Blast alters river Creates jetty

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

FILER — A massive blast inadvertently created a lava-rock jetty that extends about a third of the way across the Snake River north of Filer.

The jetty abruptly formed Sunday evening from a blast set off by a hydro-power construction crew building an access road down a sheer-walled stretch of the Snake River Canyon.

Orlin Clements Jr., an engineer supervising the hydro project for the Salt Lake City-based Bonneville Pacific Corp., said that the jetty is composed of rock that blew away from the cliff and then fell and slid more than 300 feet into the river bed. The jumble of some 25,500 tons of rocks has backed up silt on its downstream side and created a swift moving channel with a touch of white water.

"We were very concerned about the slide and got right on the phone to notify the Department of Water Resources, the Army Corps of Engineers and all the relevant agencies," Clements said Friday.

"We're not trying to hide anything and are doing what we can to work with the agencies," Clements said.

Dee Burrie, a project manager with Bingham Engineering (a Salt Lake City contracting firm working on the project) said "We want to let it be known that we are legitimate developers. We didn't come here to rape and plunder and then leave."

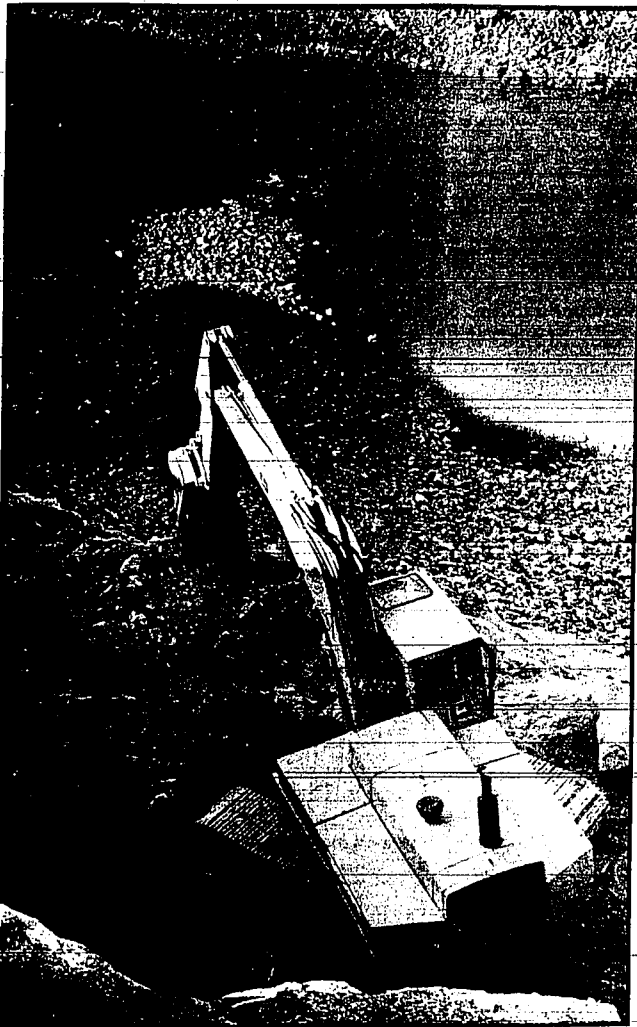

Loren Holmes, a Department of Water Resources official, says that Bonneville Pacific filed a stream alteration permit earlier this week to allow the jetty to stay in the river.

Holmes says the jetty would have no long-term effect "so far as pollution or turbidity to the river." But he said a final decision on the stream alteration permit will have to await the outcome of an inter-agency review.

Bob Bell, a state Fish and Game official, says his agency will wait until the river drops to assess the impact of the jetty.

"We don't know how far across the water if (the jetty) goes and how

Reagan steps past Congress on arms sales

By TERENCE HUNT
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, frustrated by a Capitol Hill revolt over his Central American policies, bypassed Congress on Friday and authorized emergency shipment of weapons and medical supplies to the embattled government of Salvador.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the president had invoked authority permitting him to send military equipment and supplies worth an unspecified amount to El Salvador and defer payment for up to 120 days. He said the administration hopes that Congress will approve funds for El Salvador through regular channels while time runs out.

While Reagan did not set a precise ceiling on the amount of aid, one administration official, speaking privately, said it was not expected to exceed $32 million over the next 120 days.

Speakes said Reagan was invoking the 120-day deferral payment plan "in order to prevent unnecessary loss of life and to assure security required for the run-off (presidential) election" in El Salvador.

The president's action will permit El Salvador to draw on Pentagon stocks of battle Medevac helicopters, training equipment, ammunition and helicopter spare parts, said Speakes.

Announcement of Reagan's decision followed a daylong series of consultations between the White House and Capitol Hill after Congress recessed for Easter vacation without giving final approval to Reagan's request for $61.7 million.

Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., and Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Wis., the chairmen of the two congressional subcommittees that screen foreign aid appropriations, were split in their reaction to the president's move.

Long said he was "disheartened" by the president's decision and predicted it would "make it very difficult for him to get the kind of cooperation... that he has got in the past" from Congress.

Kasten said he would have preferred that Congress appropriate the money, but said the emergency action was "second best because they can get the dollars they want." The administration is seeking $61.7 million, and House Democrats have proposed to cut this to $32 million.

Congressional leaders had told Reagan that they would not object if he decided to divert $32 million to El Salvador from funds already approved for other countries.

However, Reagan opted instead for a "buy-now-pay-later" plan under provisions of the foreign military sales law. That plan allows the president to authorize equipment sales without any repayment from El Salvador for 120 days. Speakes said the Pentagon would be stuck with the bill if Congress does not appropriate money within 120 days that El

School must block religious literature

By The Associated Press
and The Times-News

BOISE — The Jerome School District has been ordered by a federal court not to allow further distribution of religious literature on school property. The district was accused of violating the civil rights of Magdalena Ripplinger, a Jerome elementary school student.

The girl's father said her constitutional rights were violated when Gleason's International was permitted to distribute Bibles to fifth graders.

"I think this is a shame for Jerome," said Jerome School District Superintendent Stephen Youngerman. "It was voluntary. It was something that went on in a controlled manner... It was an acceptable practice for 27 years," he said in a telephone interview Friday night.

Jerome is kind of a heartland-of-Amerika kind of community.

"I think a vast majority of the people in the community supported the practice," Youngerman said in response to the ruling.

"I think there are a lot of people in the community who are disappointed (with the school district) for not fighting it harder," he added. Joseph Ripplinger, the girl's father, could not be located for comment Friday. Youngerman said he believes Ripplinger has moved to California. His daughter has not attended school in Jerome since the last week of March when Ripplinger made a request for the student's records, Youngerman said.

In a lawsuit filed with help from the American Civil Liberties Union, Ripplinger sought $10,000 in damages and a court order blocking distribution of Bibles.

The suit named as defendants the Jerome School District, Youngerman and Central School Principal Betty Hyder.

The order, handed down by U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan on Thursday, prevents the circulation of religious literature, unless it is part of an academic program. Ryan also said no monetary damages can be sought in the case.

Youngerman said he was not surprised by the court's ruling. "I don't think school systems, under these circumstances, have ever won. The ACLU has always won," he said.

Documents signed by attorneys for the Ripplingers and the school district say the girl's rights were violated, but school officials did not intend to deprive anyone of rights or promote religion.

Reagans receive $50,526 tax refund this year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. Reagan, reporting a combined income of $42,834 in 1983, received a $50,526 refund from the Internal Revenue Service.

The return, signed April 3 and made public by the White House Friday, shows the Reagans' tax bill dropped from 39 percent of their income in 1982 to just over 30 percent last year. This was due in part to the final increment of the three-year, 25 percent income tax cut enacted during the president's first year in office.

The first family's income also declined sharply, from $741,253 in 1982, when they realized a quarter-million-dollar capital gain on the sale of their home in the Pacific Palisades suburb of Los Angeles, to $422,834 last year.

Also in 1983, the return showed, Reagan's blind trust suffered some economic reverses, perhaps as a result of falling stock prices that hurt many investors last year.

Reagan reported a net capital loss of $11,425 in the blind trust he set up to manage his assets during his presidency, but he could deduct only $3,000 of that loss, the legal limit, from his taxable income.

Just before taking office, Reagan put all his holdings, other than his California home and ranch, into two short-term certificates of deposit totaling $740,000 and turned them over to a blind trust.

The trustees are instructed to keep all subsequent transactions secret to ensure that the president is not aware of any personal financial interest he may have in the policy decisions he makes.

The tax return shows the trust produced interest last year of $86,192 and stock dividends of $28,830. Long-term capital gains of $38,818 were wiped out by short-term losses of $30,245, indicating the trust's managers engaged in some stock trading.

Through withholding from the president's government paychecks — he earns $200,000 a year — and quarterly estimated tax payments, the Reagans overpaid their income tax by $70,526. They asked the government to refund all but $20,000 of that, which will be put toward next year's tax bill.

Two trains collide head-on; fire consumes wreck; 5 die

WIGGINS, Colo. (AP) — Two Burlington Northern freight trains collided head-on — in a big ball of flame — early Friday near a spot where one normally would be waiting on a siding.

Five crew members were killed and two injured.

Four others escaped injury in the collision, which railroad officials said involved 149 cars and 10 locomotives traveling at a combined speed of 55 to 65 miles per hour.

Schools were closed because of the smoky fire but no residents were evacuated from this small farming community about 60 miles northeast of Denver.

"When those cars started banging, you could hear a boom, boom, boom!" said Jim Vance, a Wiggins resident. "It woke me up. I didn't know if I was dreaming or what... There was a big ball of flame and black smoke rolling up. It looked like the whole side of Wiggins was on fire."

The two "hot shot" or high priority trains meet at Wiggins every morning along the main track between Chicago and Denver, said Bill Joplin, a Burlington Northern spokesman in Denver.

Normally, one will pull into a siding, but Friday the two collided at 3:55 a.m. about 1,000 feet from the siding, said Pat Stafford, a spokesman for Burlington Northern Railroad in St. Paul, Minn.

"There is some conjecture the eastbound train was traveling slowly to take the siding," said Stafford. "The collision occurred 700 to 1,000 feet west of the west switch of the siding."

"You can't even tell they were engines anymore, they are so brown," said Vance. "It just wiped the whole top of them out."

He said flames from the engines burned for several hours before firefighters could put them out.

The fiery collision occurred on the western edge of town, several hundred yards from a scattering of mobile homes and houses, officials said.

Freight cars were stacked on top of each other on each side of the bent and broken rail, and a string of derailed cars stretched through town.

Mike Martin, a Burlington Northern supervisor from Denver, said that in addition to the 10 engines, a total of 56 cars derailed. The westbound train lost 33 cars and the eastbound train lost 33 cars along the 1.5-mile stretch of track, he said.

Tax-filing deadline approaches

WASHINGTON (AP) - With the midnight Monday deadline approaching, as many as 23 million couples and individuals still have not filed their federal income tax returns.

The Internal Revenue Service estimates around 70 million returns had been filed through Friday. Before the year is out, total filings of more than 97 million are expected. All but about 3 million of those are likely to be filed by the end of May; the remainder will be from delinquents and those who received extensions of time to file.

Through April 6, the IRS counted nearly 60.3 million filings, compared with 62 million at the same point in 1983 and 52.9 million in 1982. Authorities guess the pace is slower this year because of greater taxpayer awareness that a filing extension is available.

Four arrested in drug raid

BOISE (AP) - State and county law enforcement officers have arrested four persons in the eastern Idaho community of Conda and confiscated marijuana plants valued at $90,000.

C. G. Heilman, administrator for the Department of Law Enforcement, announced the arrests here Friday. Hopkins said state drug agents and Caribou County deputies used a search warrant to enter a home at Conda, and seized 48 marijuana plants. Officers said the marijuana was found in a shed converted to a greenhouse for the plants.

Reagan OKs arms sale to Thailand

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan announced after talks with Thai Premier Prem Tinsulanonda on Friday that the United States will send Thailand "a sizeable number" of M-48 battle tanks and fully supports the Thais' desire for advanced warplanes to counter the Vietnamese force of 143,000.

Reagan also said he will ask Congress to extend the time for payment for armaments sold by the United States to Thailand in its role as the frontline state of Southeast Asia.

Thailand will be furnished about 40 M-48s, worth about $30 million, to augment the approximately 60 tanks now protecting its frontiers.

A high-level U.S. military team will fly to Bangkok soon to provide details of the sophisticated F-16 jets requested by the Thais and those of other planes potentially available, such as the F-20, a senior administration official told reporters under ground rules requiring anonymity.

Up to now, the F-16 has not been sold to countries of ASEAN, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, but that policy has been reported under review.

Idaho's U.S. attorney resigns

BOISE (AP) - The U.S. attorney for Idaho is resigning to join the legal department at Boise Cascade Corp.

Guy Hurlbutt said Friday that he will resign June 1 to become senior litigation for the Boise-based wood products corporation.

Hurlbutt, 42, has served 2 1/2 years of a presidential appointment as U.S. attorney. His term would have expired next January.

Hurlbutt was in private law practice in Boise before taking the federal post. He said his new job offers him professional challenges and attractive pay.

Lawmakers to set deficit plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - House and Senate negotiators must decide the final version of a huge package of tax increases that will force millions of Americans to share the burden of reducing federal budget deficits.

By a 76-5 vote, the Senate passed its $48 billion tax increase bill early Friday, after a 19-hour session, and joined the House in a 10-day Easter recess.

Besides tax increases, the Senate measure would trim federal spending by about $15 billion, chiefly in federal health programs. Medicare beneficiaries would see a gradual increase in the $14.60 monthly premium for insurance covering doctor bills and outpatient expenses, to $26.70 by 1989.

The House bill, which would raise $48.2 billion in tax hikes through Sept. 30, 1987, was approved Wednesday. That measure contains no spending cuts.

The tax bills are remarkably similar in their major provisions, although there are hundreds of minor differences between the 1,023-page House measure and the 1,334-page plan adopted by the Senate.

Blind commission gets leader

BOISE (AP) - A retired State Board for Vocational Education official has been named acting director of the embattled Idaho Commission for the Blind.

The appointment of Roy Irons, 56, was announced Friday by Gov. John Evans.

Irons will replace Larry Selland, who became acting director in February after Ramona Walhof was fired. Mrs. Walhof charged her dismissal was politically motivated.

Evans said a permanent director will be named after settlement of a lawsuit that seeks Mrs. Walhof's reinstatement.

Irons coordinated federal job-training programs for the disabled Idaho Commission for the Blind.

Mass killer sentenced to die

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - Self-proclaimed mass killer Henry Lee Lucas, who claims to have killed 360 people nationwide, was condemned to death Friday night by a jury that convicted him of murder in the 1979 slaying of an unidentified child.

It was the first such verdict for Lucas, who previously received a life sentence and a 75-year prison term in two other Texas murder cases.

The jury deliberated for only about 40 minutes before deciding Lucas should die by lethal injection for the slaying.

Judge's trial ends in mistrial

RENO, Nev. (AP) - The political corruption trial of federal judge Harry Claiborne ended in a mistrial Friday, with jurors saying they are hopelessly deadlocked on all seven counts against the judge.

Trial Judge Walter E. Hoffman declared the mistrial midway through the eighth day of deliberations. Both sides agreed to a retrial, which was set to begin July 31.

Claiborne, 66, Nevada's senior federal judge, was indicted in December on two counts of bribery, three of income tax evasion and one each of obstruction of justice and lying on his judicial disclosure report.

He was only the second federal judge ever indicted for alleged crimes committed while on the bench. In the other case, Alcee Hastings of Florida was acquitted last year.

Hart, Mondale pan for gold

By SANDY JOHNSON
The Associated Press

Gary Hart and Walter F. Mondale panned for gold and votes in California on Friday and the Rev. Jesse Jackson carried the "Rainbow Coalition" in Ohio as two smaller states prepared to allot delegates this weekend in the continuing numbers game that will decide the Democratic Presidential nomination.

"Mondale said Hart had voted 'wrong' on women's issues while Hart countered that the 1984 election could not be won 'by reifying the election of 1980.'"

Walter F. Mondale said Jackson's speech Congress to show some "backbone" in opposing the Reagan administration on the mining of Nicaraguan harbors.

The weekend delegate prizes were split: Mondale to contest past and future Arizona carried the biggest delegate bundle, with 33 up for grabs

In Saturday caucuses. And North Dakota Democrats prepared to divide 14 delegates at the state convention Sunday.

Additionally, South Carolina Democrats were holding a state convention where some of the 30 unpledged delegates determined earlier may express a preference for one of the three remaining candidates.

Hart and Mondale made a few public appearances in California to bid for votes in the state's June 5 primary finale, but they also went heavy on fund-raising events in a state that traditionally provides a big share of campaign money for Democratic candidates.

Hart blasted President Reagan's Central American policies. "This administration in my judgment is leading us almost inevitably into conflict involving American soldiers in Central America," the Colorado Democrat told a Beverly Hills Hotel news conference.

By continuing to provide military assistance to help the Salvadoran government fight rebel forces, he said, "all we are doing is to address the wrong enemy - the enemy being democracy and human want and human need."

Mondale finished the first half of the primary season with a commanding delegate lead, 1,045.8 to Hart's 579 and Jackson's 153.2. Even though Mondale is over the 1,000 bump toward the 1,987 delegates needed for nomination, a determined Hart said Friday, "I expect to go into our party's convention with a majority of the delegates."

And Hart's campaign manager, Oliver Henkel, predicted that a second half surge in remaining caucuses and primaries would give the Colorado senator the "impetus" to overcome Mondale's big margin by the time the last delegates are selected June 5.

"Our expectations now, given what we believe to be reasonable expectations in those states, would have both Mondale and Hart at around 1,000 delegates at the conclusion of the primaries on June 5," Henkel said.

much of a block it will be in low water."

Beil said that he didn't think the jets would be used, but so it might pose an obstacle to boaters trying to navigate the river.

Clements said Bonneville Pacific would abide with any agency decisions about the treaty, and remove it if the river's safety is threatened.

Clements said the Sunday evening blast was part of a series of major blasts required to forge a road out of a 150-foot vertical canyon wall above the hydro project's turbine site.

Nitrogen explosives knocked off some 15,000 yards of rock (about 37,500 tons) from the canyon wall.

The rock was supposed to settle along the river's edge, but mud that mistakenly ended up in the river.

Clements said Bonneville Pacific immediately brought in "additional expertise" to help manage the blasting project.

After the Sunday mishap, the construction crews changed their tactics, setting off several smaller blasts, which were redirected in away from the turbine site.

Since the project's March-16 starting date, workers have blasted some 90,000 yards of rock (about 225,000 tons) from the south wall of the canyon, according to Clements.

The two megawatt power plant, when complete, will harness the river's flow in a natural spill site.

Besides the road blasting, the project calls for a sloping, 48-inch diameter tunnel to be drilled through the cliff wall and down into the canyon. The tunnel will eventually be filled with penstock piping that will feed water into the turbine at the bottom of the canyon.

Aid

Salvador could use to pay for its equipment.

"I feel very disheartened by this," said Long, who has demanded that the Salvadorean be required to make human rights and other reforms before receiving continued military aid.

He said he told William Schneider, undersecretary of state for security assistance, that he thought the move was "going to be counterproductive in the long run."

Long, chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations, accused Reagan of waging an undeclared war in Central America, and exhorting Congress to "just vote the money and shut up."

In other developments:

Nearly 300 Honduran and U.S. Army troops took part in a paratroop drop near El Aguacate, about 60 miles from the Nicaraguan border in an exercise the Defense Department said was intended to "secure an operations base from which to stage an assault on an airfield." A larger exercise under way in Honduras involves building a dirt airfield at Jamastran, about 20 miles from the Nicaraguan border, and Cucuyagua, about 35 miles from El Salvador.

In an extraordinary formal statement, CIA deputy director John N. McMahon disavowed a report in the Washington Post that he believed from the start that covert U.S. activities in Nicaragua were ill conceived.

McMahon said he and CIA Director William J. Casey "are of one mind when it comes to agency programs, including those to counter the threat of the Sandinista to the stability and peace of Central America."

In Managua, Nicaraguan army chief of staff Joaquin Cuadra Lacayo said mining of his country's harbors apparently had ceased and traffic through the ports has been unimpeded in recent days. He said 18 mines had exploded in the past four weeks, seven of them damaging commercial freighters and 11 destroyed set off by the Nicaraguan navy.

Mexican Foreign Minister Bernardo Sepulveda condemned the mining and suggested that it was "not legally valid" for the United States to request Central American policies from World Court jurisdiction for the next two years, a move the State Department announced last Sunday.

In Panama, a Nicaraguan rebel spokesman said he had received a major town in southern Nicaragua on Thursday, killing 150 troops of the leftist government and a Cuban base commander carrying a Panamanian passport.

Asked to stay redistricting order

The Idaho Supreme Court has asked the state to stay the court-ordered redistricting plan and to postpone the primary election until after the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled on the plan.

Justice James filed the stay order Monday. The plan, proposed by the Idaho State Legislature, would change the boundaries of the state's legislative districts to reflect population changes.

The court-ordered plan would have taken effect on Monday, but the state can delay the primary election until after the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled on the plan.

The plan, approved by 1st District Judge Dar Cogswell, is under challenge in U.S. District Court, where Republican legislative leaders have filed suit against it.

As the battle over reapportionment has dragged on this year, filing for the May primary has been done under both the court-ordered plan and the now overturned legislative plan. It is now more primary in the country.

"We're very concerned with absentee ballots," Yarsura said, explaining that the schedule for getting absentee ballots mailed out and returned in time for the election is extremely tight.

The state high court on Monday found the Legislature's reapportionment plan unconstitutional because the population variation between districts is too high.

It reinstated a court-ordered plan that will enlarge the Legislature by 21 seats, and create huge electoral districts.

That plan, approved by 1st District Judge Dar Cogswell, is under challenge in U.S. District Court, where Republican legislative leaders have filed suit against it.

Swan Falls Dam take precedence over the rights of other users.

The utility said that court ruling compelled it to file suit to demonstrate that it is actively protecting those rights.

Since then, the utility has offered to drop 5,000 defendants from the suit if it gets state protection from accusations that by doing so, it's not adequately protecting its water rights.

Asked why the utility is so anxious to get the 5,000 defendants dropped from the suit, Bruce said, "It's time and money, and it's time and money for the defendants."

The Legislature last year passed a law authorizing the state and the utility to sign a contract that would have given Idaho Power that protection in exchange for dropping the 5,000 defendants.

Evans has since refused to sign the contract, noting that the authorizing legislation is under court challenge in eastern Idaho.

And he has vetoed several bills that would have accomplished what the contract was designed to do.

Those vetoes came after the Legislature killed subordination bills Evans favored that would have put Idaho Power's water rights second to the rights of other users, like irrigators.

But Bruce said he has "no idea" whether those two things are connected. "I'm sure he used his judgment," Bruce said.

Idaho Power had fought the subordination bills, claiming people were trying to take the utility's property without paying for it.

Utility saving impasse reached

But, council members called the program unacceptable because it would permit any utility adopting it to set its own energy-conservation standards.

"We're not negotiable on standards," said Daley Mahar of the council.

The utilities committee has been trying to come up with a method of promoting the council's rigid model conservation standards as an alternative to direct cash incentives for homeowners, favored by most council members.

The utilities have been arguing against cash incentives because of their cost to the Bonneville Power Administration, which must carry out the council's energy conservation program.

The committee said the incentives would only force increases in BPA rates that would be passed on to other utilities in the region and ultimately to their customers.

Don Lenzinger, Portland General Electric representative on the utility committee, said the Good Cents program, promoted on a regional basis that would reduce individual company marketing costs, would be more palatable to home builders because of its flexibility for the participating utility companies.

High power plant costs on NRC said high costs, compounded by excessive safety requirements and construction delays, are the biggest factors in cost overruns. But in its present form, the NRC is unable to reduce the problem.

"I think it will require legislative reform. The NRC has to be restructured. It's a chicken and egg thing, and I don't think anyone will order another nuclear plant until that happens," he said.

Levenson was here to address the ANS-Idaho Section's annual spring banquet and later spoke at an afternoon press conference.

"Nuclear power per se should not be an objective. Our real objective is to secure and provide a reliable electricity supply in the future," Levenson said.

The country's own inaction would eventually precipitate the industry's turnaround, he said.

Panel allows controversial split of farmland

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission allowed two building lots to be split off a 110-acre parcel of land in Melon Valley Thursday.

Several people at a public hearing on the issue objected to how the splits might add to the deterioration of the scenic valley north of Buhl.

At its regular meeting, the commission also granted conditional use permits to two different men wishing to start businesses in an agriculture zone, allowed a lot split southwest of Filer and recommended that the County Board of Commissioners grant a 12.5-acre residential rezoning southwest of Twin Falls.

The two splits in Melon Valley were proposed by valley resident Joe Quessnell. One was an 8.5-acre lot and the other a five-acre parcel on the south and north sides of Melon Valley Road respectively, about one mile north of the "T" junction at the head of the valley.

But valley resident and Buhl attorney Bob Weaver said the county was letting the valley's scenic view be compromised by allowing any type of house to be built there in "ramshackle" fashion.

People realize Melon Valley is destined to be a residential area, he said. And by itself, he did not object to Quessnell's plan, but he urged some form of building controls be devised in the future.

Commission chairman Robert Pettygrove explained the county cannot control what type of building is erected in Melon Valley since it is zoned for agriculture.

And zoning administrator Lee Taylor said last time the county tried to change its zoning there, valley residents turned out in force to object.

Commission member Lyle Frazier said he would "dearly love" to have valley residents bring the commission a petition asking for a residential rezoning, and suggested Weaver begin circulating one.

Both splits were approved by a seven-to-one vote, with valley resident Florence Pierce voting in opposition.

In addition, the commission:
• Granted a conditional-use permit to Lenard and Mark Arnaud so father and son could open a specialty welding shop on U.S. 93 one mile south of the intersection with U.S. 30.

• Granted a conditional-use permit to Guy Palmer so he and his son could use existing farm buildings south of Murtough Lake to open an auto repair and resale business.

• Granted the request of Jim L. Conder for splitting 1.8 acres off a 40-acre farm 4.5 miles south of the U.S. Steel Farm Service Center west of Filer. The commission noted the homestead was separated from productive agricultural land by a canal.

• Recommended that the commissioners approve the 12.5-acre, 11-lot residential rezoning requested by Lawrence P. Hauber on 3500 North Road southwest of Twin Falls.

There was no opposition to the request. Taylor explained most of the land surrounding Hauber's has already been subdivided. Rezoning must be approved by the commissioners and require a second public hearing in front of them. Taylor said he would schedule the hearing for mid-May.

Adulation greets 'fighting' Hansen

Rep. George Hansen enters airport to the chant 'God bless George,' as his wife, Connie, greets a supporter

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Rep. George Hansen vowed to wage a "hand-to-hand, eye-to-eye" campaign when he formally kicked off his 1984 re-election drive Friday at the Twin Falls airport.

A handful of reporters and a crowd of about 30 area supporters passed out balloons and carried signs declaring "We trust George." As Hansen entered the airport lobby, the crowd broke into cheers and a small group of young women began to chant "We love George."

Hansen said his Friday the 13th "campaign opening" is, hopefully, a symbol of good luck for the people and bad luck for the bureaucrats.

A prepared statement read by Hansen repeated past campaign themes. It blasted the Justice Department, Labor Department and Internal Revenue Service bureaucrats who, Hansen claims, are assaulting "good citizens everywhere."

When asked by a reporter if he would develop any new campaign issues, Hansen said that in terms of issues "there's not a lot new under the sun."

But he acknowledged that his recent conviction on four counts of filing false financial disclosure forms with Congress will be an issue.

Hansen said his plans to fight the conviction could be resolved in a matter of months, but might take years if the legal battle must be fought all the way to the Supreme Court. He said he may seek a congressional inquiry into the Justice Department's handling of his case.

About the conviction, he repeated the theme of his lawyer's unsuccessful legal defense.

"I had the advice of not just one, but more than one attorney for my actions—I feel that what we did was right and that when the smoke clears that will be established," he said.

Hansen said a lot of his colleagues in Washington also "feel that there has been a grave injustice done."

Since his April 2 conviction, Hansen says he has "played by the rules" of the House of Representatives and abstained from voting.

Hansen also said that a debate with his primary opponent, Dan Adamson, is not essential to his campaign plan. "If it looks like a debate is absolutely necessary to help the public, O.K. — but I don't want to do it just to help the opposition," he said.

Due to scheduling conflicts, Hansen said he was unable to attend Sen. Frank Church's funeral. Hansen said that he sent an aide to represent him at the Thursday ceremony.

Hansen's supporters at the rally included state Rep. Roy Brackett, and Louise Kooz, a Twin Falls Republican who will help manage Hansen's Magic Valley campaign. Also present was Dan Hart, a Twin Falls Vietnam veteran, who said that the Vietnam Veterans of America Twin Falls chapter recently voted to include George and Connie Hansen as auxiliary members.

"George represents us in the jungles of Washington like we represented the United States in other jungles at another time," Hart said.

Earlier in the morning, Hansen made an hour-long guest appearance on a KLIX radio show, where he defended his attorney's trial decision not to have him stand in his own defense.

"I took specific advice from my attorneys about my filings and we decided to let them testify on my behalf rather than clutter things up with anything I might say," he said.

Schools hire administrator

By ANNETTE CARV
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An Oregon man has been hired for the new assistant superintendent position at the Twin Falls schools.

Kent Heaton, the administrative assistant to the president of Clackamas Community College in Oregon City, will join the Twin Falls staff on July 1 as the district's second assistant superintendent.

Superintendent Gary Piller says Heaton was chosen from a field of 10 applicants, partly because of his experience at the college level.

"I'm very pleased. We have a good team, but Dr. Heaton brings in new blood. He has been active at the college level, and we plan to use that at the secondary level."

When the opening was announced, Piller said he was looking for a person with college experience to help plan curriculum for secondary students planning to continue their academic or vocational education beyond high school.

Piller also was pleased with Heaton's vocational experience. The new assistant superintendent coordinated work experience training programs for students in 12 Portland high schools before working for the college for six years. He also directed the career and ability testing program and supervised guided studies programs for underachievers at the Portland high schools.

He has classroom teaching experience in math, biology and chemistry and has trained to use computers for classroom instruction. That's a plus for the district, Piller says. Although Parent-Teacher-Student Organizations have been helping the district jobs, no district administrator was an expert in using them in the classroom, Piller says.

Heaton is also a former coach of football, wrestling and baseball. He just met Piller and was hired as an assistant superintendent in October, when the position now held by Carl Snow was open. At that time the district had only one assistant superintendent.

The second assistant's position was created when Piller decided to shuffle the staff and change job descriptions after the district's budget officer left. That left an opening for a director of curriculum which Piller decided to revamp into a second assistant superintendent position.

The change will cost the district about $12,000 a year, Piller estimates.

The new superintendent will be asked to develop a more detailed curriculum guide than the district has had in the past, Piller says. Along with a committee, he will be asked to

Elders found guilty in 'teacher's court'

TWIN FALLS — There are few things more gratifying for a high school student after a long year of listening to teachers than to have a little fun at teachers' expense.

Friday, the teachers were honored with some good-natured awards presented by the Twin Falls High School National Honor Society with the help of the school's singing group, the Madrigals.

While the music to television's People's Court rolled through the gym, the students called their instructors forward to stand trial in their own version of "teacher's court."

"How do you find this woman?" student Judge Sal-Kai Mullins asked the assembled students, waving her gavel at math teacher Kathy Slover.

"Golly," screamed the kids. Slover was charged with cruel and unusual distribution of knowledge into the home environment for assigning the most difficult homework.

"The sentence?" To hang a plaque in her room warning that the surgeon general had declared homework likely to cause warts and make students' eyes bulge.

Social studies teacher Larry Lewis also was found guilty by the students. His charge was telling the world jobs are better than students.

Tricia Swartling told a few to the groans of the students.

"What do you call a cow without legs? Ground beef."

Other teachers such as English teacher Eleanor Burkhardt; most gullible, vice Principal Dick Baum; most talkative, English teacher Mary Lu Barry; hardest exams, science teacher Milton Barry; and most absent, shop teacher Rich Millward.

Also honored was the late English teacher Dolores Dudley, with a moment of silence.

The assembly was the first school-wide gathering to use the recently purchased gymnasium sound system. Over half of the $7,000 for the system was raised through student projects and local business donations, according to teacher Sue Piller.

The balance was paid by the Florence Gardner Charitable Trust.

Cogeneration industry decries request for lower payments

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho Power officials say they are paying too much money for cogenerated electricity.

In a motion filed earlier this week, Idaho Power officials proposed to either suspend all new purchases of independently produced power, or slash the 6.2 cents-per-kilowatt-hour price that the company must pay for that power.

The motion brought a sharp rebuttal from Wallace Cory, director of the Independent Power Producers Association, who said Friday the action would have a "totally devastating" effect on the cogeneration industry.

"Any of the supposed alternatives (proposed by Idaho Power) would completely eliminate the independent power production industry in the state of Idaho," Cory said.

PUC Commissioner Conley Ward said the motion came as a "surprise," but he acknowledged that the company "had a right to file and try to prove their case in hearings."

Ward questioned, however, whether the federal purchase laws would allow the PUC to authorize Idaho Power to suspend the purchase of cogenerator's power.

"The position that we have taken is that federal law requires the purchasing. The question is whether there has been some change in the value of that power," Ward said.

Taylor says that Idaho Power's new motion was triggered by a declining regional power demand that has reduced sharply the company's projected load growth through 1997, and also will result in reduced values for electricity.

When Idaho Power petitioned for its current rate structure during the summer of 1983, corporate analysts thought that the company would need 166 additional megawatts of power to meet expected demand for 1997, according to Taylor.

But a newly revised forecast predicts that once two company projects are completed, and all currently contracted cogeneration plants come on line, Idaho Power will have all the power it needs to meet the 1997 load demand.

Idaho Power officials say the reduced power demand forecast is due in part to the Swan Falls controversy, which is slowing the development of new irrigated farmland. But they say it is also linked to a regional power glut that has sent other Pacific Northwest utilities scrambling to attract new industrial custom-

Legislative races heating up in face of deadline

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With Monday's filing deadline closing in, Magic Valley legislative races are heating up.

A rash of Friday filings with the Idaho Secretary of State's office has caused what appears to be a double-primary battle for Representative seat B in District 22. Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding, is expected to file his nominating petition for that post Monday.

If he does, he will face a primary opponent in District accountant and dairyman Gary Robbins who filed for the post Friday. The winner of that probable primary race will face the winner of the area's only contested Democratic race in the November general election.

Camas County Democrat Gene Sullivan will square off in the May 22 primary against Gooding Democrat Billie Dillon.

Other contested races in the district in the November election will include one between incumbent Sens. John Peavey, D-Carey and Wes Tronstrom, R-Wendell for the district's Senate seat. The two incumbents were re-districted into one district by an Idaho district court.

David H. Griffin, a Democrat from Sun Valley, has filed his petition of candidacy for representative seat B in the district. He is the only announced opponent to Rep. Mack Neibaur, R-Paul, a Lincoln County resident with a Minifloka County mailing address.

The district comprises Blaine, Camas, Gooding and Lincoln counties.

New candidates in other Magic Valley legislative districts include:

District 12: Elmore and Owyhee. Two new Republican candidates filed for this district's two House seats Friday, ensuring a contested general election race for all three of the district's legislative seats.

Grand View Republican Frances Field filed for seat A Friday and will likely face Rep. Dan Kelly, R-Mountain Home, who is seeking his fifth term but as a Democrat. Glenna Hoagland, a Republican from Mountain Home, will oppose Hammett lumber dealer Karl Koch, assuming neither are challenged and beaten in the May primary.

Neither Sen. Walter Yarbrough, R-Grand View, nor Sen. Claire Welherer, D-Mountain Home, have announced opposition for their primary races for the state Senate. They will probably face each other in the November election.

District 23: Twin Falls County. Douglas Bashaw, primary opponent to Speaker of the House Tom Stivers, and Jan von Linder, Democratic candidate for representative seat C, both filed nominating petitions in Boise Friday.

Von Linder will face the winner of a primary race between Rep. Roy Brackett, R-Twin Falls, and Twin Falls attorney Paul Smith.

Sen. Laird Noh, R-Twin Falls, and Darrell McRoberts, general manager of the Green Giant Co., Buhl canning plant, remain unopposed in their bids for Senate seats A and B in the two-senator, non-representative district.

Times-News wins top prize in area advertising contest

TWIN FALLS — The Times-News has won the top prize for newspaper advertising and two other honors in the Idaho Advertising Federation's 13th annual Rookies awards.

A number of Sun Valley advertising designers also took honors during the 1983 creative competition. Boise-based W.R. Drake & Co. collected the most awards, winning 16 in categories ranging from billboard advertisements to television commercials, said awards chairman Lynn Thomson of KTVB-TV in Boise.

The federation gave its Gold Rookie for newspapers to an eight-page, pre-Christmas ad called "Visions of Sugar Plains" that appeared in the Times-News last November. Created for The Paris Co., the pull-out section portrayed a small girl and a boy dreaming about clothing available from The Paris.

The advertising director Bill Blake credited art director

Patrick Davis, sales representative Linda Fischer and promotions manager Wally Dodds for their work with The Paris on the project.

The Times-News also won a Silver Rookie for best local newspaper ad in a single color. The award again went to a promotion commissioned by The Paris — a one-page ad for Valentine's Day featuring a pyramid of red hearts.

In addition, art director Davis won a citation of excellence for his cover design for a Crazy Days promotion by Twin Falls merchants last July. The cover used a clown to set the theme for the collection of ads inside.

Four Ketchum-area companies or designers received honors in ceremonies last week.

Advertising Associates of Sun Valley produced the best company logo with its design for The Mountain School. The Ketchum agency also won three citations of excellence for other projects.

Rickers Film Co.'s television commercial for Wills Motor Co. of Twin Falls was named best local campaign costing less than $2,500. Rickers Film is from Ketchum.

Bryan Robley of Sun Valley won the top prize for illustration of art with his Salmon North America poster. Robley also merited two other citations for art design.

Bruce Innes of Sun Valley collected a citation of excellence for the music track to a commercial done for the Pizza Barn in Hamley.

The 1983 Rockies awarded attracts 524 entries, said Thomson. The 10-Jo Advertising Federation is a group of local advertising associations, he said. The Federation is attempting to organize an affiliate in Twin Falls, he said.

Piller also wants a review of the textbooks which the district replaces every seven years. And he wants Heaton to keep up with changing laws that might affect the district and help develop the written policies that are presented to the board.

Snow, the other assistant superintendent, will continue to oversee the administration of the district in areas such as transportation, maintenance and budget.

Meeting on CSI horse stalls set

TWIN FALLS — A meeting to discuss building horse stalls for the College of Southern Idaho will be held 7:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of the Taylor Administration Building.

The meeting could be the last if not enough people show up Thursday to demonstrate support for the stalls and discuss financing, says Fernie Richardson of the Magic Valley Area Association.

She urges livestock owners, people who show horses and livestock breeders to attend the meeting. Motel and restaurant owners who would benefit from improving Expo facilities to attract large livestock shows to Twin Falls are also invited, she says.

The college's board of trustees has appointed a committee to plan the proposed stalls and study financing, but will not contribute any college funds to the project.

Members of Magic Valley Livestock Clubs say that if the Expo Center had 100 stalls, it could be used for regional livestock shows.

State officials to offer views

TWIN FALLS — Some of the state's top officials will address Idaho journalists on politics and fiscal at the Idaho Press Club annual meeting in Twin Falls today.

Supreme Court Justice Robert Huntley will join attorneys Lloyd Webb and Patty Urquhart and Idaho Statesman Managing Editor Rod Sandeen in a panel discussion on fiscal beginning at 10:30.

Gov. David Latape and Perry Swisher, an Idaho Public Utilities commissioner, will analyze and discuss the 1984 elections in a panel discussion with state and national journalists beginning at 1:15.

Panel discussions are free and open to the public. Dinner events are held for members of the state's largest organization of journalists include a noon luncheon and an awards dinner.

Former Times-News reporter David Espo, who is assigned to cover the Democratic presidential primary campaign for The Associated Press will speak at the luncheon on the lighter side of covering this year's campaigns.

Dallas Times-Herald reporter and columnist Molly Ivins will speak following dinner.

Livestock judging wraps up

TWIN FALLS — Bill Lickley of Jerome was top scoring individual among 235 students competing at the College of Southern Idaho's Invitational Livestock Judging competition for Future Farmers of America chapters.

Lickley accumulated 582 points in the Judging. Mike Ruffing of Castelford placed fifth. Students from Meridian and the Valley chapters also finished high among the contestants.

In team competition, the Meridian chapter took top honors with 1,704 points, followed by Kuna and Middleton. The Castelford chapter placed fourth with 1,638 points, and the Jerome chapter finished fifth with 1,637 points.

Students from 37 chapters in Idaho and Nevada took part in the invitational event, which was sponsored by the College of Southern Idaho. The FFA members judged cattle, swine and sheep.

Burglary charges to be dropped

JEROME — Due to the recovery of stolen money and other factors, no charges will be brought against a group of "gypsies" suspected in a safe burglary last Monday at the Traveler's Oasis off of Interstate-84, according to Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall.

The group, which was traveling in four Illinois-licensed vehicles, had been detained by authorities in Las Vegas on a warrant issued by Jerome County, Hall said. The group, described as gypsies, had left the Traveler's Oasis before it was before it was discovered the safe had been burglarized.

The sheriff declined to reveal the amount of money involved, but had stated earlier it was believed to be under $5,000.

Although all the money had been recovered, no charges will be filed, Hall said Friday. In addition, the hassle of extraditing the 16 or so suspected individuals back to Idaho wasn't worth it, he added.

"We would have needed a bus to bring them all back," the sheriff said. After discussing the matter with the business's owner, it was decided not to pursue the case, he said.

The group probably was released Friday.

Cogeneration

If Idaho Power continues to purchase cogeneration power under the power sale structure, Taylor claims that ratepayers in the next four years will have to pay $73 million more than the power's actual market value.

A new member, Idaho Power has proposed three different ways of revising the cogeneration program:

The first proposal would simply suspend all negotiations for new power from cogenerators until the surplus shows signs of easing.

The second proposal calls for Idaho Power to continue to negotiate contracts with all independent producers with power plants under 500 kilowatts. But Idaho Power would purchase this power at the reduced rate of 5.3 cents per kilowatt hour. For power plants larger than 500 kilowatts, Idaho Power wants to negotiate contracts on a case-by-case basis.

The third proposal would allow Idaho Power to buy power from large cogenerators at the price that power pays for on the market today. Given the current glutted market conditions, this price could be well below 2 cents per kilowatt hour.

Cory, who questions the validity of the $73 million cogeneration figure cited by Taylor, says he thinks that independent power is selling at "bargain" prices.

Cory points to PUC documents indicating that the cost of cogeneration power is well below the cost of the Valmy II coal plant that Idaho Power is helping finance.

And Cory says the current power glut is shrinking substantially in the near future.

"If we were to see a resurgence of the economy and a dry year or two, we would have the resource projections changed," Cory said.

He contends that anticipated market conditions for the rest of this century do not warrant the 6.2 cents-per-kilowatt price Idaho Power now pays cogenerators.

For now, Idaho Power has already signed cogeneration contracts totaling 36.4 megawatts of power, an amount nearly equaling the combined capacities of company-owned Swan Falls, Shoshone Falls, Twin Falls and Clear Lake power plants. Taylor says that the company's potential cogeneration capacity may skyrocket to 233 megawatts of power.

Christ's image still a wonder

BY GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

He "was made like his brethren in every respect," the book of Hebrews says of Jesus, that special man whose entry into Jerusalem for his last week in Jerusalem is celebrated by Christians this Sunday.

But just what he looked like has remained a question ever since, although countless concepts of his appearance have been produced in paintings, icons and statues.

Most every major art museum includes some of those portrayals by renowned artists through the centuries. The efforts still go on.

"He had no form or comeliness that we should look at him," says Scripture prophecy in Isaiah 53, regarded by Christians as referring to him, "and no beauty that we should desire him."

He was "a man of sorrow, acquainted with grief."

The classic paintings generally convey that aspect, in direct or indirect ways, depicting him as he taught, sat with his apostles at the Last Supper, in his death on the cross, even in his resurrection.

A new painting of the face, widely reproduced lately in the religious press, has been turned out by British artist Curtis Hooper, drawing on indications from a man-size figure on the ancient and mystifying Shroud of Turin.

Scientists who have examined it so far find no proof by the traces of the image, although some conclude that the cloth wrapped the body of Christ in burial, his imprint left on it as his resurrection.

Hooper, who spent seven years in research, analyzing enhanced photographs of the image and consulting with specialists to produce his work, says he believes it is the most accurate depiction yet of Jesus' countenance.

It shows a short-bearded man, his dark hair down to his shoulders, with deeply perceptive, dark brown eyes.

"One day I looked at the eyes I had painted, and the face suddenly became real to me," he says, "I overwhelmed me... Even after the painting was finished, it took me nearly a year before I could really look at it."

Reproduction was carried in Life magazine recently, and it since has appeared in the fortnightly, Christianity Today, in the national Catholic weekly, Our Sunday Visitor, and other religious publications.

In determining various minute details for the painting, Hooper learned that the shroud image of the man, who had been beaten and crucified, showed his face swollen in death, his nose and lips swollen, his forehead scratched.

Hooper made a preliminary clay model of the head and consulted plastic surgeons, a mortician and forensic pathologists to learn how the face looked before the injuries.

57-year-old on probation for illegal charging

TWIN FALLS — A 57-year-old man will spend the next 14 years on probation for charging clothing and equipment to his father's account without permission.

Fifth District Judge Daniel Meehl sentenced the defendant Monday on Gilbert Eldon Calten of Rogerson. Meehl also levied a 14-year prison sentence, but suspended it.

Calten, who was charged with grand theft, admitted that he charged more than $150 worth of merchandise in August at Vickers Saddlery in Twin Falls.

Sentencing was delayed from last week until Meehl had the opportunity to study a psychological report on Calten.

In another case heard Monday, Marvin Gene Stigall, 21, of 1421

Elizabeth Blvd., Twin Falls, was ordered to spend four months at the North Idaho Correctional Institution at Cottonwood for selling marijuana last fall. He had been arrested four days after he had been placed on probation on a conviction for grand theft.

Stigall was given a similar sentence Monday for violating the terms of the probation by being arrested on the drug charge. Stigall also broke his probation by failing to make restitution payments, despite holding a job.

The two sentences will run simultaneously.

And, Donald L. McRoberts, 19, of Route 2, Buhl, was placed on a two-year probation for writing a $9.30 check without any funds in his bank account. The check was written to Smith's Food King in Buhl last August.

Inventories, production both increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business inventories rose by 1.8 percent in February, the biggest jump in almost 10 years, the government said Friday.

The Commerce Department said that while inventories rose, sales fell during the month, posting the first decline in a year. The department put the inventory increase at $9.3 billion, leaving stocks at $240.5 billion, a record of $240 billion. The 1.8 percent increase was the largest monthly gain since a 2.1 percent rise in October 1974. The monthly increase was 0.6 percent. Sales fell $1.4 billion to $399.5 billion, posting a 0.4 percent decline. The annual rate of change in sales had risen 1.2 percent in January.

In another report, industrial production rose a moderate 0.4 percent in February. The March increase in output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities was the fifth in a row, but the increase was less than half that posted in January and February, providing another sign that the pace of the nation's recovery from the recession is slowing.

The Federal Reserve Board said that the 1.8 percent jump compared to January and February increases of 1.4 percent and 1 percent, respectively. The production gains were described as "widespread among most materials and products."

The report said autos were the most significant contributor at an annual rate of 8.2 percent.

Other goods that showed gains were machinery, electrical equipment, and other durable goods.

million units in March, up 1 percent from the February level. Current industry schedules indicate the seasonally adjusted annual rate in April will be 7.8 million units.

Robert Ortner, chief economist of the Commerce Department, said such a decline in inventories was not unusual at this stage of recovery from the 1981-82 recession.

"It is normal for this part of the recovery to see an occasional setback," he said.

He said the strong increase in inventories showed confidence on the part of businesses as they begin restocking their shelves.

Businesses had cut back inventories sharply as consumer demand fell during the recession. The February increase was the eighth consecutive monthly rise in inventories, but with previous strong advances in sales, inventories are still at historically low levels.

In January, the measure of time it would take to use available stocks hit a record low of 1.29 months. The number rose to 1.32 months in February, still low by normal business standards.

The report said the largest increase in inventories was posted by retailers, a 3.5 percent rise, followed by manufacturers, up 1.2 percent, and wholesalers, up 1.1 percent.

The sales decline included a 1.6 percent drop for wholesalers and a 0.8 percent decline for retailers. Sales by manufacturers increased 0.6 percent.

What's what

Three-fourths of our earth's surface is covered by the seas. But only one-fifth of our calories comes from the seas. So report those who contend fish farming is the only way to feed a population that will triple in the next generation. They note: "An acre of land can produce 800 pounds of beef, but an acre of saltwater five feet deep can produce 200,000 pounds of green sea turtles. That turtle meat is higher in protein, lower in fat, and according to the gourmet crowd, considerably tastier than beef.

At hand is a correspondent's report out of Seoul, South Korea, to challenge your credulity. Claims a mortuary there is operated by a Korean-American named Swan Song Shrug.

To marry in the Soviet Union, both the bride and the groom have to be at least age 18.

HOLES IN ONE

Q. Has any golfer ever hit two consecutive holes in one?
 A. At least one golfer, if the record is correct. On Sept. 2, 1964, at the Del Valle Country Club course

In Saugus, Calif., Norman L. Manley reportedly holed out from the seventh tee, then did it again immediately from the eighth. Can you imagine how Mr. Manley felt as he tried to tell them about it back in the club house? And how they looked at him?

Q. How do you explain the claim that rain keeps the earth dry?
 A. The process does that, all right. Air moisture gathers into clouds, condenses, falls, and runs into the seas. If it didn't, the humidity would rise to its maximum and saturate every surface to mire man in mega-mud. You like alliteration? Me too.

KINDNESS

After a dangerous criminal has been kind to somebody, that criminal rarely will harm the person he's been kind to. Such was the claim of the late J. Edgar Hoover. The notion was put forth when other experts insisted convicts could be rehabilitated with kindness. It is their own kindness. If any, that rehabilitates them, said Hoover: "To speak of convicts as though they all were a breed apart is wrong, I realize. They're too various for that.

Just because that hungry lad has a big appetite doesn't mean he has a tapeworm. It's a fact that such an intestinal parasite needs so little food it doesn't influence its host's appetite at all.

Dotted line indicates Challenger's intended landing path

Challenger forced to change landing

By LEE SIGGEL
The Associated Press

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — In a surprise finish to its most glamorous mission, space shuttle Challenger set down gently on a Mojave Desert runway Friday after rain and clouds a continent away frustrated a Florida landing at the last minute.

The astronauts brought back with them a container of flying companions — 3,300 honeybees that were aboard to determine how well they could build a honeycomb in weightlessness. The specimens reported during the flight that the bees had erected a honeycomb covering half their cage and that at least 20 of them had died.

"This is one heck of a way to come home," said pilot Dick Scobee, who used to be a test pilot at Edwards Air Force Base, where the shuttle landed. "It's a real added booster to come home in such spectacular way."

The director of the shuttle program, Air Force Lt. Gen. James A. Abrahamson, told reporters in Florida he hoped the diverted landing would not detract from what he termed a "fantastic mission."

"We were able to shift plans easily and quickly," he said. "It demonstrates our flexibility, our operational capability."

The 11th shuttle flight was crowned with success. During their seven days in orbit, the five astronauts deployed a huge cylinder of experiments that will be picked up next February. Then they chased an ailing scientific satellite for nearly 2 million miles, plucked it from orbit, replaced its damaged parts, and set it out again for years of observing the sun.

Challenger was on its 105th turn around Earth when Commander Robert L. Crippen was given a "go for deorbit burn" — the OK to land at the Kennedy Space Center on the next revolution. Ten minutes later, only moments before it would have been too late, Mission Control changed its mind.

"KSC weather is getting worse," the word went up. "We'll be going to Edwards this rev."

"Looks like I've been there before," said Crippen, who had a similar experience last June when Flight 7 was diverted to California.

NASA, which brought the shuttle down in Florida for the first time last February, prefers landing there because of the time and money it saves preparing for future flights. Challenger will be carried back to the Kennedy Space Center on top of a Boeing 747 jumbo jet — a process that takes six to eight days.

Judge: Waste rules overshadow security

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — An Energy Department nuclear weapons plant must obey hazardous waste laws, even though government lawyers claim that doing so could endanger national security, a federal judge ruled Friday.

U.S. District Judge Robert L. Taylor ordered the department to apply for permits to treat, store and dispose of chemical waste from its Y-12 nuclear weapons parts plant in Oak Ridge, 25 miles west of Knoxville.

Noting that "the Y-12 plant is a unique and an essential element of this nation's system of nuclear defense," Taylor refused to award any damages or civil penalties sought in the lawsuit.

Substances found in streams running through the federal reservation gave included nitrates, PCBs, acids, radioactive uranium and plutonium, and thousands of pounds of mercury.

The lawsuit against the DOE was filed by the Legal Environmental Assistance Foundation Inc. and the Natural Resources Defense Council, and was later joined by the Tennessee Department of Health and Environment.

"This sets a national precedent," said Gary Davis, a lawyer for the environmental groups. "This issue has never come up before. We just found out last year that DOE was claiming it was exempt from the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act."

The 1980 law regulates the treatment, storage, transportation and disposal of hazardous wastes, and it specifically states that federal facilities are included.

But the Department of Energy maintained it was exempt from the law under provisions of the Atomic Energy Act.

Ex-grad student loses his parole

VACAVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Officials revoked parole Friday for a former graduate student who murdered his Stanford University mathematics professor and refused to promise he would never kill again.

Theodore Stresles, who spent 19 years unsuccessfully seeking a doctoral degree, had been paroled March 4 after serving 5 1/2 years in prison for the 1978 hammer slaying of professor Karel deLeeuw. But his parole was revoked the same day after he refused to cooperate with parole procedures.

Ex-spy pleads innocent to selling Soviets data

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Former Army counterspy Richard Craig Smith pleaded innocent Friday to five counts of selling the Soviet Union information about secret U.S. double agent operations aimed at penetrating the Soviet KGB espionage agency.

One of Smith's attorneys, William Cummings, entered the innocent plea and requested a jury trial as the 40-year-old defendant from Belmont, Wash., stood silently behind him during his arraignment in U.S. District Court.

Judge Albert V. Bryan Jr. set trial for July 9 and a hearing June 10 on any motions in the case.

"Craig's story has been untold; he's been unable to tell it," Smith's other attorney, Brent Carruth of Los Angeles, said outside the courtroom. "At no time did he do anything which would injure the security of the United States."

Smith appeared in a sports coat and slacks and did not speak during the 10-minute proceeding.

He has been charged with selling KGB agent Victor I. Okunev the details of six U.S. double agent operations in which U.S. servicemen posed as traitors to learn the targets, methods and personnel of the KGB.

Terrorists held hostages on the bus, parked by the roadway after the bus was shot out by sharpshooters at a nearby roadblock. Israeli commandos, using stun grenades and assault rifles, stormed the bus from all directions, freeing the hostages.

Shamir promises more aggression

DIR-AL-BALAH, Occupied-Gaza Strip (AP) — Announcing the success of a dramatic raid that rescued 24 hostages from a hijacked bus, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir vowed Friday that Israel would carry out pre-emptive strikes against Palestinian guerrillas.

"We will prevent them. We will strike them before they reach us," Shamir said on Israeli radio. "We will strike them and destroy them."

Israeli commandos with stun grenades and assault rifles killed all four bomb-wielding Arab terrorists on the bus and freed 24 hostages in a pre-dawn operation near Dir Al-Balah.

One passenger, 19-year-old army Corp. Irit Portugez, was killed. Seven others were injured, some of them by police fire earlier in the 10-hour siege that began when the four terrorists commandeered the red and white bus on the Mediterranean coastal road from Tel Aviv.

The hijack drama began about 7:00 p.m. (10 a.m. MST) Thursday, when the bus from Tel Aviv was commandeered as it passed through the port city of Ashdod, 30 miles north of Dir Al Balah, with 25 passengers.

"Suddenly one terrorist took an attaché case, opened it . . . and said, 'I'll blow up the whole bus, nobody better leave,'" said Yosef Shivi.

Shivi was one of 150 passengers who later would slip from the bus during the siege. A tenth, a pregnant woman who became hysterical, was allowed off the bus by the guerrillas several miles south of Ashdod.

He and other witnesses said some of the wounded passengers were hit by police bullets during the attempt to cripple the bus.

The bus was finally immobilized, its tires shot out, near the entrance of the Dir Al Balah Palestine refugee camp 10 miles north of the Egyptian border.

At 4:45 a.m. (7:45 p.m. MST Thursday), the Israeli commandos launched their rescue raid from behind bushes and rocks along the road.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a Syrian-backed Marxist faction of the Palestine Liberation Organization, claimed responsibility for the attack in a communique issued in Damascus, Syria.

The Israeli military command did not identify the hijackers, Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Moshe Levy, interviewed by Israeli radio at the scene outside Dir Al Balah, said they apparently had "organized here" in Israel or the Israel-occupied territories.

The radio said they were members of Al Fatah, the main PLO group, and residents of the territories occupied by Israel in the 1967 Mideast war.

Defense Minister Moshe Arens said authorities had rejected a demand by the hijackers that Israel free 500 Palestinian prisoners and let them travel to Egypt.

"The terrorists had a bomb which they threatened to detonate. We managed to take over the bus before they had a chance to set off the bomb," Arens said.

Heavy fighting marks war's 10th anniversary

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Heavy Muslim-Christian fighting ushered in the 10th year of Lebanon's civil war Friday, and President Amin Gemayel began consultations with political foes on a proposed national coalition government.

Shell blasts rocked the Lebanese capital overnight, at midday and at dusk, when major artillery barrages struck residential neighborhoods on both sides of the "green line" separating mostly Muslim west and Christian east Beirut.

Local radio stations blared warnings to residents to take cover in basements and bomb shelters. Ambulances raced through the streets with sirens wailing.

Police had no immediate casualty report on the Sunday bombardment, but the state radio quoted hospital sources as saying four people were killed and 13 wounded in west Beirut.

Parler, police said one person was killed and nine were wounded in Beirut and in fighting that broke out in the suburbs south of the capital and in the mountain town of Souk el-Charb to the east.

Most Lebanese consider April 13, 1975, when the attempted assassination of a Christian leader prompted a retaliatory attack against Palestinian refugees, as the starting date of the civil war.

Gemayel met in northern Lebanon with ex-President Suleiman Franjeh, a Maronite Christian allied with Syria and Muslim fighters fighting the government. Neither man made a statement after the meeting.

Administration sources said Gemayel, also a Christian, planned to meet with other former presidents, ex-prime ministers and Parliament leaders within the next two days.

30,000 French workers protest cutbacks in jobs

PARIS (AP) — More than 30,000 French steelworkers, joined by Communist Party head Georges Marchais, marched through Paris and rallied near the Eiffel Tower on Friday to protest the government's plan to slash jobs in money-losing industries.

About 3,000 riot police and gardarmes were mobilized for the demonstration, the largest show of Communist and worker discontent with President Francois Mitterrand since the Socialist was elected to office with their backing three years ago.

The last time French steelworkers converged on Paris in 1979, anarchist groups went on a looting and wrecking spree that ended in 169 arrests. But Friday's march was peaceful.

The workers were protesting a plan announced this month by Mitterrand that would eliminate 25,000 of the 90,000 jobs in the state-owned steel industry and shut several major mills.

France's steel industry costs the government about $1.25 billion in annual subsidies.

Lye leaps into 3-stroke Masters advantage

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Mark Lye, a lanky longshot stalking through a field of the world's finest golfers, compiled a Sunday-par 66 and established a surprising, three-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the 48th Masters tournament.

Lye, 31, making his first appearance in the prestigious gathering at the Augusta National Golf Club, completed two journeys over those flowered, rolling hills in 135, nine shots under par at the tournament's halfway point.

"I can't remember when I hit so many good golf shots. I was just hitting it in the teeth," said Lye, who gained a position in this invitational field after scoring the first victory of his seven-year tour career last season.

The critical shot in his effort, he said, was the 20-foot sand shot he holed for an eagle-3 on the second.

Tom Kite, who tied for second here last year, shot a 68 and moved into second at 138.

Ben Crenshaw, Kite's old University of Texas teammate and the first-round leader, had a share of the No. 2 position until he bogeyed the 18th hole and finished with a par round of 72.

He was tied for third at 139 with David Graham, a former winner of the U.S. Open and the PGA national title, and Nick Faldo of England.

Graham, an Australian now living in Dallas, birdied three of the last four holes for a 70. Faldo, now a regular on the U.S. tour and the leading player in Europe last season, had a 69.

Tom Watson, twice a winner here and a five-time British Open champion, ebbed his way back into the race with a 67 and a 141 total, three under par. He was tied with two-time U.S. Open champion "Hale" Irwin, Lee Trevino, Andy Bean, David Edwards and Japanese star Isao Aoki.

Jack Nicklaus, the 44-year-old Golden Bear who counts five Masters crowns among his record collection of 17 major professional titles, had to work hard to qualify for the final two rounds today and Sunday.

Nicklaus played the front side in a fat 40, played indifferently for the next six holes and went to the 18th tee needing a birdie-birdie-birdie finish to make it. And he finished birdie-birdie-birdie, chipping in from 50 feet on the final hole to complete a second 72 and a 146 total.

"As far as ball-hitting is concerned, that's probably the worst round of golf I've played since I turned professional," Nicklaus said.

U.S. Open champion Larry Nelson, with a 69, and Calvin Peete, with a 66, also rallied to qualify with totals of 145.

But defending champion Seve Ballesteros was not so fortunate. The Spaniard, who was disqualified after missing his tee time in the 1980 U.S. Open, again ran afoul of the rules.

His rules official called him for grounding his club in the confines of a hazard — Rae's Creek — on the 13th hole and assessed a two-shot penalty. It gave him a double bogey-7 on the hole, a 74 for the round and a 147 total, one too many.

Hal Sutton the 1983 PGA champion and Player of the Year, also missed at 73-147. So did Arnold Palmer, who has 94 times on the way to a 76 and a 153 total.

Twin Falls' Mark Cazeau, second from camera, placed 2nd in the 100-meter hurdles, while teammates Doug Zakalyk and Pete Ogden placed 1st and 3rd

Twin Falls sweeps both divisions of meet

Salter, Welty paint J-Club Invitational red

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

JEROME — The blue and white of the Twin Falls girls' track team took on a decided red hue Friday afternoon.

A couple of junior redheads, Big Salter and Amber Welty, accounted for five firsts, two seconds and a school record in pointing the Bruin girls to the team victory in the J-Club Invitational. The Bruin boys, dominating in the sprints and distances to offset some Jerome firepower in the field events, took their division.

For a girl who was running in her first track meet, Salter gave herself something to remember as she ran off with all three sprints. Actually, Salter, who has devoted her previous free time to gymnastics, had run in a javelin meet three weeks ago before being sidelined with a stress fracture.

Twin Falls Coach Jerry Kleinkopf had said all spring the youngster could be a saver. But until Friday, it was all potential.

Kleinkopf noted that another bright spot for introducing Salter to the sport Friday was going against veteran Joni James of Jerome who would provide top-notch competition.

Salter turned in times of 12.7 seconds in the 100 meters, 26.5 in the 200 and 1 minute, 35 seconds in her first 400.

Salter confirmed that the lane drawings had helped in the long test, running just inside James in lane five.

"They told me to take my pace off," Salter said and confirmed that James had been pointed out to her. James finished second on all three counts and then anchored the Jerome mile relay victory.

Salter said there was some pain in her leg but that it was bearable. And, she couldn't enthuse over her times because she is not yet certain of what they mean and where they place her.

But Kleinkopf knew on both counts.

"She is a very valuable addition to the team," he understated with a bright smile.

"Meanwhile," Welty picked up a victory in the 100 hurdles and set a school high jump mark of 5 feet, 5 1/2 inches before coming back for second-place finishes in the intermediates and long jump.

She was preceded with a 49.1 clocking in the intermediates, making it was her first trip under 50 seconds.

"At least I can stand up after running these (intermediates) now," she said with a smile. "Usually I have to sit down as soon as they're over."

Concerning her record high jump, Welty said it was more a matter of relief.

"It's not my highest. I've gone 5-6 before," she said. "But it's been a mental barrier, for me and I psyched myself out saying 'oh, I've only done this once before.' I don't think it will be a barrier for me any more."

Two other Bruins joined the redheads as double winners. Junior Mallin Miller, freed from the necessity of running her in the sprints by the appearance of Salter, came back to her favorite event — the intermediates and won them in 48.5. She also won the long jump.

Senior Denise Rhoades claimed both weight events, although she was down from her usual strong performance in the shot put.

In the boys' division, a matter of inches kept Jerome's Gary Hulseby from becoming only the second Magle Valley shot putter to better 60 feet. The last to do it was Twin Falls' Curtis Eaton in 1963 at 60.3. Hulseby hit 59-2 1/2, one-half off his season best last week. He added the discus crown at 166.

Teammates Dee Herfel and sophomore Torrey Sheets stamped themselves the best 400 and 800-meter men in the area, respectively. Herfel hit a 50.7 and Sheets, trying to

Rose gets 4,000

MONTREAL (AP) — Pete Rose, making his home debut for the Montreal Expos, became only the second player in major-league history to reach 4,000 career hits. Friday when he doubled against the Philadelphia Phillies, his former team.

Rose thus reached a milestone that only Ty Cobb, with 4,191 hits, has surpassed. Cobb, who played in the first National League player to do so.

Cobb got all of his record 4,191 hits in 24 American League seasons, all but the last two of them with the Detroit Tigers.

With nobody out in the fourth inning and Expos pitcher Charlie Lea on first base with a walk, Rose, batting right-handed against left-handed Phil Nease, struck a fly ball. Kozman stroked a 1-3 pitch into the right-field corner.

"It was a fastball away," Rose said. "I didn't try to pull it or anything."

As he pulled up at second base, the 48,000 fans attending the home-opener at Olympic Stadium rose in tribute and gave him a two-minute standing ovation.

"The ovation was special to me because I'm new here," said Rose, signed by Montreal as a free agent last November after being released by the Phillies. "The last time I played here, I got booed."

"When you give the reaction I got today, you get goose bumps and you want to do something for these people," said Rose, who turns 43 on Saturday.

National Commissioner Bowie Kuhn acknowledged Rose's achievement in a telegram which said: "You are sensational. I am enormously proud of you and your accomplishment. So, I am sure, is the entire sports world. Right on!"

The double came on Rose's third trip to the plate. In the first inning he hit a routine grounder to second baseman Juan Samuel. And in the second he was safe on an error when Kozman fielded his roller to the mound and threw the ball into the dirt at first base.

Rose scored a run on Tim Lincecum's single as the Expos went on to a 5-1 victory.

The 4,000th hit came 21 years to the day he got his first major-league hit — a triple off Pittsburgh Pirates' right-hander Bob Friend.

Rose's next milestone will be his next single — the 3,000th of his career. That will leave him just 52 behind Cobb for baseball's all-time record in that category.

Rose, who is in his 22nd major-league season, achieved the 4,000-hit plateau in his 13,073rd career at-bat. Cobb needed 10,954 at-bats to reach 4,000 hits and 11,429 to reach 4,191 in his 24-year major-league career which ended in 1928, when he was 42.

Cobb reached the 4,000-hit mark in his 23rd season, at age 40, with the Philadelphia Athletics of the American League.

Rose's 3,000th hit, achieved on May 5, 1978, came against the Expos when, as a member of the Cincinnati Reds, he hit off Steve Rogers.

Rose grew up in Cincinnati and earned the nickname "Charlie Hustle" for his gritty style of play, featuring head-first slides.

Three Eagle cagers sign letters of intent

TWIN FALLS — Three members of the 1983-84 College of Southern Idaho basketball team have signed letters of intent to play at four-year schools.

Fred Emerson, a 6-foot-7 forward, has committed to Fresno State University; Dewey Haley, a 6-1 guard, has agreed to play next season at Georgia State University; and Ralph Barreras, a 6-7 forward, has signed on with the College of Idaho.

Collectively, the three players accounted for an average of 39 points a game for the 257 Eagles last season, as well as 12 rebounds and seven assists.

Emerson, a native of Lexington, Ky., played his freshman year at Eastern Kentucky, where he earned all-Ohio Valley Conference honors with a 10-point, 7-rebound average. He was named all-state as a high school senior.

Last season at CSI, he averaged 12.5 points and 5.3 rebounds per game, shooting 55.9 percent from the field. The latter attribute was one of the things that attracted Fresno State Coach Bob Grant.

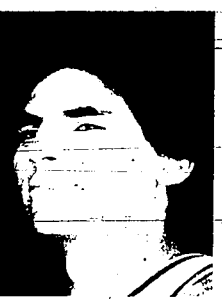

"Two things he can do well are score inside and rebound," said Grant, who coached at CSI at from

Of USFL's Idaho contingent, few actually appear on field

The United States Football League has delayed the high school coaching and real estate sales careers of a number of players from Idaho's three Division I schools. But that's not to say they're playing football.

Of the 10 players drafted by USFL teams from Idaho, Idaho State and Boise State last January, only former ISU defensive back Matt Courtney is actually playing in the two-year-old league, although two free agents from past seasons — former Boise State offensive lineman Jon Zogg and ex-ISU punter Case deBrulin — are also seeing action.

"I guess one of the more frustrating things about my situation is that when I got here I really thought I might have a chance to play," says former Idaho quarterback Ken Hobart, now a third-stringer with the expansion

Steve Crump

Jacksonville Bulls. "That's the reason I came here instead of waiting for the NFL draft."

Hobart's misadventures in the USFL are fairly typical of the ex-Idaho collegians' experiences with the new league. Like Hobart, all will be looking with interest at the May 1 NFL draft — for some, it will be their last chance to play professional football.

Ironically, this spring's NFL draft may make professional careers possible for some of them whose skills are marginal for the pros simply because the USFL has signed so many players who would otherwise be high NFL draft choices.

Here are Idahoans' stories:

- Hobart, a second-round draft choice of the Bulls, arrived in Jacksonville late after prolonged negotiations with the new team. He started the season as the Bull's No. 3 quarterback and eventually saw his first action in the fourth game of the season after the other two signal-callers, Matt Robinson and Robbie Manfoux, were injured. Hobart started the next week, but was pulled by Bulls' Coach Lindy Infante after 1 1/2 quarters and hasn't seen action since.
- In his first stint in the USFL, Hobart completed 10 of 21 passes for 76 yards. He has not been intercepted, nor has he thrown a touchdown pass.

- Courtney, a fourth-round draft choice of the Bulls, also got a late start because he participated in the East-West Shrine Game in January. But he quickly made the team, starting the season as a second-string cornerback before injuring his ankle in the third week of the campaign. As Courtney was coming off the disabled list, Jacksonville's starting safety was lost for the year, and Courtney was switched to the new position two weeks ago.
- In four games this season, Courtney has 17 tackles and two pass deflections and has forced a fumble.
- Carl Qualls was an outside linebacker at ISU who was a fifth-round pick by the Bulls.

Qualls had a strong pre-season and was ranked No. 2 on the Bulls' depth chart at one of the defensive end positions going into the camp. Then in the third game of the year, the player Qualls was backing up was injured, and Qualls started the next two games before spraining his ankle. He sat out two weeks, came back and then broke the toe on his other foot in practice. In the meantime, he lost his starting job.

Frustrated, Qualls asked to be released. He is now at his Berkeley, Calif., home, awaiting the NFL draft.

- Ken O'Neil, a tight end from Idaho State, was an eighth-round choice of the USFL champion Michigan Panthers. O'Neil signed a contract and almost immediately sustained

Burley lefty Taylor no-hits Snake River

MORELAND Burley High School left-hander Andy Taylor threw a no-hit shutout here Friday as Burley cruised to an 11-0 victory over Snake River.

Taylor, a senior, struck out 12 and faced just four batters over the minimum. Two Snake River batters walked, two others reached on errors.

The victory was the third in five decisions this spring for Taylor, who struck out 12 batters in beating Minico earlier this season.

Darren Struchen—and Ron Kruechenberg contributed to two hits apiece to the eight-hit Burley total, with Kruechenberg driving in two runs. Six of the Bobcats' runs were unearned, the result of four Snake River errors.

Burley scored single runs in the first, third and fifth innings before unloading for seven runs in the sixth. Kruechenberg's bases-loaded, two-run single was followed by a two-run error. After Struchen was hit by a pitch, Scott Barrett and Darrin Wood singled, each advancing to second on the seventh run scored on a groundout by Ron Collins.

The victory improved Burley's season record to 6-3, 4-1 in District 4-5-A-2 competition.

Burley and Minico's baseball teams will get together this morning for a 100-inning marathon fund-raiser, starting at 7 a.m. The Bobcats won't see action against until next weekend in the Minico-Cassia Invitational Tournament at Rupert and Teton.

After the Chukars took a 10-6 lead, VanEvery struck stole second and scored on Schow's fifth single of the game to cut TVCC's lead to three runs. But Treasure Valley put the game away in the ninth with a pair of runs. Coach Jim Walker said in constancy again troubled CSI. "It's been that way all year," he said. We just need to make those routine plays. The coach said his team might have been a little overconfident.

Two-hits had them three times and when led, we lulled a bit." CSI was wled by Schow's 5-for-5 performance at the plate. Van Every and Federico each had a pair of hits.

Track

Continued from Page B1 break two minutes, settled for 2:00.4. He covered the two-mile distance with his eyes riveted on the display clock at the end of the field.

"I noticed the time and I just couldn't take my eyes off it," he said.

Meanwhile, Twin Falls' sprint corps continued to improve surprisingly well, giving Kleinkopf a lot of things to mull for relay combinations.

Although Twin Falls swept the top four places in the 100 and 200, none of the times—ranging from 11.6 to 11.7-second—can be considered state-individual possibilities.

Kleinkopf ran two mile relays with the designated relay sending for the first two and one-half laps before the "varsi" came home in 3:30.9.

"We're still trying to come up with the best four," the coach said. "Today gave us some more indications.

"Our medley team (3-45) was good and we ran a good (3:13.9) in the mile relay to get second," said Boys' Coach Tim Dunne. Dunne said he had anticipated Herfel rising to the top among the area's quarter-milers but the late kicking of Herfel in the late-kicking Sweets impressed him.

"He shows an awful lot of potential for a sophomore, doesn't he?" Dunne asked.

Recruits

Continued from Page D1 1974 through 1977. "I really don't think he's going to have a great deal of trouble adjusting to a varsity program."

Grant said he expects to develop Emerson as a power forward.

"We lost two of our top forwards in the country in Ron Anderson and Bernard Thompson, and with them we lost quite a bit of rebounding. We were looking for someone who could help us out in that respect right away, and I think Chad will be that guy. He'll score him three points, I'm sure, and we'll be able to work with him on his outside."

The Bulldogs won the Pacific Coast Athletic Conference championship last year with a 247 record and advanced to the NCAA tournament, where they lost in the first round. In 1983, Grant's team won the National Invitation Tournament championship.

Haley, a native of Carnesville, Ga., attracted interest from Georgia State because of his leadership abilities, according to Coach Tom Pugliese.

"We've been searching for an immediate leader and we've found one in Dewey," he said. "He's an extremely talented young man who sets high goals for himself and his team."

Haley averaged 16 points and five assists at CSI last season. In two years at CSI, he averaged 15.3 points and five assists per game.

Georgia State, which is an Independent Division II college, was 6-21 under Pugliese, who was in his first season at the Atlanta school.

Bauer, a Los Angeles native, was picked by a C of Coach Marty Holly because of his aggressive playing style.

"That's our style," said Holly. "We got those 26-7 Coyotes advanced to the NAIA national tournament this year for only the second time in the college's 100-year history. He's very physical and he posts up well. He defends the post very well. And he can shoot the ball."

Barreras scored 10.4 points and averaged 5.2 rebounds a game last season. He was a two-time All-State player in two years—and shot 55.9 percent from the field in his sophomore year.

"We're lucky to get him," said Holly. "He'll be a real asset for us on defense and he can score 14 or 15 points a game."

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"I hear and I forget, I see and I remember. I do and I understand." -- Chinese proverb.

One of the fundamental principles of defense is "third-hand-high." Simply put, it means that the third player should play his highest card in the suit led, either to win the trick or to force a higher card from the last player. There are exceptions to this basic rule but to understand best, one must either see or do the exercise.

West has led his fourth-best spade and dummy plays low. What should East play?

If East plays "third hand high," his queen goes to South's king and the club ace is knocked out. East returns the spade nine, which West properly refuses, but that doesn't help. With two spades home, South takes three hearts, three clubs and a diamond to count out nine tricks. East's correct play is the nine at trick one. South wins his jack and knocks out the club ace as before. East wins and leads the spade queen to hit out dummy's 10. Now, regardless of who declarer struggles, the defense gets four spades and a club, and the game goes one down.

Can the play of the spade nine at trick one be wrong? Yes, if West started life with both the ace and the king of spades. However, East should have no fear, since he
