

Legislature slashes DWR fund, studies

By LARRY SWISHER Times-News writer

BOISE — The Legislature's Joint Finance Appropriations Committee Tuesday chopped $400,000, 21 positions and several programs out of the Idaho Water Resources Department.

The committee decided the state should save money by not enforcing the Idaho Stream Channel Protection Act at least for one year beginning July 1.

Officials predicted the department would face expensive lawsuits as a result.

In addition, the committee eliminated the department's water quality and environment section, most of the projects and engineering section, and $50,000 from the budget of the dam safety inspection program.

Department Director Stephen Alfred said the cuts mean the state will not be able to process applications for Carey Act lands, continue studying and developing of geothermal resources, approve plans to build dams for the development of the Cyprus and Noranda mines, and other activities.

"It will have a big economic impact on the public, many, many times the amount of the reductions," Alfred said. "All they left us was water management. We've got to get water down the rivers."

In all, the department received a 1981-82 general fund budget of $2,618,200.

The committee appropriated $408,000, or 13 percent, less than the 1980-81 budget of $3,026,200 and $660,000, or 20 percent, from the $3,276,700 recommended by Gov. John Evans for 1981-82.

Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer, said, "We're going to regret this for many years to come."

Half the committee wanted to add wording to the department's appropriation bill to express legislative intent that the stream protection act not be enforced for at least a year.

Alfred said without new legislation the department could be taken to court and ordered to enforce the law.

"What do I do with the 1,000 permit applications we're going to receive? I can't administer the Dam Safety Act and the Carey Act programs. You've got to tell me what to do," he told the committee.

He said without permits those who alter streams would be in violation of the law and subject to civil penalties and could be "fined in" by either the Idaho Fish and Game Department or a neighbor.

"There's no way in the world we can negate a statute this way," Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, said. "We'll be the laughing stock of the state if we put out this bill."

After a motion to add the wording failed on a 10-10 vote, the group directed Alfred to prepare legislation to enforce the act without the "duplication" among state agencies that members said was occurring.

Committee fails to fund

Energy Office killed

BOISE — The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee turned down all funding Tuesday for the Office of Energy and the Division of Economic and Community Affairs.

In successfully moving to "zero out" the agencies, Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, said he still intended to fund the single energy program "of value" in another budget.

That program is administration of a general energy conservation program for schools and hospitals.

Legislative fiscal analyst John Franden said since the governor had created the Office of Energy by executive order it "would continue to exist and receive federal funds" despite the committee's action.

Van Engelen said the joint committee should restore the division of economic and community affairs later this session if the Legislature passes a proposed 2-percent lodging tax.

Van Engelen said he hoped Evans would return next year with a proposal to fund the division from a tax on retail stores.

The division has about 31 employees, and Evans recommended $235,100 in general funds be appropriated. Last year it received $813,000.

The Office of Energy asked for $153,000 in general funds for the retrofit program and a director and staff. The agency would have about 24 employees.

Sen. Mike Mitchell argued the staff should be retained to work with the new Pacific Northwest Power Planning and Conservation Council and the state Energy Resource Policy Board.

The general fund "retrofit" program, he said, "is a history of problems that led to all the fights between the Legislature and the governor."

Last year Evans vetoed a bill abolishing the office. This year the joint committee is making a point not to write bills but simply make no appropriation in such cases.

The school and hospital energy conservation program would cost $38,000 in general funds to handle about $2.6 million in federal grants.

The funds, which are matched with 50-percent local funds, go toward energy audits and improvements to facilities.

DHW boss Klein, resigns

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Health and Welfare Department Director Milton Klein says his decision to resign Tuesday was not related to underfunding of the department by the Legislature.

"I have an opportunity to participate in a private venture," Klein said. "I've been looking at some things for several months. It's purely coincidental that it happened right now (during the legislative session)."

Klein declined to name the business he was going into although he said it was in Boise.

Klein submitted his resignation to Gov. John Evans Tuesday. He has been head of the department since 1976. The chairwoman of the Idaho Health and Welfare Board said she believed legislative cuts in the department's funding would hamper the hiring of a new administrator.

"We see this as a major problem in the future," Chairwoman Pamela Bowen of Rexburg said. "It will be difficult to get outstanding administrators attracted to serve in Idaho's government, given the present climate."

The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee eliminated about 200 positions in the department's regional offices across the state, ordered a 10 percent cut in staff at the Boise headquarters office, underfunded all salary-increase and eliminated certain programs such as Substance Abuse and Air Quality.

"Mr. Klein has a conservative philosophy that has guided his administration of environmental, health and human service programs," said Mrs. Bowen. "The failure of the ultra-conservative Joint Finance Appropriations Committee to provide a reasonable level of funding leaves the department in a chaotic situation."

Klein, 41, began working in Idaho state government in 1970. At one time he headed the Region-V Human Service programs in Twin Falls.

Rolf Christoph of El Salvador is safe and happy at Gooding High School

Central American nation is home

Gooding student knows strife of El Salvador

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

GOODING — Rolf Christoph looks like any other Gooding High School student with his blond curly hair, blue eyes and "Gooding High School" T-shirt.

But Rolf, from strife-torn El Salvador. One of the 16-year-old student's main concerns is the survival of his parents in San Salvador, the Central American country's capital city, where street killings are daily occurrences.

Christoph claims to know of communist threats and terrorist plots. He understands inflation in its most severe form and poverty at the worst.

Last year, Rolf attended Gooding High as an exchange student and returned to his San Salvador home in August.

His exchange parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schoessler of Gooding, invited him back for his senior high school year. His own parents urged him to accept the invitation to protect his life. Young people in El Salvador are targets of political persuasion and recruiting efforts by the communists, extreme rightists and the current military government, Christoph explains.

Often, he said, if the young people are loyal to one group they are killed by others.

Rolf obtained a four-year visa with the help of U.S. Sen. Frank Church of Idaho. After a brief visit at home this summer, he will return to finish his education at Boise State University.

Born in Switzerland, Rolf is of German and Swiss descent. His father was transferred to El Salvador a number of years ago by his employer and is now in business for himself.

"The economy of our country is so bad that all businesses are suffering," he said. "When you have almost no money you buy food first, so almost nothing else sells," he says.

Rolf says his family was glad when President Reagan was elected.

"I think what the United States is doing to help El Salvador is our only hope. We have to intimidate the communists and unless the United States is willing to stand with countries like ours this cannot be accomplished," the young man said.

"I have been very discouraged, but now I have new hope," he said. Rolf says he sees no chance of another Vietnam in El Salvador.

"We do not want American troops. There are plenty of people to provide troops, but just having the United States sending financial and technical help and showing an interest in the country is a deterrent to the communistic and right-wing extremists alike," he said.

The current military government in El Salvador consists of three factions, Christoph said. These include the extreme right, socialists and the intermediates. All three factions, he said, have a part in decision-making.

Christoph says those who deny that communists are supplying weapons to the guerrillas are wrong. He said he has seen evidence of communist arms being brought into the country for use by extremists to kill those who disagree with them.

"They kill the people and cut off their heads and hands so the bodies cannot be identified," he said. "The farmers are in the worst position of all of us. The communists work the rural areas and ask for board and room, threatening to kill them if they do not oblige."

Then, when they oblige the communists, the anti-communists kill them," he said.

Original total budget, deficit stays same

Reagan proposes cutting fed budget another $13.8 billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan Tuesday proposed $13.8 billion in new budget cuts.

The affect-hundreds of programs including food stamps, education, youth jobs, mass transit, including fuel, low income housing and veterans care.

"The hounding herd of sacred cows has been reduced to a handful," budget director David Stockman told reporters.

The new cuts are over and above those the president announced only three weeks ago on Feb. 18. They bring total spending cuts proposed by Reagan from the budget he inherited from President Carter — with changes for economic estimates — to $48.6 billion.

One reason for the new cuts is that the administration discovered its earlier spending plans would cost more than it estimated — hence larger cuts are needed.

The end result of the proposals would be the same as Reagan announced three weeks ago — a budget calling for $69.3 billion 1982 government spending, with a $45 billion deficit.

Republicans Tuesday introduced in Congress another part of Reagan's economic recovery plan — a 30 percent three-year across-the-board cut in personal income taxes.

Like Reagan's previous proposals, most of the new cuts must still be approved by Congress and special interest groups were sure to fight decreases in their areas.

The liberal Americans for Democratic Action called the proposals "Alice in Wonderland" economics that take from the "needy to give to the greedy."

House Democrats and Republicans, in an unusual summit meeting, agreed on a timetable for both the budget and tax cut bills. The agreement removes one of the greatest obstacles to further action on the Reagan program.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill called the meeting "unprecedented," and House Republican leader Bob Michel of Illinois said "I'm personally very happy."

Under the joint schedule, the entire budget and the tax bill will have cleared Congress and be signed by Reagan before the House and Senate take their August recess.

While trimming civilian programs, the administration proposed to add a net $1.1 billion to national defense

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Mary Gohlke, 45, who received a new heart-and-lungs from a 15-year-old boy, showed early signs of recovery Tuesday, raising hopes she will become the world's first long-term survivor of the rare double transplant operation.

The operation was made possible by a new drug — cyclosporin A. Mrs. Gohlke personally intervened with Food and Drug Administration to obtain permission for the drug's experimental use.

Antone wins key skirmish over 1-year-1¢ sales tax bill

BOISE (UPI) — An attempt by the House Printing Committee to kill a bill that would raise $1 million with a one-year increase in the state sales tax was put down 41-25 today by the House.

The committee had voted not to print the bill, sponsored by Senate Democrats, that would boost the sales tax for one fiscal year to give state government extra money to get it through the current budget crisis.

But the House supported Revenue and Taxation Committee Chairman Steve Antone, R-Rupert, on his motion to override the Printing Committee to get the bill printed.

The sales-tax bill, introduced last week to the Revenue and Taxation Committee by Sen. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow, is expected to be fiercely attacked when it returns to the tax committee.

The override vote was the latest in a series of skirmishes between the full House and the Printing Committee. A fresh undominated panel which repeatedly has gone beyond its traditional duty of checking legislation for technical errors.

Printing Committee Chairman Ernest Hais, R-Burley, acknowledged there were no technical flaws in the bill, saying "There's nothing wrong with this bill except it raises taxes."

"In my estimation, there's not way there's going to be a 1 percent sales tax put on this year," Hais said in defending his committee.

Rep. Harold Reid, D-Craigmont, urged the lower chamber to revive the bill, noting "we may be here another 30 or 40 days and before we leave there may be a need for this bill."

"We have restrained ourselves on a lot of issues," said Rep. Michael Strasser, R-Nampa, a Printing Committee members who has led earlier, unsuccessful attempts to kill bills in the committee. "It gets hard to print a bill you just can't stand."

Antone said the Printing Committee was not supposed to act as a "screening" committee to judge the merits of a bill.

1% amendment package goes to House floor

BOISE (UPI) — The House Revenue and Taxation Committee quickly referred to the House floor today a replacement package of amendments to Idaho's 1 percent property tax law.

The committee's original bill was pulled off the floor Monday after some senators and members of the House committee applied pressure, objecting to a provision allowing a taxing district to permanently override the tax restriction.

Their amendment was included in a new bill and the measure was sent to the floor, where it probably will come up for a final House vote Wednesday.

The amended package would require a taxing district which secured a two-thirds approval from the voters to exceed the 1 percent limit for a second election within five years to retain the override. The first-granted permanent override power after initial two-thirds approval.

The main features of the measure would allow taxing districts this year to increase their budgets 5 percent above last year's budget and would abolish the controversial 2 percent cap on yearly valuation of property.

Church lotteries, bingo bill bounced by Idaho Senate

BOISE (UPI) — Organizations will have to keep one eye out for how-if they plan to continue playing bingo or conduct other lotteries to raise money for charity.

By a 10-24 vote, the Idaho Senate refused Tuesday to approve a constitutional amendment to allow religious or charitable organizations to hold lotteries. A two-thirds majority was necessary.

Immediately after defeating the lottery proposal, the senators voted 34-0 on a resolution to bring the Idaho Constitution into line on the voting age. The constitutional amendment would lower the voting age from 21 to 18, although 18-year-olds have been voting for several years.

Arguments by Sen. Ron J. Betsisbacher, D-Grangeville, floor sponsor of the lottery proposal, failed to sway those who feared that the constitutional change would open the door to future gambling in Idaho.

Betsisbacher said charitable lotteries already were commonplace in Idaho and all his resolution sought was a vote of the people whether they favored such charitable lotteries such as church bingo.

"It's for a benevolent purpose and doesn't open the door to gambling," he said.

"We can go to the track and bet on the ponies, and we can't go to church and play bingo," Betsisbacher said. "That's very strange."

But Assistant Majority Leader J. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, countered it by "opening the door further down the road for gambling. If we take it out of the constitution and put it into the hands of the Legislature, it will open the door to gambling."

Sen. Is Merrill, D-Blackfoot, said "It'll be you a dollar you'll have a church going if we get this kind of legislation—and you'll see how much gambling we have."

Sen. William Moore, R-Hayden Lake, said he knew of a church with a one-man pastor, his house as his church and his land is not taxable.

"I'll also bet a dollar he'd have bingo the night after this passed," Moore said.

Senate Majority Leader James Risch, R-Boise, defended the resolution. He said he has opposed such legislation, but "this resolution is drawn just as tightly as it can and still permit" the charitable lotteries.

Risch said it would "not open the door for the gambler to get his foot in the door."

Quoting the late President Harry S. Truman on gambling in Nevada, Sen. Chic Bilyeu, D-Pocatello, said: "Ole black eye in the nation is enough."

Sen. Leon Swenson, R-Nampa, sponsored the voting age resolution, saying "it brings the constitution into conformity with state law and rulings 'that have come down to us.'"

Regional DHW director lists job cuts

By BONNIE BAIRD-JONES Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Region 5 Department of Health and Welfare Director Kent Henderson Tuesday reported a list of Magic Valley administrative employees who may lose their jobs.

Henderson's list begins with his own name and includes managers of various DHW divisions at the Twin Falls regional office, along with clerical workers to be eliminated through current legislative proposals.

Henderson said the estimate is that about $200,000 to $250,000 would be shaved from the regional budget by eliminating those jobs. He said additional positions will be impacted due to the funding level included in legislative proposals. He said the regional estimate is that a total of about 30 jobs will be eliminated under the Joint Finance and Appropriation Committee recommendations.

He said the state administrator would have two alternatives. He could pull the field service officers into the central office for business administrative duties, or he could take the field staff officers from the regions and have them handle business matters in the regional offices.

He said the administrative officials are all looking for new jobs adding the negative atmosphere "is bad." Many more well trained people may be leaving their jobs because of this, he said.

Others who would be out of work if the legislative proposals become law include regional managers, Judy Brooks, health programs; Phyllis Grover, community rehabilitation; Anne McNevin, financial and social services; and Robert C. Wright, administrative services.

Others are Pat Madarieta, administrative assistant; Anita Henna or Patricia Wight, administrative secretary; Gayle Hacking, account clerk; Joan Bronson, personnel technician; Robert Geisler, maintenance craftsman senior; Deltee Capps, principal clerk; Connie Butler, secretary; Joyce Baldwin, telephone operator; Joann Roberts, senior drug and alcohol counselor; Gayle Parish, drug and alcohol counselor; Sarah E. Zimmer, drug and alcohol rehabilitation supervisor. Also cut would be two of five secretarial slots held by Jeanette Wright, Mary L. Cupp, Shirley J. Price, Murlene Pruett and Carla Smith.

Biennial legislature referendum dies in House

BOISE (UPI) — A proposal to give the voters a chance to decide whether the Idaho Legislature should meet biennially instead of every year died today in the House.

The lower chamber voted 30-31 in favor of Albion Republican Rep. Ward Chaburn's proposal, but it fell nine votes short of the two-thirds ballot necessary to approve a constitutional amendment.

If the joint resolution had passed the House and Senate, the voters would have had the opportunity in 1982 to either retain the current system of annual meetings or return the Legislature to biennial sessions.

Chaburn said he had estimated that the state could save $1.5 million every two years in legislative operating costs and $620,000 in time and expenses of state officials who must attend legislative meetings for three or four months a year.

"There would be an additional, unknown amount saved by citizens 'who must come here to defend themselves or support legislation,'" he said.

Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, said she was a new supporter of the measure. She said she was disturbed by the "same bills being put before us over and over and over."

"We should let the people decide whether they want us to be in session every year," he said.

Miss McDermott noted that the constitutional change might affect the composition of the Legislature, since more businessmen would be able to serve.

Chaburn said nine other states now operated with biennial sessions and "they seem to be doing their jobs."

He also told the House that if the constitutional proposal was approved, he then would introduce a measure to allow for the election of legislators every four years instead of every two.

Rep. Gordon Hollifield, R-Jerome, said he opposed biennial sessions because, "In this day and age I think it's important to provide an open link to the people of the state of Idaho."

The House still might consider a bill to limit every other legislative session to budget matters. That bill was held in the State Affairs Committee when the panel decided to run Chaburn's proposal first.

House passes protection for mine rescue workers

BOISE (UPI) — The House passed a bill Tuesday protecting mine rescue workers from lawsuits such as some of the court actions that were filed in the wake of the 1972 Sunshine Mine disaster in which 93 persons died.

"Some of these lawsuits are still in the court system," said Democrat Rep. Louis Horvath, who backed fellow Pinehurst Rep. William Lytle, a Republican, in sponsoring the bill.

The vote sending the measure to the Senate was 54-15.

"I have faith in the court system, but it does drag things out," Horvath said in reference to the various lawsuits filed due to the Sunshine catastrophe and its aftermath.

Lytle, in opening debate, said mine rescue teams deserved special protection from lawsuits.

Rep. Paul C. Keeton, D-Lewiston, protested the bill, however, saying mining companies and unions who have mine rescue teams would enjoy "complete immunity."

"They could be guilty of gross negligence and not be held accountable," Keeton said. Mine rescuers "could do anything, no matter how careless, and be exempt from any kind of court action."

He rapped the House for considering a measure that would disregard the discretion of the court system.

Rep. Joseph Walker, R-Moscow, said the bill "excuses them (mine rescue workers) from the reasonable and prudent standard."

Rep. Gary Montgomery, R-Boise, said mine rescue teams worked in unique situations and "they're entitled to a special waiver of liability."

He also argued that the bill would not protect mine rescue workers from negligence lawsuits if it was determined they did not act "in good faith."

"These mine rescue teams are very important to the mines, and they're mandated by federal law," Horvath said.

Workfare bill OK'd by panel

BOISE (UPI) — A Senate-passed "workfare" bill received unanimous approval Tuesday in the House Health and Welfare Committee and was forwarded to the House floor.

The bill, proposed by the Idaho Health and Welfare Department, would require the agency to mandate that certain recipients of state Aid to Dependent Children funds must do public service work with state or local governments or nonprofit groups as a condition of continuing to receive assistance.

In other legislative action:

- A measure permitting the Ste. Chapelle Winery to open retail outlets in Idaho gained approval 35-31 Tuesday in the House.
- The bill now goes to the Senate.
- House members approved 50-20 and sent to the Senate a joint resolution that would amend the Idaho Constitution to "modernize" state regulation of corporations.
- Rep. Gary Montgomery, R-Boise, said the measure would put the control of corporations under statutes rather than the constitution.
- Rep. Peggy Bunting, R-Boise, owner of a small corporation, protested that the measure would allow easy changes in corporate laws by the Legislature.
- A memorial urging the federal government to get approval from the Legislature and governor before setting aside public land for a single use was ushered to the House floor today.

- If the Senate and governor approve a bill passed 68-1 by the House Tuesday, Idaho lawmen will be able to chase suspected felons outside their city or county without fear of losing insurance coverage.
- Rep. Gary Paxman, R-Idaho Falls, floor sponsor, said the measure would ensure law officers would have the same immunities and benefits they possessed within their normal area of jurisdiction.
- Voting 66-0, the Idaho House approved legislation Tuesday imposing mandatory minimum enhanced prison sentences on persons convicted of "certain violent" or sex-related crimes.
- The first of two major sections of the bill would require a court to lock an extra sentence of five to 20 years on a conviction and regular prison sentence for a person convicted of inflicting or intending to inflict great bodily injury during commission of a felony.
- Under the second section of the measure, mandatory minimum enhanced prison sentences of three to 15 years would be imposed for those convicted a second time of kidnapping, extortion, rape, crimes against nature, lewd and lascivious conduct, and some other crimes.

A significant day for MVMH

Today's a day for celebration for Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

An official ceremony at 4 p.m. breaks ground for the hospital's $27 million renovation and expansion program. Although preliminary work already is under way, the hospital chose to mark the occasion, and rightfully so.

This is a major leap forward in the quality of health care for citizens of the Magic Valley. It is expensive, yes, but it will never be cheaper to build and renovate than it is today.

The payoff will come with the completion of a modern facility, geared to meet the growing health care needs for years to come.

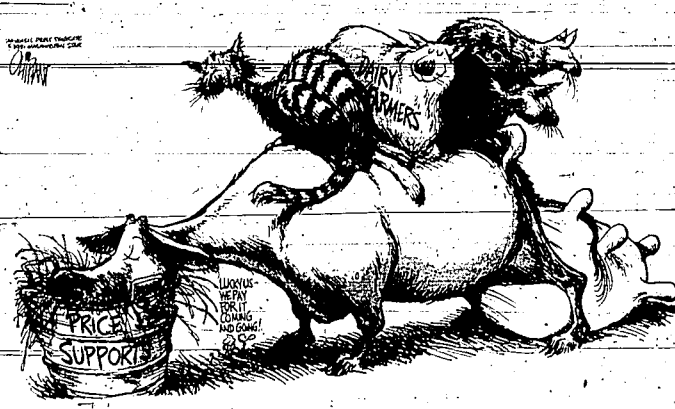

A great deal of credit is due to the hospital's board of trustees. There were times, we know, when it seemed the project would never get off the ground. Only through determined efforts, tedious hours of study and decision-making, and unselfish devotion to the task at hand has the project come to this point.

Start of the project this year was one of the county's goals we listed in an editorial. All the paper work and planning culminated last month when bonding was finalized. Thanks to an improved bond rating, the hospital got a break on the interest rate resulting in a savings on the annual debt service.

When all the dust has cleared, Twin Falls and the Magic Valley will have a new wing encompassing 84,000 square feet and modernized facilities.

Today should be remembered as a significant date for the community. We offer our congratulations to the board members and to the Twin Falls County Commissioners for a job well done.

Rebuild party

Editor, Times-News:

As a lifelong Democrat I am naturally interested in watching the party rebuild.

We would have a good Jeffersonian political party if we could get the left-wing extremists out of it. They spend too much time harping about those people who have only become fed up with demoralization in our country; obscuring logic; promoting phony selectivity in human rights; soft-pedaling the fact that big government deficit spending is the prime cause of double-digit inflation; engaging in busy-body criticism of a good economic recovery plan, when such criticism could almost be said to center around the idea of who should be up to the public under.

Rebuts article

Editor, Times-News:

This is a statement of fact on the article in the Times-News of this a.m. The fact is that your reporter did not gather the facts to cover the article of gas saving devices to assist or inform the public, but for sensationalism.

I take great issue with the things that are in the article about MIX-1-GO, DEE-ZOL, and ATOM-IX are manufactured by Bell Laboratories of Orlando, Fla. These products have been used by large fleets and commercial operations since 1935. It is inconceivable to me that the reporter is implying these products as being a rip-off or sugar pill. If so, then how could these products have withstood the test of time? They've been in use for 40 years.

Also, I am not in the habit of using something just for the sake of using it; if it doesn't work, out it goes. The companies I work for are in the business, not only to make a living, but to show a profit, as well. I feel that the fuel additives we are using have a lot to do with these profits. We keep records on all the trucks and they are open to anyone that wants to see them. MIX-1-GO, DEE-ZOL and ATOM-IX are the best maintenance tools on the market today.

To my personal knowledge, the EPA has not tested MIX-1-GO, DEE-ZOL or ATOM-IX. The most critical testing in the world is public use and these products have been used for 40 years.

The statement that MIX-1-GO is nothing but paint thinner is false information. If you got putting paint thinner in your gas tank, you'll not only have a hot car, but a pile of junk as paint thinner is very combustible. Have you ever tried to put a match to paint thinner? It burns wildly. Put a match in MIX-1-GO and the match will go out.

The Hoags are but one of about 120 people who are marketing these products in the Magic Valley area. There are I would say about 300 people using these products around this area.

As for controlling driver habits - I cannot control the driving habits of you or anyone else including the men and women working for our companies and yet the records show a better than 25 percent savings per year in maintenance costs. Our drivers and workers don't even know what they are using, all they are interested in is that the vehicles run so they can get their work done. I am the one who must account for the expenses, so don't imply that I control driver habits. This is like trying to control

Editor, Times-News:

When is a murderer not a murderer? When the victim is black? Is he not just as dead, whether he is black or white?

The two young men in Salt Lake don't have their civil rights violated. They were murdered, plain and simple. No technically can be used to diminish the killers' guilt.

I am tired of reading about known murderers being saved by a technically in our laws.

A mad dog is killed to protect people from it and a murderer is no more than a "mad dog," and needs to be eliminated from society.

I do not appreciate my tax money being spent on keeping "mad dogs" for the rest of their lives.

If a person takes a life they should also have to pay with their own life.

Much better that we spend that money on a bright young person who could be credited to his community and country.

Our government has tried, as no other country in the world has tried, to rehabilitate the criminals and look at our record.

And it is getting worse by the day. It is time we turn more than our country's economy around. It is time we take a good hard look at our criminal code.

The victims are being forgotten, and so are their families. We do a great injustice to them by not bringing a swift and just verdict against any known murderer.

They cry for help, but who will answer?

Hail to the victors in the valley

If Glens Ferry basketball fans haven't come back to earth yet, let them linger on.

After all, a state high school basketball championship doesn't happen every year; to be precise, Coach Gordon Brown waited 31 seasons and 19 trips to the state tourney before he won all the marbles.

Brown, his assistants and all the members of the team deserve a standing ovation from Magic Valley basketball fans. It takes a great deal of spirit, confidence, and one gutsy performance after another to go all the way to the top and be crowned champions.

Glens Ferry can now boast "we're the best in A-3 in Idaho" and no one can deny them bragging rights for the next year. They are the best - bar none.

Other accolades go to all the Magic Valley basketball teams who journeyed into state tournament competition. Of those already concluded, Minico finished the highest, winning the consolation title in A-1. Yet to come are the finals in A-4, to be played here this weekend. Hagerman is still in the thick of that race.

On the college scene, College of Southern Idaho supporters are anticipating the Golden Eagles' bi-regional tournament appearance this weekend in Arizona. Winning there would mean a trip to the national tournament in Hutchinson, Kan., next week.

The match-up ought to be a dandy: CSI with its 28-5 record against Mesa and its 30-2 season mark. We'll put our money on the Golden Eagles - they've been there before and seem to be peaking at the right time.

And don't look now, but as basketballs continue to be bounced around the nation, spring sports have gotten under way. Where did the winter go?

Spending cut charade

BOISE - Recent revenue figures show that some of the budget cutting by the Republican legislative majority is not being done to keep spending within means. It is being done for other reasons.

Some of the Republicans don't want regulation to try and protect air quality in Idaho. Some don't care about what happens to retarded children if you reduce the number of attendants at the state schools and hospital.

What seemed a few weeks ago to be a sincere effort to keep spending down has become a charade. The Republican majority is playing games with the people of Idaho, and some of the important services the people pay taxes to provide.

Recent figures from the Tax Commission show that the $22 million revenue projection is too low. While it is necessary to find ways to save, it is not necessary to do what is being done to the retarded residents at the State School, to public television, to air quality, to higher education or to the public schools.

What happens if these cuts stick? Will money be saved in the form of lower taxes for the people of Idaho? No. The school appropriation approved by the House will mean property tax override elections in many districts. Property taxpayers will pay more. Students at the universities will pay more in fees. Some of the welfare cuts are likely to mean more spent by counties on welfare, from property tax money.

Idahoans are conservative. They expect tax dollars to be well used and waste to be minimized. That is not what is going on. The Republican majority is making cuts that don't need to be made, cuts that will hurt some people and deprive others of valuable services. Some of the cuts will push up taxes and fees.

Ironically, while the Republicans are talking about saving money, they have written a script in the House that will result in a $16 to $20 million tax increase for residential taxpayers in 1981. This would be the result of 1) not passing a homeowner exemption and 2) removing the 2 percent cap on increases in tax appraisals.

Add to that the effect of school property tax overrides.

If the legislature proceeds on the course it has established, the people of Idaho are going to get stuck with 1) greatly increased taxes on homes, and 2) losses of services for which state money is available.

The only winners will be the utilities and other non-residential property owners whose taxes will go down as a result of the $15 to $20 million tax shift to homes.

State budgets have been held down for the past two years, and some of the fat has been trimmed out, to allow $26 million to be diverted from the general fund for "property tax relief."

As it turns out, because of the Republican policy to support a continued tax shift to homes, almost none of the relief has led to residential taxpayers. The largest share has gone to utilities.

The absence of that $26 million and the recession are reasons state revenue is down. But the tax collection figures show it is not down nearly so much as the Republican majority is pretending.

The Republican majority and their leaders are in the process of taking a difficult situation and making it worse. Unless the course is changed, the result will be loss of services important to the people of Idaho, and a massive residential tax increase.

Royko wrong

Editor, Times-News:

I found the Mike Royko column of March 4 on the "Moral Majority's" "Rotted and rotting" offensive.

Child abuse is wrong, but Royko is wrong to link child abuse with a parent's responsibility to train a child in the way he should go. That training requires a balance of love and discipline; either is lacking, the child and our society suffer the results.

Sweden has already made it illegal for a parent to punish his child by any means. Will we be led by such articles as this to follow the same road of folly?

Take precaution

Editor, Times-News:

Too frequently we grab pen in hand when something bothers us a lot. Seldom do we take time to express gratitude publicly.

So it is with regret and pleasure I want to thank the sheriff's department for checking on our home when we were gone a lot in January and February.

If we would all ask their advice and take it, and cooperate with them, I wager fewer homes would be entered for them. That's where citizens must shoulder responsibility for their own misfortune.

Thanks, sheriff's office! Thanks.

Burger right, Bazelon wrong: Lock criminals up

WASHINGTON - The 225 million Americans who do not live or work in Washington have many advantages over those of us who toll in the nation's capital.

Among those advantages, not sufficiently appreciated, is that non-Washingtonians do not have to bear with David L. Bazelon. Count your blessings. O friends in the great beyond.

Bazelon is senior judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Now 71, he has served on the court for 150 years or since 1949, whichever seems longer. In any competition to name the most fatuously liberal jurist in America, Bazelon would run, win, place or show every time. The other day, speaking to an audience in San Diego, he outdid himself. His theme: Let us coddle our criminals, for the poor dead-darlings who rape, rob and murder are more to be pitied than censured.

It was so exaggerated a moment I will quote the gent. Judge Bazelon was responding in character to the major address delivered by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger before the American Bar Association in Houston last month. The chief's address has been widely reported: Burger outdid for a new war upon violent crimes in America. He asked for re-examination of liberal bail laws that tend to release dangerous suspects for weeks or months before trial. He called for swift trials and for swift, summary appeals limited to allegations of true miscarriage of justice. While acknowledging the importance of poverty and unemployment, in our appalling crime rates, Burger insisted that "we must not be misled by cliches and slogans that if we abolish poverty crime will also disappear."

It was a tough speech. I applauded every line of it. But the chief's address left Judge Bazelon distraught. How could Burger say such terrible things?

"The only humane approach," said Bazelon, is to attack the root causes of crime. We should concentrate, he said, upon "poverty, prejudice, poor housing, inadequate education, insufficient food and medical care, a bad family environment or no family at all."

"The real roots of crime," he said, "are associated with a totalization of suffering so hideous that, as a society, we cannot bear to look it in the face." Because of their brutal social and economic deprivation, criminals turn to crime "for economic survival, a sense of excitement and accomplishment, and an outlet for frustration, desperation and rage."

Bazelon had no use for the remedies urged by the chief Justice. The idea of incapacitating dangerous suspects through preventive detention struck him as especially abhorrent. This amounts only to a theory, that "essentially translates as: Lock the bastards up."

"Incapacitation must be recognized as an extraordinarily costly and risky policy," he said. "To meaningfully affect crime, it might require a garrison state."

Enough. Bazelon's speech rolled on and on. What in the world does Bazelon think city dwellers live in now? The greatest fear of the elderly is not a fear of poverty or inflation. It is a fear of crime. In parts of Washington, residents are afraid to walk two blocks by day to a grocery, or half a block by night to their cars. Every major city knows such zones of terror.

What is wrong, I would inquire, about "incapacitating" dangerous suspects with long records of criminal activity? Damn, right, I would "lock the bastards up." Certainly, the rights of an accused must be protected. Burger never suggested otherwise. But what about the rights of the victims? Each of us, in Jefferson's famous phrase, has a "right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" and governments are instituted among men to make those rights secure.

Burger was exactly right. In our own time governments have failed in this fundamental duty. For one reason or another (and for some of these causes the Supreme Court itself is responsible), our system of criminal justice has all but collapsed. Taking into account the whole number of violent crimes, few criminals are caught, fewer still are convicted, fewer still are put behind bars. Bazelon's heart bleeds for "the bastards." Mine doesn't. I've been mugged.

Terry Gibbs will give up her job in lounge at last

By United Press International

SUCCESSORY

Terry Gibbs may well be country music's success story of 1980. The singer—blind—since birth—bounced from obscurity to overnight fame last fall with her first record, "Somebody's Knocking." A solid hit, the tune is now racing up the pop music charts. Things are going so well, in fact, that Terri has finally given up the job she held in an Augusta, Ga., lounge for six years while waiting for her country career to fall in gear. Now she's looking for a place in Nashville.

DON'T BE DULL.

The science fiction writer has easy, says-Omnit magazine Executive Editor Ben Bova. "The science fiction writer," he says, opts for creativity over credibility. He one expects a science fiction writer to be right. The only thing the writer must avoid is being dull. "On the opposite side of the fence, "The pressures of society tempt the scientist to opt for credibility over creativity," Bova says. "The problem is to get a scientist to take a chance of being wrong in public. The penalties for being wrong can be severe."

FRIENDLY RIVALS

Actor Gene Hackman and race driver Farnell Jones may be tough competitors on the race track. But the two were found exchanging auto tips as preparations began for this Saturday's Toyota Pro-Celebrity race in Long Beach, Calif. Last year's race found Hackman winning the celebrity division, but just missing the overall prize when Jones passed him in the ninth of 10 laps to win by 3.25 seconds. Last fall, Hackman also won the celebrity division of the Toyota Pro-Celebrity race at Watkins Glen, N.Y.

LENNON'S LEGACY

CBS Records is funding a four-year scholarship at the Juilliard School of Music in memory of slain former Beatles star John Lennon. "We felt a need to establish this scholarship in memory of John Lennon, one of the greatest composers of our time," says Dick Asher, chief operating officer for the record company. The scholarship will be used to recognize talent and ability in musical composition. Lennon was shot to death outside his posh Manhattan apartment building on Dec. 8.

Dog shoots man in unusual accident with owner's gun

MONROE, Mich. (UPI)—It's rarely news when dog bites man. But when dog shoots man, that's another matter.

John Calbert, 41, of Monroe, told police he was shot Saturday by Jarvis, a 5-year-old German shepherd he has been training to attack and disarm invaders.

"I was outside training the dog," Calbert recalled from his hospital bed. "I came back in, cleaned and loaded the gun and threw it on a couch. My father said, 'Get it to the dog. The dog picked up the gun.'"

"He picked up the gun in a holster. The holster wasn't snapped and the gun fell out." When the .22-magnum revolver hit the floor, it discharged and a bullet struck Calbert in the leg.

Calbert was reported in fair condition Tuesday at Mercy Memorial Hospital.

Calbert, a heavy equipment operator, said he has been training Jarvis and another dog, Ivan, for about three years to use guns to protect his family against intruders.

"Even after this, Jarvis is my masterpiece, my pride and joy," said Calbert, who raised Jarvis from a puppy. "It wasn't his fault. I still love him like a brother."

Officer Joseph Lindsay of the Monroe Police Department said no charges would be filed in the incident.

"It'd be kind of hard to fingerprint him," Lindsay said.

Dog drives car over owner

MANASSAS, Va. (UPI)—The pet dog of a 65-year-old woman shifted gears in the family car and ran down his owner, dragging her to her death, police said Tuesday.

Prince William County police said Dora Louise Wagers died Monday in the driveway of her home.

Investigators said Mrs. Wagers left the small, black dog alone in her 1971 Oldsmobile, which was parked in her driveway with the motor running. The dog apparently hit the gear lever, shifting the transmission from park to a low forward gear, police said.

Mrs. Wagers attempted unsuccessfully to climb inside the car, but she stumbled.

George Wallace to remarry

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Former Alabama Gov. George Wallace, apparently spurning a reconciliation attempt by ex-wife Cornelia, will marry a 33-year-old divorcee, a Wallace aide said Tuesday.

Elvin Stanton, the ex-governor's spokesman, confirmed that Wallace, 61, is planning to marry Mrs. Lisa Taylor, 33, of Jasper, Ala. She and her sister performed as country and western singers during Wallace's 1968 presidential campaign.

Wallace was not available for immediate comment. The marriage would be the third for Wallace, who was paralyzed from the waist down by a 1972 assassination attempt during his last presidential race.

Salvador highlights Reagan, Trudeau talks

OTTAWA (UPI) — President Reagan and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau reached a basic agreement Tuesday in their first round of talks on issues facing the North American neighbors, including increased U.S. aid to El Salvador, a U.S. official said.

"We got along just fine," Reagan told reporters as he headed to a meeting on bilateral and, often touchy, relations with the Canadian leader.

The two-day visit to the Canadian capital was the first foreign trip for Reagan as president. It was also the first to Canada by an American president since 1972 and marked the first time Reagan and Trudeau had ever met.

On Wednesday he was scheduled to address a joint session of the Canadian House of Commons and Senate.

Loud chanting protesters interrupted the welcoming ceremony on Parliament Hill to voice their opposition to the American military advisers in El Salvador.

Trudeau, as late as last week, said the Reagan decision to send the advisers to the strife-torn Central American nation was a "mistake."

Trudeau and Reagan had a general "meeting of the minds" during a specific discussion of El Salvador, an official said. Both sides "recognize that a moderate government" in El Salvador deserves support because it is "caught between two extremes and represents the best opportunity for stability in the country."

There were, said the official, "broad areas of understanding" between Reagan and Trudeau. There were "no fundamental differences, no discord and no disagreement," he said.

Other items discussed included:

• Reagan's decision to separate the controversial East Coast fishing treaty from the Maritime Boundaries treaty — something Canadians are angry about.

• The future of the Alaskan gas pipeline.

• Acid rain in Canada caused by nearby U.S. industries.

• Energy policies with special regard to Canada's enhanced standing as a world oil supplier.

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau greets President Reagan on arrival in Ottawa

El Salvador military leader rejects U.S. combat troops

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Defense Minister Jose Guillermo Garcia said Tuesday under no circumstances will American troops join in combat against leftist guerrillas fighting the U.S.-backed Salvadoran junta.

At the same time, President Jose Napoleon Duarte said statements that the United States will become involved in another Vietnam-type war in El Salvador were nothing more than leftist propaganda.

"This notion is the work of the extreme left to try and generate among the American people an attitude against the support that the United States could give in behalf of democracy in El Salvador," Duarte told radio station WRHC in Miami.

"What they want is to isolate the government and the people in El Salvador and then make it easier for the Communists to seize power," Duarte said in a telephone interview.

President Reagan has authorized $35 million in armaments and 54 U.S. military advisers for El Salvador, charging that Soviet bloc nations are funneling guns to the Salvadoran leftists, chiefly through Cuba and Nicaragua.

That decision has met congressional criticism and Reagan, in Ottawa to meet Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, encountered a small group of protesters who chanted "U.S. imperialism get out of El Salvador."

Defense Minister Garcia told a news conference that the Salvadoran armed forces will fight the guerrillas "without the help or participation of anyone," including American combat troops.

"But this is a small country, with a small armed forces, with problems, errors and faults," he said. "We ask for the help of military and technical advisers, but never in the presence of combat."

Garcia also conceded the army does not have "total control" in northern and eastern El Salvador and said government offensives in the past two weeks in those regions were "purely military to push out the subversives."

Garcia said a government force has killed some 2,200 guerrillas this year while only 147 soldiers have been killed in the fighting.

He said journalists who tour battle zones seldom encounter the bodies of dead guerrillas because government troops burn the corpses for "sanitary reasons, but the army has sufficient witnesses to support its claims."

The fighting continued as government troops backed by U.S. jets attacked four leftist guerrilla strongholds, including two camps near key hydroelectric dams northeast of San Salvador, military sources said.

Breaking the 'Esmeralda' case Code cracker finally identified where rebels got weapons

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — His task sounded simple: find the source of weapons to El Salvador's leftist guerrillas. But for State Department code breaker Jon Glassman, it was the start of more than a month poring over captured rebel documents to identify the enigmatic "Esmeralda."

Washington and the ruling junta in El Salvador knew 700 tons of arms were channeled to the guerrillas from somewhere in the Communist world, but it was that source could be pinpointed, it would blow the secret network wide open.

Enter Glassman, 37, a foreign service officer with two years duty in Moscow and another two in Cuba behind him.

Studying captured guerrilla documents in Washington, he was struck by one word, "Esmeralda" — the apparent codename for the arms supplier.

The problem was, who or what was Esmeralda? A country, a person, or simply the Ecuadorian port of Esmeraldas?

In an interview with UPI, Glassman conceded he got little help from El Salvador's armed forces when he arrived in the Central American country January 16, in the middle of a guerrilla offensive.

They gave him a report written by the head of the Salvadoran Communist Party, Saifk Handal, captured in November and showing that arms from the communist bloc were promised.

"There was no more conclusive data," Glassman said of the report which detailed promises of machine guns, rocket-propelled grenades, molotovs and medicines from Bulgaria, Ethiopia, Vietnam, East Germany and Hungary.

Salvadoran authorities were more concerned with getting names of suspects from about 80 seized documents, but among them, Glassman found "the first loose thread" to Esmeralda: A letter written by Cayetano Carpio, chief of one of the four Salvadoran rebel groups, from "Lagos" — code for Nicaragua.

Carpio wrote a man "C. Mart" said "his boss in the Esmeralda management" invited rebel leaders to a Sept. 4 meeting to heal a rift between two guerrilla groups.

Another letter from Carpio, addressed to Manuel Pineiro, thanked him for helping heal the rift "last month."

Pineiro, "Red Beard," is head of the Cuban Communist Party's Americas Department and former chief of the G-2 intelligence service.

Glassman began to get suspicious. The State Department confirmed there was a man assigned to the Cuban Embassy in Nicaragua listing the "C. Mart" codename.

"C." stands for comrade and the "Mart" is part of his name, said Glassman, without revealing the full name.

Another captured report referred to a meeting of guerrilla commanders that discussed a visit to Managua for the first anniversary celebrations of the Sandinista revolution.

The report mentioned meetings with "comrades from Esmeraldas" listing "C.M." and "A.B.R.," "C. B.R." and "C. in F."

Another call to Washington, asking for the Cubans who attended the celebrations brought just the response he wanted.

"C.M." and "A.B.R." could be comrade Manuel Pineiro and Ramiro Abreu, Pineiro's deputy at the Americas Department. "C. B.R." was Miguel Bregueras, Cuban Ambassador in Panama and a long-time contact between Havana and the Sandinistas.

The "biggie," C. in F. was "Commander Fidel Castro," said Glassman. An immediate meeting with Salvadoran Junta President Jose Napoleon Duarte and Vice President Col. Jaime Abdul Gutierrez, brought Glassman 10 to 15 new documents including a report by a member of the Salvadoran Communist Party's political commission on a visit to Havana. That was the final piece of the jigsaw for Glassman.

The report mentioned three meetings with "Fid" and visits to the DOE for assessment of Joint M-Plan.

"I spent two years in Havana so I knew the DOE was in the Department of Energy. It was (Cuba's) Green Berets, the people who plan and carry out covert operations."

Canada's policy is reversal of intervention 50 years ago

NEW YORK (UPI) — Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's opposition to U.S. military aid to the government of El Salvador is a 180-degree reversal of Canada's policy toward that Central American country almost 50 years ago.

Canada was the only foreign country that landed troops in El Salvador to support the military government of Gen. Maximiliano Hernandez Martinez in its effort to put down a 1932 peasant rebellion.

At the request of Britain, Canada sent two destroyers — the Skeena and Vancouver — into the El Salvador port of Acajualta on Jan. 23, 1932, to give "moral support" to the ruling right-wing government at the time. The Canadian warships were joined by the U.S. cruiser Rochester and two U.S. destroyers and the British cruiser Dragon.

"At Britain's insistence, a platoon of Canadian troops with two Lewis guns was landed, according to British historian Alanlist White.

El Salvador's government, much like the junta today, said "no thank you" to the foreign troops, which were promptly sent back on ship without entering into combat.

The rebellion was set off by general poor economic conditions in El Salvador during the Great Depression. Before their arrival, the government was reluctant to send troops away from their garrisons for fear they would join the rebels.

After quelling the rebellion, the government executed 15,000-20,000 peasants in reprisals.

New strike hits Poland; troops ready

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — More than 200 workers staged a warning strike in Lodz Tuesday.

It paralyzed the industrialized province and shattered the labor peace sought by Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski and demanded by Moscow.

Hours later, Solidarity union leader Lech Walesa met with Jaruzelski for the first time in an attempt to defuse the renewed labor unrest sparked by alleged government reprisals against union activists and dissidents.

Solidarity sources said both men conferred together for three hours before being joined by aides, including Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski, who is in charge of labor relations and has met with Walesa twice before.

The meeting coincided with announcements in Moscow and Warsaw that Warsaw Pact maneuvers, viewed with concern by the West as a possible prelude to intervention in Poland, will be held during the second half of this month in Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union.

Tibet exiles hold protest of takeover

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — More than 1,000 Tibetans chanted anti-China slogans and stoned, cursed and threw eggs at the Chinese Embassy Tuesday to mark the 22nd anniversary of China's takeover of Tibet.

Riot police clubbed women who tried to break into the huge embassy compound to plant a saffron-colored Tibetan flag. Several demonstrators and Indian police were injured in the fighting.

"We are peace-loving people," said Gezin Wanzi, a Tibetan student. "Until China took over Tibet and killed 300,000 of our people who were believed in violence. Twenty-two years have passed and we will resort to violence again and again to keep her in our strangled country."

China declared the dissolution of the Tibetan government in March 1959. Hundreds of Tibetan men, women and children marched peacefully through New Delhi's spacious diplomatic enclave shouting "We want freedom" and "China get out of Tibet," picking up other supporters as they neared the embassy.

The crowd handed an embassy official a memorandum to Chinese Chairman Hu Guoqing in which they vowed to intensify their struggle against Chinese occupation.

Chinese suppression of demonstrations and freedom marches in Tibet in recent months "was a clear indication that they are not going to implement their much-publicized policy of liberalization," the memorandum said.

It accused the Chinese of committing cultural genocide and "bleeding Tibet white."

About 30,000 Tibetans fled their rugged homeland to Nepal and India, which border it to the south, when China decreed the dissolution of the government in 1953 and the Dalai Lama fled to India.

Most of the less than 6 million Tibetans who remained there still recognize the Dalai Lama as their temporal and spiritual leader.

In Dharamsala in India, where Tibet's Buddhist god-king lives, the Dalai Lama urged Tibetans to reconcile themselves with the Chinese and work for harmonious relations.

Philippine troops attack Moro rebels

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Navy gunboats and World War II fighter planes attacked a besieged southern Philippine island Tuesday in a government operation against Moslem rebels blamed for the massacre of 119 troops.

Military reports said at least 55 guerrillas of the Moro National Liberation Front had been killed in past several weeks on Pata, a tiny mountainous island 600 miles south of Manila.

An unspecified number of civilians were killed in the crossfire, but precise figures were not immediately available.

The massacre of the 119 on Feb. 12 was the worst government loss since the Moro front launched a war for Moslem self-rule in this predominantly Christian country eight years ago.

About 7,000 civilians were reported to be on the island and air force planes have been dropping leaflets urging them to leave in the face of the government drive against the rebels.

There was no firm word on whether an evacuation had taken place. Travelers from the island said government troops refused to allow boats to leave Pata.

Since the massacre of 113 soldiers and six officers on Pata, navy gunboats have been blockading the island to seal off rebel escape routes.

Civilian sources said the gunboats bombed the island Tuesday and T-33 fighter planes used against the Japanese in World War II flew carried out raids from the Joa airstrip near Pata.

The strike, the first major dispute since Feb. 19, came one week after the close of the 24th Communist Party Congress during which Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev warned "anarchy and chaos" in Poland would not be tolerated.

It shattered hopes for the 90-day cooling-off period Jaruzelski had announced for Feb. 12 to help Poland's economy recover its many setbacks. Although Solidarity never formally agreed to the strike-free period, the union faculty endorsed its goals.

The Lodz local sent a message to the premier just before the strike saying it did not want the protest to attract the prestige.

About 1,900 plants in Lodz — Poland's second largest city — and in rest of the province were affected by the strike, called to protest the firing of five Solidarity members at an Interior Ministry hospital on a police ban against union activity at the facility.

Local police agreed to reinstate the five dismissed hospital workers and the director of the hospital said military authorities had told him he could not allow Solidarity in the health center.

The local Solidarity branch has threatened a sit-in strike in 47 factories throughout the province Thursday if the issue is not settled.

USE YOUR MICROWAVE OVEN TO COOK

Beautifully...BROWNED MEAT & POULTRY

Ask any homemaker what appliance she'd most like for her kitchen...and if she doesn't own one already, chances are she'll be quick to say, "A microwave oven." These relatively new, speedy and efficient cookers are growing in popularity; it should not be a surprise that it's predicted few homes will be without a microwave oven by the end of the decade.

But after buying one of these kitchen marvels, all too many homemakers use them far less often than they had anticipated. Instead of capitalizing on the microwave oven's ability to cook foods quickly, the appliance is often used only for such tasks as boiling water, reheating casseroles, and defrosting meats.

Why don't more cooks use their microwave ovens for preparing roasts, chops, meatloaves and hamburgers? The answer is simple. An invariable complaint is that meat and poultry cooked in the microwave emerge gray, raw-looking, and altogether unappealing. After all, if the finished dish will be scorned by the family, it doesn't matter how quickly and easily the homemaker can cook it.

This need no longer be a problem, for now there is a way to produce beautifully browned meats and poultry in your microwave oven. Holland House Brands Company has developed Microwave Browning Sauce, available in three varieties for beef, pork, and chicken. A thin coating, brushed on meats or poultry prior to cooking, assures an attractive brown appearance that is virtually indistinguishable from that of meats and poultry cooked in conventional ovens. And the browning sauce helps seal in natural juices, resulting in a moister, more flavorful dish.

The microwave oven can finally be used for more than simple reheating chores. With Microwave Browning Sauces, you can cook an attractive pot roast that your family will love. Or you can fix a fancy meal for guests in a jiffy—golden-Rock-Cornish-hens-make-a-dish-you'll-be-proud-to-bring-to-the-table. Even quick-cooking-pork-chops-emerge-as-gloriously-brown-as-you-would-ever-wish.

Here are some further tips for cooking meats and poultry in your microwave oven:

Avoid excessive steps. For example, if you are making a bed of vegetables for a roast, cooking each vegetable separately in the microwave oven can be tedious and may require opening the door innumerable times to stir the foods. Instead sauté the vegetables on a conventional stove-top range, and use your microwave oven to quickly finish the whole dish. You'll achieve all the advantages of microwave cookery with far less bother. This tip also applies when making white sauces or gravies to accompany meats.

Do not salt meats before cooking in the microwave oven, for salt draws out the juices. Do, however, season with pepper and herbs of your choice.

Use round or oval, non-metallic cooking platters and pans. The corners of rectangular pans absorb more heat, thus resulting in overcooked parts of the meat.

Chicken pieces, chops, cutlets, and other small items should be rearranged in the baking dish midway through the cooking time. With larger pieces of meat, such as steaks, it is best to occasionally rotate the cooking container a quarter turn. Finally, thick pieces of meat, like roasts and whole chickens or turkeys, should be turned over two or three times during the cooking period.

To determine how long meat needs to cook, use the instruction manual that comes with your oven. A meat thermometer (inserted only when the meat is out of the oven) will help you gauge doneness. Two important considerations when timing your meat are: 1) the starting temperature—the colder it is, the longer it will take to cook; and 2) the quantity—six Cornish hens take longer than two.

Meats continue to cook after they come out of the microwave oven. Most meat dishes require 10 to 30 minutes of standing before they are ready to be served. Make use of this time to microwave potatoes or vegetables with the meat.

Evenly shaped, boneless roasts that are rolled and tied cook more evenly than bone-in roasts.

The microwave oven is useful for defrosting as well as cooking. The time will depend on how solidly frozen the meat is, as well as its size, shape, and thickness. If the meat is wrapped in plastic or paper (not foil), it may be defrosted in its wrapper.

Meat should be placed on a rack so it doesn't sit in cooking juices in the dish. Remove these drippings periodically to reduce spattering and shorten baking time.

Foil can be used sparingly to prevent overcooking the surface areas of roasts. It also protects the wings and legs of chicken or turkey.

RUMP ROAST WITH WINTER VEGETABLES

- 3 pounds boneless rump roast, rolled and tied
- 1/4 teaspoon onion powder
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/2 cup water
- Holland House Microwave Browning Sauce for Beef
- 2 cups rutabagas, peeled and cut in 1/2-inch chunks
- 2 carrots, cut in 1-inch pieces
- 12 small white onions, peeled
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Sprinkle meat all over with onion and garlic powder. Pour water in 3-quart microwave oven-proof dish; place meat in dish. Brush meat with browning sauce. Microwave on medium power 10 minutes; turn meat over, microwave 10 minutes. Cover edges that may be browning with thin strips of aluminum foil. Continue to microwave 20 minutes longer, turning dish and meat after first 10 minutes. Add vegetables; sprinkle with salt. Cover with plastic wrap, turning back 2 inches at one edge for vent. Microwave on medium power 10 minutes. Turn meat and stir vegetables. Recover vent; microwave on medium 10 minutes. Remove and let stand, covered, 10 minutes.

Yield: 8 servings.

STUFFED DOUBLE PORK CHOPS

- 1/3 cup water
- 1/4 cup seedless dark raisins
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 cup packaged stuffing mix
- 8 ribs pork chops (about 1-3/4 pounds) cut 1/2-inch thick
- Dried leaf sage
- Holland House Microwave Browning Sauce for Pork

Combine water, raisins and butter in an 8" x 10-inch microwave oven-proof baking dish. Microwave on medium power 1 minute. Remove. Place stuffing in small bowl; stir in raisin mixture. Place 4 pork chops in baking dish, arranging chops with bones in the center of the dish. Place 1/4 cup stuffing on each chop; top with remaining chops. Lightly sprinkle with sage. Brush with browning sauce. Cover dish with plastic wrap, turning back 2 inches at one edge for vent. Microwave on medium power 7 minutes. Turn dish. Microwave on medium 7 minutes longer. Remove dish from oven. Remove plastic wrap. Turn chops over and change positions, keeping meaty areas to edge and bones to center. Brush with browning sauce. Microwave on medium, uncovered, 7 minutes. Turn dish. Microwave on medium, uncovered, 7 minutes longer or until chops are done.

Yield: 4 servings.

GOLDEN HENS WITH HERB RICE

- 4 Rock Cornish hens (1 pound each)
- Salt
- 2 cups packaged pre-cooked rice
- 1-1/2 cups chicken broth
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, divided
- Holland House Microwave Browning Sauce for Chicken

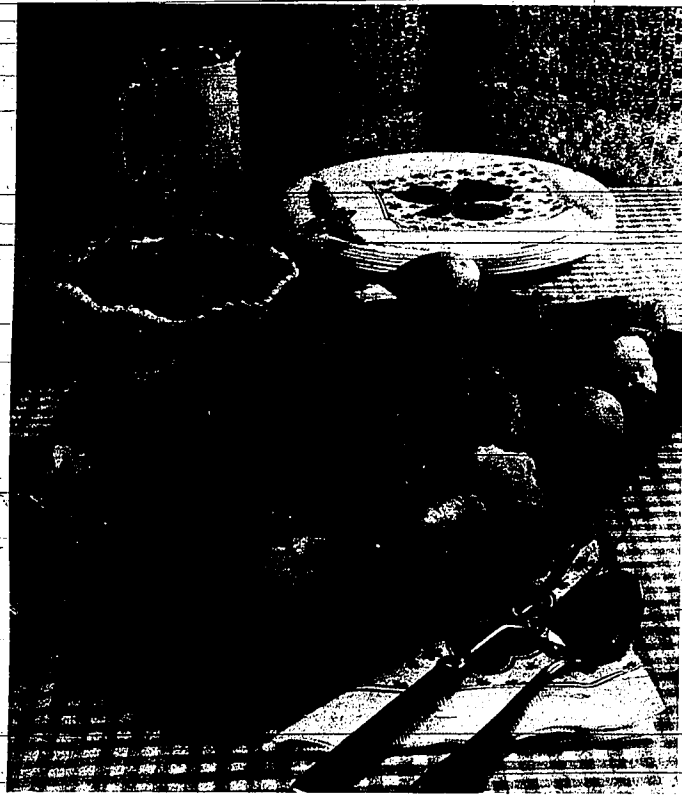

Remove giblets from hens; reserve giblets for another use. Rinse hens; drain well and pat dry. Sprinkle cavities with salt. Tie the legs of each hen together loosely. Turn wings under. Cover legs with foil; set hens aside. Mix rice, broth, onion and 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning in an 8" x 10-inch microwave oven-proof baking dish. Place hens breast-side-down on rice mixture. Sprinkle with remaining 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning. Brush hens with browning sauce. Pierce skins with fork; cover with wax paper. Microwave on medium power 7 minutes. Turn hens breast-side-up; cover, microwave on medium power 7 minutes longer. Turn hens breast-side-down, reversing outside edges to inside; microwave, uncovered, on medium power 7 minutes. Turn hens breast-side-up, reversing outside edges to inside; microwave, uncovered, on medium power 7 minutes longer or until hens are done.

Yield: 4 servings.

Everyone can become Irish, with jam cake, Irish coffee

Lean pork chops, served with potatoes, carrots and turnips, make hearty dinner fare

Times-News Correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Homesick Irish immigrants to this country, about 200 years ago, forced the pleasures of celebrating one of their Saints' Days by feasting.

Since then, Saint Patrick's 17th day of March swings spring dining extraordinary.

Be Idaho-Irish. Dine elegantly on potatoes. That's pure Irish eating with a turnip or two and some meat thrown in and a dessert and beverage too. We're sure you'll find plenty of ways to slice the following.

PORK CHOPS AND VEGETABLES

6 lean pork chops, 3/4-inch thick
 1/2 cup milk or beer coating mix, commercial or homemade 9 whole carrots, pared
 6 whole new potatoes, washed
 6 or 7 medium-sized turnips, washed, pared and quartered margarine or butter
 salt and pepper

Preheat oven to 425° F. In plastic bag, put 1 envelope or 1/2 cup home-made coating mix. In small pan, pour milk or beer; add chops to moisten. Shake off excess moisture; shake chops individually in plastic bag with coating mix. In shallow baking pan on baking rack, arrange coated chops in single layer. Bake 40 minutes. While pork chops are baking, in a large pan with a small amount of salted water, bring potatoes, carrots and turnips to boil. Lower heat and continue cooking vegetables until tender. Remove turnips from pan; drain and mash. Season turnips with margarine or butter, salt and pepper. Drain potatoes and carrots; season with margarine or butter, salt and pepper. To serve, arrange pork chops in center of warmed serving platter. Surround chops with mounds of mashed turnips, potatoes and carrots. Garnish with sprigs of parsley if desired. Makes 6 servings.

BEATEN BERRY JAM CAKE

1 box yellow cake mix or use your favorite recipe
 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
 1/2 teaspoon butter-flavored extract
 1 1/2 cups thawed frozen berries (red raspberries, boysenberries, blackberries)
 1 1/2 cups sugar

Mix cake according to package directions, adding almond and butter flavorings to batter. Bake in three 8-inch round cake pans. Cool in saucepan, mash berries and bring to boil on high heat. Remove from heat; add sugar, stirring until completely dissolved. Return to heat; bring to boil again and cook, stirring, 1 minute. Cool slightly; pour into large mixing bowl; beat on high speed 5 minutes. When cool, spread between layers of cake. Sprinkle top generously with powdered sugar.

ICED IRISH COFFEE

1/2 cup Irish whiskey
 1 quart vanilla ice cream

In blender container, pour whiskey, coffee and ice cream. Blend on high speed until completely blended. Pour into glasses and serve. This may be made ahead; frozen, then blended again just before serving. Serve with jam cake or cookies for dessert.

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS: Pork and ground beef lead the way to good buys in the meat department. Take advantage to buy ahead for your first warm-weather barbecues, for those of you who feel summer's just around the corner.

Helping bring that spring feeling in are the arrays of fruit trees, garden supplies and hand tools found in most supermarkets by now. Seed selections are at their best — look for discounts on the marked price.

People of many backgrounds celebrate St. Patrick's Day

CLEVELAND, OHIO — Of all religious feast days observed by ethnic groups, the feast of St. Patrick, patron saint of the Irish, seems to be the one most universally celebrated by people of differing backgrounds.

While March 17 is often marked with parties and parades involving once-a-year Irishmen, the feast of St. Patrick is still a day of deep religious significance to millions of Irish Catholics throughout the world.

The true seriousness of the day to the Irish is reflected in the fact that the majority of our St. Patrick's Day cards have a religious, rather than humorous, theme," said Richard Connor, senior vice president for creative merchandising at the Cleveland-based American Greetings Corp.

Connor predicted industry sales of St. Patrick's Day cards this year will be about 20 million, with at least 60 percent of these bearing cute, traditional, sentimental or religious messages. He added the studies conducted over the years show that nearly 70 percent of all St. Patrick's Day cards are purchased by Irishmen.

"Some people send out more St. Patrick's Day cards than Christmas cards," he said.

The most popular St. Patrick's Day cards are those which express sentiment about the Irish homeland, the Blarney stone or the joys of being Irish. One greeting, written several years ago by an Irishman on "What It Is To Be Irish," concludes by saying "It's no sin not to be Irish, just a terrible, terrible shame."

The religious cards recount the exploits of St. Patrick, who was born in England and at age 18 was carried off by a band of Irish marauders. During his six-year bondage, he had religious visions which led him to escape.

Following his escape, St. Patrick took religious training and eventually was ordained a deacon of the church. In the fifth century he returned to Ireland to convert the Irish to Christianity.

Legend has it that he used the three-leaf shamrock to demonstrate the idea of the Trinity to the Irish.

Connor said other ethnic groups get in on the St. Patrick's celebration just for the fun of it and for many people the revelry is a way of celebrating the end of winter and coming of spring. It's a welcome break during the solemn period of Lent for Irish Catholics.

"Even the fairly recent upheavals in Northern Ireland have not diminished the celebration of St. Patrick's Day," he said.

Sen. McClure will address graduation

MOSCOW — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, will give the commencement address at the University of Idaho's 1981 Commencement Ceremony May 1.

McClure, who was elected to the Congress in 1966 and to the Senate in 1975, is chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee. He graduated from the university's College of Law in 1950 and was named to the UI Alumni Hall of Fame in 1974.

About 1,600 students are expected to receive diplomas at the graduation ceremony which will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the Kibbe-ASUI Activities Center. Efforts will be made to keep the normally lengthy ceremony as short as possible, officials said.

Also on commencement weekend, class reunions for the classes of 1931, 1936 and 1941 are scheduled. Graduates from these classes will have a number of social activities, and a commencement banquet for all students, parents, alumni and friends of the university is also planned by the Alumni Office.

Cheesecake is an old favorite among desserts

NEW YORK — Food products come and go with regularity, but there are a few which have withstood the test of time.

One of the oldest products in constant distribution is Philadelphia Brand cream cheese, sold under that label for over a century. For the occasion Kraft, Inc. hosted a special luncheon at the Palace Hotel to salute "Philly" cream cheese, a staple on refrigerator shelves all over the country.

Cream cheese is a native American product, invented in 1872 in upstate New York in response to a desire for a better, richer cheese made with cream.

In 1880, the "Philadelphia" brand name for the cheese came into being, reflecting the city's reputation at that time of high-quality food, superior dairy products, and leadership in general. Philadelphia Brand cream cheese has been produced ever since, continuing the tradition of great freshness and high quality.

"Strict standards of sanitation have always been carefully observed at every step in its production—in fact, advertising for the product in 1933 proudly stated, 'exceptionally pure for no hand ever touches it,' according to Keith Ridgway, president, Kraft Retail Food Group.

"Milk and cream purchased to make cream cheese must meet rigid high standards, and laboratory tests are used throughout the manufacturing process to insure consistently superior quality," he stated.

Cream cheese, however, was not always the widely accepted "staple" it is today. In the early years, cream cheese was as perishable as the fresh milk and sweet cream from which it was made. This meant that distribution was limited to areas which were easily accessible from the production site. It also prohibited selling the cream cheese in small-town food stores, since the product would spoil if it wasn't sold within a week.

Improvements in the manufacturing process and in packaging now mean that the shelf-life of cream cheese has been greatly extended without detriment to the fresh, delicate quality of the cheese.

Today, Philadelphia Brand cream cheese is packaged in a continuous operation as it is produced. The rigid box for the 8-oz. size, a relatively recent innovation, helps to protect the cheese during shipping and in the store.

The inventive cheesemaker who originally created cream cheese would be gratified to learn the myriad of ways his product is used today. It has always been a traditional "favorite" for spreading on bread, bagels and crackers, often in combination with jams and jellies. Over the years, cooks have found that it adds rich and creamy flavor to a variety of dishes, from savory to sweets. In fact, research shows that it is used almost as frequently for cooking as it is for spreading.

Everyone probably has a favorite dish made with cream cheese, but when it comes to desserts, one wins hands down: "Most people would vote cheesecake the most delectable of all creations made with cream cheese," but the subject is not without controversy," said Dorothy Holland, vice president, Consumer Affairs, Kraft, Inc.

Most consumers have strong preferences about cheesecake, whether they favor the creamy no-bake variety, or the more traditional baked cheesecake with a drier texture. Midwesterners tend to choose the creamy, chilled version, while in the Northeast, the "New York style" baked cheesecake is the favorite.

Restaurants such as the old Lindy's in New York have become legendary because of their cheesecake and the secret recipes for this dessert are often closely guarded.

Our Centennial Cheesecake—which we are sharing with you, is of the traditional baked variety," she noted.

Cheesecakes come in all sizes, shapes and varieties, but lemon has always been a favorite flavor of this dessert. Take a lemon cheesecake one step further with Lemon Cream Cheesecake, a two-layered creation from the Kraft Kitchens. A baked cheesecake forms the first layer, then a light, airy lemon chiffon topping forms the second. While the cheesecake cools, you can make the chiffon.

For a more traditional recipe, try Centennial Cheesecake, a basic cheesecake recipe with a host of variations. Top it with cherry pie filling and cookie cutouts, or shave chocolate over the top and sprinkle with nuts. Fresh or frozen blueberries in a Blueberry Glaze is another delicious variation.

- LEMON CREAM CHEESECAKE
- 1 cup graham cracker crumbs
 - 3 tablespoons sugar
 - 3 tablespoons margarine, melted
 - 2 8-oz. pkgs. Philadelphia Brand cream cheese
 - ¾ cup sugar
 - 2 teaspoons lemon juice
 - ¼ teaspoon vanilla
 - 2 eggs
 - ¾ cup sugar
 - ¾ cup cornstarch
 - 1 cup water
 - 2 eggs separated
 - 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 2 tablespoons margarine
 - 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
 - ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
- Combine crumbs, sugar and margarine; press on bottom of 9-inch springform pan. Bake at 325° for 10 minutes.
- Combine softened cream cheese, sugar, lemon juice and vanilla; mixing at medium speed on electric mixer until well blended. Add eggs one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Pour over crust. Bake at 325°, 50 minutes. Loosen cake from rim of pan.
- Combine ¼ cup sugar and cornstarch in saucpan; stir in water. Cook until clear and thickened, stirring constantly. Add small amount to slightly beaten egg yolks; mix well. Add to hot mixture, cook 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; stir in lemon juice, margarine and lemon rind. Cool. Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until fluffy. Gradually add remaining sugar, beating until stiff. Fold egg yolk mixture into whites. Gently spread over cheesecake. Chill until set. Remove rim of pan.

9-Lives Soft Moist, Kitties, the greatest soft moist in the can—not in a pouch—now offers your human 35¢ off.

What a deal! For her and for you. You see, Kitties, 9-Lives Soft Moist in the can lets your human pour a little or a lot. Depending on your appetite. That's something no premeasured pouch was ever made to do.

And because the 9-Lives can is resealable, what's inside is always fresh, moist and yummy. Can any foil pouch say that?

Next time your human goes to the store, make sure she takes this coupon.

This is Walter LeCoff for 9-Lives® Soft Moist. Saying goodbye—and good eating!

Bring luck of Irish with Pear Shamrock Rolls for breakfast

SEATTLE, Wash.—Join in a salute to St. Patrick early in the day by treating your family to Pear Shamrock Rolls. For a festive breakfast menu, add scrambled eggs or an omelet and crisp bacon strips.

Pureed canned Bartlett pears impart a delicate sweet flavor to Pear Shamrock Rolls. Cinnamon, rolled oats and raisins also flavor the rich yeast dough. After the dough has risen, it is shaped into balls to form shamrocks, then baked until delicately golden after rising a second time. If desired, the rolls may be prepared in advance and reheated at serving time.

Versatile canned Bartlett pears are a handy item to have on hand for planned or impromptu menus year-round. They are conveniently ready to use right from the can in salads, desserts, breads and meat accompaniments. Their subtle flavor and pleasing texture combine with almost any flavor, herb or spice for endless menu variety.

PEAR SHAMROCK ROLLS
 1 can (16 oz.) Bartlett pear halves or slices
 1 package active dry yeast
 1 cup milk
 1/2 cup sugar
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Now you know
 By United Press International

The average cow chews cud for seven hours a day.

1 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
 1/2 cup rolled oats
 4 1/2 to 5 cups flour, divided
 1/2 cup raisins (optional)

Thoroughly drain pears; reserve 1/2 cup syrup. Heat syrup to 110°-115° F.; dissolve yeast in syrup. Puree pears in blender or food processor. Combine milk, sugar, butter, salt and cinnamon; heat to melt butter. Cool to lukewarm. Add yeast mixture, pureed pears, oats and 1 1/2 cups flour. Beat until smooth. Stir in enough remaining flour to make soft dough. Knead until smooth and elastic (about 5 minutes); kneading in raisins. Place in greased bowl; turn greased side up. Cover; let rise about 1 1/2 hours or until doubled. Punch down. Form into balls about 1-inch in diameter. Place 3 balls in each of 24 greased muffin cups. Cover and let rise about 45 to 60 minutes or until doubled. Bake at 400° F. 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 24 rolls.

For a special breakfast treat, serve Pear Shamrock rolls in honor of the Irish saint

Try pollock salad sandwich

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Tired of the old tuna routine? How about a pollock salad sandwich? Or a pollock casserole? Maybe a pollock crepe or pollock Newburg would be more pleasing to your palate.

Ithaca residents are getting a chance to sink their teeth into a new canned fish product made of fully cooked pollock, developed by food scientists at the city's Cornell University. The new product was developed by the same researchers who earlier brought consumers minced cod, frozen minced fish and others.

"They're selling like mad," Prof. Robert Baker said of the new product. Baker is chairman of the poultry and avian science department of Cornell's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

Canned pollock is being test-marketed for 12 weeks in four local supermarkets, where 7-ounce cans sell for 69 cents each. The test started Jan. 19.

"We don't know whether it's the curiosity because of all the publicity or what, but unlike the other products, sales are tremendously high to the extent we may run out," Baker said.

About 1,200 cans were sold in the first week alone.

With the way sales in Ithaca are going, Baker said he sees "no reason" for a new product could not be on the market "in a year."

Baker said pollock is a saltwater fish abundant in the Atlantic Ocean and is caught primarily from Norfolk, Va., to Maine.

"Unfortunately, it doesn't enjoy a great deal of popularity among consumers as a fresh or frozen fish," Baker said. "It really hasn't been used in the past."

"One reason is that there's so much haddock and cod around that we've gotten used to those species. If you haven't grown up with it, it's hard to accept."

Another reason for consumer reluctance is pollock's small potential. Because the fish contains a compound known as trimethylamine, it develops an undesirable, strong, fishy smell sooner than other species.

When frozen, pollock becomes leathery as it produces formaldehyde, which reacts with proteins in the fish.

The pollock product developed at Cornell is steam-cooked and the bones and skin removed before canning. The heat of the canning process kills the bacteria responsible for the enzyme that creates the odor-causing compound.

"We found the public wouldn't accept it with skin," Baker added. The pollock is then recooked.

The result, Baker said, is a mild-flavored, ready-to-eat product which can be used in most recipes calling for tuna.

"It's very, very mild," Baker said. "If you—blindedfolded—people, some would even call it tuna. The smell is no worse than tuna or salmon."

"If consumers like the canned pollock, they most likely would accept other kinds of canned fish made of species that are not now used widely for human food."

Another reason consumers may accept it is price.

"Tuna makes up about 80 percent of the fish consumption in some areas," Baker said. "We have to start thinking about alternatives because of price."

Baker said the product contains little juice, compared with canned salmon, which is as much as 30 percent juice.

Canned pollock is 22 percent protein, he said, and its fat level is only 0.5 percent.

From initial and very preliminary consumer surveys, it appears pollock is preferred over tuna in chowder, crepes or Newburg.

"But when it comes to the old standbys — sandwiches and casseroles — consumers still say they prefer tuna."

Salad bar dangerous to waist

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Watching your waistline? Then, watch yourself at salad bars, says an extension food and nutrition specialist.

It's easy to forget how fast calories add up as you make your own salad, says Teresa Shaffer at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. For instance:

- Macaroni, bean and potato salads contain 120-180 calories per half-cup serving.
- Gelatin-type fruit salads, 120-180 calories per half-cup.
- Applesauce, fruit cocktail or canned fruits, about 50 calories per half-cup.
- Kidney or garbanzo beans, 120 calories per half-cup.
- A half-cup of cottage cheese contains only 120 calories, compared with 225 for the same amount of shredded cheddar or Swiss cheese; parmesan, however, has only about 20 calories per tablespoon.

The real clincher at the salad bar is the dressing," Ms. Shaffer emphasizes, "about 240 calories per 2-tablespoon scoop, whether it's Roquefort, Italian, Russian or Thousand Island." French dressing has only about 200 calories per scoop, she added, but mayonnaise about 300 calories.

CROUTONS, bacon bits and other toppings and one package of crackers each add another 40-60 calories, she said.

The good guy ingredients, she added include lettuce, 5-10 calories a cup, shredded cabbage, 15 calories a cup, 5 for six to eight cucumber or celery slices, five each for cherry tomatoes and green onions and 10 calories in each half cup of cauliflower buds, green pepper strips or raw sliced mushrooms, and about 15 calories in a half-cup of carrot slices or bean sprouts.

Transform chicken with Oriental sauce

SAN FRANCISCO For a lip-smacking dinner that's easy to fix, try Sweet and Pungent Chicken.

An Oriental-style sauce, full of juicy pineapple chunks, is spooned over crisply browned chicken. That's all there is to it! The sauce is a gently simmered blend of orange juice, soy sauce, vinegar and brown sugar, plus juice from the pineapple can.

Spicy chunks of pineapple make it special. They impart an unmistakably fruity flavor to the whole dish. Pineapple in its own juice is both sweet and tart. When combined with onions and green pepper the best of both flavors comes through.

Sweet and Pungent chicken reheats well. That's good to know if you're looking for a dish that saves time. Serve half one day and save the rest for a quick dinner a few days later.

SWEET AND PUNGENT CHICKEN
1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) Dole Chunk Pineapple in Juice
1 (3 lb.) frying chicken, cut up
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 onion, chopped

- 1 green-bell-pepper, seeded & chunked
- 1 clove garlic, pressed
- 1 can (8 oz.) water chestnuts
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 1/2 cup soy sauce
- 1/2 cup distilled white vinegar
- 1/2 cup packed brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon freshly-grated orange peel
- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon rosemary, crumbled
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch

Drain pineapple, reserving 1/4 cup juice. Brown chicken in oil. Remove chicken from skillet. Sauté onion, green pepper and garlic in pan drippings until onion is soft. Stir in 1/2 cup reserved pineapple juice, water chestnuts, orange juice, soy sauce, vinegar, sugar, orange peel, ginger and rosemary. Return chicken to skillet. Cover, simmer 15 minutes. Turn chicken; cover, simmer 15 minutes longer. Remove chicken to warmed serving plate. Combine about 1/4 cup pan juices with cornstarch. Stir to blend, pour back into skillet along with pineapple. Cook, uncovered 5 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

An Oriental-style sauce with pineapple chunks spooned over crisp chicken makes the difference.

Contest finds oldest carrot cake recipes

MINNEAPOLIS - Some ancestors of today's popular carrot cake are steamed pudding, a kind of fruit cake and a torte.

The earliest published carrot cake was in the 1929 first edition of "The 20th Century Bride's Cookbook," published for 23 editions by a Wichita, Kan. woman's club.

One version, popular for many decades, required two days to prepare.

"These were among the conclusions of a contest to determine the earliest published carrot cake recipe and the cake's family heritage award.

After judging nearly 900 recipes and sampling potential winners, the Pillsbury Company naturally found a way to make a quick, equally well-liked version of the winning recipe, using its new pudding-included carrot and spice cake mix. This contemporary recipe takes less than two hours, not two days, like the original to produce.

The winning recipes, both of the fruit-cake type, met the contest criteria of a spice cake containing grated or shredded carrots and chopped nuts and/or raisins.

Winners of 1978 were Joyce Allen, Wichita, Kan., for discovering the oldest published recipe, and Ethel Amster, Waco, Tex., for the heritage recipe award.

A particularly good-tasting cake and a narrative about the way this special dessert was handed down through four generations brought Amster the prize for the heritage recipe.

"We didn't have it but twice a year," she says of the carrot cake, which calls for white raisins soaked in an equal amount of brandy and includes a cup of black walnuts.

The cookbook cited by the largest number of entrants for the earliest published recipe was one from a 1930 cookbook put out by the Chicago Daily News, which ceased publication in 1978. Impressed by the number of people who have kept the cookbook for half a century, the sponsor gave an unannounced prize to Miss Pascal Selbetta, Sun City, Ariz., the first person to enter the carrot cake recipe from the cookbook.

- One branch of the family which traveled to America with immigrants families was a steamed, spiced carrot pudding, which used flour, very little shortening and no eggs.
- Another branch produced the contest winners' fruit cake version where raisins, grated carrots and spices are boiled with butter, sugar and water. This mixture cools for 12 hours or overnight. The next day flour, salt, leavening and nuts are added, and the cake is baked in a slow oven for up to 2 hours. This carrot cake was popular from the middle of the 19th century until the 1930s.
- The lemon-flavored butter cake which contains grated carrots but no nuts or raisins appeared first in the 1920s.
- An eggless, butterless carrot cake was popular during the Depression and World War II. Because carrot cake kept and traveled well, a number of entries in the heritage category of the contest mentioned that the cake was mailed to sons or husbands during that war.

Pillsbury has concluded from this contest that the current version of carrot and spice cake is a product of the late 1930s and '40s. The food company says it still doesn't know who first developed this recipe. But whereas those earlier versions caused food writers to be defensive ("You won't know there are carrots in this cake"), today's carrot and spice cake is a pronounced development of increased interest in wholesome desserts.

ETHEL AMSTER'S HERITAGE CARROT CAKE
(Directions adapted by Pillsbury Consumer Service)

- 1 cup white raisins
- 1 cup brandy
- 1 cup water
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 cups grated carrots
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 teaspoon cloves
- 1 cup chopped black walnuts
- 2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon salt

At least two days before serving, in a medium saucepan, soak raisins in brandy overnight at room temperature. The next day, add water, sugar, butter, carrots and spices. Bring mixture to a boil, stirring occasionally; simmer 10 minutes. Remove from heat; pour into large mixing bowl. Cover; let stand; room temperature 12 hours or overnight.

Next day heat oven to 275° F. Grease and flour 10-inch angel food tube pan or 12-cup fluted tube pan. Add walnuts, flour, baking powder, soda and salt to carrot mixture; mix thoroughly.

Pour into prepared pan. Bake for about 1 1/2 hours, or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool pan upright on wire rack for about 15 minutes; turn out serving plate. Cool completely before serving.

The cake is oven-baked the second day. Store tightly covered.

HERITAGE CARROT CAKE
1 package Pillsbury Plus Carrot 'n' Spice Cake Mix
3/4 cup water
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
1/4 cup oil
2 teaspoons brandy extract
3 eggs
1 cup golden raisins
1 cup finely chopped walnuts
Powdered sugar

Heat oven to 350° F. Grease and flour 12-cup fluted tube pan. In large bowl, blend cake mix, water, sour cream, oil, brandy extract and eggs until well combined. Stir in raisins at highest speed. Stir in raisins and walnuts. Pour into prepared pan. Bake at 350° F. for 45 to 55 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool upright in pan 25 minutes; layer to serving plate. Cool completely. Sift or sprinkle powdered sugar over top. 16 servings.

Where will the 'right to health care' lead?

The Nation's Health

COURSES BY NEWSPAPER

Editor's Note: This is the seventh in a series of 15 articles exploring "The Nation's Health." In this article, Daniel Callahan, director of the Hastings Center, discusses the problems involved in deciding who should get how much health care. This series, written for Courses by Newspaper, a program of University Extension, University of California, San Diego, was funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Nothing goes so unnoticed as good health. When we have it, we think about other things; our well-functioning body allows us to do so.

But when we are sick, our illness drives out all thought and pleasure, and we become unwilling but total victims of its alien and obtrusive presence. And when danger threatens, we can turn to a doctor for help.

Worse still, even a mild illness reminds us of our mortality. In the long run, our bodies will inevitably waste away and die. In the short run, however, we can try to take care of ourselves, and when danger threatens, we can turn to a doctor for help.

Modern medicine has many ingenious ways of relieving our pains, helping us to cope with our disabilities, and, on occasion, miraculously saving our lives. But medical care can cost a tremendous amount of money. Too many of us know families ruined by an expensive illness, all income and savings consumed.

An Expensive Necessity.

The power and the cost of medicine have led, in the past decade, to an increasing discussion of a "right to health care." One hundred years ago, the notion of such a right would have made little sense because medicine could do very little about sickness and disease. But today, good medical care can save lives, and that care thus becomes a necessity. An expensive necessity.

The idea of a "right to health care" stems from a simple perception: Necessary medical care should not be an item to be bought and sold on the open market, with the best care going only to those who can pay for it. Good health care is a "right," many would argue, because it can make the difference between life and death.

If we agree that there is a basic right to life — the most fundamental of all rights — then we must also recognize that good health is a necessary condition for achieving that right.

Moreover, it is contended, it is unfair and inequitable that our affluent country spends 20 percent of our total health care, and middle-class families can be ruined by an expensive illness.

These are strong arguments. In recent years, even groups that in the 1940s and 1950s feared "socialized medicine" are prepared to agree that we need greater equity in the delivery of health care.

Yet the language of "rights" is the best way of approaching the need for the equity?

Defining the Right

What does a "right to health care" mean? There are many possible answers. It could mean that all would have a right of equal access to available medical care, regardless of ability to pay. Unfortunately, many areas of the country, and parts of some large cities, have very poor services and facilities. Thus "equal access" would not necessarily mean equal medical care.

It could also mean that all people have a right to the best medical care. But, that principle would mean that a very elderly person, with only months to live, would have as much right to costly open-heart surgery as an infant. Would that be fair, and could we possibly bear such costs?

Or "right to health care" could mean that each person was guaranteed some minimal necessary level of health care. But what would that level be? Some people need only an occasional shot of penicillin to live, others may need a lifetime of complex treatment. We might well guarantee care to the former, but a guarantee to the latter could mean open-ended commitment to astronomical costs.

There is another problem in trying to determine what a necessary minimal level of health care might be: As medicine has expanded its scope to include mental health as well as physical health, the distinction between what people NEED for good health and what they DESIRE has become badly blurred.

People do not die from neurotic fears or from psychological depression. However, they can feel just as miserable as someone with a broken leg, and they can be even more crippled in their ability to lead a normal life.

But can we say such people NEED medical care, and that they have a right to that care? Perhaps so, with serious emotional disorders — I am certainly prepared to say that. But where do we draw the line? Mere life in our hectic society can induce anxiety or depression and can lead us to seek a physician or a psychiatrist for relief. Do we want to say that relief is a right as well?

Health vs. Other Rights

We thus run into many problems trying to define a "right to health care." We run into still more when we try to relate that right to other claimed rights, for instance, the "right" to housing, higher education, nutrition, transportation, cheap energy and fuel, and so on. It is hard to imagine that we have the resources to fulfill those rights while also guaranteeing a "right to health care."

Perhaps, however, we could simply declare that the right to health care is more important than all the rest. But, bad housing and bad nutrition can cause bad health. To promise health care to those who might not get sick in the first place if they could only live more decently would make little sense.

And while it might seem that people need decent medical care more than they need college education, there is a hitch there also: The more education one has had, the better one's health is likely to be, because more education usually means more income — and more income is closely associated with better health.

A Limited Right

I do not point out the various problems with the idea of a "right to health care" as a way of dismissing it. Instead, it should be noted that it is a difficult and complex idea, not easy to fulfill.

Even if we accept the idea of such a right, it will inevitably have to be a limited right. There is no way the government could afford to pay for all of the health benefits that people might both need and desire.

Decisions will have to be made about which groups in our society have a right to what. Should comparatively more of our resources go to the young rather than the elderly? To those faced with imminent death and in need of acute care, or to those whose lives are being ruined by a chronic, crippling illness? To research to cure disease, or to better care with available treatment?

Not one of those questions can easily be answered in the name of "rights." But not one of them can be avoided.

Nor will the problem of health care become easier as time goes on. The problem we now face, mainly those of chronic disease, will be costly to treat, resistant to quick cures, and increasingly prevalent as the proportion of the elderly in our society increases.

Whether one thinks it helpful to speak of rights or not, it is clear that we can more equitably develop and deliver health care, and no less clear that it is wrong that many hundreds of thousands in our society must live with the constant worry that, while medicine may save their physical life, it may do so by destroying their economic life. Death and illness are bad enough.

Next week: Dr. Edward F.X. Hughes, Director of Northwestern University's Center for Health Services and Policy Research, discusses why medical care costs so much.

Answers:

1. Necessary medical care should not be bought and sold on the open market.
2. Equal access to available care regardless of ability to pay, a right to the best care, a right to the minimal necessary level of care.
3. Medical care is not similarly available everywhere; moral and monetary costs of "best" care; difficulty in determining a minimal level of care.
4. The government cannot afford to pay for all of the health care that people need and desire.

Pocatello event set

TWIN FALLS — The format for the "Finalists in Concert" March 28 in Pocatello is announced by Mrs. Frank E. DeLuca, music scholar and chairman for the Idaho Federation of Music Clubs.

About 50 Magic Valley students, both musicians and dancers, will participate in the concert which will be held at 8 p.m. in Goranson Hall at Idaho State University.

Students who have placed first in piano, voice, organ, orchestral strings and classical guitar, orchestral winds and percussion are eligible to compete.

The winner will be awarded the "School of your choice" scholarship, given to a graduating high school senior who will be majoring in music.

While judges are making their decision, a show ballet will be performed. DeLuca said.

Atlanta Methodist pastor to address Burley group

BURLEY — Dr. Robert V. Ozment will speak at the Burley and Rupert Knife-and-Fork-Club dinner meeting at 7 p.m. March 21 at the Burley Inn.

The minister of the First Methodist Church in Atlanta, Ga., Dr. Ozment is an author and writes a column which appears in 35 daily newspapers throughout Georgia and Alabama.

The popular minister has always combined extra-curricular activities with his dedication to the ministry. At age 17 while a student he was the minister in charge of six rural churches in North Carolina.

While working on his doctorate of philosophy in the East he added to his knowledge by doing research on New York's famous Bowery on the rehabilitation of the alcoholic. His subject will be "laughter-is-the-best-medicine-and-a-lot-cheaper-than-an-operation."

Women intimidated by husbands' mail

By ERMA BOMBECK
© Field Enterprises, Inc.

There isn't a woman in the world who has not been intimidated by her husband's mail.

The division is obvious. I get the letters with windows, the part of coupons marked, "Occupant. Do not return to sender," and the mimeographed cards inviting me to an appliance sale by moonlight.

On the other hand, my husband gets 35 pounds of literature a month from the Franklin Mint addressing him as a "discerning collector," personal letters from Jacques Cousteau and Malcolm Forbes, and invitations to study the migratory journey of the Blue-Footed Booby birds.

Last week, I saw among his discards an envelope with his name on it and a typewritten message in the lower, left-hand corner: "Should you be punished for being born with a high IQ?"

Inside was a pitch I had never seen before. It was inviting me from a magazine to "experience first-hand the friction-and-exchange-of-exceptional-minds" on its pages. They pointed out it was definitely not a magazine for the mass market. Out of 200 million Americans, fewer than one million read it.

If that doesn't stop you from playing with your bubble gum, nothing will! "This ticks me off," I said to my husband. "I don't exactly have training wheels on my brain."

"Don't be so sensitive," he said. "It just means it's a magazine in which you won't find any ads for doubling your bust size in 30 days or your money back."

"What kinds of ads do they run?"

"Oh, white wine, Perrier, jeweled watches and possibly a reminder of a classic television show sponsored by an oil company."

"How do they know I'm not being punished for my high IQ?"

"Computers, probably. Throughout your contacts you've probably sent out a profile on yourself without realizing it."

Well, computers everywhere, pay attention! I'm going to make it easy for you. Put this in your data-programmer and stuff it.

I've never understood a single word Carl Sagan has ever said.

I laugh when William F. Buckley laughs... but I don't know why. Minnie Pearl is my role model.

I only bought a copy of the Saturday Review because Woody Allen was on the cover.

I have a poem in my billfold by Edgarrat. Guest.

I put catsup on escargots.

I thought the gold "G" on the back of shoes stood for Goodyear.

I do not consider John LeCarre the greatest writer of fiction today, but the person who writes the ads on how to double your bust size in 30 days or your money back!

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I notice that your column has a great deal to do with this sex business.

Tell people that sex is nature's bait for reproduction, and if you go for the bait, you get stuck with the freight.

Now, if they say the urge is too great to control, tell them that carnal concupiscence... or plain old-fashioned lust! — can be cooled by physical and mental exercise.

OK, Friedman, get back in the shallow water. (Remember me? I was the illegitimate at Riverside pool where you and your twin sister used to swim when you were kids in Sioux City, Iowa.)

— JIM FLANAGAN (STILL IN S I O U X C I T Y)

DEAR JIM: Of course I remember you. I never forget a good-looking Irishman! What happened to you? Did you study for the priesthood?

Dr. Lamb

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently I have had two painful attacks in my feet. The first was in the big toe, the second in the ankle.

My doctor ran blood tests and said I had too much uric acid. He gave me no reason for the cause and prescribed Indocin for one week and Zyliprim, which I take daily.

Several of my friends have told me I have gout. Could this be the case? If so, will I have it the rest of my life or is there a cure? I cannot put any weight on my affected foot.

Dear Reader — Your doctor knows that you have gout. The Indocin was prescribed for the acute attack and the Zyliprim to try to prevent your body from forming an excess of uric acid.

The old idea of gout was that it was "Cooling" the ardor won't work. Jim — The population must be controlled in more reliable ways. The flesh is often weaker than the mind is strong. Now, YOU get back in the shallow water, Flanagan. You're already in over your head!

— DEAR ABBY: My wedding is still four months off, but I am faced with a serious dilemma.

Two of my uncles (they are brothers) fought viciously 40 years ago, causing the younger brother to leave home. They have not set eyes on each other since; nor have they exchanged a single letter. For as long as I can remember, no one in the family has dared to mention the name of one brother to the other.

Every year, during the holidays, other family members constantly rehearse the whole situation, some siding with the older brother and some with the younger.

I see them both on a semi-regular basis and get along equally well with both of them.

Now the question is posed to me: "Which uncle are you going to invite to your wedding?"

As the time approaches for me to make that decision, everyone has a different solution. If you were in my place, Abby, what would you do?

— IN THE MIDDLE IN LEE, MASS.

DEAR IN: I would invite them both, and let each know the other was invited. If they don't want to see each other — that's their problem. Don't make it yours.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for four years. I love my husband and have much to be thankful for, including two darling children. Would you please help settle a dispute between my mother-in-law and me? I don't want our relationship to sour, and right now it is curdling a bit.

My in-laws recently moved, and they moved their used living room rug for $40. It's in very good condition and is worth much more. We were glad to get it because our little house has bare floors and we can't afford carpeting yet.

The problem is that my mother-in-law insists that the rug belongs in our living room, but I put it in our bedroom. I think it looks better there. Besides, I have to get up at night to feed the baby, and it's nice to have a warm rug under my feet.

Every time my mother-in-law comes over, she tells me she thinks I should move that rug into the living room. To avoid an argument, I say "Maybe I will, when I get around to it."

Abby, do you think I should move it to please her? My husband also prefers the rug in our bedroom, but he stays out of the discussion.

— COLD FEET

DEAR COLD FEET: You can be assertive without being offensive. Tell your mother-in-law you appreciate her suggestion, but you and your husband have decided to keep the rug in your bedroom. Period.

Gout caused by too much uric acid caused from eating too much of the wrong foods. The classic concept was of an overweight man with his painful foot on a stool with a leg of lamb in one hand and a glass of wine in the other. We know now that this is not the case. Most gout victims are born with a metabolic system that produces too much uric acid. That means you will have gout the rest of your life.

As explained more fully in The Health Letter No. 16-10, Gout, The Uric Acid Disease, which I am sending you, there are two approaches to the long-term management of gout — medicines to increase the elimination of excess uric acid through your kidneys and Zyliprim to decrease the formation of uric acid by your cells.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Diet's still important in the management of gout and the standard gout diet is included in the Health Letter, but it is no longer considered as important as it once was. In fact, if a person goes on a starvation diet or a crash diet to lose weight, he can mobilize too much uric acid and cause an acute attack of gout — even if he normally would never have gout. Gradual weight reduction is important as well as dietary measures to prevent complications of gout such as heart disease and kidney disease.

It sounds like you are on the right track with a program that should help you avoid the complications of gout in the future. Your case does point out that women can have acute attacks of gout as well as men but attacks are less common in women.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am 70 years old and planning on getting married soon. I'm worried about my sex life. My system is short on estrogen and the doctor is giving me hormones for it. This has relieved most of the soreness in my vagina but he said I'd have to stay on it for six months and would have to take some hormones for the rest of my life. My marriage plans will depend upon the recovery I make. What can I expect?

— Dear Reader — Your story suggests that you have changes in the vagina that commonly occur in older women who are deficient in estrogen. And the condition can usually be adequately treated with female hormones. Vaginal creams containing female hormones can be applied and often do wonders.

The small amount of estrogens in the vaginal creams has not been found to be related in any way to an increase in chances of getting cancer of the uterus or breast. Follow your doctor's advice and have a long happy married life.

Former Kimberly girl to perform in East

KIMBERLY — Kathleen A. Bondurant, flutist, will perform March 15 at 2:30 p.m. at the Carnegie-Reed Hall in New York City.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bondurant of Kimberly, the musician began the flute at the age of 10 in Twin Falls.

While attending Twin Falls High School, she performed with the Northwest Opera Company Orchestra, the Magic Valley Chamber Orchestra, the Magic Valley Symphony with whom she was a youth soloist after winning the Young Artist's Competition, the Twin Falls City Band, and the College of Spuethner Idaho Theater Orchestra.

Bondurant was awarded a music scholarship by the Idaho Federation of Music Clubs, was listed in "Who's Who in American High School" in 1976 and was a winner in the Idaho State University Symphony Youth Soloist Competition.

In 1978 she completed her Bachelor of Science Degree in flute performance at Ball State University and began her Master's Degree there before enrolling at New York University in February, 1979. She also performed with the Ball State University Orchestra and the Muncie Civic Theater Orchestra.

Bondurant completed her Master of Arts Degree in flute performance at New York University in 1980 and expects to earn her Doctorate in October 1981.

While in New York, she performed with the New York University Symphony Youth Soloist Competition.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE VANDERMEER

Chojnacky-VanderMeer

JEROME — Tina Alyce Chojnacky and George VanderMeer exchanged wedding vows Dec. 30.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Gilbert Meyers and Pastor Donald Niehaus at the First Baptist Church in Twin Falls. The bride is the daughter of Vincent Chojnacky of Jerome and Kay Chojnacky of Twin Falls. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Hans VanderMeer of Jerome.

The bride's gown was of French imported Alencon lace with pearls and sequins ornamenting the sweetheart neckline. It had full bishop sleeves, with Alencon lace and an embroidered cameo insert. Lace appliques enhanced the skirt and train. The cap and waist length veil were accented with Alencon lace seed pearls and sequins. Her bouquet was a cascade of yellow roses.

Maid of honor was Kristi Larsen of Boise. Bridesmaids were Mary Marshall Brown, Teresa Hargrave and Traele Scarrow, all of Jerome. Flower girl was Lisa Olsen, cousin of the bridegroom.

Dick VanderMeer, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsmen were George Kasbergen of Miraloma, Calif., Kevin Richens and Mike Tudor, both of Jerome.

Ushers were Brett Reid of Jerome and John Dikiewitz of Burli. The ringbearer was Chancy Lancaster of Kimberly. Candlelighters were Heather Chojnacky, niece of the bride, and Hans VanderMeer Jr., brother of the bridegroom. Theresa German of Buhl was soloist.

Carolyn, Ellen and Susan Chojnacky, all cousins of the bride, served cake at the reception and dance at the Turf Club. Punch was served by Linda Bell and Carol Orr. Gifts were handled by Lisa Royal, Helen VanderMeer and Theresa VanderMeer. Jennifer VanderMeer attended the guest book.

There was a short program by Ann Clocca and music was provided by Whiskey Jack.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner in their home south of Jerome.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Jerome High School and the bridegroom is now in the dairy business in Jerome. Following a trip to Orlando, Fla., the couple will reside north of Jerome.

Filer child is valley Easter Seal Poster child

MAGIC VALLEY — John Darnall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Darnall of Filer, has been chosen Magic Valley Easter Seal Poster Child.

John Darnall's shoulders look even now

He came to the Easter Seal Center in November 1980. He was two and a half years old and not talking. He was a high risk baby born pre-mature with a perinatal birth.

He wore the toe of his right shoe out from constant scraping along the ground. After four months of therapy his shoulders look even. He is walking using both legs with just a slight pulling on the right leg and is beginning to talk.

For 21 years the Magic Valley Easter Seal Center, which opened in 1960, has been promoting the idea that high risk babies should have immediate therapy to help prevent future problems. A high risk baby is any baby who was pre-mature, jaundiced, blue or required oxygen at birth.

Any baby who had troubles at birth could be considered a high risk baby, according to Merle Stoddard, center director. Parents of high risk babies are urged to call the Easter Seal Center.

Most 2-year-old children are putting two words together and are communicating. If a child is 2 and not talking he could have delayed speech. When he does start talking he could have articulation problems making it difficult to understand him.

If a child is 3-years-old and can't make himself understood he could become frustrated and develop behavior problems. If he goes to kindergarten talking "baby talk" children tease him. It is much better to correct speech problems before he goes to kindergarten, Stoddard said.

The Magic Valley Easter Seal Center has 50 to 55 speech and motor coordination students a week. They are conducting a hearing screening for 2 to 5 year olds. Several children with hearing problems have been discovered. If your child hasn't had his hearing screened, parents are urged to call the Easter Seal Center.

The Center has no funding, but minimal fees and donations. Their main fund raising campaign is now under way through Easter Sunday in Twin Falls. Since many of the children at the center cannot pay for the services it is imperative that the community helps support it, the center director said.

There will be volunteers out asking for donations, and selling advertisements on the telephone and patrons of the All Star Basketball game.

Eight civic minded bars in Twin Falls are having the fried-egg breakfast competition. The students from C.S.I. are having a "Do What You Feel For Easter Seal" program. It is a 12-hour marathon on March 28.

The All Star Basketball game will be March 16 in the Twin Falls High School gym. Radio stations will carry the boys game. The girls game starts at 6:30 p.m. and the boys at 8 p.m.

KMYT will carry the National Easter Seal Telethon in Boise from 9 p.m. March 28 to 5 p.m. March 29 with Blanca Santos as co-host.

20 nurse assistants graduate

TWIN FALLS — Twenty persons were graduated from the Certified Nursing Assistant Class at ceremonies conducted at North's Chuck Wagon.

The class is operated by Skyview-Hazled Nursing homes through the College of Southern Idaho's Vocational Department.

Graduates include: Lisa Selsaw, Jonna Brandenbourg, Willetta Brandt, Esther Ellifrits, Jan Gordon, Lorna Griggs, Teresa Hackett, Tina Harman, Bonnie Harris, Debbie Ivy, Beth Krellow, El Ray Neld, Angie Rodriguez, Linda Baker, Frances Blimberg, Vickie Flinn, Donna Lee, Luana Gayle Purdy, Rebecca Tucker and Virginia Wang.

Instructors were Marjorie Ann Kreamer, R.N. and Ollima Armstrong, R.N. B.S. Twelve perfect attendance awards were presented.

Valedictorian for the class was Willetta Brandt. The four salutatorians were Jan Gordon, Teresa Hackett, Lorna Griggs and Jonna Brandenbourg. Merit awards were given to Luana Gayle Purdy and Linda Baker.

Richard Drake, administrator of Skyview-Hazled, encouraged the graduates to further their education in the nursing professions.

EVERYTHING FOR THE HOME

Remember St. Patrick's with Irish Lamb Stew, spud muffins

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Celebrate St. Patrick's Day with a menu straight from "white-washed" farm cottages dotting the Emerald Isle.

This flavorful Irish Lamb Stew, developed in the R.F. French Co. Stee Kitchens in Rochester, N.Y., takes advantage of the increased availability of lamb and resulting lower prices.

Potatoes, carrots, and parsnips, traditional Irish root vegetables, teamed up with pearled barley, make a dish which is definitely Old Irish in character. On the other hand, an envelope of au jus gravy mix used to thicken the stew and to add a hearty flavor, reflects modern day America and guarantees delicious results.

Carry out the holiday theme with a tasty hot bread with an aroma that will bring the Leprechauns out of hiding. Homemade Shamrock Potato Muffins are fun to make and serve.

And it's so easy to add all the flavor of an old-fashioned potato dough by simply stirring instant potato granules into the flour and yeast mixture.

After rolling out the dough, cut around a cardboard pattern or use a cookie cutter to make shamrock shapes (or just plain circles). Just as for English muffins, let the dough rise, then bake in an electric skillet or on a griddle.

These homemade yeast muffins, whether in shamrock shapes or circles, are equally good hot from the griddle or split and toasted for breakfast the next morning. So remember to prepare them for a special taste treat any time of year.

For an authentic Irish menu, serve the stew and muffins with Bibb or leaf lettuce salad vinaigrette, hot tea, and pudding or apple cobbler for dessert.

IRISH LAMB STEW
 1½ pounds lamb stew meat, cut in 1-inch cubes
 1 tablespoon oil
 3 cups water
 1 envelope (¾-oz.) au jus gravy mix
 2 tablespoons pearled barley
 1 cup sliced leeks or onions

4 medium-size carrots, cut in 1½-inch pieces
 2 parsnips, cut in 1½-inch pieces
 4 medium-size potatoes, cut in ¾-inch cubes
 2 parsley stalks

In stew pot, brown lamb in oil, pour off excess fat. Stir in water, gravy mix, and barley. Simmer, covered, 60 minutes or until meat is almost tender. Add leeks and carrots; simmer 15 minutes. Add parsnips and potatoes; simmer, covered, 40 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Sprinkle with parsley flakes. 4 to 5 servings.

SHAMROCK POTATO MUFFINS
 1 package active dry yeast
 1¼ cups warm water (105° to 115°F)
 ¾ cup (1½ of serving envelope) Idaho Mashed Potato granules
 1 teaspoon each salt and sugar
 ¼ cup oil or melted shortening
 3½ cups all-purpose flour
 3 tablespoons cornmeal

Dissolve yeast in warm water in large mixing bowl. Add potato granules, salt, sugar, oil and flour.

stir until smooth. Roll dough to ¼-inch thickness on floured surface; cut into 3-inch shamrock shapes or circles. Sprinkle 2 ungreased baking sheets with half the cornmeal. Place muffins on baking sheets and sprinkle with remaining cornmeal. Let rise in warm place about 1 hour until light. Cook muffins in ungreased electric skillet at 325°F for 5 to 7 minutes on each side or bake at 425° for 10 minutes without turning. Muffins are good split and toasted. Makes about 12 muffins.

* A dinner reminiscent of the Emerald Isle features Irish Lamb Stew and tasty hot bread.

Soup has comforted mankind since Esau sold his birthright

By NANCY NEWMAN
Chicago Sun-Times

For me, there is nothing so satisfying, soothing, comforting and taste-tempting than a bowl of fresh, homemade soup.

Soup, in its many and varied forms, is a favorite dish in every society. It was probably the first real cooked dish prepared in ancient times. (That "potage of lentils" Esau sold his birthright to his brother for was most likely lentil soup.)

Certainly soup is one of the easiest dishes to make, although it can be elaborate. All you need is water, some fresh greens, some meat bones, chicken bones or fish bones—some herbs and a few spices, all thrown in a pot, simmered for a while and you've got soup. Some soups are even simpler than that—water, a few seasonings and bread.

Just about everything you might want to know about soup can be found in "The International Soup Cookbook" by Kay Shaw, Watson (Stein and Day, $13.95). The author, who has 10 other cookbooks to her credit, is a food writer for the Washington Post, and her food articles have appeared in Gourmet, Family Circle, House and Garden and other magazines.

She certainly knows her soups, and she puts her knowledge in the book. You not only get recipes, but a thorough history of soups in general, and soups in particular as well.

Every chapter has a good introduction, often a history of the type of soup covered in it. These include clear soups, bisques and cream soups, chilled and jellied soups, chowders and gumbos, meat soups, poultry soups, seafood soups, vegetable soups and exotic soups. Although the author firmly believes that "homemade" is best, she also has a chapter giving recipes for quick-and-easy soups using canned and dehydrated soup bases and other manufactured ingredients.

To make a good soup, you need to know the basics, and the author is careful about giving them. This includes information on basic ingredients, not only spices, herbs and seasonings—but oven-bones, trimmings, vegetables and the like.

There also is information on some basic equipment, from the best stock pots to blenders, food processors, skimmers, ladles and spoons.

Her recipes are adaptations for U.S. kitchens from great soups from all over the world. The reader will find that making a Thai soup with chicken or a Moroccan lamb soup is as easy as making a classic chicken soup. Even if any of the ingredients are difficult to find, in the local food store or supermarket.

SPANISH QUARTER-OF-HOUR SOUP
1 1/2 cup diced ham or bacon (use smoked ham if possible)

1 to 2 tablespoons olive oil
1 medium-sized onion, peeled and chopped

2 cloves garlic, crushed (or to taste)

1 large tomato, peeled and chopped (or—use a small can of good tomatoes, drained and chopped)

1 teaspoon paprika
6 cups chicken broth (homemade is preferred, recipe follows)

2 1/2-cup or -ounce cans minced clams
1/2 cup raw long-grain rice

Salt, pepper, to taste

1 cup fresh or frozen peas
1 cup small- or medium-sized cooked fresh or canned shrimp

2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped

Combine bacon or ham, oil (use 2 tablespoons if ham, rather than bacon, is used); onion and garlic in a large kettle. Heat and saute for 5 minutes. Add tomato—and paprika. Saute 3 minutes. Pour in broth, add clams with liquid, bring to boil. Stir in rice. Season with salt and pepper. Lower heat and cook over medium heat, uncovered, about 15 minutes. Add peas and shrimp and cook 10 minutes longer if fresh peas are used, 5 minutes for frozen peas. Garnish with eggs and pimiento. Serves 6 or 8.

BASIC CHICKEN STOCK

1 stewing chicken, 4 to 6 pounds; cut up (with feet, if possible)

2 quarts water
1 medium carrot, scraped and quartered

1 large onion, peeled and quartered
1 leek, white part only, cleaned and sliced (optional)

2 whole cloves
1 bay leaf

3/4 teaspoon dried thyme
2 teaspoons salt
10 peppercorns

brusted (lightly pounded in mortar and pestle or banged with flat side of large knife)

Put chicken, with feet and neck, if available, into a stockpot or kettle. Add water and slowly bring to boil. Remove any scum. Add remaining ingredients and reduce heat. Cook very slowly, covered, about 3 hours.

Remove chicken and strain stock through cheesecloth-lined sieve or colander. Cool and chill in refrigerator until fat hardens on surface. Lift off fat and strain again. Store, covered, in refrigerator up to four days or pour into containers and freeze.

Marked "X" quarter Use chicken, skinned and boned, for salads, hash, or other dishes.

Another of my favorite soups is almost any kind of American chowder. Here is a good one from the book.

CAFE OOD FISH CHOWDER

1 pound cod or haddock filets
1/4 cup diced salt pork

1 large onion, peeled and sliced
2 cups boiling water
2 cups diced, raw, peeled potatoes

2 cups hot whipping cream or regular (rich) milk

Salt and pepper to taste

Unsalted soda crackers, split into halves (these are thick crackers, sometimes sold as "cheese" or "water" crackers)

Cut fish filets into 1-inch pieces. Fry salt pork in a large saucapan to release all fat. Fry until crisp. Add onion and saute until tender. Pour in water and potatoes. Cook slowly, covered about 10 minutes, until potatoes are just tender. Add fish, and continue to cook slowly about 6 minutes longer, until fish flakes easily and potatoes are tender. Add whipping cream or milk, salt and pepper. Serve in soup bowls over halved crackers to 4 people.

Sunday beer in Minidoka will continue to flow

MINIDOKA — In a special election Tuesday the city of Minidoka voted to continue allowing the sale of beer on Sunday.

Forty-one of the town's 43 registered voters turned out to express their opinions. The final tally was 30 in favor of beer on Sunday and 11 against.

The initiative petition that prompted the vote was signed by 10 residents. According to the wife of Councilman Paul Courtwright, "there's just a small group complaining" about rowdiness on Sundays.

One of the petitioners, Richard Palm, said "It was kind of a struggle" getting the petition started. He and his wife "had to do the work." The Palms have lived in a trailer near one of the town's two bars for four years.

When told the final result of the vote, Palm's first reaction was "where did they get that many registered voters?" He said his family is thinking of moving because he feels the violence at the bar on Sunday endangers their three children.

Sherril Butler, wife of Councilman Kim Butler, both of whom signed the petition, said "There isn't much you can do if the majority are against it."

"If there's a big changeover in the city, we'll bring it up again and see what happens," she said.

Low suspended by council

JEROME — The Jerome City Council Tuesday suspended a police officer charged with allegedly running down and assaulting an Eden resident.

The council voted unanimously to instruct Police Chief James McGowan to suspend Acting Sergeant Del Lou with pay pending a decision on three felony charges. The charges were filed Friday by Jerome County Prosecutor Roger Burdick after an investigation by the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement and the Idaho Attorney General's office.

Council members recessed the special meeting for a 10-minute closed discussion and emerged to announce their decision through City Attorney Robert Williams.

Williams said the council decided to instruct McGowan to suspend Lou and to reiterate city policy that any employee convicted of a felony or a misdemeanor involving moral turpitude will be dismissed.

Councilman Ralph Peters put the announcement in a motion, which was approved unanimously without public discussion.

Hailey to vote on option tax

By STEVE LATHROP
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Local option taxes will come to Hailey if citizens endorse them at a soon-to-be-scheduled special election.

The council Monday voted to impose 2 percent option taxes on the prices of motel and hotel beds; liquor, beer, and wine sold by the drink; and beer and wine sold at grocery stores for consumption off premises.

Before the taxes can go into effect, Idaho law requires they be endorsed by 50 percent of the voters at an election. The council tentatively set May 5 as the election date.

The council passed the tax proposals after first declaring Hailey a destination resort city, as required by the Idaho City Property Tax Alternatives Act of 1978. Idaho permits local option taxes only for resort towns in counties with populations less than 20,000.

While debating passage, councilmen heard Hailey City Attorney Steve Bolter say taxing beer and wine by the drink — particularly beer and wine sold for off-premises consumption — might excessively stretch the "liquor by the drink" language of the empowering statute. The council should take it to the newly created Blaine County Airport Commission.

Valley already tax beer and wine consumed on premises.

In other business, the council rejected the request of Hailey Fire Chief Mike Healy for a building moratorium at Friedman Memorial Airport. Healy asked the council to impose a moratorium until a water line for firefighting could be extended to the airport. Healy said present water supplies, from a small well and tanks carried on fire trucks, were inadequate to fight even an ordinary structural fire.

In rejecting Healy's proposal, Mayor Emory Dietrich said Healy should take it to the newly created Blaine County Airport Commission.

That body assumed airport management responsibility this month.

Dietrich also said Hailey would be unable to fund the estimated $150,000 cost of the proposed water line. Dietrich said the money would have to come from a county levy.

An open-ended building moratorium imposed by the airport commission is already in effect a Friedman, but will end when the commission completes a study of a lease policy for new buildings.

Dietrich appointed Verbor Murphree to the Planning and Zoning Commission, while postponing consideration of five other names for two more vacant slots.

Engineers study hatchery appraisal

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Federal officials were in the Magic Valley Monday and Tuesday to study the appraisal of the Crystal Springs fish hatchery.

The officials, from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, are not reappraising the property north of Buhl. They are checking the original appraisal, according to Corps spokesman Orel Dugger.

The General Accounting Office is investigating the proposed sale for Congress, which asked the Corps to hold off closing the sale until it could be re-evaluated.

The GAO gave a preliminary report on the proposed sale to the U.S. House of Representatives' Public Works and Transportation Committee, but the report was not made public. The final report may not be released for two months, Kirk said.

The Corps' appraisal re-evaluation "should" be complete by the end of the week, Dugger said, although he did not know when any information about the re-evaluation might be released or what action the Corps will take.

The Corps is awaiting action by the Corps before completing its final report, according to Senior Group Director Roy Kirk in Washington.

The Corps is seeking to buy the hatchery from Buhl fish farmer Ken Ellis. The hatchery would be used to raise steelhead to replace fish prevented from reaching the Hagerman Valley by four Snake River dams near Lewiston. However, the proposed hatchery sale was halted because of controversy over its approximate $3.2 million price tag.

The $3.2 million hatchery price was based on an appraisal for the Corps by Bob Smith of the Idaho Land and Appraisal Co. in Boise. Smith and Corp real estate officials came to the Magic Valley to go over the steps taken to reach the original appraised value, Dugger said.

"Our head real estate people will be looking over our (regional) people's shoulders and the regional officials will be looking over the appraiser's shoulder," Dugger said.

"We're taking a second look at the appraisal — or third or fourth," he said. Although the original appraisal has been checked several times, Dugger said, to his knowledge, a second appraisal has never been made.

Zoning

Gooding discusses ordinance proposal

GOODING — The major opposition to the proposed Gooding County Planning and Zoning ordinance appears to be for a special use permit in residential areas.

Most citizens present at a public hearing Tuesday were concerned about the protection of residential areas. No opposition was raised concerning the protection of agricultural land.

Robert Shokal noted in areas zoned residential or low density single dwelling residential, the ordinance allows special use including fish farms, mobile home parks, clubs and bars, public parks, trade schools and reducing salons.

Consensus opinion was for the limiting or elimination of special use permits in low density residential areas.

Another area of concern was large "special agricultural use" areas including feedlots of more than 400 cattle, dairies larger than 100 cattle, and sheep operations larger than 1,000 animals.

Citizens felt a wider buffer zone than the one-half mile provided in the ordinance be adopted. A one-mile zone was suggested.

Hagerman resident Betty Pember suggested a similar buffer zone between general agricultural and residential zones.

In regard to buffer zones, Monty Baker of Blincoe Meat Packing Co. asked that a one-mile zone surrounding the 86 acres of Blincoe land be established to prevent encroachment of residential areas on an industrial zone.

Gooding County Commission Chairman Fredrick Braliford suggested a similar zone be established for all industrial areas.

A number of citizens including feedlot owner Vern France and Baker suggested strengthening the "grandfather clause" to protect existing industrial and special agricultural operations.

A contingent of citizens for the Billingsley Creek area of Hagerman requested that Billingsley Creek be zoned residential and large fish farms using cement raceways be excluded from special permits.

available to meet requirements ordered by the city fire marshal.

An animal room will be added by rearranging the available space and a greenhouse will be built, he said. Each room will have several sinks for groups of four students to work at one time. There will also be electrical and natural gas outlets with a central gas turn-off switch in each room for control by the instructor.

Milton Barrus, science teacher, and Principal Frank Charlton met with the board to review the plans.

At Morningstar Elementary School, revisions will include installing a sprinkler system in the oldest of three sections. Architect Jim Smallwood told the board the pipes will have to be exposed. He said because of the structure of the building they cannot be hidden above the ceiling. He said it will be a wet system, with water in the pipes at all time. The improvement is being made to bring the building up to fire safety requirements.

Twin Falls school board OKs remodeling projects

TWIN FALLS — Final plans for remodeling and upgrading projects in the Twin Falls High School and Morningstar Elementary School gained approval of the school board Tuesday night.

The board approved April 21 as the date for a special meeting and bid opening.

Involved is an extensive remodeling of eight rooms of the science department at the senior high school building. Architect Robert Unrau explained the plans for revising three biology rooms on the south side of the building and five rooms on the north side.

The north side complex includes chemistry labs, and physics and chemistry class rooms. He said additional storage space will be provided and fire safety codes will be met with addition of exits in each of the chemistry rooms. New furnishings and equipment will be added.

Unrau said by combining some of the rooms into a larger single area, the required two exits will be available to meet requirements ordered by the city fire marshal.

An animal room will be added by rearranging the available space and a greenhouse will be built, he said. Each room will have several sinks for groups of four students to work at one time. There will also be electrical and natural gas outlets with a central gas turn-off switch in each room for control by the instructor.

Marian Kaibfleisch of Filer swims up to five times a week at the Twin Falls YFCA pool, and has accumulated 150 miles in the last year.

Red Cross awards woman for mileage in swimming pool

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Mileage in the Twin Falls YFCA swimming pool won strokes for Marian Kaibfleisch.

The 60-year-old Filer woman recently was recognized by the American Red Cross for her completion of 150 miles in the Y pool. Kaibfleisch, who accumulated the mileage in one year, is the first person to officially reach such a record in the Red Cross Satewide Chapter, according to YFCA Aquatic Instructor Susan Caywood.

Kaibfleisch's record reflects 10,800 laps in the 25-yard indoor pool. Four or five days a week, she said, she plunges into the 83-degree water for about two hours.

The regimen largely accounts for her loss of 50 pounds and personal stamina, she said. It's also led to several new friendships among the group of "regulars," mostly middle-aged, who stroke up and down the pool daily around noon.

"Sometimes, when you first get in, you think, 'I'll never make two laps,'" Kaibfleisch said. "But lots of times when I get out, I'm not at all tired." Desire to get back to the Filer appliance store she operates with her husband, Paul, usually is her incentive to quit swimming for the day, she said.

Kaibfleisch said she swam as a girl and met her husband of 42 years while swimming at an Illinois lake. When the couple moved from Chicago to the Magic Valley in 1953, her aquatic endeavors dwindled with the demands of family, business and simply adjusting to a new environment, she said. She took only regular swims about two years ago after a lapse of 30 years.

"As you get older, you have to get back in shape, and I decided I simply had to lose weight," she said. "I was so heavy, I felt self-conscious in a bathing suit."

Her daily distance in the pool improved steadily since she began keeping track of mileage in February 1980. A year ago, she said, she was swimming about one-half mile during each pool visit. Now she swims about 1 1/2 miles at a comfortable pace.

Driving from Filer to the Twin Falls Y almost daily isn't entirely a matter of personal initiative, she said.

"My husband is a tremendous source of support," Kaibfleisch said. "Some days his own schedule is built around my swimming." His fitness program includes a five-mile run before breakfast, and water-skiing, which he took up at the age of 60.

"I don't really care for water skiing," Kaibfleisch said. "I jump off the boat and go swimming."

Airport officials consider commercial development plan

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport Commission members are considering a proposal which could lead to commercial development near the present terminal building.

Van Briggs, owner of Briggs Builders Inc., of Idaho Falls, told the commission he hopes to build office buildings east of AVI Inc., starting with a building for his firm and Valley Flyers Inc., of Jerome.

The airport commission has reserved a portion of land for Valley Flyers Inc., which would rent space from Briggs.

Briggs developed a similar project at the Idaho Falls Municipal Airport.

But airport commission members need to make substantial changes in airport land-use policies before he could obtain financing, Briggs said.

The commission took no action on the request at its regular meeting Tuesday, but scheduled a meeting for March 12, at 10 a.m. to consider the proposal.

Any decision taken would take the form of a recommendation to the Twin Falls City Council and the Twin Falls County Commissioners, who make the final decision.

Crucial to his plans is extending the lease time on the land to at least 20 years, Briggs said. The present 10-year limit makes it virtually impossible to obtain long-term financing, he said.

"Without those kind of terms, I can't make it fly," Briggs said.

Another problem is the airport's present yearly lease charge of 6 cents per square foot, which Briggs said was probably a "highly inflated" price.

Airport Manager Harry Merrick questioned whether the lease charge could be reduced. For Briggs' plans without providing the same terms to businesses already at the airport. He added changing that policy was not within the discretion of the airport commission but requires amending an existing ordinance.

Briggs requested timely action on the requested approval for the first office building. Construction must begin soon so Valley Flyers can be open for the peak summer season, he said.

Provided the commission agrees, Briggs would still require approval from the city Planning and Zoning Commission for all buildings in the area. Airport commission members added they would probably review potential tenants before allowing them to locate near the airport.

Charges stem from accident

TWIN FALLS — A Wendell man was arraigned in 5th District Magistrate Court Tuesday on two felony charges stemming from the Feb. 18 deaths of a Twin Falls couple.

Clovas W. Rader, 67, has been charged with two counts of involuntary manslaughter in connection with an automobile accident which led to the deaths of Milledge and Marion Braun.

Rader is charged with driving while intoxicated as well as being negligent and reckless. Under Idaho law, a suspect charged with DWI in a fatal accident is subject to involuntary manslaughter charges.

Fifth District Magistrate Judge Charles Brumbach released Rader on $5,000 bond.

Rader's lawyer, Greg Fuller of Jerome, said the defendant is undergoing inpatient treatment at the Magic Valley Alcoholism Recovery Center.

Idaho State Police said the accident occurred about 7:45 p.m. Feb. 18 on U.S. 93, about 10 miles north of Jackpot, Nev. Rader was driving his vehicle northbound when he allegedly crossed the center line and forced the Brauns' southbound vehicle off the road.

Idaho State Police said the two vehicles rolled over and burst into flames.

Marion Braun died at the scene of the accident. Her husband died the next morning while undergoing emergency surgery at the University of Utah Medical Center at Salt Lake City.

Pleas entered in District Court

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man faces a jury trial on two felony charges after pleading not guilty this week in 5th District Court.

Jim Koch, 28, is charged with first degree burglary and receiving stolen property in connection with the Dec. 12, 1980, burglary of Cenex Co-op in Buhl. He pleaded not guilty Monday before 5th District Court Judge Daniel M. McMech.

Buhl police said a search of the defendant's residence produced items identified as missing from the co-op. No trial date has been set.

A 20-year-old Twin Falls woman was placed on probation Monday after pleading guilty to first degree burglary.

Teri Lynn Thom pleaded guilty to the charge Jan. 12. Twin Falls police arrested Thom Oct. 22, 1980, charging her with removing cash and some sports equipment from a parked automobile.

McMech issued a withheld judgment against Thom, ordered her to serve a two-year probation and to make $50 restitution to Twin Falls County for legal services provided by the public defender's office.

In other matters, a Twin Falls man faces a maximum five-year prison sentence after pleading guilty Friday to a reduced charge of aggravated assault.

Harry David Grjalva, 30, was originally charged with robbery and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony in connection with the robbery of a Twin Falls family on Sept. 15, 1980. Grjalva had pleaded not guilty to the charges last September.

Twin Falls County Sheriff's deputies said the defendant was involved in an incident in which three Mexicans, who had been told they would be given a ride to Mexico, were robbed at gunpoint of cash, clothing and radios, then abandoned outside of Rogerson. The three victims reportedly walked for five hours until they reached the Rogerson store.

Fifth District Court Judge Theron Ward ordered a presentence investigation and released Grjalva on an existing $5,000 bond.

A 21-year-old Twin Falls man pleaded not guilty Friday to a charge of possession of a controlled substance. Tim C. Smith is charged with selling a pound of marijuana to a state narcotics agent on March 31, 1980.

Smith faces a jury trial once a date is set.

Area of impact brought before board

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission members will be asked Thursday to reconsider their rejection of the city of Twin Falls revised area of impact.

The board meets at 7:30 p.m. at the County Judicial Building.

The board's decision to reject the revision proposal, which was followed by an agreement between county, city and Twin Falls Highway District representatives to eliminate a controversial area from the impact area plan.

The original revision called for the addition of 1,600 acres to the northwest of the present impact area. The area, bordered by Rock Creek Canyon, includes the Meander Point Subdivision.

The agreement was reached at an informal workshop and must be ratified by the Twin Falls City Council and the County Commissioners.

County Zoning Administrator Ed Woods said the commission is asking the planning and zoning board to reconsider its vote. Commissioners will then take up the proposal for a vote, he said.

Two public hearings on requested conditional-use permits are also scheduled. The requests are being made by:

- Uleen Baggett of Buhl, who wants to place mobile homes for his employees on agricultural land located 2 1/2 miles northeast of Buhl.
- Jack Nellwe of Twin Falls, who wants to sell three acres of agricultural land for residential development. The land is located 4 1/2 miles southwest of Jackson's Corner on U.S. 30.

Buhl sewer funding up in the air

BUHL — Whether federal money will be available to design and construct a sewer system is anybody's guess, a consulting engineer told the Buhl City Council Monday.

David L. Miller, of Montgomery Engineers Inc. in Boise, warned commission members funding cutbacks could adversely affect the city's quest for Environmental Protection Agency dollars to finance design of a new sewer system.

The city is almost through the first phase of a three-part EPA grants and loans program whereby the organization is making money available for the assessment, design work and construction of projects such as Buhl's.

Assessment of needs which should be met by the city's new sewer project will be complete this spring, according to Mayor Dale Christensen. Funding for design work will be sought in June, Christensen said.

A new sewer system is necessary to replace the present log system, which does not meet federal clean water standards.

Also at its monthly meeting, the council discussed a Buhl Joint School District request for erection of a traffic barrier on Locust Street between Sixth and Seventh avenues. Christensen said school officials are concerned about the area's apparent use as a drag strip, jeopardizing young pupils who get in an out of private cars in front of the elementary school.

Christensen said the request will receive further consideration at a Buhl Comprehensive Plan hearing scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday at Buhl City Hall.

Council reactions to the proposed road closure included concern that Main Street would become overburdened with traffic. Fire Chief Mark Grima and Police Chief David Hartway also expressed concern about access to schools in the event of emergencies.

"They could drop them off here and make them walk a block," Councilman Dan Buhl High School Principal Dale Thornberry said as he pointed to a diagram. "But no, they want to drive up through the (school) door and drop them off inside the classroom. They're not going to make that sweet little Susie, Charley or Sally walk."

In other business, councilmen requested that a representative of Citizens Enterprises, operators of a home improvement supply business and salvage yard, submit a written plan of delivery to comply with municipal regulations regarding commercial use of property.

The council requested Citizens cease placing scrap materials on a lot behind Buhl Machine Works until city officials see plans for fencing the property. The council also wants Citizens to contact residents in the area concerning their views on the firm's plans for the lot.

The council also adopted ordinances regulating the height and location of fences adjacent to public property and regulating the overhang of tree limbs and the height of shrubs near street intersections. The ordinances are intended to reduce the likelihood of motorists or pedestrians' safety being jeopardized because of obscured vision.

Negotiating session date set for Shoshone

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone Education Association set March 23 as the first negotiating session for teacher contracts.

Teachers' negotiator spokesman Delmer Hardy has presented the Shoshone School Board with a list of negotiable items, including salary schedules and fringe benefits.

In related action, SEA President Walter Baucum asked the board to suspend school calendar so 80 teachers can participate in an Idaho Education Association lobbying effort in Boise March 20.

Baucum told the board the IEA has asked all teachers, parents and persons interested in education to join at the capitol and present their views to state legislators on proposed education budget cuts.

Baucum said the SEA would like to trade March 20 for April 20, which is scheduled as a day of spring vacation. Superintendent Kenneth Crothers said the board would agree to the change if all teachers request it.

Shoshone district teachers Valerie Churchman, Timothy Holmes, Dale Chatterton and Sharla Helms made recommendations for changes in the math, English composition and reading curriculum. The recommended tions are the result of a needs assessment conducted by this committee.

Shoshone High School Principal Keith Trapp reported on scheduling games for an 8-man football season. Three schools, North Gem, Cascade, and Meadow Valley, have agreed to participate on an independent schedule.

The board meeting was recessed until Monday when it will meet again at 8 p.m.

Overturned truck pins farmer

CASTLEFORD — A Castleford farmer escaped serious injury Tuesday after he was pinned under a dump truck for about 2 1/2 hours.

Calvin Graybeal, 55, was dumping rock into a ravine 100 feet deep when the shifting load apparently unbalanced his truck, causing it to slide into the hollow, according to the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department.

The accident occurred on private property southwest of Castleford at about 8 a.m. and Graybeal was found by a friend, Lamar Kendall, at approximately 10:30 a.m., a sheriff's deputy said.

Graybeal was freed shortly after the truck rolled on its side, pinning Graybeal's head between the door and cab frame.

Graybeal was treated at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital in Twin Falls and released. Injuries included head and arm abrasions, the deputy said.

Murder hearing today

BURLEY — A preliminary hearing is set today for Larry D. Blevins, 7, of Twin Falls, in Magistrate Court.

Blevins has been charged with first degree murder in connection with the death of Robbie McBride, 22, of Twin Falls. McBride's body was found Oct. 9, 1980, in the Snake River near Milner Dam by Cassia and Jerome counties' sheriff's deputies. McBride was reported missing Sept.

Jerome school crowding issue postponed

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Jerome School Board postponed action on the district's need for more classrooms Monday, but may schedule a public hearing to discuss its options.

An 11-member advisory panel last month recommended the district rotate class year-round to alleviate crowding in elementary grades. Teachers and board members have been less than enthusiastic about the proposal.

In a report to the board Monday, Superintendent Percy Christensen said the district will need at least five additional classrooms by September in order to meet state standards for maximum class size.

Year-round elementary classes could meet that need by distributing students so that 25 percent are on vacation at a time.

Christensen said he contacted the Canby School District in Oregon, which uses a 12-month system, but discovered the Canby situation is unlike that in Jerome. Canby spends $4.5 million to educate 2,020 students, while Jerome spends $2.9 million educating 2,500 students. "The difference for only one year would solve a lot of our problems," the superintendent said.

Christensen said the western state school districts he had located that run year-round programs spend at least $300 more per student than Jerome. Officials in Oregon and Colorado also recommend air conditioning schools for summer use, which would cost Jerome between $400,000 and $500,000, he added.

Most districts using the year-round concept report fewer discipline problems, but one administrator said his school had lost all control of attendance since instituting the program.

Administrators said the 12-month approach should not be tried in schools with less than 500 pupils, Christensen said. Only one of Jerome's three elementary schools has more than 500 pupils.

Most schools that turned to 12-month programs did so after bond levies failed or districts reached their maximum bonding limit, he said.

He added, however, that community controversy of any kind usually spells trouble in passing new school levies.

Christensen urged the board to discuss other alternatives, including construction of five new classrooms at Jefferson School, suspension of kindergarten classes and completion of a vocational education area at the high school.

Trustees delayed further discussion of the proposal because board member Myrna Johnson was absent. Chairman Alvin Choinacky said he may call a special work session next week to air alternative solutions, with a possible public hearing later this month to seek suggestions from the community.

In other business, the board approved a new theater group's request to use the high school auditorium in June to present "The Sound of Music."

Jerome lawyer Greg Fuller said a group called North Side Play House would like to present two plays a year. The quality of the productions will depend somewhat on how large a theater the group can plan on, he said.

Tentative plans are to hold auditions later this month and begin practices April 1 using the Central Elementary School auditorium.

If the group makes money, it may donate a portion of the proceeds to helping purchase back curtains and additional lights for the Jerome High School auditorium Fuller said.

The board also approved bus transportation for the high school drill team and stage band to attend an Invitational competition and clinic in Payette later this month. Approximately 44 students will attend.

Revenue sharing split on agenda

By JAENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — A public hearing to amend distribution of revenue sharing funds will be held Monday.

Gooding County Commission Chairman Rick Brallsford said Monday the commission wants to allocate $30,000 to Gooding County Memorial Hospital's operating fund. The money is currently allotted for a computer system.

The commission also amended some of the hospital's by-laws. The hospital administrator and chief of staff will become ex-officio members of the hospital board.

The duties of the chief of staff were consolidated and Brallsford explained the language of the by-laws will be changed to consistently refer to the chief of staff in the same terms. Previous by-laws refer to that office by different titles. Hospital administrators Rod Spackman and Ed Meyers agreed with the board's decision to eliminate the office of business manager. Brallsford said, "A hospital of our size does not need both an administrator and a business manager." The business manager's duties will be handled by the administrator.

In related action, the commission reappointed Dr. Marion V. Klingler to the hospital board and appointed Monty Baker to the board. Baker replaces John Baron who declined to serve again. The commission also increased the number of board members from five to seven at the request of the hospital. The new members will be appointed next month, Brallsford said.

Tom Fleming, of Health and Urban Development for the Region 4 Development Association, presented the commission with a $500 check.

Court clerk sworn in for Lincoln County

SHOSHONE — Jenny Ridinger of Shoshone was sworn in Monday as deputy clerk for the 5th District Magistrate Court in Lincoln County.

County Commission Chairman O.J. Harris officiated at the swearing-in ceremony. Ridinger replaces Leslie Knowles, who is leaving March 20 to have a baby.

Ridinger has lived in Shoshone for six months. She has worked as a bookkeeper and secretary and began training as a clerk in January.

The commission discussed the on-going problem of county weed control.

County Weed Supervisor Wayne Sorenson suggested locating spray rigs in various parts of the county, including Braun's Store in North Shoshone, Dietrich and Richfield.

Harris said the commission will investigate this possibility. "It will make spray and applicators easier for farmers to get," he said. In most cases, farmers comply with the control order "if we tell them often enough."

Voluntary compliance is much better than forced spraying, he said.

Shuckin' and pluckin'

Bringing their own brand of comedy and music, Charlie Correll and Gene Lawley entertained more than 600 people during Farmer's Night Saturday at Jerome High School. Several farm families were awarded special recognition by the Jerome Chamber of Commerce.

Pool tickets still available

WENDELL — Tickets for the beef drawing are still available, according to Carol Jax of the Wendell Swimming Pool Fundraising Committee.

"We need all the support we can get to get the swimming pool open by summer," Jax said after the committee met Monday evening. "The drawing is the main thing right now."

Wendell artist Roy Mason has donated a painting to be awarded as a second prize in the drawing. Jax said tickets are available from Wendell Elementary School, sixth graders. There are several other nice prizes, she said.

"We also need about 150 new Centennial Club members," Jax added, referring to the 100 membership which entitles the donor to have his name included on a wall plaque at the pool.

Valley schools note 10% student loss

EDEN — While Jerome wrestles with crowded classrooms, Valley School District has lost nearly 10 percent of its enrollment since the beginning of the school year.

Valley trustees are down 28 students at the elementary level and 21 students at the high school, Superintendent Arlyn Bodily reported Monday night. The 153 enrollment in the high school is within three students of placing the school in the A-4 classification, Bodily said.

Valley trustees discussed placing an alternative "b" grade in the district's "down" 3 1/2 classroom units since the start of the year, he said. State funding under the present formula is approximately $21,500 per classroom unit.

"People are just moving out of the area to find work," he said. "The bedroom community concept is dead with higher gas prices."

Valley trustees discussed placing an alternative level of "b" if necessary to maintain quality in the district's educational program, Bodily said.

In disrepair and have classrooms that are too small to adequately house grade combinations required in the district.

A group of parents also attended the meeting to complain athletic events are tying up too many nights for students.

Bodily said the Canyon Athletic Conference considered and rejected holding boys and girls basketball games on the same nights. Such a move would mean four games in a row for the conference's schools.

Valley will hold its parent-teacher conferences March 26, the superintendent said. Eden students will be dismissed all day. Hazelton and Valley schools will dismiss classes after lunch, with conferences running into the evening.

Boosters honored

HAGERMAN — Hagerman School Board members offered a vote of appreciation Monday night to the Hagerman Booster Club and the community for support in the basketball tournaments.

Superintendent Kenneth Black said club members and other volunteers raised $2,000 to send students and other fans to the tournaments to support the Hagerman teams. He said community residents were thanked for supporting the pancake suppers, cake sales and other events employed by the club to raise the money.

The board also approved issuing contracts to tenure teachers for the coming school year. Black said contracts for new teachers will be discussed next month.

The board approved sending FFA and FHA students to state conventions April 2, 3 and 4 in Meridian and Burley respectively.

Contracts offered

FAIRFIELD — The Camas County School Board met briefly Monday night to offer 1981-82 contracts to tenured teachers.

Superintendent Harold Stroud said the contracts, constituting an intent to retire teachers, must be issued by April 2 and salaries and other work matters will be negotiated later.

Stroud said the board also discussed finances for the coming year but concluded there is little that can be done on the local level until the Legislature takes final action.

Applicants reviewed

WENDELL — Three persons have applied for Wendell School District's elementary principal vacancy.

Superintendent Glenn Gilbertson told the Wendell School Board Monday night all applicants are from outside the district and he will conduct personal interviews.

The district will hire a new principal to replace Robert Kloss, who leaves this spring after being in the district for a year.

The board granted a two-year leave of absence to Ramona Allen, sixth grade teacher. She will be rehired at the end of the two years without loss of tenure, providing there is a vacancy at that time, Gilbertson said. Mrs. Allen has been with the district three years.

The board also accepted the resignation of Linda Petersen, home economics teacher for two years.

Gilbertson showed the board a group of petitions signed by 166 community residents urging the Idaho Legislature to continue kindergarten funding. The petitions will be forwarded to Boise.

In other business, the board changed its meeting time from 7:30 to 8 p.m. for the summer months, and conducted an executive session with principals for teacher evaluation.

Decisions delayed

RICHFIELD — Richfield School District trustees discussed a wide range of topics Monday but made few decisions, Superintendent A. Jay Jones said.

"We talked about budgets and a lot of things, but it's difficult to be specific until we know what the Legislature is going to do," Jones said.

The University of Idaho Vandelliers singing group will appear at Richfield School today for an hour program beginning at 10:30 a.m., he said. The public is invited.

The board approved a calendar for the 1981-82 school year. Perrow said Fall classes will resume Aug. 24. Christmas vacation will run from Dec. 23 to Jan. 4. And the last day of school will be May 21, 1982.

Graduation exercises this year will be May 22 at 2:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium, he said. James Taylor, president of the College of Southern Idaho, will be the guest speaker.

Mrs. Evans visiting Gooding area

GOODING — Lois Evans, wife of Idaho Gov. John Evans and chairwoman of a statewide immunization campaign, will be in Gooding County Friday to present awards to several schools.

Barry Kling, education officer for the South Central Health District in Twin Falls, said a number of Gooding County schools have achieved above 90 percent immunization among students, one of the top achievements in the state.

He said Mrs. Evans will begin Friday with a 9 a.m. visit to Bliss Elementary School, where 96 percent of the students have been immunized.

She will be at Hagerman Elementary School at 10 a.m. for a similar presentation. Hagerman has a 99-plus record. While there she also will present certificates to a number of individuals who helped Gooding County achieve the excellent record.

The Gooding Elementary School has a 93 percent immunization. Mrs. Evans will stop there at 11:15 a.m. She will attend a luncheon at The Timbers restaurant in Gooding at 11:45 a.m.

During the luncheon Mrs. Evans will confer with school officials, health district authorities and others involved with the immunization effort.

During the afternoon, she plans to visit the State School for the Deaf and Blind in Gooding.

Kling said many students there suffer from congenital rubella syndrome, a disease controlled through immunization.

Kling said at least 90 percent of the school age population in the state must be immunized against polio, measles, mumps, rubella, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus. If epidemic outbreaks are to be controlled.

News of Record

ACCIDENT — Jerome Police issued two citations Saturday to Joe V. Ruiz, 30, of Jerome, after he struck the side of a car driven by James W. McGowan, 58, also Jerome, as they were both traveling west on Main Street. Ruiz was cited for driving while intoxicated and for failure to carry insurance.

COURT — J. H. Henry Produce Company Inc., doing business as Falls City Fertilizer in Jerome, filed suit last Thursday in 5th District Court alleging Earl Thomason of Jerome owes $12,040 for fertilizer and chemicals purchased on an open account. They are also seeking lawyer's fees of $1,000 and cost of the suit.

COURT — The Credit Bureau in Jerome filed suit Monday in 5th District Magistrate Court against Mildred Worthington of Jerome. They allege she owes Dr. Fawcett, Rose and Stella 24 and Idaho Power Co. $87, all in Jerome. Lawyer's fees of $75 and court costs are also sought.

Building possible

DIETRICH — Dietrich School should have a new shop and a walk-in cooler by this fall, if all goes as planned.

The Dietrich School Board discussed Monday whether to offer the construction projects for bids or purchase the materials themselves and hire builders by the hour. The shop would be situated next to the athletic field and be used by up to 10 students at a time. No decisions were made on which route to follow.

The board also met with a delegation of 12 parents to discuss teachers' performance and contracts for the coming year, Superintendent Wayne Perron said.

Trustees approved early graduation for one student, who plans to take a 12-month diesel mechanics course at the College of Southern Idaho.

Perron reported the district will have about 30 students in its combination third- and fourth-grade class next fall. The board may have to consider splitting the combined class or hiring an aide for the room, he said.

Disease upsurge puzzling

Meningitis cases may set record

ATLANTA (UPI) — Health officials said Monday they are puzzled over a sharp upsurge in meningitis cases across the country this winter that may set a 26-year record.

The incidence of meningococcal meningitis infections nearly doubled during the first two months of 1981, with increases noted in all nine regions of the country monitored by the national Centers for Disease Control. At least two major cities — Houston and Miami — reported epidemics of the disease.

Through February, there have been 780 cases of the often-fatal ailment, compared to 445 for the same period in 1980. Normally, the illness does not peak until summer.

Dr. Walter F. Schleich of the CDC's special pathogens division said medical investigators cannot explain the sudden increase.

"No one really understands why," he said. "It may be related to a preceding viral infection. There was quite a bit of influenza this winter. That's one of the things we are looking at."

Both Houston and Miami had flu epidemics that started just before meningitis struck.

Harris County (Houston) has had 43 confirmed cases this year, resulting in three deaths. Another death resulted from a suspected case. In 1980, Harris County had 30 cases of the disease.

In Dade County (Miami), 32 people contracted meningitis this year and nine died.

Schleich said epidemics in both cities have slackened in the last couple of weeks. "There's not a continuing outbreak at this point in either place," he said.

The South Atlantic region has had 213 cases, more than double the number for the same period a year ago. The west-central region has had 159 cases compared to 48 at this time last year.

States reporting more than 50 cases were California, Texas and Florida. Connecticut reported 24 cases compared to six in 1980.

Meningococcal meningitis, which occurs most frequently in the winter and spring, is an inflammation of the membranes covering the brain and spinal cord.

It usually begins suddenly with high fever, severe headache and stiffness and pain in the neck, back and shoulders. Often there is nausea and vomiting. A skin rash of tiny bright red spots frequently appears, sometimes resembling bruises.

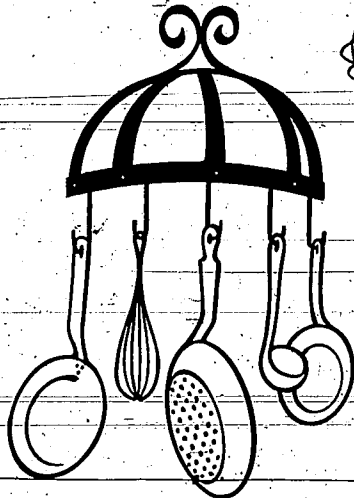

During World War II, there were meningitis epidemics in both military and civilian populations. Schleich said there was another surge of the disease in 1955.

Boy found locked up, emaciated

DENVER (UPI) — Police and doctors say they were shocked by the condition of a 14-year-old boy who allegedly had been locked alone in his room for as long as he could remember.

"He beyond comprehension," said Sgt. Ray Champion. "I couldn't believe I saw what I saw. I couldn't believe I smelled what I smelled."

Champion and other officers were called by a teacher who was told of the situation by the boy's 12-year-old sister.

Authorities said they found the emaciated boy, his teeth rotten and his hair matted, sitting alone in a bedroom smeared with human and rodent waste.

"He made sounds," Champion said. "He would reach out at you and make sounds like a monkey, like a chimpanzee who was trying to communicate with a human being. He was unable to form any words at all. Everything he said was by gesture."

The boy was taken to Denver General Hospital, where a doctor, a veterinarian and 1 1/2 years at the institution, said it was "the saddest thing I've ever seen." The physician said the teen-ager was mentally retarded and unable to walk, possibly because of cerebral palsy, and "undemourished."

The doctor said the child, offered a cup of juice, "tried to lap the juice out of the cup like a dog."

Police questioned the boy's parents, George and Ariene Shupe, but no charges were filed immediately.

Mr. Shupe said it was "not true" that the boy had been locked in the room, and told police the child was "all right. We take care of him."

Shupe reportedly told police the boy was confined because "he'd get into things."

At a court hearing Friday, custody of the boy and his sister was given to the Denver Department of Social Services until further proceedings in May.

"I'm still trying to get over it," one policeman said, "and it's been three days now."

Watt solicits land transfer requests

By STEVE LATHROP
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — U.S. Interior Secretary James Watt is working energetically to transfer U.S. Bureau of Land Management land to cities and counties throughout the West.

In a move which may be either a precursor or a defuser of success for the Sagebrush Rebellion, Watt has solicited requests for takeovers of federal lands by local government. Governors of 17 western states have received a letter on a Watt program announced in early February in Washington, D.C.

The letter sent to Idaho Gov. John Evans reads in part, "The purpose of this letter is to invite you, and through the communities and cities of your state, to identify parcels of federally owned land needed to meet community needs... I hope you will extend this invitation to local governments in your state and encourage them to funnel their identification of land parcels through your office to me."

In his letter, Watt said the land he is talking about would be relatively small parcels of public land contiguous to growing communities, or isolated amid state holdings.

After being transferred to local ownership, the former federal lands could be used for "community expansion, and for schools, hospitals, and parks," the letter said.

Andrew Newman, public information officer in the office of the Secretary of the Interior, said the Recreation and Public Purposes Act already permits the kind of transfers Watt is letter discusses. To qualify, a local applicant, including governments or non-profit corporations, must submit detailed plans for a project, specify a completion date and pay a nominal price, Newman said.

Newman said, however, that Watt would seek to go beyond existing laws and policy to accomplish land transfers.

Asked whether Watt's initiative was related to the Sagebrush Rebellion, a widespread Western movement seeking massive transfers of federal land to the states, Newman said, "I don't think this specifically is designed to open the way for much larger transfers."

Newman said, however, Watt's concerns for problems which led to the Sagebrush Rebellion triggered the present initiative, Watt intends to "lessen or eliminate frustrations which led to the Sagebrush Rebellion," Newman said.

Evans turned Watt's initiative over to the Idaho Division of Economic and Community Affairs. In a letter dated March 3, the division solicited requests for land transfers from Idaho towns and counties which abut or contain BLM land.

Karl Tuller, a bureau chief of the division, said 36 cities and 35 counties were solicited. Among the cities were: Bliss and Gooding in Gooding County; Shoshone, Richfield, and Dietrich in Lincoln County; Eden and Hazelton in Jerome County; Challis, Mackay, Clayton and Stanley in Custer County; Malta in Cassia County; Arco in Butte County; Salmon in Lemhi County; and Halley, Bellevue, Sun Valley and Ketchum in Blaine County.

Tuller said the division already had responses from Ketchum and Malta. Ketchum wants to acquire land on which to dump snow cleared from city streets and Malta is shopping for an airport site and a landfill, Tuller said.

Kinghorn will resign as labor union chief

BOISE (UPI) — Robert Kinghorn plans to step down as Idaho AFL-CIO President at the end of the current legislative session to accept an offer to become regional director of the International Union of Operating Engineers, The Lewiston Morning Tribune said Monday.

Kinghorn, a labor leader in Idaho for the past two decades will be based in San Mateo, Calif., although he will maintain a private residence at Boise. His operating engineers' region will cover seven western states, including Idaho.

"I feel I can better serve labor in that capacity," Kinghorn said. "It's a substantial promotion for me and a real challenge."

Kinghorn, a former Idaho legislator, began his labor career almost 20 years ago as business agent for the Pocatello chapter of the operating engineers union. He was elected president of AFL-CIO in 1979 to succeed Robert M. Farlane, who had served in the post since 1967.

Kinghorn successfully led two attempts to block right-to-work legislation in Idaho, but acknowledged that Idaho labor has a hard time making progress with state legislators.

"I regret that we haven't been able to do more for labor, but we've held our own," he said. "Some of our problems are due to a lack of communication and understanding, but things are getting better."

Kinghorn said he is particularly frustrated with labor inability to do anything about the gradual shift of the tax burden to homeowners.

"The pendulum has swung far too far in the direction of the wage earners," he complained. "The state's tax structure needs some attention in that area."

The AFL-CIO, which represents some 40,000 workers statewide, unsuccessfully has attempted to get the Idaho Tax Commission to adjust its assessment policies.

If the Legislature won't make the adjustments, Kinghorn said, labor is considering putting an initiative on the 1982 general election ballot.

"We've got the capability of getting through necessary legislation," he said. Kinghorn's successor will be chosen by the eight-member AFL-CIO executive council. The most likely candidate, the Tribune said, is Jim Kerns of Boise, AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer for the past eight years.

Blaine is valley's fastest-growing county

BOISE — Blaine County was the fastest-growing area in the Magic Valley, with a 71.2 percent population increase during the past 10 years, according to final 1980 census figures.

The figures, released Friday, also rank Idaho as the seventh fastest growing state in the nation.

Blaine County's population increased from 5,749 to 9,841, while the number of housing units in the county increased 139 percent from 3,064 to 7,319.

Growth rates for the remaining seven Magic Valley counties were as follows:

- Jerome — 44.7 percent, up from 10,253 to 14,840. The number of housing units in the county jumped 52.1

- percent from 3,637 to 5,531.
- Gooding — 37.4 percent, up from 8,645 to 11,874. Housing units increased 206 percent in the county, from 253 to 575.
- Twin Falls — 26.6 percent, up from 41,807 to 52,927. Housing units increased 37.5 percent, up from 14,929 to 20,528.
- Minidoka — 25.3 percent, up from 15,731 to 19,718. Housing units increased 42.8 percent, up from 4,816 to 6,876.
- Cassia — 14.2 percent, up from 17,017 to 19,427. Housing units increased 30.5 percent, up from 5,371 to 7,010.
- Lincoln — 12.4 percent, up from 3,057 to 3,436. Housing units increased 16.6 percent, up from 1,152 to 1,343.

- Camas — 12.4 percent, up from 728 to 818. Housing units increased 41.3 percent from 373 to 527.

Census statistics released by the Division of Economic and Community Affairs also shows substantial increases in the number of Hispanics in all but two Magic Valley counties.

The biggest growth occurred in Lincoln County where the number of Hispanics increased 280 percent, up from 62 to 236.

In Gooding County, the number of Hispanics grew 206 percent, from 253 to 775. The number of Hispanics in Jerome County increased 113.58 percent, up from 265 to 566. The number of Hispanics in Twin Falls County increased 96.79 percent, up 1,185 to 2,311.

Minidoka County recorded an 87 percent increase in the number of Hispanics, up from 1,598 to 2,989. In Cassia County, the number of Hispanics increased 28.83 percent, up from 1,417 to 1,783.

The Hispanic population in Blaine County decreased 35 percent during the decade, down from 291 to 189. Census figures do not estimate an increase for Camas County since no Hispanics lived in the county in 1970, although the 1980 count shows 10.

The substantial increase is believed to be the result of better enumeration procedures in the 1980 census, according to the Division of Economic and Community Affairs.

Aryans can't use high school

BOISE (UPI) — A request by a northern Idaho white supremacist group to meet at the Boise High School Auditorium next month has been denied by the city's school board on the advice of its attorney.

The board voted unanimously Monday night to deny the request from the Aryan Nations Church of Jesus Christ Christian out of Hayden Lake.

In a letter to school officials, Aryan Nations member Robert C. Manskor, Weiser, said the purpose of the meeting would be "to expound the fact that the Aryan race is the true Israel spoken of in both the Old and New Testaments and to whom the Bible was written."

Manskor and two other members of the group were convicted last fall on trespass charges in connection with an incident at a Boise motel where the group attempted to meet without permission. Two of these men also were convicted of carrying concealed weapons.

Boise School District Attorney Stewart Morris, in a letter to the group, said one of the reasons for denying access to the school facility was the previous incident and "subsequent criminal prosecution against some of your members."

Idaho Falls man on FBI list
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI said Tuesday it is adding Daniel Jay Barney, an accused rapist and escaped prisoner, to its top 10 list of fugitives.

A spokesman said Barney, 28, who was born in Idaho Falls is an escapee from the Jefferson County Jail in Wisconsin.

A federal warrant issued Feb. 26, 1980, charged Barney, 28, with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for sexual assault, armed burglary and escape.

The FBI said Barney may be accompanied by his brother, Joseph Lawrence Barney, also wanted by the FBI on charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for rape and armed robbery.

The spokesman said the two brothers often work together, attempting to gain entry into a woman's home and assault her.

Schmidt replaces Vehlou
BOISE (UPI) — A Mountain Home magistrate will take over a 4th District magistrate vacancy as of April 1, court officials said.

Richard Schmidt, 35, will assume the post being vacated by Magistrate Karen Vehlou, who has resigned for personal reasons.

Schmidt, 35, was selected for the job by a magistrate commission composed of county and court officials from the Ada, Elmore, Valley and Boise counties.

Prison tension running high
BOISE (UPI) — Idaho State Penitentiary Warden Darrol Gardner said tension at the facility south of Boise is running high because an inmate work program will be discontinued as of April 1.

Gardner said the program that paid inmates up to $40 a month for doing odd jobs at the facility will die for a lack of funds.

Cameras allowed at Enquirer trial

LOS ANGELES (UPI)— Television cameras, tape recorders and still photographers will be allowed to cover the trial entered Tuesday by Burnett's $10 million libel suit against the National Enquirer, the judge ruled Tuesday.

Safeway claims employees stole pricing info

OAKLAND (UPI)— Safeway Stores Inc., the largest supermarket chain in the nation, has suspended two employees and filed a multi-million-dollar suit in what it claims was a theft of secret pricing information.

The Oakland-based chain claims the two unidentified women employees, who worked at Safeway stores in the Sacramento and Oakland areas, sold the information to Marketing Services Corp. of Los Angeles, a service that provides such information to other grocers.

A Safeway spokesman said the company believes other employees may also have been involved in the selling of price books that list the basic prices of items sold in Safeway's Northern California stores and weekly price change sheets that note changes to be made in the basic list.

Local 870 of the Retail Clerks Union has scheduled a grievance hearing March 17 at the request of the Oakland-area employee, who wants Safeway to explain her suspension.

In its suit, filed in August in Los Angeles, but only now made public, Safeway seeks $150,000 in actual damages from Marketing Services Corp. and unnamed others, and $1 million in punitive damages from each defendant.

The suit claims Marketing Services has been secretly buying Safeway price books for at least three years and incorporating the information into its weekly price book, which shows prices charged by each of the major chains in Northern California.

The "Key Price Book" was sold to members of United Grocers Ltd., an association of 1,100 independent grocers in Northern California, Safeway charges.

Marketing Services denied the charges.

Timber companies fined by judge

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)— Five timber companies were ordered Monday by a federal judge to pay $400,000 in civil penalties for rigging bids on national forest timber.

The order by U.S. District Court Judge Robert Belloni is directed at Bugaboo Timber Co. and Young & Moran Inc., of Mill City; Excels Lumber Co. and Freres Veneer Co. of Lyons, and Champion International Corp., of New York.

The companies were found guilty in a criminal case in 1975 of violating antitrust laws in bidding on timber in the Willamette National Forest. Belloni found the firms entered into implied agreements before timber sales to eliminate competition, reduce the price they paid for timber and allocate the timber among the five.

Belloni fined the firms a total of more than $100,000.

The government then filed civil suit seeking damages in about 100 sales it claimed were affected by the non-competitive bids between June 1967 and December 1972. Belloni ruled the government could collect damages only for five sales between September 1970 and December 1972.

Inmate applies for warden job

HELENA, Mont. (UPI)— A Montana State Prison inmate has applied for the job of warden of the facility.

A selection committee is scheduled to meet in Helena Thursday night to screen applicants for the warden's job. Curt Chisholm, of the state Institutions Department said the group hopes to trim the list of 45 applicants to about five or six finalists.

He said one inmate has applied for the post and three Montanans have submitted applications for the job.

Judge Peter S. Smith said the long-awaited trial, expected to begin this week, can be covered on a "pool" basis by photographers and broadcast media, with publications and stations sharing the film and tape.

Attorneys for Miss Burnett and the Enquirer did not object to the cameras and microphones being allowed in the courtroom.

The judge appointed Wayne Saitz, a reporter for KABC-TV in Los Angeles, to coordinate the pool activities. Miss Burnett is asking $10 million in damages on charges the tabloid newspaper defamed her in a story that was later retracted. The case is being watched closely by other entertainment personalities who are often the subject of stories in the paper.

The Enquirer's lawyer, William Masterson, said the defense would be that the March 1976 story, even if it was incorrect, was not defamatory. The story said Miss Burnett was "boisterous" and got into an argument with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and then "traipsed around" a Washington restaurant. It also said Miss Burnett "accidentally knocked a glass of wine over one diner and started giggling instead of apologizing."

The judge scheduled jury selection to begin Wednesday and said he expected the testimony to start Friday if no problems developed.

Celebrities have long criticized what they call the tabloid's cheap shots, the so-called "inside stories" of their romantic flings, divorces and personal problems detailed in the nation's most widely circulated newspaper.

Miss Burnett, who has already spent $200,000 in legal fees on the suit, has steadfastly refused to settle the case out of court.

Watching the case with interest will be Dolly Parton, Shirley Jones and husband Marty Ingels, Ed McMahon, Phil Silvers, Rory Calhoun, Hedy Lamarr and Rudy Vallee, all who have filed suits in the past or have suits pending against the Enquirer.

Schrafft's candy closes

BOSTON (UPI) — Schrafft's Candy Co. has announced the firm will close after 120 years of making popular chocolates, mints, lollipops and other candies.

More than 600 candy factory employees walked out the door of the firm's seven-story Sullivan Square confectionary headquarters for the last time Monday.

Jack Farn, the company's general manager, said the closing was "effective immediately." Farn said a skeleton crew will be kept on until stock is liquidated.

Farn said the company had been in trouble since 1974. He blamed recent troubles on the rising costs of commodities such as sugar, cocoa, along with the escalating labor, utilities and shipping costs that had forced the price of candy sky high.

William F. Schrafft founded the candy business in Boston in 1861. He enlarged the operation in 1895 and by 1927 sales had reached $7 million. The current plant at Sullivan Square was built the year after. In 1974, Schrafft's became a wholly owned subsidiary of Gulf and Western Industries Inc.

Safeway in pricing suit

Sambo's to change name

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Sambo's restaurants in Connecticut, New Hampshire and Massachusetts soon will be renamed, apparently to soothe civil rights activists who charge the name is racist.

Daniel Shaughnessy, Sambo's president and chief executive officer, told the Hartford Couric Monday that the 18 restaurants would be called No Place Like Sam's.

He said the name change was an experiment but would not comment further, saying details would be made public in a few weeks.

Civil rights leaders have objected to the name because it brings to mind the story "Little Black Sambo," which they charge presents a disparaging image of blacks.

Michele Gibeau, assistant manager of the Sambo's in Avon, said if the change proved successful, the California-based chain's 1,000 restaurants nationwide also would be renamed.

Gas, oil strikes recorded

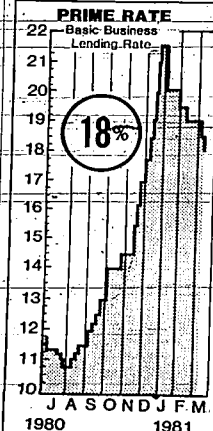

By United Press International

Georgia-Pacific Corp. Tuesday reported it discovered a new deep gas reservoir about 60 miles offshore Lafayette, La., that initially tested at the rate of 3.6 million cubic feet of gas and 15 barrels of condensate a day.

Georgia-Pacific has a 24.3 percent stake in the No. 4 state lease 3542 well, which was drilled to 17,310 feet. Other partners include Jim Walter Corp., Consolidated Natural Gas Co., Ocean Production Co., Energy Reserves Group Inc., and Knob Hill Oil & Gas Co.

Shell Oil Co. announced an oil and gas strike in Kern County, Calif., that flowed 445 barrels of oil and 1 million cubic feet of natural gas a day.

Texasco U.S.A. and Wainoco Oil Corp. entered into a $50 million joint drilling venture to explore some 50 prospects in the United States.

Prime sliced to 18%; borrowing still high

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most major banks across the country lowered their prime lending rate another notch Tuesday to 18 percent from 18 1/2 percent but analysts expect relief from still-high borrowing costs to be "agonizingly slow."

"Any further declines are likely to be limited by unusually heavy borrowing by the Treasury in the weeks immediately ahead," said David M. Jones, economist for Aubrey G. Lanston & Co.

Chase Bank, the nation's second largest bank, led the way in cutting the prime to its lowest level since last Dec. 2 and it was followed by virtually all major banks, including Bank of America, the largest, and No. 3 Chase Manhattan.

The move came on the heels of last Friday's report by the Federal Reserve that the nation's money supply had dropped sharply and of a decline in the cost of bank funds.

Because of the easing of money growth after a jump early in the year the Fed has allowed the federal funds, a primary source of bank money, to drift to the 15-16 percent range from 20 percent just a few months ago. Other bank costs have eased accordingly.

But another influence in the lower bank rates is a virtual drying up of loan demand in some parts of the country. Big business has been seeking more attractive rates in the commercial paper market and smaller businesses have trimmed their spending because of the "still-agonizing" cost of money.

Michael Sumichrast, chief economist for the National Association of Homebuilders, said while he's "delighted that the prime has come down, it still means builders can't pay 20 percent for loans and most can't pay that nor can they hope to recover the added costs."

While many expect the prime to remain on a downward path from the record 21 1/2 percent it hit last December, Jones said the drop will be "agonizingly slow," and he cited Treasury's estimated net new borrowing needs in the second quarter that "substantially exceed" initial estimates of $2.93 billion.

Some Wall Street analysts are projecting Treasury will raise as much as $10-$15 billion in a quarter when income tax receipts historically have allowed Treasury either to pay down debt or sharply reduce its borrowings.

Jones expects interest rates to go down, but not rapidly. "The economy should start to flatten and this will keep the downward momentum, even if the huge government needs limit the decline."

But before that happens, Sumichrast maintains "the floor is going to fall out of the housing market. Until rates get down to 12 percent builders won't be able to build and Americans won't be able to buy homes."

Rally cut short as Dow Jones loses in heavy profit-taking due to prime

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks fell in heavy trading Tuesday when a rally sparked by a prime rate cut collapsed under profit-taking pressures and a report Soviet troops planned military maneuvers in Poland.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 blue-chip stocks, up more than 6 points at midday, followed Monday's 11.80-point surge, fell 3.76 points to 972.66.

Many analysts still believe the Dow Average will make a run at the magical 1,000 level soon but will have to fight through profit taking, particularly at the 980 level, to make it.

Brokers said some selling erupted after the Fed news because investors and the rest of the world are worried the maneuvers might be used to quell labor unrest in that country and lead to a confrontation between East and West.

The Reagan administration has said any East Bloc maneuvers, although common at this time of the year, would be studied for any sign that they may be involved with Poland's internal situation.

The New York Stock Exchange index fell 0.36 to 74.73 and the price of an average share decreased 16 cents. Declines edged advances 805-727 among the 1,919 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

Big Board volume totaled 56,610,000 shares, up from the 46,180,000 traded Monday. Brokers said the stepped up trading indicated institutions were coming off the sidelines to participate.

Trendsetting Citibank triggered early buying when it cut its key lending rate to its lowest level since Dec. 2 and most other banks followed. Investors are hopeful further cuts will occur in the near future.

The prime rate cut followed the Federal Reserve's report last Friday that the nation's money supply posted sharp declines in the latest statistical week which took pressure off the Fed to tighten credit.

Investors also seemed to applaud the last segment of President Reagan's budget plan to cut $48.6 billion from government spending in fiscal 1982. The plan was transmitted officially to Congress.

Reagan sent his budget plan to Congress, saying he was "determined to stop the spending juggernaut." The controversial plan faces a major fight on Capitol Hill and Wall Street will be watching.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled $1,087,100 shares, compared with 52,014,700 traded Monday.

The American Stock Exchange index dropped 2.95 to 336.94 and the price of a share decreased 17 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC issues lost 1.11 to 199.03.

On the trading floor, Sony Corp. was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/4 to 17 1/4 in trading that included blocks of 150,000 shares at 17 1/4 and 100,000 shares at 17 3/4 and two 100,000-share blocks at 17 1/2.

RCA (ex-dividend) was second, off 1 to 28 1/2 after an opening block of 250,000 shares crossed at 28. The company Monday said it expects to report considerably lower first-quarter earnings.

American Airlines was the third most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/4 to 14 1/4. AMAX, which was the fourth most active issue, falling 3/4 to 54 1/4.

Continental takeover near — analyst

HOUSTON (UPI) — An East Coast airline analyst Tuesday said Texas International Airlines appeared to have won its fight for Continental Airlines and the next step, barring unforeseen developments, was Civil Aeronautics Board approval of the takeover.

TIA as of Tuesday was still short of a majority of Continental stock but had accumulated 67 million of the 15.4 million shares outstanding, about 44 percent. TIA hopes to buy more and carry 48.5 percent of Continental stock into a Thursday Continental stockholder vote on merger with Western Airlines.

TIA, a Houston-based regional carrier serving 14 states and Mexico, hoped to block the Western merger and propose its own consolidation with Los Angeles-based Continental, the nation's sixth largest airline. The combination would give TIA the shortcut to trunk carrier status it long has sought.

An analyst UPI interviewed by telephone Tuesday said TIA appeared already to have a big enough block of stock to stop the Continental-Western merger and, after the formality of Thursday's vote, likely can proceed with plans for its own combination with Continental.

"So far as I can see it, it's free and clear for Texas Air Corp. (TIA's holding company), the analyst said. "They'll have something like 48 or 49 percent of the stock, the CAB says they can vote it. I don't see anything to stop them."

TIA-Continental combination might require explanation of some competing routes they fly out of Houston, but the analyst said CAB approval of a voting trust to manage TIA's Continental stock suggested the CAB might look favorably on a TIA takeover.

Continental was still fighting in the courts to stop TIA, although thus far it had lost at every turn.

A Continental spokesman said a simple majority of the stock voted would be required to stop the Western merger, but the analyst said it was unlikely an outstanding stock vote would vote. "The analyst said a minority vote would be enough to win the Continental stockholders vote on the Western merger."

"The odds are that, if (TIA's percentage holdings) isn't (enough), that they'll know and make sure they have what they need," the analyst said. "It's not that hard to get in this kind of market for Continental. They're willing to pay $1 1/2."

The analyst said TIA's tender offer of $13 a share for Continental stock is more than $1 above current market price ($11.75 as of noon Tuesday) and therefore attractive to shareholders.

He said you're shareholder of Continental, what do you do? I don't see any real point in not tendering it (to TIA). Otherwise, I don't see a reason not to just let it all unless there's (the far out) thing that might see a white knight coming along to rescue Continental from this (white knight) appeared to be on the horizon to fight TIA.

South's face hit up as he opened two spades. The first card appeared when partner responded two no trump and a real frown appeared when he saw the dummy.

He ruffed the heart lead and slowly and carefully ran off all his trumps. Unfortunately for South, East managed to hang on to three diamonds and three clubs and while South got 100 points for his honors he was still down one.

Do you see how South misplayed the hand? Once that king of hearts was led South had been handed his contract on a silver platter.

He could set up a heart ruff in dummy. He should ruff high, lead a spade to dummy's ten, ten carefully that East had been handed his contract on a silver platter.

West led the low spade, finesse dummy's seven if necessary, lead another heart from dummy, discard an appropriate loser and eventually get to discard one loser on what would be a good heart.

The late George Kaufman once said that there were two ways to tell when a certain bad player held a good hand. First, his face would light up, and then he would mislay it.

Mesa nearly mirror image of CSI

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho will be looking in a mirror when it tries for a national tournament berth Saturday night.

The Golden Eagles will be in Arizona to take on Mesa Junior College in a one-game bi-regional showdown at 7:30 p.m. The winner takes off the next day for Hutchinson, Kan., and a Tuesday night date with Chipola, Fla., in the NJCAA tournament. The loser goes home.

"If we both play well it should be a good game," Mesa Coach Tom Bennett said. "From what I hear about CSI, we match up very well and it sounds like we play very similarly."

Early reports received in Twin Falls seemed to overstate Mesa. The first indication was that Mesa was about 6-8 across the back line.

"I wish," said Bennett, "I suppose the average is about 6-7."

Mesa's tallest starter is center Cliff Klooster at 6-7. He averages about five points and five rebounds a game; the coach said.

The backline scoring is provided by Darryl Powell, 6-5, 190-pounder, who leads Mesa with an 18-point average and 8.5 rebounds. On the other side is 6-5 Tom May, who averages 13 points and four rebounds.

"We think both of our guards are good players," Bennett said. "They handle the ball well and they both will penetrate. Penetration isn't part of our offense but they have the individual ability to go when they see the opening."

Tallest of the guards is 6-4 Fred Thompson, who is averaging 13 points, while the other spot is held down by Byron Walker, a six-footer with an 11.5 per game average. All of Mesa's starters are sophomores.

Mesa is carrying a long winning streak into the game — a fact that doesn't bode well for CSI.

"We're 30-2 now," he said, "and I guess our streak is in the low 20s. I really don't know. Maybe it's just 20 but it could be 21, 22, 23 — something like that."

"This is a strange team," he said of his 10th-ranked crew. "When we first started showing up in the rankings and then as the streak got longer, everyone was talking about it. But the players never did talk about those things. That might be the best thing about the club... they are not distracted by peripheral things."

Bennett said this also shows on the court.

"We don't play with much emotion. It's all pretty businesslike on the floor," he said.

Bennett's philosophy on the game closely resembles that of CSI Coach Dave Campbell. "And neither will surprise the other much. They met two or three times when Campbell was at New Mexico Military.

"We seem to be capable of playing at different speeds but I think we do prefer the up-tempo. We're not an all-out fast break team but we look for it all the time. I'd say we were more in the controlled-fast-break area," Bennett said.

Defensively, "we play man-to-man most of the time. We prefer it," he said. However, Mesa has used half-court zone presses and 1-3-1 zone defenses too.

"I think both of us will be in man most of Saturday night," Bennett predicted.

"The only thing we'll have going for us is we've got one good rim and one that's one inch smaller than the other. We always have the good one on at our end... we switch them at halftime," he joked.

Regardless of which team wins Saturday night, space already has been reserved for Sunday morning at the Phoenix airport. The winner will meet Chipola at 8:30 p.m. (MST) Tuesday night.

Poachers get big fines, lose hunting rights

SHOSHONE — Prosecution for an illegal elk killing has resulted in civil and misdemeanor fines of $7,925 plus loss of hunting and fishing privileges for 30 years, eight days in jail and five year's probation.

The judgement completed a case that was started last November when six persons were apprehended with an illegally in possession.

The completed sentence was handed down by Judge Dan Hurlbutt Jr. Monday night after the state successfully prosecuted six individuals. As part of the judgement, Hurlbutt assessed four of the defendants $2,100 apiece in fines and two others $300 each on an abetting charge. However, he suspended $1,100 of the larger fines and cut the abetting fines in half.

Debbie Dixon, Jerome, and Lawrence Kimball, Carey, both were charged with aiding and abetting in a misdemeanor. They received $150 fines and lost their hunting and fishing privileges for three years each. In addition, they were required to pay one sixth apiece of $125. The Fish and Game Department of Fish and Game to have the meat cared for after apprehension. They also will be on probation for six months.

James Dixon, Jerome; John Kimball, Challis; Kenny Kimball, Bellevue, and Tim Young, Bellevue, were cited on seven counts of unlawful possession and transportation of elk. They each received fines of $2,100 with $1,100 suspended, 875 apiece in civil penalty, each had his hunting and fishing privileges suspended for two years and each will have to spend two days in jail. Additionally, they will be on a year's probation.

Blaine County Prosecuting Attorney Keith Roark said Tuesday that the fines and suspensions were close to what was sought but they (the defendants) did not get the jail time we considered appropriate.

"However, it was a very difficult trial with a lot of witnesses. We are very satisfied with Judge Hurlbutt and his performance (during the trial). It was a very consistent performance by the judge," he said.

The incident occurred last November at Lava Creek east of Carey. The manager of a nearby ranch Western regional "double-header" and Game personnel set up and roadblock and stopped the six persons as they were driving out of the area.

OSU, DePaul among favorites NCAA shootout starts Thursday

By United Press International

The big guns in the NCAA basketball tournament are warming up for a weekend barrage that is expected to culminate in a DePaul-Oregon State shoot-out for the championship on March 30 in Philadelphia.

Both teams have lost only once this season. DePaul, ranked No. 1 in the nation, opens its title bid Saturday in second round Midwest regional action at Dayton, Ohio, against the winner of the Creighton-St. Joseph's game. The same night, in Los Angeles, No. 2 Oregon State faces the winner of the Kansas State-San Francisco first round Western regional tussle.

DePaul coach Ray Meyer is a little apprehensive if Creighton comes up as winner Thursday night. The Blue Demons trounced Creighton 83-57 last month and unbelievably it has Meyer a little worried.

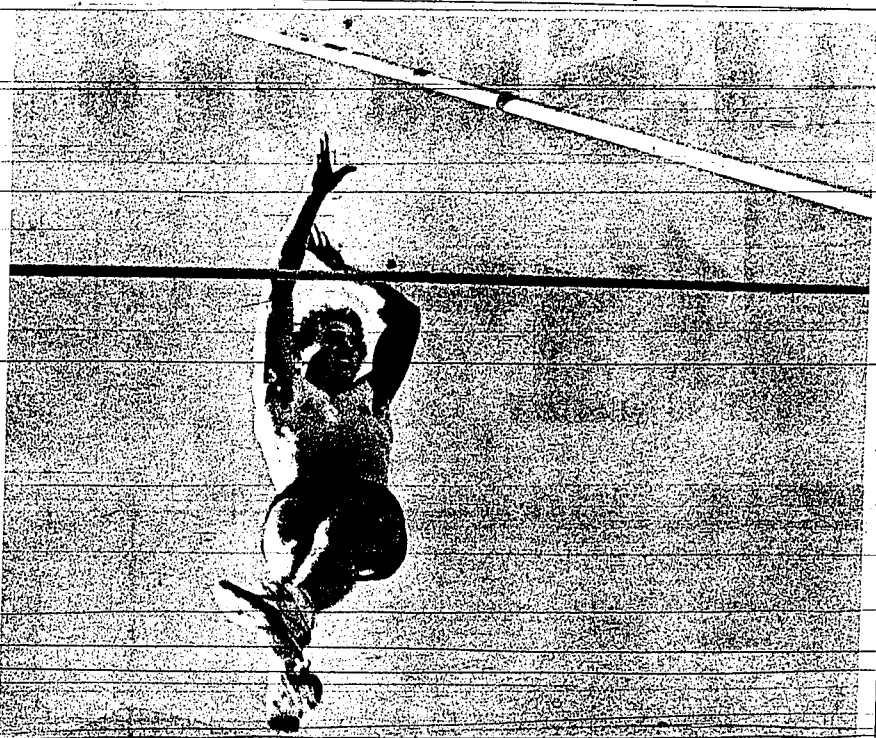

"I'd rather play anyone, including Oregon State, than have to play someone we've already beaten," says Meyer, lamenting that his Demons have a psychological edge against them.

But if Mark Aguirre is a criterion, Creighton should be beaten without difficulty. Aguirre is averaging 20 points as the nation's 15th leading scorer.

Dayton, Marquette victors in NIT — E2

NCAA action opens Thursday with the "Brigham Young facing the Ivy League James Madison in Eastern regionals at Providence, R.I. Howard meets Wyoming in the other half of the Kansas State-San Francisco Western regional double-header in I.A.A.U. Maryland plays Tennessee Chattanooga as part of the Creighton-St. Joseph's Midwest regional (win/loss) at Dayton, while first round Midwest regional pairings in Austin, Texas, has Missouri playing Lamar and Arkansas meeting Mercer.

Completing first round play on Friday night: East at Charlotte, N.C. Houston vs. Villanova and Virginia Commonwealth vs. Long Island University. West at El Paso, Texas — Fresno State vs. Northeastern and Idaho vs. Pittsburgh. Midwest at Tuscaloosa, Ala. — Alabama-Birmingham vs. Western Kentucky and Sam Houston State vs. Colgate. Midwest at Wichita, Kan. — Southern University vs. Wichita State and Kansas vs. Mississippi.

Senior Twin Falls pole vaulter David Routh goes without shirt during Tuesday's practice, under sunny and warm skies

Bruin tracksters mostly ???

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — The twin Falls Bruins kickoff their 1981 track season Friday with a lot of question marks.

Coach Jerry Kleinkopf, who hasn't had a lot of depth since a run of terror through most of the 1970s, is looking for some latent talent to surface.

"We have some quality but not in a lot of events and we're hoping to be able to put together some competitive relay teams. I don't know if we can challenge for victories but at least some relay teams that can run with most of them," the coach said.

Friday's meet will begin at 2:30 p.m. at Bruin Stadium with Highland, Jerome, Skyline and Blackfoot in attendance. The Bruins will be home for the first three meets of the season, travel to Skyline for one and then return April 10 for the annual Hank Powers Meet.

Girls preview — E2

From a realistic standpoint, Kleinkopf said, "It appears our points in the open events might be few and far between."

But he's expecting strong showings from halfmiler Eric McManaman, a senior and quartermiler Steve Gajley, a junior.

"Both of them have looking really good in practice," he said. "Tuesday Eric ran his 1/4 quarters (the first in 62, next five in 55; eight-minute rest and then one in 55 and five in 63). He opened up on the last one and ran a 55 on his 12th quarter of the day."

In the field events, Kleinkopf expects senior Greg Scherer to place "in every meet we enter" in the long and triple jumps. He also anticipates that pole vaulters Dave Routh and sophomore Scott Scherer will pick up consistent points although 15-foot plus and state defending champion Casey Lewis of Capital is back this year. Both Bruins cleared 13 feet in practice this week.

The returning short sprinters are juniors Troy Clements, Larry Hurt and Greg Kitteridge. They will be counted on for relay work along with Bob Mitchell, Mike Rice, Virgil Hurt, Scherer and Joe Shelby.

Dan King is the only Bruin hope in the hurdles thus far. Scott Scherer will try them but Kleinkopf anticipates vaulting will take up most of the sophomore's time.

McManaman heads the distance crops and is joined by returnees Harold Joy and Sven Mikseil. Sophomores Chris Williams and Bob Champman have looked pretty good in practice, Kleinkopf said.

After three years of expecting at least six points out of the high jump with Ken Stagleme, Twin Falls may not enter that event this week. Stagleme is introducing Shelby, a leaping junior, to the event and said he can get him over 6-4 this year. But Shelby also is working in the long and triple jumps.

Scott Holloway and five girls the Bruins two probable 140-foot discus throwers but only sophomore Trip Craig is looming in the spotlight.

"We're going into the season with a little different idea 'this year,'" Kleinkopf said. "With spring break coming up in three weeks, we've decided to bring the team along a little more slowly then start working and pushing the week after the break is over. In the past years, we've reached pretty good levels with the team and lost some of it during the break."

"Judging from what we saw in the Mindomde (indoor track meets) Highland obviously is ahead of us right now. They've evidently had a very strong indoor-out-rebounder in the past and this season. We may suffer at their hands a little this week but we hope to catch up to them later in the counts," Kleinkopf said.

Pitt coach feels team one of East's best, faces Vandals

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh basketball Coach Dr. Roy Chipman believes his Eastern 8 champion Panthers are one of the best teams in the East. His club will attempt to prove it Friday when it plays Idaho in the opening round of the NCAA tournament in El Paso, Texas.

"I feel we've got as good a team as anyone in the East," Chipman said Tuesday during a pre-tourney press conference. "I like the way we've been playing, and if we can continue it will be all right."

Pitt, 18-1, captured the Eastern 8 with a 64-60 win over cross-town rival Duquesne, and won nine of its final 11 contests. Idaho, 25-3, advanced to the NCAA tournament for the first time in its history by beating Montana 76-64 to win the Big Sky Conference.

Chipman's 1-3-1 zone defense largely was responsible for Pitt's winning the Eastern 8 crown.

"The team is playing excellent defense and defense seems to take over in a tournament," said Chipman, who has a doctorate in physical education. "It's an advantage going into the tournament relying so much on defense, because defense is a more consistent thing in these big games."

"An offense can suffer because of emotion or nervousness, but we've shown we can overcome these types of offensive lapses by playing tough defense."

Pitt is led by 6-foot-8 senior forward Sam Clancy, who averaged 16.1 point-per-game and is the NCAA's career leading rebounder among active players with 1,330. Idaho's leader is sophomore guard Brian Kellerman with a 16.4 point-per-game average.

"Idaho has an excellent coach, and a well-coached team in a tournament could be a big factor," Chipman said. "They are a patient team and they try to keep the game in the 60s. The first 15 minutes probably will determine the tempo of the game."

Idaho Coach Don Monson's Vandals won their first Big Sky Conference basketball title since the league was formed in 1953.

"We're a relatively short team that relies on quickness," Monson said via a telephone hookup from Moscow. "Our kids try to do things they're capable of doing and stay within those limits. We've had a problem getting out-rebounded in the past and we expect it to continue in the tournament."

The Vandals rely on the jumping ability of Phil Hopson and Ron Maben for most of their rebounding. "That pair also provides most of the inside punch the Vandals boast and it was their offensive rebound scoring that eventually turned the tide against Montana in the Big Sky title game."

Idaho has 6-10 Jeff Brudie available but despite his size Brudie is more a wing player than inside scorer and rebounder.

Despite the usual low-scoring of Idaho games, the Vandals consider themselves to be a running team. Monson considers the Vandals a defensive team first but he admits his Vandals like to force the break more than most teams.

The winner of the Pittsburgh-Idaho game will play the Carolina Sunday in El Paso in the West Regional of the tournament.

Veteran committee can elect two

Former L.A. skipper likely to make Hall

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Walt Alston, the journeyman minor league first baseman and manager who was destined to lead the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers to four world championships and seven pennants, is expected to be elected to baseball's Hall of Fame today by the committee on veterans...

Longshot candidates include Babe Horn, who had a 324 lifetime batting average, mostly with the Dodgers from 1926 to 1945; Charlie Grimm, long-time first baseman and manager with the Chicago Cubs in the 1930s; Jimmy Dykes, an outstanding third baseman for the Philadelphia Athletics in the 1930s and Glenn Wright, star shortstop for the Pittsburgh Pirates and Dodgers in the 1920s.

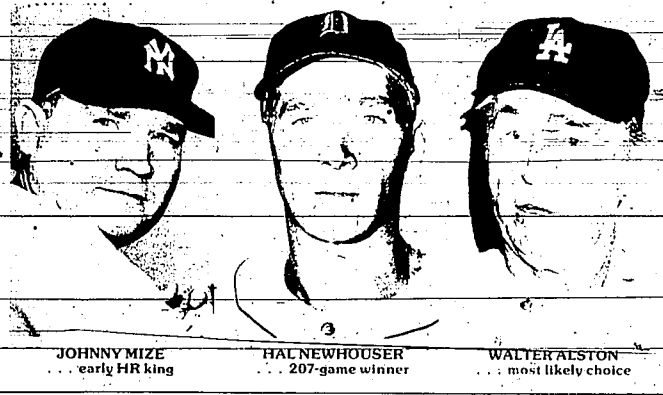

from 1936 through 1953. He was home run champion or co-champion four times and reached a peak of 51 homers in 1947. A 6-foot, 2-inch, 230-pound first baseman, he was known as "The Big Cat" because of his graceful swing.

Also considered strong candidates in the playing area are Johnny Mize, a four-time home run king during the 1930s and 1940s, and Hal Newhouse, a 207-game winner in the American League in the 1940s and 1950s.

Alston, who struck out in his only major league appearance at the plate, was the surprise choice as manager of the Dodgers in 1954. One year later he led them to their only world championship in Brooklyn. Working on a succession of one-year contracts, he went on to lead the Dodgers to three more world championships and six more pennants.

Newhouse had a 26-9 record in 1946 — by which time the stars had returned from military service and baseball was again normal — and for about five seasons ranked with Bob Feller as the two best pitchers in the league.

The committee of 18 veterans is empowered to name one executive and one player to be inducted into the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N. Y., next Aug. 3. The two will be inducted along with Bob Gibson, a 251-game winner and World Series hero, who was elected by 10-year veterans of the Baseball Writers Association of America last January.

World champs Newly-acquired Davis seeks spot in rich Philly outfield

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — For a guy who got his start in the major leagues wearing a pair of tennis shoes in a one-day tryout, Dick Davis has done rather well for himself. And while he hasn't made the team yet, Davis is confident that he'll find a spot on the 25-man roster when the Philadelphia Phillies head north to begin their defense of their World Series championship.

Little's changed for White Sox hurler

By United Press International — The more things change, the more they remain the same. Ross Baumgarten didn't say that...but he knows the feeling well. The left-handed pitcher may need a scorecard to familiarize himself with his many new teammates, yet all he has to do is take the mound to realize he's still playing for the same old White Sox.

despite a 3.44 earned run average in 24 starts. His teammates scored just 25 runs behind him. Pinch hitter Bobby Molinaro broke a 4-4 tie in the fifth with a single against relief ace Ed Farmer, who gave up two runs on three hits in two innings of work to take the loss. Slugger Schmidt working to lower strikeout total CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — Mike Schmidt knows he can put the ball out of sight. Sometimes he finds it harder just to put it in play. That's why the slug-ging third baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies is in an experiment as a chief looking for the recipe to help him avoid prolonged stumps.

Now more assured than ever, Schmidt keeps working on the batting skills that have made him the most productive slugger in baseball over the last seven years.

Possible sale of Phils brings Green to tears

By MILTON RICHMAN, UPI Sports Editor — CLEARWATER, Fla. — Dallas Green just couldn't help it. He tried to keep his feelings bottled up inside the tears from coming, but they spilled down the cheeks of his sun-tanned face in spite of himself.

Phillies' owner wanted to see him and speak with him at 8 that morning. "Ruly said to me, 'Dallas, what I want to tell you is probably the most difficult thing I've ever gone through in my life,'" Owens recounted the conversation. "Daddy and I talked about it and we've decided to sell the Phillies."

"I've heard those stories myself and wonder where in the world they ever got started," Green said. "I've heard Sylvia supposed to be related to the Carpenters or the duPonts. I sure wish it was true. She says the same thing."

Green said he was not worried about his future with the club regardless of who the new owners would be. Bill Giles, executive vice president of the Phillies who is well aware of Green's capabilities, already has spoken with Carpenters about heading a group to buy the club.

Briefly in sports

Former Buhl cager wins honor BUHL — Karin Meier, a Junior center on the Boise State women's basketball team, has been named to the second team of the Northwest Women's Basketball League.

A graduate of Buhl High School, Meier was sixth in league scoring with a 16.0 average, eighth in rebounding with 8.4, and seventh in steals with 2.8.

Clinic set for weekend JACKPOT, Nev. — The Fourth District Coaches Association's annual clinic will be conducted Saturday and Sunday at Cactus Pete's.

Speakers for the two-day clinic will be John Astorguia, Twin Falls basketball coach; Craig Dexter, Minico; Bob O'Mera, Meridian football coach, and several others.

Lumberman Rod Hohnhorst, Gooding, a former Idaho State and Valley High School star, will be the featured speaker at Saturday night's banquet.

Idaho State University's continuing education department will offer one academic credit, said Dr. Mike Morris, ISU physical education chairman.

Cage competition Saturday

TWIN FALLS — The annual Optimist Tri-Star Basketball Contest will be held Saturday at Robert Stuart Junior High School from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The contest is for both boys and girls between the ages of eight and 13. The age groups are 9-9, 10-11 and 12-13.

Players are judged on dribbling, shooting and passing skills. The top three players in each age group will receive medals and the top overall boy and girl will receive a trophy.

All participants must wear gym shoes. A hamburger will be provided to each participant. The Twin Falls Optimist Club and the Twin Falls Recreation Department are sponsoring the contest.

Magazine to fetre Broncos

BOISE — A special edition of Tom Lloyd's Big Sky Football magazine will soon be coming off the presses to commemorate Boise State University's national football championship.

The 48-page magazine will contain stories about the winning team at BSU. A profile of athletic director Lyle Smith, a column by BSU President John Keiser, an article by Statesman sports editor Jim Pore, comments by other Big Sky football coaches and a week-by-week summary of the 1980 season.

Only 5,000 copies of the special edition will be printed. Copies, priced at $4 each, can be ordered by mail from the Broncos Athletic Association, 1810 University Drive, Boise, ID 83725, or purchased at the bookstore in the Student Union Building. One dollar will be donated to the pavilion fund for orders that are filled through the BAA, Lloyd said.

Ecology course offered

TWIN FALLS — A wildlife ecology course is being offered for Magic Valley teachers April 2, 3 and 4 in Twin Falls.

Sponsored by the University of Idaho, the course will be taught in the Shields Building of the College of Southern Idaho. It runs through the evenings of April 2nd and 3rd and all day April 4.

It will be taught jointly by Dr. Lew Nelson, Jr., wildlife professor at the University of Idaho, and Stu Murrell of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. The course, which is free, offers one credit.

Subjects include history of wildlife management and wildlife management concepts and techniques.

Speedway to open early

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indianapolis Motor Speedway will open its doors earlier than usual this year for some 500 practice.

The track normally begins 500 practice to the month of May, but this year the 2 1/2-mile oval will be open all of next week and three days the following week for practice by veteran drivers and teams which already have entered cars for the May 24 race.

Goodyear has scheduled spring tire tests March 26-April 5, and a three-day rookie orientation program has been added by the U.S. Auto Club to this year's timetable for April 4-6.

Ainge named top WAC player

DENVER, Colo. (UPI) — Brigham Young senior guard Danny Ainge, who had the second-best performance of his career in a key conference game last weekend, has been named Western Athletic Conference player of the week.

Ainge, playing his last game in Marriott Center Saturday, dumped in 35 points and had four assists and two steals in leading BYU to a 96-76 win over Utah.

The Utah loss, coupled with Wyoming's win over Air Force Friday, made the Utes and Wyoming WAC co-champions. Utah was the league's automatic qualifier for the NCAA tournament by virtue of a close-loss, but Wyoming and BYU both got large berths in the tourney.

Bengals' Griffin wants trade

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cincinnati Bengal running back Archie Griffin, whose offensive productivity on the Ohio State gridiron twice earned him the Heisman trophy, has asked to be traded to a team that might give him more playing time.

Bengal Assistant General Manager Mike Brown said the request surfaced in a recent meeting Griffin, 26, had with team management.

"But I made no assurance we could swing a deal," said Brown. "It would depend upon our getting what we consider a fair value in return. That would be the overriding concern in our minds."

Marcol pleads innocent

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Former Green Bay Packers kicker Chester Marcol pleaded innocent Tuesday to a charge of reckless use of a firearm at his estranged wife's home in Green Bay.

A May 20 jury trial was set for Marcol, now a member of the Houston Oilers and the fourth leading scorer in history for the Packers. He was released on a $1,000 recognizance bond.

OSU spreads out awards

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — There was something for everyone on the starting five at the Oregon State University basketball banquet Monday night.

Center Steve Johnson most-valuable-player-of-the-year award.

The 6-foot-10 senior leads the Beavers in scoring with an average of 21.1 points per game and leads the nation in field goal accuracy with .754.

Guard Ray Blum won the Ed Lewis leadership trophy and guard Mark Radford the Howard Merrill trophy for desire and determination.

Iowa's Olson named top Big Ten boss by UPI

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Lute Olson is unimpressed by high scores, frustrated with television networks and experienced in postseason tournaments.

"Success can be accomplished in anything based on confidence," said the Iowa basketball coach, who has guided the Hawkeyes to three consecutive Big Ten titles and is headed for his third straight trip to the NCAA tournament in his seventh season.

Olson, who guided the injury-riddled Hawkeyes to the NCAA Final Four in 1980, Tuesday was named UPI Big Ten Coach of the Year.

The Hawkeyes finished second in the Big Ten at 13-5 behind Indiana. Iowa, 21-6 overall, received a first-round bye in the NCAA Midwest Regional and will meet the winners of the Wichita State-Southern University game in the second round.

This season has been easier for Olson, who last year had to overcome the loss of playmaker Ronnie Lester yet still finished fourth in the NCAA tournament.

"When you've been to the Final Four the previous year, people forget what you had to go through," the 47-year-old silver-haired coach said. "We had to win our last two games quicker than in Iowa," he said. Yet despite being ranked as high as sixth in the country this season, Iowa has not been on national television—something Olson is bitter about.

"I really think the NCAA should get involved in the nationwide telecast of basketball as it does in football," he said. "I hear from people from Ohio to California that they are sick and tired of seeing the same teams on television."

"I'm so sick and tired of seeing Notre Dame's 'I' turn green as the color of their uniforms."

"My No. 1 pet peeve when I was in California was when a kid wanted to look at the scoreboard after the game," Olson said. "It's such a meaningless statistic. Our players want to look at the chart at the game. To me, it's a 100 times better indicator of what a player does."

Encounter on freeway ends with obscenity

Out on the freeway's frontage road this morning I saw a girl on a bicycle with an infant in a pack shoulder-strapped to her back. She wobbled a lot and dithered in and out of the soft sand. Her hair kept blowing across her eyes. Care sped by. The baby was so small, it had the vacant look of the newborn. The girl tittered, put her feet down, pushed off to pedal again. She had no control, or hardly any. She got off the bike-at-the-on-ramp-and-walked it up the incline onto the freeway. You could see the perspiration glisten on her face. By this time, I could feel it also on mine. Scary scene. I drove up close and asked if I could help her get down to the side road. She delivered the classic obscene two-word imperative, and pedaled out into the traffic.

BEETHOVEN

Q. How was it possible that Beethoven though deaf could compose music he couldn't hear?

A. He could hear it. In his mind's ear. Lot of good musicians can hear the music on a score just by looking at the notes. Can't you hum "Jingle Bells" in your head without making any sound? I can. Better than Barbara Streisand.

Two out of every three women you see have changed the color of their hair. Incidentally, the survey that turned up that fancy fact also revealed the average woman thinks about such a change for nine months before she does it. The first time, anyhow.

Q. What's wrong with my gold necklace? It turns my neck green.

A. It's not the necklace, my dear. It's your neck. Acid tarnishes gold. If you eat a lot of tomatoes and citrus fruits, that could do it. Or so say the medecoes.

GHOST DANCE

Plains Indians in the late 1880s were told by their medicine men that they could make themselves immune to U.S. Cavalry bullets by executing a little ritual called the Ghost Dance. Didn't work. Survivors said thousands died because of this malpractice.

The English artist Thomas Gainsborough used brushes with six-foot-long-handles to paint many of his portraits.

No living thing can change its color more variously than the squid.

Rapid Reply: No, sir, no water from the Gulf of Mexico flows into the Gulf Stream. That Gulf Stream name is misleading.
