Autos snarl roads

Abandon ship

By The Times-News and United Press International

Motorists unwilling to yield to officially or unofficially closed roads left abandoned vehicles scattered throughout the area Christmas Day.

The effect was to hamper snow removal efforts, area law enforcement agencies reported Sunday.

The continued severe weather, light snow fall combined with heavy blowing and low temperatures, resulted in major state highways and lesser-traveled county roads being closed from drifting conditions.

Included among the closures were U.S. Highway 93 between Jerome and Halley and U.S. Highway 20 between Mountain Home and Fairfield, Idaho State Police said Sunday afternoon.

Plows were reported operating on both Twin Falls city and Twin Falls Highway District streets and roads Christmas day.

Several drivers bypassed the barricades closing Highway 93 to northbound traffic and were forced to abandon their cars further up the road, a state police spokeswoman said.

Other motorists abandoned their vehicles in the snow drifts that blocked many Twin Falls County roads. Those drivers would do best to begin the search for their vehicles with the county impound yard, a sheriff's office spokesman said Sunday.

The spokesman said it becomes necessary to abandon a vehicle, the driver should either leave a note on the vehicle or notify the sheriff's office of the vehicle's location and where the owner can be contacted.

Those roads that remained open, including Interstate Highway 84 and Highway 93 south to Nevada, were for the most part snow-covered and slick, state police reported.

Traveler advisories were in effect for all of Southern Idaho and the Magic Valley. The National Weather Service predicted snow or freezing rain in all Southern Idaho locations Sunday night with a chance of freezing rain Monday.

For the Camas Prairie and lower Wood River Valley the weather service predicted an additional three to five inches of snow, with temperatures in the teens and continued blowing and drifting conditions.

North of the Magic Valley, thick layers of ice clogging the Salmon River caused minor flooding at several central Idaho farms Sunday, while blizzard conditions prompted road closures at other locations around the state.

The National Weather Service reported the Salmon River neared its flood stage of seven feet by early Sunday afternoon, causing water to spill onto several farms near the town of Salmon.

But a Lemhi County dispatcher said the flooding was confined to one or two farms and did not appear to pose a threat to city residents.

Early settlers bypassed our valley

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Compared to the rest of the nation's settlement, Idaho in general and the Magic Valley in particular might appropriately be considered farther west than the Pacific coast, says College of Southern Idaho historian Larry Quinn.

Westward expansion and migration in the 19th century effectively bypassed both the state and the eight-county area. Instead, development in southeastern Idaho had to wait for the "wash-back" effect, the settling of various interior regions of the nation after the 1800s when the first wave of settlement ended.

Historical records of the valley's settlement reflect immigration by people from Pacific Coast states, as well as from within Idaho and other states, Quinn says.

Of the first 1,000 entrymen on the Twin Falls canal system, about 45 percent came from states west of Idaho and almost 27 percent came from within Idaho, Illinois, the only eastern state contributing significantly to the first settlement, accounted for 5.2 percent, Quinn says.

The 78 years of growth since completion of the Milner Dam in 1905 has given the valley its irrigated agriculture and modern economy, but the region had been at least sparsely settled by white trappers, traders and ranchers for a hundred years before that.

And if the entire 15,000 to 30,000 year period of human habitation in the valley were figured as one day, the period since 1905 would represent only about five minutes.

The first confirmed inhabitants of the area, and among the first in North America, lived about 14,500 years ago in a cave on Wilson Butte, northeast of Eden, says Quinn. In more modern times, two tribes of American Indians, the Shoshone and the Bannock, inhabited the area, his studies show.

By the late 1700s, Indians in the valley were already affected by the distant white cultures on both coasts.

using horses originating from stock introduced by Europeans.

The Wilson Price Hunt expedition crossed the region in 1811 and found a society and economy already at a much higher standard of living than what would have been witnessed in the period before the horse.

The horse facilitated the hunting of larger game animals and allowed tribes to live in larger communities and to carry their possessions more easily to different areas of the valley with the availability of food, Quinn states.

The Hunt expedition, employed by the Pacific Fur Company, opened up the valley to a short-lived fur industry, Quinn's study suggests. Although the fur industry was never one of great magnitude in high desert regions, it maintained Caucasian presence in the area until the great westward migration began along the Oregon Trail in 1842, he states.

During the trail's use to the mid-1850s, the Magic Valley gave rise to several parts of the area economy. Two were ranching and mining.

The first mining claim in what is now Blaine County was filed in 1863, and by 1864 settlements included Halley, Ladysburg (now Pocatello), Corral, Toppin (now part of Gooding), Bliss, Leadville (now Ketchum), Bellevue and several others that had become ghost towns by 1917, according to Quinn's study.

Town pitches in, aids stranded holiday travelers

By United Press International

Hundreds of travelers stranded by snowdrifts in northeast Ohio found the Christmas spirit alive in the churches and homes of Kingsville residents who gave them refuge.

Residents of the small northeast Ohio town offered shelter and hot meals to about 300 travelers stranded after gale-force winds formed snowdrifts that closed Interstate 90 between Cleveland and Erie, Pa.

They were first taken to two churches where they ate soup and sandwiches. Kingsville, with a population of 1,100, is about 10 miles from the Pennsylvania border in northeast Ohio.

Charles Ring, 30, Maistlin, Ohio, his wife Mary, 30, daughters Rebecca, 4, Jannah, 6, and son Charles Jr., 10 months, found refuge at the home of Ruth Ann Reed.

"We were on our way to Erie to visit our parents when the wind literally blew my car off the road and it slid into a ravine," said Ring. "It seemed we had just come to the bottom of the ravine when a sheriff's car arrived. They took my wife and children to a church, then came back and pulled me out."

"It's just remarkable what the people in this town have done on such short notice to help everybody," he said.

"There's been donations of food. Some people got up and started cooking just about everything. Turkeys, spaghetti, sloppy joes," said Ms. Reed.

"The people in this town are like this year round, generous, but I guess Christmas makes it a little special," said David Hawn, captain of the Kingsville Volunteer Fire Department.

An estimated 5,000 to 6,000 people were expected to consume 2,000 pounds of turkey and trimmings in an Oklahoma City tradition — the Red Andrews Christmas Dinner.

Ed Hardy, a spokesman for the event in the downtown area, said the 1,000 or more children attending the dinner would "receive a toy from Santa Claus."

In Detroit, Lance Cpl Eddie DiFranco, 21, who survived the terrorist bombing of the Marine barracks in Beirut, spent Christmas with his wife Carol, 20, and their parents.

DiFranco, who was looking forward to a dinner of ravioli, said Christmas for him began three weeks ago when he and his wife were reunited at Camp LeJeune, N.C.

Police blame IRA for another London bombing

By ARTHUR HERMAN
United Press International

LONDON — A bomb believed to be planted by Irish terrorists exploded late Sunday, blowing out windows in London's popular Oxford Street shopping district and injuring two people, police said.

"A flash went off," said Rakinder Kochar, an Indian national who was one of those injured. "Suddenly glass splashed on top of us."

A police spokeswoman said no warning was given for the bomb, which went off in a trash can on Orchard Street, just off Oxford Street near the Selfridges department store. Officers were examining another device found in nearby Portman Square to determine if it, too, was a bomb.

"With most people at home on Christmas, the streets were practically deserted and that seems to be why only those two passersby were slightly hurt," one officer said.

The entire Oxford-Street area of central London was cordoned off by police searching for more bombs and some apartments were temporarily evacuated. The searches were to go on through the night.

No group immediately took responsibility for the blast and Commander Bill Huckleby of the anti-terrorist squad said it was "too soon to say definitely the Irish Republican Army carried out the bombing.

"But indications are that they (the IRA) were responsible." We think the device was in place in order to let us know that they are still there," he said.

The blast came eight days after the IRA killed six people in a bombing at Harrod's department store and police said Sunday's bomb could be a warning from the IRA that their bloody

Intense battle marks Beirut Christmas

By DANIELA IACONO
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Artillery and rocket battles engulfed the southern suburbs of Beirut Sunday, killing at least 18 people. It was the fiercest fighting in months between government troops and Muslim militias.

Gunmen opened fire on positions of U.S. Marines near Beirut Airport, putting them on their highest alert just 30 minutes after comedian Bob Hope left the base, where he gave an unexpected Christmas show for the 1,200 U.S. troops.

"There's fighting all around us, interrupting our Christmas parties," Marine spokesman Maj. Dennis Brooks said. "They're not celebrating Christmas, that's for sure. There were no U.S. casualties, the spokesman said.

The fighting erupted Christmas Eve when Amal Shilte Muslim militiamen attacked positions on eastern edge of the Sabra and Chatila refugee camps that had been vacated earlier by French troops and turned over to the Lebanese army.

A hospital near the battle zone reported 8 dead and 10 wounded. The Muslim Marabittou radio station reported at least 50 dead in the clashes in Beirut's southern suburbs. The report could not be independently confirmed.

A cease-fire took partial effect at dusk after fierce daylong fighting along a 1.5 mile stretch from the northern edge of the Shilte suburbs to the U.S. Marines to the south.

Late in the evening, a gunman threw a hand grenade in the direction of a French troop checkpoint on a bridge linking the two halves of the capital, state-run Beirut radio said.

The grenade wounded a Lebanese soldier who was joining the French in manning the checkpoint.

A resident said tanks heavily damaged an eight-story building housing militia emplacements with flames erupting in the first five floors.

The Amal and the Lebanese

Army are firing at each other in some of the most fighting in months," said a spokesman for the Italian peace-keeping force, which had two soldiers slightly wounded in Christmas Eve clashes.

"We're smack in the middle," the Italian spokesman said. Machine gun, rocket and artillery fire crashed into the southern suburbs despite a vow by the Lebanese army to "destroy any position which opens fire" on its forces.

"In the southern suburbs, everyone is in their shelters, the place is crawling with gunmen. Several huge fires have started," said a Lebanese photographer on the scene.

With gunfire within earshot and smoke rising from the war-torn city, Hope helicoptered from American warships off the coast to the U.S. Marine base, cracking jokes and carrying a camouflaged "combat" golf club.

Greeted by Brig. Gen. James Joy, Hope asked the Marine commander, if he cared to join him in a game of golf on the flat, dusty base. "Will you play me a back nine? I've heard there are a lot of holes out there."

The comedian donned a keffiyeh, an Arab headdress usually associated by the Marines with the gunmen beyond their base, and gave a short live television presentation for troops on the frontline in their platoon club.

The performance was shown throughout the day on video tape along with the world premiere of a new movie, "Hard Knox," in which Robert Conrad plays a Marine colonel.

The comedian stayed some 80 minutes in the inner area of the base before traveling by helicopter back to the U.S. ships offshore.

Israeli paratroopers moved into the southern port city of Sidon to replace Israel's border police. A curfew has been imposed in the area after guerrilla attacks in the last two weeks left one Israeli soldier dead and five others wounded.

Cold helps reduce death toll

By United Press International

Bitter cold kept many motorists home Christmas Day and safety officials hoped for a low overall death toll. At least 115 people had died, including two Minnesotans killed in a 12-vehicle pileup, in holiday traffic accidents.

The National Safety Council had predicted 300 to 400 deaths and 14,000 to 19,000 disabling injuries before the holiday season, according to a spokesman.

There were 346 deaths and 16,100 serious injuries during the holiday weekend.

A United Press International count Sunday showed at least 115 traffic deaths since the Christmas weekend began at 6 p.m. Friday. Texas reported the highest number of deaths at 17, California followed with 16 and Florida had eight.

South Carolina had six auto fatalities, followed by North Carolina, Oklahoma and Virginia with five fatalities in each state.

Soviets deny Santa's existence

MOSCOW (UPI) — There is no Santa Claus, Tass said Sunday.

"In December every year U.S. post offices receive tens of thousands of letters which they cannot deliver," the official news agency said. "All of them are addressed to Santa Claus by children who tell him their wishes and dreams."

Many of the letters contain appeals for money or food, Tass said, "appeals for help addressed to the non-existent Santa Claus."

The pleas for food and money are "not amazing for the country whose government turned their backs on 9.9 million unemployed people and do virtually nothing to alleviate the plight of hundreds of thousands of homeless and hungry," Tass said.

President Reagan's Christmas speech claiming his administration protects the needy from hunger and cold and tries to ensure food was just another example of his hypocrisy, Tass said.

Iraqi missile kills eight

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — An Iraqi missile slammed into homes in the southern Iranian city of Masjed Soleyman Sunday, killing at least eight civilians and wounding 91 others, the official Iranian news agency said.

"This attack also resulted in the partial or complete destruction of 20 homes," the Islamic Republic News Agency said in a dispatch from Tehran.

IRNA said eight civilians died and 91 were wounded and 92 others were continuing to find more possible victims of the Iraqi attack.

An Iraqi military communique issued in Baghdad said the Iranians shelled the frontier cities of Mandali, Sayed Sadek and Shehabeli with heavy artillery.

The communique said the Iranian shelling killed one citizen and wounded six others, among them a woman.

The Iraqi communique also said Iranian anti-aircraft batteries accidentally hit and downed an Iranian plane. There was no report from Iran on the incident.

Pigs grace pinup calendar

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — If you didn't find a Pigs of Nebraska calendar under the tree, chances are you won't be able to get one.

Eric and Barbara Byrth of Birch have sold 3,000 copies of their swine calendars at $3.95 a crack since September, and are finished with the business for now.

Byrth, a professional photographer in Pirch, decided to spoof the Men of Nebraska and Women of Nebraska calendars by photographing pigs in their natural habitats — barnyards and pigpens.

After the media picked up on the story, the Byrths received so many calls they had to take the phone off the hook for a time to enjoy a quiet meal together.

Mrs. Byrth said for a time her husband wanted to stop the whole business so they could regain their privacy, but she talked him into holding on, telling him it was only a fad.

Grizzly bear census coming

DUBOIS, Wyo. (UPI) — The chairman of the grizzly bear census committee for the Wyoming Outfitters and Guides Association says data may be collected and findings released to the public by early February.

Don Randall said outfitters in the Jackson and Cody areas are most affected by government actions taken to protect the grizzly bear.

He recently said some outfitters in the Dubois and Jackson areas had responded to the survey, and he expected some data from Idaho outfitters along the west slope of the Teton range.

The information the committee is collecting concerns sightings of grizzly bears during the 1983 season.

He said they originally expected "a little bit better" response, but he is afraid ranchers and outfitters withheld some information out of fear of problems if too much becomes known about the grizzly bear.

Salvadorans suffer violence

United Press International

Christmas Day combat raged in eastern El Salvador between government troops and leftist rebels, and a top Roman Catholic priest said Sunday that nearly 7,000 people died in "blind violence" during the past year in the country.

"It is almost odd to die of natural causes in this country," said Auxiliary Archbishop Gregorio Rosa Chavez. "What a sad balance."

Rosa Chavez, in his Christmas Day sermon at Metropolitan Cathedral in San Salvador, also said the church recorded 921 "denunciations of captures" from Jan. 1 to Dec. 15, mostly made by family members.

China allows tribute to Mao

PEKING (UPI) — China is planning a grand celebration this week to mark Mao Tse-tung's 90th birthday but at the same time has taken away his exclusive memorial and noted the chairman made "grave mistakes" in his later years.

The nationwide observance Monday will feature rallies, seminars on Mao, the sale of Mao commemorative stamps and his collected works and memorial services led by senior Chinese leaders.

brought a small flock of sheep to the Idaho rangelands near Boise and later moved his animals into the Big Wood River Country where he hoped to find a market among the miners," Quinn states.

In 1883, the Oregon Short Line Railroad reached Shoshone and was completed through to Huntington, Ore. a year later. A spur was built into the Wood-River-Valley to service the mining district.

In 1872, "A.J. 'Barley' Harrell, the first rich Californian to invade the valley, crossed the Goose Creek Mountains with between 3,000 and 4,000 head of cattle which he planned to range in the mountains for the summer, before taking them to market," Quinn writes.

These developments led to strife among competing interests — "miner against miner, cattleman against sheepman and white man against Indian," Quinn writes.

Conflict between Caucasians and Indians erupted violently in 1878 in the Bannock War after the Indians claim by treaty to the Camas Prairie had been violated by Caucasians.

Overgrazing, infestation of insects and a particularly hard winter in 1889 resulted in a near bust of both sheep and cattle industries in the valley.

But the valley's fortunes were far from over. The "busting" of the early basic industries.

In 1894, the first vital link in the chain of events that was to turn the Magic Valley over to irrigated agriculture occurred — when Sen. Joseph M. Carey of Wyoming sponsored legislation to open millions of acres of federal western land.

Seeing the potential of the Carey Act, I.B. Ferrine filed two water rights in 1900, each for 3,000 cubic feet per second, on the north and south sides of the Snake River at the site of Milner Dam. In 1901, the federal government granted Ferrine's company, The Twin Falls Land and Water Co., 270,000 acres for reclamation.

Four years later, on March 1, 1905 the gates of the new Milner Dam were closed — and the first large-scale irrigation project in the Magic Valley began.

In the Magic Valley communities upstream of Milner, irrigation water became available with the completion of Mindokota Dam in 1906 and the Oakley Reservoir in 1913.

With the availability of irrigation water more than 31,000 new residents poured in by 1910 — a 233 percent increase in Magic Valley population from 1900, according to census figures.

Another 32,000 new residents arrived in the next decade in the eight-county area — a 78 percent increase over the 1910 population. In the period between 1900 and 1920 the valley population had increased almost to more than six and one-half times the pre-Milner Dam level.

After this initial surge in population, immigration leveled off during the 1920s as the area's agricultural economy suffered with farmers nationwide in the first symptoms of an impending national depression.

There was another upsurge in valley population again in the 1930s, with 15,000 new residents coming into the eight counties. Gradual growth continued for 30 years, through World War II, the beginnings of the national Idaho potato industry and the processed foods markets.

In the 1960s, population again leveled off, this time at more than 100,000 residents in the eight-county area. But by 1980, another upsurge was underway.

The 1980 Census showed a sharp increase of 30,000 persons, perhaps signaling a new era of rapid population growth.

A 1978 study by the Idaho Department of Water Resources and Boise State University predicted the population of the eight-county area will increase to nearly 160,000 persons by 1990 and to almost 190,000 persons by the year 2,000.

Today's weather

Freezing rain prompts travel advisory

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:

Freezing rains are likely Monday morning, and travelers advisory remains in effect for all of Southern Idaho. Otherwise, expect cloudy conditions with scattered snow showers. Highs in the mid 30's; lows 20 to 25.

Camas Prairie, Halley and lower Wood River Valley:

Continued winter storm warnings, with lows in the mid 20s and a chance of freezing rain Monday. Highs 25 to 35; lows Monday night in the mid-tens.

Northern Nevada and Utah:

Cloudy skies with scattered rain and snow showers are expected for northern Nevada today and Tuesday. Lows in the mid 30s; highs are expected to be in the upper 40s.

Northern Utah should have periods of snow Monday and Tuesday. But a slight warming trend is expected, bringing the expected precipitation to freezing rain. In southern Utah, heavy snowfall is expected at altitudes above 6,000 feet. Lows in the 20s to 30s in the north possibly to 40 in the south.

Synopsis:

Warm and moist Pacific air borne by southerly winds aloft is riding up over the dome of cold air that has been over Idaho for the past several days. The air aloft over the state is rapidly warming and is near or above the freezing mark at the top of the mountains. The warmer air aloft could bring a few areas of freezing rain aloft.

The freezing rain could make road conditions even more hazardous than have been experienced this holiday weekend and travelers are advised to continue monitoring weather and road reports.

Near blizzard conditions were reported at Soda Springs Sunday. Strong winds near Strevell, Utah, have made road conditions treacherous between Burley and Salt Lake City.

The extended forecast through Friday calls for continued cold with periods of snow, particularly towards Friday. Highs on Wednesday 5 to 20 warming to 20 to 30 by Friday.

Winds Tuesday with highs expected in the mid 20s and a chance of snow showers.

Andropov may lead session

MOSCOW (UPI) — This week's semi-annual meetings of the Communist Party Central Committee and the Soviet Legislature that rubberstamps its decisions may bring the first public appearance since August by President Yuri Andropov.

Western diplomats expect the ailing, 69-year-old Kremlin leader to attend both the closed-door party plenum Monday or Tuesday and a two-day session of the Supreme Soviet beginning Wednesday.

With government affairs having been routinely conducted "in Andropov's name" for four months, experts now say his attendance at the meetings is not mandatory nor will his absence automatically signal the end of his leadership.

"There is good reason to believe he is doing a few hours' work every day but that doesn't mean he will be able to present through the whole plenum or Supreme Soviet," said a Western diplomat.

"It's natural for Western attention to focus on Andropov's health but that is not so important in evaluating Soviet policies," the diplomat said.

"Things are going on whether he is in good or bad health. There is an established apparatus.... The collective leadership (of the ruling Politburo) seems to work."

Diplomats say results of the plenum could range from a Politburo shake-up led by Andropov's retirement for reasons of health to a quiet session in which no major personnel changes occur. "It's all guesswork," said one diplomat.

Famed modern painter dead at 90

PALMA DE MAJORCA, Spain (UPI) — Painter Joan Miro, one of the world's most regarded modern artists, died Sunday after a month-long illness, his family said. He was 90.

Miro, best known for the brightly colored abstract paintings he did in his later years of his career, died surrounded by family and friends who spent Christmas Day at his bedside.

He had been confined to bed at his 200-year-old stone farmhouse outside of Palma de Majorca since he went home after spending five days in the hospital in early December.

The painter had been suffering from respiratory and heart problems. He had been wearing a pacemaker since a heart attack in January 1982.

Miro lived and worked on the Mediterranean island of Majorca for his last quarter-century, painting eight or nine hours every day in a studio overlooking the Bay of Palma and the old city.

Not even his wife Pilar dared set foot in the studio when the master was working. Rumor had it he once heaved a paint can at a thoughtless intruder.

"I always work alone," he said. "No one can come in when I am working. I need peace and quiet."

Asked what he considered his contribution to art, Miro once replied, "Working and struggling day after day without rest. All I have done in my life has been to work like a gardener. I don't know how to be inactive."

Pope pleads for end to world arms race

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II voiced an impassioned Christmas appeal Sunday for an end to the arms race that steals bread from the hungry and makes "ever more threatening the clouds gathering on the horizon of humanity."

and the World message televised to 35 nations, the pontiff spoke of sober political and social realities as well as of Christmas joy.

"Look upon the unspeakable sorrow of parents witnessing the agony of their children imploring them for that bread which they have not got but which could be obtained with even a tiny part of the sums poured out on sophisticated means of destruction, which make ever more threatening the clouds gathering on the horizon of humanity."

The pope, speaking from the main balcony of St. Peter's Basilica to some 80,000 pilgrims, delivered Christmas greetings in 43 languages, including English, Russian, Swahili, Chinese, Arabic, Bulgarian and his native Polish.

In his "Urbi et Orbi" (To the City

The pilgrims, gathered in St. Peter's Square in mild but overcast weather, broke into applause as the pope prayed for "the men and women who are dying of hunger while enormous sums are being spent on weapons."

Dressed in white vestments with a gold-trimmed white mitre on his head, the pope raised his voice to a hoarse shout to say:

John Paul called for dialogue to end world tensions for help to the developing peoples, to the unemployed, to exiles, and to those whose "fundamental rights (are) trampled upon."

Other views Castration is wrong

In a spectacular effort to follow Gilbert & Sullivan's dictum and "make the punishment fit the crime," a South Carolina judge has given three convicted rapists a choice between castration and a 30-year prison term. The three men may never have to choose because they have appealed their case to the state Supreme Court and it is possible that the castration option will be set aside because of the Constitution's ban on "cruel and unusual punishment." But regardless of the outcome, the issues raised by this case are likely to continue to reverberate.

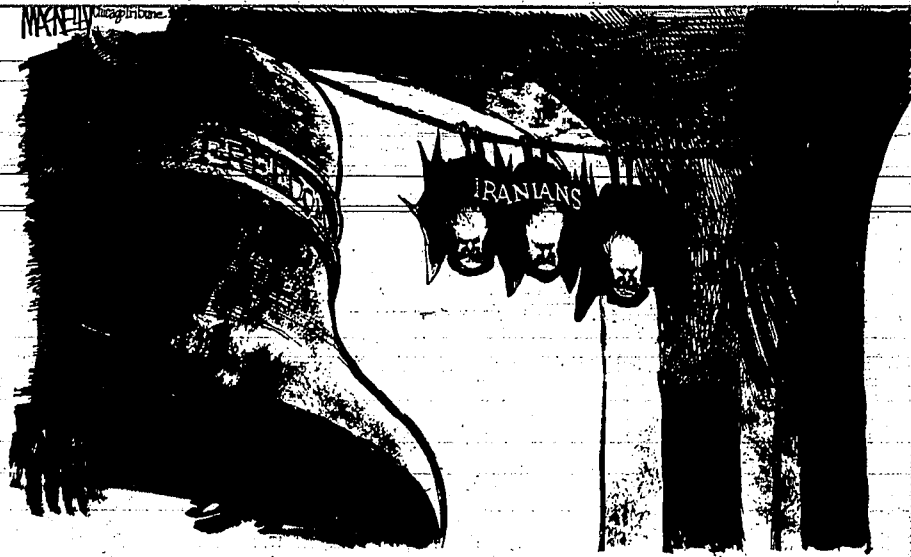

Rape is not primarily a sexual act, although it has a sexual component. It is essentially an act of violence and usually indicates that the rapist is a deeply disturbed individual. Unfortunately, prison rehabilitation programs for sexual offenders do not have an encouraging record of success.

Every woman who reads of a rape case thinks, "There but for the grace of God go I." Many men mindful of their own wives and daughters share these feelings of fear and loathing. No crime, with the possible exception of murder, arouses such an impassioned response on the part of victims, their families and the general public. This response explains the considerable public support for severe penalties such as the sentence imposed in the South Carolina case.

But the law must remain a stranger to passion: That is what distinguishes a civilized society from a barbaric one. Human beings have gradually come to recognize that public hangings, torture, flogging and mutilation degrade those who impose such penalties as well as those who suffer them: They are degrading because they evoke, directly or vicariously, the same violent passions as produced the original crimes. The formal rules of law sit, intended, in part, to hedge in those impulses to violence and to substitute justice for revenge.

Unless and until some reliable methods of rehabilitation for rapists is developed, society can only resort to long-term incarceration of offenders. The new and welcome recognition of the true nature and seriousness of rape must not lead society back down the dark byways of blood feuds and retribution.

Bats in the Belfry

Reagan's harsh rhetoric home to roost

WASHINGTON — President Reagan seems to be at the peak of his political popularity, a show-in for re-election even in the eyes of many Democrats.

Yet at the same time, the Reagan presidency also seems to be more troubled than ever before. The perils of very unstable conditions in areas where Reagan has made some commitment abroad — Latin America, and particularly the Middle East — are coming home to roost.

These tense situations — plus the general deterioration of U.S.-Soviet relations, including the impasse in arms and troop reduction talks in Geneva and Vienna — have brought more than a third of U.S. citizens to place "fear of war" above unemployment and other economic ills as the source of their greatest worry, according to the Gallup Poll. Thirty-six percent of those surveyed most recently cited the fear of war, dropping to unemployment to second place at 32 percent.

Until a few months ago, Reagan had had a relatively free ride on overseas matters. His job approval ratings and personal popularity still seem remarkably insulated from the increasing fears of the populace.

But there is a growing apprehension in the high councils of the Reagan campaign organization that the president's determination to keep U.S. Marines in Lebanon is a time bomb under his currently formidable candidacy. According to this strategic assessment, of 100 scenarios which might be imagined for events in Lebanon over the coming year, 95 could be politically damaging to Reagan's chances. Some of these, such as another incident costing the lives of a large number of Marines, could be disastrous.

Among the hard lessons Reagan has begun to learn, after arriving in the Oval Office with no real experience in foreign affairs, is that strong rhetoric — though it may feel good at the time — can come back to haunt him later.

Within the first week of his administration, Reagan had the heavy experience of welcoming home the hostages who had been held captive for over a year in Iran. He said, in effect, that they would not have been allowed to languish so long under a Reagan administration.

"Let terrorists be aware that when the rules of international behavior are violated, our policy will be one of swift and effective retribution," he said at the White House ceremony for the hostages. Reagan echoed these words, pledging retaliation, immediately after the Oct. 23 terrorist truck-bomb explosion that killed 24 U.S. servicemen in Lebanon.

But, as anyone experienced in foreign affairs could have predicted, these statements have turned out to be rash promises that the United States cannot make good on — at least not without paying an unacceptably high price in diplomacy, and very possibly in the additional loss of U.S. lives as well.

It seems that no one in the U.S. government knows for sure which band of guerrillas bombed the Marines. Even those who are pretty well convinced they were Iranian terrorists in Lebanon have been hard put to propose how to find them and get back at them without severely heating up the violence in Lebanon, which long-term U.S. policy seeks to cool. Retains who were tried later when bombers were sent to punish Syrians who had fired on unarmed U.S. reconnaissance planes. But two of the attacking planes were shot down, a pilot was killed, and a survivor is being held by the Syrians — who say they won't release him until the U.S. "peacekeeping" force leaves Lebanon.

That sounds very much like a hostage situation, the kind of thing Reagan had said he wouldn't put up with on his watch. But since there is no acceptable way to get Lt. Robert Goodman out except as part of the overall Middle East negotiations, the rhetoric suddenly has become much softer. Twice at his press conference this past week, Reagan was asked whether Goodman is a hostage. Twice he waffled, and did not answer the question.

Uncle Ron didn't get us everything on our Christmas list

RONALD REAGAN
Stressing the positive

WASHINGTON — One of the problems with Christmas is that having gotten everything we said we wanted, we find that we didn't want them all that much and that what we really wanted is a whole bunch of other things. It is more of a problem for the other 364 days.

At the top of the list of things we wanted when President Jimmy Carter and candidate Ronald Reagan were fighting for the job in 1980 was an end to inflation. Essentially, we got it. Were we happy? No, we wanted a whole bunch of other things.

A little over a year ago, when all the representatives and a third of the senators were fighting for their jobs, what we wanted more than anything was an end to the recession and an increase in employment. Essentially, we have gotten it. Are we happy? No, we want a whole bunch of other things.

This past week, President Reagan held a press conference. He presented his Christmas gift to the nation: "1983 has been a banner year for the American economy, with the United States economy enjoying a strong recovery and its lowest rate of inflation since the 1960s."

"Wholesale prices last month actually fell.

Otis Pike

Consumers are flocking into stores during the holiday season; our factories are operating at nearly 80 percent of capacity, up more than 10 percentage points from a year ago.

Unemployment is still too high, but there are more people working in this country today than ever before, and every month we're creating over 300,000 new jobs."

There it was — almost everything we had said we wanted most in the world, neatly packaged and handed to us just in time for Christmas.

No one said, "Thank you, Uncle Ronald." No one even mentioned it. Thirty questions were addressed to the president that night, and not one of them about the economy. Having gotten almost everything we asked for, it's not what we wanted at all. We want a whole bunch of other things.

We want to get our troops out of Beirut and the morass of Lebanon. We want to blame somebody for the death of our Marines there. We want the communists to lose in El Salvador. We want the right wing death squads to lose in El Salvador.

We want the White House and the Capitol to be secure from terrorists, but we don't want to keep people out.

There was a question on his running for re-election that began: "You have completely alienated blacks by your assault on the gains for justice and progress by them in the past. You're ignoring the needs and wishes of Hispanics. You cut programs that benefit the poor and you're against equal rights for women." After that wholly objective reportorial buildup, finally came the question, "So do you think you'll have enough white males to win..."

Reagan was asked about a comment made by Secretary of State George P. Shultz that "in World War II reporters went along because, on the whole, they were on our side. And then he observed that these days it always seems that the reporters are always against us and they're trying to report things to screw things up. Is that your view of the press also?" Reagan didn't exactly say "yes," but he didn't exactly say "no," either. He didn't have to say anything — the questions spoke for the questioners.

Every officeholder feels obliged to portray his or her stewardship in favorable terms. Every candidate seeking to take that office away tries to portray it in the worst possible terms. The press should be halfway between, but in fact acts more like opposition candidates.

Since no one else would ask me, Mr. President, I have a question about the economy. You say we are creating 300,000 new jobs a month. That comes to 3.6 million new jobs a year. If our $200 billion annual deficit is to keep our economy moving and create jobs, shouldn't we be able to create 10 million $20,000-a-year jobs, or 5 million $40,000-a-year jobs, for $200 billion?

I have left pollsters and joined the press and can carp just as much about what Uncle Ron gave me for Christmas as the next guy.

Otis Pike, a former congressman, writes for Newhouse News Service.

Columnist's defiance shows the positive side of the press

RUPERT MURDOCH
Cesspool Journalism

The body of public opinion seems to have entered another of those periods wherein the folks of the press are viewed with distaste. I'm sure you've heard about it. It's been in all the papers.

Those of us in this business get used to being viewed as social pariahs. It's just a part of the job.

For instance, my mother to this day refuses to tell her friends what I do. When asked, she simply tells them I am in prison.

On the grand scale of social esteem, newspaper people are generally ranked just below thieves and cutpurses and just above congressmen. That's just the way it is.

But from time to time, certain naive members of my trade elect to swim against the current of public opinion by presenting arguments designed to assuage the pain of social leprosy. With your permission, I will indulge in just such a bit of malice here today.

I am a newspaperman, and I am proud of it. This week, there is a little extra pride because of something that occurred in Chicago. But more than pumping me up, the incident contained a lesson that should be of interest to all of you. More about that later; first we'll deal with my end.

Dick Manning

What occurred in the windy city is that Chicago Sun-Times columnist Mike Royko took a man-sized bite out of the hand that feeds him. Royko, arguably the best columnist in our land today, has always been my hero. And his actions this week moved him up about eight notches in my personal realm of favorite people.

The stage for this turn of events had been set with the sale of the Sun-Times by Frederick and Marshall Field to Rupert Murdoch. Telling a newspaperman that Murdoch is his new boss is a bit like telling a Baptist that Larry Flynt is his new pastor. Murdoch has a long history of taking quality papers and turning them into journalistic cesspools.

Royko responded just as those of us who respect him expected. He wrote a column. Therein, he not only thoroughly castigated Murdoch, he also took the hide off the Field brothers for allowing the money changer in the temple. He told all who cared to hear that his paper was no longer worthy of wrapping a self-respecting fish, and he took an extended leave of absence.

In effect, he said, "Take this job and shove it."

Good for Mike Royko. Good for us. This turn of events is not surprising, which brings me back to the point of pride in my business. Royko's response is not unique. This business is still full of mule-headed, hard-nosed, uncompromising people of principle. There is an ethic that pervades our ranks that says there are certain things we will not do. And a lot of us are willing to go to the extent of screwing up our careers to prove it.

I am not saying that such commitment does not exist in other areas. But I have seen more of it in this business than in any other.

Of course, all this is neither here nor there to the general public. But, as promised, there is a lesson for all of you in the Royko affair. He took a giant swipe at his paper. His paper's response was to print it.

I got a copy of Royko's column through a syndication service to which The Times-News is a subscriber. It also is owned by the Field brothers and was sold to Murdoch. Further, due to a computer malfunction, the folks at the syndication service had to go out of their way to see that I received it.

Think about that. If, for instance, a Reagan aide wrote a memo highly critical of the administration, would the White House go out of its way to see that folks could get a copy of the memo?

If a General Motors engineer wrote a report pointing out serious flaws in the company's product, would the company's PR department bend over backwards to attend to the report's dissemination? I doubt it.

Those of you who consider the press a moralistic cabal of sinister forces may want to consider that. We are the only enterprise that allows and even encourages its members to publicly be foul the collective tent.

We take the right of freedom of expression seriously to the extent of encouraging it within our own house. You may not think that's important to you, but it is. Of course, you're going to have to take my word on that. The only way to prove it to you is to kill freedom of expression and let you see how that feels. We social pariahs of the press are not about to let that happen.

Dick Manning is news editor of The Times-News.

Study sought on potential earthquakes

BOISE (UPI) — Studies are needed to predict damage from possible future earthquakes in Idaho, where unusual earth formations could cause tremors similar to the one that was centered near Challis Oct. 28, geologists say.

"Idaho is an unknown... but with all the evidence of instability there, we certainly ought to be studying the potential for damaging earthquakes," said U.S. Geological Survey scientist Robert Wallace in Menlo Park, Calif.

Boise State University geologist Spencer Wood said pending detailed studies, the state should draw a circle around the Idaho Seismic Belt and conduct rough calculations on the damage from quakes within that region.

A map published by the USGS in 1975 shows dozens of faults running through central Idaho, from Montana to the Oregon border.

Wood said the biggest potential for future earthquakes is along the active faults near Cascade, Lowman and Stanley.

"We have recorded earthquakes throughout the area," he said. "The kind of determination that needs to be done now is, 'What is the largest earthquake we can expect from that zone?'"

School districts would benefit from structural engineering studies to determine which buildings would be unsafe during a quake, said Wayne Phillips, state Department of Education supervisor of support services.

The state has no authority to force renovations and keeps no records on the age of school buildings, officials said.

BLM land sale list available

BOISE (UPI) — The Bureau of Land Management says plans for next year's federal land sales in Idaho are available for public inspection.

Idaho BLM Director, Glim Whitlock said the agency's second quarter land sale plan and final Fiscal Year 1984 land disposal plan are available for review at the BLM Boise office.

Whitlock said 1,545 acres in 30 tracts will be offered for sale between Jan. 1 and March 30.

Included in the offering are two tracts in the Boise District totalling 80 acres; nine tracts in the Burley district of 478 acres, 160 acres in the Idaho Falls district on four units; 10 tracts in the Salmon district totalling 490 acres and 5 tracts will be offered in the Shoshone district totalling 338 acres.

The Fiscal Year 84 land disposal plan includes 5,000 acres offered to the public in 107 units; 3,400 acres for recreation and public use in 21 tracts; 48 tracts totalling 10,300 acres of desert land entry applications, 1 tract of 6,700 acres to be exchanged with the state and 16 private exchanges of 10,000 acres.

142 deaths blamed on winter storms

By United Press International

Those wishing for a white Christmas got snow and more Sunday as record cold spread to the South, sending temperatures into the teens and freezing Florida citrus crops. A winter storm spread snow and rain throughout the West.

Nationwide, 142 deaths were blamed on the week-long storms and freezing temperatures, including 18 each in Illinois and Texas.

The cold arctic blast that swept the Plains and the Midwest for more than a week eased in some areas from double-digit subzero readings to highs of minus 9 to zero.

"It's not much but it looks like we're going to reach zero today," a National Weather Service forecaster in Chicago said. The morning temperature in Chicago rose from minus 20 to minus 7, with a wind chill hovering at minus 43.

Citrus farmers in Florida had reason to worry.

Florida experienced its coldest Christmas Day with Jacksonville at 11 degrees, Orlando at 21 with a minus 4 wind chill and Miami Beach at 42.

A freeze warning was posted for the northern part of the state.

A winter storm spread rain and snow across much of the West. The storm brought heavy rain to the central Pacific Coast region with rainfall totals of 2 to 3 inches within 24 hours.

Five inches of rain poured into the California town of Honeydew, and 7 inches of snow covered Elko and Winnemucca, Nev.

Missing priest at home

CAMPBELLSPORT, Wis. (UPI) — The Roman Catholic bishop once feared slain in Nicaragua spent a "quiet, religious" Christmas at home Sunday and said he will return to the central American nation to work for human rights and respect for the poor.

Bishop Salvador Schiesler, 65, said he did not fear for his life during a three-day walk out of Nicaragua with more than 1,000 Miskito Indians fleeing repression by the government.

Schiesler said the Miskitos decided to leave the country as he was visiting them. About 25 Indians armed with weapons sent by the U.S. government provided security during the walk.

"His demand that the Miskitos were pro-peace, saying 'the Nicaraguans are very spiritual and wish that the Sandinista regime respects the Catholic Church, the Bible and, in fact, religion."

The bishop said he would not be concerned about his safety upon returning, despite strong statements he made against the Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

"God is my best witness, I have suffered government persecution," he said earlier in Honduras.

"They cannot kill me, only expel me from the country; this is what I believe. But if I die, I'll die even though I have no family anywhere."

The bishop said reports of his death probably arose from the fact he abandoned his car at a village because Indians had mined the road out of the country in preparation for their trek to freedom.

Officials fight over Bouvia

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — In an interview published Sunday in the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner, Mrs. Bouvia said, "The only Christmas present I want is what I'm asking for: to be allowed to die."

"I don't dwell on past Christmases, I feel basically that my life is over," she said.

Her arm was placed in a foam restraint Thursday night after she chewed a hole in the feeding tube, cutting the flow of nutrients and causing blood to spatter her gown.

Deputy County Counsel Barbara Milliken, attorney for Riverside General Hospital, said force-feeding has made Mrs. Bouvia, 36, healthy enough to be released. She said the cerebral palsy victim, who wants to die rather than live in need of constant medical care, was "suicidal" for staying at the acute-care facility.

"She is depriving other patients of time, care, beds, funding that could be devoted to patients who really need that care and who want it," Mr. Milliken said.

But Richard Scott, an American Civil Liberties Union attorney heading Mrs. Bouvia's legal team, said Mrs. Bouvia, who is being force-fed through an intravenous tube, appears weak and has nowhere to go. He said releasing her during the Christmas holiday season would be "cruel, heartless and stupid."

Officials working to free U.S. pilot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House, responding to criticism from Democratic presidential hopeful Jesse Jackson, reasserted Sunday that "efforts are under way" to secure the release of an American Navy pilot captured by Syria.

White House spokesman Mark Weinberg, following up on assurances said last week by President Reagan, said U.S. officials are working to free Lt. Robert Goodman.

"At the president's direction, diplomatic efforts are under way, as they have been since Lieutenant Goodman's capture, to secure his release," Weinberg said. "The president is confident all Americans join in his special Christmas Day prayer that Lieutenant Goodman will soon be home with his family."

The White House statement came amid reports that U.S. special envoy Donald Rumsfeld did not raise the Goodman matter during his recent talks with high-level officials in Damascus, contrary to what Reagan himself had implied during a televised news conference last week.

And with a delegation of Arab-Americans already involved on Goodman's behalf, Jackson announced Saturday that he sent an appeal to Syrian President Hafez Assad that the 27-year-old Navy pilot, who was shot down Dec. 4 during a reprisal raid on Syrian-controlled territory in Lebanon, be freed.

Jackson said he decided to get involved because he got the impression that our government was not being as forceful or as vigorous as it could be. "In pressing for Goodman's release."

Reagans unwrap gifts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's Christmas gifts Sunday included a pair of bedroom slippers from Mrs. Reagan and her presents included some heavy plaid shirts to help ward off the mountaintop chill at their California ranch.

The president and Mrs. Reagan gathered informally with family members and friends to exchange gifts as they spent their third consecutive Christmas in the White House.

Like millions of other Americans, the Reagans began the day by opening presents under the Christmas tree in their second-floor residence. They invited 21 close friends to join them for a traditional Christmas dinner.

The private celebration was held as the Reagans prepared to leave the day for California, where they will ring in the new year in somewhat swankier fashion at the Palm Springs estate of millionaire publisher Walter Annenberg.

White House spokesman Mark Weinberg said the president gave Mrs. Reagan several heavy plaid shirts intended for informal wear at their 688-acre California ranch. The first lady presented her husband with a beige sweater and other gifts in addition to the slippers, Weinberg said.

Family killed in plane crash

SIX MILE, S.C. (UPI) — Four people who flew to Georgia to pick up a kitten for a Christmas gift were killed in the crash of their small airplane, in freezing, rugged woodlands, officials said Sunday.

Wreckage of the single-engine Mooney aircraft was found Sunday, about 17 hours after it was due to arrive back in Anderson, S.C.

Killed in the crash were pilot Larry S. Jones, 27, his wife, Sharon, 27, Augusta, Ga.; his father, Harry Winburn Jones, 63, of Anderson; and Wade A. Watson III, 32, of Columbia. Watson was the pilot's brother-in-law.

Rescuers found the wreckage "on the ground in a forested area" near Six Mile, about 4 miles north of Clemson, S.C., said Capt. J.D. Dennis of the Georgia Civil Air Patrol.

Tren Jones, brother of the elder passenger, described his nephew as an experienced pilot.

113-year-old tells secret

ROOSEVELT, N.Y. (UPI) — The 113-year-old daughter of a former slave told President Reagan on her birthday Christmas Day that she lived to be one of the oldest people in the country by "serving the Lord."

Reagan, who was spending the holiday in Washington, helped Susan Brunson celebrate her birthday and Christmas Sunday with a phone call to her Long Island home.

He wished her a "Merry Christmas" and asked her how she was able to live so long.

"By serving the Lord," she sprightly woman said.

Mrs. Brunson is an active member of the Calvary Baptist Church in Roosevelt, where she is known as the "mother" of the church.

She has outlived three husbands and nine children. Until she was 105 years old, in 1975, she bowled regularly in a league.

Robot satellite reused to pursue comet

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor

GREENBELT, Md. (UPI) — After a close encounter with the moon, a half-ton American spacecraft raced into interplanetary space Friday on a 21-month mission to chase a comet for the first time.

The robot probe, now named the International Cometary Explorer, is heading toward a spot some 44 million miles from Earth where astronomers believe the comet Giacobini-Zinner will be on Sept. 11, 1985.

"There's bound to be some error in that and we hope we have enough fuel to take care of that error," said flight director Robert Farquhar at the Goddard Space Flight Center control center. "We certainly seem to have an adequate margin."

Once the comet is sighted streaking toward the sun, scientists will better determine its course and the Explorer's path will be corrected by small onboard rockets. Farquhar said that adjustment should be made in about a year.

The Explorer, whipped within about 70 miles of the moon's surface Thursday to use lunar gravity to change its course and accelerate it by about 2,100 mph to soar away from the bonds of Earth's gravity.

It is the first mission to explore a comet, and if all goes well the spacecraft will bear by six months five more advanced spacecraft to be launched by Russia, Western Europe and Japan to intercept Halley's comet in 1986.

Officials shoot whales ailing, dying on beach

—BLOCK ISLAND, R.I. (UPI) — Officials from the National Marine Fisheries Service joined a crew from Mystic Marine Life Aquarium Friday to examine nine dead pilot whales that beached during a snow storm.

The crew were to gather at an island cove, hoping to discover the cause of the beaching, which was discovered about Thursday and reported to island police.

Five of the whales died shortly after they beached, said officials from the Mystic Cove aquarium, who were called to the scene by local authorities. A federal fisheries agent shot and killed the others to end their suffering.

"When we have a situation where we cannot perform a humanitarian rescue, then it's our policy not to let an animal suffer," said Eugene Proulx, a Wakefield based agent for the fisheries service.

Proulx said the animals normally would have been put to death with sodium pentothal injections, but that a fisheries veterinarian could not reach the island in the winter storm.

Aquarium officials said they were not sure why the 18-to-22 foot mammals became beached, but spokesman Roger Wyley said pilot whales are prone to beaching because they rush to the aid of other whales in need.

Requiem for Honey Comb Kid hovers

By SUSAN GOLDFARB
United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — If a California Supreme Court ruling prevails, the death knell may toll for the Honey Comb Kid in the same way it did for the Marlboro Man.

The state high court recently ruled that a consumers group could press to eliminate television advertisements for children's cereals that are 45 to 65 percent sugar.

A Los Angeles County Superior Court now must decide whether advertisements for Cocoa Pebbles, Fruity Pebbles, Honeycomb, Alpha Bits and Sugar Crisp misled children into thinking the cereals were good for them.

Last year, Superior Judge David Thomas threw out the suit, claiming the charges were "unspecific" and no particular commercial could be accused of deception.

The Supreme Court noted, "The defendants argue that the allegations are insufficient because they do not state the names of the customers allegedly solicited, the names of the salesmen making the misrepresentations and the time and place of the misrepresentations.

"There is no doubt as to what advertisements are at issue, nor as to what deceptive practices are called into question."

A group calling itself the Committee on Children's Television, Inc. filed the suit against General Foods last year, charging the cereal manufacturer with spending $240 million on deceptive television ads promoting the sale of cereals that are about half sugar.

"There is no honey in Honeycomb," papers filed with the court said. "There is no fruit in Fruity Pebbles."

The ads depicted fantasy characters who displayed magic qualities after eating the unhealthy cereals, said Public Advocates attorney Lois Salisbury.

Shuttle launch delayed four days

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The space agency Friday delayed the scheduled Jan. 30 launch of America's next shuttle flight four days to give engineers more time to investigate the failure of power units aboard the Columbia.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the flight date has been postponed until Feb. 3.

The flight is scheduled to last eight days, with mission commander Vance Brand, co-pilot Robert Gibson and mission specialist Bruce McCandless, Ronald McNair and Robert Stewart aboard.

They will launch two communications satellites and an experimental instrument platform. A key objective of the flight is to test NASA's two manned maneuvering units, with McCandless and Stewart flying up to 300 feet away from the shuttle Challenger, possibly without a safety line. It will be the first mission to land at Cape Canaveral.

The space agency said the delay was required to give engineers additional time to investigate the failure of two of the three auxiliary power units during the landing sequence of the shuttle Columbia earlier this month.

Two of the Columbia's units, turbines that drive the ship's hydraulic system, caught fire after touchdown at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., landing site.

Woman waits to claim prize

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Westchester County housewife who won $3 million in the state lottery said Friday she wanted a month to claim the prize so she could study for a literature exam in peace.

"I was extremely nervous about the publicity and I hoped it would die down — I guess it didn't," Harriet Abel, 61, told a news conference at the World Trade Center.

Mrs. Abel, who is enrolled in an adult education program at Mercy College, said she told no one about winning except her two adult children, her husband and his sister and brother.

"I knew, being a woman, none of my friends would be able to keep a secret," she said.

Mrs. Abel said she considered her education "much more important than money" and her decision to delay collecting the prize paid off. She got an A plus on the term paper on Greek tragedy, an A on the final exam and an A for the course.

Her Lotto winning number was drawn Nov. 16. Mrs. Abel did not claim the prize until Wednesday, when she and her husband were in the city to see a Broadway show.

- PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't have that talk with a partner in the morning or an argument will result. Get advice of experts to clear up an enigma.
- IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will be an absolute fun-bugger and will always be dissatisfied with clothing, food, environment, etc. Teach not to criticize and to be grateful. Your progeny will later become more cooperative and very ambitious. Stress education.

L.M. Boyd What's what

Although everybody knows about the "Cabbage Patch" dolls, not all understand why they're so called. Has nothing to do with vegetable ground. "Cabbage" is the term for those odd patches of fabric traditionally kept by tailors after the garments are done.

Nothing new about that widespread notion that red-haired women are more passionate than either blondes or brunettes. None other than the great French writer Gustave Flaubert contended as much more than 100 years ago. It was he, in fact, who popularized the debatable claim.

A. "Physicians' Travel and Meeting Guide."

CRUELTY AND VIOLENCE
It was believed in England and elsewhere once that certain phases of the moon aroused in some people a tendency toward cruelty and violence. Bedtime "Hagman" for the masses was nursery keepers who bought the notion completely. So they routinely chained and beat their inmates on the theory that would prevent cruelty and violence.

"Sophomores" comes from two Greek words, one meaning foolish, the other meaning wise.

Active woman advised to seek sex aid

DEAR ABBY: I don't know what's the matter with me. I am a 25-year-old respectable, unmarried, churching woman. I have many good friends and have never had trouble getting dates. My problem: If I am physically attracted to a man, I will go to bed with him the first minute he wants to. For me, it's just a way of getting acquainted.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

I consider myself a decent person, and it's a miracle that I still have a reasonably good reputation. Sex for me is an addiction — like alcohol or gambling. I can't seem to control it. Have you ever heard of this, Abby? Is there any help for me?

— GIRL WHO CAN'T SAY NO
DEAR GIRL: In 1979 a small group of men and women, who realized that their lives were out of control because of their addiction to sex, formed an organization that they appropriately named "Sexaholics Anonymous" based on the 12 steps of Alcoholics Anonymous. They are serious, responsible people who admit that their lives have become unmanageable because of their compulsive sexual behavior, and they look to a higher power (God) for the strength to achieve sexual sobriety. "S.A." has grown enormously and now has chapters all over the United States and Canada.

For information, write to S.A., Box 300, Simi Valley, Calif. 90088. This is a non-profit organization, so please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope. All correspondence is strictly confidential.

DEAR ABBY: What is an endocrinologist? I asked my doctor and he didn't know. Thank you.
— MR. D. IN LINDEN, TEXAS
DEAR MR. D.: First, get another doctor. Then get two dictionaries — one for yourself and one for the doctor who didn't know what an endocrinologist was.

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the bride who invited 81 singles to her wedding and complained because 14 of them accepted and indicated they were bringing a guest.
We are surprised that the bride would assume that 31 single people would jump at the chance to attend a wedding alone. Would the bride want to attend a wedding and leave her fiance or boyfriend at home? Why should married couples get the privilege of coming in "twos" just because they are married?

We are two single women who would feel more comfortable being escorted to a wedding. We realize the bride has a limited budget and we sympathize. We can't offer a solution, but we must speak out for many singles who resent being discriminated against because they are not married.

— K. AND V. IN L.A.
DEAR K. AND V.: If the bride (or groom) invites a single friend whom he knows is engaged, living with or going with someone, then good manners would dictate inviting the "significant other."

But (and sorry to discriminate against those who don't have anyone special), most brides resent a single's presumptuousness in "digging up" a date for the occasion.

Elderly, blind man dies in unheated home

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A partially blind, 83-year-old retired postal worker died of exposure in his unheated home two days after the gas company refused to restore service or accept partial payment of his overdue bill, officials said Friday.

The medical examiner's office said Howard Spears died Thursday night at City Hospital of hypothermia. He had been taken there from his north side home heated only by an electric heater that police said "wouldn't light a cigarette."

The death was the sixth in the St. Louis area attributed to the below-zero temperatures that began Sunday.

Laclede Gas Co. shut off service to Spears hoping in time for nonpayment Georgia Rusan, chief of family services for the Human Development Corp., said HDC and the city's Division of Family Services on Tuesday offered to pay Laclede $680 of the $900 overdue bill through heat assistance grants.

She said Laclede refused to accept the partial payment or to restore service because of a policy against reinstating customers with poor payment records. In such cases, Mrs. Rusan said the utility demands a $500 deposit in addition to full payment.

William Otto, a spokesman for the utility, said he was notified Thursday night that Spears was taken to a hospital suffering from "frostbite." He said company officials attempted to determine then whether the partial payment offer was "valid," and planned to restore service if it was.

"I said if the offer were valid for the $680, we would turn the service back on," said Otto. "I had no idea that this customer was in serious condition."

Hoffa's son accuses FBI

DETROIT (UPI) — The son of former Teamsters Union President Jimmy Hoffa says evidence obtained under the Freedom of Information Act indicates his missing father was correct in believing he was spied upon by the government.

"If this information is correct, it proves what my father argued for all the appeals courts and the U.S. Supreme Court," James P. Hoffa said in an interview today in the Detroit Free Press.

The younger Hoffa made the comments after the Chicago Sun-Times published a report Thursday on documents obtained by a Princeton University student. The material indicates the FBI conducted electronic surveillance of conversations involving the elder Hoffa, who vanished in July of 1975.

Because of initiative Tax rates up, tax bills down

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Property tax rates in most Idaho cities in 1983 increased for the first time since 1978, according to information in a December Associated Taxpayers of Idaho newsletter.

But the reason behind the jump — the "fifty-fifty" residential property tax exemption — paradoxically resulted in a slight decrease in the average residential tax bill this year.

The combination of these factors adds up to a distinct lift away from the terms of the One Percent Initiative, endorsed by state voters in 1978.

The newsletter studied tax rates in 66 Idaho cities, in which only six — as opposed to 12 in 1982 — showed a tax rate lower than 1 percent.

It showed that the average property tax levy in those cities increased 16.6 percent this year. It labeled this a "dramatic" reversal of the trend toward lower tax rates which had prevailed since 1978.

But tax rate is only one half of the tax equation.

The fifty-fifty tax initiative, endorsed by state voters in 1982, exempted 50 percent of a residence's value from taxation, up to a maximum exemption of $50,000.

A total decrease of $1.2 billion in statewide market value resulted, according to the newsletter.

Since the one percent formula works by placing a 5 percent cap on the increase in tax collections from year to year, rates were increased to make up for the loss in market value. The newsletter says this "shift levy" raised rates in some cities more than 40 percent.

The newsletter identified a second factor in this year's higher tax rate: an increase in exemptions from the one percent tax formula.

In particular, $8 million more was assessed in 1983 for special school district overrides than in 1982.

And county indigent relief is now a major exempt tax fund.

Last year the legislature allowed counties to tax outside the formula to provide a fund to pay indigent medical bills.

In 1983, counties claimed a total of $8.8 million in indigent taxing authority — more than one-third the total amount levied outside the formula for purposes other than schools.

This is a further indication the tax system has moved away from adherence to the principles of the One Percent Initiative.

Among cities studied, Halley showed the lowest aggregate tax rate. It was followed closely by Sun Valley, Driggs, Challis, Idaho City and Grangeville as the only cities in the state with a tax rate below 1 percent. In 1982, 12 cities had rates lower than 1 percent.

A total of 32 cities showed a tax rate higher than 1.5 percent in 1983, up from 12 in 1982.

Gift to YFCA helps needy

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With a $2,650 gift from a trust fund, the Magic Valley YFCA will expand a swimming program for the handicapped and offer free memberships to needy youths.

The YFCA received the funds from the Florence M. Gandy Charitable Trust. The YFCA is one of ten organizations eligible for the money as stated in the agreement of the recently announced trust, designed to benefit the youth of the area.

"The YFCA board is extremely pleased, and the community should be also for the underprivileged youth. It should be, in the long run, an advantage to the entire community," says Jim Tarter, president of the YFCA board.

"The award to the organization was announced Monday at its board meeting. The YFCA had applied for funding the eight projects.

Under long-term proposals, the YFCA received cash for the building of an ice skating rink and hockey arena or a gymnasium with a suspended running track — all on YFCA property. The estimated costs would be $300,000 to $500,000 for the rink and $750,000 for the gym. The YFCA also proposed using between $20,000 to $60,000 for improving its grounds with the addition of fencing, landscaping and outdoor recreation area.

Among the short-term requests, the YFCA sought funding for a comprehensive swimming instruction program targeted at elementary-age children and for an after-school fun club as an alternative for children who attend day care or home day care.

Another proposal is for the creation of a music practice room, which would use a baby grand piano already owned by the organization.

One project that did receive approval, however, was a $2,240 request to provide scholarship memberships and program fees. In its proposal, the YFCA stated that among its 1,800 members in the valley, less than 20 receive free memberships because they can't afford the full price, but the need is there.

"We have received requests from other agencies for memberships of the YFCA, but we have not been able to honor due to lack of funding support," Tarter said.

The trust fund grant will pay for 23 one-year memberships to young people.

Immigrants Political freedom attracts immigrants of the 1980s

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A biting wind blasted the season's early snow across the runway and passenger area of the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport two days before Thanksgiving 1983.

As they walked to the terminal from Skywest Airlines flight 715 from Salt Lake City, Khammy Chareunsook, his wife and their six children each paused to absorb their first sight of southern Idaho's high desert.

The Chareunsooks are among the newest immigrants to the Magic Valley, the latest in a long line that have come here from other nations to work, raise their families and, in turn, contribute to the valley's state and nation's history and culture.

Like many before them, they spoke no English and like many immigrants in recent years, they are from Southeast Asia. Behind them lay three years in refugee camps in the Philippines and Thailand, a brief, but unpleasant stop on their way from their native Laos and the government they had come to fear and distrust.

Here, on this gray and overcast day of wind and snow, was their first glimpse of a long imagined destination. A look of concentration appeared on each face as the family collectively soaked in the sights, sounds and smells of what to Magic Valley residents are common stimuli.

From the airport's glassed-in waiting area, some of the family's predecessors, about 30 members of Twin Falls' community of Laotian immigrants, craned to peer through the crowd for the new arrivals.

The Chareunsooks looked toward the terminal and their concentration with their surroundings broke as they traded waves with the newcomers inside.

The scene transformed into one of people reunited and of persons sharing a common heritage and uncertain future, meeting for the first time in a land of strangers.

With about 200 persons, the Magic Valley Laotian community is Idaho's largest, and as a result, Twin Falls is a center for the nearly 700 Laotians living on the Snake River Plain in the state.

It is a community of refugees. With meager savings, little or no command of English and virtually no experience in American society, many have repeated typical patterns of American immigration, hoping to get a hold on any rung of the ladder of success in the society and economy.

"We try to have everyone employed at Idaho Frozen Foods," says Thongdeng Keopanya, who works at the Refugee Center at the College of Southern Idaho and owns the Royal Lao Market in Twin Falls' Lynnwood Shopping Center.

IF's Twin Falls plant has hired more than 20 Laotians, more than any other area employer, he explains. The company is also respected by the community because one of those employees, Pong Thepongsak, has been made a supervisor at the plant — effectively moving up a rung on the ladder in a short period of time.

Chareunsook, through Keopanya as interpreter, says he would like to be hired at the plant. Though he has experience as a medical assistant and would like to be employed in the health care industry, he knows little English and wouldn't be employable, Keopanya translates.

Like many immigrants before him, Chareunsook says he'll seek and perform any work.

He anticipates that changes will continue occur in the lives of his family — lives, which have been Laotians have settled in these valley counties without stability for many years. He says he will begin studying and practicing English through classes sponsored by the college, hoping to improve his attractiveness to employers.

Five of Chareunsook's six children are enrolled in Twin Falls schools. Four of the children attend Bickel Elementary School and the fifth attends O'Leary Junior High School.

The family will attend St. Edward's Catholic Church, which sponsored them as refugees.

Stanley folks react to sub-zero freeze

By BONNIE EDWARDS JONES
Times-News writer

STANLEY — What to people of the mountain town of Stanley do when the temperature hits 54 degrees below zero?

"Mostly, they stay home," says Bud Jensen, manager of the Sawtooth Mercantile. "They stay home because their cars won't run."

Jensen said business was "very slow" Friday morning after the mercury dipped to 54 below, but he said it was picking up in the afternoon. At 4 p.m. the temperature had warmed up to a minus 32 degrees, according to a report from the town's official weather station.

The minus 54 is just six degrees away from the state's lowest 60 below on record. That was reported Jan. 18, 1943 at Island Park.

Jensen said when it gets that cold, the few vehicles that will start won't run because something is frozen. Either the power steering fluid, the oil or diesel lines freeze, he said.

— Mrs. Bud James, whose husband is the official weather reporter from the community, that nearly always reports the state's lowest temperature, said surprisingly enough there were very few frozen pipes in Stanley Friday.

"We have a lot of snow, about four feet here in town, and when you dig down through it you find mud. It gets as a good insulation and the pipes are pretty deep here," she explained.

She said residents of Stanley were staying inside Friday unless they had a mighty good reason to go outside.

"Most everybody heats with wood, at least as an addition to other sources. We rely heavily on the wood stoves," she said. "But right now a lot of people are wondering if their wood supply is going to see them through the winter."

Mrs. James said it gets pretty quiet in Stanley on cold winter days such as Friday.

Cross-country skiing isn't good because of the light, deep snow and who would venture out to try it anyway? "It's laughed. There isn't much recreation going on. Snowmobiling was out of the question."

Jensen said he has lived in Stanley for five years and the Friday morning low was the coldest he has ever seen.

He said people in Stanley reacted to cold weather, and they take it in their stride, "but this is something else."

He said business at the Sawtooth Mercantile was good Friday afternoon with a lot of people walking around town and still shopping for the holidays.

"We hear there's more snow and cold on the way. Right now everybody up here is praying it will break pretty soon," Jensen added.

'Old ways' disappearing from Czech descendants

"Certain historical changes produced the last reasons for the decline in Czech community in the World War II encouraged two changes: Czechs left the community and never moved back. Also many Czechs married non-Czechs."

"Some felt there was more to life than just being a Czech and deliberately broke with what they considered clannishness."

— from a study by College of Southern Idaho historian James Gentry and former Buhl resident Kathy Vitek.

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

BUHL — Czech surnames still abound many of the mailboxes around Buhl and Castleford, reminders of Bohemian immigration to these southeastern Idaho communities.

But today, the people who bear those names have mostly been assimilated into the mainstream of American culture. The names remain, but for many, little else is left of the "Old Country."

For Marie Cejka of Buhl, who immigrated from Czechoslovakia in 1920, it has been sad to see the old ways passing. She left her native Bohemia with her brother and his new wife headed for Buhl.

The party left Prague, Czechoslovakia on Nov. 7. The trip took a month and included riding trains across much of two continents, and a boat across the Atlantic Ocean. They arrived in Buhl on Dec. 6.

"I kind of think it might disappear," Cejka says of the outward signs of a Bohemian cultural identity in the area. "In 1920 there were 150 Czech families around Buhl and Castleford. Then more came from Nebraska." Cejka says. Now it would be difficult to estimate the number of Czech families or to determine who would be included in such a count, she says.

Cejka is one of about 15 active members of ZCBJ, a Czech lodge that grew around an insurance company for immigrant Czechs. It was at one time the institution that Buhl-Castleford Czechs rallied around in much the same way other groups rallied around their churches, Gentry says.

The lodge owned the Fairview Hall east of Castleford and during the years between the two World Wars — a period when the Buhl-Castleford Czech culture's identity was strongest — the hall was the site of many Czech language plays and dances, she says.

Czech culture was family oriented. "We didn't leave our kids home with babysitters. Nobody knew anything about babysitters at that time," she said.

The children, who were brought to Fairview Hall for dances were put to bed in a room under the building's combination stage and dance floor when it came time, Cejka recalls.

"How they got to sleep with people dancing over the top of them, I don't know," she says.

Cejka still speaks and reads Czech as often as she can. Her husband married persons of non-Czech ancestry, something she says serves to dilute their Czech heritage, but something she nonetheless accepts as typically have other immigrants to the United States.

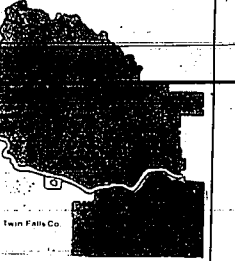

"Sometimes I feel kind of bad that my children forgot the language. But when you're away from home and live with Americans, you lose the language."

What has happened to the West End Czech community is not unusual. A similar process of one culture being absorbed by another has occurred frequently in world history and is a common part of American immigration history.

The process can take several generations, or it can be rather rapid, depending on the isolation and size of the communities involved, language predominance and the degree to which group members marry outside of it.

For example, say historians Gentry and Vitek, in the West End Czech community "non-Czech wives did not cook ethnic food. Non-Czech spouses fell left out. If the foreign language was used, and non-Czech spouses' interest in the (Czech) dances was generally less."

"Also by 1950 many non-English-speaking Czechs had died," they continue. "Why should the Czech language now be used? Some

Location of farms started by Czech immigrants opposed the clannishness of a language which others could not understand, saying, "If you're in a country, you should speak that country's language."

Yet, for the older residents particularly, the old ways remain. Joe and Matilda Mahacek were both born into the Czech community during its period of strength.

"One thing about our parents, they said: 'Your home is America. Learn American,'" Matilda says.

And so they did. But the Mahaceks exhibit a great pride in their culture and have retained the cultural at-

See CZECHS on Page B2

Laotians

Already, they are familiar with some common denominators of American culture. They want a television set.

Keopanya explains that television is important because it brings the language into the home to reinforce traditional sessions. Children particularly benefit from the language lessons that television delivers, says Keopanya.

But for the Chareunsook family, education must follow subsistence, he says. The family owns more than $3,000 for air connections from the Philippines to Twin Falls. And they are short on clothing, bedding and food.

They enjoy the comfort of central heating, he says, adding that they also look forward to enjoying the material wealth they believe they will eventually find in the United States.

The Chareunsook family's exodus from Laos began with Khammy's escape from a government relocation camp in the Laotian jungle. He had been detained there, as had many Laotians, to learn the ways of the new political order that was ushered in by the new government.

Keopanya gathered his family and by boat they crossed the half-mile-wide Mekong River into Thailand.

Provisions in the refugee camps were scarce, consisting mainly of fish and rice donated by the United Nations, Chareunsook says. But after three years of living the relatively primitive lifestyle of the camps, the jet age interested and in a matter of hours they were in Idaho.

The path followed by the Chareunsook family is similar to those taken by nearly thousands of Laotians who have arrived in the United States since the new Laotian government came to power in 1975.

The first Laotian refugee arrived in Idaho that same year. From 10 to 20 Laotians have arrived in the Magic Valley every year since then, says Keopanya, who came in 1978.

Like many young men from Laos, Keopanya spent several years of his youth in a Buddhist monastery. In Twin Falls he is a member of the First Baptist Church, the organization that sponsored his efforts to locate in Twin Falls.

He says it's common for refugees to take up the religion of their sponsoring group. But the community of refugees do observe many of the special days of their Buddhist culture.

"We cannot have a monetary (in Idaho) because we don't have enough people to support them (the monks)," Keopanya said. In California, the Laotian community is large enough to support one, he added.

The Laotians want to adapt and fit in to American society but still want to maintain their culture and ethnic identity, Keopanya explains.

He says parents encourage their children to stay at home rather than to fraternize with other children. And he says that although marrying outside of the Laotian community is not prohibited, young persons are encouraged to marry Laotians.

But it's not always easy. The past cultural ties slip away and new ones emerge. Many parents attempt to teach their children at home to read Laotian and to learn to sing and dance to traditional Laotian songs.

"We still want to keep the culture," he says. But the effort isn't always successful.

"Children don't want to listen to Laotian songs," he says. "They want to listen to American songs on the radio. They have learned to appreciate (Laotian music)."

Jerome wood deals probed

JEROME — Attorney Jim Meservy said Thursday he is receiving additional calls from persons whose orders for firewood have not arrived after his comments to Jerome County Commissioners Monday were made public.

Meservy said information is needed about additional persons who were involved in the purchase of firewood that has not been delivered. Anyone who may have ordered wood and pre-paid for it without receiving it should contact the sheriff's offices in Jerome or Twin Falls to assist in the ongoing investigation.

Meservy told Jerome commissioners an alleged suspect apparently collected between $5,000 and $7,500 while taking orders for wood, but never cut or delivered the wood.

He said the average sale amounted to about $150 to $200, but some orders ran as high as $500.

During the appeal hearing Dec. 12, concern also was expressed about use of the county road off which the Harrier dairy is located.

The commissioners suggested in their Monday decision that more gravel be used to maintain the road. And they advised that if problems arise, the Buhl Highway District, which is responsible for the road, should be notified.

Meservy asked the commissioners for input on whether the case should be handled as a civil matter between customers or prosecuted as a felony charge.

Commissioners offered the opinion that buyers should know better than to pay in advance. That comment was incorrectly attributed to Meservy in a Times-News article Thursday. The Times-News regrets the error.

County approves dairy operation

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Commissioners have granted a special-use permit to Howard Harder to operate a milk processing facility at his dairy southwest of Buhl.

After the matter was appealed from a county planning and zoning commission decision by Joe Wisecaver, however, the commissioners decided not to allow Harder to engage in retail sales, as he originally had requested.

The commissioners suggested in their Monday decision that more gravel be used to maintain the road. And they advised that if problems arise, the Buhl Highway District, which is responsible for the road, should be notified.

Murtaugh finances get seal of approval

MURTAUGH — Helen Cannon, accountant, gave Murtaugh City a "clean bill of health" at its meeting last week.

"The books are in very fine shape," she said. "The city is in not too bad of shape considering its size and tax base."

In other business: Denny's and Bob & Betty's Country Store received approval for renewal of a beer and liquor license.

The State Board of Transportation informed the council the state board could pay up to 81.4 percent of the city's road repairs, provided the repair work was developed by professional engineers.

The council agreed it was "worth looking into."

tributing that they find most beneficial to their lives.

Matilda still exchanges letters with relatives in Czechoslovakia, much as she has done most of her life. She says she also speaks and sings in Czech whenever she has the opportunity.

They live in the house Joe's father built in 1920 — a house with a distinctly European flavor that contrasts sharply with the western countryside it occupies. They are still members of ZCBG, but have ceased to be active.

Life for Buhl-Castledale Czechs, during the period of intense population growth that followed the opening of the area canal system, was much like that experienced by other ethnic groups.

Joe's father spent much of his time grubbing sage to open new farm lands to Czechs arriving from Europe or the plains states. Traditional methods of preserving foods were required to sustain the frontier population between harvests. Consequently, traditional Czech foods were retained as staples in their diets.

Joe spoke no English when he began attending Strybing's elementary school south of Buhl. That situation was more the rule than the exception for the many children of Czech immigrants who attended the school, he says.

Now, he says, English dominates his command of Czech. The language he learned still has been lost through lack of use, he says. But he doesn't outwardly show signs of remorse over this fact.

His wife is more reflective about the changes. "Once I'm gone, there will be no connection with the family in Czechoslovakia because I'm the only one who corresponds," Matilda says.

"Among my generation, I have talked with several (Czech) people, saying let's keep it (the language) going. But when it comes time to meet, no one has the time," she says.

More than any other aspect of their culture, Czech food has remained a strong part of the Mahacek's life, Matilda says. Despite the fact most of her children married persons of non-Czech ancestry, all continue to enjoy traditional Czech foods.

Dave Mahacek, son of Joe and Matilda, says he hopes his young children all learn to enjoy and appreciate Czech culinary fare. "It's probably all they'll get," he says of the elements of Czech culture they are likely to absorb.

Taxes

Brown explains his city's low tax rate as the result of a combination of factors.

Among these were the adoption of a special option — hotel/motel and liquor-by-the-drink tax — which provided property tax relief in 1978, the year the base was set for the 5 percent cap.

Another factor has been the escalation of property tax values since 1978, which, compared to the ceiling, has diluted tax rates, he says.

Brown says a recent increase in the total value of property on city tax rolls may be the reason tax rates are as low as they are in Halley.

A fairly recent population increase in the southern portion of Blaine County, combined with annexations and new construction there, may have had the same effect as in Sun Valley, he says.

The experience in most Magic Valley cities tends to follow state averages fairly closely.

Total tax rates in cities studied were as follows: Twin Falls, 1.51 percent; Jerome, 1.58 percent; Burley, 1.01 percent; Buhl, 1.43 percent; Filer, 1.55 percent; Gooding, 1.88 percent; Kimberly, 1.46 percent; Shoshone, 1.55 percent.

Other major Idaho cities had the following rates: Boise, 1.54 percent; Idaho Falls, 1.83 percent; Lewiston, 2.09 percent; Coeur D'Alene, 1.61 percent; Pocatello, 1.67 percent; Nampa, 1.49 percent.

Just under $200 million in property taxes were assessed statewide in 1983, 6.5 percent more than in 1982.

big to use the pool, game room and other activities.

The remaining amount of $400 in the request would be used to cover their fees for special programs, such as flag football, that are included in the membership, Tarter says.

The YFCA would award the scholarships based on referrals from the Salvation Army, Twin Falls public schools, the South Central Community Action Agency and an association of ministers.

The trust also will fund a $420 request to expand the swimming program for handicapped students at the Robert Stuart Junior High School Special Education program. Because of finances, the students were able to attend only two days a month.

With the funding, the students will be able to enjoy ten visits from January through 1984. The cost will include transportation to the Y building in Twin Falls.

Tarter says the funds already have been received by the YFCA and plans are underway to begin the projects.

The multi-million dollar trust responsible for benefits was created in May 1982. Gardner, who died that same month, directed that the fund used to promote the development of youth in the Magic Valley. For 25 years, the interest from the trust must be distributed to the agencies approved in the trust fund agreement.

The funds were distributed to the YFCA by trustee Leonore Parker, after she began accepting applications from the eligible agencies earlier this month.

Besides the YFCA, these include the Salvation Army, 4-H Clubs of Magic Valley, Twin Falls High School, Idaho Youth Ranch and Easter Seal Center. Some of these groups already have been recipient of some funds from the trust.

Gardner was a former owner of a Twin Falls radio station.

Gracious executive adjusts for Grinch

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Yes, Alta View Elementary School students, there is a Santa Claus.

It seemed Santa had been replaced by the Grinch who stole Christmas when someone looking for a tree tree cut down and carted away a very special pine from in front of the southeast Salt Lake County School. But the youngsters will get $100 to buy the pumpled pine, thanks to a businessman playing the role of Santa, and with the aid of a radio announcer in the role of Santa's helper.

The students participated in a unusual fund-raising effort to buy two trees for their schooling. They memorized poems, then recited them for their parents to earn a nickel per poem.

Tom Barberi, the morning announcer for KALL Radio in Salt Lake City, told the story earlier this week of the Grinch who stole one of the trees. Barberi received word Friday from Gullford M. Funston III, whose company plans to give the youngsters the money to replace the stolen pine.

Funston, managing director of Endstock Development, sent a letter to the students telling them not to be discouraged by the theft because there are more generous people than selfish individuals in the world.

Funston and Barberi will give the Alta View kids a $100 check when the students return to school after their Christmas break.

Capitol hit with fever over dolls

BOISE (UPI) — Cabbage Patch fever apparently hit the Idaho Statehouse Friday morning.

Gov. John Evans was one of several people who placed a bid for a Cabbage Patch Kid, offered by a Boise radio station in a fund-raising drive. The governor offered to pay $175 for the doll in a drive by station KBOI to raise money for Cody Taylor, a Nampa youngster who needs a $100,000 bone marrow operation.

Radio disc jockey "Straghtarrow" said the governor thanked the station for launching the drive and said he thought the cause was worthwhile.

Jean Terra, Evans' spokeswoman, said she did not know the governor was going to enter a bid when he made the phone call.

"We heard they were going to be auctioning a benefit to Cody Taylor," Terra said. "He (Evans) just wanted to wish him well."

The state's top official was quickly outbid by a higher offer, so it looks like he'll have to get his computer-designed doll elsewhere.

Woman fights grazing fine

FORT HALL (UPI) — A Shoshone-Bannock tribal member says she has hired a lawyer to contest a $1,700 fine levied against her by the Bureau of Indian Affairs in a livestock-grazing dispute.

The BIA imposed the livestock trespassing fine against Arlith Caldwell of Fort Hall because her cattle trampled her neighbor's field recently, officials said.

The neighboring property owner, Lee Christensen of Preston, said he believes the law is on his side and the federal agency was right to fine Caldwell.

But Caldwell asserted the Fort Hall reservation land she leases and adjoining parcels are assigned to grazing, and she is not liable for the destruction of Christensen's wheat crop.

"She's under the impression it's open range, but it's not," said Christensen, who is not a member of the tribe. "It's up to Uncle Sam to discipline her."

Caldwell said she had hired tribal attorney Pat Coble to fight the matter. "I maintain that we have a law that says we are an open-range reservation," she said.

Bruins-Meridian: a semi-rematch

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Bruins invade Meridian Tuesday night in a battle of undefeated teams that probably will be the major game of the December season.

The Bruins, running 3-0, will meet Meridian, 5-4, at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday night in the Warrior gymnasium just west of Falls, which will be A-1 in classification next year, takes on the Boise Braves in the first game.

A lot of fans are trying to confuse this game with the state A-1 finals last March when the Warriors nipped the Bruins by one for the Idaho championship. But, other than the coaches, there are no familiar faces. Meridian has lost all five starters and Twin Falls returns only Andy Tolson from the five that took the opening tip.

The Bruins also have Darren Stuart, who played his best game in those finals.

Bruin Coach John Astorquia has seen the Warriors play while Meridian mentor Don Haynes has only some hearsay to go on about the Bruins.

"We have a pretty good team. The best balance of any I've had here," said Haynes with a smile when asked who the designated shooter was this year for the Warriors. "We have four starters averaging in double figures and the one who isn't is our point guard and he's a good player."

The Warriors' top scorer is Rob Line, averaging 15 points per game, followed by Ryan Moore at 13.5, Rod Bird at 12.5 and Derek Gochour at 11.8. Gochour, son of former Burley athlete Bryce Gochour, also leads the Warriors in rebounding with 11 per game.

"We're looking forward to this game. We're 5-0 and so far we've played pretty well but we haven't shot well. We're looking forward to playing a good team like Twin Falls and hope the shooting comes around," Haynes said.

There is little reason to believe that Haynes or will change his modus operandi but this time around it is possible that Twin Falls will fight fire with fire.

Haynes always has liked an up tempo game and prefers to take the shot quite early in the offense if the fast break or transition game isn't there. Astorquia has shown a decided preference for a quicker pace this season because he has good running ability and is blessed with at least three good shooters.

"It is a typical Haynes and Meridian team," said Astorquia. "They have good talent without the height of the past couple of years. They haven't got anyone to replace (Scott) Johnston (Meridian's top scorer the past two years) and now a player at Southern Methodist) but they have a couple of guys who appear to shoot the ball pretty well.

"The keys remain the same for Meridian. You have to keep them off the boards and try to keep them from getting the shots they want, especially in transition," he said.

But Astorquia said while the Bruins will make a maximum effort against Meridian Tuesday, they can't get overly emotional about that battle because Jerome is on the schedule Friday night.

It is a renewal of a rivalry that raged for over 20 years but then came to a halt by mutual agreement when Twin Falls' commitments to a growing Southern Idaho Conference plus a domination by the Bruins in winning the last 18 meetings.

"Jerome is a solid ball team, probably one of the best three or four in the state. In Gary Hulse they have potentially the best rebounder in the state because he's 6-5 and has outstanding jumping ability. Plus, he's about 250 pounds and he displaces a lot of space. He's the kind of player you hope to control a little because you aren't going to stop him if he decides to mix it up.

"After that Jerome is a little smaller than it was last year but they have some pretty good role players and Coach (Ben) Allen has them working hard on defense. I think overall Jerome rebounds a little better than their height would indicate," Astorquia said.

Huskies, Penn St. say Aloha

HONOLULU (UPI) — Penn State and Washington, two highly ranked teams in the season, will meet in the Aloha Bowl in a bid to climb back into the final Top 20.

Penn State had high expectations at the start of the campaign with a No. 4 ranking but had trouble getting out of the chute. After being routed by Nebraska 44-6 in the season opener, the Nittany Lions dropped their next two games to Cincinnati and Iowa before finishing with a 7-4-1 record.

Listed among their late-season victims were Alabama, West Virginia, and Notre Dame — all 1983 bowl participants.

Washington was given a No. 16 listing in the early poll and raced off to an impressive 6-1 start. However, a three-point loss to UCLA and a season-closing 17-6 defeat at the hands of cross-state rival Washington State cost the Huskies a shot at the Rose Bowl and gave them another detour to Hawaii.

In last year's inaugural Aloha Bowl, Washington edged Maryland 23-20 in the final seconds of the game.

The past season wasn't one of great success for Penn State, but the Lions' athletic director had a good reason for being in Hawaii. After traveling nearly 5,000 miles, Jim Farman said, "I think the major reason for this bowl trip is to recognize the players for their hard work in coming back from an 0-3 start."

"And they really did work hard to finish at 7-4-1. That was the main purpose — not to make money, but to reward or recognize our players for the job they did."

Washington's Don James admitted being knocked out of the Rose Bowl for the second time in as many years was a disappointment but said playing Penn State will compensate somewhat.

Dallas meets relaxed Rams

Cold weather due for playoff

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys and Los Angeles Rams, who during the past decade have made a habit of meeting each other at this time of year, will do so again today in the NFC wild-card playoff game.

The Cowboys, struggling to regain some Super Bowl-type momentum after two humiliating setbacks, and the Rams, hoping to add another layer to what has been a surprisingly successful season, face each other beginning at 12:30 p.m. MST in Texas Stadium. Bitterly cold weather in Dallas was expected to moderate by game time, although the high temperatures still were expected to be only in the mid-50s with a 20 percent chance of snow and light easterly winds.

This will be the seventh time since 1973 that the Rams and Cowboys have met in the playoffs, with Dallas holding a 4-2 post-season edge over Los Angeles.

A Dallas win would send the Cowboys into the divisional round of the playoffs against San Francisco, a team that beat the Cowboys 42-17 in the final Monday night game of the NFL's regular season.

If the Rams are winners today, their reward will be a trip to RPK Stadium and a confrontation with the Washington Redskins, the consensus choice to repeat as Super Bowl champions.

"I think we will be coming into the game relaxed," said first-year Coach John Robinson, whose Rams finished the regular season with a 9-7 record and made it to the playoffs with a thrilling 26-24 win over the New Orleans last weekend. "We had to prove we could win a big game like the one we won against New Orleans, and we did."

The Cowboys, meanwhile, have demonstrated nothing in the last two weeks except that they are a team with problems. Following their critical 31-10 loss to the Washington Redskins, Dallas finished the year with the debate against San Francisco.

"This team has not suddenly become a 3-13 team or something like that," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, whose club finished the regular season 12-4 despite the two consecutive losses. "But it looks like that because of the mental state we are in."

"We can't speculate on what might happen. All we can do is perform and we are going to try to do everything we can to win. We are not going to avoid the challenge. But whether we come out on top or not, I'm not sure."

Los Angeles had lost two straight games before nipping the Saints and both the Rams and Cowboys have made their share of mistakes lately.

TOM LANDRY
Not sure what to expect

Landry said his two games made more errors in his last two games than he has seen a Cowboys squad make in years. And Robinson said it seemed like his team turned the ball over "800 times" in recent losses to Philadelphia and New England.

Other than mistakes, Monday's game will likely come down to which team can best run the ball with the Cowboys employing Tony Dorsett most of the time and the Rams going almost exclusively with rookie superstar Eric Dickerson. Dorsett, however, has had little room to run the last two weeks and Dickerson fumbled twice against New Orleans to almost cost his team a chance at the playoffs.

For Dallas, this marks the 17th appearance in the playoffs in the past 18 years. But the Cowboys are looking for their first Super Bowl trip since the 1976 season. Los Angeles returns to post-season competition for the first time since 1960, when the Rams were eliminated in the wild-card round by Dallas, 34-13.

"Our football team was a bit of a laughing stock," said Robinson, who took over the Rams this year from the dismissed Ray Malavara and benefited from the 1,800-yard rushing performance of Dickerson. "It has been a particularly rewarding team for me all around. We have some players like Jack Youngblood and Nolan Cromwell and Dennis Harrah, the kind of people who said, 'By God, we're not losing!'"

"They have been marvelous. It's been a fun year and everybody on this team has enjoyed it. They have enjoyed the feeling of getting off the deck. It may be the best time in your life when you are fighting to prove something or fighting to get back in a winning vintage."

Last-minute TD pass wins it

South nips North in Blue-Gray confrontation

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Buford McGhee of Mississippi snagged a 22-yard pass from Duke's Ben Bennett in the last minute of play Sunday to give the South a 17-13 victory over the North in the 46th annual Blue-Gray All-Star Classic.

The North defense dominated most of the first half but the South came back with two second-half touchdowns in a game that was marked with turnovers due in large part to 10-degree temperatures.

McGhee's winning reception stole the lead from the North, which had gone ahead midway through the fourth quarter on a 1-yard run by Tulsa's Michael Gunter. Gunter's score followed an interception of a Bennett pass by Martin Bayless of Bowling Green. It was the second interception of the game for Bayless, who led the NCAA this year with 10.

Runs by Michael Harper of Southern Cal and Gunter set up his 1-yard plunge.

Maryland's Willie Joyner gave the South a 10-6 lead in the third quarter on a 1-yard run. The Gray drove to the 33 of the North before stalling and was forced to punt. Safety Robert Porter of Holy Cross fumbled the punt and it rolled to the 18 before being recovered by Barney Bayless of South Carolina State. Two passes from Bennett to Joyner set up Joyner's scoring run up the middle.

The South's other points came on a 31-yard field goal in the first quarter by Bob Paulling of Clemson.

Brad Anderson of Arizona gave the Blue its first points when he grabbed a 9-yard pass from quarterback Randy Wright of Wisconsin with six seconds left in the first quarter. The North had started the drive at its own 42 and moved to the South 14.

The North mounted two strong drives in the second quarter but had one foiled by an interception in the end zone by Texas Tech's Stan David. The North moved to the South's 1-yard line in the second drive but the clock ran out at the end of the first half before they could score.

Most improved network announcer? ABC's O.J. Simpson

By JACK CRAIG
Boston Globe

BOSTON — The envelope, please, for the award to the most improved network sports broadcaster of 1983.

The winner, on Monday night football, is O.J. Simpson.

It's a story of steady progress from his first prime-time NFL telecast this fall, during which Simpson's only contribution was an occasional challenge of Howard Cosell's hasty judgments.

Consequence and did not interact very well with his two partners, Cosell and Frank Gifford.

Analysis

seemed at his best. He and partners Gifford and Don Meredith projected a good old boys. As three former NFL players, they have a similar perspective, far different than Cosell's.

ABC officials defend Cosell by claiming he often provocatively brings out the best in other analysts. The flip side of that theory is that he also can distract them from the action at hand, and Simpson concedes as much.

"Howard and I have been friends for years, and we tense all the time. But it's difficult to switch from a social to an on-air setting," he says. "If Howard's in a good mood for the game, it's great, but if he isn't..."

arrow who could work a football game with Khomeini."

Simpson says he always was confident of his knowledge of the game, apart from his own playing. "I played under seven coaches in the NFL and John McKay at USC. Some were good; some weren't. But you learn a lot from them. I don't want to brag, but I don't think you can become a great football player without studying the game."

As the season continued, it became apparent that Simpson possessed a sense of the game beyond that of most other former athletes. He was becoming much more comfortable on-air, culminating with the Dec. 19 telecast of the 49ers-Cowboys game, in which he took command as lead analyst while the carefree Meredith happily followed.

The peak of this performance, combining observation with candor, came after Danny White's pass was intercepted by the 49ers Eric Wright, who ran 48 yards for a touchdown. Immediately, Simpson declared pass receiver Doug Donley was to blame, not White, for failure to run a pass pattern that would have backed Wright away from where the ball was to be thrown. The replay was then run, and it confirmed Simpson's analysis.

Simpson is far from being a novice in sports broadcasting, having worked for ABC in the NFL offense for nine years, then joining NBC. But during his first six, he worked on a variety of unfamiliar Wide World and Superstar events, during which his chief contribution was his starchy personality. With NBC, acting was his main goal, and he failed.

When Simpson returned this fall to ABC, he brought new dedication as a football analyst. He continued his voice lessons and studied game films, and, more importantly, his own tapes in an effort to become more succinct. He succeeded.

O.J. SIMPSON
Has progressed steadily

Kuhn hardly presiding like a lame-duck commissioner

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bowie Kuhn is technically major league baseball's lame-duck commissioner, but his recent actions have hardly been lame and he hasn't ducked the issues. Kuhn, who will leave office by March 1, imposed the heaviest penalty in baseball history Friday when he fined New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner $250,000 for comments made about the "Pine Tar Game" — remarks which he considered detrimental to the best interests of baseball.

BOWIE KUHN
Pulling no punches

Just last week, Kuhn last week suspended four players for a year because of involvement with drugs. The blockbuster fine imposed on the Yankees centered around the controversial Pine Tar Game between the Yankees and Kansas City Royals last July 24. The largest fine previously levied by Kuhn was a $100,000 penalty against San Diego Padres owner Ray Kroc for tampering with Joe Morgan and Craig Nettles before they officially attained free-agent status.

From Tampa — Fla., Steinbrenner said he thought the fine against the team was excessive but the Yankees would abide by Kuhn's decision and pay it. Steinbrenner made numerous public comments saying that American League President Lee MacPhall's decision favoring the Royals and going against the Yankees was unfair.

"Once again, MacPhall has favored the culprit," Steinbrenner said over the summer. "He's bending over backward to accommodate the team that perpetrated the crime. I like Les but I feel sorry for him. He made a very dumb decision. It was a putrid decision. I don't question his integrity or his decency, but you have to question his decision."

"I wouldn't want to be Lee MacPhall living in New York. Maybe he should go horse-hunting in Kansas City."

The game was halted in the top of the ninth inning after George Brett's two-run homer off reliever Rich Gossage gave Kansas City a 5-4 lead with two out. Umpires Tim McClelland and Joe Brinkman ruled Brett had excessive pine tar on his bat.

Steinbrenner was reinstated after 15 months.

Last July 31, MacPhall suspended Steinbrenner for one week for statements made on May 27 questioning the integrity of umpires Darryl Cousins and John Shulock.

Steinbrenner's shoot-from-the-hip style also has caused him to be fined three previous times by Kuhn. On Nov. 11, 1979, he received a $5,000 fine for tampering with Brian Downing of the California Angels and he was fined $5,000 last Jan. 3 for remarks made about Chicago White Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf.

Kuhn also levied a $50,000 fine against Steinbrenner last April 19 for remarks — he made — with regard to National League President Chub Feeney. Steinbrenner said Feeney had told his umpires to favor the NL against the AL in exhibition games.

Steinbrenner also received a stern reprimand from Kuhn on June 26, 1980 for tampering with free-agent amateur Billy Cannon, Jr.

Kuhn's general policy is not to make public any fines he imposes unless the club or individual do so themselves.

The Yankees' revealed Friday's penalty by a statement which said: "The New York Yankees today announced they have been notified by Baseball Commissioner Bowie K. Kuhn following hearings completed Dec. 19, 1983 on the 'Pine Tar Game' that the commissioner is imposing a fine of $250,000 plus certain legal fees on the Yankees."

"Mr. Kuhn advised the Yankees that on the basis of the evidence received during these hearings, he had concluded that Yankees principal owner George M. Steinbrenner was in no way personally involved in bringing or directing the Davis or Morrison lawsuits, which involved the pine tar game lawsuits brought by fans in New York State Supreme Court."

"However, the position espoused by other representatives of the New York Yankees in connection with these lawsuits, and certain public statements by Mr. Steinbrenner, he felt, contravened the best interests of baseball."

As he has in the past, Steinbrenner accepted Kuhn's decision with a minimum of acrimony.

Filer mat touney Tuesday

FILER — The Filer Holiday Invitational Wrestling Tournament, an eight-team event, will be held Tuesday at the high school gymnasium. Competition starts at 1 p.m. with the championship round beginning at 7 p.m. Teams involved include Jerome, Minico, Twin Falls, Gooding, Aberdeen, Marsh Valley and Nampa's junior varsity, besides the host Wildcats. Admission is $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students bearing activity cards.

Galley, Hurt All-Academic

DILLON, Mont. — Steve Galley and Larry Hurt, former student athletes at Twin Falls High School now playing football at Western Montana College, have been selected to the Frontier-Conference All-Academic Team. The sophomores, members of Twin Falls' Class of '82, were among seven Western Montana players to earn the honor. Both Galley and Hurt have maintained a 2.2 grade-point average. Players were chosen from starters and part-time starters, excluding freshmen, with grade-point averages of 3.0 or higher.

L.A. cashing in already

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Olympic officials Friday presented a check for $3.9 million to city officials to pay the first installment of the tax collected on tickets for the 1984 Summer Games. Mayor Tom Bradley accepted a 3-foot cardboard replica of the check at a City Hall ceremony. The check was presented by G. Edward Smith, Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee president of ticketing, and David Simon, an LAOCG government relations official. The 6 percent municipal ticket distribution tax is paid into an Olympic Trust Fund to be used to cover security and other emergency expenses for the 1984 summer games. The $2.2 billion average. "I'm always pleased to receive large checks on behalf of the city — particularly two days before Christmas," the mayor said. "It's a very expensive gift. It proves that the LAOCG is able to meet every budget demand without city assistance and still come out with a substantial surplus."

Produce pestilence feared

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Officials fear that insects "hitchhiking" on produce brought into the area during next summer's Olympic Games could harm California's $14 billion farm industry and possibly spread to other states. "California is a wonderful place — just about any pest in the world would love it here," said Dick Thompson, an information officer with the state Food and Agriculture Department. The 1981 Mediterranean Fruit Infestation is believed to have begun with just one fly hitchhiking in from Hawaii. It is feared that Olympic visitors or team members will inadvertently bring in fruit, plants or meat products infected with pests that do not exist in California. Officials anticipate 700,000 out-of-town visitors for the Games, which run from July 28 to Aug. 12.

China to send full team

PEKING (UPI) — China will compete in at least 15 sports at the 1984 Summer Olympics, a spokesman said Friday. The team for the Summer Olympiad in Los Angeles will assemble in Peking in April for final training and 200 athletes, along with 100 sports officials, coaches and trainers will go to games, said Wu Zhongyuan. "We predict we will not get good results" except in a few events, Wu said at a news conference. He listed shooting, women's volleyball, diving, weightlifting, men's and women's gymnastics, archery and a few track and field events as the likely sports for China winning a medal. China's participation in Los Angeles will be the first time a full Chinese team will compete in a Summer Olympics.

French paper honors Lewis

PARIS (UPI) — Track star Carl Lewis was Saturday named as "Champion of the World" by L'Espece, the French sports newspaper, after a poll conducted among sports editors around the world. Lewis, 22, from Houston, who was also named the BBC's Overseas Sports Personality of 1983, finished ahead of tennis ace Martina Navratilova and swimmer Michael Gross of West Germany. Lewis won gold medals in the 100 meters, long jump and a 4 x 100-meter relay at the inaugural World Track and Field Championships in Helsinki, Finland.

Hearns to host benefit party

DETROIT (UPI) — Thomas Hearns, the World Boxing Council super welter-weight champion, said he hopes to raise funds for the financially ailing Detroit Public Library by hosting a New Year's Eve party. Hearns will delay training for his Jan. 24, title defense against Italian challenger Luigi Minchillo to host the party. "I couldn't think of another charity that needs it more," Hearns said. "This city has given so much support to me, I am just trying to give something back. It's a way for me to say thanks." Hearns said he would donate all proceeds to the Keep the Doors Open fund and support the Bea Ward Emanuel Steward. Hearns's manager, urged each organization in the area to donate $3,000 to cover the cost of a day's operation at a branch library. Hearns Friday took a job at fighter Sugar Ray Leonard's comeback bid. Leonard, the only person to defeat Hearns as a professional fighter before retiring with an eye injury, might do better to spend his time in a library instead of in the ring, Hearns joked. "It would be a good decision for Leonard to get involved with the library," Hearns said. "I don't think it's a good decision for him to be fighting again. I wouldn't take that chance myself."

OSU forward-guard injured

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon State forward-guard Rick Berry has suffered a stress fracture in his right foot and will be lost to the team for four to six weeks, OSU basketball Coach Ralph Miller announced today. Berry, 67, sustained the injury in practice Friday, Miller said. The freshman from Morgan Hills, Calif., started in all six of the Beavers' games this season and averaged 7.8 points and 2.7 rebounds per contest. "He was extremely sorry to lose Rick because he was doing a good job for us and making significant progress," Miller said. OSU will carry a 42 record into next week's Far West Classic tournament in Portland.

Junior tennis event opens

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (UPI) — Jason Rubell of New York won two matches Sunday to advance to the third round of the Boys-14 year division on the opening day of a junior tennis tournament. The event is known as the seventh annual Rolex International Junior Tennis Championships. Rubell defeated Daniel Moodman of South Africa 6-2, 5-7, 6-2 and Carlos Vanyte Mello of Brazil 6-2, 6-4. In other Boys-14 action, Lee Bowles of Canada eliminated Rogerio Felipe of Brazil 6-1, 6-1 and David Nainkin of South Africa beat Francisco Soares of Portugal 6-2, 6-1. In the Girls-14 Division, sixth-seed Soon Kim of Korea defeated Kelly Goldsborough of New York 6-1, 4-6, 6-2. Ninth seed Anis Surinovic of Finland defeated Anne Miller of Bethesda, Md., 6-4, 6-3; Annarita Cagnano of Italy beat Andreae Martin of Canada 6-3, 2-6, 6-0; and Claudia Fallace of Brazil eliminated Maria Albano of Peabody, Mass., 7-5, 3-6, 6-4.

Gregg

New Packers boss may keep offensive coordinator

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — New Coach Forrest Gregg says there is no doubt the Green Bay Packers' defense needs some overhauling, but he indicated he might talk to Bob Schnelker about returning to the team as offensive coordinator. Schnelker, who also sought the Packers' top job, was among those dismissed with Coach Bart Starr last Monday. He was also the first to announce his desire for the position the Packers gave Gregg Saturday. Under Schnelker, the Packers set several team offensive records this season, led by quarterback Lynn Dickey, who topped the NFL in touchdown passes and passing yards. "As far as Bob Schnelker is concerned, I've worked with Bob before (in Green Bay and San Diego)," Gregg said. "I have a great deal of respect for his abilities as an offensive coach. He's done an outstanding job with the Green Bay Packers." "When the dust settles, and we're able to determine what our needs are, Bob Schnelker would certainly be a guy I would be interested in talking

FORREST GREGG Admits defense needs help

In the league in defense. Meyer has been interviewed by the Miami Dolphins. Gregg said he realized the defense had injured this season, but "I believe this is an area that needs upgrading." Gregg, an All-Pro offensive tackle for the Packers in the '60s under the legendary Vince Lombardi, said his first obligation in naming his staff would be members of his staff at Cincinnati, where he had two years remaining on his contract. "I will look at the staff in Green Bay, and if I find out which of my coaches are coming, I will certainly be interested in talking to some of them in areas where I think we could use help," Gregg said. Gregg said he would not be a carbon copy of Lombardi but he did say, "I believe in discipline" like Lombardi did. "I don't think there's any question it's one of the most important things to a football team. "If players have to understand what is expected of them, I think they appreciate that. I think they want to know where they stand." One of the Packers, All-Pro wide receiver James Lofton, said, "They were going after a person who has won in the National Football League, which was important to them, someone with a good history." Gregg said by telephone Saturday at a news conference that returning to Green Bay was a dream come true. "Ever since I left Green Bay, I always hoped that some day I'd have the opportunity to coach this football team," he said. "This was it. I don't think I would have left Cincinnati for any other job." Gregg coached the Bengals for four years and took them to the Super Bowl once. He directed Cleveland for three years and was named Coach of the Year his first year there. But four of his seasons with those teams were losing ones. His overall record is 50-48. Cincinnati let Gregg out of his contract without asking the Packers for compensation. Gregg, 50, has had two operations to cure cancer found in a mole on his hip.

Pair of Cincinnati assistants covet vacated post

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Two Cincinnati Bengals assistant coaches have said they are interested in filling the club's head coaching job, vacated by Forrest Gregg, who will be taking over the Green Bay Packers. Defensive assistants Hank Bullough and Dick LeBeau said they will apply for the position. Paul Brown, the Bengals' vice president and general manager, said he will talk with his sons, Mike and Pete, both of whom are club officials, about the selection process. "We haven't crystallized it," Paul Brown said, "but I would like to hire a specific person in mind for the job." Bullough left no doubt that he'd like the position. "Of course I'd be interested," said Bullough, the Bengals defensive coordinator. But he added that he didn't know if Gregg would ask him to join the Packers. LeBeau, the secondary coach, said he'd be interested in staying in Cincinnati even if he's not tabbed for the No. 1 job, but he too said he's primarily interested in becoming head coach. "I don't have any fears in terms of qualifications," he said. LeBeau also rejected the notion the team would have to hire an offensive-minded coach. "The first thing you've got to know to stop an offense is how it's put together," he said of his qualifications. Although Gregg has said he'd like to take a number of his Cincinnati assistants to Green Bay, Bengals officials expect assistants Bruce Coslet and Jim McNally to remain because they are entering the second year of two-year contracts. "I'm sure I'd agree with us he wouldn't take anybody that was signed," Paul Brown said. "They both plan to remain with us." Maintaining stability has been a major problem for the Bengals this year. In addition to Gregg's departure, the team fired offensive coordinator Lindy Infante before the 1983 season started after he announced he would become head coach of the USFL's Jacksonville Bulls in 1984. Wide receiver Cris Collinsworth announced early in the season he would join the USFL's Tampa Bay franchise in 1985. At about the same time, tight end Dan Ross announced he was joining the New Orleans Breakers of the new league this spring. A number of other players who were unable to come to contract terms with the Bengals have announced during the past few weeks that they are joining the USFL.

Next up for Seattle: Miami

Seahawks suddenly seem stupendous

SEATTLE (UPI) — After hovering around the 500 mark for the entire regular season, the Seattle Seahawks all of a sudden look like a hot team with a hot quarterback. In the first playoff appearance in the eight-year history of the franchise, the Seahawks easily defeated the Denver Broncos 31-7 Saturday behind Dave Krieg's three touchdown passes. But that was a game between two fairly evenly matched AFC wild-card teams. Next up for the Seahawks is one of the top teams in the league, the AFC Eastern Division champion Miami Dolphins. The Seahawks and Dolphins meet next weekend in Miami with the winner advancing to the AFC final. "I don't know anything about them (the Dolphins)," Krieg said. "All I can think about is how warm it is there." It would be hard to be much hotter than Krieg was against the Broncos. He connected on 12 of 13 passes for an even 200 yards and the three touchdowns. And, just as important from Seattle's point of view, the Seahawks played their second straight game without a turnover. "It's hard to beat anybody when they execute the way they did," said Denver Coach Dan Reeves. Seattle now has won three games in a row for the first time this season. The playoff victory over Denver, and the 24-6 win over New England the week before when just Seattle into the playoffs were probably the team's best two games of the year. In particular, Seattle Coach Chuck Knox was pleased with his club's second-half dominance of the Broncos. After leading Denver by only 10-7 at halftime, Seattle did all the scoring in the final two periods to turn a close game into a rout. "I don't think I've coached any

the first two games. Then Seattle came out "throwing in" the third quarter and put the game out of reach. "We played good football except for the turnovers," said Denver linebacker Randy Gradishar, who retired after an outstanding 10-year career. "One thing about a Chuck Knox team — they don't turn the ball over." The Broncos ended their season with just about as much confusion over their quarterback position as they had throughout the year. Steve Deberg, the veteran who led Denver to four straight wins before suffering a shoulder injury seven weeks ago, started and went most of the way against Seattle. But rookie John Elway, who opened and "closed" the regular season as Denver's starter, also got his chance in the fourth quarter, when the Broncos' offense couldn't produce more than the one touchdown. With their first playoff win in hand, the Seahawks didn't seem particularly daunted by the prospect of facing Miami. "The only team that is dominating other teams is the Redskins," said defensive end Jason Green. "After that everyone has a chance."

I want to see all the teams be competitive

Trump taking lead in promoting young USFL

DONALD TRUMP A renowned builder

NEW YORK (UPI) — A builder of renown, 37-year-old Donald Trump knows all about arranging steel and concrete effectively. Whether he can combine quarterbacks and safety blitzes as well remains to be seen. One thing seems certain: Trump, who used upwards of $10 million of his real estate fortune to buy the USFL New Jersey Generals in September, figures to give football a good try. "I want to win," he says simply. Unofficially, Trump's job goes well beyond building a winner in New Jersey. His case in the New York spotlight makes him a logical choice as leader of the young league's drive for visibility. "You have to have loyalty to the league," he says. "I want to see all the teams be competitive." No matter how well the other teams do, however, the league depends highly on the New York franchise for recognition. Even if the team, does poorly, Trump will make sure it stays in the newspaper. "I've been a visible guy in terms of the media," he says, referring to his real estate career. "Now we go into this (sports) and we're visible." Trump appears to have acquired the knack for filling up sports pages. Before hiring former New York Jets coach Walt Michaels, Trump tried to land Don Shula, an effort that generated publicity. Trump freely admits pursuing Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe, and various other rumors, have the team coveting Jets' lineman Matt Gastneau and Giants' linebacker Lawrence Taylor. Trump believes he can manage the line-line-between publicity and credibility. "I don't think anybody in the country has achieved more credibility than me in a business sense in the last few years," he says.

The last statement is pure Donald Trump. He is proud of his accomplishments and confident of continued success. He sees no reason to let other people mention his achievements when he himself can already. veteran writers see the General owner as a potential rival to Yankees owner George Steinbrenner as a master promoter. In fact, at a recent sports forum conducted by a New York newspaper, Steinbrenner learned Trump planned to announce the hiring of Michaels on a certain day. The Yankees intended to announce the firing of Billy Martin the same day, and reminded him, "You're the new kid on the block." Trump would up changing the Generals' press conference. But chances are he won't play the new kid on the block very long. He certainly has the money.

Houston, Fresno State win at tourney

HONOLULU (UPI) — Akram Olujuwon scored 8 of his 19 points during the final seven minutes Sunday to lead No. 3 Houston to a 76-73 victory over No. 8 Louisville in the first round of the Chamaine Classic.

In the second game, Ron Anderson scored 25 points to lead Fresno State to a 66-59 decision over Chamaine. Houston will meet Fresno State in the championship game tonight.

Olujuwon, plagued by foul problems, returned to the lineup with the Cougars trailing 63-60 and 7:47 left. The Nigerian center, who had 13 rebounds and 6 blocked shots, and Michael Young, who had 20 points, sparked the Cougars down the stretch in a rematch of last season's NCAA semifinals. It was Houston's 10th consecutive victory after a season-opening loss to North Carolina State. Louisville, 43, was led by Milt Wagner with 18 points. Houston faltered whenever Olujuwon was removed from the game. He picked up his third foul with 2:44 left in the first half and Houston leading 35-28. Louisville went on an 8-2 spurt to make it 37-36 at halftime.

When he was benched with his fourth foul with 12:38 to go, Louisville outscored Houston 13-6 to take its biggest lead, 63-60. Olujuwon returned to key-a-16-0 burst to ensure Houston's victory. Louisville led only twice, both times in the second half. Billy Thompson, suffering from a bad back, hit a short jumper from the outset of the second half and the Cardinals took the lead again with Olujuwon out of the lineup. Houston led by 8 points in the first half with Young contributing 12 points and Olujuwon and Alvin Franklin adding 9 each.

The Cougars built leads of 6 points in the second half but Jeff Hall, Louisville's reserve guard, scored all 11 of his points during that period and Wagner scored 10 points in the final 20 minutes, to keep the Cardinals in contention.

In improving its record to 8-2, Fresno State, the defending-NIT champion, shot 82 percent from the field in the first half to take a 38-27 lead. Anderson hit for 14 and Bernard Thompson added 8 of his 34 in the opening 20 minutes.

Chamaine, ranked No. 3 in the NAIA, crept within 4 points midway through the second half, but a 3-0 play by Anderson with 5:49 left rebuilt Fresno State's lead.

Richard Haenisch scored 24 points for the Silverswords, 8-3, before fouling out. Jason Strickland added 12 points and Patrick Langlois 11.

BYU boss says bench won Boise St. game

By United Press International

Brigham Young Coach Ladell Anderson says he was glad to get the win, "but nobody should have to lose a game just two days before Christmas."

Anderson wasn't convinced his Cougars were headed for victory Friday night, trailing Boise State by 11 late in the first half, 30-19. But BYU closed to within 34-32 of the Broncos at halftime and then dominated the second half to win 65-54.

Devin Durrant led BYU to its fifth win in eight games, scoring a game-high 18 points despite suffering a cut over his left eye just before halftime that required 11 stitches to close. Brett Applegate added 13 points for the Cougars and grabbed a game-high 13 rebounds.

Vince Hinchen led Boise State, now 6-2, with 15 points before he fouled out in the final minute, while Bruce Bolden added 13 points for BSU.

After BYU fell behind early, Anderson said he started sending in his reserves "to get some fire in the team. It was the guys off the bench that won the ball game. I felt very, very fortunate to get back into the game."

Anderson said Boise State "played our tails off in the first half. They make you go after the ball or they'd steal it."

First-year Boise State Coach Bobby Dye said his Broncos fell behind in the second half "because we just seemed to miss point-blank shots. We got out of our rhythm and our shot selection."

But Dye admitted, "We played a good team and they beat us. It's as simple as that. There's nothing bad about losing here. BYU won't lose to many teams at home."

The Broncos got fat at home to open the 1983-84 season, winning six of their seven games in the BSU Pavilion.

But now they will have to find a way to win on the road, with three games at this week's Pac-10 Classic, Tuesday through Friday at Portland.

BYU also faces a major road test this week, at 9th-ranked UCLA on Wednesday night.

In last Friday night's other game for a team from the Pacific, Montana (9-1) got back on the winning track with a 92-80 victory at Loyola of California. The Grizzlies' 8-game winning streak ended last Wednesday with a 91-83 loss of Cal-Irvine.

Nevada-Reno, after a 0-4 start to open the season, got its third straight win last week. The Wolf Pack edged Pepperdine 78-77 in overtime Tuesday night as Tony Sommers scored his 13th point-of-the-contest on a free throw with 23 seconds left for the game-winning point.

Utah State climbed to 8-3 with a pair of wins over in-state rivals, beating Utah 95-86 on Tuesday night and the downing Weber State 69-63 Thursday night.

This coming week will see a series of holiday tournaments throughout the West; with Oregon and Oregon State hosting the Far West Classic, Texas-El Paso hosting its Sun Carnival Classic Tuesday and Wednesday, Wyoming and Nevada-Reno hosting their Cowboy Shootout and Wolf Pack Classic Wednesday and Thursday; and Utah, New Mexico and San Diego State hosting their Ute Classic, Lobo Invitational and Cabrillo Classic Thursday and Friday.

Refs don't make it, but Kentucky does

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Top-ranked Kentucky escaped with a 56-54 win over unranked Illinois Saturday in a game delayed 15 minutes when three Big Ten officials couldn't make it because of hazardous travel conditions.

These six officials, two dressed in blue jeans, filled in and Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall said all circumstances considered, he was pleased with the two-point victory.

"A Christmas Eve win on the road with these conditions, I'm delighted," Hall said.

Freshman James Blackmon hit a 9-foot bank shot with one second left to lift the undefeated Wildcats to their seventh straight win before 7,651 people who braved icy winds and 12-below temperatures to see the game in Assembly Hall.

Kentucky trailed 35-26 at halftime and after a close second half, Illini Quinn Richardson tied the game 54-44 on 19 seconds remaining. The Wildcats called time out with eight seconds left to plan the final shot. Blackmon, a 6-foot-3 reserve guard, hit the game winner on a bank shot from the right side.

"We started out for Blackmon to get that last shot," Hall said.

Coach Lou Henson, who saw his team lose its first game after eight wins, said he had few complaints about the Illini's play.

"We played well, we played hard," he said. "We had an opportunity to win it but you've got to give Kentucky credit, they played a super second half."

Henson also had praise for the quick-fix officiating job.

"I think the officials did an outstanding job," Henson said.

Illinois gave up several inches to Kentucky's giant starting front line, but 7-foot-1 center Sam Bowie was on the bench much of the first half after collecting two quick fouls. Kentucky beat Illinois on the boards 25-15.

The Wildcats were led by a balanced scoring attack, including 11 points each from senior guard Jim Master and Bowie. Sophomore forward Kenny Walker added 10. Illini guard Doug Altengraber scored 19, Erem Winters scored 15 and Bruce Douglas added 12 for the losers.

Bowie hit a stuff shot and an 8-footer in the first minute as the Wildcats took the early lead. But with two fouls, Bowie was taken out after only four and a half minutes and sat on the bench the remainder of the half.

Winters scored the Illini's first seven points and gave the host team its first lead, 13-11, on an inside basket with 13:07 before intermission.

Maryland coasts past BC

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Jeff Adkins scored 23 points and Len Bias added 19 Saturday as 11th-ranked Maryland built a 15-point halftime cushion and coasted to an 88-76 victory over 6th-ranked Boston College.

Maryland, 6-1, led 40-25 lead at intermission as Boston College hit only eight of 30 shots in the first half. The Eagles, 6-1, never cut the Terrapin lead below 10 points in the second half, and that came with 26 seconds left.

Michael Adams scored 16 of his 22 points in the second half to pace Boston College. Jay Murphy added 18 points and Roger McCready 12 for the Eagles.

Maryland raced to a 17-4 lead during the first seven minutes of the game behind Adkins' seven points. Even with Terrapin center Ben Coleman on the bench with three fouls in the first three minutes, the Eagles could hit only one of their first seven shots.

Boston College trimmed the deficit to 21-14 on a layup by Adams with 8:17 left in the first half. But Adrian Branch scored six points during a 14-4 Maryland surge and Jeff Baxter's 16-foot jump shot with 3:18 left in the half pushed the Terrapins' lead to 35-18.

McCready scored four points and Murphy two in the first minutes of the second half as Boston College sliced the lead to 42-31. The Terrapins responded with two long jump shots by Adkins and a three-point play by Bias to push their lead to 49-33 with 14:50 left in the game.

Boston College, which hit 50 percent during its first seven games, connected on only 30 of 82 shots. Maryland hit 35 of 63 shots, including 11 of 16 by Adkins.

COMMITTEES

Committees can make you wait on an agricultural loan — 'till the cows come home.

You avoid lengthy committee decisions at First Security Bank — In most cases, the officer you talk to is the one who grants you the loan!

Getting a production loan can be quick and convenient at First Security Bank. Our agricultural loan officers are experts. Many have been farmers and ranchers themselves and can really understand your problems, listen to your needs and support your plans for the future.

Right now, we're ready and willing to loan you money for whatever good reason: seed, feed, farm operations, livestock, equipment, fertilizer, construction — ANY worthwhile agricultural need.

Plus — our 69 offices throughout Idaho save you time and travel away from home.

So why leave town to look for a loan. Visit a lending officer at any one of our convenient locations. We want to help you get the loan you're looking for. Upon Approval.

When farmers and ranchers need a loan — First Security is there to help!

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF INTENDED RULE-MAKING in compliance with Section 67-5203(a)(1), Idaho Code, notice is hereby given that the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Health Care, has initiated rule-making. The proposed action, under Docket Number 0219-8301, involves the amendment of rules governing Restaurant Sanitation, Chapter 19, Rules and Regulations of the Department of Health and Welfare. The action is proposed under the authority granted in Section 39-1601, Idaho Code, and in Section 39-1701, Idaho Code, for the purposes of implementing the provisions of Sections 39-1801 and 39-1701, Idaho Code, effective as soon as possible.

The following is a descriptive summary of the substance of the intended principal issues involved:

The present Food Service Regulations were promulgated and went into effect in February 1975. Since that time, there has been an accumulation of changes which we perceive as being necessary for the maintenance of a smoothly operating program. Some of these changes have significant financial impacts through the decrease in regulations which will save money for those being regulated.

In addition, we have been requested to review the number of regulations to be consistent with the new computerized filing system. It is convenient and cost-effective to update and renumber at the same time.

Within the time limits specified below, any person can review the proposed rules in the DHW Administrative Procedure Section or in any of the regional administrative offices of the Department. Copies of the proposed rules will be made available upon written request delivered to the department, numbered below.

Anyone can submit written comments regarding the proposed rules, and any individual or industry who may be affected by the proposed rules is encouraged to submit information concerning the anticipated economic impact of the proposed action. For assistance on technical questions, contact M. Burke Cannon, Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Health, (208)334-4170, Boise. All written comments and data concerning the proposed rules must be directed to the undersigned and must be postmarked or delivered on or before January 3, 1984.

Rule-making hearings will be held if signed written requests for a hearing are submitted personally or by addressed to the undersigned on or before January 3, 1984, from interested persons, or from an association representing a majority of the members of the organization, or from a governmental subdivision or agency. Hearing requests should include a statement of the direct interests of the petitioner(s) in the subject matter of the proposed rules. Any hearing will be held in accordance with the provisions of the Idaho Administrative Procedure Act, Chapter 30, Rules and Regulations, Title 2, Idaho Code, effective as of November, 1983.

DATED this 25th day of November, 1983:

Pat Fawcett, Administrative Procedure Section, Department of Health and Welfare, 450 West State Street, 8th Floor, Boise, Idaho 83720.

NOTICE OF INTENDED RULE-MAKING in compliance with Section 67-5203(a)(1), Idaho Code, notice is hereby given that the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Health Care, has initiated rule-making. The proposed action, under Docket Number 0220-8301, involves the amendment of rules governing Food Establishments, Title 2, Chapter 20, Rules and Regulations of the Department of Health and Welfare. The action is proposed under the authority granted in Section 37-132, Idaho Code, for the purposes of making specific the provisions of Sections 39-107(8), Idaho Code, effective as soon as possible.

The following is a descriptive summary of the substance of the intended action and the principal issues involved:

This proposal is for the purpose of changing the portion of these regulations dealing with the legal authority to promulgate and enforce regulations.

The changes are designed to include additional references which more directly identify with the types of food establishments, other than food service establishments, specified below, any person can review the proposed rules in the DHW Administrative Procedure Section or in any of the regional administrative offices of the Department. Copies of the proposed rules will be made available upon written request delivered to the department, numbered below.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

By Bil Keane

"Did everyone in the world get the wrong sizes for Christmas, Mommy?"

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"In this world a man must be either a winner or a loser. He has to choose. He has to choose. He has to choose."

Counting 10 sure tricks is not the same as using them. See if you can spot where South went wrong in the play of today's heart game.

South ruffed the second trump and quickly played trumps. East discarded on the second round and South drew one more for good measure. Next he played three rounds of clubs and West ruffed. Now it made little difference whether West led spades or diamonds, since South was cut off from his club suit and lost his game. Did you avoid the trap that South fell into?

After South plays two rounds of trumps and East discards, South should realize that he cannot draw trumps without isolating his long club suit. The only conventional entry back to South's hand is the trump suit, so South must realize drawing that third trump. Instead, two of dummy's top clubs are played (a third lead would give West a safe ruff), and dummy's third trump is led. South can safely draw West's trumps and unblock the club suit in the process. On his last trump, dummy's remaining club honor is discarded and South...
