Oakley area flood hazards rising

Sam Lawrence wades to get help after his pickup full of belongings got stuck while he was evacuating his home

Torrential runoff, rains fill emergency channel

By HAL BEHNTON Times-News writer

OAKLEY — A torrent of creek waters and recent rains have stymied an Army Corps of Engineers' effort to direct fast-approaching flood waters from the Oakley Reservoir away from CasStia County farms, homes and businesses.

County officials and Oakley Canal Co. officers met Tuesday evening to develop a new plan to try to deal with reservoir flood waters that are expected to arrive as early as Sunday.

A tentative plan discussed at the meeting would attempt to direct flood waters through irrigation canals, along an abandoned Union Pacific railroad grade, and then through a still-to-be dug channel emptying into the Snake River west of Burley.

County and canal company officials hope reservoir flooding will hold off long enough to complete the new project. Canal company board members have okayed a plan to raise the reservoir's spillway level in an effort to gain more time. They have also asked corps engineers to assist in the new diversion project.

But time is running out and canal company officials are unsure of how successful the new plan will be.

"We don't want to alarm people, but we are at the point now where we have to prepare for the worst," said Duff Woodhouse, an Oakley Canal Co. board member. "Everyone along the (downstream reservoir) drainage had been put on a 24-hour alert."

The weekend's soaring temperatures and Monday rainstorms have triggered a deluge of snowmelt into the reservoir, which has filled the reservoir to within eight feet of its nearly 106-foot capacity. During the Weather may provide break

BOISE — The weather may buy some time for crews fighting swollen rivers and limit damage to property during the next few days.

Cooler weather should slow melting of snow in the mountains, Scott Kyser, hydrologist for the National Weather Service, said Tuesday.

"We should see rivers falling beginning late tomorrow (Wednesday)," he predicted. "Temperatures should dive significantly in the highest mountain areas, where most of the snowpack still lingers, he said.

But the rest from the runoff will be a short wait. The mercury is expected to again during the weekend, climbing back into the upper 70s and low 80s. Stream levels also will start to rise, perhaps approaching current stages again on Sunday, Kyser said.

There is little chance of rain in the forecast for the next five days.

Rampaging Rock Creek forces families to leave homes belongings into orange moving trucks.

HANSEN — Sam Lawrence gunned the motor on the pickup truck loaded with furniture. The wheels spun, sinking into Rock Creek, where flooding caused a number of evacuations Tuesday.

A few hundred feet away, the Neal Larsen family and friends lugged both families fled with their valuables Monday morning from the rising waters of Rock Creek. They took up temporary quarters with neighbors.

"We got what we could," said Lawrence before returning for another haul to the house about five miles south of Hansen where he lives with his wife, Helen.

Rock Creek rampaged out of the South Hills down its channel Monday and Tuesday fueled by water from enormous mountain snowpacks.

It washed out roads, cut off access to creekside homes, poured over some fields and carried debris downstream. At most spots, the creek filled its channel brim to brim.

Highway officials closed the main paved road into the South Hills late Monday and on Tuesday reported mudslides and large sections of the road south of Hansen washed out.

Throughout the day, Twin Falls Canal Co. continued to divert water into its Highline Canal to avoid downstream damage.

"We're probably running, I would say right now, 10 to 15 to 20 percent of the total capacity of the creek into the Highline," said Warren Travis, general manager for the canal company, late Tuesday.

To create space for the water, the canal company has been cutting flows into its irrigation system at Millner Dam and occasionally spilling excess water into the Snake River through an emergency outlet.

Water draining off the deep mountain snowpacks gained speed as it roared through the South Hills of Sawtooth National Forest.

The U.S. Forest Service and Twin Falls County Highway Department closed the road to traffic at the forest boundary. Recreation officer Dale Hoag, who toured the area, said the swift water had undermined and carried away about half of the paved road.

Twin Falls mayor faces charge over eyebrow shaving

By DAVID MOFFAT Times-News writer

mayor's son, while he was sleeping Friday night.

TWIN FALLS — A charge of battery has been filed against Twin Falls Mayor Emery Petersen after he allegedly shaved an eyebrow of a classmate of his 17-year-old son.

In a misdemeanor complaint filed Tuesday, Ryan McDermott, 17, said he was so "shocked and afraid" when Petersen said he was going to shave his eyebrow off Saturday that he did not resist.

The eyebrow shaving in the Petersen garage apparently came as retribution for a high school prank.

McDermott and Bob Wilkins, also 17, shaved one eyebrow off Doug Petersen, the

At the time, the three Twin Falls High School juniors were visiting Sun Valley for a state high school tennis championship, in which Petersen was competing.

In an affidavit accompanying his complaint, McDermott said when he went over to the Petersen house to apologize about 3 p.m. Saturday, Petersen "grabbed me by the arm and led me into the garage."

"Mr. Petersen held me against the wall and closed the garage door. Mr. Petersen explained to me in certain terms that he was going to shave off my eyebrow. At this time he held my head against the wall and shaved my left eyebrow off. I at no time resisted as I was shocked and afraid," McDermott alleged in the formal complaint.

Further details of the incident apparently are contained in McDermott's signed witness statement. But City Attorney Fritz Wondorlich said Tuesday he would not release the statement, and McDermott refused to comment further saying all he wanted to say was written in it.

Petersen disputed the circumstances of the incident.

McDermott agreed to have the eyebrow shaved off as a form of atonement, he said Tuesday night.

Petersen said no charges would have been filed if McDermott's parents had not talked their son into it.

"I think things have gotten out of hand. It's unfortunate for the youngsters involved," the mayor said.

Petersen said McDermott "called me up and said 'I understand you want to talk to me.'"

When McDermott arrived, Petersen said they went into the garage where he asked McDermott what he would think about having his own eyebrow shaved off.

McDermott said, "Okay, if that will help," Petersen said.

"I felt that was some kind of admission ... that it would make him feel better," Petersen said. "I think it was quite a relief to him."

Petersen said he did not threaten McDermott with a razor, but that he did have one in his pocket when the two went into the garage.

Petersen said he used "a four letter word or two" in talking to McDermott, "but I wasn't raving, screaming mad."

He said he considered the action appropriate because he is "kind of a strong disciplinarian."

He is more apt to follow the "eye for an eye" lesson of the Old Testament than the "turn the other cheek" lesson of the New Testament, he said.

City Attorney Fritz Wondorlich will disqualify himself from prosecuting the case, but it was not decided Tuesday who would take it.

The maximum penalty for misdemeanor battery is a $500 fine, six months in jail, or both.

Hart captures double triumph

By DAVID ESPO The Associated Press

Sen. Gary Hart overwhelmed Walter F. Mondale to win Democratic presidential primaries in Nebraska and Oregon Tuesday night, gaining western momentum to fuel a late, long-shot surge for the party's presidential nomination.

Hart's campaign manager said the double-barreled victories provided the Colorado senator an "overwhelmingly successful day ... exactly the kind of thing we were looking for" heading into the final primary showdowns in California and four other states on June 5.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson was a distant third in the two states with small black populations.

"Now we've won all but one state west of the Mississippi," Hart told supporters in Denver. "And after June 5 I think I'll be able to say we've still won all but one state west of the Mississippi!"

Mondale began the day with 1,572,05 delegates to 634,755 for Hart and 255,2 for Jackson. It takes 1,907 to win the nomination.

Tuesday, 67 delegates were at stake, Hart led for a total 42 — 27 from Oregon and 15 from Nebraska. Mondale led for 24 — 16 from Oregon and 8 from Nebraska. Jackson had 1 Nebraska delegate.

With ballots counted from 83 percent of Nebraska's precincts, Hart was winning 58 percent of the vote, compared with 27 for Mondale. Jackson had 10 percent.

In Oregon, with results from 25 percent of the state's 2,452 precincts, Hart led Mondale 57 percent to 31 percent. Jackson had 8 percent.

MX showdown looms in House today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said Tuesday the House will vote to virtually scuttle the $25 billion MX missile program and send President Reagan the message that "The people want arms control — now!"

As the House opened debate on a $285 billion Pentagon spending package, O'Neill declared "We have 220 votes" for today's showdown over whether to delete $2.7 billion in production money next year for the new nuclear missile. That would be two votes more than needed.

The Massachusetts Democrat offered a similar prediction a year ago, only to lose by nine votes after heavy lobbying from the president and the defection of several key liberals. Even if House opponents prevail this time, the Senate still is regarded likely to approve at least a majority of the 40 missiles sought by Reagan — leaving the issue to a House-Senate conference.

Reagan opened his stretch drive for the MX this week with a nationally broadcast statement Monday that the Soviet Union's "incentive to return to the negotiating table will be greatly reduced" if the missile is curtailed by Congress.

The president won several swing votes last year by the bargaining chip" argument for the MX, designed to carry 10 to 12 warheads which could come within 300 feet of their target. Since then, strategic arms talks have been suspended indefinitely.

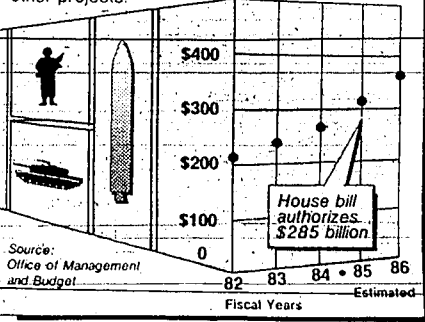

"President Reagan will say anything to win on the MX," O'Neill declared. "He will say that the best way to reduce the number of nuclear weapons is to build more. He will say that the way to get a single warhead weapon (the proposed Midgetman) into production is to build a multiwarhead missile."

But Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., countered that "Last year, we made a conscious decision to support the MX, which has been supported over the years by Democratic and Republican presidents alike. We've started the MX, and if Congress stops it this year, I guarantee you that two or three years from now we'll start all over again, and we'll have saved billions."

Stratton said that "Americans committed themselves to the re-juvenalization of our armed forces in 1980, and that process has not been completed. Let's finish the job."

Defense Spending Debate

Congress is seeking to cut President Reagan's defense spending authorization in the fourth year of his five-year buildup plan. The cutback will affect the $26 billion MX missile program and other projects.

Farmers idle more wheat land

WASHINGTON (AP) — Encouraged by improved federal benefits, wheat farmers signed up to idle an additional 3.8 million acres this year under the government's acreage program, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

The additional land committed to the program was in addition to 17 million acres farmers agreed to idle when they signed up in the regular crop program earlier this year.

All-wheat producers now have agreed to take about 20.8 million acres out of production in 1984 under the program, which is intended to reduce the huge stockpile of wheat that has accumulated in recent years.

Despite the acreage cutback, the department is projecting a total wheat crop this year of about 2.55 billion bushels, up from 2.43 billion in 1983, making it the third largest U.S. wheat harvest on record.

Duarte to confer with Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Jose Napoleon Duarte of El Salvador will visit the United States next week for talks with President Reagan and other U.S. officials, the White House announced Tuesday.

In a two-sentence statement, the White House said Duarte's visit was arranged "in order to carry forward U.S.-Salvadoran cooperation on bilateral and regional matters."

Duarte is scheduled to meet with Reagan at the White House on Monday and will have talks with other administration and congressional leaders during his stay.

Soviet ships head for home

WASHINGTON (AP) — The helicopter carrier Leiningrad, biggest Soviet warship ever to operate in the Caribbean, apparently is heading homeward after seven weeks of maneuvers with the Cuban navy and visits to Cuban ports, defense officials said Tuesday.

The 20,000-ton Leiningrad is accompanied by an advanced, 8,000-ton guided-missile destroyer, a diesel-powered submarine and a tanker, said the officials, who spoke only on condition that they not be identified.

Salt Lake level rises 3 inches

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Great Salt Lake was measured this week at 4,208.35 feet above sea level, up 3 inches from the first of the month, the U.S. Geological Survey said.

Ted Arnow, head of the survey's office in Salt Lake, said the figure was provisional because some winds whipped up waves on the lake.

The lake is at its highest level since the 4,209.4 feet level in 1878, Arnow said Tuesday. The record level since the Mormon pioneers entered Salt Lake Valley was 4,211.5 feet in 1873.

Unemployment rates decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — A steadily improving national economy spread new jobs across the country in March as all 50 states enjoyed unemployment rates lower than a year earlier, the government said Tuesday.

It was the first such grand-slam improvement since the depths of the 1981-82 business slump.

Unemployment ebbed by two or more percentage points in roughly four-fifths of the states from March 1983 to last March, and plunged by four or more percentage points in eight states, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

In Alaska, the lone holdout state preventing an across-the-board improvement in the nation from February 1983 to last February, the jobless rate finally receded in March, to 12.2 percent from 12.5 percent.

Senators turn down nominee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, with bipartisan complaints about "politicization" of U.S. image-building overseas, rejected on Tuesday President Reagan's choice for the No. 2 job at the U.S. Information Agency.

On an 11-6 vote, the Republican-controlled committee scuttled the nomination of USIA acting deputy director Leslie Lenkowsky, who has served as a central figure in a controversy over blacklisting of Americans from the agency's foreign speakers program.

"In my view, Dr. Lenkowsky has lied in his sworn testimony before this committee," said Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb. "I do not believe Dr. Lenkowsky is fit to be deputy director of the USIA."

Space station funds win nod

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House appropriations subcommittee approved $150 million in start-up money for a manned space station Tuesday but bowed to critics by requiring that $15 million be used to plan a "man-tended" unmanned capability.

Such a facility would be serviced periodically by crews carried aloft by the space shuttle. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration asked for $150 million this year and will request $250 million next, to determine what the station will look like and what it is intended to do.

Mondale wants maneuvers end

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Branding President Reagan's Central American policy a failure, Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale on Tuesday called for an end to U.S. military exercises in the region and immediate negotiations seeking withdrawal of all outside forces.

"If Mr. Reagan wants a military solution, he will end up committing our country to direct military intervention," the former vice president said in a speech to the World Affairs Council.

"There is only one conclusion," said Mondale. "Mr. Reagan's failed policies are leading us toward war in that region."

Storm in Rocky Mountains produces more rain, snow

By The Associated Press

A vigorous storm flinging heavy rain or snow Tuesday swept into the Rocky Mountains, where three days of flooding and mudslides from a melting snowpack have crushed homes, routed hundreds of people and left four dead or missing.

One of three people buried by mudslides was a bulldozer operator killed while trying to clear away the mud at a mine in western Utah on Monday night. In addition, a Colorado road worker is believed to have drowned in a swollen creek.

Thunderstorms with winds gusting at near-hurricane force of 74 mph knocked down trees and caused power outages in four counties in Idaho Tuesday and the cold front brought heavy snow to central Nevada, where 6 inches fell at Austin after midnight. Up to a foot of snow was expected in the Wasatch Mountains of Utah.

"It's going to affect all areas that are having flooding problems right now," Bill Alder, meteorologist in charge of the National Weather Service in Salt Lake City, said Tuesday afternoon. "The streams tend to peak between 8 p.m. and midnight, and that's when the showers will be here."

Another day of unusually warm temperatures in much of the region also contributed to the snowmelt and flooding in Utah, Idaho, Colorado, Wyoming, and New Mexico.

last few days the reservoir has risen by more than two feet.

Woodhouse said county residents along the drainage should clean out their basements and secure an emergency supply of drinking water.

Terry Bingham, a Cassia County deputy sheriff, said an around-the-clock watch has been put on the drainage to notify residents of possible evacuations and that a 24-hour watch will soon be put on the reservoir.

In Burley Tuesday, dozens of volunteers filled 4,000 sandbags to prepare for reservoir waters expected to reach the city if the latest diversion effort fails. "We're ready to go if they are needed," said Burley City Police Lemman Messler.

The initial diversion plan proved inadequate after flood waters from the Big Cottonwood Creek nearly filled up a 15-mile long diversion channel, initially bulldozed by corps contractors to handle reservoir waters.

Ernest Straubhaar, a contractor working on the diversion effort, said that flows from Big Cottonwood Creek proved to be "twice the amount" anticipated. The high waters now threaten a creek-side mobile home owned by the Cranney brothers of Oakley. A crew of volunteers from the Oakley High School managed to at least temporarily prevent the trailer from flooding with a hastily organized Tuesday morning sandbagging effort.

The Big Cottonwood Creek waters flow into the corp diversion channel about eight miles northwest of Oakley. For the most part, the channel appears to be holding, although several culverts have plugged up, causing water to spill onto county roads. Travelers in the area should check with Twin Falls and Cassia County officials to check which roads are passable.

"We never dreamed it would be this bad," Woodhouse said of the Big Cottonwood Creek flooding.

The Cottonwood Creek flooding has occurred just as corps officials are finishing off the diversion channel. Donna Street, a corps engineer, said that the channel may be linked today with an enlarged Oakley Canal. Canal carrying reservoir waters.

But canal company officials say the drainage channel can handle only a fraction of the flow needed to lower the reservoir.

Street said she is unsure if corps engineers will remain in the Oakley area to assist in the new diversion effort.

Corps and canal company contractors have worked round the clock to complete the Cottonwood diversion channel.

along a half-mile-long strip. The creek severed the road at least two other places and a 100-foot-wide mudslide blocked another part, officials reported late Tuesday.

Though said the river now has eaten away at the banks and undermined asphalt at some points, making travel hazardous. All lower campgrounds are under water.

The creek has spread out of its channel and cut off access to a number of houses. Private bridges also are out. One area man said a few residents had gotten boats to cross the creek to their homes.

The water that chased the two families from their homes flowed out of the banks for a quarter mile. Crews from Twin Falls Canal Co. and area residents managed to re-direct the water back into the creek channel and away from the houses by the end of the day, said Travis.

About a half-mile away, the canal company has been working almost around the clock since noon Saturday to pipe excess Rock Creek water into the Highline Canal. Crews have been using huge culvert pipes to carry the flows.

Bringing the Rock Creek water into the system has caused some changes in irrigation deliveries. Travis warned "We're going to have some severe fluctuations" because of uncertain levels of Rock Creek water. He asked stockholders to "bear with us" in working out the problems.

The canal company has been compensating by cutting back incoming water from the Snake River and by spilling it back into the Snake when there is too much.

Levels of water at Murtaugh Lake should not cause any major difficulties because of a new, automatic spillway built there.

Water was reported receding in Rock Creek and other areas as temperatures dropped drastically late on Tuesday.

Today's weather

Cover plants against frost tonight

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:

Partly cloudy today. Highs in the 60s. Clearing and cold tonight with lows in the 40s. Partly cloudy and warmer Thursday. Highs in 70s.

Camas Prairie and Wood River Valley: Partly cloudy today with a chance of showers. Northwest winds. Highs low to mid 50s. Tonight clearing and cold. Lows in the 20s. Thursday mostly sunny and not as cool. Highs low 60s.

Northern Nevada and northern Utah: Southerly winds decreasing today in Utah. Scattered rain decreasing tonight. Much cooler today. Partly cloudy Thursday. Snow level lowering to near 6,000 feet north and 7,000 feet south. Lows mostly in the 30s. High mid 60s through low 80s.

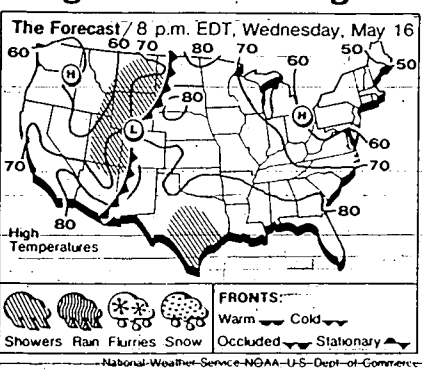

Rain and snow continuing east, then partial clearing during the afternoon in northern and central Nevada. Partly cloudy west through the day. Partly cloudy west and mostly sunny east Thursday. Warmer days with highs to day 50s east and 60s west. Highs Thursday from the lower 70s west to the 60s east. Cold nights with lows in the upper 30s and 30s.

Synopsis: A deep low pressure trough was over Idaho today. The air mass contained in the low was cold and very moist. Widespread rains covered the state and numerous thunderstorms developed over southeast Idaho.

Clouds and rain kept temperatures well below normal. A few stations were still reporting temperatures in the upper 30s. However most reports were in the 40s. The only exception was the Idaho Falls and Malad areas where readings climbed into the 60s and low 70s. All stations across the state reported measurable rainfall.

Winds across southern Idaho have been averaging 10 to 20 mph. The strongest winds have been in thunderstorm activity. The strongest gust so far reported has been in Idaho Falls where a peak gust of 25 mph was recorded. Also, Pocatello reported one gust up to 43 mph.

The extended forecast for the Magic Valley and southern Idaho calls for Friday through Sunday, dry and warmer. Highs in the mid 60s to mid 70s Friday warming to the mid 70s to low 80s Saturday and Sunday. Lows upper 30s to upper 40s.

Deficit logjam may be broken at last

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders said they were confident Tuesday night that they have broken a weeks-long logjam in the Senate floor over a $144 billion deficit-reduction package supported by President Reagan and can go on to pass the measure this week.

The key was an amendment offered by Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., to get moderate Republicans back in the fold by adding about $2 billion to domestic spending.

The money for that would come from cutting the same amount from the allocation for the embattled U.S. Synthetic Fuels Corp.

On Monday, the president had asked Congress to cut the Synthetic Fuels budget by $9.5 billion, so it is likely the $2 billion reduction would meet with his approval.

"We think we have the votes for this amendment," said Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Budget Committee. "We think we have the votes for this package."

A vote on the amendment was expected today.

Up to eight GOP moderates, seeking less defense spending and more domestic outlays than called for in the Reagan-backed proposal, have twice joined with Democrats to nearly dump the GOP package.

Republican leaders, though, said they now had recaptured the votes on their side and would be able to hold enough of their 55-45 Senate majority to ultimately pass the entire package.

The sudden turn of events followed weeks of what one critic called "dithering" on the three-year, $144 billion deficit-reduction package.

"How long do we have to wait to vote on a deficit-reduction package?" Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., asked his colleagues.

"Either we want to reduce the deficit or we don't," Dole said. "If we don't, we ought to go on to something else."

After about three hours of private meetings with the moderate Republicans, Baker came to the Senate floor and announced his amendment.

Several Democrats, and a Republican — Sen. William L. Armstrong of Colorado, said the $2 billion savings from the synthetic fuels program was not real, but simply would be added to the deficit.

Baker said the $2 billion would be allocated among education, health and environmental research, drug interdiction and foreign aid programs.

House dumps religious meeting bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House rejected a move Tuesday to allow student religious meetings during non-class hours in public high schools, after critics of the bill claimed that it would open the way for cults and devil worship in classrooms.

The 270-151 vote in favor of the bill fell 11 votes short of the two-thirds majority required for passage of the measure, which followed Senate rejection last March 20 of a proposed constitutional amendment that would have permitted organized, spoken prayer in public schools.

Supporting the bill were 123 Democrats and 147 Republicans. Opposed were 134 Democrats and 17 Republicans, with one member voting "present" and 11 abstaining.

President Reagan had fought for the school prayer amendment, which the Senate defeated 56-44, as a major election-year issue. He then embraced the concept of student use of public school classrooms for voluntary religious meetings if the school made classrooms available for other student extracurricular activities.

The defeated bill stated that any public secondary school receiving federal aid, which generally allows student-initiated groups to meet during non-class hours, could not discriminate against voluntary religious groups.

School employees would have had to be present as monitors, but not as participants, in such meetings, and no student could have been forced to attend.

Several hours before the vote, Speaker Thomas

P. O'Neill said that House support for the measure seemed to be waning. "There's a lot of concern out there now," he told reporters.

At the end, debate over the bill was punctuated with horror stories of cults in the schools and equally fervent pleas for House members to ignore such "hogwash."

Supporters of the measure stressed the First Amendment issue, saying the bill would intend to protect students seeking to exercise their constitutional rights of free speech and the free exercise of religion.

Opponents argued that the bill would establish religion in the schools and permit brainwashing of teen-agers.

Split court upholds bans on 'visual clutter'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cities may fight "visual clutter" by banning political signs from public property, the Supreme Court said Tuesday in a ruling that drew the dissents of three justices for a "startling insensitivity" to free-speech rights.

The high court reinstated, 6-3, a Los Angeles ordinance that prohibits the posting of all signs — including political messages — on public property.

"The problem addressed by this ordinance — the visual assault on the citizens of Los Angeles presented by an accumulation of signs posted on public property — constitutes a significant substantive evil within the city's power to prohibit," Justice John Paul Stevens wrote for the court.

Numerous cities — also including New York, Atlanta, Baltimore, Milwaukee, Dallas, Salt Lake City and Seattle — impose similar bans.

The court's ruling does not affect the posting of signs on private property, for which a property owner's permission is necessary.

The decision overturned a federal appeals court ruling that the Los Angeles ordinance was so broad it was unconstitutional.

Stevens said the Los Angeles ordinance is acceptable because political candidates have other means available for getting their messages to the voters.

Reagan, Madrid differ on policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidents Reagan and Miguel de la Madrid of Mexico differed openly over Central American policy Tuesday as Reagan blamed totalitarian outsiders for pouring gasoline on a neighborhood fire and his Mexican guest urged rejection of "interventionist solutions of any kind."

During a formal welcoming ceremony for the Mexican president on the South Lawn of the White House, Reagan acknowledged the United States and Mexico disagree about how to deal with the turmoil to their south. But he said they differ "not on goals or principles (but) on the means by which to achieve our goals."

De la Madrid, whose nation is part of the Contadora group trying to write a regional peace treaty for Central America, warned that "the risk of a generalized war, the scope and duration of which no one can foresee, is growing."

"Every country on the continent must do its utmost to restore peace and avoid war by respecting and upholding the sovereignty of its people to decide their own destiny and by rejecting interventionist solutions of any kind," the Mexican president said, speaking through a translator.

He avoided any specific mention of U.S. involvement in the region, however, either in the form of economic and military support for the Salvadoran government or in covert operations against the leftist regime in Nicaragua.

Smith our selection for legislative seat

Despite the shortcomings of legislative redistricting, the jumble of races has produced some new candidates in the Magic Valley, one of whom, Paul Smith, impresses us with his vigor, energy and talent. Smith, an attorney and former magistrate judge in Twin Falls County, is challenging incumbent Rep. Noy Brackett in next Tuesday's Republican primary. Although Brackett has given Twin Falls County competent representation over the years, we think Smith can offer a wider range of fresh ideas, new leadership and appeal to a wider spectrum of voters.

Our thinking in this race is partly shaped by the legislative reapportionment law which has restructured districts throughout Idaho. The old division between the West and East end of Twin Falls County has been eliminated; all county residents vote for the same candidates.

It is with that broader constituency in mind that we think Smith is a stronger, attractive candidate. He says he supports the public school reform bill which passed the Legislature this year, and allocating the money to fund it adequately. He favors more sunset laws which would phase out legislation after a period of time. He supports reform in the criminal justice system, with which he has had considerable experience. He favors licensing of day care operators and employees. He and Brackett both support subordination of Idaho Power Company water.

More than one wise legislator has remarked that age and repeated returns to the halls of Boise can take their toll on a person. Vitality can decline, and with it, effectiveness to serve one's constituents.

In his many years, Brackett has served the West End of Twin Falls County well, representing our area's agricultural and ranching interests and occasionally providing leadership in other areas. This last year, for example, he worked hard on a bill to allow people to pick up their driver's licenses at the time of application.

Although Smith does not have Brackett's extensive background in ranching, we think he can represent the county's intense interest in farming and ranching. He owns a small farm in the county and is familiar with farm issues.

On these and the range of other issues which come before legislators, we think Smith would provide additional talented, strong legislative leadership.

Poverty behind Central America woes

We tend to view this world and its events through our own personal frames of reference. I have a peculiar one on the topic of Central America that I would like to share with the rest of you.

As I follow the debates on the issue in Washington, D.C., and as I follow our leaders' efforts to arm to the teeth the repressive regimes of that region, a scene keeps coming to mind. It was the early '70s, and my wife and I were hiking into a remote village near Lake Atitlan in the hinterlands of Guatemala. On the side of a mountain of the size and slope that one might expect to find in Magic Valley's South Hills, a farmer was tilling his field. The plot was the size of the average house in the United States. That hillside was a patchwork of fields of similar size. Each was occupied by a single, hoe-wielding peasant.

Those fields were vertical enough that the farmers would swing their tools from over their heads down to about chest level before they hit the rocks in front of them. From this pathetic real estate, they were attempting to wrest enough vegetables to feed their families.

In the village below the fields, we saw the children they were trying to support. They were not the bright-eyed Mayanurchins that the tourist literature had taught us to expect. They offered us vacant stares with black eyes clouded over from the pangs of ravenous hunger.

It had not always been that way for the people of that village. At one time, their farms had been in the fertile valleys of Guatemala. But as the rich, absentee landowners grabbed more and more land, the peasants moved higher and higher onto the hillsides and their children moved deeper and deeper into the clutches of poverty.

That is the trend throughout Central America that continues to this day. And we Americans have taken a side in this struggle. If you strip all the political trappings from our foreign policy, you will find its core.

The core is this: Our money goes to support the rich in their efforts to further impoverish the dispossessed of Central America.

From time to time, we hear people wonder why we are unable to elect leaders who are as decent as the American people. There is a corollary to that question that becomes evident in the case of Central America: Why can't we have a foreign policy that is also as decent as our countrymen?

The answer to that, I think, is that we Americans have abdicated our responsibility to oversee our leaders in the conduct of foreign policy. We, as individuals, take little interest in what happens beyond our borders. We have given the task of dealing with foreigners to our bureaucrats and the twisted view of the world that the bureaucratic mind generates.

And the bureaucrats have given us their answer on Central America. The problem, advise the paranoics of the CIA, and to a lesser extent, the State Department, is leftist insurgency. The enemy, they tell us, is communism.

The enemy is not communism. The enemy is poverty. The enemy is a land distribution system that can claim almost complete responsibility for creating that poverty. But, with only a few exceptions, our country, in this century, has done nothing to deal with the enemy. We have, in fact, fought on the other side and done everything in our power and a few things that should not be to wipe out those indigenous movements that fight the poverty in their own countries.

And we wonder why "gringo" is a derogatory term.

And we wonder why there is instability in Central America.

It has often been my contention that, if you were to impose the land distribution of Central America on Montana, you would soon have a lot of leftist guerrillas wearing Western hats. Americans, are after all, independent lot and wouldn't suffer that sort of treatment lightly.

So why do we expect other people to behave differently? Why do we expect the rest of the world to silently suffer repression and poverty when none of us would be willing to do the same?

I believe our foreign policy should serve to protect our national interests and I agree with the bureaucrats that stability in Central America is clearly within our national interests.

But I contend that the only way to achieve stability is by addressing the poverty that is its root.

It is true that the guns we send to Central America may achieve a certain amount of stability, when welded with the unique ruthlessness of the people who we support in that region. But that only achieves the peace of the graveyard, and I want nothing to do with that. I think most Americans would prefer a more just peace.

MX alone fails objective scrutiny test

Congress is about to vote, once again, on whether to fund development of the MX missile. The weapon has been voted down before, most recently in late 1982 by the House of Representatives. But President Reagan and his allies in Capitol Hill resurrected it as a bargaining chip for negotiations with the Soviets.

MX was born again only because the president offered it to Congress as part of a package. Included was a presidential promise to sincerely pursue arms control and a plan to develop a small missile called Midgetman. Midgetman, to be deployed in the 1990s, was offered as a stabilizing weapon.

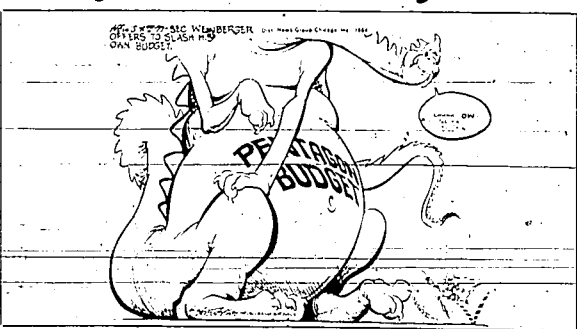

Midgetman's proponents, including a fair number of people known as arms-control advocates, said it would act as a deterrent. Unlike MX and its large warheads, Midgetman was to carry only one warhead. Unlike the large MX, Midgetman was to be small enough to be quickly moved around military reservations on special truck-like transporters. It would be survivable.

But now the administration is changing the original Midgetman proposal. Current plans call for its warhead to have a first-strike accuracy and power comparable to MX. This would cause a significant increase in the size and weight of the missile and its transporter, thus sharply limiting its ability to avoid Soviet attack and giving us another use-it-or-lose-it weapon.

So much for the Midgetman part of the Reagan package. The story on his arms-control promise is even more disturbing. The Soviets physically left the bargaining table, but mentally our negotiators were never there in the first place.

The Reagan arms-control negotiators are a perfect reflection of the president who appointed them. Reagan has never publicly supported an arms-control treaty concluded between the nuclear superpowers. His chief negotiator, Edward Rowley, told an audience of defense planners in 1980, "You will note that to this point, I have had little to say about arms control. I have done this because... we have put too much emphasis on the control of arms and too little on the provision of arms."

And the president's director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, Kenneth Adelman, told the New York Daily News in 1982, "One reason not to rush into negotiations is that these negotiations tend to discourage money for defense programs."

Guest opinion Toby Moffett, Les AuCoin

The president and his people come from the school that dangerously assumes the Soviets will stand politely by while we continue on an insane military buildup. With the nuclear fuse shortening daily, they voice support for arms control, but only after we finish building a whole host of weapons, some of which are clearly of the first-strike variety.

The MX is in that category. Since it cannot survive a Soviet first strike and retaliate, it will do nothing to deter Soviet attack. Since it will have the accuracy, explosive power, and — in combination with the Trident II sea-launched missile — warhead numbers to carry out a first strike against more than 95 percent of Soviet deliverable strategic nuclear warheads, the MX sends the clear message to the other side: "Hit us first before we can hit you."

The best response to this escalation in the arms race is to vote down the MX and pass the resolution for a bilateral, mutual verifiable nuclear freeze. The freeze would eventually render our present silos-based intercontinental ballistic missiles more survivable than the shining new MX-Midgetman proposed by Reagan.

But members of Congress cannot have it both ways. They cannot, on the one hand, support the mad march to superiority being pursued by the president and his allies and, on the other, claim they support the freeze and arms control.

The Reagan package of 1983 was designed to provide political cover for politicians fearful of voting for the MX by itself while preaching arms control and peace to their constituents. But now that package has disintegrated. The original Midgetman is fading fast.

The Reagan commitment to arms control is now exposed as virtually nonexistent. And the MX comes before the Congress very much alone. On its own, it cannot meet any test of objective scrutiny.

Toby Moffett, a former congressman from 1974 to 1982, is director of the Defense Dialogue Group, a foundation supported, arms-control organization. Les AuCoin is a Democratic congressman from Oregon who serves on the House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee.

All support appreciated
I would like to thank Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, the pharmacies and all the individuals who recently sponsored me in the Cystic Fibrosis Bike-a-thon held May 5. Almost all of the funds that were raised stay within the state of Idaho or go towards CF research. Through the generosity of businesses and individuals such as yourself, maybe one day a specific therapy will be found to aid these young children with such a nasty ailment.

I would also like to thank correspondent Joe Neave and The Times-News for the support they gave our bike-a-thon. We who actively participated are already looking forward to next year's event and hope that it will be a joint effort of both bikers and runners.

Effective offense is best
There is a major problem in our nation today, more important than the national debt, even. It stems from the yellow bellies of certain so-called Americans. This major problem is the anti-nuclear demonstrators, who try so desperately to keep our nation's defense from reaching full potential, and also from lowering the "boom" on those countries that mock and defy the U.S.

Now, some people might say that the money spent for defense really goes toward our offensive weapons. This might be true, but I say that the best defense is an effective offense, and that is just what this nation needs.

You Americans out there that are so pig-headed and yellow-bellied to support our nation in whatever is best for it should be eternally ashamed of yourselves; in fact, you should be ashamed to carry the proud name of an American.

You might say nuclear weapons are unchristian and unethical, but do you really think you can convince the Soviet Union of this? No, I say no, atheists fear not God and protesters are few and far between in the Soviet Union!

I love this country too much to see it falter because of anti-father pansies. It is my belief that these pansies will be the downfall of our nation as we know it today. And, because of these pansies this nation, the United States of America, might fall into the red hands of those communist S.O.B.s that seek world domination and destruction of those opposed to their beliefs.

Pupils respected teacher.
I had the privilege of attending a first grade class of 25 students on May 9 Teacher Appreciation Day. The teacher, Laura May Galloway in Room 307 Harrison School, had the respect and confidence of each and every one of her students. She had all of the students demonstrate their ability to read, write and sound out the words for me. All of her students appeared to adore her and all wanted to be what I would consider promising young Americans. Their notebooks were all neat, the room was clean, and everything appeared to me that his teacher and her class could pass to second grade work with good grades.

In my estimation, any teacher that has the respect of students and that can accomplish what this teacher is doing is worth much more than what any school can pay them.

Water issues, politics prompt reader mail

Examine water positions

The most important issue in the current legislative races is the water issue. Without water Magic Valley would still be essentially desert. We have been lucky and we owe it to our children and grandchildren to provide opportunities for business, jobs and growth.

We can't do that unless we have available some additional water to support growth and development. If Idaho Power Company is allowed to maintain control over the main flow of the Snake River, we can have no assurance of future growth and development.

It is essential that people we elect from Magic Valley to represent us in the legislature understand that we can't allow Idaho Power Company to tie up additional Snake River water. The water is for the people and must be available for future generations to support growing communities, additional industry and agricultural development.

After examining the positions of the candidates, I believe Magic Valley will be best served by the election of Gary Robbins for House Seat A in District 22; Waldo Martens for House Seat D in District 24; Noy Brackett for House Seat C in District 23; and John Roberts for House Seat A in District 25. I would recommend that Magic Valley voters consider the qualifications of these people particularly on the important water issue, and support them in the primary elections.

Supports Roberts on water

A few years ago I had the opportunity to spend some time in Boise during a legislative session when our Idaho water rights became the main concern for farmers like myself and many of our State Representatives. I was truly surprised to find many dedicated people within both the House and Senate who were sincere in their obligation to hear the facts and thoroughly research such an important matter before participating in directing the future use of Idaho water.

Our legislature will be asked again next year to take a long look at our unique water resource in Idaho. It is imperative we have individuals within that legislative body who are knowledgeable and understand the many demands being placed upon this precious resource. Irrigation, power and urban needs shall become ever more urgent and pressing upon our economy, and even out-of-state entities are looking at how to better use this limited resource.

John Roberts from Buhl is a Republican candidate for a seat within the House of Representatives this year. John has farmed in the Magic Valley long enough to understand the importance of water within our economy. Of all the demands protected to the fullest degree possible, he has made the statement, "There is only one thing you can irrigate with, and that's water!"

Presently, John is a successful businessman in Buhl, with a history of involvement and concern in his church, business and public affairs. He now is a director within the State and Local Institute, has held local, regional, district and national offices within his church, and is a member of the arbitration committee for the Idaho Board of Realtors, 1979 president of the Buhl Board of Realtors, and last year, John was elected "Realtor of the Year."

John is a man who will follow through with a commitment. We need individuals such as this within our elected officials. Please vote, and remember John Roberts!

Focus on law enforcement

I remember a Christmas Eve a few years ago, when Frank Dykas was Twin Falls County Prosecutor—a so-called part-time job. Frank left the late-night assembling of his sons' toys to go personally to the scene of a shooter. Is this the man you think may not do a full-time job for you?

The two candidates for prosecutor, with whom I'm acquainted are fine people, but I'm disgusted with misleading information and innuendos that are being flung about. All people have hobbies and commitments outside their job areas and no matter how we spend the day, most of us take Saturday or Sunday off each week.

Teaching Idaho children how to ski doesn't seem so bad a way to relax: The privilege of raising our children in a rural setting and teaching them the fun of producing a crop through their own efforts is something most natives of this area hold dear. Ten acres of apple trees do not constitute a busy farming operation for a family with two sons.

Let's try to get these fine candidates back to the issues of law enforcement and their individual qualifications—where the campaign belongs.
MARY L. ROBERTS
Twin Falls

Stimpson gets support

Les Stimpson is qualified to be Minidoka County Sheriff. Contrary to what certain persons have written in letters to the editor, I've seen the opposite. Some of our best sheriffs and deputies have come right out of the farm fields. Les Stimpson came from the Idaho State Police with highly respected training and experience in the field of law enforcement.

I've seen the faces of county deputies light up as they give a sigh of relief upon seeing an Idaho State patrolman pull up to the scene of a vehicle accident. During the several years I was associated with police departments, deputies commented that their training wasn't sufficient to adequately handle the situation and that their activities most generally consisted of "serving papers." The deputies either wanted the state police to take over the investigation at the scene or help them with it.

I've been impressed with the caliber of the Idaho State Police for over 30 years and I've been associated with the officers about that long either professionally or as family friends. A lot of time and money are invested into each officer's training and they're not placed into a car and put on the road until each is educated, trained, skilled and emotionally ready.

I've known Les Stimpson since he was born and I've watched him grow into that special caliber sought by the field of law enforcement. He's warm and caring of the people he serves; intelligent and skilled, yet he maintains a certain manner which doesn't make the offenders feel he is their judge, jury and that all of a sudden they are a criminal because of a possible minor offense. Les can be gentle and display a softness in his character, yet still be firm and show the strength he possesses.

He strongly believes in letting the general public know what crime is being committed around their neighborhoods. I especially like his theory that Minidoka County should have deputies residing throughout the county.

Offenses in our area have decreased since the Idaho State Police officers agreed to patrol our road as often as they can. One neighbor reported it took county deputies one and one-half hours to arrive at the scene of a rape near their house.

I urge your vote for Les Stimpson for sheriff.

Hansen will be exonerated

Just for the record: Much has been said and written about the so-called political wars Congressman George Hansen has been in and the debts incurred, therefore, perhaps some facts should be stated for the record.

In 1973, Hansen had a battle with the House Administration Committee Chairman, Wayne Hays, over campaign reports that ultimately cost the congressman several thousand dollars to prove there was no wrong-doing or mishandling of campaign funds. In 1976, there was an exhaustive investigation into campaign reports and the investigation proved that everything was in order. In late October 1976, Congressman Hansen's income tax information appeared in the press; this caused more investigations and more money to prove everything was in order.

The 1974 campaign reports contained two technical violations. 1. Failure to report by June 10, 1974, and 2. reporting campaign contributions on a campaign committee report form instead of reporting them on a candidate report form. In regard to the first "violation," the reporting forms were not even sent to Congressman Hansen's campaign committee by the clerk of the House of Representatives from Washington, D. C., until June 13, 1974, making it impossible to report by the deadline of June 10, 1974. Judge Hart, in 1975, stated, "I can't conceive that if all that was done in this case was simply to make a mistake between reporting properly personally and reporting at all, that the government would have brought the case. I just can't conceive it." Although the wrong named committee made the report of the receipts and expenditures, that a correct reporting of the receipts and expenditures was made.

Prior to 1977, because of earlier political wars, Congressman Hansen and Mrs. Hansen had accrued considerable debt and needed to find a way to legally raise and earn money to pay off their debts after the House Administration Committee had refused to let Congressman Hansen raise the money. Therefore, they decided, with the advice from their attorneys, to separate their financial affairs. The media has made it appear that this financial separation agreement was only to avoid reporting their finances on the federal disclosure forms. That certainly was not the reason.

Congressman Hansen and Mrs. Hansen separated their financial affairs in 1977—one year before the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 was passed and two years before the first report was due under the act. In 1981, Congressman Hansen, with attorneys, gave all his wife's financial information to the Justice Department so that the Justice Department could catch a blackmailer. If Hansen were trying to avoid reporting his wife's finances, why would he willingly give it to the Justice Department?

The Congress passed the Ethics in Government Act in 1978; the law requires all members of Congress and other top government officials to file "disclosure reports" every May 15th for the previous year. The Justice Department claims that Hansen failed to include items on his report that it felt he should have included. This information in question was that which Hansen gave to the Justice Department to help Justice catch a blackmailer. The Department of Justice used this information that the congressman gave to the Attorney General against the congressman himself! Now, do you think, even for a minute, that Congressman Hansen would have given all that information to the Justice Department if he were trying to avoid reporting it? Do you think that he would have given it if he and Mrs. Hansen had not filed that information on their tax forms and paid their taxes accordingly?

Some people apparently think this whole case involves whether or not Congressman Hansen paid his taxes. Congressman Hansen has paid his taxes every year. In fact, for most years he had overpaid his taxes and the IRS was required to return a refund to him. The current case has nothing to do with taxes. Apparently the media has done such a poor job of informing the public about what the current case is that the people don't really understand what is going on. I trust this will set the record straight.

It is my personal opinion that a gross miscarriage of justice has been carried out and that the Congressman will be exonerated upon appeal.

Wildlife group seeks to halt projects

LEWISTON (AP) — The National Wildlife Federation has asked the U.S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco to stop seven hydroelectric projects in Idaho.

The national group, at the urging of its affiliate Idaho Wildlife Federation, filed a petition for a review of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's decisions on the projects.

The commission has granted preliminary study permits to the projects, which are planned on the main Salmon River or tributaries to it. Included in those seven projects are two proposed on the main Salmon by Douglas Mendenhall of Lucille, Idaho. Another is on a little Salmon River tributary, Boulder Creek, by Hy-Tech of Lewiston.

Terence Thatcher, a Federation attorney from Portland, Ore., said the court action is also a means of addressing larger issues than the seven projects themselves.

The Federation also intends to bring up in court the commission's denial of the request to consolidate all proposed projects in the basin and develop a comprehensive plan. The group also wants a study of cumulative impacts of projects proposed within a single river basin.

There are about 50 projects currently proposed in the Salmon basin.

Thatcher said. There are also indications that the group will be proposed.

The group's main concern is for salmon and steelhead, Thatcher said. Sedimentation and other results of such projects could harm anadromous fish spawning areas, the group fears.

The projects also might affect other species, such as the Rocky Mountain gray wolf, and those impacts haven't been studied enough, he added.

The Federation has taken the federal commission to court three times in the past two years, not counting its most recent suit, over small hydroelectric projects, he said. Twice it has been successful and the third is still unresolved, Thatcher said.

Team of Utah surgeons prepares to separate set of Siamese twins

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A team of surgeons who performed pioneering separation surgery five years ago on Siamese twins joined at the head are preparing to duplicate the feat with a set of similiary joined twins.

The surgical team at the University of Utah Medical Center has scheduled for Wednesday the first of a series of operations on Siamese twin girls born joined at the head March 9 in Southern California, medical center spokesman John Dwan said Tuesday.

Virtually the same team separated Lisa and Elisa Hansen May 30, 1979, in the first operation of its kind in which twins joined at the head both survived or were not severely mentally retarded.

Unlike the Hansen twins, the California infants are joined facing in opposite directions. Dwan said the hospital was keeping their identities and birthplace a secret at the request of the doctors "so they can live as normal a life as possible."

Actual separation of the 11-week-old girls will come later.

"It will take six to eight weeks and possibly more there is no time resolved, Thatcher said.

"Our view as a general matter is that PERC is not doing a careful job of reviewing any of these projects," Thatcher said.

The problem is not limited to Idaho, he said. Other river basins in Washington and Oregon are also facing similar numbers of projects proposed on them.

The Federation also contends that the commission is ignoring the fact that the Northwest is in a period of power surplus. Utilities in the region do not need any more power, Thatcher said.

Other projects in the Salmon River drainage listed in the most recent suit include two projects proposed by Lester Kelley, Vernon Ravenscroft and Helen Chenoweth on the East Fork of the South Fork Salmon; a proposal on Warm Springs Creek by Richard and Carole King Sorenson and a proposal by Superior Oil Co. on the East Fork of the Salmon.

The Federation has long been seeking — to — comprehensive review and study of cumulative impacts on the Salmon, Thatcher said. To protect its interests, the federation felt it had no option other than a lawsuit, he added.

Thatcher said the commission had avoided a comprehensive review, instead choosing to issue its decisions on the projects piecemeal.

Financial disclosure in detail

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Congressman Larry Craig is playing it safe with his personal financial disclosure report.

The reports are required of major elected officials and appointees by the federal Ethics in Government Act. Craig's congressional colleague, Rep. George Hansen, has been convicted of violating the act by failing to report personal loans and commodities transactions.

None of that for Craig. Craig's report, received Tuesday at the secretary of state's office, painstakingly lists a lot of details — even down to the gifts he received at his wedding last summer.

Craig and his wife, Suzanne, were married last July. The congressman's financial report said "various relatives, friends and invited guests" gave the newlyweds presents of "unknown" value.

Craig also reported receiving about $140 worth of gifts when he went to Japan last summer on a trade promotion trip.

He listed $3,250 in income from 1983 speeches, the largest amount $2,000 for a speech to Amway Corp. in August. Craig also received $1,000 from the American Mining Congress. And he listed his wife's salary, from working with the Idaho Beef Council and for Boise State University.

Exact amounts aren't listed on the form. Mrs. Craig's income from the two jobs was listed as between $15,000 and $50,000 for each job.

Craig showed income between $2,500 and $5,000 from the family-owned Craig Ranches at Midvale, and lesser amounts from a Welser radio station, a contract and a bank account.

He listed his holdings in the family ranch as worth at least $250,000; between $30,000 and $100,000 worth of contracts and notes; a half-interest in a Washington, D.C., houseboat worth between $50,000 and $100,000 and donut equipment valued at between $15,000 and $50,000.

Craig listed three notes payable, between $25,000 and $115,000.

Craig had to make good on a loan taken out several years ago for a donut store in Boise, he detailed on a Small Business Administration loan. That was an issue in Craig's 1980 campaign against Democrat Glenn Nichols.

But it appears Craig's getting rid of the donut equipment. He listed sales of between $5,000 and $15,000 in donut-making machinery.

Candidate's daughter visits Boise

BOISE (AP) — Walter Mondale, leading the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, will not campaign in Idaho before the May 22 primary, his campaign leaders said Tuesday.

But his daughter, Eleanor, 24, will make a round of appearances in Boise this afternoon, said Cecil Andrus and Larry LaRoque, Mondale campaign chairman.

She's scheduled for an afternoon meeting with Gov. John Evans and will be an evening guest of Karl and Peggy Stuard of Boise.

Candidate Lyndon LaRouche Jr. plans a news conference in Boise Thursday afternoon. And Gary Hart plans a quick visit to Boise on Friday. Idaho's primary is Tuesday, but presidential delegates will not be chosen then. Party caucuses on May 24 will pick delegates to the state convention, where Idaho's 22 Democratic delegates will be elected.

KEEP GEORGE IN WASHINGTON

"Anyone who looks into his case will see that everytime he has, as he puts it, 'cut the tail off a big government dragon, the dragon has tried to consume him.'"

George Hansen "is engaged in a great effort to get his story out to the public. Anybody who'll listen to him, take a few hours to read his book (To Harass Our People) and look at his situation with an open mind, will get a revelation."

"That revelation will be a remembrance of the sacrifice, dedication and devotion he (and his wife, Connie) have given to his house seat. It will also include the revelation that those who take pokes at big government and its agencies, are likely to get poked back in the face."

—The Preston-Citizen, Apr. 19, 1984

ELECT LARRY GOLD

Jerome County SHERIFF

JEROME FARMERS ARE BEING SWINDLED!

In the past six months one man has swindled more than $40,000 from three Jerome County farmers. During the last five years Idaho's losses have been in excess of $4 million. Because of those losses many Jerome County farmers have lost their property or had to refinance farms and sell equipment.

"I WILL SERVE YOU BETTER"

Paid for by the Committee to Elect Larry Gold, Jerome County Sheriff Professional criminals are increasingly more active in rural areas like ours. They have found most local law enforcement agencies poorly trained and unaccustomed to investigating sophisticated crimes. As Sheriff I will work closely with State and Federal officials to provide information to our community about these criminals. I will actively investigate and bring to prosecution those who would steal from us by any means. Why hasn't something been done before?

U.S. readiness improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon claimed Tuesday that overall "U.S. warfighting capability is substantially greater" than four years ago, but acknowledged that readiness of some Army and Air Force units has declined because the buildup process is slow.

In a report to the Senate Armed Services Committee, the Pentagon said that the buildup of ammunition and spare parts was "rather flat" between 1980 and 1983 because of what it termed the "austere funding levels" during the Carter administration.

"Unfortunately, building stockpiles of war reserve consumable and combat attrition replacement equipment is a slow and expensive process," the Pentagon said in a 124-page report ordered by the committee some months ago.

However, the Pentagon said higher spending under the Reagan administration "is beginning to show results."

The report noted recent criticisms of defense readiness and said, in effect, these criticisms have given an inaccurate impression although it conceded "there is still room for improvement."

Asked whether U.S. forces are prepared to go to war, if necessary, Deputy Defense Secretary William Howard Taft IV replied at a news conference that "we are ready to do the missions we are asked to do."

At the same news conference, Marine Commandant Gen. Paul X. Kelley told reporters that "while we are not yet where we'd like to be in warfighting capability, we're considerably better off" than in 1980.

Kelley spoke for the Joint Chiefs because Gen. John Vessey, the chairman of the nation's highest military panel, is attending a NATO meeting in Brussels.

Woman tops Navy class

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The top midshipman in the U.S. Naval Academy's class of 1984 is a woman, the first to graduate at the head of the class at a service academy since women were admitted in 1976.

Kristine Holdreid, of Woodbine, Md., completed her four years at the academy with a grade point average of 3.8 out of a possible 4.0, the academy announced Tuesday.

Dean A. Miller of Dunwoody, Ga., who will graduate second-at- commencement exercises May 23, finished with a grade point average of 3.9.

The third-ranking graduate, John Abbot of Birmingham, Ala., has a 3.94 grade point average.

CATHERINE WILSON
Dubbed 'porn queen'

Kid porn produces jail term

COMPTON, Calif. (AP) — A mother of five who prosecutors dubbed the "pediatric porn queen" was sentenced Tuesday to a maximum four years in prison for distributing child pornography.

Catherine Stubblefield Wilson, 44, who allegedly earned $500,000 a year from the child pornography business, had pleaded guilty to a single felony count on Feb. 14, the day her trial was scheduled to begin.

Prosecutors alleged that Ms. Wilson used a mail-order business to control 80 percent of the U.S. market for movies of explicit sex among children.

Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Diane Wayne, who sentenced Ms. Wilson in this city 12 miles south of Los Angeles, gave Ms. Wilson credit for 488 days already served in jail since her arrest in May 1982.

The judge also sentenced Ms. Wilson to two years in prison for violating the probation she received in 1980 for another child pornography conviction, but she set that sentence to run concurrently with the longer sentence.

If Ms. Wilson maintains a clean record in prison, she would be eligible for parole in nine months, said district attorney spokesman Al Albergate.

Ms. Wilson still faces a federal trial next month on charges that include using the mail system unlawfully and violating the federal Child Exploitation Act, charges that could bring a much longer prison sentence if she is convicted.

Iacocca asks pared bonus

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee Iacocca said Tuesday he would ask that his bonus be kept at half the amount paid other Big Three auto executives if the Reagan administration commits itself to a "fair trade" policy with Japan.

While limiting his bonus to around $433,000, Iacocca also offered to freeze the prices of Chrysler's small cars indefinitely if the Reagan government made such a pledge.

"Chrysler management hasn't had a bonus in seven years," Iacocca said. "But if our stockholders do approve a (bonus) plan next month, I'll commit to restraint... maybe about 50 percent, at most, of what GM and Ford paid their top managers. I think that's a pretty responsible solution."

Nixon evacuated

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon was among 400 guests who were evacuated for about an hour Tuesday when fire broke out in a basement clothes dryer at the new 17-story Irvine Marriott Hotel.

The fire was put out by employees, said hotel general manager Ron Cribbitt, but the Orange County Fire Department, which was alerted by the smoke alarms, briefly evacuated guests as a precaution.

Nixon, who was in his suite on the 17th floor, "went downstairs until the Fire Department said it was OK to come back up," said his administrative assistant, John Taylor, said. "He walked down all 17 flights at a normal pace."

What's what

Madam, do you suffer from that emotional ailment recently identified as "Eventlessness"? Students of the mind insist it's a real malady. They describe the typical patient as a suburban housewife without problems. Never met one of those. They say she becomes terrorized by the imagined notion that nothing of interest will ever happen to her. This fear builds, they say, into panic. Maybe so, maybe so. Still, it sounds like the opening gambit of a counselor about to prescribe himself in surrogate sex.

Overheard: "My definition of an unmarked car is one my wife hasn't driven yet." "It's a Phi Beta Scripper from the School of Hard Knocks." "If you think television has destroyed conversation, check your phone bill."

Nobody knows what sets off a tornado.

HIAWATHA?

Q. My son wants to change his name to one name only: 'Hiawatha.' Can he do such a thing legally? A. Maybe not, if he tries for approval in a court procedure. Ordinarily, a man can call himself anything he likes, so long as he's not shuffling his nomenclature to commit fraud. But some judges have ruled against the one-name choice on the grounds that a single name might disrupt the records, particularly the credit records.

Q. What were Bing Crosby's last words? A. "That was a great game of golf, fellers." Dying words don't tell much, do they? Comedian Lou Costello licked his lips and said, "That was the best ice cream soda I ever tasted." Singer Al Jolson put down his hand of cards and said, "This is it. I'm going. I'm going."

SOAP

Your soap bars will last much longer if you unwrap them when you get them home and let them dry out in the cabinet for a few weeks. If you buy scented soap, you might want to keep those unwrapped bars in the linen closet to perfume everything else therein.

There isn't a congressman in this country as well known nationwide as Smokey the Bear. Smokey is 40 years old this year, incidentally.

Don't tell them you're getting a face-lift. Be "rhynchidotomy." Say you're undergoing a "rhynchidotomy."

Address mail to L.M. Boyd in care of this newspaper.

Rebels free captive American couple

By MANIK DASILVA
The Associated Press

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — Tamil separatists on Tuesday freed an American couple they had kidnapped five days ago and threatened to kill, leaving the pair — at the Roman Catholic bishop's wife — hundreds of troops hunted for them in nearby jungles.

"They were very happy and relieved that they were released," said the Rev. E.E. Selvarajah, a Catholic Church official in Jaffna.

U.S. State Department spokesman John Hughes said in Washington that Stanley and Mary Elizabeth Allen of Columbus, Ohio, were "in good health and they're obviously overjoyed to be alive and free."

The People's Liberation Army, a Marxist band of Tamil separatists, claimed responsibility for kidnapping the Allens from their Jaffna home on Thursday night.

The abductors threatened to kill Allen at noon Monday and his wife six hours later if Sri Lanka failed to pay them $2 million in gold and release 20 imprisoned separatists and sympathizers.

The Eelam People's Revolutionary Liberation Front, an ally of the kidnapers, accused the newlyweds of being CIA spies and said the United States was helping Sri Lanka oppress the Tamil minority, which is centered in Jaffna at the northern tip of the island nation.

Allen, 36, and Mrs. Allen, 29, were employed by the Ruhka Co. of Columbus. They arrived in Jaffna in late March to work on a U.S.-financed water project.

Sri Lanka refused to pay the ransom or to free any of the imprisoned Tamils.

The front said the kidnapers decided to release the Allens because of appeals from their parents, from Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and from M.G. Ramachandran, the top official of India's southernmost state of Tamil Nadu, which is home to an estimated 45 million Tamils.

The Tamil separatists announced late Monday that their high command had ordered the Allens released and that they would be freed along a road leading through the jungle 45 miles south of Jaffna.

The nation's security minister, Lalith Athulathmudali, who had offered the rebels safe passage if they would free their captives, told reporters Tuesday that more than 1,000 soldiers and police were hunting through the jungle to find the Allens.

Selvarajah said the Allens had told their captors that they wished to be released at the bishop's house, where they were freed at 8:45 p.m. (9:15 a.m. MDT). He said church officials notified police and turned the Allens over to them in the presence of U.S. Embassy officials.

Mrs. Allen's parents, Katherine and Harley Daymon of Stow, Ohio, held hands outside their home as they spoke with reporters after receiving word of the release.

Mrs. Daymon said her daughter, Pat, "just screamed, 'They're free! And I said, Hallelujah!'"

The kidnapping was an embarrassment to the Indian government, which has denied Sri Lankan claims that Tamil separatists have guerrilla camps in Tamil Nadu, 75 miles from Sri Lanka.

The kidnapers denied any connection with Tamil Nadu officials, but demanded the ransom be paid to them by way of the Tamil Nadu state government. Tamil rebel spokesmen, apparently speaking for the kidnapers, released statements on the case from the Indian state.

Over the weekend, India arrested a number of Tamil separatist leaders. It also had its coast guard patrol the Tamil Nadu coast to ensure that the kidnapers did not escape to India.

The Tamils make up about 15 percent of the 18 million people in Sri Lanka, formerly known as Ceylon.

Bird lover escapes caging

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bea Foster flew in the face of the law by feeding some feathered friends. But in the absence of any stool pigeons, she escaped becoming a fallbird herself.

There were plenty of other pigeons around Monday as Ms. Foster, president of the Association for Animal Relief, challenged a city ban on pigeon-feeding.

She tossed 10 pounds of bird seed to a flapping, cooling, pecking flock on a downtown square. Passersby ducked as dozens of apparently ravenous birds swooped in for the feast.

Despite the commotion, not a single police officer turned up.

"I'll plead guilty," said Ms. Foster, discussing her response to a hospital for arrest. "I'll take it to the highest court."

Ms. Foster said she has received about 15 complaints of police harassment from pigeon lovers.

Women hook into phones

KERMAN, Calif. (AP) — Two women whose backgrounds are in farming say they will challenge giant American Telephone & Telegraph Co. for a piece of the long-distance phone business.

Cazette Chalco and Beverly Martin have invested $175,000 apiece in a company they call Valnet to offer long-distance service beginning next year.

Their decision to enter long distance communications stems directly from the divestiture under which local phone service was split away from AT&T on Jan. 1.

Why did these two women who own several hundred acres of San Joaquin Valley farm land decide to get into the phone business?

"I just have a nose for making money, and I thought this was a good business to get into," said Mrs. Chalco, 55.

"I thought it would pay off better than farming," said Mrs. Martin, 54.

Family business

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — When Pima County Superior Court Judge Michael J. Brown needs a temporary bailiff he just looks in his own backyard and in the process saves the taxpayers a few dollars.

Brown has called on his father, John "J.R." Brown, 76, for pinch-hitting duty in the courtroom during the next four to six weeks until a new bailiff is hired.

"I guess it's saving a couple of bucks, but he's an excellent bailiff," the judge said. "The jurors think he's wonderful."

D. HEMPLEMAN-ADAMS
Sips champagne at pole

Explorer gains pole after hike

LONDON (AP) — British explorer David Hempleman-Adams sipped champagne and danced in the snow Tuesday as he became the first person ever to make a solo hike to the magnetic North Pole, expedition spokesman Steve Morris reported.

He said Hempleman-Adams, 27, completed the 250-mile trek over the arctic icecap in the early morning hours and then was picked up by an airplane and flown back to his base camp at Resolute Bay in northern Canada.

Morris was aboard the plane and gave his account of Hempleman-Adams' victory in a radiotelephone interview from Resolute Bay with the British Broadcasting Corp.

"We buzzed overhead. He came out of his tent and was dancing in the snow," Morris said. "He collapsed his tent, put it on the sled, and we approached each other in the middle of nowhere."

Hempleman-Adams, dragging a plastic sledge loaded with supplies, took 22 days to reach his goal, a position he fixed using sophisticated satellite radio gear.

Along the way he had two narrow escapes — one when a polar bear tracked him and he shot and killed it, the other when he fell through thin ice into the bone-chilling Arctic Ocean.

NATO aides ask U.S. for cooperation

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — NATO's European defense ministers Tuesday urged the United States to cooperate with its allies in arms production and use European technology in the manufacture of new conventional weapons systems.

The European ministers made their appeal in a communique following a one-day meeting at North Atlantic Treaty Organization headquarters.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Canadian Defense Minister John Blais join their European colleagues Wednesday for the annual two-day spring meeting of the full NATO defense ministers council.

Weinberger arrived in Brussels Tuesday and said he would discuss the use of new technologies to enhance conventional weapons.

"We will be working on putting into effect the emerging technology initiatives so that we can multiply and increase the strength of our forces by using new technology," Weinberger said in a brief arrival statement.

He said the ministers would review strategic goals "that are the foundation of NATO planning for the next five years."

He said he knew of no "major battles or any major items of contention" that could mar the meeting, which is expected to focus on ways of enhancing conventional arms through the use of the latest technologies.

LONDON (AP) — Jane's Defense Weekly published a photograph Tuesday of one of the Soviet Navy's new Oscar-class missile-riding nuclear submarines, the Soviets' most advanced attack sub.

The giant 14,000-ton vessel was photographed on the surface by a Norwegian surveillance aircraft in the Barents Sea off northern Norway.

The photograph, the most detailed yet obtained of the Oscars, clearly shows six hatches on either side of the conning tower for the vessel's 24 SS-N-19 anti-ship missiles and what naval specialists believe is a towed sonar system.

Voters deal Marcos setback

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — In a major setback for the government of President Ferdinand E. Marcos, opposition candidates for the National Assembly won most of Manila's seats and made strong showings in other areas, according to incomplete returns Tuesday.

Unofficial government figures and partial returns compiled by an independent watchdog group differed on the number of opposition candidates ahead in the race for 183 seats. But both tallies showed Marcos' opponents capturing a far greater number of seats than the government anticipated.

Both tallies from Monday's voting showed the opposition winging a ma-majority in greater Manila, ruled by Marcos' wife Imelda as governor and center of many government prestige projects. Initial reports indicated five government Cabinet ministers would lose their seats.

It was the first time the Marcos regime has failed to capture a majority in the capital in his 18 years as president. Marcos was not a candidate.

The strong opposition showing was considered a reflection of dissatisfaction with Marcos' authoritarian rule, concern with economic difficulties and reaction to the Aug. 21 assassination of Benigno Aquino — Marcos' chief political rival. Conceding the loss of Manila, Marcos said the capital had "reverted to form" as an opposition city. Before the balloting, Marcos claimed a possible sweep of all but two of 21 seats in the capital. Tuesday's returns showed the opposition winning 16 of them.

Nationwide, the government television reported 100 seats were "firmly" in government hands. The National Citizens Movement for Free Elections, set up by business and church groups, had Marcos' party ahead in only 79 races while opponents led in 91 with about 50 percent of the votes counted.

Results for 13 races had not been reported to the independent organiza-

Floods

Salmon flow raised, roads cut

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

ROGERSON — Still battling high levels in the Salmon Falls Reservoir, officials Tuesday boosted the amount of water flowing out of its emergency spillway by about 20 percent.

Close to 1,200 cubic feet per second of water was pouring over the manmade waterfall into Salmon Falls Creek canyon late in the day, said Larry Raganin, manager for the Salmon River Canal Co., which runs the reservoir.

The water, which streams 40 miles down the creek bed to the Snake River, has forced closing of two main roads. Buhl Highway District crews have cut a 25-foot-deep culvert in the Balanced Rock Road west of Castleford to carry excess water, said Harold Miller, supervisor for the Buhl Highway District. The cut also minimizes damage to irrigation pumps downstream, he said.

Lily Grade Crossing, the northern access for residents in the 5,000-acre Roseworth Tract south of Castleford, also was impassable Tuesday. It was submerged under two feet of fast-flowing water, he said. Road crews were stockpiling gravel at the top of

Big wheel

Fourth graders at Poplewell Elementary School in Buhl happily took time out from classes Tuesday to participate in a bicycle rodeo, despite the nasty weather. Students were tested on maneuverability and balance as well as knowledge of hand signals, traffic rules, safety equipment and proper care of bicycles. Stephanie Hopkins, above, guides her bike through one of the tests.

Big Wood below danger point

HAILEY — The Big Wood River rose two feet in the last four days, but should level off below flood stage today, the National Weather Service says.

The river was expected to reach a peak of 5.5 feet as measured in Hailey Tuesday night or today and then begin dropping, says hydrologist Scott Kiser. Flood stage is considered to be 6.5 feet.

There were no reports of problem areas along the river as of Tuesday afternoon, Blaine County Sheriff Dennis Haynes says.

Bill Bunn, Gooding County civil defense coordinator, says there also were no problems in that county.

On Friday, the Big Wood River reached 3.3 feet at Hailey and rose to 5.28 feet by Tuesday morning. Although there were rain showers in the drainage on Monday and Tuesday, Kiser says most of the rise was due primarily to melting snow.

The river was measured at 3.9 feet on Saturday and 4.7 feet on Sunday, Kiser says.

Cooler temperatures and decreasing clouds and rain would cause the river to begin dropping today, he said.

Kiser says the weather service predicts the river will reach 6.5 feet by either the last week of May or the first week in June. However, he says, the prediction is only an educated guess at this point.

Wildcatter seeks oil amongst rocks

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

ALMO — The search for black gold in the South Hills will continue in a matter of days as drilling continues at a wildcat oil well in a grassy basin east of the City of Rocks.

The drilling, aimed at producing the first commercial oil strike in Idaho, is being done by the Hughes Group, a Phoenix, Ariz.-based oil exploration company, according to records of the Idaho Department of Lands.

Sharing in the venture is Nick

Nicholson, a retired Rupp rancher and owner of the site near the unique geological area favored by campers and rock climbers that was once considered for designation as a national monument.

Last fall 500 feet of surface casing was installed at the site, but the bulk of the work on the exploratory well has yet to be done, according to state records.

Nicholson says a drill rig has been brought to the site from Texas and is ready to go into 24-hour operation.

Board offers help to Gooding Hospital

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

GOODING — The Gooding County Board of Commissioners has dropped any immediate plans for a bail-out tax levy for the financially strapped Gooding County Memorial Hospital and instead diverted $50,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds to help solve its cash-flow problems.

The board decided against any type of tax levy because it did not think county voters would support it.

"It's just a matter of how much more tax you want," says Commissioner Robert Thackeray. "We couldn't find anybody who wanted to pay any more taxes."

Instead, the board hopes the $50,000 will improve the hospital's immediate cash-flow problems by giving it enough room to make it through the current fiscal year, he says.

The hospital has had a cash-flow problem, Thackeray says, because of delays in Social Security and insurance payments covering its patients. As a result, the hospital has had a problem with paying its suppliers on a month-to-month basis. In February, its creditors began asking for cash payment instead of extending credit.

With the revenue-sharing donation, Commissioner Will Thomas says he does not think the question of a levy will come up again in the immediate future.

Administrator Duane Cutright isn't sure how much the $50,000 will help his hospital until he has a chance to work it into the balance statement and see where and how far it will go. But, he says, it certainly won't hurt.

"It sure will help us," he says. "We have a couple of accounts that that will help."

In December, an investigation by Prosecutor John Arkosh revealed the hospital was more than $200,000 behind in paying its bills. Since then, the board has considered a number of options to relieve the hospital of some of its debt obligations.

Among the considerations were a tax-anticipation levy and an override levy, both of which are outside the limitations of the 1 Percent Initiative, which holds spending increases to 5 percent over the preceding year for a public body.

The board also was considering selling its accounts receivable to an outside institution to raise more money to help the hospital. That plan is still in the works, Cutright says.

Last month, the hospital announced it had made a profit for March after accumulating nearly $175,000 in debts through February. The hospital's accounting year begins on October 1.

Cutright says he expects to have a profit again for April.

Thackeray says the board's decision to not seek a levy to bail out the hospital is based partly on the better financial health of the institution.

"Dr. Cutright is making some very, very impressive headway as far as getting the hospital into operating as it should be," he says.

The hospital had $50,000 in county support plugged into its $2.6 million budget, above what it expected to raise from its operations last year.

Of that, $20,000 was from the county's property tax levy and $70,000 from federal revenue-sharing funds.

Castleford bond passes Tax levies do well in voting

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

Voters approved all seven levies around the Magic Valley in school elections that were characterized by high turnouts in most districts.

After two failed attempts to pass a bond levy, Castleford overwhelmingly passed a bond issue to build a new high school and repair the grade school. The levy that passed 480-93 has been pared down to $1.05 million, $250,000 less than an earlier levy.

The old high school building will now be torn down, except for the cafeteria, which will become part of the new building. The existing high school is unsafe and inadequate, school officials say.

In Cassia County, a $475,000 override levy for maintenance and operations passed by 71 percent of the vote, even though it was for 5 percent more money than last year. Cassia voters also approved a plant facility levy of $185,000 to extend the maintenance operating funds for school buses and general repairs another 10 years.

Dietrich and Murtaugh passed plant facility levies, also. Both already had plant facility levies that expired this year, and the levies passed easily. The vote was 96-4 in Dietrich for a $10,000 levy for the next five years and 129-19 in Murtaugh for a $25,000 levy.

In Camas County and Kimberly, voters overwhelmingly approved override levies of $60,000. Both have had override levies for several years, but Camas County was forced to increase its levy by $16,000 this year to compensate for a drop in enrollment that will mean less money from the state.

Camas County voters approved the increased levy by 80 percent of the vote, and Kimberly voters approved the levy there by 81 percent.

In Twin Falls, the override levy will not be decided upon until later this month. The election of two unopposed incumbents generated little interest Tuesday. Only 97 voters turned out to re-elect board members Calvin Lamborn and Eugene Champlin.

That was less than turned out in tiny towns like Hagerman and Dietrich. In Dietrich 101 ballots were cast; just about as many votes as the school has students. Hagerman had a record turnout of 177 voters in two hotly contested races. Incumbent Jim Hensley won the election by only two votes in Zone 4, and in Zone 1, where no incumbent ran, Lynden Osborne was elected.

Richfield also reported a high turnout. The 46 residents in Zone 2 who voted are well more than half the number of voters in the district.

In Camas County, write-in candidate Betsy Ford won the Zone 2 seat with 37 votes. The two candidates who filed petitions won only 38 votes between them.

Buhl also reported an upset: the only incumbent running in the Magic Valley to lose, Incumbent Kathleen Lunte lost by seven votes to Leonard Crismon who criticized the 90 percent attendance rule and called for more discipline in Buhl schools.

Outdoor equipment show set

TWIN FALLS — A free exposition of recreational sports equipment from businesses throughout the Magic Valley will be held Friday through Sunday at the College of Southern Idaho Expo Center.

The show, sponsored by KEEPC/KZZZ radio, will feature boats, fishing and hunting gear, bicycles and motorcycles, wind surfing equipment and four-wheel drive vehicles, among other equipment.

Organizers expect the best showing of recreational vehicles in Idaho. There will also be a display of ultra-light airplanes with flying demonstrations Saturday and Sunday.

Doors will open for the show, which is co-sponsored by the CSI athletic department, at 5 p.m. Friday and noon Saturday and Sunday.

Junior high to stage plays

TWIN FALLS — "The Miracle Worker" and "Up the Down Staircase" will be presented by the Twin Falls O'Leary Junior High School drama department this month.

"The Miracle Worker," the story of Helen Keller, will be performed Thursday and Friday night at 7:30 p.m. in the school's auditorium.

"Up the Down Staircase," a comedy with a message about the relationship between teachers and students, will be performed May 24 at 1 p.m. and again at 7:30 p.m. It will also be performed the next day at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Adults will be charged $1 for even performances, and children will be admitted for 50 cents.

Radio station back on air

JEROME — KFMA-FM in Jerome, popularly called Z103, returned to the air Tuesday afternoon after repairs were made to its transmitter.

Lightning struck the radio station's broadcast antenna at Flatop Butte near Jerome Sunday evening and melted some components in the transmitter, said news director Paul Johnson. Station engineers had to wait more than a day for a special part before the transmitter could be repaired, he said.

Ketchum clean up in works

KETCHUM — A clean-up day will be held Saturday in Ketchum. Groups will pick up trash bags and assignments for specific areas at 10 a.m. at the Atkinson Park. Softball teams that use the park are required to have team members participate in the clean-up.

Flyfishing clinic set

HAILEY — Gary Carlson will conduct a Fly Fishing Clinic at 10 a.m. Friday. Instruction will include dry casting and water casting. The class is sponsored by the Blaine County Recreation District and costs $10 per person. Call 788-2117 for more information.

Students make a classroom

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Students have converted an old high school storage room into two bright new classrooms. Blake Walsh, teacher of about 14 pre-vocational students who did the work, says the project, done two hours a day, took about two months. After the Wendell School Board meeting Monday, board members visited the new rooms off the lower hall of the high school, where they were treated to punch and cookies and heard how the work was done. "It was a place that collected junk," high school Principal Charles Meyer said of the old storage room. The pre-vocational students, led by Bradley Davis and Archie Knutson, began by building a wall to divide the old storage room, Walsh explained. They hung sheet rock on the new wall and taped and painted it. "We went a little over $1,000," Walsh said, "but $500 of that was for the electrical work, so I think we got a pretty good deal." School board members commented that work on the rooms was very well done. The small rooms will be used by a school psychologist and individual students for private study.

In other school-board business Meyer announced the spring schedule for the school. The high school drill team spring performance will be in the new gymnasium May 17 at 7:30 p.m. Future Homemakers of America installation will be May 18 at 7 p.m. in the home economics classroom. A junior-senior banquet will be at the American Legion Hall May 21 at 7 p.m. A high school awards assembly will be in the junior high gymnasium May 22 at 10:45 a.m. Graduation is at the new gym May 23 at 8 p.m.

Flood

The grade to hasten its reopening once the waters subside. The canal company has been draining the water being held by the 223-foot-high dam since Friday, the first intentional spill since it was built 74 years ago. Runoff water collected by Salmon Falls Creek has been gushing into the 12-mile-long reservoir at very high rates. Upstream from the reservoir, the water was 4-6 inches from flooding across U.S. 93 three miles south of Jackpot early Tuesday night, according to Jackpot Justice of the Peace Jay Snyder.

If floodwaters continued to rise, the Nevada Highway Department would close the main north-south route, he said. To the west, Nevada state Highway 225 from Elko to Mountain Home already has been closed, he said. The problem at the concrete bridge on U.S. 93 south of Jackpot was exacerbated Sunday night when Cow Creek Reservoir washed out. The small reservoir about 15 miles southeast of Jackpot was used by ranchers. Despite the large amount of spillage from Salmon Falls Reservoir, damage downstream is reported to be limited. The creek bed generally crosses range and farm land. No developments were reported to be endangered. However, some low areas — such as Balanced Rock County Park — have been swamped with several feet of water. Meanwhile, at Murphy Hot Springs near the Idaho-Nevada border, residents of several houses moved furniture out of their homes as the East Fork of the Jarbridge River rose close to their doorsteps, said Harry Showalter, owner of the resort. They also worked throughout Monday night to remove tree trunks and other trash carried by the water. Showalter said water levels were subsiding late Tuesday.

Drilling could have already started if not for high spring runoff, he says.

Will Pitman, a petroleum engineer with the Cooper-J'Alene office of the State Department of Lands, says application was first made for the well in August. The Hughes Group plans to drill to a depth of 7,000 feet, he says.

Pitman calls the site south of Burley "pretty remote." Oil exploration in Idaho has "concentrated on the 'overgrazed belt' in the southeast corner of the state, he says.

As a result, little information is available to assess the chances of hitting oil near City of Rocks, he says. "But you never know."

Nicholson says some drilling was done near Albion and Almo, "years ago," but wells were never sunk deep enough. In some cases they went no deeper than 600 feet — hardly deep enough in some instances to find water, he says.

Nicholson bought the land on which the well is being drilled in 1938. Until 1957 he lived in the stone house, the ruins of which sit next to the dirt road from Almo to a low divide near the "Twin Sisters" granite pinnacles to the southwest of City of Rocks.

Nicholson says his efforts to drill for oil go back to 1940, when he took a sample oil slick from nearby surface water to a refinery in Salt Lake City for analysis.

Consumer watchdog says Idaho ripe for scams

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A traveling sales outfit rolled into Twin Falls to hold a "liquidation sale" more than a year ago. It was advertised as a $1 million going-out-of-business clearance for the "oldest waterbed manufacturer in Idaho."

That interested Ken Thornberg, executive director for the Better Business Bureau of the Treasure Valley. It had been a $500,000 going-out-of-business clearance only a few days earlier in Boise.

Northwest Furniture and Waterbed was open one week in Boise, just long enough to grab people's attention, grab their money and then run. "And he did a gangbuster's business here in Twin Falls," Thornberg told the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce Tuesday.

Consumer scams have been taking dollars out of the Magic Valley as easily — if not more easily — than other areas, said Thornberg, who has become an expert on consumer fraud in Idaho since arriving in Boise eight years ago.

Con artists are getting away with their schemes partially because Idaho people are "very, very trusting" and partially because no one is enforcing consumer law statewide, he said.

The state has a consumer protection act to stop illegal businesses. But the state attorney general's office that enforced the act was abolished by legislative cost-cutting, he said.

"We are the only state in the union that doesn't have a state office of consumer affairs," Thornberg claimed.

With no state money to consistently enforce the law, the job falls into the hands of county prosecutors. But prosecutors most often are too busy with criminal cases and other government duties to take up the consumer cases, he said.

Although some police departments help, "We are pretty much left to take care of ourselves," Thornberg said. Many cities also do not enforce the selling ordinances already on the books, he said.

The Better Business Bureau, which is a private advocate for consumers, attempts to combat consumer fraud with educational material and its own set of standards for business operations. It also keeps records and complaints about individual businesses.

The Magic Valley doesn't have a branch of the Better Business Bureau. Instead, the chamber of commerce takes inquiries about businesses, said Michael Dolton, executive director. It handled 600 last year, enough to prompt Dolton into looking at a filing fee to help pay for the cost of the work.

Thornberg said Monday greater efforts at public education, as is already done in the schools, would help. He said the Better Business Bureau is contacting Twin Falls press and media to get more publicity about consumer fraud.

But business also should make a greater effort at policing itself, he told the chamber of commerce. Legitimate businesses often are victims of fly-by-night operators and of unethical sales people.

"We have an obligation to look at the problem rather than looking the other way," he said.

"You have got to demand more from yourselves than you do of your customers," he told the business representatives.

Ethics goes beyond the law, he said.

Court upholds ruling

BOISE (AP) — The Court of Appeals has agreed with a district judge that an insurance company doesn't have to pay a $30,000 settlement reached in a lawsuit brought against a doctor accused of sexually molesting a patient.

But the court, in a decision released Tuesday, agreed with 5th District Judge Daniel Meehl that the insurance company breached its obligation to defend the lawsuit and must pay the doctor's attorney fees and costs in the case.

In a Jerome County case, Bartley and Peggy Hirst filed a claim against Dr. William Donehue on behalf of their son, Mark.

The suit alleged that when Mark suffered a wrestling injury and was taken to the doctor's office for treatment, the doctor drugged him with tranquilizers and then performed sexual acts on Hirst against his will.

Court records show that the doctor diagnosed mononucleosis and scheduled several other appointments at his office and the Hirst residence.

After other sexual incidents, court records show, the youth and his parents filed a claim of medical malpractice with the state Board of Medicine.

A later lawsuit was settled for $30,000 and the Hirsts were given the right to sue St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co. for refusing to defend the lawsuit.

District court ruled that Donehue's actions did not constitute the "providing or withholding of professional services" as covered by a medical malpractice liability insurance policy, and therefore the insurance firm was not obligated to pay the $30,000 settlement.

But both the district court and the Court of Appeals ruled the insurance company breached its contract to defend any lawsuit and must pay the doctor's attorney fees and costs.

Events for fleet of foot

TWIN FALLS — Spring track meets for children in all five elementary schools begin today.

At 1 p.m. at the high school, students in the upper three grades will compete in field events, including a softball throw, long jumps, a high jump and a pull-up contest. Six races also are scheduled.

Only those students who placed first and second in their own school qualifying event will compete, but all the students will be at the high school to cheer.

Track events, called Play Day, will begin for the younger students in all five schools Monday with a separate day of events for each school.

"Sawtooth school" is scheduled on Monday; Harrison, Tuesday; Bickel, Wednesday; Teton, Thursday; and Morningside, Friday. The contests will begin at 12:45 p.m. at the school yards, except for Bickel school where the play day will be held at Harmon Park.

First, second and third graders will compete in jumps, soccerball kicks, frieze throws and races. Elementary physical education teachers coordinating the events are Theresa Becker, Wes Remaley and Mike Tinker.

Club stresses bike safety

TWIN FALLS — Bike safety week, designed to promote safety among bicycle operators and motorists, is being observed by the Twin Falls Optimist Club this week.

A highlight of the 10th annual event, according to Gary Henning, will be held Saturday including a parade, bicycle races and a licensing program.

Beginning Monday, Optimist member and police officer Jim Mildon has been showing a film, "Driving Tactics" to elementary school children in Twin Falls.

Saturday's parade will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Sears parking lot and continue through town to Harmon Park. Firemen of the Twin Falls Public Safety Department will be at Harmon Park to issue bicycle licenses at $1 each to all interested bicycle owners. There will also be safety inspections of bicycles and races for bicycle riders of various ages.

Theme of this year's parade, Henning said, will be favorite western characters.

Following the parade and races, the Optimist Club will give away a boy's and a girl's bicycle. More information is available from Henning at 733-4581 or Jim Bieri at 734-6666.

Candidates to present views to voters

TWIN FALLS — The last week of the primary election campaign affords Magic Valley voters several opportunities to familiarize themselves with candidates and issues.

"Idaho Reports," the nightly news program from Idaho Public Television, will feature three Magic Valley legislative races in its broadcasts this evening at 6:30 and 11:30.

At 7:30 tonight, legislative candidates seeking to represent Twin Falls County will meet their primary opponents in the Twin Falls City Council chambers for a candidates' night program sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Twin Falls. Republican candidates in Blaine and Gooding counties will meet in a pair of programs Thursday.

The Blaine County Republican Central Committee will host a candidates program at the Weyakinn Clubhouse at 4 p.m. Thursday. The program will include congressional and legislative candidates. Republican candidates in Gooding County will meet at the Lincoln Inn Thursday at 8 p.m. That informal forum is open to Republican candidates for any positions.

Hailey opposes wilderness bill

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The Hailey City Council joined Ketchum officials Monday in opposing the wilderness bill proposed by the Idaho legislative delegation at the request of the Idaho Conservation League.

"All four of us were in opposition to McClure's proposed wilderness bill," said Councilman Bob Ward on Tuesday. "We all supported more wilderness than he is proposing."

Like Ketchum, Hailey will send a letter stating its opposition to U.S. Rep. John Selberling, D-Idaho, chairman of the House Interior Committee. Unlike Ketchum, the council did not support an alternative to the delegation's proposal.

In voicing their opposition, the council said the 326,000-acre proposal "blatantly" disregards the wishes and supporting testimony of local residents and businesses and would be detrimental to the recreation industry.

The delegation's proposal calls for only 141,000 acres of new wilderness in Sun Valley area. That new wilderness would be in the White Cloud Peaks in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area.

The proposal does not include any wilderness in the Boulder, Pioneer and Smoky mountains that surround the upper Wood River Valley.

Lottery unlikely to reduce tax burden

BOISE (AP) — There is little evidence that establishing a state-operated lottery will reduce state and local tax burdens, says the president of the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho.

It is possible, however, that lotteries can provide enough revenue to fuel a growing appetite for spending, said Russell A. Westerberg, writing in the tax watchdog organization's May newsletter. Westerberg casts strong doubt on the contention that an Idaho lottery would save state taxpayers money.

state's lottery tickets. Westerberg writes that in fiscal 1982, 16 states were conducting lotteries. Of those, nine had per capita state and local taxes well above the national average and each had per capita tax burdens greater than Idaho's.

Looking at one state in particular, New York resumed its lottery in June 1976, a year when per capita state and local taxes totaled $1,023. In 1982, 6 years of lottery operation later, those tax collections had climbed to $1,789, an increase of 74 percent.

In Vermont, a lottery was begun in December 1977. State and local tax collections between fiscal 1975 and 1982 rose from $299 to $1,166.

During the same period, the collections in Idaho grew from $33 to $259.

Public Gaming Magazine estimates that a lottery in Idaho would raise about $24 million in state revenue, which is equal to only 1.3 percent of what the legislature appropriated from the general fund this year, and only 2.1 percent of total state spending from all sources, Westerberg notes.

In order to raise even that amount, however, lottery tickets valued at $67.4 million would have to be sold, based on the average amount state governments receive from total sales

That amount equals what is raised by 1 cent of sales tax, or a per capita tax collection of $70.

Included with Westerberg's newsletter is a list of per capita state and local taxes of all 50 states and the District of Columbia, ranked in descending amounts. Idaho ranks 44th on the list, behind all 17 states and the District of Columbia now using lotteries.

The lesson to be learned from these statistics, Westerberg says, is that "The idea that state and/or local taxes are reduced as a result of lottery revenues received by any state is difficult to support empirically."

Consumer agency opposes rate boost

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Idaho Fair Share has joined the fight against Washington Water Power Co.'s latest rate hike proposal because it would help pay for a canceled nuclear plant.

"It's an insult to the taxpayers of Idaho," said Doug Fagerness, spokesman for the consumer group that has intervened in previous WWP rate cases.

over five years. The group says WWP stockholders, who are guaranteed a return on their investment, should pick up the cost of a project that will never be used.

"There is nothing at Skagit-Hanford except a piece of earth that they want us to pay for," Fagerness said.

"WPP has slipped through the back door, saying 'You're going to pay for our bad management.'"

The Spokane-based utility asked for a $33.9 million rate boost last year, but received only $14.9 million from the Idaho Public Utilities Commission.

Through the proposed $22 million rate increase filed earlier this month, WWP hopes to pass on $1.6 million of the terminated Skagit-Hanford nuclear project to Idaho ratepayers.

The plant's cost would be spread

Although proposed constitutional amendments clearing the way for such a lottery have been killed in both the 1983 and 1984 legislature, the matter won't go away. It has now become an issue in some legislative races during this year's elections. That is especially true in the Panhandle of northern Idaho, from which residents can travel across the border into Washington to buy that

Office trial set

BOISE (AP) — The U.S. Customs Service will open a facility at the Boise Airport on a one-year trial basis.

It will be decided later whether the facility will be kept as a permanent operation.

Sen. James McClure, who announced the action, said a customs service should help Boise expand its role in international trade.

Lake fee proposal under fire

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Lakeshore owners and marina operators have contested the state of Idaho's right to charge fees for the use of lakebeds.

Shoreline owners testified Monday at a state Land Board subcommittee hearing that ownership claims are clouded by a long-standing confusion over the lines dividing public land from private land.

The lease issue arose earlier this year when the Land Board implemented an interim lease structure for marinas. They are to be assessed $100 per acre of state land used, or 3.75 percent of gross moorage receipts, whichever is greater.

The fee affects only those marinas built since the enactment of the state's 1974 Lake Protection Act. Most marinas have no binding agreement with the state and pay nothing for the use of the state land.

Establishing a new lease policy for submerged lands before ownership claims are resolved may place the proverbial cart before the horse, owners testified.

The owners question which water levels determine ownership boundaries. Levels vary from season to season as dams store and release water. And they vary historically between the time before dams were constructed and the present.

"If we don't own property, we're not going to charge fees," state Attorney General Jim Jones told the scores of owners. Jones is one of three Land Board subcommittee members studying submerged-lands policy.

Marina owners contend the Land Board discriminated against them by ignoring the other commercial uses of state submerged lands, such as hydropower, production and log storage.

"I think the whole thing should be rescinded until there's been adequate research," said Wally Wright, a Bayview marina operator and vice-president of a group of Lake Pend Oreille resort operators. "You're now doing the homework you should have done five months ago."

Wright said most marina operators agree they should pay for use of state land. But the operators want the fees established fairly and equally applied to all users, he said.

He also cautioned against setting high fees because operators must pass the increases to customers.

"Tourism is the only industry in Idaho that's growing," Wright said.

Gem hunger unit worker wins award

BOISE (AP) — A volunteer working with the Idaho Hunger Action Council at Idaho Falls has been given the 1984 Governor's Award for Outstanding Volunteer Service.

Ann Landon was honored at a banquet here Tuesday. Gov. John Evans presented Outstanding Volunteer awards to 42 individuals and 14 organizations.

Landon has volunteered full-time since last June to develop and coordinate a food gleaning project in the Idaho Falls area. The project salvaged 111,125 pounds of food valued at $86,000 in 1983. About 500 persons received the food.

She said low-income people are organized into teams to gather food that otherwise would be wasted. Some of the food is shared with people too elderly or handicapped to glean for themselves.

"Gleaners thus gain in self-respect as well as necessary food," she said.

Subdivision plat approved by council

By ANNA WAGNER
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — The final plat for the Heath Park Estates Subdivision, a residential planned unit development north of the city under proposal by Gary A. Lee & Associates, received the approval of City Council at its recent meeting.

The council granted its approval after determining the developer had satisfied the conditions outlined by Kimberly's zoning ordinance and had earlier been approved by the city's planning and zoning commission in April.

The 50-acre Heath Park Estates is located in the Kimberly Impact Area approximately three miles north and one mile west of the city on 3400 East Road. The property, formerly owned by Clarence Health, lies between the Shoshone Falls and Twin Falls parks.

"The site is ideal for a subdivision," project developer Gary Lee told council members during his presentation.

"We've done a great deal of research on the project design which features a circular arrangement of the one-acre residential lots," said Lee. This particular planned unit concept has been a popular one used with much success in the Ketchum-Sun Valley area, he added.

In other business: The council adopted a statement of policy pertaining to use of the Kimberly Community Center. Mayor Ron Jones had earlier requested that a policy be prepared because he believed the center was not being used to its full extent by community groups and residents.

The policy states that, when not otherwise in use for city business, the Community Center will be available for use by community residents, organizations and other parties.

"The first priority of use will be reserved for city business, with non-profit organizations having the next priority," the statement reads. "Any for-profit enterprise may use the center, but only after providing proof to the city clerk of liability insurance in force for the time of use."

The council authorized the mayor to sign an agreement between the city and the Twin Falls Highway District, establishing joint-jurisdiction for the maintenance and supervision of four public roadways bordering municipal and county lines.

The four roads under joint jurisdiction include: Polk, West, South Main, Center St. and Diamond St.

Council members adopted an amended municipal ordinance regulating retail sales and licensing of beer, wine and liquor within the city.

Police chief Jim Campbell said portions of the old city ordinance were revised in an effort to eliminate the confusion that often surrounds the definitions, fees, licensing procedures and rules governing retail sales of alcoholic beverages from city to city.

Under the provisions of the revised ordinance, fees for alcohol retail licenses are: $50 per year for either bottled or draft beer; $100 per year for a combination of bottled and draft beer; $100 per year for wine; and $375 per year for liquor.

Councilman Michael Langford presented a proposal to repair the backstops at two baseball diamonds in City-Park and received permission to purchase the materials to complete the job.

The city had originally intended to replace the existing backstops until the council learned such a project would exceed the $1,000 water and revenue sharing allotment re-budgeted from a previous year.

After re-examining the diamonds, Langford offered a scaled-down repair plan that could be accomplished within the budget limitations.

"At the small diamond, a 20-foot chain link extension will be added to each wing of the backstop, thus creating a 60-foot containment fence running along two sides.

Repairing the backstops was deemed a necessity this season to help prevent stray balls from damaging vehicles parked in the vicinity of the diamonds — a situation that has posed problems for the city in recent summers.

The council authorized the removal of several unused light poles in City Park. The 60-foot poles will subsequently be used to reinforce a graded hillside at the proposed Tee-ball diamond, located in the north end of town at the former sewer plant site.

"When the land was graded last year, part of a hill on the north side was cut away," Story told the council. "and the bank is badly in need of reinforcement to prevent erosion."

Although the poles were originally erected for park lighting, they have never been used for that purpose.

The council promoted Kimberly police corporal Roger Sharp to the rank of sergeant and voted to increase his monthly salary by $100 effective May 1, commensurate to the responsibilities of the higher position.

Valley budget hearing set

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

HAZELTON — A public hearing on the Valley School District budget for the coming year was set for 7:30 p.m. June 11 at the high school.

However, Superintendent Arlyn Bodily said the budget is not yet prepared. He said it should be finished within the next few weeks.

Bodily said the district's ongoing program to improve understanding and communication between school teachers and school board members is working well.

"It's a good program. They (teachers) find out what we're doing and what their problems and interests are. They have a better chance to understand the board's plans, responsibilities and ideas," he said.

In other business: Members of the Valley Quick Response unit explained an available high school program designed to train young students in cardiac pulmonary resuscitation. Bodily said the board requested the group to prepare a solid proposal to be considered at the June board meeting.

Resignations were received from Shannon Morris, teacher at the Junior high school, and Ko Tateoka, Edna third grade teacher.

Bodily said kindergarten registrations had been received for 41 potential pupils for the coming school term. This is about the same number as in the kindergarten classes this year, he said.

Lena Black, newly elected SOS president, met with the board. The SOS is the Serve Our Schools, parent/teacher organization.

The board approved sending four school lunch cooks to a state food service extension workshop.

Salvation Army assists 5,566 people

By JOE NEAVE
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls chapter of the Salvation Army honored local business and volunteers for their help to needy members of the community at its annual dinner and report Monday night.

According to the annual report for 1983, the Twin Falls chapter assisted 4,411 residents and 1,155 transients during the year. Over Christmas, 275 food baskets were given to families, and 1,700 toys were distributed. Also, 72 children had the opportunity to attend summer camp through the Salvation Army.

The "Bellringers Award," a trophy circulated among service clubs that work to raise money, went to the Kiwanis Club.

Jack Muldoon, chairman of the Salvation Army Advisory Board in Twin Falls, was presented with the "Others" award, one of the Salvation Army's highest honors.

Accepting the award, Muldoon said, "The Salvation Army has been such a blessing to me. I'd be glad to serve forever, for nothing, because of the uplifting feeling it gives."

The Outstanding Volunteer Award went to Virginia Henman, and Jim Willis received the Distinguished Service Award for his assistance in setting up the Salvation Army store in Burley.

Muldoon said, "We have the cream of the crop working here. I'm not saying other organizations don't have good people, because they do — but the folks here are great. There was a family of five who called around Thanksgiving who needed blankets. Within a few hours they had two big plastic bags full of blankets."

Capt. John Grehlover, corps officer for Twin Falls, presented plaques to Young's Distributing, The Sandpiper and The Donut House in appreciation for their gifts in kind. The Christian Bookstore and United Way were also given plaques.

Following entertainment by the Hallelujah Bell Chorus, Grehlover made his report to the community.

"Four years ago our total budget was $85,000, and last year it was $216,000. This gives an idea of the growth the Salvation Army has undergone," Grehlover said.

"People who came out our doors for help accounted for $75,000 this year alone — almost the entire budget of a few years ago. We're very pleased that as need has increased in this community, God has provided. I hope the auditors can tell me where the money's come from."

"An average of 14 people come to the Salvation Army's doors in Twin Falls every day of the week, every day of the year," Grehlover said.

"We do what we do because Jesus Christ is the son of God," he said. "What makes the Salvation Army tick is our compassion for others. I'm very proud to be the commanding officer in Twin Falls, and feel very privileged to have served here."

Maj. Robert Gregory of Portland, Ore., secretary of the Cascade Division, installed new members to the advisory board. The advisory board is made up of members of the community to which Salvation Army officers are stationed.

"We will solicit your advice, your counsel, and sometimes your hard physical labor," Gregory said. "In his address to the audience of about 30 people, Gregory said the Army is still needed.

"When we hear talk about the recession turning around, it's not true for poor people," Gregory said.

"We've had a 50 percent demand increase for services in Oregon and Idaho last year. And that follows an 80 percent increase in the year before."

Gregory also spoke of some of the lesser-known services the Salvation Army provides. "In Anchorage, Alaska, the Army operates a van for drunks, picking them up off the street so they don't freeze to death. In Hawaii, we have a home in a tiny village for 14 elderly Chinese gentlemen. In Portland, we have classes for adults who don't know how to read, and in San Francisco, we have a gymnasium that serves as a bedroom for hundreds of street people who have nowhere else to go at night," he said.

Alda Strong, a life member of the advisory board in Twin Falls, said, "The dinner is fun, probably one of the best times of the year. I've been on committees for about 26 years. Just when you're ready to quit someone comes along and appreciates the things we're doing."

Strong said she volunteers for the Salvation Army "because it's the one organization when someone wants a quart of milk for their kids they aren't asking what their politics are, or whether church they belong to. It's immediate help, even though it's temporary."

Bliss board approves initiation policy

By APRIL BISHOP
Times-News correspondent

BLISS — The Bliss School Board approved a new policy for freshmen initiation at the high school at its recent meeting.

Prompted by parental concern about initiation, the student body council drew up a tentative schedule of events for the two-day initiation period.

Parents will be asked to sign a permission slip for initiation activities, such as egg fights, a hayride and bonfire event. There will be class advisors and chaperones present during all activities, the board agreed.

In other business: Track Coach Doug Andrews asked the board to approve the construction of a two or three lane track oval. The board granted tentative approval, pending the presentation of a cost estimate by Andrews.

Andrews also asked the board to consider some type of adult education class for computer skills. Andrews said he has been approached by several people asking for just such a class. The board took the matter under consideration for the upcoming school year.

The board discussed the possibility of buying a new bus. One of the present buses has a broken motor mount that is being repaired. The board agreed to increase the bus liability insurance as required.

The board voted to give all non-certified personnel a 12 percent raise for the upcoming years.

The board announced the awards banquet will be held at the school Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Graduation will be May 20 at 7:30 p.m.

Slotten experienced in continuing education

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Marge Slotten, coordinator for the Idaho State Resident Center in Twin Falls, is her own best endorsement for continuing education.

In 1962, Slotten began her higher education with four semesters at the University of Wisconsin at Madison. She took time out to work as a reporter/editor on a weekly newspaper, and returned in the spring of 1966 for one semester.

In the fall of the same year, her studies were again interrupted, this time by marriage. Marge, and husband Roy, moved to Idaho in 1968, and in 1963, she started taking ISU classes in Twin Falls.

"While my children were growing up, I'd usually take one class a semester, working toward the goal of secondary education," she says.

When she had acquired enough credits to get close to graduating, she spent one semester commuting to Pocatello two days a week for two classes, and finally spent one summer session on campus.

Slotten graduated from ISU with her bachelor's degree in secondary education in August of 1973, just before turning 40.

"The work I do for ISU, off-campus coordination of classes, is something that is pretty meaningful in my life, so I feel really comfortable about the need for it, she says.

"I enjoy it very much. It's never the same from day to day. You never know for sure who's going to walk through the door, and what kind of special needs they might have."

Slotten has worked for ISU for five years, and during the first two, she worked out of her own home. Now there is a resident center with a classroom and an office.

"The number of students we have has increased considerably. In the Magic Valley, we serve probably about 250 students a semester," she says.

Questioned as to whether there are a lot of older people in the program, she answers, "Yes, the trend now at all universities, and it's particularly true at ISU, is that many more people are into career changes and picking up education to do either a second career, or finishing degrees that they started when they were in their 20s.

Slotten says one day recently, three people between the ages of 35 and 40 walked into her office and told her they wanted to go back to school.

"They came in with a lot of fear and trepidation about the implications of that, so I did the best I could in terms of putting them in touch with people on the campus who could help them decide what would make the best sense for them.

"I usually ask the people to check back with me and tell me how their experiences went, and they usually share that with me. As far as I know, most people get pretty pleased and turned on."

In addition to the classes attended here, many people in this area travel to ISU one or two days a week in a car pool. "I try to keep a schedule of who's going when, so I can put people in touch with others who are going at the same time.

Slotten is president of the American Legion Baseball Boosters Association, is past Twin Falls County Chairman of the Democratic Central Committee, and past local and state president of the League of Women Voters.

"The most rewarding volunteer things I've done," she says, "were in the League of Women Voters' leadership jobs that I've held. I think those experiences provided personal growth for me."

Marge and Roy are attending co-ed

Marge Slotten keeps quite busy in her duties as coordinator of the Idaho State University Resident Center in Twin Falls aerobics classes at the YFCA in order to increase stamina for cross-country skiing.

"I find it totally exhausting, but it does make me feel much better about two hours after the class," she says. The Slottens have a son, David, who is a freshman at Western State College in Colorado, and a married daughter, Renee, who made them grandparents on leap year day, this year. About grandparenting, Slotten says,

"It's kind of fun when you just go and deal with it for a couple of weeks, or when they come for a couple of days, and you can relax in between phone calls."

Marge Slotten has two recipes she

Plastic mulch speeds growth of warm-weather vegetables

REXBURG — No single practice will speed the growth of warm-weather vegetables like tomatoes and melons as much as plastic mulch.

It speeds first harvest by as much as two weeks and increases the total yield of fruit, sometimes doubling or tripling the harvest.

Two types of plastic mulch can be used on warm-weather vegetable crops. Both black and clear plastic increase earliness and yield by warming the soil.

Black plastic absorbs the sunlight, converts it into heat and transfers this heat to the soil by conduction.

Clear plastic allows the sunlight to radiate through, where it is absorbed directly by the soil. This is a more efficient method, resulting in five to 10 degrees greater temperature increase.

Allen Wilson Intermountain gardening

Black plastic has the additional advantage of controlling weeds. It is generally available in 50 foot rolls which are three feet in width. The thin 1/2 mil thickness is adequate for one season's use. I use black plastic on tomatoes, cucumbers, winter squash, pumpkins, peppers and eggplant.

I have also used black plastic on sweet corn, cantaloupe and watermelons with good success. However, I prefer clear plastic for these crops. Clear plastic does not control weeds, but it warms the soil even more than black plastic.

If your ground is not too weedy, it will increase earliness by an additional week over black plastic and also increase total yield on corn and melons.

Clear plastic is not as readily available as black, but can usually be found at building materials stores. The 2 mil thickness is usually the thinnest available. You may have to cut it to the correct three to four foot width.

How to Apply: Prepare your soil for planting just as you would without plastic. It should be tilled, fertilized and raked. Make a furrow where you intend to plant the seed or plants.

With smaller plants like peppers and eggplant, I usually make two rows about 15 inches apart. Lay the plastic over the single or double furrow and place soil around all the edges. It is important not to leave any plastic edges loose so that wind can get underneath.

Cut holes in the plastic just over the furrow at the proper intervals. Plant the seed or plants through the holes. Then place additional soil on top of the plastic along the center between plants for additional anchoring against the wind.

Water will run to the center of the plastic where you have made the furrow because it is a little lower. Leave at least a foot of uncovered soil between plastic strips. Plants can be watered by either sprinkler or furrow irrigation. Drip tube irrigation also works extremely well with plastic mulch. The drip tubes are placed along the row before plastic is applied.

Plastic mulch should be used only on warm weather vegetables such as those listed above. It is not effective on root, leaf or flower bud vegetables, which prefer cool growing temperatures.

For additional information on plastic mulch and other gardening techniques, send $1 and a stamped, self addressed long envelope to Allen Wilson, care of Lorayne O. Smith, Times-News Lifestyle Editor, Box 548, Twin Falls, Idaho 83303.

Allen Wilson teaches horticulture at Rteks College.

Some salads becoming main meal

Spearheaded by the popularity of restaurant salad bars and today's emphasis on eating "light" salads served as the main event of a meal are a growing trend. It makes sense — consumers enjoy salad bar meals for lunch and dinner, so why not take a tip from restaurants and serve main-dish "salad bar salads" at home?

Consumers are taking salad recipe hints from restaurants as well. One restaurant original that's enjoying a resurgence with today's trend toward "California cuisine" is the Cobb salad, created at the Original Brown Derby restaurant in Hollywood in 1929. It became the restaurant's signature dish and now is served in restaurants from New York to Seattle.

The original recipe is a salad made with chopped cooked chicken, tomato, avocado, shredded lettuce, blue cheese crumbles and bacon bits, all tossed with dressing. The Cobb salad spawned a range of chicken and avocado salads, popular both in restaurants and at home.

The combination of two Cobb salad ingredients in a brand-new cream cheese-based dressing makes it a perfect short cut ingredient in a 1980 version of the original Cobb salad.

Blue cheese and bacon dressing is featured in this new Classy Cobb Platter.

The base for the salad is shredded lettuce, which may be shredded by hand or sliced in a food processor.

Arrange the lettuce on a decorative serving platter. Top with cubes of cooked chicken, avocado slices and cheese cubes fanning out from a dish of dressing.

To serve, arrange a combination of the ingredients on individual serving plates, then spoon on the blue cheese and bacon dressing.

Pass extra dressing at the table.

To round out the meal, add a basket of warm croissants or crusty sourdough bread, and a carafe of California white wine.

A fresh fruit dessert completes the picture, for a meal that combines the best of yesterday's and today's "California cuisine."

CLASSY COBB PLATTER

- 2 cups chopped tomato
- 2 cups chopped cooked chicken
- 1 avocado, halved, peeled, sliced crosswise
- 6 oz. sharp natural cheddar cheese, cubed
- 1/2 qt. shredded lettuce
- Philadelphia blue cheese and bacon dressing made with cream cheese

Arrange tomato, chicken, avocado, and cheese on lettuce-covered platter. Serve with dressing. Makes four servings.

This Cobb platter, including leftover meats, cheeses and vegetables, is one salad solution

Methods to feed in Olympic fashion

By BETSY BALSLEY
Los Angeles Times

One of the first things you notice when looking over a collection of favorite recipes provided by the mothers of past, present and possibly future U.S. Olympians is that good home cooking stays in style.

No hummingbird's tongues in this collection. These are down-to-earth, old-fashioned, time-tested foods that will never go out of fashion simply because they taste good.

Vons Grocery Co. of Southern California invited as many mothers of past, present and hopeful future Olympians as possible to a luncheon in their honor and asked them to share recipes for foods that were, and in many cases still are, favorites of their children.

The following recipes are a few of those shared by the Olympic moms. This is just a small sampling of true Americana, for the collection contains not only the comforting presence of an old-fashioned pineapple upside-down cake made in a cast-iron skillet and a hearty okra stew, but it also reflects our country's diverse heritage, and interest in ethnic foods in the form of a sophisticated Italian cheese soup and an Oriental chicken and long rice main dish.

PAT BREE'S CHICKEN AND LONG RICE

(Lydia, 1984 gymnastics hopeful)

- 4 whole chicken breasts
- 1 (6 3/4-ounce) package saffron or bean threads or long rice
- 1-4 cup oil
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 2 large carrots, sliced diagonally
- 2 celery stalks, sliced diagonally
- 1 small head cabbage, cut in small pieces
- 1-4 cup soy sauce or to taste

Calculating shopper overcomes checkout woe

BY MARTIN SLOANE
Upbeat Feature Syndicate

Marty Pieschke of Arlington, Minn., has six children and does most of her supermarket shopping once a month. The total on her register tape usually amounts to several hundred dollars, and Marty, a careful shopper, tries to keep track of the money she spends.

About a year ago she noticed a problem. "I couldn't figure out why my supermarket register receipts always seemed to total more than they should. When I returned home and added up all the items on the register tape, it was always higher. This really bothered me," she says.

"Then a friend told me that this particular store often fails to take the sale prices off their merchandise after the sale is over, so you think you are getting the sale price but the electronic register is really ringing up a higher price. For instance, there was a big, red $1.09 sale tag on the shelf underneath the Cheez-It Crackers, but the sale was over and the register was ringing up $1.59."

"What do you do in a case like this? Marty decided to become a very calculating shopper. She went out and purchased a small, hand-held electronic calculator. She says it has saved her quite a bit of money.

"One day," she says, "while checking out two full carts of groceries, the total on the register really took off, and where my calculator showed a total of $180, the register showed over $1,000! Both the cashier and I knew this was a mistake, but she asked me whether the total was possible. I held out my calculator and showed her my total. The big mistakes are the easiest to catch, but the calculator also allows me to catch most of the smaller errors too."

Supermarket Shopper

In Marty still getting strange looks from other shoppers as she calculates up and down the supermarket aisles? "Now I get very few strange looks and mostly smiles. In fact, a few other shoppers have also started to use calculators," she says.

Lance, '60 gold and silver medals, swimming)

1-2 cup butter
2 cups brown sugar, packed
1 (8 1/4-ounce) can pineapple slices (or larger can, if more slices are desired)

4 eggs, separated
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup sifted flour
1-2 teaspoons baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-2 teaspoon vanilla

Melt butter in 10-inch cast-iron or other heavy oven-proof skillet (tilting pan to coat sides. Stir in brown sugar and salt. Remove from heat. Drain pineapple, reserving 2 tablespoons juice. Press slices into brown sugar. Set aside.

Beat egg yolks until light. Add granulated sugar, beating until well blended. Stir in sifted flour, baking powder and salt. Stir into egg yolk mixture. Add reserved pineapple juice and vanilla. Beat egg whites until stiff but glossy. Fold into yolk mixture to blend. Turn into prepared skillet. Bake at 350 degrees until puffed and browned, about 45 minutes. Test until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool briefly in pan, then turn out on serving plate. Serve warm or cold. Makes 8 servings.

GLADYS H. MOSES' OKRA STEW

(Edwin, '76 gold medal, hurdles, '64 heptathl)

3 tablespoons shortening
2 medium onions, chopped
1-2 green pepper, diced
2 cup diced celery
(16-ounce) can whole tomatoes, cut in 1/2

1-2 cup chopped zucchini

Slotten

constantly gets requests for when attending potluck dinner parties. One is a delicious pecan pie, and the other is her mother's recipe for German potato salad.

HOT GERMAN POTATO SALAD
Boil 8 or 10 medium size potatoes and peel. For the sauce, cut up about 5 slices of bacon into small strips and fry. Remove bacon from grease. Cut up about half of a medium size onion and sauté in bacon grease. Then add 4 tablespoons sugar, 1/4 cup vinegar and salt and pepper to taste. Combine 1 cup water and 1/4 cup flour, and put into mixture. Slice potatoes into the sauce, add bacon, and get it all up to a warm temperature. Serves six.

PECAN PIE

1 cup white corn syrup
1 cup dark brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup melted butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 whole eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup shelled whole pecans
Combine syrup, sugar, salt, butter and vanilla. Mix, and add eggs. Pour into unbaked pie shell. Sprinkle pecans over top. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Slotten says this pie is usually served with whipped cream to make it totally decadent.

2 cups diced okra
Salt, pepper
Hot cooked rice
Melt shortening in large skillet. Add onions, green pepper and celery. Cook until tender. Add tomatoes, zucchini and okra. Cook 5 minutes, or until okra is just tender. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve with hot cooked rice. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

LOIS WOLFSBERGER'S PROVOLONE SOUP FLORENTINE

(Leslie, '76 gymnastics)

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt or to taste
1-2 teaspoon dry mustard
1 (10 3/4-ounce) can condensed chicken broth
1 (10-ounce) package frozen chopped spinach
1-2 cup shredded peeled carrots
1-2 cup finely chopped onion
2-1/2 cups milk

1 cup shredded provolone cheese
Melt butter in saucepan. Blend in flour, salt and mustard. Remove from heat and stir in chicken broth. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Add spinach, carrots and onion. Cook over medium heat until vegetables are tender and spinach thawed.

Stir-in-milk. Heat just to serving temperature. Remove from heat. Stir in cheese until melted. If necessary, return to heat briefly to melt cheese. Do not overheat. Serve immediately. Makes about 5-1/2 cups.

DAWN PALCHIKOFF'S SPAGHETTI AND SAUCE

(Jan Louise, '76 sculling, '80 rowing)

1 to 2 pounds ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, crushed
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 (6-ounce) can tomato paste
1 (8-ounce) can tomato sauce
1-1/4 cups water

1-4 teaspoon ground cloves
1-4 teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon chili powder
Dash basil
Dash rosemary
1 teaspoon salt or to taste
1 (3 1/2-ounce) can pitted black olives

1 pound thin spaghetti or vermicelli, cooked and drained
Combine beef, onion and garlic in Dutch oven over medium heat and cook, stirring, until beef is brown. Spoon off excess fat. Stir in mushrooms. Add tomato paste, tomato sauce, water, cloves, pepper, sugar, chili powder, basil and rosemary. Cover and simmer until meat is tender and sauce is thick, stirring occasionally, about 1-1/2 to 2 hours. Season to taste with salt. Stir in olives. Serve over hot cooked pasta with garlic toast, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Herpes driving married couple apart

DEAR ABBY: Eight years ago my husband came home and told me the doctor told him he had genital herpes. I'm 53 and he is 54.

I was shocked and hurt and tried to believe he caught it some way other than the obvious. He listed several possibilities, from building a house near an open sewer to kissing a lot of girls at a Christmas party. I never commented except to say that if I had come home and told him I had caught genital herpes that way, I wouldn't have been able to finish the second sentence. He laughed and agreed.

We rarely have sex, as he always has an excuse. I keep myself immaculate, am nice looking and wear size 9 jeans. I know other men find me attractive, but I never give them any encouragement. My husband and I occupy the same house but seldom talk. We can ride for two hours and no words are spoken except to criticize my shoes, clothes, etc. I never answer anymore; it's easier that way.

Thanks for letting me "talk" to you, Abby. I feel better already.

—EMPTY MARRIAGE
DEAR EMPTY: The herpes virus could have been dormant in your husband's body for years until his lowered resistance caused it to become active. But where he caught it is the least of your troubles. You and your husband haven't been communicating either sexually or verbally for many years.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

You're both too young to go on as you are, sharing only an empty marriage. At the risk of sounding like a broken record: Somewhere there is a marriage counselor who can replace this cold war with a reasonably warm relationship. "Seek and ye shall find."

DEAR ABBY: I am an animal lover — always have been. I've often wondered how animals "know" this. Domestic dogs and cats always sleep on top of me. Parakeets perch on my fingers even while I'm pounding a typewriter. Even in the wilds of the Pocono Mountains, wild birds have rested on my shoulder and chipmunks have eaten from my hand.

Is there an explanation for this? Maybe some of your readers know. I have no idea.

—JULIET BRIDGMAN IN NEW YORK
DEAR JULIET: Animals and birds are born with an instinctive sense that signals a warning if the presence of potential danger, as well as trust when there is no threat to fur or feather. They "know" intuitively who their friends are. Would that man were so blessed.

DEAR ABBY: I have had it with these yahoos who have no telephone manners. May I submit a few suggestions?

1. Call me at a decent hour. Mealtime is between 5:30 and 7 p.m. Bedtime is 10 p.m. A phone call in the middle of the night denotes death or heart "breakin'". Also, remember that 10 p.m. in California is midnight here in Kentucky.

2. When you call, please don't say, "Hi, do you know who this is?" TELL me.

3. Did you get a wrong number? Don't be mad at me. I am not the idiot who mislabeled. Apologize. Remember, YOU disturbed ME.

4. If I am under stress due to illness or a death in the family, I need peace and quiet, not phone calls every 10 minutes. Please, one of you call, then tell everyone else. Write me a note and call me later after the dust settles.

5. If you don't know the number, look it up or call information. If you can't find it that way, ask a mutual friend — don't call every Shaffenaar.

Making low-sodium meals is easy

By CAROLE WAGSAMAN
The Washington Post

Fat and cholesterol may have stolen the limelight recently, but sodium made a comeback when the Food and Drug Administration issued its sodium-labeling regulations on April 18.

The regulations, which companies must follow by July 1985, tell a manufacturer what claims it can make about the sodium content of its products.

The regulations apply only to foods with nutritional labeling (products that list calories, carbohydrates, minerals, fats and so on) — about half of all processed foods.

So here is a clip-and-save reference of what it all means when newly labeled products appear on the shelves.

While these guidelines apply to packaged foods, preparing a low-sodium meal from scratch is just as easy with a trip through the express lane, and all you have to have on hand is oil.

This meal contains only 6 mg. of sodium and is from "Salt: The Brand Name Guide to Sodium Content," which lists sodium levels in more than 5,000 foods — fresh, packaged and diet — and includes recipes and a legislative and medical perspective on the sodium issue.

ZUCCHINI STUFFED WITH APPLES AND WALNUTS
(4 servings)
1/2 small or medium zucchini or 2 large
1/2 cup minced onion
1 tablespoon oil
1 apple, cored, peeled and chopped
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1-8 teaspoon ground cardamom (optional)
2 1/2 teaspoons lemon juice
1-2 cup cooked brown rice
Paprika for garnish (optional)
Rinse the zucchini, then trim off the ends. Cut the zucchini in half lengthwise, and steam over medium heat for 8 minutes. Rinse under cold water to stop the cooking process and set aside to cool.

Carefully scoop out and reserve the zucchini pulp, leaving a shell 1-1/4 inch thick. Set aside.

In a skillet saute the onion in the oil for 2 to 3 minutes over medium heat, until the onion is translucent. Add the apple, walnuts, cinnamon, cardamom

(if you are using it), lemon juice and zucchini pulp. Cook for 5 minutes, then add the rice. Continue cooking for an additional 3 minutes.

Lay the zucchini shells in a non-stick baking pan or one lined with cooking parchment. Fill each shell with the cooked mixture. Sprinkle with paprika (optional) and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Bruins topple Rams 12-6 in tourney opener

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — You don't have to play in Chicago in order to win ugly.

The Twin Falls Bruins did it here Tuesday in the first round of the Co-States Conference post-season baseball tournament, beating Highland 12-6 at Frontier Field in a game that featured 12 unearned runs, seven errors and 23 bases on balls — all in 6½ innings.

"We're a lot better off getting it in today than we would be waiting until tomorrow," said Bruin Coach Bill Ingram, shivering in the 41-degree temperature and 30-mile-an-hour wind that attended the contest. "We would have played it at our place (the practice diamond behind Twin Falls High School) if we had to."

The Bruins and Rams were the only teams to brave the elements on Tuesday, the first day of the three-round tournament. Pocatello and Minico were rained out in Rupert, while a cloudburst postponed Skyline at Idaho Falls and Blackfoot at Bonnellville. Those six teams are all scheduled to try again today.

The Bruins will host the winner of today's Minico-Pocatello game Thursday afternoon at 4 at Harmon Park. The winner of that game will move into the tournament title game in Idaho Falls on Saturday.

Tuesday's victory may not have been pretty, but it was satisfying to Ingram, whose Bruins had lost five of their last seven games prior to Tuesday.

"It took us a while today, but we finally starting making contact," said the Bruin manager. "Weaving the ball aggressively, which is something we haven't done much in the last eight games."

Southpaw Nate Burke and right-hander Darren Stuart combined for a three-hitter against Highland, although it was hard to tell. They reeled the Rams in order only once in the fifth inning — but Highland stranded 11 baserunners and twice left the bases loaded.

Stuart relieved Burke with one out in the fourth, the bases loaded and the game tied at 3. He uncorked a wild pitch that scored Bruce Schrade from third, then struck out Bret Higgins and walked Terrell Sweat, Todd Johnson and Ron Howell in succession, scoring two more runs. But he fanned Bill Roberts, the Pocatello pitcher, to end the inning and retired nine of the next 10 batters he faced — five of them on strikes.

"We'll probably use the same combination against Minico or Pocatello on Thursday," said Ingram. "It doesn't look like Scott Matlock will be able to pitch for us this week."

Matlock, a senior right-hander with a 4-0 record, broke his thumb against Pocatello eight days ago and has been limited to pinch-running duties since.

"He could have helped us if we play Idaho Falls on Saturday because he has thrown with some heat," said Ingram.

There was precious little heat generated Tuesday until the sixth inning when, trailing 7-6, the Bruins finally got to Roberts. Corky Federico led off with a triple to the right-center field wall and Tim Crossman followed with a single, driving in his third run of the day and chasing Roberts. Reliever Johnson then walked Rob Ellis and Allen Valdez to load the bases, setting up a wrong-field single by Todd Jones that scored Crossman and Ellis and sent Valdez to third. Valdez scored a moment later on a wild pitch.

Until the sixth, neither team had managed much offense. After stranding two runners in the first and three in the second, the Rams scored three runs in the third without benefit of a hit. Leadoff batter Cory Newsam walked, stole second and went to third on a groundout — Higgins walked and Sweat hit a bounce up the middle that was fielded by the second baseman, who threw wild past first base. Newsam scored, Higgins went to third and Stuart to second on the error. Burke struck out the next batter, Johnson, and walked Howell to load the bases before a throwing error by the third baseman scored two more runs.

In the Twin Falls third, leadoff batter Derrick Korsen walked and pinch-runner Jon Sander stole second. Scott Morgan singled sharply to right field, but Highland's Howell gunned down Sander at the plate. Matt Harr walked and Federico and Crossman hit successive singles, scoring Morgan and Harr.

Highland made it 6-3 in the fourth when, with one out, Schrade walked, went to third on a throwing error that put Newsam on second and scored on a wild pitch by Burke. Howard Morgan walked, and Ingram pulled Burke in favor of Stuart, who threw his wild pitch and walked in two more runs.

Twin Falls scored four runs in the bottom of the fourth to take a 7-6 lead. Stuart walked and pinch runner Matlock went to second on a sacrifice bunt. Roberts walked Harr and Federico to load the bases and Crossman singled off the glove of third baseman Howard Morgan, scoring Matlock from third. Harr then scored on a fielder's choice and Crossman on a groundout by Valdez.

The Bruins generated seven hits, three of them by Crossman and two by Federico — Burke allowed the Rams two hits in 3½ innings and Stuart just one in 3½ innings of relief.

The win improved Twin Falls' season record to 12-7, while Highland ended the year with a 5-13 mark.

Clips stun NBA, San Diego with sudden move into Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The San Diego Clippers announced Tuesday that they have moved their National Basketball Association franchise to Los Angeles and will play their home games at the Sports Arena starting next season.

The league said it had received "a request from the Clippers regarding relocation to Los Angeles" and the matter would be studied by a special committee which would report to the Board of Governors at its meeting next month.

The Clippers announcement was made at a news conference at the Sports Arena attended by front-office personnel of the team and members of the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum Commission.

"We think that Los Angeles is the greatest city in America and has a population that is more than sufficient to sustain an interest in two professional basketball teams," said Alan I. Rothenberg, president of the team. "We are the Los Angeles Clippers, our offices are right upstairs."

State Senator Bill Campbell, president of the Coliseum Commission, said the Clippers signed a 10-year lease with two five-year options to play at the Sports Arena, which has a seating capacity of 15,700. The vote of the Coliseum Commission to accept terms of the contract was 8-1 with Peter F. Schabarum dissenting.

The Clippers tried to move to the Sports Arena from the San Diego Sports Arena two years ago, but were rebuffed by the NBA. Rothenberg said he doesn't expect any problem this time.

"I don't think they're going to say no," he said. "In my opinion, the Raiders' decision has something to do with it."

Rothenberg referred to the verdict of a federal court jury two years ago in favor of the Raiders moving their National Football League franchise from Oakland to Los Angeles.

"We informed them (the NBA advisory committee) of our intentions," Rothenberg said. "Fate wouldn't allow (it) to happen two years ago. Fate is on our side now."

Meanwhile, NBA Commissioner David J. Stern issued the following statement in New York:

"I have received a request from the San Diego Clippers regarding relocation of its franchise to Los Angeles."

"No decision is more important to a professional sports league than where its franchises will be located, and no court ruling issued to date requires a professional sports league to abdicate its responsibility to exercise sound business judgment in making this decision."

The move is in accordance with league procedures — the request from the Clippers will be studied by a special committee on an expedited basis and will be put before the board of governors at its scheduled meeting in Salt Lake City on June 26 and 27. The membership of its special committee will be announced shortly.

Rothenberg said that moving vans containing the team's belongings left San Diego early Tuesday morning and arrived in Los Angeles around noon.

The Clippers came to San Diego for the 1979-79 season from Buffalo. The team was 43-39 in its first year in San Diego but it was downhill after that. The club was 3-47 in 1979-80, 36-46 in 1980-81, 17-65 in 1981-82, 25-57 in 1982-83 and 30-52 last season.

Andujar's grand slam lifts Cardinals past Braves 9-1

By The Associated Press

Joanjuan Andujar, one of the National League's major disappointments last season, won his sixth game in nine decisions and chipped in with a grand slam home run Tuesday night to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Andujar, 6-16 last year after going 15-10 in the Cardinals' 1982 world championship season, pitched his sixth complete game, allowing eight hits and striking out six without a walk.

His grand slam, off Atlanta reliever Jeff Dedmon following three straight walks, climaxed a six-run Cardinal eighth that put the game away.

In other National League contests, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Atlanta Braves 3-1 and the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Houston Astros 3-2 in 11 innings.

In American League games, the Detroit Tigers topped the Seattle Mariners 6-1 for their 29th victory in 33 starts. It was Cleveland 7, Boston 5; California 5, Baltimore 2; New York 9, Oakland 6; Milwaukee 3, Texas 2; Toronto 5, Minnesota 2 in 10 innings; and Chicago 3, Kansas City 2.

The Cubs ran their record to 19-14 as Dickie Noles pitched six innings of 5-hit, 1-1 relief and Gary Matthews the Rangers. Don Sutton, 3-2, got the win and Rollie Fingers picked up his seventh save.

Richard Dotson hurled a four-hitter, and Julio Cruz singled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning Tuesday night to give the White Sox their win over Kansas City. Dotson, 5-2, bested rookie Danny Jackson, 0-5, holding the Royals hitless between the second and ninth innings.

Mitch Webster scored the tying run in the ninth inning on Kent Hrbek's error and knocked in one of four runs in the 10th as Toronto rallied past Minnesota. Roy Lee Jackson, 3-1, was the winner in relief.

Andre Thornton drove in three runs, one with an eighth-inning single that broke a 5-5 tie with the Indians beat the Red Sox. Tom Seaver pitched 3.1

innings in relief for the Indians to post his first major league victory and even his record at 1-1.

Brian Dawning had a three-run homer and had a double that led to another run in the Angels' victory over the Orioles. Rookie Ron Donatelli won his fourth game in seven decisions for California with relief help from Luis Sanchez.

In late games, the New York Mets were at San Francisco, Montreal was at San Diego, and Philadelphia was at Los Angeles.

smacked four hits. Mel Hall and Ron Cey had key hits in a three-run fourth that gave Chicago the lead for good.

In Pittsburgh, where only 2-978 showed up in 40-degree weather, Tony Pena's two-out single in the 10th drove home Johnny Ray with the winning run as the Pirates beat the Astros. Cecilio Guante, 1-2, picked up the victory for the Pirates.

Jack Morris notched his seventh victory for the Tigers and Kirk Gibson and Howard Johnson each drove in two runs, as Detroit beat the Mariners in a loosely played game. Morris gave up three hits, but one was a three-run homer by Spike Owen.

In New York, Omar Moreno, making his first start for the Yankees since April 22, drove in four runs and Don Mattingly hit an inside-the-park homer. Ron Gundy earned his record at 2-2 despite yielding 11 hits, and Dave Higginth earned his fourth save as the Yankees won their third straight.

Ben Ogilvie hit a two-run double and Bobby Clark scored on Dave Tobik's wild pitch without out in the seventh to give the Brewers their victory over the Rangers. Don Sutton, 3-2, got the win and Rollie Fingers picked up his seventh save.

Qualifying three relays puts teeth in Bruin girls state bid

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls girls relay teams and Minico's Leonard Perezale were the major winners Tuesday when the secondary qualifiers for this weekend's A-1 State Track and Field Championships were named.

Twin Falls, which ran second to the Minico girls relay juggernaut in district, qualified in three of the four events which means the Bruins are in a struggle, most probably with Borah, for the state crown Saturday at the Boise State Stadium. Perezale qualified for three events — both hurdles and the pole vault — on the basis of comparing the non-automatic qualifiers among Idaho's other three districts.

Bruin Amber Welty and Minico high jumper Lisa Senecal qualified for the intermediate and high jump, respectively.

Twin Falls had three boys added to its roster with Mark Cazen in the 100 and high jumpers Tom McLellan and Gabe Ostyn plus the 800-meter relay team. Minico added Greg Schenk in the 800-meter run.

"Those relays were very important to us because without their point potential, our girls couldn't have been considered a very strong team contender," says Twin Falls Coach Jerry Kleinkopf. "I know that our second-best times here were better than some of the winning times in the other districts and that last week and last week to believe that our relays can score some very important points for us in state."

It appears that Borah will be the team the Twin Falls girls must beat for the title. Kleinkopf said the Bruin girls' big win in the Twin Falls Classic two weeks ago over Borah couldn't be used as a gauge.

"I said at the time that Borah kept some of their sprinters under wraps because of the inclement weather and it appeared that was the case. For instance, their 800-meter relay team won up there in 1:46 and didn't place in the Classic. They also came up with a good hurdler who wasn't here," Kleinkopf said.

The truth is, one can figure up the men's a dozen ways and get a lot of different answers.

Probably critical to Twin Falls — providing the other events hold up as expected — will be the sprint duel between Bruin Bigi, Salter and Borah's Miquette Gilson. The favorite in the shorter-two sprints should be Caldwell's Laura Hurley, but she isn't critical to the Twin Falls-Borah

State track schedule

BOISE — Following is the schedule of events for the combined Idaho Track and Field Championships at Boise State's Bronco Stadium Friday and Saturday.

Friday
9 a.m.	A-2, A-3, A-1 boys long jump; A-1 girls vault; A-3 boys discus; A-2 girls shot put; A-3 girls high jump
10 a.m.	A-2 girls high jump

3 p.m.	A-1 girls and boys running finals

faceoff.

"You can figure any of the girls placing from first to fourth in the 100 and 200," Kleinkopf said. "But in any of those races, the critical thing is to be fast to finish ahead of Gilson. It is a four-point swing in each confrontation, simply finishing one place ahead of each other."

With one exception, Salter, a Junior in her first year of track, has never been defeated. But this will be her first confrontation with Hurley and Gilson.

"Those are the races that one can point to before the meet but it is very essential that the rest of our qualifiers perform at a high level," Kleinkopf said.

The Bruins' major point hopes beyond Salter are Junior Matt Jan Miller in the long jump, where she could replace her graduate sister as the state champion and intermediate hurdles plus two relays. Another junior, Amber Welty, is favored in the high jump and should score well in the short hurdles and perhaps the intermediates.

The distances are a mixed bag for the Bruins with sophomore Lisa Williams looking at anything from third on down in the 800 and Tossie Szubert seeking points in the 1600 and 3200. Denise Rhoades should add shot put points.

Minico will rise well up in the final team standings because of its four relays — where the Spartans shouldn't be less than second — and Charlotte Winward in the hurdles, which should net her two championships and Minico 10 points. That could take Minico to 60 points in short order and if the team favorites should falter in more than a couple of events, the Spartans would immediately move right in.

"I wouldn't think anyone would want to overlook Meridian, Highland and maybe Capital," Kleinkopf said. "On sheer numbers they should score fairly well."

Highland qualified 22 individuals and three relays while Meridian has 19 individuals and three relays. Twin Falls has 16 and 3 against 13 and 2 for Borah while Nampa has 12 and 4.

In the boys division, neither Minico nor Twin Falls figure to be in the top two.

"We'd like very much to finish in the top five," says Kleinkopf. "But there's Boise, Borah and Highland who we know have some quality (first and second-place) points and I would think that Nampa and Capital would score well. We really don't know much about the northern teams."

Bruins with the best chance of succeeding would be junior Doug Zukalyk in the high hurdles and seniors Craig Leonard in the long jump and high jumper Andy Toogson. All have stern competition.

Zukalyk's 14.7 — Twin Falls best since 1941 — is the best among the qualifiers although Chris Quijano, Boise, and DD Harris, Capital, also juniors, had 18.

Four jumpers had better leaps than Leonard in district competition but it is a truism that everyone jumps better in the Boise pits than at Twin Falls for some reason. Leonard has broken three of the four, not having faced Coeur d'Alene's Tim Haakenson who had a 21-5 district.

Boston batters Milwaukee; Lakers go two up on Phoenix

Celtic play belies coach's 'tired' complaint

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Coach K.C. Jones said his Celtics were "popped." It would be hard to convince the Milwaukee Bucks.

Just 48 hours after winding up a long series with the New York Knicks, the Celtics charged to a 119-96 victory over Milwaukee Tuesday night in the opener of a playoff series for the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference championship.

Larry Bird hit for 24 points and was joined in double figures by six teammates as the Celtics got a big jump on the well-rested Bucks.

"Larry's popped, Robert's (Parish) popped," Jones said. "Having only one day off between series worried me something awful. It's very tough after a mind-boggling, draining game like we had Sunday. I'm very pleased with our effort."

He sat on them early and they never had a chance to get back into the game.

"It was an emotional drain to have to play so soon after the New York series," Boston guard Dennis Johnson said of the seven-game series. "But the emotion from Sunday carried right over to tonight."

"There's not a lot you can say about this game," said Milwaukee Coach Ned Nelson. "We didn't give them much of a ball game. The whole squad is disappointed, but we're sure we'll give them a better game Thursday night."

Cedric Maxwell and Parish scored 17 points each, while Kevin McHale, 16, Johnson, 12, Gerald Henderson, 11, and Danny Ainge, 10, completed the rout.

The Celtics, swept by the Bucks in a four-game conference semifinal last year, made sure that would be no repeat in breezing in the opener of the best-of-seven series.

The Bucks took a 4-3 lead after 2½ minutes before Boston went in front to stay.

The Celtics led 22-17 after one quarter, 44-42 at the half, and 84-69 at the three-quarter mark.

The Celtics, coming off a tough seven-game series with the New York Knicks, took advantage of Milwaukee's apparent rustiness. The Bucks were off in their shooting after being idle since eliminating the New Jersey Nets last Thursday.

Magic Johnson sparks win with assists record

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Ervin "Magic" Johnson handed out a National Basketball Association playoff record 24 assists, and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 21 points Tuesday night as the Los Angeles Lakers continued to roll in the playoffs with a 118-102 victory over the Phoenix Suns.

The victory was the Lakers' ninth in the 1984 playoffs against one loss, and gives them a 2-0 lead over the Suns in the best-of-seven Western Conference finals.

Johnson's assists eclipsed the league's one-game playoff record of 20 set by San Antonio's Johnny Moore in 1983.

Reserves James Worthy and Bob McAdoo added 19 and 16 points each in the well-balanced Lakers' scoring.

Larry Nance paced Phoenix with 22 points and James Edwards had 16.

The Lakers, trailing 28-26 after the first period, established command in the second quarter, as McAdoo and Worthy combined to outscore the entire Suns team 19-18.

Worthy had 11 points and McAdoo eight in the quarter for the Lakers, who roared back from a 36-31 deficit early in the period with a four-minute 16-2 scoring spree that gave them a 47-38 advantage. They led 56-46 at the intermission.

Los Angeles built its lead to 67-50 early in the third period, but the Suns came back to trim the difference to 74-63 midway through the quarter. That was, however, as close as the Suns were able to get the rest of the way.

The Lakers, who beat Kansas City 3-0 in the opening playoffs and Dallas 3-1 in the next round, try to wrap up this series in Phoenix, where the third and fourth games will be played Friday and Sunday.

The series winner advances to the NBA championship round against the Boston-Milwaukee winner.

The Celtics continued to pour it on in the second half and it was no contest for the rest of the way.

Milwaukee was led by Marques Johnson with 18 points, and Paul Presley with 17. Veteran center Bob Smith hit for Milwaukee's first basket of the game, but was scoreless the rest of the way.

The second game will be played here Thursday night before the series moves to Milwaukee for games three and four Saturday afternoon and Monday night.

Los Angeles built its lead to 67-50 early in the third period, but the Suns came back to trim the difference to 74-63 midway through the quarter. That was, however, as close as the Suns were able to get the rest of the way.

Edmonton outmuscles Islanders

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — The big guns in the Edmonton Oilers' arsenal finally found the range Tuesday night. Led by Mark Messier's two goals and a pair of lightning-quick scoring spurts, the Oilers blasted the New York Islanders 7-2 to take a 2-1 lead in the Stanley Cup finals.

Until the third game of the National Hockey League championship series, the Oilers had been virtually punchless. And their top scorers — Messier, Glenn Anderson, Paul Coffey, Jari Kurri and, of course, Wayne Gretzky — had floundered.

"The pressure was on us because we were the guys who did most of the scoring during the season," said Messier. "We did it all year in pressure situations when we needed the goals."

"It's a relief to get some goals." They got enough goals that Islanders goalie Billy Smith needed relief in the third period. But none of the Oilers except the pounding Smith took to make a difference when the teams meet here for Game 4 Thursday night.

"I don't think it will shake that guy's confidence," Messier said. "He's been beaten before and got himself together and played great the next one. I wouldn't be counting Billy Smith out, yet."

While Messier connected twice, Anderson and Coffey also beat Smith and Gretzky helped setup Anderson's game-winning goal in the second period. Just 17 seconds after Anderson scored at 19:12, Coffey pounced on a rebound to make it 4-2.

In the third period, Messier and Kevin McClellan also struck quickly, connecting 20 seconds apart to send Smith to the bench.

Edmonton outmuscles Islanders

Edmonton built its lead to 67-50 early in the third period, but the Suns came back to trim the difference to 74-63 midway through the quarter. That was, however, as close as the Suns were able to get the rest of the way.

The Lakers, who beat Kansas City 3-0 in the opening playoffs and Dallas 3-1 in the next round, try to wrap up this series in Phoenix, where the third and fourth games will be played Friday and Sunday.

The series winner advances to the NBA championship round against the Boston-Milwaukee winner.

CSI signs 6-5 Oregon guard

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho's basketball roster swelled by another player Tuesday when Terry Joyner, a 6-5, 185-pound swingman from Lebanon, Ore., signed a letter-of-intent.

Joyner was a four-year varsity starter for his AAA high school, which is the state's largest classification. As a junior he averaged 20.6 points and seven rebounds, shooting 55 percent from the field and 87 percent at the

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF
Dear Mr. Wolff: Partner opens one in a major and bids two no-trump over my two-club response. I learned that this rebid promises extra values. What are the modern trends?
Oriented Values, Hines, Calif.
Dear Mr. Wolff: ANSWER: In days gone by, the two no-trump rebid did promise extra values. Today it depends upon partnership methods. Some use the bid to show a minimum balanced hand without support for responder's suit. Others use the rebid to describe opening no-trump strength, including a five-card major.
Dear Mr. Wolff: Partner opens one heart, I bid two clubs and partner rebids two diamonds. Is the two-diamond bid a forcing bid or can pass it? How do diamonds better than hearts?
Strong Cheese, Jackson, Miss.
Dear Mr. Wolff: ANSWER: After a two-over-one response, any change of suit by either side is a forcing bid. Had you bid spade over one heart, you would have been at liberty to pass two diamonds.
Dear Mr. Wolff: Partner doubled an opening three-spade bid by his fifth bid.
Q 1098
A 1987
Should I have passed for needles or should I have bid four hearts?

MOTOROLA Communications and Electronics Inc. RADIO COMMUNICATIONS REPRESENTATIVE
If you have a strong ambition, there's an outstanding opportunity for you in one of the country's fastest growing industries. Motorola, the world's largest manufacturer of radio communication products, has an opening for an ambitious sales person in the Burley area, who sees a future in sales management. A college degree and successful sales experience are essential qualifications. Obviously, our business calls for specialized knowledge, so you will be put through an intensive training program, learning our product line and the many phases of our marketing, service and sales operation. Assignments calling on agricultural, contractors, service businesses, and other communication-related companies will challenge your initiative and ability to function independently. How rapidly your income and responsibilities grow will be dependent on you. We will advance the momentum with a good starting salary, bonus plan, expense account, car and liberal benefits. Send your resume with copy requirements to:
