Wilderness pact: compromise or defeat for McClure?

By HAL BERTON Times-News writer

Analysis

TWIN FALLS — Wednesday's wilderness agreement between Sen. James McClure and Rep. John Seiberling, D-Ohio, was either an historic compromise or an ignominious defeat for Idaho's senior senator, depending on who you talk to.

The agreement broke a lengthy congressional stalemate between Senate and House committees dealing with wilderness legislation, freeing for congressional consideration more than 3.5 million acres of proposed wilderness in Idaho and four other western states.

Bill Livingstone, a McClure press aide, says the senator wrung "major concessions" in the agreement from the conservation-minded Seiberling, who chairs a House subcommittee that must approve all wilderness legislation.

Wilderness Society representative, says the agreement was no feather in McClure's cap "It was his first chance to play a leadership role and he failed miserably. The stalemate was about whether "hard" or "soft" release language would be included in all of the wilderness bills now under consideration by Congress. These two terms are probably Greek to most of the outdoor enthusiasts who enjoy Idaho's public lands. But they have been the code words that separated conservationists from industry groups in the heated congressional debate

U.S. denies stand in Salvador election

By GEORGE GEDDA The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The State Department denied on Friday allegations that it is supporting, through indirect funding and other measures, center-left candidate Jose Napoleon Duarte in Sunday's presidential elections in El Salvador.

"The United States government has scrupulously avoided taking sides in the Salvadoran election," State Department spokesman John Hughes said.

Responding to press reports of U.S. funding to a pro-Duarte labor confederation, the Salvadoran Communal Union, Hughes acknowledged that the group has received $1.1 million in U.S. money but said its purpose is to increase the number of applicants under the land reform program, among other non-political objectives.

"The union movement has its own interests and union leaders are undoubtedly supporting candidates who favor these interests," Hughes said.

According to published reports, some 400 grass roots organizers from the union have been working full-time for the Duarte campaign for the past month.

As for allegations that the CIA has supplied funds to a pro-Duarte Venezuelan publicity agency known as IVEPCO, Hughes said the firm provided assistance to three different parties in the first round of balloting on March 25.

He also noted that IVEPCO has denied receiving any covert assistance.

Concerning the U.S. denial of a visa two months ago to Duarte's opponent, rightist leader Roberto D'Aubuisson, Hughes said the administration asked all presidential candidates to refrain from U.S. visits during the electoral period.

However, Hughes did not address the administration's decision last Nov. 30 — before the campaign began — to reject a prior visa application from D'Aubuisson.

At the time, Hughes said that to have issued a visa "might well have conveyed signals" suggesting a lack of U.S. interest in protecting human rights.

He said then he did not mean to "ascribe culpability" to D'Aubuisson for rights abuses. Privately, however, U.S. officials have said there is strong evidence linking D'Aubuisson to rightist death squads. D'Aubuisson has denied such allegations.

In his statement Friday, Hughes said Secretary of State George Shultz affirmed American neutrality in the election process to Salvadoran leaders during a meeting with the candidates in San Salvador on Jan. 31.

500,000 greet pope's visit to a conflict-crippled Korea

By SAMUEL KOO The Associated Press

TAEGU, South Korea — An estimated 500,000 people greeted Pope John Paul II today as he arrived in this industrial city, where he called on Korea's Roman Catholic priests to stand firmly with the oppressed and poor.

Huge crowds of school children and adults waving flags and shouting "Mansel!" — Long live! — greeted the pontiff along the 4-mile motorcade from the airport to the citizens' stadium.

Security men scurried around the stadium, packed with 75,000 ticket holders, most of whom were young people.

In a homily at the open-air stadium Mass, the pope said the nation's Catholic priests must support "the poor, the sick, the outcasts, the downtrodden, the oppressed, the sinners."

John Paul, on the third day of a five-day trip to South Korea, was to fly later to Pusan, the major southern port city, and address another open-air gathering.

The Mass here included the ordination of 38 priests. While awaiting the pope's arrival, student bands played Polish and Korean folk songs to welcome the Polish-born pope. The weather was warm and hazy.

On Friday in the capital city of Seoul, John Paul denounced "naked terrorism" such as last year's bombing in Burma that shattered the top rank of the South Korean government. He said "Korea's problems are emblematic of a divided world."

Communist North Korea and U.S.-called South Korea "are a symbol of a world situation that cries out for a response, a new attitude, a new heart," the pontiff told foreign diplomats assembled in Seoul. His Korean visit is the first of an 11-day tour of Asia.

While the pope met hundreds of foreign journalists in Seoul, 5,000 students clashed with police at Korea University, although the protests over the last two days did not appear to be aimed at the pontiff. School sources said about 1,000 students occupied a library Friday evening.

Job creation keeps pace with demand

By MERRILL HARTSON AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON — Civilian unemployment stood firm at 7.8 percent in April, as a hiring bonanza reaped by 17 months of economic recovery slowed to where job-creation merely kept pace with the demand for work, the government reported Friday.

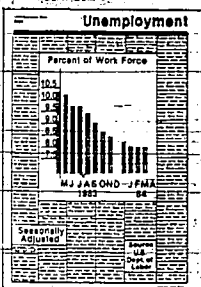

President Reagan's chief spokesman said the report proves "it's a very healthy economy," and several private analysts agreed. But the AFL-CIO maintained that "the third straight month of 7.8 percent unemployment is a continued tragedy for the millions of Americans seeking jobs."

Approximately 1.4 million jobs have been created since the start of this year, but the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate has fallen only 0.2 percentage point from January's 8.0 percent level. The rate was 7.8 percent in both February and March.

Because of an influx of 330,000 new job-seekers into the labor force last month, the overall jobless rate stood still, even though total employment climbed to a record 104.4 million, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The combined unemployment rate in April, when some 1.69 million military personnel stationed in the United States were included in the calculation, held steady at 7.7 percent, the report said.

Joblessness among the various population groups showed only fractional changes from March to April, although the unemployment rates for adult men and adult women rose 0.1 percentage, to 6.9 and 7 percent, respectively. Teen-age joblessness receded to 1.4 percent from 1.9 percent, while unemployment among blacks rose from 16.6 to 16.8.

State unemployment stays steady — A5

Behind the unchanged overall unemployment rate, however, were several labor-force developments that many analysts said portend continued improvement in the coming months. Average factory working hours were at the highest level in two decades and the proportion of the 175 million-member working-age population with jobs reached 59.3 percent, the highest since 1967.

Analysis said the rate has declined less dramatically than in earlier months because increasing numbers of people, seeing signs of improved business prospects, have entered the labor force in search of work. Some said the bulk of experienced and skilled workers laid off during the business slump already have been absorbed back into the workforce.

Agency concedes error on deadly drug

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration conceded Friday that it erred in failing to stop sales of an unapproved intravenous Vitamin E drug which has been linked to the deaths of 38 premature infants.

"What we realize with the benefit of hindsight is that was a wrong decision," said Dr. Harry Meyer, Director of the FDA's Center for Drugs and Biologics.

"This product should have had more scrutiny. Ugar 'it got,'" added Dr. Mark Novitch, acting commissioner of the FDA.

The two men were among the witnesses called by the House Government Operations subcommittee on intergovernmental relations which was examining the way the FDA handled E-Ferol Aqueous Solution, a drug made by Carter-Glogau, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Revco D.S. Inc. of Twinsburg, Ohio.

The subcommittee chairman said the evidence suggests the FDA may need a "total review and revamping."

When FDA was told in November 1983 that the drug was being sold despite the fact that it had not been approved by the agency, one of its compliance officers decided to give the matter a low priority.

Novitch said the FDA might have been able to have the drug recalled earlier than it was — April 10, 1984 — if hospitals which suspected a problem with the drug had informed the agency.

He said that although the FDA knew the drug hadn't met its regulatory requirements, it only learned of potential health problems with it on April 2, 1984, from the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

A Spokane, Wash., neonatologist who stopped using the drug in his practice in January 1984 after at least three deaths, said he reported those deaths to the drug's distributor, O'Neal, Jones and Feldman Pharmaceuticals of Maryland Heights, Mo., the same month.

Dr. Carl Bodenstein, who practices at Sacred Heart Hospital and Deaconess Medical Center, said the hospital informed the FDA regional office of a problem with the drug but did not mention the deaths. He did not explain.

"If they had told us there were deaths, we could have acted that day," Novitch said.

Lee Goldman, a spokeswoman for Revco, was unavailable for comment immediately after the hearing. The company was not asked to testify.

Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., chairman of the subcommittee, said, "As far as I'm concerned, no information such as this is going to be referred to the Justice Department for whatever civil and criminal actions they feel appropriate as far as the distributor and/or manufacturer is concerned."

Vitamin E drugs have been sold since the 1940s for injection into the muscle and for oral administration. But an intravenous version of the drug had not been made available until E-Ferol was sold. The FDA has one new drug application pending for an intravenous Vitamin E drug.

Worldwide nervousness growing amid reports of progress

Mideast nations nurturing desire to possess 'The Bomb'

By CHARLES J. HANLEY The Associated Press

A report that Iran might be building atomic weapons has again set off nuclear nervousness over the Middle East, where heavily armed nations edge closer year by year to obtaining "The Bomb."

The article last week in the British magazine Jane's Defense Weekly, citing unclassified reports from the Mideast, was dismissed by some foreign experts, who noted that Iran was planning only to complete two atomic power reactors, leaving it far short of weapons capability.

But those reports — and an earlier unsubstantiated report that Libya had acquired atom bombs from Pakistan — underscore the growing nuclear ambitions and abilities in the war-ravaged region.

Israel is believed capable of building nuclear weapons. Staunchly Moslem Pakistan, on the region's periphery, is regarded as a potential bomb-maker. And a half-dozen Arab states have taken concrete steps forward in their nuclear-power programs in the past year.

Their power plants will be inherently dual-purpose, producing not only electricity, but also the raw material for nuclear bombs — plutonium.

All Middle Eastern nations disavow any intentions of building today's ultimate weapon. Almost all ratified the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, which prohibits diversion of nuclear material from peaceful to military uses.

But watchdog groups fear that the explosive tensions of the region, where more than 20 civil and international wars have been fought over the past four decades, could push governments into clandestine bomb projects.

"Most of the nuclear development is going on in a particularly volatile part of the world," Paul Leventhal, president of the privately financed Nuclear Control Institute, pointed out in a Washington, D.C. interview. "And any regional nuclear conflict could drag in the superpowers." Israel, surrounded by mainly hostile Arab neighbors, is perhaps most fearful. A few atom bombs could obliterate its population centers.

For years foreign analysts have said the Israelis already may have fabricated nuclear weapons at their secret plutonium-extracting, or "reprocessing," facility in the Negev Desert.

Israel's science and development minister, Yuval Ne'eman, told The Associated Press recently, "We established our potential to make nuclear weapons and stopped right there."

Ne'eman added, however, that if an Arab state acquires nuclear weapons, "then we'll have to cross the threshold" in order to "deter by arming with the same thing."

In Iran, the late Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi had powerful nuclear ambitions before the 1978 revolution, including three 200-megawatt reactors and possibly facilities for reprocessing and/or making enriched uranium, another bomb material.

Aviatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's victorious revolutionaries halted work on the expensive projects, but early this year they summoned West German engineers back to assess the cost of completing the first two power units, at Bushehr on the Persian Gulf.

The recent unclassified reports, quoted unidentified West German intelligence sources as saying production of a nuclear bomb "is entering its final stages" at the reactor sites, Jane's Defense Weekly said.

Wilderness victim found in Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The mangled body of an 18-year-old woman believed to be a victim of dead-end rape-murder suspect Christopher Wilder has been found in southern Utah, the FBI said Friday.

The body of Sherry Bonaventura of Grand Junction, Colo., was found on a road 12 miles north of Kanab, Utah, said Terry Knowles, FBI special agent in charge of the Salt Lake City office. Authorities said she had been stabbed to death.

Close to the body, police found strands of duct tape similar to the tough gray tape which Wilder is believed to have used to blindfold and gag other victims, officials said.

Miss Bonaventura, an aspiring model, disappeared March 29. She reportedly was seen later that day, possibly with Wilder, in a sandwich shop in Silverton, about 110 miles south of Grand Junction.

Soviets criticize diplomats

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass on Friday accused U.S. diplomats of plotting to use dissident Andrei Sakharov as an anti-Soviet campaign, and Communist authorities said they had uncovered a plan to give his wife asylum in the U.S. Embassy.

The embassy denied the Soviet allegations.

Police blocked the apartment of Sakharov's wife, Yelena Bonner, and a friend said she had not been seen after promising to be in Moscow on Wednesday.

Questions about her whereabouts arose Friday after Tass issued one of the harshest attacks to date on the 60-year-old physician and her physicist husband — both founders of the Soviet human rights movement.

Former winner of the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize, has been in internal exile in the closed city of Gorky since 1980 and his wife has served as his outlet to Western journalists and diplomats.

Pentagon road plan debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has proposed sending National Guardsmen to Costa Rica to build roads this year, but government sources said Friday might they are not optimistic that Costa Rican officials would approve the plan.

The proposal comes amid plans by the United States to provide Costa Rica with additional military equipment.

Costa Rican officials backed out of a plan last year for National Guardsmen to build roads in a remote area of eastern Costa Rica near the Nicaraguan border, State Department and Pentagon sources said.

Those sources, speaking on condition they not be identified by name, said the Costa Rican government was concerned last year that the presence of U.S. troops, even in a non-combat role, might provoke Nicaragua's leftist government.

Jury: Lankford guilty in killings

GRANGEVILLE (AP) — An Ada County jury found a Texas man guilty Friday of two counts of first-degree murder in the deaths of a U.S. Marine captain and his wife who were vacationing in Idaho last summer.

The eight-woman, four-man jury returned the verdict after more than five hours of deliberations in the case against Mark Lankford.

Lankford, 27, was accused of the beating deaths of Robert and Cheryl Bravence, whose bodies were found in September. The Bravences, originally from Arizona, were stationed in Texas at the time of their deaths.

Lankford stared intently at the jury as the verdict was read in Second District Court here and then said sarcastically, "Thank you."

The first-degree murder conviction means Lankford could face the death penalty. The judge must hold a hearing to weigh aggravating and mitigating factors in the case before a sentence is pronounced.

Bryan Lankford was convicted in March in the murders. He is to be sentenced June 21, a year from the date the Bravences were killed.

Ethics panel reviewing Hansen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics Committee may announce whether it will discipline Idaho Rep. George Hansen at almost the same time he goes before voters in the May 22 primary election.

The committee had been expected to release its findings by May 15 but Hansen attorney Jim McKenna said Friday it may be May 21 before the results are made public.

The committee is investigating Hansen, who was convicted April 2 of four felony counts of failure to file proper financial disclosure statements under the 1978 Ethics in Government Act.

The committee could recommend disciplinary action against the seven-term congressman.

Jones asks water rights plan

BOISE (AP) — Idaho needs to fight to protect its future water rights against diversion to other states — especially since the state's bound up in a complicated battle over those rights, Attorney General Jim Jones says.

Jones, in a letter to members of Idaho's congressional delegation, urged the officials to keep a close eye on efforts to set up a national board on water policy.

He said legislation setting up a national board on water policy originally had a provision barring the board from studying water diversion from the Columbia River Basin. Jones said a California congressman, Robert Lagomarsino, had that language deleted from the bill last week in the House Interior Committee.

Jones said Idaho's congressional delegation should make certain that provision is put back in the legislation. "The protective language would prevent the board from initiating studies directed toward exportation of Snake and Columbia River waters when the present federal moratorium... expires in 1988," he said.

Spring runoff breaks Utah dam

KANOSH, Utah (AP) — Heavy mountain runoff broke the Corn Creek Dam late Friday, forcing torrents of water into the streets of this nearby southeastern community of 319, authorities said.

The small earthen flood-control dam, located 1 mile south of here, gave way about 7 p.m. shortly after water from swollen Corn Creek spilled over the spillway, Millard County sheriff's dispatcher Irene Scott said.

"It has given way," she said. "The spillway overflowed and then it broke."

"There's been nobody evacuated. We've had some basements flooded. Most of the water is in the low areas of town, filling some ditches to four or five feet," Ms. Scott said.

Two unions settle in Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Negotiators for two unions reached a contract agreement with the Caesars Palace resort Friday-night and two downtown hotels agreed to a new pact while other hotels lined up to settle their differences in a bitter 30-day hotel strike.

Junior more hotels, including the massive MGM Grand, were set to go to the bargaining table Saturday morning and union officials said they were optimistic many of the city's remaining struck hotels would settle by Monday.

Culinary Union chief Jeff McCall said Caesars Palace negotiators quickly accepted the pact agreed to Thursday night by the two Hilton resorts and he was optimistic more signings would take place Saturday.

About 2,000 Hilton workers returned to work Friday. "Obviously we're very pleased," McCall said after a half-hour bargaining session Friday night. "Another 1,500 of our people will be going back to work."

Negotiations were still set for late Friday night between Caesars Palace and unions representing stagehands and musicians, but McCall predicted those would be quickly resolved and workers could start returning to their jobs Saturday morning.

Mondale Agreement requests apology

By DAVID ESPO The Associated Press

Walter F. Mondale said Friday that Gary Hart should apologize for criticizing the Carter administration's handling of the Iranian hostage crisis, and the Rev. Jesse Jackson watered down a key demand for election law reform as the Democratic presidential campaign neared judgment day in Texas and Louisiana.

Hart brushed aside Mondale's call for an apology, saying, "Was he not vice president?" at the time of the crisis. "He can't run on the basis of experience and not accept the responsibility." The Colorado senator declared in a day of campaigning in the Midwest.

Mondale, setting out on a five-city tour of Texas on the day before the caucuses, said, "I believe Gary Hart made a very serious mistake" with his remarks critical of former President Carter's performance in the Iranian crisis.

The Colorado senator would be "well advised to apologize," he said. "Texas Democrats will allocate 169 delegates at their caucuses on Saturday, while Louisiana assigns 57 delegates in a primary election the same day."

Mondale is favored to win both contests, although Jackson has campaigned hard in Louisiana and Hart's Texas coordinator, Rep. Martin Frost, is predicting an upset victory in that state.

Hart badly needs a victory to revive his fading campaign, both for the convention delegations and for the momentum it would mean for next Tuesday's primaries in Ohio, Indiana, North Carolina and Maryland.

Mondale now has 1236.05 delegates, with 670.75 for Hart and 208.22 for Jackson. It takes 1,997 to win the nomination.

Hart — given little chance of winning in Louisiana — was campaigning in Ohio and Indiana for next week's primary election, and he sharply criticized President Reagan for piling up huge federal budget deficits.

"President Reagan seems to think deficits are the workers' salvation. The truth is that are the workers' devastation," Hart said. "Put bluntly, the deficits are Ronald Reagan's economic Vietnam."

about how to manage the nation's remaining roadless lands.

"Hard release" is the term conservationists used to describe McCure's proposal calling for all Forest Service lands excluded from wilderness designation to be managed "for uses other than wilderness." Its language was supposed to ensure industry groups that they would have adequate time to try to develop natural resources.

"Soft release" advocates have pushed for more flexible policies that would allow Forest Service officials to continue to manage lands dropped from the wilderness classification as if they were wilderness. The soft release language would also allow agency officials to recommend to Congress additional wilderness at the beginning of each new planning cycle — every 10-15 years.

In the Sawtooth Forest, soft release means mining companies could count on lands approved for mineral exploration remaining open for at least the next decade. But it would also give area Forest Service managers the option of continuing to manage some of the lands opened up for multiple use as wilderness.

The Wednesday agreement slashed McCure's name across the front pages of the nation's newspapers, with his Senate colleagues praising his tough negotiating skills.

But Robinson "sees" events differently.

"He (McCure) comes off in the media looking like a hero, but he has been completely out of touch with his own congressional colleagues. He tried earlier this month to shove hard release down the throats of his own Republican colleagues, but he didn't have the votes."

Robinson charges that when McCure's efforts failed, he was finally forced to accept Selberling's soft release bill, with a few minor changes to help save face.

And many industry lobbyists have sided with Robinson in his belief that McCure caved in to Selberling.

"Balderdash," responds Livingston to charges of a McCure cave-in.

Livingstone says the soft release language "was very ambiguous...very unclear."

Livingstone says that the Wednesday agreement, done away with "fuzzy, muddy" wording and clarifies the planning process. He says it also will release small tracts of land under 5,000 acres in size from wilderness study.

Predicted interest-rate rise disrupts financial markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street economist Henry Kaufman's prediction that interest rates will be "spectacularly higher" by the end of next year disrupted financial markets Friday.

Long-term interest rates rose to levels last seen nearly two years ago, the dollar staged a sharp advance against all leading world currencies and stock prices tumbled.

Kaufman, chief economist of the New York investment firm of Salomon Brothers Inc. and vice chairman of its parent company, Pibbro-Salomon Inc., said a sharp surge in interest rates, which he forecast for later this year or 1985, would cause widespread economic damage.

Before the current cycle of rising rates ends, he said, "interest rates will move spectacularly higher — in some sectors well beyond their previous cyclical highs. Such an occurrence is not imminent. The more dramatic phase of the surge in yields will occur perhaps late this year and more likely in 1985...."

He said that only substantial and immediate cuts in the federal deficit could avert "a startling lift in interest rates" and that such action by Congress was unlikely. He called for budget cuts of between $60 billion and $75 billion within the next 12 months.

"Regrettably, Washington is more content with style than substance," Kaufman said in remarks prepared for delivery to a Texas Bankers Association convention at Fort Worth, Texas. A copy of his speech was released in New York.

"Failure to curb growing federal spending and the unpopularity of wage-and price controls has left interest rates as the 'only disciplining force for the economy' as economic activity grows and inflationary pressure builds, he said.

"When other arms of stabilization policy forfeit their responsibility, particularly in a deregulated and innovative financial system, the reliance on interest rates as a disciplining force will again produce very high yields damaging virtually every sector of the economy," he said.

After his remarks were released late Friday morning, interest rates began rising and bond prices gave ground in credit markets.

Smuggling conviction reaffirmed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The conviction of Edwin P. Wilson for smuggling to a 40,000 pounds of plastic explosives used by terrorists was upheld by a federal appeals court Friday.

"Finding no reversible error in any assignment of error, and none as a consequence of the cumulative total of the assignments, we affirm," a three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled.

Wilson's appeal contended he was denied a fair trial at U.S. District Court in Houston because evidence bearing on his true intent in dealing with Lalaya was excluded.

The defense had claimed that Wilson was a former CIA operative and the agency was aware of his dealing with Col. Moammar Khadafi, head of a government accused of relying heavily on terrorism in its policies.

Meese's friend called

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Merit System Protection Board — a friend of Edwin A. Meese III since their days in law school — will be questioned next week by a federal grand jury, apparently about how the wife of one of Meese's financial benefactors got a job on the board.

Board chairman Herbert Ellingwood was asked to appear next Tuesday before the grand jury after he was questioned by "MS FBI" and a deputy to special prosecutor Jacob A. Stein, board spokesman Mahlon Anderson said Friday.

Two career government employees on the board — Richard D. Redenius, managing director, and Jacqueline Bradley, assistant managing director, for regional operations — also were questioned and then asked to appear before the grand jury, Anderson said.

The disclosure was the first word that Stein's month-old investigation of Meese, the White House counselor whom President Reagan has nominated to be attorney general, had reached the point that Stein was ready to take testimony before a grand jury.

"No negative implication is to be drawn from the fact that witnesses are being called to testify before a grand jury," Meese's lawyers, Leonard Garment and E. Robert Wallach, said in a statement.

"This is exactly the course of action we would expect from a diligent independent counsel."

The three witnesses apparently will be questioned about the circumstances under which Gretchen Thomas got a job as an attorney examiner in the board's San Francisco office after her husband, Edwin Thomas, was named regional director of the General Service Administration's San Francisco office.

The Thomases are longtime friends of Meese's. Meese's failure to disclose an interest-free loan of $15,000 from Thomas on required financial disclosure forms was one of the matters that Stein was told to investigate when he was appointed by a three-judge panel April 2. Meese said the failure was inadvertent.

Meese's nomination to succeed Attorney General William French Smith has been held up while Stein investigates whether any criminal violations occurred in the award of government posts to seven of Meese's financial benefactors, including Thomas, whose son, Tad, who was given a Labor Department job.

Mine yields three bodies

LLEWELLYN, Pa. (AP) — Rescuers using 10-foot poles to hook the victims' clothing recovered three more bodies Friday from a watery mine shaft where a car carrying six people plummeted 70 feet underground.

The workers continued their search for two others as an ambulance sat waiting near the 15-foot hole in a remote wooded area dotted with abandoned mines. One body was recovered Tuesday night.

"This is a relief in a way, but my stomach is in queasy. It's happening so fast," said Noreen Bertasavage, aunt of three victims.

The rescue workers broke through an old air shaft to descend into a sloping tunnel to search for the missing. The tunnel intersects with the shaft into which the victims' Chevrolet Blazer plunged April 28, tossing five passengers out of the car and further into the mine.

Computer errs

ZEPHYRHILLS, Fla. (AP) — David Schwalls was released from prison after 22 months behind bars and corrections officials even gave him a lift to the bus station. But the next day he was back in his cell.

A computer error had allowed Schwalls, 31, to be released from the Zephyrhills Correctional Institution a year too soon.

Chernenko stiffens on Poland

MOSCOW (AP) — President Konstantin U. Chernenko on Friday accused the United States of trying "to bleed socialist Poland white" and indicated to Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski that the Soviet Union will not tolerate any changes in the Soviet bloc's Communist system.

Jaruzelski, who arrived in Moscow on Friday after two days of unrest in his homeland, pledged to work for "ideological and political unity" in Poland and assured Chernenko of the "close and unbreakable union" with Moscow, the official news agency Tass reported.

"There can be no deviation" from Communist Party policies in Poland, Jaruzelski said at a Kremlin dinner.

Walesa cites police brutality

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Lech Walesa accused police of brutality in dispersing Solidarity demonstrators this week, and said such action could provoke crowd violence at future protests. He also said he would defend himself if attacked.

"The vandalism of the authorities must be put to an end," Walesa said in an interview taped Thursday by ABC News and made available to The Associated Press in Warsaw.

"I will not step from the peaceful path, but we must guarantee protection for peaceful demonstrations," he said.

Police used water cannon and truncheons to scatter Solidarity demonstrators Tuesday and Thursday. Authorities said 666 people were detained on Tuesday, May Day, which is celebrated as a "workers' holiday" in the Soviet bloc.

Walesa, who won the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize for leading the now outlawed Solidarity labor federation, was chased out of an official May Day parade in Gdansk.

Israel pans PLO as insincere

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli officials on Friday rejected what is believed to be a first public PLO offer for mutual recognition and direct negotiation on the future of the Israeli-occupied West Bank.

PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat was quoted Friday in the French newspaper Le Nouvelle Observateur as saying there should be U.N.-directed talks to set up a Palestinian state on the West Bank, which Israel captured from Jordan in the 1967 Mideast war.

The Israeli officials, who spoke on condition they not be identified, reaffirmed Israel's longstanding refusal to recognize the Palestine Liberation Organization, calling it a terrorist organization and describing Arafat's bid as insincere. Israel also rejects the concept of a Palestinian state on the West Bank.

Lebanese officials troubled

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A nominated Cabinet minister said Friday that Lebanon's new "national unity" government will collapse unless two opposition leaders reverse their decisions and join the government.

Salim el-Hoss, a former prime minister and the designated minister of education and labor, said that unless Shiite Moslem leader-Nabih Berri and Druse chief-tain Walid Jumblatt agree to serve in the Cabinet, "the government will collapse and this will entail negative repercussions."

Meanwhile, police in Sidon said gunmen assassinated the Palestinian leader of an Israeli-backed militia.

Jobs keep up with workers' influx to Idaho

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Unemployment held steady statewide and in the Magic Valley during April despite an influx of workers into the labor force.

The seasonally adjusted rate for Idaho remained at 6.2 percent, the same rate as during March, Scott McDonald, director of the Department of Employment, reported.

The stable rate was encouraging because

Idaho industry was able to absorb more than 6,000 workers who entered the job market last month, he said.

Meanwhile, the rate for Twin Falls, Gooding and Jerome counties rose only 0.1 percentage point to 6.8 percent during the month, said Lon McDonald, no relation, who is state job force analyst based at Twin Falls. The increase is relatively insignificant, McDonald said.

Usually wet weather continued to hamper outdoors industries, both officials said. "As spring activities begin, the employment picture looks good," said Scott McDonald. "If the rains would stop, field preparation would take off, construction would begin in earnest and loggers would be able to return to the woods," he said.

Federal employment in Idaho increased because of temporary hiring by the Internal Revenue Service and seasonal jobs with agencies such as the U.S. Forest Service. But layoffs occurred in education, at resorts and in the logging and food processing industries last month, McDonald said.

In the Magic Valley, rain continued to delay farm work intermittently, pushing some field work — and hiring — back as much as four weeks, said Lon McDonald. Construction contractors also were affected, he said, and fresh pack potato operators temporarily cut their employment because of unfavorable prices.

Job Service of Idaho took in a high number of unemployment claims compared with normal levels during the past few weeks, he said.

But the job picture is not nearly as bleak as it was a year ago, the officials said. "The good news is that in our area there are 1,170 more people employed this spring than a year ago this time," said Lon McDonald.

Actual job force figures show 2,301 people in the three-county area unemployed from a job force of 36,090. Seasonal adjustments filter out normal month-by-month swings in employment to allow easier comparisons.

On the state level, the department of employment reports 26,700 people unemployed from a job force of 432,700.

Activists trace 'death train'

Group tracks trail to Shoshone

TWIN FALLS — A peace group following the route of a train believed to have been carrying nuclear weapons will be greeted by diners and discussion when it visits the Magic Valley next week.

The "On The Line" group, which is composed of eight women, began its 5,400-mile walk March 21 at Bangor, Wash., the site of a Trident nuclear submarine base. It is following the route of what it has dubbed the "White Train," which it claims carries nuclear warheads from an assembly line in Amarillo, Texas, to naval stations in Washington and South Carolina.

The intention of the group is to "spread" the word about the train.

The women will stop in Glenns Ferry on Friday for a potluck dinner and evening program at the Methodist Church, says Julie Nance of Shoshone, a regional coordinator for the women's activities.

The evening programs usually consist of films and discussion concerning nuclear weapons, she said.

From Glenns Ferry, the group will walk to Bliss on Saturday. From Bliss, they will be shuttled to Twin Falls to appear at a Peace Potluck and worship service sponsored by the Twin Falls County Association of Churches and Fellowship of Reconciliation. The picnic will be held at noon at the Twin Falls City Park.

On Mother's Day the women headed to Shoshone for another potluck dinner at Nance's house, at 726 W. Fifth St. and an evening program at the Methodist Church, at 226 West C St.

The public is invited to all the events. Members of the group also will present a program Monday at the Jerome High School, says Nance, who helped coordinate a protest when the White Train passed through Shoshone last February.

The target of protest earned its name by its white coloring. The train is believed to carry from between 100 to 200 hydrogen bombs and travels three times a year with the latest run in February.

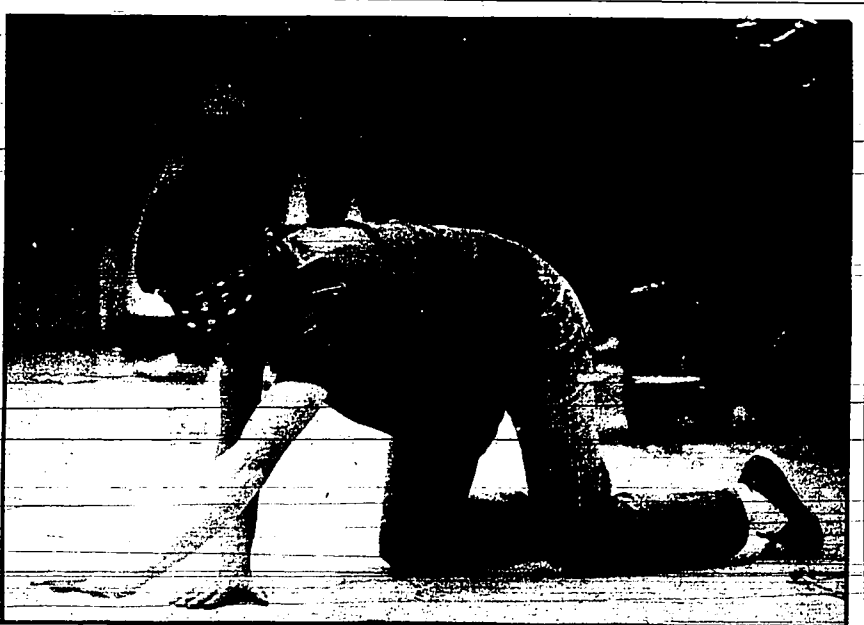

The Department of Energy has neither denied nor confirmed the train's contents was nuclear weapons.

The On the Line campaign was launched by the Bangor-based Ground Zero Center for Non-Violent Action, according to a release from the group.

During the walk, the group members ask railroad workers to sign a petition protesting the train. They also speak to interested people in the communities they visit along the route.

According to Nance, the group will find a network of concerned people in the Magic Valley.

"It's been exciting to see the response and the welcome their walk is receiving." For further information, contact Nance at 886-2324.

Don't look now

Gooding High School held a pep assembly for its rodeo team Friday, and one of the events involved finding a "pigging string," bilfolded, stepping into it, and making it back to the starting line. Rex Bradshaw, above, took a while to find his. The Gooding S.H. District Qualifying Rodeo has been scheduled for May 11 and 12 at the Gooding Fairgrounds.

Cowboys and cowgirls attempt to earn enough points in qualifying rodeos to be accepted to the State Rodeo competition to be held at Plover in June.

Defendant, town file appeals in long-standing sewer flap

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

BOISE — As expected by lawyers for the city of Twin Falls, Neptune-Microfloc, one of two defendants in the city's sewer treatment plant lawsuit, has appealed the judgment against it to the U.S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Following the filing of a notice of appeal by the company Friday afternoon, the city also filed a notice of appeal, challenging a court ruling limiting damages against a second defendant, Envirotech Systems, Inc.

The action sets the stage for what could be a long and costly challenge to the judgment in the case, which awarded the city $3.4 million in damages and attorney fees.

That judgment was the result of a three-month trial in Federal District Court in Boise this winter and several rulings by the court which followed.

Attorneys for both sides agree the appeal could take as long as two years.

Considering the extensive record compiled in the case, they are not optimistic about the chances for a speedy decision by the appeals court, which is headquartered in San Francisco.

Lawyers for the city also expect matters to be further complicated in several weeks after cross-appeals have been filed.

Envirotech attorney Randall Morrison has said his client would file such a cross-appeal if the city challenged the damages limitation ruling.

For its part, the city filed the appeal against Envirotech because a second round of legal activity was initiated by Neptune-Microfloc, said John Hepworth, one of the firm's attorneys, Nungesser and Felton, which has been representing the city.

Both the city and Envirotech would have been content to let the District Court judgment stand, Hepworth and Morrison said.

Neptune-Microfloc, a Corvallis, Ore.-based company was under order to pay the city approximately $1.15 million as its part of the judgment.

Envirotech, which is based in California, was ordered to pay the city some $2.25 million. An attempt to reach lawyers for Neptune-Microfloc Friday was unsuccessful.

Vote set on school name

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls residents will vote the last week of May on a name for the new elementary school.

School children should already be thinking about names for the new school and writing paragraphs supporting their choice. Any Twin Falls student now in the first through sixth grades is eligible to enter a name.

A committee of residents selected by school officials will winnow the names submitted by the students to three choices to place on the community ballot. The names will be published in The Times-News, and ballot boxes will be placed in Twin Falls banks.

Students who submit the top three names will be given government bonds of $100, $50 and $25 to use toward their education.

The board voted to let the community choose a name after school officials began receiving many suggestions for appropriate names, most to name the school after community leaders in education.

New talks necessary on jail cost, say officials

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The cost and design of a new county jail will not be known until county officials complete another round of consultations with technical staff members of the National Institute of Corrections.

That announcement was contained in a press release distributed by the Board of Twin Falls County Commissioners at a Sawtooth Press Club luncheon Friday.

The featured speaker at the luncheon was jail architect Richard Heindel. He said bad planning, in the form of building in the need for one or two extra staff positions, can add up to more than the cost of constructing a new jail over a 30-year period.

Announcement of the new planning sessions comes in the wake of the commissioners' decision earlier this week to postpone indefinitely a jail bond election, previously planned for June 12.

That decision was made following the return of county representatives from a Boulder, Colo., jail standards conference at which new doubts about the county's ability to afford the new facility were raised.

"The most important new question now appears to be how the county can afford to staff and operate a new jail under the property tax ceiling imposed as a result of the One Percent Initiative.

Current estimates for the cost of staffing the new jail present the unhappy prospect of more than a tripling of current jail operation costs.

Heindel said the new planning sessions will focus on designing a no-frills jail with "no extra staff, no extra design."

Once the design is arrived at, the commissioners will work on fitting operation of the jail into the overall framework of the county budget, the release said. This means evaluating jail operation needs in relation to other county services, it said.

Lance Clow, who serves as the information officer for the jail bond steering committee, said the release was written to provide a detailed, consistent answer why the proposed bond election had been postponed.

Heindel was chosen to design the new jail in partnership with the Salt Lake City firm of Dan Larson, Houbal and Associates.

Water users band together to sway election

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Although admittedly off to a late start, a group of dissatisfied water users banded together Thursday to attempt to influence the outcome of legislative contests in the May 22 primary election.

It was the birth of a PAC — a political action committee — one of 73 such committees operating in the state of Idaho for the purpose of influencing elections and the resolution of public issues.

This committee — Citizen's for Idaho — is in favor of subordinating the Idaho Power Co. water right at the Swan Falls hydroelectric generating station.

Without subordination of hydropower water rights and legal flow, allowing equitable allocation of water, decisions on water management may be made in the Idaho Power board room behind closed doors, Bruce Newcomb, the organization's founder, told 60 to 75 persons gathered at the Burley High School auditorium.

The committee's aim is to donate money and other support to the campaigns of those legislative candidates who favor passing legislation to subordinate the Swan Falls water right. Magic Valley candidates Waldo Martens, retired Jeroniah rancher, and John Roberts, a Burley real estate agent, will be among the recipients of the PAC's money.

Other candidates may also be the beneficiaries of the new committee's money.

Newcomb, a Declo-area farmer, said formation of the PAC is in direct response to the efforts of another PAC — United for Idaho. That group, he says, is dominated by Idaho Power and commands a great amount of legislative power — enough to have effectively thwarted subordination efforts in the last two legislative sessions.

"I don't like PACs — I hate PACs," Newcomb said in a telephone interview Friday. "PACs are what brought about special-interest government in America," he said, adding "but that's what you've got to go through. People aren't being represented." Forest Hyman of Jerome, a member of the organization's steering committee, told the supportive crowd: "subordination means yielding to another right." "It means Idaho Power can use the water but must yield it to another use," he added.

The use, he was referring to, is additional agricultural irrigation on the Snake River Plain. Since an Idaho Supreme Court decision on the status of the Swan Falls hydropower water right in November 1982, such development has been held virtually at a standstill.

Two cases are pending in Idaho District Courts to resolve the issue. The PAC, however, wants the issue resolved by the Legislature. And Newcomb, who was elected chairman of the PAC, said that to be effective, the newly-formed committee will need strong commitments of both time and money — mostly money. "We're non-partisan," he said. "If you're for subordination, we're for you. If you're against subordination, we're against you," he added.

Newcomb told the crowd he was hoping to raise around $6,000 in seed money by Friday. When contacted

Leader cites possible land-value loss

BURLEY — Bruce Newcomb says he is not a "tax protester."

He is, however, advising certain property owners in southern Idaho — those being sued by the Idaho Power Co. — to pay their taxes under protest.

Newcomb, who heads the newly-formed Citizens for Idaho, a political action committee, says landowners named in that company's lawsuit are probably being taxed at an excessive rate.

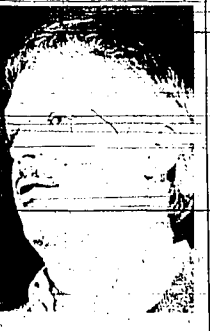

"If you have property in the suit you can't get a loan or sell it as irrigated farmland because the water right is in jeopardy," he says. "How much is your land worth without water?" Newcomb asked a group of 60-75 water users attending an organizational meeting of the new PAC in Burley Thursday night. The lawsuit challenges the seniority of what the utility estimates are 7,500 existing or proposed water rights. Idaho Power claims those water rights have depleted the flow of water at the company's Swan Falls hydroelectric site south of Boise.

Newcomb says if the landowners lose their water rights as a result of the suit, the next use of their land is dry-land farming — a use that is taxed at a lower rate than irrigated land.

Newcomb says he has embarked on the protest campaign without the advice of an attorney. But, he adds, he is not asking the water users to withhold payment of taxes and doesn't want to cause trouble for county clerks or county finances.

"We want the general public to realize where the taxes will shift," he said. But if the Legislature doesn't do something about resolving the uncertainty over water use, he says the landowners should pursue those protests.

BRUCE NEWCOMB Heads Citizens for Idaho.

4th annual book fair raises about $500 for United Way

By CHRISTOPHER WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The fourth annual book fair, sponsored by the Magic Valley United Way, collected $1,549.75 this year, United Way board officials said Thursday.

The April 29 book fair was held at the Blue Lakes Mall, and was participated in by 11 agencies, five of which are not under the United Way umbrella. The agencies purchased space at the price of $15 for one table and $40 for four tables at the event, and they were allowed to keep whatever amount of money they were able to make.

"The figure of $1,549.75 is up from $1,300 last year," said Barney Carlson, the special events chairman for the United Way.

The amount of money made is exceptional considering that most of the books were sold for an average of about 50 cents, said Sandy Thomas, the executive director of the United Way. More than 3,000 books were sold at the fair, she said.

The book fair is the only event the United Way has that allows non-member agencies to participate, Thomas said. "The agencies that participated were glad they did," Thomas said. "Most of them made enough money that it was beneficial."

According to Thomas, the fair may be expanded to the communities of Ketchum, Filer and Buhl for next year. "If we can help some of the smaller clubs to make the few hundred dollars they need, then maybe we can clean up our solicitations and keep them out of the businesses. That way it would be more beneficial to everyone."

Out of total amount gained from the book fair, the United Way made $513.8243 from book sales and $270 from renting table space, Thomas said.

"The money will go directly into the special events fund," Thomas said.

"The board may use it for 1985 allocations. They will hold onto the money and decide what to do with it at the end of the year."

Also, the board denied associate membership to two agencies. One was recommended for further study.

The United Service Organization (USO) was denied entry because there is no USO agency in the Magic Valley, and the board believed support should first be given to agencies in the Magic Valley, said Jerry Dodds, the allocations chairman for the United Way.

The Idaho Adoption Agency was turned down for similar reasons. The agency deals with few, if any children, in Idaho, Dodds said.

A decision on whether to recommend the Jerome Cleaners, an association that collects and teaches the preparation of food, has been put off, pending further study by the board, Dodds said.

District court

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A man accused of padding labor hours at a Twin Falls car dealership will go to trial on two charges of grand theft.

James Gary Hanchev, 47, Route 2, Kimberly, pleaded innocent Monday in Fifth District Court.

While he was foreman of the body shop at Kelley Motor he adjusted the labor hours of the shop employees to create a bonus for himself, a complaint filed with the court alleges. In April 1983, the bonus amounted to $1,220 and in May 1983, $1,397 was paid to Hanchev.

A trial date will be scheduled at a later date. Hanchev was released on his own recognizance.

While he was heard Monday, Russell Eugene Ellifrits, 18, of Twin Falls was sentenced to four months at the North Idaho Correctional Institution at Cottonwood for a conviction of second-degree burglary.

Ellifrits previously admitted to burglarizing a truck Dec. 14 while it was parked at a restaurant in Twin Falls.

Kandance Kemp, a Twin Falls County deputy prosecutor, said the rehabilitation program was the "best idea" for Ellifrits. He had confessed to other felonies during a pre-sentence investigation, Kemp said.

Public defender Mike Powers recommended probation. Ellifrits said he had an opportunity for employment and would live with his parents. Upon questioning by Judge Daniel Meehl, however, Ellifrits' mother said it would be a "strain" to have her son at home.

During sentencing Meehl told Ellifrits, "You're not a bad person, but not mature enough to be responsible."

At the end of the four-month period, Ellifrits will return to court. Based on his conduct it will be determined whether he should fulfill the remainder of a five-year prison sentence also imposed or be placed on probation.

Dennis Lee Wallace, 42, of 436 Second Ave. E. in Twin Falls changed his mind about changing his plea on a charge of grand theft. Wallace, who has been accused of pawing a typewriter he obtained from a rental business last March, originally pleaded innocent. He was supposed to have changed his plea Monday. But, public defender Kathy Epeldi said her client wished to stick with the innocent plea.

As a result the case will be set for trial. Wallace was released.

Rick Beasley, no age available, of Twin Falls, was placed on two-year probation after completing the Cottonwood program. He was sent to Cottonwood for robbing a grocery store last September.

Besides the probation, Meehl ordered Beasley to pay $9 restitution to the store, $100 to the clerk who was held up and $70 to Twin Falls County for public defender services.

David Eugene Moore, 21, of Twin Falls was sent to the Cottonwood program for four months on a conviction of grand theft — possession of stolen property.

Moore pleaded guilty Monday to holding stereo equipment that was reported stolen in January from a residence.

The arrest on the grand theft charge constituted a violation of Moore's probation from a previous burglary conviction.

Under a plea agreement, Moore admitted to the probation violation and grand theft charge in exchange for a dismissal of a burglary charge related to the stolen stereo. A similar sentence was imposed for the probation infraction, but the two will run at the same time.

Niram Baker, 48, of Twin Falls will spend the next three years on probation.

Baker was charged with being an accessory to grand theft. He was arrested after a break-in at a Twin Falls jewelry store in June 1982.

Baker's attorney Robert Galley, who was appointed as a public defender in the case, told Meehl that this client had an alcohol problem, but had "remained dry." In addition, Baker contacted a state agency on his own to seek rehabilitation.

The Cottonwood program suggested in the pre-sentence report "will not solve anything" for Baker, Galley said.

Kemp replied later, "I couldn't see Cottonwood would harm him." Baker had a long history of problem drinking and was "virtually illiterate" and a threat to society.

Meehl did impose a suspended five-year prison sentence and ordered Baker to pay $500 restitution and continue alcohol treatment.

Sandra Fullbright, 33, of Twin Falls had her probation extended for one year after she failed to make the required restitution payments.

Fullbright was placed on a two-year probation in 1982 for a conviction of writing a bad check.

Friday he said the group had already received contributions in excess of $10,000.

He said he hopes the group can raise and contribute in excess of $100,000 in primary and general election contests. For comparison, in 1982 United for Idaho spent $76,490.

Newcomb said subordinating the water right is important because if the District Court vests Idaho Power with a water right at Swan Falls, the company may be able to sell the water to California in the future.

In the absence of such an inter-basin transfer, he said, if the state leaves the disputed 8,400 cubic-feet-per-second of water in the stream it will allow Washington and Oregon farmers more water to compete with Idaho farmers.

Does that make sense to you — that Idaho should release 8,400 cubic feet of water so Oregon and Washington can produce 426,000 acres of potatoes and other crops? he asked.

Methodists mark bicentennial with meeting

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

BALTIMORE — By horseback, about 60 roving preachers gathered in this Maryland city 200 years ago and organized a church "to reform the continent and spread Scriptural holiness over the land."

That was the birthday of American Methodism launched by a band of frontier circuit riders, whose spiritual descendants are recalling those beginnings at a governing general conference of the United Methodist Church.

Besides marking the bicentennial of the country's second largest Protestant denomination, the 11-day conference, a once-in-four-years affair that began Tuesday, also had a heavy legislative schedule ahead.

The 1,000 delegates, in contrast to that original meeting of young male preachers in 1784, were about 25 percent female, 265 of them, 40 of whom are ordained ministers — something British founder John Wesley frowned on.

But always the pragmatist about such ecclesiastical issues, he once advised an early woman "exhorter": "Preach if you have to, but don't call it that."

Today the 9.4 million-member denomination has about 1,400 women clergy of its 36,800 total, the largest number of any denomination, and the nation's only woman bishop, Marjorie Matthews of Wisconsin.

However, it wasn't Wesley himself who started the American church, although his British methods of small devotional groups and evangelism inspired similar societies among settlers in America.

A priest in the established Church of England, he never intended his movement for spiritual reform to become a separate denomination. He once warned, "When the Methodists leave the Church of England, God will leave them."

But when the bishop of London refused ordination to Wesley's lay preachers to serve in America, he ordained them himself, arguing its practical necessity. He designated Thomas Coke and Francis Asbury to be "general superintendents."

Asbury, sensing the democratic spirit appropriate to the American scene, declined to accept the office until fellow American preachers elected him. Both he and Coke then adopted the title, "bishop," over Wesley's objections.

His younger brother, the prolific hymnwriter Charles Wesley, penned some sarcastic stanzas about the irregular process, including these lines: "So easily are bishops made, 'By man's or woman's whim,' 'Wesley his hands on Coke hath laid, 'But who laid hands on him?'"

It was at the 1784 Baltimore conference that Asbury was consecrated that the Methodism was born as an independent denomination in the same period that the newly independent America was shaping its nationalhood.

"Sharing" that simultaneous development, Methodism sometimes is called the most American of denominations, tending to reflect the prevailing culture rather than standing against it, though nowadays often critical.

Participants in that denomination-launching Baltimore conference were horseback-riding preachers, summoned from their hinterland outposts, mostly young, dedicated men. Theirs was a rough life and about half died by age 33.

Pushing into frontier areas along with America's westward advance, they traveled their preaching points over circuits up to 100 miles on salaries of $64 a year.

An old saying has it that the first sound in the wilderness was that of the frontiersman's axe hewing out space for his cabin, and the second was the "helo" of the Methodist circuit rider at the cabin door.

According to one story, a pioneer who had "left Virginia and Georgia to escape the Methodists" was barely unpacking his wagon in a new territory when confronted by a Methodist circuit rider warning of the perils of sin.

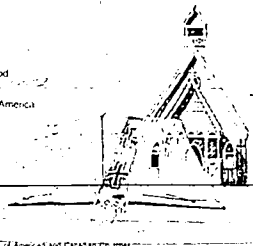

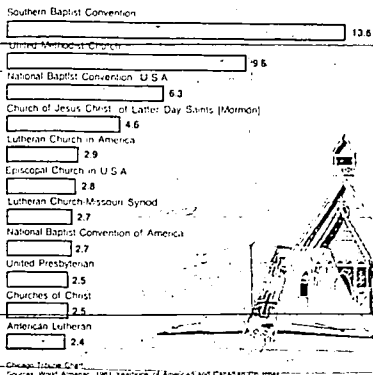

Asbury, the newly made bishop who committed himself "to live in God and bring others to do so," said some preachers seemed reluctant to leave the cities, and he added, "I think I will show them the way."

He set himself a grueling pace, traveling up to 50 miles a day by horse, preaching several times daily. He had no family, no home but the saddle. He extolled celibacy for glory, saying a single man was freer to give himself totally to the work.

Bemoaning the loss of many preachers when they married and settled down, he said, "The women and the devil are going to get all my preachers."

One worker, doing all six steps in the manufacture of a product, can make one unit. Six workers, each specializing in one of the six steps, can make 12 units in the same time.

Q. What's the most difficult age of childhood?
A. Depends. Grownups say age 2 1/2 when they think of their children, but age 13 when they remember their own youth. Usually, usually.

That cigarette smoking medical specialist who finds it most difficult to put aside the habit is said to be the psychiatrist. In one survey, only 48 percent of the therapists had quit so far while 70 percent of the other physicians had done so.

How come the dictionary spells it "sherbet" but everybody pronounces it "sherbert"?

CHEESE

Q. Isn't mozzarella now the most popular cheese in America?
A. It's No. 2. Right behind No. 1, cheddar. No. 3 is an indefinite category labeled "other American." No. 4, Swiss. No. 5, cream.

Which of your legs is the longer? One is, if you're among the majority. Or more precisely, two out of five people have legs of unequal length.

LITTLE GREYHOUNDS

Maybe you've read that wealthy Romans of old posed "Watch Out for Dog" signs on their estates. "Cave Canem." What's little remembered is that these signs were to protect the dog, not the human. The popular Italian greyhound of the time stood only about 10 inches tall and weighed approximately 10 pounds tops. Proud owners didn't want their pups stepped on.

Cancer claims Diana Dors

WINDSOR, England (AP) — Actress Diana Dors, the sex symbol once billed as Britain's answer to Marilyn Monroe, died Friday night after a long battle with cancer, her husband announced. She was 52.

"I have lost my wife and soul mate, and my son has lost a friend and a mother. The world has lost a legend," said her husband, actor Alan Lake who was at her bedside when she died at Princess Margaret Hospital.

He said her last words were, "Oh my darling, I love you, take care of the boys and say farewell to everyone concerned. This is not the way it was rehearsed."

Miss Dors, who had meningitis and twice underwent surgery to remove cancerous tumors, collapsed at her home near Windsor last Saturday with "quite stomach pains."

She was rushed to the hospital and underwent surgery Monday for a suspected bowel obstruction believed related to cancer. Lake said surgeons found cancer "everywhere."

Miss Dors was the British "blonde bombshell" and self-proclaimed "5000-time girl" of fame from the 1940s to the 1960s.

Born Diana Fluck in 1931, the daughter of a southwest England railway clerk, she was just 15 when a film agent saw her acting in a school play in her hometown of Swindon, 77 miles west of London. She had her first major film role at the age of 17 as a barmaid.

Parlaying her hourglass figure and platinum blonde hair into a series of saucy roles, she once described herself as "the only sex symbol Britain has produced since Lady Godiva."

DIANA DORS
Britain's Marilyn Monroe

She was famed for outrageous parties and her luxurious lifestyle. A music bikini she first used on a film set in Venice became a trademark.

In recent months, she appeared as an advice columnist for the love and weight-watching on "Good Morning Britain," the country's Independent Television breakfast-time program.

The gradual transformation of her image from a "bombshell" to a thoughtful talk-show guest and competent actress captivated many who had once dismissed her as a dumb blonde. Her battles with meningitis and cancer made her a national heroine.

Miss Dors, at the age of 25, was Britain's highest-paid actress, with a $3 million contract. Her films were not memorable, but she continued to hold attention with sexy photographs, including bubble-bath scenes, and stories about her private life and three marriages.

She made some efforts to break into serious drama and won acclaim for her portrayal of a condemned murderer in the film "Yield to the Night."

But she made a serious career mistake when she turned down a starring role in a film because the leading man was an unknown.

Lawyer speaks, but pants drop

LONDON (AP) — Dennis Bubb opened his arms wide to demonstrate a point in court Thursday and his pants fell down.

Bubb, 57, apologized and re-dressed the matter. He then continued giving evidence at London's famous Old Bailey courthouse and helped workmate Thomas Gallagher, 59, to acquittal on a charge of damaging a car when he shifted it on a forklift truck.

The car had blocked the entrance to a construction site where both men worked, opposite the Old Bailey. Bubb spread his arms to show the width of the entrance.

Show aids girls' return

LOMITA, Calif. (AP) — Twin girls who vanished during a 1980 visit with their father were back home with their mother Friday thanks to people who recognized their picture on a rerun of "Adam," the TV movie about missing children.

The girls' father is expected to be expelled from Canada and still faces charges in California, police said Friday.

"I'm overwhelmed," their mother, Sue Johnson, said Friday morning at her home 20 miles south of Los Angeles.

Johnson, 35, said she was "pretty sure" all along that twins Kathy and Kristy, 8, were alive and well somewhere with their father, Marvin Johnson.

She saw the girls for the first time in 3 1/2 years Tuesday night in Amrpor, Ontario.

She said they remembered her very well, even though they were only 4 when they disappeared.

"They seem very happy," she said. Johnson, who returned with the girls Thursday night, said they probably will be enrolled in school in the Lomita area next week.

The girls had been enrolled in an elementary school in Amrpor, where one of them was "a top student in her class," Amrpor police Sgt. David Jones said.

The children's principal in Amrpor and a church pastor recognized pictures of the girls that were broadcast Monday night after NBC-TV's rerun of "Adam."

The movie is the story of 8-year-old Adam Walsh, who vanished from a Hollywood, Fla., shopping mall in July 1981. His severed head was found two weeks later.

Repeated youth center escapes spark citizens to seek shutdown

ST. ANTHONY (AP) — Amid feelings that the state is doing little to prevent persistent escapes, citizens around the Idaho Youth Services Center are threatening to demand the facility's closure unless security is improved.

After another four juveniles fled the center early Friday and were recaptured in Rexburg, Robert Mace warned that the group would ask lawmakers to close the institution unless changes are made.

Claiming more than 500 hundred signatures on petitions demanding tighter security, Mace acknowledged the need for the facility to house problem juveniles. But he argued that it must be able to control the inmates if it is to continue operating in the eastern Idaho community.

Authorities recaptured the four juveniles after a foot chase through Rexburg. They apparently fled the center shortly after the Thursday night bed-check. Three were immediately returned to the center. The fourth, who threw a large portable radio at ensuing police and then tried to hold them at bay by throwing rocks, was taken to the Madison County jail, where he was being held for assault.

Residents of the area around the center banded together earlier this year because of their mounting concerns over repeated escapes from the institution.

He had earlier demanded that state officials install a whistle alarm to be sounded when an escape is detected and they wanted the center surrounded by a fence. This week, they dropped the demand for the whistle system,

Temporary rate offset

BOISE (AP) — Federal energy credits will more than offset a temporary 4.1 percent rate increase granted for Idaho customers of Utah Power and Light Co., according to the Public Utilities Commission.

The commission granted the rate increase, which would add about $4.5 million a year to the utility's revenues, while it considers the company's request for a permanent $31 million a year hike in rates.

The temporary increase, which is subject to refund pending a final PUC decision, will cover a part of UP&L's investment in the new Hunter No. 3 power plant as well as costs of the utility's weatherization program.

Conservation League director named

BOISE (AP) — Wendy Wilson, a fund-raiser and education coordinator for the Ecology Center of Ann Arbor, Mich., for the past four years, has been named the new director of the Idaho Conservation League.

Wilson, who also served as a member of the Michigan governor's Committee on Resource Recovery, will take over daily operations of the 1,400-member organization next month.

Legislator must pay ex-wife $173,000

BOISE (AP) — A judge has ordered state Rep. James Golder to pay $173,000, plus interest, to his ex-wife for defrauding her during a property settlement when the couple was divorced.

In his ruling earlier this week, 4th District Judge Robert Rowett said Golder, R-Boise, made false representations about the couple's assets and concealed the true value of their property.

The suit against the Boise Republican was filed by his ex-wife, Diane, in 1981.

Rowett also found evidence that Golder threatened his wife with a custody battle over the couple's adopted daughter if Mrs. Golder rejected the property settlement agreement or sought legal help at the time of their August 1979 divorce.

Some questions remain for today's Classic

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The race for this year's Twin Falls Track Classic team titles boils down to one major question mark in the boys division and perhaps three in the girls.

The meet, which one-through-eight places probably is the best conducted in the state, kicks off with preliminaries and field events at 11 a.m. today at Bruin Stadium before the running finals to begin at 2 p.m.

The field has been trimmed to the best eight from the Gem State and Southern Idaho conferences on the basis of league championships last week. There might be a few added individuals who missed the qualifying meets due to illness or for other reasons.

The race among the boys is simply this: Can Highland's distance corps absorb the challenge of Capital's Frank Horn sufficiently to offset the sprinting strength that defending state champion Scott Fitzgerald and several others give Borah?

If the answer is no, Borah will win the boys division.

Among the girls, the highlight is going to be the sprint collision between Borah's Miquette Gilson and Twin Falls' Junior Bigi Salter. Salter, getting nearly a full month of track experience under her belt, thus far has turned back challenges of several proven sprinters.

The outcome of the sprints, however, could be pivotal in the team scoring because Twin Falls apparently will be the only Gem State Conference team capable of contesting the SIC triumvirate of Borah, Capital and Meridian.

Highland will start getting the word early in the day when its distance corps tangles with Horn, who ran the state's all-time best 1600 last week. Horn will be battling sophomore Rob Rene, Marly Stroscheln and Jerry Musser in the longer events. Last week Rene and Musser went in the 3200. Stroscheln and Rene in the 1600 and Musser in 800.

On the basis of last week's times, however, the boys don't figure to do well against the Boise area lads. Twin Falls' Doug Zakalyk's 15.0 was better than Capital's D.D. Harris' 15.4 and his 40.1 topped Steve Quijano of Boise who had a 40.6. But the SIC meet was battered by high winds through while the Gem State had instances of windy and calm conditions.

Dean Sword of Nampa provides long sprint quality behind Fitzgerald. In the high jump, Bruin Andy Tolsonson's 66 of last week leaved him in top contention. Highland vaulter Doug Croft is the favorite and Bruin Brent Burgess should place well. Bruin Craig Leonard will challenge in the long jump along with Pocatello's Henry Evans in the long and triple.

The other possible Gem State first could be the discus where Minico's Sam Melson is a contender.

The girls division will feature the sprints between Gilson and Salter but Skyline's Colleen Richert can't be counted out. The other sophomore Lisa Williams should place in the 800 with Highland's Jenny Ney a contender while Skyline's Becky Hall and Nye will carry the Gem State banner in the longer events.

Minico's Charllette Winward is the favorite in both hurdles with Twin Falls' juniors Mallin Miller and Amber Welty good bets for big points. Miller also will be favored in the long jump and Welty in the high jump.

One place the Bruins' title bid could be hurt is the weights where senior Denise Rhodes has been a consistent winner or high placer. But Rhoades will have to do considerably better in both the shot and discus than she did last week to meet the third district challenge.

There is little reason to expect Minico's relay dominance to dwindle to much worse than second place and the Sparan girls baton events could produce three or four firsts without stretching the imagination.

Seventh-inning rally decides Cross State tourney

Caldwell edges Burley for crown

BURLEY — Caldwell erupted for two runs in the seventh inning here to defeat Burley 6-5 here Friday for the championship of the Cross State Conference baseball tournament.

Singles by Doug Oates and Gary Velasquez in the seventh accounted for two runs — both unearned — to pull the Cougars from a 5-4 deficit and give Caldwell its 18th victory in 22 games this season.

Right-hander Greg Garman, the son of former major league pitcher Mike Garman, picked up the victory, scattering eight hits.

In the tournament consolation game, Madison defeated Rigby, 17-6.

Burley, which had taken a 4-1 advantage in fourth inning, surrendered three runs in fifth before taking a 5-4 lead in the bottom of the fifth on an RBI single by Darren Strucheln.

In the Caldwell seventh, leadoff batter Gary Headley walked, and Pat Headley followed with a ground ball that got past the third baseman. Oates singled to tie the game, chasing starter Scott Asson. Scott Barrett then came on in relief of Asson, giving up an RBI single to Velasquez.

Strucheln paced the Bobcats at the plate with a 2-for-4 game, while Ron Collins belted his third home run of the season.

Burley made the championship game by beating Madison for the third time in four meetings this season. The Bobcats outpaced Madison starter Scott Lamp for three runs before Lamp gave way to Madison ace Robert Jensen. Burley took a 5-0 lead in the third before Madison responded with three runs in the bottom of the inning. Ron Burley put the game away with Kory Knopp's one-run homer in the fourth.

Knopp paced Burley with a 2-for-3 performance at the plate, while Asson added his first home run of the season.

In other tournament action, Madison defeated Mountain Home 7-6, Rigby beat South Fremont 9-2, Caldwell defeated Rigby 10-1 and Mountain Home beat South Fremont 15-2.

Tigers claim league titles

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jerome topped a championship day with excellent times in the mile relays Friday as the Tigers nailed down both divisions in the Cross State Conference Track and Field Championships.

The Tigers girls — although later disqualified from the No.1 position because the team members were in uniform uniforms — posted a 4:14 to win their mile relay. Then the boys Jeff-Klinger, Shane-Jund, Turry Sheets and Dee Herfel, ripped through their finale in 3:28.3.

Even giving up those 10-relay points, Jerome's girls beat runner-up Madison 102-85 while the boys raced past Mountain Home 163-134.

"When we got the 17 points out of the triple jump, that pretty well sold the wagon — them [Mountain Home]," Jerome Coach Tim Dunne said, "because usually the distance jumping is one of Mountain Home's strong suits."

had a measure 197-foot throw in practice Wednesday. He also had another over 190. But he complained of the rain making the plates slippery. He won it at 165-4, his lowest competitive throw this year. He added the shot title at 58-10.

Madison's Gerald Henderson ran off with both boys distance victories while Jerome's Jerry Sheets ran his usual hard six-six run to take the 800.

Mountain Home's Tony Hunter collected the 100 and 200-meter titles and ran third in the 400 to top the Tigers' second-place effort. Perhaps the best individual time, however, was posted by Mountain Home's Mark Hildrestone who won a three-way lunge at the high hurdle tape in 14.97. He was the intermediate runner-up. John Jewett won the triple jump and placed second in the long jump to further aid Mountain Home.

Freshman Laura Jensen won the 1600 and 3200 and ran on the ill-starred mile relay to pace Jerome in the girls division. Veteran Joni James, who announced she had accepted a basketball-and-track scholarship at College of Southern Idaho, won the 400, was third in the 100 and 200 and ran on the disqualified team.

The sprints belonged to Laura Hurley of Caldwell, who also anchored the 400-relay squad and won the long jump at 17-5.

Madison's Sandy Smith took both hurdles and Buhl's Kelly Berthoff had a good-day, winning the 900 and anchoring the mile to victory.

"Mountain Home was just as tough in the sprints as we expected (one-two in the 100 and 200) but I felt our kids did a better job running the finals than I thought they could do."

The disqualification took a little out of the girls team victory for the Intense Skip Andrew, who admitted to a lot of frustration.

"I'm not made at the committee for disqualifying us. I just think it's a chicken rule," he said. "The track rule requires relay teams to wear similar uniforms. The Jerome girls had two black and two light shirts under their running tops.

Jerome's boys took all the relays but got decided help in the 800 where Caldwell, on the lead, dropped the first baton exchange, and Mountain Home, the pre-race favorite, tumbled the handoff in the second exchange zone. Mountain Home picked it back up and placed third, but well behind Jerome.

The day's field performances were hampered by windy, rainy weather. Gary Hulsey, who became Magic Valley second 60-foot shotputter last week, was given a chance to set an all-time Idaho discus mark after he

Twin Falls netters gain strong second

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

POCATELLO — Twin Falls High School tennis Coach Clavis Johnson got both an expected reward and an unexpected surprise here Friday for juggling his team in preparation for the District 45 Class A tennis tournament.

The boys' doubles tandem of Doug Peterson and Jeff Lambert — who are also his best singles players — culled to an easy victory in their division at the district tournament, sweeping all three of their matches in straight sets in qualifying for the state tourney. That also left an opening for Shawn Sadler, Johnson's third-best singles player.

Sadler, a three-year veteran of Johnson's program, blasted Highland's Chuck Lawless 7-5, 6-2 in his opening round match, then won his next two matches before falling to top-seeded Rob Johnson of Highland in the championship. Sadler then outlasted teammate Mike Kerbs, 6-3, 6-3 in a challenge match, earning his first trip to state in three seasons.

"I'd been playing No. 3 singles all year, so when Coach Johnson put Doug and Jeff together in doubles, I figured I had a chance," said Sadler. "I felt pretty good after a beat Lawless, because even though he's just a freshman he's probably the second-best player in the tournament (boys singles)."

Sadler's victory spoiled a stirring comeback by Kerbs, a junior. After losing to Johnson in the first round, he had to win his next three matches for the right to face his teammate.

"Mike played a lot of tennis today, and he fell back on losing," said Johnson. "But to show you what kind of kid he is, he said that if he couldn't go to state, he was glad that Shawn could."

Peterson and Lambert cruised through their division with workmanlike precision.

"It's going to be tougher at state," said Lambert. "Mark — Coach Johnson from Meridian last year, is back with a new partner and the competition from Capital and the other Boise schools will be tough too."

Highland, won the district team championship with 89 points, capturing four events and qualifying two teams and two singles players for state. The Bruins finished second with 72 points, with one champion and two qualifiers, while, Pocatello was third, with 60 points and two qualifiers. Blackfoot finished fourth with 36 points and two qualifiers.

Bruin No. 1 singles girls' player, Susie Hoag just missed qualifying for state, battling back through the consolation bracket before losing to Blackfoot's Marni Natchef, 4-6, 1-6, in a challenge match for the second state berth.

The Twin Falls girls' doubles tandem of Laura Rice and Tricia Swartling, who also lost their first-round match, struggled back through the consolation bracket before losing to Cindy Hill and Zoe Ann Olsen of Pocatello in the second-place

Today's Derby should be competitive

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The 110th Kentucky Derby today shapoes up as an extremely competitive, missing some of the top horses and offering more plots than a cheap detective thriller.

Devil's Bag, Time for a Change and Dr. Carter, who were prime Derby contenders, did not make the race, but it's difficult, perhaps impossible, to detract from a race that has become a piece of Americana.

Besides, there is quality in what will be the richest running of the 1 1/4-mile classic at Churchill Downs with a purse of $712,400 and a winner's share of $537,400.

Post time is 3:38 p.m. MDT.

"It's a good field," Jack Van Berg, trainer of Gate Dancer, said Friday. "There is no super horse in there we know of yet, but it is a very competitive field. You can pick 10 or 12 horses, and any one of them could win."

There is genuine speed in the race, and there are some good one-run horses, whose jockeys will try to move at the right time and hope their mounts can sustain a winning drive to the wire.

One of the speed horses is the filly Althea, who beat colts in the Arkansas Derby, while one of the stretch runners is her entrymate Life's Magic, also a filly.

Two fillies have won the Derby — Regret in 1915 and Genuine Risk in 1980.

Other contenders who figure to be on or near the pace are Taylor's Special, Swale, Fall Time and Vanlandingham. Three other stretch runners to watch are Silent King, Gate Dancer and Vanlandingham's entrymate, Pine Circle.

This Derby has a full field of 20 3-year-olds and even more human interest angles.

At the first Derby, which was won by Aristides on May 17, 1875, women were not allowed into the grandstand without an escort.

In this Derby, there will a woman jockey and a woman trainer.

Patli Cooksey, who will ride So Vague, will be the second woman jockey in Derby.

"History was made when Diane Crump did it," said the 26-year-old Cooksey, known as P.J. "Whether I'm the second or the 102nd ... just the prestige of being here and being able to participate is quite a thrill."

Crump finished 15th on Fathom in 1970.

Dianne Carpenter will become the fourth woman to train a Derby starter when she saddles Blixel Indian, a colt she owns. The others were Mary Hirsch, 1937; Mrs. Albert Roth, 1949, and Mary Keim, 1965.

Another trainer, 70-year-old Woody Stephens, will be a focal point of this Derby as he has been in the past.

The weather forecast for Saturday calls for increasing cloudiness, a 20 percent chance of afternoon showers and temperatures in the low to mid 70s. Clarity of hot, wet or hot, a SWIRL victory would be a bright moment for Stephens, who has spent a harsh spring and winter.

The Hall of Fame trainer, who won the 100th Derby with Cannonade, broke three ribs about two months ago and was hospitalized here with pneumonitis April 22. He has made three brief visits to his barn in the Churchill Downs stable area this week and hopes to be at the Derby.

Burley captures Class B title

BURLEY — Burley grabbed the District 4 Class B Golf Championship Friday afternoon, defeating defending champion Jerome.

The Bobcats carded a team score of 310, beating Jerome by 19 strokes. The margin of victory was considered a surprise since the Bobcats eked out a three-stroke win on the same course earlier this week.

On a day blessed with good weather, Burley's Shane Newcomb took medalist honors shooting a 75 while teammate Craig Schaffer was right behind him with a 77. Jerome's Cam Hirst and Burley's Ed Stackley tied for the third-best score of the afternoon with 78.

"Golfing on our own course made a big difference," said Burley Coach Steve Jensen. "If we can shoot a 310 at Lewiston (at the state tournament), we'll have a real good shot at the state title."

Jerome Coach Dale Mowrer agreed with Jensen. "They've got a good team and if they play like they did here, they'll take state," he said.

Both Burley and Jerome will advance to the state B golf tournament in Lewiston at the Lewiston Country Club next weekend.

Burley 186 — Shane Newcomb 75, Craig Schaffer 77, Ed Stackley 78, Dan Simpson 80, Brad Clapp 81.

Jerome 329 — Cam Hirst 78, Shawn Hillman 81, Shawn Black 81, Kyle Crivello 85, Tim Petersen 85.

Buhl 308 — Kyle Wilson 83, Brock Weaver 83, Tracy Tava 84, Steve Franson 85, Kevin Galtier 85.

Placer 300 — Mark Pletcher 83, John Galtier 84, Bruce Kovarsky 102, Dale Olsen 103, Kevin Taylor 117.

Mixed results for CSI

OREGON CITY, Ore. — The College of Southern Idaho's women's track team fell in the first day of the Region 18 junior college championships. But the men's team struggled through the rainy Oregon weather at Clackamas Community College Friday afternoon.

The women's team is currently in second place in the team standings behind Ricks College. The Golden Eagles have 17 points to the Vikings' 20. In the men's division, Ricks exploded for 44 points in the first day.

CSI is in third place, behind the Vikings and Clackamas, with 9 points. Sophomore Merette Simmons was a bright spot for the Golden Eagles on Friday, winning the 10,000-meter run with a time of 35 minutes, 7 seconds, three minutes under the qualifying time for the National Junior College Athletic Association meet.

meet record with a jump of 18 feet, 7 inches, while Mary Reed finished third with a leap of 17.5.

Freshman Jennifer Bosley finished third in the shot put with a toss of 34.7, while teammate Andrea Wade was fourth in 32.2.

The Golden Eagles' 3,200 relay team also finished in third place with a time of 10:24.

In the men's competition, sophomore Ray Mitchell accounted for two second-place finishes for the Eagles. Mitchell was runner-up in the high jump with a leap of 6-4 and took second in the long jump with a jump of 22-2.

Sophomore Tim Donahue was the only other man to place for CSI on Friday, as he came in second place in the 10,000 meters run with a time of 32:29.

Sutton atop T of C

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — PGA title-holder Hal Sutton, armed with a new driver and a new putter, birdied the last two holes and opened up a two-shot lead Friday in the second round of the elite MONY Tournament of Champions.

Sutton, five strokes off the pace when the day's play started, compiled a 5-under-par 67 and completed two trips over the 6,911-yard La Costa Country Club course in 136, eight under par.

Toni Kite, a strong list-contender in each of his last two starts, held second place in the regular Tour section, which brings together only the winners from the last 12 months.

After dissatisfying '83 season, Cowboys' Martin calls it quits

DALLAS (AP) — Veteran defensive end Harvey Martin, troubled by physical and personal problems in the twilight of his National Football League career, on Friday became the third Dallas Cowboy to retire in the off-season.

Martin, 33, the co-Most Valuable Player of Super Bowl XII, took a job as a sales manager for a local electronics firm, saying, "I wasn't giving Coach (Tom Landry) my all."

The Cowboys' all-time sack king said the 1983 season "was the lowest point of my career ... not fond memories at all."

Martin, an 11-year veteran, said he suffered quietly with a shoulder injury "that was so bad it plagued me all season."

He had to share time with Don Simerok and rookie Jim Jeffcoat, who are the heir apparents to Martin's right end position, and had only two sacks this season.

By retiring, Martin walked away from a contract that would have paid him $275,000 this season.

"It was a rough decision and I'll miss the Cowboys, especially Coach Landry," an emotional Martin said. "He stood by me and I'd like to say, 'Thanks, coach.'"

Martin was forced to file for bankruptcy in 1982 because of business problems and, in January 1983, his name surfaced in a drug investigation along with four other Cowboys. Federal authorities never took any action.

Asked if he was quitting because he might lose his starting job, he answered, "Harvey Martin always feels like a winner. I just decided my job on the side was taking up my time. If you do too many things at one time, you won't do anything well."

Martin, a third-round draft pick from East Texas State in 1973, said his happiest memories will be "The Super Bowl in New Orleans and being around players like Randy White, Drew Pearson, Billy Joe DuPree, Bob Lilly, Craig Morton, and Roger Staubach."

"And if the Cowboys ever need me again I'd do anything for Tom Landry," he said.

DuPree, a tight end, also retired this season, along with tackle Pat Donovar.

Landry, who attended Martin's press conference, said he had counseled Martin not to retire, but respected his judgment.

USC athletic director steps down

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard M. Perry has resigned as athletic director at the University of Southern California, which has fallen from national sports prominence in recent years, the school announced Friday.

His resignation comes in the wake of a study by a special Southern Cal athletic advisory council formed by the university's president, James H. Zumberge. The council, which studied all facets of Southern Cal's athletic program, was formed after the Trojan football team in 1983 had its first losing season (4-6-1) in 22 years.

Zumberge said a search committee will be formed as soon as possible to recruit a replacement for Perry.

Perry will be relieved of his duties on July 1 and return to his former job as associate professor in Southern Cal's Department of Physical Education, the school said.

"I have made this decision personally—with the best interests of the university in mind," said Perry, 54. "Some people have viewed the past few years in USC's athletic history as tumultuous. I am concerned that this perception is so deep-seated that it will slow the progress of our athletic department.

"I am therefore stepping down because I have decided that a new leader with a fresh perspective is needed in order to maintain our commitment to athletic excellence," he said in a prepared release.

During Perry's stint as athletic director, USC earned 20 national team titles, including eight men's and 12 women's championships.

Deadline to declare hardship nears

By The Associated Press

With tonight's midnight deadline approaching, All-American Akeem Oluajun of Houston and Charles Barkley of Auburn head a group of six college undergraduates who have decided to enter the June 19 National Basketball Association draft.

The others are Stuart Gray of UCLA, Cory Blackwell of Wisconsin, Sam Norton of Texas-Arlington and Yommy Sangodeyi of Sam Houston State.

Among those still reportedly considering declaring themselves eligible for the draft are Tim McCormick and Eric Turner, both of Michigan's national invitation tournament champions.

Only the 7-foot Oluajun and the 6-6, 265-pound Barkley are expected to provide instant help for the NBA team drafting them.

"You're looking for guys who'll help you the team five percent," Marty Blake, the NBA's director of scouting,

Jordan to decide today

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina All-American guard Michael Jordan has scheduled a news conference today to announce whether he will stay in college or play professional basketball next season.

Jordan, a 6-foot-6 junior, will hold a news conference at 11 a.m. on the North Carolina campus today — the deadline for underclass college basketball players to decide whether to stay in school or be considered for the National Basketball Association draft.

Jordan, who was named The Associated Press college basketball player of the year in 1983, could not be reached for comment Friday.

"He's going to make a decision one way or the other," said Rick Brewer, sports information director at North Carolina.

"I spoke with Mitchner this afternoon, and at that point I honestly don't think that he'd made a decision," Brewer said. "My impression is that he and (Coach) Dean (Smith) are going to talk tonight and the final decision will be made."

was quoted as saying "Barkley and Oluajun are great."

"I don't think anybody is going to get excited about Turner or Blackwell. Somebody is filling their heads with dreams of gold. . . . "Most of these guys (the underclassmen) are all right," continued Blake. "But how many eventually will be great? How many will even by pretty good?"

The coin flip for the No. 1 pick in the draft will be held next Thursday between the Houston Rockets and the Portland Trail Blazers.

Last year, six undergraduates entered the draft, and five were first-round selections, including center Russell Cross of Purdue, by Golden State; forward Clyde-Drexler of Houston; by Portland; guard Derek Harper of Illinois; by Dallas; guard Byron Scott of Arizona State, picked by San Diego and later traded to Los Angeles, and guard Ennis Whitley of Alabama, whose right wrist was traded from Kansas City to Chicago.

The other undergraduate in the draft, guard Glenn Rivers of Marquette, was chosen by Atlanta in the second round.

Some of last season's big stars aren't expected to opt for next month's draft. "They include center Patrick Ewing of Georgetown's NCAA champions; Player of the Year, guard Michael Jordan. . . .

Chisox chiefs may buy Blitz

CHICAGO (AP) — The owners of the Chicago White Sox Friday confirmed a published report that they are considering buying the financially struggling Chicago entry in the United States Football League.

"The USFL came to them. They are considering the proposal," Shert Dumgardner, an assistant to White Sox co-owner Jerry Reinsdorf, said. "We said Reinsdorf would be in meetings all day and would not comment directly on the matter. The White Sox other owner, Eddie Einhorn, was not available immediately, a spokeswoman for the baseball team said.

College stars convene in USFL game tonight

By The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Coliseum, site for the Summer Olympics, also will be the scene for one of the most eagerly awaited confrontations of the United States Football League season — tonight's meeting between the Pittsburgh Steelers, featuring 1983 Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier, and the Los Angeles Express, with Heisman runner-up Steve Young.

Although the Maulers and the Express have from last year's collegiate ranks, neither team has a winning record.

The Maulers, losers of their last four games, are 2-4 and one game out of last place in the Atlantic Division. After their last defeat, to the Memphis Showboats, they fired Coach Joe Peadry and promoted assistant Ellis Rainsberger to replace him.

Los Angeles has a 4-6 and is tied for second in the Pacific Division, but since Young started playing five games ago, the team's offense has prospered.

In other USFL games tonight, Denver, 7-3, will be at Oakland, 1-9, and Tampa Bay, 7-3, at Jacksonville, 4-6. Sunday, it will be Philadelphia, 9-1, at Birmingham, 9-1; Oklahoma, 6-4, at New Jersey, 8-2; Houston, 6-4, at Michigan, 6-4; Memphis, 3-7, at Washington, 1-9, and Chicago, 3-7, at San Antonio, 3-7.

Monday night's game is Arizona,

4-6, at New Orleans, 7-3.

The fortunes of Rozier and Young appear to be going in opposite directions.

Rozier, who missed Pittsburgh's last game with a mild concussion and strained neck, has been relatively struggled. He has rushed for 528 yards in 177 carries, with his longest run only 28 yards, and has scored only once.

On the positive side, however, he has caught 29 passes for 237 yards, more receptions than he had during his entire career at Nebraska.

Young appears to have had a growing impact on the Express since making his debut five games ago. In his first five games of the season, Los Angeles had averaged only 14 points per game. With Young in the lineup, the team's point production has increased remarkably.

Young, the record-setting passer from Brigham Young University, has become the No. 1-rated passer in the USFL's Western Conference, connecting on 99 of 163 attempts for 1,301 yards and six TDs with only two interceptions. He also has rushed for 286 yards and three TDs on 42 carries.

"Obviously, we have a challenge ahead of us this week," said Rainsberger, a former coach at Kansas State. "There's no question that Steve Young is one of the most talented quarterbacks in football. He can hurt you in the air and he's also an exceptional running quarterback."

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"I believe in the discipline of silence and could talk for hours about it." - George Bernard Shaw.

West's best chance to beat today's slam was to keep silent about his ace of clubs. If South didn't know which defender had it, it was odds-on that South would choose the wrong course.

The bidding took West that he could expect little in the way of a diamond from East. One look at dummy told him to expect nothing.

Dummy won the first heart, and a club was led to South's king. West ducked impressively.

The hearts were run, South discarding a diamond, and another club was led to South's queen. Once again, West ducked bravely and South was convinced.

What happens if West takes the clubs early? South must now test the clubs to see if they break.

When he finds that he has only two club tricks, he is forced to fall back on the diamond finesse, and when this works, he makes his slam.

When you know something that declarer doesn't.
