Gem court scraps redistrict plan

By QUANE KENYON
AP Capital Writer

BOISE — The Idaho Supreme Court Monday said the Legislature's latest redistricting plan violates the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The court said the state must use a court-approved plan for the May 22 primary election.

Legislative leaders and state election officials immediately declared that the decision would add more uncertainty to an election which already has left most candidates confused about what's going on.

"It turns chaos into utter chaos," said Sen. James Risch, R-Boise, senate president pro tem.

"It's absolutely ridiculous," said Ben Ysursa, deputy secretary of state. "This will do nothing but add confusion to the process."

Gov. John Evans said the decision was "not unexpected," and he warned legislative leaders earlier that the population deviation in the new plan might be too high.

Evans said he planned to confer with legislative leaders on whether there's anything that can be done to clear up the election confusion.

Chief Justice Charles Donaldson signed an order ruling House Bill 746 unconstitutional. He was supported by justices Robert C. Huntley Jr. and Stephen Bistline. Justices Robert Bakes and Allan Shepard dissented.

House Bill 746 was a last-minute legislative effort to agree on a redistricting plan. Evans signed it last Monday, but said at the time he had "serious reservations" whether it would be acceptable to the Supreme Court.

Monday's order did not go into details, but said the plan violated the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment. Court sources said that meant the justices apparently rejected the plan because it has a population deviation of 34 percent between districts.

Plan 14-B, approved by 1st District Judge Dar Cogswell last year, was reinstated. Unless there's another proposal, Idaho voters on May 22 will vote for a Legislature of 42 senators and 84 representatives, 21 more seats than at present.

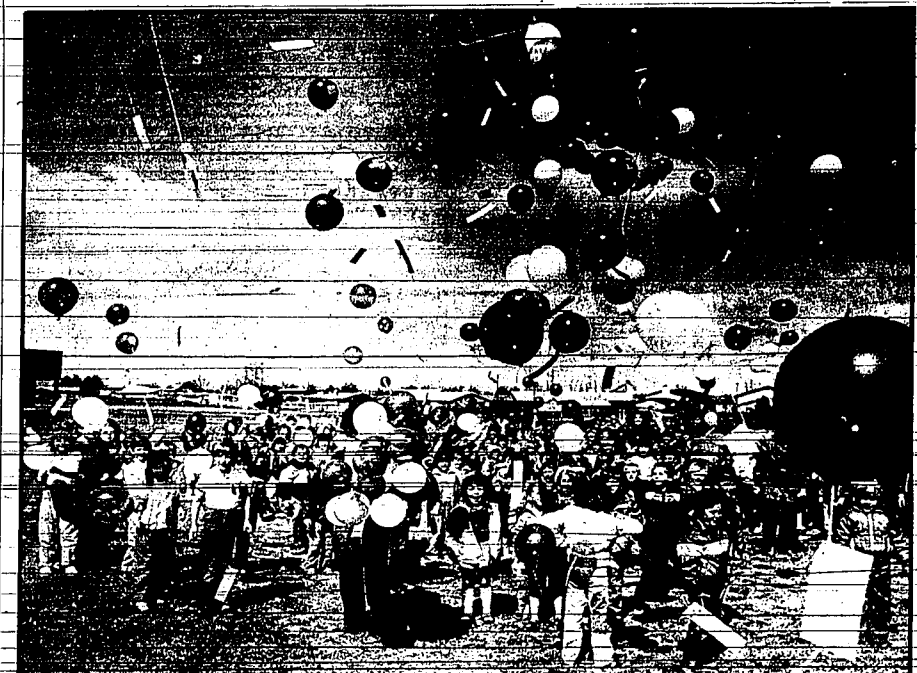

The Cogswell plan has a population deviation of less than 10 percent. But it contained seven "floating" districts covering large areas, which generated considerable legislative opposition.

Some 23 candidates, including Risch, filed earlier under the court-ordered plan. When Evans signed the new plan last Monday, those nominating petitions were scrapped.

But the secretary of state's office said with the court's new ruling, the earlier nominating petitions can be re-filed. Within an hour, Risch re-filed.

Current districts	Court-ordered plan	How it works
		In each of the current districts, voters elect two representatives and one senator, for a total of 15.
		In renumbered court-ordered arrangement, Districts 23 and 24 would each elect two senators and four representatives. District 22 would have one senator and two representatives.
		District 25 would be a comprehensive district. Residents in all eight Magic Valley counties would elect two representatives and one senator to represent the comprehensive district. The valley would have 18 legislators.

Airborne quest

Hundreds of balloons floated into the sky Monday to mark the beginning of the National Library Week celebration at Sawtooth Elementary School in Twin Falls. The balloons were tagged with the names of the students' favorite books and requests that finders write back with the names of their own favorite stories.

Area's ballots to add places

By HAI BERNTON
Times News Writer

Monday's court action on redistricting means area voters will have two new representatives and one new senator to elect to add to the area's fifteen-member delegation.

The three new Magic Valley legislators will represent an eight-county floating district. The floating district was first included in an August redistricting plan ordered by First District Judge Dars Cogswell.

Court and legislative actions over the Cogswell plan have caused a series of flip-flop decisions that have confused both voters and candidates. As a result of this confusion, there are currently no official contenders for the three new Magic Valley legislative seats, says Penny Ysursa, a secretary of state official.

But Mike Dahmer, the Jerome County Republican chairman, said Monday that he intends to announce his candidacy for the floating district senate seat within March 15 filing deadline. Dahmer, an electrical engineer and longtime Republican activist, said he was asked by the regional Republican committee to run for the seat.

Former Twin Falls County prosecutor Jeff Stoker said he is "seriously contemplating" running for a representative's seat in the floating district.

The latest redistricting shuffle also will cause some major revisions in the five districts from which the current group of legislators was elected.

Under the old plan, each of these five districts elected two representatives and one senator, for a total of 15 legislators. Under the new plan, the five old districts will be consolidated into three new districts:

- District 22, composed of Blaine, Shoshone, Camas and Gooding counties, will be represented by two House members and one senator.
- District 23, composed entirely of Twin Falls County, will be represented by two House members and one senator.

'Terms' receives best movie Oscar

By BOB THOMAS
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Terms of Endearment," the bitter-sweet story of a mother and daughter, was named best picture of 1983 Monday night.

Shirley MacLaine and Jack Nicholson won Oscars as the eccentric mother and the pot-bellied ex-astronaut with whom she has an affair during the course of the film.

It was a night of no major upsets, with the 56th annual Academy Awards spread more evenly than in most years. "Terms" led with five — including best director — and screenplay adaptation for James L. Brooks — followed by four each for "The Right Stuff" and "Fanny & Alexander."

Robert Duvall was voted best actor for his role as a washed-up country singer who overcomes alcoholism in "Tender Mercies." He was the only American nominated in his category, competing against four British actors.

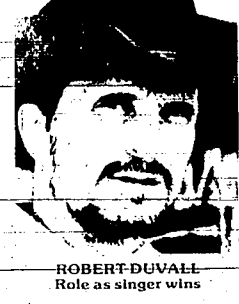

Linda Hunt, the idealistic male dwarf photographer in "The Year of Living Dangerously," won the best supporting actress award — the first time an Oscar sign goes to a performer playing a character of the opposite sex.

"I'm going to cry because this show has been as long as my career," said an overjoyed Miss MacLaine, who had been nominated four times previously but never won. Among her competition was Debra Winger, who played her daughter.

Duvall, clad in country garb, told the audience that he and his fellow filmmakers had "set out to make a truthful film" and said the approval of such country stars as Johnny Cash, Willie Nelson and Waylon Jennings along with the Oscar "make this a complete evening for me."

Brooks, who also produced "Terms," and had never directed a movie before, said "This is an extraordinary evening for us." He

Central American policy furor erupts

By R. GREGORY NOKES
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — The mining of Nicaraguan waters and the Reagan administration's decision to remove its Central American policies from World Court jurisdiction provoked a furor in Congress on Monday.

It followed Nicaragua's appeal to the international community to halt U.S. support for anti-government guerrillas.

Congressional Democratic leaders said the latest turn of events in Nicaragua had perhaps doomed the administration's request for funds to finance undercover operations against the leftist-Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

Even before Nicaragua petitioned the International Court of Justice in The Hague for assistance, the United States announced it would not recognize the court's right to rule in any cases involving Central America for the next two years.

State Department spokesman John Hughes indicated that the administration did not want to have to answer questions from the World Court about alleged U.S. intelligence activities in Nicaragua. He said Washington also did not want the court to be turned into a "propaganda forum" by the Nicaraguans.

House and Senate hearings into the Nicaraguan situation were scheduled. Seven House members introduced a resolution demanding an immediate end to the mining of Nicaraguan harbors, which congressional sources say was carried out by CIA agents. The State Department refuses to comment on the CIA's reported involvement.

The Senate began debate Monday night on a non-binding resolution by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that federal tax revenue should not be used to finance the mining and that the United States should withdraw its challenge to the World Court's jurisdiction.

Both developments were denounced by the three Democratic presidential candidates, and one of them — the Rev. Jesse Jackson — announced in Pittsburgh he would lead a "peace delegation" to Nicaragua later this month or in early May.

"Mining the harbor is close to an act of war," Jackson said. "It's provocative or dangerous. The situation in Central America is deteriorating."

The House resolution, which would not have the force of law but would only express congressional sentiment, was introduced by Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., who said the mining was "completely self-defeating."

Shuttle crew tries Solar Max repairs again

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Short on maneuvering fuel but given a "high probability of success," Challenger's orbiting repairmen try again today to turn the slowly turning Solar Max satellite into the shuttle's cargo bay to be fixed.

The shuttle would be in position to latch on to Solar Max beginning at 6:11 a.m. MST and "it may be another half orbit before we actually achieve capture," said flight director John Cox. Challenger circles the Earth every 93 minutes at its height of nearly 300 miles.

Through a miracle of brains and computer technology, the satellite — which was twisting and tumbling after rescue attempts failed Sunday — was making one turn every 12 minutes in one direction, with a slight wobble.

At that rate, astronaut Terry Hart will have four to five minutes on each turn to guide the shuttle arm to a pin on the side of the satellite and lock it on, Cox said.

"I suspect we'll get it on the first rotation," he said.

"I can't give you Las Vegas odds," Cox added. "We've got a high probability of success, a high probability of plucking it up."

Challenger's fuel for the rescue was low, so flight controllers worked out a plan to get the most out of what was left. They moved up one engine firing Monday, instead of a series of firings Tuesday, and told commander Robert L. Crippen: "The strategy behind the burn is hopefully this will give us a free ride."

When it left the launch pad on Friday, Challenger carried 1,488 pounds of nitrogen tetroxide and 930 pounds of hydrazine to power its small forward steering jets. An 800,000-mile chase to rendezvous with Solar Max and Sunday's failed attempt by George Nelson to lock on to the crippled sun-watching satellite left the shuttle with only 22 percent of the fuel. NASA rules set 3 percent as the minimum.

Paradoxically, Nelson's effort to steady the Solar Max on Sunday set it turning like a ball in flight and raised fears it would be impossible to control.

Tennessee inmates escape
 FORT PILLLOW, Tenn. (AP) — Four inmates dropped into a culvert and escaped from a Fort Pillow State Prison work detail Monday, less than two months after five prisoners broke out and led police on a chase that left three people dead, authorities said.
 One of the four was recaptured about a half-hour after the escape from the troubled facility at noon MST, authorities said. The fugitives were serving sentences for murder or rape.
 Gov. Lamar Alexander, who called Monday's escape "inexcusable, especially to be repeated at this institution," placed two National Guard military units on standby to assist in the manhunt mounted by more than 170 corrections officers and state troopers.
 Alexander called for the 225 National Guardsmen from nearby Ripley and Dyersburg to be on duty by daybreak Tuesday if the three fugitives were still at large.

Thieves take $2.7 million
 LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — At least $2.7 million in cash was stolen from a Nevada National Bank branch over the weekend, and authorities sought to question "a trusted employee, and her boyfriend about the heist, the FBI said Monday."
 Arrest warrants were being sought against a female employee who resigned from the bank Friday, who along with her boyfriend, were wanted for questioning, said FBI spokesman Bill Hansen.
 The FBI refused to identify the pair Monday night.
 Agents had obtained a search warrant and searched a house Monday night, FBI Special Agent John J. Schreiber said.
 "It was believed to be the largest burglary in Nevada history."

Rebels attack military post
 SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas attacked a military post near the eastern village of San Sebastian, but local guards stood their ground and reinforcements drove off the rebels at dawn Monday after an 10-hour battle, an army commander in the area said.
 Col. Roberto Rodriguez Murcia, commander of the 5th Infantry Brigade, said 11 government soldiers, including two officers, were killed, along with a woman guerrilla and three civilians, including a six-year-old girl. He said three government soldiers were wounded.
 Rodriguez Murcia said the guerrillas destroyed six private homes with mortar fire during the battle, causing the civilian casualties.

Lava flows from second vent
 VOLCANO, Hawaii (AP) — A second vent has begun spewing lava from Mauna Loa volcano, but officials said Monday it was too early to tell whether it increased the threat that a 16-mile-long river of molten rock might reach Hilo.
 On nearby Kilauea volcano, meanwhile, lava sightings in the east rift zone indicate new activity may be imminent, authorities said. Kilauea has been spewing brightly orange lava since Wednesday.
 Three main lava flows which late last month coursed toward the seaside city perched on Mauna Loa's broad flanks have since stagnated.

Fugitive approached 9 girls
 LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Law officers say a man believed to be fugitive Christopher Wilder approached as many as nine Las Vegas girls before the abduction of a Boulder City teen-ager April 1.
 Officers say a man believed to be Wilder approached the young women and told them he was a professional photographer and wanted to take their photos for the cover of a new fashion magazine.
 Officers said the man talked to the girls at a fashion show at a Las Vegas shopping mall. He reportedly told a group of the girls to meet him at Caesars Palace. The girls left Caesars when they could not find Wilder.

Mrs. Hansen: 'No regrets'
 IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Despite her husband's conviction for filing false financial disclosure statements, Idaho Rep. George Hansen's wife says she has "no regrets" about her personal finances.
 "We did the best we could," said Connie Hansen of the couple's financial reports, which failed to disclose $33,979 in loans and profits by Hansen.
 Mrs. Hansen, 50, said she sought solace during the two-week criminal trial from her children and grandchildren and from letters sent by well-wishers.
 Mrs. Hansen said the only marital strain caused by the trial was Hansen's concern over his wife's health. She was hospitalized for viral pneumonia shortly before the trial began.

Jailed grandmothers set free
 SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — Two grandmothers, "standing firm" about keeping their secret, were freed from jail Monday after serving five days for contempt of court because they refused to divulge where a friend had hidden $45,000.
 Evelyn Hertzog and Dorothy Pauline Lindsay, both 65, were ordered jailed Wednesday because they refused to tell a county judge where Mary Ellen Bader, 55, had hidden the money.
 Mrs. Bader's children are seeking control of their mother's estate, contending she is mentally incompetent.
 Mrs. Hertzog, who is a sister of Mrs. Bader, and Mrs. Lindsay, a friend, were advised of the consequences of contempt of court, but they still chose to side with the widow and to refuse to tell where the money was stashed.

Dynamite-laden truck flips
 HUNTINGTON, Ore. (AP) — A truck carrying 20 tons of dynamite overturned Monday morning on a state highway in eastern Oregon a few hundred yards from busy Interstate 84, state police said. Two people in the truck suffered minor injuries.
 Police prohibited people from entering the area of the accident on Oregon 201, but permitted traffic on I-84 to continue.
 Explosives experts from the Idaho Department of Alcohol, Firearms and Tobacco in Boise were called to the scene to supervise the removal of the dynamite to another truck.
 "The explosives would not be transferred until at least this morning, troopers said. Officers guarded the overturned truck Monday night."

 for the GOP nomination for the Senate seat in Ada County's floating district.
 Yursura, in a court appearance last week, urged the Supreme Court to either "uphold HB146," or "delay the primary election at least two weeks, if 14-B was to be used."
 He said it will be almost impossible to certify candidates, print ballots and allow absentee voting before the May 22 primary.
 "It's possible the governor could order the Legislature into special session to move the primary, or a court could delay the election," Yursura said.
 "It will be very, very difficult to get the ballots printed and allow any absentee voting before the election."
 "I'm very disappointed. And people wonder why we have low turnout at elections," said Yursura.
 "I think most of us are discouraged with that decision," said House Speaker Tom Stivers. "It aborts the Legislature's attempt to try and get something done under both the federal and state constitutions."

 Stivers said if the courts rule that the Legislature must follow both state and federal constitutional guidelines on redistricting, "then we're shot out of the saddle, there's nothing else left that can be done."
 Stivers said he will have a particular problem getting the House chambers ready for the next session. The House now holds 70 members, and there's little room for another 14 desks.
 "There's more room in the Senate, which now has 35 members but goes to 42 under 14-B."
 "I think we're stuck with 14-B and that's it," said Stivers.
 He and Risch filed a federal court challenge to 14-B, which still is pending. But Stivers said it's possible the federal judges won't act in time to affect this year's election.
 "The Supreme Court's ruling apparently will produce a quirk in the primary election. It extended the filing period until next Monday at 5 p.m., but not just for legislative candidates."
 Judicial candidates and those filing for congressional seats still will have to get their nominating petitions in by the original Friday deadline.
 Yursura says her office is "in the process of getting things sorted out," but adds that the situation could possibly change once again before the May primaries. "We just go from day to day."

 praised his cast for having "so much to do with his script; finally it was redefined; finally it was an actor's film."
 Miss Hunt, known mainly as a New York stage actress, was cheered by the audience, which had found little excitement in the first 90 minutes of the show.
 "The four-foot, nine-inch actress" cited an Indonesian proverb, "Water from the moon" — something unattainable. She added, "Making 'The Year of Living Dangerously' was for me water from the moon."
 Best song of the year was "Flashdance" from the smash-hit movie of the same name.
 "Fanny & Alexander," which the great Swedish director Ingmar Bergman says will be his last movie, was honored as best foreign film. Sven Nykvist won the best cinematography award for his work on the film, a nostalgic look at the lives and loves of a large theatrical family through the eyes of a young child. The movie also won for costume design and art direction.
 "The Right Stuff," the critically praised box-office flop about America's first astronauts, picked up awards for sound effects editing, film editing, sound and original score. In the last three categories it was up against "Terms."
 Nicholson, who won the best actor award in 1975 for "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," becomes only the third actor to win in both categories. "Fender-Mercedes" picked up a second award — for Horton Foote's original screenplay.
 Comedian Johnny Carson was back after a year's absence as host for the ceremony, televised live from the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion to an estimated audience of more than 500 million people around the world.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson said Monday that he would lead a peace delegation to Nicaragua as vice President George Bush accused him and the other Democratic presidential hopefuls of failing to take a strong stand against the "disgusting disease" of anti-Semitism.

Jackson, Walter F. Mondale and Gary Hart crisscrossed Pennsylvania making last-minute pleas for votes in today's primary, in which 172 delegates will be at stake.

And Hart said he spoke out on the issue last week, and called Bush's speech "a continuation of the politics of distraction."

delegation" to Nicaragua late this month or early in May, because he said Americans must support the government there against the CIA-financed efforts to overthrow it.

In February, Jackson turned down an invitation to visit the country, saying the time was not right for such a trip, but promising to go later this year.

Also Monday, the Department of Education told a group Jackson once headed — PUSH for Excellence — that it must return $700,000 in federal funds. The government said the Chicago-based group either misspent the money or failed to adequately document the spending.

In Washington, Bush told a Jewish lobbying group — the American Israel Public Affairs Committee — that all of the Democrats have fallen short in opposing anti-Semitism.

Bush said Farrakhan has "threatened all Jews" and injected a specter of violence into the campaign "when he threatened a reporter."

In late February, Farrakhan said, in an apparent reference to Jews "if you harm this brother, I warn you in the name of Allah; this will be the last one you do harm."

Living Republican presidents gather

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three living Republican presidents met Monday night at a dinner marking the 35th anniversary of the Chowder and Marching Club, a society of House Republicans.

The private dinner at the Fort McNair Officers Club on the Potomac River bank in southwest Washington was the first time President Reagan and former Presidents Gerald R. Ford and Richard Nixon had been together since October 1981.

Ford and Nixon are among the founding members of the Chowder and Marching Club, whose 61 members can be identified at such gatherings by the chef's hats and aprons they wear when mere guests wear black ties.

Senate eyes bill for deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Monday began sifting through a 1,334-page bill with hundreds of provisions designed to reduce the federal deficit by $63 billion over the next three years.

The revenue-raising measures range from higher taxes on liquor, telephone service and diesel fuels to increased premiums for recipients of Medicare.

"There is much more to be done on the deficit problem than what is contained in this bill, including major savings in defense and non-defense appropriated funds," said Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Finance Committee and chief author of the bill.

"But this bill makes a very good start, and start we must if we are to have a significant impact on the deficit this year," Dole said in opening debate.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, noted the bill would save 200 million in another 2 pounds, 2 ounces. "But in terms of substance, this is not a very heavy document," he said.

Metzenbaum said he found 33 new "loopholes" in the bill, but he failed, on a 64-18 vote, to eliminate one of them. That provision liberalizes the value of tax-free, tax-deductible gifts that an employer may give to a worker as a reward for long service, safety or productivity.

Even before the first word of debate was uttered, Senate leaders were expressing hope the legislation could be passed this week. But there is a chance of finishing the work before a week-long Easter recess begins Friday.

Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., could vote only that the Senate would "do what we need to do" in dealing with the deficit-reduction plan, which was produced by the Senate Finance Committee and has the Reagan administration's support.

Baker and Dole are hoping to complete the bill quickly so that it will not be a target for lobbyists to shoot at during the recess.

On the other hand, Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd said the measure is far too complex to deal with in only a week.

Scowcroft pessimistic

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Soviet relations are as bad as at any time in recent memory and chances for a nuclear arms control agreement this year "are not bright," the chairman of President Reagan's commission on strategic forces said Monday.

Retired Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, at a White House briefing, also said that Reagan's harsh criticism of the Kremlin — particularly early in his administration — had "exacerbated relations."

"The administration rhetoric has certainly given the Soviets a negative view of the possibilities of dealing with this administration," Scowcroft said.

Scowcroft, head of the 11-member blue-ribbon panel that helped marshal support for building the MX missile, met with Reagan to report on his recent visits to the Soviet Union and China and to discuss the final report of his commission.

Praise, not scorn, will win more votes

Let's say you're a fifth grade teacher with a slow learning child in your class, a student who consistently gets Cs, Ds and Fs. Now suppose that on one assignment, the student earns a B, not a perfect mark, but better than before and certainly a step in the right direction.

Do you scold him for not making an A? Or do you encourage the good work, praise his accomplishment and hope he'll do better the next time?

The power of positive reinforcement is known to just about every teacher. Thus, we can't understand why Idaho Education President Terry Haggard, a teacher himself in Pocatello, didn't apply a little praise in his comments last week about the performance of the Idaho Legislature in raising both teacher salaries and the general funding for education in the state.

Instead, Haggard blasted the lawmakers, saying "essentially they did not meet the needs of Idaho education."

Well, yes, a case could be made that the legislators could have done more and appropriated more. But can't that case always be made? Isn't there always something "more" to be done?

As an institution, we're not in love with the Idaho Legislature. But considering the churlish, mercurial and sometimes misdirected legislative bodies found in the world today, this one doesn't stack up too badly. It's not the Supreme Soviet or the Iranian Parliament, although there sometimes seems to be enough intrigue for the latter.

In the area of education funding, it seems to us that the Legislature came a long way this past session. The track record is this: The state's general fund education budget was raised from $215 to $226 million, a boost of $9 million. Another $20 million was added in the area of teacher salaries, and additional millions were added to teacher retirement, Social Security and instructional materials.

The total, according to the state Department of Education, is $41.4 million additional educational funding out of the 1984 session, and the Legislature pretty well committed itself to more next time.

Now if $41.4 million is a bad year, we think most educators in Idaho would like a few more like them. Or maybe Haggard will turn back to his own district the nearly $2,000 in additional pay he is likely to get next year as a result of the Legislature's funding.

Ironically, Haggard's organization also listed a major IEA goal for this year of improving the teacher image in Idaho through a broad public relations effort.

It hardly seems to us that the way to improve the teacher's image is for the IEA to hurl broadsides at the Idaho Legislature.

Instead, the organization could start by thanking those legislators who worked both publicly and behind the scenes on the behalf of Idaho's children as well as its teachers.

In the Magic Valley, it could start with Sens. Laird Noh and John Barker, and Reps. Lawrence Knigge, Steve Antone, Ernest Hale and Donna Scott, all four of whom voted for the higher teacher salaries.

Teachers in Idaho have many friends, sometimes more than they realize and not a few in the halls of the capitol. Haggard's comments don't go very far toward reinforcing their pro-education positions.

PRESIDENTIAL ISSUES OF 1984.

The ad is pregnant with meaning

BOSTON — From time to time, there's an ad in the New Yorker for a woman's three-piece suit. What distinguishes this offering from the rest of the dress-for-success culture is that this is a three-piece maternally suit.

Every time I see this ad, I am convinced that the costume is pregnant with meaning. It suggests that even when working women are in the family way, they are supposed to dress in the male way. Any woman who wants to be seen professionally had better fit into the traditional business model.

I thought of the woman in the Gray Flannel Suit last month when a U.S. District Court struck down a California law that granted women the right to return to their own or similar job after maternity leave. The court said that the legislation was illegal because it offered special treatment to women.

In some ways, this decision sounds absurd as well as harsh. Child-bearing is unique. Fitting pre-and-post-partum women into rules made for men is like outfitting them in three-piece suits.

Now this California decision has given new focus to the old debate within the women's rights movement. Is there a way to get equality in the work force AND special treatment for pregnancy? Do women want the same rights as men? Do we want more? More for ourselves or for both sexes?

The argument between equal and special treatment has gone on for a century. These policy makers had the best of intentions. Legislators of the 1920s would never have voted shorter hours for all workers, so they got what they could. It wasn't until the 1960s that women complained of being protected out of their jobs and paychecks.

But as the California ruling suggests, equal treatment isn't always good enough. In the 1980s, 43 percent of the mothers with children under the age of 12 months are in the work force. As Georgetown Law Professor Wendy Williams says, "Most of us are in the work place and still carrying the major burden at home and we are overburdened. The work place is not accommodating to the needs of women. At the point at which we (ed) strung out, we're likely to say, 'Damn it, something has to be done here and my special needs have to be met.'"

The renewed cry for special treatment that comes out of this frustration is very different. Surely a woman who leaves her job to have a child should, by any standard of fairness, be entitled to regain her old job. Many women are encouraged by their companies to return. At least four states—Colorado, Montana, Connecticut, Hawaii—have laws similar to the one struck down in California which enforce this job security.

There is a more idealistic if more difficult solution to the conflict. By establishing women as "normal workers," we can extend the law to men as our equals. Why shouldn't any worker who has been disabled for four months be entitled to return to his other job? Why shouldn't fathers also be entitled to benefits after parental leave?

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Serious monkey business.

I think that people who teach "evolution" are making monkeys out of themselves. How would you like to trace your genealogy all the way back to "Grandpa Kong"?

I mean, like man, we are talking some serious monkey business here.

I have heard of "talking to animals, and even walking with the animals," but I just considered it to be a song. Either that, or a group I use to work with.

I can just picture this Cambridge professor going to bed tonight and dreaming he is taking the relics of ancient man's past in darkest Africa. He comes across a clump of semi-human bones, with a flea collar about its neck and a sack of Purina "Gorilla Grow" under its left arm.

Now if you believe that, Professor Kong, I've got this leeberry for sale in the Indian Ocean.

Madrigals are worth hearing

Today I was highly entertained by a performance of the Madrigal Singers from Twin Falls High School. They're young, clean cut, enthusiastic and professional. Delightful people.

Mark on your calendar Wednesday, May 16, 7:30 p.m.—C&H auditorium. The Madrigal Singers, the high school choir and other school singing groups will be conducting a concert for the public. I urge anyone, any age, to attend. You'll be proud of our Twin Falls kids, and the singing makes your spirit soar. You'll leave singing, happy, and feeling good.

Reevaluate foreign policy

History reveals many instances when men allow beliefs to obscure their reality — convinced on irrational or selfish desires.

For example, slavery in America was thought to be right for the country, and indeed, it was — to a certain extent. Slavery helped build this country by doing all the dirty work Caucasians refused to do.

Where the policy went wrong is where the civil rights of some conflicted with the other half of America. Because of this, America became a little bit of the Civil War finally corrected the distorted mentality that slavery was right.

Presently, Central America has something in common to our civil strife. A lot of selfish personal-minded, but strongly supported influential characters have been at work trying to militarily aid places like San Salvador. Doesn't this contradict our notion of freedom? Our aspiration for self-control? Why then, do we suppress the freedom of others? Is it because we cannot identify ourselves with them (banana pickin', brown-eyed, Indian-looking forms)?

Come on, Americans. The light of knowledge is obliterating the darkness of ignorance. We, like a thief in the night, should realize the sun is coming up and showing our every move.

What will we tell the extraterrestrials when they do land? Will we tell them we have the best? Do you not know that an organism at war with itself has a very limited life expectancy? And we answer, "Well the Soviets are doing it too."

We should know that two wrongs do not make a right.

My fellow citizens, please write to your congressman and instruct him to re-evaluate our foreign policy. That we should re-establish our convictions commensurate with reality. Like granting the Salvadorans the freedom — the freedom to choose what best suits them.

Hansen conviction, race draw reader response

Conformity could result

We all talk about George's problem, but it doesn't matter whether he is right or wrong, smart or dumb. If he loses his appeal, you and all of us have a precedent set by one of our own. George, and the same is true even if you are one of those who would like to see him drop dead!

The law in question is that it is not legal for any congressman or senator or their wives to make money from any source, after his election, other than his monthly check from the government! The only representatives who are not reined in by this strange law are those who were independently wealthy before their election.

The name of the game is "conformity" and the lower court ruling makes it easy to play. It doesn't matter what your politics are, any coalition of bureaucrats and congressmen, or others can bring such a suit against any one of their non-conformist enemies on the floor and threaten him with forced bankruptcy if he doesn't conform.

The matter of guilt or innocence is not an issue. Remember, it costs just as much for defense lawyers and court costs if you are innocent as if you were guilty. When your income is legally limited, then bankruptcy can be made certain. Can you imagine a newly elected man ever daring not to conform under such a potential threat from the bureaucratic establishment? Soon as he gets his first paycheck it is a reminder that he is the firing ward of the government and he starts ceasing to be his own man.

So it doesn't matter whether you are a Republican, Democrat or Independent, conservative or liberal, right or left, we all better hope that the upper courts find this strange law unconstitutional or all of our representatives from now on will be under the constant threat of forced conformity."

Don't let insiders pick

Several years ago, while personally visiting with the Honorable Phil Crane, congressman and patriot, from the state of Illinois. Mr. Crane stated that he felt a special spirit, and a great influence for good, coming from this area. He referred to Idaho as the beacon of the nation for attempting to restore constitutional government.

We can take pride in the men who have chosen to represent us in Congress. No other state can compare. Who else has all senators and members of the House with voting records such as ours? Who else has men who could be called statesmen, and who have their heads on right, but Idaho?

This reflects the thinking and quality of the majority of the people in Idaho. It has come from people who live by better principles, who refuse to accept the philosophy of socialism which the majority of the news media, most of our politicians, and millions of Americans embrace. We have long recognized and sifted the propaganda and mind-molding efforts of those who care little for America and its principles which made it great. We have been slower to sell our heritage for a mess of pottage. We have watched with disdain the slipping of America.

All of us should again evaluate what these news media, and insiders, are now doing, as they use their powers to determine who will represent Idaho in the halls of Congress, and how our representatives think and vote.

One should look at the laws of privacy which have recently been enacted. It is almost impossible to prosecute real criminals because of the many technicalities which supposedly protect their rights. This includes obtaining financial data which could incriminate the criminal.

In their wisdom, and noble effort to show the world how honest and untainted our congressman are, they passed a law of disclosure which would prevent themselves from taking a bribe and selling influence. They forget to include numerous areas which they could use to circumvent this new law, and not violate any laws.

universities, union gatherings, and other special interest groups throughout the state, at enormous fees, and remain free from any influence peddling, or treason, and remain totally free from all criminal action. Perhaps the disclosure law is really only intended to punish their non-conformist colleagues. It seems that these non-conformist colleagues do not need to be guilty of theft, bribery, treason, etc., just guilty of borrowing money, or investing in the stock market, to be defamed, not ratified, and punished.

Are we going to allow the news media, and insiders, to pick our representatives, and mold their thinking and actions?

Hansen blind, insensitive

One of the eye-opening concerns in the news concerning Congressman George Hansen — being found guilty was the reaction of some of the far-right leadership. These persons who think of themselves as "super patriots" are now ready to deny the judicial system of the United States.

I fell sorry for Mr. Hansen as a person. This is not the first time, however, there have been questions of financial impropriety over the years. Since his indictment he has pulled every string and used all of his power to avoid being brought to court. Despite his threats of a grand expose, he was brought before a court and the state was able to make his life a misery, was tried before a fairly selected jury, and was found guilty on all four counts.

It seems there are those who want a politician and judicial system that will meet their own personal criteria of justice. This is a threat with the framework of our own country greater than the external threat of communism. Perhaps it is time to study again the role of the Third Reich which was a cancer that grew from within and not the result of external forces. Those who want that kind of slanted and manipulative justice can find it in some of the Latin American countries. Regardless of the legal element involved, the ethics of Mr. Hansen's actions should raise serious questions regarding his fitness for re-election. He has to be blind or insensitive not to realize the kind of polarization his decision will create in our state's political system. It is a sign of the time that we seem to have no one with the courage to stand up and say, "I made a mistake. I'm sorry." Always someone else is to blame. We lost a president who to this day has not been able to voice those words. We have a president now who wants to lay all the blame for the debacle in Lebanon and Latin America at the feet of Congress. Are we being led by persons who will not or cannot shoulder responsibility?

I still have faith in our nation and in our political system, but it has been shaken enough that I will be watching with some anxiety what happens in the next few years.

Life isn't easy for George

I just reread your editorial on George Hansen on April 4, which failed to impress me with any new thoughts on how The Times-News feels about Mr. Hansen.

I also have an opinion to contribute. Why don't you resign and let's keep the congressman. In the secure world of journalism, it must be fun to play with people's thinking. But out here where life is real, I like having a representative that I can communicate with and relate to.

This man has done a good job of standing up for the rights of the people in his district. He was not convicted of misuse of funds but for failing to report them. Life isn't easy for a boy named Sue, and it's tough when you're George Hansen too. I hope he runs and wins.

A fine, Christian American

If some of us elders were physically able, we might undertake a "Protest March" to Washington, D.C. on behalf of Congressman George Hansen urging fair media presentation that justice might prevail.

Why has George Hansen been singled out for punishment never equaled in the general press, official reports of Frank Church Indecent Banquet Committee, Jan. 26, 1974, indicate many big donors were from far off places, including — Virgin Islands, Paris, New York, Ohio, Washington, Maryland, Kansas City, and New England, etc. The two largest contributions, of $3,000 each, came from Boston and New York. A Sept. 4, 1974, report indicated that out of 13 contributors, only three were from Idaho. That year the tax-exempt Citizens' Education Foundation, through Congressman Hansen's connections, financed TV appearances by Church to the tune of $70,000.

Why has the news media been so compassionate as to Barclay and Church while virtually convicting George Hansen before he came to trial? Why front-page headlines almost daily? Aren't Idaho newspapers capable of having their own reporters, rather than a newcomer to the Idaho scene covering the Hansen case for Idaho papers?

Congressman George Hansen is a fine Christian American. Much could be written as to his achievements on behalf of us all.

Perhaps those presenting the news should heed the admonition of the fifth Walt Disney character: "If you can't say something good about somebody, don't say nuthin' at all."

Army sends Pershing 2s to Germany

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — The U.S. Army has quietly deployed a second battery of Pershing 2 nuclear missiles in West Germany, raising to 18 the number ready for combat, a source said Monday. The weapons became operational as millions of Europeans began preparing for Easter peace marches and anti-nuclear rallies. The source, who is in a position to know, said nine medium-range missiles became "fire-ready" in recent days at the U.S. Army base at Mutlangen in southern Germany. Mutlangen is one of three sites, all in West Germany, where 108 of the weapons are being deployed over the next three years.

Cameroon chaos costs lives

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — Diplomats in Cameroon's capital, Yaounde, said Monday that hundreds of soldiers and civilians probably were killed or wounded in the two-day uprising by dissident elements of the presidential palace guard. The sources, reached by telephone from Abidjan, said Cameroon President Paul Biya, 51, remained at his besieged palace throughout the attempted coup, which began early Friday. Earlier reports said he had been outside the city. The diplomats, citing the government-controlled Cameroon Tribune newspaper, said the government defeated the well-armed rebels during heavy fighting in the capital that included attacks with jet fighters, helicopters and armored vehicles.

Pope makes appointments

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II named American Monsignor John P. Foley and an African cardinal to key Vatican posts on Monday as part of the biggest shuffle of the Roman Catholic Church's central administration in modern times. The pontiff promoted Foley — Philadelphia — to the rank of archbishop and put him in charge of the Vatican's news operation as president of the Pontifical Commission for Social Communications. The pope also named Benin-born Cardinal Bernardin Gantin as prefect of the powerful Congregation for the Bishops, which screens and recommends to the pope candidates for archbishops and bishops around the world.

China rejects Vietnamese bid

PEKING (AP) — China on Monday rejected Vietnam's proposal of talks to ease tensions along their embittered border, saying it was "obviously hypocritical and wrought with ulterior motives." The Chinese Foreign Ministry, in a statement telephoned to The Associated Press, accused Vietnamese authorities of "stubbornly clinging to their position of aggression in Kampuchea (Cambodia)" and of "stepping up their armed provocations along the Sino-Vietnamese border." Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach, in an offer made public Friday, suggested discussions "at any level and anywhere" on proposals to lessen border tensions.

Russian tourists expelled

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union said Monday it expelled two more tourists for carrying "anti-Soviet and Zionist literature," the fourth such expulsion of a pair of Westerners within two months. The official news agency Tass said the French tourists were expelled after customs officials in Leningrad found "anti-Soviet and Zionist literature" in their luggage. Serge Benchimol and Jean-Marc Lerner had "more than 70 copies of anti-Soviet and Zionist literature," the news agency said. It said the material included "an impressive pile of propagandistic products."

Lebanese accord set

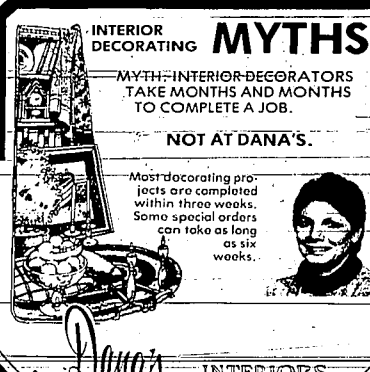

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Representatives of Lebanon's warring factions agreed on a military disengagement plan Monday that a government spokesman called a "first step" toward ending the nine-year civil conflict. Sporadic sniper fire continued along Beirut's "Green Line" Monday night. Artillery crews had traded fire earlier in the day. At the presidential palace, President Amin Gemayel, chairman of the session of the "higher security-political committee," that took up the pullback proposals developed over the weekend by a military subcommittee. After the 2½-hour meeting, committee spokesman Mouaffiq Qweidat told reporters the combatants' representatives had agreed on the plan for separating the contending factions, and other committees were working to implement it. Qweidat said the comprehensive plan covered the entire Moslem-Christian confrontation line from Beirut's closed harbor to the foot of the Lebanese mountains, and the government's embattled stronghold at Souk el-Gharb in the mountains.

What's what

Leonardo da Vinci envisioned a wind-powered land vehicle. A Dutch leathermaker thought Leonardo had something there, so constructed such, modeling it after a canal sail vessel, but with wheels and axels. The record shows it carried 22 people and reached downhill speeds up to 29 mph. There's no record of its uphill speed.

Year's first California condor hatched

Birdkeeper Cyndi Kuehler helps Piru out of its shell Monday

By LAURINDA KEYS
The Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — The first California condor of 1984 hatched Monday with some human help and was "coming along real well" after a minor problem, San Diego Zoo spokesman Jeff Jouett said.

The rare baby bird was broken out of its shell by two birdkeepers at 8:45 a.m. MST.

"It has what we call a swollen seal, being where the yolk stalk was attached," Jouett said. A veterinarian was standing by to suture the opening, but Jouett said it appeared to be closing on its own.

Jouett said that the bird, named Piru, after a lake in the Ventura condor habitat, would probably not need surgery.

Zookeepers were to bathe, weigh and feed the newborn bird, then allow it to rest by, after its ordeal.

The new condor brings to 20 the number of the nearly extinct, carrion-eating birds that are alive in captivity. There are only 17 of North America's largest birds known to exist in the wild in the mountains of central California and in the Sequoia National Forest.

There are five more eggs being incubated at the zoo. One of them, which birdkeepers feared had died in its shell last week, has now knocked a crack in the shell. "But it's pipped (cracked its shell) in the wrong position so we are concerned that the embryo may be incorrectly positioned inside the egg, which could cause some complications in hatching," Jouett said.

Last week birdkeepers feared for the life of the embryo because it hadn't moved in two days and the air cavity inside its shell wasn't getting larger, which usually indicates it isn't consuming its yolk sac."

The chick is expected to hatch Wednesday.

Only one of the California condors in captivity has hatched itself without human help.

The birdkeepers gave 1984's first chick a hand because "it had made insufficient progress on its own during the first 60 hours since it pipped," Jouett said. "The feeling was it had used almost all of its yolk, which is its energy supply. We didn't want it to waste energy struggling against the egg shell."

Snakes gain right-of-way

JONESBORO, Ill. (AP) — For the next three weeks, travelers along a two-mile stretch of scenic road in the Shawnee National Forest must yield the right-of-way to thousands of snakes.

This is the time of year for the semi-annual migration of snakes hibernating at the base of a 350-foot Mississippi River bluff.

In 1972 the U.S. Forest Service began closing the gravel road twice a year because some people driving through the forest's 2,000-acre LaTue Pine Hills Ecological Area were shooting the slithering critters.

"It was just kind of a sport," said forest ranger Joe Newcomb.

With the road closed the last three weeks of April, the snakes can freely travel 30 feet across the road into the neighboring LaTue Swamp.

14-year-old takes bus on joyride

ALBANY, Ore. (AP) — A 14-year-old boy whose parents are bus drivers took a 200-mile joyride in a Greyhound bus he stole after getting into an argument with his father, state police said Monday.

"I think he did a pretty good job of driving," Senior Trooper John Dunbar said. "He was acknowledging the other buses and things like this. The kid was even able to tell me where to look to find the papers that told where the bus came from."

Dunbar said the youth, who allegedly stole the bus in Medford, told him his father is a driver for Greyhound and that his mother drives buses for the Tri-Met transit system in Portland.

Dunbar found the youth and a 25-year-old hitchhiker along Interstate 5 at about 5 a.m. Sunday after a motorist reported a disabled bus in the Santiam rest area. The boy had apparently tried to make a turn too quickly and abandoned the bus after driving it over a curb and into some bushes, he said.

Greyhound did not learn of the missing bus until state police called Dunbar said.

The boy, whose name police refused to release, was charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. A 25-year-old hitchhiker, the boy had picked up near Eugene, also was charged.

The boy was released to the custody of his father after looking at the Lin County jail, Dunbar said.

The hitchhiker, identified as David

Parker of Orange, Calif., was arraigned last Monday in Marion County District Court.

S.F.'s gay bathhouses stay open — but no sex

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The city's public health director said Monday gay bathhouses will remain open, but sexual activity which may spread the lethal disease AIDS will be prohibited.

Mervyn Silverman's controversial decision to fight acquired immune deficiency syndrome took the middle ground between those, including Mayor Dianne Feinstein, who wanted the bathhouses closed down; and those who wanted them allowed to continue business as usual.

Health inspectors will make periodic visits to the city's gay bathhouses to make sure the prohibition initially is not taking place, Silverman said. He will make the final decision on whether to lift bathhouse licenses if violations occur.

Silverman, who met with leaders of the homosexual community on Sunday to discuss the situation, said he also will ask the city to pass legislation putting other gay sex-oriented clubs and bookstores under the health department.

Although a plan to close the bathhouses was supported by many homosexual leaders and city politicians, Silverman cited legal and medical questions in delaying action until now.

Those supporting closure argued that eliminating an environment for open sex among gay men could curb the rise in AIDS, a deadly disease that attacks the body's immune system.

Opponents, including bathhouse owners, say the facilities are a source of education, not disease.

The past two weeks of public debate have put the bathhouses, where gay men gather for anonymous sex, in the unaccustomed position of being in the public eye.

Marshall defends attorneys

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall forcefully answered recent criticism by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and others Monday by saying lawyers who help death row inmates "deserve our gratitude, not our scorn."

"The accusation that these lawyers are holding up executions has always struck me as absurd," Marshall said in a speech prepared for delivery at the New York University law school.

"If there is any chance a defendant has a valid objection to his conviction or sentence, elementary principles of justice require that his attorney be afforded a full opportunity to present that claim to the courts," he said.

Marshall released advance copies of the speech in Washington.

An opponent of capital punishment in all circumstances, Marshall cheered on lawyers "willing to forgo the income they would derive from other work to ensure that even persons convicted of the most heinous crimes receive justice."

He said those lawyers serve two "crucial functions" — reducing the likelihood that an innocent or improperly convicted person is executed, and preventing judges and society "from averting our eyes from the reality of the system of punishment we condone."

Marshall noted recent criticism "by some members of the bench and bar" that lawyers representing death row inmates "too often file 'frivolous' lawsuits solely to delay the inevitable imposition of death sentences."

Marshall agreed that an appeal raising no valid issue "abuses the judicial process." But he added, "In view of the severity and irrevocability of the impending sanction, a (valid issue) in this context means nothing more than a claim that can be made in a lawyer-like fashion and has some chance of obtaining a reprieve."

When the Supreme Court voted to let convicted Florida murderer Robert Sullivan die in the electric chair last Nov. 30, Burger wrote separately to chastise "lawyers seeking to turn the administration of justice into a sporting contest."

Earlier, Justice Lewis F. Powell attacked lawyers who file last-minute appeals for undermining "public confidence in the courts and in the laws we are required to follow."

Mayor blasts councilwoman

McClusky defends comments

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Mayor Emery Petersen Monday publicly rebuked council member Mary McClusky for comments she made to The Times-News Thursday concerning the city's newly-passed building and fire code waiver ordinance.

At the end of the regular work session, Petersen said McClusky should not have "stepped out" and talked to the press when she had not attended two of four meetings at which the ordinance was discussed.

McClusky defended her actions, saying her comments during regular meetings this year usually have been ignored by other council members, an experience she likened to "talking to a wall."

"The ordinance allows the council to hold a public hearing and grant exceptions to the codes but does not allow 'unnecessary hardship,'" McClusky was the sole council member to vote against it two weeks ago.

Petersen criticized McClusky for missing the council's regular March 19 meeting and a special meeting he called two days later to deal with the issue.

He said it was difficult to see how she felt she was an authority on the matter when she had missed the meetings.

McClusky argued after the meeting she had not been "shirking" her duties. She said she had kept in touch with the issue by calling Twin Falls

City Manager Tom Courtney. She missed the meetings because she had been visiting her daughter, who had been admitted to a Boise hospital.

Councilman Jack Miller joined Petersen in blasting McClusky.

Slamming the wiggly code book on the council table, Miller, a contractor, said McClusky probably had never read through it.

He said there was no way National Conference of Building Officials in Los Angeles could write a code, all of whose provisions apply to the city of Twin Falls.

And he said previous councils had not looked at the matter in depth, as McClusky claims, but simply "rubber-stamped" the document.

Miller accused The Times-News of a one-sided look at the issue. He said one dissenting vote did not merit such coverage.

Petersen said he had never received that type of coverage when he was the sole dissenting vote on previous councils.

During the work session the council heard a report on its 1983 audit from accountant Robert Seaman and directed city attorney Fritz Wondertlich to draw up an ordinance, which they will vote on next week, allowing the city to close the downtown public parking lots to weekend cruisers.

Petersen said the city bears no obligation to provide a place for cruisers, especially when acts of vandalism to downtown businesses result.

Firefighters wage public safety war

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls firefighters are planning to launch an initiative campaign opposing efforts to adopt a city public safety department, says firefighter local union president Ron Clark.

The firefighters are working with a Boise attorney to draft the initiative document. They expect to begin gathering signatures within two weeks.

City code requires the signature of 20 percent of the city's registered voters to force a special surrage election as the firefighters intend.

The Twin Falls City Council combination the Police and Fire Departments this winter.

The effort, which will include hiring and training special cross-trained public safety officers, is intended to cut costs in the long term by increasing productivity, city officials say.

But the firefighters, who are the city's only unionized workers, think the plan would deprive them of their right to sufficient public scrutiny.

"This is a big enough structural change that we don't think by any means it is asking too much to ask the citizens to have a say in it," Clark says.

The initiative would prohibit the combination of city police and fire services and mandate separate department heads.

Clark says there is "nothing personal" about the initiative effort, that the firefighters simply want to bring the matter to a vote.

If voters turn down the initiative, firefighters will abide by that decision "with some reluctance," he says.

"But I think we are going to be surprised by the support we receive. The eyes of Idaho are upon us," he says.

Clark disagrees with the smooth picture of the transition provided by City Manager Tom Courtney and Fire Safety Director Tim Qualls at a Sawtooth Press Club luncheon Friday.

"To my knowledge there is not a firefighter on the force who is interested in cross-training to become a police officer," he says.

The city plans to hire its first public safety officers this spring from a ballot measure. See PETITION on Page 2.

'Trash fuel' plant hearing set for May

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Plans for a plant to convert Jerome and Twin Falls garbage into fuel will be the topic of a public hearing, which has been set for May 3 in the Jerome County Courthouse at 7 p.m.

The Jerome County Board of Commissioners Monday called the hearing at the request of Thomas Hutchison and Max Eldredge of Merit Corp.

The two men propose building a boiler-type facility that will burn garbage to produce electric power, which can be sold to Idaho Power Co.

Hutchison said his company wants an opportunity to answer questions the public may have about the facility.

Hutchison and Eldredge also met Monday with the Twin Falls City Council and the Twin Falls Board of County Commissioners.

The council agreed to take the garbage plant under consideration after hearing a proposal that the city provide all its garbage to it at no expense for 20 years.

Hutchison told the Jerome County commissioners the boiler system differs from incinerator methods that are used in some areas, because it burns and reburns garbage at higher temperatures until waste and emissions are destroyed.

Hutchison said Merit Corp. proposes to spend a half-million dollars on engineering the plant to ensure a clean operation. He said the boiler method, although 10 times as costly to install than incinerators, has been used in Europe and some other areas of the United States successfully for 30 years.

Hutchison asked the Jerome city and county officials for letters of assurance that they would continue to send their garbage collections to the plant for 20 years.

The letters were one of three conditions required for financing of the project, he said.

The second condition was that a qualified engineering firm run the plant for several years after construction.

"We plan to employ experienced and qualified engineers, who will design the plant and then operate it for the first two years, turning it over to us only after it is running smoothly and after we have spent a third year training with the engineers in maintenance and operation," he said.

The third condition is that the company obtain a contract from Idaho Power Co. to purchase the power production at current rates and to upgrade the rates in the event of increases in the power company's co-generation power contracts.

Eldredge asked the Jerome commissioners for cooperation in assuring the public that the entire operation will be inside, including unloading of trucks, sorting the trash and converting it to energy.

Hutchison said some objections were lodged by Jerome County residents to the proposed location at the old Banrock paving site. Plans are being made to relocate the facility closer to the power substation and farther from any farms or homes.

He told the Twin Falls officials plans call for coal to be used to heat the boiler when there is not sufficient amounts of dry garbage to maintain a consistent energy production level.

Hutchison said there would be no charge to the cities, counties or Parks & Sons Intermountain Inc., a private company that collects garbage under contract in the area, for hauling material to the Jerome plant. The plant, he said, would be closer than the Twin Falls County landfill and a less costly haul for Parks & Sons trucks coming from Twin Falls. Merit Corp. is negotiating now with Idaho Power Co. and Parks & Sons, Hutchison said.

Ash and unsuitable waste, Hutchison said, would be taken to the Jerome landfill, but it would be less than what the landfill is now handling, he said.

Machines housed in trailer

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For the people who live in Glenns Ferry or Raft River or any of the other communities in the far corners of the Magic Valley, it is not always easy to get their hands on a computer long enough to unravel the mysteries of computer literacy.

Now it is convenient to drive as far as 100 miles round-trip to the College of Southern Idaho to take a class on computers.

The College of Southern Idaho has begun a program to take the computers to the people.

The computers are housed in a new 38-foot trailer, designed to serve as a classroom that can be moved to wherever the students are.

"We think many farmers are interested in computers, but they don't want to come on campus to learn about them," says CSI, Yocum Technical Director Gerald Beck.

With the help of an instructor, students can improve their computer skills on the trailer's 10 separate computers in their own communities.

Taking computers to the students has been tried before, but with less success, Beck says. Last summer, the college's instructors began taking computers into Magic Valley communities to teach classes in schools and business offices. But instructors sometimes seemed to be spending as much time setting up the computers, locating outlets and coping with power overloads and surges as they were teaching, he says.

But college administrators wanted to keep the courses that were usually filled to capacity. One Wednesday night class in Richfield, population 290, drew 40 students.

The solution was the computer trailer with its own generator. "I could take it out to the middle of a field and hold class in it right now," Beck says.

While it has yet to be parked in a field, it is usually parked at city hall or a store parking lot in farming communities.

In some of the communities to which it has traveled in the last two months, like Raft River, everyone in the classes fanned out, handled the bookkeeping for a farm, Beck says.

Last week in Gooding, farmer Gary Byram was using a computer for the first time in the trailer classroom. He plans to invest in a computer eventually to "know where I'm at a little better with profit and loss."

But before buying, one he wanted to learn a little bit about them.

The class he took began with how to turn on the computer but after five evening classes students were learning how to set up an electronic spreadsheet.

Not all the students using the trailer are farmers. Byram's classmate, Robin Ulrich, says she took the class to learn computer skills to gain an edge in competing for the few secretarial jobs in the Gooding area.

By midweek, she could use the computer well enough to write a letter to her brother using a word-processing program, she says.

Beck says the trailer has also been used to train bankers in the Boise area in connection with J.F. Simplot Co. A division of the company, Simplot Data Systems donated the computer terminals and programs used in the program.

The company also donated a farm management program that will be used beginning Monday for a two-week class specifically for farmers in Halley. This week the trailer is in Buhl, and plans call for it to make stops in Mountain Home and Burley after the Halley classes.

For information on the trailer's schedule or registering for a class, call Mary Turner at the college, at 733-9554, extension 290.

Martens to oppose Hollifield

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Waldo Martens, a Jerome rancher, will take on five-term representative Gordon R. Hollifield, also from Jerome, in the May 22 Republican primary.

Martens, 63, said Monday he will file nominating petitions for Hollifield's 24th District seat in the Idaho House of Representatives later this week.

"I think the incumbent has been in (office) so long that he has lost touch with his constituency," said Martens, blasting Hollifield's stance supporting Idaho Power in the Swan Falls water rights controversy.

"If we let the power company run that water over their generators and run it out of the state, it's lost to the people of Idaho," he said. "We should use all the water available in the Magic Valley for it to prosper and grow and to do that, we have to subordinate Idaho Power's water rights at Swan Falls."

Although not recently active in politics, Martens said he served more than a decade as a Republican precinct committeeman in Buhl before moving to Jerome. The upcoming race will be his first try for an elective office.

Martens said he declared his candidacy Saturday after meeting with supporters from the Jerome area.

"I been thinking about it for quite a while," he said.

The Swan Falls issue was the biggest factor pushing him into the race, he said. Martens also said he supports better state funding for education, applying the 1981 Legislature's provisions for a $20.3 million raise in teacher salaries and for development of merit pay plus in school districts.

Formerly on the board of directors for the Jerome County Farm Bureau, Martens said he generally supports the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation's attempts to tighten up procedures for placing statewide initiatives before the voters. However, he said he disagrees with some of the provisions in the recent session's two bills, both of which were vetoed by Gov. John Evans.

Monday was Martens' first day on the campaign trail. He and supporters

ISP building repairs could cost $10,000

TWIN FALLS — Repairing damage suffered by the new Idaho State Police building on Eastland Drive South during the Sunday wind storm is expected to cost as much as $10,000, said Sgt. Dave Neal.

He said the asphalt sheeting on the roof over the north end of the building was lifted off and scattered in pieces into the street and on property across the street. Two vehicles also were pulled out of the building by the severe wind, he said.

The area of the building suffering damage houses the radio technician and the Idaho State Division of Highways shop.

The damage occurred about 1:30 p.m. Sunday, during the peak of a windstorm that hit Magic Valley, Neal said.

Several other structures around the valley were damaged, power lines were downed and trees were blown over. Wind gusts were estimated up to 70 mph in some areas.

Buhl man facing morals charge

TWIN FALLS — John Curtis Haken, 20, of 505 Seventh Ave. N., in Buhl, was charged Monday with lewd and lascivious conduct with a 16-year-old girl.

The complaint filed with Fifth District Magistrate Court alleges Haken had intercourse with the girl between June 1979 and January 1981 in Twin Falls County.

Haken was being held in the Twin Falls County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bond. A public defender has been appointed to represent him.

Travel stop thieves sought

EDIPEN — Magic Valley law officers Monday were seeking a group of people traveling in Illinois-licensed vehicles. They are thought to be suspects in a safe burglary at the Travelers' Oasis.

Deputy Sheriff Jeff Poole said the group, identified as gypsies by the attendants at the store, entered the establishment before noon and caused a disturbance knocking over a display rack. Others kept attendants busy assisting them outside in checking their vehicles for various problems.

He said the vehicles included a 1978 or 1979 Pontiac Bonneville, reddish-maroon in color; a Buick Riviera of the mid '70s, reddish-brown; a late '70s Chevrolet Impala, light tan; and a '78 or '79 Chevrolet Caprice or Impala, brown in color with front end damage.

King Hill woman found dead

KING HILL, — A King Hill woman missing for a week was found dead in her home Saturday, Blaine County Sheriff Bob Mendiolola said.

Sixty to 75 members of the Sheriff's Department, the Idaho State Police and search and rescue units had searched their satellite headquarters about noon Monday.

They found the body "in a place you would not normally look," Mendiolola said. The woman appeared to have been dead for about seven days.

An autopsy will be conducted to determine the cause of death, Mendiolola said. Foul play is not suspected.

Twin Falls rape trial delayed

TWIN FALLS — The trial of a prison inmate charged with raping a Twin Falls woman last fall has been delayed at the request of the defense.

Richard Ray Bradley, 34, was supposed to have gone to trial Tuesday in Fifth District Court.

The alleged incident took place at an apartment on Third Avenue West in the early morning hours of Nov. 17. Bradley broke into the residence and threatened to harm the woman and her child if she did not comply.

Since December 1983, Bradley has been serving a six-year sentence at the state penitentiary on a conviction of attempted rape in Ada County case.

Bradley was charged in Twin Falls in February. Bradley's attorney, public defender Mike Powers, was not available for comment Monday about the reason for the delay.

Kidnapping suspects arrested

MURPHY HOT SPRINGS — Two men suspected of abducting a man from his Murphy Hot Springs residence last week were arrested during the weekend in Twin Falls County.

Harold Whitney and Robert Cambridge, no ages available, have been charged with second-degree kidnapping, said Tom Nettleton, the Owyhee County sheriff.

The alleged victim was 49-year-old Edward Reed, residence last Wednesday at 1 a.m., and released unharmed at the bus depot in Twin Falls, Nettleton said. Reed reported the incident to the Twin Falls County Sheriff's office.

No charges in animal deaths

HAZELTON — Sheriff Elza Hall of Jerome said there will be no charges filed in the deaths of 14 animals on a farm near Hazelton during the past winter.

The state investigators showed they were left on a farm on which the First National Bank was making a foreclosure. The occupants were forced to move last winter. At first, it was reported the foreclosure was being made by the Farmers Home Administration but Hall said this was incorrect information given to his officers.

He said further investigation of the incident and information from Ronald Sellers, who had been leasing the farm, as well as from several other witnesses indicates the animals died of exposure during the extremely cold weather.

He estimated the animals died early in the winter or in mid-winter during the severe cold temperatures and heavy snow.

group of certified policemen who will join again to cross-train as firemen.

Prizes include a video cassette recorder, a doll, a 10-speed bicycle, a float tube, and dinner for two. Winners will be notified on April 20.

Proceeds will be used to purchase a video cassette recorder unit and a television for the school. Tickets are available from students and at the school office.

are setting up a campaign organization and seeking money for the race. Martens said he anticipates a low-cost campaign financed largely out of his own pocket. "I don't plan to spend a lot of money," he said.

One of Martens' most immediate problems is gaining name recognition in Minidoka and Cassia counties and increasing his visibility in Jerome County, he said. District 24 covers all three counties.

A native of Buhl, Martens moved to the Jerome area about a decade ago. He and his family run Marco Ranches, a 400-acre farm and ranch seven miles southwest of Jerome.

Martens said he intends to go into partial retirement, giving him time to pursue legislative matters.

Man's thumb proves too green—marijuana grower pleads guilty

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man who proved too good a gardener pleaded guilty Friday to growing more than 100 marijuana plants. Steven Craig Webster, 36, previously had pleaded innocent to a charge of manufacturing a controlled substance. He was arrested after police found the plants at his residence last June.

Webster told Fifth District Judge Daniel Hurbutt on Friday he had been growing marijuana, but more seeds germinated that he expected. Before Hurbutt ordered a presentence report, he told Webster "congratulations on your green thumb." The judge also advised Webster to change to a different type of crop this spring.

Webster was released pending further proceedings.

In other cases heard Friday:

- Ronnie Watson, 22, of 408 Gardner Ave. in Twin Falls admitted that he fraudulently obtained $733 worth of food stamps between January and June 1983. Watson said he did not report unemployment compensation. Watson was released on his own recognizance while a presentence report was prepared.
- The maximum sentence is 20 years in prison and/or a $10,000 fine.
- Wendell Smith, 53, of Twin Falls pleaded guilty to charges of writing two bad checks last summer totaling more than $900. Smith had changed his plea from not guilty as part of a plea agreement that included he make full restitution, said his attorney Kathy Epeldi. Smith was returned to the custody of the sheriff on $3,000 bond. Hurbutt ordered a presentence investigation.
- Frances Nevil, 25, of 728 Walnut St. in Twin Falls pleaded guilty to cashing a $1,800 insurance check on Nov. 7 that belonged to a senior. A presentence report will be prepared on Nevil, who has been charged with forgery. She was released on her own recognizance.

- Douglas Wicker, 24, of Twin Falls admitted burglarizing Nelson's Inc. at 1641 Highland Ave. E. in Twin Falls, on Dec. 3. A presentence report will be prepared.
- Claude Caldwell, 61, of Twin Falls denied he threatened a woman with a knife on Feb. 8. Caldwell has been charged with aggravated assault. The case will be set for trial.

Church River airfields need work

CHALLIS — Two airfields used for entry into the Frank Church River of No Return Wilderness Area are scheduled for rehabilitation.

The Middle Fork Ranger District is seeking the public's reactions to proposals for doing the work so it can prepare an environmental assessment of the project.

The ranger district is considering using either motorized or horse-drawn equipment to rehabilitate the Indian Creek and Mahoney Creek airfields on the Middle Fork of the Salmon River inside the wilderness. Says Peggy Fox, Middle Fork district ranger, the airfields are located 10 miles from each other, about 50 miles northwest of Challis and about 75 and 85 miles from the confluence of the Middle Fork with the Main Salmon rivers, she says.

In preparing the assessment, the district will consider such issues as the safety of the airfield's user before and after rehabilitation, impacts to recreationists and persons flying into the airfields, durability of the airfield's surface and soil erosion, says Fox.

Alternatives being considered for the rehabilitation work are: no work at all, the use of motorized equipment and the use of horses with non-motorized equipment.

Each alternative also will consider whether to use a soil stabilizer to harden the runways surface or not.

Fox says motorized vehicles can enter the wilderness if approved by the Superintendent of the Forest Service on a case-by-case basis.

Written or verbal comments will be taken until the first week of May and can be made to Peggy Fox, District Ranger, Middle Fork Ranger District, P.O. Box 337, Challis, Id., 83225, or by calling 879-2285.

Jerome man faces burglary charges

GOODING — A Jerome man is scheduled for arraignment Monday on grand theft and burglary charges.

Larry Michael Bills, 29, is charged with taking a $300 saddle from a residence south of Wendell on Feb. 20, says Lynn Nelson, Gooding County deputy prosecutor.

Richard Greenfield, 39, pleaded guilty to the charge of grand theft in the same incident, he says.

Lynn says Bills, Greenfield and a third man reportedly stopped at the residence on their way home from work in Ruhl to buy potatoes. Nelson says.

Nobody was home and Bills and Greenfield allegedly entered the residence and took the saddle, Nelson says. The saddle was pawned at a Twin Falls pawn shop the next day.

The third man was not charged in the incident.

Nelson says Bills is awaiting felony theft charges in Jerome County, grand theft charges in Twin Falls County and has an outstanding arrest warrant for grand theft in Ada County. He is scheduled for arraignment on the Twin Falls charges Tuesday.

Envirosafe closes dubious waste site

GRAND VIEW (AP) — Envirosafe Services Inc., faced with new concerns about its Grand View hazardous waste site, has indefinitely halted operations there while it evaluates recommendations on upgrading employee safety.

"We do not intend to receive any additional materials this week," ESI President Edward Ashby said Monday in Philadelphia.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration has made several recommendations for improving protective gear and safety at the site.

These recommendations were made last week after two employees complained of numbness and dizziness after handling toxic waste.

About 20 employees — 75 percent of the site's work force — were laid off last Friday because of the shutdown.

Ashby said employees were told the layoffs would continue until the company and OSHA reach agreement on working conditions for the employees.

The shutdown was voluntary, said David

Bernard, OSHA's area director for Idaho.

He said OSHA last Thursday recommended self-contained breathing apparatus for workers, and protective suits.

Ashby said that upgrading protective gear would be costly.

He said the protective suit is the equivalent of a "moon suit." "It's extremely difficult to work in them. You can only stay in for a short period of time. It's terribly inefficient," he said.

He said he will discuss the recommendations further with OSHA to determine how far-reaching the recommendations are.

Bob Moore, business manager of the Idaho Service Employee's Union, said the laid-off workers are the same ones who took part in a 1 1/2-day work stoppage after two employees complained of feeling ill.

Moore said the two had been working with barrels containing volatile toxins like pesticides and herbicides, when the incident occurred.

The workers resumed work Wednesday when Envirosafe officials agreed to a list of demands for improved safety.

Among the employee requests was that Envirosafe would transfer volatile toxins to a remote area of the dump and ship them to a site outside Idaho within two months, Moore said.

The company also agreed to provide better respiratory equipment. Envirosafe has also said that it is in the process of hiring a safety director to honor the employee request for a permanent, full-time safety coordinator.

Bernard said an OSHA representative has visited the site, but only the offices.

"I don't want my people going out there on the site with those chemicals unless they have the level of protection we're recommending for their (Envirosafe's) employees," Bernard said.

Bernard said one of the problems at the waste site is that when Envirosafe took over from Wes-Con, the previous operator, "There was a great quantity of chemicals. They don't know what's in there. It's like a smorgasbord out there."

D.C. memorial for Church today

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the state of Idaho continues to mourn former Sen. Frank Church, the nation's capitol prepares to remember him by a memorial service at the National Cathedral today.

Church died Saturday of pancreatic cancer at the age of 59. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., former Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., former Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus, and Church's oldest son, Forrest, will speak at the service.

The Rt. Rev. William Spafford, the former dean of St. Michael's Episcopal Cathedral in Boise and now auxiliary bishop of Washington, D.C., will officiate.

Church's body will be flown back to Boise on Wednesday afternoon. It will be brought to the capitol building by a military honor guard, and will lie in state in the capitol rotunda through Thursday morning.

A military guard will remain with the coffin through the night. Gen. James Brooks of the Idaho National Guard said.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2 p.m. mountain time at the First United Methodist Cathedral of the Rockies in Boise. Forrest Church, a Unitarian minister in New York City, will speak, along with Gov. John Evans and others.

Church will be buried Thursday afternoon at a site he had picked out in Morris Hill Cemetery. The plot lies north of the grave of former Idaho Sen. William Borah, Church's boyhood hero, and the only Idahoan to serve in the Senate longer than Church did.

State investments up

BOISE (AP) — National interest rates are moving higher — and that means more money from investment of the state's cash balances.

Treasurer Marjorie Moon said Monday March interest collections were $28,835 from investment of state funds not needed immediately to pay bills.

That brings interest earnings for the year to $9 million, up from last year's $6.9 million at this point.

Miss Moon said it appears state investments will earn at least $33,000 more than the amount used in the Legislature's revenue projection for this year.

That will add to the state general fund surplus on July 1.

The treasurer also collected $151,674 during March from a pooled investment fund for cities, counties, school districts and other government agencies.

Harrison men held for lynching try

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Two Harrison, Idaho, men were held without bail Monday on charges of attempted murder after they were caught attempting to lynch a California man they accused of being a child molester, Kootenai County sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputies arrested Roger L. McDonald, 44, and Buster J. Sanchez, 32, Saturday night while they were in the act of lynching Keith J. Gilmore, 36, of Fountain Valley, Calif., authorities said.

A department spokesman said Monday the two deputies arrived at a well-known, isolated road outside Harrison and found two attackers attempting to pull the victim's head was in a noose, completely off the ground using a rope stung over an overhead tree branch.

According to initial police reports, Gilmore had been seen wandering through the Harrison city park earlier in the day. Witnesses told police he was barefoot and carrying a Bible.

A group of children apparently gathered around Gilmore near the park and he allegedly was quoting scripture and writing down Bible passages and giving them to the children, witnesses said.

He was approached by two men, who apparently accused Gilmore of molesting the children, witnesses said.

Gilmore said the two men beat him up and took him to the wooded area along East Point Road, where the attempted lynching occurred, police reported.

He suffered numerous cuts and bruises as a result of the beating, but did not require hospitalization.

Gilmore, described by witnesses as a wandering evangelist, apparently had hitchhiked into Harrison earlier Saturday.

Deputies were alerted to the incident by a woman living along the road, the sheriff's spokesman said.

Inland water experts seek more information

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Water quality experts from eastern Washington, northern Idaho and western Montana agreed they lack information needed to properly control the uses of water in their areas.

The experts spoke at the Inland Northwest local government task force organizational meeting here over the weekend.

The session was organized to deal with problems and issues shared by the three regions.

Montana state fish and wildlife official Jim Posewitz said, "We leaned out on the Clark Fork considerably" in issuing a permit to dump pulp mill waste in the river without conditions for monitoring effects.

Montana had issued a permit to Champion International to discharge waste from its pulp mill near Missoula. Granting the permit triggered an uproar from environmental groups and residents living downstream from the pulp mill in Montana, Idaho and Washington.

"Appropriately we were challenged, and appropriately we responded," Posewitz said, explaining that although Champion now has a two-year permit to dump into the river, an advisory board has been appointed and money provided to monitor the effects of the dumping.

He tried to reassure the group that Montana was turning the river water over to Idaho and Washington "in as good a condition as possible."

The Clark Fork "has become an enormous economic asset and hence we are treating it as such," Posewitz said, noting that Montana is the nation's second-largest seller of out-of-state fishing licenses, behind Wisconsin.

Insurance fund head named

BOISE (AP) — Merle Parsley, the man who for the last four sessions has helped guide Gov. John Evans' programs through the Idaho Legislature, is the new manager of the State Insurance Fund.

Parsley, 48, was appointed Monday to the position vacated last month by Diane Plastina when she accepted a private job in Seattle.

He has been a special assistant and legislative aide to Evans since January of 1981.

The North Dakota native has a history degree from Minot State college and a masters degree from Utah State University.

He started his teaching career in 1961 as the only teacher in a one-room school at Calder and two years later was named principal of Sagle Elementary School.

He also taught at Sandpoint High School before serving as Idaho coordinator of an education and economic development program.

Olympic conditions anger Soviets

PETER UEBERROTH
LAOC host maintains emergency meeting won't be necessary

Statement stops short of outright boycott

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union Monday requested an emergency meeting of the International Olympic Committee to consider charges of United States violations of the Olympic charter and indicated it still has not decided whether to attend the Los Angeles Summer Games.

In a statement distributed by Tass, the official Soviet news agency, the Soviet Olympic Committee charged that the 1984 Games are "badly organized," claimed that American groups are mounting a "large-scale" anti-Soviet campaign backed by the government, and demanded that the Reagan administration take steps to prevent protests during the Games.

The Soviets also complained about the State Department's refusal to grant a visa to a Soviet Olympic attaché and charged that U.S. visa requirements discriminated against the Soviet Union.

The statement warned that this "jeopardized" the agreement between the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee and the Soviet Olympic Committee. It stopped short, however, of making any direct threat to boycott the Games, which begin July 28 and run until Aug. 12.

In another development Monday, Pak Mu-Sung, chairman of North Korea's delegation, walked out of talks aimed at fielding a joint North and South Korean Olympic team. He said he would not continue negotiations on the joint team until South Korea released charges that North Korea was responsible for a bombing attack on South Koreans in Burma last October and an alleged 1976 kidnapping of two South Korean film stars from Hong Kong to North Korea.

On the Soviet matter, Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee, declined immediate comment on the request for an emergency meeting. "Up to now, I have seen only news dispatches reporting the request," he said.

Samaranch noted that a regular executive committee meeting was scheduled at Lausanne, Switzerland, May 28, and said that "theoretically," an emergency meeting could be convened before then.

Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, denied the Soviet allegations and said an emergency meeting "would not be necessary."

"It's our opinion that an emergency meeting (of the IOC), as called for, would not be necessary," Ueberroth told reporters at a news conference in Los Angeles.

Ueberroth said neither his committee nor the IOC in Switzerland had yet received any communication from the Soviets about their complaints or the request for an emergency IOC meeting. Ueberroth said the United States has no intention of refusing entry to Soviet athletes.

"From our viewpoint, we abhor any political intrusion into the games," said F. Don Miller, chairman of the U.S. Olympic Committee. "The games are now rapidly coming upon us. It's everyone's best interests in the Olympic movement to have the Soviet Union and the other countries participate in those games."

The Soviets have said they are not planning a boycott. But they have continually criticized Olympics preparations and have said they have not decided whether to attend the Games.

"The 23rd Olympic Games in Los Angeles are just a little more than three months off," the Soviet statement began. "The time is ever nearer for the national Olympic committees to take a decision on participation in the Olympic Games."

"U.S. President Reagan submitted to the IOC written guarantees of the U.S. government's respect for the traditions, rules and provisions of the Olympic charter. Facts show, however, that these obligations and guarantees are not respected in a number of major matters."

The Soviets charged that "a large-scale campaign against the Soviet Union's participation in the Olympic Games has been mounted in the USA" by what it called "reactionary political, emigre and religious groups."

The statement specifically cited a group called "Ban the Soviets," which it said is supported by "U.S. official services" and is making "open threats of physical victimization and provocative actions."

A Soviet emigre group in the United States has said it would try and encourage Soviet athletes to defect during the Games.

The Soviet statement said, "Preparations are under way in Los Angeles for staging political demonstrations and rallies during the Games."

It demanded that U.S. authorities take measures to "ensure the full security of the national delegations."

Previous Soviet press commentaries have complained about smog, the crime rate and prices in Los Angeles.

The U.S. State Department has denied a visa for Oleg Yermishkin, a Soviet official proposed as an Olympics attaché. State Department officials said Yermishkin had been identified as a high-ranking KGB officer.

The Soviet statement said the refusal of the visa jeopardized "fulfillment of the agreement" concluded between the Olympic Committee of the USSR and the LAOC last December when he was "jeopardized."

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy said the Soviet Union was warned in advance that Yermishkin would be rejected. But he said the Soviets were told the United States approves of the principle of an Olympic attaché.

Bruin nine meets Minico

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

RUPERT — It seems strange that the baseball teams of District 4 archrivals Twin Falls and Minico should be strangers to each other, but the vagaries of Idaho's refrigerated spring weather sometimes bring about such oddities.

"I've heard a lot about the rivalry with Twin Falls and I'm expecting a close game," says first-year Minico Coach Cory Bridges, whose Spartans will host the Bruins in a Gem State Conference contest today at 2:30 p.m. "Beyond that, I really don't know what to expect."

Well, we know about Terrence Smith and Greg Schow and some of the players we've seen for a year or two, but beyond that we don't know much," says Minico Coach Bill Ingram. "They've played more games than we have, but I haven't had a chance to see them and I haven't talked to anybody who has seen them play in the last week or so."

The fact are these: Twin Falls, 3-1, has been weathered out of six other games this spring and hasn't played for 10 days; Minico, 4-5, has gotten in all of its scheduled games and has won its last four.

Last time these two teams met, it was in the rubber game of a three-game district series to decide a representative to the state Class A tournament. This time around, the stakes will be an early advantage in the southern division of the Gem State Conference, the first step toward a league tournament that has, for this year at least, supplanted the state tournament for the eight GSC schools.

Twin Falls and Minico are grouped with Pocatello and Highland in the league's southern division. The regular-season standings in that division will determine the seedings in a post-season playoff that will in turn pick two representatives to a four-team conference tournament. Today will be the Bruins' first "southern division" game; it has split two games with Blackfoot of the "northern division." Minico is 2-0 in southern division play — 4-2 in the conference — having swept Highland.

For Twin Falls, there will be one familiar sight: senior left-hander Terrence Smith. Smith, 1-2 this season, has been responsible for much of Minico's success against the Bruins in the past two years.

"Against Terrence, you just try to get the players to hit the ball," says Ingram. "He has a good curveball, and if it's working you want to make contact."

Ingram will counter with senior right-hander Darren Stuart, making his first-ever start for the Bruins.

Winter feeding bill reaches $425,000

BOISE (AP) — The bill for emergency winter feeding of some 23,000 head of deer, elk and antelope has reached $425,000, Fish and Game Department officials say.

The Fish and Game Commission on Monday received a report on the winter feeding program, to open a two-day meeting here. After a Monday night hearing, commissioners were scheduled to adopt regulations for next fall's fur-bearing animal seasons.

coming in, said Hugh Wilson, department information officer.

During the height of the winter, the department was spending $6,200 per day for hay and pellets for the wild animals.

Some of the $425,000 went for work to keep wild animals from attacking — farms — haystacks — and other crops, officials said.

Next winter, the Fish and Game Department may find it easier to pay for the winter feeding program.

Few changes after 6th bowling session

TWIN FALLS — There were few changes in the sixth weekend of the Idaho State Women's Bowling Tournament.

Nemiga's 5 of Salmon supplanted Challis Lanes of Challis and United Radiator of Caldwell for second place in the B division team standings, with 2,413 points. That's still a distant second to Jim's Construction of Rupert, which took the lead a week ago with 2,455.

Record-setting Magic Valley bowlers continue to protect their healthy leads in their respective classes. Larie Hays of Buhl, who has already set records in both the all-events and doubles classes in the B division, her doubles partner Peggy Ainsworth of Buhl — and the members of Mac's Southpaw Magic, a Twin Falls-Boise squad, continued to go unchallenged. Mac's leads the A division team standings with 2,814 points — almost 200 pins better than second-place Coca-Cola of Pocatello.

Hash and Ainsworth hold a commanding 1,212-1,141 lead over second-placed Sheri Hill and Kay Gillespie of Twin Falls in the women's B doubles, while Hays leads the class B all-events race with 51 pins over Gillespie.

Diane Jones of Twin Falls leads the division all-events race for the third week, with 586, six pins better than Bernadine Alexander of Boise.

The tournament will continue for the next four weekends at two Twin Falls bowling lanes.

Rupert meet to provide individual tests

By STEVE CRUMP

RUPERT — The team championship is all-but a foregone conclusion, but that doesn't diminish the significance of the South Idaho Press Invitational track and field meet here today.

There are a lot of good individual athletes in these seven schools," says

Minico track Coach Wes Patterson, host of the third annual event. "This is usually a pretty good test, because it brings together schools that don't normally get to compete against each other during the season. And it generates a lot of interest, too, because people are always interested in seeing how their kids do against the kids from down the road."

Minico, Valley, Murtaugh and the four Cassia County schools — Burley, Declo, Oakley and Red River — will get together on the Minico High track, beginning at 10:30 a.m., when field events and track preliminaries are scheduled to begin. The finals in the running events will start at 1:30 p.m.

Lansford's home run lifts A's to fifth victory in six outings

By The Associated Press

Carmey Lansford hit an 0-4 pitch from reliever Dennis Lamp over the left-field fence for a two-run homer in the eighth inning to give the Oakland A's a 4-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Monday night.

The homer, Lansford's first, scored Joe Morgan and was Lansford's third game-winning RBI of the season for the A's, who are off to a 5-1 start. Lansford was the first batter to face Lamp. Dwayne Murphy reached base on an error by second baseman

Baseball

Damaso Garcia to open the A's eighth. Jimmy Key then relieved Toronto starter Jim Clancy and got Morgan to ground into a forecourt before Lamp, 0-2, came out of the bullpen.

George Bell had given Toronto a 3-2 lead in the top of the eighth when he led off with a 400-foot home run to center. Bell, the first batter to face Oakland reliever Bill Caudill, 1-0, hit a 3-2 pitch for his first homer of the season. Bell singled earlier in the game and is batting .500 through six games.

Oakland broke a scoreless tie with two runs in the sixth when Lansford and Bruce Bochte drilled run-scoring singles with two outs.

The Blue Jays tied it in the seventh with a two-out rally of their own. Dave Collins and Alfredo Griffin singled off A's starter Tim Lincecum and reliever Chris Codrill was summoned. The runners advanced on a wild pitch and Garcia then hit a slow roller toward third base. Garcia beat Lansford's throw to first as Collins scored from third and Griffin raved in from second, sliding under the tag of catcher Mike Heath who took the throw in the plate from first baseman Bochte.

Expos, had a double and single in five at-bats to leave him three hits shy of 4,000 for his career.

The Reds' poodled starter Bill Guilleken, 0-2, for four runs in the first inning after there were two outs. Dan Drisless walked and took third on Dave Parker's double. Espay's soft double to right drove in both runners and Walker, making his first appearance of the season, launched a 3-2 pitch over the right field wall.

Denver outscores Young, Express

By The Associated Press

Kevin Williams caught a 73-yard bomb from Craig Penrose, and David Martin returned a punt 79 yards for another score to highlight a 25-point second-quarter explosion that carried the host Denver Gold to a 35-27 United States Football League victory over the Los Angeles Express Monday night.

Los Angeles jumped to a 14-0 first-period lead. Steve Young, the Express' quarterback, beat the blitz and flipped a short pass to running back Mel Gray that turned into a 52-yard gain. Kevin Nelson scored on a 2-yard run four plays later.

But the Gold rebounded in the second quarter. Penrose got it started with his long pass to Williams, who outran the defenders for Denver's first TD with 11:49 left in the half.

Martin scored on a punt return with 3:39 left in the half, but the extra-point attempt was missed and Denver trailed 14-13.

Los Angeles' Mel Gray fumbled the ensuing kickoff off the Express 17-yard line, and Denver needed just five plays to take the lead for good.

Vince White scored on a 5-yard run from Penrose with 1:31 remaining in the half.

Tony Boddie then fumbled the next kickoff, giving Denver possession at the Los Angeles 10, and Bill Johnson put the Gold ahead 25-14 with a 5-yard scoring run with 30 seconds left.

Young, who finished with 16 completions in 37 attempts for 257 yards, tossed a short pass to Nelson late in the closing seconds to account for the final margin.

Stuart's challenge will be silencing two bats: those wielded by Smith and Schow, both of whom have been on a tear. The "Big Red" pitcher, Smith, has also had success with his juniors, few of whom have played high school baseball before this spring, and with senior Von Peterman.

Patterson mentions the "talented boys" A-3 squad from Valley, led by senior sprinter Jeff Henry, and long/triple jumper David Tilley. Tilley, who triple jumped 42-3/4 at the state meet a year ago, has already leaped 42-1 1/2 this spring, a mark that would far surpass the 41-1/2 set by record-holder Henry on a 2:03.7 at district last year in the half mile; and he clocked in 2:11 this spring; the meet record is 2:08. Todd Schutte, a junior, turned in a 53.6 quarter-mile last week, and anchors the Vikings' mile relay team, which has run 3:45.1.

Then there's Leslie Bedke, a senior hurdler running for an Oakley High School team that has yet to see action this season. Bedke clocked 49.7 in the 300 IM at district last year, which should set up a showdown with Minico sprint queen Charlotte Winward. Winward won the 100 in 49.2 at the SIP meet last spring.

Patterson expects a strong showing from a very deep Declo boys' team, led by sprinters Dwight Jenkins, Ty Osterhout and Bart Kelsey and junior weightlifter Brent Wolf. Kelsey was an 11.4 100 runner on record, while Wolf has thrived on the discus 123.3.

Finally, Patterson says, there may be a sleeper in Burley pole vaulter Thane Baker, a junior who has been flirting with 12 feet and, Patterson believes, could go much higher.

While Minico doesn't have track talent to spare this year, there's no denying that four of the SIP rewrites some records as well. The smart betting starts with Winward, the defending A-1 champion in both the high and low hurdles. Winward has already run a 16.2 and a 49.2, respectively, on Minico's cinder track this spring. Equally impressive are Minico's girls' relay teams, who haven't been beaten since the first meet of the season. The Spartans have already broken all four of the SIP relay records this year. Minico's half-mile relay team of Esther Banzhaf, Idalia Casiano, Jan Leavitt and Theresa Itesler has clocked a

Sparky uneasy despite Detroit's quick start

By HARRY ATKINS
The Associated Press

JACK MORRIS
He and mates jump for joy.

DETROIT — A five-game winning streak and the honor of being baseball's only undefeated team this season would tempt most managers grinning, but Detroit's Sparky Anderson seemed a little uncomfortable Monday with the Tigers' perfect start.

"The fans should be a little excited," Anderson conceded as the Tigers prepared for today's home opener against the Texas Rangers. "That's why they're your fans."

"But it doesn't mean anything other than that five games we can't lose. There's still a long campaign to go."

The 5-0 start — two victories over Minnesota and three over the Chicago White Sox — ranks among the top five in Tigers' history and is six games short of the American League record set by the 1981 Oakland A's, who went on to win the AL West five games.

But Anderson is trying to temper the enthusiasm.

"I don't think anybody's expecting us to be over (the Baltimore Orioles)." "It has to be no mistake, they're the World Champions."

The 1982 Atlanta Braves — fastest starters in National League history — went on to win the NL West Division after a 12-0 start.

The worst major league starts belong to the 1963 Washington

Senators and the 1920 Tigers, each opening 0-13. They finished eighth and sixth, respectively.

"It has to give you confidence," Detroit third baseman Tom Brookens said. "The more you win at the beginning, the fewer you have to win at the end. That's the way I look at it."

The Tigers' streak has been fashioned with a combination of hitting, pitching, defense and strategy.

The hitting has not been overpowering, but the Tigers have had eight two-out hits with runners on base. The pitching staff, with the help of Jack Morris' no-hitter Saturday against the White Sox, has an earned run average of 1.60.

In the field, outfielder Chet Lemon made two outstanding catches in the season-opening series against Minnesota.

"Every manager is a genius with a start like this," Anderson said, playing down his role as a strategist. "I never pay attention to those cheers. I know it can turn the other way pretty quick."

"I've never been overjoyed when we win. I know what it is to be on the other side."

The Tigers have outscored the opposition 29-9 in the five games.

"I was hoping the club was this good, but I hadn't seen them play," said first baseman Darren Evans, the free agent Detroit picked up from the San Francisco Giants in December.

"It's much better than I ever thought. In five games, we've had eight RBI with two outs. To me, that's outstanding."

Another newcomer, left-handed reliever Willie Hernandez, has pitched in every game except the no-hitter, recording one save.

"I looked at this club when I got here and saw no big names," said Hernandez, who appeared in the World Series with Philadelphia last season. "But, I promise you, they'll be big names at the end of the season."

Meanwhile, in Baltimore, O's put aside 1983's glory

By GORDON BEARD
The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — The Baltimore Orioles are only four games into a new season, but Manager Joe Altobelli figures it's time to erase all reminders of the team's 1983 world championship.

"I'm putting this in the drawer," the low-key skipper said with a very smile as he took a gold-colored "Top Banana" of his clubhouse desk prior to Monday's 5-day workout and buried the memento sent in by a fan.

But this one is magnified because the Orioles already are further behind than at any time last season, trailing unbeaten Detroit by 4½ games.

"I hate like hell to say we're done this before," Altobelli said. "That's bull, and it always has been mistaken. On the other hand, if we'd won four in a row, I'd be telling them: 'Hey, it's a long year,' and that's still the way we've got to look at it. That's why they play the game."

The Baltimore pitching staff, rated one of the best, has been racked for 47 hits and 33 runs with Scott McGregor's 6.35 earned run average the best among the starters.

In addition, errors have led to six unwelcome runs and the hitting has not been timely. In other words, it's a team effort.

seven-game losing streaks in 1983, his first season as manager, checked last year's record for some measure of solace.

"We were 11-and-9 last April," he said. "We were only four games over .500 after the second month and seven games over after the third month."

For the record, the Orioles put on one of their patented stretch runs and finished 14 games over .500, beating second-place Detroit by six games.

McGregor and Mike Boddicker will get their second starts when Kansas City moves in for a two-game series starting Tuesday night. Starters Mike Flanagan and Palmer will pitch a few innings in an exhibition game Thursday against Charlotte, Baltimore's farm team in the Class AA Southern League.

There's good reason to forget the past and concentrate on the job at hand. The defending champions have lost all four of their games, the last three by an embarrassing 29-11 combined score to Minnesota as the Twins held nine doubles, two triples and five home runs.

Slow starts are commonplace for the Orioles, who have posted losing records in six of their last nine Aprils.

"This is something we go through every year," pitching coach Ray Miller said of his staff. "We might as well get it over with early this year."

Altobelli, who refused to panic when the Orioles suffered through two Starn Davis, who has pitched 75 scoreless innings while being temporarily assigned to the bullpen because of the light early schedule, will join the rotation when the Orioles start a stretch of 10 consecutive games in Cleveland on Saturday.

Looking for brighter things, Altobelli said: "Tomorrow may be another day." Then he cracked: "Tomorrow will be another day."

On LSD, Ellis pitched gem

By PITTSBURGH (AP) — Former Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher Dock Ellis, treated four years ago for drug dependency, says he was under the influence of LSD when he pitched a no-hitter against the San Diego Padres in 1970.

Ellis, now the coordinator of an anti-drug program in Los Angeles, also told The Pittsburgh Press he was on pep pills when he intentionally tried to hit several Cincinnati Reds' batters, including Pete Rose and Johnny Bench, during a 1974 game.

Ellis, 33, said he didn't know until six months before his June 12, 1970, no-hitter that he was going to pitch.

"I was in Los Angeles and the team was playing in San Diego, but I didn't know it," Ellis said in a story published in the Press-Star Tribune editions. "I had taken LSD . . . I thought it was an off-day. That's how come I had it in me. I took the LSD at 12 (noon)."

"At 1, the girl (he was with) looked at the paper and said, 'Dock, you're pitching today.'"

"That's when it was $9.50 to fly to San Diego. She got me to the airport at 3:30. I got there at 4:30 and the game started at 6:05 p.m. It was a two-night double-header."

"I can only remember bits and pieces of the game. I was psyched. I had a feeling of euphoria. I was zoned in on the catcher's glove, but I didn't hit the glove too much. I remember hitting a couple of batters and the bases were loaded two or three times."

The Pirates won the game 2-0, although Ellis walked eight batters.

Ellis said he never pitched again under the influence of LSD or alcohol.

Perez freed, but return uncertain

ATLANTA (AP) — A tearful Pascual Perez was preparing to leave the Dominican Republic Monday after a three-month stay in prison, but when the ace right-handed pitcher would be able to rejoin the Atlanta Braves was uncertain.

Perez was released from Fort San Luis prison in Santiago, where he had been held since Jan. 9 following his arrest on drug charges.

Although he originally was charged with felony trafficking of drugs, Perez was convicted March 23 of a reduced charge of cocaine possession, the equivalent of a misdemeanor.

That conviction was upheld April 5 by an appellate court in Santiago while prosecutors decided whether to appeal to the Supreme Court for restoration of the felony charge and imposition of a two-year sentence.

"I'm all choked up," the 25-year-old Perez said as he left the prison Monday when prosecutors decided not to appeal the case.

"I knew I wouldn't be let down, and I won't let down the people who supported me," the tearful Perez said as he was joined by his wife and several family members.

Ellis, now the coordinator of an anti-drug program in Los Angeles, also told The Pittsburgh Press he was on pep pills when he intentionally tried to hit several Cincinnati Reds' batters, including Pete Rose and Johnny Bench, during a 1974 game.

Ellis, 33, said he didn't know until six months before his June 12, 1970, no-hitter that he was going to pitch.

Bruins dominate Wolverines, 9-3

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls swept the singles matches and split the doubles here Monday to defeat Wood River 9-3 in a non-conference, high-school tennis match.

Twin Falls, which has won five dual meets this year and been tied once without a loss, won all of the singles matches in straight sets, but had to struggle in doubles. The Wolverines' Jamie Hjort and David Johnson beat Twin Falls' No. 1 boys' doubles teams, Mike Kerbs and Chris Rose, on a tie-breaker in the third set, before Steff Dahlquist and Ryan McDermott clinched the match with a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Chris Mallane and Jim Chelsea.

The Bruins' No. 1 girls' doubles team, Mary Nye and Jennifer Sacco, also fell to Wood River in three sets, losing to Cathy Grant and Jill Katz 6-4, 1-6, 4-6, while the Bruins' No. 2 girls' team, Rhonda Babcock and Tiffany Korbs, edged Alex Lang and Shelley McCracken, 7-5, 4-6, 6-2.

The teams split the mixed doubles matches with straight-set victories.

The Bruins will host Highland, Pocatello, Caldwell and Nampa in an invitational tournament Saturday at the Frontier Field and Harmon Park courts, with competition scheduled to begin at 9 a.m.

The Wolverines, now 1-1 for the season, will take on Jerome on the road on Thursday.

Circle of Elegance

South's work in his play of today's game is best described in two words: down one. Naturally he had more than two words to justify the result.

The defense took the first three hearts and East shifted to the diamond Jack. South covered, as did West, and dummy's ace won. Trumps were drawn, South staking all on running the club suit, but that didn't work. East's club Jack failed to drop and South was forced to concede a diamond for one down.

"The game would have made if the heart ace had been inside. If the diamond king had dropped in three rounds," bluffed South. "Quite a few things had to be wrong for me to go down."

One more thing went wrong that you didn't mention," needed North. "You backed the wrong horse."

After winning dummy's diamond-ace, South should draw two rounds of trumps with his king and queen. Then he plays the king and ace of clubs: A low club isuffed with the trump Jack to establish the suit, and a third round of trumps to dummy's ace provides the vital entry to run the clubs.

Food sans cash Cards tested

By VAL CORLEY
Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa — Shoppers at three Des Moines supermarkets are using their automatic teller machine cards to buy groceries in a pilot program that's being touted as the wave of the future.

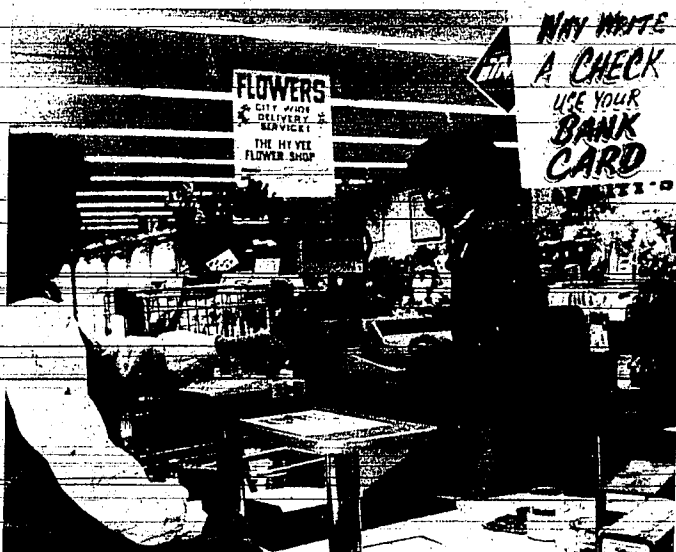

"I think every consumer that has a checking account and pays with a check will eventually use a debit card," said Dale A. Dooley, president of ITS Inc., the company backing the experiment. "It's easier, quicker and cheaper."

Bankers from "all over the free world" have trekked to Des Moines for a look at the system that allows people to buy food without checks or cash, said Dooley. "They've come from South Africa, Central America, Mexico, Israel, Australia, Germany, England, everywhere."

ITS, a Fort Meigs-based firm that got the first debit system in September 1981, A West Des Moines Hy-Vee Food Store became the second to get one two months later. Hy-Vee added another last week and expects to have five more stores equipped by the end of the month, leaving just one store without the system.

"The debit card is nothing more than an electronic check," Dooley said. Special cash registers in the stores are linked to computers that automatically transfer funds from the customer's account to the store's.

ITS, the automatic banking subsidiary of the Iowa Bankers Association, owns and operates the electronic funds transfer system that allows Iowans to withdraw or deposit money in almost any automatic teller machine in the state. California and Florida banks are gearing up to offer a similar service, said Dooley. But he said their systems will have problems because automatic teller systems in most areas can be used only by customers of the banks that own the teller machines.

Checker Felicia Murillo watches customer pay for grocery purchase with bank debit card

Iowa and Wisconsin are the only two states where a consumer sees a terminal, he can use it. In other states, big banks are trying to monopolize and freeze out others," Dooley said. "I think that, unless you have all the financial institutions in a local area, it will not work. The retailer needs 10 percent and shouldn't expect anything less."

The stores have seen an increase in customer use of the debit cards even though the service has not been promoted. "A lot of customers won't use anything but the bank cards," said Bruce Dykstra, assistant manager of the West Des Moines Hy-Vee store. "It's faster for the customer and they don't have to worry about carrying money or a checkbook."

Dykstra said the checkout clerks "love it. They don't have to worry about checks. We do have a bad check problem. This helps eliminate that and takes pressure off the clerks." Dooley said 5 to 7 percent of the store's sales volume come through the debit card. "We feel it will probably replace 40 to 70 percent of the checks once the service is in other stores," he said. One problem has developed: the automatic teller machines limit withdrawals to $200 a day, according to Don Smith, assistant manager at the Dahl's store.

"Not thinking some customers might take out $150 and then take out $70 in groceries and the computer wouldn't give it to them," Smith said. The system, when it goes into full operation, will be supported by consumers, retailers and banks, said Dooley. "All are paying for in one form or another for checks now, so it won't be as expensive as for checks," he said.

Stocks mixed in light trading

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned in a mixed performance Monday in the lightest trading in two weeks. Auto and oil stocks were among the gainers, while several blue-chip stocks posted modest declines.

Analysts said the market shrugged off the Federal Reserve Board's decision after the close of trading on Friday to increase to 9 percent from 8.5 percent its "discount" rate charged on its own loans to financial institutions. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which rose 1.67 points on Friday, gained another 1.68 points on Monday to 1,131.90. Investors led gainers, however, by about 4 to 3 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The NYSE composite index was unchanged from Friday at 89.4.

Big Board volume slowed to 71.57 million shares, down from 86.62 million shares on Friday and the lowest since 69.07 million shares changed hands on March 26.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 84.76 million shares.

Sessions compare business methods

SNOWBIRD, Utah (AP) — The way Americans and Japanese do business was compared here Monday during a three-day forum of business relations between the two countries. The delegates, from newspapers, broadcast stations and businesses in the international arena, are meeting for what is billed as "Japan-United States Relations: First International West Media Briefing."

The seminars are sponsored by the Institute For Studies in the Humanities. Ron Morse, an expert on Japan, said the next economic battleground between the two nations will be in the area of high technology.

He said there is already intense competition in nuclear, space and bio-technology fields. Masaki Sato, Japan's counsel general at San Francisco, said that while U.S.-Japan relations are good, there are problems.

"We have problems in certain areas, and I think we are working very hard to fix them," Sato said. "The competition will continue and this is good for both of us—there are many areas in which we can cooperate." Timothy McGinnis, a senior vice president of Chase Manhattan Bank who has lived and worked in Japan, compared Japan's corporate and employee structures with those of the United States.

He said Japanese corporations have limited stock ownership while those in the U.S. have wide ownership of stock.

McGinnis said another difference is that Japan has a long-term view of markets, while American business takes the view of the short term. Employees in Japan, McGinnis said, have lifetime employment, but that is not the case in America. And while Japanese employees feel they own the company, he said, stockholders own American companies.

McGinnis also said Japanese employees are involved in the firm's decision-making while there is little American employee involvement.

Big All-American firms take on decided English accent

LONDON — Some all-American institutions, such as McDonald's hamburgers, Standard Oil Co. of Ohio and Travelodge motels, have a decidedly English accent these days. Since Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government ousted the automatic oil company in October 1979, British investment overseas has flourished and business executives see no end in sight with the American economy booming.

British industrial, banking and portfolio investments in the United States are valued at more than $115 billion, according to a compilation of 1980-1982 figures from the U.S. government—the Bank of England and London stockbrokers.

"The British are now the leading major investors in U.S. corporations, according to 1982 figures compiled by the U.S. Commerce Department."

"Sounds like we're trying to get the colonies back," said Peter Warman, financial director of the British Car Auction group, which has invested $45 million in the United States since 1981 and become the second largest American auto auction chain.

"At the moment there is a tremendous interest of companies to invest in the United States," said Walter Goldsmith, chairman of the Institute of Directors, which represents top executives of major British corporations. "We are seeing a revolution in this country toward management using outward looking."

Rocco Forte, chief executive of Truisthouse Forte, which solely or jointly owns or franchises the 546-unit Travelodge chain and is expanding into luxury motels and exclusive hotels, said bigger British companies have to look overseas to expand.

"The United States is an unashamed capitalist system. The creation of wealth is not frowned upon. You go into the United States and everything is possible. In this country, in the past, people who made money were frowned on and even hounded and persecuted," he said.

"Mrs. Thatcher has changed the attitude toward business and I'm now very bullish on Britain. But on an international scale—in the labor market, the United States is very important. It's a growing economy and one wants to be in it for that reason," said Forte, whose American operations made $17.9 million profit in 1982.

Rival hoteliers Grand Metropolitan have also expanded into the U.S. market, buying the Intercontinental hotel chain from Pan American World Airways in 1981 for $300 million.

In the food industry, England's Northern Foods bought Keystone Foods of Philadelphia in 1982 for $60 million and became the biggest manufacturer of McDonald's hamburgers. Bluebird Inc., its first American venture, claims to be the largest producer of cooked, canned and smoked hams in the United States.

Hanson Trust got into the U.S. market 10 years ago and runs a $1.6 billion operation producing everything from shoes to fish meal, lace and Ball Park frankfurters. Its Volume Services group will be providing all the eats and drinks at the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles.

The British have hardly missed an industry. They're in mining, oil, chemicals, metals, machinery, textiles, lumber, paper, finance, insurance, real estate, agriculture, fishing and construction.

The U.S. Commerce Department's latest figures estimate British banking assets in the United States were estimated at $28.28 billion in 1980, the last year for which it had figures, and all other industries at $68.4 billion dollars in 1981.

On portfolio investments, estimates for 1982 by the Bank of England and brokers Phillips and Drew put in U.S. investments at $17.2 billion, by investment trusts at $1.75 billion and by pension funds at $12.15 billion. Unit trusts are roughly equivalent to U.S. mutual funds, and children of the aged or disabled trusts are held shares in the fixed capital of a company.

The British are ranked first in their amount of direct investment in U.S. corporations, according to 1982 figures of the U.S. Commerce Department.

Competition fierce among suppliers of computer software

Our love affair with the home computer actually is only a few years old. Yet more than 10 million personal computers by Apple, Atari, IBM and other manufacturers have already been bought for family use.

Millions more of these microcomputers (defined as machines for under $10,000) will be sold as fierce competition among hardware manufacturers forces some prices to $100 and below—thereby putting them within reach of most families.

Also booming are sales of software, the packaged instructions that enable you to command the machine, perform many tasks and learn important skills. A lowering 1,700 percent growth in this field in the next five years alone is predicted by Talmis Inc. of Oak Park, Ill., with sales surging to $4.6 billion by the start of 1985.

Educational software is estimated to show the fastest growth in this period, with sales on average doubling every year to $1 billion. If you own a personal computer or plan to buy one, you also must learn about software. Here are 44,000 software programs on the market; they range over almost every use, follow the stock market; turn out hundreds of individual letters; prepare lists; obtain information (for a fee) from giant data banks; teach math, foreign languages, freehand drawing, songwriting, business operations. And this list just suggests the range.

More software and hardware are on the way. Some 49 exhibitors participated in the Consumer Electronics Show with advanced versions of their products, held in Las Vegas at the start of 1984.

For every $1,000 you do spend on hardware, we buy roughly $370 of software. No wonder the interest in displaying the products were such leading publishers as Reader's Digest, Xerox, CBS and Prentice-Hall. Among the fast-growing independents in the competition were Scarborough Systems of Turley, N.Y.; Spinnaker Software Corp. of Cambridge, Mass.; Broderbund Software of San Rafael, Calif.; and DesignWare of San Francisco.

The No. 1 educational program in the United States for more than a year has been Scarborough's MasterType, an ingenious space-age typing and keyboard instruction program that teaches computer literacy at home or school and is also used by businesses to test typists and to train new computer operators.

Scarborough also has introduced this year a unique arcade-action business game, Run for the Money. While your spaceship tries to be first to escape from a strange planet (which is only possible if you run a business at a profit), you're also secretly using an economic simulation model and acquiring managerial skills.

Spinnaker has introduced an outstanding adventure game too. It teaches children such valuable educational skills as note-taking, best seller that combines education and the ability to prepare printed documents of many kinds. As a word processor, this program enables children of the aged to display and work with almost any type of written material and by so doing, build up writing and computer skills.

DesignWare has two new products for the school market as well as for home use—Spellington and Trap-A-Zoid, which teach spelling and grammar and fundamentals of geometry in an entertaining way. These are expensive products! Shop with care, insist on quality, and in educational software look for something that truly teaches and is not merely a disguised video game.

Study the package, read a review, ask for a demonstration to show the educational game is fun and easy to use and that it can be replayed. "I'm trained to know computers, not taxes. So I go to H&R Block for tax preparation. Block keeps up with the tax changes, and their preparers have done hundreds of tax returns. They're trained to spot every deduction and credit I'm entitled to. They're more good; three out of every four Block clients get a refund!"

Antique hunt ranges from Idaho to London

By ROBERT J. DYLE
Times-News staff reporter

KETCHUM — Until five years ago, Rainey Curtis didn't own an antique.

Today, she travels to England two or three times a year, and using her London flat as headquarters, tours the countryside looking for the old and the unusual. What she finds and likes, she buys and ships back to her antique stores in Ketchum and Boise.

Such hunts began five years ago, when Curtis bought a London flat. The new residence was located right in the middle of Chelsea, which is famous for its antique markets.

Curtis began touring the shops that crowded the streets near her home and her curiosity soon turned to an interest, which led to purchases, which led to research — suddenly she was a collector of antiques with a rapidly

'My first purchases were made strictly on the basis of their personal appeal. . . However, I found that the London museums were more than willing to educate me about my new fascination.'

growing inventory.

"My first purchases were made strictly on the basis of their personal appeal, rather than their investment potential or even their historical value. However, I found that the London museums were more than willing to educate me about my new fascination."

"Most of the time I'd just go in and say, 'What's this?' If it was obvious what it was, I'd say, 'How old do you think this is?'"

"If that museum didn't know, the curator would refer me to another museum, and usually I would find the answer, though it might be four or five museums later," Curtis says.

To house her growing collection, Curtis, a former real estate broker and developer, bought a small duplex in Ketchum. With the assistance of her contractor son, she completely refurbished the structure to resemble an English Tudor cottage. The end result is now a business, it's Quite Obvious: Antiques, a store which opened in 1981.

In February of this year, a second shop was opened in Boise.

Now the London trips are a to must restock the new concerns. And Curtis uses the trips as opportunities to visit the Natural History Museum in London to seek background information on all her purchases.

"The museums don't always know," Curtis says. "I once took in a pair of stirrups I'd purchased in a flea market, and no one had ever seen anything like these before. I couldn't ask the seller, simply because there were over 600 merchants at that particular flea market."

Curtis enjoys sharing her newly acquired knowledge and interests has found visitors to her shops often can provide additional insights as well as pertinent data about the antique items.

During the summer months, both stores host seminars on Friday afternoon, during which the history, function and value of particular items are discussed in detail.

"We love people to just come in and listen," Curtis says. "Sometimes their knowledge concerning an antique extends beyond ours. Besides we need someone to eat the cookies."

Curtis says "so many antiques are being shipped out of Europe, particularly Great Britain, I'm surprised there's anything left."

"Three years ago, when I first began buying English and European antiques, I could find what I needed in the Chelsea section of London. Now I travel the backroads, attending small country flea markets, to find what used to be available only a few blocks from my home," she says.

"Not only are quality antiques more difficult to find, the increased competition for what is available has driven up the prices. Still, here I am ready for another trip, uncertain what I'm going to buy, but thoroughly excited about the coming hunt," Curtis adds.

Four-area seniors get Good Citizen award

TWIN FALLS — Four-Mingle-Valley-High School seniors have been selected by their schools for the Good Citizen award given by the Twin Falls chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The students are Joni James of Jerome, Jennifer Stark of Kimberly, Heidi Marie Deters of Twin Falls, and Joe Nelson of Gooding. James, daughter of Jerry and Karen James of Jerome, has 1.5 many class offices, is on the Jerome High school debate team and won the Elwanis Hope for Tomorrow academic award. She was an outstanding French student, has lettered in basketball, was medalist in cross-country and the 400-meter dash and was district and state high school rodeo queen.

Stark, the daughter of Robert and Dorothy Stark, is active in volleyball, basketball and track. She is Girls League president and Honor Society vice president. She plans on majoring in chemistry in college.

Deters, daughter of Benno and Marjorie Deters, has a 4.0 grade point average at Twin Falls High School, is president of the German Club and received an outstanding achievement award in that language. She has helped with activities sponsored by the Twin Falls Business Improvement District and has performed volunteer service in the gifted/talented program of the Twin Falls School District.

Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Nelson, is an Eagle Scout, senior class president at Gooding High School and on the varsity football team. He is active in the Catholic Youth Organization and the Southwest Livestock Producer's 4-H club, to which he has belonged for nine years. He was a Century III local winner and served as page for the Idaho Legislature.

Attitude important for teen applicants

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing a newspaper clipping that appeared in a section of the paper that very few teen-agers read.

I think it should be in your column — or maybe in the comics, where teen-agers would be sure to see it.

Love you-agree with me, please print it. Thank you.

MRS. E. B. CLINGER DEAR MRS. C.: The piece appeared in the Cincinnati Enquirer, in William Raspberry's column. It was written by Karen Rak, who teaches English to students at Center Junior High School in Strongsville, Ohio.

Ms. Rak composed a letter (ostensibly from an employer) designed to let her youthful job seekers see themselves as they are seen. With so many young people looking for jobs now, I think this piece deserves all the exposure it can get.

DEAR KID: Today you came to me for a job. From the look of your shoulders as you walked out, I suspect you've been turned down before, and maybe you believe by now that kids your age can't find jobs.

I'm a tired teen-ager today. You saw him. What was so special about him? Not experience, neither of you had.

ATTITUDE, son. ATTITUDE. He did his best to impress me. That is where he edged you out.

"He wasn't dressed like Easter Sunday, but then that wasn't necessary. His clothes were clean, and he had gotten a haircut. He fitted out the application form neatly and completely. He did not ask to borrow a pen. He carried his Social Security card, had basic identification and did not ask, 'What's a reference?'"

He didn't have two friends waiting for him by the pop machine. He didn't start to chew gum or smoke what being interviewed. He didn't keep looking at his watch, giving me the impression that he had something more important to do.

"He took the time to find out how we operate here, and what his day-to-day tasks would be. I think he'll keep his eyes open and work for me like he'd work for himself."

"He was willing to start at a point where I could afford to pay. Someday, perhaps, he'll get to the point where he'll have more authority over others and a better paycheck."

"You know, kid, men have always had to get a job like you get a girl; case by case, situation, wear a clean shirt, and try to appear reasonably willing."

"Maybe jobs aren't as plentiful right now, but there are jobs. You may not believe it, but all around you employers are looking for young men and women smart enough to go after a job in the old-fashioned way."

"If you have even the vaguest idea of what I'm trying to say, let it show the next time you ask for a job. You will be head and shoulders above the rest."

"For both our sakes, get eager, will you?" — THE BOSS

Can parents stunt a child's grammar growth?

Dear Fran Widener: For a long time I have enjoyed your column "Let's Talk Language."

Now I would like to see if it would surprise you to learn that in the matter of grammar, some parents may actually have contributed to the deficiency or delay of their own children? That's me — parents or teachers, during a child's most impressionable years, may have started them out with some entirely erroneous thought and advice? Contrary to the clear and fitting advice of Proverbs 22:6-7 — "Train a child in the way of the Lord, and when he is old, his ways will not swerve" — the very first introduction to "literature" some of the following latent influences may have been introduced.

1. Things read to children may have introduced regression or needless repetition.

And Tom went ROARING (5) down the STREET (5).

New Jersey neighborhood of twins

VINELAND, N.J. (AP) — Newcomers to the neighborhood might do a doubletake, but with the frequency of twins around here they would have good reason.

A neighborhood of about 20 homes in this suburban community can boast of at least five sets of twins.

"Unusual, but fun," said Sandy Chodnicki, mother of one identical pair.

"In this neighborhood, you just don't say 'the twins,'" said Sally Grabowy, who alone can account for two sets, ages 7 and 4.

The newest neighborhood pair, Matthew and Eric Zinder, just celebrated their first birthday. They live around the block from the Chodnickis.

Local lore says the twin tradition began with the Fiero brothers, Albert and Alfred, now 70, who were raised on a farm several miles down.

"The neighborhood runs right up to the farm, and everybody they pick whatever they wanted," said Chodnicki.

"Maybe it's something in the food."

2. Some things read to them may have implied that stealing is good fun.

possible." The Option Institute and Fellowship, R.D. 1, Box 174-A, Sheffield, Mass. 01257. (618) 229-2100.

BALTIMORE — Anuja Rajapatirana's child, Chami, now 10, was diagnosed as autistic when he was nearly 4. At the time, he had very little eye contact and no expression on his face. He seemed to be deaf, but hearing tests were inconclusive.

A few years ago, the child's mother read a book, "Son-Rise" by Barry Neil Kaufman, which described how Kaufman and his wife, Suzi, "re-birthed" their own son from the supposedly incurable "illness" of autism.

Anuja and her husband, Serat, who live in Rockville, began using the Kaufmans' techniques in their own home. Chami began to improve.

"But the intensity of the program cannot be matched at home," she said. So since November, Anuja and her son have been staying at "A Place for Miracles," alternatively called the Option Institute and Fellowship, operated by the Kaufmans in Sheffield, Mass.

"Chami had previously said occasional words but then he would lose them," his mother said. "Since he has been here, the words seem to be staying. And more than anything else, he's really trying. His eye contact is much better and he's really interested in people now."

The Kaufmans' process is based on total acceptance, total love. In effect, the couple and the people they train attempt to love a child (or adult) to wellness.

In their own case, the Kaufmans' son, Ravi, changed from a mute, withdrawn, functionally retarded state to a highly verbal, curious, extroverted, happy little boy who attends a neighborhood school and maintains grades at the top of his class.

Until about 10 months ago, the Kaufmans lived and worked in New York. They opened their Massachusetts institute to accept three things, says Barry Kaufman: to work with adults who want to find a more loving and accepting way to deal with their problems; to train other people to do the kind of therapeutic process they do; and to create themselves and other people available to work with special children or adults with special problems.

In many cases, these are people who have been "cast away" by others as hopeless or incurable or incapable of being taught or educated.

Parents at the Option Institute are trained to work with their children as well as their own.

Anuja, for example, spends five hours a week working with Mimi, a child who in four months seems to have become another of the Kaufmans' miracle children. Mimi's mother, in turn, works with Anuja's son, Chami.

Mimi, 2½, had been dying, given up by doctors as a "hopeless case" and diagnosed as both autistic and anorectic. Since birth she had refused to eat and had been fed through a permanent tube placed in her stomach.

Yet four months later, Mimi is well on her way to complete recovery and for the last 22 days has been self-sustaining. She feeds herself.

Says Anuja, "Mimi is remarkable. She has for the first time in her life begun to talk. She recognizes her mother and asks for her."

Kaufmans' response to this, success?

"I guess what we do is that we don't limit ourselves to the past. So if somebody says, 'Oh, this kind of situation is hopeless' or 'This can't be changed,' well, maybe that's true for people who tried to help or change something in the past. But that doesn't mean anything about our trying now."

"I guess when we named the place, we based it on the premise that we are open to the notion that everything is Calling within Idaho is easy with Mountain Bell long distance.

Our separation from AT&T has caused a great deal of confusion about long distance. But the simple fact is, we still provide easy-to-use long distance service in Idaho. Here are some of the most frequently asked questions about our service, and the answers you need to enjoy it now and in the future.

How does Mountain Bell long distance work?
We handle all calls made between towns within your Idaho long distance calling area. Federal ruling has divided Idaho into two such areas, as shown on the map.

How does this affect my Mountain Bell long distance bill?
Using the map as a reference, calls placed from Boise to Pocatello, for example, will be itemized on your bill as Mountain Bell long distance. AT&T carried calls placed from one calling area to another—from Boise to Lewiston, for instance—will be itemized under AT&T Communications.

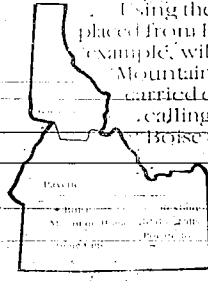

You have the option of choosing from other long distance companies that provide service between calling areas and between states. Check local advertising or your Yellow Pages for these long distance companies.

How do I place a Mountain Bell Long Distance call?
The same way as before. Within your calling area, just dial 1 + the number for all direct-dialed calls. Better still, you can call whenever you like—our lines are always open for service, any time of the night or day.

What should I do to get Mountain Bell long distance?
Nothing at all. Because you already have our service. All you really have to do is pick up your phone and dial 1 + the number. No need to arrange for service, purchase a Touch-Tone phone, or pay a service "start-up" charge. And each time you call, you'll also benefit from the very best in sound quality, and the kind of overall service reliability that can only come from our over 100 years of experience and expertise.

There's more...
If you'd like to know more about Mountain Bell long distance, we'd like to hear from you. Just call us, toll-free, at 1-800-555-5000. Find out how you can enjoy our long distance service today, and in the years to come.

Larry Hendrix, president of Tigard-based security company, said the song jacks are programmed to knock calling numbers in certain areas until someone answers.
