House approves 4-percent sales tax

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — Overcoming last-ditch efforts and delays by conservatives, a coalition of House Democrats and moderate Republicans approved a 4 percent sales tax on Thursday.

In the process, the House turned down two alternative tax measures, proposed by Rep. Mack Nelhair, R-Paul.

One would have adjusted individual income-tax brackets; the other would have repealed the investment tax credit and would have set minimum taxes for corporations and individuals.

Idaho's current 4.5 percent sales tax is the result of a 1.5 percent temporary increase enacted during the 1983 legislative session.

IDAHO LEGISLATURE 1984

The tax is scheduled to return to 3 percent on July 1.

If passed by the Senate, the 4 percent sales tax would provide funding for the $23 million public-school reform package that was passed by the House earlier this session, according to supporters of the sales-tax increase.

"We're allowing a half-percent to expire," Rep. Jerry Deckard, R-Engle, said, in arguing in favor of the new rate.

The 4 percent rate also would provide stability to the state's tax structure and would allow expenditures on much-needed, one-time capital improvements, he said.

Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, said the tax increase also would allow the state to give cities and counties additional support, and would provide a surplus — to be used to fund additional educational reforms next year.

Antone and Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer, were the only two of the Magic Valley's 10 House members who voted in favor of the bill.

Among the opponents, Rep. Gordon Hollifield, R-Jerome, attacked both the tax increase and the educational package it is designed to fund.

"If you want to strap our taxpayers with a burden that is unreasonable... then you can support this bill," he said.

"This is too much. It's unreasonable; it's wasteful. The improvement in education won't be there. The salary increase for our teachers is unreasonable," Hollifield said.

Two Magic Valley lawmakers — Rep. Ernest Hale, R-Burley, who voted against the tax increase, after having voted in favor of the public-school reform package and its appropriation when that measure passed the House in early February.

"It's inconsistent," Scott said, following

Thursday's vote. "Probably, I regret that vote," she said of her support of the school reform package.

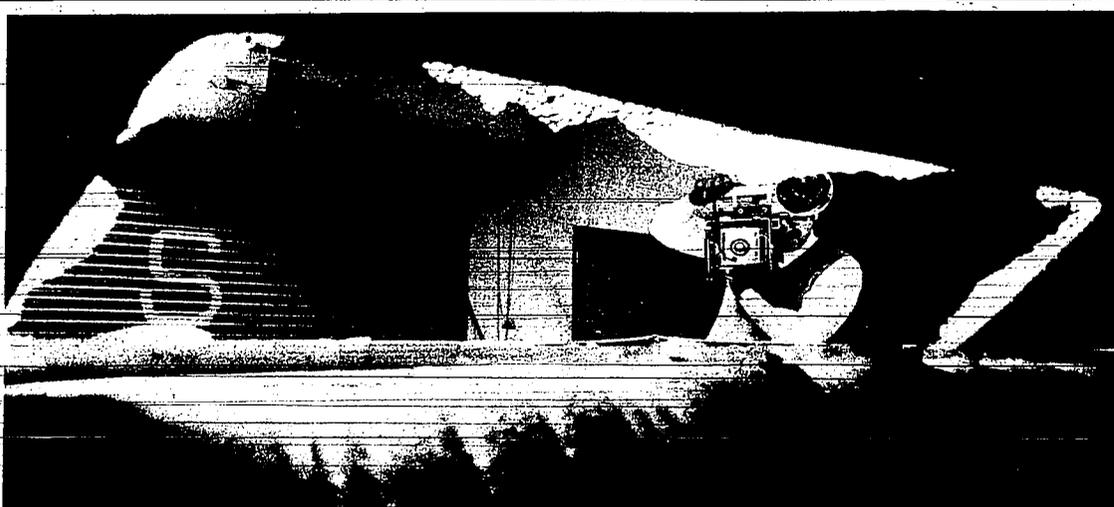

"I'm not sure it's going to make it anyway. It's in deep trouble in the Senate," she said.

Scott said she voted in favor of the school reform package at the urging of Twin Falls-area Republicans. But she said she never had supported retaining any of the temporary sales tax.

Asked how she expected the school reform package to be funded, Scott answered, "We could have raised it through other means."

She said revenues might be available at local levels or through better management of the public-school endowment lands or endowment accounts.

Fear of loose gunman grips Jerome farm area

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — While area law-enforcement officers stalked an armed fugitive Thursday, many Jerome County residents went about their daily activities in a state of fear — fear that they would meet the gunman, face-to-face, in their barns, parked cars or along county roads.

Officers said some residents literally were hiding in their homes; others carried guns as they did their farm chores.

"We saw farmers and cattlemen on their tractors with their rifles. Many (persons) who returned to their homes after being gone for a while asked us to go through the houses before they dared enter," said Larry Webb, the chief deputy in the Jerome County sheriff's office.

The entire county was "up-tight and scared," Webb said.

Some parents kept their children home from school, not wanting them waiting alone at rural bus stops.

Many persons called the Jerome police or sheriff to ask if it was safe to travel the interstate to Twin Falls.

The cause of the apprehension began Wednesday evening, when two armed fugitives led Twin Falls and Jerome officers on a wild, gunfire-filled chase along U.S. 89, Interstate 84, that left one Twin Falls officer, Larry Strober, wounded.

In addition, three police cars were hit by gunfire during the chase. The suspects knocked out the back window of their sedan and fired on the pursuing patrol cars with an arsenal that included at least one machine gun.

One of the men was captured Wednesday night, but the other eluded officers and was thought to be hiding in the farm and desert area east of Jerome.

Both men are suspects in a rash of armed robberies from Seattle to Boise.

Timothy Alger, 26, remained free despite an intensive manhunt search in Jerome County. The other man, Jeffrey Dean Morris, 26, is being held in the Jerome County Jail.

Reportedly, both men are escapees from a

Meese joins call for prosecutor probe of charges

By MIKE FEINSILBER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Edwin Meese III asked Thursday for the appointment of a special prosecutor to make a "rapid, impartial and thorough" investigation into the charges of political and financial improprieties that jeopardize his prospect of becoming attorney general.

Meese acted after the disclosure — the latest in a series about his finances — that he had failed to pay income taxes on several hundred dollars worth of interest on his savings in the White House Federal Credit Union.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said he presumed Meese would file corrected tax returns for 1981 and 1982.

President Reagan said he has full confidence in "my trusted colleague for 17 years" and that Meese would remain on duty as presidential counselor while the prosecutor investigates — a process that could take months and throw the issue into the midst of the election campaign.

Edwin Thomas, the friend of Meese whose interest-free loan to the presidential counselor's wife first touched off calls for Meese to withdraw as a public Thursday by the Senate Judiciary Committee that he had loaned the Meese family money on several occasions. The committee's hearings on Meese's confirmation have been suspended indefinitely.

Thomas, his wife and his son all wound up with federal jobs.

Thomas said he loaned Meese about $8,000 in 1979 when Meese, traveling with his family in Europe, "at the last minute, decided to purchase a Volkswagen."

On one other occasion, Thomas said he loaned Mrs. Meese money when they were "out of the city in 1981 and it was the last day to pay their taxes."

In both those instances, he was repaid, Thomas said.

Meese said in a statement that he was sure he would be cleared of "the misrepresentations and undisclosed charges which have been raised in this political year by those who oppose my nomination."

The Justice Department said

nothing about Meese's request for the appointment of a special prosecutor, but it appeared to be a foregone conclusion that Attorney General William French Smith would abide by his request and ask a three-judge panel to select the special prosecutor.

Smith is eager to leave the Justice Department to take an advisory role in Reagan's re-election campaign, but has agreed to stay until his successor is confirmed.

Rep. Robert Forrey, R-Nampa, urged endorsement of the bill. "If we are truly interested in educating children then we've got to get off the kick that there's only one way to do it," he said.

Don Billings, a faculty member at Boise State University, called the public school system in Idaho "a monopoly."

He said that parents of children in private schools have to pay twice, once for the private school, and again through the property tax for the public schools.

REP. GEORGE HANSEN Loan went to joint account

Hunt's financial aid to Connie Hansen detailed

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Jurors in the trial of Rep. George Hansen were given an inside look Thursday at the financial world of Texas oilman Nelson Bunker Hunt, as Justice Department prosecutors called a banker, a soybean trader and a silver dealer to the witness stand.

It was a world in which Hunt's personal net worth of $139 million was all that was needed for Hansen's wife, Connie, to obtain an unsecured $50,000 loan from an unknown Dallas banker or to set up a private trading account with an exclusive Oklahoma silver dealer.

But it also is a world of high risk.

Owen Nichols, a Chicago soybean trader, testified Thursday morning that, acting upon a request from Hunt, he saddled Mrs. Hansen with a $33,855 trading loss in 1977.

Nichols testified that he set up a private trading account for Mrs. Hansen at Trade for Mrs. Hansen at Hunt's request.

But Nichols said he only talked with her once, in a brief phone call to fill out a trading form. He said he consulted only Hunt, never Mrs. Hansen, about the trades made on her behalf.

Justice Department prosecutors are attempting to prove that George Hansen knew of, participated in and benefited from Hunt-assisted financial transactions carried out for his wife.

They contended in their opening arguments Wednesday that Hansen intentionally tried to conceal these transactions when he failed to report them on his financial disclosure documents, as required under the federal 1978 Ethics in Government Act.

Hansen's defense lawyer, Nathan Lewin, said earlier this week that Hansen believed he did not have to disclose the transactions because of a financial separation agreement between him and his wife. Therefore, there had been no willful attempt to falsify the forms, Lewin said.

To bolster its case of Hansen's involvement in his wife's financial affairs, the prosecution on Thursday called to the witness stand Samuel Patrick Henry, a loan officer for First National Bank in Dallas.

He testified that he approved a $50,000 unsecured loan for Mrs. Hansen in May 1977, after Hunt agreed to guarantee the loan. During testimony on Wednesday, Hunt had said that he backed the loan because he felt badly about his financial advice that had resulted in Mrs. Hansen losing $33,855 in soybean trading.

Reading from a copy of the loan agreement, Henry testified that Hunt had a personal net worth of $139 million at the time. This amount, Henry said, was more than sufficient to guarantee Mrs. Hansen's loan.

On the form, Connie Hansen stated the loan was for "personal expenses."

Henry testified that when interest payments on the loan became overdue, he contacted both Mrs. Hansen and Rep. Hansen in an effort to collect.

"(He [Rep. Hansen] generally indicated that he would attempt to see that something would be done to take care of these payments," Henry testified.

Briefly

Police find more skeletons

SEATTLE (AP) — Two sets of human skeletal remains found in a brushy area just north of Seattle-Tacoma International Airport are the 15th and 16th victims of the Green River killer, Seattle police said Thursday.

"I'm adding these two people to our Green River victims," Capt. Frank Adamson, head of the police Green River task force, said Thursday after the second set of bones was discovered.

The King County medical examiner's office could not immediately identify the bones or say how long the victims had been dead, but police insisted on the Green River connection.

The violent deaths of 16 young women now have been attributed to the Green River killer, so called because the bodies of the first victims were found in or near the Green River, in southern King County, in the summer of 1982.

Kansas, Missouri still in dark

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Utilities reported "real progress" Thursday in restoring power cut off by a winter storm, but about 62,000 customers across Kansas and Missouri remained without service four days after the lights went out.

In Jefferson City, Lt. Gov. Kenneth Rothman lifted a state of emergency he had ordered Monday in Missouri, saying "life threatening situations and agricultural emergencies the National Guard responded to are over."

The Guard had operated eight emergency generators during the week, including four in Johnson County, two in Greenwood and two at homes for the severely handicapped in Lee's Summit, Rothman said.

Major drug dealer gets 12 years

NEW YORK (AP) — The leader of a ring that sold heroin and cocaine wholesale to customers in New York, Cleveland and Detroit was sentenced Thursday to 12 years in prison.

Ella Shipp, 44, had faced at least 10 years and up to life in prison without parole for operating a continuing criminal enterprise, a narcotics ring based on the Upper West Side of Manhattan. She was fined $10,000 in addition to the prison term.

U.S. District Judge Edward Weinfeld described her as the "prime mover" of the ring, which he said sold heroin and cocaine in kilogram quantities. He said that while she only was involved in a real estate business and a chain of barber shops, "criminal activity has become an integral part of her life."

According to federal authorities, Ms. Shipp used relatives to carry out her business, Assistant U.S. Attorney Edward J.M. Little said. She had a restaurant and a restaurant meeting with an undercover agent with two ounces of heroin hidden beneath the blouse of her 4-year-old daughter, taped to the child's chest.

Kidnapping insurance offered

SEATTLE (AP) — Policies parents can buy to insure their children against kidnapping can now be sold in Washington state.

The policy, offered by the Continental Insurance Co. of New Jersey, pays for a private investigator, psychological counseling, reward money and, in the worst-case scenario, burial expenses for the dead child.

Washington on Tuesday became the 23th state to grant permission to sell the misleading child policy.

Walter "Finger" of the Washington State Insurance Commission said the insurance plan is valid only for kidnapping, which is "abduction or stealing or carrying away of a person by unlawful force or fraud or persuasion."

Rancher fights cruelty charge

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) — An Idaho rancher has pleaded not guilty to a charge of cruelty to animals in connection with a herd of 47 starving horses found near here in early March.

Thomas Collan, 63, Soda Springs, entered his plea in Utah's 5th Circuit Court Thursday and was scheduled for a non-jury trial April 19.

The maximum penalty for the misdemeanor is a $299 fine and six months in the county jail.

The herd of horses was found by the Gold Spike Hound Society March 6. Four of the animals had died from lack of food and water.

Following Henry's testimony, the prosecution produced records of Mr. and Mrs. Hansens' joint bank account with First American Bank of Virginia.

Those records, introduced as evidence, indicated that on May 27, 1977, the $50,000 loan obtained from the Dallas bank was placed in the joint account in Virginia, minus $5,000.

In the weeks that followed, more than $33,000 was sent to the Chicago broker to whom Mrs. Hansen owed the soybean-trading debt, according to the records.

But the records also show that Rep. Hansen took $7,500 from the account

Hunting vs. property rights

BOISE (AP) — The right to hunt was weighed against respect for private property as the Idaho Senate approved legislation authorizing the revocation of hunting, fishing or trapping licenses for trespassing violations.

The bill, approved 27-7 on Thursday, now goes to the governor.

"It is this disregard that some of these people have for your property that brings these laws," Sen. Walter Yarborough, R-Grandview, said.

Man arrested at White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A man was arrested by police outside the White House Thursday night after he pulled a samurai sword from his scabbard and waved it in the air, eyewitnesses reported.

The man, identified by the Secret Service as Anthony Leon Hill, 22, of Glen Arden, Md., drove his car up to the northwest White House gate on Pennsylvania Avenue, climbed out and walked toward the iron White House fence, reported eyewitness Dennis Whitehead, 31, a free-lance photographer. He then calmly pulled the sword from his cover, said Whitehead.

The 22-year-old was being charged with assault of a federal officer and possession of a prohibited weapon, according to a Secret Service statement read by agency spokesman Robert Snow.

Hale could not be reached to comment on his vote.

In debate, Nelbaur termed the 4 percent sales tax bill "a crossed pig."

And while passage of the proposal did prove impossible for opponents to stop, they were able to slow it down considerably.

Rep. Mike Strasser, R-Nampa, demanded that the 12-page bill be read in its entirety — a tactic that stalled the bill's inevitable passage by about 40 minutes. He also attempted, unsuccessfully, to have the bill tabled — a move that would have effectively killed the measure.

Later, Rep. Walt Little, R-New Plymouth, questioned whether the amendments approved Wednesday, which raised the bill's stated tax rate from 3.5 percent to 4 percent, had been drafted properly.

How they voted

BOISE (AP) — Here is the 40-30 roll call vote by which the Idaho House Thursday approved legislation setting the state sales tax at four cents beginning July 1.

Republicans for (22) — Antone, Bateman, Bengson, Boyd, Bunting, Dean, Deckard, Edwards, Fry, Gurnsey, Hangerson, Harris, Hooper, K. Johnson, Kelly, Knigge, Loveland, Lucas, Reynolds, Scates, Sessions, Thomas.

Republicans against (29) — Brummett, Brimhall, Brooks, Chad-federal prison on McNeill Island, at Longview, Wash.

Alger fled under a cover of darkness into the rural area southeast of Jerome Wednesday night.

Morris was arrested about 9 p.m. by Jerome officers, shortly after the two fugitives ended their effort to outrun officers along I-84.

Being arrested was not Morris's only problem, Webb said.

After the men abandoned their car, Morris started to run across what he thought was a small pond. But it turned out to be the waste lagoon of Ted DeHog's dairy, and Morris promptly sank into cow manure up to his armpits.

While the search was under way, someone called the sheriff's office and reported seeing a man running through DeHog's yard.

Jerome County Sheriff Eliza Hall said a number of officers converged on the area, and although Morris ran, he soon threw down his guns and was arrested without incident.

"He said he didn't know they had it (manure) that deep. He thought he was in quicksand," Webb said.

"Besides being a sorry sight, he was cold and glad to get into a hot shower at the jail."

Webb said the suspect might have frozen had he remained in the open all night.

Hansen

But by June 1980, Henry said, the $50,000 loan still was seriously in arrears, and he was forced to ask Hunt to make good on the guarantee.

Hunt then paid off the loan, plus $11,000 in interest, according to Henry.

Following Henry's testimony, the prosecution produced records of Mr. and Mrs. Hansens' joint bank account with First American Bank of Virginia.

Those records, introduced as evidence, indicated that on May 27, 1977, the $50,000 loan obtained from the Dallas bank was placed in the joint account in Virginia, minus $5,000.

In the weeks that followed, more than $33,000 was sent to the Chicago broker to whom Mrs. Hansen owed the soybean-trading debt, according to the records.

But the records also show that Rep. Hansen took $7,500 from the account in a series of checks. These checks were made out to George Hansen and signed "GB Hansen."

During the afternoon session Thursday, Leslie Ming, an Oklahoma commodities broker, took the stand to testify about silver transactions that netted Mrs. Hansen an $87,000 profit, during a three-day fling in the silver market during the winter of 1979.

Acting at the request of Hunt, Ming said he contacted Rep. Hansen in his Washington office to see if he was interested in trading in silver.

On the morning of Jan. 19, 1979, Ming said he made a person-to-person call to Hansen, which the congressman returned shortly afterward.

During the return call, Ming said he identified himself and said, "I am calling at the request of Nelson Bunker Hunt, and I understand that you might be interested in silver."

Ming recalled that Hansen responded that he was not interested, but that his wife might be. Ming then was transferred to Mrs. Hansen's extension in the Hansen office, where she works as an unpaid assistant.

After the conversation, Ming said he set up a trading account for Mrs. Hansen through a Chicago broker.

In three days of trading, in which Mrs. Hansen risked $125,000, the silver market rose sharply, and she realized an $87,000 profit.

After the trading was complete, Ming testified that Rep. Hansen called him again.

Ming said that Hansen asked "if everything had been done to my satisfaction, and I assured him it had been handled very properly."

Today, the jury is scheduled to hear testimony from a Focattolo banker, who is expected to comment on how the profits from the silver speculation were managed by the Hansens.

Reagan agrees to delay request for military aid

By W. DALE NELSON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration Thursday bowed to Democratic demands to delay congressional action on further military aid to El Salvador until the end of the fiscal year.

The agreement, announced in the Senate by Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, calls for the Senate to act next Tuesday or Wednesday on an aid package providing an additional $81.7 million for El Salvador in the current fiscal year.

The administration requested supplemental aid of $178.7 million, on top of $94.8 million that was approved last fall. The Senate Appropriations Committee, by a 16-13 vote, approved $83 million, subject to periodic reports by the president that the Salvadoran regime is making human rights and other reforms.

On Wednesday, Baker moved to bring the committee measure up on the floor, but was blocked by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and other liberal Democrats who said no action should be taken until after the presidential election in El Salvador.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, the senior Democrat on the appropriations subcommittee on foreign aid, had planned to offer an amendment to reduce the $93 million to $42.2 million.

As part of the compromise with the White House, Inouye agreed to increase this to $61.7 million. He said the additional money was needed for medical supplies and medical training. He told the Senate 67 percent of the wounded in El Salvador's civil war die, compared with 11 percent in World War II.

Baker said the administration would support the new financing level proposed by Inouye.

Kennedy described the compromise as reasonable but noted that senators would still be free to offer amendments to lower or raise the amount.

He said it was wise to wait until after the election "when we will have a clearer idea about who will be receiving the resources and what kind of a regime we will be supporting."

Election campaign ends with violent clashes

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The Salvadoran presidential campaign ended with a violent clash between rival parties Thursday. Leftist guerrillas threatened not to attack voters, but blew up a plane loaded with ballot boxes.

Government troops retook the northern city of La Palma Thursday, saying they were securing it for Sunday's elections, according to reporters returning from the area.

Popular Liberation Forces rebels have controlled the town of 12,000 for the past three months and at various times over the past two years.

The reporters said troops secured the town without fighting. Rebels in the area, in Chalatenango province, had indicated they would let residents vote, but on Wednesday they dug a trench across the main northern highway leading to the town and posted signs saying the route was mined. Traffic resumed on Thursday.

planted by rebels blew up a Salvadoran air force plane loaded with hundreds of ballot boxes as it landed near the city of San Miguel. The C-123K transport plane was destroyed and its pilot and co-pilot were injured, said a military officer in San Miguel.

The officer, who asked not to be identified by name, said the boxes were intended for distribution in the area. He said the plane was destroyed and its pilot and co-pilot were injured, said a military officer in San Miguel.

Campaigning ended at midnight Wednesday, leaving the capital a crazy quilt of banners, spray-painted slogans, posters and air-dropped leaflets for the eight candidates seeking a five-year term. They range from leftist to ultra-conservative parties.

Just before the midnight deadline, supporters of three parties clashed in San Vicente, 37 miles east of the capital. Residents said one Christian Democrat was hospitalized with a gunshot wound.

Stivers ousts press in House

By RICK SHAUHNESSY
Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — Speaker of the House Tom Stivers, R-Twin Falls, ejected six reporters from the House floor Thursday during a critical parliamentary discussion on the 4 percent sales-tax bill.

House leaders were gathered at the speaker's desk when the incident occurred. Opponents of the tax were challenging the validity of the bill's amendments.

Among those removed were this writer and Diane Josephy, a Ketchum-based free-lance reporter who is the wife of Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey.

Seating for reporters is provided at desks adjacent to the speaker's desk. Stivers said later it was "interference" for reporters at those desks to take notes on conferences being held at his desk.

"Turn the camera off," Stivers ordered Jim Hall, a cameraman for Boise television station KAIT, according to a KAIT recording of the incident.

Hall responded by turning the camera away from the speaker's desk. However, the camera and its sound-recording device continued to run.

Stivers then turned to the reporters seated at a desk on his left, and said, "I don't want any part of this conversation reported. The subject matter we're discussing here is not public information," according to the KAIT recording.

"I'm not going to go off the record," this writer responded. "All right, then leave the floor," Stivers ordered.

KAIT; Barbara Bable, a reporter for Boise radio station KGEM; Linda Litwiler, a reporter for the North Idaho Press in Wallace; Hall; and this reporter all left the floor. Stivers then turned to the reporter's section to his right and said to Josephy, "And you get off the floor, too," according to Josephy.

According to Josephy, the following exchange occurred between her and Stivers: "What did I do?" she asked. "Just get off the floor," Stivers responded. "But what did I do?"

"Do you want me to call the sergeant-at-arms?" Stivers asked. Josephy said she then left the floor.

Passengers flee jet as blaze engulfs it

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Fire broke out in a jetliner on its takeoff run Thursday, but the pilot braked to a halt and all 119 people aboard escaped before flames engulfed the plane. Officials said 29 people were slightly injured.

The injuries included facial burns, sprained ankles and smoke inhalation, officials said.

The Pacific Western Airlines Boeing 737, scheduled for a commuter flight to Edmonton, was destroyed. Authorities said the cause of the blaze was under investigation.

The pilot aborted the takeoff when the fire broke out and brought the plane to a halt on a taxiway adjacent to the runway at Calgary-International Airport.

Most of the 113 passengers and five crew members fled down emergency slides. Others scrambled out emergency exits over the wing and jumped the six feet to the taxiway surface as flames engulfed the plane.

"We're lucky to be alive," said Matt Hawkins, a public relations worker from Calgary, who suffered facial burns.

Hawkins said the aircraft was about one-third of the way down the runway when passengers heard a "pop-like explosion," then the left engine burst into flames.

He said the heat became so intense "the windows were starting to melt." The jet's back was broken behind the wing. Witnesses said the cabin fell to the tarmac after several explosions.

Storm deposits snow

By The Associated Press

A spring snowstorm dumped more than two feet of snow on Michigan's Upper Peninsula, where slick roads claimed five lives, as desert winds up to 82 mph made travel treacherous Thursday in parts of the Southwest.

Winter-weather prevails on Michigan's third day with snow headed for the Great Lakes, New England, much of the Rockies and into the western Plains.

Near-blizzard conditions prompted winter storm warnings in parts of north-central Wisconsin and western upper Michigan.

Michigan's Upper Peninsula was blanketed with 26 inches of snow over Wednesday and Thursday, with winds up to 40 mph piling the white stuff into six-foot-high drifts.

"Usually you can push a drift, but these are many hundred feet in," said Brian County (Mich.) Road Commission engineer Glenn M. Maki. "A lot of our main roads were blocked today, and the side roads are still blocked."

Five people died Wednesday in Michigan in weather-related traffic accidents, including three people killed in one two-car collision near Bad Axe, state police said.

Most Michigan schools and some roads were closed.

Power was cut to about 550 customers of Consumers Power Co. near Kalamazoo when power lines sagged under the weight of the snow, said Dean Sibley, a utility spokesman.

Meanwhile, about 62,000 customers across Kansas and Missouri remained without power Thursday after a weekend winter storm pulled the plug.

Officials of Kansas Power and Light, Kansas City Power and Light, Kansas Electric Cooperatives Inc. and Missouri Public Service Co. said power there would probably be restored to most people by the weekend.

However, it may be Tuesday before the power is back on for some residents in rural Kansas.

Travelers' advisories and stockmen's notices were posted along all of Colorado except the Western Slope. National Weather Service Ed Honodel, in Denver, called the slushy snowfall a "transitional spring storm."

The damp snow leech mountain passes, and a truck overturned on Interstate 70 east of Idaho Springs, blocking eastbound traffic.

Clues to bodies found

KENDRICK — Investigators have linked jewelry and clothing on two bodies found near Kendrick to two Lewiston women who disappeared on Sept. 12, 1982.

But Latah County Sheriff Laune Odenberg and Lewiston police say that evidence does not positively identify the two victims.

For that, they must wait for a medical team's post mortem examination this weekend.

Odenberg said an earring and a ring appear similar to the ones worn by the two women.

Kristina Nelson, 21, and her stepister, Brandy Miller, 18, disappeared after they left home to go shopping in downtown Lewiston. A third individual, Steven Pearsall, 35, also disappeared that night.

Ever since a Kendrick teenager, Marvin Meed, discovered the two badly decomposed bodies just north of Kendrick Monday, investigators have suspected a connection to the Lewiston women.

But until the examination of the bodies by Lewiston police Wednesday, the only clue supporting that theory was the proximity to the Nez Perce county line.

Lewiston police Capt. M. Duane Allor stopped short of saying the articles were conclusively linked to the missing women.

No member of the missing women's family, who live in southern Idaho, had been advised to identify the articles, he said.

The next development in the case is likely to come Saturday, when Roger Helgar, a San Francisco-based specialist in corpse identification is scheduled to examine the remains.

Helgar, a forensic anthropologist, will be joined by Dr. Carl Koenen, a Lewiston pathologist. The remains will be transferred from a Moscow funeral home to the Pathologists Regional Laboratory at Lewiston for the examination.

Also on hold is a comparison of the dental structures found at the scene with the dental records of the missing women. The medical team has asked that the remains not be disturbed, Odenberg said.

Officially, the case is being treated as a possible homicide by Latah officials, Odenberg said.

Don't give Indians a 'quota' F&G seat

Despite endorsement of the idea by Gov. John Evans, we don't think the Idaho Fish and Game Commission should be expanded to include a permanent seat for an Idaho Indian representative.

The governor's logic is that state Indian tribes need "special recognition" on the commission to protect Indian rights to fishing and hunting.

But in our opinion, such ethnic representation has little logic behind it and would violate the spirit of Fish and Game regulations, which call for the management of natural resources for all the people of the state, regardless of ethnic heritage.

Indian hunting and fishing rights are controversial in many states. Indian tribes repeatedly have gone to federal court to protect their rights to take game under various federal treaty provisions.

State fish and game agencies, on the other hand, are struggling to maintain fish and game populations for both the sportsman and the wildlife biologist.

The issue is partly an economic one. Indian tribes say they need the commercial revenue from some fish sales, but the enforcement systems are lax and some of the revenue finds its way to non-Indians. On the other hand, receipts from sportsmen are a major source of revenue for state fish and game agencies.

Some of these concerns have surfaced in recent years in Idaho. The Fish and Game Department, for example, is concerned about the falling chinook salmon population and has asked the tribes to close their own seasons. But the tribes won't commit to that. No wonder there is friction.

The way out is not through a still-larger state agency, of which we have too many already. Few, if any, of Idaho's many boards and commissions are structured to give any ethnic group a set number of seats. There is no such representation on the parole board, the Board of Education, or the Potato Commission.

When the governor appoints members to those and other bodies, he does so from a pool of recommended applicants. He picks the best person to serve, based on the candidate's knowledge of the subject and, in some cases, geography.

That is how it should be. If he thinks it is so critical, Evans can appoint an Indian member to the commission when the next vacancy occurs. Let him take that route rather than designating what amounts to a "quota" seat for this one group of many in Idaho.

There are alternatives to expanding the commission that would still give Indians a broader role in Fish and Game decisions. We think the commission and the governor should explore these routes instead.

Vote no on tuition credit

You may soon be considering whether to pass HB 699 which establishes tuition tax credits for the furtherance of private schools in Idaho.

One cannot consider tuition tax credits apart from the issue of the entanglement of government with religion for many schools in Idaho are church-supported and function with a sectarian purpose.

To this one feature of tuition tax credits — the entanglement of government with religion — this letter is addressed. The many other reasons one should oppose tuition tax credits will not be addressed although those reasons are convincing.

In 1788, James Madison wrote a piece which has become a landmark in the development of religious liberty and church-state separation in the United States. His "Memorial and Remonstrance Against Religious Assessments" was penned in response to Patrick Henry's "Bill Establishing a Provision for Teachers of the Christian Religion" in the Virginia Legislature. Henry's bill would have taxed all Virginians for religious purposes, through it would have allowed each taxpayer to designate which church would receive his share of the tax.

Madison's "Memorial" led to the defeat of Henry's bill and the subsequent passage of Jefferson's "Bill for Establishing Religious Freedom" and paved the way for the First Amendment.

From Madison's work it quote: "It is proper to take alarm at the first experiment on our liberties. . . Who does not see that the same authority which can establish Christianity, in exclusion of all religions, may establish with the same ease any particular sect of Christians, in exclusion of all other sects? That the same authority which can force a citizen to contribute three pence only to his property for the support of any other establishment may force him to conform to any other establishment in all cases whatsoever."

Private church-oriented schools are the arm of the parent church, functioning not merely to instruct in secular things but functioning to instruct students in the value system, thought and theology of the church organization. To take away their religious function would be to dilute the unique nature of their program.

To entangle government through a tuition tax system with religious schools is to pose a great threat not to government, but to religion as James Madison's writing so aptly describes.

James Madison and the Founding Fathers understood from better experience in Europe how evil was the entanglement of government with religion. Those who wrote the Idaho Constitution (Section 5, Article 9) which prohibits sectarian appropriations were wise men as well.

It behooves "wise men of the present" to heed the advice of our forebears in this matter. I urge you to cast a no vote on this measure as a statement of the highest of conservative principles.

Annie group thanks valley

The Dillettans of Magic Valley wish to thank everyone in the area for their outstanding support of our production, "Annie." Even the extra matinee performance sold out in two days.

We regret that our contractual arrangements for the use of the CSI Fine Arts building did not allow us to schedule more performances to accommodate the many people who did not get to see the show as well as those who wished to see it again.

To those people whose ticket situation was not as it should have been, we can only apologize. We realize this caused anxiety and that our offers of refunds or tickets for a later date did nothing, in some cases, to atone for the interruption of an expected evening of pleasure.

We have already begun to study the possibilities that arose in the sales this year with the unexpected lines at the box office. We intend that procedures be changed to keep errors to a minimum in the future.

This valley can certainly feel proud of having produced the many talented people — two-thirds of them never appear on stage — who make Dillettans one of the premier community theaters in the United States. Membership is open to everyone and we urge all those who have an expertise to join us.

Frontier has Idaho flights

Some time ago Frontier Commuter Airlines began operating daily direct flights from Pocatello and Idaho Falls directly to Denver, utilizing Convair 580, 58 passenger aircraft. These flights arrive and depart at the Frontier Concourse at Stapleton International Airport in Denver.

I really do feel that if an attempt were made by the city and business officials in Twin Falls, Frontier Commuter would initiate this same type of service from Twin Falls, since Denver would be better than the current Salt Lake City connection point. More flights to more cities are offered from Denver than Salt Lake City, and much better fares are realized when using an airline, as opposed to two which is not the case into and out of Twin Falls.

Furthermore, Frontier Airlines is a much larger carrier than the commuters now operating from Twin Falls, and would attract more tourists to come directly into Twin Falls, than going through Boise or Salt Lake City.

Creek proposal opposed

Dear Senator Nash: It is our understanding that your committee is going to consider legislation proposed as a result of court rulings in a case on Billingsley Creek. We are extremely concerned about the disastrous effect this legislation could have on all Idaho water, opening the door to total speculation and making fiscal responsibility utterly useless. We are opposed to this legislation.

We feel strongly that the people of Idaho should be thoroughly informed about this legislation before any action is taken on it. We hereby request a meeting with the Senate Resources and Environment Committee prior to final drafting of the legislation in question.

Letters/Hansen comic book, trial, draws reader response

Comic book cost his vote

Rep. Hansen's comic book insert in Monday's paper is both amusing and insulting. It is very funny to think that a United States Congressman would authorize such a silly publication about himself. It is also a gross insult to the intelligence of every one of his constituents. Rather than address us as responsible adults, he tries to sway us with cute pictures and simplistic explanations. In doing so, he has lost any chance he may have had for my vote.

You're after wrong dragons

George Hansen's plea of innocence reminds me of Adam's response to God when he was confronted about his disobedience — "It was his business, not his."

His criticism of the government's procedure of providing opportunity of temptation is another case in point. It's as if Adam were cursing God for allowing that tree of . . .

knowledge of good and evil to be allowed in the garden?

George Hansen leads me to believe that he and those who endorse him are weaker than other people because they can't resist those goodies dangling before their eyes. Because of Adam, we all inherit that knowledge, and every person is without excuse.

We were given a whole book to confirm what is expected of us. Contrary to the admonition not to add or subtract from what it says (Paul told the people not to listen to even him if his teaching differed from that previously written), George evidently amended it. Perhaps his new, improved version goes like this:

Genesis 9: 24 " . . . And he shall cleave unto his wife; and they shall be one flesh."

Amendment: However, should it come to pass that the earthly master require his servants to wife the land to reveal the source of their wealth, the husband and wife should seek a financial divide, the thereby, saving the serpent.

Romans 13: 1-2 "Obey the government, for God is the one who has put it there. Pay your taxes too, for these are his reasons."

Amendment: You are to obey your masters and the laws they uphold unless you find that their burden becomes a discomfort. Inasmuch as you feel that they are persecuting you in restricting your freedom to do evil as you wish, berate those who punish lawbreakers. For has it not been written, "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you and persecute you and shall say all manner of evil against you for the name of our sake?"

For the record, let me state that I am neither a Republican nor a Democrat. In fact, I campaigned for George Hansen some years ago, and have supported other Republicans restoring your freedom to do evil as you wish, berate those who punish lawbreakers. For has it not been written, "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you and persecute you and shall say all manner of evil against you for the name of our sake?"

convicted and paid fines for financial misdemeanors. Where's his personal integrity?

Maybe it's as liberal as George Hansen

In choosing which laws to obey, I would understand.

You're after the wrong dragons, George.

The dangerous one is the one who keeps tempting you to disregard The Word.

George isn't dragonslayer

A strange thing, perception. The other day I read a funny book that portrayed George Hansen as some sort of white knight, dragonslayer. "Schampkin of the people" in the fight against big government. I don't quite see it that way.

A year ago I went to Washington D.C. regarding peace and environmentally concerned citizens and groups from all over Idaho representing the arms race and our very own dragon — the INEL and its pet pork barrel project — the New Production Reactor.

The cold came from Charlie to Sally, to Nancy, to me

BOSTON — No one knows where the germ had originally originated, but it is believed to have spent the summer of 1983 hibernating in Houston. By the September, however, this particular germ was once again on the move, lodged in the throat of a small boy named Mike who was entering the Houston school system.

On the first day of the school year, Mike fell into the care of a student teacher by the name of Allison, who spent the morning comforting the crying boy on the assumption that he was emotionally upset. Reconstructing the scenario today, we estimate that Allison kept the boy on her lap for a cumulative two hours during that Monday morning. But let me continue.

Between that day and the following Tuesday, when Allison had developed a certain ringing in her ears and a stuffed nose, she had split a pizza with two of her roommates, Sally and Beth, breathed into the ear of her boyfriend Charles and shared the telephone with at least six other students in her dormitory.

Ellen Goodman

Beth, who was only 19 and not yet what you would call independent, soon decided to take her sore throat home. On the plane back to Mom and Dallas, she sat in the non-smoking section next to Jeff, a wholesaler for a California health-food outlet, who believed in seeking a mind over matter. Jeff gave Beth a sample of ginseng tea, which came in handy a week later when Beth's mother was laid low by a cold of known origin.

As for Jeff, he later found himself in a Chicago hotel functionally unable to work. For the first time since he had moved from Athens, Ohio, to San Diego he was suffering from balloon-headedness and the realization that people will buy health foods from a sick man. Soon Jeff disguised himself in a business suit and took the germ back to San Diego on an L-101 with the precisely 256 other passengers.

To entangle government through a tuition tax system with religious schools is to pose a great threat not to government, but to religion as James Madison's writing so aptly describes.

Among those inadvertently smacked was the caterer, Toshihiro, who did these wonderful things with avocado and sushi and was in great demand all the way north to Los Angeles and San Francisco. It was bad enough that Toshi had something besides wasabi on the sushi when infected the entire state. Toshi also had dinner with the son, Peter, who worked in Sileon Valley and was having an affair with a computer programmer, Helen.

There was an uncomfortable moment a week or so later, when Peter's wife came into the office to discover that all three of them shared the same symptoms. At that point, since it was almost Valentine's Day, Helen decided that it might be wise to go home to St. Louis for a while, where she poured out her soul and her cold into words of Kleenex which she left on the table belonging to her college roommate's husband, Thad.

This man, by general acclamation, was healthy as a horse and always wore his rubbers. But ten days later, the same Thad kissed his wife good-bye, poured some cough medicine down his throat, sneezed some decongestant up his nose, and took off for Washington to give a training session to the Secret Service men about to cover the presidential candidates.

Due to a shortage of equipment, the very sort of thing that Thad rallied against in his annual memos, he was forced to lend his car receiver to an agent named Brian who was soon to be assigned to the Massachusetts

New Brian, mind you, had a reputation for utter cold-mouthedness. He was a loner, you might say, a human isolationist when this medium of restraint did something unprecedented in the history of the service. He sneezed all over her microphone. So it was that precisely one week later, Jane was just beginning to feel a little fullness in the nasal passages and if you can't live up to your self-proclaimed title, then I say relinquish it.

Experts split over sub-carrier crash

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON — U.S. Navy ships escorting the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk lost sonar contact with a Soviet submarine before the sub hit the flattop in the Sea of Japan, the Defense Department's chief spokesman said Thursday.

A Navy spokesman disagreed, saying the escort vessels had deliberately broken sonar contact with the sub about two hours before the collision Wednesday night.

"It is not necessary in an exercise to maintain 24-hour-a-day contact," Lt. Cmdr. John Woodhouse said. "We know they are there, and they know we know they are there." Other Navy officials agreed.

Woodhouse made his remarks after a news briefing by Michael Burch, the assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, who also disclosed that a contrary to earlier Pentagon reports — both vessels had suffered some damage.

Burch could not be reached immediately to comment on Woodhouse's statements.

Burch said the Victor-class, nuclear-powered submarine had been seen coming to the surface on several occasions in previous days and would not have been allowed anywhere near the 80,000-ton carrier in a war situation.

"If it was a wartime situation the submarine would never have gotten in between the battle group," he said. "During peacetime, there is no way that we can prevent free passage. We're talking about peacetime here, and that's the big difference."

Burch contended "there is adequate protection for the fleet in wartime."

Only one of the U.S. Navy's 14 aircraft carriers, the USS America, has its own sonar for underwater detection of submarines. Burch and Navy officials stressed that escort warships and planes and helicopters from the carriers provide such protection.

Asked whether he felt that there was any lapse in security, Burch replied: "None whatsoever."

"I am told by the skipper and the various reports that are filed out of that region that they had lost contact with her," he continued. "And that's not all that unusual. You lose contact, you re-establish contact."

The Kitty Hawk's skipper, Capt. David N. Rogers, told reporters Thursday. "I had no indication on the radar scope and no visual indication" of the submarine just before the collision. "I presume the sub was surfacing and it did not show up on radar."

Rogers also said the nearest escort ship with sonar capability was 2.5 miles from the carrier.

At his briefing, Burch blamed the Soviet vessel for the collision, which occurred during an exercise 150 miles east of the South Korean coast.

"The point remains that the submarine is the burdened vessel," he said, adding that the Victor should have shown navigation lights if it was on the surface or given way to the carrier if submerged.

Street fighting breaks out in Lebanon

By ROBERT H. REID
The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Street fighting broke out Thursday when Druse militiamen disarmed a small, pro-Libyan group they blamed for recent abductions of Christians and a "campaign of lawlessness."

Eight people were killed and 17 wounded, including an American news photographer, in the fighting between the Druse, headed by Walid Jumblatt, and the Sunni Moslem leftist Mourabitoun, police sources said.

Lelighton Mark, 32, a photographer for United Press International, was in stable condition after undergoing surgery to remove a bullet and shell fragments from his chest.

The Mourabitoun — Arabic for "ambushers" — is the largest militia in the Moslem's National Movement coalition, which was founded in 1976 and is headed by Jumblatt. The Mourabitoun had close links to the Palestine Liberation Organization and lost much of its strength after the Israeli invasion of Lebanon in June 1982.

Druse fighters won control of all Mourabitoun strongholds by midday Thursday, including the group's headquarters and radio station.

The attack on the Mourabitoun was ordered after the group failed to abide by the cease-fire called for by Lebanon's leaders' meeting in Switzerland, said Ali Musawi, a spokesman for Jumblatt's party.

A statement from the party accused the Mourabitoun of blackmail, raiding and ransacking shops and restaurants for protection money and kidnaping Christian residents of west Beirut "in an accelerating campaign of lawlessness in recent days."

It offered no specific details and made no mention of the recent kidnappings of three Americans, all of whom were abducted from west Beirut.

But Raffaele de Luttio, a counselor at the Italian Embassy, told police three gunmen abducted him and a friend Wednesday night in west Beirut. They were released a half hour later after the gunmen took their money and car.

Naoum Farah, an official of the Christian Lebanese Forces militia, called on foreign embassies, businesses and news organizations to move from west Beirut to the Christian sector for their own safety.

French president pans war

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Francois Mitterrand of France, addressing a joint meeting of Congress, called Thursday for a global effort to "reduce the level of misery in the world" as an important step toward improving the atmosphere for stability and peace.

Mitterrand said that while the quest for peace is vital, it will be pointless so long as "we allow the underlying causes of war to prosper."

"It is my conviction that many of the revolutions and wars of the Third World are rooted first and foremost in the soil of poverty and economic exploitation," said the French president, who began a two-day visit to Washington by discussing East-West relations with President Reagan.

At a White House state dinner Thursday night, Reagan said the United States "remains thoroughly committed" to the Western alliance and the defense of Europe.

"We seek peace and security, and to that end, America also strives to achieve greater East-West dialogue," Reagan said in toasting Mitterrand.

"We will continue to work for a more stable relationship with the Soviet Union, one that will lead to better understanding and a relaxing of existing tensions."

Woodhouse told American legislators that France supports efforts to bring peace and democratic rule to nations such as those in Central America, where El Salvador not only is fighting leftist insurgents but is plagued by "poverty and economic exploitation."

Plan evolves to oust chief

JERUSALEM (AP) — A measure that would topple the government of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir by requiring early elections passed the first of four votes in the Israeli parliament on Thursday.

The Knesset vote on the opposition Labor Party motion was 61-58, with only former Prime Minister Menachem Begin absent. Two similar measures "later passed by 60-58 margins."

If the Labor Party bill gets through, it would be the first time an Israeli government was forced into an election against its will.

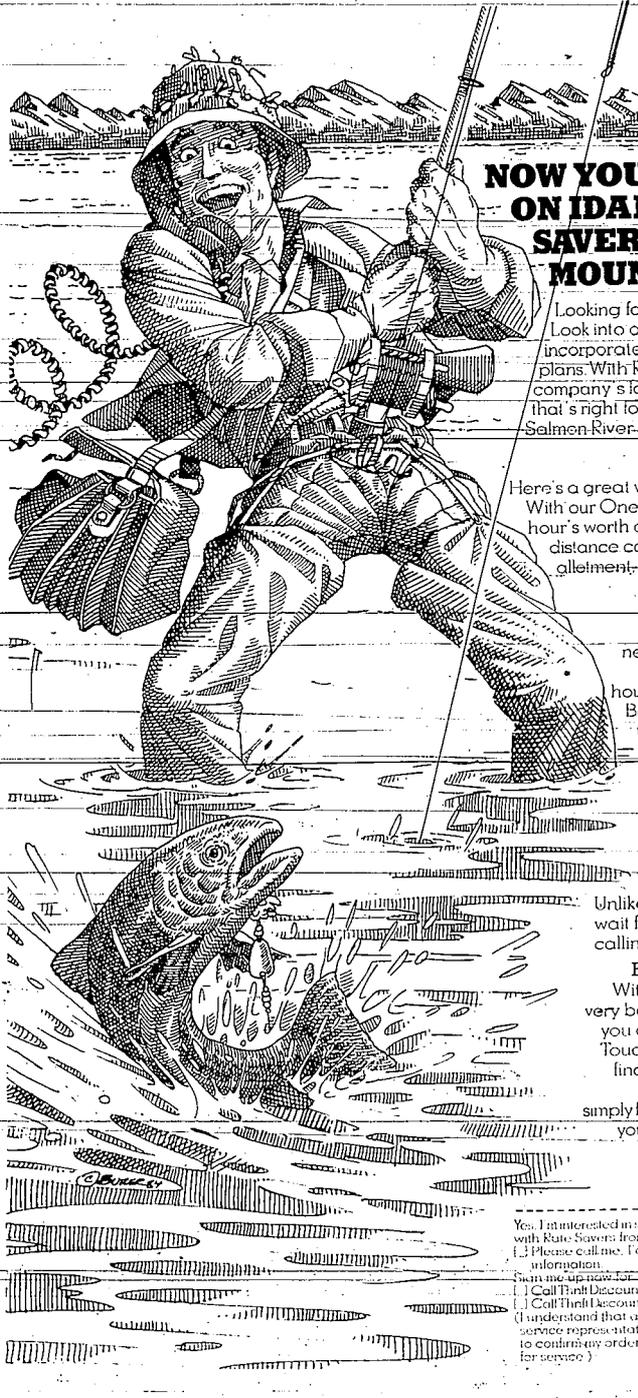

The bills now move to a committee for further debate. They still must survive three more votes by the full Knesset, and two sessions of a committee to mold them into final form. The government's chances of blocking passage appeared dim.

Shamir's term is scheduled to end in November 1985, but government spokesmen have conceded early elections seem inevitable because of the defection of the three-seat TAMI Party from the Likud bloc's governing coalition.

That has made the timing of the vote the key controversy. The opposition wants early elections. Shamir insists time to heal the economy. Inflation is running close to 300 percent this year — with elections perhaps in November.

Elections traditionally are held more than 100 days after passage of such a bill, but that is not a requirement of law.

During the debate before the vote, Shimon Peres, leader of the opposition Labor Party, said elections should be held in May or June.

Heart program remains on critical list

By DONNA ANDERSON
The Associated Press

ALT LAKE CITY — A year after the death of artificial heart recipient Barney Clark, doctors who once hoped to save thousands of dying patients with the plastic organ are still trying to get their program off the critical list.

Still seeking clearance from various regulatory agencies, the researchers are impatiently waiting to do their second implant.

"If we don't get the approval in this country, we'll do it abroad," says the heart's inventor, Dr. Robert Jarvik. "The United States is not going to be the leader in this thing if it sits back and has regulatory mechanisms that take a year between cases."

He believes at least 50,000 people a year could benefit from the artificial heart, but says researchers must perform many implants before they can properly evaluate the device. Once that happens, Jarvik said, the mechanical heart could be available for clinical use at several hospitals within a few years.

Clark, 62, a retired dentist from suburban Seattle, died a year ago Friday after 112 days at the University of Utah Medical Center as the first recipient of a permanent artificial heart.

He had suffered from a degenerative, incurable heart disease called cardiomyopathy and was considered a poor candidate for a heart transplant. After Clark's operation, he grittily insisted the implant was worth it, but he was never able to exchange his hospital room for the quiet life of writing and playing with his grandchildren he had sought.

Instead, his sojourn on the heart was a minefield of repeated surgeries, seizures, severe nosebleeds, pneumonia, emphysema and kidney problems.

The heart's steady, air-driven beats could do nothing to prevent the failure of Clark's other organs and circulatory system that eventually killed him.

Nonetheless, researchers were elated by the heart's performance and predicted that more implants soon would follow. But their request to perform the next operation on a patient with less advanced heart disease has bogged down.

Implant surgeon Dr. William DeVries turned up the university's federally mandated Institutional Review Board deliberated nine months before deciding Jan. 10 to approve a second implant.

Then the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, after considering DeVries' proposal three weeks longer than the 30 days called for in federal guidelines, last week declined to approve it without more information.

"We're very sure we will get approval in the United States," Jarvik said, because none of the FDA's questions involve fundamental issues. But he said the reviewers have been "very, very slow. There's no reason that it has to be so slow."

The FDA questions could delay a second implant an additional two months or more, said Dr. Richard Lee, coordinator of the heart team and acting dean of the school's College of Medicine.

Lee said the FDA's concerns focus on use of a stronger heart valve, experiments with a portable drive unit and on Clark's medical records. The agency also made suggestions about the patient consent form and had questions about how the IRB reached its decision.

DeVries, who angrily criticized the IRB for taking so long "while patients were dying," has declined comment on the FDA delay.

Dr. Lyle Joyce, who assisted DeVries in replacing the failing ventricles of Clark's natural heart with the Jarvik 7 in a seven-hour operation Dec. 2, 1982, said he is "very optimistic" about the future.

Sr. Lyle Joyce said, "It's a shame we have gone a whole year now ... It's almost disrespectful to him (Clark) that we haven't done any more implants."

After receiving IRB approval, DeVries began evaluating potential recipients, but now has stopped until the FDA decides.

"The nature of (heart) disease is such that patients don't have very much time. It's quite discouraging when ... they die," Lee said.

His partner, Howard Weitzman, told the judge: "I don't understand what the standard is for dismissing jurors. This is the first juror we've had come in who believed Mr. De Lorean was innocent, and this juror said she could be fair and impartial."

They argued that the jury candidate was merely presuming De Lorean innocent as she had been instructed.

"We are getting unequal treatment," attorney Donald Re told U.S. District Judge Robert Takasau.

The woman had declared of De Lorean's arrest: "I think probably it was a setup."

Re argued that prospective jurors have been allowed to remain on the panel when they presumed De Lorean was "more likely guilty" but promised to be fair.

"That is a far more dangerous presumption," Re said.

He said the jury candidate was "more likely guilty" but promised to be fair.

2 convicted, 2 free in gang-rape case

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — A jury on Thursday convicted two men of aggravated rape and acquitted two others of all charges in the case of a woman who was gang-raped on a bathroom pool table while spectators cheered.

Two other defendants were convicted last Saturday of aggravated rape in a separate trial before a maximum penalty of life in prison.

The Superior Court jury deliberated just over seven hours before returning the verdicts, ending the highly publicized double trials, which were carried on live television by Cable News Network.

The case shocked the nation and became a rallying point for women's rights groups when a 22-year-old mother of two reported on March 6, 1983, that she had been attacked in Big Dan's tavern in New Bedford. The trial was moved to Fall River, 12 miles to the northwest, because of the heavy publicity.

Victor Raposo, 23, and John Cordeiro, 24, were convicted of aggravated rape. Witnesses testified they had tried to have oral sex with the woman while she was pinned against the table.

Virgilio Medeiros and Jose Medeiros, both 24 and no relation, were found innocent of all charges. Witnesses testified they tried to interfere with efforts to stop the assault and cheered on their friends, but no one directly implicated them in attacking the woman.

Scott Charnis, the victim's attorney, said, "She was satisfied with the jury's verdict."

Juror ousted from De Lorean trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the first time in John Z. De Lorean's cocaine trafficking trial, a prospective juror was dismissed Thursday because she said she believed the maker had been "set up" by the government.

The woman's dismissal brought a vehement protest from De Lorean's defense team who alleged they were not being treated fairly.

They argued that the jury candidate was merely presuming De Lorean innocent as she had been instructed.

"We are getting unequal treatment," attorney Donald Re told U.S. District Judge Robert Takasau.

The woman had declared of De Lorean's arrest: "I think probably it was a setup."

Teachers molest pupils

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five teachers at a suburban preschool were arrested Thursday following their indictment on a total of 109 counts of felony child molestation involving an estimated 100 students over a 10-year period, the district attorney said.

"We're talking about rape, sodomy, oral copulation and fondling," District Attorney Robert Philibosian told a news conference regarding Thursday's indictments of the instructors from the now-defunct McMartin School in the ocean-side community of Manhattan Beach.

He said the five defendants, including three relatives of the school's founder, Virginia McMartin, allegedly obtained the silence of their victims—who average as young as 2—by threatening to harm their parents.

"In order to back those threats, small animals were actually slaughtered in their (the victims') presence," Philibosian said.

A Superior Court arraignment was expected Friday morning, the district attorney added. He noted that the investigation was continuing, but declined to comment on whether more arrests were expected.

Philibosian said the estimate that 100 children were molested was based on county grand jury testimony from nine girls and nine boys ranging in age from 2 to 13.

Most of the counts returned by the grand jury were against Raymond Charles Buckley, 25, of Manhattan Beach. Accused of 75 counts, Buckley could be sentenced to as much as 156 years in prison if found guilty.

Philibosian said "testimony indicated that Buckley may have been involved in criminal activity "on the (school) premises when he was as young as 18 years old."

Philibosian said his office was seeking bail of $1 million for Buckley, the grandson of Ms. McMartin.

Buckley's mother, Peggy McMartin Buckley, 57, was charged with 15 counts carrying a maximum penalty of 36 years in prison. Bail of $350,000 was requested for her, Philibosian said.

Mrs. Buckley's daughter and Buckley's sister, Peggy Ann Buckley, 28, of Newport Beach, was charged with one count of child molestation and could spend eight years in prison if convicted. Bail of $50,000 was requested.

Betty Ralder of Manhattan Beach, believed to be in her late 50s, was accused of 12 counts and faces up to 39 years in prison. Bail of $250,000 was requested.

Babbette Spiller, 36, of Manhattan Beach, was charged with six counts carrying a maximum 10-year sentence. Philibosian was seeking $125,000 bail.

Hart and Mondale vie for Jewish vote

By CAROLE FELDMAN
The Associated Press

Walter F. Mondale, $110,000 richer after a fund-raising blitz in California, accused Gary Hart on Thursday of a political flip-flop on Israel as Hart apologized for a letter that differed from his statements on moving the U.S. Embassy in Israel to Jerusalem.

The Hart apology came as he and Mondale traded accusations about each other's loyalty to Israel in advance of New York's April 3 primary.

Both candidates are seeking to advance their position among Jewish voters, who have accounted for about a third of the Democratic primary turnout in New York City in recent primaries.

The third candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, took the day off Thursday.

Hart, at a speech in New York City, charged that Mondale had tried to "intimidate and coerce" Israel into taking unacceptable security risks. Unlike his rivals for the Democratic presidential nomination, he said, "I give no apologies to make and no explanations to offer" for his stance on Israel.

But minutes later, Hart was asked to explain a letter sent out by his Senate office that suggested the U.S. Embassy in Israel be moved to Jerusalem only as part of overall effort to negotiate a Middle East peace treaty.

Hart said that if elected president, he would move the embassy without preconditions.

As for the letter, he said, "I apologize for that ambiguity. It is unfortunate. I assume responsibility for it. But the letter does not reflect my position today or my position a year ago, or for that matter six weeks ago."

He later said he wasn't "apologizing for anything," only accepting responsibility for the letter.

At a news conference before leaving Los Angeles for New York, Mondale said Hart's statement that he favors moving the embassy from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem represented "a blatant political shift" just days after Hart had written to the Zionist Organization of America indicating another point of view.

In the letter, Mondale said, Hart said the United States shouldn't take sides in the matter unless agreement was reached by all sides.

Mondale said he interpreted this to mean the various Arab factions in the Middle East, which he said would never agree to the move.

"The chances of that are as great as the sun coming up from the west," he added.

Mondale was talking about the letter in Los Angeles at about the same time Hart was being asked about it in New York.

The former vice president's attack on Hart culminated a 20-hour trip to California that amassed $110,000 for the Mondale campaign, according to Mickey Kantor, the state campaign chairman.

Jackson has offended many Jews with his reference to them as "Hyrites" and to New York City as "Hyritown," and also by his strong ties to the Arab community.

But Assemblyman Albert Vann, Jackson's New York campaign manager, said he thought Jackson's reference to "Hyritown" was "not a fatal error." He said Jewish workers in the campaign were disappointed, but stayed on.

"They still feel he's the best candidate," he said.

Jackson plans a major campaign effort in New York later this week.

The candidates' keen interest in New York is explained by the 252 convention delegates at stake in the primary.

Almost a third of the delegates to the Democratic National Convention have been chosen, and Mondale leads Hart, 629-357. Jackson has 61.

Voters alter minds quickly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last-minute shifts in voters' opinions have been a key factor in the outcome of this year's Democratic presidential primaries, and pollsters have tracked those changes right up to the last minute.

This week in Illinois, for example, Walter F. Mondale was lifted to victory over Sen. Gary Hart on a late surge of support that was reflected in sampling taken on each of the days leading up to the balloting.

Conversely, Hart won the New Hampshire primary on Feb. 28 with a closing wave of decisions that the same poll tracked up until the day before the election.

Hart held on to win in Florida despite what a late poll there suggested was a final move among voters toward Mondale.

In each of the three states, exit polls of voters had the late-breaking tendencies reflected in the so-called tracking polls leading up to the balloting: that many voters made up their minds in the day or two before the primaries.

Peter D. Hart, the private pollster who works for Mondale, said Thursday that voter opinions are changing rapidly so far this year, outdating poll results almost daily.

"The shelf-life of a survey in this election may be about 48 hours," he told the Washington Press Club.

Committee studies hiking license fee

BOISE (AP) — A state committee wants some questions answered before it acts on legislation raising Idaho driver's license fees by $2.

The Senate Transportation Committee on Thursday decided to hold the bill, which has passed the House, for further study.

Members had so many questions about where the extra $432,000 would go and how it would be spent, that the panel appointed a subcommittee to look into the matter further.

The state Department of Transportation, with the support of county sheriffs throughout the state, wants the extra revenue for a program eliminating long delays in getting drivers licenses to people who've passed their drivers exam.

The average delay now is about 28 working days from the time the department receives the application—Mac Shoemaker, chief of the department's motor vehicle bureau, told the committee.

He said the money would help set up a program that would enable anyone who passes their driver's exam to walk out that same day with their new license in hand.

The bill would raise the fee for a driver's license from $10 to $12, he said.

Of the $2, half would go to the counties for their operating expenses. The other dollar would go to the state highway account to pay for the cameras and computers necessary for a so-called "instant-issue" drivers license program.

The department has come under criticism for the lengthy delays in getting drivers licenses out to people, and the committee meeting was no exception.

"I got my license three days ago, and took the exam on the 27th of December," said Sen. Bruce Sweeney, D-Leviston.

Boise explosion costly

BOISE (AP) — City fire investigators Thursday sifted through the rubble left after a massive explosion and fire ripped through a Boise business complex, seriously injuring one person.

Robert Perata, 43, the owner of the Boise Bakery that was all but leveled by the blast, was taken off the critical list after undergoing nearly four hours of surgery. But Perata remained in the intensive care unit at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in serious condition.

Deputy Fire Chief Ken Vargason said investigators still needed more time to substantiate their initial finding that the explosion resulted from a broken gas pipe that Perata had been trying to repair.

A hospital spokesman said Perata suffered two fractured ankles, a fractured knee and a fractured skull along with minor burns when the building housing his business and a wholesale florist erupted during Wednesday's evening rush hour.

An employee of the bakery, located just outside the city's core downtown area, was treated at the hospital and released shortly after the incident.

Damage was estimated in excess of $1 million from the explosion, which one bystander said she thought sounded like an atomic bomb. Shock waves from the blast shattered windows in neighboring buildings and scattered debris over a 14-block area.

As flames leaped 30 feet in the air along with billowing clouds of smoke, rush-hour traffic was snarled and power to the area interrupted.

SB1272 (Health, Education and Welfare) - Eliminates necessity for tuberculosis examinations of school personnel.

Budget panel stymied by funding fight

BOISE (AP) - With the Idaho House still wrangling over proposed tax increases, legislative budget writers Thursday temporarily suspended action on the most critical part of the 1985 state budget - funding for education.
Over objections from a minority coalition of Democrats and Republicans, the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee voted 12-8 to make the public schools budget, which by itself accounts for more than 40 percent of all general revenue spending, the very last item on its agenda.

"That will give us a little more time to see what happens in our chambers," said Sen. Mark Ricks, R-Rexburg.
The committee also appeared intent on picking off decisions on spending for higher education and vocational education, the other two key components of the state budget. But attempts to force their immediate consideration led the committee to adjourn until later in the day.
But mounting indications that the revenue will ultimately be made available for substantial education spending increases in the coming year prompted Gov. John Evans to issue an optimistic assessment about the budget negotiations that forced a special legislative session just a year ago.

"We're getting very close," said Evans, who has been demanding major education budget hikes after capitulating to a zero-increase budget last year.
Conservative committee members, however, appeared less confident about the Legislature's final decision on higher taxes.

McClure introduces wilderness package

BOISE (AP) — Leaving the wilderness issue unresolved will threaten timber-dependent communities throughout the West, says Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho.

McClure made his remarks to the Senate Wednesday in introducing a 526,000-acre wilderness bill. Idaho's congressional delegation announced last week.

The bill also would release about 7.5 million acres of roadless land in national forests in Idaho for non-wilderness use, McClure said in written comments placed in the Congressional Record.

The additional wilderness proposed is vastly short of the amount recommended by conservationists, and slightly below the recommendation of the Idaho timber industry.

But McClure said Idaho will continue to have the largest wilderness system in every state but Alaska. He hinted the bill is subject to compromise.

"I want to make it perfectly clear that in introducing this bill today, I am not closing any doors," he said. "I view it as just the opposite."

Release of timber resources is desperately needed for non-wilderness areas, McClure said.

GOV. JOHN EVANS Endorses tribal plan

Indians' recognition sought

BOISE (AP) — Gov. John Evans, saying Idaho's Indian tribal leaders "need to have special recognition," has generally endorsed a Nez Perce Tribe plan for expansion of the state Fish and Game Commission to include a permanent Indian member.

"I certainly think it would be worthwhile ... because they obviously have very basic fish and game rights throughout the state," the governor said Thursday after signing into law two Indian affairs bills.

Flanked by representatives from four of the state's five recognized tribes, Evans approved legislation protecting Indian burial grounds and authorizing the state and local governments to enter into cooperative agreements with the tribes for joint concurrent exercise of powers and for transfer of real and personal property. Although he said he wanted to discuss the issue of a permanent Indian commission seat with the five fish and game commissioners first, the chief executive said the plan could ensure continued cooperation between the tribes and the state in fish and wildlife resource management.

"The proposal is appropriate, and we should consider implementing it," he said.

Gordy Higheagle, a Nez Perce tribal council member, broached the expansion proposal Wednesday during a meeting with the Fish and Game Commission. Although the commissioners let it drop without discussion, Chairman Keith Stonebraker said the proposal and alternatives to it will be considered at the regular April meeting.

Under Higheagle's plan, the governor would select "the additional commission member from a panel of nominees submitted by the five tribes. Each tribe would place one name on that panel."

Claiming their political sovereignty and fish and wildlife treaty rights, Higheagle and Allen Pinkham, chairman of the Nez Perce executive council, said the tribes want to have an active role in the policy decisions that affect their rights. But they contended the commission and state fish and game officials have effectively kept them in the dark until those decisions have been made.

PUC asks fine on firm

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission is asking for a $2,000 penalty against a Utah trucking firm for accidentally dropping two bags of a hazardous substance on an Idaho highway.

The Public Utilities Commission said Thursday Leatham Brothers, Inc., Salt Lake City, is charged with dropping two bags of sodium dichromate on Idaho 75 near Stanley on March 12.

The PUC alleges the company violated state regulations on the transportation of hazardous substances by failing to properly secure the toxic load.

A complaint filed in 4th District Court here asks for a civil penalty against the firm. It is not a criminal complaint.

The PUC said a company truck driver told an investigator a bag of the chemical was protruding from a pallet on the flatbed truck at a loading terminal at Richmond, Calif.

The investigation — said — the investigator reported the truck driver dealt with the problem by putting the bag of chemicals on top of the load, but when he arrived at his destination in Idaho's Custer County, two bags were missing.

Idaho 75 was closed for about five hours while officers looked for the missing bags.

Commissioners announce re-election plans

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Commissioners Judy Felton and Marvin Hempleman announced Thursday that they plan to seek new terms in office this coming November.

Both say a new county jail is their top priority.

Felton, 42, of Route 3, Buhl, will be running for a four-year term from the Third District, which includes the west end of the county. She first was elected to the county commission in 1982, to a two-year term. Hempleman, 45, who lives south of Twin Falls, will run for a two-year term. He was first elected in 1980 from the Second District, which includes most of the city of Twin Falls, and he has served a four-year term.

Both Republicans, Felton and Hempleman will file for their seats by district, but will run at-large in the election.

The two-year term is rotated among the districts to ensure that three new commissioners never are elected in any one year.

Commission Chairwoman Ann Cover, representing the eastern part of the county, is midway through a four-year term.

Felton says aside from the new jail, the biggest problem facing the commissioners continues to be raising "the level of confidence" people have in county government. "I think this is done by programs of self-improvement by county officials and employees, and by opening county government to the public," she says.

"People have to be aware of what's happening. Then they will find out even though they haven't realized it, if (county government) is affecting their lives." Getting people to serve on volunteer boards is a first step, she says.

"Confidence" also is raised by operating the county more like a business. The county is getting too big to function on "good, old-boy politics," she says.

She points to computerization and the county's new merit-pay policy as steps to greater businesslike efficiency.

Hempleman says the jail is the most urgent problem facing the county.

After that, he thinks the commissioners should continue to contain indigent costs. Aside from these issues, Hempleman says he cannot predict what will be the next important issues to arise.

"Things are popping up every day," he says.

Felton says one weakness the present commissioners have is a reluctance to get out to areas of the county other than the city.

"Sometimes, we almost get stuck in the Courthouse," she says. "Sometimes, people are intimidated by coming into the Courthouse."

Search continues for 2nd escapee

Officer gets 30 stitches to seal wound

JEROME — A prison escapee, suspected of committing a series of armed robberies in Washington, has been charged with allegedly wounding a Twin Falls police officer during a Wednesday night chase that spanned two counties.

Meanwhile, the suspect's accomplice — another prison escapee — was still at large at midnight Thursday.

Jeffrey Dean Morris, 26, who escaped from a federal prison on McNeil Island, near Tacoma, Wash., on Dec. 29, was brought before Magistrate Judge Roger Burdick in Fifth District Court in Jerome on Thursday afternoon.

Morris has been charged with battery with intent to commit a serious felony — attempted murder in connection with the wounding at Larry Strolberg, a Twin Falls police officer. Morris's bond has been set at $100,000, and he is being held in the Jerome County Jail, where he had been housed since his arrest about 9 p.m. Wednesday.

The arrest was the climax to an evening of gunfire and a wild chase on Interstate 84.

It began at about 8 p.m., when Twin Falls police Sgt. Robert Hodge spotted Morris's car in the parking lot of Fay Less Drug off Blue Lakes Boulevard North, according to the complaint filed with the court.

The vehicle matched the description of one wanted in connection with several robberies, said Twin Falls Public Safety Director Tim Qualls. "With Morris was a man identified by Washington authorities as 26-year-old Timothy Alger.

The two men's vehicle took off north on Blue Lakes Boulevard, going north, with Hodge and later, Strolberg in pursuit. The officers reported that shots were fired as they pursued the fleeing vehicle through the northern portion of Twin Falls.

Near the Perrine Bridge, Strolberg approached the fleeing vehicle and spotted a man in the back seat with a small, dark weapon. One of the men then shot out the rear window of their 1976 sedan and fired at Strolberg. One round hit the right side of his car's windshield.

After the car crossed the bridge, the man fired more shots. One bullet struck Strolberg on the left side of the head, according to the court complaint.

A crease, several inches in length and requiring 30 to 40 stitches to close, was left along the top of Strolberg's head.

Believing that he only had been cut by flying glass, Strolberg continued the chase, Qualls said. Later, the officer drove himself to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, where he was treated and released.

Mountain Bell officials explain the changes

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — One woman's basement flooded, and the water destroyed her phone, along with its wiring.

Mountain Bell could take care of the wiring. But the lady will have to go to another company — the American Telephone and Telegraph's Information Systems Co. — to put the phone back up on her wall.

Executives from Mountain Bell came to Twin Falls on Wednesday to explain the ins and outs of telephone service since January. That's when mammoth AT&T, which formerly owned Mountain Bell, was broken apart by a federal court order.

"We are still undergoing the throes of the divorce and trying to make the best of it," said C.E. "Gene" Hill, the Idaho vice president for Mountain Bell.

So are many customers. The changes have been substantial. Briefly, Mountain Bell will supply local phone service, but not telephone equipment. It will handle long-distance calls in the southern half of Idaho, but not outside Idaho. It will repair outside phone lines free, but not always inside ones.

But those guidelines leave a lot of room for confusion.

For instance, telephone bills now are coming with multiple pages. Twin Falls assistant supervisor Cynthia Prescott said each is marked with the company — Mountain Bell, AT&T Communications or AT&T Information Systems — that provides the services listed. But the

For teenagers

Grant will provide summer jobs

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The board of the Region IV Development Association approved a summer jobs program Thursday that it hopes will put 248 teenagers to work.

The program, which will find work for economically disadvantaged youths with various local government agencies, will be run by the Idaho Department of Employment. It will be funded through a $426,000 federal grant.

The Region IV Development

Association acts as a regional clearinghouse-type agency for government programs that affect the Magic Valley.

The jobs program is supposed to allow teenagers to get "acclimated to the world of work," said Region IV staff member Rob Lundgren.

The program will not concentrate on teaching teenagers private-sector skills, but it will give them work experience, teach them to follow schedules and allow them to shoulder some responsibility, he said.

The primary criteria for selection is that a person come from an economically disadvantaged family.

Originally, the program was intended to give teenagers a summer job so they could earn enough money to remain in school during the year, Lundgren said.

However, the program has been modified slightly, so that selection now will take into account factors that may make a youth "socially de-

Kimberly community auction draws out-of-state buyers

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — "If you look over this way and see smoke, then you'll know the sale has started," says Irvin Eilers, referring to the "hot air" five auctioneers are going to be spouting at the 25th annual Kimberly Community Auction today and Saturday.

Eilers, an auctioneer with Messersmith Auction Service, holds the yearly event on his own farm, a mile-and-a-half south of Kimberly.

The event started in the spring of 1959, shortly after he returned from the Western College of Auctioneering at Billings, Mont, he says.

He says many of his neighbors had equipment that they wanted to sell, so he got the idea of creating the community affair.

"There were eight to 10 consignors that first year," he says. "Last year, there were 150, and we took in over $300,000."

Nothing that about 1,000 persons showed up last year; he says he expects an even larger turnout this year.

Contacting buyers through Messersmith's mailing list, as well as sending out special flyers for the event, Eilers says people come from California and every state that borders Idaho.

"It's grown every year since we started, and this'll be the largest yet," The auctioneer says he doesn't know why the Kimberly sale has taken hold the way it has.

"We've tried the same thing in many locations in the Magic Valley, but this is the only place it really worked. They're sure good people to work with."

Eilers says it looks like it's going to be "the best weather for the sale we've ever had: I've seen it when it snowed, then warmed up and water was running down the corrugates."

About six acres of Eilers' farm will be packed with trucks, cars, farm equipment, boats, irrigation pipe, building material and, yes, even some kitchen sinks. But no farm animals or furniture. Eilers says they sold those the first year or two, but the auction grew so large they had to drop them from the list.

Concerning himself, the robust Eilers says he should start thinking about retiring, but he says he doesn't know what he'd do with himself.

"Ever since I was a little kid going to sales with my dad, I wanted to be an auctioneer. I'd practice behind the barn."

In fact, Eilers practiced so much that when he finally did go to auctioneers school, "they thought I'd done it before. My chant was already there."

Eilers says today's sale will be mostly devoted to selling trucks, cars and miscellaneous farm equipment. Tractors and ground-working equipment will be sold Saturday.

Most of the time, he says, there will be four auctioneers going at one time, with him coordinating things.

"The ladies from the Lutheran Church will serve lunch both days out of our two chuckwagons. And we'll have two cashiers working out of the back of one chuckwagon and two bookkeepers out of the other one."

Eilers says he couldn't possibly handle the event without the long hours that his wife, Thelma, and his son, Lewis, put in to help. And he praises the consignors who, year after year, furnish items to the sale.

But he does have one request: "Please don't leave leftover equipment for longer than a week after the sale. I have to get my field worked up and corrugated." The sale will begin at 10 a.m. both days and should end about 5 p.m.

Jobs

These factors include whether a teenager has been in trouble with the law, has been placed in foster care or comes from a single-parent home.

Board member Everett Ward and Chairman Bud Brinager asked at Thursday's meeting why the program should reward teenagers who drop out of school.

But staff members defended the change, saying the jobs should go to those most in need. They said that youth certainly qualify in that regard, they said.

The program will aim to place 27 teenagers in public-sector jobs in Blaine County, three in Camas County, 25 in Cassia County, 14 in Gooding County, 26 in Jerome County, three in Lincoln County, 36 in Minidoka County and 104 in Twin Falls County.

The jobs will include teachers' aides, groundskeepers, port attendants and forest aides. Placements will be made in city and county districts, libraries and a variety of state agencies.

The program primarily is for youths 16 to 19, although youths 14 to 21 years old are eligible.

In other business at Thursday's meeting, the board:

- Elected Jerome County Commissioner Carl Butler, Gooding Mayor Gene Heller and Twin Falls County Commissioner Ann Cover to be the association's president, vice president and secretary-treasurer, respectively for 1984.
- Elected Henry Pharris of Jerome and Don Pene of Burley to the South Central Private Industry Council.

State chief seeks business alliance

By DAVID MOFFAT Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Economic development begins with small businesses, "from the bottom up," David Porter, the chief of the state Division of Economic and Community Affairs, said Thursday.

Porter was speaking to the annual meeting of the directors of the Region IV Development Association, the group that acts as the clearinghouse for federal grants and economic development programs in south-central Idaho.

Porter said Idaho "should take a long hard look at where it turns out most of the (economic) action is anyway" — at home.

And he said a new state program, called "PRO Idaho," will address these issues in the near future. The program will be an "economic development program for the state of Idaho," concentrating on partnerships, resources and opportunities, he said.

Nearly 80 percent to 90 percent of all new jobs are created in small businesses and existing business, Porter said.

But the recent high cost of money has made it harder now than ever to start or expand a business, he said.

This is why government and business must cooperate, and why PRO Idaho will try to create "consortiums" of individuals and organizations in Idaho's five planning regions to bring people, money and opportunity together, he said.

Porter said the program will concentrate on financing, which has become "tremendously confusing" in the last 15 years.

For example, a lot of people in Idaho have wealth, but they are investing it out-of-state, he said. "If we give them the opportunity, we can create our own venture capital."

PRO Idaho will help us get off our butts with the resources we have," he said.

Porter said it is "depressing" to see what other states have done by bringing businessmen and government together.

Partnerships between small businesses and government can create more permanent jobs than any effort at recruiting a major company, such as the effort that was made to attract Stauffer Foods to Twin Falls last year, he said.

Phones

bill is paid with a single check — to Mountain Bell.

Mountain Bell charges for local phone service. AT&T Communications charges for out-of-state, long-distance calls to northern Idaho. AT&T Information Systems charges for telephone equipment, such as the monthly rent paid to use a telephone.

Of course, Mountain Bell customer may not be dealing with either AT&T company, because he or she might be using another long-distance system or might own his or her own phone.

In another situation, Mountain Bell will repair wiring inside a home or business for free only if the customer is paying a 45-cent wiring maintenance charge every month. Otherwise, the customer has to make repairs alone or hire somebody. As a practical matter, the charge has been left on all bills unless the customer has ordered it changed, said state rate officer Jim Wozniak.

When calling for repairs, Mountain Bell customers actually are phoning toll-free to a Salt Lake City repair office, which relays the trouble back to Pocatello for scheduling and finally, to technicians in the Mogie Valley, said Dick Raines, the manager of distribution and service for the Twin Falls area.

But perhaps the best idea comes in the front of the phone book, which list thousands of names of customer-service representatives.

Mountain Bell also has a special number to unravel some of the confusion — 1-800-555-5000, the officials said. A Mountain Bell representative on that line can tell a caller who to contact for what reason.

Twin Falls church to host program

TWIN FALLS — "The Gospel According to Mark," a dramatic presentation of the complete gospel, will be given by Michael Reardon at the Church of the Ascension in Twin Falls tonight at 7:30.

Reardon performs by reciting the text of Jerusalem Bible verbatim, in memory — Patrick Lane, the director of the performance, has developed a lighting show to blend with Reardon's words.

The public is invited to attend the show at the church, 210 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. Admission will be $4.

Shooting

The bullet had entered through Stroberg's hat and had followed the outline of his skull. It was found in the hat with bits of hair adhered to it, according to officers.

Stroberg has been told by Qualls not to discuss the shooting with the press.

However, his wife, Diane, said Thursday, "Right now, he's anxious to get back to work. I think mentally, he's ready, but maybe not physically."

Still a bit shaken, Mrs. Stroberg accompanied her husband to Jerome on Thursday to fill out a probable-cause statement.

She said she knew nothing of her husband's participation in the chase until he called her from the hospital, saying he was fine but had been injured slightly.

During the chase, Hodge's vehicle also was struck by bullets in the windshield and the side windows, Qualls said.

By this time, the chase had crossed the bridge, had proceeded west on 1-84, missed to the first Jerome exit, and had turned back east, again on the interstate.

Jerome County and Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies responded by establishing a roadblock near the U.S. 33 and Interstate 84 intersection. Officers were notified later, however, that the suspects had abandoned their car about two miles west of the intersection and had fled on foot.

An unloaded submachine gun and a police scanner later were found in the vehicle. Two more handguns were recovered by Jerome officers from a dairy corral, where Morris dropped them just prior to his arrest.

Jerome County Sheriff—Eliza Hall said Morris threw down his guns and ran—but was taken into custody without other resistance.

Morris and Alger also are wanted in connection with robberies in King County, Kirkland, Bellevue, Longview and Vancouver, Wash., which took place during the first three months of this year.

Information received in Jerome on Thursday indicated that Morris escaped from McNeil Island on Dec. 29.

City to buy used cars for police in money-saving strategy

By THOMAS MOHRLANG
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — The Burley police department will begin purchasing used vehicles for its city fleet under a plan adopted this week by the Burley City Council.

Police Lt. Jim Hignens said the purpose of the plan is to increase the number of vehicles in the fleet in order to save wear and tear on the cars.

At present, the department uses nine cars. Under the new plan, the fleet will be increased to 20 cars maintaining a one-to-one ratio between cars and men.

Councilman Garth Payne said he had reservations about buying used vehicles, saying he feared maintenance costs on cars with over 80,000 mileage would be high.

Hignens pointed out that the vehicles are used as California Highway patrol cars and that the mileage was highway mileage and not town mileage. The vehicles must meet California State specifications before being sold, he said.

The council agreed to adopt Hignens' plan for one year on a trial basis. The cars will be purchased for $2,300 each, not including painting and equipment, and the initial purchase will be for four vehicles.

In other business, Mayor Chuck Shaddock read a letter to the council from Jay Tilly, a Burley resident who operates an aircraft maintenance business at the Burley Airport.

According to the letter, Tilly wants to sell his hangar at the airport. City Attorney Bill Parsons said he saw no problem with Tilly's plan, provided the new owner agrees to follow provisions of the property lease with the city, which includes the stipulation that any business conducted in the structure be aircraft-related. The city will not exercise its option to purchase the structure, said Parsons, as members of the council have decided the city should not be in the leasing business.

The city will take possession of the structure at the end of Tilly's lease, provided the structure is not removed within 30 days of the end of the lease.

As part of the regular council meeting, a public hearing was held to gather input about a tract of land the city is purchasing for future recreational area.

The hearing was held pursuant to regulations pertaining to a federal grant for which the city has applied. The grant will be used to finance a comprehensive plan for the tract. No one in attendance commented on the proposal.

In other business: Earl Simpson, the Burley golf course professional, presented the council with an annual report on the golf course. The 11-page document outlined the budget for the course as well as a list of improvements made to the property during the past year.

The report noted all donated labor and material from local businesses and individuals, with a total estimated value of $436,661. The report also outlined proposed improvements to the golf course for 1984.

The council appointed Donna Kunaui of Burley to the city's Library Board. Kunaui will fill the remainder of the term of Jan. Smith, whose resignation was accepted by the council. The term runs until June 1986.

Council studies itinerant merchants ordinance

By JAENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — The Gooding City Council is looking at the possibility of creating an itinerant merchants ordinance.

The council took under advisement this week a request from Marvin Brown, of the Gooding Merchants Bureau, to adopt an itinerant merchant ordinance.

Brown said that Gooding merchants are losing money to "one-shot, out-of-state vendors," who bring in items like tools, fish or produce.

"If we (the city of Gooding) charged a fee for this type of operation, it would get something back for all the money that's going out," Brown said.

The council agreed to consider the matter and also agreed that street corner vendors do detract from local business.

"But we need to define itinerant merchant very carefully," Moline added, explaining that occasionally a local business or civic organization contracts with such traveling businesses to bring in merchandise for a special promotion and takes a percentage of the profits.

The council will review similar ordinances in other Magic Valley towns and take the issue up again at a later time.

The council also considered a request from Jerry Howard to operate a business at his home at 237 Michigan St.

Howard requested a six-month variance to the city's residential zoning to allow his auto repair business until he can relocate it.

Mayor Gene Heller told Howard there is no precedent for a temporary variance and explained that the zoning ordinance defines auto repair and service stations differently from other "in-home" businesses.

"You will have to have the approval of all your neighbors for 300 feet around the business," Heller told Howard.

Moline also expressed concern with Howard's ability to provide adequate storage and parking on his property and to deal adequately with the "unsightly nature" of such a business.

Heller stressed that the council needs to consider how such a business would affect property values in the area and the city business improvement prospects in general.

Howard explained that he did not know until recently that the repair shop he erected last fall was in violation of city ordinances. "I need the six months to get established financially and find out if it will pay to find another place for it," Howard explained, adding "I've already invested $15,000 in the business."

The matter was taken under advisement until Howard presents the necessary signatures from his neighbors, and the city planning and zoning commission makes a recommendation.

The planning and zoning board heard Howard's request last week but had not presented its decision to the council by Monday.

Engineer warns leaders their chance for grants not good

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — Hagerman should not get its hopes up for any federal grant money this year.

Engineer Doug Howard of Twin Falls said the chances of Hagerman getting such a grant are "not too good" because there are about 70 Idaho cities competing for only a dozen grants.

Howard, who gave the city council an update Tuesday on grant money available for water and sewer systems, said 10 of 12 grants awarded last year went to "job-oriented" projects. Since Hagerman would not create new jobs with grant money, it is less likely to win a grant, he added.

In another matter, the engineer advised the council that a water tank in Hagerman is not needed to improve pressure. Rather, he suggested old lines may be corroded, plugged or too small and need replacement.

A booster pump might also be a solution to low pressure problems, he noted.

Howard briefly mentioned the city might raise money for a water tank by selling surplus water and runoff water into generators to produce power for sale.

The council took no action but requested Howard to apply for a grant for Hagerman and "look into every angle we've got" to solve the city's various water, sewer and street problems.

In other business: Fifteen baseball players volunteered to excavate the two city park baseball diamonds into legal-sized playing fields.

The free labor was offered in response to a city request for labor and donated materials for the Hagerman City Park, all of which will be evaluated and matched with federal funds if the city gets a park grant.

Richard Schwann, a Grand Glacier, representing a community group of ball players, said they will remove a berm of dirt — made two years ago as the border of an unsuccessful "leak skating rink" — and will enlarge the existing diamond to regulation size so tournaments may be held there.

Although the ball players are ready to go to work at once, Mayor Merle Owsley asked them to wait until April 1, so if the city receives a grant later this month the value of the labor will be matched with funds.

Another major park improvement scheduled to begin soon is a new parking area by the senior citizen center. Owsley made a public request for about 200 feet of railroad ties to line the area.

"We're looking for a donation," he said. "It was reported some people are turning their water back on after the city has shut it off for non-payment. Since city code books are currently being updated, the council decided to incorporate into them an unspecified increase of fines for unauthorized tampering with water shut off valves."

The council discussed the growing number of stray dogs in the city and decided to "look into" passing a new leash law and establishing a city dog pound. Presently, only dog tags are required.

"We have a lot of problems with dogs," Owsley noted.

Firm chosen to plan street

JEROME — With one dissenting vote, the Jerome City Council voted Tuesday to negotiate with J-U-B Engineers Inc. of Twin Falls for design of the Eighth Avenue East construction project.

Councilman Walter Bentzinger voted for Gary Lee as engineer for the project, while council members Glen Capps and Jeanne Vandiver favored the larger firm since Lee, who attended the meeting, said he had only one other member in his firm.

Public Works Director Lanny Sloan said the city needs to have the work completed as soon as possible in order to obtain funding for 1985. The Idaho Department of Transportation will be involved with the city in widening and resurfacing the street because of state participation on project costs, Sloan said.

A public hearing to correct any improper irrigation assessments, brought a number of complaints from residents who say they have to pay for water they can not or do not use.

Although these complaints were not relative to the hearing topic Tuesday night, Capps recommended the city investigate its system of assessments. He suggested Jerome officials discuss methods of handling water rights with other cities since one complaining resident said no other city in the area charges property owners according to water rights on their property.

Engineers laud paper's hydro series

TWIN FALLS — The Times-News has won first place in the National Society of Professional Engineers' Journalism competition for its series last year on the boom in small-hydro projects in the Magic Valley. The series was published August 14-20.

Reporters Hal Bernton and David Moffat took first-place honors in the competition's newspaper category for writing the seven-part series, which took an in-depth look at the hydroelectric industry and its impact on area residents.

The articles explored the business and politics behind the hydro boom, the track record and financing of one Shoshone plant and the environmental consequences of the rapidly increasing number of hydro plants.

Bernton, whose primary beat is the environment and natural resources, is currently covering the trial of Rep. George Hansen in Washington, D.C. Moffat covers the Twin Falls city and county beats for the newspaper.

Illustrations for the project were provided by staff photographer Bob Dehshmitt and staff artist Patrick Davis.

By winning the award, The Times-News edged out the Christian Science Monitor, which took second place for a series on America's leaky water mains.

Third place went to The Arizona Republic for a special report on the uphill climb of a 333-mile aqueduct system, which will transport Colorado River water to Tucson.

"This is a fine national award," said Stephen Hartgen, The Times-News managing editor. "We're very proud of the work these staff members did on the hydro series and honored to win it against such competition."

For the third year in a row, National Geographic magazine took first place in the magazine category. Its winning article on satellites appeared in the September 1983 issue. Second place in the magazine category went to a team of Newsweek writers for a Jan. 3, 1983, article on lasers.

Judges for the competition were David Healy, the Washington bureau chief of Cahner's Publications; Eric Blum, a former editor of the Times-Crescent newspaper in La Plata, Md.; and Mary Paris, the editor of Engineering Times.

Cool frosh helps Indiana upset N. Carolina

By The Associated Press

Steve Alford, a cool freshman, poured in 27 points and Mike Glom's key free throws with five seconds remaining carried Indiana to a 72-68 upset victory over top-ranked North Carolina in the NCAA East Regional semifinals Thursday night.

The Hoosiers, who finished third in the Big Ten Conference, fashioned the biggest upset of the tournament so far with a tough, collapsing man-to-man defense that often resembled a zone and kept the heavily favored Tar Heels off balance most of the night.

Indiana, 22-8, surged to a 59-47 lead with 5:38 remaining, then had to hold off a torrid Carolina comeback behind All-Americans Michael Jordan and Sam Perkins.

The Tar Heels twice cut the lead to two points as Indiana collapsed at the free throw line, with freshman Marty Simmons missing the front end of three straight one-and-ones and Chuck Franz another before Alford contributed six straight in the final 3:12.

Kentucky 72, Louisville 67
At Lexington, guards Dicky Seal and Jim Masten scored 15 points each as third-ranked Kentucky survived Louisville 72-67 in a gut-wrenching game between bitter cross-state rivals.

The victory advanced the Wildcats, 28-4, to Saturday's final against sixth-ranked Illinois, which beat No. 11 Maryland 72-70 in the other semifinal at Rupp Arena on Thursday night.

Louisville guard Lancaster Gordon ran up 11 straight points in the first half en route to a 25-point game, and Mill Wagner had 22 for the Cardinals.

Center Melvin Turpin kicked in 14 points for Kentucky, and forward Winston Bennett came off the bench to score 10 for the Wildcats.

Kentucky turnovers and fouls against the full-court press almost led the scrappy Cardinals, 24-11, eliminate the Wildcats from the playoffs for a second straight year.

Kentucky, down 36-32 at the half, led by as much as eight points in the second period when Turpin hit an alley-oop against the full-court press to make it 61-53 with 4:38 to play.

But Mill Wagner's four points keyed an 8-2 run that drew the Cardinals to 63-61 with three minutes left.

From there, Masten hit three of four free throws and Bennett hit two free throws and Uppeid in Masten's only foul to keep the Wildcats ahead.

Kentucky handed Illinois one of its four regular-season losses, defeating them in Champaign-Urbana on Christmas Eve 56-54 on a last-second basket by freshman James

Blackmon

Illinois 72, Maryland 70
George Montgomery scored 15 points to trigger a second-half explosion that lifted sixth-ranked Illinois over 11th-ranked Maryland.

Illinois, 26-4, will play in Saturday's Midwest championship against Kentucky.

The loss snapped an eight-game winning streak for Maryland and the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament champions finished the year at 24-8.

Illinois rode the shooting of Montgomery, who scored eight points in a second-half stretch. The Illini — who had been down by as much as nine points in the first half — came back from a 32-30 halftime deficit to go ahead by 11 points with 4:33 remaining in the game.

Illinois, while enjoying good shooting, had to overcome second-half problems when Doug Altberger and Scott Meents fouled out and Efrem Walters was forced to leave the game with an injury with about 6:30 remaining.

Adrian Branch, who led all scorers with 19 points, brought the Terrapins back within four points with 1:15 remaining, but Maryland could get no closer than two the rest of the way.

Bruins reach for better tennis season

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Bruins, still relatively new to interscholastic tennis, hope to continue their annual advancement in their fourth season, which begins today when they host Jerome at 3 p.m.

The Bruins achieved a milestone last year when senior Mike Rice finished fourth in the state tournament, becoming the first Twin Falls player ever to place at state.

This season, Coach Clovis Johnson feels the Bruins can accomplish more, particularly from a team standpoint.

"We've got more overall depth this year than we've ever had," he said. "It's a combination of everything — our girls are looking an awful lot better, and a lot of our boys are returning."

Twin Falls' top performer likely will be Junior Jeff Lambert, a veteran of state tourney competition. "He's looking extremely good," Johnson said. "He's got unlimited potential in tennis."

Two other juniors will follow Lambert on the boys' singles ladder, Doug Petersen and Steff Dahlquist, a transfer from Sweden.

In girls' singles, senior Tricia Swartling begins the season as the No. 1 player, though Johnson said she should be pushed by senior Laura Rice and freshman Susie Hoag, ranked No. 10 in the state 14-year-old bracket.

"They're just about neck-and-neck. It's almost the same situation we had last year with the boys (Rice, Scott Guthrie and Lambert)," Johnson said.

Twin Falls' doubles alignments remain unsettled, as can be expected at this juncture. "It's going to change as we get into the season and see how the kids do," said Johnson, who predicted only that Mike Kerbs-Sean Sadler and Mary Nye-Rhonda Babcock will be paired together.

The Bruins' schedule was packed with three other freshmen besides Hoag: Dawn Bulfin, Scott Roberts and Chris Sacco. "They're going to develop into really nice players," Johnson said. Other members include Wendy Davis, Tiffany Kerbs and Christie Smith for the girls and Ryan McDermott, Colin Muldoon and Chris Rose for the boys.

Previews for the Magic Valley's other high school teams — Burley, Gooding, Jerome and Wood River — will appear next week in The Times News.

League ponders policy Fate of Colts stuck in limbo

HONOLULU (AP) — No decision has been made on whether the Baltimore Colts will move, Jimmy Irsay, son of the club owner said Tuesday night at the National Football League meetings.

Of a multitude of reports that the Colts would move to Phoenix, Ariz., or Indianapolis or stay in Baltimore, the younger Irsay said: "Right now, I would say no city is closer than any other."

Irsay said that his father, Robert, was aware that April 1 was the deadline for determining the 1985 NFL schedule and would try to reach a decision by then, but he added the decision, "It could be quick or it could go on."

Irsay source had told the Associated Press Wednesday night that the elder Irsay would announce on Thursday that the club would remain in Baltimore. That announcement never came.

For the first time, Commissioner Pete Rozelle indicated that the league was about to create a policy on how to deal with the threat to its supply of college talent from the United States Football League. Rozelle said he would appoint a committee to study how the NFL, over the long run, might minimize the threat.

"It's not a go-to-war committee," said Rozelle. "We just want to take a look at our future."

Dave Davis, managing general partner of the Los Angeles Raiders, said his fellow club owners did not feel too threatened by the fledgling league at this time.

"There's tremendous sentiment here that the USFL has certain obstacles to overcome, and there's tremendous sentiment that they won't be able to overcome them," said Davis in an interview.

Asked his own feelings about the USFL, Davis, who was commissioner of the American Football League when it merged with the NFL, said: "I'm a great believer that men can dominate events and that they (the USFL) can survive."

"As to whether they can prosper, that is questionable."

Eugene Klein announced that he would sell his majority interest, 51 percent, of the club if a suitable buyer could be found.

Meanwhile at the meetings Thursday, the final playing rule change up for consideration, concerning blocking on running plays, was adopted by club officials. The rule as amended will allow offensive blockers to thrust and extend their arms forward in blocking on running plays, so long as the initial contact is made in the pocket area.

Dallas President Tex Schramm, a member of the league competition committee, said the change essentially just brought the rule into line with what has become a common practice during games.

A new rule that was adopted Wednesday — a five-yard penalty for "prolonged, excessive or premeditated celebration by individual players or groups" — drew comment from some of the players' it will affect, including wide receiver Mark Gastineau of the New York Jets.

Gastineau, speaking by phone from Arizona, said the rule would not last, adding: "It's hard rule to enforce... How do you decide whether it's a hula or a lot? I can't wait until a referee shows up in the Meadowlands before 60,000 roaring Jets' fans and I get excited and go into my act and he calls a penalty. I feel sorry for the guy."

Charles E. Brown, the Washington wide receiver who's a member of the Redskins' "Fun-Bunch" that celebrates touchdowns by leaping into the air in a group hug, said: "I've never heard of anything that ridiculous. Haven't they got more important things to do than worry about the Fun Bunch?"

On the subject of the USFL, Davis made it clear that the date of the NFL draft should be moved up so the league can be more competitive with the USFL in going after top players.

"I don't mind the competition," he said. "That's what America is all about."

Speaking about the NFL owners' decision late last year to stick with their draft date, which is later than the USFL draft, Davis said, "I think nobody was taking into account the Los Angeles Express."

Since William Oldenburgh purchased the team, the Express has signed a number of top college players, including landing BYU quarterback Steve Young with a long-term, 7.0 million contract.

Michigan edges Xavier, 63-62, in third round of NIT play

By The Associated Press

Freshman Antoine Joubert scored 18 points and hit two free throws with 21 seconds remaining to give Michigan a 63-62 victory over Xavier, Ohio Thursday night in the third round of the National Invitation Tournament.

The Wolverines, 21-10, had a 54-43 lead with 8:30 left, but the Musketeers, 22-11, scrapped layup with 1:12 remaining.

Michigan forward Roy Tarpley followed with two free throws, before Xavier center Jeff Jenkins notched the last of his game-high 21 points to pull his team back to within one.

Joubert, the Wolverine's high scorer, then hit both ends of a one-and-one to ice the game.

Musketeer guard Ralph Lee closed out the scoring with a layup at the buzzer.

Neither team could gain an advantage through most of the first half as the lead changed hands 13 times. The Wolverines pulled ahead by seven points with five minutes left in the half, then eight with one second left.

But Jenkins hit two free throws to cut the lead to 36-30 at the half.

Michigan travels to New York on Monday for the NIT semifinal round to face the winner of Friday's Virginia Tech-Tennessee game.

SW Louisiana 97, Santa Clara 76
At Lafayette, Paced by senior forward Graylin Warner's 22 points, all five Southwestern Louisiana starters scored in double figures for a crushing 97-76 of Santa Clara.

Warner scored 14 of his points in the first half and USL, 23-9, went ahead for good with 15:12 remaining in the first half. At intermission, the Ragin' Cajuns led 46-26.

USL's Dion Brown set the tone of the Ragin' Cajun victory. His first rebound of the night made him the school's all-time record rebounder, with 905.

Overall, the Cajuns outrebounded the bigger Broncos 46-26 on the night.

The Cajuns, who knocked off Utah State and Weber State in a pair of two-point victories, shot 54.3 percent from the field, while the Broncos hit 48.4 percent.

George Almones added 18 points for the Cajuns, while brothers Drexal and Alonza Allen and Brown had 15 points apiece.

Santa Clara, 22-10, was led by Harold Keeling's 26 points, 17 of them in the second half. Nick Vancos, the Broncos' 7-foot-1 center, added 20 points and 12 rebounds, but was held to only two points in the second half.

The victory earned the Ragin' Cajuns the right to face the winner of Friday night's Notre Dame-Pittsburgh game in Madison Square Garden on Monday.

Olympic medalists shine during championship

By The Associated Press

OTTAWA — Scott Hamilton won the men's short program and ice dancers Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean rewrite the record books Thursday at the World Figure Skating Championships.

The British Olympic champions earned an unprecedented seven perfect marks of 6.0 for their rumba and waltz compulsory dances.

In a stunning upset, Canadians Barbara Underhill and Paul Martin won the pairs competition, dethroning Soviets Elena Valova and Oleg Yastiliev, the Olympic gold medalists and defending world champions.

Hamilton, 25, the U.S. Olympic gold medalist from Denver, has led the competition from the start and will compete for his fourth World title Friday night.

He slightly bobbed a fill-in turn sequence that had no technical value, but expertly carried off the jumps and spins required in the program to stay ahead of his 24 competitors.

His two-minute effort brought six near-perfect marks of 5.9 from the nine judges. The other marks were all 5.8s save for one 5.7 from the French judge.

"I felt good about it," Hamilton said. "I just really wanted to skate well and I did. I wasn't thinking about beating anyone. I just wanted to do well for myself."

In second place was West German Rudi Cerne, followed by Josef Sabovcik, the Olympic bronze medalist from Czechoslovakia.

Brian Bolkano of Sunnyvale, Calif., was seventh and Mark Cockrell of Los Angeles was 13th.

Canadian champion Brian Orser, who beat Hamilton in the short program at the Olympics, finished second this time after bailing his compulsory jump. Orser was fifth overall.

Dean apparently hadn't noticed how many 6.0s he and Torvill collected.

"How many?" he asked after leaving the ice at the Civic Centre, where the scoreboard flashed the 6.0s. "It's obviously nice, but this is the last time we do compulsory."

Torvill and Dean, who now have 114 perfect marks since 1978, have said they'll turn professional after this event.

In second place behind Torvill and Dean were Soviet Olympic silver medalists Natalia Bestemirnova and Andrei Bukin, Americans Judy Blumberg and Michael Seibert faltered on the rumba and were third.

Two other U.S. teams were in the top 10. Carol Jean Fox and Richard Daley were eighth and Elisa Spitz and Scott Gregory were 10th.

Torvill and Dean made skating history at the Olympics by earning the first perfect marks in compulsory dance in an international event. The three 6.0s came in the Westminster Waltz.

On Thursday, they again got three 6.0s in the snooty Westminster, then added four more in the sassy rumba. They were "imperfect" only in the first dance, the Paso Doble, where they received five 5.8s and four 5.8s.

And Dean said it was the best Paso they have done this season.

"It felt better and more relaxed than the Olympics," said the 26-year-old former policeman.

As soon as they took the ice, fans waved Union Jacks and cheered the three-time world champions.

They were dressed formally for all three dances — she in beaded black dress and he in tuxedo.

Torvill gazed at her partner and smiled almost as if the rink was their own private ballroom.

Their edges were so deep it was a wonder they didn't tilt over; their flow was velvety smooth,

Oklahoma football coach absolved in securities suit

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A federal judge Thursday agreed with defense contentions there was no absolute lack of prudence of evidence against Oklahoma football coach Barry Switzer and six other men, and dismissed a Securities and Exchange Commission lawsuit against them.

U.S. District Judge Dale Staffels of Kansas City, Kan., threw out SEC suit alleging Switzer and the others used illegal "insider" information in 1981 to make nearly $500,000 off the rumored liquidation of an Oklahoma City oil former Oklahoma Coach Bud Wilkinson.

Chief defense counsel William Eitman of Washington, D.C., asked for the dismissal alone. "There is no evidence whatsoever to support the SEC's charges in this case," Staffels agreed and tossed out the

Posters in fashion, valuable

Topic of show

By SARAH MURPHY
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — Posters, like designer jeans, have become fashionable — and an art form which has generated its own status.

A closer look at some of the more innovative and popular forms of fine art posters can be taken this Friday and Saturday at the Lightworks Gallery, 1222 Oakley in Burley, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The two-day exhibit will feature framed and unframed posters by artists who are well-known in the medium of poster art, says Gallery co-owner Elaine Horejs.

Posters are drawing a new group of art fanciers to the galleries — their appeal lies in the quality color, graphic style and selections available to collectors, she says.

Posters have become fashionable, she continues.

"Like designer jeans, they are popular because of the wording on them. Like on the jeans, the labeling on the posters means something to the buyer, a status symbol, so to speak," she says.

Horejs also says posters are fun — the subject matter often being whimsical and colorful.

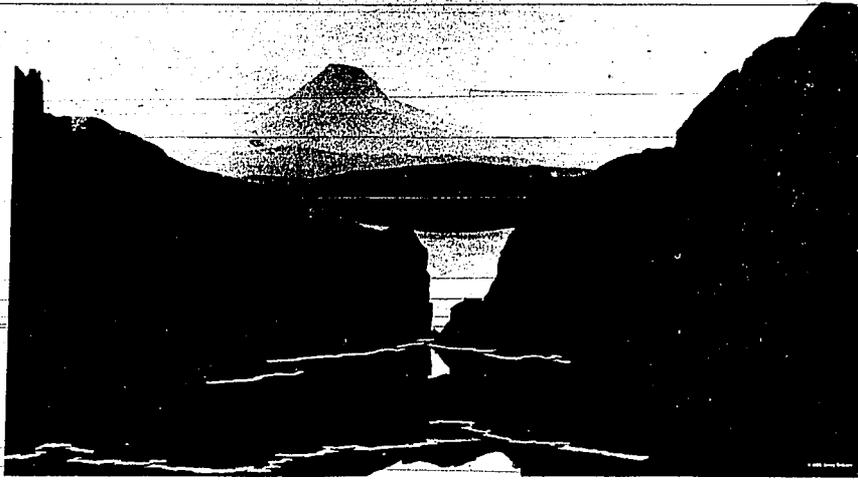

"You don't have to understand a poster to like it," she says.

One of the most important factors contributing to the popularity of posters in the 80s, besides their availability, is their affordability, says Horejs.

A collector can buy a poster which he really likes without breaking the budget — a real plus in the present economy, she says.

Horejs says poster art has become popular with art collectors nationwide, from the Portland Art Museum in Oregon to the Gallery of the Southwest in Houston, Texas.

Wild tale of youth

Is 'Footloose'

By PAT MARGANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The small Middle-American town of Beaufort has outwaded dancing.

Rock and roll music especially is despised and shunned by the ruling older generation as a minion of evil that promotes teen-age promiscuity, drugs and alcohol.

The town preacher often conjures images of fire and brimstone around the hard beat of rock.

The teen-agers of the town have accepted this fate — and hungrily seek music where they can.

Ren is a big city kid who moves to Beaufort with his divorced mother. And he is not so willing to live a life without the one thing he loves — to dance.

With such a premise, it's easy to see that "Footloose" is a fable of youth. A little outlandish, but nonetheless contagiously fun.

The cast, direction and writing have elevated it above those usual second-feature teen-age exploitation movies that consist largely of phony "teen" talk, unruly sex and puppy plot.

The inhabitants of "Footloose" are a crop of mostly fresh faces led by Kevin Bacon as Ren.

With his punkish hair, David Bowie clothes and pug-nose, Bacon brings a verve and feeling to the role. Bacon's triumph, however, is his uninhibited dance in a vacant warehouse to remind himself that he still is alive in the suffocant community. His dancing is youthful vitality and simmering sensuality.

John Lithgow, nominated this year for his work in "Terms of Endearment," anchors the film to the ground as the righteous minister who watches his conservative handiwork get out of hand.

Also worth a mention is Christopher Penn as Willard, a bulky teen-ager; Penn is delightfully genuine as the boy with two-foot feet who yearns to rock.

The only sore thumb is Lori Singer as the girl attempting to forget that she is a preacher's daughter. The role is reminiscent of the one played by Natalie Wood in "Rebel Without a Cause," as the teen-ager trying to grow up amid confusion. Singer lacks the range to make the part of Ariel as interesting as it could have been.

Sure "Footloose" is a bit moralistic and simplistic. But the lumps go down easily with the energy and life it also offers.

It's a foot-stomping charmer.

Despite supporting only a small population

Stark commitment gives resort-area arts growth

By ROBERT DOYLE
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — The Ketchum-Sun Valley area has a permanent population of only 5,000 residents, yet it supports nine (soon to be 10) art galleries, and a fully staffed complex devoted to the arts and humanities.

And plans are in the drawing board for a performing arts center located on the site of the old Ketchum City Hall. The trend appears to be toward increased activity at a time when public funding for the arts is dwindling.

The question is how does a small community provide so many enrichment activities for its inhabitants?

"Many part-time as well as full-time residents of this community come here from areas that provide quality cultural offerings and they insist on such quality here," says Chris Montague, director of programs for the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities.

"Still, I'm amazed at the amount of programs available, and the participation that does take place in the activities we sponsor. There's a real commitment here, when you consider that the organization with which I'm affiliated is funded primarily by private contributions.

"Certainly these contributions are helped along by four major fund raisers conducted throughout the year, and granted this valley has a disproportionate number of well-to-do residents, but interest in the arts and a desire to expand the quality of life runs across economic lines," says Montague.

"It is not commonly known, but statistics gathered over the past decade show that for every dollar spent on the arts, $6 to $7 is returned to the community in other ways," Montague adds.

His amazement at finding such strong community support for cultural activities is echoed by American mountain climber and conqueror of Mt. Everest, George Lowe, who recently spoke in Sun Valley under the auspices of the Sun Valley Center.

"I made the same presentation in Denver, and I didn't draw nearly the audience I did here," said Lowe.

Although many Wood River Valley residents relocated here from major metropolitan areas, such is not the case with Images Art Gallery owner, Gail Severn. She was born and raised in Nampa.

"Art is a high priority for residents of the community, but tourism is still the basis of our economy. And a majority of my sales are to people who live outside Blaine County," Severn says.

"There are a significant number of affluent people who reside here, at least part time, and we rely on their patronage, too, for our tourist economy is based on a five and one-half month business cycle — summer and winter, and not much in between.

"For me, it's the quality of life and the natural beauty of the area that attracted me. And that's

Champ guitarist returns

TWIN FALLS — Chris Proctor, acoustic guitarist and 1982 United States National Fingerpicking Champion, will be returning to Twin Falls Wednesday for a concert at the Renaissance Academy of the Arts.

Last seen in Twin Falls in September of 1983, Proctor says he's about to begin a two-month national tour and will be trying out new material at this performance and the one following two nights later in Salmon.

The Utah native says he has a tough time describing his type of music.

"There are a whole body of folk performers who came up at the time I did who are really not performing true folk anymore," he says, adding, "The label, 'new acoustic music' is put to it for lack of a better term."

Traditional Irish, traditional classical and jazz are the primary influences on his music, Proctor

Chris Proctor is the 1982 U.S. fingerpicking champion. He also says that a lot of his music is ragtime oriented. "It's a hybrid style. It's not Michael Jackson league and nobody's kidding ourselves that everybody has to hear it," he says, referring to the entire acoustic field. "But those who do show up and listen, come back the next time." The guitarist says he was a See PROCTOR on Page C2.

Funniest Idahoan named

NEW YORK — Showtime, the national pay television service, has named Andy Morris of Pocatello the funniest person in Idaho.

The selection was made following a coast-to-coast talent search in pursuit of an undiscovered comic talent. All state winners will now vie for a television appearance as "The Funniest Person in Amer. ca."

A celebrity panel comprising established comedians is being finalized to select the national winner. Plans call for the selection of the winner in late April, followed by a taping in May.

The search for "The Funniest Person in America" began on July 28, 1983, at Central Park in New York City. A mobile video production van made its first stop that day on a journey that would take it across the country to 16 cities with a final stop in Seattle.

The van, equipped with television production facilities, taped the routines of scores of regular people for inclusion in the contest. At stops along the way, crowds gathered to watch and participate as the van rested at shopping centers, public parks, beaches, amusement parks.

'Buffalo Bill' in line for NBC pink slip

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK - It appears likely that NBC will be canceling two shows with one pink slip.

"Buffalo Bill," the comedy about the obnoxious Bill Bittlinger and his egocentric TV talk show, "The Buffalo Bill Show," is in trouble - and all the laugh tracks that the network forces on the producers will not save either series.

"Although the series 'Buffalo Bill' has won critical raves and a loyal, albeit small, following who revel in Dabney Coleman's antagonistic anti-hero, an NBC source said consistently low ratings have dimmed the chances of seeing the series returned to NBC's fall schedule.

Given one of the few comfortable "hammock" spots on NBC's schedule, Thursday nights between "Cheers" and "Hill Street Blues," it's clear that many viewers have actively rejected "Buffalo Bill," actually getting off the couch to switch off Bill's outrageousness.

This season, the Nielsen ratings show that 17 percent of all the nation's TV homes watched "Cheers," 13 percent watched "Buffalo Bill" and 18 percent watched "Hill Street Blues." "Buffalo Bill" has averaged only a 20 percent share of all viewers watching TV from 9:30 to 10.

Television

"We have been satisfied with the production of 'Buffalo Bill,' but we have not been satisfied with the audience levels it has achieved," said Brandon Turkoff, president of NBC Entertainment.

NBC has been concerned since the show's inception that "Buffalo Bill" was going to be too sappy for an audience addicted to artificial sweeteners. The network knew that viewers who were questioned by the network were turned off by Bill's totally unrepentant and unredeemable behavior.

"That's too bad. 'Buffalo Bill' is a dourly funny exactly the way it is, but the fact that Proctor says he accepted is just one more reflection of television's numbing, warping influence. It's not enough that sitcoms often are mindlessly bland, but now their characters may be sickeningly likeable, in order to appeal to the broadest audiences.

Besides this trend toward homogenized humor, Hollywood still insists on audiences with one of mankind's most confounding inventions - laugh tracks. These loud and boorish mechanical convulsions are not so subtle forms of brainwashing designed to trick viewers into thinking the material is funnier than it really is.

But those who enjoy "Buffalo Bill," which is not filmed before live audiences, don't need coaxing from a machine. In fact, this series' style of humor made it a highly inappropriate candidate for a laugh track.

"Buffalo Bill" features unconventional comedy, not based on a character telling one-liners, but generally stemming from Bill's loutish behavior and the conflicting personalities and attitudes of the characters. Since much of the funny repartee flows from conversation, there was little time for a gag man's hammy pause for rim shots.

But when "Buffalo Bill" began last summer, it not only had a laugh track, it had a particularly raucous one.

"M-A-S-H" was another show that started with a huge laugh track, but then tapered off," said Tom Patchett, the show's co-executive producer.

"We delivered the first show under-sweetened, but the network went concerned that it lacked resonance," added Patchett. "NBC re-sweetened it and jacked it up quite a bit and continued to do that for the first 13 episodes. It did seem unnatural and forced."

"We fought for two years against the laugh track," said Jay Tarses, another co-executive producer. "But it's a battle that can't be won. We tried to minimize it as much as possible, but NBC wants it."

NBC even insisted on a laugh track for the program's two-partner on abortion earlier this season.

"Artistically, I didn't want a laugh track," said Patchett. "In movie theaters, there's no signal when to laugh or cry. But NBC said audiences needed a reminder that this is a comedy. Bill is such a great liar that you could be fooled and take him very seriously. You might just think he's despicable."

Patchett said NBC surveyed "Buffalo Bill" with and without the phony laughter. "The show," he said, "tested very poorly without the laugh track, and only poorly with it."

country attend art related events than pay to see professional sports?" she asked.

"I wish the legislature in Boise would put a box in the state income tax forms which people could check if they wished to donate a portion of their taxes to the arts. I'd check it and I think our legislators would be surprised at the number of Idaho residents who would do likewise. Art is really something the people of this state wish to experience," says Griffith.

"Right now I'm thinking of putting together a traveling art show," Griffith adds. "I could contract for space in Gooding, Twin Falls and Burley and take a representative sample of my inventory to those areas that don't have easy access to an art gallery."

"I'm selling dreams; I'm selling beauty and creating an emotional experience, which occurs when someone is moved by what they see. Let's face it. An artist exposes him or herself on canvas or in a sculpture, and that often generates intense feelings in those who view that work."

"Whether people buy art or not, the experience of enjoying art merely by viewing it is something a gallery has to offer at no cost."

Arnold Marz, owner of Trail West Art Gallery, takes a different approach. "I came here because of the ski mountain, and since 80 percent of my business is done on the phone, the location of my gallery is secondary to the product I have to offer."

"As you can see, my price range caters to the collector who views his purchase as an investment. Walk in traffic results in very few sales," Marz says. The Trail West Gallery specializes in western and wildlife art, with an emphasis on bronze sculptures, many with price tags in the five-figure category.

All of the gallery owners cited the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities as a moving force in keeping interest in the arts alive, while providing educational activities for everyone, resident and tourist alike. They say cultural offerings attract people who are interested in the arts, and the presence of art galleries attract artists who need an outlet to display their talent.

a major reason my gallery is here," says Severn.

Kaseand Art Gallery manager Katherine Griffith agrees with Severn.

"This is a resort community and it attracts people who have leisure time and disposable income... art is a luxury that not all can afford."

"Out of town customers often buy art as a memento of their trip. I have one client who has totally decorated one room in her house with purchases made on six trips. She calls it her ski room and it provides a reminder of a memorable experience," Griffith says.

"People do want art in their lives, and that's particularly true here. Do you know that more people in this small town audiences are, 'surprisingly sophisticated.'"

"Measurably," says Griffith. "Impressive, buoyant and breathtaking." But a few of the terms reviewers around the country have used to describe Proctor's talent. In fact, the reviews have been so overwhelmingly positive that Proctor says he wished I believed them," noting that he is his own harshest critic. "I have to be."

Raymond Neeth Miller, marketing agent for the Sun Valley Center, says total seating capacity is 120, and he expects a sellout for the Wednesday night performance.

Tickets are available at Warner Music Co., the Sun Valley Center, Hallmark and the Music Center. Prices are as follows: general admission, $5; seniors, children under 12 and students with ID, $1.75; entire family, $7.50. Showtime is 8 p.m.

BYU troupe visits Burley

BURLEY — From the shimmering excitement of Broadway to the daring and laughter of a three-ring circus, song and dance favorites for all ages will explode in a colorful, fast-moving performance as Brigham Young's Young Ambassadors present America's greatest moments in history, Saturday, March 31, at 7 p.m. in the Burley High gymnasium.

Foot stompin', fast fiddlin' cowboys will "Raise the Roof Tonight!" while turn of the century romance burns bright "In the Good Ole Summertime."

Backed by a live show band, this 16-member troupe makes screen and radio personalities come alive, bringing back America's best loved M*A*S*H medics, the shipwrecked crew of "Gilligan's Island," and many more.

A puff of smoke and a brush of magical music will find chimney sweeps dancing to "Step in Time" while Pinocchio and other animated friends sing a salute to Disney.

Internationally popular for more than 13 years, the Young Ambassadors have performed for audiences in Tahiti, Australia, New Zealand and Hawaii, where they performed live for more than 40,000 people and appeared on radio and television programs reaching 5 million others.

While in Australia, they performed for audiences in hospitals, prisons, shopping malls, theaters and concert halls, earning the praise of the Lord Mayor of Newcastle, Australia who said, "Not only were we impressed by their musical skill and showmanship, but all who met them were touched by their youthful exuberance and friendship."

Who-dun-its turn humorous

By CONNIE FLETCHER
The Chicago Sun-Times

Murder can be a scream. Mystery writers now inject as much humor into their plots as they do syzyfiané. Writers such as Donald Westlake, Simon Brett and Lucille Kallen do for the comic mystery what Charles Adams, Edward Gorey and Gahan Wilson have done for macabre cartoons. If you're up for some ghastly smiles and mordant wit, sample some of this month's murderously funny mysteries.

Lucille Kallen once shared, with Woody Allen and Mel Brooks, the notorious writers' room for Sid Caesar's "You Show of Shows." Now Kallen turns out comic mysteries that share in the flair and demonic timing of classic Caesar sketches.

In "C.B. Greenfield and the Piano Bird" (Random House, $13.95), Kallen's fourth mystery—featuring curmudgeonly small-town newspaper editor C.B. Greenfield and his varicose-veined eggson Maggie Rome, Kallen brings a troubled Broadway troupe to a tropical island. On the island tending her sick mother, Maggie watches the troupe haggle and backstab. Then she finds Thea Quinn, the group's gorgeous, over-sexed actress, sticking red and dead like some tropical plumage from the island underbrush.

Without debasing the tragedy of the murdered girl, Kallen brings off a P.G. Wodehouse farce about show biz, punctuated by what Greenfield ("a man of fossilized habit") and the cynically sensible Rome have to say about the good-for-a-few-laugh humor race.

Three-time Edgar nominee (always the Ravens, never the Raven) Robert Barnard turns in a uproarious parody of failed pedants and crankpot bureaucrats in "School for Murder" (Scribner's, $12.95). A depressed faculty, ditsy staff and delinquent student body inhabit Burtleigh School, a semi-posh prep school for the castoffs of the near rich. The inmates survive on practical jokes.

But the pranks escalate from spiking the Parent's Day punch to concealing taxes in facecloths and finally end in the poisoning of the decedent head boy. Barnard's wit moves from a satire on stuffy rulemongers to a desperately black comedy of manners. This one may go down in history as Barnard's best.

"The murder has already taken place," reads the invitation to a country house party in Anne Morice's latest civilized stabber, "Murder Postdated" (St. Martin's, $10.95). The guests never do get around to socializing. First the hostess accuses her stepmother of trying to kill her. Then the stepmother suffocates in a house fire. Then a vanished wife turns up again, murdered.

Tessa Orlinton, a guest, handles all this with the aplomb of long experience as an actress with bit parts solving murders in real life. Murder is kept on a — pass — the cucumber-sandwiches' level and Tessa captures all the macabre festivities with her clever, acid comments. It's all wickedly entertaining.

One last, non-humorous entry: Marcia Muller's "Games to Keep The Dark Away" (St. Martin's, $10.95) featuring, for the fourth time, the brilliant iconoclast-Sharon-McCone.

This time McCone, investigator for All Souls Legal Cooperative in San Francisco, is hired to find the roommate of Abe Snelling, a famous photographer. The roomie is a woman who drifts through life like a discarded newspaper. McCone is drawn into the woman's strange past, one she barely inhabited and which was filled with people who never cared. This woman's disappearance and murder ties into horrors committed at a hospice center.

Muller packs this one with vivid street scenes; breathing, veiling characters, and a plot that wrenches in the same way as an obituary for a teen-ager.

'Knock Wood' witty report of actress' youthful years

By DOLORES BARCLAY
The Associated Press

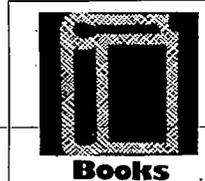

NEW YORK — She was born the dummy's sister — the sweet striping of that raunchy redwood rake, Charlie McCarthy.

Candice Bergen was the golden daughter of ventriloquist Edgar Bergen and his wife, Frances. She was a celebrity child who reaped fantasy Christmas presents from "Uncle Walt" Disney, but had to share her father with a wooden doll.

Often Bergen, then the toast of radio, sat young Candy and the sassy Charlie on either knee, squeezing the backs of their necks while they moved their mouths. As the improbable "brother" and "sister" soundlessly conversed with flapping lips, Bergen spoke for both of them.

It was tough growing up with a wooden star who even sat at the dinner table. It was tougher still idolizing a father she had trouble telling: "I love you." Miss Bergen was not able to utter those three words to her father until a few years before his death in 1978.

It has taken her close to eight years to write about her coming-of-age in her new book, "Knock Wood" (The Linden Press, $15.95). She began writing it when she was 30.

"This book was feeling," she said in an interview at the West Side apartment she shares with her husband, filmmaker Louis Malle. "You really don't have much to hide after doing it. The book began a process of growing up that never ends."

"The hardest part of my book was reckoning the relationship with my father," she said. "But once you've made the commitment, you're honor bound to finish it. You have to go forward and not backward."

The book, a poignant and witty account written by Miss Bergen in a lively and often self-deprecating style, has yanked the actress from a self-imposed literary sabbatical and encouraged her to re-examine acting. Right now, after spending two years doing little else than the book, she says she's a little "rusty" about acting.

"I guess the best thing to do is to go back to class," she said with a sigh. "If I found a class that was small enough and comfortable to be in, I'd do so, and especially if I had a character to work on. That's fun. You become a detective — stalking people in the city, looking at how they behave, listening to accents."

Acting was not the dream that filled Miss Bergen's Beverly Hills nights when she was young. Nor was it the discipline she wished to pursue at the University of Pennsylvania. Candice Bergen, show biz royalty, thought more in terms of gussy and gummy Brenda Starr. She wanted to be a photojournalist.

With her patrician charm and sunswept beauty, modeling was an easier pursuit. "Brenda Starr was not on the syllabus in college," she wrote in her book. "This was the East, where people read Camus, not comics. Movies were something you paid to see, not live in, and wore hard besides, like homework — black and white and boring and in French."

A. Credit one Joe Sheridan, chef of the airport restaurant at Foynes, Ireland, in 1948. And it was the American columnist Stan Delaplaine who popularized it. You know Delaplaine. At many a

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This day and evening has some very interesting aspects, and if you are thorough into uncovering whatever information you desire, it can be used to great advantage.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You find opportunities for development today, so seize them quickly. Make sure that you think before you speak.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be more willing to listen to your mate and improve the relationship. Then you can rest at ease and carry through wisely.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You want to make a fine impression on another without plans and ideas, but be sure to listen to his, or her views.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have fine ideas for improving your work and should put them in motion without delay. Be happy at home tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Discuss the recreations you want to get into with congenials in the days ahead and plan them. Show devotion to your mate tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Avoid most situations in conversing with family - lies so that arguments will not start up. Invite guests in for the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day for communicating well with others, whether in business or personal life. Show that you are a go-getter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you handle monetary affairs properly, you can command a greater income in the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Think out what you can do and whom to see in order to gain your finest aims, then full speed ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to plan a new course of activity that can extend your present interests, but don't confide in others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 18) Try to see as many individuals you want as allies in the days ahead, as you possibly can. Be positive.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get busy - at interests in the world of business and get right results today. Improve your career by taking on more responsibilities.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will be one who must be taught to be more sociable and have friends, and to realize that it is a give-and-take world and not good to isolate one's self. In this way your progeny can have many opportunities for self-advancement.

American Film Market seems thriving as a global bargain

By BOB THOMAS
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The lobby of the Hyatt Hotel on the Sunset Strip once again sounded like a disco party at the United Nations. The American Film Market was in full swing.

It was the fourth time around for his product at Cannes, the year of the Big Gue, says Tim Kittleton, the AFM director. "One of our members figured up his costs for exposing his product at Cannes, including billboards, screenings, hotel rooms, jet flights, bringing in the star, make-up man, hairdresser, nanny, etc. The bill came to a half-million dollars."

Other independent distributors had similar experiences. So nine of them got together to form the AFM, at which American companies could offer their wares to buyers from all over the world. This year the AFM had more members (74), more buyers (1,200) and high hopes of bigger sales at the 31-day event, which ended March 16.

The AFM took over the entire floor for display rooms and living quarters for the sellers. Screenings were held at 19 theaters nearby, then the deals were made. Last year they amounted to $183 million.

Movies

What's selling this year?

"Movie audiences abroad are the same as they are here — young," says Michael Goldman, president of AFM. "If there is a trend this year, it's the teen-age picture, with accent on music. The 'Flashdance' influence is prevalent."

Goldman is also head of Manson Films, which is selling its own product, including a teen-age item, "Radioactive Dreams." Manson also has the prestigious Canadian-made "The Grey Fox" and "The Cold Room" starring George Segal. The latter was made for cable TV but will be shown overseas.

The hotel's suites offered a wide variety of films. Orion Pictures displayed enlarged photos from its current releases, including "Harry and Son" (Paul Newman), "The Chess Handicap" (Chong as the Corsican Brothers) and "The Falcon and the Snowman," which is still in production.

In another room, there was a three-minute sample reel of "Ghoulies," produced by Charles Band. It offers something for everybody: slinky sex scenes, side-walk break dancing and a collection of animated beasts who interrupt a dinner party by popping out of the sheet.

The AFM is expanding its horizons beyond the sell, sell, sell of American movies.

"We have been accused of being xenophobic by limiting the market to English-language films," Kittleton said. "This year as an experiment we invited foreign companies, and we have been showing their product. Significantly, they are from the four biggest film markets after the United States — Japan, France, Italy and Germany. They pay the same fee to become members — $8,000."

Turntables turning for German bands

By TAMARA JONES
The Associated Press

FRANKFURT, West Germany — Prospects for German bands were so bleak a few years ago that they had to sing in English just to sell a few records in their own country.

Suddenly, the turntables have turned. Decades after most of the world began to rock, German artists are finally starting to roll as Teutonic tunes wind their way to the top of the revered American and British pop charts.

That's no small coup for a culture whose music traditionally conjures images of shrill Valkyries, apple-checked comph bands and the smoky invitations of Marlene Dietrich rasping from the Victrola.

Not even the leader of the pack can explain why Germans have penetrated an international market that shunned them for years.

"Everyone keeps asking me that I have no idea," protests the 24-year-old hitmaker from Hagen who calls herself Nena. "That question is so boring."

Nena's anti-war "99 Luftballons" is the most successful of the German exports. The single with an English version, "99 Red Ballons" on the flip side, soared to the No. 1 spot on record charts in the United States and Britain.

Peter Schilling's "Voellig Losgelost," a takeoff on David Bowie's "Major Tom," has also triumphed abroad. It enjoyed 22 weeks on the Billboard chart, where it peaked at No. 10.

It was the No. 1 song in West Germany for 1983, and enjoyed popularity in other European countries as well. The English version of Schilling's album, "Error in System," has been on the American charts for more than 20 weeks, peaking in 61st place.

Both Nena and Schilling are waiting for a second big hit in the States before embarking on tours. Trio, a popular minimalist-rock group, has already opened for Joe Jackson.

And while Nena insists it's "crazy to always search for explanations," others have a few.

"The reason this didn't happen before is because the standard and quality of German music haven't been very good until now," said Frank Dietrich, international manager for WEA Records Ltd. in Hamburg, which handles Schilling.

Although the group Kraftwerk scored a hit more than a decade ago with "Autobahn," the real turning point was the German New Wave "explosion" around four years ago, he said.

"Before that, everybody was just copying the latest American and British trends; we lacked individuality."

Ironically, the German New Wave movement found success abroad just as it was dying at home.

During the New Wave heyday, "60 to 70 percent of the German chart was dominated by German products."

Dear Mr. Wolff: Is it ever permissible to make a takeout double of a minor opening when holding a major suit?

lon trump. I would refuse the invitation and pass with a little as an ace and a king (control cards) instead of delayed winners and a couple of trump. I would happily accept the invitation. In close situations one should always consider partner's bidding habits.

Dear Mr. Wolff: Partner opened one trump and I jumped to three with a seven-card minor headed by the A-J-10 and a side queen. He made it and I was called a lucky overbidder. Did I overbid that much?

ANSWER: Takeout doubles should promise support for unbid suits as well as equivalent opening-bid strength.

Dear Mr. Wolff: Partner opens and next hand overcalls one no trump. At rubber bridge, how much strength does your hand will have to be to offer good chances for success.

ANSWER: If you have an easily establishable suit to lead and an outside entry, a double is clear-cut. The less attractive the lead, the more your hand will have to be to offer good chances for success.

Dear Mr. Wolff: Partner opens one spade and jumps to three no trump response. How should I evaluate my hand in support of spades?

ANSWER: With a minimum hand (6-7 HCP) and a single
