the Oilers' extra-point team lined up to kick.

run headline: "Vikings in Pickle. May Use Dills."

Dills once brave for Stanfuid. "This reminds me of a game against UCLA when Guy Benjamin couldn't play." Dills say. "They used me and we upset them 32-28."

Not find out until Kramer warm up Sunday. "Tommy could have played but we didn't call all back practicing this week. It was only fair," say coach Bud Grant.

"Will Kramer play next week?" "I didn't say that."

"I'm not telling you," say Grant.

Dills throw eight passes in first eight games. Kramer throw 17 interceptions. Vikings 3-5. Not score touchdowns in last two games. Could lose three in row for first time since 1968.

Dills miss first four passes. He facing top pass defense in NFL. Finally throws 16 yards to Rickyey Young, 15 to Ahmad Rashad, 11 to Ted Brown, 9 to Bob Tucker, 5 to Young for touchdown.

Second quarter, throws two yards to Joe Senter for second touchdown. Washington still not have first down.

Redskins disorganized. Have 12 men on field. Have 10 men on field. Go outside on field goal, give Vikings first down at 3-yard line.

Redskins reorganize. Hold fort. Stop Vikings on fourth down one foot from goal. Punt ball from own end zone. Get ball back because Steve Nord of Vikings' rough punter.

Get ball out to 10. Then Joe Theismann, Redskins quarterback, do dumb thing. Him scramble back to end zone. Get ambushed. Two-point safety.

Redskins kick ball. Nord return 70 yards for touchdown. Crowd sharpen loimahaws.

Washington get two touchdowns by fullback Clarence Harmon. Trail only 23-14. But Young score on three-yard run. Rick Danneler add three field goals. Minnesota make most points all season, move to second place in Central Division.

"So we lost in a row," Grant say. "It's not the end of the world. Every team loses two in a row. Sometimes the farther you fall, the higher you bounce back."

Him plenty wise. That why him chief.

Phillips unhappy with whistle, but won't file protest

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Oilers coach Bum Phillips Monday denounced the referee's handling of an inadvertent whistle incident, which cost his team a touchdown against the Denver Broncos.

Phillips said, however, he would take no action against back judge J.W. Sanders or referee Gene Barth because of their decision to strip Carter of a 74-yard punt return was the correct action even though "they just really messed up."

NFL rules state a referee's whistle, whether intentional or not, stops play. Sanders apologized to Phillips after the Sunday incident, but neither a kind word nor the Oilers' eventual 20-16 win dulled the edge of Phillips' ire, which he said was caused by matters following the play.

"I really wasn't mad at the call so much as the way they went about it," he said. "If you blow the whistle and kill the ball, you are supposed to continue to blow the whistle to stop the play. He didn't. Hell, he ran downfield after the play."

"Nobody came over and told us anything after their huddle. The referee should have walked over to us and said, 'Now coach, I know it's hard to believe but we just call all back because the ref inadvertently blew his whistle.' But they started back down the field with the ball and nobody is telling anybody anything," he said.

Phillips said he was standing less than 15 feet from Sanders and did not hear a whistle. He added that the game film showed Sanders getting bumped from behind and apparently exhaling with the whistle in his mouth.

"Number one, you don't put the whistle in your mouth until you're ready to blow it," Phillips said.

"The Oilers were given the ball at their own 52-yard line although Phillips said the film shows Roaches advancing to the 35 when Sanders was bumped.

"They gave us the ball where a beanbag was thrown to mark the start of the return. Now doesn't that make sense," Phillips said.

Bengals, defensive tackle Jesse Baker was running in the open field after picking up a fumble when stopped by a whistle.

The latest referee's mistake, Phillips said, proved again an old saying of his: referees never beat you.

"They didn't yesterday, but they tried. That game was a pretty good example of what I've said. They cost you a touchdown, but you come back to play the type of ball you're capable of playing. And you don't let it get you down. And here, you go ahead and win anyway," he said.

Anderson has a word for booing Cincy fans — 'jerks'

CINCINNATI (UPI) — "Jerks." That's what Cincinnati Bengals quarterback Ken Anderson calls hometown fans who cheered when he was injured and had to leave Sunday's game.

"There's some funny people out there," said Anderson. "Maybe the word 'jerk' typifies them."

Fans in several sections of Riverfront Stadium had been booing Anderson since early in the game, as the Bengals had quickly fallen behind an easy 31-14 win. The Chargers went on to

"We want Jack, we want Jack," some in the crowd of 46,406 yelled at various stages of the lopsided contest, hoping coach Forrest Gregg would replace Anderson with second-year backup quarterback Jack Thompson.

When Anderson trotted onto the field to start each new offensive series, some of the fans booted.

Late in the third quarter, when Anderson went down with an injury to an already gimpy knee, cheers erupted from several sections of the stadium.

"People were cheering because they knew the injury meant Anderson would be going out and Thompson coming in," said one fan.

Anderson, who did not return to the game but insisted his latest injury was not serious, tried to brush aside the rude treatment.

"I'm not going to lose any sleep over it," he said. "I've been here 10 years. I don't think there's any quarterback who has been around that long who hasn't been booed at some point."

opposite number Sunday — San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts, who is averaging just over 300 yards passing a game — was treated to something less than adoration.

"He's struggled at some points in time. Now he's got it going. I'm not jealous, but yeah, I wish I were throwing for 300 yards every week."

Anderson did have one brilliant flurry Sunday — working the two-minute drill to perfection. Just before halftime, he completed seven of seven passes for 60 yards and a touchdown in just 91 seconds.

While the offense never did much else, the defense was worse and even though Anderson has nothing to do with the defense, as quarterback he often is the focal point for fans' wrath toward the entire team.

Gregg, asked about Anderson being booed, shrugged. "That's typical when a team is struggling."

But Gregg said he couldn't understand how anyone could cheer when a player had to leave a game because of an injury.

A sympathetic Fouts had one word for the fans' antics: "Bush."

Staubach's 'bomb' draws critics

DALLAS (UPI) — Former Dallas Cowboys quarterback-turned-sports commentator Roger Staubach riled supporters of President Carter with a comment indicating the president's daughter wasn't the only Amy worried about the bomb.

During Sunday's Cowboys game against St. Louis, Staubach, a staunch supporter of President Carter, told CBS-TV Ronald Reagan, told his CBS-TV audience about a recent conversation he'd had with his daughter, Amy.

Sportscenter Frank Gleibler had encouraged Staubach to discuss how best to stop the Cardinal offense.

"In fact, I talked to my daughter Amy this morning about it and she said the No. 1 problem was the bomb," Staubach replied.

The remark repeated nearby word for word a comment Carter made during the presidential debate last week regarding his daughter's fears about nuclear proliferation.

Staubach explained his daughter Amy was referring to a different kind of bomb — the long touchdown pass — that Cardinal wide receiver Mel Gray is proficient at catching.

The comment angered Carter supporters and CBS sports officials called the press booth to tell Staubach to lay off the politics.

Staubach, contacted at home after the game, said he didn't have much sympathy for those hot about his remark.

"Good for them," he said. "I've been hot about Carter for four years. "Johnny Carson has done it (made fun of the Carter debate remark) every night on NBC. Why don't they call him? I'd say Amy Staubach, at age 4, knows as much about football as Amy Carter knows about nuclear proliferation."

Noil feels his Steelers are returning to the right track

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The two-time defending NFL champion Pittsburgh Steelers aren't back in Super Bowl form yet, but Coach Chuck Noll says they no longer look like pretenders to the throne either.

"Our nose is pointing in the right direction," Noll said, referring to the Steelers' performance Sunday in a 22-20 victory over the Green Bay Packers that snapped their three-game losing streak. "I think we're pretty well along now in the right direction, but we have to keep going in that direction."

While the two-point win did not look particularly impressive to fans who had expected a Pittsburgh romp over Green Bay, Noll found much to praise.

"The thing that has picked up the most for us — especially for the defense — was our aggressiveness yesterday," Noll said. "I think that's something that's going to pay dividends for us down the line. We still have to be more aggressive and get that winning feeling — that kind of slipped away from us, but we're on the trail."

"We had guys doing things like stripping balls away after receivers had caught them and aggressive tackling. It was a contact football game — a much better contact football game than we've had in a while."

Six different Green Bay players went out of the game with injuries stemming from the hard contact while the Steelers lost defenseman

Dwight White — and running-back Franco Harris. Noll said he did not think Harris' injury was serious, but he was worried about White, who hurt a knee.

"We heard it's been put in a splint, and that doesn't sound good," Noll said.

A lack of aggressiveness was one of the factors that had contributed to the Steelers' losing streak and an earlier loss to Cincinnati. Noll said, "and when you've created a bad habit over a period of time, it takes a while to get the good habit established again."

Noll said the game films showed improvement in all factors of the Steelers' kicking game.

"(Punt) Craig (Colquhoun) obviously is healthier. His 415 punting average — welcome... Noll said.

"And we got two big plays from the kicking game — the bad snap by Green Bay that led to the safety and another high snap that set up one of our touchdowns."

Bear takes blame for Alabama's setback

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Bear Bryant Monday took full responsibility for Alabama's 6-3 loss to Mississippi State, saying the Bulldogs "just whipped us in the trenches and deserved to win."

"Emory (Coach Bellard) had a better plan than I did, an excellent plan," said Bryant. "State deserved to win. I wasted two time outs that we shouldn't have taken. That is my job."

Referring to the Tide's late drive when they threatened to score with seconds remaining, Bryant said he should have told quarterback Don Jacobs to throw the ball out of bounds and kill the clock.

"We could have called two passing plays in the huddle," he said. "That is my responsibility — not the quarterback's — and I didn't do it."

Bryant said he wasn't thinking about kicking a field goal.

"I didn't want to go for a tie from the four-yard line. We had won 23 straight and it wouldn't have been fair for the players to go for a tie when we had a chance to win. If the ball had been back on the 20 or something, we would have thought about it."

Bryant said the "real test" will be how Alabama handles the rest of the season against LSU, Notre Dame and Auburn.

"We could easily lose the rest of our games," he said. "If we've got character and pride, like I think we'll snap back. We still can have an outstanding season. And we haven't given up on winning the national championship. It may well be won by a team with one loss."

Idaho still alive in race for Big Sky title

By United Press International

The University of Idaho's 1980 football dreams aren't dead just yet, and the Vandals kept their Big Sky Conference title hopes alive Saturday — with a little help from Idaho State.

Idaho whipped Weber State 31-6 Saturday night, climbing to within a half game of first-place Boise State in the Big Sky standings. While the ISU Bengals virtually knocked Nevada Reno out of the race, edging the Wolf Pack 30-24 at Reno.

In other Saturday games, Montana State defeated Montana 24-7 in a league game, while Northern Arizona beat Northern Colorado 30-13 in a non-conference battle.

Idaho's only conference loss, a 44-21 setback at Boise State three weeks ago, may prevent the Vandals from taking the 1980 Big Sky crown. But 3-1 Idaho still has three league games remaining, while 4-1 BSU has two. So it's not over yet.

Weber State had gone into Moscow, Idaho, hoping to stop Idaho quarterback Ken Hobart. But the Wildcats found Hobart a hard man to contain, as he ran for two Vandal touchdowns and passed for a third Idaho score.

Hobart passed for 164 yards, including a 70-yard bomb to Ben Bubak. And he rushed for another 78 yards, scoring on a pair of 4-yard runs. Linebacker Steve Nelson got the Vandals' other touchdown, on a 23-yard interception return.

And while Hobart was running away with the offensive line, the Vandal defense gave up only two field goals — from 48 and 47 yards out by Weber State's Roger Ruzek.

In Big Sky games this Saturday, Boise State hosts Nevada-Reno, while Idaho State is at Idaho, and Northern Arizona travels to Montana. In non-conference games, Saturday, Montana State hosts North Dakota State and Weber State will try to end its three-game losing streak at home against Utah State.

Bruce feels Ohio State squad on upswing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce said Monday his ninth-ranked team played its best overall game of the year in last Saturday's 49-16 victory over Michigan State but will have to continue to improve.

"I hope so," Bruce replied when asked if the Buckeyes were indeed on the upswing. "When you're in contention for the Big Ten championship, the month of November is very important to you, to be improving and playing well."

"You saw last week what happened to a few football teams in this country when they took some teams lightly," he said, adding, "I guess they took them lightly. I don't know what makes for an upset other than a lot of enthusiasm by one team and a lack of enthusiasm by the other."

"Mainly, I want to tell you why I think we're getting better, because some young people are giving us some go's right now. Our down-the-line young people are coming on very strong."

Bruce, contrary to the week before after a lackluster 21-0 road win over Wisconsin, was happy with the performances of both the Buckeye offense and defense against Michigan State.

"We played well together," he said, noting the 603 total yards was the best offensive output in his 20 games at Ohio State.

Osborne mad about tackle

By United Press International

For the second straight year, Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne has claimed that his star running back Jarvis Redwine was the victim of a cheap shot at the hands of a Missouri player.

Last season, Osborne claimed Missouri defensive end Norman Goodman hit Redwine in the knee with an illegal chop block during a Nebraska extra point attempt. Redwine saw limited action during the final four weeks of the regular season as a result of the injury.

This time, Osborne charged that Redwine, who is still nursing a fractured rib from the Florida State game one month earlier, was kneed in the chest by an unidentified Missouri player Saturday on the final play of the season.

Redwine eventually had to pull himself out of the game in the second half after rushing for 129 yards and two touchdowns to propel the Cornhuskers to a 38-16 win.

"Jarvis was kneed in the chest," claimed Osborne Monday. "I think he (Missouri player) got carried away. He gave him a good shot. One of the Missouri players had to pull him off. Jarvis was hurt; it had an impact on him."

Briefly in sports

City cagers meet Wednesday

TWIN FALLS — A second organizational meeting for the Twin Falls City men's and women's basketball leagues will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Twin Falls City Hall.

Some 20 men's and six women's teams are planning to play in the league this season, according to Chad Browning of the parks and recreation department.

Leonard resumes training

NEW CARROLLTON, Md. (UPI) — Sugar Ray Leonard, who will attempt to regain his World Boxing Council welterweight championship from Roberto Duran on Nov. 25, resumed training Monday after missing three days with the flu.

Leonard, who lost his title to Duran in Montreal on June 20 in a unanimous decision, sparred with Steve Gregory Monday in preparation for the return bout in New Orleans.

"I thought I'd be weak," said Leonard, "but I did everything right and felt like working all day. The flu that knocked me out was completely gone. This will be a different fight. I fought him the last time in a little and a humble. The fight won't go the distance. I'm holding nothing back. I'll have a big surprise for him."

Leonard will continue to train in Maryland until Sunday and is scheduled to leave for New Orleans on Monday. Duran has been training in Miami Beach, Fla.

Madlock has thumb surgery

NEW YORK (UPI) — Third baseman Bill Madlock of the Pittsburgh Pirates underwent surgery Monday morning to repair torn ligaments in his left thumb.

A spokesperson for Roosevelt Hospital said Madlock "was the first one in the operating room this morning, about 7:30, and is back in his room."

Madlock should be released from the hospital in about two days.

IAAF draws plans on amateurism

ALDEIA DAS ACOTELAS, Portugal (UPI) — The International Amateur Athletics Association's (IAAF) working party on "amateurism" has generated proposals that acknowledge the economic realities of today's world of track and field.

At Monday's close of a two-day meeting, the working party suggested the IAAF should be prepared to set aside its eligibility rules, and give its official blessing to prize money, subsidies and advertising for its athletes.

The nine-man gathering at this southern coastal resort drew up a list of eligibility rule alterations for discussion at the IAAF congress in Rome next September.

Findings of the working party, which was headed by Yugoslav Artur Takac, will be presented to all the organization's member federations for initial study and debate in January.

Summing up the party's proposals, IAAF secretary general John Holt said they were not aimed at pulling the rug from under "amateurism" but "simply a matter of facing the situation that already exists and analyzing it objectively."

BSU fullback invited to all-star game

BOISE (UPI) — Boise State University senior fullback David Hughes has been invited to play in the 56th annual Shrine East-West game set for Jan. 10.

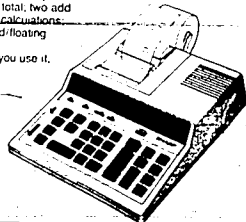

Hughes, 6-1, 220 pounds, is Boise State's third all-time leading rusher and is in fourth and final season with the Broncos. Hughes, who is from Kailua, Hawaii, has been a starter all his four years at Boise State and was chosen for the All-Big Sky team.

Through eight games this season, Hughes' career statistics include 41 games, 329 carries, 1,705 yards for a 5.2 carry average, 12 touchdowns rushing, 63 pass receptions for 636 yards and five more touchdowns by the pass.

NBA

White retires

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Guard JoJo White announced his retirement Monday from the Kansas City Kings, ending a brilliant 11-year career during which he collected seven All-Star selections and two NBA championship rings.

White earned all of his honors during his decade as a point guard for the Boston Celtics from 1969 through 1979. He played on championship teams in 1974 and 1976, earning playoff Most Valuable Player honors the latter year. In 83 career post-season games, White averaged 21.5 points.

"White, who played on the 1968 gold medal-winning U.S. Olympic team, was traded to Golden State during the 1979-80 season and then dealt to Kansas City prior to this season. He played in 13 games as the backup to Phil Ford before announcing his retirement.

"We hate to lose him," said Kansas City coach Cotton Fitzsimmons. "But it was a decision he made. We certainly appreciate the effort he gave us even though it was brief. I know that whatever endeavor he chooses, he will continue to be a success."

"It's always when a great player ends his career but it's fitting that if JoJo couldn't end his career in Boston, where he helped them win two world championships, he could end up in Kansas City."

White finished his career with 14,399 points for an average of 17.2 per game — more points than the likes of all-time-greats Dave DeBusschere, Jerry Lucas, Billy Cunningham and Cazzie Russell and a better average than the likes of Len Wilkens, Richie Guerin, Bill Russell and John Kerr. During his days at Kansas, White earned three All-Big Eight and two All-America selections. The Jayhawks won two Big Eight titles and posted a 68-12 record during White's days in the backcourt.

Lester gets knife

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Bulls guard Ronnie Lester had surgery performed on his knee to remove damaged cartilage Monday and the club was still holding out hope the rookie could return to the team this season.

Lester, the 6-foot-2 former University of Iowa guard, had an arthroscope exam on his knee. Team doctor Dr. James Noble said the exam revealed a compound tear of the posterior horn of the medial meniscus of the right knee. Lester then underwent one hour of surgery to remove the damaged cartilage, Noble said.

Noble indicated Lester would be lost to Chicago, which acquired Lester in a draft deal with Portland, for an indefinite period of time. However, Noble would not indicate whether Lester would be lost to the team for the rest of the season.

Lester had been placed on the injured reserve list at the start of the season because of the knee injury. He played sparingly for two weeks before being sidelined again.

He originally hurt the knee during his senior season with the Hawkeyes, but came back to play in the NCAA semifinals in April. However, Noble would not indicate whether Lester would be lost to the team for the rest of the season.

Lester had been placed on the injured reserve list at the start of the season because of the knee injury. He played sparingly for two weeks before being sidelined again.

The guard has not been signed by any other NBA club and has been working out in Chicago.

Sonics sign guard

SEATTLE (UPI) — Veteran guard Rudy White, 27, picked up from the Golden State Warriors for future considerations, has agreed to a one-year contract with the Seattle SuperSonics. It was announced Monday.

The 6-foot-3 White had been activated by the Warriors on Oct. 20 after missing the early part of the NBA season with back spasms. He played just over 10 minutes per contest during four games with Golden State and averaged 5.5 points.

Merit: Runaway Winner.

MERIT low tar/good taste combination earns convincing 3 to 1 victory over high tar leaders.

There's a low tar cigarette that's challenging high tar smoking—and winning. The cigarette: MERIT.

High Tars Suffer Setback.

Nationwide smoker research documents that smokers prefer MERIT.

Blind Taste Tests: In tests where brand identity was concealed, a significant majority of smokers rated the taste of low tar MERIT as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar!

Smoker Preference: Among the 95% of smokers stating a preference, the MERIT low tar/good taste combination was favored 3 to 1 over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed!

Long-Term Satisfaction: In the latest survey of former high tar smokers who have switched to MERIT, 9 out of 10 reported they continue to enjoy smoking, are glad they switched, and reported MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried!

MERIT is the proven alternative to high tar smoking. And you can taste it.
