Rain drenches Magic Valley

By BONNIE YAHVAH

TWIN FALLS — Just as many may have been enjoying outdoor Easter egg hunts Sunday, the skies darkened and rain drenched the area. Heavy rain and some hail were reported in Twin Falls, Jerome, Hagerman and Burley, but the downpours were apparently localized across the Magic Valley. "That's about as hard as I've ever seen it rain. It poured down where water was standing everywhere and we had a terrific runoff," said Louis Bulcher, a farmer located about five miles east of Twin Falls. The rain came down faster than it could be absorbed by the ground, Bulcher said. "I would say that the actual damage will be pretty minimal. If this would have come in another six weeks to two months — oh, I tell you — farmers would have been throwing their hats in the air." Bulcher said that several crops such as beans have not been planted yet, so the ground can be eroded. Grain and pea crops, which have already been planted, seemed to have weathered the storm without damage, Bulcher said. However, Bulcher said the rain will cause field work delays and he does not expect to work in the fields until late this week. "It's ponded and there are little lakes in some of the corners of the fields," Bulcher said. Don Arrington, who farms near Bulcher, said a crust has formed on some of his fields in which he has planted sugar beets. If the crust becomes harder he said he may have to plow up the field and plant beans there.

Arrington said sugar beets are tender and do not have the stamina to break through a hard crust. "We had 6 to 8 inches of rain standing in the road," Arrington said. "We weren't supposed to get this. I talked to the weatherman and it wasn't even in the forecast," Arrington said. Alton Bastow, of 1719 Falls Ave. E., said runoff water flooded his yard and ran into the basement of his home. About 2 inches of water crept 6 feet into his basement, he said. Bastow said a bigger drain is needed in the area and that his yard has been flooded before during rain storms. However, it has never been a serious problem, he said. "We're sitting here in the basement now. We got all the water out and it didn't even ruin our dinner," Bastow said.

Standoff in Nevada pen ends

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Two convicts with homemade knives took 10 people, including several gospel singers, hostage for five hours Sunday at the Nevada State Prison. They held them until they were promised psychiatric help. The standoff ended at 8:15 p.m. MST after John Slansky, superintendent of the century-old prison, talked with convicts Carlos Sanders, 21, and Albert See, 33, through a steel door on the second floor of a dormitory. Prison officials said the singing group, "The Parable Players," and the Rev. Al Fry, a non-denominational prison chaplain, had just completed Easter services in a two-story dormitory in an old section of the prison when the inmates made their move at 1:15 p.m. The incident began when one of the inmates pulled a knife from his boot-aid held it at the throat of Cathy Came, 16, a member of the singing group. Four hostages were released two hours later. When the remaining six hostages were released, guards rushed them to a waiting room where they held a reunion with their families. A spokesman said there was "a lot of hugging and kissing." Sanders, a convicted robber, and See, a life-term convicted murderer, at first demanded a helicopter for an escape. However, they later scaled their demand down to a transfer to the psychiatric unit in the nearby medium-security prison facility. "We were all scared and nervous at first," Fry said. Fry said that he and his fellow hostages "sang and prayed" during the ordeal. Alton Bastow, who said See played the guitar for the singers. Besides Fry and Miss Came, the hostages included the teen-ager's mother Nancy and father Carl. Don Robb of Incline Village, Melborn Motley, 75, the teen-ager's grandmother, James Walsh, his wife, Carolyn, and Dan Kelley. Their main gripe was that they were in prison, Slansky said. Sanders is serving a term for robbery in Storey County while See is under sentence of two consecutive life terms without possibility of parole for murder from Clark County. See had been under treatment in the psychiatric unit. Miss Came told reporters that she was "scared" when the knife appeared. She said she asked the convicts to move the knife away because "it was pressing against my throat — they did." Her father said afterward that the incident "makes us more determined to come out again" to the prison for services. "The Lord was there," Capello said. "It was a time of peace. They both accepted the Lord." Capello added that See "repented for his sins." All the hostages agreed the inmates were "gentle." A prison spokesman said the singers had just completed their service and prayer, and were packing their belonging to leave when the two inmates came in and acted like they wanted to help. The spokesman said Miss Came's mother offered to exchange herself for her daughter as a hostage. But then the other inmate whipped out a knife. Slansky said the turning point came when Sanders and See realized that prison officials were not going to provide the helicopter. He said that then their main fear was more punishment. This was the fourth hostage incident in the last five months at the 350-inmate prison, two miles from downtown Carson City. There was no trouble among the other inmates at the prison.

Good news today?

Economy strength measurement due

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government makes its official measurement of the strength of the economy today. Predictions are the news will be good. The Gross National Product for the first quarter of 1981 is expected to show an increase of 5.6 percent or better in the value of the nation's goods and services according to a top government economist. The figures will be of particular interest to the budget experts in the House and Senate. The statistics took place before the president's top office. However, months ago, many economic forecasters looking ahead to early 1981 saw an economy in big trouble, slipping perilously close to recession again. It didn't happen. The GNP for the first three months is expected to show more vigor and health than all but the most optimistic forecasters would have dared predict late last year. A hint of what is to come was contained in the so-called "flash" report of the GNP earlier this year, a highly tentative, unofficial estimate. It raised eyebrows by showing growth in the nation's goods and services at an estimated 6 percent. Then William Cox, acting chief economist of the Commerce Department, told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress he expects the GNP to rise "at more than 5 percent" in the first quarter. He told United Press International near the eve of the official reading, he sticks by his forecast. To put the figures in perspective, economists generally figure the 4 percent level is about the "break-even" point, where the economy is growing enough to provide jobs for all those entering the job market. Below that, unemployment starts to climb. Another comparison is provided by last year's economic performance during the recession. Planned for pulling the GNP into a minus 9.6 percent plunge in the second quarter. The third quarter of 1980 produced a recovery and a 1 percent growth in GNP. The fourth quarter reached a 4.2 percent growth.

Traditional Easter festivities mark day

By United Press International

Traditional Easter festivities brought out worshippers of the ward and wonderful Sunday. New Yorkers, clad in outfits ranging from the sublime to the ridiculous gathered for the annual stroll down Manhattan's Fifth Avenue. Church-goers welcomed rain at an outdoor service in Illinois, and the hardy faithful toed skis to a sunrise service on a Colorado mountain. Stylish, whimsical and occasionally bizarre, the mood among the curious who swarmed along Fifth Avenue to catch a glimpse of bunnies and other characters gone was contagiously frivolous as residents strutted about on parade. Jennifer Wagner, a book editor from New York, and her sister Margaret, a college student in Connecticut, said they rushed out Saturday to buy their straw bonnets — each with a large purple plume. "We used to get new Easter hats every year, but that stopped a long time ago. We do it for childhood memories," said Jennifer. American Altheist leader, Madalyn Murray O'Hair, in Salt Lake City to preside over the 11th annual convention of the national American Altheists organization, presented the counterpoint to Easter.

She described Jesus Christ, whose rising from the dead is celebrated by Christians, as a "superfraud" and scorned the famed Shroud of Turin, which many believe was Christ's burial shroud. And in New York the occasion was also looked upon as an opportunity to preach to the masses. "Don't let the devil tell you what to do. Convert!" preachers shouted as women strolled by in pink and purple and carrying parasols. In Southern Illinois, about 3,500 faithful weathered steady rain to attend the 45th annual Easter sunrise service atop Bald Knob Mountain beneath the 111-foot "Cross of Peace." The area was extremely dry during the winter and early spring and Ron Newbold of Murphysboro, president of the Cross of Peace Foundation, said no one was complaining about getting wet. "I think people were kind of glad it was wet," he said. The service was moved inside the concessions building under construction, but the overflow crowd spilled outside into the rain. Outdoor worshippers also endured drizzle and chilly temperatures in Denver. And in Vail, Colo., some of the 1,000 worshippers brought skis to the sunrise service on Eagles Nest. "They had to wait until 8:30 to ski down because the mountain isn't patrolled until then," said ski area spokesman John Goldman.

Castro assails U.S. policies

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — President Fidel Castro, in a speech Sunday, marking the 20th anniversary of the CIA-backed Bay of Pigs invasion, accused the United States of arming "genocidal governments" in Central America. Praising the "truly brotherly, truly exemplary" relations between Cuba and the Soviet Union, Castro warned against further American attempts to overthrow his regime. "Cuba is a hard nut to crack that could stick in the throat of the aggressors," the communist leader said. Dressed in his traditional garb of green army fatigues, Castro said the failure of the U.S.-backed invasion on April 17, 1961, was the turning point in Cuba's communist revolution. Speaking at the Karel Marx Center in northern Havana, Castro addressed a crowd of more than 5,000 people including Cuban Communist Party leaders and foreign ambassadors. American diplomats in the U.S. interests section in Havana, however, were not invited to the speech. Warning that alleged U.S. aggression is stalking Central America, Castro said "imperialism is arming the genocidal governments of El Salvador and Guatemala that have killed ... the best sons of those countries."

Easter

Prayers echo through ancient Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (UPI)—A cacophony of prayers in many languages echoed through Jerusalem's old walled city Sunday with Catholics and Protestants celebrating Easter and Jews chanting at the Wailing Wall on the first day of Passover.

For Orthodox Christians, the day also was the beginning of their Holy Week, which they marked with Palm-Sunday processions.

Police were out in force, setting up barricades to direct traffic through the Holy City, and the army was on heightened holiday alert against possible terrorist strikes. There were no incidents.

The weather was the warmest in weeks with temperatures hovering in the 80s.

More than 100,000 Christian pilgrims and Jews converged on Israel for the celebrations to mark Easter and the first day of Passover, which coincided for the first time in 28 years.

For Christians, Easter is the holiest day of year, commemorating Christ's resurrection from the dead, and for Jews Passover is a time to remember and celebrate the exodus from bondage in Egypt.

Easter services began at dawn as Ethiopian Christians, beating tom-toms and burning incense, set up a dark pink throne on the roof of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

Pope issues blessing

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope John Paul II extended Easter greetings to the world in 33 languages Sunday before an overflow crowd of up to 250,000 people in St. Peter's Square.

He appealed for world peace and an end to abortion. The crowd greeted the pope's reference to abortion with applause, the only interruption during his "Urbi et Orbi" — to the city and the world — blessing message, which was televised to 28 nations, including John Paul's native Poland.

After bad weather had limited the size of crowds during earlier Holy Week ceremonies, an estimated 235,000 to 250,000 people turned out in St. Peter's Square under sunny but cool skies for the pope's Easter mass and blessing.

Miners' kin attend services

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI)—More than 1,500 relatives and friends of 15 men killed in the Redstone coal mine explosion gathered in a flower-filled high school gymnasium for an Easter Sunday memorial for the dead.

The mourners, including 250 family members, appeared for the non-denominational memorial ceremony to pray and sing hymns in memory of the men who died in the Dutch Creek No. 1 mine Wednesday.

"Easter will always remind you of this tragedy," the Rev. Earl Jones of a local Baptist church told the mourners. "But, it will also remind you of God's endless love and the certainty that He made. We realize that there are few lives in a town of this size that have not been touched."

Central California shakes

CHINA LAKE, Calif. (UPI)—A minor earthquake followed by a swarm of aftershocks jolted Central California Easter morning, the U.S. Geological Survey in Washington said. Most area residents apparently slept through it.

The survey said the quake, registering 4.4 on the Richter scale, occurred near China Lake, about 120 miles north of Los Angeles and was felt in the Trona and Ridgecrest areas in eastern Kern County.

No injuries or damages were reported.

Basque throngs turned back

MADRID, Spain (UPI)—Police turned back hundreds of radical Basques driving into Guernica Sunday, and officers patrolled in armored cars with helicopters buzzing overhead to prevent a banned separatist demonstration.

Angered by the cancellation of a Basque National Day celebration scheduled to take place Easter Sunday in the historic Basque capital of Guernica, separatist demonstrators overturned cars to form street barricades and held marches in two nearby towns.

German unrest continues

BONN, West-Germany (UPI)—Terrorist sympathizers burst into churches across West Germany Sunday, forcing cancellation of Easter services and disrupting midnight mass in the fourth day of a spreading wave of violence.

Atlanta slaying toll now 24 after finding of boy's body

ATLANTA (UPI)—The body of a missing black youth was found in the South River of southeastern DeKalb County Sunday.

Police rushed to the scene to begin investigating the apparent 24th slaying of a young black in 20 months.

The youth was identified as Joseph Bell, 15, who was last seen alive at a neighborhood seafood restaurant the night of March 2. He was one of two youths officially listed as missing.

Bell was reported missing the next day, but was not added to the list of missing children until March 13 because he had a history of running away from home.

DeKalb County Public Safety Director Dick Hand announced that medical examiners identified the body as Bell, but details of the identification process were not immediately available.

Hand said the cause of death was not immediately known, adding that an autopsy would be performed today in an effort to determine the cause of death.

If the autopsy revealed that Bell's death was a homicide, he would become the 24th black youth to be found slain in 20 months. One child, 10-year-old Darlene Sims, who disappeared Sept. 14, 1980, is still missing.

Firefighters used a boat to recover the body from an area of the South River surrounded by thick stands of trees. An official policy of silence was clamped down at the crime scene, however, so details on how the body was discovered in the area were not immediately known.

Bell's body was the fifth one to be found in rivers in the Atlanta area. The body of two of the young black victims on the task force list —

Wilson predicted the Jerome area would receive about 10 inches of rain as well as hail and sleet. However, he said he did not think any damage resulted from the hail.

Rain was not reported heavy south of Twin Falls. William Laning, a 61-year-old farmer in the south of Twin Falls, said he only received a light shower.

"It's not muddy or anything. I suspect we got about 10 inch. It kind of settled the dust, but we've got some more rain on the way," he said.

"The show will have no impact on irrigation, but it will help us a little in the forage for cattle," Laning said.

Rain

The Twin Falls Police Department received numerous calls regarding street flooding and culvert drainage problems throughout the day. Steady rain which started about 6 p.m. produced additional minor flooding problems during the evening.

Warren Travis, manager of the Twin Falls Canal Co., said the Twin Falls canal, which runs east of the rose to 6 7/8 inches and was running bank full.

"We've got an other downpour like the one we had could set in some trouble," he said.

The main canal stem and other canals in the area were in no danger of overflowing, Travis said. Jerome County Extension Agent Jesse Wilson said, "We got a pretty 9-year-old Aaron Jackson Jr. and 13-year-old Curtis Walker were also found in the South River last November. Walker's body was discovered about a mile from where Bell was found. The bodies of three other victims — 21-year-old Eddie "Bubba" Duncan, 13-year-old Timothy Hill and 16-year-old Patrick Rogers — were found in another suburban river, the Chattahoochee.

Both Bell and Hill lived in the same southwest Atlanta neighborhood and there have been reports they knew each other. Meanwhile, investigators have picked up several people who resemble a composite of a man seen with one of the city's 25 missing and murdered young blacks but so far, none are considered suspects, Wilson said Sunday.

A source close to the investigation, said investigators have "got some pretty good people to look at" who resemble the composite given by a man driving a car in which Larry Rogers — the 23rd victim — was seen entering the day he disappeared.

"The police have picked up several people and I don't know that they've been eliminated," the source said.

"The feedback I'm getting is they're real good ones and they're looking at them real close. But we have to have something more than we have to call them suspects."

Falwell likes Reagan course

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell, head of the politically conservative Moral Majority, said Sunday — President — Reagan's administration has been "phenomenally successful."

Falwell also agreed that dealing with the economy should get top priority. "The budget issue is vital," he said in an interview on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation."

"The pork barrel is empty, the country is bankrupt," he said, adding that until a healthy economy is restored "we won't be able to address other issues" such as abortion.

Asked whether he felt disappointed that many of the so-called social issues his group embraces — such as an abortion — ban, permission for prayer in public schools and preservation of traditional family values — have been put on a back burner, he said he is not.

...gun control foe

He said Reagan supports these values and will address them as soon as the more urgent economic problems are dealt with.

"I hope not one day past one year will have passed before these are the primary focus" of the president's actions, he said.

Meanwhile, he said, "we cannot ignore the poor," and said he feels the nation's churches should move in to fill the vacuum which will be left by the proposed government budget cuts.

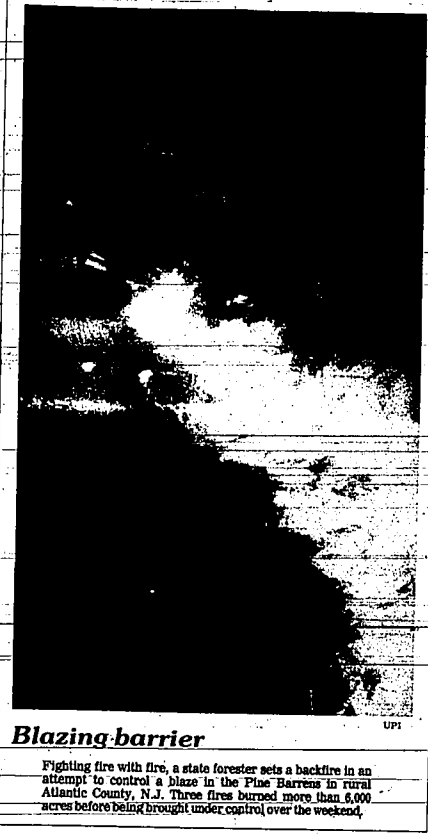

"President Reagan's first 85 days have been phenomenally successful," he said, "expressing particular pleasure in Reagan's appointments which he said were "in keeping with all the promises he made."

Asked about handgun control in the wake of the attempt to assassinate Falwell, he said his organization has no position on the issue but he personally opposes it.

"I don't think gun control laws would have disarmed (John) Hinckley," who has been charged with the attack on the president, "or the Mafia or other criminals," he said.

"The United States does not deserve its reputation as a violent nation, he said. "We are no more dangerous than other parts of the world," he said. "We are not as violent as others. Ours is still the safest nation on earth to walk the streets."

President expands schedule gradually, starts on speech

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, who privately celebrated Easter in the White House family quarters, will gradually increase his schedule in the coming days.

He will also prepare an economic speech he may deliver next week, aides said Sunday.

Reagan continues to show steady improvement in his recovery from a bullet wound to the left lung he suffered three weeks ago, aides said. His progress has been so good that Dr. Daniel Ruge, the White House physician, is no longer seeing him daily.

The president and Mrs. Reagan celebrated Easter in the family quarters of the White House. Rev. Louis Evans, pastor of the National Presbyterian Center in Washington, stopped by early in the afternoon to conduct a brief communion service for the Reagans.

The president has a few opportunities this week to make himself available to the press and public — something he has not done since the shooting.

Reagan's desire to replenish his strength and regain some of the weight he lost during his hospital stay have kept him out of public view, according to aides.

Today — the annual — White House Easter Egg Roll — a tradition dating back to the presidency of Rutherford B. Hayes in 1878, will be held on the South Lawn. Children eight years of age and under are welcome to participate as long as they are accompanied by an adult.

One White House aide said there were rumors Reagan may take to the South Lawn to join the likes of Bugs Bunny, Big Bird, and others as they mingle with the children. The aide said, however, the decision is Reagan's and none had been made as of Sunday.

As for the week ahead, an aide said Reagan will continue to hold one meeting each day with someone other than his chief aides, Edwin Meese, James Baker and Michael Deaver. That trio will now see Reagan twice daily, in the morning and evening, the aide said. Since the shooting, those staff meetings had occurred about once a day because his advisers and Mrs. Reagan did not want to sap the president's strength.

"I wouldn't look for him in the Oval Office," said one aide.

One item on Reagan's limited agenda is the speech on the economy. The president reportedly hopes to deliver it about the time Congress returns from the Easter recess April 27.

In his remarks, Reagan will be trying to make up for time lost in selling his program over the last three weeks.

Lyman rites set

WEST CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — Funeral services will be held Monday in Virginia for retired Army Brig. Gen. Charles B. Lyman, 52, a combat commander during World War II in the South Pacific and South China Sea.

Services are scheduled at Fort Myer Chapel, Va., with burial to follow in Arlington National Cemetery.

Crackdown follows refugee camp riot

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (UPI) — Confined Cuban refugees who overturned cars and threw more than 60 security officers will be locked in the camp, stockade once they are identified, authorities said Sunday.

The riot at the Fort Chaffee Cuban settlement camp erupted following the shooting of refugee Jose Maria Padron, 23, by a Federal Protection Service officer who claimed Padron was attempting to stab another refugee with a machete, said Charles Hughes of the Cuban-Haitian Task Force. Padron, shot in the chest, also turned on the FPS officer, Hughes said.

"We're still expecting to make some arrests," Hughes said. "We'll talk to refugees, try to find out why it happened and how to keep it from happening again."

The riot — one of a series of intermittent outbreaks at Fort Chaffee — fell just three days before April 21 anniversary of the Cuban refugees' sealift into the United States last year.

Of the 124,789 Cuban refugees who entered the United States, only the 2,700 still waiting at Chaffee — a former Army post in western Arkansas — have not been resettled. The atmosphere has been tense at Fort Chaffee in recent months because many of the refugees, constantly reminded by high fences and looped barbed wire they cannot leave the compound, realize they will never be sponsored.

Officials have said about 1,200 of those remaining cannot be resettled in American society because of mental and physical problems or criminal backgrounds.

Intermittent outbreaks at Fort Chaffee, the most recent of which occurred while many of the others huddled in another part of the compound to avoid the violence. Rain eventually dampened the refugees' anger, and the camp was quiet after the shooting.

Padron was reported in stable condition Sunday. A Military Police officer was treated at a local hospital for a facial wound caused by a rock, but Hughes said the officer was not seriously hurt.

"About 50 MPs received minor injuries — riot-related type injuries," Hughes said. "Another dozen FPS officers were hurt." "The refugees' frustration has erupted into violence several times, the most serious in a mass escape attempt that turned into a riot June 1."

Five refugees were shot, one stabbed and 36 others injured, including 35 refugees and 16 state police troopers. During the melee, 2,000 to 3,000 refugees armed with clubs roamed the camp setting fires.

Other incidents have been isolated. Two refugees have been stabbed to death by others since the first of this year. Officials have repeatedly confiscated homemade weapons.

Arkansas Gov. Frank White has been talking to Washington officials about what to do with the leftover refugees, but no solution has been reached.

Saudis expect U.S. early warning craft

NEW YORK (UPI) — Saudi Arabia expects the United States to sell it advanced equipment for its American-made F-15 fighters in a single package, together with five AWACS electronic surveillance planes, Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani said Sunday.

"We cannot be strong to defend ourselves, to defend our interests, which happen to be our own interests, without getting these planes," he said on the NBC program "Meet the Press."

Yamani said he was not aware of Reagan administration attempts to convince the Saudis to settle for the equipment for the fighters and accept postponement of the AWACS (avoid a political fight in Congress).

The Reagan administration reportedly fears it would not be able to get Congressional approval for the sale of the five electronic surveillance planes because of Israeli objections.

"We don't see a reason for postponing this unless you look for the Israeli elections, which would be interfering in Israel, to help Prime Minister Menachem Begin win the election," he said. "I don't think you intend to do that."

Recalling that Israeli planes sank the U.S. surveillance ship Liberty during the 1973 War, Yamani said Israel objected to Saudi Arabia getting the AWACS because against it was against "anyone having it."

The Reagan administration has agreed to sell Saudi Arabia the AWACS and equipment to increase the range and firepower of previously purchased F-15s as part of a strategy to head off a perceived Soviet threat to the Persian Gulf.

House budget chief to confront critics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said Sunday he intends to meet his conservative critics head on and "pepper them with facts."

Jones, House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas and House Ways and Means Committee chairman Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois were singled out last week by a conservative political action committee for defeat in their re-election campaigns.

Interviewed by the Cable News Network, Jones said there are "several cells in this kind of secret network of right wing extremist front organizations, and they work in concert."

Jones said conservatives will try to paint him as opposed to tax cuts, "and of course that factually is not true, and so we're going to counter them with the facts. This is the thing that they run from. It's like a ray of light that they can't stand, and I intend to pepper them with the facts."

He said conservatives also attack him, as being for less defense spending.

"The fact is that our budget provides for more defense spending, and we're going to say that," Jones said. "We're going to counter it head on. They will try to create through a negative campaign that there are some sort of give away programs being restored, and we're going to answer that with facts to show that's just not true."

Japan opposes 3-year lid on auto imports

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's chief trade negotiator said Sunday Japan will not consider more than a year of voluntary limits on car exports to the United States because it would violate the principles of free trade.

Rokusuke Tanaka, minister of industry and international trade, appearing on Japanese TV, said "it is unacceptable" to hold down Japan's car exports for a period of three years as demanded by some American officials.

export ceiling is against the principle of free trade, a point with which President Reagan agrees.

The trade minister added that Japanese export ceilings may not be necessary because the sales of American-made cars are likely to increase from their disastrously low levels of 1980. Despite Tanaka's refusal to accept export ceilings over an extended period, government sources said the trade ministry has worked out a compromise plan limiting U.S. shipments to 1.7 million in 1981.

The sources said the government would meet with representatives of the Japanese car industry following briefings by a parliamentary delegation which returned Sunday from talks in Washington on the car issue.

Lawmakers show disrespect for law

Perhaps familiarity breeds contempt among Idaho's legislators. Some of them are arbitrarily placing themselves above the rest of the citizenry and need to be brought back to earth. Symptomatic of the problem are those legislators refusing to pay their parking tickets. It was also revealed last week that several legislators have refused to swear to uphold the laws of the state.

And, during this past session, the Legislature did away with certain functions of state government without repealing the laws that created and even mandated those functions.

For example, the Division of Economic and Community Affairs, created by the Legislature only last year, was eliminated simply by eliminating its funding.

Legislators who refused to pay their parking tickets are off the hook with the city of Boise, since an unidentified citizen bailed them out last week to the tune of $115.

It was transparent during the whole session they were arguing for a special privilege. It was the Legislature's right to pass a law taking care of their problem.

The argument of Rep. Rusty Barlow, R-Pocatello, for continuing to refuse to pay 15 parking tickets was that the Legislature brings in a lot of business for Boise merchants.

Barlow was one of the legislators who decided it was also their prerogative to uphold or not uphold the rest of the laws of the state.

House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, says members of the Idaho House swear verbally only to uphold the U.S. and Idaho constitutions.

Representatives also are required by law to sign a written oath to uphold the laws of the state as well. However, those written oaths, deposited with the Idaho Secretary of State, were modified by a handful of legislators.

Those who scratched out the reference to upholding "laws" were Olmstead, Barlow, Rep. T.W. "Tom" Stivers, R-Twin Falls, Rep. Lyman Gene Winchester, R-Kuna, and Arthur Isaac, R-Mountain Home.

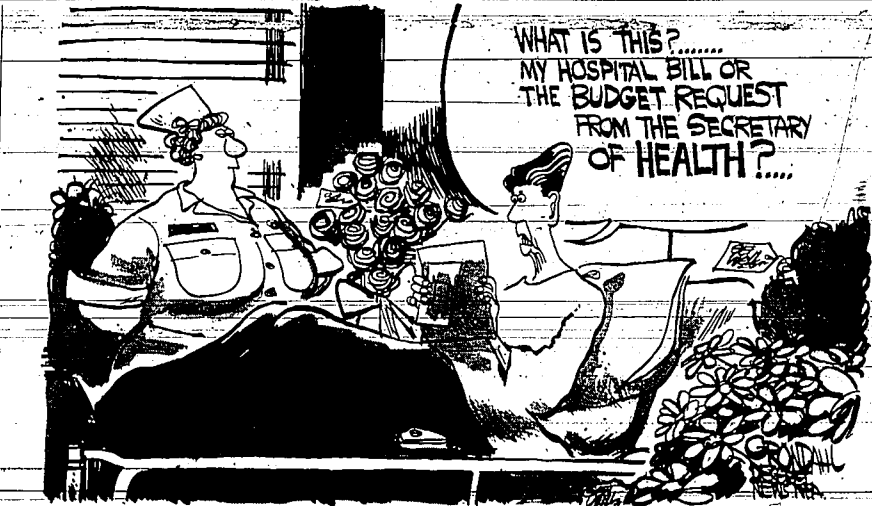

Their explanations make no sense. Stivers questioned how a legislator can swear to uphold the laws and then work at amending, abolishing and passing laws. But, since the Legislature is the branch of government empowered by the Constitution to make the laws, how can there be a conflict?

"A number of times legislators are obligated to not follow the law," Olmstead explained. As an example he cited a law, which was repealed this last session, requiring lawmakers to introduce appropriation bills by the 45th day of the session — a deadline that has rarely been met.

Even so, would Olmstead agree that at times citizens are also not obligated to follow the law? It is doubtful.

Barlow and Winchester explained their action by saying that some laws are unconstitutional. But that is a determination for the courts to make. All Americans have the obligation to uphold the laws until they are ruled unconstitutional by the courts or changed by the Legislature or Congress.

Idahoans deserve better from their elected representatives. They deserve legislators who will treat the law with respect and not put themselves above it.

Heating thy neighbor's house

BOISE — What if someone moved into a new home next door to you and told you this: "I'm putting in a $6,000 furnace to heat my new home. I can't afford a $8,000 furnace so I want you to help pay for it."

How much would you give your new neighbor to pay for his furnace?

It sounds ridiculous. But you are paying—as part of your electric bill—the cost of providing heating for about people's homes. Every time a new customer hooks up to electric heat, you are paying part of the cost.

You and other customers of Idaho Power Co. are paying a multi-million dollar subsidy each year to supply electric heat to new customers.

It costs about $5,500 to $8,000 to build the portion of a new power plant required to serve each residential electric heat customer. In addition, there is the cost of interest at high rates, for money borrowed to build the plant.

You get to pay for both the electric energy supply for the new electric heat customers, and the interest on money borrowed to build the power plant.

Since 1975, Idaho Power Co. rates have risen by 80 percent. The company is before the Idaho Public Utilities Commission for another rate increase. Yet another increase is promised before the end of 1981.

The biggest reason for rising electric rates is the cost of building new power plants and power lines to serve new customers. Traditionally the total cost of serving new loads, or increased loads, has been shared by all the customers of the utility.

In the past few years, the largest source of increasing demand on the company's system has been electric heat. Most new homes have electric heat. And people with other heating systems are still converting to electric heat.

Electric heat is extremely expensive for the utility to supply. After all, you could buy a natural gas furnace or a wood stove, for a lot less than $5,500 to $8,000. Chances are, if the people hooking up for electric heat had to pay the actual cost of service, most people would choose another source of heat.

But they haven't been paying it. They have paid very little of it. Most of the cost has been assigned to the utility's other customers. The PUC has recognized that this is poor policy. Concealing from potential customers the real cost of service encourages the use of electric heat. Because of the enormous cost of building power plants to provide electric heat, this imposes a heavy burden on the utility, and on other customers.

There is no way the PUC can avoid giving the utility frequent large rate increases — if all the customers are forced to subsidize the high cost of the expanding electric heat load.

So the PUC adopted a hookup charge of $50 per kilowatt of demand for new electric heat loads. It requires seven kilowatts to serve a new electric heat system, the hookup charge is $350.

This is a substantial cost. It still is only a fraction of the actual cost of building a portion of a new power plant to serve that load. The actual cost for new plants that will be coming on line is more like $800 per kilowatt.

The $50 charge still leaves more than 90 percent of the cost of the new electric furnace to be borne by other customers.

Oregon's public utility commission looked at the same issue and came up with a $400 per kilowatt charge.

Even the $50 per kilowatt charge adopted by the Idaho PUC is being challenged. The PUC is being asked to reverse its position.

The hookup charge is clearly justified. It is also consistent with free market, competitive economic theory. Electric heat ought to be priced at its real cost. Then people can make a rational choice based on economics. Use of electric heat should not be encouraged by pricing it artificially low, and forcing others to pay a huge subsidy.

One alternative to electric heat, in most communities, is natural gas. Natural gas is in good supply in Idaho. Recent articles in national magazines suggest that the nation's total supply is likely to increase sharply. Drilling deeper than traditional depths has produced a rash of gas discoveries. Gas is being spoken of as the primary "energy bridge" to an era of solar energy.

It is time to end the huge subsidy to electric heat hookups. The $50 per kilowatt charge should not be abolished. It should be increased.

Cutting heart out of U of I

Editor, Times-News:
I am a junior at the University of Idaho, and I am seeing first-hand the reduction of this fine institution to pauper's status, and handcuffed by lack of funding. I am seeing the literal evisceration of vital programs at this university, and I am seeing esteemed faculty members who have given a greater part of their lives to Idaho education living in fear because they have been threatened with dismissal due to lack of money for salaries. This is a shame. In the past few years, I have seen higher education in Idaho make real progress, and our colleges and universities are fast becoming national leaders in such areas as Pharmacy at Idaho State University, Business at Boise State University and Engineering and Music at the University of Idaho. The research done by the U of I agriculture department is becoming world renowned, and they are working to develop new and better ways of farming, which is the very lifeblood of Idaho. But now there is a very real possibility that these programs and these services that we so often take for granted will be snuffed out overnight because of the whims of our elected officials. The students are suffering, too. Fees are going to increase $200 per year starting next fall, and many of us are not sure where classes we need to graduate will even be offered. The situation is grave. The state of Idaho ranks 50th in the nation in education, and the Idaho Board of Education was forced to declare a state of financial emergency due to the actual cost of Idaho education. That is a cop-out by the Legislature.

There is something we can do, and the time to start is now. We can write or call our legislators and share our feelings with them. Elections are not far off, and we should vote for those people who will best serve the people of Idaho.

I have had legislators tell me that they are merely cutting the "fat" out of Idaho education. That is a cop-out as well as being a lie. How can you cut fat out of a system that ranks dead last in the United States? Our legislators are not cutting out the fat in Idaho education; they are cutting out the heart and only you can stop this. As a proud native Idahoan, I urge you to take a stand and insist that our colleges and universities remain highly respected institutions of learning instead of the wantonly mutilated corpses they are fast becoming.

What value in printing Hemingway's hate letters?

© The Washington Post Company
WASHINGTON — Somer or later, a ready pen and a blank piece of paper awakens the fiend that sleeps in most of us, and we write intemperate letters. The cause is usually personal pique rather than public-spiritedness. As has been said, it is a pity that people resent insults more than failures. If you are wise, you enjoy the catharsis of writing it, but won't mail it. If you mail it and are fortunate, the recipient will not wait until you die and then publish it, injuring your reputation and perhaps causing pain to others. Ernest Hemingway was not fortunate. So if you have a thick wallet and thick forearms, you can pick up

"Ernest Hemingway: Selected Letters, 1917-1961" (921 pages, $27.50). In it, you will find various letters containing injunctions such as "Never mention any of this to anyone. Bury all this," and "This is only for your information." There is a childish vituperative letter to Cardinal Spellman. A biographer of Hemingway, A.E. Hotchner, who has reviewed this volume of letters for New York magazine, was with Hemingway in Cuba when Hemingway stormed into his study and rattled off this letter, which he presented to me to read. "It's not for sending," he said, "it's for the letting-off-steam" me. Although never mailed, it has now been published. To an editor at his publisher, Scribner's, Hemingway wrote: "I think you or the family should take great care that nobody gets hold of (my letters) . . . The personal letters are often libelous, always indiscreet, often obscene and many of them could make great trouble." And great pain. Hemingway never met the late James Jones, author of "From Here to Eternity," but Hemingway wrote to Charles Scribner about Jones: "I hope he kills himself as soon as it does not damage his or your sales . . . He has the psycho's urge to kill himself and he will do it." In another letter Hemingway calls Jones a "whimpering neurotic" and "an coward" and wish him no luck at all and I hope he goes out and hangs himself as soon as possible." Hotchner wonders how Jones widow and children will feel about such letters. I wonder what interest is served by publishing them — what interest sufficient to justify the costs involved in disregarding the desires of the dead and increasing the feelings of the living. What interest beyond "the public's right to know" — a right, frequently invoked but rarely defined by those (publishers and journalists) whose commercial and professional interests are served by invoking it. Publication of these letters was authorized by Hemingway's widow, Mary, who, Hotchner suggests, might rethink the matter of discretion in publishing it. Hotchner published some of Hemingway's letters to which which refers to Mary. ("In lots of ways she reminds me of Leo Durocher . . . I have never seen her be kind except to servants.") As Hemingway said, "In a letter there is not the time you can be just." Hemingway is but the most recent victim of an emphatic, almost aggressive, disregard for discretion. In his last will, Somerset Maugham, who had good reasons, expressed the wish that there be no biography of him, and asked that his letters be destroyed. Obviously, no one can legislate from the grave against the writing of biography, and he who wants private correspondence to remain private should see to the destruction of it before he dies. But it was crummy of Maugham's literary agent to disregard Maugham's wish and help bring into being a 711-page biography. Another "friend" gave the biographer, 600 letters. In a prefatory note, Maugham's agent wrote that "many people may think I acted wrongly," but he rationalizes what he did on the ground that the biographer did not "pass any moral judgment" on anybody. Even were that true, which it is not, it would be beside the point. It may be that Maugham had the sort of "friends" he deserved, but that, too, is beside the point. The point is that it is not nice to cause unnecessary pain, or to violate the wishes of the dead, just to satisfy the curiosity of the reading public. When Henry Stimson was secretary of state (1929-33), he said of attempts to crack other nations' diplomatic codes: "Gentlemen do not read each other's mail." The standard must be bent for reasons of state. But not for reasons of commerce, or literary voyeurism.

Washington Post explains duping in 'journalistic felony'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Post devoted nearly four pages Sunday to a detailed report of how it was duped by a young reporter into committing a "journalistic felony" — printing a fraudulent story that won a Pulitzer prize.

A step-by-step account by Post ombudsman Bill Green traced "Jimmy's World," the supposed story of an 8-year-old heroin addict, from the hiring of reporter Janet Cooke to the return of the Pulitzer it won last week in the feature writing category.

"There's enough blame to go around," Green wrote in his 12,000-word reprisal.

"Ben Bradlee, the executive editor, was wrong, and Howard Simons, the managing editor, was wrong. Beginning, of course, with Janet Cooke, everybody who touched this journalistic felony — or who should have touched it and didn't — was wrong. "It was a complete systems failure, and there's no excuse for it."

JANET COOKE
"consumed by ambition"

But in summing up, Green also said:

"To believe this mistake, big as it was, challenges the honesty of any other story in the Post or any other newspaper's overreaching. There is no 'official' whatsoever that this kind of thing is tolerated at this paper."

Green said the Post gave only a " cursory" background check to Ms. Cooke — a 26-year-old black described by one colleague as "consumed by raw ambition" — and editors may have granted her a job speedily because of minority hiring pressures.

He also suggested intense newsroom pressure for sensational, page one material blinds management to necessary caution and may inspire reporters to stretch the facts.

And, Green said, staff members who doubted the story from the first either kept their own counsel, or saw their reservations dismissed as jealousy.

A key turning point, Green said, was when Ms. Cooke was promised anonymously for her sources.

"The vulgar of journalism lay exposed — the faith an editor has in place in a reporter," he wrote, adding later: "This business of trusting reporters absolutely goes too far. Clearly it did in this case."

As ombudsman, Green serves as the Post's internal critic. He stressed he was "invited" to review the Cooke-Pulitzer incident, and received full cooperation from the staff.

However, Ms. Cooke, who resigned last Wednesday — two days after the Pulitzer was announced — refused to speak with Green.

The review detailed how Cooke was hired at the Post, one of the nation's leading newspapers, despite phony claims on her job resume. It traced the development of the story of Jimmy, who was exposed as a "composite" figure, and the eventual collapse of the myth as the cracks in Cooke's background widened to shatter her credibility.

In the beginning, Green said, executive editor Bradlee was impressed with Ms. Cooke's resume, which claimed she was a graduate of Massart College, attended the Sorbonne in France and spoke several foreign languages. She so impressed those who interviewed her, he said, "the usual check of references was done in a cursory manner."

"She was a striking, smartly dressed, articulate black woman, precisely the kind of applicant editors welcome, given the pressures to hire minorities and women. And she could write," Green said.

Vivian Apin-Brownlee, the Post editor for whom Ms. Cooke initially worked, said the young reporter "was consumed by blind and raw ambition."

Ms. Apin-Brownlee was one of the first to doubt the Jimmy story, Green said.

"I never believed it, and I told Milton (Coleman, city editor) that, in her eagerness to make a name she would write farther than the truth would allow," she said.

"When challenged on facts in other stories, Janet would reverse herself, but within a day or two, or conversation," Ms. Apin-Brownlee told Green. Bob Woodward, assistant managing editor of the metropolitan staff and who, along with Carl Bernstein, exposed Watergate, told Green he was inclined to dismiss doubters.

Green quoted Bradlee as saying, "Nobody ever came in this room and said, 'I have doubts about the story' — before or after publication — and nobody said someone else had misgivings about the story."

But reporter Courtland Millroy, who worked with Ms. Cooke doing follow-up work after the Sept. 28, 1980, publication of "Jimmy's World," expressed his doubts early to city editor Coleman. Coleman told Green, "I thought part of his doubting must be jealousy."

Chicago offices, car 'hot'

Bugs 'stun' school chief

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ruth B. Love, who knew the game was hardball as superintendent of Chicago's racially divided school system, says even she was "stunned" to learn her offices and telephones were bugged.

But Miss Love, the first black woman to hold the top job in the nation's third-largest school system, said she refuses to be intimidated after the electronic eavesdropping devices were found in her offices and the telephone in her board-provided automobile.

"I was stunned," she said Saturday in revealing the bugging devices. "One could become very paranoid, but I don't intend to change my style. It's an invasion, of rights and it has to be dealt with."

Miss Love, the former Oakland, Calif., superintendent who assumed her Chicago duties March 25 at a yearly salary of $120,000, said she believed "disgruntled" board employees might be responsible for the bugging.

The FBI said it would begin an investigation immediately. Police Superintendent Richard J. Brzezczek said his office also would investigate the matter if summoned.

The intensely security-conscious Miss Love, saying "I'm not a sheltered child," had ordered an April 9 sweep of her Board of Education office and a frequently used conference room.

She said the investigator also told her that her car was "red hot." She said it was unclear if the bugging devices had been planted especially for her, or also had been used to tap conversations of her predecessors.

Ford to dedicate library

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Former President Gerald R. Ford will reconvene his Cabinet next week for a round of domestic and foreign policy discussions during the dedication of his presidential library.

The two days of ceremonies April 27-28 for the Gerald R. Ford Library will bring the former president back to his alma mater, the University of Michigan.

The $4.2 million library, on the university's north campus, holds some 15 million pages of documents plus photographs, film and tape pertaining to Ford's term as the 38th President.

Agnew trial set Tuesday

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Trial begins Tuesday in a taxpayer suit seeking to force former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to return $200,000 in kickbacks he allegedly received as governor of Maryland.

Though Agnew himself will be noticeably absent from the trial, it likely will shed new light on the kickback scandal that forced him to resign as vice president.

Circuit Judge Bruce Williams ruled Agnew's testimony would not be required in the suit, filed by three Montgomery County taxpayers who filed the suit as part of a law-school project on legal activism.

But Agnew's attorney has been ordered to supply the tax settlement Agnew made after pleading no contest to federal income tax evasion charges and resigning as vice president in October, 1973.

Suspect awaits 2nd hearing

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Leo Kelly Jr., charged with the shotgun slayings of two fellow college students, will have a second court hearing at which his attorney will seek a psychiatric examination for the "very sick boy."

Kelly, 22, of Detroit, was held without bond Sunday in the Washtenaw County Jail on two open counts of murder in the Good Friday firebombing and shootings at a University of Michigan dormitory.

Kelly's father, Leo Sr., a heavy equipment operator, visited his son at the jail and said, "I'm so sorry. I just can't understand it."

establish a motive for the early morning incident in which Edward R. Slink, 19, of Detroit, and Douglas C. McGraham, 21, of Caspian, were cut down in the hallway as they ran to warn other students of the fire.

But George Parzen, the Ann Arbor attorney representing Kelly, said the young man "can't believe what happened."

"We still haven't decided what we're going to, but we're probably going to plead temporary insanity," said Parzen, who spoke with the 1977 honors graduate of Detroit's Cass Technical High School for two hours prior to his arraignment Saturday.

"I believe he's a very, very sick boy. He knew the victims casually, but there was no intent to kill them specifically. He's very remorseful."

Kelly was arraigned before 14th District Judge Kenneth Bronson, who granted a second hearing Monday at which Parzen will request psychiatric testing and a date for preliminary examination will be set.

Assistant Washtenaw County Prosecutor Lynwood Noah said police recovered a gas mask, a second gun and some ammunition along with the sawed-off .12-gauge shotgun believed to be the murder-weapon in Kelly's room, from which he fired the fatal shots.

Notice to Telephone Customers

WE ARE PROPOSING CHANGES IN THE RATES FOR INTERSTATE SERVICES.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, consistent with action by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), has filed a new schedule of rates which increases charges for all Long Distance calls made out-of-state within the Continental U.S., and for all calls between the U.S. and Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands, and for certain calls between the U.S. Mainland and Hawaii and Alaska.

The new schedule provides for a uniform increase of 16 percent for most interstate services in accordance with the FCC decision authorizing a 12.75 percent rate of return. AT&T has requested permission to implement the new schedule five days after the effective date of the FCC's decision. This increase is needed because of higher costs resulting from inflation and is only the second general rate increase in the last five years.

Rates for the following Interstate Services will be increased by the same percentage:

- All Interstate Long Distance Calls — Within the Continental U.S. — Between the U.S. and Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands
- Most Private Line Services
- Facilities for Other Common Carriers

- Interstate Wide Area Telecommunications Service (WATS) — Within the Continental U.S. — Between the U.S. and Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands
- All VHF Maritime, Coastal Harbor, High Speed Train, and Air-Ground Services.

In certain cases rates for Long Distance Service and WATS between the U.S. Mainland and Hawaii and Alaska will also be increased.

THE FOLLOWING EXAMPLES ILLUSTRATE THE NEW RATES APPLICABLE FOR LONG DISTANCE INTERSTATE CALLS.

Dear Abby

Are Indians superior at lovemaking?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old man who's in love with a beautiful, 28-year-old divorcee. I want to marry her, but she keeps wanting more time to think it over.

In the meantime, she's seeing another man, and I'm afraid he has the edge on me. You see, he's part Kickapoo Indian, and 4 her In-Indians are superior to the white man when it comes to lovemaking. Closely guarded tribal secrets on how to satisfy a woman are passed down from father to son. If there is any truth to that, I'm willing to pay whatever is necessary to find out.

Let me say that I was married for four years, and I never had any complaints from my wife, but if Indians are better lovers than white men, I would like to find out why.

Maybe your readers can help. Thank you.

DEAR ED: I wouldn't touch your request with a 10-foot teardrop pole. But you can try the Bureau of Indian Affairs or the American Indian Movement.

DEAR ABBY: My husband of 26 years is my problem. We have six daughters whom he teases until they are in tears and nearly hysterical. He pretends that his tickling, pinching and slapping (hard) on the rear are done in the harmless spirit of playfulness, but he actually hurts them. The girls, who are from 5 to 22 years old, frequently spend their evenings in their rooms so they won't have to put up with his teasing.

Abby, could his actions have sexual overtones? He and I have not had sexual relations in 3 1/2 years — he's either "too tired" or not in the mood. I think Dad is getting his jollies from teasing his daughters. What do you think?

— DISGUSTED IN OHIO
DEAR DISGUSTED: I think you hit the nail on the head. Dad's masked cruelty is bound to influence his daughters' feelings toward men and their future relationships with them. Dad needs a psychiatric consultation for his sake as well as his daughters'.

DEAR ABBY: Some years ago I had a partial laryngectomy, which left me with only 10 percent of one vocal chord. As a result of this, my voice, especially on the phone, sounds like something between a croak and a whisper.

I'm fed up, angry and often enraged when I make a telephone call and the person who answers the phone impatiently asks me to speak up, or worse yet, accuses me of trying to be "funny" or making an obscene phone call.

Please publish this letter, Abby. There are many others with speech impediments who need the understanding of thoughtful strangers who jump to the wrong conclusion when they hear us on the phone.

— MR. CROAKER
DEAR MR. CROAKER: You could save yourself much hurt and anger if you were to begin every phone conversation with, "Hello, my voice is a little hoarse. I've had throat surgery and it's sometimes difficult to understand me, so please be patient." Try it, I'll bet it works.

You're never too young or too old to learn how to make people like you. Get Abby's new booklet of practical advice. Send $1 and a stamped (35 cents), self-addressed envelope to: ABBY, Popularity, 122 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Dr. Lamb

Girl frightened when her heart dips

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am an 18-year-old girl. For two years I have had heart palpitations. My heart seems to almost stop or take a dip, or else it jumps up to my throat.

These palpitations are usually accompanied by tingling sensations down to my toes. I have gone to our family doctor and he has had X-rays and an EKG taken along with my examination.

He says everything is normal, that it is most likely caused by nerves and I should try to forget about it.

It still occurs almost daily and makes me feel as though I am going to pass out. I get very scared. Should I see another doctor? I am very worried about this.

DEAR READER — I can understand why you are concerned. The fact that you had an examination that revealed no evidence of anything being wrong with your heart is very helpful. Almost everyone has an extra heartbeat or two during the day, but most people are completely unaware of them. Others note a skipped beat or flip-flops as they describe them.

These are caused from a beat of your heart occurring so early that it doesn't pump out any blood. The pause in the detectable pulse makes a person think the heart has skipped a beat. The long pause allows the heart to fill with more blood than usual, and the next beat discharges a strong pulse that you feel.

I think it is important for anyone with such a finding to have an examination, but it is equally important to realize that these can occur in people who have no heart disease. In that case they are not dangerous or threatening to your health.

Your anxiety with these episodes may cause you to overbreathe (hyperventilate) and cause tingling sensations or faintness. Hyperventilation from anxiety can also cause an increase in premature beats.

The types of heart irregularities, including skipped beats, are discussed in the Health Letter No. 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardias, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10101.

As the issue I am sending you explains, it is important to avoid smoking as well as coffee, tea, colas and chocolate. That may help to decrease your nervous tension, too.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My sister, 35, has milk leg in her right leg. The swelling is really bad. The doctors here do not seem to know what to do about it. My aunt said it may have to be amputated.

This worries me as she is the mother of four children. Can you give me some advice for her?
DEAR READER — Milk leg is a term that is used for thrombophlebitis (clots in the veins in the legs) that occurs immediately after childbirth.

Super egg

HONOLULU (UPI) — Peter Cottontail would have been a mighty big rabbit to hop down the bunny trail with this year's Hyatt Regency Hotel, Easter eggs.

Pastry chef Gerhard Remy put together a concoction that stood 12 feet high and 5 feet wide for the hotel lobby.

The ingredients included 500 pounds of sugar, 35 pounds of flour, 1,200 egg whites; 35 pounds of chocolate, 15 pounds of marzipan and 10 pounds of nuts. The center was filled with styrofoam.

When it was completed, Remy and three other chefs were unable to fit the egg into the elevator for its trip from the basement to the lobby.

So they lugged it up a loading ramp, pushed it down a Waikiki street and eased it into the hotel lobby for Sunday's festivities.

Teala Bellini: She helped fill Twin Falls with music

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — From 1944 until 1981, Teala Bellini helped fill Twin Falls with music.

Bellini, who played piano at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, taught piano for more than 67 years in Southern California and Idaho.

"We're sort of a Bellini family," said Mrs. Roger Vincent of Ellier.

Mrs. Vincent, a piano teacher herself for 23 years, studied for 15 years under Mrs. Bellini. Her husband has conducted several performances of Handel's Messiah with Mrs. Bellini accompanying. Their six children all studied piano with Mrs. Bellini.

Three of her daughters are pursuing further music education or careers in music thanks to the quality training they received from Mrs. Bellini—Mrs. Vincent said.

"It doesn't matter where you're living, you can have quality," she said. "Thousands of people around here benefited from her sharing her musical knowledge."

Stories similar to the Vincents' were repeated throughout Mrs. Bellini's life. "Our son started lessons with her in 1970. What can I say, she developed his talents and inspired him, she encouraged him to make the piano his career," said Mrs. Carl Neiwirth of Kimberly.

Her son, Mark, studies music in New York now, but he was in Twin Falls about a month ago giving a concert with the Magic Valley Symphony, at the College of Southern Idaho.

Mrs. Bellini was too ill to attend the concert, but the Neiwirths taped it and played the tape for her later. "That delighted Mrs. Bellini," Mrs. Neiwirth said.

"She's been a big value to the Magic Valley," said Ethel Chandler, a friend of Mrs. Bellini, for most of her years in Twin Falls.

What she remembers most about Teala Bellini was her "graciousness and hospitality and the evenings of chamber music in her home," she said.

The Bellinis lived in the Costello house, at 511 2nd Ave. W., one of the first homes built in Twin Falls. The home now holds a real-estate office, an insurance office and Costello's Restaurant, which was decorated to show off the good condition of the old home and the many original fittings retained through the years.

It was the Bellinis who restored the house and kept it in good condition, Chandler said. Mrs. Bellini's first studio was in that house. "The music in that house brought it to life," she said.

Engineers will study the feasibility of turning deteriorating buildings on the Albion campus into employee apartments for an agricultural firm.

BOB DELANEY/Times News

Albion campus may become homes

By LINDA CATES
Times-News writer

ALBION — A team of restoration engineers will study the Albion campus.

Albion Mayor Chris Cagle said preliminary negotiations are being made with an agriculture firm which may renovate the campus buildings into apartments.

"I don't want to build up the hopes of the Albion people," said financial manager Richard Matherson of Oakland, Calif., an associate of Idaho Agricultural Growth Industries.

Matherson told the Times-News that engineers from Idaho and Utah will examine the buildings on the deteriorating campus. Matherson could not give a date for the engineering survey, but said it would be soon.

A preliminary survey has suggested that the campus buildings could be renovated into apartment complexes for use by the agriculture company to house the employees of a swine and dairy operation planned for the Raft River area.

The Albion campus has been on the planning sheets for several organizations in recent years, but all the proposals fell through. Mayor Cagle said this plan looks more promising.

"It is the first time the City Council has felt optimistic," said Cagle.

Agricultural Growth Industries is looking at the possibility of a HUD grant for renovation expenses that could amount to $3 million.

"I'm 95 percent certain that the agricultural complex (in Raft River) will go through," said Matherson. He was not certain about the Albion project.

The Raft River operation will include 40,000 pigs, 650 dairy cows, and an alcohol plant with a production capacity of 5 million gallons the first year of operation.

Matherson said the blueprints for the operation are finished. If funding and other plans are finalized in time, ground could be broken around the first of June.

The Albion site is about 35 miles from where the projected agriculture operation will be. But Matherson favors using the campus "because it would be more appealing than a bunch of trailers," he said.

Taxi service returns

TWIN FALLS — After a week when it seemed to have disappeared, the Union-Yellow Cab Co. resumed service late last week.

The company wasn't on the verge of going out of business, it was expanding, said co-owner Walter Willis. Union-Yellow Cab was taken over by Willis and his wife Melody at the beginning of 1981. Former owner Wayne Steele had discontinued cab service because it did not pay.

Some concern that Twin Falls would again be without cab service rose again last week when the new owners could not be found.

That was never the case, Willis said, noting some of the firm's regular customers were told there would be no service for five working days ending last Thursday. But he couldn't tell everyone, he said.

He said the firm is doing well and has hired two new drivers and another dispatcher. The company is now located in an office next to the Willis' home, at 340 Quincy St.

The company also has resumed 24-hour service. "We were getting ready to go full force," Willis said.

Crash kills 2 Idahoans

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — Two Idaho Falls residents died in a motorcycle collision in downtown Idaho Falls Sunday, the Bonneville County Sheriff's Department reported.

Deputies said Dan Lee Irvine, 33, and his passenger, Deann Bramm, 42, died when the motorcycle they were riding collided with a four-wheel drive vehicle at the intersection of Sunnyside and St. Clair streets.

Officers said the driver of the four-wheel drive vehicle, Raughlin L. Morgan, 49, Idaho Falls, was not injured in the accident.

Andrus due honors from ISU group

POCATELLO — Cecil Andrus, former U.S. secretary of the Interior and governor of Idaho, has been named "Idaho Statesman of the Year."

The award is given by the Idaho State University chapter of Phi Sigma Alpha, a national honors fraternity in public service.

In 1977, President Carter selected Andrus as U.S. secretary of the Interior. Andrus was elected governor of Idaho, as a Democrat, by a large margin in 1970 and was re-elected four years later.

Andrus also served as a state legislator from 1961 to 1966 and from 1969 to 1970.

Nominees for the Idaho Statesman of the Year included journalists, political activists, university faculty and administrators and political scholars throughout Idaho.

Andrus was selected by the students of Phi Sigma Alpha from five finalists which included Gov. John Evans, state Sen. Mike Mitchell, Idaho Public Utilities Commission President Perry Swisher and former legislator Ray Ruffy.

The award will be presented at a dinner May 9 in Pocatello at the Hilton Inn. The public is invited to a no-host reception for Andrus following the dinner and starting about 9:30 p.m.

Aviation service expands

BURLEY — Two Magic Valley aviation firms begin expanded service today.

Sunset Aviation of Burley and Valley Flyers, Inc. of Jerome have announced their affiliation with Checkerboard Air, a scheduling system.

The system is a passenger and cargo forwarding network that coordinates flights for efficiency, according to P.D. Van Hoose, the president of Checkerboard Air.

Checkerboard Air serves 11 Western states from its base located in Burley and will provide an alternative to air transportation customers, Van Hoose said.

Air transportation customers should be able to obtain straight-line travel to any large or small community in the Western states, Van Hoose said.

Checkerboard Air is an affiliation of the small craft operators, working together, to compete with the big airlines, Van Hoose said.

Services on Easter thronged

TWIN FALLS — From sunrise to sunset, through music and the spoken word, the Easter story was retold in Twin Falls Sunday.

The recounting of the resurrection of Jesus Christ took place in settings both formal and informal in the open air, as well as in the sanctuaries of churches jammed with worshippers.

A non-denominational sunrise service on the grassy slopes overlooking Shoshone Falls attracted about 150 worshippers. Arranged by the United Methodist Men from Twin Falls, the service lasted for about half an hour. As it ended, the morning sun broke through a cloud cover and flooded the site with light.

Another sunrise service in the Rock Creek canyon west of Twin Falls, conducted by the Young Life group, drew about three dozen people, mostly youths.

Jim Newman reads the Easter story in scripture during Sunday sunrise service at Shoshone Falls.

Los Angeles busing appeal filed with Supreme Court

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The NAACP filed a last-ditch appeal Sunday to Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist to block the dismantling of forced busing in the nation's second-largest school district.

Junior high school students were scheduled to return to their neighborhood schools this morning. There was no indication when Rehnquist might rule on the NAACP appeal, filed with the Supreme Court in Washington D.C.

announced late Saturday, overturned a federal judge who Friday granted the NAACP a temporary restraining order which reinstated busing for about 23,000 students.

More than 7,000 elementary and

A federal appeals court, in a ruling

About 15,000 had elected to stay in the integrated schools until the end of the term in June, but 7,300 had chosen to return to their neighborhood schools when spring vacation ends today.

The dismantling of the busing system began in March after the state Supreme Court ruled an anti-busing ballot measure, Proposition 1, was constitutional.

Tashima said the dismantling of the busing system was an act of intentional segregation and set an April 23 hearing on whether a preliminary injunction sought by the NAACP should be granted.

Trevino frolics way to top spot in T of C

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI) — Sunday, at 9:55 a.m., Lee Trevino crawled inside the T-shirt worn by a mammoth photographer on the first tee and had his picture taken with their two heads protruding through the neck opening.

At 9:57, Trevino chased a flock of blackbirds away from his teed-up golf ball and told the story of a playing partner who once killed a sea gull with a six-iron shot.

Between 10 a.m. and 1:28 p.m., Trevino raced around the La Costa Country Club course in 69 strokes to win the $300,000 Tournament of Champions by two shots over Ray Floyd.

At 1:55, Trevino picked up a check for $54,000 and stuffed it deep into his pocket.

And at 1:45, the Merry Mex leaned back in his chair and told the assembled writers, "I was just playing too good. Raymond knew he had to make birdies and that put a lot of pressure on him. And I kept busting the middle of the fairways with my drives. Damn, I only missed five fairways all week."

Trevino had rounds of 67-67-70-69 for a 15-under-par 273, which tied the tournament record set 11 years ago by Frank Beard.

Trevino, the oldest player in the exclusive 25-man tournament, had a past 12 months — needed only a par on No. 18 to break the record, but he bogeyed the hole, as did Floyd.

"Sure, I wanted to break the record," Trevino said. "But I didn't want to get too cute on 18 and shoot a six or seven and lose the damn tournament."

It was the first victory in California for Trevino, in his 14th year on the PGA tour, and came in his 10th appearance in the T of C.

The win boosted his 1981 earnings to $103,728. Floyd, who had a final round 70, earned $35,000, while Bill Rogers had a 71 for a 280 total and a paycheck of $23,500.

Larry Nelson finished with a 71 for a 281 total and earned $17,100. Tom Kite, Doug Toole and Curtis Strange tied for sixth at five-under-par.

Trevino missed the cut in last week's Masters, shooting 68 for 77. Trevino began the round one stroke ahead of Floyd and the Dallas native birdied the first two holes to move to 14-under. But Floyd also birdied the first hole, but Trevino birdied No. 2 to move back into a tie.

Floyd, 38, in his 18th PGA season, bogeyed the 10th hole to give Trevino a one-shot lead and the PGA's second leading money winner in 1980 never relinquished it.

Both players birdied No. 12, but Trevino rolled in his seventh birdie putt on the day on the 13th hole, while Floyd carded a bogey, giving Trevino a three-stroke buffer.

Floyd birdied No. 17 to close the gap to two strokes and both players bogeyed No. 18.

It was the 26th tournament victory in Trevino's career. He has won the U.S. Open twice, the British Open twice and the PGA Championship. Last year he won the

Trevino snarls at missed putt
Players Championship, to qualify for the 28th Annual Tournament of Champions.

Trevino earned $365,814 last year, second to Tom Watson, and Sunday's victory boosted his lifetime earnings to $2,577,718, second on the all-time list.

Watson, the two-time defending champion and just-week's Masters champion, had a final round 70 for a 284 total and earned $10,250. Jack Nicklaus, who finished in a tie with Johnny Miller for second place in the Masters, had a 71 for a 285 total, while Miller struggled to a 75 and finished at 288.

Bucks' Mickey Johnson and Darryl Dawkins battle for an important second half rebound

76ers win despite dispute; Kansas City finishes upset

By United Press International

Number seven came up lucky for Philadelphia and Kansas City Sunday — but the 76ers' triumph was anything but a natural.

In the Spectrum, Caldwell Jones, the Sixers' quiet seven-foot center, proved to be a filler by sinking four straight free throws in the last 1:53 to provide a fitting end to this classic matchup.

"What can you say about a series like this?" asked a drained Billy Cunningham, the Philadelphia coach. "The effort put forth by both teams was outstanding. Milwaukee easily could have folded but just hung in there and battled."

But the Bucks did not acknowledge defeat until more than two hours later in a Philadelphia television studio.

In Phoenix, Reggie King and Ernie Grunfeld scored 23 points apiece to carry the Kansas City Kings to a 85-88 loss in Game No. 7 of the Western Conference semifinals.

The 76ers advance to the conference finals against the Celtics beginning Tuesday night in Boston. However, the outcome remained in doubt after Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson, apparently acting on a tip from a Bucks' official who taped the game in Milwaukee, considered filing a protest — claiming the 24-second clock had expired before the play preceding Jones' clinching free throw.

Accompanied by Milwaukee Vice President Wayne Embry and game officials Jake O'Donnell and Darrell Garretson, Nelson drove to the studios of Philadelphia's CBS affiliate, WCAU-TV, to view videotapes of the last 45 seconds.

Under question was whether Jones released a jumper from the top of the key before the 24-second clock expired. The 76ers were given a fresh 24 seconds after Julius Erving missed a shot and Jones rebounded with 45 seconds left.

Nelson questioned whether the game clock, which was superimposed on the television screen, had reached 21 seconds before Jones released the shot.

But after viewing the tapes, Nelson was satisfied that Jones beat the shot clock.

"Let's go home," said a dejected Nelson.

After Jones missed the shot, Darryl Dawkins tapped the rebound back to Philadelphia's Lionel Hollins. Hollins passed to Jones, who was fouled by Sidney Moncrief with 14 seconds to go. Jones hit both free throws to put the 76ers ahead 99-95. Junior Bridgeman sank a three-point field goal for Milwaukee with nine seconds left, but the 76ers managed to run out the clock.

Erving led the 76ers with 28 points and Bobby Jones added 21. Marques Johnson, who led a Milwaukee comeback from a 16-point third-quarter deficit to within an eyelash of the Bucks' first victory ever in a seventh game of a playoff series, led all scorers with 36 points and teammate Bob Lanier contributed 24.

"I really don't know what to say. We got everything we could out of the playoffs," Nelson said. "We put a spurt together and the things we were attempting to do all game finally worked out all of sudden. You saw the last plays, so I won't go into detail about it."

The decisive game was played before a paucity crowd of 6,704 — the lowest "payoff" crowd in Philadelphia in 11 years.

Kansas City Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons looked around for a word to describe the Kings' stunning road upset of Phoenix and came up with destiny.

"Maybe we were destined to win," Fitzsimmons said. "We were making all of our shots at the 24-second buzzer and we got the key rebounds when we needed them."

Fitzsimmons said that while Reggie King and Ernie Grunfeld who scored 23 points apiece —

In brawl-marked games

A's tie mark; lose nightcap

By United Press International

Bill Martin never likes losing, but circumstances made this one a bit easier for the Oakland Athletics.

"I'll take it everyday," the A's manager said Sunday after Richie Zisk hit a tie-breaking, eighth-inning home run to give the Seattle Mariners a 2-1 victory that snapped Oakland's modern major-league record for a season-opening winning streak. "I'll take another 11-1 streak right now, too."

In a bizarre double-header marred by a brawl in each game, the A's won the opening 5-1 to break the former record of 10 straight victories shared previously by the 1955-1960 Brooklyn Dodgers, 1962 Pittsburgh Pirates and 1966 Cleveland Indians.

Martin felt a fourth-inning incident in which both benches cleared might have been responsible for the A's defeat.

Oakland had taken a 2-0 lead on Tony Armas' RBI double and an RBI single by Shonky Bibb.

On the first pitch, Mike Heath, the next hitter, Armas headed for home on a suicide squeeze attempt. Heath missed his bunt attempt and Armas was caught in a rundown before a hard tag by Mariners third baseman Lenny Randle put him out.

Randle then threw out Bibb, who had taken a wide turn around second, for the inning-ending out. But while Randle was making the play, Armas was coming after him, upset by the hard tag.

Both benches quickly emptied onto the field, and the game was delayed when Oakland fans showered Seattle players and coaches with debris on their way to the dugout.

Randle then led off the fifth with a walk and the Mariners rallied for two summoned from the International League Saturday, pitched 7 2-3 innings to earn his first American League victory. Toronto Manager Bobby Mattick was ejected for arguing a play at the plate.

Kansas City 3, Baltimore 2
At Kansas City, Lee May, making his first start in a Royals uniform, drove in a pair of runs with three hits against his former teammates to give the Royals a 3-2 victory. Frank White and May hit consecutive doubles to give Kansas City a 1-0 lead in the second and May also singled in a run in the fourth. Jerry Grote, making his first appearance ever in the American League, doubled in the second run of the inning to stake Rich Gale, 1-0, to a 3-0 lead. Mike Flanagan, 0-2, allowed nine hits and all three Kansas City runs in his seven-inning stint.

Texas 4, New York 0
At Texas, Jon Matlack pitched a four-hitter to lead the Rangers past the Yankees, Matlack, 12, who surrendered a bases-loaded, none-out situation in the third, walked only one and retired 15 straight batters from the fourth to the ninth to help the Rangers fourth to the ninth to help the Rangers defeat the Yankees for the second straight day. Tom Underwood, 0-1, who went the first six innings for New York, took the loss.

Boston 9, Chicago 4
At Chicago, Gary Alenson hit a three-run homer and the Red Sox batted around in the ninth inning to win it. Alenson's second homer of the season knocked out Ross Baumgartner, 1-1, in the fourth inning and gave Boston a 5-1 lead; Bob Stanley, 2-1, was the winner with Tom Burgmeier earning his second save.

Toronto 3, Detroit 1
At Toronto, Al Woods knocked in three runs with two doubles and Lloyd Moseby hit a two-run homer to enable the Blue Jays to snap a four-game losing streak. Mark Bombardier, 1-0, was the winner.

runs to tie the game.

"Rick (Langford, the losing pitcher) was still upset about that incident in the fourth, and I know it bothered his concentration," said Martin. "He lost his concentration for that one inning and it cost us the game."

In the first game, starter Mike Norris nearly lost more than his concentration.

Norris, a 22-game winner and runner-up in last year's Cy Young Award voting, left the game complaining of a stiff shoulder and numbness in his pitching hand suffered in a bench-clearing brawl.

X-rays proved negative and Norris was not believed to be seriously injured.

The second-inning brawl began when Norris threw an inside pitch to Len Randle, who took an exception. Randle stepped out of the batter's box and made a motion toward Norris, who was pitching the Mariners' third all day.

"Don't throw inside or I'll come out there," Randle said.

"No you won't," replied catcher Newman, who soon wound up on the ground with Randle.

Norris continued to pitch, but left after six innings.

85th Boston run set for this morning

Despite unfamiliar role, Rodgers heads marathon field

BOSTON (UPI) — Bill Rodgers, cast in the unfamiliar role of favorite and determined to prove his spectacular career is far from finished, seeks an unprecedented fourth straight title today in the 85th running of the Boston Marathon.

Rodgers, 33, heads a field of 6,845 official entrants who will break from the Village Green in Hopkinton at 10 a.m. MST for the 26-mile, 35-yard race through eight communities and into downtown Boston.

Eight runners in the strong field have run marathons in less than 2:11:30. Included in that group is Rodgers' chief rival and co-favorite at 3-1, Japan's Toshiko Seko. Seko, 24, won the last three Fukuoka Marathons and recently set world records at 25 and 30 kilometers.

In his only appearance in Boston, Seko finished second in 1979 when 1980 problems force officials to keep tighter eye on women

BOSTON (UPI) — Not since Rosie Ruiz stole the show last year with her badly disputed — and later disqualified — victory in the Boston Marathon has so much attention been focused on women in running.

The stormy seven-day controversy that eventually put the laurel crown on the head of official winner Jacqueline Gareau also cast woman marathons under an uneasy spotlight officials are anxious to focus elsewhere.

Rodgers set an American record of 2:09:27. Seko's time that year of 2:10:12 was the third fastest ever at Boston.

In the women's division, Patti Catalano of Boston heads a field of 684

Ruiz was stripped of her title by officials who claimed she did not run the entire race, prompting the Boston Athletic Association to establish additional official checkpoints at the five, 10, 15 and 20-mile marks.

Runners' numbers and times will be recorded at each of 10 checkpoints and transmitted to the control center. The BAA also plans to station videotape equipment at undisclosed locations along the route.

And is a heavy favorite to win her first Boston. Also in the field are 49-year-old champion Joan Benoit and the defender, Jacqueline Gareau of Montreal. (See related story.)

Weather forecasts called for ideal running conditions with temperatures in the 60s, low humidity and fair skies. The horrible Boston and the strong field have made this event a world record may be in the offing.

Rodgers, who also won Boston in 1975, had his training schedule interrupted last month when he came down with the flu for two weeks. A victory would give him five Boston titles and only seven-time winner Clarence DeMa has won more.

"There's no way in the world you can possibly prevent all cheating," said race Director. Will "Woody" who has invited Ruiz to compete again this year, an invitation she apparently declined.

One woman player will be keeping a close watch on it is Patti Lyons Catalano, the 5-foot-4, 104-pound powerhouse who since last year's marathon has set U.S. records in just about every distance from five kilometers to the marathon.

"The only thing I can do, really, is win this race. If I don't, people will say I'm a downhill slide," Rodgers said. "It's really important for me to defend my title. The pressure will come from the competition because there are such good runners. I want to be part of the action. I have a certain plan in mind but I don't know if I'll stick to it."

Besides Seko, others expected to challenge include Kirk Pfeffer, Craig Virgin, Greg Meyer and Japan's Hileka Kita, who won the 1981 Tokyo Marathon. The field is much stronger than last year and the Rodgers-Seko duel has left running fans drooling in anticipation.

"Two years ago, I said I wouldn't want to race Toshiko in his prime. Well, he's in his prime," Rodgers said.

Landreaux sparks Dodgers

By United Press International

Joe Niekro moved to 12th on strikeout list

The Los Angeles Dodgers put yet another egg in their basket-Easter Sunday.

Ken Landreaux drove in three runs with a home run and a single to spark the Los Angeles Dodgers to their eighth victory in nine starts, a 6-1 decision over the San Diego Padres.

National League

San Diego had the tying run on second with two out. The save was Castillo's third as John Curtis, 0-2, absorbed the loss.

San Diego took a 1-0 lead in the first on an unusual sacrifice fly. Gene Richards led off with a triple and scored on Ruppert Jones' foul pop to shortstop Bill Russell behind third base.

The Dodgers tied the score 1-1 in the sixth on Landreaux's second homer of the year and went ahead in the top of the seventh when Pedro Guerrero started the inning with a line drive into the left field stands.

In other games, Philadelphia downed Chicago 7-3, Atlanta edged San Francisco 4-3, Pittsburgh blanked Houston 2-0, New York split a double-header with Montreal, dropping the first game 4-3 and taking the nightcap 7-2, and St. Louis at Cincinnati was rained out.

Philadelphia 7, Chicago 3

At Philadelphia, Keith Moreland doubled home the tie-breaking run to highlight a four-run eighth inning in a lead the Phillies' Nino Espinoza picked up the victory, his first since August 14 of last year, as the Phillies extended their winning streak to six games. Rick Reuschel, 0-2, took the loss.

The first two Philadelphia runs came in the first. Pete Rose singled and raced to third on a Bake McBride double. Both runners scored on wild pitches.

Atlanta 4, San Francisco 3
At Atlanta, Bill Pecora singled in two runs with one out in the ninth inning to lift the Braves to a victory that averted a sweep of their three-game series.

Pittsburgh 2, Houston 0
At Houston, Omar Moreno lofted a tie-breaking sacrifice fly in the eighth inning and Rod Scurry sparked in his first major-league start to boost the Pirates to a sweep of their three-game series.

At New York, Dave Kingman ignited a five-run third inning with a tremendous three-run homer and Pat Zachry fired a four-hitter Sunday to lead New York to a 7-2 victory over the Expos and a split of their double-header.

In the opener, Andre Dawson had three hits, including an eighth-inning homer, and scored a pair of runs to help the Expos to a 4-3 triumph.

Montreal, New York split
Montreal scored in the second on solo homers by Tim Lincecum and Bob Ramos. Zachry settled down after that, improving his record to 3-0 while walking two and striking out three.

Playoff putt gives Daniel LPGA win

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Beth Daniel singled in a 25-foot putt on the second playoff hole Sunday to edge Donna Caponi and win the Lady Citrus Classic.

Daniel, who led the tournament from the start, missed six putts on the final hole of regulation, forcing a playoff among five golfers bunched at 281.

"I just went for the middle of the green and that's where I hit it," Daniel said. "I watched that putt go all the way in the cup ... I thought it was going off to the left."

A defeated Caponi said she had been having trouble with the 16th hole the entire tournament.

Caponi started the tournament with a three-over-par 75 then shot her way into contention with a course-record 66 Friday. She finished regulation with back-to-back 69s.

Sheehan came from the back of the pack to make the playoff. She shot a 67 Sunday, including a record-tying 31 on the front nine.

Daniel, the 1980 LPGA Player of the Year, rammed it home for her first birdie of the day, claiming the top prize of $15,000. It was her first victory this year.

"This is my best score and the best I ever hit it," Rizzo said. "I remember reading that Donna (Caponi) had shot 66 and I was going for birdie on 15 to break the record and also to win the trophy. I wanted that birdie bad."

Daniel, 24, of Charleston, S.C., had a three-stroke lead midway through the event but shot a two-over-par 74 Saturday and par 72 Sunday to slip into a tie for the lead.

Eichelberger wins at Tallahassee

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Dave Eichelberger, one of three golfers to blow a short putt on the last hole for a victory in regulation, birdied the first hole in a three-way playoff Sunday to win the $100,000 Tallahassee Open.

Eichelberger rolled in a four-foot birdie putt and beat veteran Bob Murphy and rookie Mark O'Meara for the $18,000 first prize.

The three finished 72 holes at 17-under-par 271 after blowing a birdie putt on Sunday's 18th. Eichelberger missed a four-footer for a run-off to Murphy couldn't sink an eight-footer and finished with a 69 and O'Meara, felled by a 10-footer, carded a 67.

It was Eichelberger's first tour victory since the 1980 Bay Hill Classic 14 months ago and the fourth of his career. It exempts him from qualifying for the PGA Tour next year — and from defending his title.

"That's because he's now eligible for next year's Tournament of Champions, played at the same time as the Tallahassee Open, which is for tour players winless in 12 months."

Eichelberger opened the day one stroke behind Tallahassee resident Greg Powers, who bogeyed three times on the way to 72-72 and fourth place.

Eichelberger managed only two birdies, but avoided any bogeys. Murphy's 69 included consecutive birdies on the fourth, fifth and sixth holes and another on the 17.

O'Meara, who started the day four strokes back, had the best record of the leaders, collecting six birdies and only one bogey.

Chl, Chl Rodriguez, winner in 1979, finished fifth with 14-under-par 274.

Scott Wedman added 19 and Lacey Jr for the Kings. Johnson led Phoenix with 28 in the fourth quarter.

Phoenix coach John MacLeod, whose Pacific Division champions were heavily favored throughout the season, had 69 in the Kings' opener.

"Kansas City had an excellent game plan," he said. "They did a good job inside with their offense. We never really shut them down and we weren't able to get our shots down."

Several eulogize boxing great Louis' body flown to Washington

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A gold casket carrying the body of Joe Louis, who held the world heavyweight crown longer than any other boxer, was flown Sunday from Las Vegas to Washington, D.C.

A spokesman for the Louis family said the body would lie in rest at the 19th Street Baptist Church Monday and Tuesday prior to burial at Arlington National Cemetery Tuesday afternoon at the direction of President Reagan.

The president's right hand man and confidant, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., was among the 3,000 mourners at Louis' funeral service Friday in Las Vegas.

"Let's hear it for Joe," the Rev. Jesse Jackson shouted from the pulpit in the middle of the boxing ring.

The poor and ordinary and rich and famous stood and applauded long and loud for the "Brown Bomber" who died April 12 at 66 of a heart attack.

white and blue-rope boxing ring as an Air Force Honor Guard stood watch.

Entertainers Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis Jr., Muhammad Ali, Larry Holmes and promoter Don King sat nearby.

Despite poor health, Louis had worked as a host and greeter at Caesars Palace Hotel during the last years of his life. He had suffered strokes, heart attacks and heart surgery. At the time of his death, a pace-maker was working in his heart.

He regularly attended championship fights at the hotel's sports pavilion and was present April 11 — just hours before his death — when heavyweight champion Larry Holmes defeated Canadian Trevor Berbick. The next day, less than 12 hours after the fight, he suffered the fatal heart attack at his home.

Joseph Louis Barrow was born May 13, 1914, in a cabin near Lafayette, Ala. From his first professional bout in 1934 to his last in 1951, he was beaten only three times. He became world heavyweight champion at 23 and successfully defended his crown 25 times spanning 11 years, eight months and eight days from 1937 to 1951.

"In all honesty the guy who's done the job for us in the last few games is Sam Lacey," said Fitzsimmons. "Lacey is the man. They didn't guard him and he made them pay for it. The old fellow did the job."

The Kings' victory sends them against Houston in a matchup between two teams that finished below .500 in the regular season.

After a 44-4 tie at halftime, the Kings scored seven straight points during a span of 1:28 midway in the third quarter to take a 10-point lead.

What's what

Irish term for coinage led to word 'humbug'

England's King James II ordered his mint in Dublin to make coins out of lead, pewter, whatever was at hand. Those coins had little intrinsic value and the Irish called them "Um bog" meaning "humbog". That's where we get the term "humbug".

Medical researchers say India is the only country in the world that exports human skeletons.

Common among the men who rode the roads during the first 50 years of this century was a belief that one state in particular was especially hostile to hoboes—Louisiana.

Item No. 681C in Our Love and War man's file is the observation of the renowned sportsman Casey Stengel: "Being with a woman all night never hurt no professional baseball player. It's staying up all night looking for a woman that does him in."

LIZARD LIE:
Q. Is it true some female lizards produce babies without any male lizards ever being involved?
A. That's right. At least 25 species do so, according to Smithsonian authorities. With unfertilized eggs. Understand there are whole colonies of lizards that seem to do quite well without a male among them. One shows up here on the patio all the time. We call it Gloria.

Q. How long is the President's "Oval Office"?
A. 22 feet. President William Howard Taft was a rotund heavyweight. Standing joke for decades was the Oval Office was designed by stretching Taft-out-on-the-White-House lawn and drawing an outline of his body in the grass.

Q. Where did entertainer Bette Midler get her start?
A. In singing! At a men's public bath house in New York City.
