After a week of food, thrills, rides, and shows, Tom Shouse, right, the secretary-manager of the fair, begins locking up

And now it's cleanup time

By SUSAN GALLAGHER

FILER — Everyone from seamstresses to producers of prize hens showed up at the county fairgrounds Sunday to claim their fair entries.

Meanwhile, fair manager Tom Shouse, busy tabulating figures and taking care of other concluding details, said he will know today how well fair attendance this year compared to past years. A projected 90,000 to 82,000 persons were expected at the 1981 fair.

Twin Falls County Sheriff James Munn, whose men patrolled extensively during the fair, said this year's event proceeded "very smoothly," though a ripple developed Saturday night when officers received "an indication" of a bomb threat. Munn said the suggested threat was unfounded.

Neoma Shouse, wife of the fair manager, said cleanup work at the fairgrounds easily could require the rest of the week. And Magic Valley Disposal Co. manager Brad Killgore said an estimated 40 yards of compacted trash could be hauled from the fairgrounds today. Crews hauled about 10 compacted yards of trash daily during the fair. Killgore said.

For at least one fair participant, Inland Empire Shows Inc., moving and setting up crates began almost as soon as the fair ended late Saturday night.

Bob LaBelle, food manager for the carnival company, said crews dismantled an array of rides and games, and began clearing debris Sunday between 12:30 a.m. and 6 a.m. The two carnival shows erected for the Twin Falls fair will be split for their next engagements, with one show going to Orofino and the other to Nevada.

Joey LaRuff and pastor Hester Hall, students at Filer Elementary School, found that wandering through a maze of dismantled rides, such as the Round Up, offered a final brush with the fair before classes resumed today. Elementary school students in Filer were excused from classes during fair week.

"Two weeks of school, then a week off and now another 170 days of school," said Hall, 11. "I'm counting."

In one of the barns, poultry superintendent

Doyle Shriver counted the minutes Sunday afternoon until the owners of the last two remaining chickens showed up.

"We're waiting on two chickens, then we can go home and have dinner," Shriver said. As his wife sorted tags nearby, Shriver, who has been the poultry superintendent for 23 years, said he and his wife put in more than 12 hours of work daily during the fair.

Work wasn't quite over for attendants at the 4-H food booth, apparently the only place to get breakfast or lunch at the fairgrounds on Sunday.

"A lot of the 4-H kids with livestock slept overnight to be near their animals and came over here to get breakfast," said attendant Mitzi Harkins of Twin Falls. "Even though the fair's over, we've had plenty of customers."

Lana Williamson, 13, and her brother, Kevin, 9, of Twin Falls, were busy picking up their respective entries in food and ceramics competition. Kevin had a use for his prize-winning ceramic dresy daddy, but Lana wasn't quite sure about her plate of cookies — somewhat stale after a stint at the fair.

Soviets using war poisons, Haig charges

BERLIN (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig, jeered by 50,000 anti-American protesters, Sunday charged the Soviet Union has been using illegal biological poisons in warfare in Cambodia, Laos and Afghanistan. He said the United States has evidence of this and he promised to give more details on his return to Washington today.

"We now have physical evidence from Southeast Asia which has been analyzed and found to contain abnormally high levels of three potent, poisonous substances not indigenous to the region and which are highly toxic to man and animals."

The poisons are described by medical authorities as chemicals produced by biologic organisms such as fungus or mushrooms. The production of such biological weapons is forbidden by a 1975 international convention.

The Soviet Union Sunday denied the charges, saying Haig "has come forward with a monstrous, slanderous statement."

"Unfounded and false assertions by the U.S. secretary of state have given rise to widespread anger among U.S. journalists," the news agency said.

Tass said the United States is the worst offender in using such substances, charging the Americans used chemical warfare in Vietnam, supplied Afghan rebels with chemical grenades, and provided U.S.-made chemical bombs for the ruling junta in El Salvador.

Haig said the United States is taking steps to ensure the alleged violation is brought to the attention of the United Nations and other signatories to the 1975 convention.

Haig's speech was a plea for unity among the Western nations, rallying behind a renewed vision of the peace.

Even when we disagree with what you say, we are prepared to defend to the death your right to say it," Haig said, with about 7,000 policemen keeping the protesters at bay.

The speech by Haig, given within sight of the Berlin Wall, was the most direct and defiant statement in his campaign to organize international resistance to Soviet pressure and advances.

Police used water cannons, tear gas and nightsticks to disperse some of the demonstrators who shouted "Go home Haig" and tried to block a City Hall ceremony honoring the secretary.

The protesters burned 100 American flags, threw stones and smoke bombs at police, looted stores and set fires in the street.

Sixty police were injured and 128 arrests were reported during the demonstrations.

The flag burning was a reflection of the growing anti-American sentiment in Germany that is being fed by fear of war and opposition to the NATO plan to deploy U.S. medium-range missiles in Europe.

Demonstrators who marched through the heart of West Berlin carried placards reading "We won't let ourselves be defended to death," "Mr. Haig, there is nothing more important than peace," "Friendship with America, yes, neutron bomb no."

Reagan defends Pentagon shaving

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, calling the Defense Department a "poor relative," Sunday defended his plan to trim a comparatively small $2 billion from next year's Pentagon budget because domestic programs have been "overgrown and extravagant."

Reagan discussed his latest proposals to slash the federal budget on his arrival at the White House from a weekend at Camp David.

He said his plan to cut $2 billion from the fiscal year 1982 military budget is about 15 percent of what is needed to hold the line on a $42.5 billion national deficit.

On Saturday, the White House announced Reagan plans to trim the Pentagon budget by $13 billion over the next three years. The cut was widely interpreted as a victory for Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who squared off with budget director David Stockman over the possibility of bigger cuts.

Having let the Pentagon off the hook, aides indicated Reagan will seek to trim up to $14 billion in non-military spending next year and some $63 billion the following two years.

"The $2 billion (for 1982) is all that we can ask," Reagan, wearing a Western shirt and blue jeans, told reporters.

"When you stop to think," Reagan said, "we've been cutting a budget that has been overgrown and extravagant over the years, while in the same years, Defense has been a poor relative and we have not been keeping pace" with a needed military buildup.

The president denied there was any friction between Weinberger and Stockman over the size of the proposed military budget, despite widespread reports to the contrary.

"All the speculation that this was somehow a contest," Reagan said, shaking his head, "is a bore. It was complete agreement on those outlays without setting us back militarily."

He said he believes the planned $2 billion cut in military spending is a "fair percentage" of the amount that must be trimmed from next year's fiscal budget.

The president also said Weinberger will still seek to find other areas where he may cut the Pentagon budget "without setting back our plans."

Stockman and other top aides have been saying the president would have to chop $20 billion to $30 billion from projected military spending in 1983 and 1984 to reach his goal of a balanced budget by the end of his term.

It was learned, meanwhile, Reagan seeks to pare an additional $9 billion to $16 billion across the board from the 1982 federal budget. Congress already agreed to cut it by more than $30 billion.

Having indicated to slice only $2 billion from the Pentagon budget for that fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1,

San Francisco Irish support father's bid to see daughter

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Irish community leaders in San Francisco pledged their support Sunday to a farmer from Donegal who tried to storm a Unification Church "Moonie" camp in Northern California in a vain effort to reach his daughter.

James Canning, 50, vowed he wouldn't return to Ireland until he could meet his 23-year-old daughter Mary, a schoolteacher from Dublin, on neutral grounds for a family talk.

Canning and about 40 supporters from the Irish community in San Francisco invaded a "Moonie" campground near the health spa of Calistoga Saturday, breaking down a gate and engaging in a footline match with churchgoers who would not allow them to enter.

To show support for Canning's efforts, a rally was called at the San Francisco Irish Cultural Center, followed by a march to the headquarters of the Unification Church of Korean evangelist Sun Myung Moon.

Sonoma County sheriff's deputies were called to the encampment when Canning and the group tried to force their way inside.

"The Moonies were very upset. They said they were being attacked," said Lt. Jim Brown.

Niall O'Dowd, editor of the Irishman newspaper in San Francisco, said some of the Moonies carried crowbars and a Roman Catholic Nun, with the group, Sister Hanna Nun, said the moonies used insulting language and "threatened to split my skull" during the confrontation.

However, Joshua Colter, who was at the camp instructing a seminar, said: "It was a mob. They were uncivilized. They were shouting and disturbing our seminar."

Miss Canning, who joined the sect while on vacation in San Francisco in July, was not at the camp but at a church residence in Berkeley. She denied being brainwashed by the Moonies and said she was willingly staying with the church.

"I'm 23 years old. I went to college for four years and I'm free to make my own decisions," Miss Canning said in a telephone interview.

Canning arrived in San Francisco looking for his daughter on Sept. 3, accompanied by another daughter, Mairead Connolly, 24, and her husband Patrick.

Community Action Agency wants to promote contacts

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

"And thou shalt not glean thy vineyard, neither shalt thou gather every grape of thy vineyard; thou shalt leave them for the poor and the stranger" — Leviticus 19:9-10.

TWIN FALLS — The Biblical practice of gleaning — gathering unharvested bounty from farmlands — could gain sweeping momentum in the Magic Valley this fall.

The South Central Community Action Agency and Idaho Hunger Council are working together on a program to bring gleaners, farmers and gardeners together in Twin Falls, Jerome and Cassia counties.

For years, gleaners of various income levels have successfully combed Magic Valley potato fields in search of post-harvest spuds. But much more of Idaho's apparently vast supply of unharvested food can be gathered through a concerted effort, maintains Mary Lee Pfefferle, the SCCAA food and nutrition director.

Her work includes showing low-income persons how to cut grocery costs through self-help.

The combination of gleaning, backyard gardening and food preservation can cut the family grocery bill by 50 percent, says Joyce Flinn of Jerome. Flinn and her neighbor, Lou Westlake, are among a half-dozen or so Jerome women who have formed a gleaning "club" of sorts.

Togelher, the women have hunted wild asparagus, loaded almost 900 pounds of gleaned potatoes into an old station wagon and spent the better part of a day picking 23 gallons of wild blackberries near Hagerman. As gleaners, they keep what they need persons.

There should be plenty of food to both keep and give away, if national statistics are any indication. Idaho Hunger Action Council literature states that an estimated one-fifth of all food produced in the United States for human consumption is "lost" either because it's unmarketable through mechanized methods or rendered unmarketable through sheer overabundance or blemished appearance.

About 8 million tons of produce were grown commercially in Idaho in 1979. If the state conforms to national statistics, 1.6-million tons of that food was unused. Potatoes commonly remain in fields because of damp ground that can't support heavy harvesting equipment.

In the Magic Valley, a gleaning coordinator recently hired with Idaho Hunger Action Council funds will spend the next two months trying to get some of the unused tonnage into the kitchens of people in need.

Persons assisted by coordinator Linda Cunningham will be asked to donate part of their gleaned produce to needy individuals and to agencies that can distribute to the needy.

In the past, SCCAA, which will provide office space for the coordinator, has launched small-scale efforts to promote gleaning. This year's assistance by a full-time worker is a first.

Part of the campaign to promote gleaning involves a series of meetings for persons who want produce and those who have it to give.

The meetings, all at 7 p.m., are scheduled for this Tuesday at the Jerome SCCAA office, 226 N. Lincoln St.; Monday, Sept. 21, at the Burley SCCAA office, 1201 Normal Ave.; and Tuesday, Sept. 22, at the Twin Falls SCCAA office, 129 Second St. E.

Pfefferle says limited publicity already has generated about 15 calls from persons who have surplus fruit and vegetables that are free for the gathering.

Farmers whose acreage is gleaned can qualify for tax benefits, she says.

Officers brace for clash with foes of nuclear plant

AVILA BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Hundreds of law enforcement officers braced Sunday for a confrontation on the scenic California coast with 1,000 demonstrators determined to stop the opening of the Diablo Canyon nuclear reactor.

The anti-nuclear activists, their number smaller than expected, massed in a tent camp to launch their long-planned "blockade."

Representatives of the Abalones Alliance, a coalition of anti-nuclear groups, said they could not predict when they would begin their action — a campaign aimed at blocking all roads to the reactor while other demonstrators occupy the plant site.

The blockade would begin "when we sense that it feels right," a spokesman said.

The law-enforcement officers, backed by 500 National Guardsmen mobilized for support, gathered to stop the blockade of the plant located on the Pacific coast midway between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

A force of 135 Highway patrol officers from around the state was called in to supplement sheriff's deputies. Their patrol cars were seen throughout the four-mile area Sunday, crisscrossing the two lane roads and getting into position to establish road blockades.

Pacific Gas & Electric Co., largest privately owned utility in the country, has said there is nothing the protesters could do to prevent activation of the reactor for low power tests.

Publisher Loeb dies at 75

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — William Loeb, conservative publisher of the Manchester Union Leader whose sting editorial derided the 1972 presidential hopes of Edmund Muskie, died Sunday of cancer. He was 75.

Loeb, who also published the New Hampshire Sunday News, attacked presidents and presidential aspirants with equal vigor.

Loeb had been a patient for the past few weeks at Lahey Clinic in Burlington, Mass., and died there, said Paul Tracy, editor in chief of the newspapers.

Presidents and presidential aspirants were his favorite targets, and his front-page editorials gained international attention over the years.

Draper and smooth in person, Loeb enjoyed the sparks that followed his words.

Convicts captured in Missouri

GOODMAN, Mo. (UPI) — Law officers and National Guardsmen Sunday tracked down and captured without violence two elusive convicts who had spread an eight-day trail of terror through two states.

Convicted rapist Everett Cameron, 32, and murderer John Kitchell, 28, had been described as "guys having nothing to lose." Police had said the only safe way to stop their bing was "to shoot them."

But the weary fugitives, the last of seven inmates who escaped Sept. 6 from the Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing, finally gave up without a struggle.

Cameron and Kitchell were marched to separate county jail cells, unsmiling and soaked by a cold drizzle.

The capture ended a crime spree spanning two states and involving hundreds of state and local police officers. More than 100 guardsmen armed with M-16s and wearing bullet-proof vests joined the manhunt Saturday.

Poland coal shortage cited

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — The government warned Sunday Poland faces the danger of "economic collapse" unless coal production increases radically and in effect blamed the Solidarity union for the severe slump.

The warning by the state's emergency task force was carried by the official news agency PAP.

"Unless there is a radical — if unlikely — growth in coal extraction in the closing months of the current year, a dramatic worsening of Poland's economic crisis may occur, with the closing of a considerable proportion of industrial plants and deep cuts in electricity generation," the warning said.

The results would be even greater disproportions in the economy up to the danger of a total economic collapse."

The crisis team, headed by Deputy Prime Minister Janusz Obodowski, blamed the coal slump on the five-day work week for miners introduced with worker-state agreements last year and enforced by

It predicted a shortfall of 4 billion metric tons under the 168 million metric tons estimated as the minimum production needed to cover essential economic needs.

'Harvey' slows in Atlantic

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Harvey, the fifth and largest tropical tempest of the 1981 season, slowed its forward motion in the open Atlantic on Sunday but appeared ready to do so in its 85 mph winds.

An Air Force hurricane hunter plane, based at the center of the storm to be about 350 miles north of the Windward Islands and moving northwest.

Its forward motion continued to slow and was estimated at 15 mph Sunday evening, Dr. Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center, said further strengthening is likely through Monday.

Although Harvey's cloud mass was unusually large — 500 miles in diameter by Hurricane Forecaster Gil Clark's measure — its gale area was only average.

Medfly found in sprayed area

By United Press International

A fertile Mediterranean fruit fly has been found in an area of California where the heaviest aerial spraying of pesticides has been conducted, officials battling the insect said Sunday.

The finding of the pest in an apple tree Saturday near Milpitas was the first since Sept. 2, when an isolated fly was discovered in Pleasanton, just outside the Santa Clara Valley's three county quarantined zone.

Inside the pesticide-treated region, the discovery was the first since July and eradication project officials in Los Gatos said they were evaluating the latest threat in the state's estimated $3 billion aerial and ground assault on the bug.

No aerial spraying of malathion-faced bait took place Sunday and only a week's supply of the low toxic pesticide remains.

Japanese freighter fire out

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Japanese freighter Blue Hawk steamed toward San Francisco under its own power Sunday after crewmen extinguished a two-day blaze on the ship carrying 3,138 Hondas to Panama.

The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Morgenthau escorted the 610-foot vessel toward port for repairs after it was able to restart its engine 700 miles west of southwest of San Francisco.

Some of the $10 million inventory of automobiles was destroyed on the Liberian-registered ship, but the amount of damage was undetermined.

'Hill Street Blues' carts off 8 Emmys, gains its revenge

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The highly praised but little watched "Hill Street Blues" had its revenge on the Nielsen Sunday night.

The series swept a record eight Emmys — including awards for best acting, writing, directing and dramatic series — more than any series in the history of television.

"Taxi" was right behind it with six awards in the comedy class, including best comedy series — for the third straight year — and a best actor award for star Judd Hirsch.

"Shogun," the romance of an English navigator shipwrecked in feudal Japan, won the prestigious award for outstanding limited series, beating out "Masada."

"Hill Street," fast-paced tales of a dozen idiosyncratic police officers and their lovers coping with life and death in a northeastern city slum, capped the night by winning the award for outstanding dramatic series.

The evening was marked by an emotional tribute to four-time Emmy winner Lucille Ball, one of the nation's first TV stars who was praised by co-host Shirley MacLaine as "a national treasure." Miss Ball burst into tears as the audience of TV stars rose to their feet to applaud her 23-year career in "I Love Lucy" and successors.

Rated-troubled NBC won two Emmys, CBS got 18, ABC 12 and PBS eight.

Daniel J. Travanti, who plays the concerned, beleaguered Capt. Furillo on "Hill Street," was chosen outstanding lead actor in a series, and the top actress award went to Barbara Babcock for her portrayal of the manumgery interior decorator, Grace Gardner.

Travanti thanked NBC "for staying with us," despite low ratings "and the press who cojoned and even threatened the American public."

"Playing for Time," the story of women in a Nazi death camp, was chosen outstanding drama special.

Vanessa Redgrave won the award for outstanding lead actress in a special for her stirring role as a Jewish musician — a role Miss Redgrave held out over widespread protests from Jews who objected to her anti-Israeli political activities.

The best actor award in the same category went to Anthony Hopkins, coincidentally enough — for playing Adolph Hitler in "The Bunker."

Comedian Lily Tomlin's show "Sold Out" was named best variety special.

Hirsch, who plays the easygoing Alex Rieger, contributed to "Taxi's" sweep by taking the award for top lead actor in a comedy series. The comedy series actress prize went to Isabelle Sanford, who plays the wife Louise on "The Jeffersons."

The "Hill Street" sweep surpassed the previous Emmy record for a series, the seven won by the Julie Andrews Hour in 1973, but was still short of the all-time Emmy champion, "Eleanor and Franklin," which won 12 in 1976.

"Shogun" and "Masada," the pre-emergency favorites in the prestigious special and mini-series category, did not do so well, unexpectedly losing out in the writing and directing competition.

Celebrated playwright Arthur Miller won the special program writing award for his adaptation of "Playing for Time," the story of women musicians in a Nazi death camp. James Goldstone took the directing prize for "Kent State."

The award for best supporting actor in a drama went to Michael Conrad, who plays the paternal Sgt. Esterhuss on "Hill Street Blues." The actress award in the same category went to Nancy Marchand, who plays the publisher, Mrs. Pynchon, on "Lou Grant."

The supporting actor and actress awards in the comedy series class went to Danny De Vito, the mean cab driver "Louie" on "Taxi," and Eileen Brennan, who plays Capt. Lewis on "Private Benjamin."

"Hill Street" picked up its fourth and fifth awards for drama series writing, as the series' producers, Michael Kozoll and Steven Bochco — and director, to Robert Butler.

The awards for best supporting actor and actress in a limited series went to David Warner of "Masada" and Jane Alexander, for her performance as leader of the orchestra of Nazi concentration camp prisoners, in "Playing for Time."

There was a special tribute to bant' leader Lawrence Welk, with co-host Ed Asner commenting that "only the news, weather and sports have been on longer than this program."

Welk thanked all "you wonderful folks who've made this past 26 years possible."

"Hill Street" co-producer Michael Kozoll, who shared an award for writing, said that the Emmy success would boost the popularity of the show, the lowest rated series ever renewed by NBC.

"Taxi" won its second and third statues in the comedy series class for Michael Lonsos's writing and James Burrows directing.

Deregulation will continue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Marvin Cohen, outgoing chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, said Sunday he is satisfied that deregulation of the nation's airline industry will continue apace despite the air traffic controllers' strike.

Cohen, whose last day in the 552,500-a-year post is Tuesday, said he is satisfied with his tenure during which the government significantly reduced its regulation of the airlines.

"I looked at the opening statements I made at a press conference when I took over as chairman. The things I said I was going to do, I think I did most of them," he said in an interview with United Press International.

Cohen, 49, left a lucrative law practice in Tucson, Ariz., in 1979 at President Jimmy Carter's request to oversee the gradual dismantling of the CAB, succeeding Alfred Kahn as chairman.

Plot against Sadat linked to Moscow

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egyptian Intelligence has uncovered a Soviet plot to overthrow President Anwar Sadat in a destabilizing campaign inciting Christians and Muslims into violent clashes, Sadat's party newspaper reported today.

The Soviet conspiracy involved eight alleged members of the Soviet intelligence network KGB who were working in Egypt as diplomats and journalists along with a Hungarian spy, said the weekly newspaper Mayo, the official organ of Sadat's National Democratic party.

Egyptian intelligence had been electronically monitoring contacts between the KGB members and opposition figures over the past three years in an operation dubbed "Apple 13," Mayo said.

The KGB members, operating under the code name "Sipm," had been secretly contacting and working with prominent Egyptian opposition figures who were seized by the government in the wave of 1,600 arrests earlier this month, Mayo said.

All of the conspirators have been taken into government custody, according to the newspaper. The list also included former ministers, university professors and journalists.

El-Zayyat used to travel to Moscow to receive orders and convey information about Egypt, Mayo said.

The president now must find $7 billion to $14 billion in cuts "from other sources," meaning other government programs, the official said.

It is expected to deliver the bad news to cabinet officials at a meeting Tuesday.

Last week, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters Reagan needs to cut federal spending up to $74 billion, including defense, for 1983 and 1984.

Since the president plans to cut only $11 billion from the Pentagon budget in fiscal years 1983 and 1984, an official said that means he will have to trim domestic programs an additional $63 billion.

Although the so-called entitlement programs such as Social Security and Medicare are untouched in the 1982 budget, aides made it clear they will not be off-limits later.

Weinberger and Stockman had a well-publicized tug-of-war over the size of the military budget and aides say Weinberger won.

"The president wanted to send a strong signal to the Russians that he can implement his foreign policy," said one aide. Despite plans for a spiral in defense spending, "he feels he can balance the budget or come close to it" in 1983, the aide added.

Hogan did not pinpoint where the $14 billion in military cuts will be made, but it is expected they will be achieved by slowing the pace of armed forces expansion and the stockpiling of an arsenal abroad, and by postponing construction of some new aircraft carriers.

Aides admitted Reagan has his work cut out for him. He can set the new spending limits, but convincing Congress to go along is another story.

At a White House meeting this morning he will begin a new round of lobbying with the "boll weevils," the conservative Democrats who helped push through the first tax and budget cuts.

The Reagan's spent the weekend at Camp David, accompanied by chief of staff James Baker and deputy chief, Michael Deaver and their wives.

ful and democratic revolution which has transformed the world.

"The Western alliance," he said, "either shares the vision of a world of peaceful change where international disputes are settled without resort to force, or it is its alliance."

"If we become divided on the basic question of our purposes, if we come to mistrust our own motivations, the future is indeed bleak."

The Soviet use of biological warfare is an example, Haig said, of "the double standard (which) imposes blinders on our view of the world."

On one hand, he said, the democratic revolution represented by countries of the West is criticized and is the subject of demonstrations and propaganda.

On the other, Haig said, Soviet actions, such as the use of biological wartfare, pass unnoticed.

Most of the 50,000 anti-American demonstrators were peaceful and some brought their children along as if on a Sunday outing.

But about 1,000 militants plundered several supermarkets and a jewelry store, set debris and construction materials on fire, damaged automobiles and threw smoke bombs, stones and paving blocks at police.

The sponsors of the demonstration were the youth organizations of the Social Democrats and of Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher's Free Democrats, Communist Party, pacifist, religious and anarchist groups also participated.

After the visit, Haig flew back to Bonn for talks with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

Today's weather

September sunshine sticking around over Idaho

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas: Fair through Tuesday. Light winds except in afternoons when velocities reach 8 to 14 mph. Highs in the 80s. Lows in the 40s.

Andrus: Watt stand 'shortsighted'

CECIL ANDRUS favors wilderness

JACKSON, Wyo. (UPI) — Former Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus Sunday called his successor's stance on energy development in wilderness areas, "shortsighted."

Watt, asked by reporters for his views on oil and gas development in wilderness areas, said he had not yet taken a position.

Andrus, who is now acting as a consultant to the Wilderness Society, said the idea that it is necessary to search for energy in wilderness areas is not supported by fact.

On a lease just outside the bounds of the proposed Gros Ventre wilderness, but Getty Oil is still seeking a permit to drill on its lease inside the wilderness boundaries recommended by the Forest Service.

Recon plane sale foe claims votes to head off deal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A leading foe of President Reagan's plan to sell AWACS reconnaissance planes to Saudi Arabia said Sunday just enough senators oppose the deal to defeat it, but Reagan could still turn the tide.

Both the House and the Senate must pass resolutions of disapproval in order to reject the proposed sale. The administration concedes it will lose the battle in the House, but hopes to win the Senate vote.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said the vote right now is "very, very close," but Reagan could still win his first major foreign policy fight by turning back the move to stop the $8.5 billion Saudi arms deal.

He said during his talks with Reagan and Weinberger, "We never heard even the allusion to the possibility of the AWACS deal jeopardizing strategic cooperation with Israel."

Supermarket sales of gasoline grow

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Supermarket merchandising of gasoline, undercutting conventional dealers, is growing rapidly and gasoline prices have fallen another two-hundredths of a cent nationwide in the past two weeks, oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg said Sunday.

the amount the government permitted earlier in the year before deregulation. Supermarket dealers who have deferred amortization on large properties, but with only self-service pumps and no more than one employee, are taking as low as a penny a gallon, he says.

The nuclear debate about to be revived

If the publicity buildup is any indication, Americans this week will be saturated with news about another nuclear power protest, this one in California.

Anti-nuclear forces are staging a showdown, of sorts, at the Diablo Canyon reactor complex, which is scheduled to begin operations. The fact that it is happening in California just adds to the story's impact.

But what will this protest accomplish? Nothing. Those who have vowed to keep Diablo Canyon from going on line are smaller in number than originally projected.

In addition, California authorities have assembled a small army of police officers to handle the expected disturbance. Those protesters most adamant about making their point likely will be arrested, providing footage for the television cameras as they are hauled away.

Barring any last-minute technical glitches, Diablo Canyon will begin to hum. The fact that the Abalone Alliance hasn't mustered the support it thought it could is a signal that anti-nuclear forces are wearing thin. Diablo Canyon may be a symbol, but it is not proving to be a rallying point.

President Ronald Reagan may, however, fire up the nuclear debate if he soon announces a new program aimed at aiding the ailing nuclear power industry. The protagonists already are setting the stage to pressure Congress not to buy that plan.

The critics all point to Three Mile Island as the war on nuclear power's face. But they never mention all those nuclear plants that are operating safely and are filling an important gap in the production of power.

The critics never take note that Europe is considerably ahead of the rest of the world in development of nuclear power. No Three Mile Islands there.

Certainly the U.S. has to answer important questions about the safety of atomic power. Three Mile Island should be providing many of the answers to the future safeguarding of the industry.

Nuclear power isn't envisioned as America's only salvation in the production of energy. But it can play a significant role in making the country independent of foreign oil interests.

The protestors at Diablo Canyon make the remote reactors out to be horrifying monsters destined to place all our lives in jeopardy. They are the same people, however, who will return to their homes, switch on the lights and never give a second thought to where the juice is coming from — or how long it will last.

Anatomy of molybdenum mine

CLAYTON — Anyone who has read about the open pit molybdenum mine planned by Cyprus-Amoco Minerals on Thompson Creek knows it is a large project.

Still on the ground look is an eye opener. Words on paper aren't enough to convey the massive nature of this operation.

Already part of the crest of an 8,200 foot high mountain has been removed. This is a large, long mountain. It is a mountain that will disappear, to be replaced by a huge hole in the ground.

David Lavender is the author of a book on some of the West's history. Alert to Match My Mountains. At Thompson Creek Cyprus is putting together huge machines — machines to move one of our mountains.

This mountain is no more distinctive than many others in the Salmon River country. It may not be anyone's favorite mountain in Idaho. It is now destined for notoriety, however, as the mountain that disappeared.

Two drill rigs are in operation on top of this mountain, drilling deep holes. Explosives are placed in those holes to break up the rock. Also on top of the mountain is an enormous drag line, with a bucket that stands higher than a man's head. Another drag line is being assembled. And here you will find also the largest wheeled vehicle you have ever seen — a monster truck. The engine is about the size of my compact car. The drag lines are $2.5 million each, the trucks $600,000 to $800,000.

About 40 million tons of rock removed from this mountain will be deposited in two massive waste dumps, in drainages on either side. Another 200 million tons of waste, tailings from the mining operation, will be deposited in another valley. Parts of three small creeks, Bruno Creek, Pat Hughes Creek and Buckskin Creek will disappear under these dumps and tailings pile.

The mined area is to be about a mile square. Eventually topsoil is to be spread over the waste dumps and the tailings pile. The open pit will remain a pit. The cost of moving earth back again to fill it in would be enormous, as is the cost of moving it out in the first place.

Cyprus is taking care not to mess up the two large drainages that flow down from these mountains to the Salmon River, Thompson Creek and Squaw Creek. The small creeks are very small. Pipes are already in place to carry their water under the earth fills.

The open pit, the dumps and the tailing deposit will cover about 2,400 acres. That is approximately two square miles. The entire operation, including a road network and a concentrator site, as well as the ill-fated mountain and the dump sites, extends over an area about four miles square.

This is an impressive earth-moving operation. Work is proceeding at five sites. Dams are being built as catch basins below the waste dumps. Work is progressing in preparing the tailings deposit area. The mountain is beginning to move. Buildings are going up at the site of the concentrator. Shovels and trucks are being assembled.

Last January there was almost nothing here but the mountains and the wildlife. Now men and women and heavy equipment are at work seven days a week. If the schedule is followed, the removal of molybdenum will begin by July 1, 1982.

About 1,000 people are employed, about 200 with Cyprus, the rest with construction companies and other contractors. Aside from the mountain itself the most visible impact is in Challis where a mobile home subdivision is in and numerous homes under construction.

Cyprus has taken care to maintain communication with the community, to try to soften the growth problems, and to work with federal and state agencies. The progress of the operation is observed from time to time by an agency team, with one person each from the Forest Service, BLM, Fish and Game, Health and Welfare and State Lands. A handbook is given to Cyprus employees, describing the country and asking help to protect the environment.

From the top of the mountain that is being moved, the White Cloud peaks are clearly visible. A molybdenum mine in the White Clouds would be very similar to Thompson Creek. It would be a massive earth moving operation, with huge dumps and tailings deposits and an extensive road network. It would destroy the wild, scenic quality of the area below Castle Peak.

Within the limits dictated by the nature of such a huge earth moving operation, Cyprus seems to be doing a good job of dealing with impacts and working with the people of the area. Cyprus is also showing us why the White Clouds should be protected.

Teachers: need honesty, quality

Editor, Times-News:

In the Sept. 7 issue of US News & World Report there is a "hard hitting" interview with John R. Sibley, president of Boston University, titled "Today's High School Diploma is Fraudulent."

He speaks of the failure to teach the simple basics of education; padding of the curriculum with the simple-minded drivel of fuzzy minded, fuzzy brained drivel that gives jobs to people totally unqualified to teach.

Recently we came in contact with one of these high school graduates working under the CETA program to become an office secretary. This girl confessed being unable to spell "school."

Talking with the head of CETA in Washington she told of college graduates coming in unable to make out a simple application for employment. It was with dismay of a graduate of a prestigious college being unable to read a restaurant menu.

With crime rampant throughout the nation we should demand the practice of simple honesty among teachers and their union leaders. Time after time we see teachers signing contracts and then months after school starts going on strike over some petty deal hatched up by a union agitator. A real lesson in honesty paraded before children.

Look in the Sept. 8 issue of The Times-News and read the story titled "Teachers Threaten Massive Walkouts." Read carefully the number of schools, the fact that enrollment has declined, that tax dollars have already been levied, that thousands of children are watching these off-times incompetent people parade their dishonesty while they roam the streets.

New task for Reagan: rebuild federal revenue base

The Washington Post Company

WASHINGTON — I have come to two conclusions that clarify current events: (1) All news is economic news; and (2) All economic news is bad.

Consider this New York Times headline: "Resilience is Seen For Economy." Good news? No... grim news. The subheadline is: "Analysts Say It Could Hamper Reagan's Recovery."

The economy's health is sickening because the anticipated third-quarter "correction" (read: contraction) had not been sufficient. So the economy is "prematurely" perky, before the big tax cut takes effect. Thus the anticipated surge in private-sector spending will heat an already warm economy. Hence, it is even more necessary to cut the federal budget, lest inflation surge.

Or consider the soothing thought that even if the federal deficit is $20 billion above the administration's estimate of $12.5 billion, it will be less than 2 percent of Gross National Product. Feel better? Don't. The salient fact is that a decade ago, federal borrowing, including off-budget loans, accounted for 16 percent of total demand on U.S. credit markets. In the fiscal year now ending, it will have accounted for 38 percent.

Do high employment rates cheer you? Silly you. Wages are two-thirds of production costs, so modest wage increases are a prerequisite for low inflation. But high interest rates are deterring capital investments in modern equipment. Thus many people are kept working at inefficient machines and processes, and employers bid up the price of labor in a tight market.

About half the federal debt of about

$1 trillion has a maturity of less than a year. That is good — if interest rates come down. In that case, government spending on debt service will decline substantially. Unfortunately, the maturation of so much debt so soon is not encouraging, because government spending projections have incorporated interest-rate assumptions that already seem unreasonably optimistic.

All (well, almost all) news is economic news because the economy, broadly understood (as it should be), involves the general allocation of human energy and the general agenda of human desires. Thus almost all behavior is, in a sense, "economic" behavior. So economists need extraordinary intellectual "peripheral vision." Because there are so many variables to keep an eye on, it is not surprising that economic projections must be revised so frequently.

But it doesn't take peripheral vision to see that an important task confronting the Reagan administration is one that was not even a tiny cloud on the administration's horizon three months ago. The task is to rebuild the government's revenue base.

In 1950, 30.5 percent of federal revenues came from corporate income taxes. It fell to 16 percent in 1970 and 12.4 percent this year. It will decline to 8.1 percent in 1986. Cuts in corporate and personal income taxes have been wise ameliorations of disincentives. But recent tax cuts make necessary new revenue sources. Otherwise, the defense of the nation may be jeopardized by years of new deficits, combined with resistance to additional cuts in domestic spending.

Trial balloons are floating from the Treasury building. The ideas include increased cigarette and alcohol excise taxes; increased user fees for yachts, private aircraft and barges; and limited deductibility of mortgage-interest payments — a ceiling on such deductions, or exclusion of second homes or commercial property.

All these may be justified as social policy as well as revenue-raising measures. But they all will delatinate intense interest groups. (Reagan was forced to abandon plans to raise $2.1 billion through increased users' fees.) And considering what cuts in funds, and other federal policies, have done to state and local governments, it might make more sense to turn, say, tobacco and alcohol taxes over to the states.

Some of these measures may be nickle-and-dime measures not commensurate with federal needs, especially defense needs. But some administration officials probably oppose, for ideological reasons, anything, such as a value-added tax (a national sales tax), that would raise substantial revenues efficiently. They think the government already has more money than is good for it, or for us.

But the time may come when those conservatives who are concerned more about defending the nation than curtailing federal spending consider a substantial gasoline tax. It could be called a defense levy. Consumption, too, is a tax; it might have social and diplomatic, as well as fiscal, justifications. And it is a tax without the disincentive effect that some other taxes produce. These are thoughts for administration officials to take into a White House room that is (I hope) set aside for thinking the unthinkable.

Walesa tells union members 'sharp struggle' lies ahead

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa has warned his 10 million member union is in for a "sharp struggle" with authorities but denied the labor federation wants to take over political power in Poland.

"We can win it (the struggle) jointly by peaceful means only if we stick together," Walesa told a rally in the northern city of Gniezno Saturday night. "This is why I am striving for unity despite different viewpoints."

He said it was time to assess the past year and look toward the future and added Solidarity would not want to see capitalism or another economic system introduced in Poland.

A Solidarity official in Gniezno said about 20,000 people gathered to hear Walesa on the eve of Sunday's formal installation of Polish Primate Jozef Giamp as archbishop of Gniezno, the central oldest city and the traditional base of the primate.

Giamp, who replaced the late Cardinal Stefan Wyszyński as primate in July, also serves as archbishop of Warsaw.

LECH WALESA denies power desire

"We do not want to take over power, but we must make sure that the authorities serve us," Walesa told the rally in the heart of the ancient town.

"We are in for a sharp struggle," he told them, saying unity can lead to a peaceful solution.

Asked from the crowd whether it was possible to change the socio-political system in Poland, Walesa said, "We are not happy with capitalism nor any other system, because we are a different nation."

He spoke two days after the first session of the Solidarity national convention ended with a series of resolutions openly challenging authorities and giving Walesa a mandate for a strong, centralized union leadership.

Walesa said union leaders elected when the convention resumes in Gdansk Sept. 26 will not be free from errors.

"You must watch your leaders because they, too, change with time."

He said the situation in Poland was worse than it was before the labor revolution began in the summer of 1980 when Solidarity was formed.

"The movement sprang up so that we may feel ourselves masters in our own country," Walesa said.

Fighting in Tehran continues

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — Armed opponents of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini battled Revolutionary Guards in central Tehran Sunday for the fifth straight day.

In addition, Tehran Radio announced 78 more executions of leftist guerrillas.

Exiled opponents of Khomeini said they will continue engaging government guards in urban battles in a "new phase" to bring down his Islamic regime.

The government announced balloting will be held Oct. 2 to elect a successor to slain President Mohammed Ali Rajai and parliament deputies killed in a recent wave of assassinations.

Exile sources in telephone contact with Iran said the latest clashes Sunday were concentrated at two points in the capital, including the east side which has seen most violence since the anti-shah campaign in 1978.

Tehran Radio did not immediately report the fighting. But it said the guards killed three "pro-American hypocrites" — its term for the leftist Mojahideen guerrillas — in gun battles in two other towns.

The radio said the 78 Mojahideen Khatol guerrillas were executed during a 3-day period ending Saturday after their convictions in Islamic courts on charges of armed robbery, assassinations and attacks on military centers.

The Mojahideen's leader, Massoud Rajavi, now in exile in France, told UPI in an interview the clashes were a "new phase" in the struggle to bring down Khomeini.

Italian poet dies

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — Eugenio Montale, the Italian poet, translator, senator and journalist who won a Nobel Prize in 1975, died in a Milan hospital Saturday night. He was 84.

The cause of death was listed as heart failure. Montale had entered the hospital a month ago for tests.

Montale, who translated works of Blake, Shakespeare and Melville into Italian, was born in the northern port city of Genoa on Oct. 12, 1896.

Chinese flee vast new flood

PEKING (UPI) — Thousands of people fled the rising waters of the swollen Yellow River Sunday.

The flood rolled past the Great Wall into the arid northern deserts before looping back to menace the heavily populated heartlands.

Official news reports gave no casualty figures.

They confirmed, however, that flooding occurred on the upper reaches of the silt-laden river, and that population centers and dams were endangered by the highest river tide in decades.

A force of some 120,000 people in three provinces was mobilized to strengthen dikes that keep the powerful river in its course and to reinforce hydroelectric power stations.

Official press and radio reports said despite the effort, the river overflowed and flooded low-lying areas in some places, forcing the evacuation of residents on the river banks.

In Gansu province's capital of Lanzhou, more than 4,400 people had to flee their homes before the threat of the rising waters of the river, Radio Peking said.

Authorities in Qinhai province have ordered the evacuation of people living downstream of the Longyang hydroelectric project which is protected by a coffer dam.

The official People's Daily newspaper said the coffer dam was "seriously threatened" by the strong river torrents, which have doubled in volume in 10 days.

The floodwaters surged past the Great Wall into the arid northwest of Inner Mongolia, where the river makes a giant loop and heads back toward the population centers of the north China plain.

China has thus far refrained from asking for international aid, although the U.S. Embassy in Peking presented $25,000 to the Chinese government as a token of friendly assistance.

Pope plans encyclical for Tuesday

ROME (UPI) — Pope John Paul II announced Sunday that his new encyclical dealing with the nature of work and the rights of the working class will be published Tuesday.

The encyclical, whose publication was delayed by the attempt on his life in May, is expected to be his broadest social statement to date.

John Paul has been critical of the lack of sufficient workers' rights in communist countries, and although he is not expected to specifically mention the labor unrest in his Polish homeland, the encyclical is expected to defend workers' rights under any political system.

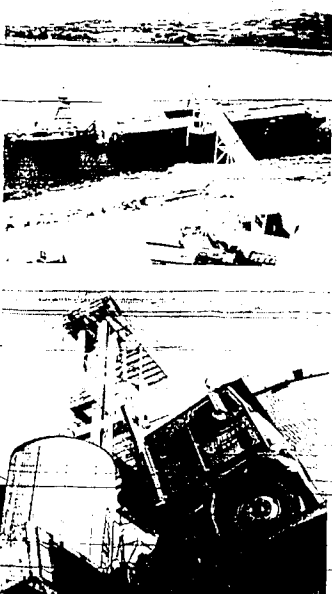

The pope announced the upcoming encyclical, the third of his pontificate, during an address to about 12,000 people outside his summer residence in Castel Gandolfo, just south of Rome, where he is recovering from the assassination attempt.

The encyclical was written to commemorate the 40th anniversary of Pope Leo XIII's encyclical "Rerum Novarum," the first social encyclical in the history of the Roman Catholic Church, which dealt with the nature of work.

The pope said he was going to speak about Rerum Novarum on May 14, the day he was shot in St. Peter's Square, "but what happened before the start of the audience prohibited me from speaking on this problem."

John Paul's two previous encyclicals, The Redeemer of Man, 1979, and Riches in Mercy, 1980, touched on social problems, but not on the same themes.

"Idaho First has been more flexible in meeting our needs than any bank we've ever done business with."

That's critical — particularly in these days of high money costs. In today's operating environment, flexibility keys on control of cash flow and the ready ability of a line of credit to back it up. This is what gives you the capability to plan ahead — to organize your business for maximum control of its various supporting activities. This is how Idaho First business services help you to gain better planning ... organization ... control.

What's what

Claim is there aren't any Japanese alcoholics. The World Press Review of August, 1981, reports that scientists recently discovered the Nipponese lack a certain enzyme. Their body chemistry is such, it's said, that they neither become alcoholics nor get severe hangovers. A significant medical revelation, if true.

BIKINI

Q. Why is the Bikini swimsuit called that?
A. Because the first of same was modeled to the public on July 5, 1946, four days after the Bikini Atoll atomic bomb blast. French fashion designer Louis Reard thought his creation, too, was something of an ultimate, so he gave it the Bikini name. Evidently he was right. The model, a French dancer named Micheline Bernard, received an estimated 50,000 fan letters from people who saw her pictures in newspapers.

Q. Wasn't it Maurice Chevalier who said, "Bad breath is better than no breath at all?"
A. No, it's a comedian named Sammy Smooth who said that in 1941. Chevalier said, "Old age is not so bad when you consider the alternative."

It was Beatle John Lennon who said, "Life is what happens to you while you're busy making other plans."

Coin dealer pays $10,000 for penny

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Coin dealer Chuck Furjanic paid $10,000 for a 1943 penny.

It's not the usual 1943 one cent piece, but a copper-coin the U.S. Mint did not intend to turn out that year. When copper was diverted to wartime uses...

The 1943 pennies were to be made of zinc-coated steel. But about 12 one cent coins were made from blank copper pieces mistakenly left in minting machines — 10 at the Philadelphia Mint, one in Denver and one in San Francisco.

Furjanic says the penny was bought at a New Orleans coin auction.

Plans for spending started

WESTLAKE, Ohio (UPI) — While Agnes Christine Roberts sells candy bars to kids at the Brookpark Skateland Social Club, she's planning how to spend her millions.

It may be no dream. Last week, a Houston jury decided Mrs. Roberts and her two sisters were second cousins to Howard Hughes and were entitled to 6 and one-third percent of the billionaire's fortune.

That's enough to make Mrs. Roberts, 58, the richest woman in Westlake. But her lawyers say it will take about two to three years to untangle the Hughes estate from appeals.

In the meantime, she'll continue to live in a three-bedroom apartment with her husband and two sons and drive a 1979 Dodge and to work at the skate club, where many patrons call her "granda."

"I'm still the crabby snack-bar girl who snaps at the kids when they comb their hair over the counter," she said laughing.

Mrs. Roberts, who has had cancer operations for various cancers, probably will use some of her future fortune on health care. But she has other plans, too.

"We want to buy a condominium where it's warm all year round," she said. "I want to travel and go to a fat farm and lose 15 pounds. And I want to get my face lifted because I'm so old."

She said she wants to buy new cars for her four children and a new Cadillac for her husband.

And she figures she'll have enough for a good college education for each of her five grandchildren.

When Hughes died in 1976 without leaving a will, a 5-year legal battle began for Mrs. Roberts. More than 500 people claimed to be relatives entitled to part of his estate.

She and her sisters had documents proving them to be the closest surviving paternal heirs of Hughes. His 14 maternal heirs have agreed to take 7 1/2 percent of his fortune.

Since news of her money came out, Mrs. Roberts said she has been bothered by hustlers. She got an unlisted number, and while she has talked with reporters, she refuses to be photographed.

Now you know...

A thought for the day: American poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow said, "Music is the universal language of mankind... poetry, its universal pastime and delight."

Cardinal says he forgives accusers

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cardinal John P. Cody touched on the theme of Sunday's gospel in forgiving his persecutors "700 times seven times" for their charges he diverted up to $1 million in church funds to a lifelong friend he described as his cousin.

Cody broke two days of self-imposed silence Saturday in alluding to Chicago Sun-Times reports the U.S. attorney's office was investigating him for funneling tax-exempt church money to his 74-year-old stepcousin, Helen Dolan Wilson.

Cody, during a 15-minute address to the annual luncheon of the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women, said he forgave his accusers and cited a biblical discussion between Jesus and the apostle Peter.

Peter had asked, "Lord, if my brother wrongs me, how often should I forgive him? Seven times?" Cody recited how Jesus answered, "No, not seven times, but 700 times seven times."

Cody, 73, also said he felt saddened and "rejected" as a result of the newspaper stories.

"When one is falsely accused of innuendos and half truths, one wonders the reason," the frail-looking cardinal told 2,220 women gathered at the Conrad Hilton Hotel. "Accusations are made lightly. Proofs are not willingly given."

Although the Sun-Times accounts sent shockwaves rumbling through the nation's largest Roman Catholic archdiocese, it was generally known the newspaper investigation was proceeding during the past year and that the archdiocese was attempting to thwart it.

One pastor of a South Side Church told his parishioners from the pulpit Sunday his initial reaction was to convict the cardinal.

"My first reaction was anger that he would do such a thing... but I realize these are merely accusations and I urge you likewise to reserve judgment until all the facts are in."

The Sun-Times said in its early Sunday editions that Mrs. Wilson, divorced in 1939, was beneficiary of a $100,000 insurance policy on the cardinal's life and had borrowed $57,019.52 on it in June 1980. She reinvested the money in short-term bonds and the high-interest money market, the newspaper said.

The newspaper also reported that David Dolan Wilson, Mrs. Wilson's son, had made at least $150,000 in commissions off insurance programs purchased by the Archdiocese. Church officials told the Sun-Times that Cody personally directed "the lucrative contracts into the hands of Wilson, a St. Louis-based insurance broker who grew up calling the cardinal 'Uncle Jack'."

Mrs. Wilson denied newspaper reports she had been kept on a secret payroll from the Chicago Archdiocese from 1969-74, and did not work while receiving a salary from $7,800 to $12,000.

HELEN DOLAN WILSON
 "scandalizing me"

Cousin issues denials

CHICAGO (UPI) — Helen Dolan Wilson denies she received up to $1 million in church money from Cardinal John P. Cody.

She also said published accounts of her lifelong friendship with her stepcousin falsely portrayed her as a "kept woman," the Chicago Tribune reported Sunday.

"They make me seem like a tramp," said Mrs. Wilson, 74, the step-daughter of Cody's aunt and the focus of a federal investigation into charges Cody diverted to her up to $1 million in funds from the Chicago Archdiocese, the nation's largest.

"It sounds like such a scandal to me. The damage . . . they're accusing the cardinal of being a thief and are scandalizing me."

Mrs. Wilson of St. Louis, who spoke with the Tribune Saturday in the Chicago offices of her attorney, Leonard Ring, said the newspaper accounts unfairly depicted her as a "kept woman."

The Chicago Sun-Times, which broke the story of the U.S. attorney's investigation late last week, also reported Saturday Mrs. Wilson was beneficiary of a $100,000 insurance policy on the cardinal's life and had borrowed $60,000 on it.

Mrs. Wilson, who was divorced in 1939, said the only gifts she ever received from Cody were cash presents on holidays, and they never totaled "more than several hundred dollars" at a time.

She said the only other substantial cash dealing with the cardinal came in his $21,000 loan to her for the purchase of a Florida residence. She said she insisted the money be a loan, but that he canceled the debt after she had paid back between $5,000 and $10,000.

She said her current net worth is about $250,000.

Mrs. Wilson also denied newspaper reports she had been kept on a secret payroll from the Chicago Archdiocese from 1969-74, and did not work while receiving a salary from $7,800 to $12,000. She said she worked in the cardinal's mansion, performing general housekeeping chores, redecorating and ordering repairs.

"I was his right hand," she told the Tribune.

When she moved to Chicago in 1969 to work for Cody, Mrs. Wilson said her largest asset was a $100,000 Banker's Life of Nebraska insurance policy on Cody. She said Cody had named her owner and beneficiary of the policy, written in 1940, and had paid for the premiums.

She also said she had a policy on her own life, which she cashed in for $31,000 in 1969. She said those funds served as the foundation for investments in stocks and securities.

Said Ring, "As far as her present net worth . . . the $1 million is a silly figure. She wished she had it."

When she came up here in 1969, she already had some money accumulated."

Righting delayed

NOHO, La. (UPI) — Officials delayed efforts Sunday to right two derailed tank cars filled with highly-flammable chemicals until they could shut down a nearby power substation without risking a blackout threatening millions in southeast Louisiana.

The two tank cars loaded with extremely flammable butadiene have leaked inches from a Louisiana Power & Light substation since a 17-car derailment Thursday. The substation supplies electricity to New Orleans and southeast Louisiana.

Dr. Lamb

Low sodium diet questioned

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am on a low sodium diet and have some questions. Nutritionists indicate that some vegetables have a naturally high sodium content, namely carrots, spinach and beets. Is it advisable to eliminate these fresh vegetables from my diet?

Also, I can definitely detect a salty taste in some salt water fish and also steams made from these fish.

Do these salt water fish contain too much sodium for me? I eat fish about five times a week — mostly prepared at home without any salt used in preparation.

DEAR READER: The answer to your question really depends upon how strict your sodium limitation must be. Unless it is very strict, you can probably get by using almost all fresh fruits and vegetables that you either eat raw or prepare yourself at home without adding any salt.

For your specific questions, a 3½ ounce (100 gm) raw weight serving of carrots contains 47 mg of sodium; spinach, 71 mg; and beets 60 mg. That isn't a lot but it is a great deal more than raw green peas which would contain 2 mg or raw mature bean seeds which contain 19 mg in 100 gms.

As you will see in The Health Letter No. 10-12, Salt: Your Vital Sodium and Potassium Balance, which I am sending you, part of the problem is in cooking, frying and roasting products. Canning and freezing often deplete natural potassium and add sodium.

Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 151, Union City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. It also gives some values of potassium and sodium content for representative foods from the four basic food groups.

The salt content in fish varies. In the flat fish (flounder, sole, caddabs), the sodium content is only 78 mg in 100 gms. But the same weight of raw scallops contains 255 mg.

To put this in perspective, the same weight of hot dogs raw contains 1,100 mg of sodium, and bread, 507 mg. Many commercial cereals are high in sodium as well. But rice is a very low sodium cereal and that is part of the basis for the use of the classic rice diet to eliminate sodium from the body.

DEAR DR. LAMB: With standard undertaking procedures, what are the chances of being buried alive? And what can you tell me about catalepsy?

DEAR READER: In view of the present practice of embalming people, I don't think there is much chance that anyone would be buried alive from most funeral parlors.

Of course, there is the chance that a person who is not dead might be embalmed. That would be rather rare, too, since you cannot live very long without a heartbeat and any such beat is usually detected.

There are exceptions. An important one is the person who appears to have been drowned in a cold stream. The sudden loss of body heat can work just like hypothermia in the operating room and such a person may still be revived hours after the heart has apparently stopped beating.

Catalepsy is a strange response seen in some psychiatric illnesses when the body assumes a form of rigidity. If you put the arm over the head it stays there like a statue. I presume you are concerned that someone who is in this statue-like state will be thought mistakenly to be dead.

Be assured that while in this state the heartbeat and respiration are still present.

Two-sided model

CARLSTADT, N.J. (CPI) — A new sewing machine designed for home use combines the best features of traditional home and industrial models.

One side performs seven built-in utility stitches: straight, zigzag, tricot, triple stretch, overcast, blind hem and buttonhole.

The industrial side performs industrial-style overlocking with a special knife that cuts and trims seams — simultaneously. The overlocking mechanism makes professionally finished edges like those found in expensive ready-to-wear garments. A metal cover plate protects fingers from the knife edge.

The Combi, Model 222, is made by The New Home Sewing Machine Co.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old professional woman who recently married a 28-year-old professional man with four children from a previous marriage.

Although Rob claims not to care for his ex-wife, they still have frequent contact, allegedly over the children. When she asks him for money "for the children," he gives it to her. When I ask for something, he'll "think about it."

I've worked hard for four years and want to stay home and raise a family.

Rob says no to both. He says he has enough children, but I believe that if he really loved me, he would want US to have a child.

My question: Is there a way to convince Rob that since he loves his four children so much, he would also love and enjoy any children we might have together? I also believe that a child would "bond" us and bring us closer together.

HATES WORK — DEAR HATES WORK: If I knew of a way to "convince" Rob to let you quit work and have a child, I wouldn't recommend it, because Rob has already said he has enough children.

Furthermore, if you were able to convince him to have a child in an effort to "bond" you together, it would be a mistake.

Be honest. You are hoping to compete with Rob's ex-wife by giving him a second family, which he doesn't really want. You can't win. The "ex" is holding four aces.

DEAR ABBY: Please, please put something in your column about the futility of sneaking around to date married men!

My beautiful 24-year-old daughter is having an affair with a married man, and nothing I say can stop her. He's twice her age and gives no hope of leaving his wife. He works in our small town and goes home to his wife on his days off, but my daughter sees him when she can.

I am afraid the whole town (including his wife) will find out about it, and I don't want to see my daughter dragged through a divorce court, but she won't listen to me.

NO TOWN, PLEASE — DEAR NO TOWN: Love is not only blind, it's deaf as well. The best case against going with a married man is not the futility of it — it's finally GETTING him. Then what do you have? A husband who cheats on his wife. Some bargain!

Television reruns get to some people

BY ERMA BOMBECK
Field Enterprise, Inc.

I know a lot of people who are letting television reruns get through to them. Viewers who used to be docile and uncomplaining are now doing strange things.

One man in San Diego turned off Dan Rather saying he'd heard that news last April.

A woman I talked with at the supermarket said she turned her set off and read and still hears Laverne and Shirley's voices.

And a man in a bar in St. Louis was charged with disorderly conduct when he threw a bottle into a set shouting, "When's the new season going to start? Dallas was in Texas last year!"

Other than singing along with the Maudslayi Sisters, laughing before Mark gives the punch line, and beginning to hum Louis Rukeyser's theme song, I don't think the monotony has affected me one way or another.

After dinner the other night, I sat down to watch a rerun of "Barney Miller." My husband said, "Weren't you wearing that dress the last time you watched this segment of 'Barney Miller'?"

"I think you're right," I said, "because I remember your saying the same thing the time before when I watched this segment. Come to think of it, you say it every time. And I'm getting sick of it!"

"You want a talk sick," he said, "we had the same thing for dinner the night you watched this segment... pork chops, macaroni and cheese and applesauce."

"Can you think of something better to go with 'Barney Miller'?"

"Why do I get the feeling the phone is going to ring right now and it's going to be your mother telling us to watch the movie on the other channel?"

"Because," I said, "she called us precisely at this time before during this segment and the same movie she likes is being repeated tonight on the other channel. There goes the phone. You want me to get it?"

"You did the last time," he sighed. When I returned he said, "Did your mother tell you to change the channel?"

"It wasn't mother. It was a storm-door salesman."

"Why didn't you tell me?" he demanded.

CHOCOLATE CHIP OATMEAL CAKE

- 1 1/2 cups boiling water
- 1 cup quick oats
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup brown sugar, lightly packed
- 1/2 cup soft margarine
- 2 large or 3 medium eggs
- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon cocoa

1 package (12 oz.) real chocolate chips

1 cup chopped nuts
In a large mixing bowl pour the boiling water over quick oats and let stand 10 minutes. Stir in the sugars and margarine. Then add the eggs. Mix well. Sift together flour, soda, salt and cocoa and add to above mixture. Then stir in 1/2 of the package of chips. Pour into greased and floured 9x13-inch pan. Spread remainder of chips and 1/2 cup chopped nuts on top of batter. Bake at 350°F. for 40 minutes. Needs no frosting.

Idaho First's ALL-SAVERS CERTIFICATE

A sound alternative to Money Market Funds

Beginning October 1, 1981 through December 31, 1982, Idaho First is offering Idaho savers and investors the all new, All-Savers Certificate. The All-Savers Certificate is a one year, high-yield, tax-exempt certificate of deposit, authorized by Congress and approved by the Internal Revenue Service.

your funds completely, or to reinvest them in another high-yield investment at the current rate being offered by Idaho First on October 1. The terms of both the interim investment and the All-Savers Certificate are subject to final federal regulations.

High rate of interest.

The All-Savers Certificate earns interest at the rate of 70% of the average yield on One Year U.S. Treasury Bills in effect at the time the certificate is established, and is guaranteed for one full year. Certificates opened on October 1, 1981 will earn interest at a rate of 12.61% per annum, paid at maturity. All-Savers Certificates are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Tax-exempt earnings.

Interest earned by the All-Savers Certificate is exempt from federal income tax up to $1,000 ($2,000 if you file a joint return). You not only earn high interest, but you really save the money you earn.

Low minimum balance.

The All-Savers Certificate can be opened for as little as $500, a much lower balance than many investments with similar real return. Because the federal tax exemption benefit is limited by the IRS to $1,000 ($2,000 if you file a joint return), Idaho First suggests a maximum balance of approximately $10,000 ($20,000 if you file a joint return). Remember, though, your balance is insured by the FDIC up to $100,000.

Withdrawals.

Withdrawals prior to maturity are subject to substantial interest penalties and loss of the tax exemption benefit.

Start earning high interest today.

Government regulation prevents Idaho First from offering All-Savers Certificates until October 1, 1981. In order that your funds can earn high interest through the month of September, Idaho First is now offering Idaho savers and investors an additional investment opportunity. Idaho First will pay interest on your investment at the annual rate of 16% per annum. Your investment is not a savings deposit and is not insured by the FDIC. Instead it is backed by U.S. Government Securities and the strength and security of Idaho First National Bank, Idaho's largest and oldest commercial bank. Earnings during the month of September are not tax-exempt. On October 1, 1981, at your request, Idaho First will convert your investment to a high yield, tax-exempt All-Savers Certificate. You may choose to withdraw

		After-tax Rate of Return (Federal taxes only)
Family Taxable Income	Tax Bracket	All-Savers Certificate	Money Market Funds*	Money Market Certificates
$50,000	50%	12.61%	8.25%	7.25%
$35,000	40%	12.61%	9.90%	8.8%
$25,000	30%	12.61%	11.55%	10.15%
$20,000	25%	12.61%	12.3%	10.8%

Note: Approximate figures in the chart are based on 1981 tax tables. Interest rate on All-Savers Certificate is equal to 70% of the average investment yield of 52 week U.S. Treasury Bills as of the most recent auction date (Sept. 4, 1981).
*Based upon average yield of four major Money Market Funds offered in Idaho from Jan. 1, 1981 to Aug. 28, 1981. (16.5%)
Based upon average Money Market Certificate yield from Jan. 1, 1981 to Aug. 28, 1981. (14.5%)

Better than a Money Market Fund.

By investing your funds in an All-Savers Certificate on October 1, you could earn more than by investing in Money Market Funds, depending on current rates of return and your tax bracket. The key is your real, after-tax, rate of return. The chart above compares the average real rates of return (after taxes) of four major Money Market Funds, Money Market Certificates and that of the All-Savers Certificate. In addition, deposits to an All-Savers Certificate are insured by the FDIC.

Compare all investments wisely.

When considering any investment, Idaho First believes you should be well informed. Once you know all the facts, we believe you'll choose Idaho First. Idaho savers and investors have been doing so for over 114 years.

Drop by any Idaho First office today and ask about the new All-Savers Certificate and how you can start earning high interest today. We'll be happy to answer any of your questions and look forward to serving you.

Fair's economic impact like swift shuffle

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

FILER — Fair week could be a million-dollar week, yet its overall economic impact is slight. The impact resembles a card shark's fast shuffle — the cards fly, yet the deck remains mysteriously unchanged. Money changes hands at a furious rate during the Twin Falls County Fair, but when the buck passes is through, most of the money has gone from hand to hand within the county, stimulating little economic growth.

Parking fees, fairground and rodeo admissions, carnival ride tickets, food costs, entry fees and prize money at the fair amount to several hundred thousand dollars, according to fair officials.

The animals at this year's I-H and FFA Fat Stock Sale sold for more than $240,000.

The amount of money spent in connection with the fair could approach $1 million by counting what merchants spend for their displays, the sales they make as a result and the cost of motel rooms for tourists who attend.

"This is not a nickel-and-dime affair for the county," said Neoma Shouse, the fair's co-manager.

With so much money changing hands, it is surprisingly difficult to find the people who will end up with extra chips in their pot at the end of the fair.

Paul Eastman, a Twin Falls distributor for Wonder Bread, supplies bread to almost all the food stands at the fair. He expected to sell about 47,000 hamburger buns during the week.

"Surely, he must be making a handsome profit. Not so, Eastman says. Nothing compares with fair week for selling hamburger buns, he says. But the hamburgers eaten at the fair replaces food — and bread — people would buy from markets or eat at restaurants he supplies.

Even if people do not eat more than usual at the fair, surely they drink more soda than normal after spending hours in the sun. Again, this does not seem to be the case.

Ray Orr, a service manager for the Seven-Up Bottling Co. of Twin Falls, helps keep the drinks flowing at the food booths.

"How much soda do people drink?"

don't think you could figure it out in gallons," he said. "A heck of a lot."

But sales in Twin Falls are down nearly as much, he said. What about the people who sell the ice for the soft drinks, then? An average of about three tons a day have gone into the drinks, according to estimates by some of the ice dealers.

Sharon Cook, Miss Rodeo Idaho, will reign as the queen of Gem State rodeo for the year

New Miss Rodeo Idaho no stranger to 'queening'

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

FILER — The little girl fathers up her courage and walks up to the tall lady with the silver tura on her turquoise cowboy hat.

"I wanted you to be the queen," she says, looking up, her shock of brown hair falling away from her put nose and freckled face. Sharon Cook, the new Miss Rodeo Idaho, said and smiled. The girl impulsively threw her arms around Sharon, eyes still raised adoringly at the lady in the white Western suit with a silver heart at her throat.

Cook, 21, of Idaho Falls, looked every inch the rodeo queen, as she received hugs and congratulations after her selection Saturday night. Never losing her poise, even after the emotional ceremony, she kept telling her fans in her honey-smooth voice, "I can't believe it." Every now and then, a shaky giggle escaped her.

Entered as the queen of the Pocatello Frontier Days, Cook is no stranger to the rodeo ring. She has been "queening," as she calls it, for 10 years. This was her third time in the Miss Rodeo Idaho Contest, and last year she won the Miss Congeniality award.

Her long experience in the rigors of queen contests will probably serve her well in the role of Miss Rodeo Idaho, a figure who promotes the sport of rodeo with her charm and personality.

To prepare for this year's contest, Cook said she particularly studied horsemanship and rodeo in preparation for the questions asked in interviews.

Cook, a senior, had been majoring in biology with an emphasis in pre-med at Idaho State University, but she will not return to school this semester. Instead, she will devote her time to preparing for the Miss Rodeo America pageant, to be held in Oklahoma City in December.

Moreover, her dream of becoming a professional horse breeder and trainer suddenly seems tantalizingly realistic.

"A horse-riding enthusiast all my life," Cook entered her first pageant when she was 11 years old. "I lost miserably. I was riding a fat Shetland pony, and I didn't even place."

"I never liked to play with dolls. I wanted to be out riding my horse."

She became committed to entering queen contests at 16 after she won the Eastern Idaho Queen title in a particularly tough contest.

About her comrades in the Miss Rodeo Idaho contest, she said, "They have to realize that winning is not everything. It is the growing experience that counts. The years I lost, I grew so much. Even though I lost, it was not a losing experience."

Her prizes as the new Miss Rodeo Idaho include a pickup truck with a horse trailer. "It's going to be on the road, going to a lot of rodeos," Cook declared.

"Although admitting that she was first going to get a good night's sleep," she insisted she was going to start Sunday preparing for the Miss Rodeo America contest.

Staggering numbers after color removed

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

FILER — Strip away the color, the emotions and the events from the Twin Falls County Fair.

What remains are numbers. But even those numbers are staggering.

For example, some 1,600 head of livestock appeared on the fairgrounds throughout the week, about 6,000 ribbons were awarded and the fairgrounds assumed a population equal to many of Idaho's cities.

In a strict "bottom-line" sense, all of that activity eventually places a great deal of money into the county fair's coffers.

But it takes a great deal of money to keep Twin Falls County's annual celebration running. Moreover, many of the costs involve items most fairgoers would take for granted.

For example, an estimated $13,169 in revenues were received during the four-day 1981 fair, including $69,901 in gate fees, $60,000 in rodeo ticket receipts and $1,650 in horse-pulling show ticket receipts.

More than half of that amount, roughly $180,000, will have been spent for preparation and operation of the 1981 fair. With the rest, fair officials must maintain the fairgrounds for the rest of the year and prepare for the 1982 fair.

Among the estimated expenditures are:

- Cash premiums — $10,000 to $19,000.

- Ribbons — $2,250.

- Paper products and cleaning supplies — $1,411, an amount that leads fair office manager Neoma Shouse to say, "I wish I had an exact figure on how much toilet tissue was used. That would scare you."

- Water — $167.89 for the fair's monthly water bill to the city of Filer.

- Electricity — Fair officials said they had no estimate for the price of electricity this year. But last year's bill for electricity purchased during the period from mid-August to mid-September was $1,799. For comparison, the fair's electric bill for the period from mid-July to mid-August 1980 was $1,349.

- Gasoline — Fair officials say they will consume roughly 750 gallons of gasoline this month, compared to July's consumption rate of 250 gallons.

- Sawdust — $90 for four large truckloads of sawdust used in the fairgrounds' livestock buildings.

Sunday accidents on I-84 claim lives of 2 travelers

TWIN FALLS — Two persons traveling in the Magic Valley on Sunday died after they were ejected from cars involved in separate accidents on Interstate 84.

Idaho State Police said that Lottie Kautzman of Lebanon, Ore., died at St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome after she was thrown from a car that overturned three times south of Wentzell Sunday morning. Police said Kautzman's exact age was unknown, but she was believed to be past 85.

She was traveling in an eastbound car driven by Dortha Kautzman, 66, also of Lebanon, who was listed in stable condition at St. Benedict's Sunday night.

Police said the driver was distracted by her passenger and allowed the car to drift into the median strip. The driver, attempting to correct the error, lost control of the car, which slid across Interstate 84 and into a ditch, where it overturned.

In the second fatality, police said Karen's father was struck and killed at the scene of her accident on I-84, three miles east of the Twin Falls exit, Sunday morning.

Malouf was driving her car west on I-84 when it approached a freight truck from the rear, and she attempted to steer the car sharply to the right lane to the left. The sharp action apparently made her lose control, and the car went into a ditch and overturned, ejecting both Malouf and her passenger, according to police. The passenger's identity and extent of injuries were unavailable Sunday.

A Twin Falls man involved in yet a third accident is in fair condition at St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise from injuries he suffered Friday. State Police said Randy S. Small, age unknown, of Twin Falls, lost control of his compact car on a road near Magic Reservoir Friday afternoon, causing the car to overturn.

Small was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and later transferred to St. Alphonsus, where he was initially listed in critical condition.

Warrant pending in fatal shooting in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — An arrest warrant could be issued today in connection with the fatal shooting outside a Twin Falls tavern Saturday, according to Twin Falls police.

Jimmy Lee Legg, 23, of Twin Falls, was killed in an altercation outside the Brand Lounge, 1007 Blue Lakes Blvd N., shortly before 1 a.m. Saturday, police said. Legg died at the scene.

"We will probably issue a warrant (today) if things develop tonight as we expect them to," police Chief Tim Qualls said Sunday.

Pay differential scored

BOISE (UPI) — "We don't believe you can put a monetary value on individual freedom," said Idaho Freedom to Work committee co-chairman Peter Bratt.

Bratt was responding to a U.S. Department of labor study that disclosed workers in Western Right to Work states received higher hourly wages in at least four occupations than did Boise workers.

According to the study published in the Aug. 4 edition of the Bureau of National Affairs' "Daily Labor Report," union plasterers in Utah, Nevada and Arizona received higher average hourly wages during the period from April to June of this year than did Boise area plasterers.

The study reported Boise area plumbers, painters and bricklayers earned wages less than those of the principal cities of Western Right to Work states.

"Right to Work supporters have said all along, workers in states protecting freedom of choice in the west and across the country not only enjoy freedom of choice, but higher wages, income and job opportunities than workers have here in Idaho," said Bratt.

"Sooner or later," said Bratt, "the politicians will have to allow Idahoans a chance at the same benefits by passing an Idaho Right to Work law."

The Idaho Freedom to Work Committee is a non-profit, non-partisan, Boise based citizens' committee.

CSI offers new directions class

TWIN FALLS — If you are dissatisfied with your present lifestyle, a course that begins this week at the College of Southern Idaho could help send you in a new direction.

The Center for New Directions at CSI will offer an evening class, "Out of the Maze — Explore a New Direction," beginning this Tuesday from 7 to 10 p.m.

The seven-week class will meet in Room 105 of the Shields Building at the college.

For more information, call the center's director, Rita Larson, at 733-9554, extension 212.

Concert band openings available

TWIN FALLS — Area musicians who would like to play with the College of Southern Idaho Concert Band should contact the band's director, Tom Breske, this week.

The band will begin its weekly rehearsal next

Monday, Sept. 21, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 121 of the Fine Arts Building. Rehearsals will be held each Monday until the band's concert on Nov. 1.

Auditions are not required for musicians with previous band experience.

For more information, call Breske at 733-9554, extension 256, or 734-2206.

Officers place 2 men in custody

TWIN FALLS — Two men were in custody Sunday after arrests by Twin Falls city and county officers in separate incidents.

Twin Falls police jailed Paul S. Flinn, 592 Washington St. N., in lieu of $2,000 bond Sunday on charges of possession and exhibition of a deadly weapon, and possession of a controlled substance. A Police Department blotter entry stated that early Sunday morning police were informed that the husband of Tina Flinn, 592 Washington St. N., had threatened to shoot her baby.

Also Sunday, the Sheriff's Department arrested Richard R. Young, 21, 239 Filer Ave. W., on a bench warrant, charging him with parole violation. Young was jailed in lieu of $10,000 bond.

ISU officer studies at Sun Valley

POCATELLO (UPI) — Food Service Coordinator for Idaho State University, Marilyn T. Edwards received a teacher-work-study grant giving her an opportunity to work in Sun Valley beside program graduates.

Mrs. Edwards was awarded the grant by the National Restaurant Association in conjunction with the National Institute for the Food Service Industry.

Mrs. Edwards said the grant allowed her to "see what our students have to do, work directly with them in their place of employment, and learn what to stress as far as the skills the students need."

Edwards said much of her work had been in hospitals and school lunch programs so the grant enabled her to "gain more experience in restaurant cooking."

She said she chose Sun Valley because several former students enjoyed working in the area.

Idaho water board meets Thursday

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Water Resource Board will meet Thursday in the St. Anthony City Hall to discuss proposed changes in the water plan.

The state water plan, adopted in 1976, is subject to review and update every five years. Board Chairman M. Reed Hansen said meetings and hearings will be conducted this fall, allowing the citizens of the state to give their opinions and ideas.

The board will also hear reports on the state's groundwater problem, progress of negotiations on the Soda Springs project, its water project financing program and on the Clear Lakes hydropower project.

Location changes to Twin Falls Accident fails to put off reunion

By LAURY MASHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Seventy-five-year-old Lillie VanKirk was determined to see a younger brother she hadn't seen in 50 years.

So much so that even an accident that totaled her car and broke her teeth couldn't keep her from attending their Saturday reunion.

VanKirk and her husband, William, were traveling through Twin Falls, the home of her sister, Edna Gwartney, when a speeding vehicle struck their car and sent her to the hospital.

"But I never thought it would keep me from seeing my brother," VanKirk said. "When I was in the ambulance, they told me my pulse was good. I'm lucky. I just got my teeth broke."

The accident, which occurred Tuesday and caused VanKirk to have stitches, did little to affect the brother and sister's reunion plans other than change the location.

VanKirk, from Campbell, originally planned to see her brother at his Boise home.

"When I learned it was necessary for his sister to stay in Twin Falls until today to have her stitches removed, Wilbur, Frazer, 67, said he decided to drive to Twin Falls rather than postpone their meeting.

"It's been a tearful occasion," Gwartney said. "The two of them have been glued together since he got here."

The brother and sister last saw each other when both were living on their parents' farm in Broken Bow, Neb., in the early 1930s.

"It's so nice to see him,"

Falls rather than postpone their meeting.

"It's been a tearful occasion," Gwartney said. "The two of them have been glued together since he got here."

VanKirk said. "We've had a good visit. He's been... me pictures of his grandchildren where he worked and where he's been fishing."

Frazer said he left Broken Bow because a drought hit Nebraska, and he had to leave to find work.

"Things were a sick mess back then," Frazer said. "All the crops died, and you couldn't buy a job."

Lots of people came here because you could find work."

Frazer started work cutting meat for a German sausage maker, but finally got a break in 1948 when he was offered a job at a sawmill.

Before 1948, Frazer said he couldn't have afforded to make a trip home.

Although he felt fortunate to get a job filling saws, Frazer said the job was a demanding one that required him to stay in the area.

"Filling saws was one of the best-paying jobs you could get, but you can't leave," Frazer said. "There's no one at the sawmill that can take your place."

Frazer also said he was required to work a lot of overtime and wasn't allowed any vacations.

"It's just one of those things," VanKirk said. "You couldn't be choosy in those days. You had to take what you could get."

Frazer is now retired but still works occasionally in the meat-cutting business.

"I've got to leave here Sunday so I can get back to work."

Following the removal of her stitches today, VanKirk says she and her husband will resume their original plans and drive their way car to Boise, where they will stay until Sept. 23.

Utah fireworks makers escape blast at plant

LOGAN — Utah (UPI) — Fireworks West employees were glad they were at a weekend football game.

Because they were setting off fireworks after each score, they escaped injury from a series of explosions that ripped apart three storage sheds at the Cache County plant.

Two other buildings at the fireworks manufacturing plant were heavily damaged Saturday, according to Sheriff Doug Bodrero. But the workers had left for the day at noon to attend the Utah State-Fullerton State game at USU.

The sheriff said the first blast was reported about 4 p.m. at the plant west of Logan. "It completely leveled three of the storage buildings," Bodrero said.

Investigators from the county and the U.S. Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Bureau tentatively determined spontaneous combustion caused the first explosion in a building used to dry chemicals.

A sheriff's department spokesman said. "Finished star-burst fireworks had been placed outside one of the sheds to dry. A tarp was put over the heat from the sun and the drying of the chemicals — trapped under the canvas — apparently ignited the fireworks."

Ida L. Noh

KIMBERLY — Ida L. Noh, 76, died Saturday morning at her home in Kimberly.

She was born in Lodi, Minn., July 23, 1903, and moved to Twin Falls with her family in 1950. She graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1921, and worked as a newspaper reporter in Twin Falls. She later worked in Salt Lake City, San Francisco and Santa Barbara, Calif.

On July 23, 1943, she married John W. Noh. They farmed and raised sheep in Arden in 1942. They moved to Kimberly. Mrs. Noh was a member of the Amigas Club.

She was preceded in death by her husband.

She is survived by a brother, Gordon Laird of Jerome; a daughter, Jean Belenborer of Boise; a son, Laird Noh, and two grandchildren, John and Susan Noh, all of Kimberly.

A graveside service will be at 11 a.m. Wednesday at Sunset Memorial Park with the Rev. Robert Van Nest officiating. Memorials may be sent to Clinical Research Center for Eye Disease, 95 Kirkham St., San Francisco 94122.

Millers due to open tour

BOISE (UPI) — Members of a Taiwan flour millers team will arrive in Moscow Friday to begin a four day visit to northern Idaho.

Idaho Wheat Commission Administrator Dick Rush said the members are managers and owners of flour mills in Taiwan who are here to learn more about U.S. wheat research, marketing and quality control.

While in Idaho, the group will visit research facilities at the University of Idaho, tour farming operations and grain businesses and meet with wheat growers from Latah, Kootenai, Benewah and Boundary counties.

Idaho Wheat Commission Chairman Myron Sorenson said. "This visit is significant because of the agreement signed September 11 by Taiwan and the U.S. which calls for Taiwan to purchase 17.2 million tons of U.S. grain over the next five years."

Sorenson said the agreement has a direct effect on Idaho since Taiwan had purchased 10.5 million bushels of Pacific Northwest wheat worth $78 million during the 1981 marketing year.

Handicapped show talents

BOISE (UPI) — Three potluckians, 37 booths and a fleet of wheelchairs enveloped the parking lot of the Veterans Administration Medical Center for the Ada County International Year of Disabled Persons Celebration.

About 200 people showed up at the fair intended to show the abilities of the handicapped.

"Among the talented disabled were two artisans, a group of blind musicians and the inventor of the 'tricyclopod,' a motorized machine for wheelchair-bound people.

The Arthritis Foundation, the Idaho Youth Ranch, Boise area hospitals and the Idaho Vietnam Veterans Organization were among the groups at the fair.

"Disabled American Veteran John Hiddic said the interest of the veterans are closely tied to disabled people since "a lot of our disabled people are veterans too."

Adele Hester, a VA specialist who helped organize the event, said she was pleased with the turnout, given the competition with the Arts in the Park Festival at Julia Davis Park and Air Force Appreciation Day at Mountain Home.

"It was noisy and hot at the art festival but artists were selling and shoppers were buying, everything from paintings to pottery, at least some artists were selling. A few artists said items that sell well in certain parts of the country don't sell at all others."

As of Saturday afternoon a couple said they had not sold a single one of the clocks they mount on slabs of varnished burl wood. They said the clocks were their income when they lived in Arizona, where they made and sold the clocks full-time. But the Thompsons moved to Boise last winter and they said the clocks have not sold well at all here.

John Shaw of Salt Lake City had a different problem. He was selling samples of what he said is a new art medium — sculptured clay, fired and water-colored. His works were mounted in frames with glass fronts. Shaw said his sculptures were selling well in San Francisco and other places, but Idaho didn't seem to be ready for them.

The day's festivities at the 21st July-August Appreciation Day started with an hour-long parade including 45 motorcycle riders and 25 "Tin Lizzies" driven by members of El Korah Shrine Temple.

Campfire Girls, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts stayed on the parade route as it wound its way to Carl Miller Park, where nearly 10,000 people formed four lines to go through four free dinner serving stations.

Boots ringing the bar, offered games of skill and chance, plain and exotic foods, art and handicraft items and general merchandise.

The celebration concluded with an Idaho Cowboy Association rodeo at the Mountain Home Optimist Club Park and a dance at God Counsel Hall.

Boise opens new bus office

BOISE (UPI) — Citing the money saving virtues of renovation Boise Mayor Dick Eardley dedicated the new headquarters for Boise Urban Stages Saturday.

A grant from the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration paid 80 percent of the renovation's cost, the balance came from local tax money.

The headquarters, named the Harley Davis Operation Center, was in honor of the late Harley Davis, a former member of the Mayor's Transit Advisory Committee, who was active in the past in public transportation. The new facility offers BUS employees a dressing room for mechanics and a lounge for drivers.

In the rear of the building are new automatic bus-washing machine and maintenance bays.

BUS Assistant General Manager Joel Freedman said the maintenance bays were constructed to make the mechanics' jobs as easy as possible.

Economy

True, said Lee Warren of the Fresh Ice Co. of Twin Falls. But several companies are splitting the ice competition. Fresh Ice is supplying only a small part of the ice for the fair, she said.

But the fair is not the biggest time of the year for ice companies — the Fourth alone, Fresh Ice sold more than five tons of ice, she said.

The search for profits is not hopeless, of course. Motel 8 on Addison Avenue West enjoys a prime location during Fair week and most were filled to capacity during the fair.

"We're not free from problems, though. The Branding Iron Motel was given a check stolen from Montana; a carnival worker was arrested by Twin Falls police and charged with forgery in connection with the case.

The fair generated profits in a few surprising places, too. Instead of closing his department store for Twin Falls Day at the fair, as he has always done, Earl Faulkner kept the Paris open Thursday and held a sale.

Key days in aid quest

Universal Press Syndicate
(Second of three columns)

If your child is a high school senior planning to attend college in fall, 1982, now, right now, is when you must start the process of getting financial aid.

Not in early 1982, not even in late 1981, but beginning in two weeks, in October, is the proper timing for action.

You and your child are in an entirely new era in which your eligibility for aid is being slashed, your sources of federal funds are being narrowed and your costs for every type of financial help are soaring.

And these adverse trends participate to the middle-income family with an average performing student, are in motion while the expenses of education after high school are skyrocketing across-the-board.

Here is a brief calendar of essential steps for you to take to apply for aid. Obey the date guides for your own benefit.

OCTOBER: Have your child pick up a "free" copy of "Meeting College Costs" from his or her high school counselor. This booklet outlines the financial aid process, describes rules available from various sources and gives you through the rules on eligibility for these funds.

"Meeting College Costs," prepared by the College Scholarship Service, has charts to help you estimate how much you might have to pay toward the cost of college and figure your eligibility for financial aid.

Your child should contact colleges early for any special financial aid application instructions — deadlines, forms, etc. — especially if he or she plans to take advantage of an early decision program.

NOVEMBER: Have your child pick up a 1982-83 Financial Aid Form (FAF) from the school counselor. Most colleges and other aid sponsors use the FAF to help them determine how much financial aid you need.

JANUARY: As soon as after Jan. 1, 1981, as possible, send your completed Financial Aid Form to CSS. (See addresses on forms or ask your school guidance officer.) You can use the same form to apply for the federal Pell Grant Program, plus other aid, but you must wait to file your form until after Jan. 1, 1982, so that financial information for the full 1981 calendar year is available. However, you do not have to wait until after you have filed your income tax form.

As the family of a student who needs financial assistance to obtain an education after high school, you should use the Financial Aid Form to maximum advantage by applying for college aid, Pell Grants and other federal student aid programs — and, if possible, state aid with the same form. Applying for federal student aid may not provide enough money to meet your needs. And since most colleges require you to apply for federal student aid before they will consider you for other aid anyway, you can avoid delays by checking off the appropriate box at the time you complete the FAF. (November is the time you get the form.)

FINAL REMINDER ON DATES: Many students, even those from middle-income families who believe they have been fortunate, may qualify for financial aid that will enable them to attend colleges they might not be able to afford on their own.

But in order to receive financial aid, you first must apply for it. And you must provide the most accurate information possible to avoid destructive delays in processing the application.

If your child still has a year before college, you will might be hiding your head in the proverbial sand and be downgrading the impact on you of the dual blow of sharply higher education costs and sharply reduced, as well as more expensive, federal aid for students.

The average cost for a year at a private four-year college is up to $6,885, says the College Board.

Saints' Wes Chandler happily leaps into Jim Pietrzak's arms after big TD against Rams

New Orleans rookie breaks club record in upset of Rams

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The New Orleans Saints aren't quite ready to walk down playoff lane in the NFL, but a rookie running back certainly provided some sweet marching music Sunday.

Rookie George Rogers, the Heisman Trophy running back from South Carolina, set an all-time Saints single-game rushing record to spark a 23-17 triumph over the troubled Los Angeles Rams, carrying 29 times for 162 yards, including a five-yard touchdown run in the second quarter.

That performance beat the 27-142 mark of Andy Livingston that had stood for 12 years and helped the Saints equal their win mark for the entire 1980 season.

"You have to credit the win to the whole team because after last week's loss to Atlanta we wanted to come back," said Rogers, who added he would like to break the rushing record again but "even if I get 60 yards I'll be happy as long as we win."

In beating Los Angeles, the Saints showed a savvy, aggressive defense that kept the Rams 0-2, bottled up for the first half, and an offense that was able to convert three of four turnovers into scores.

"In general we had bad field position most of the time," said Rams Coach Ray Malavasi, "and we didn't play well in the first half."

More NFL games — B5

Rogers' performance showed the Saints, under new coach Bum Phillips, have a rejuvenated ground game that can move the offense without the strong right arm of Archie Manning.

The 12-year veteran quarterback left the game after the first series of downs because of a hamstring problem, and Bobby Scott took over. Scott, though, had trouble finding his mark and at one point threw three straight interceptions before he settled down to throw an insurance touchdown midway through the fourth quarter — a 23-yard scoring strike to Wes Chandler.

"I thought it was a team effort," said Phillips. "Although George made 162 yards I don't think he made 'em by himself. You've got to be able to get people going, you've got to be able to do what you threaten to."

The Saints picked up nine more points from kicker Benny Ricardo, who drilled field goals of 45, 46 and 34 yards.

New Orleans lost a scoring opportunity after a 61-yard play in which Rogers ran 10 yards, then fumbled into the air where Chandler grabbed the ball and sprinted 51 yards to the Rams' 14. Three plays later, a Scott pass was picked off by Pat Thomas, who carried the ball out to the 34.

Haden fumbled a center snap on the second play and Jim Kovach recovered for New Orleans on the Rams' 35 to set up Ricardo's third field goal. The 34-yard kick came six plays later and pushed New Orleans to a 16-0 lead.

With 37 seconds left in the half, Jim Youngblood picked off another Scott pass and returned it 20 yards to the Saints' 25 to set up a 40-yard field goal by Frank Corral.

Los Angeles opened up the second half with a smoothly engineered 74-yard TD drive, capped by Haden's 57-yard scoring pass to Preston Dennard, the first of two touchdowns by the same combination.

The Saints' final TD was set up by Rob Nairne, who picked off a Haden pass at the Rams' 40 and returned it 15 yards. Two plays later, Scott threw a perfect strike to Chandler in the left corner of the end zone for the insurance touchdown.

Los Angeles scored once more on the Haden-to-Dennard connection, a 15-yard pass that ended an 87-yard drive.

Time ran out with New Orleans controlling the ball the last 4:02 of the game.

Sipe may lose more sleep after Oiler defense's abuse

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe said last week he knew the Houston Oilers' physical defense so well he would probably lose some sleep in the nights preceding Sunday's game.

He may lose some more sleep for the next few nights while he recovers from the bumps and bruises administered by the Oilers' savage front line in Houston's 59-3 victory.

For the second straight game, Sipe launched over 50 passes and, for the second straight game, Cleveland's offense was nearly bottled up.

"We played conservative, safe defense," said rookie Houston coach Ed Biles. "We didn't blitz or dog. We just sat back and played a lot of zone coverages."

All the Oilers' points came from the toe of Tom Fritsch, who was a perfect 3-for-3 kicking field goals, two of them in the second half.

Biles said he was "disappointed" with his offense, but said the Browns no doubt felt the same way about their offense.

"I am tremendously pleased with our special team play," Biles said. "A couple of blocked field goal attempts counted a lot. They were big plays."

Ed in Biles blocked two of two attempts by Dave Jacobs, who made the final roster when 13-year veteran Don Cokeroff was cut. Jacobs made a 29-yarder in the first half for Cleveland's only points and was also wide on another attempt.

The entire Browns' team took a beating. Besides wide receiver Reggie Rucker, who injured his back in the pre-game warmup, wide receiver Dave Logan, running back Mike Pruitt, defensive end Lytle Azizdo, safety Chilton Burrell and tackle Doug Dieken all had to leave the game with injuries.

Sipe felt the loss of Rucker and Logan most when he was trying to drive the team to a victory in the closing minutes.

Death threat for Borg dampens McEnroe's Open triumph

By Ray Sones
(c) 1981 Chicago Sun-Times (Field News Service)

NEW YORK — The sickness that darkens our world threw a shadow over John McEnroe's bright moment.

McEnroe achieved a third straight singles championship at the U.S. Open, a feat that had defied the world's best male tennis players for 56 years, since Bill Tilden won the last of his five in a row.

The curly-topped New Yorker, just 22, solidified his rule over the sport by beating Bjorn Borg, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

And while Borg was toying his 10th effort to win the one major title he never has won, a man called the switchboard of the National Tennis Center and said: "I'm going to shoot him (Borg)."

A similar call, perhaps from the same man, had been received Saturday, and Borg had been told about it after his semifinal victory over Jimmy Connors.

Sunday, immediately after his last return of serve had sailed beyond the baseline, Borg fled from the court with a convoy of New York police without accepting his second-place trophy. He showered quickly and was driven from the National Tennis Center.

Reporters waiting in the interview room were left to wonder about the answers to these questions:

Had concern over Saturday's threat bothered him during the match?

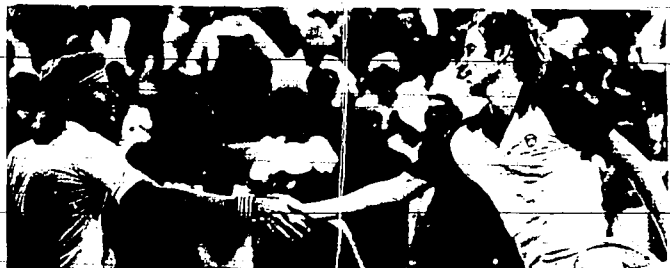

Or had McEnroe's steady brilliance forced Borg to play a cautious, tentative game quite unlike the style that won him his reputation and his wealth?

This was not the Borg who had played those great matches with McEnroe the last two years at Wimbledon and last September on this same court.

McEnroe noticed the difference: "I don't think he was really sure of what he wanted to do. He came in, and he wasn't sure whether he should have or not. He didn't go for it. He just seemed kind of tentative."

Borg "let up a little and got careless" after winning the first set, McEnroe said. "It didn't seem he played his game."

It's time for Fairfield and Richfield to bury the past

The residents of Fairfield and Richfield can now sign a peace treaty.

Joe Hendrickson is offering the white flag and hopefully both sides will find a long-term truce.

No, the towns haven't been at war with each other. Just the next closest thing.

Back in mid August Joe Hendrickson said some old-so-new things about Camas County High's football program. His comments appeared in The Times-News football edition after some lengthy deliberation by this editor. Normally, his comments might not have appeared in the paper, but his feelings appeared very strong and I did not want to gloss over or cover up his comments that were made on the record.

It's not worth repeating exactly what Hendrickson said because that could possibly make the situation worse. Suffice it to say that Hendrickson felt Camas County was illegally recruiting players.

The two schools met on the field last Friday afternoon and Richfield handily won the game. But relations between Hendrickson and Camas County Coach Ed Blankenship were "very cool" in Blankenship's words. He said he went to the middle of the field after the game to congratulate Hendrickson, but Hendrickson didn't make it to the middle for whatever reason. It's apparent that the "coolness" between Blankenship and Hendrickson is what the supporters of both schools experienced Friday.

The schools play again later this year and it's not good for either coaches or players to harbor ill will towards the competition. Football is a rough enough sport without adding more frustrations, etc.

Figuring the whole problem needs to get out in the open in order to be solved, I talked with both Blankenship and Hendrickson Friday evening.

The upshot is that Hendrickson is sorry for his comments. They were made, in his words, without thinking.

"I can't blame those people (Fairfield) for being upset," Hendrickson said. "I made a slip without thinking and I regret it. I really believe Ed is doing a good job up there and he's got integrity. It's something I said without thinking twice about and those people up in Camas are good people, just like anyplace else."

Enough said. Hendrickson comes from a large town and he didn't expect his comments to cause such a ripple. He's sorry and should be forgiven. Last week Richfield Supt. A. Joy-Jones and Athletic Director James Thomas sent a letter of apology to Camas for the things Hendrickson said. Hendrickson was unaware of such a move, but said he did apologize to Camas County Supt. Harold Stroud at Friday's game.

As for the charge of recruiting players, Hendrickson said he has no evidence and knows Blankenship is the level.

Both coaches mentioned one player, Danny Turner. Turner played for Carey last fall and now plays for Camas. Hendrickson evidently felt - at one point - that Camas was recruiting Turner, but he now knows better.

"Danny is not supported by his parents, he supports himself by working on farms and ranches. He was going to Carey on a work study program and they dropped the program. He got a job during the summer at a large farm, up over here and that turned into a job with room and board 3 and hours that he can arrange around school and practice."

Normally, a player has to wait 89 days (into the school year) to be eligible to play sport, but we applied to the state (Idaho High School Activities Association) and received a hardship waiver making Danny eligible from the start of the school year."

Hendrickson supported Blankenship's account of Turner's situation and said he's never contacted the state office about any Camas players.

In addition, there were rumors "all summer long" that a player from Wood River, a player from Meridian and a couple of other players were coming to Camas County.

None of the rumors have become flesh and bones. Camas has some transfer players this year and Blankenship said all are legitimate.

Blankenship is in his second year after moving from California and said he's trying to do his best in changing attitudes towards Camas County football.

"We're trying to make adjustments so we won't be considered the bad boys or the whipping boys any longer.

We are running a good program and we don't want hard feelings to exist between other schools and ourselves," he said.

Part of Blankenship's inheritance at Camas was other school's hard feelings toward the Musers. A few years back the Musers were guided by another coach and defeated some teams by horrendous scores on their way to two state championships. Camas averaged something like 86 points a game one season. It simply couldn't have been any fun (something the sport is all about) to play football against the Musers. As with any town, the line of superb athletes graduated and the Musers had little success lately.

The Musers haven't been beaten by outrageous scores this year, but last year they got clipped by a healthy margin a couple of times.

There's a lesson in running up the score. If you are a coach that does it, you better be prepared to get burned a few times in the future. Or you better be sure you aren't around when the super jocks are gone. Probably the best policy is not to run up the score. A coach who piles up the points, in my opinion, doesn't care about high school students and as such, shouldn't be coaching.

Here's hoping that Richfield and Camas can find friendly competition when they meet Oct. 23 and in the future. Hopefully, other schools might find such a solution if they are at odds with another. High school sports are important, but not to the point of fighting and feuding.

Dawson, Parrish all Expos need

By United Press International

National League

The Montreal Expos needed little more than Andre Dawson and Larry Parrish Sunday.

The two Expos cutters drove in three runs, offsetting a 4-for-4, three RBI performance by Chicago's Bill Buckner, and carrying Montreal to a 10-6 victory over the Cubs.

Dawson doubled home a run in the first as Montreal scored two runs in the inning. In the fifth, Dawson and Parrish singled in runs and Montreal took a 5-0 advantage. In the following inning Dawson laced his second RBI double and Parrish snapped a double for another two runs as Montreal had a five-run rally to make it 10-2.

St. Louis 4, New York 2
At St. Louis, Mets' reliever Jesse Orosco balked in the winning run in the sixth and enabled the Cardinals to sweep their three-game series with New York. Terry Leach, who ended his record at 1-1, was relieved by Orosco with runners on first and third.

Los Angeles 4, Cincinnati 2
At Cincinnati, pitcher Bobby Castillo singled in an insurance run in the seventh to help win it for the Dodgers and raise his record to 2-4. After Derrell Thomas broke a 2-2 tie with a sacrifice fly off Reds' starter and loser Frank Pastore, 3-7, Castillo singled to deep short.

Houston 3, San Francisco 0
At Houston, Craig Reynolds scored a run and drove in another with an infield hit to support the combined nine hit pitching of Houston's Bob Knepper, 8-3, and Frank LaCorte.

San Diego 6, Atlanta 4
At Atlanta, Juan Bonilla singled in pinch runner Mario Ramirez in the 10th and Luis Salazar followed with a two-run triple to spark the Padres. Rick Camp, who lost only his third game against nine victories, allowed Bonilla's hit before Al Hrabosky relieved and gave up Salazar's triple.

Pittsburgh 3, Philadelphia 2
At Pittsburgh, Jason Thompson poked a pinch single in the eighth to drive in two runs and erase a 2-1 Phillies shortage. Larry Brown, Willie Stargell pinch hit and Bill McNeek was walked intentionally to lead the bases.

Hrbek — who? — wins it for Twins

By United Press International

Nobody in the American League is saying "Kent Who?" anymore.

Pinch hitter Kent Hrbek singled in two runs with two out in the ninth inning to cap a four-run rally Sunday and give the Minnesota Twins a 7-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

American League

It was Minnesota's sixth straight triumph.

Detroit 6, Cleveland 6
At Detroit, Rick Peters singled home the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning and Kirk Gibson followed with a two-run, pop-fly double to help the Tigers to a sweep of their three-game series with the Cleveland Indians.

Milwaukee 5, Baltimore 0
At Milwaukee, Ben Oglivie's bases-loaded single triggered a four-run fourth inning Sunday to back the combined six-hit pitching of Pete Vuckovich and two relievers and led the Brewers.

New York 10, Boston 6
At New York, Willie Randolph drove in three runs and Dave Winfield hit a two-run homer in support of Ron Fuldry, 11-4, to spark the Yankees.

California 8, Texas 7
At Anaheim, Calif., the Angels snapped an eight-game losing streak on Juan Beniquez' sacrifice fly in the 12th. Dan Ford opened the 12th with an infield hit off loser Steve Comar, 7-2.

Atlanta's 31-point final quarter stuns Pack

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Atlanta Coach LeDman Bennett said he wasn't anxious Sunday when his favored Falcons were trailing the Green Bay Packers 17-0 at the start of the fourth quarter — but he said he was surprised at how quickly the Falcons came from behind to win 31-17.

"The Falcons quickly tied the score and then went ahead on a 20-yard interception return by linebacker Fulton Kuykendall and a 57-yard fumble return by linebacker Joe Williams.

"The way I look at it, we were three plays behind," Bennett said of the 17-point deficit. "You get two touchdown passes, pick up a fumble and run it in, I don't know if I've seen the defense score that many points that quickly. That's what really changed the balance. We had the big plays. We scored it."

The Falcons scored 24 points in a 4:24 span and within that time frame got 14 of the points in 18 seconds.

Steve Bartkowski, who had a shaky game, passed 30 yards to Alfred Jenkins for a touchdown. The Falcons kicked off and on the first play, Kuykendall intercepted a Lynn Dickey pass and returned it for a score.

"It's one thing to have points scored against you and then another to have them scored against you all at once," Packer Coach Bart Starr said. He called the Falcons' scoring "an avalanche."

"We played very, very well for three quarters," Dickey said. "A lot of teams will die-and lay-down on you-but that's why I guess they (the Falcons) were the team they were last year."

The Falcons won the NFC Western Division title last year and lost to Dallas 30-27 in the playoffs.

The fourth-quarter surge helped the Falcons overcome four interceptions thrown by Bartkowski, a 1980 All-Pro. The Falcons boosted their record to 2-0 while the Packers, who intercepted four passes, slipped to 1-1 as Atlanta notched its first triumph in Green Bay in four tries.

The final Atlanta TD came with 1:34 left after Packers' quarterback Lynn Dickey passed to Terrell Middleton and Middleton fumbled. Williams scooped up the ball and ran 57 yards down the sidelines for the score.

Kuykendall broke a 17-17 tie with eight minutes left when he intercepted a Dickey pass and returned it 20 yards for a touchdown. The Falcons scored earlier on a 32-yard field goal by Mick Lueckhust, a 2-yard run by William Andrews and a 30-yard pass from Steve Bartkowski to Alfred Jenkins.

The Packers had scored on a 2-yard pass from Dickey to Karl Swankie, an 11-yard pass from Dickey to Gerry Ellis, and a 44-yard field goal by Dan Stenerud.

Bartkowski threw into tight coverage in the first half and suffered a rib injury. Mike Anderson in for Bartkowski and suffered a broken collarbone, forcing Bartkowski's return to the game.

Seahawks snap eight-game home losing streak

SEATTLE (UPI) — Coach Jack Patena couldn't conceal his glee over the end of the long Seattle drought after the Seattle Seahawks downed Denver 13-10 to end an eight-game losing streak at home.

"It was a tremendous win," said Patena. "We won a close game versus a very good team and it's a very satisfying win."

Seattle's victory came on a 23-yard field goal by Eren Herrera in the third period.

The winning kick was set up just a few plays before by a fake field goal. The Seahawks lined up for a 51-yard field goal attempt by Herrera, but quarterback Jim Zorn took the snap and fired a 21-yard pass in the hot lat to rookie running back David Hughes.

"The idea was to put (Denver) linemen Tom Jackson in a bind," said Zorn, "and we did. He went to cover Herrera and Hughes was wide open. I just threw it in there."

Patena had lots of praise for his defensive unit.

"We played very well defensively," he said. "Everyone contributed. They were very aggressive. We seemed to have very good pressure from the defensive line."

Denver Coach Dan Reeves was notably downcast by the outcome.

"Everything we accomplished by beating Oakland last week, we lost by losing to Seattle today," said the rookie coach. "We didn't execute at all, particularly in the third quarter."

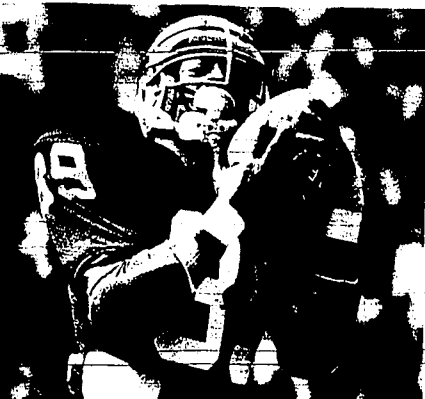

The Seahawks dominated the third quarter, holding the ball for almost nine minutes after the second-half kickoff before Herrera's winning field goal.

Denver did get a march started in the fourth period when the Broncos took over on their own 2-yard line and drove into Seattle territory. The drive faltered, however, on penalties.

Cowboys roast Cards in hot Texas Stadium

St. Louis' Willard Harrell snatches pass from Neil Lomax

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — The Texas Stadium oven was turned up to full broil Sunday when the Dallas Cowboys baked the St. Louis Cardinals until they were toasty.

"It was a typical second game of the season in Texas Stadium," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "It was hot and it was very humid."

But despite the heat, which soared to more than 100 degrees on the breezefloor of the stadium, Dallas scored on all five of its first-half possessions to overcome the Cardinals 30-17. Ron Springs scored three times in pushing Dallas to a quick start.

"I thought we played well offensively in the first half," said Landry, who kept his coat and tie on throughout the brutal afternoon. "But when we got in front we kind of sat on our lead and we lost our momentum. The guys hung in with that heat, though."

When asked if he ever thought about taking off his coat, Landry smiled and said:

"I think I'm going to have to throw it in the waste paper basket. It's kind of used up."

Ferguson fires four scoring passes past Colts

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson insisted the Baltimore Colts play a good football game, but the scoreboard was in loud disagreement.

"The Colts are a good, physical team and I guarantee everyone of our players came off the field with a few bruises," said Ferguson, who threw touchdown passes of 31, 6, 54 and 3 yards in leading the Bills to a 35-3 triumph.

Ferguson, who completed 16-of-28 passes for 261 yards, said he wasn't picking on any particular defender in the Colts' secondary, including cornerback Larry Brazzel, who was burned repeatedly while trying to stop the Buffalo sur attack.

Ferguson said the turning point in the rout came late in the second quarter, when he connected with tight end Mark Brammer on a 5-yard scoring play. That made it 21-3 Buffalo at the half and the Colts never got back in the game.

The Colts "had a lot of young players, and young players tend to make mistakes," said Buffalo's second-year running back Joe Cribbs, who gained 66 yards on 17 carries to lead all runners.

Roland Hooks scored the fifth Buffalo touchdown, scampering around right end for five yards with 9:27 left in the game.

Buffalo Coach Chuck Knox had little to say after the game, seemingly reminding his team has only three days to prepare for a Thursday night game with Philadelphia.

"We went out and scratched and clawed and won a football game," said Knox, whose team was 11-5 last year in winning the AFC East.

A 23-yard Mike Wood field goal in the first half accounted for all of Baltimore's scoring.

Ferguson rattled the Colts' secondary throughout the game, often passing without pressure. Ferguson completed 16-of-28 passes before being replaced by Matt Robinson midway through the fourth quarter.

Patton upstages cousin Payton, 49ers triumph

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Joe Montana threw three touchdown passes Sunday and Ricky Patton upstaged his better-known cousin, Walter Payton, with a dazzling 12-yard scoring run in the closing minutes to give the San Francisco 49ers a 29-17 victory over the Chicago Bears.

Montana connected on a 31-yard TD pass to Patton midway through the opening quarter for a 7-0 lead, then combined with Freddie Solomon on a 46-yard scoring strike early in the second quarter.

The Bears, who lost their opener a week ago, followed with 17 points to take the lead early in the second half, but Montana wound up a two-play drive with a five-yard TD throw to Charles Young for what proved to be the winning score.

The Bears were driving for a go-ahead score late in the third quarter when Payton fumbled after taking a "cheap" pass from Evans at the Chicago 31 and Dan Bunz pounced on the loose ball. On the first play, Montana hit Solomon with a 28-yard pass to the Chicago 5, and on the next play he flipped the ball to Young for the touchdown.

Early in the final period, the Bears drove to the San Francisco two-yard line where they had a first down.

Fumble recovery insures Giants' 17-7 victory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For a New York Giants fan, George Martin's fumble return for a touchdown Sunday was the play of the game.

For Martin it was old hat.

Martin picked up Joe Theismann's fumble and returned it eight yards for a touchdown to seal the Giants' 17-7 victory over the Washington Redskins.

Joe Daniele's 25-yard field goal had given the Giants a 10-7 lead with 10 minutes to play after a scoreless first half and off-setting third-quarter touchdowns.

"I always enjoy scoring a touchdown, but the excitement just isn't the same after the first one because I've had four, you know," deadpanned Martin after the game. "Actually, I thought I was going to drop the thing before I could get it wrapped up. Getting into the end zone was the easy part."

Theismann is becoming Martin's favorite victim. In 1978, Martin sacked Theismann four times.

Cincinnati rallies again to defeat Jets, 31-30

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the second straight week, the Cincinnati Bengals turned innocent defeat into an improbable victory.

After falling behind to Seattle by 21 points last week before winning 27-21, the Bengals rallied from a 14-point deficit Sunday to pull out a 31-30 triumph over the New York Jets.

"Our guys believe they can come back. We just don't quit," said Cincinnati Coach Forrest Gregg. "They believe they can stop anybody and believe they can score on anybody."

Ken Anderson hit Archie Griffin on a 3-yard touchdown pass with 3:34 left to give Cincinnati a 24-21 advantage in the final lead of the game, and it scored later. Mike St. Clair piked up a fumbled Todd Fummie and ran 12 yards for a score to put the game out of reach.

"It was a comedy of errors," said Jets Coach Walt Michaels, whose team was penalized 14 times for 111 yards. "Whenever you have as many penalties as we had, you can't win."

"You may not believe it, but we are teaching them to stay outside," Anderson, whose starting status remains in jeopardy, said the Bengals could have scored earlier.

"We moved the ball well in the first period but just didn't score," said Anderson. "It took some great individual performances from some of the guys. We were down but didn't give up."

With Cincinnati trailing 21-17 with 7:36 left in the game, Anderson drove the Bengals 67 yards on eight plays capped by his scoring toss to Griffin.

The Jets attempted to come back, but Todd fumbled and St. Clair scooped up the ball and ran untouched into the end zone to give Cincinnati a 31-21 lead.

For Martin it was old hat.

Martin picked up Joe Theismann's fumble and returned it eight yards for a touchdown to seal the Giants' 17-7 victory over the Washington Redskins.

Joe Daniele's 25-yard field goal had given the Giants a 10-7 lead with 10

'Automatic' Lowery beats Bucs with four FGs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Nick Lowery isn't automatic — he just kicks like it.

The second-year pro out of Dartmouth kicked four field goals Sunday to give the Kansas City Chiefs a 19-10 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers for a 2-0 start — their best since 1969, when they also went 2-0 en route to their only Super Bowl championship.

Lowery kicked field goals from 30, 27, 42 and 41 yards and has now converted 7-of-8 field goal attempts this season. Since winning the kicking job from Stan Stenerud last season, Lowery has converted 27-of-34 field goal tries.

"I believe any time we get the ball to the 35, we can come away with at least a field goal," said grateful Kansas City quarterback Bill Kenney.

"I see Nick in practice. I hold for him occasionally. He's safe from 50 yards in. It's a tremendous boost for our offense having him on the sidelines."

Lowery kicked a field goal in both the second and third quarters and added two more in the fourth for the first four-field goal game of his career and the first by the Chiefs since Stenerud kicked four in a 1976 game against Washington.

Ted McKnight put Kansas City in front 7-0 before the game was three minutes old when he raced eight yards around left end following a botched punt attempt by the Buccaneers deep in their own end.

Tampa Bay, 1-1, failed to take the lead with 10 points in back-to-back possessions at the close of the first quarter and start of the second on a 2-yard run by rookie James Wilder and a 44-yard field goal by Garo Yepremian.

But Lowery tied the game with his first 29-yard field goal with 5:30 left in the first half and then put the Chiefs ahead for good with his second 20-yarder at 7:54 of the third period.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Perry Harrington is concerned he's the Philadelphia Eagles' answer to Rodney Dangerfield, but maybe now he'll get some respect.

Harrington, making his first home start at fullback, ran six yards for a third-quarter touchdown and joined Wilbert Montgomery to pace Philadelphia's 22-10 rushing attack Sunday in the Eagles' 13-3 victory over the New England Patriots.

Harrington, filling in for the injured Leroy Harris, has been criticized often by Coach Dick Vermeil for mistakes, but he says it is not for lack of effort.

"I might not be emotional enough, but I do care," Harrington said after rushing for 60 yards in 14 carries. "But the coach really comes down on everybody, not just me. I felt good today and the offensive line did a great job."

Tony Franklin's second field goal of the game, a 22-yarder, broke a 10-10 tie on the Eagles' first possession of the third quarter. Harrington's TD then capped a 55-yard drive that began with an interception by Innebacher Frank LeMaster.

Montgomery helped the Eagles hold on to their lead with timely running and finished with 137 yards in 18 carries.

"We're trying to spot our running game," Vermeil said. "It's a matter of Perry Harrington gaining confidence in himself to the point where he's a mean s.o.b. We have confidence in him."

The Patriots scored first on a 22-yard field goal by John Smith in the opening period, but Franklin tied it 22 seconds before halftime on a 46-yard field goal that was hotly disputed by the Patriots.

"I didn't see the kick, but all my players said it was wide," New England Coach Ron Erhardt said.

Chargers' old man Joiner leads San Diego past Lions, 28-23

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — To hear the San Diego Chargers tell it, 33-year-old Charlie Joiner, a 13-year pro from Grambling, is still acting like a rookie trying to make the team.

"I think he's surprising some people around the league and I think he'll continue to surprise people," Dan Fouts said of the Chargers' grey-bearded wide receiver who caught seven passes for 166 yards Sunday and figured in 14 of San Diego's touchdown drives in their comeback 28-23 victory over the Detroit Lions.

"I know that Charlie's going to get open," Fouts said. "We know each other's abilities real well and nine times out of 10 we're on the same wavelength. That's important for a quarterback and receiver."

Tight end Kellen Winslow, who caught a 7-yard TD pass, said Joiner "works harder than anybody everyday. You think I'd be still trying to make the team. He's got his foot on each other like the back of their hands. That's a big key."

The Chargers trailed until the final minute of the game, when John Coppelletti burst up the middle for a two-yard touchdown to give San Diego the victory.

Raiders, the Masters of Monday night football, visit Vikings tonight

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders, who have the best record of any NFL team in Monday night games, including 12 straight victories, face the Minnesota Vikings in an aerial showdown tonight.

Both teams dropped their season openers. The 1981 Super Bowl champion Raiders lost 9-7 to Denver while the Vikings, who have not played a Monday night game since 1979, lost 13-10 to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

"Obviously, we don't want to lose two in a row," Oakland Coach Tom Flores said. "We haven't played the Vikings in a couple of years and they're a new team. They don't have the defensive formation as they did in the past."

Minnesota has switched to a 3-4 defense, putting Mark Mulaney, James White and Doug Martin on the line and allowing the linebackers to "freelance," Viking All Pro Matt Blair said.

Oakland showed the strengths of a 3-4 alignment last season, highlighted by free-wheeling 6-foot-7 linebacker Ted Hendricks, who led the team in quarterback sacks.

Raiders' quarterback Jim Plunkett, who underwent surgery on his left shoulder in the off season, will test the Vikings' young secondary. Minnesota will probably start rookies John Swain at left cornerback and Willie Teal at right. Walt Williams, who was added from Detroit, will replace Swain.

"We like to test the young cornerbacks and the old ones, too," Flores said. "We like the threat of a long ball and if we see a definite weakness, we'll have to go after it."

Plunkett, who struggled during the preseason, completed 14 of 24 attempts for 125 yards against Denver. The 33-year-old veteran will face a fellow Stanford alum in Viking quarterback Steve Dils.

Dils, who replaces the injured Tommy Kramer, set a club record in pass attempts with 62 against Tampa Bay. He completed 37 of those throws for 361 yards.

Dils guided Minnesota, which was trailing 14-13, to the Tampa Bay 26 in the fourth quarter but an interception and 82-yard scoring return by Neal Colzie ended the drive.

"I'm not going to be worried about throwing the next time — in fact, I think I'll be more aggressive," Dils said.

Flores said even though the Vikings use Dils at quarterback, the team probably won't alter their strategy.

"I don't think the philosophy will change," he said. "I

Dawson, Parrish all Expos need

By United Press International

The Montreal Expos needed little more than Andre Dawson and Larry Parrish Sunday.

The Expos each drove in three runs, offsetting a 4-for-4, three RBI performance by Chicago's Bill Buckner and carrying Montreal to a 10-6 victory over the Cubs.

Dawson doubled home a run in the first as Montreal scored two runs in the inning. In the fifth, Dawson and Parrish singled in runs and Montreal took a 5-0 advantage. In the following inning Dawson laced his second RBI double and Parrish smacked a double-for-another-two runs as Montreal had a five-run rally to make it 10-2.

At St. Louis, Mets' reliever Jesse Orosco balked in the winning run in the sixth and enabled the Cardinals to sweep their three-game series with New York. Terry Letcher, who evaded his record at 1-1, was relieved by Orosco with runners on first and third.

Los Angeles 4, Cincinnati 2

At Cincinnati, pitcher Bobby Castillo singled in an insurance run in the seventh to help win it for the Dodgers and raise his record to 2-1. After Derrol Thomas broke a 2-2 tie with a sacrifice fly off Fred's start and loser Frank Pastore, 3-7, Castillo singled to deep short.

San Diego 6, Atlanta 4

At Atlanta, Juan Bonilla singled in pinch runner Mario Ramirez in the 10th and Luis Salazar followed with a two-run triple to spark the Padres. Rick Camp, who lost only his third game against nine victories, allowed Boni's hit before Al Fitzroy relieved and gave-up Salazar's triple.

Pittsburgh 3, Philadelphia 2

At Pittsburgh, Jason Thompson poked a pinch single in the eighth to drive in two runs and erase a 2-1 Phillies lead. After Omar Moreno was safe on an error by Phil's shortstop Larry Bowa, Willie Stargell pinch hit and Bill Madlock was walked intentionally to load the bases.

Houston 3, San Francisco 0

At Houston, Craig Reynolds scored a run and drove in another with an infield hit to support the combined nine-hitting of Houston's Bob Knepper, 8-3, and Frank Litchotte.

Hrbek — who? — wins it for Twins

By United Press International

Nobody in the American League is saying "Kent Who?" anymore.

Pinch hitter Kent Hrbek singled in two runs with two out in the ninth inning to cap a four-run rally Sunday and give the Minnesota Twins a 7-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

It was Minnesota's sixth straight triumph.

But the Swede was still very much in the match until McEnroe played what he considered to be "one of the best games I've played on someone else's serve in a long time."

It came with Borg leading at 4-3 in the third set, with a service break in hand.

McEnroe hit two superb backhand passing shots, one cross court and the other down the line, and two perfect topspin lobs Borg did not even try to get. That squared the match and gave McEnroe the confidence he needed to play his best.

"Suddenly, I felt I could hit any shot," he said.

He never trailed again. He went ahead 3-1 with the first service break of the fourth set. Borg broke him right back at 3-2, with the New York crowd clamoring for the foreigner against the local boy and even cheering McEnroe's few errors.

Then, instead of holding serve to even the set, the usually unflappable Swede tripped over his own errors, twice hitting long from the baseline, and was broken again.

"That second break was really important," McEnroe—thoughtful—"because, if he had won that game, the crowd was really starting to get into it and he would have gotten more into it."

Borg was finished after that. McEnroe "wasn't too surprised" that his fellow New Yorker cheered for Borg. "They always treat McEnroe like an unwanted stepchild."

"I think it was just bad when they started clapping on my first-serve misses near the end. I don't think it was necessary to do that."

Probably, they love to hate him because of his outrageous behavior here and at Wimbledon in the past.

Possibly, it's because they prefer the underdog. He thinks so.

Asked what he would have to do to swing New Yorkers to his side, he replied: "Lose a couple of times."

If the record-crowds thronged this tournament—in hopes-of-seems-him-blow his top, they were disappointed most of the time. His only outburst of any consequence came in Saturday's semifinal, when he belted a CBS-TV court-side microphone with his racket because it was eavesdropping on his debate with the umpire.

"I tried to stay out of it (trouble)," he said. "I've had trouble enough."

Asked whether he thought he had gained a mastery over Borg, McEnroe replied rather modestly: "I don't think I could beat him on clay right now. Hopefully, some day I'll be able to do that. I feel comfortable playing him on any other surface."

Borg was unwise, McEnroe said, to declare so firmly that his No. 1 goal was to win, finally, a U.S. Open. "He put so much pressure on himself to win this one tournament," McEnroe said, "that, if he doesn't, he's had a lousy year."

BORG HAS had a lousy year, by his standards. McEnroe made it so, here and at Wimbledon. And some nut picked up a telephone and made it worse.

McEnroe found his third American championship especially "satisfying" because he had won it for the first time under the pressure of being ranked No. 1 in the world and having to live up to it.

"It's a lot harder to stay on top," he said, "than to get there."

Bjorn Borg, who used to be No. 1, won't agree.

Atlanta's 31-point final quarter stuns Pack

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett is not your basic worry wart. Bennett said he wasn't anxious Sunday when his favored Falcons were trailing the Green Bay Packers 17-0 at the start of the fourth quarter — but he said he was surprised at how quickly the Falcons came from behind to win 31-7.

The Falcons quickly tied the score and then went ahead on a 20-yard interception return by linebacker Fulton Kuykendall and a 57-yard fumble return by linebacker Joel Williams.

"The way I look at it, we were three plays behind," Bennett said of the 17-point deficit. "You get two touchdown passes, pick up a fumble and run it in—don't know if I've seen the defense score that many points that quickly. That's what really changed the ballgame. We had the big plays. We sure did."

The Falcons scored 20 points in a 4-24 span and within that time frame got 14 of the points in 48 seconds. Steve Bartkowski, who had a shaky game, passed 30 yards to Alfred Jenkins for a touchdown. The Falcons kicked off and on the first play, Kuykendall intercepted a Lynn Diekey pass and returned it for a score.

"It's one thing to have points scored against you and then have your own team score against you all at once," Packer Coach Bart Starr said. He called the Falcons' scoring "an avalanche."

"We played very, very well for three quarters," Diekey said. "A lot of teams will die and lay down on you, but that's why I guess they (the Falcons) were the team they were last year."

The Falcons won the NFC Western Division title last year and lost to Dallas 30-27 in the playoffs.

The fourth-quarter surge helped the Falcons overcome four interceptions thrown by Bartkowski, a 1980 All-Pro.

The Falcons boosted their record to 2-4 while the Packers, who intercepted four passes, slipped to 1-1 as Atlanta notched its first triumph in Green Bay in four tries.

The final Atlanta TD came with 1:34 left after Packers' quarterback Lynn Diekey passed to Terrell Middleton and Middleton fumbled. Williams scooped up the ball and ran 57 yards down the sidelines for the score.

Kuykendall broke a 17-7 tie with eight minutes left when he intercepted a Diekey pass and returned it 20 yards for a touchdown. The Falcons scored earlier on a 32-yard field goal by Mick Luckhurst, a 2-yard run by William Andrews and a 30-yard pass from Steve Bartkowski to Alfred Jenkins.

The Packers had scored on a 2-yard pass from Diekey to Karl Swank, an 11-yard pass from Diekey to Gerry Ellis and a 44-yard field goal by Steve Meyers.

Bartkowski threw three interceptions in the first half and suffered a rib injury. Mike Moroski came in for Bartkowski and suffered a broken collarbone, forcing Bartkowski's return to the game.

Seahawks snap eight-game home-losing streak

SEATTLE (UPI) — Coach Jack Patera couldn't conceal his glee over the end of the long Kingdome drought after the Seattle Seahawks downed Denver 13-10 to end an eight-game losing streak at home.

"It was a tremendous win," said Patera. "We won a close game versus a very good team and it's a very satisfying win."

Seattle's victory came on a 22-yard field goal by Efran Herrera in the third period.

The winning kick was set up just a few plays before by a fake field goal. The Seahawks lined up for a 51-yard field goal attempt by Herrera, but quarterback Jim Zorn took the snap and fired a 21-yard pass in the left flat to rookie running back David Hughes.

"The idea was to put (Denver linebacker) Tom Jackson in a bind," said Zorn. "And we did. He went to cover Herrera and Hughes was wide open. I just threw it in there."

Patera had lots of praise for his defensive unit.

"We played very well defensively," he said. "Everyone contributed defensively. They were very aggressive. We seemed to have very good pressure from the defensive line."

Denver Coach Dan Reeves was notably downcast by the outcome.

"Everything we accomplished by beating Oakland last week, we lost by losing to Seattle today," said the rookie coach. "We didn't execute at all, particularly in the third quarter."

The Seahawks dominated the third quarter, holding the ball for almost nine minutes after the second-half kickoff before Herrera's winning field goal.

Denver did get a march started in the fourth quarter when the Broncos took over on their own 2-yard line and drove into Seattle territory. The drive faltered, however, on penalties.

"We didn't convert on third downs and got holding penalties at crucial times," said Reeves. "It was even at the half, but they kept the ball in the second half—and we didn't make the plays."

Seattle took a 10-3 lead in the first half on a 3-yard pass from Zorn to tight end Dennis Boyd and a 43-yard field goal by Herrera in the second quarter.

However, 38-year-old Craig Morton directed an 85-yard touchdown drive for the Broncos late in the first half. The TD came on an 11-yard pass to Riley Odoms and knotted the score at 10-10.

The Broncos got their first three points on a 30-yard field goal by Fred Steinfort early in the game.

The Seahawks' running attack, which was noticeably lacking all of last season and in the first game of this season, began to dent the Broncos' defense as the game progressed.

Cowboys roast Cards in hot Texas Stadium

St. Louis' Willard Harrell snatches pass from Neil Lomax

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — The Texas Stadium oven was turned up to full broil Sunday and the Dallas Cowboys baked the St. Louis Cardinals until they were toasty.

"It was a typical second game of the season in Texas Stadium," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "It was hot and it was very humid."

But despite the heat, which soared to more than 100 degrees on the breezefloor of the stadium, Dallas scored on all five of its first-half possessions to overcome the Cardinals 30-17. Ron Spriggs scored three times in punting Dallas to a quick start.

"I thought we played well offensively in the first half," said Landry, who kept his cool and (ie on throughout the brutal afternoon. "But when we got in front we kind of sat on the lead and we lost our momentum. The guys hung in with that heat, though."

When asked if he ever thought about taking off his coat, Landry smiled and said: "I think I'm going to have to throw it in the waste paper basket. It's kind of used up."

Ferguson fires four scoring passes past Colts

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson insisted the Baltimore Colts played a good football game, but the scoreboard was in loud disagreement.

"The Colts are a good, physical team and I guarantee everyone of our players came out to the field with a few bruises," said Ferguson, who threw touchdowns passes of 33, 6, 54 and 3 yards—in leading the Bills to a 45-3 triumph.

Ferguson, who completed 16-of-28 passes for 261 yards, said he wasn't picking on any particular defender in the Colts' secondary, including cornerback Larry Bezdadek, who was burned repeatedly while trying to stop the Buffalo air attack.

Ferguson said the turning point in the rout came late in the second quarter, when he connected with tight end Mark Brammer on a 5-yard scoring play. That made it 21-0 Buffalo at the half and the Colts never got back in the game.

The Colts "had a lot of young players, and young players tend to make mistakes," said Ferguson's second-year running back Joe Crabbs, who gained 66 yards on 17 carries to lead all rushers.

Roland Hooks scored the fifth Buffalo touchdown, scampering around right end for five yards with 9:27 left in the game.

Buffalo Coach Chuck Knox had little to say after the game, seemingly mindful that his team has only three days to prepare for a Thursday night game with Philadelphia.

"We went out and scratched and scoured—and won a football game," said Knox, whose team was 11-7 last year in winning the AFC East.

A 22-yard Mike Wood field goal in the first half accounted for all of Baltimore's scoring.

Ferguson rattled the Colts' secondary throughout the game, often passing without pressure. Ferguson completed 16-of-28 passes before being replaced by Matt Johnson midway through the fourth quarter.

Baltimore rookie Randy McMillan, who came into the game the second-leading rusher in the NFL, gained just 29 yards on 10 carries as the Bills' defense dominated the Colts' offensive line and shut down a running attack that notched 249 yards last week against New England.

Ferguson threw for three TDs in the first half (to grab a 21-3 halftime lead) and Buffalo's second victory of the season was never in doubt thereafter. The Colts fell 1-1.

Charles Rome's interception of a Greg Landry pass set up Buffalo's first score in the second half, coming with five minutes to go in the third quarter. Two plays later, Ferguson passed four yards to tight end Buster Barnett and Buffalo led 28-3.

Two possessions later, Hooks kicked the right side for a 5-yard TD run that capped an 8-play, 55-yard drive with 9:27 left in the game.

Landry played the entire second quarter for Baltimore after starter Bert Jones' right elbow stiffened.

Patton upstages cousin Payton, 49ers triumph

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Joe Montana—three three-touchdown passes Sunday and Ricky Patton upstaged his better-known cousin, Walter Payton, with a dazzling 12-yard scoring run in the closing minutes to give the San Francisco 49ers a 28-17 victory over the Chicago Bears.

Montana connected on a 31-yard TD pass to Patton midway through the opening quarter for a 7-0 lead, then combined with Freddie Solomon on a 46-yard scoring strike early in the second quarter.

The Bears, who lost their opener a week ago, followed with 17 points to take the lead early in the second half, but Montana wound up a two-play drive with a five-yard TD throw to Charles Young for what proved to be the winning score.

The Bears were driving for a go-ahead score late in the third quarter when Payton fumbled after taking a screen pass from Evan, at the Chicago 33 and Dan Bunz pounced on the loose ball. On the first play, Montana hit Solomon with a 22-yard pass to the Chicago 5, and on the next play he flipped the ball to Young for the touchdown.

Early in the final period, the Bears drove to the San Francisco two-yard line where they had a first down.

Fumble recovery insures Giants' 17-7 victory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For a New York Giants fan, George Martin's fumble return for a touchdown Sunday was the play of the game.

For Martin it was a highlight. Martin picked up Joe Theismann's fumble and returned it eight yards for a touchdown to seal the Giants' 17-7 victory over the Washington Redskins.

Joe Daneo's 23-yard field goal had given the Giants a 10-7 lead with 10 minutes to play after a scoreless first half and off-setting third-quarter touchdowns.

"I always enjoy scoring a touchdown, but this one isn't the same after the first one because I've had four, you know," deannounced Martin after the game.

Actually, I thought I was going to drop the thing before I could get it wrapped up. Getting into the end zone was the easy part."

Martin intercepted a Theismann pass in 1977 and ran it back 30 yards for a touchdown in 1977. The following year, he took a lateral after a blocked field goal and went 11 yards for a touchdown against Atlanta. Last year, lining up on the right and Martin caught a 3-yard touchdown pass in a 38-35 upset of the Dallas Cowboys.

Theismann is becoming Martin's favorite victim. In 1978, Martin sacked Theismann four times.

Harrington bids for respect as Philadelphia conquers Patriots

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Perry Harrington is concerned he's the Philadelphia Eagles' answer to Rodney Dangerfield, but maybe now he'll be getting some respect.

Harrington, making his first home start at fullback, ran six yards for a third-quarter touchdown and joined Wilbert Montgomery to pace Philadelphia's 20-yard rushing attack Sunday in the Eagles' 13-3 victory over the New England Patriots.

Harrington, filling in for the injured Leroy Harris, has been criticized often by Coach Dick Vermeil for mistakes, but he says it is not for lack of effort.

"I might not be emotional enough, but I do care," Harrington said after rushing for 60 yards in 14 carries.

"But the coach really comes down on everybody, not just me. I felt good today and the offensive line did a great job."

Tony Franklin's second field goal of the game, a 22-yarder, broke a 3-3 tie on the Eagles' first possession of the third quarter. Harrington's TD then capped a 55-yard drive that began with an interception by linebacker Frank LeMaster.

Montgomery helped the Eagles hold on to their lead with timely running and finished with 137 yards in 18 carries.

"We're trying to spot our running game," Vermeil said. "It's a matter of Perry Harrington gaining confidence in himself to the point where he's a mean SOB. We have confidence in him."

The Patriots scored first on a 22-yard field goal, but Franklin tied it 22 seconds before halftime on a 46-yard field goal that was holli-disputed by the Patriots.

"I didn't see the kick, but all my players said it was wide," New England Coach Ron Erhardt said.

Chargers' old man Joiner leads San Diego past Lions, 28-23

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — To hear the San Diego Chargers tell it, 33-year-old Charlie Joiner, a 13-year pro from Grambling, is still acting like a rookie trying to make the team.

"I think he's surprised some people around the league and I think he'll continue to surprise people," Dan Fouts said of the Chargers' grey beard wide receiver who caught seven passes for 166 yards Sunday and figured in all of San Diego's touchdown drives in their comeback 28-23 victory over the Detroit Lions.

"I know that Charlie's going to get open," Fouts said. "We know each other's abilities real well and nine times out of 10 we're on the same wavelength. That's important for a quarterback and receiver."

Tight end Kellen Winslow, who caught a 7-yard TD pass, said Joiner

"works harder than anybody everyday. You'd think he was still trying to make the team. He and Fouts know each other like the back of their hands. That's a big key."

The Chargers trailed until the final minute of the game, when John Cappon burst up the middle for a two-yard touchdown to give San Diego the victory.

Cincinnati rallies again to defeat Jets, 31-30

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the second straight week, the Cincinnati Bengals turned imminent defeat into an improbable victory.

After falling behind to Seattle by 21 points last week before winning 27-21, the Bengals rallied from a 14-point deficit Sunday to pull out a 31-30 triumph over the New York Jets.

"Our guys believe they can come back. We just don't quit," said Cincinnati Coach Forrest Gregg. "They believe they can stop anybody and believe they can score on anybody."

Ken Anderson hit Archie Griffin on a 3-yard touchdown pass with 3:34 left to give Cincinnati a 24-23 advantage—its first lead of the game — and 31 seconds later, Mike St. Clair picked up a Richard Todd fumble and ran 12 yards for a score to put the game out of reach.

"It was a comedy of errors," said Jets Coach Walt Michaels, whose team was penalized 14 times for 111 yards. "Whenever you have as many penalties as we had, you can't win."

"You may not believe it, but we are teaching them to stay outside," Anderson, whose starting status remains in jeopardy, said the Bengals could have scored earlier.

"We moved the ball well in the first period but just didn't score," said Anderson. "I took some great individual performances from some of the guys. We were down but didn't give up."

With Cincinnati trailing 23-17 with 7:26 left in the game, Anderson drove the Bengals 67 yards on eight plays, capped by his scoring toss to Griffin.

The Jets attempted to come back, but Todd fumbled on the end zone to give Cincinnati a 31-23 lead.

New York closed the margin to one point when Todd, who had three TD passes, hit Jerome Barkum with a 14-yard scoring strike with 1:03 left in the game, but the Jets couldn't avert their second straight loss while the Bengals raised their record to 2-0 with their second consecutive come-from-behind victory.

'Automatic' Lowery beats Buc's with four FGs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Nick Lowery isn't automatic — he just kicks like it.

The second-year pro out of Dartmouth kicked four field goals Sunday to give the Kansas City Chiefs a 19-10 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers for a 2-0 start — their best since 1969, when they went 2-0 en route to their only Super Bowl championship.

Lowery kicked field goals from 20, 20, 42 and 41 yards—and has now converted 7-of-8 field goal attempts this season. Since winning the kicking job from Jan Stenerud last season, Lowery has converted 27-of-34 field goal tries.

"I believe any time we get the ball to the 35, we can come away with at least a field goal," said grateful Kansas City quarterback Bill Kenney. "I see Nick in practice. I hold for him occasionally. He's safe from 50 yards in. It's a tremendous boost for our offense having him on the sidelines."

Lowery kicked a field goal in both the second and third quarters and added two more in the fourth for the first four-field goal game of his career and the first by the Chiefs since Stenerud kicked four in a 1976 game against Washington.

Ted McKinnight put Kansas City in front 7-0 before the game was three minutes old when he raced eight yards around left end following a botched punt attempt by the Buccaneers deep in their own end.

Tampa Bay, 1-1, rallied to take the lead with 10 points in back-to-back possessions at the close of the first quarter and start of the second on a 2-yard run by rookie James Wilder and a 44-yard field goal by Gary Yepremian.

Lowery tied the game with his first 20-yard field goal with 5:30 left in the first half and then put the Chiefs ahead for good with his second 20-yarder at 7:54 of the third period.

The Buc's' loss came despite an outstanding effort by quarterback Doug Williams.

Raiders, the Masters of Monday night football, visit Vikings tonight

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders, who have the best record of any NFL team in Monday night games, including 12 straight victories, face the Minnesota Vikings in an aerial showdown tonight.

Both teams dropped their season openers — The 1981 Super Bowl champion Raiders lost 9-7 to Denver while the Vikings, who have not played a Monday night game since 1979, lost 21-13 to NFC foe Tampa Bay.

"Obviously, we don't want to lose two in a row," Oakland Coach Tom Flores said. "We haven't played the Vikings in a couple of years and they're a new team. They don't have the defensive formation as they did in the past."

allowing the linebackers to "freelance," Viking All-Pro Matt Blair said.

Oakland showed the strengths of a 3-4 alignment last season, highlighted by freeheeling 6-foot-7-linebacker Ted Jennings, who led the team in quarterback sacks.

Raiders' quarterback Jim Plunkett, who underwent surgery on his left shoulder in the off-season, will test the Vikings' young secondary. Minnesota will probably start rookies John Swain at left cornerback and Willie Teal at right. Will Williams, who was added from Detroit, may replace Swain.

"We like to test the young cornerbacks and the old ones, too," Flores said. "We like the threat of a long ball and if we see so we can do it. We have to go after it." Plunkett, who struggled during the preseason, completed 14 of 24 attempts for 125 yards against Denver. The 11-year veteran will face a fellow Stanford alum in Viking quarterback Steve Davis.

Dils, who replaces the injured Tommy Kramer, set a club record in pass attempts with 62 against Tampa Bay. He completed 37 of those throws for 361 yards.

Dils guided Minnesota, which was trailing 14-13, to the Tampa Bay 26 in the fourth quarter but an interception and 85-yard scoring run by Neal Calcutt ended the drive.

"I'm not going to be worried about throwing the next time — in fact, I think I'll be more aggressive," Dils said. Flores said even though the Vikings use Dils at quarterback, the team probably won't alter their strategy.

"I don't think the philosophy will change," he said. "I think they'll still throw the ball."

Minnesota has four of the top 10 receivers in the NFL in Ahmad Rashad (416 receptions), Rice Young (347), recently acquired Tony Galbreath (284) and Sammy White (248).

Galbreath, who was picked up from the New Orleans Saints shortly before Minnesota's season opener, may see action if running back Teddy Brown is not healthy. Brown injured his shoulder last week and has missed practice.

Sam Harrell, who spent his rookie season last year on the injured reserve, may start in place of Brown.

The Raiders have injury problems of their own and will be without the services of three veterans — wide receiver Bob Chandler, linebacker Bob Nelson and noseguard Reggie Kinlaw.

Leonard and Hearn's cool down, but not their managers

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns tapered off training Sunday for their world welterweight title fight Wednesday night, but their managers kept the fires burning.

Leonard ended his formal sparring on Saturday and spent Sunday in a light "shakedown." Hearns went a rugged five rounds on Saturday, rucking Djuan Johnson, the No. 1 ranked junior middleweight, with a series of combinations in the final round and then took Sunday off to rest.

But while the fighters began to lighten their workouts, their handlers engaged in some heavy verbal warfare. Manager Angelo Dundee and trainer Emanuel Steward represented Leonard, the World Boxing Council champion, and manager-trainer Emanuel Steward and advisor Prentice Byrd represented Hearns, the World Boxing Association champion, at a formal debate Sunday morning.

Dundee called Hearns "a great fighter," but maintained that Leonard would win because of his experience and adaptability. Steward claimed that Leonard has lost some of his desire to fight and that he is no longer "a hungry fighter."

"Janks and I have the best fighter," said Dundee. "People still haven't seen how good Sugar Ray Leonard can be. When the bell rings on Sept. 16, people will see what a great fighter he is. What he is going to do to Thomas Hearns will be a shame. Whatever Thomas Hearns does, Ray will have the answer."

"At no time have we said that Thomas Hearns is a bad fighter. He's a terrific fighter, a banger, a great fighter. But he's never fought a Sugar Ray Leonard. Sugar Ray Leonard is the type of guy who can beat Thomas Hearns. We have tremendous respect for Thomas Hearns and his camp and when Ray knocks him out in the ninth or 10th round, I'll be the first to go over and shake his hands."

Steward said he felt his fighter could frustrate Leonard. "I expect a great fight — Thomas could knock him out in five rounds or it could go 15 tough rounds," Steward said. "Thomas is in great shape. Considering the amount of hard training he's put in, there's no way he's going to rest for a couple of days so that he'll be as strong as a bull come Wednesday night.

"As far as we're concerned, the big advantage is that Leonard is going to have to change his style for us. He's fighting a tall man, which is always bothered Ray. He has a paranoia about fighting a taller man. Thomas will have Ray resorting to things he hasn't done. He's going to have to fight in a crouch and a man can't fight for so many years and then just change his style for one night."

Some time in those 45 minutes, he's going to make a mistake and he's going to get nailed and that's going to be it."

"I think Ray will be more emotional and unstable than Thomas. I think Ray will be uptight. He's got a lot to lose. He has all that marketing ability outside of boxing. That's all on the line. Thomas is not trying to prove anything. He's just glad for the opportunity."

"I think this is the type of fight where guys can exceed their physical limitations. It has all the ingredients for another Al-Frazier type fight. These fighters know 300 million people will be watching and they want to be at their best."

"We have all the answers to Thomas Hearns," Dundee retorted. "If he comes in jabbing, we have the answer. If he comes out bombing, we've got the answer. I think he should accept the idea that my kid is going to do a job on him. Ray has prepared himself mentally and physically. Every facet of Thomas Hearns has been visualized. We're ready for anything he can do."

The debate, which lasted for almost an hour, had a generally light tone, although Dundee did become a bit upset just before the end when Steward said Leonard's camp had no respect for Hearns and that some of them treated him like "a mental retard."

"I'm surprised to hear Emanuel say that," said Dundee. "I think Thomas Hearns is a great, great fighter and I have never made a derogatory remark against him. Mental retard, that's awful. I could never think anything like that. He's a great fighter who he's meeting an even greater fighter. Janks and I have Ray ready for the fight of his life and I think you'll see him fight the fight of his life. It ain't the bread for this kid. He wants to win. He's a total professional."

Springboks ruggers arouse protests

HONOLULU (UPI) — South Africa's national rugby team arrived quietly in Hawaii Sunday after demonstrators opposed to their nation's policy of racial segregation gave them a noisy and violent sendoff in New Zealand.

The team, known as the Springboks, arrived virtually unannounced in Honolulu because of fears of demonstrations similar to those in New Zealand, where the players were the object of the most violent and disturbing disturbances in the nation's history both on the playing field and at the airport.

Springbok team manager Johnnie Clasen told UPI on the stopover en route to Los Angeles. "We've come here to the United States to play rugby. I'm not a politician and as far as the political stuff is concerned, it's no concern to me."

"We are here as sportsmen... to play a few games of rugby," said Clasen. "That's our only purpose."

The 36-member team has exhibition games scheduled in Chicago and Albany, N.Y., where further protests were anticipated.

The worst violence of the Springboks' tour erupted Saturday during the final match against New Zealand. In Auckland, protesters fought police, slashed television lines and dropped four bombs on the players from a single-engine aircraft that buzzed the stadium.

Police arrested 148 protesters opposed to South Africa's apartheid segregation policies and 43 people were injured.

At Auckland airport, New Zealand police said some 250 protesters chanting slogans and waving banners burst into the departure lounge as the jetliner carrying the South Africans prepared to leave.

Police ejected the protesters from the building as the plane took off.

Three protesters were arrested. Scores of nations have threatened to boycott the 1984 Olympic games in Los Angeles if the Springboks are allowed to play in the United States.

Mayor Tom Bradley called Chicago Mayor Tom Byrne and Albany mayor Erastus Corning Saturday urging them to ban the matches.

The Soviet Union, where the 1980 Olympics were the target of a U.S.-led boycott, has threatened to apply for the games to be withdrawn from the United States if the Springboks are allowed to play.

Officials in New York City and Rochester, N.Y., have cancelled planned exhibition games by the South African team, citing security considerations.

The anti-rugby movement, which forced the cancellation of two of the Springboks' 16 matches, now plans to campaign for the closure of the South African consulate in New Zealand and the expulsion of the consul-general. The opposition Labor Party says it will take these steps if it wins national elections in November.

Prime Minister Robert Muldoon said he holds the protest groups responsible for the violence which he called "the worst feature of the tour," in which a total of about 1,000 people were arrested.

The coalition of opponents of the Springboks tour claimed victory for opponents of apartheid.

"We are the only people to have won out of this campaign," said spokesman Alex Shaw. "We've won because we've developed an anti-apartheid movement which is unified and strong."

The Society for the Protection of Individual Rights, a pro-rugby group, termed the South African tour a success and urged more sporting contacts with South Africa.

O'Leary Junior High plans picnic
TWIN FALLS — A picnic will be held at Ross Park in Pocatello for students and members and parents of the trip with O'Leary Junior High's ninth-grade football team for Saturday's game against Pocatello's Hawthorne Junior High.

A charge of $1.50 must be paid at the park the day of the picnic, which is hosted by the O'Leary P.T.A.

Those planning to attend must call the school at 733-2155 by noon Wednesday. Bus transportation will be provided for students submitting signed permission slips for the trip to the school office by Wednesday noon. The buses will leave the school parking lot at 11:15 a.m. Saturday and return at approximately 8 p.m.

Volleyball meeting Tuesday at YFCA
TWIN FALLS — A meeting will be held Tuesday at the YFCA building at 7:30 p.m. to organize women's and co-ed city volleyball leagues.

Magic Valley trio take racing honors
BOISE — Three Magic Valley riders picked up honors in the Idaho State Triathlon Championships at Peaceful Cove race track Saturday night.

Tommy Arellano, Jerome, was second in the 250 amateur class, winning the first heat and placing second in the main event.

Marty Miller, Twin Falls, was third in the 250 pro main event and Bill Rudolph, Twin Falls, was third in the amateur open class.

TOKYO (UPI) — American Bill Rogers fired a 3-under-par 69 in the final round Sunday to win the $172,313 Sunray Open Golf Tournament in suburban Tokyo.

Rogers, winner of this year's British Open and World Series and defending champion of this tournament, earned first prize money of $4,482.

Rogers, 29, held on to the lead after the second round and wound up the four-day competition with a total of 18 under-par 270.

Two strokes behind him in second place was Japanese pro Norio Sato, who had a four-day total of 272.

Veteran Australian Graeme McDowell tied for third place with Japan's Toru Nakamura. Both had a total of 274.

Ethiopian wins marathon in Montreal
MONTREAL (UPI) — Kebede Balcha of Ethiopia Sunday won the third annual Montreal International Marathon, running the 26-mile, 385-yard course in 2 hours, 11 minutes and 10 seconds, setting both a new track and African record.

Balcha, who won the event in 1979 with a time of 2:11:35, beat the track record set last year by Britain's David Cannon by a mere 11 seconds.

A field of 77 elite runners included 21 in wheelchairs vying for the Podium Trophy, a new award introduced this year. John Lunde of Winnipeg, Manitoba, captured that crown with a time of 2:07:12. Also entered in the race were 10,338 other runners not classified as elite.

Linda Staudt, Windsor, Ont., was the top finisher of the five women entered in the elite category. Staudt covered the distance in 2:34:33.

Rono breaks world 5,000-meter mark
OSLO (UPI) — Kenyan long-distance running star Henry Rono clocked 13 minutes, 6.2 seconds Sunday to shatter more than two decades off the world 5,000 meters record of 13:08.4 which he set in Berkeley, California in 1958.

Rono pulled out of the African team for the 5,000 meters in the World Cup at Rome two weeks ago, saying he preferred to run in the 10,000 meters. The Kenyan also holds world records for 3,000 meters (7:32.1), 10,000 (27:22.5) and 3,000 meters steeplechase (18:05.4), all set three years ago.

Rono's latest mark came at an international track and field meet in Knarvik, Norway, where Britain's Paula Fudge set a world record of 15:14.31 for the women's 5,000 meters, besting the previous record of 15:24.7 held by Jelena Sipatova of the Soviet Union.

Pair of college football streaks end
Two of the nation's longest college football streaks — one for winning and one for losing — came to end on the same day in the same state.

Tarkio College, which had lost 28 games in a row — the longest string of futility in the country — defeated Culver-Stockton (Mo.) 20-2 Saturday in Tarkio, Mo., for the 9th's first win since 1978.

Across the state, Missouri Valley upset Missouri-Rolla 31-10 to end the Miners' 14-game winning streak, tied with defending national champion Georgia as the longest winning streak in the country.

Steady Renner wins Pleasant Valley tourney

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Steady Jack Renner shot a 2-under-par 69, capping a remarkable stretch of 32 consecutive holes of even-par golf or better, and posted a comfortable two-shot victory Sunday in the $300,000 Pleasant Valley Classic.

The 25-year-old Renner, who made his final bogey in the tournament on the second hole Friday, birdied the third and fifth holes and then parred in the rest of the way to pick up the $50,000 first prize.

It was Renner's 11th consecutive hole-in-one, and he pushed his 1981 earnings to $177,675. He had four consecutive rounds of sub-par golf, posting 66s the first three days and finishing with a 72-hole total of 274:11 under-par.

Scott Simpson, the 1980 Western Open champion and former two-time NCAA champion, finished in second place with the final round 68 and a 270:375.

Tom Kite finished in third place at tender 276 and Gary Trivisono finished fourth at 278:716, finishing in the top eight for the 15th time in his last 16 starts, took over the money lead by pocketing $20,400 for a 1981 total of $355,724.

Trivisono had finished in the money in only four of 27 tournaments this year, and his check of $14,400 guaranteed him of keeping his players card for next year.

Tommy Valentine, who started the day tied with Renner at 9-under, struggled to a final round 74 and was one of four players to finish at or under 278. Also in that group were Mark Lye, Gibby Gilbert and Don Pooley.

Renner, the 1979 Westchester Classic winner, took over the lead for good on the first hole when Valentine made a bogey four. Renner then upped the lead to two strokes with a birdie on three, and three shots with a birdie on five. He maintained at least a three-shot lead until the final hole, which Simpson birdied.

Simpson, who started the day three shots off the pace, also had two birdies on the front nine but fell to four shots off the pace with a bogey on 11. But he rebounded with birdies on 11 and 12 to pocket the second place check of $32,400.

Kite, who had finished second the last two weeks, started the day two shots behind Renner and Valentine. He fell two shots on the front nine with a double bogey on the second hole, but climbed back into the race with birdies on the fourth, fifth and sixth holes. He bogeyed the seventh, birdied the 12th, bogeyed the 16th and birdied the 17th for a one-under 70.

Trivisono, an All-American at Alabama who joined the tour last fall, bogeyed the first two holes, fell five shots off the pace and rebounded with birdies on the third, fifth and sixth holes.

He had two birdies and two bogeys on the back nine for his best finish in his career. Prior to the tournament, he had earned just $1,258 with his best finish — 3rd place at Westchester.

"Not making any bogeys the last two days, that's really the most significant thing I can point to."

He noted that with the wind conditions, it would be difficult for anyone to catch him. But he never put himself in such a position, hitting the last six greens in regulation for routine pars.

Kite pointed to his double bogey on the second hole as the turning point in the final round.

"The closest I came to making bogeys in the last two days was on the 12th hole today, when I had to make an 8-foot putt. And if I could point to any one thing on that final round, that was it," he said, adding he felt comfortable with his three-shot lead throughout the back nine.

The race started on Jacques Cartier Bridge and covered many streets in the city's core. The finish line was located on St.-Helene's Island in front of the Mexico pavilion at the site of Expo '67.

Rono breaks world 5,000-meter mark
OSLO (UPI) — Kenyan long-distance running star Henry Rono clocked 13 minutes, 6.2 seconds Sunday to shatter more than two decades off the world 5,000 meters record of 13:08.4 which he set in Berkeley, California in 1958.

Rono pulled out of the African team for the 5,000 meters in the World Cup at Rome two weeks ago, saying he preferred to run in the 10,000 meters. The Kenyan also holds world records for 3,000 meters (7:32.1), 10,000 (27:22.5) and 3,000 meters steeplechase (18:05.4), all set three years ago.

Rono's latest mark came at an international track and field meet in Knarvik, Norway, where Britain's Paula Fudge set a world record of 15:14.31 for the women's 5,000 meters, besting the previous record of 15:24.7 held by Jelena Sipatova of the Soviet Union.

Pair of college football streaks end
Two of the nation's longest college football streaks — one for winning and one for losing — came to end on the same day in the same state.

Tarkio College, which had lost 28 games in a row — the longest string of futility in the country — defeated Culver-Stockton (Mo.) 20-2 Saturday in Tarkio, Mo., for the 9th's first win since 1978.

Across the state, Missouri Valley upset Missouri-Rolla 31-10 to end the Miners' 14-game winning streak, tied with defending national champion Georgia as the longest winning streak in the country.

Stephenson goes on birdie binge, triumphs

SUFFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Jan Stephenson won her third victory of the year Sunday by running in five birdies to take the $125,000 Suffolk LPGA Classic by three strokes over Sally Little and Janet Alex.

Stephenson sent the 54 holes at the Sleepy Hollow Golf Course 14 under-par 66-71-68 — 205 for only her eighth victory in a 7-year career. The triumph was worth $18,750 to the 29-year-old Australian.

Little set a course record with her 6 under 65, good enough for a tie with Alex at 11 under 208.

Little sank six birdies on the front nine after bogeying the first hole and added three more birdies on the back side. Alex turned in consistent rounds of 70-70-68 — 208 to finish in the top 10 for the third consecutive week.

Both Daniel and 1979 tournament winner Amy Alcott tied for third with 9 under-210s. Alcott pre-qualified Stephenson until the par-5 15th hole when her drive hooked out of bounds, forcing her to take a one-stroke penalty. She scored a double-bogey-7 that took her out of the chase.

When Alcott made a birdie, Stephenson tied her for the year.

Overall, both players birdied four of the 14 same holes Sunday.

Stephenson knocked in an eight-footer on the par-4, third hole and another eight-footer for a birdie 3 at No. 8. Her other birdies came on the par-4 11th, par-4 16th and the par-5 18th, where she rolled in a 14-footer after conservatively laying up.

Alcott birdied the second, third, fifth and eighth holes, but also missed close birdie putts on seven and nine that would have put more pressure on Stephenson.

The biggest hole for Stephenson, however, may have been the par-4 ninth, where her drive caught the fairway bunker and her approach, landed in the left trap. But she blasted out to within eight feet of the cup and then saved par.

Little, who also chipped in to catch Stephenson entering the 18th hole, but needed an eight-4 on the 45-yard finishing hole. But as she walked down the fairway, Stephenson birdied the par-3 16th from 15 feet away to widen the gap and ensure the victory.

Little then promptly placed her approach in the right trap and could only register a birdie.

Stephenson, raising her 1981 earnings to $109,400, credited her victory to the pressure Alcott placed on her.

"Amy putting so much pressure on me really made me win," said Stephenson. "If she hadn't I may have relaxed and not noticed the other girls (Little and Alex) making the charge."

Stephenson said she was thinking only negative thoughts entering the final hole, and her drive caught the fairway bunker. "She was forced to blast out and lay up, which she said she 'hates' to do.

"But that was probably the best thing that happened. If I had hit it down the middle, I probably would have gone for it," she said.

Brewers' boss disdains unemployment rumors

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Milwaukee Brewers manager Buck Rodgers is not taking too kindly to reports his job may be in jeopardy and to a newspaper story that claims his players are dissatisfied with him.

After the Brewers lost to the Baltimore Orioles Friday night 2-1, General Manager Harry Dalton had a closed-door meeting with Rodgers, who took over the club after George Bamberger retired last September.

The meeting was reported in stories during the weekend and the Milwaukee Journal Sunday ran a story in which several players, who asked not to be identified, said Rodgers is not getting along with players.

He was also accused by some players of managing poorly and failing to communicate with players.

Rodgers laughed off the meeting with Dalton Saturday night after a 6-3 victory over Baltimore and said the conference was just a talk about the club.

"If he's going to rehire me or fire me, he's going to call me in the afternoon," Rodgers said. "He's not going to do it after a ballgame. He talked about the ballclub."

"I know there's going to be a lot of anonymous talk by gutless writers and players," Rodgers said. "If Rodgers, whose club is still in the race for the East Division title and a spot in the playoffs, said the talk may be premature.

"We're in the heat of a pennant race and a lot of people are getting very excited," he said. "And they're trying to scoop where there's no scoop."

Rodgers also said "I like the job I want the job and I'll work as hard and as long as I can."

The Brewers have a talent-laden club but many of the players have not formed up to expectations, especially several of the key hitters.

Italian racer wins third Can-Am competition

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (UPI) — Italian Testa captured his third Can-Am race of the season in a Paul Newman March 817 Sunday at Mosport, just three days after he was released from hospital following an emergency appendectomy.

The operation didn't affect me at all," said Testa, who was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital for the operation Monday. "I did get some rest on Saturday."

Fabi emerged from his hospital bed Thursday to qualify Friday for the pole position.

Fabi's teammate, Bobby Rahal of Glen Ellyn, Ill., finished second after the Newman team led the 60-lap race from start to finish.

Fabi covered the 147.5 mile distance in 1 hour, 15 minutes and 27.667 seconds and broke a course record he set during the inaugural Can-Am race at Mosport in June with a time of 1:12:27.7 on the 27th lap. Fabi also won the June event.

Rahal finished just 346 seconds behind Fabi, who slowed down in the final turn to let his teammate pull abreast of him.

Australian Geoff Brabham, who leads the Can-Am points race with 404, finished third. Brabham, 29, never really threatened the two race-continuing Newman machines and crossed the line more than 33 seconds behind Fabi.

"Maybe I'll win the championship, but it will be hard work," said Fabi, 26. "But it looks a lot better now."

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF PROPOSED EMERGENCY RULE-MAKING

In compliance with Sections 67-5203(b) and 67-5204(b) (2), Idaho Code, notice is hereby given that the Department of Health and Welfare, State of Idaho, hereby undertakes emergency procedures for rule-making. The action under Docket Number 0201-81-02, involves the adoption, amendment, repeal and renumbering of rules governing Eligibility for Financial and Medical Assistance, Title 1, Chapter 3, Rules and Regulations of the Department of Health and Welfare. The action has been taken under the authority of Idaho Code, as amended by Public Law 97-35 effective October 1, 1981.

Emergency rule-making is necessary because October 1, 1981 implementation is required by federal law. Failure to implement on October 1, 1981 would result in a loss of federal funding necessary to pay AFDIC benefits to approximately 6,000 low-income families with children in Idaho. Benefits would be lost for many of those currently eligible and for many who are potentially eligible.

The rules to be adopted by emergency procedure are to become effective on the first day of October, 1981, and to expire at the end of one hundred twenty (120) days on January, 1982.

The following is a descriptive summary of the substance of the proposed emergency action and of the principal issues involved:

Proposed for adoption, amendment, repeal and/or rescinding, the rules governing the provisions of the AFDC program relating to: Income disregards; Earnings of children; Resource exclusions; Income limit for AFDC eligibility; Treatment of retroactive statutory income; Treatment of stepchildren; Eligibility and entitlement of participants in strikes; Age limit for dependent children; Limitation on AFDC to pregnant women; Criteria for exemptions from requirements; Notice requirements; Prohibition of aid less than $10.00; Adjustments for incorrect payments; Treatment of widows; and Supplemental payments.

Any person can review the proposed emergency rules in the DHW Administrative Procedure Section, or in any of the Regional Administrative Offices of the Department located in Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Caldwell, Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls; or in the Offices of the Attorney General, Health and Welfare Division, located in Coeur d'Alene, Boise, Twin Falls and Idaho Falls. Copies of the proposed emergency rules will be made available upon request.

Any person who wishes to submit written comment regarding the proposed emergency rules, and any individual or industry who may be affected by the proposed emergency rules, is encouraged to submit information concerning the proposed rules to the DHW Administrative Procedure Section, or in any of the Regional Administrative Offices of the Department located in Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Caldwell, Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls; or in the Offices of the Attorney General, Health and Welfare Division, located in Coeur d'Alene, Boise, Twin Falls and Idaho Falls. The public hearing(s) will be held on the following dates:

DATE: September 18, 1981, 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. at the DHW Administrative Procedure Section, or in any of the Regional Administrative Offices of the Department located in Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Caldwell, Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls.

DATE: September 22, 1981, 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. at the DHW Administrative Procedure Section, or in any of the Regional Administrative Offices of the Department located in Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Caldwell, Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls.

DATE: September 23, 1981, 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. at the DHW Administrative Procedure Section, or in any of the Regional Administrative Offices of the Department located in Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Caldwell, Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls.

DATE: September 24, 1981, 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. at the DHW Administrative Procedure Section, or in any of the Regional Administrative Offices of the Department located in Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Caldwell, Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls.

DATE: September 25, 1981, 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. at the DHW Administrative Procedure Section, or in any of the Regional Administrative Offices of the Department located in Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Caldwell, Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls.

Failure to implement on October 1, 1981 would result in a loss of federal funding necessary to pay AFDIC benefits to approximately 6,000 low-income families with children in Idaho. Benefits would be lost for many of those currently eligible and for many who are potentially eligible.

The rules to be adopted by emergency procedure are to become effective on the first day of October, 1981, and to expire at the end of one hundred twenty (120) days on January, 1982.

The following is a descriptive summary of the substance of the proposed emergency action and of the principal issues involved:

Proposed for adoption, amendment, repeal and/or rescinding, the rules governing the provisions of the AFDC program relating to: Income disregards; Earnings of children; Resource exclusions; Income limit for AFDC eligibility; Treatment of retroactive statutory income; Treatment of stepchildren; Eligibility and entitlement of participants in strikes; Age limit for dependent children; Limitation on AFDC to pregnant women; Criteria for exemptions from requirements; Notice requirements; Prohibition of aid less than $10.00; Adjustments for incorrect payments; Treatment of widows; and Supplemental payments.

Any person can review the proposed emergency rules in the DHW Administrative Procedure Section, or in any of the Regional Administrative Offices of the Department located in Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Caldwell, Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls; or in the Offices of the Attorney General, Health and Welfare Division, located in Coeur d'Alene, Boise, Twin Falls and Idaho Falls. Copies of the proposed emergency rules will be made available upon request.

Any person who wishes to submit written comment regarding the proposed emergency rules, and any individual or industry who may be affected by the proposed emergency rules, is encouraged to submit information concerning the proposed rules to the DHW Administrative Procedure Section, or in any of the Regional Administrative Offices of the Department located in Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Caldwell, Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls; or in the Offices of the Attorney General, Health and Welfare Division, located in Coeur d'Alene, Boise, Twin Falls and Idaho Falls.
