Undaunted, Hansen says he'll run

By BOB FICK The Associated Press

BOISE — Embattled Idaho Congressman George Hansen, maintaining his innocence despite this week's felony conviction, said Friday he has decided to seek an eighth term.

Flanked by two aides and his regional political coordinator, the conservative Republican lawmaker said his decision was based on the overwhelming support southern Idaho voters have demonstrated since a federal jury in Washington, D.C., convicted him on four counts of filing false financial disclosure statements.

"We have a very strong level of support in this state," Hansen told reporters during a hastily called news conference at a downtown hotel. His wife Connie was not present for the announcement.

Hansen said 65 percent of the estimated 300

Ethics panel readies own internal probe of Hansen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former House chief counsel Stanley Brand will help conduct an ethics committee investigation of convicted Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, Brand confirmed Friday.

The committee determines whether a congressman violated House rules and, if so, whether the panel should recommend a punishment to the full House.

The flamboyant Hansen, who often complained of government intrusions into Americans' privacy, was convicted last Monday of failing to report $333,978 in personal loans and other financial dealings or disclosure documents.

Brand said in an interview there was no time limit to his contract, which still must be approved by the House Administration Committee.

Initially, under its rules, the ethics committee must conduct a preliminary inquiry of Hansen, to determine whether a full-blown investigation should occur.

Brand, now in private practice, acknowledged previous involvement in the Hansen case while working for the chief clerk of the House. But he said he carefully checked the ethics rules for lawyers and "found no conflict."

Brand once appeared in U.S. District Court in Hansen's case, arguing that the prosecution could not have the original financial disclosure forms filed by the seven-term congressman.

But he told the court that prosecutors could use copies of the documents published by the clerk, and that there was no bar to the prosecution.

"I did not appear in his behalf," Brand said of Hansen. "I was doing my job for the House and the clerk."

people who turned out for a public meeting in Pocatello Thursday night urged him to run, based on a poll conducted at the session.

That support, he said, "is probably better than I usually enjoy in the beginning of any election. . . I think we veritabily have a political army out there." The flamboyant Idaho native, who has continuously complained about big government running roughshod over American citizens, has persistently claimed that he did nothing that was not first cleared by lawyers and the House Ethics Committee. He was convicted of failing to report nearly $334,000 in loans and other financial deals, some of them involving Texas billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt.

He expects his campaign opponents will make an issue of the conviction, but "I think we can meet this issue head-on." Hansen, 53, plans to hold a series of news conferences across southern Idaho next week to formally kick off his campaign and at the same time file the required candidacy petitions with the secretary of state. The deadline for the May 22 primary is next Friday.

During the recent days of speculation over Hansen's political future, several GOP officials have indicated they might make the race if Hansen dropped out. But only Jerome

In Georgetown speech Reagan aims at Congress

By TERENCE HUNT The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan said Friday that "wavering" and "second guessing" by his congressional critics prolonged violence in Lebanon and now is encouraging Marxists in Central America.

Reagan said he and many in the Congress seem to believe they are still in the troubled Vietnam era, with their only task to be vocal critics, not responsible partners in developing positive, practical programs to solve real problems," Reagan said in a speech.

The administration pressed that theme on and off the record, with one senior White House official telling reporters that once foreign policy is established in consultation with Congress, legislators should not publicly criticize the president's foreign policy decision when American lives are at stake, such as sending U.S. Marines to Lebanon.

The official, briefing reporters about the president's speech, spoke only on condition that he not be publicly identified. The official said criticism should be restricted to private meetings with the president, letters, closed caucuses and similar forums. This did not mean, he said, that a president should be unable to pursue a foreign policy that was clearly failing.

But, clearly, the Congress is less than wholly comfortable with both the need for a military element in foreign policy, and its own responsibility to deal with that element," he said.

The president's speech before the Georgetown Center for Strategic and International Studies was delivered at a time when his policies have come under increasingly sharp criticism from Democratic presidential candidates and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr.

O'Neill said Thursday that Reagan was trying to make Congress a scapegoat for the failure of U.S. policy in Lebanon. During a debate among Democratic candidates, Sen. Gary Hart — of Colorado — said Reagan "frightens me to death" on the issue of nuclear arms.

Reagan's speech brought an angry response from O'Neill, who said "President Reagan should know that there is no substitute for the truth. He chooses to forget the events of Lebanon and his own past positions."

The American people remember," O'Neill said, "that Reagan has no personal credibility in calling for a bipartisan foreign policy. . . On issues ranging from strategic arms limitation to the Panama Canal to Vietnam, Ronald Reagan made his name and advanced his political ca-

Ban on crucifixes ends in Poland

By BRYAN BRUMLEY The Associated Press

GARWOLIN, Poland — The Communist government and the Roman Catholic Church announced a truce Friday in the "war of the crosses," and Parliament acted to allow a church-sponsored foundation to channel Western aid to Polish farmers.

The Polish bishop who went on a bread and water fast to support students who protested the crucifix ban, congratulated the students for forcing the government to compromise.

Church and government officials said crosses would be allowed in dormitories of the town school at Mietne, where where the trouble started, but not in classrooms. The government dropped its demand that students sign a document agreeing to a ban on school crucifixes and promising to stop the protests.

Despite the progress on two major sources of church-state tension, informed Roman Catholic sources reported that the government has suspended work on a bill to define the church's legal status.

Poland's 80 bishops, with Vatican backing, have demanded the law as a condition for resuming diplomatic ties between Warsaw and the Holy See, which lapsed at the outset of World War II.

nfling reports on whether the crosses that hang in nearly all government-owned schools, hospitals and factories would be allowed to remain.

At the same time, Poland's Parliament passed a bill clearing the way for a church-run foundation to channel $2 billion in Western aid to private farmers over five years. Church sources, however, said tough negotiations lie ahead over the charter of the foundation, which they say may not begin its work before 1986.

Government officials and clergymen said the Stanislaw Staszic Agricultural School in Mietne, 40 miles south of Warsaw, would reopen Monday, a month after authorities closed it to quell student protests over the removal of crucifixes from seven classrooms.

Bishop Jan Mazur said Mass on Friday at the Church of the Transfiguration in Garwolin, adjacent to Mietne, and congratulated the students for forcing the government to compromise.

"Dear youth, you have won through goodness," Mazur said. "You were the ones who came to Christ and calmly stood by the cross. Stand by him all your lives."

Church and government officials said principal Ryszard Domanski also promised at a meeting that there would be no reprisals against the 600 students and that two teachers transferred for backing the protests would be allowed to return if they wished.

Evans kills Swan Falls plan

By QUANE KENYON AP Capitol Writer

BOISE — It was rerun time Friday for Gov. John Evans' veto stamp. He used it twice — both times striking down the Legislature's second attempt to pass legislation vetoed earlier this session.

The Democratic governor killed a bill sponsored by the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation to make it harder to get initiatives on the ballot. And minutes later, he vetoed the Legislature's final attempt to deal with the state's water rights controversy.

Evans said "the Legislature's authority to control the initiative process" does not extend to emasculating the people's initiative power."

In response to an initiative that farm groups claim shifted property taxes from homes to farms and businesses, the Farm Bureau lobbied hard this year for proposals making it harder to get initiatives on the ballot.

Earlier, Evans killed a bill limiting the number of signatures that could have been gathered from one county and requiring at least 33 of the 44 counties to contribute significant numbers of signatures.

Current laws require 32,633 signatures on petitions to qualify for the ballot, 10 percent of the vote in the last governor election. The latest bill doubles the number to 65,304.

The veto action makes it easier for current initiative drives to succeed. Some 10 petitions have been filed with the secretary of state's office, including four by the Idaho Property Owners' Association.

But the backer of one proposed initiative, Jim Hill of Boise, announced earlier he would abandon his drive if the governor vetoed the bill on initiatives. Hill's proposal was to cut in half the number of signatures required to qualify an initiative.

The governor said the Legislature's bill would have given Idaho the toughest laws in the country on initiatives. Wyoming currently has that honor, with a 15 percent requirement. As a result, Evans said, no initiative has qualified for the Wyoming ballot for 16 years.

"Idaho should not have the dubious distinction of

But 'significant' education funding, reform approved

By QUANE KENYON AP Capitol Writer

BOISE — Gov. John Evans has signed the Legislature's major education bills, including a measure hailed as "one of the most significant" ever passed in Idaho.

Included in the bills signed Friday, which cleaned up the governor's action on legislation from the 1983 session, was a bill permanently boosting the state sales tax to 4 percent.

It was the key to the other bills, because starting July 1 it will generate an extra $60 million per year in state revenue.

rate, but falls to 4 percent on July 1.

The Idaho Education Improvement Act, which appropriates $20.3 million to improve public school teacher salaries. It also launches a new "career ladder" system for teachers and requires school districts to adopt discipline codes.

Appropriation measures for public schools and the colleges and universities. "They weren't what I requested," Evans said, "but the Legislature tried to reach the goal."

The college and university funding bill calls for $79 million in state support. Robert Montgomery, president of the Idaho Board of Education, said college officials figured it would take $3 million more to maintain current programs.

He said the budget increased overall about 9 1/2 percent, "and for that, we are deeply appreciative."

the last few years. But the Board of Education meets this year to decide whether to start working-on-student-fee increases to provide more

Jerry Evans, state superintendent of public instruction, said the public school bills together increase state support by more than $41 million.

"Under these (economic) circumstances, that's not bad," he said.

But Evans said in final hours of the session, he was "holding my breath" for fear the Legislature would try to cut the budgets.

"That was the most we could do with the money available," said Sen. Gail Bray D-Boise. Meridian School Superintendent Gus Hein said the public school support for next year was the best in recent years.

16-year-old dies after accident.
IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A 16-year-old driver died at an Idaho Falls hospital Friday, eight hours after she was injured in a two-vehicle accident.
 Police identified the victim as Cheryl Norman of Idaho Falls.
 Ms. Norman's vehicle and one driven by Scott Muir, 17, of Idaho Falls, collided at a rural intersection near Idaho Falls.
 One passenger in the Muir vehicle was hospitalized and was listed in fair condition Friday.

General Motors recalls trucks
DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. on Friday recalled 797 Chevrolet C-30 and GMC C-35 pickups to check for improperly fastened rods that could cause loss of steering in the 1984 trucks.
 GM said the problem occurred in the factory and was discovered during an inspection at the plant. The automaker said it was not aware of any accidents or injuries caused by the problem.
 Owners will be notified by mail, GM said, and dealers will make any needed repairs free of charge.

Irish-born songwriter dies at 81
CHELSEA, Mass. (AP) — Irish-born songwriter Jimmy Kennedy, who wrote "Red Sails in the Sunset" and more than 1,000 other tunes, died Friday at a hospital in Chelsea, his family reported. He was 81.

Kennedy got millions of Britons singing and dancing a number called, "We're Doing the Hokey-Dokey." His prolific output in a 50-year career also included "South of the Border" and "Teddy Bear's Picnic."
 At the start of World War II, Kennedy teamed up with Mitchell Lane to write such patriotic numbers as "We're Going to Hang Out the Washing on the Siegfried Line." The cause of death was not stated.

New lava flow eases volcano
VOLCANO, Hawaii (AP) — A new lava flow from Mauna Loa volcano has halted the main river of lava that threatened the city of Hilo, geologists said Friday.
 The new flow broke out at an elevation of about 6,000 feet, and apparently is taking all of the lava from the vent at the 3,900-foot level, according to Ed Wolf, spokesman for the U.S. Geological Survey's Hawaiian Volcano Observatory.
 Scientists have not been able to examine the volcano to determine the reason for the flow's diversion.
 But the new branch stopped the main flow, a 20-foot wall of lava which had advanced to the 2,965-foot level.
 It is about four miles from the nearest homes in Hilo, the state's second-biggest city, Wolfe said. The new flow was about 12 miles from populated areas at the last report, which was Thursday night.
 "This gives Hilo more time and distance," said Harry Kim, Hawaii County Civil Defense administrator.
 The 10-mile river of lava, 300 feet wide at its front, was a branch of the original main flow from the eruption which began March 25.
 Heavy clouds and mechanical problems with a helicopter prevented scientists from flying over the volcano early Friday, Wolfe said.

Woman crash-lands her plane
IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A Logan, Utah, woman forced to land her plane on the desert near here walked away unharmed.
 Lee Ann Ayres, 28, was flying her two-seat plane from Twin Falls to Idaho Falls Thursday when the engine began sputtering near East Twin Butte, the Idaho State Police said.
 Ms. Ayres made an emergency landing on the desert three miles south of U.S. 20.
 The plane's wing and propeller were damaged.

Men fined for driving over gulls
PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — Two men have been fined more than $2,200 for running over 66 seagulls in a supermarket parking lot.
 Rodney J. Miller, 30, of Big Run, and Michael J. London, 25, of Punxsutawney, pleaded guilty Thursday before District Justice Guy Lester.
 The charges included disorderly conduct and 66 counts each of the unlawful killing of protected birds. The latter charges were filed by Don Garner, district game protector for Jefferson County.
 Witnesses said the men were riding in a pickup truck at about 5 a.m. March 19 and began making figure eights through about 2,000 ring-billed seagulls. The birds had landed in the lot outside the County Market in Punxsutawney.
 "It had just rained and the birds 'thought it was a lake or a body of water. People were going in the County Market and buying bread for the birds,'" Lester said.

Fishermen set boats ablaze
CHARLESTON, Ore. (AP) — Two groups of commercial fishermen set fire to salmon boats on the Oregon coast to protest a proposed summer ban on coho-salmon fishing that the fishermen said would put them out of business.
 About 150 people, many wearing black armbands, turned out at Hansen's Landing on the southern Oregon coast to watch a 30-foot boat burn. And at Eagle City on the northern coast, fishermen set two small trolling boats ablaze.
 "We'll probably be called the same thing as those people that dressed up as Indians to throw tea off boats in Boston harbor," Wayne Wolf, president of the 140-member Independent Troll Fishermen of Oregon, said at Hansen's Landing. "How long are we going to set back and let agencies and bureaucrats take over our business?"
 A donated, wood-hulled boat was stripped of its engine and equipment and soaked with kerosene before Mike Parment, wearing a black executioner's hood, tossed a torch into it.
 Suspended from booms on the boat were effigies of Gov. Vic Atiyeh and Jack Donaldson, director of the state Department of Fish and Wildlife.
 "They are taking millions of dollars out of Oregon based on assumptions," said Jerry McDaniel, vice president of the fishermen's group. Coho fishing accounts for 70 percent of the fishermen's earnings, he said.
 A Pacific Ore. Dave Schlip, a fisherman and member of the Coalition for Responsible Salmon Management, said the state's practices are "slowly strangling us."

 Prosecutor Dan Adamsson has formally filed for the Republican nomination in the 2nd district.
 Richard Stallings, the Rice College professor who lost to Hansen by less than 300 votes in 1982, filed his candidacy petitions Friday morning.
 Both have said they will not dwell on Hansen's legal problems.
 Hansen's resignation announcement came as the former chief attorney for the House Stanley Brand confirmed that he will help conduct the Ethics Committee investigation into Hansen's conduct.

 But contending prospects are good that he will eventually be vindicated of the charges made in a "prosecution of innuendo," Hansen was confident about his political future.
 "We expect to win the election and we expect to win the appeal," he said. "If I didn't have ultimate confidence that that would be the case, I wouldn't be here saying we want to take another run at it."
 Nathan Lewin, one of his attorneys, has said at least two dozen errors were committed during Hansen's trial, and each could result in reversal in any other case.

 Hansen faces up to 20 years in prison and $40,000 in fines on the convictions and could face disciplinary action by the House Ethics Committee as well.
 Still, his staunchest supporters remained behind him. Said Ron Partridge of St. Anthony, "We would be better off having George Hansen behind bars in Washington than sending a Democrat to serve us."

 reer not as a bipartisan supporter of our foreign policy, but a perennial critic."
 Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., called Reagan's speech "an outrageous attempt to blame Congress for his own failures in foreign policy."
 Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said, "While it may be necessary every now and then for us to slug it out, it seems to me it would be a lot better if we tried to hold hands and come up with a bipartisan foreign policy."
 But Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on the Middle East, said problems in that area were "certainly to a degree Congress' fault." He said "the equivocation on Lebanon was clearly reported in all of the Middle East papers. They watched it and it's the result they played us. There is no question about that."

 Reagan's audience sat silently throughout his speech and applauded only at the conclusion.
 Reagan complained in his speech that Congress had demanded a larger role in shaping foreign policy but did not always act responsibly.
 He said "second-guessing" in Congress about keeping Marines in Lebanon "severely undermined our policy. It hindered the ability of our diplomats to negotiate, encouraged more intelligence from the Syrians and prolonged the violence."
 Likewise, Reagan said, "congressional wavering" about extending military and economic aid to Central America "can only encourage the enemies of democracy who are determined to wear us down."

 Reagan said that "in this post-Vietnam era, Congress has not yet developed capacities for coherent, responsible action needed to carry out the new foreign policy powers it has taken for itself."
 Reagan added, "We must restore America's honorable tradition of partisan politics stopping at the water's edge. Republicans and Democrats standing united in patriotism and speaking with one voice as responsible trustees for peace, democracy, individual liberty and the rule of law."

 enacting the nation's most restrictive initiative procedure, or the initiative could become a dead letter here as it apparently has become in our neighboring state of Wyoming," Evans said.
 The water rights bill was a last-minute compromise which attempted to raise some 5,000 southern Idaho irrigators from a lawsuit over water rights.
 Evans said the long legislative battle on the issue "has left many participants with the conviction the best forum to resolve this issue is the courts."
 He said he's convinced it is "vital to Idaho's continued growth and prosperity" for the state to control the allocation of water.

 Attorney General Jim Jones agreed the bill should be vetoed, because it might "impair" Idaho's position in the water rights lawsuit.
 Evans said the bill might be considered an admission the state is interested only in protecting existing water rights.

 "My conviction is that all of the people who derive their livelihood directly or indirectly from irrigated agriculture... have a stake in the resolution of the issue of control over future uses of the Snake River," he said.

 Education Improvement Act, a "landmark effort on the part of the Legislature" to improve education.
 "It's aimed at the key person in the whole educational process, the classroom teacher," he said.
 "The challenge to improve education moves from the state level to the local level. And people will be watching to see what happens," said Sen. Terry-Heilly, D-Nampa.
 "This is one of the most significant pieces of legislation to make it through the legislative process in many years," said Jerry Evans.
 He called the bill "a serious and strong effort at the state level" to improve Idaho education.
 The superintendent said there's been talk in some districts that boards may try to divert the money intended for teacher salaries into operating budgets.
 "I will work very hard to make sure the money is used for salaries," he said.
 Ms. Bray said educators should support legislative candidates this fall who back spending an extra $13.5 million next year to complete the two-year effort to improve teacher salaries.
 Gov. Evans commended Rep. Jerry Decker, R-Eagle, who engineered the sales tax bill through the House. Decker said it's hard to raise tax increases, but the sales tax bill was "an investment in our future."
 He said Idaho needs stability in its tax structure to have economic development and passage of the sales tax measure will help that stability.

Guards attempt overthrow of once-stable African nation

By W. JOSEPH CAMPBELL
The Associated Press

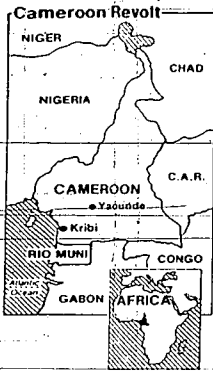

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — Disgruntled elements of Cameroon's presidential palace guard apparently tried to seize power Friday, but radio reports from the West African nation's capital suggested the attempt was foiled after intense fighting.

Sources said a segment of the palace guard apparently took up arms over a presidential order Thursday calling for the transfer of all guards who are from the northern, predominantly Moslem part of the country of 8.4 million people. It was not clear where they were being transferred.

Western diplomats in Yaounde reported by telephone that gunfire was heard in the capital for two hours before dawn. Fighting apparently was intense at times and continued into the day in the city of 313,000, according to other reports.

There were unconfirmed reports that President Paul Biya's military chief of staff was in the hands of the mutineers, a diplomat in Abidjan said.

Quoting reports from the U.S. Embassy in Cameroon, State Department spokesman John Hughes said American official personnel were remaining in their homes "until the situation becomes clear."

"We have no indication of threats to Americans or injury to American property," said Hughes, who added that there are about 1,200 Americans in Cameroon.

Cameroon is one of West Africa's most prosperous countries and was regarded as quite stable. An oil producer, it is one of the few countries in the region self-sufficient in food.

In the northern Cameroon city of Garoua, a radio statement broadcast late Friday acknowledged the palace guard rebellion but said forces loyal to Biya had "the situation well in hand."

Biya, 51, who has held power since November 1982, was reported out of the capital and away from the fighting.

In Paris, the respected French daily Le Monde reported that Cameroon's 8,000-man army remained loyal to the president.

Biya, a Christian from the southern part of the country, has been in power since November 1982. He was hand-picked by ex-leader Ahidjo as successor, but the two had a falling out when Ahidjo accused Biya of having installed a "police state" in Cameroon.

Etienne Wtsama, the country's finance minister, said in Paris on Friday that the fighting in the capital would surely damage Cameroon's reputation as one of Africa's most stable countries.

Shuttle stalking defective satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger stalked a sun-sudy satellite through the trackless heavens Friday, flying higher than ever before to make an in-space repair of an observatory too important and too expensive to let fall.

The first satellite rescue mission began, only 57 one-thousandths of a second late, with a liftoff as pretty as any of the 10 that preceded it.

You look great going up the hill," said Mission Control.

"The view from here is as spectacular as ever," replied commander Robert Rippen, the first astronaut to make three shuttle flights.

The astronauts spent the day making small course corrections and checking out the spacecraft systems they'll use during the six-day flight, particularly the shuttle arm which will be vital for placing a bus-size experiments package into orbit and for hauling in the ailing satellite. In the words of flight Director John Cox, television views from the shuttle cabin "looked like the kids in back of the station wagon when you go on vacation. Pinky and Ox were having a great time, taking a lot of pictures and looking out the windows."

Pinky is the nickname of astronaut George Nelson; James van Hoften is called Ox.

Flight Director Gary Coen said, "The orbiter and the countdown went by the clock today, there were absolutely no problems in any of those areas." However, he said, a problem with Mission Control computers in Houston caused "intermittent tracking that began right at liftoff and continued right through the launch phase."

Information was available from other sources, Coen said, and there was nothing to disturb the flight. Cox said later that the computers "experienced some sort of overload that wasn't quite understood."

The shuttle's boosters were being recovered from the Atlantic about 150 miles offshore. The ship's huge external tank, which held 540,000 gallons of fuel to power the flight, fell as planned in the Pacific, 125 miles from the main island of Hawaii and it was photographed coming down — the first time that's been achieved.

The tank looked like a huge orange ball when it reentered the Earth's atmosphere about 5:20 a.m. MST, according to an astronomer at the University of Hawaii observatory atop Mauna Kea on the island.

"As it passed south of the island, it was incredibly bright — all sorts of bits and pieces falling off the tank and glowing by themselves," said astronomer David Tholen. "We could see the thing stretch almost entirely across the southern sky."

Redistricting-plan ruling expected

LEWISTON (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court plans to release a decision Monday on whether to approve a redistricting plan adopted in the last hours of the 1984 state election.

Justices listened to about two hours of arguments on a challenge to the Legislature's plan Friday before deciding to hold a ruling until after the weekend.

Cocumet Alone attorney Ray Givens argued that the Legislature's plan discriminates against Indians and Hispanics. "The plan also violates the United States Constitution and creates an oligarchy among Idaho counties," Givens said.

A state Legislature resulting from an election under that plan would not reflect Idaho's population because of "gerrymandering and split counties," he said.

"We no longer have a republican form of government, a government that truly represents the people," Givens said. "We have an oligarchy."

Attorneys representing Ada County, Gov. John Evans, the Legislature and its leadership defended the plan.

Givens wants redistricting plan 14-B, which was approved by 1st District Judge Dar Cogswell, used for this year's elections. That plan would expand the current 35-district Legislature to 40 districts. The Legislature's adds one district.

The dispute over legislative redistricting, created when the state Supreme Court voided the original 1982 plan on constitutional grounds, has thrown the state's election process into turmoil. Candidates filed for two weeks under 14-B, but those filings were voided last Monday when Evans signed the Legislature's plan. Secretary of State Pete Conarrusia has said that if the plan is changed again he will be forced to ask for a postponement of the May 22 primary election.

Thousands flee Northeastern flood

By DAVID L. LANGFORD
The Associated Press

Record floods produced by a slow-moving rainstorm washed 10 feet deep Friday through some suburban communities of the Northeast where thousands sought refuge in emergency shelters and others climbed to rooftops to escape the turbulent water.

Rivers gorged by up to 5 inches of rain in two days surged as high as 7 feet above flood stage, blocking major highways in the New York City area and chasing at least 4,700 people from their homes in northern New Jersey.

National Guardsmen in boats and trucks helped rescue residents cut off by the rising water.

"It's a disaster," said New Jersey Gov. Thomas H. Kean, who flew over the flooded areas in a helicopter. "There is no other word I can use. It's a very tragic sight."

Kean said that federal and state officials would open emergency centers this weekend for residents to inquire about assistance.

The governor said a request for $121.7 million in federal aid to pay for damage along the New Jersey shore caused by a storm last week would be amended to include this week's flood devastation.

In drought-stricken Arizona, meanwhile, up to a half-inch of rain was reported in the central and eastern parts of the state — the first major precipitation in nearly three months.

The National Weather Service said at least four rivers reached record heights in the New Jersey counties of Bergen, Passaic and Morris.

Jim Iandoli, the Passaic County police chief and emergency management coordinator, said: "I've been with the police department 32 years and this is the worst we've ever had. In some of these homes, the water is right up to the roofs."

The Westchester County village of Arstey, a community of 4,500 about 10 miles north of Manhattan, was inundated with 6 feet of water in the downtown area shortly before dawn. About 15 families were evacuated by motorboat in Yonkers, N.Y.

Race car driver charged with murder

JUNCTION CITY, Kan. (AP) — An Australian-born race car driver linked to the death or disappearance of seven women from Florida to Nevada, was charged Friday with murdering one of them — an Oklahoma woman whose body was found last month in Kansas.

Christopher Bernard Wilder, 33, was charged in a Geary County District Court warrant with first-degree murder, felony murder, aggravated kidnapping and rape in the death of Suzanne M. Logan, 26, of Oklahoma City. Mrs. Logan's body was found March 26 near Millford Lake in Geary County.

Wilder "very definitely is our man," said Geary County Deputy Sheriff William Deppiss. The warrant listed bond for Wilder, still at large, at $2 million.

"There's strong evidence linking him (Wilder) to the homicide," said Don Winsor of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation.

Wilder was spotted near Lake Tahoe on the California-Nevada border sometime since last Sunday, when he was seen in Las Vegas, Nev., said FBI spokesman Lane Bonner.

"The pattern would indicate he's heading west, possibly for southern California," said Assistant FBI Director Oliver "Buck" Revell.

Wilder "represents a significant danger. He's extremely active, very dangerous," Revell said.

The similarities included the manner in which Mrs. Logan was bound — with silver duct tape and one-quarter inch nylon cord — and the type of wounds she suffered, said Albert Buskey, an investigator with the Geary County sheriff's office.

Mrs. Logan died of a stab wound in the back with an eight- to 10-inch blade that entered her chest cavity, Buskey said. He said she also had been beaten.

An 18-year-old woman was reported missing from Grand Junction, Colo., three days after Mrs. Logan was found. And on Sunday, a 17-year-old girl who had participated in a beauty contest disappeared from a Las Vegas shopping mall.

Wilder approaches attractive young women in shopping malls and identifies himself as a photographer, which he has been, Revell said. He then comments on the woman's appearance and potential as a model, and tries to persuade her to accompany him for a photo session, the FBI said.

Wilder has been charged by the FBI with kidnapping a Tulsa, Okla., woman from a shopping mall on March 20 and taking her to Bainbridge, Ga.

Revell said that on March 21 she managed to break away, "decided herself in a motel bathroom — screamed, prompting her abductor to flee. The woman identified Wilder, Revell said.

March's jobless rate holds steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate leveled off at 7.4 percent in March, ending six months of steady improvement since last summer, the government reported Friday.

However, most economists said the trend of lower rates was only interrupted rather than ended for good. Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, putting the best face on the new figures, noted that nearly 250,000 people found work in March, a stable increase although much less than February's 700,000.

Even with the jobless rate holding steady at the February level — because an increase in job-seekers nearly matched the number of new jobs — Donovan said "the region showed President Reagan's economic program is continuing to produce good news for the American worker."

And at the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said economic growth "continues at a healthy pace."

"In spite of the recent rise in the prime interest rate, confidence in the economy remains high... Consumer confidence is also strong," Speakes said.

Critics noted that the unemployment rate is still very high for a period of economic recovery and still above the 7.4 percent Reagan inherited when he took office in January 1981.

Rudy Oswald, chief economist for the AFL-CIO, said "joblessness remains stuck," and he called for government programs to help reduce it.

In all, civilian employment reached a record 104.1 million in March, while about 8.7 million people remained officially categorized as unemployed, the Labor Department said.

One killed in head-on train crash

GOLDTHWAITE, Texas (AP) — Two Santa Fe Railroad freight trains collided head-on early Friday, setting fire to three engines and a boxcar and killing one crewman, officials said.

Nine locomotives and three freight cars derailed in the 6 a.m. collision seven miles south of this west-central Texas town between Waco and San Angelo, said Santa Fe spokesman Loren Simmons in Dallas.

"Everyone was able to jump clear of the locomotives with the exception of the deceased man," said Santa Fe trainmaster M.H. Lynn. Simmons said the cause of the collision remains under investigation. It occurred on a straight section of track where the maximum allowable speed is 30 mph, officials said.

Santa Fe trainmaster M.H. Lynn said he hadn't yet determined the speeds of the trains.

No toxic materials were involved, officials said, and firefighters said a strong south wind kept the flames away from a propane car.

"If we'd had a north wind, we'd had plenty of trouble," said Roger Horton, chief of the volunteer fire department in Goldthwaite. He said the flames were about 20 feet high as the engines' diesel fuel burned.

Department of Public Safety spokesman Larry Todd said 100 yards of track parallel to U.S. Highway 183 were torn up in the crash. Simmons said train 506, which originated in Somerville, was headed to Amarillo with six loads of general merchandise and 88 empty cars. Its three engines were destroyed and three cars derailed, he said.

Ford suggests Meese should step down

FARMINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Former President Ford, citing "a degree of carelessness that I don't think can be condoned" in President Reagan's official family, suggested Friday that Edwin Meese III should resign as the president's counselor — and presumably as his nominee to become attorney general.

Ford recalled the resignation of Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz from his own cabinet in 1976 after Butz told a racial joke. The former president said Butz did the right thing by resigning to save the administration from embarrassment.

Asked if this implied that Meese should do the same, Ford said, "That's a fair inference."

Mondale resumes his verbal attack on Hart

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

Walter F. Mondale ended a short-lived truce and opened fire on Sen. Gary Hart again Friday as the three candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination campaigned briefly in Wisconsin for delegates to be allocated by caucus today.

Hart concentrated his fire on President Reagan, never mentioning Mondale by name as he sought to convert victory in the state's beauty contest primary last Tuesday into delegates.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson emphasized his advocacy of defense spending cuts in a speech to the state legislature at Madison.

But even as the three fought for a share of the 78 pledged delegates at stake today, they kept an eye on Pennsylvania where a primary next Tuesday primarily will divide the third-largest batch of pledged state delegates — 172.

Mondale shed the calm, positive tone that marked the League of Women Voters' debate in Pittsburgh on Thursday night and aimed his fire on Hart once again. The former vice president attacked Hart's record on the nuclear freeze and his opposition to federal help for troubled corporations that Mondale supported.

"My opponent has a record on the freeze which has been unsteady and vacillating," Mondale declared in Milwaukee. "We need somebody who is sure-footed, solid and in this case who's got the experience."

Wisconsin was one of the first states to back the freeze. For weeks, Mondale has been attacking Hart's failure to come out for the proposal until shortly before he announced for president.

New evidence costs teachers bail in child sex abuse case

By KATHY HORAK
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A judge revoked bail Friday for five preschool teachers charged with a decade of sexual abuse against pupils, saying the children's testimony and new allegations by prosecutors indicated a "vast conspiracy" against the youngsters and their parents.

Deputy District Attorney Lael Rubin displayed a chart outlining a total of 397 new allegations of molestations, photo sessions and threats by the seven defendants, saying the new claims of abuse came from children interviewed as recently as March 28.

Only Virginia McMartin, 76, founder of the Virginia McMartin Preschool in Manhattan Beach and teacher Mary Ann Jackson, 56, were allowed to remain free on bond they already had posted.

"If there's any case where there is to be no bail in a non-capital case, this is that case," Superior Court Judge Ronald George said.

His ruling came after Ms. Rubin presented the new evidence of additional molestations by Mrs. McMartin, her daughter, grandson and granddaughter and three teachers.

Ms. Rubin quoted Kee McFarlane, a therapist at the Children's Institute International who is interviewing the children for prosecutors, as saying she found "great terror in the children she has talked to to this date."

She said she believed the children and their parents are under a serious threat.

Ms. Rubin said the community's "psychological trauma" would increase unless George revoked bail for Peggy McMartin Buckley, 57, her son Raymond Buckley, 25, her daughter Peggy Ann Buckley, 28, and teachers Betty Ralston, 64, and Babette Spitzer, 36.

Witnesses silent on murder in bar

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A man was stabbed and bled to death on a tavern floor while others continued playing pool a few yards away, and none of the 76 people who were in the bar will talk about the murder, police said Friday.

"If anybody knows anything — and I'm sure somebody does — he hasn't come forward yet," said Sgt. David Parkinson.

Moments before the stabbing, Martin's Drive Inn was crowded, but few patrons remained when officers arrived late Tuesday to find James Arthur Teague bleeding from multiple stab wounds, police said. "Teague was wearing a white shirt, neck, face, shoulder and chest with a knife with a 3 1/2-inch blade," said Dr. Robert Bayardo, Travis County medical examiner. He died within five minutes.

Despite so many potential witnesses, police said they have neither suspects nor a motive.

"Usually, when they have that many people, somebody sooner or later will talk to us," Lt. Robert Wisian said.

He described Martin's as "just a typical bar and pool room type deal. There were no ones-in-town and there sure are a lot better ones."

Officers arrived at the tavern after receiving a call about an injury, but said it was not known who made the call or where it came from.

Deborah Ledesma was the first officer to arrive. Emergency Medical Service personnel were working on Teague's wounds when she reached the tavern about 1:40 p.m. Tuesday.

Dispute surfaces over Nicaraguan mines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and France were embroiled in a dispute Friday over a French proposal to help Nicaragua clear its waters of mines planted by American-backed rebel forces.

French Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson called humanitarian grounds for his offer, but State Department spokesman John Hughes said any attempt by France to supply minesweepers to Nicaragua "might facilitate the export of revolution" by the Sandinista government.

"We have all along been concerned with the large Soviet and Cuban military relationship with Nicaragua and we would not favor any nation's contributing to Nicaragua's ability to export revolution with impunity," Hughes told reporters.

He added that the United States has raised its concerns with the French government.

Cheysson's letter, made public in Managua, said the mines pose "serious problems of political ethics" because they are directed at a small country, not at war. The authenticity of the letter was confirmed here by Nicaraguan diplomats.

The mines have damaged at least seven ships in the past few weeks, including a Soviet oil tanker and a Japanese freighter, injuring crewmen of both nations.

Baby Jane Doe gets surgery, goes home

MINNEOLA, N.V. (AP) — The parents of Baby Jane Doe, a deformed and retarded infant who prompted a national debate over the right to withhold treatment for handicapped children, revealed Friday that they had allowed surgery to make the child more comfortable.

An operation to drain fluid pressing on the baby's brain — which Ugparents had refused to permit at first — was performed three weeks ago, and on Thursday she was taken home for the first time.

"I feel like a daddy now," her father said Friday.

Lawrence Washburn, an anti-abortion activist who had unsuccessfully sued to force the parents to permit surgery to correct the child's various problems, said they "saved their child's life and I think they are wonderful people."

The Reagan administration also had sued to see if she was being discriminated against because of her handicaps.

It was in 1889 that China passed a law which makes it a criminal offense there for a married couple to neglect their parents. When a man and woman commit themselves to each other, they vow also to take care of their mothers and fathers until death. It precisely pins down responsibility for the elderly. Observers here compare it to our child support laws. They wonder if it will work. And if it will influence change in our own social security setup. They note realistically that a lot of elderly people here don't want to be the legal responsibility of their offspring.

Bloc to fight McClure's wilderness bill

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

BOISE — Idaho outdoorsmen are forming a coalition to oppose what they term Sen. James McClure's "atrocious" wilderness bill. And the coalition says it's aiming at the average guy on the street, not those involved in environmental or conservation organizations.

Jack Hemingway of Ketchum, former member of the Idaho Fish and Game Commission called McClure's wilderness proposal "an impending disaster" and "atrocious" legislation.

He urged sportsmen to unite to change the bill, or "take it completely to head off" potentially devastating and far-reaching impact on Idaho's wildlife. He said the bill would allow development of a major portion of the state's fish and game habitat.

Hemingway was joined by other outdoorsmen and writers in forming the Idaho Sportsman's Coalition on Friday.

Hemingway said McClure's "essentially a very fine senator" but has completely ignored the wishes and needs of Idaho's sportsmen in drawing up a wilderness proposal.

"He's given in to the lure of big money politics," said Hemingway.

The subject of the sportsmen's ire was the proposed Idaho Forest Management Act, announced last month by McClure and other members of the Idaho congressional delegation.

Bill Livingston, a McClure aide, said that people "are looking at the forest in black and white terms — wilderness or non-wilderness. That is a misconception."

"The forests that remain non-wilderness may still be protected by forest management plans," Livingson said. It recommends placing 536,064 acres of public lands in Idaho in permanent wilderness, but releasing the rest of some eight million acres that has been studied for years as potential wilderness.

Environmental and conservation groups have condemned the proposal as inadequate.

The McClure proposal is under the $90,000 acres recommended by the Idaho timber industry. The state already has 3,865,388 acres in wilderness.

The new Idaho Sportsman's coalition said 2.9 million acres should be protected as wilderness, 4.1 million acres should be opened for logging, road-building, mining and other things and about one million acres should be held for further study.

Hemingway said the new group isn't tied in with organized groups, but wants to tell Idaho hunters and fishermen their interests are being threatened by the bill.

Stallings stumping

BOISE (AP) — College professor Richard Stallings has launched his second congressional campaign here with a pledge to focus on the issues, instead of the legal problems faced by Republican George Hansen.

"His problems are well-known. The people will have to decide," said Stallings Friday. He filed his nominating petitions at the Statehouse, seeking the Democratic nomination in the 2nd Congressional District.

Hansen, the seven-term incumbent, on Monday was convicted on federal charges of falsifying personal financial disclosure reports. He'll be sentenced later.

Stallings told a news conference he has been "very circumspect" about Hansen's problems, and plans to continue that.

"Our campaign will go on as scheduled," he said. Stallings, a professor at the Mormon Church-owned Ricks College at Rexburg, as a political newcomer two years ago lost to Hansen by about 7,000 votes.

This time, he said, he will be better-financed. He will focus on Hansen's shortcomings as the representative from a district where farmers are in serious trouble. Stallings said he expects to spend about $250,000 on the campaign, and thinks Hansen will spend more. But so far, Hansen hasn't announced whether he'll run again. The filing deadline is next Friday.

"Idaho needs a full-time congressman, not someone who is distracted on other things such as holding special interests," Stallings said.

IEA won't allow pay increase barriers

GARDEN CITY (AP) — The Idaho Education Association will battle any school administrator trying to divert money from a multimillion-dollar program to improve teacher salaries into basic school operating budgets.

The association's director has pledged. Don Rolfe told the IEA's Delegate Assembly on Friday that the $20.3 million appropriated by the Legislature this year is clearly designed for raising teacher salaries closer to the levels being paid nationally. "We stand squarely in the path of those who say money of that nature can be siphoned off for other purposes," Rolfe said.

While a one-cent permanent increase in the sales tax gave lawmakers enough money to provide the money for teacher salary equity, the overall public schools budget for the coming year is some $7 million below what analysts say is needed just to maintain 1983-1984 operations at this year's level.

Montana agency sues over arsenic poisoning

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — The Montana Department of Health and Environmental Sciences said Friday it has filed a lawsuit here against ASARCO Inc., charging arsenic contamination of groundwater in the vicinity of the company's lead-zinc smelter in East Helena.

The suit stems from alleged arsenic poisoning of some cattle near the smelter last fall. The department asked the district court for an injunction to halt alleged water pollution and for $50,000 in civil penalties as well as recovery of the department's investigation costs and expenses.

The agency also asked the court to order ASARCO to conduct a study of industrial waste discharges and to submit a compliance plan to prevent all discharges of industrial wastes from the smelter without a state permit.

Department officials said the studies, follow-up actions and elimination of arsenic contamination are the primary goals of the lawsuit. They also said that ASARCO may have already started some of the requested actions because the company recognizes the problem.

Cannibalism found in bears

BOISE (AP) — Black bears southeast of Council are cannibalizing cubs. That is one of the findings of a decade-long research project that could have broad effects on the management of bear hunting in Idaho and elsewhere.

Researchers have captured more than 500 bears in the Council population and from that they've drawn data shared with scientists as far away as Finland. One result of the study is the indication that if older bears aren't hunted, the population may decline nonetheless, said John Becham, wildlife research director for the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

"If hunters aren't taking excess bears, then the bears themselves may do it," Becham said. "The cannibalism just recently documented in the Council bear habitat. There may be some value in hunting bears at a moderate level."

Scientists had known earlier that young bears in some northern Idaho areas were being eaten by older ones. The department closed the 75-square-mile Council study zone to hunting in 1975 and collected comparative data seven years later.

Evans kills medical proposal

BOISE (AP) — Gov. John Evans has vetoed a program engineered by the Idaho Legislature to get counties out from under astronomical medical bills for indigents. It was a good idea, the governor said Friday, in vetoing House Bill 559.

But the proposal was amended to make the state responsible for huge medical bills for indigents. Evans said that made the program unworkable. As the legislation was amended, the state would have been responsible for unlimited medical payments, with no way to monitor or control the costs. The program was to have been administered by a private organization, the Association of Idaho Counties.

"This is a major change in state policy that could prove to have a significant impact on the state general account in future years," the governor said.

Fighting eclipses cease-fire request

By MONA ZIABE
The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Artillery duels and gun battles flared across the "green line" dividing the Muslim and Christian sectors of Beirut Friday night and a call for a cease-fire went ignored.

Reports said at least seven people were killed and 25 were wounded in the night-time fighting. The broadcast reported that renewed fighting also between the army garrison at Souk el-Gharb, 12 miles east of the capital and Druse gunners in the surrounding mountains.

There had been a late-morning lull, but the fighting began again in the afternoon, starting with mortar barges across the green line between mostly Muslim west and Christian east Beirut.

The Voice of Lebanon radio station of Christian Lebanese factions said several rockets crashed close to the Justice Palace about 500 yards from the only crossing between east and west.

The latest casualties raised the number of victims in the renewed fighting that began Thursday night at least 11 killed and 46 wounded. Despite the fighting, President Amin Gemayel's government was readying a force of 2,000 police to be deployed in proposed buffer zones between combatants in Beirut and the nearby mountains, government sources said.

The nation's warring factions agreed to the key points of a disengagement plan on Wednesday and since then, military experts from all sides have been trying to develop a detailed map for implementing the plan.

Michael Samaha, a senior aide to Gemayel, remained in the Syrian capital of Damascus a second day Friday to prepare for a meeting of Gemayel and Syrian President Hafez Assad. No date has been set for the meeting.

Syria, the Soviet Union's main ally in the Middle East, is backing Lebanese Shiite Muslim and Druse forces battling Gemayel's government. But it has pledged to help devise a formula for peace in Lebanon.

Rafik Hariri, a Lebanese-born Saudi Arabian who has been mediating in Lebanon, met Friday night with Samaha and Druse leader Walid Jumblatt in Damascus.

Neo-Nazi membership rises in West Germany

In an annual report, the ministry said left and right-wing terrorists stepped up their attacks in 1983, but did not achieve their goal of damaging the West German democratic system. Extreme left and extreme right parties each polled less than 1 percent in national parliamentary elections last year.

The number of right-wing extremist organizations decreased in 1983, partly due to government bans, but total membership increased, the Interior Ministry report said.

By year's end, there were 68 right-wing extremist groups in West Germany, with a total of 20,300 members, as compared with 74 such groups with 19,000 members in 1982, the report said.

The total number of known neo-Nazi rose by 100 to 1,400 in 1983, the ministry reported. Neo-Nazi committed 78 serious crimes in 1983, up from 70 the year before, the report said.

The Interior Ministry said federal investigators have concentrated on breaking up the neo-Nazi Hepp-Kessel Group, which was believed responsible for car bombings that seriously injured two U.S. servicemen in West Germany in December 1982.

One founder of the group was detained, but the second remains at large.

Iraq claims heavy bombing

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq said its warplanes bombed Iranian troop concentrations Friday east of the Iraqi city of Basra, inflicting heavy losses, Iraq said its navy shelled Iraqi shore positions to the south.

The military in the 314-year-old war reported intense fighting along the southern front from the Huweizah marshes northeast of Basra to the Persian Gulf.

A military communique broadcast by Baghdad, radio, monitored in Nicosia, said waves of Iraqi bomber jets scored "direct and effective hits" on the troop concentrations. It said the bombing resulted in heavy Iranian losses in men and equipment, but gave no specific figures.

Iraq ground forces attacked Iranian positions in the same area, killing five Iranian soldiers and wounding several others, the communique said.

In the Huweizah marshes east of the Tigris river, Iraq shells set ablaze several Iranian troop emplacements and destroyed an ammunition dump, it said.

Murder trial will begin soon

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The trial of five former national guardsmen accused of murdering four American churchwomen may start in early May, court officials said Friday.

Court clerk Jose Anibal Jimenez said Judge Bernardo Ugalde Murcia should be ready to begin the trial May 8, two days after the expected date for a presidential runoff in El Salvador.

The five guardsmen are charged with murdering the churchwomen Dec. 2, 1980, after kidnapping them as they drove from the international airport to the capital.

The bodies of Maryknoll nuns Ita Ford, 40, and Maura Clarke, 49, of New York; Ursuline nun Dorothy Kazou, 34, and the worker Jean Donovan, 27, both of Cleveland, were found two days later in a shallow grave 35 miles southeast of San Salvador.

U.S. embassy's move doubtful

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Fearing the effort is doomed, Israel's cabinet and media have shown a lack of enthusiasm for a proposal to move the U.S. Embassy from Tel Aviv to Israel's disputed capital of Jerusalem.

Although Israeli parties of the left and right all support such a move, most political observers here believe the proposal has little chance of success and that failure might be politically harmful.

Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., has introduced a bill proposing the move, and it has become an issue in the U.S. presidential campaign.

Oakley Reservoir threatens spring overflow

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Oakley Canal Co. and Cassia County officials are keeping a close watch on the Oakley Reservoir, which threatens to overflow its banks for the first time since it was built more than 60 years ago.

Spring runoff has barely begun, but the reservoir is already about two-thirds full, according to Ed Gorringer, the canal company manager.

A major overflow could threaten irrigated croplands, farm houses and residential developments built up along what used to be the Goose Creek drainage channel downstream from the reservoir.

Since the reservoir was built without a spillway, the only way to drain down the water level is through a diversion feed into the canal system, Gorringer says. Starting next week, Gorringer says the canal company will begin to put water into this system, but he says that the diversion will do little to lower the water level.

Just what the chances are of a major spill at the reservoir is the subject of some dispute.

Billy Crystal, a Cassia County disaster services official, says that "at this point we don't anticipate" that the reservoir will spill.

But Evan Rasmussen, the manager of the Burley Irrigation District, says, "Forecasts indicate that it will."

And Jerry Beard, a Soil Conservation

Service (forecaster, says that it is "borderline as to whether it (the reservoir) overtops or not."

But all three officials agree that a major spill could cause severe flooding in the developed areas in what used to be the Goose Creek drainage.

"If it were to overflow, it wouldn't have a channel to go down," Crystal said.

If the flow were severe, the water could eventually make its way into Burley area subdivisions built along the old drainage channel, Crystal says. Some evacuations might have to be ordered because "there wouldn't be enough sand bags in the county" to stave off the high waters, he said.

Beard said SCS would probably be able to predict an overflow "several days in advance." This should give county officials enough time to order an evacuation, he said.

The waters would pose the most immediate threat to Burley Irrigation District farmers, according to Rasmussen, and plans are being made to try to divert some of it into drainage areas.

"There's not much we can do until the water hits us, and then we'll do what we can," Rasmussen says.

The timetable for possible flooding is dependent on the weather. Beard says that the heavy South Hills snowpack could generate "tremendous volumes of water in a short period of time," during a warm spell.

But the short-term forecast calls for cloudy, cool weather with additional snowfall in elevations above 6,000 feet, according to National Weather Service forecaster Maux Barnes.

"There will be no massive melting in the foreseeable future," Barnes says, "with temperatures holding in the 40s and low 50s."

Another Magic Valley area reservoir, the Salmon Falls Reservoir, could also overflow this year for the first time in its history. The reservoir, which is slightly more than half full, would spill its waters into Salmon Falls Creek. The spilled water would cause no major flood damage, Beard says.

Books dissolve barriers between kids

By JANENE DUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Over cupcakes and punch on a windy Shoshone afternoon, students separated in age by 10 years shared both reading and friendship.

Nineteen students in Kathie Belan's first grade class took books they had personally written to the high school to share with Sharla-Hellie's sophomore English class.

"Totally awesome," sophomore Wade Cooper responded, when the 6-year-olds had finished reading their tales.

Hellie said Wednesday's adventure was a return visit. Her class had written children's stories, which they read to the first grade last month.

"They (the sophomores) were a little reluctant to read for the first grade," Hellie said, adding, however, once the reading session began, "the magic" of books—and children—dissolved any barriers created by the age difference.

Hellie said a story about earth worms written by Bart Harris captured the feeling of children's books.

Harris' story tells of a young boy creating mischief around his home with worms. Finally, his mother spans him and his father tells him "you get any more worms, I will span you every day for a month."

The young hero replies, "But that was OK. He didn't say anything about the frogs!"

A favorite with the first-graders was a story written by Dan Ferguson called "Taking a Bath."

Six-year-old Brook Hellie said he had done just like the boy in the story, rubbed dirt in the tub and put water on his hair to make his mother think he had taken a bath, "and she never knew," he said.

Bolan said her young charges decided they would write stories for their high school friends.

"They have had a ball reading with the high school kids."

The first graders use writing and oral reading as tools to improve vocabulary and reading skills, Bolan explained. She said they have done other types of book-writing projects throughout the year.

In Camas County Chance lost for judgeship

By DAVE LEWIS
and MARK JOHNSON
Times-News writers

FAIRFIELD — Camas County may have lost the second and last round in its bid to get a lawyer magistrate this year when the state Legislature cut the Supreme Court's request to pay for seven such positions around the state.

In its final days of action, the Legislature authorized only $40,700 of the court's requested $155,200 to upgrade seven lay-magistrate positions to lawyer magistrates.

The cut, says Douglas D. Kramer, administrative judge for the Fifth Judicial District, essentially kills the chances in upgrading the Camas County position.

"I think it sits very badly," he says. "I think it's very unfair."

Judges a raise this year, Kramer says he believes the lawmakers are mad at the courts for overturning their reapportionment bill and are trying to get even.

"The Legislature was terribly unfair with the judicial system this year," he says.

Kramer thinks rural magistrates can be shared among counties where they are needed. If the case load is too small for a full-time position in one county.

Appointee Varin also has expressed disappointment in the Legislature's decision not to pay for the position, which would cost around $50,000 a year as opposed to about $18,000 for a lay-magistrate.

Varin also questions the thinking of some that Camas County doesn't have a large enough caseload to justify a lawyer magistrate.

A little more than a month ago, the Legislature refused to appropriate funds to pay the salary and benefits of lawyers appointed to replace lay magistrates.

Anticipating funds from one source or the other, the Fifth District Magistrate's Commission had appointed Fairfield lawyer John Varin as Camas County's magistrate — contingent upon the necessary funding.

Kramer says lay magistrates cannot perform many functions that a lawyer magistrate can, unless they have special training and certification from the Supreme Court.

Because of that, he says, the Legislature's cut denies residents in rural areas the same judicial service as those in the urban areas with lawyer magistrates.

"I think the Legislature believes all the roads lead to Boise," Twin Falls, Pocatello, etc.," Kramer says.

He says he detects a trend in the state away from the idea rural people — loggers and farmers — deserve the same judicial services as the urbanites.

"We seem to be drifting away from that philosophy," he says.

Noting the Legislature did not give from state police officers, this highway (U.S. 20) is one of the 10 busiest highways in the state," he says. "There have been instances where people have received tickets and shown up for court only to find that the judge isn't there."

Varin also questions the thinking of some that Camas County doesn't have a large enough caseload to justify a lawyer magistrate.

"In order to accommodate the court, I have filed cases in areas other than Camas County so a magistrate wouldn't have to come in from somewhere else," he says.

"Now, my voluntary actions are being held in the front of statements about the lack of work here for a magistrate. There is plenty of work here for a magistrate as well as helping out around the district," Varin says.

The lack of a magistrate is also a problem in other areas. Varin says it is necessary to travel to Gooding

Two-day health fair offers peace of mind for participants

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Health Fair 84 is in the business of passing out peace of mind this weekend.

The event, which started Friday and will continue today from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., assesses fair-goers' health with a battery of simple tests. Most are brief, relatively painless and designed to indicate whether a visit to the doctor might be in order.

Participants start their tour around the college of Southern Idaho gym by filling out an information packet, with a variety of uncomfortable questions that point out what you probably already know.

Yes, you should be exercising more, eating less and working a little harder on quitting smoking.

The first stop on the tour is for a height and weight check. The good news is that you'll find about the shortest lines at the health fair here. But the bad news is nobody had been pleased with his weight by noon Friday, said Gladys Gould, a nurse from Magic Valley Staffing Service.

One middle-aged man stepped off the scale, telling his wife only that he weighed more than he should. He came to the fair Friday because his blood pressure tended to be a little high, and he could not resist having it checked for free.

Many of the participants were elderly at the Friday fair, but they were surprisingly healthy.

The first graders got good marks when Gary Garris of the Magic Valley Physical Therapy Clinic measured her flexibility with a few simple movements. But a 65-year-old woman ahead of her in line had done just as well.

A CSI nursing student said he had found no one to be anemic on Friday, after dipping drops of their blood in a copper sulfate solution. If the blood sank like lead, it was healthy.

But he had a little trouble selling his test. Not all fairgoers were willing to be stuck with another needle after just having a few tablespoons drawn for blood tests.

The blood tests were the only services that were not free. But they were still a bargain, according to Greg Lindsay of Twin Falls. He forked over $8 to have his blood tested to reveal the health of his liver, kidneys, thyroid and bones and to screen for gout, diabetes and an unhealthy diet.

A friend had recently spent $100 for a blood chemistry workup, he said, winning as a nurse from the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital withdrew a blood-filled needle.

Fewers taking the blood-test must fast for four hours beforehand. And if they want a cardiac-risk profile done in addition, the fast must be for 12 hours, so plan on skipping breakfast. The cardiac risk profile costs $10 if done separately or $6 if done with the other blood test.

One of the more exotic tests was a check for glaucoma. Dale Butler said he thought the test was meant more for people in their 70s, but as long as he had driven in from Gooding for the fair, he planned to check everything.

"This is just like being in the army back in

Damp weather stifles area jobless recovery

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley unemployment rose 0.4 percentage point during March as cold and wet conditions delayed outdoor work. The seasonally adjusted rate for Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties, advanced 1.4 percentage point to 6.8 percent, the state Department of Employment announced.

Weather also was blamed for a scant 1 percentage point increase in the unemployment rate, he said. "The rise is not statistically significant."

The inhospitable weather affected both agriculture and forestry industries. Farmers couldn't get into their fields and, as a consequence, weren't buying planting supplies. Loggers also were forced out of the forests to wait for the ground to dry, McDonald said.

In the three-county area, 3,535 workers from a work force of 53,073 remained off the job, said analyst Len McDonald from the agency's Twin Falls office.

The 6.8 percent rate estimated for March was 1.8 percent below that of March 1983, a sustained improvement, he said. "We're definitely on a different plane than we were a good part of the last two years," he said.

Statewide, department director McDonald reported 26,500 off the job from a work force of 429,100.

Unemployment was highest during March in Canyon County and was lowest in the Lewiston area, he said. A year ago, Idaho's rate stood at 7.9 percent.

Employment Department spokesman Randy Furniss said the Idaho economy has been improving overall with agriculture steady, and lumber and retail trade on the upswing. Of the state's four basic industries, only mining has been suffering.

Cancer Society drive kicks off today

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The annual educational and fund-raising campaign of the American Cancer Society kicks off today as part of April's Cancer Control Month in Twin Falls County.

Kay Gilbert is the overall Cancer Crusade chairman for the area with Gerry Miller in charge of the business contacts, says Cancer Society executive, Kathy Williams.

"In our residential area drive, we will be knocking on doors. This is our largest fund-raising effort and our major educational push," Williams said.

"We hope those who cannot make a donation will at least take one of our pamphlets" and read the information on cancer risks," Gilbert said. The theme this year is "The battle is not over, but we are winning."

received the PACE leader award for being the nation's leading county in reaching its residents with educational information and programs.

Williams said PACE, Priority Activities to Cancer Education, is an award given for reaching the largest percentage of the area population.

Twin Falls County cancer volunteers contacted 4,633 adults and 3,144 youths, distributing 24,000 pieces of literature. Out of 3,000 counties in the nation, only 31 made the PACE goal of reaching six percent of adults and 40 percent of the youth. Twin Falls exceeded in both divisions.

Williams and Gilbert said part of the annual crusade is also aimed at letting people know what services the Cancer Society provides in local communities.

In Twin Falls, the "Consummation" program is active helping patients and their families face the problems of treatment and illness.

Other local groups "Reach to

Recovery" and the "Candlelighters," assist mastectomy patients with recovery information and provide group contact for parents of children with cancer.

Williams said the local organization provides financial assistance to patients who need to purchase wigs or treatment and care equipment.

She said there are 500 people in the local area participating in a cancer study. These are one-on-one questionnaires regarding diet, life style and environment and will continue with follow up questionnaires to help determine how these matters are involved in the cancer rate in various localities.

TWIN FALLS — Rulon and Nellie Thompson, a Jerome County couple, were bound over to Fifth District Court Friday on charges they kidnaped their granddaughter, last month.

Other members of the Thompson family also were bound over Friday on a charge that they abducted another family member from a Twin Falls city street.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, their daughter, Jan Magrell, of Boise, and son, Mike of Wendell, have been charged with first-degree kidnaping. They are accused of abducting the 2-year-old child on Feb. 18 from the Twin Falls residence of their daughter, Brenda Thompson, 20, a Magistrate Court.

In a separate case, Mike Thompson and Magrell and her husband, Mike, allegedly forced their sister, Brenda, into a car, then stuffed a towel in her mouth, covered her with a blanket and took her to Jerome County on Feb. 22, the complaint states. They have been charged with second-degree kidnaping.

Brenda Thompson took the stand for the prosecution in both cases at the Friday preliminary hearings, which were closed to the public.

The defendants, all represented by Gene Fredericksen of Jerome, presented no witnesses, according to court records.

The cases now will be sent to district court.

In a related incident, Brenda Thompson has filed a civil suit against her parents in district court. Thompson is seeking $70,000 in damages because of the two alleged kidnappings. She also successfully sought a court order asking for the return of her child.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — Navy recruiter Tom Sterett says he was incorrectly quoted in a Friday article in The Times-News about an ex-sailor who was picketing the Twin Falls recruiting office this week.

In the article, Sterett was quoted as saying David Newman was foolish to refuse giving up custody of his children, when he could re-enlist and finish his tour of duty.

Sterett says he didn't mention Newman by name. He says he said, "If it was me in that situation, I would give up custody and finish the tour of duty."

Sterett says he had made the statement to acquaintances and didn't know a reporter was present.

Newman contends he was unfairly discharged four years short of his retirement because of the dedication to his children.

Woman injured in car-truck crash

HANSEN — A Hansen woman was injured shortly before noon Friday in a truck and station wagon collision here.

Twin Falls County sheriff's officers said Clara Sanders, 65, suffered a fractured hip and facial cuts and bruises.

She was a passenger in a station wagon driven by Thomas Ross Sanders, 72, of Hansen.

James Lee Morris, 39, of Buhl, driving a truck owned by Blick Trucking Co., of Castleford, was cited for failure to yield right-of-way after his north-bound truck pulled onto U.S.

Highway 30, just east of Hansen. Officers said Morris stopped at a stop sign and then pulled onto the highway, colliding with the front end of the eastbound station wagon driven by Sanders. Mrs. Sanders was taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center by ambulance.

Mexican national hit in head by train, dies

RUPERT — A Mexican national was fatally injured when he was struck by a train Thursday evening, 12 miles north and a half a mile east of Rupert.

The body of Ramon Artega Ruiz, 31, of Michoacan, Mexico, was found Friday morning, according to Minidoka County Sheriff Ray Jarvis. The sheriff's office was notified at 6:30 a.m. by a Union Pacific employee.

Primary investigations revealed that Ruiz had been drinking and passed out with his head near the tracks, said John Fisher, the Minidoka County Coroner. When a train passed the location, the man probably had awakened and was struck in the back of the head. Ruiz, who was alone at the time, died of massive head injuries.

Fisher said the case still is under investigation.

The first grader's books are hard-bound with laminated covers and illustrated bindings. They include the original illustrations, story and cover art work of each student. The books also have title pages.

The sophomores particularly liked the book "Spook Scares" by Dusty Peak.

The other books covered a variety of topics, including: smurfs, football, animals and space adventures. Among the budding authors are Michael Larsen, with his "The Rock Turns Bright," "Shell Race," who wrote "A Butterfly Story" and Becca Messick, who wrote her version of "A Cut in the Hair."

"They experience reading through writing," Bolan said. "They learn about authorship, that it takes time and effort to make a book."

She said her students have also learned they can share their own ideas through writing.

"Tasting success, knowing a sense of pride in accomplishment, and ownership of their own project are also very important," she said.

Helle said her students enjoyed writing the children's stories, but were very impressed with the idea generated by their young friends.

County or Blaine County for search warrants, restraining orders and other measures that must be obtained as quickly as possible.

Despite the pessimistic outlook on Camas County, Carl Bianchi, administrator of Idaho's courts, says there has not been a decision yet on which county will benefit from the Supreme Court appropriation.

He says the legislation bases the allocation of the money on a county's case-load, population, number of resident attorneys and circuit coverage from other counties, and the consolidation of more than one lawyer-magistrate position into fewer lawyer-magistrate positions.

Bianchi says his office is still studying the legislation and has not determined how to spend the money.

However, Camas is the state's second least populous county and Bianchi has said previously that there is not a large enough case load in the county to justify a lawyer magistrate.

At the end of the tour, nurses advised visitors about how to find help for any problems uncovered at the fair. But most participants were lucky enough to learn that they were healthy.

Missions problems plague Methodists

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, AP Religion Writer

Although fond of their closely knit "connectional" system, United Methodists are experiencing an uprising in the ranks that shakes the composure of that big denomination in a celebratory season.

"Disunity," "a real problem," "crisis," "a call to the administrative order of the whole church."

The disturbance came in the 200th anniversary year of the church's formation in America, to be commemorated at a quadrennial governing conference in May, Baltimore, where the church took shape.

What generated the furor in the 9.5 million-member denomination was the recent setting up by critics of a separate missions board outside official parameters.

Its chairman, the Rev. L. D. Thomas of Tulsa, Okla., says its aim is to supplement "the church's regular mission work by sending out more evangelical, traditional Methodist missionaries" to preach the gospel.

He says that traditional objective has not been adequately represented in work of the church's General Board of Global Ministries, despite long-pressed concerns for it by many church people.

Backers of the new missionary-sending agency also charge the official board tends to give priority to ministries of social improvement at the expense of evangelism to call people to faith in Christ.

"Some important factors of mission work are being overlooked," says the Rev. H. T. MacInn, a long-time staff member of the official board who left it to form executive director of the new agency.

Called the "Mission Society for United Methodists," it has set up operating offices in Tulsa, Okla.

Bishop Jesse R. DeWitt of Chicago, president of the official board, says that establishing a separate agency outside "established lines of accountability" challenges the church and its "connectional system."

He suggests it could lead to "factionalism" over differences rather than settling them through regular operational lines.

The church's full council of bishops is to consider the problem just before the May governing conference, which has been petitioned to set up a task force to evaluate "policies and practices of the regular mission board."

Bishop Edsel A. Ammons of Detroit voiced disapproval of the independent agency and questioned its identifying itself as "United Methodists." He says the church's highest court, the Judicial Council, may need to take up the issue.

Most of the five regional jurisdictions of bishops have said they would support the new agency, but several added that they shared the critics' concerns that provoked it.

The "present crisis is very serious," said southern bishops, adding that it "reflects deep and long-standing concern" of many church members about some of the philosophy, policies and personnel of the regular board.

"It was advised to take seriously what 'honest critics' are saying and make justified changes 'before critical deterioration of denominational support occurs.'"

Already a meeting of the 120 directors of the official board, whose mission is to oversee and assist 45 foreign countries, has called for review and response to the criticisms.

Mormons open conference today

By MICHAEL WHITE, The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — The Mormon Church opens its 154th annual General Conference today with its aging president and spiritual leader, Spencer W. Kimball, in poor health and the upper ranks of church leadership decimated by death and illness.

The two-day conference of the LDS Church, held in the Tabernacle in downtown Salt Lake City, attracts thousands of faithful Mormons from around the world for religious instruction.

But church officials say the adherents who crowd Temple Square for the conference's six major meetings today and Sunday shouldn't count on seeing the man considered "prophet, seer and revelator" in the faith's 5.2 million members.

Kimball, who recently turned 89 and has lived in relative seclusion since undergoing skull surgery three years ago, has a public appearance in January at the funeral of Mark E. Petersen, a member of the church's Council of the Twelve Apostles.

His first counselor, Marlon G. Romney, 86, also has been ill in recent months and rarely leaves his home. In addition, Bruce R. McConkie of the Council of the Twelve Apostles is recovering from lengthy treatment for recent cancer surgery.

Neither Kimball nor Romney attended a seminar Friday morning at the church's headquarters, but clergy from around the world who assist the church's full-time general authorities.

Neither Kimball nor Romney attended a seminar Friday morning at the church's headquarters, but clergy from around the world who assist the church's full-time general authorities.

SPENCER KIMBALL Not expected to attend meetings

Gordon B. Hinckley, second counselor in the First Presidency, said both leaders were too ill.

"We are the beneficiaries of his kindness and love and his leadership," Hinckley said of Kimball. "The work of the Lord goes forward without deceleration of any kind."

Next in line to become president of the church is Ezra Taft Benson, 84, president of the Council of the Twelve, Benson, though slowed by age, has suffered no major illness in recent years.

The frail Kimball now spends his days in a downtown apartment, frustrated by his inability to recover the vigor that once allowed him to oversee the most prolific growth in the church's 154-year history, said son Edward Kimball.

"He's really not very happy being debilitated. That's frustrating to him, but he's remarkably patient. It's a discouraging time of life," said Edward Kimball.

Kimball said his father was suffering from a "prolonged, but not life-threatening" ailment.

"He's just getting old. The machine is wearing out," he said.

Kimball said his father occasionally attends weekly meetings of the First Presidency, composed of Kimball, Romney and Hinckley, 73. Day-to-day affairs of the church are being handled by Hinckley, church officials have said.

The death of Petersen left the Council of the Twelve — the chief advisory body to the First Presidency — with two vacancies. LeGrand Richards died Jan. 11, 1983. Normally Richards would have been replaced during the April 1983 conference, but Kimball has chosen not to do so. Church officials say they don't know.

The council was further thinned in February when McConkie, 68, underwent surgery for cancer of the bowel. He still is undergoing chemotherapy treatment for a cancerous spot on his liver, said LaFevre.

However, McConkie's brother, Oscar W. McConkie Jr., said the apostle resumed full-time church duties three weeks ago.

"He works every day from 8 to 5," Oscar McConkie said. "He's taken most of his assignments back."

LaFevre said church leaders have given no indication whether the vacancies in the Council of the Twelve will be filled this weekend.

Rupert man set for trial

RUPERT — Melvin Dean Hanks, 40, of Rupert, was ordered Thursday to stand trial in district court on four charges resulting from the alleged abduction of a 22-year-old woman March 28.

Hanks appeared for preliminary hearing Thursday before Fifth District Magistrate Don R. Workman and was bound over to district court. He is represented by William Tway of Boise.

Minidoka County Sheriff Ray Jarvis said Hanks is charged with first-degree kidnapping, attempted rape, aggravated assault and two counts of an infamous crime against nature.

Jarvis said the victim, Georgeann Cartaway, was the only witness to testify during the preliminary hearing Thursday. She was called to the stand by Cassia County Prosecutor Charles Cresson, Jr. to give an account of the events of March 28. Police allege she was abducted from her vehicle while driving to her home in Rupert from the bar she and her husband own in Norland.

Hanks was charged with the abduction after he was arrested in Rupert about 2:15 a.m. Officers said the woman, who appeared to have been severely beaten, was in Hanks' car at the time of his arrest.

Hanks remains in the county jail in lieu of $100,000 bond pending trial.

Sex crime charge levied

TWIN FALLS — Doyle Wayne Eldridge, 26, of 1184 Gem Ave. in Twin Falls was charged Thursday with sexually molesting a 6-year-old girl last winter.

Eldridge has been charged with two counts of lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor under 16 years old. The alleged incidents took place on Dec. 16, 1982, and Jan. 17, 1983, in Twin Falls.

A plea defense was appointed to represent Eldridge who was being held in the Twin Falls County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Jerome youth arrested

JEROME — Magistrate Roger Burdick ordered Spencer Parton, 19, of Jerome held for a preliminary hearing on grand theft and failure to appear on a traffic citation following his arraignment in Fifth District magistrate court Thursday.

Parton was arrested on a warrant for failure to appear on a traffic citation and was charged with grand theft Thursday morning. He is alleged to have taken a 12-gauge shotgun and a computer from the Ray Taylor home at 416 East Ave. A in Jerome on March 21. Taylor told Jerome police he went to Ram's Pawn Shop in Jerome where he recognized his gun and computer. Officers said the items represented a total value of $960.

Parton also faces a first-degree burglary charge, according to Jerome police. He is alleged to have entered a shed at the Fred Kiser residence, 35 E. Fourth St., on April 3 and removed a chainsaw. He is in the Jerome County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bond awaiting preliminary hearing.

Natural gas costs up

BOISE — Southern Idaho customers will pay 7.2 percent more for natural gas immediately as the result of a price hike approved this week.

Intermountain Gas Co. won an April 1 increase of 3.7 cents a therm from the Idaho Public Utilities Commission. Intermountain had asked to pass along a price increase given by federal authorities to its supplier, Northwest Pipeline Co. of Salt Lake City.

Intermountain officials say the hike will cost the average consumer about $26 a year in higher bills. The company's regular residential rate for the middle of the year — from April to November — will go up from 29.8 cents a therm to 31.5 cents a therm. The average customer uses a little more than 700 therms yearly.

Last week, Intermountain also asked for a small decrease on May 1 because of another change in wholesale gas prices. It will save only $3.70 yearly, officials estimate. The P.U.C. has not yet decided whether to approve the decrease.

Shoshone street to be extended

By JANENE BUCKWAY Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Work is expected to begin soon on the extension of South Dale Street in Shoshone.

proposal of $65 per hour if excavating in dirt or $75 an hour for rock work. The council agreed to have Churchman and Ridinger look at other proposals and select a contract term for the work.

The council agreed to have Councilman Vic Bozzuto secure quotes for repairing the fire station roof. The roof was damaged in the severe winter weather and is leaking, Bozzuto reported.

At Tuesday's Shoshone City Council meeting, Mayor Reid Newby and Councilmen Charles Churchman and Tim Ridinger, who oversees the street department, would negotiate a contract to excavate the 530 feet of roadway between the D and E streets right of way.

The street extension is being done to provide an access to the district's Bureau of Land Management office. Ridinger said the new road will be a direct route between Idaho 26 and the BLM shop. It eliminates the need to take BLM trucks and equipment in front of Shoshone High School, Ridinger said.

He told the council he has received a $1,150 quote for roof repair. He agreed to investigate other possibilities before going ahead with the work. The council also agreed to ask councilman Jerry Baltazor to go ahead with the purchase of handgrips for city policemen.

Glenns Ferry maps being created

By DIANE HOOLEY Times-News correspondent

GLENN'S FERRY — Glenns Ferry, has built its own map — its own. The Glenns Ferry Chamber of Commerce recently commissioned Hammett artist Don Black to make four maps of the town.

Crone says the chamber is very satisfied with the final product. This first map has been painted on two sheets of eight-foot-square plywood. Crone says the size of the map was a major consideration.

Black says for a small fee, area businesses can purchase a spot on the map that will be marked specifically and number coded. At the bottom of the map beside the numbers will be the names of the business and the address.

The purpose of the maps is to promote Glenns Ferry and to give visitors and tourists a guide to the town and the town's businesses.

"We kept asking ourselves how we could make a sign that would have room on it for both street directions and business locations," he said. Artist Black says he used enamel paints and a color code on the map to designate main routes, public buildings and points of interest.

Crone said the plan is to put a map at each end of the town, just off Interstate 84, with a pull-off area so cars and trailers can have a place to park. Eventually the chamber would like to have a map in town and in the Three Island State Park, Crone adds.

Gooding council seeks grant

By JANENE BUCKWAY Times-News correspondent

GOODING — The Gooding City Council is seeking a block grant to upgrade the city's water system.

possibilities, Heller said, adding that the new lines would benefit proposed users of the now vacant tuberculosis hospital.

Mayor Gene Heller told the council Monday he and the city engineer have prepared a grant proposal to be submitted to state officials before Friday.

"There are about 60 applicants for grants," Heller told the council. The grants will be awarded April 20 in Boise.

Heller said the $350,000 request is to be used for installing additional eight-inch water lines south of 14th Street and north along Oregon Street. City Superintendent Lloyd McCleod said the larger lines will increase water pressure and improve the city's fire control capacity.

The new lines would also improve Gooding's industrial growth five-year lease they hold for 165 acres near the airport. R and N Ranches of Wendell will now assume the sublease.

The council set May 6-19 as the dates for the city spring cleanup campaign.

In other business: The council agreed to renew a one-year lease with Airport Ranches Inc. for a 19-acre parcel of hay ground. The acreage, owned by the city and located near the Gooding Municipal Airport, will be leased until Nov. 30, 1984, for $1,140 rental fee.

McCleod said city crews will be picking up clippings, pruning debris and heavy items during this period. The council set Monday as a work session to hear a report on the condition of the city swimming pool and the estimated cost of repair. Irrigation rates and the ongoing repairs to the city irrigation system also will be discussed.

Heller said animal control, garbage rates and standardized garbage containers also will be on the agenda.

CSI to present courses in Hailey

HAILEY — The College of Southern Idaho will take computer education in business management, word processing and agricultural management to Hailey April 23-28.

Agricultural management will be offered from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 23-27 at a cost of $60. This is a hands-on computer course for farm owners and managers. It has no computer experience. It will consist of general computer operations, word processing, farm accounting, vehicle records and multi-plan applications. A second section will be conducted from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. the same days. From 6 to 9 p.m. April 23-28, a course in business management will be taught. This, too, is a beginning class. It uses a computer application in business decision-making.

The classes will come to Blaine County via the college's new mobile industry training lab — a fifth-wheel trailer converted into a classroom.

Word processing will be taught from 9 to 10:30 a.m. April 23-27 and there will be an intensive class from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. April 28. Cost for either is $30. These classes are designed for the working person who wants an introductory knowledge of word processing. The emphasis will be hands-on applications of information processing on the Rainbow 100 Plus Classes will be limited in enrollment. To pre-register call the CSI, 733-9554, ext. 290 or the Blaine County Community Education Office, 788-2033.

Castleford cleaning to begin

By DIANE SCHORZMAN Times-News correspondent

CASTLEFORD — Spring cleaning will get under way soon in Castleford. The Castleford City Council decided at its meeting Tuesday that a copy of the city ordinance requiring city lots be kept free of weeds, grass and rubbish would be mailed to all residents this month.

According to the ordinance, lots should be cleaned no later than June 1 of each year. The city can clean the lots of those who do not comply and the cost of the cleanup can then be assessed against the private property. It was noted.

Dog control in the city also was discussed.

Sample said complaints had been received from several residents who had been bitten by dogs running loose in town.

Because Castleford has no facilities for impounding dogs, the council agreed to speak to dog owners about the problem. It was also decided to check how other small towns handle the problem.

"In other business: The council discussed the need for setting a date whereby residents would have to let the council know if they are going to use their share of city irrigation water. Any shares not being used could then be leased out by the city. The council will decide on a date at a future meeting.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff: We use the "short club" but always promise at least three cards in the suit. When should partner raise clubs?

ANSWER: Your "short club" appears to be nothing more than the popular five-card major system with an opening bid in a major promising five or more cards in the suit. I would raise clubs only when no other bid is attractive and when I hold at least four good clubs. Bidding any four-card major or being one-trump without a major and with a balanced hand (7-9 points) takes priority over the club raise.

Dear Mr. Wolff: Partner dealt and opened one spade, vulnerable. What should I have bid with this holding?

ANSWER: The high-card values point toward a single raise of two spades. However, I would jump to four spades and hope for the best.

Dear Mr. Wolff: Partner opened three spades and I passed holding two aces and the spade queen. Partner produced a nine-card suit, 100 honors, and I got the blame. Should I have raised?

ANSWER: I cannot criticize your decision to pass; pre-empt at the three level should promise only about six or seven winners. Your partner had nine winners and certainly was worth a pre-empt of four spades.

Dear Mr. Wolff: RHO opened four spades. After two passes, partner reopened with a bid four no-trump. I had to decide whether this was Blackwood, the unusual no-trump or a three-suit takeout. How would you have handled it?

ANSWER: I would suggest a five-club bid. A bid of five diamonds might good partner into trying for seven, missing an ace.

Drives like $20,000.
Costs like $7390.

Drive a German sedan that costs around $20,000 and you'll feel how well it handles a road.
Drive the Volkswagen Jetta and you'll get the same kind of feeling.
You'll just get it for about $12,500 less! Which makes buying one almost as much fun as driving one.

The 1984 Jetta. It's not a car. It's a Volkswagen. $7,390!

Tiger tracksters dominate, capture own meet with ease

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

JEROME — If it truly was a preview of the Idaho Class A-2 Track and Field Championships, make room in the Jerome trophy case for a couple more big ones.

The Tigers strode easily to victory in both divisions of the Jerome A-2 Classic Friday afternoon. But neither boys' Coach Tim Dume or girls' mentor Skip Andrew was willing to place more on the outcome than today's results.

"I felt it would be a little lopsided, especially after Middleton didn't show up," said Dume, after his Tigers racked up 195 points against 77 for runner-up Rigby.

"We won because Wood River's 30 to 40 points were off visiting," said Andrew after his girls posted a 125-109 decision over the Wolverines.

He referred to the absence of national high school record-holder and sprinter Lisa Bernhagen. Wood River Coach John Buehler said "she had one visitation left and decided to take a look at Stanford this weekend."

Bernhagen's absence took away an expected sprint duel with Jerome's Lon Ann, who on 16 to claim the three first places. She was pressed in the 100 meters where Burley's Laura Tegan was a hands-on behind. But James won the other two races fairly handily.

Jerome's Laura Jensen joined James as a multiple winner, picking up the 800- and 3200-meter races.

"We aren't putting a lot of faith in today's outcomes," said Andrew for himself and Dunn's because "Wood River coaches Bob's and Tom's kids will have their kids maxed by the time district rolls around—I know they messed around with some of their kids in different events today."

The boys also had key absence in their division; with Madison leaving hurdler-sprinter Randy Siddoway home for disciplinary reasons. The senior is expected to rejoin the team later.

Siddoway was expected to be the man to beat in the hurdles and at least the 100. But with him away, Magic Vailley sprinters leaped to the fore. Dane's Howard took the 100 and then chased Jerome's Jeff

Eventual winner Kelly Berthoff (dark uniform) of Buhl leads early in the 800 meter run Klinger to the line in the 200. But the long sprint went to Salmon's Carl Havens who was untested in turning in a good 52.0 in the wind and cold.

Rigby's Trent Shippen moved in to easily dominate in the hurdles and Madison's Gerald Henderson won both of the distance events.

Jerome retained its dominance in the relays, taking all four races with yards to spare. But the Tigers really piled up points in the field events. Senior Gary Hulseby hit his season's best of 99 feet, 3 inches in the shot put and showed consistency at 175-0 in the discus. Kevin Reid was untested in winning the pole vault and Greg Larsen won the high jump.

There was a little bit-play in the distance jumping. But he had 100 boys out for track this spring. Dunn decided to enter a Jerome junior varsity team. He moved sophomore Craig Amundson to the jayvees in a 10-minute decision. Thursday night, the jayvees by winning the triple jump against varsity teammate Orin Egbert and their second Egbert in the long jump.

"I guess it was a mistake," Dume said with a smile, "but it does appear that we really needed the points. Besides, Amundson will get his medals."

Jerome remains at home next week for the J-Club Invitational, hosting Twin Falls, Highland, Buhl and Mountain Home.

Bruins sweep Idaho Falls, Blackfoot

By STEVE CRUMP

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls High School's cold-weather track season ended Friday much as it began, with howling winds, times and distances that won't go into the scrapbook and one more small step toward maturity.

"Yes, I'm real satisfied with our progress," said Bruin Coach Jerry Kleinkopf after his boys and girls outplayed Idaho Falls and Blackfoot in a Gem State Conference tri-meet.

"But we're still very young, and it's going to be tough for us in the conference meet."

Friday marked the end of this spring's head-to-head competition in the GSC; the Bruins won't see most of the other teams in the league until April 28 at the conference champs.

Despite the strong winds, junior Tug Worst trimmed a tenth of a second off last week's time in winning the 200 in 23.2, in addition to running the front legs on the winning quarter- and half-mile relay teams. Twin Falls' Cazenu won the boys' 100 in 11.3, trimming two-tenths of a second off last week's time, while one of Bruin girls' few veterans, Teezie Zaubert, continued to cut time off her mile, winning in 6:03.4.

Doug Zakalyk was a double winner in the hurdles, as was Denise Rhoades in the shot put and the discus.

The Bruins swept all eight relay races.

"That first class sophomore year is now seven months old, meaning that a 15-year-old phenom who hasn't had a close encounter with reading, writing and arithmetic in this academic year and hopes to go to college needs to make plans for his next few summers. And that's assuming he or his coach got the word now. If he learns about the new curriculum requirements from Bobby Knight or Don James two years from now, it will be too late.

"I'm not sure which is scolding hills up the spines of college football and basketball coaches, even those in conferences such as the Big Sky that have more demanding academic requirements. The problem is not just making clear that a prospective athlete has the requisite classes; it's also defining which classes meet the criteria.

High school transcripts are notoriously imprecise. Civics is rarely called civics;

New NCAA academic requirements stiff, but also vague

Mark July 1, 1986 on your calendar. College athletes will change in a big way on that date.

That's the day the NCAA's new high school curriculum and grade-point requirements will go into effect. After that date, any prospective athlete who wants to play intercollegiate sports at a Division I school must have a 2.0 grade-point average in a "core" of 11 high school subjects; an A in Bachelor Cooking II doesn't count.

If those don't sound like particularly onerous demands on a prospective student, you're right. They aren't. The new rules require reading, many haven't been doing; our transcripts look like the Good Housekeeping Index: Family Living, Home Management, Aerobics for Conditioning, The Movies as Literature, Student Service, Weightlifting for Fitness. Average the B's from those classes with the D in American History and the F in Algebra I, and you sometimes get a high school diploma.

That's relatively rare hereabouts, but not from Idaho. Even those who do could have trouble meeting the new NCAA rules. The reason? The NCAA has been remiss about publicizing them.

When the NCAA's member schools approved the new curriculum requirements at their annual convention in 1982, the organization assumed that news reports of the change would percolate down to every junior high school in the land. Spreading the word is essential, since in order to meet the new requirements for a student to start in his sophomore year.

Chamberlain in L.A. to help honor Jabbar

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The NBA's all-time leading scorer in National Basketball Association history were together Friday night as the new king of scoring was honored.

Karsten Abdul-Jabbar, who became the NBA's all-time leading scorer Thursday night, was honored in pre-game ceremonies before the Lakers met the Kansas City Kings. Among those in attendance was Bill Chamberlain, the man Abdul-Jabbar passed to take over the top spot on the scoring list.

"All of you out there can think of how great the feat just achieved was," Chamberlain said. "But I know how great the feat was."

Both Abdul-Jabbar and Chamberlain, who played with—the Lakers in his illustrious career, received standing ovations from the sellout crowd of 17,605 at the Forum.

Telegrams from President Ronald Reagan, California Governor Deukmejian, Los Angeles Mayor Bradley and John Wooden.

Abdul-Jabbar's coach at UCLA, Wooden called "the greatest athlete back into the sport of unselfish athletes in the history of sports."

"It's impossible to think all the right people and it's impossible to say who all the right people are," Abdul-Jabbar told the crowd. "I'm glad the bottom of my head is wonderful to be here. I want to thank my father, my mother, my coaches and Will. And all the guys who passed me the ball and finally all the people who came out here tonight to share this moment with me."

Among the gifts presented to Abdul-Jabbar by the Lakers and others participating in the ceremonies were: a 1984 Mercedes-Benz, a portrait of Abdul-Jabbar taking a shot while by Leroy Neiman, complete stereo set and a ring from the league.

Ferdinand and Cora Alcinder, Abdul-Jabbar's parents, were present on their son passed Chamberlain.

The NCAA's new set of standards was controversial when the organization adopted it. Many administrators of historically black colleges argued that the new rules would deny many disadvantaged students the chance to get a college education. Among their concerns was that the predominantly white, middle-class organization would seek to impose a set of standards on high school students who could not demonstrate their potential for learning by conventional means.

The argument that the times in which a student can run 40 yards is a better indicator than his GPA of scholastic talent is tortured, to say the least. But a high school transcript may not necessarily be a better indicator.

The argument is that there is no quick way to transform college athletes back into college students. That requires coaches with integrity and administrators who can resist a Top Twenty ranking that is attained by athletes hired for that purpose.

Schow's three home runs help keep CSI alive in tourney

ONTARIO, Ore. — Jeff Schow clubbed three home runs and drove in eight runs here Friday, part of an eight-run seven-run double-tripper, as the College of Southern Idaho routed Eastern Oregon 15-7 in the second round of the Treasure Valley Community College Invitational baseball tournament.

Later Friday, the Eagles dump Clackamas Community College 11-5 to advance into the tournament's final round today. The Eagles will take on Eastern Oregon again at noon, and will advance into the tournament semifinals in the afternoon if they win that game.

Schow's grand-slam homer in the second inning struck the Eagles to a 7-0 lead over Eastern Oregon, part of a 24-run, five-homer performance that overshadowed Blake Jensen's two homers and single shots by Shell Scott and Shawn-Humberger. Scott was 3-for-4 at the plate with two RBIs, while Jensen went 2-for-4 with three RBIs.

Schow also had a two-run homer in the seventh inning and a two-run shot in the fourth.

Freshman Victor Valdez threw four innings for the Eagles, scattering three hits and striking out two.

Against Clackamas, CSI led 1-0 after a streak of wildness by Clackamas starter Greg Kavinia. Trailing 4-1 going into the sixth inning, Kavinia walked Dave Garrow, got the next two batters, and then issued bases on balls to Lynn VanErvy, Schow and Scott in succession. VanErvy and Schow then scored on base. Back to pitch, and Jensen walked. Kavinia pitched to lead the bases, and Steve Caputo singled to score another run, giving the Eagles a commanding six-run lead.

Humberger paced CSI at the plate in the second game, going 2-for-3 with a run batted in. Freshman right-hander Bob Edwards scattered six hits through five innings.

Utah Tech, which defeated CSI 2-0 in Thursday's first round, will go into today's finals as the top seed. Host TVCC is the second seed in today's action, which amounts to a single-elimination tournament.

Detroit's Bergman swings bat, too

By The Associated Press

Dave Bergman doesn't mind the label of being a good defensive player. "That's what got me here and I'm going to promote it a little bit," Bergman said Friday after his two-run, single-capped, three-run, first-inning home run gave Detroit a 2-2 victory, spelling the Chicago White Sox's home opener before a sellout crowd of 4,622.

"I've been trying to prove you are a good hitter when you only get 150 at bats a year," added Bergman, who came to the Tigers a month ago when he was swapped by San Francisco to Philadelphia and on to Detroit the same day.

"Defense has been my label and that's what's kept me around but I have become a pretty good hitter," he said.

The Tigers acquired Bergman and relief pitcher Willie Hernandez from Philadelphia for outfielder Glenn Wilson and catcher John Wockenwuss Friday. The Phillies had to get Bergman from San Francisco.

"The deal could not have been made without Bergman," said Detroit manager Sparky Anderson. "With Wockenwuss designated hitter and in late innings I can use Bergman on defense along with (Rusty) Kuntz in right field and (Tom) Brookens at third," Anderson

In Arlington, Texas, Pete O'Brien scored on shortstop Bobby Meacham's eighth-inning throwing error and the Texas Rangers nipped the New York Yankees, 4-2.

Hank Aaron hit his first two homers of the season in the third, after Willie Upshaw walked, and in the fifth, after Upshaw singled.

In a late game, it was Milwaukee at Seattle.

Evans singled home the first run against Richard Dotson, a 22-game winning streak in the Tigers ended Dotson's 10-game, regular-season winning streak.

Dolson, who gave up five hits and six walks in eight innings, quickly ran into control difficulties. With one out in the first, Alan Trammell walked, stole second and scored on the single by Evans. Two more walks loaded the bases before Bergman's single scored Lance Parrish and Kirk Gibson.

Minnesota 9, Baltimore 4
In Minneapolis, Minnesota's Kent Hrbek and Tom Brunansky homered and newcomer Mike Smith won his first American League start as a TwiN with a decision over the Baltimore Orioles.

Hrbek's 430-foot blast in the first inning knocked in two runs and the Twins never trailed in winning their first game of the season.

Pinch hitter Champ Summers double-dug into the left field corner to score Gary Templeton from first base with one out in the ninth as the San Diego Padres downed the Chicago Cubs 3-2 Friday night for their third straight win.

Templeton singled for his third hit of the game off Leo Smith before Summers laid a 1-1 pitch just inside the left field foul line. Templeton slid in ahead of the Phillies hit in the 2-2 tie and hand the Cubs their first loss of the year after two wins.

Sid Monge, who walked pinch-hitter Richie Hebner to force in the tying run in the top of the ninth, was the winning pitcher and Smith was the loser.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the first as Gary Wood singled to center. They opened the game, advanced to second on a wild pitch by starter Tim Lollar, and scored on Ron Cey's double down the left field.

San Diego tied with a run in the second on singles by Kevin McKeon and Templeton and Lollar. San Diego went ahead in the fourth when McKeon singled to right field and Templeton scored him with a double into the left field corner off unearned.

Philadelphia 4, Cincinnati 4
In Cincinnati, John Wockenwuss drove a two-run single to cap a three-run second and the Phillies got four more in a four-run eighth that included two Cincinnati errors on one play and two on the next.

New York 4, Houston 1
In Houston, George Foster drove home four runs with a three-run homer and Walt Terrell limited Houston to three hits as the Mets routed the Astros.

Pittsburgh 3, Los Angeles 1
In Los Angeles, Joe Mauer, making his first National League start, held Los Angeles hitless through six innings, and combined with Cecil Gant to go to a five-hitter as Pittsburgh beat the Dodgers for its first victory of the season.

The 30-year-old left-hander walked two and struck out two before being lifted for Gant with two outs in the ninth.

St. Louis 2, San Francisco 0
In San Francisco, Joaquin Andujar, a major disappointment for the St. Louis Cardinals last season, pitched a four-hitter that kept the Cardinals from defeating the Giants. Only one San Francisco baserunner got past first.

Bean grabs Greater Greensboro edge

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Andy Bean battled biting cold and blustery winds for a five-and-a-half-hour round 31 on the back nine — and a one-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $400,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

"On the back, everything went in from about 20 feet, another from 30 and one from 40," said Bean, who dropped two putts from about 20 feet, another from 30 and one from 40. "I was trying to birdie every hole on the back, and when I got 'em on 10, 11 and 12, I was beginning to think I was going to."

champion who had shared the first-Bean, a non-winner for the past two years, completed 38 holes over the 5,864-yard Forest Oaks Country Club course in 138, six under par.

Jack Renner, a winner in the winds of Hawaii two months ago, also compiled a bogey-free 67 in the extremely difficult playing conditions and was at 139 at the tournament's halfway point.

"When I saw the way the wind was blowing, I was concerned with making the cut (qualifying for the final two rounds), so I just went out with the idea of making a lot of pars," Renner said.

"I think the conservative approach paid off. If I'd been trying to shoot 67 in winds like this, I'd probably have had a 77."

Nick Faldo of England and Dave Peoples were at 141. Faldo had a 70 in the temperature that ranged from the 40s into the low 50s and Peoples shot a 71.

Andy North, the former U.S. Open round lead, played in the worst of the weather and had to work hard to salvage a 71.

"It was a struggle," said North, who was tied at 142 with Buddy Gardner, Mac O'Grady and Canadian Jim Nefford. Gardner had a second-round 73, O'Grady a 72 and Nefford a 71.

Rookie Willie Wood, tied with North for the 18-hole lead, went to a 76 and was at par 144.

— Bean ran off nine consecutive pars before dropping a 10-foot birdie putt on the 10th and, he said, "It was like somebody took the lid off."

Meyerhoeffer paces Twin Falls group

Bruin sextet composes league leaders

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Bruins, headed by Junior Jason Meyerhoeffer, have six men in the top nine of the Gem State Conference golf standings following four matches.

The Bruins, who had a league match at Highland cancelled by snow midway through — the round at Highland Friday afternoon, not surprisingly, lead the conference with a perfect 32 points, followed by Highland and Pocatello at 25, Idaho Falls 18, Minico 17, Skyline 13 and Bonneville and Blackfoot 7.

Individual rankings are based on points in each match with an individual required to play in five to be eligible. With a maximum of 40 allowed in each round, Meyerhoeffer has 38.5, putting him just ahead of teammate Jeff Sutherland at 37.83. Highland's Anthony Ostroski is third with 36.88, followed by Larry Waldman, Twin Falls, 35.83 and John Rasmussen, Twin Falls, 34.67. Bruins Craig Jones and Flynn McRoberts rank eighth and ninth at 33.5 and 32.75, respectively.

Tom Leen is 17th at 26.75 and Greg Hansen stands 20th with 24.5.

The Twin Falls junior varsity also owns a perfect 32-point mark against Pocatello's 28. Bruin Mickey Grefenson is second individually at 24.7.

With the Highland match cancelled, Twin Falls' next action will come Tuesday in the Jerome Invitational and Friday at Fincrest of Idaho Falls in a fourth league meet.

Carner halfway toward first Dinah Shore win

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — JoAnne Carner, whose collection of LPGA championships is conspicuously missing a title from the women's richest tournament, shot a 4-under-par 68 Friday to take the lead midway through that event, — the $400,000 Nabisco Dinah Shore.

36-hole total of 140 was good for a one-stroke lead over Pat Bradley and Patty Sheehan.

Bradley, who has 13 LPGA titles to her credit but also has never won the Dinah Shore, shot a sparkling 66 to share second place with Sheehan, who had a 72.

A group of four golfers — defending champion Amy Alcott, Judy Clark, Silvia Bertolacci and Lauri Rinker — was two strokes further back at 143 heading into the final two rounds at Mission Hills Country Club.

Nancy Lopez, who had a disappointing 75 on the first day, rebounded with a 69 to vault back into contention, four strokes off the pace.

Also included in the group at 144 were Kathy Whitworth, Hollis Stacy, Donna Caponi and Sally Little.

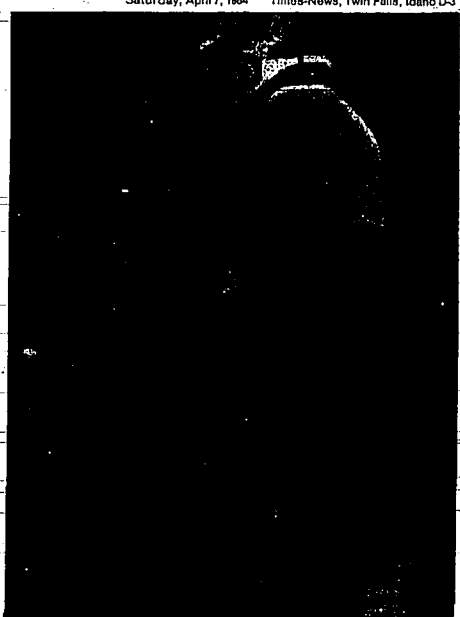

Lauri Peterson, the second-year pro who was the opening day leader with a 68, had her problems during the second round, carding a 77 to drop back into the pack.

Carner, 45, said of her lack of success in this tournament in the past: "I've really tried hard every year to win here, but I never have. It's considered our Masters, so..."

Carner said that despite scoring well, her round was less than memorable.

"I'm happy to be in," she said. "I never hit my good shots in a row; I had no idea where it was going."

Buddy Gardner tries to escape from an obvious jam Friday

South African nears Olympic goal

LONDON (AP) — Zola Budd, the 17-year-old record-breaking South African distance runner, was granted British citizenship Friday and moved a step closer to her goal of competing in the Olympic Games this summer in Los Angeles.

The approval came less than two weeks after Budd — the fastest woman in the world over 5,000 meters — secretly arrived in Britain from South Africa with hopes of becoming a British subject.

She's British now," said Neil Hayes, a Home Office spokesman.

Budd was allowed to settle in Britain because she had a British-born grandfather, and her father, Frank, took out a British passport before leaving South Africa last month.

Many South African athletes are barred from international sporting competition because of the country's apartheid policy of race separation.

"She is apparently a person of exceptional talent and we try to exercise discretion to assist such people," Hayes said.

Chicago Coach Mary Levy said, "What we need is confidence."

Birmingham, 5-1, moved into a share of first place in the Southeast Division last weekend with a 31-17 over previously unbeaten New Orleans as rookie safety Chuck Clinton intercepted three passes to bring his season total to a league-leading six. Joe Cribbs of the Stallions goes into the game against Jacksonville, 2-4, as the USFL rushing leader with 601 yards, four ahead of Philadelphia's Kelvin Bryant.

The winless invaders are completing a four-game road trip. Despite their poor record, quarterback Fred Bessan is on a roll. He's thrown 75 passes without an interception. Last year he had a string of 135 before being picked off.

The Bandits, 3-3, have dropped three in a row and Coach Steve Spurrier is returning to John Reeves as his starting quarterback. Wayne Peace, who started the past two games, was yanked after incompletions in his first five attempts and Tampa Bay trailing Philadelphia 21-10 last weekend. The Bandits were unable to overcome that deficit, losing 38-24.

Panthers try to maintain perfect mark

By The Associated Press

The Michigan Panthers, minus Anthony Carter, will be trying to maintain their perfect record today when they visit Doug Williams and the Oklahoma Outlaws in the United States Football League.

While the Panthers, 6-0 and two games ahead of Oklahoma, are assured of remaining atop the Central Division, there's a scuffle going on between San Antonio and Chicago at the bottom. They share the basement at 1-5 as the Gunslingers visit the Bills today.

In a pair of games tonight it's Birmingham at Jacksonville and winless Oakland at Tampa Bay. On Sunday it's Philadelphia at Arizona, Pittsburgh at New Orleans and Memphis at New Jersey. In two Monday night games, it's Los Angeles at Denver and winless Washington in Houston.

Carter, the Panthers' top receiver with 30 receptions for 538 yards, will be sidelined six to eight weeks with a broken arm sustained while making a spectacular catch in last weekend's 28-10 victory over San Antonio. Rookie Walter Broughton, who replaced Carter, caught a touchdown pass from Bobby Hebert, the league's leading passer, in the fourth quarter.

Michigan is one of the top three teams in the league," said Oklahoma coach Woody Widenhofer. "They have great skill players, linemen... everything. I hope we play well and make a good showing."

Oklahoma is coming off a 31-28 overtime victory against Houston, after trailing 28-13 with two minutes left. "We have to come down off this high from beating Houston and not let that be a distraction," Widenhofer said.

The Bills broke into the win column last Saturday in Washington, hanging on to defeat defeat the Redskins 21-20 when the snap on a potential game-winning field goal by Washington was bobbed.

"There's a lift you get from winning, regardless how it happens," Chicago Coach Mary Levy said.

USFL roundup

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A circuit court jury acquitted Lemar Parrish, former National Football League star, of cocaine possession charges Friday and he said he was ready to return to football — as early as Sunday.

Parrish, 36, of West Palm Beach, Fla., clasped his hands and smiled when a jury of seven men and five women acquitted him and a co-defendant, Jackie Brandy Alston, 32, of West Palm Beach and Fairfield, Ala.

Later, Parrish said he was negotiating a contract with a United States Football League team "when I got jammed in this. It put everything on ice."

"I'm going to phone some teams in the next hour, and you may see me on TV Sunday. I'm ready to play and I'm in great shape," he said.

The former All-Pro defensive back and Alston were arrested along with Emory Howard last Aug. 5 by city narcotics agents at Howard's home. Agents said they discovered nearly an ounce of cocaine in the house.

Howard was convicted in February and sentenced to 12 years in prison.

Blue chip-technology rally brings week to mixed close

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Blue-chip and technology issues paced a late rally in stock prices Friday, enabling the market to finish mixed in the closing session of a generally dismal week.

Analysts said stock prices drew some support from a downturn in interest rates in the credit markets.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 8 points at its midsession low, finished with a 1.67 gain at 1,132.22. For the week, the average dropped 32.67 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 86.62 million shares, against 101.75 million Thursday.

Analysts said the market's sharp drop late Thursday to a one-year low had prompted some additional selling. But interest rates fell in the bond and short-term money markets Friday, in response to the government's report that the civilian employment rate held steady at 7.8 percent last month. That news was taken as a tentative sign that the pace of the economy might be slowing enough to lessen upward pressure on interest rates.

After the stock market closed, the Federal Reserve raised its discount rate from 8 1/2 to 9 percent. It was the first change in the rate the Fed imposes on loans to private financial institutions since December, 1982.

However, the move had been widely predicted on Wall Street. Analysts said it appeared to be intended to bring the discount rate into line with other prevailing rates.

Gainers among the blue-chip and technology issues included International Business Machines, up 3/4 at 109 1/4; Digital Equipment, up 3/4 at 91; Texas Instruments, up 1/4 at 129 1/4; and Hewlett-Packard, up 1/4 at 33 1/2.

Hewlett-Packard benefited from a favorable assessment by a brokerage house.

The daily tally on the Big Board showed about three losers for every two stocks that gained ground, but the exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .15 to 89.48.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 104.25 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials gained .59 to 175.96, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up .44 to 155.44.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market dropped 1.80 to 243.94. At the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index closed at 205.82, down .46.

Mineral firm ready to pay 2% dividend

WALLACE — Coeur d'Alene Mines Corp. has announced it will pay a 2 percent dividend to shareholders holding stock at the close of business on April 11.

The minerals company operates the Coeur silver mine near Osburn, which produced about 2.6 million ounces of silver last year. It also is constructing a new gold mine in Valley County in central Idaho.

The new mine is projected to yield 25,000 oz of gold yearly, beginning 1985, said investor relations manager Arthur Johnson.
