School funding wins House OK

BOISE (UPI) — A $195 million general-fund appropriation for Idaho's public schools weathered heavy criticism in the House Thursday, but finally passed a 29-29 vote. Democrats and some Republicans wanted to amend the bill to include more money, but their move was defeated 44-22.

Supporters of the bill said there was not enough money left in the general account to boost the appropriation unless the Legislature was willing to pass a deficit-state budget or enact a tax increase.

But foes of the bill said the Legislature's $122 million revenue project was too conservative and was harshly restricting the Legislature's budget setters.

Rep. Michael Gwartzney, R-Boise, said the appropriation was too low and that schools would be harmed. He predicted that if it was not amended, Gov. John Evans would veto it.

"Let's quit playing around and let's take this and put some money in it," he said.

"This is all we have under this revenue projection," Appropriations Committee Chairman Kathleen Gurnsey, R-Boise, responded. "If we have any (funds) left later in the process, I'm sure every member of the committee will see that every extra dollar goes to the public schools."

House Minority Leader Melvin Hammond, D-Rexburg, who led the unsuccessful effort to amend the funding bill, contended there was enough money available to increase the appropriation to at least $200 million.

He attacked the Legislature's revenue estimate and urged his colleagues to change it, saying "it's not a sacred figure."

"We will look pretty bad if we leave here and later have millions sitting around the state," He said failure to boost the appropriation could "decimate" the schools.

But Rep. Mack Nelbaur, R-Paul, sponsor of the bill, said he would be "100 percent amazed if we can balance the budget if what there is left."

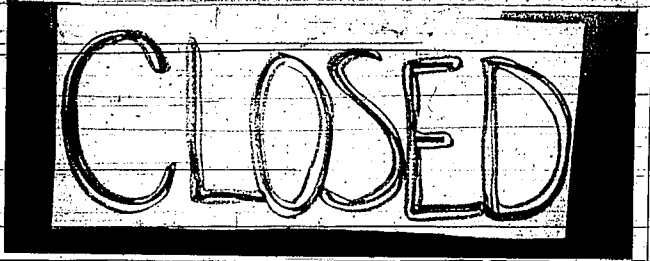

"We all know the money isn't there," agreed Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Caldwell. "There's no reason to put us in debt for this."

Rep. Richard Adams, D-Grangeville, said the appropriations might spark protests and "sit-downs" among school teachers.

House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, did not debate, but he supported the $195 million appropriation in a news release.

He called the appropriation "a concession to reality which will not have a negative effect on the quality of education."

"The Legislature has always been a friend of education and even now it hasn't forgotten its basic commitment to quality education in our state," Olmstead said. "We're just facing the fact that state government simply won't have the resources to operate on a business-as-usual basis."

City sewer plant may be hit by Reagan cuts

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho could lose $70 million this fiscal year and next under President Ronald Reagan's proposed budget cuts.

Work on the Twin Falls sewage treatment plant and 20 others in Idaho could stop in October, under one proposal. However, a state official involved with the Twin Falls project contends funding appears stable.

A preliminary analysis of Reagan's plan by the Idaho Division of Financial Management released Thursday found the state could suffer $70 million in funds during the rest of this fiscal year and in fiscal year 1982, which begins Oct. 1, if Congress approves.

Titled "Preliminary Analysis of Proposed Reagan Budget Reductions Affecting Idaho," the report was based on the president's budget and economic programs presented Feb. 18 to Congress.

The full text of Reagan's program is not scheduled for release until Tuesday.

The analysis judged that most Idahoans support the president's attempt to balance the budget, control inflation and shift responsibilities from federal to state government.

But the shift must give the state enough flexibility to manage the programs according to its needs, the report said. "At the same time, many of the Reagan proposals will have direct impact on Idaho's citizens," it stated.

Listed among those impacts were the elimination of the Economic Development Administration and deletion of budget authority for sewage treatment grants from the Environmental Protection Agency.

The report said those cuts would mean a loss of funds this year and next for 39 projects planned by Idaho communities.

Other changes that would affect a large number of Idaho citizens are stiffer Aid to Dependent Children eligibility standards, elimination of funds in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act programs and reductions in educational loans and grants.

The following are the amount of lost federal dollars and the effect on Idaho of some of the changes proposed by Reagan, according to the Idaho analysis:

1-year-1¢ sales tax proposed

BOISE (UPI) — The House Revenue and Taxation Committee gave initial approval Thursday to a one-year, one-cent increase in the state sales tax.

It would generate an estimated $52 million to bail Idaho out of a fiscal crisis.

But a proposal to establish a severance tax on minerals development was turned down and a plan to allow imposition of local-option taxes was shifted off to a subcommittee.

All three bills came from Democratic senators, who said they were trying to heal wounds suffered, by state and local governments as a result of the 1 percent property-tax limit law and an economic recession.

Although the House panel agreed on a voice vote to introduce Moscow Sen. Norm Dohler's bill to boost the general tax to 4 cents for fiscal year 1982 only, the measure was expected to encounter stiff opposition when it was returned to the committee.

Sen. John Peavey's bill to impose a severance tax which would fund an additional $7.7 million into the general fund — more if oil or natural gas were discovered in Idaho — was defeated 13-4.

Mining and oil industry lobbyists turned their guns on the plan and convinced the committee to ditch the bill, Peavey said the tax was needed

Mountain West

Airline ceases flights pending reorganization

BOISE (UPI) — Mountain West Airlines, a 2-year-old regional carrier based at Boise, cancelled its full schedule of flights in three states Thursday, with no word when operations might resume.

Most employees were sent home Thursday morning and "closed" signs were put up on flight counters in several cities.

Employees sent home Thursday morning said workers were not told why operations were halted or when they might be called back.

In a brief prepared statement, Mountain West Chairman of the Board Leith A. Ellis said the commuter airline was suspending operations pending a "reorganization and change in corporate objectives."

Ellis said Mountain West will continue charter

Committee decides CSI must make cuts or raise taxes

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Junior colleges will have to make cutbacks or raise property taxes, the Legislature's Joint Finance Appropriations Committee decided Thursday.

The committee adopted a $3,697,600 general fund budget for fiscal year 1982 for North Idaho College at Coeur d'Alene and the College of Southern Idaho at Twin Falls.

The amount is the same as recommended by Gov. John Evans, and the Legislature is expected to approve the joint committee's decision.

That would give about $25,000 less to the two colleges than they received this year, but $268,000 less than the Legislature appropriated last session, because after a holdback of state

Junior college tuition hike passes Senate

BOISE — A $25 per year increase in junior college tuition for the next two academic years was approved by the Idaho Senate, by a 28-6 vote.

There was no debate. The six opposing senators were mainly from southeastern Idaho.

Senate Bill 1118, which allows but does not require the increase, will next be considered by the House of Representatives.

Resident tuition at the College of Southern Idaho and North Idaho College, the state's two community colleges, is now $200 per year per student.

The reductions would save about $148,000.

Taylor said he will have to decide whether any of those personnel can be reinstated.

Finally, he said he will have to take a "long, hard look" at the college's approach to maintaining and operating equipment and buildings.

"We're really taking all the quality out of education at all levels," Taylor complained. "It is more difficult for people to work with a continual threat you won't be here tomorrow or won't get an increase in salaries."

An attempt was made in the joint committee to increase the appropriation to $4 million for the two community colleges.

The proposal by Rep. William Lytle, R-Pelham, and a Magic Valley legislator, Rep. Lawrence Kluge, R-Filer, failed on a 9-11 vote.

The other Magic Valley legislators on the committee — Rep. Mack Nelbaur, R-Paul, and Sens. Dean Van Engelen, R-Bucley and Kenneth Bradshaw, R-Wendell, opposed the increase.

In proposing the governor's recommendation, which was adopted by a vote of 19-1, Van Engelen said, "This

Hijacker loses last hostage

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A would-be hijacker threatened to blow up a fuel tank on jetliner at Los Angeles International Airport Thursday night shortly after his last remaining hostage ran out the back of the plane.

The hijacker held the stewardess hostage at gunpoint since taking over the plane 11 hours earlier.

"We're unsure if he let her go or she was able to run off," said FBI spokesman John Hoos.

The hijacker has threatened to blow the airplane up and there is a lot of (jet fuel) aboard."

The gunman had commandeered the plane and started negotiating for a reported $3 million ransom.

Five hostages were released at various times during the day and by midnight only stewardess Barbara Sorenson of Los Angeles was still being held by the middle-aged gunman.

Two FBI negotiators were also on board the Continental Airlines 727, which was in a remote area of the airport closed by blue lights and SWAT team snipers who crouched in hiding with automatic weapons trained on the rear exit of the plane.

Neither the FBI, airport officials nor the airline would speculate on how the man got past the security system with a gun.

FBI Agent John Hoos said the man was calm and had made no demands other than for the money. "We're not giving in," Hoos said. "We're dealing with a different individual than most hijackers because he's so calm and collected."

Hoos said the man "has not said anything about taking off."

Asked how long he thought the continuing negotiations over the gunman's monetary demands might last, he replied, "You'd better be prepared to be patient."

Hoos said the man did not indicate why he wanted the money or if he wanted to go somewhere with it.

The gunman boarded the first class section of the Continental Airlines 727 jetliner as it was preparing for takeoff with a 45-caliber pistol and stuck it in the face of a flight attendant.

The pilot, two other flight officers and about 80 passengers escaped from the jet moments after the aircraft was seized. The passengers who got off were quietly escorted and led off the plane by a flight attendant.

The stewardess spoke to us very quietly and asked us to leave, very quietly," said passenger Neil Cox. "If they hadn't done such a fine job we might have ended up some place like Cuba."

An FBI spokesman said two FBI agents crept aboard the plane through a rear door spoke with the gunman "face to face."

The airport tower said communications with the hijacker were difficult. The plane's radio cannot be used because of the locked flight deck door.

Hijacking enters fourth day

PESHAWAR, Pakistan (UPI) — Twenty-eight passengers freed from a hijacked jet in Afghanistan flew to Pakistan Thursday leaving more than 100 others — including two American women — still hostage aboard the plane.

The leader of the hijackers, a Pakistani dissident in his early 20s who identified himself as Mohammad Almagir, claimed responsibility for a bombing that married Pope John Paul II's stopover in Karachi in his recent Asian pilgrimage, Pakistani information minister, Maj. Gen. Mujibur Rahman said.

As the tense stalemate dragged into its fourth day, Soviet officials went to Kabul Airport to join in the negotiations with the hijackers, who were threatening to blow up the Boeing 720 Pakistan International Airlines jetliner unless Pakistan frees 80 political prisoners.

Almagir's father and brother were among the prisoners whose release the hijackers were demanding.

The U.S. Embassy in Pakistan identified the captive Americans as Deborah Weisner, 33, of Auburn, Maine, and Mrs. Charlotte Hubbell, 31, of Des Moines, Iowa, whose husband Frederick, 30, was also believed to be on the plane. The Hubbells are a prominent family in Des Moines.

'Wrong man' wins release

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI) — Aaron Owens, who has served eight years of a life sentence in prison for a double murder, is scheduled to be released later this week. The former prosecutor who convicted him says he jailed the wrong man.

At an extraordinary hearing of the Board of Prison Terms Wednesday at San Quentin, former prosecutor John Taylor told the panel that the real killer was a look-a-like.

Owens, now 37, listened silently, and later said, "I could never believe this could happen to me. The same man who prosecuted me is the only one who would listen to me."

A new suspect, whose name has not been released, is being sought by authorities.

Bitterman deadline passes

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — The supposed deadline set by guerrilla kidnapers for the execution ### of American linguist Chester Bitterman arrived Thursday with no word on the hostage's fate.

Bitterman, 28, of Lancaster, Pa., was kidnapped in Bogota Jan. 19. The guerrillas first said they would kill him unless the U.S.-based missionary group he works with agreed to leave Colombia by Feb. 19, but they later extended the time limit two days, until Feb. 21.

At one point, sources close to the case said the kidnapers had granted a two-week extension from the original Feb. 19 date to March 5 to give the missionary group more time to work out its position.

However, a mediator in the negotiations later admitted he had invented the two-week extension as a desperate measure to gain time for more ransom talks.

Earthquake jolts Hawaii

HONOLULU (UPI) — An earthquake centered in an area between the islands of Molokai and Lanai shook the Hawaiian Islands before dawn Thursday, rattling windows and dishes in Honolulu.

The quake occurred at 7:19 a.m. MST. It was not strong enough to generate a tidal wave.

The Earthquake Information Center in Denver, Colo., reported the temblor had an intensity of 4.9 on the Richter scale. No injuries or damage reports were filed.

Joseph Zebro, a geologist with the Pacific Tsunami Warning Center, said the earthquake occurred in the Molokai fracture zone, part of the Molokai Fault.

Most quakes in the islands are centered in the area of Kilauea volcano on the island of Hawaii.

Crime task force formed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General William French Smith, calling violent crime America's No. 1 concern, Thursday announced formation of a special task force to study how the federal government can combat the problem.

Violent crime, which showed violent crime jumped 10 percent last year, the attorney general labeled it an urgent, "shocking" national problem.

El Salvador president

Duarte rejects more advisers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — El Salvador president Jose Napoleón Duarte told a House subcommittee Thursday he does not need more U.S. military advisers than the United States has already offered.

He also stressed his willingness to enter into negotiations under international auspices with his leftist opponents.

Duarte made the comments in a telephone conversation with Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., just minutes before Barnes' Inter-American Affairs subcommittee opened hearings on U.S. policy toward El Salvador.

Barnes said Duarte confirmed to him that, on the advice of El Salvador's military forces, he has asked for the advice of U.S. military aid and 20 additional U.S. advisers announced by the State Department Monday.

"He then went on to say that no further American military personnel should be considered for El Salvador ... and that he does not at this time anticipate any need in the future for any further American personnel in his country," Barnes said.

Barnes also quoted Duarte as saying, "I am prepared to talk with the leftists if the appropriate auspices are available."

Barnes said Duarte would rather negotiate under the auspices of such international organizations as the Christian Democrats and the Social Democrats than under any one government, including the United States.

Barnes said Duarte made "an emphatic statement that the war in his country is not so much a military war as it is a political war and that it would be won or lost not so much on the basis of military capability as on the basis of economic and social improvements in the society."

Assistant Secretary of State for Latin America John Bushnell said he anticipated a drastic increase in the $63 million in economic aid already requested for El Salvador.

"If the Duarte government cannot make judicious use of sufficient forces to make it possible to hold its programmed elections and complete its projected reforms, there will be a military solution — one imposed by the armed left."

"We believe the future of El Salvador should be determined at the ballot box not at the end of the gun," said Bushnell.

"El Salvador's first moves toward that goal were made when the U.S.-backed ruling junta Thursday named an election council charged with setting up elections for a National Assembly, which will have the power to write a new constitution for the ravaged country."

President Jose Napoleón Duarte, leader of the Salvadoran Christian Democratic Party, said the new commission offers "the opportunity for 50 years of accumulated political frustration of the people to end ... (in) totally free elections."

Duarte, whose own 1972 presidential victory was stolen by the military, also said the "extreme left and the extreme right without a doubt will oppose the process; but no one can impede the people in the exercise of their own right."

The National Assembly will probably be elected next March and is expected to have 56 members. It will have the power to change the current constitution or write a new one and its main goal will be to set up a presidential election.

Budget

The appropriation means the colleges will probably raise resident tuition from $200 to $225 per year next fall, if a bill allowing the increase passes the Legislature. That is estimated to raise about $35,000, CSI.

CSI has the ability to almost double property taxes levied in Twin Falls and Jerome counties, which form the junior college district.

The college received $1,154,000 this year.

Taylor said doubling taxes "is just not right if it can do it a different way," especially in light of other years.

He mentioned the likelihood of more public school override elections and a possible "loss" of the homeowner's property tax exemption.

Sponsor pulls right-to-work bill, cites personal attacks

By LARRY WISHER
Times-News writer

BOISE — State Sen. Roger Fairchild, R-Fruitland, has withdrawn his compromise right to work bill because of a personal attack by the Idaho Freedom to Work Committee.

Fairchild introduced the measure after the Senate last week tabled House Bill 5, the right to work bill, for the rest of the session.

He announced to the Senate Wednesday he would ask to have his substitute buried in committee. He told the Times News he resented the "childish behavior" mainly of the right to work committee.

Since he introduced his compromise, the State AFL-CIO has called it "pure right to work," while the other side of the issue has called it a "phony" right to work bill.

The District 10 senator said State Affairs Committee Chairman Leon Swenson, R-Nampa, agreed to his request to leave the bill in his drawer and take no action on it.

"The union officers and right-to-work people are more interested in protecting their positions than in decent legislation to protect the workers they both profess to be protecting," Fairchild complained.

Fairchild said he attempted to reach a compromise but that neither side showed any interest in compromising. He said he intended his bill to protect both workers and employers.

In a letter to the state senator, Peter Bratt, of Boise, co-chairman of the Idaho Freedom to Work Committee, accused him of making "a thinly disguised attempt to get yourself off the hook with District 10 right to work supporters."

Bratt also accused Fairchild of "standing with the Boise union bosses" by voting to table the right to work bill in the Senate.

"What you obviously hope this phony bill will do is fool the people of District 10," Bratt said. He warned they would be kept "well-informed of your total opposition to freedom of choice for Idaho workers."

Fairchild said he resents the attacks and interpreted the last statement as an election threat.

Gifted program safe, but House members mad at 'stupid' label

BOISE (UPI) — Legislators angry about being called "stupid" for considering the proposal failed to get enough support Thursday for a bill aimed at killing the state's special education program for gifted and talented children.

House Education Committee Chairman Kurt Johnson, R-Idaho Falls, paced the effort to send the bill out to the full House. He said he and several colleagues were angered by a letter-writing campaign that had been mounted against the proposal.

However, on a 97 vote, the committee decided not to send the bill to the House floor and then voted to bottle it up in committee.

Johnson and Reps. J.W. Stivers, R-Twin Falls, and John Sessions, R-Driggs, complained about a flood of letters that chastised the committee for thinking about abolishing state support for gifted and talented children's programs.

Their main objection was that they contended special-education teachers incited their students to deluge the legislators with letters.

"These people have used their students to lobby us," Johnson said as the panel opened debate on the fiery issue. "It's kind of abusive in nature. It's also detrimental to the actual lobbyists who are supporting the program."

Johnson read to the committee a letter from a fourth-grader who said the Legislature would be "very stupid" to stop the program.

"These teachers showed very poor judgment to put their students up to downgrading elected representatives," Johnson said.

Other opponents of the measure didn't object to the letters, but argued the program was "worthless and expensive."

But the complaints were drowned out by committee members who said the program was valuable and needed sary to salvage the education of some exceptionally talented children.

"We're seeing some innovative teaching practices, too," said Rep. Rich Orme, R-Idaho Falls. "It's a program that we really need to keep."

Revenue projection chair sees no need to revise '82 figure

BOISE (UPI) — The chairman of the Legislature's Joint Revenue Projection Committee sees no reason to revise upward the fiscal year 1982 revenue estimate of $422.2 million.

Rep. Morgan Munger, R-Ida., said he believes long-range economic trends point more toward a downturn rather than an upswing in fiscal 1982 revenue from the original $422.2 million estimate.

Republican lawmakers have been getting a lot of pressure from the minority Democrats and Gov. John Evans, a Democrat, to reopen the revenue projection. The minority party cites trends they say indicate revenue will far exceed the House-Senate committee's estimate.

But Munger said it should not be assumed that since revenues for the current fiscal year are surging above previous expectations, that doesn't mean the fiscal 1982 revenue projection will rise a corresponding degree.

Munger's committee set the 1982 revenue figure in mid-January, causing legislative budget setters to embark on a program-slashing expedition aimed at balancing the fiscal 1982 budget at $422.2 million.

Although House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, and Senate President Pro Tem Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, will have final word on whether the 1982 revenue calculation should be re-examined, Munger said there is no need to do so — at least not for several months.

"It's much too early," Munger said. "In fact, 1982 doesn't look as good now as it did when we made the projection."

Munger said a major factor behind that theory was an indication that the Reagan administration will pursue economic policies that would keep interest rates high, therefore depressing various Idaho industries.

Munger, however, said a possible surplus in the current fiscal year due to a sudden, recent surge in the economy might provide a surplus that could be carried over into the 1982 fiscal year to fill out some budgets.

State board authority bill OK'd 41-26

BOISE (UPI) — Senate legislation to give the state Education Board explicit authority to consolidate or eliminate higher-education programs in Idaho gained favor 41-26 in the House Thursday and was sent to the governor.

The board needs clear power to study program alterations as a way of streamlining four-year college and university programs and saving money, Rep. J.W. Stivers, R-Twin Falls, floor sponsor, said.

"A proliferation of duplication of effort — that's the problem we've had in higher education the last few years," he said.

The bill would empower the board to shift programs from one institution to another or eliminate a program if a similar program was in place at another four-year institution, Stivers said.

Some members objected that the bill would apply only to Idaho State University, the University of Idaho and Boise State University, and not Idaho's two state-supported junior colleges.

But most of the debate centered on complaints that lawmakers were abrogating their responsibilities and, in the words of Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, "relinquishing supreme authority to a board of non-elected people."

State legal consolidation passes House

BOISE (UPI) — House members approved 45-24 Thursday a bill consolidating most state government legal services under the attorney general's office.

Rep. Larry Harris, R-Boise, floor sponsor, said the measure could be used to streamline legal services in the government and clear up potential legal tangles. In certain instances when the attorney general enters a case involving a state agency.

Similar measures have been vetoed three times by Democratic governors.

Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, opposed the bill granted excessive broad powers that could be used by an unscrupulous attorney general to cause mischief in the executive branch.

Don't kill off public television

Some strange priorities are coming out of the Legislature's Joint Finance Appropriations Committee. Wednesday, for instance, the JFAC decided not to let its sharp budget ax fall on Lewis-Clark State College, but it did gut all state support for public television.

Why bilingual?

Editor, Times-News: I am writing concerning the letter "Why bilingual?" printed in the Feb. 25 issue.

In our ethno centricism, I think Americans have lost their true identity. I was born in Mexico and grew up here from foreign lands. When our ancestors came here they learned to speak broken American English, with the help of schools and public literature, their children became the ties between the old and new worlds.

Giving the first John Jenrette Superwimp Award

Chicago Sun-Times I'm announcing the creation of the annual John Jenrette Superwimp Award. It will be given to the man who has been most thoroughly stomped by a female person this year. The award is named in honor of the former congressman, whose wife Rita's building a literary and theatrical career out of telling the world sordid details of her husband's life.

hard to find sympathy for a wimp who would phone a TV talk show and go on the air, live-to-whine to his wife that she took the silverware when she left him. Nevertheless, Jenrette, wimp that he is, might be the symbol of something new in male-female relationships: Male Abuse.

House panel to study land use act repeal

BOISE (UPI) — A bill to repeal Idaho's 1975 Land Use Planning Act was held for further study by the House State Affairs Committee Thursday after lengthy debate and maneuvering over the issue.

The question of land-use planning now splits to the House Local Government Committee, where bills amending the act and allowing local elections on whether to have land-use planning are awaiting consideration.

Rep. C.A. "Skip" Smyser, R-Parma, told the State Affairs Committee that the 1975 act was repealed, local governments would retain zoning powers under the Constitution.

Rep. B.E. Lewis, R-St. Maries, said he served on the interim committee that drafted the land-use act, adding, "I know it has problems, but I cannot in good conscience vote to repeal it."

Although several members of a committee noted that many of the complaints about land-use planning were coming from the Chamber and therefore was a matter for local officials to solve, Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna, said legislation to correct problems with the act had been voted by Gov. John Evans.

Rep. Gary Montgomery, R-Boise, criticized proposals this year to amend the law, calling them "cosmetic changes" that "will further anger the people already upset with the excessive and sometimes oppressive land-use planning that goes on in Ada County."

His effort to send the bill out to the House so the act could undergo "major surgery" failed.

Smyser and a majority of the committee agreed there was little problem with the state act and that most of the problem stemmed from its administration at the local level.

Another legislative action: "A Proposed constitutional amendment to allow Idaho's four-year colleges and universities to charge tuition was shelved Thursday in the Senate State Affairs Committee."

The Idaho Constitution forbids the charging of tuition at the University of Idaho. By statute, the Legislature has extended the ban to Idaho State University, Boise State University and Lewis-Clark State College.

A similar constitutional proposal was killed on the House floor last year.

steep student-fee increases that have been proposed by the state Education Board's staff. They said this would price some students out of an education.

The Senate State Affairs Committee voted 5-4 Thursday to pigeonhole a bill that would raise Idaho's legal drinking age from 19 to 21.

Sen. J. Marsden Williams, R-Idaho Falls, but sponsors, told the committee that "alcoholism in Idaho is really getting out of hand...since 1965 it has been increasing steadily."

Addition to alcohol has been occurring at a younger age than in years past, Williams said, adding this was partly because "teen-agers are able to get (alcoholic beverages) from their friends who are just a little bit older than they are."

But Sen. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow, said this bill was the answer to the problems of alcohol, and suggested that the committee look instead at stiffening penalties for driving while intoxicated.

And Sen. Walter Yarrrough, R-Grand View, said, "I thought that passing this law in any way, shape or form would help, it would be leading the charge." However, he said, the answer to alcohol-related problems was in teaching moderation to children at home.

The Idaho House voted 37-30 Thursday to approve and send to the Senate a bill that would raise truck registration fees an average 21 percent.

The bill also would put most vehicles weighing more than 60,000 pounds fully under the registration schedule, removing them from the ton-mile tax — an assessment based on the number of miles traveled.

The state Transportation Department proposed the bill as a method of increasing revenue for highway repairs and to remove some of the apparent inequities in the ton-mile tax, which has come under fire because it often is difficult to collect.

Poll: Reagan aided Symms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pollsters say President Ronald Reagan's greatly influenced Idaho Republican Steve Symms' narrow election victory over veteran Democratic Sen. Frank Church last year.

Four state surveys have been held by Republicans to gauge the effects of Reagan's landslide in showing in the presidential election. A poll taken in Idaho, with 500 respondents, indicated that one out of 10 Symms switched from Church to Reagan in the last six weeks of the campaign.

The survey, sponsored by the National Republican Senatorial Committee, said a key factor was a television advertisement in which Reagan endorsed Symms.

Student leaders from UI and BSU objected to adding tuition to already

Cutbacks

Waste Treatment Funds for construction of municipal waste water treatment plants.

Change: Withhold all "unobligated" funds in the current fiscal year and allocate no new monies in the next year, after which hold spending to half of current spending. Idaho received $16 million this year.

Impact: Eighteen Idaho projects would lose funding this year and 21 construction projects, including modification of the Twin Falls sewage treatment plant would be stopped in fiscal year 1982 beginning in October, the analysis indicates.

However, Orlando Dalke, an Idaho Department of Health and Welfare official involved with Twin Falls' federal grant, said he believes money for the city's treatment plant is secure. Proposed cutbacks are confined to "unobligated" money, Dalke said. The federal government would not commit money for the Twin Falls project, and withdrawal is highly unlikely, Dalke said.

According to the analysis, the state would lose 13 positions in the Bureau of Water Quality that oversee the grants.

In fiscal years 1983 through 1985 Idaho would receive $12 million, resulting in a slowdown in construction of 20 to 30 projects planned to begin operating then.

Farmers Home Administration provides credit assistance for farm operations and the construction of housing in rural areas.

Change: Reduce new lending by 25 percent, with major impacts in the Agricultural Credit Insurance Fund for disaster loans, Rural Housing Insurance Fund for homebuyers and developers of rural property and Rural Development Insurance Fund for direct loans for waste-water treatment facilities. Idaho received $225 to $250 million each year for the last three years in ongoing and emergency funds.

Impact: "A range of 23 percent to 75 percent of the farmers in a given county taking in over $2,500 in income utilize programs of the FmHA. Agriculture is Idaho's major industry and changes affecting this industry will have major impact." Loss of $15 million, with the greatest impact in the disaster loan program.

Medicaid helps provide medical and nursing home care for low-income persons.

Change: The state, which received $36.1 million this year, would lose $1.95 million under a proposed cap on federal spending.

Impact: Fewer individuals would be eligible and the Idaho State School and Hospital at Nampa would be affected because it has substantial Medicaid funding. However, Idaho would be given flexibility and proposals before the state Legislature would ease the shock.

Food stamps help provide food to low-income families.

Change: The 100-percent federally funded program will spend $34 million in Idaho in the current fiscal year. Proposed reductions could mean a loss of $2 million as benefits are reduced and allotments for free meals for school children are taken into account.

Impact: Fewer recipients would mean lighter caseloads for eligibility examiners but additional eligibility determinations might increase the time spent per case.

Aid to Dependent Children, Child Support Enforcement provides cash aid to low-income families (34-percent state funded), helps states locate absent parents and is liable for child support payments (10-percent state funded).

Change: Having received $23.1 million, Idaho would lose $2.5 million next year under about 10 proposed changes.

Impact: Payments would be reduced somewhat and more state funds would be required for the support enforcement staff.

Comprehensive Employment and Training provides public service employment and training for economically disadvantaged unemployed persons and temporary public service employment to the disadvantaged poor.

Change: All positions would be eliminated by Sept. 30 for a loss of $10.6 million to Idaho, including $1 million to state government.

Impact: "The smaller rural communities of the state and non-profit corporations would be especially hard hit by these losses." The number of jobs lost would be more than 1,100, as of Feb. 13.

Health planning to fund local health systems and health planning agencies with the goal of controlling costs and assuring equal access to medical care.

Change: Phase out by fiscal year 1983. Having received $11.1 million this year, Idaho would lose $750,000 in the next fiscal year.

Impact: Local agencies would be unfunded. "Any impact on health delivery and/or personal lifestyles would not be known for a generation or longer."

Corporation for Public Broadcasting helps fund local public TV and radio stations and national administration and production.

Change: Cut spending 25 percent and more in future years. Idaho received $702,500 this year.

Impact: Up to $175,500 if the cuts are directed at salaries.

Local Education Agency Block Grants, targeted to groups that include the economically disadvantaged, physically or mentally handicapped, bilingual education, adult education and library assistance.

Change: Reduce spending slightly next fiscal year and "significantly" the year after but give state and local governments more "flexibility." Idaho received $14.9 million in fiscal year 1981.

Impact: A loss of $300,000 next fiscal year but a "real explosion" in the next year. But "major segments, including economically and disadvantaged children as well as handicapped children" will be retained.

Residential Education Programs consisting of impact aid, vocational education, Indian education, and others such as rehabilitation services and post-secondary programs.

Change: Reduce spending by 36 percent and allow impact aid only in one school district in which at least 20 percent of the enrollment consists of children whose parents live and work on federal property. About 60 Idaho school districts received $8.9 million this year.

Impact: A loss of $2.7 million, with only two Idaho districts qualifying for impact aid.

Economic Development Administration provides grants for publicizing projects and planning and technical assistance grants to local governments.

Change: Eliminate funds beginning in fiscal year 1982. Idaho has averaged about $5 million a year.

Impact: In addition to projects, technical assistance grants to $220,000 would be in jeopardy; projects basically involving business and industrial site studies.

Regional Commissions, funds multi-state commissions to advance regional development and other objectives.

Change: Eliminate funding, Idaho which belongs to the Pacific Northwest Regional Commission, received $4 million this fiscal year.

Impact: Idaho would lose 54 projects, now obligated, worth $3 million to $4 million.

BOISE (UPI) — A bill to repeal Idaho's 1972 Land Use Planning Act was held for further study by the House State Affairs Committee Thursday after lengthy debate and maneuvering over the issue.

The question of land-use planning now shifts to the House Local Government Committee, where bills amending the act and allowing local elections on whether to have land-use planning are awaiting consideration.

Stocks fade on profit taking

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — Stocks fell Thursday as investors cashed in on recent profits while watching to see how far in Congress the Reagan administration's economic plan will fare in Congress.

Trading was active.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 5.42 points Wednesday, shed 6.82 points to 964.62. The closely watched average rebounded about 45 points in a seven-day period recently and many investors were taking profits from that gain.

The New York Stock Exchange index lost 0.47 to 743.1 and the price of an average share decreased 22 cents. Declines topped advances 764-710 among the 1,694 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

Analysts said many investors appeared to be restrained by the uncertainty that surrounds the dramatic unfolding in Washington over President Reagan's economic program.

Despite the political uncertainties, brokers said said institutions have become more aggressive because they believe interest rates are headed lower.

Some investors may have related to the sidelines to await the Federal Reserve's report late today on the nation's money supply. The supply has declined recently, taking pressure off the Fed to tighten credit.

Big Board volume totaled 45,300,000 shares, compared with 47,250,000 traded Wednesday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 52,137,500 shares, compared with 53,684,700 traded Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange index dropped 0.72 to 336.57 and the price of a share decreased 4 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC issues rose 0.30 to 195.05.

At 4 p.m., Clorox was the most active issue, up 14 to 124½ in trading that included a block of 210,000 shares at 12. Schering-Plough followed, off 3¼ to 36 after a block of 429,000 shares crossed at 36½. K mart was third, up ¼ to 18 with a block of 100,000 shares at 18½.

National Semiconductor dropped ¼ to 28½. The company said its third-quarter earnings would be well below those of a year ago.

Officer changes testimony in Dilka shooting lawsuit

BOISE (UPI) — Jerome police Sgt. Del Lowe Thursday said he was afraid to tell the truth about circumstances surrounding the 1978 shooting death of a Jerome man by a police officer because he feared for his family's safety.

Lowe testified in the second day of an Idaho U.S. District Court trial concerning the shooting death of Brian Ray Dilka.

Lowe said he was afraid to speak freely about the two other policemen when his deposition was taken in connection with the case. He never was threatened, but was fearful for his family's safety because they live near Haynes in Jerome, he said.

Lowe, who said he witnessed the altercation between Haynes and Dilka, said in his deposition that Haynes uttered a "war whoop" after shooting Dilka twice. But during testimony Thursday, Lowe changed his story, saying Haynes uttered the "war whoop" after shooting Dilka once, then shot Dilka again.

or "Punchy," stemming from Haynes' parttime job as a bouncer at a Twin Falls tavern.

While the attorney for the policeman has attempted to portray Dilka as a violent man prone to fighting, Mrs. Dilka presented jurors with photographs depicting a quiet family man.

Policewoman reigns over downtown parking spaces

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Shirley Chapman, a policewoman, public relations liaison and mechanic, is the meter attendant, Chapman travels the streets of downtown Twin Falls seeking meters hungry for coins as they illegally parked vehicles. She also relieves the well-fed and puts her mechanical know-how to work tending the sick.

"One man, a car dealer, actually got down on his knees and begged me not to give him a ticket," Chapman said she's not surprised some people who don't like parking meters manage to avoid tickets. It's impossible, she said, for one person to adequately monitor all the meters in town. Some people view tickets as their monthly parking fees and routinely spend $5 to $20 per month on fines, she said.

Her day-to-day perceptions of the job, she said, are shaped in part by the reactions of ticket recipients.

"When I happen to be around when people find their tickets, some of them will say, 'Oh, I deserved this. I haven't put money in the meters for years,' she said."

Strike considered Nursing home union plans vote

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The management of Skyview-Hazelwood Manor has turned down a final proposal from the nursing home's union.

In response, the union has scheduled a meeting in which members will vote on whether to ratify management's last and final offer or to strike.

Management's final offer was implemented in January. Union officials have said wage and benefit stipulations are "unacceptable."

emerged after Richard Drake took over the 185-bed facility Feb. 1, 1980.

In April 1980, employees approved unionization by a one-vote margin. In June, the National Labor Relations Board certified the union. Landslide Chapter 1, of the Idaho Service Employees Union, which is affiliated with the Service Employees International Union (SEIU).

Boise consulting firm, agreed to consider a union proposal on wages, benefits, union security and employee reinstatement. This week, IEC representative Marvin Montoya informed the union that management's offer had not changed.

IEC spokesmen say employees will support management's offer if allowed to vote on it. Montoya reported its implementation met "a favorable response" and support for the union has diminished.

Management filed a charge concerning an "informational" picket staged in December by the union, saying it violated prior notification requirements.

However, Landslide Chapter President Alice Lee, and David Cervantes, of the SEIU's Seattle office, feel there may be enough support for a strike.

Rupert man burns after heart attack

RUPERT — A 64-year-old Rupert man was burned in a grass fire after collapsing and dying of a heart attack Wednesday afternoon.

According to Minidoka County Sheriff's deputies, Eldon Duncan was apparently tending the fire when he collapsed. Authorities were called when the fire was observed to be out of control and found Duncan's body in a corner of the burned field.

That charge was sustained by the NLRB this week. Under an informal settlement, the union will post notices saying it will not engage in picketing without notice.

The two sides met briefly in February. Management, represented by the Idaho Employers Council (IEC), a Lee said, "Right now, it's hard to say" whether members will support a strike or the management offer.

The union, as a health care facility organization, must complete several requirements before a strike is held.

Meter

 Chapman was exposed early to some of the games people play when confronted by law enforcement officers. As a girl, she became acquainted with her father's work as a special policeman in a northern Minnesota village, and later with her brothers' involvement in a search and rescue team.

"He'd supervise dances on Saturday nights," she said of her father. "Even then, it had an impact on me, watching him put on the badge and go off to work."

"After graduating from Buhl High School in 1967, she pursued an array of occupations, ranging from Army communications to driving a truck for her father. She also was a store detective in Seattle, a National Guard recruiter and an employee at Twin Falls' Kellwood hosiery plant. She eventually entered the law enforcement program at the College of Southern Idaho and then joined Twin Falls Police Department training.

Since becoming a meter attendant two years ago her training has included a traffic appliance repair course in California.

"I've always liked to do things with my hands," said Chapman, who can take care of most meter malfunctions.

Growing up on a farm near Buhl, I was around equipment a lot. When my brother was working with equipment he'd say, 'OK, you're going to have to help me. Some of this takes four hands instead of two.'"

Chapman said she knows the rudiments of a meter repair, but has yet to rig her heartless vehicle for winter warmth.

"I just bundle up," she said. "I've got a coat that's supposed to be good to 30 degrees below zero."

"I like to be outside," Chapman said. "When you're outside as much as I am with this job, you learn to enjoy the weather, whatever it is."

Strike

 tions from the state's labor council and the SEIU. Also, at least 10 days before any action, a notification must be sent to the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Services regional office in Salt Lake City.

The major issues dividing management and union proposals are wages, sick leave and union security. Management's offer increased the minimum wage from $3.10 to $3.35, as required by federal law, and gain across-the-board increase of 20 cents a hour to these above minimum wage. Effective July 1, 1981, all employees will receive a 10 cents an hour raise.

The union is asking for a 60 cents an hour across-the-board increase retroactive to July 1980, and a 50 cents an hour increase on July 1, 1981.

Skyview-Hazelden wages range from $3.35 to $3.65 an hour for nurses' aides, and $4.70 to $5.20 an hour for Licensed Practical Nurses, excluding shift differentials, according to Montoya.

Management allows three days sick leave annually. The union is asking for 12 days a year, or one month.

Management's proposal stipulated no union membership requirements. The union proposes employees not be required to join, but that those who do join must remain dues-paying members while employed.

Expenses eat meter revenues

TWIN FALLS — Parking-related expenses last year gobbled parking meter revenues almost as quickly as downtown visitors could deplete them.

Twin Falls City Manager Tom Courtney said downtown meters, parking leases and fines for meter violations generated $64,000 in the 1979 fiscal year. He said meter revenue totaled $41,000 in 1979, and fines produced $15,000 and parking leases another $8,000.

Expenses ranging from salaries for the meter attendant to debt payment for parking lot construction consumed about $61,700 of that sum, Courtney said.

What was left helped fund downtown mall maintenance and beautification, said Courtney, who noted he will soon meet with downtown merchants to discuss the level of city services.

Merchants' association president Les Hazen said retailers apparently will have to take on a greater role in maintaining the mall as city leaders try to cope with limited financial resources.

Parking meter revenues fluctuate from year to year, depending partly on the number of tickets written for violations and the number of recipients who pay fines, Courtney said.

"A good number of the tickets are not paid," he said. "With the exception of flagrant violators, we just don't have the manpower to track down and prosecute individual cases."

Grant workshop offered

TWIN FALLS — Two workshops on Appropriate Technology grants will be offered in the Magic Valley next week.

The Idaho Office of Energy's Extension Service is hosting the series to assist grant applicants in preparing proposals for federal funding of innovative ideas on production or use of renewable energy or conservation of nonrenewable resources.

Workshops will be held at Burley High School Room 6 on Tuesday and at the Twin Falls High School quad room on Wednesday. Both sessions begin at 7:30 p.m.

Idahoans have received $38,000 in Appropriate Technology grants in the past two years. Topics have ranged from a design for a cord wood house to recycling car batteries for small hydroelectric power storage.

Man charged with possession
RUPERT — A Burley man is being held in the Minidoka County Jail on a felony charge of possessing marijuana with intent to deliver.

Leonard S. Tjorina, 23, arrested Sunday by Idaho State Police, for driving while intoxicated, allegedly had several pounds of marijuana in his car at the time of arrest, according to the Minidoka County Sheriff's office.

Tjorina is being held on a $10,000 bond and his preliminary hearing is set for March 11 at 9 a.m. in 5th District Magistrate Court.

Agricultural show opens today
TWIN FALLS — The fourth annual Agri-Action agriculture trade show begins today at the College of Southern Idaho Exposition Center.

The show is sponsored by Twin Falls television station

KMVT. It will be held Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

KMVT General Manager Lee Wagner said the show will feature 90 exhibitors — up from 60 last year — showing everything from farm implements and irrigation equipment to dairy equipment and solar energy devices for farms.

This year's show will run for two days, instead of three as in past years, and admission will be free, instead of the $1 admission charged last year, Wagner said. The changes were made at the request of exhibitors, he said.

They fell free admission would encourage attendance, Wagner said. On the other hand, the three-day show in the past left many of the exhibitors exhausted by its end, he said.

Several drug arrests made
BURLEY — State narcotics agents assisted by Burley police and Minidoka Sheriff's officers made a series of arrests on drug charges in two counties Wednesday.

Leonard Craig Crawford, 21, and LaNae Crawford, 20, of Burley, were arrested in North Burley and charged with delivering a controlled substance, marijuana. They are being held in Minidoka County Jail following a Thursday arraignment. Bond was set at $5,000 each.

In a related arrest, Minerva Gonzales, 26, and Tomas Alvarez, 22, both of Burley, were arrested Wednesday on a charge of conspiracy to commit a felony. They were arraigned Thursday and are being held in Cassia County Jail in lieu of $1,500 bond for Gonzales and $2,500 for Alvarez.

In a separate drug incident, Marty Solisabasi was arrested by Burley police on a warrant and charged with delivery of a controlled substance, marijuana. He was arraigned Thursday and remains in custody in the Cassia County Jail in lieu of $2,500 bond.

Hagerman to honor service veterans

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — Armed services veterans in Hagerman will receive special recognition this month as the city observes American Legion Week beginning March 15.

Mayor William Stinemetes read a proclamation to the City Council Tuesday evening, calling upon the community to join with him in "commending the good work of the American Legion as an expression of appreciation of both war time and peace time services."

In other action, the council received a petition requesting the closure of an alley in the Hagerman impact area just outside the city limits. The petition states the alley has little use and should be turned over to property owners along the alley.

The petition was signed by Gerald Bosh, Jr., Doyle Pugmire, Linda McCannan, David Laughlin, Beverly Wickham and Faye Coates. A well located in this alley, would also be relinquished by the city.

Stinemetes said a different property owner five or 10 years from now "may be desirous of having this alley" open for public use, and the city might have to buy the land back. Councilwomen Karen Yarbrough and Mary Davis were opposed to giving away the alley and Councilman Bruce Bothwell delayed his opinion until the next meeting.

Planning and Zoning Committee Chairman Bill Hornaday said there are "a lot of ramifications with the whole (alley) situation," such as legal fees and surveying costs.

"Nobody (who signed the petition) seemed to want to talk about that part of it," Hornaday charged.

Mildred Clements, representing property owners on Main Street, presented a petition requesting the city to legally change the street from 80 to 60 feet wide.

"I'm on city property when I step on my front step," Clements said, explaining how city growth had not developed as originally planned, and Main Street is no different from adjacent residential streets, except that most front yards are technically owned by the city.

The council tentatively agreed to let Main Street property owners have the 20 foot land strip, provided those claiming the land pay all legal costs involved.

Balanced Region 18 tournament opens tonight

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — The hometown may not provide College of Southern Idaho its usual comfort when the Region 18 Basketball Tournament opens tonight.

Two nationally ranked teams, another that probably should be and a fourth that has finished in a rush, square off in a pair of doubleheaders that will send one on to a bi-regional in Utah or Arizona next week. The other three will end their season on a losing note.

The tournament kicks off at 7 p.m. with what could be a barnburner: Chemeketa, ranked 20th in the nation and boasting a 23-1 record, will go against defending champion North Idaho, 25-5. At 9 p.m., the host Golden Eagles, 26-5 and ranked 12th in the nation, take on Lane Community College, 14-14. The two winners play for the title at 9 p.m. Saturday following a 7 p.m. consolation match.

With Chemeketa apparently the strongest team sent to tournaments by the Oregon Community College Conference, the region appears the toughest in history.

"I have talked to some people over there (in Oregon) and they tell me they've got a couple of guys who can really play and they have a good solid team," CSI Coach Dave Campbell said. "I know Coach (Rollie) Williams of North Idaho is concerned a lot about them. He talked to a coach in Washington who told him 'I was playing on my home court and they were kicking the snot out of us.'"

"I wouldn't have any idea who would be favored," Campbell said. "North Idaho whipped us last week so if Chemeketa beats them... And we're not overlooking Lane. I understand they have played very well the past couple three weeks."

The 3877 drumming the Eagles absorbed at Coeur d'Alene wasn't bad, Campbell said.

"You get a licking like we got up there. It gets you back to earth. It's what they call reality," he said. "When we won those 14 straight, we were playing pretty good—I think we had a little lull down at North Idaho but I think we're gaining it back now. But two of those teams are considerably bigger than us."

"Practice is going well this week," Campbell said. "I thought we had a really good practice Wednesday."

"We haven't learned a lot more than was in the paper," Campbell said concerning Lane. "They aren't a really tall team. We match up with them better than the other two from that standpoint."

"But a team like that could come up and be very scrappy and cause you a lot of problems. Over the last month they've played very well and won some close games. Winning the close ones is always an indication that a team has some character."

While the tournament wages here, the field also will be keeping an eye on what is happening in Mesa, Ariz., where the Region 1 playoffs will be happening.

Mesa 25-2 and ranked nationally in the top 10 will be hosting it," Campbell said. "They wrapped that up a couple of weeks ago. I guess Eastern Arizona (Flagstaff) is the other Arizona team. They whipped Western Arizona by 19 or 20 points last week so they have to have a good team. Dixie will be the No. 1 team out of the Utah section and it will either be Snow or Utah Tech (Provo) in the fourth slot. You get an idea that Dixie is playing very well when you hear that last week they knocked off Snow 115-78."

The winner at CSI will play a single game against the Region 1 champion at the other's home court next week. While Mesa has the better record and home court, Dixie whipped Mesa by six points at Mesa early in January.

The last bi-regional between the two resulted in a one-point win by Dixie over CSI. The Utah team then went on to place fourth in nationals.

IDAHO FALLS — Glenns Ferry defeated top-ranked West Side in double overtime, 40-39 to give Magic Valley one survivor in Thursday's opening of the Boys A-3 State Basketball Tournament.

Kimberly took Fruitland to the final seconds before final dropping 79-75 Thursday afternoon to have its hopes of a state title killed.

Joe Rodriguez, a sophomore, sank one free throw with four seconds to play in the second overtime to give the Pilots their biggest win of the season.

In the two other opening games at Bonneville High School, Sugar-Salem ran past Kendrick 76-61 and Genesee rallied behind 6-foot-7 Tony England to edge Teton 52-50.

"They call him 'Super Sophomore.' Yet he was a plenty scared sophomore.

Rodriguez, getting a second chance, made the second of two free throws to give the Pilots a 40-37 lead.

The free throw became the game-winner when West Side's Wayne Henderson sank a 40-footer at the buzzer for the 40-39 tally.

"I was so scared, I was so scared," a shaky but grinning Rodriguez said from the Pilots' locker room. "I finally made one."

Just thirty seconds before Rodriguez missed the first shot of a one-on-one to give West Side a chance to tie the game.

Telling 38-37, the Pirates worked for a final shot and on their third offensive rebound, Pilot Bill Stiehl fouled Paul Smart with six seconds remaining.

Smart went to the line for two shots after the Pilots expended their final three out to make him ponder the shots. The 6-2 junior missed both and on the second one Pilot Dan Shrum, playing with strep-throat, went up against the better Pirates to get the rebound.

He shoveled a pass to Rodriguez in the corner. West Side quickly fouled him in order to have any chance.

"These kids deserved to win," Brown said. "They were battling a taller team. (John) Simons has a sore knee, Shrum has strep-throat and his backup is just as sick."

Both Tim Black and Stiehl had fouled out before Rodriguez made his free throw. Had the game gone another overtime, the Pilots would have been in big trouble with their two top players on the bench.

Regulation time in the tough defensive struggle ended with a 35-35 count.

In the initial overtime, Stiehl scored first before Smart made two free throws for a 37-37 score. Neither team could score over the last two minutes of the period and Smart missed from the corner with two second left, bringing the second overtime.

Dick Pussey, who was playing inside for the fouled out Black, gave the Pilots a 39-37 lead with a tip-in after 65 seconds were gone in the second overtime.

Monson likes Big Sky, NCAA tournament chances

MOSCOW — The safest way for Idaho to make a rare appearance in the NCAA tournament is to win the Big Sky Conference playoffs this weekend.

Coach Don Monson, whose success now has him being linked to every vacancy real or imagined in the Western United States, thinks his Vandals' chances of getting there on their own are good.

Idaho opens the playoffs — trying to prove it's regular season Big Sky championship was no fluke — by playing Coach Don Monson's rival Idaho State in the opener tonight. The two Montana teams meet in the second game. Then the winners play Saturday night for the championship game, which carries an automatic invitation to the NCAA playoffs.

There is another way, however — an at-large berth. The 1980-81 record, probably would be the only Big Sky team considered for one of those since the next best is an 18-6 by Montana.

"I think we'd have a pretty good chance if we get into the championship game (of the Big Sky). That would be 24 wins," Monson said concerning the at-large berth. "But I'm also realistic enough to know the Big Sky has never had two in the NCAA playoffs and the Big Sky has the worst record of any team against Division I teams in there."

For that reason, Monson was a little disappointed that Idaho slipped out of the top 20 ranking by United Press International.

"Yeah, I suppose it would hurt us (for at-large consideration)," he said. "We were there three weeks and all of a sudden we're not. I don't know why. All we can do is win games."

The surest way, then, is to win the tournament and with a playoff title Idaho also would put itself in a possible position of a first-round bye.

The NCAA fills its four regions (east, midwest, midwest and west) into 12 teams. In the first round, the top four in each region get opening-night byes.

In the west, getting the byes would be the Pac-10 (Oregon State), WAC (Wyoming or Utah) and two others. All 12 would be ranked one through 12.

The western regional will open at El Paso (UTEP campus) and Pauley Pavilion (UCLA). The first night, the pairings would have No. 6 seed vs. No. 11 and No. 7 vs. No. 10 at El Paso and No. 5 vs. No. 12 and No. 8 vs. No. 9 at Pauley. The second night, No. 4 vs. the winner of 5-12 and No. 1 vs. the winner of 8-9 at Pauley while No. 3 vs. 6-11 and No. 2 vs. 7-10 in El Paso. Those winners would advance to the regional finals in Salt Lake City the next week.

From that standpoint, one can understand Monson's hesitancy in expecting Idaho to get a first-round bye — meaning one win would put the Vandals in the regionals' final four.

"Really deep down I don't believe that because you can't tell about any rankings—the way those polls are," he said, but then added a touch of optimism. "I'm through the five-man ranking committee has two coaches—George Raveling, (Big Sky Commissioner) Steve Bakke and (Big Sky State Athletic Director) LaDell Anderson. Those guys are acquainted with our program and have seen us play this year."

"The other problem with an at-large berth is you can't find yourself shifted to the eastern division, 2,500 miles from home."

In considering the pairings for the Big Sky playoffs, Monson isn't unhappy with meeting Idaho State first.

"From a matchup standpoint, I suppose I'd rather play them than one of the two Montanas. But again you have to play well. At this time of year the experience factor is gone. Playing together factor is gone...there are no blowouts any more...The advantage of yours is playing on the home court in front of your home people with no travel."

"So we're out or excuses. I can't think of one excuse right now," he could use if the Vandals aren't successful in the tournament.

While the success of the season is bright and the anticipation of the weekend even brighter, the Vandal faithful have bright on a new worry.

Every time a coach quits a firm or rumors of change surface, Vandal boosters wonder aloud if Monson won't automatically be that school's first choice.

The report is that Merv Harshman, long time Pacific Lutheran, WSU and Washington coach, is a leading candidate for the Big Sky commissionership by vacating this spring. The Northern Utah coaches are certain Washington will sweep in after Monson.

In fact, there is talk of coming up with methods (mostly monetary) that would make the Idaho position even more attractive to Monson.

"That's just talk," he said about reports other schools had been in contact with him. "No one's been talking to me."

"Well, yeah, if a job comes up I'm interested in I'll look into it. But I'm not looking. I've got a good job."

"But I'm also in a profession that if you think something might be better for you and your concerns, you're looking into it."

"People really don't understand and how hard they (university jobs) are to get. I was always interested in playing pro baseball but that didn't do me any good. Heck," he said with a smile "the Idaho job was tough enough to get."

before an Eller bomb and Tracy Cox's inside jumper cut Fruiland to 86-66.

The Grizzlies, who were favored by four points, lost to the Bulldogs' three-point play made it 72-71 with 1:44 left.

Larry Ziegler then hit from the corner over Kimberly's zone defense for a lead and the Bulldogs got no closer.

Thompson was proud in defeat and the Kimberly locker room was far from quiet.

"We approached this game like the rest of the games," said Thompson. "I just told the kids what to expect and told them I wanted them to play with their pride and courage."

"They did."

Eller and Holcomb had three fouls each in the first half, while Brian Jennings and Auker had the same problem for Fruiland.

Auker made it through the third period without a foul while scoring 10 points as Kimberly's 40-36 halftime lead faded to 47-46.

Tessholdt hit from the outside and Scott Rihnehart provided some deadly and timely inside scoring.

With the foul trouble, Kimberly was forced to play more zone defense than Thompson would like.

"I admit I'm not the greatest zone coach in the world," Thompson, in his first state tournament in his playing and coaching career, said. "It doesn't sound too much to know they (Fruiland) should shoot the eyes out of the basket from the wing and they did just that. We were lucky we stayed in as long as we did."

Fruiland was able to find the open shot in the pressure of being the baseline over the Kimberly zone.

Crothers, who tied with Auker for game scoring honors at 21, had 14 in the first half. Frank Esley added 13 in the first two quarters as Kimberly held a two-six-point lead.

Kimberly had to foul down on the bench length because of fouls, but every Bulldog called on help.

Kimberly will meet Kendrick in today's consolation semifinals.

Thompson said, "They (Kendrick) looked good today but they came back and if they would've hit a decent percentage, they would have won."

Fruiland boss Mike Kinec said his team had the pressure of being the defending state champion.

"In my opinion, there's a big difference in our position and Kimberly's. We were tense, and they played great. But maybe they were a little tougher than we thought. We'll have to play better against Sugar-Salem; we'll be in the loser's bracket."

Fruiland finished 74-66. Kimberly finished 66-66.

Dejected Minico Coach Craig Dexter expresses his emotion.

Minico contributed to its own downfall, coming out with an advance case of tournament jitters. They fell behind early and quickly but pulled themselves together in the last four minutes of the second half to make a game of it.

After falling behind 18-6, the Spartans closed to within six at halftime.

Part of the reason for Minico's rebound came because Highland cut taking the ball inside to Jensen. He managed only three points in the second eight minutes.

But Highland Coach Ron Kress made that adjustment at halftime and in the second half Jensen netted 20 points. But also during the second half, Minico's Jeff Miller shook off a shooting slump and helped Minico keep the pressure on the taller Rams.

Miller and Gus Christensen cut the deficit to 35-35 at the fourth quarter began, but that was as close as the Spartans could come.

"The first 12 minutes were the difference in the game," dejected Minico coach Craig Dexter said. "We were tight and the way they introduced the players took us out of our pre-game routine. That's no excuse because we don't make excuses. But we like to take the last two minutes of the pre-game warmup to get into the dressing room and go over our game plan one last time. They started announcing the players with more than four minutes to go and I think it had an effect on our getting mentally ready to play."

"I thought we completed," Dexter said. "Jeff Miller broke out of his little slump and we needed that. I really don't know what else to say. I thought our plan was good."

"I suppose another big difference came in the fourth quarter when we had to expend our guards to pressure the ball out front. We had been collapsing our people back into the middle to help against Jensen and their height." "We had to take the help away from our inside people. We didn't have the physical size to stop them."

"It was a game of sprints," Dexter said. "I think we went down 11, with 4:38 to go in the first half. We had a timeout then and had a little chewing. It seemed to shake the kids out of the jitters and I thought we played well after that."

"I really thought we could go out and beat them. We knew it would take a super effort and some things would have to go our way. But nothing worked out for us today."

"We came here expecting to play for it all Saturday night," Dexter said, looking at today's game against Skyline. "I don't know how the kids will react. It will be a challenge for them. But I think we'll meet it. We beat Skyline twice during the regular season in barnburners. Right now it's important for us to forget about Highland and concentrate on coming back to make a good showing in-state."

Kress, who had worried about Minico's rebounding ability prior to the game, said he was pleased with his team's overall showing. The major exception came in the second quarter after Highland had taken that 18-6 lead when the Rams stopped taking the ball to Jensen.

"Everybody else thought they could shoot the ball to Jensen and take the game open early," so we talked about that at halftime and they started looking for Phil again.

"I think we also had a chance to put Minico away throughout the game from the foul line, but Highland hit just six of 17 free throws. Most of the misses came from the front end of one-and-ones.

Minico still struggled in disgust as the terrible free throw percentage. "That's pretty much the way we've shot them all year," he said.

Neither team scored for nearly two minutes before Highland jumped into a 9-0 lead. Kres Barras got Minico's first point with 3:56 left in the quarter.

Jensen then hit six points to take Highland to a 13-6 advantage, but that stalled at 18-6.

Barras got Minico going again with 3:51 left and Miller took two quick jump shots. After a Jensen free throw, Mike Shockey and Miller reduced the deficit to 19-15. Highland then steadied and opened up red hot in the third quarter when Jensen hit three straight field goals against one by Barras.

Four times that night, Highland held 10 point leads, but in the closing minutes, Barras, Shockey and Miller pulled Minico to within six. After Todd Cooper scored the last field goal of the third quarter, Christensen and Miller scored again for Minico.

West Side missed a shot and had a turnover. On its next two possessions it had a free throw and a turnover with 34 seconds left as the guard headed down the lane when he saw an opening in the West Side defense. His missed free throw was critical, but of no consequence in the end result.

"He had to make one sooner or later," an elated Brown said, noting how each of the three shots got closer to the mark.

Glenns Ferry held a good West Side team in check the entire game. West Side, which had lost twice in its previous games, had a season low of 33 points against Aberdeen, when Aberdeen held the ball against the Pirates.

"It was a super defensive effort," Brown said. "They played good defense and so did we. We played defense much like we did against the teams in the district tournament."

Brown said he played good defense and so did we. We played defense much like we did against the teams in the district tournament.

Neither team scored in the final four minutes of play, mainly because of the tight defense at both ends and nervousness.

The Pilots took the lead at 2-0 on Black's inside shot and Glenns Ferry, now 18-7, held a 19-11 cushion at the half.

Using a one-two-two zone press to bother the Glenns Ferry guards, West Side cut into the Pilots' nine-point lead starting late in the third period.

David Koller finally tied the game at 29-29 with 7:27 to go in the fourth quarter. A free throw by Brown, angry with the officiating was handed a technical.

The Pilots were tied three more times, but never fell behind and will meet Genesee in tonight's semifinals.

"Brown said, 'Brown has been to the championship game four times and has come in second every time. Tonight he'll try to get a Glenns Ferry squad to the finals for the fifth time."

No. 4 Virginia, Maryland, No. 11 N. Carolina and Wake Forest advance to today's semis.

Upsets plenty in Southeast tourney as two top-ranked teams stumble in opening round

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Greg Manning's free throw with four seconds left put Maryland in front and Ernie Graham added two in overtime to give the Terrapins a 77-67 victory over Virginia in the first round of the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament.

The Terrapins, 19-8, meet fourth-ranked Virginia on Thursday afternoon in tonight's first semifinal game.

Freshman Sam Perkins scored 22 points to lead 11th-ranked North Carolina to a 69-54 victory over North Carolina State in Thursday night's first game. The Tar-Heels face Wake Forest, an 80-61 winner over Clemson Thursday afternoon, in today's second semifinal.

Maryland, wearing gold road uniforms rather than the usual red for the first time since the 1950s, led 49-38 with 8:40 to play before the defending ACC champion Blue Devils, 15-12, staged a furious comeback.

Jim Suddath had three straight from the left corner, the last putting Duke, which never led the contest, to within 53-48 with 3:59 left.

Maryland tried to stall but threw the ball away twice. Tom Emma drove the lane to cut the margin to 53-50 with 1:05 showing and Kenny Dennard's offensive rebound, one of only two second-half baskets, cut it to one with 39 seconds left. Vince Taylor stole the ball and was fouled, but could only take one shot, 53-53, making the second of two free throws.

Manning, who had charged into Taylor giving Duke the ball before Dennard's basket, drove to the baseline and was fouled by Taylor with four seconds left.

Manning hit the first free throw and Graham rebounded the missed second shot. Fouled by Dennard, Graham led the contest with two foul shots.

All King played the Terrapins with 17 points; 12 in the second half, and Buck Williams added 12. Gene Banks paced Duke with 17 points while Suddath had 12 and Emma 10.

Williams, the Terrapins' leading rebounder, picked up his fourth foul two minutes into the second half with Maryland on top 31-22.

Williams on the bench for the next seven minutes, the Terrapins maintained their margin and led 41-32 when he returned.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Vanderbilt, down 10 points after falling to score for the first seven minutes, pulled off a major upset Thursday night, beating eighth-ranked Kentucky 83-75 to advance to the semifinals of the Southeastern Conference Tournament.

Following that upset, third-ranked LSU, which won the regular-season SEC championship and now sports a 28-2 record, came from behind after a sluggish first half to beat Florida 85-73.

And earlier in the day, Ole Miss, sparked by sophomore Carlos Clark, ran 67-37 in 31 straight points during a five-minute span early in the second half to upset 12th-ranked Tennessee 61-71, and Dominique Wilkins scored 31 points to lead Georgia past Alabama 88-80.

On Friday, Vanderbilt, still only 15-13 after winning two tournament games, including Wednesday's 71-58 triumph over Mississippi State, meets Ole Miss, only 14-13, in one semifinal and LSU plays Georgia 17-10.

The Tigers, paced by freshman Leonard Mitchell who had 27 points and Howard Carter with 22, trailed Florida 41-34 at halftime but moved into the lead for keeps less than six minutes into the second half.

The Gators, winding up 12-16 on the season and beating Auburn in the opening round of the tournament Wednesday, were paced by their two outstanding freshmen, Vernon Delancy and Ronnie Williams who scored 26 and 23 points respectively.

Vanderbilt freshman Al Miller said Kentucky didn't appear scored late in the game, just surprised.

"They are not used to being down six with 18 seconds to go," said Miller.

The heavily-favored Wildcats became the third favored team to fall in the quarterfinals, bowing in a upset that stunned the crowd of 10,659, which was loaded with Kentucky fans.

The Commodores, embroiled in controversy at the end of the season with guard Jimmy Gray kicked off the team and senior forward Charles Davis suspended briefly after publicly criticizing Coach Richard Schmitt, started three freshmen in playing the biggest shocker in the tournament.

Nicklaus in 1st round tie at Inverrary

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus, starting to get his game in shape for next month's Masters, shot a wind-blown, seven-under-par 65 Thursday to tie Barry Ziegler for the first round lead of the $30,000 Inverrary Golf Classic.

The two veterans held a two-shot lead over Charles Coody, who carded a five-under-par 67 over the par 72, 7,129-yard Inverrary layout.

Another shot behind Coody at 68 was Curtis Strange. Seven golfers were in a logjam at 69. They were Andy Bean, Morris Hatafsky, Barney Thompson, Jim Chaceany, Dan Frickey, Tom Kite and Gibby Gilbert.

Defending champion Johnny Miller, the hottest player on the tour so far this year, came in with a two-under-par 70.

Nicklaus said he was surprised the scores were running so low, particularly in the morning when winds gusts to 25 miles an hour.

"It was not an easy day to play," said Nicklaus, playing in his fourth event of 1981. "I did not expect the scores to be that low."

He said it was the best he has played since winning the PGA last summer and the best he has ever played at Inverrary, considering the rough conditions.

That's saying plenty, since the 41-year-old U.S. Open has won three times in nine appearances in the Inverrary event.

He described his first nine holes as frustrating.

"I played well and hit the ball close to the hole, but I was not making putts," he said. "Then on the 10th hole, I was knocking it close and made some putts. It also made some long ones."

After making the turn at two-under-par 34, Nicklaus birdied four straight holes, finishing off his string by canning a 46-foot putt. Then after two pars, he holed out a sand wedge from more than 50 feet.

He then birdied the next hole by putting a six-iron to six feet and holing it to lead Ziegler going into his final hole. But Nicklaus' second hole was a bunker and he had to settle for a bogey five and a tie for the lead.

Nicklaus said he was going into this year with more confidence than last year, when he was trying to re-structure his game.

Lopez leads LPGA field

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Nancy Lopez-Melton, playing an early round on Saturday, fired a three-under-par 70 to capture the first-round lead of the LPGA $125,000 Arizona Copper Classic Thursday.

Lopez-Melton, 24, Albuquerque, N.M., shot 33 and 37 to break away from the pack and give her a stroke lead over Clody Hill, who played her afternoon round through blustery wind and sporadic heavy rain.

Temperatures dropped from 67 during the morning round to 49 by the time Hill finished her round at 3:54 and 37 to finish with a two-under-par 71.

Tatsiko Ohsaka of Japan, one of three international entrants in the four-day tournament, and Pat Bradley were two strokes back, tied for third at one-under-par. Nine other players were tied at 73.

Lopez-Melton's start dampened Kathy Whitworth's hopes for a win that could push her toward reaching the first woman golfer to become the $1 million earnings mark.

Whitworth, 41, Dallas, who has won more than $900,000 in her 22-year pro-golf career, shot 37 and 39 for a three-over-par showing in the opening round.

BRIDGE

Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Waiting game nets reward

South would easily make his slam without a diamond lead, but of course, West had no problem in finding that lead. After declaring won-the-diamond ace at trick one, he had one problem — getting rid of that diamond loser before playing spades. He solved it, but it required patience, and some good luck.

High hearts were led at tricks two, three and four. The third round of hearts was trumped by dummy's queen of spades. If East held the ace of trumps he could overruff and lead a diamond, but East didn't have that nice card.

Now South led dummy's king of clubs. Second bit of luck. East held the ace and could do nothing better than play it. South ruffed.

Another heart was led: West could ruff that with the ace of trumps, but South would simply discard dummy's diamond loser and claim. So West discarded.

South ruffed with dummy's king of spades, led the queen, which was not exactly scientific, but everything came up roses for South.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Getting rid of a loser before knocking out the ace of trumps in a slam contract can be a frightening experience. Look at what South had to go through on today's hand.

America's 'most trusted man' quits

By H.D. QUIGG
United Press International

In the history of this nation, only three men completely have dominated the news media of their era: Mark Twain, Will Rogers and Walter Cronkite.

But Cronkite is elite in a choice way. There have been other bearers of news in the history of mankind, but it is not written that any of them also served as uncle to a nation.

When this newsman steps away from his anchor job (having attained such a position of duty that in Sweden the word "Cronkiter" means anchorman), with the evening news program of March 6, a favorite uncle will be saying good-bye to his kinfolk some 17 million strong.

Uncle Walter, anchorman and managing editor of "CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite," holder of the title "most trusted man in America," and for three years the only journalist voted among the top 10 most influential decisionmakers in the country, has been anchoring the newscast since April, 1962.

But Cronkite, 64, has been a working newsman for much longer than that. He was just 16 when he got his first byline, in The Houston Post.

He landed a full-time job on the paper in 1935. "I was out of the cub stage, although I was certainly wet behind the ears. Oh, I learned an awful lot of lessons."

"I remember one on the police beat. Press room was on the second floor. We had the windows open to get some air in the place, and we heard sirens running. It was the late trick. Everything had gone to bed but our city-side edition—same thing with The Chronicle, our competing afternoon paper."

"There was more than one siren. We looked out the windows down on the street and here was the red light of an ambulance coming up the avenue. And just as this guy got to the corner below us, here came another ambulance on a side street and hit him right in the tail."

"He spun around and the back end of the wagon opened, and out shot like a projectile missile a passenger on a stretcher on wheels. And this thing landed on the street and went rolling and hit a curb, and it flipped the poor victim out. It was a kind of hilarious

Cronkite tours the Normandy beaches with Gen. Eisenhower slight, but frightening at the moment. "So, leapers, I ran to the phone and so did my Chronicle competitor — old-fashioned stand-up phones. You grabbed the phone and flipped the receiver up and caught it in your hand, real Hilg Johnson stuff. And I'm just giving them a quick bulletin, saying I'll check the hospital and get back to you. Hold the presses. So I'm checking and the police are rushing and I'm dictating details fast."

"We got the bulletin material out for the late paper, and I started to go back to the office to write a first-person story for the next day."

"And my buddy from The Chronicle, he was an old-timer, and he said: 'You're not going — you're not going to do a first-person story on this thing.'"

"And I said, 'Well, hell, yeah — it's great; eyewitness to the accident.'"

"He said, 'Oh, boy.' He said, 'Listen, kid, I can tell you something, kid, don't do that. If you write that first-person story, you know you're gonna be in court the rest of your life. Boy, they'll have you in court as a witness. Don't do it. I've had some experience. Very definitely, don't do it.'"

"I said, 'Really?' You know, my jaw dropping. So I took him at his word. He really laid it on thick. I didn't write it. Of course, the next day The Chronicle had this big front-page eyewitness story."

Cronkite stayed for more than a year, and then had his first paid vacation ever and went to Kansas City to visit his grandparents. An old friend mentioned that a new radio station, KCMO, was opening.

"It was a very small station, now a big one. They hired me as news editor, sports editor and staff. I got fired."

For what? Was it a boob-job on the air?

"No, it was just on some journalistic integrity. The wife of the program manager called in. Big fire in the new city hall building, and they lived across the street. She called graphic details to her husband, all floors on fire, she'd seen three men jump."

"Her husband came in with a couple of notes and said, 'Here, put a bulletin on the air.' I said, 'Gee, sure, that's great,' and picked up the phone. He said, 'Whatta you doing?' I said, 'I'm checking on the facts of ...' He said, 'You don't have to check — wife called in!' I said, 'Gotta check the facts, Jim.'"

"That was it. That ended my broadcast career in Kansas City."

It was 1937, springtime, and he was hired by the United Press (now United Press International). He remained with the wire service, off and on, for the next 10 years.

World War-II established Cronkite as an international correspondent.

Cronkite

 and something of a star. He acquired a reputation as a reporter who would take enormous risks to get a story. For example, Cronkite was leading the 8th Air Force in Britain and went along on the second bombing mission over Germany — the first to carry correspondents.
 "It was terrible. Exciting, but terrible. We had no fighter escort. We had four groups of planes, B-17s and B-24s. We had the German Luftwaffe attacking us for 2 1/2 hours, all the way to the target. We had to fly back and back till we got to the North Sea. And I had to coin a phrase — so thick you could walk on it.
 "And in those days we war correspondents were trained to handle a gun, although obviously it was against the Geneva Convention. Of course, they couldn't know after you'd been shot down whether you'd been on a gun or not.

"Seven correspondents started on the mission. Two of those planes aborted. Five reached the target, including Cronkite and Bob Post of The New York Times. Post was last, shot down.
 "Cronkite's lead for the story he later wrote was, 'I have just returned from an assignment to hell, a hell at 17,000 feet, a hell of bursting flak and screaming fighters, hurtling bombs and burning planes.'
 "I swept the boards with my story of that," Cronkite recalled. "Terrific play. Particularly in the British press. The British press loves those stories that begin with 'I, you know. Every British paper has my story. And it got a big play here, too.'
 Cronkite went on another B-17 raid, to Cologne, went on six-medium bomber raids, covered the Battle of the Bulge on the ground and went on a major Allied fighter invasion in September 1944, which has been chronicled in recent years in the book and movie, 'A Bridge Too Far.'

"That was the Arnhem (Netherlands) mission, now become known as the Arnhem day, because," Cronkite said, "The British landed at Arnhem. I glided into territory north of Eindhoven with the 101st Airborne."
 "I darn near died 'g because I was assigned to the gliders. I'd seen what had happened to the gliders in Normandy and decided that that was a pretty dumb way to go to war. I had thought I was going by paratroop, parachute drop, as was the case. It was a whole lot better than going by glider. I came awful close to saying, 'I don't think I'll go.'
 "You know, gliders don't land — they crash. Ours did a pretty good job of crashing. Helms flew off, and we were digging ourselves out of this loose dirt of this potato patch. Black loam was all over everything. It took days to get it out of the ears and eyes, musette bag, typewriter.
 "We got shot. And planes were falling and all kinds of crap going on, so I grabbed a helmet and slipped it on my head. The group was scattered, and I looked around to where I thought the rendezvous point was — a drainage ditch some distance from where we were.
 "So I didn't see anybody in a leadership position, and I just started crawling. Running and crawling, half crouch, toward where I thought the ditch was, falling every once in a while when an explosion went off; to my mind, it had my name on it.
 "And one of these times I fell, I recall seven or eight guys were following me. One of these fellows pulls on my pants and says, 'Hey, lieutenant, are you sure that this is where we're supposed to be going?'
 "And I said, 'I'm not a lieutenant,

I'm a war correspondent.'
 "Damn it, in that case, take off that goddamned helmet."
 "I had a helmet with big white stripe down the front. I was leading troops into combat with no idea what I was doing."
 In the middle of the war, Edward R. Murrow, the big gun of CBS war reporting, offered Cronkite a job. He accepted. Then the United Press gave him a $25 raise. "Well, that was a tremendous vote of confidence, and it really tore at me. Because I loved the United Press, and I do to this day. I had no real desire to leave."
 "So I went trotting back to Murrow and said I can't leave the U.P. And he always thought I used him for a bargaining point, and I guess in a sense I did. It wasn't intentional. Didn't start that way."

The war over, Cronkite went to Brussels, then to cover the Nuremberg war-crimes trials, and then to a stint from 1946 to 1948 as U.P. Moscow bureau manager.
 The first winter was the worst in Moscow history. "And it was the worst living conditions. There was no food at all."
 The snow drifted up to the second-story bureau window. The office car was a complete mess. When Cronkite appealed for a new car, someone in the management suggested he get a bicycle.
 In the midst of this, radio beckoned again — tripling his salary. In 1950, Ed Murrow called and said: "Do you want to try again?"

Cronkite did. He made a big hit on television on the CBS station in Washington. Then CBS picked Cronkite to anchor the 1952 political conventions. He became an instant national star. And the rest is broadcasting history.
 Some is searing history. Where were you at mid-day on Nov. 22, 1963?
 "Leaning over the U.P.I. wire," says Cronkite. Why? "That's where I lean most of the time," he replies. "Actually, the competing wires were right next to each other. I was standing right there, just about to trip some copy."

There were five bells, and this bulletin.
 DALLAS, NOV. 22 (UPI) — THREE SHOTS WERE FIRED AT PRESIDENT KENNEDY'S MOTORCADE TODAY IN DOWNTOWN DALLAS.
 "I was right on the machine," Cronkite says. "So I immediately went to the newsroom to our producer types and said, 'Hey, we oughta get ready to go on the air — something's going on here.' And we didn't have a hot camera on the floor in those days. We reported from the newsroom, but the cameras had to be wheeled in from the storage area, warmed up before we went on the air at 6:30."
 "So we went into an audio booth, and we interrupted the television, 'Search for Tomorrow' or 'Love of Life' or something — interrupted with an audio bulletin. By that time, we had a second bulletin and Merriman Smith of U.P.I. was reporting the motorcade was speeding to Parkland Hospital. Immediately after that, he said the President was hit."

 "And within seven minutes, or nine they had the camera hot. And then I just stepped out of the audio booth in front of the camera, and we were on the air to stay."
 For quite a while, wasn't it?
 "A long time . . . for four days."
 The press reported that when Cronkite gave the news that the President had been assassinated, his voice broke and his eyes filled with tears. If that is so, it was an utter rarity for him.

Walter Cronkite's wife, Betsy, con- firms that the man you see sitting before the mike is 6 feet tall (if he doesn't slump), tries to stay at 185 pounds ("this morning he had only skimmed milk"; his favorite color is blue ("matches his eyes"); and he always has milk and cookies before bedtime ("granah, crackers when he's cutting down").
 The marriage has produced three children. Daughter Nancy Whitney is an actress and writer. The second child, Mary Kathleen, born in Washington, D.C., in 1950, now is Kathy Kard, but uses Kathy Cronkite in her career as a TV and movie actress and author.

The just-published "On the Edge of the Spotlight: Celebrities' Children Speak Out About Their Lives," by Kathy Cronkite, makes her mother very proud — "She interviewed 30 or 40 children; she's going on one of those three-week tours hustling the book."
 Walter Leland Cronkite, 3rd, born in New York in 1957, always is called Chip. He is a film editor and loves sailing. Almost as much as his father does.

At home — in their New York townhouse, the Cronkites have a domestic shorthair cat, Dancer. Their Springer Spaniel, Buzzy, always a companion on their sailboat, died last year at age 17.
 As he looks back on 30 years in television, Cronkite thinks with the greatest sense of achievement of "the fact that we were able to do something about Vietnam and with my sort of editorial when I returned from there."
 You did have an opinion, a disenchantment with the war?
 "Yes, my Tet piece. It's the only opinion I've ever rendered on television, the only one where I step out of my self-assigned role of totally impartial newsmen.
 "The problem was that the people were deeply concerned and worried and very upset, and we couldn't believe anything we were hearing. We kept being told we were winning this war, and the Tet offensive indicated we weren't winning it. So, we sat here, the second day of Tet — Dick Salant (news boss) and I — and he said: 'You know, the person they believe is you; why don't you go and tell 'em the truth?'

 "And I said, 'Well, we ought to consider what that would do to my impartial standing as anchorman.' And we agreed we'd take the chance. It was worth doing. If the people felt that that debased the currency, to the degree that I ought to leave the Evening News, I'd do it."
 And apparently, it was pretty effective. Lyndon Johnson said so later.
 Bill Moyers says L.B.J. told him, "If we've lost Walter, we've lost the country."

When Cronkite steps away from the nightly chore, perhaps he will realize his wish to sail his yawl Wynthie around the world?
 "That's what I'd like to do, but I'm afraid CBS is gonna load me down with a bunch of documentaries and things that I want to do, too. Enough to make sleep me from that round-the-world sail. But I'll spend a lot of time on the sailboat. I'm very much interested in this science series ("Universe") I'm undertaking, want to get it off the ground.
 And so the old pro is heading away from the old deadline. It was good to look back on the making of whatever he has managed by luck to be.
 "And that's the way it was. This is Walter Cronkite. Goodbye.

Dan Rather will replace Cronkite as CBS anchorman.

Roy Raymond presents the featured artist of the month Gary Stone. You are cordially invited to stop into our showroom and see the work of Gary Stone.

Gary Stone is a native of Southern Idaho and has lived there nearly all his life. He lives on a small acreage east of Twin Falls where he works at a hobby that has grown into a full time occupation.
 Stone does many commissioned works and one of the most popular features of these is hiding minutely painted details of a personal nature for the intended recipient, such as family and pet names, sometimes painted so small they can be seen only with the aid of a magnifying glass. His works are hangable in homes and galleries from coast to coast.
 Stone has received national recognition on radio and television for his work and has been the subject of numerous newspaper and magazine articles. He is a popular speaker for organizations and has been asked to teach this new art form but declines, as he feels there Ford we care about people.

Fort Apache' an entertaining police show

By RICHARD FREEDMAN
Newhouse News Service

"Fort Apache, The Bronx" is a slickly fashioned, episodic, but immensely entertaining police movie starring Paul Newman, Edward Asner, and Ken Wahl as embattled cops in a neighborhood where law and order hardly stand a chance against violence and despair. Rated "R".

Generally connected to be the worst example of urban blight in the United States, the South Bronx is the setting for "Fort Apache, The Bronx," in which the embattled 41st Precinct is set like "a fort in hostile territory," as one of its cops accurately describes it.

Starring Paul Newman as an 18-year veteran of the force, Ken Wahl as his young, ambitious patrol-car partner, and Edward Asner as their tough new commanding officer whose rigid belief in playing things by the book produces mixed results in this urban hell, "Fort Apache, The Bronx" is a superior police procedural.

But it is only that, based on the experiences of two actual officers, Tom Muthener and Pete Tessitore, the film is necessarily episodic. Although practically every episode Newman and Wahl get themselves involved in is individually gripping and entertaining, they simply fail to cohere.

Life, especially in the South Bronx, is too chaotic to lend itself readily to artistic organization, so what we get is the random adventures of two dedicated cops in a neighborhood not notably given to law and order.

Against this background of poverty, despair and violence, Newman and Wahl find themselves discouraging a would-be jumper from leaping off a roof, pursuing a mugger who, eccentrically togged in a World War I aviator's helmet, easily outruns them, delivering a 14-year-old girl's baby (it's Newman's 17th such delivery, he wistfully admits), breaking up cockfights, and trying to hold off an angry, radical mob.

Their job isn't made any easier by Capt. Connolly (Asner) as a flintier Lou Grant, who is determined to raise the morale of his beleaguered precinct but only manages to make matters worse by his unbending enforcement of the often petty rules.

The central story, such as it is, concerns a drug-addicted Puerto Rican prostitute (Pam Grier), who shoots point-blank at two rookies in their squad car and goes on to slit the throats of some of her sleazier clients. Ironically, she is never caught, although she meets her own grisly fate in a counterpoint in her last dedication, but similarly addicted Puerto Rican nurse (Rachel Ticotin), whose love affair with the lonely, divorced Newman also ends in tragedy.

The strikingly beautiful Ticotin makes a most auspicious film debut here, surrounded by a cast of top-notch performers.

"Fort Apache, The Bronx" is nothing if not fair-minded. The violence of the streets is matched by the violence of rogue cop Moran (Danny Aiello) and his partner, who in rage and frustration—loss an innocent Puerto Rican lad off a rooftop when the cops are being pulled from above with garbage and more lethal missiles.

This brings about the moral crisis of the film. Newman and Wahl have witnessed the killing. Both are reluctant to squeal on a colleague, but Newman's blighted love affair with Ticotin ultimately determines him to place simple human justice above a possibly noble but misguided loyalty.

In some ways, "Fort Apache, The Bronx" resembles the 1973 Al Pacino movie "Serpico" in its documentary-style exposure of police pressures and corruption. More often it resembles such television series as "Naked City" and "The Precinct," but done with greater skill and more lavish production values.

Organized Crime Review offers underworld insight

By JAMES WARREN
© 1981 Chicago Sun-Times

Hey, how would you like to keep up with the big-time crime reporters? One way to indulge a zest for the world's less savory souls is through Organized Crime Review put out by Ryan Quade Emerson, a former FBI and Internal Revenue Service agent.

Lots of names, plus the latest in dictums or convictions and gossip from crime sources around the globe. In fact, there are a fair number of folks in law enforcement who read this magazine for tips. February's issue included a veritable who's who listing of gangland/homicide victims.

VINCENT NICOLETTI: Murderer and grand-slayer in Chicago.

ALFRED SALERNO: Victim of Bruno war...

FRANK CHIN: Was an expert wiretapper who worked both sides.

All this, along with boffo crime features and Emerson's editorial asides for $7.95 a year (P.O. Box 20173, Reno, Nevada, 89515). Hey, wouldn't you rather read about bad guys in car trunks than watch some nut dining with his elephant?

Capricorns should show others they're smart, plan to save more money

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to sit back and observe the progress you have made, and to make plans to have even greater progress in the days ahead. You have good opportunity to express your talents.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Analyze your position with friends and know which to retain and which to let go out of your life for best results.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Conditions in the business world may appear strange now, but later can turn to your benefit. Be more self-assured.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't rush into a new interest before making a careful study. Take no risks with your reputation at this time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Come to a better understanding with the one you love. A new contact can bring many benefits your way.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Resolve a problem you have with an associate and cement better relations with this person the way of compromise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be sure to finish regular routines before engaging in amusements. An argument with a friend is not serious, so forget it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Don't try to be forceful with others, or you could regret it later. Don't neglect a worthy friend of long standing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be sure to keep promises made to family members. A new project needs more study before going ahead with it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be more objective in dealing with others and get better results. Use extreme caution in mention and avoid possible accident.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan how to save more money instead of spending more than you can afford. Show others you have wisdom.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A time to be calm and serene while going after a personal aim. Be sure to use your money wisely at all times today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Taking on a martyr complex will gain you nothing at this time. Quietly get things done in a sure and positive manner.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who has much ability in scientific matters, so send to right schools where your progeny can learn modern methods and gain good background for life's work. A most unusual profession could emerge here.

What's what

Honesty may be best way but some things untold

Posters checked out 1,500 unmarried women who'd posed nude for glib magazines to ask each: "Would you tell your current boyfriend about the experience? And $25 said no way, or words to that effect." Yes; each knew honesty was the best policy and all that, but you didn't have to tell everything. Young lady, how would you handle this small decision, if it were yours to make?

Surely you're familiar with Reed College at Portland, Ore. It has produced more Rhodes scholars than any other two schools combined.

BEN'S WAY

Q: How did Benjamin Franklin get from Boston to Philadelphia in 1750 when he decided to make that 304-mile move?

A: Walked.

Q: How many radio and TV broadcasters change jobs every year?

A: Radio, 33 percent of them all; TV, 28 percent. Some numerus.

Q: What's the hardest piece of gymnastic equipment to master?

A: The uneven parallel bars, no doubt about it.

VOLTAIRE DIDN'T SAY IT

No, Voltaire did not say, "I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." S. G. Tallentyre was the brilliant fellow who originated that line. It was in some of his writings about Voltaire, however.

Those statistics show that clergymen live longer than lawyers-and lawyers live longer than doctors-But not much longer.

Try this one: "Shiny silk sashes shimmered when the sun shone on the shop signs."

Not everyone cares that 1809 was the year in which Alfred Lord Tennyson and Abe Lincoln were born.

A client reports that Lawrence Welk's license plate reads: "A 1 An 2." Interesting, if true.

Northern Rockies Clay 1981 Exhibition invitations open

KALISPELL, Mont. — Local artists working in clay are invited to submit slides for consideration for Northern Rockies Clay 1981, an exhibition being curated by the Hockaday Center for the Arts, Kalispell, Mont.

The project is supported by a grant from the Atlantic Richfield Foundation through the Anaconda Aluminum Refining and Chemical Division, Columbia Falls, Mont., an ARCO subsidiary.

Slides must be submitted to the Hockaday Center for the Arts for juror's consideration by 5 p.m. March 16. Notification of the juror's decision will be mailed March 31. Those artists selected to participate in the exhibition must have their own work at the Hockaday Center by May 8.

John Brice, director of the Hockaday Center, said that artists are being chosen, rather than specific works.

"The juror will, on the basis of the artists' slides, select those individuals he wants in the exhibit. The artists may then send whatever clay works they choose for the show," he said.

The exhibition will be open-to-the public at the Hockaday Center June 2 through July 25. The collection will then travel for approximately a year.

The tentative schedule includes the Sun Valley Center Gallery in Sun Valley and the Jackson Hole Center for the Arts, Jackson Hole, Wyo.

For more information on Northern Rockies Clay 1981 contact the Hockaday Center for the Arts, P.O. Box 83, Kalispell, Mont., 59901 or call 755-5268.

'Gone With the Wind' scheduled for TV

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Gone With the Wind," the most highly praised motion picture ever made, will be televised March 22 and March 24 on CBS, the second time around on TV for the epic Civil War film.

The David O. Selznick movie of Margaret Mitchell's antebellum novel was first televised two years ago by the network under the terms of an exclusive 20-year contract between CBS and MGM.

Long the box-office champion before box-office prices soared — "Gone With the Wind" stars Clark Gable, Vivien Leigh, Leslie Howard and Olivia de Havilland and won eight Academy Awards in 1939.

Cheryl Tiegs crashes former hostages' party

Q: I was rather perturbed to come across a newspaper photo of Cheryl Tiegs posing with a group of former hostages and various city officials at an important New York party, given in the heroes' honor. How on earth did she get invited? — L.B. of Sacramento, Calif.

A: Truth is, she didn't. According to a source at the restaurant which fed the former hostages at a lavish breakfast celebration, Cheryl simply popped up outside and brushed past a very hairy security guard, convincing them that she was expected inside. She then made a beeline for a pontiff of U.S. Marines, as cameras snapped away. Later, a ticked-off restaurant exec said, "She just barged in and crashed. Her motive didn't seem patriotic at all, just press exposure at any price. That day belonged to our heroes, not Tiegs."

ALTERED STATE: Actor William Hurt, believing that his latest movie, "Altered States," was a real bomb, refused to give any interviews in connection with the film. However, despite the lukewarm reviews, the picture has taken on and is doing quite well at the boxoffice, so in a total about-face Hurt is now seeking interviews.

Q: What happened to that big telephone Reed Fox was supposed to be organizing for Richard Pryor following his terrible accident? — G.H. of Richmond, Va.

A: Not much. The telephone staged in July 1980 for the Richard Eryor-Burn Foundation raised a lot of promises — but very little action; of the $150,000 pledged, so far made only twenty percent. The telephone was supposed to be a headline star announced for the telephone materialized — Fox claimed a bad back, and Sammy Davis Jr. just sent a tape recording of his own songs.

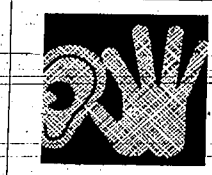

ROCKY BOAT: Lesley-Anne Down, dimming the King Tut's tomb thriller "Sphinx" on location in Egypt, quite naturally had to be given special instruction in navigating a camel. (They're known as Ships of the Desert.) She fell queasy riding hers and barely made it to the ground. Afterward, when her knees buckled, she regained her equilibrium, and smiled, "I now realize that what I had was just a case of good old-fashioned seasickness."

Q: Someone told me that Ava Gardner now lives the life of a recluse somewhere near Hollywood. Is this true? — M.H. of Shaker Heights, Ohio.

A: No. Ava, who carries on a longtime love affair with Spain, still lives in London, leaving only to do an occasional movie (her last was in 1979 opposite Henry Fonda, "City on Fire"). Jogging with her Welsh Corgi dog, she's a familiar sight in Hyde Park.

Q: We've been reading that young Morgan Mason, the son of Pamela and James Mason, was going to be named chief of protocol in the Reagan administration. How come he didn't get the job? — M.T. of St. Louis, Mo.

A: Morgan, 25 and an early supporter and worker for Reagan's can-

SAD MEMORIES: We understand director Peter Bogdanovich is writing a book about Dorothy Stratten, the beautiful Playboy centerfold model who was murdered by her husband, who then took his own life. The book should be interesting because Bogdanovich and Stratten were romantically linked when she starred in his yet-to-be-released movie, "They All Laughed."

Q: Does Dolly Parton have any children? — K.T. of Boston, Mass.

A: No. The curly Mc Parton a big hit in her movie debut in 26th Century-Fox's "Nine to Five" romp, doesn't plan on having any. "After raising five brothers and sisters," says Dolly, "I want to have any — I'll adopt." Dolly and her husband, Carl Dean, have been married for 15 years.

ROYAL WEDDING: My English spies tell me that London bookies are betting that Prince Charles, the world's most eligible bachelor, will announce his engagement to Lady Diana Spencer this spring, probably in March or April. The British jewelry trade is adding coal to the rumor fires by hinting that Garrard's "the crown jewellers," as the store is known, is busy working on designs for the wedding ring.

Q: Is it true there are more remakes than new film projects currently being made? — T.P. of San Diego, Calif.

A: We're not sure of the numbers, but with so many big-budgeted films flopping at the box-office, it does seem Hollywood is playing it safe by doing re-makes. Already started is Bo Derek's sexy "Tarzan the Ape Man." Then there's Steve Spielberg's new version of "A Guy Named Joe." Jack Nicholson's "The Postman Always Rings Twice," Al Pacino's "Scarface," and a musical re-make of Ella Kazan's classic "A Face in the Crowd" starring Mac Davis.

PERFECT SON-IN-LAW: Paul Newman hates to see the press and give interviews. His explanation: Everyone always asks the same old questions. However, recently he agreed to a press conference for his latest movie, the controversial "Fort Apache, the Bronx," provided it was held in Atlanta. The reason? He wanted to take his mother-in-law, a Jewish-old lady from Georgia, to New York. The usually taciturn Newman was delightful, helping his mother-in-law in and out of a limousine.

Q: Have the surviving Beatles said much about John Lennon's death? Seems to me except for short statements at the time of the murder I haven't read anything else. — O.T. of St. Paul, Minn.

A: You're right, the Beatles have not made any further public statements. Though there was a report that the survivors might reunite to record a new album as a tribute to Lennon, one studio spokesman termed such speculation as "absolute rubbish." I have heard, however, that George Harrison has written a song about Lennon. It's doubtful that Paul McCartney will do the same as he's always been bitter about Lennon's vitriolic attack on him in his song "How Do You Sleep."

Q: I've read that Carol Burnett has moved lock, stock and barrel to Hawaii. Does that mean she's going to retire? — J.J. of Salt Lake City, Utah.

A: Not at all. Carol just wants to spend her free time in Hawaii. She just finished a movie with Alan Alda and is rehearsing a stage show in Los Angeles. The show will be a reprise of the best of the comic turns she did on her long-running TV show.

CELEBRITY TIME: A leading political figure and his equally famous wife are determined to be the jet-set couple of the year. Advisers keep pointing out that he should be establishing himself as an important state figure but he would rather see his name in the gossip columns.

Q: Is actor Roger Moore really a compulsive gambler? I've heard he's lost a fortune. — R.T. of Columbus, Ga.

A: You haven't got that quite right. He isn't addicted to gambling but he is a first-rate backgammon player and plays for money. In fact, Moore has won about $200,000 from producer Cubby Broccoli while they were on location in Cortina, Italy, shooting "For Your Eyes Only," the newest James Bond movie.

Q: Is that skinny British model Twiggy going to make any more movies? — T.O. of Phoenix, Ariz.

A: Twiggy, whose real name is Leslie Hornig, has starred in two films, "The Boyfriend," and "There Goes the Bride." Her husband, American actor Michael Whitney, has written a new movie in which Twiggy may star — that is, until he hears the title. She can't name her famous cockney accent. Her husband has been giving her lessons.

LIGHT FINGERS: A very famous award-winning actress did some modeling recently and, after she left, the client discovered an expensive outfit was gone. No one quite has the nerve to call the star and say bring it back, we know you've got it.

Q: You mentioned in a recent column that writer Road Dahl objected to a movie being made about his wife, actress Patricia Neal. What's the status of the movie now? — G.Y. of Grove Point, Mich.

A: It's right on schedule. Dahl initially objected to the movie because he didn't want his wife to relive the many tragedies the movie will deal with: her two massive, near-fatal strokes, the death of their daughter Olivia, and the brain damage suffered by their son Theo after a taxi in New York hit his carriage. But Dirk Bogarde, who will play Dahl opposite Glenda Jackson as Neal, persuaded Dahl to change his mind.

SWEET RECONCILIATIONS: Old loves must be the best loves. As mentioned recently, if Jack Nicholson and Anjelica Huston don't have another big fight they may get married. Jack has been after Anjelica for years but she just wasn't sure. Ferrarri Fawcett and Ryan are still as thick as thieves and now the latest ... Burt Reynolds and Sally Field just couldn't stay apart and they're back together. And it isn't even springing.

Q: I was out with Elizabeth Taylor poking fun at her looks and the bags under her eyes in the movie mystery "The Mirror Crack'd." Is this only a performance, or does her self-deprecating attitude ever surface off camera? — N.H. of Spring Valley, N.Y.

A: Surprisingly, it does. Before a recent morning television show guest appearance, she slipped into the Green Room to sip coffee and kibitz with the crew, all of whom found her to be joshy, funny, and natural. Taylor looked about her screen image, her shape and even her deep chins: A staffer said, "We expected her to come on like a high and mighty movie star, yet she puts on absolutely no airs whatever."

Q: Isn't Johnny Cash's daughter trying to make it as a new-breed country singer? Can you tell us if she's really good or is she merely cashing in on her father's fame? — O.M. Newport Beach, Calif.

A: Rosanne Cash, one of Johnny's four daughters by his first marriage, is a country singer of growing stature with the crew, all of whom found her to be joshy, funny, and natural. Taylor looked about her screen image, her shape and even her deep chins: A staffer said, "We expected her to come on like a high and mighty movie star, yet she puts on absolutely no airs whatever."

NO INVITATION: One Washington socialite is buying a lot of gifts these days to pacify his mistress, a lady who used to have another important lover on the capital scene. It seems the socialite and his wife gave an argual party, but the wife, who knows about the mistress, refused to send the girlfriend an invite. No open door policy there.

Q: I came across an interview with Jessica Lange in connection with her new movie, "The Postman Always Rings Twice," and was puzzled by the fact that the accompanying photograph seemed to date back to when she had "King Kong." — A.P., Eckert, Colo.

A: For the time being, Jessica, who's separated from her husband and visibly pregnant, has instructed Paramount's publicity department that she has no intention of posing for any new photos until her baby is born. Jessica even refuses to sit still for head shots, so the company is readying photo art taken during production. (The baby's due in March and the father, as has been well publicized, is Mikhail Baryshnikov.)

Q: A friend, just returned from Paris, tells me Mariene Dietrich is now living there. Is she still haunted by the press corps? — L.W., Columbia, S.C.

A: And how. The 79-year-old Mariene lives in a lovely glass and marble house located about a block from the Eiffel Tower. When she caught an enterprising photographer snapping away aloft a crane outside her window, with a telephoto lens focused directly on her face, the legendary Mariene very simply drew the blinds and has kept them closed.

HOLD THE FOOD: When John Denver stopped for Sunday brunch at a Manhattan restaurant, the management requested that he pose for a picture. Denver, who was enjoying his eggs, grinned and put down his fork, politely replying, "Sure, but if you don't mind, I'd rather not be photographed at the table." He then walked to the entrance door, where he obligingly posed for a series of photos, returning to his table without offering the slightest explanation for his stipulation.

Dear Abby

If a man wants to know how to please a woman, just ask

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Every time I read a letter in your column about a man who thinks he's all washed up sexually because he's impotent, my blood boils!

These men are convinced that no woman would want them. Are they merely ignorant, or are they just using that as an excuse to mask the real reasons?

Such men are male chauvinists who see sexual satisfaction only in traditional male terms, and if they aren't able to deliver that way, they don't want to play! How naive and uninform!

Your column is filled with letters from women who complain that they are married to cold sex machines who don't know the first thing about how satisfying warm hugs and tender caresses can be.

Our libraries and bookstores are full of excellent sex manuals detailing the various ways men and women can please and satisfy each other without going in for exhausting intercourse marathons. In these enlightened times, everyone should know that impotent men can be wonderful lovers!

For a man to satisfy a woman, he need only cast off his prudishness and inhibitions, forget all the stereotyped nonsense he heard from other men about what women REALLY want, and show some imagination and sense of adventure. He will be amazed at how much mutual enjoyment can be achieved.

For heaven's sake, who knows better than the woman herself what it takes to satisfy her? Just ask her to be honest. And when she tells you — BELIEVE HER! Sign me... — BLISSFUL IN BALTIMORE

DEAR BLISSFUL: You have said well what many people need to know.

DEAR ABBY: How does a respectable man keep from falling in love with his neighbor's wife?

DEAR FALLING: He keeps a "respectable" distance from her.

DEAR ABBY: A man I am dating is old-fashioned. We are now making the same amount of money, so I say when we go out, I should go 50-50 in sharing the cost. He says it's okay for him to go to my place for dinner, but when it comes to paying money for a meal or entertainment, his pride would be hurt if I didn't let him treat me.

There have been times — just before payday when I know he's short — that I have offered to treat him, but he says no, if he can't pay, we don't go. (He won't even let me lend him the money.)

Abby, what's wrong with a woman paying her own way, or even treating a man if he's short?

— EQUAL RIGHTS

DEAR EQUAL: Nothing. I'm all for it.

DEAR ABBY: When my mother-in-law, who lives in Oregon, heard that we were expecting our fourth child in six years, she wrote, "What on earth is wrong with you crazy kids? How do you expect to support the family you are going in for?" We told her we plan to have six children.

Abby, we have never asked her for anybody's — for financial support, and her attitude bugs me.

Should I ignore her question, or write back and give her a piece of my mind?

— MAD IN MISSOURI

DEAR MAD: Giving your mother-in-law a piece of your mind will bring no peace to yours. Ignore her uncalled-for remarks.

Broken body can't stop mind

Does it matter greatly if one's body is not whole? It is merely a container. A conveyance for a soul

EAST PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — His arms, torso and left leg twitch uncontrollably. His speech is incomprehensible to everyone but his mother and his teachers. And his mouth lolls open and snaps shut involuntarily.

When people first meet Harold "Laddie" Holt, 47, a cerebral palsy victim confined to a wheelchair, they think he is mentally retarded.

Holt is trying to change that misconception — through the sensitive, lyric poetry he painstakingly taps out on his typewriter with a metal rod attached to his shoe.

Holt is living proof that a broken body doesn't have to trap a creative mind.

Tests indicate Holt's almost useless body cloaks an IQ of about 140, which borders on genius. His disability stems from a cerebral hemorrhage suffered after his difficult birth.

Holt's poetry and essays have appeared in national magazines. His first book, a collection of 40 poems, "As I Am," has sold about 1,000 copies. The book is in its third printing, and another printing is planned.

Holt manages to get down his poems, as well as communicate with the outside world, by pecking out his messages on a typewriter using a rod attached to his right shoe. His right leg is the only limb he can control well.

At Holt, Holt began composing poetry by dictating to his mother, Hilda. The process was so cumbersome, however, that he and his mother looked for other ways to communicate.

They tried several other methods before Mrs. Holt thought of attaching a rod to her son's shoe so that he could poke at a typewriter. He has been typing his messages to the world at a rate of two words a minute ever since.

Holt's poems have appeared in the Sunday magazine of the local newspaper, Women's Circle magazine, and been narrated over national television.

"He is taking all this publicity in stride," said Mrs. Holt, 78. "He is very natural about it. He tries to send a little note to most of the people who write to him."

Much of Holt's poetry is inspirational, such as:

"Does it matter greatly if one's body is not whole? It is merely a container, A conveyance for a soul.

Other poems in his small leather-bound book reveal a sense of humor that can even see a lighter side to his condition:

"How does one ever feed him?"

"The second nurse replied: 'If pour more down the front of him 'Than I seem to get inside!'"

Holt spends much of his day outside.

Weekend comedies face double burdens

By JERRY KRUPNICK
Newsweek News Service

from a "double burden," just as we did on "Fridays" will get over the hump.

"First of all, it will be a long time before the viewers stop comparing them to the former Saturday Night Live gang. These are different talents, but people will expect them to be as good as the John Belushi and the Gilda Radner and the Jane Curtins. And that's a tough order.

"Secondly, they are going with a completely new set of writers. No matter how talented the people, it will take time for the writers to groove on them, to get the material of these talents. And they apparently are having trouble with those writers, changing them around—which will make it even tougher to hit their stride."

Chartoff can now afford to talk in a sympathetic manner about her competition. But when the ABC show began a year ago, she and the other writers were basically on the defensive.

"I don't ever want to hear the words 'clones' or 'ripoff' again," she says with a sigh, and then turns on her bright smile. "Sure, there was some resemblance between our show and the 'Saturday Night Live' show. Hey, they had a winning formula and we were just starting out. Why not borrow a few sure things here and there?"

"The thing is, we eventually had to find our own way. When Jack Burns took over as script supervisor, we didn't think we'd last eight, now. And the audience must not like us, because our numbers are so good that we beat Johnny Carson almost every week on "Fridays." It's doing well and seems destined for a solid run. But it may face a test of sorts on April 3. At that time, ABC's "Nightline" will be extended to run Friday nights as well, from 10:30 to 11 p.m. MST, which means the comedy show will start a half-hour later than before.

"Our audiences are pretty much: grow-up boys and girls," Chartoff says. "I think they'll manage to stay up that extra 30 minutes."
