

Board seeks 36% prison budget hike

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Corrections Board recommended Monday a 36 percent boost in funding for the state's prison operations in fiscal year 1983.

The proposed state Corrections Department budget was approved in a conference call and forwarded to the governor's budget staff for review and inclusion in the executive budget that will go to the Legislature in January.

The recommendation to boost the budget by more than one-third to $13 million was $600,000 less than the department staff asked the board to authorize, said Bona Miller, administrator of support services for the department.

She said the board justified asking for such a large increase during a period of budget-cutting in Idaho because board members and department officials felt they would be "really deplete" if they did not ask for full funding for prison programs.

Ken McClure, a deputy state attorney general, said Monday that a vote by the board on a budget via conference call apparently violated the Idaho Open Meeting Law.

"It wouldn't appear that voting on a budget is something exempt" from the provisions of the law, McClure said. "A conference call apparently isn't good enough" to meet the requirement of voting in public, he said.

Mrs. Miller said the board voted on just the budget item in the conference call. She said the phone-voting method was cheaper than paying the expenses of board members to drive from Coeur d'Alene and Idaho Falls for one vote.

The board asked for an approximate 70 percent boost in funding last year, but the fiscal year 1982 $9.7 million budget appropriated by the 1981 Legislature was about a 13 percent hike from the previous year.

The Corrections Department, still recovering last winter from the July, 1980, Idaho State Penitentiary riot, was one of few state agencies to receive "double-digit" budget hikes from the last Legislature.

Mrs. Miller said the recommended fiscal 1983 budget would allow the department to hire 57 additional employees, expand various prison programs and set up another prison work-release center. The department has said a center in Boise, Mrs. Miller said Coeur d'Alene, Caldwell and Pocatello were under consideration for siting the second center, if its establishment is approved by the Legislature.

Most of the additional $3.3 million requested by the board would come from the state's general fund, since federal funds have dropped drastically, Mrs. Miller said.

She also said much of the additional money would be used to upgrade security and medical services at the Idaho Security Medical Facility, located next to the state prison compound south of Boise.

The large requested addition to that program was not related to criticism prison officials received due to the death of an inmate in the medical facility, Mrs. Miller said.

U.S. implies Soviets made deadly 'rain'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Monday strongly implicated the Soviet Union in the manufacture of "yellow rain" for waging biological warfare in Southeast Asia.

However, it stopped short of accusing Moscow outright of carrying out such attacks.

Undersecretary of State Walter Stoessel, amplifying remarks made in Berlin Sunday by Secretary of State Alexander Haig, said the United States will wage a worldwide public campaign through the United Nations and other agencies directed against halting biological warfare — outlawed by treaty.

Chemical analysis has uncovered "good evidence" three potent bacteriological poisons called trichothecene mycotoxins have been used in Cambodia, Stoessel told reporters at the State Department.

There have been reports similar agents have been used in Laos and Afghanistan, but the State Department did not provide any proof.

The timing of the U.S. disclosure that it has proof blower has been waged in Cambodia appeared to be part of the Reagan administration's campaign with the U.S. public and the NATO allies to muster a strong defense against what it has termed an increasing Soviet threat.

At the United Nations, U.S. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick personally urged Secretary General Kurt Waldheim to investigate reports of the use of lethal chemical weapons in Laos, Cambodia and Afghanistan.

And in Bangkok, Thailand, Western diplomats said it took four years painstaking research to compile evidence to document the U.S. charges.

"For years we watched people fleeing Vietnamese-dominated areas and 'yellow rain,'" said one diplomat. "But the Americans had to keep quiet because they didn't have the goods. . . Now they've apparently got it."

Stoessel did not say whether Vietnamese or Soviet forces used the biowar agents in Cambodia — identified by local tribesmen in interviews with U.S. personnel as "yellow rain."

"The test results we have recently obtained, together with the information provided by the physicians who have visited Southeast Asia, represents strong and compelling, but nonetheless preliminary, evidence that the lethal agents used are mycotoxins," Stoessel said.

One of four U.S. officials brought before reporters — and whom the State Department refused to identify despite objections — said the biowar agents "are being used by Vietnam and Laos, with Soviet support, against civilian villages in Laos . . . and against (anti-government) forces in Cambodia."

A State Department background paper said the mycotoxins, which are produced as a yellow powder, can be produced in mass quantities, but that Southeast Asia does not have the facilities needed to manufacture them in abundance.

Biologist claims sun influences quakes, crime sprees

Solar storms may bring flare-up of calamities on Earth

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) — A biologist and systems analyst says storms on the sun may trigger calamities ranging from earthquakes and crime waves to human illnesses.

Moreover, she believes the next 18 months is a critical period.

Marsha Adams, of the research firm SRH International, says solar flare activity could unleash quakes worldwide, including one along California's San Andreas fault and possibly affect brain waves, causing periodic illnesses and even crime sprees.

Although scientists are skeptical of her theory, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. was sufficiently intrigued to ask Ms. Adams for a briefing. She also was invited to describe her earthquake prediction work on Oct. 9 before the state's Assembly Committee on Governmental Operations.

The researcher said she used computer techniques to correlate solar activity compiled by the government to records of earthquakes and other events, ranging from airline accidents to human illnesses and crime statistics.

"The results are unbelievable," Ms. Adams said. "I was extremely curious (while gathering the data) and kind of excited, but I also felt a sort of disbelief."

William Whitson, head of a state earthquake preparedness task force appointed by Brown, said he was impressed with the theory and said its conclusions bolstered the need to prepare for an earthquake disaster which scientists say is inevitable.

Ms. Adams, 37, said solar flares — released by violent storms on the sun — will be unusually active over the next 18 months and could trigger quakes along faults which are already near the breaking point by pelling them with the flareups.

These same ultra low frequency signals, she said, could create a "resonance" with the eight cycles per second brain wave activity of humans.

She said the result could include mental depression and flu-like symptoms among many people who are "solar sensitive," and thus possible predictors of increased earthquake risk.

A list of things which she said appear related to solar activity include fatigue, unusual weather, electrical malfunctions, building collapses, riots and political instability.

The last solar flare she considered significant occurred last Wednesday, the day of the New York power blackout in lower Manhattan.

"I was really excited," she said of the outage which was subsequently traced to a faulty transformer switch.

Ms. Adams said she has been working on the theory for seven years and that mathematical tests of her data indicate the chances she simply found a statistical fluke were less than one on 1,000.

Attendance at county fair tops 100,000, officials say

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

FILER — County fair officials termed the 1981 fair a fantastic success Monday, with attendance well above 1980 levels.

More than 100,000 people attended the week-long event, which concluded Saturday night.

Of that number, 79,884 were counted from gate receipts. Fair officials also estimated that more than 20,000 attended the fair during Tuesday's session when no gate fee was charged.

The 1981 gate attendance figure showed an increase of 2,289 over the 1980 figure, but it still was below the fair's 1979 attendance of 80,265. Attendance was above 1980 levels during the Wednesday, Friday and Saturday sessions, making up for a drop in Thursday's attendance.

With the closing of the 1981 fair, officials are busy refurbishing the fairgrounds, a project expected to take as long as two weeks, and preparing for the 1982 fair, said Tom Shouse, the fair secretary-manager.

A reduced grounds crew, consisting of three workers, will groom the grounds and also winterize fairground plumbing systems.

"We're starting into winter. We have to winterize the restrooms," Shouse said. "It's September and it can be nasty. It can happen. It's that time of the year."

Fair officials must also finalize their financial records before the 1980-1981 budget year concludes Sept. 30.

Although no results are in yet, Shouse believes the ledgers will reflect the success of the fair.

"We're going to be in good shape. We'd like to say 'thank you' to all the people who helped us."

Among the items that fair planners must consider for next year is how to increase revenues. County officials plan to cut the fair's subsidy by $14,000.

Although officials are reluctant to increase gate fees, Shouse said they are considering an entrance fee for the traditionally free "Family Day" on Tuesdays.

If the fee is imposed, Shouse said he would prefer a discount for families. "I still like the idea of a free gate for the large families."

A decision on that proposal could be made within the next 60 days, Shouse said.

The fact that officials are already at work on next year's fair reflects the amount of planning that goes into the week-long event.

"We've started already," Shouse said. "We've had some suggested changes for the premium book. It's a 12-month job."

MX base decision due inside 2 weeks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan told two Western Republican senators Monday he will decide within two weeks where and how to base the MX intercontinental missile.

Reagan invited Sens. Paul Laxalt of Nevada and Jake Garn of Utah to the Oval Office for a discussion of the multibillion-dollar strategic weapons system that is designed to thwart any attempt by the Soviet Union to wipe out the U.S. nuclear arsenal in one massive blow.

"We expect a determination to be made with respect to the basing mode within a couple of weeks or so," Laxalt told reporters after the meeting.

He and Garn oppose the idea of building 1,600 missile silos for 200 missiles. The idea is to confuse an enemy into striking at an empty shelter.

That proposal was scaled down to

1,000 shelters for 100 missiles, but Laxalt and Garn say both proposals proposal make "absolutely no strategic sense . . . because the Soviets very quickly will have the capability to overwhelm that entire system."

The two senators met with Reagan, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Presidential Counselor Edwin Meese.

Laxalt said the issue will be settled in the "next couple of weeks or so" and that the MX basing mode is one of several strategic initiatives the president is going to come down with.

"We're going to receive here the most comprehensive strategic package in the history of the republic within the next several days," he said.

Garn and Laxalt favor basing the MX in existing Minuteman missile silos and protecting them with a new anti-ballistic missile system.

Tuesday briefing

Hurricane's winds hit 130 mph

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Harvey, the mightiest Atlantic storm since 1980's Hurricane Allen, built its winds up to 130 miles an hour Monday night but it was expected to turn away from Bermuda.

Hasidic Jews want Begin out

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thousands of Hasidic Jews crowded Midtown Manhattan Monday as their leaders demanded that Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin resign from office.

A phalanx of about 200 police officers, including mounted police in riot helmets, stood between the crowd of protesters and the Sheraton Centre Hotel, where Begin spoke to American Jewish leaders.

Immunity promise under attack

ANDREWS AIR FORCE BASE, Md. (UPI) — Air Force prosecutors contended Monday that the question of passing military secrets to the Soviets came about through a "series of misunderstandings."

The prosecutors said 2nd Lt. Christopher Cooke was never promised immunity with necessary authorization from higher-ups.

On the fifth day of the preliminary hearing to Cooke's general court martial, the judge ruled that Cooke must remain in custody pending a decision on whether to go ahead with his trial.

Senate expulsion vote sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate leaders Monday called for a vote in early November on whether to expel Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., on corruption charges regardless of how a federal court rules on his recent Abscam conviction.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker decided to go ahead despite the Senate Ethics Committee's recommendation that the Senate wait until U.S. District Judge George Pratt rules on Williams' efforts to set aside his conviction.

Shuttle fueling test in progress

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Preparations for loading the space shuttle's supercold liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen fuels began Monday for the final major test before the reusable rocket's scheduled Oct. 9 launch.

Technicians were called to stations at 11 a.m. Monday to set computers and get ready for the 36-hour test which culminated with the tanking at midnight MST and a mock blast-off six hours later.

Thatcher fires trio of ministers

LONDON (UPI) — In a major shakeup of her Conservative government, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher fired three Cabinet ministers Monday along with three other leading moderates opposed to her hardline economic policies.

In addition, the Conservative Party chairman resigned, although political observers said he too may have been fired in a purge of moderates, known in the party as "wets."

The three Cabinet members dismissed were Deputy Foreign Secretary Sir Ian Gilmour, Education Secretary Mark Carlisle and Lord Soames, government leader in the House of Lords.

In addition, Mrs Thatcher fired Scottish Under Secretary Russell Fairgrieve, Deputy Defense Minister Philip Goodhart and Sports Minister Hector Munro.

Policeman talks to man on Liberty's crown

Office-seeker climbs statue

NEW YORK (UPI) — A man climbed to the top of the crown of the Statue of Liberty 300 feet above New York harbor Monday and dropped leaflets calling to people to vote for him for mayor, authorities said.

A spokesman for the National Parks Service said Arthur Allen, no age or address given, climbed into the crown of the 36-story statue about 10:30 a.m.

Telling some tourists there that he was a maintenance man, he removed a window from the crown leading onto one of the crown's spokes.

Allen then climbed onto the spoke, which is about 6 feet long and 3 feet wide, and threw leaflets protesting the construction of the New York Convention Center in Manhattan and urging voters to write his name in for mayor in the upcoming primary.

"It's a publicity stunt, pure and simple," the spokesman said.

Parks Service employees closed off the statue but kept Liberty Island open to tourists.

At 12:35 p.m., police convinced Allen to come back into the statue and he was arrested.

Mild quakes shake California

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (UPI) — Four mild earthquakes in three days have rattled residents, with two of the tremors shaking the area on Monday.

Seismologists at Caltech said a quake measuring 2.4 on the Richter scale shook the city before dawn, while a 2.6 quake hit in the afternoon.

No damage or injuries were reported in any of the tremors, all centered four miles north of downtown San Bernardino and about two miles from the San Andreas Fault.

Haig pledges consultations on neutron arms for Europe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig returned to Washington from West Germany Monday night after promising to consult the European allies before shipping neutron weapons to Europe.

Haig, who sought to calm mounting anti-American feelings in West Germany with his pledge, flew from Bonn, West Germany, to Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington aboard an Air Force jet.

"There will be complete and total consultation with all nations involved, and that includes West Germany," he told a news conference before flying back to Washington after a four-day visit to Europe.

CSI class open

TWIN FALLS — Students may still register for a class in welded sculpture at the College of Southern Idaho.

The class will be held from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays, beginning tonight. For more information, call 733-9554. Students may register at the first session.

Later, however, Haig told reporters traveling with him that consultations would only be held with countries where the neutron weapons would be based, and that Washington did not feel obliged to consult with NATO.

Before the plane made a refueling stop in Shannon, Ireland, he said the European trip and his talks with West German leaders convinced him "we have to be more aggressive in laying out the reasons for what we are doing."

Unlike Sunday when his visit to West Berlin triggered violent anti-American rioting in which 105 people were arrested and 151 police injured, Monday's appearance in the West German capital after a meeting with Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher went off peacefully.

About 200 people took part in a rally organized by 25 groups, including the Citizens Peace Initiative, the Communist Party, the German-Vietnamese Friendship Society, and the Evangelical (Protestant) Student Federation. Many West Germans fear their country will become a battleground in a war between the United States and the Soviet Union. There were minor scuffles when four left-wing demonstrators climbed on the roof of the Bonn City Hall with a banner reading: "Haig Go Home - No nukes."

Fair skies to remain over Idaho through midweek

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas: Fair through Wednesday with gradual warming. Light winds except westerlies near 10 mph in the afternoons. Highs 45 to 50 today and near 50 Wednesday. Lows middle 40s to low 50s.

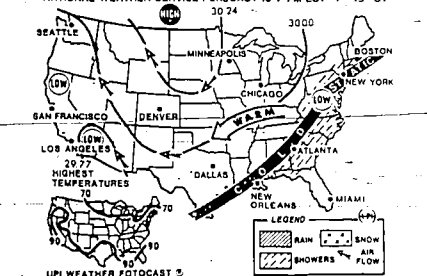

Cannas Prairie, Halley, Wood River valley: Fair through Wednesday with gradual warming. Highs upper 70s to middle 80s today and in the 80s Wednesday. Lows upper 30s to near 40s.

Northwestern Nevada and Utah: Mostly sunny and warm through Wednesday. Highs in the 80s. Lows in the 40s.

Synopsis: Clear skies and warm late summer temperatures will continue through midweek in the Snake Valley.

These conditions will continue to be ideal for farm work, with good conditions for harvesting, hay drying and other outside work. Irrigation water needs will be above normal through Friday due to the warm temperatures.

Few evaporations is forecast at 35 inch today and Wednesday. Spraying conditions will be generally good with winds mostly 4 to 8 mph, although afternoon conditions may be fair as wind velocities increase to more than 10 mph.

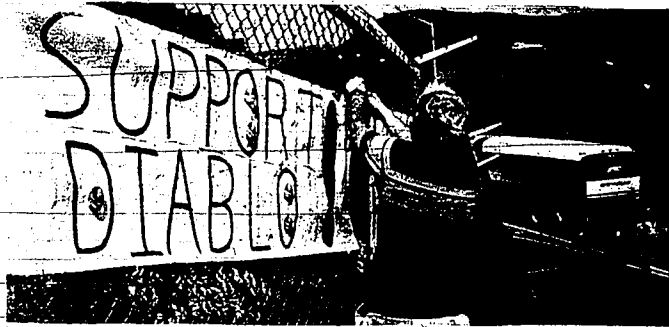

A weak weather disturbance crossed Idaho Sunday night but its passage was virtually unnoticed, although afternoon temperatures Monday were slightly lower than Sunday readings.

The warmest temperature in Idaho Monday was 93 at Emmett, as most stations were in the 70s and 80s. Morning lows ranged from the upper 30s to the middle 50s in lower valleys but were in the 20s in higher elevations. Stanley's 24 was the coldest and other readings ranged up to 54 at Lewiston.

In Twin Falls, the pollen count Monday was 52 per cubic meter of air. With high pressure dominating the area through the rest of the week, warmer temperatures will develop by midweek and skies will remain clear.

The extended forecast for Thursday through Saturday calls for little change, with highs from the middle 70s through the 80s and lows in the 40s. Elsewhere in the nation on Monday, the warmest temperature reported was 109 degrees at Palm Springs, Calif., and the coldest was 32 at Redmond, Ore.

Pro-nuclear demonstrators post their sign on fence near main gate of Diablo Canyon power plant UPI

Nuclear foes ready to start California plant blockade

AVILA BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Anti-nuclear activists will begin a "human blockade" of the $2.3 billion Diablo Canyon power plant today. They decided to move Monday even though their turnout was about 17,000 less than expected. Prior to the protesters' announcement of their go-ahead decision, law enforcement authorities reduced their ranks by about 100 officers because of the low turnout. A spokesman for the 3,000 protesters — far fewer than the 20,000 that law enforcement officers had prepared for — said the long-awaited attempt to block the $2.3 billion plant from going into operation would start today. Abalone Alliance spokesman Mark Evanoff said the decision to start the blockade was made Monday afternoon at a special "readiness assessment meeting" attended by about 50 of the protest leaders. "The blockade begins tomorrow," he said. San Luis Obispo County Sheriff George Whiting told UPI he decided Monday morning to release 100 officers from various agencies to resume their normal duties. "We find out now that they are not matching anywhere near those early numbers," Whiting said of the protest organizers' predictions that 20,000 demonstrators would appear. "It's up to us to scale it to what we can handle." Whiting said the force protecting the plant was "still strong," but refused to say how many officers remained on special duty. The protesters started gathering near the plant Thursday, after federal officials approved emergency preparedness plans for the facility. Robert Blake, star of the defunct television police show "Baretta," was the only one of the many entertainers who fired up crowds at "stop Diablo" rallies for the past year to sign in to the camp. Highway Patrol officer Ron Henn, in charge of the officers patrolling the camp area, said there were from 2,000 to 3,000 protesters staying at the Abalone Alliance staging area, about 15 miles from the plant.

Family seeks millions for atomic test death

LAS-VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The widow and five children of a man who died 25 years ago after being ordered into ground zero at the Nevada Test Site shortly after an atmospheric atomic test filed a multimillion dollar suit Monday against two government contractors. The suit was filed in state court by attorney Larry Johns on behalf of Neoma Epley, the widow of Oral B. Epley, and her five adult children — Hugh, Oral, Ray, Glen and a daughter, Naketa Young. The widow, in her late 70s, lives in Sligler, Okla. Epley, a laborer, died of a brain hemorrhage 13 days after being exposed to radiation on Jan. 18, 1956 in Area 11, of the Nevada Test Site, said the suit.

Reynolds Electrical and Engineering Co., a prime government contractor at the Nevada Test Site, and the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory which engineered the atomic device each were sued for $10 million punitive damages Monday and $10,000 compensatory damages. The suit charged both contractors with gross negligence and said results of an autopsy performed without the permission of the family were sent to the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory where it either was lost, misplaced or destroyed. Johns said a claim against the Department of Energy, the successor to the Atomic Energy Commission, was filed Monday. The government has six months in which to answer the claim.

Faubus new Arkansas vets' director

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Former Gov. Orval Faubus was sworn in Monday to a new state job with only vague references to his decision 23 years ago calling out the National Guard to keep blacks out of Central High School. Although a lifelong Democrat, Faubus, 71, was appointed state veterans affairs director by Republican Gov. Frank White as thanks for helping behind the scenes in White's campaign last year. The appointment in early August provoked a brief outcry from blacks and some Republicans. Faubus looked tired and repeated the oath of office in a faint, raspy voice. But he perked up later at an impromptu news conference and said his health was "good enough to disappoint some of my critics."

Begin makes noise, but gets better deal

Israel's Menachem Begin wants to have his cake and eat it, too, when it comes to security in the Middle East.

On one hand Begin wants, and is getting, stronger ties to the United States. On the other, he doesn't see why America also should strengthen its hand with such people as the Saudis.

It's a hard-line approach that Begin is taking, one that also is shortsighted and self-serving. But we would not expect Begin to behave otherwise.

As long as Israel has the upper hand with its militant neighbors, it can feel secure, or at least believe it can meet most any regional threat. The Israeli military machine has proven time and time again just how effective it can be.

But Begin doesn't want that advantage to slip away, and certainly not through U.S. actions. At the heart of this debate is the proposed American sale of sophisticated radar-planes, called AWACS, to Saudi Arabia. With several AWACS flying around the Persian Gulf, Israel loses a little more of its dominance; the world closes in a little more; her Arab neighbor to the south begins to have access to a wider view of the region.

Begin probably is concerned more about another part of the arms sale: fuel tanks and bomb racks for the American-made F-15 fighter-jets already in the Saudi arsenal. That's also what will cause the most noise in the Congress, because it will give the Saudis a wider capability to wage war.

Still, U.S. interests are tied vitally to the Persian Gulf, and Saudi Arabia has proven to be a valuable ally. Beefing up security in that region must be a priority, given the instability of the Arab world, the continued chaos in Iran and the lesson of Russian adventurism in Afghanistan.

In sum, Begin and Israel lose little ground in the Saudi AWACS deal. Israel has concluded a new strategic pact with Washington and, if anything, should be gratified that the United States is moving to protect and enhance its Middle Eastern interests.

Why penalize Piersall? He was being honest and open

Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — When we were kicking around the idea of my doing a TV talk show, one of the producers said we ought to have somebody on from the world of sports.

I agreed — but with a condition. I didn't want some star athlete who talked in boring, tired cliches, which most do, or whined about being underpaid at $250,000 a year, which many of them do.

If we had someone on from sports, I wanted someone who talked like a real human being, who wasn't afraid to express an opinion; and who knew what he was talking about.

We all said the same name at the same time: Jimmy Piersall.

Well, anyone who saw that show last Sunday knows we made the perfect choice.

Piersall, with his friend Harry Caray as his straight man, was a remarkable guest. He talked about baseball, yes. But he also talked about what it was like to be a 46-year-old former athlete outwardly in magnificent physical shape, suddenly discovering he had a terrible heart condition requiring a triple-bypass operation. He also talked openly about his past marital problems. He talked about his philosophy of life.

And he made a couple of bawdy funny remarks about players' wives. When that segment of the show ended, we cut to a commercial, so the live studio audience missed something.

There had been a moment of complete silence, because the studio audience (the interview was done in a saloon) had found Piersall so gripping.

Then they burst into wild, spontaneous applause.

They weren't applauding because he was once a remarkably talented baseball player. TV commercials are crawling with former star athletes who are now peddling merchandise. What they were applauding was something rare on TV, rare in public life, and even rarer in everyday life — a totally open, frank, honest man.

That's what Jimmy Piersall is: a no-BS person.

But as Jimmy said during that interview, "If you are honest and open in your opinions, somebody up there will try to nail you."

He was quickly proved right.

Because of what was meant to be a funny remark about ballplayers' wives in general (not Sox players' wives specifically), the Sox wives and the players ran yelling to the owners of the Sox. And the owners have now suspended Piersall from his broadcast job, and just might fire him.

That offends me for several reasons.

First, because I feel partly responsible because I asked the questionable question that led to Piersall's remarks. And I don't interview people in order to get them fired.

Second, because someone as open and honest as Piersall is a truly rare creature. Our politicians mostly mumble. Our business and industrial leaders hide behind public relations vice presidents who mealy-mouth.

And in Piersall's occupation — sports — baseball players even pulled a gun and shot the opposing pitcher, the camera would shift to a smiling baby in the stands and the announcer would say, "Well, there's a cute little fan."

That's why Piersall is enormously popular among Sox fans, and even Cub fans. He knows what he's talking about and he doesn't hesitate to say what's happening. And sports fans, like Americans in general, are fed up with the mealy-mouths and appreciate back to their traditional voting pattern.

Richard says he is worried, but not pessimistic, because the tax cuts that are eroded the success of the Reagan economic program don't even go into effect until October and the full impact won't be felt until next year.

"I think the president is still riding high," he added.

But he adds gloomily: "If supply side economics and Ronald Reagan fail, we will stop back to the 29 percent rating we had a year ago — we're going to lose the 19 percent we gained in the last year."

"We certainly don't have any longer than November 1982 — we may not have that long," he said. "If we don't turn things around we will pay the price."

The new school lunches — yuk!

Washington Post Writers Group

BOSTON — The luncheon was arranged rather neatly. Yummy in the center of the table was a roll. Six longish french fries lay beside it. Nine green grapes lolled nearby. To the side stood half a glass of milk.

It sounded to me like some forlorn menu for overweight executives. But it wasn't. It was, rather, a prototype of a school lunch, or what may remain of it after the budget cuts.

We are about to see the full fledged Nouvelle Reagan Cuisine for Kids. Higher costs and smaller portions. No stars, please.

As you may have heard, dinner with the Reagan in the White House has definitely improved these days. When the Reagans sat with the Anwar Sadats on the federal job, they ate smoked fillet of mountain trout, a roast supreme of duckling a l'orange, a touch of wild rice with raisins, a bit of Brie and cheese, followed by the palate-cleansing melon, glass, and fresh raspberries.

But lunch on the Reagan in the school cafeteria is quite another affair: an ounce-and-a-half of meat or meat alternatives, a half-cup of fruit and vegetables, one serving of bread, six ounces of milk. Yummy in the center of the table.

FRAC, the Food Research and Action Center, cooked up the lean-and-hungry lunch described above, by carefully following the new proposals that have come out of the Department of Agriculture.

According to FRAC's Nancy Amidei, the Agriculture people were assigned the task of cutting fat from the budget, "without impairing the nutritional value of the meals." But they ended up cutting food.

Under the old requirements, more food was served to older grammar-school kids than younger ones. But under the proposed new rules, the 11-year-olds will get the same amount of meat and vegetables as the 5-year-olds. Even the bread and milk are cut, from eight pieces a week to five, from eight ounces a day to six.

"The other changes in rules are even more curious. Ketchup and pickles now qualify as vegetables; tofu (try that on your second grade) now qualifies as a meat; and any school can put its eggs in a cake instead of on a plate.

According to Amidei, the lunches would supply less than one-third of the daily nutritional value and only 17 percent of the calories needed. "We feel this is compromising children's health," she says flatly.

The motto of the Nouvelle Reagan Cuisine — Eat Light and Like It — would be fine for the salesmen passing up the Brie. But the Department of Agriculture's own study shows that poor kids get anywhere from one-third to one-half of all their daily nutrients from school lunch.

Of the 27 million children who eat school lunches, 12.6 million get a free or reduced rate. If the meal shrinks just when food stamps are being cut, school food prices are on the rise, these kids can't make up the difference at home.

There is also a social effect of the Nouvelle Reagan Cuisine. Middle-class parents, who pay the full amount for lunch, are going to balk at paying more for a snack. As a ten-year-old visitor to FRAC said when she eyed the prototype meal, "Yuk! Where's the rest of it?"

In our house, after the price went up last week, the brown bags came back.

But, if these proposals are approved, there could be a national two-track lunchroom, with only the poorest students going through a "highly subsidized free-lunch line. The end result of that is higher costs, fewer schools in the system, and a program goes on the skids.

There is the taste of irony sprinkled over all this food talk. The lunch program started back in 1946 because of the military. During World War II, the draft board had to reject an enormous number of men suffering from poor nutrition. When the School Lunch Act was passed in 1946, they wrote: "It is declared to be the policy of Congress as a measure of national security to safeguard the health and well-being of the nation's children."

Today we have another administration that is worried about the Army, worried that an Army of illiterates will end up operating sophisticated multi-billion dollar military equipment. But as Amidei notes, "At this rate we'll have an Army of anemic illiterates."

If the Reagans will pass me a glass of their Domaine Chandon-Blanc de Noir, I'll drink to that.

Interest rates Reagan's No. 1 priority

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
UPI Political Writer

WASHINGTON — While President Reagan is still getting high marks from the public and his tax and budget cuts are popular, there were dark clouds gathering over the GOP that could halt the dramatic Republican comeback drive.

After returning from the August recess and talking with fellow GOP House members, Republican leader Bob Michel went straight to the White House to tell President Reagan in strong language there were big problems with the voters back home.

There was a growing concern among voters, that the GOP House members reported, that while the Reagan tax and budget cuts were fine, they didn't mean much because high interest rates put a new car — let alone buying a home — out of the reach of many Americans.

Few Republicans are more concerned about the interest rate problem than national chairman Richard Richards, who sees the problem as the potential end of his dream of establishing the GOP as the dominant party for the rest of the 20th century.

"Interest rates are indeed a problem and our polls reflect it," Richards said. He said polling also shows that "the typical voters is going to give us more time" to solve the problem. "But I don't know how much time."

"The average guy understands high interest rates better than he understands other problems," Richards said, explaining how interest rates could become the GOP's biggest problem at the polls next fall.

"On the positive side, Richards adds: "The president knows that and he is working on it."

While Richards says he doesn't know how more time the voters will give Republicans, he believes the public's patience will have worn out if things are not better by next November.

"If we haven't turned the corner and haven't improved significantly, we will not do well in the 1982 elections," he said. "If we don't build more homes and sell more cars, some of our early supporters will fall off."

"In 1980 we got votes that traditionally had been Democratic all their lives," he said. "They thought Reagan had a better idea — but if we don't prove we can lead, they will stop back to their traditional voting pattern."

Richard says he is worried, but not pessimistic, because the tax cuts that are eroded the success of the Reagan economic program don't even go into effect until October and the full impact won't be felt until next year.

"I think the president is still riding high," he added.

But he adds gloomily: "If supply side economics and Ronald Reagan fail, we will stop back to the 29 percent rating we had a year ago — we're going to lose the 19 percent we gained in the last year."

Senators take up farm bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate began considering compromise legislation Monday to set basic rules for federal farm programs over the next four years.

However, dairy supports, the thorniest issue, remained unresolved.

The Senate Agriculture Committee worked all last week to shave costs of the farm bill, moving closer to what President Reagan wants. But the committee could not untie on dairy issues.

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., threatened to filibuster to prevent further reductions in dairy price supports. He acknowledged the support level must be below the 80 percent of parity adjusted twice yearly for the past four years — but balked at Reagan's wish for 70 percent adjusted once a year.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., warned the dairy section might be dropped from the farm bill if dairy interests refused to compromise.

"If there's no inclination to go along, they may have to go alone," he said.

Dairy products presented special problems this year because of large government purchases to keep prices "at support" levels when consumer demand fell — estimated to cost the government $1.89 billion this fiscal year.

Senate Agriculture chairman Jesse Helms, R-N.C., introduced a compromise measure to cut farm bill costs voted by the committee in May.

On wheat, for example, the compromise called for a target price of $4.10 a bushel in 1982, with 20-cent increases each year. Originally, the committee approved a target of $4.20.

The administration prefers a target price of $4 a bushel, but Dole said he doubts Reagan would veto a slightly more expensive bill — so long as dairy provisions are kept in line.

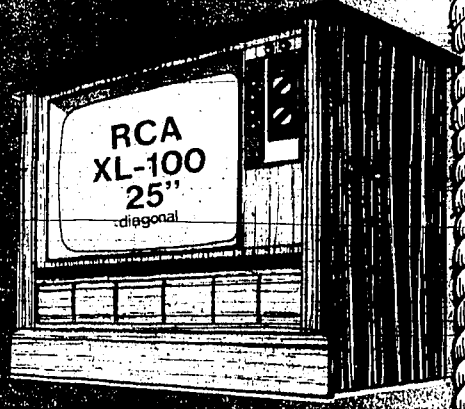

The administration originally wanted to do away with providing direct payments to farmers if market prices drop below target levels. But Agriculture Secretary John Black backed off and agreed to support target prices.

President shuffles 10 members of staff, promotes several

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has reshuffled 10 members of his staff, giving several of them promotions with bigger salaries, the White House announced Monday.

The "Big Three" advisers — counselor Edwin Meese, chief of staff James Baker and deputy chief of staff Michael Deaver — were not affected.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the changes would lead to a "better direction" for the staff.

Many involved moved up from the rank of "deputy" assistant to the president to "assistant," with a salary boost from $50,000 to $60,000 a year.

Among the promotions were:

- Deputy Joseph W. Canzeri, 51, to be assistant to the president and assistant to deputy chief of staff Michael Deaver. He will continue to coordinate scheduling and all presidential travel. He also will serve as liaison with former presidents.
- Richard G. Darman, 38, to be assistant to the president with increased responsibility for coordination and integration of White House staff activities. He also will continue to serve as a deputy to Baker.
- Craig L. Fuller, 30, to be assistant to the president for Cabinet affairs, a role he now performs as deputy assistant.
- Helene von Damme, who as special assistant to the president was his executive secretary, who has been named as deputy assistant to the president and director of presidential personnel.
- James S. ... to be special assistant to the president, in charge of private sector initiatives.
- Kathleen ... 37, will be Reagan's new personal secretary. Changes also were announced in the White House press and media liaison offices.
- Speakes, 42, was designated principal deputy press secretary. James Brady, hospitalized for wounds received in the March 30 Reagan assassination attempt, remains as press secretary.

Meantime, two new deputy press secretaries were added to Speakes' staff.

Peter Roussel, 39, will be in charge of news in the domestic field, and Lyndon K. ... will be the National Security Council press spokesman, who will be responsible for information in the field of foreign assassination attempt, remains as press secretary.

Deputy press secretary Kerna Small was named director of media relations and planning. She will be responsible for long range planning in communicating the president's programs, media liaison with editors and broadcasters across the country, and the White House Speakers' Bureau.

Michael E. Baroody, 35, a deputy to the Director of Communications, was

Reagan lobbies for his cuts, A WACS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan tackled major foreign and domestic concerns Monday.

He lobbied for billions in new budget cuts and moved to forestall congressional rejection of his controversial weapons deal with Saudi Arabia.

The president reportedly was weighing proposals to trim the 1982 budget by as much as $18 billion — a figure one White House spokesman called "a little high."

But it was the figure used by a group of conservative Democrats after meeting with Reagan Monday as the president sought once again to forge a bipartisan coalition to reduce federal spending.

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the exact figures for the new cuts — which Reagan says are needed to stay on track for a balanced budget in 1984 — still are being developed.

But, asked about the reports of $18 billion more in cuts "this year," he called the figure "a little high."

Other White House aides said Reagan must pare the 1982 budget up to $14 billion to hold the deficit at $42.5 billion as promised.

Reagan also met with Senate allies on the fight he faces to win approval of an $8.5 billion U.S. aircraft sale to Saudi Arabia.

Both the president and some 25 senators agreed the weapons deal featuring the sophisticated radar plane known as AWACS or Albatross "Warning" and Command System, probably will fail in the House. And they said the votes currently are not in hand in the Senate.

Watt vows to protect U.S. parks

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Interior Secretary James Watt promised Monday to protect and restore America's national parks.

"I apologize for the past management of the national parks," he said. "We have a five-year program under way to restore them."

Watt, who held a series of press conferences and meetings throughout the day with officials and government employees, also found time to deliver an address to the International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies, which held its 71st annual meeting in New Mexico's most populous city.

"I think New Mexico can take better care of its own resources than some central agency in Washington run by some bureaucratic hack who's out of office in four years," Watt said.

Philadelphia teachers march on City Hall, protest cuts in budget

Teachers' strikes continue

By United Press International

Thousands of striking Philadelphia teachers rallied at City Hall Monday to demand promised pay raises and canceling of layoffs.

The bitter walkout entered its eighth day with no end in sight.

In other disputes around the country, North Providence, R.I. teachers, faced with an ultimatum of work or be fired, returned to their classes Monday, and teachers walked out of two more Pennsylvania districts.

Other strikes dragged on in New York, Illinois and Michigan. Nationwide, the walkouts idled a total of nearly 355,000 students.

About 8,000 of the 21,000-member Philadelphia Federation of Teachers and members of other unions rallied at City Hall to underline their demands for the rehiring of teachers and pay raises.

Aiming their protest at Mayor William Green, the strikers chanted, "Hey Green, we're no fools. Under the contract, open schools."

About 9,000 of the 213,000 students affected by the walkout were attending alternative classes set up by community groups.

As the teachers marched on City Hall, the School Board was meeting for the first time since the strike began Sept. 8.

At issue is an austerity budget caused by a $223 million deficit that forced the layoff of 3,500 teachers and aides and rescinded a 10 percent salary hike provided for in a September 1980 contract. That contract came at the end of a three-week strike.

Elsewhere in Pennsylvania, two more teachers' walkouts in Bensalem Township, and Mahanoy brought to 10 the number of districts hit by strikes, affecting about 255,000 students.

North Providence, R.I. teachers heeded a school committee ultimatum and ended their five-day strike Monday. Classes at the high school and eight elementary schools in North Providence opened one hour late for 3,600 youngsters.

What's what

Pollsters asked 1,500 Sunday School children, ages 8, if God drives a car. They said yes, with the concession: It's a 1973 Ford Thunderbird, white with white sidewalls, 4 CB antennas, twin speakers in the rear window, and personalized license plates imprinted: "God."

In each of the four film versions of Alexander Dumas' "The Three Musketeers," the leading characters have been portrayed as skillful swordsmen, not musketeers.

JOAN RIVERS

Q: Where did comedienne Joan Rivers go to college?
A: Barnard in New York City. A Phi Beta Kappa grad, she.

Q: What's the average price now for a dozen long-stem roses?
A: $39. That's nationwide over the last several weeks. Changes from day to day.

Q: Are there any one-eyed airplane pilots anymore?
A: Quite a many. More than 1,000 such fliers now hold FAA-approved private pilot's licenses.

OPINION

Cardinal resumes silence

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cardinal John P. Cody reverted to silence Monday on charges he diverted up to $1 million in tax-exempt church funds to his stepcousin.

But a lawyer said Helen Dolan Wilson may file a lawsuit because "her character has been assassinated."

After speaking out sharply in his own defense last weekend, Cody made no mention of the published allegations during a Monday appearance at Our Lady of Lourdes Church, where he presided over funeral services for the Rev. Thomas P. Byrne.

But Mrs. Wilson's attorney spoke up in defense of the cardinal and his client during a news conference. Attorney Leonard Ring said Mrs. Wilson's "character has been assassinated" and she is "certainly considering" legal action because of copyright reports in the Chicago Sun-Times that the U.S. attorney's office is investigating Cody's financial dealings with his 74-year-old stepcousin.

Ring also said the $21,000, interest-free loan Cody gave her to help purchase a house in Boca Raton, Fla., in 1970 came from the cardinal's "personal funds" and not from tax-exempt church money.

Unlike priests in religious orders, Cody has not taken a vow of poverty and may retain personal funds.

Cody broke a self-imposed silence Saturday and again spoke out in his own self-defense Sunday during a 25th anniversary celebration at a church in suburban Westchester.

"When I was ordained I knew there would be troubled times — certainly never like this — but I never thought this type of persecution would continue in our enlightened age," he said.

"When they cannot disperse the flock they strike at the shepherd."

The cardinal also said he forgave "700 times seven times" those who have leveled "blatant and nasty innuendoes" at him.

Priests in many of the Roman Catholic archdiocese's 444 parishes asked parishioners to pray for the 73-year-old prelate, who is in failing health. But in other churches, there was no discussion of the allegations.

Need again key to aid

Universal Press Syndicate
(Last of three parts)

Of all the federal programs to aid in financing college education that have been the targets of the Reagan administration's budget ax, the program hit hardest has been the widely used (and widely-abused) Guaranteed Student Loan Program (GSL).

And of all the parents or students who will feel the adverse impact, the hardest-hurt will be families earning more than $30,000 a year, particularly with children—with only average scholastic grades.

It's entirely understandable, even if implications of the trend make you wince. In 1981 alone, this program has involved an estimated $7.2 billion of lending—far beyond the total of any other contemplated. And the loan defaults in the GSL program have been infuriating.

Starting last January, the interest rate for Guaranteed Student Loans was boosted from 7 percent to 9 percent. Now:

All those who receive loans must pay 10 percent "origination fee." This fee, taken right off the top, cuts the amount of cash the borrower gets. In effect, the fee reduces a $2,500 loan (the maximum allowed for one year) to $2,375, although the borrower must pay interest on the entire $2,500.

At approximately the same time, based on family income, loans were before 1978. If you're a family with earnings of more than $30,000 a year, you will have to meet a new requirement, a "need test," based on your income; before your children can be considered for a GSL. (If you're a family with earnings of less than $30,000, you still can borrow up to $2,500 a year for each undergraduate.)

Most affected by the new provisions of the GSL program are students who expect to start college in fall, 1982. "Students who are enrolled this fall will be largely unaffected by the need test," says Lawrence E. Gladioux, executive director of the College Board's Washington office, "because they will already have had their loans approved by Oct. 1."

While the details of the "need test" for the 1982-83 school year have not yet been completely worked out, for the 1981-82 term the financial aid officer at your child's college can quickly determine whether you qualify for a GSL. The formula used takes into consideration family income, household size and number of children to consider college. Then comes up with a "number" called "expected family contribution." (This contribution, together with any other aid or benefits your child is receiving, is subtracted from the total college costs to determine the amount that can be borrowed through the Guaranteed Student Loan Program.)

If you borrowed under the GSL Program to pay 1981-82's college bills, you'll probably have to seek other sources of funding for 1982-83. "Expected family contribution" is higher than your child's college costs.

Here's an example of how the formula works: If your family's adjusted gross income (from line 31 of your income tax form 1040, or line 11 of form 1040A) is $35,000, and your child's total college costs are $7,000 per year, your eligibility for a GSL would shape up this way for 1981-82: Total college costs, $7,000; expected family contribution, $3,600. Remaining demonstrated need, $3,400; other financial aid or benefits, $2,000. Remaining need, $1,400. This portion of the expense can be borrowed through GSL.

Federal costs of Guaranteed Student Loans have mushroomed since Congress opened the program to any student whose family income in 1978, Gladioux stresses. "This year's reforms return the program to the more traditional federal philosophy of basing assistance on financial need. The challenge is to reduce the burden on taxpayers without unduly burdening needy students and families."

And the challenge to you, the parents and students? Start as fast as you read this, even if you're still a high school junior, to line up your sources of future financial aid. That involves working summers and vacations and investigating all possible aid packages that might be available through employers, unions, fraternal organizations, or other sources. The "dream" of an education for all America's young is a fading memory.

Investors fret over defense budget, put stocks on skids

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — The stock market, despite a couple of rally attempts, fell Monday.

It dropped as investors expressed disappointment over reports President Reagan would propose only small defense spending cuts.

Trading was slow. New York Stock Exchange volume totaled only 43,380,000 shares compared with 42,170,000 traded Friday. It was the slowest turnover since 32,997,470 changed hands in an abbreviated session on March 30, the day President Reagan was shot.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which jumped 11.15 points last week, including 10 points Friday, surrendered 6.66 points to 866.15 at mid-afternoon but did not find much support.

"The average had fallen about 170 points since mid-June and many observers thought it and the market were ready for a rebound."

But traders were disturbed that President Reagan over the weekend proposed only a $13 billion cut in defense spending over three years. When the investment community was expecting a more substantial trimming in order to prevent a credit crunch soon. The investment community was concerned that unless there are further cuts in defense spending and the budget overall, the economy would be tossed into another inflationary spiral by congressionally approved tax cuts.

The New York Stock Exchange index lost 0.53 to 69.79 and the price of an average share decreased 22 cents. Declines topped advances 937,588 among the 1,895 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Most analysts did not expect the rally that started late last week to last long because of investor concern about high interest rates and inflation. One analyst said he did not expect the stock market to firm up until the middle of 1982.

Some traders were encouraged that the Fed reported late Friday the nation's basic money supply dipped $1.1 billion in the latest week.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and included on the 4-p.m.-toled-39,691,700-share tape compared with 50,945,500 traded Friday.

The American Stock Exchange common stock index dropped 3.61 to 327.44 and the price of an average share shed 17 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NYSE-AMEX index of over-the-counter issues lost 1.15 to 189.62.

On the trading floor, RCA was the most active NYSE-listed issue, off 19 1/2 to 191 1/2 in trading that included a block of 887,300 shares at 19 1/2. The company said it was consolidating its entertainment units, including NBC, into one department.

Constat Corp., which figured recently in some takeover speculation while DuPont was bidding for Conoco, was second on the active list, off 4 to 42 1/2.

Blue-chip American Telephone & Telegraph, a component of the Dow industrial average, was the third most active issue, off 1 to 55 1/4. A Pacific Telephone & Telegraph shareholder filed suit against AT&T on charges it has injured Pacific's minority stockholders.

Evans Products fell 1/4 to 19 1/2 after a block trade over the counter of 270,200 shares at 20 1/2. Sony Corp. was off 1/4 to 18 1/2, with a block of 118,000 shares at 19 1/2.

General Public Utilities added 1/4 to 5 1/4 in heavy trading. The Edison Electric Institute last week approved a proposal to seek $192 million from the nation's utilities to help pay for the clean up of GPU's Three Mile Island nuclear plant.

Associated Madison jumped 1/4 to 7 1/2 in moderately active trading. The company is engaged in merger talks.

Conoco, which jumped a point last week in active trading, slipped 1/2 to 17 1/2 with a fairly heavy turnover. The company said the $14-a-share National-Mechanical-Enterprises made-for-1 last week was inadequate. So do some analysts.

GM, union trade demands

DETROIT (UPI) — The heads of General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers union exchanged trade demands Monday from lunchtime platforms 100 miles apart and with exactly one year remaining on their three-year agreement.

UAW President Douglas A. Fraser, speaking at the Economic Club of Detroit, reiterated that the key to job permanence will be a firm union demand when bargaining begins on a new agreement. He also said the union may seek something shorter than its traditional three-year contract term.

At approximately the same time, GM Chairman Roger B. Smith told an audience in Saginaw that the

Crocker sets prime at 20%

NEW YORK (UPI) — Crocker Bank of San Francisco Monday lowered its prime rate a half point to 20 percent as commercial banks slowly panned on a lower cost of funds to their corporate customers.

Such long-distance sparring between the two banks has been going on for nearly nine months, but there was no sign they are drawing closer to the bargaining table. The current contract expires Sept. 14, 1982.

Fraser said it is possible some preliminary work by study committees can begin when the union elects its funding and bargaining teams, a process that is now under way. He did not set a precise date for opening pre-bargaining sessions.

Smith repeated that he wants negotiations to begin soon. "Even tomorrow wouldn't be too soon," he said.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat and corn were irregularly higher, oats higher and soybeans substantially higher at the close Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat was up 7 to 2 1/2 cents; corn up 1/2 to 5/8; oats up 3/4 to 1 1/2 cents; soybeans up 1/2 to 1 1/2 cents. The market was mostly lower in the first half of the session as a result of price dumping by oilseed processors and near contractures. Soybeans were mostly higher as short-covering snowed out, raising soybean prices.

Some of the wheat and corn were sold prior to the closing call. There was a bid on the floor of a closing call in soybean prices and the possibility of a rise in northern sections of the country.

The reversal in wheat was linked to a strong foreign demand and purchases by a large company.

The USDA said Egypt bought 250,000 tonnes of corn during the week-end and some 50,000 tonnes today. Taiwan was in the market for 270,000 tonnes of corn.

The outside markets were higher.

Dear Abby

No love lost in this 'proof'

Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: About 15 years ago, you wrote a column telling girls how to answer boys who asked them to prove their love by committing fornication, which is a sin.

Many teen-agers girls out that column out and carried it in their purses. Today's sex education makes it seem OK for teen-age girls to have sex as long as they "love" the boy. I wish you would reprint that column. It is badly needed now.

WASHINGTON, N.J.
DEAR N.J.: Here it is! Girls need to "prove their love" through illicit sex relations like a mouse needs a rat rack.

Why not prove your love by sticking your head in the oven and turning on the gas or playing leapfrog out in the traffic? It's about as safe.

Clear the cobwebs out of your head: Any fellow who asks you to "prove your love" is trying to take you for the biggest, most glibble fool who ever walked. That proving bit is one of the oldest and rottenest lines ever invented.

Does he love you? It doesn't sound like it. Someone who loves you wants whatever is best for you. But now figure it out. He wants you to:

- Commit an illegal act.
- Surrender your virtue.
- Throw away your self-respect.
- Risk the loss of your precious reputation.

— And risk getting into trouble.

Does that sound as though he wants what's best for you? This is the laugh of the century. He wants what's best for him — he wants a thrill he can brag about at your expense.

Love? Who's kidding whom! A boy who loves a girl would sooner cut off his right arm than hurt her. If you want my opinion, this self-serving so-and-so has already proved that he doesn't love you.

The predictable aftermath of "proofs" of this kind always finds Don Juan tiring of his sport. That's when he drops you, picks up his line and goes casting elsewhere for bigger, and equally silly, fish.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in my last month of pregnancy and my husband and I still can't resolve a serious disagreement. Jeffrey says if it's a girl I can name her anything I want, but if it's a boy, he wants to name him "Jeffrey Jr." Abby, I am very much against that. If we have a son, I want him to have his own name and his own identity.

I don't like nicknames, and I don't want our son going through life being called "Little Jeff" or, worse yet, "Junior."

I favor "Michael" for a boy's name. Jeffrey likes "Michael," but he insists that the only name he wants for our son is "Jeffrey." I suggested we forget both "Jeffrey" and "Michael" and select another name as a compromise. Jeffrey refuses to budge.

What do you think? I need some support.

DEAR PRAYING: Would your husband consider "Jeffrey" for the boy's MIDDLE name? If not, hang in there. Wanting your son to have his own name and his own identity is both valid and sensible. If you absolutely cannot agree, a compromise is the only fair solution.

Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet: "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (35 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

Dr. Lamb

Irregular heartbeat bothers

Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB — Two years ago I was hospitalized for eight or nine skipped heart beats each minute. The doctors called them PVCs or premature ventricular contractions. No medication worked for me, but I almost cleared up after I quit my job and had a regular pattern of physical exercises, walking or riding a bicycle each day.

Now at times there is a pressure in my throat making breathing hard and accompanied by hard beating of my heart and more skipped beats. Can you tell me what causes this and what to do for it?

DEAR READER — You'll need another examination to be sure what is causing your episodes. Since you have had premature contractions before and evidently your examination showed no significant heart disease, I would guess that it may prove that your irregularity occurs without any significant heart disease.

They can still be annoying. Premature contractions, when some people called skipped beats, can occur in perfectly healthy people and can occur in the presence of heart disease. Stress can aggravate the condition. Anxiety can cause hyperventilation (over-breathing) which in turn can upset the body chemistry and cause increased numbers of irregular beats. I cannot tell from your letter if your difficulty in breathing is really a story of hyperventilation, or breathlessness because you have irregular beats, but your doctor will want to sort this out.

You will get a more detailed understanding of irregular beats from The Health Letter No. 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardias, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me. It's in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Smoking, coffee, tea, colas, digestive disturbances, stress and poor physical fitness levels can all be associated with such episodes. That is why I was interested in your comment that you had less trouble after you developed an exercise program. Exercise helps to use up excess adrenaline stores in the heart muscle. Adrenaline increases the heart's tendency to have such irregular beats.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 45 years old and have read in your columns that you advise milk in a woman's diet at that age. I drink no milk. I do not drink at all. However, I eat quite a bit of cheese. Would five ounces of cottage cheese, plus two ounces of hard cheese be an adequate substitute? If not, what would?

DEAR READER — No, that is not adequate. You need a minimum of 800 mg of calcium a day. That is the Recommended Daily Dietary Allowance for calcium for women in your age group. That would require about two pounds of cottage cheese a day.

Doesn't sound very practical, does it? Swiss cheese, as an example of hard cheese, contains about 280 mg per ounce. You are probably getting about 650 mg of calcium from those two sources. Processed cheese contains lots of fat, about half of which is saturated fat, plus a significant amount of cholesterol.

You could add to your calcium intake by adding generous amounts of nonfat dry milk powder to your cooking, such as milk gravies, sauces or in mashed potatoes or desserts using milk. Or you might want to take a calcium supplement.

Dairy products are the best source of dietary calcium that can be absorbed and be useful for you.

UN condemns S. Africa over Namibia independence

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. General Assembly ended its special session on South Africa Monday by overwhelmingly condemning South Africa for refusing independence to its former mandate and urging tough sanctions be imposed. The vote was 117-0, with 25 abstentions, including the United States, Western European allies and Japan.

By abstaining, the Western nations and Japan made clear they support a negotiated settlement and independence for South Africa, the mineral-rich territory, and called Namibia, that was mandated to South Africa by the League of Nations.

Despite the overwhelming vote in favor of the resolution, it amounts to only a recommendation and is not legally binding. The resolution, sponsored by 72 non-aligned nations, demanded the U.N. Independence plan for Namibia be put into operation by December 15, 1979.

The resolution, sponsored by 72 non-aligned nations, demanded the U.N. Independence plan for Namibia be put into operation by December 15, 1979. Britain, Canada, France, West Germany and the United States, who jointly worked out the plan in three years of talks, instead pleaded for continued negotiations and promised to push for implementation next year.

West German Ambassador Guenther van Well said foreign ministers of the five nations will meet in New York Sept. 24 to work out new proposals.

Only two weeks ago, the United States stood alone by using its veto against a Security Council decision condemning South Africa for its military move into Angola.

The new resolution condemned South Africa for its "continued illegal occupation of Namibia" and urged the Security Council to "immediately impose sanctions against it."

The resolution also appealed to all states to voluntarily invoke sanctions by ceasing all dealing with South Africa "in order to totally isolate it politically, economically, militarily and culturally."

Unacceptable to most Western countries was a call in the resolution for sustained "material, financial and military support" for the militant black South West Africa People's Organization and its guerrilla warfare within Namibia.

Queen's assailant given 5-year term in jail

LONDON (UPI) — A 17-year-old marine dropout who fired a blank pistol at Queen Elizabeth in a "fantasy assassination" pleaded guilty Monday and was sentenced to five years in jail.

"I have little doubt that if you had been able to obtain a live gun or live ammunition for your father's gun you would have tried to murder her majesty," Judge Geoffrey Lane told Marcus Sarjeant during sentencing.

"You tried to get a license," Lane said. "You tried to get a gun. You were not able to obtain either.

Therefore, for reasons which are not easy to understand, you chose to indulge in what was a fantasy assassination."

Lane said Sarjeant had the "grace" to apologize and plead guilty but said the "public outrage" had to be considered and "you must be punished for the wicked thing you did."

Sarjeant admitted firing the blank pistol six times during the Trooping of the Color ceremony near Buckingham Palace June 13. The queen was riding horseback past a huge crowd. Her horse was startled but the queen calmed it quickly and was not hurt. Notes found to have been written by Sarjeant included references to his plans "to stun and mystify the world with nothing more than a gun" and become "the most famous teenager in the whole world."

A defense lawyer said Sarjeant had "fantasies of omnipotence." Sarjeant was charged under the 1842 Treason Act with "willfully discharging at the person of her majesty the queen a blank cartridge pistol with intent to alarm her."

Troops head into mines

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Thousands of soldiers and draftees will work in Polish coal mines to combat a production slump the government predicts could lead to economic collapse, the official news agency PAP reported Monday.

The Soviet Union unleashed another harsh attack on Solidarity, accusing the union of spreading an anti-Soviet and anti-socialist "psychosis" in preparing to overthrow Poland's government.

PAP said the defense ministry agreed to allow soldiers and draftees to be employed in the mines because of the economic emergency.

Norway voting

OSLO, Norway (UPI) — Norway entered the last stages of its two-day national election Monday that is expected to install a right-wing coalition government committed to fiscal restraint and NATO military security.

Military spokesmen said five soldiers had been killed in combat over the past 48 hours, but there was no indication whether they died in the search and destroy missions launched Saturday.

An estimated 100 soldiers meanwhile staged a house-to-house search of the neighborhood around San Salvador's National Stadium, the site of an Independence Day military show scheduled for Tuesday.

The show's highlight was expected to be an exercise by the Atlacatl commando brigade, trained by U.S. Green Berets, armed with U.S.-made M-16 automatic rifles and transported aboard U.S. provide UH-1H "Huey" helicopters.

Judicial authorities reported another 13 non-combat slayings in the political violence lashing the Central American nation, where church agencies estimate 24,000 people have been killed since Jan. 1, 1980.

Salvadoran army opens drives in 8 provinces

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Army troops launched search and destroy missions in eight of El Salvador's 14 provinces to drive off guerrillas battling to topple the U.S.-backed junta, military spokesmen said Monday.

The spokesmen said the heaviest fighting was reported in the eastern provinces of San Vicente and Usulután, near two strategic bridges, but declined to give details on the number of troops involved.

Six other search-and-destroy missions were reported under way in the northern provinces of Cabanas and Chalatenango, San Miguel and Morazan to the northeast and La Paz and La Unión to the southeast.

Each operation launched by the Salvadoran armed forces usually involves a maximum of 200 soldiers walking through a region to drive off bands of Marxist-led guerrillas fighting to topple the ruling military-civilian junta.

50 students of dance audition for chance in Tchaikovsky ballet

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — More than 50 young women auditioned Monday for the chance to become mice, lambs, bombons or soldiers in Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite."

Parents and teachers waited nervously behind glass windows at the recently completed New Sage Dance Studio on Fourth Street East.

Inside, Celena Orr and Karl Hoagland of the Moscow-based American Festival Ballet Co. put students through paces designed to test their coordination, training and musical rhythm.

Braids and ponytails danced side to side as the youngest hopefuls responded hesitantly to Orr's instructions. Older students in the second audition seemed more poised but no less frightened by the prospect of showing off their skills before professionals.

American Festival Ballet, formerly called Ballet Folk, will present "Nutcracker Suite" on Dec. 22 at the College of Southern Idaho. Hoagland and Orr planned to conduct classes in Twin Falls today and Wednesday for participants chosen from the audition.

The two are in the midst of a two-week schedule that will take them to auditions and practice sessions for separate performances in Boise, Idaho Falls and Pocatello.

Ten of the 17 Twin Falls entrants less than 4 feet tall earned parts as bombons, the diminutive dancers that emerge on stage from beneath Mother Ginger's flowing skirts. Two others from the group were awarded parts as lambs.

Older dancers competed for five parts as mice, five as soldiers and two for the ballet's Chinese dance number.

Twin Falls ballet instructor Beverly Hackney, who coordinated the effort and who will lead supplemental practices, said the $3 and $5-audition fees were made necessary by the funding cutbacks that have forced ballet and theater groups to derive more of their support from persons benefiting directly.

"These girls are all learning something," Hackney said. "I haven't heard any complaints."

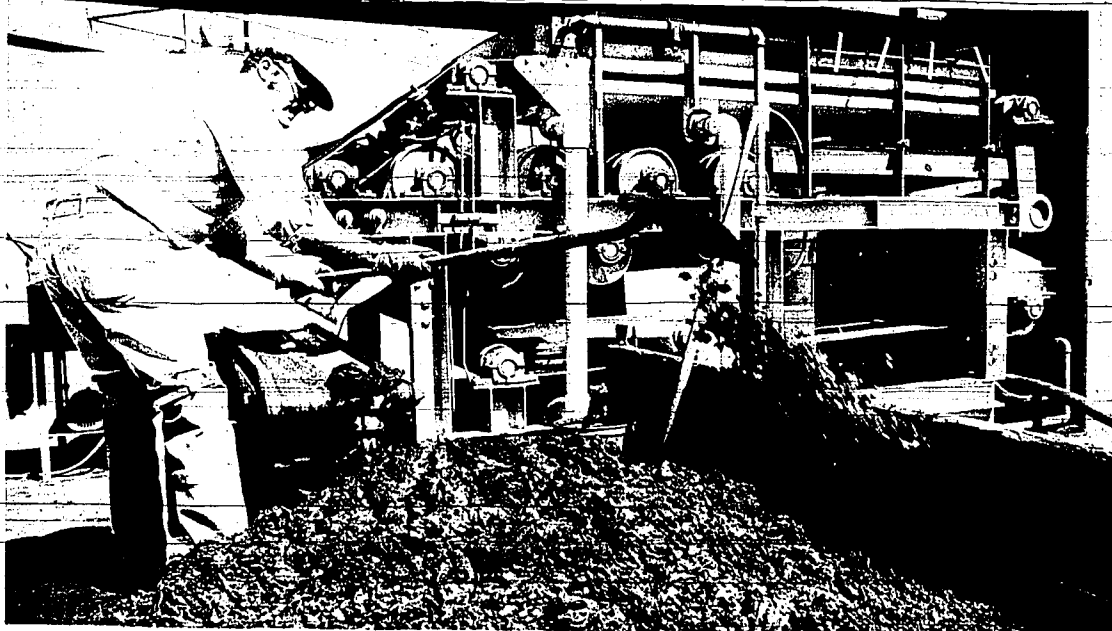

The Moscow company's Twin Falls performance in December will be sponsored by the Downtown Merchants Association, according to Monte Barney, the manager of the Downtown Mall. Local ballet instructors also have volunteered their time for the performance.

As the sludge rolls off the dewatering machine conveyor, Dennis Weeks, senior wastewater treatment plant operator, shovels the smelly glop into a truck

City waste disposal costs may drop

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Cheaper disposal of wastewater treatment plant sludge is in the offing for the city of Twin Falls.

Less certain is how much sludge — the residual product of sewage treatment — the city plant will be handling on a long-term basis, since Idaho Frozen Foods is still exploring the possibility of building its own treatment facility and withdrawing from the city's.

IFF's industrial wastes require 45 to 50 percent of the plant's capacity, according to city officials.

Construction of $8 million worth of plant modifications is proceeding under the assumption that IFF will continue to contribute waste. Portions of the plant can be shut down if the food processing firm withdraws instead, according to city officials, who say the facility will then stand ready for community growth or new industry.

Recent construction progress has included the testing of a sludge dewatering machine similar to two scheduled for installation at the plant.

The new machinery will convert liquid sludge to a manure-like substance that can be more efficiently transported to farmers' fields for disposal, according to resident engineer Steve Hyland.

Hyland said that disposing of dewatered sludge, which consists of 80-percent water and 20-percent solids, will require six to eight daily haulings five days a week to rural disposal sites. Presently, trucks haul liquid sludge 10 to 12 times a day, every day. Liquid sludge is 98-percent water and 2-percent solids, Hyland said.

Engineers project that the cost of sludge dewatering and hauling for one year will be $27,000. For the current year, the city budgeted $450,000 to haul liquid sludge.

Hyland said another advantage of dewatered sludge is that it can be stored more easily than liquid, thus increasing the compatibility of the city's disposal schedule with seasonal fluctuations in farmers' needs for the sludge. One of the drawbacks of dewatered sludge is a lower nutrient level.

The "liquid extractor" in the dewatering process will be recycled through the treatment plant, Hyland explained.

In other developments at the plant, Hyland said crews have completed about 45 percent of the overall construction project. The major additions are expected to increase sludge-

Murder suspect named

Laurence Jenkins is sought by police

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Forty-three-year-old Laurence James Jenkins of Twin Falls was named Monday as the man Twin Falls police believe shot and killed Jimmy Lee Legg, 23, last week.

A warrant for Jenkins' arrest, filed in 5th District Magistrate Court Monday, officially placed the suspect's name before the public for the first time.

According to that document, Jenkins is accused of committing first-degree murder.

The shooting occurred just before 1 a.m. Saturday in front of the Brand Lounge, 1007 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

According to a statement filed with the court, Legg is alleged to have told Jenkins, "Go ahead and shoot."

In issuing the warrant, Judge Melvin Edwards said he did not plan to set bond in the case once Jenkins is apprehended.

As of Monday, police did not know where the suspect was, according to police Chief Tim Qualls.

"We put out all-points bulletin the night it happened," Qualls said. "I have no leads as to his whereabouts."

But Qualls says he is confident Jenkins will be apprehended.

Qualls also disclosed that his department is investigating the possibility of filing criminal charges against persons who may have aided the suspect to escape arrest.

The police chief declined to say how many persons were under investigation, saying that no deadline has been set for filing such charges.

"I don't have any time limit on. But we are looking into that possibility," he said.

Twin Falls County Coroner Cloyce Edwards said his autopsy had determined that Legg had been shot at point-blank range in his throat. From there, the bullet traveled upward, causing massive damage to Legg's brain, and lodged in the victim's skull.

"He was killed instantly," Edwards said.

Both Edwards and Qualls declined to say what caliber weapon was involved.

Twin Falls police have also declined to give a description of the suspect.

But a check with several sources indicated that he is about 5-foot, 8-inches tall, weighs from 170 to 180 pounds, has nondescript brown hair and a beard, and wears horn-rimmed glasses.

"He is considered armed and dangerous," Qualls said.

Charged with first degree murder

Sjogren pleads not guilty

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Jon Lelroy Sjogren, 29, pleaded not guilty Monday to first-degree murder.

He also lashed out at Twin Falls County Prosecutor Harry DeHaan for waging what the defendant termed a vendetta against him.

Sjogren appeared in 5th District Court to answer an amended charge accusing him of premeditated murder in the May 26 death of Donna Hartley Smith, 61, of Twin Falls. If convicted, he could face the death penalty.

Earlier this year, Sjogren pleaded guilty to second-degree murder as part of a plea negotiation agreement reached with DeHaan. Sjogren backed out of that deal last month when DeHaan asked Judge Daniel Meehl to sentence the defendant to a 50-year determinate prison term.

Under such a sentence, Sjogren would not have been eligible for parole until he served the term, except for an allowance for "good time."

According to the charge filed against him, Sjogren allegedly walked Smith home from a local bar, became involved in a fight with the victim and knocked her down.

Thinking that the woman was dead, Sjogren allegedly left the residence.

But he later returned to Smith's home and, finding her alive, strangled her with a telephone cord, according to the charges.

Since his subsequent arrest, the defendant has remained in the Twin Falls County Jail without bond.

After entering the not guilty plea, Sjogren was asked if he had any further questions.

"I don't see how I can get a fair trial, that's all," Sjogren said, adding that DeHaan had violated the plea negotiation agreement by seeking what would have been a life sentence. Sjogren also questioned how he could receive a fair trial, given the publicity on the case and the fact that the same judge and prosecutor who were present when he first pleaded guilty would continue on in the trial.

DeHaan immediately denied that any promise had been made concerning a sentencing recommendation. Saying he was "concerned about any allegations of lying on my part," the prosecutor called for a court hearing to examine the charges.

Sjogren replied that DeHaan's alleged promise was made off the record, and the prosecutor certainly would not admit having made such an agreement.

"You can go through with your investigation," Sjogren said. "I think you have a vendetta against me."

Man pleads guilty to sex assault

TWIN FALLS — An Aberdeen man pleaded guilty Monday in 5th District Court to sexually assaulting a 14-year-old girl.

Maurice Larson, 20, originally had been charged with rape after Kimberly police arrested him Aug. 21. He had remained in the Twin Falls County Jail in lieu of a $50,000 bond since then.

The charge was reduced on Sept. 4 to assault with intent to commit a serious felony.

The reduced charge carries a maximum sentence of up to 10 years in the Idaho penitentiary.

Judge Daniel Meehl ordered a psychological evaluation and a presentence investigation of the defendant.

Acting upon the request of Larson's lawyer, Mike Powers, the county's deputy public defender, Meehl also agreed to release the defendant on his own recognizance. County Prosecutor Harry DeHaan raised no objection to the move.

In other court matters, 29-year-old James H. Bessette of Buhl pleaded guilty to grand larceny of an auto after a psychiatric evaluation determined he was fit to stand trial.

Bessette was charged with stealing a car on March 7. Nevada authorities arrested him near Wells, Nev., and at that time, Bessette was in possession of the stolen automobile.

Noting that his client has been in custody for six months, lawyer Monte Carlson asked Meehl to sentence his client immediately. Carlson sought to have Bessette placed in a Veterans Administration hospital in Roseburg, Ore., for treatment of alcoholism.

Election forms available

TWIN FALLS — Residents wishing to seek election to City Council have until Oct. 6 to file the mandatory petitions.

To qualify for the Nov. 3 election, office-seekers must obtain the signatures of at least 40 persons registered to vote in municipal elections. Petitions are available at City Hall.

Positions to be filled in the fall election are now held by Mayor Hank Woodell, who has announced he will not seek re-election, and by Mary McLusky and Emery Petersen.

An up-to-date list of persons who have obtained election petitions was unavailable at City Hall on Monday. A partial list includes Lee Heider and L. James Koutnik, who are both in the real-estate business; Koutnik also hosts a radio talk show.

A request for a petition is not necessarily a declaration of candidacy to run. Koutnik would not reveal for whom the petitions was obtained.

Water seepage problem is ended, but possibly at owner's expense

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Disputed water seepage in and near several Kimberly Road firms has been eliminated, possibly at the expense of the property owners.

The seepage was first reported to the Twin Falls Water Department more than five weeks ago by the owners of AATCO Transmissions, 2019 Kimberly Road.

AATCO co-owner Conrad Olsen said he was told the problem should be referred to the Twin Falls Canal Co., which in turn declared it bore no liability concerning the seepage.

Faced with access problems created by urbanization of what was once agricultural land, the canal company decided years ago that it would bear no responsibility for its improvements in areas such as Kimberly Road, said company manager Warren Travis.

Problems such as the one at AATCO rested with the owners of the property affected by the seepage, said Gary Young, the city's engineer.

Meanwhile, water appeared inside the AATCO building, soaked part of the outdoor display area next door at Twin Falls Tractor and Implement Co. and seeped into a service pit at Commercial Tire Co. across the street from AATCO.

Travis said that canal company and city crews worked last week to eradicate the main source of trouble: roots plugging a drain tile. Several trees in the area are targeted for subsequent removal.

Travis and Young said Monday that neither the canal company nor the city had assumed responsibility for the seepage, and each entity will bill property owners for work that company and municipal crews performed last week. How much those costs will be is undetermined.

The question of payment apparently was unresolved Monday from the standpoint of at least one property owner. Lawyer Fred Decker, representing the landlady of the AATCO property, said possible payment by the city for services of the city and canal company is unsettled.

AATCO co-owner Ron Brookshier, who rents the ground on which his business sits, said Monday that he was simply relieved his shop was no longer taking on the characteristics of a swamp.

Young said it is uncertain whether the city's role in correcting the Kimberly Road problem has set a precedent for city response to similar complaints in the future. Precedent-setting, he said, depends on the success of the city's efforts to be reimbursed for use of its equipment, labor and materials.

Zoning

Mobile home extension approved

TWIN FALLS — Reversing their zoning board, Twin Falls County Commissioners on Monday approved a Filer man's plan to extend his mobile home.

Earlier this month, Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Board members unanimously denied Neil Lindholm's request for a variance from the county's setback requirements. Lindholm appealed the decision to the commissioners.

Lindholm's construction, located one mile south and 1 1/2 miles west of Filer, would have encroached on the county's 55-foot setback standard. With the addition, Lindholm's home will rest 46 feet from the center line of a county road.

According to a letter from Tom Lancaster, a Filer Highway District commissioner, the construction would "not interfere with road maintenance in any way."
The commissioners voted unanimously in favor of Lindholm's request.

Property vacation to be requested

TWIN FALLS — Requests for the city to vacate property in southern part of the city top a short Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission agenda.

The commission will meet tonight at 7:30 in City Hall. Public hearings will be held on a joint request by the Southside Home Co. and Gene and Gloria Hamilton, the owners of Hamilton Manufacturing Co., to vacate the east portion of Russell Street between South Park Avenue and Market Street.

A second hearing at tonight's meeting involves the Hamiltons' request to vacate Market Street between Russell Street and Washington Street. Easier parking and better access for large trucks are the reasons for the request, according to city officials said.

Murtaugh council to crack down on delinquent sewer, water bills

MURTAUGH — A growing problem with past-due accounts among Murtaugh sewer and water customers has prompted a crackdown by City Council.

Council recently decided to give delinquent customers a 90-day grace period in which to bring their accounts up to date, city clerk Jeanne Bennett said. Service will be discontinued if back accounts are paid in that period.

Bennett said part of the problem with the past-due bills stems from the fact that utility bills had been sent out quarterly, and customers have not grown used to the recent adoption of monthly billings.

In other council news, a 1981-82 budget of $47,466 was adopted. Of that amount, $18,466 is allocated to the general fund, the city's main operating account. The water and sewer fund has been allocated $29,000.

Council also set Nov. 3 as the date for the city's general election to fill two four-year council terms, which are currently held by Robert Messner and Wallace Christensen. Candidates can obtain election petitions from Bennett.

The final results for both the lab and the hospital inspection should be available in about four months, Campbell said.

St. Benedict's inspection slated

JEROME — St. Benedict's Hospital will be inspected by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals on Sept. 24.

JCAH is a private, non-profit organization of health professionals that evaluates hospitals for performance and patient care quality.

St. Benedict's was notified of the inspection about two weeks ago, according to Robert Campbell, St. Benedict's chief executive officer. He said the hospital is preparing for the inspection and hopes to receive a two-year accreditation, the same ranking received in the last inspection.

Teachers to discuss contract

TWIN FALLS — Teachers will meet with their contract negotiating team today at O'Leary Junior High School.

Richard Chilcote, the chief negotiator, said the after-school meeting will be held for the exchange of information between the negotiators and the rank and file.

Twin Falls teachers have been working without a master agreement since school began late in August. The major issue is teacher pay. Teachers are asking for a base salary of $13,000, while the board has offered $11,500.

The board's position is that no additional money is available in the budget for increased base salaries.

The teachers contend that the money is there—and it will come later as an excess carry-over in the budget. No date has been set for the next negotiating session.

Two burglaries reported in city

TWIN FALLS — City police are investigating the burglary of approximately $700 worth of stereo equipment.

Susie Huff, 145 Robbins Ave., reported that her stereo receiver and almost $200 worth of records were stolen between Friday and Saturday nights.

Police are also investigating a burglary of food coupons.

According to the police report, someone entered the 3rd W. W. apartment of Rima Sullivan Monday and took $12 in food coupons from her purse.

Waste

Hyland said odors from the plant will not be eliminated but will be significantly reduced upon completion of the project. The present odor results partly from the overloading of existing facilities, he said.

Mountainville, Idaho Frozen Foods has identified three possible methods of disposing of its wastewater, IFF manager Lee Odenwald said. City officials were told this spring that IFF was considering withdrawing from the municipal plant because the company's projected waste treatment expenses placed it at a competitive disadvantage in the food processing industry.

Odenwald said property that could be a feasible site for disposal has been located, and the company has talked to the property owner about possible purchase. Environmental considerations are under study presently, he said.

Just when a decision concerning IFF's use of the city plant will be made is uncertain because of engineering considerations, according to Odenwald. If IFF does withdraw, that decision will not take effect until the company's plant is finished.

The original treatment plant's inability to handle the combined load of Idaho Frozen Foods' waste and general municipal wastes required the present construction, Hyland said, however, that some improvements would have been necessary regardless of whether the company builds its own plant.

City officials have said a number of factors made it economically unfeasible to stop work at the facility pending a decision from IFF.

Court

Delhaan had agreed to the arrangement and offered no objection. But Meehl said he was reluctant to make such a move without first having a presentence investigation of the defendant. He ordered an investigation, and Bessette was returned to the Twin Falls County Jail.

In another case, Thomas L. Johnson, 40, of Carlton, Ore., pleaded guilty to embezzlement by lessee. He was accused of failing to return an automobile leased to him by Southern Idaho Leasing, 1486 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

Johnson's lawyer, Mike Walz, the county's public defender, asked Meehl to sentence his client immediately in view of the fact that Johnson had remained in the Twin Falls County Jail for 80 days.

Walz also sought probation for his client, saying that he might arrange an arrangement. Johnson would make restitution to the leasing agency. Meehl suspended a five-year prison sentence and placed Johnson on a two-year probation.

Finally, in 5th District Magistrate Court, a Twin Falls man charged with possession and exhibition of a deadly weapon was freed on $100 bond.

Paul S. Flinn was arrested Sunday and jailed in lieu of a $2,000 bond. His release followed a bond-reduction hearing.

In another development in the case, Tina Flinn disputed earlier reports that her husband had threatened to shoot her baby. And officials also decided against charging the man with possession of a controlled substance.

Fight

Leonard calm, Hearn serious; both predict victory

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The demeanor was totally different — casual and relaxed for Sugar Ray Leonard and strictly business for Thomas Hearn — but the predictions were the same — victory in Wednesday night's world welterweight title fight.

Leonard and Hearn met the news media Monday for the final time before their showdown Wednesday at Caesars Palace and continued to demonstrate a blend of respect and confidence.

Even their attire reflected their attitudes. Leonard appeared first, wearing a captain's hat and a nautical outfit, and joked his way through nearly 30 minutes of questioning. Shortly after Leonard left, Hearn appeared in a gray business suit topped off with a blue tie.

"I'm going to make some waves and sail through Tommy Hearn," Leonard said with a giggle when asked about his outfit.

Leonard again maintained that his versatility would be the major factor in the fight.

"The main thing I'm going to do is hop on Tommy Hearn's right away," said the World Boxing Council welterweight champion. "I'm going to be there but I won't be a stationary target. I want to make him think. That's when he's in trouble."

"I can do more things in the ring than Tommy Hearn and that's a big factor in my favor. He can only fight one way — straight ahead. I approach every fight totally different. I can adapt for every fight. People tell me I've never fought anyone like Tommy Hearn. Well, he's never fought a Sugar Ray Leonard and I feel I can do the things it takes to beat Tommy Hearn."

Leonard's fight plan appears to be based on movement — side-side to blunt Hearn's awesome punching power and in-and-out to take away his tremendous height advantage.

"Lateral movement is the key," Leonard said. "I'm going to keep him off balance and capitalize on his mistakes. Every time he throws a punch, he's off-balance and I'm going to make him pay for it. I'll make him think about throwing punches because he's going to get hit by whoever he does."

"Hearn's reach is unreal — let's face it, he's a freak. I've got to keep him tied up and outmaneuver him, keep him off balance."

There have been predictions of another series of championship bouts in the Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier tradition. Leonard feels differently.

"I don't think there will be a rematch," he said. "Hearn has the attitude that he's unbeatable. He really thinks that all he has to do is land a big punch and a guy's jaw is broken. I think after this fight he'll crawl into a shell."

Hearn, who holds the World Boxing Association version of the welterweight title, did not crack a smile during his 30-minute session but still appeared totally relaxed as he answered questions.

"Ray has never fought a man as big as me," he said. "This is the first fight in which he will not be able to dominate his man. He'll have to fight totally different from any way he's fought before. He won't be able to throw punches the way he's used to."

Hearn said he was pleased with his conditioning and felt totally confident entering the bout.

"I'm very relaxed — I feel very good," he said. "There are no problems. I'm ready to go and I'm very confident. I know my abilities. I know what I can do. Actually, this is going to be the easiest fight I've ever had. My training has been great and everything I tried has been working perfectly. I can't see any way this man can take away what I want to do."

Tommy Hearn takes aim at a punching mitt during a final workout for Wednesday's fight

Leonard did gain one victory Monday — a coin toss. Boxing protocol calls for a champion to enter the ring last and be announced last but since both Hearn and Leonard are champions, promoter Dan Duva of Main Event, Inc., decided to hold a coin flip. Leonard won and chose to enter the ring last. Hearn will be announced last in the pre-fight introductions.

Raiders crush Vikings

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) Jim Plunkett threw for two touchdowns and the Oakland defense scored two more on an interception and a fumble recovery, helping the Raiders continue their earned life on Monday night with a 36-10 victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

Plunkett completed 11-of-24 passes for 169 yards, including a 21-yard TD pass to Todd Christensen, and a 12-yard scoring strike to 16 Morris Bradshaw. Plunkett's replacement, Marc Wilson, threw a 61-yard TD late in the fourth quarter.

The victory improved Oakland's Monday night record to 17-1, tops in pro football.

Both teams had difficulty generating offense in the first period. Oils McKinney hit Viking quarterback Steve Dils and right end Dave Browning recovered the ball to set up the Raiders' first scoring drive. Chris Bahr capped the Raiders' 60-yard drive with a 21-yard field goal to give Oakland a 3-0 lead at the end of the first period.

Safety Burgess Owens intercepted Dils at the Minnesota 39 and scored to give the Raiders a 10-0 lead after Bahr's point-after attempt in the second quarter. The Vikings were forced to turn the ball over on their next possession and the Raiders marched from midfield to the Vikings' 21 where Plunkett hit Christensen for a TD. Linebacker Matt Blair blocked Bahr's point-after attempt to give the Raiders a 16-0 lead.

Eddie Payton returned Bahr's kickoff 99 yards to put the Vikings on the scoreboard, 16-7, with 1:35 left in the half. The return was the second longest in Vikings' history. The longest was 101 yards by Lance Rentzel.

Dils guided the Vikings to the Oakland 36 in the third quarter, but threw two incomplete passes to put the Vikings at 3rd-and-10. Dils recovered the ball and threw to Sammy White out of bounds, but a spearing penalty allowed Minnesota to maintain possession. Four plays later, Rick Danmeier kicked a 37-yard field goal to pull Minnesota within a touchdown, 16-10.

The Raiders answered with Plunkett's 15-yard TD pass to Bradshaw with 8:54 left in the third period to pad the lead.

Irish take No. 1 spot

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Notre Dame, which helped Coach Gerry Faust kick off his college coaching career with a convincing victory, was named the No. 1 team in the nation Monday in balloting by UPI's Board of Coaches.

The Fighting Irish, denied a chance for a national championship last year when they were tied by Georgia Tech, catapulted ahead of Michigan and Alabama — which both lost last week — and Oklahoma, a 37-20 winner over Wyoming, to reach the No. 1 rating.

In balloting by the 42 coaches who comprise UPI's Board, Notre Dame, a 27-1 winner over Louisiana State last Saturday, received 11 first-place votes and 567 points. Southern California, ranked fifth in UPI's pre-season ratings, moved up three places to No. 2 after posting a 43-7 triumph over Tennessee. The Trojans received 10 first-place votes and accumulated 560 points.

Oklahoma received more first-place votes (14-11) than Notre Dame, but failed to gather as much support for second and third-place voting as the Sooners totaled 543 points for the No. 3 ranking.

Georgia, the defending national champion, received the remaining seven first-place votes and moved up four spots to No. 4 following its 27-13 victory over California. Penn State advanced two places to No. 5 with a 52-0 trouncing of Cincinnati.

Rounding out the Top 10 in UPI's first regular-season ratings are No. 6 Texas, No. 7 Pittsburgh, No. 8 Ohio State, No. 9 North Carolina and No. 10 UCLA.

"That's great," said Faust, who spent six seasons coaching at McJannet High School in Cincinnati before replacing Dan Devine at Notre Dame, after learning his team was No. 1, "but I'd rather have it at the end of year. However, we'll take it any time we can get it."

Michigan, the pre-season choice as the No. 1 team, was upset 21-14 by Wisconsin and tumbled to No. 12. The Wolverines will get the first shot at top-ranked Notre Dame when the teams meet Saturday at Ann Arbor, Mich.

The complete list of the top 20 appears in Scores and Stats on Page B4.

Leonard agrees — he hates Steward

By JOHN SCHULIAN
1981 Chicago Sun-Times

LAS VEGAS — Hatred is a tacky emotion, and Sugar Ray Leonard is supposed to be beyond tackiness.

He has too nice a smile for it, too sweet a wife and too swell a life. There are too many chips waiting for him to cash, and that kid of his is too cuddly to be exposed to the ugly side of humanity. Surely, Leonard understands that, even tries to make his choices accordingly, but when he thinks of Emanuel Steward, the brains behind Thomas Hearn, his goodness turns bad.

"Ray Leonard has a violent hatred of me," Steward says.

"How true that is," the Sugar Man coos. The backdrop for his uncharismatic hardheartedness is a picture of Steward that frequently is painted in the Leonard camp. Everyone from bucket carriers all the way up to guiding light Jack Morton sees the 37-year-old Detroit hustler as a grafter of the worst sort, a con man taking advantage of the street urchins who do his fighting for him. "He won't even let Tommy Hearn get the attention he deserves," Leonard says. "I think more people know about Emanuel Steward than Tommy Hearn."

How ironic that Leonard should try to turn ego into a weapon. Steward himself seizes on it every turn while killing time before the world's two best welterweights unify their championships and split $16 million in 15 rounds at Caesars Palace Wednesday. The only difference is that the ego he claims is the sore point in this contempt belongs to Leonard.

"I'm seeing to it that my fighter is properly represented, and Ray don't like it," Steward says. "So what if Ray got the World Boxing Council title? Tommy got the World Boxing Association title. He isn't some damn little contender. He's a champion and Ray got to share the stage with him. He got to share the stage with me, too, and it's destroying him. You hear me? It's destroying him."

While Leonard has yet to be found in bits and pieces, it is easy to see how Steward has succeeded in forcing him to go halves on pre-fight hype. The posters decorating Las Vegas don't focus on Leonard the way they usually do; all around their borders, it's Hearn/Leonard/Hearn/Leonard/Hearn/Leonard. The same holds true on the billboard in front of Caesars. So south and you'll see Leonard's name first, to north and you'll see Hearn's.

"This never has happened to Ray before," Steward says.

Obviously, Leonard and his imagemakers never has had such a worthy adversary.

In the case before us, the adversary is a classic example of what you can do if you have drive and brains and a passionate unwillingness to take no for an answer. What makes the example all the better is that when Steward began clawing his way up through the fight racket, he was just another scared little puppy. "The first time I stayed in a hotel, it was 1963 and I was fighting Golden Gloves in Chicago for the Detroit team," says Steward. "I was so green I didn't even know how the elevator worked."

Ah, but he learned, and that was only the first of the lessons he walloped down. When he had finished them all, he knew he was going to be far more than the common laborer he started out to be. He had a fat job at Detroit Edison, the friendship of Mayor Coleman Young and, most important of all, a vision of greatness.

It was born with the amateur team Steward trained in the basement of the Krunk Gymnasium, and it has reached maturity with the kids who have made him an inescapable presence among the professionals. First there was Hilmer Kenty, who thundered in from the other side of nowhere for a brief reign as the WBA's lightweight champ. Now there is the undefeated Hearn, who punches as if he had a brick in each fist and still comes on so nice that even Leonard can't equate him with the devil.

"Tommy's fine," Leonard says. "Hi, Steward I don't like. I'd tell you I'd fight him, but it would be a mismatch."

That must be why old friend Morton almost came to blows with Steward last week. Somebody from Leonard's road show had to let Steward know how they feel. So Morton came on strong with those undocumented charges about "shortchanging Hearn." "I told him, 'Yeah, and just where'd you get the money to buy that $600,000 house in Phoenix?'" Steward says. Morton's answer was to pretend that he was a wrecking ball and Steward was a wall that had to be knocked down.

The unscheduled one-rounder was quickly broken up, but Steward looks back at it as if he had thrown a knockout punch the equal of any Hearn has ever unleashed. The next day, you see, Morton let it be known that it was time to call a ceasefire. "And I'll tell you something else," Steward says. "They want to say any more of these immoral things and I'll hit them with a load of spit like they've never seen."

If Sugar won't be sweet, neither will he.

Doctors: Depression caused actions

Templeton makes public apology

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Shortstop Garry Templeton, suspended by the St. Louis Cardinals for making a series of obscene gestures toward fans, publicly apologized Monday for the actions.

Templeton said he would accompany the team to Montreal today, and expects to play "within a few days."

"I'm sorry and I apologize to anyone who might have been offended," he said at a news conference.

Templeton had been receiving treatment in a hospital since he was placed on the 15-day disabled list and fined $5,000 by Manager Whitey Herzog for making obscene gestures during an Aug. 26 game against San Francisco.

Templeton was ejected from the game and pulled from the field by Herzog after the series of gestures, which began in the first inning after he was booed by the Ladies-Day crowd for falling to run out a dropped third strike.

Members of the team separated Herzog and Templeton before any blows could be swung.

Herzog said after the game Templeton would have to make a full public apology to his teammates and the fans before he would be allowed to return to the team.

The Cardinals, who are 2 1/2 games ahead of Montreal in the National League East, open a crucial five-game, three-day series against the Expos in Montreal tonight.

Templeton, who earlier this season demanded to be traded for the third time in two years, had created a minor disturbance before the players' strike when he was switched from batting leadoff to second in the lineup. He was inserted back in the leadoff spot after the strike.

The 25-year-old Templeton, who is in the second year of a six-year contract reportedly worth about $650,000 a year, was hitting .262 with one home run and 23 runs batted in when he was suspended.

Templeton was introduced to the packed news conference by a Cardinals front office official but sat alone in front of the cameras during the 15-minute meeting with reporters. Herzog was absent.

"I want to apologize for the incident of Aug. 26," Templeton said in a brief statement. "I know I did a big injustice to the fans. I just want to say I'm sorry."

Templeton said doctors had diagnosed his problem as "depression" that had been building for three to four years. Asked if it was drug-related, he replied negatively and added: "That's a medical question I'm not qualified to answer."

Templeton said he is taking medication and will continue to see a psychiatrist.

"To some degree I have to because you can't deal depression in one week, two weeks or a year," he said. "Actually, I don't think I can explain (the problems). Not right now. At the end of the year maybe I'll have more insight. I don't think I've licked them (the problems)."

Templeton, who said he always had a good relationship with Herzog, said drug and alcohol problems conquered by other players, including teammate Darrell Porter, had given him encouragement.

"I think that's one reason I sought the help I needed," he said. "I wasn't the first, I won't be the last."

GARRY TEMPLETON will join team in a few days

Twins keep West a hot race

By United Press International

American League

The Minnesota Twins won their seventh straight Monday night to stay just behind Kansas City and Oakland in the suddenly-hot American League West.

Ron Washington capped a three-run eighth inning with a two-run single to back the combined five-hit pitching of Brad Havens and Doug Corbett and help Minnesota to a 6-3 defeat of the Toronto Blue Jays.

The Twins broke a 3-3 deadlock in the eighth inning when they sent nine men to the plate against four pitchers. After John Castino drilled a double to chase losing starter Jim Clancy, 5-0, reliever Jerry Garvin intentionally walked pinch-hitter Roy Smalley and gave way to reliever Roy Lee Jackson.

Jackson threw a wild pitch, then intentionally walked pinch hitter Gary Ward. He gave another walk to pinch hitter Glenn Adams to force in the go-ahead run and Washington followed with his two-run single.

"The Twins took a 1-0 lead in the first on Castino's two-out run-scoring single, but Toronto went ahead 3-1 in the second when Buck Martinez lashed a two-run double and scored when shortstop Washington bobbled Alfredo Griffin's infield single.

Minnesota pulled within 3-2 in the third when Hosken Powell blasted a leadoff homer and the Twins tied it 3-3 in the fifth on back-to-back doubles by Washington and Wilfong.

Oakland 4, Texas 2

At Arlington, Texas, a bases-loaded, two-run bloop single by Cliff Johnson highlighted a three-run second inning to carry the A's, Rick Langford, the AL leader in complete games, went the distance for the 15th time, allowing six hits and leveling his record at 9-5. The loser was Doc Medich, 8-5.

New York 10, Milwaukee 2

At Milwaukee, Reggie Jackson cracked his 10th home run and doubled to knock in four runs and Bob Watson and Lou Piniella belted solo homers in piling the Yankees and boosting Tommy John's record to 9-5. Milwaukee starter Mike Caldwell, 11-6, left in the fourth after hitting Craig Nettles with a pitch.

Boston 5, Detroit 2
At Boston, Jerry Remy lined a two-run single in the sixth inning to lead the Red Sox and snap the Tigers' three-game winning streak. Reliever Bob Stanley picked up his ninth victory, while Dan Petry, 8-7, took the loss for Detroit.

Chicago 5, Seattle 2
At Seattle, Dennis Lamm allowed only five singles in pitching the White Sox to a victory over the Mariners.

Lamp, 6-4, struck out five and walked one in going the distance for the second time this season. Floyd Bannister, 6-8, suffered the loss. Jim Morrison homered for the White Sox.

Kansas City 4, California 3
At Anaheim, Calif., Frank White hit a two-run homer off reliever Andy Hassler in the eighth inning, lifting the Royals to a win over the Angels.

Berenyi, Bench power Cincinnati

HOUSTON (UPI) — Cincinnati Reds' right-hander Bruce Berenyi threw the "best stuff" opposing manager Bill Virdon has seen all year Monday night — the type of performance which teammate Johnny Bench said the Reds must generate with only 19 games remaining.

The Reds, who moved to within 3 1/2 games of first place Houston in the National League West, rode Berenyi's blazing fastball and slider to a 4-2 victory that snapped the Astros' 12-game winning streak.

"With 13 games left," said Bench, "we've got to either move it or milk it."

Bench, who was hitting .347 coming in, supported Berenyi's four-hitter with three hits and three runs batted in. Dave Concepcion also rapped three hits and Ken Griffey and Joe Nolan had two each.

Bench said the Reds will need help to win the second-half title because there are four teams ahead of them, but Berenyi disagreed.

National League

"We can do it. We can win this thing with the talent you see in this room," he said.

His performance laid a loss on the Astros in their home park for the first time in almost a month, and he did it with two pitches, a fastball and a slider.

"Both my pitches were working," he said. "I told myself before the game that I was going to mix in a couple of change-ups, but I didn't do it. The fastball and slider were doing well enough."

The loss was the first for the Astros at home since Aug. 17, and the loss was only their second at home in the second half of the season.

Los Angeles 10, San Diego 5
At San Diego, Davey Lopes drove in four runs, three of them with a home run that highlighted a six-run seventh inning and paced the Dodgers to a victory over the Padres.

Lopes, who entered the game hitting .202, delivered his fifth homer of the year after pinch hitter Mike Scioscia and rookie Mike Marshall punched out RBI singles earlier in the inning to break a 4-4 tie. Pedro Guerrero wound up the inning with an RBI double.

San Francisco 4, Atlanta 2
At San Francisco, Jerry Martin singled in two runs, tripped and scored another, sending the Giants to a win over the Braves.

The Giants scored three unearned runs in the first inning off loser Tommy Boggs. 3-11. Two errors and a walk loaded the bases. Boogs then walked Matt May to force in the first run and Martin followed with his two-run single.

In the fourth, Martin led off with a triple and scored on Johnnie LeMaster's squeeze bunt.

Shoshone defeats Declo to go 6-0

DECLO — Shoshone stayed undefeated in girls' high school volleyball play with a 15-9, 5-6 win over Declo Monday night.

The Indians, 6-0, were led by the serving of Diana Perkins and the spiking of Susan Doney as they won the Canyon Conference contest.

Shoshone also took the junior varsity match in two straight.

Gooding tops Buhl
BUHL — Gooding, the defending Canyon Conference champion, had an easy time with Buhl, taking back-to-back games at 15-3.

Cindy Sears' serving, Connie Mead's setting and Gwen Reed's spiking were all key factors in the Senators' victory in the conference match. Buhl dropped to 0-6 for the season.

Volleyball

Gooding also took the junior varsity competition, 15-11 and 15-8.

Wendell drops pair
WENDELL — The Trojans hosted Camas County and Jerome in matches Monday and suffered losses to both.

The Musers took Wendell in the opener 15-9, 15-13 in games that were close all the way.

Jerome then added a 15-6, 15-4 triumph in quick fashion. Jerome and Camas County did not play each other to make the triangular complete.

Camas County and Jerome also took junior varsity wins over Wendell with both decisions going to three games.

Wendell is 2-5 for all matches this fall.

Filer handles Valley
FILER — The first match was tight, 16-14, but Filer easily won the second, 15-11, in taking a Canyon Conference contest.

Tami Blass led the Wildcats from the serving line and Gina Ochsenr had a strong setting night as Filer moved its league mark to 2-1 and overall register to 4-3.

Filer won the junior varsity match by 15-10, 15-13.

Situation makes contrast greater between Borg, McEnroe

NEW YORK (UPI) — The contrast between conqueror and vanquished was more somber than a mere score would indicate.

While John McEnroe was hearing the plaudits of the crowd, joyfully embracing his family, and receiving the winner's check and trophy, Bjorn Borg was being hustled away by plianciethos officers, another dream left behind and for the moment more concerned about his safety.

For the third year in a row, McEnroe emerged as the U.S. Open champion, at the same time firmly establishing himself as the world's No. 1 player. With his 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 victory Sunday, he also became the first man since Jimmy Connors in 1974 to win Wimbledon and the Open in the same year.

In the last three majors McEnroe has won, Borg was his victim in the final.

Borg, meantime, has scored five consecutive Wimbledon crowns already ended earlier this year, was felled in his 10th attempt in the U.S. Open, the prize he now covets most.

"Soon he's going to win this tournament, but I hope it's not while I'm around," McEnroe said while accepting his trophy.

The futures of the two players also seem to be in stark contrast. McEnroe, still only 22, continues to envision a big future. He is one of the busiest players on the circuit, competing in doubles as well as singles. In addition to the singles, he teamed with Peter Fleming to win the doubles championship at Flushing Meadow, the second time in three years he has achieved this feat.

Borg, though, at 25, has cut down on his tennis commitments. Between the two U.S. Opens, he played in only 11 tournaments, winning four, and competed in only one between this year's Wimbledon and the Open.

JOHN McENROE receives plaudits

BJORN BORG hustled away by officers

Adopting the same attitude as Jack Nicklaus does in golf — but at an earlier stage in life — Borg no longer feels motivated for the weekly grind of tennis and prefers to key himself for the more important championships. "I'm real eager to play all the big tournaments," he said. "To win that last point in a big final is a tennis player's dream. It's the happiest part of a player's life." McEnroe, however, keeps swinging his racket. He had some exhibitions scheduled for this week and a tournament in San Francisco starting Sept. 21 before he again owns his U.S. jacket for a Davis Cup meeting against Australia.

All that is left now for McEnroe, it would seem, is to improve his performance on clay so that he could win the French Open, a major championship that Borg has captured six times.

"I don't think I could beat him on clay right now," the left-handed New Yorker said. "I've been told if you want to be considered one of the world's greats, you have to win the French Open. Right now it's not high on my list. Maybe one year I'll give it more attention."

"Now I go over there a week before and hope for the best, and that's not the way to approach it."

For Borg, after playing his best match of the tournament against Jimmy Connors Saturday night, serving 14 aces in the process, his 10th consecutive failure in the Open was a bitter occasion. He had been in the press against his life phoned to the National Tennis Center during the weekend, and immediately following Sunday's loss he was escorted off the premises by plianciethos officers.

"I've always thought that it's harder to stay at No. 1 than to get there," McEnroe said. "I think he has been feeling the pressure a lot more these past couple of years. He has nothing to gain except maybe here. Because of the press and everything else, he has put so much pressure on himself to win this, and if he doesn't it's like he had a lousy year or something."

"I think it's obvious he wanted to win here. I mean he was so worried or something that it was obvious he just didn't play his game."

For the moment, McEnroe hasn't ruled the kingdom long enough to feel the kind of pressure Borg did. Nor has he been denied the one prize he wanted most.

NFL

Bills not planning changes

HOUSTON (UPI) — Head Coach Ed Biles Monday said poor execution was causing the Houston Oilers' offense to gain only 11 first downs per game and to convert only 19 percent of third-down, but with his team's unbeaten record, he wasn't planning any personnel changes. "We haven't gotten our act together yet," he said. "I could sit here and make all this but I won't. We're just not getting the job done. We are not executing. You learn to do that in practice."

was sluggish, conservative and inconsistent. "We may have won two games but we're not a good team," Biles said. Nevertheless, the Oilers sit atop the American Football Conference Central Division along with the Cincinnati Bengals at 2-0. More surprisingly, the Browns and the Pittsburgh Steelers both are 0-2. Biles said the most obvious reasons for the offensive problems were quarterback Ken Stabler's lack of playing time; left tackle Leon Gray's recent recovery from Achilles' tendon surgery and a recent shoulder injury suffered by running back Earl Campbell.

Against the Browns, Campbell was held to 42 yards on 17 carries. Biles Monday said Campbell probably should not have played. "We asked him to play, quite frankly. He was a little bit hurt," Biles said. Campbell, the three-time NFL rushing king, bruised a shoulder in the Oilers' regular season opener. "We knew he wasn't up to par. We knew before the game he wasn't up to par," Biles said. "But we thought we could use him as a decoy to make our passing game open up. As the game wore on I got concerned that he might get necked more and I opted for somebody fresh."

ED BILES Oilers not executing

Lomax given OK

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Coach Jim Hanftan said Monday rookie quarterback Neil Lomax passed his first test as the St. Louis Cardinals' quarterback of the future. "Neil Lomax was a plus," said Hanftan. "He showed big-play ability." In his second game, just his first start, he showed me some things out there. He can only get better and better as a pro quarterback."

"He's a heady quarterback," Dallas quarterback Danny White said of Lomax. "He's alert and he moves real well. He found receivers on the run, and he beat a couple of blitzes. You don't expect a rookie to do that." Lomax finished with 285 passing yards to 240 for White, but White hit 21-of-29 attempts and blended the passing attack with the running of Tony Dorsett, who carried 16 times for 129 yards. "I think that may be the best I've ever seen him play," Hanftan said of Dorsett. "I mean, he was not to be denied. He saw a little daylight and he took it." The St. Louis defense could not stop the Cowboys in the first half as they scored on their first five possessions.

Bears hold player meeting following 0-2 start

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI) — Chicago Bears players held a closed door, one-on-one meeting Monday to air out differences and seek solutions to the team's slow start this season. The Bears dropped to 0-2 following Sunday's 23-13 loss to the San Francisco 49ers. Following the team's reviewing of films with the coaching staff, veteran lineman Jim Osborne called for a closed meeting. The players revealed little of what went on during the session but fullback Matt Suhey said one of the topics was the players' lack of emotion during the pre-season and regular season games. "As a whole players here were short on emotion," Suhey noted. "A lot of the players felt embarrassed if they showed any emotion." Defensive lineman Al Harris said there was little "finger pointing" in the meeting but said the subject of enthusiasm kept coming up during the session. "You can't have a losers' attitude," Harris said. "If you think so much about the problems, you lose your enthusiasm." Harris denied there was any problem concerning rapport between the players and the coaching staff. "No, I don't think that was a problem. You have to look inside yourself for enthusiasm. It isn't up to the coaches," Harris said. Coach Neill Armstrong, known as a mild-mannered coach, was not to blame for the team's seemingly lackluster performance in the opening two losses to Green Bay and the 49ers, Suhey said. "The coach doesn't have that much to do with it," Suhey said. "It's up to the individual." But Armstrong said it was a requirement for the coaching staff to motivate the players. "I was glad to see the meeting. They asked me if they could have one and I said yes," Armstrong said. "I've seen a meeting here before a while back. It lasted five minutes. The fact that this one lasted an hour was an encouraging sign to me." Armstrong did break with previous routine by having both the offensive and defensive units view films together. "We hadn't done that in a couple of years," Armstrong said. "I thought it was a good idea that we have both units see what each other is doing." The Bears lost to San Francisco on Sunday after two key fumbles by star running back Walter Payton, including one on the 49ers' one-yard line when the score was 21-7. Armstrong defended Payton, saying he was the team's top "money player." "Ninety-nine times out of 100 you give the ball to Walter," Armstrong said. "I don't know why we are fumbling on the one-inch line. That's part of the problem, I guess."

NFL briefs

Starr defends Packers' play

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Green Bay Packers Coach Bart Starr said Monday that after looking at game films he did not feel his team became conservative in the third quarter of a 31-17 loss to Atlanta.

The Packers led 14-0 at the half but scored just a field goal in the third period. They led 17-0 going into the fourth quarter only to have the Falcons get all their points in the final quarter for a shocking come-from-behind victory.

Starr was asked after the game if his team became too conservative in the third period and he said he thought they might have. "But he backedtrack on that Monday in a news conference. "I was so numb at the time, I don't know what I said or why I said it," Starr said. "In analyzing it, we really weren't conservative at all."

"It's just that ... didn't execute properly. We threw the ball considerably ... we were anything but conservative. We just didn't get it done."

Denver's Minor out for week

DENVER (UPI) — The Denver Broncos starting right tackle, Claude Minor, will miss at least one game with a knee injury, the team said Monday.

Minor suffered torn cartilage in his right knee in Denver's 15-10 win over the Seattle Seahawks Sunday. He underwent an arthroscopic operation to repair the damage Monday and will miss at least Denver's game Sunday against Baltimore.

Lions treating loss as a win

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Their record is 1-1 and the scoreboard says they lost at San Diego, but the Detroit Lions are trying to treat Sunday's 28-23 loss to the Chargers like a victory. Coach Norm Clark said Monday.

"It doesn't leave me with that normal Clark feeling," Clark said. "Gary Danielson with seven passes by quarterback Dan Fouts was intercepted by Frank Duncan a fool from the end zone."

"It was because of the way our team played against an exceptional team like San Diego," Clark said.

"This was an important milestone for us," he said. "We talked all week about playing a team like San Diego. We felt we could do it. Now, to actually have done it, in fact we could have won, shows we can compete at that level."

Redskins hold long practice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On Monday, Washington Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs spent practice going over mistakes from the previous day's game.

Monday's practice lasted a long time. Gibbs had plenty to talk about following the Redskins' 17-7 loss Sunday to the New York Giants.

"The worst part is to play that badly and look that bad," said Gibbs. "We just looked bad all day. We found a way not to make any of 10 plays that would have won the game."

"We threw one particular pass five times. Once it was caught an inch out of bounds. Another time, the receiver lined up illegally. Another time, we blew the assignment on picking up the blitz and the quarterback gets sacked."

Gibbs, with losses in the first two games as an NFL head coach, wore a harried look as he searched for explanations for the worst showing by the Redskins, 0-2, in some time.

Vermell says Eagles ready

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Eagles Coach Dick Vermell said Monday he didn't expect many problems getting his team ready for a game against the high-flying Buffalo Bills with only three days of preparation time.

The Eagles are coming off a bruising 13-3 victory over the New England Patriots Sunday and must travel to Buffalo to play the Bills in a nationally televised game Thursday night.

Vermell said trying to get ready for a game in a short time presents more minutes than pluses, "but a coach always has a tendency to look at the minutes."

"It kind of equals out for everybody," he said at his weekly press luncheon. "You don't look forward to the short time of preparation and playing but you look forward to the long rest after the game."

"Our guys won't be any less football players in ability) on Thursday night than they were yesterday. I think you'll see a good football game. I know we're playing the best football team we've played against, maybe one of the best teams we'll play all year."

Noll: Steelers need resolve

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Steelers Coach Chuck Noll is rejecting flatly the popular opinion that his 0-2 team needs an infusion of new and younger blood as well as revamped coaching strategies to get back on the winning track.

All the Steelers need, Noll said Monday, is stronger resolve "to get the job done."

"I think we can learn something from Miami," said Noll, referring to the Dolphins' 30-10 thrashing of Pittsburgh at Miami last Thursday night.

"We were out-executed by Miami, and primarily we were out-executed by two guys who played badly against us last year (when the Steelers won, 23-10, at home)," he said. "We were out-executed by (rumbling back Tony) Nathan, who had eight catches against us, ran the ball well and blocked well, the same guy who couldn't do anything against us last year."

"And you can say the same thing for (linebacker A. J. DuRoi)," Noll said.

"They didn't need new personnel; they needed a little more resolve, and that's what we need — a little more resolve," he said.

Cunningham back with Pats

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Sam "Bam" Cunningham, the No. 2 rusher in New England Patriots history who sat out the 1980 season over a contract dispute, rejoined his teammates Monday after formally agreeing to a two-year deal.

Cunningham, whose last rushing play was on Dec. 9, 1979, had verbally agreed to terms Jan. 23 in a home office. The signing was delayed until Monday as the Patriots could bring a full two weeks to get the 400-lb., 230-pounder back into playing condition.

"I didn't want to come in and disturb everything. I assume I'll be used more in a role-type category. I don't want to come in and cause a ruckus," said the 30-year-old Southern Cal product, who participated in non-contact drills Monday.

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Recreation Department will sponsor a soccer program for boys and girls starting Saturday at Robert Stuart Junior High.

Grades five and six will start at 9 a.m. followed by grades three and four at 10 and grades one and two at 11.

The program will run approximately eight weeks depending on registration and weather. For more information call 733-0406 or 733-0860.

YFCA flag football to open season

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley YFCA's annual flag football program starts Saturday at Harmon Park.

The sign ups will take place just east of the swimming pool with first and second graders starting at 1 p.m., third and fourth graders at 2 and grades five and six at 3 p.m.

The first practice game is Sept. 26 and any people planning to coach a team should attend the registration.

For further information call the YFCA at 733-4384.

Canyon Springs women set tourney

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Canyon Springs Women's Golf Association will host an invitational Sept. 22.

The field is limited to 72 players with a shotgun start scheduled for 9 a.m. The entry deadline is Thursday and the entry fee is $15.

For more information call 734-7609.

Men spikers to meet Wednesday

TWIN FALLS — An organization meeting for all men interested in playing volleyball is slated for Wednesday at 7 p.m. at The Twin Falls Municipal Building.

The meeting is scheduled to discuss playing times, schedules, game sites and general information concerning this year's season.

Co-ed softball is meeting topic

TWIN FALLS — There will be a meeting Wednesday for all people interested in forming a co-ed slowpitch softball league next summer.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Twin Falls Municipal Building.

The gathering is to discuss the prospects and get a tally on the interest of the possible program.

Hunting seminar set for Thursday

TWIN FALLS — A free big game seminar for families interested in hunting is scheduled for the College of Southern Idaho Shield Building Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m.

Stu Murrell of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game will discuss hunting techniques, proper gear, field care of game and other subjects.

Murrell will also get into the aspect of cooking wild game.

Jazz Spurs set Minidome contest

POCAHELLO — The Utah Jazz and the San Antonio Spurs of the NBA will battle in the Idaho State Minidome October 10 at 8 p.m.

The proceeds from the contest will go to benefit the St. Anthony Community Hospital Rehabilitation Center.

Tickets will go on sale Sept. 21 and can be purchased at Budget Tapes and Records in Twin Falls and several other locations around Idaho. Tickets are priced at $5 and $6.

The second annual event helps the hospital with the upgrading of equipment and refinement of services to meet the needs of the region.

Defensive backs share WAC honors

DENVER (UPI) — Defensive backs Lee Mitchell of Wyoming and Steve-Brady of Brigham Young, who both excelled against a West-Atlantic Conference offensive, Monday were selected the Western Athletic Conference defensive players of the week.

The 6-0 Brady, a pass interception and a pass deflection in the Cougar's 45-21 league victory over Air Force. His interception, and a 26-yard return to the Falcon 12, set up a BYU touchdown.

Mitchell, a 5-10 senior, halted one Oklahoma drive with an interception, deflected another pass and had three unassisted and three assisted tackles in Wyoming's 37-20 loss to the Sooners.

Myers wins Big Sky award in 1st game

BOISE (UPI) — Quarterback Mill Myers has only appeared in one game for a Big Sky Conference team and he's already won the league's offensive player of the week award.

Myers, a transfer from Southwest Los Angeles Junior College, passed for 333 yards and three touchdowns and ran for a fourth TD in his debut for Weber State Saturday night in leading the Wildcats to a 42-21 upset of Idaho.

And Monday the conference picked the 6-foot-2 Myers as its offensive player of the week. His passing performance ranks as the ninth best single-game showing in the Big Sky record books.

The league selected a pair of linebackers — Danny Rich of Weber State and Northern Arizona's Ron Thomas — to share its defensive player of the week award.

Rich was in on 15 tackles, including seven unassisted stops, in helping the Wildcats defeat the Idaho Vandals.

Thomas, a 6-foot-4 junior, made 11 tackles, assisted on six other tackles, and had one interception in NAU's 23-17 win over North Dakota State.

Campo predicts easy win for Colony

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pleasant Colony, continuing his bid for Horse of the Year, has been assigned 123 pounds for this Saturday's $400,000 Marlboro Cup at Belmont Park.

"I see where Amber Pass is dropping six pounds from the Woodward race," said Johnny Campo, Pleasant Colony's trainer.

"But it doesn't matter. My horse will win this one easier than he did the Woodward."

With Irish next, Michigan needs 'real' team

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan will have to find its real football team to play against Notre Dame and get rid of those imposters who got beat at Wisconsin, Coach Bo Schembechler said Monday.

"We'll just have to play like a Michigan team plays, and not like somebody I don't recognize," Schembechler said. "We don't need any miracles — just to play like a Michigan team plays."

Schembechler said his whole team just played poorly and he takes the blame for Saturday's 21-14 loss at Wisconsin. He predicted Michigan will be much better this Saturday when it hosts Notre Dame in a nationally televised game.

He said he got a phone call from his ex-boss and former foe Woody Hayes of Ohio State. Schembechler did not reveal what they talked about, but said, "I'm glad he called — I needed that."

Notre Dame has "a good offense, good people and a good defense," said Schembechler, who has been looking at films of Cincinnati Moeller High School games to get a line on the offensive formations rookie coach Gerry Faust will be using for his second game as coach of the Irish. Notre Dame defeated Louisiana

State, 27-9, in their opener.

Michigan came out of the game against Wisconsin injury free because "it's hard to get anybody hurt playing the way we did. There's not a lot of injuries in soccer games," he cracked.

Schembechler also defended his sophomore quarterback, Steve Smith, but admitted "he didn't have a good game. He didn't have a good running game and I don't think he will hurt us."

"I told him before the game that he is our quarterback no matter what happens. We could have won even with his performance," Schembechler said.

Junior tailback Larry Ricks will play more against Notre Dame, the coach said. Ricks only had two carries and Schembechler said he is "our best all around back."

Sophomore cornerback Evan Cooper will also be inserted into the defensive backfield but Schembechler did not disclose where. He said he's looking for good tacklers and "I know he's a good tackler."

"We can't lose anymore and still win the Big Ten," Schembechler said. "We're not out of the race."

"We have two weeks before we play in the league again. We will use those two weeks to get ready."

Upsets by others, puts UCLA to work

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Terry Donahue thought he was going to have a few games to whip his UCLA football team into shape, but it only took one weekend to knock him off his comfort seat.

Wisconsin, his opponent Saturday, started No. 1 Michigan, 21-14; Iowa, his opponent in two weeks, shocked Nebraska, 10-7; and Colorado, his opponent in three weeks, upset Texas Tech, 45-7.

"Everybody thought we had it made, didn't they," said Donahue, referring to reports of an easy UCLA schedule. "Doesn't look so easy now, does it?"

Wisconsin's upset of No. 1 Michigan is still being celebrated in Madison, where fans stayed in Camp Randall Stadium — where UCLA will play — nearly an hour after the game.

"For the athletic director (UCLA's Bob Fischer) Wisconsin beating Michigan is terrific," Donahue said Monday at his weekly breakfast with reporters. "It virtually assures us of a sellout crowd and that means a nice check to take home. From a head coach's standpoint, Wisconsin beating Michigan can't be so terrific."

Donahue said Wisconsin's victory over Michigan was no fluke.

"Wisconsin handled them physically," he said. "Their defense is one of the top two in the (Big 10) conference. They're very stout up front."

"Michigan was in trouble or we'll go over and around. If that doesn't work, we'll punt and play defense. Michigan's plan was definitely to run on Wisconsin."

For the first time in memory, Wisconsin made UPI's Top 20 this week, coming in at No. 20. UCLA, which beat Arizona 35-18 Saturday, is No. 10.

Donahue knows the suddenly ambitious Badgers will be gunning for them to be down," Donahue said. "A game like that really helps a program that has been down. I really don't have a hope for a letdown."

Donahue said he'd much rather face a team coming off a 58-0 drubbing to Michigan than an emotionally lifting victory.

"Beating Michigan has given Wisconsin tremendous confidence," he said. "If Wisconsin had been beaten badly by Michigan, there wouldn't be that confidence factor."

"I can't get them off the schedule now, and I was the one who wanted to play them."

The numerous upsets during the past weekend didn't surprise Donahue.

"There are no super powers today," he said. "This may help explain Wisconsin winning. There are no teams that are deep at every position like in the past when schools could stockpile talent. It's just the overall balance in college football."

Birds checked after pesticide scare

BOISE (UPI) — The recent scare of Montana waterfowl ingesting the pesticide Endrin has caused intensive testing of the birds in laboratories around the nation.

Dick Norell, game bird supervisor for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game said several labs are testing larger samples of the birds because the small group that showed signs of Endrin — build-up — was not a representative population.

Norell said there was no indication as of yet, to prompt a season closure of waterfowl in Idaho. The opening of waterfowl hunting is scheduled for Oct. 3.

He said the source for most of Idaho's migratory waterfowl come from Alberta, Canada, where there has been no evidence of spraying in the area.

Birds reared in Montana usually do not arrive in Idaho until November.

Norell said that although the possibility is remote, should further testing reveal the pesticide levels high enough in waterfowl coming to Idaho to pose a threat to human health, the department would immediately notify hunters and others who might come into contact with these birds.

Endrin is a pesticide used by army outworms.

Accused of hiding damaging reports

Bunker Hill lead pollution trial opens

BOISE (UPI) — Bunker Hill Co. and its Texas owners were accused in the opening volley of a civil trial Monday of withholding the results of tests that showed severe lead pollution in northern Idaho's Silver Valley.

A jury of seven women and five men was empaneled and opening arguments were begun in the scheduled six-week trial on a $20 million suit filed against two corporations on behalf of two Kellogg families.

Bunker Hill Co. and its parent firm, Gulf Resources & Chemical Corp., Houston, are accused in the suit of inflicting severe neurological and psychological damage upon nine children who lived near the Kellogg lead smelter in the early 1970s.

The trial opened after four years of exhaustive legal maneuvers by both sides as scores of depositions were collected and briefs and motions were filed.

Lawyers for the children kicked off the trial by outlining the history of Bunker Hill, its purchase and reformation under Gulf Resources, and what they said were the wrongful acts of corporate officials concerning lead pollution in the early 1970s.

Paul W. Whelan, Seattle, chief lawyer of the children, told jurors the plaintiffs would attempt to prove Gulf Resources and Bunker Hill conducted tests of lead concentrations in the soil and in the bodies of school children in Kellogg, but failed to report the results to government officials or the families involved.

He said Bunker employees took a soil sample from the ground in front of the home of one of the families and determined 4 percent of the soil from the top to one inch below the surface was lead. He said Bunker did not report it to the family or to state or federal health agencies.

Whelan also claimed that various tests from 1972-74 conducted by corporate, government and other institutions indicated lead levels in the bodies of dozens of children in the mining town were "200 to 300 times" above acceptable levels.

"In spite of these tests, nothing was done," Whelan said. "There was no action to warn parents or state health officials."

Whelan also accused Gulf of using profits from Bunker's silver, lead and zinc mining and processing complex in Kellogg to "build its corporate structure, yet return nothing to the Idaho community."

He contended Bunker Hill was four times larger than Gulf when the Houston corporation acquired it in 1968, but since has used Bunker's profits solely to expand the corporation instead of lessening pollution and helping the community.

The effects of exposure to lead — both through breathing and ingestion — are more serious in children because their bodies are not able to ward off toxic substances as well as those of adults, Whelan said.

"Lead is so toxic. It takes very little to do the kind of harm we're talking about," Whelan said.

Placed in the center of the courtroom was a scaled-down reproduction of the Silver Valley. It was used by Whelan Monday to embellish his opening statements and will be used extensively throughout the trial to orient jurors to the smelter and nearby communities.

Participants in the case were under a gag order prohibiting them from speaking to the public about the case outside the courtroom. Preliminaries were expected to continue into Tuesday, with the first battery of witnesses to be heard throughout the week.

Whelan also said he would prove later in the trial that Gulf Resources' decision to close Bunker Hill last month "was something more" than the reason given by the corporation: the decline in silver prices and multi-million-dollar losses at Bunker Hill this year.

Gulf announced Aug. 25 it would close Bunker Hill by the end of the year, throwing 2,100 people out of work. The first 200 layoffs were announced last week.

Boise rehab hospital cited as one of best

BOISE — President of the Flks Rehabilitation Hospital Board Chet Stahl said that with the new $2 million addition the Boise hospital now compares to what is available in Seattle and Denver.

In ceremonies commemorating the completion of the expansion program Kip Moggridge, director of community relations for the center, said the hospital increases the size of the Boise hospital from about 38,500 square feet to 70,000 square feet.

The fund drive for the building project was initiated in 1979, and construction started in June 1980. The project was completed ahead of the 1982 finish date set by hospital officials.

Moggridge said the final construction bid for the building was under the original $2.3 million estimate.

The project was financed by $700,000 in public donations, $400,000 in building fund reserves, and long-term indebtedness.

The expansion project is the second undertaken by the organization since the hospital was relocated at its Fort Street address in 1957. The first project was a $500,000 addition in 1972.

Cellmate says Franklin confessed to shooting 2 blacks in Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A man who claims accused murderer Joseph Paul Franklin confessed to killing two black joggers now says the confession was part of an escape plan.

Robert Herrera and Franklin were both inmates in the Salt Lake County Jail last February, while Franklin was awaiting trial on federal civil rights-murder charges.

Herrera testified Monday that Franklin confessed to the 1980 killings as part of an elaborate escape scheme.

"He said he'd tell me everything he did and I should call the FBI and tell what I knew," Herrera told the jury. "We thought I would get a shorter sentence and when I got out I could get him two guns and a car."

Herrera testified Franklin told him about the killings, admitting he shot the black youths and "then took off real fast and started to laugh, because the police didn't recognize him."

By detailing the escape plan, Herrera elaborated on testimony he gave in Franklin's related civil rights trial last March. The prosecution witness did not testify about the alleged escape plan during the federal trial.

"He said he was driving and saw two 'niggers' running with some white girls," Herrera said. "He said he drove around the area, parked his car, got out and took out a rifle."

"Then he said he shot 6 or 7 shots," Herrera testified. "He said he saw the two kids drop, and one girl took off screaming and running."

Herrera, a convicted felon who served a year in jail, said the two began talking in jail after Franklin heard Herrera had a fight with a black inmate.

The two inmates created a code to discuss their escape. Herrera said. He said Franklin also wanted Herrera to call some friends that were prosecution witnesses and tell them not to take the stand.

"He found out I knew Sandra Vigil and Rhonda Rainwater and he asked me to call them and tell them not to show up," Herrera said. "He also asked me if I'd get one of my sisters to testify with him. I said I would, but I never did."

Miss Vigil and Miss Rainwater have testified in both federal and state courts. Franklin was convicted on federal charges that he violated the civil rights of Ted Fields, 20, and Dave Martin, 18, by killing them.

Herrera's appearance on the stand Monday was delayed for an hour while Third District Judge Jay Banks ruled against a defense attorney's objection to the testimony.

Earlier Monday, an FBI expert testified tire imprints found in a vacant field where a sniper ambushed the two victims could have been left by an auto belonging to Franklin. Robert Hallett, an agent in the FBI's Washington D.C. laboratory, testified as Franklin's first-degree murder trial entered its third week.

He told the jury he compared imprints discovered by police in the vacant lot with tires confiscated when Franklin was arrested two months later in Kentucky. He said the tread design, size and "general wear characteristics" of Franklin's B.F. Goodrich tires matched details of the tracks in the lot.

But under cross-examination by Defense Attorney David Yocom, Hallett said B.F. Goodrich wasn't the only manufacturer of tires with those characteristics.

Another prosecution witness, Mary Christine Buck, of Fairfax, Va., testified she saw Franklin at a San Francisco area swap meet where guns were sold and traded.

Franklin allegedly told his cellmate he sold the murder weapon at a swap meet in California.

Communication is vital

If vital that dummy's and declarer's trumps be used as lines of communication.

South bid a trumps too much in getting to seven diamonds but there he was against the normal best lead of a club.

South is looking at 12 easy tricks with a spade winner for his 13th, but South can develop a slight extra chance by using dummy's three trumps as entries.

He takes the club and leads a trump to dummy's eight. Then he ruffs dummy's five of hearts.

South discards his queen of spades and has 13 tricks without the spade finesse.
