

Reagan to cut nukes in Europe

© New York Daily News

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, in the first major foreign policy speech of his administration, will propose today the virtual elimination of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

NATO leaders decided in 1979 to deploy nuclear missiles in West Germany, Italy, Britain, the Netherlands and Belgium to counter the Soviet SS-20s, which have three warheads and a range of 2,500 miles — in striking distance of Britain. The allies have nothing comparable on land within striking distance of the Soviet homeland.

Since then, the Europeans, fearful of becoming the "theater" of a nuclear confrontation between the Americans and the Russians, have demanded a ban on nuclear missiles in Europe. The fallout from the spreading anti-nuclear movement in Europe threatens the deployment of 572 Pershing-II and cruise missiles planned to begin in December 1983.

In West Germany, the Schmidt government said Tuesday that it believes the Reagan speech will be "especially important" in spelling out a unified Western position in the upcoming arms talks with Moscow.

Wolfgang Clement, spokesman for Schmidt's Social Democratic Party, also quoted the chancellor as saying that Washington would abandon the phrase "theater nuclear forces" when talking about medium-range nuclear weapons.

The phrase has been attacked as suggesting that Washington thinks of Western Europe as a "theater" for nuclear conflict with Russia, one that would not involve the homeland of the United States.

Idaho's 1982 revenue may miss projections

BOISE (UPI) — If state income doesn't grow at a faster rate through the last eight months of fiscal 1982, Idaho's revenue may fall short of the $422 million income projection, two state fiscal officials say.

But at the same time, they acknowledged that Idaho's highest unemployment rate in 21 years — and the prospective loss of 2,100 jobs at the Bunker Hill Co. mine complex — will make it even more difficult for revenues to pick up steam to reach the $422 million necessary to balance the budget.

The only state fiscal official still confident that 1982 revenues will come in close to Gov. John Evans' original estimate of $438 million is Larry Seale, administrator of the governor's Division of Financial Management.

Seale is predicting a budget surplus of undetermined size for the 1982 fiscal year, which began July 1.

John Anderson, director of the Legislative Fiscal Office, said October's sales-tax collections were 9 percent higher than in the same month a year ago. Individual income taxes for the same month were 6.5 percent higher than in October 1980.

He said these two components, which make up 91 percent of the state's general fund, must increase at a 9-percent rate for the year if the state is to hit the $422 million figure.

But the combined sales and individual-income tax revenue grew 8.7 percent in July, 6 percent in September and 3.6 percent in October, according to State Tax Commission figures.

Donehue again avoids prison term

By MARTY TRILLHAASE Times-News writer

JEROME — Dr. William C. Donehue was spared from prison Tuesday. But instead, he was ordered to seek psychiatric treatment at a state mental hospital in Ohio.

Appearing in Fifth District Court in Jerome for sentencing, Donehue, 31, was placed in the program by Judge Theron Ward, who suspended a 10-year prison sentence.

The decision removed the threat of prison that has hung over the physician since he was returned to Jerome County on Sept. 29, when he was dismissed from a treatment program at the Utah State Hospital in Provo.

Donehue pleaded guilty on March 6 to three counts of lewd conduct with a minor under 16 and one count of an "infamous crime against nature." He has also pleaded guilty to a similar offense in Ohio, and he has been sentenced to serve three to 10 years in an Ohio prison.

Ward's decision marked the second time that Donehue has been spared from prison. Given the nature of the offenses, officials feared he would have been brutalized by inmates.

On April 22, Ward agreed to delay sentencing in the matter for up to 3½ years while Donehue sought treatment in Utah. And Ohio officials opted to stay execution of Donehue's prison sentence there, pending the completion of the sentence ordered in Jerome County.

Ward's decision Tuesday effectively reverses the order of that agreement, and it gives the original jurisdiction in the case, local authority to release the defendant, if certified as cured.

Before suspending the sentence, Ward ordered Donehue to serve up to 10 years in the Idaho state prison on each count, ordered those sentences to be served concurrently and provided the sentences to be served concurrently with Donehue's Ohio sentence.

That sets in motion defense lawyer Greg Fuller's plan to place Donehue in an Ohio mental hospital. Although no final assignment had been reached, Fuller told Ward that he was "90 percent sure" that he would be able to place Donehue in either the state-run Dayton Forensic Mental Hospital or the Columbus Forensic Mental Hospital. • See DONEHUE Page 2

Committee rejects budget compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Appropriations Committee late Tuesday balked at a request from President Reagan to make deeper cuts from an emergency spending bill, one day after the House dealt Reagan a similar defeat.

The action by the Republican-controlled committee, just hours after Reagan urged the additional cuts, increased the likelihood Reagan will veto the measure.

The measure, which staffers estimated would provide $415 billion in funds, is needed to keep the government running past midnight Friday when current appropriations provided by an earlier stopgap measure expire. The committee said its bill comes close to meeting

Reagan's request for cutbacks, but the administration disagrees.

The bill is now headed to the full Senate and will end up in a House-Senate conference committee for compromise.

The Democratic House dealt Reagan his first major budget defeat Monday when it refused to go along with his request to cut domestic programs by an additional 5 percent.

Reagan said he was prepared to meet Congress halfway and urged the Senate to approve a 5 percent across-the-board cut in domestic programs — substantially less than he had requested in September.

But no such reduction was even offered in the Senate Appropriations Committee Tuesday.

And the panel rejected, 18-6, a proposal by Sen. Mack Mattingly, R-Ga., to cut 2 percent from domestic and military programs.

Mattingly said his plan, which would have authorized the administration to select the exact cuts, would have reduced fiscal 1982 spending by $6 billion to $9 billion. It also would have affected "entitlement programs" such as Social Security and Medicare that Reagan does not want to tamper with now.

After rejecting the Mattingly amendment, the committee approved the stopgap spending bill by voice vote.

Congressional sources said Reagan was prepared to veto the entire measure unless further reductions are made later in the legislative process. They suggested he even wanted to veto it to prove he has the votes to sustain a veto and enforce his economic program.

In a letter to Senate Republican leader Howard Baker, Reagan had said a 5 percent cut would provide a "substantial share" of the reductions in fiscal 1982, which began Oct. 1, that he had proposed. Although Reagan did not say specifically that a 5 percent cut would avert a veto, the letter gave a clear indication he is willing to talk compromise.

One key congressional leader said the president had sent congressional Republicans a "clear signal" he was ready to veto a stopgap spending bill that failed to meet his goal.

Demos consider Twin Falls move

By BRUCE HAMMOND Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Democrats are debating whether to move their state headquarters from Boise to Twin Falls, amid in-house squabbling and at least temporary funding shortages.

It's a plan strongly opposed by party leaders in Ada County, but it's applauded by some Democrats in other parts of the state.

"Democrats have a tendency to fight within themselves, and in the long run, this difference of opinion makes our party stronger," Cy Chase, the state vice chairman from St. Maries, said of the apparent division in the party.

Following a decision Saturday to close the existing office in Boise and establish a lower-cost headquarters, a Buhl businessman offered to rent a Twin Falls house and supply computer services to the group at a nominal cost.

George Anthony, who owns a Buhl computer business and is a member of the party's executive committee, made the offer Sunday to party Chairman Marie Hanzel of Burley.

Moving to Twin Falls "is one option we are considering, but there is a lot of noise opposing the proposal," Hanzel acknowledged Tuesday.

Opponents to the move argue that the state headquarters should be close to the center of state government, where it could enhance party visibility and closely support Gov. John Evans' campaign for re-election.

Perhaps the most outspoken against a move to Twin Falls is Mark Roby of Boise, the Ada County chairman who competed against Hanzel last year for chairman's post. He said party leaders usually are centered in Boise, and that travel time and other complications would make a Twin Falls office ineffective.

However, supporters say that a Twin Falls office would greatly reduce the party's overhead costs, aid Hanzel in her efforts to lead the party by providing her a nearby headquarters and offer Evans a second campaign station.

Hanzel said a new site for the headquarters should be selected this week. More time is available, however, since the present office is leased through the end of this month, and it will remain open until a new office is found, she said.

Despite the present debate, Hanzel said the problem of finding a new location for the state headquarters is only a symptom caused by several changes occurring in party organization as it prepares for the 1982 election campaigns. These include: • The loss of the party's past executive director, Robert Jarboe, earlier this year.

Throughout the last two months, Fuller has maintained that Donehue's expulsion from the Utah facility stemmed from a decision that the defendant was not adequately dealt with at the Provo facility.

Apparently, Utah officials concluded that the former Jerome doctor suffers from more complex psychological disorders, including multiple personalities, than originally was believed.

Dressed in jeans and a blue striped shirt, Donehue sat motionless Tuesday as Fuller explained the complex legal maneuvers that he has used to keep his client out of prison. Eventually, the plan to place Donehue in an Ohio facility hinged on getting the approval of the Ohio judge who had agreed to place Donehue in the mental hospital in lieu of prison.

"I think the feeling of everyone involved with this case... is to get some help for Dr. Donehue," Fuller said.

Dennis Adamson, the deputy Jerome County prosecutor, offered no objection to Fuller's proposal.

But Adamson asked Ward to impose a life sentence that would be executed if Donehue was returned to Idaho.

Essentially, Ward's decision places Donehue in custody for a maximum of 8 1/2 years. Ward granted the defendant credit for the 18 months that Donehue already has spent in custody.

If Ohio officials determine a cure is impossible, Ward ruled that Donehue is to be brought back to Idaho, and a decision will be made then concerning the remainder of his sentence.

Mrs. Marshall denies rumors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The wife of Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall said Tuesday it is "absolutely not true" that he is ready to retire.

Marc Gibson, Sheridan Broadcasting Network White House correspondent, quoted informed sources Monday as saying Marshall called on President Reagan last Thursday and "discussed his intent to retire."

But Cecilia Marshall, when asked about the story, said in a telephone interview, "That is absolutely not true."

Marshall, 73, is the only black ever to serve on the high court. He was appointed by Lyndon Johnson in 1967.

Mrs. Marshall said her husband's specialty informed Sheridan Broadcasting there is "absolutely no truth" in the report. Asked where this and other similar reports about the liberal justice were coming from, she replied, "It's wishful thinking on somebody's part."

Mourners attack minister

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Mourners attacked Britain's minister for Ulster Tuesday at the funeral of an assassinated Protestant member of Parliament.

Protestant and IRA gunmen each killed another victim in mousing strife.

A young Catholic was shot to death just after midnight by suspected Protestant gunmen seeking to avenge the killing Saturday of MP Robert Bradford, an outspoken critic of the Irish Republican Army. The IRA claimed responsibility for shooting Bradford.

IRA gunmen retaliated hours later by critically wounding a Protestant police reservist and by shooting to death late Tuesday a Protestant-part-time member of the Ulster Defense Regiment militia in Maguirebridge near the border with Ireland, 60 miles west of Belfast.

Holden killed in drunken fall

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Oscar-winning actor William Holden was killed in a drunken fall at his beachfront apartment, in which he slipped on a throw rug and smashed his head on a bedside table, officials said Tuesday.

Coroner Thomas Noguchi said the autopsy and preliminary investigation into the circumstances surrounding the actor's death sometime last week indicated it was "accidental." He said there were no other injuries or indications of foul play at this time.

"The death was caused by an accidental fall involving tripping over or slipping on a throw rug, then falling into the sharp edge of a bedside table," Noguchi said.

The coroner said there was a "deep cut" on his forehead, which was followed by "massive bleeding," the actual cause of death.

New Teapot Dome allegations

DENVER (UPI) — The Teapot Dome oil reserve in central Wyoming is again embroiled in scandal involving alleged wrongdoing by its operators, a newspaper reported Tuesday.

The Denver Post in a copyright story said it obtained a summary of an FBI investigation that showed federal auditors found "significant deficiencies" in the property and procurement management, security, and testing and administration of the facility.

"The losses to the taxpayer from fraud, abuse and waste has to be several million dollars," a source close to the investigation told the Post.

The scandal is the second to rock the oil reserve located about 30 miles north of Casper. In 1922, President Warren G. Harding's administration was staggered by the conviction of Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall on charges of taking a $100,000 bribe involving the reserve.

Burger blocks info release

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren Tuesday blocked an unprecedented lower court decision that ordered the CIA to turn over "intelligence information" to the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church.

Warren granted a request by the CIA to delay implementation of a federal appeals court order until the agency makes a full-scale appeal to the high court.

His action follows a surprise Oct. 27 move by a lawyer for Moon's organization, who told Burger the group would not oppose the CIA's request to temporarily block release of the papers.

Nimitz plane crashes, kills 4

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — An S-3A Viking airplane from the aircraft carrier Nimitz crashed in the Mediterranean Sea about 70 miles southwest of Sicily Tuesday, killing all four crewmen aboard, a Navy spokesman said.

Ensign Debbie Martin said the anti-submarine warfare jet was performing routine flight exercises about a mile from the carrier when it crashed in the sea.

Two helicopters were dispatched immediately to the scene, but they reported that the four men aboard, whose names were withheld pending notification of next of kin, were already dead.

The plane was attached to Air Anti-Submarine Squadron 24 based at Cecil Field Naval Air Station in Jacksonville. The crew included the pilot, the flight officer, the tactical coordinator and the sensor operator.

Today's weather

Fair weather until weekend

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:
Fair through Thursday. Winds westerly 10 to 15 mph. Highs upper 40s to low 50s both days. Lows 25 to 30 degrees.

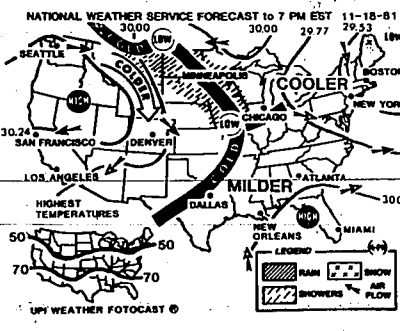

Camas Prairie, Halley, Wood River valley:
Partly cloudy today with isolated snow showers over higher mountains becoming fair tonight and Thursday. Highs in the middle 40s tonight. Lows 15 to 20.

Northern Nevada and Utah:
Fair over Nevada today with clouds increasing tonight and Thursday. Highs in the 50s. Lows 20 to 30. Cooler over Utah with clouds and showers decreasing today becoming fair Thursday. Highs in the 40s. Lows in the 20s.

Synopsis:
A couple of clear, cool days — then more showers by the weekend.

That's the outlook for the Magic Valley as the latest in a series of weather systems move eastward out of Idaho today. The system brought wind and rain to much of the state Tuesday, with cooler air flowing in behind an associated cold front.

Rain fell Tuesday over much of northern and central Idaho, with showers and a few thunderstorms developed in the south. The snow level dropped to near 6,000 feet in the southwest after the cold front passed. Brief heavy rains and small hail fell in the Treasure Valley.

Hillier reported 80 inch of rain in the morning with Lewiston and Grangeville receiving a third of an inch. Lighter amounts were reported elsewhere.

Afternoon temperatures were cooler than on Monday under cloudy skies with the warmest 60 degrees at Parma and Payette. Clouds held morning lows to mid levels ranging from 32 at Bear Lake and 24 at Dixie to 52 at Pocatello.

Fair skies on Thursday will give way to rain in the valleys and snow in the mountains in the north on Friday with a chance of showers in the Magic Valley area. After a dry Saturday, rain and snow are expected to spread across the state by Sunday. Otherwise, partly cloudy skies and near normal temperatures will prevail. Highs will be in the low 40s to low 50s and lows will be in the 20s.

Elsewhere in the nation Tuesday, the warmest temperature was 89 degrees at McAllen, Tex., while the coldest was 12 at Gunnison, Colo.

Hanzel also plans to hire an office manager this week to supervise and coordinate the headquarters. This action recently was recommended by a committee that studied party operations following Jarboe's resignation.

AFL-CIO proposes anti-recession package

NEW YORK (UPI) — AFL-CIO convention delegates Tuesday proposed a four-point anti-recession package after House Speaker Thomas O'Neill placed blame for the nation's current economic ills squarely on the shoulders of President Reagan.

"The sad truth is this recession is the direct result of the Reagan administration policy," O'Neill said in an address.

"These flipflops, these squabbles, the revelations of the last week — the script of the Reagan administration is beginning to resemble the plot of a very, very big class 'B' movie," O'Neill said.

The policy statement, which came out of a vote after several major labor leaders spoke against administration economic policies, would:

- Restore several jobs-producing measures by the government, including public service employment; provide low- and middle-income housing, and restore nationwide unemployment compensation benefit triggers.
- Place temporary restrictions on harmful imports to prevent penetration of U.S. markets and establish a Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make loans, loan guarantees, interest rate subsidies and targeted tax benefits for retooling basic industries.
- Use credit control authority to offset tight money policy and high interest rates.
- Finance the ventures by limiting the individual tax cut in 1982 to $700; reducing the investment tax credit from 10 percent to 7 percent, and withdrawing oil windfall profits tax exemptions.
- "What we need is a program to put people to work," said Ironworkers President John Lyons.

United Auto Workers President Douglas Fraser supported the policy, saying the auto industry is in a depression, instead of recession, with 200,000 workers unemployed.

"We will not end the depression... unless we change the economic policy of this administration," he said.

In his address to the convention, O'Neill continued an assault against administration policies started Monday by federation President Lane Kirkland and former Vice President Walter Mondale.

Reagan knew of Allen investigation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has known for months that the Justice Department is investigating national security adviser Richard Allen for taking $1,000 from a Japanese journalist, an White House spokesman said Tuesday.

RICHARD ALLEN accepted $1,000

The White House press office previously insisted Reagan learned of the payment only after it became public in the news media late last week.

"I subsequently learned that he knew of the fact that the matter had been referred to the Justice Department prior to that time... approximately at the time the money was discovered," David Gergen,

White House communications director, said.

"The proper procedures were followed, Period," he said.

Because the Justice Department is prohibited from disclosing an ongoing investigation, it is not unusual that neither Reagan nor anyone else in his administration spoke of it publicly prior to last week's accounts in the Japanese press, Gergen said later.

Gergen said he did not know if the president had discussed the incident with Allen specifically since he first found out about it, but emphasized, "I am sure, he has confidence in his national security adviser." The money was found in a safe in September.

Allen has acknowledged he accepted the $1,000 Jan. 21 as a "thank you" fee from Japanese reporters who interviewed Nancy Reagan the day after her husband's inauguration, but he has denied any wrongdoing.

He said he took the cash because it is customary for Japanese reporters to make such payments and he did not want to embarrass them.

His secretary put the money put in the safe of his office in the Old Executive Office Building and he forgot about it, Allen said. The money was left behind when Allen moved into his present office in the White House next door.

Military's personnel gain highest since 1973

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More men and women re-enlisted and joined the armed forces during the past year than in any single year since the draft ended in 1973, the Pentagon announced Tuesday.

But the gain of 320,000 personnel over the past year will not mean an end to draft registration, a top Pentagon official said.

The Pentagon also said the percentage of high school graduates in the services reached an all-time high.

All branches of the service met or exceeded their authorized goals for fiscal year 1981, which ended Sept. 30, to put total active duty manpower at 2,082,000 — 2,000 more than anticipated, the Defense Department said.

The manpower figures came as little surprise because monthly totals during the past year have shown a favorable upward trend. But the number of high school graduates in the services hit 81 percent of the total, higher than even during the years of the draft.

President Reagan, in a statement distributed at the Pentagon, hailed the gains as "an important milestone in the history of America's all-volunteer armed forces."

"The success of this past year shows that the voluntary system can work and represents the best way to meet out manpower requirements in times of peace."

But Lawrence Korb, the assistant defense secretary for manpower, said the manpower increases will not mean an end to draft registration.

Korb told reporters he did not know what impact rising unemployment has had on the increase in enlistments and the retention of servicemen and women.

"Obviously, it has some impact, but I don't know what it is until the economy begins to improve," he said.

The increase in high school graduates plus a rise in the number of those who performed average or above on the Armed Forces Qualification Test reflected a jump in the quality of the nation's servicemen and women, particularly for the Army. The Army traditionally has had a problem of attracting educated personnel.

Committee passes defense appropriations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan won Senate Appropriations Committee approval for his key strategic weapons Tuesday, but floor fights were shaping up in both houses against the MX missile and the B-1 bomber.

With chairman Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., opposed, the Senate committee voted to keep the more than $2.1 billion the Pentagon recommended for the new manned bomber in a $238.4 billion defense budget it sent to the full Senate.

The 25-member Senate Appropriations Committee rejected 21-7 a proposal by Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., to delete funds for the B-1.

Hatfield was the only Republican to vote against funding the B-1, while eight Democrats voted for the bomber program and Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., voted present.

The committee acted after the Pentagon gave its assurance that a combined B-1 and stealth-technology strategic bomber force could penetrate Soviet defenses into the next century — and cost no more than keeping the aging B-52 fleet.

The House Appropriations Committee restored $1.9 billion for the MX missile by a narrow margin Monday, leaving the two programs intact in the $196.5 billion version of the defense budget it sent to the floor. A House vote is expected Thursday.

Reagan seeks a record $200.9 billion defense budget for fiscal 1982, with more than $4.1 billion in research and developments funds for the B-1 and the MX.

But Hatfield already has announced he will introduce an amendment on the Senate floor to cut funding for the MX, and Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., chairman of the House defense appropriations subcommittee, said he will move in the House to cut funds for the B-1.

Undersecretary of Defense Richard DeLauer gave the Pentagon assurances in an 11-page letter to Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, chairman of the defense appropriations subcommittee and a strong MX and B-1 supporter.

Hinckley: No brain damage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Doctors report that accused presidential assassin John W. Hinckley Jr.'s "mental capabilities are intact" following his second suicide attempt Sunday, a Justice Department spokesman reported Tuesday.

There had been concern that Hinckley might have suffered brain damage during the half hour he lay semiconscious in his cell after he tried to hang himself.

A federal judge, meanwhile, ruled late Tuesday that prison guards had violated Hinckley's rights when they searched his jail cell and seized his personal writings following his first suicide attempt in May.

U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker barred the government from using the prisoner's diary and personal papers in its case against him.

Parker also ruled that Hinckley had been denied his right to consult a lawyer in the hours following the assassination attempt March 30, and ordered the government to suppress the statements Hinckley made to authorities at that time.

On Hinckley's attempt to hang himself Sunday, the Justice Department spokesman said more definitive testing is required to determine if he has been any long-lasting effect.

Chamber's moves signs of progress

The Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce is making strides toward revitalizing the city and tourist interest in the city.

The major, and most important, step taken last week was the announcement that the organization has acquired 38 acres of land southeast of the city for development of an industrial park site.

While the size might be small by some standards, at least the chamber now has another selling point in Twin Falls' favor. The land should allow for small- to medium-sized businesses to be built.

Everyone would like a "major" employer to locate in Twin Falls or close by in the Magic Valley. While that would be sensational and welcome news, the "smaller" market should not be ignored. It may provide for slower growth, but it also offers stability.

No one foresees a major employer coming to Twin Falls in the near future, although efforts to sell the vacant Kellwood plant are continuing. No buyer has yet been found for that facility, despite several rumors making the rounds in the community.

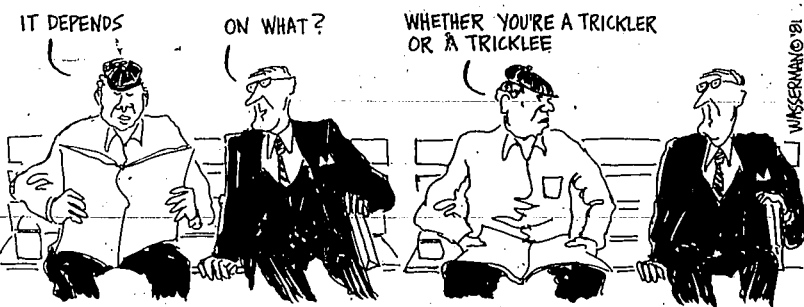

As long as interest rates remain high and the economy remains sluggish, even prosperous, larger firms might be content to take a wait-and-see attitude about expansion. But the chamber has got to take an optimistic attitude and go out and continue selling the benefits this area has to offer.

Small businesses are the backbone of any community, and Twin Falls is no exception. If the chamber can attract new commercial or industrial interests of this type, the community's business and tax base will remain strong and become more diversified.

At the same time, employment opportunities will be increased.

In these tough economic times, where pessimistic attitudes prevail, any economic growth should be welcomed. Acquisition of the 38-acre parcel enhances the community's efforts to "sell" interested outside firms. The site also affords existing businesses the opportunity to expand.

The chamber's new office location, incidentally, certainly adds to the visibility of the organization. Thanks to a better location on Shoshone Street and a bright, colorful sign, visitors and those seeking information just can't miss it.

Why sell off our public lands?

BOISE — One of President Reagan's economic advisers has publicly suggested that it might be a good thing to sell off most of the public land.

The same adviser indicated that serious talks within the administration on new ways to manage the lands will begin in February.

This is ominous development. Should the selloff advocates win the support of President Reagan, Americans would be in serious danger of losing our public land heritage.

Last would be the assured access to millions of acres of public land now used for camping, hunting, fishing, hiking and other pursuits. Westerners would lose a big part of our freedom — the freedom to roam over millions of acres of publicly-owned land.

The talk in Washington about a public lands selloff is consistent with some of the recent statements of spokesmen for the "sagebrush rebellion" in Idaho.

Vernon Ravenscroft of Sagebrush Rebellion, Inc., has said it is no longer the goal to transfer the public land to the states. Rather, he said, land useful for commercial purposes should be disposed of directly by the federal government.

Public land that has some commercial value is most of the public and in the Western states. Most of it used for grazing, much of it has commercial timber and more than 100 million acres is under lease for possible energy exploration.

The suggestion of a public land selloff was made by William A. Niskanen Jr., one of three members of the president's Council on Economic Advisers. A Washington Newsletter, the Public Land News, quoted Niskanen's remarks before the American Recreation coalition.

A month earlier, a senior economist for the Council of Economic Advisors advocated a public land selloff in a talk to a group of livestock owners, according to the newsletter.

"One of the frequent spokesmen for the "rebellion" in the West is Prof. Barney Dowdle of the University of Washington. Dowdle has spoken at least three times in Idaho in recent months. Dowdle wants the lands converted to private ownership.

As an economic theorist, Dowdle disapproves of people being able to hunt and fish on public land without paying a fee.

Dowdle contends that the public lands don't pay their way and are a drag on the economy. That is in line with some of the comments by Niskanen quoted in the Public Land News.

Of course the truth is that the public lands, in public ownership and managed for a variety of uses, have enormous value to the people of the West and other Americans. And they contribute heavily to the economies of the Western states.

The economic theorists like Dowdle don't recognize the production of quality water, wildlife habitat, fishery habitat or public recreation as important values. They tend to see only the commercial uses of the land.

Another idea, mentioned by Niskanen, would be to impose "user charges" upon benefits received, and opportunities foregone. Who are those users who aren't presently paying their way? They would be primarily the people who use the public lands for recreation.

While campers, hunters, fishermen and others who use the land for recreation do not pay an admission fee, they all pay taxes, both directly and indirectly. Tourism, much of it based on the public lands, ranks third among major sources of economic activity in Idaho.

The people who camp, hunt and fish on the public lands are also the owners of the lands. These lands belong to all Americans. They were acquired over the years by treaty and by purchase, sometimes with the spilling of the "common blood."

Opponents of the "rebellion" have felt all along that the move to transfer the land to the states was only the first step. An ultimate goal of the "rebellion" has always been to convert the public lands to private ownership. It was easier to sell if you talked about state's rights, rather than disapproval.

If the land-grab promoters can persuade the president, however, they can eliminate the middleman. Should Reagan go along, it would only be a matter of persuading a majority of Congress. Some members of Congress from other parts of the country have little knowledge of the multiple values of the public lands.

With the economy stagnating and the budget deficit rising, the selloff could be offered as a way to trim the deficit. President Reagan has endorsed the "rebellion," both before and after the election.

Fleeing the people of the West, and other Americans, out of most of our public land heritage would be a gigantic coup. Those pushing for the selloff may never have a better opportunity.

Response missed the point

Editor, Times-News:

In regard to Kathy Walker's response to my letter, I would like to say she missed the point.

I am not looking for sympathy. I wanted to point out to you people, who never were in need, how people on welfare live.

I don't feel I should thank anyone for the help I do get. If you consider the years I worked, both my husband's, my four grown children, it would amount to over 60 years in which we all paid taxes. I'm glad what we paid in helped someone in need.

I said I am sick and I need surgery. I still dress my kids in clean clothes, even if I wash by hand. After surgery, I'll still do my best at home, but I can't work. I use the word can't, not won't. It takes all my strength with the house and four kids, but I do it. I also teach them manners and the difference between sympathy and compassion. As poor as we are, I pass on their clothes, things I no longer need, to other people.

No, Kathy, I don't thank you or anyone for the help I get. All I want is to live like a human being.

Finally 'scared straight' by threat of nuclear war?

BOSTON — Last week, they picked nuclear apathy up by the neck and shook it just a bit.

They took the facts, the coolest facts about nuclear war, and rubbed them like sandpaper against our psychic numbness until people's nerve endings once again began to tingle.

It wasn't an easy day for those of us who attended any of 151 campuses where scientists, doctors, clergy and politicians conducted the first massive teach-in on The Threat of Nuclear War.

It surely wasn't comforting to hear Dr. Howard Hiatt, the dean of the Harvard School of Public Health describe in clinical detail the most immediate results of a single 20 megaton bomb detonated over Boston: 10 million dead, half a million wounded survivors with barely a prayer of medical help.

Nor was it reassuring to hear George Kistiakowsky, witness to the first nuclear-test explosion in 1945, explain that the 50,000 nuclear warheads in the world today have 1,000 times more power to destroy life as all the weapons fired in this century.

But people in 41 states came and listened, seriously, grimly, even dutifully for the same reason: "The time for playing possum is over."

Since the 1950s, anti-nuclear war sentiment has been dulled by a sprinkling of SALT promises, and lulled by a profound feeling of public powerlessness. Now, more and more Americans, as well as Europeans, have been "scared straight" by the easy genial talkmaster of "limited nuclear war."

Ronald Reagan, the same man who managed to assume the worst fears of the "peace vote" during that crucial electoral debate, has nearly fulfilled them during his tenure. We see a nice guy, pleasantly, genially, irresponsibly rattling off any of us to rest comfortably on a king-sized bed of missiles.

For this reason, The Union of Concerned Scientists, which organized this awakening, saw it swell from a handful of campuses to more than a 150. They chose their day wisely and symbolically. Veterans Day was the successor to Armistice Day that commemorates the first Great War. It's hard to forget that the 1914 balance of terror didn't secure a peaceful stalemate; it produced the first technological war of attrition.

On this day, speaker after speaker noted, "After the Third World War, there would be no veterans."

The crowd at these teach-ins were not "bitter-red-than-dead" peaceniks of another era. They harbored no sense of virtue about the Russians, no illusions about the possibility of unilateral disarmament. There was nary a one "Make Love, Not War" sign.

They were students and many older citizens who have grown tired of just watching as the leaders of our superpowers behave like teen-agers playing chicken on the highway to catastrophe.

As Paul Warake, the chief negotiator of the still-unratified SALT II agreement told a Harvard audience, it was the sense of powerlessness and helplessness which had kept the public quiet and passive: "...it's only recently that I began to see a sentiment getting energized. I think one of the reasons... is that some of the weapons systems now strike fairly close to home.... When the President makes a comment about the possibility of a nuclear war being restricted to Europe, people begin to wonder: Is that really good for kids?"

It's these events which are beginning to turn our gestures from a hopeless shrug to an anxious question: "What can we do?"

For some, like Kistiakowsky, the first step to arms reduction is a dead halt on nuclear testing. Others will play this first teach-in to the second spring awakening. Still others will use it as a political briefing, a memo on public opinion for Reagan to take in with him to talks with the Soviets.

But after this first teach-in anxiety-raising session, the trick will be to turn that fear to action before the goosebumps settle back into numbness.

The Veterans Day teach-in was more than an event. But less than a movement. With luck and commitment, it may go down in history as the beginning...

Senate rejects economic clean air link

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Environment Committee, in its first effort to write a bill reauthorizing the Clean Air Act, Tuesday turned down proposals to make economic costs a consideration in setting air quality standards.

Sen. Steven Symms, R-Idaho, withdrew one proposed amendment after committee sentiment was clearly against him. He saw a second amendment voted down 12-3.

But the committee was progressing so slowly on drafting its final version of the bill that there was doubt it would be able to send it to the full Senate before Congress adjourns for the year.

Chairman Robert Stafford, R-Vt., who had hopes of reaching agreement on relatively non-controversial legislation, said there will be at least three more meetings.

The committee held numerous hearings on the Clean Air Act during the past several months and what Stafford called "seminars" recently in an effort to reach consensus on the major issues in the legislation.

Congress passed the Clean Air Act in 1970 and substantially amended it in 1977. It is due for reauthorization this year, but will remain in effect even if Congress takes no action. Symms' first proposed amendment would have required that an economist be added to the scientific advisory panel which reviews criteria developed by the Environmental Protection Agency in setting air quality standards and that the panel take formal votes on the criteria.

The Idaho senator said he wanted to ensure that the criteria used by the EPA had a sound scientific base and that someone with an economics background would be involved in order to consider economic factors of EPA actions.

Stafford said he was concerned the change would "add another layer of decision making" to the regulatory process, already criticized by many as excessive. Symms withdrew his amendment — which he originally described as "relatively noncontroversial" — but indicated he might offer a revised version later. Symms' second amendment would have required the EPA to consider "social and economic" factors rather than just the "public welfare" in setting national secondary air standards. He said the change would inject "a little realism" into the administration of the clean air law.

House coalition calls for quicker tax relief

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While most of Congress was worrying about rising budget deficits, a small group of House Republicans Tuesday offered a different solution to the government's economic woes — quicker tax relief.

Rep. Robert Walker, R-Pa., announced that he and 19 other true believers in "supply side" economics — including leading tax-cut proponents Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y. — will introduce legislation to accelerate the next two stages of the already-approved tax cut for individuals.

However, chances of passing such an expensive proposal during the last six weeks of the year are extremely slim, congressional sources said.

Besides, sources pointed out, House GOP tax-writers are fearful that any tax legislation would serve to dismantle this summer's $750 billion tax cut package with its grab bag of tax breaks for special interests. At a news conference, Walker and some of the other co-sponsors criticized those who said the president's economic package was not working after 45 days on the books.

Rather than rolling back the already-approved tax cut package to save money, they proposed speeding up the tax cut schedule — a proposal floated by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce more than a month ago.

The first 5 percent cut took effect Oct. 1, but since it came in the last quarter of the year, it actually amounted to a 1.25 percent tax rate reduction for all of 1981.

Walker argued that scheduled increases in Social Security taxes on Jan. 1 will virtually wipe out the effect of the initial tax reduction. He said that July 1 — when the next 10 percent reduction takes effect — is too long to wait in light of the current recession and rising unemployment.

The final 10 percent, scheduled for July 1, 1983, should be moved up to Jan. 1, 1983, Walker said.

18 million expected to try one day without smoking

NEW YORK (UPI) — About 18 million smokers are expected to try and slay away from the burning weed during this year's 24-hour Great American Smokeout, the American Cancer Society said Tuesday.

The fifth annual Smokeout was around the clock Thursday, and those joining will be cheered on by media events and rallies staged by Cancer Society affiliates and friends.

These will range from a New Orleans type funeral for the cigarette habit on the Coral Gables campus of the University of Miami to a downtown bonfire in Lubbock, Texas — fed by cigarette packages collected from restaurant patrons.

In New York City, actress Polly Bergen and designer Halston will get help on quitting from the American Health Foundation. The strategy includes pursing lips and puffing — without a cigarette.

A parade culminating with the burial of a symbolic cigarette will take place in the Market Street Mall, Knoxville, Tenn.

At the Tobacco Institute in Washington, D.C., trade group for the $19 billion-a-year tobacco industry, spokesman William D. Toohy commented on the Smokeout. "It's obviously a great publicity tool for the Cancer Society as they move into their fund-raising season," he said.

"But we think it's really a shame that they spend millions of dollars on this one day media event when that money could be put toward scientific research to determine exactly how and why a normal 'healthy cell becomes cancerous.'"

And if the estimated 18 million figure for participants is correct, that means about 37 million of the nation's 55 million smokers will still be puffing away.

Actor Larry Hagman, national leader of Smokeout, Tuesday told of a rubber band trick that can help when smoking urges strike.

He discovered it when running a how-to-stop-smoking contest. Janet C. MacAlain, of Howell, Mich., who won, claims the rubber band was her key to kicking a 26-year pack-a-day habit in five weeks. "Anyone can make it work," said the mother of eight.

"Wear it loosely around your wrist and snap it every time you think you want to smoke."

The Cancer Society claims 4.9 million quit through the 1980 smokeout without dirtying an ashtray and, nearly a year later, one million of them still had not lighted a cigarette.

Regan quiet about Taiwan after meetings in China

PEKING (UPI) — Treasury Secretary Donald Regan met China's two most powerful leaders Tuesday but American officials refused to say if the talks involved any discussion about the sensitive subject of Taiwan.

Communist Party Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping, who presided over normalization of relations between Peking and Washington almost three years ago, told Regan, "There has to be a consistency of policy between China and the United States."

It was an apparent expression of China's unhappiness about President Regan's policy toward Taiwan, especially the possible sale of modern jet fighters to the nationalized island. Peking does not recognize Taiwan as a separate nation and claims it is part of China.

Asked about his talks with Deng, Regan said, "It was a very interesting meeting. We stuck to economics." The comment did not necessarily exclude Taiwan, but Regan did not elaborate.

The treasury secretary also met Premier Zhao Ziyang and the two discussed "world and global economic issues," a U.S. official said.

ON A CLEAR DAY

Q. How many states can you see on a clear day from on top of the Empire State Building?
A. Five. About 80 miles.

Q. Wasn't actor Andy Griffith related to actress Marilyn Monroe?
A. No, sir, the link there was in the coincidental fact that they were born within an hour of each other on June 1, 1926.

Q. Is there any way an amateur can tell whether a violin is a real Stradivarius or just a copy?
A. At least one way: Strad labels were printed in block letters, but the last three digits were handwritten.

Today is Wednesday, November 18th, the 322nd day of 1981 with 43 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio. American astronaut Alan Shepard was born November 18th, 1923.

On this date in history:

- In 1883, the United States adopted Standard Time and set up four zones -- Eastern, Central, Mountain and Pacific.
- In 1903, Panama and the United States signed a treaty for the building of the Panama Canal, linking the Pacific and Atlantic oceans.
- In 1969, American astronaut, Charles Conrad and Alan Bean made man's second landing on the moon in the lunar module of Apollo 12.
- In 1974, President Ford arrived in Tokyo for a state visit on his way to a meeting with Soviet communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev in Vladivostok.

A thought for the day: Britain playwright George Bernard Shaw said: "The test of a man or woman's breeding is how they behave in a quarrel."

Maneuvers test U.S., Soviet weapons

CAIRO WEST AIRBASE, Egypt (UPI) — Egyptian and American soldiers tested U.S. and Soviet-made air defense weapons side by side today.

Egypt held afterward it would seek to buy American Chaparral anti-aircraft missiles.

While Operation Bright Star, a two-week joint military exercise, barreled through its fourth day, President Hosni Mubarak held what were described as frank and friendly talks with visiting Israeli President Yitzhak Navon.

"You were lucky not to be present," Navon told reporters after the meeting. "You would be astonished at the frankness of our conversation."

Mubarak, reiterating Egypt's commitment to the Camp David process, said he would not seek to improve his relations with other Arab states "at the expense of Israel."

Rejecting Arab criticism of the joint maneuvers involving 4,000 troops from the United States, Mubarak said: "Whoever wants to criticize let him do so, but we are gaining experience from one of the superpowers."

Egyptian Defense Minister Lt. Gen. Abdel-Halim Abu-Ghazala and Lt. Gen. Robert C. Kingston, Commander of the U.S. Rapid Deployment Force, supervised the air defense exercises at a range close to Cairo West Airbase, 20 miles northwest of the capital.

The weapons used in the shooting exercise were all short range and designed for combat against low-flying aircraft.

On the American side there were the Chaparrals, mounted on tracked vehicles, portable Redeye missiles and Vulcan self-propelled and towed guns. The Egyptians used shoulder-fired SAM-7 missiles, Shilka ZSU 23 mm guns and 14.5 mm four-barrel machine guns, all supplied by the Soviets before a 1974 ban on arms to Egypt because of its peace overtures to Israel and rapprochement with the United States.

Since then, Egypt has turned to the West and is receiving American arms under a $3.5 billion program initiated after the 1979 peace treaty with Israel.

In addition to U.S. Phantom bombers, M-60 tanks, F-16 jet fighters, armored personnel carriers and Hawk anti-aircraft missiles already delivered or in the pipeline, Abu-Ghazala said Egypt would request the Chaparral missiles.

"You are welcome over here at any time you want," he told American officers following Tuesday's drill.

Khadafy shooting denied

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — Libya's information minister flatly denied rumors Tuesday that Col. Moammar Khadafy has been shot in an assassination attempt.

"This is a load of information minister Khalifa Azabi said. "This is not the first rumor and it won't be the last."

Western diplomats also scoffed at the rumors which had swept Western financial markets during the day.

"I have just spoken to someone who saw Khadafy in person 30 minutes ago," one diplomat said. Another said he had queried a member of Khadafy's inner circle who had denied the rumor.

There was no evidence in the Libyan capital Tuesday night that anything unusual had happened.

In Washington, both the Central Intelligence Agency and the State Department said they were aware of the rumors but had nothing to confirm any such reports.

International briefs

Philippine theater roof collapses

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — The roof of a six-story movie palace under construction on rush orders from First Lady Imelda Marcos collapsed Tuesday, and workers said dozens were trapped under tons of debris.

Rescue workers feared at least 30 people were buried under what was to have been the main theater in an extravagant film center Mrs. Marcos ordered built on reclaimed land for an international film festival in January.

Workers said they recovered 24 bodies immediately after the structure collapsed at 2:00 a.m., hurling concrete slabs, wooden scaffolding and steel girders on top of night shift laborers on the project, which faces Manila Bay. Two more bodies were dug out later.

Hospital sources said 41 other people were injured. Despite the workers' count of dead, the government reported after a 15-hour news blackout that only three people died and 34 were injured in the disaster.

Pakistan aid clears major hurdle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration Tuesday won its first and apparently final congressional battle over the proposed $1.1 billion sale of 40 F-16 fighter-bombers to Pakistan.

If both Houses of Congress disapprove the sale by majority vote before Sunday, the deal will be blocked. But in a test vote in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday, a resolution of disapproval was beaten back 6-5.

Technically, the issue still could go the Senate floor, but in light of the committee vote, it probably will not — especially since there is a crush of budget business there.

Poles agree to form joint task force

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — The Communist government and Solidarity held their first extensive talks in seven months Tuesday and immediately agreed to form a joint task force to help Poles survive the oncoming harsh winter.

Solidarity's chief spokesman, Marek Brunne, called the meeting with government officials "sincere and businesslike."

"The talks are going well," he said. "Both sides are exchanging views without evident friction."

China again vetoes Waldheim in U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — China used its veto in the Security Council Tuesday to block re-election of Secretary General Kurt Waldheim amid growing signs that after 16 unsuccessful ballots the world body is seriously split.

"My opinion is that we have an impasse," said U.S. Ambassador Jeanne Kirkpatrick, as she emerged from eight rounds of secret balloting in the 15-member Security Council.

She said the continued Chinese veto of Waldheim, who is seeking an unprecedented third five-year term, meant that new candidates must be considered to break the deadlock.

Judge orders correction board

Panel won't pay for transcripts

BOISE (UPI) — Board of Corrections Chairman Robert Fanning said Tuesday his panel will not pay for the printing of trial transcripts in a lawsuit filed last year by 45 Idaho State Penitentiary inmates.

A district court judge ordered the board to pick up those expenses or drop its appeal of a magistrate's ruling in the case.

Fourth District Court Judge Ray Durtschi told the board a week ago to pay for courtroom transcripts in a suit brought by inmates who alleged they were denied due process and other rights when they were transferred to maximum-security cells without a hearing following a riot last year.

If the board does not provide the transcripts, Durtschi indicated he would dismiss the appeal.

But Fanning said Idaho Supreme Court rules exempt public agencies and officials from being required to pay for the cost of transcripts.

"We're not intending to pay that based on the (Supreme Court) rule," Fanning said. "We're not going to pay it."

If Durtschi dismisses the case on the grounds that the Corrections Department did not pay $4,500 for the 2,200-page document, Fanning said the department will appeal the case to the Idaho Supreme Court.

Durtschi last Monday gave the department two weeks to pay for copies of a transcript of the trial in magistrate court last year.

Boise County Magistrate Robert McConnell ruled in favor of the inmates in January, citing specific examples of harsh treatment of the prisoners after the 1980 prison riot. McConnell passed down a 12-point order to Corrections officials outlining required changes in prison procedures.

The state appealed McConnell's decision this spring, but has not declared its case because it had not the transcript of the trial printed.

Group to provide funds to KBGL

POCATELLO (UPI) — An organization trying to keep public television on the air in eastern Idaho says it will provide almost $43,000 to KBGL-TV.

The money will be used by the station to repay a debt to the Corporation for Public Television and stave off a potential lawsuit over the its use of a federal grant for routine operating expenses.

Ann Volleque, spokesman for "Friends of Channel 10," Tuesday said the citizens group has voted to allocate $42,950 to the station hosted by Idaho State University. The funds will come from private donations which have already been collected, she said.

A representative of the CPB told members of the Idaho Commission for Public Broadcasting Monday that his organization has not allowed recipients of community service grants to use those funds for day-to-day operations.

Cyprus Mining Corp. says 450 workers face layoffs

CHALLIS (UPI) — Cost overruns, engineering delays and a change in construction contracts will force the layoff of 450 people this winter at a Cyprus Mining Corp. project near Challis, officials said Monday.

"Project Manager M.M. McGee said the firm's parent company — Amoco Oil of Denver — has decided to terminate a "fast-track, cost-reimbursable" contract with its prime construction contractor.

"The change should not delay work to build the $300-million open-pit molybdenum mine, McGee said, but will mean fewer employees at the site.

Previous contracts had allowed construction to proceed while engineering and planning work was still in progress, McGee said Amoco decided to change its approach in order to prevent uncertainty over construction costs.

He also said costs had already apparently exceeded the $172 million budgeted for work to this point. He said the exact amount of the overrun would not be known until a detailed audit is completed.

A work slowdown will allow engineers to catch up on their design plans, he added.

Cyprus spokesman Bill Salathrite said the 450 workers who will receive pink slips are employed by contractors Brown and Root Co. of Houston. He said 300 employees paid by Cyprus would remain on duty throughout the winter.

Adoption regulations change Dec. 1

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare Tuesday reminded state residents who want to adopt children or participate in foster care programs that a new set of regulations will go into effect Dec. 1.

Kent Henderson, chief of the department's Bureau of Social Services, said people wishing to adopt children through state agencies will be required to pay a $25 application fee. If the department places a normal child in the home, the fee could range as high as $600, he said.

The fees are based on the average amount of time a mid-salaried state employee is required to spend on adoption studies and placements, Henderson added.

Sandpoint man waves extradition

SANDPOINT (UPI) — An Albat man being held in the Bonner County Jail has waived extradition and will be transported to Evanston, Wyo. today.

He has been indicted by a grand jury for aiding and abetting a murderer, Evanston police said.

Michael Edwards, 32, was arrested Friday near Albat by sheriff's deputies from Bonner and Kootenai counties pursuant to a teletype warrant from Evanston. Det. John Moriarty of the Evanston Police Department said Edwards' brother, Richard, is in custody in Evanston on a charge of homicide in the shooting death of Victor J. Keerins, 32, of Evanston.

Moriarty said Keerins was shot in the abdomen with a handgun at a downtown Evanston bar on Oct. 19. The shooting stemmed from an altercation which had occurred earlier, Moriarty said. Bonner County Deputy Prosecutor Paul Vogel said Edwards appeared before a magistrate on Monday and waived extradition. Vogel said a teletype was received Tuesday morning from Evanston informing Bonner County officials that two deputies from the Uinta County sheriff's office in Wyoming would transport Edwards to Evanston "probably tomorrow."

Jerome County limits shooting near canyon

By LAURY MASHER
Times-News writer

JEROME — Shooting with anything other than a shotgun on the north side of the Snake River Canyon or the canyon's rim area is now against the law.

For safety reasons, the Jerome County commissioners approved an ordinance Monday prohibiting the use of firearms of .17 caliber or greater within 100 yards of the rim.

Violators of the ordinance may be fined from $50 to $300.

Twin Falls County representatives asked that the ordinance be passed so that regulations will be consistent for both counties, according to Commissioner Mel Grindstaff.

"Twin Falls has the same ordinance," Grindstaff said. "They have been trying to persuade us to get one for our side, so the shooting won't carry over across the canyon."

The regulations won't change for shotguns because their discharge doesn't carry as far, Grindstaff said. "They don't even carry 100 feet, but the others carry clear across," he said.

In other business at the board's weekly meeting, the commissioners postponed until January a decision on whether to allocate funds for the Jerome Youth Center.

Grindstaff said commissioners will consider the issue again once the Campaign for Human Development, an affiliate of the Roman Catholic Church, makes a decision whether to fund the center.

The youth center applied for funding through the organization last month after its previous sponsors were relieved of the responsibility for channeling the center's funds.

Jerome City Council appropriated funds for the center through the South Central Community Action Agency, but the allocation was contingent on the agency's ability to provide matching funds through some other source.

The county also gave the center $2,500 through the agency, but Carol Clett, the SWCAA representative, said the agency withdrew because it was unable to provide matching funds.

Grindstaff said the commissioners' decision may be contingent on the church agency's response, which is expected in early January.

"Once they decide, we'll consider it again," Grindstaff said. Ron Merkle, the Jerome County juvenile probation officer and a JYVC board member, requested that the commissioners help keep the center open.

"I'm having a hard enough time doing my job with the minimal resources, without having them cut out completely," Merkle said.

If the center doesn't receive funding, Merkle said there no longer will be a general education and development program for youth in Jerome.

Teenagers will need to commute to Twin Falls, which Merkle said may not be feasible.

"We'll have a problem of transportation," Merkle said. "A lot of kids can't afford to drive to Twin Falls. Generally speaking, the kids getting into trouble are low income, and I'll have no place to send them."

Gooding council purchases blanket insurance policy

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Insurance coverage for the city of Gooding was settled at Monday's City Council meeting.

Council agreed to purchase blanket insurance coverage in the amount $1 million from Jack Davies, an agent representing McDonald Insurance of Twin Falls.

The insurance will be in force until Oct. 1, 1982. The premium for the coverage was set at $17,000.

Gooding had asked Davies for a list of the claims paid in behalf of the city while the city was covered by Consolidated Insurance. Davies represented Consolidated until it was acquired recently by McDonald. Council members heard and approved Davies' report Monday.

But council also decided to establish a bidding procedure to use when the current policy expires.

Mayor Gene Hall said bids on the proposal will be taken in July or August of 1982, so that issue can be settled by the time the current coverage expires.

In other business Monday night:

• Council heard a complaint from Michael Rasch and Mike Montgomery, who represented Valley Utilities Inc. of Jerome.

Valley Utilities is the contractor working on the city's water treatment plant. The contractor is concerned about the lengthy delays in receiving payments from the federal Environmental Protection Agency and from state grants.

Council has considered interim financing as a means of dealing with this problem.

Heller said he discussed the delays with Gov. John Evans earlier this fall, and timely payment was made for a couple of months. "But things sort of fell apart this month, and both checks were very late," the mayor said.

"The council is in sympathy with the contractor on this issue," Heller said, adding that he would contact Evans again this week to see what can be done at state level to speed the payments.

Thanksgiving Blends Past and Present Traditions

Americans cherish memories of the family Thanksgiving table filled with wonderful food lovingly and painstakingly prepared over days and days. But times change, and with them, traditions. Today relatives may be 2000 miles away, and Mom's schedule may be as busy as Dad's, yet everyone still looks forward to the traditional feast of turkey, gravy, stuffing, vegetables and pie. Nowadays when daily schedules are so busy, the key to putting together a "best-ever" holiday feast is to have everyone help by making some dishes ahead.

Take the turkey for example. Select a large, deep basted Butterball Swift's Premium turkey, lavish with white meat, several weeks in advance. Allow 1 to 1-1/2 pounds of turkey for each person. Store the turkey in the freezer, and then transfer it to a tray in the refrigerator before the feast for easy defrosting.

Gravy, an essential part of the holiday feast, can be started in advance, as can Cranberry-Pear Sauce. Since it's traditional to prepare enough turkey for leftovers, make extra gravy and double the recipe for Cranberry-Pear Sauce too. The stock for the gravy can be prepared the day before the feast. To make the stock, cover the turkey giblets and neck with plenty of water, then add onion, celery, other seasonings and a small bay leaf. Simmer until the giblets are tender, then strain and refrigerate the stock and chop and refrigerate the giblets.

On Thanksgiving move the roast turkey from the pan to platter. For easier carving let it stand 15 to 20 minutes. During this time begin making the gravy by spooning excess fat from the juices in the roasting pan; then pour the turkey stock into the roasting pan. Stir the liquid over medium heat, taking care to loosen brown bits from the pan. To thicken the gravy, use Argo or Kingsford's corn starch. Stir corn starch together with a little cold liquid, add to the hot stock and stir until the gravy has thickened. The rule of thumb is to use a tablespoonful of starch for every cup of liquid. If the gravy recipe in your family calls for flour, use half as much corn starch in its place. The corn starch lets the flavor of the pan juices and giblets come through without any pasty aftertaste, and the gravy has an attractive translucent appearance.

On the days following the feast, put leftovers like Cranberry-Pear Sauce to good use in Cranberry Crunch Dessert. Leftover turkey takes on a new flavor in Florentine Turkey Noodle Casserole, and the remaining gravy can be used to dress up hot turkey sandwiches for the weekend.

TURKEY THAWING TIPS

The preferred way to thaw a turkey is in its original wrapper on a tray in the refrigerator. Another acceptable quick method is to place the bird in the unopened wrapper in cool water. Change the water frequently. Do not thaw a turkey at room temperature.

APPROXIMATE THAWING TIME

Purchased Weight	In Refrigerator	In Cool Water
4 to 8 pounds	1-1/2 to 2 days	4 to 5 hours
8 to 12 pounds	2 days	5 to 6 hours
12 to 16 pounds	2 to 3 days	6 to 9 hours
16 to 24 pounds	3 to 4 days	9 to 12 hours

Turkey Gravy

- Turkey giblets and neck 1 teaspoon salt
- 10 cups water 3 chicken-flavored bouillon cubes
- 3 onions, peeled, quartered 2 bay leaves
- 3 ribs celery, cut into sticks 1/3 cup turkey pan drippings
- 2 carrots, peeled, cut into sticks 1/2 cup corn starch

In large saucepot place turkey giblets and neck, water, onion, celery, carrots, salt, bouillon cubes and bay leaves. Bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer 1-1/2 hours or until liquid is reduced by 1/2. Strain broth; reserve broth and giblets. Pour roasting pan drippings into large measuring cup. Let stand several minutes until fat drippings separate from turkey juices. Return 1/3 cup fat drippings to pan; discard remaining fat drippings. Add reserved broth-to-turkey juices to equal 5 cups. Sprinkle corn starch into drippings. Stir and cook over medium heat just until smooth; remove from heat. Gradually stir in broth until smooth. Return to heat. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat, stirring up brown bits from bottom of roasting pan and boil 1 minute. If desired, chop giblets and add to gravy. Makes 5 cups.

Alternate Method: Follow recipe for Turkey Gravy. Return 1/3 cup fat drippings and 4-1/2 cups turkey juices and broth to roasting pan. Stir together corn starch and remaining 1/2 cup turkey broth until smooth; add to roasting pan. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat, stirring up brown bits from bottom of pan and boil 1 minute. If desired, chop giblets and add to gravy. Makes 5 cups.

Vegetable Casserole

- 1/4 cup corn oil margarine
- 1/2 pound mushrooms, sliced (2 cups)
- 1 cup coarsely chopped onion
- 1/4 cup corn starch
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 3 cups milk
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 pound Cheddar cheese, shredded
- 2 pounds potatoes, peeled, cubed, cooked (4 cups)
- 3 cups sliced cooked carrots
- 1/2 pound green beans, cut into 1-inch pieces, cooked (2 cups)
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons corn oil margarine, melted
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley

In 5-quart dutch oven or saucepot melt 1/4 cup margarine over medium heat. Add mushrooms and onion; cook, stirring occasionally, 5 minutes or until tender. In medium bowl stir together corn starch, salt and pepper. Gradually stir in milk until smooth. Stir into mushroom mixture. Add Worcestershire sauce. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Remove from heat. Stir in cheese until melted. Add potatoes, carrots and green beans; toss to coat well. Pour into 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking dish, or in 3-quart casserole. In small bowl stir together bread crumbs, margarine and parsley. Sprinkle over vegetable mixture. Bake in 325°F oven about 40 minutes or until heated through. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Cranberry-Pear Sauce

- 2 cups cranberries
- 2 cups diced peeled pears
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup orange juice
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- 2 tablespoons corn starch
- 1/4 cup water
- 1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts (optional)

In 3-quart saucepan stir together cranberries, pears, sugar, orange juice, cinnamon and ginger. Bring to boil over medium heat; reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes or until cranberry skins pop. Stir together corn starch and water until smooth. Stir into cranberry mixture. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Cover; refrigerate. If desired, just before serving, stir in walnuts. Makes 3 to 4 cups.

Note: Recipe may be doubled, and a portion used to make Cranberry Crunch Dessert.

Cranberry Crunch Dessert

- 1 cup quick oats
- 1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1/2 cup unfluffed flour
- 1/3 cup corn oil margarine
- 1-1/2 cups Cranberry-Pear Sauce

Grease 8 x 8 x 2-inch baking pan. In medium bowl stir together oats, sugar and flour. With pastry blender or two knives cut in margarine until coarse crumbs form. Place 1-1/2 cups of the oat mixture evenly in bottom of prepared pan. Spread with Cranberry-Pear Sauce. Top with remaining oat mixture. Bake in 350°F oven 45 minutes or until lightly browned and bubbly. If desired, serve warm with vanilla ice cream. Makes 6 to 9 servings.

Florentine Turkey Noodle Casserole

- 1/4 cup corn oil margarine
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup corn starch
- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup chicken bouillon
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 3 cups 1/4-inch noodles, cooked, drained, divided
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped spinach, cooked, drained
- 2 cups cubed roast turkey
- 4 ounces Swiss cheese, shredded (2 cups), divided
- Paprika

In 2-quart saucepan melt margarine over medium heat. Add onion; cook 2 to 3 minutes or until tender. Remove from heat. Stir in corn starch until blended. Gradually stir in milk until smooth. Stir in bouillon, salt, nutmeg and pepper. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. In 11 x 7 x 2-inch baking dish pour 1 cup of the sauce to cover bottom. Layer 2-1/4 cups of the noodles, spinach, turkey and 1 cup of the cheese in baking dish. Top with remaining noodles. Pour sauce over noodles. Sprinkle with remaining cheese and paprika. Bake in 350°F oven 35 minutes or until heated through. Makes 6 servings.

Streusel-topped pumpkin pie and pecan tartlets add flair to Thanksgiving dinner table

New touch to desserts

This year marks the 360th anniversary of the first Thanksgiving. And while much has changed since that initial feast in 1621, much has remained the same.

Family and friends still get together to enjoy turkey and all the trimmings. It's probably the most filling meal of the entire year — so, it's nice to offer a choice of desserts, one big and one small. We suggest a traditional pumpkin pie with a modern touch as the big dessert and mini pecan tartlets — for those who "can't eat another mouthful."

Pumpkin pie lovers will adore Streusel-Topped Pumpkin Pie, a sumptuous Thanksgiving dessert. It's golden crust, made with shredded wheat crumbs, holds a rich pumpkin filling which is topped with walnut streusel and crowned with whipped cream. The pilgrims would have loved it.

Pecan Tartlets are just enough of a sweet to give a delicious ending for Thanksgiving dinner. They're little morsels of goodness to be enjoyed on this special occasion.

9-inch pie plate. Fold in half; lift into 9-inch pie plate; unfold; gently ease to line bottom and sides. Flute edges; prick bottom and sides with fork; set aside.

3. Make Filling: In large bowl, with electric mixer at high speed, beat egg yolks until thick and fluffy. With electric mixer at low speed, beat in pumpkin, sugar, cream, butter or margarine and pumpkin-pie spice. Set aside.

4. In medium bowl, with electric mixer at high speed, beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Using rubber spatula, gently fold into egg yolk-pumpkin mixture. Pour into prepared crust.

5. Bake 15 minutes; reduce heat to 350° F. Bake 30 to 40 minutes longer or until knife inserted in center comes out clean; remove from oven; cool on wire rack.

6. Make Streusel Topping: In small bowl, combine crumbled shredded wheat, walnuts, honey and vanilla extract; toss until well coated. Spoon onto top of pie.

7. To Serve: Garnish with whipped cream. Makes 8 servings.

• Microwave Instructions: Use 9-inch microwave-proof pie plate, prepare crust as in steps 1 and 2. Microwave at 100 percent power, 5½ to 6 minutes, rotating ¼ turn after 2½ minutes, until crust is dry and bottom is opaque.

• Follow step 4. Microwave at 50 percent power 14 to 16 minutes, rotating ¼ turn every 4 minutes, until knife inserted halfway between center and edge comes out clean; remove from oven; cool on wire rack.

• Follow step 6, serve as in step 7.

PECAN TARTLETS

2 packages cream cheese softened (3 oz. package)
¼ cup butter or margarine, softened
2 cups shredded wheat finely rolled-about 1½ cups
¼ cup all-purpose flour

Filling:
½ cup dark brown sugar, firmly packed
1 egg
¼ cup butter or margarine, softened

1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¾ cups chopped pecans

1. Make Crust: Preheat oven to 400° F. In medium bowl, with electric mixer at medium speed, beat cream cheese and butter or margarine until well blended; add shredded Wheat crumbs and flour. Beat at high speed, about 2 minutes, until well blended and smooth.

2. Form into 24 (1-inch) balls; press dough around bottom and sides of ungreased, 1½-inch, miniature baking cups; set aside. (These may be refrigerated in an airtight container for several days, or frozen and thawed before serving.)

3. Make Filling: In medium bowl, with electric mixer at medium speed, beat brown sugar, egg, butter or margarine and vanilla extract about 3 minutes, until well blended; stir in ½ cup chopped pecans. Divide mixture evenly among 24 tartlets; top with remaining pecans.

4. Bake 18 to 20 minutes until golden. Serve warm or cool

*To use muffin cups, form into 12 (2-inch) balls; press into 2½-inch muffin cups. Bake 20 to 30 minutes, until golden.

Keep entertaining boss simple

By DORSEY CONNORS
© Chicago Sun-Times

Entertaining your boss or an important client at home is rarely a mediocre affair. It's either a supreme achievement or a disaster.

The disasters are usually brought on by the attempt to overdo. Let simplicity be the keynote. Unless you have a cook and a waitress available, don't try a multicourse dinner. A parade of gourmet foods might lead the boss to think you really don't need that raise, or could convince the client his patronage is not that important to you.

On the other hand, don't scrimp. For instance, your guest will realize it took some budget juggling to serve a roast as an entree.

A few wedges of different cheeses with crackers or a platter of raw vegetables (carrot and celery sticks and cauliflower) with a tasty dip make easy hors d'oeuvres. Serve the roast with browned potatoes, a vegetable and a salad.

It's a hearty meal that allows the cook ample time to enjoy cocktails without popping into the kitchen every few minutes to check the food. (The Duchess of Windsor advocates allowing only 30 minutes for cocktail so that guests would truly enjoy dinner.)

Top off the meal with sherbet and cookies. Curb your urge to tell your guest about your achievements or those of your mate. Instead, ask him about himself, his family, his interests, his hobbies. Most likely, he'll leave you home with the firm conviction that you are a brilliant conversationalist.

Cold cuts have other uses

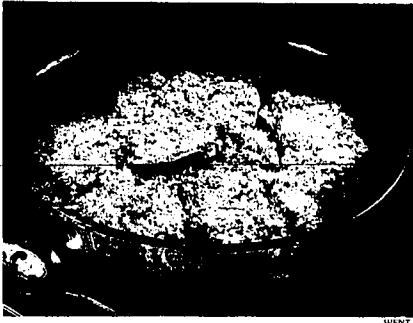

Times-News Correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Cold cuts, the aristocrats of sandwich fillings, can easily be turned into inexpensive-type meat surrogates for your favorite dishes.

If you want to try the following formulas, don't plan on using pre-cut, packaged cold cut varieties. They won't work as well as the ones cut to our recipe specifications, which you can buy from the delicatessen in your favorite supermarket.

BOLOGNA CUTLETS PARMIGIANA

- 6 slices, 1/4 to 1/2-inch thick (approximately 1 pound)
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/2 cup flour
 - 2 eggs, beaten with 2 tablespoons cold water
 - 1-1/2 cups seasoned breadcrumbs
 - 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
 - 2 tablespoons salad oil
 - 8 ounces mozarella cheese, sliced
 - 2 cans (8 oz. each) tomato sauce
 - 1/2 teaspoon oregano
 - grated Parmesan cheese
- Preheat oven to 350° F. In shallow dish, combine salt, pepper and flour; coat bologna slices, patting off excess. Dip coated bologna slices in beaten egg and then in breadcrumbs, pressing to form firm coating; chill 30 minutes. In skillet, heat margarine or butter and oil; heat margarine and lightly brown on both sides; remove cutlets from skillet and place them in greased shallow baking pan or casserole. Place sliced cheese over cutlets and cheese. Liberally sprinkle grated Parmesan over top. Bake 30 to 35 minutes, or until bubbly and lightly browned on top. Serve with steaming rice or noodles. Makes 8 servings.

Bologna Cutlets Parmigiana goes well with steaming rice

- 1 large clove garlic, mashed
 - 1 tablespoon honey
 - 2 tablespoons dry sherry
 - 2 tablespoons apricot preserves
 - 1/2 cup sesame seeds
- Preheat oven to 300° F. In large, flat baking pan, spread ham loaf sticks. In mixing bowl, combine soy sauce, garlic, honey, sherry and apricot preserves; brush some of the mixture on meat sticks. Place ham sticks 1 hour, brushing every 10 minutes with barbecue sauce and running in order to evenly coat with sauce. Remove sticks from oven; allow to cool slightly; sprinkle with sesame seeds. Serve with steaming rice and crisp green vegetable. Makes 6 servings.

"LEBERKLOESSE"

- (LIVERWURST DUMPLINGS)
- 4 ounces liverwurst, minced
- 2 slices white bread, broken into fine pieces, (about 1 cup)
- 1 tablespoon grated onion
- 1 tablespoon parsley flakes
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon white pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning
- pinch powdered thyme
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 egg yolks
- 1/2 cup soft margarine or butter

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS: All of the other traditional fixings — boiling onions, yams, sweet potatoes, mixed nuts, stuffing — will be on sale. The cranberry shortage will most likely show up before Christmas, so freeze some now for your tree-trimmings and goodies. Tangelos are coming in.

Canned pumpkin sales are down, as busy cooks turn to the bakery or frozen foods departments for their pumpkin pies. Fruit pies are also popular for Thanksgiving dinners, while mincemeat pies seem to be slipping out of the picture.

Daily recipe

- L. Mae Stinnett
290 Filer West, Space #18
- ### CHOC-O-NAISE CAKE
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
 - 2 cups flour
 - 1/2 cup cocoa
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 cup mayonnaise

- 1 teaspoon soda
 - 2 tablespoons buttermilk
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
 - 2 tablespoons cold water
- Using level measurements, place first five ingredients in mixing bowl, mix until blended. In a one-cup measuring cup add 1 soda, buttermilk and fill to top with cold water. In another cup, put 2 tablespoons cold water, add vanilla and add to all dry ingredients. Blend all together 2 minutes. Pour into two 5 1/2-inch round pans, or 24 cupcakes. Bake 300° 20 to 25 minutes or until done for pans, and 15 to 20 minutes for cupcakes.

Cauliflower: cabbage with education

By ROBERT W. STRUBBE
© Chicago Sun-Times

Cauliflower could be described as cabbage with a college education. There is only one species of cabbage; all other plants of the family are simply variations that are "educated" to allow one part of the plant to develop at the expense of the other family members.

As different as they look and taste, broccoli and cauliflower are a type of cabbage in which the flowers have been developed for eating.

It usually is only the curd (the mass of undeveloped flowers) of the cauliflower that is eaten. There is no reason, though, not to eat the leaves and the stalk, which taste like cabbage.

Cauliflower is available all year round, at steady prices. It is becoming more popular served raw on relish trays and in salads. The cooking odor of this aristocratic cabbage still retains the family trait. You can retard the odor somewhat by adding a little vinegar or lemon juice, which also keeps the color white.

Cauliflower can be served buttered, creamed, au gratin or polonaise style. Small flowerets also are used raw in salads.

A whole head of cauliflower needs no more than 25 minutes' total cooking time. Set it in a 1-inch depth of boiling salted water. Let cook for 5 minutes, without the lid. Then cover and cook another 15 to 20 minutes, depending on the size of the head.

Try cauliflower prepared this way.

Savory Cauliflower

- 1 medium head cauliflower, about 2 pounds
 - 1 inch boiling beef or chicken stock in saucpan
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - One-eighth teaspoon pepper
 - Chopped fresh parsley for garnish
- Wash cauliflower and remove outside leaves (save for use in salads). Separate head into flowerets. Place in a saucpan with stock and salt. Cook, uncovered, 5 minutes. Cover and cook until cauliflower is tender, about 20 minutes. Season with black pepper and garnish with chopped parsley. Makes 3 to 4 servings.

Refund form data given

By MARTIN SLOANE
© United Feature Syndicate

One of my recent columns concerning trading forms by mail with refunders in other cities and states. Here are several questions that readers have asked about this subject:

DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPPER — I sent 20 forms to a refunder in a trading magazine. I found in a refunding magazine.

Two weeks later I received 15 new forms and five of my original forms. Attached to them was a note saying, "These forms are junk."

I am new to trading forms by mail and would appreciate receiving your definition of "junk." — Peggy C. from Dallas.

DEAR PEGGY — Traders use the term "junk" to describe refund forms and other items that are not generally acceptable for trading.

The strict definition of "junk" includes coupons, merchandise order forms that ask for a substantial amount of money as well as proofs of purchase, contest or sweepstakes entry forms and refund forms that will expire within 30 days after reaching your trading partner. (The last are sometimes called "short-dated forms.")

The next question shows that "junk" is only one consideration when selecting forms to send to a trading partner.

DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPPER — I have been trading refund forms for several years and have more than 25 active trading partners all over the country. I have recently received forms from several new refunders and have been very unhappy with them.

In one trade of 20 forms, only two were for food items. The rest were for cigarettes, car wax, deodorants, tub cleaners and chewing tobacco.

Trades like this are a waste of time and postage. I told these beginners that I wasn't interested in trading with them if they couldn't do any better. I think I did a good job if you passed this message along to your readers. — Pam R. from Nashville.

DEAR PAM — Thank you for your suggestion. Here are some trading tips that new refunders should consider.

Experienced refunders are primarily interested in food forms — that is, forms for refund offers that require proofs of purchase from food products. At least half of the forms you send out should be food forms.

The rest should be a variety of non-food forms. No two forms should be for the same type of product.

The best strategy for a first trade is to do your utmost to send out a selection of good forms. You want to show your new trading partner the kinds of forms that you can provide in the future.

Before you seal the envelope, take one last look at the forms you are sending out in-trade. Ask yourself, "Are these the kind of forms I would like to receive?" If the answer is "no," then change the selection.

Don't expect every trade to be a good one. Trading by mail is a process that involves weeding out the poor traders and working hard to establish lasting relationships with the good ones.

Beef prices drop

DENVER, Colo. (UPI) — Beef lovers may get a break this year, after all.

Total production of beef and other meats in the last quarter is expected to be larger than earlier forecasts had indicated, according to a beef situation update to retailers from the National Cattleman's Association. NCA president J.W. Swan says retail prices have been dropping and are expected to continue.

YOUR SPINE and YOUR HEALTH

by Dr. Ludwig C. Landwehr, D.C.

Youth is a feeling not an age: How old are you? Not chronologically, but in spirit? There are youthful oldsters and old youngsters.

How many people do you know that have slowed down at "twenty or thirty" — appear to carry the burdens of the whole world at forty — have a bent back and a protruding stomach — that Dr. Landwehr have allowed themselves to get soft, fat and out of condition — have deteriorated health purely because of their own negligence.

We have been given strong minds and bodies and with proper care we can enjoy our longevity and enjoy life to the fullest. Yet so many of us don't make the most of ourselves.

Whether you are eight or eighty, if you want to stay youthful, follow the suggestions as they will appear over time in this space.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the practices of scientific Chiropractic, written by Dr. Ludwig C. Landwehr, M.D., West Chiropractic Clinic, 717 Adams Ave., Wc. Twin Falls, Id. 733-0222.)

Stores help those with special diets

By MARTIN SLOANE
@ United Feature Syndicate

One of the greatest problems for people on new diets is supermarket shopping.

All of the familiar products that have been regulars on the shopping list must be carefully investigated. Many are discovered to be "off limits."

Now begins a slow and painstaking search for new items that meet the dietary requirements.

Supermarkets can help their customers cope with these problems. Here is what several thoughtful chains are doing:

Kroger's "Nutrition Data" program provides important nutritional information on more than 100 fresh produce and meat items. Shelf signs list the produce and meat sections list the calories, vitamins, minerals, fat, protein and sodium in the various products.

"Schucks" Supermarkets, a Missouri-based chain, put more than a year of research and development into the design of its "Nutri Guide" program. Color-coded shelf tags assist shoppers who are on special diets to locate foods within the store.

There are different codes for fat-modified, calorie-controlled and sodium-restricted diets. The same coding is used in brochures that list each Nutri Guide-identified item in the store.

Giant Food in the Washington, D.C. area uses a special word code on shelf price labels to identify foods that are low in calories, sodium, fats and cholesterol. The chain also provides shoppers with a special brochure that lists all foods in these categories.

Byerly Foods in Minnesota's Twin Cities has prepared eight "Special Foods Shopping Guides." Among them are guides for those on gluten-restricted and high-fiber diets. Each booklet offers a program of recipes and a shopping list of items available in the store. In addition, color-coded shelf markers identify appropriate foods.

In Boston, Stop and Shop has developed a line of vegetables canned without salt. The varieties include peas, corn, green beans, carrots, beets and mixed vegetables. These products, which are packed in water without additives or sugar, were introduced in response to consumer concerns after two years of research and testing.

These supermarkets and others that have introduced similar programs should be applauded for their thoughtfulness to their customers. I hope that others will follow their good example.

Refunding Note: Several companies are showing consideration for customers who are on restricted diets by accepting proofs of purchase from their low-sodium or unsalted products as well as from their regular products. These companies include Chiffon, Campbell's, Parkay and Old London Meals Toast.

Dips become deluxe served inside shells

HANOVER, N.J. — Dips, the perennial party favorite, take on a deluxe dimension when served in green pepper and tomato shells.

Crunchy crackers are great for scooping and dipping into the zesty, savory mixture.

This party-style dip is so simple to make. Just whisk three basic ingredients in a blender or food processor. Stir in four more and you have a delicious dip. Creamy cottage cheese is blended with lemon juice and garlic and, for flavor and texture, the chopped trimmings and pulp of green pepper and tomato are added, along with tangy feta cheese, black olives and dill.

Spoon into tomato and green pepper shells and serve on a bed of fresh leaf lettuce; surround with crackers for the perfect beginning to any celebration.

Creamy stuffed Vegetable Dip can be the star of the party as well as the center of attention as a fork appetizer or salad lunch. Just cut the green pepper or tomato in half, hollow out and divide the mixture to make four individual servings.

For a large party, the recipe can be doubled or tripled. If preparing ahead, longer than overnight, store dip and vegetables separately, filling only at the last moment before serving.

CREAMY STUFFED VEGETABLE DIP

- 1 large green pepper
- 1 large tomato
- 1 (8-ounce) container regular or low fat cottage cheese
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/2 cup crumbled feta cheese
- 1/4 cup sliced pitted black olives
- 1 teaspoon dried dill weed
- Leaf lettuce

Cut slices crosswise 1/4 inch from top of green pepper and tomato. Carefully remove seeds from green pepper and discard. Cut out inside ribs; chop ribs and top. Similarly, prepare tomato top and pulp. In blender container, combine cottage cheese, lemon juice and garlic powder. Cover and blend at high speed, about two minutes or until smooth and creamy.

Pour into a medium bowl. Stir in reserved green pepper and tomato, feta cheese, black olives and dill weed until well blended. Divide mixture evenly between hollowed out green pepper and tomato cups. Line serving plate with leaf lettuce. Place green pepper and tomato cups on lettuce. Chill at least one hour or until serving time. Makes 1 1/2 cups of dip.

Parental rule necessary

By JOHN ROSEMOND
© Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Commentary

Some of you may recall a recent column in which I said, "The failure to be an authoritative parent has been given the stamp of legitimacy by such 'experts' as ... and damned Dorothy C. Briggs' article of 'Your Child's Self Esteem' (Doubleday, 1970), in my list of 'for instances'."

Several weeks later, I received a letter from Dorothy Briggs—a copy, actually, of one she sent to several newspapers that carry my column. In it, she claims that I have misrepresented her. Her book Briggs says advocates an authoritative approach to raising children.

In her letter, she defines "authoritative" as "being firm about the establishment of needed limits on behavior."

Briggs and I agree on the definition of authoritative, but we are leagues apart when it comes to a definition of "needed limits." We also fail to see eye-to-eye on such things as spankings, the importance of obedience to the growth of independence and the merits of punishment.

Our most fundamental difference, however, revolves around the central premise of her book. In it Briggs says that parents who are sensitive to their children's needs of self-esteem are democratic—they share power with their children. On page 244, she writes, "In democratic homes, children have an equal part in working out limits."

Democratic parents let their children participate in making decisions that affect them, give them ample freedom to make choices and negotiate conflicts with them "to everyone's mutual satisfaction."

In Briggs' view, the democratic process applies well to determining which household chores the child does and when, as well as policies regarding television hours and programs, bedtime, homework, use of the car, telephone and so on.

A further sampling of Briggs' reasoning: "Democracy in government has little meaning to a child unless he feels the daily benefits of it with you (when we choose to negotiate).

When parents pretend to be chairing a democracy, those amendments are concealed and function; therefore, as Catch-22's... Furthermore, parents who feel compelled to extend those privileges also feel guilty whenever they pull one of the strings. Inevitably, their guilt results in ambivalence, confusion and a child with a tenuous sense of security and ultimately, a poor sense of self-esteem.

On the other hand, in families (like mine) where no one pretends—that democracy is present or possible, children can participate in decisions that affect them, make choices and so on. The amendments are there, too, but they are on the table, face up with all the other cards. There are no secrets, no hidden, no hidden agendas.

The alternative to being either permissive or authoritarian is not and never will be the family democracy. Call it what you will, I call it a benevolent dictatorship. Benevolent dictators realize that love and firm authority are compatibly consistent with a child's developmental needs.

In a benevolent dictatorship everyone has a chance to be heard, and knows that his point of view is respected, but everyone also understands that parents have the final say.

"Your Child's Self Esteem" Briggs lists six essential building blocks of "psychological safety" that I assume is synonymous with security. Parental authority is not among them. I conclude, therefore, that Briggs places more of an emphasis on communicating love and acceptance to children than she does on communicating authority. Regardless of what she says in her letter, the ideas in her book lead to that interpretation.

Once and for all, the fiction of the democratic family needs to be laid to rest. I have not misrepresented Dorothy Briggs nearly so much as she has misrepresented the needs of children and the realities of family living.

I stand firm, therefore, on my original remarks.

at home." Therefore, "democratic homes strengthen our country."

As attractive as this may sound to the American ear, it is rhetoric, and nothing more. In the first place, the phrase "democratic family" is a contradiction of terms. A family is a hierarchy. A democracy is not.

In the second place, there is no evidence for Briggs' claim that democratic homes strengthen a democratic society. In the United States the institutions of family, church and school always have been entrusted with the responsibility of preparing children for citizenry. Their educational methods, however, have never been democratic.

A democracy is an inherently fragile form of government. Its strength and stability depend on a citizenry capable of self-sacrifice, self-control and self-sufficiency. But until they mature, children rely on adults to exercise those restraints for them.

The growing child gradually internalizes the controls and values his parents impress upon him. Eventually, he is ready to participate in a democratic society. One does not, cannot help a child grasp the responsibilities that come with the privilege of democracy by creating a pseudo-democratic family.

Democracy within a family is not only undesirable, it is impossible. You can, if it makes you feel better, pretend to have a democratic family, but pretense is as far as it will ever go. What Briggs fails to acknowledge is that certain necessary strings are forever attached to all the privileges she mentions.

They read (parenthetically): You can participate in (some of) the decisions that affect you, (but we will always make the final decision, even if that is to agree with you, compromise with you or give in to you). You can have ample freedom of choice, (but we will retain control over when you choose and what your choices shall be). We will negotiate

Oxalic acid will dissolve planter rust

By PETER HOTTON
of Boston Globe

Q. My whisky barrel planters left rust spots on my concrete patio. How can I remove the rust? And how can I remove two-year-old house stain spills on concrete. — B.G.

A. For the rust, dissolve 4 ounces oxalic acid (available in hardware and paint stores); in a quart of warm water. Apply this to the rust, let dry, and dispose of the crystals carefully; they are toxic. Repeat if necessary. For the stain stains, letting them weather is your best bet. Bleach might help, might not.

Q. I find tiny grubs in my closet and sweater drawers, and there are holes in the clothing. What are they and how can I get rid of them? — A.L.A.

A. From their description (with stripes at right angles to their length) they are carpet beetles, which attack wools. Clothes moth larvae are white with a tannish head. Moth crystals (paradichlorobenzene or naphthalene) will kill both, but you have to use enough of them so the vapor will kill.

Schefflera easy plant to maintain

By RICHARD DeLANO
© Chicago Sun-Times

It appears to be a most difficult and unusual specimen from a tropical jungle. In reality it's an easy-to-grow floor plant.

Schefflera is one of the finest plants available and one of the easiest to maintain. Actually, the first scheffleras were misnamed. Yet the plant became so popular that the name has stuck. It also is as popular as its other names, such as umbrella plant or even octopus plant. The correct scientific name is now Brassala velutina.

Plants available at garden shops range in size from small individuals in 6-inch pots to large, tub-sized specimens.

Care for both sizes is identical. They like being potbound; they will be perfectly happy in a pot filled with up to 80 percent roots. Such a plant will flourish and put out a wealth of leafy new shoots.

This lush growth, however, does not occur at this time of year. Scheffleras go into a resting phase during the dark days of winter.

The resting stage, like true dormancy, is not demanded for the plant's health. You can keep the plant in continuous growth by assuring it of 14 to 16 hours of light a day. This can be a combination of daylight and artificial light. Brighter lights do not have to be on for as long a time as those less brilliant.

If your schefflera is illuminated, it will thrive as you apply fertilizer. Once to twice a month gives a good growth rate.

But before loading the plant with too much fertilizer, bear in mind the plant's natural bent. Twenty- and 30-foot specimens are not uncommon in Florida.

If your plant seems to be developing a tendency to reach to the point of absolute saturation. Then let the plant dry almost to the wilting point.

If the soil is constantly moist, schefflera leaves will yellow and fall or the shoot tips will blacken and die.

As for light, it likes brilliant light but not direct sun. This is a superb plant for people who have never succeeded with houseplants. It will restore your confidence in your plant-growing ability.

Dr. Lamb

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am one of those who cannot tolerate milk or milk products. I learned about Lact-Aid and am using it.

But what do I do about ice cream, which I love? I like to eat a lot of it in the summer.

Until recently I was able to eat all the ice cream and drink all the milk I desired. Now all of a sudden I can't. Why? I also have arthritis and have had cancer of the breast, if that has any bearing.

DEAR READER — I'm glad you have found out about Lact-Aid. For the benefit of other readers who have intolerance to lactose in milk, this is an enzyme product you can add to milk. Then leave the milk in the refrigerator while the enzyme splits the milk sugar in the same way your own enzymes do in your digestive system if you still have enough enzymes. Readers wanting more information on this product can write SugarLo Co., P. O. Box 1100, Pleasantville, N. J. 08222.

Lactose intolerance is extremely common in adults, occurring in about 10 percent of adult Anglo-Saxons and Now you know . . .

By United Press International

The three-toed sloth is the slowest moving land animal with a ground speed of 6 to 8 feet per minute.

Product assists non-milk drinkers

In as many as 80 percent of adult blacks and other ethnic groups.

It causes gas, abdominal cramping and symptoms very similar to an irritable and spastic colon. The undigested milk sugar acts like a chemical laxative in many respects and the effects can be quite disabling.

The lactose problem is discussed in greater detail in The Health Letter No. 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y. 10019.

Milk and milk products are found in large numbers of commercially prepared foods. You will even find lactose in some candy.

The only solution for the person with a severe problem is to incubate the milk with Lact-Aid at home, then use this milk to make cream sauces, puddings, ice cream and other favorite foods.

Lactose intolerance is usually caused by a gradual disappearance of a natural enzyme as a person grows out of childhood. But it can be caused by infections such as amebiasis, giardiasis and other medical problems that affect the intestines.

That sometimes accounts for the sudden onset of milk intolerance in a person who has previously had no problems.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am well except for after-surgery pains occasionally. Is there any danger in having slight traces of blood in the bowel movement? Also what causes a floating bowel movement?

DEAR READER — You do not say what type of surgery you had. But anyone who has unexplained blood in the stools must see a doctor.

It can be a sign of cancer of the bowel. It can be hemorrhoids. But it is best to know and not to guess. When cancer of the bowel is detected early enough, it can often be cured. Unfortunately it is often detected late.

The reason a stool floats is that it is lighter than water. That is because there is either gas trapped within it or from its high fat content. It is not normal to have that much fat in the stool.

But there are some medical conditions that interfere with fat absorption and can lead to this finding. An example would be a person with disease of the pancreas.

Dear Abby

Fifth Annual Great American Smokeout set Thursday

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: Tomorrow will mark the Fifth Annual Great American Smokeout, a good-humored, upbeat, one-day campaign to encourage smokers to give up cigarettes for 24 hours — just to prove to themselves that they can. It's the brainchild of the American Cancer Society, which insists that anyone who can live without a cigarette for 24 hours can quit forever.

Last year 18.5 million smokers took up the challenge and 4.9 million made it through the day without a puff. One to 10 days later, 7.7 million were not smoking, and a year later over a million were "clean." So if you are hooked on cigarettes and have been meaning to quit, why not start tomorrow — just for 24 hours? It won't be easy, but I promise you it will be the best holiday present you can give yourself and those who love you.

Coincidentally, tomorrow is the grand opening of a new 134-room motel in Dallas for people who hate smoke. It is appropriately named the Non-Smokers Inn. Its owner, Lyndon Sanders, a native Texan, says it will be the first in a chain of other such motels.

When I phoned Mr. Sanders to learn more about the Non-Smokers Inn, he said: "Smoking killed my father and my uncle, and I don't know how many of my friends. I know that a lot of non-smokers can work because I tried it out at the Dollar Inn in Albuquerque, N.M. in 1974. I offered a non-smoking wing and started with 15 rooms, and now it has 108 rooms!"

"In the Non-Smokers Inn in Dallas I'm going to offer luxurious rooms at bargain prices for non-smokers only. When a person registers, he is asked to sign a note stating that he will not smoke on the premises, and neither will he permit anyone visiting him to smoke. Anyone caught violating that oath will be evicted and fined $100 to pay for cleaning the room.

"Smoke stinks up everything. We have to take down the draperies, shampoo the carpets, strip the beds — even clean the shower curtains. You should see the yellow nicotine stains on the cleaning rags. I tell you, it would make a huzzard gang!"

I asked Mr. Sanders if he was prepared to handle any legal problems should a smoker be refused admittance to this motel or, heaven forbid, light up on the premises and face eviction. His reply: "I just want to know which courthouse to go to. I'll be there with my lawyers, and I'll fight it all the way to the Supreme Court if I have to."

"How about the rights of smokers?" you ask. Of course they are entitled to smoke if they wish. But they will have to find a place where they can smoke to their hearts' content without offending those who can't tolerate it.

First the good news. I just heard about Muse Air, an airline especially for non-smokers. There is positively NO SMOKING on its planes. Now the bad news. It flies only between Dallas and Houston.

DEAR ABBY: I've smoked for a number of years. I started when I was very young and too naive to know how hooked I could get. I've tried to quit several times but have never been successful.

Abby, I've always tried to be considerate of others when I smoke, and I never hesitate to put out my cigarette promptly without grumbling if someone asks me to. The problem is, I am rarely asked politely.

I've had total strangers tell me I am boorish, inconsiderate and selfish for smoking in their presence when they haven't even indicated that I bothered them. I've been yelled at, called names and been given dirty looks by people who made no attempt to explain calmly that they were offended by my smoking. I've even been told I was a rotten mother for smoking in front of my children.

I don't think it is fair to be treated like a criminal for doing something that is perfectly legal. I know very few smokers who would not like to quit. We are all aware of the health hazards, so please tell your readers to ask politely if they are offended by cigarette smoke. Also, try to understand that people do not smoke because they want to hurt other people. We are not evil; we just have a bad habit — and I've never met anyone who doesn't have at least one. Smokers are people too.

Small talk called adult society junk food

By ERMA BOMBACEK
© Field Enterprises, Inc.

Next to the Muppets, jeans and bumper stickers, the No. 1 commodity in this country is small talk. . . . the junk food of adult conversation.

Most people don't leave home without it.

It's the staple of every gathering, every party, every event where people stand around eating bait off crackers and watching their feet swell.

The basic charm of small talk is that you can drop in on it halfway and leave before it's over and never miss anything. They are complete sentences marked by the absence of an idea.

I'm worried about small talk. Lately, it's become so ordinary and so tacky . . . even for small talk. There's no creativity to it anymore. Same old stuff. "Do you think Diana and Charles are really happy?" and "I want someone to call me the minute PBS reruns Talking Blunt About Your Pancreas," and "Where were you and what were you doing when you heard Phil Donahue and Marlo Thomas were married?"

The holiday season will soon be upon us and it's not too early to compile a list of small-talk topics that are provocative and have some substance. These are just a few for starters. How about:

"Did I tell you about the diet I almost died from?" What a relief it would be to hear a few failure stories from dieters who have not lost 18 pounds in 18 days, but whose hair fell out and they personally molested a carrot stick from their latest fast.

"Hey, I started smoking again because I'm weak." You want to draw a card? Start talking about your lack of discipline. People will flock to hear anything you've got to say.

"Who is Carl Sagan and what is public television?" A refreshing alternative to a roomful of people engaged in their tired "TV is a wasteland" number.

"I don't have a solution to the economy." This would take a lot of courage to pull off, but people would mention your name days after the party was over.

Last week as I stood around at a party in which everyone was asking for the recipe of the dip, lying about how we were not going to send Christmas cards this year and pretending we all knew what AWACS stood for, I said, "I saw a fat jogger the other day."

It brought the entire room to my elbow.

Chamber will meet newcomers

JEROME — New professional and business people in Jerome will have an opportunity to get better acquainted with fellow business leaders this Thursday night at a Chamber of Commerce-sponsored event.

Chamber manager Ethel Nelson said that those who have been in the community for years, as well as new arrivals, are invited to attend.

"We want them to get acquainted with one another, but we also want to acquaint them with the Jerome Chamber of Commerce program," she said.

Following a meal at 7 p.m., a slide show will be presented at 8 p.m.

The slide show will cover the various Chamber of Commerce functions in Jerome, such as Farmers and Ranchers Night, downtown promotions, annual banquets and membership activities.

"This is the first time we have done this, but it will probably become an annual event," Nelson said. "We have a lot of new people in the community, including some professional men and women who have joined existing firms, and some new businesses that have moved in. We want them to know they are appreciated."

Jerome sets Christmas 'work' party

JEROME — The Christmas spirit is being issued in a bit early in Jerome. A work party — that city officials and Chamber of Commerce members say is guaranteed to get the holiday mood rolling — will be held Friday.

Volunteers are needed in the basement of the First Security Bank from 5 to 7 p.m. to help replace bulbs in the many strands of Christmas lights that will soon decorate the city streets.

Chamber of Commerce manager Ethel Nelson said that a few years ago Jerome's Christmas lights were in such a sad state of repair that state electrical inspectors refused to allow them on the streets.

"We had a fund-raising and collected $9,000 for new lights and improved wiring," she said.

The community is proud of its new decorations. Every year, the strands of lights are spread out in the bank basement, and businessmen, students and senior citizens all help replace any burned out bulbs.

"It usually takes a couple of hours, and they are ready for the holiday decorating," Nelson said.

City crews will put the lights up Monday morning, and the Chamber of Commerce will host the workers at a breakfast.

Sewing a quilt can be tedious work, but sharing gossip and jokes make it all worth while for participants like Ethel Horn, left, and Birdie Gill.

Quilting

Senior citizens turn hobby into profit

By LAURY MASHER
Times-News writer

JEROME — Six senior citizens have found an activity to occupy idle hours during cold weather that is not only enjoyable but also profitable.

Beginning six years ago, elderly women began to meet at the Jerome Senior Citizens Center to work on quilts that were then sold in auctions and raffles to raise money for the center.

"We don't do it in the summer because we have our flowers and gardens, just during the fall and winter," says Birdie Gill.

The quilt-makers raised about $200 in March by selling raffle tickets for two quilts displayed at local banks, according to Betty Robison, the center's manager.

Gill says the women hope to raise enough money to obtain a grant to match their earnings, so that the west end of the building can be enlarged.

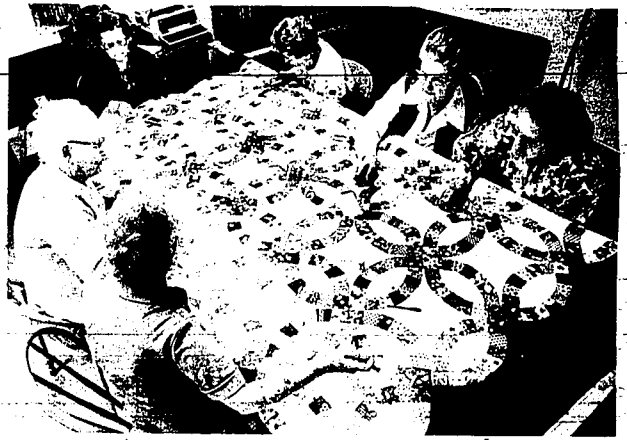

Although they are unsure how much money will be received in donations, Lucille Davis says the quilt now under construction is worth more than $500.

"It's a double wedding-ring quilt," Davis says. "These have a quite involved and difficult pattern. I've seen them on sale in handicraft stores in Salt Lake City for a lot of money."

Davis says the women have worked on the quilt for more than 50 hours.

The two quilts previously sold each entailed more than 80 hours of work.

"Each little piece is sewn by hand," says Ethel Kiser.

Jerome county clerk's office copes with turnover problem

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — County Clerk Glenda Belk of Jerome admits that her office has been plagued by personnel turnover in the past few months, but she says that replacing the lost workers has not been a problem.

Two deputy clerks left last week, and two have been hired.

"I think things will work out well, as I was able to hire two experienced deputies," Belk said Tuesday.

Last week, LaRue Massee and Kathy Miller submitted their resignations, bringing to four the number of employees to leave in the past two to three months.

In September, Sheryl Wickham transferred from the clerk's office to the prosecuting attorney's office, and Cheryl Watts also left to join the prosecutor's staff — a short time earlier.

Belk said Tuesday that she has hired Darline Taylor, a former Police Department employee who started work Monday, and Wendy Hays will join the staff next Monday.

Hays has been employed by a Twin Falls law firm and is familiar with many of the legal matters that will be handled in the clerk's office, Belk said.

Taylor married one of the police officers and was looking for another job, she said.

Both Taylor and Hays contacted her after hearing about the two vacancies, Belk said.

The two deputies who left this month said they were leaving because of job pressure and work load.

"I was sorry to see them leave, but I feel they didn't give it a chance," Belk said of the increased legal work.

She said that with a change in both the magistrate judge and the county prosecutor in August, an extra heavy work load was placed on her staff.

Massee had recommended that an additional clerk be added to the staff to lessen the work load, but Belk said she feels it will level off.

County Commissioner Mel Grindstaff said he doesn't see anything unusual in the turnover.

"We have a lot of girls transferring from one office to another, and some quit every now and then. I think we are paying them a pretty good salary, and if they feel the work is too much, then I guess they should find something else."

County employees in Jerome recently received a $25-a-month increase, plus 8 percent, which amounts to a 10-percent increase for most workers, Grindstaff said. This compares with 7-percent salary increases in several other Magic Valley counties, he said.

County governments, like other tax-supported groups and many private businesses, are having to hold the line on expenses, Grindstaff said, and many are asking their workers to be more productive.

Elderly offered opportunity to improve driving skills

JEROME — So you think you may have forgotten more about driving than the young instructors in charge of many driver education courses ever knew?

That could be the problem. But for those who feel that way and still want to brush up a bit on their driving techniques, there is a special program available in Jerome.

The instructor is Edith Nancolas, who admits to being 78. She is a certified instructor, and she presents the training by use of slides and lectures.

The course is designed to refresh senior citizens' driving skills and to increase their highway safety, Nancolas says.

The course will begin Dec. 15 at the First Methodist Church in Jerome, and it will include six lessons. Nancolas said the course is sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons and follows National Safety Council standards.

Those who enroll must have a valid Idaho driver's license and be 55 or older. Nancolas said that some insurance companies give a 10-percent discount on car insurance to those who pass the course.

To enroll, call Nancolas at 324-5645.

Jerome historical calendar provides anniversary reminder

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Residents of Jerome County will have little difficulty remembering their community's 75th anniversary in 1982.

The calendar will give them a day-to-day reminder.

At least it will for those who buy a special historical calendar now on sale for $3.50 at the Senior Citizens Center, the Northside News office and the Jerome Chamber of Commerce.

The calendar was prepared by Virginia Ricketts, the long-time county clerk and local historian, and by designer Don Sparhawk.

They contain old photos of people, places and events; the first train to arrive in Jerome, early historical events and buildings throughout the county, and some early community leaders.

Proceeds from the calendar sale will be used to support the newly organized Jerome County Historical Society.

The calendars represent one of the many promotions for the 75th anniversary celebration, which has been planned by a committee that has been meeting regularly for several months.

The 1982 Jerome County Fair and Rodeo will be one of the highlights, with a week-long observance from Aug. 16 to 21. The fair parade will be held on Aug. 16, and it will carry out an historical theme.

Some other events during the observance will include a tour of the Northside Canal Co. system on Aug. 7. Much of the history of Jerome County is the result of the canal system and its irrigation water, according to Ricketts.

Ricketts, who is coordinating the events, said the canal tour will be by bus, furnished by the canal company. This will be followed on Aug. 8 by an open house at the Idaho Power Co. plant on the Snake River, near Shoshone Falls. The plant also is marking its 75th year of service.

In addition, there is an air show planned at the Jerome County Airport by the Valley Flyers. The date will be announced in December.

Magic Valley residents, tourists and Jerome county families will have many other anniversary activities to choose from during the summer.

The Northside Players are planning a performance at the fairgrounds.

There will be an antique car show, sponsored by the Horseless Carriage Club, Aug. 14 and 15 in South Park.

The Jerome Art Guild is planning an outdoor show in the North City Park. Artists from a wide area are being invited to bring their crafts and all forms of art.

Plans also call for barbecues, tennis tournaments, other sports events, street dances, breakfasts and contests, according to Ricketts. Nearly every service and civic group in Jerome is planning to coordinate some event to the anniversary theme, she said.

Some of the other participating organizations include the Lions, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs; the Senior Citizens; the Chamber of Commerce; the Jerome Recreation District; and the Jerome County Fair Board.

Jerome adds police officer

JEROME — Police Chief Darryl Cameron has added a new officer to the Jerome Police Department.

Nathan Corder, 20, a former security officer in Twin Falls and a reserve officer in Kimberly, joined the department early this month.

He is a grandson of the late Sheriff

Paul Corder of Twin Falls County and the son of Lt. Gary Corder of the Twin Falls Police Department's detective division.

Cameron, who was named police chief in September, said his department is now up to nine members, with only one more vacancy to be filled.

Lincoln County prepares for its first blood drive in seven years

SHOSHONE — The people of Lincoln County have the seven-year itch.

At least, that is what the American Red Cross is hoping. It's been seven years since Lincoln County last had a blood drive, and Pat Hamilton, the local coordinator, is hoping on that on Thursday, Dec. 3, from 2 to 6:30 p.m. the county will turn out in force to donate blood.

To ensure that the drive runs smoothly, Hamilton needs volunteer workers to help the bloodmobile personnel at Lincoln School in Shoshone.

Specifically, registered-nurses-or-licensed-practical-nurses-are needed, along with three or four nurse's aides. Since the aides will be trained in blood-drawing procedures and the operation of equipment, they must willing to work the entire afternoon, she said.

But most of all, the drive requires something else: at least 110 blood donors.

And Hamilton says that the Red Cross hopes that at least 10 of them will have type O-negative blood. The Snake River Region of the Red Cross is low in its stock of O-negative.

To make donating more convenient, Hamilton urges volunteers to make an appointment by calling her at 886-2991 or 886-7643. So far, 10 persons have made appointments. Giving blood, she says, takes about 45 minutes.

In conjunction with the blood drive, Julie Overman, a special coordinator from the Red Cross Snake River Region, will be speaking to area groups, including the Bureau of Land Management, the Idaho State Department of Highways and the Shoshone Junior-Senior High School.

Overman says that her film presentation is designed to ease the anxieties people have about giving blood by explaining the process to them.

Thirty-five Jerome students 'perfect'

JEROME — Thirty-five Jerome High School students earned all "A's" for the first grading period.

Freshmen receiving the honor were: Rae Anderson, Bryan Bolch, Jackie Kerwell, Larry Meyers, Kenneth Nishimoto, Angelique Pennington, Janet Sorensen and Jennifer Vander Meer.

Sophomores were: Scott Hopper, Joni James, Carla Laird, Rob Larsen, Lisa Leininger, Brenda Mulder, Troy Prairie and Julie Rledtorf.

Juniors had perfect grades. They were: Mike Cobble, Mark Ireton, Dan Laird and Laurie Lickley.

Seniors in the top honor group were: Laurie Brown, Doug Jones, Lynne Kiser, Kim Lierman, Bobbi McKean, Mollie McVey, Karri Martin, Robin Mein, Brett Murrell, Dana Nutsch, Bruce Wallin, Scott Weigle, John Wong, Dan Nutsch and Barbara Sorensen.

Shoshone's chamber buys 'new' ornaments

SHOSHONE — Santa Claus's workshop is not the only place where a flurry of work is being done in anticipation of Christmas.

Fred McCrea and Charles Haszler of the Shoshone Chamber of Commerce are working like union elves to get some second-hand decorations ready and hung to give a holiday glow to the downtown area.

The two men just finished going through the tangled pile of used decorations that the chamber recently purchased from the city of Buhl.

They have rewired, repaired and rejuvenated a dozen Christmas trees, a big ball and several illuminated streamers. With a little luck, or elvish magic, the decorations will be hung soon after Thanksgiving. But McCrea, with visions of steel hanging brackets and cherry-pickers equipment dancing in his head, is a little less optimistic than the average elf.

"I think — I wouldn't bet on it — but I think that we're going to get them up after Thanksgiving," he said. "But anytime you plan on anything, something happens."

The chamber also will sponsor a children's Christmas party. It will be held on Saturday, Dec. 12, at the Rex Theater, and it will feature a free movie and a visit from Santa Claus.

Santa will arrive at Hansen's Department Store prior to the end of the movie for a visit with children who are too small to attend the movie.

Scientist denies backing off in plant safety standards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. geology scientist, under questioning by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, says his agency never compromised its safety standards in tests of the controversial Diablo Canyon atomic plant site.

"We have never felt obligated to do anything but provide the best geologic advice and let the chips fall where they may," Dr. James Devine of the USGS told the NRC commissioners.

The NRC questioned whether a search for earthquake faults under the Diablo Canyon plant was halted for fear of unwelcome findings might complicate the reactor licensing struggle.

Armed with a 14-year-old memorandum of a meeting at the Atomic Energy Commission, the commissioners wanted to know whether USGS consultants bowed to licensing concerns expressed by consultants for Pacific Gas & Electric.

The 18-page memorandum indicated that Dr. H.W. Coulter of the geological survey, an AEC seismic consultant, agreed with Dr. R.H. Jahn, a seismic consultant for Pacific Gas & Electric Co., that no dangerous faults would be found by further trenching and the foundation should not be moved.

"They do not intend to do further trenching at the risk of uncovering geologic structures, which could lead to additional speculation and possibly delay the project," the memo said.

The applicant stated that they did not believe this was necessary and that further information of this type would only complicate a contested hearing.

During Monday's session on the site's geology, Devine said scientists probably decided there were better and simpler ways to probe the seismic character of bedrock under the reactor foundation than to dig more trenches and uncover more small faults.

During excavation for the plant, a fault estimated to be between 15 million and 80,000 years old was uncovered, officials said.

"The trenching as a result of earlier excavation did reflect more faulting, but no displacement in the upper layer," Devine said.

In response to a question from Commissioner John Ahearne, Devine said the possibility was "quite low" that the exposed fault was connected to the major Hosgri earthquake fault under the sea near Diablo Canyon.

Proximity to the Hosgri fault has spawned charges that Diablo Canyon is a public safety threat.

On another matter the NRC held a secret session to discuss its response to recent revelations of earthquake design errors at the embattled California plant.

Discovery of design and quality control error has stirred a furor in the two months since the NRC licensed the first of the site's two reactors for fuel loading and low power testing.

In a letter to the NRC dated Nov. 18, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. reiterated his demand for "a truly independent consultant" to check for problems with the plant's seismic design. He also took the position that all the design checks recommended by the NRC staff on Nov. 9 should be completed before the reactor is operated, even at low power.

Appeals court says mail carriers can cut across lawns

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal appeals court has ruled that mail carriers may take short cuts over people's lawns without their permission.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Monday upheld a U.S. District Court decision against a Pittsburg, Calif., ordinance making postal employees susceptible to criminal trespass charges for crossing lawns without permission.

The federal court ruled that the ordinance was unconstitutional because it usurped the federal Postal Reorganization Act of 1976.

"The federal regulation is designed to promote the efficiency of mail delivery by permitting postal carriers to take short cuts across lawns," Circuit Judge Thomas Tang wrote in the appellate decision. "The ordinance frustrates postal efficiency."

However, Tang said, if homeowners object to mailmen crossing their lawns, they may notify the Postal Service.

Trespass sentence 6 months

SEATTLE (UPI) — A federal judge sentenced an unrepentant woman to six months in jail for trespassing on the Navy's Trident submarine base under construction at Bangor.

"I still believe I was upholding the laws of this country," defendant Mrs. Miss Lowe, 23, told U.S. District Judge Gordon Thompson Jr. in a courtroom packed with many of her supporters.

"According to the laws of this country, I have a duty to do what I did," she said as the courtroom broke into applause.

Miss Lowe told the visiting judge from San Diego that she was compelled to demonstrate against the nuclear sub base because international laws require citizens to oppose war preparations by their countries.

Miss Lowe, who said she has participated in anti-nuclear protests since the early 1960s, was one of more than 100 anti-nuclear demonstrators who climbed over a fence at the Bangor base into the waiting arms of police in October 1979.

She told the judge she was committed to "stand up and speak out for life and sanity and against the nuclear arms race."

The judge, however, said the letter of the law left him no choice but to jail her.

"Protestation is one thing, interruption of military affairs is another," Thompson said. "It is not my purpose to incarcerate you except for one thing, to make you understand that."

Another Trident demonstrator, Eleanor Wind, was given a 45-day suspended sentence and three years probation after she told the judge her priorities had changed since getting married and having a baby girl.

Grand prize to Americans

TOKYO (UPI) — Two Americans were declared the winners of an international video competition in Tokyo Tuesday.

Megan Roberts and Raymond Ghirardo, both from Laramie, Wyo., won the video grand prize at the 4th Tokyo Video Festival with their joint entry, "Life With Ray," a 12-minute episode about a college professor hooked on the joys of fiddling with a radio-controlled model tank.

The Roberts-Ghirardo entry was selected from among 741 video tapes submitted by amateurs and professional video producers from 20 countries, the sponsors said.

Miss Roberts, 29, a music composer, and Ghirardo, 28, a sculptor, were awarded a $1,500 prize and a 15-day free trip to Japan from JVC, a major Japanese electronics maker that has sponsored the annual event since 1978.

Murder attempt suspect in court

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A high school mathematics teacher whose parked car was destroyed by a homemade bomb on the UCLA campus has been charged with the attempted murder of his ex-girlfriend.

Henry Sulzer, 29, of Los Angeles, was also charged with possession of a destructive device with intent to commit bodily injury and attempted burglary and burglary in incidents unrelated to the car bombing.

Sulzer, a teacher at a private school in the suburban San Fernando Valley and a former UCLA student, pleaded innocent to all charges Monday during an arraignment in Municipal Court. He remained in custody in lieu of $50,000 bail.

Chaplain refers to grants in prayer

HELENA, Mont. (UPI) — Even the Rev. John Moses made mention of block grants, the main subject of Montana's current special legislative session.

In his closing prayer Monday, the House's chaplain appealed to the Lord to "give us a large block grant of your good grace."

School puts painting into vault for safety

RATON, N.M. (UPI) — A painting of an Indian chief and his horse that has been hanging on an elementary school wall for 61 years may be worth as much as $100,000.

"I'm taking it to the bank right now," Schools Superintendent Russell Knudson said of the original by Bert Phillips, the first artist to establish residence in Taos, N.M., now a well-known haunt of painters and art collectors.

"My wife called me today and said she found some article that said a Bert Phillips original was bringing $50,000 to $60,000," said Knudson.

Forrest Penn, who operates the state's largest art gallery in Santa Fe, confirmed that the painting in the Raton school was worth "close to $100,000."

School officials have a June 17, 1920, letter from Phillips to Mrs. F.H. Oliver, principal of Columbian Elementary School, acknowledging the final payment for the work. The painting was donated to the school by Mrs. Oliver.

Police chief says arrested doctors interfered

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — The city's police chief defended the arrests of two doctors and one of their wives who were trying to assist a heart attack victim, saying they had interfered with paramedics.

Police Chief Tom Kendra also said he did not think the officers used excessive force, despite charges by one of the doctors that he was roughly handled.

But Kendra said he would investigate the incident further.

Prosecutors said they would study the case to determine if there is sufficient evidence to press charges against the three — Dr. Leslie Schoenfeld, director of gastroenterology at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles; his wife, Connie, and Dr. Peter Barrett, director of medical education at St. Mary's Hospital in Long Beach.

They are scheduled for arraignment Nov. 24 on misdemeanor charges of interfering with a paramedic.

Kendra said the three were arrested only after they ignored police orders to leave the area.

Paramedic Melanie McNally had called police Saturday night because a number of doctors who had been attending a convention at the Gene Autry Hotel were causing confusion and interfering with her rescue efforts.

Kendra said one of the doctors — not Schoenfeld or Barrett — inserted an intravenous needle into the victim's palm without attaching it to anything, causing blood to spurt from the needle.

"At another point, an intravenous needle that a paramedic inserted on instructions from Desert Hospital was knocked out of the victim's arm by another doctor," Kendra said.

When Miss McNally found that another doctor had apparently turned off the machine used to shock the heart and monitor its rhythm, she called police to clear the crowd, Kendra said.

When police arrived, most of the crowd followed orders to leave the area, but Schoenfeld refused and was placed in an "arm hold" when he resisted arrest, Kendra said.

"At this time Schoenfeld's wife ran at the officer with her hands extended in front of her in a claw-like manner as if to scratch," the chief said. "Another officer grabbed hold of Mrs. Schoenfeld and threw her across the room about eight feet."

Barrett was arrested when he tried to free Schoenfeld from police, Kendra added.

"If the doctors had done what protocol called for and accepted responsibility for the treatment, paramedics would have backed off and allowed the doctor to take the treatment," Kendra said.

"But of all the doctors there, there was no one that wanted to assume the responsibility."

The heart attack victim, Sarah Flann, was eventually taken to Desert Hospital, where she was reported in stable condition.

Schoenfeld insisted that he was standing six feet from the patient and was waiting to see if he could be of assistance. He denied that he resisted arrest and said he is considering legal action against police because he said he was roughly handled by officers.

"I haven't spoken to an attorney yet," he said. "I have to do that and determine then if I'll file any charges."

Kennedy's 2nd-half effort keys CSI victory

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

ST. GEORGE, Utah — College of Southern Idaho found the benefits of blurred vision and nervousness Tuesday night.

Both were provided by freshman Gerald Kennedy who scored 14 points in the second half to lift the Eagles to a 76-53 victory over the stubborn Dixie College Rebels.

Kennedy received an elbow in the left eye in the first half and complained of blurred vision after that, but it cleared at intermission and he scored eight of CSI's first 12 points in the second half as the Eagles finally took the lead to stay with 15-11 left at 33-32.

"My first college game. I was nervous. I'm still nervous," said Kennedy. "When I got hit over the eye, I just couldn't see for a while. The coach put me back in the game. I tried to pass a couple of times and I couldn't see well enough and I told him to take me back out."

"But as the second half opened

Kennedy hit two 15-foot jumpers off the baseline and another from the key as CSI put the Rebels behind them.

Kennedy's game rather reflected the entire CSI effort as the Eagles, after mounting an early six-point lead, went into a swoon and were badly outplayed, especially mentally over the rest of the first half. CSI trailed 20-23 at the break.

Sevent-foot-one center Rick Tunstall and Kennedy opened the second half with CSI points but it wasn't until Libro Bates and Kennedy produced back-to-back baskets that CSI could take the lead.

For the next four minutes the smaller Rebels hung within a point or two, but CSI's quickness suddenly turned the game around.

"Tunstall hit a short jumper and Kennedy slam dunked off a steal. After that, Bates hit a follow shot and added another dunk off a steal. After that CSI led by at least nine points and blew it wide open by scoring the last nine points of the game."

The first half was probably best summed up by Coach Dave Campbell. "We stunk," he said. "But in the second half we showed some character and started playing."

Despite a good height advantage, CSI stayed with a man-to-man defense until the final six minutes. The few CSI fans watching the game expected a zone earlier than it came.

"We feel the zone changes out temporarily," Campbell said. "We had the 10-point lead and went to the zone to get the rebound but there was that long rebound off their shots and they got control so we stayed in the zone.

After that I decided to just leave them there but it was our man that put us up."

Dixie gave the Eagles a lot of trouble in the first half with a fast break powered by the Rebel forwards. It wasn't expected that many teams would beat the Eagles to the break with their forwards since forward quickness is considered one of CSI's strengths.

"Their wings really hurt us in transition by the way they got up and down the floor," Campbell said.

Ex-Eagle MacRae helps Utah State defeat CSI women

By MARV CLEMONS
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — The Eagles didn't spell her name right in the program, but Naomi MacRae made sure her former teammates remembered who she was Tuesday night.

The Utah State junior hit double figures to help the Aggies score a 78-63 win over College of Southern Idaho to spoil the Eagles' home opener.

Using every player on her bench, USU Coach Sandra Perkins led her squad to a season-opening victory that was never really in doubt after the first 10 minutes.

The Aggies, admittedly a league above CSI, used a big height advantage to open a 24-12 lead over the Eagles midway through the first half. Playing on pride and hustle, CSI managed to stay within 10 to 15 points the rest of the way as its record fell to 1-1.

squad, but you couldn't tell it tonight."

The Eagles made 25 of 94 shots for a paltry 26.6 percent. USU was considerably hotter, sinking 36 of 90 for 40 percent.

Tammy Jarolimek, a 5-4 sophomore guard from Filer, led the Eagles with 15 points. She kept CSI in the game by scoring nine points in the second half with either outside jumpers or a timely stroll through the lane to split Utah State's redwoods.

Cass Herbst, just two games out of Twin Falls High, tied Jarolimek for high-point honors with 15. Most of her points also came inside as the 5-7 center timed her move to score against USU's height.

Perkins started thinking about recruiting MacRae last year when the then 5-10 CSI center nearly beat the Aggies with one of her better games.

"Naomi is coming along," Perkins said. "She's an offensive player and has been struggling with the defense but she's coming along. I was glad to see here have a good game tonight. It will help her."

MacRae and the Aggies, who are basically an all-new team after last year's squad just got over the 500-mark, used the CSI game as a warm-up for a seven-team tourney starting Thursday. CSI takes a week off before hosting Boise State next Tuesday.

CSI's Julie Harrington found the going rough as Utah State used its superior height to control the boards all night

MacRae scored 11 points while playing a bit less than half of the game. She was just one of four Aggies in double figures. Lori Becker, a 5-11 transfer from San Diego, and Margaret Johns, a 6-1 junior from Auckland, New Zealand, each had 12 while Mary Danielson netched 10.

Utah State rebounded the Eagles 60-38, but Perkins, in her third year, was less than pleased with the board work.

"We didn't hit the boards hard at all," she said. "We didn't block out and we let them (CSI) push us down too low. We've got some great height on the team and we've got to use it."

USU's starting lineup averaged 6-0 while CSI's tallest starter was 5-9 Jill Dixon.

"We could have won this game if we would've gotten some shooting," CSI Coach Lloyd Hardisty said. "I feel I have some good shooters on this

Phillies' Schmidt takes second straight NL MVP award

MIKE SCHMIDT joins select group

By CHUCK NEWMAN
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

PHILADELPHIA — Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies became only the third player in National League history and seventh in the major leagues to win back-to-back Most Valuable Player awards when he was named to that honor Tuesday night.

The third-baseman received 21 of the 24 first-place ballots cast by members of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Montreal outfielder Andre Dawson got two first-place votes and Los Angeles pitcher Fernando Valenzuela the other. Schmidt, 32, received 221 total points in the balloting while Dawson had 215. Cincinnati's George Foster and the Reds' Dave Concepcion had 108.

Schmidt's margin of victory in the MVP balloting was not as overwhelming as in 1980, when he gathered all 24 first-place votes.

Schmidt hit 31 home runs, had 91 RBIs, a slugging percentage of .644 and batted a career-high .316 in only 107 games and 354 at-bats in the abbreviated season. He joined Chicago's Ernie Banks (1958-59) and Cincinnati's Joe Morgan (1975-76) as National League winners of the award for two straight years.

Jimmy Foxx (1932-33), Yogi Berra (1954-55), Mickey Mantle (1956-57) and Roger Maris (1960-61) were repeaters in the American League.

Only Stan Musial of the St. Louis

Cardinals has won the MVP award three times (1943-46-48) in the National League, and Schmidt, in accepting the award, was not reluctant to announce that he thinks he can match that next season. "I'm going out to improve and, if the good Lord keeps me healthy, there's no reason why it can't happen," he said.

The award came as no surprise to the Phils' infielder, whose only moments of anxiety about it, he said, came when a Sporting News poll of players was announced earlier this month, naming Dawson as the NL's most valuable player.

"By then, I had really planned on winning it," Schmidt said at a Veterans Stadium news conference. "Then (catcher) Keith Moreland came up to me at my golf tournament (in Hilton Head, S.C.) and said: 'Do you believe Andre Dawson won that Sporting News award?' I had a lot of doubt once that happened, but just the sort of doubt a person forces himself to have. It sort of stunned me a little but I thought there's not a lot of emphasis put on that voting. I remember taking home my ballot, then sending it in when I saw it lying around."

"I remember thinking I didn't see too many guys voting in that poll. I voted for Andre Dawson."

It was the second award for Schmidt in two weeks. He was the recipient of the $10,000 Seagram Award as baseball's outstanding player.

Schmidt said the reason for his success in the last few years was his ability to take pressure.

"I have learned to go to home plate without the feeling of having to succeed every time, of being relaxed and not feeling that I have to do it," he said.

Schmidt also gave credit to his teammates, especially first baseman Pete Rose.

"Rose's badgering about how good I could be and about how good he thought I was boosted my confidence," Schmidt said.

Schmidt also thanked former manager Dallas Green, who he said "showed a great deal of confidence in me. How he felt made me a better player."

Schmidt currently is in the final year of a six-year, $70,000-a-year contract, and he is expected to sign a new pact worth about $1.5 million a year before Dec. 1.

Pitt remains No. 1

Defending champ Georgia moves into No. 3

NEW YORK (UPI) — Georgia has moved into a prime position to defend its national championship in college football.

The Bulldogs moved into the No. 3 spot Tuesday in the weekly ratings by the United Press International's Board of Coaches and appear headed for a showdown with top-ranked Pittsburgh in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day.

Georgia, 9-1, has only its traditional season-ending game with Georgia Tech remaining on Nov. 28 and is expected to receive a bid Saturday to play in the Sugar Bowl as the representative of the Southeastern Conference.

Pittsburgh, which held onto the No. 1 ranking for the third straight week, strengthened its hold on the top spot this week but the Panthers still have Temple and Penn State left to play before ending their regular season. However, if Pittsburgh can defeat a bid to the Sugar Bowl to meet Georgia.

Pittsburgh, riding the nation's longest winning streak among major colleges at 16 games, received 40 of the 42 first-place votes from UPI's coaching board and accumulated 628 points to outdistance undefeated Clemson for the No. 1 spot this week.

Clemson, 10-0, champion of the Atlantic Coast Conference and on the verge of its first perfect season in 33 years, received the remaining two first-place votes and totaled 584 points. Clemson is expected to be named to meet Nebraska in the Orange Bowl on New Year's Day.

Alabama, 8-1-1, following a surprisingly easy 21-6 victory over Penn State, jumped two spots to the No. 4 position this week and appears headed for the Cotton Bowl to meet the Southwest Conference champion. Alabama Coach Bear Bryant equalled Amos Alonzo Stagg's career record of break the record in the season finale against Auburn on Nov. 28.

Rounding out the Top 10 in this week's ratings are Nebraska, Michigan, Texas, Southern Mississippi, Southern California and Arkansas.

The second 10 consists of North Carolina, Washington State, UCLA, Penn State, Brigham Young, Washington, Iowa, Ohio State, West Virginia and Missouri.

Southern Cal, the only other of the six teams rated No. 1 this year to hold that position for three weeks, tumbled six positions this week while Penn State, losing for the second time in three weeks, dropped nine spots.

Nebraska, 9-2, advanced two places as did Michigan, Texas and Southern Mississippi.

Arkansas, with a 13-0 victory over Texas A&M, moved up three spots to reach the Top 10 for the first time this season.

to Missouri 19-14 and dropped from the rankings for the first time this season. Also dropping out of the Top 20 were Hawaii, Florida State and Minnesota.

Returning to the Top 20 are Washington, Ohio State, West Virginia and Missouri.

Local Boy Scouts group needs competitive skiers

TWIN FALLS — With a race to host in less than a month, a local Boy Scouts Explorer Post is seeking members for its ski racing team.

A meeting will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Boy Scouts Service building at 3188 Falls Ave. East for any persons, male or female, interested in joining the ski racing team.

Mike Devitt of the Boy Scouts said the group will be hosting a race at Soldier Mountain Dec. 14 and 15.

"The explorer post was organized as a ski racing group and is essentially the ski racing team for Soldier Mountain," Devitt said. "The group is for boys and girls from 14 through 18 years of age."

Last winter about 10 skiers were a part of the group and there are four or five returning for this winter. Devitt said. Dow Bond will be coaching the team for the twin year. David Slotten of Twin Falls and Jim Hart of Jerome are the top returning team members. Both attended ski racing camps over the summer.

The group competes in the International Ski Association Inter-mountain circuit and the race it will hold, called the Coca-Cola Cup, will be the first of nine races this winter. Devitt said some 100 skiers in the 16-18 age group will compete in both the men's and women's slalom at Soldier Mountain.

"We will be using North Ridge, which is the major run at Soldier," Devitt said. "There will be two runs each day."

Devitt said persons wanting more information before the meeting can contact him at 733-2067 during the day and 734-8150 in the evening.

Briefly in sports

QB Grossart could start for Jets

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — Quarterback Kyle Grossart was acquired by the New York Jets Tuesday and may be the starting quarterback for Sunday's game with the Miami Dolphins.

Grossart, who attended Oregon State, may be forced into immediate action because of injuries to starting quarterback Richard Todd and backup Pat Ryan. Todd suffered a broken rib and Ryan a sprained ankle in last Sunday's game with Buffalo. Both are questionable for Sunday.

Navy might make first bowl trip

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Navy may be the first service academy to play in the Liberty Bowl and a likely opponent for the Midshipmen at the Dec. 30 classic will come from the Big Ten conference, it was reported Tuesday.

The Memphis Press-Scimitar said Navy, with a 7-3 record and one game remaining, against Army, is expected to accept the Liberty Bowl bid Saturday.

If Iowa, 7-3, beats Michigan State and Ohio State, 7-3, drops Michigan this weekend, Iowa would earn the right to be the Big Ten representative at the Rose Bowl and Ohio State would be extended an invitation to play in the Liberty Bowl, the newspaper said.

If Iowa loses to Michigan State, the newspaper said the Hawkeyes could still get a Liberty Bowl bid.

Auburn gridders killed in Florida

MARIANNA, Fla. (UPI) — Two Auburn freshmen football players were killed Tuesday when their pickup truck collided head-on with a diesel tanker, truck 18 miles south of Marianna on the Florida panhandle.

The victims were identified as Alan Manley of Albany, Ga., and Cary Condray of Birmingham, Ala.

Florida troopers said the accident occurred at 5:25 a.m. MST north of Panama City. They said the truck in which the football players were riding strayed across the center line of U.S. 231 on a curve, hitting the tanker head-on.

The tanker was driven by James Loyce Hunt, 34, of Dothan, Ala., who suffered minor injuries.

Busby Turner keeps Reggie waiting

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Braves are delaying their negotiating session with free agent outfielder Reggie Jackson for at least 10 days because of Braves' owner Ted Turner's busy schedule.

Braves' Executive Vice President Al Thornwell said the delay does not indicate a lack of interest on the part of the Braves.

"It's just because of Ted's very hectic schedule and because he wants to be intimately involved in this," said Thornwell.

Raines, Gedman named top rookies

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Tim Raines of the Montreal Expos and Rich Gedman of the Boston Red Sox were named the National League and American League Rookies of the Year Tuesday by The Sporting News.

The weekly publication also named Fernando Valenzuela of the World Series champion Los Angeles Dodgers the National League Rookie Pitcher of the Year and Dave Righetti of the New York Yankees the American League counterpart.

Lendl tops Masters tourney seeding

NEW YORK (UPI) — Czech tennis star Ivan Lendl, the top challenger for John McEnroe's No. 1 world rating, earned the top seed for the $400,000 Masters tournament in New York, Jan. 13-17, by clinching the 1981 Grand Prix championship.

McEnroe, the only player with a chance to overtake Lendl, lost a finals match in London last weekend to Jimmy Connors and with that defeat dropped out of contention since it was his last tournament of the year.

Cards may deal Templeton, Lezcano together

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Manager Whitey Herzog of the St. Louis Cardinals said Tuesday he might consider trading shortstop Garry Templeton and outfielder Sixto Lezcano in a package deal.

"If I put Sixto in a deal with Tempy, I might make a barn-burner," said Herzog, who also is the Cardinals' general manager. "I might make an expansion club a contender."

Lezcano has filed a request with the Major League Players Association demanding to be traded, although he could change his mind later. Lezcano had said he wanted to be traded because of the possibility he would not be a starter next year. Lezcano hit .266 for St. Louis last season, but drove in only 28 runs and missed considerable time the final month with a sore elbow.

Herzog. "He didn't care who was pitching."

The Cardinals must trade Lezcano by March 15 or he becomes a free agent. However, he would waive his $100,000 a year salary for the next three seasons if he opts for free agency.

"I don't think he could get that kind of deal anywhere else," said Herzog. "I don't think anybody would sign him to that kind of contract."

Lezcano had said he wanted to be traded because of the possibility he would not be a starter next year.

Lezcano hit .266 for St. Louis last season, but drove in only 28 runs and missed considerable time the final month with a sore elbow.

Bidding produces problems changes that do not really change the problem. With today's hand try to avoid looking at the South and East hands.

As West you open your ace of spades. Partner plays the 10 and declares the jack. What should you lead at trick two?

The answer is you lead the king of clubs. Your play is to establish a club trick if you can before your ace of hearts is knocked out.

What about your partner's 10 of spades? That card asks for a spade continuation. It means that from his standpoint he doesn't want a club lead. He doesn't know that you hold the king and queen.

Now look at all the cards. If you don't lead that club right away declarer will draw trumps and go after hearts. You can duck two hearts, but he will knock out your ace and get to discard a club on the last heart.

Now you don't think much of the bidding of this hand. We don't either and we doubt if the editors of "Popular Bridge" like it. This is a play problem and the bidding just produces the problems for you. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Dick Dey Says THANK-YOU MAGIC VALLEY

for your tremendous support in making the first 13 days of November the best in our history, during New Car Dealers Month.

As a result we are overstocked with excellent used cars. We must make room for future trade-ins immediately. Rather than take these cars to Salt Lake and Boise auctions it is my desire to pass tremendous savings on to you, the deserving people of Magic Valley. Some cars have been slashed up to 50%.

Dick Dey

P.S. Unless these cars are sold by November 20th, they will go to the auction, so again I urge you, don't wait. If you can't make it to town, call us and we will bring the car to you, day or night. Low GMAC or local bank financing available on approved credit.

A NEW-SIZE HIGH-MILEAGE PICKUP

It's here! The incredible Chevy S-10. And you've never seen anything quite like it! It's longer than the pickups smaller than a full size pickup. It has a roomy cab, a smooth car-like ride and available V6 power for twice the towing power of any import pickup. But best of all, S-10 has higher gas mileage ratings than any of the best-selling import trucks.

Use the estimated MPG to compare. You might see other diesel and turbo models. Actual mileage will vary in heavy city traffic. Actual highway mileage may be higher. See Chevrolet Truck's full line of literature for more information. Chevrolet Trucks are equipped with engines produced by other GM divisions. Substitutes or alternate components may exist. See your dealer for details.
