

Hostage crisis approaching climax

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Friday received $2.2 billion in frozen Iranian assets for quick transfer to Iran and prepared another proposal for Tehran.

The complex financial transfer of the first $2.2 billion in securities began well before formal deadline of the close of business Friday which had been set by both sides, in order to complete the complicated transaction before administration takes over.

U.S. and international bankers met with Treasury Secretary G. William Miller in the words of one official, "got the I's dotted and the T's crossed" on arrangements to turn over the money to Iran.

U.S. officials were prepared to act to that end: a group of U.S. and international bankers met with Friday night with Treasury Secretary G. William Miller.

an agreement which would then have to be implemented," Powell said. Powell said that it is now possible that the hostages may be released before inauguration day.

the hostages, the network reported. Powell said Carter had directed moves Friday that would permit prompt transfer of $2.2 billion in Iranian assets, frozen in the Federal Reserve Bank in New York since Nov. 14, 1979.

Bankers

America, Iran disagree on amount of assets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top U.S. and international bankers and State Department officials Friday failed to settle disparities between the United States and Iran on the amount of frozen Iranian assets in the United States.

Any penalty that Iran incurs, a State Department official said, will not be exacted from the financial assets, but has already been inflicted in terms of international economic sanctions and the isolation that led, apparently, to the war with Iraq.

No ransom, U.S. says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration said Friday Iran can only receive its assets — not ransom — for the freedom of the 52 American hostages.

Families refuse optimism, although hopes seem high

The families of the 52 Americans held hostage in Iran refused to be openly optimistic Friday, but it was apparent their hopes for an end to the 14-month ordeal were high — perhaps higher than they ever have been.

Graves said the present state of affairs is hopeful but urged restraint. "I consider this to have been the first real hope," she said. "But it's not a reality and we must be very cautious. It's very important that everyone be restrained."

"I've been let down so many times," he said. "It's aged me a great deal. I'm afraid." Moorhead Kennedy Sr., father of hostage Moorhead Kennedy, said he was "hopeful" but declined further comment.

H&J prefers program elimination to partial cuts

BOISE (UPI) — Elimination of entire programs is preferable to "slow strangling" if legislators are forced to drastically curtail spending for the Idaho Health and Welfare Department, agency officials said Friday.

Mrs. Parsons and Director Milton Klein gave the committee a list of laws under which the agency performs its various welfare, health and environmental duties. Because the state faces a fiscal dilemma, some of those laws would have to be altered or eliminated if funding for the programs they mandate is curtailed.

parents are quitting because the money is insufficient. Klein also asked the lawmakers to approve the following requests: Appropriate $465,000 as a loan from the Water Pollution Control Fund to cover the cost of paying Aid to Dependent Children benefits this fiscal year.

Liquor dispensaries request freedom

BOISE (UPI) — The superintendent of Idaho's Liquor Dispensary today asked legislators to free the agency so it can earn more money for state coffers.

Mike McAllister said for every $1 appropriated to run the Liquor Dispensary the agency returns about $3 to the general fund to run other programs.

But he said discussion of increasing the state's tax on liquor causes concern because any hike in the tax would result in lower sales, and lower revenues for the state.

He said he has heard talk that the liquor tax may be increased to pay for the cost of repairing the Idaho State Penitentiary, which sustained more than $1 million in damage due to July's inmate riot. Any increase in that tax would defeat its purpose, he said.

"We have no qualms about funding these other state agencies," McAllister said. "We do like to have a say so when new taxes are put on because, as we said, taxes are devastating to profits."

McAllister told the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee that his agency has saved money by changing state-run liquor stores to a contract basis where individuals run the establishments and turn over a certain percentage of profits to the state. In addition, he said, the agency also has begun investing money on a short-term basis, earning about $1 million for the state last year.

"Would you let us run this like a business," McAllister said. "And let us go out and raise some money for you."

He urged lawmakers to allow the dispensary to open several new liquor stores during fiscal year 1982, saying the demand for the additional stores is increasing. In Moscow, for example, he said, the second-largest liquor store in the state has a 20-to-30-minute waiting line when athletic events are scheduled at the University of Idaho.

"People are stacked up outside to get in and there's a long line inside," he said. "People start consuming the liquor on the premises, and this is getting a little out of hand."

"Sure, we could call in a policeman, but I think the answer is another store."

Bill would have PUC set utility rates for cable television

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Vernon Brassey, R-Boise, Friday introduced a bill to give the Public Utilities Commission power to set rates for utility charges to cable television companies.

Brassey said he introduced the bill at the request of the cable television industry. He said the cable companies are charged rental for hanging their cables on utility poles, and the companies would prefer that the rental rate be established by the PUC.

"The companies have no problems at the present time," he said. "But they would like it if these charges were set by the PUC. I think they want the rates to be uniform across the state."

A utility now can charge anything it wants and its only place to go unless the companies put in their own poles at a higher cost.

Primaries

Committee backs bill to abolish presidential primaries

By MARK SHENEFELT
United Press International

BOISE (UPI) — A bill to abolish Idaho's presidential preference primary and shift the state primary from May to September received preliminary approval Friday from the House State Affairs Committee.

Except that it would move the state primary election to September rather than August, the bill was identical to a measure introduced by the committee a day earlier.

The September bill, sent to printing by the committee, was sponsored by Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello. Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, backed the August bill. Both measures likely will return to the State Affairs Committee next week.

"It isn't right to use the taxpayers' money to conduct an election that doesn't count," Miss McDermott said after the meeting adjourned. "It makes people angry."

She echoed Little's comment Thursday that the presidential primary was a waste of time and money since it did not bind delegates to the national political conventions.

Miss McDermott said another reason for the measure was that it didn't appear — to her — that the Legislature this year would vote to require party registration to make the state parties' rules conform to those of the national parties, making the presidential primary worthwhile.

Little said his bill also would eliminate the need for a special legislative session to deal with legislative redistricting.

The 1979 Legislature enacted a law moving the state primary from August, combining it with the presidential primary on the fourth Tuesday in May.

Miss McDermott's bill would move the state primary to the second Tuesday in September. Little's would put it on the Tuesday after the first Monday in August.

"The state's primary has shifted back and forth across the calendar several times in the past few decades.

In other action, the committee voted to introduce a measure sponsored by Miss McDermott that would prohibit news media from reporting the results of an election until the polls have closed all across the state. Current law dictates southern Idaho results can be reported when the polls close 8 p.m. — an hour before balloting ends in northern Idaho, which is in the Pacific time zone.

The Pocatello Democrat said the bill would eliminate voter frustration about hearing results before the polls close and might soothe feelings between north and south.

American Falls district can't give money away

BOISE — The American Falls Reservoir District has $1 million to give away but needs an act of the Idaho Legislature to do so, according to State Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl.

"We're in a peculiar situation," Barker, an official of the district, told the Senate Resources and Conservation Committee. "We've got this money and we don't know how to give it back legally."

He was referring to about $1 million the district wants to refund to farmers and other water users in connection with the U.S. Government's repayment of the district's $12.8 million share of the reconstruction of American Falls Dam.

The situation does not apply to Minidoka Irrigation District, whose share has been refunded.

The refund would amount to about $1 per acre for shareholders in five

Legislature briefs

BOISE (UPI) — Friday's legislative highlights include:

—Rep. James Stolcheff, D-Sandpoint, convinced the House State Affairs Committee to introduce a measure that would eliminate the state Endowment Fund Investment Board.

—A legislative interim committee on the Idaho Public Utilities Commission succeeded in getting two bills introduced, but ran aground with another measure.

—Sen. Vernon Brassey, R-Boise, introduced a bill to give the Public Utilities Commission power to set rates for utility charges to cable television companies. Under the proposal, the PUC would regulate how much utilities charge for hanging television cables on power poles.

—A House committee voted to introduce a bill designed to allow counties to increase property-tax collections for ambulance service districts.

Print committee overruled

House aides' raise back on track

BOISE (UPI) — Overruling its Printing Committee, the House voted Friday to pull back on track a resolution granting House aides a 10 percent pay increase, their first raise in three years.

The freshman-dominated committee drew the wrath of the House leadership Thursday when it refused to reconsider its action to send the resolution to the speaker's desk with a recommendation that it not be printed.

However, with 32 affirmative votes required, 44 House members voted Friday to send the bill to the printer. The measure still needs a final vote on the House floor before it can go into effect.

Five conservative Republican members of the committee, including four freshmen, opposed the pay resolution because they believed it would set a poor precedent for a Legislature, which might choose to impose a state employees' salary freeze.

But several veteran Republican legislators, backing up House leaders, told the House the Printing Committee's duties should be confined to examining proposals for technical defects.

"The Printing Committee is not a censorship committee," said Rep. James Golder, R-Boise. "They've stepped way out of line on this issue."

Individual votes were not recorded in the standing vote, but Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer, said he agreed with Golder.

"I haven't even seen the bill, but it ought to get to the floor (of the full House)," he said.

Revenue committee affirms 1981 estimates

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho House Revenue and Taxation Committee unanimously affirmed Friday the Joint Revenue Projection Committee's state general-account income estimates for fiscal years 1981 and 1982.

The first resolution, predicting a revised 1981 total of $377 million in revenue, has created a base for further possible emergency spending cuts of $3 million. Current spending is running at $380 million for the fiscal year.

For budget year 1982, the House committee agreed with the select panel that general-account collections should total an estimated $422.2 million. This figure compares to Gov. John Evans' proposed budget of $427 million and the chief executive's revenue estimate of $438.2 million.

Answering a question from a fellow committee member, Rep. Harold Reid, D-Craigmont, who served on the joint committee, said he disagreed with the estimates. But he did not vote against the full committee's recommendation.

Calls Dworshak planning 'sham' Lack of dam study angers Andrus

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Outgoing Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus accused the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers of subterfuge in not ordering an immediate environmental impact statement on a proposed fourth generator at Dworshak Dam.

They're trying another end run, said the former Idaho governor who will be returning to the Gem State with the change in administrations.

He said fluctuations in the Clearwater River that would result directly from an additional hydroelectric unit dictates the need for an impact statement.

Andrus said what's been done in this regard to this point constituted a "sham."

He said his remarks were not only official, but also personal. Andrus, a former Lewiston resident, is an avid steelhead fisherman.

He said the corps is currently conducting studies that will provide results it wants.

Primary corps findings indicate the fluctuations would have little or no effect on steelhead fishing.

Andrus said a fourth generator would lead to a fifth and then a sixth, bringing the Dworshak to its peak potential of 1,000 megawatts at the expense of the aesthetics of the Clearwater.

Walla Walla Corps Dist. Engineer Col. H.J. Thayer, meanwhile, said he had not heard from Andrus.

Thayer did say, however, that he felt the Interior Secretary has been given wrong information about the environmental study.

He said the corps studies are part of an environmental impact statement.

He said the Idaho Fish and Game Department and other top researchers are also involved.

He said addition of a fifth and sixth generator are not planned.

Thayer said additional generating capacity could not be achieved without construction of a regulating dam "and that is environmentally not acceptable."

Big blast to be studied

CHENEY, Wash. (UPI)—Eastern Washington University will host an international scientific symposium on the physical and sociological effects of the eruption of Mount St. Helens.

The date of the symposium is May 18, the first anniversary of the big blast.

The symposium will include eyewitness accounts of the eruption, papers on post-eruption search and rescue operations in southwestern Washington and a session on the massive efforts to clean up volcanic ash.

Mine project gearing up

CHALLIS (UPI)—Work will begin this spring in Custer County on the largest mining project in the history of Idaho.

Cyprus Mines Corp. said between 600 and 700 workers will begin digging a $350 million open-pit molybdenum mine on Thompson Creek about 47 miles southwest of Challis.

After the construction phase, the mine is expected to employ about 550 workers. The mine will be a mile wide and a mile long and several thousand feet deep at full production.

Mockwitz named mayor

GARDEN CITY (UPI)—Garden City Councilwoman Margaret Mockwitz, who earlier this week survived a recall election, was named mayor Thursday night.

Mrs. Mockwitz has been acting mayor since Council President Joe Shuter was recalled Dec. 23.

Her first action as mayor was to nominate Warren Robinson to fill her seat on the council.

She will serve as mayor until November, when an election will be held to select someone to complete the remaining two years of Pat Westerfield's four-year term.

Right-to-work backers confident

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho Freedom to Work Committee leaders said today they were confident the Legislature would pass a right to work bill and Gov. John Evans would support its passage.

"We are confident the House will pass the right to work bill and take the first step toward returning freedom of choice to the working men and women of our state," said co-chairman Peter W. Bratt of Boise.

And the committee's other co-chairman, Louise Koxiz, Kimberly, added "we are just as confident that the Senate and Governor Evans will honor the wishes of an obviously overwhelming majority of Idahoans by supporting passage of this bill."

A right to work bill was introduced in the House by Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding, chairman of Agricultural Affairs Committee.

Bratt said "a vast majority of Idahoans strongly oppose the current practice of forcing a worker to join and pay dues to a private labor union—at the threat of being fired."

"The abuses of compulsory unionism in Idaho are many, as was obvious during the past election when many union members protested that their compulsory dues money was being used to support candidates they personally opposed," he said.

"We must end the abuses of compulsory unionism power in Idaho. The Legislature and governor can do just that by enacting the right to work bill into law.

Bratt said right to work passage will be a "shot in the arm to Idaho's economy, despite scarce-fact claims by union officials who will say anything when their compulsory powers are threatened."

Meantime, Robert Kinghorn, president of the Idaho AFL-CIO, announced a news conference Monday afternoon to discuss Brook's proposal right to work legislation.

2 minor quakes shake Utah area

KANARRAVILLE, Utah (UPI)—A pair of small earthquakes registering about 2.2 on the Richter scale shook residents in the area between Kanarraville and Cedar City early today, University of Utah seismologists reported.

The quakes were centered in an area seven miles south-southeast of the tiny Iron County town and about 17 miles southeast of Cedar City. No damage or injuries were reported.

Seismologists said the quakes are apparently part of a swarm of small tremors that have been going on in the area since December last year. One of the December quakes registered 3.6 on the open-ended Richter scale.

The first quake occurred at 3:26 a.m., a university spokesman said, and was followed by the second at 7:50 a.m.

Swarms of small quakes of this type are not unusual in southern Utah, the seismologists said.

Coeur d'Alene sewer plant sites subject of controversy

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI)—The lake city needs a sewage treatment plant but two of the three sites under consideration may involve disturbing ancient Indian burial grounds.

City Administrator Eugene

McAdams says the proposed $22 million sewage treatment plant sites are along the Spokane river near North Idaho College.

Rock quarry activities has already disturbed the third site, according to McAdams.

He said before the city could move on the two undisturbed sites, an archeologist would have to be employed to study the subsurface.

He said the head village of the Coeur d'Alene Indian tribe was located at the junction of the Spokane River and lake Coeur d'Alene's Cougar Bay.

The potential cultural site extends for an undetermined distance downstream.

Will blackout lead to suit?

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Utah Power and Light Co. is still considering whether to file suit against the state in connection with the huge power blackout Jan. 8.

Any suit would be based on a contention that a fire at the Utah State Prison dump and a later explosion tripped UP&L's lines, triggering the outage, said company executive vice president Sidney Baucum.

The state so far questions whether the fire triggered the blackout and is still investigating.

Baucum said even if UP&L could prove the fire set off the problem, other factors, such as a defective UP&L relay could have contributed to the outage's spread.

Consequently, establishing the extent of the state's liability would be a complicated legal problem, and UP&L wants to do more investigating before launching litigation, Baucum said.

Loan board adjourns; Chrysler waits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board, ready to approve the latest Chrysler aid request, Friday adjourned its meeting until Monday to allow Treasury Secretary G. William Miller to work on the Iranian hostage negotiations.

A few minutes after his arrival, board chairman Miller told reporters he was adjourning the meeting until 8 a.m. Monday.

"I requested that the meeting be adjourned because I'm also involved right now in the delicate matter of the Iranian hostage negotiations and I must return to the State Department," Miller said.

He said the board would have dealt with the loan guarantee request immediately, but certain documents could not be readied for two hours and he could not spare the time from the "frozen assets matters."

Miller said there were no apparent problems with the Chrysler request. "I know of no variance from the conditions we put down tentatively on Wednesday."

He said he expects to have Chrysler, the United Auto Workers and a "representative number of banks" complete the required loan guarantee documentation. "Now it's a question of ... mechanics," he said.

The No. 3 automaker has asked for an additional $400 million in federal loan guarantees. The board gave Chrysler conditional approval of its request Friday, and was expected to formally approve it Friday.

The approval — subject to a mandatory 15-day grace period and conditional on all parties living up to financial concessions outlined earlier — does not guarantee the company's survival.

Chrysler's future depends largely on consumer response to its products and a general boost in auto sales, which began sagging in December in the wake of soaring interest rates.

The board announced its conditional approval of the request for additional aid after negotiations between the company and the United Auto Workers union produced a package of concessions the board believes will fortify Chrysler's future.

Under terms required by the government, Chrysler would freeze the wages and benefits of its employees for the next 20 months, pay half its outstanding debts with preferred stock, obtain at least $26 million in concessions from suppliers, and try to raise capital through a merger or other means.

The board said it would approve the request for additional loan guarantees Friday if a revised application with the new terms and conditions was prepared.

So far, Chrysler has received $800 million in loan guarantees out of a possible $1.5 billion authorized by Congress. The latest request would bring the total to $1.2 billion.

Over the next 15 days, Chrysler must work out the package of concessions with its lenders, suppliers and unions.

During that time, Congress could halt the board from granting the additional request, but it would require legislation approved by both houses — not a likely prospect.

Assuming all conditions are met, the earliest the board could grant the request for additional loan guarantees would be Feb. 2.

Economic problems keep Reagan's staff struggling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President-elect Ronald Reagan struggled for answers to the nation's economic problems Friday, but shifting events in the hostage crisis competed for his attention.

Reagan met in private sessions with his Cabinet nominees and economic advisers at both his Blair House residence and the nearby New Executive Office Building for the second straight day as he prepared to assume command from President Carter on Tuesday.

The Reagan economists were harshly critical of Carter's proposed $739.3 billion budget for fiscal year 1982 released Thursday.

David Stockman, Reagan's choice as budget director, called the document "very political" and said it is in need of "top-to-bottom" revisions.

The new administration is faced with trying to square the worsening budgetary realities with Reagan's campaign promises of generous tax cuts, reduced federal spending, a balanced budget in two years and more money for defense.

While the magnitude of the economic problems seemed to dominate the attention of his advisers, Reagan's "Senior Treasury" was thrown off by an extended national security briefing he received first thing in the morning.

Influenza outbreak killed 1,050 last week

ATLANTA (UPI) — Pneumonia and influenza claimed 1,050 lives in the United States last week, the fifth week in a row such deaths have been in excess of the number normally expected, federal health officials said Friday.

The deaths were recorded in 121 major U.S. cities, with the excess mortality occurring primarily in the 65-and-over age group in the West and Northeast sectors of the country, the national Centers for Disease Control reported.

Influenza and pneumonia, the latter a frequent complication of flu, lake lives throughout the year. In noting that 1,050 deaths occurred last week, the CDC did not say how many of the deaths were directly attributable to the current flu outbreak.

Since December 13th, when 566 influenza and pneumonia deaths were reported nationwide, there have been substantial increases in the weekly mortality totals of the two diseases. The 1,050 figure for last week compares to 764 for the week ending Jan. 3.

Influenza of epidemic proportions has been reported in nine states, Utah, Colorado, North Dakota, Alaska, Tennessee, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, and North Carolina. New York City also has reported an epidemic.

Seventeen other states listed regional outbreaks. They are: Montana, South Dakota, New Hampshire, Vermont, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas, and Texas.

Although deaths from influenza and pneumonia were occurring mainly in the older population and among those with chronic ailments, children were contracting the disease more than other age categories, said Dr. Peter Patriarca, a CDC flu researcher.

"We have heard pretty much all along that children particularly seem to be the age group that is the most affected. There has been a lot of school absenteeism, particularly in those states with widespread outbreaks."

Patriarca said all of the influenza outbreaks were being attributed to the A-Bangkok flu virus, a relative of the old Hong Kong flu that took many lives in 1969.

Weather-related incidents took 1,490 victims in 1980

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Extreme heat, tornadoes, lightning and other weather-related incidents killed at least 1,490 people in 1980, the government reported Friday.

The toll may be even greater when deaths due to cancer and other causes are factually reported. In the past 30 years, an average of 355 people a year have died from the cold.

The June-August heat wave killed 1,320 people, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's preliminary figures show. The average number of heat deaths a year is 311.

Temperatures varied by 192 degrees during 1980, from 124 in the Southwest to minus 68 in Alaska.

The 124-degree reading was posted five times — three times in the Mojave Desert town of Baker, Calif., and once each in the towns of Death Valley, Calif., and Bull Head, Ariz.

The minus 68 was recorded at the Toke weather station about 150 miles southwest of Fairbanks. The lowest reading in the contiguous 48 states was minus 47 at Wisdom, Mont.

Other 1980 weather deaths listed by the agency were 78 people killed by lightning, down from an average of 164 deaths; 28 people killed by a ship into a Tampa, Fla., bridge, in which 30 people died.

The agency also said heavy thunderstorms and 42 mph wind gusts were a factor in the April crash of a ship into a Tampa, Fla., bridge, in which 30 people died.

And although the Mount St. Helens eruption was not a weather event, the agency said the plumes of ash and gases affected the weather and left 34 people dead.

Other losses due to 1980's weather, according to the agency, included $20 billion in crop damage from the summer heat wave, flood losses of more than $1 billion, lightning storm damage of $750 million, and hurricane damage of $500 million.

Seven-year-old given wrong operation

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — A 7-year-old boy taken to the wrong operating room underwent eye surgery instead of the ear surgery that had been scheduled.

The muscles in one of Ray Elmore's eyes were cut by mistake when he was brought to the wrong operating room Wednesday at Cook Children's Hospital.

"There were two different doctors, and they got my boy into the operating room where the doctor was doing eye surgery on another kid," said the boy's father, Hollis Elmore.

Doctors later performed surgery to correct a thickened tissue that had grown around one of the bones in the boy's inner ear.

Elmore refused to identify the surgeon who made the mistake.

"Cook is a good hospital and we don't want to give them a bad name," said Ray's older sister, Margie. "It was just one of those things. It was unfortunate, but everything will work out just fine."

Elmore said the eye surgeon "apologized and said he put it all back, and he felt sure there wouldn't be any problems afterward."

Press reports say May wedding

'Prince Charles to pop question?

By United Press International

Charles's Choice: Don't hold your breath, but Prince Charles may marry this year. And it seems his mother is not too happy with the idea. Britain's heir to the throne has been seeing a lot of 19-year-old Lady Diana Spencer, and London press reports say they probably will wed in May. One report said his mother, Queen Elizabeth, asked him to wait till he knows Diana better. But the young lady and some of her family spent last weekend at the Queen's residence at Sandringham, and now tongues really are wagging. The British desperately want to see Charles married — after all, he's 32 and getting a reputation as a ladies' man — and they hear wedding bells every time he sees a woman twice.

first through fourth graders at the Winston School for children with learning disabilities. The children provided a cake and other presents. Dee Dee also received a congratulatory telegram from the Philadelphia zoo, signed by the dean of American orangutans, 50-year-old Massa.

Silent star in trouble: Silent movie star Mary MacLaren, who co-starred with Rudolph Valentino and Douglas Fairbanks Sr., is facing eviction from the house where she has lived 63 years. Health officials, who visited her house in Los Angeles to inspect damage caused by a fire, say her five dogs and four cats make the house unfit for human habitation. Neighbors complain of the smell. But Miss MacLaren, nearing 81, says, "I bought this house when I was 17. I'll stay till I die."

Pierre's patois: Portuguese-speaking Brazilians are never quite sure what language is being used by Pierre Trudeau, Canada's bilingual (French and English) prime minister. After he spoke to a group of Brazilian businessmen in Sao Paulo, the local radio station said he started in Spanish, switched to French, and finished in English. But a spokesman for the Canadian consulate said what sounded like Spanish was really Trudeau's effort at Portuguese. With a French-Canadian accent?

Can't resist a bargain: Swiss businessman Gunter Stoleck set out to buy some antique furniture in London but wound up buying a $72,000 yacht on the sidewalk. No, it wasn't a Brooklyn Bridge film-film. The 50-ton Gipsy Moth III, in which Sir Francis Chichester won the first solo trans-Atlantic yacht race, was too big to get inside Bonham's salesrooms, so the auction took place outdoors. The yacht was about to be knocked down for a paltry $33,500 when Stoleck wandered by and entered the bidding. "I shall take it back to my home in Ibiza and sail it there," he said.

And speaking of yachts: When Hermione the Duck visited the National Boat Show in New York, she had a sailing cap specially designed for the occasion. Hermione is a member of the cast (a bit of a ham, really) of the Off Broadway musical revue "Scrambled Feet" and something of a celebrity around town. When she was invited to the Boat Show she wanted something new to wear, and celebrity hat-designer Frank Olive was commissioned to design the chapeau.

Behind the name: Jimmy the Greek, formerly James G. Snyder, was born Demetrius George Synodinos.

Eastwood upstaged: Clyde, the orangutan who stole so many scenes from Clint Eastwood in their movie "Any Which Way You Can," now is upstaging Clint in the matter of female fans. A T-shirt with Clyde's likeness was the favorite present at Dee Dee's first birthday party. Dee Dee is a female orang, born in the Dallas zoo. The party was thrown by

While washing duds, you can soak up suds

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Two men name Pete, hoping to alleviate the washday blues with a few suds, are offering a laundry bar where customers can get soaked along with their clothes.

"Laundry is just about the most boring thing in the world," said Pete Moore, who teamed with Pete Harnar to open "Suds 'n Duds."

"It seems to me it's just a good, workable combination," Harnar said about running a bar and a self-service laundry. "It gives someone a chance to sit down and enjoy themselves while they're doing a distasteful job."

Manager Lynda Perle said the daytime crowd includes housewives who generally sip only soft drinks and watch soap operas on the bar's television. But as night approaches, she said the beer drinkers take over.

The business is housed in two stores connected by a hallway. "Duds" has 20 washers and 20 dryers. "Suds" has tables, chairs and pinball machines. Beer is by the draft or bottle. Soap is by the box.

Beer drinkers are notified by an electrified sign board when their wash is finished. Those using dryers are not.

"We'd just as soon people leave their clothes in the dryer and drink beer," said Moore.

There are a few setbacks. Three plastic bags full of clothes that never made it home with their owners sit in the back of the bar.

"One guy came in here to watch Monday night football and had a great time," Moore said. "He left about 11:30 p.m. and saw a big load of laundry in his car. He said he knew he'd forgotten something."

More people living alone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More people are living alone than did so a generation ago. In 1950, 5 million Americans were loners, compared with 17 million last year, says an article in the American Council of Life Insurance newsletter.

Caldwell teens now have spot to 'cruise'

CALDWELL (UPI) — Caldwell teens now have a place to congregate without fear of being chased off for loitering by police thanks to Mayor Al McCluskey.

looking over their shoulders for police when visiting with friends.

McCluskey has set aside a four-acre parcel of city property to allow teen-agers to meet on "cruising" nights. Previously, teens gathering on neighboring business parking lots had drawn the wrath of those businesses while the teens claimed they were always

Last week, after McCluskey was approached by a high school student, he gave some thought to the idea and came up with a common location for the teen-agers to socialize.

The lot has been tentatively tagged "The Cougar Pitstop" and will be supplied with garbage cans and improved lighting.

PARUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to be more sensible where practical plans are concerned to gain your most cherished aims. Be logical.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan what to do for those who have done you favors and show your appreciation. Plan time for personal pleasure.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Engage in a new kind of recreation that will bring you more pleasure today. Strive for increased happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your hunches are accurate now, so be sure to follow them. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... ...he or she will have an uncanny knack for coming up with the truth in any given situation but could be harsh in judgment unless taught early in life to have more compassion for others. Politics would be a good field here.

What's what

Suitable names chosen for inmates' products

Inmates in the North Dakota State Penitentiary at Bismarck manufacture their own janitorial products. They're not for sale commercially. But they're said to be quite good. And their names are suitable, too: A drain cleaner called Breakout. A floor remover called Frisk. A toilet bowl cleaner called Con-John. And a scouring powder called Shakedown.

Tenage thieves: In Tokyo, they carry acid sprays to disintegrate pockets so wallets fall free. In Korea, they hand cheap dolls to train passengers leaning out of windows so they can step off the whistles from the outstretched arms. In Hong Kong, they manipulate long lundles of bamboo on their shoulders to hit people in their heads seemingly by accident while cohorts rifle those distracted souls.

DYING WORDS

- Q. What were the dying words of Welsh poet Dylan Thomas?
A. "I had 18 scotch and sodas. I think that's the record."
- Q. Aren't all years that are divisible by four said to be leap years?
A. Except those years that end in two zeros. Like A. D. 1900. That wasn't a leap year. Wait, there's an exception to the exception. Those two-zero years divisible by 400 are leap years, after all. Pretty complicated. The year A. D. 2000, divisible by 400, will be a leap year.
- Q. What sort of civil dispute drives the most people to attorney?
A. Divorce.

HAIRDO

Glamor to the Warzu Indian women of South America some years ago called for a special hairdo. Honey was kneaded into the hair and then iridescent fish scales were sprinkled over the whole mess. It glistered.

Suspect the client who asks the whereabouts of the Piddle River already knows. It's in Southern England, and is noteworthy in particular because it runs from Puddletown to Poole.

Q. How many people in this country die every day in falls? I mean like out of airplanes, off of horses, over roller skates, whatever?
A. Approximately 55.

Even rosters brought up entirely in the constant darkness of caves grow in the early morning.

QUESTION ...

My husband was a career serviceman. He passed away recently. Is there any government provision for paying the balance due on our home mortgage?

ANSWER ...

If your husband was on active duty at the time of his death, and you had an F.H.A. (Section 222) loan on your property, the Department of Defense will pay only your mortgage insurance premium. This will be paid up to whichever date occurs first: the date you sell the house, two years from the date of the serviceman's death. No mortgage payments will be made by the government for you.

Although the Department of Defense does not retire the amount of your F.H.A. insured loan, you may be entitled to all or some of the following benefits which may help to reduce it:
Serviceman's Group Life Insurance, $20,000
Death Gratuity
Rend Serviceman's Family Protection Plan
Disability & Indemnity Compensation

Stocks eke out small gains

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — Stocks, aided by hopes for American hostages in Iran and some favorable corporate news, managed to register a small gain Friday.

The market closed out the week with uncertainty surrounding the course of interest rates.

Investors were encouraged that IBM reported higher earnings and American Telephone & Telegraph appeared ready to settle a longstanding antitrust suit. Both are market trendsetters.

Trading was moderately active as the Dow Jones industrial average, a 30-stock Thursday pulled for a 3.32-point gain to 973.29 after meandering in a broad range. It had been up more than 5 points around midday.

The closely watched average gained 4.6 points for the week.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.34 to 77.33 and the price of an average share increased 16 cents. Advances topped declines 832-647 among the 1,882 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

Observers said resolution of the hostages crisis would have a good psychological effect on the market.

because it was removing one major market uncertainty.

But other problems remain. Investors were disturbed that the Fed reported the nation's money supply rose $1.6 billion in the latest statistical week after declining the previous three weeks.

A broader measure of the money supply showed $11.5 billion as money from NOW accounts was included for the first time. But loan demand at New York banks declined almost $2 billion after rising for several weeks.

Analysts said the Fed is likely to maintain its tough stance. Trendsetting Citicorp, which announces its policies each Friday, disturbed many when it left its prime lending rate at the prevailing 20 percent level.

A big bond volume totaled 43,260,000 shares up from the 33,640,000 traded Thursday.

Brokers said one reason the turnover was relatively slow was that Wall Street still is in a state of shock over the battering the market took late last week after forecaster Joseph Granville issued a sell signal.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 49,169,000 shares, compared with 45,199,300 traded Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 3.65 to 347.94 and the price of a share increased 20 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC issues gained 1.28 to 101.13.

At 4 p.m., IBM, a Dow average component, was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/4 to 66 1/2. The computer giant reported fourth-quarter earnings of $2.14 a share, up from the $1.73 reported a year ago.

American Telephone & Telegraph, another Dow average component, rose 1/4 to 50 in active trading. The company and government have reached a tentative agreement to settle the Justice Department's long-standing antitrust suit against AT&T.

Federal National Mortgage was the second most active NYSE listed issue, up 1/4 to 11 1/2 in trading that included a block of 50,000 shares at 11. Pedders Corp. followed, up 1/4 to 7 1/2.

California Standard, a Dow average component, gained 2/4 to 103 1/2 and Mobil Corp. rose 1/4 to 8 1/4 in active trading. Other oils, which have been pacifiers this week, were mixed.

SEDCO, which is drilling in a Phillips Petroleum field off the Ivory Coast of Africa, gained 2/4 to 92 1/2. Phillips lost 1/4 to 57 1/2.

Among the other energy related issues, Missouri Pacific rose 1/4 to 95 1/2, Sabine Corp. 2/4 to 57, Global Marine 2/4 to 68 1/2 and Sun Co. 1/4 to 7 1/4. Superior lost 1/4 to 210 1/2.

Golden West Financial added 1/4 to 13 1/2 in trading that included blocks of 148,400 shares at 12 1/2 and 175,000 shares at 13. The company reported fourth-quarter earnings of 48 cents a share versus 47 cents a year ago.

Shaw-Welch Stores lost 1/4 to 31 and Kuhn Big K Stores, an Amex issue, plunged 2/4 to 3 1/2. The companies terminated merger talks.

Dan River Mills rose 2/4 to 19 1/2. David Murdock and three affiliated corporations — Pacific Holding, International Mining Corp. and Murdock Investment Corp. — have acquired 62 percent of its stock.

Amstar Corp., a 2-point winner the previous session, topped on 1 to 26. The company Thursday reported its second-quarter earnings soared to $2.84 a share from $2.39 a year ago.

On the Amex, advances topped declines 225-221 among the 765 issues traded at 4 p.m. Volume at that time totaled 6,430,000 shares, compared with 5,500,000 traded Thursday.

Guilf Oil was the most active Amex issue, up 1/4 to 21 1/2. Houston Oil & Minerals followed, up 1/4 to 53 1/2. Syntex was third, up 1/4 to 65 1/2.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge Friday recessed the antitrust trial of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. until Feb. 2.

The action was taken to allow the government and the company to work out a detailed settlement of the 6-year-old case.

U.S. District Judge Harold Greene granted the recess on the second day of the trial, following opening statements by the government and AT&T.

He said he expects negotiations to produce a consent decree for his inspection by March 4.

Details of the settlement were not immediately available. But it was believed to fall far short of the government's proposal to dismantle the world's largest company through separate ownership of its 23 local operating telephone companies, long distance facilities, manufacturing subsidiary (Western Electric) and research arm (Bell Labs).

The Bell System is under the constraint of another consent decree, reached with the Justice Department in 1956, keeping it out of the data processing field.

In a written order, Greene said government- and AT&T lawyers told him at a meeting on the eve of the trial that a "concrete, detailed, tangible agreement has been reached, and that no 'complex or controversial features' remain to be resolved.

The judge said he expects to receive from both AT&T and from the attorney general or his designee "documentation showing they support the settlement framework."

That means the Reagan administration will be handling details of the settlement, although Attorney General-designate William French Smith has said he would not be able to AT&T subsidiary may not be able to involve himself in the case.

Garwood doesn't testify; defense rests

CAMP LEJUNE, N.C. (UPI) — The defense rested its case Friday in the court martial of Marine Pfc. Robert R. Garwood, without calling Garwood to testify.

He is the only Vietnam-era soldier ever accused of joining forces with the enemy.

Garwood's attorneys ended their case after 13 days and eight witnesses in which they constructed an elaborate psychiatric defense that contended Garwood was driven insane by isolation, torture and deprivation at the hands of the Viet Cong and cannot be held criminally responsible for his actions during nearly 14 years behind enemy lines.

Garwood's version of his years with the enemy was presented by four psychiatrists and psychologists who testified he had essentially become "a white Vietnamese."

They claimed Garwood was stripped of his identity as a Marine by torture that included beatings, confinement for eight weeks in a bamboo cage and isolation from other Americans.

Garwood, 34, is charged with desertion and collaboration with the enemy. He could receive a life prison sentence if convicted by the five-man jury hearing the case.

When court resumes Tuesday, military prosecutors will begin calling their own psychiatrists, who claim Garwood suffers only from an "avoidant" personality that has resulted in a lifelong pattern of taking the easy way out of difficult situations.

By not calling Garwood to the stand, the defense is asking the jury to believe Garwood's account of events as related by the psychiatrists who spent more than 200 hours with him.

They claim his odyssey began with his capture in a gunbattle with the Viet Cong outside Da Nang on Sept. 28, 1965, continued through a series of jungle prison camps in South Vietnam and North Vietnamese prisons and ended when he passed a note to a European in a Hanoi restaurant in February 1979 saying he wanted to return to the U.S.

A new twist was added to the case Friday when Marine Corps prosecutors revealed the existence of captured letters Garwood wrote to "communist cohorts," saying he was happy living with the Viet Cong.

During a dispute with the defense concerning whether the letters could be used as evidence, chief prosecutor Maj. Werner Hellmer said the letters, authenticated by FBI handwriting experts, were written in 1968 and 1969 to a Vietnamese in Quang Ngai.

"I like my work, I'm happy," Hellmer quoted Garwood as saying.

Hellmer also said the letters describe Garwood making propaganda broadcasts over a bullhorn outside American combat positions and then being fired on by U.S. forces.

"Here is something you have that does not corroborate what Pfc. Garwood says," Hellmer said.

Col. R.E. Switzer, the presiding judge, ruled certain portions of the letters could be introduced into evidence.

But he said sections of the letters contained references to acts of collaboration with which Garwood is not accused. Switzer said those portions could not be presented to the jury.

East Coast cold leaving, effects stay

By United Press International

The flesh-withering Eastern cold eased Friday, giving way to more normal winter weather, but the problems of frostbitten Easterners were far from over.

Massachusetts shut down schools to conserve its dangerously depleted natural gas supply. Florida officials considered a shipping ban on freeze-damaged citrus crops.

Snow spread across the north, from Montana to western New England. Cold weather lingered over New England, with the mercury plunging to 25 below zero at Houlton, Maine. But for most of the East, temperatures were much warmer than the norm than there were a few days ago.

The run of Arctic weather left Massachusetts with an emergency. Though temperatures had moderated, the weather was far from springlike. And the supply of natural gas — used up during the record cold — was dangerously low.

Hundreds of schools in eastern Massachusetts were closed Friday and at least 100,000 pupils got a long weekend as state officials worked to conserve precious natural gas.

Gov. Edward J. King said gas-heated businesses and industries in the Boston area might also have to shut down unless the situation improved.

He ordered commercial customers of Boston Gas Co., the state's largest natural gas distributor, to lower thermostats to 55 degrees and state inspectors were dispatched Friday to make sure industries complied with the order.

Hospitals, nursing homes and similar businesses were exempted. King also urged that home thermostats be set at 65 degrees during the day.

"My primary concern and my hope is that homeowners will not be cut off from their source of heat," King said.

He said the next nine days would be critical. Major new shipments of gas were expected to arrive from Louisiana and Algeria at the end of the week.

Florida still was discovering the lethal effects of its recent bout with Arctic weather.

The Florida Citrus Commission was almost certain to order a shipping embargo of up to 10 days on ice-damaged fruit. Citrus growers estimated damage at $100 million.

The embargo would keep growers from moving what looks like undamaged fruit, out of state, only to have it turn black on grocery store shelves in northern cities.

Low temperatures cool criminals

By United Press International

The deep freeze weather on the East Coast has cut such outdoor crimes as burglaries, car heists and purse snatchings. But muggers and junkies have moved inside to skulk in warm hallways and subway stations.

"Miserable cold is the best police officer in the world," said New York Police Sgt. Joseph Funcheon, whose beat includes Times Square, a pickpockets' paradise.

Though police in cities from New England to Florida welcomed the cold snap for its effect on street crime, some noted that extended cold which forced people to stay inside can cause hot-blooded crime through tension and snapped tempers.

Official crime statistic reports were not yet available for the period covering the current cold wave, but police in other areas agreed it has made their jobs easier.

"I wouldn't go out and try to steal any hubcaps in this type of weather," said acting Birmingham, Ala., Police Chief Jack Warren. "I know I'm not going outside as often and I'm sure the criminals are staying inside too."

Another reason for the drop is that the average citizen, looking out the window at the weather, would rather stay home in front of a warm television.

In Boston, Police Sgt. Albert F. Donnelly said the freeze had "definitely" reduced the crime rate, including stolen cars. He estimated there was a 10-percent drop in emergency calls on his pre-dawn shift.

"There's very few people out walking and those that are stay close to home," he said.

Staying home also drives off sneak thieves and burglars, authorities said.

Skyview findings pending

TWIN FALLS — Decisions on unfair labor practice charges involving the Skyview-Hazeldele Manor should be made by Feb. 1, according to National Labor Relations Board officials in Seattle.

Negotiations between the nursing home's management and union are deadlocked pending the outcome of the three charges. A federally-mediated session called Thursday to break the deadlock.

NLRB field examiner Pat Day will investigate two of the charges and plans to interview parties in Twin Falls next week. She will investigate whether a terminated employee was fired for her union activity or "just cause," and whether a "last and final offer" submitted by management constituted a "refusal to bargain."

NLRB field examiner Lynn Litwiler interviewed parties in Twin Falls this week concerning a charge by management that the union staged an illegal picket of the home in December.

Litwiler told the Times-News Friday each examiner will prepare a case, which will be presented to the regional director Charles Henderson and other supervisors. Henderson will make the final decision.

A federal mediator had been brought into the case after talks broke down between administrator Richard Drake, represented by the Idaho Employers Council, and the local chapter of the Idaho Service Employees Union.

A newly-formed dance class at the Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center allowed these participants to practice a few of their moves Friday afternoon.

Seniors get into swing with ballroom dancing

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Forward right. To side and close. Back right. To side and close."

The dance step directions are spoken like cherry commands by dance commander Ruth Reylea, teacher of a newly-instituted ballroom dance class at the Twin Falls Senior Citizen Center, 339 Ninth Ave. W.

Reylea, an enthusiastic but firm instructor, has volunteered to share her more than 30 years of dance knowledge with others at the center.

The classes, every Friday at 1 p.m., are free. Although many seniors are experienced ballroom dancers, Reylea intends to start by teaching basic ballroom dancing steps and gradually working into more complicated areas.

She feels this will encourage many first-time dancers to attend, and hopes the more experienced dancers will "hang on" until the more complicated lessons.

She won't be teaching disco or fast-step dancing, just the graceful movements of ballroom style, which older people may be most comfortable with.

"The thing is ballroom dancing has survived all these other dance fads," said Reylea, a former dance studio manager and teacher for Arthur Murray. "It's an interpretation of music. A good male ballroom dancer has to learn more than his partner. He has to interpret the music."

Reylea, who is nearing 80, is not able to dance herself. But because of her experience and knowledge of the art, she agreed to teach the class. With the help of other volunteers and her precise directions, she "demonstrated" basic waltz and fox trot steps for her first class Friday.

Reylea has literally danced around the world. A native of Wisconsin, she was working for a railroad company in Chicago when she visited a sister living in New York City. She had always been a good dancer, and her sister convinced her to apply at Arthur Murray's school. She ended up working there five years.

She then opened her own studio in Chicago and ran it for years. When World War II started, she joined the Army as a WAC and was stationed in India in the Intelligence Division.

She volunteered to teach dancing to the GIs stationed there, but they didn't seem interested. However, the British soldiers were quite keen on dancing classes, and the GIs were soon requesting their own class.

After the war, Reylea worked for the government as director of various armed services clubs and was stationed in France and Japan. After 15 years of travel through Europe and the Far East, she returned to government work in California. But the work didn't suit her; she retired and took a trip around the country. About 11 years ago she settled in Jerome.

Now she's enjoying teaching dance one more time. "I know how much pleasure it gives people," she said. "Men who've worked too hard, who never had a chance to learn dance, are learning it now and really enjoying it."

The senior center also sponsors dancing every Sunday afternoon. A potluck dinner and dance will be held Sunday, Jan. 25.

3 juveniles face charges

BURLEY — Three male youths were arraigned Friday in magistrate court on burglary and arson charges.

Aged 14, 15, and 16 the boys allegedly burglarized Ed's Office Products on Jan. 9 and started a fire that caused more than $5,000 damage to store contents and as yet undetermined damage to the structure itself, police said.

The fire extinguished itself after burning a gaping hole in the floor of the building.

Detective Pete Rodriguez said the department was already working on the case when they arrested another youth who had a calculator in his possession that had been stolen from the store. "It helped us," said Rodriguez, "but we already had leads."

Since they are juveniles the youths will be handled by the magistrate court and the Department of Health and Welfare.

Burley receives public TV Monday

BURLEY — "KBGL will go on the air in the Burley area on Jan. 19," Robert Hilliard told the Burley Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

Hilliard is the Director of Development at Idaho State University where he directs activities of many campus organizations and supervises fund-raising for most departments. He made his comments at the annual Burley Chamber banquet.

KBGL is the public broadcasting system on Channel 10 from ISU headed by Herb Everitt. Everitt said last week that licensing from the FCC had not been received, causing the delay in transmission to the Burley-Rupert area. Licensing will be completed by Monday and signals will be beamed from a transmitter located near Albion.

Chamber President-elect Mike Robertson of the South Idaho Press was installed by out-going president Bill McNew of Carroll Freight Lines. Retiring board members were Gary Asson, Jim Roper, Wayne Mathews and Dean Draper. Robertson named Jim Roper and Bill Wetstein first and second vice presidents, respectively.

Hilliard, the featured speaker, stressed the need for people to use the present, the past, and the future. He mentioned the "Now" generation and said that to offer "we respond to the pressure of the moment. That's the only thing we look at."

"We have digitalis," he said, referring to the digital clock that gives the time immediately. "We respond to the pressure of the moment. We need to see where the hands of the clock have been. Then we can get a better proportion."

PAUL — Patrolman Randy Rose was not fired by the city of Paul, as a story in Friday's Times-News said, officials claim. City Clerk Javanna Tibbitts said he was dismissed because of several reasons, one being that the city didn't feel it needed two patrolmen.

Rebound shot fells Bruins in overtime

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — Stewart Sato somehow got a checked-from-behind shot through the net with three seconds left in overtime Friday night to lift Skyline past Twin Falls 58-56.

The 5-10 guard attacked on the dribble from the left side and went up for the shot. Bruin Joe Shelby knocked the ball back on to his hand and Sato rolled it off his fingertips again for a swisher to end a game that was a donnybrook from the opening seconds.

"It was a game we never should have lost," said disappointed Coach John Astorquia. "We had so many chances to win it."

Not to mention so many chances not to lose it.

Literally what the Bruins put within reach with their feet they gave away with their hands. Missed free throws and turnovers coming down the line continually gave Skyline new life.

"The worst part is our guys got their shots — at least from their areas. And we had our higher percentage free throw shooters at the line and they all missed. We had so many things. They miss a free throw and we let them get it back in. You can't win if you can't make free throws and rebound."

Actually Sato was a double hero for Coach Jim Lewis and the Grizzlies. He hit a free throw with three seconds left in regulation to shove the game into overtime. He got the only points in the extra session.

The first quarter was probably the best eight minutes of basketball played on the Bruin court in many years. Both teams came out with tough man defenses and both teams replied with torrid shooting.

"None was better" than Lars Hovey who pumped through 12 points — including a howitzer at the buzzer — but although they helped the Bruins into a blazing 23-point first quarter, they came out of it with only a four-point lead.

Borg, losing a set at love for what was believed to be the first time since 1977, was wiped out by Gene Meyer, 6-0, 6-3, after McEnroe fell almost without a whimper to Jose-Luis Clerch, 6-3, 6-0.

There was a marked contrast between the two matches as Borg, with two victories behind him, already had qualified for the semifinals while McEnroe, losing for the third time in as many days, previously had been eliminated.

In the evening matches, Guillermo Vilas met Harold Solomon and Jimmy Connors met Ivan Lendl. Mayer will meet the loser of the Connors-Lendl match in one of today's semifinals with Borg facing the winner.

Mayer, who earned a $10,000 bonus as the champion of his group, swept through the six-team group, allowing Borg only 13 points in the opening set. Borg managed to hold even in the second set until Mayer, who had never beaten the Swede in seven previous meetings, made the only break of the set in the eighth game.

"Beating the guy who is the best in the world is a good feeling," said Mayer, who beat McEnroe in an official match for the first time Wednesday night. "It's really what I needed to beat the guys ranked ahead of me for consideration for the top three."

"I was trying my best but I had nothing to give," Borg said. "I was very stiff and very tired. I was always late to the ball, missing easy shots."

McEnroe also said he was out of it from the beginning.

"I wasn't into the match," said McEnroe. "It's hard to get into it when you know you're out of a tournament. I played until 1 o'clock and then I was back again at 1 in the afternoon. My leg was really stiff and my shoulder got sore. I couldn't really get anything on my serve and I was so sore. I couldn't do anything I wanted to."

"I don't like to quit and not go out. Maybe it would have been better not to go out but I don't want to make a stink, so I just went out and did the best I could."

ball out of the middle where 6-4 Dave Piper hit seven points. Skyline took the lead 26-25 on a follow shot by Steve Langford. The lead see-sawed with Skyline holding a 33-31 halftime edge when Brian Gunderson hit the last shot.

The third quarter was a replay. Twin Falls not getting the ball inside but shooting well off the baseline and wings. There were six ties. Clay Mecham fashioning the last goal at 4:50 and Hovey and Gary Krum then picked up four points.

Krum converted a crumple off a steal to open the last period and Twin Falls held two to four-point leads until Steve Galley made it 43-49.

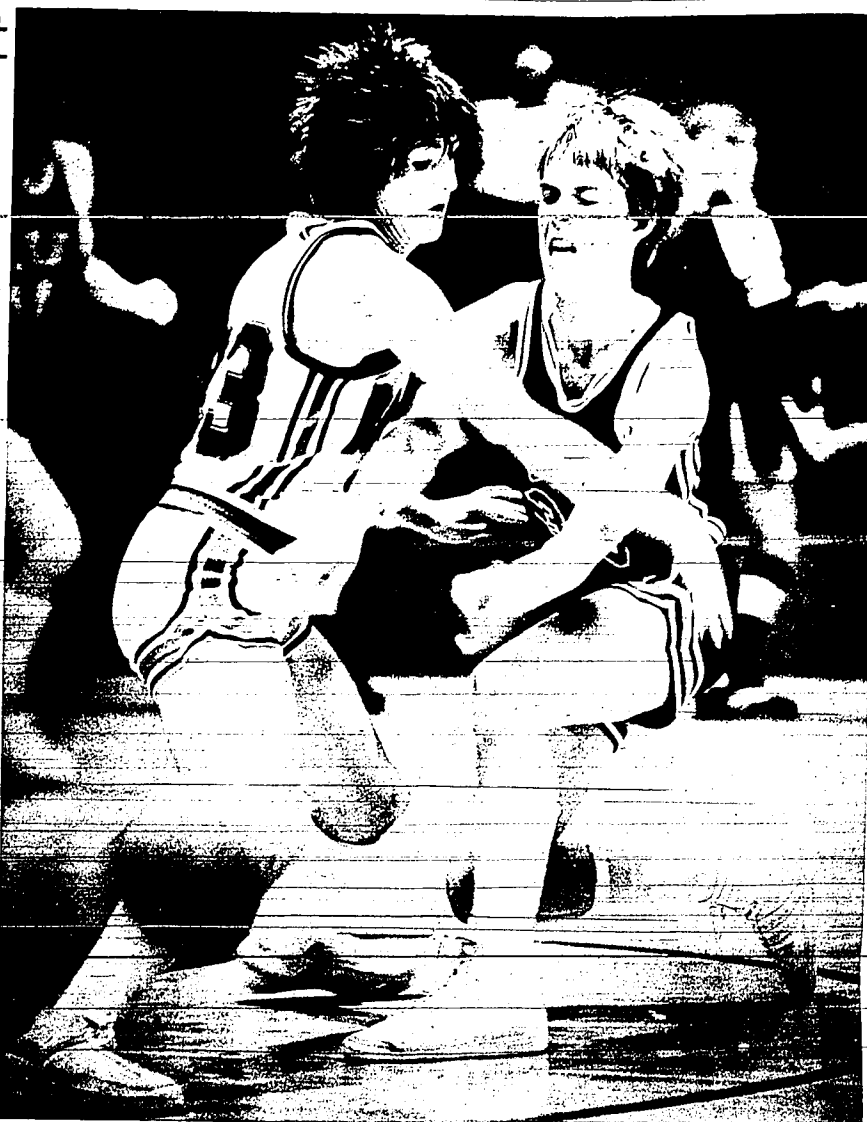

At that point Langford hit his sixth point of the period and Ron George tied it from the foul line. Galley shoved Twin Falls ahead with two free throws before Langford followed in that missed free throw for a tie at 55-55.

Mecham hit one free throw which Sato nullified by bringing on the overtime.

Twin Falls had trouble with the constant inside switching of the Grizzlies and late in the game gave up couple of buckets on the back end of its game-long press.

Borg, McEnroe both suffer upsets

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bjorn Borg and John McEnroe paid the price for their marathon duel that stretched into the early morning hours Friday when both were upset in straight-set shockers on the final day of round-robin competition in the $400,000 Masters Tennis Championship.

Borg, losing a set at love for what was believed to be the first time since 1977, was wiped out by Gene Meyer, 6-0, 6-3, after McEnroe fell almost without a whimper to Jose-Luis Clerch, 6-3, 6-0.

Mayer, who earned a $10,000 bonus as the champion of his group, swept through the six-team group, allowing Borg only 13 points in the opening set. Borg managed to hold even in the second set until Mayer, who had never beaten the Swede in seven previous meetings, made the only break of the set in the eighth game.

"Beating the guy who is the best in the world is a good feeling," said Mayer, who beat McEnroe in an official match for the first time Wednesday night. "It's really what I needed to beat the guys ranked ahead of me for consideration for the top three."

"I was trying my best but I had nothing to give," Borg said. "I was very stiff and very tired. I was always late to the ball, missing easy shots."

McEnroe also said he was out of it from the beginning.

"I wasn't into the match," said McEnroe. "It's hard to get into it when you know you're out of a tournament. I played until 1 o'clock and then I was back again at 1 in the afternoon. My leg was really stiff and my shoulder got sore. I couldn't really get anything on my serve and I was so sore. I couldn't do anything I wanted to."

Lietzke continues hot streak; goes 20 under par in Hope event

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Bruce Lietzke, playing "unbelievable golf," shot his second 65 in three days Friday for an incredible 20-under-par 196 and a five-stroke lead at the end of three rounds of the 90-hole $304,500 Bob Hope Desert Classic.

The tournament record of 23-under-par was set by Rik Massengale in 1977 and barring a total collapse, the 29-year-old Lietzke appears likely to break the record during Saturday's fourth round.

He shot his first 65 Wednesday at Bermuda Dunes, came back with a 66 at La Quinta and then shot 65 at Tamarisk Friday. In the three rounds, Lietzke posted just two bogeys and Friday he birdied all four par-3 holes.

Jerry Pate shot 68 at Tamarisk and Bill Rogers had a 66 at Bermuda Dunes Friday for 15-under-par totals of 201, while J.C. Snead had a 66 at Bermuda Dunes and was at 202. David Edwards had a 68 at Tamarisk and was alone at 203, a stroke-ahead-of Tom Purtzer, who had a 66 at Indian Wells and Ben Crenshaw, who had a 68 at La Quinta.

Mark Lye and Boo Gilder were at 205, while Lee Trevino, the 1980 Vardon Trophy winner, was in a group at 206 and Jack Nicklaus, who won the U.S. Open and PGA Championship last year in a dramatic comeback, shot 74 at Indian Wells and was well back at 209.

Lietzke's iron play was brilliant Friday. Six of his seven birdie putts were from inside eight feet and the other was a 25-footer.

"I'm ready to go home and take a cold shower," said Lietzke, trying to explain his fantastic three-day streak. "I don't know what's come over me. This is unbelievable golf."

Lietzke won the Colonial Invitational last year for his fifth victory in six years on the PGA tour. He landed in 16th place on the 1980 money list with $163,894.

Lietzke started 1981 in the Tucson Open last week and finished in a tie for 29th place. He was the runner-up in the 1979 PGA tournament along with Tom Watson, the four-time PGA Player of the Year.

Late consolation wins secure SCIC mat crown for Burley

By MIKE PRATER
Times-News sports writer

BURLEY — Burley's Darrell Wahlstrom and Rick Arbogast won the last consolation matches and assured the Bobcats the South Central Idaho Conference wrestling title Friday.

Wahlstrom, competing in the 185 pound weight class, officially locked up the title for the Bobcats, who are 17 even members of the SCIC.

Burley, along with Nampa's junior varsity team, were invited in order to fill byes left in some weight classes.

Arbogast's win meant nothing to the official standings, but after the senior heavy-lifted his opponent by decision. Burley Coach Dave Hanks' face drew a large grin.

it after Darrell's match or not," Hanks said. "But after Rick won his, I knew for sure we had won the thing. Yes, I'm pretty pleased and very surprised."

Hanks expected to Bobcats to have a tougher time working their way through the six-team field. Two of his top senior wrestlers failed to make the trip because of the flu.

"When I knew they weren't coming, I got a little worried," he said. "I've done a lot of winning for us this year and I knew we would have to get some points out of some key people in order to win."

"Give 'em this year credit," Mountain Home was tough and they shook them off for the win — even without my other two kids. We wrestled solid as a team and a few of the individuals gave some pretty gutsy performances." Burley finished with 165 points, seven-and-a-half ahead of Mountain Home's 137½. Buhl ended the all-day event with 126 points, Nampa's junior varsity team had 113½, Jerome took fifth with 49 points and Wood River fell at the back with 41½ points.

Burley, after taking a five point lead after the semifinals, sent 14 wrestlers into the finals — including six in the championship round. Burley used this advantage to dominate the finals and to eventually wrap up the win.

Marty Hatt ignited a consecutive string of Bobcat championships when he picked up the individual title in the 119 pound class. Todd Whitehead followed with a win in the 126 pound class and Mark Lujan added another individual title in the 132 pound division. Dale Garrett won the 145 pound class before Don Davies of Wood River ended Burley's string with a win by default in the 145 pound division.

Lujan, picked by many to be one of the best wrestlers in the state at 132 pounds, worked his way through the day's lineup with a relative amount of ease before defeating Dwayne Frazier of Buhl for his title.

"He's (Frazier) getting tougher every time I wrestle him," Lujan said after picking up his championship medal. "We've wrestled each other a lot this year and he's getting to know my moves and habits. I'd hate to see what would happen if we met again."

Nampa's junior varsity team dominated the last four upper weights as the last four Bulldogs placed in the top two positions.

Buhl Coach Jeff Howell said before the tournament that his Indians would finish in the top three.

Buhl did finish third, but he still felt disappointed in his team's effort.

"We were only a point out of second place after the semifinals and I knew even first," Howell said. "But we needed to have more wins in the finals to do it. I think we could do it, but I'm still pretty happy with our effort."

Buhl will again be the sight of a conference wrestling tournament next Friday when they host the Cross State Conference tournament.

"That will be one tough meet to compete in," Howell said. "Rigby and Blackfoot have very solid teams along with two or three others. We really need to work to impress anyone in that meet."

The official results include:
Team scoring
1. Burley 143, 2. Mountain Home 137½, 3. Buhl 126, 4. Nampa JV 113½, 5. Jerome 49, 6. Wood River 41½.

GLENN'S FERRY — Bill Stieh scored 27 points and grabbed down 18 rebounds to pace the Glenns Ferry Pilots past Shoshone 78-61 Friday night.

The win allowed the Pilots to stay in a tie with Kimberly atop the Canyon Conference.

Peterson, Glenns Ferry placed four men in double figures. John Simons had 14 points, Dan Shrum had 13 more and Tim Black added 12 to aid the Pilots' cause.

Scott-Peterson scored 23 points for Shoshone in a losing cause.

Glenns Ferry went into the locker room at halftime with a comfortable 32-23 lead and outscored the Indians 46-38 in the final half to lock up the win.

Glenns Ferry, 7-5 overall and 5-1 in conference action, travels to Valley tonight. Shoshone, 4-7 overall and 3-1 in conference play, hosts Hansen Friday night.

Glenns Ferry made it a sweep by defeating the Indians 40-36 in the junior varsity contest.

After a tight first half, Raft River moved ahead by seven points going into the final period and moved ahead by 10 about midway through the quarter. Coach Alan Wallace then put his Trojans into corners and the Wolves, who had foul trouble all night, had to chase and foul in a hope of catching up.

WENDELL — The Wendell Trojans missed a chance to tie the game with six seconds to play Friday night as they suffered a 59-57 loss to Gooding in Canyon Conference play.

The Trojans trailed 55-55 with eight seconds left when Alan Shaw made a free throw for the Senators.

Burk McBride scored for Wendell to trim the margin to 59-57 and the Trojans stole the inbound pass but missed from six feet away. Wendell snared the rebound, but the buzzer went off before the next shot was fired.

Gooding opened up a six-point lead, 54-48, with three minutes to play before the Trojans started narrowing the gap.

Greg Roberts hit a rebound shot with 50 seconds to play to put Wendell ahead 55-47 but Brett Legarretta hit a layup for Gooding and Wendell was called for a foul after trying four consecutive tip-ins. Legarretta hit both free throws to put Gooding up 58-55 before Shaw's free throw.

Legarretta had 14 in the conference and 45 overall.

Roberts had 18 for Wendell and Scott Luttmir was also in double digits with 13. Wendell is 2-4 in the Canyon and 3-7 overall.

Filer took it back out to 18 in the third quarter with Valley, starting three sophomores, coming back to within 10 midway through the final period and sinking there.

Take Magic Valley Conference title

Wolves survive with just 4 players

By MARY CLEMONS Times-News sports editor

CASTLEFORD — Jerry Allred and his Castleford High girls basketball team has been living dangerously this season. Friday night it caught up with the Wolves — almost. Castleford has just six girls on the varsity squad. Two of them fouled out against Raft River Friday night and against four Wolves were left to salt away nearly three minutes of the contest. The four managed, despite some lense moments, as Castleford took a 45-31 win and secured the outright championship of the Magic Valley Conference. Castleford was sailing along with a 30-18 lead with 90 seconds left in the third period when trouble struck. RaeAnn Schlund, a 5-8 senior, went to the bench with her fifth personal. No big problem — yet. The Wolves still had five players. The Wolves managed to maintain their cushion well into the fourth period, although not as aggressive as usual. With just under three minutes to play the whistle blew and Terrie Crawford was slapped with her fifth. That left it up to Kris Bukley, Penny Houk, Laurie Gandiaga and Julie Lott to hold the lead and win the league title against the Trojans, the only team left with a chance to tie the Wolves for first place. Allred put his girls into a spread offense to kill the clock and although Raft River closed within nine at two points, key free throws by Gandiaga and Bukley kept the Trojans from getting any closer. "I knew that sooner or later it would be a problem," Allred said. "We started the season with six seniors and tonight is the first time we've had trouble. We've avoided injuries, illness and fouls." Allred admitted he's had his team work on the delay game in practice, although with five players. "We just had to keep wider and have two girls come to the ball all the time," he said. Allred nearly compounded the foul situation as he received two technical fouls during the game. Raft River did not gain a big edge from the technicals, although Allred was sorry for the calls afterwards. "When RaeAnn got her third foul in the first half I started to worry,"

Allred said. "Terrie Crawford also got into foul trouble." Four Wolves were able to work the delay long enough to get the win. Raft River applied the pressure and was making a move when the game ended. It's fortunate for Castleford the game didn't go much longer. Gandiaga, the Wolves' top offensive threat, had four fouls and Penny Houk had three. "They're a great group of girls," Allred said. "We knew at the end of last season we'd have just six seniors out this year and they love to play ball and really hustle." Castleford's tight defense and hustle provided a 28-16 halftime lead as the Wolves won their 10th game without a loss. Gandiaga, who has a season high of 32 points, scored 23 for Castleford. She was nine-for-11 at the line. Allred may be done getting gray hairs over just six players, however. He plans to bring up four junior varsity players before district tournament play starts in one week. Virginia Freuburger, who did her best to bother Castleford's ballhandlers, finished with 12 points before fouling out to lead Raft River. The Trojans fell to 8-5 overall and 6-3 in the conference. Jerome slips past Buhl by 4

JEROME — Jerome broke away from a close game in the fourth period and defeated the Buhl Indians 35-31 in a South Central Idaho Conference game Friday night. The win keeps the Tigers in contention for the lead of the SCIC with the Mountain Home Tigers. Jerome goes to 11-4 and 4-2 in conference play. Buhl falls to 2-13 and is still looking for its first league win of the season. Marge Marshall, who led all scorers with 10 points, started a second half drive that saw the Tigers go from a lead of 25-24 at the end of the third period to the final margin. Buhl fell behind early and managed to keep close until the final minutes when Marshall started things up for the Tigers. Both teams shot even from the field, with both hitting on 14 field goals, but the Indians hurt themselves with late foul trouble and Jerome took advantage to aid in the win. They outshot Buhl seven to three from the line. Jerome goes to Caldwell to play the Cougars tonight. Buhl is at Twin Falls Monday. Jerome also won the junior varsity game, 30-20.

Enberg, Olsen promise less talk come Sunday

By JACK CRAIG 1981 Boston Globe SUPER BOWL XV Next Sunday's Super Bowl contest promises something new in the broadcast booth. Less talk. Impossible? Dick Enberg and Merlin Olsen, who will handle the broadcast from the Superdome, insist the discipline they imposed upon themselves during the Rose Bowl telecast proved it can be done. "Sometimes the things you don't say are best, like the best trade is no trade," says Enberg, who calls NBC's silent broadcast of the Dec. 20 Jets-Dolphins game instructive. "That game proved to me we do have a responsibility to inform, but it also showed that a lot of things can go left unspoken," he said. Enberg is the thinking man's sports broadcaster. He holds a doctorate in physical sciences from Indiana University and was a college instructor and baseball coach at Cal State (Northridge) when offered his first full-time broadcasting job with KTLA-TV in Los Angeles in 1965. "Gene Autry (owner of the TV station) offered me $18,000. That was three times what my two college jobs paid," Enberg recalled. "I had no choice but to leave." He was 30 at the time and soon he became the Rams radio announcer, then added UCLA on local TV, and by 1969 was also the radio-TV voice of the Angels. When he joined NBC full-time in 1976 Enberg recognized a basic contradiction. "I was hired to do jobs on television which I had essentially done on radio," he said. "It became time to try to refine things, to edit down reporting of what was happening in front of me. "I soon became aware that we all talked too much on television. I would listen to others, and listen to my own tape and I would ask myself whether what was said was quality. Usually, it was not."

As a result, Enberg has been on a quiet crusade for the last few years to speak less. Sometimes it is not very difficult, as when he sits between co-analysts Billy Fackler and Al McGuire for NCAA basketball. The ongoing rapport between Fackler and McGuire provides many opportunities for Enberg to go silent. Enberg endured a forced silence last summer when NBC pulled out of the Moscow Olympics telecasts, for which he was to be the principal anchorman. Given his ability, it was a lost opportunity to become one of the two or three most prominent sports voices in the country. Enberg recently signed an extension through 1982 with NBC, which will leave him eligible to join ABC in plenty of time for its coverage of the Winter and Summer Games in 1984. But that is the distant future. Looming is next Sunday's Super Bowl where Enberg has pledged that he and partner Olsen will speak less than in the past. When the quarterback approaches the ball, and crouches over it, can he and Olsen really let silence reign? "We can, we will," he said.

Raiders' defense confident

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Since there is no such thing as an "irresistible force" and the "immovable object" is equally nonexistent, the Oakland Raiders will have to depend on humans in the Super Bowl Jan. 25. That would include Jim Plunkett, Kenny King, Raymond Chester and Bob Chandler on the "resistible" side and such as Lester Hayes, John Matuszak, Ted Hendricks, Gene Upshaw and Mike Davis as "immovables." Hayes, who was just named UPI's Defensive Player of the Year for the American Football Conference, is confident he can stop Harold Carmichael, the ace wide receiver of the Philadelphia Eagles. "And if you stop Carmichael, you have stopped the Eagles' passing game," he says. Davis is the hero of Oakland's semifinal victory in the second playoff game, intercepting a Brian Sipe pass in the end zone during the last minute of a 14-12 victory for the Raiders over the Cleveland Browns. Matuszak and Hendricks have kept heavy pressure on opposing quarterbacks throughout the Raiders' surprising season and will be trying to do the same to Ron Jaworski in the New Orleans matchup. Upshaw is a stalwart in the offensive line that has the task of protecting Plunkett and opening holes for King and his buddies. He will be playing in his third Super Bowl for Oakland, having participated as a rookie in Super Bowl II and as a veteran in Super Bowl X. In the second Super Bowl in Miami in 1968, Upshaw was protecting Darryl Lamonica and opening holes for such as Pele Banzask and Hewitt Dixon as Oakland lost to Green Bay 33-14. In 1977, Oakland beat Minnesota 32-14 with Upshaw protecting Ken Stabler and opening holes for Banzask again.

Weather delays Stenmark's downhill debut

KITZBUHEL, Austria (UPI) — The sensation of the World Cup ski circuit, Ingemar Stenmark making his debut in a downhill race this weekend, appeared doubtful Friday as a heavy blizzard and intense misters to cancel all training on the eve of the race. Stenmark, who said he would like to compete in a World Cup downhill for the first time in his career, had only one more chance at Kitzbuehel if the scheduled two training runs could be held this morning before the race. Otherwise, he would be out because he did not take part in the first two training runs on Thursday and because two practice runs are compulsory for any competitor. "We plan to stage two more training runs on Saturday before the race if weather permits," an official said. "The weather forecasts, however, are not very encouraging." Stenmark has always refused to compete in downhill since he suffered a serious concussion and other injuries in downhill training at Val Senales before the 1979-1980 World Cup season.

This time, however, he said he wanted to compete in the Kitzbuehel downhill as well as the slalom scheduled for Sunday because he feels he has a chance to collect additional World Cup points and stand a chance of regaining the World Cup trophy he last won in 1976. Together with his second place at last Tuesday's slalom at Oberstaufen, West Germany, Stenmark could bag additional World Cup points in the slalom if he places in the bottom bracket of the downhill.

Training grind of youth paying off for Fratiante

BOSTON (UPI) — She has left the world where life consisted of rising before dawn, eight hours of training, salad with low-cal dressing and no time for anything else but sleep and an occasional movie. Figure skating still dominates Linda Fratiante's life, but the judges who many feel denied her an Olympic gold medal are gone. She performs before friendly audiences which can't distinguish between a double- and triple-axle and, better yet, don't care. As the chief draw in the Ice Follies, Fratiante still dresses in lavish costumes, makes up her face and flashes her well-known smile from beneath her better-known reconstructed nose. The 4:30 a.m. awakenings, the grueling training sessions, the $900 a year expense on skates and the dinner salads are no more. Her first act of independence was to buy a Mercedes 450 SL — and get a license allowing her to drive it. She celebrates her new life by sleeping as late as she wants and even going out after her performance. It is the obvious end-product, the payoff if you will, for the Spartan-like existence she led through adolescence. "It definitely was worth it," Fratiante says of the rigorous training schedule which started at age 12, three years after she began skating. "I never thought of it as a grind; it was love, that's all it was.

"A lot of people haven't seen what I've seen, haven't traveled where I've been. I missed a lot, like a social life. But I told myself I wasn't going to be young enough to always have my body in shape and I can always have a social life." Fratiante signed on with the Ice Follies after the Winter Olympics, where, as the odds-on favorite, she failed to win the gold medal in figure skating. She had won the world championships in 1977 and 1979 and a U.S. title from 1977-79. But she had to settle for the silver behind East Germany's Annet Pootzsch, which still ranks her a bit. "I felt I skated the best I had ever skated and I won the short and long programs, which was 70 percent of the competition," said Fratiante, who stayed at the Lakeside Placid Hilton under her mother's maiden name during the Olympics. "A lot of people were upset, including me, and I do think about it a lot. But I've accepted it. I don't believe anything I can do about it now." There was much talk she had been short-changed by the German-speaking judges in the compulsories, the workmanlike part of the program that calls for skating figure-eights over figure eights until there are practically no ice in the ice. After the compulsories, she was in third place and could not overtake Pootzsch MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Sixty-eight of college football's premier players will get one last chance in today's Senior Bowl to demonstrate their talents before the NFL League draft takes place in a few months. Defensive back Hanford Dixon of Southern Mississippi is typical of the players who will compete in nationally televised CBS all-star game — he's looking to impress the scouts and land a pro football contract. But Dixon may be an exception to most players since most pro scouts are picking Ken Stabler, the defensive back prospects in the 1981 draft. "I don't really care when I go just as long as I go," says Dixon. "I just want the opportunity to play football in the National Football League." "There are an awful number of players whose stock has gone up here," says North coach Bill Walsh of the San Francisco 49ers. "I expect everyone in the Senior Bowl to be drafted." South Coach Red Miller of the Denver Broncos is also mindful of the talent assembled for the game. "All but two players last year were either active or on the injured reserve list last season in the NFL," says Miller. "That's the kind of talent in the Senior Bowl attracts year-in and year-out. One player who is apparently unconcerned about his draft status is quarterback Noel Lomax of Portland State, the most prolific passer in the history of college football. The 6-foot-3, 268-pound Lomax is the major attraction for the 500 pro scouts and NFL coaches at the game. Lomax completed 938 of 1,607 passes for 13,220 yards and 106 touchdowns in his four years at the small Oregon school.

Seniors get last chance

despite the strong free skating performances. Fratiante thinks the silver cost her a bit in salary, but not much, as ice shows aren't drawing like they used to. But there was no doubt in her mind an ice show was the next step, the logical progression in a skating-oriented life. "The one thing I do miss is competing and I miss being around my coach and my mom. I don't miss being tired in the morning," she said. "I like being in an ice show, being a star. I like people asking me for my autograph and I'll worry when they don't, I guess if there was one word to describe me, it would be athletic." Fratiante bounces from subject to subject, trying to be candid to everyone despite obnoxious questions about her personal life. She says she'd like to make commercials but she can't "quote, unquote Hollywood." She hopes one day to attend college, but admits it's out of the question now. She tells of rejecting a couple of men offers because her 63-week contract allows her only four weeks vacation. And she tells how judges consider grooming and dress when they flash their marks, recounting how one judge downgraded her performance because of her wardrobe. But mostly, Fratiante is enjoying her new life. After all those years of work, she figures she's entitled to it.
