

Explosive bullets used on Reagan

Officer undergoes emergency surgery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 22-caliber slugs that hit President Reagan and three others in Monday's assassination attempt probably were deadly "devastator bullets" designed to explode on impact, the FBI announced Thursday night.

FBI spokesman Roger Young said it was "not out of the question" that Reagan's life was spared only by a fluke — the ricochet by the bullet off his limousine before entering his chest and lodging in his lung.

Advised of the finding, doctors at Washington Hospital Center immediately began emergency surgery to remove one of the bullets from District of Columbia police officer Thomas Delahanty, who was wounded in the attack on Reagan.

Monday, to see if they are of the "devastator" type.

"The president's bullet was intact. So it exploded or something happened when it struck the car to make it inoperable in terms of its explosive properties," he said.

"Tomorrow, we will dissect the bullet that struck the president to find out if it was a devastator bullet. We can only conjecture that it was."

Asked if the president's life was threatened any more than first thought, Young declined to answer definitively. He called the prospect "frightening."

As for White House press secretary Jim Brady, who was struck in the head in the barrage unleashed as Reagan left a downtown Washington hotel after a speaking engagement, Young said, "It could have exploded right after it entered his skull."

Young described the bullets as "very unusual" — of a variety he had never seen.

Young said the bullets are different from "hollow point" slugs used by many law enforcement agencies such as the FBI, and are more like "dumdum" bullets that spread on impact. Instead, they contain a compound that explodes on impact, he said.

Delahanty is an impact-sensitive explosive bullet.

The officer was advised of the situation and it was his decision to proceed with the operation, Loughery said.

Doctors had first said they had no plans to remove the bullet from the officer's neck.

Young said tests would be conducted Friday on the bullets, including the mangled bullet that was removed from Reagan's left lung

Prosecutor

GOP Central Committee recommends DeHaan

TWIN FALLS — Harry DeHaan, a 36-year-old Twin Falls lawyer, won the Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee's endorsement for county prosecutor Thursday.

DeHaan, presently with the local firm of Benoit, Alexander and Sinclair, won the endorsement over Robert W. Galley, 50, who served as the county's chief law enforcement officer in the early 1970s.

A third candidate, Chief Deputy Prosecutor James Masery, withdrew his application for the position Thursday in a letter to Central Committee Chairman Benny Bilik of Castleford.

The endorsement comes in the form of a recommendation to the Twin Falls Board of County Commissioners, who must select a replacement for former Prosecutor Tom Gray, who stepped down Tuesday.

Gray was arrested Jan. 6 on a misdemeanor charge of possession of marijuana.

Earlier this week, Commission Chairman Ann Cover said the board may make a final selection today.

The central committee's action came in a secret ballot vote following a 30-minute closed session. The vote tabulation was not made public.

Early in the meeting, DeHaan and Galley presented their views of the office, each promising a closer working relationship with local law enforcement agencies, a tougher line on prosecuting cases and less plea bargaining.

Both candidates ruled out making immediate staff changes.

In answer to questions from committee members, DeHaan said he could be on the job within two weeks. Galley said he could take over almost immediately.

Galley said, if appointed to the position, he would run for election to the office in 1982. DeHaan said he would make a final decision about running after his first year in office.

DeHaan told the central committee the key to a successful effort would be taking solid cases to trial and winning convictions. He was establishing a track record among local defense lawyers.

"I'm willing to gamble that once you prove the policy, defense lawyers will go along," he said.

They'll start dealing with you on your terms."

DeHaan also revealed his goal to the central committee, saying he plans to meet or exceed the 22 percent average conviction rate of Dallas County, Texas.

DeHaan added he hoped to provide experience in an office made up largely of law school graduates in their first jobs.

"All of the hours and money that are spent on law enforcement... are wasted if (a case) gets to court and the prosecutor blows it. And believe me, there are a thousand ways to blow it," he said.

Galley acknowledged he gained a reputation as an aggressive prosecutor during his years with the office.

That didn't make him very popular with defense lawyers, he said. He said he would continue to prefer taking more cases to trial, even if some of those cases appeared weak.

He didn't win all my cases," he said, adding he believed there was some benefit to society by bringing some cases to trial and always the chance of a conviction.

Sightless teacher 'sees' his students in a special light

By RON ZELLAR

KETCHUM — Music teacher Gene Hetzer "sees" students from a unique perspective.

Hetzer, Hemingway School's music teacher since Jan. 14, is blind.

Yet school officials say he is no less effective than a first-year sighted teacher, and he occasionally finds a key others miss to unlock a student's potential.

The 28-year-old Hetzer's greatest teaching coup: that at Hemingway involves a sixth grader, who seemed bright enough but got low marks in math. Parents and some teachers attributed it to laziness. Yet Hetzer, who teaches one period of math, noticed the student scored consistently above average in measurement exercises.

He taught the youngster a system of converting numbers to algebraic notation before attempting the functions asked in an exercise. When the student completed the computations, he could convert the symbols back to numbers.

The method is considerably more difficult for most people. Try multiplying complex fractions, for example, using A1 plus B1/C1 times A2 plus B2/C2. For this particular student, however, it worked. He got a 96 on his last quarterly report card and has improved in other classes as well.

"He is one of the most brilliant people I have ever seen," Hetzer said. "Pure numbers were just too concrete."

The former San Francisco, Calif., resident uses sight words frequently in conversation. Good teachers "look" for clues to help their pupils. His mind holds a "photographic image" of Ketchum's streets.

Pickets go up in front of nursing home today

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Union employees of the Skyview-Hazeldele Manor are scheduled to go on strike today.

Beginning at 2 p.m., a 24-hour picket line will be maintained on public access land around the nursing home, union officials say.

Management spokesmen say replacement workers have been hired to fill in for striking employees and that patient care will not be disrupted.

The strike comes a few weeks short of a year after nursing home employees approved a union by one vote in a National Labor Relations Board supervised election. The union, SEIU, is an affiliate with the Service Employees International Union, was certified in June 1980.

Negotiations over an employee contract ceased in December following management's last and final offer. Union officials termed the offer "unacceptable." Federal mediation failed to ward off a confrontation.

David Cervantes, of the SEIU in Seattle, and spokesman for the Twin Falls Union, was en route to Twin Falls Thursday and could not be reached for comment.

Union officials have previously said the strike is meant to force nursing home administrator Richard Drake to return to the negotiating table to bargain in good faith.

Issues dividing the two sides include wages, sick leave and union membership requirements.

Marvin Montoya, of the Idaho Employment Council, the consulting firm representing Drake in the labor dispute, said the strike will not change management's position that negotiations have concluded. He said the strike would not affect the manor's operations because of replacement workers and volunteers from other health care facilities.

Management and union officials disagree on the amount of support for walk out among employees. Last month union members voted 68-5 in favor of a strike, but an estimated seven of those voting were not employees. Union officials predict about 60 percent of the 140 non-management employees will support a strike; Montoya said he doubts seriously it will be that much.

Montoya did say he felt many employees "don't really make a decision until the moment (to strike) occurs."

Striking workers may not be fired, but replacement workers will be retained after the strike if they wish to stay, Montoya said. "If and when there are vacancies (striking workers) will be brought back."

Judge issues city attorney contempt citation

By MARTY TRILLHASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls City Attorney Susan Swanberg was cited for contempt of court Thursday for not appearing at the trial of a woman charged with escape.

Apparently Swanberg, who was scheduled to prosecute the case before a six-member jury in 5th District Magistrate Court, had traveled to Boise with other Twin Falls city officials to discuss progress on the city's sewage treatment plant modifications.

But Swanberg did not inform the court of her intentions to attend the meeting in Boise, said Fifth District Magistrate Court Judge Michael Redman.

Redman, who was to preside over the trial, issued the citation pending a court hearing for Swanberg to explain her absence.

Anyone charged with contempt of court faces a maximum five-day jail term and/or $500 fine.

Swanberg returned to Twin Falls later in the day and met with Redman. Following that meeting she was unavailable for comment. Attempts to reach her for comment Thursday night were unsuccessful.

This marks the second time the city attorney and a judge have clashed on the case. Earlier, 5th District Magistrate Court Judge Charles Brumbach denied Swanberg's motion to dismiss the escape charge.

Somewhat obscured in the case is the defendant, Debbie A. Balles, 25, of Twin Falls. Balles is charged with escaping from the Twin Falls City Jail while serving a jail term as a trustee.

The woman was sentenced to nine months in jail Feb. 19 on charges of willful concealment and failure to pay a $202.50 court-imposed fine following her conviction on charges of inattentive driving, driving with a suspended license, reckless driving and petit larceny.

Twin Falls Police say the woman walked away from the jail on Feb. 24 and voluntarily returned about one week later.

Fifth District Magistrate Court officials said the woman's trial was scheduled for Thursday when a vacancy on Redman's court calendar opened. Swanberg and Balles' lawyer, Public Defender Mike Walz, agreed to the scheduling Wednesday.

Redman ordered Balles' trial continued until a new trial could be scheduled.

SUSAN SWANBERG was at Boise hearing.

Senate passes, intact, Reagan budget cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Thursday approved President Reagan's proposed budget cuts virtually unchanged.

It was a major victory for the president after a week of futile Democratic efforts to prevent the inevitable.

Despite Democratic claims that the cuts would be cruel, unfair and weigh heavily on the poor, the Republican-controlled Senate accepted a package containing $38.9 billion in fiscal 1982 reductions.

The package contained the bulk of Reagan's fiscal 1982 budget proposals — minus $9 billion which budget writers said Reagan could cut administratively and an additional amount that did not require cuts since it involved Carter administration proposals for spending which were never accepted.

The House Budget Committee begins drafting a similar package next week, and Democratic leader Jim Wright predicted Thursday the measure would approach the administration's total figure, "very closely."

But he hinted Reagan would not get as much of a military increase as he wants, and that the tax cut approved by the House would be smaller, reducing the size of the deficit below Reagan's projected $46 billion.

The Senate's action will serve as instructions to its spending and authorizing committees to cut programs under their jurisdiction by certain amounts. The measure contains recommendations, or options for the panels to consider, but they will make the decisions on where the cuts will actually come.

It will be August before the arduous process is complete.

The Senate Budget Committee cut deeper than Reagan, but mostly because it eliminated $2 billion in federal funding for the nation's strategic petroleum reserve. The panel said alternative funding should be devised, such as requiring oil companies to fill it.

The Senate committee also cut deeper into subsidized housing, community development and Medicare. But it restored some funds for a nutrition program for pregnant women and infants, for Export-Import bank loans to businesses and for education and job training.

The only changes made by the full Senate were switching $200 million from foreign aid to school lunches and switching $500 million in Medicaid funds from the 1982 budget to the current one. That technical change enlarged the size of the 1982 budget-cut package, but did not actually mean less spending.

The package contains a $1.5 billion reduction in the food stamp program, a nearly 25 percent cut in elementary and secondary education programs which would be funded under a block grant, a phaseout of public jobs, a $1 billion cut in Medicaid, elimination of the Economic Development Administration and eight regional commissions and termination of the minimum benefit payment under Social Security.

The Senate did not, at Reagan's request, tamper with basic Social Security payments, despite attempts to reduce them.

Music teacher Gene Hetzer directs fourth and fifth-grade students in a musical dance.

Blind

"Teaching is a thinking process," Hetzer maintains. "It's the process of translating what one knows into a language that can be understood by the greatest number of people. Students can only tell you so much. Then it becomes a detective venture!"

He has an aide to correct students' math work. And his elementary music classes require no grading, although he must get to know 360 students in seven grades without benefit of hair color, noses or chubby cheeks.

He struggles occasionally with classroom discipline, but no more so than many first-year teachers, according to Hemmingway Principal Don Hazen.

Hetzer was not born blind. "My blindness was an ignorance thing," he says.

Doctors placed him in an incubator, fearing he might suffer from hemophilia because of an Rh-factor difference between his parents. The oxygen level in the incubator was set too high, burning the retinas of his eyes. Doctors did not discover the mistake until years later.

He was born at an Air Force base in Florida and moved often as a small child because his father was in the military, Hetzer said. "He attended some schools for the blind, and others with sighted children."

He found he prefers the sighted world. Living in an athletic area is exhilarating, he said. People are excited about life and, perhaps because many are better educated, they are open to new ideas.

He gets around Ketchum with a map in his head and a guide dog named Clancy. His canine companion knows the way to Hetzer's favorite market, Louie's restaurant and the post office, although Clancy's main function is to make sure the back door and keeps to a straight line on the sidewalks.

Downhill skiing is probably beyond his realm, Hetzer said. Speed, object avoidance and other variables make the sport too difficult to control. "He would like to try cross-country skiing, however, and believe he could stay on a groomed track once he knows the route."

For daily exercise he walks a lot, goes to the gym and runs in place at his apartment.

What brought Hetzer to Ketchum was a mid-year job opening, he readily admits. Educated in Long Island, N.Y., he moved to the Bay Area with his parents after receiving a master's degree from C.W. Post University. He spent much of his two years in San Francisco just "seeing" the sights.

Despite the Bay Area's liberal reputation, he found many of the same "Catch-22" situations that commonly stifle people with handicaps.

"There is this dichotomy," he said, "the first part of which says a blind person should be able to go as far as he can. But the other part says he can't go very far."

The frustrations he expresses about teaching are those that trouble educators everywhere.

"You like to reach the gifted and the steppers, but you can't do it that way," he said. "You have to reach the 15 or 20 in front of you."

"It's like being in a building with a master-key and a lot of individual keys," he continued. "Teaching is unlocking doors. The skeleton key is a little broad, but in most cases we have to use it. When you're teaching one to one, you can find the one or two keys that fit."

A fine-tuned sense of hearing — almost like sonar — helps him gauge distance from pupils and classroom objects.

The music room heater emits a subtle ping, which is altered whenever a person comes between him and the wall. Walls reflect sounds. His concept of blackness is a velvet curtain, Hetzer said. Walking toward a barrier is like stepping into an unlighted room. Distances are distorted.

He offers piano lessons in his spare time. Teaching pupils who use sheet music as a guide presents no particular problems, he said. A little green book helps him translate students' questions about symbols, when necessary.

He played briefly in a country band and served as a church organist while living briefly in Caldwell, where he learned about the Ketchum teaching post.

Though the odds against him are great, Hetzer said he hopes to remain in teaching.

Helping students reach their full potential is the greatest challenge he has known, he said. It is also the best way he has found to "express my potential."

Did publicity kill latest Atlanta victim?

ATLANTA (UPI) — Formation of a "bat patrol" to protect black children at a housing project from the city's child killers apparently was taken as a challenge that led to the death of the latest victim, investigators said Thursday.

Eddie Lee Duncan, a 21-year-old retarded black who disappeared from the Techwood project, the day the patrol began, officially was added to the list of 24 missing or murdered children. Twenty-two have been found dead; two are still missing.

Several investigators saw Duncan's death as yet another indication that the killer or killers were reacting to publicity.

He said the citizen's patrol at Techwood, the city's largest housing project, "threw out a challenge."

Duncan, although five years older than the eldest previous victim, was no larger than one of the children killed and was described as childlike and impressionable.

W.K. Perry, former chief of homicide in the Atlanta police department and now a private detective working on the murders, said the killer "wants publicity."

"The killer has no need to return to the scene of his crimes, he said. "He doesn't have to risk that. As soon as the body is found, all the TV people, all the news agencies go to it. All he has to do is see it on television or read it in the newspaper."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A court-appointed psychiatrist said Thursday John W. Hinckley Jr. is competent to stand trial for attempting to assassinate President Reagan.

But a federal judge sent him to a special prison in North Carolina for more mental tests.

The drifter son of a wealthy Colorado oilman appears to be an earnest, amiable, extraordinarily light-colored of the type usually reserved for the president himself. He wore a bulletproof vest and traveled under heavy guard by military helicopter and motorcade.

Defense attorneys unsuccessfully appealed the order for psychiatric examinations in U.S. District Court and said they were considering a further appeal.

more mental tests set

One source noted that because psychiatrists are being asked to determine Hinckley's mental condition at the time of the alleged crime it is critical to begin the tests as soon as possible.

The further from the act, the more difficult it is to make that determination," the source said.

But, with Hinckley's mental state the central issue in the case, defense lawyer Vincent Fuller contended the defense should be permitted to examine Hinckley before the prosecution has access to him.

actress Jodie Foster, 18, whom he had followed across the country.

Investigators said Hinckley wrote to Miss Foster in a unmailed letter left in his hotel room that he "would abandon this idea of getting Reagan in a second if I could only win your heart and live out the rest of my life with you."

"Jodie," the letter ended, "I'm asking you to please look into your heart and at least give me the chance with this historical deed to gain your respect and love."

Margolis ruled defense psychiatrists would have equal access to the defendant but granted Fuller a one-day delay so he could appeal to U.S. District Court.

Ninety minutes later, sitting in the same paneled, high-ceiling courtroom, U.S. District Judge William Bryant turned down Fuller's appeal but allowed him 24 hours to take the appeal to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Federal investigators said Hinckley's apparent motive for opening fire on President Reagan outside a Washington hotel Monday was to win the "respect and love" of

Brady continues to recover though still listed as critical

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House press secretary Jim Brady appeared "clearer mentally" late Thursday.

When asked how he was feeling he gave the thumbs-up signal and replied "fine, fine," his doctors said.

In an early evening medical bulletin the doctors said that "Brady was woken up in the head in Monday's assassination attempt on President Reagan. He is now performing breathing exercises on instruction" and has gained some minimal voluntary movement in the muscles of his left arm and leg.

That could be significant because the right-hand portion of Brady's brain, which controls movement in the left side of the body, was injured in the shooting.

"Mr. Brady's post-operative status continues to improve," the George Washington University Medical Center doctors said. "He appears clearer mentally. He held a restricted conversation with his physician this afternoon. When asked how he was feeling, Mr. Brady replied with a thumbs up sign and said, 'fine, fine.'"

They also noted, "Mr. Brady is also now performing breathing exercises on instructions and has gained some minimal voluntary movement of the proximal muscles of his left arm and leg."

Brady's wife, Sarah, has been with him constantly and told reporters his condition has been "quite good."

Earlier, Dr. Dennis O'Leary, the hospital spokesman, said "We are a long way from home on Mr. Brady," but noted the press secretary's satisfactory progress.

O'Leary said there are small but positive signs in the recovery prognosis, but that Brady still is in critical condition and must be watched carefully for a wide spectrum of possible complications.

It is "far too early" to make a neurological evaluation of Brady's long-range condition or determine whether there will be any permanent paralysis, he said.

"I think we won't have a more or less final neurological assessment for six to 12 months and I don't think that even a reasonably good preliminary assessment is going to be possible for a couple of weeks," he said.

Brady, the most critically wounded of the four men shot in Monday's assassination attempt on President Reagan, that night underwent a 6 1/2-hour operation, with surgeons removing a portion of the frontal lobe of his brain to get to the bullet and remove damaged tissue.

At first, he was given little chance of survival without severe brain damage, but he has shown steady improvement since the surgery.

Nevertheless, O'Leary decided on a cautious note after White House aides began to call Brady's progress "astounding" and "miraculous."

"We are a long way from home on Mr. Brady," O'Leary said. "I think I have to underline that and inject a note of caution."

But a brain scan Brady underwent Thursday was described as "significantly improved" over the one taken before surgery.

The humorous, portly 40-year-old Brady can open his swollen eyes with help, and when his doctor held up three fingers and asked him, "How many fingers do you see?" he replied, "Three."

O'Leary said that appears simple, but actually indicates "good function of some rather complex nerve pathways."

So far, he said, there is "no evidence of any major complications." Brady is able to move around in bed and to cooperate with the treatment he is being given.

But O'Leary said reports that Brady is now talking are "a bit overstated." The patient was able say five words Wednesday: "Brady," "ball," and "one, two, three."

D.C. law won't let Hinckley specifically plea to insanity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If John W. Hinckley Jr. is put on trial, he is acquitted by reason of insanity of attempting to assassinate President Reagan, District of Columbia law will require that he be committed to a mental hospital.

An attorney familiar with criminal laws governing mental illness said the laws in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia regarding the questions of competence and sanity are different from those in all other federal districts in the nation.

The only reference in the federal criminal code to persons who are mentally ill deals with the question of competence to stand trial, the attorney said. He said competence and sanity are entirely separate issues.

"It doesn't say a thing about the insanity defense," he said.

Where states have their own codes on how to deal with criminal matters through their state court systems, the district laws governing matters handled in federal court take precedence in Washington.

That means that in other federal district courts, if a suspect is acquitted in federal court by reason of insanity, the states still have some actions left to them, the attorney said.

Another unique feature of D.C. law is that the burden would be on the defendant to convince the jury that he is mentally ill and should be acquitted by reason of insanity.

In other jurisdictions, the prosecution must show the defendant is sane.

In the District of Columbia system, any lawyer can ask for a psychiatric screening of a suspect. If the psychiatrist finds the suspect competent, the judge can order a fuller study done.

That is what happened Thursday in the Hinckley case.

At the same time, if a person has a history of psychiatric trouble — as in Hinckley's case — the judge can ask the doctors to do a "productivity study" to determine three things:

"On the day the acts took place, was this man mentally ill?"

"If so, was he so substantially ill that he did not understand the dictates of the law?"

Idaho students do not have to suffer

Only four months ago many Idaho officials and businessmen painted a bleak picture of the state's economy.

Collections of sales and income taxes, which largely fund state government and education, had fallen below the amounts collected the year before. The Idaho economy appeared to have stopped growing.

As a result, state agencies and higher education lost about 4 percent of their budgets and property taxes were increased by law to make up the shortfall for the public schools.

But then the months of January and February saw the start of an economic recovery in Idaho, despite high interest rates and depressed home and auto industries.

The latest figures, which were released Wednesday for the month of March, show year-to-date collections of sales and income taxes up 25 percent over the previous fiscal year's totals.

With only three months remaining in this fiscal year, the State Tax Commission now believes the state could end up with a $15 million surplus. That is the exact amount cut last year when the Board of Examiners ordered state spending to be reduced by 4 percent.

If the state does collect a sizable surplus, it makes sense to put some of it to use where it will do good, not just earn interest as an investment until next January when the Legislature meets again.

The three-member Board of Examiners, which is scheduled to meet April 14, holds the key to the potentially overflowing state coffers.

The board, Gov. John Evans, a Democrat, and Attorney General David Leroy and Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa, both Republicans, have the authority to rescind all or part of their order of last year that reduced expenditures.

The State Board of Education has already urged them to do so for higher education if there is a surplus. State Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans says he will urge the same on behalf of the public schools if the surplus reaches several million dollars.

To release more funds to most state agencies this fall, in the fiscal year would accomplish little. They would tend to waste the money, since any unexpended funds at the end of the fiscal year must be returned to the general fund.

But colleges, universities and junior colleges have the authority to carry over unexpended funds for use in the next fiscal year. If the $2.6 million taken from higher education were restored it could lower by $50 per semester a student fee increase being considered for next fall by the State Board of Education.

All or part of the $7.1 million taken from the public schools — and made up by property taxpayers — could be returned by the Department of Education to the school districts in the form of tax credits for this coming school year. That would reduce property taxes.

The taxpayers deserve a reduction since they were forced to chip in last year, even though it appears that the state will end up collecting enough revenue. If the revenue had been evenly spread over the fiscal year, the reduction in state spending would not have been necessary.

Such a property tax reduction would offset an increase in property taxes of an estimated $6 million to $7 million, under this year's 1 percent law.

It would also help local school districts that need to seek voter approval of override levies to maintain programs — and pay teachers. Educators say more overrides may be needed because of what legislators admit is a low appropriation for the public schools this year.

The state's elected officials on the Board of Examiners must be urged to consider taking this step for the sake of education, a top priority in need of more financial support.

The stranger amongst

Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Anyone in the public eye, whether it be a movie star, a television personality, a politician, or even a columnist, has a better idea than most people of what happened in front of the Washington Hilton Monday afternoon.

Somewhere out in this country are six people, who, though complete strangers, harbor bitter grievances against well-known individuals who have never done them any harm. But for some reason, they have decided that a particular person is responsible for their pain.

The mail arrives and among the letters are the anonymous scrawls of anger and hate. The scrawls can be threatening, or they can make no sense at all. You tend to laugh them off, because you don't want to admit to yourself that somebody out there has chosen you as the target for their discontent.

The letters are either thrown into the wastebasket, or placed in the increasingly large "out file" that you've built up over the years. Sometimes the mail continues for months and even years. Other times one letter is sufficient to relieve the person of whatever is bothering them.

The hate and the anger and the frustration are not only transmitted through the mail, but also over the telephone. The stranger tells you what you have allegedly done to him, and asks you what you are going to do about it.

The trick is to talk calmly and assure him that whatever his grievance is, you will look into it. You try to persuade him that you are not responsible for whatever is burling him, and you end the conversation as quietly and gently as you possibly can.

Fortunately, very few people act out their fantasies of "getting even" with the person they have chosen as the one who is tormenting them.

But every once in a while someone decides he or she must take action. The most obvious person in this country to take action against is the president of the United States. It doesn't matter what party the president belongs to, or what his political philosophy is. The stranger has decided to have his day in the sun.

The problem of obtaining a gun to carry out the fantasy is no problem. In almost any state you can buy a weapon. You can get one for as little as $20 or one for $200, and in many places you can buy a gun with no questions asked.

Stalking a president is also no problem in a country where presidents mingle with the people. The opportunity to fire the gun is a matter of luck and daring. No Secret Service or umbrella of police personnel can protect a person from the stranger who is intent on shooting someone.

And sometimes the deed is carried out, as it was Monday, when a smiling president waved to a friendly crowd on the streets of the capital of the United States.

But presidents are not the only targets for the sick people who walk the land. The victims can also be John Lennon or a little black child in Atlanta.

And every time it happens, the American people rise up in anger and say "What can we do?"

Stop the sale of handguns? It might be a good beginning, but the gun lobby will never let it happen. Lock every sick person in the country — it can't, and shouldn't be done.

The truth of the matter is that there is very little that can be done.

The brooding stranger, who dreams of taking his revenge, is always amongst us. But until the gun is fired, nobody knows his name.

The Japanese dilemma

Universal Press Syndicate

WASHINGTON — A long time ago, James Fenimore Cooper laid down what might be defined as Cooper's Law for Practicing Politicians:

As he grapples with the intractable dilemma of Japanese imports, President Reagan might find some comfort in it.

"Principles," said Cooper, "become modified in practice by facts."

The problem of Japanese imports meets all the qualifications of a true dilemma. When his sorely divided counselors finally stop arguing, Mr. Reagan will have two choices only. He can come down on the side of free trade, or he can come down on the side of protectionism. Under the unhappy circumstances at hand, there is not much to be said for free trade; there is not much to be said for protectionism either.

In the end Mr. Reagan must make a choice. If principles alone could decide the issue, the president would go for free trade. He would jawbone the Japanese, urging upon them the wisdom of voluntary restraint in their booming export business — but he would use every weapon at his command — including his power of veto — to prevent the imposition of quotas. All of Mr. Reagan's instincts go in this direction.

But the old Deerslayer had it right.

The very best principles run into the very best facts, and something nice to give.

The case for principle is clear. In theory at least, ours is a free society, dedicated to the rule of the marketplace and to the rights of the consumer. If American auto manufacturers can't make it in the competitive marketplace, so the principle avows, let 'em go under. If American auto buyers want Toyotas instead of Chevys, that's their freedom to decide. And besides, the argument continues, if principle were to be abandoned in the matter of the beleaguered auto industry, what other troubled industry would be next? In this view principle is like virginity; once lost it cannot be regained.

The facts are equally clear. The American auto industry is our greatest industry. Directly or indirectly it provides one of every five jobs in the country. But the industry is a sick industry. Last year the sale of domestic cars slumped to 6.5 million units, less than the sales of 10 years ago. Undenably, one big reason for the slump is that Americans last year bought 1.5 million Japanese imports.

How did the industry get in this fix? It is easy enough to say, in hindsight, that management should have foreseen a demand by 1981 for small, fuel-efficient cars. Management's soaring gasoline prices, and swiftly changing consumer demands, through a rearview mirror, 20-20 eyesight is no trick at all.

Today's root problems are directly traceable to political and economic folly. While the price of gasoline was increasing elsewhere in the world, thus compelling the development of Volkswagens, Toyotas and Hondas, our government kept gasoline prices low here at home. We loved it. No one can recall complaints against 30-cent gas, but the effect was to create a market for the gas guzzlers.

That economic misjudgment then was compounded by other factors, especially by a mountainous burden of federal rules and regulations. Inflation pushed up the wages of auto workers to a point where hourly wages in the U.S. are double those in Japan. For a number of reasons, our productivity lagged. Japanese plants are highly automated. Robots do much of the work. The car-per-worker ratio for a Toyota is 65-to-1. The ratio for a Ford or GM car is 10-to-1.

Slick as it is, the domestic industry is not terminally ill. Spokesmen for both labor and management contend that if temporary measures could be imposed upon Japan for the next three years, most of the problem would be solved. Old principles, they insist, would not be permanently compromised. These arguments may not convince Mr. Reagan, but they seem mighty persuasive to me.

Last hitchhiker

Editor, Times-News:

I have just picked up my very first and very last hitchhiker.

While coming back into Twin Falls on Blue 24, I saw a girl who was obviously been hitchhiking in the cold for quite a while. Feeling sorry for her, I stopped. She said she was going out by K-Mart. Even though this was out-of-my-way, I told her that if she could wait a minute to make a quick stop I would take her wherever she was going.

I noticed that she was wearing a W.O.W. Ambassador pin, identifying her as a member of "Word Over the World," a religious group passing through town. About that time, we arrived at my stop, and as I started out of the car, she asked me to please hurry as she had to cook dinner for her "fellow ambassadors." This will only take a second, I replied, feeling quite put out by now.

After a few short minutes I returned to the car, to take her to her destination.

She immediately asked me what religion I was.

"I'm Catholic," I said, "but I believe everyone is entitled to their own beliefs."

"You're wrong," she said, "but if you want I believe I'll go ahead and take you to church. There is no grey matter in the Bible, only black and white. What we believe is the truth, everything else is a lie." I told her that I was not going to make apologies for what I believed, and that I'd cut out that I was going to change to make her happy. By this time she was lucky that I hadn't pushed her out of a moving car. So far, I had wasted my valuable time and gas to go out of my way for a person I had to be told to hurry up for her — and belittled for my religious beliefs. A fine way to convert someone to a religion, isn't it!

We pulled up to where she wanted to go, and she asked me if I would attend the W.O.W. seminars, which, by the way, are very expensive. I told her no, but thank you. With that note he got out of my car and headed for her house, without, even so much as a thank-you.

She ought to learn the best "word over the world" is thank you!

The 1981 Legislature — yes, it might have been worse

BOISE — The people of Idaho are the big losers as a result of this completed legislative session.

The losses include tax and fee increases, lost state jobs, and lost protection for basic resources.

Responsibility for this dismal performance rests squarely on the shoulders of the Republican leaders and a majority of the Republican legislators.

Gov. John Evans proposed a reasonable budget, with no general tax increases. He proposed a 30 percent, up to $15,000 homeowner tax exemption, a measure which would have reduced taxes for most residential taxpayers.

Not only did the GOP majority reject the Evans' budget, it intentionally destroyed basic programs important to living quality in Idaho. It ignored actual revenue on hand and insisted on a discredited budget projection.

The Republicans rejected reasonable alternatives to help fund schools, colleges and universities. GOP senators killed a proposal to tax contractors at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, as other contractors are taxed. The Republican-dominated House Revenue and Taxation Committee refused to even consider a severance tax on minerals.

Evans' homeowner exemption was rejected. In the end, the legislators reduced taxes for most residential taxpayers by the inadequate 20 percent, up to $10,000 exemption of 1980. Again they refused to make it permanent, extending it for only one year.

The Republican decision to reject the Evans' property tax proposal means that homeowners will pay $7 million more in taxes this year than they would have with the 30 percent exemption. Why the 20 percent exemption should allow taxes on homes to remain nearly the same, there will be a slight increase.

If the Republican majority again rejects a 30 percent exemption in 1982, taxes on homes will rise sharply. Even if the 20 percent exemption is continued, they will probably go up at least $10 million.

Republican leaders claimed that they had to stay within a $422 million revenue projection to avoid a tax increase. In reality, their decisions will raise taxes and fees. And as of mid-March, $10 million more had already been collected than the projections to that time for the current fiscal year.

The $195 million public school appropriation will result in property tax increases in many districts. Last year we were 42 percent short of the money we can expect many more. The property taxpayers will help pay for the GOP budget projection.

Students at colleges and universities, or their parents, will pay for it, too. The appropriation for higher education means fee increases.

Nursing home costs could go up to pay for the decision to slash in-home assistance to senior citizens. It costs the state much more to care for someone in a nursing home than to send a person around to help seniors remain in their homes.

Idaho now enjoys the distinction of being the only state without air quality enforcement. This tells you how much the GOP leaders value the quality of life in this state.

Another clue is provided by the decision of the GOP majority to support the Stream Protection Act. This apparently opens the door to alterations of up to 15,000 miles of streams, with no permit and no questions asked. This is consistent with efforts of past Republican majorities to destroy the Stream Protection Act.

Most funding was eliminated for public television, one of the state-funded programs that serves the greatest number of people. After enacting the oyster stew of the lobbyist fighting the severance tax on minerals, GOP leaders said no money is available for such things.

If they had really wanted to help taxpayers, the Republican majority would have approved the 30 percent homeowner tax exemption. If they had really been reluctant to ax some of the programs they chose to eliminate, they would have allowed a vote on the severance tax. Or they would have let the removal of the sales tax exemption — for INEL — contractor come to a vote in the Senate.

The Republican majority took a difficult situation and made it worse, not because no money was available, but because they really wanted to sack such programs as stream protection and air quality.

It could have been worse. We might have had a Republican governor, but as bad as the Republican majority is the legislature.

Agent gives details of shooting to Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secret Service agent Jerry Parr, who threw a wounded President Reagan into his limousine, said Thursday fellow agent "Timothy" McCarthy probably saved Reagan's life by using his own body to block a would-be assassin's bullet.

Parr recounted Monday's events when Reagan was shot in the chest while leaving a downtown Washington hotel in a barrage of gunfire that also wounded McCarthy, White House press secretary Jim Brady and Washington policeman Thomas Delahanty.

The veteran agent told a Senate subcommittee it was a few minutes after the time that he pushed Reagan into the presidential limousine when he realized Reagan had been wounded and ordered the car to the nearest hospital.

He said he knew Reagan had been shot when the president began to cough up "bright red" blood he knew from his training was oxygenated and could only have come from a lung.

Parr said McCarthy probably saved both his and Reagan's life in "bigger, than life" heroic action.

In unexpected testimony before the panel that was hearing from Secret Service officials, Parr was summoned from the audience to give his firsthand version of Monday's assassination.

He said the president's arrival at the Washington Hilton Hotel was "quiet" and — in classic understatement — that it was "basically a quiet departure until the gunfire."

Matthew Lopp-alike, said agents are trained to look into the faces and eyes of spectators to determine possible danger. But he did not see the suspect, John W. Hinckley Jr.

"In this case the gentleman was shielded" by the press and bystanders, he said. "I heard the gunfire and immediately moved to the president's left and down, forward and into the car."

He described his movement as "basically an instinctive reaction due to training. Basically we just react to the sound and seek the safest place — for me it was behind that door and into the car."

The 50-year-old veteran of 18 years in the Secret Service described what happened next:

"When I went in on top of the president, he and I landed on top of the transmission riser that's in between the two seats, and he indicated that his chest was hurt. The agent who was behind me, slammed the door. I told the driver ... to leave rapidly, which he did.

"There was no one in the right front seat, which would have normally been my position but I was in the back seat with the president. I pushed him up to the right rear. His normal position for riding in the car is the right rear. I ran my hands over his body under his arms, his back looking for some kind of a wound.

"... He was sitting upright. He complained that I had hurt his ribs in landing on top of him. So at that time, I told the driver to head for the White House. It was the safest place. Shortly after that, I would say in the space of 10 or 15 seconds, he complained of a problem in breathing and was getting a bit ashen in color.

"And then he started coughing up a little blood. It was bright red, and I knew from my training that this was oxygenated blood. This is blood coming out of the lung. I told the driver immediately to get to George Washington, which we did.

"We got to the emergency entrance. I opened the door and asked for assistance of two or three agents in the follow-up car behind us. We got up and walked in approximately 45 or 50 feet, and felt he was perhaps going into shock. He started to buckle a little bit. We carried him the rest of the way to the trauma unit. The trauma unit started to work on him immediately.

Parr was asked why Reagan walked into the hospital after having lost so much blood.

"This is a very fuzzy area," he said. "It seemed like it was the most natural thing to do. There was not a stretcher there, although they did know we were coming. So he got up and we took him by the arm, two or three of us, and walked him in."

Parr went out of his way to praise fellow agent McCarthy.

"We're all trained to put ourselves between an assailant and the president. I think what agent McCarthy did was most heroic. It seems like to me from looking at the films he made himself bigger than life and imposed himself between the assailant and the president."

Secret Service defends its actions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Secret Service did "everything it normally does" to protect President Reagan when he was shot April 3, the agency's congressional hearing said Thursday.

But the Secret Service director said "in hindsight," Reagan should have worn a bulletproof vest.

The men were questioned about the president's protection during two congressional hearings on Capitol Hill, one on the budget of the Treasury Department, which controls the Secret Service and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, and the other on funding for the protective service itself.

John Simpson, assistant director for protective operations, also testified and agreed with Reagan that, even in hindsight, the service would have done nothing different from what it did Monday.

"As far as I'm concerned, what was done there was done properly, professionally and was in the best interest of the safety of the president," Simpson said.

Asked about protective clothing, Knight said the president "would wear a bullet-proof vest if the Secret Service asked him to, but there was no inkling Reagan was in a dangerous situation."

"In hindsight he should have been wearing a vest, he said.

Asked if a president would have "veto power" over wearing protective clothing, Knight said if the Secret Service decided he should wear it, "We would try to take him two out of three falls and try to prevail."

U.S. evacuates dependents from violence-torn Uganda

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — The United States has evacuated the wives and children of its Embassy staff in Kampala because of rising violence in the Ugandan capital, U.S. Embassy officials said Thursday.

Deputy chief of mission David Holsted said the Embassy dependents — five women and four children — flew to Nairobi, the capital of neighboring Kenya, on Wednesday.

While there have been no specific threats against Americans, "there has been a general increase in the level of violence over the past weeks," Holsted said, apparently referring to guerrilla attacks and army reprisals that have claimed dozens of lives.

"We feel it is in the interest of both our government and the Ugandan government to reduce the numbers of Americans who might be involved in an accident," Ambassador Gordon Beyer is still in residence.

In the past eight days, at least 65 civilians are known to have been found dead in and around the capital — 24 of them in the Namanve Forest where the henchmen of former dictator Idi Amin used to dump hundreds of bodies.

Washington broke diplomatic ties with Uganda during the reign of Idi Amin, but the Embassy in Kampala reopened in June 1979, shortly after the dictator's ouster in a war with neighboring Tanzania.

In that time, the Embassy has had at least six vehicles stolen, many of them at gunpoint, and one of the Embassy's Ugandan drivers was shot dead in such a theft last summer.

The violence, which began in February, has thus far been directed against the government of Milton Obote government, which came to power in disputed elections last December and is wrestling with widespread corruption, desperate shortages of essential commodities and inflation running higher than 100 percent a year.

Crisis isn't over in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Labor peace returned to Poland Thursday but the Kremlin made its strongest attack yet against the Polish Communist Party and the United States said the possibility of Soviet intervention had increased.

At the same time, the nation took another step toward liberalization with the publication and sale of the first legally independent magazine in the East Bloc.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger told Congress the possibility of Soviet intervention had increased as a result of Soviet-led Warsaw Pact troop movements near Poland during the past 24 to 48 hours.

"They (the Soviets) have taken a number of actions which I think would cause me to characterize the situation as worse than it was last week and as very serious," he said.

In Moscow, an article in the official Soviet newspaper Pravda faulted the Polish Communist Party for not putting up enough "ideological resistance" to dissident voices in Poland. A Western diplomat said it was the first time the Kremlin had sharply criticized the Polish government in public and he called it "very significant."

Polis, meanwhile, lined up at newspaper stands by the thousands to buy the first issue of the new weekly magazine "Solidarity."

The first issue, with a press run of 600,000 copies, carried Solidarity's version of the Bydgoszcz incident March 19, when police beat a group of union leaders.

The incident triggered the most serious labor crisis since August and led to a four-hour nationwide warning strike last Friday.

An indefinite general strike set for last Tuesday was averted at the last moment when the government and Solidarity reached a compromise accord.

Union militants denounced the concessions as insufficient but bowed to pressure by Solidarity leader Lech Walesa and ratified the accord at a two-day meeting ending Wednesday.

Major fighting breaks out in Lebanon

Friday, April 5, 1981 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-7

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian peacekeeping troops and Lebanese Christian militiamen battled with artillery, rockets and mortars in two of Lebanon's biggest cities Thursday. The fighting reportedly left more than 65 people dead and 200 injured in the nation's worst violence in nearly 10 years.

Police sources said the fighting between the rightist Christian Phalangist militia and the Syrian Arab Deterring Force in Beirut and the eastern city of Zahle was the heaviest in Lebanon since October 1978 — the last time the rival forces had a full-scale shootout.

The sources said it was impossible to determine exactly what or who triggered the fighting in the two densely populated cities, but noted that tensions between the two sides had been building for weeks.

Security sources said 39 soldiers and civilians were killed in the Beirut clashes, which encompassed both the Christian eastern half of the city and the predominantly Muslim western side, in addition to the port dividing the two.

Most of the casualties were in East Beirut. The three-hour battle in Beirut raged with such intensity that shells fell at the rate of 10 a minute, according to the Christian Phalangist radio.

Panic-stricken residents rushed to reach shelters or their homes. Schools were closed and long lines formed at bakeries and gas stations as civilians tried to stock up on essential items.

Rival militiamen could be seen rushing to battle stations in jeeps and trucks bristling with heavy machine guns, rocket propelled grenades and light mortars.

Another 100 people were reported to have been injured in fighting in Zahle, which was reduced to small arms fire by nightfall following a cease-fire call by President Elias Sarkis.

In Zahle, 35 miles east of Beirut, more than 20 people were killed and at least 100 injured when the Syrian army rained artillery fire on the Christian market town for the second straight day. The Syrians were apparently trying to drive the Phalangist militia out of the city, police sources said.

Eight of the 10 Christian ministers in Prime Minister Chifek Wazzan's Cabinet met with Phalangist army commander Bechir Gemayel late Thursday and drew up a list of demands which they presented to Sarkis.

The demands included the deployment of the Lebanese army on the "green line" dividing East and West Beirut and in Zahle, replacing the Syrian forces. The ministers also demanded an immediate end to the Syrian shelling and an official Lebanese complaint to the U.N. Security Council about Thursday's incidents.

They hinted that if their demands were not met at an emergency Cabinet meeting set for Friday morning, they would bring down the government, sources in the government said.

About 10 ships were evacuated under heavy shelling and heavy black smoke billowed from damaged port buildings. Several gas stations were also engulfed in flames.

The Syrians make up the Arab League mandated peacekeeping force sent to restore order in Lebanon after the 1975-76 civil war.

The cease-fire agreement that ended the 1978 fighting resulted in the withdrawal of the Syrian forces from East Beirut, which is now totally controlled by the rightist militias.

That loyalist forces subdue rebel troops

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Loyalist troops subdued rebel forces in Bangkok on Friday, seized key installations, shut down the airport and apparently wrested control of the nation from the leaders of a two-day-old attempted military coup.

Trucks of troops supporting Prime Minister Gen. Prem Tinsulanonda, chased from the capital in Wednesday's military uprising, entered Bangkok in the early morning as warplanes piloted by Prem loyalists zoomed over the city.

There were no immediate reports of fighting as radio stations held by Prem announced that the capital had been secured and ordered rebel soldiers to obey only loyalist officers.

The radio issued repeated offers of amnesty for "soldiers who made a mistake and were lured into participating in the coup."

They were given "one last chance" to return to their barracks.

Rebel bravado faded with the arrival of loyalist troops and one report said the officer sent by coup leader Gen. Sant Chitpalma, once Prem's most-trusted aide, to negotiate with Prem's forces had fled.

Sant's grab for power began to fall apart Thursday, when it became known that the much-revered King Bhumibol and the royal family had fled the capital to join Prem at an air-force base in northeastern Thailand.

In addition, most top military commanders remained loyal to Prem, who was able to gather about him a much more powerful force than the rebels could muster.

The attempted coup began in the dawn hours of Wednesday when rebel troops seized control of the capital and Prem fled Bangkok by helicopter to the sanctuary of a military base at Korat, 140 miles northeast of the capital.

Moshe Dayan confirms new party created

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Former Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said Thursday he would run on an independent ticket in Israel's June 30 general elections.

Dayan, 65, told reporters he would make a formal announcement Saturday at a gathering of supporters, saying he needed a few days to iron out details regarding a platform and a list of candidates to run with him.

Dayan, who quit the Begin government over policy differences, told reporters that his candidates would try to gain enough strength in the 120-member Parliament to influence decisions on major economic, social and foreign policy issues.

Latest polls predict a Dayan-led list of candidates would pull between 10-20 votes in Parliament.

Chamber rejects meeting with Evans today

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce decided last month not to meet with Democratic Gov. John Evans during his "capital for a day" visit today.

Subsequently a member of the chamber's board of directors wrote Evans claiming a key role in the decision and calling the capital program a "farce."

Contacted in Gooding, Evans said Thursday the note from Richard Silvers, the son of Republican State Rep. T.W. Silvers of Twin Falls, indicated politics entered into the chamber's decision.

Richard Burwell, chamber board member and former president, said Thursday the board decided the business community had the chance to talk to Evans at other meetings today and a special meeting was not necessary.

"John is the governor and I think in due respect to his position the board evaluated the entire thing," Burwell said. "I don't think anything should be read into the board's decision."

Frank Olander, coordinator for the capital program, said he proposed the meeting about a month ago to chamber President Ken Stearns and Richard Silvers, legislative committee chairman. Olander said the proposal was part of the routine process of scheduling Evans' day.

The Gooding Chamber of Commerce hosted a meeting Thursday when Evans made Gooding County the 16th "capital for a day."

Olander said Silvers informed him of the decision by telephone soon after the initial proposal. Stearns was out of town Thursday.

Asked if the Governor's Office had received any other communication from officials of the chamber, Olander said Silvers returned an invitation to attend today's functions.

Olander said Silvers added a note to Evans saying, "I was the one that was instrumental in your not meeting with our chamber of commerce. In addition, I think your capital for a day program is a farce."

Silvers could not be reached Thursday evening.

"He's just a member of the board," Burwell said. "We have very many outspoken members. I don't think any one influenced the decision the board made."

"In my opinion no politics were involved in the decision," he said. "Political motivation is two pronged. Is the governor's trip politically motivated? Is the Twin Falls board's decision? I don't think anybody can answer it."

Evans said the chamber's reasons were "perfectly understandable." But he said when he was president of the Malad Chamber of Commerce he would not have tolerated the decision,

"It always seemed to me an advantage for the governor to come to town," he said. "Every chamber but Twin Falls has jumped at the opportunity to sit down with the governor in a round-table discussion of issues of great concern to the business community."

Asked about Silvers's note, Evans said it indicated a "substantial amount of politics."

"I was embarrassed for him. I would never in my life have written to the governor in those terms."

Evans said his capital program was "not politically inspired." He said more people in more parts of the state, especially rural areas, can meet him and ask questions that would not have been possible otherwise.

"It has substantially helped me as governor of Idaho."

He said whether the program helps him politically depends "entirely on the reception he receives, his abilities and the issues raised. Some might say not, he said."

Burwell said the board strives to represent the views of the community.

"Maybe sometimes we don't. We'd rather be there in the middle than prove on, if the business people want to talk to him they have the chance."

Burwell said he did not know if the board's decision was "good, bad or indifferent." "It's no biggie. It's a low key issue."

School board sets Jerome bond vote

JEROME — A $950,000 bond levy election is planned May 19 to raise money for expanding several Jerome schools.

The Jerome School Board decided earlier this week to expand and renovate portions of existing schools to cure classroom crowding rather than build an entirely new school or change to a 12-month curriculum.

"On the year-round school proposal, a lot of people reacted violently opposed while others strongly favored it," Board Chairman Alvin Chojnacky said Thursday. "It was these two extremes we've heard from, primarily."

"We decided to look at something not quite so divisive," Chojnacky said.

The 12-month school year was proposed in February by a community advisory committee appointed by the board in October 1980. This committee studied crowding in Jerome schools that resulted this year in hiring additional staff and snuffing classes.

Expanding existing schools and building a new school were also considered, though not preferred, by the 11-member committee.

Although final plans have not been drawn, the school board is considering a five-point expansion program for the district:

- Add five classrooms to Jefferson Elementary School; reportedly the only Jerome school with enough land space for a new wing.
- Enlarge the Jefferson kitchen to support increased enrollment created by the proposed addition.

- Build new restrooms at Jefferson for both students and faculty.
- Add a teachers lounge/workroom at Jefferson so the facility no longer must share a student "sick room."
- Build an already planned agriculture/industrial shop at Jerome High School.

Most of proposed action is aimed directly at reducing classroom crowding in Jerome elementary schools, but the effects will be district wide, according to Chojnacky.

"Constructing the new shop facility will have two tremendously important effects for high school students," he said. "It will shuttled to the junior high and Central Elementary School for ag and shop classes," Chojnacky said.

"First, it will cut the transportation costs and second, it seems ever more important to me, it will reduce the lost classroom time caused by shuttling the kids around," Chojnacky said.

This year, high school shop students are based either to the junior high or Central for agriculture classes or to Central for agriculture/industrial shop. The agriculture/industrial shop was originally included in plans for the high school, built four years ago.

If a new shop complex is built at the high school, space will be freed at both Central and Jerome Junior High for classroom and library space.

According to Superintendent Percy Christensen, shop space at Central will probably be remodeled into three classrooms which other space could be used to enlarge Central's library.

Kids are teachers in museum program

By BONNIE YAHVAH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Was it hard to kill a buffalo?" a third grader asked last week after a presentation about Idaho Indians.

"It was really hard and probably even took 10 arrowheads to kill it," replied a fifth grader who was giving the presentation at the Herrett Museum.

The late Norman Herrett used students to teach other children 20 years ago in his museum and planetarium which he built beside his jewelry store on Kimberly Road.

Today, the same system is continued by 56 student teachers who give presentations to other children at the Norman Herrett Museum on the College of Southern Idaho campus. The children range from third graders to seniors in high school.

Herrett's museum contained Indian artifacts from North, South and Central America. Each year he constructed an exhibit about a specific Indian culture. He taught the children about the Indians and they gave presentations to other children visiting the museum.

This week, David McNeese, Peter Ruprecht, and T.J. Weirich, three fifth grade students, gave a presentation at the museum to 60 third grade students from Jerome.

The three boys agreed it was fun to give presentations. Peter said he likes learning about the Indians best.

Cyndi Miracle, another fifth grade student teacher, said she liked being a student teacher all the hard work they have to do to display the items.

Julie Bourner, 17, a student teacher for six years, said it helped her to better understand school subjects such as geography and social studies.

Jim Woods, director of the museum, supervises and instructs the student teachers. When Woods was in high school he spent many hours working with Herrett at his museum.

The concept was, as Herrett said, to have "children teaching children through drama and participation."

Hailey sets election date for local-option tax vote

HAILEY (UPI) — A special election will be held in Hailey May 12 to consider three local-option taxation questions already approved by city council members.

City Attorney Steve Bolter said Wednesday the council has agreed to impose a two percent tax on motel and hotel charges. In addition, he said, the council voted to impose two percent taxes on liquor, wine and beer sold for the drink and beer and wine sold for consumption off the premises.

Voters must endorse the measures by a two percent majority before the taxes can go into effect. Under Idaho law, local-option taxes are permitted in cities in which the principal industry is tourism if those municipalities are in counties with a population under 20,000.

Bolter said council members had considered holding the election on May 5, but Blaine County School District already had scheduled an override election on that date.

Bolter said "taking beer" and wine sold for off-premises consumption was "an extension" of the definition of "liquor by the drink." He said both Ketchum and Sun Valley already imposed the same taxes Hailey was considering, with the exception of the tax on off-premises consumption.

Science academy meets in Twin Falls for state convention

TWIN FALLS — Leading scientists from Idaho and experts from adjoining states will convene here at 1 p.m. today for the 23rd annual meeting of the Idaho Academy of Science.

Associate Professor Mary Ann Fisher of the College of Southern Idaho and current president of the Idaho scientists group, said theme of the two-day meet is, "The Earth in Moments of Violence."

Facts about earthquake and volcano activities will highlight the session, she said, featuring a number of specialists in these and other scientific fields.

Dr. David B. Siemmons of the Mackay School of Mines, University of Nevada-Reno, an internationally known authority on earthquake risk, will speak during a symposium today. He will also give a public address at 8 tonight in Room 117 of the Shields Building. Fisher said the symposium is open to the public.

Convention sessions will open at 1 p.m. today with the symposium and will continue through Saturday in the Shields building.

Other symposium speakers include Dr. Spencer Wood, Boise State University, speaking on earthquakes; Dr. Monte Wilson of BSU, speaking on volcanoes and Dr. Robert Schuster, USGS, Denver, Colo., discussing ground failure hazards. Siemmons will discuss plate tectonics.

Fisher said Siemmons was the principal geologist in charge of assessing earthquake risk on the Alaska pipeline and has been involved in many earthquake risk studies for major dams built in Idaho.

Another highlight of the convention, Fisher said, will be the selection of top graduate and undergraduate students entered in an academy sponsored student research competition. Papers will be presented during section meetings Saturday. Three cash awards will be given in both the graduate and undergraduate categories. The two first place winners receive honorary membership in the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Saturday afternoon's sectional meetings will include presentations by authorities in the fields of botany, chemistry, geology, physics, science education and zoology.

Fisher said while many of the convention delegates are from the scientific community, higher education in Idaho, many will also represent private industry.

Auditor: Twin Falls' present finances on solid ground

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The city's current fiscal foothold is firm, auditors told the Twin Falls City Council this week.

The auditors' positive comments needed dismal financial forecasts. The city staff presented at the council's weekly work session.

Given Idaho's 1 percent tax limit, no new revenue sources and no change in present services during the next five years, General Fund deficits will range from about $200,000 in 1982 to $1.8 million in 1986, city officials said.

But the annual municipal audit verifies the city's present financial picture is sound, said auditor Mark Holmstead of Evans Condit and Co. in Twin Falls. Holmstead commended City Finance Director Bruce Williams for his work and also praised the city's implementation of a computer system to streamline account management.

City Manager Tom Courtney said reasons for the financial soundness include the City Council's stipulation that expenditures and revenues will balance in any fiscal year. Other contributing factors are the council's avoidance of bonded indebtedness.

Courtney said, and recent staff reductions through reorganization of city services.

The auditors' recommendations included employment of an in-house accountant and refinement of the water billing system.

Staffing changes in the city business office have left a void, indicated Holmstead, who said retired City Clerk Edythe Koehn "was your accountant in prior years."

Holmstead recommended the city staff eventually include an accountant working under Williams.

Williams said he favors the idea as a long-range proposal. Courtney agreed a staff accountant is unnecessary at this employment of an accountant is something that was predicted able when we set up Bruce's office," Councilman Chris Talkington said. Last summer, the council consolidated the offices of clerk and treasurer and created the finance director's office.

Talkington said the office of finance director was established with the understanding the city would save the cost of 1 or 1 1/2 staff positions. For now, he said, the city would be best advised to supplement its business management with contracted accounting services, as needed.

Holmstead said customer complaints indicate a need to revise the water billing system. Presently, customers receive monthly bills based on quarterly meter readings.

Courtney said that for that situation some customers who receive hefty bills several months after their water usage has peaked. By then, he said, customers' awareness of heavy usage has diminished and the charges are unanticipated. Averaging monthly payments might be more acceptable, Courtney said.

Philly dumps Pacers, 96-85

Three more NBA mini-series continue second round tonight

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham is setting his sights on the Milwaukee Bucks, but he took time out Thursday night to pay tribute to one of his own.

"I'm sure he'll be Coach of the Year he deserves it," said Cunningham of Indiana Coach Jack McKinney after the Pacers eliminated the Bucks from the playoffs with a methodical 95-85 triumph. "I thought it was a heck of an effort on their behalf tonight. They could have quit when they were down by 12 in the third quarter."

"It's a reflection on their coach, who is a real competitor."

So is Julius Erving.

Philadelphia's All-Pro forward, a strong contender for league MVP honors this year, scored 23 points and Philadelphia led from start to finish to clinch the best-of-three playoff series in two straight games.

The 76ers advance into an Eastern Conference semifinal against Central Division champion Milwaukee, beginning Sunday in Philadelphia. The 76ers have the homecourt edge on the Bucks because of a better regular-season record.

"Tonight we were beaten by a better team," said McKinney. "We just don't have the overall ability to compete with a very good team."

The Central Division Milwaukee Bucks are up next, with the best-of-seven series beginning Sunday afternoon in Philadelphia.

Playoff competition continues on three fronts tonight. The New York Knicks, 90-80 losers to the Chicago Bulls, hope to even the series in Chicago. While Kansas City presses for a series sweep when it hosts Portland and Houston attempts a similar happening against visiting Los Angeles.

Los Angeles Coach Paul Westhead looks at San Antonio's Moses Malone and has one word for the big rebounder — awesome.

"Moses hurt us badly," says Westhead of Malone's opening game performance against the Lakers. "I look at his 38 points and that really hurts. Then I look at his 23 rebounds and I don't know which hurts more."

"The key Friday, just like in the first game," Rockets Coach Del Harris said, "is in containing L.A.'s running game. We didn't shut it off but we kept it in check and we want to do that again."

The series would conclude Sunday in California if the Lakers win tonight. The series winner plays the San Antonio Spurs.

Kansas City can sympathize with Portland. But don't expect them to.

The Trail Blazers, down one game in their best-of-three mini-series with the Kings following a stunning 98-97 overtime homecourt setback Wednesday.

With intense feelings, Twin Falls' Mitch Green concentrates on his next return as he battles with Jerome's Rick Cobb

Twin Falls drops 2nd tennis match

JEROME — Jerome handed Twin Falls its second tennis loss of the season Thursday afternoon with a 7-5 win on the Jerome courts.

Cool weather and wind made for some rough playing conditions.

The Tigers won both girls' doubles and both mixed doubles matches for four team points and added two wins in the boys' singles.

Jerome's Rick Cobb and Mitch Green of Twin Falls battled in the boys' No. 1 singles match and Cobb won a 5-7, 6-1, decision in one of the closer matches of the day.

Twin Falls' top singles player, Scott Guthrie, suffered a broken bone in his ankle and torn ligaments Wednesday, forcing him off the tennis court for an undetermined amount of time.

"He injured it playing soccer all things," Twin Falls Coach Clovis Johnson said. "He may be back later, but it has thrown a clincher into the program."

Johnson was pleased with the play of Mike Bittner and Stan Knapp, who form the boys No. 1 doubles team. Bittner and Knapp suffered a 6-2 loss in the first set to Jerome's John Wang and Brett Murrell before storming back for wins of 6-2 and 6-0.

"We're improving and keep plugging away and we hope to get that first win at Gooding," Johnson said.

The Bruins visit Gooding Thursday for their third meet of the season.

Without intensity, Bruins bomb 'Cats

BURLEY — The Twin Falls Bruins behind the hitting of Gary Krumm and Greg Tate, dropped the Burley Bobcats 14-3 Thursday afternoon.

Despite the victory, Bruins Coach Ron Watson said he felt his Bruins lacked the intensity of other games.

"We're getting guys playing defense and not hitting or the other way around," Watson said. "I suppose I should be happy with the win but I wasn't happy with the way we kicked the ball around on several occasions. Burley is a young club and making the mistakes young clubs make right now. But they'll get better and we'll have to play better against them at district time."

In posting their 12th win in 13 outings, the Bruins led the win with a six-run second-inning — on just one hit. They added five more on six walks and no hits in the seventh.

"You can see from that we didn't have a lot of offense," Watson said.

The six-run second inning had a two-run single by winning pitcher Brock Broden as the highlight while Burley contributed two errors and two

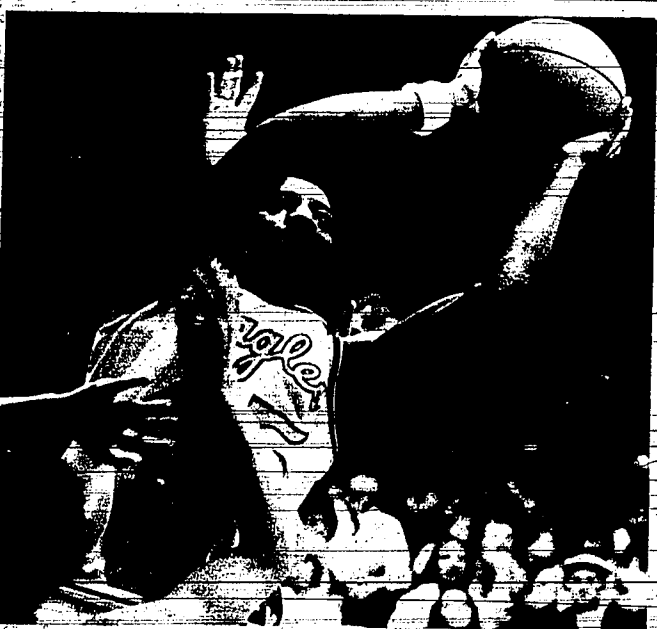

After an unearned run in the third, the Bruins got another solo run in the fourth when Thiemann belted a triple and rode in on Tate's second hit of the day. Krumm brought in a fifth-inning run and then came the six-walk, five-run seventh.

A pair of walks, a throwing error and Jeff Barrett's sacrifice fly got Burley's first two runs in the third. Singles by Katsu Nisshi and Mecham and an error added the final run in the fourth.

Twin Falls will entertain the Pocatello Indians in a p.m. Saturday game — State Conference game at Jaycee Field. Burley goes against Minico in a 100-mile marathon opening at 7 a.m. Saturday at Minico and continuing at 4 p.m. at Burley.

The marathon, based on subscriptions from private individuals for so much per inning, is expected to raise more than $1000 for the school's baseball program. A pitching machine will be used to protect young arms.

CSI's Michael Ingram uses the moves that lifted him to NJCAA's third team

NIC's Wiltjer on first CSI's Ingram named to NJCAA 3rd team

TWIN FALLS — Michael Ingram, the guy who made a winner of College of Southern Idaho, joined the Golden Eagle list of basketball All-Americans Thursday.

Ingram, a 6-5 sophomore transfer from Washington State, was named third team All-American by the National Junior College Athletic Association. North Idaho's Greg Wiltjer, 6-11 center, was named to the first team, and giving Region 18 two representatives.

"The day Michael Ingram enrolled at CSI was the day we became a regional contender with a shot at a national tournament berth," said CSI assistant coach Eric Hovey. "Without Michael, we would probably have been a 500 team. I think it's great he got this honor."

"He was our only sophomore starter and did a good job of helping our freshmen both with advice and the way he played. I felt that Michael gave us a lot this year and I think that maybe it wore him down a little mentally at the end. He didn't quite have the intensity he showed earlier in the season but he always gave us his best on the court," Hovey said of CSI's leading scorer and rebounder.

The Cambria Heights, N.Y., product came to CSI in September after spending his freshman year at Washington State.

"Michael was here because he ran into some grade problems at Washington State but he has applied himself academically this year," Hovey said. "I think he had a 2.5 or 2.9 for the first semester and it looks like he's going to have about a 3.3 for the second."

Ingram, who wasn't available for comment Thursday, currently is looking at three or four-year colleges to complete his education and intercollegiate eligibility. Florida A and M, Drake and Cal State at Fullerton currently seem to be the final three he is considering.

Men

First team: Fred Wiltjer, 6-5, Lincoln, Ill.; Orrell McArthur, 6-3, Hiram, Tenn.; Harold Jackson, 6-5, Roxbury, Mass.; Greg Wiltjer, 6-11, North Idaho; Eliot Weaver, 6-4, Tyler, Texas; Nelson Johnson, 6-4, Golden Valley, Minn.; Charles Johnson, 6-4, Midland, Texas; Petr Parks, 6-4, Ada, Okla.

Second team: Leroy Hilley, 6-4, Independence, Kan.; Willie Jackson, 6-4, Chicago, Ill.; Gary Hancock, 6-7, Neb. Western; Ivey Cook, 6-11, Fannin, Va.; Mike Ingram, 6-11, Lansing, Mich.; Terry Mead, 6-4, Tule, Nev.; Mark Dwyer, 6-4, Dorsey, Ga.; Geneville, Ga.; Jeff Tucker, 6-7, Gloucester, N.J.

Third team: Charles Green, 6-7, Cantonville, Md.; Earl Hayes, 6-5, Walker, Ala.; Al Mack, 6-4, Hubbard, W.V.; Lester Gill, 6-4, Beacon, Okla.; Peter Murray, 6-5, Fashion Institute, N.Y.; Haas Johnson, 6-0, Southeastern Iowa; Rory Glasco, 6-4, Cincinnati; Tech: RICHARD INGRAM, 6-4, SOUTHERN IDAHO.

Andy's and Quality Tile post wins

FILER — Quality Tile and the Andy's advanced in the winners bracket of the Magic Valley Outlaw Basketball Tournament Thursday.

The Andy's, behind the 28 points of Randy Hardy, dropped Heiss Charoia's Ranch of Jerome 53-47 to advance to the tournament quarterfinals at 2 p.m. Saturday. Earlier, Quality Tile, with Jeff Sherburne hitting 19, outlasted Buhl Tire and Auto 51-47 when pressure-proof Logan Parker hit a pair of free throws in the closing seconds.

In loser bracket play, Murtaugh, with Kyle Gunnell hitting 20, eliminated First Federal of Holey 67-43 despite 12 points from Darwin Brunning. Priest Trucking of Declo, headed by Rhett Matson's 13 points, dropped the Filling Station of Wendell 49-45. Candif Realty won by forfeit against House of Beans.

Action resumes at 6 p.m. today with Heiss Ranch meeting Buhl Tire and Auto. At 7 p.m., Quality Tile, which hasn't played since the first game of the tournament Monday, takes on Tom Hamilton CPA of Twin Falls with the winner moving on to the championship game. At 8 p.m., tournament-favored Ramsey's Heating of Burley goes against Quality Tile while Gem Equipment meets Murtaugh at 9 p.m. to fill the other half of the consolation finals against Priest-Trucking.

In a scheduling change, the winner of the Andy's at 9 p.m. Saturday, rather than 10 p.m. today as originally planned.

Thompson's plans unknown

By United Press International

Jason Thompson's bags are packed and he's ready to go. But, where he's going, nobody knows.

The status of the slugger's first baseman remained in limbo Thursday after a review by the commissioner's office of Wednesday's two-trades in which Thompson was dealt to the Pittsburgh Pirates then later to the New York Yankees.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn upheld the first trade in which Thompson was sent from the California Angels to Pittsburgh for catcher Ed Ott and pitcher Mickey Mordecai.

But, the second half of the three-team trade in which Thompson was sent to the Yankees for first baseman Jim Spencer, pitchers Greg Cochran and Freddy Toliver and a large sum of cash was not approved.

It was the cash amount which was holding up the deal. The Yankees paid in excess of $400,000 to the Pirates, an amount which was over the limit Kuhn has imposed on all player transactions.

It was not a good day for the Pirates. The club also learned Thursday that second baseman Phil Garner will be lost for from four to six weeks after undergoing surgery on an injured shoulder.

Garner, 31, had some unwanted tissue removed from his shoulder and also had a torn rim in the socket area repaired. He was placed on the 21-day disabled list.

In other developments:
 *The Houston Astros placed pitcher J.R. Richard on the 60-day disabled list as planned and pared their roster to 27 players by trading reserve infielder Mike Fischlin to Cleveland and sending catcher Alan Kestey, reserve infielder Joe Pittman and pitchers Gordie Ladson and Bert Roberge to the minor leagues.

*The New York Mets reduced their roster by three players by sending outfielder Dan Norman and pitcher Ray Scargare to their Tidewater farm club of the International League and shipping relief pitcher Billy Smith back to the Houston organization.

*The San Francisco Giants sent first baseman Rick Murray and catcher Dennis Littlejohn to their Phoenix farm club of the Pacific Coast League.

The Kansas City Royals optioned infielder Orix Conception, pitchers Jeff Twitty and Gary Christenson, catcher Jim Gaudin, infielder Tim Ireland and outfielder Dan Garcia to Omaha of the American Association and asked waivers on infielder Jerry Terrell.

In exhibition games Thursday, White Sox of Toronto, newly acquired Greg Luzinski of the Chicago White Sox and rookie sensation Howard Bailey of Detroit turned in outstanding performances.

Ushaw hit a pair of two-run homers to give Toronto an 11-9 victory over the White Sox; Luzinski, recently purchased from the world champion Philadelphia Phillies, had four hits for the White Sox.

Bailey, a southpaw who has been the pitching phenomenon for the Tigers during spring training, shut out the Montreal Expos on three hits in the six innings he pitched as the Tigers scored a 4-3 victory. Bailey, who has only two seasons of minor league experience, now has an earned run average of 1.29.

Lou Whitaker's bases-loaded single in the ninth inning gave the Tigers a club record 19th exhibition victory.

Duo shares PGA lead

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Bill Kratzert had a string of three straight birdies down the stretch Thursday to share the lead in the first round of the $300,000 Greater Greensboro Open.

Kratzert, who finished second here last year, and Haas, who played his college golf only 20 miles down the road, held a one-stroke lead over a group of five golfers — Lee Trevino, George Burns, Leonard Thompson, Larry Nelson, Doug Black and tour rookie Tim Norris.

Kratzert and Haas both said they played some of their best golf of the season.

Thursday's round was played under ideal conditions, with Wednesday's rain giving way to sunny skies.

Briefly in sports

Twin Falls will host youngsters

TWIN FALLS — Some 850 young bowlers will be visiting Twin Falls during the month of April.

The Idaho State Juniors Bowling Tournament will be held at both Magic Bowl and Bowldrome starting this weekend. The tournament runs each weekend with the final day of action being April 28.

Youths from seven to 18 years of age compete in the tourney and are divided into five groups based on their averages.

There are 800 single entries, 400 double entries and 202 teams in the tourney according to a spokesman Linda Klimes.

"They each bowl nine games during the tourney," Klimes said. "The high score wins."

The team competition will be held at Magic Bowl and while the singles and doubles will be held at Bowldrome.

Buhl gymkhana Sunday
 BUHL — The Buhl Jamboree team will sponsor a gymkhana Sunday at the Morrison Arena in Buhl.

Competition in several events will begin at 1:30. There will be two categories — one for 14-year-olds and under and one for 15-year-olds and up.

Main competition will be run in the breakaway roping, barrel racing, flag racing, pole bending, goat tying and figure eight racing.

Benefit games tonight
 HASEN — Hansen High School graduates from the years 1961-1966 are hosting two benefit basketball games tonight.

The proceeds will go towards helping pay the cost of Linda Bailey's trip with cancer.

The first game between the graduates of 1960-1971 starts at 6 p.m. The second between graduates from 1972-1980 starts at 7:30 p.m. Admission is $1.

All to battle Satan
 ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (UPI) — Muhammad Ali Thursday announced once again he has given up boxing — this time to fight Satan himself.

"Now my job is starting," Ali, the three-time world heavyweight boxing champ, told reporters at a hotel news conference.

"What I'm doing now is going to be bigger than boxing. Boxing is just to entertain you and make you know you're 'I'm challenging Satan himself.'"

Ali, in the Quad Cities for a benefit to support the investigation into murders of 21 black children in Atlanta, said he has devoted his life to religion and raising his children.

"I'm getting myself right spiritually. The older I get, the more and more I see I'm going to die," he said.

"Life is just an opportunity to get ready for the hereafter."

Rutledge testifies
 PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Kevin Rutledge, a former Arizona State University football player suing ex-coach Frank Kush, admitted Thursday he never underwent the verbal and physical abuse others claimed to have suffered.

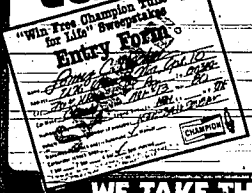

Rutledge, a one-time punter for the Sun Devils, took the stand following a parade of former ASU players who testified to repeated physical abuse at the hands of Kush.

Rutledge, under cross-examination, contended most of the abuse he suffered came in the form of insults.

The 21-year-old contends Kush and assistant coach Bill Maskill harassed him into giving up his football scholarship and that ASU officials failed to protect Kush properly.

The child who endlessly protests piano practice because of other interests may be better off without lessons. However, parents may successfully set practice routines.

SCALING MUSIC'S CHALLENGE

A practiced approach to grand performance

"Music is the thing of the world that I love most." — Samuel Pepys.

TWIN FALLS — Not all parents will hear their piano-playing youngsters utter the enraptured claim of 17-century diarist Samuel Pepys.

But several Magic Valley teachers maintain there is an array of alternatives likely to encourage children experiencing highs and lows in their commitment to lessons and practice sessions.

The child who endlessly protests piano practice is probably better off abandoning lessons, relieving his own frustration and that of teacher and parents, according to instructors.

However, teachers noted satiated students around age 13 sometimes reach a plateau where their interest in music diminishes as adolescence brings an array of new activities. Such students often enjoy renewed interest once they place activities in perspective, realign their schedules and receive the public recognition that comes with playing piano at church or school, teachers said.

Jeanne Larson, a Buhl piano teacher, said duets also help rekindle students' interest in piano because "music then becomes something between friends."

Teacher Margaret Vincent of rural Filer said students who suffer-waning interest with the advent of adolescence often experience a better morale if the instructor conveys her recognition of the young pianist's larger realm.

"I have to let the children know I realize they have a world out there that includes a lot of different activities," Vincent said. "If a student is on the basketball team and I saw him play well in a game, I talk to him about that," Vincent said.

Parents trying to help their youngsters over a music malaise should view the challenge in terms extending beyond the obvious question of a child's ultimate skill, Vincent said.

"Even if they never do anything else with music," she said, young students of piano "benefit from the mental exercise, the personal discipline and the one-to-one relationship with a teacher."

AGE SEVEN IS the average time children begin conventional lessons, teachers said, though it's not uncommon for talented youngsters to begin at four. Vincent suggests age seven for girls and ages nine or 10 for boys because she believes boys' attention spans develop more slowly.

Unless they're clearly precocious, said Twin Falls teacher Kelly Braliford, prekindergarten piano students typically use music lessons as a vehicle to develop skills nurtured during the first year of school. Among prekindergartners, Braliford explained, piano lessons sometimes lose their focus on music and become a means of instilling motivation and attentiveness.

"The initial burst of enthusiasm wanes more quickly among the very young," Braliford said. "There are exceptions, of course. Personally, I like to take children in the second grade, but I will make an exception if a parent tells me they have a youngster who is sitting down at the piano and picking out tunes."

Determining whether to enroll a child in piano lessons should entail more than just consideration of his or her age and whether the family pocketbook can absorb piano rental or ownership, several teachers cautioned. "Of key concern," they said, is the parents' ability to participate in the child's pursuit of music.

"If parents are going to make the investment in a piano and lessons, they've also got to allow investment of their time," Larson said. "Children do so much better if they have someone at home who takes an interest."

PARENTS SHOULD BE flexible in helping their children

Characters work well in convincing movie

By Roger Ebert

"Thief," directed by Michael Mann and produced by Jerry Bruckheimer and Ronnie Caan. Starring James Caan, Tuesday Weld, Willie Nelson. It stars

Michael Mann's "Thief" is a film of style, substance and violently felt emotion, all wrapped up in one of the most intelligent thrillers I've seen in a long time.

It's one of those films where you feel the authority right away: This movie knows its characters, knows its story, and knows exactly how it wants to tell us about them. At a time when thrillers have been devalued by the routine repetition of the same dumb chases, sex scenes and gunfights,

Movies

'Thief'

James Caan
Tuesday Weld
Willie Nelson

"Thief" is completely out of the ordinary.

The movie stars James Caan as a man who says he was "raised by the state" and spent 11 years in prison. As the movie opens, he's been out four years, and lives in Chicago. He is a highly skilled professional thief — a trade he learned behind bars from Okla. (Willie Nelson), a master thief. The film's opening sequence establishes Caan's expertise as he cracks a safe with a portable drill.

Caan sees himself as a completely "independent loner." But we see him differently, as a lonely, unloved kid who is hiding out inside an adult body. He's a loner who desperately needs to belong to somebody. He trusts his partner (James Belushi), but that's not enough.

He decides, on an almost abstractly intellectual level, to fall in love with a cashier (Tuesday Weld), and in one of the movie's best scenes he tells this woman, who is essentially a stranger, all about his life in prison and his plans for the future. She takes his hand and accepts him.

But there is another person who comes into his life: Leo, the master criminal, the fence who sets up heists and hires people to pull them. Leo, in a wonderfully complex performance by the sad-faced Robert Prosky, knows how to enlist Caan: "Let me be your father," he says. "I'll take care of everything."

He does. He even supplies Caan and Weld with an illegally obtained baby boy when they're turned down at the adoption agency.

But once he goes with Leo, the thief's life gets complicated. The cops seem to be on his case. His phone is bugged. Everybody knows his business. The movie leads up to one final caper, a $4 million diamond heist in Los Angeles, and then it ends in a series of double-crosses and a rain of violence.

This movie works so well for several reasons. One is that "Thief" is able to convince us that it knows its subject, knows about the methods and criminal personalities of its characters. Another is that it's so well cast. Every important performance in this movie successfully creates a plausible person, instead of the Hollywood stock character supporting characters we might have expected. And the film moves at a taut pace, creating tension and anxiety through very effective photography and a wounding, pulsing score by Tangerine Dream.

If "Thief" has a weak point, it is probably in the handling of the Willie Nelson character. Nelson is set up well: He became Caan's father-figure in prison. Caan loves him more than anybody, and when he goes to visit him in prison they have a conversation that is subtly written to lead by an indirect route to Nelson's understated revelation that he is dying and does not want to die behind bars. This scene is so strong that it sets us up for big things: We expect Willie to get out, get involved in the plot, and be instrumental in the climax. That doesn't happen.

Carpenter Shop features Heirborn in free concert

BUHL — Heirborn will perform in a free concert in Buhl Saturday, sponsored by the Carpenter Shop Coffee House.

Carpenter Shop director Matthew Engen says donations from various people in various churches in the area has enabled the Carpenter Shop to pay for this caliber of entertainment.

The Coffee House has live music every Saturday night in the Oldielow Hall starting at 7:30 p.m.

Due to the magnitude of this concert this Saturday night meeting will move to the junior high auditorium. The concert will start at 8 p.m. and the public is welcome to this free concert.

Engen says the only reason the Coffee House is in existence is to provide Christian Entertainment on the weekend.

"So far the response has been encouraging. It's not unusual to see 50 to 75 people between the ages of 16 and 25 enjoy each others company and top notch entertainment," Engen said.

Heirborn, a five-piece contemporary Christian Rock group from Spokane, Wash., will be presenting a concert of their original "music with a message."

'Angel' prepares for life after show's death

Q: Now that "Charlie's Angels" has finally been canceled, what will Jaclyn Smith, the only remaining original on the show, do for an encore? — D.L. of Greenwich, Conn.

A: Throughout her lengthy "Angels" tenure, Jaclyn has taken advantage of several outside offers to make feature movies, and she's likely to continue in that direction. Also, Jaclyn is in great demand to endorse various commercial products and she recently appeared in Chicago and other cities plugging a perfume line. Accompanying her these days is Jaclyn's current boyfriend, British cameraman Tony Richmond, who's being touted in Hollywood as possibly her next husband once the divorce from Dennis Cole is final.

WHERE ARE THEY NOW?: Well, 64-year-old Don DeFore, who was so great on the old "Ozzie and Harriet" TV series, is alive, well, and still memorable as Thorny, the genial neighbor to the Nelsons — Ozzie, Harriet, Rickie and David. We had reason to remember when we learned that DeFore, who hasn't made a theatrical movie since "Festa on Life" in 1960, is currently on location in North Carolina for a new feature, titled "Carumba." The film is being directed by none other than David Nelson, who's no doubt imparting the movie facts of life to DeFore.

Q: What's happened to Gita Lollobrigida? First the Italian screen siren said she was giving up acting, then she decided to be a still photographer, and lately she hasn't been heard from at all. — L.T. of Omaha, Neb.

A: Gina is the mercurial type, and she seems to change occupations as quickly as she changes moods. We caught up with her recently in New York. Lollo told us she's considering a starring role in a Broadway show to be produced by Alexander Cohen, and an offer to push a line of designer jeans — sheets, pillowcases, even jeans. Gina's photography career is on hold although she's still pretty handy with a shutter. But one point was obvious — At 62, Gina looks sensational, not much different from the days when she turned the heads of Humphrey Bogart and other Hollywood leading men on and off screen.

Gossip

By Robin Adams Sloan

FAYE'S BABY: Everyone was surprised when Faye Dunaway arrived on the scene with a baby boy. It is indeed a mystery since no one on either coast can remember noticing her pregnancy. A little heavy, yes, but eight or nine months pregnant no. Most surprised of all are some of the fertility doctors in New York whom Dunaway consulted when she was trying to get pregnant. The consensus of those experts there was that Faye was an extremely unlikely candidate for motherhood.

Q: Why doesn't Bob Hope resume making movies for the big screen? If George Burns can come back as a screen star, why can't Hope? — B.L. of Providence, R.I.

A: For a long time, Hope has wanted to return to moviemaking but just hasn't found the right vehicle. Just before Bing Crosby's death, Bob was mulling another "Road to" picture gently kidding the kinds of movies the two made years ago with Dorothy Lamour. Now, at 76, Hope seems to have gotten the right project — "Menage a Trois," in which Bob and David Niven team up as surrogate grandfathers of a 9-year-old girl.

Q: Edith Piaf is depicted in the Broadway production of "Piaf" as a basically shy, isolated woman who could feel lonely when out of her element. Can this possibly be a true perception of her character? — B.G. on the French Riviera.

A: Absolutely. During the 1950s, when the legendary, enormously gifted French chanteuse was booked for a succession of engagements at New York's swank, Versailles nightclub, she'd kill time between performances by playing cards with members of her band backstage. Incidentally, although Piaf (Parisian argot for "little sparrow") became the darling of Manhattan's most elite audiences and was constantly invited to the most posh social events, she invariably preferred to spend her days sitting in neighborhood movie houses. There she felt secure watching the screen for hours on end.

Q: That sexy vocalist Millie Jackson is creating a lot of fuss about some of the topics she's singing about. Are the lyrics actually "X-rated"? — P.W. of Detroit, Mich.

A: Millie has quite a reputation of addressing bold, raucous topics in the tunes she sings but the controversy over referring to involves the sticky issue of interracial dating and marriage. Millie is blunt in saying or singing that she feels black men should stick to black women, and vice versa. Millie says she knows her views might upset a lot of people but she says, "I had to say it." That, not so incidentally, is the title of her new record album.

Q: We know that Robert DeNiro had to put on a lot of poundage to play the Jake LaMotta role in "Raging Bull." Has DeNiro taken off the weight after the film? — T.S. of Bronx, N.Y.

A: DeNiro gained more than 60 pounds in a few months by altering his normally light eating habits so he could look like the bloated LaMotta. The 37-year-old actor would get up at 6:30 each morning, eat a huge breakfast that would be fully digested in time for lunch, followed by dinner at the usual hour. Emphasis was on pancakes, lots of bread, beer and milk. Since the movie, DeNiro has reverted to his old eating habits and almost returned to his usually moderate weight. However, when seen recently he still looked a tad paunchy.

establish practice routines, Vincent said. The mother of children who pursued advanced educations and careers in music, she said one of her daughters preferred practicing between 10 p.m. and 1 a.m. However, Vincent said, most children adapt best to practicing in the morning before school.

"It's very important that children practice at the same time every day so they do view it as a routine, as something that's an expected part of each day," she said. She also emphasized the value of parents sitting with a child at practice so he or she can find encouragement in the steady parental interest.

"The parents must realize they're going to have to make some adjustments," Larson noted. "A child needs a quiet atmosphere while practicing. The TV can't be on."

The Suzuki instruction method advocated by Nancy Phillips of Twin Falls dwells on parental involvement to stimulate a child's familiarity with music during infancy.

Under the Suzuki method, Phillips said, infants and preschoolers are exposed to music repetitively, theoretically developing an ear for it as they develop an ear for the spoken language surrounding them. For that reason, she said, the Suzuki method is described as "the mother tongue approach."

Skills in reading music are not introduced to Suzuki children until they have had extensive exposure to a musical environment, typically through listening to recorded music, Phillips said. The philosophy posits children, then experience more self-motivation because they have a foundation of music enjoyment.

THE IDEA THAT anyone can learn to play the piano generally is true, teachers said. "Equally true is the notion that some persons possess natural talent and some do not, several added.

Brallsford said music's multifaceted character often is the saving grace for students who apparently possess little natural inclination for music and experience wavering enthusiasm. But enthusiasm also can rise and fall among gifted children, she said, and they, too, can regain interest by altering their focus in music. Brallsford said it's hard for her to relate to the idea of a student being incurably frustrated.

"If a child doesn't like one thing, you can try something else," she said. "One of the challenges we have as teachers is trying to impart in students a knowledge of how vast music really is."

CSI-rehearsing 'Inherit the Wind'

TWIN FALLS — An unusually large cast of College of Southern Idaho drama students is now rehearsing for the upcoming production, "Inherit the Wind."

The play will be presented April 16, 17 and 18 in Room 119 of the Fine Arts Auditorium and is open to the public. "Inherit the Wind" deals with the famed "Scopes" monkey trial of 1925 in Dayton, Tenn.

The trial of young biology teacher John Scopes, charged with violating the state's law against teaching the Darwin theory of evolution in the schools, is the basis for the play.

The trial became front-page news around the country, bringing to a head the conflict of the '20s between liberalism and fundamentalism. It also attracted national interest by pitting two famous attorneys against each other. Clarence Darrow, who defended the young teacher, is given the name of Henry Drummond in the play.

Bret Shields of Rupert will appear on the CSI program as Defense Attorney Drummond. William Jennings Bryan, the prosecutor who is called Matthew Brady in the play, will be portrayed by Dan Mink of Jerome.

Other cast members participating in the gripping courtroom drama, include Walter Douglas Short, Karen Velasquez, Matt Frantz, Jennifer Bell, Jolyon Whaker, Barbara Borah, all of Twin Falls; Kathi Silver, Doug Starnes, Jay Mechem, Dustin Calhoun, Derek Marble and Michael Patrick, all of Jerome; Edward Reagan of Fairfield, Lisa Royal of Carey; Gary Gilchrist of Idaho Falls; Cheryl Schwab of Buhl; Cliff Hall of Kimberly; Robert Claude Ellis of Rupert and Laurel McKeever of Burley.

Directing the play is assistant professor of speech and drama Tony Mammen of Filer. Jennifer McClellan of Twin Falls is assistant director.

Tickets are available at the CSI bookstore and may be reserved by calling 733-9554, Ext. 234.

The play will be a theater-in-the-round production and seating is limited. Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1 for students and senior citizens. CSI students are admitted free with advance tickets.

Horoscope

Leo's find today ideal time to pursue goals but retain calm air

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good time to study the progress you have made and to make needed changes. State your views to influential persons who can be helpful to you. Be more optimistic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Morning is time for studying new outlets through which to expand. A direct course is the best to follow at this time.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Use an improved method where finances are concerned and gain benefits. Take treatment to improve your appearance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Come to the right decision concerning relations with associates. Be sure to spend your money wisely today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Get your work done early in the day so you'll have more time for social activities later. Use care in motion.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): A time to be calm while going after a personal aim. Take constructive steps to improve the quality of your life.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You are able now to get the support of associates in a new project you have in mind. Show others you have wisdom.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): State your views to associates early in the day and come to a fine agreement. Strive for increased happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Don't neglect to handle monetary affairs that are important to your welfare. Don't take any risks at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Study your financial status and find a better way to increase your income. Be wary of false friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Obtain important information you need in the right sources. Maintain a cheerful manner at all times today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Morning is best time to be vigorous and talk with key persons. Seek the company of congenials in the evening.

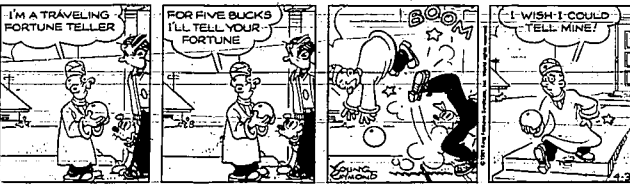

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Go after your personal aims in a positive manner and get excellent results. Take no risks with your reputation.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful persons who will adopt the right philosophy that could lead to a most successful life. One who will like music and religious subjects. Teach good manners early in life.

What's what

Lone Ranger, Tonto rode double first year

Maybe you didn't realize that the Lone Ranger and his true friend Tonto during their first year together always rode double on one horse. Swift as the wind they need, the Ranger bent devoutly toward his purpose, faithful Tonto perched on his back, cheek against shoulder blade, arms around waist. Then what with the Ranger's horse getting tired and public opinion and all, that thing changed, as all things do, and Tonto got his own horse.

FIRST TYPEWRITER

Q: You said Mark Twain was the first professional writer to submit to a publisher a typewritten manuscript. How much did Twain pay for his typewriter?
A: The sizable sum then of $125. Am now advised further it was the first typewriter ever sold, too. A Remington Model I.

Q: How much does world-famous heart surgeon Christian Barnard of South Africa charge for a transplant operation?
A: No charge by him. He's salaried by his hospital. The hospital bills the patient about $800.

Q: Quick, Louie, who's the only baseball player honored with an entire room at the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum at Cooperstown, N.Y.?
A: Who else? Babe Ruth.

AGE 30

If you are 30 years old, you were born the same year the 22nd Amendment to the Constitution limited U.S. presidents to two terms, the year Johnnie Ray popularized waltz ballads such as "Cry," and the same year Lucille Ball first went on television with her "Love Lucy" show.

The ancient Roman poet Ovid had this to say about baldness: "Aging is a field without grass, a plant without leaves, or a head without hair."

Writer Truman Capote is so pernickety about accuracy in his manuscripts that he refuses to let a secretary type even his final drafts.

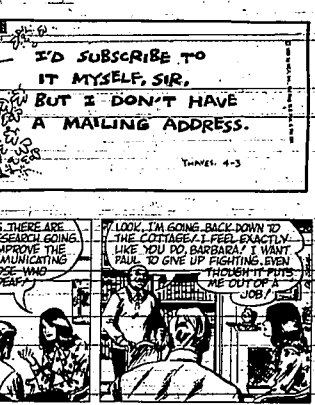

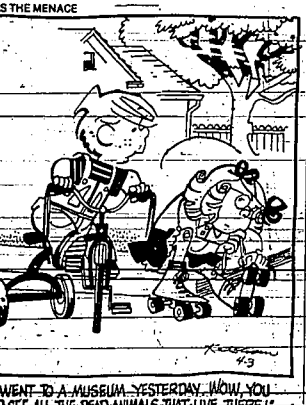

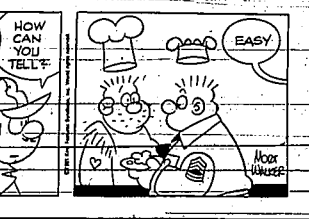

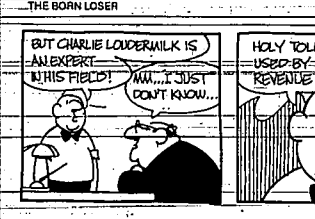

Seven out of 10 horses sold at auction go straightaway to the slaughterhouse.

Clint—here's to Gustave Bock, the European in Cuba who in the mid-1800s invented that little band that goes around cigars.

The Old West gunman Tom Horn charged ranchers $500 for each cattle rustler he shot on contract.

Dear Abby

Unappreciated wife wants just desserts on her meals

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for six years to a wonderful man. Although I have hinted broadly on many occasions that I would dearly love some acknowledgment of my cooking, I have yet to receive one word of appreciation for anything I have prepared since our marriage. I know he enjoys good food because he has monitored from time to time that his first wife was a great cook. I have baked cakes and pies from scratch, made gourmet dishes, casseroles, stews, pot-roasts and turkey dinners with all the trimmings, with many one "That was good, dear."

I am considering serving him dog food, scooped out of the can and garnished with a few steamed onions and a sprig of parsley, just to see if I get a reaction.

I know a man could have far worse faults than being totally indifferent to a wife who knocks herself out nightly in the kitchen, but one gets tired of buying groceries, planning menus and preparing fine meals for someone who never utters a word of appreciation. Sign me...

UNAPPRECIATED IN LONG BEACH

DEAR UNAPPRECIATED: A friend of mine had the same problem. In desperation she wrote the following message and presented it to her husband with his coffee after dinner: "The chef respectfully requests that you comment on the dinner you have just consumed. Would you rate it: Excellent? Good? Fair? Poor?"

"Failure to comply with this request could cause the dining room to discontinue its service."

Needless to say, she received a generous outpouring of compliments — and still does. Try it.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle a mother-daughter difference of opinion. Is it all right for a 16-year-old daughter to entertain a young-male friend in her bedroom with the door shut? The daughter says all they do is talk and listen to music.

HER VS. ME

DEAR ME: If I were the mother, I'd vote for the open-door policy. (Minimize the temptations.) If I were the daughter, I'd opt for the closed-door policy. (Maximize the privacy.)

However, rank has its privileges, so it's an open-and-shut case — with mother the victor.

DEAR ABBY: What should a man of 87 do with a collection of interesting old letters? I had over 1,000 until today, when I burned over 100. I felt like a murderer, but storage space is limited.

My children would not be interested in them, as most were from friends and relatives I knew before they were born. Some were from very distinguished people whose literary style was quite wonderful.

DEAR GEORGE: If your children aren't interested in these letters, perhaps their children or grandchildren will one day appreciate them. To burn such letters is to destroy a part of history. Offer them first to someone in your family. If you have no takers, give them to any interested friend.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a stamped, 10-cent, self-addressed envelope.)

Television

Money, ratings still facts of life

Tragedy mandates changes for network

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK—President Reagan is so big that the television networks that made us part of the event still are trembling.

Whenever such a monstrous act is the one with which John Hancock Hinkley Jr. now is charged explodes through the television tube, the multi-million-dollar orchestration of programming upon which the industry lives is thrown into disarray.

Cross-as-it may seem for executives to fret over schedules, in come and ratings when a president's life is on the line, the fretting is as necessary a fact of life as television itself. Even when the event is over, the fact, and its cost, remains and must be dealt with. For ABC, the shooting mandated a 24-hour cancellation of the biggest-Hollywood-gill-gramma-of-the-year Academy Awards presentations. But the Oscars weren't the only victims of the news event.

NBC looked over its schedule and, in its horror, discovered that a forthcoming episode of "Walking Tall" was to be killed. "It's a damn close for taste," the network decided. So that episode was shelved to await a calmer climate and a return on drug pushers was substituted.

ABC had an even stickier problem. It's new sitcom, "Greatest American Hero," has been doing well in the ratings. It was No. 15 last week. It's all about a school teacher who owns a clank that gives him supernatural power, when he can figure out how to work it.

The problem? The school teacher's name is Hinkley. Ralph, not John, to be sure, but ABC suddenly was uneasy about using the surname in connection with a show titled "Greatest American Hero." A network spokesman said: "In future episodes, still to be shot, the character will be known only as 'Mr. H.,' and that the name will undergo metamorphosis if the show makes it over into the next season.

Television and movies suddenly loom like Frankenstein monsters, their power far greater than that of their creators. Whatever they do, some few of the sick and demented who feel compelled to do so—a point that may have been grimly made Tuesday by Stuart Lorry, Washington managing editor of the Atlanta-based Cable News Network.

Lorry was first with the story that the attempted assassination of President Reagan may have been inspired by—the movie "Taxi Driver," in which Robert DeNiro threatens to kill a presidential candidate if Sybil Shepherd spurns him.

Lorry reported that two letters, mailed by Hinkley toedy Foster, another character in the film, indicated he was in love with her and threatened to assassinate President Reagan if she would not meet him. The plots of fiction, however bizarre, keep spilling over into real life. A medium capable, through instant replay, to show the shooting of a president over and over and over again.

And like anything else on television, the replay and the mad scramble to report the breaking story of a president's brush with death harvested Nielsen points.

In the 39-city overnight ratings, ABC won it with audience shares of 32, 33 and 37, respectively, in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. CBS was second with 23, 24 and 24, and NBC pulled third with 21, 19 and 22.

Cross it may be—hit like it or not, in television the scoreboard like the impact, just never lets up.
