Panel backs broad tax base, fewer credits

BOISE (AP) — The lone tax proposal endorsed by a legislative committee on Friday would raise about $15 million dollars, partly by repealing tax credits and broadening the tax base. The bill, proposed by Rep. Mack Nelbaur, R-Paul, was the only one introduced by the House Revenue and Taxation Committee after it considered four measures, two of them proposing one-cent sales tax increases. The Nelbaur bill will go to the House floor. Meanwhile, committee members will take up the revenue-raising charge again on Monday when they compare a new bill proposing a one-cent sales tax increase generating $63 million and a measure that calls for a one-half cent increase. The half-cent bill first was submitted to the Revenue and Taxation Committee several weeks ago and was revived Friday.

IDAHO LEGISLATURE 1984

That happened after the committee weighed the Nelbaur plan along with separate sales tax bills drawn up by the panel's chairman, Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert; and by Rep. Kathleen Gurnsey, R-Boise, co-chairman of the Legislature's budget committee. Mrs. Gurnsey's bill was scrapped and Antone's will be considered on Monday, along with the half-cent increase proposed by Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs. Mrs. Gurnsey said in an interview the combination of a half-cent increase and Nelbaur's $15 million revenue-raising plan would provide enough money to fund an adequate state budget. Nelbaur's bill would repeal jobs credit provisions and corporations' investment credits. The bill also establishes a minimum tax for individuals who combine accelerated depreciation with various tax credits. Another provision establishes a minimum tax for corporations that use tax credits heavily. Nelbaur said his bill will not heighten what some say is Idaho's image as a state hostile to business. "I think people can perceive anything they want to," Nelbaur said.

"I don't think it's that much of an impact." State financial experts say the tax credits instituted several years ago have turned out to be more of a financial drain than the state can absorb. The combination of investment credits and accelerated depreciation last year cost the state $38 million, according to the Idaho Division of Financial Management. While the idea of cutting back such losses won approval of the Revenue and Taxation Committee, the panel was hesitant about the controversial sales-tax increases. Antone and Mrs. Gurnsey said there were only a few differences between their proposals for penny increases. Antone proposed cities and counties get slightly more than the half-cent Mrs. Gurnsey suggested earmarking for local governments. He also wants to designate nearly $5 million in sales-tax revenue for the Water Pollution Control Fund that helps to finance sewer systems. Mrs. Gurnsey said she would have that money drawn from the state General Fund. She also proposed designating the balance of the sales tax for education so taxpayers would have a clear idea of where their money was going. That plan essentially involves revamping part of the state's bookkeeping so other needs now funded through the sales tax are met by other sources, she said. But some committee members indicated that no matter what the strategy, Idaho residents aren't prepared to withstand an increase in their sales tax, now 3 1/2 cents. One-half cent of that is scheduled to expire this summer. See BUDGET on Page A3

Smokers' closure backed Goes to House

BOISE (AP) — Despite a claim that Idaho is approaching the totalitarian world of the novel 1984, the Senate has overwhelmingly endorsed legislation to protect nonsmokers in public places. The bill, passed 26-9 on Friday and sent to the House, would create an Idaho Clean Indoor Air Act, similar to laws in 28 other states. Smoking and nonsmoking areas would have to be posted in a number of public places if the bill becomes law. "Truly this is 1984," said Sen. Skip Smyser, R-Parma, who identified himself as a nonsmoker. He called the legislation another step towards the government telling people what to do. "I am offended by many smokers and normally I take care of that situation myself," he said. Sen. Herb Carlson, R-Eagle, another nonsmoker, said, "I've had no problem," he said. He said he can't see the necessity of enacting legislation that appears to be unenforceable. But Sen. Terry Reilly, D-Nampa, sponsor, said it's appropriate public policy to try to negotiate the rights of smokers and nonsmokers. Reilly pointed out that there is strong medical evidence that smoking is harmful to people's health, and that breathing in others' cigarette smoke is harmful. The bill's requirements would apply to places like grocery stores, restaurants, seating more than 30 people, and other public places. It was amended to exclude offices, and to exclude factories and warehouses not usually visited by the public. The legislation was sought by the Idaho Lung Association. Here is the roll call vote by which the Senate approved the bill: Republicans against (7) — Barker, Budge, Crystal, Darrington, Moore, Noh, Parry, Ricks, Ringert, Risch, Rydchak, Tronson, Walkins, Williams. Democrats for (12) — Beitzelsbacher, Blyyau, Bray, Dobler, Lacy, Lansen, Marley, Peavey, Reilly, Sweeney, Wehler, Wetberell. Democrats against (2) — Kiebert, McLaughlin.

Prosecutor charged for not filing state tax return

By RICK SHAUGHNESS and JANE NEBUCKWAY Times-News writers SHOSHONE — A misdemeanor charge has been filed against Lincoln County Prosecutor Doug Rose, charging that he willfully failed to file a state income tax return for 1982. The charge was filed Thursday. William von Tagen, a deputy attorney general assigned to the Idaho Department of Revenue and Taxation, said Friday that he will prosecute the case in Shoshone against Rose and his wife, Karen. Rose's alleged failure to file a 1982 state return was brought to the attention of attorney general's office through routine inquiries performed by the Fifth Judicial District Magistrates Commission, von Tagen says. An arraignment has been set for Monday, March 19, in Shoshone before newly appointed Lincoln County magistrate Judge William Hart. Rose told The Times-News earlier this week that he originally brought the matter of his "tax problem" to the attention of the attorney general. Rose also said his calculations showed that he had no tax liability to the state. However, von Tagen says the charge has nothing to do with tax liability, only with the willful failure to file a return. The misdemeanor charge could result in a jail sentence of one to six months or a fine of up to $500, or both, von Tagen says. Rose, 39, has been the Lincoln County prosecutor since 1980. He also maintains a private practice in Shoshone, in partnership with former Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy. In January, he filed complaints with the U.S. Civil Rights Commission against the Internal Revenue Service. In those complaints, Rose claimed the IRS had "singled out" Mormons for tax investigations. The criminal complaint filed against Rose — in Fifth District Magistrate Court in Lincoln County — states that he violated a state law that requires a tax return be filed if a person has an income of $5,400 or more. As a part-time Lincoln County prosecutor, his salary is $15,000 — in addition to private-practice income. Rose could not be reached for comment Friday afternoon or evening.

Reagan, senators bargain on curbing deficit via tax hikes

By CLIFF HAAS The Associated Press WASHINGTON — President Reagan, in bargaining with Senate Republican leaders, has accepted the idea that attacking budget deficits will require a package of tax increases and restraint in military and domestic spending, participants in the discussions and other sources said Friday. However, no final decisions have been made and the president's recommendations for large increases in the Pentagon budget remain a key sticking point. "The holdup is basically defense," said Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee. He and other senior Republican senators had an unannounced meeting Friday at the White House with the president and administration officials who have responsibility for budget, tax and military spending matters. Hatfield said Reagan has "accepted the concept" that a deficit-reduction package must include some form of reduced defense spending, shifts in other appropriations and "enhancement of revenue" — political jargon for higher taxes. "It's now a matter of adjusting" the three elements, he added. Meanwhile, Reagan said he had had "some productive meetings" with the Senate and will come forth with a program with regard to the deficit. Speaking with reporters as he left the White House to fly to Camp David, Reagan said in response to a question about cutting the Pentagon's budget that "we're looking at everything."

"We already cut it $16 billion before we presented the first figures," he said. This was the third private meeting this week that the president has had with Senate Republicans. These talks began after Reagan's proposed bipartisan negotiations between the White House and Congress on a three-year $100 billion "down payment" — eliminating deficits stalled after four meetings. Originally, the president indicated that he wanted the "down payment" composed of non-controversial items such as some revenue measures already pending in Congress, some domestic spending reductions and an attack on government waste and inefficiency. However, the White House talks this week have focused on a $150 billion plan for deficit reductions drawn up by Hatfield and Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Budget Committee. That plan calls for roughly equal parts of tax increases, further domestic spending

Hart good-luck roll gains momentum

By JERRY ESTILL The Associated Press Sen. Gary Hart, riding a national popularity surge reflected in two new polls, picked up the endorsement of former presidential candidate Jesse Helms on Friday even as Walter F. Mondale accused Hart of making a misguided and cynical appeal to young voters. Hart — who made quick stops in Oklahoma City, Chicago and New York City — said he was "pleased" by the Helms endorsement. At a news conference at his Senate office in Charleston, S.C., Helms said Hart has "not only the ability to win, but the capacity to govern."

"He brings a new, and needed, sense of direction to a Democratic Party grown out of touch with too many voters," said Helms. "He brings force of intellect, tremendous personal determination, and a vision of what this country can be again." Helms pulled out of the race after poor showings in Iowa and New Hampshire. He said throughout his campaign that he did not believe Mondale was the candidate who could head Democrats back into the White House in the November general election. Asked in Chicago whether he would seek the support of Mayor Harold Washington, Hart said he was "seeking the endorsement of anyone I can get."

And despite growing signs of support, he continued to eschew the label of front-runner but said, "I had to labor under the title of 'dark horse' for a year and I finally got out from under that." Calling Hart's appeal to young people to question Mondale told students at Emory University in Atlanta that "never has an age group been so intensely analyzed." "If a presidential candidate wanted to capitalize on these things that are said about you, imagine how he might try to win your vote," the former vice president said. "To appeal to you, suspected cynicism he would market himself as an outsider gunning for the establishment. To play toward your alleged insecurity, he would build a platform with plenty of room for self-interest and a little space for generosity. And to exploit your remorse (aste for himself in power)." But Mondale said Hart underestimates the ability of young people to make sound judgments. There is one small problem with that analysis," he said. "It is dead wrong." Before leaving West Palm Beach, Fla., for stops in Oklahoma City, Chicago and New York City, Hart — the self-designated "new" ideal candidate — called for putting unemployed Americans to work help

700,000 more Americans working

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

Idaho, Magic Valley statistics — A5

WASHINGTON — Civilian unemployment reached 7.8 percent and 700,000 Americans found jobs in February, the government reported Friday, in what President Reagan's chief spokesman called "a remarkable trend" spurred by the economic recovery.

The jobs rate has fallen two-tenths of a percentage point in each of the past three months to a level only fractionally higher than the 7.4 percent rate of January 1981, when Reagan took office. The February rate is the lowest in 2 1/2 years.

Since unemployment hit a post-Depression peak of 10.7 percent in November 1982, with more than 12 million people out of work, the rate has plunged nearly 3 percentage points—the best post-recession recovery in the labor market since the early 1950s.

An estimated 103.8 million Americans — the most in history — held jobs last month, Deputy White House press secretary Larry

Speakes said "these employment figures demonstrate the underlying strength of the economy."

Martin Feldstein, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, called the Labor Department report "very good news." He said "it shows the economy has had substantial strength in February as well as January and should have a quite strong first quarter."

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan said "the Reagan recovery is here to stay. It is strong and it is continuing."

Rudy Oswald, director of economic research at the AFL-CIO, said: "The decrease in the unemployment rate is a welcome comeback from the deep recession."

Oswald added, however, that "the rate still has a long way to go reach the 5.8 percent unemployment levels of five years ago. Federal leadership and programs are needed to ensure job opportunities for the 8.8 million workers still unemployed, and to attack the 12.2 percent unemployment rate among black Americans."

The improvement in employment last month benefited adult men and women and blacks and whites alike.

Among black teenagers, who suffer most severely, the unemployment rate eased from 47.9 percent to 43.5 percent, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Among all blacks, unemployment dropped one-half of a percentage point to 16.2 percent, compared with more than 20 percent a year earlier.

"It is quite clear this is a very strong, robust recovery," Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics, told the congressional Joint Economic Committee. She noted that since the depths of the 1981-82 recession, the ranks of the unemployed have shrunk by 3.1 million people.

In February 1983, the seasonally adjusted civilian unemployment rate was 10.4 percent. It has fallen every month since last August, when it held steady at 9.8 percent.

When 1.68 million military personnel stationed in the United States are included in the unemployment equation, the overall rate last month was 7.7 percent, down from 7.9 percent in January.

The civilian rate fell in February even though nearly a half-million people entered the labor force last month in search of work. Without such an influx of new job-seekers, the rate would have fallen well below 7.5 percent.

The rate has declined for six consecutive months and is at its lowest level since it stood at 7.6 percent in September 1981.

Speakes noted that the combined 7.7 percent jobs rate for civilians and the military "puts unemployment below the administration's projections" of a 7.8 percent average rate in the last three months of 1984.

General private economists have said they expect unemployment to average between 7.3 percent and 7.5 percent in the final quarter.

Artillery shells strike residential Beirut

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
The Associated Press

BEIRUT — Mortar and artillery shells fell on residential neighborhoods in east and west Beirut Friday, and a major Christian militia announced it would not be bound by decisions at next week's peace talks.

In Damascus, Lebanese opposition leaders met with Syrian officials to prepare position papers for the reconciliation talks scheduled to begin Monday in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Christian and Moslem militias exchanged machine-gun fire and rocket-propelled grenades across the "green line" that divides Moslem west Beirut from the Christian east.

Two shells landed about two blocks from U.S. Marinees standing guard outside U.S. Embassy offices in west Beirut. One shell hit an upper floor of an apartment building.

The shelling spread after dark to include two Moslem communities south of Beirut, Hay el-Sellun and Haddath, and an area around the Christian town of Kharshina, southeast of the capital.

The Christian-owned Voice of Lebanon radio station said a fire ignited by a shell was "burning out of control" near the Lebanese Scientific University south of Beirut.

It reported at least five people were wounded in the nighttime exchanges. Shells falling shortly before sunset on the Christian neighborhood of Ashrafieh in east Beirut interrupted traffic and sent people scurrying for shelter.

No casualty reports were available from the afternoon fighting. Police said two people were killed and 27 wounded in the morning battles.

In a news conference in Ashrafieh, Naoum Farrah, director of foreign relations for the Lebanese Forces, said the militia would not be bound by decisions reached by Lebanese political leaders in Lausanne.

The Lebanese Forces is a coalition of right-wing Christian groups, the largest of which is the Phalangist militia. Farrah's statements suggested a split between the militia and Christian political leaders who are attending the talks.

"We will be very selective," Farrah said. "We'll study carefully each item, each result of Lausanne and will take our position according to our interest."

Farrah said the decisions at the talks would be pro-Syrian, adding "Syria is intervening directly in our internal problems." Syria has been invited to the conference as an observer.

President Amin Gemayel, of the Phalangist Party, has called on opposition leaders to meet in Lausanne to discuss power-sharing between Christians and Moslems and greater Moslem representation in the Cabinet.

Moslems make up about 60 percent of the population, but Lebanese law gives them 45 of the 99 seats in Parliament and four of the nine Cabinet seats.

The top opposition leaders — Druse Chidriat Walid Jumblatt and Shiite Moslem leader Nabih Bert — met in Damascus on Friday to complete work on their joint position paper for the reconciliation conference.

The opposition group is expected to propose formation of a Senate with equal numbers of members from Lebanon's major religious groups and the reduction of the president's term from six years to three years. The opposition also wants members of Parliament, army officers and government officials to be chosen by merit, rather than religion.

Three men, firm guilty of 'fixing'

POCATELLO (AP) — A jury Friday found three men and one corporation guilty of conspiring to fix gasoline prices in Blaine County, but found a fourth businessman innocent.

The five-woman, seven-man jury deliberated for five hours before reaching a verdict in the three-week-old trial. The defendants were charged with conspiring to fix prices from January 1978 to October 1982.

Found guilty were Continental Fuel Co. Inc., Don Bliesner, a co-owner of Continental, and Horco Oil owners Howard O. Miller and his son, H. David Miller.

The jury found Continental co-owner George Frost innocent.

The U.S. Justice Department's case against the defendants was submitted to the jury of seven men and five women Thursday morning.

The jurors resumed deliberations at 9:30 a.m. Friday, took a one-hour lunch break and emerged with the verdict at 4:30 p.m. The jurors declined to discuss the case with the press following their announcement.

A federal grand jury indicted 12 defendants last July, but four pleaded no contest, one had charges dismissed against him and a mistrial was declared for two.

Reagans don't attend church for others' safety

By MAUREEN SANTINI
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan said Friday he does not attend religious services regularly.

"I represent too much of a threat to too many other people for me to be able to go to church," he said.

The president also said he didn't care whom the Democrats nominate to run against him in the general election, but volunteered that he has yet to hear a new idea from the old-styled candidate of new ideas, Gary Hart.

When informed that he was being criticized by Democrats for giving religious speeches, such as the one he delivered to the National Association of Evangelicals on Tuesday, although he seldom attends church, Reagan replied:

"Yes, I have noticed that they have been talking about that. I have not bothered to check on their attendance. But I think they must be well aware of why I have not been attending, and frankly, I miss it very much."

"But I represent too much of a threat to too many other people for me to be able to go to church," O'Neill House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill also talked about prayer even though he doesn't go to church. O'Neill suggested facetiously that Reagan build a chapel at Camp David, Md.

The president, who has attended church services about nine times since he was inaugurated, has said previously that he doesn't like to put his fellow churchgoers through the inconvenience of going through metal detectors.

Deputy White House press secretary Pete Rouseff, when asked what Reagan meant by saying he represented a threat, said he believed the president was actually talking about the disruption involved.

When Rouseff was asked why Reagan has agreed to give speeches, and attend dinners and other events where the audience must go through magnetometers to enter, he replied: "People have allotted time at those events to go through metal detectors. He just feels like it's a disruption to the service."

A White House aide, speaking on the condition that he remain anonymous, said Reagan may have meant that "if something untoward happened," it could possibly cause harm to other people.

The president, questioned by reporters just before he boarded a helicopter for the 30-minute flight to Camp David, Md., was asked about the race for the Democratic presidential nomination and the two major contenders, Hart and former Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

"I don't pay too much attention to that. That's the Democratic problem," he said in response to questions about the contest between the Colorado senator and Mondale.

Fierce storm sends foot of snow to Northeast

By GRAHAM VINK
The Associated Press

The most powerful storm of winter in much of the Northeast dumped up to a foot of snow Friday, closing schools and airports and making roads impassable. At least 23 deaths have been blamed on the storm since it began its heading rush across the country.

At least 24 cities posted record lows for the date. Friday in Ohio — New York, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Minnesota, Illinois and South Dakota. Gusting winds blew fine, white powder into clouds that obscured visibility on roads and runways, packing down into a slick sheet that caused dozens of auto accidents Thursday and Friday.

"Roads are nasty out there. People are driving too fast, and spinning around all over the place," said Trooper Les Osborne in Connecticut, where up to 7 inches of snow fell overnight, whipped by 20 mph winds.

Among the storm's victims were two residents of Lakewood, N.Y. — 71-year-old Victor Ceeli, who suffered a fatal heart attack Friday morning as he shoveled snow, and a 58-year-old neighbor, Catherine Walton, who suffered the same fate when she went to his aid.

The storm closed Kennedy and LaGuardia airports in New York, plus airports in nearby Newark, N.J., and Philadelphia. By Friday afternoon, all had managed to open at least one runway, with minimal delays at Newark and half-hour delays at Kennedy and LaGuardia.

There is so much snow blowing it is very difficult, near impossible, to see on the ground," said Frederick Boyd of the Port Authority, which operates the three major New York-area airports. "The wind is just whipping the snow up."

Snow depths ranged up to a foot in eastern Pennsylvania, the National Weather Service reported. It was by far the biggest storm to hit New York City this winter.

The snowfall tapered off Friday as the storm dubbed the "Alberta Clipper" during its sprint across the country after blowing in Wednesday from Canada — moved out to sea. But it was trailed by cold air that sent temperatures below zero from Michigan to Maine.

Witness grilled in rape trial

By FRED BAYLES
The Associated Press

FALL RIVER, Mass. — A bar customer who admits he has trouble seeing when he drinks testified in a gang rape trial Friday that he saw a man on top of a sobbing woman, but then he "got afraid and went back to sleep."

Silvester Vullao denied, however, that he changed his story because he was afraid police would deport him.

"He gave me a fright," Vullao said when questioned about New Bedford police Sgt. Ronald Cabral, the detective who investigated the incident at Big Dan's tavern. "I don't remember the words but the words scared me."

Under cross-examination by defense attorney Francis O'Boy, who represents defendant Virgilio Medeiros, Vullao said he was frightened that Cabral would deport him back to his native Portugal.

Vullao said he originally told police he didn't know anything about the case because he was too drunk.

"I said I didn't see anything because I didn't see the beginning or the end," he said of two interviews he had with police three days after the incident.

But when questioned by defense attorney Kenneth Sullivan, who represents John Cordeiro, Vullao denied he changed his story to avoid the threat of being deported.

"As long as I tell my truths, I'm not afraid of anyone," he said.

Vullao has testified that he was a customer in the bar March 6, 1982, the night of the incident. The 49-year-old immigrant, testifying through a translator, said he was drunk from beer and wine when he saw defendant Daniel Sivia on top of a crying woman.

"I looked up and saw Dan on top of the girl, I got afraid and went back to sleep," the witness said.

Vullao also said he saw defendant Virgilio Medeiros put his hands near the woman while she was on the pool table.

"I thought he was going to give her some help. I fell asleep and didn't see the rest," he said.

Vullao admitted to having a medical condition that causes his eye to blur.

"It gets worse when I drink," he said. "My eyes start shaking."

During 11 days of testimony, jurors have heard varying accounts of what happened in the bar that night. The victim has testified that two men raped her on a pool table and that one of them as well as a third man tried to make her perform oral sex, while other men cheered them on. The bartender testified that one man raped her and two men tried to force her to perform oral sex.

Reagan: Arms-aid denial foolish

By W. DALE NELSON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan said Friday it would be irresponsible for Congress to reject his appeal for an additional $23 million in military aid for the government of El Salvador in its battle against leftist guerrillas.

Reagan also defended his emergency request for an additional $21 million in covert military aid for rebels fighting the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua. On a 15-14 vote, the Republican-dominated Senate Appropriations Committee rejected the request Thursday and insisted that the administration submit its proposal through normal channels instead of trying to attach it to an unrelated bill.

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, two Republican senators — David Durenberger, R-Minn., and Nancy Landon Kassebaum, R-Kan. — said they would join with Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, in offering a resolution giving Congress a broader role in determining aid to Central America. They said the measure would condition aid on the passage of a congressional resolution every six months.

The president stopped and talked with reporters outside the White House as he prepared to board his helicopter en route to a weekend at Camp David.

The Appropriations Committee postponed until Tuesday a vote on Reagan's request for additional funds for El Salvador. Asked if he would give El Salvador the money from a presidential contingency fund regardless of how lawmakers voted, Reagan said he hoped such a step would not be necessary.

"I think that reason will prevail," the president said. "I don't see how anyone could think it was responsible after all this time to actually evict the armed forces of Salvador running out of ammunition and material that is needed to defend their country against the guerrillas."

State Department spokesman John Hughes said Secretary of State George P. Shultz also stood by the decision to seek the aid as a rider to the unrelated bill. However, Hughes said Shultz had apologized to members of the Senate Intelligence Committee for not consulting with them prior to seeking the additional aid for the Nicaraguan rebels.

Smoker safer from 1 illness

LONDON (AP) — Despite the known health hazards of cigarette smoking, non-smokers are six times more likely than smokers to get ulcerative colitis, a disease that causes chronic diarrhea, British doctors said Friday.

Writing in the British Medical Journal, doctors at Queen's Medical Center in Nottingham said their research suggests that for unknown reasons, "smoking directly or indirectly confers protection against ulcerative colitis."

"WE SERVE TO SERVE AGAIN"

As part of their study of nutrition, Jamie Goffin, left, Kay Lynn Badly, Stacie Muff and Brook Hatch enjoy a "hobo" lunch

Hobo day stresses nutrition

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Even hobos need to eat a good lunch.

So, 96 second-graders went to Sawtooth Elementary School in Twin Falls in patched flannel shirts, baggy jeans and charcoal-streaked faces on Friday.

"It's not that very nice to dress this way," student Richard Jones confided. "But it's a special day."

The special day was in celebration of National Nutrition Awareness Month — and the culmination of a month-long study of nutrition.

Wrapped in the bandanas — that later became napkins — were tin cans to hold the traditional hobo meal of beans and more beans.

But the kids have learned something about planning a balanced meal in their month-long study.

"It's good to have one food from each food group," Greg Wiley said.

"Yeah," friend Richard said. "You need to eat a bread and meats, and fruit and vegetable. What else? Oh, yeah — milk. You need to have them every day."

So in addition to the beans — served in the palatable guise of chili — the second-graders planned a menu of fried chicken, carrot sticks, bread and milk, with bananas for dessert.

"This is not really how hobos eat," Jonathan Fitzhugh admitted. "It takes too much money. This food is good for your body."

"Yellow vegetables are good for your eyesight," Suzanne Saul contributed, while her friend Chris Claiborne waved a carrot. "And milk is good to grow bones and teeth," Suzanne later remembered.

It has taken a month, but the children have learned how important the four food groups are, says Lynn Jlyerson, a second-grade teacher. Students in classes taught by Geony Popplewell, Miriam Reed and Carolyn VanOrden also have been studying nutrition for their health lesson this month.

They have learned to identify to what group different foods belong, what they help the body do and how different vitamins contribute to good health, the teachers say.

The students agreed they had learned a lot in the health lesson, shouting facts to support their point.

"And the lunch was good. 'You have to have a good meal and have some fun and go for it,'" Greg said.

But the best part? Getting to sit on the floor during lunch, according to one grubby hobo with a blacked-out tooth.

Snow sources offering runoff at record high

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Eight of the 13 snow-measuring stations in the South Hills, which drain into the Salmon Falls Reservoir, were at record highs in water content as of March 1.

This should provide the potential for filling the 182,000-acre-foot capacity of reservoir, which serves Salmon Tract farmers, for the first time in its history. But Salmon Canal Co. manager Larry Regain says he is "not going to commit myself on that issue. In fact, he is a little dubious.

"It all depends on how it comes down," he said Friday. "If the snow melts fast, and we get a lot of rain at the same time, it could fill, but it never has."

Regain said the closest the reservoir came to filling was in 1975, although there was less snow at most of the measuring stations that year than there is now, or in the previous record year — 1972.

At present, the reservoir contains 83,000-acre-feet of water, leaving space for another 100,000-acre-feet.

Regain says the river is not raising that fast now, despite the recent warm weather. But the heaviest run-off usually comes in May and June, he says.

At the peak level in 1975, the reservoir reached the 75-foot mark, with 106,000-acre-feet of water stored behind the dam. It would have had to rise to the 80-foot level to reach capacity, Regain says.

As of March 1, the Deadline Ridge measuring station had 61 inches of snow, with 38 inches of water on its new course, a record since the course went into use in 1976. On the old Deadline Ridge course, where records go back 31 years, there was a snow depth of 74 inches, with 36 inches of water, the second-highest on record.

March 1 measurements at all of the measuring stations ranged between 152 and 222 percent above normal for this time of year.

The Magic Mountain course, where records date back 39 years, was at the second-highest level in its history. It has 28 inches of water in 79 inches of snow, for 166 percent of average. The record for that course is 31.6 inches of water in 1972.

U.S. Soil Conservation Service officials, who measure the snow levels and their water content, say some of the low rainfall processing plants, the highest percentages of average water content. For example, on March 1, Shoshone Basin had 232 percent of its normal water content, in 42 inches of snow.

Area unemployed holding their own

By THE TIMES-NEWS AND THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TWIN FALLS — Unemployment held steady in the Magic Valley and in Idaho during February, state officials announced Friday.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for Twin Falls, Gooding and Jerome counties stabilized at 6.5 percent, the same level as in January, said Laur McDonald, the state Department of Employment-labor analyst for the Twin Falls area.

The statewide rate rose 1 percentage point, to 6.5 percent, during the month; an increase that department director Scott McDonald termed insignificant.

The fact that it is holding steady indicates the economy is continuing a slow, but steady improvement," he said.

The Magic Valley figure for February showed a full percentage point drop from the 7.5 percent recorded in February 1983.

The department reported that 2,787 workers remain unemployed in the three-county area, out of an estimated work force of 36,000.

Laur McDonald also said Friday that state officials have revised January's unemployment estimate in the Magic Valley, holding the February rate down to the same level as in January, he said, because February's rate normally is the highest of the year, he said.

Statewide, Department of Employment analysts said that employment had increased during the month in retail processing plants, electronics and other service-related industries.

At the same time, the cold weather forced some reductions in the construction and lumber industries, and vice versa.

There were 1,800 more workers employed during February than in January. However, the Idaho labor force continued to expand, to 429,800 people. Of those, 404,100 were employed, the department reported.

Some economists' analysts are projecting slight increases in the jobless rate during the next few months. They say discouraged workers, who are not now counted as part of the state's labor force, may start looking for work and reappear in the figures.

The Magic Valley ranked about midway between the high and low rates in the state for February.

Unemployment was highest in Coeur d'Alene, where the rate stood at 8.7 percent. It was lowest in Lewiston, which posted a 4.3 percent rate.

Jobless rates in other parts of the state were: the Pocatello area, 6.5 percent; Idaho Falls, 5.2 percent; Ada County, 4.3 percent; and Canyon County, 7.9 percent.

Forest Service grapples with the future

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — What should the Sawtooth and other national forests look like in the year 2034?

How much land should be retained in wilderness, and how much should be set aside for timber harvesting and grazing? What emphasis should be placed on developing recreational facilities, fisheries and wildlife refuges?

These are some of the questions that Sawtooth National Forest planners and other planners around the nation are grappling with as the U.S. Forest Service tries to put together a plan to guide future management of public lands.

Reams of computer data on forest resources have been gathered, and complex formulas have been developed to place dollar values on wildlife and wilderness. But the final decisions will be determined by value judgments formed by the public and politicians, according to Rod Hendricks, a Sawtooth National Forest planner.

At a Thursday evening public meeting in Twin Falls, Hendricks, accompanied by Ronald Stolson, the Sawtooth Forest superintendent, explained the workings of the wide-ranging planning process that was mandated by piece of 1974 federal legislation known as the Resources Planning Act.

The act was passed to try and replace year-to-year piecemeal planning with a long-range management plan, which Congress hopefully would back with financial support, Hendricks said.

A 1983 preliminary plan, that lists nine forest management strategies, now has been released by the Forest Service and is available for public comment, he said.

The plan considers timber, range, recreation, wilderness, wildlife, fish, minerals and energy resources as separate elements of the different alternatives.

The ninth alternative, labeled "high productivity," emphasizes maximizing the output of timber and minerals. If this alternative is implemented, wilderness and recreational opportunities would be reduced, in favor of subsidized development of new roads to aid loggers, the opening up of new lands for mining and increased grazing.

The ninth alternative, developed by the Reagan administration, anticipates resource-harvest levels higher than any yet attempted by the Forest Service, Hendricks said.

In the Sawtooth Forest, for example, the ninth alternative would allow logging to take place at more than three times the pace of the most conservation-oriented alternative, according to a chart presented by Hendricks.

The conservation alternative, labeled "high non-market," would "emphasize achievement of high output levels of water, wildlife and fish, recreation, wilderness and other non-market levels," according to the preliminary document.

This alternative would strive to maximize visitation of the national forests and provide substantial funds for research into water, soils and forest protection.

During the next month, Stolson said residents should pick up a summary of the report from the Forest Service.

Livestock owners pursue new stalls

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley livestock owners are cautiously approaching the idea of building stalls for horses and other livestock near the College of Southern Idaho's Exposition Center.

But they are not cautious because they believe the stalls are unneeded, a dozen representatives of horse clubs and livestock owners told CSI board members Bob Blastock and Thad Scholtes at a Thursday evening meeting to gauge interest.

"I showed out at Frontier Field 30 years ago and had more people come to shows than do now," Joe Dawkins said.

"It's come to the point that the horse shows have just about died in this area," Dr. Lyle Wonderslich agreed. "I frankly think the lack of a good indoor facility has hurt this area's ability to get shows."

The Expo Center has no horse stalls now; portable stalls usually rent for more than $60 a day.

Other facilities for showing livestock are "not perfect, either." The Cassia County Fairgrounds has too few stalls, and Idaho weather is not dependable enough for Filer's outdoor arena, those in attendance said.

Brackett: 'Star Wars' plan needs support

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — A Magic Valley legislator says President Ronald Reagan's laser-beam defense proposal should not be taken lightly.

A March 23, 1983, television appearance by Reagan encouraged the development of the system, which has since been dubbed his "Star Wars" defense speech by detractors.

But inside the Statehouse, Rep. Noy Brackett, R-Twin Falls, says the defense system should be taken more seriously. In fact, he has proposed that the Legislature send a statement of support to Congress encouraging study of the so-called "beam defense."

"The only possible means for ending the age of thermo-nuclear terror is the development of the beam-weapon technology to destroy nuclear missiles in mid-flight," Brackett's proposed resolution to Reagan and Congress states.

The resolution goes on to encourage Congress and the president to research, develop and deploy the defense system.

It states: "Crash efforts to develop beam weapons would incur no net costs to the economy of the United States, since the civilian by-products would stimulate a higher technology economic boom."

"A commitment to beam-weapon development" would result in employment for millions of unemployed Americans and would provide "the basis for world economic recovery," the resolution continues.

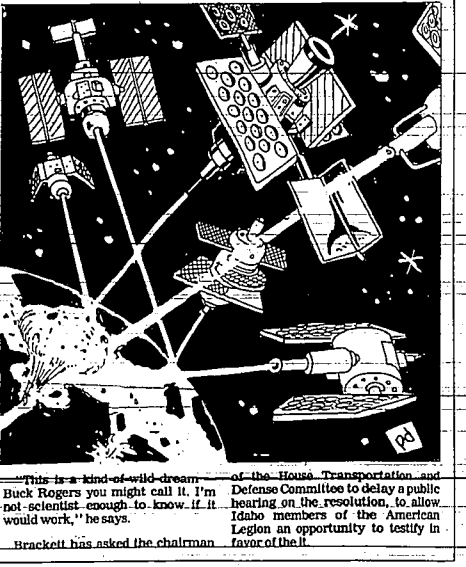

But Brackett says he is not totally committed to building the system.

"I'm not telling them to do it. I'm just asking or suggesting that they investigate it. I would recommend they do it if they think it's worthwhile. It's up to Congress to find out what they think it will cost."

"If we have all the components of this laser beam or high frontier out here, we should investigate assimilating it. We should not close the door on any form of defense," he says.

Brackett says the defense system would be superior to existing systems because the beams can travel at the speed of light — about 186,000 miles per second — far in excess of the speeds of missiles carrying nuclear warheads.

"If we had 50 satellite stations, strategically located, they could protect the entire U.S. from any atomic bomb or guided missile from any part of the world.

Brackett has asked the chairman of the House Transportation and Defense Committee to delay a public hearing on the resolution, to allow Idaho members of the American Legion an opportunity to testify in favor of it.

Bond set on murder charge

JACKPOT — The Nevada state employee accused of fatally shooting a 38-year-old Jackpot woman Wednesday morning was arraigned Friday in Elko.

Doug Roberts, 49, of Jackpot, is suspected of murdering Ranae Luddy, who was found dead in a mobile-home park behind Barton's Club 93 casino in Jackpot.

Roberts, a foreman for the Nevada Highway Department, has been charged with "open murder." According to Nevada law, this is an all-encompassing charge that can include allegations ranging from premeditated, first-degree murder to manslaughter.

A preliminary hearing has been scheduled for March 20, according to Gary Woodbury of Elko, who is representing Roberts.

District attorney officials in Elko were not available Friday to comment on the case.

Roberts initially was held on a charge of first-degree murder; after he was taken into custody at the mobile home shortly after Elko County Sheriff's deputies arrived.

The sheriff's office was notified of the shooting by Charles Johnston, who was present at the time of the killing and lived in the mobile home.

Robert is being held in the Elko County Jail, in lieu of $50,000 bond, which was set at Friday's hearing.

An autopsy conducted Thursday revealed that Luddy died of a single gunshot wound to the chest, fired at close range, said James Miller, the Elko County Sheriff and coroner.

Miller said Friday that he had no further information on a possible motive.

The alleged murder weapon, a .38-caliber handgun, was found at the scene, he said.

Tip leads to large pot find

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Wendell man who allegedly kept more than 14 pounds of marijuana in a storage shed west of Twin Falls has been bound over to Fifth District Court.

Henry DeLoren, the Twin Falls County prosecutor, said Friday that the amount of marijuana was the largest ever seized in the county, to his recollection.

The case against 28-year-old Lavern Glen Davis was carried into the courtroom Friday morning in three boxes by two Twin Falls police officers.

Davis has been charged with possessing the illegal substance, with intent to sell it.

At the probable-cause hearing

Friday, a Twin Falls police officer testified that an informant told police in November that Davis was going to Arizona to obtain a large amount of marijuana. At that time, however, police could take no action, Detective Don Walden said.

In January, however, the same informant called back to say that Davis had the marijuana hid in a storage shed.

Upon investigation, police found that a storage space had been rented in the county by Davis's former wife, according to officers. Judy Davis gave Wendell police the combination to the lock on the shed. The combination, in turn, was given to the Twin Falls authorities, Walden said.

Mr. Davis testified later Friday morning that her husband had asked her to rent the space for him.

After obtaining a search warrant on Jan. 23, Twin Falls officers found a large, plastic garbage can in the shed. The can contained several small, plastic bags of marijuana, according to the officers.

Lab tests revealed that Davis's fingerprints were among those found on the small bags, said Officer Don Chambers.

Public defender Mike Powers countered that the testimony had not linked his client directly to the shed. Nor, had it been proven that Davis ever had been to the storage space, he said.

Powers then asked for a dismissal of the charge.

However, magistrate Judge Mel Edwards ruled that there was probable cause for the felony charge. He ordered Davis be bound over to district court.

Davis was placed in the custody of the Twin Falls County sheriff's office. He is being in lieu of $5,000 bond.

MOUNTAIN HOME (AP) — The body of a duck hunter who drowned in the Snake River last fall has been recovered about 20 miles south of Mountain Home.

A fisherman found the body of Gary Ravlin, 46, of Boise, about 25 feet from the shore on Wednesday, Elmore County Sheriff Bob Mendolia said Friday.

Ravlin was reported missing on Nov. 24 after his boat capsized during a duck hunting trip, Mendolia said. His two companions were in a duck blind.

TWIN FALLS — An Associated Press review of the film "Harry and Son" in Friday's Times-News reported incorrectly that the movie is rated "R" because of a sexual scene.

The film, which stars Paul Newman, is rated "PG," which means parental discretion is advised.

State drops shooting charge

SHOSHONE — A charge of aggravated assault against a former Shoshone woman for allegedly shooting and wounding her husband has been dismissed upon the recommendation of the Lincoln County prosecutor.

Marilyn Charboneau had been charged with assaulting her husband, Jaime Dean Charboneau, with a .22-caliber pistol last Aug. 3 on a street in downtown Shoshone.

Jaime Charboneau was treated for wounds to the leg and arm.

Lincoln County Prosecutor Doug Rose said he instructed Mr. Charboneau to refrain from any contact or confrontation with the defendant. However, Rose says, the man jeopardized and seriously compromised the case by ignoring the warnings.

In February, Mr. Charboneau was arrested in Jerome County, where his wife now lives, and according to the prosecutor, the husband's actions in Jerome would substantiate Mrs. Charboneau's claim that she acted in self-defense in the Aug. 3 shooting.

Judge Phillip Becker granted Rose's motion for dismissal last month. The case had been scheduled for trial March 1.

is more of a problem. I have a real question there."

The Expo Center is heavily scheduled with classes during the winter school weeks, said Bob McManaman, CSI's physical plant director. But about two-thirds of the 1984 summer is still open, according to available schedules.

"The winter months are tough," Scholes said. "But I really don't think when your shows are scheduled a year in advance, you won't have trouble getting the date you want."

Other livestock owners at the meeting said they were concerned that in the future, new members of the CSI board of directors would want to convert the building to another use, leaving the horse club members empty-handed after their fund-raising efforts.

"Still, the livestock owners at the meeting decided to poll the other livestock owners and businesses to see how many would be able to donate $1,000.

One hundred donors would be needed to pay for the 100-stall stable for horses, cattle and other livestock that is envisioned, they said.

Buhl couple really 'serving'

By JOANNE CRANER Times-News Correspondent

BUHL — When the phone rings at the Byall residence, it's always for the pastor — Pastor Lowell Byall or Pastor Stephanie Byall.

The couple, married just six months ago, have served since Feb. 1 on an interim basis, as co-pastors of the First Presbyterian Church in Buhl.

Learning to be a minister's husband may be even more challenging than learning to be a minister's wife, Mrs. Byall says.

Originally a Southern Baptist minister, she is in the process of becoming a Presbyterian minister, in order to more fully serve the congregation and share pastoring responsibilities.

The Byalls are among an estimated 1,900 to 2,000 ministers who are married to ministers.

Ann DuBois, the coordinator of personnel services for Presbyterian Church in the United States congregations, says 75 percent marry within their own faith.

As with any husband and wife who share a common profession, the Byalls admit there could be a threat to their relationship because so many hours are spent together.

But they say they have no such problems so far. They also have worked together as team pastors in Baker, Ore., during an interim period there.

Mr. Byall sees team ministers as able to model a leadership style where they can lead the members to becoming ministers to one another.

"In this player-coach relationship we are a part of the team," he says.

An interim position requires that a pastor be able to quickly identify the strengths and capacities of a congregation, he says.

"They agree that one must come to the position with a well-rounded belief that you can accomplish a great deal in a short time."

As with most congregations, Mrs. Byall says the one in Buhl was not accustomed to women in the clergy.

"But people everywhere seem to be looking for someone they can connect with," she says.

George Atkins, a trustee of the church, agrees. "Pastors were real excited to have two women working with us here."

The Byalls enjoy coming to a congregation where the members support one another in a special kind of closeness, Mrs. Byall says.

The Buhl congregation recently voted to double its mission fund and continuously give financial support to the McAuley Home for Girls in Buhl, he says. "These people are striving to serve in the name of Jesus Christ, the fullest way that they can," Mrs. Byall says.

The Revs. Lowell and Stephanie Byall say that working together hasn't hurt their marriage.

Of her own life, Mrs. Byall says she decided to serve Christ when she was working as a teacher with minority groups.

She had attended church as a child, but without family support or even encouragement, she says. But as a certified teacher-social worker, she says she loved helping people with problems and editing a minority newspaper. However, she found it frustrating that her help was short-term.

"I was not giving people things of eternal value. I wanted to pour my life into giving good, spiritual care, so when I left the people, the care would still be there."

She holds a master's degree in divinity and is especially proud of the seven years she spent working as a counselor to San Quentin prison inmates.

Her husband holds a doctorate of ministry from San Francisco Seminary. He has served in Iowa, Nebraska, Washington and Oregon.

His determination to serve as a pastor came in college, where he was involved in counseling and psychology.

"People feel the need to talk about spiritual life" to a psychologist, he said. "Although that psychologist may be a very spiritual person, they come with a different expectation to a pastor."

It is because of their desire to have people come to them that the Byalls keep regular office hours, they say.

Each morning from 8 until noon, they can be found at the church parsonage, located at 712 12th Ave. in Twin Falls.

"This time is spent in study or at the computer."

Rather than a hobby, Mr. Byall views his computer as "a business machine that I'm learning to love."

He uses the computer to write his sermons, produce a newsletter and sometimes congregational bulletins.

The Byalls reserve their afternoons for visiting and rehabilitation work. And they are quick to tell you that they are available to anyone.

Buhl churches to hold prayer service today

BUHL — Featuring prayer, song and a spirit of community, the mayor's annual Prayer Breakfast will be held today at 8 a.m. at the Buhl Senior Citizen Center.

The breakfast is being sponsored by the Buhl Ministerial Association and is open to the public.

Buhl Mayor James Baker, who will address the group, says the breakfast reflects the importance of religion in the fabric of the community.

The main speaker at the interdenominational event will be Judge R. Michael Redman, a Fifth District Magistrate Court judge from Twin Falls.

Redman will discuss how objective evidence supports the truth of the Bible and how science is finding more evidence of the existence of "supreme being."

In addition, representatives from seven churches in Buhl will offer a prayer on several topics, ranging from family life to world peace.

The SOS Women's Quartet from Clover Lutheran Church will provide entertainment.

The Rev. Martin Brownell, the president of ministerial association and the pastor of the United Methodist Church of Buhl.

The breakfast will consist of juice, sausage, scrambled eggs, hash browns, biscuits and drinks.

The cost of the breakfast is $3 per person.

Final class in series begins soon at CSI

TWIN FALLS — How the scientific aspects of religion relate to personal spirituality and society will be the topic of the last in a four-part series on "Exploring the World of Religion" at the College of Southern Idaho.

And the last session should prove the most interesting, says the course instructor, Harry Massoth of Buhl.

"Spiritual Development" will be held beginning Monday, March 19, at 7 p.m. The class will meet for six consecutive Mondays in Room 196 of the Shields Building.

Concepts drawn from psychology and sociology will be discussed during the sessions.

The session may be the most interesting for two reasons, Massoth says.

"First, the other classes (in the series) dealt with subjects like the history and eternal theme of religion — subjects which are fascinating but somewhat impersonal.

"Spiritual development, however, is personal and is really the primary purpose underlying all the other religions."

"Secondly, people will find it interesting that the most serious investigation of religious ideas in recent years has been undertaken by scientists, rather than by professional clergy. Their studies are shedding new light on the importance of religion, and suggest religious teachings may be more essential to human development and social stability than was thought a few years ago."

As an example, Massoth cites a new education program at the University of Massachusetts that encompasses the study of the development of all human attributes, such as physical, spiritual, moral, emotional and psychological. Other topics to be discussed during the CSI sessions will include an overview of present world crises, the nature of man's place in nature and the spiritual evolution of society, he says.

The fee for the class is $20. To register, call 733-5654, extension 23.

What's what

Another example of why Ivan the Terrible was called that. In 1555, he put two architects, Postnik and Barma, to work on plans for St. Basil's Church in Moscow. So insignificant was their structure that Ivan had them blinded so they'd never design anything better.

Citizen remap bill dies

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Senate, opting to keep the power to reapportion the state in the hands of the Legislature, has killed a measure creating a citizens commission on reapportionment.

"What will be removed is the personal self-serving element, the emotional lies, the incentive to protect one's turf," said Sen. Norma Dohler, D-Moscow, sponsor, unsuccessfully arguing for passage of the measure.

The proposed constitutional amendment was defeated 20-14 on a strict party-line vote Friday, with the majority Republicans all voting "no."

Gov. John Evans, a Democrat, has in the past endorsed the idea of such a commission.

The vote came even as the Legislature continued efforts to come up with its own solution to Idaho's reapportionment dilemma.

"We in this Legislature have proven once again that this body cannot do this job," Mrs. Dohler said in urging creation of a five-member commission that would have the power to reapportion the state.

"A lot of blood, tears and red ink have been shed."

But Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise, said reapportionment is a legislative matter.

He said only the Legislature has the expertise to draft reapportionment plans that reflect the needs of the various parts of the state.

And he said even commission-drafted plans could face court challenges.

Criminals decri homosexual violence

BOISE (AP) — Idaho State Penitentiary inmates say incidents of homosexual violence have occurred at the state prison in recent years, and guards did nothing about them.

Several inmates testified here Thursday in a U.S. District Court lawsuit over prison conditions. Inmates, in a class-action suit, claim their constitutional rights are being violated because the prison is overcrowded and offers few programs.

In the fourth day of trial, inmate

Wes Eckstahl testified that corrections officer Keith Hedrick asked him, rather than guards, to protect class-guestody inmates Rick Clemens and Russell Berg. Eckstahl said they were repeatedly forced into committing homosexual acts.

Eckstahl's testimony was challenged by Idaho Deputy Attorney General Timothy McNeese, who said it conflicted with that of another inmate. "I think the essence of the testimony showed that Eckstahl committed perjury," McNeese said.

Inmates Walter "Bud" Balla and Dean Schwartzmiller, who are acting as attorneys for the prisoners, questioned four inmates on the stand about the plight of smaller, weaker inmates, called "boys." The witnesses said they are repeatedly raped and assaulted by larger, violent inmates.

Clemens, convicted of second-degree burglary, said that a young prisoner his size, 5 feet 5 inches tall and 130 pounds, could only survive attacks in the prison by enlisting the help of a sympathetic prisoner, like Eckstahl.

"I went to the man (guards) and told them: I'd get whipped for being a snitch," he said. "I don't need any more problems."

Bill affecting judges argued

BOISE (AP) — Appointments to fill vacancies on the two highest state courts would require Senate confirmation under legislation headed for a vote.

The Senate State Affairs committee on Friday sent the bill, which the administrator of the state courts calls unnecessary, to the full Senate, but made "no recommendation as to whether it should pass.

Justices are elected to the state appeals court and the state supreme court. But when a vacancy occurs between elections, the state Judicial Council reviews applicants and sends nominations to the governor. The governor then appoints a replacement, whose appointment takes effect without Senate confirmation.

Senate confirmation is required for a variety of other gubernatorial appointments, including appointments for vacancies in the offices of the attorney general, the lieutenant governor, and numerous state agencies, boards and commissions.

Sen. Ann Rydatch, R-Idaho Falls, sponsor of the bill, said most people know their legislators.

Turkey, Greece negotiate after attack

By KERIN HOPE
The Associated Press

ATHENS, Greece — The government accused Turkey on Friday of attacking Greek ships in "its worst provocation" in a decade, then abruptly announced that it believed Turkey did not intentionally fire on the vessels.

After a 15-minute meeting Friday evening with Turkish Ambassador Fahri Altun, Deputy Foreign Minister Yannis Kapsis told reporters, "We've decided there was no intention on the part of the Turkish government to provoke such a dangerous episode."

He said Greece had reversed an earlier decision to recall Ambassador Sofris Constantinopoulos from Ankara following Thursday's incident near the northern Greek island of Samothrace.

Greece had claimed a squadron of Turkish destroyers on maneuvers in the Gulf of Saros near the Dardanelles fired three salvos into Greek territorial waters, narrowly missing the Greek destroyer Panther and a Greek fishing fleet.

"New explanations given to our ambassador today by Foreign Undersecretary Yavuzalp were substantially different from those rejected yesterday," Kapsis said.

He said the Turkish official explained that his country's warships were firing anti-aircraft shells that exploded in the air "and posed no danger for surface vessels."

Turkey had denied the charge of firing on the Greek vessels. It had accused Greece of fabricating an "artificial crisis" in order to sway American opinion against Turkey while Congress is considering a $334 million aid package for the Ankara government.

U.S. military aid to both NATO allies is under debate in Congress. After the shooting incident Thursday, Greece accused the United States of "emboldening" Turkey into the "provocation" by proposing to increase military aid next year to Turkey but not to Greece — which would get $500 million.

Borah downs Minico, 75-68

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — Borah's 75-68 triumph over the Minico Spartans Friday night was due less to Minico's deficiencies and more to the Lions' efficiency.

In reaching tonight's final of the State Class A-4 boys' basketball tournament, the Lions clearly proved why they own a 2-2 record and the No. 1 ranking in the final Associated Press poll.

Borah's methods were simple — a balanced offense attack based on precise shooting and a frustrating defense — but they were as effective as they were uncomplicated.

Borah will meet Coeur d'Alene at 8:30 p.m. in the 1984 Mindome tournament, the 1984 Idaho State Championship. Meanwhile, Minico will challenge Highland, a 22-6 loser to the Vikings in Friday's last game, for third place at 3:15 this afternoon.

Earlier Friday, Bonneville received a near-record 41 points from Richard Black to out Lewiston, 81-63, and Meridian got past Caldwell 53-48.

Bonneville and Meridian will clash for today's consolation title at 11:55 this morning.

Trying to defend the Lions was a task akin to playing chess on six different boards. That's how many Borah players scored between eight and 15 points, four of them reaching double figures.

"It's tough to play a team with a balance like that," said Borah Coach Kirk Williams, not being boastful but simply stating facts.

"I probably moved the ball better than we moved it all year. We had to, because they (the Spartans) were playing such good man-to-man," Williams continued. "But they had some really good, physical defense on us — they played really, really well. They just hit us on a day when we played one of our best basketball games, too."

Minico Coach Craig Dexter's comments were more succinct, but they conveyed the same meaning.

"You have to give all the credit to Borah. It's not so much what we didn't do as what they did," Dexter said.

What Borah did was shoot 58.9 percent from the floor (23 of 39) and 78.6 percent from the free throw line (22-for-28). As the coaches indicated, Minico wasn't far behind. The Spartans made 26 of 49 field goal tries for 53 percent and 11 of 14 free throws, 78.6 percent.

However, the Lions furnished their cause most with a half-court trap defense. Its primary objective was to prevent the Spartans from finding Kent McKenzie and Brad Croft, each 6-foot-4, underneath the basket. That was Williams' biggest pre-game fear.

It worked. Though McKenzie and Croft finished with 19 and 18 points respectively, McKenzie scored mostly from outside, while Croft had just four points after halftime.

But Minico wasn't totally disarmed. Trailing 46-33 early in the third quarter, Carl Bailey led a 10-0 surge that brought the Spartans back into contention.

After Croft opened the rally on a follow-in shot with 5:45 to go, Bailey popped in two straight three-point baskets. With 3:11 left in the period, McKenzie meshed one from 17 feet to complete the surge and pull Minico with 46-43.

Bailey, who totaled 16 points, almost reduced the deficit to one point with another three-pointer. But his bomb with 53 seconds to go and Minico trailing 51-47 with in and out.

Guard Kim Meyer may not have clinched the game for Borah as the fourth quarter began, but he certainly helped. Meyer opened the period with a three-point basket, then neatly fed Tom Conner for another basket on a two-on-one fast break with 7:20 to go, lifting Borah ahead 54-47.

Minico twice fought to within six points, but never came closer. Borah held off the Spartans, who fell to 18-6 overall, by sinking two more three-pointers and 11 of 14 free-throws as the quarter waned.

Borah initially established control in the second quarter. After a feverish first period produced a 21-18 Lion lead at 7:45 p.m. MST.

Oakley on roll, won't stop

MOSWOW — When certain players on the Oakley High School's basketball team get on a roll, the team can be devilishly hard to stop.

On Friday night, the Hornets were on a roll — and it got them into the championship game of the Idaho Class A-4 Boys' Basketball Tournament tonight.

The Hornets squeaked out a 55-52 victory over a much larger Greenleaf-Friends Academy team. In the other semifinal game, Highland of Craig-river edged Salmon River 53-52. Those two teams will meet for the title at 7:45 p.m. MST.

Castelford, which lost to Salmon River in the opening round on Thursday, thanks to some atrocious first-half shooting, pulled out a come-from-behind 76-68 victory over Plummer. The Wolves will meet a 66-57 victor over Rockland on Friday, for tournament consolation honors at 11:15 this morning, Mountain Time.

Salmon River and Friends will play for third place at 2:35 p.m. MST. "It's better than hell," said

Gooding loses, 70-62

By FRANK HILL
Special to The Times-News

MOSWOW — What started out as a battle between two surprise entrants in the winner's bracket of the Idaho Class A-3 Boys' Basketball Tournament on Friday night quickly turned into a rout as the Lapwai Wildcats bombed their way to an 80-69 victory over the Filer Wildcats in a semifinal game.

Gooding didn't have much better luck, falling to Pocatello 70-62 in the other tournament semifinal.

That sets up an all-District 4 matchup for third place in the tournament, scheduled for 4:15 p.m. MST. Lapwai and Pocatello will face off for the state title at 9:30 p.m. MST.

In other action Friday, West Jefferson eliminated Homedale 89-63 and Malad dumped Fruitland 82-64. West Jefferson and Malad will meet for the tournament consolation title at 12:55 p.m. MST, today.

Gooding fell victim to Pocatello's Dan Atkins, who scored a "tournament record" 46 points. Atkins, a sophomore, was 15-for-23 from the field and 10-for-10 from the free throw line.

Atkins' performance nullified a 20-point effort by Gooding's Sven Swanson.

Because the game did not start until 10:45 p.m. MST Friday night, no other details were available at press time.

Both Filer and Lapwai entered Friday's game after beating district champions from other leagues. Filer, runner-up in district four, downed the district champion Homedale 61-60 and Lapwai dropped the District 6 champs, West Jefferson 69-50 to advance into the A-3 winners bracket.

Whereas Filer's luck ran out against Lapwai, Lapwai's winning ways may just now be starting. Because beating Filer, Lapwai used all of the tools necessary to win any basketball game — inside shooting, outside shooting and defense.

"We saw them playing yesterday," said Filer Coach Lloyd Gary said. "We were concentrating on stopping No. 45 (Johnson-Leighton) and we didn't do it. Bad there, but we had no idea that Bobby Sobotta was so good from the outside."

The Lapwai scoring double-punch of Leighton underneath and Sobotta from long distance spelled trouble for Filer all evening long. Leighton scored 17 points and grabbed six rebounds, but it was the three-point shooting of Sobotta that inflicted the most damage to Filer.

"We had no idea that Sobotta would hit those three-pointers," said Gary. "We really needed to stop him."

Madison makes sure its Bobcats stay on top

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — Burley and Madison share the same mascot, but Friday night there was no mistaking which group of Bobcats possessed the most skill.

Putting together a remarkably thorough effort and benefiting from Scott Hastings' near flawless offense, Madison reared past Burley 71-52 to reach tonight's championship game of the Idaho Class A-2 Boys' Basketball Tournament.

Madison will confront District 6 rival Rigby, a 62-60 winner over American Falls, in the 6:45 p.m. (MST) at the ISU Mindome. Burley will meet American Falls for third place at 1:35 this afternoon.

In other A-2 contests Middletown eliminated St. Maries 86-78 and Bonners Ferry nipped Moscow 66-64.

Those victories will play for the consolation crown at 10:15 a.m. today.

Madison's shooting was most visible in its excellence, hitting 24 of 41 attempts from the floor for 58.5 percent, compared to Burley's 24-for-63 performance (38.1 percent). Madison also sank 19 of 23 free throws to Burley's 2-for-6 performance.

Hastings, a 6-foot-1 senior forward who didn't become a starter until mid-season, was the sharpest of Madison's sharpshooters. He made 8 of 9 from the floor and 5 of 5 from the line for a game high 22 points.

Hastings had 14 points in the first half, when he victimized Burley primarily by cutting through the middle of the key, getting a pass and hitting simple turn-around jumpers.

"Hastings? These Hastings!" Burley Coach Gary Swan said, not in bitterness but amazement. "We had never heard of him. But he was the difference."

There was obviously quite a difference between Madison's shooting and Burley's. The losers suffered particularly from the woes of leading scorer Greg Boyd. Boyd had scored 32 points in Thursday's opener against St. Maries, but managed just seven against Madison on 3-for-16 shooting.

Madison Coach Jerry Grover explained that he instructed his players to pay close attention to the Burley ace.

"That was the key. We kept pressure on Boyd all night," Grover said. "We always had a guy there. There was never a time he didn't have a guy within two steps of him."

Whenever Burley sustained offensive efficiency, Madison found a way to prevent its escalation. The primary example of this was Madison's maneuvers on Burley's Rich Ralphs.

Ralphs, whose 18 points on 9-for-18 shooting paced the District 4 champion eighth in the second quarter to help draw his team even at 23:22. Madison had led by 12 points at one juncture in the first quarter.

The 6-4 Ralphs had been posting the

CSI men in Region 18 finals; women face disappointment

'Gleaming Emerson's 16 buckets lead team

By LARRY HOVEY

REXBURG — Impersonating either Diddy Warburton or Telly Savalas, College of Southern Idaho sophomore center Fred Emerson — his head gleaming from a razor cut — crammed in 16 points to lead CSI to the finals of the Region 18 National Junior College Athletic Association men's basketball tournament here Friday night.

Emerson, combining with the outside shooting of Dewey Haley, paced the Eagles to a 101-64 victory over Clackamas Community College. Embused with ease of the victory and his best scoring night for a long while, Emerson pronounced his new haircut "my tournament look." He 23 to Maurice Gardin, CSI forward, had decided on the new look earlier in the week and Gardin applied the shears. But Emerson wasn't the only one short; Clackamas battled respectably for the first several minutes and then fell away as the Eagles' superior height and the high altitude took their toll.

CSI will meet homestanding Ricks, an 80-72 victor over North Idaho College on Friday, in tonight's Idaho consolation game at 7 p.m. MST. Helldouse, NIC and Clackamas will square off at 7 from consolation honors.

It was obvious that 5,100-foot altitude at Rexburg was an important ally of the Eagles, as individuals from Clackamas at times simply refused to run up and down the floor. Sophomore center Bob Nipper confirmed what seemed obvious from the stands.

"It hurt your lungs," he said. "But it didn't hurt as badly tonight as it did in practice Thursday."

Whether the altitude would have affected the outcome is doubtful, as the Eagles shot 58 percent from the field and were 15 of 29 from the foul line. Clackamas did as expected, opening with disciplined offense and good medium-range jump shooting. It did have one-point leads on a couple of occasions, but the game started de-integrating when CSI took an 18-17 advantage. Haley, Lowell Cisowski and Derrick Hopkins started the Eagles away and by halftime they led by 13.

'Free-throw defense' ends CSI women's hope

COEUR D'ALENE — North Idaho College women's basketball Coach Greg Crimp jokingly credited his team's 77-65 Region 18 tournament win over the College of Southern Idaho Friday to "excellent free throw defense."

CSI owned a 64-63 lead with just over four minutes remaining in the game, but missed the final end of four consecutive one-and-one free-throw situations to allow the game to slip out of reach.

In the tournament opener against Clackamas Community College, Ricks jumped to an early lead and cruised to a 79-59 win to set up a 9 p.m. MST regional title contest Saturday against North Idaho.

CSI will meet Clackamas at 7 p.m. MST in the consolation game.

percent, but we couldn't hit them when we needed to tonight."

"Those misses were critical for them," Crimp said. "But shoot, this was just an awfully good women's basketball game."

Indeed, each team mirrored the other's strengths-blending strong inside play with occasional fast breaks. NIC center Kathy Eastinger dominated the lane early, scoring 17 of her game-high 30 points in the first half while teammate Angela Joyce added 10 points and seven rebounds in the first half.

Robb Lile hit six of five free throws in the fourth quarter Friday as No. 5 Meridian held off fourth-ranked Caldwell 53-48 to reach the consolation finals.

Coeur d'Alene's Kurt Lundblad, who scored a game-high 27 points, had six during a 14-0 streak that turned a 52-52 third quarter tie into a 66-52 Viking bulge early in the fourth period.

The Warriors will play Bonnevile, an 81-63 winner of Lewiston earlier Friday, Saturday for the consolation title.

Line finished with 23 points to lead Meridian. Don Singland countered with a game-high 25 points, including all of Caldwell's 10 first-quarter points.

Meridian led 29-24 at halftime. The two teams swapped the lead frequently in the second half until Line's free throws down the stretch gave the edge to Meridian.

shorter Hastings inside to score. So Grover merely switched 6-5 center Neal Ard underneath in Madison's matchup zone.

And to change up and make sure Ard didn't get outside at all, Grover said.

The alteration fit Madison perfectly. With Burley's offense stymied, Madison scored eight in a row — six on a three-point basket and three-point play by Hastings — and held a 31-25 lead at halftime.

Afterward Burley twice rallied from 19-point deficits but couldn't consume the comeback. Burley closed within 37-33 midway through the third quarter and 47-41 early in the fourth.

The difference was still 61, 53-47, when Madison settled the outcome with seven unanswered points in 31 seconds.

Randy Siddoway collected two free throws with 2:30 to go and hit a layup seconds later. The Robert Jensen threw a three-pointer with 2:08 left for a 62-47 Madison advantage.

Righy 89, American Falls 46
Two-time defending state champion Righy vaulted into the finals with a 59-46 thumping of American Falls.

Righy had too much height and speed for American Falls, as 6-6 center Todd Peterson scored a game-high 20 points.

Righy's press forced the Beavers to commit numerous backcourt turnovers. Guard Wade Ward, playing with a knee injury, led American Falls with 14 points.

Middletown 86, St. Maries 76
Center Steve Johnson scored 23 points and forward Claude Cray added 19 as Middletown beat St. Maries 86-76 in the consolation round.

Middletown's victory today puts the Vikings into the consolation championship Saturday, while St. Maries was eliminated from the tournament.

St. Maries was led by Rob Sather with 18 points and Gary Dawson with 16 points.

Middletown used a 21-point second quarter to go up 39-23 at halftime and rebounds and firing in 10 points.

Castelford charged back from a 12-point halftime deficit Friday to win going away.

Wolves' center Alan Sample poured in a dozen of his game-high 20 points in the Wolves' big second half, while teammates Steve Zamora and Gary Reynolds combined for 23 of their 31 total points in the final 16 minutes.

Reynolds finished with 17 and Zamora 14.

Plummer held a 41-29 lead at the half, but Castelford climbed into a 53-53 tie near the end of the third period as Reynolds canned a rebound shot.

Castelford then scored eight of 11 free throws in the game's final three and a half minutes to preserve the win.

Highland 53, Salmon River 32
Paul Way's lay-up with 18 seconds left Friday night gave Highland-Craigmont a 53-32 victory over Salmon River in the semifinals.

Highland built an 8-point lead in the fourth quarter, but Salmon River cut the deficit straight to tie the score with 1:39 left.

The teams traded baskets before Way scored on a feed from Danny Wayne. Salmon's Rick Travis hit one of two free throws with nine seconds left.

Sobotta, who led both teams in scoring with 38 points, hit on 8-of-11 three-point tries. In the third quarter alone, the senior guard scored 14 points, coming via the three-point route.

West Jefferson got off to a commanding lead in the second quarter and broke the game open at the free-throw line in the third.

Lapwal used a half-court trap defense much of the game and forced a number of Filer turnovers late in the contest.

Lawrence Gunderson of West Jefferson led his team to a blowout victory Friday and into today's consolation finals, where the Panthers will face Malad.

At the end, there was just those crucial turnovers and some crucial fouling on our part that really hurt," Garrey said. 'Terrible' Witherspoon scores majority decision over Page

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Terrible Tim Witherspoon, keeping the pressure on throughout, scored a 12-round majority decision over Greg Page Friday night and became the World Boxing Council heavyweight champion.

The mauling match between two big men at the Las Vegas Convention Center was for the title vacated by unbeaten Larry Holmes, who was in the crowd of about 3,500 in the 7,200-seat building.

Although each weighed 194 pounds, it was Witherspoon who had the best of the mauling, frequently pinning Page on the ropes, and when it seemed Page was coming on in the eighth and ninth rounds. Witherspoon took the play away in the final three rounds with blazing shots to the head.

"I told you neither one could fight," said Holmes, who kept the WBC title last May 20 on a 12-round split decision over Witherspoon. Holmes' abdication of the championship last December, saying he would not make a mandatory defense against Page for the $2.55 million called for in a contract with promoter Don King.

Judge Chuck Minker saw the fight even, 114-114, but judges Jerry Roth and Lou Tabat each favored Witherspoon 117-111.

The Associated Press called it 116-112 for Witherspoon. "This is the best performance I've seen in a long time. I'm through with it. I've gone through hell all my career. He's a good fighter, but I thought I beat him."

Much of the fight was spent in the corners, with Page's back to the ropes. When Page could get out of the corners, he seemed to have better of the scoring.

Several times, Witherspoon's corner pleaded with him to punch more rather than just look for a knockout shot.

But Witherspoon punched enough and he punched with much more power than Page to seemingly build a solid lead after seven rounds.

There is the eighth round, Page, who weighed 230 pounds to 220 1/2 for Witherspoon, scored well, and he continued to look good in the ninth. In the ninth, Page landed a good left hook and right to the head at mid-round and followed with two more punches to the body as Witherspoon stalked but didn't fire very often.

However, Witherspoon took control of the fight again in the 10th round, which was one of the more action-packed rounds. The two men were trading blows along the ropes with Witherspoon snapping Page's head back with a right uppercut.

In the 11th round, Witherspoon got in a hard left and right to the head midway through the round and then shook Page with a blasting right, followed by a left hook to the head with 13 seconds left.

Witherspoon came out in the 12th and landed six or seven good head shots. At the bell, his handlers entered the ring and jumped in jubilation. Then, they were taken aback briefly when Minker's even score was announced.

"I'm going to be the best champion there ever was," said Witherspoon after leaping for joy at the announcement he had won.

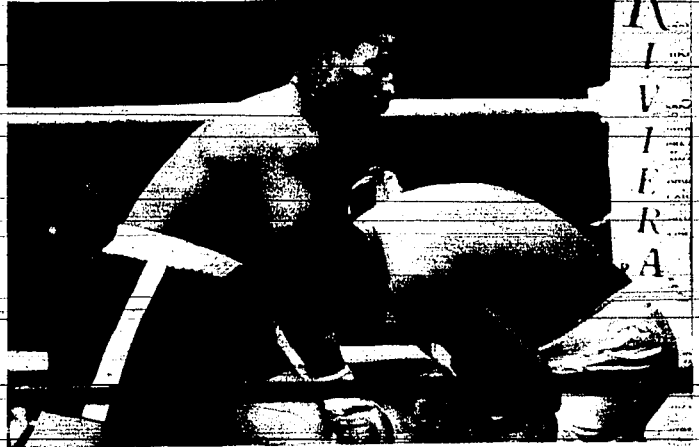

"I hurt him every round," he said of his efforts against Page.

"He was holding me into the ropes so he could try to score points. So I tried to pull him off to box in the center of the ring because I knew I could beat him in the center of the ring."

For Witherspoon, who earned $250,000 and a chance to make a great deal more, the victory was the 16th against a single loss. The 26-year-old Philadelphia had been ranked No. 2 by both the WBC and the World Boxing Association.

The 25-year-old Page, who made $400,000, was trying to join Muhammad Ali and Jimmy Ellis as heavyweight champions to come out of Louisville, Ky. Instead, he suffered his second loss against a 23-year-old victor.

All was on hand in the sparse crowd, as was Gerrie Colesoe of South Africa, the WBA champion, and Michael Dokos, the former WBA champ.

Virginia Tech dismantles Louisville with a full-court press

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Forward Perry Young scored 22 points as Virginia Tech dismantled 18th-ranked Louisville with a tenacious full-court press to post a 69-61 victory over the Cardinals in the semifinal round of the Metro Conference basketball tournament Friday night.

The victory earned the fourth-seeded Hokies' 18-11 berth in Saturday's 11 a.m. CST championship game against the winner of the Memphis State-Ferris State contest.

Top-seeded Louisville, which had won three of the last four Metro tournament titles, saw its record dip to 22-10.

The Cardinals appeared to be in control of the contest, building a 49-39 lead with 13:59 remaining, but Tech quietly began what was to become a 24-4 run with a single free throw by forward Bobby Taylor at the 11:53 mark.

The Hokies ran off seven unanswered points to close to 43-48 and, after a tip-in by Louisville's Manuel Forrest, ran off 12 straight points to take a 55-51 lead.

Young gave Tech the lead for good at 52-51 with a short jumper from inside the lane with 7:14 remaining and a dunk by center John Dixon with 4:44 left, putting game the Hokies their seven-point lead.

Once Tech got within striking distance of the Cardinals, the Hokies put on a rugged full-court press that resulted in 11 steals and three Louisville turnovers.

After the eight-minute Tech rally, the Cardinals were allowed several easy baskets in the final four minutes as the Hokies hit nine of 12 free throws to clinch the victory.

N. Carolina 78
Clemson 66

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Matt Doherty scored 22 points and Sam Perkins added 20 as No. 1-ranked North Carolina pulled away from Clemson in the second-half for a 76-66 victory in the opening round of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament Friday.

The Tar Heels now are 22-1 and have defeated 15 straight league foes. They will meet Duke in the semifinals of the tournament, scheduled for 11:30 a.m. MST this afternoon.

Duke 67
Georgia Tech 63

Duke, one of the teams vying for an NCAA spot, raised its record to 23-3 overall and 8-7 against league opposition.

Georgia Tech took a 63-61 lead in the overtime on Mark Price's 20-footer with 4:34 left. David Henderson came back with a jumper inside the lane with 3:50 remaining to tie the score.

Both teams squandered opportunities to seize the lead because of turnovers. A Yellow Jacket miscue gave Duke possession and a second chance to hold on for the last shot.

Amaker's basket came from the right side, after which Georgia Tech called timeout.

Price attempted to retaliate for Georgia Tech, but was called for charging. Henderson was fouled almost immediately and added two free throws to set the final score.

W-Virginia 67
Temple 65

MOUNTAIN VIEW, W.Va. (AP) — Dale Blaney hit a 13-foot jump shot from the top of the key with two seconds left Friday as West Virginia ousted 15th-ranked Temple from the Atlantic 10 tournament 67-65.

West Virginia, the tournament's defending champion, will play George Washington in this afternoon's title game.

Blaney's basket gave the 18-11 Mountaineers a 66-65 lead, and Tim Kearney's free throw with one second remaining gave West Virginia the two-point victory.

Temple, 25-4, had three seconds left to engineer a winning shot.

Blaney's basket, but an inbound pass from Kevin Clifton sailed through Terence Stansbury's hands and out of bounds to West Virginia.

Maryland 69
N. Carolina St. 63

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Freshman Keith Gatlin responded to the pressure of his first Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament by sinking seven of nine free throws in the last two minutes to lead 14th-ranked Maryland to a 69-63 victory over North Carolina State Friday night.

N.C. State, which has now lost six in a row, was forced to foul to try to overcome Maryland's 56-51 lead.

Adrian Branch responded by hitting the front end of a two-shot foul for a 57-51 lead with 3:22 left. Jeff Atkins followed with the first of a one-and-one to raise that lead with 2:54 left.

Terry Gannon's 20-foot jumper with 2:42 left brought N.C. State within 58-53. Gatlin was fouled and earned two free throws with 2:33 left. He missed a bonus situation at the 2:17 mark and Anthony "Spud" Webb hit a layup with 2:04 left to cut the deficit to 60-55.

Oklahoma 90
Colorado 78

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — All-American Wayman Tisdale scored 36 points and keyed a second-half surge that allowed sixth-ranked Oklahoma to pull away from up-set-minded Colorado 90-78 Friday night in the semifinals of the Big Eight postseason basketball tournament.

The Sooners, who set the conference record with their 29th victory of the season, will meet Kansas in a title game tonight.

Georgetown 79
St. John's 68

NEW YORK (AP) — All-America center Patrick Ewing scored 24 points and blocked six shots to lead second-ranked Georgetown to a 79-68 victory over St. John's Friday night and a berth against Syracuse in the Big East Conference championship game.

Ewing, a 7-foot center, connected on 11 of 12 field goal attempts and pulled down five rebounds as the Hoyas, 27-3, dominated St. John's off the boards.

Kentucky 48
Alabama 46

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Dicky Beal sank two free throws with three seconds remaining as third-ranked Kentucky edged Alabama 48-44 Friday night, advancing to the finals of the Southeastern Conference basketball tournament for the 20th time in 25 events.

The Wildcats, 25-4 and regular season champions of the SEC for the 35th time, will take on conference runnerup Auburn in the championship game this afternoon with the winner claiming the league's automatic berth in the upcoming NCAA tournament.

Texas-El Paso 62
Wyoming 55

EL PASO (AP) — Luster Goodwin scored 16 points to lead ninth-ranked Texas-El Paso to a 62-55 victory over Wyoming Friday night in the semifinals of the first-ever Western Athletic Conference post-season basketball tournament.

Jones, High provide Nevada-Reno stunner

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Guards Darnell Jones and Curtis High scored 25 and 38 points Friday night as Nevada-Reno staged a dramatic comeback from the perimeter to stun top-seeded and host Weber State 85-68 in the Big Sky Conference Basketball tournament semifinals.

Reno, which had lost twice to Weber this season and in the finals of the league tournament last year in Nevada, outscored the Wildcats 11-2 in the first 14 minutes of the second half to gain a 52-30 advantage enroute to raising its season record to 16-13.

Weber, which saw a 10-game winning streak come to an end, was led by center Shawn Campbell's 15 points and Greg Jones' 16 points.

Wildcats 12-2 during the regular conference season, saw their overall record fall to 22-7.

Weber, which had averaged just 42 percent shooting in its last five games, was scored in this game by covering just 33 percent from the field.

Reno had led 41-37 at halftime after Weber scored the last two points of the half.

Jones was responsible for most of the Wolf Pack offense in the first half, scoring 19 points as his team shot 68 percent from the field. It was High, however, who paced Reno early in the second half, during Reno's decisive spurt.

His freethrow at 14:19 put Reno up 52-39.

Montana in Big Sky finals

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Guard Doug Selvig scored 21 points and forward Larry Krystkowiak had 20 points as Montana reached the finals of the Big Sky Conference tournament for the fourth time with a 76-64 win Friday night over rival Montana State.

Montana, now 23-6 overall, will play Nevada-Reno tonight for the championship and an automatic spot in the NCAA tournament. Montana never has prevailed in the championship game.

Nevada-Reno earned its third straight appearance in the title game after having lost to top-seeded Weber State its worst loss of the season, 85-68, in the earlier game Friday. Weber's loss marked the first time in the nine-year history of the tournament that the host school was eliminated in the semifinals.

Montana, the No. 2 seed after posting a 9-5 Big Sky regular season record, steadily pulled away from Montana State in the second half as Selvig scored from the perimeter and Krystkowiak muscled his way inside.

Center Tryg Johnson won 16 and 14 points, respectively, as the third-seeded Bobcats finished the season 14-15 overall.

A basket by Selvig at the end of the first half gave Montana a 32-29 lead over Montana State. The Grizzlies kept up the same pace early in the second half.

The teams traded points until Selvig scored three straight times twice from the corner — 33, 31. The Grizzlies built a 61-45 lead with 9:18 to go.

Texas-El Paso favorite fails to qualify

By HERT ROSENTHAL The Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The University of Texas-El Paso's chance for the men's team title in the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships suffered a serious blow Friday night, when its star long-distance runner, Gidmish Shahanga, failed to qualify for the 3,000-meter final.

Shahanga, the durable Tanzanian who won the 5,000-meter and 10,000-meter titles in last year's NCAA Outdoor Championships, waited too long to make his move in the 3,000 semifinals and finished fourth in his heat.

The first three finishers in each semifinal, plus the next two fastest times, qualified for Saturday's final. Since Shahanga ran in the slower heat, he failed to advance.

Prior to the meet, Miners' Coach Larry Holdebrecht had counted Shahanga for "solid points" in the 3,000.

"It's very disappointing," said Shahanga. "It's the worst race I've run in many years."

"I have no reason, no explanation, why I didn't make the final.

"Some people may say it's because I ran a marathon (last month at Los Angeles), but that's not the case. I'm not tired," he said.

Shahanga did admit, however, that he made his move too late in the semifinals.

"Psychologically, when I run a longer race, I can get 100 meters behind and catch them," he said. "But I didn't respond in time in this race."

"I felt like I could catch them — but then it was too late.

"This is very bad for me... bad for the team... bad for everybody."

Shahanga finished in 8 minutes, 12.95 seconds, behind James Splazena of Dartmouth (8:08.87), Ed Eveshove of Brigham Young (8:11.52) and Per Kristoffersen of Maryland (8:12.03).

Terry Braun of Indiana won the other 3,000 semifinal in 8:09.09. He was followed by Peter Koech of Washington State (8:09.53), Eddy Wedem of Oregon Southern (8:09.65), Scott Gardner of Oral Roberts (8:09.70) and Elliot Bilkand of Fairleigh Dickinson (8:10.34).

"If the team doesn't win the title because of me... If we lose by a few points... It's going to hurt me a lot," said Shahanga.

Shahanga's failure came on the heels of a recent announcement that Texas-El Paso's other long-distance standout, 24-year-old Zakariah Barie, also of Tanzania, was ineligible for the NCAA meet because he was an average foreigner.

Texas-El Paso, winner of the NCAA Indoor title seven times since 1974, had expected to battle Southwest Conference champion Arkansas for the men's crown. But the losses of Shahanga and Barie put a huge dent in their chance.

Meanwhile, Robert Weir of Southern Methodist University, the 1981 and 1983 champion in the 35-pound weight throw, led the qualifiers into Saturday's final with a heave of 62 feet, 9 1/2 inches.

Tore Johnson of Texas-El Paso, the 1982 collegiate champion and holder of the world indoor best, had the second-best throw, 67.9.

Qualifying preliminaries and semifinals occupied Friday's entire program at the Carrier Dome. All the finals — 15 for men, 13 for women — will be held Saturday.

Nicklaus putt garners share in three-way tie

MIAMI (AP) — Jack Nicklaus rolled in a six-foot putt on his 18th hole and grabbed a share of a three-way tie for the lead on Friday in the second round of the $400,000 Doral-Eastern Open golf tournament.

Nicklaus, who hasn't made a bogey in the tournament, shot a 6-under par 69 for 36 holes and 136 eight shots under par for the blue-monster course at the Doral Country Club.

Seeking his first victory in 14 years and the 70th of his unequalled career, Nicklaus was tied for the top spot at the tournament's halfway point with Australian Bob Shearer and former Masters champion George Archer.

Shearer had a 66 in the warm, sunny weather and the 44-year-old Archer had a 65 that included a bizarre birdie on the first hole.

Tom Kite snapped a recent slump with a 69 and was tied for second at 69. He had a 68 back with Gary Hallberg, who put on an eagle-birdie finish for a 70.

The group at 138 was led by Bruce Lietzke, a carry-over last Sunday in the Honda Classic.

Just a winner after last week. I'm still playing very well," Lietzke said after his 67. He was tied with Johnny Miller, Wayne Levi, Tom Jenkins and Mike Nicolette. Levi had a 68 while Miller, Jenkins and Nicolette shot 70s.

Defending champion Gary Kreeb had a 69 that left him in a group at 139. Among the others at that figure were Lee Trevino, who had no work hard for his 72, and Larry Rinker. Rinker, who shared the first round lead with 73, John Adams, the other first round co-leader, had 74-74.

PGA titleholder Hal Sutton was at 143 after a 72. Masters champion Seve Ballesteros, who represented Doral on the American Tour, failed to qualify for the final two rounds. He had a 75 and was at 148.

Nicklaus, holder of a record 17 major professional titles, said he spent about an hour working with his long-time teacher, Jack Grout, after finishing his 67 in Thursday's round.

"I made some adjustments in the swing and hit the ball much better today," he said. "In general, I played better, but I didn't score quite as well."

"He hit some drives that were awesome," said Kite, who played with Nicklaus. "On the first hole, he drove the ball 305 yards into the wind — one of the biggest drives I've seen."

Nicklaus, who played well without winning last season and recorded a third-place finish in the Los Angeles Open last month, made birdie putts of 12 and 18 feet going out, turned in 34, and got a share of the lead with a wedge shot to six feet on his 11th hole. Tom

Hawkeyes retain lead in wrestling tournament

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Two-time defending national champion Jim Zalesky and five other leaders of Iowa colleges each won quarterfinal-round matches Friday as the Hawkeyes retained the lead in their bid for an unprecedented seventh straight NCAA wrestling championship.

The Hawkeyes scored 54.5 points after the quarterfinal and consolation round competition, while Oklahoma State was second with 50 1/2 points as the tournament headed into the semifinal round Friday night at the Brendan Byrne Arena. Oklahoma was third with 36 points and Penn State fourth with 27 1/2.

Wrestling

Iowa and Oklahoma State each sent six wrestlers into the semifinal round.

Oklahoma State, the top-ranked team in the country, had one team point deducted in the quarterfinal round after it was issued two official warnings.

during Karl Lynes' loss at 190. Tommy Chesbro, Oklahoma State's coach, said: "It was just two mistakes that were made unexcusably."

"The first one our trainer put his bag down with 14 seconds left in a match. Then, during the 100-pound match, I was encouraging the official to stop a stall, but I was encouraging him to do that the whole match and I guess he heard all we wanted," Chesbro said.

Q so I don't lose a point and even it up," said Gable, who put aside his duties as such of the 1984 U.S. Olympic team to be with the Hawkeyes.

Iowa, which captured the national title last year with an NCAA record 155 points in 11 fights, opened the quarterfinal round with a 3 1/2-point lead over Oklahoma State. But the Blue Demons set eyes on gaining the top seed

CHICAGO (AP) — Ray Meyer's wife will lay out her husband's clothes this morning, as she has done since baseballs had laces and his players wore crew cuts.

That will be time for the Game — not just another game, not even the NCAA "Final Four" game he dreams of. It will be the 1,076th game, the last regular-season contest — of Meyer's 42-year career as basketball coach of DePaul.

coach Saturday afternoon against Marquette in a nationally televised contest at the Rosemont Horizon. DePaul takes a 2-2 record into the contest and hopes that victory will nail down a top-seed-in-an-NCAA regional.

Marquette, nearing the end of a tough 161 season, still holds out hope for an NCAA bid or, more likely, a bid to the NIT. But they face the unenviable task of ralling on Meyer's parade.

"Coach Meyer is being defied," said Marquette Coach Rich Majerus. "We'd be the ones if we win."

"The teams will have to compete for attention with the outside recruitment party for — the Coach," complete with proclamation by Chicago Mayor Harold Washington and a "DPAULI" auto license plate courtesy of the State of Illinois.

age, a dozen NCAA tournament appearances, seven times in the NIT. He is 14th in career wins among college basketball coaches, trailing only legendary figures as Kentucky's Adolph Rupp and Kansas' Phog Allen.

"I'll be smiling when it's over," said Meyer. "I'm grateful, bewildered, amazed — I've thought it would be this hectic. I'm happy to cooperate with everyone, but it takes me away from basketball."

Indoor archery shoot slated

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Bowhunters will sponsor an indoor archery shoot today.

The competition is open to all bowshooters. There will be four classes — with mixed yardages and mixed targets, animal and face.

The shoot will be held on the 100th block of 2nd Ave. South. Registration begins at 9 a.m., with competition to start at 10.

Further information can be obtained by phoning 734-5026, 535-1940 or 226-4817.

NCAA tourney sites named

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association announced the sites Friday for its opening round games Tuesday in the NCAA basketball tournament.

EST, will include winners from six conferences: Big East, ECAC, Mid-East, ECAC North Atlantic, ECAC South, Ivy (Princeton University) and West Coast Athletic (University of San Diego).

The opening round will include three games in Philadelphia and a doubleheader in Dayton.

The round at Dayton, beginning at 6:40 p.m. EST, will include winners from four conferences: Mid-Eastern Athletic (North Carolina A&T); Ohio Valley, Southwestern Athletic and Trans-America.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"We make our fortunes and call them fate." - Benjamin Disraeli.

South was on his way to making his aggressively bid slam until East threw up a roadblock. The net result was one down. Was it fortune or was it fate?

The slam was played in the semifinals round of the 1983 World Championship between The Aces (U.S. team No. 1) and the U.S. Challengers (U.S. team No. 2).

Declarer won the spade lead in dummy and led the heart six. Against many hearts, the slam would have proved to be relatively easy.

East would follow with the heart 10, and declarer's jack would lose to West's queen. Later East's heart king would appear, and the defenders would get only one trump trick.

When Peter Weichsel of the Aces held the East cards, he played his heart king without a flicker when the first heart was led from dummy. This unusual play created a huge problem for South.

In actual play, South won his heart ace, returned to dummy with the club king and led the heart eight with the 10, Jack and queen following. West returned his

Opening lead: Spade five

Foreing:

South holds: 3-10-B

ANSWER: Pass. Nice to hear about the spade support, but North's hand is still in the minimum range, and game is a poor bet.
