Cities strike 'gold'

In grant funds

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

BOISE — Blaine County communities struck gold Friday when Bellevue, Hailey and Kelchum received more than $1 million in federal community development funds to improve or expand their water and sewer systems.

The grants, announced Friday by Gov. John Evans, come from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and are the prime source of economic development funds in Idaho, says David Porter, head of the Division of Economic and Community Affairs, which distributes the funds.

Jerome County was the only other Magic Valley recipient with its grant going to extend the city of Jerome's water and sewer system for a commercial-industrial corridor south of the city.

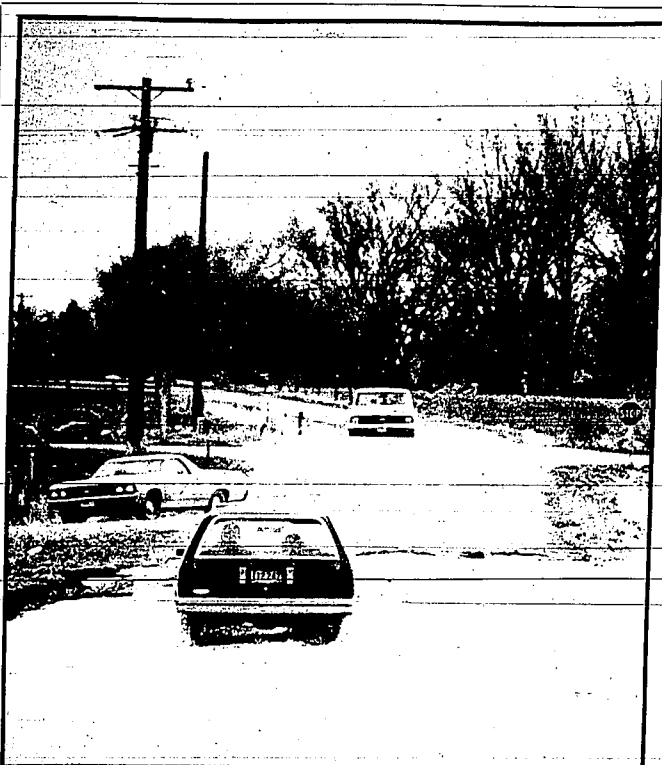

The distribution of the funds was based on the number of long-term jobs the proposed projects could create, especially for low and moderate income people. Only 18 of 51 cities that applied for the grants were awarded any of the $7.2 million allocated for Idaho.

Bellevue and Kelchum both received $350,000 grants while Hailey was given $331,000 and Jerome brought home $177,325.

"Needless to say, I'm really pleased," says Bellevue Mayor Claude Ballard. "This is the third or fourth time we've applied for it."

Bellevue's grant will go primarily to rehabilitate two springs east of the city that are a major source of its water. What is left over from the

Jets shoot at U.S. helicopter

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON — Two Soviet-built warplanes of "unknown nationality" fired on a U.S. Army helicopter Friday while the chopper was on an observation mission along the West German-Czechoslovakian border, the Pentagon announced.

The U.S. Cobra helicopter was not hit by the rocket and cannon fire, the Pentagon said, and returned safely to its home station in West Germany.

The brief announcement, which provided only sketchy details, said the U.S. Army's European headquarters in Stuttgart, West Germany, was investigating the incident, which occurred at 6:40 a.m. MST (2:40 p.m. local time).

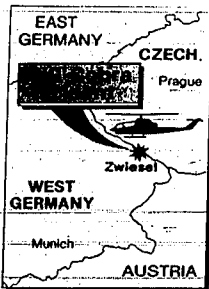

Pentagon officials said it was not yet known whether the helicopter had flown across the border into Czechoslovakian air space or whether the MIG warplanes had entered West German air space.

In West Germany, a border police officer, Bernd Duering, said in a telephone interview that he believed the helicopter was in Czech territory when the shooting occurred, but not by more than six miles.

When asked if it was easy to stray off course in that region, he said, "It depends. If they hadn't been trained in the area, perhaps. But if they knew the territory they wouldn't have made that mistake. It doesn't happen often."

The helicopter was on a routine border aerial mission along the West German-Czechoslovakian border near Zwiesel, West Germany, when it was fired upon by the MIGs, the Pentagon said.

Zwiesel is 4.5 miles west of the Czech border. "The helicopter had made a turn to return to its home station when the pilot saw the MIG aircraft fire rocket ammunition," the statement said.

"The Cobra was not hit by any of the fire."

"The Cobra is a single-engine attack helicopter which normally carries a crew of two. Some advanced versions of the chopper are armed with TOW anti-tank missiles, 20mm cannon and 2.75-inch rockets.

MIGs are Soviet-built fighters but they are flown not only by the Soviets but also by pilots of Warsaw Pact air forces.

There was no indication of the type of MIGs which were reported to have fired on the Army Cobra.

In California, spokesmen for President Reagan reported that the president had been informed Friday morning of the shooting.

Utilities label BPA proposals 'sham'

By LES BLUMENTHAL
The Associated Press

PORTLAND — The fight over proposed changes in the Northwest Power Act escalated Friday as officials of the region's utilities stamped out of a Bonneville Power Administration hearing calling BPA's actions a "sham."

The utilities, both public and private, charged that the federal power marketing agency's proposals were being made "unilaterally" and "illegally," and could cost electric ratepayers in the Northwest hundreds of millions of dollars.

BPA officials said privately they were not surprised by the utilities' walkout and still planned to make a decision by the end of May on the formula used to calculate the cost of the electricity provided by private utilities under the regional act's exchange provisions.

Despite the public flare-up, BPA officials said both private and public utilities already have submitted rounds of testimony.

"We are just trying to reform abuses," Peter Johnson, BPA administrator, said in opening the hearing. "I would be negligent if I didn't take a hard look to make sure if (the regional act) was being administered properly and fairly under the law."

PETER JOHNSON
"Trying to reform abuses"

Utility officials indicated they probably would have nothing further to do with the BPA hearings, but would continue to monitor its progress.

The walkout followed a brief statement read by James Durham, a senior vice president of Portland General Electric.

"I am here to protest this sham action for every residential and small farm customer in the Northwest," Durham said.

Durham said BPA's efforts represented an attempt to rewrite the regional energy act, in violation of federal law and contracts with the private utilities and would end up raising rates by as much as 38 percent.

"We reject this attempt to balance BPA's books on the backs of our customers," he said.

"What BPA is proposing here is a railroad — a railroad that would tear up the tracks carefully laid down by law and by contract."

Durham said he was speaking on behalf of PGE, Pacific Power & Light, Puget Sound Power & Light, Washington Water Power, Idaho Power Co., Montana Power Co. and Utah Power & Light. Durham also said he was speaking for the Public Power Council, a group composed of Northwest public utilities.

Representatives of the Public Power Council confirmed they agreed with Durham's remarks.

Officials of Puget, PGE, and some of the public utilities, who were attending the hearing, joined Durham in leaving.

"It's interesting that a lot of our friends won't stay and listen to our discussions," Stephan Altshie, BPA's financial manager, said facetiously as the group of about 20 utility executives left.

Darcie White, UP&L vice president, said following the hearing that if BPA's plan is successful, rates for the utility's residential customers could increase by 24 percent. He said rates for industrial customers could be 38 percent.

"BPA is now attempting to go through the process in five or six days that originally took nearly six months," he said.

"The dispute threatens to touch off a new 'civil war' over electric rates in the region. The regional act was designed as the peace treaty for earlier battles."

May 22 primary date definite

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist on Friday refused to delay Idaho's May 22 primary and reinstate a reapportionment plan passed by the Idaho Legislature last month.

That action apparently means Idaho's primary will be held as scheduled under a court-ordered plan known as 14-B.

"It's an absolute certainty," state Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise, an attorney, said in Boise.

The only thing now standing in the way of a May 22 primary under 14-B is a last-minute reapportionment alternative endorsed by a policy committee of the Idaho Legislature.

But it would take a special legislative session to pass that measure, and Gov. John Evans has indicated strong opposition to the proposal and reluctance to call a special session.

Evans plans to make a final decision this weekend.

In Boise, Attorney General Jim Jones said that in light of Friday's setback, he is rethinking his plans to ask the nation's highest court to review Idaho's reapportionment case.

"One of the things that was fairly essential to our effort was to get a stay of implementation of 14-B," Jones said from his Boise office.

"We determined that if we didn't get a stay, because the elections were just around the corner, if you had the primary elections under

Bomb in crowded London airport terminal wounds score

LONDON (AP) — A bomb exploded in a baggage area at London's Heathrow Airport Friday night as thousands of travelers were leaving for the Easter weekend.

Police said 22 people were wounded, one critically.

A cab driver who had just dropped off a fare said the bomb ran out of the trunk, screaming and crying ... in shock. "A customs officer in the area said the roof caved in and one end of the hall was 'just destroyed.'"

Cmdr. Bill Huckleby — head of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist squad, said there were "similarities between the attack and two bombings in Britain last month that were blamed on Libyan terrorists. He said that in all of the incidents, the bombs contained similar amounts of explosives and were detonated by timers."

The Heathrow device was "a professional bomb and we suspect from the Middle East," he said. "The persons responsible could still be here or could have flown out to Libya or any other of the flights that took off from here." He told reporters at Heathrow that two

Britain, Libya try to end impasse

LONDON (AP) — Britain and Libya held intense negotiations Friday in Tripoli, seeking an end to the impasse over Libya's besieged London embassy.

Ambassador Oliver Miles received "counterproposals," but a Foreign Office spokesman said Britain was sticking with its demands.

London police strengthened barricades around the embassy on fashionable St. James's Square and dozens of marksmen kept a round-the-clock vigil for the fourth day. In the Libyan capital, Miles held a second meeting in as many days with Libyan Foreign Minister Ali Abdussalam Treiki.

In Tripoli, Treiki presented a set of "counterproposals and suggestions" to those presented by Miles Thursday night. They were not made known. The Miles proposals reportedly had relayed Britain's two chief demands — that the 20 to 30 Libyans in the five-story building should leave and submit to questioning and that Libya should allow the embassy, which is protected by diplomatic immunity, to be searched for weapons by police accompanied by a Libyan diplomat.

People were detained for questioning, but declined to identify them. He said the bomb contained an estimated two pounds of "commercial, possibly military, explosives," and that no group had asserted responsibility for the bombing.

Libya's government radio, in a broadcast monitored here, reported the bombing and said there was another explosion in the airport's Terminal 3 that wounded 14 people.

Police reported there were no other explosions and they had found no additional bombs in a search of the airport's three main terminal areas.

Strong security was in effect at the airport because of the British police siege of the Libyan Embassy in central London.

On March 19, two bombs exploded in London and Manchester, wounding 23 people. The devices had been placed near buildings occupied mainly by Libyans opposed to the Tripoli regime of Col. Moammar Khadafi.

The Heathrow bomb exploded at 7:55 p.m. London time in the customs hall at Terminal 2, where foreign airlines operate flights to and from European and Middle East ports.

Airport officials said about 60 people were in the baggage area when the bomb, which may have been in an unclaimed suitcase, exploded.

"There was a bloody big flash, a bang and lots of smoke," said customs officer John MacIntyre. He told reporters he thought the bomb went off in the last-baggage department.

Police sealed off the entire airport, Europe's busiest, as officers with dogs trained to sniff out explosives searched for other bombs. They did not find any.

Some incoming flights continued to land but others were diverted and all departures were delayed.

A spokesman at Hillingdon Hospital, where some of the injured were admitted, said, "Two are unconscious — one is very serious." A police spokesman said seven victims were listed in serious condition.

restoration will go for replacing deteriorating water lines from the springs and putting in more fire hydrants, Ballard says.

The mayor says the city now uses three springs about five miles from town in Madison Canyon for most of its water supply. However, when the snow melts each year, one spring becomes contaminated with fecal bacteria from cattle wintering nearby.

He says the city will probably abandon the problem spring and improve the other two and still get the same amount of water it now gets from all three.

Ketchum will use its money to put in water lines for fire protection in the downtown section of the city, which is served by a private water utility for domestic service. It will be the city's first lines into the area.

Jim Jaquet, Ketchum administrator, says the new lines will be confined to the west side of Main Street on Washington Street and the east side of Main Street on 1st and 2nd streets and will not interfere with the private line. The lines will link up with several developer-installed lines now in the area and will eliminate dead-end lines, he says.

"We knew for a long time that that area of the downtown was not adequately served for fire protection," Jaquet says.

The city has searched for an opportunity to grab grant money to make the improvements in the past, but until now has not secured any, he says.

Halley's money will go to extend its city water and sewer lines to a yet undeveloped 22-acre industrial park south of the city and to improve streets in low and moderate income areas of the city.

The city has agreed to make the utility improvements and streets for developer Dave Manookian, who will purchase the land and construct buildings on what is expected to serve primarily as a high-technology industrial park.

Mayor Wardell Ralney says the city will be reimbursed for a portion of the improvements. "We thought it was a good project all along and the governor and his committee thought it was, too," he says.

Jerome County also has been trying to improve its water and sewer problems in an area south of Jerome for a number of years, says Bill Allred, an environmentalist with the South Central Health District who chaired the committee to go after the grant. He says the state block grant will pay for a 40 percent local match for a second grant from the Economic Development Administration. Allred says the county is "optimistic" about receiving the federal grant for the remaining 60 percent of the project's approximate $480,000 cost.

The project will extend the city's water and sewer lines along South Lincoln Street 2.5 miles to its intersection with Interstate 84.

The road is dotted with residents and commercial and industrial developments and the lines will go to serve all users. Allred says the "soil is shallow in the area and sewer and drainage problems have afflicted it for a number of years."

Existing businesses have indicated they will expand when the lines are put in and the county expects several new businesses will go in to create more jobs in the county.

Nuclear foes conduct protests

By The Associated Press
With prayers, hymns, communion and a re-enactment of the events leading up to the crucifixion, demonstrators from California spoke out against nuclear weapons on Good Friday in protests that brought at least 92 arrests nationwide.

In Livermore, Calif., 38 protesters were arrested after holding a service outside the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, where 94 were arrested at the Nevada Test Site in Beatty, site of an Easter Week series of protests.

In Groton, Conn., 18 protesters were charged with disorderly conduct in a protest following a re-enactment of the events leading to the crucifixion of Christ. And in Michigan, seven people were arrested after they poured blood or red dye on signs at a defense contractor's plant and an Air Force base.

Wintry storms move eastward

By The Associated Press
A powerful snowstorm set a wintry stage for Easter across the Rockies on Friday, dropping more than a foot of fresh snow on a record snowpack in Utah, while a tornado in Oklahoma was blamed for one death.

Texas also was hit with three tornadoes as menacing thunderstorms swept across the southern Plains into the Deep South with hail and high winds.

Much of the country was in for a messy Easter, forecasters said.

"It most definitely doesn't look like ideal weather for Easter," said Fred Oddy, director of the Weather Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., which tracks inclement weather nationwide.

Oregon rivers running high

NYSSA, Ore. (AP) Flood warnings remained in effect for three Oregon rivers Friday, but officials said only one of them — the Owyhee River — was expected to spill from its banks through the weekend.

In Malheur County, officials estimated the flooding had caused $4 million in damage to farmland.

Interstate 84, the main highway between Portland, Ore., and Salt Lake City, remained closed just east of the Oregon border in Idaho. The freeway was closed when flood waters from the Snake River virtually destroyed two steel highway bridges.

The freeway was expected to be closed for several days while temporary repairs are made.

Scott Klier of the National Weather Service in Boise said the Malheur River was "well below flood stage." ... and the Snake should be below flood stage by Sunday morning.

Windsor wins execution delay

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has indefinitely stayed the execution of Karla Windsor, 27, the first woman sentenced to Idaho's death row.

The high court's Friday stay, of the scheduled May 4 execution was automatic under state law so the case and sentence can be reviewed.

Windsor was convicted in mid-February of 1st-degree murder for her role in the Sept. 7 stabbing death of Sterling Grammer at his Oak Grove home. Her boyfriend, Donald Paterly, 28, was also convicted in that murder and sentenced to death.

Families seek missing girls

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The fathers and friends of two teen-agers missing in Christopher Wilder's cross-country rampage handed out leaflets on the Strip and scoured an abandoned Boy Scout camp in mountains northwest of Las Vegas Friday.

Michelle Korfman, 17, of Boulder City, Nev., disappeared April 1 after a beauty pageant in a Las Vegas shopping center. Sheryl Bonaventura, 19, of Grand Junction, Colo., disappeared three days earlier from a shopping mall in that Colorado city.

The two women are among 11 Wilder is believed to have kidnapped before he died of gunshot wounds April 13.

FmHA bankruptcy rate lower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers who borrow from the Farmers Home Administration may be going out of business at a lower rate than farmers generally, the latest figures by the agency showed Friday.

Earlier this week, President Reagan told a group of farm editors that 2 percent to 4 percent of the nation's farmers may go bankrupt this year, compared with an average of 1 to 1 1/2 percent in normal times.

The FmHA, an Agriculture Department agency, said that as of March 31, only 1.3 percent of about 265,000 borrowers had discontinued farming since the fiscal year began last Oct. 1. The discontinuances include farmers who sell out as well as those who file for bankruptcy and are otherwise forced out.

No Jackson independent bid

By The Associated Press
The Rev. Jesse Jackson said Friday he will not run for president as an independent candidate if he fails to win the Democratic nomination, while Gary Hart and Walter F. Mondale settled into Easter weekend breaks to prepare for the final six weeks of the grueling primary season.

Jackson completed the Democratic candidate's pilgrimages to Ohio Gov. Richard Celeste earlier Friday, meeting privately with the Democratic governor and state party leaders — as Mondale and Hart did this past week — seeking endorsements in advance of the state's May 8 primary that will divide up 154 pledged delegates.

Mondale spends $13.3 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter F. Mondale's campaign reported Friday it had spent $13.3 million by the end of March, or two-thirds of the legal limit, in his quest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The Mondale campaign also had debts of $1.6 million in March and spent $4.3 million on his and Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado battled for the lead in the race.

The FEC had not received the March reports from the other major Democratic candidates by late Friday.

President Reagan's re-election committee reported it raised nearly $9 million and spent $6 million by the end of March on his uncontested bid for the Republican nomination.

14-B, then the Supreme Court would probably indicate that the issue was moot."

Jones expects to reach a decision early next week, after further research and consulting with Secretary of State Pete Carrus and possibly legislative leaders.

"What we'd be left with is seeking guidance for the future," Jones said. That guidance would concern how officials can reconcile state reapportionment requirements with federal requirements, along with how much leeway states have in meeting the one-man-one-vote requirement.

Jones said it appears "inevitable" that the primary will be held under 14-B. "As a practical matter, it looks as if it's going to be very difficult to get around the implementation of 14-B," he said.

Ben Yursua, deputy secretary of State in charge of elections, said after Rehnquist's ruling, "It's full speed ahead for 14-B and May 22."

Yursua expressed "relief" that plans for the primary appear to be final now.

Jones said he was disappointed but not surprised by Rehnquist's opinion. Rehnquist's refusal on Jones' motions came just one day after the Idaho Supreme Court turned down the same requests. It also came one day after the U.S. District Court in Boise threw out a lawsuit state Republican legislative leaders had filed, challenging the court-ordered reapportionment.

In his motions to the U.S. Supreme Court, Jones had asked that the primary be postponed until June 5.

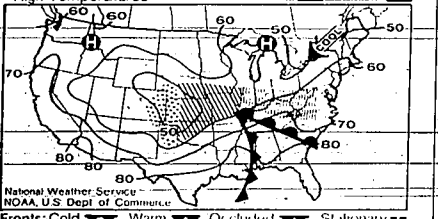

He had also asked Rehnquist to stay the Idaho Supreme Court's April 9 order which threw out a plan the Legislature passed in the final hours of the 1984 session, and substituted the earlier, court-ordered plan.

Reagan asks ex-presidents for China excursion advice

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
AP White House Correspondent

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — President Reagan lined up some experts Friday to help him prepare for his trip to China. The three living former U.S. presidents.

Each has visited China, and Reagan planned to speak by telephone with them from his ranch 30 miles northwest of here.

In addition to his conversations with Richard M. Nixon, Gerald R. Ford and Jimmy Carter, Reagan had little on his schedule here, although he had a 3-inch-thick briefing book to help him get ready for the journey.

Nixon, the first U.S. president to visit China, made his trip in 1972. Ford followed in 1975. Carter visited China after leaving office. It was under Carter that the United States and China opened normal diplomatic relations in 1979.

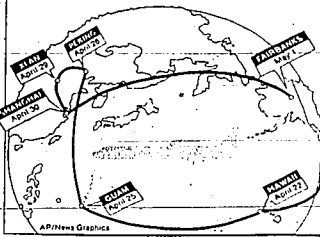

Reagan arrived at his ranch Thursday evening, completing the first leg of a slow flight to China made deliberately slow to help the 73-year-old president adjust to the 13-hour time difference between Peking and Washington and avoid jet lag. He is flying to Honolulu on Sunday, arriving in time for evening Easter services, and will spend one night in Guam.

A senior administration official, who spoke on condition he not be named, said the calls to the former presidents, with whom Reagan rarely consults, were intended to talk about their trips to China, their views on liberal discussion topics "and get from them their thoughts, since they've all been there."

The official said part of the president's preparations for his trip, during which he will spend approximately seven hours in conference with senior Chinese leaders, included the viewing of a 35-minute film.

The documentary was a joint U.S.-Chinese effort intended to help familiarize the president with the places he will see during his six days in Peking, Xian and Shanghai. The film pictures each site on the president's agenda, which includes "an afternoon spent driving to the Great Wall and a day of touring in central China, where he will have an opportunity to chat with Chinese peasants at a free market in a small village near Xian.

Reagan also will have a chance to reach the Chinese people through television. According to the administration official, 80 percent of the Chinese people have access to television sets, often in communal locations.

The president will make a televised speech to Chinese officials at the Great Hall of the People and he will be interviewed by Chinese TV reporters.

In addition to his China preparations Friday, Reagan went horseback riding at his ranch and planned some maintenance work.

Officer buried

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — Amid a swirling Colorado snowstorm, mourners on Friday buried Lt. Col. Kenneth Crabtree, a career Army officer killed in a terrorist bombing in southern Africa a week ago.

Crabtree, 46, a career Army Special Forces officer assigned to southern Africa, was buried with full military honors as snow poured down at Fort Logan National Cemetery southwest of Denver.

The wet snow muffled the color guard's rifle salute, and the icy wind carried off the elegaic notes of "Taps."

U.S. commonwealth.

"They contacted the news agencies, but no government agency has had any contact yet with the group," Dervish said. "We haven't heard of them before."

But FBI spokesman Lane Bonner said earlier that the same group had claimed responsibility for the bombing last Aug. 18 of another Navy Yard building, a half-block away from the officers club.

Norman Zigrossi, special agent in charge of the Washington FBI office, said, "we are considering the possibility" that the blast was set by the same group which bombed the National War College at nearby Fort McNair here in April 1983 and in a corridor at the U.S. Capitol last November. A group calling itself the Armed Resistance Unit claimed responsibility for those two attacks.

The Navy Yard, opened in 1799, is the nation's oldest onshore Navy facility. It houses two museums and is relatively open to the public, said a Navy spokesman, Cmdr. W.R. McLoughlin. But security was immediately tightened.

—About 3,500 sailors and civilians working at the facility in southeastern Washington.

—About 35 patrons and five employees had been in the club before it closed at 8:50 p.m. MST, McLoughlin said.

Protest group bombs building at navy yard

WASHINGTON (AP) — An organization protesting U.S. policies in Central America and the Caribbean claimed responsibility Friday for planting a powerful bomb which heavily damaged the officers club at the historic Washington Navy Yard in a pre-dawn explosion, the FBI said.

"There were no injuries because the club had closed three hours earlier and was empty at the time of the 11:50 p.m. MST blast. It awakened sailors in a nearby barracks as it blew out windows, shattered the first-floor interior of the three-story building, and started a small fire.

"We don't know yet what kind of bomb it was, but it was certainly powerful," said FBI spokesman Ron Dervish. The explosive was apparently placed under a sofa in the club, he said.

Responsibility for the blast was claimed by a group calling itself the Guerrilla Resistance Movement, Dervish said.

In taped telephone calls to the Washington Post and United Press International, the group said it was "in solidarity" with the FMLN, or Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, the largest of five leftist guerrilla groups fighting the U.S.-backed government of El Salvador, Dervish said.

The group also expressed backing for the independence of Puerto Rico, a

Average tax burden rises $267

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average federal tax burden will rise $267 per person this year and range from a low of $1,827 in Mississippi to $4,420 per person in Alaska.

If all Americans had to pay equal shares of the $648 billion the federal government expects to collect this year, it would cost $2,757 per person, the Tax Foundation, a private non-partisan research organization, said Friday.

That compares with $2,490 last year and an estimated $3,091 in 1985. The figures assume individuals pay all federal taxes, including those on corporations.

The study shows the per capita tax burden in Idaho is $2,083, which ranks 45th in the nation. The state per capita tax burden corresponds closely to individual income levels, the foundation said. States whose citizens have high earnings usually are those with the highest per-person tax burdens.

The 10 states with the largest population will pay 57.6 percent of total federal taxes. They have 53.8 percent of the population. The 10 with the fewest people, representing 3 percent of the population, will chip in 2.9 percent of the taxes, foundation analysts concluded.

California, with the largest population, will pay $76.9 billion in federal taxes, the single biggest share. But the state's share per person ranks only 13th, or $3,013. Alaska, whose $4,420 per-person share is the largest, ranks 44th in total federal taxes, at $1.9 billion.

Tiny Delaware, corporate home of many giant firms, ranks 47th among the states in total federal taxes but eighth on a per capita basis. Connecticut, for similar reasons, ranks second in per capita shares but 19th in total federal taxes generated.

The Tax Foundation's figures vary from those published by the Treasury Department.

Colorado sues to stop MX

DENVER (AP) — The state of Colorado filed suit Friday to stop deployment of the MX missile, arguing that the project would affect the state's environment even though the missiles are to be placed in Wyoming and Nebraska.

Gov. Richard Lamm's office issued a statement saying the Air Force has "refused to hear or consider Colorado's concerns or to hold hearings in Colorado on the (environmental) effects of the MX."

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Denver, names as defendants President Reagan, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Secretary of the Air Force Verne Orr.

Air Force officials have said hearings conducted in Wyoming and Nebraska are in accordance with federal law.

Atheists' convention inspires expression of opposing views

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The mother and son who put a stop to prayer in public schools two decades ago were in the Bible Belt on Good Friday, squaring off on opposite sides of a convention of atheists.

A man with a cross greeted Madelyn Murray O'Hair and her American Atheists, pacing the length of a downtown park to remind the expected 250 delegates to the 14th annual convention across the street that it was Easter weekend.

At another downtown hotel, Bill Murray planned to counter his mother's message with leaflets, an outdoor rally and a series of sermons and speeches.

"We're here to win people to Christ," he said. "They're here to win people to atheism."

The atheist agenda includes a wreath-laying ceremony Sunday at the grave of Charles Chilton Moore, a 19th century publisher and free thinker O'Hair cites as "an authentic atheist hero in Kentucky."

Three of Murray's followers stood outside O'Hair's hotel, passing out Christian leaflets and hoping to open a dialogue with the non-believers.

At noon, David McCracken showed up in Triangle Park to begin his annual Good Friday walk with a rough, 7-foot cross.

"I've done this for seven years," McCracken said. "I'm here to witness for Christ and to remind people what this day represents. I haven't changed because the atheists are here, but being as they're here, they can witness, too."

O'Hair told a news conference the day after the convention of atheists had been chosen because they were close to her birthday, April 13.

She and her son, plaintiffs in the landmark U.S. Supreme Court ruling in the early 1980s that outlaws organized prayer and Bible reading in public schools, haven't spoken for years. Murray, formerly No. 2 in the atheist group, dropped out in 1977, became a Christian and formed an evangelical group.

Murray's brother and daughter are still active with the atheists.

Murray claimed his mother followed her 1933 convention in San Francisco, the biggest ever, with a meeting in Lexington because "they're ready now to flex their muscles right in the middle of the Bible Belt. The Bible Belt has nothing to do with it, his mother said.

Report claims Bechtel bribed to get contracts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department and FBI are investigating whether the Bechtel Group, Inc., the nation's largest construction firm, paid bribes to win contracts to build nuclear power plants in Korea, two investigative magazines say in an article both will publish shortly.

In reply, Bechtel said its policies prohibit illegal payments and are vigorously enforced. The San Francisco-based international firm said it has not been contacted by the Justice Department or the FBI "regarding any such allegations."

Mother Jones and Multinational Monitor, a 6,000-circulation publication of the Corporate Accountability Research Group, say in the article that Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Secretary of State George P. Shultz, both Bechtel executives before joining the Reagan administration, "were in positions to know" about the alleged bribes but the article made no specific charges against them.

It says the firm hired a Korean-American named Yoon Sik Cho in 1976 as a $30,000-a-year consultant with a big expense account to win engineering and construction contracts after Korea decided to go into nuclear energy in a big way.

The article says Cho passed money in to a key Korean official in at least one instance and gave Korean officials golf clubs and appliances that had been brought into the country duty-free by Bechtel employees.

FBI spokesman Lane Bonner said he had no comment on the allegations. Justice Department spokesman John Russell also refused to comment.

Bechtel spokesman Jim Allen read a statement that said: "Bechtel's policies on ethical business conduct are clear and prohibit any illegal payments to anyone. These policies are vigorously enforced."

The statement said the Korean government investigators' charges involving Cho and that he has "continually confirmed to Bechtel that his activities complied with all laws."

Allen declined to answer questions.

FBI magazines attribute much of their information to a whistle-blower, a man they identified as Daniel Charboneau. The magazines said Charboneau joined Bechtel in 1974 as an organization development consultant in the company's San Francisco office.

Sex abuse charge

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Parents have expressed surprise and outrage that Children's Theatre Company board members kept secret for nearly two years an investigation of allegations that its artistic director was sexually abusing child actors.

John Clark Donohue, 45, the director, was released on $150,000 bail Thursday night following his arrest.

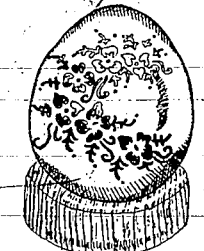

Lava flow from volcano skirts Hawaiian neighborhood

HAWAIIAN ISLANDS (AP) — A six-mile-long lava flow from erupting Kilauea volcano skirted a remote subdivision Friday, but Hawaii County Civil Defense officials warned area residents to be aware of smoke and fumes.

The 200-meter-wide, 2-meter-high river of molten lava moving at 1,000 feet per hour, slid by the sparsely populated Royal Gardens subdivision, which has been overrun numerous times since the volcano began erupting Jan. 3, 1983, according to Reggie Okamura, assistant scientist in charge of the U.S. Geological Survey's Hawaiian Volcano Observatory.

The flow heading toward the Pacific Ocean, 2.5 miles away, was fed by a lava fountain that burst 25 to 30 meters into the air above the rim of a 300-foot-high spatter cone that built up over previous phases, Okamura said.

Ailing conglomerate files for bankruptcy

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Charter Co., a teetering conglomerate of insurance, oil and publishing holdings, filed for protection from its creditors Friday under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

The Jacksonville-based company, which lost much of its top management team in a 1982 helicopter crash in Ireland, filed 44 petitions with U.S. Bankruptcy Court, said Marie Salles, a deputy clerk at the court.

The filing, containing thick folders on each of the 44 holdings seeking protection, lists total assets of $1.1 billion and liabilities of $304 million as of March 31. The conglomerate has more than 100 holdings or interests.

Included in the filing are some of what had been Charter's centerpiece concerns, including oil, insurance, media and financial services.

That the company had financial troubles did not come as a surprise.

Three years ago Charter stock sold for more than $50 a share. It closed Thursday at $3.12 1/2; stock exchanges were closed on Good Friday.

Under Chapter 11, a company seeks a federal court order freeing it from the threat of lawsuits while it attempts to reorganize its finances.

While the reorganization proceeds, the activities of management must be approved by the court.

This past Sunday, Charter announced it had put its life insurance business up for sale and that its oil subsidiaries had "experienced an unanticipated and severe loss of trade credit."

On Tuesday, Standard & Poor's lowered the credit rating on about $220 million of Charter securities while corporate headquarters announced a 10 percent layoff of the 450 to 500 Jacksonville employees.

The resignation of Charter's chief financial officer, Carl A. Seighner, was announced on Thursday.

The company's debt began swelling last year.

Short-term debt grew to $144 million in 1983 from $3.25 million in 1982 and long-term debt climbed to $291.4 million from $378.25 million, according to Charter financial reports.

De Lorean jurors hear tapes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jurors in John Z. De Lorean's drug trial heard tapes Friday of the automaker trying to back out of a drug deal, then resuming negotiations and reluctantly agreeing to bring his fashion model wife to a meeting with a drug dealer.

The disclosures involving De Lorean's wife, Cristina Ferrare, came on tapes played Friday in a packed, hushed courtroom as the couple listened and exchanged pained smiles.

The tape was the first to offer support for De Lorean's theory of the case — that he was frightened and tried to escape involvement with drug dealers by fabricating an explanation of why he couldn't get his hands on the money.

The audio tape was recorded Sept. 15, 1982, a few days after De Lorean had apparently agreed to go along with a narcotics-based financial deal proposed by an FBI undercover agent posing as a banker.

Hansen rips ex-IRS chief

Implies illegal acts committed

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Rep. George Hansen, a convicted felon, directed new implications of illegal activity at an Internal Revenue Service official during an "informational" session in Twin Falls Thursday.

To a mostly-supportive crowd of about 120 persons gathered at the Holiday Inn, Hansen launched his second attack on Howard Martin, formerly the chief of IRS operations in Idaho.

Hansen implied that Martin may have leaked confidential tax information to other government agencies about silver transactions and profits of Hansen's wife, Connie. In developing his scenario, Hansen said such a leak may have been used for a conspiratorial blackmail attempt on Texas billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt, who assisted Mrs. Hansen in her foray into the silver market.

It was that blackmail attempt, Hansen said, that caused an investigation that eventually led to the congressman's recent conviction on four felony counts of failing to comply with the Ethics in Government Act.

Hansen's first attack on Martin occurred in both a paper-back book titled a comic book titled "The Hansen Year" in those publications, the five-term congressman alleged that, in 1976, Martin plotted Hansen's defeat in an Idaho Falls motel room with Stan Kress, Hansen's Democratic opponent. Hansen says internal memos from the revenue service support the allegations.

Martin has denied the allegations.

saying he's never met Kress and would not recognize Kress if he saw him.

Referring to the book, "To Harass Our People," Hansen told the crowd Thursday:

"On page 81 of the red book... it talks about how IRS documents, apparently, according to IRS documents, were meeting with some of my Democratic opponents during the 1976 election. And the one they named was the director of IRS for Idaho (Martin).

"And guess where he went after he was promoted? He's the chief of disclosure in Washington, D.C. And what I mean by disclosure, he's the guy who decides any questions about whether your taxes get disclosed or not," Hansen said.

"Coming from Idaho and having all kinds of love for me, I'm sure that he probably still was interested in my taxes."

"And when that $87,000 trade (silver transaction profit) came up, he probably might have been interested in that," Hansen said.

"Is it impossible to believe," Hansen thundered, "that the IRS — who had already been making steps through previous elections — could have tipped off the commodities future exchange commission or... the trading commission and said... you might want to look at this; it might be kind of interesting?"

"And isn't it conceivable then that it was the government itself that was the blackmailer?" he asked.

Hansen said he turned over the blackmailer's name to the Justice Department which then launched an investigation of Hansen based on the information the Congressman supplied.

Speaking before a mostly partisan crowd, Representative George Hansen questioned tactics and motives of IRS officials

Hansen said the easy punishment given to the blackmailer — 70 hours of community service work and a $2,000 fine — raises suspicions that the blackmailer was a government operative in a conspiracy against Hansen.

Martin, now director of appeals with the IRS, was unable to comment on Hansen's statements when contacted Friday at his Washington, D.C., office.

The Twin Falls meeting was highly charged with emotion:

State senate candidate Larry Anderson, co-author of the first edition of Hansen's book and a former field representative for Hansen, stopped several times in his introduction of the beleaguered congressman, seeking to gain composure and hold back tears.

The crowd heard a prayer, recited the pledge of allegiance and sang "God Bless America" before viewing a taped version of the talk show "Crossfire" which featured Hansen being grilled by two interviewers, both of whom said later indicated support for Hansen.

Responding to Twin Falls attorney Mark Stubbs — a supporter of Hansen's primary opponent, Jerome County Prosecutor Dan Adamson — Hansen said if he loses to Adamson in the primary, he may support him in the general election. His supporters, however, may be reluctant to support Adamson if the primary campaign degenerates into one of "cheap shots," Hansen said.

Above all, Hansen maintained his innocence.

"All we've been through is the first inning of the ball game," he said, calling the U.S. District Court in Washington D.C. "the political court" because of the demographic composition of the capital city and the jury that convicted him.

"I haven't committed any wrong to anybody in Washington. I haven't abused any children. I haven't taken any money. I've just had an argument over how to fill out a lousy federal form," he said.

High winds agitate Big Wood River's flooding in Gooding

By JaENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — White capped waves and feeding sealings seem a little out of place in Gooding grain fields. On Friday, 10- to 40-mile-per-hour winds whipped the waters of the flooding Big Wood River into waves across several fields north of Gooding.

Gooding police chief and director of county civil defense, Bill Bunn, said Thursday night his department was watching the river closely in case sandbagging or home evacuation became necessary. Two or three houses were reported surrounded by water.

Bunn said Friday the cooler weather was slowing the water flow and the water had receded from across a few county roads.

A sheriff's department spokesman said late Friday, "Things remain the same, and the river is down just a little."

High water has been running over a few county roads and crews have placed "high water" warning signs in

April's 2.5 inches of wet snow should fill Salmon Falls Reservoir's capacity

TWIN FALLS — An additional 2.5 inches of wet snow has increased the chances that the Salmon Falls Reservoir will fill to the brim for the first time.

"It's going to take some pretty close watching," said Rich Yankey, district conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

Measurements from automatic stations in the South Hills and other areas draining into Salmon Falls Creek show another 2.5 inches of precipitation during the first two weeks of April. The snowfall already was 67 percent more than normal in the drainage area, the state snow survey office reported.

A lot of rain combined with warm weather could force the Salmon Canal Co. to spill some of the water out of the reservoir this spring, Yankey says.

Canal company manager Larry Ragain says the water level in Salmon Falls Reservoir still is 30 feet below the top, leaving plenty of capacity. The company continues to do routine maintenance on the canals before the opening of the irrigation system in mid-May, Ragain says.

Farmers are not ready to irrigate yet. "I've got plenty of water, if anybody wants it," he says. "I've been trying to give Deep Creek water away."

Deep Creek is full of run-off water and is being diverted down the last quarter of the main canal on the east side of the company's irrigation system, Ragain says.

The canal company manager says he does not know yet whether it will be necessary to spill any water. One year, the reservoir-level rose to within 5 feet of the top.

Salmon Falls Reservoir holds 182,000 acre-feet of water. On April 1, it had 82,600 acre-feet, 45 percent more than last year.

But with the snowpack deep and new accumulations apparent, if the reservoir doesn't fill now, it most likely never will, Ragain says.

affected areas.

Bunn said one county road two miles north and west of Gooding had been washed out, but that no new roads had been closed by flooding on Friday.

Gooding County Agricultural Agent Gene Gibson said the river is flooding along several miles along the west where the Big Wood joins the Malad River.

Gibson said between 400 and 500 acres of farm ground are affected, either under water or inaccessible because of the high water around the fields.

"We're concerned about two or three fields of new seeding alfalfa, and, of course, the grain that's flooded will be lost," he said.

Gibson said he had talked with several farmers Friday afternoon who reported the river was dropping, but it will be weeks before some of the fields can be worked."

The wind also hampered field work

Friday as top soil and sand was being blown around. "We've had a little bit of everything," Gibson said.

Watermaster Hild Newby said the farmers are being flooded with water pouring from the wide-open gates at Magic Reservoir.

The gates have been opened since April 9, when runoff from the Camas Prairie began entering the reservoir, catching water officials off-guard.

Newby said the reservoir is full and water is leaving the reservoir at a rate of 5,720 cubic feet per second, which is about the same rate that it's coming in to the reservoir.

In today's "color" temperatures brought some relief but welcome relief to the situation, officials said, and Newby agreed a cold spell to slow the runoff would be helpful.

Water from the melting snow in the Sawtooth Mountain region has not yet reached the reservoir, Newby explained.

The Little Wood River and Malad River also are running at near record levels in Lincoln and Gooding counties, but no damage has been reported in either county.

"The Malad is as high as I've ever seen it, out of its banks on both sides of the road (State Highway 26)," Gooding Sheriff (U.S. Deputy) Narda-Exon of Bliss said.

Owners of hydro-electric generating plants on the Malad River near Tuttle and the Big Wood River west of Gooding are keeping a close watch on their operations, but no damage due to high water had been reported by Friday.

Chatburn warns of expense

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho taxpayers will pay an unnecessarily high cost for lawmaking if the reorganization plan endorsed by a special legislative committee is not enacted, warns Rep. Ward Chatburn, R-Albion.

Chatburn, chairman of that committee, gives the last-ditch effort only a "50-50" chance of passage. But if no new plan is enacted, he says the cost of conducting the Idaho Legislature will increase by $250,000 a session.

And he says that doesn't include the cost of remodeling the House of Representatives' chambers to accommodate the 14 new members required under a controversial court-ordered plan.

"I hope the public will realize that the quarter-million dollars could be better spent than taking people to Boise," he says. "We might just as well use (it) for schools or law enforcement," he adds.

Chatburn says if the new plan is approved, the state's primary election would have to be delayed, probably until June 5 or June 26.

To become law, the plan will

REP. WARD CHATBURN Points out higher costs have to be approved by the seated Legislature in a special session called by Gov. John Evans.

Chatburn says he believes the governor will call a special session of the Legislature if the bills there is support for the plan among voters and legislators.

But during a meeting of legislative leaders Thursday, House minority leader Harold Reid, D-Craigmont, said 11 of 15 north Idaho Democrats oppose the new plan and prefer the court-ordered plan. And Chatburn says the Senate's ranking Republican leader, President Pat Tom James, R-Boise, "did not seem really receptive" to a special session.

Ex-deputy Olson files damage claim

By JaENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Former sheriff's deputy Jack Olson has filed a $604,683 damage claim against Lincoln County.

County Prosecutor Douglas Rose confirmed the claim was filed Friday afternoon in the county clerk's office and with Sheriff Darwin Mills.

The claim asks for $200,000 for wrongful termination, $200,000 for slander and libel of name and reputation, and $200,000 for malicious prosecution.

Olson also is asking for $4,683.50 in back pay and vacation pay. Olson was suspended without pay from his deputy position on Jan. 17 when petty theft charges were filed against him by Mills.

Mills brought the charges after two Lincoln County residents said they saw Olson purchasing gas for his private vehicle with a county credit card.

Olson was found innocent of the charges by a magistrate's jury in Shoshone on April 9.

Jerome Attorney Greg Fuller said

Lincoln County forms sheriff's appeals board

SHOSHONE — A board of appeals for the sheriff's department has been established in Lincoln County.

Sheriff Darwin Mills asked the County Board of Commissioners at a special meeting Monday to appoint members for the new board.

The appeals board, which is called for in Mills' department policy manual, will hear grievances brought by members of the sheriff's department or other people, dealing with department activities.

The "three-member" board appointed Monday will serve for 12 months. Those members are: Board Chairman Douglas Hansen, Gooding County Sheriff's Chief Deputy Bill Boyer and Monty Baker, also of Gooding County. Baker is the former manager of Blincoe's Magic Valley Meat Packing Co. and is a member of the Gooding County Hospital board.

Lincoln County Prosecuting Attorney Douglas Rosold told the board it was not necessary for all the members of the appeals board to be Lincoln County residents.

"In fact, it might even be preferable to select members from outside the county to assure impartiality in appeals cases."

Friday, "There never was probable cause for filing the charges in the first place."

According to Fuller, Olson was denied his constitutional right to be heard and to have the charges against him discussed with him before the suspension.

"He never, ever, has had a hearing," Fuller said, adding that the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department manual requires accused persons to be interrogated.

Mills says he followed proper procedure when he suspended Olson.

"I already had the evidence and we didn't need to interrogate him," he said.

Olson was fired from his deputy position on April 18.

In the notice of termination, Mills cites the reason for dismissal as "used unacceptable judgment in the performance of his duties."

The notices accuses Olson of: "Inserting the gas nozzle in his private vehicle while purchasing gas for the county patrol."

Telling the mayor of Richfield it was not county policy to issue citations in Richfield.

But charging a traffic-killed beef... Wearing unauthorized sergeant stripes and badge... Leaving his authorized jurisdiction without permission... Using other people's property without permission... Olson has 10 days in which to appeal the decision and request a hearing before the newly formed Lincoln County board of appeals.

"We just got the notice (Friday), and haven't had time to respond"

Filer youth connected to school bomb threats

FILER — A 17-year-old Filer high school student has been arrested in connection with two bomb threats received by the school district.

The youth had been charged with making a threatening and harassing telephone call and released without bond into the custody of his parents, says Filer Police Chief Don Barkley.

Officers Jim Roll and Steve Hopkins investigated the case, arresting the student on a tip from a citizen. The student made the calls as a prank, apparently not realizing the seriousness of the crime, Barkley says.

"It is not a harmless prank," he says. "It costs too much money. And you cry wolf too much and people stop listening. It could put lives in danger."

The first call to the school district was made April 5. The caller did not specify which school the bomb was in, so the Filer elementary, Junior high and high school and the Hollister Elementary School were cleared and searched.

The second call was made on Monday. This time the caller said that a bomb was hidden in the high school, and only that school was cleared of students.

Murtaugh's recreation group may get more park burden

By VICKIE DRAPER
Times-News correspondent

MURTAUGH — Murtaugh's Recreation Association may have to pay to use the city park this summer or take ownership of it.

Mayor Allen Cummins said he felt it unfair for the city to foot the bill for the park when so many city people were using it, noting that there are only 110 people living within the city limits.

Councilman Rob Wright, a member of the recreation association's board who represented the group at the Murtaugh City Council meeting, said approximately 135 men and women played on the recreation association's tennis last summer. He noted it was the first year the association was organized.

It was estimated about 90 percent of the ballplayers live outside city limits.

"I don't think the city is being unfair in asking the association to help pay for the maintenance of the park. I just think we can't come up with it," said Wright, adding he felt the children who played ball on the park should pay also.

Wright said he felt the bids for maintaining the park were too high and could be brought down. He volunteered the recreation association members to water the park, but said no members had equipment to mow it.

It was noted the city would still have to pay over $100 a month to have it mowed.

Cummins asked Wright if the recreation association would take the park if the city gave it to them.

"I just can't answer that," Wright said.

Other suggestions made for the park included selling it or turning it back into pasture land.

Wright said he would take the proposals — to either pay $1,000 to use the park or take over ownership — with board members of the recreation association and would report back to the council at its next meeting.

In other business:

- Councilman Richard Baker reported the city is dumping raw sewage into a drainage ditch on the east end of city park. The ditch runs past the sewage lagoon and into the canyon.
- Baker said there is no threat of sewage getting into wells of surrounding property at present. He said he plans to have the break fixed by next week. Sunny skies are required to dry the cement, said Baker.

Briefly

Correction

TWIN FALLS — The Times-News incorrectly reported Wednesday that Castelford-area rancher Maurice Guerry is seeking a total of $31,000 in attorney fees and other costs from the city of Twin Falls.

Although the story had correctly reported the amount as $24,000 in the first paragraph, the incorrect figure appeared later in the article.

The reimbursement of the costs sought by Guerry are related to his defense against a misdemeanor charge of vehicular manslaughter at a trial held last month. The charge was dismissed before the trial had ended.

Billings to run for seat

TWIN FALLS — Area Democrats will add at least one more legislative candidate to their slate. Opal Billings of Twin Falls announced she will run for House seat 25 in the November general election against Twin Falls attorney Jeff Stoker.

The filing deadline for legislative candidates officially ended Monday, but political parties have until April 24th to appoint candidates to file for vacant positions.

Republican candidates have been nominated for all of the area's legislative districts, but Democrats have only exist for three seats in the district representing Twin Falls County; five seats in the district representing Cassia, Jerome and Minidoka counties; and one seat in Blaine, Camas, Cassia, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka and Twin Falls.

CSi exam offered now

TWIN FALLS — Students planning to enter the College of Southern Idaho this fall can take the required pre-assessment test now to save time at registration.

The college tests vocational and academic students working toward a degree or certification in writing, reading and mathematics before they register for classes, says Ron Langrell, the director of student services personnel. The college's pre-assessment test is used only for class placement and does not affect entrance to the school.

The college uses its own test, instead of national tests like the Scholastic Aptitude Test, because many of its students do not come directly from a high school or decide to attend college just before it begins, Langrell says.

The two-hour test will be given May 11 at 8:30 a.m. at the Buhl High School under the direction of Tom Holmes for students from Buhl, Piler and Castelford.

The test will be given at 9 a.m. on May 8 at Twin Falls High School for students there and Kimberly students. Doris Walts is in charge.

On May 10 the test will be given at 8:30 a.m. at Jerome High School under the direction of Roy Parton. Valley High School students and some Minico High School students may take the test at Jerome.

For more information, students can call the contact people at the three schools or call the CSI student personnel services office at 733-9554.

On May 10 the test will be given at 8:30 a.m. at Jerome High School under the direction of Roy Parton. Valley High School students and some Minico High School students may take the test at Jerome.

Newman's true comment

TWIN FALLS — A story in Friday's Times-News reported that former sailor Dave Newman claimed a chief petty officer used his influence to obtain prestigious assignments on the battleship USS New Jersey for himself and for his friends.

Newman actually alleged only that the chief petty officer used his influence to get the jobs for his friends and to exclude Newman.

Newman said Friday he does not know how the chief petty officer obtained his assignment.

Court rules on disability payments

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has held that the state Industrial Commission must look at factors other than direct medical implications when determining an injured worker's right to disability compensation.

"The test for determining whether a claimant has suffered permanent disability greater than a medical impairment is not whether the claimant is able to return to work at some employment, but rather whether the physical impairment, taken in conjunction with nonmedical factors, has reduced the claimant's capacity for gainful activity," the court said in the decision issued Thursday.

In the disability compensation case, the court ruled that the industrial commission was wrong when it refused to grant Alfred Lee Bennett payments greater than called for under the formula used to evaluate medical injuries.

Bennett, 43, injured his back while working on a ranch near Buhl in 1976 and received disability payments due for that type of injury. But as a result, Bennett, who has no formal education and can neither read nor write, was left unable to work as a laborer, which had been the kind of employment he had had most of his life.

While he could still drive a truck, he was unable to do much of the loading and unloading required or remain behind the wheel for extended periods.

The high court noted that Bennett continued to drive a truck after his injury, but pointed out that just because he did is not evidence that "his ability to engage in gainful activity was not diminished."

Only incumbents have filed in school vote

TWIN FALLS — With a week left to file, only the incumbent board members in the Twin Falls School District have shown any interest in the upcoming election.

Both Eugene Champlin and Calvin Lamborn have taken out filing petitions for the seats in Zone 5 and Zone 2, respectively, says district clerk Jenny Dougherty. Champlin has returned his petition, complete with signatures, she says.

"But no one else has requested a petition. Still, it may be a bit soon to call the election. Since only five signatures are needed to enter the race under Idaho law, challengers can still easily meet the 5 p.m. Friday filing deadline.

The school board election is scheduled for May 15.

Chatburn

The only substantive effect the plan would have on Magic Valley-area representatives on the court-ordered plan is it would abolish the large floating district that includes Blaine, Camas, Cassia, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka and Twin Falls counties. But it would place the eight-county area in an even larger floating district — one covering most of southwest and southcentral Idaho. The plan includes three such floating districts. The others would include all of north Idaho and all of east Idaho.

Chatburn says his reluctance to allow the court-ordered plan to take effect stems from the belief of legislators that the increase in members would not be temporary.

"It will be most difficult to reduce the size of the legislature once it's increased and the members have a vested interest in keeping it so," he says.

Deputy

Fuller said the notice of torte claim filed Friday is against both Lincoln County and Mills.

He said the county has 60 days to respond. "So, make an offer or deny the claim."

"If Fuller does not receive a response in 60 days, he said he will consider the case 'denied,' and file a civil suit in federal district court. "We feel his constitutional and civil rights have been violated with both the theft charge and dismissal from his job."

Rose said the members of the county board and the county's tort insurance carrier have been notified. According to Rose, it is up to the insurance company to approve payment or deny the claim and defend it in court.

But Rose added: "It appears the claim has no foundation and it's frivolous in nature."

Olson, who lived in Richfield, had been with the Lincoln County Sheriff's office for nine years. He is reportedly out of state.

McClure calls wilderness bill a balance of opposing sides

By BOB FICK
The Associated Press

BOISE — Sen. James McClure, on the campaign trail after formally announcing for re-election, defended his much-criticized Idaho wilderness bill Friday, calling it a plan that balances preservation and development.

"It's important that we recognize that these lands have multiple uses and multiple values," the two-term lawmaker told the Idaho Petroleum Council, one of his first appearances since formally announcing for re-election on Thursday.

But McClure also admitted that the decision for a 526,000-acre wilderness bill, smaller than even that proposed by the timber industry, was based on subjective judgments that are being disputed from both sides.

"We're getting shot by people on both sides," McClure said of attacks on the bill for being both too large and too small. "It's a subjective evaluation.

What is the potential value of an area? It depends on where you sit."

The plan, proposed by the state's full congressional delegation but being pushed by McClure, has been severely criticized by environmental groups and Democratic Gov. John Evans for ignoring thousands of acres of scenic wildlands they believe should be protected from future development.

But McClure, 59, the chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, said the decision to limit the addition to the 3.8 million acres of wilderness already protected in Idaho was based on human and economic factors as well as scenic beauty. Those other factors, he said, are critical in a state where the economy relies so heavily on natural resources.

Although McClure faces no GOP challenger in the state's May 22 primary election, the two Democrats vying for the right to face him in November have already made his wilderness stand an issue. But they stand at opposite ends of the debate.

Grangeville real estate broker Louis Hathaway, 49, has called McClure's wilderness bill excessive.

Hathaway, whose 1982 congressional bid was short-circuited by his failure to obtain enough nominating petition signatures, said he opposes any increase in the state's wilderness area because it excludes other uses.

On the other side, Pete Busch, 49, a retired Marine and now a realtor in Lewiston, has accused McClure of supporting a wholesale give-away of Idaho's natural resources to the mining and timber industries.

"I suspect that particular issue is going to be a hard-fought issue," McClure admitted. "There's no way we can make a judgment that satisfies everyone."

Busch has also said he plans to take the conservative incumbent on over McClure's support for huge defense spending and for the Reagan administration's Central American policies.

Truck driver dies in crash

ROOSKIA (AP) — An Everett, Wash., truck driver was killed Thursday afternoon in a single-vehicle accident along U.S. Highway 12 about seven miles east of here. A passenger in the vehicle, also from Everett, suffered bruises.

Richard A. Nunley, 29, a driver for Davis Transport, Inc. of Missoula, Mont., was killed at 12:30 p.m. when the tractor-trailer he was driving went off the right side of the road into a ditch and hit a tree, causing the steering axle to break loose. The vehicle then slid into an embankment, crushing the cab on the driver's side. Nunley died of massive internal injuries, said Idaho State Police Corp. Larry E. Tomlinson.

Youth shelter sued

BOISE (AP) — An Oregon man shot in the neck while he was traveling on the freeway near here has filed a $25,000 lawsuit against a Boise youth shelter home.

Rance Dickson, Vale, Ore., said in a U.S. District Court suit filed April 16 that he was "shot" in the neck on Aug. 22 by two youths who had left the Hays Shelter home. He is seeking $150,000 in general damages and $75,000 in punitive damages. Mrs. Dickson is seeking $100,000 in compensatory damages for loss of consortium.

Dickson and his wife, Cherry, said in the suit the shooting resulted from the shelter home supervisor's negligence and carelessness.

Dickson, 26, was riding in a van on Interstate 84 when he was struck in the neck by a sniper's bullet.

Two youths were arrested in connection with the shooting, but because of their ages, authorities would not disclose the disposition of their cases.

EPA eyes waste heap

NAMPA (AP) — An investigation to determine the pollution hazard from a manure pile on a feedlot is being conducted by the Environmental Protection Agency.

But the man whose property is under investigation says concerns about possible danger to nearby Lake Lowell are "100 percent ridiculous."

Warren McFall of the EPA said water runoff from cattle waste piled on the edge of Elmer Tieg's feedlot could pollute the New York Canal and, eventually, Lake Lowell.

"The rancher has quite a bit of material on the edge of his property," McFall said. "Whether there's any chance of it getting into the lake is not clear, but there is certainly a threat."

McFall gave no indication how long the investigation will take. He said Tieg's has been cooperating.

Tieg is calling the probe "a bunch of manure."

Council endorses gambling resolution

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — The Inland Empire Regional Council has endorsed legislation that would allow Idaho counties to decide individually if they want legalized gambling.

The group of elected and managerial officials from Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho agreed Wednesday that the gambling resolution, with its notion of a county-by-county option, would help emphasize the need for more local government control.

The Idaho Legislature in its last session rejected a bill that would have given counties the chance to vote on local lotteries.

In its original form, the IERC resolution contained a sentence stating the gambling "should be at the level and to the standards found in Las Vegas and Atlantic City."

Jewish scholar says Easter story must be a fact

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Originally, it was a band of shocked, incredulous Jews who told of the event celebrated this Sunday — the resurrection of Jesus. A present-day, scholarly Jew declares it a firmly authenticated fact.

Only that conclusion accords with the evidence, says Pincas Lapide, an Orthodox Jewish professor of Scripture.

Citing various corroborating points, he says the sudden rise and worldwide spread of the church itself could not have been "the result of blind happenstance, or human error," but only of a galvanizing, factual event.

He twits modern Christian theologians for sometimes seeming "ashamed of the material facticity of the resurrection."

"Without the resurrection of Jesus, after Golgotha, there would not have been any Christianity," Lapide writes in a book, "The Resurrection of Jesus: A Jewish Perspective," recently published by the American Lutheran Church's Augsburg Press of Minneapolis. Although affirming the resurrection, Lapide contends that Jesus was not the messiah long awaited by Jews, and rejects the Christian concept of him as the divine son of God.

However, he does regard Jesus as the "savior of the Gentile church," seeing it as springing from and complementing Judaism, accepting its one, universal God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, but differing in considering Jesus divine.

Lapide, a Jewish specialist in the New Testament who teaches at West Germany's Göttingen University writes:

"The experience of the resurrection as the foundation act of the church which has carried faith in the God of Israel into the whole Western world must belong to God's plan of salvation."

However, he says Jesus cannot regard Jesus as their messiah since Orthodox Judaism holds that his coming will establish God's reign of peace and justice for all — something that hasn't happened through Jesus. Lapide sees Jesus as a significant link in God's work toward redemption, but says he is not the final redeemer, since the world remains far from redeemed.

Nevertheless, he contends Jesus' resurrection was real, and the "best proof" of it "is probably the realistic way in which the two oldest gospels (Mark and Matthew) describe the painful death and Jesus' cry of despair on the cross."

Noting that the disciples were "totally disappointed and on the verge of desperate flight because of the very real reason of the crucifixion," he adds:

"It took another very real reason in order to transform them from a band of disheartened and dejected Jews into the most self-confident missionary society in world history."

He says the New Testament accounts themselves could only have been written by men "who are deeply convinced that this miserable dying of the Nazarene neither was nor is the last word of God — that his exit from the world became the entrance into blessedness."

Several Christian scholars have applauded Lapide's work, and while it is controversial among Jewish thinkers, director Irving Greenberg of New York's National Jewish Resource Center calls the book a major breakthrough.

He says it is a "trenchant and moving argument that Christianity brought God's covenant with Israel to the Gentiles without undermining or completing the Jewish hope for total redemption and that this accomplishment could not be based on a fraud, a fabrication or a fantasy."

Lapide says that that however the Easter event is interpreted, "one thing is certain: since all the witnesses of the resurrected Jesus were sons and daughters of Israel, since, moreover, he appeared only in the land of Israel, his resurrection is a Jewish affair which must therefore be judged by Jewish standards if we are to gauge its authenticity."

Noting that New Testament accounts say that more than 500 Jews saw the resurrected Jesus on one occasion, Lapide calls it "a Jewish faith experience," but adds that it was not experienced by most Jews.

However, to attribute it to a vision or hallucination does not explain the revolutionary transformation that followed, he says, adding:

"For a sect or school or an order, perhaps a single vision would have been sufficient — but not for a world religion which was able to conquer the Occident, thanks to the Easter faith."

He points out that two centuries before Jesus, Judaism began believing in a future, generalized resurrection, and he contends that tradition provided the basis of the apostles' faith, the "precondition of their hope against hope that their beloved teacher and master had not been abandoned by the God of Israel."

Lapide, active in Jewish-Christian dialogue, says Jewish participants should start out "with the assumption that Christianity is a faith fellowship desired by God which concerns him 'for God's sake,' even if he does not see in it a way which he himself can or must go."

Holy city's rites

By ALLYN FISHER
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Thousands of Christian pilgrims crowded the narrow stone streets of the old city Friday, following the path that tradition says Jesus took on his way to the Crucifixion nearly 2,000 years ago.

Green-uniformed Israeli border policemen guarded the Good Friday procession along the Via Dolorosa, or "street of pain," mostly from afar, sitting on rooftops. Teenage Palestinian boy scouts from Jerusalem and Bethlehem clasped hands to form a barrier between the bustling old city market and the worshippers.

Israel's state radio estimated there were 30,000 pilgrims in the city. Thousands of Jewish tourists were also visiting the walled city for the week-long Passover festival.

There were noticeably more pilgrims than last year, partly because most Christian faiths were celebrating Easter on the same weekend as the Gregorian and Julian calendars used by the Catholic and Orthodox churches coincided this year.

The peal of bells and the sound of pilgrims' voices singing "Ave Maria" mingled with the high, clear song of Moslem clergymen calling the faithful to prayer in a city that is sacred to three faiths.

The pilgrims, most in organized groups, came from Western Europe, Greece, Cyprus, the United States, Africa and Latin America.

Led by Franciscan monks in brown robes, the pilgrims sang hymns as they wound through the 1,000-yard-long street that connects the 14 Stations of the Cross. One young woman walked the entire distance on her knees, which were bleeding.

"I pray for love and peace for all people and I hope that the Lord will accept this little sacrifice," Barbara Lutz of Vienna, Austria, told reporters as she was passing the third Station of the Cross where Jesus is said to have collapsed under the weight of the cross that he was forced to carry.

"It's like walking alongside him. I am so honored to be here," said Lily Dupont of St. Jamesport, La., with tears in her eyes.

"To think that I am here where it all happened, it's an incredible feeling," said Sister Leonia Donahue of the Sisters of Mercy Order in Worcester, Mass. She said it was her first visit to Jerusalem. Some biblical scholars doubt Jesus took the Via Dolorosa on the way to his crucifixion, but pilgrims have walked it at Easter since the Crusades nearly 900 years ago.

Meanwhile, the Israeli government responded to a statement issued on Holy Thursday by Pope John Paul II that called for "international guarantees" to allow peaceful coexistence of Christians, Moslems and Jews throughout Jerusalem.

"Jerusalem was the capital of the Jewish people throughout history and will remain Israel's capital forever. For the first time in history all believers in Jerusalem enjoy full, free access to the holy places and freedom of worship," said Yossi Amihud, a spokesman for the Foreign Ministry. Israel captured East Jerusalem from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East war and later annexed it. During 19 years of Jordanian rule in the city, Jews could not pray at their holy sites, such as the wailing wall remnant of the ancient Jewish temple.

Most Western countries, including the United States, do not recognize Israeli sovereignty over East Jerusalem, which has a majority Palestinian population.

The controversy, which has resurfaced recently over a congressional bill calling for the United States to move its embassy from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem, and El Salvador's decision to move its embassy to the disputed capital last week.

Ministers join forces

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A group of United Church of Christ pastors and others have formed a new national network to work to bolster spiritual discipline in the denomination, along with its activism for social justice.

The denomination has acquired an "action-oriented identity dedicated to ecumenical cooperation," says the Rev. Bernie Zerke, of Fredrick, Md.

Filipinos crucify selves

SAN PEDRO CUTUD, Philippines (AP) — At least eight Filipinos had themselves nailed to crosses Friday in re-enactments of the Crucifixion in front of thousands of people.

In San Pedro Cutud, a village 60 miles from Manila, three men were crucified in a ricefield as several thousand people watched. Three women and a man went through the same ritual in the adjacent province of Bulacan, as did a man in a Manila suburb.

Mario Castro, a 33-year-old bus driver, was nailed to a cross for the fifth consecutive Good Friday, observed by Christians as the anniversary of Jesus' crucifixion. Castro says it is an act of penance.

Castro was accompanied by men dressed as Roman centurions while he dragged his heavy wooden cross along a dusty road more than a mile to the ricefield, where two other penitents waited on a mound of earth cordoned off with barbed wire.

As a restless crowd of several thousand watched, two of the "centurions" hammered two stainless steel nails through Castro's palms and then hoisted his cross upright for more than three minutes.

He was replaced on the cross by Jerry Mendoza, 24, also a bus driver, and then by Bob Velez, a 42-year-old village basketball coach.

Mendoza said he wanted "to show the people what it is to be a Christ."

As at the other crucifixions Friday, zealots in black hoods stood by and whipped themselves with sharp strips of bamboo, some of which were tipped with shards of glass.

Preacher transfers his ministry to Hammett from Chicago

By DIANA HOOLEY Times-News correspondent

One year Peter Wetendorf was on the streets of Chicago ministering to bums and down-and-outers and the next year he was pastor of a church in Hammett ministering to farmers and ranchers. Wetendorf became a "country" preacher at Hammett after he began his association with Village Missions Inc. four years ago. Wetendorf said he first heard about Village Missions during a missions conference at Moody Bible Institute in Chicago.

"I felt like the Lord was leading me to rural missions and the Village what I wanted was a place where I could minister to the people," Wetendorf said. Village Missions is a nondenominational evangelical mission devoted to the establishment of community centers in rural and suburban Canada and the U.S. Wetendorf said Village Missions sends out husband and wife teams to establish Missions churches by invitation from any individual community.

Wetendorf said there are more than 20 Village Mission churches in Idaho in such places as Bellevue, Fairfield, Arco, Bliss, Bruneau, Mackay and Challis. The goal of these churches, as well as Hammett church, is to become self-supporting. But many Village Mission Churches receive partial support from Stoneport Ministries Inc., which is the parent organization of Village Missions and from out-reaches like Business and Professional Women's Club and Christian Women's Club.

Sitting in the homey living room of their trailer located behind Hammett Community Church, Peter and Lori Wetendorf talk about their life and learn the trade of cabinet-making. Wetendorf smiles as he recalls this period as a time he "grew in faith." Then Wetendorf said he knew what God wanted for his life when he felt a "call" to the ministry. "Through a friend, Wetendorf heard about, and was encouraged to go to, Moody Bible Institute in Chicago to prepare for the ministry. "I was scared about going to college. I parted and messed around all through high school and I'd only been a Christian a year and a half. I even had to write a obituary biography to get admitted and I'll tell you, that wasn't easy."

Wetendorf's wife, Lori, laughs as she hears her husband say this. Lori herself, a graduate of a prestigious Christian school, Wheaton College at Wheaton, Ill., said her husband pulled A's and B's in school. Wetendorf describes his years at Moody as "the greatest years of my life." Shortly after graduating from Moody, Lori and Peter were married and moved to Idaho to start their ministry—L. Hammett—Community Church.

Are city people and country people different? Wetendorf said that though there are some differences, the problems and needs of people anywhere, he's convinced, are essentially the same. Lori Wetendorf adds, though, that since coming to Hammett they have had to minister to many people with family problems.

WHY CALVARY?

Calvary Chapel has been formed as a fellowship of believers in the Lordship of Jesus Christ.

We believe in the verbal inspiration of the Bible. In God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, the deity of Christ, His virgin birth, His blood atonement, His bodily resurrection, Salvation is "by Grace" through faith in Christ, plus nothing more nothing.

Our supreme desire is to know Christ and to be conformed into His Image by the power of the Holy Spirit.

We are not a denominational fellowship; nor are we opposed to denominations as such, only their doctrinal deviations, of the doctrinal differences that have led to the division of the Body of Christ.

We believe that the only true basis of Christian fellowship is His (Agape) love, which is greater than any differences we possess and without which we have no right to claim ourselves as Christians.

What's what

Add Country Western lyrics: "I wouldn't take you to a dogfight, even if I thought you could win." "Don't tell me you're sorry. I know how sorry you are." "It took a hell of a man to take my Ann, but it sure didn't take him long." "When the phone don't ring, you'll know it's me." "I'd rather have a bottle in front of me than a frontal lobotomy."

She spun yarn until she married, then she wove it. The word "spinstar" alludes to that. So does the word "wife," which comes from the verb "to weave." Spinning and weaving actually identified women. A "distaff," for example, was the staff that held the fiber for a spinning wheel. Now it's the female side of anything. Many a European greave is marked with a spear or a spindle to designate man or woman.

STATUE OF LIBERTY

The waters surrounding the Statue of Liberty are New Jersey waters. But Liberty Island itself, on which the statue stands, has been adjudged part of New York with a New York post office address. Such is the latest report on the legal whereabouts of the Statue of Liberty.

Claim is there are more publishers in Santa Barbara, Calif., and more writers in Washington, D.C., than anywhere else in the world.

Still-imprisoned Nazi Hess to turn 90

By VOLKER ADAM
The Associated Press

BERLIN — Rudolf Hess marks his 90th birthday next week in West Berlin's Spandau prison with the Soviet Union still adamantly blocking parole for Adolf Hitler's former deputy.

A prisoner since his "peace flight" to Britain in 1941, Hess appears destined to serve out the life sentence imposed by the Nuremberg war crimes tribunal for his role in planning and carrying out Nazi Germany's war of aggression.

His son, Wolf Ruediger Hess, a Munich businessman, has applied to visit him on his birthday, April 26, as he did last year. Other family members may also go along.

Hess has been the only prisoner since 1958 at Spandau, which is operated by the Four Power victors over Nazi Germany — the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union.

Western powers have long urged his release on "humanitarian grounds," with Britain renewing the appeal April 16. But Moscow insists that Hess remain behind bars as a "symbol of the victory over Hitler fascism."

In West Germany, Hess is referred to as the "world's most expensive prisoner." The Bonn government has spent the equivalent of $7.7 million to pay for the prisoner since 1965.

An official wall of silence has been erected around Hess, with the Allies refusing to comment and his family, which he is permitted monthly visits, forbidden from discussing his situation.

An informant who could not be

RUDOLF HESS
Lone Spandau prisoner

Identified in any way told The Associated Press that Hess is in remarkably good health for his age despite reported stomach and circulation problems in recent years.

The source said the aging Hess refuses to make use of a $47,300 elevator built last year to ferry him to and from his tiny cell to the prison yard where he is permitted daily walks — twice around the area bounded by a high brick wall.

The informant said Prisoner No. 7, the last surviving member of the Nazi hierarchy, is awakened daily at 6 a.m.

In his 9-by-7½ foot cell and given breakfast an hour later.

He is permitted to read four newspapers daily, all censored of references to his case or the Nazi regime — a subject he is forbidden to read about or discuss, according to the terms of his imprisonment.

Hess can receive and write one letter-per-month and watch some television if he submits a request in advance.

Although Hess is forbidden to see anything connected with the Third Reich, the informant said he came on a published report about the bogus "Hitler diaries" published by Stern magazine last year and found the hoax amusing.

Once a month, Hess is permitted a family visitor for one hour. An extra Christmas visit is allowed for a two-hour period. Meetings take place in a special room, separated by a wooden wall with an open window, in the presence of the four Allied wardens of Spandau. No body contact is permitted.

The informant said Hess's son usually visits. His elderly and ailing wife, Ilse, last visited Spandau prison in October 1981.

Authorities have not said what will become of Spandau prison after Hess' death.

'Hermit' gets offers for help

OCALA, Fla. (AP) — An 83-year-old man evicted from a national forest campground after two years of living like a hermit has received offers of help from as far away as Wisconsin and Connecticut.

"Floyd Hall is the biggest celebrity we've had here since Howard Hughes," Dirk Miller, manager of the Salvation Army in Ocala, said.

Miller estimated he had more than 100 calls Wednesday and Thursday after reports spread of Hall's eviction Tuesday for oversteering his stay as a camper in the Ocala National Hall, who has lived out of his 1971 Chevrolet station wagon for about two years, said in an interview that he had often dined on garbage left by campers in the wilderness. He shared the rusted-out car with two large dogs and five cats.

Miller said officials of the state Department of Health and Rehabilitation Services had put Hall up at the Avalon Motel in Ocala, a former inn converted to a boarding house.

"We handle people who don't have anything," said James Stark, owner of the motel.

Designation iries brewers

DETROIT (AP) — Three of the nation's top four breweries are battling in federal court over the use of the letters "LA" to designate low-alcohol beer.

Anheuser-Busch, the nation's largest brewery, is test-marketing a low-alcohol beer in 11 cities while Stroh Brewery Co. and G. Heileman Brewing Co. soon plan to test-market their own low-alcohol brands.

Anheuser-Busch, of St. Louis, filed suit Wednesday in federal court in St. Louis against Stroh and in East St. Louis, Ill., against Heileman, said spokesman Jim Morice.

Morice said his company is seeking injunctions against its competitors' use of the "LA" designation for low-alcohol beers. The company's brand is called "LA from Anheuser-Busch," he said.

Meanwhile, Stroh, the nation's No. 3 brewery, sued Anheuser-Busch in federal court in Detroit on Thursday, seeking $5 million in damages and a judgment that "LA" is generic, thus making it available for all brewers making a low-alcohol product," said Stroh spokesman Christopher W. Lofe.

Stroh plans to introduce Schaefer L.A. next month in Houston.

Gemayel, Assad reach agreement

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Amin Gemayel returned Friday with Syrian backing for a plan to create a half-Christian, half-Muslim government designed to guide Lebanon out of nine years of civil war.

The agreement between Gemayel and Syrian President Hafez Assad came in 11 hours of talks in Damascus, the Syrian capital, Thursday and early Friday. It was described by Syria's official news media as "a great success."

Lebanese and Syrian officials said a new coalition Cabinet with 26 members would be formed early next week, probably under the premiership of Rashid Karami, a veteran Sunni Muslim politician allied with Syria.

Reports from Damascus, on which Lebanese sources declined to comment, said Druse leader Walid Jumblatt would be appointed vice premier for security and Shiite Muslim leader Nabih Berri would be named vice-premier for economic affairs. Syria backs Jumblatt's and Berri's factions in their battle against Gemayel and rightist Christian militias.

The Cabinet would replace a nine-man caretaker government under Prime Minister Shafiq Wazzan, who resigned in early February when Druse and Shiite militiamen wrested control of mostly Muslim west Beirut from the Lebanese army.

Opposition leaders, including Jumblatt and Berri, have insisted that no new Cabinet can be formed until reforms are in effect, giving Muslims an equal share of power with Christians in all government offices.

The sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said Gemayel and Assad agreed to have Lebanese Muslims and Christians share executive and legislative powers equally, and that Assad pledged to prevail upon the Lebanese opposition to permit the creation of the Cabinet now.

Envoy to 'Contadora'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry W. Shaubman, the U.S. special envoy for Central America, will return to the region Sunday to begin a visit to the so-called Contadora nations concerned with finding peaceful solutions to the problems plaguing the area, the State Department announced Friday.

Shaubman will begin his travels with a visit to Bogota, Colombia, said department spokesman John Hughes. He said the rest of the special envoy's itinerary will be announced day by day.

State Department sources said Shaubman, who returned from a 10-day trip to the five Central American nations on April 5, also will visit Mexico, Panama and Venezuela, the other Contadora nations.

"His mission as special envoy remains an important part of the United States' effort to remain in close contact with and support of the Contadora countries as they strive to reach peaceful solutions to the crisis in Central America," Hughes said.

Russians rip Reagan trip

MOSCOW (AP) — The official Soviet media said Friday that President Reagan is using his trip to China to strengthen U.S. military positions in Asia and boost his re-election campaign.

"In the election year, the president would like to be regarded as a peacemaker. He needs this image badly, since the results of his foreign policy did more harm than good to the United States."

Commentaries on Reagan's visit, which begins April 22, also leveled charges at China, with which Moscow has cool relations despite several rounds of normalization talks.

A commentator for Novosti, the Soviets' No. 2 news agency, wrote:

Colts' court battle goes on

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge William E. Stecker, as expected, on Friday rejected a Baltimore request to stay an order which freed the National Football League to deal with the Indianapolis Colts.

Stecker denied without comment the motion by attorney Edwin Thomas, who said earlier he expected that decision by the judge and would take the case to the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago.

Thomas did not say when that appeal would be filed.

The NFL had been prohibited from operating with the Colts in Indianapolis under an injunction issued two weeks ago by a Baltimore judge. Approval of player contracts and television and radio agreements would have been delayed had the injunction been upheld.

During a hearing here Wednesday and Thursday, the Colts and the Capital Improvement Board of Indianapolis, which runs the new Hoosier Dome that will be the Colts' home, argued that the injunction against the NFL would severely damage their operations.

Stecker's ruling, which he said was "effective immediately," referred only to the Baltimore injunction and its effects on the NFL's operations with the Colts. It was the latest, but not the last, development in the legal tug-of-war for the Colts between their former home city and their operations.

Eagles divide double-header

EPHRAIM, Utah — College-of-Southern Utah enjoyed 10 more of good pitching and hitting Friday against Snow College's Badgers.

The problem was, the teams played 14 innings and the Golden Eagles wound up splitting a double-header to settle their record at 2-3.

The Eagles, riding the shutout pitching of Tim Peters, romped to a 12-0 opening victory and then burst ahead 6-0 in the first three innings of the nightcap.

"But at that point they got the momentum and we didn't take it back," said Coach Jim Walker. "I contributed some of that because I did a lot of substituting going into the fourth inning of the second game. We just didn't do much at the plate for the next three innings and they really got it going."

CSI had taken the lead with a five-run outburst in the second inning when Blake Jensen singled and Greg Robbins and Dave Garro drew walks. A fielder's choice scored one and Lynn VanEvery drove in two with a double.

But the Badgers replied with three runs in the third and tied things with three more in the fifth. They jumped on Val Sandberg and Charles Carter for a clinching five runs in the sixth.

CSI bounced back with three in the top of the seventh as Shell Scott and Jim Cryer drew walks and Jensen placed one with a hit. Mike Randall followed with a two-run double but the Eagles couldn't get another hit.

"We still gotta prove we can play two games in a row," Walker said. "Everytime we've had a test and had to prove we can handle it. I'm still waiting. I hope I don't have to wait until the climax of the season and then start waiting for next year."

Walker was happier with things in the first game when Peters breezed to the victory, inducing Snow to hit 15 groundouts to the infield in the seven innings.

Meanwhile, CSI slumped 14 hits around the park — and two of them out of it.

Steve Caputo led off with a single and Jeff Schow lived on an error. That set up RBIs for Scott's double, a wild pitch and then Jensen's sacrifice fly.

VanEvery belted a solo homer in the second and Mike Randall drilled a two-run shot in the sixth after Dave Garro pinch-slugged.

In the seventh, singles by Scott, Jensen, Cryer and Caputo, a walk and Schow's triple showed five more CSI runs across.

CSI remains in Utah today, meeting the BYU Union varsity in a single game in Provo.

The Eagles will return to Twin Falls Tuesday when they will host Ricks in a double-header that will help decide which of the two will advance to the regional playoffs. CSI and Ricks play four times with the series winner earning the right to play either Treasure Valley or North Idaho.

Nets start thinking about sweep after beating Sixers again

By The Associated Press

"We're going for a sweep," said a confident Michael Ray Richardson. Richardson had just scored 32 points, handed out nine assists and made four steals as the New Jersey Nets beat the Philadelphia 76ers 116-102 Friday night.

The surprising Nets now lead the defending champion 76ers, two games-to-none in their first-round National Basketball Association best-of-five playoff series.

The Nets go home to East Rutherford, N.J., for Game 3 Sunday. A fourth if necessary would be in New Jersey Tuesday, with the fifth game scheduled for Philadelphia Thursday.

"We don't want to come back here," said Richardson, whose 19 points helped the Nets win the opening game of the series Wednesday night.

"We know it's going to be a dog fight but we want to win it at home," Richardson said.

Richardson, who beat a drug problem to come back to the NBA, observed, "The 76ers look like a team that is puzzled."

Richardson shot 12 of 23 from the field, including three three-point field goals.

One was a clutch shot with 5:51 left as the Nets fighting off a furious Philadelphia rally that had reduced a 24-point deficit to five. He followed that with a three-point play.

New Jersey Coach Stan Albeck said, "I can't explain what's happening. This team continues to surprise me ... Michael Ray Richardson had just a tremendous basketball game. We all know about his problem but you saw a true return to form of an all-star."

Sixers coach Billy Cunningham said, "Richardson just killed us in the first half (24 of his 32 points). All their players played well."

The 76ers lost Maurice Cheeks with 4:06 left in the third period and the score 81-62. Cheeks suffered a cut above his left eye that took four stitches.

Lakers 109, Kings 102
At Inglewood, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 26 points as the Los Angeles Lakers, staving off a late rally by Kansas City, downed the Kings 109-102 to take a 2-0 lead in their series.

The best-of-five series now switches to Kansas City for a day game Sunday.

After trailing 71-54 midway through the third period, the Kings stormed back to pull to within 83-81 early in the final quarter before the Lakers began widening the margin again.

Los Angeles spurred to a 101-91 lead with 3:20 left.

Los Angeles had built a substantial lead in the second period, reeling off a 16-4 string in the quarter en route to a 56-41 advantage at halftime.

The Lakers then maintained their edge until late in the third period, when the Kings began chipping away at the lead. Heading into the final period, Kansas City had narrowed the deficit to 89-87.

The victory was the Lakers' 25th in a row over the Kings at the Forum, stretching back 10 years.

Blazers 52, Suns 116
At Portland, the Trail Blazers, paced by 27 points from Jim Paxson and 26 from Mychal Thompson, withstood "a furious fourth-quarter Phoenix rally for a 123-116 victory over the Suns."

The Portland triumph squared the best-of-five series at 1-1 with the third game to be played Sunday night in Phoenix.

Thompson added 13 rebounds as the Blazers dominated the backboards after being outboarded badly in the series opener loss to Phoenix Wednesday night.

Thompson and Darnell Valentine triggered a 39-point third quarter as the Blazers opened a 103-83 advantage. Portland stretched the margin to 21 points early in the fourth quarter.

"That's when Walter Davis started bombing away from long range and pulled the Suns back into the game."

Davis, who scored 17 of his 25 points in the fourth quarter, sank a pair of free throws with 1:06 to go to tie the Portland lead to 118-116.

Kenny Carr's inside basket on a pass from Valentine with 50 seconds to play stretched the lead to four. Free throws by Calvin Natt and Carr provided the final margin.

'Tired' Olympic basketball candidates get rest

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Coach Bobby Knight, saying the Olympic basketball hopefuls look "a little bit tired," called off one of the practice sessions Friday, the eve of the first outdow of the 72-player roster.

Fatigue from the demanding three-day trial sessions which began Tuesday was a factor in the change, Knight told a midday news conference. "We want to make sure they are as fresh as possible for the game situation (serimimmage) tonight and the reduced number of kids to play affectively Saturday and Sunday," he said.

"I see fatigue in everybody," forward Michael Cage of San Diego State added. Five players missed Friday morning's workout due to minor injuries — guard Bruce Douglas (sore knee) and forward Efrem Winters (foot) of Illinois; center Joe Kleine (sore back) of Arkansas; forward Chuck Person (high) of Auburn, and forward Walter Berry (back spasms) of San Jacinto Junior College in Texas.

The squad will be reduced by about 30 players Saturday. Knight said he is surviving 20 to 30 players will be split into teams for Saturday and Sunday night doubleheaders at Indiana University's 17,000-seat Assembly Hall. Both doubleheaders have been sold out.

After the weekend doubleheaders the team will be reduced to between 16 and 18 players on Monday morning. The final 12-player U.S.

roster must be submitted to the International Olympic Committee by July 14 for the Summer Games in Los Angeles.

Knight pointed out that no additions can be made after the final cut, even in case of an injury, so he and his staff are looking for versatile players, those who can double at guard and forward or forward-center.

The trials they'd come out two almost-different teams," said Knight. "There could be tremendous variance. But we're looking to play."

Knight said the U.S. team's needs include players who can shoot against a zone, defensive players who can help the team come from behind, free-throw shooting and inside offensive players.

"The final makeup will cover as broad an area as we can get, with the focal point defensive play."

While Knight and his staff refused to offer any hints on which players would stick, many players praised the play of Charles Barkley, Auburn's 6-foot-6, 284-pound forward.

"I saw him on TV and I thought he was too big (in the stomach) to play," said center Jon Koneak. "But he has come on very strong here. He can run, shoot, rebound and handle the ball."

Charles Barkley is shown in a black and white photograph, appearing to be in a workout or practice session. He is wearing a dark jersey and shorts, and is captured in a dynamic pose, possibly during a drill or game.

LAOOC delegation to meet with dissatisfied Russians

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee delegation headed by president Peter V. Ueberroth will meet with sports officials from the Soviet Union which has been critical of arrangements for the Games, it was announced Friday.

Ueberroth said in a prepared statement that the International Olympic Committee meeting next Tuesday in Lausanne, Switzerland, would provide "a good opportunity to sit down and clarify misunderstandings or misconceptions that exist, and to settle things one way or the other."

Soviet officials last week indicated that their decision on sending their athletes to the games in Los Angeles was still up in the air.

The Soviets charged that the U.S. government is violating the Olympic charter and asked for a special session with the IOC leadership. Juan Antonio Samaranch, IOC president, then set up Tuesday's meeting.

The LAOOC had received a list of complaints from the Soviets' National Olympic Committee about preparations for the Games, but Ueberroth had branded them

"for the most part, baseless."

The LAOOC's decision to attend the meeting was not made until Friday.

"We made our decision to attend today when we received confirmation from the IOC, the USSR embassy in Washington, and the USSR National Olympic Committee that a very high-level USSR sports delegation would also participate in the meeting," Ueberroth said in the prepared statement.

Marat Gramov, president of the USSR's Olympic Committee, will head the Soviet delegation at the session.

"We determined that this meeting was in the best interest of the Olympics," Ueberroth said.

The LAOOC delegation, which will depart Sunday, includes David Simon, vice president for government relations; Jerry C. Welsh, special consultant to the LAOOC, and Army Quinn, press secretary.

Although Ueberroth's statement said the LAOOC hopes to "settle things one way or the other," Quinn noted that the Soviets have until June 2 to officially respond to their invitation to the Games.

Among the Soviets' complaints has been that President Reagan is using the Games for political advantage in this election year, and that his administration is tacitly sanctioning private groups seeking to ban Soviet athletes from participating.

The accreditation of Radio Free Europe, which the Soviets consider a U.S. government propaganda instrument, has also drawn criticism.

Last week, the Soviets announced that they were withdrawing their team from the Olympics tennis competition.

Birmingham-Oklahoma duel highlights USFL's weekend

By The Associated Press

Leave it to Rolfe Detsch to find the crack in the Oklahoma Outlaws armor.

The possibility of thunderstorms has been forecast for tonight's United States Football League game in Birmingham. When someone mentioned to Detsch, the coach of the Stallions, that the Outlaws are 5-0 in the rain, he replied: "I know, but they're also 0-1 playing at night." In tonight's only other game, the 4-4 Arizona Wranglers beat the Houston Gamblers, 5-3. Sunday's games are Denver at New Orleans, Philadelphia at San Antonio, New Jersey at Pittsburgh and Washington at Oakland. On Monday night it's Tampa Bay at Michigan.

All six of Oklahoma's victories have been by seven points or less. Two came in the last four seconds of regulation and one was in overtime. "They just hang in there against you, and wait for a break," Detsch said. "They just keep finding a way to win."

Eugen Herrera, who hit winning field goals in the three contests, said, "I like kicking with the game on the line. I'm selfish. I wish every game came down to me winning it with a field goal. Maybe I'm crazy, but I love the pressure."

Oklahoma quarterback Doug Williams has passed for 1,675 yards and eight touchdowns. But the Outlaws are last in the league in rushing while the Stallions are first as Joe Cribbs has a league-leading 831 yards.

Cliff Stoudt has thrown for 1,152 yards and seven touchdowns and also is Birmingham's third-leading runner with 200 yards.

Jacksonville 12, Memphis 10

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Jacksonville linebacker Douglas West tackled running back Alan Reid in the end zone for a safety late in the fourth quarter to give the Bulls a 12-10 victory over the Memphis Showboats in a United States Football League game Friday night.

The safety came with 2:46 to go in the game when Memphis quarterback

Walter Lewis handed off the ball to Reid at the Memphis 20. Reid carried the ball backward into the end zone and was tackled by West, a rookie from UCLA.

Another rookie, Bulls quarterback Ken Hobart from Idaho, was given his first start but taken out in the second quarter. He completed two of 10 passes for 26 yards and suffered three interceptions.

Chicago 49, Los Angeles 29

CHICAGO (AP) — Quarterback Vince Evans ran for two touchdowns and threw for another to lead the Chicago Blitz to a 49-29 victory over the Los Angeles Express in United States Football League action Friday night.

Running back Gary Worthy, activated just prior to the game, rushed for 119 yards and one touchdown in the Blitz's best offensive effort of the season.

Besides his two 1-yard scoring runs,

Evans completed 13 of 25 passes for 134 yards and a 5-yard scoring strike to Vagas Ferguson as the Chicago Improved to 3-6.

Los Angeles, 3-6, was paced by rookie quarterback Steve Young, who completed 25 of 37 passes for 282 yards and one touchdown, a 6-yarder late in the fourth quarter, to Jojo Townsell. Young also rushed 16 times for 120 yards and scored on a 25-yard run. He also ran for a pair of 2-point TD conversions.

Bald Mountain open later

SUN VALLEY — Sun Valley Co. will keep its ski operations on a portion of Bald Mountain until May 6, its latest closing date ever.

"It will probably be the longest season in the history of Sun Valley," says Chuck Webb, the company's assistant manager.

Webb says all but the lower ski lifts on the River Run side of the mountain are now open, but the company will begin pulling skis to the north slopes for the last couple of weeks and operate just on the Warm Springs side.

Snow-making operations that give runs a hard, long-lasting base and improved grooming have given ski runs a longer life than before, Webb says. Last year, the mountain closed on May 1.

Dollar Mountain, the company's beginner and intermediate slope, will close Sunday, he said.

Big bowler loses lead

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Steve Cook, the biggest man on the Professional Bowlers Association Tour, lost more than half of his lead Friday in the fifth round of the $200,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions.

The 6-foot-7, 285-pound Cook, from Roseville, Calif., led his brother-in-law, Mike Aubly of Indianapolis, by 117 pins going into the sixth round late Friday night at Riviera Lanes.

The leading five bowlers after the 24 match games will qualify for the nationally televised finals today (ABC-TV, Channel 6, 1:30-3 p.m. MST) in the bid for the sport's largest first prize, $40,000.

Cook, who led Aubly by 245 pins Thursday night, won only five of eight matches in the fifth round. One of his losses was a 201-pin decision to Aubly.

The 1981 Firestone champion, Cook had a 40-game pinfall of 9,148. Aubly's total was 9,031 while third-place Joe Salvomini of Reno, Nev., collected 4,300 pins. The three leaders are all left-handers. Two right-handers were fourth and fifth.

Nick Faldo clenches a fist in satisfaction after sinking a birdie putt on the 5th green Friday.

England's Faldo notches 67 for 2-stroke Heritage edge

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Nick Faldo of England, the best player in Europe last season and eagerly seeking his first American title, shot a 4-under-par 67 and moved out to a two-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $400,000 Sea Pines Heritage Classic.

"My game is as good right now, maybe even a little bit better" than when he swept five European titles last season, Faldo said.

"My No. 1 objective this season is to win in this country," he said. "That's another step up the ladder."

The 26-year-old Faldo, a three-time winner of the British PGA title, completed two trips over the respected Harbour Town Golf Links in 133, nine shots under par.

"A good score," he said.

Tom Kite, a winner in Miami earlier this season and a Masters contender until he hit into the water on the 12th hole of the final round, was his closest pursuer.

"I'm just playing well," said Kite, twice the winner of the Vardon Trophy that goes to the tour's leader in stroke average.

He finished off a 67 with a 30-foot birdie putt on the final hole and had a 135 total.

"I'm doing everything right. It's just fun to be out there," Kite said.

Ronnie Black and Dan Pohl, each with a second-round 67, were another stroke back at 136.

Larry Rinker and first-round leader Gil Morgan finished 36 holes at 137. Rinker had a 70. Morgan, who hit only nine greens in regulation, a 73.

Bob Gilder was next at 68-138.

The big group at 139 included PGA champion Hal Sutton, defending title-holder Fuzzy Zoeller, Cal Peete, Nick Price of South Africa, two-time Heritage champion Hubert Green and Lanny Wadkins, Peete and Wadkins had 69s, Sutton and Green 70s, and Price and Zoeller 71s.

Faldo, now a regular on the American tour, played the front in 4-under-par 32, including a 30-foot birdie putt on the fifth and a very good save of par after driving into the moss-covered oak trees on the right of the eighth fairway.

But the key to his effort, he said, was a couple of birdies on the back.

He bogeyed both the 11th and 12th, each time catching a bunker, and was drifting back toward the pack.

He retrieved those two strokes, however, with a 25-foot birdie putt on the 12th hole and dropped a 12-foot putt after an 8-iron shot into the tough little 14th.

"That sort of saved the day," he said. "I'd dropped two in a hurry and it was nice to get them back nice and quick."

WBA welterweight champ Curry claims he'll dominate challenger

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Defending champion Don "The Cobra" Curry says his speed and quickness will overcome the raw power of Venezuelan Elio Diaz in today's nationally televised World Boxing Association welterweight title fight.

"I'm much faster and Diaz will also find out I can hit too," says Curry, 22, who will be making the third defense of his 147-pound title.

Hometown hero Curry is 18-0 with 13 knockouts while Diaz is 34-0 with 32 knockouts.

The scheduled 15-round bout in Will Rogers Coliseum will begin about 3:30 p.m. MST and will be televised by ABC.

Curry receives $300,000 and a percentage of the gate while Diaz gets $100,000 plus the Venezuelan television rights. Bob Arum of Top Rank, Inc. is co-promoting the fight with Bob Sawyer of Sawyer Entertainment Enterprises.

Diaz is ranked No. 1 by the WBA.

Curry, who won the title from South Korean Jun Sok Hwang, Feb. 13, 1983, in Tarrant County Convention Center, defeated No. 2 contender Marlon Starling earlier this year in Atlantic City.

"I'm glad the fight is here," says Curry. "It's going to put that much more pressure on me — pressure I like."

Curry says he is thinking knockout. "I would like to stop Diaz," Curry says. "I think it would be bad for me if he went the distance.

"I don't predict it but the number eight keeps popping up in my head. I hope he gets KO'd in the eighth round."

Curry trained hard in Arizona, doing up to six miles of roadwork per day.

Boone

The 21-year-old Diaz was a member of his country's 1980 Olympic team, losing his first bout in Moscow.

Diaz, who took up organized boxing when he was 14, compiling a 44-6 amateur record before he turned professional.

"I beat everybody on the street and there was nobody left to fight so they took me to the gym to fight some other guys," he says. "I liked it."

Diaz says Curry is overrated.

"He's a good boxer but I don't have a great impression of him. People say they don't know me but they will soon."

Diaz adds, "Curry won the title on the basis of beating a guy who didn't have credentials in the first place."

Diaz has a reputation of being a "South American Sugar" — Ray Leonard — and says it would be a much bigger fight in his country.

Bruins' win ends 2nd-place streak

ONTARIO, Ore. — The Twin Falls Bruins ended their role as bridesmaids by winning the Ontario High School Golf Invitational Friday.

Playing in howling winds, the Bruins, who had finished second in two previous appearances here, nipped co-runners-up Capital and Meridian by two strokes.

"The score wasn't great — but then neither was the weather," said Coach Al Rohweder after his team won with a 341 score.

Medalist honors went to Mitch Lowe of Capital at 76, making him the only player in the first to better 80. Twin Falls' scoring ran Larry Waldron and Flynn McRoberts 82. Jason Meyerhoefer 84 and Jeff Sutherland 93.

Twin Falls, which saw its conference match in Sand Creek rained out at about the midpoint, winds up this season at Idaho Falls Country Club Thursday. A victory there would ice a third-straight league championship.

Twin Falls meets Minico at the Rupert Country Club May 3 for the right to advance to the state tournament.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff: What about the tactics of redoubling? Should one redouble whenever he thinks he's going to make a contract...

ANSWER: Only if he is sure that the dealer will not reconsider and retreat to a relatively safer spot for his side. For example, a doubled game contract made for game and rubber is worth much more than collecting a 500 point penalty against a runout.

ANSWER: There are two sets of laws that govern a bridge game, one for Rubber Bridge and one for Duplicate. The latest edition of the Rubber Bridge Code is dated June 1, 1981.

ANSWER: Cash the ace and finesse the jack best by only a small margin. Close behind it is to play both honors hoping to drop a doubleton queen.
