Glenn quits; Hart, Mondale bicker

In Washington, John Glenn announces campaign pullout

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

John Glenn prepared to join George McGovern on the sidelines of the Democratic presidential race on Thursday while Gary Hart was backing into appointing to Walter F. Mondale for erroneously claiming Mondale's TV ads were questioning Hart's character.

Hart said Mondale was running television spots that raised questions about Hart's name, age and even his signature.

"There is no blemish on my character that would prohibit me from governing this country in this decade," Hart said in Springfield, Ill., responding to the ads, which turned out to be non-existent.

"Mistakes of this kind happen," he said later in Galesburg, Ill., blaming the error on wrong information from his campaign headquarters in Washington.

Mondale, campaigning for votes in Michigan's Saturday's caucuses, was quick to jump on his rival's blunder.

"I think there's a lot of evidence my opponent is getting to Mondale said in Detroit. 'Have you ever heard me mention anybody's age or anybody's name? I'm not going to get into that."

And only hours later, Hart admitted Mondale was right and he was wrong.

"After Hart acknowledged the error, Mondale, in Lansing, Mich., said 'I accept that. I'm glad he did so. We get tired in the campaign. We say things we don't mean."

The Republican Party, however, is planning to start a 20-state, $1.2 million television ad campaign that attacks Hart's claim to "new ideas" without ever mentioning him by name.

Hart and the third remaining candidate, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, had a chance meeting Thursday at the Little Rock, Ark., airport, talking privately for about 10 minutes. The black candidate said in Arkansas appearances that he expects to do "very well indeed" in Saturday's caucuses there. For McGovern, Thursday was the last day of his third bid for the party's nomination.

The former senator reflected on some of the labels he picked up this year — "one conscience, peacemaker and elder-statesman of the Democratic party" — quite a contrast to the attacks he faced after winning the

Diluted prayer bill dies; Reagan plan shaky

By MARGARET SCHERF
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — After 10 days of emotionally charged debate, the Senate voted Thursday against a watered-down version of President Reagan's proposal for a school prayer constitutional amendment, one permitting only silent organized prayer in the nation's classrooms.

The 81-15 vote set the stage for a showdown on the president's original proposal for a constitutional amendment to allow organized prayer in public schools. Key senators on both sides of the issue have expressed doubt that Reagan's proposal could attract the necessary two-thirds vote.

Reagan opposed the silent-prayer proposal by Sen. Alan J. Dixon, D-Ill., said Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn. Dixon's measure also would have permitted equal access to public facilities by students meeting after regular school hours for religious purposes.

Both advocates and opponents of the silent-prayer version said the vote was not a true test of sentiment on the school prayer issue. Many senators wanted to let Reagan have an unnumbered 'vote' on the measure if he favors.

The vote was on whether to table Dixon's proposal, and required only a majority vote, whereas a constitutional amendment takes a two-thirds vote in both houses of Congress — or 67 votes in the Senate.

With Dixon's measure set aside, Baker got agreement to schedule a vote next Tuesday afternoon on the original amendment backed by the president.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., told leaders opposition to an amendment, told reporters he thinks there is a chance to defeat Reagan's version. But he said, "the president's got four days to lobby and that's not an insignificant time and he's not an insignificant man."

Dixon said after the vote that "the administration's amendment will fail significantly short." But he said "that's the end of the game" because the silent-prayer version may come up later in the session and the votes are there to pass it.

Dixon urged his colleagues to accept his proposal, calling it the "large middle ground that I believe most Americans support" between having no constitutional amendment and having one that permits spoken prayer.

"We all know it's a foregone conclusion that the administration proposal will fail," he said. But Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., chairman of the Judiciary Committee which approved Reagan's version of an amendment, urged his colleagues to table the Dixon amendment, saying it had not had the scrutiny of constitutional scholars as had the original measure.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, the original sponsor of a silent-only version, also urged that Dixon's proposal be tabled because he felt the president deserved a straight yes-or-no vote on his measure, without the silent proposal as a fallback position.

He said Dixon's version was "unnecessarily divisive" and would likely result in no amendment being approved. Reagan deserves a clean vote on his proposal, Hatch said, because he "is the first chief executive to recognize the importance of this issue."

Reagan has made a constitutional amendment permitting school prayer a cornerstone of his re-election effort and has been pushing it strongly in the last several months.

The Reagan-backed version states: "Nothing in this Constitution shall be construed to prohibit individual or group prayers in the public schools or other public institutions. No person shall be required by the United States or by any state to participate in prayer."

White House officer shoots man wielding shortened gun

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A White House guard shot a man carrying a sawed-off shotgun along the fence surrounding the White House grounds Thursday night, the Secret Service reported.

"The president's all right," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

The man, identified by the Secret Service as David Mahonski, 25, of Williamsport, Pa., was shot when he pointed the sawed-off shotgun at a Secret Service officer, a U.S. Park Police spokesman, Sgt. Tony Ferraro, told a news conference.

Ferraro said there was one live shell in the 12-gauge, single-barrel shotgun.

Two uniformed Secret Service agents were driving on South Executive Drive bordering the South Lawn of the White House when they spotted the armed man, said Ferraro.

The two officers got out of their car, Ferraro said, and one fired a shot at the gunman after he had pointed the shotgun at them.

"They (the Secret Service officers) challenged him and he dropped the shotgun and he was shot," Ferraro said.

The U.S. Park Police, who patrol the area outside the White House fence, had spoken to the suspect on prior occasions when he had been seen outside the White House, Ferraro said.

Secret Service spokeswoman Mary Ann Gordon said that the Secret Service uniform division officer "fired one shot, striking the individual in the right forearm."

Ms. Gordon said that after the shooting, Mahonski dropped his weapon, "which has been identified as a sawed-off shotgun."

Speakes said that Reagan had been informed of the shooting, but Speakes did not say where the president was at the time of the incident, which occurred at the fence along the south lawn of the White House about 7:30 p.m. EST.

The shooting also was witnessed by four Secret Service agents and a Los Angeles police officer who were strolling along the sidewalk outside the White House grounds. The police officer was visiting with the agents, said Ferraro.

Mahonski "is the intruder" and "I saw five police officers ... questioning him" while the man was undergoing X-rays at D.C. General Hospital, said Andrew McCoy Jr., a hospital spokesman. Mahonski was listed in fair condition.

"We are going to admit him (Mahonski)," said the attending physician at the hospital, Dr. Frantz Chery. He has a fractured arm and a fever and he can't go home."

An administration official who spoke on condition he not be identified said no White House staff members were involved in the shooting.

Ms. Gordon said the case was being investigated by the Secret Service and the Park Police and that charges were pending review by the U.S. attorney.

After the shooting, Washington and Park Police sealed off the street immediately behind the South Lawn of the White House on the Ellipse.

A group of about 15 uniformed and plainclothes officers clustered on the street in front of the White House in full view of the flood-lit executive mansion.

Reagan announces deficit-reduction plan with help from Republican congressional leaders

Deficit compromise reached

By CLIFF HAAS
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan and Senate Republican leaders agreed Thursday on a package of proposed tax increases and spending cuts on military and domestic programs that would trim federal budget deficits by nearly $150 billion over three years.

The president acknowledging for the first time that he would lower his Pentagon spending requests to help reduce the deficit, said he and the senators had agreed on "a fair and balanced package, one that can be fully implemented."

Calling for Democratic support and prompt action by Congress, Reagan said the proposal "merits the support of all those who are responsibly concerned about deficits."

Asked whether the Democrats would go along, Reagan replied, "Why shouldn't they? They have been complaining they want deficits reduced. After 50 years of raising the deficits, here is a chance to get the other way."

House Democratic leaders said the GOP proposal was "not fair", but they added more was necessary to make a dent in the enormous deficits.

"I think it represents some progress, but not enough," said House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas. He added that Democrats are seeking to build a $200 billion package.

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said the Democrats on his panel are working on such a plan that would, in effect, cap spending for domestic and military programs and impose a "pay-as-you-go" provision that would call for increased taxes or further spending cuts to finance outlays above the cap.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., the top Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee, also said he preferred a $200 billion package.

He added that the plan announced by the president "doesn't sound as much like a deficit-reduction package to me as a truce among Republicans that we're being asked to ratify."

The president, joined by Senate GOP leaders in the White House, Rose Garden on a sunny afternoon, said the agreement included these elements:

— A reduction of $43 billion over three years in the non-defense portion of the budget, to be achieved through delays in cost-of-living increases in certain government programs, a federal pay-capping program, "entitlement" programs of benefit payments, government efficiencies and a freeze on farm program target prices.

— Closing tax loopholes to raise $48 billion in revenues over three years, with no increase in tax rates.

— Cuts in his request for a 13 percent increase in the Pentagon budget.

— "We have agreed to further reductions in defense spending which will slow our defense buildup somewhat, but which will not seriously reduce our national security a point of unacceptable risk," the president said.

He said the shifts would save $40 billion over three years.

Harshest winter in 40 years

After 2 months, Sublett digs out

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

SUBLETT — "Today's the big day" said Kate Schorzman. Then, catching herself, she added, "hopefully ... if they don't get stuck."

The Schorzman's were planning on getting plowed out Thursday.

For the past two months, things have not been routine for them and their neighbors in the small community of Sublett, located about 10 miles east of Malta in eastern Casals County.

The area has looked more like the Arctic than the wheat lands of southern Idaho since December. The wind has blown drifts as high as 12 feet. The fields still are blanketed with almost two feet of snow.

The main vehicles in or out have been snowmobiles. They've carried in groceries and medicine for the residents.

Until this week, the snow on Sublett Road, the main route in, had defeated highway district blowers and plows. Once, two tried to converge from either end of the road, Schorzman says. Both got stuck.

For a while, the community fought the snow by carving a road through federally-owned land. Some pickups were able to negotiate that path while the ground was hard. Then, the frost started to melt, and the bottom dropped out.

Some school buses also attempted to pick up children in some of the more accessible areas. "They've had to pull the buses out a couple of times," Schorzman says.

"The kids were out for 21 days of school-time, and they're just barely getting back this week," she says. Sublett has been blasted by winter storms since Christmas. If it has not been snowing, it has been blowing, resident say.

"I've lived here for 40 years, and this is the worst time I've ever had," Theda Zollinger said Thursday. Fortunately, there have been no life-threatening emergencies while Sublett was closed off. And everybody has pushed the snow away together.

After the weather broke last week, Kate's husband, John, and others in the community pooled their equipment and borrowed other machinery to launch an attack on the snow.

On Monday, the brigade managed to open Sublett Road. It still is not exactly ready for cruising.

Truck fails to beat train

BAINVILLE, Mont. (AP) — An Amtrak's westbound Empire Builder passenger train was struck by a loaded gravel truck that "tried to beat" it past a crossing Thursday, and authorities said the truck driver was killed and scores of passengers injured, to critically.

"There were people moaning and screaming. It was quite a mess," said John Tormanen, a passenger from Dassel, Minn., who escaped injury in the accident in northeastern Montana.

Tormanen said he was "one of the few lucky ones on our coach, one of the few people that walked out."

"They were pulling people out of the train for a long time, mostly people with back injuries and one with a punctured lung. I don't even have a scratch," he said.

Maurice Lewis, an Amtrak attendant from Chicago, said he was in the fourth passenger car when "all of a sudden I heard the brakes screeching and we started sliding. We could see the truck. It tried to beat the train and didn't make it."

Forty-two passengers were injured, said John Jacobsen, Amtrak director of public information in Washington. However, Jacobsen said he did not have specific information on the types of injuries or their severity. Injured passengers were taken to four area hospitals, he said.

Earlier, Dennis Kleppe, battalion chief for the Williston, N.D., fire department, said 60 to 70 people suffered injuries, and most were taken to hospitals in the area.

He said 10 of the injuries were considered critical.

John McLeod, another Amtrak spokesman in Washington, said the gravel truck struck the baggage car of the train, the first car behind the double engine.

The truck's cab was destroyed and the baggage car had a gash in the side.

At least 24 people were taken to hospitals in Wolf Point and Williston, N.D., McLeod said.

All uninjured passengers were taken by school buses to a Williston motel, McLeod said. The eastbound Empire Builder, No. 3, was to turn around at Wolf Point, where it was due at 3:50 p.m. MST, and pick up passengers from the derailed westbound train. Eastbound passengers would be bused to Chicago, he added.

Another Amtrak spokesman in Washington, Randy Gilbert, said the two locomotives and nine cars derailed about 10:50 a.m. west of Bainville. Four cars came to rest on their sides and four other cars were upright and perpendicular to the tracks.

Hussein: U.S. upsets peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — A statement by Jordan's King Hussein that an Arab-Israeli peace is "hopeless" as long as the United States sides with Israel is "a disappointing setback" for President Reagan's Middle East peace initiative, administration spokesmen said Thursday.

Publicly, officials said they would not give up on the plan, whose success depends on getting Jordan to enter peace talks with Israel. But privately, they said chances of making progress this year had been eliminated and some changes would be needed if the plan is to be revived.

They also said Hussein's statements would make it more difficult, if not impossible, to get Congress to go along with plans to sell Stinger anti-aircraft missiles to Jordan and to spend $200 million to create a Jordanian strike force for the Persian Gulf.

The king said in a New York Times interview published Thursday that Americans "have made your choice, and your choice is Israel and support of Israel. That being the case, there is no hope of achieving anything."

He said the Reagan initiative, first proposed on Sept. 1, 1982, "is hopeless."

John Hughes, the State Department spokesman, said the Hussein interview was "a disappointing setback, of course it is." He said the administration "regrets the timing" of the statements, although it will continue to push planned weapons sales to Jordan.

The king's remarks constituted the second blow to the administration's Middle East diplomacy in the past month. A defeat for American policy in Lebanon led to the withdrawal of Marine peacekeeping forces and the scrapping of the U.S.-brokered 1983 Lebanese-Israeli troop withdrawal agreement.

The interview was a particularly sharp slap at Washington because it came less than 24 hours after Reagan went before a Jewish audience here to ask the Jewish community not to try to block plans to sell U.S. arms to Jordan.

Reagan referred to Hussein as a "friend" crucial to the peace process. Hussein was in Washington only last month for meetings with Reagan.

Stivers lashes Evans' veto

BOISE (AP) — Gov. John Evans committed a "gross injustice" to some 5,000 water right holders through a veto this week, House Speaker Tom Stivers says.

"That probably was not his most brilliant move of the session," Stivers told a news conference here Thursday.

Evans on Monday killed a bill designed to remove some 5,000 water right holders from an Idaho Power Co. lawsuit. The lawsuit was filed to clarify the utility's Snake River water rights.

But Evans said he wants legislation subordinating Idaho Power's hydroelectric water rights to upstream farm use. He promised earlier that he would veto related legislation unless the Legislature passes a subordination bill.

That bill passed the House earlier in the session, but was tabled by the Senate without a debate.

Political leader killed in Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Unidentified gunmen on Thursday killed a conservative political leader and seriously wounded his 6-year-old daughter. It was the second slaying of a conservative politician in 24 hours. The attacks were part of the election violence that has mounted with the approach of the March 25 presidential election. And a San Salvador newspaper claimed that leftists planned to kill more politicians before the voting. Gunmen leaped from a pickup truck Thursday morning and shot to death Tilo Adalberto Rosa, 35, as he was driving his daughter to school, relatives said. The gunmen intercepted Rosa, a retired army colonel and campaign coordinator for the ultra-conservative Salvadoran Authentic Institutional Party in the northern province of Cabanas, as his green Toyota auto stopped at an intersection about 50 yards from his home. No group took responsibility for his killing. But leftist rebels claimed responsibility for the slaying Wednesday night of a conservative congressman. Two youthful gunmen killed Hector Tulo Flores, 46, as he stood talking to friends across the street from the law faculty of the National University. The Clara Elizabeth Ramirez Front, in a leaflet left at a restaurant, said "the group" had "executed" Flores. It called him "a prominent member of the criminal and corrupt National Conciliation Party." "This operation is part of our response to the electoral farce that the criminal native bourgeoisie is mounting," the communique said. "Its only purpose is to legalize a government that will permit a greater amount of intervention on the part of Yankee imperialism." The rebels have said they will not disrupt the voting on March 25 for a president and vice president, but U.S. and Salvadoran officials say they don't trust them to keep their word. Eight moderate to ultra-conservative parties are fielding candidates for the election. The Ramirez Front, a splinter group of the Popular Liberation Forces, or FPL, also claimed responsibility for the slaying of another conservative congressman in January. But the FPL high command disavowed responsibility for the murder, saying it had not ordered his execution.

Iraq claims battlefield win

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq claimed its forces killed 489 Iranian soldiers and wounded scores more in two fierce battles on Thursday east of Basra. A communique broadcast by Baghdad radio said Iraqi forces attacked Iranian positions east of Basra, Iraq's second largest city, in pre-dawn hours on Monday and destroyed the enemy positions and weapons. Iranian forces in another area tried to advance, the communique said, but were forced to retreat, leaving behind more dead or wounded soldiers.

Senators: Arms aid, food are separate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans moved to uncouple military aid for Central America and food relief for drought-stricken Africa Thursday as House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. charged President Reagan was cruel and "callous at heart" for trying to link the two.

"He's unfit to be president of the United States," said O'Neill, D-Mass., when asked about an administration-backed move to tack aid for El Salvador and for anti-leftist guerrillas in Nicaragua onto a bill providing emergency Africa relief.

The administration maneuver was approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee on Wednesday, but Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., said he would attempt to free the Africa relief money from the controversial Central American issue by offering it as a rider to a fuel assistance bill.

Danforth, R-Mo., who offered the amendment, said it would provide a "first installment" on aid that he said is urgently needed to save drought-afflicted Africans from starvation.

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., said the money would provide relief from "perhaps the worst drought in the entire century on the African continent."

The measure approved by the Appropriations Committee contains $93 million in emergency security assistance for El Salvador and $21 million for anti-leftist guerrillas in Nicaragua as well as $150 million in food aid for Africa. Late Thursday, the Senate tacked $80 million of the Africa food aid on to the fuel assistance bill and approved the measure, which now goes to a conference committee.

Senate GOP Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee said Danforth's amendment was temporarily stalled by a Democratic objection, but he was attempting to settle the matter so Congress could pass the bill quickly, providing fuel for needy Americans and food for starving Africans.

After the Senate committee's action on Wednesday, O'Neill condemned the administration maneuver as "a lousy, mean thing to do."

He stepped up his criticism of Reagan Thursday, saying, "It's as cruel to them (the Africans) as he's been to the poor of America." He said he found it incredible that a "man can be as callous at heart when he knows people are dying over there."

Part of defense issue ends in rape trial

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — The defense for one of six men charged with gang rape rested Thursday after a medical expert testified that a young woman was "clinically poisoned with alcohol" the night she said she was raped on a barroom pool table.

Jurors were told they would begin deliberations Saturday in one of two parallel trials in the case.

Attorneys for defendant Daniel Silva rested. David Waxler, attorney for Joseph Vieira, Silva's co-defendant, said he would rest after calling one more witness on Friday in the afternoon trial.

Charles Winek, chief toxicologist for the Allegheny County, Pa., coroner's office, said a blood test taken from the woman hours after she said she was attacked indicated she had a .198 blood alcohol reading.

Asked to explain the reading, Winek said the woman "would be clinically poisoned, poisoned with alcohol" during and after the time she said she was attacked.

Based on the woman's weight, Winek said the reading indicated she had been drinking heavily.

"It would take eight drinks all at once," he said. "If you're spreading it over more time it has to be more than eight drinks. It could be 10 to 11."

Winek, a professor of toxicology at Duquesne University and the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine, said that amount of alcohol could affect a person's normal inhibitions and memory.

Bul-Lee Dal Cortiva, head toxicologist for the New York City medical examiner's office, said he thought the blood test indicated the woman had had six drinks.

Bishop's jury freed for weekend

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The judge in the mass-murder trial of Arthur Bishop on Thursday dismissed the jury for the weekend, saying they were closing their lengthy instructions and hearing closing arguments Monday.

Third District Judge Jay Banks told the panel's seven women and five men that the process of drawing up jury instructions on the 11 felony counts facing Bishop would take a lot of time.

The judge said the process would take longer still due to the need to consider several specific instructions sought by attorneys for the defense and prosecution.

Banks said those conditions would make it impossible to get the case to the jury Friday, as originally expected.

Testimony in the three-week trial ended Thursday afternoon. Earlier Thursday, one of the prosecution's rebuttal witnesses, Dr. Lincoln Clark, challenged a defense psychiatrist's conclusion that Bishop was driven by a subconscious "murderous impulse" to kill the youths.

Bishop, 32, has pleaded innocent to the abductions and slayings of five Utah boys, ages 4 to 13, between 1979 and 1983.

Clark, a University of Utah psychiatrist, said defense witness Dr. Robert Greer used outmoded psychoanalytic methods and that his conclusions about Bishop's mental state were "meaningless," and "nonsense."

Based on his own study of the Bishop's taped July 24, 1983, confession to police, Clark concluded Bishop killed the boys "to avoid detection for what is a criminal act for which he may face imprisonment and punishment."

Hearings set for Meese

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fractious Senate Judiciary Committee, whose chairman promised that there will be no cover-up, agreed Thursday to open new hearings next week on Edwin Meese III's nomination to be attorney general.

The committee's plans to vote on the Meese nomination were sidetracked after President Reagan's top policy adviser said he had "inadvertently failed" to tell the committee about a $15,000 interest-free loan from a former White House aide.

Democrats also had further questions to ask Meese about Carter campaign documents that were found in his files and about government appointments for men who had helped Meese get out of financial difficulties.

"There will be no cover-up," pledged the committee chairman, Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. "We want the truth, and the full truth, but we also want no undue delay" in getting a vote on whether to confirm Meese.

During a CBS interview, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said of Meese: "I think that it's a very serious question at this moment as to whether he will be confirmed."

Tax choices for lawmakers

BOISE (AP) — It appears Idaho's lawmakers may be faced by a choice between a half-cent sales tax increase, or wiping out tax advantages for corporations, to balance next year's budgets.

And House Speaker Tom Silvers says he probably favors the corporate tax, "as the lesser of two evils." But Senate President Pro Tem James Risch said he isn't "red hot" about either, but one of the tax increases probably will be necessary to meet education funding requirements.

Risch told a news conference Thursday the state budget won't be settled until the House comes up with legislation to increase state income.

And Silvers said it may boil down to three bills under consideration by the Revenue and Taxation Committee.

One wipes out job credits and other tax advantages enacted two years ago to boost the economy. That would generate about $15 million to $18 million.

A second proposal increases the state income tax by one-half cent, generating about $30 million per year.

And a third boosts state income taxes by $1 million. But Silvers said he didn't think that bill would get out of the committee. It was only approved for introduction by a 9-3 vote, with one member missing.

Silvers said when people call him urging more money for education, he always asks, "Do you want higher taxes to pay for it?" and gets "silence."

"Everybody wants to do something about education but nobody wants to pay for it," he said.

Silvers said the Legislature's budget committee has been setting budgets at $497-million from the general fund. But that does not include a pay raise for state employees, or money to increase public school salaries.

A 7 percent salary increase resolution was approved by the Senate State Affairs Committee Wednesday. It will cost $11.6 million from general taxes.

Budget drafters pinch Gem prison

BOISE (AP) — Despite official admissions that the main penitentiary is overcrowded, legislative budget writers Thursday refused to earmark money Corrections Director Al Murphy said is needed to begin improving prison conditions.

On repeated 11-9 votes, the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee endorsed proposed 1985 budgets for the main prison and two other facilities that fall short of permitting even current operational levels from being maintained.

"Moneywise, we're going to make," Murphy said after the action. "We have to make it."

"What concerns me is what's going to happen in federal court next week" when the trial resumes on an inmate class-action suit alleging that the state has been doing nothing to relieve prison overcrowding and mounting violence, Murphy said.

Rejected by the committee were Democratic attempts to provide money to rebuild a burned-out dormitory at the correctional institution at Cottonwood and to refurbish the Orofino facility to provide housing for geriatric inmates.

Still awaiting committee action are funding requests for a new work release center, which could also ease population problems at the main prison, and to make repairs needed to correct life-safety code violations at the institutions.

Both Cottonwood and Orofino proposals would have permitted 100 or more inmates at the main prison to be transferred, easing the severe overcrowding at the main prison, which is at the heart of an inmate suit being tried this month before U.S. District Court Judge Harold Ryan.

That trial, in which inmates Dean Schwartzmiller and Walter "Bud" Baila are acting as attorneys for the inmates, resumes Monday.

Redistricting bill faltering

BOISE (AP) — Legislative redistricting is starting to look like an exercise in futility for the Idaho Legislature.

The Senate voted Thursday to make substantial changes in a redistricting bill adopted by the House. And that led some House members to conclude that bill, like all its predecessors this session, likely was dead.

Rep. Martin Trillhase, R-Idaho Falls, said he's starting to think reapportionment is some form of special punishment for legislators.

"We're doomed to go through it over and over and over," he said.

Thursday's action was the latest round in the Legislature's battle to come up with a new redistricting plan. Trillhase said it's something that has occupied the Legislature since all of his four years in office, with no end in sight.

Senate Democrats decided Thursday not to vote for quick consideration of the latest plan, but said it won't come up for a vote until next week.

But there seemed little likelihood the House would accept the amendments voted by Senate Republicans.

- They include the Senate plan.
- Putting the Senate into the plan.
- The House version covered only House members.
- Changing a Northern Idaho floating district, so it covers only five counties instead of 10.
- Adding House Bill 830 to the bill.

That's a 1982 redistricting plan which already has been ruled unconstitutional by the Idaho Supreme Court.

Delegation sets wilderness plan

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

BOISE — Even before Idaho Sen. James McClure has had the opportunity to announce his long-awaited Idaho Wilderness bill, it is drawing criticism from both sides — including members of his own party.

McClure and other members of the Idaho Congressional delegation will release Friday their recommendations on how existing U.S. Forest Service roadless lands in Idaho should be administered.

But before the delegation announces its proposal, a group of Republican state legislators are already saying it's too much. Reps. Vard Chaburn, R-Albion, John Wood, R-Salmon, and a handful of state legislators have introduced a memorial in the Idaho House opposing any new wilderness lands in the state.

In the memorial, introduced Thursday, the lawmakers ask Congress that no new lands in Idaho be granted the designation.

"Most of the wilderness being proposed is in our area," says Wood, whose district includes the White Clouds Peaks area near Stanley — one of several areas being considered for wilderness status.

"I'd like to see some multiple use in there," she says of the White Clouds. "The people are asking for no more wilderness. I don't know that there really is a good reason that we can't use our own resources for the economy of our state," she said.

Environmentalists contend wilderness is a multiple-use of forest lands. Wilderness status does, however, preclude most forms of economic development on those lands.

When contacted Thursday afternoon, Wood said she wasn't aware of McClure's impending announcement. "This is flying in the face of our representatives. We don't want to do that," she said. She said she may decide to drop the memorial, but will contact each of the state's four Congressional representatives this morning.

"There's enough land that's been given wilderness designation," says Chaburn, chairman of the House Resources and Conservation committee. "Whatever he recommends, we don't need. It's hard to cut timber off of it," he said.

Democrats plan rally

TWIN FALLS — Gov. John Evans of Idaho and Gov. Richard Bryan of Nevada will be in Twin Falls on Saturday to kick off the Democrats' campaign in the Magic Valley for state and national political offices.

In addition, Richard Stallings and Peter Busch will attend the event, which will be the first of several fund-raising dinners the Democrats will hold around the state.

Stallings, from Rexburg, is seeking the U.S. House seat now held by Rep. George Hansen, and Busch, from Lewiston, will oppose Sen. James McClure in the fall general election.

All four men plan to speak at a press conference at 6 p.m. and later at a 7:30 dinner at the Canyon Springs Inn in Twin Falls, following a hospitality hour.

Other state Democratic officials who have been invited also may speak, says Bill Smazal of Twin Falls, one of the organizers of the event.

The money raised from the $25-a-plate dinner — $15 for students and senior citizens — will go into the campaign coffers of local candidates, Smazal says.

Tickets for the dinner can be purchased at the Canyon Springs Inn before the dinner, or from Lloyd and Eva Shevman in Kimberly. Their phone number is 425-5765.

Events focus on C. America

TWIN FALLS — Pete Busch of Lewiston, the Democratic gubernatorial opponent, says James McClure, R-Idaho, in the fall election, will discuss the problems in Central America this evening in Twin Falls.

His speech will be part of a "Central America Awareness Week" seminar, which will begin at 7 p.m. at the Odd Fellow Hall in Twin Falls. In addition, a film called "Report from Nicaragua" will be shown.

The event is being sponsored by two area peace-activist groups, the Magic Valley Snake River Alliance and the local chapter of Fellowship of Reconciliation.

The groups also will be passing out literature on Central America at the downtown mall on Saturday.

Next Friday, a movie called "Awareness in Transition" will be shown at 7 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho cafeteria, in the Taylor Administration Building. A panel discussion will follow the evening, which will also include music, dancing and samples of Central American food.

Organizers say the crisis in Central America is growing worse, and persons need to be informed so they can write their congressional representatives.

For more information about the events, call Joan Huston at 733-3796, or Barbara Bellus-Upp at 326-4669.

Rupert area has flooding

RUPERT — Minor flooding in Minidoka County forced one family to evacuate Thursday.

The Darrell Nobles, who live northeast of Rupert, moved out of their mobile home about midnight Wednesday, according to Minidoka County Sheriff Ray Jarvis. The family moved in with relatives, he said.

Jarvis said the flooding mostly has occurred north of Rupert, clear to the county line.

Jail overcrowding reaches 'crisis'

By DAVID MOFFAT Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Serious overcrowding of the Twin Falls County Jail will continue for the immediate future, meaning more prisoners soon may have to be transported to other area jails.

Sheriff Jim Munn made that comment at a Thursday news conference at which he and the Twin Falls County commissioners called the recent surge in prisoners a "crisis situation."

Seven prisoners were transferred Wednesday to the Gooding County jail, where the county will have to pay $10 per day, per prisoner for their care.

"Our neck is stuck out a mile," Munn said. "Most people think whatever a prisoner gets is too good for him," he said.

But they don't realize, Munn said, that state and federal courts have ruled prisoners must not be deprived of any of their constitutional rights except their freedom.

A successful lawsuit by prisoners could cost the county the price of several new detention centers, Munn said.

There are no easy, temporary solutions, nor is it possible to significantly speed up the ongoing planning for a new county jail, the commissioners said.

The earliest that a bond issue for the new facility could be put before the voters is November, and the earliest the jail could be completed is 1986, he said Thursday.

budget to handle the expense of boarding prisoners at other facilities, Munn said. Halfway through the fiscal year, the sheriff said he has spent only about a third of the jail budget.

But the current surplus could be eliminated quickly if the present situation continues, Munn said.

The sheriff said the crisis began Monday when there were 64 prisoners in custody. Of these, 55 were being held in dormitory cells on the fourth floor of the Courthouse. That area is designed to hold only 23 prisoners under current jail standards, Munn said.

There was "no alternative" on Monday but to work with area judges to get some prisoners released early, Munn said.

mained — with 20 more criminals awaiting sentencing Thursday in magistrate court. Munn elected to transport seven inmates, all adult males, to Gooding.

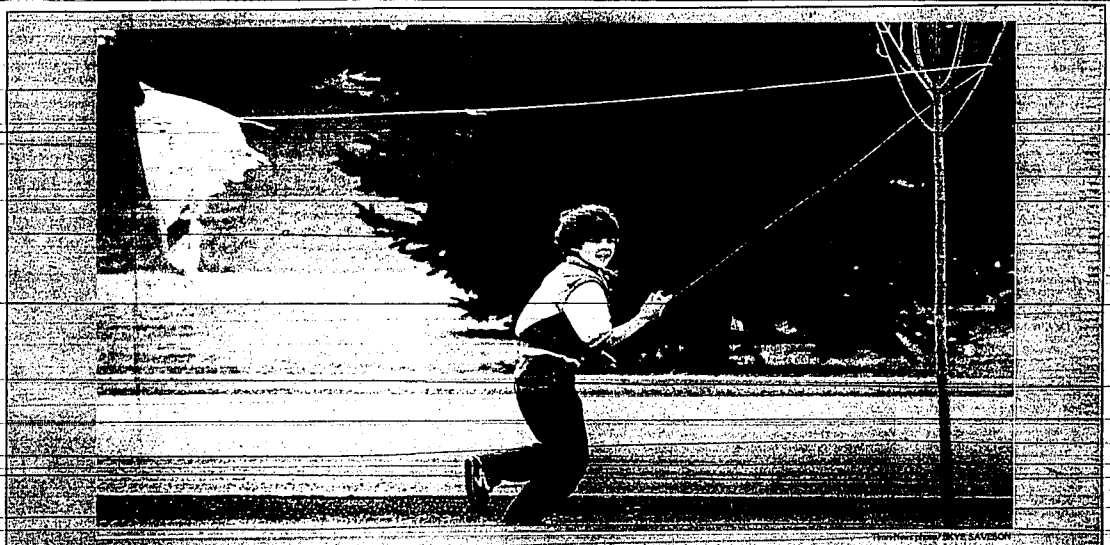

The outcome of Thursday's sentencing was that seven of the 20 received jail time. As a result, the jail will remain crowded, with more prisoners having to be transferred today or over the weekend, Munn said.

He said he believes Gooding County can handle five or six more, and that Jerome and Minidoka counties might handle a few.

Munn said running the jail has become a full-time juggling act. State and federal policies require that certain prisoners be segregated from others.

The majority of the Twin Falls County prisoners are pre-trial detainees — those who have been arrested and have been unable to post bond.

Gooding County prosecutor won't run again

By DAVE LEWIS Times-News writer

GOODING — Gooding County Prosecutor John Arkoosh will not seek a second term, citing political and financial frustrations as his reasons.

"I don't think our efforts were appreciated by certain people in the county government and the public at large," says Arkoosh, 34, who has been in the office a little more than one year.

He was elected to the two-year position in November of 1982; his term will expire next January.

A Gooding County native, Arkoosh says he will enter private practice in Gooding.

He says he believes his "even-handed" approach to law enforcement has stepped on the toes of many people in the county who want special privileges.

As a result, he says, there are many people who want him out of office, and he has decided not to fight the "good-old-boy" system that he sees serving as the county's government.

"What it comes down to is, if you do this job like it's supposed to be done and effectively, you politically kill yourself," Arkoosh said Thursday.

However, he would not blame those he believes are trying to blunt the effectiveness of his office or give specific examples of where he has been unable to do his job because of public resistance.

Some of the efforts to discourage him from seeking another term have been subtle but open, Arkoosh says.

He says that after he worked to convince the county commission to make the part-time prosecutor's job full-time, it ran an ad in the Idaho Bar Association's magazine, "inviting persons to run for the Gooding County prosecutor's job."

The commission advertised the position's pay at its part-time level of $17,500, but said the salary would change when the 1984-85 budget is set in October, Arkoosh says.

Arkoosh, it seems clear that the commissioners want another prosecutor and are willing to raise the salary as soon as he is gone.

"Basically, they were waiting to see who was getting the position" before setting the salary, Arkoosh says.

"They're just playing games with the position, and I just wasn't willing to play the game."

The Times-News could not reach any of the commissioners Thursday to comment on Arkoosh's charges.

The political frustration of the position is only compounded by the financial frustration, Arkoosh says.

Although part-time, he says the job cannot be done adequately unless it is full-time. However, in making it full-time, the commissioners would have to eliminate the part-time prosecutor's position, which would still leave the office short-handed, he said.

"It needs to be a full-time position, but it also needs a full-time deputy," Arkoosh says.

He says he has worked full-time on the job since he took office. However, he says that he has had to supplement his income with a private practice that has been at nights and on weekends, a practice that he says he cannot adequately equate time to.

"I sent the private business out the door," he says.

"In truth, we've taken on the job here as a priority thing. Financially, it's done me in; politically, it's done me in."

Arkoosh dismisses charges against Ken Ellis

By BOB FREUND Times-News writer

GOODING — Gooding County Prosecutor John Arkoosh has dropped year-old assault and battery charges against Ken Ellis, the controversial Buhl trout farmer, saying he did not have enough proof to gain a conviction.

But Ardel Hill of Hagerman, who brought the complaint against Ellis for an incident that occurred March 15, 1983, angrily is protesting Arkoosh's action.

He also has lodged a new set of charges, alleging that Ellis trespassed on his property on the same day, and that Ellis's brother-in-law, "Darryl" Busch, "tadlock," damaged his land with a backhoe.

The accusations began with a dispute over the rights to water in a pond that straddles both men's properties, located about six miles southeast of Hagerman.

Hill had alleged that Ellis grabbed him and threw him to the ground to prevent him from digging a water-supply trench from the pond.

Several witnesses saw the scuffle, but only he named in the case, Hill said.

He claims that although Arkoosh talked to Ellis and Tadlock, he never questioned at least two other witnesses named in police reports. Both were Ellis employees, he said.

Arkoosh had said earlier this week that he did not have enough evidence to sustain a conviction. He could not be reached Thursday night to respond to Hill's new complaints.

In his motion for dismissal — filed with Fifth District magistrate Judge Thomas R. Cushman, Arkoosh wrote that "the state will be unable to prove (the case beyond reasonable doubt."

Cushman ordered the misdemeanor charges dismissed Tuesday.

When asked Wednesday about his reasons for dismissing the charges, Arkoosh said he would have no comment other than the reasons listed on the motion.

Arkoosh was attempting to seek a "solution" between Ellis and Arkoosh that would result in dismissal of the criminal action. However, in February, he had pushed forward with the case by having it put on the trial calendar.

The trial was to take place Wednesday.

In his latest charges, Hill says that Ellis and Tadlock trespassed on his land. Tadlock also used a backhoe to destroy some of the trench work, Hill says.

Hill said Thursday that he wants to find out exactly why Arkoosh did not seek out the other witnesses.

Peavey upsets constituents

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY Times-News Capital Bureau

BOISE — Since 1977, Sen. John Peavey has been immersed in Snake River water allocation — and according to some Minidoka County residents, his recent stands on that issue have placed him in hot water.

At issue is whether the Idaho Power Co.'s water right at its Swan Falls hydroelectric site should be subordinated for the purpose of new irrigation projects.

It's Peavey's opposition to subordination that has drawn the ire of Minidoka County irrigators.

"If he left there thinking he was in fine political condition, he's mistaken," Suchan says. "In this area, he's in trouble. He's the originator of the whole controversy."

Suchan says he is also irate at Peavey's references to area farmers who have testified in favor of subordination.

"He (Peavey) said, 'I can't believe those sons of bitches are lobbying for something that's going to cost them millions of dollars,'" Suchan said. "I'm despised the senator doesn't think more of his constituents than he does."

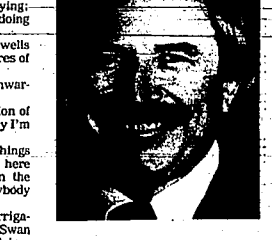

Peavey acknowledges that he made the comment, but he says it was not made disparagingly.

"Bluntly, people here take it that he's saying: 'You're a bunch of dumb farmers, and I'm doing what's best for you,'" McDaniel says.

The irrigation district operates 178 deep wells that provide irrigation water for 63,000 acres of farmland in Minidoka County.

Peavey contends the criticism is unwarranted.

"I think if those people were in a position of having all the facts, they would vote the way I'm voting," the Carey Democrat says.

Dayton overpowers Tigers in Salt Lake

By VERN ANDERSON
The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Roosevelt Chapman potted in 29 points and led a second-half surge as Dayton whipped Louisiana State 76-66 in the first round of the NCAA West Regional basketball tournament Thursday night.

The victory propelled the Flyers into the second round here Saturday afternoon against seventh-ranked Oklahoma. No. 13 Nevada-Las Vegas, a 68-56 winner over Princeton earlier Thursday night, meets ninth-ranked Texas-Et Paso in the second game Saturday.

Chapman, the only senior on the 45-11 "squad" and "the school's all-time leader," scored 10 successive points for the Flyers to break open a game that ended at halftime knotted at 31.

With the score 41-40 for Dayton with 1:41 minutes left, Chapman hit a two jumper, a three-point play, two fouls and another three-point play to put the Flyers up 51-43 with 10:38 remaining.

This is the first time in a decade that Dayton has been in the NCAA tournament.

Dayton, an independent and ranked 11th in the nation, built its largest lead of the game at 14 points with 2:11 remaining and played keep-away until the end.

LSU of the Southeast Conference suffered its fourth loss in a row and finished its season with an 18-21 mark. The Tigers, who made 16 to the NCAA "Final Four" in 1981, appeared unable to solve Dayton's plan to switch periodically from a man-to-man to a zone defense.

Forward Jerry Reynolds scored nine of his team-high 15 points in the first half as LSU kept the game close by virtually shutting down Chapman for nearly 10 minutes before intermission.

Chapman, who had scored 13 of Dayton's first 17 points, was snatched by LSU defenders until his explosion in the second half.

UNLV, Princeton and Reserves Ed Catchings and Eric Booker scored 18 points each as 10th-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas overpowered Princeton.

Booker, who finished scored 12 points, now in the second half as UNLV, now 23-5 and the fifth seed in this regional, outscored the 12th-seeded Tigers 14-4 in late a 4-31 lead with 1:59 left in the game.

Princeton, which had executed its precision passing game almost flawlessly in the first half, was snatched by LSU players in the nine-point remainder of the way.

Richmond ends frantic Auburn drive in 72-71 upset

By The Associated Press

John Newman scored 26 points as Richmond held off a frantic second-half Auburn rally for a 72-71 upset victory over the Tigers in the first round of the NCAA East Regional basketball tournament Thursday in Charlotte, N.C.

Indiana is the next test for the Spiders, who raised their record to 22-9.

Richmond stunned the Tigers by hitting seven of its first-line field goals en route to a 22-5 lead. With a 64.3 percent effort from the field, the Spiders claimed a 39-22 halftime lead.

The halftime edge grew to 48-28 on Newman's two free throws with 14:40 remaining. Then Auburn started its comeback.

While the Spiders chose a deliberate pace, Charles Barkley led the Tigers on a rally that narrowed the gap to 68-65 on his two free throws with 57 seconds remaining. Greg Beckwith's two free throws one second later gave Richmond a 70-65 edge.

Reserve Lee Goss missed the front end of a 1-and-1 and Paul Daniels retaliated for Auburn on a jumper with 37 seconds left. Kelvin Johnson came back with two free throws with 29 seconds left to finish the Spiders scoring.

Daniels hit a jumper with 23 seconds left and Barkley added a follow shot with five seconds remaining, but the Tigers couldn't foul in the time remaining.

Bill Flye scored 19 points before fouling out for the Spiders, while Johnson added 16.

Barkley had 23, including 17 in the last 10 minutes. Greg Turner scored 12, Vern Strickland had 11 and Chuck Person had 10 as the Tigers closed their season at 20-11. It was their first postseason appearance ever.

W. Virginia 64, Oregon St. 62.

In Birmingham, Ala., reserve J.J. Crawl swiped a pass near midcourt and hit a driving layup with three seconds remaining as West Virginia upset, 12th-ranked Oregon State, in the first round of the NCAA Midwest Regional tournament.

The victory advanced the Mountaineers to Saturday's second round for a battle with 11th-ranked Iowa State.

Durrant's 23 points lift BYU to an 84-68 victory

By ED SHEARER
The Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Devin Durrant scored 23 points as Brigham Young overpowered Alabama-Birmingham 84-68 in the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball tournament Thursday night.

The triumph earned the Cougars a rematch with third-ranked Kentucky in Saturday's second round action.

Kentucky, in its own holiday tournament, bombed BYU 93-59 in December.

The Cougars, 20-10, never trailed after Jim Usevitch hit a 7-6 lead with 16:42 left in the first half.

BYU, the Western Athletic Conference runner-up, surged to a 29-14 lead before UAB fought back, but the Blazers were never able to close the margin to less than four points.

McKinley Singleton had a game-high 34 points for UAB, including 12 in a row at one point and 14 during a 27-16 run over an 11-minute span when the Blazers cut the 29-14 lead to 45-41 with 16:20 left in the game.

UAB, 23-11, ran out of gas after the comeback and BYU gradually began pulling away again.

The Cougars held their biggest lead at 79-63 with just under two minutes remaining.

Durrant, the nation's third leading scorer with an average of 28 per game, provided the scoring punch for BYU's overpowering inside game that also got 17 points from Usevitch and 13 from Brett Applegate, with the latter also dominating the boards.

It was only the 18th home floor setback in 101 games for UAB, which qualified after finishing fifth in the Sun Belt Conference by winning the conference tournament in this arena.

Singleton, who scored most of his points on long-range bombs from the 18-22 foot range, was the only UAB player to score in double figures.

Florida State stops champs

By The Associated Press

Randy Allen's layup with 41 seconds left in overtime lifted Florida State to a 74-71 basketball victory over North Carolina State Thursday night in the opening round of the National Invitation Tournament.

Allen, who scored 16 points, took a pass from Dean Shaffer on the baseline and scored on a reverse layup to give the Seminoles a 72-71 lead.

The bucket came just moments after N.C. State's Terry Gannon missed the front end of a 1-and-1 with 1:08 left.

After Allen's bucket, Gannon missed a long jumper, but State got the rebound with 20 seconds left. Ernie Myers missed a short jumper on the baseline and in the ensuing scramble for the ball, Florida State's Maurice Myrick came away with it and scored on a dunk at the buzzer.

Shaffer missed a driving layup with three seconds left in regulation to send the game into overtime.

Florida State, 20-10, advances to the second round of the NIT. The Seminoles' opponent will be named today.

N.C. State, last year's NCAA champions, finishes 19-14.

Virginia Tech 77, Georgia Tech 74 in Blacksburg, Va., Perry Hoke scored 19-9 second half in that game.

Virginia Tech in front and the Hokies downed Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets in the first round.

Tarpley scored 13 consecutive Michigan points during one stretch of the first half to help Michigan break the game open and keep Wichita State winless in NIT play. The Shockers now are 0-4 in six NIT games.

The NIT committee announced Michigan will host a second-round game on Monday night.

Marquette 73, Creighton 53 in Ames, Iowa, freshman Tom Copu put in a career high 25 points to power Marquette to a victory over Iowa State in an opening round game.

The 6-foot-10 Copu took charge with three baskets in 2 1/2 minutes to break open a 40-37 Marquette lead and put the Warriors ahead 48-37. They coasted the rest of the way.

Marquette, making its 18th consecutive postseason tournament appearance, never trailed and led by as many as 11 points, 26-14, midway through the first period.

Nebraska 68, Creighton 54 in Omaha, Neb., Dave Hoppen's free throw with 10 seconds remaining after a technical foul was called on Creighton center Benoit Benjamin makes a 54-54 tie. Nebraska defeated the Blue Jays in the first round.

Benjamin — was called for the technical when he slammed the ball to the floor after Hoppen had scored a layup.

The basket came after Hoppen and Benjamin, who engaged in a high-scoring duel throughout the night, battled for a possession of the ball as Hoppen tried to take a shot.

The victory propelled Nebraska, which reached the semifinals of last year's NIT, into a second-round game Monday. The Cornhuskers, 18-11, will play at Xavier, which defeated Ohio State 69-57 in overtime Thursday night.

Xavier 60, Ohio St. 57 in Cincinnati, Jell Jenkins scored 30 points, including 14-for-14 from the free-throw line, to give Xavier University a overtime victory over Ohio State in a first-round game.

Xavier, 21-11, and Ohio State, 15-14, were tied 53-53 at the end of regulation.

Victor Fleming, who had 17 points, hit a free throw to put Xavier ahead for good 58-57 in the overtime. Ohio State freshman center Clarence McGee was fouled about midway the first 1-and-1. Xavier took the rebound and Fleming, fouled again, made two more foul shots to end the game.

In late game, it was Santa Clara at Oregon.

Bruin girls' track dynasty in jeopardy

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — That clang you heard just may have been the end of the Twin Falls girls' track dynasty.

Gone are Sally Butts and Maele Miller plus a host of others who over the years have allowed the Bruin girls to win nine of the last 13 state track championships and finish second in the other four. Butts and Miller took 50 state points with them at graduation time and the farm system simply hasn't replaced them.

On the other hand, the Twin Falls boys' program that has had a succession of downs since a dynasty run through much of the 1970s, may be a little stronger this year.

The Bruins taste their first action today by hosting Jerome, Minico and Pocatello in a quadrangular meet at Bruin Stadium. The meet, originally scheduled for Jerome, will begin with field events at 2:30 p.m., the girls two-mile at 2:45 and the running finals at 3:30 p.m.

Twin Falls track coordinator Jerry Kleinkopf says he has no intention of putting down the prospects of the girls.

"We're not destitute but we don't have those three-potential-state first place girls like Sally in the program this year," he said.

But the coach remains concerned that Twin Falls girls are losing their competitiveness.

"I was very happy after our initial track meeting a couple of weeks ago. We had a very large turnout of girls. But after the first practice they disappeared fast. They said they weren't used to working that hard and quit and we only ran four 100s," the coach said. "Several of the younger boys quit, too."

One switch being made is taking junior MaLin Miller out of the hurdles and making her a sprinter this spring. Miller, who offers point prospects in the long jump with several leaps over 17 feet last year, will be backed by first-time trackster Big Salter. Salter will not be available for the first two meets due to state gymnastics competition. Other sprint veterans are Kalyzn Marsh and Tracy Pfarr who probably will be the nucleus of the relays.

The shorter distances will be run by sophomore Lisa Williams and Kim Hannah while veterans Tescie Szubert and Rochelle Thompson will handle the longer events.

"We have some youngsters in that group who could come on later," Kleinkopf said.

One-team-strength-should-be-senior-Denise Rhoades. "We have a lot of confidence in Denise in the shotput. She should be one of the better ones in the state. She also should score pretty well in the discus but the shot is her best event."

Adding a smile to Kleinkopf's face is Amber Welty, a transfer from New Mexico, who probably will pick up the hurdling chores. The junior

Jerome the team to beat in boy's local A-2 track contest

By The Times-News

Jerome will once again be the team to beat this year in boy's high school track and field among Magic Valley Class A-2 schools, while Wood River and Burley are the pre-season favorites in the girls' competition.

The return of senior Gary Hulsey gives Jerome a big plus in its quest to remain among the state's best track units. Hulsey is the defending state shot put champion and was second in the state meet. He also holds both Jerome high school records and could well improve on them before matriculating to Utah State to begin a college football career.

Fete vaultier Kevin Reed should keep Jerome strong in the field events vaulting at 13 feet, while junior Orin Egbert in the triple jump, high jumper Rob Larsen and sophomore long jumper Dan Englehaupt round out the field list.

Jerome traditionally is a strong distance team and Dunne can call upon Lance Gines, Brian Bolch and Torrey Sheets to continue that production this spring. Dunne said they will be switched among the three events practically every meet this spring.

Andy Gunning and Jeff Klingner head up the sprint corps, but Dunne said "our relays don't appear to be as strong as in the past. But we have some prospects here with good depth and some potential in our junior and sophomore sprinters."

Larsen returns in both hurdles while sophomores Rob Bartholomew and Eric Hopley have pleased Dunne with their work.

Dunne said pleasant surprises could emerge throughout the spring as he still is working with 95 boys, freshmen through seniors.

Sprint queen Joni James highlights the returners on the girls' team, but Coach Skip Andrew will have to draw heavily on freshmen and sophomores in the relays.

WOOD RIVER

It's difficult to talk about Wood River High track concentrating on Lisa Bernhagen, and the promise is bright for the world-class high jumper's senior year.

But Bernhagen, who is the defending state champion in the 200 and 400 meters in addition to the high jump, won't be alone.

Maureen Ginals is also back to defend her title in the one- and two-mile runs for the Wolverines. Dana Pidgeon is still recovering from a foot injury, according to Coach John Hopkins, but will be competing in the 400 and 800, while Kathy Lickfiter will compete in the sprints and Diana Kurlidge will lead the team in the hurdles.

15th-ranked Huskies face fast Nevada-Reno in first round

By JIM COUR
The Associated Press

PULLMAN, Wash. — The 15th-ranked Washington Huskies, co-champions of the Pacific-10 Conference this season, face short but quick Nevada-Reno Friday night in the first round of the NCAA West regional college basketball tournament.

In the second game of a doubleheader, Southern Methodist meets Miami of Ohio at Washington State's Friel Court. Washington is 22-6, Nevada-Reno is 17-11, Miami of Ohio is 24-5, and SMU is 24-7.

"I know they've got big people inside," said Sonny Allen, coach of Nevada-Reno. "But everybody we play has bigger inside people than us, so that's nothing new."

"I think we can play with them. . . . Once you get this far, everybody's tough, but I don't have any negative thoughts about playing them. Even though they're big, they're not as overpowering as some of the other teams, like Georgetown."

The No. 2-rated Hoyas and 14th-ranked Duke drew first-round byes.

Georgetown, 29-3, which finished second to North Carolina in the final Associated Press poll, will face the winner of the SMU-Miami game Sunday.

Duke, 24-9, which upset North Carolina 77-75 in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament last weekend, will play the Washington-Nevada-Reno winner in Sunday's second game. Sunday's winners advance to the West Regional at Los Angeles March 23-25.

"I'd like to have been in the East to be in a situation where we'll have some fans cheering for us but . . . as I told Patrick (Ewing) with 50 seconds to go, 'Let's go West,'" Georgetown Coach John Thompson said.

He was referring to last Saturday's Big East Conference tournament championship game in which the Hoyas escaped with an 82-71 overtime victory over Syracuse.

Washington is making its first NCAA tournament appearance since 1976, and Mary Harshman, the Huskies' 66-year-old coach, admits he's worried about Nevada-Reno. The Wolf Pack beat Idaho State, Weber State and Montana last weekend's Big Sky tournament to qualify for its first-ever NCAA berth.

The Huskies start a front line of 7-foot Chris Welp, 6-9½ Delaf Schrempf and 6-9 Paul Fortler.

Whitworth leads open

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Hall of Famer Kathy Whitworth birdied the final hole Thursday to break out of a seven-year lull and take a single-stroke lead after the first round of the $150,000 Tucson Conquistadores LPGA Open.

Whitworth, 44, of Roanoke, Texas, dropped an 8-foot birdie putt on the par-5, 455-yard 18th hole of the Randolph Park North golf course for a 4-under-par 68. Top prize in the 72-hole tournament, which ends Sunday on the par-72, 6,346-yard course, is $22,500.

Six players were tied for second at 69, including defending champion Jan Stephenson, Chris Johnson, who won last week's LPGA tournament in Phoenix, and former softball standout Joan Joyce.

Also at 69 were Patty Sheehan, last year's No. 2 money leader, Sweden's Charlotte Montgomery and Ayako Okamoto, winner of the 1982 Tucson tournament, then called the Arizona Copper Classic.

Jo Ann Washam, of Auburn, Wash., was 4-under-par heading into the 18th hole, but she hit a 5-wood shot into a lake and three-putted for a double-bogey 7.

Whitworth is one win shy of becoming professional golf's most victorious player. She currently is tied with Sam Snead at 81 career triumphs.

"I'm not after any record, I just want to play golf," said Whitworth, who last won a year ago this week in the Women's Kemper Open.

"Oh, yeah, in the back of my mind I wish it would get over with, it's beginning to be a real constant thing every place I go. Someone asks me about it 10 times a day. But it's really not that important. I just hope I don't stop at 85."

Whitworth sank three 20-foot birdie putts on greens she referred to as being both hard and soft.

"These greens used to be as hard as the hood of a car. Now the hood is a little softer," she said.

Stephenson showed signs of breaking out of a putting slump that has plagued her for about eight months. Stephenson, who had been missing short-range putts consistently, sank several.

"When I stood over my first one today, on the ninth hole, I was choking like a rat," she said.

New swimming record set

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Junior Tracy Caulkins of Florida set an American and United States Open record Thursday in winning the 200-yard individual medley at the NCAA women's swimming and diving championships for a third consecutive year.

Caulkins, who had set a meet record in the preliminaries, was timed in one minute, 57.06 seconds, just .05 seconds quicker than the mark she set while swimming for the Nashville Aquatic Club in 1981.

Earlier, junior Marybeth Linzmeier of Stanford lowered her NCAA and meet record in winning the 500-yard freestyle for a third consecutive year.

Linzmeier cut more than a second off her old records with a time of 4:38.91 and defeated runner-up Mary Wayte of Florida by more than a body length.

Cynthia Woodhead of Southern California, the world record holder in the 400-meter freestyle—who was the quickest qualifier, finished third.

Linzmeier's victory, along with a first in the 200 medley relay, helped defending champion Stanford take the early lead in the battle for the team title.

The three-day meet at the Indiana University Natatorium continues today and Saturday with preliminaries in the afternoon and finals at night.

When you're having a party, think big.

'East' girls have edge in All-Star game

TWIN FALLS - The east girls have taken throughout the brief history of the Easter Seals Magic Valley All-Star Basketball game but they appear to have an edge in Monday night's eighth rematch.

The girls, pitting the best-10 graduating seniors from the east side of U.S. 83 against 10 from the west, will collide at 7 p.m. at the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium. The boys, divided the same way, will play at 8:45 p.m.

The east appears to hold the favorite's role for one important reason - it will be taller. And the squad hasn't been shorthanded on ball-handling ability.

The major concern for the west's defense will be 6-0 Lyn Darrington of Declo. Under the man-to-man rule of the game, she will be difficult for the considerably shorter westerners to handle.

One way is to get outside help to guard the passing lanes. But the east also has Oakley's Cherry Lynn Severe who, if she can't pass the ball into Darrington, can handle inside and hand it to her if necessary.

In addition to those two, the east has two starters off the state A-3 Kimberly basketball champions in Jenny Stark and Lisa Crothers. Valley contributes top scorer Angela Kasserman while Cathy Wheeler joined Darrington in Declo's presentation.

Leslie Bechtel of Oakley brings in a good scoring average but could be the best defensive player of the bunch and Shoshone's Lisa Logosz is a well-rounded player. Richfield's Monica Ward and Rochelle Wall of Burley round out the talented list.

The west has really only a trio of inside players to battle back with Julie Clemmons of Gooding, Stacy Walker of Buhl and Joni James of Jerome. While shorter than the rest, Clemmons and James are battlers and competitors.

The west generates some outside scoring punch in Twin Falls' Alma Hernandez, with Michelle Bonar of Buhl and Kandl Knigge of Piler. Defensively, Twin Falls' Heidi Hansen is a pest. Dana Pidgeon of Wood River, Angela Bennett of Camas County, and Beth Flock of Glenns Ferry round out the list.

The battle line for this one apparently is well defined: The west's first line of defense will have to be its guards: They must contain Severe and company and keep the ball from getting inside consistently by fouling up the perimeter setup. Conversely, that same bunch must carry the offensive brunt as it is doubtful the west will be able to consistently challenge the east inside with any success.

The east has the more comfortable feeling that it's inside game is its first line of offense and defense.

Winter skiing goes on

TWIN FALLS - It may be raining in lower elevations, but it's still winter at ski resorts around Magic Valley.

All resorts reported new snow Thursday as rain showers in lower elevations turned to snow at about the 4,000 foot elevation.

At Soldier Mountain, with 8 inches of snow at the top of the runs and 70 at the lodge, received about three inches of new snow during the past three days.

The resort is operating Wednesday through Sunday with weekend bus service available.

Pomerelle received about three inches of snow in intermittent storms Thursday. The resort has 10 1/2 inches of snow on the ski runs and 80 inches at the lodge.

Pomerelle is open daily except Mondays and offers weekend bus service.

Upcoming events at the two resorts include the Spring Fling at Magic Mountain on March 24 and a Lions Club sponsored race at Pomerelle on the same day.

Soldier Mountain with snow depths of 50 inches at the lodge and 58 at the top, reported three to five inches of new snow during the past several days. All facilities are operating Wednesday through Sunday.

Soldier is joining with the community of Fairfield to sponsor a Slush Fest beginning today and continuing through the weekend. Events will be held on the ski slopes and in the Fairfield businesses during the three-day event. Buses run to Soldier on weekends.

At Sun Valley, a trace of snow fell Thursday, with total depths ranging from 15 to 66 inches and runs packed and groomed.

Burns leading Bay Hill golf

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - George Burns, leading by two shots with three holes to play, faltered and dropped back into a four-way tie for the lead Thursday in the first round of the $400,000 Bay Hill Classic.

Burns salvaged a four-under-par 67 - "the best round I've ever had here," he said - despite bogeys on the 16th and 18th holes at Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill Club course.

The lapses at the end sent him into a share of the lead with PGA champion Hal Sutton, Ray Floyd and Leonard Thompson.

But he had some very good company in the heat of those who also found varying degrees of disaster on the closing holes.

Tom Watson, trying to light his way out of the worst slump of his career, also was four-under-par going to the 18th. But he took a triple seven that turned a possible 67 into a 70.

"I turned a good round into a lousy round," said Watson, who won the Seiko-Tucson Match Play Championship this year before plummeting into a slump.

Jack Nicklaus, who owns a record 17 major pro titles, was making a run at the lead until slicing a shot into the water on the 17th and winding up with a double-bogey five.

"I am just not consistent," said Nicklaus, who had the double bogey, two bogeys, four birdies and an eagle three. The eagle came on the 16th hole where he had dropped an 87-foot putt. "I stepped it off," he said.

Fuzzy Zoeller and Peter Jacobsen managed 68s that left them one shot out of the lead.

Nicklaus, a runner-up last week but a non-winner for 1 1/2 years, was tied at 69 with a group that included Ben Crenshaw, John Cook, Ed Flori, Gary Koch, Gil Morgan and Mark Lye.

Falmer shot a 72 in the bright, warm, sunny weather. Masters champion Seve Ballesteros of Spain and Tom Kite, a winner last week at Miami, each had a 73. Defending titleholder Mike Nikesic shot a 74.

Sutton and Floyd also dropped out to avoid a bogey, but Floyd had to one-putt the last two greens to save his share of the lead.

Thompson also credited his putter with his high position. He made one 25-footer to save par after driving into the water, and had two other par-saving putts of about 10 feet.

Burns, who arrived at Bay Hill only a few minutes before his afternoon tee-time, got away to what he called "a dream start." He birdied the first three holes, and four of the first five. He got it to six under par before an errant drive cost him the bogey on the 16th. He surrendered sole control of the top spot with the last-hole bogey where he took four to reach the green.

Watson's triple bogey came off a second shot that fell into the grandstands to the left of the 18th green, bounced off a board, hit a cart path and took another big bounce, sending the ball across a street in a housing development and out of bounds.

'Mobile Music' alters part of entertainment

By THOMAS MCGRAW
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — Chris Kinsel, 23, of Burley may be a thorn in the side of some southern Idaho musicians. He provides recorded music for area dances that might otherwise be provided by live bands.

His business is "Mobile Music" — and he and others like him are changing a small part of the entertainment industry. During the past year, Kinsel provided the music for 82 dances in locations from Boise to Blackfoot, and says he is looking forward to an even busier year in 1984.

Kinsel says he owes much of his success to economics. A good live band will often cost about $500 a night, over twice what Kinsel charges to do a three-hour dance, he says.

Kinsel says as a youth he always wanted to be a disc jockey, but when he approached radio stations in his hometown of Cincinnati, Ohio, asking for a job, "They laughed."

In the autumn of 1979, Kinsel moved to Oakley with his mother. While working for Northern Stone in Oakley, he began doing dances using the equipment of a friend who had gone on a church mission.

"I charged about $50 a night back then," he said, "and was eventually able to earn enough money to purchase my own equipment. I didn't talk music then, I just played the records."

It was during that time that Kinsel learned, through the local Job Service office, that a radio station in Rupert was looking for someone to do announcing.

Kinsel applied, landed the job and stayed there a year, still continuing to do dances. Three months after leaving the Rupert station, he was hired by radio station KBAR in Burley as the night disc jockey — with the stipulation he could have time off to do dances whenever they came up.

Two years later, Kinsel moved to the middle shift, permitting him to accept the position of night disc jockey at the Windbreak, a Twin Falls lounge.

Kinsel says the experience of being on the radio gave him the courage to talk more during his dances.

"That's the difference between me and most other dance disc jockeys," he says. "I talk on the microphone and try to get the audience involved, where some of the others don't."

He also attributes his radio work with keeping him more in tune with trends in music and says the exposure of music on radio is a big factor in that music's popularity at dances.

"When Michael Jackson's song 'Beat It' first came out," says Kinsel, "I played it on the radio and hardly anyone would dance to it. Now that everyone is familiar with the song, I can play it and the crowd swarms to the dance floor."

Another factor in the increasing popularity of recorded music for dances, says Kinsel, is the emergence of films that focus on music for dances.

The films "Flashdance," "Staying Alive" and "Footloose" are good examples, says Kinsel. "Live bands just can't perform the music like the original artists."

He also notes that "break dancing" is becoming very popular with today's youth and says that style of dancing is best performed to original recordings.

Kinsel also attributes Michael

Jackson's music to his increasing success, stating that Jackson's musical and dance stylings, as well as the production on the recordings, have caught the fancy of huge numbers of young people. Jackson's music is frequently requested at dances, Kinsel says.

To date, Kinsel has invested some $6,000 in his equipment and has purchased a van to haul it all around. He says he puts a large percentage of his income back into his dance business, mainly to improve the sound and visual aspects of the dance presentation.

It takes about 2 and one-half hours to set up the elaborate lighting effects and sound system, he says.

"Doing the dance is what I look forward to. The setting up and tearing down the equipment is the rough part."

Kinsel says the only time he gets nervous at a dance is if no one is dancing. Those times, he says, he has to work especially hard to get the crowd to feel comfortable.

He says the fun he ever had doing a dance was a "beach party" dance at Bishop Kelly High School in Boise. He says the music he played was of the Beach Boys and Jan & Dean genre and most of the dancers were dressed in "swimsuits" and bikinis.

Kinsel says recorded music can be mixed and tailored to the needs of the audience, young or old, whereas many live bands are unable to do that.

As a mobile disc jockey, Kinsel says, "There's no better feeling than watching a group of people reacting to music, just letting go, being loose, and forgetting all their worries."

Work like this photograph has earned Randy Collier of Burley the praise of his peers

Photographer wins trophies

By SARAH MURPHY
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — Professional photographer Randy Collier of Burley occupied the Winner's Circle at the annual State Professional Photographers' convention in Boise last month.

Collier, a native of Twin Falls, walked away with six trophies — one for State Photographer of the Year, three for Photographer's Choice — particularly valued by Collier because these trophies are awarded by his peers, he says — and two trophies for Best of Show.

Along with the prize trophies, Collier says he also won three first place ribbons, including two Judge's choice ribbons awarded to him by California master photographers Victor Avila and Tom Jadin.

The winning entry for this award was Collier's portrait study "Tender Moments."

Collier, who has operated his own photography studio in Burley for four years, apprenticed in Twin Falls with photographer Dan Johnson. He gives much credit for his success to former Idaho Photographer of the Year, Stan Sinclair of Boise, who is formerly from Rupert.

Sinclair does all of the art work on Collier's prints, an influencing factor in his success in competition, he says.

Collier also credits his wife, Kathryn Slaughter Collier, formerly of Twin Falls, with helping him.

Even though she is occupied at home with the couple's 2-and-a-half-year-old twins and a 9-month-old infant, he says she finds time to help with his work and to accompany him to competitions.

Collier's next venture into photographic competition will be the Intermountain Professional Photographers Association competition at the end of March in Salt Lake City and then the Nationals in Atlantic City in July.

A positive thinker, the 28-year-old Collier says he hopes to obtain the rank of Master Photographer at the age of 35. He says he is off to a good start.

Greer returns to controversy via book, 'Sex and Destiny'

By LARRY THORSON
The Associated Press

LONDON — Germaine Greer is back in the heart of controversy in the feminist movement.

Her new book, "Sex and Destiny: The Politics of Human Fertility," is a sweeping condemnation of family life in Western society, a sharp critique of modern birth-control methods, a warm look at the old-fashioned extended family with many children and a loud call to stop the West's "cultural onslaught" on traditional societies.

It has some people hopping mad, not unlike the reaction in the early 1970s to her first book, "The Female Eunuch." That book, in which she said women suffered discrimination and had better ways of handling some problems than men, established her as a spokeswoman for the feminist movement.

Harper & Row has given her new book a U.S. publication date of March 14, and it will be available in stores in about two weeks.

"Sex and Destiny" was officially released in Britain Monday but had already roused a furor in January when the author compressed some of her major ideas into three essays in the Sunday Times of London.

The essays brought a rash of letters, as well as comment in other British newspapers, with many complaining that a feminist guru had made a U-turn.

Some said her sociology and anthropology were selective or inaccurate. A few said that a woman who was a radical when she was in her 20s and 30s had become a conservative in her 40s.

Eight British feminists wrote a joint letter to emphasize that Ms. Greer, a native Australian who has made her home in Britain for 20 years, "has never involved herself in the women's movement in this country."

Yet remains entertaining

'Tank' teeters on the edge of bad

By PAT MARGANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Tank" is one of those movies that teeters precariously on the brink of being bad. It does, however, manage to stay on the edge of entertainment.

"Tank" is the story of high-ranking Army sergeant Zack Carey, played by James Garner. Zack is ready to retire to a fishing boat as soon as he completes his last tour of duty at a base in Georgia with his wife and teen-age son.

Zack has made a name for himself because of his command abilities. Yet, he is better known for his hobby — the ownership of a functioning World War II Sherman tank that he has restored.

With tank and all, the Careys settle down to a peaceful life at the base. Not for long, however.

Zack manages to get into a fight with a foul-mouthed deputy in the nearby town in an attempt to protect a young downed pilot.

The town is run by an evil corrupt southern sheriff. And, the sheriff is out for Zack's blood because the soldier stomped his symbol of authority. If the sheriff can't get to Zack, he will get to him through his son.

Any more would give away what is left of the film plot. Suffice it to say, Zack gets the opportunity to use his tank in a showdown with the sheriff that includes a cross-country cat and mouse game.

With such a premise, the tank appears to be the star. It does, however, take a backseat to the people. "Tank" really rolls when it deals with the somewhat edgy and believable relationship between Zack and his son. But then, the whole Carey family is realistic.

Zack is dedicated, but a bit fed up with the life of a soldier. He is a family man. Yet, he likes to go to a bar now and then, which is where the whole trouble began. His wife, played by veteran Shirley Jones, is nicely unadmirable. Even the teen-ager is sensitive without being a nerd.

Some of the sequences with the thundering machine are fun. When Zack points the large tank barrel at a deputy, the reactions he elicits are worthy of a deserved chuckle.

But as the chase and movie wear on, the uniqueness of the tank fades. After all, there are just so many cars that can squash.

Another sore spot is the stereotyped sheriff, played by J.D. Spradlin, who seems to make a career out of playing corrupt southern officials.

His character begins with promising sinister coolness, then deteriorates into a caricature that rivals the inept sheriff who terrorizes the "Dukes of Hazard."

Where "Tank" totally runs out of gas is with a climax that is overblown and total pabulum.

Aside from the silliness, the movie is entertaining, thanks to Garner. He her hairstyle, no longer a youthful frizz. Sometimes she puts it in a bun, sometimes she just combs it back. "I am 45 years old. My father died last year, which is the reason I put my hair up," she said in an interview with The Associated Press. "I figure I'm not 16 anymore, I can't go around with my hair in my eyes. I'm not a walf. It's not attractive anymore, so I might as well look like an intelligent grownup."

About criticism of her book, Ms. Greer retorted that she was "not at all conservative."
"Anyone who thinks I'm conservative is making a mistake," she said. "They think I'm in favor of chastity. I'm not. I'm in favor of perversity. I think we're having extremely dull sex... It was more fun in the back of Pontiac... It was more surprising and interesting..."
"I think that some young kids have sex these days instead of conversation. It's easier, especially with the pill. Before you had to talk like a lady because you weren't going to get there unless you did, so you had more time to find out who you were and who the other person was."

gives Zack a drive and force that make his tank look like a Tonka toy. As in the "Rockford Files," Garner manages to be an everyman decent, but having to resort to action in a not-so-decent world. The actor's ability is showcased in a scene where Zack confronts a soldier that beat his small son.
For that reason, "Tank" is saved from the mire of mediocrity, but just barely.

'Too skinny' woman looks wrong way

DEAR ABBY: You have to help me! I have been to every doctor in the area and not one will even discuss the type of surgery I want.

Where can I go to get this done? I don't care how far I have to go or how much it costs.

I am a 42-year-old woman, and my life I have been terribly skinny. My legs are a disgrace! I have worn only slacks all my life. I'm so ashamed. I want my legs fixed so I can wear dresses and shorts in 1984. Why will no plastic surgeon help me? They all refuse to add additional flesh and tissue for cosmetic reasons. Why? I am so sick of being like this! I have done exercises until I am ready to drop. Nothing helps. Please tell me where to go right away. I would rather be dead than look like this.

— SKINNY AND UGLY

DEAR SKINNY: No responsible plastic surgeon would attempt that kind of surgery, so look no further, because you might find one who is neither skilled nor honest but willing to attempt it for an attractive fee, and the results could be disastrous.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Please ask your family physician to recommend a therapist who will help you accept yourself as you are. You may perceive yourself to be skinny and ugly, but others may not see you that way.

You need to talk to an understanding person about your feelings, your dreams, your disappointments, your hopes. Please, please take this advice. It's important that you do. And write again in three months and tell me how you are. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I am a retired, single businesswoman who has a very dear friend who is also retired. Whenever we plan an afternoon together for lunch or shopping, her husband comes along. Of course I say nothing, and the three of us proceed together.

Abby, I have nothing against this woman's husband. He is kind and generous, but I prefer to go to lunch and shop with my friend and indulge in "girl talk." This obviously is not possible when her husband is along.

How can I convey my feelings to my friend—without giving her the impression that I don't like her husband?

— THREE IS A CROWD

DEAR THREE: Tell her, just as you told me, that you like her husband, but ask her if just the two of you could talk "girl talk."

DEAR ABBY: I lost my only son five years ago. He left a widow and two young daughters. His widow has since remarried. When I introduce her and her husband to friends, I always say, "I would like you to meet my daughter-in-law, Nora, and her husband, John Smith."

I have been criticized by some who feel that since my son is dead, Nora is no longer my daughter-in-law. Nora's two little girls are still my granddaughters, so how do I explain their presence?

— Isn't Nora still my daughter-in-law?

— MY FIRST DEAR ABBY LETTER DEAR FIRST: Although Nora is no longer legally related to you, she is still the mother of your grandchildren, so go ahead and introduce her as your daughter-in-law. And ignore the petty, mean-spirited critics.

(If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $2 and a long stamped (37 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

After 'Salem's Lot' and 'Christine'

Stephen King won't shy from familiar

By LOU CEDRONE
The Baltimore Evening Sun

Stephen King is never afraid to try the familiar.

His "Salem's Lot" was a redo of the vampire legend, his "Shining" was cousin to William Shakespeare's "Hamlet." Offerings like his "Christine" was very similar to "The Car," a movie that preceded it by six years.

Now comes "Children of the Corn," which is based on a short story by King. It is very similar to Tom Kratoch's "Harvest Home," and once, really, was enough.

You know the basics. They have been used many times. The scene is the usual, a small, deserted western town where the natives shy away from the visitors, who eventually end up as human sacrifice.

The townspeople have to appease the god of crops. In "Harvest Home," it was wheat. Here, it's the corn, and the vengeful, bloodthirsty demon these kids venerate is referred to as "He Who Walks Behind the Rows."

"Children of the Corn" has been done well enough, but the question is, why do it? We've seen it all before, many times, and there is nothing that surprises here.

We do have a lot of cheap scares, but they don't work any more than the rest of the film. How many times can we see this sort of thing and not laugh?

The scenario departs from its source in the short story, the kids worshipped a dyspeptic god. Here, they bow to a kind of devil, one on leave from "The Exorcist." It burrows underground, fast, and when it wants to be heard, speaks through Isaac, who is this particular demon's messenger.

Isaac (John Franchini) looks and sounds a little strange, but who's going to notice in a town like this? No one lives beyond 19. All the old folks have been finished off before the film begins, and as soon as a kid turns 19, he prepares to give himself "to Him."

What the older citizens should have done was put these kids in barrels and kept them there, forever. If you think you're having trouble with your teen-ager, take a look at these.

"Children of the Corn" has some of the prettiest of "Rumblefish," and when the demon "materializes," it resembles "Forbidden Planet." Well, who said there was anything new here?

As horror films go, the movie is not particularly gory, but it will do until something uglier comes along.

"Children of the Corn" is the fourth King-based film we have seen in less than a year. Done on location in Iowa, it goes back to the same old well, and this time, comes up dry. When it does come together, it is a case of too little and too late.

At only 19, Rob Lowe seems to be star rising

By LOU CEDRONE
The Baltimore Evening Sun

NEW YORK — Rob Lowe was feeling well. He had come to New York for a screening of "The Hotel New Hampshire" and had picked up a bug.

"Do you mind if I lie down?" he said. I said no, be my guest, so he stretched out on the couch, his speech becoming more and more nasal.

Lowe made his film debut in Francis Ford Coppola's "The Outsiders." "Class" followed, currently it's "New Hampshire," and coming up is "Oxford Blues," in which he is a yank at Oxford.

There was a movie by that name, I said. Robert Taylor and Vivien Leigh starred. Is it the same story?

"It's close," said Lowe. "It's about as close as you can get to it. It's a remake without being a remake."

Lowe is all of 19. He's off to a great start, and he knows it. "A lot has happened in the last two years," he said. "It things keep up at this pace for the next two years, I don't know where I'll be. I've been lucky to get very different roles."

He's almost pretty, but he doesn't like to hear that. "It's not my favorite adjective," he said.

Tony Richardson, who directed "The Hotel New Hampshire," didn't want Lowe cast as John. In the beginning, the movie was supposed to be with Tim Hutton and Elizabeth McGovern, but that deal fell through, and Richardson began looking at other actors.

"He thought I was too good looking," said Lowe. "I pushed for a meeting, we met, and he asked me to read on the spot. Later, he saw 'Class,' and the next day, he offered me the role."

"I sure don't think I'm good looking," said Lowe. "I was always uncomfortable with my looks. Sometimes it's great, and sometimes it's a drag."

Lowe plays John, brother to Franny (Jodie Foster) in "The Hotel New Hampshire," which is based on the book by John Irving. Members of a very unusual family, they love each other too much, and in a scene close to the end of the movie, consummate that passion.

Was he bothered by this? Did he find it difficult to do the scene? "It was just busy to be so," said Lowe. "Number One, I don't have a sister, so I don't know what it is to have one, let alone have an incestuous relationship with her."

"I just saw it as boy and girlfriend. I wanted to make it obvious that we had a relationship going. We were like first lovers. It is common to idolize your sister or brother, but John and Franny never outgrew that. This may not work in real life, but I think it works in the film."

Looking back, Lowe is grateful to Coppola. He is aware that "The Outsiders" was not a perfect film, but it did give him visibility. "The film gave me a high profile and the opportunity to work with one of the greatest directors in the world," he said.

What's what

The law of Steno, Italy, doesn't prohibit prostitution. It just prohibits any woman there named Mary from engaging in that profession.

A phenomenon occurs among women who apply facial makeup daily and among men who daily shave. The more they gaze upon their own faces, the less they know how they really look. Explain the why of that one.

Something else you can do to while away the time at slaphints is enumerate the different sorts of animals that have been used on guard duty. Like watchdogs, Cats, in Southeast Asia; Geese, in a California oil refinery; Rattlesnakes; in at least one shop in San Angelo, Texas; Guineaes, in zoos to sound alarm; Ostriches, in a Georgia junkyard. Any others?

GARY COOPER
Q. What was the first movie of the late Gary Cooper?
A. "Lightning Justice," a silent western. The credits in that one identify him by his original name, Frank Cooper.

Q. Which country in western Europe has the least murder?
A. Spain. One homicide per million people per year.

Q. Some of the most popular hamburger franchises spray around on their french fries. Why?
A. To give those fries that golden color. The sugar caramelizes in the cooking, so turns the fries brown.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Except for the early morning when upsets break up conditions, you can get into whatever specific plan of action interests you, and make progress.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You want to dash off to some new plan, but first be sure to keep agreements made with fellow workers. Don't speed on the highway.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Some financial affair can be annoying in the morning so put it aside for a while. Try not to be irritable at home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan to settle that argument at home which started this morning and have more harmony there. Invite guests into your home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Think cleverly in the morning, and you can get much accomplished with others. A fine day for communicating.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Forget assuming that heavy expense in the morning, and get busy putting your affairs in better order. Take it easy tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Keep working at a steady pace, and don't let anything dramatic that you would later regret. Go along with friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't skip out of some duty you have assumed, and then all work out better for you. Avoid that silly person who is pestering you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A pal could be annoying today, but don't ignore others who are helpful and kind. Be careful of your reputation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) anything dramatic that you would later regret. Go along with friends.

'Cagney & Lacey' returns on demand

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — Tyme Daily and Sharon Gless will be making the streets of New York City a little safer again Monday night when their cop show, "Cagney & Lacey," returns to CBS nearly one year after it was dumped.

"In this case, there is television life after cancellation death," said CBS. The series, which was dropped following the 1982-83 season, performed well in lame-duck reruns last summer against relatively weak baseball competition — and the show's stars and executive producer, Barney Rosenzweig, capitalized on that success.

"The public's reaction to the cancellation was so intense we felt the show deserved another chance," said Harvey Shephard, CBS' senior vice president for programming. "It generated a lot of publicity, and we thought it was a worthwhile gamble."

Shephard said the last time a program had been brought back by popular demand was ABC's "The Law and Mr. Jones" in 1982. It lasted six more months, CBS said. "Cagney & Lacey" also was given a reprieve after cancellation, but that was on the demand of only one influential viewer, CBS chairman William Paley.

Even when it was finishing 55th out of 99 prime-time series last season, "Cagney & Lacey" was profitable, attracting large female audiences who attracted advertisers pitching their female-oriented products.

"It's a core audience, women 25 to 54, is the most saleable demographic segment," said Dave Poltrack, CBS' vice president for research. "Now, by playing off the publicity and press attention, maybe some new people will try the show."

Rosenzweig said little is changed. The cast is returning intact, and the program will even take its old 10 p.m. EST timeslot on Mondays.

The network did say the first few shows last season were too gritty, so we're going into more white-collar crime," Rosenzweig said.

But that was the extent of CBS' tampering, he said. Even when the ratings on "Cagney & Lacey" were down, "the network never suggested that the show go for hot tubs or sexy women."

"The executive producer said if CBS' promotion campaign had focused on the distinctiveness of the show, it might have attracted more viewers."

"I'm making a show about two women who happen to be cops, and (CBS) was promoting a show about two cops who happen to be women," he said.

Chris Cagney (Miss Gless) and Mary Beth Lacey (Miss Daly) aren't pin-up poster cops. No one will mistake them for "Charlie's Angels." Miss Daly, who won a best-actress Emmy award last year for her role, said the characters' common, believable qualities are precisely why the series merited attention.

"TV is supposed to reflect society back on itself and I see very little of some images," Miss Daly said. "I like the fact that Mary Beth is overworked. She's tired, and she's spreading herself too thin. She doesn't love her job; she has a job. She loves her husband."

Billy Graham film 'suitable except for drugs'

By MERCEDES OLIVERA
Dallas Morning News

DALLAS — "The Prodigal," the Billy Graham film rated "not suitable" in Dallas last week, was rated "suitable" with the exception of drugs, Wednesday by the city's movie classification board.

The movie was screened Monday and found to have two scenes in which a character puffs a marijuana cigarette, said Linda Bernstein, vice chairwoman of the Dallas Movie Classification Board. Board members voted to give it the rating with a caution.

"The Prodigal" has been rated "suitable" in every other city in the nation, said Ralph (CQ) Fletcher of World Wide Pictures, who coordinated the film's premiere in the Dallas-Fort Worth area last Friday.

"The new 'suitable with drug exception' rating is kind of ludicrous because the film is not saying 'This is an acceptable lifestyle,'" Fletcher said.

Last week the panel was forced by city guidelines to rate the movie "not suitable" because it was unable to schedule a screening before the film's premiere. City guidelines say any film rated "R" (parental guidance recommended) by the film industry must be rated "not suitable" until the film board has reviewed it.

The film is the seventh movie produced by World Wide Pictures, a Billy Graham Enterprises production.

Watercolorist sets show, workshop

TWIN FALLS — Idaho watercolorist Dwight Williams will present a watercolor workshop and slide presentation March 24, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., at Killfoyle Studios in Twin Falls.

A founding member of the Idaho Water Color Society, Williams has been painting in watercolor media for the past 20 years. Portrayals of Idaho's rural landscapes, historical buildings and ski slopes can be found in Williams' paintings.

Williams has taken numerous awards, purchase prizes and Judges commendations throughout the western states and his paintings can be found in private, public and corporate collections throughout the United States and abroad.

For more information on the March 24 workshop, to be held at the studio located in the Farm Bureau Insurance Building on Kimberly Road East, call Charlotte Killfoyle at 734-3822.

KELLEY MOTORS 610 MAIN AVE. E. 733-1823

Drives like $20,000. Costs like $7390.

Drive a German sedan that costs around $20,000 and you'll feel how well it handles a road.

Drive the Volkswagen Jetta and you'll get the same kind of feeling.

You'll just get it for about $12,500 less!

Which makes buying one almost as much fun as driving one.

The 1984 Jetta. It's not a car. It's a Volkswagen.
