Hopefuls invade South

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

Democratic presidential candidates invaded the South on Thursday with John Glenn proclaiming himself the "new underdog" and Gary Hart saying he would fight for votes in the region. At the same time, two southern contenders were forced out of the race by dismal finishes in New Hampshire.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina and former Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida became the second and third victims of New Hampshire voters.

Hollings, who received a percent of Tuesday's primary vote, told a Washington news conference the results "got me back to a hard reality." Askew got only 1 percent in New Hampshire and told a Miami news conference, "I tried to be true to myself and my deepest convictions."

Glenn spoke to the Alabama Legislature at the state Capitol in Montgomery, while Hart stopped at the city's airport for a news conference at which he said, "I don't expect to be rejected in the South."

Glenn told the Legislature, "I guess I'm what you would call the new underdog today." The Ohio senator finished a distant third in New Hampshire after winding up fifth in the Iowa caucuses the week before. Hart was the surprise winner of the New Hampshire primary and the Colorado senator quickly was challenged by Walter F. Mondale to compete for support throughout the South.

"Well, Fritz, here I am," Hart said on his arrival in Alabama. "I think the voters of Alabama just like the voters of New Hampshire will send a message to the Washington establishment and the special interests and will not submit to insider control of the Democratic Party," he added.

Hart tied the interests of the South to those of his home region. "The South and the West together are carrying the future of this nation," he said.

Mondale was in Washington on Thursday and planned to campaign in Maine and Georgia on Friday.

Bowing out of the race, Hollings said, "I announce today that I will be skipping ahead as an active candidate in this presidential contest."

"It was one of the best educational I've ever had," he added. "I leave with satisfaction that my message has gotten through to the other candidates," he claimed.

Pentagon accused of muzzling audit

By DAVID GOELLER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An angry Senate committee chairman Thursday accused the Defense Department of covering up defense contractors' waste and fraud by "muzzling" a whistleblower who was ordered not to testify about military auditing practices.

The complaint by Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Del., came as his Government Affairs Committee was told at a hearing that the Defense Contract Audit Agency is tougher on its own auditors than it is on the contractors it is supposed to monitor.

"I'm angry," said Roth. "The Department of Defense is muzzling one of our key witnesses." Roth said A. Ernest Fitzgerald, a longtime critic of military procurement practices, had been told he could testify in his capacity as deputy assistant Air Force secretary for management systems.

An editorial — A4

"There's something wrong in the state of Denmark when one of the key witnesses is not allowed to appear before us," Roth said. "There's been, in effect, a cover-up."

Fitzgerald told a news conference on Capitol Hill that his decision not to testify was his. He confirmed a statement by Air Force Secretary Verne Orr denying that Fitzgerald had been ordered not to testify.

Orr said Fitzgerald had been told he is free to appear at any time before Congress.

"He has been further advised it is not necessary to clear his statements in advance with any Air Force officials as long as he informs the committee that the views he expresses are his own and not the official views of the Air Force," Orr said.

"Mr. Fitzgerald's decision not to appear was his own," Orr said.

Fitzgerald told reporters he initially thought he had received Air Force approval for the statement he and other Air Force officials had prepared for Roth's hearing.

But late Wednesday, Fitzgerald said, he was told he could not represent the statement as Air Force policy. He said he did not know who made that decision. He said he did not have time to draft alternate testimony.

Both released Air Force memorandums, signed by Robert A. Sands, chief of the contract pricing and financial office, which objected to Fitzgerald's prepared testimony.

"We do not feel that Mr. Fitzgerald's perceptions reflect a true picture of Air Force policies or activities with regards to the issues," Sands wrote.

Death of wage plan halts judge confirmation

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — A House committee rejected on Thursday a proposal that, in effect, would have confirmed John Varin's appointment as Camas County's new magistrate judge.

The proposal would have required the Legislature to appropriate money to pay the salary and benefits of lawyer-magistrates, appointed by magistrate commissions, who are replacing non-lawyer magistrates. Varin has been so appointed.

However, several House committee members wondered aloud whether the state's second-least populated county needs a judge that would cost state taxpayers almost $50,000 a year.

"Why provide a lawyer-magistrate for two weeks work?" Appropriations Committee Chairwoman Kathleen "Kitty" Gurnsey asked the committee.

Former Camas County Magistrate Judge Charles Packham, a non-lawyer who recently retired his post, cost taxpayers only $20,400 a year, according to Carl Bianchi, director of the Idaho Administrative Office of the Court.

A newly appointed non-lawyer magistrate would cost only $18,726 a year, Bianchi added, citing Packham's long pay as a factor in his salary.

"You can safely say there is not enough work in Camas County to keep a lawyer judge busy," Bianchi said in an interview Thursday.

But the question is, do people in Camas County deserve a right to a lawyer judge like every other county in the state? he asked.

Fifth District Judge Douglas

Kramer, chairman of the Magistrate Commission that appointed Varin on the contingency the Legislature would appropriate the necessary funding, says the decision to appoint Camas County's prosecuting attorney as a lawyer-magistrate was a good one.

And he says the proposal that the Appropriations Committee rejected was actually good as a way to resolve the ambiguity in Idaho law that make magistrate selection difficult.

He says Varin could be used to perform magistrate functions in other

This has been a good winter for business in Sun Valley, but not a spectacular one. The number of skiers on the slopes, like those at Warm Springs, has fallen off about 5 percent from last year. After a fast start, bitter cold and little snow in January slowed business. For a complete story, turn to Page B1.

In reaction to alleged child abuse. Licensing of day-care centers granted endorsement by Senate

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
The Associated Press

BOISE (AP) — Idaho day-care businesses, reeling from reports of child abuse by some operators, would have to be licensed under a bill the state Senate has endorsed after heavy debate.

The measure sent to the House on a 23-12 vote Thursday is an attempt "to protect Idaho children from unscrupulous, perverted adults," the bill's sponsor, Sen. Atwell Parry, R-Melba, told the Senate.

But in opposing the bill, Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Declo, said that "only a thin sliver of the total child-abuse pie occurs in day-care homes and centers."

Most crimes against children happen in their own homes, Darrington said. He told legislators that if their ultimate intent is to curb abuse, they should consider licensing adults to conceive children.

Sen. William Moore, R-Hayden Lake, claimed the bill could force small-scale operators out of business because the restrictions placed on them would be excessive.

Moore moved unsuccessfully to have the bill amended to exempt homes caring for fewer than four children.

DENTON DARRINGTON
Says bill misguided

An estimated 800 day-care homes and centers would be affected by the bill, said Sen. John Barker, R-Dubu, chairman of the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee. That committee heard testimony on the bill and advanced it to the full Senate.

Barker said about half of the 800 hold optional licenses available under current regulations. The proposed law to be enforced by the Idaho Health and Welfare Department, calls for investigations to determine whether license applicants have criminal records.

Various regulations concerning health, safety and facilities also would be "drawn up" after public hearings.

Idaho's standing as the only state without mandatory licensing has made it a dumping ground for violators who lose their permits in other states and move to Idaho for its open-door policy, say some supporters of Parry's bill.

But opponent Sen. Roger Fairchild, R-Fruitland, told senators the state can't regulate all aspects of its residential lives.

"Government cannot solve every problem for everybody in every instance," Fairchild said.

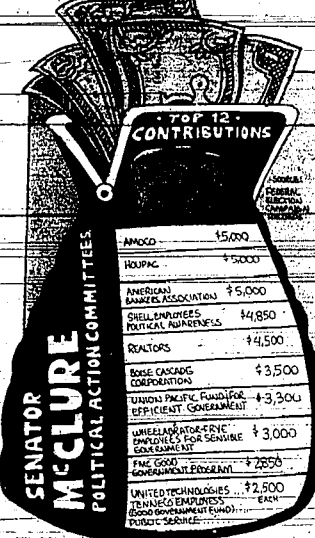

He also said the licensing bill had turned into "an emotional mess here where if you don't support this bill, you're in favor of child abuse."

Sen. Gail Bray, D-Boise, argued she had studied several reports of Boise-area child care being provided by people with a history of mistreating children.

Parents of youngsters abused while receiving day care rarely press charges, Mrs. Bray said. She said that when cases have been carried through the court system, judges have ordered probation and allowed offenders to continue operating child-care facilities.

Political groups pour money to McClure's campaign chest

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Amoco Oil Co., a group of Houston businessmen known as HOUPOAC and the American Banking Association head up a list of the top 12 political action committees contributing to Sen. James McClure's re-election campaign.

Each of these three PACs bolstered McClure's campaign treasury with a $5,000 contribution, the maximum allowable under federal election laws, according to campaign records filed with the Idaho Secretary of State.

To date, the top 12 PACs have contributed a total of $39,500 to McClure's $111,904 campaign war chest. The rest of the campaign money has been raised from 320 smaller PAC contributions totaling $187,365 and 4,343 individual contributions totaling $274,629.

The money will be spent over the next eight months by McClure's Boise-based campaign headquarters to try and ensure a successful Senate re-election bid.

The 1984 PAC contributions, which are expected to grow still larger before the election year ends, already represent a more than 35 percent increase over the $111,873 in PAC contributions McClure received during his entire 1978 re-election campaign, according to statistics compiled by Common Cause, a Washington-based citizen lobby group.

A study authored by Common Cause indicates McClure's increased level of PAC funding is part of a national trend that has seen PAC funding of incumbent senators rise sharply over 1978 election-year levels.

Fred Wertheimer, president of Common Cause, says the study indicates "a proven winner should have little trouble raising huge amounts of PAC money."

The PACs scrutinized in the Common Cause study are established by corporations, unions and special-interest groups to help fund money for political candidates of their choice. The PACs are allowed to contribute up to $5,000 to each candidate prior to primary elections, and an additional $5,000 after the primary elections, says Fred Elland, a Federal Election Commission spokesman.

PAC officials contacted by The Times-News said they contributed to McClure's campaign for reasons ranging

Actor Jackie Coogan dies at 69
 SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Jackie Coogan, the child movie star who appeared with Charlie Chaplin in "The Kid" and later went on to portray the bald Uncle Fester in the TV comedy series "The Addams Family," died Thursday of cardiac arrest. He was 69.
 Coogan, accompanied by his wife, was taken to Santa Monica Hospital from his Malibu home at 12:50 p.m. and was treated in the emergency room; then transferred to the cardiac care unit, spokeswoman Mary Isaacs said. He died at 1:30 p.m. MRS. Coogan was born Oct. 28, 1914, and made his screen debut when he was 16 months old. He was discovered by Chaplin in his parents' vaudeville act at age 4 and was called to fame as the sweet-faced urchin in "The Kid"; he rained the neighborhood breaking windows that Chaplin, a glazier, would repair.
 The child actor made money — more than $4 million — before he was out of short pants. But at 21, Coogan discovered his parents had spent it all, leaving him penniless.
 In 1928, Coogan sued his mother and stepfather over the missing money. The suit was settled out of court and the thorn-nosed actor got $150,000.

 SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Trial for two California men charged with setting fire to a nearby bean warehouse and filing false insurance claims has been continued until Monday.
 The defendants, James R. Woods, Salinas, and Martin K. Taylor, Madera, were indicted by a federal grand jury last year on charges stemming from the July 1979 fire at the Filer warehouse.
 According to the government, shortages had occurred at the warehouse and Woods ordered the fire to cover up Taylor, according to authorities, was hired to run the warehouse. He is accused of setting the fire.
 The trial is being held in U.S. District Court for Utah because insurance companies are headquartered here.
 The delay was granted at the request of defense counsel.

Church donates papers to BSU
 BOISE (AP) — Former Idaho Sen. Frank Church, undergoing treatment for a pancreatic tumor, will donate his public papers and memorabilia to the Boise State University Library.
 The news was announced Wednesday Church said he chose BSU because it's in his home town and in the capital of the state he represented in the Senate for 24 years.
 "I've just something I wanted to do right and fortunately I've been given some time to work out the plans," he said.
 He noted that the university had established the Frank Church Chair on Public Affairs.

 locations in southern Idaho where a backlog of cases is being experienced. We could find enough work for him," Kramer said.
 The ambiguities in the law result from conflicting powers of the magistrates' commissions and the state Legislature.

The commissions have the power to replace non-lawyer magistrates with lawyer magistrates when vacancies occur. The Legislature, however, has the power to effectively reject those appointments when they occur by denying the Idaho court system the money to pay the salary of higher-priced lawyer-magistrates.

By law, all counties in Idaho must have a residing magistrate judge. "If the Legislature doesn't want a magistrate in Camas County, why don't they say so?" Kramer asked in a telephone interview with his Halley residence.

The proposal, which was carried by Rep. Gordon Hallifield, R-Jerome, would have required the Legislature to pay the salaries of lawyer-magistrates chosen by the commissions — effectively solving the problem.

Kramer also contends that lawyer-magistrates because they are limited in their powers. He adds that the Legislature's propensity toward legislating mandatory minimum jail sentences for conviction of certain crimes — particularly drunk driving — means more cases will go to court and more judges will be needed to hear them.

Blanchi says six other Idaho counties are experiencing similar situations with retiring magistrates. He says the magistrates commissions in those areas face equally difficult decisions stemming from the law's ambiguities.

 from the senator's staunch belief in the free enterprise system to his support for legislation that could benefit their corporate interests.

Doug Cannon, an official in the Armed Oil PAC, said the PAC's candidate for the U.S. Senate is a "primary" oilman, and predicted this reporter to Carl Myrdkier, a corporate spokesman.

Myrdkier said McClure has "expressed a number of causes that are extremely important to the nation as a whole."
 Myrdkier added that McClure is also "a leading proponent of natural gas deregulation, which is one of the prime concerns we have. It has been a very tough battle and the senator has done an outstanding job of attempting to bring more attention to the issue."

HOUFAC, a second group which donated $5,000 to the senator's re-election campaign is composed of what a spokesman termed "a broad-base of Houstonians, not necessarily in the oil field, but probably weighted to oil businessmen or oil-related fields."

Jack Webb, a Houston attorney who serves as executive vice president of HOUFAC, said his group feels "Texas and Idaho have similar philosophies — that is, the individualistic approach to handling problems rather than the governmental approach. We feel that McClure best exemplifies that philosophy of free enterprise."

Vince Glimmer, a spokesman for a PAC formed by Shell Oil employees, said McClure's popularity among the company's Rocky Mountain area employees who admired his progressive orientation prompted a $4,650 campaign donation.

Another major McClure contributor is a PAC formed by the Connecticut-based United Technologies Corp., a manufacturing conglomerate that grossed $14 billion in 1983 and employs some 190,000 individuals. This PAC contributed $2,600 to McClure's campaign.

Rick Whitmyre, a spokesman for United Technologies' PAC, said McClure "has an outstanding record of legislative leadership."

This record, he said, includes strong support for alternative energy development, including a fuel cell battery that the company is currently researching.

"McClure has believed that the fuel cell is one of the leading alternative energy sources of the future," Whitmyre said.

Other major PAC contributors, including the Public Service PAC, a special interest group opposed to pro-union legislation, Wheelabrator, a New Hampshire-based engineering firm and Boise-Cascade Corporation.

Loan-fund endorsed as step to tuition

By BOB FICK
The Associated Press

BOISE — In an attempt to test sentiment for lifting the ban on tuition, a Senate committee has endorsed creation of a state-financed loan fund to aid Idaho college students should tuition ever be imposed.

"It demonstrates good faith," said John Clute, the chairman of a special task force recommended in the position of tuition and the loan fund as part of an overall program for improving higher education in Idaho.

"The students should be paying their fair share," Clute said, but he added that a loan-fund for those in financial distress will "make sure no student would be deprived of an opportunity to attend a college or university because of the increased cost."

Although the Health, Education and Welfare Committee unanimously approved the loan bill on Thursday, some committee members declined to commit themselves to support when it comes to a full Senate vote next week.

Clute is going to use the Senate as a sounding board "on a more controversial package lifting the constitutional ban on tuition that still awaits committee action," said Chairman John Barker, R-Boise.

"It sets the whole stage for what we're trying to do," Barker said. "If it passes, ... it sets a pattern for the whole other package."

But if the tuition plan wins legislative approval, it would still need voter endorsement this fall before it could be implemented. The Board of Education split 4-3 on the issue.

At almost the same time Thursday, the author of a report critical of the special task force's recommendations, claimed his alternatives have been misunderstood.

Samuel Blumenfeld, the author of books promoting private-school education, told reporters his recommendation that Idaho divest itself of its public colleges and universities was made as just another alternative to be considered with all the others put forth in the past several months.

"The idea of divestiture is an idea," Blumenfeld said. "I am simply trying to tell the people of this state that they want to look before they leap."

Pointing out that major cost increases that Idaho's Association of Commerce and Industry would impose, he said turning public colleges into private institutions could be tried on a piecemeal basis or experimentally to see if it really will improve education and save the state money as his report for the Center for the Study of Market Alternatives suggests.

Even then, however, Blumenfeld said the state would not end its responsibility in higher education but only its control over the institutions. The state should still be providing financial assistance to students needing it to meet private school tuition costs.

Despite deadly storm February called tame

By The Associated Press

February was written into the record books Thursday as one of the warmest ever in many cities, while March opened its act with a Dixie freeze and snowflakes chewed at mounds of snow still clogging hundreds of miles of roads in the East.

But despite this week's giant snowstorm that left 58 people dead and up to 3 feet of snow in a four-day march from Utah to Maine, February was generally tame.

In a topsy-turvy winter in which December was the coldest ever in the United States — it got as cold as 60 degrees below zero in Montana and 39 below in Missouri — records — it was the warmest February on the books in cities including New York, Youngstown, Ohio, and Worcester, Mass., and the second warmest in Boston and Erie, Pa.

But March started out on a different note. Temperatures dropped into the 20s across most of northern Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia, with several cities setting records for the date.

The temperature hit a record 23 degrees at Tallahassee in North Florida, but apparently damage to the state's fruit and vegetable crop was minimal.

The 10-degree reading at Asheville, N.C., also was a record for the date, as was the 18 at Meridian, Miss., the 36 at West Palm Beach, Fla., and the 45 at Miami.

By Thursday, the storm was centered Louisiana, but 40 mph gusty winds trailed behind it, hurling snow squalls at cities on the shores of the Great Lakes.

Some of the latest accumulations included 29.4 inches in Buffalo, N.Y., and 24.9 inches in Rochester, N.Y.

Women protesting erotic films

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — An upcoming "Erotic Film Festival" at Drake University has drawn protests from women and ministers; who are fighting back with a sexually explicit triple-feature of their own.

The difference, according to a sponsor of the rival films, is that their films are not demeaning to women.

When the curtain rises on the film "Deep Throat" Friday night at the Drake Student Activities Building's annual festival, three student groups will be showing alternative fare supplied by Planned Parenthood, films showing heterosexual and homosexual lovemaking.

The Erotic Film Festival has been an annual affair at Drake since the mid-1970s, said Tom Trunick, director of the Student Activities Board that sponsors the event.

The alternative program was planned "instead of a combative response, such as picketing," said Tracy Balm, co-chairwoman of the Drake Association for Women Students.

That group, along with the Drake Peace Task Force and the United Ministries in Higher Education, a ministers' group, will follow up the three films with a discussion led by a Drake sociology instructor and two longer films dealing with sex roles.

Both film series will be screened on the 5,681-student coeducational campus.

"I don't hear many people calling 'Deep Throat' an erotic film," Ms. Balm said. She said the alternative films "may deal with violence and images demeaning to either sex."

Which of its' 196 refinements would you like Theisen Motors to tell you about first?

We could have left well enough alone. After all, the 1981 Mercury Lynx Theisen Motors introduced in 1981 — was a very successful car. Instead we rethought, reworked. And every year found there were still things we could do better.

So today, in addition to front wheel drive, four wheel independent suspension and the efficient performance that you've come to expect from a technologically advanced car, we offer more:

- Completely redesigned instrument panel that places driver controls where research has found you're likely to reach for them.
- Rear seats that fold flat to give you more storage.
- Lynx's quality ratings have improved, so they're better than the best-selling Japanese import model.
- And even smaller painstaking additions that are perhaps an even surer sign of Theisen Motors commitment to quality.

We have even listened to Lynx owner suggestions. We could go on and list all the 196 refinements — but better yet come in today and see for yourself. The making of a successful automobile isn't something you do once. But something you never stop doing.

Reagan set to request lowering of teen wages

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan decided Thursday to ask Congress again to allow employers to pay teen-agers less than the $3.35 hourly minimum wage for summer jobs, administration sources said.

These sources, saying they could not comment publicly on Reagan's decision during a meeting of the president's Cabinet Council on Economic Affairs, said the revived proposal will be shaped by the Labor Department and the Office of Management and Budget.

The administration sought congressional approval of the wage differential last year as a highlight of Reagan's program to combat unemployment, which peaked at 10.7 percent of the labor force during the depths of the 1981-82 recession.

The legislation got nowhere in Congress. Liberal congressional allies of organized labor threatened to counter the plan with a proposal to increase the $3.35 minimum wage, which has been in effect since Jan. 1, 1981.

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan said in an interview late last year that the administration would not accept a tradeoff — an increase in the minimum wage in exchange for authority to pay teen-agers a wage differential 75 cents an hour below the minimum.

Reagan and Donovan indicated on Jan. 31, at the time the president was sending his proposed fiscal 1985 budget to Congress, that they planned to seek enactment of the youth differential wage rate.

The lesser rate could only be paid if employers were granted an exemption from provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act, which requires payment of the $3.35 hourly minimum.

Last year, the administration estimated that authorization of the differential wage rate for youths could put more than 600,000 hard-core unemployed to work during summer months.

More waste, fraud in military spending

Little by little, the American people are becoming aware of the enormous waste that exists in the various cubbyholes of the labyrinthine Defense Department and what's worse, how that waste is entrenched and protected by contractors, the department and members of Congress.

Take the latest revealed mess in which Republican Sen. William Roth of Delaware, who chairs the Government-Affairs Committee, has ripped the Defense Department for intentionally muzzling its own auditors who are trying to root out the waste and fraud.

The auditor, A. Ernest Fitzgerald, a longtime critic of military procurement practices, was told he could appear before the committee, but then his testimony was discounted in advance by the Air Force who said Fitzgerald's remarks did not represent "Air Force policy."

The effect was to cut Fitzgerald's credibility off at the knees. Seeing that, he declined to appear.

Sen. Roth, however, released Fitzgerald's prepared remarks on allegations that a major Defense Department supplier, Pratt & Whitney, boosted executive salaries by 40 percent with defense contract money.

Fitzgerald's comments and those of others before the committee show what looks like a clear pattern of protection for defense contractors within the department — who's complaining?

The White House is silent on the subject, but you can bet if this were an overrun in a Boston housing project, the White House would point the finger at Democratic "waste" and "boondoggles."

The facts are, as virtually every objective analyst of the federal budget has concluded, that huge amounts of money could be saved in defense spending without weakening America's defense preparedness one iota.

What is lacking is the political will to do so, both on the part of the White House, which refuses to admit to its own blinders on the subject, and from the Congress, which has local jobs to protect.

Freedom demands strength

The Feb. 24 issue of The Times-News carried the story of the "Death Train" — the passing of a national demonstrators protesting the passing of a train carrying warheads en route to a submarine base on our West Coast.

The actions of the protesting groups have brought to my mind a few questions. Why get so upset about shipping military supplies across country?

Various types of explosives are transported by rail and trucks perhaps every day.

What was accomplished by those taking part in the protest? Do the protesters know that for our nation to remain a free nation, we must have military strength?

Communism has overrun nations that were unable to defend themselves. It could happen to us. It is my belief that if some powerful nation should invade our country, the protesters would be the first to cry for help. They would be the first to ask the government to come to their aid to protect them.

citizen of Idaho and a person who is legally blind, to bring to the attention of the public information which may help them to better understand these events.

Mr. Norm Gardner, a member of the commission board, Mrs. Ramona Walhof, director of the commission, and many of the commission's staff members are the National Federation of the Blind. This organization strives to be the sole representative of the blind in the United States. On the whole, members of this organization feel that other organizations for the blind which do not espouse NFB philosophy and policies are inferior and incompetent.

Students trained at the commission — a state agency — are indoctrinated with federation philosophy. In many cases counselors at the commission have not been trained professionally in counseling, but are hired because they are blind, and hold the same philosophy as the NFB.

Blindness in itself does not necessarily qualify an individual to act as a counselor for other blind persons.

The commission has no provision for serving those who have some useful vision and who are still considered legally blind. The Utah Commission for the Blind, an agency not under the domination of the NFB, has an excellent center which aids the blind in selecting visual aids to help them make the most of their functional vision. All students trained at the commission are taught the use of braille and the long white cane, regardless of the amount of functional vision they have.

It is unjust that a state agency should be directed according to the philosophy of a particular organization. Since the NFB is represented by one of the commissioners, it is only fair that other organizations for the blind, with other philosophies, be given equal representation. The blind will be better served by a philosophy that does not manage the agency according to the philosophy of a particular organization for the blind. Staff members — either blind or sighted — who are professionally trained as counselors and teachers of the blind should be hired. The unprofessional behavior of recent members and the unfortunate recent events resulting from it which have seriously disrupted services to Idaho's blind, may be prevented if the above steps are taken. Hopefully, in the future, the blind of Idaho will be more justly and professionally served, each according to his individual needs.

Overtime blurs road issue

It takes a certain callous attitude to let people with their families drive up into over two feet of snow without a place to turn around.

The sheriff's department had notified Floyd Dayley early Saturday morning that the road would have to be plowed. Apparently, he doesn't have any respect for the law, either.

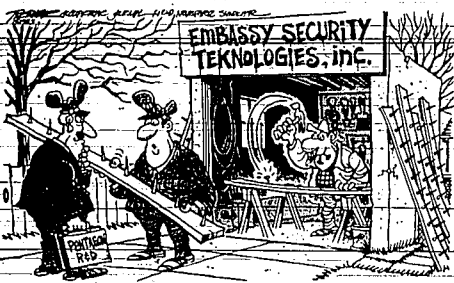

If someone is injured or dies on the Magic Mountain road due to the negligence of Floyd Dayley, it's going to cost Twin Falls County a lot more than overtime pay.

But in his reference to overtime, Mr. Dayley is blurring the issue. The major roads in the valley were open and melting on Saturday. He must lack the intelligence to manage his resources according to necessary priorities.

FPO neurosis leads to 'lite blight,' assorted aberrations

BOSTON — She knew I had gotten out of hand at the airport. The air-line attendant there was talking up the benefits of a healthy plane. For safety's sake, he wanted to know how much she weighed.

But how did the woman respond to his perfectly reasonable request? She lied.

This was a woman, mind you, who never once in her life lied about her age. This was a plane, mind you, who harbored a healthy terror of flying. Yet, without a moment's hesitation, she gave the attendant a number closer to the ideal than to the reality.

The woman didn't lie by much, of course. She consoled herself with that fact as the plane slowly juggled its nine passengers through the mountains of Vermont. Once, years ago in Colorado, the pilot on her plane had left three suitcases behind in order to get over the Rockies. If the going got rough, he laughed, they could drop a passenger or two on Pikes Peak. This morning, if worst came to worst, she would dump her pocketbook out the emergency window.

This was the striking point — she had lied for so little. It was a five-pound lie. A woman of conviction, she had sold out for five pounds. Now, as she saw people skirting the ridge at Sugarbush from her window seat, it occurred to her that it was time to face facts.

She was suffering from one of the most common diseases in a food-disordered society: the five-pound-overweight (FPO) neurosis.

Being five pounds overweight is the single, smallest non-problem in the history of mankind. Being events, short of breaking a fingernail. Being five pounds overweight is not even technically overweight. An FPO cannot legally for the average loss five reduction program. They cannot even qualify for sympathy.

Nevertheless, it is clear, extrapolating from a survey of friends and acquaintances, that 5.6 million Americans (with a five percent margin of error) live with the constant unexpressed nagging belief that they really ought to lose five pounds. This single fact is responsible for the "lite blight" that has descended upon American beer, frozen food and even ice cream. It is responsible for such aberrations as vertical stripes, digital scales, and dissembling among avocado advertisers.

But where in the collective psyche did the FPO neurosis originate? Unfortunately, we cannot ask its sufferers. Until this very moment, the woman on the plane believed her overweight a matter of fat. To feel her neurosis, she regularly imagined a raw five-pound roasted chicken or boneless side of beef. She then envisioned these items attached to her body in crucial places. Her favorite fantasy was a thick steak taped onto each hip.

Other, more objective, theories of FPO have arisen. History buffs believe that the neurosis began when department stores first installed three-way mirrors in the bathing-suit department. Media types believe that it began with the television camera, which makes everyone look like FPO. An entire generation became addicted to blue shirts and Tab.

But our friend, sitting in the clouds somewhere over southern Vermont worrying about her excess baggage, has slowly developed a new analysis. The 5.6 million American sufferers of FPO are convinced that they have what you and I call a preventive neurosis. Being FPO is a security blanket for the closet plump people. It is only by constantly believing that they are a bit overweight that they prevent becoming truly overweight.

Their reasoning goes like this: Forget that you are FPO and you will immediately become Ten P.O. Come to accept yourself as normal and you will instantly enlarge to Twenty P.O.

There is another alternative to FPO maintenance, according to our passenger coming in for a landing on this flight of fantasy. Sufferers could actually, finally, lose these five pounds. But this solution is far too shallow. It lacks the central reality of the lack of reality of FPO which is this: You are never too thin to be five pounds overweight.

The moral of this psychic travogue is simple: Only by constant, vigilant self-lashing can you avoid having a body that you would loathe. And one other thing: Never fly FPO.

Connecticut stand on trucking puts out whiff of secession

WASHINGTON — Like the Connecticut River, which it sits, Hartford usually is placid.

Where else would a great poet (Wallace Stevens) — poets are supposed to be bohemian and tumultuous — work in an insurance company? Hartford is capital of the insurance industry, which is based on the predictability of life.

But it is becoming predictable that Hartford will periodically become a seat of sedition. In fact, Connecticut has become the moral equivalent of South Carolina, about which someone (a South Carolina one said: It is too small to be a nation and too large to be a lunatic asylum.

These may seem harsh words, until I acquaint you with Connecticut's latest assault on civil order. It grieves me to write the words, inasmuch as I acquired two educations (a college education and a wife) in the state. But I am stirred (you probably can tell) by Connecticut's most recent attempt to destroy the Constitution, an attempt rebuffed with exemplary concision by an unanimous

Supreme Court in a one-sentence ruling. The sentence was not, but should have been: "You can't be serious!"

In 1983, a federal law went into effect requiring states to permit twin-trailer trucks on federally financed highways. Connecticut, which wins the John C. Calhoun Trophy for Constitutional Bloody-Mindedness, banned the trucks anyway, as it had done for years. Connecticut said the trucks are a safety hazard. That may be true, but do not want to hear any nonsense about the merits of the law. The merits are beside the points, which is: We settled this at Appomattox.

Actually, we settled it June 21, 1789, when

New Hampshire became the ninth state to ratify the Constitution, and the whole thing went into effect, including the clause that gives Congress the power to regulate interstate commerce. Indeed, one reason we have the Constitution is that the Articles of Confederation were intolerably permissive regarding the right of states to interfere with commerce.

Certain hard-shell conservatives and unreconstructed Confederates consider the Commerce Clause the worst mistake since Adam ate the apple, because the clause has been the basis of so much of the expansion of federal power. But if Alexander Hamilton was not a conservative, then who was, or is or wants to be? And without the Commerce Clause, today's strong, unified commercial nation, which was anticipated by the author of the 1791 "Report on Manufactures," would be impossible.

Connecticut says the federal law about twin-trailer trucks infringes the state's "vital power" to protect its citizens' safety. But allow that kind of resistance and, quicker than you can say "Jefferson Davis," the nation will be on the path to dismemberment. We who hail from central Illinois — Lincoln country — have been noses when it comes to sniffling secession. Connecticut's mischief is a kin to the heresy of nullification. The nullification everyone looks for is unconstitutional. The Kentucky and Virginia resolutions — were distinguished. But the Union could not long have survived their notion that states could declare null and void federal laws that state legislatures could not pass constitutionally. And then there is the little matter of Article VI of the Constitution, which says that the Constitution and laws made in pursuance thereof shall be the supreme law of the land. Whether or not Connecticut is content. Okay, the Supremacy Clause does not contain those last six words, but it should. The ink was barely dry on the Constitution when Connecticut became the headquarters of a monstrous conspiracy, the Hartford Convention of 1814.

Well, maybe not quite monstrous, and it was about as conspiratorial as a callopse. The War of 1812 was interfering with Yankee commerce — and New Englanders, ever lusty (remember Shay's Rebellion?), thought Virginia owed the White House. So there was loose talk about seceding and making a separate peace with Britain. The war ended, but not before the convention had discredited the "Federalist Party's" participation.

Some things never change. Conservatives are their own worst enemies. At the Hartford Convention, the Hamiltonian faction in American politics weakened itself, and the Federalists strengthened the dangerous practice of asserting states' rights in connection with regional grievances.

A pattern is clear: Every 170 years, Connecticut needs to be suppressed. So when the battleship New Jersey is finished making the "Federalist Party's" participation show the flag off the coast of Connecticut, a state that needs a whiff of grapesrot, or at least a reminder of federal supremacy.

Hansen's conviction won't resurface

By TOM SEPPY
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A federal judge ruled Thursday that the government cannot use a former conviction of Rep. George Hansen against the Idaho Republican in a trial scheduled to begin here March 10.

U.S. District Court Judge Joyce Hens Green said Hansen's "crimes involved no dishonesty or false statement, nor demonstrated any criminal intent."

In 1975, Hansen pleaded guilty to failure to file a report of all campaign receipts and expenditures by June 10, 1974, and failure to report "all money received, two violations of the Federal Election Campaign Act."

The government earlier said it wanted to introduce the prior conviction at the upcoming trial to discredit Hansen and his character witnesses.

The absence of any criminal intent associated with the prior conviction renders that conviction inadmissible for any of the government's stated purposes," Judge Green said.

Hansen has been charged by the government with failing to disclose personal loans of $50,000, $61,503 and $135,000, and a profit of $37,475 on silver transactions.

The government has said Hansen's transactions were not mentioned on financial disclosure forms with the House of Representatives for the calendar years 1978 through 1981. Each of the four counts carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Judge Green also ruled that Hansen's attorneys cannot argue during the trial that the seven-term congressman has been singled out for prosecution.

Judge Green said she had already ruled against Hansen on the issue, that he has preserved that ruling for an appeal. If an appeal is necessary, and "he recognizes that the law could not acquit him—even if it found that he was unfairly singled out for harassment and prosecution."

At a pre-trial hearing Thursday, Hansen's defense lawyer, Nathan Lewin, and the prosecutor, Reid Weingarten, clashed over whether the defense should turn over to the government a 1977 property settlement agreement between Hansen and his wife, Corrie. In exchange for materials the government intends to use during the trial to prove its case.

Lewin said agreement "is a private document between Rep. Hansen and his wife. He feels, and we feel, it should be kept private. Rep. Hansen feels that document contains information that is nobody's business."

But the court upheld Givens' request for some $18,000 in legal fees and costs. They were awarded after Givens won his lawsuit claiming a 1982 redistricting plan was unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court gave the legislative delegations from Twin Falls and Canyon counties until next Friday to file new plans for their legislative districts.

Lawmakers seek remap solution

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Legislature may make a final effort on Friday to come up with a new legislative redistricting plan. A Senate-passed resolution authorizing that lawsuit is up for a final vote in the House on Friday.

But there's no indication whether the Senate will even allow the plan to come to a vote. Senate President Pro Tem James Risch has been resisting efforts to reopen the redistricting battle, and wants instead to file a federal court lawsuit to decide the matter.

Republicans in the Legislature last week gave Democrats a week, ending Thursday, to come up with a new redistricting plan that might be acceptable to the entire Legislature.

Otherwise, Republicans said they planned to file a federal court lawsuit to settle the boundaries of the state's legislative districts. A Senate-passed resolution authorizing that lawsuit is up for a final vote in the House on Friday.

Boise attorney Eugene Thomas, who apparently will be hired by Republicans to carry the case, appeared before the closed-door GOP House caucus, along with Ken McClure, the deputy attorney general who has handled the state's redistricting litigation. Legislative sources familiar with redistricting battles said it will cost the state at least $25,000 to $50,000 for a full-scale federal court legal battle.

Sen. Ron Beltschpacher, D-Grangeville, said Democrats planned to ask Thomas for a statement on how much the legal battle would cost.

There were these other developments:

The Supreme Court rejected a request from Coeur d'Alene attorney Ray Givens to rule that the court plan, known as 19B, is in effect now because the Legislature has come up with no new plan. The ruling was contained in an order signed by Chief Justice Charles Donaldson, without comment.

But the court upheld Givens' request for some $18,000 in legal fees and costs. They were awarded after Givens won his lawsuit claiming a 1982 redistricting plan was unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court gave the legislative delegations from Twin Falls and Canyon counties until next Friday to file new plans for their legislative districts.

Taxes on 'vices' would help reduce deficit under plan

By JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON — Smokers, drinkers and telephone users would continue helping the federal government reduce its deficit under proposals approved Thursday by the House Ways and Means Committee.

As the House panel rushed to complete action on tax measures aimed at cutting the deficit by about $50 billion over three years, the Senate Finance Committee toughened the "minimum tax" on upper- and middle-income investors and reduced tax benefits for business use of luxury cars.

The Senate panel, under vigorous objections of the Internal Revenue Service, also voted to make the IRS a debt collector for the rest of the government.

The IRS would be required to reduce the tax refund due a student for business owner or other person who was late in paying a bill owed the federal government. This would produce about $700 million over three years.

IRS Commissioner Roscoe L. Egger

Jr. said experience indicates such an "offset" from tax refunds severely threatens compliance with the tax system.

Counting previously approved legislation that is still awaiting Senate action, the Finance Committee ran the three-year total of its deficit-reduction plan to around $73 billion in tax increases and spending cuts. That figure, reflecting a new, reduced estimate of the previously approved bill, is $27 billion short of the goal that President Reagan has asked.

The committee is weighing numerous other provisions, including one to limit the amount of consumer interest — such as auto loans and credit cards — that a person could deduct.

The Ways and Means Committee, which by afternoon had agreed to about $21.6 billion in tax increases, voted to approve the same.

Retain the 3-percent federal tax on local and long-distance telephone service through 1987, costing consumers $3.2 billion. The Finance Committee also approved the same extension. Without congressional action, the tax will expire Dec. 31, 1985.

Allow the cigarette tax of 16 cents a pack to drop to 12 cents on Oct. 1, 1985, rather than the 8 cents that is scheduled under current law. At that time, the $10.50-per-gallon tax on liquor would be raised by between $2.50 and $3.50 — whatever figure would produce the same revenue as a 4-cent tax on cigarettes. The changes would cost consumers $3.8 billion in 1986 and 1987.

Repeal a savers' tax cut due to go into effect in 1985. That provision, enacted in 1981, would allow a tax exemption for 15 percent of interest earned each year, after subtracting interest paid on charge accounts, cars and other credit — but not home mortgages. The maximum exemption would be $450 for a single person and $900 for couples filing a joint return. Repeal would cut the deficit by $7 billion over the next three years.

Believes girls sports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Education Secretary T.H. Bell said Thursday he supports Title IX, the federal law against sex discrimination in schools, but he added that his department has no business telling schools what specific sports they must offer girls.

Bell took that position during a Senate Budget Committee hearing, two days after a Supreme Court decision broadened the scope of the anti-discrimination law.

At the hearing, Sen. Mark Andrews, R-N.D., urged Bell to rein in the Education Department's Denver regional offices.

Andrews said the Wahalla School District in North Dakota that it must offer track for girls in the spring.

Andrews said the rural district has three sports for boys — football in the fall and basketball and wrestling in the winter — and basketball and cheerleading in the winter for girls.

When federal civil rights told the district it was violating Title IX, Andrews said, "the school offered to have volleyball for the girls in the winter. But no. Your office of education said that they had to offer to the girls track in the spring."

"It is not the policy of the Education Department to specify what sports you have to offer..." Bell replied. If that is what happened, he added, "I shall jump on whoever ordered track."

But Bell also said, "It is our policy to plead the women have equal opportunity with men."

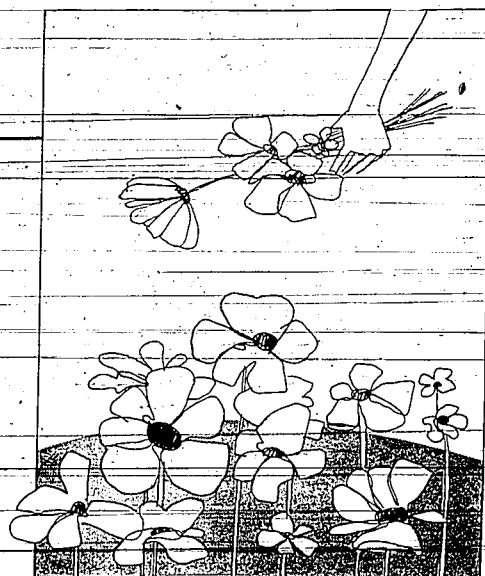

"All that Title IX says, senator, is that you shouldn't discriminate in your education programs on the basis of sex," Bell said.

"You say to a woman that you can't have a sports program in X-high school because you're a woman, it's only a step from there to say you can't have it because you're black," Bell said.

The Supreme Court, in a victory for the Reagan administration, ruled 6-3 on Tuesday that Title IX applies only to the specific programs within a college that are direct recipients of federal funds. That case involved Grove City College in Pennsylvania.

MX letter aimed at Congress

DENVER (AP) — A letter signed by 21 Democratic governors calling on President Reagan to delay deployment of the MX missile by one year may prompt Congress to reconsider the nuclear weapons system, Gov. Richard Lamm said Thursday.

"Reagan has already made up his mind," said Lamm, one of the signers. "We believe we can create political pressure aimed at Congress."

The system advocated by Reagan and the Defense Department would base 100 multiple-warhead nuclear missiles in southeastern Wyoming and southwestern Nebraska.

Gov. Ed Herschler of Wyoming and Bob Kerrey of Nebraska earlier wrote the White House asking for a moratorium but Herschler said their request apparently was declined, according to news reports.

"I've seen articles in the Washington Post and the local newspapers that our idea has been rejected, but we have not heard from the Defense Department or the president," Herschler said Wednesday night of the letter he and Kerrey sent.

On Wednesday, Herschler said he was not concerned about influencing Congress, that he intended his letter for Reagan.

"I sent it to him because it was a sincere thing, a gesture," Herschler said in Cheyenne, Wyo. "It was a gesture to see whether or not he could make the first move to the Soviets, to say 'Let's sit down and negotiate.'"

Meese grilled during Senate inquiry

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edwin Meese, President Reagan's nominee for attorney general, came under sharp questioning Thursday from senators concerned about his commitment to ending racial discrimination and whether he would be the president's or the people's lawyer.

Partisan squabbling marked the first day of the Senate Judiciary Committee's hearing on the nomination of Meese, Reagan's counselor and close friend, to replace Attorney General William French Smith.

Meese pledged to pursue even-handed justice and equal protection of the law for all citizens regardless of race, color or creed, background or economic circumstances.

Meese also said he would avoid "partisan political activity" as attorney general.

But the pledges failed to satisfy Democrats and one Republican, Sen. Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland. They questioned Meese closely on his role in overturning an Internal Revenue "Service" policy against giving racially discriminatory schools tax exemptions, his personal finances, and his relations with Reagan's political supporters.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., ticked off the change in IRS policy, Meese's remarks that "some Americans join food lines simply because the food is free, and his opposition to government-paid lawyers for the poor.

"I'm concerned about the fairness issue," Kennedy said. "Can you faithfully execute the laws as the people's attorney in a way to inspire a sense of justice? Millions of Americans have serious reservations whether you can."

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., observed that the decision to change the IRS policy came after the administration received letters from Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss., and generated internal memos noting the Republican 1984 campaign platform called for the change.

Biden asked whether Meese advised the president in that case on the legal ramifications "or on a purely political basis." Meese said he just passed on recommendations from the Justice and Treasury Departments.

Meese said in both cases: "I stated I wanted to be absolutely sure there was no favoritism or bending of the rules in my case."

Alien arrests on rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Immigration and Naturalization Service on Thursday reported a 12 percent increase in the apprehension of illegal immigrants along the Mexican border since Oct. 1. The rise comes atop a record 1 million seizures at the border during the previous 12 months.

INS Commissioner Alan C. Nelson said he hoped a court ruling Tuesday that strengthens his agency's hands would send a message to those seeking work in the United States that they will be seized, detained and sent back.

As it is now, he said, the feeling is widespread among those considering sneaking into the United States that "once you get there, you've got it made."

On another matter, Nelson said an investigation indicates there is no basis for claims of mistreatment of 14-year-old Mario Moreno Lopez, a legal U.S. resident who was picked up in an INS sweep of illegal immigrants and deported to Tijuana, Mexico, two weeks ago. Mario sneaked back into California a few days later.

"He clearly at no point told us he was legally here," Nelson said. "We also are quite interested in what might have prompted him to make some of these claims and also to change his story on several occasions after having talked to several people."

At a news conference, the Immigration official hailed a ruling Tuesday by the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta. The court said Haitians seized in Florida have no constitutional right to challenge INS decisions and need not be told of their right to seek political asylum.

Nelson called the ruling an "important victory in the continuing contest over the right of the government to enforce the immigration laws."

The ruling reversed a lower court finding that the rights of Haitians held in detention camps had been violated.

Iraq claims it sank seven Iranian ships

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq said it sank seven Iranian ships in the Persian Gulf on Thursday as part of its blockade of Iran's main oil-loading terminal at Kharg Island.

An Iraqi war communiqué said an eighth vessel was destroyed when it tried to salvage the wrecked ships.

Both Iraq and Iran described air battles. Iraq claimed a victory in a helicopter dogfight, in which it said Iranian aircraft were shot down without loss to Iraq. It said another Iranian helicopter was shot down minutes later in another area.

Iraq said its jets shot down an Iraqi fighter-bomber and a helicopter gunship near the Shatt-al-Arab estuary.

Iraq announced its blockade of Kharg Island on Monday, when it also said it had attacked oil tankers anchored at the island. Iran denied the attack, and U.S. sources said their studies of the area showed no damage to the terminals.

But Iraq's statement prompted renewed concern about Iran's threat to block the Strait of Hormuz, thus halting the flow of Persian Gulf oil, which accounts for 23 percent of Western Europe's supplies and 50 percent of Japan's consumption.

In fighting on another front Thursday, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency claimed Iran's forces advanced deeper into Iraq in the Talaya-Nashwa region, between the border and the oil port of Basra, Iraq's second-largest city. The agency reported 1,300 Iraqi casualties on that front and said it had repulsed three Iraqi counterattacks.

But Iraq said the Iranian offensive was crushed in battles that raged until Thursday evening and the attacking force was wiped out.

Baghdad radio reported that the Iranian vessels which were sunk, whose type was not specified, were detected sailing north into Khor Moussa Creek and the port of Bandar Khomeini. Both areas are about 40 miles east of the Iranian port city of Ahadun.

Pentagon to sell missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon told Congress on Thursday it plans to sell Jordan more than 1,600 shoulder-fired Stinger anti-aircraft missiles for $133 million.

Jordan would be the second Arab nation to receive these weapons, which are designed to give the individual soldier a means for shooting at low-flying attacking planes.

On Wednesday, the Pentagon disclosed plans to sell Saudi Arabia about 1,200 Stingers for $141 million.

Congress has 30 days in which to block the sale of the Stingers if it chooses to do so.

Under a separate agreement, the Pentagon said the 1,613 Stingers in the proposed sale to Jordan would replace aging Redeye weapons.

The missiles, together with spare parts and support equipment, will be delivered to Jordan over the next six years, the Pentagon said.

It indicated that the United States will provide special training to Jordanian pilots to use these Stingers. Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger has been a strong proponent of providing updated weapons to Jordan, which he considers a moderate Arab country friendly to the United States.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz on Thursday defended the proposed sale to Jordan against criticism from members of a Senate subcommittee that expressed fear they might fall into terrorist hands.

Russians' elections in high gear

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet national election "campaign" — now in full swing with major speeches — is a far cry from the competitive electioneering of the West.

It is an orderly celebration of the Communist Party, the only party that will be on Sunday's ballot when the nation votes for 1,500 deputies to the Soviet Parliament that will sit for the next five years. The two-chamber body, whose function is to approve the decisions of the party, meets twice a year for one or two days.

Outsiders still take interest in the events leading up to the preordained outcome, especially in the week preceding voting. That is when each of the top Soviet rulers — the 12 members of the Politburo — make a major address during his one election "meeting" with the constituency the Politburo decided he would represent.

The speeches this month are being closely watched for any clues to a change in Soviet policy since Konstantin U. Chernenko became general secretary on Feb. 13 following the death of Yuri V. Andropov.

Chernenko will hold his constituency meeting in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses on Friday. The nationally televised speech will be his first since Andropov's Red Square funeral on Feb. 14, and an appropriate forum for announcing any major foreign or domestic policy initiatives. Premier Nikolai A. Tikhonov, who spoke Thursday, was the last of the 11 other Politburo members to give his election speech. The speech was broadcast live by Soviet national television and followed by a concert and other entertainment before the election audience at the Bolshoi Theater.

TWIN FALLS — Moves, promotions and personnel changes are taking place this week for Magic Valley's Idaho State Police district.

District Lieutenant Bob Wright announced Tuesday that E. D. Strickfaden, who has served as sergeant in the local district, is transferring to Idaho Falls, where he will be the commander of District Six. As such, Strickfaden is being promoted to the rank of lieutenant.

Taking his place, and being promoted from corporal to sergeant, is Dave Rich of Twin Falls, who has served in the fourth district since April 1975.

Rich came here under the ASAP (Alcohol Safety Action Program), having begun working for the ISP in Pocatello in 1974. After three years with ASAP, he transferred to regular patrol duty in 1978.

Wright said Rich will work as a field sergeant, directing and assisting the other officers.

Rich said he is looking forward to the challenge of his new responsibilities since much of the work will be entirely different from what he is now doing.

"Instead of investigating the accidents, I will be directing other officers and assisting them," Rich said.

He said training of the new officers also will be part of his responsibility and he will continue working on accident reconstruction as he has done in the past several years.

Strickfaden has been in charge of public information for the district and Wright Wednesday assigned these responsibilities to Sgt. Dave Neal.

Strickfaden replaces Lt. Jack Sweet at Idaho Falls, who is transferring to Boise.

Wright said Strickfaden has been in Boise this month.

He said no replacement has been named for Rich although the district expects to add three new men, to cover recent replacements from transfers and retirements, when a new group of state officers finishes training that begins next week in connection with the transfer. The former sergeant joined the local district in February 1980, coming from Lewiston. He said Wednesday he began his ISP career 17 years ago at the King Hill Port of Entry.

"I have enjoyed working in the Magic Valley area," Strickfaden said, "but I am looking forward to my new assignment."

He said he takes over his new duties in Idaho Falls Monday.

Because of pay periods, the changes do not become permanent until March 31, Wright said. For this reason Rich is now serving as acting sergeant until that date.

He said no replacement has been named for Rich although the district expects to add three new men, to cover recent replacements from transfers and retirements, when a new group of state officers finishes training that begins next month.

County heads to address wage demand

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jerome County employees' efforts to obtain pay increases by hiring an attorney drew promises Monday that a statement is being prepared by county officials.

In a department head meeting with Jerome County commissioner Cheryl Watts, county clerk questioned the news release put out last week by Attorney Greg Butler which outlined plans to seek wage increases for county employees.

Butler's proposed plan redirects county priorities to give the salary question a better chance at available funding.

"It amazes me that (Butler) would put that kind of (information) in the newspaper when he has never once contacted us to ask what we could do or intended to do. He just put it in the paper," said commission Chairman Carl Butler.

Butler said he and commissioners Carl Montgomery and Pam Smith have discussed the action and will issue a statement on their position, probably next Monday.

"I am sure that (Butler) did not put that out there for one day but one bit excited about what an attorney has to say about it," Butler added.

Smith said she is much more "excited" about what the employees themselves want to say than about the attorney's remarks.

Watts said she does not know who the employees are who have solicited Butler's assistance.

"I think you will find nearly all of the employees are involved. I know just about all of mine are," Sheriff Elza Hall said.

County Prosecutor Dennis Adamson said the majority of county workers are behind the effort and he warned against any inclinations of retaliation against workers who are involved.

"I think they are concerned. They probably feel that since they didn't get any raises last year, and they don't know what will happen this year, they want to assure chances for raises this year," Adamson said.

Employees formed an organization several months ago and voted to seek help from Fuller, a Jerome attorney who assisted Twin Falls County workers in obtaining increased benefits a year ago.

In other budgetary matters, Adamson said a number of small capital outlays for equipment requested by various departments are always "taken under advisement."

He said his office, for example, is in serious need of word processing equipment. Much of the work on county letters that are used frequently, must be done in his own office on his equipment.

"We have one old standard typewriter and another limited memory typewriter in the prosecutor's office," he said. "If we cannot have the brand of equipment we requested, let's at least have more money we could spend and we will try to fit the equipment to the budget," he said.

County Assessor Marjorie Dubois said she and Treasurer Elsie Childs need a "floating terminal" in the county's computer system to share during busy periods.

She also suggested that if the county is considering changing a different computer system, it consider IBM. She said through IBM she would be able to obtain about five state tax commission programs that would assist her office greatly.

Dubois said she wasn't taking for a different system, but was just making a suggestion.

Sheriff Hall said he doesn't have any complaint about the present system, but he would like to get it fixed. He said his office for several months, but hasn't been able to get one small part needed to make it functional.

Resort business strong, but there's lots of fierce competition

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — After an exceptional start, the winter ski season in the Sun Valley resort community has leveled off and most businesses are having a good, but not spectacular, year.

"I think we're having a very strong season, but not being the only game in town, we are not seeing the business we had three years ago," says Brian Brockette, manager of Ketchum's SNUG Co. ski specialty shop.

Brockette says other ski resorts have had good snow this year and are competing well.

Business at the SNUG store slowed with a lack of fresh snow in January but picked up in February when several storms brought better skiing conditions, Brockette says.

Most lodging, restaurant and retail businesses report they too are having a good year, but say they have seen better in recent years.

Sun Valley Co. has filled its 111 rooms at a rate as high as last year, says Carl Wilgus, the company's public relations officer, but the number of skiers using the ski slopes is down about 5 percent.

The weather — cold in Sun Valley, poor driving conditions in southern Idaho, and a lack of new snow in January — was a big contributor to the drop in skiers, Wilgus says.

In Ketchum, most motel owners say they are even or down slightly from last year.

"We're just about the same as last year," says Sam Slovall, owner of the Lymoran Lodge in Ketchum. "I think it's been a good season."

However, Alan Pennay, owner of the River Run Lodge, Ketchum, says his business is down about 20 percent from last year. "It's not looking as good as last year," he says.

Pennay blames the city's 5-percent local option tax on lodging and the $24 lift tickets for part of the drop, but not all. He says some of his regular customers have opted for other vacation sites this year.

Figures for receipts of the local option tax, on beds and liquor-by-the-drink, bear out Pennay's experience that motel users are not as plentiful as last year.

Tax collections in December and January for Ketchum cities are down 17.3 percent, says Jim Jaquet, Ketchum city administrator.

However, the overall business in motel and condominium rentals in Ketchum was up about 4.8 percent from the last season, according to figures provided by Jaquet.

In December 1982 and January 1983, the city collected $78,960 from short-term rentals, of which $2,334 came from condominiums. The same period this season, it collected $82,738 — $15,347 from condominium users.

Jaquet says property managers who rent the units for condominium owners have told him guests are asking for more expensive units this year than last year. In general, condominiums are more expensive than motel rooms.

Judy Jacy, who owns Unlimited Condo Service with her husband Stuart, says more of her business is for the larger, more expensive units. She says that last year studio apartments were in demand, but this year she is having a hard time giving them away.

Overall, she says her number of guests is down.

"The season has been a little slow up here," Jacy says.

Other figures show that fewer people are visiting the Sun Valley area this year.

Rider counts for the free KART bus system that primarily serves visitors to the Ketchum-Sun Valley area is down about 21 percent overall, from about 163,500 through February last season to about 129,000 this season, says Bill O'Neill, operator of the system.

However, O'Neill says the system is down only about 8 percent if the Elkhorn hotel and condominium riders are discarded.

The Elkhorn hotel opened this season after a two-year closure and was recently sold. It is now under new management.

New manager Bob Earp does not want to say what occupancy rate the hotel has had for the season. He only says it could be better, despite optimistic reports by the previous owner earlier in the season.

"It's definitely not what it should be," Earp says.

However, O'Neill says the figures also show a drop in the number of riders at the condominiums around the hotel. In fact, O'Neill recently discontinued a separate bus service KART provides exclusively for Elkhorn riders when he realized their numbers were only one-quarter of last year's, when the hotel was closed.

Sun Valley officials will not break down its option tax receipts between Elkhorn and the Sun Valley Co. sides of the city. But, overall, its receipts are up 19.1 percent for December and January from last season, says Connie Smart, city treasurer.

In the restaurants, the number of diners served is down slightly.

Tona Backman, manager of Evergreen restaurant in Ketchum, says her number of guests is down less than 10 percent.

Bill Beutner, owner of the Ore House Restaurant in Sun Valley, says the number of guests to his restaurant also is down slightly. But, he attributes a part of the decline to increased competition from both new restaurants in Ketchum and restaurants in the area that are under new management.

Casino plans move for mass of trailers

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

JACKPOT — Cactus Pete's Casino plans to move 80 to 90 trailer homes located in its rear court to a new site three-quarters of a mile south of the center of Jackpot.

The Casino plans to begin the move so that it can expand its recreational area — as soon as weather permits, says engineer Jean Milnar, a Nelson and Co. employee involved in planning the new park.

No opposition to the move appears to have formed among residents of the trailer park, Milnar says. The casino already has obtained the necessary zoning change and conditional-use permit for the new trailer park from Elko County.

About half the trailers in the Cactus Pete's park are owned by the casino for rent to employees. The other half are privately owned, but placed on ground leased from the casino.

One resident said Tuesday people either were unaware of the plans, or believe there is nothing they can do to change them because of the shortage of land in Jackpot.

"There are a lot of people who are unhappy," he said. "But it doesn't do you any good — they are going to do it."

The new park will be located at the site of an automobile salvage yard and pig farm just west of U.S. 93, Milnar said. It will be larger than the old park — with room for 180 trailers and a playground, he said.

Milnar also said the casino will "handle" the move for the residents, even though some remain suspicious it will cost them something in the long run.

Milnar said the new park will offer "greater seclusion" and allow people to live apart from their working environment.

But one resident says he is concerned children will have to walk a quarter of a mile to reach the center of Jackpot. And the new location is certainly not as convenient for employees of Cactus Pete's or Barton's Club 93.

Milnar says the new recreational vehicle camp will have 200 hookups, which will allow most vehicle owners to connect to all utilities in a well-secured area close to the casino.

As things stand, he says, recreational vehicles must either be parked in a limited 30-spot area, or pull up in a corner of the main casino parking area.

Milnar said the park plans are not directly related to Cactus Pete's main casino expansion plans.

These are also scheduled for this year — but on the site of the smaller Horseshoe Club.

Milnar says the casino plans to "while many people may not understand what the prosecutor does, people want to know someone will be there who will respond to their needs. If they have a need," she says.

Baxter says she has yet to receive a negative response to being a woman running for the job.

That ground may already have been broken by the county's two women commissioners, and by former city attorney Susan Swanberg, she says.

Several other Twin Falls lawyers have indicated an interest in running for the position, which pays $34,500.

Woman charges kin with kidnapping child

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls woman is seeking criminal and civil action against her family for allegedly kidnapping her 2-year-old daughter Feb. 18.

Brenda Thompson, 20, also has accused her family of abducting her off the streets of Twin Falls on Feb. 28, according to a complaint filed this week in 4th-District Magistrate Court.

Thompson's parents, Rulon and Nelle Thompson of Jerome County, her brother Mike Thompson of Wendell, and sister Jan Magnell of Jerome County were charged Thursday with first-degree kidnapping. According to the complaint, Brenda Thompson alleges her family forcibly broke into her residence in Twin Falls and abducted the child.

Mike Thompson and Jan Magnell and her husband Mike were charged Thursday with second-degree kidnapping. The

Seeking GOP nomination

Lawyer runs for prosecutor

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls attorney K. Baxter officially announced Thursday she will seek the Republican nomination for county prosecutor.

The announcement follows a January decision by present county prosecutor, Harry DeHaan, not to seek another term in office.

For the first time county voters will elect a prosecutor to a four-year term this year, following a voter-approved change in state law that replaced the two-year term.

Baxter, 28, works for the firm of Decker and Hollifield.

"In private practice a lawyer makes money; in the prosecutor's office a lawyer makes a difference," she says. "I want to make a difference."

She was born in Twin Falls, where her maiden name was Wategella, and attended Twin Falls High School and Whitman College in Walla Walla, Wash. She earned her law degree in 1981 from the University of Washington in Seattle.

Before entering private practice, she worked as an intern and deputy for the King County (Seattle) prosecutor. She says she had wanted to be a Twin Falls prosecutor since she was a high school student.

Among her goals are to devote 100 percent of her time to the job. She says she will place high emphasis on organization, standards and being "available, accessible and responsible to the community."

While many people may not understand what the prosecutor does, "people want to know someone will be there who will respond to their needs. If they have a need," she says.

Baxter says she has yet to receive a negative response to being a woman running for the job.

That ground may already have been broken by the county's two women commissioners, and by former city attorney Susan Swanberg, she says.

Several other Twin Falls lawyers have indicated an interest in running for the position, which pays $34,500.

Trustees approve $8,247 public-address system for gym

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — The sound of music and athletic events will soon fill the Buhl Middle School gymnasium from a new all-purpose speaker system.
Tuesday night the Buhl School Board approved the purchase of an $8,247 public-address system to be installed in the next two weeks.
The $4,000 down payment on the system is the profit from the Buhl Community International Smorgasbord held last March.

West End Twin Falls County

The balance, due July 15, will be financed from the school district budget.
Since the middle school gymnasium is such a large auditorium and is used for many school and community events, Superintendent Bob Pratt said the existing 10-year-old system is inadequate.

The speakers from the old public address system will be used at the elementary school.
In other business:
• The board agreed that a committee be appointed to review requests for the purchase of a new system, to be awarded by the National Science Foundation.
Teachers of the seventh through 12th grades can request the grant money for science and math projects and equipment.

Their written requests will then be channeled through the new committee which will make recommendations to the school board.
The district received the grant for the secondary schools in October when high school teacher, Charles Humphries, gained national recognition for excellence in science and mathematics instruction.
• The board voted to give Charles Humphries professional leave to attend a National Science Teachers' Convention in Boston in April.

The approval is contingent upon the new science and math grant committee approving a $66 expenditure from the National Science Foundation grant to pay for a substitute teacher for the school.
• With board Chairman Vernon Kuehn breaking a tie, the board agreed to spend up to $300, but not more than $30 per person, for the registration fees of district coaches at a workshop sponsored by the Buhl School District in Jackson this spring.
Pratt said it was difficult for the principals to endorse the coaches' clinic when other departments received budget cuts, but the coaches do extra work for very little money.

• The board adopted a policy that the school can only be used for school related activities and not by community organizations, which may request use of the vehicle.
• The board approved a self-evaluation and outside committee evaluation of the elementary school in 1985 as required by the state Department of Education every 10 years.

Man charged with burglary

BURLEY — Alan Lee Brent was arrested last week in Burley for allegedly burglarizing the residence of State Rep. Ernest Hale, R-Burley.
According to a Burley police report, the 26-year-old Brent has been charged with breaking into the home and stealing a rifle, silver coins and jewelry worth more than $1,000.
Brent is being held in the Cassia County Jail on $30,000 bond.

Wendell man pleads to forgery

JEROME — A Wendell man, charged originally with 11 counts each of felony forgery charges was allowed to plead guilty to one of the charges and the remaining 10 were dismissed.
Ted Anderson, 20, of Wendell appeared in Fifth District Court in Jerome Tuesday to answer to charges in connection with forged checks on the account of Harold Roscoe that were passed on 11 occasions at Jerome grocery stores. Roscoe reported the checks, on a now-closed account, were stolen from his Wendell home.

Eugene Fredericksen, attorney for Anderson, said as a result of plea negotiations, his client would plead guilty to cashing one forged check at Smith's Food King in Jerome. He then requested the remaining charges be dismissed.
The court granted the motion and pronounced a 10-year prison sentence that was then suspended in favor of 120 days retained jurisdiction at the North Idaho Correctional Institute.
The court said Anderson will have to pay one-half of the restitution for the 11 bogus checks, sharing that responsibility with a co-defendant in the case.
The co-defendant, Richard Allen Jones of Twin Falls, represented by his attorney Jon Schindler of Twin Falls, admitted Tuesday night he was charged with forgery charges in Twin Falls. He was ordered to pay half of the restitution, and the Jerome County charges were dismissed in favor of Twin Falls County proceedings.

Ex-Green Beret issues a warning

By CHRISTOPHER WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — "The United States is committing national suicide as it continues to finance communism," said Alan Davidson Wednesday night in a speech sponsored by the Magic Valley Tax Reform. Immediately following the speech, Davidson, a former Green Beret staff sergeant and a 5-year coordinator for the John Birch Society, focused on two key areas he said could be used by the United States as instruments of world peace. These areas included the Soviet Union's economic bankruptcy and its dependence on the west for technological advancement.
"The communist empire would collapse under its own weight if we would just stop propping it up," Davidson said. "Their Achilles heel is that they cannot grow enough food to feed their people or produce enough goods to provide a good standard of living for their slave citizens."
Davidson said the United States has been sending the Soviets wheat, engines, metals, trucks, petroleum and computers — electronic equipment, airplane parts and many other useful items while receiving nearly nothing in return.
"We have been sending the Soviets

the basics of industrialization, and getting canned hams from Poland, lollipops from Czechoslovakia and grapes from Yugoslavia and Bulgaria in return."
Davidson said the most "poignant" aspect of America's aid and trade policy is that United States people are being asked to put up the money for the building of a missile system to defend themselves against a Russian missile system that was built and financed by the United States.
"We provided the Soviet Union in the 1970s with the technology to improve the accuracy of their multiple missile warheads to the point where they are capable of neutralizing our own nuclear deterrent," Davidson said.
"The USSR, over the years, has listed greatly needed technological items such as computers, as non-strategic. Upon acquiring these supplies, the Soviets have continued to use them for nuclear weapons production.

"The president and Congress possess the Constitutional authority to stop the sale to the Soviet Union and other communist nations of American equipment, supplies and technology. The same officials can also stop loans, credits and rescheduling of debts, and further should terminate all pacts that lead to indirect United States financing of communist nations."
"If we keep subsidizing them at the same point either war or communism is inevitable," Davidson said. "We need to look at the total picture instead of just one wheat deal."

Apologetic gunman escapes

BURLEY — An apologetic gunman and his accomplice escaped with a small amount of cash after robbing a Burley gas station Wednesday.
The robbery took place at 9:28 p.m. when one of the men brandished a handgun and demanded money from the female cashier, 56-year-old Oyvreda Aue, according to Burley police reports. The gunman said he was sorry for taking the money. He said he needed it because his child was ill, according to the report.
One of the suspects was described as being 6 feet tall, 160 pounds, with blue eyes and blonde hair that hung over his ears. He was last seen wearing a light shirt and jeans.
The other suspect was described as being 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weighing 150 pounds with dark hair. He was wearing jeans and a black sweatshirt with white lettering.

Accident injures Heyburn man

HEYBURN — A man was injured in a car accident Wednesday night while he was following an ambulance that was taking his wife to the hospital, according to a Minidoka County sheriff's report.
Wilbert Blaine Mackley, 57, of Heyburn was treated and released from Cassia Memorial Hospital.
The accident was reported on Highway 20 at 8:55 p.m. when his car struck the Heyburn bridge, the report states. He was attempting to retrieve cigarettes from the glove compartment when he looked up and saw he was heading for the bridge. Mackley was unable to stop and collided with the bridge.

Kidnap

plaintiff claimed they forced her into a van, tied a towel to her neck, and drove her with a blanket, according to the complaint filed with magistrate court. Thompson said she then was taken to Jerome County to talk with her father.
The suspects were released on their own recognizance and have requested a preliminary hearing on the felony charges.
Gene Fredericksen of Jerome, who is representing Burton and Kalle, Thompson, Mike Thompson and the Magnells, had no comment on the case.
Brenda Thompson also claims her parents had moved to release her daughter, according to a civil lawsuit filed Wednesday in Fifth District Court.
District Judge Daniel Meehl, however, had signed an order Wednesday demanding that the girl be returned, said Brenda Thompson's lawyer, Paula Brown Sinclair of Twin Falls. The judge also signed a temporary restraining order asking that the family "live in peace alone."
The orders have not yet been served on the older Thompsens, Sinclair said. The family dispute "is fundamentally a religious issue," where her client sought to change her religion, Sinclair added.
Sinclair said a hearing tentatively is scheduled March 12 on whether Meehl's orders should be continued.
In the "civil litigation," Brenda Thompson is seeking $70,000 in damages from her parents because of the two alleged kidnappings.

Broncos drop critical game

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

BOISE — Boise State basketball Coach Bobby Dye was literally at a loss for words.

"I can't remember a season like this," he said. "The first-year Bronco mentor after his team dropped a crucial 49-47 Big Sky Conference decision in Weber State Thursday night. 'I do know we couldn't work any harder than we have been.'"

The loss, the Broncos' third consecutive defeat by a total of five points, dramatically dimmed their chances of hosting a first-round game in next week's conference playoffs. For that to happen, BSU would have to beat Idaho State here Saturday night — while Northern Arizona would have to defeat Nevada-Reno on the road and Montana State would have to upend Montana in Bozeman.

Barring all of those things happening, the Broncos will be on the road next Tuesday night in the first round of the playoffs in Reno or Bozeman.

"We can't do anything but beat Idaho State at this point," said Dye, whose team fell to 5-8 in Conference play and 15-12 for the season. "We have no control over anybody else. The kids just have to come back, and I'm sure they will."

In this contest, which could have nullified a last berth for the Broncos for all practical purposes, BSU played perhaps its worst game of the season, shooting 40 percent from the floor and turning the ball over 14 times.

"BSU has three guys on this team who are three-year starters, and they're tall, quick and jump well," said Weber State Coach Neil McCarthy. "It surprises me, frankly, that they are 5-8 at this point in the season. But you never know — a team like this can get hot in the tournament if they make it that far."

Gooding gets shot at championship

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

WENDELL — It took Gooding awhile to get there, but the Senators will finally get a shot at district championship after shellacking Glenns Ferry 53-38.

The consolation match-up guarantees the Senators not only their second shot at winner's bracket victory, but a team Gooding lost in overtime in the opener, but also a trip to state. The Canyon Conference sends two teams to Moscow this year.

Gooding won the game the way it was won last year — intelligent, opportunistic guard play by Todd Simms and Rusty Moody, coupled with the underbasket domination of Bryan Darcy, Sven Swenson and Bart Hulcheon. It's easy to imagine why guards couldn't miss their targets — the trio averages 9-foot-9, with Hulcheon towering 6-10.

"It was a rough road to go, but I'm glad we're here," said Gooding Coach Don Fowler, who noted the last time the Senators made it to the state level was in 1977, when they were still A-2. It will be their first trip to an A-3 tournament.

"I think of the last three games we've played, this has to be the most effective," Fowler said. "No, we won't have a let down Friday (when they play Filer) — at least I don't expect a let down. The kids want to play."

Play they did Thursday night, closing down a club that featured the usually hot-shooting hands of John Solosabal and inside threat David

Fulton. Together the pair scored just 17 points, with Solosabal's 13 points reflecting a three-of-15 effort from the field. Just as important, Fulton was limited to just four points, below his average.

As a club, Glenns Ferry hung itself from the field, hitting just 14-of-56 shots. Solosabal, the only player in double figures. Meanwhile, the Senators shot an 18-of-49.

Simms generated a lot of attention in the second quarter when the sophomore hit two field goals and a free throw for five of his 10 points. After a first-quarter defensive struggle, Gooding broke away for good just a minute into the second period as a result of a Simms 18-footer. The guard then hit his second bucket to make the score 12-8 and the Senators never got off track after that.

The third period saw more scoring for both clubs but Moody provided the most excitement. In one series he lunged for a save at midcourt, made three rebounds on two of his attempts, then capped it with a 5-footer. That action hit the 29 marker, Gooding far from five, squelching Solosabal and Robbie Isenhardt's three 3-point efforts.

Minico downs Bruins, 51-49

Spartans controlled the key, the tempo and maintained defense

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Smart, patient and confident, the Minico Spartans did all the things they set out to do — control the key, control the tempo and play defense.

The upshot was a 51-49 victory over the Twin Falls Bruins Thursday night that propelled the Spartans into the Fourth District A-1 championship and next week's state tournament at the ISU Mindome. Coach Craig Dexter's charges will meet the Sixth District champion, either Idaho Falls or (probably) Bonneville, at 2 p.m. Thursday.

The Spartans simply and steadily crushed the life out of Twin Falls and, as history has shown, in most cases when it's close going into the fourth quarter, the Spartans pull it out.

It was a bitter pill for Twin Falls, which came into the game with a school record 18-2 mark. But like the team that first set the last mark at 17-1 in 1959-60, these Bruins will not go to state.

Minico, which thus took a 3-2 edge over the five meetings this year, did it the usual way — impeccable point-guard play by Greg Schow, inside scoring from Brad Croft and the continued excellent shooting of Kent McKenzie, who drilled Twin Falls for 71 points in three meetings.

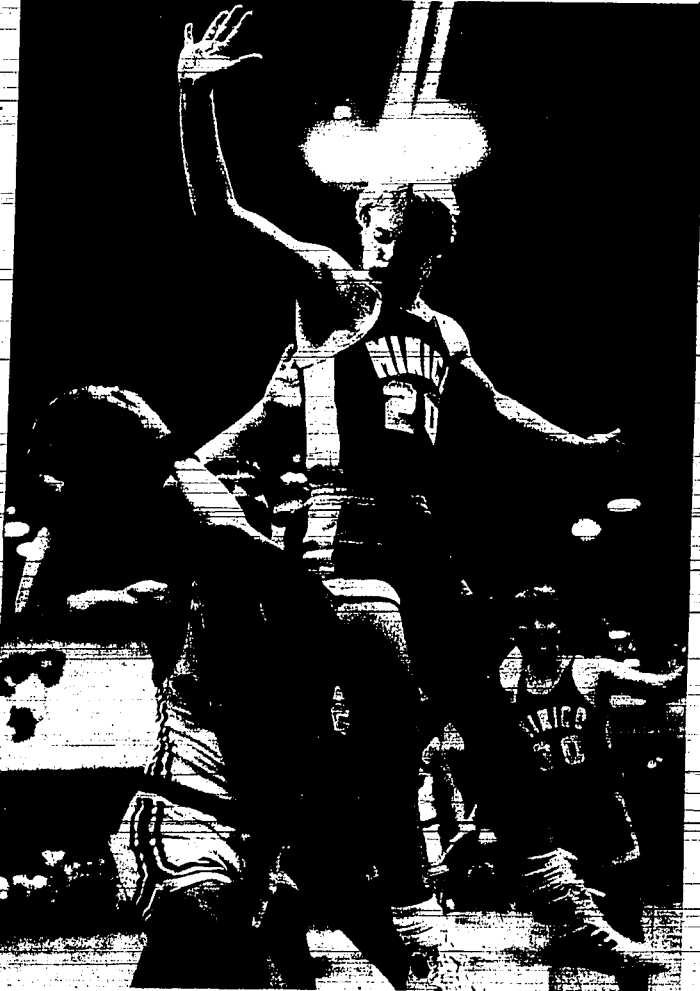

Twin Falls gave its fans some bright moments early — particularly when senior Darren Stuart put on a shooting display. When Twin Falls led 21-16, Stuart had 18. But he added just one three-pointer after that. Perhaps a turning point came when Bruin senior Andy Toolson picked up two fouls in the first two minutes and spent most of the first half on the bench.

The Bruins moved ahead 26-18 late in the half but that was the high-water mark. In the closing 1:30, Minico cut back to within four and then tied the game at 29 during a third quarter it completely dominated.

Twin Falls' ball handling was atrocious in that third quarter, turning the ball over five times in three-minute spans. The Bruins simply let Minico tighten the defensive noose as Bruin confidence waned.

Meanwhile, the Spartans lulled Twin Falls' inside defensive people to sleep, rolled men into the middle as in their first meeting of the year, Minico all-but shut out Twin Falls' inside people. But the Bruins, getting the final three-pointers from Stuart, managed a 36-28 tie going into the final period.

Minico seized the lead when Twin Falls sandwiched two turnovers — one a first-second violation — and two Croft free throws with 4:14 to play. From then on Minico had twin falls chasing the ball without success. With 1:57, Minico had a 47-45 lead and the ball held it until Karl Bailey hit two free throws with 33 seconds showing. Toolson got there in back at the line within eight seconds, but Twin Falls then went to sleep defensively, triple teaming the ball in forecourt and letting Jerry Johnson get away with what seemed a one-pass crumple. Doug Fitzsimons got there in time to foul Johnson and the Bruins hopes stayed alive when the Spartan hit just one of two. But Twin Falls' three-point attempt wouldn't go down, although Toolson flipped it in. With four seconds remaining, Johnson went back to the line. • See BRUINS on Page B4

Minico's Greg Schow attempts to stop Bruin Andy Toolson under the basket

NFL spokesmen fear agents combing colleges for recruits

By The Associated Press

National Football League officials said Thursday they weren't concerned so much with an influx of undergraduates as they were with a stream of agents to the nation's campuses and an "exodus" of collegians misadventuredly hoping to turn pro.

The United States Football League was directly affected by a federal judge's ruling declaring illegal its eligibility regulation barring underclassmen. But the NFL, although not a party to the suit filed by former University of Arizona punter Bob Boris, was indirectly involved since its eligibility rule was virtually identical to the USFL's.

"The primary interest of any sports league is an orderly assimilation of new talent. We have that through the draft," said Jay Moyer, the counsel to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle. "A change in the eligibility rule wouldn't compromise that basic interest, but we fear there would be a spate of agents descending on colleges and, for their own financial reasons, enticing kids to come out before they're ready."

"An athlete has to believe in himself to be effectively competitive," Moyer said. "But all too often, with immature young men, that belief is translated into over-rating his own ability relative to others. Some agents will prey on that weakness. The real losers will be players, not agents."

Moyer said he believed that even the legitimate football stars benefited by playing out their college eligibility. "I'm sure John Elway was more financially rewarded at the end of his final year (at Stanford) than he might have been had he come out early," he said. "And who ever heard of Marcus Allen leaving his senior year at the University of Southern California," when he won the Heisman Trophy.

Both Albert, media relations administrator for the USFL, said Thursday that Commissioner Chet Simmons had advised league officials not to comment on the Boris suit and that no statements would be forthcoming until Friday at the earliest.

Tex Schimm, president of the NFL's Dallas Cowboys, expressed concern that "filing in the Boris case could encourage somebody to bring a similar suit against us." He's a bit late. The NFL already is engaged in such litigation with Ken Durrell, a defensive lineman at the University of Illinois from 1978-80.

Durrell attempts to join the NFL were rebuffed in two ways. First, he was deemed ineligible since his college eligibility didn't expire until the end of the 1982 season. And in 1983, when he was draft eligible, he went undrafted and then, as a free agent able to deal with any team, he went unsigned.

In August 1982, before his final year of eligibility, Durrell signed a contract, reportedly worth $15,000, with George Allen's Chicago Blitz of the USFL. Two months later, Simmons rejected it. Durrell was eligible for the 1983 USFL territorial draft, but was ignored.

Even some agents expressed concern that some of their brethren would prey on star-struck collegians.

"If anyone is damaged," agent Richard Bennett said, "it'll be these young men who are advised to come out eligible, then don't succeed in the pros. These are the people we have to worry about, not the college institutions." "There's going to be a lot of agents out there, filling these kids' heads with visions of glamour," said another agent, Gary Withard. "Unfortunately, you have people like that." And he said that "for every Herschel Walker, there'll be a thousand guys you never hear of again who will give up their education."

It was a reference to the Heisman Trophy winning running back who gave up his final season of eligibility at the University of Georgia by signing a $5 million, three-year contract with the USFL's New Jersey Generals.

College coaches and their association were divided as to the potential effect of the ruling by U.S. District Court Judge Laughlin Waters, which decreed that the USFL ban on underclassmen was a violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Optimism the rule for baseball coach facing a new season

By CHRIS HART
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The most apt personification of optimism is a baseball coach in spring. College of Southern Idaho's Jim Walker is no exception.

Walker, whose Golden Eagles open the 1984 season in a game double the next day against Treasure Valley Community College at Nampa's Rodeo Park, believes his club can exceed the achievements of last year's. All those Eagles did was compile a 34-9 record, win the Region III title and reach the National Junior College Athletic Association World Series, where they were eliminated in two games.

"We're more versatile, better-balanced and quicker. In all phases of the game we're much better," the ninth-year coach affirmed. Walker's bright outlook is matched by that of assistant Coach Jim Dawson, who handles CSI's pitchers. Dawson judges his staff to be "seven-deep," as opposed to the two- or three-deep of previous seasons. Agreed Walker, "They're bigger, stronger, better athletes. They're more polished."

This self-assurance has developed even though the snowy, frigid winter has prevented the Eagles from practicing outdoors. CSI has attempted to compensate for workout quality with frequency; Walker has been drilling them since November.

"So we're ready," he said. "We'll play a lot of the game on a mat, and we're just going to break it easy. All we'll do is let them play and get accustomed to the ground. We're not going to do anything fancy; we'll let them swing away at the plate."

For all his confidence, Walker admitted he would like to see the Eagles return to their power-hitting form of previous seasons.

"In earlier years, (opponents) always feared us because of the home run. Pitchers always felt lucky if they got out of an inning. But the last couple of years we haven't had that respect," he said. "I know it's an idealistic attitude, but I want teams to pitch to us."

Walker's optimism will be counted on most to provide that advantage are co-captains Jeff Schow and Lynn VanEvery, both of Rupert. As seniors at Minico High School in 1982, they led the Spartans to the state baseball championship, and last year they continued creating success.

Schow batted .417, socked a team-high nine home runs and paced CSI in five other offensive categories, while VanEvery hit .378 and played well enough at shortstop to get drafted twice by the New York Yankees in last June's session and the San Diego Padres in January's winter draft. The San Francisco Giants also selected Schow, a second baseman, in the January proceedings.

"I can't see them playing any better than last year, but they'll be a little tougher," Walker said.

Shel Scott, a sophomore transfer from San Diego State who was drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals in January, will start at third base. His glove work has impressed Walker already. "We didn't have to teach him to come out eligible, then don't succeed in the pros. These are the people we have to worry about, not the college institu-

Trustees approve $8,247 public-address system for gym

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

BURL — The sound of music and athletic events will soon fill the Buhl Middle School gymnasium from a new all-purpose speaker system.

Tuesday night the Buhl School Board approved the purchase of an $8,247 public-address system to be installed in the next few weeks.

The $4,000 down payment on the system is the profit from the Buhl Community International Smorgasbord held last March.

West End Twin Falls County

The balance, due July 15, will be financed from the school district budget.

Since the middle school gymnasium is a large auditorium and is used for many school and community events, Superintendent Bob Pratt said the existing 10-year-old system is inadequate.

The speakers from the old public address system will be used at the elementary school.

In other business:

- The board agreed that a committee be appointed to review requests for a new system from a $5,000 grant awarded by the National Science Foundation.
- Teachers of the seventh through 12th grades can request the grant money for science and math projects and equipment.
- Their written requests will then be channeled through the new committee which will make recommendations to the school board.
- The district received the grant for the secondary schools in October when high-school teacher, Charles Humphries, gained national recognition for excellence in science and mathematics instruction.
- The board voted to give Charles Humphries professional leave to attend a National Science Teachers' Convention in Boston in April.

The approval is contingent upon the new science and math grant committee approving a $66 expenditure from the National Science Foundation grant to pay for a substitute teacher for two days.

With Board Chairman Kathleen Lantz breaking a tie, the board agreed to spend up to $300, but not more than $30 per person, for the registration fees of district coaches at a workshop sponsored by the Buhl School District in Jackpot this spring. Pratt said it was difficult for the principals to endorse the coaches' clinic when other departments received budget cuts, but the coaches do extra work for very little money.

The board approved a self-evaluation and outside committee evaluation of the elementary school in 1985 as required by the state Department of Education every 10 years.

In the valley

Tour features local talent

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley talent will take center stage Saturday in the Showtime Company gives a tour performance in Twin Falls.

The performing group from Ricks College features Diane Luke of Burley and Carole Crater of Buhl.

Crater, president of the group, was awarded a dance scholarship this year. She is currently teaching dance at the Ricks College.

The group features male and female vocalists, dancers and a full-stage band under the direction of Wilson Brown, who arranged and directed music for 13 years with "The Letterman."

New numbers include a musical review ranging in style from "Dancing the Ritz" to a new "Tanzan" number with its own hairy costume ape.

The fast-moving variety show will be presented at 7 p.m. in the cultural hall at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints building at 600 Harrison St. Contact Gary Walker at 733-1994 for ticket information.

CSI band begins rehearsals

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho concert band will begin evening rehearsals at 7:30 p.m. Monday in room 141 of the Fine Arts Building. Except for March 12, rehearsals will be held each Monday evening until the concert, which is scheduled for 9 p.m. on April 29. Musicians who are interested in playing in the band should contact Thomas Braske, the director, at 733-9554, extension 266 or 734-2206.

Man charged with burglary

BURLEY — Alan Lee Brent was arrested last week in Burley for allegedly burglarizing the residence of State Rep. Ernest Hale, R-Burley.

According to a Burley police report, the 26-year-old Brent has been charged with breaking into the home and stealing a rifle, silver coins and jewelry worth more than $1,000.

Brent is being held in the Cassia County Jail on $30,000 bond.

Wendell man pleads to forgery

JEROME — A Wendell man, charged originally with 11 counts of felony forgery charges was allowed to plead guilty to one of the charges and the remaining 10 were dismissed.

Ted Anderson, 20, of Wendell appeared in Fifth District Court in Jerome Tuesday to answer to charges in connection with forged checks on the account of Harold Roscoe that were passed out at occasions at a Jerome grocery store. Roscoe reported the checks, on a now-closed account, were stolen from his Wendell home.

Eugene Fredericksen, attorney for Anderson, said as a result of plea negotiations, his client would plead guilty to cashing one forged check at Smith's Food King in Jerome. He then requested the remaining charges be dismissed.

The court granted the motion and pronounced a 10-year-prison sentence that was then suspended in favor of 120 days retained jurisdiction at the North Idaho Correctional Institute.

The court said Anderson will have to pay one-half of the restitution for the 11 bogus checks, sharing that responsibility with a co-defendant in the case.

The co-defendant, Edward Allen Jones of Twin Falls, represented by his attorney John Schindler of Twin Falls, admitted Tuesday to probation violation and forgery charges in Twin Falls. He was ordered to pay half of the restitution, and the Jerome County charges were dismissed in favor of Twin Falls County proceedings.

Ex-Green Beret issues a warning

By CHRISTOPHER WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — "The United States is committing national suicide as it continues to finance communism," said Alan Davidson Wednesday night in a speech sponsored by the Magic Valley Tax Reform Immediately Committee.

Davidson, a former Green Beret staff sergeant and a 5-year coordinator for the John Birch Society, focused on two key areas he said would be used by the United States as instruments of world peace. These areas included the Soviet Union's economic bankruptcy and its dependence on the west for technological advancement.

"The communist empire would collapse under its own weight if we would just stop propping it up," Davidson said. "Their Achilles heel is that they cannot grow enough food to feed their people or produce enough goods to provide a good standard of living for their slave citizens."

Davidson said the United States has been sending the Soviets wheat, engines, metal trucks, petroleum and gas derivatives, electronic equipment, airplane parts and many other useful items while receiving nearly nothing in return.

"We have been sending the Soviets

the basics of industrialization, and getting canned hams from Poland, lollipops from Czechoslovakia and grapes from Yugoslavia and Bulgaria in return."

Davidson said the most "poignant" aspect of America's aid and trade policy is that United States people are being asked to put up the money for the building of a missile system to defend themselves against a Russian missile system that was "built and financed by the United States."

"We provided the Soviet Union in the 1970s with the technology to improve the accuracy of their multiple missile warheads to the point where they are capable of neutralizing our own nuclear deterrent," Davidson said.

He said the USSR, over the years, has listed greatly needed technological items such as computers, as non-strategic. Upon acquiring these supplies, the Soviets have continued to use them for nuclear weapons production.

"The president and Congress possess a Constitutionally-mandated authority to stop the sale to the Soviet Union and other communist nations of American equipment, supplies and technology. The same officials can also stop loans, credits and rescheduling of debts, and further should terminate all acts that lead to indirect United States financing of communist nations."

"If we keep subsidizing them, at some point either war or communism is inevitable," Davidson said. "We need to look at the total picture instead of just one wheat deal."

Apologetic gunman escapes

BURLEY — An apologetic gunman and his accomplice escaped with a small amount of cash after robbing a Burley gas station Wednesday.

The robbery took place at 9:28 p.m. when one of the men brandished a handgun and demanded money from the female clerk at the United Oil gas station, 560 Overland Ave., according to a Burley police report. The gunman said he was sorry for taking the money. He said he needed it because his child was ill, according to the report.

One of the suspects was described as being 6 feet tall, 180 pounds, with blue eyes and blonde hair that hung over his ears. He was last seen wearing a light shirt and jeans.

The other suspect was described as being 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weighing 150 pounds with dark hair. He was wearing jeans and a black sweatshirt with white lettering.

Accident injures Heyburn man

HEYBURN — A man was injured in a car accident Wednesday night while he was following an ambulance that was taking his wife to the hospital, according to a Mindok County sheriff's report.

Wilbert Elaine Mackley, 57, of Heyburn was treated and released from Cassia Memorial Hospital.

Mackley was southbound on Highway 30 at 8:55 p.m. when his car struck the Heyburn Bridge, the report states. He was attempting to retrieve cigarettes from the glove compartment when he looked up and saw he was crossing the bridge. Mackley was unable to stop and collided with the bridge.

plaintiff claimed they forced her into a car, stuffed a towel in her mouth and covered her with a blanket, according to the complaint filed with magistrate court. Thompson said she then was taken to Jerome County to talk with her father.

The suspects were released on their own recognizance and have requested a preliminary hearing on the felony charges.

Eugene Fredericksen of Jerome, who is representing, Ron and Nellie Thompson, Mike Thompson and the Magnellis, had no comment on the case.

Brenda Thompson also claims her parents have refused to release her daughter, according to a civil lawsuit filed Wednesday in Fifth District Court.

District Judge Daniel Meehl, however, has signed an order Wednesday demanding that the child be returned, said Brenda Thompson's lawyer, Paula Brown Sinclair of Twin Falls.

The judge also signed a temporary restraining order asking that the family "leave Brenda alone."

The orders have not yet been served on the older Thompsons, Sinclair said.

"The family dispute is fundamentally a religious issue," where her client wants to change her religion, Sinclair added.

Sinclair said a hearing tentatively scheduled March 12 on whether Meehl's orders should be continued.

In the civil litigation, Brenda Thompson is seeking $70,000 in damages from her parents because of the two alleged kidnappings.

Planning meeting set for reunion

BURLEY — A planning meeting for the 25th year reunion of the Burley High School class of 1959 will be held at 7:30 p.m. this evening in Room 2 of the Burley High School.

All classmates are invited to help plan the June 30 event. For more information call Monte Dayley, 678-1549 or 438-5028; Gene Goodwin, 678-2206; June Potter, 438-5141; and Bruce Hutzinger, 678-3229.

Broncos drop critical game

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

BOISE — Boise State basketball Coach Bobby Dye was literally at a loss for words.

"I can't remember a season like it," said the first-year Bronco mentor after his team dropped a crucial 49-47 Big Sky Conference decision to Weber State Thursday night. "I do know we couldn't work any harder than we have been."

The loss, the Broncos' third consecutive defeat by a total of five points, dramatically dimmed their chances of hosting a first-round game in next week's conference playoffs. For that to happen, BSU would have to beat Idaho State here Saturday night, while Northern Arizona would have to defeat Nevada-Reno on the road and Montana State would have to open Montana in Bozeman.

Barring all of those things happening, the Broncos will be on the road next Tuesday night in the first round of the playoffs in Reno or Bozeman.

"We can't do anything but beat Idaho State at this point," said Dye, whose team fell to 5-8 in Conference play, and 15-12 for the season. "We have no control over anybody else. The kids just have to come back, and I'm sure they will."

In this contest, which could have spelled down a host berth for the Broncos for all practical purposes, BSU played perhaps its worst game of the season, shooting 40 percent from the floor and turning the ball over 14 times.

"BSU has three guys on this team who are three-year starters, and they're tall, quick and jump well," said Weber State Coach Neil McCarty, "but they surprise me, frankly, that they are 5-8 at this point in the season. But you never know — a team like this can get hot in the tournament if they make it that far."

Minico downs Bruins, 51-49

Spartans controlled the key, the tempo and maintained defense

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Smart, patient and confident, the Minico Spartans did all the things they set out to do — control the key, control the tempo and play defense.

The upset was a 51-49 victory over the Twin Falls Bruins Thursday night that propelled the Spartans into the Fourth District A-1 championship and the next week's state tournament at the ISU Midlodge. Coach Craig Dexter's charges will meet the Sixth District champion, either Idaho Falls or (probably) Bonneville at 2 p.m. Thursday.

The Spartans simply and steadily crushed the life out of Twin Falls and, as history has shown, in most cases when it's close going into the fourth quarter, the Spartans pull it out.

It was a bitter pill for Twin Falls, which came into the meet with a school record 18-2 mark. But like the team that first set the last mark at 17-3 in 1953-54, those Bruins will not go to state.

Minico, which thus took a 3-2 edge over the five meetings this year, did it the usual way — impeccable point-guard play by Greg Schow, leading scoring from Brad Croft and the continued excellent shooting of Kent McKenzie, who drilled Twin Falls for 71 points in three meetings.

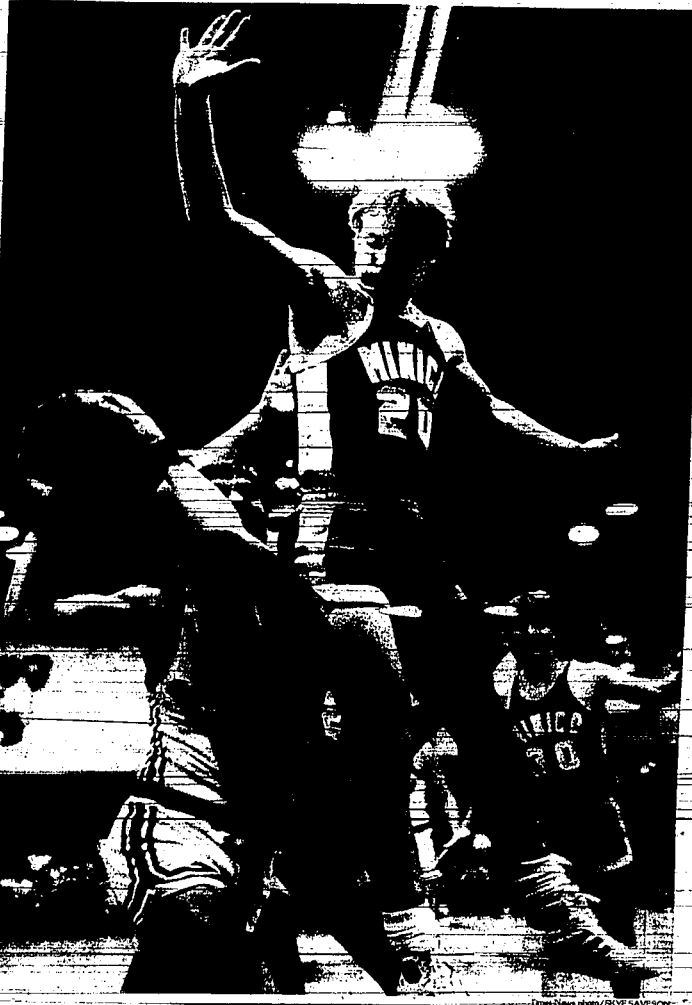

Twin Falls gave its fans some bright moments early — particularly when senior Darren Stuart put on a shooting display. When Twin Falls led 23-16, Stuart had 16. But he added just one three-pointer after that. Perhaps a turning point came when Bruin senior Andy Toolson picked up two fouls in the first two minutes and spent most of the first half on the bench.

The Bruins moved ahead 26-18 late in the half but that was the high-water mark. In the closing 1:30, Minico cut back to within four and then tied the game at 28 during a third quarter it completely dominated.

"Twin Falls' ball-handling was atrocious in that third quarter, turning the ball over five times in a three-minute span, those miscues simply let Minico tighten the defensive noose as Bruin confidence waned."

Meanwhile, the Spartans lulled Twin Falls inside defensive people to sleep, called men into the middle as in their first meeting of the year, Minico all but shut out Twin Falls inside people. But the Bruins, getting the final three-pointer from Stuart, managed a 35-36 tie going into the final period.

Minico seized the lead when twin falls sandwiched two turnovers — one a live-second violation — around two Croft free throws with 4:47 to play. From then on Minico had twin falls chasing the ball without success. With 1:57, Minico had a 47-45 lead and the ball held it until Karl Bentley hit two free throws with 38 seconds showing. Toolson got those back at the line within eight seconds, but Twin Falls then went to sleep defensively, tripe teaming the ball in forecourt, and letting Jerry Johnson get away for what seemed a one-pass cripple. Doug Petersen got there in time to foul Johnson and the Bruins' hopes stayed alive when the Spartan hit just one two. But Twin Falls' three-point attempt wouldn't go down, although Toolson tipped it in. With four seconds remaining, Johnson went back to the

Gooding gets shot at championship

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

WENDELL — It took Gooding awhile to get there, but the Senators will finally get a shot at district championship after shellacking Glenns Ferry 53-35.

The consolation matchup guarantees the Senators not only their second shot at winner's bracket victory, a team Gooding lost to in overtime in the opener, but also a trip to state. The Canyon Conference sends two teams to Moscow this year.

Gooding won the game the way it won the last three — intelligent, opportunistic guard-play by Todd Simis and Frosty Moody, coupled with the under-basket domination of Bryan Darcy, Sven Swenson and Bart Hutcheson. It's easy to imagine why guards couldn't miss their targets — the trio averages 6-foot-9, with Hutcheson averaging 6-10.

"It was a rough road to go, but I'm glad we're here," said Gooding Coach Don Fowler, who noted the last time the Senators made it to the state level was in 1977, when they were still A-2. It will be their first trip to an A-3 tournament.

"I think of the last three games we've played, this has to be the most effective," Fowler said. "We won't have a let-down Friday (when they play Filer) — at least I don't expect a let-down. The kids want to play."

Play they did Thursday night, closing down a club that featured the usually hot-shooting hands of John Solosabal and inside threat David Fullon. Together the pair scored just 17 points, with Solosabal's 13 points reflecting a three-of-15 effort from the field. Just as important, Fullon was limited to just four points, below his average.

As a club, Glenns Ferry hung itself from the field, hitting just 44-of-86 with Solosabal the only Filer in double figures. Meanwhile, the Senators shot an 18-of-49.

Simis generated a lot of attention in the second quarter when the sophomore hit a field goal and a free throw for five of his 10 points. After a first-quarter defensive struggle, Gooding broke away for good just a minute into the second period as a result of a Simis 10-footer. The guard then hit his second bucket to make the score 12-8 and the Senators never got off track after that.

The third period saw more scoring for both clubs but Moody provided the most excitement. In one series-lunged for a save at midcourt, made three rebounds on two of his attempts, then capped it with a 4-foot-er. That was more than enough to lead Gooding in front by five, squelching Solosabal and Robbie Isenhardt's three-point efforts.

NFL spokesmen fear agents combing colleges for recruits

By The Associated Press

National Football League officials said Thursday they weren't concerned so much with an influx of undergraduates as they were with a stream of agents to the nation's campuses — and an exodus of collegians misadventurously heading to them.

The United States Football League was directly affected by a federal judge's ruling declaring illegal its eligibility regulation barring underclassmen. But the NFL, although not a party to the suit, filed by former University of Arizona punter Bob Boris, was indirectly involved since its eligibility rule was virtually identical to the USFL's.

"The primary interest of any sports league is an orderly assimilation of new talent. We have that through the draft," said Jay Meyer, the counsel to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle. "A change in the eligibility rules wouldn't compromise that basic interest, but we fear there would be a spate of agents descending on colleges and, for their own financial reasons, enticing kids to come out before they're ready."

"An athlete has to believe in himself to be effectively competitive," Meyer said. "But all too often, with immature young men, that belief is translated into over-rating his own ability relative to others. Some agents will act on that weakness. The real losers will be players, not agents."

Meyer said he believed that even the legitimate football stars benefited by playing out their college eligibility. "I'm sure John Elway was more financially rewarded at the end of his final year (at Stanford) than he might have been had he come out early," he said. "And who ever heard of Marcus Allen before his senior year (at the University of California), when he won the Helmsman Trophy."

Both Albert J. media relations administrator for the USFL, said Thursday that Commissioner Chad Simmons had advised League officials not to comment on the Boris suit and that no statement would be forthcoming until Friday at the earliest.

Tex Schramm, president of the NFL's Dallas Cowboys, expressed concern that the ruling in the Boris case "could encourage somebody to bring a similar suit against us."

He's a bit late. The NFL already is engaged in such litigation with Ken Durrell, a defensive lineman at the University of Illinois from 1969-70.

Durrell's attempts to join the NFL were rebuffed in two ways. First, he was deemed

"ineligible" since his college eligibility didn't expire until the end of the 1982 season. And in 1983, when he was draft eligible, he went undrafted and then, as a free agent able to deal with any team, he went unsigned.

In August 1982, before his final year of eligibility, Durrell signed a contract, reportedly worth $17,000, with George Allen's Chicago Blitz of the USFL. Two months later, Simmons rejected it. Durrell was eligible for the 1983 USFL territorial draft, but was ignored.

Even some agents expressed concern that some of their brethren would prey on starstruck collegians.

"If anyone is damaged," agent Richard Bennett said, "it'll be these young men who are advised to come out and then don't succeed in the draft by the St. Louis Cardinals in January, will start at third base. His glove work has impressed Walker already. "We didn't have to teach him a thing," he said. "He's got the best instincts on the club."

Jim Kalkas, a 335-hitter last year as an outfielder-designated hitter, will probably spend most of the time at first base, giving Walker what he considers his best-ever infield.

"When we take pre-game, people will stop and look at us," the coach promised. "I've always told There's going to be a lot of agents out there, filling these kids' heads with visions of glamour," said another agent, Gary Wichard.

"Unfortunately, you have people like that." And he said that "for every Herschel Walker, there'll be a thousand guys you never hear of again who will give up their education."

It was a reference to the Helmsman Trophy winning running back who gave up his final season of eligibility at the University of Georgia by signing a $5-million, three-year contract with the USFL's New Jersey Generals.

College coaches and their association were divided as to the potential effect of the ruling by U.S. District Court Judge Laughlin Young, which decreed that the USFL ban on underclassmen was a violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Optimism the rule for baseball coach facing a new season

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The most apt personification of optimism is a baseball coach in spring. College of Southern Idaho's Jim Walker is no exception.

Walker, whose Golden Eagles open the 1984 season Saturday with a 1 p.m. double-header against Treasure Valley Community College at Nampa's Roddy Park, believes his club can exceed the achievements of last year's. All those Eagles did was compile a 34-9 record, win the Region 18 title and reach the National Junior College Athletic Association World Series, where they were eliminated in two games.

"We're more versatile, better-balanced and quicker. In all phases of the game we're much better," the ninth-year coach affirmed.

Walker's bright outlook is matched by that of assistant Coach Jim Dawson, who handles CST's pitchers. "We're more financially rewarded at the end of his final year (at Stanford) than he might have been had he come out early," he

This self-assurance has developed even though the state baseball championship, and last year they compiled exciting success.

Schow batted .417, socked a team-high nine home runs and paced CST in five other offensive categories, while VanEvery hit .378 and played well enough at shortstop to get drafted twice — by the New York Yankees in last June's session and the San Diego Padres in January's winter draft. The San Francisco Giants also selected Schow, a second baseman, in the January proceedings.

"I can't see them playing any better than last year, but they'll be a little tougher," Walker said.

Shell Scott, a sophomore transfer from San Diego State who was drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals in January, will start at third base. His glove work has impressed Walker already. "We didn't have to teach him a thing," he said. "He's got the best instincts on the club."

Jim Kalkas, a 335-hitter last year as an outfielder-designated hitter, will probably spend most of the time at first base, giving Walker what he considers his best-ever infield.

"When we take pre-game, people will stop and look at us," the coach promised. "I've always told

Valuable as shortstop

Hoyt first $1 million pitcher

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — The Chicago White Sox opened their checkbook Thursday to make Cy Young Award winner LaMarr Hoyt the American League's first $1 million a year pitcher, and also signed 22-game winner Richard Dotson and Rookie of the Year Ron Kittle.

Hoyt, 29, was 24-10 last season for the Western Division champions, and Dotson, 24, was 22-7 with a 2.7 mark, both signed six-year pacts that will carry them past free-agency eligibility.

Hoyt's contract calls for three years at $1 million guaranteed, with three option years. Dotson has four years at $350,000 guaranteed, with two option years.

Kittle, 25, pitched 35 home runs and 100 runs batted in, signed a three-year pact starting at about $200,000 — which would put him on a par with National League Rookie of the Year Darryl Strawberry, who signed a one-year pact with the New York Mets.

King named top NBA player

NEW YORK (AP) — Forward Bernard King of New York, who averaged 32.9 points in 16 games during February, — including a 35.8-point average during the Knicks' 11 road games — was named Thursday the NBA's Player of the Month.

King opened February with a 50-point game, becoming the first NBA player to hit 50 in consecutive nights since Wilt Chamberlain did it on Feb. 17-18, 1964.

USFL telecast viewing down

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's telecast of last Sunday's opening United States Football League games drew an 8.0 rating and a 19 share, well below last year's first-day figures, but satisfactory to the network, a spokesman said Thursday.

The figures for 1983's opening telecast — the first in USFL history — were a 14.2 rating and a 33 share, the league's highest of the season, on a day when celebrated running back Herschel Walker made his pro debut.

"But this year, we didn't have the curiosity factor," said the spokesman. "However, ABC is very satisfied," he added.

The satisfaction was because the USFL telecasts, shown between 2:30 p.m. EST-3 p.m. EST, were the highest rated sports programs Sunday.

Sipe undergoes knee surgery

EDISON, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey Generals quarterback Brian Sipe underwent arthroscopic surgery to remove torn cartilage from his right knee Thursday and will be sidelined three weeks, the United States Football League team physician said.

Honda Classic tees off

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Veteran J.C. Snead put a new driver into play for the first time and pounded his way to a 4-under-par 68 that provided him with a one-stroke first-round lead Thursday in the $500,000 Honda Classic.

"It [fell] good," Snead said of the club he put in his bag only two days ago.

Snead played in the afternoon half of the field and admitted "we got a break" in the weather conditions.

The morning half-tee off with temperatures in the 30s and winds at 25 miles per hour and gusting higher. The afternoon starters played in much warmer temperatures — and more gentle breezes.

Jack Renner, a winner and a runner-up in his last two starts, played in the worst of the weather and carded a 2-under-par 69 that gave him a share of second with Andy Bean.

Bowie ends a reign

NEW YORK (AP) — Bowie Kuhn spent his last day in the office as the commissioner of baseball Thursday, ending a 15-year reign and leaving the post in the hands of the Major League Executive Council until a successor is formally named.

Kuhn's successor will be Peter Ueberroth, head of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, who will be appointed Saturday at a meeting of all 26 club owners in Tampa, Fla., according to published reports which were confirmed by the Associated Press through sources.

Sandy Hadden, secretary, treasurer and general counsel to baseball, is expected to serve as interim commissioner until Ueberroth fulfills his obligations with the Olympics, which end Aug. 12.

Hadden — Kuhn's chief aide since 1970 after five years as American League attorney, had no comment on the matter.

The New York Times said Thursday that the owners agreed last summer to accept the decision of the search committee, headed by Milwaukee Brewers' owner Bud Selig, that Ueberroth be Kuhn's successor. The Philadelphia Inquirer reported that the search committee approved Ueberroth's selection last Thursday at a secret meeting.

Kuhn's job became in jeopardy in December 1981 in Florida, where nine owners signed a letter urging him to resign.

His ouster was accomplished Nov. 1, 1982 at Chicago where, opposed by five National League owners, the commissioner failed to gain re-election to a third seven-year term. New York, Houston, St. Louis, Atlanta and Cincinnati were the NL dissenters.

Selig could not be reached for comment, but a source close to the situation said the owners were swayed to Ueberroth's favor when he received the backing of Kuhn supporter Peter O'Malley, owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

NFL owners meet today on Colt move

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The National Football League owners were scheduled to meet today in Chicago with a topic of discussion being the move of the Baltimore Colts to Indianapolis.

NFL officials said it was a preliminary meeting of the owners prior to their annual session March 18. But the Indianapolis news service said Thursday that Iray's proposed move to the Hoosier Dome will be discussed.

The Baltimore Sun reported Thursday that only Colts owner Robert Iray's "slight stance" in the way of the Colts' move to the Indiana capital.

The Sun said it had learned that Indianapolis officials had delivered a $15 million loan package that Iray demanded and had worked out a "modest" lease for the team to play in the new, 61,000-seat stadium.

However, an aide to Indianapolis Mayor William Hudnut indicated Thursday that a deal to bring the team to Indianapolis was not as close as some sources indicated.

Kent finds stars

Records rock

By DEBRA JOHNSON GELET
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — It is an odd comment for a successful photographer to make, but Andrew Kent does it several times.

"I don't like to carry a camera," he remarks matter-of-factly.

Relaxed in his Ketchum home, he seems to miss the unusual nature of his remark. But then, Kent has never been an ordinary man.

He was a nice, Jewish boy growing up comfortably in Beverly Hills, Calif. For a while, he attended a private English school in Paris. From there his life took a succession of sharp, curious turns.

As a photographer working for the Los Angeles Free Press in 1969, he found himself ducking behind a tree while being shot at as he covered a demonstration-turned-riot in east Los Angeles.

"I'm not getting paid enough for this," he thought.

So Kent left "riots, bombings and the hard stuff" behind and pursued the rare opportunity to photograph the world's top rock and roll musicians. For nearly 10 years, Kent documented on film the faces and personalities of the likes of the Rolling Stones, David Bowie, The Who, The Doors and Linda Ronstadt.

Life for Kent became erratic flights to all corners of the earth, backstage passes, the eccentricities of the famous and the small click...click...click...of his camera.

After getting what he wanted on film, Kent dropped out of the hectic pace to find the solace of his darkroom. Then he processed and marketed his work and caught another flight.

He describes the pace of his life then as "grinding," and feels lucky to have come out of the rock and roll world with both feet firmly on the ground.

"I just stayed professional about my work," he explains. "That was just my business. I was a photographer who covered rock and roll."

Perhaps he never had time to get caught up in the rush of covering the biggest musicians of the time. His career had a very innocent birth, but after that, it exploded.

Kent picked up photography when he traded a stereo for a camera and "fell in love with it... And after about 60 unrelated units at Santa Monica City College, I took two beginning photography classes. Then I read a lot and shot a lot," he recalls.

Kent's roommate at the time was a journalist who was asked to cover a Black Panther meeting by the Free Press. When asked if he needed a photographer, his roommate looked at Kent and replied, "No, I've got a photographer.

After 10 years photographing rock and roll bands, Andrew Kent now works out of a darkroom in his Ketchum home.

Growing tired of photojournalism and its occupational hazards, Kent turned to entertainment photography. Then he met Neal Preston, a New York-based photographer who was also working in the music scene.

The two men joined forces, and gained a solid reputation for pictures always coming out. Our clients were sure they would get what they wanted," Kent remembers.

Mirage, Inc. was born between the two of them, and Kent found himself working for most of the rock magazines and a number of recording companies. Music, concerts, tours and the darkroom concerned in Kent's seeing his work on album covers, "billboards" and "magazines" throughout the world.

Kent seemed to have reached a very satisfying peak in his life, but did he rest on that? No. He decided to leave Los Angeles and his hectic pace.

The next sharp and curious turn in his life brought him to Ketchum where he still works as a photographer. But, he says, "I came here in 1973 determined to be a small operator."

Kent has kept a fair amount of control on the pace of his work life in Ketchum. He shoots for many clients in the Wood-River Valley. But he is having trouble controlling a new passion — fly fishing. On his last day at Kent and replied, "No, I've got a

Notes from show

The Grammys

By RUSSELL SMITH
The Dallas Morning News

—Michael Jackson made Grammy history Tuesday night when he walked away with a record-breaking eight awards, seven of them from his phenomenally successful album, "Thriller."

Coming in at a distant second with four Grammys was Police frontman Sting, who scored with the band's hit song, "Every Breath You Take," and the album "Synchrocity."

It didn't hold a lot of surprises, but the 26th annual National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences awards show did begin with some exciting, entertaining moments and then devolved, as Grammy tradition would have it, into 90 minutes of almost relentless boredom.

While there was less to quibble with in the academy's choices this year than in the past, it is regrettable that David Bowie came up empty-handed for "Let's Dance," one of his best albums. Then again, he wouldn't have been there to receive them, anyway.

Jackson was there, in the front row, decked out in his usual royal military-glitter-outfit, dark glasses and single glove. And Brooke Shields, the official Jackson escort these days, sat beside him in her characteristic Cleopatra daze. However, other than his appearances on the podium to say thank you and brief stints in a couple of much-talked-about Pepsi commercials, the shy, softspoken Jackson did no performing — not so much as one backwards slide to bring applause from the balcony.

The first award of the evening, for Best New Song of the Year, was a treat for two music legends — Stevie Wonder and Bob Dylan — strolled out to do the honors. Wonder was cheery, Dylan withdrawn, and it was a relief when the trophy went, not to Jackson, but to Sting for "Every Breath You Take."

Considering that the category is for songwriters, it was only logical that Sting get the nod for his classic, lyrically — and musically — haunting composition, "Billie Jean." The main competition, is a great piece of pop music but was no doubt perceived by the voters as a lighter-weight entry.

It's interesting to note that Jackson the biggest possible edge. NARAS spread his nominations far and wide, giving three very similar songs the opportunity to win in three different categories.

What makes "Beat It" rock, "Billie Jean" R&B and "Thriller" pop? Only the academy can answer that one.

Vying for the prize in strangeness were two British bands, both nominated for the very first time at the year. Culture Club won the Grammy and rightly so — but it was a toss-up as to who made the most bizarre appearance.

Dilettantes finagled rights for 'Annie'

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — If you only have seen the movie and not the stage version of "Annie," you haven't seen "Annie."

So says Cindy Houser, publicity chairman for the Dilettante Group of Magic Valley which is producing the popular musical.

Dilettante President Tom Driscoll says, "Fortunately, the people who have only seen the movie are going to see a show they have never seen, and hear songs they may never have connected with 'Annie.'" He says the main theme and the same characters are some of the few things the musical play and the movie have in common.

This musical, says Driscoll, has taken the long route in reaching a Magic Valley stage.

In 1979, two years after the play opened on Broadway, many of the Dilettantes had seen the show performed, either in New York or by one of the national touring companies.

Agreeing it was an exceptional musical and especially suited for community theater, the Dilettantes applied for performing rights.

Other than national touring companies, no rights were assigned until the late spring of 1983, Driscoll says, adding that the Dilettantes were the first group in Idaho to receive the honor.

"However," he confesses, "it was performed in Lewiston first, in December, 1983, since we wanted to stay with our traditional March performance dates."

reasonably easy.

"Attempting to run away from the orphanage, she's caught by her keeper, Miss Hannigan. The next morning finds her escaping in a laundry basket. The rest of the play follows a well-written script about the protagonist, Annie, overcoming conflicts she never asked for — The type of heroic Americans seem to thrive on. It even manages to soften the image of the socialist hater, Daddy Warbucks, who actually has a heart."

For those insisting that the stage is only a forum for profound social comment, a disappointment is probably in store. As originally written and produced, "Annie" is fun to the point of daring to be different. The Depression may have been ugly and being orphaned even more so. Nevertheless, the play expresses the fact a child has the right to wide-eyed innocence under the worst of conditions. She might even win under those conditions.

Relating to the local performance, Driscoll says, "The group felt it had to make a special effort to get children to try out for this show because we knew that casting the part of Annie and then matching the orphan's size and voice to her would be no small task."

To that end we held a special workshop last July hoping to get a little preview of what we could expect to see at auditions."

Actual auditions were held back from their usual time in December until after the holidays were over so that nothing would divert the young auditioners attention, says Driscoll.

He says 63 girls, coming from as far away as Clatsop, Perry and Oakley, came to try out.

"We had the luxury of cutting it down to 30 outstanding ones for call back."

Speaking on the difficulty of casting according to size, the Dilettante president says 9-year-old Jodi Silvers was chosen, for the role over many exceptional girls.

"Had one of these others been cast as Annie, surely some different girls in some instances would have been cast as orphans," she says.

Driscoll says the production of "Annie" presents an aspect that is vastly different than any of the Dilettantes — now 25 years old — have done before.

"Other than four of the lead characters and the orphans, the rest of the cast is an ensemble rather than a cast of 42, consisting of 18, stage crew of 12 with two more or 10, two on sound, five dressers and eight people in makeup, besides the 16 ushers and 10 others who are needed to build, rig and break the set," he says.

Singer presents humor Kent

TWIN FALLS — George Russell, a country singer, instrumentalist, songwriter and humorist from Wisconsin, will present a concert from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday in the Eagle's Nest in the Taylor Administration Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

Russell will also be performing the following evening at 8 p.m. in the Renaissance Academy in Twin Falls. The concert is open to the public. He has performed throughout North America.

"The Minneapolis Star has said, 'George Russell is a highly entertaining performer,' and the Twin Cities Reader said: 'Terrific talent, extraordinary level of musicianship. His lyrics are as witty and perceptive as the music which surrounds them. Well worth watching.'"

Russell recently recorded an LP and one of the better known songs from that effort is "Snake River," which opens the album "Wish You Were Here" is becoming a popular ballad from side two.

His appearance at CSI is being sponsored by the Associated Students of the College of Southern Idaho and is free to the public.

Tickets for the Wednesday night concert are $5 and are available at Ann's Hallmark shop, the Music Center, Sunshine Corner and Warner's Music.

In Los Angeles, a friend gave him a whole fly fishing set-up as a bon voyage present.

"It just started to take me over," he admits implicitly, "I fell in with other fishermen here. These are my friends, that's what we do, what we talk about."

Two years ago, Kent became a licensed fishing guide. "But that's strictly for the enjoyment," he emphasized. "Not for the money. Photography is still my work and fishing is what I do to relax."

Life for his big-time rock and roll photographer has turned quiet. He takes time to fish, work a little, and maybe ride his beloved motorcycle, "my Warren Beatty fantasy."

All in Kent leads a quiet, peaceful life just now. And as he reclines in a big, overstuffed chair, it's hard to imagine him racing around with the likes of David Bowie.

But then, Kent is a man of curious turns.

'Lassiter' not right vehicle for Selleck

TOM SELLECK
Needs better roles

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS -- There's no getting around it. Tom Selleck is one personable, handsome and capable actor. One just has the feeling that in the right movie this man would be so good, Tom's problem is finding the right movie. "High Road to China" certainly wasn't it. And unfortunately his newest, "Lassiter," although somewhat entertaining, is far from so good.

As Nick Lassiter, Selleck is a suave, likeable jewel thief in pre-World War II London. Nick has a good life stealing, haunting fashionable night clubs and dating a dancer named Sarah, played by Jane Seymour.

Into Lassiter's happy-go-lucky life, however, comes a young FBI agent and bulldogish policeman who says they will frame the thief into a big prison sentence unless he does a job for them. Sound familiar?

The mission is to steal jewels from the German Embassy — otherwise the jewels will be used to spread Nazi evil.

Lassiter's contacts into the embassy is a dead-end but beautiful consulate whose idea of a good time is anything but.

Poor Lassiter. He must balance the femme fatale, his girlfriend, the FBI, German killers and the police.

Review

Yet, all that potential of high intrigue, excitement and humor are left at the bargain-basement level in "Lassiter."

The costumes and setting are fun. So is Lauren Hutton, who portrays the consulate in sultry black-widow style. She has fun with the part. Bob Hoskins also is admirable as the tough, pudgy policeman with no sympathy for thieves of any kind.

What is not fun is the silly-putty plot. The actions of the characters often are totally confusing and illogical. Sarah is constantly changing responses to Lassiter run hot and cold with the lead part. All she grants on your terms.

Also, the film relatively creeps along until the climactic cleave heist.

Let's face it, however, Selleck is the selling point of this movie. His expressive eyes, leading-man presence and nice-guy-manner carry most scenes. But, not the whole movie.

"Lassiter" is escapism fare with a few gems here and there. Mostly, it is a diamond in the rough.

Emergency phone a matter of life and death

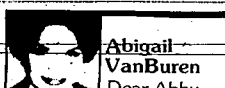

DEAR ABBY: If this message to the public makes your column hundreds of police and fire department dispatchers across the nation will thank you from the bottom of their hearts.

When there is a widespread power failure in your area due to a storm, DO NOT CALL THE POLICE OR FIRE DEPARTMENT UNLESS YOU HAVE A GENUINE EMERGENCY! For the last 12 years I have been employed as a communications officer, dispatching paramedics, police officers and fire fighters where they are needed.

During a widespread power failure, we are extremely busy handling the many emergencies that occur as a result of the power failure, and our lines are jammed with calls from people asking, "How come there's no electricity, and how long do you think we will be without it?" Consequently, those calling to report fires, robberies, accidents and heart attacks get a busy signal or they are put on hold.

Abby, I hope you think this is important enough to print.

emergency questions about a power failure. —I am sure many did not realize that those lines should be kept open for calls from people who need help in genuine emergencies. I didn't.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 50 and newly divorced. I would like to go out with a man for a good time such as dinner, theater etc., but I'm told that times have changed since I last dated 20 years ago.

Today when a man takes a woman out, he automatically expects her to go to bed with him. I am talking about men in their 60s! I would like to know how to handle this situation. Should I let a man know ahead of time that I do not go in for that sort of thing? Or should I wait until I am backed into a corner?

NEW AT THE DATING GAME
DEAR NEW: Don't presume that every man who asks you out wants to hustle you into bed. Some may not. And others cannot.

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl, age 15, with a good reputation, which means a lot to a girl my age. I have a real close friend (let's call her "T") and her reputation is really bad.

The stories told about her are in a sense true, but she is really not as terrible as a lot of people say she is. My parents want me to stay away from "T" because they say if I hang around with her, my reputation will get bad, too. I am struggling to know what to do. Should I drop "T" or should I keep hanging around with her and hope my reputation doesn't get damaged?

I don't drink, smoke, curse, take drugs and get too tight with guys (if you know what I mean), but I really like "T."

What should I do? —"G"

DEAR "G": A person's character is what he is. A person's reputation is what people SAY he is. Does "T" drink, smoke, curse, take drugs and get too tight with guys? If she does, even though you like her a lot, you would be wise to hang around with girls whose standards are more like your own.

What's what

Average length of the "matrimonial engagement" now is 10 months while the average length of the "love affair" is 18 months, according to the romance researchers.

If the federal government were to remove the military from the Pentagon and lease the space to business, it would bring in $20 million a day. Considerably more, that, than the site brought in before the military, when it was a bus depot.

Two gallons of beer a day was part of the rations allocated to each youngster in the Children's Hospital of Norwich, England, This, in 1632. Not so remarkable maybe. The English historically have regarded beer as food, a little like soup. That's why they've traditionally served their beer warm.

MORE YOGI

Still at it is Yankee Manager Yogi Berra, who notes: "Ninety percent of baseball is 30 percent mental."

A couple of construction men, twin brothers, went on a three-week beer binge, left their wives at home to chase available women, and didn't even show up for work. It was understood they wouldn't get fired, because their brother-in-law was chief engineer on the job. Sounds familiar, what? An old story. This particular account about a temple-building project was written by an Egyptian scribe in a document dated 1292 B.C.

Women's Lib editors have taken public note of the fact that traditional Japanese custom permits men to sit cross-legged but requires women to kneel with their legs together.

ON THE WATERFRONT

Q. What's the difference between a pier and a dock?

A. Pier — a platform on pilings that stretches out over the water. Dock — the water in which ships float next to a pier. Don't you want to know what a wharf is, too? A structure that runs parallel to the shoreline.

Maybe you didn't know that fish called the "guppy" was, in fact, named in honor of a Trinidad scientist. One R.J. Lechmere Yogi, to be specific.

Q. What proportion of the men in this country are impotent?

A. One in 10, report the researchers.

Address mail to L.M. Boyd in care of this newspaper.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's moon requires that early in the day you finish projects left unfinished. Then you will be able to think about what you want to do in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Good day to resolve any private problems and it is soon handled well. Then get into some new venture. Be happy tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Get into the detailed part of that project you have been working on. Let newcomers come into your life.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Give your attention to responsibilities that have been long standing. Be more willing to do what your male expects of you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure to keep promises you have made to your partner in early morning. Consider well some civic matter in the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You still have to do more work on environmental and this is a good day to finish it. Use care and caution in all that you do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have spent some time at pleasure and now you have to get busy and do whatever you have left undone.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 22) Get at those tasks at home which you have neglected of late and they will soon be behind you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20) Early get at correspondence and making telephone calls. Don't take up any moot matters with associates.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Early make any collections possible and pay your pressing bills. Find different sources of revenue that are more worthwhile.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar 20) Get at those personal duties you have been neglecting of late and then take any health treatments you may need.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one who will be very imaginative and idealistic, and will know how to make such dreams come true and eat while they dream down to a practical level. Important that you teach the right morals. Make sure that diet is good.

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

"Everything comes to him who waits among other things, death."

Francis H. Bradley

How long should today's South have waited before tackling the trump suits? Unfortunately for him, one trick longer than he actually did.

South won West's diamond lead and played dummy's three top hearts to discard his small club. Next, he led a trump winning the queen. West then cashed the club ace and when South's king appeared, West led his fourth heart. East was wise enough to ruff with his ace, and the defenders scored three trumps and a club.

South has no chance to make his game unless the trumps are 2-2. But if they are 2-2, he must guard against losing three trump tricks and a club. How is the problem solved?

South makes his game if he delays the trumps in favor of playing dummy's fourth heart. On this he throws his club king, and defense is stymied. West gets a heart trick instead of a club, but now East has no
