WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress Sunday night sent a $47.9 billion stopgap funding bill to a certain veto by President Reagan.

The action will trigger an expected layoff of hundreds of thousands of government workers.

The GOP-controlled Senate passed the bill by a vote of 45-29 Sunday night, acting only hours after the Democratic-controlled House defied the Reagan veto threat to pass the bill 205-194.

Aides said Reagan planned to veto the measure today. The White House said a veto message will be issued about 5:30 a.m. MST. The president called an emergency Cabinet meeting for 6 a.m. MST today to oversee the shutdown of non-essential government operations — if it is needed — and postponed indefinitely his Thanksgiving holiday trip to California that had been scheduled for Sunday night.

The House set a session for 8 a.m.

MST today to attempt to override the veto, an attempt that was all but certain to fail. The Senate set a 10 p.m. MST session to react to whatever the House passes.

House and Senate members delayed unskipped vacation plans and prepared for yet another day of meetings today to attempt to reach some sort of compromise with Reagan.

The most likely compromise would be a stopgap bill of shorter duration than the spending bill god through July 15 that Reagan will veto. It would mean a simple extension of current spending rates without the 2 percent cut in most federal programs that was contained in the longer bill.

The date itself likely will be a problem, however, because Reagan wants only a 15-day extension, and Democrats in the House insist on a date next year, probably in February.

Except for essential services, government officials were under orders to begin shutting down operations today and furloughing all workers not needed to wind up government business. The White House estimated 400,000 of the government's 5 million workers would be ordered home by Tuesday.

House Democrats accused Reagan of "theatrics" and of reopening agreements to sign the compromise completed by conferees early Sunday, but Reagan said the compromise did not cut social programs enough. He also complained foreign aid was cut too much. "It's no way to run a railroad — and even less a country," Reagan said after the House vote.

In the House 205-194 vote, 28 Democrats crossed over to vote against the bill, but Reagan lost 10 members of his own party who voted "yes."

Idaho's First District Rep. Larry Craig voted against the measure while Rep. George Hansen from the

Plane crash during storm takes 3 lives

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Three persons, including the chairman of the Western Broadcasting Co., died early Sunday in a plane crash in Lincoln County.

Western Broadcasting, based in Missoula, Mont., owns television station KMYT in Twin Falls.

Late Sunday evening, Lincoln County Sheriff Darwin Mills identified the dead as Earl Victor Lee, 66, of Ketchum, the pilot, and his passengers, Dale Moore, 53, of Missoula, and Rev. Grant S. Moore, 86, of Santa Barbara, Calif.

Rev. Moore was the father of Dale Moore, who served as board chairman of Western Broadcasting Co. Both passengers had been residing recently in Ketchum, where the firm's headquarters is being relocated from Missoula.

The plane, a Cessna 421 that can carry as many as nine persons including the crew, was en route from Salt Lake City to Halley when it apparently went down in a rain and snow storm early Sunday morning.

Mills said two Civil Air Patrol pilots out of Nampa, en route to Salt Lake City, picked up the signal from the crashed plane's emergency landing transmitter and began a search.

Max Fretz reported hearing the signal about 8:15 a.m., and he said he and the other pilot spotted the wreckage about 15 minutes later. They notified Federal Aviation Administration officials in Burley, who then contacted Camas County Sheriff Harold Lee.

Lee, the first to reach the scene, was flown in by Lynn Stevenson, a local rancher who keeps a helicopter at his ranch. At first, Lee said, it was thought the crash was in Camas County, but it was just over the line in Lincoln County.

He pinpointed the site as almost on the Camas-Lincoln-Gooding county lines at a point where the three come together. The plane came down about two miles south of the "Thorn Creek Reservoir," he said.

Lee said that partly because of weather and the fact he and the helicopter pilot were not exactly sure where to look, they didn't reach the scene until about 9:30, 30 minutes after receiving the report.

The sheriff remained at the scene and sent Stevenson back to get more assistance. Others who assisted at the scene were Gooding County sheriff's officers, the Gooding Rural Fire Department, state Patrolman Rob Gaston and search and rescue units from Gooding and Lincoln counties.

The craft apparently failed to clear the rim of the small Thorn Creek canyon by only about 100 feet, according to the sheriff. He said the craft did not burn, but wreckage was scattered over about 300 yards.

"The plane appeared to have hit the rim of the canyon, skidded a few hundred yards and then flipped over on its top after hitting a pile of rock," Lee said.

"All three (bodies) were still in the wreckage, strapped in their seats. I don't think they ever knew when they hit."

He said it was raining and snowing in the area early Sunday morning, and it appeared the pilot may have been flying low, trying to stay below the storm for better visibility.

The cause of the crash has not been determined, however, but state Department of Transportation Safety and FAA officials were scheduled to make a full investigation at the site today.

The bodies were removed by Fire Department emergency crew members and taken to the Bergin Funeral Chapel in Shoshone.

Lee Wagner, the manager of KMYT, said the older Moore was a retired Methodist minister and not a company official, he said. The pilot was employed by Western Broadcasting.

"Although Western Broadcasting is a privately owned company, it was structured in such a way that it would continue operating without interruption in such an event as this," Wagner said. "Although it is a shock and a serious loss to us all, I don't think there will be a detriment to the firm's operations."

Wagner said Earl Morgenroth, a company official from Missoula, will be in charge of the firm's operations for the present time.

Western Broadcasting owns three other television stations and five radio stations.

Community Action Agency director Kay Viste will resign Dec. 1 to seek 'the good life' on her farm north of Shoshone

Farm life Magnet that brought Kay Viste to Idaho lures her from agency's directorship

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Community activism and farm work may seem an odd combination for a career — unless you know Kay Viste of Shoshone.

Viste, who is resigning as executive director of the South-Central Community Action Agency, has been both a farmwife and an advocate for social change.

Her family's farm house north of Shoshone reflects country values and liberal compassion. With three dogs, 18 goats and what looks like hundreds of cats in the yard, the homestead seems to welcome all who come, no matter how sick, troubled or poor they are. No one here has the heart to turn them away.

Viste, 48, says she is not resigning because of problems within the agency. Reaganomics or federal cutbacks. Rather, she wants to devote more time to farm life, the magnet that drew her family to Idaho from a Philadelphia suburb nine years ago.

After eight years with the CAA, she remains concerned about the future of the clients served by the agency. The economy has worsened, divorce rates are up and more women are raising children alone on minimum wage.

"Things are so much more critical for people now," she says. "When I started, there were enough job opportunities to get them off to a fresh start."

"In the last two years, it's just been harder and harder to find opportunities for people. If they're down at the bottom of the economic strata, it's awfully hard to find a way to get them out of that bind."

Poverty breeds poverty, she feels. Children from a poor family tend to be poor themselves. And she sees a "new poor" developing: middle-class mothers, deserted by husbands, are sinking into poverty as they balance low-paying jobs with child-rearing.

"When our mothers and children are poor, that means the next generation is raised in poverty."

This new generation of poor can be helped more easily than other groups, but charity sources are drying up, she says.

Raised on a farm in the Midwest, Viste doesn't shirk hard work. Yet her experiences have told her that even the most righteous person when stranded on a mountaintop, will break into a cabin to find food. Today, a lot of people "are on a mountaintop in a snowstorm," trying to survive, she believes.

The Vistes and three of their four daughters came to Idaho seeking the independence and tranquility of farm life. Her husband had worked in a chemical factory; Kay had maintained the home and done lots of volunteer work.

They first bought land near Hazelton, later purchasing a tract north of Shoshone. It was just before Thanksgiving, and they were getting ready to move to their new land, when Kay glanced through the morning paper and saw a story about a fire that gutted a Shoshone farmhouse.

Immigration service in dark over who's in or out of U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bureaucratic problems have left the U.S. Immigration Service in the dark about 30 million foreign visitors' forms.

Moreover, it may be 1983 before it is known who entered or left the country in the last two years.

"We have no idea who came, who left and — of course — who's here," said one disgruntled official of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, who asked to remain anonymous.

Disclosure of the immense backlog was made in a study conducted for the INS and by agency officials in recent interviews with United Press International.

Only a year ago, top officials of the agency pledged to a House subcommittee the INS would soon upgrade its computer system so it could better monitor the mounting flow of aliens in the United States, including some 10 million visitors a year.

The Reagan administration also has submitted a number of proposals to Congress calling for stricter controls on illegal immigration.

Robert Kane, associate INS commissioner for operations support, said the backlog in processing of visitor forms "puts the whole credibility of the system into question. . . . It puts the credibility of the INS into question."

Kane stressed the INS soon will present Congress with a 10-year plan for a sophisticated-computer system to handle nearly every aspect of its mission. He said the current computer that stores visitors' data is "out-moded."

Irym Klavan, associate INS commissioner for information services, said the backlog of I-94 forms — filed when visitors enter and leave the country — totaled more than 30 million on Sept. 30, the last official count. He said it now is probably 32 million, covering some 20 million visitors who each had an arrival and departure I-94.

Klavan also said 664,000 visitors' applications for extensions of their temporary visas have not been put into the INS' computer, since they could not be matched to the original arrival forms. That means the INS also is crippled from monitoring those cases.

INS officials now are working to eliminate the backlog, but but say it will be at least January 1983 before agency files are brought up to date.

Klavan had hinted the INS was better able to monitor foreign visits in 1976, before such files were put into the computer system.

The agency is using its own personnel to keep computer records on visits by special groups such as Iranians — watched closely since the hostage crisis — and diplomats.

One INS official said Immigration agents are usually frustrated on visits by millionaires. "They can't find anyone who is willing to go through 30 million files," he quipped.

Big storm losing its punch

By United Press International

A knoockout snowstorm that killed at least 22 people in the Rockies and the Midwest lost much of its punch in a sweep toward the Atlantic Ocean Sunday but was supplanted by bitter cold that extended down to Florida.

Furries late Saturday and early Sunday dumped about up to 3 inches of snow in metropolitan Cleveland.

John Lehman, 15, was killed in a traffic accident on icy streets in the Cleveland suburb of Berea, becoming the 22nd victim in the massive west-coast storm that began late last week.

Snow fell in parts of Vermont, with 4-foot accumulations expected in the north and up to 2 inches in the south. Ski operators were delighted.

A foot of "lake effect" snow off Lake Erie fell since last Friday in the upstate New York communities of Sincinville and Sherman.

Heavy rains that had doused sodden northern California Saturday diminished to a drizzle on Sunday. Santa Rosa and Blue Canyon received more than 3 inches during a 24-hour span that ended early Sunday.

In the upper Midwest, freezing rain and snow showers were scattered over North Dakota into South Dakota. Colorado had sunny skies and temperatures near 80. At least five cities broke records for warm temperatures.

Temperatures plunged to near zero in northeast Minnesota and freezing temperatures were common across the Plains. Mississippi Valley and Great Lakes, dipping all the way down to northern Florida.

The 29 degree reading at Pensacola, Fla. equaled the city's old Nov. 22 mark set back in 1952. The 33-degrees at Daytona Beach also tied the low mark, and the 53 at Orlando was good for a record.

Minnesota's Twin Cities were recovering from what long time residents and experts said was the worst storm in more than four decades. More than 100,000 Northern States Power Co. customers were left without power in the more than foot-deep snow.

Five people were killed in the storm. Repair crews worked Sunday to repair the last of the power blackouts.

American, Egyptian forces launch blitz in desert

GABAL HAMZA, Egypt (UPI) — Eight thousand American and Egyptian troops launched an air and ground blitz in Egypt's desert Sunday in the final assault of Operation Bright Star, the joint war games which Cairo said proved Egypt is a better friend than Israel or Saudi Arabia.

The Egyptian force used a bewildering array of military equipment — including Soviet T-62 tanks, MIG-17 planes, French-built Mirage planes and British-built commando helicopters — in the desert maneuvers that brought together Egyptian troops and U.S. Rapid Deployment forces.

Straw stack burns on farm

FILER — A fire, believed to have been started by an electric-fence control, destroyed a straw stack Sunday evening at the Robert Brackett farm southeast of Carey.

Sheriff's Deputy Gary Kaufman said the owners were not at home at the time, but neighbors moved a number of vehicles, preventing what could have been a heavy loss.

He said about four tons of straw, valued at about $35 to $40 a ton, burned in the fire, which could be seen for several miles.

It was reported shortly after 9 p.m. The Filer Rural Fire Department responded to the call.

Haig unwelcome in Mexico

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — As many as 3,000 Mexicans with clenched fists in the air marched past the U.S. Embassy Sunday to protest the visit of Secretary of State Alexander Haig to the Mexican capital this week.

"You are not welcome," said the banner leading the marchers.

Haig was scheduled to arrive in Mexico City early today for two days of talks with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo and Foreign Minister Jorge Castaneda.

Saudi peace plan opposed

FEZ, Morocco (UPI) — Syria, Iraq and the PLO voiced strong opposition in a day-long meeting of Arab foreign ministers to Saudi Arabia's peace Middleast plan that implicitly recognizes the state of Israel, conference sources said.

The foreign ministers from 21 nations and the Palestine Liberation Organization failed to agree during seven hours of closed-door talks on a summit agenda for heads of state who will meet in the ancient Moroccan city of Fez this week to debate the Saudi plan, sources said.

Defense Minister Gen. Abdel Halim Abu Ghazala said the exercises aimed at showing the Americans "that we are better friends than others" — an apparent allusion to Israel and the conservative Arab government of Saudi Arabia with which the U.S. concludes a $8.3 billion deal for the sale of AWACS spy planes and other military equipment.

Sunday's maneuvers, which Ghazala said "went very well," included two separate offensives by hundreds of helicopter-borne paratroopers and armor and mechanized infantry at Gabal or Mount Hamza, in the western desert about 30 miles northwest of Cairo.

Stones fans snap up tickets

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — It took slightly more than 12 hours Sunday for eager fans to buy more than 55,000 tickets — for three Rolling Stones concerts — scheduled at the Capital Centre in December, a spokesman said.

Capital Centre spokesman Bob Zurfluh said tickets went on sale at 12:01 a.m. Sunday for the three concerts Dec. 7, 8, and 9, and were sold out by early afternoon.

Egypt ready to mend fences

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egypt is ready to mend broken fences with the rest of the Arab world to ensure Arab unity and to work for Palestinian self-determination, a parliamentary committee said Sunday.

"Egypt is ready to forget the past and open a new chapter in Arab-Egyptian relations," said a statement issued by the Arab affairs committee of the Peoples' Assembly. "The Arab nation would thereby restore its rights and Palestinian people its legitimate right of self-determination."

Poland strike talks falter

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Talks broke down Sunday between students and officials in Radom when the longest and most aggravated college strike in Radom sparked a nationwide strike by more than 130,000 students.

"We're back to square one," a spokesman said at the Radom engineering college where students, teachers and administrative staff have occupied the main classroom building since Oct. 26.

A committee of top Polish educators traveled to Radom, 80 miles south of Warsaw, to mediate differences between the school's chancellor, Dr. Michael Hebda, and the strikers, who demand his removal.

"Ken," she cried to her husband. "Isn't that OUR house?"

It was that spring, the Viste moved to a tenant farmhouse on the land while the home was rebuilt.

Their temporary home had four rooms. The kitchen was so small the family couldn't all eat at one time.

Sometimes at breakfast, they'd hear croaking — frogs had made themselves at home in the bathroom.

The experience left an indelible impression on how surroundings affect outlook.

It was hard to keep yourself clean. It was hard to make food. It was so depressing, I realized people who live their lives like that must find it hard to keep their spirits up and accomplish anything."

Reagan had urged Congress to pass a 15-day extension of the previous stopgap funding bill, giving the legislative body more time to come up with a compromise acceptable to him.

House Republican leader Bob Michel, acting as Reagan's request, moved to send the bill back to the Senate. The conference committee that produced it for more work.

But the motion was defeated on an almost straight party-line vote 215-184.

Reagan was upset both by the level of spending for social programs and by the House's insistence on cutting foreign aid, which he told key congressmen would send the wrong signal to America's allies.

Democrats in the House had just begun consideration of the compromise bill when the veto threat was delayed and they reacted angrily, accusing Reagan of sending signals that he would sign the bill and then pulling the rug from under the House at the last minute.

"I don't understand," said House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas, "unless the president simply wants the theatrics of bringing government to a halt. Now let's not have that."

The president, who vowed to remain in Washington and keep Congress with him, stressed that a shutdown of government services "lack of funding will not affect Social Security checks, health and national security."

Reagan said earlier he hoped there would not be a veto fight, but that the bill was "several billion dollars over" what he wanted.

"The people want to get back on the road to fiscal sanity," said Reagan.

House Democrats, however, insisted the compromise bill actually gives Reagan more than he wants, and they accused budget director David Stockman of using phony figures as he admitted he did earlier in the year.

Cult prays but in vain

COLORADO, Brazil (UPI) — Some 1,000 religious cultists prayed and sang under a hot tropical sun waiting in vain for the resurrection of their dead leader amid reports of threats of mass suicide should he fail to appear.

"Jesus Christ also came back to save the world. Colorado will be the capital of the world. Only the faithless do not believe this," said worshippers of the "God of Land" packed into a cult temple in the small Brazilian town.

The prophet, Oscar Jose da Silva, 41, died last Monday, having told his followers the day before he would "go visit (his) father and rest" but would return a week later.

He predicted his resurrection for Sunday, between 9 p.m. and 6 p.m. (11 a.m. to 2 p.m. MST) in the town of Colorado, an agricultural community of 20,000 about 375 miles west of Sao Paulo.

By the end of the afternoon the town was quiet and the messiah apparently had failed to return.

Aliens' cards piled in boxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Each January, millions of visiting foreigners are required by law to fill out a postcard and report their whereabouts to the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

But a study has revealed cartons of the "I-53" cards mailed to the INS last January have never been processed, and the agency has no intention of putting the data into its computer to track the aliens.

"The I-53 system is being considered for elimination by INS," said the study conducted by the Price Waterhouse and Co. consulting firm and submitted to top agency officials without fanfare last spring.

The study, a copy of which was received by United Press International, said I-53s reviewed for January, 1981, "have not been processed and no contractor is being sought to process them at a later date."

"If the INS decides to stop coding data from the forms for its computer, the study said, "the I-53s will simply be stored or microfilmed in order to comply with current law."

Robert Kane, associate INS commissioner for operations support, said the forms and "requiring them be 'obsolete' and have been of little value to the agency in recent years, except as a deterrent to help persuade visiting aliens to comply with their visas."

Besides a backlog of 30 million unprocessed visitors' forms, the agency also is hampered with these problems.

In the last two years, INS has begun issuing a sophisticated new identification card for newly arriving immigrants given permanent resident status. The card, called "ADIT" because it is part of the Alien Documentation and Identification Telecommunications System, is rigged with an electromagnetic strip containing codes that can only be machine read. The card was advertised as a sure way to guard against imposters. INS officials, however, concede the agency never ordered optical reading machines so inspectors at its various ports of entry could run quick checks. Instead, inspectors must use the more burdensome method of messaging into headquarters in Washington, where personnel there can check the master computer file on suspicious cases.

"The immigration service's filing system for permanent aliens in the United States is in chaos, with 2 million files scattered in district offices nationwide. Many of the files are stacked in huge carts, or are moved from place to place because of office shifts. Irvin Klavan, associate INS commissioner for information services, said when a permanent resident asks approval for a relative to join him in the United States, the search for his file often becomes an arduous task."

Aliens

Alan Shelton, INS director of systems and technology planning, said agency studies indicate "the vast majority" of foreign visitors go home on schedule.

But other INS officials say there is evidence hundreds of thousands of visitors a year overstay their visas — some for long periods. Shelton conceded the backlog has left the agency with no data at all since January, 1980.

Price Waterhouse and Co., a private consulting firm that conducted a six-month, $100,000 study of non-immigrant control system, termed the I-94 backlogs "very troublesome."

While the INS has typically pleaded funding shortages as the reason for its failure to keep up with the massive paperwork involved in tracking aliens, this time agency officials blamed a private contractor, Milmark Services Inc. of Crofton, Md. They said Milmark failed to perform acceptably on a contract calling for it to enter the data into the agency's computer system.

The task of key-punching is complicated because the I-94 visitors' forms are commonly scrawled in foreign languages.

INS officials said Milmark never was paid for any its work during a two-month period in the summer of 1980 because none of it was acceptable.

After the backlog began piling up, an INS task force under acting commissioner David Crosland and his successor, Doris Meissner, deliberated on whether to simply destroy the millions of files and start from scratch.

Klavan said the agency decided to store the data because investigators were frequently asking for computer checks on aliens they suspected of overstaying visas issued prior to 1980.

On Sept. 30, the last day of the 1981 fiscal year, immigration officials awarded some $2 million in contracts providing for processing of the forms, this time assigning three private companies to do the job.

INS officials recently trained those firms in how to read the I-94 forms before putting them to work coding the backlogged information.

Meantime, millions of I-94 forms have simply been put on microfilm and left stacking up in cartons at INS facilities in Washington.

When operative, the information is fed into the agency's computer program, called the Non-Immigrant Document Control System, which would match up arrival and departure records to determine which aliens violated their visas, usually for 30-day visits.

Even if the backlogs are eliminated, Klavan stressed the problem won't be fully solved unless Congress decides to commit the financial resources for close controls on departures, as well as entries, into the United States.

Currently, I-94s are strictly required on entry and are filled out by most visitors leaving the United States by airplane, provided airlines cooperate in asking passengers to complete the forms. He said some airlines fail to cooperate, and thousands of aliens simply drive past border patrol guards to return to Mexico or Canada with no record of their departure.

The Price Waterhouse study, a draft copy of which was reviewed by UPI, estimated 600 more border patrol agents would be needed, at a cost of $28 million the first year, to implement controls strict enough to monitor departures.

Agency only marginal as tracker

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A 1979 study by U.S. immigration investigators found that even when the agency has all the data on apparent violations of visitors' visas, it has only marginal luck in tracking the aliens.

According to the data disclosed in a study for INS by Price Waterhouse and Co., investigators pursued 3,734 instances of "apparent" visa violations where no I-94 departure form was filed by the alien within the time limit of his or her visa.

Investigators found that at least 1,257 of the aliens, or 34 percent, were found to have actually left the United States. Their I-94s never were collected, were lost, their processing was delayed, or they may have been inaccurately coded.

Another 42 were determined to have been legally in the United States. Four were found to be in violation of their visas and "deportable." In the case of another 250, the I-94 form they originally filled out on entering the country was unreadable.

Despite intense tracking efforts, the investigators could not locate 2,181 of the aliens at all — meaning they may have left the country, or may have simply eluded INS' enforcement system and had become illegal U.S. residents.

The data underscores the contention of INS officials that, even with a fully current computer system, the agency lacks the resources to pursue all visa violators. However, with a sophisticated computer system, the agency could cross-match its records to determine which groups or categories of aliens are in violation of their visas and focus its priorities on those of the highest risk.

INS officials say they have plans to implement such a system beginning in 1983-84.

Governor recovering

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Gov. William O'Neill, recovering from a mild heart attack, rested Sunday at St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center.

A spokeswoman said he was in good condition. O'Neill, 51, entered the hospital late Friday after complaining of back pain and indigestion. Tests turned up evidence of the heart attack.

O'Neill, a Democrat, served as lieutenant governor under Ella Grasso and automatically succeeded her last Dec. 31 when she was forced to step down because of cancer. Mrs. Grasso died Feb. 5.

Hospital spokeswoman Martha Johnson said all O'Neill's vital signs were good and his temperature was normal.

He said he rested for the day in the hospital's coronary care unit, where only family members are allowed to visit for brief periods.

Doctors said O'Neill suffered the heart attack sometime after he gave the Legislature a tongue-lashing, blaming the lawmakers for the state's $83 million deficit.

Reagan cutback pledge disappointing

Governors looking for help

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The nation's Republican governors Sunday voiced muted disappointment in President Reagan's vow to cut further into federal aid to the states.

While declaring loyalty to the president and his demand for deeper cuts in federal spending, several GOP governors said on the eve of the opening of their winter meeting that the cuts hurt the states unfairly.

And they called on Reagan to carry through on his promise to give states some federal taxing revenues to replace the budget cuts.

Nineteen of the nation's 23 Republican governors were scheduled to attend the conference. President Reagan will address the governors from Washington by telephone Monday night.

Gov. Richard Snelling of Vermont, who also serves as chairman of the bipartisan National Governors' Association, said he would be "disappointed but not surprised" by Reagan's demand for new cuts.

In an interview with five newspapers published Sunday, the president said he would continue to call for deep cuts in the federal budget and said federal aid to the states was to be a target.

Snelling, whose proposal for a two-year moratorium on new cuts was killed by Reagan's statement, said he was pleased that the president had agreed with his plan for an economic summit with state and local government leaders.

"Possibly if we can make the case that there are alternatives, the president might be more receptive in the future," Snelling said in an interview. "He is a strong and pragmatic politician."

Snelling also said he was happy that Congress was trimming down Reagan's proposed 12 percent across-the-board cut. He said

Reagan's $13 billion proposed cut in state aid would amount to only about $3 billion under the congressional compromise plan.

"We have taken very substantial cuts in the first round," he said. "That must be equaled out with attention to the other 90 percent of the budget."

There was also criticism of Congress, particularly the Democratic-controlled House, for not going along with Reagan's proposal to give states more flexibility in how they spend federal dollars.

"Congress has given us the worst of two possible worlds — budget restraints and no greater flexibility to the states," Snelling said.

Gov. James Thompson of Illinois said the president's budget cuts had cost his state $50 million, but he said the bigger problem with the nationwide recession would cost Illinois $500 million in lost revenue this year.

State opens Lindbergh evidence

WEST TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Evidence in the kidnapping and murder of Charles Lindbergh Jr. will be opened for public scrutiny today for the first time in 45 years.

Physical evidence and nearly 90,000 pages of documents in the famous 1936 trial of Bruno Hauptmann for kidnapping and murdering the 20-month-old son of aviator Charles Lindbergh.

Since the trial, questions have been raised about state police conduct during the investigation, whether Hauptmann was justly convicted and even whether the Lindbergh infant was really slain.

Hauptmann was convicted for March 1, 1932, kidnapping, and was electrocuted April 6, 1936, in the electric chair at Trenton State Prison.

Simple curiosity was not the motive for Gov. Brendan Byrne's Oct. 9 order to unseal the evidence. Hauptmann's widow, Anna, had sued the state the day before requesting access to the evidence, in hopes she can prove that her husband was innocent.

Also, two men — one from Biddeford, Me., the other from San Francisco — wanted the evidence released so they might be able to bolster their claims to being the Lindbergh baby.

A number of news agencies also are seeking to examine the evidence. State Police Superintendent Clinton Pagano announced Friday a list of stringent rules aimed mainly at preventing alteration or theft of records, some of which are so old and fragile that they are being restored and will not be immediately available.

Only a limited number of people at any one time will be allowed in the research area at state police headquarters. Access to the evidence will be on a "closed-stack" basis — people will not be admitted into the storage areas and will only be allowed to see documents and evidence they ask for.

In addition, researchers approved by the state police will be issued special identification cards and will have to sign in and sign out every time they enter the research room.

JFK remembered with rite in plaza

DALLAS (UPI) — A memorial commemorating the 18th anniversary of the assassination of John F. Kennedy was held Sunday about 200 yards from the street where the 46-year-old president was shot to death on Nov. 22, 1963.

At the same time, in the shadow of the Texas School Book Depository, people espousing, or refuting various conspiracy theories on the assassination gathered to exchange views.

About 60 people, mostly Roman Catholics (Kennedy's religion), gathered behind a Knights of Columbus color guard to recite a rosary during a procession around the Kennedy Memorial Plaza. The procession was led by Bishop Thomas Tschoepe.

Inside the concrete block memorial, a wreath was set on a dark green marble slab that has Kennedy's name embazoned in gold.

Tschoepe led a short prayer for Kennedy and also asked those gathered to pray for peace in the world.

"We're here not so much because he was a great president, but because of what he stood for," said Richard Dodson, head of the Greater Dallas Area Knights of Columbus. "He stood for personal freedom, the freedom of all men."

"He was a giving man. Ask what you can do for your country" has become a cliché, but it's still a spirit that's needed."

Kennedy was killed 18 years ago as his car passed under the sixth-floor windows of the Texas School Book Depository. There have been a number of theories about who killed him and why, even though the Warren Commission Report named Lee Harvey Oswald as the killer.

Oswald was killed two days later in the basement of the Dallas County Courthouse. He was shot by Dallas nightclub owner Jack Ruby as Oswald was being transferred to another jail.

On the grassy knoll just a few yards from where Kennedy was shot, conspiracy buffs gathered Sunday to argue the merits of their theories.

Allen should admit error, return cash

No matter how hard he tries to explain it away, presidential adviser Richard Allen is guilty of an ethical impropriety.

The Reagan administration, which can hardly afford to have another lingering embarrassment on its hands, could resolve this situation quickly and painlessly.

The solution? Have Allen return that $1,000 he accepted as a gratuity from a Japanese magazine for helping to arrange an interview with first lady Nancy Reagan. Allen also should return the two watches he received from a Japanese journalist.

He should admit that taking the money and the gifts was not appropriate, apologize and get on with the business of being Mr. Reagan's national-security adviser.

This is not a "hanging" offense, even though it is serious enough for the FBI to conduct an investigation. And it should be a thorough one.

What is puzzling is why Allen would accept money in the first place. Even if it is a custom in certain journalistic circles to pay for such interviews, Allen knows that is not the norm. That he left the money in his safe and seemingly forgot about it does not suggest skulduggery of any sort.

This incident hardly does the Japanese any good. At a time when they are coming under pressure to reduce their burgeoning balance of trade at America's expense, the Allen incident further strains the relationship between the two countries.

Unless the FBI investigation turns up something more damning, the incident could do more harm by being blown out of proportion than the misdeed itself. It would seem that Reagan, who was stung by waiting too long to get to the bottom of the Haig-aides infighting, would want to put this one to rest before further damage is done.

Appreciate her efforts

We're often guilty of not saying good things about someone until they're gone.

Well, Monte Barney, who is leaving her post as the manager of the downtown mall, isn't gone yet. She has a week left before she and her husband leave Twin Falls for California.

Monte isn't one of those people who is considered a "newsmaker." As manager of the downtown mall, one of her duties is public relations. She's more of a behind-the-scenes person, arranging news coverage, ensuring information is distributed and getting the most out of downtown promotions.

PR managers in any profession could take a few lessons from Monte. She's cheerful, never demanding and always has been on top of her game.

Those of us in the newspaper business appreciate people like her. They recognize deadlines are a way of life, they always call early to arrange for coverage, they respect coverage policies and they always remember to double-check to ensure things are all set. They also remember to say thanks, even though it's not required.

A good measure of the downtown's continued success can be traced to Monte's efforts the past three years. We're sure the Downtowners are sorry to be losing someone with her talents.

They're jockeying for position

Qualifying laps for the Boise 500 are well under way.

Jockeying for position, both Republican and Democratic leaders are hemming and hawing about possible candidacies for state office.

Their goal, prior to winning on race day, is to keep the opposition guessing while garnering support from teammates.

And our hometown Magic Valley delegates just happen to be tops in this psychological contest.

Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, for example, follows the axiom: Never let anyone know what you have under the hood until it's race time.

"Yes, I'll probably run for state auditor," he says, but he's seasoned enough to know the timing is not right. He checks himself, saying he won't commit until the Legislature convenes, and he has time to confirm his backing.

This kicks the burden back to the incumbent, Joe Williams, who has to guess how "fast" Van Engelen is and whether he needs to "supercharge" his own campaign machinery.

Still, Williams has that famed "racer's edge." He's successfully jockeyed for the poll position at six previous races and has his own ideas about timing. Williams hasn't revealed his intentions, which should keep Van Engelen doing a little guessing of his own - especially in light of rumors that Williams may even be considering retirement.

House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, delayed his move onto the gubernatorial track long enough after Lt. Gov. Phil Batt's announcement to assure ample fanfare, a must in any racing circle. You can't get sponsors if you can't get any attention.

To prove he has the needed horsepower,

Olmstead made his entrance using a paid television announcement, a first in Idaho. He followed this initial test lap with another dash around Idaho, vying for the right to oppose the Democrat incumbent, Gov. John Evans.

And since the GOP gubernatorial heat could be determined to a great degree by how much money is spent, Olmstead's move probably was wise. Batt, whose edge on Olmstead is previous statewide campaigning experience, reports that he has received almost $100,000 in contributions to date. This could be a bad sign for the Olmstead pit crew, since they are reporting only about half that revenue.

With a new head mechanic, Boise businessman Neil Langrill, Olmstead's group appears to be back on track, stressing fund-raising. But they've got a lot of catching up to do.

For one thing, Olmstead has personally given or loaned more than $25,000 to his own campaign. The Boise jury seems to have done better, with the more experienced racer contributing only about $2,500 to his effort.

Relatively unknown, except for his Medal of Honor status, Bernie Fisher is the third Republican candidate for governor, and he optimizes the rookie, dark horse. Hailing from Kuna, his supporters hope their backyard mechanics can achieve Victory Lane, despite the big-buck, computerized organizations that currently lead the pack.

Starting positions already are set in the lieutenant governor's heat.

C. L. "Butch" Otter, a past gubernatorial candidate, initially kept everyone guessing. Fueling rumors about his possible candidacy for lieutenant governor, Otter revved his engine back into the pits, but he appears to be a no-show on the track.

This leaves the expected candidates, Republican David Leroy and Democrat Mike Mitchell, coasting along until the general election, still a year away.

Probably the second most contested race is for attorney general, with two Republicans fighting for the poll position and the right to oppose Democrat J.D. Williams, who plans to announce in January. Of the two Republicans, Jim Harris, Ada County's prosecutor, probably has as much campaign savvy as Jim Jones, a Jerome attorney, despite Jones' experience from two unsuccessful runs at Rep. George Hansen.

It's unclear if this fact will be a black mark for Jones, labeling him as a loser. Initial indications say otherwise, since Jones quickly cornered several sponsors.

Harris says he will overtake Jones' edge of familiarity by setting up area coordinators to drive home the door-to-door solicitations.

Whispered talk suggesting that Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa would retire was shut off abruptly when the four-race veteran said he will run. Cenarrusa followed state Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon, the first incumbent to enter a race. To date, no opposing vehicle has appeared to face either of these two or Jerry Fish, the superintendent of public instruction.

Of course, most early race displays fail to be fast or true, especially since more Republican vs. Republican contests may form.

It might be well to remember the 1973 Indianapolis 500, when almost everyone crashed in the first lap, and a unknown racer drove off with the title.

Letters to the editor

Buffington deserved ouster

Editor, Times-News:

In response to your obviously uninformed editorial of Nov. 17 pertaining to BLM state director Robert Buffington: he was offered a transfer because of his inability to implement the policies of a new administration, an administration that was elected to power by the voters of this country.

His departure was hardly "sad and demeaning" nor was his "pride and job satisfaction snatched away" as you so ineptly described it. Mr. Buffington was offered a very fine job in Washington with equal pay and job satisfaction as his present post. He was aware that he would be unable to implement the new BLM policies, and he certainly should have been aware that it was a matter of time before he would be replaced.

It has been almost a year since the new administration came into power and in that time there has been no policy change whatsoever in the Idaho BLM, despite vast changes in national BLM policies. Mr. Buffington has had adequate time to examine the policies of the new administration and if he felt that he would be unable to implement them he should have resigned or sought a transfer six months ago. But no, he chose to continue drawing his salary as long as possible and then scramble like a stuck hog when asked to step down. He was a very incongruous figure in present-day BLM policies.

If it had been myself at the reigns of the BLM, I certainly would not have been so nice to Mr. Buffington. I would have simply informed him that it was time to clean the trash and incompetence out of the BLM and dismissed him point blank, rather than offer him a good job in Washington, which he certainly did not deserve. It is certainly a shame that Mr. Buffington chose to remain in Idaho. I had hoped we would be able to rid this state of him for good.

It is my sincere wish that Mr. Burford will appoint an individual capable of cleaning the remainder of the BLM in Idaho, in particular the Shoshone BLM office. The Shoshone district office is managed by the absolute deadwood of the BLM.

Furthermore, I would like to highly commend the Idaho congressional delegation, one and all for their expert handling of the matter. They are obviously aware of the tremendous support for the Reagan administrative policies here in Idaho and recognize the deep need for the changes which we are undergoing. They also recognize the fact that the people complaining about Buffington's transfer are the same leaders who have led us to where we are now, and that the time for action is now.

Mr. Buffington was hardly "an employee in a position against a stacked deck" as you described it. Rather he was a holdover from a previous disastrous administration and there were many, many people pushing for his dismissal. Much more than just cattlemen, other special interests, or jealous politicians. It was the people of Idaho who demanded a change and for once our cry was heard. Thank God we finally have some high quality people in Washington who are willing to listen.

Carter can sympathize with Reagan's personnel problems

By HELEN THOMAS
United Press International

WASHINGTON - Former President Jimmy Carter must be sitting back and smiling, commiserating too perhaps, when he watches the White House rock with personnel problems.

Those were problems that never left Carter from the day he entered office until the day he left. Of all the things he was blamed for, perhaps the most telling was his loyalty to his team.

His top aide, Hamilton Jordan, who had been his campaign manager, was going into one headline-making scrape to another, adjusting to the ways of Washington. He was cleared of charges of sniffing cocaine, but not after a long and costly ordeal.

There were others too that caused the graying of Carter. His brother Billy Carter was a lightning rod for his own critics and those who had other White House targets in mind.

Carter hung in there with his close friend, budget director Bert Lance, through a trying period under accusations of banking manipulations. "I'm proud of you, Bert," said Carter and others did not let him forget it.

Lance was forced to leave government and his acquittal only came much later.

Nobody said it was easy to be president. Painful might be a better word at times when loyalty to friends and long-time aides is involved. It was exulting for Richard Nixon to give his top aides, H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, their walking papers as the Watergate scandal unraveled.

So far, President Reagan has been quick to cut his losses when personnel problems converge on the White House. He did not hang on to his appointment of Ernest LeFevre as head of the human rights division of the State Department when a Senate Committee turned him down cold.

He also bade farewell to Gen. Robert Schweitzer of the national security staff when Schweitzer made a bellicose speech against the Soviet Union. He was sent hustling back to the Pentagon.

Another national security staffer, Richard Pipes, kept a very low profile since he gave an interview indicating that the Soviets would have to change their system or face a war.

In the various cases, there are legitimate claims on the part of the victims that they were talking "off the record" or that their remarks may have been misunderstood.

Oftentimes, their vindication comes too late. Sometimes, there is a ruthless appraisal in the White House of the harm done by retaining a staffer who is under fire.

Such undoubtedly has been the soul searching on the part of Reagan and his "Big Three" advisers when the chips were down on whether to retain budget director David Stockman in his post after Stockman gave a devastating magazine interview criticizing Reaganomics and branding the tax cut as a "Trojan Horse" favoring the rich.

Reagan gave Stockman a "second chance" for which the budget director was grateful after a public repudiation.

Now comes national security adviser Richard Allen who received a $1,000 payment from a Japanese magazine for an interview with Nancy Reagan. Allen said it was all on the up and up and he took the payment in the envelope because it would have been discourteous to the Japanese who have a custom of such gratuities.

The payment was left in a safe in an office next door to the White House that Allen formerly used, and was discovered last September.

A Justice Department investigation is under way. Meantime, the rumors and the unnamed sources add fuel to the fire each day. Some of Reagan's unnamed aides are willing to talk behind the scenes although the White House has clamped a strict lid on any public comment during the inquiry.

It is a trying period for all. There is no question that such matters take their toll in personal hardships for Allen, for his family, for the president, for the aides who are trying to figure out the best way to go, and for the bewildered public.

The Allen affair

National security adviser mum on report 'thank you' envelope held $10,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — National security adviser Richard Allen declined all comment Sunday on reports the envelope with "thank-you" money for help in arranging an interview with Nancy Reagan contained $10,000 instead of an already acknowledged $1,000.

Allen was reached by telephone at his Arlington, Va., home, where he said he was spending the day playing basketball and riding a bicycle.

"I couldn't comment at all," he told United Press-International.

The presidential aide declined to discuss any aspects of the Justice Department investigation, but indicated he has confidence of vindication when the facts are known and hunkering down while the inquiry is in progress.

Department sources said investigators are checking whether the magazine Shufu no Tomo (Housewife's Companion) actually handed Allen an envelope containing $10,000.

Sources said the sum in $10,000 was written on the envelope and a receipt for that amount were found when the safe was opened recently. It was opened when Allen moved to the White House itself from the office building next door.

Allen previously confirmed he had taken the $1,000 so as not to embarrass a Japanese journalist and had it placed in the safe where it was forgotten for several months.

Katsuro Ishizuka, editor and spokesman of the magazine, said in Tokyo that $1,000 was the only sum paid as thank-you money for arranging a picture session with Nancy Reagan.

He said he also is puzzled that the figure was on the envelope because, "It's not our practice to put money figures on a share ('thank-you money') envelope."

"Anyway, we paid $1,000 and we don't know anything about the $10,000," he said. Justice Department spokesman Arthur Brill said, "We are not going to comment on any aspect of the investigation."

White House counselor Edwin Meese said on CBS's "Face the Nation" he hopes the final report will "clarify the matter" and will "totally absolve" Allen. Otherwise, he said, "appropriate action" will be taken.

But Meese said he does not see "any plans at present for Mr. Allen to leave the White House."

The president's top aide said "all procedures have been scrupulously followed" in the Allen affair.

Asked if the investigation, and daily revelations, are hurting President Reagan, Meese said, "We certainly hope not."

Meese maintained his contacts with FBI director William Webster have been proper "since the information originally came to me."

Later he said the FBI "came back to give me information" on whether they had turned up any evidence that would require disciplinary action. Meese said it was decided none should be taken after he discussed the matter with Reagan.

Asked about Allen's statement that "he feels that his enemies are trying to... grease the skids" for his dismissal, Meese said "not that I have heard."

The FBI, meanwhile, had no contact on a report that Webster had been in contact with Allen during the inquiry.

On Saturday, Allen confirmed a Tokyo report that two ladies' watches had been given to him and accepted as "a personal gift for my wife from a friend of many years' standing, as was the case with other gifts exchanged between our families over a period of some 15 years."

He said he was not barred from accepting the watches because they were given before he joined the White House staff Jan. 20.

EDWIN MEESE... adviser staying

Moscow changes attitude toward arms cut proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House counselor Edwin Meese said Sunday he believes there has been a slight change in Moscow's attitude toward President Reagan's nuclear arms reduction proposal since its initial strong opposition.

"I think they realize there has been a reasonable offer from the United States and realize the United States does have to improve its defensive capability, so it is time to talk," Meese said on CBS' "Face the Nation" program.

"The fact the president has laid down a bold initiative, that has been thoroughly applauded in Europe as well as here, has to be significant as far as the Soviets are concerned," Meese said.

Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger was asked on NBC's "Meet the Press" if the large anti-nuclear demonstrations in Western Europe might cause the Soviets to forego arms reduction talks in Geneva.

"They might very well drag their feet under any circumstances," Weinberger said. "There are demonstrations, but I don't think they represent majority opinion. The actions of the governments have been almost uniformly supportive" of the NATO decision to delay the nuclear weapons.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig, on ABC's "This Week," said Reagan's proposal came as "something of a surprise" to the Soviets so their initial rejection in Moscow newspapers was not unexpected.

Questioned about whether the Soviets are serious in seeking arms reductions, Haig replied "The history suggests, yes. Indeed, they are interested. But these conditions change..."

He added, "I remain optimistic that the Soviet leadership has a stake in reducing the burden of armaments."

Haig rejected a suggestion Reagan's arms talks proposal indicated a shift in the administration's tough attitude toward the Kremlin. The president's speech last week, he said, "affirmed the commitment of the United States to the two-track TNP decision, now called the INF" as part of the Geneva arms talks beginning Nov. 30.

The "two-track TNP" is the NATO decision to seek arms control talks while at the same time proceeding with plans to deploy nuclear-tipped Pershing II and ground-launched cruise missiles — so-called Theater Nuclear Forces, now reduced intermediate-range nuclear forces.

Under Reagan's offer, the Pershing and cruise missiles will not be put in place if the Soviets withdraw their SS-20 and SS-4 and SS-5 nuclear armed missiles now aimed at Western Europe from Warsaw Pact countries. Haig said it would "make imminent sense" for the Soviets to agree to swap their existing missiles for NATO's, even though the NATO weapons are only blueprints.

Hinckley leaves hospital for jail cell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Hinckley Jr. was released from an Army hospital Sunday.

He was returned to the military jail where he tried to hang himself one week ago while awaiting trial on charges he shot President Reagan.

Hinckley's transfer back to the Fort Meade, Md., detention facility was announced in a brief statement by the Justice Department.

"He was placed in a different cell," the statement said, and "Added security measures are in effect."

Hinckley was under 24-hour surveillance when he tried to kill himself by fashioning a noose from a jacket and attaching it to the bars on his cell window.

The Kimbrough hospital where Hinckley was treated also is located at Fort Meade.

The 26-year-old Hinckley, accused of wounding Reagan and three other men last March 30, tried to hang himself last Sunday. He dangled by the neck between three and five minutes before he was cut down.

It was Hinckley's second attempt to harm himself after being arrested moments after the assassination attempt outside a Washington hotel. In May, he took a large dose of aspirin substitute while he was confined at Butler, N.C., for psychiatric testing.

Hinckley's trial, first set to begin Nov. 30, recently had been postponed until Jan. 4. By late last week it was not clear whether Judge Barrington Parker might grant a further delay because of the hanging incident.

Justice Department officials said last week Hinckley apparently did not suffer any significant mental impairment from the hanging, although Hinckley said he did not remember the hanging and further tests would be needed to make a conclusive determination.

Summit talks possible

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top White House aide Edwin Meese said Sunday that if forthcoming arms talks "give a sign" of success, he is sure President Reagan would be interested "in a summit meeting with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev."

The presidential counselor, No. 1 man in the "big three" of the White House staff, was asked about the possibility of a summit and of success for Reagan's arms control proposals during an interview on CBS's "Face the Nation." Meese noted that talks are scheduled for Nov. 30 on lowering the level of arms in Europe, and that Secretary of State Alexander Haig and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko are planning a new series of talks in January. These sessions will be closely watched, he said, to see if they "give a sign for results from a possible summit meeting."

"If it looks productive, if it looks like there could be a reasonable chance for achieving constructive results, I am sure the president would be interested in arranging one," he said.

Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger also was asked on NBC's "Meet the Press" if a summit meeting "could take place sometime next year," and he replied: "I think it's perfectly possible."

But he said he does not think there is anything "in the works or in the planning stage" now, and said he does not see any prospects "in the immediate future."

Most states to go in red for bomber

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The economic benefits of building the controversial B-1 bomber fleet have been exaggerated and only 11 states will receive more money in contracts than they send to the Pentagon to foot the $3.8 billion bill, a research study said Sunday.

"The Political Economy of the B-1 Bomber," by the non-profit Employment Research Associates of Lansing, Mich., said three states — California, Washington and Ohio — would be net winners of more than $1 billion.

But it said four states — Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Texas — will have net losses averaging $1.5 billion.

Using figures from the Tax Foundation to compute each state's share of the B-1's cost and the projections of Rockwell International, the prime contractor, for where B-1 spending will occur, the study said that in all, only 11 states will be net winners while 39 states and the District of Columbia will be net losers.

"The enormous disparity between the burdens and benefits of the B-1 suggest several disturbing conclusions," said Dr. James Anderson of Michigan State University, author of the study.

"There is an explosive aspect to this program as the areas of the United States presently suffering the highest level of unemployment and weakest economic growth will be further drained by the full production of the B-1," Anderson said.

"The B-1 program, if carried to completion," Anderson said, "will accelerate the flow of tax dollars to the South and West."

"Rockwell International," he said, "has made a rather one-sided but none-the-less skillful effort to lobby for the B-1 on the basis of the contract benefits," Anderson said.

But, Anderson said, to understand the true role of the B-1 in the economy "we must consider its gross contract benefits for states and its net burden for a state" — contract payments into a state vs. the state's share of the federal tax burden required to pay for the bomber's production.

Illinois, for example, will receive $77.1 million in B-1 contracts, but its share of the tax cost of the bomber is $452 billion meaning it will have a net loss of $1.874 billion, according to Anderson.

Similar figures exist for Pennsylvania, which will get $24.8 million in B-1 contracts but pay $2.897 billion as its share — leaving it with a net loss of $1.862 billion.

Nineteen states, according to the Rockwell figures used by Anderson, will have no B-1 contracts so each will suffer a net loss.

HAPPY THANKSGIVING

Swensen's, in 1981, are thankful for all the same things the Pilgrims gave thanks for: freedom, safe passage through the year, enough food to eat, clothes and shelter against the elements and the prospects of a bright future. Swensen's hope the people of Magic Valley all have similar circumstances and prospects for which to be grateful, and we wish you a very happy enjoyable Thanksgiving.

'Afghanistan is your grave' reads inscription on mock coffin in anti-Soviet demonstration

Protesters in Bonn denounce Brezhnev

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, denounced by 50,000 protesters as a "murderer" and "Czar Leonid," arrived Sunday on his first visit to the West since Moscow's invasion of Afghanistan 23 months ago.

Brezhnev, 74, supported by the arms of a Russian general, walked down the steps of an Aeroflot jet to begin a four-day summit with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt while demonstrators swirled through Bonn to protest Soviet nuclear missiles aimed at Europe.

The 270 Soviet missiles — SS-20s — carry three nuclear warheads of 150 kilotons each — the equivalent of 150,000 tons of TNT and seven times the force of the Hiroshima bomb. NATO plans to deploy 572 medium-range Pershing II and Cruise missiles in Western Europe by 1983 to counter the Soviets.

Brezhnev, whose health is a constant Soviet concern especially on trips abroad, walked steadily and unaided through a driving snowstorm at Moscow Airport before leaving Bonn-Cologne airport, but anti-Soviet demonstrators and Afghan exiles were barred from the airport.

Brezhnev walked past a German army honor guard, received a bouquet of flowers and drove off with Schmidt in a curtained limousine to

LEONID BREZHNEV ...looking for cracks

Gymnich castle, a moated government guesthouse 33 miles northwest of Bonn.

The visit appeared deliberately slow-paced to take account of Brezhnev's age and frailty. In all, only two hours have been set aside for Schmidt and Brezhnev to negotiate alone, and that includes the time needed for interpretation.

Police ordered Afghan exiles to stay out of the capital, but 5,000 demonstrated in nearby Bad Dodegberg, 1,000 marched in Frankfurt and 300 in Berlin against the Soviet invasion of their homeland in December, 1979. Soviet exiles were kept in near house arrest.

But 50,000 Germans marched through Bonn in three demonstrations with banners saying "Brezhnev go home," "Brezhnev murderer," "Brezhnev — We don't believe you," and "Czar Leonid, the imperialist." Many protesters carried black, red and gold German flags and waved the Stars and Stripes.

Political sources said Brezhnev was seeking to restore international détente and perhaps to pry open cracks in the Atlantic alliance over the missile issue.

Matthias Wissmann, chairman of the Christian Democratic Youth Group, which organized one rally, told demonstrators the rally consisted with demonstrations that denounce only U.S. rockets but are silent about the Soviet missiles. "We are not blind in the left eye," he said to cheers.

A separate rally by ecologists called for "an end to the system of nuclear deterrence in East and West" while Christian students demanded "freedom for Russia."

German government sources said Schmidt will make it clear West Germany remains a firm ally of the United States and will stick by its pledge to deploy the U.S. missiles unless Moscow negotiates the dismantling of Russian rockets pointing at Europe.

Brezhnev's arrival comes a week before the opening of U.S.-Soviet talks in Geneva on limiting European arms. Various East-West language leaflets calling for the work stoppage have been passed around the capital of Tallinn and Tartu, the second largest city 100 miles southeast.

One such handbill, deposited in postboxes, demands that the Soviet Union live up to the terms of the 1975 Helsinki Accords and specifically calls for Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan.

But lengthy talks with members of the various dissident groups showed their unifying cause was discontent with poor food supplies, and a recent round of price increases introduced in September.

Similar economic issues have been the catalyst for most of the documented strikes and sit-ins by ordinary Soviet citizens. In June 1980, several hundred autoworkers in the Russian cities of Gorky and Togliatti were reported to have struck for better food supplies.

Libya's 'bad boy' Khadafy may be brushing up image

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — Western diplomats based in Tripoli say there are signs Col. Moammar Khadafy, the Libyan "bad boy" of international affairs, may be brushing up his image.

Among the indications they cite Libya's rapid withdrawal from Chad at the request of Chadian President Goukouni Weddeye, a marked decrease in terrorist incidents involving Libyans in Europe and greater discretion in Khadafy's public pronouncements.

Still, the latest issue of Newsweek magazine says Khadafy has outfitted special assassination squads to kill President Reagan and other top administration officials. Security around the president has been tightened, the magazine reported.

"The Western countries have the impression that Khadafy is resorting more to diplomacy in his relations with other countries, rather than relying on public declarations as he did before," a senior diplomat said.

As an example, he cited Libya's delicate dialogue with France over the Chad withdrawal, "little of which appeared in public."

We deduce from this that Khadafy is trying to mend fences with Western Europe, while using commercial ties to draw a wedge between Europe and the United States," the diplomat said.

Another noted that Western protests against Libyan killings in Europe have had some effect.

"At first they didn't understand why we were complaining," he said. "Unofficially they said they were only killing Libyans and if we wanted to come over here and kill our people, they would let us get on with it."

The Libyans never acknowledged officially that they had anything to do with the killings, but when Western governments persisted with their protests, the incidents came to a halt, the diplomat said.

"You wouldn't believe it to read the American press, but I don't think there has been a recurrence of this type of thing in Europe for the past year," he said.

Libya watchers have also noticed that Khadafy, hampered by declining oil revenues, is no longer as open-handed with funds for liberation movements in Africa and the Middle East as he was just two or three years ago.

"The American propaganda notwithstanding, we have the overall impression that Khadafy has never been very generous in supporting liberation movements, that it was mostly just talk," one said.

"Now that he has financial difficulties, he will be even less generous. In a recent speech, he said quite openly that liberation movements will have to prove their worth and effectiveness if they want generosity in return."

Whether or not Khadafy really is trying to improve his international standing, everyone agrees he has plenty of reasons to want to do so.

A major reason is next July's summit conference of the Organization of African Unity, which will be held in Tripoli and where Khadafy will be chairman for a year.

"The success of OAU summits is always measured by the number of African heads of state who attend," a diplomat said.

Libya already has problems with Egypt, Somalia, Nigeria and Sudan — to name just a handful. We think he is anxious to be a success as OAU chairman, which means he should be craving international respectability.

Another powerful reason for Khadafy to appear to be mending his ways is his present international isolation.

"Khadafy seems to be frightened by the current American hostility," a senior Western diplomat said. "It's forcing him to court the Warsaw Pact countries for protection and we are not convinced that he likes that."

Tight security around pontiff

Pope seeks aid for quake victims

COLLEVALENZA, Italy (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, guarded Sunday by the tightest security ever for a visit in Italy, made his first pastoral trip since he was shot last May.

He appealed for more aid to victims of Italy's 1980 earthquake last they be "further distressed."

The pope flew by helicopter for the one-day trip from the Vatican to the Amore Misericordioso (Merciful Love) Sanctuary in Collevaenza, 60 miles northeast of Rome in Umbria.

Hundreds of police ringed the square in front of the sanctuary and plainclothes agents circulated among the 10,000 people attending an outdoor mass in the hilltop town.

A police helicopter circled overhead and guards at the square's entrances conducted body searches with metal detectors.

"This is not the papal trip of before the shooting," said a police captain who asked not to be identified. "There are more agents here and they are much better qualified than before." The captain said there was a plan to increase security for papal trips in Italy by 40 percent more than the forces used before the pope was shot last May 13 and said about 1,000 policemen were based in from various Italian cities for the Collevaenza trip.

The security was the strictest ever seen for a papal trip in Italy but the pope has been guarded by far tighter security in some of his overseas trips.

During his regular noon blessing that followed an outdoor mass, the pope recalled that Monday marks the anniversary of the major earthquake that struck southern Italy Nov. 23, 1980, killing nearly 3,000 people and leaving hundreds of thousands injured or homeless.

The pontiff asked for continued prayers for those who died but added,

"We must also remember to pray for the survivors, for those who lost everything in that sad event — their homes, their belongings, their fields, their jobs, their churches, their towns."

Estonians calling work halt Dec. 1

TALLINN, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — Spurred by Poland's Solidarity movement, Estonian nationalists plan a half-hour work stoppage Dec. 1.

They want to protest food shortages and Soviet political oppression.

The protest is loosely organized and involves several disparate groups, UPI has learned. But thousands of people are aware of the call to stop work, refuse to ride public transport, and remain completely silent from 10 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. on the first workday of each month.

Word of the Solidarity trade union's gains in Poland has reached Estonia — a small Baltic republic that was incorporated into the U.S.S.R. in 1940 — and has had an encouraging effect on citizens who otherwise would ignore the protest.

But it was unlikely, the dissident sources said, that more than a few hundred people would publicly demonstrate their dissatisfaction with conditions in Estonia, which nationalists claim is illegally occupied by the Soviet Union.

Various Estonian-language leaflets calling for the work stoppage have been passed around the capital of Tallinn and Tartu, the second largest city 100 miles southeast.

One such handbill, deposited in postboxes, demands that the Soviet Union live up to the terms of the 1975 Helsinki Accords and specifically calls for Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan.

But lengthy talks with members of the various dissident groups showed their unifying cause was discontent with poor food supplies, and a recent round of price increases introduced in September.

Police nab 7 West Germans during visit to East Berlin

BERLIN (UPI) — East German police arrested seven West Germans during a visit to East Berlin Sunday at least four had chained themselves to a lamppost in East Berlin's main square to protest the arrest of 12 coborns a year ago.

Reports by the witnesses emerged Sunday after the terse announcement late Saturday by the state news agency ADN that seven West Germans had been seized. No explanation was given apart from saying they had violated visitors laws.

The witnesses said four West Germans from a Communist splinter group opposed to the Soviet bloc chained themselves to a lamppost in the Alexanderplatz, East Berlin's main square.

They were arrested by East German police after about 20 minutes, the witnesses said. They said most passers-by seemed to scorn the protest and the leaflets handed out by the four demonstrators.

The leaflets detailed the arrest a year ago of 12 East German members of the group, which also is known as the "Red Brigades" in recent months calling on East Germans to learn from events in Poland, urging abolition of censorship and free elections.

A spokesman for the group, which calls itself the Communist Party of Germany, said the four people seized on the square were linked to his party, but he knew nothing of the three other West Germans ADN said were arrested.

What's what

If both you and your matrimonial mate come from broken homes, chances run 60 percent that you can hold together your marriage till death do you part. If one set of parents was divorced, chances are 75 percent your marriage will survive. If neither was divorced, chances reach 85 percent you can keep it intact. So say the statisticians who put their computers to work on succeeding generations of romance.

Archologists digging into an ancient ruin near Rome recently found a graffito on an outer wall that translates from the Latin as follows: "Nero is a weirdo."

Most popular food in Nairobi, Africa, is the hamburger.

NIGHT WITCHES

Q. Who were the so-called "Night Witches" of World War II?

A. The women who flew combat for the Soviet Union against the German Luftwaffe. And the disassembled women of France who worked with a purpose among the German occupation troops. You didn't hear much about the Red fliers, but the German pilots learned to think of them as special, an elite corps of pukhrudinous pilots, fast and furious. Unlike the infected Night Witches of the French Underground, the female fliers did not keep pace on their beds, but rather on their aircraft doors. The killer instinct was strong on both fronts. The enemy didn't have much of a chance.

Most popular comic book character in Israel is "Sabraman," an Israeli super secret agent on assignment with an Israeli super intelligence agency. "Sabra" in Israel means "new immigrant."

Q. What were Leo Tolstoy's dying words?
A. "I don't understand what I'm supposed to do."

POVERTY OR POVERTY

In the Soviet Union, a large loaf of bread now costs the equivalent of 15 cents. In Japan, a serving of beer now costs the equivalent of $15. Query: Which is worse: a stagnant poverty or an inflating poverty?

If you see it and hear it at the same time, you remember it more readily. That's why some experts insist it's best to read aloud when you study. Maybe so, don't know. Abe Lincoln did that.

Aid for family pours in after boy, 2, loses legs

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa. (UPI) — Early in October, little Joey Byler lost both of his legs above the knees because he accidentally turned on a forage shredder and was pulled into it as his father looked on in horror.

As medical expenses mounted, Joey's parents — an Amish couple — were asked if they would accept donations to help. They agreed, never expecting the outpouring of sympathy that followed.

Friends the Bylers never knew they had — people and organizations from all over the United States — began reaching into their pockets to help make certain that Joey, who turns 3 on Friday, will be able to walk again.

A fund was set up by neighbors in Joey's name and, as of last week, donations reached $13,000.

The fund originally was to be used to buy artificial legs and pay for rehabilitation therapy for Joey. Then came the biggest contribution of all.

The Shriners of North America took over the cost of the limbs and said they would replace them every year until Joey reaches adulthood.

The other donated money now can be used to pay for hospital and transportation expenses incurred during Joey's stay at Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh — about $4,000, so far.

The rest will be saved until Joey turns 18 and needs a permanent set of artificial legs.

"When we asked the family if they'd accept donations, they said 'Yes,'" Mary Ellen Ulmer, a neighbor of the Bylers said. "They never dreamed it would grow into this amount. Nobody realized there would be such widespread contribution."

"They can't believe how good the 'English' people are, to have given so much."

The cost of two artificial legs is about $5,000, subject to increase.

Testimony expected to start soon in libel suit against Penthouse

COMPTON, Calif. (UPI) — Opening arguments were expected this week in a $650 million libel suit, described as the largest in history, filed against Penthouse magazine by owners of a posh resort six years ago.

Owners of Rancho La Costa in San Diego County and four corporations sued the men's magazine following an investigative story in the March, 1975, issue of Penthouse which linked the resort to organized crime figures.

The Supreme Court permitted the trial to proceed by refusing to review a California Court of Appeals ruling last February. The nation's high court, in effect, ruled that a trial was necessary to determine if the resort's owners were public figures, as contended by Penthouse.

The appellate court ruled again in June that the resort owners could have their day in court.

Penthouse spokesman Rich Jachetti said the case was "the largest libel suit in history."

The trial pits two well-known trial lawyers against each other in the Compton courthouse, near south-central Los Angeles.

Louis Nizer, a famous trial lawyer and author, is representing Rancho La Costa and Penthouse has retained Roy Grutman.

"It will be a pitched battle and it is a battle in which we believe the First Amendment's vitality is being challenged," Grutman said.

But Nizer said the issue is not freedom of the press. "We are all for the First Amendment," he said. "We all are for libel laws to prevent people from being destroyed."

"It's curious this is raised by Penthouse's lawyer, because they have brought libel suits against Hustler (another men's magazine)," Nizer said.

Grutman said he planned to call several law enforcement officials to support allegations in the article and also will put organized crime figures on the witness stand.

Jury selection began last week. The trial was expected to take about three months.

Moe Dalitz, Allard Roen, Merv Adelson and Irwin Molinsky filed the suit in 1975 after Penthouse ran the article, "La Costa: The Hundred Million Dollar Resort With a Criminal Clientele," which accused them of being involved in organized crime.

Game between rival gangs ends with death on street

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One man was dead and another seriously wounded Sunday following a game of "cat and mouse" between rival gangs on the streets of Hollywood.

Los Angeles detectives said two cartels of gang members played the game early Sunday up and down the streets of Hollywood until about 4:30 a.m. MST.

The game of car chasing car ended near Vine and Fountain streets.

"Everybody jumped out of the cars and there was a fight," detective Bob Martin said.

He said there were between eight and 10 young men involved in the fights. All the suspects fled after the fight except the victims.

A 24-year-old man was left dead on the street. He was not identified pending notification of his family.

Alfredo Mendoza, 20, was stabbed and seriously wounded. He was taken to County-USC Medical Center.

Dear Abby

She'd like to cut Christmas gift list

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: How do you go about putting a stop to exchanging Christmas gifts with people you hardly ever see? I don't mean relatives. I mean out-of-towners who used to be neighbors and whose children were friendly with our children (all grown now), and folks we are no longer close to.

Shopping, wrapping and mailing Christmas presents have gotten to be a real chore, and I am not as young as I used to be. It's also expensive. I would like to get off a lot of people's lists and take them off mine, too. I'm sure they feel the same way about it, but don't know how to get off OURS.

So how do I get off this merry-go-round, Abby? I would prefer to send Christmas cards to a number of people who are still on my Christmas gift list. Thanks from...

CUTTING CORNERS IN CHICAGO

DEAR CHICAGO: Early in December write a note to those you'd like to take off your gift list and put on your card list, saying you are "thankful" for friends with whom you can be perfectly frank.

Explain that this year, along with trimming your Christmas tree, you're trimming your gift list and sending cards instead. I'll wager they'll appreciate your practical approach and will cheerfully reciprocate.

DEAR ABBY: My cousin recently lost her baby daughter. The baby died a few hours after she was born.

It's been only three weeks, and already three women have asked me whether my cousin intends to return the baby gifts she received at her baby shower!

I find it hard to believe anyone could be so small as to be concerned about whether her baby gift will be returned or not.

What do I tell these women? I certainly do not want to approach my cousin—with such pettiness. She's having a hard enough time as it is.

— CAN'T BELIEVE IT

DEAR CAN'T: I suggest that you tell these petty, insensitive women that you wouldn't consider approaching your cousin with such a painful question.

FOOTPRINTS IN THE SAND

One night a man had a dream. He dreamed he was walking along the beach with the Lord. Across the sky flashed scenes from his life. For each scene, he noticed two sets of footprints in the sand: one belonging to him, and the other to the Lord.

When the last scene flashed before him, he looked back at the footprints and noticed that many times along the path there was only one set of footprints in the sand. He also noticed that this happened during the lowest and saddest times in his life.

This really bothered him, so he questioned the Lord. "Lord, you said that once I decided to follow you, you would walk with me all the way, but I noticed that during the most troublesome times of my life, there was only one set of footprints. I don't understand why, when I needed you the most, you deserted me."

The Lord replied, "My precious, precious child, I love you and would never leave you. During your times of trial and suffering, when you see only one set of footprints, it was then that I carried you."

Dr. Lamb

She can't eat liver, but needs more iron in her diet

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 72 years of age and according to my laboratory report my blood count is 31.

I've been advised to eat liver but with a high cholesterol, I'm not supposed to eat liver. Will you please advise me what foods are high in iron?

About 43 years ago I was very low but shots and pills brought it up to normal. I had a mastectomy eight months ago which might have brought my count down.

DEAR READER — I'm not sure what blood count you're referring to but I presume you're talking about your hematocrit, the amount of red blood cells you have.

There are many different ways to do blood counts. That includes the number of red blood cells that are present (a reading given in the millions), the amount of hemoglobin in grams and the volume of your blood that's occupied by red blood cells.

In any case, if you are low in iron you can take Avon tablets. For this purpose, you could take one of the daily vitamin tablets that also contains iron. Or you can ask your doctor which iron medicine he would like you to take.

There are several different forms of anemia. Some are caused by inadequate amounts of iron, others are caused by failure of the bone marrow and still others by inability to absorb vitamin B-12.

I'm sending you the Health Letter No. 4-3, Understanding the Anemias. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1531, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10109.

If you have a vitamin B-12 deficiency or pernicious anemia, just taking iron alone isn't going to solve your problem.

It's important to establish the cause for an anemia. For example, if an anemia is caused by bleeding and is sufficiently severe, the blood can be replaced.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently I read in a magazine that a virus had been found to cause diabetes. Does that mean that they'll soon have a vaccine to prevent diabetes? Would you comment about this?

DEAR READER — Yes, there was a case reported of Coxsackie virus causing destruction of the islets of Langerhans in the pancreas and resulting in diabetes. This has also been demonstrated in animals.

That's very important research but you have to keep in mind that it may not be a frequent cause for diabetes. The truth is that diabetes can be caused by anything which damages the islets of Langerhans in the pancreas. They are the tiny organs that produce insulin.

Mumps also has been identified as a possible factor in diabetes in some people. Not all forms of diabetes apparently are even related to the pancreas but to certain other complex metabolic defects. There appear to be several different types of diabetes. Therefore, there are probably many different causes for diabetes.

It may well be that some of these types of diabetes, if they are proved to be related to virus infections, could be prevented in the future. But we still have a long way to go before this can be done.

BURLEY — Ironically, it was forging concise sentences more than welding strong, straight beads in steel that won a Burley High School senior a national arc-welding award.

It was Kerry Seale's precisely written plans for the project, rather than his impressive fifth-wheel stock trailer, that earned him third-place honors in the James F. Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation competition.

According to Gaylen Smyer, the welding instructor at Burley High School, the contest emphasizes the ability of the students to express themselves in detailed plans, photographs and sketches of their projects.

So with Smyer's help, Seale, distilled the three months of working and learning in the darkness of his welding helmet, that produced the trailer into a 25-page entry package. The hefty book resembles a family album more than anything else, containing the plans and photographs of the birth and growth of Seale's 24-foot baby.

"He had to write down on paper exactly how he built it," Smyer said, dropping the entry to the table with a thump, "so that anyone could pick up the plans and build it."

Anyone, that is, who can handle arc-welding equipment like Seale. The trailer, which would cost more than $5,000 commercially, is built precisely to Seale's specifications and needs. But more importantly, he knows exactly what went into the trailer, the materials and the workmanship.

He has no doubt that his parents, who paid for the trailer, got a good deal. But his confidence in his work is only a shadow of his instructor's.

"I pride myself on not letting junk go out of here," Smyer said.

Other student welders in the Magic Valley area also won honors in the competition.

Dan Warren, Tom Wrigley, Dennis Patterson, Scott Howard and Darla Archer, all of Burley High School, and LaMont Kowitz, Dee Lewis and Andrew Carter, all of Declo High School, took sixth-place awards in the regional competition. And Kelly Kidd of Declo received a fifth-place award in the regionals.

Hit, run weekend

Drivers charged after accidents

TWIN FALLS — This was "hit-and-run" weekend in Twin Falls. City police issued traffic citations to four persons Saturday and Sunday on charges of leaving the scene of an accident.

Anthony Arnold Silva, 26, of Twin Falls, was charged after his 1976 Corvette went out of control and crashed into a tree at 173 Jackson St. Officers estimated there was $6,000 damage to the vehicle. The accident occurred shortly after 10 a.m. Sunday, and Silva was located later.

Bill Bibby, 19, of Twin Falls, was cited on the same charge after his vehicle went out of control and hit a power pole in the 1100 block of Washington Street North on Saturday night. Bibby and a passenger, Ross Miller of Twin Falls, suffered minor injuries. An 86-year-old Jerome woman, Gertrude Detweiler, also was cited for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Julius Scott Laib, 19, of Paul, told police that Detweiler backed into his pickup truck in the 100 block of Blue Lakes Boulevard about noon Sunday. He said he got out of the car to check with the other driver, and the vehicle took off, with tires spinning. Laib said he was sitting in his pickup, eating lunch when the accident occurred.

And Justin Ray Mooso, 18, of Twin Falls, was cited for failure to remain at the scene after his vehicle allegedly backed into a car driven by Alan K. Beck of Jerome. The accident occurred at 11:10 p.m. Saturday in the 100 block of Martin Street, police said.

Meetings

ICL chapter at courthouse

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley chapter of the Idaho Conservation League will hold a public meeting tonight at 7:30 in Room 3 of the Twin Falls County Courthouse.

The issues that will be discussed include mining in the White Cloud Mountains, trout farming proposals in the Thousand Springs Area and the possibility of a coal-fired power plant near Bliss.

Board in session

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Memorial Hospital board will hold its regular monthly meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the second-floor conference room at the hospital.

Firm may build Utah ski resort

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A Salt Lake City development firm is considering building a Summit County ski resort complex between existing resorts in Park City and Park West.

Boyer Company has filed preliminary plans on a ski area covering 2,650 acres in the White Pine area, just south of Park West. It would also include 3,000 housing units.

"We have filed a conceptual plan with the Summit County Planning Commission," says Boyer spokesman Dan Gardner. "We want input from the county early in this planning process."

But Gardner said the preliminary plans were filed only to satisfy county planning requirements, and that the proposal is only in the beginning stages.

Pipeline

decision pending

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (UPI) — Washington Gov. John Spellman, in whose hands the fate of the controversial Northern Tier crude oil pipeline now rests, will base his decision only on Washington state issues, an aide has said.

People writing letters to Spellman "would just as well save their time," news secretary Paul O'Connor said.

"All they're doing is making my Northern Tier file fatter," O'Connor said. "We're going by the book on this."

The pipeline would transport crude oil from Port Angeles, Wash., to Clearbrook, Minn., and refineries in between. Organizers say they have spent $40 million during eight years winning permits from every necessary state except Washington.

O'Connor said that Spellman — the third Washington governor to consider the pipeline — has received letters, petitions, pleas and other entreaties from pipeline backers in Montana, North Dakota and Minnesota. Support comes from the governors of the three states, Energy Secretary James Edwards and the Montana congressional delegation, among others.

But Spellman will base his decision on Washington law and the merits of the proposal, he said.

"It will be an independent consideration and not based on a parallel situation," O'Connor said.

Washington residents are split — "about 50-50" — about the pipeline, he said.

"We're an agricultural state and the people in eastern Washington want the pipeline," he said.

Band's protest fizzles

BOISE (UPI) — The planned protest by the Borah High School marching band over sports officials' decision not to let band members into the state I-A championship game free fizzled Saturday, apparently because the marchers had accepted the situation, band members said.

A taped rendition of "The Star-Spangled Banner" opened the third annual state championship game.

Members of the Borah High band had said they would bring kazoos to the game to play because they were not allowed to bring instruments.

Although they were disappointed, members of the Borah and Boise high school bands said they supported the decision of their band directors and principals not to perform during halftime of a game they had to pay to get into.

BLM speeds up studies

BOISE (UPI) — The Bureau of Land Management plans to accelerate wilderness studies on 24 million acres of public lands — 1.7 million in Idaho — in a move primarily to save money.

The accelerated study schedule will permit review of 37 percent of the proposed wilderness acreage in Idaho by the end of 1982, 49 percent by the end of 1983 and 76 percent by the end of 1984. Wilderness studies are expected to be completed by the end of 1985.

George Welskrüger, BLM wilderness coordinator for Idaho, said the decision was made to save money, increase the acreage studied in the next few years, accelerate the amount of acreage studied with energy-use conflicts and minimize impacts on other BLM programs.

Feminine actions work

BOISE (UPI) — Women don't have to act like men to be successful, says an associate professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences at the University of Washington Medical School.

Jennifer James told about 275 women attending a management seminar at Boise State University Saturday that a decade ago women who wanted success were told to take on male roles.

"I'd attend workshops 10 years ago and look at all those nurturing, loving women trying to learn to be nasty," Dr. James said. "We don't need more nasty people in three-piece suits."

Women can learn from their own traditional role models, taking the best of what those models offer to create a new model, she said.

Seizure one of biggest

BOISE (UPI) — The seizure of two pounds of cocaine from a south Boise house last week marked what is probably the largest such confiscation in Idaho in the past three years, says Ada County and state narcotics investigators.

However, the county's three-month investigation into the Boise-area cocaine trade may not net any more suspected major dealers, said Sgt. Loren Townley.

"I'm pretty sure this is the largest seizure in the state (of cocaine)," Townley said. But he said it would be necessary "to infiltrate this town with narcs" (narcotics agents) to track down other suppliers.

Two of the Boise residents charged in the bust, William Proctor, 32, and Carolyn Louck, 29, posted bond and were released from the Ada County jail Saturday. Proctor's bond was set at $75,000; Ms. Louck's at $35,000.

A third defendant, Steven Hatcher, 26, remained in jail Saturday night with bond set at $25,000.

Scientists study slides

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two University of Idaho scientists are studying ways of making landslides less destructive.

With funding of more than $200,000 from the U.S. Forest Service, Terry Howard, associate professor of geological and civil engineering, and an undergraduate research assistant, hope to develop a computer program that will predict where and when roads will fail and landslides will develop.

Howard said landslides are the biggest geological hazard in the country. Each year they are responsible for considerable economic loss and environmental damage, especially in the mountainous areas of the Pacific Northwest where road building for timber harvesting operations contributes significantly to the problem.

Suspect denies slaying

BOISE (UPI) — Randall Bainbridge told authorities he did not kill a Garden City gas station employee, but said he was inside the station when she was slain, according to a taped deposition played Saturday during the accused killer's trial.

Bainbridge, 28, is charged with first-degree murder in the stabbing and shooting death of Dixie Wilson, who was murdered during an April 6 holdup of the station where she worked.

Bainbridge, who was arrested and interrogated by authorities April 8 in connection with Mrs. Wilson's death, told two investigators with the Ada County prosecutor's office and his parole officer at the time of his arrest that Lacey Sivak, not he, shot and stabbed Mrs. Wilson.

Sivak, 22, was convicted Sept. 29 of first-degree murder for his part in Mrs. Wilson's death. During his trial Sivak blamed the woman's death on Bainbridge.

Wyoming women prison officers accepted by co-workers

RAWLINS, Wyo. (UPI) — Women employees at the Wyoming State Penitentiary say the prison's male inmates and co-workers generally accept them as corrections officers.

Nearly 23 percent of the prison's 215 employees are women, including security guards, counselors, office workers and inmate supervisors, Warden Duane Shillinger said.

Shillinger said the overall performance of the women has been excellent.

"There is not one of the women working here as a correctional officer that I couldn't rely on in an emergency situation," Shillinger said this week.

He said the first woman was hired at the prison in 1974, but since the energy boom hit Carbon County the pool of male employees has dwindled as men left prison work for the oil fields and coal mines.

"Women realize it's a good, secure job to have in Rawlins. The pay is good and benefits are excellent," Shillinger said.

Shillinger said there have been two attacks on women employees in the past years, but said male guards are also attacked, but attacks on guards are infrequent.

In fact, Shillinger believes women help stabilize the inmate population.

"Ninety-nine percent of the inmates are conscious of their behavior when they are around females," Shillinger said. "Many people think convicts don't have any morals or scruples, but they do. Many of them care greatly."

Sgt. Kim Sturchell, who operates access in and out of cell blocks, said some men definitely do not like women guards, but then "some don't even like women."

Most women employed at the pen, however, said the gender of the guards makes little difference.

"There are both males and females who can't handle working here. They don't want to be in close proximity to the prisoners," Sgt. Doris St. Clair said.

"People ask me if I'm afraid to work here, but I'm not," Sharon Serafin, head of the prison warehouse, said. "The inmates that I supervise here don't give me any problem at all." Laura Joffe, a correctional development counselor who deals with inmates just prior to their release, said she believes more women should be hired in penitentiaries.

"Women tend to be more compromising, sensitive and more apt to use reason," Miss Joffe said. "It's essential when you're dealing with human beings and trying to understand their behavior."

Hospitals reject 'war plan'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Pentagon plan to set aside 50,000 hospital beds for military use has been rejected by some private hospitals and a Roman Catholic archbishop because it gives "tacit approval" to the planning of a nuclear war.

The Pentagon never mentioned a "nuclear war" in February when it first asked civilian hospitals to commit 50,000 beds for military use in the event of a large-scale conflict.

But that's the way some hospitals and other Pentagon critics read the message.

"Because of technical advances in weaponry and the greater mobility of armies today, a future large-scale conflict overseas will probably begin and end very rapidly and produce casualties at a higher rate than any other war in history," the Defense Department's original letter said.

Dr. Kathryn J. Bennett, staff president at Contra Costa County Hospital in Martinez, Calif., sent the Pentagon a politely worded rejection, saying her members "strongly" believe the plan offers "tacit approval for the planning of a nuclear war."

"As physicians, we believe that war on the scale envisioned by the military would be disastrous for the human race," she wrote.

So far, only Contra Costa County Hospital and Queen of the Valley Hospital in Wayne, Calif., have formally said no to the Pentagon on nuclear grounds. Some hospitals have other reasons, but the H-bomb obviously had a part in the rejections.

The anti-Pentagon movement gained impetus among doctors, a conservative group by nature, because of a pastoral statement from Archbishop John R. Quinn of San Francisco, who has two large Catholic hospitals in his diocese.

He urged hospitals across the nation to "vigorously" oppose the Pentagon plan "if this system is based on the illusion that there can be an effective medical response in the case of nuclear war."

The Pentagon project, the Civilian-Military Contingency Hospital System, was quickly endorsed by the American Hospital Association and hundreds of hospitals almost automatically signed up.

But subsequent letters to the Pentagon said nuclear war would be the final epidemic and physicians could do virtually nothing to help survivors. To say otherwise encourages a deadly delusion among patients and the public, many letters said.

Some noted hospitals already have elaborate disaster plans that could instantly be converted to military use, if necessary.

At a series of symposiums organized around the country by Physicians for Social Responsibility, a new and rapidly growing group, doctors and nurses are being given vivid descriptions of medical consequences of a nuclear blast.

A two-day symposium sponsored by the Stanford and University of California medical schools attracted 1,000 people who were told a nuclear holocaust in San Francisco would instantly kill 800,000 and doom another 400,000 to die.

The few doctors who survive would have 1,000 to 1,700 severely injured patients apiece. Given the number of corpses and scarcity of food and water, contagious diseases would explode among survivors.

Nudists due in court in test of ordinance

MALIBU, Calif. (UPI) — Court appearances are scheduled today for nine of the more than 500 people arrested for nude sunbathing along resort beaches near Malibu.

The sunbathers have appeared in small groups before different judges and their attorneys are seeking a Federal Court showdown to end the confusion.

A $1 million lawsuit has been filed against Los Angeles County Sheriff Peter Pitchess and his deputies for alleged civil rights violations.

Two volunteer attorneys will represent the nine sunbathers ordered to appear at Malibu Municipal Court house today. The nine originally were scheduled for trial last week in Calabasas, a few miles north.

But proceeding were postponed when it was discovered that the assigned judge, on loan from Santa Monica, had been disqualified by the prosecution for saying an ordinance banning nudity on beaches was "unclear."

A total of 549 people were arrested for nudity on a beach. Most chose not to fight city hall and accepted fines without contest. Twenty-nine have been tried to date with 12 convictions and 23 acquittals.

Thirty-six were dismissed and two trials resulted in hung juries. Others are awaiting trial.

The attorneys, Stephen Yagman and David Kestenbaum who volunteer time to the American Civil Liberties Union, last week won dismissal of charges against 34 sunbathers on grounds they were not brought to trial within 45 days of arraignment.

The lawyers successfully argued in Superior Court that if the people of Malibu seriously want to enforce anti-nude ordinances they must be serious about bringing offenders to trial.

After the coming week's trial, the lawyers will go to the U.S. District Court to attack the ordinances as unconstitutional and impinging upon individual rights of freedom of expression and congregation.

A meeting has been scheduled with county attorney for Dec. 10 to discuss rules for a trial seeking $1 million on behalf of one, Robbe Brogna, who was acquitted on the local law violation but seeks the amount for alleged violation of civil rights.

Outburst of anti-gay violence leaves 1 dead

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — For hours, they drank beer on a downtown street corner, taunting passersby with anti-white and anti-homosexual signs. Then they struck.

Three men were stabbed, one fatally, in an outburst of violence at about 3 a.m. Sunday.

Police arrested Richard Weston, 29, a black, and Henry Luna, 26, an Hispanic, on charges of murder, attempted murder and resisting arrest.

The pair apparently "wanted to fight and raise hell, fight and provoke people," said homicide inspector Napoleon Henricks.

Witnesses said passersby attempted to avoid the name-callers, but the pair chased their targets down the block on several occasions, calling them "white honks" and other derogatory names for whites and homosexuals.

The incident took place a block from Polk Street, in a heterogeneous neighborhood where violence against gays has become a major problem.

"They bought more beer and booze, and the more they drank the more macho they became, picking fights," said Henricks.

Shortly before 3 a.m., the pair attacked their first two victims outside a Travelodge coffee shop, Gayle Stone, 38, wounded in the abdomen, was in satisfactory condition at the University of California Medical Center.

An unidentified friend was treated for a knife wound below his eye and released.

"All I know is, he was mad about something," Stone said of his assailant.

A few minutes after that attack, another unidentified man was stabbed in the heart in front of several witnesses. He reportedly ran a few hundred yards down the block before collapsing. Paramedics pronounced him dead when they arrived at the scene.

CSI Eagles host Chinese squad tonight at 8

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "It will be our toughest game up to now and I probably will be the best team we'll face all year."

College of Southern Idaho Coach David Campbell thus summed up tonight's basketball exhibition against a "select team" of the People's Republic of China. The tipoff is at 8 p.m. at the CSI gymnasium with a question mark concerning a full house.

Campbell said Sunday evening between three and four hundred of the pre-game tickets are still available. They will remain on the special pre-game price of $3.25 for adults and $2.25 for students at Donnelly's Sporting Goods and Osco Drug through 4 p.m. today.

"But we've heard reports from people saying the game is a sellout. That isn't true. We still have those three or four hundred tickets plus our gym will hold somewhere between 3,500 and 3,800 very comfortably," Campbell said. "We purposely limited the number of pre-game sales to 3,000 to allow up to eight hundred general admissions at the gate. Judging from the pre-game sales, I would say we could promise a seat to anyone who wants to show up."

Campbell: Visitors may prove to be toughest opposition of entire season

CSI will take a 2-0 record into the battle-but Campbell warns "we can't beat them if we don't play better than we have our first two games. They are big and excellent shooters. They were capable of adapting to everything New Mexico tried against them, including the half court trap. They have good maturity and excellent experience, having played nine or 10 games in the last 12 or 13 days against some of our best Division I teams."

In their most recent games, the Chinese lost to UCLA 94-69 Thursday night and 101-66 to Colorado Saturday.

They held a 12-0 lead on UCLA before the Bruins unleashed a 12-0 scoring spurt to take the lead for keeps.

Campbell saw the team play at New Mexico and was impressed with their shooting.

"The shot 64 percent from the field in the first half and wound up the game at 54 percent. New Mexico beat them 100-85 but scored only one more field goal. The other difference was New Mexico out-rebounded them badly in the first half to get the lead and hold it," he said.

Campbell noted the 50 percent shooting average held up for just about everyone on the team against New Mexico, although some individuals played considerably more than others.

Overall, China and CSI match up fairly well in height. China center Han Pengshan, who is listed at 7-2, will be the tallest on the court. From there both can call on several men in the 6-5 to 6-8 areas.

"We have to beat them on the boards," Campbell said.

One thing fans won't see is CSI in a zone "because they shoot too well from out to give them time to look at the basket. If we try anything it will be some kind of half-court pressure."

Campbell listed China's strength as scoring during transition and jump shooting.

From the CSI standpoint, Campbell said fans will see one change in the starting lineup, 6-7 sophomore Mike Elliott replacing George Scott.

"He deserves it," Campbell said of the move. "He came off the bench and kept us in it in the first half against Australia. He battles well off the boards and if he can score on the offensive glass for us like he did against Australia it will be a big help."

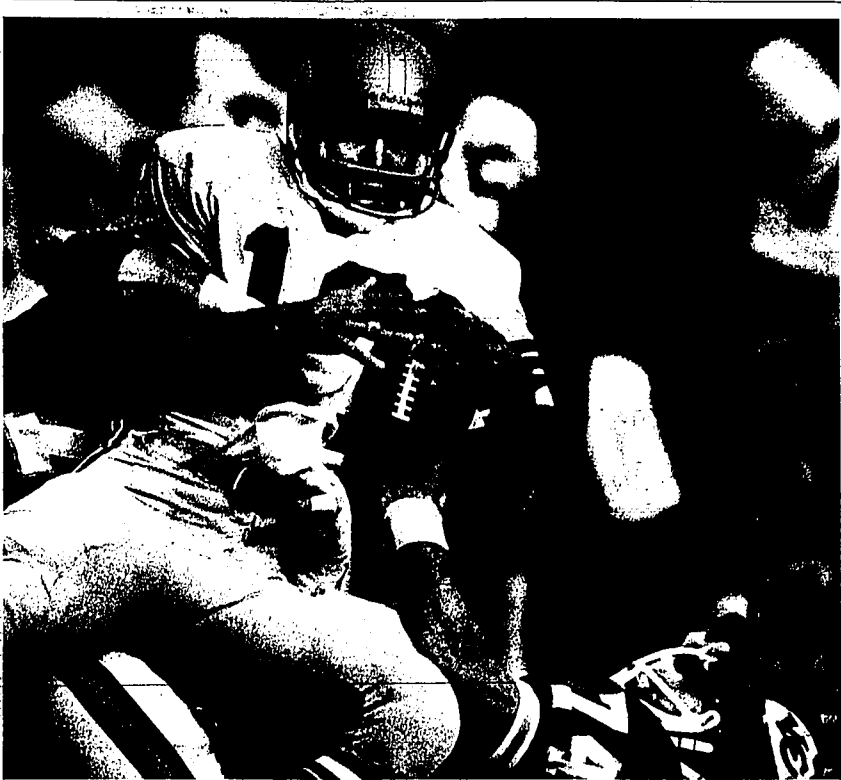

Campbell said he is far from satisfied with his team's progress to this point.

"Maybe it's me. Maybe it's the way I've been trying to coach them. But we have to improve in our offense, especially in patience and execution. We've got to get a lot better in our execution if we going to win many games this year."

"We haven't been playing well so we'll make some changes and find out why. What our players need to understand is their role on this team and what we feel each of them has to do to contribute to the team."

Monday, November 23, 1981 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho B-3

Quite a downer

Sunday afternoon the Seattle Seahawks found their second game of the week quite a downer compared to last Monday's upset win over Seattle. The Seahawks were crushed 40-13 by the Kansas City Chiefs in Kansas City. Seattle quarterback Jim Zorn is sacked by Chiefs Dino Mangiero (74) and Dave Lindstrom for a two-yard loss in the second quarter.

Lowly Giants upset Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — New York Giants Coach Ray Perkins is not exactly known as a master of overstatement.

So when Perkins said the Giants' 20-10 upset victory over the NFC East leading Philadelphia Eagles Sunday "shocked the country," you have to believe him.

"This was a big win, a great win," Perkins said after the Giants, 6-6, snapped a 12-game losing streak to the Eagles dating back to 1975 while staying in the thick of the playoff picture. "We beat the best football team in the league."

After two tough losses (on last-second field goals) other teams would have bit the dust and gotten down. But I told our team last night we could beat this team. We shocked the country."

Joe Daneolo's 30-yard field goal with 9:35 left to play snapped a 10-10 tie. Cornerback Terry Jackson led the game on Philadelphia's next possession by intercepting a Ron Jaworski pass and returning it 32 yards for a touchdown with 6:56 remaining.

Five plays before his big interception, Jackson had been called for pass interference. But he didn't let the penalty bother him.

"It was a judgement call," said Jackson, who stepped in front of receiver Charlie Smith and had smooth sailing down the right sideline. "You can't dwell on it. Mentally you have to come back. When I jumped in front of him I knew I had it and as soon as I started running, I knew it was six."

Daneolo's tie-breaking field goal followed a shanked punt by the Eagles' Max Runger that traveled only 9 yards and gave New York possession at the Philadelphia 32.

What made the punt more embarrassing was that coach Dick Vermeil had called a fake punt, but center Guy Morriss snapped the ball back to Runger instead of Frank LeMaster, the up man in the formation. The Eagles had about a foot to go for the first down.

"That was a mental concentration breakdown by a fine football player," Vermeil said of the flub.

"We didn't get a good call on it," Runger said. "We had to relay the message on the line. Some knew it was a fake and some didn't. The end result was that I got the ball and should have kicked it 40 yards but shanked it."

The Eagles, 9-3, were bottled up in their own end for a good portion of the second half, beginning drives on their own 6, 12, 4, and 15. They had two chances to score in the half, but Tony Franklin missed field goal attempts of 52 and 44 yards as Philadelphia was shut out in the second half for the first time this season.

"The New York Giants clearly deserved to win the ball game," Vermeil said. "They out-hit us and out-coached us. There was one big turnover and that was a stupid call on my part. I knew they would be in a prevent defense. Bad field position and penalties (10 for 83 yards) hurt us."

Jaworski played one of his more sub-par games of the year, completing 20 of 64 passes for 187 yards.

Franklin kicked a 27-yard field goal with 1:17 left to play in the first half to forge the 10-10 deadlock. Daneolo gave New York a 3-0 lead with a 39-yard field goal in the first quarter but Philadelphia gained the advantage on a six-yard touchdown pass from Jaworski to Keith Keefe. Leon Bright ran one yard for a second-quarter touchdown to put the Giants up 10-7.

Rob Carpenter, who gained 111 yards on 24 carries, helped get the ball in position for Daneolo's game-winning field goal by running five straight times for 19 yards.

Bengals whip Denver

Just how good is Cincinnati?

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The only question remaining after Cincinnati's 38-21 destruction of the Denver Broncos Sunday was just how good the upstart Bengals really are.

Cincinnati, after seasons of 4-12, 4-12 and 6-10, have a 9-3 record and top of the AFC Central. The Bengals have won four straight and six of their last seven.

"They're the best football team we've played," said Denver Coach Dan Reeves.

Added Denver quarterback Steve DeBerg, "I think they are the best team in football."

But Cincinnati receiver Dan Ress, who caught seven passes for 123 yards Sunday, had an intriguing answer for the question of just how good Cincinnati is.

"We don't know how good we are, and we won't want to know because it might put a limitation on us," said Ress.

Cincinnati's win Sunday was one of its most impressive of year because it came over a solid team, also on the upswing. Denver came into the game with an 8-3 record and three straight victories. But the Broncos' No. 1 defense in the NFL was shattered by Cincinnati.

The Bengals, in scoring the most points against Denver of any team this year, rolled up 571 total yards. Quarterback Ken Anderson did most of the damage passing for 396 yards and three touchdowns.

"We've got a diversified offense and we are getting used to it now," said Anderson. "It just took us awhile to get adjusted."

Reeves said Anderson and the rest of the Bengals "taught us a good lesson. You learn from defeat."

Asked what he had learned from Sunday's loss, Reeves answered, "I learned to keep score."

Denver was hampered by the absence of injured Craig Morton, the NFL's top-rated quarterback.

Anderson connected on 25-of-37 passes. He threw TD passes of 65 yards to Charles Alexander, seven yards to rookie Cris Collinsworth and two yards to Pete Johnson.

Reeves also scored a touchdown on a two-yard run.

Johnson, a 250-pound fullback, rambled 39 yards for another Cincinnati touchdown. Johnson wound up the day with 99 yards in 19 carries. Jim Breech rounded out

Wersching calls it 'greatest moment'

49ers defeat Rams on 37-yard kick

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Ray Wersching has kicked many game-winning field goals in his nine years in the NFL.

But Sunday's 37-yarder that lifted the San Francisco 49ers to a 33-31 victory over the Los Angeles Rams as the gun sounded came at home before his family and friends and he called it the greatest moment of his career.

"This field goal rates right up there with the biggest of my career," said Wersching, who was born in Austria but attended high school in nearby Downey and junior college only 10 miles away.

"I've had a lot of game-winning kicks, but this was easily the biggest because I grew up here. I had a lot of my friends and my family here and that means more to me than any field goal I've ever kicked."

"All you have to do is concentrate on the situation. You do, don't look up."

San Francisco coach Bill Walsh was lavish in his praise for the 31-year-old Wersching, who had kicked three field goals earlier in the game to keep the 49ers close.

"He's the greatest kicker in the history of the 49ers and perhaps the greatest in the game," Walsh said. "The number of clutch field goals he's kicked is just tremendous."

"How many times has he kicked a winning field goal for us? It seems to be time after time."

After Los Angeles took a 31-30 lead on a one-yard touchdown run by Wendell Tyler, the 49ers got the ball at their 20 and drove to the Los Angeles 19 and let the clock run down to two seconds before Wersching lofted the game-winning field goal.

The San Francisco drive was sparked by a 16-yard pass from Joe Montana to Dwight Clark on third-and-six at the San Francisco 48. On the next play, Montana hit Clark with a 15-yard pass and the wide receiver went out of bounds at the Los Angeles

20. Montana then threw an incomplete pass and Earl Cooper gained one yard to set up Wersching's game-winning out of the hold of Montana.

The victory gave the NFC West-leading 49ers with a 9-3 record while the Rams fell to 5-7.

It was the 49ers' eighth win in their last nine games and marked the first time since 1965 that San Francisco has beaten the Rams twice in a season. The 49ers earlier posted a 20-17 victory over Los Angeles.

Montana completed 19-of-30 passes for 283 yards and was intercepted once. The 49ers gained just 25 yards rushing in the first half and their leading ground gainer for the game was Johnny Davis who carried eight times for only 23 yards.

The Rams' starting quarterback Dan Pastorini completed 8-of-12 passes for 79 yards before being replaced by Pat Haden late in the third quarter.

Haden, the Rams starter most of the season, came off the bench to lead Los Angeles on two touchdown drives and finished the game with 125 yards.

"Trailing 27-17, the Rams pulled to within three points, 27-24, late in the third period on a two-yard TD pass from Haden to Walt Arnold. The touchdown was set up by a 43-yard pass from Haden to Drew Hill to the San Francisco eight."

After San Francisco made it 30-24 with 10:10 left in the game on a 32-yard field goal by Wersching, the Rams got the ball on their 10 with 6:10 left in the game and drove to the San Francisco 30 on the running of Tyler and Mike Guman.

Then, on fourth down, Haden hit Guman with a 14-yard pass to the 16 and on the next play the 49ers' Willie Harper was called for pass interference in the end zone, giving the Rams a first down on the one. On the next play, Tyler, who led all rushers with 57 yards in 23 carries, went into the end zone to tie the score at 30-30. Frank Corral then kicked his 82nd consecutive extra point with 1:51 left in the game to give the Rams a 31-30 lead.

Dallas' defense gets tough in key defeat of Redskins

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — In one of those games that was sitting there for either team to collect, the Dallas Cowboys off-maligned defense rose up out of the swamp Sunday and stuffed the Washington Redskins into a bottle.

That sudden and somewhat unexpected showing in the fourth quarter not only brought the Cowboys a 24-10 win over the Redskins but lifted Dallas back into a first-place bid with Philadelphia in the NFC East.

The defense took over Danny White had consistently overcome adversity with big pass plays, making it through the day without an interception.

"We have actually played good defense for four weeks now against top competition," said Cowboys coach Tom Landry. "That is encouraging for us. The game might have looked ragged, but that was because we were stopping ourselves with miscues."

White touched down twice in the third quarter, one of which was a 28-yard touchdown pass to tight end Doug Cosbie in the third period that broke a 10-10 tie.

"Danny pulled us out with some big plays," said Landry. "He scrambled and the throw he made to Cosbie was not designed to go to him. But he picked him up and he put the ball where it was needed."

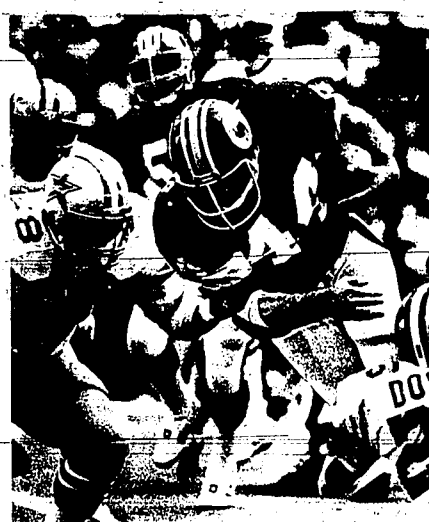

After Cosbie's catch the Dallas defense went to work. It held the Redskins to a minus two yards in Washington's first three possessions of the final quarter, none of which advanced past the 25.

During Dallas' its 17-10 lead throughout most of the fourth period, Dallas put the game away with a 1-yard scoring run by Ron Springs with 52 seconds left.

The victory raised Dallas' record to 9-3. Washington, meanwhile, lost only its second game in its last seven in Dallas. The Redskins' record in Dallas is 1-6.

Other than its three touchdowns, Dallas scored on a 25-yard field goal by Rafael Septien late in the second half.

The Redskins scores came on a 7-yard pass from Joe Theismann to Nick Giamatti with 35 seconds left in the first half and on Mark Moseley's 26-yard field goal on Washington's first possession of the third quarter. That field goal went over the crossbar only after deflecting off the right upright, but Moseley missed two other tries from 27 and 47 yards.

Septien, meanwhile, missed for only the third time this year, failing on a 35-yarder early in the final quarter that would have given the Cowboys a cushion.

Washington's hopes for a comeback were damaged late in the first half when running back Joe Washington, who had played Dallas throughout the first two periods, went out of the game with damaged rib cartilage.

Dallas caused itself plenty of grief with penalties, including one against backup defensive tackle Bruce Thornton for pushing an official on the sidelines while arguing the lack of a roughness call.

On the Cowboys' first touchdown drive White once scrambled for 11 yards on 3rd-and-9 and the scoreless game on 3rd-and-12 after a 17-yard run by Tony Dorsett led by Welp Mitchell, resulting in an easy interception by strong safety Charlie Waters in the end zone.

using up 5:13 on its second TD march. White first hit Drew Pearson with an 18-yard screen pass and then threw a 30-yard screen pass to fullback Ron Springs. But that pass was called back on an offsides penalty and on 3rd-and-18 White scrambled to the sidelines and threw an improvised 26-yard pass to Pearson that earned Dallas a first down.

In the game's opening minutes it appeared Washington might run the Cowboys off the field. Dallas gained only one yard in its first possession and the Redskins then stomped to a first down at the Cowboys' 15.

But the drive stalled and usually reliable Mark Moseley, the hero of Washington's win over the New York Giants a week ago, missed a 27-yard attempt.

Washington also missed a chance for points early in the second quarter after driving from its own 33 to the Dallas 22. But on third down Theismann threw too long for Terry Melcraft, resulting in an easy interception by strong safety Charlie Waters in the end zone.

 The Cincinnati scoring with a 38-yard field goal.
 Denver scored on a pair of 14-yard TD passes by DeBerg, one to Steve Watson and the other to Rob Lyle. But however, came in the last quarter when the outcome was no longer in doubt. Denver's only other TD was in the second period on a five-yard run by Lyle.
 DeBerg, playing the entire game in place of Morton, hit 21-of-34 passes for 303 yards.
 Cincinnati built a 14-0 lead before Denver managed a first down.
 Johnson began the Bengal scoring by charging 39 yards for a touchdown with 6:01 left in the opening period.

Rogers bests Norman in Aussie golf

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — American Bill Rogers sank a five-foot birdie putt on the final hole to win a drama charged Australian Open Golf Championship by a stroke over Australia's Greg Norman Sunday at the Victoria Golf Club.
 Rogers closed with a one-over-par 73 with five birdies for a total of 282 in the $170,000 event.
 "I couldn't believe it. This is one that fell in my lap," the 30-year-old Texan said after claiming his winner's check of $31,050.
 It was the seventh victory and his fifth win in six starts in which he has been an amazing year for Rogers.

He came to the 504-yard final hole needing a birdie to edge Norman, who had parred the last hole for a 70 and a total of 283.
 Rogers hit a typically arrow-straight drive and planted his second shot with a four-iron safely into the heart of the green. His first putt from 40 feet was five feet wide of the cup, but he stepped up and stroked the ball right into the center of the hole.
 Rogers said it was an easy right to left putt under normal conditions, but there was added pressure since this was for the Open championship.
 He added that the key to his victory was a marvelous touch with his putter for four days.

Gary Player of South Africa, with a 70, was third at 285, followed by Graham Marsh of Australia (71-287). Bobby Clampett of the U.S. had a 72 to finish at 285.

Jets tie Dolphins for AFC East lead

NEW YORK (UPI) — The hex lives on and this time it has brought the New York Jets a share of first place in the AFC East.

Richard Todd, playing despite a broken rib, threw a dramatic 11-yard touchdown pass to Jerome Barkum with just 21 seconds remaining Sunday and Pat Leahy, who earlier kicked field goals of 29, 49 and 45 yards, added the breaking conversion to lift the Jets to a 16-15 victory over the Miami Dolphins.

The victory continued the Jets' four-year domination of the Dolphins — they are 7-0-1 over the span — but more important, it tied New York with Miami for the AFC East lead at 7-4-1. The Jets had not led the division at this stage of the season since 1968.

Actually, with the tie-breaker procedure in effect, the Jets hold an edge over Miami. If New York wins its final four games against Baltimore, Seattle, Cleveland and Green Bay, the Jets will be AFC East champions and earn their first playoff berth in 12 years.

The Jets took over on their 23 with three minutes to go after Uve Von Schamann gave Miami a 15-9 lead with a 23-yard field goal. Todd moved the Jets quickly down field, hitting Wesley Walker for 26 yards to the Miami 38 and Lam Jones for 12 more to the 25.

Todd then hit Lam Jones for 14 more yards down to the 11 to set up the game-winning throw to Barkum.

Todd led the Jets' dressing room quickly after the game for treatment. "It's sore but winning this game makes a lot of pain go away," said Todd. "I had to head for treatment. I stood on the sidelines crying after we scored. It was like a dream."

"We were really confident," said Barkum of his game-winning catch. "The play was designed to go to the tight end. I'd have to say it's the biggest catch of my career (10 years) because of the position we were in."

"We're number one now and people will be waiting for me. I have to live up to the praise Richard Todd. He's doing the job."

Miami Coach Don Shula said the key came when Miami had to kick a field goal with just over three minutes left. The Dolphins moved to the Jets' 4 but on third down, tackle Abdul Salaam broke through to bring down

Eddie Hill for a loss and force a field goal.

"We were trying for the touch at the end," said Shula. "We wanted it bad. Salaam made a big play. They made four or five big plays in that game but that was the biggest one for them."

"On their march, they made two long curls in where we retreated to far. One of our guys was too cautious. It cost us."

Jets Coach Walt Michaels, under fire earlier this year after his club lost its first three games, was elated with the victory.

"We work a two-minute drill every week," said Michaels. "We couldn't go for the field goal. We had to go to the touchdown. To become a good football team you have to learn to play those last two minutes. We learned a good lesson today but we can't afford to get overconfident now. We have four more game left and we have to play them just as hard as we played this one."

run triggered a 12-point burst in the final 4:36 of the first half that gave the Dolphins a 12-6 lead at the half.

Nathan's run, a safety and a 46-yard field goal by von Schamann late in the first half rallied Miami from a 6-0 deficit to a 12-6 lead.

Von Schamann gave the Dolphins some breathing room by connecting on a 23-yard field goal with 3:10 remaining after the Jets had pulled to 12-9.

The game was dominated by the defensive units and Miami's turned the Jets back when it had in the second half until Todd's heroics in the final three minutes.

Miami spotted the Jets a 6-0 lead early in the second period before roaring back with 12 consecutive points in the final 4:36 of the half to take a 12-6 halftime lead. After the Jets went ahead on Leahy's field goals of 29 and 49 yards, Nathan capped an 80-yard drive and put Miami ahead 7-6 with his 4-yard run around right end.

Edmonton wins 4th Grey Cup in row

MONTREAL (UPI) — Warren Moon, leading the Edmonton Eskimos from the brink of the biggest upset in Grey Cup history, scored on two quarterback sneaks in the second half and Dave Cutler kicked the winning field goal with three seconds left to power Edmonton to an unprecedented fourth straight Canadian Football League championship with a 26-23 victory Sunday over the Ottawa Rough Riders.

Moon, who had endured one of the worst first halves in his career, led Edmonton to three second-half touchdowns and engineered a dramatic drive for midfield to set up Cutler's 27-yard field goal.

But the Rough Riders, who entered the game with the worst record ever held by a Grey Cup contender — 5-11 — and were 22 1/2 point underdogs, gave the Eskimos their biggest playoff score in four years.

Ottawa's transformed wishbone quarterback J.C. Watts engineered a 20-1 halftime lead over the Eskimos before he was at last shut down by Edmonton's superlative veteran defense in the final 30 minutes.

Moon, who completed but one pass in the second quarter, and was relieved at one point by retiring veteran Tom Wilkinson, scored on two one-yard runs in the second half and completed a critical pass to Marco Cyncar for the two-point conversion that tied the game with 4:05 remaining.

After Watts had been unable to move the Riders from deep within their own territory, the Eskimos took over at their own 51:12 left.

The league's most explosive team, despite having lived almost exclusively on its aerial attack while compiling a 14-1-1 record this season, chose to go the cautious ground route to put Cutler into range.

Kansas officially gets Fame bowl bid

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — The Kansas Jayhawks accepted an invitation Sunday to meet Mississippi State in the fifth annual Hall of Fame Bowl on New Year's Eve afternoon, officials said.

The Jayhawks heard bowl officials extend the invitation on a telephone hookup from Birmingham to Lawrence, Kan.

It was all but assured Saturday that Kansas would join the Bulldogs in the Hall of Fame Bowl, but officials met Sunday to make a final decision and officially extend the invitation.

Allison wins race, Waltrip gets crown

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Bobby Allison won the Western 500 stock car race Sunday but Darrell Waltrip captured the 1981 Cup Championship.

Waltrip needed to finish 20th or better to wrap up his first grand national title while Allison had to win and hope mechanical problems would force Waltrip to default. Waltrip finished sixth to capture the title by 53 points over Allison.

Joe Ruffman of Upland, Calif., was second followed by Terry Labonte of Corpus Christi, Texas, Dale Earnhardt of Kannapolis, N.C. and Joe Millikan of Randleman, N.C.

Allison, who won $24,300, led for 57 of the 119 laps around Riverside's 2.6-mile road course, taking the lead for good from Ruttman with only nine laps to go.

World gymnastics meet begins today

MOSCOW (UPI) — East Germany has emerged as the major threat to Soviet supremacy at the 21st World Gymnastics Championships starting today.

Romania's chances of retaining the women's team title it won at Fort Worth, Texas, two years ago have been diminished by the absence of Nadia Comaneci, the 1976 Olympic gold medalist and three-time European champion.

The brilliant 20-year-old, who carved a unique niche in gymnastics history with seven perfect scores in the 1976 Montreal Games, is missing from the Romanian lineup despite being a late addition to the squad here.

Although the Romanians say the reason for Comaneci's absence from the six-member team is insufficient major competition this season, the more likely cause is the history of low marking from judges whenever she has competed in Moscow.

American Tracey Talavera from Eugene, Oregon, is likely to figure in contention after missing out on the 1979 World Championships because she was considered too young.

More than 4,000 gymnasts from 37 countries are competing in the seven-day championships which end Sunday.

Winslow's five TD grabs ties NFL mark

San Diego demolishes Raiders, 55-21

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Kellen Winslow tied an NFL record by catching five touchdowns, passing, Dan Fouts established a club record with six scoring throws and rookie James Brooks piled up 282 all-purpose yards Sunday in leading the San Diego Chargers to a 55-21 rout of the Oakland Raiders.

The victory was San Diego's seventh against five losses and put the Chargers, heavy pre-season favorites to win the AFC title, a game behind Denver and Kansas in the AFC West race. San Diego hosts the Broncos next Sunday with a chance to make up further ground while the Chiefs play Detroit on Thanksgiving.

Winslow, a 6-foot-4 tight end, caught 13 passes for 144 yards. Four of his touchdown catches were from Fouts who had 28 completions for 236 yards and the fifth came on a halfback option pass from Chuck Muncie.

The only other time anyone has scored five TDs on pass receptions was in 1950 when Bob Shaw of the Chicago Cardinals caught that many against the Baltimore Colts.

Besides the four TD throws to Winslow, Fouts connected on a 12-yard throw to Brooks and a 6-yard throw to Charlie Joiner as the Chargers handed the defending Super Bowl champion Raiders their seventh loss against five victories and all but eliminated them from the playoffs.

Brooks, who weighed only 51 and weighs 180 pounds, carried the ball 17 times for 97 yards, caught five passes for 38, returned two punts for 79 and returned two kickoffs for 68 in a dazzling individual performance.

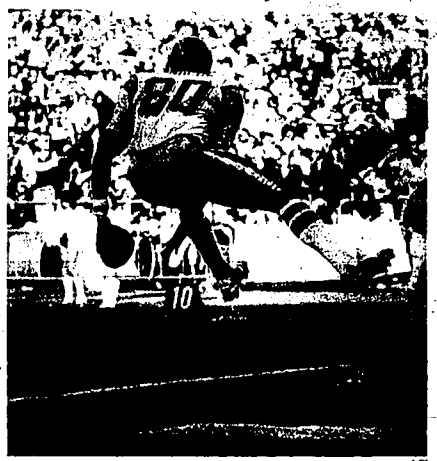

The Chargers came back three times in the first half to take a 28-0 lead and put the game away with three touchdowns in the third quarter.

"Coming back like that showed me this team has a lot of character," San Diego Coach Don Coryell. "It was quite a turnaround from Monday night when we were embarrassed by Seattle."

Raider Coach Tom Flores mirrored the disappointment of his team by saying: "Obviously we're not in very good shape at 5-7 with four to play. We played well against San Diego in the first half, but we couldn't stop them after that. The size of the score tells it all."

Winslow scored a club-record fifth time when he took an option pass from Muncie late in the game.

The Raiders scored their points, all in the first half, on a 66-yard pass from Marc Wilson to Derrick Ramsey, a 2-yard run by Derrick Jensen and a 12-yard run by Wilson.

Sipe's six interceptions doom Browns

CLEVELAND (UPI) — There was not going to be any "Kardiac Kids" finish for the Cleveland Browns Sunday — not if Terry Bradshaw had anything to do with it.

The Steelers kept pace with Cincinnati by defeating the Browns 32-10, who are now four games behind the Bengals with just four left to play.

"Today was the first time in a long time we've had control of the game in the fourth quarter (in Cleveland)," said Bradshaw, who completed 17-of-32 passes for 223 yards and two touchdowns.

The Steelers intercepted Cleveland's Brian Sipe six times — three of them by safety Donnie Shell — but Bradshaw said it wouldn't have been any different without the thefts.

"We still would have won the game. I would have thrown more touchdown passes," he said. Bradshaw had five scoring passes last week against the Atlanta Falcons.

But Coach Chuck Noll did think the interceptions won the game for Steelers, 7-5.

"The story of the game, from our viewpoint, was the way our defense was able to start to take us out," said Noll. "Their turnovers... made up for the mistakes we made-offensively."

Browns' Coach Sam Rutigliano acknowledged the fact his team has almost been eliminated from playoff contention with a 6-7 record, but still was able to talk about defeating Cincinnati.

"The most important thing we can do right now is make sure we stick together and prepare for Cincinnati," he said. "Our job as professionals. Our entire focus is to beat the Bengals and have the best season we can possibly have with the opportunities remaining."

As for the six interceptions, Rutigliano said, "Brian's had some great games for us, but today he had some trouble."

Bradshaw's scoring passes, both in the final period, were one yard to tackle Ray Pinney — the first score and first reception of his five-year career — and five yards to backup running back Rick Moser.

The other Pittsburgh touchdowns came on the ground, a one-yard run by Greg Hawthorne and a three-yard run by Sidney Thornton in the first quarter and a two-yard run by Franco Harris in the third quarter. Pittsburgh kicker David Trout missed the extra point kicks on all three of those scores.

Harris' score was the 83rd rushing touchdown of his career, tying him for second on the all-time list with Green Bay's Jim Taylor. Cleveland's Jim Brown is first with 106.

Harris carried 20 times for 75 yards over the frigid Cleveland turf and now is just three carries shy of breaking O.J. Simpson's all-time mark of 2,404 carries.

The Browns scored all their points in the first half on a 33-yard field goal by Matt Bahr on the opening drive and a 13-yard TD pass from Sipe to Dave Logan late in the second quarter.

Sipe's six interceptions set a club record, breaking the previous mark of four set by Otto Graham and tied by Frank Ryan.

Besides the three passes picked off by Shell, two were intercepted by cornerback Anthony Washington and the other by cornerback Ron Johnson.

Lomax directs Cards to victory over Colts

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Rookie quarterback Neil Lomax, given his second straight starting assignment, led the St. Louis Cardinals to their first back-to-back victories all year Sunday with a 35-24 victory over the listless Baltimore Colts.

Lomax ran for one touchdown and Ottis Anderson scored twice in the win and Cardinal coach Jim Hanftan said Lomax's poise was the key to the victory, the Cardinals fifth against seven losses.

"Neil had a very good day. He was able to make a couple of big plays and he showed the tremendous poise that we know he has. He is able to scramble and he is able to run. He threw the ball pretty well. He was in control for the rest of the year. We made that decision two weeks ago and I've seen nothing that makes me want to change my mind."

Lomax said the coaches "know I need time and that's what I'm getting. I still make a lot of mistakes but I'm starting to pick up the blitzers and read the secondary. And that's what it's all about."

Baltimore, losers of a team-record 11 straight after an opening win against New England, was a subdued team following the defeat.

"Again, it's a game we could have won, but we hurt ourselves. We had too many errors — too many stupid errors — and that's what hurts," Coach Mike McCormack said.

Anderson scored the first Cardinal TD from 4 yards out in the opening moments and added an 11-yard TD in the fourth period. Lomax ran for a score at the end of the first half.

The Cardinals also got TDs on Wayne Morris' 3-yard run in the third quarter and on a 14-yard runback of an intercepted pass by middle linebacker Dave Ahrens.

Baltimore, 1-11, stayed close to the Cardinals, 5-7, throughout the game, but could never take the lead. The Colts scored on a 35-yard run by Curtis Dickey, a 5-yard pass from Bert Jones to Roger Carr, an 8-yard pass to Ray Butler and a 40-yard Mike Wood field goal.

Lomax, who took over for 16-year veteran Jim Hart and led the Cardinals to a 23-0 victory over Buffalo last week, completed 12-of-21 passes for 220 yards. Anderson carried 29 times and gained 130 yards, pushing him over the 1,000 yard mark for his season.

The play of Lomax and Anderson set up the winning touchdown on a 21-yard run with 4:45 to play in the third quarter. On the four-play, 53-yard drive that gave St. Louis a 28-17 lead, Anderson accounted for 20 yards on the ground and Lomax passed to Pat Tilley for 17 yards.

Baltimore had tightened the game to 21-17 with an 81-yard drive to open the second half. Carr was hit four times on the drive, including a TD pass to Carr with 10:35 to play in the third quarter. Baltimore came back again in the waning minutes of the game, hitting Butler on an 8-yard pass with 5:21 to go, cutting the score to 28-24.

Lions, Bucs win NFC Central showdowns

Detroit conquers Bears for first road victory

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Detroit Lions used a 12th player to defeat Dallas last week but to the Chicago Bears' offense Sunday, it must have seemed like twice that many were on the field.

The Lions, staying in contention for an NFC wild-card playoff berth, registered their first road victory after six straight defeats by whipping the Bears 27-7.

Detroit, 5-6, limited Chicago to just 24 yards total offense in handing them their ninth loss in 12 games.

The Bears' output was the lowest in their history, undermining the 66 yards gained against Denver on Dec. 6, 1971.

"It was an outstanding job by the defense, the best we've played all year," said Lions' Coach Monte Clark. "It's good to win on the road for a change."

The Lions thoroughly shut down the Bears' attack, recording seven sacks, intercepting three passes and holding Chicago to four first downs — one in the first half. Chicago, forced to go to the air early, wound up with minus 20 yards passing, completing only 7-of-30 passes.

"We knew after we beat them so badly on Monday night (48-17) that they would be ready so we just prepared that much harder," said cornerback James Hunter, who broke his arm in the initial Lions victory but returned and got the game ball Sunday. "We actually got the shutout, and the secondary covered so well that the line was able to put a lot of pressure."

The only points Chicago could manage was by its defense. Rookie Ted Bell intercepted an Eric Hipple pass and raced 92 yards for a touchdown with 16 seconds left in the first half.

It was a day of frustration for Chicago.

"This is beyond rock bottom," said halfback Walter Payton, who was held to 37 yards in 13 carries. "You can get Tom Landry or Bear Bryant in here and it wouldn't change."

Chicago Coach Neil Armstrong said there was little to be encouraged about in the defeat.

"I didn't see anything good. Our only offense was Todd Bell's interception. What can I say?" Armstrong said. "We looked bad going in and out of the huddle. From there it was all down hill."

Eddie Murray kicked three field goals and quarterback Eric Hipple scored on a 5-yard run to key the Lions attack. Detroit's Billy Sims gained 17 yards in 22 carries and fellow back Rick Kane scored the game's final touchdown on a 2-yard run in the fourth quarter.

Murray, whose last-second field goal helped upset Dallas last week, kicked field goals of 24, 23, and 49 yards in the first half. Murray, who missed a 33-yard attempt in the fourth quarter, has converted on 20-of-27 attempts this year.

The Lions' offense had trouble moving the ball against the Bears but managed to score on Hipple's rollout in the third quarter that gave the Lions a 9-point cushion over the Bears. The Bears were swept by the Lions in their season series for the first time since 1973.

Chicago's offense continually misfired in the contest. Quarterback Vince Evans, who left the game in the third quarter with an injury but returned in the fourth, hit only 4-of-19 passes for 27 yards and was intercepted twice.

Murray kicked the first of his field goals three plays after cornerback James Hunter intercepted an Evans pass and returned it to the Bears' 5. Murray's 24-yard field goal with 1:59 in the first quarter gave the Lions the lead they never relinquished.

The Lions, who enjoyed good field position throughout the half, also benefited from a roughing call to set up Murray's second field goal, a 23-yarder with 10:07 to go in the half.

Long interception return sparks Tampa Bay

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Veteran cornerback Cedric Brown took advantage of a mistake by rookie Green Bay quarterback Rich Campbell Sunday and turned a tight game into a rout with an 81-yard return of a pass interception for a Tampa Bay touchdown.

"We needed a big play," Brown said of his interception on the first play of the second period when the Buccaneers led only 3-0.

"Green Bay was driving and as fortune would have it, I picked it off," he said after the Buccaneers coasted to a 37-3 victory over Green Bay.

"I didn't think I just reacted," Brown said. "I read the quarterback. I don't think he was aware of the full scope of the field and he eyed his receiver."

It was the second straight game in which Brown has scored on a pass interception and he almost had a second one Sunday. He returned another Campbell interception 50 yards to the Packer 35 but was stopped when he cut to the inside instead of the outside.

"I didn't think I could make it, but the linebackers told me I could have if I had cut to the outside. I'll have to look at the films to see," Brown said.

Last week, he scored Tampa Bay's only touchdown in the loss to Denver with a 40-yard interception return.

His only score prior to this year came last season when he went 80 yards after recovering a muffed lateral.

His 81-yard touchdown paved the way for a 24-point second period.

With the Buccaneers leading 3-0 on a 47-yard field goal by Bill Capece, Brown stepped in front of tight end Paul Coffman on the first play of the second period and intercepted Campbell's pass at the 19 and went untouched for the score.

Before the period ended, James Owens broke around left end for a 35-yard touchdown. Doug Williams passed 7 yards to Theo Bell and Capece added a 33-yard field goal.

Capece kicked his third field goal, a 51-yarder, longest in Tampa Bay history, in the fourth period and Chuck Fusina threw his first TD pass as a pro with a 2-yarder to Jimmie Giles in the fourth period.

Green Bay's only score came in the final period when a Stenerud kicked a 53-yard field goal, a record distance for the Packers. Green Bay had driven to the Tampa Bay 22 before being set back to the 35 by the Tampa defense.

The victory snapped a two-game losing streak for Tampa Bay and evened the Buccaneers' record at 6-4. Green Bay's only score came in the fourth period when a Stenerud kicked a 53-yard field goal, a record distance for the Packers. Green Bay had driven to the Tampa Bay 22 before being set back to the 35 by the Tampa defense.

Green Bay had driven to the Tampa Bay 22 before being set back to the 35 by the Tampa defense.

The 37 points by Tampa Bay were the most the Buccaneers have ever scored. Their previous record was 33 against the Chicago Bears in 1978.

Campbell had replaced starting quarterback David Whithurst in the first period when Whithurst went out with a groin injury.

Campbell was frequently harassed by the Tampa Bay defense, and threw four interceptions.

Brown had a 50-yard interception in the final period, setting up the Giles touchdown. Neal Colzie had an interception to set up Capece's second field goal and Johnny Holt intercepted a pass in the third period.

The Packers had a final scoring opportunity in the fourth period when Ricky Bell fumbled after catching a Williams pass and John Anderson recovered and returned the fumble 22 yards to the Tampa 17.

But then Brown stepped in front of Campbell's pass to Terrell Middleton at the 15 and returned it 50 yards to the Packer 35.

Owens carried 16 times for 112 yards.

Williams completed 12-of-23 for 148 yards with one interception. Campbell, a rookie from California, was 15-of-34 for 168 yards.

Time running out for Falcons, who face Vikings tonight

ATLANTA (UPI) — Week after week, the Atlanta Falcons have seen their playoff hopes grow dimmer, but they dreamed on because they still felt time was on their side.

No more. The Falcons (5-6) host the NFC Central Division-leading Minnesota Vikings (7-4) in the NFL's Monday night game and if the Falcons, four-point favorites, should lose again, time will have just about run out.

Going into Sunday's action, the Falcons, who have lost six of their last eight games, were one of seven NFC teams with 5-6 records and battling for what appears to be the lone remaining wildcard berth since Philadelphia or Dallas seems a shoe-in for the other one.

"We still have an opportunity for post season play, but we're going to have to play better than in recent weeks," said Falcons Coach Leeman Bennett. "It has been a frustrating season to this point. There are not that many changes to be made, but we must find a way to win."

The Vikings have won seven of their last nine games, the last two in a row while depending mainly on the passing of Tommy Kramer, who has been throwing about 40 times a game while completing 205 of 375 for 2,596 yards and 18 touchdowns.

That should turn tonight's clash into a wide-open aerial duel since Atlanta's Steve Bartkowski has been throwing at a pretty good rate himself, completing 206 of 383 for 2,726 yards and an NFL-leading 24 touchdowns.

"Minnesota is a team that knows how to win and does it week after week," he said. "We know how tough the Vikings are. Coach (Bud) Grant seems to have his team playing the best he has in several years and we will have to play up to their level in order to win."

"Obviously, their passing game is a concern to us," said Bennett. "They had a great deal of success passing the last time we played (in last season's opener when the Vikings won, 24-23, on a last-minute field goal) and seem to be able to pass regardless of the opponent."

The Falcons hope to be able to use two offensive line starters — Warren Bryant (tigh) and Dave Scott (knee) — who were unable to play last week against Pittsburgh. Rookie John Scully may be at center for veteran Jeff Van Note (calf). The Falcons also hope to be able to use linebacker Joel Williams (knee). Williams completed 12-of-23 for 148 yards with one interception. Campbell, a rookie from California, was 15-of-34 for 168 yards.

Girl complains of discrimination to Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A girl who wanted to play basketball on the sixth grade boys team at a suburban Chicago junior high school is pursuing an important sex discrimination case all the way to the Supreme Court.

Battling the long odds against a high court move to review her case is 4-foot-11 Karen O'Connor, whose lawyer is urging the justices to decide whether school boards may have "separate but equal" athletic teams for boys and girls in contact sports.

It all started in August 1980, when Karen's father, Joseph O'Connor, asked that she be permitted to try out for the boys' basketball team. At the time, she was an 11-year-old sixth grader at MacArthur Junior High School in Prospect Heights School District No. 23.

Her abilities later prompted a federal appeals court to note, "Karen is a good athlete; a professional basketball coach who observed her play rated her ability as equal to or better than a female high school sophomore and equal to that of a male eighth-grade player."

The school is a part of an athletic association of six junior highs, and conference rules require separate teams for boys and girls in contact sports, including basketball.

By October 1980, the school board rejected the request and suggested she try out for the girls' team.

Represented by her parents, Karen filed suit. A federal judge ruled in her favor, finding the separation violated her fundamental "right to develop."

But the board convinced the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago to block the ruling. Her parents then asked Supreme Court Justice John Paul Stevens to allow implementation of the district judge's decision.

Stevens declined. "Without a gender-based classification in competitive contact sports, there would be a substantial risk that boys would dominate the girls' programs," he said.

So Karen was not allowed to try out for the boys' team, and she decided not to play on the girls' team.

The appeals court got around to a full review of the case last April 10, when it ruled "separate but equal teams" for boys and girls are not necessarily unconstitutional.

It agreed that the school board's goal of encouraging female students to participate in interscholastic basketball is best achieved by having a separate girls squad. The court also rejected the idea that Karen has a "fundamental right to develop."

Karen's appeal to the Supreme Court asserts, "The exceptional female athlete who would rather compete against men is relegated to a less competitive, sex-segregated team."

It also contends there is "neither a factual nor a legal basis for the school board's argument that allowing girls to play on boys teams would force officials to permit boys to play on — and possibly dominate — girls teams."

anyone interested in studying the game?"

Oswald: "Kelsey starts by showing the value of planning your play before playing to the first trick. We use the acronym 'ARCH' to cover what you study."

Alan: "In today's hand South can wrap up four no-trump and make five on a diamond lead. Unfortunately, North will be no-trump declarer and a diamond lead would give the defense the first six tricks."

Oswald: "Review of the bidding tells you that you must try to keep East from gaining the lead so you should find out that your only good line of play is to duck that first heart."

Alan: "West can do no better than to continue. Then you discard two spades on the top hearts, play dummy's ace of spades, ruff a spade high, back to dummy with the eight of trumps, ruff any other spade, back to dummy with jack of trumps, ruff one again with the king of clubs and you discard one diamond on the last spade."

Oswald: "Expert play, but you can be an expert if you plan things at trick one."
