Vietnam vets honor American service, sacrifice in war

WASHINGTON (UPI)—About 150 Vietnam War veterans gathered Sunday on the proposed site of a future memorial to their fallen comrades to honor "the service and sacrifice" of American soldiers in Southeast Asia.

The gathering was part of National Day of Recognition for Veterans of the Vietnam Era, proclaimed by President Reagan.

"We are not here today to honor the war, but the service and the sacrifice of those who fought," said Jan Scruggs, co-founder and president of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund, which is seeking $7 million for the future memorial.

The veterans congregated in a small two-acre hollow on the Mall between the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial, where eventually they hope will be a memorial inscribed with the names of the 57,000 Americans who never returned from Southeast Asia.

To publicize the project, two Jacksonville, Ill., veterans walked the 816 miles to Washington to give Scruggs a $4,500 check for the project.

Kim Splain, 27, truck driver, and Junior Wyatt, a bartender, presented the check from American Legion Post 2730 over six weeks and one day on the road. They were joined on the final stretch from Arlington National Cemetery by about 40 local Vietnam vets, a few in wheelchairs and on crutches.

Many veterans, accompanied by their children, wore old fatigue hats and listened to speakers protest the kind of homecoming they received from the American public. The veterans far outnumbered the spectators at the ceremony.

The memorial will announce the winning design from among the 1,400 entrants May 6. The memorial is to be built with private donations and then turned over to the government.

In Philadelphia, some 50 children Sunday gave thanks to Vietnam veterans at a special wreath-laying ceremony at the Liberty Bell monument in Independence Hall. In one letter presented to the vets, a 12-year-old girl from Brookhaven, Pa., wrote:

"I truly know what you went through when you fought in Vietnam. I was born 12 years ago—June 11, 1968. My uncle died June 15, 1968. He never knew I was born, although my father sent him a letter."

"The letter returned a few days after my father sent it. I can't thank you enough for what you did in Vietnam. I'm sure my uncle would have been grateful for all your help in the war if he was alive."

In Summersville, W.Va., Senate minority leader Robert Byrd promised to "continue to work to see that nearly 9 million men and women who served in the military during the Vietnam War get the recognition and help from our country that they have earned."

The war "hurt a lot of people," said John Wheeler, 36, a former Army captain who spent two years at the former American headquarters at Long Binh. A co-founder of the memorial fund, he said any conclusions regarding the war will still escape him.

"I still don't know" whether he had any business in Vietnam, he said. "It will take me another 10 years to sort out what we should have done differently." Jesting his 4-year-old son John, Wheeler added, "There's something very healing about bringing him here."

Others had no doubts. "We should have been there. Look at what happened in Laos, Cambodia and now Thailand," said Michael Lowe, 31, of Bethesda, Md., a former Marine who served two tours during the war's height.

Up and over

For Scott Peacock, the benches stacked inside the Twin Falls City Park band shell make a good place to climb on a spring afternoon. Although some of the park's picnic tables have set out, the benches will remain in their winter storage spot in the band shell for a few more weeks until concert season arrives.

Congress returns to budget battles

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress, which left for a two-week Easter break, will return today to the fate of the Reagan economic program up in the air, returns today to finish round one of the fight over the federal budget and tax cuts.

In the Republican-controlled Senate, where President Reagan's budget was rejected in committee, it should hardly be a skirmish. The administration used the holiday hiatus to work on disgruntled Republicans whose opposition to projected large deficits killed the plan.

Republicans on the Senate Budget Committee will meet privately today to try to work out a solution, and Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., leader of the trio of GOP conservatives who opposed the plan, said an agreement is near.

Armstrong wants additional spending reductions to balance the budget that Reagan has promised in 1984. He said he thinks the problem can be resolved Monday or Tuesday.

House action on the budget will feature a major political battle between Democratic leaders and a coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats who are pushing hard for the president's proposal.

Reagan, back at work after an assassination attempt last month, says the recess leading an intensive campaign to woo undecided Democrats and a few Republicans from the Northeast and Midwest who feel their areas would be devastated by the proposed budget cuts.

To cap his lobbying efforts, the president scheduled an address

Tuesday night to a joint session of Congress.

The House will be asked to choose between the Reagan budget—or a slightly modified version with deeper cuts—and a Democratic alternative approved by the House Budget Committee.

The alternative restores about $3 billion to programs like education, health, community development and transportation. It projects a deficit almost half the size of Reagan's, which Democrats have used as a selling point to conservatives concerned about balancing the budget.

The budget is expected to reach the House floor this week, but action could be put off until next week if Democratic leaders know they don't have the votes to win.

Reagan 'optimistic' about budget

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Reagan, in week-end seclusion at Camp David, is "increasingly optimistic" about the outcome of crucial votes coming up in Congress on his budget cuts, a spokesman said Sunday.

"The reports from Congress look extremely good for Reagan's economic package," said acting press secretary Larry Speakes. "We approach these votes with confidence," he said.

Reagan forces expect a compromise proposal offered by Rep. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio and Rep. Phil

Gramm, D-Texas, adding $6 billion additional cuts in spending, will win easily. It has been embraced by budget director David Stockman.

The president flew to the mountaintop presidential retreat Saturday with his wife Nancy, and will return to the White House this afternoon.

In the relaxed surroundings of Camp David, where the weather was bright and crisp with temperatures in the fifties, Reagan stayed mostly indoors with his "feet propped up," working a revised draft of the address he will deliver to a nationally broadcast joint session of Congress late Tuesday.

Assistant press secretary Mark Weinberg said the speech "is coming along. He knows what he wants to say." Weinberg also reported the president "feels just great" and "looks marvelous."

Reagan is recuperating from a gunshot wound in the chest inflicted by a young assailant four weeks ago in front of a Washington hotel. Although he is not yet expected to return to the Oval Office full time, his official activities will be intensified this week.

On Tuesday Reagan will meet with Republican congressional leaders to give them a preview of his speech.

Idaho Power designs for coal plant summer

BOISE (UPI)—Although the utility has been relatively quiet on the subject for several years, Idaho Power Co. still wants to build a coal-fired power plant in Idaho.

Company officials say they will ask the Idaho Public Utilities Commission this year for permission to finance a study on potential coal-fired plant sites. The most frequently mentioned sites are near Bliss, American Falls and at Sid's Crossing in Lincoln County.

After the study was completed, Idaho Power probably would ask for authority to build a coal-fired installation that would generate 250 to 500 megawatts of electricity.

Utility president James Joyce said construction of a coal-fired plant within Idaho's borders would be necessary to assure adequate energy supplies during at least part of the next decade.

But the Boise-based company intends to proceed carefully, partially as a result of the fate of its last proposal for a coal-fired plant. Five years ago, Idaho Power's proposed 1,000-megawatt Pioneer plant was rejected by the PUC after lengthy hearings and intense opposition over projected rate increases and the potential environmental impact.

Quarterly savings deposits into red

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The nation's savings and loan institutions have recorded their first quarterly loss of deposits in over six years, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported.

The loss of deposits in March more than offset the gain in the first two months of the year, the agency reported.

The year's first quarter showing was an $800 million outflow in the third quarter of 1974.

The savings and loan industry has been blaming money market mutual funds for attracting deposits it would otherwise receive. The funds have typically grown by $3 billion to $4 billion a week as investors are attracted by the higher yield.

Savings withdrawals in March exceeded new deposits by $2.3 billion, more than five times the deposit shrinkage of a year earlier.

But when $5.8 billion in interest credited to accounts during March was included, the net gain on association books was $3.6 billion for the month, still 18 percent less than a year earlier.

The net deposit gain, including interest credited, for the entire first quarter of 1981 was $7.9 billion, 4 percent less than a year earlier.

Bank board chairman Richard Pratt said in a statement issued on the figures, "The monthly flow of savings should not be confused with the underlying viability of the savings and loan industry." That, he said, is based on "$30 billion net worth."

Most of the weakness in deposit growth in March reflected decreases in six-month money market certificate balances, which declined by $100 million, contrasting sharply with a $17.3 billion growth a year earlier.

The Bank Board said the decline reflected "the competitive advantage of money market mutual funds in terms of yield during periods of declining market interest rates."

Mortgage loans closed by federally insured associations totaled $4.7 billion in March, 30 percent more than in February, but less than would be expected for the time of year.

Good Pre-dawn earthquake rocks California cropland

WESTMORLAND, Calif. (UPI)—An earthquake with a magnitude of 5.6 on the Richter scale shook the Imperial Valley of Southern California before dawn Sunday.

It caused damage to some homes and buildings, but no injuries.

Mayor Ron Rodriguez declared the community of about 1,500 a disaster area and said he would seek state aid.

He said the rolling quake, at 6:09 a.m. MDT, dumped some residents out of bed and knocked out the city's water supply by breaking pipes in the filtration system.

"The quake just jarred it loose," he said of the water treatment facility for the community. "It looked like somebody went in and ripped them off."

An emergency supply of water was provided by fire engine tankers and nearby communities.

The epicenter of the quake, one of a swarm that has struck the farming valley over the past several days, was five miles north of Westmoreland and just south of the Salton Sea.

A quake with a magnitude of 7.0 on Oct. 15, 1979, struck in about the same area. It injured 91 persons and caused heavy damage throughout the valley and desert regions of Southern California and northern Mexico.

A spokesman for Caltech in Pasadena said about 22 tremors had been measured in the swarm over several days, most of about 3.0, but as high as 3.7 prior to the 5.6 quake Sunday morning.

"It just knocked us out of bed," Jack Stodelle, manager of radio station KROP in Brawley, said. "The swimming pool came up in the backyard."

Brawley is seven miles southeast of Westmoreland. Stodelle said three major supermarkets were cleaning up the floors where stock was knocked off of shelves.

"It was a dish rattler," he said.

A three-inch wide crack appeared in State Highway 111 near nearby Calipatria and a county road west of Westmoreland collapsed.

Several abandoned buildings in the older section of town were believed in danger of crumbling and were barricaded, police said. Three single-family homes were heavily damaged and four mobile homes were knocked off their supports.

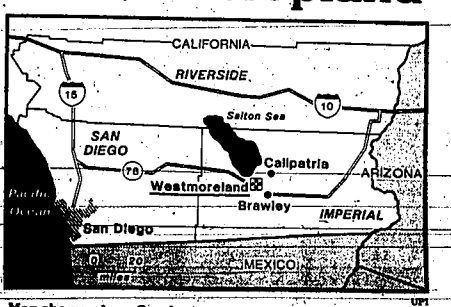

The quake was felt in parts of three counties, Imperial, Riverside and San Diego and in part of western Arizona. In Calexico, which abuts Mexican land, police said the quake was felt but there apparently was no damage.

That, he said, is based on "$30 billion net worth."

Most of the weakness in deposit growth in March reflected decreases in six-month money market certificate balances, which declined by $100 million, contrasting sharply with a $17.3 billion growth a year earlier.

The Bank Board said the decline reflected "the competitive advantage of money market mutual funds in terms of yield during periods of declining market interest rates."

Mortgage loans closed by federally insured associations totaled $4.7 billion in March, 30 percent more than in February, but less than would be expected for the time of year.

Giscard, Mitterand vie in French runoff voting

PARIS (UPI) — President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing and Socialist challenger François Mitterand Sunday won the first round of France's presidential elections, setting up a runoff election and dealing a severe blow to the Communist Party.

The Giscard-Mitterand runoff, set for May 10, a rematch of the 1974 election that Giscard won by less than 2 percent — will be the toughest duel of the president's political career, his advisers said.

"The decision will be so close that each vote will count and none will be lost," said Giscard's justice minister Alain Peyrefitte.

Under the French system established by Gen. Charles de Gaulle in 1958, a second ballot is necessary if no candidate wins a majority in the first ballot.

With 90 percent of the vote counted, Giscard had 28.2 percent, Mitterand 23 percent, Paris Mayor Jacques Chirac 17.7 percent and Communist leader Georges Marchais 15.4 percent.

Turnout of about 80 percent of the eligible voters was low for France.

Giscard issued a fighting appeal to his supporters after election results showed more than 70 percent of the electorate had voted against him and that he only received 47 percent of the vote in his hometown of Chalon.

He challenged Mitterand to two televised debates on economic, foreign and defense issues. The socialist leader, however, did not immediately accept.

Ewing clan patriarch dies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Jim Davis, a veteran movie television performer who became an international star portraying family patriarch Jock Ewing in TV's "Dallas," died Sunday at his home. He was 65.

A family spokesman said Davis died during his sleep at his Northridge home. He said the actor's wife of 36 years, Blanche, was with him when he died.

Davis had been recovering at home from abdominal surgery performed late last month. No specific cause of death was given.

A memorial service for Davis was planned for Friday at the Encino Community Church in Tarzana.

Davis had more than 300 television appearances during his long career but failed to reach stardom until he appeared in "Dallas" and the Ewing dynasty became a national obsession.

Archbishop lauds Columbia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Archbishop of Canterbury, Robert Runcie Sunday praised the American space shuttle achievement but warned against an uncontrolled reliance on technology.

"The launching and recovery of the American space shuttle was a superb feat of technology and skill that will have considerable benefits for people throughout the world," said Runcie, spiritual head of the world's 64 million Anglicans, in a sermon at the Washington Cathedral.

Runcie is in Washington to lead the week-long meeting of the 26 primates — archbishops or presiding bishops — of the world-wide Anglican communion.

CBS claims clues to deaths

NEW YORK (UPI) — The FBI has conclusive evidence that six members of the Salvadoran National Guard were involved in the slayings last December of three American nuns and one lay worker, CBS News said Sunday.

The six National Guard members will be arrested by Salvadoran authorities this week, CBS said, citing diplomatic sources.

In Washington, an FBI spokesman said he could not comment on the reports because the investigation involved a foreign country. A State Department spokesman said he had no information on the reports, but that the department might have "something to say" today on the case.

Soviets in new space move

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Soviet launching of a satellite may be a first step in a Russian attempt to establish a permanent space station — a mission that has acquired urgency because of the U.S. space shuttle, an expert on the Soviet space mission said Sunday.

Jim Oberg, an engineer with McDonnell-Douglas Corp.'s space program, said that amateur radio operators in Europe and North America had tracked the Cosmos-1267, which the official Tass news agency said was launched Saturday, through an orbit bringing it close to the manned Salyut 6 space station.

Thousands march in Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — About 20,000 people marched through Belfast Sunday to show support for IRA hunger-striker Bobby Sands.

It was Ulster's largest protest in a decade. Catholic activist Bernard Devlin, a Marxist, warned the British would be driven "to the boats" if he dies.

Mrs. McAliskey, who is recovering from an assassination attempt, also called for a general strike in the Irish Republic to back the 57-day prison fast by Sands, who is seeking political prisoner status for IRA inmates.

Sands, 27, who was elected to Britain's Parliament April 9, was reported near death at the Maze Prison, where he is serving 14 years for firearms possession.

Another victim in Atlanta?

ATLANTA (UPI) — Police withheld a decision Sunday, possibly for another day, on whether to add the disappearance of a slight 21-year-old man to the list of 26 young blacks who have been slain or disappeared over the last 21 months.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown has expressed concern, however, about the disappearance Wednesday of Jimmy Ray Payne because of his small size, and the fact he lived in the same area as some of the victims.

Police spokesman Roger Harris said Sunday he had spoken to Brown and Deputy Police Chief Morris Redding, who heads the massive task force, and Payne's case was still under the jurisdiction of the department's missing persons detail.

Lebanon fighting intensifies

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli war planes struck Palestinian guerrilla targets in southern Lebanon Sunday, and Syrian forces backed by helicopter gunships battled Christian militiamen for control of the strategic "French Road" central mountain observation post in escalating fighting engulfing Lebanon.

State-run Beirut radio said at least 12 civilians were killed and 30 injured, three seriously, in the Israeli air raids.

Group backing gun controls says public support mounts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gun control advocates are disappointed President Reagan remains opposed to tougher measures despite the attempt on his life, but are encouraged by what they say is mounting public support.

Reagan, in his first interview since the March 30 assassination attempt, said last week the bullet that pierced his lung did not change his mind.

"I'm not just being closed minded or stubborn," said Reagan, claiming there are already adequate laws on the books.

"If Reagan had come out in favor of gun control, a bill would have probably been passed within weeks," Charles Orasin, executive director of Handgun Control, Inc., a Washington-based lobbying group, said. "But now, the uphill battle will be even tougher."

"We're not about to give up, however. The public, in increasing numbers, is with us."

Orasin said in recent weeks, membership of his organization has nearly doubled to 250,000 and he has received about $250,000 in contributions.

It has set a goal of enlisting one million new members to get on equal footing with the well-financed and politically powerful National Rifle Association.

Reagan said last week, "I'm a little disturbed that focusing on gun control as an answer to crime may be diverting us from really paying attention to what needs to be done if we're to solve the problem. He did not elaborate.

Since the shooting, about three dozen bills have been introduced in Congress to toughen gun laws and impose mandatory sentences for commission of a crime with a gun. The bills drawing most of the attention are identical measures introduced by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. and Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J.

They would impose mandatory sentences, require a 21-day waiting period to buy a gun and ban the type of handgun used to shoot the president — a so-called "Saturday Night Special."

A spokesman for Rodino said Reagan's decision to remain against gun control is a setback.

"The odds are not with us, but we believe there is mounting public support and are going to give it a try," the spokesman said.

He said Rodino disagrees with House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, who has said there is no chance of getting a gun control bill through the 97th Congress.

Saudi arms sales awaiting Congress' view, Baker says

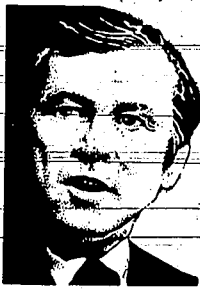

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has agreed to withhold his proposal for selling sophisticated arms to Saudi Arabia until members of Congress have had an "input" on its form, Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said Sunday.

He acknowledged it is not by chance that the postponement means the issue will not come up for action until after the election in Israel.

Baker said when he visited Reagan last Thursday he advised him that the package, which includes enhanced equipment for F-15 planes plus five new Advanced Warning and Control Systems — the controversial AWACS aircraft — is in trouble in both House and Senate.

"I advised him the program would have difficulties in Congress, and strongly urged the administration to give members of Congress the opportunity to have an input — to offer advice on the final shape and form of the package that might be submitted," he said on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation."

"I requested that the president defer submission of the package until that could take place," he said, "and I am happy to say the president agreed, and I think I understand that now."

SEN. HOWARD BAKER ...convince Reagan will be opportunity for extensive consultation between members of Congress and the State and Defense Departments and perhaps the president as well.

In view of that agreement, he said, it is unlikely the package can be submitted before mid-summer or acted on before late this year, "certainly not before the fall."

Asked if it was pure coincidence that the postponement means the debate will not take place until "well after the Israeli elections," June 30, Baker said "that is a factor we also considered."

"The last thing it needs is to become a political issue in Israel," he said.

Asked if he plans to support the package, he said, "Well, it's not a package yet and I think I should withhold final judgment." But when pressed he said, "I suppose I will support the package but I want to say my piece before that happens."

Baker also said: "He believes the proposed Reagan budget — defeated in the Senate Budget Committee a few weeks ago when three Republican senators defected — now will be passed in that committee" and he will schedule it for action "later this week or early next."

"He favors the so-called Kemp-Roth tax cut proposal because 'we must make some effort to reduce taxes as well as spending and ... I am convinced to my own satisfaction that Kemp-Roth is the best shot we have got.'"

Tokyo tries again to defuse 'car war'

TOKYO (UPI) — A senior Japanese trade official left for the United States Sunday in a bid to settle the "car war" which has soured relations between Tokyo and the Reagan administration.

One day after the Tokyo government reportedly persuaded automakers to slash exports to the United States by 7 percent, Japan also announced that Bill Brock, President Reagan's special trade representative, will arrive in Japan Wednesday.

Both government and industry sources said the Japanese automakers agreed to a government plan to cut back exports by 7 percent to 1.7 million for a one-year period, probably beginning in May.

The Japanese plan, however, apparently is still short of U.S. expectations. Although the Reagan administration has ruled against import controls, Congress is facing a number of bills which would limit Japanese imports to between 1.2 and 1.6 million a year for three years.

Shuttle flight to Florida set today

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — NASA officials said Sunday they were still aiming for a takeoff today of the mated space shuttle Columbia and its 747-mother ship for the 2,300 mile trip to Cape Canaveral, Fla.

A tailcone problem was solved, a NASA spokesman at Dryden Flight Research Center said, and the 100-ton spacecraft was to be bolted to the top of the Boeing 747 Sunday afternoon for an 8 a.m. MDT takeoff.

The Columbia is the first reusable spacecraft. It spent 54 and one-half hours orbiting the earth 38 times before its spectacular landing before a crowd of more than 300,000 people at Dryden's dry-lake bed runway April 14.

Its post-flight deservicing took longer than engineers had planned because, as one NASA spokesman said, it just hadn't been done before.

A planned Sunday takeoff was postponed because high winds delayed fitting the tailcone to the rear of the spacecraft covering its three main engines.

FBI director on terrorism

Soviets not at work in U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director William Webster said Sunday there is "no real evidence" the Soviet Union is financing, training or encouraging terrorists in the United States.

"I can not speak about activities abroad," Webster said on NBC's "Meet the Press," "but I can say that there is no real evidence of Soviet sponsored terrorism within the United States."

While noting that some terrorist groups in the United States, such as the Christian Independence activists, originate in Soviet-dominated countries, he said "none that I can say points to Soviet domination or control or encouragement."

"If you go back several years you find indications of Soviet participation in terrorist activities in terms of supplying weapons ... some indications of training," he said.

"But within the United States we seem at this point to be free of any type of direct, deliberate Soviet domination or control or instigation of terrorist activities."

WILLIAM WEBSTER ...no real evidence

Hill, Webster noted that last year the agency counted only 29 terrorist incidents in this country.

He said there were 100 bombings reported in 1977, the year he came to the FBI. The number dropped to 52 in 1978, 42 in 1979 and 20 in 1980, he said.

But Webster stressed that, "Whenever there is a terrorist incident, there will always be funds to apply. We'll never be on an overtime basis or a run-out-of-money basis." The director also acknowledged for the first time Sunday that the bureau is lending technical assistance to the Salvadoran government's investigation of the murders of four U.S. women missionaries in El Salvador last December.

He declined to say whether the evidence indicates that Salvadoran government forces were involved in the killings, as is widely believed, but conceded it is "a possibility."

Asked about the status of the agency's investigation into the deaths of Albania's black children, Webster said he had nothing new to offer.

Coal fields quiet again

By United Press International

The nation's coal fields were quiet for the second straight day Sunday, in sharp contrast to the previous week's violence in the strike by United Mine Workers, which dragged into its second month.

UMW President Sam Church and chief industry negotiator B.R. Brown offered nothing over the weekend to relieve fears the strike by 180,000 soft coal-miners might rival the 111-day strike of 1977-78.

UMW District 5 leaders in Pittsburgh, meanwhile, were organizing a rally there Thursday they said would be the biggest by miners since the strike began March 27.

No new violence was reported over the weekend after three straight days of shootings — two of those in eastern Kentucky — believed to be connected to the 31-day-old strike.

Mt. St. Helens sends up steam, ash

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Mount St. Helens shot steam and secondary ash to about 15,000 feet for the third consecutive morning, Forest Service spotters flying over the volcano reported Sunday.

The steam plume shot up from the 8,400-foot volcano at 8:21 a.m. in a cloud that could be seen clearly from Portland, Ore.

The event was accompanied by a relatively strong, 5-minute seismic signal picked up by the University of Washington Geophysics Department.

Public was left out

Idaho First District Congressman Larry Craig forgot one important group when he arranged an unpublicized meeting with a key subcommittee chairman on the Birds of Prey refuge issue last week. No one representing the Idaho public was invited. But a dozen members of interest groups were contacted and bused into the refuge in U.S. Bureau of Land Management vehicles for the chance to tell U.S. Rep. John Seiberling, D-Ohio, their views. Cattlemen, sheepmen, farmers, bird lovers, conservationists and state officials were allowed to talk to a member of Congress who has some influence over much of Idaho's land. Seiberling is chairman of the Public Lands subcommittee of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee. Any legislation on the Birds of Prey will eventually have to have his blessing. Idahoans have a right to be kept informed on the fate of public lands in their state. Yet Seiberling's visit and the meeting with interest groups was kept under wraps. The discussions and various viewpoints on the controversial issue of whether to expand the refuge to almost half a million acres could not be reported first hand by the press to the public. Surely some room could have been found for a member or two from the press in the two helicopters full of state and federal officials and two vehicles full of organizational members — all arranged at taxpayer expense.

Auld's accusations

State Sen. James Auld, R-Boise, needs a lesson in the rights of the accused: Auld, a real estate businessman, last week repeated an allegation he made in a letter to a constituent that Boise planning and zoning decisions have been bought by making payments under the table. He argued he did not tell police or the prosecuting attorney because he felt he would not be believed. Yet given the chance to tell the world, the legislator still refused to detail two instances of supposed bribery he claims to know about. He refused to name names and yet accused the city and developers and builders of operating by pay-offs, bribes and black-market dealing in zoning variances. Auld's wild statements would not normally deserve attention. But it is shocking that a state legislator has the gall to make such serious charges without backing them up. If legislators were charged with pay-offs, you can bet Auld would not allow someone to hide behind an excuse. Even if he does not apparently believe in the principle, Auld, like anyone, deserves the chance to face his accuser and the supposed evidence against him.

AWACS, embargo: Buying trouble?

© The Washington Post Company

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration talks a tough foreign policy, and to those who say the tough talk has been too much of a good thing, I say, as Mae West did, that too much of a good thing is wonderful. However, administration actions are gaining its message. If I understand the administration's reasoning — and I hope I do not — it is this: The grain embargo, imposed when the Soviets invaded country A, should be lifted because the Soviets have refrained, so far, from invading country B. Regarding the sale of arms to Saudi Arabia, the administration seems to be rationalizing decisions made haphazardly. What is clear — clearer than the administration's premises and procedures — is that it is buying itself trouble. One reason offered for the Saudi sale is that the Carter administration started it. But the Carter administration also started SALT II. So what? (SALT II is still as "fatally flawed" as it was when candidate Reagan so described it. Yet, the administration seems committed to conforming policy to the terms of this unratifiable mistake.) A case can be made for selling the Saudis F-15 enhancements to demonstrate that steadfast support for Israel is compatible with support for other nations in the region that are anxious about their security. And a powerful case can be made for an AWACS (Airborne Warning and Control System aircraft) presence as part of a Middle East security plan. But only a rickety case can be made for selling Saudi Arabia the AWACS, even with an iron mesh of controls — which the administration has not seen fit to propose. It is provocative for the administration to propose for Saudi Arabia a control over these sophisticated assets that no NATO ally enjoys. Today, there is an oil glut, and Saudi Arabia is being comprehensively uncooperative about U.S. objectives in the Arab-Israeli dispute. So there is opportunity and reason for the United States to negotiate tenaciously with Saudi Arabia, which some people in the administration admit it has not done. The Saudi shopping spree at the Pentagon comes after the Saudi call for a "holy war" against Israel, and reportedly involves a request for 10,000 anti-tank missiles — more than three times the number of Israeli tanks. One "reasonable" Congress may block sale of the AWACS package, that the administration seems incapable of self-regulation: The Saudis can buy whatever they can afford. Regarding the grain embargo, the administration may be willing to brave a richly deserved hurricane of ridicule. It may rationalize lifting the grain embargo on the ground that the Polish crisis is "over." I will award one share of Chrysler stock to anyone who can satisfactorily explain what "over" can mean in this context. A nation of Catholics seething within a Communist empire is a crisis that will not be "over" as long as the nation and the empire exist. Instead of inanely suggesting that the threat to Poland is "over," the administration should be indicting the Soviets for violating the Helsinki Agreement's ban on the "threat of force or direct or indirect use of force" against any European country's right to "choose and develop" its system of government. The administration's silence reverberates, and raises doubts about its readiness to insist that agreements be complied with or denounced. Anyway, the grain embargo was a response to the rape of Afghanistan, where freedom fighters today are making the Soviets pay dearly. Lifting the embargo now would mock the sacrifices of the freedom fighters. Furthermore, lifting the embargo now would be an act of Carteresque clumsiness and egregious bad timing.

The administration is striving to convince the allies to adopt sterner policies regarding technology transfer to the Soviet Union. Lifting the embargo would give the allies all the excuse they need to turn a deaf ear. By lifting the embargo, the administration would commit the Kissingerian mistake: believing that it can send mixed signals without mixing up the public. When the administration then asks the public for burdensome increases in defense spending, the public may reply that if it is "business as usual" for business, then the emergency must be "over" and the military should make do with "business as usual." Having talked well and often of the implacable Soviet challenge, of Soviet complexity in terrorism, and of dealing with Cuban adventurism "at the source," the administration has defined the tasks concerning which it shall be judged. It dare not seem more interested in the excesses of OSHA than of Cuba; more interested in confining the FTC than confining Libya; more interested in passing the farm bill than in keeping the pressure on the Soviets. Reagan's foreign policy mandate is not to improve relations between the United States and Nebraska.

Business, industry come down on side of the press

BOISE — In the last year in Boise, a television newsmag has been raised, a reporter jailed, a newspaper heavily fined and its telephone records have been secretly obtained — all at the instigation of the Ada County prosecutor's office. These events make interesting reading and viewing for the public, but most people do not think of it as nearly as their problem. An exception to this attitude is the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry, the "voice of business and free enterprise." IACI's more than 500 members include such large corporations as Idaho Power Co., Boise Cascade, Morrison Knudsen Co., Hecla Mining Co., the J.R. Simplot Co. and most major banks. Each election, the group's political arm, United For Idaho, contributes heavily to state and legislative candidates, usually Republicans. Some people might therefore be surprised to learn that the group quietly opposed legislation this year that was advertised by Republican Attorney General David Leroy as a way to avoid clashes between the press and prosecutors. In fact, as IACI recognized, Leroy wanted to gain for himself and county prosecuting attorneys the power to issue "investigative demands" to anybody — stores, residents of the press and prosecutors. Jim Fields, IACI's attorney, says these demands amount to subpoenas and that his organization opposes giving subpoena powers to agencies

Mother responds

Editor, Times-News: In answer to Lataine Hughes and D. Robinson's letters on the school situation: I tried to get Shawn in the Seventh-day Adventist school. I also asked if they could let her, along with other 9th graders, take correspondence in the class room and they said they weren't going to take anyone beyond the 8th grade. The 14- and 15-year-old youths are too young to send away to a dormitory to be put in with many of the same age. It has not proven satisfactory. Wise parents wouldn't do that to their children. We are respectable people and care about our children. We pay taxes and should guide, through, and protect from, the wrongs that that age peer group is doing. The percentage of students involved in drugs is overwhelming and the longer they use it the less chance there is of them getting off it. The SOA correspondence course is very expensive. The one we are using is one-fourth the price the studies are above the general level and are state approved. The studies and private schools do not have to be accredited. We know the teachers don't have it easy and we support them in their work and teach our children to do the same. When we pay for a Christian teacher then that's what we should have. The public school board members appear to be nice people and intelligent. In fact, I like them. I believe someone else is behind this or there is some reason why they are misapplying the law on school attendance to the parent home study program. The U.S. Supreme Court upholds parents teaching their own children at home in subjects commonly and usually taught in the public schools but it does not say that the home has to abide by the school program. We prefer to send our children to school because teaching at home adds to the parents' load. But if sending them to school doesn't help for good and adds much to the problem of handling them, then it is better to teach at home. It is much easier to keep them respectable citizens on the home study program. We give them plenty opportunity for social life as well, parent-aid until they show they can handle it. It has been much easier on me this year teaching Shawn at home than when she was in school. My children are doing fine, all are respectable and attend church. All my children's teachers spoke very well of them and I have their good reports. VICTORIA BULL Twin Falls than through the courts. It was the second time since taking office in 1979 that Leroy attempted to get the Legislature to grant such authority and the second time that IACI opposed him. But this year, fresh in many people's minds were national protests over the Ada County prosecutor's seizure last summer of a Boise television station's film of rioting inmates at the Idaho State Penitentiary. Leroy is a former Ada County prosecutor and his former deputy prosecutor, Jim Harris, has succeeded him. Testifying before a committee of the House of Representatives, Leroy said, "This modest measure lessens the chance of combat and confrontations that now occur over search warrants." The measure was not viewed as even close to "modest" by press organizations or the Idaho Trial Lawyers Association. The bill, House Bill 206, was given a "do-pass" recommendation by a House committee, over their objections. After the measure reached the floor of the House, Leroy agreed to withdraw it in order to meet with news representatives on a possible compromise for next year. However, the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry also lobbied against the bill, as it did two years before, when the press was not portrayed as the issue. Fields agrees the real issue is whether prosecutors should have the power of a judge. Based on his individual judgment of "reasonable cause," a prosecutor could issue a demand for information, records, documents or other evidence for use in a criminal investigation, under Leroy's bill. "Some businesses are afraid that (these) can turn into fishing expeditions," Fields says. "I still want them to go to a judge as opposed to having six badges staring me in the face." Fields notes that a prosecutor or his investigator is a partisan and has strong feelings and interest in cases. It is more likely he will find a "reasonable cause" to issue a subpoena than a more dispassionate judge. "What we're really talking about is making the prosecutor's job easier. Some businessmen say we have to help criminal investigations to cut down on crime. But I still want to keep constitutional safeguards. Another argument for Leroy's bill was that a news organization could refuse the demand and have the chance to make its case before a judge. Faced with a search warrant already issued by a judge, it would face immediate contempt-of-court charges. "I would still rather have a search warrant," Fields maintains. "The onus is on the investigators to demand what they want. With the subpoena, the onus is on you." Fields paraphrases President Abraham Lincoln: "We are a nation ruled by laws not men. Laws are harder to change than one's mind."

Clark convincing skeptics at State

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite a disastrous debut at Capitol Hill, William P. Clark, the number 2 man at the State Department, is winning over some of his major detractors.

At his Senate confirmation hearing, it was obvious his chief qualification for the post of deputy secretary of state was his close friendship with President Ronald Reagan. Quizzed on his knowledge of foreign affairs, Clark was unable to name political leaders of many nations.

Career Foreign Service officials cringed. It was suggested Secretary of State Alexander Haig accepted Clark only in exchange for a free hand in selecting other key department-appointees. Clark was said to be Reagan's watchdog at the State Department, installed to keep an eye on an ambitious Haig.

Senate Republicans fell in line and Clark won confirmation. But to the surprise of many, Clark has begun to win respect for his performance so far at the State Department.

"I started with my prejudices intact," one career diplomat said. "This was based on his utter lack of knowledge of foreign affairs, as he demonstrated in his confirmation hearing. But in all my dealings with him I have found him approachable; I have found him open-minded; I have found him willing to listen," the diplomat said.

Analysis

"He is eager to ask questions and to get the views of other people. He brings a critical analysis to each question."

The diplomat praised Clark's political instincts and his decisiveness.

"He is willing to make a decision — if he can he will do so on the spot. If not, he says give me, for example, 15 minutes and I'll get back to you. He checks around and he does."

"I have done a basic 180 (degrees turnaround) on the guy," he said.

Clark, 49, escaped with his dignity from his Senate hearing.

"I took it in stride as part of the political ritual frequently performed on the Hill," Clark said. "I wasn't bothered by it. I found nothing about it embarrassing."

"I never suggested I have a formal background in foreign affairs," he said.

Clark has a solid reputation in administration and was chief of staff to Reagan as governor of California. He is also an attorney. Reagan appointed him to the California Supreme Court in 1973, although he lacked a law degree and critics said he was unqualified.

But Clark carved out a solid reputation as a conservative, competent jurist. At the State Department his primary role is implementing policy.

"My job here is not unlike what I have been doing for 20 years," he said. "And that has been gathering the facts quickly, applying the law of the moment, making a decision, and going on to the next issue."

At Haig's insistence, Clark was briefed on the full range of foreign policy matters.

Reagan's chief of staff, Ed Meese, was Clark's chief backer for the deputy secretary position. Haig's relations with Meese suffered when the secretary of state publicly opposed the appointment of Vice President George Bush as head of the administration Crisis Management team.

Clark dismissed the conflict.

"I viewed it then as a healthy give-and-take within the administration that we will see from time to time," he said.

After the assassination attempt against Reagan, Haig announced he was "in control" at the White House until Bush returned to Washington.

"His purpose was to assure that the executive branch was carrying on with business as usual," Clark said. "I do not put it in the context that some have tried to give it, that it was some assertion on the part of the secretary to be in personal control."

Aspin claims defense hurting U.S. industry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Sunday heavy U.S. defense spending is the chief reason why American industry is falling behind — its Japanese and Western European competitors.

While the United States takes on a greater share of the defense burden, Aspin said, Japan and some European countries are investing more heavily in industrial growth.

"The money Japan and others save on defense is being used to whip us in the free market that our defense is preserving for them," Aspin said in a statement released by his Washington office.

Citing a CIA publication, Aspin said the United States spent 5.8 percent of its gross national product on defense in 1970-79.

During the same period, he said, Japan spent less than 1 percent of its GNP on arms, West Germany 3.5 percent and France 3.9 percent.

At the same time, Aspin said, U.S. manufacturing capacity grew by only 2.4 percent, compared with 7.2 percent for Japan, 4.4 percent for France and 3.5 percent for West Germany.

MALCOLM BALDRIGE ... no quid pro quo

Baldrige defends grain move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said Sunday there was no "quid pro quo" for ending the Soviet grain embargo and that U.S. politics played only a minor part in the decision.

Baldrige said there was no particular action by the Soviet Union that prompted President Reagan to lift the embargo last week and that he knows of no secret communication from Moscow concerning the decision.

"There has been no quid pro quo on this grain embargo. It's just the president thought it was time to lift it," he said.

"I don't think there's been any private assurances," Baldrige said on ABC's "Issues and Answers," although he noted, "There has been a loosening of tension in Central Europe, centered around Poland."

Baldrige also said the administration "doesn't want" legal limits on Japanese auto exports, but that if Japan fails to curb car trade voluntarily Congress would likely take such action.

The Commerce chief disputed suggestions the embargo, imposed 15 months ago by President Carter, was ended at this time to win farm state support for Reagan's economic program, facing a crucial test on Capitol Hill this week.

"Political reasons in this town, have to be considered," he said, "but that was far and away from the major reason."

Baldrige said the embargo was ended because Reagan did not believe it was "effective enough ... retribution" for the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

He said Reagan postponed fulfilling his campaign promise to lift the trade sanctions to be certain he did not send the "wrong signal to the Russians."

In his first 100 days, Reagan "sent some pretty hard signals" to the Soviet Union, Baldrige said, "I was in the (Soviet) Politburo. I would have no doubt in my mind about American policy."

On the Japanese auto problem, Baldrige said "free-trade would be hurt" if Congress restricted imports by law. "That's what this administration doesn't want," he said, because it could imperil free trade.

Brady-sits-up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House press secretary James Brady sat in a chair for a few hours Sunday and a hospital spokesman said his temperature was normal.

"It's all good news today," said Dr. Dennis O'Leary, reporting a rash Brady developed from a second drug reaction was "almost entirely gone."

"Everything's going along on the basis of what's expected," said O'Leary. "He's been up in a chair for a couple of hours."

for the child. The parents need counseling, too.

A father who calls his daughter a "tramp" lets her know that neither trusts nor respects her.

My father put me down constantly until my self-esteem was zero. Then he sent me to a child psychologist to find out why I was hostile, angry and rebellious. The psychologist could never figure it out.

After I grew up and left home, I refused to have anything to do with my father and anyone else who was disrespectful to me. Then I began to recover my own self-respect.

A child or anyone else who is forced to live with disrespect, will have a hard time maintaining self-respect, no matter how many counselors "treat" him or her.

Sorry I can't sign my name, but 20 years have passed and I am still too angry to have anything to do with my father.

Trial of stagehand opens in murder of Met violinist

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the next three weeks, a jury is to hear evidence in the trial of Craig Crimmins, a stagehand accused of hurling violinist Helen Hagnes Mintka, to her death from the Metropolitan Opera House roof.

Assistant District Attorney Roger Hayes makes his opening statement today in the trial before acting state Supreme Court Justice Richard Deamer.

The first witnesses are expected to be Metropolitan Opera House employees who will explain the design of the opera house and the labyrinthine backstage area where Miss Hagnes, 31, disappeared last July 23 after playing for two performances of the Berlin Ballet.

One of the troupe's dancers, later identified as Laura Cutler, saw Miss Hagnes in a backstage elevator with a man.

It was the last time the blonde, Canadian-born violinist was seen alive.

Her body was found about 8 a.m. the next day at the foot of an airshaft — her hands bound behind her back, her ankles bound and a bar rag stuffed in her mouth.

An autopsy showed Miss Hagnes, who lived on Manhattan's West Side with her husband, Janis Mintka, was alive when her killer hurled her 60 feet from the sixth-floor roof of the opera house to the bottom of the airshaft.

The autopsy also showed evidence of sexual assault, but not of rape.

The killing, the first in the opera house, attracted an unusual amount of publicity and resulted in one of the widest police investigations in the city's history.

A task force of detectives moved into the Met and interviewed hundreds of people.

In August, the investigation focused on Crimmins, 22, a high school dropout who had held a stagehand's job for four years at the Met.

Detectives questioned him intensively in a marathon session that began Aug. 16 and continued into the next day.

'Yorkshire Ripper' faces London trial

LONDON (UPI) — Accused "Yorkshire Ripper" Peter Sutcliffe goes on trial Wednesday for the murders of 13 women and the setting will be the heavily guarded Old Bailey Criminal Court, the scene of some of Britain's most dramatic trials.

Sutcliffe's trial culminates an $8.8 million investigation begun in 1975 and involving 1,000 officers — the longest and costliest manhunt in British police history.

The married father of five from Bradford faces life in prison if convicted.

The case was moved 200 miles from Leeds Crown Court in Yorkshire to London at the request of the defense and prosecution because of what they called "special circumstances" of the trial.

The 76-year-old Old Bailey, in the shadow of St. Paul's Cathedral, will have extra police guards for the trial of the man charged with killing 13 women over a five-year period in northern England, court officials said.

Only 50 members of the public will be admitted to each session and most of the courtroom will be reserved for lawyers, court officials and reporters.

Welk singer of '50s dies

DALLAS (UPI) — Alice Lon Bowling, Lawrence Welk's original Champagne Lady, died late Friday of a skin disease which she suffered for several years. She was 54.

Known professionally as Alice Lon, the clear-voiced singer was such a part of Welk's long-running television show as the bubble machine. She also helped foster a 1950s fashion trend — the voluminous crinoline petticoats under twirling skirts that became her trademark.

She sang on the Welk show from 1955 until 1959, when she left the show after becoming a celebrity in her own right. She sang in nightclubs for several years, until two years after her 1982 marriage to George W. Bowling, an American Airlines pilot.

At Wit's End Paranoia over nails in walls

By ERMA BOMBECK
© Field Enterprises, Inc.

I think that I shall never see,
A wall as it was meant to be,
And if my wife with nails does not withdraw,
I'll never see a wall at all.

The meter is Joyce Kilmer. The sentiments belong to every husband who signed a marriage certificate, but if you're going to frame it, insist it be hung from a doorknob.

I have no idea why men feel so maternal about walls, but a small nail in it constitutes a violation second only to the rape of their champion Yorkshire by a Baskin-Robbins-96 flavored stray.

My husband is paranoid about nails in the wall. To him, the most beautiful room he ever saw in his life was a recovery room. He couldn't stop talking about it. "Do you know there wasn't one nail hole in the entire wall?" he said. "You must get the name of their decorator."

My father is the same way. If someone gave him the Mona Lisa, he'd prop it up on the music rack of the piano until you're sure you want to display it permanently.

I can always tell how secure a marriage is by the number of pictures hanging on the wall. If the walls are barren, the commitment to one another is fragile. It's only a matter of time before the wife appears one day with hammer in hand and announces, "Either you hang this picture of I hang it." At that point she will either adjust to what she has married or turn and run.

My father-to-be hangs a picture as if they are guiding a kidney stone through a birth canal. They do this because they want you to know at the beginning that the wall is crooked and from then on, nothing is their fault. They measure from side to side, top to bottom, the distance from eyelet to eyelet, then they will balance the picture against the wall, covering it with their entire body, and ask you to tell them if it looks even. Say yes. Then they will jiggle the picture so it will make a mark on the wall. At this point, you reach your hand behind it, make a faint X with a pencil and they are ready to drill.

Newspapers are scattered to catch the "wall droppings" and a final check is made. The commitment made, they proceed to drill with the caution of a diamond titter. They miss the stud by three inches.

My husband once said, "We've been through a lot together and I know things get tense, but just remember, I care deeply for you and want your respect."

My father-in-law said that to me instead of the wall.

Coroner earned his title from duties in England

The King of England 500 years ago sent an official called the coroner to figure out how much money was due to the Crown from the estate of anybody who died. Later that official's duties expanded upon to determine the cause of death. And the title of coroner eventually wound up as coroner.

What television folk heroouts call a "script" is referred to by British television folk as "wordies."

In the 8th century epic poem "Beowulf," the monster, Grendel went to the mead hall every night for 12 years to devour drunken warriors. Those stalwarts weren't powerful enough to deal with Grendel. To get smashed in that place repeatedly meant certain death, seemingly. But the warriors went there anyhow, for the well-known phrase "more drink. Typical, typical. File this under "Early Alcoholics."

Aryans close south Idaho tour Sunday

JEROME — Leaders of the Aryan Nations white supremacy group ended a southern Idaho tour here Sunday morning with a second unevenly timed meeting.

They met, however, under the watchful eye of Jerome police.

The group was scheduled to be in Boise Sunday afternoon for a rally at the Idaho Statehouse, but the event was called off.

No reason was given for the cancellation of the Boise rally.

John Miller of Jerome, a member of the group who arranged the Jerome meeting, said pickets continued to walk outside of the church where the group met Sunday morning, but there were no problems. He said a few less members attended the Sunday morning session than the one on Saturday night. About 35 persons were in the church on First Avenue West Sunday morning.

The religiously oriented organization from Hayden Lake met in Jerome a year ago and leaders said they may make it an annual event.

Enemies said they also demonstrated in Jerome Sunday morning, to show there are people in Jerome who disagree with the racist philosophies and teachings of Aryan Nations.

"If they start with blacks this year, they may move to Presbyterians next year," said Larry Tanner, one of the protesters against the group's professed racism toward blacks, Jews and other minorities. "It's a church of hate."

"I think they're really sick," said Mary Nance, another protester. "How can they even talk about God?"

Although they said they had been threatened if they went ahead as planned, Aryan Nations leaders said they carried out the tour — which began with a dinner meeting Friday at Boise — because they wanted to reach out to their "white brothers" in southern Idaho.

Cindy Cutler of Hayden Lake, said to be the group's public relations person, said Aryan Nations is a religious organization and the meetings in Boise and Jerome were "evangelistic" in nature, but she added she hated the word "evangelistic."

During a similar mission last year, Aryan Nations leader Richard Butler and three lieutenants were charged with trespassing at a Boise motel. The fracas also resulted in concealed weapons charges against two Butler bodyguards.

A new lease

Dempsey's fine, thanks to modern veterinary techniques

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A 13-year-old heart patient from Jerome was hooked up to the electrocardiogram (EKG) machine last week and specialists in the New York medical center said everything sounded good.

His doctor said this was much better than the report a week earlier and apparently modern medical techniques had given the small patient a new lease on life.

The patient is Dempsey, a Boston bulldog owned by Lucile Nix of Jerome. He was brought to the office of Dr. Martin Becker, a Twin Falls veterinarian, about two weeks ago in a near comatose condition.

As with a human patient, the EKG was immediately ordered. Dr. Becker set up several other tests and checked the medication the dog had previously been given.

"I found out he had been on digitalis since December, taking 15 mgs per dose twice a day, or about four times what so small a dog should have," Dr. Becker said.

Mrs. Nix said she took the dog to a veterinarian in another town in December while visiting her daughter. She said the dog had been listless and not feeling up to his usual self for some time. After several months during which the dog seemed to be getting progressively worse, she decided before having the prescription filled again she would check with another veterinarian.

"If I had just gone ahead and continued the medication, I would have lost him. We were actually killing him with medication," Nix said. "I thought with a heart condition and his age he would probably not survive, but I'm glad I didn't accept that."

Like his human counterparts with cardiac problems, Dempsey was hooked to the EKG machine with transtelephonic equipment which allowed the New York Animal Medical Center to monitor the EKG and record the reading. Specialists there reviewed the heart beat and conferred with Dr. Becker on a treatment plan.

The specialists in New York and Twin Falls found there was fluid in the chest, shallow breathing, and a condition known as sino-atrial arrhythmia. Dr. Becker said the animal medical center in New York is the Mayo Clinic in animal treatment.

Chest radiograms, blood tests and other studies were made and sent to New York for analysis. Doctors agreed the problem was digitalis toxicity. Had the heavy doses of medicine continued, Dr. Becker and the New York doctors said, Dempsey would have died.

Dr. Becker said medication was changed to 100 mg twice daily of dilantin to counteract the digitalis toxicity and daily doses of lasix and aminophylline to excrete fluid. All of these medications are familiar to most human heart patients.

When Dempsey came back for his second EKG he was more lively than he had been in two years, his coat was glossy and his eyes bright. His owner was smiling, and Dr. Becker was amazed at the change.

As the follow-up transtelephonic electrocardiogram was completed, doctors in New York said the critical condition of the previous week had almost completely corrected.

Accident claims boy

RUPERT — A family outing ended in tragedy here Saturday afternoon when a 13-year-old Rupert boy was killed when his motorcycle flipped over backwards on a hill.

Minidoka County Deputy Sheriff David Constantineau said Robert Rogers Camburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Camburn of Rupert, was apparently killed instantly about 4:30 p.m. He said the family was riding motorcycles on public land about four and one-half miles north of Rupert. The boy was riding up a steep hill ahead of his father who was following on another cycle. Constantineau said the boy's machine suddenly flipped over backwards and the boy's head struck the ground, breaking his neck in several places. He said members of the family witnessed the accident.

The family had moved to the Rupert area only about a year ago from California.

NFL officials make final plans for draft

NEW YORK — The telephone lines will be buzzing in New Orleans, New Jersey and New York for the next 48 hours.

The Saints, the Giants and the Jets own the first three picks in the National Football League draft Tuesday and will be listening to trade offers right through the 8 a.m. MDT starting time.

New Orleans gained the No. 1 pick by clinching with the worst record in the NFL last year (11-5) and the Saints apparently are set to draft running back George Rogers, the Heisman Trophy winner from South Carolina.

The Giants are expected to grab the other "can't-miss" prospect in the draft, North Carolina linebacker Lawrence Taylor, and the Jets apparently will be taking running back Freeman McNeil of UCLA.

That is, of course, if the phone calls don't work.

Bum Phillips, the Saints' new coach, said he'll listen to all offers.

"I will probably have to be a heckuva deal," said Phillips. "We know some of the better teams want the top spot to fill a specific need they think will push them over the top. But we're not going to give the pick away. It's going to be costly and so far, no one has come up with anything to make us change our minds."

Giants General Manager George Young has nixed all trade offers but the phone will still be ringing until the Giants actually select Taylor.

"You usually trade down when you don't have conviction, when you're not sure of the quality available," said Young. "But with our first pick, we have a shot at a guy who can step in and help this club right away. That's why I'm reluctant to trade. We're going to get a heckuva player with that second-year pick."

The Jets, who traded up for the second pick overall, may be in a position for a deal.

"Let's put it this way," said Coach Walt Michaels. "No one is going to fleece us. We are going to trade the pick away if we get someone of value in return. If a team wants to make a concrete offer, we'll listen. Clubs say they've made us concrete offers but I don't think so. Right now we're ready to pick the guys we've got listed on the board."

Los Angeles, which traded with Washington to move from 20th to ninth on the first round list, is said to be pursuing any one of the top three selections.

In a couple of years, we might be in a position of wanting to move up in the draft through a trade to get a shot at the dominating player. So now that we have the second pick, I say let's take the great player."

The Jets, who traded up last year for the second pick overall, may be in a position for a deal.

"Let's put it this way," said Coach Walt Michaels. "No one is going to fleece us. We are going to trade the pick away if we get someone of value in return. If a team wants to make a concrete offer, we'll listen. Clubs say they've made us concrete offers but I don't think so. Right now we're ready to pick the guys we've got listed on the board."

Los Angeles, which traded with Washington to move from 20th to ninth on the first round list, is said to be pursuing any one of the top three selections.

Seattle picks fourth, followed by St. Louis, Green Bay, Tampa Bay and San Francisco. Los Angeles, on the choice from Washington, picks ninth, followed by Cincinnati, Chicago, Baltimore, Miami, Kansas City, Denver, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Minnesota and New England.

Washington, using a pick from Los Angeles, selects 20th, and Oakland, on selection obtained from Houston, is 21st, followed by Cleveland, Buffalo, San Diego, Atlanta and Dallas. Philadelphia and Oakland, the Super Bowl clubs, have the last two picks in the first round.

There will be 12 rounds, with a 15-minute time limit for the first two rounds and five minutes per pick on the last 10 rounds. New Orleans has the most choices (18) and Los Angeles and Miami have 15 each. Tampa Bay has the least, eight.

Houston, Philadelphia put foes down; lead series 3-1

By United Press International

Two NBA semifinalists are down to their last tomorrow.

Center Moses Malone, hitting less than half of his shots, still managed to score 42 points, and grab 23 rebounds Sunday to help the Houston Rockets beat the Kansas City Kings 100-89 and move within one victory of the Western Conference championship.

The Philadelphia 76ers assumed a similar position in the Eastern Conference, Julius Erving scored Philadelphia's last six points to blunt a Boston comeback and Bobby Jones stole a pass with three seconds to play to give the 76ers a 102-105 victory over the Celtics and a 3-1 series lead.

Malone hit on 16 of 33 shots, all from close range, as a trio of Kings worked him over.

The Rockets, who have never gained the NBA final series, put Billy Pauls' back on Reggie King and the six-foot-6 forward scored 24 points. Only four of his teammates scored as many as 10.

The Kings are playing without guards Otis Birdsong and Phil Ford at full strength, but they trailed the Rockets by only three points with six minutes to play Sunday.

Thereafter, it was the Malone show as he poured in nine points over Kings' Sam Lacey and Leon Douglas.

A Lacey miss and a Malone block of a Kings shot prevented the Kings from pulling closer than 83-89. At that point, Malone took a long pass from Pauls and slammed home a dunk to finish the Kings.

For most of the game, the Rockets received big lifts from the team's sixth and seventh players, guard Calvin Murphy and forward Bill Willoughby. Murphy scored 14 points and Willoughby added 10 as they came off the bench throughout the game.

Rockets guard Robert Reid hit key baskets in the final quarter and finished the game with 16 points—Pauls hit 10-12.

Houston won its second straight game in the playoffs for the first time since the team began its improbable string against the Los Angeles Lakers two weeks ago. Until Sunday, the Rockets had won every other game in beating the Lakers in a best-of-three series and the San Antonio Spurs in a best-of-seven.

Kansas City Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons started Birdsong in place of Ford Sunday, but Birdsong contributed only two points.

Philadelphia 107, Boston 105

As for Philadelphia, the 76ers can wrap up the Conference title for the second straight year Wednesday, when Game No. 5 will be played at Boston Garden.

From a 97-97 tie, the Sixers took the lead for good on two Maurice Cheeks layups for a 101-97 lead with 4:08 to play. Erving, who led the 76ers with 20 points, then hit a turnaround shot, a dunk and two free throws to keep Philadelphia ahead of the relentless Celtics, who were down by 19 late in the first half.

Nate Archibald brought Boston within a basket at 102-105, on a driving shot with 1:12 remaining. After a Philadelphia turnover, the Celtics could not get the tying basket, but Jones missed a shot with eight seconds remaining and the Celtics had one more chance to tie.

"I sure Archibald's long lead pass to Larry Bird under the basket was intercepted by Jones and the Sixers escaped with the victory."

Jones added 18 points for Philadelphia. Cedric Maxwell led Boston with 20 and Bird and Archibald had 18 each.

The 76ers shot 58 percent from the field in the first half and led by 19 at two stages en route to a 65-48 halftime lead. The Celtics, however, mounted a furious rally in the third quarter, riding the hot shooting of Chris Ford and Bird, who was 1-of-8 in the first half while scoring six points.

Watson wins New Orleans Open tourney by two; pockets $63,000

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Masters champion Tom Watson shot a 68 Sunday for a two-stroke victory and the first prize of $63,000 in the Greater New Orleans Open golf tournament.

Watson's four-day total of 18-under-par 270 — helped by a pair of 65s and a 64 — over the Lakewood Country Club — finished three strokes shy of the tournament record of 267 set by Lee Trevino in 1974.

Rod Curl sinks birdie at 16

Seniors and EPGA results — B3

Bruce Fleisher, in his best finish in 14 years on the Professional Golfers Association circuit, finished two strokes back in second place to win $37,400 with a round of 66 and a four-day total of 272.

Gil Morgan, who started the final round in a tie with Watson at 14-under-par, had a disappointing 71 with two birdies and a bogey, to finish third, three strokes back.

The finish was way $23,800.

Watson, who also won the Masters two weeks ago for his first win in the 1981 season, bogeyed the fourth hole to drop one shot behind Morgan but birdied seven at eight, while Morgan managed one birdie on the seventh hole to make the turn tied at 15-under.

Morgan grabbed a brief lead at the fourth hole when a strong crosswind pushed Watson into the right bunker, who then chipped out and missed a 12-foot putt, taking another stroke for a bogey.

Both Morgan and Watson birdied the seventh hole with putts under 10 feet.

Watson caught up with Morgan on the next hole, hitting a 15-footer from behind the pin. Morgan, who landed 40 feet away on the lower fringe of the par-3, 155-yard eighth hole, was forced to settle for a two-putt par.

A fairway shot carried by the strong crosswind put Morgan off to the left at the ninth hole, but he was able to chip to within six feet and save par.

Watson's shot landed within 20 feet of the pin, but he had to two-putt for his par.

Watson then charge on the back nine with a pair of birdies at 11 and 12 and another at 14. He saved par at No. 15, where his drive landed in a lake left of the fairway. He dropped a stroke, then shot a hook around some trees that bounced in and out of the bunker to find just short of the green.

Morgan hit the wrong fairway at the same hole and landed in a sandtrap, and his second shot went beyond the green. He ended up with a bogey.

Morgan, a non-practicing optometrist, finished the best with a birdie at the 18th hole for a 71 and a four-day total of 273.

"It looked like if Dr. Morgan had been putting he could have taken the tournament away from me and the other others," Watson said.

Greater New Orleans tournament by three strokes last year. "Being defending champion gave me no advantage except knowing how I won it before."

Watson, who has been the leading money-winner on the PGA tour for the last four years, said the par-72, 7,680-yard course is the easiest on the circuit.

15-year-old making national trip to Florida Without the YFCA, Stalley is a swimmer without a pool

SHERRY STALLEY practices in Boise.

By MARV CLEMONS
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Closing of the YFCA building because of financial woes is more than a dollars and cents matter.

The locked doors are diminishing dreams.

Sherry Stalley is a 15-year-old swimmer and without access to the Y's pool, she cannot practice. No daily workout means the effort of several years could go for naught this week when she competes in the national swimming championships at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Stalley swims for the Boise Y team and has qualified for the nationals for the third straight year. The event is known as the world's largest swimming meet and some 1,200 swimmers are expected to compete.

Stalley left Twin Falls early Sunday and will arrive in Florida tonight for the week-long competition. Her best event is the 100-yard butterfly. Two years ago she placed 38th and last year was 17th, making her the alternate in case one of the 16 finalists became unable to compete between qualifying races and the championships.

"I sure was hoping somebody would get sick," Stalley said before leaving on the trip she has been eagerly anticipating.

Stalley was making good progress towards this year's meet when the YFCA was closed. She became a swimmer without water. No other adequate-sized pool exists in Twin Falls for her twice-a-day workouts.

No practice for the final month before a big event would be disastrous for any athlete as for the past three weeks Stalley has done the only thing possible. She has spent nearly half of her life in Boise in order to practice at the Boise pool.

"I take a bus to Boise on Friday and stay with friends up there. I practice Friday through Monday and then take a bus back to Twin Falls," she said. "I miss school Friday and half of Monday."

Stalley worked out anywhere from two to four hours a day while in Boise, including a 5 to 7 m.m. session Monday before catching the bus to attend afternoon classes at Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School.

"The people at school have been great about it," she said.

"Although the weekend sojourns to Boise have been limited to just the past month, they've come at a critical time — during the important taper period before a big meet. Since Stalley can't swim Tuesday through Thursday, she has lost several valuable practice sessions.

"The taper is a time when you decrease the yards you swim but you do them harder and faster," she said. "It helps increase your time. It rejuvenates you."

The ninth-grader will go into her third national competition without a taper and it's very unlikely she'll be able to improve her 17th place showing of last year.

"We counted it up and last year there were 238 swimmers in Sherry's 100-yard butterfly field," said Donna Stalley, Sherry's mother. "It's a senior open event so there are no age levels. Sherry will compete against girls from 13 through 19."

"She's the forced training hiatus, Stalley is hoping she'll stay with the competition. She admits her chances of gaining either the championship heat (fastest eight qualifiers) or consolation heat (the second eight) have probably been lessened because of the Y's closure. At Ft. Lauderdale she'll also compete in the 100 freestyle and 50 freestyle. Her best times are a 1:00.02 in the 100 butterfly, 56.3 in the 100 freestyle and 25.7 in the 50 free.

Stalley competes with the Boise team because it is the closest senior age-level organization. She's plans to stick with swimming and is hoping she'll be good enough to gain a college scholarship.

"Last year a girl from the Boise team received a scholarship to Stanford and two boys from the team went to Big Ten schools," Donna said.

To keep up the necessary practice regimen, Stalley will probably move to Boise for the summer and if the local pool stays closed, she may have to make plans to train and live away from home.

Alouettes may sign Ferragamo today

MONTRÉAL (UPI) — Vince Ferragamo, the quarterback who directed the Los Angeles Rams into the 1980 Super Bowl, is expected to sign with the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League today.

Ferragamo and his agent David Flasher were expected to arrive in Montreal Sunday night, and team officials called a news conference for 5 p.m. Monday.

The spokesman said the news conference was called to officially announce the signing of Ferragamo — who has been negotiating with the Alouettes for more than three weeks since Vancouver sports mogul Nelson Skalbania purchased the team.

It was earlier reported that the 28-year-old Ferragamo, who last season earned $32,000, would sign a three-year contract for $400,000 per season.

The Alouettes obtained the CFL rights to Ferragamo from the Hamilton Tiger Cats after Skalbania engineered a deal sending Keith Baker and David Greene to Hamilton.

VINCE FERRAGAMO could make $400,000

In addition to signing Ferragamo, the Alouettes reportedly also were talking with James Scott, a five-year veteran receiver with the Chicago Bears.

Calgary shocks Philly; gains NHL semifinals

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Calgary Flames continued making history Sunday night by beating the Philadelphia Flyers at their own game.

Willi Plett and Ken Houston scored a pair of early power-play goals and then the Flames turned the game over to goalie Pat Riggin and their aggressive forecheckers. The result was a 4-1 victory that lifted Calgary into the semifinals of the NHL Stanley Cup playoffs.

With the victory in the deciding game of the quarterfinal series, the Flames already are two rounds further into the playoffs than at any time in their nine-year history. They swept the Chicago Black Hawks in three games to get past the first round for the first time ever.

They now go against the Minnesota North Stars in a best-of-seven series which begins Tuesday night in Calgary, Alberta.

"We got off to a quick start tonight and they had to come after us," said Riggin, who was in goal for all four Flames wins, two on Spectrum ice.

"We beat them at their own game. Once we scored the two early goals, it was check, check, check."

Calgary Coach Al MacNeil, who watched his team lose two straight after taking a 3-1 lead in the series, was overjoyed at his team's clutch performance.

"You have to be doing something to beat a hockey club like that," he said. "This shows we have a pretty good hockey club. It has taken a long time for things to gel and hopefully this is the start of more big things to come. We never let up on them. We stayed on top of them the whole way and prevented them from doing what they wanted to do once we led 2-0. Our power play has been sour most of the series, but that was the key tonight. Getting the first goal was important."

Litter-Rosburg hold on for Legends win

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Gene Litter and Bob Rosburg won the fourth annual $410,000 Legends of Golf Sunday.

Despite a potentially disastrous doubles bogey on the 11th hole, they held off Australians Kel Nagle and Peter Thomson to capture the richest seniors tournament in the world.

Litter, playing in his first seniors event since reaching the age of 50 earlier this year, had teamed with Rosburg to build a four-stroke lead through the opening three rounds and had increased it to five shots after nine holes of play over the Onion Creek Country Club course.

But after both contending teams birdied the 10th hole, the race suddenly grew tight when both Litter and Rosburg put their tee shots on the par-3 11th in the creek fronting the green. That led to a double bogey, which in team play is often catastrophic.

At the same time Nagle ran in a seven-foot putt for a birdie to cut the Australians' deficit to two strokes.

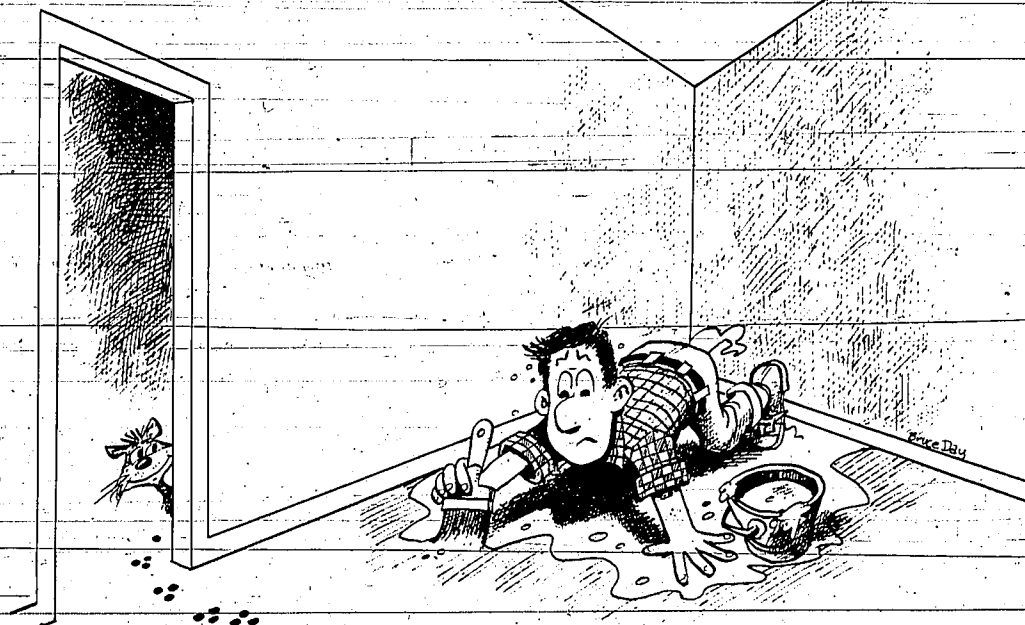

Through 16 holes, Litter and Rosburg had their lead back to three shots, but their bogey at the 18th combined with another birdie putt by Nagle left the margin at only one with two holes to play.

Litter finally removed any doubt in the chase by rolling in an eight-foot birdie putt at the par-three 17th. That gave Rosburg and Litter a two-stroke advantage and made it academic that Thomson birdied the final hole with a downhill 15-foot putt.

Rosburg, 54, and Litter each won $35,000 by firing their final-round 66 for a four-day total of 257. Nagle, 60, and Thomson, 51, fell short in their charge despite a round-of-62 on Sunday for a 72-hole score of 258. The Australians won $22,500 each.

Briefly in sports

Idahoan departs Boise for Indy 500
BOISE (UPI) - Boise's Ken Hamilton left Sunday on a trip he hopes will end with him becoming the first Idahoan to enter the Indianapolis 500.
Hamilton and his Idaho Special began the long haul toward the famed Indy brickyard. He intends to qualify for the May 24 race to culminate a life-long dream.
You bet I'm excited, but it's nothing to what it will be when we turn left on the freeway and actually head east," Hamilton said as he made final preparations for the journey.
Scheduled to arrive at Indianapolis Tuesday, Hamilton will learn whether he gets a chance to qualify for the race and then whether his car will be among the select 33 vehicles to start the race.
Of course, I have to pass my routine test before thinking about qualifying," Hamilton said. "But as of right now, I have no qualms about passing and I think I can put the car into the field."
Hamilton's indocrination will begin Friday with a meeting with USAC's director of competition, Roger McCluskey. Ironically, McCluskey finished fifth in the 1975 race. In the same car Hamilton will be seeking to put in this year's event.

Evert Lloyd quickly routs Navratilova
AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (UPI) - Top seed Chris Evert Lloyd took just 47 minutes Sunday to rout defending champion Martina Navratilova 6-0, 6-0 in the finals of the $250,000 Women's Tennis Association Championships.
The match was a complete turnaround from the last meeting between the two players in October in Tokyo when Navratilova stopped Evert in straight sets.
Evert, who collected $52,000, broke Navratilova's serve opening the match and easily won the second game to put the second-seeded Navratilova on the defensive the remainder of the match.

Shepherd easily captures Virginia 500
MARTINSVILLE, Va. (UPI) - Morgan Shepherd of Conover, N.C., solidified his rookie 15-year chances by winning his first Grand National race Sunday with a easy victory in the $100,000 Virginia 500.
Shepherd took his Pontiac around the .535-mile track at 78.052 mph, for a 24.323 payday. He finished 16.05 seconds ahead of Nell Bennett of Hueytown, Ala. Ricky Rudd of Chesapeake, Va., finished third at a record 38,000 fans watched at Martinsville Speedway.
Shepherd's victory came on the same track where he was married last fall, prior to winning the 1980 NASCAR Late-Model Sportsman championship.

Lendl beats Solomon; pockets $60,000
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) - Top-seeded Ivan Lendl defeated No. 2 seed Harold Solomon, 6-4, 6-2, in wind gusting to more than 40 mph Sunday to capture a $840,000 tennis tournament at Caesars Palace.
The victory was worth $60,000 to the 21-year-old Czechoslovakian, while Solomon took home $39,000. It was Lendl's fourth win without a loss against his American opponent this year.
The strong desert winds, gusting to 44 mph, proved to be a bigger hindrance for Solomon than for the stronger Lendl.
Solomon jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first set. But Lendl quickly got on track, breaking Solomon twice in that set.
Solomon again jumped to a 2-0 edge in the second set. This time Lendl came back even stronger, breaking Solomon three times while winning six straight games.

Bucs, Superdome discuss club's move
PITTSBURGH (UPI) - Officials of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Louisiana Superdome met for two hours Sunday to discuss the possibility of moving the ballclub to New Orleans.
The move would give the city its first major-league baseball franchise.
We're available to talk more with New Orleans, but I still want to remain in Pittsburgh," Pirates President Don Galbreath said after the meeting with Superdome executive manager Cliff Wallace.
In the event of a move, the dome would serve the purpose it was built for 5 1/2 years ago - housing a major-league baseball club.
Whether the Pirates stay or not, Galbreath said, has a lot to do with the willingness of city officials to renegotiate the 40-year lease the Pirates signed in 1971 with Three Rivers Stadium.
I've wanted to deal with this lease for 2 1/2 years, and I get no response. I wonder if there is a message for me. I don't want to stay where I'm not wanted," he said.
