

Stanley elementary pupil Jason Plummer finds the receiving end of nurse practitioner Marie Richardson's injection isn't pleasant

Matron saint

Sole employee of Stanley clinic expert at handling emergencies, routine cases

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

STANLEY — A mountain retreat like Stanley gets more than its share of traumas, so it's only natural the town's clinic has a trauma room.

The trauma expert in Stanley is a most extraordinary person, however. Marie Richardson has been removing fish hooks, bandaging accident victims and stabilizing heart attack sufferers, often with minimal compensation, for nine years.

Richardson, who says her refusal to tell her age keeps town gossip flowing in slow times, is matron saint and sole employee of the Snake River Emergency Medical Clinic.

She holds dual certificates as an emergency nurse practitioner and a family nurse practitioner. The former enables her to start intravenous feeding and stabilize accident victims; the latter to treat scratches, give shots and conduct routine physicals.

On a recent Friday she treated a woman whose car left the Salmon River highway and slammed into a cliff, and she immunized three students from Stanley's elementary school. One of the students kept a stiff upper lip during the shots, then promptly fainted.

Business often comes in spurts, Richardson said. In the winter, there are snowmobile accidents, frostbite, and automobile wrecks. Summer finds an increase in chain-saw mishaps, insect stings, and kicking mules.

In the absence of a qualified veterinarian, she also has been pressed into service removing porcupine quills from dogs.

Last month, a snowmobiler collided with a tree and was seriously injured at Bruce Meadows, northwest of Stanley. Emergency medical technicians (EMTs) were dispatched to the scene while Richardson directed a helicopter's approach from Mountain Home. The final rescue was accomplished after dark. She never saw the victim.

Richardson treats Pat Bonn of Salmon, slightly hurt in collision

Some 15 of Stanley's permanent residents are EMTs. Emergency 911 calls ring at the clinic and the Mountain Village Motel. Four technicians accompany any ambulance run where multiple injuries are suspected, she said.

Like other mountain communities, Stanley has its share of "the quick draw phenomenon," she said. One gunman in recent memory shot himself in the hind quarters.

A woman struck by a bullet from a high-powered hunting rifle arrived at the clinic with her ankle hanging by a shred. Richardson used an air splint to stop the bleeding, gave the victim oxygen and intravenous fluids and sent her on to the hospital in Sun Valley. Hunting mishaps are less frequent in the Sawtooths, she contends, because most hunters use alcohol in moderation, "saving their energy for the steep, back-country terrain."

Her protests notwithstanding, Richardson is largely responsible for the existence of a clinic in Stanley, which is 60 miles from the nearest hospital.

Her family owned a cabin and spent part of each year in the Sawtooth Valley, which was the scene of two serious accidents in 1971. A discussion with John Hutchinson, administrative director of the Idaho Hospital Association, prompted a medical student's study of medical avenues open to the community.

Volunteer labor converted a three-room cabin into a clinic. Later, in 1975, the community opened a modern, modest, new building — once more relying on donations and volunteers. Private foundation funding is available to build clinics in remote areas, she said, but the community was unaware of the possibility.

Richardson, a mother of five, returned to school for the necessary training after an 18-year sabbatical from medicine. In the first several years the clinic was open, her efforts were largely donated, with patient fees covering expenses and little else.

The clinic was originally scheduled to be open only during tourist season, but board members asked in 1972 if it could be kept open weekends, and later year-round.

Richardson leaves the valley only three weeks a year, one week for training and two for vacation. She enjoys hunting, but had to forego a trip last year because of heavy visitor traffic in the Sawtooth Valley.

Richardson got her first salary, $15,000, just last year, thanks to the Idaho Legislature's passage of a bill enabling rural communities to establish health taxing districts.

She plans to stay approximately five more years to make up for the lean years, and then perhaps go back to school for a teaching career.

Two pre-medical students provided by the Woodlawn Foundation of New York helped out at the clinic the past several summers. The two sleep on clinic couches, providing 24-hour phone service and assisting in other ways.

Bill James, a member of the clinic's board and recreation assistant for the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, said he finds it hard to believe the valley ever got along without the present arrangements. "I've raised four kids here, and the clinic has been absolutely invaluable," James said.

Panel hones knife

Senators start work on budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate budget writers, moving quickly on President Reagan's economic program, begin work today on a measure aimed at nudging congressional spending committees into approving large budget cuts.

The Senate Budget Committee, led by Republicans eager to comply with — or even expand — Reagan's reductions, plan to work day and night to get past the first hurdle in the congressional budget-cutting process.

Although a few Democrats on the committee oppose many of the cuts, the panel is dominated by conservatives who have taken aim for years at certain spending, such as social programs, and will get much of what they want this year.

But Democratic leaders in the House, where the only real fight may come over some of the proposed cuts, seemed to be mounting a counter-offensive to save their favorite programs.

Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., said at a mid-week news conference he hoped to unite his members behind certain Democratic principles dealing with health, education and food.

His remarks were followed later in the week by a nine-page letter from House Democratic leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, urging his colleagues to take a hard look at the president's economic program.

Wright, echoing concerns expressed by spokesmen for health and education groups, labor, blacks and the cities, said the program "imposes a grossly unfair burden on those least able to carry that burden — the truly needy."

He also said Reagan's election in November "does not mean that it is the duty of the Congress to rubber-stamp whatever the president proposes."

Although House leaders of both parties have devised a schedule to insure timely consideration of the program, the House Budget Committee is not planning to act as swiftly as its Senate counterpart.

Chairman James Jones, D-Okla., has set up nine task forces to hear from a broad range of witnesses across the impact of Reagan's proposals.

The House panel plans to begin drafting its instructions, aimed at reconciling actual spending with stated budget goals, the week of April 6.

'B' stamp worth 18¢ on sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new stamp, bearing the letter "B," goes on sale at post offices today for 18 cents.

That will be the cost of mailing a first class letter beginning Sunday.

The new stamp, with an eagle on a purple background, can be used to mail domestic letters at the new 18-cent first-class rate which takes effect 12:01 a.m. local time March 22.

The new rates, including a 12-cent postcard and hikes for other classes of mail, were approved last week.

In addition to the "B" stamp, post offices also will sell "B" embossed envelopes and a non-denominational postcard.

It is the second time the Postal Service has issued a stamp with no cost printed on it. In 1978, it issued the "A" stamp that eventually was phased out when adequate supplies of 15-cent stamps became available.

The Postal Service will sell "B" stamps to make sure there was an adequate supply of the new value postage regardless of whether the cost a letter went up to 18 cents or 20 cents.

A spokesman for the Postal Service said adequate supplies of one-, two- and three-cent stamps will be available at post offices to add to the current 15-cent stamp.

The spokesman noted many post offices also have supplies of the current 18-cent stamp, which bears a likeness of Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, the first American woman physician.

Hijackers release Iowan, Californian

Mystery hostage not an American

By United Press International

The State Department revealed Sunday that a mustachioed mystery hostage freed from the hijacked Pakistani airliner in Damascus, Syria, is not an American although he was traveling on a U.S. passport.

Officials indicated he may be a Canadian.

Diplomatic sources in the Syrian capital said American authorities also wanted to talk with Richard Clymore, one of the two known Americans on board the hijacked plane and hoped to arrest him at the U.S. Embassy on drug smuggling charges.

The other American among the 102 hostages released Saturday was lawyer Frederick Hubbell of Des Moines, Iowa.

A State Department spokesman said there were only two Americans on board — Clymore and Hubbell. He said the "mystery man" is not an American, but he declined to say whether he had been identified.

Clymore, 24, of Laguna Hills, Calif., was secretly indicted last month by a U.S. Federal Court in New York and charged with running a multi-million dollar ring that smuggled heroin and hashish from Pakistan and Afghanistan into the United States.

Authorities asked that Clymore's name not be revealed during the ordeal fearing possible reprisals against him by the hijackers.

The mystery man was using a passport under the name of Lawrence Clifton Mangum, who is actually a furniture mover from Brooklyn, N.Y., and has never left the United States, according to his wife.

Clymore said the Pakistani hijackers had good reasons for doing what they did.

"They don't like what their government is doing," he said.

Asked about the 13 days on the Boeing 720 as the heavily armed hijackers bargained for the freedom of political prisoners in Pakistan, he said: "How would you feel if you had been taken hostage for this time with armed men running loose back and forth. It was like 300 hours of machine guns on your head."

Clymore was asked if he hated the hijackers. "What do you think? They shot the guy (a Pakistani diplomat) right in front of us."

Juggling funds may avoid Social Security crisis soon

Bell says he would support ban on busing for desegregation in nation's schools

...proposes merger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration may be able to prevent the expected near-term bankruptcy of Social Security without restricting retirement benefits or raising taxes, Health and Human Services Secretary Richard Schweiker said Sunday.

Schweiker, agreeing that the retirement fund that sends checks to more than 36 million Americans each month will go broke by 1983, said the immediate problem could be avoided by juggling federal bank accounts.

He said that, coupled with Reagan's proposed cuts in Social Security payments to students, tighter requirements for disability, changes in lump sum death benefits and elimination of the minimum payment level, might fix the short term problem.

"We have three trust funds. I think one of the recommendations I will make is that we merge the three for the next three to five years so we can offset the deficits against the surpluses," Schweiker said on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

However, Schweiker's hope is based in part on administration economic assumptions that are admittedly more optimistic than those used by others. The administration is projecting a deficit of about $40 billion in the retirement fund by 1966. The Congressional Budget Office says the deficit will be more like $63.5 billion.

The retirement fund is financed by the same payroll taxes that cover disability programs and Medicare — Although both of those programs are much smaller. The disability and Medicare trust funds show budget surpluses.

"If (merging the funds) would not increase anyone's taxes and would help to finance Social Security for the next two, three, four years," Schweiker said.

"I would also suggest we reallocate the tax base for those three — again not changing taxes, just saying a larger share of that pot will go to the old-age fund," he said.

Schweiker said administration had not yet decided how to handle Social Security's long-range problem — the shrinking ratio of workers paying into the system to the number of retirees drawing from it. Among the possibilities are raising the retirement age and changing the way payments are adjusted for inflation.

In January, Schweiker told Congress whatever was done to fix Social Security would be "painless medicine" and lawmakers could not escape either cutting or restricting benefits or raising taxes.

In an appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press," Education Secretary Terrell Bell said he would support legislation or a constitutional amendment that would prohibit school busing for desegregation.

"I certainly wouldn't oppose that," Bell said. "We certainly won't be pressing, actively out there pressing more suits for busing for desegregation."

Bell also said he didn't think the administration's plan to give tuition tax credits for parents of private school students "will cause a mass exodus of children from public to private schools."

He also said the reason why student test scores were declining was "we've not held the standards, we've not demanded arrival at a certain level of accomplishment before you can be promoted. I think it's time to shape up in academe."

Atlanta marchers call slayings 'racist attacks'

ATLANTA (UPI) — About 1,000 people, many waving signs decrying the city's 5-20 child slayings as "racist attacks," marched five abreast through downtown Sunday to mourn the killings and their impact on "the living children of Atlanta and this nation."

The marchers, from as far away as Iowa, Texas, Washington, D.C., Detroit, Maryland and Virginia, walked from the gold-domed state Capitol to the predominantly black Morehouse College campus. The front line of marchers carried a wreath of jonquils bearing a ribbon with the names of the dead black children.

Although most of the marchers were silent, some isolated groups punctuated the quiet with chants of

"We're fired up, won't take it no more! Save the children."

One group from Boston cried out to spectators, "Why are you hiding, why don't you come out and join us?"

Many of the marchers, mostly students, carried signs denouncing the 22 deaths and disappearances as the work of a racist or racist group, although authorities insist there is no evidence to support the charges.

Some of the signs said: "Fight racist terror," "We must murder the racist that murdered 22 innocent children," "Some marchers were also sporting buttons that read "Stop racist attacks."

Coretta Scott King, widow of the slain civil rights leader, joined the marchers for several blocks, draped out and then rejoined them as they neared the Morehouse campus.

The Association of Christian Students sponsored the march, the second in Atlanta in two weeks. Although less than 100 people came to the first one, the association recruited for Sunday's march at campuses across the country.

A spokesman said money raised by the march would be contributed to the families of the 20 slain children. Another two are listed as missing.

The spokesman said white march organizers are "saddened by the deaths" of the victims, they are "also concerned about destruction that these murders are causing in the living children of Atlanta and this nation, both black and white."

Atlanta police searched Sunday for a 13-year-old black youth who had not been home since Wednesday and has not been seen since 6 p.m. Friday. His mother reported him missing Friday afternoon.

Police spokesman Roger Harris said Timothy Lendell Hill, who lives in southwest Atlanta, "is believed to be a runaway because his friends say he leaves home often and hangs out two or three days at a time."

Another 13-year-old youth reported missing Saturday came home later that night. Dean Williams was reported missing six hours after he was last seen near his southwest Atlanta home.

A Reagan administration official is expected in Atlanta today to work out details of the $1.5 million in federal money earmarked for the costly investigation.

Thurmond drafts full agenda for his Senate committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said Sunday he has scheduled a full agenda for his Senate Judiciary Committee on such issues as balancing the budget, limiting abortion, and school busing and school prayer.

In an interview with U.S. News and World Report, Thurmond said he favors a constitutional amendment to balance the budget.

"It is better for the public and better for Congress, too; if a balanced budget is mandated by a constitutional amendment," he said.

Thurmond said the amendment would limit federal spending to a certain percentage of the gross national product and unless a percent of Congress votes otherwise.

Unsafe imported cars Nader target

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader, who made his name as a consumer advocate crusading against unsafe American autos, wants the United Auto Workers to fund an advertising campaign to tell consumers Japanese autos are even worse.

Nader suggested the powerful union might want to put on peaceful "informative" street demonstrations in front of foreign car dealers to get the message across to would-be buyers.

In a letter to UAW President Douglas Fraser last week, Nader noted the union spent $200,000 several weeks ago on ads urging consumers to buy American cars to save American jobs. He said the head of one major ad agency panned the ads as ineffective because consumers are in the market for quality.

While those ads were being run, he said, a group of New York City Chevrolet dealers ran ads of their own citing Transportation Department unsafe crash tests which showed the Chevrolet to be safer than its Japanese counterpart.

Nader said General Motors criticized the dealer ads and the dealers withdrew them.

information gap about the relatively superior safety of several U.S. cars compared with their Japanese counterparts, Nader told Fraser.

"In so doing they can provide consumers with solid reasons for exercising a preference for domestically produced models," he added.

Byrd, GM chairman call for import lid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd and the chairman of General Motors joined ranks Sunday in urging the administration to limit Japanese automobile imports to the American market.

The West Virginia Democrat, in a speech to the United Auto Workers, said the American auto industry is "temporarily respite" from growing imports of Japanese cars as it shifts gears to meet consumer demands for smaller cars.

Roger Smith, chief executive of GM, the nation's largest automaker, expressed the same view in an interview on CBS' "Face the Nation."

"It is a proper role" for the government to seek limits on foreign car imports, he said.

"Basically we want to see the government get out of business, but there are some things that the industry can't do," Smith said.

Byrd told the UAW's Community

Action Program conference the U.S. auto industry is "suffering" from Japanese car imports.

"Before the imports severely and permanently damage our automobile industry, I urge the president to negotiate with the Japanese to prevent further incursion into the American auto market," he said.

"He should alert the Japanese that they should not significantly increase their production capacity for export to the U.S."

Smith said, "It would be in the best interest of the Japanese and our country to do this voluntarily." He said a voluntary, government-negotiated import agreement is preferable to "a trade war that would be the worst thing in the world."

Smith also said the average GM worker earns $18.50 an hour and that the company would be looking for holiday pay concessions from the UAW when contract negotiations begin next year.

Motorists controlling U.S. gas prices

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Price increases for gasoline are leveling off and a prominent oil industry analyst said Sunday that motorists, by cutting back consumption, are controlling the price.

"In its weekly Lumberberg Letter, analyst Dan Lumberberg said gasoline price increases are less this year than they were at this time last year, and there have been wholesale price decreases during the past week which indicate a further softening of consumer costs.

"But even with decontrol, it is clear the motorist is still controlling the prices," he said. "What the public has achieved is, in effect, to stall the remaining pennies that would have brought the price of American crude to the price levels of world crude."

Take another look at revenue figures

Why are Republican leaders afraid to re-evaluate the Legislature's 1981-82 revenue projection?

Democrats tried for such a re-examination last week but the GOP boycotted the session.

Now it is up to the Republican leadership to prove they are not being politically motivated in their refusal and that the cuts they are making in education and state government are absolutely necessary.

It is their turn to call a meeting of their members of the Joint Revenue Projection Committee, take testimony and put the issue to rest one way or another.

There is no harm in taking a second look at the $422 million revenue projection before going home and leaving public schools, higher education and other programs underfunded.

Gov. John Evans claims the figure is $16 million too low.

It can only benefit the citizens of the state and the Republicans themselves to see if the picture has changed of the so-called poor health of Idaho's economy.

If they find the evidence does not warrant an increase in the revenue projection, the Republicans have the votes to make sure the present projection stands.

If they find there is some extra money coming in — perhaps not as much as Gov. John Evans asserts — it is a simple matter to put it into a few of the needy budgets.

Otherwise, they leave themselves open to the charge they purposely want a low revenue projection in order to justify their reductions in services and programs. Or they leave themselves open to the chance that they are wrong and Evans is right.

Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, the leader of the conservative budget-cutters, believes the $195 million public school appropriation is inadequate but all that can be managed under current budget restraints.

A number of Republicans agree with Van

Engelen and believe in addition that higher education, water resources and a few other programs were underfunded.

But Van Engelen says his work on the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee is simply to set the budget within the revenue projection that is handed to him. Van Engelen and others say they are not expert enough to re-evaluate that projection.

This argument is beginning to wear thin. Legislators are elected to lead as well as take orders.

It does not take a tax expert to perform the simple arithmetic that shows, according to the latest tax collection figures, there could be more revenue this year and next than the Legislature forecast earlier.

Since the Joint Revenue Projection Committee made its report, the state has enjoyed two months of revenue increases, and some economists say Idaho has recovered from the 1980 recession.

Tax Commission Chairman Jenkin Palmer, a former chairman of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, is forecasting an $8 million to $10 million surplus on June 30 of this year.

The Legislature itself is projecting a 10- to 12-percent growth in revenues in 1981-82.

If that growth is tacked onto this year's surplus, that means the state may receive more revenue not only this year but next.

An example of how that money could benefit Idahoans would be to appropriate a good share to the public schools. That would avoid an increase in property taxes next fall that the present public school budget would require.

These important issues deserve more than verbal dismissal by Republican legislative leaders.

The Legislature and the public deserve to have another objective examination of the state's economy and tax collections made.

Need discipline

Editor, Times-News: The Idaho House Education Committee recently refused to introduce a bill that would allow school officials to write a discipline code and spell out authority for a teacher to temporarily remove a student from class to maintain order.

While having an ignorant, inadequately educated, rebellious generation of young people on our hands, and no one seems to want to do anything about it. Children and young people want discipline. They want boundaries and guidelines. They want someone to say, "You may go this far and no further."

Federally funded school material written by humanists and available to any "public school" has been slowly poisoning our school systems with the dangerous beliefs that man is exalted and all values are relative. These materials encourage class discussion and "role-playing" games that undermine the values of the family and respect for authority.

For instance, in the elementary level (second grade) I know of a class situation wherein the children were asked if they thought they should be able to select which TV programs they were going to watch, and how much TV watching they would do. The ones who answered "yes" scored a correct answer. At the junior high level there is a game called "Lifeboat." You are to suppose that there is an overloaded lifeboat. You are one of them, and the others are described as: a pregnant woman, an elderly person, a child, a minister, etc. The raft will soon sink unless some are thrown overboard. You are the one who decides who must die! What an incredible situation to place our youngsters in. This undermines the fact that God is in control.

The humanist idea is, "Do your own thing." Our schools allow this, but it's infringing on their rights to be disciplined or taught to respect others! What then can we expect from our youth but arrogance and disrespect, if we refuse to take the responsibility of teaching that there is acceptable and unacceptable behavior? I encourage you to write to the Health, Education and Welfare Dept. as well as our governor and local legislators concerning your feelings on discipline in the school and federal funds being used to promote humanism in the classroom. If you really care about these things you will pray about them, for "prayer changes things."

Explain taxes

Editor, Times-News: It is surprising to me that the older property owners have quietly accepted the tax hike imposed on them this year while accepting less service and higher user fees from those who operate on the increase.

My taxes went from $334 to $534 and I'm told this 59 percent jump is "about average" and that I should expect to pay even more next year. If each property owner of Twin Falls County has paid around $200 more than in 1979 I can find no justification for the proposed cutbacks and cries of deficits. With fees for recreation activities and Shoshone Park, the loss of Harry Barry Pool, college sports, animal control and talk-of-cutting kindergarten just to mention a few items that have personally affected me I have just one question, "Where has my $200 gone?"

If each of us is paying half again as much tax as last year to give the utilities a break then we have been the victims of a malicious manipulation by our representatives. It's time they were reminded that they were elected by people, not organizations. My research indicates that either a tax shift took place so quickly and quietly that it still isn't understood by those who are responsible for it or someone there must be a hidden surplus of funds that no one is discussing.

Before we silently accept any more cuts in services let's find out who has overcharged us and what they have done with the money. If each of us paid 50 percent more to receive less and inflation only accounts for 12 percent I would like to know where I spent the remaining $176. Multiply this amount times the number of taxable pieces of property we are dealing with and it takes no imagination to see there are huge sums unaccounted for.

Changes must be made and compensation and explanation given. If they are not forthcoming I suggest each person who has paid more owes it to themselves to remember those extra hundreds of dollars that were added to your tax bill, so nonchalance and ask yourself to be wiser in the future. Don't be fooled by the gesture of placing a blanket around your water heater into accepting an increased tax share from now on. If our legislators refuse to balance this injustice we would be wise to make some changes in who we choose to protect and represent us.

Will's wrongs

Editor, Times-News: Columnist George Will implies that older Americans have become "fat cats" who are not only getting rich from undeserved government handouts but are also the cause of much of the nation's double-digit inflation (Times-News Feb. 8)

The facts show otherwise. The latest statistics indicate that, after nearly a decade of stability, the poverty rate among older persons has begun to rise again. And a recent study by the prestigious economic consulting firm Data Resources Inc. indicates that the prognosis for the elderly during the 1980s is "less auspicious than in the past, particularly in relation to the gains anticipated for younger Americans."

There is overwhelming evidence that the elderly are the greatest victims of inflation, not the primary cause of it. Mr. Will should not expect older Americans (or organizations which represent them) to allow their meagre anti-inflation protection to be weakened still further while the real causes of double-digit inflation remain unchecked.

Finally, Mr. Will's researchers should be aware that we are the American (not National) Association of Retired Persons.

Reforms hinder recruitment

By DAVID B. WILSON
Boston Globe

Just one example having to do with the standards imposed upon White House aides will be illustrative. An employee of the executive office of the President may not participate in any matter in which that employee has a financial interest. A financial interest is defined as:

...the interest of the employee himself or his spouse, minor child, or other organization in which he is serving as an officer, director, trustee, partner, or employee, or any person or organization with whom he is negotiating or has any arrangement concerning prospective employment.

The key, operative word here is partner. There is no more rigorous application of social Darwinism than the process by which, over decades, a lawyer becomes a partner in a major law firm. The rewards are commensurate.

But to work for the White House, a lawyer who has attained that considerable stature must, practically speaking, resign the partnership that ordinarily is the goal of a lifetime of endeavor — and, to put it bluntly, is worth a lot of money.

Ordinarily, the practical barriers to a term of public service are described in terms of reduced earnings and disruption of personal and family life and community obligations. These would seem of themselves to constitute sufficient discouragement of the able and dedicated.

On the other hand, persons who are without property or whose private associations are, in considerable, worthless or even disreputable find that reform suits them very well indeed.

Affirmative action appointments are, at the levels of executive authority and discretion under discussion here, inappropriate. That does not mean that women and minorities ought not to be appointed. It does mean that the appointment of senior officials for their publicity value renders such appointments less desirable.

The unacknowledged subtlety here is that property-less people whose curricula vitae do not include partnerships and executive experience at the corporate level are by no means, therefore, immune to corruption and conflict of interest. Neither are people whose lives are spent in "non-profit" endeavors. They simply seek different rewards.

In fact, the contrary is the case. People who do not have it made are under considerable pressure to make it in Washington. That, Dear Reader, is the origin of the time-tested expression, "on the make."

President Reagan is said to be encountering trouble filling top management; sub-Cabinet jobs in his administration, and no wonder. One reason is the reforms of the '60s and '70s. Ostensibly designed to enforce high standards of conduct in the public service, they have had certain, possibly unintended and generally neglected consequences. The reforms are imposed at virtually all levels of the state and federal service. They include disclosure, divestiture of potentially corrupting property, and affirmative action. All of these requirements are designed to elevate the general level of behavior in high places. There is little evidence that they have any such effect. Instead, they have served to erect important obstacles to the recruitment by government of individuals of old, great wealth or genuine accomplishment, and of future-oriented, responsible male heads of families. Beneficiaries are single women, academics, professional bureaucrats, and non-profit. New Class types. Insofar as the New Class types were responsible for making the rules, one must assume they knew what they were up to.

Cuts discriminate against women with children

The Boston Globe Newspaper Co., Washington Post Writers Group

PT. MYERS, Fla. — Emma Dunmire is one of those people the President has described as selfish.

She fits his description — selfish member of special-interest group because she has the epicentric nerve to oppose the budget cuts he has outlined.

The 48-year-old mother has the gall to come to the defense of that group of human beings known as displaced homemakers. These are women who have seen their "terrible economic mistake." They stayed home to take care of their children.

Here in Ft. Myers, Dunmire has run "Rediscovery" — one of the 31 success programs across the nation. She has seen them leave with a decent resume, a prop of self worth and a job prospect.

mire has seen 300 women come into the program with little work experience and low self-esteem. She has seen them leave with a decent resume, a prop of self worth and a job prospect.

"We're talking here about really getting people back on their feet," she says. "The frozen funds for CETA (Comprehensive Education and Training Act) mean that half of these programs will simply end March 31. It means that the "stuck" ones, like Rediscovery, will find their budgets amputated — and that they are barely limping along."

So Emma Dunmire, selfish special-interest groupie that she is, now knows what the rest of us had better understand: This administration, which lauds the traditional role for women, "is making this choice, riskier and riskier every day. There is no single job in America more economically perilous today than that of full-time motherhood."

The proposed budget cuts are aimed dead-eye at women who are now, or have been for most of their lives, mothers at home.

Who will be hurt by cuts in food stamps? Women with children.

Who will be hurt by cuts in Aid to Families with Dependent Children? Women with children.

Who will be hurt by cuts in Medicaid, cuts in day care, cuts in child nutrition? Women with children.

This mother is threatened now with the specter of warfare — forced labor at dead-end subsistence-level jobs — if she wants to stay at home. She is threatened with slashes in child-care deductions and training programs if she wants to go to work.

The cuts in programs to the poor affect mothers most, because they and their children are the poor. Two-thirds of the households headed by women with children receive welfare benefits. One-third of today's generation of children are likely to live in homes headed by women receiving welfare benefits before they are 18.

An enormous number of the mothers in this country are one man away from welfare.

But the Reagan proposals may have an even more devastating effect on the older women who have spent most of their adult lives taking care of others.

"Our safety net of programs," insists Reagan, "is intact." But the safety net never caught these women. There are four to six million displaced homemakers in the country.

many are caught between AFDC and Social Security. For many of them, displaced homemaker programs were a road to economic independence.

At the same time, the subsistence rut of economic dependence is pitted with new treacherous holes. The proposed cuts in Medicaid, the proposed cuts in benefits to veterans' dependents, the possibility of raising the age of eligibility for Social Security, are all directed at older women hanging on by their fingernails. There is no net over this abyss.

The older a woman is, the worse the story gets. One out of every two women can expect to be widowed by 65. One-third of all widows live below the poverty line. The average income for a woman over 65 in 1979 was $39 a week.

The plan to cut minimum Social Security will hurt these older women. It will hurt them alone the most. Only 15 percent of those who receive benefits are "double dippers," living off two pension plans. The bulk of them are women who spent a bare minimum time in the work force and now live off those payments.

These are the true stories; these are the true prospects for the traditional woman's role the Reagan administration so prizes. These are the risks for a young woman who wants to be a full-time mother in the brave new world of fiscal responsibility.

Once again protection turns out to be a sham and the caretakers of our society end up at the bottom of the heap. There, if they sift among the proposed budget cuts, they can find a pretty clear message: Any woman selfish enough to want to take care of her own children had better find a husband who will never leave her, and never get sick — and never, ever, die.

Carter: He's concerned but not critical yet

By HELEN THOMAS
United Press International

PLAINs, Ga. — Jimmy Carter, breaking silence for the first time since he left the White House, is concerned about the dismantling of his programs by the new administration but considers it too early to criticize his successor.

"I think the next few months might start the redemption process in the public mind," Carter said.

"I'm not wishing ill on the new administration," he said. "I hope they succeed. But I still think some of the departures might prove to be ill advised. We've made mistakes of our own."

A relaxed Carter, wearing blue jeans, a plaid flannel shirt and leather boots, gave an exclusive interview to United Press International at his ranch-style home. He displayed no withdrawal, pausing only glowing excitement about his new life and the memoirs he has started to write.

"Everyone predicted that when I got home, I'd be frustrated and dissatisfied," he said. "I have to say that we enjoyed the four years we lived in Washington, but since I've been home I have not missed Washington one single minute."

"I say that without bitterness and with a full reminder that I enjoyed it while I was there," he added.

Rosanna Carter, smiling happily, joined in the informal interview Saturday over lunch of Oriental soup and toasted sandwiches and a glass of chilled white wine on the patio.

It had been a big week for the Carters. They sold their peanut warehouse for over $1 million and Carter had signed a contract, re-

Jimmy Carter works on notes at computer console in Plains, Mo., for a book about his White House years.

Speaking of President Reagan, Carter said: "I don't think people hold him quite responsible for details. They might blame budget director David Stockman or others. But they don't blame him. We had a honeymoon too. It's hard to remember, but it's true."

He expressed conviction that Reagan ultimately will face "inexorable pressures" to address the questions of human rights, nuclear weapons control and the environment.

"I have a sense of generosity on time," he said. "I think every administration has to feel its way forward. These issues are very important to me still, and to the world. There's no way to avoid them."

Asked if he had lobbied with Congress to protect his programs, he grinned and said, "Oh, I talked to a few members as a matter of courtesy, just to pay my respects."

As to future troubles on Capitol Hill for Reagan, Carter said "I learned many times over that it's a lot easier to make a speech than to get a program through Congress."

The presidency took its toll on Carter and aged him. But at home in Plains, he is filled with enthusiasm and future plans, including a possible trip to China.

He shrugged off questions such as, "How do you want to be viewed in history?" with "I don't know."

"And what would you miss the most about the White House? 'I've been trying to think of something.'"

"He said his memoirs will be narrative style and not a historical document. They will be gleaned from 5,000 pages of notes he dictated, mostly in the Oval Office, each day — 'My Impressions of things, the conflicting advice I got about crises, the people I met in private... in my own words, not contrived and not uptight, just flowing human words.'"

"I'm not going to write an apology," he said.

"Well, do you have something to apologize for?" Mrs. Carter asked.

"No, I don't feel apologetic," he said, explaining, "But when I detect things that were mistaken, I want to go out of my way to emphasize it could have been done differently."

"The first few months (in office), for example, we were preoccupied with jobs and stimulating the economy, putting people back to work, and we succeeded. But we didn't give adequate attention to inflation, and why we didn't is worthy of a paragraph or two," he said.

"But I don't want it to be an apology. I feel good about the administration," he said.

Carter continues to display the loyalty toward the Georgians in his White House that some critics believe helped to destroy his political career.

Asked if he ever considered dismissing any of them, he shook his head and said "No, they were tops."

As for U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick's thesis that the United States could support a moderately repressive governments, Carter quipped the victims would be "moderately tortured."

Under questioning, he said he believes Iran deliberately held off releasing the 52 American hostages until after Reagan was sworn in on Inauguration Day, but he does not know why.

Asked if the delayed release was disappointing, Mrs. Carter said, "I felt it was a triumph for us. I felt we were going out in triumph."

Besides, she added, she does not think Reagan delivered a "good inaugural speech."

Carter said he thinks the most important single issue of the campaign was the hostages, and the exemplification of a powerful nation and innocent Americans being held."

He said he does not believe he or the nation "excessively exalted the importance of the hostages."

"To me," he said, "it was an indication of the basic power of our country, of the strength of our country, to exalt the importance of those human lives."

Carter said he believes that "in recent weeks" the new administration has focused more on investing the nation's resources "in new plants and new cities rather than human beings."

"To me, even looked at in cold and callous terms, the investment in life... in better education and health, protection of the newborn child, a better diet and opportunities for training... is a good business-paying proposition."

Asked how he interprets the policies of his successor, Carter said "part of it is a basic philosophy, and part of it is an attitude of multimillionaires."

Lyndon Johnson had expressed his great relief when his presidency was over that he no longer had "the man with the black bag, following him with the secret nuclear codes: Did Carter feel the same way?"

"I felt the black bag was in good hands when it was in my possession," he said, adding:

"Anyone who runs for the presidency sooner or later comes to realize that is one of the responsibilities that you volunteer to assume — the necessity of using atomic weapons under certain circumstances, just to protect the security of our country."

Carter expressed that bridge during the early stages of my decision to run for president. I was prepared to do it, if I had to. But I was prepared to avoid the necessity... that was ever-present in my mind."

Carter, delighted with the home computer he has installed for his memoir-writing, and is like a boy with a new toy when it comes to the woodworking tools given to him as a going-away gift by his Cabinet and staff.

Herbert Hoover may have his turn

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington is a city of monuments.

The towering obelisk named for the first president, The Parthenon-styled Lincoln Memorial, The traffic-jammed Wilson Bridge linking Virginia and Maryland, The white marble arts center named after Kennedy.

There are other buildings named after prominent Americans — the Hubert Humphrey building, which houses the Health and Human Services Department and the J. Edgar Hoover Building, which houses — what else? — the FBI.

Now, with the Republican resurgence, there is a move to give Herbert Hoover his due.

Not the Herbert Hoover who lived in the White House at the beginning of the Great Depression, but "the great engineer" Herbert Hoover, a world renowned geologist and Iowa native, the organizer of American relief in Europe after World War I and the man many think was the best secretary of commerce ever.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee and a Hoover scholar, has proposed a bill to name the Commerce Department building, erected during Hoover's presidency, after its most famous official.

When the measure comes to the House and Senate floor, there may be snickers or outright Democratic opposition, although two leading Democrats, Sens. Alan Cranston of California and Daniel Moynihan of New York, are co-sponsors.

Hatfield's speech in support of the bill last week dealt with the high spots of Hoover's tenure as relief coordinator and his secretary — not his term as chief executive from 1929 to 1933.

But a Senate aide, noting Hatfield's graduate work on Hoover at the Hoover Institution on War, Peace and Revolution at Stanford University, stuck up for the maligned 31st president's honor.

Reagan relaxes, views ballet Sunday evening

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Reagan, in New York on a work-and-play weekend, planned a day of relaxation Sunday with his only announced activity attending a ballet performance at the Metropolitan Opera.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, planned to watch their son Ron at the evening's performance by the Joffrey Ballet before returning to Washington. It will be the first time they have ever seen him dance professionally.

The president, who limited his public activity during his visit to the nation's largest city, spoke out on a variety of topics in an interview releasing the 52 American hostages.

Reagan said he would be the first time they have ever seen him dance professionally.

Americans favor stiff punishment for crimes

NEW YORK (UPI) — A majority of Americans believe crime has risen in their neighborhoods over the past year and they lack confidence in police protection and favor the death penalty, Newsweek magazine said.

Fifty-eight percent of 1,630 people contacted in a nationwide telephone poll said there is more crime where they live than year ago, Newsweek said, and many are making changes in their life styles as a precaution.

Among those precautions, Newsweek said, 79 percent of the respondents said they "do not carry much cash, 64 percent said they try not to go out alone at night and others said they avoid certain areas and no longer wear expensive jewelry."

The poll conducted for Newsweek by the Gallup Organization between Jan. 16 and 23 also found that a solid 65 percent of the respondents favored the death penalty for convicted murderers, while only 24 percent said they opposed capital punishment and 11 percent had no opinion.

The magazine said 59 percent of the respondents do not have much confidence in the police to sentence and convict criminals and half said they have little or no confidence in the police to protect them from violent crime.

Seventy-five percent of those surveyed said they believe criminals today are more violent than 10 years ago, the magazine said and almost two-thirds said they were in favor of encouraging citizens to carry defensive weapons, such as Mace.

The magazine said 37 percent of those questioned thought unemployment was the primary reason for the rise in crime and only 32 percent believed "policies of the Reagan administration would have some effect on the problem."

Dole leaves hospital after surgery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., has been released from Walter Reed Medical Center where he underwent surgery last month for removal of a kidney stone.

A spokesman said Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, left the hospital Saturday afternoon and the senator plans to return to work this week.

Dole, 57, lost one kidney due to wounds during World War II.

Philadelphia slaying linked to gambling

Mob boss dies in bombing of home

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philip "Chicken Man" Testa, successor to slain Philadelphia mob boss Angelo Bruno, was killed Sunday.

He died in an apparent mob hit from a bomb that blew apart the lower portion of his house.

Testa, 56, found with $10,900 in cash stuffed in his pockets, was the sixth close Bruno associate slain since Bruno himself was shot — six days shy of a year ago — in an apparent underworld war over control of casino gambling-related rackets in Atlantic City, N.J.

Detectives said they were investigating the likelihood that Testa's slaying also was a gangland killing.

Salvatore Testa, one of the victim's two sons, was seen at his father's house soon after the blast, vowing to kill his father's assassin.

The bomb, apparently planted on the front porch, exploded shortly after Testa returned to his south side home at around 3 a.m., police said. He was off the porch headed for the front door.

The explosion, heard up to six blocks away, blew in the front door, windows and living room wall of Testa's semi-detached two story home and collapsed its front porch roof. It shot bricks and mortar across the street, shattered the windows of his next-door neighbors and prompted some nearby residents to flee their homes in terror.

Nobody else was injured in the blast.

"It was an incredibly loud explosion," said Mary D'Anella, who lives around the block from Testa. "It rocked the neighborhood and my house shook."

Testa did not die until 4:15 a.m., from injuries mainly to the lower half of his body, after doctors at St. Agnes Hospital, treated him for burns over 50 percent of his body.

The Pennsylvania Crime Commission said Testa ran loansharking and gambling for the South Philadelphia-based Mafia and succeeded Bruno — shot to death outside his south side home March 21, 1980 — as head of organized crime in the tri-state area of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

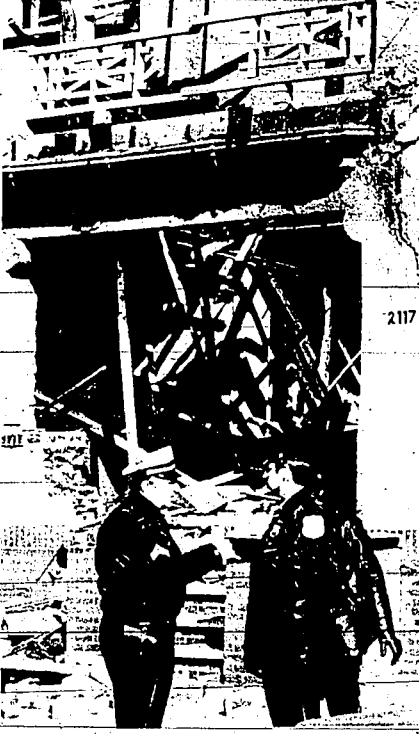

A neighbor, who would not identify herself, described Testa as "the kind, gentlest man."

The string of mob killings is believed to be part of an effort by New York crime families to control casino-related rackets in Atlantic City — part of what has traditionally been Bruno's southern New Jersey territory.

Testa was killed about two blocks from the scene where Frank Sindone, 52, was found shot to death last October. The Crime Commission's 1980 report said the men were Bruno's top aides.

Testa was indicted by a federal grand jury in February, along with nine other mob figures, on racketeering and gambling charges, including loansharking, mail fraud and wire fraud. The case had not come to trial.

Other Bruno associates who have all been shot to death mob-style since Bruno's death were Antonio "Tony" Caponegro, 67; Alfred Salerno, 69; John "Johnny Keys" Simone, 68; and John C. McCullough, 60.

PHILIP TESTA — latest to die

Challenge to supernatural hinted in landlord's death

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Did a young man become a murderous demon — killing his landlord because he unwittingly challenged the supernatural?

"It's just a routine homicide investigation. Nothing else — yet," state prosecutor Walter Flanagan said.

"It's more frightening than 'The Exorcist,'" defense lawyer Martin Minnella insists.

A grand jury convenes Thursday to consider a murder indictment against Arno Johnson, 19, of Brookfield, Conn.

If Johnson is indicted for the stabbing death of his landlord, Minnella said he intends to argue the young man was possessed by a demon who "actually manipulated his body."

"This is not an insanity defense," Minnella said. "We're coming up with something completely unusual in American jurisprudence. We're dealing with the existence of the devil."

The facts of the Feb. 16 slaying initially pointed to an uncompleted tragedy involving "the best of friends."

Johnson, a lanky, quiet youth with curly blond hair and a spotless record, allegedly slayed Alan Bono, 40, outside Bono's kennel, where Johnson did odd jobs and rented an apartment, police said.

Johnson apparently was enraged over an obscene remark Bono made during a get-together with Johnson's girlfriend, Deborah Glatzel, 28, and Johnson's two teen-age sisters, reports said. The men argued in the apartment, then went outdoors and scuffled.

One minute, Bono was pounding his hand in his fist and yelling; the next, he was on the ground with multiple stab wounds, Miss Glatzel said.

Police recovered a knife with a five-inch blade belonging to Johnson. Miss Glatzel said she stood between the men and never saw a knife.

"The devil made me do it," Minnella said. He said he will support his claim with expert testimony from psychic researchers — and possibly from Catholic priests.

deliverance rituals — "minor exorcisms" — performed last summer by five Catholic priests for a 14-year-old boy identified only as David, Minnella said.

Johnson was living with the boy's family at the time and participated in the church rites to rid the boy of demons that were said to have produced strange behavior, such as growling.

"In cases where there might be some aberrant behavior, we might be called in for spiritual care," the Rev. Nicholas Greco of the Bridgeport Roman Catholic diocese said.

"The Bishop did assign a priest to look into this case," he said.

Prayers and blessings were given, Greco said, but "No exorcism was performed or asked for."

Lorraine Warren of Monroe, Conn., who gained national attention with her husband, Ed, for their psychic research in the "Amityville Horror" case on Long Island in New York, said during the slaying Johnson "unwittingly challenged what was within the boy."

She recalled Johnson saying, "Whatever is in him let it take me on."

Mist for measles to end research

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Dr. Albert B. Sabin, developer of the oral polio vaccine, says the new measles vaccination mist will close out his medical research.

In an interview Saturday, Sabin, 74, said the vaccine, which can be inhaled, will be tested on a small group of infants in May in developing nations. It will be assisted by Dr. Manol Ramos-Alvarez of Mexico's Health Ministry, who worked with Sabin from 1955 to 1959 in Cincinnati.

Sabin first tested his polio vaccine in Ohio in 1954.

Sabin said the laboratory work on the measles vaccine will be done in the United States by the National Institutes of Health.

He said secondary infections from measles kill thousands of children each year in underdeveloped countries.

Noted French film director dies at 82

PARIS (UPI) — Film director Rene Clair, who admired Charlie Chaplin, scorned Hollywood and helped the cinema gain respectability through his election to the prestigious Academie Francaise, died in his sleep overnight, friends said Sunday. He was 82.

During his 42-year career, Clair was a leading figure in French cinema through such films as "Sous les Toits de Paris" (Beneath the Roofs of Paris), "Le Million" (The Million) and "The Ghost Goes West," which he made in the United States.

Clair's films often contained central themes of the struggle for liberty and contempt for money and power, and he was influenced, also, by the European modernist art movement, including surrealism.

Patient sits up, walks

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Mary D. Gohlke, the world's only living heart-lung transplant patient, sat up in a chair Sunday.

She also took her first steps since last Monday's surgery.

Doctors reported Mrs. Gohlke, 45, an advertising executive from Mesa, Ariz., was steadily improving, but probably would remain in intensive care for at least a month.

A Stanford University Medical Center spokeswoman said Mrs. Gohlke was able to "sit up in a chair for brief periods and walk a few steps" Sunday, but was still listed as critical and stable.

She breathes on her own, talks with relatives, watches some television and is on a liquid high protein diet "plus some soft foods," the spokeswoman said.

Gohlke received the heart and lungs of a 15-year-old victim of a bicycle accident in a four-hour operation a week ago. She was the first patient to receive a transplanted heart and lungs together in more than a decade.

In three previous attempts, the longest survivor lived for 23 days. The attempt with Mrs. Gohlke was undertaken at Stanford, because of the availability of a new drug, Cyclosporin-A, which suppresses the body's immunity to foreign tissue.

The few visitors allowed to see the woman must go through an elaborate sterilization procedure and put on special garments, face masks and shoe covers before entering her room.

Friday, services were held in Chula Vista for Robert Smith, the boy whose heart and lungs are keeping Mrs. Gohlke alive. He was killed when a car struck the bicycle on which he was riding double with a friend.

Driver rams into group, injures 6

NEW YORK (UPI) — A man deliberately rammied his car into a group of people as they left a Manhattan social club early Sunday, injuring six people, three seriously, police said.

A police spokesman said the suspect, Caesar Arroyo Vargas, 22, had to be rescued from an angry mob of people who seized him outside the social club.

Police said Vargas became involved in a dispute at the storefront club at 7:10 a.m.

The suspect ran from the club, jumped into his car and drove the vehicle onto the sidewalk and into a group of people leaving the club, police said.

Police said three women were seriously hurt, including one who was hospitalized in critical condition. Three men also were injured. All were taken to Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center. The men were listed in stable condition, officials said.

Police declined to immediately identify any of the victims. A spokesman said they suffered a variety of injuries, including broken bones, fractures and internal injuries.

Police said the nature of the dispute that touched off the incident was under investigation.

Vargas was charged with assault, police said.

Polish union hints at strike

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Despite the resignations of the mayor and three key officials in the provincial city of Radom, the Solidarity union said Sunday it would stage a province-wide warning strike unless efforts are made to settle other issues.

A spokesman for Solidarity in Radom, an industrial center of nearly 200,000 people 70 miles south of Warsaw, said a strike alert remained in effect and a two-hour warning strike was planned for Wednesday.

But Solidarity cited on their local chapters not to stage their own protests.

"This could hamper the favorable solution of social and union problems in Radom and the nation," said a communiqué made public Sunday.

The union had also announced that the oil refinery town of Plock would begin a strike alert Wednesday.

Solidarity national leader Lech Walesa was expected in Radom today for talks with local union leaders, and Polish television said a government negotiating team would arrive.

The local Radom Communist Party organization was scheduled to meet Monday. Polish radio said a new local-party leader would be chosen to replace party first secretary Janusz Prokoplak, one of three officials in Radom whose resignations Solidarity demanded.

Provincial Governor Roman Mackewski and police chief Stefan Mozgawa have also resigned. The call for the resignations was linked to the harsh reprisals against workers who took part in the 1976 food price riots.

The official Polish media announced that Prime Minister Wojciech Jaruzelski had accepted the resignation of Mackewski and that Prokoplak also submitted his resignation March 4. Mozgawa's resignation was disclosed Sunday.

Solidarity also said the mayor of Radom had resigned, although his resignation had not been demanded by the union.

Peking scoffs at peace overtures by Brezhnev

PEKING (UPI) — China Sunday dismissed Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's peace offerings as "mere propaganda stunts" and applauded President Reagan's attitude toward the Kremlin.

In a major foreign policy pronouncement, the official Xinhua news agency ended more than two weeks of Chinese silence on the flurry of Brezhnev's peace proposals to Reagan and fellow Western leaders.

The lengthy Xinhua commentary, which reflects Chinese thinking at the highest level, assailed the Brezhnev proposals for a summit with Reagan and for negotiations on world trouble spots as "plain hypocrisy" and "old stuff with a new label."

"In a word, Brezhnev's proposals are mere propaganda meant to restrict the adversary and safeguard the Soviet position or to sow discord between Western Europe and the United States by taking advantage of their differences," Xinhua said.

The Soviet proposals were "bait," the agency said, to tempt Western Europe into breaking ranks with the United States.

It said Brezhnev's other proposals for an international committee to prevent a nuclear catastrophe and for a special U.N. Security Council meeting to defuse world tensions were "mere propaganda stunts devoid of any meaning for the relaxation of world tension."

Despite the current chill in relations between Peking and Washington, Xinhua also hailed Reagan's "firmer" attitude toward Moscow and agreed with the American president that El Salvador was a "crucial international problem."

There was no immediate explanation why China waited more than two weeks to respond to Brezhnev's proposals made at the 26th Soviet Party Congress in Moscow in late February.

Xinhua said the aging Soviet leader intended his peace proposals to divert attention from the Soviet Union's domestic problems and to counter its diplomatic isolation.

"The Soviet economy has been beset with difficulties and the country is riddled with political and social problems," it said.

"Moscow is unprecedentedly isolated in the world as a result of its invasion of Afghanistan and its support of the Vietnamese aggression against Kampuchea (Cambodia)."

Pope plans another trip Thursday

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II Sunday announced he will make yet another trip outside Rome and jokingly asked Romans to understand if he leaves the city frequently to fulfill his pastoral duties.

John Paul, who already has traveled more than any other pope, said he will visit the city of Terni, about 45 miles northeast of Rome, on Thursday to celebrate the feast of St. Joseph, patron saint of the working man.

Joint forces plans Arab states' goal

KUWAIT (UPI) — Officials from six Persian Gulf Arab states — precursors of a third of the non-communist world's oil — are planning their first strategy session on joint military cooperation, a Kuwaiti newspaper reported Sunday.

The daily Al Rai Al Aam cited informed sources in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, for its report, but did not divulge the date or site of the proposed meeting.

The session will group the defense ministers of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar, Oman and the United Arab Emirates — members of the newly-formed Gulf Cooperation Council.

The newspaper said the ministers will exchange ideas about "the best possible ways" to protect the Persian Gulf region and keep it away from super-power rivalries and "other foreign designs."

The report said there was a "trend" among the six Gulf states to lay down a joint strategy for weapons development, exchange of experts, for holding joint military maneuvers and bringing about cohesive structures for their armed forces.

Al Rai Al Aam did not rule out the possibility of "serious" discussions to establish a joint authority for military industrialization that would lead to self-reliance in production of some weaponry.

The report was the first about defense cooperation among the six Gulf states since they established the council in Riyadh Feb. 4.

The council's main objective has been to realize maximum coordination and integration in the political, defensive, economic and commercial spheres.

CIA assassination plot in Mozambique cited

MAPUTO, Mozambique (UPI) — The CIA planned to assassinate President Samora Machel and other politicians and was prepared to support a coup in the Marxist African nation, government officials charged during the weekend.

The Mozambique government, which has strong ties with Cuba and the Soviet Union, leveled the charges at a news conference Saturday where two officials claimed American agents recruited them.

Information Minister Jose Cabaco said the Americans, working under diplomatic cover of the U.S. Embassy, created a spy network to gather information on political leaders, including Machel, so they could be assassinated.

The news conference followed the expulsion last week of four U.S. diplomats and two of their wives on charges they spied for the CIA. The United States has blamed Cuban interference for the expulsions, but the Mozambicans have denied it.

Mozambique was still holding two Americans, businessman Arthur Zimmerman and professor Carl Mohrner, on similar charges. A U.S. Embassy spokesman said the two have not been mistreated, but have undergone tough interrogation about their alleged connections with the Central Intelligence Agency.

The more you IRA, the less you IRS.

Even the IRS thinks Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA's) are a good idea. In fact, the IRS approved IRA's at United First.

IRA's are personal, tax-sheltered retirement plans. Which lets you set aside up to 15% of your income — as much as $1500 per year — to be exempt from federal income taxes until you retire. (When you'll probably be in a lower tax bracket anyway.)

The interest you earn from your IRA — 8% or more, annually — is also tax-exempt until retirement. Which means you can nearly double what you'd earn in the meantime from a regular savings account.

And like savings accounts, there's no charge for opening an IRA at United First. No fees, no commissions, nothing.

So why not start gaining an important tax deduction now? Visit your United First office today for complete details about IRA's.

Before you hear from the IRS.

marriage very well and things are still somewhat strained between them. "Her parents have been divorced for several years and her father lives here. Her mother lives in another state," he explained. "Her father and I get along very well but I haven't met her mother."

Jerry said he is looking forward to meeting her mother, however, and has talked with her on the telephone discussing when they will meet. Jerry doesn't give too much advice to fellow students who ask about married life.

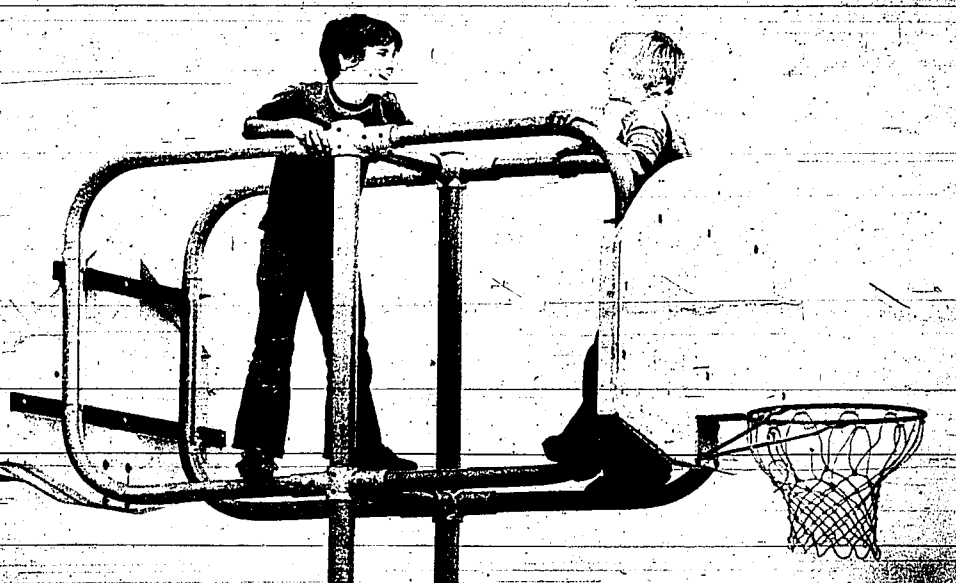

"I tell them it's their decision and their life. I can't tell them what to do because every situation is different," he added.

When Jerry graduates in May he will go into the Air Force and he and Susan will move to a new home.

"I chose the Air Force because they have a good choice of fields I could enter. I am going to be working toward a security specialist rating. This is a big field and will give me time to take some college courses while I'm in the service. After my three years, I can enroll in college with a good start," he said.

New judge may draw school case

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A school board lawyer said Sunday he would try to have Superior Court Judge Paul Egly removed immediately from the Los Angeles school desegregation case.

The judge had said he would step aside in the near future. Egly, in a speech Saturday, said he believed it was time for another judge to take over.

Egly has presided over the case for five years, but made the announcement at a social function in the Los Angeles Hilton before a largely black audience.

"I am recusing (disqualifying) myself from this case. I feel it's time another judge look over," Egly said. His said his decision will take effect in the next few weeks, but he declined to name a date.

"I feel freer to say what I think" than that a withdrawal from the case is coming soon, he said.

Egly then went on to accuse the white anti-busing majority on the Los Angeles Board of Education of protecting the interests of only white children, who make up about 23 percent of the total district enrollment.

On hearing Egly's comments, Associate Supervisor of the board Jerry Halverson accused the judge of bias and said the board's lawyers would ask the presiding Superior Court judge to remove him from the case.

"He has worked hard, maybe he is entitled to blow off some steam,"

Halverson said, "but I don't think he should have made those inaccurate statements."

Earlier last week the state Supreme Court upheld Proposition 1, an anti-busing measure, and in effect, barred forced busing in Los Angeles.

SORAYA KHASHOGGI
...fears for life

Divorce case may reach U.S.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The wife of an Arabian entrepreneur reputedly worth $4 billion is fighting to divorce him in Los Angeles Superior Court instead of going to England, where she fears for her life.

But Judge John Loomis indicated he was not convinced that Soraya Khashoggi had provided enough evidence to convince him that California is the proper place for the trial of her divorce suit against her husband, Adnan.

Attorneys for the woman's husband have indicated they want the divorce tried in London.

But her attorney Harold Rhoden claimed that Khashoggi once said his wife could have the case tried "anywhere Soraya is comfortable."

Rhoden said Mrs. Khashoggi did not want to go to England because she was a witness in a criminal trial there and feared for her life.

"She's afraid for her life in Britain," he said.

The attorney also said Mrs. Khashoggi did not have the money to finance a trip to England, had nowhere to stay and was unable to obtain adequate legal counsel there.

Loomis will hear further arguments today. Rhoden urged the judge to summon Khashoggi as a witness in the jurisdictional dispute.

Rhoden described Khashoggi as a retired entrepreneur and said he should come under California law in a divorce hearing.

"He kept a wardrobe here, he bought insurance in 1980 here, he had a medical exam twice a year in California," Rhoden said. "If he can do business in California, he can litigate here."

Quake rocks Seattle area

SEATTLE (UPI) — A small earthquake measuring 3.6 on the Richter scale rumbled through part of Western Washington Saturday night, rattling some houses in Snohomish and King Counties but causing no damage.

University of Washington scientists studying the quake said Sunday it was centered five miles west of the old mining town of Monte Cristo, near Silverton.

Dave Peckham said the 12:24 a.m. quake shook the area for about 10 to 15 seconds.

Peckham said the tremor's focus was 2 1/2 miles underground, relatively shallow for the hundreds of quakes that hit the Northwest every year.

Boiler operators' courses planned

BOISE (UPI) — Two courses to help commercial boiler operators run their equipment more efficiently will be held in North Idaho next week by the Idaho Bureau of Air Quality.

The day-long course will be offered March 19 at the Lewiston Community Center and March 20 at the Washington Water Power Building conference room in Coeur d'Alene. State environmental engineer Gerard Carpenter, who organized the training sessions, said about 80 persons have indicated they will attend.

Dr. David C. Junge, associate professor of engineering at Oregon State University and director of the university's Energy Research and Development Institute, will be the course instructor.

Skydivers bump during descent

STAR (UPI) — Four parachutists who jumped from the same plane west of Star barely escaped serious injury Saturday afternoon following two separate mid-air collisions between the participants.

Injured in the accident were Richard Cloud, 39; Jack Mader, 35; Robert Denton; and Gene Brent, 42. Also making the jump was Ron Gulley, but he was not involved in either mishap.

Jeff Fragg, safety officer for the Treasure Valley Paracenter who witnessed the collisions, blamed the accidents on the "inattentiveness" of the parachutists.

Dear Abby

Is wife using bad breath as excuse?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My wife keeps telling me I have bad breath. I've consulted my doctors in medicine and dentistry, and they both have assured me that there is nothing abnormal about my breath. I have even asked some of my best friends, and all have affirmed that I do not have bad breath. Meanwhile, every time I go to kiss my wife, she pushes me away, saying, "Your breath is terrible!" This totally destroys any romantic impulses I might have, leaving me frustrated, rejected and depressed. It has occurred to me that my wife is using this "bad breath" excuse to get out of having a normal husband-wife relationship.

Obviously, if this continues, it will be the end of our marriage. My wife is a very desirable woman of 38, and I love her very much. Please advise.

—NO LOVE IN PITTSBURGH
DEAR NO LOVE: Your wife could be suffering from "olfactory hallucinations" (smelling imaginary, non-existent odors). If this is not the case, and she is keeping you at arm's length for reasons of her own, you have another problem. Your MARRIAGE smells!

DEAR ABBY: Fifteen years ago I chose a sterling silver flatware pattern and have accumulated two place settings. Since it has become so expensive, my husband discouraged buying any more.

You can imagine my excitement when an aunt came from another state to visit and in the course of the conversation I discovered that she and I had the same silverware pattern. She has a complete service for 12. How do I go about asking if I may have her silverware after her need for it has passed?

She is a very gracious lady in her 80s, very proper, well-to-do, and has many grandchildren. We are not close, but I correspond with her daughter.

When the time comes for this aunt to dispose of her silver, I would buy it if it were for sale. (It probably wouldn't be as expensive as brand-new silverware since it was purchased many years ago, and is "used.")

I would appreciate any suggestions you have on how to handle this ticklish problem.

—THE GREEDY NIECE

DEAR NIECE: I would not "handle" this problem at all. Gracious, proper, well-to-do ladies in their 80s rarely sell their silver. They usually give it away or leave it to their closest kin.

Your aunt already knows that you and she have the same pattern. Any further mention of it on your part would be inappropriate and presumptuous.

DEAR ABBY: What has happened to you? You used to encourage married couples to do everything within their power to save their marriages. Lately, you give the impression that divorce could be the answer for some couples. Why?

—WASHINGTON STAR READER
DEAR READER: Because I think it's more important to save people than marriages. And often, in an effort to save a marriage that isn't worth saving, people have destroyed themselves and/or each other.

(If you put off writing letters because you don't know how to say get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 plus a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to ABBY, Letters Booklet, 128 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

Dr. Lamb

Professional help cured depression

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
© Newspaper Enterprise Association

Dear Dr. Lamb,
I was so happy to see your column on manic depression.

I was hospitalized for nine weeks due to manic depression. I was very fortunate that my children realized I needed professional help or I might have ended my life or had it ended for me.

I was put on lithium and, luckily, I didn't have too many side effects. The doctors "took me off" lithium eight months ago, and I have been doing fine and was released from therapy two months ago. I wish everyone knew there is such great help available. When I was initially in a deep depression, the doctors put me on Elavil, and it brought me out of that.

"I had many family problems with an alcoholic husband whom I worshipped and we reared six sons. Much of the load fell on me, and I just held it all in and took it. When I got out of the hospital, my ex-husband wouldn't let me back in our home. I felt like a dirty dishrag tossed aside after having been used to the maximum. So I got busy, went back to work and got a place and soon had my two youngest children back.

As a result of my treatment, as I got better I never had any more headaches. I stopped having the arthritis pains in my back I used to suffer from. I used to have severe stomach pains when I was upset and colitis, but all that has disappeared. Even my fingernails grew longer. And I sleep soundly with no dreams. It is a shame so many people on this earth who could be helped don't know how they could be helped.

Dear Reader,
Thank you for sharing your experience with our readers. I'm sure your letter will give much encouragement to others who need help. Your letter makes an important point — professional help can make a great deal of difference.

Many people do not know they are having a depression, and if it is something more than the ordinary mood swings that all of us have, it is not something you can correct yourself. Good friends and family members may try to help people with such problems, but they cannot expect to provide the needed help. Their support is vital but medication when needed and professional help is essential.

You make the point that you might have ended your life. People must know that when a person is depressed that this is a possibility and should not take the responsibility of caring for such a person. Rather, let such life and death matters be handled by people trained to deal with such problems.

"Everyone has mood swings. It is sometimes difficult to draw the line between normal mood swings and a real depression. The progression from mood swings to depression is discussed in The Health Letter number 10-10, Depression: The Ups and Downs of Life, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of the newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.—Understanding mood swings and depression can enable a person to live a more satisfying life.

Your letter makes another point. Many illnesses, such as headaches, back pains and digestive disturbances can be caused by, or made worse by mental factors such as depression. In these instances, correcting the depression is the right treatment for the headaches and other problems.

Professional women's private club spawns 'old girls' network

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—In the locker rooms and restaurants of exclusive all-male clubs, there operates an old boys network that links some of the most powerful men in the nation.

Well, watch out fellas — an old girls network is budding at the Wilshire Club, the first private club for professional women.

The Wilshire Club is designed to give women the prestige and opportunity to make business contacts that men enjoy at such fraternal institutions as the Bohemian or California Club, say co-founders Joan McCarthy and Jay Caughner, Jennifer Taylor Armstrong.

"Belonging to the Wilshire club will be prestigious because it will be the only one for women," said Mrs. Armstrong. "But — the primary purpose of the club will be to benefit women in business by providing them with the tools they don't have."

For a membership fee of $1,500, the "tools" include a French restaurant to wine and dine business associates, a conference room, beauty salon, health spa and a convenient way to meet.

More than 200 applications for the Wilshire Club, due to open this summer, were taken in two days and "already people are exchanging cards and doing business," said Ms. Armstrong.

The two women are negotiating locations for similar clubs in Houston, Atlanta, New York, Chicago, and Seattle and membership will be good at any of the clubs.

Membership in the club will be limited to 4,000 and will be determined on a first-come, first-served basis. "Income will not be a criteria at all," said Mrs. Armstrong.

"There are many business women who need a place to take people to lunch," said Ms. McCarthy, who has worked in executive positions for 20 years.

"When a woman takes a client to lunch, she is not in control of the situation in a restaurant," she said. "No one can tell the waiter not give the man the check or not to give him the wine list."

The Wilshire Club has already drawn fire for excluding men at a time when women have been battling with some success to break down the sex barrier. However, several clubs — such as the Bohemian, with a membership that includes President Reagan and Attorney General

William French Smith — steadfastly refuse women.

"I consider myself a feminist, but I don't see the Wilshire Club as a political issue," said Ms. Armstrong. "I see it as a solution to an immediate problem. Some women are joining the club to increase their income."

"The point of this is that while men and women are equal, they're not things separately," she said. "It is the same reasoning used by defenders of the all-male clubs."

Not surprisingly, many businessmen and the president of one exclusive Los Angeles men's club have expressed their support for the Wilshire Club, the women said.

"What they're saying is 'That's great, it takes the pressure off us. The women have something of their own,'" Ms. McCarthy said.

The idea for the Wilshire Club was hatched last year as the two women, partners in a public relations firm, Armstrong Communications, debated where to take a client for lunch.

"As a joke I said, 'Why don't we take him to the Bohemian or Jonathan Club,'" said Ms. McCarthy. "And Jennifer said, 'Why don't we start our own club?'" It started as a joke.

Conducting business in a club where the doorman greets a member by her name and treats her as a professional is expected to increase business substantially.

"A woman in a sales position told me she was going to join the club because she knows in that environment her earnings will increase by $20,000," Ms. McCarthy said.

Julie Anderson, an independent photographer, expects membership in the Wilshire Club will boost her business because it will force prospective clients to take her seriously.

"To people keep track of what they're doing," said volunteer Shelia Taylor, "maybe they'll cut down on what they use."

"I have some difficulty in my business with men taking me seriously," Miss Anderson said. "I think I'm going to impress my client more if he sees me in an environment with other professional women."

In business, you have to meet each other and you have to like each other," said Renee McCreynolds, a loan officer interested in joining the club. "Where do you make contacts? It has to be a club, some kind of gathering place."

What's what

Consider those who've gone to Sunday worship stark naked. What, you know none such? It was a common practice among sects in the Near East some time ago. They wore all household articles, including clothing, were commanded by the Devil. Think of that at the church you call your own. The husbands and wives. The Sunday school teacher. The choir members. The deliverer of the sermon. Not a stitch. Envision all those ladies—amazing!—with no hats.

In New York State: If the husband moves, but the wife refuses to move, she can be sued for desertion. If the wife moves, but the husband refuses to move, she likewise can be sued for desertion.

The robe of the Saudi Arabian oil sheik—if he wants to be a smartly dressed fellow these days—has to be pin-striped.

SOPRANO GAS
Q. What sort of gas is it that contracts the vocal cords in such a way that a full deep voice turns into a thin squeal?
A. Helium. Fortunately, the gas rises so swiftly that practical jokers have not yet been able to use it to sabotage singers. Quietest notion though.

Q. Which of the Indian tribes had the best horsemanship?
A. The Comanche. It's said.

Q. Quick, Louie, name the only two women whose faces have appeared on U.S. paper money.
A. Martha Washington and Pocahontas. What the name Martha means I do not at the moment recall, but Pocahontas translates as "the playful one."

Q. Which does "Erin Go Bragh" mean?
A. "Ireland Forever." It's Gaelic.

FREEDOM FROM FEAR
The penniless vagrants of medieval England sought nightly shelter in cemeteries. There were sanctuaries then and there. Sleepers in makeshift wooden shelters enjoyed one wondrous freedom of fear, at least. They feared no arrest.

Must be pretty tough to farm the Nandi hills of East Africa's Kenya. Hills there 132 days of the typical year.

Can you name the only animal species that buries its dead? Say men.

Local all-stars invade Bruin gym tonight

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS—Ring and gun basketball should be the fare tonight when Magic Valley's top seniors collide at Twin Falls High School.

It is the 10th annual Magic Valley Easter Seals All-Star Basketball Classic and it features the shortest rosters in history. Bruce Christensen of Minico dominates at 6-0 on the east team while 6-4 Tim Black of Glens Ferry is the west's tallest man.

The night begins at 7 p.m. with the girls battle and the boys game should tip off about 8:30 p.m. The game has been shifted from College of Southern Idaho for the first time because the school will be on spring break and cannot allow use of its facilities during that time.

Although neither boys team can boast a big size advantage and both rosters are dominated by guards, the East does have the most inside experience. Christensen and Black are used to playing with their backs to the basket. The East also has Doug Schwarz of Valley, Paul Graff, Murtough, Alvin Fowers of Dietrich and Rich Olters of Kimberly who have lined up in those slots.

The West has only Filer's Jeff Brewster to rely upon. "We've got a lot of guards," Castleford Coach Randy Clark, handling the West, said. "(Bill) Steich (Glens Ferry) is the only other one who said he wasn't a guard. Lars (Hovey, Twin Falls) said he'd play forward some of the last two years and would try it for us and (Doug) Walker (Buhl) has played forward quite a bit. But the rest are guards."

While Clark is handling the west boys, Dietrich's Kelly Murphy will be in charge of the East aggregation. In the girls game, Jack Altomose of Kimberly will handle the east reins against Jim Stauffer of Jerome.

The coaches seemed pitifully well settled on a platoon plan to give the centers fairly equal playing time. "I think I'll go with one five the first quarter and the other in the second or maybe at four-minute intervals in the first half. I'm leaning more toward each five playing four minutes in the third quarter and then mixing things up in the fourth," Clark said.

"But we haven't had a lot of time to get acquainted with the players. And it's critical that you get the right balance against the other team. If there's an imbalance somewhere we'll have to substitute. All-star games are supposed to be a lot of fun and that's the way we're approaching it. But winning is the most fun. We're not going to go out there and lose if we can help it," he said.

The roles are reversed in the girls game. The West seems to have the inside strength with Twin Falls' 5-11 Kelly Krahn plus 5-10 Melody Moody of Jerome and 5-9 Jeannette Clemons of Gooding. The West also has a strong guard corps headed by 5-7 Laurie Gandiaga of Castleford and Lori Graves of Gooding.

The East's Altomose said with a smile, "If everything I've heard this season is correct, then the strength of the district is on the west side. But that's okay. We've got some talented players over here and we're going to try and get after them." The rosters for the teams include:

East Boys
Rich Crothers, Kimberly; Tracy Fry and Alvin Fowers, Dietrich; Paul Graff, Murtough; Jeff Miller and Bruce Christensen, Minico; Robin Sisk and Kip Brower, Wood River; Doug Schwarz, Valley; Craig Dale, Hansen.

West Boys
Tim Black and Jim Steich, Glens Ferry; Scott Peterson, Shoshone; Rory Richison and Doug Walker, Buhl; Lars Hovey and Jeff McElmum, Twin Falls; Jeff Brewster, Filer; Tom Curtis, Jerome; Ben Ryan, Gooding.

East Girls
Jenny Foston, Minico; Bonnie Collins, Declo; Brenda Grant, Valley; Jeannette Breeding, Murtough; Teresa Bowen, Richfield; Jean Flerty and Lisa Malyow, Kimberly; Virginia Freiberger, Hilt River; Diana Hagen and Bethann, Dietrich; Becky Rajha, Hurley.

West Girls
Jeannette Clemons and Lori Graves, Gooding; Shannon Carraway, Shoshone; Laurie Gandiaga, Castleford; Lori Chazow, Filer; Kelly Krahn and Cass Herbst, Twin Falls; Sherri Millican, Hagerman; Nancy Lancaster, Waggoli; Melody Moody, Jerome.

More shockers in NCAA tourney

Arizona St., Kentucky, Iowa and Wake Forest surprised

By United Press International

Quicker than you can say Final Four, 10 of the nation's Top 20 teams have been eliminated from the NCAA Tournament.

Following Saturday's unlikely results, which saw No. 1 DePaul, No. 2 Oregon State and defending champion and 13th-ranked Louisville knocked out of the tournament, the bizarre pattern continued Sunday.

DePaul, No. 5 Arizona State, No. 8 Kentucky, No. 12 Iowa and No. 14 Wake Forest.

In the Midwest Regional double-header at Wichita, Kan., Tony Guy scored a career-high 36 points to give No. 19 Kansas a surprising 89-71 victory over Arizona State.

In the opening game, Randy Smithson, the coach's son, hit two technical free throws with five seconds left and Antoine Carr added a pair of free throws two seconds later to boost Wichita State to a 66-56 victory over Iowa.

In the Midwest Regional at Tuscaloosa, Ala., Glenn Marcus hit 12-of-15 free throws in the last five minutes to lead Alabama-Birmingham to a 69-62 triumph over Kentucky.

In the second game, John Bagley fired in a season-high 35 points and Boston College overcame a six-point second-half deficit to post a 67-64 triumph over Wake Forest.

In other second-round games, No. 3 Virginia survived Villanova 54-50 and No. 13 Tennessee nipped Virginia Commonwealth 58-56 in overtime in the East and No. 10 Utah crushed Northeastern 94-69 and No. 6 North Carolina defeated Pittsburgh 74-57 in the West.

Here is how the regional semifinals shape up: East: No. 3 Notre Dame, 23.5, vs. No. 17 Brigham Young, 24.6; and Virginia, 26.3, vs. Tennessee, 21.7, at Atlanta March 19.

Midwest: St. Joseph's (Pa.), 24.7, vs. Boston College, 23.4; and No. 7 Indiana, 22.9, vs. Alabama-Birmingham, 23.8, at Bloomington, Ind. March 20.

West: Kansas State, 23.8, vs. No. 11 Illinois, 21.7; and Utah, 25.4, vs. North Carolina, 26.7, at Salt Lake City March 19.

The East and West regional finals take place March 21 and the Midwest and Midwest regional finals are March 22. The winners advance to the national semifinals at Philadelphia March 28, with East vs. West and Midwest vs. Midwest.

At Charlotte, All-American Ralph Sampson scored 17 points and Virginia hit key free throws down the stretch as the Cavaliers held off Villanova. The Cavaliers trailed most of the game, but capitalized on Villanova's foul problems in the second half. The Cavaliers scored their last eight points at the foul line, with Jeff Jones hitting two free throws with 72 seconds left and Otwell Wilkison another two with 25 seconds to go. Stewart Granger paced Villanova with 16 points.

Dale Ellis hit the only basket in overtime — a 12-foot jumper — as Tennessee avoided an upset. Tennessee had led by as many as 13 points, but Virginia Commonwealth fought back to tie the game in the final second of regulation when Danny Kottak hit a 15-footer. Ellis led the Volunteers with 22 points.

Alabama-Birmingham trailed 30-29 at the half, but took a 35-33 lead at 17:11 in the second half on a jumper by Dante Spear and a 47-40 advantage by 9:50 left. The Wildcats tied the score — three times, but the 5-foot-10 Marcus kept the Blazers in control with his free throw shooting. Oliver Robinson topped the Blazers in their third year of basketball competition, with 18 points. Chuck Verderber had 16 points for Kentucky.

Boston College took the lead with under a minute to play. The foul shot by Bagley and the Deacons never recovered. Wake Forest had taken a 49-43 but the Eagles regained the advantage, 61-60, with 2:41 left on a basket by Martin Clark. Wake Forest jumped ahead once more before Bagley hit his crucial free throw.

At Wichita, Iowa was called for a technical, after calling a time out with none remaining and Smithson converted the two free throws to break a 56-56 tie. Smithson's free throws capped a Wichita State rally that carried the Shockers from a 15-point second-half deficit. Cliff Livingston led the Shockers with 25 points and Carr added 12.

For Kansas, John Crawford added 18 points and Darnell Valentine had 16. Valentine hit a pair of baskets to spark a 10-2 spree by Kansas that carried the Jayhawks from a 21-21 deadlock to a 31-22 lead. Kansas then reeled off 10 straight points to close the half and led 45-29 at intermission.

Pitt's Sam Glancy stuffs the ball over the defense of North Carolina's Sam Perkins.

In NIT play

Wolves defeat Toledo

By United Press International

The second round of the National Invitation Tournament will be completed tonight, and many of the powers involved will be hoping for an easier game than they had in their opening games.

In the first game of the second round Sunday night, Mike Malone and Johnny Johnson combined for 32 of Michigan's 40 second-half points to carry the Wolverines to an 80-68 victory over Toledo.

McGee, who finished with 25 points, and Johnson, who had 22 points, were powerhouses against the Rockets. In the final 20 minutes.

Toledo went into the half tied 40-40 on fine performances by Harvey Knuckles and Mitch Adamek, who scored 17 and 15 points respectively, in the first half.

In the second half, the Wolverines built up a 13-point lead when Tim McCormick scored on a tip-in with 12:46 remaining to make it 59-46. Michigan allowed the Rockets only six points in the first nine minutes of the second half.

The closest Toledo came after the half was nine points, on Tim Reiser's jump shot with 10:44 remaining.

Third Garner scored 12 points and Marty Bodnar chipped in 10 points. Knuckles was the game's leading scorer with 27 points and Adamek added 19.

Michigan, which upped its overall record to 19-10, advances to the quarter-finals of the NIT, while Toledo ends its season at 21-10.

One of the key matchups today sends Holy Cross, 20-9, to Syracuse, N.Y., for a date with the 19-11 Orangemen. Both Northeastern squads needed strong finishes to advance to this round, as the Crusaders edged Southern Mississippi 56-54 and Syracuse topped Marquette 68-61. Elsewhere, two teams that went to overtime before prevailing in the first round are likely to be eliminated this time. Dayton, which nipped Fordham by a point, travels to West Lafayette, Ind., to play Purdue, 16-10, and Alabama, winner by four over St. John's, must play Duke at Durham, N.C.

Minnesota, the third Big Ten team in the second round, plays 20-8 Connecticut at Hartford, Conn.; Georgia, 19-11, hosts South Alabama, 24-9; Texas-El Paso, 18-11, plays at Tulsa; 22-7; and Temple, which erased Clemson in the first round, travels to Morgantown, W. Va., to play 21-8 West Virginia.

Floyd outlasts Graham for second consecutive Doral title

MIAMI (UPI)—From the first hole to the Doral's feared 18th, Ray Floyd and David Graham duked without letup. But Floyd outlasted his foe for a one-shot victory, earning $20,000 and his second straight Doral title.

"It was like match play," he said of the round he and Graham played in the same threesome. Floyd wound up with a 68 in the final round, and Graham a 69, not enough to overcome the two-stroke deficit he faced at the beginning.

"I think the fast start made all of us play better," Floyd said. "All of a sudden I look up after the fourth hole, and I'm out of the lead, then we've deadlocked."

"I've never been in a tournament where I've been hooked up from the first hole through the entire round. I was either even, one-up or one-down all day," he said.

Floyd was both-way on the final hole when he began his backstroke on a 35-foot pitch from the fringe and a photographer's noisy motor-drive camera clicked on his chip went eight feet long and to the right.

"The camera flashed on me. I'm sure he'll have trouble getting credentials from now on," Floyd said, not entirely joking.

Although that cost Floyd a bogey, Graham also bogeys, driving into 4th trees, forcing him to punch out into the fairway.

"I had 230 yards to the flagstick. I felt that I lagged up and chipped it. I would have a putt for par — that was the safe way," Graham said.

Floyd finished the tournament at 15-under-par 67, one shot ahead of Graham and Keith Ferguson, who wound up the 72 holes deadlocked at 14-under-par 74. Both Graham and Ferguson shot five-under-par 67s in Sunday's final round.

Next at 275 was Tom Kite, a winner at Inverrary last week, who also came up with a 67 over the famed par-72 Doral "Blue Monster" course. Gil Morgan with a 70 and Leonard Thompson with a 69 were next at 276.

Graham had begun the tournament with an eagle and three birdies, taking the lead at the fourth hole. But Floyd rallied back with a birdie on the sixth.

Graham pulled into a tie with a birdie on the 11th hole, but Floyd fought right back with a birdie, three on the 12th.

Both players bogeyed the 15th hole and both birdied the 16th, retaining the one-shot margin.

They both parred the par four 17th, with Floyd canning a clutch eight-foot putt.

Then came the 18th, considered one of the toughest finishing holes in golf. Graham pushed his drive into the trees right of the fairway, punched out and two-putted for bogey. Floyd also faltered, three-putting for a bogey, but that meant he had his second straight Doral title.

Graham began his round charging. He notched a birdie three on the first hole and added three birdies in a row to put him in the lead for a hole.

But then Floyd, who had birdied the first two, added birds on the fifth and eighth holes while Graham was stringing five pars and took back sole ownership of the lead.

Floyd finished his front nine with a four-under-par 32, putting him at 15-under-par for the event.

Graham entered the round two shots behind Floyd, but made up one of them on the front side with a five-under-par 31, the hottest nine of the day.

Morgan started at 206, a shot behind the leader, but fell back by a stroke when he made the turn at three-under-par 33.

Floyd with Morgan at 13-under was Leonard Thompson with a front-nine 32. Four shots off the pace tied at 11-under were Kite, Mike Reid and Bruce Lietzke.

It was Floyd's 13th win in 18 years on the PGA tour, boosting his career earnings to $1,527,540.

He became the first player in the 20 years of the Doral to win the tournament twice, much less back-to-back wins. So far this year, he has won $9,912.

Floyd had said he felt it was an advantage to play near his Miami Beach home, because he could enjoy home cooking, his own bed and friendly galleries.

Despite his superb playing coming into the Doral — he was 10th on the money list — he said he was surprised at how well it went, saying defending champions frequently have trouble playing well the year after their victory.

Inverrary winner Kite had a chance at a $250,000 Florida bonanza bonus if he had won the Doral — and $200,000 if he had won Inverrary. Doral and the Tournament Players Champi-

Bird leads Celtics past Nets, 133-125

NBA roundup

BOSTON (UPI) — Larry Bird and Cedric Maxwell combined for 45 points to spark a third quarter rally Sunday afternoon and carry the Boston Celtics to a 133-125 victory over the New Jersey Nets.

The win was Boston's 28th in a row at Boston Garden and its ninth triumph in the last 11 games. The win, coupled with Philadelphia's loss to New York, moved the Celtics to within one-half game of the 76ers in the Atlantic Division race with each team having 17 losses.

The Celtics, who held a 14-point lead after the first period, trailed 75-70 4:17 into the third quarter after the Nets opened the period with a 15-5 run. Cliff Robinson and Mike O'Kean had seven and six points, respectively, in the run.

Knicks 120, 76ers 109

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ray Williams, who missed the second period with an injury, came back to score a team-high 25 points Sunday afternoon to lead the New York Knicks to a 120-109 victory over Philadelphia, the second straight loss for the NBA-leading 76ers.

Campy Russell added 24 points and Michael Ray Richardson 22 for the Knicks to overshadow Julius Erving's 31-point performance and give the Knicks their second straight victory after having dropped three in a row.

Clippers 122, Lakers 118

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Brian Taylor, averaging 10 points a game, scored 31 points Sunday to lead the San Diego Clippers to a 122-118 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers.

Taylor hit four-of-four three-point goals but it was his two free throws with five seconds remaining that clinched it.

Bulls 97, Kings 87

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Ricky Sobers, a former player for the College of Southern Idaho, scored 24 points, including four clutch free throws in the final four minutes, to lead the Chicago Bulls to a 97-87 victory over the Kansas City Kings Sunday.

Trailing by as many as 13 points in the third quarter, Kansas City closed to 83-82 with 3:43 left in the game before Sobers' four straight free throws rebuilt the Chicago lead to 87-82. The Kings never got closer than three points the rest of the way.

Bucks 132, Sonics 108

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Brian Winters, scored 19 points and Bob Lanier and Pat Cummings 18 each Sunday to lead the Milwaukee Bucks to an easy 132-108 win over the Seattle SuperSonics.

Milwaukee jumped off to an early 9-1 lead and led by as many as 26 points at 9:57 midway through the third quarter while coasting to its

Mahre narrows deficit in overall World Cup list

FURANO, Japan (UPI) — Erika Hess of Switzerland stretched her winning streak to five and American Phil Mahre won the men's slalom for the second straight time on the final day of the World Cup ski series in northern Japan Sunday.

Hess, 19-year-old bronze medalist in the Lake Placid Olympics last year, streaked down the 330-meter tricky course in a total time of 1 minute, 19.18 seconds to capture the women's slalom, her fifth straight victory in the event this season.

Starting at 37.30 seconds, 3-10th of a second behind first round leader Piera Macchi of Italy, Hess marked the best time of 41.68 seconds in the second run to win the event.

Mahre, 23, aiming for his first overall title in the World Cup, showed a "brilliant" form in the course of winning the men's slalom in 1:36.57.

He clocked the best time of 45.55 seconds in the first run over a 510-meter course and went on to victory over his chief rival, Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden.

Stenmark, three-time overall titleist, went all out to catch up with Mahre, but landed in third place with 1:37.21. He had a slow ninth best time of 46.39 seconds in the first run but marked the fastest time of 31.07 seconds in the second.

It was, however, not enough to overtake Mahre.

Yugoslavian Bojan Krizay, who trailed Stenmark and Mahre in this season's slalom standings, came in second with a time of 1:37.21.

"The second one was a little more difficult than the first one," Mahre said. "I cared because Stenmark will ski well in this kind of setting. I made a couple of mistakes but I got the snow very well."

Asked if he thinks he can overtake Stenmark in the overall standings, he only said, "Yeah, very well so. I've been doing very well lately and I'm starting to catch him. It's not an impossible thing to do."

The Swedish slalom specialist, who has won 10 of 18 giant slalom and slalom races this season, tops the overall standings with 260 points.

Mahre's victory boosted his overall points to 253, only seven behind Stenmark.

With two more giant slalom and one slalom races left before the end of this season, Mahre still has a good chance to overtake the Swede.

Hess, leader of the women's slalom standings with 125 points, made it five in a row with Sunday's victory. Her winning streak began in Austria in mid-January, and she now has won five of eight races held so far.

A jubilant Hess said, "I gained confidence when I won the bronze medal in the Lake Placid Olympics. I was in good shape today and I thought I could win."

Starting with the third best time of 37.54 seconds in the first run, American Christine Cooper, of Sun Valley, Idaho, clocked 41.72 in the second run to finish second in a total time of 1:19.36.

In third place was West Germany's Maria Epple with a total of 1:19.59.

Macchi, the first-leg leader, placed fourth with a combined time of 1:20.43.

Marie-Theres Nadig of Switzerland captured her first overall title in the World Cup Friday with a victory in the women's giant slalom.

The victory gave the 27-year-old Swiss an unbeatable lead in the overall standings. She has garnered 289 points against 222 for Hess in second place and 222 for Germany's Maria Epple with a total of 1:19.59.
