Closure effects rippling

BOISE (UPI) — A ripple effect from the planned Bunker Hill Co. shutdown has reached Spokane, Wash.

Washington Water Power Co. officials say they are concerned about the effect the closure will have on the utility.

"It will be a big loss," said Washington Water Power public information coordinator Stan Witter. "We're assessing it right now."

On Tuesday, the board of directors of Gulf Resources and Chemical Corp. in Houston decided to shut down the entire Bunker Hill operation by the end of the year because of heavy financial losses.

Bunker Hill Co. is the utility's largest customer, Witter said.

Its smelting and mining operations consume 20 percent of the utility's retail electric sales in Idaho and last year used 14 percent of its total sales in Idaho and eastern Washington, Idaho Public Utilities Commission spokesman Deanne Kloefer said.

The utility also expects to lose residential and business customers because the shutdown will put 2,100 people out of work, Witter said. Severe unemployment could force some workers to leave the area, which could reduce commercial needs for electricity, he said.

He said company workers made "payroll purchases in this area (eastern Washington) that are staggering."

The utility's revenues from Bunker Hill were about $5 million last year for 510 million kilowatt hours.

Bunker Hill also buys large amounts of natural gas from Washington Water Power, which also is a gas supplier. The mining operation last year used 14 percent of the utility's gas supply to produce 5.2 percent of its total industrial load in both states.

But Witter said the shutdown will not cause the company to abandon plans to increase electric supplies.

He said the utility will continue its attempts to win approval for a coal-fired plant at Creston, Wash. If approved, that plant would produce 400 units that would generate 500 megawatts of power.

The utility also will retain its 5 percent interest in a Washington nuclear plant, one of five controversial plants under construction.

Mine closure soon to be irreversible

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans said Friday officials have two to three weeks to find a buyer for Bunker Hill Co. before the process of closing the firm's mining and smelting operations in Kellogg is irreversible.

Calling the closure the "worst economic disaster" in Idaho's history, Evans signed Friday an executive order creating the Silver Valley Economic Task Force.

The group is charged with seeking ways to deal with the financial devastation expected to strike North Idaho's mining district if Bunker Hill closes.

Evans also said he sent telegrams Friday to President Reagan and Idaho's congressional delegation, urging the rescission of the Strategic Metals Reserve sale.

"The Strategic Metals Reserve sale decision has had a devastating effect on the price of silver, and the low price of silver is the major reason for the announced closure of the Bunker Hill mine and smelter."

Evans said the task force's primary responsibility was finding a buyer for Bunker Hill. He said members would be contacting companies throughout the country and perhaps the world in their search.

The task force is made up of 12 residents of the Silver Valley, representing business, mining, labor and government. The group, chaired by Dale Lavigne, held its first meeting Thursday and selected special committees, Evans said.

"I've never seen such enthusiasm in a community to pull themselves up by the bootstraps," Evans said.

On Tuesday, the board of directors of Gulf Resources and Chemical Corp. in Houston announced its decision to close operations at Bunker Hill, citing financial losses by the company during the first half of 1981 and expected losses in the future.

The closure, which would be effective Jan. 2, 1982, would put 2,100 people out of work.

Bunker Hill President Jack Kendrick had planned to meet with a potential buyer in Canada, but that meeting has been postponed, Evans said. He said Hecla Mining Co. also was working on a plan to purchase Bunker Hill.

Evans said he believed it was "most realistic" to believe a buyer could be found for Bunker Hill within two or three weeks.

He said the price being asked for Bunker Hill by Gulf Resources has "come down substantially from a year ago" to a "salvage price."

Lavigne, who was listening to the governor's news conference by speaker phone from Wallace, said Bunker Hill "isn't an operation that's so far down the tubes it can't be salvaged."

If the search for a buyer fails, however, the task force's second alternative is preparing a plan under which employees could be stock in Bunker Hill, essentially purchasing the company.

If that does not succeed, the task force would be faced with preparing for the actual closure of Bunker Hill, Evans said. But "we're not accepting that right now," Evans said.

Evans also criticized attempts to "politicize" the issue by two candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in the 1982 election.

House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, and Lt. Gov. Phil Batt, both of whom have announced their intentions to run for Evans' post, criticized Thursday the governor's proposals.

"I just hope we can set politics aside," Evans said. "I don't think the people of Kellogg or the people of Idaho appreciate any dogfighting at this time."

Olmstead said Friday the main reason for the closure was the cost of labor, but Evans said Kendrick told him while he was in Kellogg Thursday the primary cause was the loss of $2 million to $3 million a month because of low silver prices.

The governor also said he had never supported a severance tax on minerals but had supported such a tax on gas and oil.

"I don't think its very wise at this stage of the state's history and growth to saddle the mining industry" with a severance tax, Evans said.

Officials begin to control 38,230-acre fire near Dubois

DUBOIS, Idaho (UPI) — A range fire near the eastern Idaho community of Dubois grew to 38,230 acres Friday, but officials said they were gaining an upper hand on the blaze.

About 50 women and children at the U.S. Sheep Experiment Station near Dubois were evacuated Thursday night when the fire raged toward the facility. Initial reports from Idaho State Police dispatcher Carol Greenup and Bureau of Land Management officials said Thursday the town of Spencer also had been evacuated Thursday night. They said Friday, however, that no formal evacuation order had been issued for that community, although some residents did flee the area as flames approached.

"People were advised to leave," Ms. Greenup said Friday. ISP "officers talked to them about leaving, and the people did leave for the most part."

BLM-Idaho Falls District spokeswoman Hester Pulling said electricity had been restored to the town of Spencer and traffic on the Union Pacific Railroad Co. lines also had resumed. She and Ms. Greenup said Thursday night that power had been shut off and trains halted before entering the area because the fire was burning electricity poles and railroad ties.

Ms. Pulling said fire bosses hoped to contain the blaze at about 6 p.m. Saturday. She said the 55 firefighters on the fire Friday built 45 miles of line around the blaze, but had three miles left to go before the blaze was encircled.

"But we've still got hot spots within the fire and along the southeast edge," she said, noting that containment would not be just a matter of building the three more miles of line.

She said the fire had charred 10,000 acres of BLM land, 15,730 of state and private land and 12,500 on the grounds of the U.S. Sheep Experiment Station. No damage to structures at the sheep station was reported, she said, although flames lapped within 20 feet of the facility's main pump house Thursday night.

She said Interstate 15, which was closed Thursday evening, had been opened for traffic again, and the highway was serving as a "good fire line" along the west side of the blaze.

Pulling said officials still had not determined what ignited the blaze. But she said attacks by the sheep station were conducting a controlled burn Thursday and noticed the range fire burning. She said they moved some of their people out to fight the range fire, and the controlled burn got out of hand.

Both of the blazes then merged, she said, and the fire quickly jumped to 20,000, then 35,000 acres due to 40 mile an hour gusts that hit the area Thursday.

Ms. Pulling said the BLM pulled crews off a fire burning near the Great Rift Lava flow Thursday, and that blaze then grew from 800-acres Thursday to 17,100 acres Friday night. Only 25 firefighters were on that fire Friday, she said.

Officials had hoped that fire would burn toward the lava flow, but she said it turned and was moving north with 1.5 miles of open flames Friday.

Firefighters in the Burley Bureau of Land Management district are well on their way to putting the fires in that area out.

According to Burley BLM spokeswoman Inez Hanna, the fire seven miles southeast of Declo was declared out at 5:30 Friday afternoon after destroying 4,160 acres of juniper and brush.

The 700-acre Harkness Creek fire three miles east of McCammon is under control with crews remaining on the scene to check hot spots.

U.S. has contingency plan for future attacks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Accusing North Korea of "international piracy" for a missile attack on a U.S. spy plane, the United States served notice Friday that American planes will continue such flights and it has "contingency plans" to protect them.

North Korea, in its first comment on Wednesday's incident, charged that the United States sent the high-flying SR-71 Blackbird into North Korean air space "to aggravate tension and start a new war in Korea." It denied firing the missile, which missed the plane by several miles.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said the government believes the account given by the U.S. pilot. "It's pretty hard to provoke a new war when somebody shoots something that explodes above your airplane and there is nobody else in the vicinity — which is to say hundreds of miles — who has the surface-to-air missiles, except North Korea," Weinberger said in an interview on the NBC "Today" program.

The defense secretary said the plane was in International or South Korean air space. "It's quite clear that you can't have this kind of international piracy continue," Weinberger said.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig told a news conference "it appears, and rather convincingly so, that North Korea fired the missile while the airplane was in international waters."

"We will continue to conduct these (reconnaissance) flights in accordance with past procedure and are ready to defend our airmen and aircraft," Haig said.

The White House confirmed that "contingency plans" exist for any future North Korean attack on U.S. reconnaissance planes.

Deputy Press Secretary Larry Speakes, speaking in Santa Barbara, Calif., supported a statement by White House counselor Edwin Meese that U.S. forces will take "whatever steps are necessary to assure the safety of its pilots and reconnaissance planes in any future attack by North Korea."

Meese told a news conference in Oakland, Calif., Thursday that "one option might be to take out the source of the rocket." Another possibility, he said, would be to provide an armed escort for the unarmed reconnaissance planes.

This, Speakes said, was "certainly reflecting our contingency policy."

Weinberger said "some kinds of measures" will be taken to discourage further attacks but specifics have not been decided. He said fighter escorts probably would not fly fast enough to keep up with the supersonic SR-71s.

The SR-71 is believed to be the most advanced reconnaissance plane in the world. It carries no arms but can outfly any North Korean plane or missile at speeds up to 2,000 mph and an altitude of up to 80,000 feet.

The best surface-to-air missiles North Korea is known to have, the Soviet-designed SAM-2, can reach only 59,000 feet.

Haig: U.S. will protect itself

Iranian calls for internal police

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — A leading Iranian clergyman called Friday on Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime, which once fought the shah's dreaded secret police, to create a strong internal intelligence agency to counter the growing force of opposition in the country, Tehran radio reported.

"The Koran approves of spying for an Islamic government," Ayatollah Meshkini, prayer leader of the holy city of Qom, was quoted as saying. "But our spies differ from the spies of the CIA and the superpowers."

Meshkini's call came as the radio said revolutionary guards arrested 42 more members of the leftist Mojahdeen Khalq guerrilla group in their crackdown against dissidents and that 30 others surrendered to authorities.

Meshkini, the target of a recent assassination attempt, said the Friday prayer gathering in Qom that even the first Shiite imam (religious leader), Ali, had planted spies in his caliphate in Arabia, the radio, monitored in Ankara, said.

Mute sent to mental hospital

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cook County Circuit Judge Joseph Schneider Friday ordered Donald Lang, a deaf mute accused of killing a prostitute, committed to a state mental hospital.

Lang, the subject of a made-for-television movie titled "Dummy," buried his head in his hands as he was informed of the decision in sign language.

"This is 'a slander on all deaf persons in this country,'" fumed Donald Paul, Lang's attorney. He said his client is not mentally ill and should be taught how to communicate well enough so he can stand trial.

Schneider ordered the Department of Mental Health to work out a specialized treatment program for Lang and report back to him within 30 days on Lang's progress.

In a seven-page opinion that followed a several-month-long commitment hearing, Schneider said Lang lacked the verbal skills necessary to make him fit for trial.

10 more missing elderly found

DETROIT (UPI) — Investigators said Friday they may have found 10 more elderly people who were shuttled unwillingly between nursing homes in Miami and Detroit by a woman who has been charged with kidnapping them.

The 10 latest boarding house residents were found Friday by police and social workers in a home in Detroit. It confirmed they were charges of Lucille Walker, that will bring to 24 the number of persons who were moved from Florida boarding homes to the Detroit area.

Speculating she has "fled Detroit to avoid prosecution," FBI agents have joined in the search for Ms. Walker, who also calls herself Cora Galvin — the name of her deceased mother — and several other aliases.

Officials earlier confirmed at least 14 elderly people, who had lived in Miami boarding homes operated by Ms. Walker, were discovered living in unlicensed boarding homes in Detroit.

Vancouver finds 10th victim

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (UPI) — Police investigating a wave of child killings said late Friday they had found the body of a young female in a remote area, bringing to 10 the number of murders in the past year.

The body was found just hours after the RCMP announced it had a suspect in custody who may be charged in as many as seven of the child killings.

The discovery was made about 400 yards from the cranberry field where the youngest victim of a dozen missing or dead youngsters was found Thursday. He was identified as Simon Partington, 9, of Surrey, B.C.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police superintendent Bruce Northrop told a news conference the latest body was believed that of a still unidentified female from a foreign country.

Indiana prisoners locked

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (UPI) — Inmates at the Indiana State Prison will remain locked in their cells this weekend because negotiations to resolve a five-day strike by prisoners failed, Department of Correction officials said Friday.

"The prison is going to continue in a lockdown status over the weekend, and we are going to continue searching cells," said Cloyd Shuler, director of the Department of Correction's adult authority.

"There will be no recreation periods at all, and the food will be brought to the cells," Shuler said. "All privileges will continue to be suspended."

"At this point, inmates seem to be fairly firm in their position, so we are just going to give them a chance to cool off," Shuler said. "We're hoping it will be resolved very soon."

Shark attacks Florida surfer

NEW SMYRNA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A shark attacked a 15-year-old surfer Thursday, slashing his left ankle and damaging the tendons in his leg, doctors said.

It was the third shark attack in two weeks off Florida's coasts and the 10th this year.

Stephen Drossick of Winter Park, Fla., had a gouge more than 6 inches long in his ankle left by the shark's teeth. Doctors said he would be hospitalized through the weekend.

Drossick said he was surfing off of a Volusia County beach south of New Smyrna Beach. He noticed dolphin and seagulls feeding on fish.

"As he headed toward shore, he fell off his surf board. Before he came to the surface he said he felt something bite his foot."

F-16s arrive at Air Force base

NEWINGTON, N.H. (UPI) — Four F-16 fighters arrived at Pease Air Force Base Friday, joining six others awaiting final delivery to Israel.

An Air Force spokesman at Pease said the "Fighting Falcon" jets arrived from the General Dynamics plant at Fort Worth, Texas, after a delay of several hours.

Luann Corrella said it appeared the fighters would receive their final orders to fly to Israel "sometime next week." All of the planes will be flown by U.S. pilots.

"The shipments to Israel were halted earlier by President Reagan following the Israeli bombing of an Iraqi nuclear plant and Palestine Liberation Organization stronghold in Beirut, Lebanon.

But the embargo was lifted Aug. 17 and three F-15 "Eagle" fighters took off for Israel last Tuesday.

Harvey's suspect pleads bail

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — A former Hungarian "freedom fighter" held on $2 million bail as the prime suspect in the extortion bombing of a Lake Tahoe hotel-casino Friday pleaded for lower bail, saying he feared for his life in jail.

John Birges Sr., 59, appeared with three co-defendants before U.S. Magistrate Phyllis Halsey Atkins. Birges and the other three — each under $1 million bond — asked the judge to set a bond they might reasonably be expected to afford.

They were indicted for a plot to extort $3 million from Harvey's Wagon Wheel Hotel-casino at Stateline by planting a huge bomb disguised as office equipment.

N.Y. loses afternoon paper

NEW YORK (UPI) — The final editions of the New York Daily News' afternoon newspaper Tonight rolled off the presses Friday, saying good night but not goodbye to the readers it won in a year of publication.

"Thousands of readers bought this paper," Tonight editor Dick Oliver said in a front-page letter. "But their support — their tremendous loyalty — was not enough."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig said Friday the United States will take the "necessary measures" to protect its military aircraft on legitimate missions from attacks by Libyan and North Korean forces.

Haig said American fighters downed two Libyan warplanes last week following "high-risk provocations" by Libya's radical government. He said the missile that North Korea fired at a U.S. reconnaissance plane Wednesday was another in a long history of provocations against American forces.

The incidents were unfortunate, the secretary of state told a news conference in the United States will fail to carry out its legitimate military missions.

"All I can say is we are going to continue to conduct our flights in accordance with past procedures and we will take the necessary measures to protect our pilots and aircraft," he said.

Haig said the SR-71 Blackbird spy plane was on a routine flight in legitimate air space when targeted by the North Koreans' Soviet-built missile. The missile came only several miles from the supersonic aircraft.

"There was nothing unusual about this in terms of past Korean performance," Haig said. "In the case of this instance, it's far too early to say it was an isolated incident or if we're going to see more."

Haig also said leftist guerrillas in El Salvador are warning against innocent combatants through destruction of the small country's power system; that conditions in Poland have improved in part because the Soviets political ease of a possible invasion; and that the South African incursion into Angola must be viewed in the context of Cuban and Soviet assistance to the black-majority country.

Haig had no apologies for staging 6th Fleet exercises last week in an area of the Gulf of Sidra claimed by Libya's Col. Moammar Khadafi. The Navy F-14s were taking part in the exercises when Libyan fighters attacked them.

"I think the situation in the bay off Libya was a test that was made of the proper legal exercise or use of international waters and air space," the former four-star general and NATO commander said.

"As I say, in the past there have been similar near-misses or what I call high-risk provocations taken by Libya and their forces, and not exclusively against U.S. forces exercising their legitimate rights," Haig said.

Leftist guerrillas in El Salvador are "resorting to straight terrorism" against innocent non-combatants by attacking the nation's power system and other services. Cuba and the Soviet Union are supporting the guerrillas and the United States, if necessary, will "go to the source" of the problem.

"The United States deplores any violence in southern Africa, regardless of its source. But the South African incursion into southern Angola this week should be viewed with the recognition that large numbers of Cuban forces and Soviet advisers have been in Angola for years, supplied with large quantities of arms from Moscow. The United States is committed to independence for South West Africa, also known as Namibia.

"The administration was 'pleasantly surprised' that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin agreed to resume the stalled Palestinian Autonomy Talks next month. No American representative to the talks has been named.

Three Mile Island owners face bankruptcy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The threat of bankruptcy still hangs over the General Public Utilities Corporation, more than two years after the accident at the company's Three Mile Island nuclear reactor, congressional authors reported Friday.

The General Accounting Office told Congress GPU needs about $400 million in new financing if it is to pay off bonds maturing over the next four years.

The GAO also pointed out Pennsylvania and New Jersey officials the primary responsibility for ending an impasse over who should pay for the cleanup "rightfully rests" with them.

It is "extremely doubtful," the GAO said, that the company can borrow needed funds on the capital market so long as the firm and its stockholders are held solely responsible for paying the cleanup costs.

Saving the company from insolvency, the report said, will require "unprecedented coordination and commitment" by both state and federal regulatory agencies, the electric utility, the financial community and the owners of the damaged reactor.

The GAO report said the Pennsylvania Utilities Commission's approval of a rate increase in April gave the company a possibility of bankruptcy for GPU's Metropolitan Edison subsidiary.

But the GAO said bankruptcy actions against GPU are still possible if it cannot get short-term financing when a revolving credit agreement with several banks expires on October 1, or if Met Ed cannot pay taxes due next April.

"If that obligation is met, the potential for default again exists if one or more of the GPU companies cannot meet bond refinancing obligations beginning in 1983," the report said.

The GAO found the Pennsylvania commission's refusal to let GPU use revenues from its customers to help pay cleanup costs is a "complicating factor" in efforts to solve the company's financial problems.

GAO said both Pennsylvania and New Jersey officials "should take the leadership role in assembling the financial assistance needed for the cleanup."

Heavily guarded Hinckley pleads not guilty to shooting

Saturday, Aug. 12, 1981. Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-3

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Hinckley Jr., subdued and wearing a bullet-proof vest, pleaded innocent Friday to charges he tried to kill President Reagan.

His lawyer and the government agreed he was competent to stand trial.

No trial date was set for the 26-year-old drifter son of a Colorado oilman, though pretrial motions begin next month and should be completed around mid-October.

Hinckley, his blond hair neatly cut and wearing a dark blue suit, white shirt and white bullet-proof vest, stood silently before U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker as the 13-count indictment against him was read aloud.

"How do you today wish to plead to this indictment?" court clerk Betty Flynn asked.

"Not guilty," Hinckley replied in a clear, low voice — the only words he spoke in court.

As the half-hour hearing ended, Hinckley turned and waved to his parents, John and Joan Hinckley of Evergreen, Colo., who sat silently in the spectators' section of the packed courtroom. Only his mother waved back.

Vincent Fuller, Hinckley's lawyer, told the judge defense psychiatrists believe Hinckley is competent to stand trial on charges he shot Reagan, press secretary James Brady and two law enforcement officers in Washington March.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger Adelman agreed there was no information Hinckley was "not competent."

However, Hinckley's state of mind at the time of the shooting and the question of his sanity are expected to be issues in the case against him.

Parker granted Fuller's request to give defense psychiatrists 30 days to complete their examination of Hinckley. Fuller said he has not yet decided whether to use insanity as a defense.

Parker ordered Fuller to file pre-trial motions by Sept. 28 and the government to respond by Oct. 16. He did not set a trial date.

Fuller told Parker he plans to file several pretrial motions in the case, including one relating to pretrial publicity and possibly a motion to postpone the trial.

Parker scheduled a hearing Tuesday on a request for bail and a defense motion to bar U.S. marshals from reading Hinckley's personal papers and documents during regular searches of his jail cell.

Hinckley, ringed by armed guards, was hustled into the heavily guarded federal courthouse shortly after midnight for the arraignment that began about 10 a.m. EDT. He had been imprisoned at the Marine base at Quantico, Va.

Speclators entering the courthouse walked through a metal detector and then lined up and passed through a second metal detector before entering the wood-paneled courtroom. Purses and briefcases were searched.

A Justice Department spokesman said a "decoy" motorcade was used as a security precaution after the hearing.

The "decoy" left the courthouse at 12:30 p.m. EDT, but Hinckley did not actually leave the building until two hours later for Fort Meade, Md., about 20 miles from Washington.

Politicians want more spraying

By United Press International

Politicians demanded Friday — over the protests of scientists — that aerial spraying be stepped up to rid California's $14 billion fruit and vegetable crops of the Mediterranean fruit fly.

Rep. Leon D. Panetta, D-Calif., joined Republican Sen. S.I. Hayakawa in demanding an immediate preventive spray campaign aimed at protecting uninterested regions.

"California faces billions of dollars in losses" from the fruit fly infestation, Panetta, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, said.

He urged "a bipartisan effort by the California congressional delegation and the entire congress to deal with the Medfly infestation threatening much of California's agriculture industry."

Economists at the University of California issued a report Friday estimating the cost of the state's Medfly war this year at more than $1 billion. They said if the infestation was not halted the cost of control would be about $750 million a year and would raise prices for the state's produce about 8 percent.

Panetta, in a statement issued from his Washington office, said, "I believe the only way ultimately to contain rather than simply keep chasing the Medfly is to encourage preventive spraying."

He said farmers and local officials at his Monterey County district "are interested in limited spraying to stop further infestation." He said he was exploring "federal aid for such efforts."

Panetta thus joined Republican Hayakawa who earlier this week called for preventive spraying of the entire San Joaquin Valley.

State Medfly experts disagreed that preventive spraying was necessary. An advisory technical committee of 15 scientists Friday recommended it.

A spokesman said the scientists believe there was no point in "limited" preventive spraying because, if there is no infestation it isn't necessary, and if there is a hidden infestation it would not be controlled by one or two sprayings.

Medfly officials also feared the political involvement would be overwhelming. "We are reaching the limits on equipment and supplies of bait," a spokesman said.

Nixon loses in court battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Nixon lost round two Friday in his battle to avoid a court date.

The case involves more than $1 million in damages for wiretapping a White House security aide.

The Supreme Court — in a one-line order — refused to reject Nixon's appeal in a case involving Morton Halperin, former National Security Council adviser whose home telephone was wiretapped for 21 months in an effort to uncover leaks of confidential foreign policy information.

Last June, the court tied 4-4 in the case, automatically upholding a lower-court's ruling in favor of Halperin. The tie resulted when Justice William Rehnquist, a former high Justice Department official under Nixon, declined to take part in the case.

Rehnquist also excused himself from deciding whether the court should rehear the Nixon case. The court then reconsidered a case after a ruling is handed down. The significance of its action Friday is to remove the final obstacle to the court's judgment being sent to the lower courts.

Saturn should return into view for Voyager 2's camera

1981 Chicago Sun-Times
PASADENA, Calif. — Voyager 2 will resume its picture taking chores, mission director Richard Laeser announced Friday. Officials experienced a two-day blackout due to a mechanical failure in its camera pointing system.
"I come here today with a little smile on my face," Laeser said at a news briefing, "because there is a good chance that Saturn will be on our screens by the end of the day."

Unable to fix the spacecraft's scan platform so that cameras could be aimed accurately and reliably, technicians at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here have devised an alternative way of pointing cameras by moving the entire spacecraft. Laeser explained.

This procedure was discussed as a possibility soon after the malfunction was detected early Wednesday. But it was not put into effect as long as there was reasonable hope of repairing the balky mechanism in time to take a crucial set of pictures late next week.
Using the roll axis of the entire spacecraft as a substitute for the scan platform (horizontal) axis of the scan platform will enable Voyager to get pictures Sept. 4 of the remote Saturnian moon Phoebe, which has never been photographed at close range.

Diagnostic tests aimed at pinpointing the scan-platform problem and correcting it are continuing, Laeser said. One of these tests, if successful, will get Saturn back on TV screens.
The test involves a slow and careful movement of the platform in the azimuth (side-to-side) direction. This is the axis of scan platform movement that has been causing trouble.

It is possible to move the platform side-to-side, but results are unpredictable, Laeser said. If the test works as planned, Laeser said, "what you should see is a wide-angle picture of Saturn, centered on the screen."
Laeser said he is still unable to pinpoint the cause of the malfunction.

but added that the best bet is that "we may have something stuck in the gears."
He would not speculate on what that "something" might be, or how or when it got there. Performance of the balky gear train is improving with time, Laeser said. But he emphasized that the trouble cannot be emphasized fixed.

Government steps up controller action

By United Press International
Legal actions against striking air traffic controllers mounted Friday and the government said it still intends to prosecute some strikers.
A letter from the organization said Traffic Controllers Organization said the union, will appeal any convictions of its members.
The Canadian government said the Federal Aviation Administration refused to let its government and union controllers tour FAA facilities in Cleveland and in Anchorage, Alaska.
In Washington, the FAA insisted the invitation was issued to the Canadian government only and not to union controllers.
The controllers struck Aug. 3 and about 11,400 of them were fired or disobeying Reagan's back-to-work order. The FAA is now running the air traffic control system with supervisors, non-strikers and military controllers.

Justice Department spokesman John Russell said the agency has authorized local prosecutors to seek 75 indictments on charges of violating the no-strike law, which bars a person from taking or holding a federal job if he "participates in a strike or asserts the right to strike against the government."
"At this time, unless there's a signal from higher up," the government intends to seek convictions on the felony charge, said Russell.
He added the government has not yet determined if jail terms will be sought for convictions.
In New Orleans, six strikers were convicted Friday of criminal contempt of court for ignoring a back-to-work order. The federal judge said he would not sentence the men to more than six months in jail.

In Denver, a federal judge ordered two local strike leaders who were convicted of contempt to perform 200 hours of service in the Denver Veterans Hospital. The conviction of a third union leader was set aside when the judge learned he had been on a one-year leave of absence when the strike began.
All three men still face charges of violating the no-strike law.
In Boston, three indictments on charges of violating the no-strike statute were returned late Thursday. Each of the three controllers was charged with "participating" in a strike against the United States while employed by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Also, Russell said the department will examine a complaint filed by a government-employees' union that the FAA wrongly let controllers accept free food and drink from airlines while on duty.
A spokesman for the Canadian transportation agency, Transport Canada, said the agency asked the FAA to let government and union representatives visit FAA facilities to assure the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association that, counter to CATCA claims, the U.S. skies are safe.
"We were told government officials were welcome but the union was not," said spokesman Dave Austin.
"They think air safety is for governments to decide."

Governor objects to Nevada as site for MX

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — Nevada Republican Gov. Robert List said Friday he would object to basing the MX missile in his state, saying Nevadans oppose the idea 2 to 1.
List, who met with presidential counselor Edwin Meese and chief of staff James Baker, told reporters that the people of Nevada recognize that President Reagan "has an enormous responsibility to rearm the country."
"Our concern is that Nevada not be placed on the sacrificial altar of national defense, and we don't think there is need for that," he said.

List said basing the MX missile in the Nevada desert would have a "negative impact" and would be a drain on the state's land and water resources. He said the so-called "race track" system proposed by the Carter administration but apparently ruled out by Reagan is "unrealistic."
"If the president decided that if after all is said and done, it was absolutely essential" to station the MX missile in Nevada, List said, he hoped there would be only a minimum number of missiles and that they would be placed on a military base.

"Then we could swallow them," he said.
List said that he believes the plans under consideration "can be scaled way down."
The MX is designed to thwart an attempt by an adversary to wipe out the U.S. nuclear arsenal in one massive strike.
Reagan is expected to make a decision on deployment of the MX within a month. He is weighing options that include proposals to base the missiles on land, on submarines or on airplanes.

One option aides say has been ruled out is the "race track" proposal involving shuttling 200 missiles among 4,600 shelters dug in the Nevada and Utah desert. Reagan political allies in those states, including Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., Reagan's closed congressional confidant, are opposed.

Jones beat followers, escapee tells court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Peoples Temple leader Jim Jones would become so enraged when a follower asked to see a family member or visit the United States, he would impose such cruel punishment as beatings and threats with guns and hissing snakes, a defector testified Friday.
Dale Parks, who escaped from the cult's jungle colony with those members of Rep. Leo Ryan's investigative group who survived an airport ambush, told the jury in the conspiracy trial of temple aide Larry Layton he was never subjected to the torture but saw others suffer physical indignations.
Layton, 35, is on trial in San Francisco U.S. District Court on charges of conspiring with other temple members to murder Ryan, D-Calif., to keep conditions at Jonestown from becoming public.
Parks, a 30-year-old respiratory therapist, said sometimes 15 men would seriously injure a recalcitrant cultist so badly, he would have to be hospitalized in the primitive jungle clinic.
There, other temple members would taunt him with guns and wrap hissing snakes around his head. The physical abuse would be followed by work duty on a "learning crew," consisting of hard work in the hot sun with constant verbal abuse from a loyal supervisor.
Defense attorney Tony Tamburello prodded Parks into recalling the abuse above constant objections from the prosecution as to the relevance of the testimony.
Parks, who worked in the medical clinic at Jonestown, was at first reluctant to talk about the amount of drugs stockpiled at Jonestown but, on cross-examination, admitted large quantities were in the area.

When confronted with his testimony before a grand jury in Jan., 1978, Parks admitted he had said there were enough drugs in Jonestown to "negotiate" for the entire country of Guyana — with a population of 850,000.
Although he said Layton was using an anti-depressant drug in combination with a potent pain killer, Parks said "He was walking around and functioning just like the rest of us."
After the shooting on the airstrip, Parks said, Layton was walking and talking normally and did not appear to be mentally unbalanced.
To counter the view of Layton as a mentally balanced Tamburello asked: "Were you a member of a CIA plot to destroy the Peoples Temple on November 18, 1978."
"No sir," replied Parks.
"Mr. Layton insisted that you were. No further questions, your honor," Tamburello said.
Tamburello has called several temple defectors to the stand, asking them to recount their version of the horrors of life in Jonestown in an apparent attempt to lay the groundwork for showing the pressure under which Layton attempted to kill two defectors during the waning hours of the cult's existence.
Parks' testimony began Friday's session after a dramatic moment Thursday when Layton was brought face-to-face with a defector on the witness stand, who was describing the airstrip shooting.

McNeill was not murdered, examiner says after autopsy

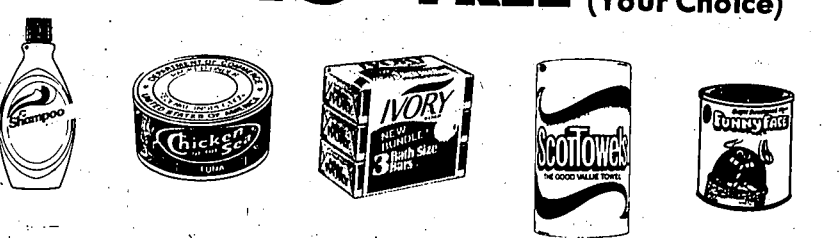

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dennis McNeill, whose two missing brothers brought about the downfall of CIA spy master Max Hugel, was not murdered but died of natural causes, the medical examiner ruled Friday.
As prosecutors closed their books on the death of Dennis McNeill, the FBI pressed a search for Thomas and Samuel McNeill who disappeared last month — apparently with $3 million of their company's funds.
District Attorney John Santucci said an autopsy performed in Augusta, Maine, disclosed no evidence of trauma or violence in the death of McNeill, who the report listed as liver failure at a hospital in New York June 1.
His death came one week after his brothers went to the Washington Post with accusations that Hugel, then deputy CIA director, had engaged in improper business practices before being named to head the agency's spy operations earlier this year.
Although the cause of McNeill's death had been originally listed as liver failure, "it was suspected he might have been murdered. Santucci launched his investigation and obtained the permission to perform an autopsy after a director of the missing McNeill brother's company reported the possibility of foul play.

After the autopsy, Santucci said, however, "There was evidence of trauma, his spleen was not ruptured and the cause of death was natural causes."
New York City Chief Medical Examiner Elliot Gross, who performed the autopsy in Maine Thursday, said the death was due to "natural causes, shock, hemorrhage ultimately from a liver condition."
Santucci received permission from Maine authorities to exhume McNeill's body from a Bridgton, Maine cemetery after members of the McNeill family failed in a legal attempt to block the move.
The McNeill brothers disappeared in July along with an estimated $3 million in assets from their New York-based Triad Energy Corp. after the Washington Post published their allegations against Hugel.
A former New Hampshire electronics executive, Hugel denied the charges and resigned his CIA post soon afterward.
The McNeill family attorney, John Whitman, said he had been in contact with one of the missing brothers, but he did not know where they were hiding.

Time hinders safe search

First Andrea Doria safe closely guarded

BOSTON (UPI) — Divers fought against time Friday in their search for a second safe hidden in the 25-year-old wreckage of the luxury liner Andrea Doria.

Crewman guarded one safe already hauled up from the wreck. Peter Gimbel, organizer of the expedition to the wreckage 50 miles off the coast of Nantucket, plans to end salvage operations Monday. Lillian Pickard, Gimbel's spokesman, said.

A team of six divers, working in extended shifts from a submerged capsule since the $30,000-a-day expedition began in early August, found the first safe Wednesday. The safes are believed to contain more than $1 million in valuables and jewelry.

"They will probably come up from diving Monday," Ms. Pickard said. The Sea Level 11, Gimbel's operations vessel, is expected to arrive Wednesday in Montauk on the tip of New York's Long Island.

Gimbel, 53, a department store heir, has made dozens of dives to the Doria since the liner sank July 25, 1956, after being struck by the Swedish liner Stockholm in thick fog. Fifty people died in the crash.

The treasure-seekers found the first, rust-encrusted, unopened safe in a mass of crumbling debris in the ship's first-class lounge.

The Banco Di Roma safe, weighing about two tons and measuring 3-feet by 5-feet by 2-feet, was raised to the Sea Level 11 where it is being held in a container encasing it in seawater, Ms. Pickard said.

Kenneth Wilkerson, captain of the Sea Level 11, said crewmen on the operations boat are "guarding it with their lives."

Gimbel, who is making a documentary film about the expedition, may open the safe on live television, Ms. Pickard said.

Although no one knows what is contained in the safe, legal scholars have said ownership of any booty is unclear.

Officials of Chubb Industries Inc., a King of Prussia, Pa., firm which holds documents dealing with the safes aboard the Andrea Doria, said there may be as many as 16 lost safes.

The safes were distributed throughout the ship, said Michael J. Dempsey, Chubb's president. Chubb obtained the safe documents when it bought Lips-Vago Safe Co., the firm that made the containers in 1970.

Ms. Pickard said Gimbel's team has only discussed two safes.

Regardless of whether a second safe is found, Wilkerson said the expedition has been a success.

"As Elga Andersen (Gimbel's actress wife) said, 'We've paid for every step we've taken,'" he said. "We've now everybody's 'feeling great.' We accomplished our first goal."

He said divers hoped the weather would hold through the weekend so they could find the other safe.

Kirkland raps Reagan economics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland said Friday President Reagan presides over a government whose aim is to enhance the powerful and wealthy and let other Americans "compete for crumbs from the table of the rich."

Kirkland, bristling over the president's firing of 12,000 striking members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, said the current administration is worse than the prior Republican administrations of Richard Nixon or Gerald Ford.

During an interview on United Press International Audio's "Roundtable" program, Kirkland said he expects the administration to resume bargaining with the controllers when Reagan realizes the American public is being hurt. "The administration, I think, will change its position when it begins to realize that they are going down a dead-end street, that it is going to lead to consequences that, in fact, are a punishment not of the members of PATCO, who are on strike, but a punishment of the public at large for the alleged offenses of the controllers," Kirkland said.

Kirkland defended plans by the 15 million-member labor federation to sponsor a "Solidarity Day" demonstration Sept. 19 in Washington to protest the administration's economic and social policies.

He said the response "has been encouraging" but refused to predict how many would attend.

"Now we have a government that takes it as its function to enhance the power of the powerful and enhance the riches of the rich," Kirkland said. "It's a government dominated by a principle of 'economic Darwinism' based on the survival of the richest and leaving the other elements of the population to compete for crumbs from the tables of the rich."

"We now have a government which attempts... to operate on the principle that the government of the United States is your enemy and not your friend and that its mission is to dismantle it to the greatest extent possible except in those areas where it is (of) service to corporations and to the rich and the powerful."

Cooke at base awaiting court-martial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Second Lt. Christopher Cooke is to await a court-martial next week on charges he passed military secrets to the Soviet Union.

Wearing a blue U.S. Air Force uniform, Cooke waved to reporters but made no comment as he stepped from an Air Force jet at the suburban Maryland base.

Cooke, who came from McConnell Air Force Base in Kansas, was accompanied by several military security guards who promptly took him by car to Fort Meade, an Army base 20 miles north in a more remote region of Maryland.

He is to be returned to Andrews when his court-martial starts Wednesday, Air Force sources said.

The 26-year-old Virginia native was picked up at his parents' Richmond, Va., home on May 5. The former deputy commander of a Titan II launch crew near McConnell, he was placed in official custody on May 28.

Supreme Court OKs closed pretrial hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court — with only one justice objecting — declined Friday to stand in the way of closed pretrial hearings in the case of a man accused of killing as many as a dozen blacks.

News organizations in Buffalo, N.Y., had asked the court to block closed door hearings for Army Pvt. Joseph Christopher, a Buffalo man accused of the "22 caliber killings" of several blacks.

A state trial judge ordered the secret hearings to protect Christopher's right to a fair trial. The sessions, which had gone on for two weeks earlier this month, will resume Monday.

The court's brief decision was a blow to the press. Two years ago, the Supreme Court had ruled that such pre-trial sessions could be closed to the press and public. But last year's Richmond newspapers decision that there was a constitutional right to open trials gave the media hope there would be fewer secret pretrial proceedings.

Earlier this month, the Buffalo Evening News, WKBW-TV and WIVB-TV asked Justice Thurgood Marshall to stop the court sessions on Christopher's case until they could make a full scale appeal to the New York Court of Appeals, the state's highest court.

Marshall referred the case to the full Supreme Court which apparently conferred by telephone to reach the decision rejecting the pleas of the news media.

Only Justice William Brennan said he would give granted the request.

Three other justices objected to the court's refusal to allow the media to file the application for stay under a seal. Justices Harry Blackmun, Lewis Powell and John Paul Stevens indicated they would have allowed the papers to be presented to the court in secret.

Lawyers for the New York attorney general's office told the court the hearings are closed to reporters because a court must "minimize the effects of pretrial publicity."

"The trial court made its decision (to close the hearings) on the basis that while constitutional rights were involved, they were outweighed by the defendant's right to a fair trial," the prosecutors argued.

Christopher, 26, is scheduled to go to trial on Sept. 8. He was arrested while stationed at Fort Benning, Ga. where he was accused of stabbing a black soldier.

Soldier receives discharge over right to not bare arms

FORT RILEY, Kan. (UPI) — A soldier who faced a court martial because his religion forbade him to roll up his shirt sleeves has been awarded a discharge, a U.S. Army spokesman said Friday.

Spec. 4 Jesse Meadows, 29, was given a general discharge under honorable conditions — which is between an honorable and a dishonorable discharge — for failing to bare his arms during physical training.

Meadows, a follower of the United Pentecostal Church, refused to roll up his sleeves because his religion forbids him from unduly exposing his body when women are present, a spokesman said.

The discharge was approved Wednesday by Fort Riley's commander, Maj. Gen. Edward Partain, but Meadows remained on the base Friday awaiting completion of paperwork.

Meadows had refused to roll up his sleeves after receiving orders from the troop commander, the squadron executive officer and the battalion commander.

Meadows, who has been with the Army 12 years, faced a special court martial because of his refusal to follow orders. But last Friday he requested the discharge "for the good of the service," the spokesman said.

"Meadows failed to comply with the 1st Infantry Division's uniform policy, apparently because of his religious beliefs which oppose unduly exposing the body in mixed company," said public information officer Donna Beach.

Meadows' brother, William, said he expected him to return to his hometown of Royalton, Ill., where his father is minister of a Pentecostal church.

A thought for the day: American writer Bret Harte said, "One big vice in a man is apt to keep out a great many smaller ones."

Hostages kept their teeth clean

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicken bones, twigs, rock-riddled food and the belief that doing anything was better than doing nothing helped 32 American hostages keep their teeth in good shape during their stay in Iran, dentists said Friday.

Three Air Force dentists, reporting in the September Journal of the American Dental Association, said the hostages described Iranian toothpaste as "foul-tasting" but still brushed their teeth "from three to six times daily."

"This probably resulted from the excessive availability of time, the desire to leave their areas of confinement and the fear of developing painful dental problems," said the dentists, who examined the hostages in Weisbaden, West Germany, after their release Jan. 20.

The report also said the hostages were quite inventive in making their own dental floss.

One of the hostages who did not have floss "used chicken bones and twigs to clean (his teeth)," the report said.

Several other hostages used nylon strands from the ropes used to blind them and one group of hostages "shared a single strip of dental floss for many days," the report said.

Chips of rocks and bone fragments were often found in the hostages' food, which led them to master another technique in preserving their teeth — to "chew very carefully," the dentists wrote.

BUFFALO BITES BACK

Don't insult a Buffalo, it may bite. Buffalo, N.Y., that is. TV broadcaster Morley Safer found out the hard way that Buffalo will stand still only so long for gratuitous jokes. Safer had to visit the city in person this week to apologize. It all began when the CBS-TV correspondent made some snide remarks in a commentary on Chinese chefs who learn American-style cooking in Buffalo. That brought a flurry of angry mail and an invitation to tour the city and sample its food from the Buffalo Area Chamber of Commerce. "You've shamed me, really," Safer told a friendly Buffalo crowd on "Morley Safer Day." "Here I was expecting a scaffold and an angry mob."

ADAMSON'S KILLER

A teenage employee fired by wildlife expert Joy Adamson has been convicted in Kenya of killing the famous author of the "Born Free" books about Elsa the lioness. Mrs. Adamson, 69, was found dead Jan. 3, 1980. It first was believed she had been mauled by a lion. Paul Nakwale Ekai, a Turkana native fired by Mrs. Adamson shortly before the killing, did not receive the death sentence because he is under 21. He was ordered jailed "at the president's pleasure," meaning that he can never be freed without a special order from President Daniel Arap Moi.

GIRL CIGARS

Actor Richard "John Boy" Thomas returns to his Broadway role in "Fifth of July" Monday, after taking a few days off to have triplets. Thomas left abruptly for Los Angeles last week when he learned his wife Alma, expecting twins, was in labor. Everyone was astonished when she gave birth to three girls. Thomas promises to hand out 1,300 cigars to the entire audience on Monday — Muriel Cigars, in honor of his daughters.

THE COST OF MODESTY

A 29-year-old soldier has been discharged after 12 years service because his religion forbade him to roll up his shirt sleeves during physical training. Spec. A Jesse Meadows was given a general discharge under honorable conditions — which is between an honorable and a dishonorable discharge — because the United Pentecostal Church, to which he belongs, bans men members from having their bodies unduly in the presence of women. Meadows originally faced a special court martial at Fort Riley, Kas., but opted for discharge "for the good of the service."

WEDDING CANCELED

Susan Atkins, the Manson family member once ordered executed for the Tate-LaBianca slayings, has postponed plans to marry Texan millionaire Donald Laisure this Sunday at the California Institute for Women at Frontera, Calif. No reason was given. Miss Atkins, 33, is serving a life prison term for her role in the slayings of actress Sharon Tate and six other persons in August 1969. She escaped the death sentence when California's Supreme Court overturned the state's capital punishment law. Laisure, 52, claims he has the support of nearly 40 U.S. senators in a plan to convince President Reagan to grant her executive clemency.

Skateboarder determined to set record

HESPERIA, Calif. (UPI) — A teenage daredevil who wants to set a speed record racing down a mountain highway on a skateboard postponed his quest Friday on the advice of his recently-acquired Hollywood publicist.

"I was going to do it this weekend, but my press agent said it was too soon," Michael Coyer said. "Different companies want me to represent them so I have to get new equipment."

The 19-year-old plasterer from tiny Hesperia barreled down Interstate 15 in the Cajon Pass near San Bernardino last month at an estimated 75 mph. He was spotted and stopped by a California Highway officer who ticketed the youth not for speeding but for misusing the roadway.

Coyer is currently looking for another highway to make his official bid to break the 71 mph skateboard record and gain a spot in the Guinness Book of World Records. He hopes to make the run Sept. 18.

"I also have to get new wheels and a truck and some new leather pants," he said.

The Highway Patrol has warned Coyer that he could be arrested if he attempts the stunt.

"The main thing we're concerned with is the person's safety and to prevent him from trying something like he did at Cajon Pass," CHP spokesman Lance Erickson said. "If I had fallen or anything went wrong, he would have been killed or seriously injured."

Improve health and appearance today; use time for hobby

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to improve your health and vitality. Take time to engage in your favorite hobby. You can improve your appearance and become more popular with others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. The afternoon and evening is best spent with congenials.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day for enjoying those pleasures for which you seldom have time. Health treatments can improve your appearance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure that things at home are running smoothly, before you venture forth in outside pursuits. Express happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use care in motion and avoid possible accident. Visit friends and relatives and have a good time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make the improvements that are necessary in the home. Be more willing to sun with others in outside activities.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Improve yourself in many ways now that you have more time to think about your affairs. Show that you have wisdom.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Eliminating whatever has kept you from advancing is wise now. Strive to become more efficient in regular routines.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Combining your work efforts with an associate could bring fine results in the future. Catch up with your reading.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good day to express a fine talent in a public place and gain benefits. Think alike more practical ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may have to travel some in order to obtain the information you need for a plan you have in mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Doing whatever will bring greater happiness to you and loved one is wise to do. Plan how to become more successful.

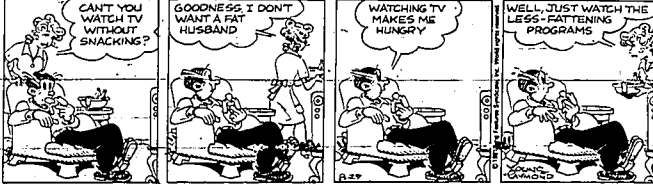

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Meet with associates and discuss joint projects that could lead to greater success in the future. Show that you are versatile.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will want everything in its proper place, and especially will dislike disharmony in the home. Education should be directed along professional lines such as medicine and law. Don't neglect ethical training.

What's what Language negative

"Evidible" is a good word, but you rarely hear it. People are negative. They say, "Inevitable," "Corrigible" is all right, too. But you only hear "Incorrigible." "Delible" is a fine word, but what you hear is "Indelible." Likewise never "dormible," only "Indormible," and not "biotic," just "antibiotic." Same with "descript," it's always "nondescript." Too bad.

Winston Churchill as a youth both stammered and lipped, so he became a great speaker. Lord Byron was born with a deformed foot, so he became not just a poet but quite an athlete, the first modern man to swim the Hellespont. How many of these classic "overcompensation" cases do you call to mind? Quite a few, most probably.

ACE THE BIBLE

Ethiopian Emperor Menelik II was thought to be a bit daff, because when ill, he ate pages of the Bible. It's said he ate the entire Book of Kings, in fact, just before he died in 1913. Still, he had a certain leadership quality. Menelik II was the fellow who reunited the Ethiopian empire within its modern borders after its several centuries of division in little kingdoms. Also, Menelik II, you may recall, was the man who so much liked electric chairs that he bought three even before Ethiopia had electricity.

Q. Is it true most chickens have heart trouble?
A. You must have heard about the Canadian report that claims 70 percent of the chickens develop arteriosclerosis in the heart. If true, little matter. Most chickens aren't permitted to live long enough to warrant treatment.

Some scalp specialists claim any effective mouthwash also makes a good anti-dandruff lotion.

EARTHQUAKES

The Japanese back in 1932 noticed that catfish suddenly became lively right before an earthquake. The Chinese in 1975 took seriously the yelping of dogs, surfacing of snakes, racing of rats and waking of chickens in the night to evacuate tens of thousands of people in time to save them from the devastating Hsichang quake. Virtually all the animals acted up at Marine World/Africa Inc. in Redwood City, Calif., the night before the 5.9-Richter scale tremor thereabout in 1973. Many scientists now believe that just about every animal species, except man, can foretell earthquakes.

Soviets seeking 'truth' crash embassy gate

MOSCOW (UPI) — Saying they were seeking "the truth," a Soviet man and his 74-year-old mother barreled past Soviet guards into the U.S. Embassy in a battered tan auto Friday and spent several hours pouring out their personal problems.

Soviet police trailed them as they left the embassy in their car 3 1/2 hours later, apparently knowing but not caring that they risked arrest. Embassy officials said the couple did not request political asylum or ask to go to the United States like seven Pentecostals who dashed into the embassy in 1978 and are still there, living in the embassy basement.

"I wanted them to help me in the search for the truth," said Vasily I. Nazarov, a 54-year-old engineer from the Moscow suburb of Solnechnogorsk.

Nazarov and his mother Natalya drove their old car past startled Soviet police who guard the embassy just after 3 p.m. and demanded to talk to American diplomats. The guards drew their guns but did not fire or attempt to follow the couple into the compound.

"They wanted to talk to people who might be able to solve their problems," the Embassy official said. "They have not manifested any desire, interest or intention of staying here."

However, an Embassy source said officials told the couple they could not help.

South Africa withdraws from Angola

By United Press International

South Africa said its forces began withdrawing from Angola Friday, ending a five-day, 60-mile-deep invasion that left hundreds of black guerrillas and eight South African soldiers dead.

But the Angolan news agency ANGOP, monitored in Lisbon, Portugal, called the South African announcement a "pure act of diversion" and said fighting had escalated.

Cuba threatened to throw its 20,000 troops in Angola into the fighting if South African forces came close to them and accused the United States of being the "intellectual author for the cowardly aggression."

"The racist invaders must cease their aggression and withdraw from Angolan territory. If the South African invaders' columns come near the lines defended by Cuban internationalist combatants, our troops... will enter into action with every means possible," the official Cuban news agency Prensa Latina said.

However, observers said they suspected the Cuban threat was mostly bravado, noting that it was not issued until after the South Africans said they were pulling out.

In New York, the United Nations Security Council held consultations on a request by Angola for an emergency meeting to seek sanctions against South Africa.

Constand Viljoen, chief of the South African Defense Force, said South African troops began withdrawing across the border into South West Africa, the South African-administered territory also known as Namibia, after completing their mission against black guerrilla targets.

The units that spearheaded the drive, leaving southern Angola a virtual "no man's land," have already returned to base in South West Africa, Viljoen said.

"The security forces have completed their limited task and are now returning to their bases," he said.

Solidarity begins government talks

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — On the eve of a threatened wildcat printers' strike, the government agreed Friday to open talks with the Solidarity union on demands for television coverage of its first national convention.

At the same time more than 100 Soviet ships, the largest fleet Moscow has ever assembled in the Baltic Sea, gathered in the Bay of Gdansk in preparation for September maneuvers that a West German military spokesman called "unusually" extensive.

Members of Solidarity's "Radio and Television Group" also met in Gdansk to discuss details of a threatened multi-media strike — a move seen as an attempt to give union leaders leverage when they meet with the government Saturday for talks concerning Solidarity's demands for more access to the state-controlled media.

The Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu blasted the meeting even before it began, saying participants wanted "to destroy social order, to warm up the atmosphere of excitement and increase tension."

"The radio and television around the world are considered as the link between authorities and the people," the newspaper said.

In its talks with the government, Solidarity said it would demand two hours of television coverage per day during the three-day union congress set to begin Sept. 5 as well as editorial control of content.

Australia prepares horsemeat charges

MELBOURNE: Australia (UPI) — Australian authorities said Friday they were preparing to file charges against the company responsible for shipping more than a half a million pounds of horsemeat disguised as beef to the United States.

Detective Inspector Neville Elkington of the Australian federal police did not identify the company, but said all the adulterated beef — discovered to contain horsemeat — came from one processing plant, Profreeze Boning Works of suburban Melbourne.

Australian judicial officials say the Profreeze plant is operated by the Hammond Meats company of Melbourne.

Elkington said that because of the U.S. government's plans to impound all further shipments of Australian beef for tests, it would probably be several weeks before formal charges were filed.

Rich Rice wins Jerome Fair poultry contest

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

JEROME — Rich Rice won the poultry fitting and showing contest at the Jerome County Fair drumsticks down, and in record time.

Rice, age 12, was the only entrant. His bird was judged simultaneously with the show's only goose.

A lack of competition didn't detract from Rice's two blue ribbons — one for fitting and showing and the second for bird quality. The young man clearly knew his New Hampshire Reds from his Rhode Islands. Lucille, he said, was a New Hampshire.

"A Rhode Island has more black," he said flatly. Judge Robert Ohlenschien complimented Rice for keeping Lucille's legs straight on the judging table, for good grooming and for choosing a chicken that was structurally correct, with a straight breast bone and kiel.

Rice wasn't too sure what a kiel was, but it was obviously important.

"The judge said she was a well-behaved pullet," Rice added.

It wasn't always so. Rice said one of his more memorable training sessions included the time Lucille resisted his efforts at grooming and decided to strike out on her own. The freedom flight was short-lived. Lucille crashed into a mobile home owned by Rice's aunt, Joleen Pederson, from whom he obtained the bird.

Taming the bird included several merry chases around the hen house, Rice said, and he kept tripping over the rooster.

There are tricks to making pullets look their best, he confided, like using mineral oil on the comb, beak and toenails. Feathers produce their own shine, however. Treating them would be cheating.

Rice later won reserve champion for "round robin showing competition" among entrants of small animals. The effort required youngsters to trade animals, showing separately a chicken, cat, dog and rabbit.

Rice, who has been in 4-H work three years, also showed a dairy calf this year. His parents, Dick and Flora Rice, are in the dairy business, he said. Asked whether he prefers cows or chickens, Rice did not hesitate. "Dairy cows," he said, "give milk. Chickens don't."

Rich Rice and his chicken Lucille were the only entrants in the chicken judging

Case involved high-speed chase and shootout

Yousey gets 10 years in state pen for holdup of Circle K

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Connecticut man Friday was ordered to spend up to 10 years in prison for his involvement in the robbery of a local convenience store earlier this summer.

Tommy Leroy Yousey, 19, of Groton, Conn., pleaded guilty July 24 to an armed robbery charge stemming from a July 1 robbery of the Circle K store, 890 Washington St. S. Yousey, along with co-defendant Gary Gene Lindsay, 21, of Coeur d'Alene, were also implicated in a subsequent high-speed getaway chase across four Magic Valley counties. The chase involved gunfire and Yousey has pleaded guilty to being an accessory to assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder in Jerome County.

He is awaiting sentencing on that charge.

Charges of armed robbery and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder are pending against Lindsay.

In sentencing Yousey to up to 10 years in prison, 5th District Court Judge Theron Ward did not impose the maximum penalty. Idaho law provides that anyone convicted of robbery is subject to a prison term ranging from five years to life.

Ward's ruling came down between the sentencing requests of Yousey's lawyer, Robert Galley, and Twin Falls County Prosecutor Harry DeHaan.

Citing the defendant's age and a record of no prior criminal convictions, Galley sought to have his client placed under a 120-day program at the North Idaho Correctional Institute at Cottonwood. Generally, a defendant who successfully completes the NICI program is placed on a supervised probation.

Although his client committed a serious crime, no determination had been made regarding whether Yousey could be rehabilitated, Galley said.

"This is what (the NICI program) is for," Galley said. "I think the court would like to know whether or not he can do a probation."

But DeHaan argued for a minimum prison sentence of 10 years.

"Regardless of Mr. Yousey's prior records, he did a bang-up job on this one," DeHaan said. "An armed robbery is a hair length away from a killing or a serious injury."

In explaining his ruling, Ward said he could not accept Galley's recommendation due to the seriousness of the crime.

"It would be redundant for me to repeat to you, Mr. Yousey, that the robbery was the most stupid thing you could have done," Ward said.

But Ward added his decision to set only a maximum number of years to be served in prison could mean an early release for Yousey.

Under such a sentence, generally referred to as an indeterminate sentence, the state Commission for Pardons and Pardon determines the actual length of prison time a defendant must serve.

Provided Yousey observes prison guidelines, he could be eligible for an early parole, Ward said.

In other court matters, a Buhl-man-pled not guilty Friday to delivery of a controlled substance.

Clinton Mills, 27, now faces a 5th District Court trial. No date for that trial has been set.

Ward continued the defendant's release on his own recognition.

Burley man arraigned on charges of fraud

SALT LAKE CITY — A Burley man will be arraigned Monday on charges stemming from a defunct Utah finance company.

Lloyd R. Gunderson of Burley and three Utah residents will be arraigned in Federal District Court in Salt Lake City on charges including securities fraud and mail fraud. Gunderson was a salesman for Pleasant Grove Finance. Pleasant Grove is located northeast of Orem.

The three other people named in the 37-count indictment are S. Hal Haycock, president of the company, Joan Haycock Watson, his daughter, and Roy A. Swenson, who was a salesman for the firm.

A federal grand jury returned indictments against the four on Aug. 20, according to Francis M. Wikstrom, U.S. attorney in Salt Lake City.

The four are charged with selling bonds and other investments with false and misleading statements.

"A lot of money came out of the Burley area," Wikstrom said.

Pleasant Grove Finance was forced out of business by the Utah Department of Financial Institutions slightly more than a year ago.

The firm is going through bankruptcy proceedings.

Misdemeanor plea offered for sex crime

TWIN FALLS — A Buhl man charged with sexually assaulting a Buhl woman pleaded guilty Friday to a misdemeanor battery charge in 5th District Magistrate Court.

Thomas Lee Stone, 30, was then ordered to spend six months in the Twin Falls County Jail.

But Stone may escape prosecution on two felony charges stemming from the Aug. 18 incident. Twin Falls County prosecutor said Friday he will drop both a second-degree kidnapping and an infamous crime against nature charge against Stone.

DeHaan said an investigation of the evidence in the case indicated problems with some of the victim's testimony.

A second misdemeanor charge against Stone, accusing him of obstructing a law officer, is pending.

Burglary at Farmer's Brothers

Thieves tested coffee, then stole it

TWIN FALLS — Sometimes burglars have no shame.

Thursday night thieves broke into Farmer's Brothers Coffee Co. warehouse on Oak Street.

According to resident Branch Manager Gary Candler, who discovered the crime early Friday morning, they took some pretty unusual things, four sacks of pancake mix, three cases of pancake syrup and two 30-pound bales of coffee.

But to add insult to the $224 worth of injury, the thieves confidently pilfered the warehouse to the music of the office stereo after lingering over a cup of the Farmer's Brothers coffee, made in the office pot. It might be an underworld tribute to the quality of the coffee.

"Some awful weird things happen in that section of town," a perplexed Candler said. "Things that are hard to explain — dumb things."

But although this isn't the first time the warehouse has been burglarized, Candler said it's the most unusual burglary to date.

"It's strange, I have to admit it," he said. "The times before it looked like a hurry, hurry job. This time it was a little different, they had time to make coffee and the stereo was on when I came in."

Candler has grown philosophical about the break-ins — four so far.

"It upset me the first couple times," he said. "But this time it didn't bother me. If they're going to take it — they're going to take it."

Filer sausage factory dispute sparks suit

TWIN FALLS — A Filer couple has filed a lawsuit in 5th District Court, seeking $35,000 in damages against the city of Filer.

Rene and Isabell Schatz are also seeking a court order requiring Filer officials to issue a building permit allowing the couple to complete construction of a proposed sausage-making operation.

Named as defendants in the lawsuit are Filer city building inspector Lee Taylor, Filer Mayor Eiden Ryals, Filer Zoning Board Chairman George Huddleston and Filer City Councilman Leland Alexander.

The suit also names litigious defendants John Doe 1 through 10, a legal device allowing the plaintiffs to name other city officials who may have an interest in this case as defendants at a later date.

The Schatzes began construction of an addition to their home on Dec. 1, 1980. They planned to use the structure for the sausage-making plant.

The couple contend they proceeded after contacting Alexander and later obtaining a building permit from Taylor.

Construction of the addition's floor and walls proceeded until April 23, when Filer officials served an order on the plaintiffs to stop construction.

Runaway truck injures man

TWIN FALLS — A Jerome man was injured early Friday when he dove from a runaway cement truck.

According to the Sheriff's office report, when Delwyn E. Carnell, a driver for Crane Pumping, Inc. started down Canyon Springs Road Friday morning he soon realized he had lost his brakes.

Carnell hung on, hoping for an opportunity to leap to safety. When the chance came, he took it, landing on his head and arms. His truck continued on into a ditch and up the wall of the canyon, finally rolling on its side.

Carnell is in satisfactory condition at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Boise cops bust porno ring that involved using juveniles

BOISE (UPI) — Two Idaho men have been arrested in connection with what police described as a pornography operation that employed models, including some juveniles, from the Boise area.

Roger L. Brown, 33, of Boise, and Roger A. Lamb, 48, of Parma, were charged with possession of obscene material with intent to deliver, a misdemeanor charge, said Police Sgt. Frank Richardson. Richardson said more charges may be filed later.

No court appearances have been set for Brown and Lamb. Both were free on $100 bail Thursday.

Richardson said police confiscated "hundreds" of videotapes, snapshots, picture albums and magazines when they arrested Lamb and Brown during the raids. The confiscated material filled two small rooms in the city-county law enforcement building.

Detectives Lance Anderson and Stan Wood worked about three months on the case before they had enough evidence for arrest and search warrants, Richardson said.

"The operation has run for at least three months, possibly since January, Richardson said.

Wood said the models were offered $20 an hour plus free liquor and marijuana. Some men church cigarettes were also confiscated during the raids, he said.

The pictures and films were sold through the mail, in catalogs and in adult bookstores, Wood said.

Police obtained the search warrants Wednesday from Boise County Magistrate Patricia Young, Wood said.

The search warrants allowed police to confiscate allegedly obscene materials at Video Image Productions in Boise and an apartment listed as the office of Club Muto, reportedly an underground pornography catalog.

Richardson said the films and pictures showed women and men in various stages of undress, some engaged in sexual relations. The people in the photos ranged from about 16 years old to nearly 50.

Richardson said police will try to identify the persons who posed for the pictures and videotapes. If they can identify the persons, police will question them to find out more about the operation, he said. Some of the persons also may be arrested, he said.

Judge won't overturn porno law

BOISE (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Ray McNichols refused to hear Thursday a request by two Garden City adult bookstore to overturn an Idaho law allowing the closing of stores selling obscene materials.

McNichols dismissed the action on grounds he could not interfere in such a case now in the state courts.

Niks & Naks Adult Bookstore and U.S. Marketing Inc. have gone to federal court after the Idaho Supreme Court in May ruled constitutional a state law allowing the closing of one year of stores purveying obscene materials.

After McNichols' ruling, U.S. Marketing attorney William T'way said he would appeal the Idaho Supreme Court's decision to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The legal battle dates back to a 1977 attempt by the state to close the bookstores.

Ada County Judges refused to allow that, although District Judge W.E.

Smith determined that 21 movies and publications sold by the stores were obscene and could no longer be so there.

But the state successfully argued an appeal to the Idaho Supreme Court that the padlocking provisions of the law, called the Moral Nuisance Abatement Act, were constitutional.

The case has been sent back to Smith by the Idaho Supreme Court. The stores cannot be closed until he issues an order.

Creech admits to killing of prison inmate

BOISE (UPI) — Convicted mass-murderer Thomas Eugene Creech, 30, admitted "freely" Friday that he killed a fellow inmate at the Idaho State Penitentiary in May.

Creech told 4th District Judge Robert Newhouse he intended to kill David Jensen of Pocatello after a second argument they had had May 13 while serving time in the maximum security ward at the Idaho prison facility.

Jensen died in a Boise hospital from head injuries suffered by blows to his skull by a sock filled with flashlight batteries.

Harris told the court Friday that the death of Jensen was premeditated.

He said that Creech admitted to authorities that he planned to kill Jensen.

Newhouse asked Creech whether he was pleading guilty to the offense with a promise of leniency.

"No sir," replied the defendant, adding he had not been threatened into entering the plea or offered any bargain.

"I am pleading guilty freely," Creech said.

Newhouse reminded Creech that by his plea he was giving up his constitutional rights to a jury trial and Creech answered that he was well aware of that fact.

Creech said that he got into an argument with Jensen and they later got into another altercation and killed him."

Newhouse tentatively set Sept. 25 for sentencing following a presentence investigation.

Prior to Creech's admitting the prison killing, Ada County Prosecutor James Harris said he had been prepared to bring forth witnesses who would testify that Creech "didn't like" Jensen.

Creech is serving two life terms in the Idaho prison for the 1970 deaths of two inmates near Donnelly. During that trial he admitted he had committed over 40 murders. He also later was convicted of murder in Oregon.

Rexburg man dies instantly in auto wreck

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — A Rexburg resident was killed instantly Thursday afternoon in the collision of his car and a semi truck and trailer on U.S. Highway 26 at St. Leon Road just northeast of Idaho Falls.

William Corias Roberts, 89, was pronounced dead at the scene by Bonneville County Coroner Vernal Rydaleh.

Idaho State Police said Roberts, southbound on St. Leon Road, failed to yield at a stop sign leading onto U.S. 26 and was struck near broadside by a westbound semi driven by Curtis G.

Smith, 29, Pocatello.

Impact pushed Roberts' car into a boat and trailer being towed by a pickup truck driven by Robert L. Ashford, 45, Idaho Falls.

Smith and Ashford were not injured.

Jury acquits man of citizenship marriage

BOISE (UPI) — A U.S. District Court jury acquitted Thursday the owner of the Casa Blanca restaurant in Boise and his chief of conspiracy to engage the chef in a phony marriage.

Boise entrepreneur Don Gould, owner of several local businesses, including the Casa Blanca, and his chef, Lucio Prado-Amerzcua, were charged with trying to obtain immigration status for Prado by paying a American woman to marry Prado, a Mexican national.

Prosecutors charged Gould and Prado worked with two unidentified co-conspirators, Boiseans Debra Collins and Albert Cortez, partner-owner of the Arriba Restaurant in Boise, to obtain a visa for Prado by having him marry Ms. Collins.

Prado, 30, admitted he married Collins to become a U.S. citizen, but said he entered the relationship thinking it could grow into something permanent. He said they lived together and consummated the marriage.

Ms. Collins testified that the couple never had become sexually involved.

The defense attorney said neither Prado nor Ms. Collins indicated plans to divorce, and that the marriage was legal.

Intermountain Gas applies for rate hike

BOISE — Intermountain Gas Company filed an application for a rate increase Friday with the Idaho Public Utilities Commission.

The proposed increase will amount to approximately 12 percent or $3.80 per month to the average residential space heating customer and an average of 15 percent to all classes of customers.

The $2.2 million rate boost was requested due to an increased cost of gas from the company's supplier, Northwest Pipeline Corporation. The proposed increase is a "tracking" type of rate change where the increased revenue is passed along, or tracked, directly to Northwest Pipeline.

None of the increase will go to Intermountain Gas. The increased pipeline charges will go into effect October 1.

Within the next two weeks Intermountain Gas plans to request a $5.8 million general rate relief, which would raise rates to the average space heating customer by about 8 percent, approximately $2.60 per month, with an overall 3.8 percent increase to all classes of customers.

The proposed general rate relief increase would not go into effect until approved by the IPUC after public hearings. The company cited increased costs due to inflation as the primary reason for rate increase.

Organized labor seeks better ties with nation's churches

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

Organized labor, which has had a somewhat mixed history of relations with organized religion, is seeking to strengthen and broaden its ties with the nation's churches.

"There are many ties; there are many elements that bind those two relations together," said Alan Kistler, director of the AFL-CIO Department of Organization and Field Services. Kistler, interviewed on the AFL-CIO's Labor News Conference recently, is also co-chairman of the newly formed Religion and Labor Conference, a group that seeks to build on the relations that exist. Events in recent years have seen labor and church groups both working together and also at one another's throats.

Churches, for example, were among the strongest supporters of the labor movement's boycott of J.P. Stevens & Co. during the union effort to organize workers at the firm's Southern-textile-plants-and-religious groups, especially Roman Catholics, were very active in the organizing effort among California farmworkers led by Cesar Chavez.

But religious institutions, including hospitals and parochial schools, have often bitterly resisted efforts to organize their workers and teachers leading to prolonged conflict, and in some instances court battles.

Kistler said the ties between organized religion and labor flow from "the soil of Judeo-Christian teachings of justice and fairness and respect for human dignity." He said both institutions "have codes of ethical behavior and concern for the poor and underprivileged, the disadvantaged and the distressed — and not just a statement of those concerns but a history and tradition of action to implement those concerns in the lives of people." Kistler stressed that the focus of the newly formed Religion and Labor Conference would not be on organizing but instead on drawing grassroots labor and religious groups together to deal with local issues.

"The thrust of this effort is not set up an over-arching, large-scale, national organization," he said.

"It is to serve simply as a focal point for exchange of information, to keep all those participating aware of what is taking place around the country and to encourage local coalitions to deal with issues that affect those particular communities," Kistler said.

"It might be a housing problem; it might be a problem of employment, a plant closing, a problem of social justice," he added.

Asked if he thought the alliance would bring about an increase in union membership, Kistler said that was not an objective.

"That would be really to exploit the natural affinity," he said.

"There are times, obviously, when there will not be complete agreement on objectives or goals," he said.

"The coalition of religion and labor is going to be one that is in constant flux, as there will be elements in both institutional families that do not agree at a given time," Kistler said.

Asked specifically about religious groups that resist union efforts in their own institutions, he said: "It creates problems."

"But all they have to do," he added, "is equate their business practices with their spiritual values and they'll no longer have any problem, nor will we."

Witness grilled in Kleindienst trial

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — A key witness for the prosecution in the perjury trial of former U.S. Attorney General Richard Kleindienst was grilled by the defense about diaries he kept during a series of complex, illegal financial transactions.

The attack on John Boden, a front man for convicted swindler Joseph Hauser, focused on the diaries that form a large part of the prosecution's case. Boden referred to them often in answering questions while on the stand.

Prosecutors were expected to bring Boden, their key witness, back to the stand today in an effort to shore up his credibility.

Kleindienst is being tried on 14 counts of lying to a State Bar of Arizona investigator and a committee regarding a scheme that involved siphoning of $1.8 million from the Teamsters union Central States Pension Fund.

Hauser has been convicted of directing the scheme that allegedly occurred when Kleindienst was counsel for corporate interests of the Beverly Hills, Calif., swindler.

Boden, 40, came from his home in Belfast, Northern Ireland, to testify under immunity from prosecution. He has spent the last two days on the stand.

"At one point in his testimony Thursday, Boden said he had difficulty trying to remember the chain of events that occurred in the spring of 1976.

"It's a long time ago, isn't it?" defense attorney Michael Scott asked.

Boden replied, "Yes, it is."

In his opening statement to jurors last week, Scott questioned the veracity of the state's case, saying many of the events described occurred long ago and thus were subject to memory lapses.

Scott repeatedly pointed to such lapses in attacking Boden's earlier testimony in the case.

On two occasions, he pointed to depositions given to attorneys last October during which Boden said he could not recall what certain entries in his diary described.

Under cross-examination, Boden contradicted his earlier statement that entries were made in his diary on a daily basis. He conceded on some occasions, he waited several days before recording events.

The diaries consist of "just cryptic scribble," Scott asserted.

"It's my own shorthand," Boden replied.

"Very short hand," Scott said. "You're giving considerable more testimony than shows here in the diary."

Boden appeared to stumble again when he reiterated his contention $1.8 million, used as down payment for the proposed purchase of a New Jersey life insurance company, came from payments the Teamsters made on their insurance contract.

Boden had testified Wednesday Kleindienst lied when he said he did not know where the funds came from.

Scott alluded to Boden's guarantee of immunity during cross-examination and asked whether the arrangement with federal prosecutors and authorities in other states came before or after Boden turned over his diaries.

Boden said he could not recall.

Scott intimated Boden may have been coached in his testimony by prosecutors. He asked Boden about meetings held with prosecutors during recesses Wednesday and again on Thursday.

After reviewing the diaries, "did prosecutors ever supply their interpretation of the diaries?" Scott asked.

"I don't recall," Boden responded.

Health officials mull method to clean up city's PCB spill

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Health officials are considering how to clean up the remaining toxic PCB-laced oil that seeped from a ruptured gas pipeline three days ago.

Two blocks of waterfront businesses splashed with the oil remained closed to traffic today.

Tests were under way to determine if the PCBs seeping into the soil could be scraped off the top half inch of soil with high-powered vacuums, or if bulldozers would have to gouge out the contamination. Public Health Director Mervyn Silverman said.

Silverman was joined by Fire Chief Andrew Casper Thursday in criticizing Pacific Gas and Electric Co. for delaying warnings to the public and the city of potentially hazardous exposure to cancer-causing PCB.

The warning came long after work crews had begun shutting off the massive gas leak and thousands of office workers and shoppers had plodded through the area.

"PG&E was like Three Mile Island, saying, 'Hey, there's nothing to worry about,' but there was," Silverman said.

Police who streamed into the area Tuesday afternoon to manage the huge evacuation were saturated with PCB's unnecessarily, complained Bob Barry president of the Police Officers Association.

Under heavy criticism for the PCB and resultant damage, PG&E made an abrupt about face Thursday and announced it would pay "legitimate" claims for contaminated clothing and shoes. Earlier the utility said claims would not be processed until liability for damages was established.

The issue of liability has not been resolved, although PG&E continued to emphasize that a construction company employee ruptured the 16-inch pipe.

The utility received 6,500 telephone queries about the incident and nearly 1,000 damage claims within the first 48 hours after the incident.

PCB, polychlorinated biphenyl, was used since the 1920s as an insulating fluid in electrical equipment.

The oil residue seeped into the air Tuesday contained 25 parts PCB per million, half that deemed hazardous by the Environmental Protection Agency, but some officials said no level of exposure is acceptable.

In Sonoma, north of San Francisco, a citizens group announced the formation of the PCB Registry. It urged citizens who came in contact with the gooey mixture laden with toxic PCBs to contact the group with damage claims.

Paris (UPI) — France's new TGV high speed trains, which can travel at up to 168 mph, begin regular services between Paris and Lyon on Sept. 27. The 265-mile run will be covered, 13 times daily in only 2 hours and 40 minutes.

Speed crucial in building power plant

BONANZA, Utah (UPI) — State and local officials broke ground Friday for the first 400 megawatt unit of the new Bonanza Power Plant.

The generating facility must be completed within three years or several federal committees could be without electricity.

The renamed plant, formerly called the Moonlake Power Project, is being constructed by Desert Generation and Transmission Co-Operative — which includes six rural electric associations in Utah, Wyoming and Nevada.

Officials also held formal ground breaking ceremonies Friday for a new coal mine near Rangely, Colo.

The mine, being opened by Western Fuels Co., will supply coal exclusively to the Bonanza Plant, 35 miles away.

The power plant, mine, transmission lines and an electric railroad to move the coal will cost approximately $1.2 billion.

Ultimately, the Bonanza plant will have two 400 megawatt coal-burning generators and will be the prime source of electricity for oil shale development in eastern Utah and western Colorado.

However, the first unit, due for completion in September of 1984, will provide electricity for the members of the cooperatives who now buy the bulk of their power from Utah Power and Light Co.

Claron Ashby, Deseret administratively services manager, said the UP&L contracts will expire in early 1975 and the cooperatives have been told they will not be renewed.

"That's why it is important that we move quickly on this project. The first plant must be on line by the end of 1984 to ensure that we can continue providing power our customers," he said.

About 25,000 customers are served by the cooperative.

Although the groundbreaking ceremonies were held Friday, actual construction has been underway at Bonanza since the day final permits were approved by the Department of the Interior.

Desert Generation and Transmission members include the Moonlake Electric Association of eastern Utah; Dixie-Escalante Rural Electric Association of Beryl, Utah; Flowell Electric Association of Fillmore, Utah; Garkane Power

Association, based in Kane County, Utah; Bridger Valley Electric Association of southwestern Wyoming; and Mt. Wheeler Power Inc., located in Ely, Nev.

The coal mine will employ 370 people on a permanent basis, Ashby said.

The power plant will have about 175 full-time jobs when the first unit is complete and an additional 100-125 jobs when the second unit comes on line.

Construction activities are expected to bring about 800 people to the region.

Last Weteye planes finish trips to Utah

DUGWAY PROVING GROUND, Utah (UPI) — The last two plane loads of Weteye nerve gas bombs were flown to Utah today from Colorado's Rocky Mountain Arsenal, completing a transfer operation that began three weeks ago.

Army officials said that after the bombs were moved early today, emergency response teams at Craig and Kremmling, Colo., and at Vernal and Provo, Utah, began preparations for returning to their bases.

The specially equipped teams had been posted along the Weteye flight route during the transfer in case of an accident involving the four C-141 Starliner jet transports carrying the bombs. Most of the units were from Fort Sill, Okla., and Fort Hood, Texas.

Paul Pott, spokesman at Tooele Army Depot, said the final transfer flights went smoothly, as have the previous flights. A total of 888 Weteyes, all unarmed, were flown to Michael Army Airfield at Dugway. Truck convoys then moved the bombs from the airfield to permanent storage at Tooele.

Authorities said they have talked to people believed responsible for two similar shooting incidents. Evidence has been turned over to the U.S. Attorney for Montana.

The fishermen involved in Thursday's shooting were angling along the banks or wading in the river. They were afraid for their lives when they heard the shots, Moran said. They grabbed the boy and headed into brush along the river.

The FBI is assisting in the investigation, Moran said.

Fishermen are shot at again along disputed Bighorn river

CROW AGENCY, Mont. (UPI) — For the third time in a week, shots were fired at non-Indians fishing the Bighorn River on the Crow Indian Reservation in Southeastern Montana. No one has been hurt in the shootings.

Bureau of Indian Affairs officer Robert Moran said Friday he has suspects in the latest incident, in which he said about 10 shots were fired at four adults and a boy near St. Xavier in the heart of the reservation. The shooting took place Thursday night.

Authorities said they have talked to people believed responsible for two similar shooting incidents. Evidence has been turned over to the U.S. Attorney for Montana.

Pet death lawsuit sets precedent

HONOLULU (UPI) — The Hawaii Supreme Court has upheld a ruling that the death of a family pet is serious enough to warrant a $1,000 judgment for emotional distress.

The ruling is believed to be the first in Hawaii to allow recovery for the emotional distress caused by the death of a dog.

Circuit Court Judge Hiroshi Kato had awarded the judgment to Betty Campbell and his family in their lawsuit against the Hawaii Animal Quarantine Station where their dog, Princess, had been staying.

Kato ruled the state was negligent and awarded the judgment despite objections by the state that the family members did not witness the death or seek medical assistance to substantiate the emotional distress.

In the unanimous high court decision in upholding Kato's award, Associate Justice Herman Lum Wednesday traced Hawaii's "unique" approach to the law on recovery for emotional and mental distress.

Utah legislator demands probe of power project contract

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Rep. Mac Haddow, R-Sandy, says the political squabble over choice of a contractor to build the Intermountain Power Project has "blown up" and he wants a full investigation to "clear the air" and his name.

Haddow said he and his wife have received obscene and threatening phone calls on a daily basis because of his opposition to a project committee's selection of Bechtel Corp. of San Francisco to oversee construction of the $1.5-billion coal-fired power plant.

He also denied he was working as an agent for Daniel Corp., a Greenville S.C. firm competing for the contract.

"That just isn't true," said Haddow. "I have never asked anybody to hire Daniel. I just want to make sure that whoever gets the job will run a merit shop (hire both union and non-union subcontractors)."

"People call my house and tell my wife I'm a crook. One man called and asked my address so he could come out and kill me."

"Another called and offered me a $60,000 campaign contribution. I said, 'how's that?' and he said that's the price of the bulldozer I'm going to drive through your house."

"Well it all makes me mad," he said. "It makes me want to fight back all the harder."

Haddow said he didn't know who was making the personal threats. But he accused Utah AFL-CIO President Ed Mayne and Utah Democratic Party Leader Mike Miller of trying to smear him politically.

He said Mayne came up to him after a recent meeting on the contract dispute at the State Capitol and told him not to take the criticism and abuse personal.

"He told me, 'We're just having a little fun with you, Mac,'" said the representative. But Haddow added, "It ain't fun no more."

Haddow is a former administrative assistant to Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, who runs a political consulting firm specializing in fund raising activities for conservative causes. He was the chief sponsor of legislation to repeal a prevailing wage law in Utah, which dictated that union wages be paid on public works projects.

Mayne recently called for an investigation by an independent commission to see if Haddow and other members of the legislators had violated legislative ethics by accepting a plane ride and attending a barbecue at the home of Robert Thompson, an attorney who represents Daniel. Haddow said he would welcome the investigation.

Haddow, along with House Speaker Norman Bangert, R-West Valley; House Rules Committee Chairman Merrill Harward, R-Salt Lake; and Rep. Nolan Karras, R-Toy, flew on Thompson's Lear Jet from a legislator's conference in Atlanta, Ga., to Virginia where they played golf with Thirkel officials.

They then flew back to Atlanta on the jet, with a stopover in Greenville, where they attended a barbecue.

with several of Thompson's clients, including Daniel executives.

In an interview published Thursday, Thompson said the barbecue was Haddow's suggestion. He also said it wasn't designed to pressure the Utahns into supporting Daniel over Bechtel or any other contractor.

"Mac asked me to have a barbecue... maybe he wanted to impress your House speaker," Thompson said in an interview with the Desert News. "So we had a barbecue."

Thompson said he invited about 30 people, including three from Daniel. He said the three Daniel officials were invited only because he thought they might be interested in meeting some Utahns.

Haddow conceded that he may have suggested an outdoor barbecue, but it was only after learning that Thompson was already planning a gathering of several of his clients.

Yellowstone seeks limits on services

HELENA, Mont. (UPI) — The National Park Service will proceed with plans to reduce visitor services at Old Faithful despite public criticism, a park spokesman said.

The agency will remove 100 tourist cabins near the famous geyser as soon as 100 new cabins are in service at Grant Village, Joan Anzelmo said.

The removal will occur despite an outpouring of protest during 10 public meetings last month, she said.

"Most of the people at the meetings who were vocal were in favor of keeping the cabins," Anzelmo said.

"But we continued to say we weren't there to debate the master plan. After we got past that, we came up with some ideas about traffic and services for visitors that we hadn't even considered."

Eventually the agency wants to eliminate overnight use of the geyser basin facilities. Car camping has been eliminated and a cafeteria was removed last year.

Reasoning that the geysers could be best appreciated if campers were moved to Grant Village in the park's southern portion, the Park Service has spent $6 million on support facilities for new tourist lodging. Another $3 million is being spent on the first set of new cabins.

The final step under the plan calls for destruction of the modern wings of Old Faithful Inn and turning the building into a restaurant and museum. That would happen in 10-15 years.

The only way the park's master plan will be changed is if enough people pressure Congress to do so, Anzelmo said.

Rape views said changing in society

BOISE (UPI) — Society's attitude toward the rape victim is changing, a Pocatello pathologist says.

"Rape is a crime of violence, not a crime of sex," said Dr. Charles Garrison, one of four speakers at the Sex Crime Investigation Seminar at St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise.

"People think of rape as a crime of passion. They don't realize the violence that has to take place. It's not just physical violence, it's emotional violence as well."

"The most important thing here is to recognize rape for what it is and set up the proper mechanism for handling it medically and legally," he said.

After a sexual assault, the victim can go to a hospital emergency room, contact police or call a rape crisis center, Garrison said. Police should be notified even if the victim doesn't want to prosecute, because the rapist still has the potential to rape someone else, said Garrison.

DHW plans home health care hearing

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Health and Welfare Department will hold a hearing Sept. 1 in Boise concerning rules proposed for home health-care for the handicapped.

The meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m. in the Hall of Mirrors building across from the Capitol.

Officials said the hearing on the respite care program will be held to discuss ways families can care for the handicapped at home, but be given some relief from the constant demands of in-home care for a few days each month.

By spending a few thousand dollars on respite care, the state saves millions that would otherwise be spent on institutional care, said Dr. John Morgan, administrator of the state's community rehabilitation programs.

The program encourages people to care for disabled relatives at home by giving them time off for family business or other personal or family business and for needed training.

The Idaho Legislature last year appropriated $35,000 for the respite care program.

Indicators decline during July

'Sluggish' economy confronts nation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's index of leading indicators declined in July for the third month in a row.

The decline signals a "sluggish" economy ahead, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

"No evidence of sustained growth is yet in sight," Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said. "We cannot expect the economy to regain vigor until the president's economic recovery program takes hold and interest rates come down significantly."

He said the report "implies that business activity will be sluggish in the months ahead."

The indicators, a barometer for the economy, fell 0.1 percent in July, a much smaller drop than the 1.6 percent decline in May and a revised 1 percent fall in June.

The report fitted closely with what economists already knew.

The economy is in a slowdown, which some call a recession, caused in large part by high interest rates and centered on interest-sensitive sectors such as housing, higher-priced consumer goods and investment.

But it left unanswered how deep that slump may go and just how long it will last.

The slowdown began in the second, April-June quarter of this year, when the gross national product adjusted for inflation declined 2.4 percent. Many private economists predict another decline this quarter, but those figures are not yet in.

Most economists predict the economy will resume its growth in the fourth quarter. When the Reagan administration's tax cuts approved by Congress will begin to be felt by individuals and defense expenditures will increase. But they agree the timing will depend much on interest rates.

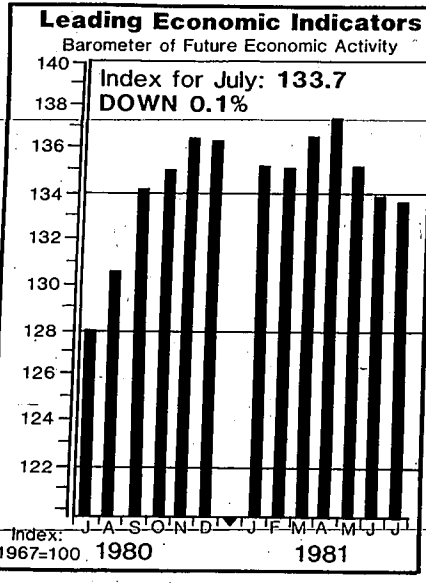

"I think we have an economy that wants to grow," said Theodore Torda, senior Commerce Department economist. "But it is being held back by these high interest rates."

Torda said that was not a suggestion the Federal Reserve ease its anti-inflation policy of tight money, which has contributed to high interest rates. He said, "The Fed has to stick to its targets, gradually slowing the money supply growth year-in, year-out. It's a long-term process."

The administration has been disappointed that financial markets so far have not had enough confidence in the government's anti-inflation policies to begin lowering interest rates.

The leading indicator index — which stood at 133.7 in July, down from a revised 133.9 in June — is a collection of 10 separate indicators thought to show future changes in the economy.

Six of those 10 gave unfavorable signals in July: the average workweek, new factory orders adjusted for inflation, the speed of deliveries of goods to companies, building permits, stock prices and the money supply in 1972 dollars.

Stocks score minor gains with rebound

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — The stock market, after skidding to a 13-month low the past several sessions, rebounded for a small gain Friday.

It moved up as some short-term interest rates began to fall.

Trading was slow.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which skidded 10.18 points Thursday, managed to gain 3.14 points to 892.22. But the closely watched average, which closed Thursday at its lowest level since 885.92 on July 10, 1980, plunged 28.35 points for the week overall.

Brokers said the market was set for a rebound since the widely followed Dow Industrial average had dropped about 120 points in the past two months.

The severe losses put the stock prices at bargain levels. The slide also has made some traders replace borrowed shares they sold earlier at higher prices in hopes the market would go down.

The New York Stock Exchange index jumped 0.30 to 71.97 and the price of an average share increased 13 cents. Advances topped declines 760-669 among the 1,863 issues traded at 4 p.m. EDT.

Big Board volume totaled 38,020,000 shares compared with 43,900,000 traded Thursday.

Investors were encouraged that the federal funds rate banks charge one another for overnight loans declined significantly. As a result, several banks have cut the rate they charge brokers for loans.

After the NYSE closed, the Federal Reserve reported the nation's money supply declined $3.7 billion in the latest statistical week, after two advances. That could fuel a rally next week, analysts said.

Still, observers said Wall Street was concerned about high interest rates, increased inflation and uncertainty about the economy.

Published reports said there was deep concern that the Reagan administration's program of tax cuts and budget slashes would produce a large budget deficit and flame inflation in the near future because the economy has not slowed down as much as some experts had hoped.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 43,724,608 shares compared with 49,186,648 traded Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange common stock index soared 6.11 to 354.80 and the price of a share jumped 30 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of over-the-counter issues gained 0.73 to 197.55.

On the trading floor, Jim Walter, the building materials producer, was the most active NYSE-listed issue, off 3 1/4 to 19 1/4 in trading that included 860,700 shares at 19. The company cut its quarterly dividend payout to 25 cents a share from 47 1/2 cents.

Superior Oil was the second most active issue, up 1/2 to 36 1/2 after blocks of 200,000 shares at 36 1/2 and 100,000 shares at 36 1/2. The stock has been under pressure recently in the wake of published reports about management changes.

Cities Service, which rose in the past couple of months on takeover speculation, was the third most active issue, off 3 to 54. A couple of analysts recently — quashed — the merger speculation.

General American Oil lost 1 1/4 to 40%. The company reported fiscal year earnings of $2.11 a share, down from $2.34 a year ago.

IBM gained 1/4 to 53 1/2 in trading that included a block of 100,000 shares at 55%. RCA eased 1/4 to 21 after a block of 226,100 shares at 21 1/4.

Garfinkel, Brooks Brothers & Miller & Rhodes rose 1 1/4 to 54. A unit of Ivan P. Boesky bought 9.3 percent of the company's stock.

Colt Industries climbed 5% to 88 in fairly active trading. The company signed a definitive contract to merge with Penn Central. Penn Central stock rose 1/2 to 38 1/2.

On the Amex, advances topped declines 279-250 among the 739 issues traded at 4 p.m. EDT. Volume at that time totaled 4,650,000 shares compared with 4,330,000 traded Thursday.

Dome Petroleum was the most active Amex issue, up 1 1/4 to 17 1/2. Gulf Oil of Canada followed, up 1 1/4 to 23 1/2. Hudson's Bay Oil & Gas was third, up 1/2 to 38.

Mid-August domestic car sales rise

By JAMES V. HIGGINS
United Press International

DETROIT — Rebates and other sales incentives boosted mid-August domestic car sales 18.2 percent above last year.

They also gave General Motors Corp. its best sales period in five months, industry reports showed Tuesday.

Each of the Big Three U.S. automakers showed a substantial sales gain for the Aug. 11-20 period over severely depressed 1980.

The seasonally adjusted annual rate of sales surged to 7.9 million units in mid-August, compared with annual rates of 6.1 million in July and 5.5 million in June.

"The shoppers are out in big numbers," Tom Pappert, general sales manager for Chrysler Corp., said. Domestic car sales reached 902,578 units, up 18.2 percent from 171,341 in the mid-August period of last year.

GM said it sold 134,949 cars, up 19.8 percent from 112,688 last year. GM said sales improved in each car segment and on nearly every model, while its mid-August daily sales rate of 14,994 was its best since mid-March.

Ford Motor Co. reported sales of 37,034 U.S.-built cars, up 11.5 percent from 33,212. Chrysler Corp. again showed the biggest gain — a sales increase of 42.9 percent to 22,853 cars from 15,989 last year.

Volkswagen of America, the only domestic automaker not offering any special sales incentives, saw its sales for the period decline 14.7 percent to 4,842 from 5,676 last year. It was a better performance than analysts expected in view of the heavy price-cutting competition from other domestic automakers.

Sales of American Motors Corp. cars were estimated at 2,900, representing a decline of 24 percent from 3,816 in the period last year. AMC and foreign automakers report sales only at the end of each month.

It was the second 10-day period in which sales gained because of special temporary sales promotions, each of which has the effect of lowering the car price.

The promotions, an attempt by the industry to reduce bloated car inventories, are scheduled to expire before the end of August and mid-September.

Chrysler is offering all-out direct cash rebates ranging from $300 to $1,000 to buyers. GM is reducing car finance rates to 13.8 percent from a prevailing rate above 16 percent and Ford and AMC are giving cash sales incentives between $100 and $1,000 to dealers.

"Customers in the second 10 days of August continued to show their willingness to buy new cars and trucks when they can get favorable financing," Robert D. Burger, vice president in charge of GM's marketing staff, said.

So far this year, domestic automakers have sold 4,161,130 U.S.-built cars, down 1.2 percent from 4,241,963 in the same period last year. Chrysler sales through mid-August are up 24 percent from last year, but sales on the year are off 3.8 percent at GM, 2.3 percent at Ford, 2.6 percent at AMC and 15.1 percent at VW/A.

Savings, loan losses in July add up to record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's ailing savings and loan associations, awaiting a helping federal hand, reported their largest loss of deposits in July.

The 4,542 savings associations ended July with a $3.5 billion drop in deposits, even after interest income was applied to accounts, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board said Thursday. Before interest, the loss was $5.6 billion.

The associations' total net worth dropped by $1 billion in July, yet remained high enough to keep the industry afloat for years even if the losses continued.

Several institutions are not as fortunate, however, and government efforts apparently are under way to forestall their collapse through forced mergers with healthier associations.

"These figures underscore the need for future action to strengthen the competitive power of thrifts," Bank Board Chairman Richard Pratt said.

But the heavy loss of deposits, if not profits, may be stemmed by several government efforts.

Congress included in the new tax law that takes effect Oct. 1, an unprecedented tax exemption for a savings certificate intended to lure customers away from other investment alternatives.

Some savings and loans already are advertising the certificates, offering what up to now would have been considered incredible interest rates of up to 36 percent.

The actual interest rate has not been determined, but some savings and loans are willing to guarantee a higher return in a new competitive fervor that may portend an all out interest rate war.

But the new "all-savers" certificate is only one of six different savings incentives in the new tax legislation, and perhaps not the most attractive.

Industry polishes image

DALLAS (UPI) — Americans are drinking less Java.

The coffee industry, trying to lure them back to the pot, has brewed a campaign suggesting that caffeine is not harmful.

Young people have grown more health conscious and have consequently cut their coffee consumption, says Kirby Kanden, Midwest regional director for education of the National Coffee Service Association.

Fewer people take the time for breakfast in the morning, and that has decreased coffee drinking, too.

Kanden says changing values also are to blame.

"Per capita consumption by Americans has dropped from over three cups a day per person in 1960 to slightly more than two cups a day."

To improve coffee's image, the industry has started a $600,000 pilot program to entice consumers, particularly young adults, back to coffee and away from the growing soft drink market.

"We're trying to bring back some of the credibility to the industry by suggesting that caffeine is not bad for you," Kanden said.

Affordable home computer era nears as prices fall

© Universal Press Syndicate

Does the news that IBM will offer you a typewriter-size "personal" computer this fall for as little as $1,565 and through such outlets as Sears stores — mean the day of the true family computer has arrived?

And that the computer is now a real household appliance?

Not yet. But the opening of the era has been officially signaled by the fact that the business giant, whose name is virtually a synonym for house-sized electronic brains, is entering the little computer market. And what's ahead is foretold by the fact that IBM is talking in terms of computers costing in the thousand-dollar, instead of the million-dollar, range.

None of the computers yet designed can be called household appliances. Most computer-company officials concede the devices still are primarily for schools, libraries, small businesses and a few wealthy individuals and hobbyists.

"Both cost and complexity of today's 'personal' computer still put these units out of reach for the average household, says one computer expert formerly with IBM.

Most studies show no more than 1 million typewriter-sized computers in use, with current sales at 300,000 to 400,000 new units a year. And while the starting price of a basic unit is in the $1,500-$2,000 range, well within the budget of many families, the realistic figures are that you must spend $4,000 to $10,000, plus $25-$75 a month for telephone line charges and for hook-ups to information services.

The big stumbling block is computer complexity. The electronic brains still are not as "friendly" (in the jargon of computer buffs) as a stove, TV set or washing machine.

"You can't read an instruction manual for 20 minutes, plug in the machine and tell it what to do," is the way one pro put it.

Even if you have all the so-called "peripheral" gadgets — TV screen, disc storage, phone inter-connectors, relay word processor printers — it's still not necessarily easy to operate. And even with the proper programs, you typed: "I'd like you to take over balancing my checkbook and writing my checks," you'd probably get a blank or gibberish in response.

The computer always will take work and time to tailor the generalized programs to your specific needs. But when "friendly" machines and programs are developed to accept your direct approach, your future computer could reply: "OK, punch in your current balance, and all checks outstanding. Hook up the check-writer program and the word processor, and then type in all the checks you want me to write."

Or in a few years, you might be able to type (on a computer you could afford to buy): "My account number is such-and-such at the So-and-So Bank. Get all my checks for the past five years from the bank computer and store them in your memory. Every time I give a bill I'll just type in the name of the company and the amount, and you write the checks as they come due. And transfer my funds to my creditors electronically."

The new IBM line will be sold at special Sears outlets, not at the traditional Sears outlets. IBM also will sell the devices direct. And their new machines have double the capacity of the current competitors' lines. Whatever you buy should be adequate for a typical family's future needs.

IBM's machines and programs will be compatible with programs and peripheral devices produced by others as well, giving you flexibility should you want to get an early start in the era about to open.

Information and communication will be the computer's biggest field. Many news organizations already are offering such services. (Dow Jones is currently experimenting with a radio-triggered device that will turn on your computer whenever a story is being transmitted about a subject you have selected and will exclude information you don't want.)

You won't be restricted to certain subjects. You'll be able to type: "Headlines" or "News Menu" and perhaps get one- or two-line highlights of the day's stories. And you'll be able to print "hard copy" of any stories you wish.

Just like the column you're now reading.

BRIDGE

Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Analyze review and one diamond and two very probable clubs. He asked himself how can I make this hand and saw that he had to hold his club losers to one.

Then South embarked on a winning campaign. He took his ace of hearts and led the suit right back.

East won and promptly cashed the king of diamonds. West played the deuce and East decided quite properly not to play a second diamond. Then he noted that South had not led a trump. So East led a trump.

South was ready to operate. He cashed his ace and king of trumps and ruffed his last heart in dummy. West played the deuce and East was in with the king and also caught in an unusual end play. If he led a heart South would be in with the last trump while discarding his remaining club loser. If he tried to cash his ace or small family, North would set up dummy's queen for a club discard.

CONCLUDING: South's play would also have won if East started with K-Q, K-10 or Q-10 of clubs.

East could have saved himself if he had led his king of clubs instead of a trump. He wonder more than two or three players in the world would have figured this out and made that play.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Opening lead: ♠6

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

South studied his options fully before playing to trick one. He analyzed the lead as a singleton or doubleton. He reviewed the bidding. East obviously had a lot of red cards and probably K or Q of ♠ in clubs. He counted his losers and found one heart,

TWIN FALLS — It will go in the record book that Burley and Twin Falls battled to a 6-6 draw in the 1981 opener Friday night.

But judging from the looks on the faces, there definitely was a winner and loser. Burley Coach John Billetz walked off the field wreathed in smiles. Bruin Coach Bill Jones looked like he'd been hit by a thunderbolt.

The Bruin problem and the Bobcat happiness stemmed from an oversight on Twin Falls' part. Since the outcome of the game does not figure into playoff berth, the tie-breaker isn't automatic. It must be agreed upon prior to the game.

Twin Falls began thinking playoff with over a minute left in the game. Burley was thinking let the clock run out.

Although Twin Falls could only manage two field goals, it was the type of situation that lent itself to the Bruin outlook because Burley scored on a fourth-down desperation pass that was tipped by three players and wound up in the arms of Bobcat Don Williams.

The Bruins, although reverting to a couple of years ago by fumbling seven times totally, fumbled away a big drive midway through the fourth quarter — for the third time in the half. After Burley misused on a fourth down to give the Bruins the ball at the Bobcat 21, Twin Falls ran two plays and then tried a field goal as the clock ran out.

Burley's Tim Knight blocked it. Twin Falls then started talking to its players about the playoff before Billetz pointed out it hadn't been agreed to.

"The way we look at it — to score on a lucky tip — we're happy to leave here in a tie. I know it doesn't go to the left side (of the standings) but it isn't in the middle either."

"I think a tie will do as much for us mentally as the win would have if we had happened to win the playoff."

"Now I know how Ara Parseghian (former Notre Dame coach) felt when he took a 10-10 tie against Michigan State (on national TV for probably the national title). I feel pretty good about it," Billetz said.

"It was an administrative mistake and should have been taken care of prior to the game. If it is my responsibility, I'll take full responsibility," Jones said.

"As far as I'm concerned, it's like the old saying 'a tie is like kissing your mother-in-law,'" he said.

Jones was distraught by the number of fumbles his Bruins had, even for an opener. "Some looked to me like the handoff was on the hip, others looked like they were placed well in the back's stomach and the others came because we were squirming for extra yards. But several of them shouldn't have happened."

The weird ending of the game overcame all the bright points. Junior Brent Standing booted field goals of 21 and 30 yards to account for Twin Falls scoring after Burley three denied the Bruins points after moving inside the 20.

Standing missed his first attempt in the opening moment. Early in the second period, a punt roughing call gave Twin Falls new life and a 54-yard pass from Todd Wington to Shane Cole carried to the Burley 11. But the Bobcats held there and Standing hit his field goal. He added his second as the first half ended.

Burley started picking up fumbles early in the second half, stopping one drive on its 24 and other at its 33.

Burley's TD came when Kelly Kelcher threw into the corner of the end zone where two Bruins and a Bobcat battled for it, tipped it over their heads and Williams came up with the brass ring. The point-after kick squibbed right.

Caldwell shows too much size, speed for Jerome to handle

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

JEROME — Caldwell High School demonstrated Friday night that nothing succeeds like excess.

Displaying more size, speed and offensive firepower than Jerome could contend with, Caldwell defeated the Tigers, 33-0, in a season and Cross State Conference opener.

The Cougars' size, in the form of defensive linemen Kevin Hudges, Brent McClure, Travis Blank and Stan Slewert, almost constantly kept Jerome from crossing the line of scrimmage.

"We just couldn't handle them," said Jerome Coach John Jund, who had his debut as Tiger coach ruined. "They were just too big for us."

Meanwhile, Caldwell's offensive linemen made life easier for their running backs, opening crater-sized holes in Jerome's spirited but overmatched defense.

Caldwell's speed was evident in its backfield contingent. Jeff Thomas, Baltazar Garza, Brad Alvaro, Zack

Salazar and even big fullback Tom Mehlert proved to be thoroughbreds in the open field and mercurial when turning corners.

The victors' main offensive spark was quarterback Alvaro, a Magic Johnson-like ballhandler often, an elusive ballcarrier occasionally and an accurate passer usually.

Caldwell established its dominance immediately, driving 68 yards in 10 plays after taking the opening kickoff and scoring on Thomas' 1-yard run.

Among the drive's more representative plays were Thomas' sweeps of 16 and 13 yards, Mehlert's bullish 5-yard run into the teeth of Jerome's defense on a third-and-one play, and Alvaro's deft screen pass to Thomas for 15 yards.

Thomas scored after taking a plich from Alvaro, sweeping around left end and struggling through several Tiger defenders.

The Cougars struck for two more scores in the second period. Thomas tallied on another 1-yard run 9:18 before halftime, capping a 61-yard, seven-play march.

That score was set up by a 40-yard pass, bringing the ball to the Tiger 1, from Alvaro to tight end Hudges.

The Tigers nearly kept Caldwell out of the end zone by holding first Garza and then Thomas for no gain. Rusty Palmer making a fine tackle on the second stop. But on Caldwell's third try from the 1, Thomas surged unimpeded into the pay dirt.

Moments later, after Craig Broadbent's interception of Bob Stone's pass, Caldwell needed only three plays to score its third touchdown, a 4-yard run by Garza. A 32-yard pass from Alvaro to wide receiver John Nagle set up Garza's tally.

During the anticlimactic third quarter Caldwell ended their destruction, scoring on Alvaro's 54-yard pass to Hudges and Mehlert's 1-yard run.

Buhl makes it 11 against Gooding

By MIKE PRATER
Times-News writer

BUHL — The string is now 11.

The Buhl Indians, scoring two touchdowns passes from senior quarterback Mark Lively, put down the Gooding Senators 13-7 in the 1981 opener Friday night.

The victory, which came in front of a stadium full of hungry football fans, marked the 11th consecutive time the Indians have defeated Gooding, a string that started in 1972 with a 14-12 win.

But, the game was played in typical opening-season fashion — especially in the early-going for Buhl.

The Indians fumbled three times and were penalized once on their opening drive, then yielded a opening drive score to Gooding.

Senior Bob Hays connected on a 34-yard pass to Tom Baker before Doug James pushed the ball over from the 2-yard-line, giving Gooding a 7-0 lead at the 6:37 mark of the initial quarter.

However, Gooding's enthusiasm died there when leading running back Logan Hamilton, who was playing defense at the time, was taken to the hospital with a reportedly damaged knee.

Lively spotted Mark Laing running a cross pattern and hit him for a 42-yard touchdown strike to tie the game at 7-7, then finished out the scoring in the first half with a five-yard pass to Troy Juker. The pass failed leaving the score at 13-6, but it was all the Indians needed to start the season on a winning note.

"It was a typical first season game — spotty and pretty rugged in the beginning," Buhl Coach Gregg Smith said. "We got lucky in the first quarter, scoring off that pass play, then our defense just held on."

"Basically, I'm pretty happy. The offense we are trying to run is going to take some time to get working and I wasn't expecting much more in the form of points," Smith said. "We definitely have a lot of work left to do, but that will come in time, I guess."

Although Buhl's defense clinched the game in the second half, Gooding's didn't quit — even with the loss to Hamilton.

It wasn't until late in the game, Buhl mounted its longest drive, a 24-yard affair, before Brad Tinker picked off a pass heading towards Ken Pierce, who was standing alone in the end-zone.

Tinker returned the ball to the 50, where the Senators began a final threat.

Gooding failed on the occasion, and on another when Buhl ran out of downs deep in Senators' territory.

Gooding wasn't the only team to suffer a loss to a key player. Starting fullback and kicker Dave Wagner was carried off the field in the first half and limped out of the locker room after halftime on crutches with an ice pack on his left knee. Juker, who rushed for 67 yards in 13 carries, also came out late in the game with a pinched nerve in his neck.

Sebastian Coe crosses the line to win the Golden Mile

3:47.33 Coe surpasses Ovett, sees improvement yet

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The world mile-record fell for the third time in 10 days Friday as Sebastian Coe of Britain set a new mark of 3:47.33 — and then predicted there was still room for improvement.

Coe, running in the annual "Golden Mile" staged by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, knocked 1.07 seconds off the mark set by compatriot Steve Ovett in Koblenz two days ago. It was also 1.2 seconds faster than Coe's previous record time in Zurich last week.

"There is still some time to come off," Coe said. "It is not going to be done by running fast at the end but by being more courageous at the beginning."

Coe said he still thought it should be possible to go through the first three laps in 2 minutes, 48 seconds, three seconds faster than he did Friday night.

Coe started off in second position, paced by American Tom Byers and with Mike Bolt of Kenya on his heels. After just one lap, the three pulled ahead and they covered 600 meters in 1:52.67.

When Byers dropped out after 1,000 meters, Coe stumbled slightly. He said afterwards he had run into Byers' back but was never in danger of losing his balance. With Bolt right behind him and cheered on by a crowd of 55,000, Coe went into a flying finish.

After the race he went on two laps of honor to a standing ovation and thanked the crowd for their "fine support and tremendous reception."

Another highlight of the evening meet was Renato Nehemiah's 13.07 seconds victory in the 110-meter hurdles. Despite four false starts, Nehemiah was ahead by the second hurdle, beating Greg Foster — chosen in place of Nehemiah to represent the U.S. at next weekend's World Track and Field Cup in Rome — by 0.35 seconds.

But Nehemiah said he was disappointed by his performance after his world record run of 12.93 in Zurich last week.

"I wanted to repeat a top performance all the more as I have not been selected for Rome," he said. "It was very unfortunate considering my present condition that tonight's race should have been marred by four false starts."

In the 10,000 meters, Julian Goater of Britain challenged Kenyan world record holder Henry Rono until the final lap.

Obviously not feeling tired after running the second fastest 5,000 meters of all time two nights before, Rono recorded the second best time in the world this year — 27 minutes, 40.78 seconds — with Goater clocking a personal best 27:47.54.

Tracy has big first half as Minico holds off Bishop Kelly

BOISE — Daryl Tracy and a Minico quarter defense led the Minico Spartans to a 26-14 decision at the hands of Bishop Kelly Friday night in Boise.

Tracy racked up over 160 yards in passing, including three touchdowns in the first half as the Spartans took a 20-0 lead at halftime.

The kids were jacked up at halftime we had to settle them down and they came out and the defense let them (Bishop Kelly) score some points...

The game was deadlocked at Tracy after the first 12 minutes and Tracy started off the second quarter with a 65-yard strike to Tracy Wodkowski and just kept racking up the points.

Tracy just picked them apart tonight and it was a good offensive showing for a Minico team, Halverson said.

24-6 decision over Murtaugh Friday night. Barry Messner, the only senior on the Red Devil squad, scored first on an eight-yard pass from Roy Nebecker...

Valley moved the ball real well tonight and we only moved it well in the first quarter, Murtaugh Coach Jim Anderson said.

The Red Devils' inexperience showed after the first period when the defensive squad set up two Valley touchdowns on penalties.

Our offense made a lot of errors and we will work on that before we play Kimberly next week, Anderson said.

Sophomore Marlin Mussen scored on a six-yard dash in the third period and Taylor hit Roy Escobedo with a 25-yard pass to round out the Valley scoring attack in the third quarter.

Filer 8, Hansen 0

FILER — Randy Tudor broke a 63-yard romp in the second quarter and the Wildcats made it stand up as the Filer defense nipped the Hansen Huskies 8-0 Friday night.

Tudor was rolling out to pass when he saw a lane and took off. He broke one tackle and then outraced two Hansen defenders for the score. Hebke Peterson piled across for the two-point conversion.

Filer's defense—fairly well-dominated the night, holding Hansen even on the ground and giving the passing game little yardage.

First, I think it was due some to their inexperience and the number of young kids they were playing, said Coach Joe Leach.

After not scoring any points the first half our kids came back with some aggressive football in the second half and that was the difference, Coach Frank Stevens said.

Hegi racked up 130 yards of rushing while the entire Wendell team only came up with 12 yards of offense.

Hansen was unable to mount a series threat.

Wendell 8, Hagerman 6

WENDELL — Rod Hegi scored Wendell's lone touchdown in the fourth quarter to lead the Trojans past Hagerman 8-6 Friday night.

Hagerman struck first blood in the first quarter with tailback Mike McFadden scoring on a one-yard plunge.

The clinching touchdown came on the end of an 80-yard drive by Wendell that started when Hagerman was hit with a roughing the kicker call.

Renfro makes up for mistake, much to Musers' chagrin

By MARY CLEMONS
Times-News sports editor

FAIRFIELD — Todd Renfro made one mistake Friday, then spent the rest of the afternoon redeeming himself.

The result was a 26-6 victory for his Garden Valley Wolverines over host Camas County High.

The 6-2, 165-pounder threw for two touchdown passes and intercepted five Camas County aerials, returning one 93 yards for six points. Not too shabby for the first game of his senior season.

Renfro, a quarterback and free safety, gave Camas County a 6-0 lead just seconds into the second quarter when he threw a short swing pass right into the arms of Musher defensive lineman Chris Gunder, who rambled 65 yards for the TD. It was to be one of very few Musher highlights during the season opener on an 85-degree afternoon.

Renfro counted in all of the scoring plays except one. His range and speed in the defensive backfield kept Camas County from generating an effective passing attack, something Coach Ed Blankenship had hoped for.

When Renfro wasn't getting his hands on Dave Simon's passes (he knocked down four passes in addition to the five thefts), teammate Howard Briggs was molesting Camas runners, a namey Danny Turner. Turner, a transfer student from Carey, showed some effective running early, but Briggs and partners put the clamps on Blankenship's running plans as well.

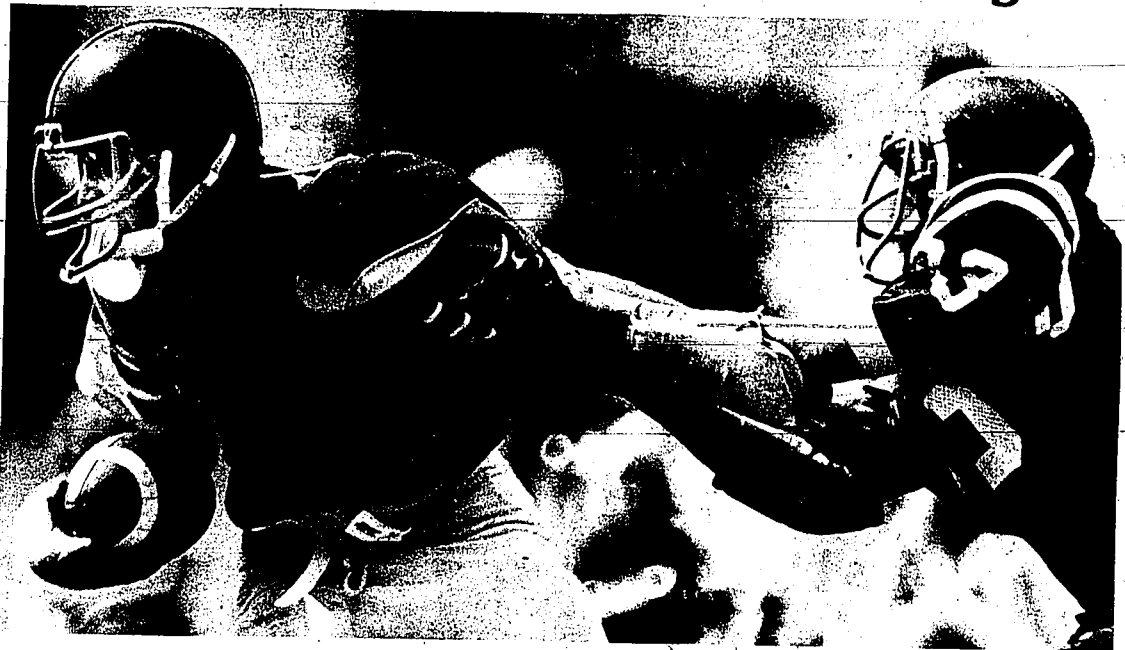

The Musers finished with 35 yards on the ground and 69 in the air, but the passing total was negated by Renfro's pickpocket work.

Actually, he had to do something because he put those guys in the game in the first place," Garden Valley Coach Darell Lindstrom said.

Renfro's mistake came on a second-and-eight play. He was under a heavy rush and simply didn't see Gunder who left as he threw a safety valve intended for fullback Charlie Johnson.

"We were both to blame," Renfro said. "He wasn't there and I didn't really look, I just threw it."

Having already snuffed Camas County's second possession with an interception, Renfro grabbed a pass intended for David Lemons but underthrown. The turnover gave the

Camas County's Lonnie Funkhouser grabs Todd Renfro as the Garden Valley senior looks for open field after one of his five interceptions in Friday's game

Wolverines the ball at their own 47 and they took just four plays to tie the score with Renfro finding halfback Allen Bricken deep over the middle. Camas punned Renfro down short of the goal on the PAT run, keeping the game knotted 6-6.

Garden Valley's next caper came in the closing seconds of the half. Camas drove to the Wolverines' five and elected to have Lemons try a 22-yard field goal. His attempt was through the middle, but one too many Musers were in the backfield, negating the three points. Lemons tried again from 27 yards out but missed short and to the right.

Garden Valley took over at the 20. Johnson pushed for one yard before Renfro hit Bricken for a 44-yard gain to the Camas County 35. Renfro looked for Bricken again, but settled for a three-yard gain to Brian Moscrip, who came across the middle.

With just seconds left Blankenship got his Musers into a deep prevent defense, but Renfro found Johnson on the left and threaded the ball over defender Turner for a 30-yard TD.

Renfro hit Johnson on the PAT pass for a 14-6 lead with just 14 seconds left in the half.

At the half Renfro had five completions in 12 attempts for 120 yards and two TDs. Bricken had three catches for two TDs and 115 yards.

Bricken showed his versatility in the second half as he ran for 48 yards. He took an inside handoff late in the quarter and went 30 yards to the Camas County 20. Five plays later Johnson bulled in from two yards out. The run failed, leaving Garden Valley up 20-6.

Lindstrom used several offensive players the rest of the game, leaving in the veteran secondary and linebackers to keep the Musers stumped.

Renfro's final heroic act of the day came when Simon fired deep and Renfro made a clean steal and streaked 93 yards up the sideline for the final score of the game.

"It wasn't too bad today," Renfro said. "Got a lot of the interceptions I just had to turn and run to the ball. He (Simon) was having problems." The loss may have deflated Blankenship's hopes for a strong season, but the Musers did show the ability to move the ball at times. But the inability to find a route around Renfro proved to be the Musers' downfall.

Camas visits Cascade next Friday in hopes of finding the winning side.

Templeton to seek psychiatric help

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The team doctor for the St. Louis Cardinals said Friday shortstop Garry Templeton, suspended for making obscene gestures at fans in a game this week, has agreed to seek psychiatric help.

Dr. Stan London said Templeton is "very receptive, almost anxious" to see a psychiatrist.

"If the evaluation indicates that treatment is needed, he'll have treatment," said London.

London met with Templeton Thursday, a day after he was ejected from a game against San Francisco for making a series of obscene gestures at cheering fans. The actions angered St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog, who pulled Templeton into the dugout and scolded him.

Herzog later fined Templeton $5,000 and suspended him indefinitely without pay. Herzog said Templeton would have to make a public apology before playing again for the Cardinals.

With jockey Bill Shoemaker aboard, John Henry will be in post position No. 14 for the first running of the world's richest thoroughbred race. The winner will receive $600,000.

John Henry has been the favorite in the race with 9-5 odds according to the morning line set by Arlington Park officials. John Henry will be coupled with Super Moment in the 1 1/4 mile turf race.

Leonard calls Hearn's 'freak of nature'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Sugar Ray Leonard called Thomas Hearn a "freak of nature" Friday and predicted he'd stop the World Boxing Association welterweight champion in the 10th round when they meet Sept. 16 in a scheduled 15-round bout.

"Physically, he's second to none," said Leonard, the World Boxing Council welterweight champ and the WBA junior middleweight king. "He's a freak of nature. But psychologically, I have the edge. Experience in big fights with big crowds — like in Montreal — will make the difference."

Leonard lost his title in Montreal (fight before 75,000 people but regained it five months later when Duran quit in the eighth round.

Erhardt pleased with Patriots' performance

By United Press International

Occasionally, New England needs a pat on the back to keep momentum going.

The unbeaten Patriots have that vote of confidence from Coach Ron Erhardt as they seek to close out their second straight undefeated exhibition season Sunday against the Washington Redskins, also 3-0 in exhibition play.

"We've developed some momentum since our first pre-season game in Los Angeles and we would like to continue right on through this week," says Erhardt, who expects a "physical" game against the Redskins.

"We'll still be looking at a lot of the backup people, though, in order to prepare for the final countdown to 45 players and our opener against Baltimore."

New England has swept past the Rams, Tampa Bay and Oakland, giving Erhardt excellent opportunity for surviving the rookie crop. He has watched second-round draft choice Tony Collins of East Carolina rush for 127 yards and eighth-round pick Lin Dawson of North Carolina State catch eight passes for 102 yards.

Washington's new coach, Joe Gibbs, has made remarkable progress with a team that has yielded only 30 points in pre-season. Most gratifying was the grittiness displayed by the Redskins as they scored on a 54-yard punt return by Mike Nels in the third period against Baltimore after a 59-yard TD was nullified in the opening quarter.

Washington owner Jack Kent Cooke, who had success with a winning Los Angeles Laker team in the NBA, is trying to instill the spirit of victory in the Redskins.

"We have but one objective and that is to win," Cooke told a Welcome Home Luncheon gathering in Washington Thursday. "There is not a man in the organization who wants to win more than I do; not one. Winning is the ticket. It is pure joy, winning is ecstasy and there is no worthy substitute."

In today's action, Chicago is at St. Louis, Cleveland at Green Bay, Denver at Cincinnati, Detroit at New Orleans, Houston at Dallas, the New York Giants at Pittsburgh, Philadelphia at the New York Jets and San Francisco at Oakland.

Dallas, in an unusual reversal of positions, is last in the NFC Eastern exhibition standings, but Coach Tom Landry sees considerable improvement. Dallas broke a two-game losing streak last week by whipping Pittsburgh 24-14.

"We needed to play a good game like that," said Landry. "Our defense played well and our offense moved the ball. I think we had too many 2nd-and-15 situations, too many penalties and turnovers. But again, the bright spot was the defense."

Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw was sacked six times by the charging Cowboys, who also intercepted two passes and recovered two fumbles.

Oakland, the defending Super Bowl champion, closes out its training camp with an annual exhibition against cross-bay rival San Francisco, with both teams sporting 2-1 records. The Raiders have totally dominated the pre-season series with the 49ers, winning 11 of the 14 games contested. Oakland is averaging 4.7 yards per rush, without injured Mark van Begen, the all-time Raider rushing leader, who is expected to play against San Francisco.

Jefferson says teammates' banquet boycott shocked him

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Holdout wide receiver John Jefferson said Friday "it was kind of shocking and unexpected," Jefferson said. "This are getting bad. It shouldn't be this way on a team planning to make it to the Super Bowl. But we're a family on the team and it's nice to know my teammates believe in me and the others."

The players notified Charger management Thursday that, for the first time in 21 years, they would not be attending the annual "Kickoff Banquet" held for the benefit of fans.

Charger management canceled the event and said they would give refunds to the 1,468 fans who had made $20 reservations.

The players' statement, in part, said: "We are not doing this in an effort to negotiate contracts, but to show management we are unhappy with its efforts to achieve our goals. Uniting the team and winning the Super Bowl."

Jefferson, a holdout since the start of training camp on July 25, is attempting to have his contract renegotiated so that he can receive his deferred salary sooner.

Defensive end Fred Dean, a holdout in last year's pre-season, also is unhappy with his contract.

"I sure don't want to be the fall guy," said Jefferson, a four-year veteran from Arizona State and one of the league's leading receivers. "That's what worries me. I don't want fingers pointing at me if things start to go wrong this season. Before that happens, I would ask to be traded."

Tight end Kellen Winslow, who joined the boycotting players, said the action by the team was not meant as "an ultimatum against team owner Gene Klein."

"We just wanted people to be aware there is a problem," Winslow said. "What eventually happens on this team has to be a joint effort between management, coaches and players. That's all we were saying."

Three-foot birdie on 18th hole puts Irwin up by 1 at Firestone

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Hale Irwin rolled in a three-foot birdie putt on the final hole Friday to break a four-way tie for first place after two rounds of the $400,000 World Series of Golf.

Irwin's birdie putt, giving him a second straight 68 for a 36-hole score of 136, came moments after playing partners Bill Rogers and Bernhard Langer had birdied the hole to pull into a tie with Irwin and Larry Nelson, who had finished earlier.

Rogers and Langer, who both started the day tied with Irwin for the lead, each shot one-under 68 in the second round, while Nelson, one over par at the start of the day, shot a six-under 66 on the 7,173-yard par-70 Firestone Country Club course.

Jack Nicklaus was alone in fifth place at 138 following 36 holes of play after a three-under 67 Friday. Isao Aoki, who had the day's best round of 65, and Jerry Pate were another shot back at 139. Pate had a second-round 69.

The only other player to match par for the first two rounds was Curtis Strange whose 71 Friday gave him a 140 total.

Irwin, for the second straight day, got off to a slow start. Although he managed to par the first eight holes, some coming on near-miraculous saves, he bogeyed the 470-yard ninth when he hit his second shot into the right rough and failed to get up and down.

But just as he did in the opening round, Irwin birdied the next two holes to reclaim a share of the lead. He took sole possession when he hit his six-iron out of the rough to within three feet of the pin on No. 18.

Rogers was even-par through five holes but suffered a double-bogey on the par-four sixth, when he drove into left rough. He took three more shots to reach the green.

But he went on to birdie the 11th, 15th and 18th to retake the lead.

Langer, the West German who celebrated his 24th birthday Thursday, played a consistent 35-34 round which included bogeys on the fifth and 13th holes and birdies on the eighth, 11th and 18th.

Nelson's round of 33-33 included two birdies on the front side and three on the back and his only bogey of the day came when he three-putted the 14th green from 70 feet away.

Nicklaus, who has won seven tournaments at Firestone since 1962, birdied the first two holes and bogeyed the seventh to turn at one-under-par 34. He then reeled off three straight birdies on the 11th, 12th and 13th before three-putting the 14th from 35 feet.

Hale Irwin waves to crowd after final putt

Spuzich leads Carner by 1

DENVER (UPI) — Nineteen-year veteran Sandra Spuzich birdied four of the first five holes Friday for a three-under 69 to edge into the second-round lead of a $150,000 LPGA tournament.

Spuzich ended the two days at 70-69-139, five-under par and one stroke ahead of fellow veteran JoAnne Carner.

Seven players, including first-round co-leader Jan Stephenson, were knotted at 141. Others who were in at three-under for the tournament were Lynn Adams, Janet Alex, Pat Bradley, Vicki Fergon, Beverly Klass and Patty Sheehan.

Debbie Meisterlin — who shot 66 Friday to equal the course record and set a personal record — was grouped at 142 with six others, including Nancy Lopez-Melton. Defending champion Beth Daniel and Donna Caponi were at 143.

Julie Stanger Pyne, the other first-day co-leader, had six bogeys and a triple bogey to soar to 69-80-149, just making the cut by two strokes.

Spuzich, 44, started the day at two-under and was seven-under at one point after notching birdies on the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 5th and 8th holes.

"It scared me," she said of her birdie string. "I looked at the leader board and saw seven-under next to my name and wondered, 'What in the world is going on?' When you don't normally do that, you think something is going to happen. But I managed to keep it together."

U.S. takes Walker Cup lead over Britain-Ireland

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — U.S. Amateur champion Hal Sutton of Shreveport, La., and veteran internationalist Jay Sigel of Berwyn, Pa., were embarrassed by a morning round foursome loss to a pair of Irish teenagers.

But the duo bounced back with singles victories in the afternoon Friday to lead the United States to a comfortable first day lead over Great Britain-Ireland in the 28th Walker Cup matches.

Sutton, who defends his American amateur title next week at the Olympic Club in San Francisco, and Sigel lost, 4-and-2, to 19-year-old Philip Walton of Dublin and 17-year-old Ronan Rafferty, the youngest player ever in Walker Cup competition and a native of Warrenpoint in Northern Ireland.

In the afternoon singles, Sutton battled Rafferty through 17 holes before scoring a 3-and-1 victory. Rafferty's undoing came on the treacherous, over-the-ocean 16th hole where he put his teeshot in the plants on the edge of a cliff and couldn't get down in less than four. Sutton, who played on the winning U.S. team in the 1979 Walker Cup, then closed out the match on the 17th with a routine par while Rafferty took a bogey.

Sigel had no such problems with Peter McEvoy, a two-time British Open champion, scoring a 3-and-2 victory in the final singles match of the day. In between his and Sutton's victories, Americans won three other matches to take an 8-4 lead halfway through the competition. In the morning, the United States won three of the four foursome matches.

Battles on & off field highlight '81

Attention will be focused on Notre Dame rookie Coach Gerry Faust, up from the prep ranks tested early, however, on Sept. 19 when they visit Michigan, a team expected to vie for the national championship this fall.

Although Michigan, Notre Dame and Alabama will be on center stage most of the season, there is plenty of talent waiting in the wings to take over the spotlight should any, or all, of the three falter.

Michigan can expect stiff competition within the Big Ten Conference from the likes of Ohio State, which returns Heisman Trophy candidate Art Schlichter at quarterback. The Buckeyes have some holes to fill but any team with a player as talented as Schlichter is a strong candidate for national honors.

Alabama is no shoo-in for the Southeastern Conference championship, either. Although the Crimson Tide was considered the favorite, Georgia, Mississippi State and Florida are all serious challengers.

Georgia, the defending national champion, was hit hard by graduation, especially in the line. But, the Bulldogs do have the country's most exciting player in All-America running back Herschel Walker, who set an NCAA freshman rushing record last season.

Mississippi State, which beat Alabama a year ago, has 13 starters back, including seven from an offense which averaged 26 points a game, and Florida has 15 starters returning from a club that went 8-4 a year ago.

Not all the good football in the South is played in the SEC. North Carolina and Clemson of the Atlantic Coast Conference and Miami (Fla.), a fast improving independent, are hopeful of earning national ranking this season.

North Carolina, which finished 11-1 last season and was ranked among the top 10, returns 12 starters; Clemson has 11 regulars back from the team that crushed Gator Bowl-bound South Carolina 27-6 in the season finale and Miami has 15 starters back from last season's 9-3 team.

In the East, the battle for supremacy is almost always between Pittsburgh and Penn State and this year should be no exception. Pitt has seven starters back from last year's 11-1 squad, including standout quarterback Dan Marino, and Penn State has 11 starters back from last year's 10-2 club. Penn State, however, must cope with a schedule that includes Miami (Fla.), Alabama, Notre Dame and Pittsburgh. In the Ivy League, Yale has been tabbed the favorite to win an unprecedented third straight crown.

Out in the Midlands, Oklahoma and Nebraska once again should field the toughest squads. Oklahoma boasts two of the best rushers in the nation in Buster Rhymes and Stanley Wilson and, with 11 starters back from last year's 10-2 club, the Sooners are a legitimate contender for the national championship. Nebraska has 13 starters, including eight on offense, from last year's 10-2 team. The two teams should easily dominate the Big Eight Conference and will meet in a Nov. 21 showdown at Norman, Okla.

While the Big Eight used to have the distinction of being the deepest and toughest of all the conferences, that honor now belongs to the Southwest Conference.

"I think we have the best-balanced conference in the country," says Tom Wilson, the head coach at Texas A&M. "No one is head and shoulders above the others and no one is a patsy."

Any one of six teams seems capable of winning the SWC and a dogfight is expected between Texas, Arkansas, Baylor, Houston, SIU and Texas A&M. SIU, however, is on NCAA probation for recruiting violation and is ineligible for post-season competition even if it should win the conference.

A highly competitive race also is expected in the Pacific Ten Conference. Southern California has the most blue-chip talent, but Arizona State, Washington, UCLA and Oregon all are capable of winning the league title.

Few teams in the nation have as much grade A talent as Southern California. The Trojans have at least six players who will be drafted by the National Football League next season, including tailback Marcus Allen, the nation's second leading rusher as a junior.

In the Rockies, Brigham Young University is the odds-on favorite to win the Western Athletic Conference. The Cougars, led by NCAA record-setting quarterback Jim McMahon, have 11 returning starters from last year's 12-1 team but can expect some stiff competition for the WAC title from Hawaii and Colorado State.

Among Division IAA schools, Eastern Kentucky is rated as the team to beat. The Colonels, a two-point loser to Boise State in last year's Division IAA championship game, are deep and talented and should have one of the most explosive offenses in the nation.

The state of California should be a hotbed of activity in Division II. Defending champion Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo, University of California at Davis and Santa Clara are all definite contenders for the championship.

In Division III, defending champion Dayton, although suffering some severe losses, is still the team to beat. The Flyers, 14-0 a year ago, have 11 starters returning but will have a new head coach in Mike Kelly, who succeeds Rick Carter.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The college football season... having achieved more television exposure than Cary Grant reruns, opens Sept. 5 amid an off-field battle for No. 1 that could dramatically change the future of the sport.

While the struggle for No. 1 on the gridiron begins next week, the fight for governing control of college football has already started and could become an all-out war.

The fight is between the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA), a governing body of college athletics since 1862, and the College Football Association (CFA), a group of 61 major colleges interested in controlling their own destiny.

Battle lines were drawn last weekend when the CFA, meeting in Atlanta, ignored threats from the NCAA and approved a $180 million television contract with NBC. The agreement is in conflict with a $25 million contract the NCAA recently signed with CBS and ABC, and the NCAA has threatened to expel any team appearing under such a CFA contract.

The CFA vote on the NBC package, however, was far from unanimous (33-20), indicating there are several schools leery of repercussions from the NCAA.

Head Coach Joe Paterno of Penn State, one of the CFA-member schools that voted to accept the NBC package, can't understand what all the fuss is about.

"There is nothing in the rulebook that concerns this," said Paterno. "There are about seven television packages with the various conferences in basketball, so why not two packages for football?"

"We're opening up an exciting new era in college football. Why in God's name would you want to expel us just because we're negotiating a TV package? We are still working under the structure of the NCAA."

The showdown should come sometime after Sept. 10, since CFA members have until that date to change their vote.

Of far greater interest to college football fans is the battle for No. 1 on the field, and this year promises to be an exciting one. Last year's national champion turned out to be a surprise with Georgia (12-0) finishing as the only Division-IA team with a perfect record and capturing top honors.

Much of the attention this year will be focused on the weekly exploits of two coaches — one old and one new.

The old one is 66-year-old Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama, who is just nine victories shy of becoming the winningest coach in college football history. If all goes well for Bryant — and Alabama is loaded with talent — the historic 315th victory could come on Oct. 31 at Tuscaloosa, Ala., against Mississippi State. Amos Alonzo Stagg holds the record for victories.

The new coach in the spotlight is Gerry Faust, a legendary name in high school circles who has taken over the head coaching job at Notre Dame. An energetic and deeply religious man, Faust has inherited what many believe to be the most-pressurized job in football, college or professional.

Faust takes over a powerful team that returns 16 starters from last year's 9-2-1 squad. The Irish will be

Experts say Irish have best freshmen

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gerry Faust apparently has a way with words that would coax a smile from The Great Sphinx.

The charismatic new coach of Notre Dame, known for his bubbling enthusiasm, had the honor of recruiting the best crop of freshman football players in the nation this year, according to The Blue Chip Bureau which makes a study of recruiting practices across the nation.

Of the 26 freshman football players who signed a letter-of-intent to attend Notre Dame this fall, 16 were regarded as "can't miss" prospects by the Bureau's evaluation process. Of those 16, at least three were considered "franchise" players who have the potential to turn a program around.

The Blue Chip Bureau, based in Oklahoma City, annually evaluates the results of national college recruiting based upon multiple criteria in order to gain the benefit of both qualitative and quantitative analysis. All the data collected of the 5,000 prospects is fed into a computer and each player receives a performance value.

Based on that criteria, Notre Dame came out first followed, in order, by Michigan, Oklahoma, Southern California, Stanford, Texas, UCLA; Florida State, Florida and Alabama.

It shouldn't be that surprising that Faust has recruited that well in his first season. He is a legend in high school circles, having previously coached 18 seasons at Moeller High School in Cincinnati. During that span Faust's teams compiled a 174-17-2 record and 250 of his players earned college football scholarships.

Faust's link to Notre Dame has always been strong. Eighteen of his Moeller players ended up playing for the Irish, including six of the current squad members.

"On paper this is the best group of recruits we've had here at Notre Dame since we went on the 30 scholarship limit," said assistant coach Brian Boulac. "It doesn't look like we have a weakness."

Michigan, Southern California, Oklahoma, Stanford and Florida State were the only other schools to recruit as many as three franchise players.

Notre Dame freshmen players considered to be in the franchise category are defensive tackle Mike Golic of Cleveland, brother of former Irish All-American linebacker Bob Golic; fullback Mark Brooks of Cincinnati and tailback Chris Smith, also of Cincinnati.

Michigan's top recruits are defensive back Greg Washington of Detroit, running back Brian Mercer of Cincinnati and offensive lineman Bruce Brown of Detroit.

Southern California's best recruits are linebacker Jack Del Rio of Hayward, Calif., quarterback Sean Salisbury of Escondido, Calif., and fullback Michael Aloi of Wilmington, Calif.

Oklahoma has three standouts in defensive back Lawrence Hardin of Orange, Texas, running back Alvin Ross of Aurora, Ill., and noseguard Greg Sims of Los Angeles.

Stanford, which already has one of the nation's best quarterbacks in John Elway, recruited another in Fred Buckley of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The Cardinals also got two other franchise players in tight end Garin Veris of Chillicothe, Ohio, and wide receiver Emile Harry of Fountain Valley, Calif.

Florida State's three top recruits are running back Tony Smith of Miami, running back Cedric Jones of Valdosta, Ga., and kicker Mike Rendina of Pompano Beach, Fla.

Other freshmen considered to be in the franchise category are tight end Tony Wroten and running back Mike Vindvich of Washington, wide receiver Brent Duhon of Texas, tackle Dave Baran of UCLA, offensive tackle Hardy Walker of Alabama, wide receiver Bernard J. Giddings of Houston, defensive back Jeff Dale of LSU and offensive tackle Bill Fraile of Pittsburg.

Also, quarterback Alan Cockrell of Tennessee, offensive guard Jim Lachey of Ohio State, linebacker Kevin Hancock of Baylor, defensive end Ray Childress of Texas A&M, quarterback Mark Rypien of Washington State.

BYU, McMahan plan no changes

DENVER (UPI) — If it's worked before, don't change it. That's an apt enough summation of LaVell Edwards' attitude for 1981.

"Of course, we've been the same as last year," the Brigham Young coach says. "We'll throw to everyone."

Edwards is so optimistic about the coming season that he's predicting his team will go 12-0 and win its sixth consecutive title in the Western Athletic Conference, the major college league in the Rocky Mountain West.

One of the reasons for Edwards' optimism about BYU's chances is returning quarterback Jim McMahan, who led the Cougars to NCAA titles in total offense, passing offense and scoring in 1980. Last year, he was the nation's top signal-caller, throwing for 4,571 yards and 47 touchdowns. McMahan doesn't think the Heisman Trophy is out of his reach.

"But our team has to win it," he said. "If our team wins the games, then my statistics will come along and I should be in the race."

Colorado State, which finished second in the WAC at 5-1-1 in 1980, will have 43 returnees — returning but standout quarterback Steve Fairchild, who gave the Rams their best season in years, will not be among them. Also lost to graduation was running back Alvin Lewis, who accounted for more than 80 percent of the Rams rushing yardage.

Colorado State's prospects for a conference title went right down to the last game in 1980. The Rams had beaten or tied all other WAC opponents: Air Force, New Mexico, San Diego State, Utah (tie) and Wyoming. But in the final game, the Cougars blitzed them offensively, winning 45-14.

Air Force, which finished in last place in 1980 with Texas-El Paso, enters its second year in the conference with 16 starters returning. Among them are Mike France, the team's leading tackler, and the leading rusher, fullback Ted Sundquist.

Hawaii finished 1980 at 8-3, its best record since 1973. Although 15 starters return this year, the Rainbow Warriors lost their captains for the offense, defense and special teams.

"Their leadership was the key to our success last season," said Coach Dick Tomey. "Their losses will leave a vacuum that will be hard to fill." Tomey will also have to develop a new starting quarterback, center and guard.

At New Mexico, Coach Joe Morrison said he and his staff will have more to work with this year with the addition of nine junior college transfers. Last year, the Lobos were 4-7 overall and 3-4 in the WAC. San Diego State, 4-8 last year, begins the season under new head Coach Doug Sevil, the offensive coordinator at BYU for the last five years. Half of the team's starters are returning, and the ranks have been swelled by the addition of 20 transfers and 11 freshmen.

At Texas-El Paso, 11 starters are returning — four offensive and seven defensive players.

Utah Coach Jim Haynes Howard said whether or not his team improves its 5-5-1 1980 record will depend on the defense.
