

STEPHEN ALLED
2nd top official to quit in a week

DWR boss Allred resigns

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Stephen Allred, director of the Idaho Department of Water Resources, has submitted his resignation to Gov. John Evans, the Times-News has learned.

If accepted by Evans on Monday, it would be the second resignation by the head of a state agency within a week.

Tuesday, Health and Welfare Department Director Milton Klein announced he was leaving May 1. Allred's resignation would be effective in about a month.

Evans, visiting several towns in Cassia County on a "Capital For A Day" tour, was contacted in Albion Friday. He said he had discussed the issue with Allred. "There is nothing official I can report to you tonight," Evans said, however. "We'll probably have some news on Monday."

However, Press Aide Don Watkins said he understood Allred had submitted his resignation. Due to the number of press inquiries, Watkins said the governor would probably deal with the matter first thing Monday morning.

The Department of Water Resources announced Friday that Allred will hold a news conference at 10 a.m. Monday in the DWR's conference room. An official was "not at liberty" to say what the subject of the conference was.

Allred, who joined the department in 1966 as an engineer and became director in 1977, is angry over cutbacks by the Legislature's Joint Finance Appropriations Committee.

By resigning, sources said Allred will be freed of legislators' charges against him of "vested interests" and "politics" in arguing for restoration of the cuts by the Legislature.

Last week, the joint committee recommended a $408,000 reduction below current spending for the Department of Water Resources, including the loss of 21 of 89 state-funded positions.

The cuts eliminated the department's water quality and environment section; most of the projects and engineering section; three administrators; part of the dam safety program; and enforcement of the Stream Channel Protection Act.

A number of legislators will attempt to add up to $600,000 to the department's 1981-82 appropriation, when it is considered on the Senate floor next week.

The Idaho Waterusers Association is supportive of the move.

Sen. Dean VanEngelen, R-Burley, the leader of the conservative budget-scutters on the joint committee, has characterized Allred's reaction this week to the cutbacks as "politics."

A resignation could add credibility to Allred's argument that the cuts will affect Idaho's ability to defend its water against appropriation by other states and the federal government.

Although he has been mentioned for a position in the U.S. Interior Department with the Reagan Administration, Allred will probably join an engineering firm.

Next in line to Allred is DWR Deputy Director Kenneth Dunn.

Allred warns budget cuts threaten water

BOISE (UPI) — Reduction in the Idaho Department of Water Resources budget now is critical because of the potential threat of a raid on the state's water resources and curtailment of programs, the state's water chief said Friday.

DWR Director Steve Allred told the Senate Resources and Environment Committee the 20 percent reduction recommended by the legislative Joint Finance Appropriations Committee will reduce DWR's effort to below the 1973 level.

Allred said the reduction comes at a time when Idahans are experiencing increased pressures and threats in their water resources, both from actions in state and out of state.

"Without proper management in state, those who have water rights can lose the use of that water because of interference from others," he said. "Groundwater supplies are already declining and without sufficient management of those resources, lowering of water levels will take place from the mining of ground water and the race to deepen wells will increase."

Allred said outside the state there are increased pressures for use of water which Idaho depends on now or will depend upon in the future.

"I don't fear the outside raid," he said, "but we have to be aware of it."

Gov. John Evans recommended general fund expenditures of $3,278,700 for fiscal year 1982, but the joint fiscal committee reduced that amount to $2,918,200. The largest cut was in the resource analysis division, which requested $1,137,500 and was recommended by the joint committee to receive $829,500.

Allred noted shortages in the southwest United States, projected in 1964, "are now reality."

He said major oil companies developing oil shale in Colorado did not have enough water in the Colorado Basin and were looking toward the Green River in Wyoming and the Snake River in Idaho as water sources.

Allred also noted federal appointments in the water resource area are from the southwestern part of the country, while southwesterners chair several committees in Congress and others also extremely influential with the administration.

He said he hoped this would not result in a coalition.

"Also, Allred noted Idaho has no compact with states downstream from the Snake River and this may have to be settled in court so Idaho can receive its equitable share of water." He said while Idaho is losing irrigation land, Oregon is spending $1.2 billion in the development of new lands with water from the Snake and Columbia rivers.

"It's not the time to cut back in water resources in Idaho," Allred said.

He said the cutbacks also would have an effect on dam construction, mining settling ponds and development of "rare" Act lands.

"Mining projects such as Noranda's near Challis, Cyprus Mining near Clayton, Earth Resources near Silver City, Hecla, Sunshine, Simplot and others will be impaired because the department will not have the

El Salvador officials find bullet that killed missionary

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Salvadoran investigators have found a bullet used in the killing of four U.S. women missionaries and have sent it to the United States for analysis, Junta President Jose Napoleon Duarte said Friday.

As Duarte told a news conference the investigators had found the site where the three nuns and a lay missionary were raped and killed Dec. 2, U.S.-supplied Salvadoran troops pressed their drive against leftist guerrilla strongholds in four provinces.

Police also said the bullet-riddled bodies of at least 15 people were found dumped at dawn around San Salvador and Santa Ana, the nation's second largest city, 35 miles west of the capital.

Duarte's military-civilian junta has been under strong U.S. pressure to investigate allegations securely foreign were responsible for the killings of the Catholic missionaries, which resulted in a temporary suspension of U.S. military aid.

Duarte said the bullet was sent to an unidentified ballistics laboratory in the United States for analysis. Duarte said the investigation was being carried out by a five-man commission — four army officers and a civilian — and that he had been staying in close personal touch with its progress.

Meanwhile, Salvadoran troops, recently supplied with M-16 rifles and Huey helicopters from the United States, battled leftist rebels in four northern and eastern provinces on a mission "to suffocate causes of subversion."

The Defense Ministry has not issued casualty reports on the fighting in the provinces — Chalatenango, Cuscatlan, San Vicente and Morazan — and in the past has not given out such figures until the army sweeps ended.

Witnesses reported sporadic fighting outside Aguacayo, a village 10 miles north of the capital in a region that includes the nearby town of Suchitoto and Guazapa Volcans, where troops and rebels have clashed all week.

Armed leftist youths seized and burned a bus in the capital Friday and guerrillas blew up power lines to a key waterworks, leaving northwest San Salvador dry for several hours late Thursday, witnesses and authorities said.

The Catholic Church's Legal Aid Society estimates that 17,500 people have died in political violence in the past 14 months.

County health group urged

BOISE — Idaho counties do not need legislation to develop an insurance plan to "cover" the costs of catastrophic illnesses, county officials were told Friday.

Officials met with Idaho Association of Counties officials and legislators in Boise and discussed the indigent medical claims problems and a number of pieces of legislation.

An IAC proposal to mandate participation in catastrophic insurance failed in the Legislature, IAC legislative committee Chairman Bill Staker told the group.

"But we can on our own, through the association, form, develop, finance and invoke this insurance," Staker said. "All the counties together would keep each other from going bankrupt."

He said nothing in state law would prevent the creation of the plan.

Twin Falls County Commission Chairman Ann Cover, a member of the group's committee on the plan, said the insurance is estimated to cost Twin Falls County $26,000 per year.

Cover said $20,000 of the county's $60,000 indigent care budget has been spent so far this year, but a $25,000 claim is pending.

Under the insurance proposal being considered by the IAC, Staker said the state's 15 largest counties or any combination of counties equalling 75 percent of the population would be required to participate.

Counties would pay an estimated 50 cents per resident, and would be insured for all medically indigent expenses in excess of $5,000 per case per year.

For all 44 counties the cost is estimated at $40,000 per year.

But Staker warned there was no "free lunch" and that the insurance companies were out to make a profit. The counties' premiums would go up if statewide aggregate losses exceed $50,000 in a year, he said.

Idaho is one of 16 states in which counties are solely liable and pay all the cost of indigent claims, Staker complained.

"Who picks up the bill when nobody else does? The counties," he said. "The AIC has prepared legislation to repeal the Idaho law pertaining to county responsibility for the care and hospitalization of indigents."

But Staker said the bill is only an "attention getter" and stands no

Cuts may mothball nearly completed geothermal plant

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

IDAHO FALLS — The nearly completed Raft River geothermal plant may be mothballed if Congress approves President Reagan's budget.

Additional cuts unveiled Tuesday by Reagan leave no operating funds past Oct. 1 for the $40 million plant, which was to generate 5 megawatts and serve as a prototype for producing electricity with natural hot water below 300 degrees Fahrenheit.

The plant was to begin operating two months ago, but technical difficulties have delayed the start until June or later.

Dick Blackledge, Department of Energy Information officer in Idaho Falls, said Friday DOE officials have learned no funds remain for the Raft River project in Reagan's fiscal 1982 budget recommendations to Congress.

Idaho Sen. James McClure chairs the primary Senate committee concerned with energy development.

McClure said in a statement earlier this week he will support cuts affecting his constituents and expects other members of his committee to do likewise.

A McClure aide promised to look into specific cuts in the geothermal program but had not called back Friday afternoon.

Reagan trimmed an additional $13.8 billion from his proposed federal budget Tuesday after learning programs remaining in the budget would cost more than originally thought.

The new budget calls for $4.8 million in geothermal research, down from $16 million in the Carter budget.

Blackledge said DOE officials are reviewing all possibilities for the facility, including transferring ownership to a private company or other government agency.

The plant sits on public land posing problems for any transfer to the private sector, he said. Plant construction is essentially complete, Raft River site manager Russel Lease pointed out, and while related research might be cut back, he felt certain the plant would be tested — information was being compiled for companies interested in using the technology.

Electricity is produced commercially with dry steam at a handful of geothermal sites in the West, Lease said, but the number of such sites is limited. More than 4,000 sites have been found having water less than 300 degrees.

The plant and related research had a projected 1982 operating budget of $3.5 million, Blackledge said.

Inn tax

Legislature told without 2% tax, tourist industry will face great danger in future

BOISE (UPI) — A spokeswoman for the Idaho Innkeepers and Idaho Restaurant and Tavern Association says unless the Senate passes a bill requiring a 2 percent surcharge on hotel and campground accommodations, the state's tourist industry "will be in great danger."

Barbara Gwarty, executive vice president of the two organizations, said Tuesday's action by the Legislature's Joint Finance Appropriations Committee which cut funds to the Division of Economic and Community Affairs also eliminated funding of the Travel Promotion Division.

"That's the state's third largest industry in real danger unless the Senate acts favorably on House Bill 111, legislation which allows hotel and motel owners and campground operators to assess a 2 percent surcharge on accommodations with the proceeds earmarked for travel advertising and promotion," Mrs. Gwarty said.

Mrs. Gwarty said the bill received a "40-pass" recommendation from the House Revenue and Taxation Committee and passed the House last month.

"The lack of state promotion is hurting Idaho's economy far more than most people realize," Mrs. Gwarty said. "In 1979, tourists spent $10,000,000 in Idaho but, allowing for inflation, that was $2,000,000 less than the year before and last year we slipped even further."

"That $83,000,000 loss was not only felt by hotels, motels and restaurants but also by farmers, retailers, service stations and garages and almost every type of business. The state suffered too because it meant a drop of $2,500,000 in sales tax collections."

Mrs. Gwarty said last year Idaho ranked 45th among the 50 states in income from tourist and at the bottom of the list among western states in travel promotion.

"Every other western state spends at least a million dollars a year," she said. "And some, such as Utah and Nevada, spend four to six million. Idaho's total expenditure last year was $385,000 and now even that is gone."

Soviets launch cosmonauts

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Soviet cosmonauts Friday docked their Soyuz spacecraft with the orbiting Salyut-6 space station in a flight apparently intended to honor Soviet space pioneer Yuri Gagarin, Tass said.

Tass said the docking was completed at 2:33 p.m. MST.

"After checking the air tightness of the docking unit, Cosmonauts Vladimir Kovalyov and Viktor Savinykh transferred to the Salyut-6 station," the news agency said.

Tass delayed announcing the link-up for more than four hours but gave no explanation for the delay.

The news agency said the crew would check the Salyut's equipment and perform any maintenance necessary to ensure the satellite's "further operation in the piloted mode."

The flight commander, Kovalyov, 39, and engineer Savinykh, 41, blasted off in their Soyuz-T4 from the Baikonur launching pad Thursday, one month to the day before the 20th anniversary of Gagarin's historic first flight into space April 12, 1961.

The cosmonauts paid tribute to Gagarin's pioneering mission in pre-launch comments published by Tass.

The duration of the new mission, called Soyuz-T4, was not announced. Some observers said Soviet scientists might be planning another of the endurance-test "space spelunkers" they have favored in recent years, complete with orbital visits by other spacemen from friendly socialist nations.

There was also some speculation that the new spacecraft from the U.S.S.R.'s Baikonur cosmodrome might have been planned to compete for headlines with the U.S. space shuttle, scheduled for launch next month.

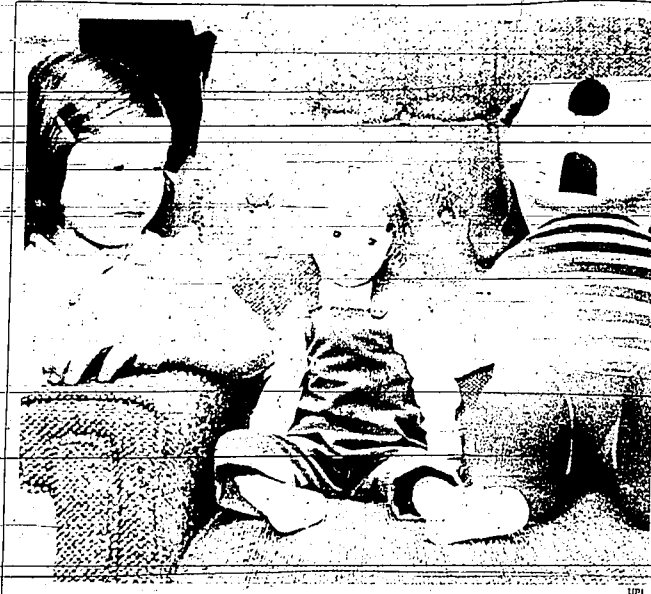

But Western experts dismissed the idea that any Soyuz flight could compete for attention with the space shuttle, a 2.7-million-pound hardware package that dwarfs Soviet rocketry in size and complexity.

Russian flight engineer Savinykh touched on several American firsts in a survey of the past two decades of man's space adventures. Asked by a Tass correspondent to comment about being the 100th human space traveler, he said, "Such is my cosmic destiny."

"Our flight was preceded by Yuri Gagarin's legendary heroic feat," the former spacecraft designer said, also noting such historic missions as Neil Armstrong's flight to the moon and the Soviet-American Soyuz-Apollo experiment.

The Salyut laboratory, launched about 2 1/2 years ago, has been the home of all Soviet cosmonauts ever since. The combination research facility and living quarters is about the size of a large trailer home, and its 100 cubic yards of interior space has enabled Russian files to remain aloft for as long as six months at a time.

Forever young

Four-year-old Mindy Vell of Salinas, Ca., sits with her favorite doll 'Snoopy' and her sister, Michele. A Mindy will never grow old doctors say, due to a rare genetic defect that affects 1 in a million newborns. She has gained only 7 pounds since birth. She is unable to talk but is learning sign language and may walk within a year. According to her mother, she behaves like any child her size. "I have every mother's dream, a child that can stay young forever."

6th computer added to space shuttle

HOUSTON (UPI) — Space shuttle flight controllers will put a sixth computer on board as a backup in case an emergency landing becomes necessary during the craft's first orbital test flight.

It is an indication of how conservative this mission has been designed, said Paul E. Solloch, engineer in charge of the project at Johnson Space Center.

The computer will carry only an emergency landing program. If the regular computers fail and it has to be used, Young's pilot astronaut Robert Crippen, will flip the switch.

Solloch said failure of a computer during an atmospheric landing test of the shuttle several years ago proved that "in that sort of the temporary additional computer."

Normally, the shuttle, the most sophisticated spaceship America has launched, will be served by five onboard computers.

The four main computers will carry duplicate programs and will "vote" on every decision. If a decision arises, the minority computer will be shut off. The fifth computer will act as backup if the main system fails.

Solloch said the extra computer will be included as an added measure of safety until a space program officials gain full confidence in the four main computers and single backup.

Paper says GIs can't read

DARMSTADT, West Germany (UPI) — American high schools have become so bad that the U.S. Army finds many graduates have trouble reading and writing, the armed forces newspaper Stars and Stripes reports.

"Thousands of soldiers are deficient in basic skills," the newspaper in a series on army education said Thursday. "The armed forces have discovered that 'diplomats often are no more than a joke as high schools lower their standards.'"

"Many secondary school graduates at army posts in Germany cannot read or write beyond fifth- or sixth-grade levels," it quoted education officers as saying. It said the problem is less acute in the Navy and Air Force.

The newspaper quoted a senior education services officer as saying "Just because an individual has a high school diploma does not mean he can read."

Many high school graduates lack the skills for the most routine jobs and army educators say the problem is getting worse, the newspaper said.

Baby found in compactor

CHICAGO (UPI) — A baby boy was found Friday in the trash compactor of a housing project building by a janitor who heard the infant's muffled cries just seconds before he was going to start the machine.

The baby, only four or five days old, was in good condition at Mercy Hospital and Medical Center. He was being treated for respiratory problems.

Janitor James Bowman said he expected to find a kitten inside. Instead, he said he saw the "exceptionally pretty child" in diapers lying on top of the garbage heap.

The child could have been dropped down the chute from any of the six floors of the building.

Ship sinks with all hands

ADAK, Alaska (UPI) — The Japanese fishing vessel Dalu Maru-55 sank Friday with 28 people aboard some 380 miles northwest of Adak Island in the stormy Bering Sea, the Coast Guard said.

"There are no survivors that they know of," said spokesman Raymond Massey from Coast Guard headquarters in Juneau.

The 150-foot, 299-ton Dalu Maru-55 messaged at 2:40 a.m. MST that it was in danger of sinking. It went down moments later.

Ford works vote-wage drop

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — Workers at Ford Motor Co. voted overwhelmingly Friday night to take an average 84-cent hourly pay cut designed to save 3,200 jobs at the River Rouge plant.

"They voted 75 percent yes to approve an adjustment in their incentive pay in order to save the 3,200 jobs," Bob King, financial secretary of United Auto Workers Local 600 said.

Ford threatened to close its coke and blast furnace, operations April 1 unless the UAW agreed to have the worker incentive wages. The automaker has not agreed to continue operations indefinitely despite the Local 600 ratification.

PBS has record fund raising

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Viewers pledged a record $7.2 million during the first five days of public television's annual fund-raising campaign, the Public Broadcasting Service said Friday.

The pledges represented a 22.9 percent increase over the five days in the 1980 campaign. Last year's campaign raised a record $20.7 million in pledges from viewers.

The campaign continues on most stations through March 22.

IEA will urge school fund veto

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Education Association's president said today the group would mount a letter-writing campaign urging Gov. John Evans to veto the Legislature's $195 million public school appropriation.

Lamar Hagar also said the association would conduct a petition-drive exhorting state legislators to come out with a new fiscal year 1982 revenue projection above the original $422.2 million estimate.

Hagar termed the school funding appropriation, approved by the Senate and referred to the governor Thursday, "insufficient and irresponsible."

"The IEA leader said the Legislature could afford to allocate the $317 million that had been requested by school and teacher groups."

He said the lower appropriation would drive school districts to put override legislation on the ballot to secure more funding.

"That throws the burden right back on the property taxpayers," he said.

Hagar said fixed costs such as heating fuel, gasoline and paper products would quickly absorb the additional amount of state funds granted under the appropriation.

"Through this pathetically low appropriation, the majority of legislators have taken a direct shot at Idaho children, parents and education," Hagar said.

engineering expertise to issue permits or approve construction for tailing ponds," he said.

Alfred said water projects such as Snake River angler recharge, Soda Springs Dam and others will not be pursued.

"Water right approvals, which authorize capital investments at an average of $25 million per year, will be substantially slowed down. A three-month delay in issuing these permits could cost the applicant and the state's economy as much as $8.5 million in added construction costs because of inflation."

of Carey Act programs will cost the citizens of Idaho "some $10 million to $14-million a year in lost tax base and revenues to the economy."

He said elimination of employees necessary to administer the stream channel alteration law places citizens in an unacceptable position.

"If they need to accomplish a change in the stream, our citizens are either faced with being prohibited from doing the work, or with breaking the law, going ahead without a permit, and then being subject to civil and criminal penalties if someone files charges," he said.

He said the proposed reduction of staff to administer the Dam Safety and Stream Channel Protection Acts will have major impacts upon the Idaho mining industry.

"The reductions eliminate the department's capability to make the needed technical reviews of proposed projects and projects under construction," he said. "These regulatory programs are a key part of the oversight program which has allowed a rapid growth of the mining industry in Idaho in contrast to the otherwise resource-plagued economy."

He said tax receipts from the economic activity generated and fees collected directly to process the applications more than offset the cost of the regulatory program.

chance this late in this year's Legislature.

He said in 23 states, the state, not the county, takes full responsibility including Arizona, Oregon, Utah, and Washington. Nine states, including Montana and Wyoming, have county administration but state funding and regulation.

The AIC members Friday also discussed their stands on pending legislation affecting counties, including the following:

- Supporting House Bill 120, which has passed the House and would allow counties to retain the penalty and interest on late tax payments, thereby recapturing $850,000 that is being lost otherwise.
- Opposing HB 260, which failed in the House Friday and would have restricted the application and amount of services fees.
- Supporting HB 259, which has passed the House and would allow county commissioners to set the salaries of county officials and themselves.

Supporting HB 389, this year's 1-percent bill, which has passed the House and would allow a 5-percent growth in local property valuation and budgets.

Opposing Senate Bill 1139, which has passed the Senate and would require counties to perform cost accounting for county construction projects.

Idaho Indian tribes object to Sagebrush Rebellion bill

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Indian tribes ripped a proposed Sagebrush Rebellion resolution at a legislative hearing Friday, contending their century-old federal treaty rights would be in jeopardy if the state gained control of public lands.

The House State Affairs Committee postponed a vote on the resolution until Monday, despite an attempt by Rep. Peggy Bunting, R-Boise, to seek immediate consideration after the testimony.

The resolution's sponsor, Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, said the proposed constitutional amendment was a necessary prerequisite to other Sagebrush Rebellion legislation pending in the Legislature.

He said his resolution would wipe out of the constitution a phrase in which the state disclaimed rights to unappropriated public lands within its borders.

Leaders of the Nez Perce, Shoshone-Bannock and Coeur d'Alene tribes expressed unanimous opposition to all pending Sagebrush Rebellion legislation.

Idaho State Grange Master Gordon Tate was the only speaker to announce support for the sagebrush measure.

Si Whitman, Nez Perce tribal councilman, labeled the resolution as another instance of "brutalization of a smaller foe by a neighborhood bully."

"We're seeking the eradication of our rights," he said. "Once our rights are gone, the rights of the entire American people are in danger."

Whitman and Shoshone-Bannock tribal attorney Larry Echohawk said transfer of federal land to state control would be an abrogation of hundred-year-old treaties.

They added that the federal government would not be able to effectively manage that land, much of the land would be sold to pay for the management of the rest and that state officials would trample on historical Indian rights.

"History will repeat itself," Whitman said. "We are going to be seeing some serious consequences. It will be Armageddon."

Whitman also said the resolution would not apply only to the approximately 12 million acres now administered by the Bureau of Land Management. He said the language of the resolution would allow state manipulation of all "unoccupied" public land in Idaho.

He said federal treaties with the tribes represented the American people's "solemn commitment to the rights forever reserved to the Indian tribes."

The treaties, he said, were the law of the land and that they gave Indians rights to hunt, fish and conduct other activities on state as well as federal land.

Lawrence S. Aripa, a Coeur d'Alene tribal councilman, said the resolution would be "one step closer to the purchase and control of public lands by private interests."

"Our treaty rights are being placed in jeopardy," he said, adding that only Congress had final authority to transfer public land into the hands of the state.

Floor debate has picked up as the Legislature passed its 61st day in session Friday.

'Cycle headlight bill passes

BOISE (UPI) — Accepting the argument that if one life could be saved or one serious accident avoided, the Idaho Senate passed 19-16 a bill to require motorcycle headlights to be illuminated at all times on the state's highways.

Noting the "terrific increase in motorcycle accidents," Sen. Walter Yarborough, R-Grand View, floor sponsor, argued that passage of the measure would be a step in cutting down on these accidents.

He said with the price of gasoline on the rise, more people were purchasing motorcycles as a means of transportation and this bill "would require that when operated on the highways they have headlights turned on."

"This is one of the simplest things that hopefully will cut down accidents caused when one doesn't see or recognize the vehicle. They sit down low and dart around and are hard to see," Yarborough said.

Sen. Bob Bozell, R-Boise, opposed the measure, saying it was just "another law on the books that we have got to do this or get to do that."

But Sen. Chic Bilyeu, D-Pocatello, said if requiring headlights to be turned on can "save one basket case, it's important we pass this law."

He said requiring headlights to be turned on at all times on the highways "does call attention" to the cycles.

Bilyeu also argued that it would save the taxpayers money because most motorcycleists don't carry insurance and the hospital and doctor bills have to be paid by the taxpayers.

"I would save dollars if it stays one serious accident." The bill now goes to the House.

Bill to restrict government fees defeated, but revived in House

BOISE (UPI) — Legislation to restrict local governments' power to charge fees in lieu of property taxes was defeated Friday, but it soon was revived and put on the House's amendment calendar.

The Legislature clarified the power to charge such fees last year, but for simple little inspections or other services, Stivers said.

Language in the bill would restrict the law which prohibits collection of fees to offset the cost of capital improvements. In Ada County developers are charged for the cost of future capital improvements, such as fire stations and roads needed to serve growth created by the new developments. The money is placed in an escrow account and held until needed. "There's been too much fiddling around by these people trying to recover funds we were restricting them from under the 1 percent initiative," Stivers said.

Rep. Peggy Bunting, R-Boise, said the fee law had only been in effect for six months and that more time was needed to allow local officials to use the statute properly.

But, Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna, said, "It's the abuse of this thing that's caused this to come about."

Winchester charged that Ada County had been charging inflated building permit fees and had compiled an unwarranted surplus of permit funds.

Governor gets 'workfare' bill

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate's "workfare" bill cruised through the Idaho House 61-0 Friday on its way to the governor.

Representatives approved the bill without debate, agreeing with sponsor Rep. Wendy Ungrieth, R-Boise; that able-bodied adults recipients of the Aid to Dependent Children program should be required to perform public service work.

In other legislative action: The Legislature approved utility taxes and suppress farm and residential taxes was junked today by the House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

The bill would have required the state Tax Commission to change its property assessment methods to achieve the valuation of utility property at its true market value.

The committee decided on a voice vote to hold the measure, effectively killing it for this legislative session.

The House State Affairs Committee heard arguments today on a proposal to repeal Idaho's Little Davis Bacon Act, which requires government employers to pay prevailing union wage rates.

Dean Haagenon, Coeur d'Alene, president of Contractors Northwest Inc., told the panel repeal of the provision would allow state and local employers to hire construction laborers at less cost, allowing government agencies to save money.

Haagenon contended many union scales were inflated and did not accurately reflect the prevailing wage.

But several committee members attacked the accuracy of his statistics, and Robert Kinghorn, Idaho State AFL-CIO president, flayed the legislation, calling it "sectarian" and "only right-to-work in being deplorable."

The third version of a bill to authorize assessment of fire-protection fees by cities and fire-protection districts was propounded out of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee today with a "do pass" recommendation.

The third version was written to mollify conservatives who said fire departments would be given power to assess fees on top of existing property-tax charges.

Now, however, the legislation would require a rollback in property taxes to correspond to the amount of fees charged by a city or fire-protection district.

A bill to clear the way for prosecutors to use the state's grand jury system in specific felony cases was approved Friday by the House Judiciary Rules and Administration Committee.

Ada County Prosecutor James Harris said the bill, which passed the Senate earlier, would ease language that hampered full implementation of a modern grand jury.

rating organizations to set title insurance rates was approved by the Idaho Senate 22-12 Friday and sent to the House.

Assistant Senate Minority Leader K.K. Kiebert, D-Hope, said it would provide for competition on the open market, which is closer to the consumer.

Kiebert said presently rates are set by an organization made up of insurance companies, who then present them to an independent party hired by the rating bureau and the rates then given to the "rubber stamped."

He referred to the present method as "price fixing."

"It's a waste of time and money to level a misdemeanor charge against a price inmate. Ada County Prosecutor Jim Harris said Friday in asking for legislative approval of a bill to make prison rioting a felony offense.

The House Judiciary, Rules and Administration Committee approved the Senate-passed bill and forwarded it to the House floor with a "do pass" recommendation.

Creation of a special six-member legislative committee to study the possible uses of the state's Eagle Island property was authorized Friday by the House.

Evans given railroad authority

BOISE (UPI) — Assistant Senate Majority Leader J. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, successfully argued that rail-passenger service was the dependable service of the future and the Idaho Senate approved today a bill to allow the governor to negotiate with other chief executives to maintain the service.

The bill was 19-16 and the bill now goes to the House.

Steen said the measure just allows the governor, with the consent of the Legislature, to negotiate with other states an agreement to retain rail passenger service.

He said that the Amtrak Empire Builder train in North Idaho and the Pioneer train in southern Idaho were continually growing and were "reaching a point of being self-sustaining."

Senate Majority Leader James Risch, R-Boise, said he opposed the bill because the state had no authority in getting involved in rail, bus or airline service. He said it should be left to the private competitive market.

Sen. Kenneth Bradshaw, R-Wendell, said it would be costly to the taxpayers of the state if they had to help subsidize rail service. He said he recently read the subsidies received by Amtrak would allow airlines fare from Chicago to Florida with an additional $100 for spending money.

"It will be costly to taxpayers and open the door for more expenses for Idaho," Bradshaw said.

Defending the measure, Sen. Chic Bilyeu, D-Pocatello, called rail passenger service the "most viable transportation on the earth."

He said with the price of gasoline increase and the cost rise in airfare travel, railroads would be the transportation of the future.

Bilyeu said he understood that the Pioneer train that travels across southern Idaho would be self-sufficient in four or five years.

"It's a permissive bill to continue railroad service in Idaho," he said. Senate President Pro-Tem Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, said the governor currently has permission to negotiate and "we shouldn't put anything in the firm boundaries of legislation."

Senate Committee OKs oil severance tax

BOISE (UPI) — After considerable discussion, the Idaho Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee sent to the floor Friday without recommendation a house-passed 2 percent tax on gas and oil at the site of production.

Committee members were told the outlook for discovery of oil in southeastern Idaho was promising.

Doug Bean of the Gas and Oil Industry said his group favored the 2 percent tax and were endorsing it. He said this legislation would not be a detriment to development.

Under the proposal, 10 percent would go to the state and 20 percent to the counties of origin, with 10 percent going to communities sustaining growth and impact problems.

SM workshop idea rejected

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Dianne Feinstein denied Friday that she had approved a plan by Coroner Boyd Stephens to hold a series of "safety" workshops for sadomasochists.

"I want clearly the world to know that this mayor does not condone the teaching of S&M practices," she said, adding that the workshop plan "unwittingly... puts the stamp of approval" on S&M.

The workshops were held in response to a dramatic increase in injuries and deaths linked to sadomasochistic sexual practices, Stephens said.

He said 10 percent of the city's homicides are sexually related, and sadomasochistic acts, in which one partner inflicts pain upon the other for mutual pleasure, comprise a substantial number.

Herb Klein believes that President Reagan will have a better relationship with the media than Klein's old boss, Richard Nixon. Klein says Reagan, unlike Nixon, is a smooth performer on television. "Someone who can communicate with the American people as well as Ronald Reagan does poses a challenge to anyone who opposes him; whether he is a congressman or a newspaperman whose questions the public might perceive as being out of order," Klein says. "No one knows how to play that game better than Ronald Reagan." Klein compares Reagan's use of television to Franklin D. Roosevelt's use of radio for his famous "fireside chats." Klein should know. After all, he was the White House communications director in the Nixon administration.

Retired city patrolman Joe Martin, the first boxing coach for Cassius Clay, later heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, has announced he will seek the Democratic nomination for Jefferson County, Ky., sheriff. The 63-year-old Martin, who retired from the force in 1975 after 34 years as a police officer, also helped train another Louisville, Ky. native, Jimmy Ellis, how to box as a youngster. NO SAFETY IN NUMBERS

Entertainer Wayne Newton estimates that security cost him about half a million dollars a year but he still believes life is a normal human being leading a normal kind of life. Interviewed on "ABC News Nightline," Newton said "I've just accepted the lifestyle that I must lead in order to maintain what I do and because I enjoy doing what I do, I think that the price I pay both personally and monetarily is a small fee." Newton also said he thought that Las Vegas where he performs — is Mary Poppins compared to New York or Los Angeles. "In Las Vegas," he said, he knows his way around but "I am constantly surrounded in those other cities by virtue of numbers, by virtue of just all the places that people can hide and run to... that make it virtually impossible to almost find them."

Over 1/3 of U.S. citizens get federal aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—More than one of every three American households got help from Medicare, food stamps or benefited from several other federal public assistance programs in 1979, the Census Bureau said Thursday.

The bureau estimated 27.2 million of the 79.1 million households counted in the 1980 Census used at least one of five programs: food stamps, free or reduced-price school lunches, public or other subsidized housing, Medicare or Medicaid.

More than half of those getting help—51 percent—got Medicare only; 20 percent used two or more programs, usually Medicare and Medicaid, and 12 percent of the households getting help used three or more benefits, the typical combination being food stamps, school lunches and Medicaid.

The report was the first ever prepared by the Census Bureau on the characteristics of the population using the programs.

Almost 3.8 million households getting welfare payments—including

Aid to Families with Dependent Children and general assistance—got one or more noncash benefits, it said.

The bureau said 17.9 million households getting Social Security used one or more programs, largely Medicare, and 1.57 million households getting unemployment compensation used one or more noncash benefit program.

It also reported that 67.1 million of the nation's workers were enrolled in a pension plan or health insurance plan paid for, at least in part, by an employer or union.

Among the report's findings about the five programs were:

Food Stamps—5.9 million households with about 17.3 million people got food stamps worth an average of $100 a year. About 60 percent of the households were below the poverty level, 63 percent of the households were white, 35 percent black and 10 percent of Spanish origin. Two-thirds of the households had children under 18 and 77 percent had total incomes of less than $10,000.

Lunches—4.9 million households—

18 percent of the homes with school-age children—got free or reduced-price lunches and 43 percent were under the poverty level. Two-thirds of the households were white and in 47 percent—the household was run by a woman. Forty-four percent of the households were in the South.

Public Housing—Three percent of the nation's households lived in publicly owned or other subsidized housing. Almost half had incomes below the poverty level and two-thirds of the homes were run by a woman.

More than half the public or subsidized housing was in the center of cities.

Medicare—Of the 18.5 million Medicare households—about one of every four households in the nation—81 percent had family heads 65 or older and 90 percent of the 22.1 million persons covered by Medicare were white.

Medicaid—The 8 million households covered by Medicaid contained an estimated 18.1 million people.

Fed will help CETA workers find jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan said Friday his department will give a helping hand to about 300,000 CETA workers destined to lose their jobs in September because of President Reagan's budget cuts.

The department said it will try to "find" the workers new "unsubsidized" jobs, or place them in government training programs.

If they fail to get a new job immediately, Donovan said they can dip into $245 million being set aside for unemployment compensation. The money will come from slashing current allocations for 475 governmental units and other prime sponsors under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program.

Donovan's comments came as the department announced a cut of $841 million in fiscal year 1981 allocations to prime sponsors, reflecting a hiring freeze already imposed on new hiring and a $245 million fund to help pay unemployment benefits to workers unable to find new jobs after September.

The allocation cuts, done on a city-by-city basis, could mean some communities might have to fire CETA workers before the end of the fiscal year.

"It is my intent to see that men and women currently in the PSE (public service employment) program receive all the help we can give them," Donovan said. "We will do everything possible to move them into other jobs quickly."

President Reagan, in his fiscal 1982 budget submitted to Congress, proposed saving $3.6 billion by eliminating CETA public service jobs that employ the hard-core disadvantaged and others out of the welfare system.

The Labor Department said it hopes most public service employment participants will find unsubsidized jobs or enter training institutions, making them ineligible for unemployment compensation.

Donovan said he issued a March 2 freeze on all new subsidized hiring "so as to reduce the number of individuals affected by the cutbacks in the program."

The administration also is asking Congress to reduce from 26 weeks to 13 weeks the period for normal unemployment compensation at the end of the 13-week period under the Reagan proposal, a worker would be forced to accept any job that pays at least the minimum wage of $3.35 per hour.

Donovan said he will ask the National Governors Association, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, associations representing city and county executives, community-based groups and other special interest groups to "link participants with potential available jobs."

He said he will require that each prime sponsor formally notify the local job service office of the names and expected phase-out date of each worker.

"To the extent possible," Donovan said, he will give CETA workers vacant positions in the Private Sector Initiative Program, funded under another section of the act.

He also said he will require all programs administered by the department's Employment and Training Administration "to make the transitioning of these participants a top priority."

Included in the last group are the U.S. Employment Service, Unemployment Insurance Service, Job Corps, CETA on-the-job training and institutional training programs, and the Work Incentive Program.

Senate kills major waterway project

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Senate committee Friday recommended a halt to construction of the half-built Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway once existing segments are completed.

The project was first conceived in 1910.

By a vote of 9-4, the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee asked that $176.9 million earmarked for continued construction of the project be stricken from President Reagan's 1982 budget.

The recommendation, which now goes to the Senate Budget Committee, called, however, for appropriation of $25 million to finish work on existing portions of the waterway, scheduled for completion in 1984 at a cost of $2.3 billion.

It was the first vote against a waterway in the new Congress.

The 232-mile waterway, cutting across Alabama and Mississippi, would link the Gulf of Mexico with the Tennessee River by way of the Tombigbee River, providing an alternative to the long Mississippi River route via New Orleans.

Since 1979, limited barge traffic has been possible through 119 miles of the Tennessee River.

The committee action came over the strenuous objections of Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., who complained bitterly that he had been given less than 15 minutes' notice of the move to kill the project.

Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., who said he had advised other members of his intent to do so two days earlier, first offered a motion to cut the civil works budget of the Corps of Engineers by $176.9 million to end the project.

But Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., a member of the panel and chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, said Simpson's motion would not kill the controversial project.

Instead, Domenici said, work on the project would continue and the budget cut would merely reduce funding for other corps projects—including virtually needed Western water projects.

With Simpson's cooperation, Domenici then offered a substitute motion leaving total funding for corps water projects at the budgeted level but saying spending on Tenn-Ton could not exceed $25 million.

Next in line for the vote was Sen. D-ala, chairman of the House Energy and Water appropriations subcommittee, predicted funding for the project would be restored in the House. "It's 35 percent complete and $100 million in 1979 contracts have been let. It would be foolish to stop this project," he said.

The half-completed system of river channel, canals and locks got under construction in 1972 under President Richard Nixon and has withstood environmentalist opposition that killed a proposed cross-Florida barge canal.

Puerto Rico governor warns budget cuts may spark unrest

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI)—Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo said Friday he told President Reagan that "deplorable cuts" of $60 million in Puerto Rico's federal programs could spark unrest on the island and in the rest of the Caribbean.

"We in Puerto Rico are not clamoring for special privileges," Romero, a staunch union leader, told Reagan in a letter dated March 13 and released Friday. "We are merely asking for equity" with other American communities.

Federal outlays in Puerto Rico last year accounted for 70 percent of the island's gross product, and local officials were shocked when the Reagan administration announced it plans to chop $650 million from the $4.7 billion spent by the federal government in Puerto Rico.

About $300 million of that cut will come in nutritional programs such as food stamps, used by 60 percent of Puerto Rico's 3.2 million people.

Romero warned that the effect of such cuts might be to send a stream of migrants to mainland U.S. welfare rolls and promote instability in the island. This, he said, would contradict Reagan's policy of fighting communism in the region.

"Puerto Rico has long been the most prominent example of (Caribbean) development and stability," Romero said in his letter.

"Deplaving cuts in federal assistance to Puerto Rico would therefore totally undermine and contradict administration policy in the region, and accordingly have a chillingly unsettling impact on neighboring regimes," not to mention the potential for spawning serious unrest within Puerto Rico itself.

Although Puerto Rico's leftist parties have little popular support, there have been isolated actions by terrorists who murdered two U.S. Navy sailors in 1978 and blew up 14 Air National Guard jets worth $45 million last January.

Romero complained Reagan's economic programs are unfair to the island because they propose cutting food stamp programs to a greater extent than on the mainland.

He noted Puerto Ricans, while U.S. citizens, get less for Medicaid than mainland residents—and get no supplemental Social Security benefits.

Since they pay no federal income tax, only a highly local tax, Puerto Ricans will not get the benefit of federal tax cuts that are part of Reagan's plans, Romero said.

"This hasy cutting of federal support in traditionally cost-effective sectors will ultimately backfire, when the costs of treatment for disease, for hospital stays, for tuition payments for health profession education and for health insurance premiums rise to unaffordable levels for all Americans."

The American Association of Retired Persons and the National Retired Teachers Association submitted a statement urging Congress to look carefully at the administration's proposals to cap the annual increases on Medicaid benefits and to speed up state and local health planning programs.

"We would contend that sudden and drastic reductions in federal support for certain health and social service programs would leave gaping holes in the social safety net that the administration contends it has acquired for the truly needy—dependent and vulnerable among our elderly population," their joint statement said.

In his letter, Wright rejected as unreasonable Reagan's argument his entire package must be approved to ensure economic stability. Although Reagan won the election in November, "This does not mean that it is the best of all possible worlds to rubber stamp whatever the president proposes," Wright wrote.

Groups blast Reagan budget cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Health industry representatives Friday attacked the administration's proposals to cut federal funds for medical and safety programs as "short-sighted" policies that would cost the country dearly.

Meanwhile, House Democratic leader Jim Wright urged his colleagues to take a hard look at the president's budget and tax program, which he claimed "imposes an unfairly heavy burden on those least able to carry that burden—the truly needy."

Richard Votra, vice president of the Coalition for Health Funding, told a House Budget Committee task force,

"This hasy cutting of federal support in traditionally cost-effective sectors will ultimately backfire, when the costs of treatment for disease, for hospital stays, for tuition payments for health profession education and for health insurance premiums rise to unaffordable levels for all Americans."

The American Association of Retired Persons and the National Retired Teachers Association submitted a statement urging Congress to look carefully at the administration's proposals to cap the annual increases on Medicaid benefits and to speed up state and local health planning programs.

"We would contend that sudden and

"It is now obvious that my effectiveness as a congressman would be severely impaired if not rendered altogether impossible were I to attempt to carry on in the office to which I have been elected."

"I have faced the fact that for a time, I am emotionally unable to continue my work—and must concentrate the total of my energies to recovery," Hinson said.

Hinson's trial is scheduled for May 4.

Calls for Hinson's resignation started the day he was arrested.

"This hasy cutting of federal support in traditionally cost-effective sectors will ultimately backfire, when the costs of treatment for disease, for hospital stays, for tuition payments for health profession education and for health insurance premiums rise to unaffordable levels for all Americans."

Rep. Hinson resigns under fire for arrest

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Rep. Jon Hinson, R-Miss., facing attempted sodomy charges, announced Friday he will resign his House seat effective April 13.

In a letter to Gov. William Winter, Hinson said he will step down April 13, "at the close of the business day" in Congress.

Hinson, 38, has been hospitalized in Washington since Feb. 2, when he pleaded innocent to charges of attempted oral sodomy.

He was arrested Feb. 4 in a room of a House office building on Capitol Hill with an employee of the library of Congress; Hinson initially was charged with oral sodomy, but the charge was later reduced to attempted sodomy.

He has been undergoing psychiatric treatment in St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington and has pointed himself out from all but his administrative aide Marshall Hanbury, his wife Cynthia and his Washington minister, the Rev. Robert Troutman.

Hinson, in a prepared statement released in Jackson, said the decision to resign was "painful and difficult."

"It is now obvious that my effectiveness as a congressman would be severely impaired if not rendered altogether impossible were I to attempt to carry on in the office to which I have been elected."

"I have faced the fact that for a time, I am emotionally unable to continue my work—and must concentrate the total of my energies to recovery," Hinson said.

Hinson's trial is scheduled for May 4.

Calls for Hinson's resignation started the day he was arrested.

Satan Possession by Devil is key to murder defense

WATERBURY, Conn. (UPI) — An attorney defending a young man accused of killing his landlord says he will argue in court, "The devil made him do it."

"It's more frightening than 'The Exorcist,'" said Martin Minnella, attorney for Arno Johnson. He said "he has Catholic priests and ghost hunters waiting in the wings as expert witnesses."

A grand jury convenes next Thursday in Danbury to decide whether to bring a murder indictment against Johnson, described by Minnella as an "unassuming, average 19-year-old, superb athlete who has never been in trouble before."

Minnella said his defense will be unprecedented in the American jurisprudence system. "But he said lawyers in a 1971 arson trial in England won acquittal by using a devil-made-me-do-it defense."

On Feb. 16 about 6:30 p.m. in Brookfield, Johnson allegedly stabbed to death kennel manager Alan Bono, 40. Johnson's two teen-aged sisters and his girlfriend, Deborah Glatzel, 26, witnessed the killing.

The two men are said to have argued and scuffled after Bono made an obscene remark about the three women, enraging Johnson.

Johnson has no recollection of events leading to the slaying, said those who have spoken to him in a Bridgeport jail, where he is held on $125,000 bond.

Brookfield Police Chief John Anderson said police focused on "evidence on the scene."

"Our investigation did not involve the supernatural," he said. "But we're not ignoring that either."

The case drew little notice until Ed and Loreaine Warren of Monroe went public with the claim Johnson was possessed by demons.

The Warrens have earned a national reputation for their work in psychic research with a Long Island family, who claimed to be terrorized by supernatural forces in their home. That case produced the novel and film "The Amityville Horror."

It was the Warrens' story of deliverance rituals, or "minor exorcisms," performed last summer by five Catholic priests for an 11-year-old boy identified only as David that convinced Minnella his client "was possessed by a demon and it was a demon that actually manipulated his body."

"We're dealing with something that is not cultist," said Minnella. "We're dealing with the beliefs of millions of people, not only Catholics but Christians. And that is the existence of God, the existence of the Devil."

Mrs. Warren told UPI she and her husband were called "in a professional capacity" to rid the boy of "hostile forces" that produced strange behavior, including growling.

Johnson lived with the boy's family at the time.

The Warrens, both practicing Catholics, sought help from priests in the Bridgeport diocese. During one of the church rites at the boy's home Johnson "unwillingly challenged what was within the boy," said Mrs. Warren.

Minnella, 33, who is six years out of law school, said his client is "still possessed and he is suicidal."

Devil cult leader convicted

FITCHBURG, Mass. (UPI) — The alleged leader of a devil worship cult was found guilty of first degree murder Friday in the ritual murder of a young Fall River, Mass., prostitute last year.

Carl Drew, 26, stood pale and expressionless as the verdict was announced. He was immediately sentenced to life imprisonment by Superior Court Judge Francis W. Keating.

Keating, in an hour-long charge, warned the jury not to be swayed by the testimony of several prosecution witnesses who described bizarre satanic cult rites they said Drew conducted among Fall River pimps and prostitutes. He said the information about the cult was not offered as evidence.

Drew had been on trial for two weeks in the death of Karen Marsden, 20.

Miss Marsden was allegedly killed, mutilated and beheaded by Drew and two others in a blood-soaked nighttime satanic ritual because she wanted to leave the cult.

Birknes, in his summation, attacked the credibility of the state's star witness, Robin Murphy, 17, a prostitute allowed to plead guilty to second degree murder in exchange for turning state's evidence.

She said Drew ordered her to cut Miss Marsden's throat after he crushed the victim's skull with a rock. She testified Drew, whispering words in a strange language, used blood from the body to trace a cross on her forehead, then wrenched the head from the body with his bare hands.

Exorcist arrested for abuses

ROME (UPI) — Police arrested a priest and two women Friday on charges of convincing young women they were possessed by the devil and then subjecting them to abusive exorcism rites.

Investigators said at least 10 women fell victim to the trio, who operated out of a Rome religious institute called the "Work of Love."

The women then allegedly were sent out to work as maids in the Rome area and required to turn their wages over to the institute.

The Rev. Domenico Bernardini is accused of tying the women to an altar-side bed and beating and berating them.

His two assistants allegedly approached at least 10 young women, convinced them they were "possessed by the devil" and sent them to Bernardini for help.

Some of the victims recently had suffered deaths in their families and others suffered psychological problems, police said.

Atlanta task force gets aid

ATLANTA (UPI) — Deploping "one of the most tragic situations that has ever confronted an American city," President Reagan Friday gave Atlanta $1.6 million to help finance an investigation into the slaying of 20 black children.

The president also announced Vice President George Bush, named earlier this year to oversee work by a federal task force in the case, would visit Atlanta Saturday to meet with officials and "to convey the deep feelings and convictions that we both share in regard to this crisis."

"I want the people of Atlanta and the nation to know that this administration is doing what we can to bring this tragedy to an end," the president said in an unusual personal appearance in the White House Press Room.

In addition to the 20 children who have been found slain over the past 19 months in the Atlanta area, two others, Darron Glass, 10, and Joseph Bell, 15, are officially listed as missing. Bell, at first thought a runaway, was officially added to the list Friday.

In another development, W.K. Perry, who once headed the Atlanta police homicide squad, said he was a "little optimistic now" that an arrest would be made soon.

"I think they are getting very close to someone," said Perry, who is now a private detective. But he said he did not think a single arrest would solve all the cases. "I feel that several people are involved, and I also think that several of these cases are going to be unsolved."

Perry said he learned this week that Patrick Baltazar, 11, who disappeared Feb. 6 and was found dead a week later, and a friend called the task force some time before his disappearance to report an encounter with a mafia man.

He said Baltazar's friend told him he and Patrick were together — he was not sure what day it was — when "a man in a car chased them back and forth across the railroad tracks." He said when they had eluded the man, Baltazar called the task force to report it.

He said there apparently was no response to the call until earlier this week when task force members talked with the youngster's friend. Perry said it was likely that inexperienced telephone personnel were to blame for the lapse.

Reagan said the latest money — sought by Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson — to cover police overtime costs estimated at $150,000 a month was in addition to $279,000 he provided March 5 to cover crime prevention and mental health costs arising from the case.

Bush, who also attended the news conference, explained that Jackson's request for money was considered carefully because of its precedent-setting nature in giving aid to a local police department.

"We debated this and decided we should go the extra mile," the vice president said.

"On a personal note," Reagan said, "I am deeply touched by the depth of concern and compassion being expressed by Americans in every area of our land."

Witnesses say Burnett wasn't rowdy

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A couple who sat next to Carol Burnett at an exclusive Washington restaurant five years ago testified Friday the comedian did not give any indication she had been drinking too much, as a National Enquirer gossip item had intimated.

The witnesses were called by the attorney for Miss Burnett, who filed a $10 million libel suit against the tabloid on grounds it suggested she was drunk and disorderly as she "traipsed around" the restaurant and got into a "boisterous" argument with Henry Kissinger.

The former secretary of state, who was coincidentally in Los Angeles Friday, told reporters that Miss Burnett behaved "in a lady-like fashion" during dinner at the Rive Gauche restaurant one night in 1976.

He also recalled that she had stopped momentarily by his table to chat with him and MCA President Lew Wasserman, but said they had exchanged only a few pleasantries that "suggested no drinking at all."

"There was no contention of any kind going on," he added.

In courtroom testimony, Charlotte and Andrew Weissner, both residents of Washington, gave similar accounts of Miss Burnett's dinner department. Both described her as quiet and said they were unaware that any wine or water had been spilled, as the Enquirer article stated.

"The restaurant is a snobby place with no loud diners," Weissner added.

Court rules no libel in NBC drama of Scottsboro case

CINCINNATI (UPI) — A federal appeals court ruled Friday that an NBC drama about the historic Scottsboro cases did not libel a white woman who accused nine black men of raping her nearly 50 years ago.

Victoria Price Street, now in her 70s, claimed in a $6 million suit against NBC that the network's 1976 award-winning historical drama, "Judge Horton and the Scottsboro Boys" libeled her by depicting her as a prostitute and a perjurer. She also contended the film was an invasion of her privacy.

But the court concluded the case still was a matter of public interest and Mrs. Street therefore remained a public figure.

"The plaintiff was the pivotal figure in the most famous rape case of the 20th Century," wrote Judge Gilbert Merritt in the majority decision. "It became a political controversy as well as a legal dispute."

Merritt said the Scottsboro prosecutions were among the first to focus on the question of the ability of the American judicial system to provide fair trials to blacks in the South.

"The question persists today," Merritt continued. "As long as the question remains, the Scottsboro boys case... will remain a living controversy."

Although the appeals court conceded the television drama portrayed Mrs. Street in a derogatory manner and was not entirely accurate, the majority said NBC did not act with malice or reckless disregard for the truth in broadcasting and rebroadcasting the film.

The television drama dealt with a retrial of Haywood Patterson, one of the nine blacks accused of raping Mrs. Street and a companion during a train ride between Chattanooga, Tenn. and Huntsville, Ala., in April 1931. The companion, Ruby Bates, eventually recanted her early testimony against the nine blacks.

Pakistan concedes hijackers' demands

DAMASCUS, Syria (UPI)—Three terrorists who hijacked a Pakistan jet 12 days ago made new demands Friday and threatened to kill the 102 hostages unless they were met, Pakistan said it would comply.

Pakistan's chief negotiator in Damascus said he expected the hostages to be freed on Saturday.

In the Pakistani capital of Islamabad, officials said that 54 of the 55 political prisoners being swapped for the hostages had been transported to the port of Karachi to await a flight to Libya via Syria.

The Pakistani negotiator, Ambassador Sarfaraz Khan, said a plane with the prisoners aboard would leave Karachi Saturday morning, fly to Aleppo, Syria, where the prisoners will be transferred to a Syrian plane and proceed to the Libyan capital of Tripoli.

Once the prisoners arrive in Libya, the hostages will be freed, Khan said.

"Asked what would happen to the hijackers, Khan said, 'That's a Syrian problem.'"

Diplomatic sources said they expected the hijackers also to be flown to Libya.

The sources said an American doctor and a psychiatrist had been flown to Damascus to look after the three American hostages on the plane. They will treat them at a military hospital in Damascus where the entire hostage group will be taken after they are freed.

It was not clear when the hostages would be leaving Syria, but the diplomatic sources said they would remain there for "a couple of days."

One of several hitches that could delay the exchange developed when Pakistani officials said they were having trouble locating the 58th prisoner and the prisoners' families, who were going with them.

The agreement to free the prisoners was reached Thursday, only moments before the threatened slaying of three Americans among the hostages on the Pakistan International Airlines Boeing 720 jet.

But delays in arranging the exchange and now demands by the three Pakistani terrorists prolonged the ordeal for the 93 passengers and nine crew, victims of the longest hijacking on record.

Hours after Pakistan agreed to free the prisoners, the hijackers demanded that the prisoners' families also leave with them for Libya. Pakistan agreed although some of the people involved reportedly did not want to go.

Friday, as the Pakistani ambassadors to Syria and Jordan returned to the airport control tower to begin another tense day of waiting and negotiating, the hijackers demanded the families be allowed to sell all their property before leaving.

"I will kill the hostages as I said again and again if our demands are not met," said the leader of the terrorists, a young Pakistani going by the code name of Alamgir, or "Conqueror of the World."

"These (new demands) are just technicalities," said Shahrayar Khan, Pakistan's ambassador to Jordan. "They are not a stumbling block. They are not a problem."

While the ambassador seemed confident the hostages would be freed, other sources close to the negotiations said nothing could be taken for granted because of the "extremely unpredictable and volatile" temperament of the terrorists.

Conditions on board the plane, meanwhile, were described by Syrian sources as terrible.

An attendant was allowed to deliver toothpaste and other essential toiletries to the plane Friday for the first time since it was hijacked on a domestic flight over Pakistan March 2. He came back reporting that the small inside was "awful."

Since their ordeal began, the hostages have shivered through a week of frigid nights in Afghanistan, sweated through five days of 90 degree weather in Damascus, witnessed the execution of one fellow passenger and been told several times they were on the verge of death.

Bani-Sadr threatened

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI)—Iran's prosecutor-general threatened Friday to file charges against President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr.

It indicated a step-up of Moslem fundamentalist efforts to undermine the moderate head of state.

Bani-Sadr returned to Tehran from a visit to the war front Friday hours after Tehran Radio broadcast a speech by Prosecutor-General Ayatollah Abdolkarim Mousavi-Ardebili, containing the threat.

Bani-Sadr, 48, had no immediate comment.

Mousavi-Ardebili's warning, which echoed an earlier demand by Sheikh Sadegh Khalkhali, Iran's so-called hardline judge, to put the president on trial for treason, was couched in indirect and sarcastic phrases.

He charged that Bani-Sadr, in a recent signing article published by his newspaper, Islamic Revolution, appeared to resent the view that "the law must be enforced, even in the case of the president."

"Dear brother," the ayatollah addressed Bani-Sadr, "Do you think that the law should be carried out in the case of the weak but not the strong, that it should not be enforced against those at higher levels...?"

Mousavi-Ardebili indicated the president could be prosecuted as was permissible under the Islamic constitution. He said no one in Iran was above the law.

Under the Islamic constitution, an Iranian court can determine the president's guilt and have him dismissed by a parliamentary vote or a decree by revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The Iranian judiciary is controlled by Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, whose fundamentalist Islamic Republican Party also holds sway in the 270-member Majlis, the parliament.

Bani-Sadr first came under attacks by the fundamentalists nine days ago after his supporters clashed with Moslem militants at a Tehran University rally. At least 45 persons were injured in the rally and several militants were arrested on Bani-Sadr's orders.

The militants disrupted the rally by shouting, "Death to Bani-Sadr," and the president's backers countered with "Death to Beheshti."

Haig warns of troop moves

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State Alexander Haig said Friday the Soviet army is beginning what appears to be a "huge" military exercise near Poland.

A State Department spokesman said the situation is considered serious.

Haig, talking over breakfast to a small group of reporters, said one of the "total preoccupations" of the news media with the situation in El Salvador is the danger to Poland and the situation in Afghanistan is being ignored.

He went on: "A huge (military) exercise is about to take place, there is a stiffening of the Soviet line, and continuing problems in Afghanistan."

Haig's spokesman, William Dyess later said the term "huge" is relative, but he added the State Department considers the situation "serious, although not at the height of concern we had in December" when it had believed the Soviets came close to marching on Poland.

Under the Helsinki Accord, the Soviets are bound to notify other countries of any military exercise involving more than 25,000 troops.

Haig asked by a reporter if there would be more than 25,000 Russians involved said, at one point "yeah" and at another point, "It's just too early to tell."

Haig said Soviet behavior in Poland and elsewhere would be a major factor in a decision whether there will be a Soviet-American summit meeting.

In any case, he said, such a high-level meeting could not take place before preparatory talks were held, beginning in Washington below the ministerial level and after the United States had consulted with its allies.

Earlier, Dyess said it would be a "reasonable assumption" the East-West summit could not take place before late summer at the earliest.

"The fact that activities of this sort continue to go forward suggests that the current Soviet 'peace offensive' is nothing more than a propaganda effort to shift the blame for increasing international tensions from the Soviet Union onto others."

Secretary of State Alexander Haig said the invasion of Chad is one of the events the United States is watching with deep concern.

According to U.S. intelligence there are about 1,500 Soviet and other East European technicians and advisers in Libya. The officials said the Soviets in Chad probably were among the technicians stationed in Libya.

Russians issue call for arms control talks

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union called on the United States Friday to begin talks "without delay" on urgent issues—particularly arms control.

The latest appeal came in a Pravda commentary by Alexander Petrov, thought to be a pseudonym for the Central Committee of the Communist Party.

The commentary appeared to respond to a statement made in Washington by Secretary of State Alexander Haig that there would be "clearly not" be an early summit between Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev and President Ronald Reagan.

The bulk of the article focused on the proposal for a moratorium on the deployment of forward-based nuclear missiles in Europe.

Western nations have objected that the Soviets now hold the upper hand with the installment of at least 200 SS-20 nuclear missiles, which Moscow insists are only replacing worn-out missiles of a similar type.

"Equal cooperation, respect for others, and readiness to solve all problems at the negotiating table and not by power politics—this is what is required by the situation and by the duty to ones own and other peoples," Petrov concluded.

"Despite progress in lowering oil consumption and imports, the major industrialized nations' dependence on Persian Gulf oil will only change significantly during the 1980s."

"Worldwide oil supplies may be adequate through 1982, but the picture is less promising for the rest of the 1980s, in part because of the continuing Iran-Iraq war which has taken a million barrels daily off the world market.

Strike date not yet set for nursing home

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The date of a strike of the Skyview-Hazelde Manor by its union members has not yet been set, but officials say it will be held within two weeks. As a health care facility union, members must give 90 days prior notification of a strike.

David Cervantes of the Service Employees International, the union's affiliate, said Friday he would file required notification with the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service's regional office in Salt Lake City and send letters to manor administrator Richard Drake and Marvin Montoya, of the Idaho Employers Council, the consulting firm representing Drake.

On Thursday, union members voted 68-5 to reject management's final offer and go on strike at the 145-bed skilled nursing facility. The manor has about 160 employees, about 20 of them administrators or registered nurses ineligible to strike.

Reached Friday morning by the Times-News, Drake and Montoya said they had not yet been contacted by union officials about the vote.

Local chapter president Alice Lee said that although many of the union's members no longer work at the home — including Lee — a recount Friday morning showed only seven of the 73 persons voting were not current employees. Only union members were eligible to vote.

Cervantes estimated about 50 percent of the nursing home's work force will strike.

Lee said the strike was meant to force management to "sit down at the negotiating table and treat us like human beings. We want them to get back and sit down and talk. I don't feel they've tried to talk to us."

Contract negotiations between Drake and union officials broke down in December when management made and subsequently implemented a "last and final offer."

Drake said a strike would not change management's position but declined to comment further, referring all questions to Montoya.

Montoya said negotiations "are concluded as far as we're concerned."

"We felt we did negotiate in good faith. We talked about any and every issue brought up, regardless how ridiculous they were," he said. "We have always treated the employees and the union with respect."

He said a strike would not affect management's position. Replacement workers will be hired to fill slots left by striking employees and "I don't think there'll be any problems at all replacing them."

Management's "foremost concern" is insuring no "interruption in patient care," he said.

But, all his comments are "speculative" at this time, and he added "many times strike votes are taken but strikes never materialize."

However, Lee said union members were committed to a 90-day strike until management agreed to negotiate.

"We're hoping it's not going to take that long," she said. She said the members have begun scheduling hours for manning the picket line and arranging babysitting services.

Lee said the strike will begin at 2 p.m. on the scheduled day, when members will form picket lines outside the manor. Those working will finish out their shifts and will not return, she said.

Cervantes said a 24-hour picket line would be maintained but strikers must remain on public land and stay off private property.

The major issues dividing the two sides are wages, sick leave and union security.

Strike Chairman Ruth Mitchell said employees were asking for "decent living wages, better benefits, better working conditions in general (and) more qualified staff, which in turn will produce better patient care."

Montoya said wages implemented at the home "are perfectly in line and competitive" with area health care facilities and "some of the benefits even surpass" those offered elsewhere.

Management's offer gave an across-the-board increase of 20 cents an hour for those above minimum wage. On July 1, employees will get a 10 cents-an-hour increase.

Manor wages range from $15 to $3.65 an hour for nurses' aides and $4.70 to $5.20 an hour for Licensed Practical Nurses, excluding shift differentials, according to Montoya.

"The union is asking for a 60 cents an hour retroactive increase and a 50 cents an hour increase July 1.

Sales agent sought

Kellwood officials speak with realtors

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Efforts to sell the vacant Kellwood Co. hosiery plant are back to square one, according to company officials in town this week.

Interviewed Friday morning before leaving Twin Falls, the two executives said they came here to meet local real estate agents who want to market the building for the company.

Bill Brookshire, new head of the company's hosiery division, and Pat Spalnhour, vice president in charge of finance for Kellwood's women's apparel group, said they will choose a real estate agent to represent the company "as soon as possible." One local agent will list the building, they said.

Brookshire is replacing Bert Cook as head of the hosiery division. It was Cook's decision, announced in May 1980, to close the Twin Falls factory last summer. Cook has been promoted to a post in charge of all manufacturing within the women's apparel group.

"Unfortunately, there was a degree of delay on the part of Kellwood getting the building on the market," Brookshire said. "Only at this point are we in a completely final position of being able to offer the building for sale or lease."

Neither Brookshire or Spalnhour would comment on reasons for the delay.

The two executives arrived in Twin Falls Wednesday evening in addition to interviewing real estate agents about their proposals for marketing the building, they also met with community business leaders, some of whom are upset by what appeared to be Kellwood's "lack of effort to sell the building."

"We've had an opportunity to meet with a number of representatives from the business community. We feel we have a good relationship with them," Brookshire said.

However, there are neither negotiations to sell the building in progress nor potential buyers "on the block," Brookshire said. The company's efforts to sell the building fell through, he said.

The two executives "blame the economy for a significant part" of the company's difficulty in selling the plant.

Braun family files lawsuit for death of their parents

TWIN FALLS — The family of a Twin Falls couple killed in an automobile accident last month has filed a $1.2 million wrongful death action in 5th District Court.

The lawsuit was filed Thursday on behalf of the estate of "Muslie" and Marion Braun of Twin Falls and their children, Michael, 30, and Gary, 29, both of Clayton; Patty Ann Flint, 32, of Emmett; Becky Lou Campbell, 33, of Twin Falls; and Bill, 23, of Boise.

Named as defendant was Clovas Watson Rader, 67, of Wendell. Rader has been charged with responsibility for the two-car collision on U.S. 93 north of Jackpot, Nev. He faces prosecution in 5th District Court on charges of involuntary manslaughter.

A charge of driving while intoxicated is also pending against the Wendell man. He has been released on $5,000 bond and is presently undergoing treatment at the Magic Valley Alcohollic Recovery Center.

Marion Braun died at the scene of the accident. Her husband died the next morning while undergoing surgery in Salt Lake City.

The lawsuit alleges Rader was "grossly intoxicated" at the time of the accident and, as such, was negligent in attempting to drive the truck.

The suit seeks $200,000 on behalf of the Braun estate, for loss of the couple's future income, $6,200 for loss of their car and compensation for medical bills; the amount of which to be determined at time of trial.

The suit also seeks $150,000 for each of the Braun children and $200,000 in punitive damages.

Building permits

Twin Falls County reports major decrease

By MARTY TRILJAHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The number of Twin Falls County building permits taken out during early 1981 is substantially down from the same period last year.

But statistics for the first 10 days of March show an upswing. County Zoning Administrator Ed Woods said.

Woods said building permits for new home construction, additions and mobile homes were taken out during the first two months of this year. The total estimated value of the construction projects, not including mobile homes, came to $906,000.

That compares with 37 permits taken out during the same period for 1980. Woods said the estimated value of those projects, not including mobile homes, came to $306,000.

Projects so far this year include a house valued at about $30,000; two in the $40,000 price range; one at $51,000; one at $63,000 and one at $81,000.

Home additions valued $31,000 during the period and additional construction projects were valued at $184,000.

No estimated value is placed on mobile homes; five of which, received permits during the first two months of 1981.

During the first two months of 1980, projects which received building permits included one house valued at $21,000, four in the $30,000-to-$40,000 price range, five in the $40,000-to-$50,000 range and one valued at $60,000. Home additions came to $55,000.

Two pre-built homes valued at $35,000 each and a commercial project valued at $13,000 also received permits.

The improving building picture for the first 10 days of March, Woods said, shows permits were taken out on a $38,000 house, a $126,000 house and an $11,000 addition.

Ellis sued by mortgage holder

TWIN FALLS — A lawsuit filed in 5th District Court is seeking damages against Buhl trout farmer Ken Ellis and others over an outstanding debt of more than $450,000.

The suit was filed Friday on behalf of Professional Investors Life Insurance Co. of Oklahoma.

Named as defendants, along with Ellis, are Aqua Life Corp. and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ashley. Also named were two companies holding mortgages in connection with the defendant company, Southern Idaho Production Credit Association and Fidelity Bankers Life Insurance Co. of Richmond, Va.

The lawsuit alleges a July 19, 1977, loan of $450,000 to Ellis' Aqua Life Corp. is now delinquent. At that time of the loan, the parties agreed to a mortgage of company assets as securely.

Payments due May 1, Aug. 1, and Nov. 1 of 1980 and Feb. 1, 1981, have been defaulted, the lawsuit charges.

The lawsuit seeks the due balance of $427,253, interest of $38,452 to be held as a lien against the property and asks the court to foreclose the mortgage.

The Jerome County sheriff would be directed to seize and sell the property under terms of the lawsuit.

Erkins fishes his way to fame

BOB ERKINS contributions honored

Editor's note: This is the second of five profiles on the new inductees in the Southern Idaho Livestock Hall of Fame.

BLISS — Robert Erkins, a former fish farmer who has never been in the cattle business, will be one of five people inducted in the Southern Idaho Livestock Hall of Fame Tuesday.

Five new members will officially join more than 100 already named to the Hall of Fame at a banquet beginning at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Holiday Inn.

Erkins was named because of his contributions to the industry through civic and business activities.

Although he hasn't been in the cattle business, Erkins said he may enter. L. L. Looon — He is studying the feasibility of putting an alcohol plant on his White Arrow Ranch near Bliss, to be powered by the geothermal resources there. The waste from the alcohol plant could feed more than 100 head of cattle, he said.

Erkins, who sold Thousand Springs Trout Farms in 1973, was a pioneer fish farmer in the Hagerman Valley in 1952 and was a co-founder of the U.S. Trout Farmers Association.

He now writes economic newsletters for the seafood and food service industries and does consulting work throughout the world.

In addition, he is a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco Salt Lake branch, a trustee for the University of Notre Dame and trustee of Biosciences Information Service in Philadelphia, which he described as the world's largest publisher of medical and biological information.

Parks fire cause may not be confirmed

TWIN FALLS — Fire officials say they may be unable to determine the cause of a blaze which ravaged Parks and Sons Intermountain Inc. facilities and equipment Thursday.

Twin Falls Fire Chief Bobby Bopp said inspectors at the scene Thursday and Friday suspect the fire was caused by a welding spark igniting debris in the shop area of the disposal firm's building at 222 Gem Ave.

"We're continuing to investigate, but we may not ever know for sure what started that fire," said Bopp, whose inspectors estimated structural and equipment damage at $300,000.

"There are some fires that involve so much damage, there's just not enough of the structure left to determine the fire's origin," said Clarence Harkins, a Twin Falls Fire Department inspector. "That's the case here."

The Parks and Sons' fire started shortly before 1 a.m. Thursday and destroyed the roof of the firm's office and garage complex, three garbage trucks and a pickup truck. Flames damaged walls of the building and tools stored inside, and part of the roof fell on a car parked in the garage area.

Gambling Hall and Rooming House in Las Vegas. The nugget was bought by the Wynns for $1 million after being found in Australia.

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Reagan administration's proposed budget cuts would eliminate about $1 million in funding to two programs at the University of Idaho and Washington State University.

In budget cuts proposed by the president Tuesday, Washington State University and the University of Idaho stand to lose their federally-funded Water Resources Research Institute.

At the University of Idaho, the cut would mean the loss of $290,000 in research funding and salaries for about eight employees, said Del Fitzsimmons, associate director of the institute.

The WSU cut would mean a loss of about $500,000. The University of Idaho stands to lose another federally-funded institute — the Idaho Mining and Mineral Resources Research Institute — if Congress approves the administration's proposed budget. That cut would mean a loss of another $200,000.

The proposed budget would affect funding for fiscal 1982, which begins Oct. 1 for most programs.

However, a staff member in the Office of Management and Budget in Washington, D.C., said the Water Resources Institute cut also contains a proposed rescission of $11.8 million in the 1981 budget for the agency funding the institutes.

That agency, the Office of Water Research and Technology, is targeted for elimination under the administration's proposal.

Muriel Robinette, UI Mineral Institute director, said an organization of mineral institute directors have begun a lobbying campaign in Congress to combat the cuts.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, has been identified as one of the two principal targets of the lobbying effort because of his chairmanship of the Senate Appropriations Committee Interior Subcommittee.

That subcommittee must ultimately decide whether to follow the administration's request and cut the program by not appropriating any funds.

Travel limited to early or late in day

Lilly Grade road closing soon

TWIN FALLS — Motorists using Lilly Grade Road south of Castleford will have to travel either early or late in the day beginning March 23.

That day, Twin Falls Highway District's contractor will close the road from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. for a widening project.

Highway Engineer Keith Andersen said this is one of several projects the district is doing to improve the narrow, hazardous road.

Andersen said J. Holley Construction Co. of Twin Falls will leave the road open mornings and late afternoons to coincide with school bus routes. It will also be open weekends and at night, but motorists are urged to use caution since the main road through the project will be being worked on.

Andersen estimated it will take about three weeks to complete the widening project with plans to open the road fulltime on April 10.

Trucks delivering farm supplies and fuel to residents in the Roseworth area, and Roseworth residents traveling to other towns, will either have to cross the grade during hours the road is open or travel via the Jarbridge Road to Rogerson.

Andersen said whenever the district can come up with the money, a contract is let to upgrade another section of the road. The scheduled work is the first since 1978.

Eventually, the district plans to provide a safe two-lane road on the grade. The road is gravel and no paving is involved in the current project.

Agency figures Northwest water adequate

BOISE (UPI) — The U.S. Water and Power Resources Service said Friday most of its projects in the Northwest should have adequate water supplies for irrigation this summer.

However, the service said storage at most of its projects at the end of the 1981 irrigation season would probably be below normal since most have below average runoff forecasts.

The service said areas which are dependent on natural water flow for irrigation may have moderate to severe shortages since natural flows in many areas are expected to be below normal.

The service said the outlook for irrigation water supplies and storage could change depending upon the precipitation received during the coming months.

Projects in southwestern Idaho and eastern Oregon have reported near normal precipitation so far this year, the agency said. However, below normal precipitation occurred in the Upper Snake River Basin.

Areas with below normal precipitation were in northern Idaho, western Washington, northern Oregon and western Montana.

Streamflows were greater than normal at most of the service's Columbia River Basin stations in North Idaho, western Montana and Washington. The stations in southern Idaho and eastern Oregon reported near average streamflows.

The agency's runoff forecasts for southern Idaho and central Washington ranged from 60 to 70 percent of normal.

WesCon moratorium being considered

MURPHY (UPI) — Owyhee County commissioners are considering imposing a moratorium on toxic-waste shipments to a southwestern Idaho disposal company because of concern over possible chemical leaks at the site.

Commissioners have asked for legal help to investigate their authority to prevent waste shipments to WesCon

Inc., one of the few federally approved toxic-waste disposal sites in the country.

Commission Chairman Donald Davis said the commission would like to halt shipments to WesCon for at least a year so environmental studies of the area could be performed.

"We've been taking toxic wastes from all over the country for years,"

Davis said. "Maybe this is the best place to dispose of it. But I'm not convinced of that."

"We've taken our share here for years. That should be enough."

WesCon, located near Grand View in a desolate high-desert environment, is operated by Eugene Ringold Sr., who purchased the former Titan Missile base from the U.S. Army.

Non-paid broadcasting may survive

BOISE (UPI) — A proposal to reorganize the structure of Boise's public television station to phase out state funding may save local non-commercial broadcasting.

Jack Schaeffe, station manager for KAIT-TV, said the Boise State University plan would allow establishment of the Snake River Public Broadcasting Corp., an independent company responsible for obtaining private funding for the station.

Schaeffe said the station wanted state funding, but lawmakers apparently have decided to phase out state money to public television stations at BSU, Idaho State University and the University of Idaho.

He said station officials believed creating a private company "was the most viable way to operate while saving state money during a period of drastic fiscal constraints."

Girl satisfactory after falling off cliff near Jackpot

JACKPOT, Nev. — A 14-year-old girl who fell from a cliff southeast of Jackpot Wednesday is in satisfactory condition at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital in Twin Falls.

Dellaine Webb of Jackpot was playing near the edge of a cliff about four miles southeast of town when she apparently slipped and fell. She landed and tumbled about 15 feet, according to Jay Snyder, director of the Elko County Ambulance Service in Jackpot.

Snyder said an Elko County Sheriff's Department deputy reported a ledge prevented Webb from falling to the bottom of a 30-foot canyon. Efforts to reach her were complicated by limited access to the canyon, according to Snyder, who said the ambulance had to traverse a cow trail.

He said the girl underwent surgery for an arm injury and was treated for dislocation of a shoulder. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Webb.

Victim checked after car rollover

HOLLISTER — A Rogerson girl was released from the hospital Friday after the vehicle in which she was traveling rolled over near Hollister.

Janice Brackett, 7, had been hospitalized Wednesday for observation in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital in Twin Falls.

The girl's mother, Paula A. Brackett of Rogerson, apparently lost control of a small pickup truck she was driving on U.S. 89 south of the Hollister Port of Entry, Idaho State Police said. The vehicle overturned as Brackett attempted to correct the loss of control, police said.

The Ten Commandments

THE FIRST COMMANDMENT: Thou shalt have no other gods before me. (Exodus 20:3 and Deuteronomy 5:7).

What does this mean? We should fear, love and trust in God above all things. (From Martin Luther's Small Catechism).

HISTORY: The people of ancient times worshiped many gods. Even the Israelites of Moses' day believed in the existence of gods other than Jehovah.

Animal worship was also common. It was natural for primitive people, terrorized by wild animals, to think that these creatures were superior to men. And since animals were also a necessary source of food, they had to be propitiated and honored.

No less surprising is the ancient man's desire for idols and images of his gods. Even today many people like to have some sort of visual or tactile representation of the invisible, spiritual world - whether crucifix, statue or altar.

Jehovah, however, was in danger of being lost among all the gods and idols of Moses' time. This commandment was designed to put Him first and foremost by warning the Israelites that they were to worship Him alone.

What resulted was not the "specialism" of the Old Testament, but would come later at the time of the prophets. But it was a "practical monotheism." In a world of competing gods, all other gods but Jehovah were to be forsaken.

MEDITATION: Most of us have an easy time with this commandment.

Too easy. The trouble is that ours is often primarily a "speculative monotheism." We believe in only one true God. No problem. There is little danger of our worshipping a golden calf!

As a practical matter, however, we must admit we often love and trust other things or other people more than we love and trust God.

As for fearing God, we just don't. The ancient Israelites' idea of God could at times be very primitive. When their God was angry, slaughters were ordered of animals, even innocent children and babies in arms.

But perhaps we need to recapture the Israelites' idea of God who must be feared as well as loved and whose laws and commandments have to be obeyed. And to be reminded that when they are not - when "God is angry" - there are tragic consequences!

only for the "wrong-doer" but for countless innocent parties as well.

The sins of the father, God reminded the Israelites when he revealed upon the children "are visited upon the children." We know that to be so - and our children - unto the third and fourth generations, God said. And we know that can be true too.

God should perhaps be compared in our thinking to electricity. Although we can't see it, it can light up our lives and give us warmth and comfort. And provide power.

But it must also be feared and respected or it can destroy us.

VATICAN CITY (UPI) - The Vatican said Thursday the right to life applies to fetuses with birth defects and it denounced new American medical techniques that diagnose such defects before babies are born.

A nine-page Vatican document said the ability to diagnose birth defects in the pre-natal stage encourages some women to undergo abortions and amounted to both a breach of medical ethics and a violation of the "inalienable right to life."

The Vatican criticism was directed at amniocentesis, ultra-sound scanning and chromosome analysis - techniques developed in the United States that allow doctors to diagnose birth defects such as mongolism, hydrocephalia and hemophilia in the fetus and fetus's of pregnancy.

"Developments in science and medicine have enabled us today to discover in the fetus some defects which can give rise to future malformations and deficiencies," the Vatican document said.

"The impossibility at present of providing a remedy" for them by medical means has led some to propose and even to practice the suppression of the fetus.

Such conduct, springs from an attitude of pseudo-humanism that compromises the ethical order of objective values and must be rejected by upright consciences," the Vatican said.

Amniocentesis was developed about 10 years ago and is now being recommended by obstetricians for most women who become pregnant after the age of 35, when the chances of giving birth to malformed children increase dramatically.

The technique involves extracting minute amounts of amniotic fluid from the womb and analyzing it for chromosome disorders in the fetus. As many as 15 types of birth defects can be diagnosed through use of the technique.

Ultra-sound scanning, a more recent diagnostic technique, allows physicians to visualize the shape of a fetus and spot larger malformations.

The Merck Medical Manual, a textbook widely consulted by American physicians, recommends abortion as an alternative for women expected to give birth to severely deformed infants.

The Vatican document, however, was emphatic in rejecting abortion.

"One cannot at whim dispose of human life by claiming an arbitrary power over it," the document said. "Medicine loses its title of nobility when instead of attacking disease it attacks life."

The Vatican document was issued to mark the International Year of Disabled Persons and most of it was devoted to expressing the Roman Catholic Church's concern for the handicapped and urging more respect and care for the disabled.

Some general principles

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag set the dummy, add your own dummy's high card points to what declarer has shown and try to figure how many HCP your partner can hold. Then see if you can figure out the exact cards those points may represent.

Try to count everyone's distribution if you can and make it a point to protect jacks, tens or even nines when it appears that they are important.

Then, while this may seem far-fetched and is hard to understand, don't throw low cards from nothing when it seems here that declarer may have to work on that suit later on.

As an example, Dummy shows king-jack-ten in a side suit. You hold 4-3-2. Don't throw one or two cards away unless you are sure your partner happens to hold the queen. You may be showing declarer where it is. Let him guess-don't draw a diagram for him.

Of course there is the question, if you are declarer and have to find a queen beware the ingenious discard of a deuce. Maybe that player (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Pitt's 10-footer at :03 in OT drops Vandals

EL PASO, Texas (UPI) — Dwayne Wallace sank an off-balance 10-foot jump shot with three seconds remaining in overtime Friday night to give Pittsburgh a dramatic 70-69 triumph in the opening round of the NCAA West Regional.

In the second game of the double-header, un-road Northeastern of the ECAC met Fresno State.

Pitt will meet sixth-ranked North Carolina Sunday night in second-round NCAA action.

Pittsburgh trailed for most of the game and appeared to be in trouble when leading scorer Sam Clancy picked up his fourth foul and left the game with 16:01 to play.

But Wallace, who averages 11 points a game and scored 20 Friday night, scored 10 down the stretch of regulation to force a 61-61 deadlock and send the game into an extra period. Idaho had the last chance to win it in regulation, but a 20-foot jump shot by Phil Hopson with two seconds remaining skipped off the rim.

The lead changed hands six times in the overtime, with Idaho going in front at 66-60 on two free throws by Ron Maben with 17 seconds remaining. Pittsburgh, the Eastern Eight tournament champion which boosted its season record to 19-11, called a time out with 14 seconds remaining to plan its final shot.

Wallace got the ball and he chose to drive into the lane from left of the basket. Three men converged on Wallace and he left his feet, double pumped and threw up a line-drive shot that banked off the board and went through.

Clancy scored 22 for Pittsburgh, but only three of those came after he had picked up his fourth foul.

Idaho, which came into the game with a six-game winning streak and which was third in the nation with a 53.2 shooting percentage from the field, was paced by Maben's 21 points.

The Vandals, whose season ended with a 2-4 record, were hurt by the free throw shooting of guard Ken Owens. He missed the front end of four 1-and-1 opportunities, including one with 1:55 left in regulation and another with 1:53 to go in overtime.

Idaho, plagued by turnovers in the early going, found itself trailing by three at 15:12 nine minutes deep in the game. But the Vandals outscored Pittsburgh 17-6 over the next seven minutes.

PTTSBURGH (AP) — Dwayne Wallace scored 20 points, including a dramatic 10-foot jump shot with three seconds remaining in overtime Friday night to give Pittsburgh a dramatic 70-69 triumph in the opening round of the NCAA West Regional.

Idaho (69) — Maben 21, Hopson 20, Clancy 22, Mason 10, 2-2-22, Kellerman 12, Owens 4, 3-12 D, Brose 10, 4-2-0.

Pittsburgh (70) — Clancy 22, Wallace 20, Hopson 21, Mason 10, 2-2-22, Kellerman 12, Owens 4, 3-12 D, Brose 10, 4-2-0.

Halftime: Idaho 55, Pittsburgh 41. Fouled out: Maben 17, Owens 4, 3-12 D, Brose 10, 4-2-0.

Long Island bows in 1st appearance

By United Press International

A young and tiny group of Blackbirds will be migrating north for the rest of the winter.

Danny Knight and Kenny Slonack continued for 43 points in Virginia Commonwealth held off a determined Long Island University comeback Friday night to defeat the Blackbirds 65-69 in a first-round East Regional game.

Long Island, making its first NCAA appearance ever, faltered badly in the early going and trailed by 17 points with 12 minutes to play. But the Blackbirds roared back to pull within 58-57 with 6:08 left in the game.

"We lost this game on experience," said LIU's Riley Clarida, who averaged 15 points a game this season but scored only 8 against the Rams. "We lost our poise in the first half. When we come out next season, we will be ready."

Virginia Commonwealth stopped the LIU surge with free throw shooting and jumped back to a nine-point lead in less than two minutes. LIU was never able to get closer than seven in the rest of the game.

Danny Knight scored 19 points and Edmund Sherod added 18 for Sun Belt Conference champion VCU, 24-4. The Rams meet 15th-ranked Tennessee on Sunday.

In other early NCAA action, Pittsburgh upset Idaho 70-69 in overtime in the West Regional at El Paso, Texas; Boston College defeated Ball State 83-90 in the Midwest Regional at Tuscaloosa, Ala.; and Kansas topped Mississippi 69-66 in the Midwest Regional at Wichita, Kan.

John Bagley scored 19 points and Boston College, 22-6, took control in the final minute to beat Ball State and advance to a second-round clash against 14th-ranked Wake Forest Sunday.

Tony Guy sank three free throws in the final 11 seconds to help 19th-ranked Kansas stave off a torrid Mississippi comeback. The victory sent the Jayhawks into second-round action Sunday against, fifth-ranked Arizona State.

Northeastern upends Fresno St.

EL PASO, Texas (UPI) — Chip Rucker made a layup with four seconds to go Friday night to give lightly-regarded Northeastern a 55-53 victory over Fresno State in the opening round of the NCAA's West Regional.

Northeastern, criticized by many as not being in the NCAA tournament, shook off an early case of the jitters and made up a six-point halftime deficit to end the Bulldogs 13-game winning streak. The Huskies will meet 10th-ranked Utah in Sunday's second round.

With guards Perry Moss and Pete Harris combined for 37 points, Northeastern halted a 53-53 tie with five minutes left in the game and decided to try to hold the ball for a final shot.

With 1:12 to go the Huskies threw the ball, but the result was the same, the resulting scramble for the ball wound up in a jump ball. Moss went against Fresno State's Rod Higgins at the basket.

After calling two time outs, Northeastern brought the ball in bounds to Moss, whose 52-foot shot at the buzzer of the ECAC's northern regional finals kept the Huskies alive last weekend.

Moss drove into the lane and Fresno State's zone defense collapsed around him but instead of forcing up the shot, Moss handed the ball off to Rucker, who had a wide open shot from the baseline for the winning bucket.

Fresno State, following a time out, brought the ball down court and Higgins put one up from 20 feet but the shot, which appeared to have been launched a fraction of a second after the buzzer, fell harmlessly off the rim.

Northeastern, an eight-point underdog, improved its record to 24-5. Fresno, winners of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, ended its season with a 2-5-4 record.

TWIN FALLS — "In the end, it all came down to the fact that they were ahead and we were behind."

That was the analysis Hagerman Coach Skip Pauls offered Friday night following his Pirates' 46-42 loss to Plummer in the opening game of the Boys' A-4 State Basketball Tournament at College of Southern Idaho.

Hagerman meets Nampa Christian at 7 p.m. today for the consolation title while Plummer takes on Mackay for the A-4 crown at 8:30.

Hagerman came storming out in the first period with 17 points, but the next 16 minutes spelled nothing but disaster for Pauls and his crew.

The Pirates hit five points in the second period and only four in the third while Plummer found its hot hand — Joe Mitchell — and quickly darted out in front early in the third period.

"We just went stone cold in the middle of the game and there seemed to be nothing we could do about it," Pauls, coaching in his first state tournament, said. "I think we were just trying too hard and pushing ourselves to the point where the shots wouldn't fall in the basket."

"We played a good game, but you can't win a basketball game by not scoring. Especially in a state tournament."

Hagerman's top scorer and rebounder — Brian Puel — got the Pirates going in the first period with four easy layins. Puel hit his 10th point in the opening seconds of the second period, but following that Plummer Coach Wally Shepherd caught on to Hagerman's style of play and quickly adjusted his defensive tactics.

"They were getting the inside lane and feeding the ball to that kid — Puel — who stands at 6-3 and weighs 166 pounds — for easy points," he said. "So we shut it off and that's when they began to fall apart. They couldn't get going again until the fourth period and still then they had to work hard to get the ball inside to him."

Puel ended up with a game-high 20 points, but wasn't the dominating factor he was during the first eight minutes.

With an average height of 6-3, Hagerman had a considerable height advantage over Plummer, which only has an average of 5-10. But according to Shepherd, the last five game his team has played, they have faced a height disadvantage.

"These kids make up for that problem with smart play. They get the good position and work hard for the ball just like they did tonight," Shepherd said. "Hagerman was much taller, but that doesn't mean much when you can't get the position to rebound."

Plummer took the lead for the first time in the third period — Clay Dahlman's field goal with 1:57 left. Legastil and James Samuels each hit in the final 10.

Marquette, Penn fail in comebacks

By United Press International

A second-half rally didn't not a victory make!

Faced with the prospect of an early spring, Marquette and Penn. both staged furious comebacks Friday night in first-round play of the National Invitation Tournament but Syracuse and West Virginia pulled some character of their own, shutting out victories to advance to the second round of the nation's oldest postseason college basketball tournament.

Tony Bruin scored 26 points to lead four Orangemen in a double figure and help stave off a second-half scare from Marquette en route to an 88-81 victory at Syracuse, N.Y.

Syracuse, a 13-point lead, a 13-point advantage midway through the second half but the Warriors, behind Glenn Rivers' 15 second-half points, closed to within one point on two occasions before the Orangemen reeled off 8 of the game's final 10 points.

A.L. Morganloun, W. Va., the Quakers rallied from a 13-point halftime deficit to lead by six many as four points with 2:33 remaining but West Virginia, led by Greg Nance and Greg Jones, held on for a 67-64 triumph to advance to a second-round meeting with Tennessee.

West Virginia carried a 13-point lead into the second half, but Penn worked its way back into contention.

In the only other game Friday night, Phil Spradling hit 8-of-13 shots from the field to lead Tulsa to an 81-71 victory over Penn American at Tulsa.

After an off-day today, Tulsa (20-9) visits Michigan (18-10) Sunday night to kick off second-round play.

Mackay triumphs in five overtimes

TWIN FALLS — The Mackay Miners proved they were deserving of tonight's championship periods to it.

Mackay scrambled back again and again and finally overcame Nampa Christian 66-60 at the CSI gymnasium Friday night.

Mackay reserve Troy Williams brought the Miners back from the losing side with a 30-foot desperation shot with no time remaining in the third overtime to send the game into the fourth extra period.

The regulation time ended in a 47-47 tie and then bedlam broke out.

No points were scored by either team in the first extra period. The second overtime opened up with Mackay's Gerry Nelson scoring the first four points. The Trojans battled back to tie the game at 51 with 32 seconds remaining. Scott Little had a chance to put the game away for Nampa Christian but missed a nine-footer with six seconds left.

The game dragged on with both teams starting to turn the ball over. Mackay's Randy Nelson once again put the Miners on top with his three points to open up the third extra period. But once again the Trojans came back. With Little's field goal and Jay Lindholm's pair of free throws, Williams' prayer moved the game in to the fourth overtime.

"We handled the pressure and we stuck in there," Mackay Coach Mike Marlane said. "The kids made up their minds because we've been here six years and haven't come out the champions. This time they made up their minds we're going to do it this year!"

With the score at 58-58, Mackay's Nelson put the Miners up via the charity line. Nampa's Mike Melonchik dumped in two free throws in the final minute and the teams, both using confusing defenses, never racked up another point in the 12th extra minute.

Mackay had stamina left for the fifth overtime and Nampa Christian didn't. Nelson and Kelly Coburn combined for six of the Miners' eight points and the Trojans couldn't muster a point.

"It was a very good team effort. I wouldn't say one bad thing about it."

Bruin tracksters take wins in opener

TWIN FALLS — Four Bruins were double winners Friday afternoon as the Twin Falls High track teams opened their seasons with wins in a five-team meet at Bruin Stadium.

The Twin Falls girls, showing signs of repeating as state champions even at this early date, more than doubled the score of their closest opposition in romping to an easy win. Twin Falls registered 116 3/4 points and won every individual running event while Highland was second with 57 tallies.

On the boys side, the tally was closer with the Bruins gathering 95 1/2 points while Jerome showed good depth to take second with 78 1/2 points.

"I felt just super," Coach Jerry Kleinkopf said afterwards. "I was somewhat surprised that Highland wasn't stronger against our boys. The girls did quite a bit like I felt they would although there were some surprises."

Sally Butte was one of the surprises to onlookers on a sunny but windy day. The sophomore won the 100-meters in 13.0 to edge teammate Dina Libert and pushed Libert in the 200 as well, losing by just .05 of a second.

"We knew about Sally and what she could do," Kleinkopf said. "Dina doesn't really have the experience in the 100 and she'll be running in some longer events. Dina ran well today and Sally was with her, so that shows you what Sally can do."

The four double winners include Greg Schorr in the long jump (19-10) and triple jump (41-1 3/4) for the boys while Julie Yergensen, Sherry Ford and Libert were double champions for the girls.

Yergensen turned a 12-28.9 to win the 300 to start the day and finished with a 5:48.5 in the 1600. Ford took the 100 high hurdles in 17.4 and won the 300 low hurdles in 50.4. Libert triumphed in the 200 at 26.5 and was first in the 400 at 1:00.9.

"These are good early-season times for Julie," Kleinkopf said of the defending state 2000 champion. The Twin Falls girls failed to win any relays, but Kleinkopf feels that's a matter time and some switching around will solve. "The Bruins have the running strength to lead any number of relays, if needed."

Eric McManaman led the list of top times with a 1:59.1 in the 800. "That's just a super time for this early," Kleinkopf said.

Jerome's boys showed strength in the distance events as usual. Robbin Main won the 4000 in an excellent 5:58.9 and was second in the 1600 while teammate Jim McKean was second in the 3200 and third in the 1600.

"Friday will be at home next Friday for another five-team meet. Jerome will join Bonneville, Pocatello and Idaho Falls at the TFHS facility."

"Pocatello could be the class of the conference as far as the boys go," Kleinkopf said.

Bruins win two to start

BOISE — The Twin Falls Bruins opened their baseball season Friday with a pair of wins in the Early Bird Tournament.

Twin Falls takes on the Boise Braves this morning at 11 before traveling to Nampa for a 2 p.m. game with the Bulldogs that ends the four-team, round-robin event.

Twin Falls senior Gary Krumm hit a home run and a double to lead the Bruins to a 12-5 rout over the Capital Eagles in the tournament's opener.

The Bruins, with winning pitcher Steve Kravitz on the mound, scored two runs in the third to jump out on top and made a rout of it in the fourth with five runs.

Even with a shutout going, Todd Wigginton came on in relief for Kravitz in the fourth to ride out the final three innings.

Krumm also came through in the second game, knocking in Tony James in the bottom of the seventh to cap the Bruins come-from-behind victory over the Lions.

Borah scored once in the second and third inning after Twin Falls had scored one in the initial inning.

In the seventh, Brett Semple and James reached first base on errors. Brook Brodin, the winning pitcher, helped his own cause with a single that scored Semple to tie the game at two. Krumm then singled to knock in James.

Kellerman MVP for Big Sky

BOISE (UPI) — University of Idaho guard Brian Kellerman was named the Big Sky Conference regular season MVP for his play in a poll of the league's eight basketball coaches, conference officials announced Friday.

Nevada-Reno's Greg Palm also was tabbed as the top newcomer to the Big Sky while Idaho's Jeff Bracie was picked as the conference's top reserve player.

Kellerman, a 6-foot 5-inch sophomore from Richland, Wash., gained five votes among the coaches' top picks while Idaho's Jeff Bracie was named MVP. The Big Sky regular and post-season titles.

Behind Kellerman's steady backcourt play, Idaho was picked by the NCAA to meet Pittsburg in the first round of the NCAA basketball tournament in El Paso, Texas.

Also receiving votes for the top award were Montana State forward Doug Haskley with one vote; Idaho forward Phil Haggson with one vote; and Montana guard Craig Zamb with two.

Palm, a 6-foot 8-inch junior from Detroit, Mich., had a successful year in his first season with the Big Sky and led the Big Sky in total votes in the coaches' balloting.

He was at or near the top in five statistical departments, averaging more than 18 points per game and pulling down 11.3 rebounds per game. He also set a conference record of 74.5 percent of his free shots in the 71-game league season.

Palm also blocked 1.8 shots per game and averaged 3.6 minutes per contest.

Others receiving votes in the newcomer race were Idaho State guards Byron Williams and Terry Goddard, Northern Arizona guard Elliot "Dinky" Jones and Idaho guard Ken Owens.

Bruce, a 210-pound 6-foot 11-inch senior from Idaho Falls, Idaho, was tabbed as the league's top reserve for his performance by four of the coaches. He averaged five points and 2.5 rebounds per game, while getting more than 17 minutes of playing time in each game.

Idaho State's Brent Koefler, a freshman guard, and Montana State swingman Marshall Plant, a junior, also received votes.

More rookies enter Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Three rookies entered the Indy 500 race Saturday. Tony Becth, Michael Chandler and Phil Genth were entered Friday for the sixth running of the Indianapolis 500-mile race May 24.

Bettenhausen of Speedway, Ind., the 1976 Indy 500 winner, will drive a championship division, will use a McLaren-Cosworth.

He passed the rookie test at IMS last year but crashed in practice. He then became the 28th driver to qualify for a starting position. He was bumped by a faster car on the final day of time trials.

$4.2 million over six years

Burleson becomes highest-paid shortstop

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Rick Burleson agreed Friday to a six-year, $4.2 million contract making him the highest-paid shortstop in baseball history and the third richest member of the California Angels.

Burleson, traded to the Angels from the Boston Red Sox last December, will be paid an estimated $700,000 a year. If he had not reached agreement on the deal, he would have played out his option year this season on a four-year contract paying him just $125,000 a year.

"I'm happy that things have worked out and I'll be here for awhile," said Burleson, a native of Lynwood, Calif., who recently bought a new home near Anaheim Stadium.

"I wouldn't have wanted negotiations to drag into the season. I had to go through that with Boston in 1976 and it isn't a very good atmosphere to play in."

The shortstop made it clear he wanted to be the highest paid shortstop in the game, and the final contract figure was expected to keep at that level for several seasons.

"The problem in this age of escalating salaries is that tomorrow someone else can sign for twice as much," his agent, Jack Sands, told reporters.

"We wouldn't have wanted that to happen, so we made an attempt to determine Rick's value compared to the future market. Rick is a very competitive individual and this is something that means a lot to him."

Burleson, 25, apparently doesn't mind making less than two of his teammates on the Angels. Outfielder Fred Lynn acquired from Boston in another trade last January, is the club's highest paid player at an estimated $1.3 million a year.

First baseman Rod Carew—the former American League batting champion, is making about $900,000 a year.

Burleson's contract also makes him the fourth highest paid infielder in baseball, outranked only by Carew, first baseman Pete Rose of Philadelphia and third baseman George Brett of Kansas City.

Burleson originally planned to try to get on with the Angels through the free agent market, but he got his wish quicker than expected when Boston traded him and third baseman Bobby Hosburn to California for third baseman Carney Lansford, pitcher Mark Clear and outfielder Rick Mill-

During his six years in Boston, Burleson averaged 153 games and .274. He has played for three American League All-Star teams.

Last season he led American League right-handed batters with 179 hits and received his second straight Red Sox MVP award.

Briefly in sports

KC. Astros, Expos tabbed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Odds maker Bob Martin issued Union Plaza Sports Book pennant odds Friday which gave the Kansas City Royals an edge in the American League and made it a 13-5 tossup between the Houston Astros and the Montreal Expos in the National League.

The odds carried the stipulation, "in view of the threatened player strike, that at least one team had to play 16 games."

"Since the size of the owners strike insurance is estimated to be between $40 and $50 million, man-to-man betting around town has the players favored 6-5 to walk off the field come May 29," said Martin. Martin's 1981 Pennant Lines.

Utah skiers pass Vermont

PARK CITY, Utah (UPI) — First and second place by Utah skiers Scott Hoffman and Mark Halvorson in the slalom boosted Utah into first place in the men's NCAA Skiing finals after the third day of competition Friday.

Defending champion Vermont, which had a five-point lead going into Friday's event, placed no skier higher than 7th in Utah's lead to a 15-point lead 199-124.

"We've always been consistently good in the slalom," said Roo Harris, Utah's alpine coach.

"But of course we were very nervous because we wanted to pick up enough points to take some of the pressure off the relay team."

Utah's strong finish did release some of the tension from today's final cross country relay. Vermont has to win that event and Utah finish no better than third for the New England school to retain the title.

Cavs remove Musselman

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Bill Musselman was removed Friday as coach of the Cleveland Cavaliers, who have lost their last eight games, and was named a vice president and director of player personnel.

Ted Stepien, Cavaliers' president and owner, said General Manager Don Delaney will be interim coach to finish out the season.

Musselman, a former coach at the University of Minnesota, took over as coach of the Cavaliers at the beginning of the season when Stan Albeck left to coach the San Antonio Spurs after disagreements with Stepien.

The Cavaliers, mired in fifth place in the NBA's Central Division with a 25-46 mark, had a nearly complete turnover of personnel under Musselman. The only starter left from Albeck's squad is Mike Mitchell, who was named to the All-Star squad this year.

In recent weeks, Musselman had been criticized by the media and his players for failing to use his bench.

"This is frustrating," veteran Mack Calvin said after a 101-95 loss to Seattle Wednesday.

Judge delays venue decision

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A federal judge Friday postponed a decision on the NFL's request for a change of venue in the upcoming trial between the Raiders and the Oakland Raiders.

Judge Harry Pregerson, who said earlier in the week he'd rule on the change of venue request Friday, announced he was putting it off until Monday. He also took under advisement the NFL's request for a postponement of the trial, slated to begin March 23.

The Raiders have filed suit against the NFL and Los Angeles-Rams — who vacated the Los Angeles Coliseum two years ago and moved to nearby Anaheim — claiming the two parties conspired to block the Raiders' proposed move to Los Angeles, a violation of federal anti-trust laws.

Colorado coach resigns

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Basketball coach Bill Blair of the University of Colorado, unhappy with budget restrictions and reported to be ready to coach in the NBA, resigned Friday after five years.

Blair reportedly will become an assistant coach for the New Jersey Nets under Larry Brown. Brown, former coach of the NBA Denver Nuggets and currently coach at UCLA, is rumored to be returning to pro coaching at the end of the NCAA tournament.

Blair cited a low CU athletic budget for his decision to leave.

"We had a recruiting year last year that ranked anywhere from 14th to 18th in the country," he said.

"But it became a situation this year that we could not even get out on the road. You can't run a program like that. They're trying to make money available now, but it's a little too late. I've got to try to get my face seen where it should have been seen all along."

Colorado Athletic Director Eddie Crowder said a search would begin immediately for a new coach.

Blair had turned CU's program around in his five years. The school had its first winning season in eight years in 1978-79, finishing 14-13, and the team had 17 victories in 1979-80.

Nadig captures overall title

FURANO, Japan. (UPI) — Switzerland's Marie-Theres Nadig won the women's overall World Ski Cup Friday, ensuring her victory two weeks before the final race of the season by taking the giant slalom at Furano.

Nadig belatedly celebrated her 27th birthday, which was earlier this week, with two fluent runs that gave her an aggregate time of two minutes 34.05 seconds, almost four-tenths of a second ahead of defending Cupholder Hanni Wenzel of Liechtenstein, who placed second.

Rice, Boston exec scuffle

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — All-Star outfielder Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox got in a scuffle Friday with Bill Crowley over a parking spot at the team's training base and the club vice president and public relations director came away with a bruised arm when Rice got him in a hammerlock.

Crowley approached Rice behind the batting cage at Marchant Stadium, where Boston was about to play Detroit in an exhibition game, and witnesses heard him say, "The next time you park your car in that spot you're going to find four flat tires."

Rice reportedly often uses a parking spot that has Crowley's name on it at Boston's training base in nearby Winter Haven, Fla.

The two exchanged more words and Rice caught Crowley's arm and twisted it behind his back, drawing blood in the process.

Jones gains GP pole spot

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Australia's Alan Jones saved his best for last Friday, using his 18th and final lap to grab the pole position for Sunday's Long Beach Grand Prix, the opening event of the 1981 Formula One World Championship season.

Jones, the defending World Champion, covered the 2.02-mile, 12-turn course through the city streets in 1:20.91 for an average speed of 89.77 mph despite a howling 30 mph wind.

"If there's less wind Saturday and Sunday, I think everyone will be a little quicker," Jones said after climbing out of his Saudi-Leyland-Williams. "The wind today caused some problems, blowing sand all over the course."

"Actually, I was somewhat surprised we went as fast as we did. I really thought two or three other teams might be quicker."

Pro golf

Floyd, Wadkins tie for Doral lead

MIAMI (UPI) — A confident Raymond Floyd shot a four-under-par 68 in a persistent rain Friday to cling to a share of the lead with Lanny Wadkins at the midway point of the $25,000 Doral Open Golf tournament.

Floyd carded a 68 and Wadkins played before the rain began and came up with a 66 over the Doral Blue Monster course. They were tied at 10-under-par 134 after 36 holes.

Gil Morgan fired a 69 to put him a stroke back at 135, and Leonard Thompson's 68 gave him a 136. Two more shots back at 138 were Tom Kite, winner last week at Inverrary, with a 69 and Keith Fergus with a 71.

Floyd, Morgan and David Graham were tied for the lead, a stroke ahead of Fergus, after Thursday's first round. Graham dropped back in the par-3 Friday with a 73, putting him at five-under-par 139.

Jack Nicklaus finished the day at 147 after carding a 73 over the par-72 layout and missed the cut at 148 for the first time this year.

South African Gary Player, making his first U.S. start of the year, was at 73-63. Spanish star Seve Ballesteros, also making his first start of the year in this country, shot 75-Friday for a 146 total.

Floyd said the rain started just after he sank a 20-foot putt for eagle 3 on his 11th hole. He bogeyed the next hole by missing the green, but finished his round with a pair of birdies on putts of 3 and 10 feet.

"I feel happy with the round, considering the conditions. It got pretty nasty the last eight holes," Floyd said. "Trying to stay dry makes it difficult. It was kind of a steady, persistent in-your-kind kind of rain. It was in-between-puffing-on-your-rain suit and not putting it on."

But Floyd said he wouldn't be upset if the weather stayed bad.

SUN CITY WEST, Ariz. (UPI) — Pat Bradley turned in a tournament and course record 66 Friday to grab a share of the second-round lead with Patty Hayes in the $100,000 LPGA Sun City Classic at Hillcrest Golf Course.

Bradley, 29, from Marco Island, Fla., and Hayes, also a Florida-born Rockledge, stand at eight-under-par 138, a stroke ahead of Karolyn Kertzman and Donna Caponi.

Hayes duplicated her opening round 69, while Kertzman and Caponi each had 65. Hayes, who was two strokes off Alexandra Reinhardt's opening day pace, was steady in her morning round while Bradley was little short of electrifying in the late afternoon.

A seven-time tour winner, Bradley was one-under at the turn, playing off the backside, then had a string of five birdies, her all-time best and two off the LPGA mark held by Patty Mann. Not only was her 66 a record at

"Anytime you're leaving, you're leaving under adverse conditions. It makes it difficult to shoot low rounds," said the 18-year pro. "It makes it harder to pick up ground and harder to lose ground."

"The way he's playing, it may be hard to pick up ground no matter what the conditions."

"At this stage of my career and the way I'm playing, any course suits me," he said. "Right now, playing is fun because it's easy. You can call it luck if you want, and I don't want to do anything to disturb it."

Wadkins said he hoped he was starting another of his hot streaks because, when he does, "I get very positive and keep attacking the course."

He made the turn Friday at three-under-par 33 and added four birdies and a three-putt bogey on his back nine.

Reinhardt carded a 76 Friday to fall five shots off the pace in a two-way tie at 143 with Chris Johnson.

Among those who did not make the cut to 70 players and lies were, Laura Baugh Cole and JoAnne Prentice, both at 152, and Marlene Floyd, 153.

The first round will be played today and Sunday, with the winner taking home $15,000.

A seven-time tour winner, Bradley was one-under at the turn, playing off the backside, then had a string of five birdies, her all-time best and two off the LPGA mark held by Patty Mann. Not only was her 66 a record at 147 after carding a 73 over the par-72 layout and missed the cut at 148 for the first time this year.

South African Gary Player, making his first U.S. start of the year, was at 73-63. Spanish star Seve Ballesteros, also making his first start of the year in this country, shot 75-Friday for a 146 total.

Floyd said the rain started just after he sank a 20-foot putt for eagle 3 on his 11th hole. He bogeyed the next hole by missing the green, but finished his round with a pair of birdies on putts of 3 and 10 feet.

"I feel happy with the round, considering the conditions. It got pretty nasty the last eight holes," Floyd said. "Trying to stay dry makes it difficult. It was kind of a steady, persistent in-your-kind kind of rain. It was in-between-puffing-on-your-rain suit and not putting it on."

But Floyd said he wouldn't be upset if the weather stayed bad.

SUN CITY WEST, Ariz. (UPI) — Pat Bradley turned in a tournament and course record 66 Friday to grab a share of the second-round lead with Patty Hayes in the $100,000 LPGA Sun City Classic at Hillcrest Golf Course.

Bradley, 29, from Marco Island, Fla., and Hayes, also a Florida-born Rockledge, stand at eight-under-par 138, a stroke ahead of Karolyn Kertzman and Donna Caponi.

Hayes duplicated her opening round 69, while Kertzman and Caponi each had 65. Hayes, who was two strokes off Alexandra Reinhardt's opening day pace, was steady in her morning round while Bradley was little short of electrifying in the late afternoon.

A seven-time tour winner, Bradley was one-under at the turn, playing off the backside, then had a string of five birdies, her all-time best and two off the LPGA mark held by Patty Mann. Not only was her 66 a record at

Snead tops wind, leads Vintage

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. (UPI) — Sam Snead fired a three-under-par 69 Friday despite a roaring 45 mph wind and grabbed the second-round lead in the $300,000 Vintage Invitational for players over 50 years old.

Snead, 68, sank two-foot birdie putt on No. 17 and then rolled in a twisting 20-footer for another birdie on the 18th hole to take a one-stroke lead over Bob Goaly heading into Saturday's third round. It was Snead's second consecutive 69 for a 138 total, six-under-par.

"He's amazing," another golf legend, Arnold Palmer, said of Snead. "He just gets better with age."

Snead who said, "I would have settled for two pars on the last two holes and walked in," had five birdies and two bogeys on the wind-swept Vintage Country-Club course. His 20-foot putt on the final hole was his only long putt of the round. The others were from three, 15, 40 and two feet.

Tied for third at 142 in the battle for the $50,000 winner's share were Dow Finsterwald and Gene Little with Bob Rosburg at 143 and four golfers including Palmer and Julius Boros — were deadlocked at 144.

Still a here under $9,900.

There's never been a better time to buy a Rabbit. The reason's simple: Prices start at $5,930* and we're dealing from there.

No, these aren't used cars or stripped down models. It's $5,930 for the brand new 1981 gas Rabbit with all the standard features: front wheel drive, power assisted front disc brakes, independent suspension, rack and pinion steering and a peppy fuel injected engine that does 0-50 mph in 8.3 seconds. But best of all it's a Volkswagen.

So come in today. There's never been a better time to buy a new Rabbit. But a word of caution. At a price like this they'll go fast standing still.

ATTENTION CONTRACT BEANS INC. MEMBERS!

Read your contract before signing! It has come to our attention that some companies are offering a contract reworded from previous years. In our opinion, the grower who signs some of these contracts takes all the risk no matter what happens to the quality of seed; or who may cause the deterioration or damage, whether it occurs on the farm, or in the warehouse while being cleaned, stored or in preparation for final disposition. It makes no difference if the Seed Co. breeds a variety that has an inbred genetical weakness causing low germination. The damage will, according to these contracts, be the responsibility of the growers, even though the seed and all it produces is at all times the property of the Seed Company. Following are two paragraphs copied from a contract word for word.

5. "It is mutually agreed that the Company, as soon as practicable after delivery to it of the crop, shall have the same re-cleaned, examined, and tested to determine whether it meets the quality standards specified herein. All screenings, including culls, unmerchantable seed, splits, dirt, and other foreign material, removed from the crop during re-cleaning shall become the property of the party removing it. The Grower assumes all risk of damage to, or loss of, said crop from any cause until final acceptance of the crop by the Company."

6. "All seed delivered under this agreement that does not meet the quality standards specified herein, at the option of the Company may be accepted at the price specified herein or at a reduced price mutually agreed upon, may be taken in for further re-cleaning, or may be rejected in whole or in part. If all or any part of the seed crop is rejected, the title to such rejected seed, but not the screenings, shall immediately vest in the Grower, and such rejected seed shall constitute his entire compensation therefor. The Grower agrees to reimburse immediately the Company for any advance and expenses incurred, and the Company shall have a lien on all such rejected seed for all sums owing it by the Grower."

We feel this kind of contract puts us back where we were ten years ago. This contract protects the Seed Company, but the grower gets nothing until the Seed Company, at its option, gets through with all its rilling, remilling, testing, warehousing, final fitting etc. After all that, the grower may or may not get paid. And if rejected, the grower can have the crop or what is left of it. By this time the crop could be 35% to 40% screened out. The screening belongs to the Company. Then the grower must reimburse the company immediately for all expenses incurred. It seems rather one-sided.

Briefly in sports

MLB Astros, Expos tabbed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Odds-maker Bob Martin issued Union League Sports Book pennant odds Friday, which gave the Kansas City Royals an edge in the American League and made it a 13-5 lopsided bet between the Houston Astros and the Montreal Expos in the National League.

"The odds carried the stipulation. In view of the threatened player strike, that at least one team had to play Las Vegas."

"Since the size of the owners strike insurance is estimated to be between $40 and $50 million, man-to-man betting around town has the players favored 6-5 to walk off the field come May 29," said Martin.

Martin's 1981 Pennant Line is:

American League
Kansas City Royals 8-5; New York Yankees 15-5; Baltimore Orioles 12-4; Milwaukee Brewers 7-2; California Angels 6-1; Texas Rangers 6-1; Oakland A's 10-1; Boston Red Sox 2-1; Detroit Tigers 2-1; Minnesota Twins 20-1; Cleveland Indians 20-1; Chicago White Sox 75-1; Toronto Blue Jays 10-1; Seattle Mariners 50-1.

National League
Houston Astros 15-5; Los Angeles Dodgers 14-5; Montreal Expos 13-1; Philadelphia Phillies 14-5; Cincinnati Reds 6-1; Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1; St. Louis Cardinals 8-1; Atlanta Braves 5-1; San Francisco Giants 50-1; San Diego Padres 150-1; Chicago Cubs 150-1; New York Mets 150-1.

Utah skiers pass Vermont

PARK CITY, Utah (UPI) — First and second place by Utah skiers Scott Hoffman and Mark Halverson in the slalom boosted Utah into first place in the men's NCAA Skiing finals after the third day of competition Friday.

Defending champion Vermont, which had a five-point lead going into Friday's event, placed no skier higher than 7th as Utah took a 15-point lead 108-124.

"We've always been consistently good in the slalom," said Roo Harris, Utah's alpine coach.

Utah's strong finish did release some of the tension from today's final cross country relay. Vermont has to win that event and Utah finish no better than third for the New England school to retain the title.

Cavs remove Musselman

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Bill Musselman was removed Friday as coach of the Cleveland Cavaliers, who have lost their last eight games, and was named a vice president and director of player personnel.

Steve Stepien, Cavaliers' president and owner, said General Manager Don Delaney will be interim coach to finish out the season.

Musselman, a former coach at the University of Minnesota, took over as coach of the Cavaliers at the beginning of the season when Stan Albeck left to coach the San Antonio Spurs after disagreements with Stepien.

The Cavaliers, mired in fifth place in the NBA's Central Division with a 25-46 mark, had a nearly complete turnover of personnel under Musselman. The only starter left from Albeck's squad is Mike Mitchell, who was named to the All-Star squad this year.

In recent weeks, Musselman had been criticized by the media and his players for falling on his bench.

"This is frustrating," veteran Mack Calvin said after a 101-95 loss to Seattle Wednesday.

Judge delays venue decision

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A federal judge Friday postponed a decision on the NFL's request for a change of venue in the upcoming trial between the league and the Oakland Raiders.

Judge Harry Pregerson, who said earlier in the week of a ruling on the change of venue request Friday, announced he was putting it off until Monday. He also took under advisement the NFL's request for a postponement of the trial, slated to begin March 23.

The Raiders have filed suit against the NFL and Los Angeles Rams, who vacated the Los Angeles Coliseum two years ago and moved to nearby Anaheim — claiming the two parties conspired to block the Raiders' proposed move to Los Angeles, a violation of federal anti-trust laws.

Colorado coach resigns

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Basketball coach Bill Blair of the University of Colorado, unhappy with budget restrictions and reported to be ready to coach in the NBA, resigned Friday after five years.

Blair reportedly will become an assistant coach for the New Jersey Nets under Larry Brown. Brown, former coach of the NBA Denver Nuggets and currently coach at UCLA, is rumored to be returning to pro coaching at the end of the NCAA tournament.

Blair cited a low CU athletic budget for his decision to leave.

"We had a recruiting year last year that ranked anywhere from 14th to 18th in the country," he said. "But it became a situation this year that we could not even get out on the road. You can't run a program like that. They're trying to make money available now, but it's a little too late. I've got to try to get my face seen where it should have been seen all along."

Colorado Athletic Director Eddie Crowder said a search would begin immediately for a new coach.

Blair had turned CU's program around in his five years. The school had its first winning season in eight years in 1978-79, finishing 14-13, and the team had 17 victories in 1979-80.

Nadig captures overall title

FURANO, Japan (UPI) — Switzerland's Marie-Theres Nadig, Japan's World Ski Cup Friday, ensuring her victory two weeks before the final race of the season by taking the giant slalom at Furano.

Nadig belatedly celebrated her 27th birthday, which was earlier this week, with two fluent runs that gave her an aggregate time of two minutes 34.08 seconds, almost four-tenths of a second ahead of defending Cupholder Hanni Wenzel of Liechtenstein, who placed second.

Rice, Boston exec scuffle

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — All-Star outfielder Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox got in a scuffle Friday with Bill Crowley about a parking spot at the team's training base and the club vice president and public relations director came away with a bruised arm when Rice approached him in a hammock.

Crowley got into Rice behind the batting cage at Marchand Stadium, where Boston was about to play Detroit in an exhibition game, and witnesses heard him say, "The next time you park your car in that spot you're going to find four flat tires."

Rice reportedly often uses a parking spot that has Crowley's name on it at Boston's training base in nearby Winter Haven, Fla.

The two exchanged more words and Rice caught Crowley's arm and twisted it behind his back, drawing blood in the process.

Jones gains GP pole spot

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Australia's Alan Jones saved his best for last Friday, using his 18th and final lap to grab the pole position for Sunday's Long Beach Grand Prix, the opening event of the 1981 Formula One World Championship season.

Jones, the defending World Champion, covered the 2.02-mile, 12-turn course through the city streets in 1:20.911 for an average speed of 89.777 mph despite a howling 30 mph wind.

"It's a hell of a lot better than Saturday and Sunday. I think anyone will be a little quicker," Jones said after climbing out of his Saudi-Leyland-Williams. "The wind today caused some problems, blowing sand all over the course."

"Actually, I was somewhat surprised we went as fast as we did. I really thought two or three other teams might be quicker."

Pro golf

Floyd, Wadkins tie for Doral lead

MIAMI (UPI) — A confident Raymond Floyd shot a four-under-par 68 in a persistent rain Friday to cling to a share of the lead with Larry Wadkins at the midway point of the $200,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament.

Floyd carded a 68 and Wadkins played before the rains began, and came up with a 70. The pair of Blue Monster course. They were tied at 10-under-par 134 after 36 holes.

Gil Morgan fired a 69 to pull him a stroke back at 135; and Leonard Thompson's 68 gave him a 136. Two more shots back at 138 were Tom Kite, who had a 70, and Gary Player with a 69 and Keith Fergus with a 71.

Floyd, Morgan and David Graham were tied for the lead, a stroke ahead of Fergus, after Thursday's first round. Graham dropped back in the pack Friday with a 73, putting him at five-under-par 139.

Jack Nicklaus finished the day at 147 after carding a 73 over the par-72 layout and missed the cut at 146 for the first time this year.

South African Gary Player, making his first U.S. start of the year, was at 73-143. Spanish star Seve Ballesteros, also making his first start of the year in this country, shot 74 Friday for a 146 total.

Floyd tied the rain started just after he sank a 20-foot putt for eagle 3 on his 11th hole. He bogeyed the next hole by missing the green, but finished his round with a pair of birdies on putts of 3 and 10 feet.

"I feel happy with the round, considering the conditions. It got pretty nasty the last eight holes," Floyd said. "Trying to stay dry makes it difficult. It was kind of a steady, persistent in-your-half kind of rain. It was in-between putting on your rain suit and not putting it on."

But Floyd said he wouldn't be upset if the weather stayed bad.

"Anytime you're rearing, you prefer adverse conditions. It makes it difficult to shoot low rounds," said the 48-year pro. "It makes it harder to pick up, ground and harder to lose ground."

The way he's playing, it may be hard to pick up ground no matter what the conditions.

"At this stage of my career and the way I'm playing, my course suits me," he said. "Right now, playing is fun because it's easy. You can call it luck if you want, and I don't want to do anything to disturb it."

Wadkins said he hoped he was starting another of his hot streaks because when he does, "I get very positive and keep attacking the course."

He made the turn Friday at three-under-par 63 and added four birdies and a par-putt bogey on his back nine.

Bradley's course record nets tie

SUN CITY WEST, Ariz. (UPI) — Pat Bradley turned in a tournament and course record 66 Friday to grab a share of the lead with Patty Hayes in the $100,000 LPGA Sun City Classic at Hillcrest Golf Course.

Bradley, 29, from Marco Island, Fla.; and Hayes, also a Floridian from Rockledge, stand at eight-under-par 139, a stroke ahead of Karolyi Kertzman and Donna Caponi.

Hayes duplicated her opening round 69, while Kertzman and Caponi each had 67s. Hayes, who was two shots off Alexandra Reinhardt's opening day score, shot a round of 65 on Monday round while Bradley was little short of electrifying in the late afternoon.

A seven-time tour winner, Bradley was one-under at the turn; playing from the backside, then had a string pull of five birdies, her all-time best and two off the LPGA mark held by Carol Mann. Not only was her 66 a record at Hillcrest, but so was her 30 — a nine in which she putted 12 times.

"The string of birdies, from holes one through five, included putts of 15, 25, 15, 16 and eight feet. Her sixth birdie came on the seventh hole, barely a tap-in from about a foot.

"I really didn't capitalize on that backside, my front nine," said Bradley. "In fact, I was quite upset at the turn because I knew that those who played in the morning had really stormed out and set some great scores to shoot at. I knew I really had to move to stay in striking distance."

She described her string of birdies as being "almost a trance. It was as if I could see an imaginary line to the hole."

Hayes meanwhile, called her 69 "the greatest round of golf I've ever played."

She started with a double-bogey seven on the 10th hole, playing the backside first, had a bogey on her second hole, then three birdies on that nine and four more coming home. On that double-bogey, she actually missed her second shot, hitting a tree with a club.

"A couple of years ago, I would have been history," said Hayes. "I would have lost it. My temper would have blown up. But I was determined not to let that happen since I knew there were plenty of birdie putts out there."

Reinhardt carded a 76 Friday to fall five shots off the pace in a two-way tie at 143 with Chris Johnson.

Among those who did not make the cut to 70 players and ties were Laura Baugh Cole and JoAnne Prentice, both at 152, and Marlene Floyd, 153.

The final two rounds will be played today and Sunday, with the winner taking home $15,000.

Snead tops wind, leads Vintage

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. (UPI) — Sam Snead fired a three-under-par 69 Friday despite a howling 15 mph wind and grabbed the second-round lead in the $300,000 Vintage Invitational for players over 50 years old.

Snead, 68, sank a two-foot birdie putt on his 17 and then rolled in a twilight 20-footer for another birdie on the 18th hole to take a one-stroke lead over Bob Goody heading into Saturday's third round. It was Snead's second consecutive 69 for a 138 total, six-under-par.

"He's amazing," another golf legend, Arnold Palmer, said of Snead. "He just gets better with age."

Snead who said, "I would have settled for two pars on the last two holes and walked in." He had five birdies and two bogeys on the wind-swept Vintage Country Club course. His 20-foot putt on the final hole was his only long birdie putt of the round. The others were from three, 15, four and two feet.

Tied for third at 142 in the battle for the $50,000 winner's share were Dow Finsterwald and Gene Littler with Bob Rosburg at 143 and four golfers including Palmer and Julius Boros — were deadlocked at 144.

ATTENTION CONTRACT BEANS INC. MEMBERS!

Read your contract before signing! It has come to our attention that some companies are offering a contract re-worded from previous years. In our opinion, the grower who signs some of these contracts takes all the risk no matter what happens to the quality of seed; or who may cause the deterioration or damage, whether it occurs on the farm, or in the warehouse while being cleaned, stored or in preparation for final disposition. It makes no difference if the Seed Co. breeds a variety that has an inbred genetical weakness causing low germination. The damage will, according to these contracts, be the responsibility of the growers, even though the seed and all it produces is at all times the property of the Seed Company. Following are two paragraphs copied from a contract word for word:

5. "It is mutually agreed that the Company, as soon as practicable after delivery to it of the crop, shall have the same recleaned, examined, and tested to determine whether it meets the quality standards specified herein. All screenings, including culls, unmerchantable seed, splits, dirt, and other foreign material, removed from the crop during recleaning shall become the property of the party removing it. The Grower assumes all risk of damage to, or loss of, said crop from any cause until final acceptance of the crop by the Company."

6. "All seed delivered under this agreement that does not meet the quality standards specified herein, at the option of the Company may be accepted at the price specified herein or at a reduced price mutually agreed upon, may be taken in for further recleaning, or may be rejected in whole or in part. If all or any part of the seed crop is rejected, the title to such rejected seed, but not the screenings, shall immediately vest in the Grower, and such rejected seed shall constitute his entire compensation therefor. The Grower agrees to reimburse immediately the Company for any advances and expenses incurred, and the Company shall have a lien on all such rejected seed for all sums owing it by the Grower."

We feel this kind of contract puts us back where we were ten years ago. This contract protects the Seed Company, but the grower gets nothing until the testing, warehousing, final fitting etc. After all this, the grower may or may not get paid. And if rejected, the grower can have the crop or what is left of it. By this time the crop could be 35% to 40% screened out. The screening belongs to the Company. Then the grower must reimburse the company immediately for all expenses incurred. It seems rather one-sided.
